Oil price to double

BEIRUT (UPI) — The price of Libyan crude oil will be nearly doubled as a result of the nationalization of 51 per cent of six Western oil firms during the weekend, Libyan Premier Abdel Salem Jalloud said. He also said Libya would no longer accept U.S. dollars in payment for its oil. Other oil sources indicated Western companies may encounter similar nationalization measures in the Persian gulf states. At a late-night news conference Sunday broadcast by Tripoli Radio, Jalloud said Libya wanted $4 a barrel for its oil — almost double the current price and more than double the $2.50 paid to Persian Gulf oil producers. "Libya will no longer accept payment in U.S. dollars," he said. "The dollar has lost its value and we want a currency that is convertible to gold." Libya announced Saturday it was nationalizing 51 per cent of five of the "major" oil companies operating in Libya. The companies were producing around 2.2 million barrels of oil a day, which automatically gives Libya control of 1.2 million barrels a day, oil sources said. (In New York, oil company spokesmen said the United States consumes about 12 million barrels of oil a day. They said only a small fraction of Libyan oil is exported to the United States with the rest going to Europe.) Jalloud said the flow of Libyan oil would continue uninterrupted and said Libya would fulfill its current supply contracts.

UAW, Chrysler talk; strike eyed

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers hold a Labor Day negotiating session on voluntary overtime today, just 12 days away from a possible strike by 127,500 U.S. and Canadian auto workers. UAW President Leonard Woodcock said Sunday a strike can be avoided if the automaker abandons a "very intransigent position" against voluntary overtime and approaches it with "a little ingenuity and imagination." He outlined some ways voluntary overtime could work in the nation's auto plants. Automotive executive have said there is no way they can give up the management prerogative of scheduling overtime. "We've met adamant opposition in the area of voluntary overtime which is a key issue as far as we're concerned," the UAW chief said. "It just needs a little ingenuity and imagination and it can be worked out. But we can't do it against a background of them saying, 'we won't talk about it.'"

Woodcock appeared on national television (NBC's Meet the Press). Negotiators have until 11:59 p.m., Sept. 14, to work out details of a new contract to replace an expiring three-year pact. If Chrysler is shut by a strike, its major competitors — General Motors and Ford — would be allowed to continue building new cars while a pattern-setting contract is worked out. The last national UAW strike against Chrysler was in 1950 when the nation's third largest automaker was shut for 104 days. Among Woodcock's suggestions to make voluntary overtime work was one for a "reserve labor pool" of retirees who, he said, would be glad to work one day a week. The increasing trend towards small cars also could mean some overtime work for men who build the large cars which won't be in as strong demand next year, Woodcock said. He suggested that in communities where there are big-car plants and small-car plants, workers be allowed to choose overtime work where it's needed, most likely at the small-car plants.

Grand jury due today anti-Agnew info in brief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal grand jury investigating corruption in Maryland politics since last January will hear evidence against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew this week; Newsweek magazine reports. It attributed the information to aides to the vice president. Newsweek, in this week's edition, said that despite Justice Department denials that Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has made a decision, White House "insiders suspect Richardson has made up his mind and has already passed the word to the President and the vice president." Nixon and Agnew met for two hours Saturday at the White House before leaving on Labor Day vacations. Spokesmen for both men gave no details of what was said. Agnew was vacationing today in South Point, Md., an Eastern Shore town, visiting long-time friend Harry Dundore. The Washington Post reported Sunday that former Agnew aides Jerome Wolff and Lester Matz have told prosecutors, in return for limited immunity, they regularly and routinely gave Agnew money in return for choice state contracts. In Maryland, architectural and engineering contracts are not subject to competitive bidding. U.S. Attorney George Beall has said "the Agnew phase" of the probe would begin after Labor Day. Richardson said, however, he would make the final determination whether any evidence is to be presented. The Post said sources familiar with the case think the grand jury has finished its probe of Baltimore County and that after the Agnew question is disposed of dozens of other Maryland political figures might be indicted. Beall has said the investigation could continue another eight months. Newsweek also reports that sources are saying Nixon has been back in touch with former Treasury Secretary John Connally, a recent Republican convert and a possible successor to Agnew as the vice president. Connally was reported Sunday to have made plans for a political speech-making tour of eight states beginning next week.

US troops leave Taiwan
TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — As the first step in President Nixon's promise to Communist China to reduce U.S. troops stationed on Taiwan, a contingent of about 3,000 U.S. Air Force transport men have begun leaving Nationalist China. The Nationalist China Defense Ministry said the remainder of the U.S. Air Force transport unit stationed here will be withdrawn "according to plans." In Honolulu, Adm. Noel Gayler, commander in chief of U.S. Pacific military forces, announced Sunday that the 374th Tactical Airlift Wing, about 5,000 men, would be located in U.S. bases from Taiwan over the next several months. A brief announcement by the Taiwanese Defense Ministry Sunday said part of the unit had already left and "withdrawal of the remaining part will continue according to plans."

Bradley leaves hospital
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Gen. of the Army Omar N. Bradley, the nation's only living five-star officer, left UCLA Medical Center Saturday after a three-week stay to combat blood clots on his lungs. Dr. Eliot Corday said Bradley, 80, who underwent surgery to place an umbrella-shaped sleeve on the large lung leading into the heart, had made an "exceptional recovery from a critical illness" but that it will take some months for him to regain his full strength.

French fleet alerted
PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — The French Pacific naval squadron has been put on alert to sail back to the Muroran atoll at a moment's notice for possible new atomic tests, political sources said today. They said French Armed Forces and Atomic Energy Commission experts may detonate two more nuclear warheads on the barren atoll, part of the French-owned Tuamotu Archipelago, 720 miles southeast of here. The two tests may conclude this year's series, sources said. The warships returned only a week ago from the test area where Australian and New Zealand authorities said France exploded five nuclear devices, all of them of small explosive power.

16 murder victims identified
HOUSTON (UPI) — The county medical examiner has now identified 16 of the 27 young men killed in a three-year spree of sexual abuse and torture. The latest victim was identified Saturday as Frank Anthony Aguirre, 18, of Houston who vanished March 24, 1972. His body was one of six recovered along the Texas Gulf Coast. Four bodies were found in an East Texas forest and 17 in a Houston boat shed. Elmer Wayne Henley, 17, and David Owen Brooks, 18, have been indicted on charges resulting from the worst mass murder of the 20th century.

Philippine cardinal dies
MANILA (UPI) — Rufino J. Santos, the Philippines' first Roman Catholic cardinal, died today of a heart attack following a lengthy illness. He was 65. Santos, the archbishop of Manila's San Juan de Dios hospital two months ago to undergo a brain operation. He remained in the hospital and had been reported in serious condition for the past several weeks.

Ferry sinks; 25 drown
TAIPEI (UPI) — Twenty-five girls drowned today when an overloaded ferry boat carrying 775 passengers sprang a leak and sank off Keelung harbor in southern Taiwan, harbor officials said. The officials said all the victims were on their way to work in factories near the harbor.

Della heads for Louisiana
MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical Storm Della built toward expected hurricane strength over the Gulf of Mexico today on a course that would take it to the Louisiana coast. The National Weather Service in New Orleans said that "watches and possibly gale warnings will likely be posted later today for portions of the Northern Gulf coast." Della, with highest winds of 60 miles an hour, was located at 6 a.m. EDT near latitude 25.0 north, longitude 89.0 west or about 340 miles south-southwest of New Orleans. It was moving north-northwest at about 10 m.p.h. "conditions remain favorable for Della to strengthen and it will likely reach hurricane intensity by late today or tonight," the latest advisory warned.

Canadian workers return to railways

OTTAWA (UPI) — Railway workers in Canada's western provinces today defied a back-to-work order decreed by Parliament, but most union members have returned to their jobs. Trains were back in operation everywhere but British Columbia. Nonoperating railway employees — clerks, ticket sellers and others who do not actually run the trains — did not report for work in British Columbia and said they would remain out until at least Tuesday. Most of the 50,000 workers who staged a nine-day national walkout returned to work Sunday in compliance with legislation passed Saturday by Parliament. But in British Columbia, 8,000 union members remained off the job and halted all rail traffic. A union spokesman for the nonoperating workers in Vancouver, B.C., said the employees wanted more time to study the legislation and would not return to work before 12:01 a.m. PDT Tuesday at the earliest. The government bill ordered them back to work at 12:01 a.m. Sunday.

In Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland, an extra run of ferries began to evacuate the thousands of tourists stranded when railway-operated ferry service was shut down. "Gentle Ben," a show business bear, and monkeys from the television show "Dakota" were on the first boats out. The animals were part of a traveling circus stranded at Port Aux Basques, Nfld.

The workers holding out were represented by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers. The union told its 18,000 members to hold local meetings and decide by 6 p.m. (EDT) today if they would obey the legislation. But many of the clerks, express handlers, ticket sellers, truck drivers and janitors, returned to work anyway in the east.

Nader asks resignations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader says President Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew should resign in order to prevent "more paralysis of government." The consumerist and public interest lawyer said Sunday, "The country would really be well served if these two officials would resign." "I think enough has now been admitted or proved to indicate that Watergate was the massive tip of an iceberg that involved burglary and forgeries and sabotaging the election and selling government to corporate and other business contributors in a sort of mutual game of shakedown and extortion and bribery," he said. Nader said he thought Nixon consciously tried to avoid learning details about Watergate and the subsequent effort to cover up administration involvement. "He knew enough not to want to know what was going on and that is a level of unaccountability and irresponsibility that I think should cause a resignation," Nader said. One of the higher priced stores, which raised its prices 6.3 per cent in July, lacked them up again by 1.4 per cent in August. Another more expensive Twin Falls market raised its prices 3.0 per cent in July and 1.4 per cent in August, according to the Times News price survey of 20 items.

TF food prices level after big hike

by BILL LAZARUS
Times News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Following unprecedented increases in July, overall food prices in Twin Falls leveled off last month. A July 30 Times News price survey of five Twin Falls supermarkets showed that food prices soared 4.5 per cent in an 11 day period following the freeze lift in mid July. This month the survey shows that overall prices have remained the same while prices of individual items have fluctuated greatly. Also, the gap between the less expensive and the more expensive stores has widened. The price of potatoes took a sharp 48 per cent drop in line with the beginning of potato season. A 10 pound sack of spuds cost $1.18 on the average at the end of July, and 85 cents on Aug. 20. The price of eggs rose five per cent during the month. Between the July 18 freeze thaw and July 30, egg prices soared 27 per cent to 81 cents per dozen large grade-A eggs. On Aug. 29 large grade-A eggs averaged 85 cents per dozen. Falls Brand Bacon could not be found in Twin Falls stores July 30. The shelves were well stocked with the bacon Aug. 20, but at an average of $1.85 per pound, up 37 per cent from $1.35 per pound at the end of the price freeze in mid July. Most varieties of beef were available in Twin Falls stores, generally at ceiling prices at the beginning of August. Regular ground beef, however, was not on the shelves at three supermarkets. Butchers at the markets reported they had been out of the thin ground beef for two or three weeks. One butcher, who asked not to be named, said his store was not receiving the trimmings with trimmed sides of beef, which hamburger is made out of. Another butcher said his store was losing too much money on regular hamburger to keep it in stock. While grocery prices leveled off in Twin Falls as a whole, they continued to shift in individual supermarkets. One store, which had only upped its prices .8 of one per cent during the latter half of July, caught up this month by raising its prices 3.8 per cent. Two of the lower priced stores modified the July price jump by decreasing prices two and three per cent. One of the higher priced stores, which raised its prices 6.3 per cent in July, lacked them up again by 1.4 per cent in August. Another more expensive Twin Falls market raised its prices 3.0 per cent in July and 1.4 per cent in August, according to the Times News price survey of 20 items.

Convict seized for Denmark fire

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — Police seized a convict on leave from prison Sunday as an arson suspect in a raging fire that flashed a tower of flames through a downtown Copenhagen hotel, trapping dozens of sleeping tourists.

Authorities said 35 persons, including 20 Americans, died in the inferno early Saturday morning and charged that the 10th-Century Hafnia hotel building was unsafe.

"The hotel was a fire trap and we several times warned Danish building authorities about this as well as other hotels of the old-fashioned type here," said Jan Amnitsboell, chief of the Copenhagen fire department.

"They have no fire alarms, no iron doors, no sprinkler-water pumps and not sufficient emergency doors," he said.

Police said the suspect, Bent Willy Nielsen, a 33-year-old convict, was on temporary leave from prison under a program common in Scandinavian countries.

Police said Nielsen was among 88 persons who stayed at the hotel Friday night and was identified by an American couple, who charged that he said, "I'm sorry for this. I started it—it was my fault." Nielsen denied the charges.

A police spokesman said many of the guests were trapped on the upper floors of the building because "the elevator shaft was burning like a candle."

He said an American man tried to save his wife and two children by putting them in a bathtub filled with cold water.

All four were found dead. The man was sprawled across the tub, shielding his huddled family.

The fire was described by authorities as the worst hotel blaze in the city since World War II. Guests who survived described it as a horror story.

"I heard an explosion and then it turned into a nightmare," said one survivor, Dr. Arnauld Huddrant, 45, of Wolverhampton, England.

"The windows in my hotel room shattered and an orange-flame-like fire from a torchburner poured into my room," he said. "I ran for my life through the dwindling and burning corridors and heard people scream among the flames in their rooms."

Insurance gems

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some really creative writing often goes into insurance reports.

A Boston-based insurance company cites some instances in health-related reports from its files. From an orthopedist, for instance: "Patient is responsibly comfortable as long as he is not required to do any work of any kind. Who wouldn't be?" And from a policy holder's claim: "Either Mr. Brown's brakes or brains were defective."

Gourmet horsemeat

PANORAMA CITY, Calif. (UPI) — The meat department at Bob's Market here has been converted into what the owners say is the first gourmet horsemeat shop in Southern California featuring USDA inspected cuts for human consumption.

"We pulled out all the beef and other meats last night," meat manager Bill Winevich said Friday. "We're handling only horsemeat now."

Store owner Marvin Snyder said management bought 40,000 pounds of horsemeat from Texas as a starter.

Spencer steak goes for $1.89 a pound, T-bones at $1.29 and hamburger at 69 cents.

Winevich said he went to Detroit to observe a similar operation there before opening the specialty shop here and said he thinks customers will go for it, "piecewise and tastewise."

All Goodman, partner in the meat concession at the market, said "Europe it's (horsemeat) a delicacy. In Paris there are 1,500 horsemeat butcher shops."

Shoppers were invited to taste samples of horsemeat cooked filet mignon and the reaction was mostly favorable.

But one woman customer said she "just couldn't eat the horsemeat. I love horses," she said.

2 Ireland fishermen wounded

BELFAST (UPI)—Machine gunners dressed in battle dress opened fire in the Irish Republic Sunday on a car carrying two Northern Ireland men who had crossed the border on a fishing trip. Both were wounded.

In Belfast, death notices in the Roman Catholic-owned Irish News said a 10-year-old girl, identified by the paper as a staff officer of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), died Saturday of injuries suffered more than a week ago in an explosion while manufacturing homemade bombs. The second female to die in the blast.

Police in the Irish Republic said the two Northern Ireland men were returning from a fishing trip when they were fired on by a number of machine gunners in uniform near Newport. They were taken to a hospital in Castlobar, but spokesmen said they were not seriously hurt.

Police sources said the shooting may have involved rival IRA factions.

The account in today's Irish News said Ann Peltrew was a staff officer in the militant Provisional wing of the IRA's women's section. She was the 870th person to die in the four years of violence among Northern Ireland's minority Roman Catholics, majority Protestants and security forces.

Francis Hall, 29, also named as a Provisional female IRA member, was killed in the same explosion. Troops found fire bomb-making equipment among the wreckage.

The British Army reported at least five unexplained shooting incidents in Catholic areas of Belfast in the past 24 hours, prompting fears of a growing open shooting war between rival IRA factions.

Army sources said soldiers shot and critically wounded a top Provisional IRA leader, James Bryson, in Belfast Sunday and arrested another Provisional identified as Francis McKiernan.

The source said the soldiers were led to McKiernan by a quart from the moderate Official wing of the IRA in what could be the start of a new feud between the two factions.

Area rodeos cause TF Humane Society no grief

TWIN FALLS—Humane Society officials in Twin Falls have no complaints about area rodeos and the treatment of rodeo livestock.

Bobbi Glasmann, president of the Twin Falls County Humane Society, said society members attend local rodeos and are in touch with the shows but unless there is a complaint they do not give rodeo stock or procedures any close scrutiny.

The Humane Society of the United States claimed last week after a two-year study of rodeos it had "documented visible injuries to a significant number of animals."

"It advised local society members to protest if a rodeo is scheduled for their community and to use the report as documentation to public officials of the cruelties of rodeo."

"I can not speak for other society groups around the state or for other members of our organization, but we have never found anything wrong with the way our rodeo people care for or handle their livestock," she said.

As president of the newly federated Idaho Humane Society, Mrs. Glasmann said she is aware of a report on the two-year investigation by the Humane Society of the United States of rodeo performances and operations in three other western states.

"There were no rodeos in this area in the study and I do not know what procedures they used in making the studies, but we are not taking any stand against rodeo producers with shows in this area," Mrs. Glasmann said.

Mrs. Glasmann has announced the first official meeting of the new Idaho Federation of Humane Societies in Twin Falls Sept. 29. She said at that meeting rodeos will be one of several subjects the Humane Society officers of Idaho will discuss. The discussion will probably cover the national survey and report, she said.

The Humane Society of the United States' study team reported investigation indicated inhumane treatment to animals used in calf roping and where devices were used to make the "animals react violently. The report indicated the calf being roped is traveling about 27 miles per hour when jerked suddenly in the ground by a rope around the neck. It said this can seriously injure the animal's neck causing hemorrhaging, ruptured blood vessels in the trachea and acute inflammation of the larynx, according to tests of animals following roping.

The national organization urged Humane Societies to protest rodeos where calf roping events are included and where bucking horses, bulls and steers are ridden with bucking straps around the animals' flanks.

Prospective teachers should contact the school systems in

The "Bulletin of Information for Candidates" contains a list of test centers, information about the examinations, as well as a registration form. Copies may be obtained from college placement officers, school personnel departments, or directly from NTE, Box 011, Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey 08540.

Gov. Dan Evans In Washington

(c) Chicago Daily News WASHINGTON — Gov. Dan Evans of Washington (capital Olympia) came before the National Press Club the other day with some blunt judgments about the imperial habits of the President and the breathless nature of the national press corps.

COMMENT

Super Secretary

Portland Oregonian The President's nomination of Dr. Henry Kissinger as secretary of state raises the question: Can a super-star in the league of Brezhnev, Chou, Heath, Brandt, Tanaka and Pompidou also run the sprawling Foreign Service locker room?

The answer must be that if anyone can overcome the State Department inertia and bureaucracy that have frustrated every president since Herbert Hoover, then the 50-year-old bachelor is the best bet to succeed.

But the virtuosity of one who stars at the summit as a plenipotentiary extraordinaire may not be enough to replace the warm trust left among the smaller nations of the world by William P. Rogers, an affable non-conceptual thinker who has been quietly minding the store under difficult circumstances.

Kissinger will simply not have the time to travel as a "world busybody" and do the job that Secretary Rogers so ably performed.

Dulles, of course, neglected the necessary low-key operations of the State Department, simply because he was always traveling.

organizational drive that it has so long lacked.

In his press conference this week, the President spoke of his efforts to reduce the bureaucracy. Kissinger has built a 300-man staff at the White House level, and this must be reduced or merged into the department's structure.

There is also going to be the problem of Congress and the issue of "executive privilege." Kissinger liked to privately dazzle individual members of the Congress. As a secretary of state, he will be required to make formal appearances and answer questions.

As secretary of state, Kissinger will have both the name and the game. He is no longer a "Dr. Strangelove," but is in a position to stand with a Metetrnich or a Bismarck in the flow of world history.

Dulles, of course, neglected the necessary low-key operations of the State Department, simply because he was always traveling.

JAMES RESTON

Pres. Nixon: Two Things In Mind

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — President Nixon seems to have two things in mind these days: to restore confidence in himself, and, for this purpose, to get Watergate behind him as fast as possible.

Why, for example, does he appeal to the Nation one day to leave Watergate to the courts, and then a few days later, announce that he "will not comply" with the orders of the court?

Why does he ask us to turn away from the contention of Watergate to "the urgent business of the nation," and then denounce the Ervin committee and defy the courts in a way that is bound to prolong the controversy?

You don't have to be a Philadelphia Lawyer to feel that there is something very odd about all this, for it perpetuates precisely the doubts the President presumably is trying to put to rest, and ramifies precisely those questions about his instinct and judgment, which are more troubling than anything else in the whole Watergate tragedy.

Throughout his career, Nixon had proclaimed himself to be a pragmatist. He has never allowed himself to get trapped by his past statements or ideology, and this flexibility has often served him well.

But in the Watergate affair, he has been shifting ground almost too fast, involving great principles one day and defying them the next.

These tactical shifts may work in winning elections or even in dealing with the Russians or the Chinese, but they are less effective on things like the Watergate. Nixon's problem is that he tends to balance the book every day, to say the expedient thing for the moment, without any connecting rods or any coherent philosophy between one controversy and the next.

And while this often works in the savage jungle of world politics, it is not so effective in America, which is still more puritanical and less cynical than many people believe.

"The time has come," Nixon said on Aug. 15, "to turn Watergate over to the courts, where the questions of guilt and innocence belong. The time has come for the rest of us to get on with the urgent business of the nation."

Maybe most people in this country would agree with the President on this, but when the courts take over and ask him to compromise on the Watergate tapes, and he says he "will not comply with this order," obviously, he has a problem.

He can appeal to the American people to believe in their political system, and hard as it is these days, they will try to believe him, but he can not switch a few days later without losing the confidence he is trying to restore.

"Some people," Nixon said on April 30, "quite properly appalled by the abuses that occurred, will say that Watergate demonstrates the bankruptcy of the American political system. I believe," he added, "precisely the opposite is true."

Watergate represents a series of illegal acts and bad judgments by a number of individuals. It was the system that brought the facts to light and that will bring those guilty to justice — a system that in this case has included a determined grand jury, honest prosecutors, courageous judge, John Sirica, and a vigorous free press.

But now the President is defying that "Courageous Judge, John Sirica," resenting those others including Archibald Cox, and even his own independent attorney general, Elliot Richardson, and vilifying what he called the "vigorous free press."

The guess here is that most people are more concerned with the moralities of the question than with the legalities, that they probably want things now to be left to the courts, but that they want the courts to have the evidence on who is lying and who is telling the truth. The President will not be able to get Watergate behind him. He can defy the courts and Congress, but this will not restore confidence or stop the hearings of the grand jury.

Worry About Oleo For Frying?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It has been brought to my attention that if oleo margarine is used for frying eggs, potatoes, etc., I am defeating the idea of keeping down the cholesterol. My husband is on a low-cholesterol diet.

The point is made that heat increases the cholesterol in margarine. Would other things, including vegetable oils, be preferable in such a case? — E. M.

You're cutting the cake a bit too thin. That is to say, heat can alter the fat content of oils somewhat, but that usually involves prolonged heating and higher temperatures than you are using.

In any event, there are other methods of frying. You can substitute a vegetable oil if it makes you feel safer — although I doubt there will be any substantial real difference.

Or you can fry in a pan lined with Teflon, in which case you don't need margarine, oil, or anything else — and you are thereby reducing the number of calories in the food.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I enclosed 35 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. Please send me information on how to control arthritis.

Weakness may be something that comes along at the age when arthritis is most bothersome, but there can be a relationship to the arthritis, too. If it is the rheumatoid type, that is a disease that attacks the whole system. Pain is extenuating. And when the arthritis limits activity, then sheer lack of activity lets muscles lose tone.

As to muscle-aching — the arthritis can cause this indirectly. Distortion of the shape of bones in the joints can put more strain on muscles. Also pain can make you remain tense and in time this tenses, tires the muscles and makes them ache. Arthritis just is not a simple ailment.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: We boil our drinking water but wonder if we are destroying the mineral content of the water that is needed to maintain good health. Many of our friends do likewise, but they cannot answer the question I ask here.

Belling isn't going to destroy any minerals, and they won't evaporate. Some of the water will, of course. So the mineral content will, if anything, become somewhat more concentrated from the boiling.

Why do people lose strength? Why do muscles in the knees ache as I tread to get up and walk? I use crutches and my arms are so weak. — Mrs. W. W.

ask what needs to be done to make it safe.

Incidentally, it is pretty questionable whether water provides any very significant amount of usable minerals. Our foods, particularly fruits and vegetables, but also meat and other items, provide the minerals we need.

The "cold all year round" is likely the most important clue because what you probably have is not a cold but an allergy to something. Or to a variety of things. Allergy, in turn, is one of several frequent causes of sinus trouble.

In your case, I would most certainly consult an allergist for tests to find out the things to which you are allergic. (It's a pretty hopeless task trying to find out by yourself, but a history as well as allergy tests may well identify some things that are farthest from your suspicions.)

Storm After Storm

Christian Science Monitor Just how long can Salvador Allende Gossens, the Marxist who has promised to nudge Chile into the road to socialism, hold on to power? So far, his ability to weather storm after storm has surprised most observers and confounded many who thought surely that he would be brought down with each successive crisis.

A long-time foreign observer in Santiago, the Chilean capital, recently told a Monitor correspondent that "Chile has undergone tensions and stresses in the past two years that would have destroyed any other country in Latin America."

The pressures on Dr. Allende are still growing. He has less and less room for maneuver as an increasingly vocal opposition becomes more effective in slowing his socialist program. His own supporters, largely drawn from the Communist and Socialist parties, are not happy about some of his overtures of conciliation to the opposition — such as the frustrated dialogue in late July with Christian Democratic Party president Patricio Aylwin Azocar.

For his part, Dr. Allende has taken sharp issue with those who practice terrorism whether of the right or the left, a criticism that his leftist supporters have not taken too kindly.

As his room for maneuver has dwindled during the 33 months in office, so has his ability to call on the military for support. The early August effort to bring the heads of the Army, Navy, and Air Force into the Cabinet was washed up on the shore of failure two weeks later — and military leaders have indicated they plan no return to the government, not wishing to be tainted with the steadily worsening picture.

Talk of civil war is heard with increasing frequency. Dr. Allende on several recent television appearances has, with tears in his eyes, called on Chileans to reject this course. Yet, more and more the possibility of civil war looms on the horizon. Chileans with a sense of history feel that the current crisis is the worst the country has ever faced — comparable only to the events that led to the civil war of 1891.

At this moment, one of the few signs of a possible way out for Dr. Allende is the continuing willingness on the part of the Christian Democrats, the nation's largest single party, to resume the ruptured dialogue with D. Allende to see if some common ground between the two can be found.

MCP Award

IDAHOO STATE JOURNAL A couple of feminist readers have awarded us the MCP, (male chauvinist pig) award as a result of a recent advertisement which featured choosecake.

An illustration of a scantily-clad young woman, including the panted-up head of someone else, graced the ad for automobile tires. "See the stripper," was the message referring to the type of tire featured in the ad. It was the sort of idea which has been so widely employed in calendars and other forms as to become cliché.

Oldest man, 168, dies in Russia

MOSCOW (UPI) — Shirali Mislumov's formula for a long and happy life was an easy one — a slow pace, clear air, natural food, a kind heart and work.

The Soviets say the formula was a good one — it kept him going 168 years, making him the world's oldest person.

Sunday, the official Tass news agency announced Mislumov's death. In contrast to the thousands of words written about him in his lifetime, Mislumov's death was reported in a two-sentence dispatch, it said.

"The planet's oldest person, Azerbaijan peasant Shirali Mislumov, 168, died today after a serious illness. He died in his bed in the mountain village of Barzavu (Caucasus) where he has lived all his life."

Mislumov suffered pneumonia last winter, the first serious illness of his life, according to Soviet newspapers.

In recent years, each birthday was an opportunity for the craggy-faced, bearded peasant to tell Soviet reporters his philosophy of life.

"I was never in a hurry in my life," he said in 1971. "And I'm in no hurry to die now."

He tried smoking once — 150 years ago — but got sick after three or four puffs. The only time he tried whiskey, he said, was in 1831. "I thought I was burning inside," he said.

His long life formula was delivered in the poetic language of his native Azerbaijani mountains.

"There are two sources of long life," he said. "One is a gift of nature, and it is the pure air and clean water of the mountains, the fruit of the earth, peace, rest, the soft and warm climate of the highlands."

"The second source is people. He lives long who enjoys life and who bears no jealousy of others, whose heart harbors no malice or anger, who sings a lot and cries a little, who rises and retires with the sun, who likes to work and who knows how to rest."

Mislumov, who had no birth records to back his age claim, is survived by his 107-year-old third wife, Hartun, and 210 other family members.

Indiana prisoners take 3 hostages

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. (UPI) — Inmates in the Indiana State Prison seized control of three of the prison's five cellblocks Sunday, took three prison guards hostage, and issued a list of "10 to 14 demands."

Inmate officials bargained for several hours with the prisoners, but cut off negotiations about midnight and vowed not to "resume talks" until the guards were released.

Early today, prison officials said neither of the guards had been harmed.

The three cellblocks house about 900 of the maximum security institution's 1,800 inmates. Prison officials were not sure how many of the prisoners were involved. Each cellblock issued demands, prison officials said.

Just a week ago one inmate at the prison was killed while apparently making bombs in his cell. The warden said that prisoner and others were planning to break out of the institution.

The three hostages, guards Donald Schultz, Arthur Jacques, and Joseph Kajawski, were held in separate cells.

"We don't know how many prisoners are participating and there have been no threats made on the lives of the officers," said Robert Heyne, Indiana commissioner of corrections.

Heyne said the demands included better food and improved discipline procedures.

Two state police cars patrolled outside the walls and state troopers, including the riot platoon, were placed on standby basis.

All communication with the inmates was ended shortly after midnight Sunday. However, the prisoners shouted messages that could be heard outside prison walls by about 100 spectators and law men.

"We need help from the outside," the prisoners shouted. "They're lying to us! They won't let us see the news media, the senator or no one."

The reference to the senator was Indiana State Sen. Rudolph Clay D. Gentry, a member of the legislature's Task Force on Corrections. Clay charged that the uprising resulted from "brutal" conditions at the prison. He was not allowed to enter the prison.

Guru treated for ulcer

DENVER (UPI) — Guru Maharaj was released Sunday from a hospital where he was treated for an ulcer. A spokesman said that because the spiritual leader of 6 million devotees "hasn't led the life of a normal 15-year-old," he is postponing his current tour.

The guru is convalescing in the $80,000 home purchased by his religious followers for the guru to stay in during his world travels.

The guru was admitted to St. Luke's Hospital Thursday complaining of stomach pains during his third world peace tour.

William White, public relations officer for the local branch of the Divine Light Mission, said the tour was being curtailed for about a month.

"He has been serving in an executive capacity for his devotees for seven years, running the mission and not getting much exercise," White said. "He hasn't led the life of a normal 15-year-old."

Warning given

ALGIERS (UPI) — South Vietnam warned a nonaligned nations' conference today against admitting the Viet Cong to its sessions amid reports from Peking that Prince Nordem Sihanouk was en route to the gathering.

The conference, in its second day, is formulating new political and economic cooperation platforms to meet what their countries consider challenges posed by East-West detente.

Algerian Foreign Minister Abdolaziz Bouteflika, as host and chairman of the three-day meeting, outlined the challenges in a keynote address at the inaugural session Sunday.

In Saigon, President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam today warned the conference if it admits the Viet Cong, its other members may face similar demands in the future from their own dissident rebels.

"The recognition of the (Viet Cong) will cause problems to all members of the conference," Thieu said. "All would-be fronts or provisional governments will seek recognition too."

The New China News Agency, monitored in Hong Kong, said Sihanouk, the deposed Cambodian leader who is in exile in Peking, left the Chinese capital by plane today to attend the conference.

Chinese Premier Chou En-lai headed the delegation of ranking Peking officials seeing Sihanouk off at the airport, the agency said.

Sihanouk will head a delegation of his exile government to the conference, NCNA said.

The ministers today were to work on a 10-item agenda drafted last week by a 17-nation preparatory committee.

Bouteflika Sunday called on the ministers to inject new life in the nonaligned movement in order to help make detente universal rather than an East-West affair with "limited effects" on the world.

He and outgoing chairman Foreign Minister K. Mudenda of Zambia singled out the Middle East, Indochina and colonialism and racism in the southern half of Africa as the principal obstructions to worldwide detente.

Capture ends two-day search

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Herman Bell, a member of the Black Liberation Army wanted for the killings of two policemen in New York City and the robbery of a Bank of America in San Francisco, was arrested Sunday. His capture ended a two-year search for one of the nation's 10 most wanted fugitives.

Bell, 25, was not armed when he was arrested in his car at an intersection, but a search of his home uncovered an arsenal of weapons. Police said he was "meek" when arrested.

Bell's common-law wife was also arrested and charged with harboring a fugitive and possessing stolen property.

Bell was arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Morey Sear and held on $500,000 bond. Sear scheduled a second hearing Sept. 19 to determine whether Bell should be returned to New York on a federal warrant of flight to avoid prosecution.

At the end of the hearing, Sear asked Bell if he had anything to say.

"Yes, but what's the use?" replied Bell, who wore his hair in African tribal braids.

"What does that mean?" Sear asked.

"History has said it for me," Bell said. "The history of black people."

Bell is charged with the Feb. 20, 1971, robbery of a branch of the Bank of America in San Francisco in which between $12,000 and $15,000 was taken and a customer was slightly wounded.

He is also charged with the 1971 murders of New York City police officers Joseph Flagen-tini and Waverly Jones outside a Harlem housing complex, plus a number of other bank holdups.

Police said Bell is a former Black Panther who is currently "a high echelon officer" in the Black Liberation Army.

Besides weapons, police found $5,000 in cash in Bell's home.

Sear told Bell he was going to confiscate all the money found.

"You've just testified you haven't worked in more than six months," Sear said. "How did you accumulate all this cash?"

"I save my money," Bell answered.

Deaths mount

By United Press International

The death toll for the final summer holiday of the year, the Labor Day weekend, was well on the way to 400 today with only a few hours left in the 78-hour period.

The National Safety Council had estimated that between 650 and 680 persons would be killed in roadway accidents during the period that extended from 6 p.m. local time Friday through midnight Monday.

The National Safety Council urged particular caution by motorists during the final hours of the holiday period today. The use of seatbelts by every occupant of autos was also urged.

A United Press International count at 7 a.m. EDT showed at least 340 persons had been killed in traffic since the weekend began.

A breakdown:

- Traffic 348
- Drowning 43
- Miscellaneous 32
- Total 423

New York recorded 28 traffic fatalities—the highest in the nation.

Cholera epidemic jumps Italy's 'boot'

NAPLES, Italy (UPI)—Southern Italy's cholera epidemic spread across the "boot" to the Adriatic Sea today with three reported deaths, the first outside Naples, and one cholera case was reported in West Germany.

In Naples, where the epidemic broke out last week, officials reported another death from the disease, bringing the total in Naples to 10.

Officials have blamed the epidemic on infected seafood smuggled from North Africa.

A death from cholera also was reported in Tivoli, an ancient city just outside Rome. Officials said an 83-year-old man died of the disease after eating raw sea snails. Officials said it was an isolated case and not cause for alarm in Rome.

Since the epidemic began last week, a total of 13 deaths have been blamed on cholera.

Officials have confirmed nearly 400 cases of the disease in Naples and Bari.

In Offenbach, West Germany, doctors said today an Italian migrant worker recently returned from a trip to Naples was admitted to the hospital Sunday with a case of "light" cholera, the first case reported in West Germany since the outbreak of Italy's epidemic.

The city sanitary department immediately disinfecting the man's apartment and asked anyone recently in contact with the man to report for anti-cholera shots.

A World Health Organization official in Geneva said today Italy blamed the cholera epidemic on infected mussels smuggled from North Africa. In an official message to WHO headquarters, the Italian government said "mussels were abusively introduced from North Africa."

A WHO spokesman said it is apparent that mussels were brought over illegally and placed on the market without going through the necessary medical controls.

"A couple of trawlers operating from the very south would be enough to bring over plenty of mussels," they said.

The spokesman said the world public health service believes "the epidemic is now either under control or very soon will be."

But at least nine countries have instituted requirements that travelers from Italy be vaccinated against cholera. Cholera is a disease of the intestines usually spread by organisms carried by infected food—in this case, fish. The symptoms of the disease include diarrhea, vomiting and dehydration.

Japan to axe trade terms

TOKYO (UPI)—A Japanese trade official indicated today that Japan would "align" itself with European countries in opposing liberalization of trade terms in agriculture at international trade talks beginning next week.

The United States has pressed for a liberalization of agricultural trade restrictions as one means of correcting the American imbalance of payments.

"The American government initiates the agricultural policy of the European Economic Community is too restricted," said Naohiro Amaya, director general of the Internal Trade and Industry Ministry's economic affairs department.

"They are also preaching that Japan should liberalize agricultural trade. We partly accepted that argument and relied heavily on imports of American soybeans."

"Now our people are paying very high prices for soy (soybean cake). This is quite unsatisfactory."

Amaya clearly indicated that the Nixon administration's actions this summer in restricting grain and soybean exports would be used by Japan and the Europeans as ammunition against U.S. proposals for more open markets for farm products.

Amaya's news conference came only nine days before the meeting of cabinet ministers of the 82 General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs (GATT) countries in Tokyo to open a two-year round of negotiations for the overhaul of the rules of international trade.

His comments indicated that Japan would align itself with France and other European countries in fighting American proposals for liberalization of international trade in farm products.

Amaya said small Japanese family farmers, whose plots average about two acres and who are a mainstay of the ruling Liberal Democratic party, would be protected against competition by large American agribusinesses.

He also called on the United States to adhere to international rules in making decisions to limit exports of farm products, rather than making unilateral decisions.

He attacked the American decision to prohibit exports of soybeans taken last summer in the middle of a domestic shortage.

Amaya said future commodity shortages probably would "inhibit free trade," but pointed out that the present

GATT Article 11 provides for international agreement on export restrictions, "and this idea now should be refined."

"We are anxious to reach an agreement in which export restrictions will be put under international controls," Amaya said.

'Copters bomb chemical ship

PHOENIX, Ia. (UPI)—Coast Guard helicopters made more than 200 bombing raids on a burning ship in the Mississippi River today, trying to smother a chemical so dangerous its fumes can eat away human flesh.

"So far we've been able to control the fire on the forward half of the ship and this is where it's really important to us because that is the part that contains eight tons of tetraethyl lead," Coast Guard spokesman Dave Cipra said.

"Very little of the fire is actually out, but one half is under control."

Pive tons of fire extinguishing powder were dropped on the ship grounded in a mud bank 50 miles downriver from New Orleans.

The river was closed to all traffic between New Orleans and the Gulf of Mexico and 500 area residents were evacuated.

The stern section of the ship, which had the first fire on board, we've had no results on that at all," Cipra said. "We've been repeatedly bombarding it with chemicals but have had no success at all."

"This is the section that contains calcium carbide and this is the chemical that releases acetylene gas when it's in contact with water."

"Acetylene gas is an explosive and that's what has been a problem to us the whole time because we can't fight it in a conventional manner."

The fire extinguisher was dropped by 30-pound pods from a helicopter driven by Capt. Robert Russell, the commanding officer of the Coast Guard Air Station at New Orleans, as he hovered a few feet above the burning ship.

"The pods, we hope, will fall into the hold and once reaching the heat and fire, will melt or burst into the fire and put it out," Cipra said.

The ship, called the Key Largo, was carrying tetraethyl lead to Miami. It was run aground 50 miles south of New Orleans.

"This chemical is definitely tetraethyl lead, a highly toxic, extremely toxic, unbelievably toxic," Cipra said. "The fumes can destroy human tissue."

The fire broke out early in the day but at 2:25 p.m. the crew reported it was under control. At 3 p.m., Capt. Diego Ruiz, the ship's master, gave orders to run it aground and abandon ship.

"I kept on the ship, but the smoke made me feel very bad," Ruiz said. "I started coughing. I got off the ship around 5 p.m."

He said he hoped the ship could be saved but he didn't know for sure.

"I could cry," he said. "It is a real disappointment. You can't understand."

Capt. Stanley Huber, a river pilot, was at the wheel of the ship when it caught fire.

"I don't know too much about it," he said. "They told me the ship was on fire. We put it on the beach, shoved it up in the mud. I don't know how it started. The stevedores could have left a cigar butt or something that was burning for a long time, anybody of anything could have done it. The fire did start in the hold. It's burning pretty bad but in my opinion she can be saved."

Area residents living on the east bank of the river were evacuated and housed at the Pointe-a-la-Hache civic center where they were given rolls and food sandwiches, coffee and cookies.

Meany-Nixon 'coziness' ends under price controls

By United Press International

AFI-CIO President George Meany, whose 1972 coziness with President Nixon has melted under the rising prices of Phases III and IV, told the chief executive Sunday he would not be welcome at the labor organization's annual convention next month in Miami Beach.

"He is not entitled to an invitation because of his conduct at our last convention when he was very discourteous to us," Meany said.

He also said he would oppose Vice President Spiro T. Agnew if he runs for President in 1974.

Meany spoke on ABC's "Issues and Answers" on the eve of America's 80th Labor Day.

The presidents of the large autoworkers and steelworkers unions joined Meany in an attack on Nixon's economic policies, while Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan said "great strides" have been made toward improving the economy since last Labor Day.

Brennan said, "There are still problems facing our economy, but we have made great strides in our efforts to restore the economy to good health."

He said a record high 85 million persons have jobs, an increase of nearly 3 million over the past year and the largest gain in almost 18 years. Moreover, he said, unemployment is now at 4.7 per cent, the lowest rate in more than three years.

United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, who is in Detroit today for contract negotiations with the Chrysler Corp., said:

"The reality of this Labor Day is the lack of responsive answers—answers to the needs and the day-to-day problems of the American people. The 'business of the people' has fallen on hard times while the business of the great corporations prospers as never before."

Woodcock spoke on NBC's "Meet the Press."

He said a strike by 127,500 U.S. and Canadian autoworkers Sept. 15 could be avoided if Chrysler would display "a little ingenuity and imagination" on the key issue of voluntary overtime.

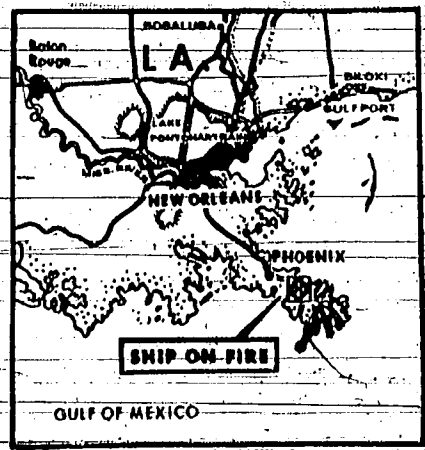

United Steel Workers President I.W. Abel said that even worse than the high cost of living for Americans whose wage increases are limited, is that "there is no end in sight. The Nixon administration has offered no workable program."

In his statement, Abel added that American labor is outraged over the concentration of arrogance in high places symbolized by the Watergate.

Meany said Agnew's attitude toward "the little people of this country has been rather overbearing and I would be very unhappy if he became President."

The craft leader of organized labor said "agents of the White House" were responsible for last fall's bronchial attack at the AFL-CIO convention when Nixon accused Meany of being disrespectful.

Strikes bring Chile to knees

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—Commercial pilots joined truck drivers today in an anti-government strike that brought Marxist President Salvador Allende's country close to a total transportation shutdown.

Except for the state-owned airline Lan-Chile, the country's biggest, all internal lines were grounded for 72 hours in a sympathy strike called by the pilots.

The nation's 45,000 truckers, now in the 40th day of their walkout seeking higher wages, have also been joined in sympathy strikes by many taxi and bus drivers and some railroad workers.

Adding to the Allende government's woes was a continuing walkout by thousands of physicians, dentists and other medical workers who have been protesting the policies of the Health Ministry.

Allende's problems over the past month have included two cabinet crises, resignation of his armed forces chiefs, the crippling strikes and an opposition conspiracy against in Parliament.

He cancelled a trip Sunday to Algeria for the nonaligned nations' conference to devote himself to the country's internal problems. He wrote Algerian President Houari Boumedienne that "the difficulties we must confront at this time obligate me to concentrate all of my activity and all of my forces in this battle."

The transport conflict has provoked widespread shortages in basic products and Sunday, a related tragedy struck. Two women died and 17 other persons were injured when a bus, hit by a truck, crashed into a long line of housewives waiting in front of a bread store to buy food in short supply.

A pro-Allende group, the Committee to Control the Central Labor Federation (CUT), Chile's largest labor organization, planned a giant rally today.

The CUT said Chile was undergoing "grave circumstances," and declared: "Not only is the popular government in danger but also the conquests made by the people and the workers after many years of

Talking of Sihanouk

CAMBODIAN government soldiers carry a wounded buddy toward safety and first aid along Highway 5. The government troops broke through a roadblock on the highway, allowing trucks to deliver food and supplies to Phnom Penh for the first time in six days. (UPI)

(c) Chicago Daily News
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia
 They are doing a lot of talking about deposed Prince Norodom Sihanouk here these days. They aren't saying nice things, either.
 After generally ignoring him, letting him rant, rave, attack them verbally, and even make sense sometimes, the men who deposed the Prince in 1970 have gone on the offensive.
 In a campaign which began this week, members of the ruling high political council are attempting "to explode the myth of Sihanouk."
 The fear, apparently, is that too many people, both in Cambodia and out, are taking the Peking-based prince seriously, starting to believe he can be Cambodia's prince of peace.
 The hope seems to be that with him deflated, with his image deflated, serious negotiations with the Cambodian rebels and their

North Vietnamese and Chinese backers can begin and the country can finally join the Indochina cease-fire club.
 There is the distinct odor of American encouragement behind the campaign, if not out and put planning. Whether it will work is speculation.
 In four separate attacks on Sihanouk this week, two on local radio and two for the herd of newsmen gathered here, the government has sought to:
 — Deligitimize the legality of Sihanouk's Peking-based government in exile.
 — Destroy the impression he kept Cambodia neutral and out of the Indochina fighting.
 — Wipe out the claim he was illegally deposed and blame him for the destruction of the country's monarchy.
 — Dispute the impression he heads the current insurgency and the rebels are fighting to reinstate him.
 In an attempt to hurt Sihanouk's image at home, where peasants and workers more and more equate his return with the return of peace, President Lon Nol went on radio twice to denounce the former chief of state.

 With an eye toward world opinion and perhaps the Sept. 5 meeting of non-aligned nations in Algeria where Sihanouk's exile government is likely to be seated, Lon Nol met with newsmen for the first time in over six months to read a five-page denunciation of the prince.
 The president called Sihanouk "a docile screen that our aggressors of the Indochinese Communist front and their accomplices use at their free will to camouflage their abominable crimes of genocide."
 Equally if not more important was this week's "Dear Cousin" letter released by Sisowath Sirik Matak, a member of the four-man ruling council.

Himself a prince, and nephew of Sihanouk's father, the late king, Matak, who has the strong backing of the United States, Matak placed the blame for the war on Sihanouk.
 In a letter designed to bait the prince, known for his pride, stubbornness and thin skin, Matak wrote:
 "If you have ever been moved to make a calm self-appraisal, you will have found that you in particular are at the origin of this war of aggression which is causing your country so much bereavement and destruction."
 Like Lon Nol, Matak accused Sihanouk of allowing the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to gain a foothold in Cambodia and to use its territory to attack South Vietnam while "misleading international opinion by creating the illusion of Cambodian neutrality."

Ship leaves page one glory

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)
 The USS Ticonderoga, CVS-14, ship of the line in three wars, rescuer of astronauts and 30-year-old navy carrier, exits Tuesday from front-page glory to the oblivion of a tidal mud flat.
 Ticonderoga's soft-spoken Hoosier skipper Capt. Norman K. Green went through the bittersweet assignment of shepherding Tico through her moments of glory and then turned over the chores of piloting her at the end of a line to either be suffocated in "mudballs" or digested into scrap.
 Capt. George W. Bruce took over command Aug. 15 and has managed the deactivation process which ends Tuesday when the ship is to be decommissioned. He served as executive officer before taking command.
 Unlike so many ships of the line whose "glorious" end came in battle with the thunder and crash of gunfire and the cries of the dying, Tico's last proud mission was to flood, nurture and return safely to San Diego the Skylab crewmen who splashed down in the Pacific off Baja California two months ago.

 She returned to San Diego for her last spasm of glory. There were brass bands, cheering crowds and the focusing of television cameras. But within hours after the astronauts had gone, some 50 technicians stethoscoped Tico's vitals and probed her innards to decide whether she was worth preserving or fit only for junk. The final decision from Washington was expected soon.
 Tico has already had one replay from the cutting torch. She was mothballed in 1947 when many of her sister ships were doomed. Then in 1952 she maitener comenack with a neck lifting and some glandular surgery that restored her to the fleet as ship of the line.

 Ticonderoga's thousands of alumni are spread throughout every state in the union. She has been the home-away from home for homesick, seafarers, farm kids from the Dakotas, for wide-eyed blacks from New York's ghettos and gold-encrusted admirals who ruled her from high in her superstructure.
 She has been the nursery for many a damp-eared ensign who began his long climb to four stripes and an admiral's stars in her cavernous hull. And many a tail hooker made his first carrier landing with heart in throat and sweating palms on her decks. To many a navy aviator nursing home a shot-up fighter off Japan or Vietnam, her broad bottom was the most beautiful piece of femininity ever to grace any ocean.

 For seemingly endless weeks during her career, some 3,500 sweating, bone-tired bodies have been jammed together in her 912-foot hull working 18-hour days fighting for their ship.
 As a fighter, Ticonderoga dealt out far more than she received, but she took her lumps. In January of 1945 in the Philippines when two Kamikazis left her in flames. The incident left 141 of her crew dead or missing and another 142 wounded, including her captain. After a two month convalescence, Tico returned to the wars for America's final attacks on a Japanese main island.
 "Old Shake, Rattle and Roll" has more than a million miles on all of the seven seas since her birth in the Newport News, Va., shipyard 30 years ago.

U.S. Appeals liberal judges get tapes case

(c) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — Liberal Democrats, who are generally hostile to broad claims of executive power, dominate the U. S. Court of Appeals here which is scheduled to receive President Nixon's appeal in the Watergate tapes case next week.
 In deciding to appeal to this court — rather than to the Supreme Court directly — Nixon's lawyers chose to go before perhaps the most liberal Federal appeals court in the nation, with a judicial record of overruling Nixon's claims of "executive privilege" based on "national security" considerations.
 The nine-man Democratic-controlled court is led by Chief Judge David Bazelon, who has symbolized to many conservatives, including Chief Justice Warren Burger, the kind of liberal judge whose opinions improperly favor criminal defendants.
 Nixon will be appealing the decision and order of U. S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica which "committed" Nixon to turn over to the judge for his private examination — tape recordings of eight conversations which may be relevant to the Watergate trial and jury's probe.
 After hearing the tapes, Sirica said he would decide whether they contain information which should be given to the jury, or if they should be kept from the jury because they contain national security "state" secrets, or violate the "privacy" of the President.
 There have been reports Nixon considered ignoring the judge's order, which would have precipitated a second confrontation on the question of whether the President should be held in contempt.

 This speculation was based on initial responses from the White House Wednesday when Sirica's decision was released. The White House said Nixon "will not comply" with the order, and that the President's lawyers were studying whether to appeal or "how otherwise to sustain the President's position."
 A day later, the White House announced Nixon would appeal to the U. S. Court of Appeals here. The decision followed a one-hour presidential meeting with White House lawyers Charles Alan Wright, of the University of Texas, and White House counsel J. Fred Buzhardt.
 Chief Bazelon's decisions on criminal law are so disliked by the administration it introduced a special bill in Congress three years ago which would have permitted him to retire.
 Other liberal members of the appeals court include J. Skelly Wright, who ordered school desegregation in New Orleans; Carl McGowan, former law partner of the late Adlai Stevenson; Harold Leventhal, formerly a well-known Democratic attorney and Spotswood W. Robinson III, former dean of predominantly black Howard Law School.
 There are four conservative judges led by Edward A. Tamm, a Democrat, and a former FBI official appointed by President Truman, and three Nixon appointees: judges George E. Mackinnon, Roger Tobin and Malcolm Richard Wilkey.

 This court refused to ban publication of the Pentagon papers despite a plea by the White House this week to endanger "national security."
 A federal court in New York City had voted to continue a publication ban.
 The appeals court here has also ruled that anti-war dissident groups had the right to sue the government over military surveillance of civilians "despite the Justice Department's argument the lawsuit would violate the President's powers to protect national security."
 A recent magazine article stated that Judge Sirica has been reversed by the U. S. Court of Appeals here more than any other trial judge on the U. S. District Court. The article, in the Washington Magazine, also says Sirica is "unsuited" to be on the bench based on the quality of his work and temperament.
 Despite this assessment, many lawyers and editorial writers seem to agree that Sirica's decision was well argued and moderate.
 Basically, the judge said he could not decide whether the Watergate tapes should be kept from the grand jury until he heard them.
 He rejected Nixon's claim the President — not the courts — determines whether "executive privilege" is properly invoked. That question — who decides when executive privilege is properly invoked — would appear to be the main issue for arguments before the court of appeals here.

Amnesiac learns name

BOISE (UPI) — An amnesiac victim stranded in Boise for the last five weeks not knowing his name or where he came from Saturday gained his identity following an intensive search by police here.
 Lowell Baker, about 39, was found wandering around "dazed" in Meridian and was brought to a Boise hospital by police.
 Officials at the hospital said Baker had apparently suffered a stroke which caused an almost complete lapse in memory. He was kept at the hospital for a while then transferred to a care facility.
 Boise police sent out dispatches across the country in an attempt to learn the man's identity.
 Officers said the man's home is in Delta, Colo.

Nixon readies housing plans

(c) Washington Star News
WASHINGTON — President Nixon is putting the finishing touches on a new national housing policy — that Administration officials say will include something for both the poor and the middle class.
 Nixon has promised to unveil the plan by Friday, but it may be years before it is fully effective, even in the unlikely event that Congress votes speedy approval.
 The Department of Housing and Urban Development has sent Nixon a number of possible choices, so that the President could build his final proposal from the list.
 H. U. D. Secretary James T. Lynn reportedly favors a "housing allowance" plan to replace both the depression era public housing program and the newer great society plans for providing decent homes for the poor.
 The allowance plan is simple, at least in concept. The government would determine the average monthly rental cost of decent housing by family size for each community. An eligible family would receive a government check for the difference between the rental figure and 25 per cent of its income.

Young families are often forced to settle for a home they consider inadequate because they are not able to meet the payments on a loan they would later be able to afford.
 Acting on orders from the White House, former H. U. D. Secretary George Romney suspended all of the government's subsidized housing programs last January.
 The government continues to honor commitments made before Jan. 5, but no new public housing or subsidized housing plan have been approved since then. Operating subsidies for existing public housing projects continue to be paid.
 In his State of the Union Message on March 6, Nixon said existing community development programs, some of them in use for 34 years, were "old and wasteful."
 "Within the next six months, I intend to submit to the Congress my policy recommendations in this field," he said. That six-month period ends Friday.
 A H. U. D. Task Force, headed by Assistant Secretary Michael Moskow, did the basic work on the housing plans.
 The Department produced a number of suggestions, from which policy makers could choose. They were submitted to the Office of Management and Budget for clearance about two weeks ago, and went to Nixon within the last few days.
 Nixon's most important changes involve how far to go in helping the poor.
 If the President endorses "housing allowances," he must decide if the payments will go immediately to everyone poor enough to need a subsidy or if the program will be restricted. One option would restrict the payments to the elderly poor, another would pay only those on welfare. Nixon could decide on only a very limited experimental program to start.
 There is no doubt that the allowance plan is philosophically attractive to Nixon. It affords the widest degree of individual freedom and local control.

 But if everyone would be eligible for a housing subsidy under the program were to be given an allowance, the cost could be prohibitive. If eligibility is restricted, many deserving people will be left out.
 Critics of the plan, such as Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., argue that a housing allowance would do no more than inflate rents. Landlords would raise the cost of slum housing to top-up the allowances, leaving the poor no better off and the taxpayer defrauded.
 Backers of the plan argue that previous programs were a failure. They say the housing allowance plan would hardly be worse and maybe substantially better.
 Critics of public housing programs argue that they tend to create instant slums — vast concentrations of poverty — losers. Only the poor may live in most projects. If a family's income rises, it must move out.
 Romney, during his stormy tenure at H. U. D., wanted to find a way to move the poor into subsidized homes scattered throughout better off neighborhoods. But Nixon flatly rejected proposals for "economic integration" of the suburbs. He said the government would not force communities to accept subsidized housing that they did not want.
 Backers of the housing allowance plan argue that a poor family, aided by its government check, could choose its own neighborhood, thus providing some economic integration.
 The President may recommend a plan to subsidize home construction, sources said. But such a program would be limited to areas in which there is a shortage of houses.

ICC seeks cars

(c) Washington Star News
WASHINGTON — The shortage of railroad freight cars has become so severe since the "rustians" went dead, that the Interstate Commerce Commission is anxious to avoid more criticism from Congress — has begun to take unusual methods to solve the problem.
 I. C. C. Chairman George M. Stafford disclosed in a recent interview that one method has been a form of pressure to force railroads to place freight cars where they're needed most.

On two occasions this year — once in April, and again last week — Stafford invited officials of several railroads and representatives of shippers (grain and fertilizer dealers primarily) to meetings in his office to solve acute freight car crises.
 In one instance it resulted in eight railroads supplying about 1,200 additional freight cars to move fertilizer to the Midwest.
 In another Stafford was able to persuade some eastern railroads to improve their terminal operations to provide a faster turn-around of freight cars.

Minimum wage veto seen

(c) 1973 Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — President Nixon will veto a bill that would increase the minimum wage, administration sources said Saturday.
 The bill on his desk would raise the basic minimum rate from $1.50 an hour to $2 on Nov. 1 and to $2.20 next July.
 It also would extend the law's coverage to an additional seven million workers, including an estimated one million domestic servants.
 The bill does not contain the President's proposed "youth differential" that would allow a lower rate for workers under 20 years old.
 But he is expected to focus his objections on the provision that would apply an hourly minimum wage and overtime protections to service workers employed on a daily basis in homes. Baby-sitters and paid companions would be exempt.

 The Nixon Administration argued that this section of the bill, which would set a starting minimum of $1.50 an hour and move to $2.20 by mid-1975, would be unworkable and require housewives to keep detailed books.
 The President is "hell-bent on a veto," said one administration official, recalling that Nixon's spokesmen had warned during congressional debate that he would reject the legislation being considered.
 Labor Sec. Peter Brennan has urged the President to sign the bill, contending that low-paid workers who are paid at or near the minimum rate have suffered severely from inflation in recent years.

 Brennan noted that the cost of living council ruled recently that pay gains of workers earning less than $3.50 an hour will not be subject to controls on grounds they do not force up prices.
 Labor department statistics show the average wage of a rank-and-file worker is now $3.45 an hour — or $1.85 above the federal Treasury Sec. George P. Shultz, the President's chief economic adviser, is reported to be leading the fight against the minimum wage bill.
 Officials of the AFL-CIO, obit support of the measure, said they expected a presidential veto and believed it would effectively kill the legislation in its present form.

 The house, where a vote on overriding the veto will be taken first, is not expected to cancel the veto. The bill was approved by a vote of 363 to 152 — far short of the two-thirds margin that is necessary to override a veto.
 Minimum wage legislation was blocked in 1972 when the House refused to authorize a conference with the Senate to resolve the difference in their bills.
 The last increase in the federal floor under wages came in 1966 legislation signed by President Lyndon B.

Johnson.
 Nixon has advocated an increase to $2.30, spread over four years, but opposed any extension of coverage.
 He also insisted on a "youth differential" — a lower rate for teen-agers, a measure he said was essential to reduce youth unemployment rates of 16 per cent or more.
 Supporters of the bill approved by Congress said rising prices alone justified an increase from $1.50 to $2.15 in the minimum hourly rate.
 Additional coverage is warranted to assure that full-time, year-around workers do not fall below the national poverty line, the proponents added.

The recipient family could then buy or rent its home on the local market. The family could choose to spend any amount of its own income on housing, depending upon its economic priorities.
 For the middle class, Lynn and his associates are recommending a series of steps designed to increase the supply of mortgage money and generally make it easier to buy a home.
 The plan reportedly would include a provision to permit young families with good future earning prospects to obtain a mortgage with payments that start low and increase with ability to pay.
 Home loans now call for exactly the same monthly payment throughout the life of the loan. Young families are often forced to settle for a home they consider inadequate because they are not able to meet the payments on a loan they would later be able to afford.

 Acting on orders from the White House, former H. U. D. Secretary George Romney suspended all of the government's subsidized housing programs last January.
 The government continues to honor commitments made before Jan. 5, but no new public housing or subsidized housing plan have been approved since then. Operating subsidies for existing public housing projects continue to be paid.
 In his State of the Union Message on March 6, Nixon said existing community development programs, some of them in use for 34 years, were "old and wasteful."
 "Within the next six months, I intend to submit to the Congress my policy recommendations in this field," he said. That six-month period ends Friday.
 A H. U. D. Task Force, headed by Assistant Secretary Michael Moskow, did the basic work on the housing plans.
 The Department produced a number of suggestions, from which policy makers could choose. They were submitted to the Office of Management and Budget for clearance about two weeks ago, and went to Nixon within the last few days.
 Nixon's most important changes involve how far to go in helping the poor.
 If the President endorses "housing allowances," he must decide if the payments will go immediately to everyone poor enough to need a subsidy or if the program will be restricted. One option would restrict the payments to the elderly poor, another would pay only those on welfare. Nixon could decide on only a very limited experimental program to start.
 There is no doubt that the allowance plan is philosophically attractive to

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My first marriage was a disaster so I got a divorce. Then I met Hal. We fell in love and decided to marry. Hal wanted a large church wedding so we went to his family minister (a Baptist) and made all the arrangements. We were in heaven.

It never occurred to Hal or me to tell the minister I was married before. I didn't think it mattered, because I know many divorced Baptists who had married in the church. Hal's mother knew I was a divorcee. This same minister married Hal's younger sister when she was four months pregnant.

At the wedding rehearsal, the night before the wedding, we showed the minister our license and he said: "Why, I can't marry you—you've been married before!"

Nightmare before wedding

What happened after that was a nightmare. I begged and pleaded, but the minister refused to marry us. Luckily I found a minister who would, but I had to change the location of the wedding. I cried all night, and got married with red and swollen eyes. It was terrible.

My question: Since when can't a Baptist minister marry divorced persons?

STILL BURNING IN TEXAS

DEAR STILL: There is no universal ruling in the Baptist denomination which prohibits divorced persons from being married in the church, but some groups of Baptist churches have guidelines relative to this issue which their clergy will follow. Unfortunately, you appear to have picked one of this group.

DEAR ABBY: Re the "bra" situation: I can't resist submitting this little whimsical bit of trivia, entitled, "BRA-BEATEN":

Hanks of hair and bones have I
But here's why I'm disgusted:
With all my "raw material"
How come I'm so flat busted?
My rear is measured by the pound
My front is by the ounce—
A dreadful situation when
It's what's up front that counts!
To bra or NOT to bra, alas!
This problem I have NOT
My bra just captures and protects
What little bit I've got!

NOTHING TO HIDE IN SCOTTSDALE

DEAR ABBY: For those who have private swimming pools and do not mind sharing them with neighbors and friends, but occasionally want their privacy, the "flag" signal is the best idea yet.

Erect a flag pole where neighbors can see it. When the flag is UP, they are welcome to swim; when it is DOWN, no guests are welcome. Neighbors can see for themselves, and thus there is no embarrassment for the pool owners.

Further advice to pool owners: 1. At the outset, ask guests to please bring their own towels. 2. Do not overdo the hospitality bit by providing soft drinks and refreshments or you will soon be bankrupt. 3. Be firm in insisting that NO children swim without an adult who can double as a lifeguard unless YOU yourself want to assume the responsibility.

POOL OWNERS

DEAR POOL OWNERS: Cool advice. Thanks for sharing.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69766, L.A., Calif. 90066. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Merl E. Bronson and the bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Brumbach, all Twin Falls.

The bride wore a princess-style A-line gown featuring a fitted bodice. The dress was made of peau de sole underorganza with hand-appliqued French re-embroidered alencon lace decorating the organza. Over 1,000 simulated pearls were hand sewn to the dress. The gown was made by Mrs. Shuku Butts.

The table was centered with a four-tiered cake with four hearts forming the base. It was iced with white with delicate blue lace work trimmed with clusters of blue lilies and sugar bells. Two satin bells were placed on top of the cake.

The cake was flanked by two sweetheart cakes bearing the names of the bridal couple with blue ribbons circling down to tie them to the large cake. Blue chrysanthemums and

Saigon boycotts meet of low JMC officials

SAIGON (UPI) — Government delegates shunned scheduled low-level sessions of Joint Military Commission (JMC) for the second day today, but a spokesman said the boycotts would not be permanent.

Blaming mechanical problems, the government also canceled its scheduled helicopter flight to the Viet Cong's de facto capital of Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon.

The spokesman said it did not provide the needed military police escort so the Viet Cong could deliver a note to the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) in the spokesman said.

In military developments, the spokesman said a fierce 620-round mortar barrage hit the defense lines around Hue, a former "imperial" capital 400 miles north of Saigon, on Sunday. The attack killed three government soldiers and wounded six.

Heavy shelling along Highway 4 and near the U Minh Forest in the Mekong Delta killed seven government soldiers and wounded 14, he said.

The JMC boycott, involving subcommittee meetings, went into effect Saturday, the same day the government canceled transport and escort services for correspondents scheduled to attend the weekly Viet Cong news conference.

The boycott was in retaliation for the angry break-up of Friday's meeting of JMC chiefs, in which the government delegates said Sr. Col. Vo Dong Giang, deputy chief of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government delegation insulted them.

Asked if the boycott would be permanent, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, replied, "Not permanent." However, he added that he was unsure whether the government delegation would attend a meeting of the JMC chiefs Tuesday.

The Viet Cong sent a note to Lt. Gen. Pham Quoc Thuan, chief of the government's JMC delegation, asking for discussions of possible changes in the locations and activities of ICCS field teams. Last Friday the Viet Cong asked the ICCS to consider reducing the size of its delegations, apparently to save money.

The ICCS has submitted a $40 million budget, but North Vietnam and the Viet Cong want the amount trimmed to $18 million.

Recall backers rap McDermott

POCATELLO — Petitioners seeking to recall State Rep. Pat McDermott (D-Pocatello) last week accused her of taking advantage of the law to avoid "a re-evaluation of her credibility as a representative."

The Citizens to Recall Representative McDermott issued a statement charging McDermott with challenging the legality of the recall petition signatures in court out of fear that to allow a recall election would mean defeat.

"The actions and behavior of Representative McDermott since March 6, 1973 (the date the petitioners announced they would attempt a recall) have further proven that she is now, more than ever, unwilling to be a representative of the people of District 34. Her efforts to block, hinder, and destroy the recall movement have sacrificed any prestige she had as a Representative," the statement said.

Miss America festivities under way

JEROME, Idaho (UPI) — Miss Idaho—Sharon Davis—left behind the beginning of fall semester at Boise State College for the festivities this week at the Miss America Pageant.

The 21-year-old in an interview said life has been hectic since she was chosen Miss Idaho.

She began her trip to Atlantic City, N.J., by entering and winning the Miss Twin Falls contest. Winning the Miss America crown would mean a chance to travel and "probably meaning up school for a year, but it would be worth it, especially meeting all the people," she said.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Davis, Jerome, a brother and sister-in-law plan to fly to New Jersey today for the contest. Miss Idaho, standing 5 feet 5 with light brown hair and blue eyes and measuring 34-25-35, will perform a vocal solo "Matchmaker" from Fiddler on the Roof in the talent competition.

"The music and props for her talent presentation have given Miss Davis anxious moments in earlier contests.

"I lost my sheet music at the last moment before the talent competition in the Miss Idaho Pageant. My hostess was able to call the music store downtown and get another one at the last minute. My accompanist had made changes, but I used the same accompanist, and he was able to do just fine."

At the Miss Twin Falls contest "I just forgot my props (including a broom) and left them home. I had to send someone home to get them." Home was 20 miles away.

"As a general rule, I don't forget things," she said.

When not competing in beauty contests, Miss Idaho says she enjoys riding bicycles, horses, baking, playing the piano and spectator sports, especially football.

She said she prefers tailored clothes with the skirt hems four to five inches above the knee and "very rarely" goes braless.

She believes Watergate has put "a lot of doubts" in the minds of some people "about the credibility of the government." I think this is one thing politically that the whole nation is wrapped up in. Usually, there are some who ignore anything but this time they all want to know what is going on."

Student number drops by three

VALLEY SCHOOLS — Enrollment for Valley School District No. 282 is down three students from last year, according to Supt. Arlyn Bodily.

Registration for the 1973-74 school year for the Eden and Hazelton Grade Schools and Valley High School shows a total of 597 students enrolled, compared to 600 students last year.

Despite many new students registering for the first time, other families have moved from the area. A few seniors taking early graduation contributed to the decline in enrollment, he said.

Supt. Bodily reports that the district will provide children of needy families within the district free lunches again this year. The school will give consideration to special hardship cases in addition to the low-income families.

To receive this service parents are asked to fill out application blanks that have been sent home with the children. They may be mailed or delivered by the student to Bodily, Hazelton.

Parents will be notified if they qualify for free meals within five days after the application is received. If the decision of the school is contested, parents have the right to a fair and impartial hearing. Such a hearing may be arranged by contacting Mrs. Clyde Kaserman, Eden, supervisor for the school lunch program.

A copy of the complete policy statement is available on file in the district office for reference and study to the general public.

Davis named vice chairman

POCATELLO (UPI) — President William E. "Bud" Davis of Idaho State University is the new vice chairman of the Western Interstate Commission for Higher Education (WICHE).

TF escapee at large

TWIN FALLS — Police today were still searching for one of two juveniles who escaped Friday night from the Twin Falls County Jail.

One of the escapees turned himself in to sheriff's deputies Saturday night.

The two youths, both from Twin Falls, were both 17 years old. They were reported missing about 8 p.m. Friday.

The escape was the second involving juveniles in less than a year. In November two juveniles broke out of the plumbing in their cell and used the metal pipes to break through a wall and escape.

The jail is currently being renovated at a cost of $89,000. The repairs include putting up sheet steel on the walls of new juvenile cells.

ISU plans speaker

POCATELLO (UPI) — A Washington Post reporter who is covering the Watergate case is scheduled to speak at Idaho State University in September, according to Max Fuqua, chairman of the ISU issues and speakers committee.

Barry Sussman, head of the Washington bureau of the Washington Post, will speak at Watergate Sept. 27, in the film theater of the Student Union Building.

He is one of seven speakers scheduled under the program during the coming school year.

Celebration held

BELLEVUE — Bellevue held its 54th Annual Labor Day Celebration today.

The festivities began with a mock "shoot-out" this morning on Main Street staged by the "Haley Hellers."

The shoot-out was followed by a parade and a free afternoon barbecue.

Old-time fiddlers entertained Bellevue residents later in the afternoon, prior to street sports contests, including the "Roberta McKecher Handicap" for venerable residents.

Arizona solon released

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Sen. Paul J. Fannin, R-Ariz., was escorted from a Phoenix jail compound by a police car Friday night, 20 minutes earlier than his release had been scheduled.

Sheriff's deputies said no pictures were allowed.

Fannin entered the jail Thursday night to begin serving a one-day jail sentence he was given Aug. 20 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunken driving. He also was fined $110.

Fannin was whisked out of the Maricopa County Jail compound in Southwest Phoenix at 9:20 p.m. Friday, some 20 minutes earlier than authorities had announced he would be released.

Deputy Chuck Glosben, night supervisor of the jail compound, said Fannin had been accorded "no special privileges." He said Fannin was housed in a special area for convicted drunk drivers that included 42 other prisoners serving similar sentences for the same offense.

TF firm turns in lowest bid

JEROME — Lloyd Miller construction company of Twin Falls was the apparent low bidder for the construction of new LDS church in Jerome.

Bids were opened Friday for the new church and Miller turned in a bid of $409,200.

Other bids were Arrington Brothers Construction and Nelsen and Co.

Construction is expected to begin some time this month, on the new church which will be located on three acres of land between Avenues B and C west of Jerome. The area will also include parking and landscaping.

Ross Lee, co-chairman of the building committee said earlier that the First Ward has raised about $50,000 and the Second Ward $45,000 for the building fund.

Ross said that six acres between East Avenues B and C were purchased as the site of the new structure after three years of negotiating. "The streets will be extended to the east edge of the church property at the total expense of the church, as well as sewer and water facilities. The new church will be built on three acres of the land. The remaining land purchased will be sold in 100 foot lots for residential construction," Lee said.

It is anticipated the edifice will be completed nine months after construction starts.

No tickets available

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County fair manager Tom Shouse said Sunday there were no free tickets available through his office for senior citizens for the county fair this week.

A notice in the Times News Sunday about such tickets came from the Twin Falls Senior Citizens office, he said, and not from the fair office.

He asked senior citizens not to call the fair office requesting the tickets.

Police raid wrong apartment in NY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police making a weekend drug raid beat down the door to the wrong apartment with sledgehammers and pulled guns on a 65-year-old woman who had been asleep.

"They told me, 'Don't move or we'll shoot!'" said Ruby Baker. She thought the intruders were burglars and in an escape attempt suffered cuts on her hands when she used her flats to break a window.

The raid took place 20 minutes after New York State's toughest new drug law went into effect. Police said the men intended to strike at the apartment next door.

"It was a mistake, there's no getting around that," Deputy Chief of Police John Schawaroch, the commanding officer of the police narcotics division, said. "Mrs. Baker reacted rather strongly—but understandably for a woman living alone in that neighborhood."

Mrs. Baker said she was asleep at 12:20 a.m. Saturday when she heard her doorbell ring.

"When I asked who it was, they told me they were Con Ed (utility) men."

"I said, 'At this time of night?'"

"They said, 'You have a gas leakage.'"

Mrs. Baker checked and determined that there was no gas leak. But when she told that to the men outside, she said they began to break in with the sledgehammers.

"I got scared thinking they might be burglars, out to murder me."

She said she ran to the fire-escape window of her third floor apartment, broke it with her flats, and climbed out onto the fire escape.

"But there were two guys on the street with pistols drawn and pointed at me," Mrs. Baker said.

She continued to run, slipping on her own blood at one point, and made it to her neighbor's apartment. The narcotics agents, by now realizing their mistake, came down, apologized, and then took her to a hospital where she was treated and released.

Schawaroch said his men identified themselves as police when they broke in. Mrs. Baker, however, said the men did not do so until they found her bleeding in her neighbor's apartment.

New York's new drug law, which went into effect at midnight Saturday, provides long prison sentences for drug offenders, including life sentences with no hope of parole in some cases.

No arrests made
BOISE (UPI) — No suspects are in custody yet following robberies Saturday night at two Seven-Eleven stores in Boise that occurred within 15 minutes of each other. Boise police said one robbery occurred at the store on Utlick Road about 11:30 p.m. The man who said he had a weapon under his coat escaped with an undetermined amount of money. The second robbery occurred shortly before midnight at another Seven-Eleven Store on Thirteenth Street after the clerk received a call telling him to go to the restroom for his own safety.

New plan requested
PAYETTE, Idaho (UPI) — The state of Idaho has been asked to write a new plan for operating food programs under the Department of Environmental and Community Services. The request was made by the federal government. Food Programs Director Robert S. Johnson said there is a chance that the use of commodities in 24 Idaho counties may be replaced from a food stamp program. The stamps are in use in 20 Idaho counties.

Fire danger remains
BOISE (UPI) — Despite cooler temperatures and light rain, Boise National Forest officials warn the fire danger remains high in that forest. Deputy Forest Supervisor Bob Williams said Southern Idaho forests were abnormally dry, and a few days of higher temperatures would return dangers to a critical state. Forest Service personnel have increased patrols and other efforts during the Labor Day weekend to prevent fires.

Gun sale set
SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah will sell 31 submachine guns and automatic rifles to bonafide, federally licensed firearms dealers Sept. 19, said the state Finance Department. Officials said the sealed-bid sale will include surplus .30 and .40 caliber firearms, about half coming from the Utah State Penitentiary and half from the Department of Public Safety. Weapons will be on display Sept. 10 through 14 at the State Capitol.

Fire roars in California
CLEARLAKE OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — A fire roared uncontrolled today through dense national forest land 12 miles northeast of California's largest inland lake and popular holiday resort. Hundreds of persons were evacuated Sunday from cabins and mobile homes in the Clear Lake area bounding Mendocino National Forest, but fire lines prevented the wind-whipped blaze from reaching populated communities. More than 1,000 firefighters using 16 bulldozers worked through the night to close six miles of open fire line in "rough and inaccessible" terrain near Lake County's Cache Creek. The fire has already charred 18,500 acres of brush, timber and grasslands. A squadron of World War II bombers dumped chemical retardants on the blaze Sunday and a Space Agency U2 "spy plane" was used to photograph hot spots with highly sensitive infrared cameras.

Golden Gate toll hits 496
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 21-year-old man who leaped from the Golden Gate Bridge Saturday was pulled alive from the chilly waters of San Francisco Bay, only to die before an ambulance could arrive. Jeff Allen Chalkin of Palo Alto, Calif., became the 496th known suicide from the span since it was opened in 1937. Six persons have survived the leap.

Bomb mars Lenin tomb
MOSCOW (UPI) — A Russian man exploded a homemade bomb inside the revered Lenin Mausoleum Saturday, killing himself and two bystanders, an unofficial Soviet source said today. The source confirmed a report of the incident published in the newspaper Koelnier Stadtanzeiger of Cologne, West Germany. He said he did not know the motive of the attack but described the man with the bomb as insane. The Cologne report from the newspaper's Moscow correspondent, said two women and one man were carried out of the mausoleum on stretchers and taken away in ambulances.

Young Bjorn Borg upsets Arthur Ashe in U.S. open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — The upset ridden U.S. Open tennis championships lost another big name Sunday when Bjorn Borg of Sweden beat third-seeded Arthur Ashe to move into the last 16 of the men's singles where he was joined by favored Stan Smith.

Borg, the 17-year-old Swedish sensation in his first year of big-time tournament play, looked anything but a novice as he took Ashe, last year's beaten finalist, and the 1968 winner, apart to register a 6-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 victory before a packed stadium court crowd.

Smith, the first seed from South Plains, S.C., had his work cut out against 21-year-old Rabeo Tegner of Lockout Mountain, Tenn., before he advanced with a 6-7, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3 win.

Ashe was not the only seed down-hill going in the men's division to bite the dust on another hot, humid day. Manuel Orantes, the 8th choice from Spain, lost in three sets to Ross Case of Australia, 6-1, 6-4, 7-6.

While Ashe and Orantes were falling, Jan Kodes, the reigning Wimbledon title-holder from Czechoslovakia, continued his merry way without ceremony and the attendant glamor which surrounds Smith, Ashe and others. He disposed of Ismail El Shafel, 6-3, 7-5, 7-6.

Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., the 13th choice, beat British left-hander Mark Cox, 6-4, 7-6, 6-4, 6-4. Nikki Pille of Yugoslavia, seeded 18th, beat Phil Dent of Australia, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-1, while New Zealand's Omy Parin took his Davis Cup teammate Jeff Simpson, 3-6, 6-3, 7-6, 6-1.

Only three women's matches were scheduled and the seeds came through unscathed.

Second choice Margaret Court of Australia, bidding for the No. 1, defeated incumbent Games champion, Ilana Kloss of South Africa, 6-4, 6-4; third-seeded Chris Evert of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. beat Julie Anthony of Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-4 and in an all-British encounter, seventh pick Virginia Wade turned back Veronica Burton, 6-1, 6-3.

Borg showed his inexperience by hitting some public park shots with the court at his mercy, but when he needed the big point, he usually got it.

The tall Swede, his long hair flapping in the wind, received a tremendous ovation from the crowd when he retired home a volley to clinch his victory. He had won another army of fans to join those he made during the French Open and Wimbledon.

"I like playing here better than at Wimbledon," he said. Asked why, he smiled and said, "The girls leave me alone. They don't know who I am."

Borg appeared to have the first set tied up when he broke in the 11th game, but Ashe hit back in the next to send the match into tie-break, which Arthur took 5 points to 3.

Craig Stadler breezes to win in U.S. amateur

TOLEDO, Ohio (UPI) — Craig Stadler, a husky college All-American from the University of Southern California, captured the 1973 U.S. Amateur Golf Championship Sunday with an easy 6 and 5 victory over David Strawn in the 36-hole final.

Stadler, 20, of La Jolla, Calif., jumped out to a 4-up lead at the end of nine holes of the morning round and had built his margin to six before Strawn, of Concord, N.C., could win a hole.

Stadler held a commanding 7-up margin at the end of the first 18 holes, shooting a 69 on the 6,816-yard par 71 Inverness Club course while Strawn struggled in with a 76.

The victory by Stadler, making his first appearance in the U.S. Amateur, earned him a berth in next year's U.S. Open championships as well as a trip to the Masters which went to eight quarterfinalists in the tournament.

Strawn, 23, a third-year law student at Purman University, also appearing in his first Amateur, rallied in the afternoon to knock holes to cut the margin to 5-up. But each time it appeared Strawn might get back to the match, the unshakable Stadler, a burly 5-10, 205-pounder, came back.

After Strawn had won the first two holes in the afternoon with a par on the 19th and a 15-foot birdie putt on the 20th, Stadler, showing great accuracy with his irons most of the day, knocked his second shot on the 22nd hole 1 foot from the pin and Strawn conceded the birdie.

Stadler regained his 7-up margin on the 23rd hole when Strawn's second shot went over the green and he missed his putt after chipping back six feet short.

Strawn won the 25th hole with a par, while Stadler three-putted, and six-foot putt the next hole with a six-foot birdie putt. That again trimmed the margin to five and kept Strawn's hopes alive.

But the mustache-tot Stadler rebounded quickly, hitting his second shot on the par-five 523-yard 27th hole about 50 feet from the pin, and two-putted for a bird. Strawn's drive landed directly behind a large pine tree and he barely got his ball back onto the fairway on his second shot. He then knocked his third shot out of bounds to the right of the green and ended up with a double bogey seven.

That left Strawn six holes down with nine to play and virtually ended his chance for victory. Both players parred the final four holes to close out the match after 31.

In the morning round, Stadler wasted little time taking command of the match, jumping to a quick lead as he had done Saturday afternoon in eliminating defending champion Winnie Gledhill of Richmond, Va., 3 and 1 in the semifinals.

Strawn won the second hole with a birdie, the fourth and seventh with a par and the ninth with a birdie as he made the turn at two-under 33 and four holes up on the struggling Strawn, who had beaten former champion Billy Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., easily 6 and 5 in the semifinals.

Stadler parred the 10th and birdied the 11th for a 6-up margin and lost his only hole of the first 18 when he drove into some trees on the par-five 12th and had to settle for a bogey six.

Teresa Andersen wins gold medal in world swim event

BEIGRADE (UPI) — Teresa Andersen of Santa Clara, Calif., won the first gold medal of the first World Swimming Championships today with a graceful and near-perfect performance in the gold event of the synchronized swimming.

Miss Andersen, a 20-year-old sophomore from San Jose State, became the first world solo champion in competitive water ballet by a wide margin over Canada's Jo Jo Carrier, who took the silver, and Japan's Junko Hasumi, who won the bronze.

"I was hoping for the gold but this was the first time there has been an international competition like this and I didn't know what the judging would be like," said Miss Andersen.

She really won the gold on the first day's compulsory routine where she opened up such a gap on her competitors that her position became almost unassailable during today's free routine set to music.

Miss Carrier received one perfect score of 10 from U.S. judge Don Kane but still lost a point overall to the Californian in her freestyle.

Ulrike Knape, Sweden's Olympic double medalist, recovered from a poor start in the compulsory dives in the women's three-meter springboard diving to lead the intermediate standings ahead of Irish New Canaan, Conn. and German Christa Kohler.

Jenni Chandler, a 14-year-old high school student from Birmingham, Ala., who led the field with five near-perfect compulsory dives dropped back to fourth spot when ji came to the free routine.

The U.S. water polo squad, which Saturday overpowered Cuba 4-3, was defeated 6-3 by Bulgarian in their second match.

The U.S. Olympic bronze medalists were outplayed by the tough Bulgarian team, paced by three goals from Tomov who sealed the Bulgarian win just 1:13 from the final whistle with a powerful shot past U.S. goalie Jim Slatton of El Segundo, Calif.

The U.S. squad must now win its remaining games against Greece and West Germany to make sure of a place in the final pool.

Earlier, the heavily-guarded Israeli team had come out of their secret hide-away outside the city only to be drubbed for the second day in a row. Romania won 12-1 with Dinu Popescu racking up six goals to become the highest scorer in the competition so far.

In water polo, the heavily-guarded Israeli team came out of their secret hide-away outside the city and were drubbed for the second day in a row. Romania won 12-1 with Dinu Popescu racking up six goals to become the highest scorer in the competition so far.

Police with dogs surrounded the Tasmajdan pool and plainclothes officers sat amongst the crowd to guard the Israeli team.

The U.S. swimming team, recovering from an illness which earlier hit the Australian squad, today resumed normal training for the events which start Sept. 4.

In the heats of the men's 200-meter freestyle, Kurt Krumpal of Irvine, California, who holds the 400-meter world mark, will face Australia's Stephen Badger. Aussie Mike Wenden will be up against West Germany's Werner Lampe.

Hubie Green ties Devlin in Hartford

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Inconsistent Hubie Green shot another eight under par 63 Sunday to tie Australian Bruce Devlin for the third round lead in the $200,000 Greater Hartford Open at Wethersfield Country Club.

Both men headed into Monday's wrap-up at 14 under par 190 for three rounds. Seven men — Arnold Palmer, John Mahaffey, Gary Player, Billy Casper, Dave Eichelberger, Bob Payne and Jim Wiechers — were bunched into a tie for third place, one stroke behind the leaders.

Green, the first day leader with a 63, had fallen into a tie for 24th after a round of 73 on Saturday when his putting game deserted him.

Despite an up-and-down performance, Green admitted he was more confident and more determined Sunday than after Friday's opening round on the 6,633-yard par 71 course.

"It was a joke all the way Friday," Green said. "I said the first day that I hit the ball bad and you didn't believe me because I had a 63. I made all kinds of ridiculous long putts and it kept my score low."

"The second day I hit the ball well, but I didn't put well," Green said. "But I'm hitting the ball real well right now. I'm getting close to the hole so I don't have the long putts."

Green sank eight birdies and went without a bogey in Sunday's round and his longest putt was 15 feet on the 193-yard third hole — a sharp contrast to the five putts of 20 feet or better he dropped in on Friday.

Green was making no predictions about the Labor Day "wrap-up" of the tournament. "We've got 18 holes to play," he said. "We've got a long ways to go. The first two days are a lot of fun, but this is where the work begins, right now."

Devlin said he was "a bit tired" after Sunday's round but was generally pleased because "I haven't been anywhere near the lead this year. I'm playing at my best."

Devlin made 10 straight pars then sank a birdie putt from a foot out on the 11th hole. He dropped in putts of 14, 10 and 15 feet for consecutive birdies on the 14th, 15th and 16th holes.

Defending champion Lee Trevino toured the course in two under par 69 Sunday and was 12 under for three rounds. That left him in a tie for 10th place at 20 with George Knudson.

Two Twin Falls football teams will see action at Brain Stadium this week.

The sophomores will entertain Burley at 7 p.m. Thursday with the varsity taking on Jerome at 8 p.m. Friday. The Friday battle is a Jerome home game being played in Twin Falls because of the extra seating available. This means the Twin Falls student and booster cards will not be honored at the gate.

Detriot players shocked

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit Tiger players expressed shock Sunday at the firing of their manager, Billy Martin.

"I never thought it would happen, knowing he had one year remaining on his contract," veteran Al Kaline said Sunday.

"He had some problems with a couple of players," Kaline said. "But the last couple of weeks were very hectic."

"It wasn't just the spitball thing," he said. "I can't see him getting fired for that."

"I expected it," reserve outfielder Dick Sharon said. "Especially the way (general manager Jim) Campbell has been acting lately."

"It doesn't mean much this late in the season. It will be good for next year but that's just my opinion," Sharon said.

"The team was always so tense," he said. We weren't always sure what Billy was going to do next, personally or strategically."

"It was a shock to everybody," said Joe Coleman.

It was Coleman whom Martin ordered to throw a spitball last Thursday and that led to the manager's three-game suspension by American League President Joe Cronin.

"Mr. Campbell and Billy were both good to me," Mr. Campbell for giving me here and Billy for getting me the opportunity," Coleman said.

Joe Burke quits job with Texas

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Rangers owner Bob Short said Sunday he had "reluctantly" accepted the resignation of General Manager Joe Burke and had hired minor-league executive Daniel F. O'Brien as Burke's replacement.

O'Brien, who has been in baseball for 18 years, is currently assistant to the president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, the organization which administers minor league baseball.

Short said Burke had resigned to accept another position in baseball which would be announced later. The new position, however, is not with the Rangers.

"This is the toughest decision I've ever had to make," said Burke, who has served with the Washington Senators-Texas Rangers for 13 years and for five years as the club's general manager since Short became the owner.

"I'm not one inclined to move. I'm going into the business end of baseball and will not be dealing in personnel. This will allow me to stay in baseball and allow me to get into the business world and accept a new challenge."

Prior to going to the then Washington club, Burke had spent 12 years as a front office man in the minors.

Short said Burke's decision had nothing to do with the current low status of the franchise, which he moved here from the nation's capital last season. The Rangers finished last year with a 54-100 record, the worst in baseball, and currently are 17 games out of fifth place in the American League West.

"Joe Burke is the most competent man I've come across in my five years with the sport," said Short.

Foreman is accused of 2 fouls

TOKYO (UPI) — Bill Daly, manager of Puerto Rican challenger Joe "King" Roman, who was knocked out at two minutes on the first round Saturday by world heavyweight champion George Foreman, today accused Foreman of committing two fouls and said he would protest Monday to the Japan Boxing Commission.

The heavyweight championship fight, the first ever in Japan, was held under the auspices of the Japan Boxing Commission with the sanction of the World Boxing Association (WBA) and the World Boxing Council (WBC).

Foreman hit Roman with a right hook to the head while Roman was down and Daly and trainer, Al Braverman, climbed to the blue corner apron and protested to referee Jny. Edson of Phoenix, Ariz. Edson said Foreman did not do anything illegal. Edson said the champion was just following through with his punches and Roman was not hurt. Foreman denied it was an intentional punch.

Foreman shoved Roman to the floor for the first foul. Daly said Foreman then hit Roman when he was down for the second foul. Foreman would have been disqualified in London and elsewhere.

Daly denounced Edson for not stopping Foreman from punching.

Billy Martin is fired after numerous run-ins

DETROIT (UPI) — Volatile Billy Martin, the hot-headed manager of the Detroit Tigers, was fired Sunday for his numerous run-ins with baseball's hierarchy — the latest of which led him in the middle of a three-game suspension for ordering his pitchers to throw illegal greasballs.

"I've got no complaints about his job on the field," a somber Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell said at the surprise announcement. "He did an outstanding job."

The 45-year-old Martin still had a year to go on an estimated $65,000 annual contract and Campbell said: "Every legal obligation" would be fulfilled. He said third base coach Joe Schultz would continue running the club until the end of the season.

"There was a breakdown on company policy matters," Campbell said. "There were misunderstandings. Foul line to foul line he did a darn good job."

"I cautioned Billy about making comments concerning the commissioner, the league president, club executives and minor-league players," Campbell said. "We can't have that sort of thing. It breaks down the efficiency of the organization."

At one time or another, particularly as the Tigers floundered in defense of their American League East title this season, Martin openly or inferentially wrapped all of them. Martin did not answer his phone at home and was unavailable for comment on the firing.

Martin's brush with the Tigers was reminiscent of a similar one that cost him his job with the Minnesota Twins after the 1969 campaign even though he had led the Twins to the Western Division title after disputes with Harold Fox and George Brophy of the club's front office.

The Twins telephone switchboard was swamped with calls from indignant fans but club owner Calvin Griffith stuck to his guns and hired Bill Rigney "to take over the team" the following spring.

"It's hard to believe, said Jim Grant, a former major league pitcher and now a broadcaster with the Indians. "They ain't got no team now and look where he's got them. They'll find out next year what he meant."

On Thursday night Martin ordered pitchers Joe Coleman and Fred Scherman to throw baseballs illegally loaded with saliva and vasoline against alleged greasball artist Gaylord Perry of the Cleveland Indians.

Martin said he did so flagrantly to show Perry up and bring the issue to a head.

Al president Joe Cronin, whom Martin has openly admitted he has no respect for, immediately suspended the

Wally Dallenbach sheds image as loser with win at Ontario

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI) — It was Coleman whom Martin ordered to throw a spitball last Thursday and that led to the manager's three-game suspension by American League President Joe Cronin.

"Mr. Campbell and Billy were both good to me," Mr. Campbell for giving me here and Billy for getting me the opportunity," Coleman said.

Ontario's Wally Dallenbach, 36-year-old veteran from East Brunswick, N.J., who failed to win his first 52 U.S. Auto Club championship races, completely shed his loser image Sunday when he captured the fourth annual California 500 by five seconds, over Mario Andretti.

Dallenbach, driving mechanic George Brignotti's Eagle 35, started fifth in the field of 35 and scored his third straight victory — all in less than a month. He won a 200-mile at Milwaukee Aug. 12 and captured a 100-mile qualifying race here last weekend.

Dallenbach, making only one pit stop — two less than he thought he would — averaged 157.64 miles per hour in his 157, 645, and Mike Mosley of STP Eagle, completing the 300 miles in 3 hours, 10 minutes, 16.71 seconds.

Andretti, of Nazareth, Pa., the two-time Indianapolis 500 champ, and Mike Mosley of Clermont, Ind., were the only drivers running on the same lap with the steady-driving Dallenbach.

Defending champion Roger McCuskey of Tucson, Ariz., took a big step toward his first USAC championship car point final by finishing fourth, completing 199 laps.

Dallenbach, who was asked to drive by Granatelli Brignotti following the fatal crash of Swede Savage at Indianapolis this year, took over the lead for good on the second turn of the 189th lap.

Dallenbach's victory moved him into No. 3 in the national point standings of USAC with 1,340. Mosley took over second with 2,345. McCuskey now leads with 3,375.

Dallenbach became the first man to win three straight championship car races since Al Unser turned the trick, also for mechanic Brignotti in 1970.

Dallenbach's last pit stop came on lap No. 179, while leading the race. It took him only 1.9 seconds to get his final fuel and when he came back onto the track he was fourth behind Andretti, Al Unser and Mosley.

Andretti was leading the race when he pitted for 17.2 seconds on the 150th lap. Al Unser then took over Andretti's teammate the lead when he went into the pits.

Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., who set all kinds of records a year ago, was leading the race with a slim lead over Dallenbach when he lost the left side panel from the wing of his Olsonite Eagle-Offy and had to pit three times — on the 137th, 139th and 141st laps.

The last stop took four minutes and four seconds while his crew replaced the wing. That cost him any chance he had.

John Martin of Long Beach, Calif., driving a McClaren-Offy was fifth followed by, in order, Al Unser, Bobby Unser, Brignotti, Written, Al Unser, and A.J. Foyt.

For Brignotti, who left the Parnelli Jones Viceroy team last year, it was his eighth success in a USAC 600-mile race. He had six triumphs at Indianapolis and one at Pocono.

Peter Evenson, the handsome Redondo Beach, Calif. bachelor, who won the pole here with an average speed of 20,000 mph, lasted only 45 laps before being forced out of the race with a stalled turbocharger in his pumpkin Ford McLaren-Offy.

He led the first 15 laps and his first lap average speed of 160,668 mph was a California 500 opening lap record, bettering the old mark by seven mph.

What's What

A Frenchman traditionally does not account to his wife for his whereabouts between 5 and 7 p.m. daily. Or such used to be the case, at any rate. Correspondents now report this so-called "cig-a-sept" liberty so long cherished by the masculine matrimonial male in Paris is now disappearing. Pity.

Even out-of-every-100 grownup citizens definitely hope there's no life after death. Or say the pollsters. Curious. Said Mark Twain: "It used to be a good hotel, but that proves nothing - I used to be a good boy." The unmarried woman who owns cars outnumber the unmarried men who own cars. Preferred hangover cure in Hungary, I'm told, is a jigger of vodka topped through a slice of salami. It also has been proved that the hips of each successive generation of American men are getting narrower.

SEX STIMULANT

When this country's citizens first started drinking coffee in 1821, the temperance girls labeled it a sex stimulant, theorizing that claim would discourage the java addict. It didn't, no, sir. On the contrary.

Best colors for a Gemini are silver and gray, contend the stargazers. Gemini's best day is Wednesday. Best numbers, three and four.

Time will come when the typical police squad car will carry a couple of officers who are married to each other. Such is the prediction of an authority on law enforcement. New York City police now say their coed teams work reasonably well to settle family fights. But these uniformed men and women are not married to one another, mostly. This expert thinks that's bad. Unmarried police couples, riding around together still after shift, might create more problems than they solve, he says. Married officers, however, would function in a dandy manner, he believes. Would you and your matrimonial mate make a good police battery? Consider it.
