Prime rate boost queried

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Federal Committee on Interest and Dividends today ordered two large banks that raised the interest rate for prime business loans to a record 10 per cent to justify the boost.

The committee telegraphed its demands to First National City Bank of New York and Wells Fargo Bank of San Francisco.

First National City today followed the lead of Wells Fargo which boosted the prime rate from 9-3/4 per cent to 10 per cent late Thursday.

Agnew successor pleads innocent

BALTIMORE (UPI) — N. Dale Anderson, successor to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as chief executive officer of Baltimore County, pleaded innocent today to charges of conspiracy, extortion and bribery.

The seven-minute arraignment of the Democratic leader came one day after a special federal grand jury resumed investigation of Maryland political corruption amid security so tight one wing of the courthouse's fifth floor was blocked off.

Anderson, 56, who succeeded Agnew in 1968 as Baltimore County executive, was indicted last month on 39 counts charging he took part in an alleged kickback scheme involving consultants doing business with the county.

Governor sees UFO's

STATESBORO, Ga. (UPI) — Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter said Thursday he and a group of friends were coming out of a dinner meeting one night several years ago, when they saw a big, shining light in the shape of a flying saucer hovering overhead.

"I don't laugh at people anymore when they say they've seen UFO's," he said, "because I've seen one myself."

Lunch aid boost voted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an effort to compensate for higher food prices, the House voted Thursday to increase the federal share of school lunch costs by $129.5 million a year.

Rep. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee and manager of the bill, said soaring food prices have pushed the cost of a lunch to paying students to 63 cents in some areas and a high of 73 cents in others.

He said scores of schools are considering stopping their lunch programs in the face of the higher costs and dwindling participation by paying students and said others "are holding back to see if we're going to increase our share..."

Allende widow banned from burial

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The widow of former Chilean President Salvador Allende said in an interview published here today that she was not allowed to see her husband when he was buried.

Mrs. Hortensia Busal de Allende, in an interview published by the newspaper Cronica, said:

"I asked to see him, to touch him, but they would not let me." Mrs. Allende is currently in the Mexican embassy in Santiago and, according to reports from Mexico City, had planned to fly to Mexico City today.

Doctor still 'depraved'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Carl Coppolino, a medical doctor serving a life term for administering a fatal dose of drugs to his wife, still is a "depraved" murderer and should not be paroled until he has served about 25 years, Florida Attorney General Robert L. Shevin said Thursday.

Mr. T-N says

The Year of Europe seems very discouraging for Europeans.

Agnew benefactor named

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A rich and politically influential supermarket executive here has regularly supplied Vice President Spiro Agnew and his family with gifts of food, The New York Times said today.

The Times attributed the reports to a Maryland political figure with contacts on Agnew's staff.

The vice president's Washington office did not deny the story, and neither did Joseph H. Rash, the reported donor of the food. Rash is a vice president of Food Fair Stores Inc., third biggest supermarket chain in the country.

Trade agreement adopted

TOKYO (UPI) — Delegates from 82 countries adopted a landmark "Tokyo Declaration" today launching a new round of negotiations to rewrite the rules of international trade.

U.S. Treasury Secretary George Shultz played a major role in the talks and predicted a separate draft agreement on world monetary reform may be ready by 1974.

More than 600 high financial officials attended the Tokyo talks on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which sets the framework for foreign trade among non-Communist countries.

Europe: US may pull out

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has indicated he may be negotiating a major new agreement with the Soviet Union: the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Western Europe in return for a Russian withdrawal from Eastern Europe.

The President told House leaders at a private breakfast meeting Monday that he had discussed the idea with Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at their summit conference here in June.

The President did not state specifically whether the proposal would involve a total or a partial withdrawal. But at least one of the participants came away with the impression that all 310,000 U.S. troops in Western Europe and all 450,000 Soviet troops in Eastern Europe would be involved.

White House sources confirmed that the President discussed the troop issue with the House leaders but emphasized that Nixon in no way implied that he has already reached agreement with Brezhnev. The sources indicated that the negotiations so far have focused on partial reductions rather than total withdrawals.

Nixon raised the subject in an effort to deter Congressional efforts to legislate an immediate, unilateral U.S. withdrawal. Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., will offer a resolution next week that U.S. troops abroad be cut by 50 per cent in three years.

The President pleaded with the House leaders not to spoil his negotiations with Brezhnev by going along with the Mansfield resolution. Nixon's breakfast guests were Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., and Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich.

The troop proposal was first reported by Joseph Kraft, columnist for the Publishers-Hall Syndicate. Several Western European officials expressed immediate concern, particularly over the possibility that there might be a total withdrawal of the U.S. Garrison which has been in Europe since World War II.

Demo chief hit by narcs

BOISE (UPI) — A State Bureau of Narcotics investigation which "fingered" a high-ranking Democratic Party official has brought charges of police harassment and has party officials "upset."

Party Treasurer Mel Morgan, Pocatello, told United Press International today that the Bureau of Narcotics and Organized Crime Division, which is under direction of Attorney General W. Anthony Park, a Democrat, has been conducting an investigation on him as a suspected "drug pusher."

Morgan said he submitted to a polygraph test Thursday in Pocatello and preliminary results of that test show no involvement in drug traffic.

A spokesman in the Attorney General's office confirmed that their office also received preliminary results of the test which showed Morgan had no involvement.

The attorney general's office also confirmed this morning that the Narcotics Division had been conducting the investigation on Morgan.

Morgan, irritated with the investigation, told UPI Thursday he is withdrawing his name as a candidate for State Party Chairman and is seriously considering resigning from his post as State Treasurer.

Nolan Hancock, Executive director of the Democratic Party in Idaho, said, "I was upset to learn this."

"No one likes to see good people accused," Hancock said. "I hope that this matter can be cleared up momentarily."

Joe McCarter, Corral, State Democratic Chairman, said he did not have any information about the investigation. He said Morgan has done a good job as state Treasurer and is a "good friend."

McCarter said he has "no objections" to Morgan being State Central Committee Chairman. But he added, "I am not supporting anyone."

Last Friday, Morgan, accompanied by his attorney, Lou Racine, Pocatello, met with Racine in the governor's office. A spokesman for the governor said Andrus had no comment on why that meeting took place.

Morgan sent a letter to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus earlier this week stating his intention to withdraw his name as a candidate for State Chairman.

Sources close to Morgan said the party official and Pocatello City Councilman tried to reach both Park and Andrus by telephone when he first learned he was being investigated by the state narcotics agents. They said Morgan found it "impossible to reach either of them."

Capitol protest

ANGRY gasoline retailers from across the nation rallied at the U.S. Capitol Thursday to protest the Nixon administration's pricing and energy policies. They denounced the government refusal to allow them to pass along to the consumer wholesale price hikes imposed by major oil companies. The crowd was estimated at 2,500. (UPI)

Cox, Nixon huddle asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Appeals has proposed that President Nixon and Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox settle the issue of the President's Watergate tapes between themselves "without the need for a constitutional ruling."

Cox is willing. The President hasn't replied.

The seven appeals judges proposed in a surprise move Thursday that Cox, the President "or his delegate," and the President's lawyer, Charles Alan Wright, review the tapes and try to reach agreement on turning portions of them over to a grand jury.

If such a voluntary agreement were reached, neither the appeals court nor the Supreme Court would have to decide the major constitutional issues raised by the case—whether a president can withhold information from a criminal inquiry, the extent of his right to official privacy and even the extent of the power of the courts over him.

Meanwhile, Senate Watergate committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., who is seeking the same tapes in a separate court suit, said Thursday night in Newark, Del., that he would be willing to compromise by having three committee members listen to them privately with Nixon.

Cox quickly expressed willingness to try the court's proposal—which was in the form of a non-binding memorandum: "I shall, of course, be more than glad to meet with the President, or his delegate or any of his attorneys in a sincere effort to pursue the Court of Appeal's suggestion to a mutually satisfactory conclusion," Cox said.

The President's deputy secretary, Gerald L. Warren, Thursday would only say: "The White House received the memo, and the White House counsel's office is studying the memo."

The court asked the parties to reply no later than next Thursday whether its proposed approach "has been fruitful."

"If the President and the special prosecutor agree as to the material needed for the grand jury's functioning, the national interest will be served," it said. "At the same time, neither the President nor the special prosecutor would in any way have surrendered or subverted the principles for which they have contended."

If the parties do not agree, the court said, it will decide the constitutional issues. But it expressed hope these at least would be narrowed.

The case began when Cox sought to obtain White House recordings of the president's private talks with key Watergate figures for grand jury inspection. U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica ruled Aug. 29 that the tapes should be given to Sirica to hear in private, so he could decide whether the jury should see them. The President asked the appeals judges to cancel that ruling. Cox asked them to strengthen it to require grand jury inspection.

The court cited a "possibility of a resolution of this controversy without the need for a constitutional ruling" and noted that courts generally try to avoid constitutional decisions if they can.

Chrysler, UAW work overtime to iron out dispute on overtime

DETROIT (UPI) — Top Chrysler Corp. and United Auto Workers negotiators sought to iron out the major issues of wages and voluntary overtime today and reach agreement on a contract before an 11:59 p.m. strike deadline.

Chrysler bargainers, including William O'Brien, vice president for personnel, and William F. Bavinger Jr., director of industrial relations, met at 9 a.m. with UAW representatives Leonard Woodcock, UAW president, and Douglas Fraser, vice president and head of the union's Chrysler division.

Among the problems facing the negotiations, which began last July 18, was not only a wage increase but tailoring it to meet the guidelines of the Cost of Living Council.

The company also has opposed the union's demand for voluntary overtime, contending that it would disrupt production schedules if union members were allowed to decide whether or not they would work overtime.

A lengthy bargaining session that began Thursday morning ended shortly before midnight with no indication how the negotiations were progressing.

A news blackout was put into effect at 6:42 p.m. Thursday. It marked the traditional point where both the company and the union decide there is enough serious movement that it's best to make no public statement that could endanger the talks.

The difference in the negotiations between 1967-1970 and this year can be seen in the timing of the beginning of the news blackout. In the last two negotiations, blackouts were set up much earlier.

The break in talks on the eve of a possible strike indicated the negotiators felt they were so close to settlement that they can avoid a marathon session—or so far apart that around the clock bargaining would serve no purpose.

The mood of the contract talks was markedly different from the last two times the UAW negotiated auto contracts. In 1970, General Motors was struck for 67 days and Ford was closed for 66 days, three years earlier.

The beginning of the news blackout Thursday night did not necessarily mean there will be a settlement tonight, one company official pointed out. "But it probably means we won't get a strike."

Newsprint shortage due little relief

By United Press International
Settlement of the Canadian railroad strike and some progress toward resolving labor disputes at the country's paper mills will produce little immediate relief from the newsprint shortage in the United States.

Paper industry sources said that even when the Canadian mills resume full production, they will be unable to fulfill the initial demands of U.S. newspapers. And when they do, the newsprint will cost more.

Newspapers in the United States purchase 65 per cent of their newsprint from Canadian paper mills, almost all of which have been shut down since early summer by strikes.

The shortage results primarily from the "near hysteria" according to one store official many people feel over the much publicized food shortage, high costs and predictions of still higher prices.

People who have not done any home canning for years are doing so this year, and the Twin Falls Canning kitchen already has had as many patrons to date as they had for the entire season last year.

Mrs. Faye Sharp, manager, who so far has had no trouble obtaining the aluminum cans used at the kitchen, confirmed the sharp increase in interest in processing food.

"One person even sealed up seven cans of rice," she said. The kitchen undoubtedly will have the biggest year in the 12 years Mrs. Sharp has been manager.

Jar shortage frustrates MV canners

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — All right, housewives, you can add glass jars to the list of items in short supply.

"I thought I'd have to use cold water on one woman to get her calmed down when she learned we had no jars," a Twin Falls store manager said this week after a discussion with a potential customer.

The customer was understandably upset — she had a large kettle of relish simmering on the stove, and nothing to put it in. The frustrated housewife was rudely made aware of what many already know — that glass jars for home canning are about the hottest — and scarcest — item in Maple Valley grocery stores right now.

Another factor in the shortage, in addition to the greatly increased demand, is that potash, which is used in making of glass jars, is being increasingly used by soap manufacturers.

The Korr Co., glass jar manufacturers, in a letter to all store managers, lists increased use of potash, or soda ash, by the soap firms, because of public pressure against use of phosphate in soap. A rail car shortage plus shutdown of some potash mills because of air pollution are contributing factors in the "jar crisis."

Some of the larger stores have been able to get a few boxes of jars every other week, but they have been gone within a few hours.

Albertson's store in Twin Falls said their last shipment which arrived in the early morning hours, was gone by 8:30 a.m. (Continued on p. 11)

Child talk goes on

BOISE (UPI) — A crowd of child abuse conference in Boise Thursday night she started an investigation three years ago when she discovered her own school district was treating children like criminals when their only crime is that of not being adults.

Mrs. Shirley Amiel, a registered nurse, spoke on child party child abuse at a banquet at the Governor's Conference on Child Abuse.

She revealed abusive incidents she said she has documented through her own experience and the cooperation of other parents who have had children mistreated at school.

She has conducted a one-woman crusade to expose abuse and has established post office box 1891 for school child abuse at Bellevue, Wash.

through which she has corresponded with people throughout the country.

She has attempted to obtain legal counsel from prosecuting represent government agencies.

She describes her local school district as having excessive impatience on discipline, authority and regimentation.

Inquiries to the state boards of health and education led her to find no state statutes to protect the mental and physical health and safety of the child.

She has also questioned the use of school funds earmarked for student activities and has filed suit against her school district for refusing to open the financial records for her inspection.

Her talk was rebutted by Lewiston school administrator Rod Storey, who said he felt she made an unfair attack on school personnel and he would challenge her to find school personnel in Idaho who did not have the best interest of the child in mind.

MRS. Kotinka Parker, 52, Denver, stands in front of her home which she claims is haunted. Mrs. Parker says a bumping sound in the night in the house is a ghost and that the unyielding spirit pushed her down the stairs twice. Her skeptical neighbors say the noises are just bad plumbing. (UPI)

Pocatello council scores narc agents

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Pocatello City Councilmen, apparently angered over recent activities of the Bureau of Narcotics and Organized Crime, Thursday night issued a statement criticizing the state-wide drug-enforcement program for unethical tactics.

A prepared statement by Pocatello Mayor Bill Koskellej and members of the city council, they said the bureau, which is under the control of the Attorney General's office, has been collecting unsubstantiated information with complete disregard of individual rights.

"This community has been subjected for the second time in a year to disruption of law enforcement procedures," the statement said. "Totally innocent citizens have had their reputations challenged and their families harassed."

The statement came on the heels of an announcement by the Attorney General's office that the Pocatello Bureau of Narcotics Enforcement would be asked to resign.

A year ago, a major shake-up in the bureau resulted in the firing of the supervising agent and the resignation of other persons in the bureau.

"Statewide, the activities of the narcotics bureau have been ineffective," the statement said.

Head Start children frolic as summer comes to close

TF Head Start program to begin 8th season

TWIN FALLS — Head Start's half-day program will begin its eighth season Sept. 27. The full-day program, for children of working parents, continued throughout the summer.

Dennis Dean, Head Start communications coordinator, said he anticipates Head Start's programs would be as large this year as they were last year, despite a $5,000 budget cut for its 1974 programs in Twin Falls, Burley and Jerome. He expects 70 half-day and 40 full-day children enrolled in Twin Falls' Head Start.

Ninety per cent of the children participating in the federally-funded program must be from low-income families. This year, Dean said, wealthier families which send their children to Head Start will have to pay a fee.

By "enriching" the children's experiences before they enter grammar school, Head Start attempts to give underprivileged children a "head-start" when they enter school, Dean said.

Head Start children, aged 2½-5, learn basic skills such as cognition of colors, numbers, heights, lengths, letters and exercises to develop muscle coordination. Also, the children, some of whom often have had extensive contact only with adults, learn to get along with one another, according to Katie Kieb, Head Start teacher.

In addition to working with the students, Head Start encourages parent participation in its programs. Head Start relies on parents to help achieve the required 5-to-1 child-adult ratio. This year Head Start has five teachers and 10 trainees and teachers' assistants to work with 10 children.

"It is more than just keeping up with the ratio. It's also good from the child development point of view. If the parents become involved with their child's education in Head Start, then perhaps they'll carry their involvement past Head Start," Dean said.

Parents who are unable to work with Head Start during the day can help out by participating in one of the various committees which determine Head Start policy, Dean said.

Persons desiring more information about Head Start can call 734-5550.

Two-car accident causes injuries

TWIN FALLS — Two persons were treated for minor injuries following a two-car accident Thursday afternoon on Kimberly Road.

City police reported Katherine E. Day, 19, Twin Falls, suffered cuts and bruises when the car she was driving collided with one operated by Bert Dobbs, 64, Twin Falls. A passenger in the Day vehicle, Alton Shotwell, 28, Twin Falls, also received possible injuries.

City police said Dobbs was making a left turn from the center lane of the east bound half of the street and failed to see Miss Day approaching in the opposite center lane. She was traveling west.

Damage to the Day vehicle, a small 1972 model, was estimated at $1,500 and to the Dobbs vehicle at $400. The accident occurred at about 5:30 p.m. in the 200 block of Kimberly Road.

Bid reject likely

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County Commissioners are expected to reject today a $233,000 bid for construction of a roof on the Fairgrounds grandstand.

Thursday, Fair manager Tom Shouse told County Commission Chairman William Chancey the Fair Board would recommend rejection of the bid at a meeting with Commissioners later today.

Chancey said today he couldn't say positively the bid will be rejected until after all the Commissioners meet with the Fair Board. "I think it will be turned down," Chancey said, "because the Fair Board has asked us to turn it down."

Shouse said Thursday the Fair Board plans to meet with project architect Ivan Stone to determine if some way can be found to lower the cost of the roof. Stone had originally estimated the cost of the roof at about $110,000, less than half the actual bid.

The $233,000 bid was submitted by Neilson and Co., Twin Falls. There were no other bids. The Neilson bid included an add-on of $51,449 for coverings for roof trusses and joists, only part of which had been included in original estimates. Neilson's base bid, without the coverings, was $181,747.

Architect Stone said Thursday he did not "have the faintest idea, to be real frank" why the estimate and the actual bid were so far apart.

"It's sort of a sign of the times," Stone said. "It's embarrassing."

Stone said his firm will go over its plans to try to find the reason for the discrepancy.

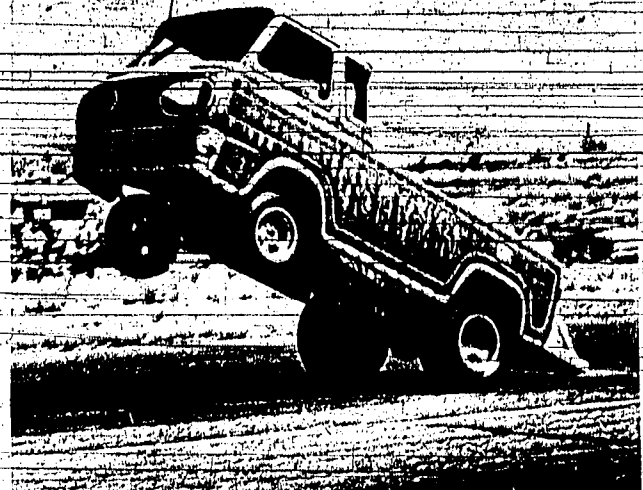

"I'm still dumbfounded about the whole thing," Stone said. "I have no idea what will come of all this. I'm sure it will be rectified somehow. I'm sure some sort of cover will revolve out of this in approximately the amount bid by the (Commissioners) want to spend."

Stone said his fee for designing the roof is 6 per cent of the contract price, but he added that when contracts exceed his estimates by more than 10 per cent he does not charge on the overbid.

"If I say $110,000 and if they sign a contract for $230,000, I'll probably only charge on $110,000," Stone said.

He said his firm will probably redesign the roof.

Ed Tauts, office manager for Neilson and Co., said some of the variance in the estimate and the bid was probably due to increased labor costs for

Wheelstanders will race

Sunday race set in Gooding

GOODING — Two of the northwest's top wheelstanders will be at the Gooding International Raceway Sunday. "Ichi-Ban," a 1965 Ford Econo-Line pickup and the "Tijuna Road," a 1972 Chevrolet, will watch race one another in the last race of the season.

The two cars will be on display Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Lynwood Shopping Center in Twin Falls.

The cars will match race at speeds expected to be in excess of 100 miles an hour. Both cars are based in Portland, Ore.

The Ichi-Ban, driven by Hal Anderson, Independence, Ore., has attained speeds of 122 miles an hour on its rear wheels.

There will be Mint and Street Class racing Sunday at the raceway.

The top points cars from Boise will also be participating in the meet Sunday.

Ironworkers. He said wage rates have taken one jump recently and may take another before next spring when the roof is scheduled to be built.

Tauts also pointed to increased steel prices and the critical availability of steel as other factors.

"ICHI-BAN" will race another wheelstander Sunday at the Gooding International Raceway. The two cars will race side by side at speeds upwards of 100 miles an hour.

Wage Veto Was Reasoned

WASHINGTON — President Nixon vetoed the minimum wage bill on September 6, and since then the wailing, as they say, has been ringing. He has been denounced at least 22 times a day, chiefly by liberal Democrats whose odd notion of how best to care for the poor is to herd them into housing projects and to keep them on welfare forever.

Nixon's veto is that these several provisions, on balance, would do far more harm than good. He is not opposed to a substantial increase. The administrator's own bill would raise the minimum wage to $1.00 at once and to $2.50 three years hence. But he argues convincingly that the adverse effects of an increase can be minimized by a more gradual and less sweeping approach.

and is further compelled to adjust other wages in order to maintain differentials, is bound to feel the impact in his labor costs. Yet proponents of the bill probably are correct in saying that the inflationary effect of the increases would be small. The best estimate is that the bill would add $1.7 billion next year, or only 0.4 percent, to total wages paid.

next July and $1.50 in July of 1975. An estimated 971,000 domestics now are paid less than $1.80, and 700,000 are paid less than $2. They are not merely tabulated figures in a statistical report. They are real live human beings, and it is idle oratory to complain that they are being "exploited" or that they are being paid "starvation wages."

in sound grounds that it is unwise to extend federal wage controls to functions of state and local government not involved in federal aid. The number of such affected employees is small (only 74,000), but the principle is large. He also makes the realistic argument that the small retail and service establishments newly covered by the bill "are" the very businesses least able to absorb sharp, sudden payroll increases.

OAS Problems

Representatives of 23 members of the Organization of American States have been conferring in Washington on structural changes they hope will put new life into a seemingly moribund organization. Translated that means most of the member states are trying to devise ways to reduce Washington's power in their affairs and in the OAS, but without reducing the flow of U. S. assistance.

The United States has found its relationship with its southern neighbors increasingly tense. Whether the reason has been ideological or economic or nationalistic, Washington has been at the receiving end of sharp criticism and deep suspicion. The Nixon administration had hoped that by maintaining a low profile in Latin America, it would be able to overcome some of the difficulties inherent in the relationship of the big with the small, of the rich with the poor.

The OAS countries want U.S. help without seeming to be requesting it, or needing it. It is a matter of dignity, and Washington has been fairly understanding about it.

But there have been disputes that just won't go away — over fishing and territorial waters, over nationalization of American-owned businesses, over Cuba. Cuba has been ostracized by most of the hemispheric nations at Washington's behest, but political and economic isolation of the Castro regime is less popular now. Some governments have already ignored Washington's desire and argument.

The low-profile policy of the administration has, it seems, persuaded some influential members of Congress to think that Latin America is nothing but a dispensable pain in the Treasury. The United States pays about two-thirds of the annual OAS budget of $50 million. Its aid programs have been widespread, if only sporadically effective, and less productive in terms of influence.

The administration cannot eliminate all the complaints regardless of what it does. In fact, despite the emergence of what seems like a Latin American identity of views on many problems, the members of the OAS remain guided by their own separate interests, and not infrequently those interests clash with one another.

Washington is implored to side with this government or that, and whatever it chooses to do, it has one party in a state of emotional grievance against it.

Wheat Problems Over In Russia

WASHINGTON — Everyone says the Soviets made a great coup by buying up the United States' wheat crop for the next three years. But it is causing tremendous problems there that have not been publicized. A transcript of a recent meeting in Moscow of the Politburo reveals that the Soviet wheat deal is creating an unbreakable strait on the Soviet consumer. Here are excerpts of the meeting.

"Every restaurant in the country has been ordered to serve 3,000 gallons of bread pudding a day. In Leningrad last week they had a bread pudding revolt and 15 million were drowned in the vats at the Marx-Engels Baking Co. The leaders of the demonstration, of course, have been arrested. "What did you do to them?" "They've been given life on bread and water." "Good. But, Comrades, if they revolt in Leningrad, they could revolt anywhere. We must find ways of using up wheat surpluses. How many tons have we been able to force on the satellite countries?" "We made Poland take 10 million, Czechoslovakia 14 million and Hungary 12 million. We asked Tito to take some of it off our hands, but you can guess what he told us to do with our wheat."

Belgrade and dump several million tons on him?" "Is bad for world public opinion. We would be accused of using wheat-germ warfare." "Well, who has any better ideas?" "Why not fill our MIRV missiles with cream of wheat and shoot at China?" "It could hurt the U.S.-Soviet detente. Comrades, the only answer is that we must force higher wheat consumption at home."

"But how?" "During the depression in the United States they set up bread lines all over the country. Why don't we do the same thing here?" "But that was because they had no bread." "Principle is the same. In Soviet-Union anyone who doesn't get into bread line will be shot."

Futile Project

A congressman is engaged in a campaign to cut down on the number of big limousines, with chauffeur, assigned to various high-ranking bureaucrats. His project is doomed to failure. This is merely a revival of an undertaking first engaged in by a congressman or senator in the early 1930s, or perhaps in the 1920s. In fact, it probably started with the replacement of horses and carriages by the automobile. There may have been similar campaigns in the horse age to cut down on the number of vehicles and drivers assigned to officeholders. Always in the name of economy, of course. One might think congressmen who want to save money for the taxpayers would know by now that they can't do it by grounding bureaucrats.

ANDREW TULLY

Sen. Dole Deserves A Hearing

WASHINGTON — Of all the Republicans who had anything to do with President Nixon's campaign for reelection, Sen. Bob Dole most deserves a hearing when he speaks to the issue of electoral morality. The plain-speaking Kansan was chairman of the Republican National Committee in 1972, but it didn't stop him from criticizing the tactics of the Committee to reelect the President. Dole got himself in trouble with Nixon for publicly finding CREP contemptible and undoubtedly lost favor with many staunch Republicans in his home state. But there would have been no Watergate had Nixon listened to John Mitchells and John Ehrlichmans.

should be closed to the public and the news media. "It is time to put on the brakes," said Dole. "It is time to turn off the TV lights." I find myself incredulous in contemplating Dole's resolution. In effect, he is suggesting that the hearings be transformed into a star chamber operation, with only certain privileged members of Congress and their helpers made privy to the hearings. Dole's proposition says Congress has the right to infringe not only freedom of the press, but the people's right to know what's going on. Dole seems to have forgotten that this country also belongs to the people. It is not the private property of Congress, or the Presidency, or the Supreme Court. It is the people who choose their government and it is to the people that these hired hands must render an accounting of their stewardship. Dole has "reminded" us citizens that "the purpose of the hearings is to serve legislative interests. It is not to try, convict and sentence Richard Nixon." Well now, in the larger and only important sense, any proceeding conducted "to serve legislative interests" has legal stature only if it serves the public interest. Members of Congress are not elected to work secretly or even furtively but in full view of the people they represent. There are no "legislative interests" that may properly be described as none of the people's business. "Time to turn off the TV lights?" I don't think so, but even if I did that would be the prerogative of the television media, got of the electorate's servants-on-Capitol-Hill. The Watergate hearings are concerned with a national scandal. They are not to be compared with Congressional sessions devoted to working up an appropriation bill when outside distractions should be avoided. Anyway, eventually the dicker over a money bill are revealed to the public in the committee's report and the people can lobby Congress in support of or in opposition to the bill. As for Dole's suggestion that the Watergate committee is seeking to "try, convict and sentence Richard Nixon," that has to be a matter of opinion. Any Congressional investigation tends to bring out testimony unfavorable to some individuals. This may be unfortunate, but it is also inevitable if the investigation is to be more than a brush-off. At times, Richard Nixon has not looked good, but so far he has been found guilty only of a certain casualness in the conduct of his office. Meanwhile, the revelations have forced the President to dismiss some members of his staff. Whether these men were unfairly sacked is secondary to the fact that the hearings were open to the public so it could form its own opinion. No, Dole. The hearings may have become a bore and some committee members admittedly have been hamming it up for political profit, but they are part of the democratic process which says the activities of the Republic's leaders must be subject to public scrutiny because they are not in Washington by divine right.

MR. SPECTATOR

Leave It Alone

Reappearance of "flying saucer" stories in several parts of the country brings back to memory that a scientist advisor to the United States Air Force once recommended psychiatric study of persons who reported seeing flying saucers. But this seemed inadvisable on two counts: The reports might turn out to be true. The reports might turn out to be false.

Scientifically documented, authoritatively confirmed reports could set the human race back many centuries to that time when fear of the unknown dominated the thinking of man. Because the best of man's flying apparatuses are obviously incapable of capturing a flying saucer, their documented presence would provide them with the same supernatural aura lightning, thunder and fire possessed for uncivilized man. But scientific squelching of any possibility that flying saucers could be for real would have a retardatory effect on one of man's most precious faculties — his imagination.

Authors from Shakespeare to the latest crop of science fiction writers have used imagination to free the human mind from the unimaginative humdrum of daily existence. Science would be overstepping its proper confines if it categorically confirmed or denied the existence of flying saucers. Besides, Mr. Spectator points out that if it wasn't for flying saucers, what would some editors use to give the newspapers a little life during the dull-news days in the latter part of each summer? IT'S THIS WAY Mr. Spectator will be away on vacation. As a result, the Sunday column will be the last for two weeks or so. We will continue the column when we get back. In the meantime, hope you will be looking forward to reading us again — because we really like to write for you!

BACKYARD TINKERING

In the early days of the auto, backyard inventors had a field day improving on the factory's creation. Some still have not given up, in an age when the under-the-hood technology is enough to convince the layman only a computer could make sense of it all.

A Springdale, Ark., minister invented and a University of Arkansas professor perfected "a device which is claimed to both cut down on pollutants and increase gas mileage. The principal involved injecting minute quantities of an oxygen-bearing fluid into the carburetor, thereby raising the flash point and creating more complete combustion of the fuel mixture.

Whether the device fulfills the expectations of its promoters remains to be determined, but they already have proved again that inventiveness is still an open route to anyone who believes he can do something better.

The Arab Oil Torture

Fuel oil short

By United Press International
Fuel suppliers Thursday said a bad winter will mean some homes may be cold if nothing is done about a possible shortage of heating oil.

In Washington, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told newsmen a mandatory allocation system for fuels is the only way out of a bad pinch this winter. The President can do that, or the Congress can clear passage of his Senate-approved bill ordering the same thing, Jackson said.

The House Commerce Committee debated Jackson's bill and others, but delayed action until next week. Rep. Torbert MacDonal, D-Mass., told the committee not to be afraid of cutting the fuel industry's profits by forcing it to send fuel supplies into possibly unprofitable areas. Otherwise, he said, New Englanders won't get the oil they need to heat homes and hospitals.

John Love, the President's top energy adviser, told a Senate subcommittee hearing he still does not think heating oil should be under mandatory allocation.

"We believe with normal weather, a reasonable level of refinery output and imports somewhat above last year's level, we will have no major problems," he said.

Some "ifs" that he hinted could change his mind include a severe winter, some interruption of refinery operations or a big hitch in the flow of imports.

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., said the current voluntary allocation program has not worked—major oil companies are not furnishing independent dealers with the fuels they need, he contended.

Maryland jury resumes corruption investigation

BALTIMORE (UPI)—A federal grand jury Thursday resumed hearing evidence on Maryland political corruption amid secrecy so tight that one whole wing of the courthouse's fifth floor was blocked off.

Baltimore County Executive Dale Anderson, whom the grand jury indicted last month on 39 counts of extortion and bribery, was to be arraigned today. He was expected to plead innocent.

A Democrat, Anderson, 56, succeeded Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in 1967 after Agnew was elected governor.

In Washington, spokesman for both Agnew and the Sheraton-Park Hotel, where the vice president and his family lived for 4 1/2 years, said there was nothing improper about the rent he paid there. CBS News reported Thursday that Agnew paid substantially less than the usual $1,900 a month rent for his suite.

The hotel, owned by International Telephone and Telegraph, said all celebrities staying there receive a discount because they attract customers.

U.S. Attorney George Beall said the purpose of the tight security at the grand jury hearing was to assure secrecy.

"To protect that as best as humanly possible, certain steps have been taken to protect the privacy of the proceedings," he said.

yet decided whether to let the panel hear any such evidence.

Agnew was notified Aug. 2 he was under investigation, but Richardson said he has yet to decide whether the Constitution allows criminal charges to be filed against a vice president while he is in office.

The grand jury has been investigating charges that building contractors and engineers who gave large campaign contributions paid kickbacks to state officials in return for choice contracts.

Reporters, however, saw three men and a woman, identified as county officials, enter Beall's office.

The Justice Department said that there was no evidence presented concerning Agnew and that Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson had not

Alaska pipeline stalled

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Despite quick agreement Thursday by House and Senate conferees on right-of-way provisions for the Alaska pipeline, committee members said it might take all of next week to work out technical differences.

Agreement on amending the 1920 Mineral Leasing Act to widen rights-of-way over federal land came after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., consented to limit the scope of the bill to oil and gas pipelines. The Senate version would have applied to rights-of-way for power lines, canals and highways.

But Jackson and the conference committee chairman, Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said many more technical differences remain to be resolved.

"I don't see any insurmountable obstacles that are going to bring us to a deadlock," Jackson said.

The issue was holding up other legislation to permit construction of the $1.3 billion, 769-mile pipeline to bring Alaskan North Slope oil to the ice-free port of Valdez.

Mid East dogfight told

(c) Chicago Daily News
TEL AVIV—Middle Eastern skies reverted to their ceaseless gloom Friday just as quickly as they erupted the day before into the biggest Israeli-Arab air battle since the June, 1967, War.

The consensus in Israel is that the latest outburst of hostilities will not lead to a large-scale escalation involving any single Arab state or to any Arab alliance against this country.

The Israeli military command reported 13 Syrian MIG-21s shot down in two short rounds of aerial combat over the Mediterranean Sea off the coast of Syria.

Israel's losses were put at one Mirage III lost. Its pilot ejected safely into the sea.

(Pentagon sources say Syria's air force has an estimated 100 MIGs.)

No motive nor explanation was given for the unprecedented number of kills—the previous high was 11 jets downed in a single action. The clash was couched in purely military-tactical terms.

However, some observers here suspected that the Israelis were spooling for a fight with the Syrians. Several reasons were offered:

—Anger over the transfer of sophisticated, portable ground-to-air rockets by Syria and Egypt to the Palestine Arab guerrillas.

—Concern over the possibility that Jordan's King Hussein might be tempted to reopen the "eastern front" against Israel in cooperation with the Syrians, Egyptians and Saudi Arabians.

The newly appointed commander of Israel's air force, Maj. Gen. Binjamin Peled, said his warplanes were on "a routine sea patrol" when they were attacked by Syrian jets.

Briefing correspondents at a hectic news conference, the articulate English-speaking officer placed the Israeli planes at a point 100 nautical miles north of the port city of Haifa, Israel, when contact was made with elements of the Syrian Air Force.

Peled said the dogfights occurred in two phases late Thursday afternoon: In the first, nine Syrian MIG-21s were shot down and in the second, four more.

One Israeli Mirage III was hit during the first stage, its pilot ejecting safely and plucked out of the water two hours later.

A Syrian pilot—also ejected—was seen parachuting about a mile from the Israeli pilot. He too was picked up by helicopter. The Syrian was wounded and had to be hospitalized, Gen. Peled said.

The four additional kills occurred after the Israelis tried to launch an air-sea rescue operation for their pilot.

"We had to gain control of the area to make it possible for rescue helicopters to get in unharmed and rescue the pilot," Peled said.

"We sent an armed patrol into the area. The Syrians went up again to prevent or disturb the rescue. A short battle ensued and out of the four aircraft that came into contact with our aircraft all four were shot down."

When asked if the Israeli war planes had entered Syrian air space, Peled said, "They were not in Syrian air space per se. By per se I mean when the air combat was initiated they were outside Syrian air space."

This left seasoned observers skeptical, wondering if the Israelis had not "set the Syrians up" for an ambush or if they had not used decoy tactics.

The rescued Israeli pilot was brought before newsmen to tell his story.

Security regulations forbid disclosure of his name and rank. He was still wearing his gray combat overalls when he told newsmen that the Syrian jet that fell "didn't come out of nowhere."

He said he managed to bag one Syrian plane before ejecting. It was his first combat kill.

Asked to evaluate the Syrians' combat performance as a group and as individual pilots, the Israeli said "it is low as the facts show—in single combat they don't have a chance."

Initial reports of the day's engagements, which came from Lebanon, said that Israeli warplanes were attacking ground targets in Syria, but this was immediately denied by the Israeli military command.

The Syrians closed their air space to commercial aviation, shut down Damascus Airport, Lebanon's Beirut Airport also was out of bounds during the fighting, causing an incoming Air France jetliner to divert to Nicosia, Cyprus. But both airports opened soon after the crisis ended.

Church briefs

TWIN FALLS—Rev. John W. Sears, Jerome, will be guest speaker at the First Baptist church in Twin Falls Sunday, reports Rev. James Hughes, pastor.

Rev. Sears topic at the 11 a.m. worship service will be "Consider the Stars."

Graham crusade sought

SALT LAKE CITY—Many church leaders in the Rocky Mountain area are conducting a campaign to attract Rev. Billy Graham to Salt Lake City for a Greater Rocky Mountain Region Crusade.

Dr. Lawrence B. Sandberg, of the University of Utah Medical Center, said major thrust of the invitation is a petition-signing campaign with petitions available at churches.

Because of the many requests Graham receives it is necessary to get as many names as soon as possible to get the request to him, Dr. Sandberg said.

A delegation will attend the Graham crusade in St. Louis, Mo., in early November to present letters of invitation and petitions to Graham. Goal of the Rocky Mountain crusade is 75,000 signatures, according to a release from Forrest L. Stinson, superintendent of the Greater Rocky Mountain Region Crusade.

He urges persons to either obtain petitions from their local church or write to Greater Rocky Mountain Region Crusade, Box 9183, Salt Lake City, Utah, 84109.

Religious ills like leukemia

(c) Newhouse New Service.

WASHINGTON—Harvard Theologian Harvey Cox modern-day religion's infant terrible, is at it again.

"We have contracted the cultural and religious equivalent of leukemia," says the university's professor of divinity, with the white cells of "programmed" religion devouring the red cells of inward faith, just as happens to the physical body when the red-white cell balance is upset—frequently fatally.

"This is happening in everything from travel to education, and from religion to love-making," Prof. Cox goes on. "Organized sports replaces play. Profabrication makes building somewhat obsolete. Tourism takes the place of travel. Religious faith is channeled into the institutional expansion of churches."

The trend is not unrecognized by scholars, Prof. Cox adds in "The Seduction of the Spirit" (Simon & Schuster, $8.95). They realize, he declares, "that religion can no more be equated with what goes on in churches than education can be reduced to what happens in schools, or health care restricted to what doctors do to patients in clinics."

Luckily, the theologian declares, neither learning, health nor religion really face the fate of a leukemia victim, since "the vast majority of healing and learning goes on among parents and children and families and friends, far from the portals of any school or hospital. The same is true for religion: It is going on around us all the time. Religion is larger and more pervasive than churches." Luckily, the theologian declares, neither learning, health nor religion really face the fate of a leukemia victim, since "the vast majority of healing and learning goes on among parents and children and families and friends, far from the portals of any school or hospital. The same is true for religion. It is going on around us all the time. Religion is larger and more pervasive than churches."

In explaining the meaning of his new book's title (his last book, "The Secular City" sold more than 800,000 copies), Prof. Cox makes clear that "the term seduction, as I use it here, is not intended to conjure bouillabaisse."

"What interests me about the idea of seduction as applied to the spirit," he continues, "is that the great seducers of history all had one thing in common: they could use the natural needs and instincts of another person for their own selfish ends. Seducers employ the language and gesture of dialogue, trust, intimacy and personal rapport with consummate skill. "The seduction of the spirit is the calculated twisting of people's natural and healthy religious instincts" for purposes of control and domination. It is the cruellest abuse of religion, because it slyly enlists people in their own manipulation."

Today's man, Prof. Cox asserts, is "overgilded, catechized and proselytized more than ever," but his needs apparently remain the same. "One ironic result, the theologian says, is the reappearance of 'religious' practices, often quite noisily, in the streets of our secular cities," of points on long thought discarded or outgrown.

The children are given instruction each week in singing, with Mrs. Ed Sandy chorister and Mrs. John Ladliss organist.

Age group classes are held where instruction is given in a wide range of interests to the children. The Primary lasts about one hour.

Evangelist will speak

TWIN FALLS—Rev. Gerald Derstine, former Menominee minister and worldwide evangelist, will speak at the Christian Center, 181 Morrison St., Twin Falls Monday and Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Rev. Del Storey, of The Christian Center, said the speaker has "traveled and ministered extensively across the 30 states since 1955 when a phenomenal visitation of God took place in his legal Menominee church in northern Minnesota.

Rev. Derstine ministered to the Chippewa Indians on the White Earth reservation in Minnesota for about five years prior to his current inter-denominational world-wide ministry.

He has spoken in many European countries and different continents. He is associated with Harvest Time Publications, which include a monthly magazine, Herald of Faith-Harvest Time, distributed in more than 45 countries of the world.

He also is associated with two Christian retreat camp and conference grounds, Rev. Storey said. One is located in northern Minnesota and the other in Bradenton, Fla., where ministers of different denominations teach and share.

Rev. Derstine also is president of Gospel Crusade, Inc., in Haiti, a mission including churches, schools, medical dispensary, food program and orphanage.

Carey church gets new bell

CAREY—The Larkin Memorial Community Church, Carey, will now be able to welcome worshippers with the peal of a bell.

The new bell, 12 new pews and a new Sunday School classroom were dedicated Sunday in special rites at the church.

Funice Billingsley located and arranged purchase of the bell. It was painted and installed by Norris Romans, aided by church members.

The new pews were donated by members of the church and church friends in different communities in Idaho. The additional room was constructed by Ralph Buck, aided by his grandson and church members.

The dedication ceremonies began with an opening prayer by Rev. Don Kunkel, pastor of the church. Jay Strode delivered the welcoming address, followed by two songs by the children of the church.

Rev. Kunkel gave the prayer of dedication. A moment of silence for the late professor Robert Larkin, who donated money to erect the church in 1950, was followed by ringing of the bell by Gilbert Cross.

Rev. Kunkel and his son Don Kunkel completed the program by singing a duet of "Bless This House" accompanied by Mrs. Kunkel on the piano.

Jesus deck good for solitaire

(c) Chicago Daily News.

A straight flush can give you the story of the incarnation, a survey of Jesus' public life, an account of his passion and death, for a look at the risen Jesus.

It's all there in the Jesus deck, a set of playing cards in which Matthew, Mark, Luke and John are equivalent to diamonds, hearts, clubs and spades.

The 54-card Jesus deck, including two jokers, probably won't be used much by the Saturday-night poker crowd.

But inspirational solitaire, one of several games recommended, might be just the thing for a tired monk.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market, concerned about rising interest rates, opened slightly lower Friday in moderate trading of the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones Industrial average was off 0.15 at 800.42 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 153 to 150, among the 452 issues crossing the tape.

The first-hour turnover amounted to more than 370,000 shares.

Late Thursday, Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco raised its prime rate to a historic high of 10 per cent. Eastern banks are expected to follow, but slowly. This has investors concerned.

There were reports out of Washington in the past two days President Nixon is considering a tax increase to offset the inflationary trend. This also has concerned investors.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a wonderful man who's been talking marriage. The problem is his 38-year-old daughter. She's never been married and lives with him. Her mother died 15 years ago, and she isn't interested in dating or going anywhere except with her father. This daughter has never earned a dollar in her life. She keeps telling her father he's too old to marry again (the most certainly is NOT!) and he's taken her to Europe, South America, to the Orient, name it and they've been there. He is such a dear and generous man, he doesn't want to hurt his daughter, but he says he loves me, and if I'll just be patient, in time his daughter will eventually come around to accepting me. I want to marry this man, but I'm afraid it's hopeless. What do you think?

GIVING UP

Daughter objects

DEAR GIVING: It's hopeless, unless Father tells Daughter that it's important for her to start making a life of her own because he's not going to be around forever. Unless I miss my guess, Daughter might need some psychological surgery to separate her from her father. Unless Father is willing to go along with the above-mentioned suggestion, forget him. "Time" accomplishes nothing. People do.

DEAR ABBY: My "ex" and I have been divorced for 10 months, and I have custody of our four sons, ages 5 to 16. My "ex" has unrestricted visitation rights which he seldom uses, although we're all in the same city.

The few times he's come to see the boys, he just drives up in front of the house, honks his horn, and expects the boys to come running. [They do, of course.] He never offers to take them for a ride. He just visits with them while they stand in the street, and he sits in his car.

I feel this is degrading to the boys and have told the older one to please tell his father that he is welcome to come in our home to visit, and I would absent myself while he's here. [The divorce was so messy, my "ex" can't look me in the face.]

The last time he was here, our 13-year-old asked him for his address so he could write to him or maybe visit him there, and his father quickly drove off without even answering him. Needless to say, the boy was hurt and burst into tears, and his brothers were upset, too.

The boys say they feel funny standing on the street. How can this awkward situation be handled?

HURTING FOR THE BOYS

DEAR HURTING: Your 16-year-old should be sufficiently mature to tell Father that it's embarrassing to stand outside, visiting, and in the future he should please come in the house. [He can repeat the fact that "Mother" will not be around.] If that doesn't do it, since you're not speaking, perhaps your lawyer could write his lawyer a letter.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old adult who writes like an 8-year-old child. As you can see, my penmanship is horrid! My husband is so embarrassed, he doesn't want me to address our Christmas cards. I try to slow down and write very carefully, but I find myself grasping the pen so hard my fingers ache.

I realize this is something that should have been corrected during my first few years in school, but unfortunately it wasn't.

This may not seem like a very serious problem to you, but it is to me.

Any suggestions you can give me will certainly be appreciated.

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: I read every word of your letter with no difficulty and believe me, I have been worse. Strive for legibility, and don't worry about the rest.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 89760, L. A., Calif. 90049. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

When he led dummy's 10 of spades, East played low and South let West score his singleton queen. West did the best he could by cashing his ace of diamonds, but that was the last trick for the defense. Of course, South could have made seven if he had wanted to play for it and known the trump situation. After winning the first spade, he could have returned to dummy with a low club, finessed against East's jack of trumps and spatted down. How should he have played the hand if he had been in six? Just that way. It was both the best play and the play that would work.

CARD Sense

Some people like to barge ahead recklessly without paying any attention to warning signals. Sometimes they go a long way, on other occasions they wind up in the hospital. South ruffed the heart lead in dummy and remarked, "We may have missed a grand slam. Still I suppose I had better try to make live." He ruffed the heart in dummy while making his speech.

2 Idahoans against bill

By LESTER KINSOLVING
Times News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Idaho's two Republican congressmen, Orval Hansen and Steve Symms, both helped defeat an $11 million dollar bill to provide California with "pre-disaster" aid for a claimed major fire hazard caused from dead eucalyptus trees.

The outspoken Symms said that no federal land is involved and that California is refunding money to its taxpayers this year.

He described inflation as "a different kind of fire hazard." "If we set up a basement printing press and were making perfect copies of U.S. currency, we could be in a position for counterfeiting," Symms told the Times News. "But the government has sanctity of legality when they counterfeit money. That is legalized robbery in the debasing currency."

Symms voted against citing convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy for contempt of Congress. The citation was supported by a unanimous vote of all 20 members on the Armed Service committee.

Hansen's office reported the congressman was in Denver Thursday at a meeting of the American Mining Congress "because those votes weren't critical."

Ranch funds sufficient despite donation drop

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times News Writer

RUPERT — Although contributions to the Idaho Youth Ranch have dropped drastically since a wave of resignations and investigations last May there are "sufficient funds" for operation.

Executive director of the Idaho Youth Ranch James Worsley said Thursday that because ranch contributions are picking up, because the ranch receives income from leased farm lands and because the ranch had some cash reserve at the time of the upheaval, "we do have sufficient funds for operation."

Contributions to the ranch, which were down to about four per cent of the total contributions of the year before in July, now pay only about a third of the cost of the program.

August contributions from all sources this year brought in only about $6,000 while the ranch cost nearly $10,000 to operate, Worsley said. Because the farm account brought in $20,000, the ranch was able to meet last month's accounts, he said. Earlier this week, Worsley had said "ordinary" contributions had declined to $400 a month from its previous $3,000.

Contributions in August, 1972, were in excess of $30,000. It costs about $400 a month to keep a boy at the ranch, Worsley said, of which the state pays $150. Only two boys have remained at the ranch this summer, although four more boys are expected to arrive within the next week, he said.

As soon as the new ranch program is established, Worsley said, he will begin making personal calls to ask for donations to the ranch. "I'm confident that when we get out and show the people what's happening at the ranch now, contributions will pick up," he said.

Meanwhile, he said, he needs "a lot of prayers."

The ranch's board of directors will meet Saturday to review and hopefully approve the new ranch program, Worsley said. When the program is approved by the ranch's board of directors, it will be presented to the Department of Environmental and Community Services for review, he said.

The ranch's intake policy committee will meet next week to review several new applications for admission to the ranch, he said. The committee, which consists of ranch and Minidoka School District personnel, evaluates the needs of the boys and determines if they will be admitted, he said.

Under the new program, all the boys at the ranch will be attending school in the Minidoka district. The two boys currently at the ranch are enrolled in the schools now.

DOROTHY GRIEVE, Gooding home extension agent, checks in 4-H clothing projects at the South Central Idaho District 4-H Fair in Jerome. The fair began Tuesday and runs through Saturday. A highlight of Saturday's schedule will be a style revue with 400 4-H members modeling their clothing projects.

Mini-Cassia aide urged

RUPERT — Minidoka and Cassia counties were advised to jointly hire "some sort of professional planner" Thursday.

Paul Kelly, executive director of the South Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association, made "the recommendation at a meeting of the Minidoka County Planning and Zoning Commission. Such a step would be "advantageous" in the development of comprehensive land use plans for the two counties, he said.

Counties are required to develop comprehensive plans, in order to receive certain types of federal funds, he said.

Kelly also advised the Minidoka Planning and Zoning Commission to develop a comprehensive plan before going ahead with revisions in its zoning ordinance.

"Before you revise the ordinance, go ahead with a comprehensive plan," Kelly said, "then revise the ordinance in light of what you have in the comprehensive plan."

"Zoning is the result of planning and does not take the place of it," Kelly said. He said it was not necessary to hire a professional planner to draw up a total comprehensive plan because "the bulk of the work will be done by the people themselves."

In emphasizing the importance of planning, Kelly noted that zoning ordinances are often taken to court and thrown out as invalid. A zoning ordinance based on an approved and established comprehensive plan has a stronger basis in court, he said.

Lightning causes outage

TWIN FALLS — Lightning accompanying a brief rain storm this morning caused a brief power outage and turned in a false fire alarm.

Firemen said they sent all three engines to the Child Development Center building on Addison Avenue West after lightning shorted out two lines and tripped the automatic fire alarm in the building.

The storm struck about 7:50 a.m. near the hospital, causing a brief outage in that area.

Free on bond

TWIN FALLS — Ronald R. Spearing, 20, Twin Falls, appeared in Magistrate Court Thursday afternoon and waived preliminary hearing on two charges of embezzlement.

Both charges involve his alleged appropriation of funds from the firm while serving as manager of the Twin Falls office. The court continued bond of $1,000. He has been free on bond since shortly after his arrest several months ago.

TF man awaits hearing

TWIN FALLS — William McDowell, 21, Twin Falls, charged with first-degree burglary, waived preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Thursday afternoon.

Projects outlined

1,000 projects entered

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times News Writer

JEROME — More than 1,000 Magic Valley youths entered projects Thursday in the South Central Idaho District 4-H fair being held here.

Wednesday contestants entered their projects in the modern beef contest. Thursday all projects, with the exception of livestock were accepted in preparation for judging.

Students from the nine counties participating in the fair were given Friday as a day-off in their respective school districts so they could participate in the day's events.

Horse judging was held in the rodeo arena this morning with Reed Humphrey and George Hamilton as judges. Also on the morning agenda was judging of exhibits entered at the grounds Thursday.

Home economics projects and demonstrations were housed in the National Guard armory. Judges in the junior and intermediate divisions were Adeline Beaver, Mary Lee Wood and Martha Ruby. For the senior and special demonstrations judges were Annette Gustavson, Alice Reed, and Barbara Burkhart.

For the junior, senior and intermediate agricultural demonstrations judges were Roy Taylor, Bob Higgins and Leon Church.

Saturday the fair will close following a schedule of events including home economics judging contest at 8 a.m. followed by the livestock judging contest at 9 a.m. At 10 a.m. the livestock fitting and showing in quality will be held following fitting and showing with Carl Feldusen as judge. At 10 a.m. poultry, rabbits, dairy and dogs will be judged. Judges in these events include Glenn Foss, Garv Custer and Robert Burton.

At 11:30 a.m. Saturday the junior-style review for ages through 13 will be held in the 4-H exhibit building. Judging will be Mary Lee Wood; Carolyn Barnes and Virginia Mink.

Tractor driving contests will be held in front of the National Guard Armory and a tree identification contest will be in the exhibit building. Both events will be held at 1 p.m. At 2 p.m. the senior style review for girls 14 years of age and older will be held. The final event will be the awards assembly at 6 p.m. in the exhibit building.

Shoshone sets music benefit

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Country Music Association, Inc., Sunday will play for a benefit dance for the Lincoln County Swimming pool fund and the fourth Tuesday of each month members of the association provide free entertainment for the members of convalescent homes in the area.

The "Salute to Country Music" with proceeds to go to the College of Southern Idaho athletic department will be held at 8 p.m. Oct. 8 in the CSI Fine Arts Center.

The 13th annual Country Music Jamboree is scheduled for 8 p.m. Jan. 26-27 at the CSI Fine Arts Center.

The group was formed several years ago when a local rancher and noted musician called a group of musicians together for a "jam" session in his home. The sessions became an annual event and grew to such proportions that homes would not longer hold the people and they had to move into a larger building.

After several of the sessions the members decided to find a building large enough to hold the public, charge an admission fee, and give the proceeds to a local charity.

Through past Country Music Jamborees, many thousands of dollars have been donated to many worthy local charities and service organizations such as the Idaho Youth Ranch, the Idaho Eagle Seal Center, the YM-YWCA swimming pool fund, Civitan projects, the Harbor House of Magic Valley, CSI music scholarships and several worthy individuals.

The association is a non-profit service organization promoting western music and serving the people of Magic Valley.

Carletta Cox is president; Rudy Williamson, vice president; Carrol Shafer, secretary; Beryl Devercomb, treasurer, and Don Capps, Cliff Haak and Ben Lozier, board of directors.

Canning jars in low supply

At Bottrey's it was the same story. The store received 100 pint jars Monday and they were gone in two hours time. All store managers contacted agreed they had no idea when they would get additional jars, but they all are sure of one thing — they could sell however many they receive quickly.

Many stores have lists of names of customers requesting jars when they do arrive.

Many customers have indicated they do not know what they will do since they all have produce but nothing to put in.

Operators of orchards in the Hagerman valley say the shortage of jars also affects them since people are not buying as much fruit as usual.

The metal lids for home canning also have been somewhat difficult to obtain, store managers said, but are not as critical as the jars.

The problem with the lids seems to be more caused by shortage of rail transportation than in the production, local store managers said. But Up Kerr release lists a shortage of tin plates used in the lids.

The Kerr Co. also has said it would not have had storage space for the number of jars the public is demanding this fall.

The unavailability of glass jars for home canning is helping create heavier use of canning kitchen facilities this year. The Twin Falls kitchen is staying open three days last week, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, an extra day over last year's schedule.

Mrs. Stump said if the weather stays favorable the kitchen will remain open until Oct. 12. She urges people to take their cans home the same day they are processed to save space on the shelves.

Appointments which are needed only for chili, pork and beans and ham and beans, are filled through the season, she said. No appointments are needed for other items.

TF man scores Nader report

TWIN FALLS — Allegations made in a report by Ralph Nader on the hearing aid industry are not only factually wrong but materially harmful to millions of Americans, Jack Warberg, Twin Falls, secretary of the Idaho Hearing Aid Society, said Friday.

Warberg said the report was "viciously biased."

Warberg was especially critical of statements made by Nader when he testified before members of the Special Senate Committee on the Aging, chaired by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho.

At that time the consumer advocate said "the high-profit, low-sales volume hearing aid industry uses many of the business community's worst practices to sell hearing aids — practices totally unacceptable for any industry — let alone the health industry."

He also said the industry has "failed to adequately furnish quality services, products and information."

But, Warberg said, "The main reason people with even severe hearing impairment don't take steps to correct or improve their hearing is that they are timid or reluctant to seek help which, in at least 95 per cent of the cases, is ready at hand."

"We estimate that at least 14.5 million people today need a hearing instrument, while only 2.5 million of them wear one. The effect of the viciously biased Nader report is to drive these handicapped people further back into their silence and despair."

Warberg said Nader was "soiling on the real or imagined, but certainly grossly exaggerated, faults of a tiny minority of hearing aid dealers and manufacturers" in his report.

Warberg also said investigators working on the report had used unfair techniques to gather their information.

ISU prof tries to regain job

BOISE (UPI) — Rufus Lyman, a professor of biological sciences who was fired from Idaho State University in April, will go to court Sept. 27 to try and get his teaching job back.

Lyman was fired by the State Board of Education for "direct controversion of a policy" outlined by the board. He had taught at the university for 25 years and was a tenured faculty member.

Lyman filed suit in federal district court Aug. 8, asking for his reinstatement plus damages.

A supporting document to the request said "intervention of this court is essential at this time in order to avoid irreparable harm to Dr. Lyman."

Named in the original suit were members of the State Board of Education, William E. Davis, President of ISU, and other officials at the university.

Wendell city councilman sworn

WENDELL — Denton Adams was sworn as a new Wendell city councilman at Thursday's city council meeting.

He was appointed because of the resignation, last month, of Dale Gilbert. Gilbert had cited a "lack of cooperation" between the council and the mayor as his reason for resigning.

A letter of resignation from Ivan Myers, city superintendent, was read. He said "because of the lack of cooperation and communication between the mayor, city council and city employees, I find it impossible to continue in the position of city superintendent." Myers has worked for the city of Wendell for about a year.

Mayor Eugene Soares when asked if there was any evidence of lack of cooperation on his part, said "I have no idea what he (Myers) means. There was no lack of cooperation that I know of." Myers was unavailable for comment.

City Clerk Gwen Collett announced that petitions for nominations for mayor and three city councilmen are now ready at the city office.

Councilman Bud Bitterli and Vernon Mason both have expiring four year terms. Denton Adams' two year term must be filled at the election. The position of mayor also will be open during the election.

Possible legal action against the city for trespassing was discussed. A letter from attorney S.A. Coleman says that his client, M. L. Gates, charges that the city trespassed his property when street drainage ditches were dug along a street right of way.

The city claims it didn't trespass and will have a survey made of the area in question.

Minico moratorium asked

RUPERT — The Minidoka County Zoning Board recommended to the county commissioners Thursday evening that they set moratorium limiting building in high sub-water areas for the next two years.

The moratorium would prohibit construction of buildings in high sub-water areas on less than five acres of land, and limit construction of septic tanks.

A high sub-water area was defined as any agricultural land where the water table is less than 48 inches from the land surface. Originally set at 40 inches, the stipulation was changed at the urging of Gerald Hurst, environmental director for the South Central District Health Department, who said his agency would not permit construction where the water table was less than 48 inches below the surface.

The recommendation came at the urging of Minidoka County Commissioner Jo Hills, a member of the zoning board. It will take effect immediately upon passage by the commissioners, after a public hearing.

Hurst reported to the zoning board that potato waste is still being kept in a gravel pit on the Lynn Manning property north of Rupert. Manning has met zoning-board regulations by setting the pit back at least 1,000 feet from any dwellings, he said, but questioned whether the waste was intended for use as feed.

Manning met with the board last month and said the potato waste was being stored for use as cattle feed.

State regulations would prohibit the use of the open pit according to solid waste regulations, Hurst said, if the waste were not going to be used for feed.

County prosecuting attorney Robert Nielsen said he would "take care of it" in cooperation with Hurst.

Nielsen, who is Manning's nephew, said, "If there is a conflict, I will petition the court to replace me." "If any law is being violated, however, he said, he would prosecute "even if it was my own mother."

Nielsen said the operation would not be open to suit as a public nuisance as the odor was not that bad, the area is a commercial area and it complies to the zoning ordinance.

"If it is just wasting the potatoes there it would be against state regulations, but if it is used as feed, it can't be prosecuted, he said.

The area along the Rupert-Paul Highway, which has been considered commercially zoned by the board after a revision nearly six years ago, is still zoned residential, Nielsen told the board.

Apparently the change in the ordinance was never published as required by law and was not recorded in the minutes of the board meetings.

Commercial buildings constructed along the highway in the past six years could not be forced to move, however, Nielsen said.

No action on the issue was taken by the board.

scored almost at will in trouncing University of Texas at El Paso 82-14 and Vandals Coach Don Robbins says he feels Boise State will be a good scoring team.

Idaho proved last weekend it can put points on the board as it scored almost at will in trouncing University of Texas at El Paso 82-14 and Vandals coach Don Robbins says he feels Boise State will be a good scoring team.

One difference is, however, that the Broncos were able to scout Idaho against UTEP last Saturday, but the Boise-Idaho game is the Broncos' first of the year.

Robbins said he expected Boise State to come out with its double split end line up it has used in the past, but other than that he doesn't know much about the team.

Castleford falls to Jerome JV

CASTLEFORD — The Jerome Jayvees capped a long scoring march with 22 seconds left in the game to edge the Castleford Wolves 18-12 Thursday night.

Bruin sops edge Capital

BOISE — The Twin Falls sophomores turned back a two-point conversion by Capital sophomores in the waning minutes to take a see-saw 27-28 decision.

The young Eagles, helped by three 15-yard penalties against Twin Falls, moved ahead 20-13 on another drive but lik took an option pitch and went 40 yards and then followed with a two-point conversion to send the Bruins ahead 21-20.

O'Leary frosh drop Stuart

Bob Latham showed a little broken field talent on a 79 yard quarterback sneak and Rudy DeLeon scored on a 37-yard reverse play as O'Leary's frosh topped Stuart 16-6 Thursday night.

Minnesota's young Gophers meet grizzled Buckeyes in opener

By BILL MADDEN UPI Sports Writer If Coach Cal Stoll, is somewhat worried about his youth movement at the University of Minnesota, you can't really blame him.

The oldsmakers like Ohio State by better than 19 points—and that's without senior quarterback Greg Haru who is sidelined with a leg injury.

Blancas takes lead in Heritage meet

HILTONHEAD ISLAND, S.C. (UPI) — Monsanto Open champion Honoria Blancas weathered two rain delays Thursday to fire a 5-under-par 66 and take a one stroke lead after the first round of the $150,000 Heritage Open golf tournament.

Blancas ran in seven birdies—two of them with 30-foot putts on the final two holes—against only two bogeys to edge witness John Mahaffey and big Jim Wiechers, who each posted 67's.

Arnold Palmer, veteran Julius Boros, George Archer and U.S. Match Play runnerup DeWitt Weaver were in a bunch at 70.

SENIOR TACKLE Bill Miller and his Twin Falls teammates will meet the Idaho Falls Tigers in the conference opener at 8 p.m. tonight at Bruin Stadium. Miller, 6-1, 205, a two-year starter, is slated for action both ways.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

The science boys say 16 hours of uninterrupted sleep actually might kill some citizens. Because of the carbon monoxide that builds up in the blood... To breathe the oxygen used during said sleep. Doesn't happen, though. You and I have little alarm clocks of our own that jangle us awake to keep us from getting overly carbon monoxidized.

Nearly all of the world's rubies for years came out of the Mogok Mines of Burma. And for years nearly all of the miners who labored therein were called upon to wear locked steel mesh cages over their heads. So none could swallow those little gems. Hard labor.

The penologists now report 52 per cent of the inmates in the country's jails are locked therein for reasons other than crime convictions.

Understand a Missouri newspaperman has put together a tree that consistently turns out two-pound apples. Among parakeets, it's the male, not the female, who does all the talking, surprisingly. It's the claim of some London card players that the actor Omar Sharif is one of the 40 best bridge players in the world. Master, your chances of bagging a white mallard duck are now calculated to be one in 20 million. Did you know fuel makes up just about half of everything now that's transported in this country?

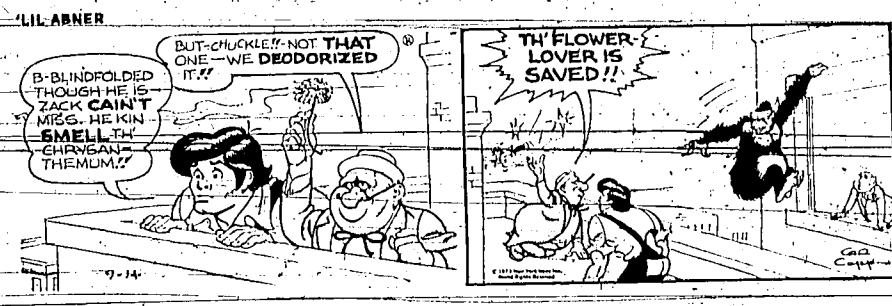

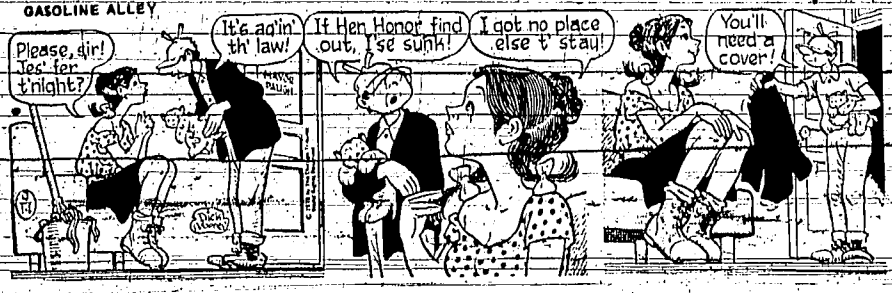

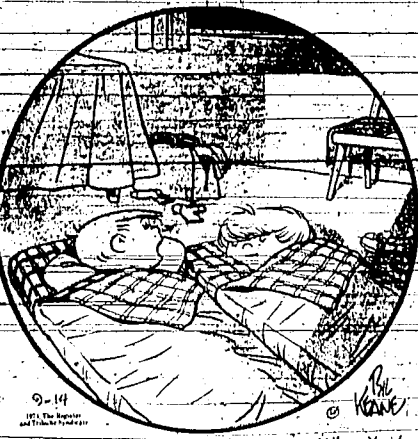

QUIRIES FROM CLIENTS

- Q "How many of the 25 tallest buildings in the world are in Moscow?"
A: Just one. And another one in Warsaw. And two in Toronto. And the rest in the United States.
- Q "Has there ever been a tribe of people in recorded history who didn't speak some sort of language?"
A: Not a one.
- Q "How many children have lived in the White House?"
A: One hundred seventy-eight.
- Q "Who originated the term 'inferiority complex'?"
A: Alfred Adler. Altor Sigmund Freud originated the term 'complex'.

OPTIMISTS

Would you like to live part of your life over again? When pollsters put that query to a sufficient sampling of souls around the country, not just some but most said "yes." Specifically, about 67 per cent agreed they'd much wish to have a second chance at some performance. The 43 per cent who said "no" showed little faith they might fix whatever went wrong. Some scholars interpret the foregoing as a fair indication of how many are optimists, how many pessimists.

Horoscope

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1973
GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is one of the most curious of days, astrologically speaking, and it wavers back and forth between good and difficult influences, but one can truthfully say this is no Saturday to take chances or spend more than one can truly afford, so saving money, counting your dollars and being friendly are musts.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Figure out how to get real estate you have and bank account improved, added to today. Honesty is the keynote now when dealing with others. Take no risks where social communications are concerned.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Analyze your appearance and yourself as a whole now and see where to make improvements. Don't get taken in by quacks where health treatments are concerned. Stick to the tried and true.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan to get all those small duties out of the way and forget the social or fun things for the time being. Not a good day for expanding either. Plan to assist one in trouble during free time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Weed out those friends who are more a hindrance than anything else and use your time and money more wisely. Let your aims be more conservative than in the past. Show you are practical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Try to get into activities that will put you in a good position with bigwigs and add to present prestige. Make sure you do not take any chances in the active world, or it could cost you a pretty penny. Think logically.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Being interested in new outlets is fine but make certain to study all phases well, or you could lose your shirt. Use your good judgment as well as your fine hunches for best results. Avoid one who puts a dampener on your ideas.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Ideal day to keep those promises that have been impossible to attend to during busy week and pay the bills that are vital. Show you have good judgment and do not go simply on hunches. Combine both ideally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure you keep confidential whatever has been told you by mate or associate, or you lose their goodwill. Do not enter into any public argument, or you come out the loser. Quietly walk away from it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do whatever will make your surroundings more charming and steer clear of those who want to waste your time or get you confused. Take the health treatments that make you feel aces. Even up fine for entertaining at home.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have to get into tasks you hardly like part of the day, but then go out for a happy time and feel better. Use that snide more and you find others are more responsive. Take any little emergency in your stride.

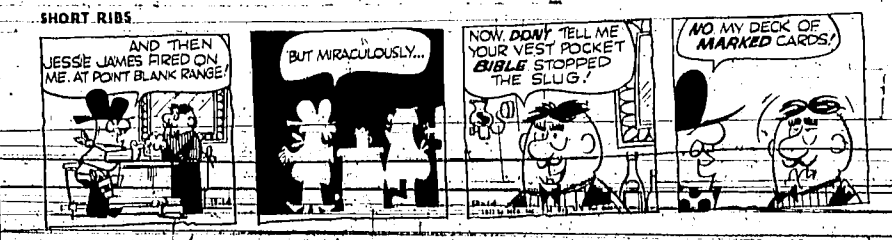

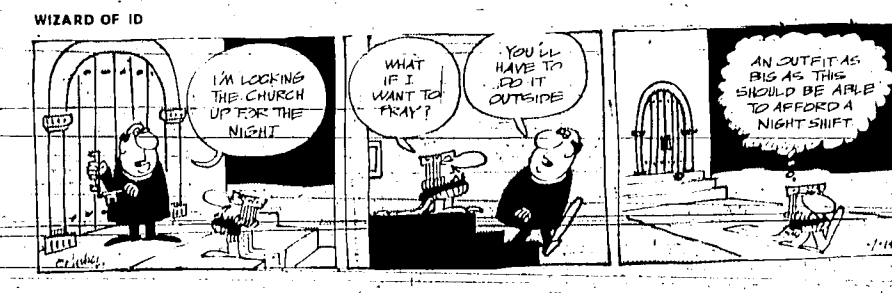

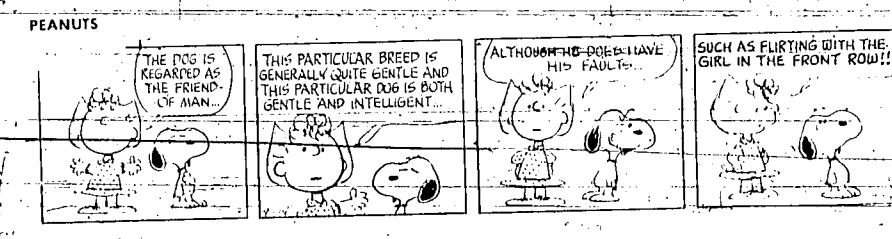

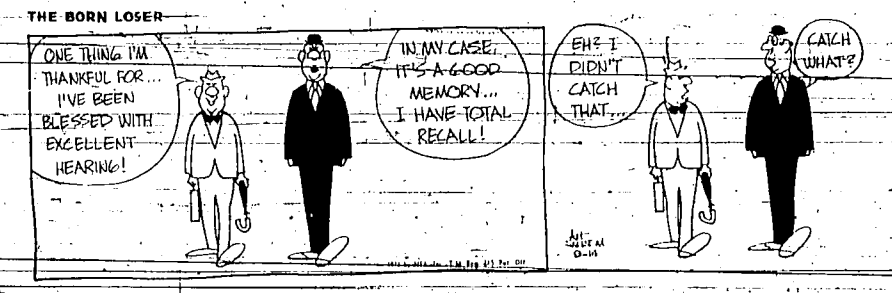

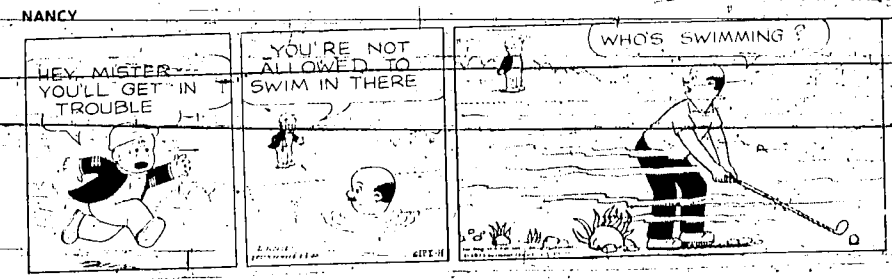

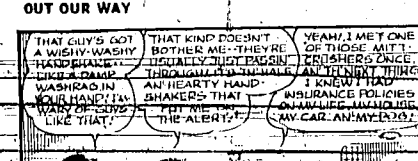

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep busy in the outside world and do errands, chores, so you avoid possible arguments that could start at home. Make progress. Stave off trouble at home in p.m. by the simple expedient of a smile.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Keep busy at the reports and statements that are important and keep out of trouble today. Work on monetary matters until they are properly arranged. Improve hobbies with friends in the evening.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those interesting young people who will vacillate from one idea or point of view to another if you do not teach early to set a straight path and follow it, after making certain all facts and figures are accurate. Slant the education along lines of real estate, property management, public utilities, etc., where precision and neatness are the requirements. Give good religious training and teach to love sports.

"The Stars, my dear, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

DECS law rapped

S. FRIEDMAN
Lecturer

BOISE (UPI) — A Land developer told the Department of Environmental and Community Services Thursday that a proposed air pollution control regulation for shopping centers was too stringent.

A DECS proposal would require department approval prior to construction start of any future shopping center, sports arena or other facility providing parking for 675 or more automobiles.

J. R. Sparrow, representing Daum Industries, Nampa, and the International Council of Shopping Centers, suggested increasing the minimum number of cars to 1,250.

Purpose of the proposed regulation, considered at a brief public hearing Thursday morning, would be to prevent pollution from motor vehicles concentrated in a small area.

Sparrow was one of only two persons to testify at the hearing. The other, Mel Alsaeger, Boise, expressed concern on the part of the associated industries of Idaho about the study used as a basis for proposed additional controls on dust in downtown business areas.

He said the two communities used for the studies — Moscow and Twin Falls — have little industry. But he said one DECS' suggestion for controlling dust is tighter controls on industry.

If industry needs tighter controls, he said, then the study should have been conducted in areas with more industry.

UFO program slated

TWIN FALLS — Stanton T. Friedman, nuclear physicist, lecturer and UFO expert, is scheduled to speak Wednesday at Twin Falls.

He will appear in the Pine Arts Auditorium of the College of Southern Idaho at 8 p.m. for a lecture on Unidentified Flying Objects with a slide program of UFO's collected from throughout the world. The program will be followed by a discussion.

Friedman says he is the only space scientist devoting full time to the science of "Ufology." He has spent more than 13 years in the study and investigation of "flying saucers" and has become convinced during that time earth is being visited by intelligently controlled vehicles from somewhere other than earth.

His talk covers data from several scientific UFO studies, misconceptions about UFO's, travel to the stars, "humanoids" and the faulty arguments of the "educated" non-believers and other concepts of UFO reports.

Friedman has published and presented many technical papers and has published articles on flying saucers in the press and professional journals.

For 14 years he has worked with nuclear aircraft, nuclear rockets, fusion rockets and nuclear powerplants for space and earthbound applications.

He has also appeared on a number of television shows including programs with Steve Allen, Muntz, Headshop and Jop, Pyne shows.

Tickets are available at the door prior to the program.

Miss Friedman says she and her fellow recollers want to know the names of the clients of Richard Bieber, Miss McDermott's lobbyist husband, and the bills for which he has lobbied.

She said they also want to know Miss McDermott's income for the past five years and want an affidavit about whether she and Bieber filed income tax returns separately or jointly.

Miss McDermott has not replied to the requests.

Mental health service aired

BOISE (UPI) — Comprehensive community-based mental health services soon will be available to residents of Canyon, Owyhee, Payette, Washington and Adams counties, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said Thursday.

Andrus said these services will be provided by the Department of Environmental and Community Services to ensure complete statewide accessibility to services for all citizens regardless of where they live.

These services to be provided will include individual therapy and counseling, family therapy and counseling, marriage counseling, alcohol and drug abuse counseling and diagnostic and evaluation services.

Andrus said the program also will provide special services for child abuse cases both for the children and the parents.

"Mental health problems can often place a severe stress on the family unit," Andrus said. "With this type of community delivery system the family unit can be kept together and participate in the treatment process."

He said the only area now without these services is the greater Twin Falls area and the department is looking forward to providing comprehensive mental health services in that area in the near future.

Not only will the new program provide for services directly for state offices, he said, it will provide for staff at an in-patient unit at Mercy Medical Center, the College of Idaho, Northwest Nazarene College and school district in Nampa, Weiser, Payette, Fruitland and New Plymouth.

About $670,000 will be spent on this project in the first year, Andrus said, but only 10 per cent of the monies will come from state sources. He said the state has obtained a $613,307 federal grant.

Intermountain Gas Co. wants to raise its rates an average of 40 cents per residential customer to offset wholesale gas price increases of nearly $1 million a year.

The Public Utilities Commission has scheduled a public hearing on the rate increase applications for 9 a.m. Oct. 9 in Boise.

Read Penning, manager of gas supply for Intermountain Gas, said the company has applied for two rate increases. The first, 2.1 per cent, would go into effect Oct. 10 and amount to 32 cents per month for the average customer.

The second increase, 4 per cent and average approximately seven cents per month.

Both increases and an increase of 1.5 per cent that went into effect April 15, 1973, are tracking increases. They are to cover gas cost increases we have absorbed from El Paso Gas Co. over the past six months," he said.

Washington (UPI) — Congressman Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, has called for continued reclamation development in the west as "one of the most effective means to meet the nation's growing food requirements."

Hansen joined with a group of senators and representatives from all western states in presenting to Interior Secretary Rogers Morton a strong case for bringing more land into agriculture production through sound reclamation projects.

Hansen said the disappearance of farm surpluses and the need for expanded food production had removed one of the principal obstacles to further reclamation development.

Sentenced

BOISE (UPI) — A former New York City man has been sentenced to 18 months in prison by a Federal District Court judge in Boise for failure to complete his obligations to the armed services.

Joseph Alexander Danca, who had lived in Brooklyn, N. Y., was committed to the custody of the US Attorney General and sentenced to a federal prison for 18 months at which time he will be eligible for parole.

The criminal complaint said Danca "unlawfully and knowingly, failed to perform duties required of him under the military selective service act."

Income source sought

POCATELLO (UPI) — A leader in the movement to recall Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, has challenged her formally to disclose her income sources since taking office.

Mrs. Paula West, Pocatello, secretary of the recall McDermott movement in Legislative District 34, made her demand in an open and signed letter to Miss McDermott.

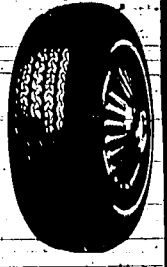

It marked the first time those trying to recall the veteran legislator have put out a signed statement to the news media. In the past they have requested anonymity.

Mrs. West specifically asked Miss McDermott to reveal her financial activities over the past five years. She said she and her fellow recollers want to know the names of the clients of Richard Bieber, Miss McDermott's lobbyist husband, and the bills for which he has lobbied.

She said they also want to know Miss McDermott's income for the past five years and want an affidavit about whether she and Bieber filed income tax returns separately or jointly.
