

Richardson eyes Agnew investigation

By 313 The Associated Press
SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH 84110

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A thorny decision on whether a Maryland federal grand jury should proceed with an investigation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew was not expected from Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson until after Labor Day.

Richardson is spending the week in his home state of Massachusetts, privately weighing the constitutional and legal problems that surround the Agnew issue. He is not expected back in Washington until shortly after Labor Day.

At issue is whether the grand jury investigating corruption in Maryland state politics should hear witnesses on charges involving Agnew's activities when he served as Baltimore County supervisor and governor before becoming vice president.

Richardson was expected to confer with the U.S. Attorney in Maryland, George Beall, before making a decision.

Richardson told reporters last week he would take "ultimate responsibility" for deciding whether Beall should ask the grand jury to indict Agnew if enough evidence exists, and whether the Constitution allows the indictment of a vice president who has not been impeached.

Agnew has vigorously denied he took kickbacks from contractors doing business with Maryland and lambasted Richardson for letting his subordinates leak information from the grand jury probe to reporters. So far, says Beall, the grand jury has not received any evidence concerning Agnew directly.

The dilemma facing Agnew is that a decision by Richardson that a vice president cannot be tried before impeachment would make it look as if he escaped prosecution on a technicality without having to defend himself.

For Richardson, the conflict comes in interpreting the Constitution, which is ambiguous on the question of trying a president, vice president or federal judge while still in office.

In addition, the attorney general may decide that there is not enough evidence to warrant prosecution, which could keep Agnew under a cloud because of the accusations leaked to the media.

Another factor in Richardson's "ultimate responsibility" is the Watergate tapes issue.

It would be hard for the administration to reconcile its broad claim of executive privilege for presidential documents that might be incriminating while at the same time approving the criminal prosecution of the Vice President, who might logically be presumed to enjoy the same privilege.

today in brief

Letter bomb explodes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A terrorist letter bomb exploded at the British embassy early today, maiming a 51-year-old woman secretary who was opening the mail. The United States termed it a "shocking act of violence."

Mrs. Nora Murray, a personal assistant to a senior embassy officer, was taken to George Washington University Hospital where a spokesman said she had suffered the loss of her left hand and severe injury to her right hand. She was listed in serious condition but satisfactory.

Bicycle speedster takes record

WENDOVER, Utah (UPI) — Dr. Allan Abbott, 29, San Bernardino, Calif., broke the world land speed record for bicycles Saturday with a mark of 138.674 miles per hour at the Bonneville Speedway on the Salt Flats near here.

He pedaled a $2,000 bicycle in bettering the old world mark of just over 127 miles per hour set in 1962 in France.

13 feared dead in crash

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A Colombian turboprop airliner with 43 persons aboard crashed into a hill on Bogota's outskirts today in dense fog. First reports from the crash scene indicated there were no survivors.

The control tower at Bogota's El Dorado Airport identified the aircraft as a Lockheed Electra turboprop operated by the local Aerocondor airline. It was on a domestic flight between Bogota, Cartagena, Barranquilla and the neighboring Dutch Antilles island of Curacao.

Bank hikes prime rate

NEW YORK (UPI) — Chase Manhattan Bank announced today it is raising its prime lending rate from 9 1/2 to a record 9 3/4 per cent in what could be the start of the 15th round of increases this year.

Chase Manhattan said the new rate is effective immediately. Last Monday, First National Bank of Chicago boosted its prime rate — charged top-rated business customers — to 9 1/2 per cent from 9 1/4.

Glee, gloom fill MV classrooms

TWIN FALLS — A sense of excitement and fresh start filled the air as students gathered this chilly morning in front of Magic Valley schools waiting for the first day of classes to begin.

Some glad to be back and others dreading loss of freedom, students throughout Magic Valley returned for the first day of classes today. All Twin Falls schools opened this morning with a full day's schedule.

Also opening for a full day today were schools in Gooding, Bliss, Glenns Ferry, Eden, Hazelton, Shoshone, Dietrich, Buhl, and Castleford. Wendell and Jerome schools opened for a half day today and will start regular schedules tomorrow.

Twin Falls schools have 35 new teachers and a new principal, Bill Stover, at the Washington Elementary School. The prices of hot lunches at the schools has jumped five cents since last spring, as it has at other valley schools.

Muscle party will replace gas as students in Minidoka County walk farther to catch the bus. Fearing a rationed gas shortage school administrators in the county have shortened the bus route.

Registration for kindergarten programs in Cassia County is still being permitted. Programs are expected in Malta, Springdale, Oakley and possibly in Burley, depending on the number of enrollments. The charge is $15 monthly.

Thieu sweeps election

SAIGON (UPI) — Supporters of President Nguyen Van Thieu swept all 31 races Sunday in South Vietnam's Senate election, the first national vote since the Jan. 28 cease-fire, unofficial returns showed today.

The vote gave Thieu's supporters a two-thirds majority in the Senate, thus empowering the 50-year-old president, if he chooses, to amend the constitution to permit him to run for an unprecedented third term.

Government spokesmen said more than 92 per cent of the nation's registered voters cast ballots, in spite of several reported terrorist incidents at the polls and boycotts by neutralist and Communist parties.

Two slates of candidates committed to Thieu — the president's own Dan Chu or democracy alliance, and the White Elephant party led by Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam — overwhelmed two opposition slates by margins of better than five to one.

The two groups captured all 31 seats up for election in the 60-member Senate, the unofficial returns showed. The opposition slates all were inexperienced politicians.

DECS 'conflict' reported

By GEORGE FRANK
BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Attorney General W. Anthony Park made the recommendations after receiving a preliminary report of Live, Inc., Boise, by the accounting firm of O'Brien, Reynolds and Co.

The report referred to the payment of additional monies to present and former state employees beyond their salaries by the private non-profit corporation.

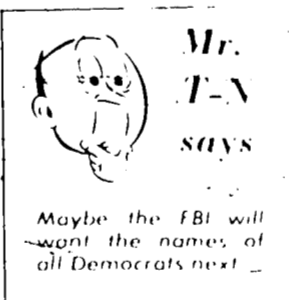

"It is my opinion that these recommended actions will sufficiently protect the interests of the public and the state of Idaho in regard to these matters, pending completion of this matter," Park said in a letter to Department of Environmental and Community Services Administrator Dr. James A. Ray.

He recommended that the DECS employee now acting in a supervisory capacity at Live, Inc., be "suspended until such time as my investigation has been completed and final determination can be made based upon facts obtained from the complete investigation."

Park said he was "abstaining" at this time from commenting on any potential "criminal violations" but would take appropriate action based upon the facts developed during the course of the continuing investigation.

Park also recommended that all financial assistance being provided to Live, Inc., by DECS be "terminated until such time as the managing agent of Live, Inc., has been suspended by the board of directors of Live, pending the conclusion of the investigation."

Park said the preliminary report indicated that for a substantial period of time certain full time state employees may have received compensation in addition to salaries paid by the state for services rendered to Live.

FBI checks Gem party

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Secretary of State's office has acknowledged to the Lewiston Morning Tribune it has turned over to the Federal Bureau of Investigation a copy of more than 1,500 names of Idahoans who in 1972 wanted the Peace and Freedom Party on the election ballot.

Tribune's Jay Shelly said in an article published today that Jerry Hill, chief election officer for Secretary of State Peter Cenarrusa, that a man who identified himself as an FBI agent picked up a copy of the formation petition in June of 1972.

The regional office of the FBI in Butte, Mont., denied the incident, but Hill and Cenarrusa all recalled the agent's request.

This comes on the heels of an acknowledgment a week ago by Washington Secretary of State Lud C. Kramer that he regularly turns over to the FBI delegates to minority party conventions.

In the Idaho case, it was a formation and not a nomination petition that was requested, the Tribune said. A formation petition contains the names of those persons who wish to give a minority party the right to be on a ballot.

Such persons do not necessarily support the party or their candidate, the Tribune said.

The Peace and Freedom Party nominated for President the famed baby doctor Benjamin Spock. The party also sought the end to bombing in Vietnam and surrounding countries.

Jon Robertson, 31, Boise, who unofficially headed the party in Idaho, said he thought it "outrageous" that the FBI would check the petitions.

He said people signed the petition because they believed a party should have the right to be on the ballot outside the Democratic and Republican parties.

Hill said every record in the Secretary of State's office is subject to public access, but he acknowledged the FBI's reasons differed from those of the public in wanting to see the names on the petition.

FBI agent Vincent McCarthy said the Peace and Freedom Party petition from Idaho is not on file.

"We checked around with agents here and in Boise, but we couldn't find out who did it," he said.

MV population losses take 'heavy toll'

By RICHARD G. HIGH
Times-News managing editor

GOODING — Sustained population losses in four Magic Valley counties have taken a heavy toll, according to a federal study. The study of Gooding, Lincoln, Jerome and Camas counties reports that high rates of population decline have cut deeply into the human resources of the counties.

The exodus, extending for at least 20 years, has meant:

- The loss of younger, better educated and more ambitious workers.
- The average age of the population left behind is rising.
- The counties now have a higher proportion of women than before.

- Fertility ratios, once above the national average, have fallen below state and national averages.
- Whereas the counties once had a higher than average number of youthful dependents, that number has fallen to about the national average.
- The number of elderly dependent people has risen well above both state and national levels.

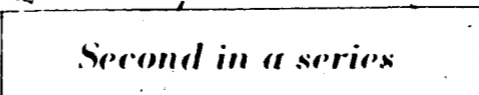

These grim findings were part of the federal study, "The Economic and Social Impact of the Depopulation Process upon Four Selected Counties in Idaho."

The study was prepared by College of Idaho economics professor LaMar Bollinger for inclusion in research reports published by the US Commission on Population Growth and the American Future.

An advance copy of the report was made available to the Times-News by Bollinger.

Bollinger cited US Census figures showing marked depopulation in the four-county area.

ALABAMA GOVERNOR George Wallace, still paralyzed from an assassination attempt over a year ago, celebrated his 54th birthday over the weekend at a party attended by 10,000 well-wishers. Shown here, the governor and Mrs. Cornelia Wallace are cutting a 200-pound birthday cake replica of the state capitol.

10,000 fans attend fete

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George Corley Wallace turned 54 Saturday and celebrated the event with a few thousand friends who ate barbecued chicken, corn on the cob and birthday cake in Garrett Coliseum.

The crowd of more than 10,000 well-wishers cheered when Wallace, paralyzed from the waist down by an assassination attempt in Maryland in May, 1972, said he would be willing to run for president all over again.

"Despite what happened," Wallace said, as he stood on a special platform, "I'd do it all over again because the great average citizens of our nation are the king and queen of American politics."

"I'm doing well physically with the exception you all know about, but as long as you want me involved I'm going to be involved."

The party was advertised as a non-political affair, but after Wallace was rolled onto a stage trimmed in red and white he said "Because of this crowd and because of all the national news media that are here it would be almost impossible not to make a political speech."

He said he ran for president because "I vowed as a young boy that some day they (the people up north) were going to hear the side of some of the finest people in the world."

Trapped miners dead five days

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (UPI) — Two miners trapped nine days in a dead end tunnel 1,300 feet beneath the baking desert were dead "at least five days and possibly longer" before rescuers found the bodies, a medical report disclosed Sunday.

Justice of the Peace George Pickrel, ex-officio coroner in the case, could not pinpoint the exact time of death of David Deeder, 41, Casa Grande, and Terry Udall, 24, Fort Collins, Colo. He empaneled a coroner's jury and said an inquest would be continued, probably until next week.

State Mine Inspector Verne C. McCutchan, who said, "We did everything possible to get them out," added that temperatures in the tunnel were close to 120 degrees when rescuers finally broke through the rock and muck Saturday night. He said that might have had "an important bearing on their deaths."

Deeder and Udall were trapped in the back of a 500-foot horizontal shaft Aug. 17 when tons of debris fell from a vent hole during drilling operations.

Hecla Mining Co., developers of the Lakeshore Copper Mine

south of here, said "other workers, who escaped the cave-in, saw Deeder and Udall flee into the dead end tunnel, away from the falling debris, 67 feet of which blocked the tunnel entrance."

Early efforts by rescuers to dig the miners out of the debris were stalled when fire erupted in a 40-ton loader that had been abandoned with its engine running. Support timbers were destroyed by the blaze and rescue workers had to replace them one at a time as they reentered the mine after the fire was quelled.

The operator of the loader, Ed Hazelhurst, is among the five or six witnesses scheduled to testify at the inquest. He jumped from the loader when the debris collapsed and said he saw Deeder run back into the tunnel.

McCutchan said the section of the mine where the cave-in occurred would remain closed until the investigation is completed. He said regular operations would resume in other sections of the mine today.

The inspector said he was "satisfied" with Hecla's safety precautions.

Attend seminar

Civitan clubs hold district meet in TF, discuss children benefits

TWIN FALLS — Projects to benefit retarded and handicapped children hold prime priority for Civitan clubs, Ernie Hill, International vice president, told district officers here Saturday.

Hill was one of several speakers addressing delegates to a district convention at the Holiday Inn here. Eleven clubs from the Idaho and Montana area attended the district meeting.

Hill, Idaho Falls, urged clubs to join the International project of assisting retarded children. He said Civitan is committed for an $80,000 financial campaign to aid retarded children throughout the nation. Some of this will be coming back to the communities in which local clubs serve, he said.

New clubs and increased membership for existing clubs were other topics discussed by the International officer. He said Twin Falls Civitan officers and members will assist with a new club in Burley. There will also be a second club in Boise and another in Meridian with a new club being organized next month in Bozeman, Mont., he said.

Hill said the district is looking to a 30 per cent increase in membership in the clubs around the district. "Civitan," he said, "is an organization of young business and professional men dedicated to building good citizenship and helping other people and communities."

An example of outstanding projects, he said, is the project of the Ontario, Ore. club, which is part of the Intermountain District because of its close proximity to Boise. That club has just received a $45,000 grant in conjunction with a shelter workshop project to assist handicapped and retarded youngsters.

Another major Civitan project, he said, is the annual Youth Citizenship Seminar held in Great Falls and to which other clubs send youth delegations.

Bud Cheney, Twin Falls, district governor elect, also addressed the group as did Perry Frysle, Idaho Falls, present district governor.

Family camp

TWIN FALLS — Rev. Earl Riddle, Portland, former pastor of the Twin Falls United Methodist Church, will be the guest leader at the annual Family camp over Labor day weekend.

Charles Case, Gooding, program chairman for the event, held at the denomination's Camp Sawtooth, north of Fairfield on the South Fork of the Boise River, said the family camp, from Saturday evening through Monday noon, is sponsored by the Magic Valley Methodist Men.

Registrations should be given to Rev. Nathan Ware, Shoshone. Theme for this year's camp is "Christian Family Living — What Makes the Difference?"

Saturday evening there will be a presentation by the Forest Service under the direction of Jerry Kuykendall. Sunday mornings schedule includes the first discussion of the theme, followed by a worship service.

Group singing and group discussion is slated for 4:30 p.m. Sunday and the final session will be Monday morning.

There is always adequate free time allowed for camp participants to hike, fish or relax, Case said.

Committee members involved in planning for the weekend event include Luther Koontz, Gooding, camp committee chairman; Bud Bitterli, Wendell, and John Wiswall, Jerome.

Funding asked by voter league

NEW MEADOWS, Idaho (UPI) — Members of the Idaho League of Women Voters have gone on record calling for adequate funding to maintain a viable State Human Rights Commission in Idaho.

"It is vital that an appeal process be maintained for persons who are discriminated against on the basis of race, color or sex," said Marjorie Lotten, state president. "Our members feel that the commission is a vehicle to provide equal opportunity for employment, housing and education," she said.

In other action, the board agreed to support legislation that will regulate minimum stream flow and shore line protection by initiative if necessary.

Fumes fatal to 2 in abandoned mine

RELIANCE, Wyo. (UPI) — A Rock Springs, Wyo., man and a Salt Lake City man ventured into an abandoned mine in southwestern Wyoming and were killed by heavy concentrations of carbon dioxide, Sweetwater, County, Wyo., coroner Peter Vase said Sunday.

Vase identified the victims as Wayne Roberts, 24, of Rock Springs and Sidney Lott, 23, of Salt Lake City. The men entered the mine site Saturday with Fred Cernich, 19, Charlene White, 18, and Floyd Martinez, 21, all of Rock Springs.

Vase said all but Martinez entered the abandoned Stansbury mine near Reliance. The other four walked in about 1 1/2 miles to a tunnel intersection where Miss White and Cernich stopped. Lott and Roberts continued into the mine and collapsed about 35 feet past the tunnel intersection due to heavy concentration of carbon dioxide and lack of oxygen, circumstances known to miners as "black damp."

2 men dead in Idaho accidents

By United Press International
Two men died in separate automobile mishaps in Idaho during the weekend and state police received the delayed report of a fatality resulting from a July 18th mishap.

The victims were identified as Fredrick William Kester, 67, Spokane, Paul Virgil Helton, 51, Marsing, Idaho, and Leland Perry, 64, Santa, Idaho.

Idaho State Police said Kester apparently walked into the path of a vehicle driven by Michael Carl Jain, 29, of Tacoma, Wash., late Saturday night near Coeur d'Alene on Interstate 90.

Helton was killed when his semi-truck loaded with poles for hop growing went off the Warm Lake road east of Cascade and rolled Saturday.

Helton's son, Paul J. Helton, 14, was taken to Valley County hospital with minor injuries after the accident.

Perry died Thursday in a Coeur d'Alene hospital of injuries he received when his pickup truck collided with a semi-truck on State highway 3 in July near St. Maries.

TF man robbed while attempting to hitchhike

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was robbed of approximately $275 Sunday while attempting to hitchhike out of town.

A few hours later Twin Falls police arrested two out-of-state men on the robbery charge.

According to Twin Falls police detective Captain Tim Qualls, the two men allegedly picked up Hugh Battershell, Twin Falls, as he was hitchhiking out Blue Lakes Boulevard North and robbed him.

Arrested on charges of robbery were William Standard, 26, no address, and Randy Shaw, 23, Portland, Ore. Qualls said there is no verification that Standard and Shaw gave their true names. He said the two men were apprehended with a vehicle stolen from Lompoc, Calif.

Investigation is continuing into the suspects' identity and into the stolen auto case, Qualls said.

Qualls said Standard and Shaw were apprehended and taken into custody in the 1800 block of Kimberly Road.

Just prior to press time, Qualls informed the Times-News that Standard and Shaw had been identified as escapees from the Lompoc, Calif., Federal Correctional Institution.

The true names of the men, Qualls said, were Thomas Wesley George, Jr., 22, and Charles Hayden McManamy, also 22. He said they escaped from the federal prison on Aug. 13.

Asked if the men would stand trial in Twin Falls or be transported back to California to face escape charges, Qualls said, "As far as I know, they're going to stay here and stand trial right now."

Musical program set in TF

TWIN FALLS — A special musical program is planned at the First Assembly of God Church Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

The special musical service will feature Lee Robbins, popular soloist and recording artist. He has performed for revivals, a weekly radio program broadcast internationally.

In the concert here he will present a selection of sacred music and popular new gospel songs. The public is invited to attend. The church is located on North Locust Street and Shoup Avenue.

Lost plane found

EATONVILLE, Wash. (UPI) — Searchers have found the wreckage of a light plane near here that carried three men and a teenaged boy from Moscow, Idaho, to their deaths.

The victims were David Inscore, 28; Fernando A. Del Valle, 28 and his son Mark, 14; and Gladden Burger, 52.

Inscore was piloting the plane on a flight from Hoquiam, Wash., to Spokane. The four had been salmon fishing in Westport on the Washington Coast and departed Hoquiam at 6 p.m. Thursday. The plane was reported missing Thursday night and was found Saturday.

Federal aviation administration officials are investigating the cause of the crash.

The plane had been rented from Loranger Aviation in Spokane.

ANDREW TULLY

He Decreed Too Little Too Late

WASHINGTON — It is hard to avoid the conclusion that managing the economy is simply beyond the Nixon administration. All the way down the line, from the President's tame economists to the lowliest bureaucrat in the Department of Commerce, the condition seems to be one of utter bewilderment.

Consider the latest figures on the Gross National Product (GNP), the total value of all goods and services produced. They scoff at the expertise of Nixon's prophets, and may even signal the advent of a recession.

Earlier this year, the Nixon economic team had predicted that real output for the April-June quarter would grow at an annual rate of 2.6 per cent, compared with the booming first-quarter growth of 8.7 per cent annually. This would be good, said the economists, because the boom needed cooling down.

However, the real output for the second quarter, reached after adjustment for changes in prices, showed an annual growth rate of only 2.4 per cent.

Now, a difference of two tenths of one per cent may seem piddling, but not when you're talking about an annual growth rate of $1,272-billion, which is the GNP figures for April through June represent.

Accordingly, there is fear the economy may be cooling off too fast.

That's where the recession talk comes in. Indeed, last month the President's chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, Herbert Stein, had suggested that the real growth rate in the second quarter might be larger than the original 2.6 estimate.

Stein was hoping, in effect, that the administration's anti-inflation game plan wouldn't work too well. Wrong again.

This may seem pretty dull fare, but don't kid yourself that the GOP figures are of no concern in your household.

The Agriculture Department admitted the other day that 1973 food prices would average 20 per cent higher than those in 1972. With the freeze ended on non-food prices, the Cost of Living Council says those items probably will cost about 10 per cent more.

In this situation, what the country doesn't need is a recession. That would mean, in the simplest terms, that while the cost of living continued to be high, workers and even big corporations would have less money to spend. Impossible? The way the economy has been mismanaged during the past four years, you had better believe anything.

There is, in fact, practically no good news in the nitty-gritty division of the economy. Steel, automobiles, tires and services will cost more in the months ahead. But they'll be available. Such will not necessarily be the case with heating oil.

The President's top energy adviser, John A. Love, has warned that the nation could face a serious heating oil shortage this coming winter, and urged oilmen to begin importing "as much heating oil as possible," and to shift refinery production away from gasoline to the stuff used to keep homes warm.

Nothing the Nixon administration tried has worked. It devalued the dollar to give us a trade advantage overseas and the move backfired by increasing the price of imports and boosting the demand for American exports. We've sold so much wheat to foreign countries that today's food shopper faces both high prices and shortages.

Lumber is costly and frequently unavailable. Now there is the threat of inflationary wage demands by Big Labor, which heretofore has shown admirable restraint.

United Auto Workers officials have said bluntly they want more dough for their members so they can afford to eat regularly. If the auto workers get what they want, so will other union members.

It is hard on Richard Nixon to say that his economic and anti-inflation policies have been a flop, but that is the case. He decreed too little too late, and then all but dismantled his system of price controls even as a new price spiral hit the consumer. We need some geniuses in Washington, but we have run out of the breed.

COMMENT

Bombs And Peace

Christian Science Monitor

Blaming someone else for what may go wrong in the future is standard operating procedure on the banks of the Potomac River. Congress and the White House, and both political parties, are familiar with the game — and play it constantly.

The President played it a bit harder than usual in his statement announcing his compliance with the order by Congress to halt the bombing of Cambodia. He asserted that "this congressional act undermines the prospect of world peace by raising doubts in the minds of both friends and adversaries concerning the resolve and capacity of the United States to stand by international agreements when they are violated by other parties."

It is a deft political move. A future settlement in Cambodia could go wrong. There is no certainty as we write that anticommunism will survive in Phnom Penh. If it does go under, Mr. Nixon has his own alibi in hand. It was all the fault of Congress; of course, wasn't it?

No, it won't be. The possibility that Cambodia would slip from Western associations into the grip of North Vietnamese or local Communist forces, or both, has been rising from the moment the Lon Nol faction in Phnom Penh overthrew Prince Sihanouk.

Up to that moment Cambodia was neutralist and enjoyed a relatively solid prospect of being able to remain neutralist. But from that moment the local Communists have gone to work to win the whole country. They have grown stronger as the American intervention increased. The American bombs may have restrained them from taking the capital city earlier, but there is no certainty that they really wanted to take it by a fighting assault. And what we are really talking about is two weeks of bombing.

Congress was thoroughly fed up with the bombing. It finally reached the point of demanding an end. It wanted the last bomb to fall on the last day of June. The President wanted, Sept. 1. A compromise was reached on Aug. 15. So the issue was not whether the President could go on bombing indefinitely, but only whether the bombing would end on Aug. 15 or Sept. 1.

To link "the prospects of world peace" with two weeks of bombing is getting this out of scale. Two years of bombing has been accompanied by rising Communist military strength, success, and influence. The Communists did poorly during the neutralist period under Prince Sihanouk. They have flourished during Lon Nol and American bombing. Mr. Nixon would have liked an open-ended bombing pause, not a final ban on all bombing. He still clings to the theory that bombing or the threat of resumed bombing can help save anticommunism in Cambodia. There is nothing in the record to sustain such faith.

If Cambodia is saved, by a revived neutralism it won't be because of American bombs — past or future. It will be saved if it is saved because Peking doesn't want Hanoi to get control of all of Indo-China. That is not only the best hope now; it was the best hope all along.

RAY CROWLEY

Russia's Allies Growing Cynical

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Expect for the breakthrough in U.S.-Russian relations, Leonid Brezhnev's foreign policy has been a failure these past few years.

The Soviet Union could be moving into a position of military superiority in both conventional and military terms. But Brezhnev's record to date in building alliances and "subverting" governments around the globe to his own ends has been an abysmal failure.

The headlines have pointed to Moscow's short-term gains, as in the Middle East with Egypt and Iraq. But lasting alliances are what count, not flashes in the pan.

The pressure of these foreign failures — and the Russian economic bubbles — should logically continue to push the Soviet Union toward even closer relations with the United States, assuming that logic determines such matters.

Note these details: A series of insider reports from the Middle East indicates Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's major ousting of Russians some time back has been followed by a further cooling of relations between the two lands. The Egyptians are increasingly concerned over what they believe to be Moscow's attempts at subversion of high officials and attempted build-up of antigovernment cells in Egypt.

The Russians reportedly are more and more coming to the belief the Egyptians are a weak reed on which to base foreign policy. The situation in Iraq is even worse in a way. The government is so unpredictable, and finds it so difficult to get along even with other major Arab nations, that Moscow is reportedly most uncomfortable in depending on the present Iraqi government as an ally.

The Soviet Union, for all its expenditures in the Vietnam war, may be on the road to losing a great deal of its influence in Southeast Asia to China. There has developed a great suspicion of the Russians, who have in recent years attempted to push a Soviet-sponsored SEA security alliance. Many local leaders see in this Russian move an attempt to use them in Soviet designs against China, and additionally as an attempt by Moscow to gain political dominance in the area as the United States lowers its stance.

The relationship of Russia with India is not clear at this time. The Indians needed the Soviet Union badly in their war with Pakistan and in handling their cool relations with China.

But there are signs a number of Indian officials in high places are not completely happy with the way Soviet officials operate and would like to improve communications with Washington as a balance to what they perceive as a Russian threat.

Other reports indicate Soviet influence is declining in a number of African lands where the U.S.S.R. has invested most heavily in years past.

The Russians have spent great sums in Latin America over the past decade, and trained Cubans in the art of establishing undergrounds. But the gains have not matched the cost. Despite the friendship of Chile's president with Fidel Castro, there is little evidence Russia or Cuba had much to do with Salvador Allende's victory.

Chance, of course, has some influence over a super power's relationships and successes. But the evidence suggests Brezhnev and his predecessors are largely responsible for Russia's major political problems abroad.

The Soviet Union has for several decades insisted that its allies be its puppets, their economies geared to the Soviet economy, the prices arranged to Soviet profit, their foreign policies determined solely by Moscow.

This basically is what turned China off and led to the Russian withdrawal of its aid and technicians. It is what led to the Czech, the East German, the Hungarian high-level revolts which moved in parallel with a populace aroused by totalitarian controls. It is what let Tito in Yugoslavia long ago to break with Moscow while remaining Communist.

ROWLAND EVANS & ROBERT NOVAK

About The Anti-Defense Coalition

WASHINGTON — While the nation and the White House were diverted by Watergate just before the August congressional recess, a new anti-defense spending coalition emerged in the House that may cast a long shadow across the nation's national security policy.

The official line at the White House and Pentagon is to minimize the vote of 242 to 163 on July 31 cutting nearly $1 billion in weapons research from the military authorization bill. But worried supporters of the defense program privately fear the new coalition between fiscal conservatives and dovish liberals may have established a new voting pattern in the House.

This pattern seems the first congressional trend clearly attributable to the numbing effect of Watergate on President Nixon. Whereas Congress may well have halted bombing in Indochina without Watergate's impact, administration officials privately concede the stunning defeat on the arms bill resulted from preoccupation with the scandal.

Indeed, the administration and its defense contractor allies never even saw the blow coming. Pentagon lobbyists had been concentrating on successfully defeating amendments to cut U.S. troop commitments in Europe and halt new weapons systems such as the Trident submarine.

To the administration's surprise, an amendment to cut $50 million in research funds was introduced by Rep. Les Aspin of Wisconsin, a former Pentagon economist who has become one of the defense program's most dogged critics during less than three years in Congress. Mr. Nixon did not have time to voice his opposition before Aspin's amendment passed overwhelmingly.

The fact that a very junior liberal Democrat could topple the once-olympian House Armed Services Committee reveals how suddenly power has been dispersed in the House.

But more ominous for the long run than the House power breakdown is the fact that fiscal conservatives joined Aspin's doves in the anti-defense coalition. Eager to cut down federal spending generally, these conservatives turned on vital weapons research in the absence of vigorous leadership from a preoccupied President.

With no public campaign from the White House warning of the dangers, congressional votes against defense spending attract support from even conservation voters weary of the military burden. That is clearly the opinion of the highly regarded Rep. John Erlenborn, representing staunchly Republican DePage County in Illinois. Erlenborn's weekly report back to his district proudly pointed out his vote for the Aspin amendment, adding: "I look upon this as a responsible way for Congress to hold down federal spending."

Many Republicans considerably more conservative than Erlenborn, acknowledged the Aspin amendment, such as John Ashbrook of Ohio, right-wing challenger against Mr. Nixon in the 1972 presidential primaries; John Rousset of California, former John Birch Society functionary; Ed Hutchinson of Michigan; M. G. (Gene) Snyder of Kentucky; Thad Cochran, a freshman from Mississippi typical of the new breed of Deep South GOP conservatives.

In line with Nixon administration doctrine minimizing Watergate damage, high officials point out that the authorization bill is less important than the actual money bill yet to be considered. Nevertheless, "close" students of the House believe that once a voting pattern emerges even on a relatively unimportant vote, it may well return again and again.

Such a pattern would eliminate the House as an antidote to the more dovish Senate. Furthermore, weapons research is particularly vulnerable in view of the all-volunteer Army's skyrocketing payroll which steadily increases defense housekeeping costs.

With Mr. Nixon unable today to alter the anti-defense climate, that role must be played by the new Secretary of Defense: Dr. James Schlesinger, a man extravagantly praised and criticized. Friends say his credibility is such that he can convince the nation and Congress of the need to sustain weapons spending in the face of Soviet advances; foes charge he is not enough of a politician and too much of an economist to play a neo-Churchillian role.

Pessimism prevails today. The overwhelming victory of the Aspin amendment suggests that the mood of U.S. voters and politicians is reminiscent of the Western European climate during the 1930s as described in "The War Hitler Won. The Fall of Poland, September 1939," (Holt, Rinehart and Winston), an excellent new book by Nicholas Bethell.

There were tens of millions ready to fight tooth and nail against any increase in military expenditure or manpower, taking the short-sighted view that defense is a waste of money, since it provides no direct improvement in a country's living standard. They would not accept the truism that without a valid defense policy a country's wealth can be stolen from it, that without defense a country has nothing.

Vote In Public

LEWISTON TRIBUNE

The Lewiston City Council has been warned by its own attorney that it could find itself in trouble with the courts if it doesn't start conducting the public business in public.

Councilmen doubtless will deny that they deal in secret public affairs, since they always vote on the questions at issue in open meeting. The trouble is, the votes are likely to be unanimous and without discussion — since the discussions often are held and the outcome of the votes determined in quiet little gatherings over lunch.

City Attorney Michael Moore pointed out this week, in a memorandum to the council, that courts are not buying the argument that the open meeting law requires only a public vote. The public also is entitled to hear the debate that precedes the vote since otherwise it can't really understand what its representatives are up to.

Why did the Lewiston City Council decide to transfer its perpetual care investment funds from one bank to another? Councilmen voted to make the change in a public meeting, without debate, but they have refused to explain in public why.

No reasonable citizen objects to councilmen getting together from time to time to talk about city business. What is objectionable is the council's habit of conducting all of the city business over lunch with the public excluded and then merely going through the formality of voting when the public is present. Councilmen evidently have assumed this was perfectly legal. It probably is not, as the city attorney suggested, citing cases from other states. And not only is it probably illegal, it also is bad government.

Wealth Measure

Portland Oregonian

There are innumerable ways to measure a nation's standard of living: sets per telephone; average per capita production and consumption of paper products; the amount of living space available to each person, etc. But one of the common measures deals with protein consumption, and this measure may be in trouble because of poultry and egg prices.

Poultry and egg prices are both rising so quickly that the historical puzzle has resurfaced: Which will be first, the chicken or the egg? Beef prices are so high that banks in the Midwest give steaks to customers who open new accounts and the protein premiums are attracting more business than run-of-the-mill serving dishes, toasters and costume jewelry.

Indeed, per capita beef consumption in the United States has more than doubled, from 56 pounds to 116 pounds, since 1950, a sign that much of our increasing wealth has gone to "the good life." Now, with beef expensive and scarce, a more accurate measure of the standard of living will be increases in individual consumption of eggplant and zucchini.

Soviets to gain edge

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Soviet Union will gain a "strategic edge" unless the United States makes some response to the Russian development of multiple warheads for nuclear missiles, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger believes.

Schlesinger discussed the Soviet development of the so-called MIRVs in a Sunday television interview. He was asked if the development increased the likelihood of nuclear war, and he replied that depended upon the "reactions."

"The likelihood of nuclear war is exceedingly low, and as long as both sides retain a balance it will remain low in my judgment," Schlesinger said.

But he said that ultimately, if the Soviets started to deploy MIRV devices in volume and the United States made no response, "that would give them a strategic edge," although it "would not give them superiority in the traditional meaning of that term."

Schlesinger said that despite the development the United States hoped to get a new Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) agreement by the end of 1974.

project manager for the Polaris-Posedon submarine-launched missile program, wanted to recall the Posedons because they may not be reliable. The newspaper said it had learned that Smith had told the Senate Armed Services Committee on May 16 that 58 per cent of the missiles failed their operational tests.

Nineteen of the 41 U.S. nuclear submarines reportedly have been converted to the new, multiple-warhead Posedon missiles, and 4 have been deployed.

Asked about this, Schlesinger said there had been "no significant weakening of the U.S. deterrent." He said it might be desirable over a period of time to refit the missiles to insure that they work more satisfactorily.

"But one should not be deeply concerned about such a development in terms of its reducing America's deterrent," Schlesinger said.

He said the Pentagon would move as rapidly as it can to specify the weaknesses and to refit the Posedon force as required.

Schlesinger was interviewed on NBC's meet the Press.

Earlier Sunday, the Washington Star-News reported that Adm. Levering Smith, the

Kidnaped Cyprus leader released on dark street

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI)—Terrorists who kidnaped Justice Minister Christos Vakis a month ago to dramatize their demands for political reforms released him Sunday night in a darkened suburban street.

Vakis appeared later on television and said he was well treated during his captivity.

He was abducted from his home at gunpoint July 27 by supporters of Gen. George Grivas, leader of the EOKA guerrilla movement fighting for the union of Cyprus with Greece.

Cheerful and looking fit, Vakis spoke with journalists at his home but did not disclose where he had been held. Neither he nor his captors gave any reason for his release.

Vakis said he was blindfolded Sunday night and brought to Anthoupolis, a Nicosia suburb, where his captors told him he would be picked up and taken home. He said he made his way to the local coffee shop, where a friend saw him and took him home.

Vakis said he did not see Grivas and added that he did not want to go into details about the kidnaping until he made a report to President Archbishop Makarios.

He said his kidnapers were "inhuman" because of the trouble they had caused for the government of Archbishop Makarios.

While Vakis was kidnaped, Grivas had submitted a five-point demand for his release in leaflets addressed to Makarios.

The demands included a new presidential election, a general amnesty for all political prisoners, reinstatement of dismissed public servants, political freedom for Greek Cypriots and a choice by Makarios between government and his church office. The Archbishop rejected the demands as blackmail.

In recent months, the guerrillas have bombed police stations and public property in a renewed battle against Makarios, who is negotiating with the Turkish Cypriot minority on a new constitution for an independent Cyprus.

Motorcyclists give blood for victims

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Members of two dozen motorcycle clubs, including the Hells Angels, shed their anti-social image Sunday and turned humanitarians.

The clubs, affiliated with the Modified Motorcycle Association, gave blood to help the Red Cross provide for accident victims over the upcoming Labor Day weekend.

Red Cross spokesman Gerry Sohle said the blood drive was organized by Bob Lawrence, Los Angeles president of the Hells Angels, Louis Costello of the Mongols and Sam Wilson of the Hessians.

Operators fail to trace 'mystery' broadcaster

DENVER (UPI)—Five hundred Colorado citizens band operators failed Sunday to trace an unidentified broadcaster who said he was responsible for sending New Mexico authorities on a wild goose chase in search of a boy named Larry. But the electronics burts say they won't give up.

During broadcasts heard Saturday, the man also threatened the life of President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

The broadcasts from "Larry" said he was trapped in a wrecked truck and his father had been killed or severely injured. A massive air-land search continued for days before authorities finally gave up and decided the broadcasts must be a hoax.

Authorities said they believe the voice heard during the Saturday broadcast could have been the same as that heard in New Mexico.

Robert Vetter, who first monitored the profanity-filled calls claiming responsibility for the hoax and threatening Nixon and Agnew, said he had been manning his radio equipment since the first call in an effort to pinpoint the man.

"I've been sitting at my radio desk for the past 24 hours," Vetter said. "I didn't hear anything, but I figure that he will try again Monday (today) around midday."

"This is a smart guy we're working with and he knows a lot of people are looking for him, so he'll probably wait until most of the radios are working," Vetter said.

Several citizens band operators south of Denver reported Saturday they monitored several calls berating New Mexico authorities for their failure to find Larry.

Agents of the New Mexico State Police and the Denver FBI office said the investigation has been turned over to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC). Spokesmen for the FCC were unavailable for comment.

Authorities also said the Secret Service was investigating because of the threats against the President and vice president.

Vetter also said he along with about 500 other citizens band operators will monitor their sets until tonight.

"If we haven't heard from him by then we will go back on standby for emergency calls," he said.

Britons warned over bomb rash

LONDON (UPI)—Scotland Yard Sunday warned Britons, plagued in a week-long rash of bomb incidents, not to touch any strange letter or package for fear it may be a bomb in the Irish Republican Army's campaign of violence in Britain.

In the latest incident, police and firemen in Swansea, Wales, Sunday found a suspected bomb on a ferryboat bound for the Irish Republic.

Police do not mind if we get a thousand calls a day," Police said the object found in Swansea—a cigarette package with wires and a battery attached—was found on the boat Innisfallen, owned by British and Irish Steam Packet Co.

A police spokesman said the device was taken off the boat and placed in sand to await later examination by bomb experts.

Retain gas

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The United States intends to retain a stockpile of poison gas, Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger says.

Schlesinger said in a television interview Sunday that it has been the position of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and Nixon administration that "we needed to retain an inventory of gas for deterrent purposes."

"The United States does not intend to initiate the use of gas under any conceivable circumstances, but we do know that the Soviets have placed great emphasis upon gas, and in this period of time we intend to retain a stockpile," Schlesinger said.

Fires controlled in western states

By United Press International

Timber and brush fires that scorched 200,000 acres in five Western states were controlled during the weekend, but a young firefighter toppled to his death Sunday down a 200-foot rocky gorge in Big Sur, Calif.

Two fire spotters also died in a helicopter crash in the Northern California foothills Saturday. The three were the only fatalities among a nationwide army of firefighters that contained 53 major blazes in two weeks.

Damage estimates from the worst series of fires in recent Western U.S. history exceeded $100 million. Controlling the fires in tinder dry forests required 10,000 firefighters from across the United States, along with squadrons of aerial tankers and tons of ground equipment.

Dan Hime, 21, San Diego, lost his life when he toppled over a cliff while fighting an 80-acre blaze in "nearly vertical terrain" in the Los Padres National Forest near Big Sur.

A day earlier, a helicopter crash in Calaveras County in the Sierra foothills killed pilot Dick Rogers, Clovis, Calif., and Lynn Douglas, San Andreas, Calif.

The last fire controlled was deep in remote Hell's Canyon in Oregon's Wallowa-Whitman National Forest. Firemen stopped the blaze after it scorched 16,000 acres in 10 days.

Timber, rangeland and a few isolated buildings were destroyed in the series of fires, but there were no major conflagrations in populated areas.

Car bomb

BOMB-LADEN car exploded Sunday outside a Roman Catholic church jammed with some 800 persons 60 miles north of Belfast. Three persons were seriously injured and about 200 were slightly hurt. (UPI)

Worshippers hurt by bomb blast

BELFAST (UPI)—More than 50 worshippers were injured Sunday when a bomb-filled car exploded outside a packed Roman Catholic church 60 miles north of Belfast. Police said most of the injured were wounded by pieces of glass that filled the air of the St. Patrick and St. Bridget's church in Ballycastle just before the end of morning mass. An army spokesman said the blast seriously injured one person and at least 50 others were treated for cuts. More than 800 persons were in the church at the time of the explosion and police said there would have been extensive casualties if the bomb had detonated as they were leaving at the end of mass. In Belfast, police found a Roman Catholic man shot in the stomach in the city's markets area. He died within hours.

It was the 874th death in four years of violence among Northern Ireland's minority Roman Catholics, majority Protestants and security forces. The victim was identified as Owen Devine, 24. He was found in an abandoned house on a back street of the markets area, which police described as a stronghold of the Irish Republican Army (IRA). Detectives said Devine probably was the victim of an IRA "kangaroo" court punishing him for violating the IRA's code of conduct.

King Gustaf still critical

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—King Gustaf VI Adolf of Sweden was in "extremely critical" condition today and may have suffered a new outbreak of internal bleeding, his personal chief physician announced. The monarch's doctor said that he and his physicians during their morning conference received "new information which can indicate a new bleeding."

He said, however, that there had been a slight recovery in the king's condition during the night, but added that "the condition is still critical." As fears grew that Gustaf Adolf was near death, Crown Prince Carl Gustaf, his 27-year-old grandson and heir to the throne, was at his bedside. The doctor, Prof. Gunnar Bioerck, said the king's kidneys "have practically stopped functioning" and that his pulse is low. The king has been in a deep coma since Thursday night. In a rare news conference Bioerck said that about 30 physicians and nurses, including specialists from several separate hospitals, treated the king. Several unidentified Swedes had phoned the hospital and offered the king their kidneys, but a kidney transplantation is out of question "for the time being," he said.

A thought for the day: British humorist Patrick Herbert said: "We should not produce equality by turning everything upside down."

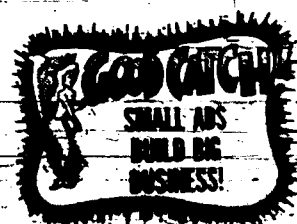

MELVIN LAIRD talks eyed

Cambodia talks reported 'hopeful'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration still believes it can promote negotiations between opposing factions in Cambodia, presidential counselor Melvin R. Laird said Sunday. "We are looking forward to the opportunity for negotiations," Laird said in a television interview. "Hopefully, negotiator can be worked out in this particular area. Laird refused to say whether some form of negotiations already were under way. Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., the Senate Democratic leader, said in another interview Sunday that Congress was willing to "take the blame" if the government of President Lon Nol falls. Mansfield was asked if the United States has any remaining obligation in Cambodia.

in power but "will develop a country based on neutrality and based on unity." The United States stopped bombing in Cambodia Aug. 15. Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger said Sunday there has been a "substantial and significant improvement in the fighting capabilities of the Lon Nol forces in recent weeks." Surprisingly the Cambodian forces are performing well and the insurgent forces were informed that once the American bombing stopped that they would have a cake walk. Schlesinger said. "They (the insurgents) were disappointed by the vigor of the government's resistance."

"No," he said. "We have no obligation, no duty there. We should never have become involved in Cambodia in the first place." Mansfield said the Cambodians will have "to determine their own destiny, work out their own future." He said he did not believe Cambodia would become a Communist state if Prince Sihanouk returns to power. He said Sihanouk may use the Communists to get back

Nixon finance report due

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon's financial arrangements with New York industrialist Robert H. Abplanalp in the purchase of his Spanish-style estate here will be publicly disclosed early this week, a White House spokesman said today. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the long-promised full accounting of the sale of the property would be documented this week.

The document, prepared by a private accounting firm, will detail the President's acquisition of nearly 6 acres of the 26-acre spread, of which the remainder is held by Abplanalp, known as the "Aerosol Valve King." Nixon was anxious to lay to rest once and for all allegations that some of the left-over funds from the 1968 election campaign may have been used in the transaction. The White House has said such reports are "completely, totally unfounded." According to a White House statement released May 25, the President and Mrs. Nixon purchased the entire estate in July 1969 for a total of $1.4 million aided by a $525,000 loan from Abplanalp, his personal friend and political supporter. On Dec. 15, 1970, in a secret

Washington. Before flying back here, he was scheduled to confer with Undersecretary Kenneth Rush and to begin orienting himself to the top structures of the State Department. He also plans to maintain an office in the White House keeping his post as Presidential adviser while he is a cabinet officer.

Hostages 'beg' in Swedish bank

STOCKHOLM (UPI)—Four young hostages "begged for their lives" today as a man who has held them at the point of a submachine gun in a bank vault since Friday warned they would all hang if police proceeded with plans to use knockout gas. "We have to deal with an absolutely inhuman person," said Police Chief Kurt Lindroth. "We want to save these youngsters (the hostages) so we have decided to postpone all action until this afternoon." Police used a pneumatic drill to punch one hole in the two-foot-thick roof over the vault and were drilling two more with plans to gas to sleep the gunman, his convict friend and the four hostages when Lindroth called off the operation.

Lindroth said gunman, Jan-Erik Olsson, 32, forced abandonment of the gas plan when he warned he had bound the hostages around their necks along the walls of the vault and that they would be hanged when they slumped to the floor after the gas took effect. "The gunman told us he and his convict friend would not raise a finger to help the hostages if we started to pump gas into the vault," Lindroth said. That way, he said, we—the police—would be responsible for their death. Lindroth said he had made contact with the hostages—a man and three women bank employes, all in their 20s—through a telephone in the vault.

transaction, the Nixons sold but 5.9 acres to Abplanalp, who had set up an investment company to purchase the property for $1,249,000. As a result, the President wound up with his slice of the estate for a total of $374,514 in personal financing. Abplanalp has not yet developed his part of the estate. Nixon spent most of the weekend relaxing with long drives, dips in the ocean and sitting by his Spanish tile pool, after a taxing week. His senior staffers were commuting between Washington and San Clemente. Secretary of State-designate Henry Kissinger returns here today after an overnight stay in

FCC nominee draws fire

(C) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — Federal Communications Commission Commissioner Nicholas Johnson said today that the rumored nomination of retired broadcast executive James H. Quello as his successor could be "just one more personal disaster for the President."

Johnson objects to Quello because he feels appointment of a lifetime broadcast executive would give the industry 7-0 unanimous control of the FCC. "Taking the unusual step of speaking out against a possible nominee to his own commission, Johnson said he hopes "it may still be possible to persuade the President that the nomination is bad government, an affront to the Senate and brazen disregard of millions of television viewers in this nation."

Johnson made his comments in a letter to Sen. John O. Pastore, chairman of the Senate Communications Subcommittee. In a separate interview, he said it would be better for all concerned — both the President and public interest groups mobilizing to oppose Quello — if the nomination is never made. "It would avoid problems for everyone," Johnson said. Should the nomination be made, however, Johnson asked Pastore to allow him to testify at confirmation hearings. Quello had been with WJHR

AM-FM in Detroit for 25 years, retiring last fall as vice president and manager. Sources close to the White House say the nomination decision has been made. Johnson's term ended June 30 but he is staying on in a virtually cleared-out office until his successor is confirmed.

The timing of this appointment could lead to another confirmation fight. Johnson pointed to Senate rejection earlier this summer of Robert Morris for a seat on the Federal Power Commission on grounds he had been a pro-industry lawyer.

"Earlier, when American Airlines successfully urged Nixon to nominate Lee West to replace Robert T. Murphy at the CAB (Civil Aeronautics Board) last March, the Senate Commerce Committee sat on its hands. Murphy's still a commissioner."

With the Quello nomination imminent, Johnson said "Seemingly, Nixon never learns. Corporate fund raising practices in 1972 have brought him close to impeachment. A $700 million inflationary increase in milk prices following a $425,000 cash contribution brought a so-far successful suit. ITT's $400,000 is back in the news. Other corporations are confessing to Archibald Cox their own $100,000 contributions."

Play this week

Theatre comes back to valley

TWIN FALLS — Antique Festival Theatre performers are coming back home.

The troupe will close the 1973 summer season with performances this week in several Magic Valley towns. A performance Sunday for the Idaho State Penitentiary and a three-day benefit for the Children's Home in Boise, concluded the tour for this year after shows in the northwest, as far away as Spokane.

Today the theatre presents a performance of "Bourgeois Gentleman" at the Three Island State Park. Tuesday the festive bus carrying the group moves to Fairfield for a performance of "Streets of New York" given in the town's ball park. On Wednesday the group will perform in "Medicine Wagon" in Hagerman, also at the ball field.

Twin Falls city park is the setting for "Bourgeois Gentleman" on Thursday. This is a costumer's delight, reflecting the finesse of director Paul Kliss.

A gala finale closes the season with "Medicine Wagon" in Burley Friday at the football field. Show time will be 8:30 p.m. each evening.

Dispersing to their homes and colleges again, ranging as far away as New York and San Diego, the young performers on scholarship will take with them a summer's worth of theatrical experiences required of young performers "on the road" to becoming professionals, according to Aldrich Bowler, producer of A.F.T.

Thus A.F.T. will have accomplished part of its purpose. Having given 60 summer performances bringing "honest-to-goodness real live" theatre to all sections of Idaho is another purpose of regional theatre fulfilled.

400-ton stockpile of opium said ironic twist of medicine and law

(C) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — It's a pusher's dream, an ironic twist of medicine and law — the U. S. government's 400-ton stockpile of opium.

Opium, from which heroin, the source of the inner city and law enforcement, is derived is also the basis for legitimate and vital pain killing drugs.

Because of the important role its derivatives play in medical care, and because it is not cultivated in this country, opium is one of the many items — ranging from copper to hog bristles — stockpiled in government warehouses after World War II.

The stockpiles were established to assure the United States would have an adequate supply of commodities not produced here if foreign supplies were cut off in a war.

But what must be a veritable mountain of opium may soon find its way into the marketplace for legitimate drugs, part of an effort to avert the potential for a world-wide shortage of opiate-based analgesic drugs.

At the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, chief agency counsel Don Miller explained that plans are now being formulated to release the opium stockpile to pharmaceutical manufacturers.

This will be the first general program to reduce the costly — and some have felt unnecessary — stockpiling and will eventually need congressional approval.

However, some other problems face Uncle Sam's efforts to unload the opium — now kept in an undisclosed place, under security Miller said was so tight "it can't even be discussed on the telephone" by federal drug enforcement officials. Miller said the world market for opium is a fragile one. Most of the opium for legitimate medical use in the United States is cultivated in India, he said.

Any country that produces opium for export must do so through a government monopoly — that is the government must keep track of and buy up all of the available opium poppies,

Price hike seen on school lunch

By WILLIAM J. EATON
(C) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — The price of school lunches may rise by a nickel or a dime this fall because of the spiraling costs of food.

Beef, pork and poultry are almost certain to become scarcer in school cafeterias when students go back to classrooms after Labor Day.

The larger school systems may be able to get adequate supplies but some smaller schools may be forced to halt the feeding program because they cannot get long-term commitments from food sellers.

These are some of the conclusions drawn by experts at the American School Food Service Association, a Denver-based group, state officials and experts in congress on the 27-year-old school lunch program. It feeds about 23 million pupils a day.

12 indicted on rights charge

(C) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — Twelve law-enforcement officers, including eight federal agents, have been indicted on civil rights and other charges growing out of a series of narcotics raids on private homes in Southern Illinois last spring.

The indictments were returned by a grand jury in U. S. district court at Alton, Ill., and were made public by the Justice Department here.

Seventeen counts, including charges of deprivation of constitutional rights, illegal search and seizure, assault and penury were laid against the officers. Individual counts bear maximum penalties up to five years in prison and $10,000 fines.

According to the indictment, the agents broke into six homes in Collinsville, East St. Louis and Edwardsville during a five-day period. During the course of the raids, two occupants were assaulted while handcuffed and a third was jailed for three days without being charged with a crime.

The indictment also charged three agents with trying to cover up the incidents.

Party meets set

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's Republicans and Democrats will meet at opposite ends of the state when they hold their 1974 conventions.

Republicans will meet in Sun Valley June 21-22 and Democrats will convene in Coeur d'Alene June 26-29.

Adoption of state party platforms, election of party officials and planning for the 1974 campaign will be the principal items of business for the two parties when they meet.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you tell your children when they ask how long you have been married, and you are ashamed to tell them? When I was married I was three months pregnant. We had gone together for two years. We loved each other, and it just happened.

We were married as soon as possible, and now have five lovely children. The oldest is 14. My husband and I never celebrate our wedding anniversary. We just don't talk about it.

Lately, our 14-year-old asked us when our anniversary is. I said, "In December," and changed the subject. I don't know how long I can go on doing this.

My husband says we should add off a year. Would this be right? Other people know how long we've been married, and I don't want my children to catch me in a lie when I preach to them the importance of being honest. But Abby, I want my children to respect me, and if they knew the truth it may not set a good example for them. Please tell me what to do. Thank you.

A MOTHER

What to tell kids?

DEAR MOTHER: I can best answer you by submitting this exchange:

DEAR ABBY: I was born six months and two days after my parents were married. (I figured it out when I was 16.) When I mentioned it to my mother she became flustered and close to tears so I never mentioned it again.

Mom and Dad are tops as parents, and I don't care if they did have to get married. I love them just the same.

Abby, you could help a lot of people who had to get married if you would tell them how to handle it when their children bring it up.

Should they lie about the date of their marriage? Or should they say the first baby was "premature"? What's the best answer?

THEIR DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: The truth, while sometimes embarrassing, is always the best answer. But no couple HAS to get married. The boy can run off and leave the girl to face the problem alone. Or he can deny paternity.

Some girls choose abortion. Others prefer to have the child, and put it up for adoption. Some have the child and keep it.

The couple who marries when a baby is on the way, and make a success of that marriage (and there are many), deserve respect and understanding.

DEAR ABBY: You stated that a couple could be married by a ship's captain. Whoops! Not any more. They used to be, when voyages lasted months and sometimes years, but times have changed, and so have the rules. Marriages performed by captains at sea will legalize a union while the couple is at sea, but when they reach land, they must be remarried.

VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

DEAR VOICE: Thanks. I am presently over my head in letters from readers who advise me of the change. Mea culpa.

DEAR ABBY: Here is my solution for that artist who found it hard to paint outdoors (landscapes, etc.) because he always drew a crowd who watched him and sometimes made remarks which distracted him.

I also enjoy painting landscapes. I don't object to a few spectators, but when they get too chatty, I simply remove my hat and pass it.

I rarely get more than a few coins, but it sure thins out the crowd in a hurry.

MR. AND MRS. MARTIN SORENSEN

Miss Marshall weds Sorensen

TWIN FALLS — Charleyne Marshall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Marshall, Jerome, and Martin Sorensen exchanged wedding vows in a candlelight ceremony Aug. 10 at the Carillon.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Judge Reed P. Maughan before tiered candelabra entwined with greenery and blue satin bows. The altar was flanked by four large baskets of white and blue chrysanthemums, blue carnations and white and lavender gladioli tied with bows of blue satin.

White chrysanthemum and blue carnation garlands were draped from pew to pew to mark the bridal aisle. The bride, given in marriage by her father, repeated her wedding vows wearing an antique lace gown over ivory satin. The fitted lace bodice was accented with a scalloped lace neckline and long sleeves and featured an attached chapel train.

A crown of pearls and antique lace held the ballerina veil of bridal illusion. The bride also wore her mother's heirloom pearl necklace. A formal cascade bouquet of white roses tied to a white lace prayer book was carried by the bride.

Mrs. Margaret Butcher was matron of honor and Mrs. Ann Titus was bridesmaid. Their daughters, Beth Ann Butcher and Shannon Titus, served as flowergirls.

Serving the bridegroom as best man was his cousin, Martin Sorensen. DeWitt Moss served as usher. The ring bearer was Chris Sorensen, son of the best man.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple was honored at a reception dinner at the Blue Lakes Country Club. The entrance to the reception area was marked with hurricane lanterns of wrought iron entwined with blue satin bows.

The dining and dancing hall of the club was decorated by a wedding arch of boxwood, bells and blue satin bows and large baskets of flowers. The serving area followed the same decor and featured blue and white lace covered tables with blue carnations and white chrysanthemum floral arrangements and a cupid fountain.

The bride's table was covered with draped blue satin over a white lace skirt. The tiered square wedding cake was decorated with blue roses and lace topped by a pearlized heart with lily of the valley and clustered wedding bells. A buffet wedding dinner was served to the guests.

Dance music was furnished at the reception by Byron Marshall, brother of the bride, and his combo. The gifts were displayed by Ruby Marshall and Louise Marshall, sisters-in-law of the bride.

Special honored guests at the wedding and reception were Mr. and Mrs. Martin Sorensen and their sons, Marty and Chris, and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Melanson, sister of the groom, of Seattle, Wash. Following a few days in Sun Valley and honeymooning in the San Diego area the couple will be at home in San Francisco after the first part of September.

Exchange coed likes Disneyland

GOODING. — What strikes an 18-year-old exchange student from New Zealand as the most interesting facet of America? Disneyland, of course.

Robyn Hooper, who currently lives with the Gary Major family in Gooding, has visited Disneyland twice this summer and still finds it "delightfully" fascinating. She came to Idaho last January under the Rotary Club's student exchange program. She spent the first four months in Shoshone, first with the Gib Piersons then with the Ivan Hopkins family.

In May Robyn moved to Gooding, where she spent most of the summer with the Robert Reeds. Last Saturday she moved into the Major household.

A native of Auckland, New Zealand's largest city, Robyn will stay with three or four more families before she returns home in January.

She attended Shoshone High School last winter. Although schools here are "easier" and "not as advanced," in Robyn's estimation, they offer a much wider variety of subjects than New Zealand schools.

In New Zealand, Robyn took five courses throughout her high school of "college" years: mathematics, physics, geography, chemistry and English.

The subject variety in U.S. schools is good, but it wouldn't provide a strong base for the annual examinations that New Zealand's students must undergo, according to Robyn.

At Shoshone, Robyn was "the second youngest in the senior class but was one to one and one half years ahead of the others in mathematics."

Comparing the home lives of Americans and New Zealanders, Robyn said the primary difference was "togetherness."

"Our family does everything together," Robyn said. "My brother, my father and I all enjoy yachting (sailboat racing)."

She said her family often spends days together "yachting."

"Everybody kind of goes his own separate way" in the United States, according to Robyn.

She will attend Gooding High School this fall. "I'm really looking forward to school starting so I can settle down," she said.

Along with other exchange students, Robyn has spent much of the summer touring the western states.

Robyn plans to attend a teacher's training college when she returns to New Zealand. The college requires three years of academic courses and a year of practice teaching for certification of teachers.

"Kids respect teachers in New Zealand more than in the United States," she said.

Integration is a way of life in New Zealand, where brown-skinned Polynesians make up a large part of the population, according to Robyn. She said intermarriage and integrated schools and businesses are well accepted.

Murtaugh couple sets open house

MURTAUGH — Observance of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Lee, Murtaugh, is scheduled for Sept. 2 at the LDS Cultural Hall in Murtaugh.

Friends of the couple are invited to call from 2 to 5 p.m. to meet the honored couple. The couple's sons and daughters and their families will be hosting the event.

They include Kenneth Lee, Boise; Mrs. Clinton (Irene)

Earl, and Monte Lee, both Twin Falls; Gary Lee, Caldwell; Mrs. Gary (Linda) Nebeker, Murtaugh. The couple also has 19 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren. They request no gifts.

They were married in 1923 in Murtaugh and the marriage was later solemnized in the LDS Temple in Salt Lake City. They have resided in Murtaugh since 1910.

Carol Wewers to wed McGee

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. George Wewers, Twin Falls, announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Carol, to Jack A. McGee, Boise, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack E. McGee, Wheatridge, Colo.

Miss Wewers is a 1970 graduate of Twin Falls High School and attended the College of Southern Idaho for two years. She was included in the "Who's Who in American Junior Colleges."

McGee is a 1970 graduate of Capital High School of Boise and has attended Boise State College for three years and will be returning again this fall, majoring in electronics. He is currently employed by B and B Theaters in Boise.

A Sept. 15 wedding is planned at St. Edward's Catholic Church. The couple plans to reside in Boise.

Backstairs at the western White House

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — A presidential check for $15 for licenses for the three dogs in the White House kennel was turned down recently by Orange County Tax Collector Bob Citron.

The check, payable on the Key Biscayne bank of the President's best friend, C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, was not accepted because it was on an out-of-town bank.

It was sent by the law firm of Herbert Kalmbach, one of the figures in the Watergate affair, which still handles Nixon's personal affairs.

But the matter was all settled when Citron received the payment in cash for licenses for King Timahoe, an Irish setter; Vicki, a poodle, and Pasha, a Yorkshire terrier. "King" is the President's own dog, and much traveled.

The San Clemente Inn, where White House staffers are housed near the western White House is reportedly up for sale for $2.5 million. The inn boasts many outstanding color photographs of the President's travels and summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. White House officials consider the inn a second home when the President is here. The tourists business also has picked up considerably since Nixon selected San Clemente as his official home.

The President looked might angry when he shoved Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler in New Orleans last Monday, but Mrs. Nixon looked shocked. The First Lady turned around just as the President was taking Ron by the lapel and pushing him toward the trailing press corps. Mrs. Nixon has suffered a lot in silence during the months of Watergate stress. She has been as always a great support to her husband. But she is smiling more now, and convinced, her aides say, that the dark clouds of the scandal are lifting from the White House.

Mrs. Nixon is expected to emerge publicly again when she travels to Europe with the President this fall. She has bought herself a snappy new wardrobe for the two-week journey which will be marked by formal state functions. The pressures of Watergate and the desire to stay close to home forced Mrs. Nixon to cancel a trip to Finland this fall to commemorate Finnish-American relations. Her mail is a tremendous comfort, and she faithfully answers the letters. The young and the old write in to express their confidence, despite Watergate.

Whether they see each other secretly or not, it is clear that Nixon still is very fond of H. R. Haldeman.

Art work displayed

ART INSTRUCTOR for the new 10-week course opening Sept. 10 at the Bowl and Board will be Judie Reeder, shown here with some of her work. The course covers arts and crafts as well as still life painting.

TF art classes slated

TWIN FALLS — Art classes, covering a 10-week period, will begin Sept. 10 and 11 at the Bowl and Board. Instructor this fall will be Mrs. John W. (Judie) Reeder. She plans to begin a new craft class this year in addition to the still life and floral painting classes.

The craft class opens Sept. 10 at 9 a.m. and continues until noon. It will cover tape painting, patchwork pictures, bread and salt dough sculpture, tissue paper sculpture and Christmas card design and painting. The painting class will begin Sept. 11, at 9 a.m. and continue until noon. It will provide training for the novice and professional and will cover still life, floral and possible location painting to catch some old buildings in the area. Interested parties may inspect some of Mrs. Reeder's paintings and crafts on display at the Bowl and Board through Sept. 7.

Registration is limited to 15 per class and persons are urged to register early. A Saturday youth art class will be taught by Shirley Lewis. More information is available by calling 733-2185.

Judie Reeder is a graduate of Utah State University with a degree in commercial art and illustration. She is remembered for her pencil sketches of prominent Twin Falls persons used in the Times-News and for her art work for the Dilettante and Antique Theatre Festival productions.

She has had five paintings published by the National Cattlemen's Assn., in the promotion of the beef cattle industry.

in America. But, he added, the students also expressed strong support for national symbols, such as the flag, the White House and the National Anthem.

About 49 per cent of those surveyed felt government interferes too much in people's lives, Blank said, with 85 per cent feeling the government should have no more power than at present to regulate individual freedom. About 46 per cent felt government is "getting too big for America," he said.

Students resent control

MOSCOW — Idaho high school seniors place a high value on individual freedoms at the expense of governmental controls and the form of government itself, a recent University of Idaho study shows.

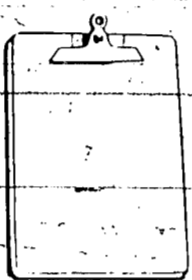

Dr. Robert Blank, a U of I political science professor, questioned about 800 high school students in the course of the study. The finding indicated, he said, that students repeatedly cited the wide range of personal freedoms available as the most favorable quality of

Blanca Ingram and Gerardo Garza run talent program

Talent search aids CSI youth

TWIN FALLS — Blanca Ingram and Gerardo Garza are heading up the Talent Search program at the College of Southern Idaho to help low-income and minority students get a college education.

Mrs. Ingram will direct Talent Search, a federally funded program, at CSI. Garza will be the program's counselor and recruiter.

Mrs. Ingram said last year Talent Search aided 23 freshman students at CSI. This year she expects the program will expand to aid 85 to 90 students.

"We serve needy students in the whole community," Garza said. "We have three objectives in Talent Search — to identify those we can aid, to inform them and to place them."

In his recruiting work Garza will cover Boise, Nampa and Caldwell as well as Ontario, and Nyssa, Ore.

Mrs. Ingram said Talent Search is still recruiting for this fall semester and has some funds left for financial aid.

Talent Search is located in the Multi-Use Building of CSI, 733-9554, ext. 225, 226.

Nixon's image gains slightly

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon's top aides believe he has gained slightly in restoring the image of a "man-in-command" as a result of his news conference on the Watergate scandal.

But they also are under no illusion, much as he would like it, that Watergate is now completely behind him, with Senate probes and federal prosecutors still busy piecing it all together.

"Let's face it," said one close aide. "Watergate is going to be with us a long time."

He also noted that "Nixon is not going to change" his cloistered lifestyle, despite the "Watergate revelations of 'scandalous conduct'" on the part of top aides to whom he delegated power.

Although the President has lost the human barrier of former top aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, two others, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Jr., his chief of staff and Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler have moved into the breach.

Some of Nixon's senior advisers are urging him to stay in the forefront by holding more news conferences and making more public appearances.

But others, like counselor Melvin R. Laird, believe it would have been better if Nixon had "gotten more rest" after his bout last month with viral pneumonia.

He acknowledged the tensions he has been living under and the impact on his capacity to govern when he complained at his news conference Wednesday: "To be under a constant barrage 12 to 15 minutes a night on each of the three major networks for four months tends to raise some questions in the people's mind with regard to the President and may raise some questions with regard to the capacity to govern."

Welding sculpture class set at CSI

TWIN FALLS — Welding sculpture, a class which has attracted a sizeable enrollment in the past, will be offered again by the College of Southern Idaho beginning Sept. 4.

The class will be offered in the Vocational Building of CSI, 1300 Kimberly Road. It will be taught on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. and will include classroom instructions in welding safety, welding theory and orientation before actual laboratory work is performed. Instruction will be given in basic principles of oxy-acetylene welding with a mini-course application to actual sheet metal welding before students attempt sculpturing. The course will last a full semester.

After the initial training, students will be free to fabricate metal sculpture of their own design. Interested students may register before the first class. The registration meeting will be in Classroom C-1 at 3:30 p.m. Sept. 4. Additional information is available by calling 733-9554, Extension 284.

Drowning victim not recovered

By CHARLOTTE BELLS
Times-News writer

JEROME — The body of Dean Dotson, 28, Twin Falls, who is feared drowned in Wilson Lake, has not been recovered.

Dotson, and his brother-in-law were wading on an old roadbed which goes into the lake on Sunday Aug. 12 when he disappeared.

Dotson, who was unable to swim, stepped into a hole and was washed downstream by a heavy current. Attempts by his brother-in-law to bring him to shore proved futile.

The Jerome County Sheriffs Department and volunteers searched the area most of Sunday night Aug. 12. A large scale search was conducted the following day. Scuba divers who attempted to locate the body were hampered by thick moss and muddy water.

The lake was then dragged with drag lines for two days. The search was hampered by the fact that the brother-in-law did not come out to the lake during the intensive search to help pinpoint the area he last saw Dotson, according to search organizers.

According to Eliza Hall, Jerome County sheriff, the search has been called off but a periodic check was made in the lake four or five times a day.

Volunteer scuba divers from the Burley area last week attempted to locate Dotson's body but were also hampered by the moss and mud.

Members of Dotson's family have charged that the Jerome County sheriff has been lax in attempts to locate Dotson's body. Members of the family said they felt the sheriff did not conduct a thorough enough search of the area and that the search should be continued until the body is found.

Hall said his office has done everything possible to find Dotson or his body. "At this point we will just have to wait for him to surface. We are still checking the lake periodically," Hall said. He noted it was impossible to keep his men looking for Dotson when they are needed elsewhere.

Miss Teenager goes to finals

TWIN FALLS — Miss Idaho Teenager, Debbie Cox, Castleford, will leave Tuesday morning for national contest finals in Atlanta, Ga.

Debbie, 15, was chosen Miss Idaho Teenager at the state finals on Aug. 4. In addition to being named Miss Idaho Teenager she also won first prize in the essay contest entitled "What's Right About America?"

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Cox, Castleford, Debbie will stay in Atlanta at least through the contest finals Saturday night.

Those wishing to send cards of encouragement to Debbie can mail them to her — airmail — care of the Executive Park Hotel, 1447 N. E. Expressway, Atlanta, Ga., 30329.

Youths distrust US government

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho high school seniors who support values such as individual achievement and property also indicate a lower degree of trust in government, according to a study made by a University of Idaho professor.

Dr. Robert Blank, a political science professor, compiled responses from 800 students, and said the seniors also expressed a high degree of support for national "symbols" such as the national anthem, the flag and the white house, picked political figures as their "hero symbols", and cited the wide range of personal freedoms available as the most favorable aspect of American life.

Blank's findings will be presented in his paper, "regime beliefs in a rural western state," before the September meeting of the American Political Science Association.

He said he conducted the survey of the Idaho students because predominantly rural states such as Idaho seldom surface in national samples because of sparse population and difficult accessibility.

He noted that both his study and earlier studies of Idaho election returns show the state to have an extremely independent voting pattern. The state's unusual terrain with its media centers considered to be Boise, Spokane and Salt Lake City leads to more informal grassroots campaigning by candidates, Blank said, which in turn makes the voting choice more personal.

The value of individualism, he said, is emphasized in the study results, which show 46 per cent of students asked indicated government should leave business alone, another 45 per cent indicating government should regulate only "some" businesses.

Litton denies charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., has charged that Litton Industries intends to ask the Navy for substantial cost overruns on a shipbuilding contract. But Litton denied the charge and the Pentagon said the "cost growth" of the contract was under control.

Aspin, a frequent critic of the Pentagon, said Litton has told the Navy "informally" that it will ask for another increase of $77 million above the target price on a contract for 30 DDF 963 destroyers. He said the contract already has suffered cost increases of $476 million and a Navy spokesman told him that additional overruns would eventually reach between $150 million and $250 million.

In a statement, the Pentagon confirmed that the contract was expected to go about $150 million to $250 million over the target price. But it said the contract will be well below the $2.139 billion ceiling price.

The Navy believes "cost growth is under control" on the project, the Pentagon said. It added that Litton's efforts "are efficient and are meeting required standards."

A spokesman for Litton said Aspin was quoting figures which were not "identifiable as being in any way related to this contract."

"His purported facts are wrong and his inferences regarding mismanagement are unfounded," the spokesman said. "He obviously has not troubled himself to become adequately informed on the program."

He said that under the terms of the contract the firm will be renegotiating a new target cost in the fall. "This one-time review is expected to clarify further continuing production of 30 ships within the ceiling prices and escalation limits of the contract," he added.

SODA SPRINGS, (UPI) Bureau of Land Management crews hoped to control a 400-acre range fire near here today.

Don Kline, BLM area coordinator, said the fire started late Sunday afternoon, but fire retardants dropped from planes and the work of bulldozers kept it from nearby wheat fields.

He said the fire was burning on both BLM and U.S. Forest Service land, but most of the damage was on BLM land.

Kline said the fire was originally fought by about 50 men, but 100 more were called in from Twin Falls and McCall to control the blaze.

He said the fire was burning "slowly" and that he expected no trouble putting it out.

Study shows population loss takes heavy toll

The depopulation process has lasted longest in Camas County, which has seen its population decline steadily from a 1920 population of 1,730, to 728 in 1970.

In Gooding County population grew from 7,548 in 1920 to a high of 11,101 in 1950. Then the exodus began, with population falling to 8,645 by 1970.

Jerome County's population rose from 5,729 in 1920 to a high of 12,080 in 1950, then declined to a 1970 level of 10,253.

Lincoln County grew from 3,446 in 1920 to 4,256 by 1950, then declined to 3,057 in 1970.

During the last 20 years the combined population of the four counties declined by about 21 per cent.

During the 20 years, Camas County lost 33 per cent of its people; Gooding lost 22 per cent; Jerome lost 15 per cent, and Lincoln county lost 28 per cent.

The greatest loss to the four counties was loss of youth.

As part of his study, Bollinger sampled 20 per cent of high school graduates in the four counties during the 1957-1966 period.

Of the sample, only 49 per cent of high school graduates still lived within the four-county area in August 1971. The other 51 per cent had moved.

At the same time, more than four fifths of the parents of those students still lived in the area.

According to the study, depopulation resulted in "adverse selection" — loss of the most educated while the least educated remained.

Only about one-tenth — 10.7 per cent — of the college graduates from the four counties chose to remain there. On the other hand, nearly four times as large a percentage — 39 per cent — of youths who had no formal advanced education chose to remain.

An interesting sidelight noted in the study is that the educational and professional attainment of youths from the four-county area was far above the national average.

Two and one half times as many graduates from the four-county area entered professional and technical occupations as in the national average.

Ten times as many of the male graduates went into teaching as the national average.

In fact there were more male graduates entering teaching (9.8 per cent) than choosing to take up farming (7 per cent.)

In contrast, 43 per cent of their fathers were farmers.

The census figures support Bollinger's notion that population losses hit the youth heaviest.

Of a total population loss of 3,156 in the four counties during the 1960s, more than two thirds was from the age group under 20 years of age.

During the decade there was a net loss of 2,433 people under 20; another 1,744 from 20 to 49, and a net gain of 1,021 people aged 50 and over.

The median age, accordingly, rose sharply in each county during the 1960s. In Camas county, the median age jumped 3.3 years to 31.3 years.

In Gooding, it rose 2.7 years to 32.9 years; in Jerome it rose 5.5 years to 31.4 and in Lincoln county median age rose 4.6 years to 31.4.

In contrast, fast growing Ada county (including Boise) saw its median age decline 0.6 years to 27.2 years during the decade. And the State of Idaho's median age showed only a slight increase rising 0.4 per cent to 26.4 years.

In short, people in the four counties surveyed are much older than the state average, and the median age is advancing much more rapidly than in the state as a whole.

Because women tend to be less mobile than men (the proportion of women has tended to grow).

The four-county area had about 105 men for every 100 women in 1960. By 1970 there were only 101.4 men for every 100 women.

This change paralleled a similar shift in Idaho during the same period. In Idaho there were about 103 men per 100 women in 1960. This dropped to 99.7 in 1970.

All four counties surveyed had a higher fertility rate than the national average during the early 1950s. (The fertility rate is the number of births per 1,000 women aged 15-44.)

But by the end of the 1960s, the fertility rate of each county had fallen below national and state averages.

In Camas County, the fertility rate dropped from 119.3 in the early 1950s to only 44.9 in the late 1960s. In Gooding County, the figures dropped from 121.4 to 78.4 and in Jerome County the fertility rate fell from 135.2 to 88.4. In Lincoln county, fertility ratios fell from 141.1 to 66.9 during the period.

In comparison, national fertility figures for the same period fell from 113.0 to 89.4, and state figures showed a decline from 129.7 to 93.4.

This meant that women were having fewer babies than average in the four depopulated counties, while the rest of Idaho women were having more than average numbers of babies.

Fund-a-bus fete nets $10,000

SUN VALLEY — About $10,000 was netted during the second annual "Fund-A-Bus" Saturday night, according to Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce Manager Lloyd Curtis.

Over 500 persons took part in the event, which included a host of carnival games, dinner and an auction, with Ned Bell as auctioneer. Proceeds went toward the continuation of the Ketchum-Sun Valley Transit System.

Curtis said about 35 auction items and packages were sold for a total of $9,490. The highest bid price of the evening, $1,050, purchased a trip to Disney World for D. H. Rae.

A kiss from Sun Valley's Magoon went for $110, and one day's helicopter and skiing with Bill Janss sold for $145.

Wally Huffman, Ray Cox, and Rurt Bender won a 1973 Mercedes Benz sedan.

Soda Springs fire blackens 400 acres

SODA SPRINGS, (UPI) Bureau of Land Management crews hoped to control a 400-acre range fire near here today.

Don Kline, BLM area coordinator, said the fire started late Sunday afternoon, but fire retardants dropped from planes and the work of bulldozers kept it from nearby wheat fields.

Return of fire fighters delayed

BOISE (UPI) — A shortage of commercial airlines and pilots available for charter flights has slowed the demobilization of the 10,000-man army brought together to fight fires in the west.

Reed Burkholder, information officer for the Boise Interagency Fire Center, Sunday said demobilization was progressing "but slower than we had hoped."

"The number of aircraft that are free is limited and the amount of time that the pilots have free to fly charter flights seems to be pretty well used up because of the amount we used when we were mobilizing."

"We're having a difficult time getting these guys home — the guys from the south and the east and the north."

He said that the center lacks flights for 500 men brought in from eastern and southern states. Not all of them will pass through the Boise Center. Some will leave from Missoula, Mont., and California.

One Alaskan airplane 707 Sunday took seven crews to Pittsburgh, Pa., and was scheduled to return to Boise at midnight to take another run with firefighting crews headed home to Bangor, Maine, Baltimore, Md., Boston, Pittsburgh, Madison and Milwaukee, Wis.

Burkholder said there is no target date for getting the crews back to their home units but just "as soon as possible. We would like it to be done tonight but that's just impossible."

Firecrews were dismantled and crews sent home as fires burning on 200,000 acres in the west were brought to the mop-up stage.

Burkholder said only mop-up work remained on all the major fires that had been problems during the past two weeks.

But as crews were going home, a request from Craig, Colo., arrived at the Boise Interagency Fire Center for three crews and miscellaneous fire fighting equipment needed by the Bureau of Land Management for a fire.

A 50-acre fire also was reported burning Sunday in Los Padres National Forest in California.

Cassia school district rights review planned districts would be reviewed by the Department of Health Education and Welfare, of which Civil Rights is a part. He declined to identify the other districts, however.

Cassia school superintendent Harold Blauer said he had been informed of the agency's intention to conduct the review and added, "as long as you're receiving federal funds, it is your responsibility not to conduct discriminatory policies."

He said the Office of Civil Rights had a "right to make review," and it was "part of their responsibility to conduct them."

Of the 22 school districts in the northwest selected for review, Cassia County will be visited first, Lee said.

Lee said the reviews are conducted under Title 6 of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which states that any organization receiving federal assistance may not engage in discriminatory practices.

Following the review, Lee said his office will make a decision of "compliance" or "non-compliance" with federal civil rights laws. If "non-compliance" is the finding, then a recommendation is made on a remedy to the situation. Continued discriminatory policies will be taken to federal court, and federal funds could be revoked.

Project begins

Ranchers will assume maintenance of fences

LEADORE — Forest Service grazing allotment holders in the future will have to maintain fences, water tanks and other improvements.

But before turning the duty over to the ranchers who graze their cattle on forest lands, the Forest Service is "improving" the improvements.

In the case of the Leadore Ranger District, "We are trying to do as much as we can as quick as we can before we turn the complete maintenance over to them so they will have an acceptable improvement to maintain," Carl Guillette, district ranger, said.

The change results from a discontinuance of maintenance funds to the Forest Service for such improvements.

The Leadore District has 24 grazing allotments and Guillette said upgrading of the structures will be done on the entire district as soon as possible.

The official noted that under the new grazing fee structure the permittee is allowed 43 cents on each AUM (animal unit month) for maintenance of fences and watering facilities.

Assisting the Leadore District in the work the past nine weeks have been four members of the Neighborhood Youth Corps under the supervision of Delbert Stroud, forestry technician.

The youths, all Navajo Indians, came to the district June 18 and left the past weekend. They are Jerry Dodson, Billy Barlowe and Larry Talker, all of Arizona, and Timothy Bodoni, New Mexico.

Their last project was installation of a new water tank and pipeline at the Wagon Box Spring on Grizzly Mountain along the Continental Divide north of Leadore.

Also being undertaken is installation of a pole fence as part of the Grizzly Mountain Cattle Allotment. Three miles of the fence, located astride the Idaho-Montana line, was constructed last fall and this spring.

The fence was constructed to keep the cattle in, or livestock from Montana out, but also kept low enough to permit migrating elk and deer to cross.

Additional "log and block" fence will be installed as funds and time permit.

Other improvements in the grazing allotments on the district have been spraying to kill sagebrush to permit growth of grass. The sprayed areas are showing a tremendous increase in forage for cattle grazing the allotments.

Ranchers who graze their cattle in the Grizzly Mountain Allotment are Jack Powers and Truman Chapman.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices opened irregularly in sluggish trading Monday on the New York Stock Exchange, with the beginning of the year's fifteenth rise in banks' prime lending rates in the background.

Shortly after the opening, the Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.08 to 863.41, but advanced to 863.49, as news of the nation's second balance of trade surplus this year apparently was not enough to sustain the previous day's technical strength.

Early Monday, Chase Manhattan Bank raised its prime lending rate by 1/4-point to a record 9 3/4 per cent, effective immediately. Other banks are expected to follow quickly with similar moves. If they do, it would be the fifteenth consecutive rise this year.

Super stocks fly high, others wallow in trough

(c) Chicago Sun-Times — One day last week the stock of the great soap maker, Procter & Gamble, dropped a disastrous $7 a share and finished the week down $10. Procter & Gamble is not quite in the "super stock" class that relative handful of growth stocks favored so strongly by bank trust departments and other institutional investors that they sell at extraordinary prices and make the rest of the stock market look even worse than it is.

But it has had quite a following in big money circles and it had been selling for approximately 30 times earnings. The super stocks have been going for much higher multiples than that. McDonald's, for instance, has been going at 55 times earnings. And Xerox at 43 times earnings even after coming down in price recently. The mistake Procter & Gamble made last week was to come up with earnings that were practically flat profits of 64 cents a share for the quarter versus 62 cents last year. Among the super and near-supers only Polaroid, still selling for 78 times earnings, has been getting away with any indication that profit growth is faltering.

Even so Procter & Gamble is still selling at a very healthy 24 times earnings. Investors in hundreds of other stocks would gladly settle for a price-earnings ration of half that. One of the maxims of Wall Street, untested as are most of the fondly held investing guides to stock market investment, is that something has to happen when some few stocks are flying high and the rest of the market is wallowing in the trough. Either the high flyers have to come down or the rest of market has to improve. The wait for the good news has been agonizing, to say the least.

High prices bring fruit jar shortage

(c) Washington Star-News — Home canning, spurred by higher food prices, is bigger than ever — so big, in fact, that it has created a boom in sales of mason jars. At the same time, however, this boom — plus a nationwide shortage of soda ash which is used in glassmaking — has led to an extremely tight supply situation in mason jars themselves. "This is the biggest year since World War II," said W. A. (Bill) Kerr, president of the Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp. of Los Angeles, one of the nation's two principal makers of mason jars. "We've got orders we can't even come close to filling. Orders are way in excess of supply," said Kerr, whose firm sold about half the estimated 173 million mason jars sold last year in the United States. Nearly all mason jars now use a two-piece cap — a replaceable single lid inside and a reusable screw outer cap — invented by the father-in-law of Alexander, in 1903. (Mason jars are named for John L. Mason, who patented the first glass jar with an airtight screw top in 1857.) Sales are soaring as well half-way across the country at Kerr's competitor, the Ball Corp. George Loughery, general manager of Ball's consumer products division, said "We're probably having the biggest sales year we've ever had in history." The firm sold about 86 million jars last year and sales — which had been growing at 5 or 10 per cent a year for five years — are up at least 20 per cent over 1972.

Victor Parachini is far too sensible and experienced to think that anything must happen in the stock market. But he persists in the belief that no matter what happens to the super stocks the good, solid companies will someday get their day in the sun. "Of course," he adds with a grin, "we've thought it was possible since 1972 and it hasn't happened yet. You still see all the fine companies with good earnings selling for five and ten times earnings and very often offering attractive dividends."

Parachini is vice president and senior investment officer of American Express Asset Management Co. located in San Francisco, a predecessor California company was acquired by American Express. The company is the outside manager for such bundles of money as the Stanford University Endowment Fund ($220 million) and the manager for the retirement fund for Firemen's Fund Insurance Co. ($150 million, also a part of American Express).

At the moment, the "abnormal political situation" aside, Parachini is looking at two things as indicators of when the stock market will straighten out and begin to recognize obvious values. One is short-term interest rates. He doesn't think the stocks can do much better than see-saw until the attraction of the short-term money market is substantially less than it has been. In other words, why should anyone with a large chunk of money put it at some risk in common stocks when United States 90-day treasury bills can be bought to yield 8 1/2 per cent or better?

2 reasons why the price of silver may rise steeply

Two powerful forces are at work today which make a steep rise in the price of silver seem inevitable. First, the demand for silver surpassed new production for the first time in 20 years. And for each extra ton of silver produced in the last 15 years, the demand for silver surpassed new production by more than 100 million pounds. This excess of demand over supply is creating a strong, steady upward pressure on the price of silver. During the 1960's the price of silver rose 95%. Second, soaring federal budget deficits, record balances of payments deficits, and 37 years of inflation have brought the dollar to the brink of collapse. Harry Browne, author of How You Can Profit From The Coming Devaluation of the Dollar, predicted the first dollar devaluation in 17 years, and the second gold price, warns. The alternatives are narrowed to either runaway inflation or a full-scale depression.

Unheralded John Schroeder wins pro. match play event

CARY, N.C. (UPI) — Unheralded John Schroeder scored a stunning upset of Lee Trevino Sunday and then came back to oust veteran DeWitt Weaver to win the $150,000 U.S. Professional Match Play championship.

Bert Greene, claiming his first victory in seven years as a pro, birdied the fifth hole of a playoff with Miller Barber to win the $100,000 L&M Open, the second half of pro golf's only doubleheader.

Barber, who had surged to the fore with a four-under-par 67, and Greene, with a 70, were tied after 72 holes with six-under-par 27s.

Schroeder, 27-year-old son of former tennis great Ted Schroeder, and a golf pro for five years, eliminated Trevino 1-up in the match play semi-finals and defeated Weaver 2-up, in the finale to pick up his first winner's check, a whopping $40,000 which quadrupled his moneywinnings for the year. Weaver, 33, had fashioned a major upset of his own with a 1-up triumph over Tom Weiskopf in the semi-finals.

Schroeder, bothered for the past year by tendonitis in his thumb, took the lead over Weaver to stay when Weaver, who won the first match play title in 1971, bogeyed the 12th hole.

A storm of upsets swept all eight players who were prequalified for the match play out of the event. Trevino destroyed defending champion Jack Nicklaus 4 and 3 in the second round Saturday.

The match play final paled in comparison with the semi-final upsets. Schroeder jumped off to a lead over Weaver with a birdie on the first hole, but fell back to even at the third hole, which he bogeyed and Weaver birdied.

Weaver bogeyed the fourth hole, while Schroeder took a birdie and a one-hole advantage. Weaver then reeled off two birdies to go 1-up and grabbed a two-hole lead when Schroeder bogeyed the par three eighth hole.

Schroeder birdied the ninth, trimming Weaver's lead to a single hole, went even with a birdie on the 11th hole.

Schroeder took a one-hole advantage when Weaver double-bogeyed the par three 12th. Schroeder birdied No. 15 to go 2-up but dropped back when he bogeyed the 17th. Weaver bogeyed No. 18 and the match was Schroeder's.

"I played extremely well this afternoon, but John played fantastic," said Weaver. "He did practically nothing wrong all day."

Barber came from three strokes off the pace to tie Greene, the third round leader, at the 18th hole. He and Greene began their playoff on the 14th hole and matched pars on the 14th and 15th. They both bogeyed the 16th and parred the 17th.

Bob Smith and Lanny Wadkins tied for third at five-under 27s. Smith shot a 70 Sunday while Wadkins, disappointed over his failure to get into the match play at the end of the second round, fired a 69.

Rod Curl, who scorched the 6,786-yard, par 71 MacGregor Downs Country Club course, with a course record 64, and Larry Wise, who shot a 72, were tied at 280, four under par.

Greene birdied the dangerous 18th hole while Barber parred it to pick up a $20,000 check.

Greene, who plays out of Hattiesburg, Miss., was hampered in the early season by an accidental gunshot wound he suffered last fall. His best finish this year was second to Dwight Nevil in the Magnolia Classic.

In the semi-finals Sunday morning, Schroeder jumped off to a one-hole advantage when Trevino plopped a shot in a lake on the first hole and took a disastrous triple-bogey seven.

The blond, bespectacled Schroeder never trailed Trevino and the match was decided by an eight foot putt for a birdie on the 18th.

"Lee didn't hit many fairways," Schroeder said. "I was fortunate to get him on a day when he was off."

"He hit a super eight iron on the 18th but I wasn't going to stand there and chicken out," he said. "I made up my mind to take a nice swing."

Weaver and Weiskopf both played uninspired golf in their match, with Weaver shooting two birdies against four bogeys to Weiskopf's four birdies and five bogeys.

Weaver was 1-up going into the last hole and had a two-foot putt for a par. Weiskopf, who two-putted from 15 feet, asked Weaver, "think you can make it?"

Ron Bryant wins 20th to highlight NL action

By United Press International

Lefthander Ron Bryant became the first pitcher in the National League to win 20 games this season and Dave Kingman broke out of a batting slump by driving in four runs with a homer and single Sunday to lead the San Francisco Giants to a 5-4 victory over the New York Mets.

Bryant, 20-8, held the Mets to eight hits while walking two and striking out three to win his 14th consecutive start. Bryant needed relief help from Elias Sosa after putting runner on second and third with one out in the ninth. Sosa picked up his 14th save of the season despite giving up a two-run single to pinch-hitter Ken Boswell.

Kingman, who had been hitless in his last 27 at-bats—striking out 16 times, singled off third baseman Ted Martinez' glove to drive in two runs in the fourth inning and homered with one on in the sixth.

In other National League games, Los Angeles turned back Philadelphia, 7-3. San Diego topped Montreal, 4-2. Cincinnati defeated St. Louis, 4-1. Chicago stopped Houston, 4-2, and Atlanta outslugged Pittsburgh, 8-6.

The Cincinnati Reds rallied behind Joe Morgan's 20th homer of the season to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals.

Morgan's home run, coming after a walk to Pete Rose in the seventh inning, made him the third player in baseball history to hit 20 or more home runs and steal 50 or more bases. St. Louis' Cardinals' Lou Brock accomplished the feat in 1967 and Houston's Cesar Cedeño matched the performance last year.

Dave Roberts broke up a 2-2 tie with a two-run homer in the top of the ninth inning to lead San Diego to a win over Montreal.

Jerry Morales led off the ninth with a double and Roberts then hit his 14th homer of the season into the left field bleachers. A home run in the first inning by rookie Johnny Grubb and one in the third inning by Morales, both with none on, accounted for the other two Padre runs.

Dave Lopes banged out four hits, including a double and a triple to lead Los Angeles to a victory over Philadelphia and a sweep of the three-game weekend series.

Joe Ferguson belted his 21st homer of the year after Lopes had singled and gave the Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the first. Lopes tripled in the third and scored when Mike Schmidt booted Bill Buckner's grounder. Buckner scored on Garvey's sacrifice fly to give Los Angeles a 4-0 lead.

Dave Johnson took over the major league lead in homers at 36 with a grand slam and carried Atlanta to a triumph over Pittsburgh.

Johnson's grand slam, his second of the season and second of his nine-year major league career, came in the fourth inning and gave the Braves a 6-1 lead. The Braves added two more runs in the sixth on a walk.

his fifth victory against nine losses.

"Heck, there are a lot of guys around the league who are throwing it and I'm going to continue to throw it until they stop it," added Merritt.

Bill Melton, delegated to the designated hitter's role for the first time this season, slammed a two-run homer in the first inning and the White Sox made it stand up for a second game triumph over Detroit after Jim Kaat gave Chicago a victory in the opener with a three-hitter.

Baltimore extends win streak to 13 in Sunday's AL action

By United Press International

Paul Blair slammed an inside-the-park grand slam home run and Andy Etchebarren added a solo blast as the Baltimore Orioles extended their club record winning streak to 13 games with a 10-1 victory over the slumping Kansas City Royals Sunday.

Jim Palmer, 18-6, spaced four hits in eight innings and gained his 10th consecutive victory plus sixth in a row over Kansas City.

Blair ripped the second grand slam homer of his career in the second inning after loser

Paul Spittorff, 15-9, had allowed singles to Etchebarren and Mark Belanger and a walk to Merv Rettenmund. Blair's line drive up the right-centerfield alley was aided by rightfielder Steve Hovley slipping in pursuit and colliding with centerfielder Amos Otis as Blair circled the bases behind the three baserunners.

In other games Oakland nipped New York 1-0, Texas swept a doubleheader from Cleveland, 9-0 and 5-3, Chicago swept a twinbill from Detroit, 4-1 and 3-1, and Milwaukee edged Minnesota 3-2.

Joe Rudi spoiled Mel Stottlemyre's bid for a no-hitter with a single to left with one out in the bottom of the eighth, went to second on a sacrifice, to third on a wild pitch and then scored the game's only run on a pinch-hit single by Vic Davalillo as Oakland edged the New York Yankees.

Stottlemyre and Ken Holtzman were locked in a scoreless duel until the eighth and Holtzman went on to register his 19th victory against 11 losses on a four-hitter. Stottlemyre, who has not won a game since July 13 when he shut out Kansas City, suffered his 13th loss in 25 decisions.

The victory was Oakland's 12th in the last 13 games and 17th in 21. The Yankees, meanwhile, suffered their sixth straight defeat.

Home runs by Alex Johnson and Vic Harris sparked a 10-hit Texas attack to give the Rangers a 5-3 second-game victory in a doubleheader sweep over the Indians.

Jim Merritt tossed a three-hitter. Jeff Burroughs belted two homers and Harris drove in three runs to pace the Rangers to an easy 9-0 victory in the opener.

Merritt admitted in a postgame interview that he threw 25 to 30 spitballs in the contest. "Just call it a Gaylord 'lastball,'" said Merritt, who struck out two and walked three in picking up his fifth victory against nine losses.

"Heck, there are a lot of guys around the league who are throwing it and I'm going to continue to throw it until they stop it," added Merritt.

S.F. scores early to top Denver

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers rambled to three first quarter touchdowns and went on to trounce the error-prone Denver Broncos 43-7 in a preseason game Sunday.

San Francisco quarterback Steve Spurrier hit Gene Washington with a 49-yard scoring pass on the opening series of downs. A short Denver punt and a lost fumble set up the 49ers for 10 more points, and San Francisco defensive end Cedric Hardman ran 38 yards with another fumble to put the 49ers ahead 24-0 after one quarter.

Denver was unable to move behind quarterback Steve Ramsey, and gave up another fumble and interception in the second quarter. San Francisco's Bruce Gossett kicked three field goals to give the 49ers a 33-0 halftime lead.

With John Huffnagel replaced Ramsey in the third quarter, Denver marched 78 yards for its only score, capping the drive with a 15-yard scoring catch by Jerry Simmonds.

Veteran Charlie Johnson, Denver's top quarterback, did not see action.

Stottlemyre and Ken Holtzman were locked in a scoreless duel until the eighth and Holtzman went on to register his 19th victory against 11 losses on a four-hitter. Stottlemyre, who has not won a game since July 13 when he shut out Kansas City, suffered his 13th loss in 25 decisions.

Green Bay topples K.C. 21-16

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Running back MacArthur Lane ran for a touchdown and passed for another as the Green Bay Packers romped past the Kansas City Chiefs 21-16 Sunday night in a nationally televised National Football League exhibition game.

Lane gave the 75,231 spectators an early letdown by bullying his way through the Chiefs' defensive line for an easy 20-yard scoring run on the opening quarter.

After a 27-yard Jan Stenerud field goal early in the second period, Green Bay took control for virtually the rest of the game.

Quarterback Jerry Tagge engineered a 12-play, 70-yard scoring drive that took up more than nine minutes of the quarter. At the Kansas City eight, Lane took Tagge's pitchout, rolled right, stopped and looped a pass to wide receiver Carroll Dale open in the end zone. Chester Marcol's extra point made it 14-3 with 5:11 left in the half.

In the third quarter the Chiefs got a 47-yard Stenerud field goal with six seconds left in the first half, and they closed to 14-9 with another Stenerud kick in the third period.

Angels shut out Red Sox 1-0

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Bill Singer pitched a six-hitter for his second shutout of the season Sunday night as the California Angels ended the Boston Red Sox' winning streak at eight with a 1-0 victory.

The defeat dropped the Red Sox five games behind streaking Baltimore in the American League East race despite a fine pitching performance from Luis Tiant, who allowed only three hits.

Singer, 17-10, walked three and struck out seven in hurling his 15th complete game.

U.S. retains Wightman as Evert sisters win

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — The United States retained the Wightman Cup Tennis Championship Sunday with Chris Evert gaining the decisive point in the seven-match series, then watching as her 15-year-old sister Jeanne paired with Patti Hogan to win the final doubles match.

The doubles triumph made the final score 3-2 with Jeanne having the honor of serving the final game of the 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 match over Lindsey Beaven and L. Sley Charles.

Miss Hogan lost the final singles match to Virginia Wade, 6-2, 6-2, after Chris Evert locked up the cup with her 6-3, 6-0 victory over Veronica Burton.

The victory was America's fifth straight and its 38th on the 50th anniversary of the cup competition.

Chris Evert, who burst upon the international scene in 1971 in Wightman play by winning the decisive match that year over Virginia Wade, repeated that performance Sunday, although the 21-year-old Miss Burton gave her more than token resistance in the first set.

Flare through Miss Burton, who was troubled by blisters on both feet, allowing her only nine points in the set.

Miss Evert had led 3-0 in the first set before Veronica, the daughter of the former Lord Mayor of Westminster and a former model, battled back to make it interesting for the moment.

But in the second set Miss Evert was devastating, using the Uniturf surface to complete advantage. Chris, now a veteran international player at age 18, finds clay her best surface. The synthetic surface here approaches clay in its playing characteristics. Miss Burton is also a fine clay court player, as she proved in the U.S. National Clay tournament last week at Indianapolis where she gained the finals but lost to Chris, 6-4, 6-3.

Miss Burton started out badly in the first set. She won only one point in the first two games but in the third gained composure, getting to game point at 40-30 when Chris got just a bit too cute and flobbed an easy drop shot. But the game got away from Veronica when she was wide on a lob return, got caught by a left return to her feet, and then was wide on a backhand to trail three games to love.

Miss Burton then mounted a fine comeback, breaking Miss Evert when Chris was too soft with a lob on game point.

Mark Donohue posts victory

ELKHART, Wis. (UPI) — Mark Donohue, in his Penske team turbocharged Porsche Audi, swept to his third consecutive Can-Am challenge cup victory Sunday with a record average speed of 114,021 m.p.h. on the twisting, scorched Road America track.

With temperatures in the mid 90s and cockpit temperatures reaching 140, the 36-year-old Donohue scored easy victories over 23-year-old challenger Jody Scheckter of South Africa in back-to-back 100 mile races.

The victory earned Donohue, Reading, Pa., a total of $15,000 and 20 Can-Am points to increase his lead to 79-45 over defending champion George Follmer who finished third.

Donohue's first place finish in the first 100 miles earned him a third of his total cash winnings and gave him the pole position in the second heat which decided the overall winner.

New York tops Steelers 29-24

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spider Lockhart and Brian Kelley ran back second period pass interceptions for touchdowns and Pete Gogolak kicked five field goals Sunday to give the New York Giants a 29-24 exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

The victory boosted the Giants' exhibition record to 4-0 while the Steelers are now 2-2. The Steelers' defensive unit has allowed only one touchdown in four exhibition games but the offensive unit has been stung for three TDs including the two runbacks Sunday.

On the first play of the second period, Lockhart snared a Terry Bradshaw pass intended for tight end John McMakin and ran it back 42 yards for a touchdown to give the Giants a 10-3 lead.

Midway in the period, Larry Jacobson batted a Bradshaw pass into the air and Kelley caught it and ran 39 yards for the score that gave New York a 20-3 margin.

Gogolak's field goals accounted the rest of the Giants' scoring. Kicking five in one

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There are some definite confusions in most every mind today and tonight, but there is a good chance such can be eliminated and a right, constructive plan put in action by using cleverness and conscientiousness in trying to solve the problems present. Be specific about stating aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although your mind is on having some amusement, you should lose out where it counts the most in some-business opportunity. Get your job done well. Avoid one who argues in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan some time to get together with those with whom you are most congenial and relieve tensions. Then you can get into those business matters that are important and do them well. Try to please mate in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Improving affairs at home, or planning how to do so while at business is wise today. Buy any new pieces of furniture that are needed. Pleasing kin can pay off in much affection.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Contact those who can assist you in making your life easier and happier in the future. An associate will go along now with some plan that he has turned down before. Think and act constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Getting rid of whatever is obsolete and replacing with the new is wise, as well as finding better ways to increase income. Make repairs to property that will add value as well as comfort. Control your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) State your aims to key persons and gain their support for your ideas which are practical. Ideal day to attend group meetings helpful to your personal and business affairs. Dress well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put more order around you, especially where personal, intimate things are concerned. Later get business matters well handled. Join with good friends tonight for the conversations that are enjoyable, enlightening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Gad about socially so you can secure the information you need, while having a good time. Make sure you do not overdress. The casual look is best now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make the improvements in career matters that require immediate attention, or you can lose out where it counts the most. Join some civic group which can be most helpful to you. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You now understand trends in the outside world and can take the right steps to become more successful. Be interested in that scientific endeavor that is just your cup of tea. Relax at home in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Operate in a most exact way where debts and credits are concerned and improve your image in business world. Being clever with math is most important now. Don't let anyone pull the wool over your eyes.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss with associates any questionable points so you can come to a fine understanding and present a united front for more success. Get into that civic affair that brings you more recognition. Extend your powerful possibilities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young people whose mind is buzzing with ideas who will do something about them since he or she knows they are worthless otherwise. There can be fame in such fields as the scientific, the religious, or whatever else will require both vision and determination, since there is also the courage of own convictions in this chart. Teach early to reach quick decisions. Sports are a must.

On the day a single girl passes age 20, her chances of getting married suddenly drop 50 per cent, the experts contend. Remember, it was Elaine C. Moore who said, 'One good turn, and you have most of the bed covers.' It has been established scientifically that the average beaver prefers a tree trunk it can gnaw through in about 20 minutes. A study of rail freight out of Washington, D.C., shows that capital's biggest item of export is baled wastepaper. And note, too, just about 61 per cent of those men arrested for sex crimes have no previous criminal records.

Can you name that food with the most protein? Neither could I. But in response to a client's query, research revealed it's a tossup between Pacific salmon and veal shoulder. Swordfish comes in third. Ground beef, fourth.

Surveys show that more than half of those girls who make most of their income as striptease dancers were first-born children.

Quick, Louise, who's the most photographed woman in the world?

A Queen Elizabeth. Without a doubt. Was a time when most people thought Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis merited that distinction. Or Pat Nixon. Or Liz Taylor. Or Marilyn Monroe. Wasn't so, though. Bear in mind the intensive picture-taking of the Queen started in her infancy, didn't it?

Your heart after every beat takes a little rest. For about a sixth of a second, if average. Think of that, sir. If you're 60 years old, you've survived 10 years of your lifetime with a stopped heart.

The typical bridge player in an average session at a card table makes approximately 400 borderline decisions, it's said. And at least a third of those are wrong, regret to report.

Politics. Troublesome matters, those Watergate tricks, those Agnew accusations, those Plimbers' antics. Still, they lack a certain exquiste flare exhibited by Alexander Hamilton, Secretary of the Treasury so long ago. When he was accused of complicity in financial chicanery with a small husband, one Mr. Reynolds by name, Alexander made the public point that his shenanigans involved no corruption whatsoever. The payments he made to Mr. Reynolds, he said, were merely fair barter for the favors of Mrs. Reynolds, in fact.
