County drops rim guard zone

By GEORGE WILEY and DAVID HORSMAN Times-News writers

TWIN FALLS—Citing a procedural mistake by their zoners, the Twin Falls County Commissioners Monday discarded as illegal a proposed protective zone along the Snake River Canyon Rim.

The 300-foot wide agricultural zone along the canyon had been recommended unanimously by the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission as a part of a proposed county zoning package.

The zoners had made the recommendation following a public hearing last month. The county commissioners will hold their own public hearing on the proposed zoning ordinance—without rim protection—tonight at 8 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium.

The commissioners apparently decided to discard the setback proposal after a luncheon meeting Monday with Robert Alexander, a Twin Falls attorney retained by the county for zoning advice, and L. James Koutnik, chairman of the zoning commission.

After the meeting, Commissioner William improper, but not illegal. If the zoners wanted to change the ordinance after their public hearing, he said, they should have revised it, published it again, and called another public hearing on the new version.

The county commissioners can consider only the published version of the ordinance, according to Alexander.

"Basically my advice is that they adopt or reject the ordinance as published," he said. Any change in the published ordinance would have to come after adoption "on an amendment basis," Alexander added.

The commissioners, apparently referred to "after-adoption amendments" Monday when they said the 300-foot setback proposal would not be acted upon "at this time."

Since the zoners' recommendation was made after publication of the ordinance, the setback is not "officially" before the commission for action, Wiseman said.

"The recommendation has nothing to do with the zoning ordinance at this time," said Commissioner Merl Leonard.

The commissioners said they did not know what action, if any, they might eventually take on the setback.

"You're asking us to draw something out of the top of our hat," Commissioner Chairman William Chaucey said.

Wiseman said the commission could not change the proposed ordinance from its published form without republishing a new version at an "excessive expense" to county taxpayers.

He also said there was no feeling among the commissioners that the rim setback would be given top priority as an amendment if the proposed ordinance is adopted.

Postpone zoning decision — Editorial, p. 6

Wiseman said, in his opinion, the county zoners acted "illegally" in recommending the rim setback after the proposed ordinance had already been published.

Alexander said the zoners' action was

LAST CHANCE TO SAVE CANYON LAND FROM PLASTIC WORLD

Downtown TF sign promotes hearing

Rim zone hot topic tonight

By DAVID HORSMAN Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Snake River Canyon Rim will be the overriding topic at tonight's public hearing on the proposed Twin Falls County zoning ordinance.

Nearly 500 high school students want the rim preserved, and will say so in a petition to be presented at the hearing at 8 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

A new organization — Concerned Citizens to Save the Rim — will make its debut tonight. Listing local physicians and attorneys among its members, the group will ask for a moratorium on all rim development.

An unimaged condition of canyon rim land owners, those who reportedly have the most to lose if the rim is preserved for public use, will submit a petition objecting to agricultural zoning of the rim north of Twin Falls City.

And the League of Women Voters, which has followed the conception, growth and maturity of the proposed ordinance closer than any other private group, will make another statement, again asking for protection of the "natural and scenic resources" of the rim.

But most of the testimony will be dilled by the fact that it must be repeated at other, yet unscheduled public hearings.

The hearings will be necessary whichever way the county commissioners vote on the proposed ordinance — adopting or rejecting it.

If the commissioners adopt the ordinance, allowing residential developments along most of the rim north of Twin Falls City, the preservationists will surely petition for amendments and repeat their testimony at the required hearings.

If the ordinance is rejected, it goes all the way back to the county zoning commission for revision and more hearings.

Tonight, Mary Jo Byrne, vice-president of the Twin Falls High School student body will give the county commissioners a petition signed by hundreds of classmates who favor the ordinance as amended by the zoning commission, setting up a 300-foot agricultural setback on the canyon rim (the setback proposal has been ruled out by the county commissioners). Miss Byrne said 470 students had signed the petition by Monday night.

Dr. R. G. Roberts, a Twin Falls dentist and co-chairman of the recently formed Concerned Citizens to Save the Rim, will read a letter at the hearing, voicing the group's "support for the preservation of the canyon rim, and to answer and explain some of the mis-information concerning the new zoning."

Criticizing poorly planned "high rise apartments and condominiums" and "box like subdivisions and trailer courts," the letter asks that "we maintain control of our local growth."

It also recommends that a comprehensive plan of land use be developed.

The Concerned Citizens letter further requests a "redefinition of the agricultural zone 'to broaden its purposes' and a moratorium on rim development until 'studies can be completed on its best future use.'"

Jerome's driver training probed

By DAVID ESPO Times-News writer

JEROME—The State Department of Education is conducting an audit of the Jerome School District driver education program that is "routine at this point in time."

Duane Kirk, head of the department's driver education program, arrived in Jerome Monday morning. He said in an interview Monday evening the audit would consume two or three days.

But other sources said in a series of interviews Monday and today Kirk's audit was probing complaints that students had been certified for driver education course completion without having spent the required time behind the wheel.

The complaints, these sources say, cover district certifying of the students for the legally required amount of driving time, and claiming reimbursement from the state for the full time even though the students didn't receive it. Kirk, however, stressed the routine nature of the audit. "At this point in time it's a routine audit," he said. "Everything starts out as routine until you find something."

In an earlier interview Monday, Kirk had said in Boise there would be an audit of the Jerome program "within a month." Later in the morning, he left Boise for Jerome to begin work, which he said had been planned for some time.

Kirk acknowledged there had been unspecified complaints about the handling of state money in the driver education program. "You can hear those things in almost any school district if you put your ear to the ground," he said.

He added he had not been requested to come to Jerome to do the audit. "As far as I'm concerned it's a routine audit. Everyone is innocent until proven guilty."

Jerome School Supt. John Campbell flatly denied today there had been any certifying of students who had not completed the required course. He said there had been problems in the driver education program last school year, but said the problems were due to the former driver instructor.

"Our man hadn't been too attentive and left a few things undone," Campbell said, adding "It was a challenge for him, but the catch was it was too much of a challenge for him."

Richard Cummings, the former driver education instructor at the district, now a full-time classroom teacher, agreed there had been problems.

But he said they resulted from a combination of too many students, and lack of time for him to concentrate on the driving program.

He said he had taught three regular classroom mathematics courses each semester during the year in addition to four driver education courses. In addition, he said, there were about 80 students in the driver classes each semester.

But he, too, said there had been no failure to make sure the student had received the proper number of hours behind the wheel.

"I made it a point to satisfy state requirements because I knew what they were."

Home heat fuel allocation set

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon today ordered a mandatory allocation program for home heating oil and propane in an effort to soften the impact of threatened winter shortages.

The White House energy adviser, John E. Love, said the mandatory system of allocating propane gas under a priority program would become effective immediately.

Detailed regulations affecting heating oil will be announced and placed into effect in the near future, Love said. Other administration officials said it would take effect in a week or two.

The rationing programs will be administered by the Interior Department.

Love said it was clear the nation will experience some fuel shortages this winter and perhaps over the next few years.

The scarcity of home heating oil is likely to be most pronounced in the Northeast and the Midwest, while shortages of propane will be greatest in rural, food producing areas.

He said the purpose of the allocation system is to insure a more equal distribution of available fuels so that no single area of the country would suffer undue shortages.

6 die in Kentucky spree

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Six persons, including a minister and his two teen-aged children, were shot to death and two others wounded early today, and police said two escapees from a federal court jail had been arrested in connection with the slayings.

Police identified three of the victims, found in the bathroom of their home here, as the Rev. John K. Barnes, 47, his daughter Francine, 18, and his son John, 14.

Three men were shot to death and two men wounded at Fisher's Motel in Palmouth, Ky., about 80 miles from here in northern Kentucky across the Ohio River from Cincinnati. Police said one of the victims was the motel's night manager.

Police identified the motel victims as David Sizemore, 26, Thousand-Slicks, Ky.; Monroe Sizemore, Hazard, Ky., and the night manager, Elva Harper, 64.

The wounded were identified as Wendell McKenzie of Hazard, and McKelvin Stidham, Hayden, Ky., who were treated at a hospital and released. Police here said Barnes, his daughter and son were apparently shot in one section of their house and dragged into the bathroom where the bodies were stacked upon each other.

The girl was nude and may have been raped and the son was in a football uniform apparently preparing for practice, police said.

Police at Fort Thomas, Ky., near Falmouth, arrested William Sloan, 24, Louisville, and Wilmer Scott, 35, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The two men, police said, were driving a car belonging to one of the shooting victims at the motel.

Police said they found two pistols and a shotgun in the car along with jewelry and $600 in cash which they said were taken from the motel.

All the guns had been fired recently, police said.

Authorities said the men told the night manager at the motel they were FBI agents looking for drugs and he apparently let them into one of the rooms. The occupants of that room and another room were robbed and shot, police said.

Sloan and Scott escaped from the court jail here Monday by sawing a bar from their cell.

A third escapee, Roy Collins, 24, of Lima, Ohio, broke his leg in a jump off the one-story roof of the federal building and was captured.

Police said after their escape, Sloan and Scott took Mrs.

Robert Ewalt as hostage, ransacked her home and took her car, after leaving her unharmed and tied to a chair.

The woman's car was found at the home of the Barnes family.

Sloan and Scott were awaiting trial on kidnapping charges. They allegedly had taken a woman hostage when they broke out of the Payette County jail last Nov. 20.

You can't can electricity but it's just common sense to conserve it!

You can't stash away electricity by the jarful like Aunt Maudie's apricots, but there will be more for all of us, as we need it, if we use it wisely. Since heating consumes the largest share of energy used in your home, here are some practical heat conserving suggestions:

Save what you can

FIREPLACES CAN COOL YOU! Continuous air circulation up a fireplace chimney, whether in use or not, can drain heat from a home. So close the damper when the fireplace is cold. Burning indoor oxygen can decrease air pressure within the home, thus increasing infiltration of outside air. A pipe to bring outside air into the firebox can be most helpful, as can a glass screen.

HEAT STRAPPED? WEATHERSTRIP! Most homes change air once an hour; drafty, loose-fitting homes twice an hour. Thorough weatherstripping and caulking can slow down air change to once every two hours for substantial savings in heating costs.

CONCRETE FLOORS CAN COOL YOU! Perimeter insulation of cement floors can add comfort while reducing heating load. Dig an 18-inch-deep trench around the outside of the slab. Then install rigid foam insulation at least one inch thick, or equal quality weatherproof insulation. Then roll the trench to hold it in place.

$1,000 given to CSI

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. kicked off the College of Southern Idaho's athletic scholarship fund raising campaign this fall with a $1,000 donation.

John J. Wolfe, vice-president of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust, represented the bank in awarding the money. "We feel very strongly that local people should support local institutions," he said. He hoped CSI scholarship money would encourage local people to attend school in Twin Falls and would encourage some people who might not go to college to do so.

CSI initiated the fund campaign this morning with a breakfast at the college where Magic Valley businessmen were asked to give money towards 40 athletic scholarships.

UF campaign under way

TWIN FALLS — The 1974 United Fund Campaign began with a bang Monday with the announcement that more than $16,000 had already been raised.

Campaign chairman Dr. Terry Smith told more than 100 campaign workers who gathered for the 1974 campaign kickoff luncheon that about $13,500 had been collected in the "blue chip" division of the campaign, along with other early donations.

The new campaign goal is $125,000.

The United Fund supports 10 local charities. Under the campaign plan, the $125,000 would be divided as follows: YWCA, $19,252; YMCA, $14,000; Twin Falls County Mental Health Association, $2,400; Camp Fire Girls, $7,200; Arthritis Foundation, $1,800; Salvation Army, $20,000; Boy Scouts, $11,252; Red Cross, $17,627; USO, $720; Silver Sage Girl Scouts, $800; and United Fund expenses, $8,349.

United Fund executive secretary Darl Gled said the UF would spend one-half percent of its income to support the national UF organization. He said more than 90 percent of money raised is delivered to recipients.

"Compare that with the 30-60 percent for some national health agencies," Gled said. Gled said the campaign is not conducted on a house-to-house basis, but instead focuses on donations by employees at their place of work.

Steve Bancroft, chairman of the Agency Relations Committee told the meeting that the $125,000 target was a minimum budget.

He said one unnamed organization would "lower someone's salary" if the goal is not met.

"Let's give them what they need," he said.

The United Fund seeks "fair share" donations equal to one percent of a person's annual income.

Former Miss Twin Falls and Miss Idaho Diana Hopperstad Hoan, who had toured with the USO, sang.

A proclamation by Mayor John Christoffersen designating October as United Fund Month was read.

Gas station agents protest price lid

By United Press International
 Talk of a nationwide protest against the freeze on gasoline prices spread among filling station operators today, with half the stations in Houston, Tex., closed Monday and more than a thousand on New York's Long Island expected to do the same in the next few days.

In Washington, a White House spokesman said President Nixon would announce in the next few days a plan to ration the sale of propane, which is used in rural areas to heat homes and dry crops.

"Later on, officials said, there will probably be mandatory rationing of home heating oil to meet possible shortages this winter."

In Houston, gasoline dealer Reagan-Couch said the 23-cent-a-gallon price increase allowed by the Cost of Living Council last week was not enough to make up for higher wholesale prices. "We were two cents down and we are still a cent down after the ruling."

"That's not fair," he said. "A spokesman for the service station dealers association in Michigan said some dealers have posted new prices higher than the 25 cent limit, but Treasury officials in Washington said anything over that figure would probably be illegal."

A survey of New England dealers and owners showed increases of about 0.7 cents, with another 0.5-cent increase expected by the end of the week.

The president of the 1,500-member American Gasoline Retailers Association predicted that many employees and owners will be attending day-long meetings Wednesday and Thursday to decide how to deal with the relaxed price ceilings and other developments.

During that time, he said, 60 to 90 per cent of the stations on the island may be closed.

An estimated 175 of the 350 service station owners in Fresno, Calif., closed Monday to protest the price hikes.

The Oregon Gasoline Dealers Association said it has decided to defy the Cost of Living Council and pass along to customers all increased costs of doing business.

Harbert Nye, president of the Nevada Service Station Operators Association, said members of his group will start closing down Friday, and he suggested that commuters "forget car pools to get to school or work. This could last for a while."

In Wichita, Kan., Earl Shaw, 67, was killed Monday when a backyard gas stove still made of a trash can, tubing, a pipe and bricks blew up in his face.

Friends said he had built the still because he was tired of the high price of gasoline.

Senate approves $21 billion weapons bill

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Friday approved a $21 billion authorization bill for weapons after voting down 10 straight attempts to trim the total.

But the Senate did approve two amendments that the administration is "dumb" to set against. One demands a 10,000-man cutback in U.S. forces abroad and the other requires the European NATO states to make up the U.S. balance of payments loss or see some American troops pulled out of Europe.

Congressional sources said the State Department was fighting its hardest against the balance of payments amendment, as the bill goes to the House.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., introduced the amendment, which says that if the European states do not pay their share of the U.S. balance of payments loss this year, the United States would withdraw 10 per cent of its troops. The percentage loss would elimate the percentage withdrawal.

On the floor, Jackson allowed his bill to be changed to direct the General Accounting Office, a branch of Congress, to make this calculation rather than the executive branch.

Union signs pact

MONTHLY (UPI)—Five major newspaper producers and three divisions of Consolidated Bathurst Ltd. reached tentative contract terms Monday with the United Paperworkers International Union (UPIU).

The three producers are: Newsprint, Newsprint and Newsprint.

However, contract talks broke down between Price Ltd. and the Federation of Paper and Forest Workers. Some 2,500 employees have been on strike against Price mills in Quebec for seven weeks.

A spokesman for Price said negotiations "just aren't improving." He declined to indicate what caused the breakdown.

A UPIU spokesman said the Missouri prisoners removed

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Two policemen and four inmates were injured Monday night when officers in riot gear stormed a barricaded cellblock at the city jail to remove seven inmates who banged an escape try last week.

The seven inmates, including two convicted murderers, took Guard Capt. Arthur E. Voegel, 61, hostage at gunpoint Thursday night. But they lost their gun when he broke loose and escaped. Then they took 13 women inmates and a matron hostage and issued a list of demands for improvement of jail conditions.

Edward P. Tripp, city welfare director, agreed to most of the demands and guaranteed the prisoners amnesty if they did not return their hostages and surrender.

They gave up on Friday, but Tripp withdrew the amnesty after it was learned that more than half of the women hostages had been sexually assaulted, raped and attempted escape charged were then filed against all seven.

For nearly 90 years, and now into the fourth generation, it has been the responsibility of our family to engineer the very finest grandfather clocks that have been made. These have been recent developments that have offered many shortcuts to our business. They generally have turned out to be shortcuts to the quality. So we have resisted these shortcuts, and basically still make clocks the way we have for decades. Carefully engineering each one as though there will never be another clock.

Selecting a grandfather or grandmother clock is like making a lifelong friend. So choose carefully. Our Crown Symphony tubular bell chimers are hand made on a hand pick. All movements are carefully fitted and tested in the case before shipment. And we are the only company in America, who make its own, tubular bell movements. We are clock makers. Not just cabinet makers. And Herschede quality is backed by a nationwide network of service centers to assure you perfect accuracy and service wherever you may live.

Some echoes from the past

Commissioners' Choice

The Twin Falls County commissioners should postpone final action on a county zoning plan to be aired at a public hearing tonight.

The future use of all the land in the county, including the future of the Snake River Canyon rim, is at stake.

The proposal before the commissioners suddenly has become muddled because of legal questions raised about whether the commissioners can consider a proposal to protect the canyon rim.

Under the circumstances, the commissioners should delay final action until the legal questions are resolved.

Moreover, such a delay would give the commissioners a chance to feel the community's pulse on the future of the canyon rim — perhaps the most important section of the proposed zoning package.

The fate of the canyon rim is so important that an advisory election should be called to give the commissioners the benefit of the widest possible expression of public opinion on the question.

The central legal question raised by the commissioners is the validity of sections of the county planning and zoning commission's recommendation to the county commissioners.

But because of a legal technicality, the commissioners have been told by their attorney that they cannot vote on a crucial part of the recommended package.

They would not be able to vote on a proposal to protect the Snake River Canyon rim.

The commissioners say the advisory zoning commission did not follow all the necessary legal steps before submitting its plan.

The required preliminary legal advertisements and public hearing were held properly. Responding to testimony at its hearing, the zoners decided to change the plan to provide for a 300-foot-wide agricultural zone to protect the canyon rim.

But the zoners failed to advertise its proposed changes and hold another public hearing on them. So in the opinion of the county commissioners, only the original plan, without the rim amendments, is legally valid.

This puts the county commissioners in an untenable position — they cannot consider the best advice of their zoning advisors.

Should the commissioners decide to approve the zone without rim protection, and later try to amend the ordinance, they would be opening a Pandora's Box.

They could expect:

The zoning ordinance without rim protection would lead to a land rush by developers who hope to obtain approval for their subdivisions on the rim. The larger developers who have resources for quick action would be the ones likely to get their proposals under the wire before the zoning ordinance could be amended to provide rim protection.

Enforcement of any protective zone along the canyon would be difficult, if not impossible should a subdivision land rush be permitted.

The legality of the proposed rim protective zone will surely be tested in court. The county's case is severely weakened when it permits some developments and then later tries to prevent similar developments.

Every subdivision approved before the protective zone is created makes it harder to tell other landowners they cannot build their own adjacent subdivisions. This is the kind of inequity that kills well-meaning zoning plans.

Another consideration commissioners should weigh is the specific designation proposed by the planning and zoning commission for the protective strip along the rim.

The zoners asked it be reserved for "agricultural" uses. That means farms and subdivisions with lots five acres or larger.

The courts surely will look with disfavor on "farms" that are only 100 yards wide, meandering along the rim, broken here and there by existing housing developments.

It would be better for the county zoners to develop another designation that would stand as a protective barrier against exploitation of the rim.

The county commissioners have the historic chance to influence the future of the county in what will probably be their most important public contribution.

With so much at stake, the commissioners should move slowly and deliberately.

RUSSELL BAKER

Jogging forever

It was in the papers the other day. Joggers keeling over; medical journals voice concern; first, Savants warn; EKQ's performed lying down not good enough, caution medicoscientific spokesman. It was inevitable. Richardson had told me so several years ago when the suburbs first bloomed with sweat suits.

Huffing, drying, in pursuit of longevity, the joggers making their morning rounds had left me melancholy and depressed. They were out here, perhaps in this same suburb, at 97, while I, who had been not zealous enough for the really full life.

We need not get into egos. It was unhappy. Then I met Richardson. He was in his 30's and a perfectionist. He worried about everything, and dreaded of being caught unprepared in some crisis that could easily have been prepared for.

One of many things that worried him was the possibility that he would live to be 100 years old. It was not the prospect of great age or infirmity that bothered him. It was the fear that on his 100th birthday, when newspaper reporters came to interview him and asked to what he contributed that that was amusing or valuable to any.

Richardson had noticed from reading them centenarians never had an interesting answer to this familiar question. He supposed it was because of the infirmities of great age. There was usually some banter about alcohol or smoking.

Richardson wanted to be able to do better should his own 100th birthday ever roll around. He decided to begin, while still a young man with active mind, to formulate the rules which he was following for the purpose of living to be 100.

Then he reasoned, if he did not die beforehand he would be fully prepared to give valuable advice when the reporters asked to what he attributed his great age.

At the time jogging became the medical fad in the suburbs, he had already begun compiling Richardson's Rules For Almost Infinite Survival. Some where borrowed from sources as old as Egypt.

Rule 1, for example, was, "never eat at a place called mom's."

Rule 2 was, "never play poker with a man named 'Slick.'"

And rule 3, in the same cautionary mode, was, "never ask a man named 'Butch' to 'step outside and repeat that.'"

Rule 4 had something to do with not discussing the Mafia in Hoboken, N. J., and Rule 5 dealt with alcohol. ("Never have a third martini if you are more than 30 steps from your own bed.")

Rule 6 — "always keep your eyes down in crowded elevators." Richardson counted from some one-half mile narrow escape Richardson had once had, for he would never elucidate it. Nor, for that matter, would he elaborate on Rule 7, which was, "With women, don't get the idea you are Paul Newman."

Rule 8, however, was directly applicable to jogging. "When you see some fashionable new medical advice," it went, "always let it set for 10 years before picking it up."

"With mass medical advice," Richardson explained, "there are always three possibilities. Possibility one is that it is bad advice and may kill you. Possibility two is that it is harmless advice and won't hurt you. Possibility three is that it is good advice and may help."

The difficulty, he explained, is that it takes at least 10 years to find which possibility will become the reality.

(c) New York Times Service MARTHA'S VINEYARD, Mass., — closing the house for the winter on this island is usually a melancholy business. Somehow you're always leaving just when things get busy and calm in the house, and the sea is still warm sparkling, and the trees and shrubs turn serene and scarlet for the autumn dance.

But there are consolations. Old houses in this part of the country are all attic. The floors are usually bare and a little sandy, the furniture comfortably shabby, and the walls lined with old books—deposited by the titles of past generations, past owners and tenants.

Somehow they have a reassuring message this year, for amid all the present cries and warnings of famine and pollution, these old books seem to be telling us of genuine calamities that somehow were overcome, of impending disasters that never happened—or amiable and even evil confidants, now all forgotten.

Looking out across the ping pong table, the bicycles, the tool-bench and the washer and dryer in the big schoolroom of our house, I see books on the battle of Britain, El Alamein, Stalingrad and the Ardennes. There is a whole shelf of old congressional directories, full of the names and deeds of old Senators and representatives and secretaries of state, now no more than footnotes in the history of the Republic.

There are scarce books galore: on the "monolithic" community world, dancing in unison to the music of Moscow. "Red Spies In The U. S. N." by Pierre J. Juss. Nelson Rockefeller on the need for federation in the Atlantic and air raid shelters in every American city to protect us from the coming disaster. And terrible predictions about what the machine was going to do to modern man. This was before Ms.

Books on free enterprise as the hope of terror of the world—on the planned economy and Henry Wallace and the need to restrict production; books on sex—what books!—proving anything and everything imaginable from the sexual liberation to the sexual slavery, or tyranny of the human mind; and body.

"Control" seems to have been the big subject in the New Deal days, as in Teddy Roosevelt's days—down with the robber barons and the money changers! Then "Growth" was a big seller. America invented "growth" but the theme then was that the Communists could control and organize everything and we had it from Nikita Khrushchev that the "Socialist force is full of energy," while capitalism was "worn-out and limping on both legs."

Even Allan Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, was telling us in 1958 that "rapid Soviet economic progress poses the most serious peacetime challenge the United States has ever faced." A headline in the New York Times then defied the popular theme: "Tortoise and Hare—Slow Pace of U. S. Economic Growth Suggests Soviet May Win Race."

Well, maybe both the real and the imagined calamities were overcome or avoided because people got so excited about them, and the point of this house-closing is not that the pollution crisis, the energy crisis, the dollar crisis, and the Nixon-Agnew crises are not substantial. On this island, Polyanna drowned a couple of years ago.

Yet the books on the shelves behind the washer and dryer in this old house tell us something. The fevers of the past are not necessarily fatal. Emerson, who came from these parts believed there was a law of compensation in life that things leveled out if the facts were made clear, that corruption would be corrected by disclosure and debate, and that America was something more than the sum of its problems and politicians.

The old boy undoubtedly had a point, and it may be that he is being confirmed by present events. After all, Nixon and Agnew, Kennedy and Connolly, are not America. They will probably find their places among the footnotes of history too, but the life of the nation will go on.

Meanwhile, the practical work has to be done. The water has to be shut off against the coming winter. The shingles from the burned roof of the Vineyard Gazette have to be stored in the basement for kindling, and the old quotes and riffs and faters in the desk have to be sorted out.

In the process, a few favorite quotes in the right-hand drawer seem relevant.

"The great America" for which we long," Louis D. Brandeis wrote in 1920, "is unobtainable unless that individuality of communities becomes far more highly developed and becomes a common American phenomenon. For a century our growth has come through national expansion and the increase of the functions of the federal government."

"The growth of the future — at least of the immediate future — must be in quality and spiritual values. And that can come only through the concentrated, intensified striving of smaller groups. The field for special effort shall now be the state, the city, the village."

Bliss schools

Editor, Times-News: I would like to speak my condensed thoughts in regard to the Bliss School issue which would not need to be any issue at all if people would let the business at hand proceed.

Faith Baldwin says if we can make people feel and see and hear through the vehicle of expression, "our words," then we have achieved the goals of journalism.

May I touch on the word empathy. This key, encompassing word also holds the terms, projection and pretending or acting in parallel, (walk a ways with me and help me carry my burdens) in its closely knit family. How can you understand people unless you get in their tree with them? At least for a time.

Empathy, to put ourselves in the other person's place whether young old, rich or poor; but human. This Rare gift is precious to my soul and the people who have empathized with me are very dear.

Very few people, I find, are able to "empathize." No wonder there is so much strife in the world. Parents cannot put themselves in their children's shoes and in frustration, become "negative." Some scholars want what they had to be had for all scholars when the frame does not fit the picture. I knew of a woman who broke her baby's arm trying to make a dress fit the baby. This may be an extreme example but then, again maybe not, in the final analysis.

Save the rim

Editor, Times-News: I am a relative newcomer to Idaho and have been following the zoning struggle surrounding the Snake River Canyon rim in the Times-News.

The basic issue seems to me to be, "Are the people of Twin Falls County willing to hand over a unique natural landmark to a few private individuals to make money on?" Once the zoning is not specified agricultural along the rim and the condominiums and houses have been built the issue is settled FOREVER.

There must be many suitable building sites in the county, besides a 330 foot strip along the canyon. I am from the East where houses decorate the landscape. Is that what the people of Twin Falls County really want?

If you don't want to see houses and hot dog stands obscuring your view of the canyon, go to the hearing on Oct. 2 and support the preservation of the Snake River Canyon rim. (Mrs.) Jane Slickers

Edging toward the right

(c) N. Y. Times News Service HONOLULU — The moon controls tidal flows on this planet but no one has yet calculated what governs cyclical changes in world politics.

Nevertheless, just as the past decade saw global gains in various leftward-tending movements around the earth, the present one sees an edging toward the right.

A few years ago socialist, communist, radical or liberal groups in various countries improved their positions at the expense of conservative factions. Now there seems to be a reaction in the other direction.

The most extreme and therefore dangerous change has been in South America where democratic, socialist and liberal parties have all suffered. Military-dictatorships or either ultra-rightists or pretended leftists (as in Peru) have ousted normal democracies and now we see a threat to normal freedoms in neo-Fascist Argentina and in junta-controlled Chile.

Elsewhere, the last two U. S. elections showed a preference for relative conservatism. Willy Brandt's Social Democratic triumph in West Germany now faces mounting trouble. In June 1970 Britain's Tories surprised many observers by ousting a Labor government. The Italian Christian Democrats staged a minor resurgence in 1972 and last March France's Gaullist coalition maintained a parliamentary majority against the most dynamic popular front alliance that country had seen in two generations.

The latest reflection of this pattern has been in Scandinavia. Norway's Labor Party suffered its worst election setback in 43 years. The Social Democrats in Denmark scraped back to power by a hair's breadth only with people's party aid

And in Sweden there is a complete stand-off between the Social Democratic-Communist bloc and their opponents, the nearest thing to a Socialist defeat since 1932.

In Africa, Nasser's "Arab Socialism" has been replaced by a more relaxed Egyptian regime. Algeria has moved toward a pragmatic policy and sub-Saharan states are for the most part not vitally concerned with ideology. In the Middle East there is an apparent resurgence of conservative elements at the expense of pro-Soviet or Marxist factions.

Only in East Asia has the left made some progress but in each case there have been special factors. Thus, India relied on a de facto alliance with Russia to win its war with Pakistan; and Communism gained in Indochina because of U. S. policy changes. Nevertheless from Iran to Indonesia and the Philippines the right is ascending.

This contemporary phenomenon probably stems from two sources: the growing Sino-Soviet rift which divides Communist political impetus; and realization that welfare state systems are costly to maintain in Democratic societies.

The Cold War between the Marxist giants placed their emphasis on rivalry instead of political alliance. It has also tended to encourage less dramatically revolutionary elements inside China and Russia.

China's Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution was followed by a new foreign policy featuring closer relations with the U.S.A., Japan and Western Europe. Simultaneously in the USSR there has been an effort to re-freeze the post-Stalin thaw.

Communist parties in Democratic lands just as they were attempting to elaborate popular front coalitions with Socialist and left-Democratic groups.

At the same time many countries have discovered that there are economic limits to the pace of social advance. Old Palme, the Swedish Prime Minister who now has to balance on a leadership tightrope, once told me: "Sweden is far from being a socialist country but in important aspects we have changed society. We have built up welfare, housing, labor unions, education."

This is undoubtedly true but the price of improvement stimulated discontent. There was increased dissatisfaction with the highly centralized and expensive administrative structure. Sweden's disenchantment was relatively limited, as indicated by the fact that Palme managed to hang on, but it represented an important trend.

In an infinitely more explosive way one saw similar resentment at welfare state systems attempted in two democratic lands, Uruguay and Chile. Each slipped into economic swamps and political chaos that produced military take-overs.

One may hope extreme reactionary aspects of the present rightist tide will be of limited duration and will culminate in the kind of moderation that is, for example, familiar to Britain, Scandinavia and the United States. There compromise habitually means to incorporate what is good and discard what is bad from past systems.

Nevertheless, a rightward trend of the mid-70s is evident. Unless its own extremists aspects can be restrained the ultimate consequences in many lands could prove unpleasant.

Tug McGraw hurls Mets to NL eastern division title

CHICAGO (UPI) — Tug McGraw led the victorious New York Mets up the mountain Monday.

Durocher quits job in Houston

HOUSTON (UPI) — Leo Durocher resigned Monday as manager of the Houston Astros and said he was ending a baseball career that spans almost half a century.

P. R. Estep, who managed the San Diego Padres to three last place finishes, was immediately hired in his place. Gomez was in the process of packing his bags for a job-hunting trip to Los Angeles, when he was told he would manage the Astros next season.

Johnson is Sox manager

BOSTON (UPI) — Darrell Johnson took over as Boston Red Sox manager Monday and immediately established himself as an independent.

Asked if he would run the Red Sox in a hard-nosed manner like Dick Williams (1967-69) or low-key like Eddie Kasko, Johnson said, "First of all, I'm going to be myself. I don't think you can stamp any manager out of a machine. I don't know what I'm going to be until a situation comes up."

Suit is filed to stop Wilt

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers filed a suit in Superior Court Monday to prevent Wilt Chamberlain from playing basketball with the ABA San Diego Conquistadors this season.

After the Lakers' action was taken, a suit was filed in San Diego on behalf of Chamberlain and the Conquistadors aimed at getting a quick decision on whether the 7-foot-1-inch giant will be able to play with the ABA club in 1973-74.

The Los Angeles suit filing was done on behalf of California Sports Inc., owner and operator of the Lakers.

three innings, striking out four, to preserve a 6-4 victory for the Mets over the Chicago Cubs, triumphing both in the game and the National League East's title race.

"It's a great feeling to have had to struggle," McGraw said, his hair and shirt champagne-soaked in the jimmied Mets' locker room. "Like climbing a glass mountain, and finally to be able to find some pine tar and lay it on that mountain and get to the top."

McGraw's save, his 25th of the season, was his 11th along with four wins in his last 16 games and manager Yogi Berra, looking for a few days rest before the Mets have to tangle with the Cincinnati Reds

Pirates lose, finish third

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Rookie pitcher Randy Jones doubled home the winning run Monday to give the San Diego Padres a 4-3 victory over Pittsburgh in a game the Pirates had hoped would help produce an unprecedented fourth consecutive National League East pennant.

Had the Pirates won Monday's rescheduled July 21 rainout and had the New York Mets dropped a doubleheader at Chicago, it would have required a three-way playoff among St. Louis, Pittsburgh and New York for the NL East championship.

Detroit topples Atlanta

DETROIT (UPI) — Wide receiver Larry Walton shocked Atlanta by going 57 yards for a touchdown on a reverse the second time Detroit had the ball Monday night to set the tone for the Lions' 31-6 rout of the Falcons in a nationally televised NFL game.

The play worked so well Ron Jessie worked it later for an eight-yard touchdown to wrap up the scoring in the fourth quarter. That score was set up when rookie Dick Jauron recovered a muffed punt on the Atlanta 10-yard line.

Mel Farr subbed for fullback Steve Owens, who suffered a slight leg muscle pull during pre-game warmups, and had his finest game in some time.

in the playoffs" for the NFL pennant, said: "Tug did a tremendous job at the finish." But he added the Mets "did a team job. They hung in there and they bounced back. I think we were 12 games behind in July and we had to jump over everybody. I don't think we lost a series in the last month because the players wanted to win."

Yet Berra confessed he "thought we had a chance" even when the Mets were in last place and then conceded, wiping his brow, "I'm glad this is over with."

Berra mentioned the injuries which hampered the Mets through the heat of summer, and singled out Felix Millan as "my only every day ball player."

Ohio State replaces USC as top team in rating

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State, minus its leading scorer Champ Henson, displaced Southern California Monday as the nation's No. 1 college football team according to the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The Buckeyes, who bowled over TCU 37-3 for their second straight win of the young season, this past weekend amassed 21 first place votes defending national champ Southern Cal plummeted to third place after struggling to its 7-7 tie with Oklahoma Saturday night.

But, both the TCU victory and the subsequent move to the top spot, lost some of their lustre for Ohio State when it was learned that the Buckeyes' star fullback Henson, the nation's leading scorer with 20 touchdowns last year, will be lost for the season after suffering a knee injury in the game.

Ohio State head coach Woody Hayes immediately announced

Monday that Bruce Ellis, a 6-1, 215-pound linebacker, would be shifted to Henson's starting spot for the remainder of the season as the Buckeyes strive to maintain their No. 1 ranking.

Demo probe reveals no 'bombshell'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George McGovern's top campaign aides have been questioned by the Senate Watergate committee staff on whether any "dirty tricks" were perpetrated by McGovern supporters in the 1972 presidential campaign.

A Republican committee source said Monday the probe turned up only "bits and pieces" and no "bombshells."

The investigation was primarily done by Republican staff employees, but at least one Democrat usually was present for the interviews, which included a four-hour session with McGovern's former campaign manager, Gary Hart. The interviews were conducted quickly over the past several weeks.

Chief committee counsel Samuel Dash told UPI, "I haven't yet received any evidence of Democratic dirty tricks."

Also quizzed were Lawrence O'Brien, McGovern's former campaign director; Ted Van Dyk, his director of issues and research; Frank Mankiewicz, director of communication, and Marion Pearlman, finance director and treasurer.

Republican staff officials were reported investigating

Nixon ex-aides testimony asked

DALLAS (UPI) — Defendants in the Texas stock fraud scandal, claiming the charges filed against them were part of a Republican conspiracy to embarrass Democratic office holders in Texas, want three former kingpins in the Nixon administration to testify today in federal court.

The three, all victims of the Watergate affair, were to answer charges the Justice Department urged the Securities and Exchange Commission to file the charges against the Democrats in 1971 so the effect would be felt in the 1972 elections.

The three are former U.S. Attorneys General John Mitchell and Richard Kleindienst and former acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III. They have not been subpoenaed and there were no indications they would appear.

Six of the former Democratic officeholders named in the suit filed charges, the stock fraud scandal was a Republican plot. The charges were filed in the court of U.S. District Judge William M. Taylor Jr., in reply to federal charges they were guilty of securities and mail fraud and conspiracy.

The defendants include Waggoner Carr, former Texas Attorney General, and John Osorio, former insurance commissioner. Other are Tom Max Thomas, a Dallas attorney, Jarrell Ormand, a Dallas attorney; David Hoovers, a Dallas businessman and Thano Dimeris, a Houston attorney.

Protection offered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Protective custody by armed federal marshals has been ordered for former United Mine Workers president W. A. "Tony" Boyle, who is recovering from an apparent suicide attempt in a Washington hospital.

The 69-year-old Boyle, under indictment on a conspiracy charge in the murder of his union rival, Joseph A. "Joek" Yablonski, also had his $50,000 bond temporarily suspended Monday by U.S. Magistrate Arthur Burnett.

Burnett issued both orders after government attorneys said they wanted to prevent any suicide attempt by Boyle, or harm to him by others.

DONALD SEGRETTI to testify

Medical proposal urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sens. Russell B. Long, D-La., and Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., proposed today that the federal government protect the public against catastrophic medical expenses.

Their bill, being offered today in hope of enactment in 1974, would provide government insurance similar to Medicare, which would pay everything beyond the first $2,000 of a medical bill or beyond 60 days of hospitalization.

It also would:

- Seek to induce health insurance companies to offer policies at "reasonable" cost covering the first 60 days of hospital care and the first $2,000 of medical bills.
- Replace the federal-state Medicaid programs, which vary from state to state, with a uniform national program of medical benefits for low-income people. In addition to the 22 million poor now covered by Medicaid, 12 million low-income working people would be eligible.

Ribicoff said in a speech prepared for delivery in the Senate that the cost of medical care is a problem for most Americans.

The Ribicoff-Long bill would comply with several others: an administration bill compelling employers to provide health insurance for employees; an American Medical Association bill giving more generous tax savings to individuals who buy health insurance policies; and a bill by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Martha W. Griffiths, D-Mich., offering free medical care to all, paid for by a large increase in payroll taxes.

Long and Ribicoff said the $3.6 billion cost of their bill could be met by an increase in Social Security taxes.

FHA loan plan gets approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A one-year extension of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) home loan guarantee program was given final congressional approval by the Senate Monday, just hours before the program would have died.

The legislation was rushed through so there will be no lull in the FHA program, which would have expired Monday midnight in absence of congressional extension. The bill continues the program through Oct. 1, 1974.

The measure was approved by voice vote with only a few senators present. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., cast the only audible vote against it.

Proxmire said it was "unconscionable" that Congress would pass legislation which helps only those "30 to 40 percent of Americans who can afford to buy their own homes" without helping those "who cannot afford to buy a home without some kind of government assistance."

Segretti ready to explain all

(c) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — Donald Segretti, roving political saboteur of Democratic presidential campaigns in 1972, is ready to tell all to the Senate Watergate Committee tomorrow and then testify to a Federal Grand Jury.

Segretti, a bright-faced, and barely over-6-foot-tall, pleaded guilty to engineering a smear against three Democratic contenders in the Florida primary. He could be sentenced to three years in prison and fined $3,000 for that episode.

But he was granted immunity for similar "dirty tricks" in other Democratic contests that he is expected to relate when senate hearings resume Wednesday.

The 32-year-old Segretti, a college classmate of former White House appointments Secretary Dwight Chapin, said he would "tell it like it is" when he takes the witness stand.

Chapin, now an executive of United Air Lines, reportedly recommended Segretti for his 1972 assignment and ordered him put on a secret payroll managed by President Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert W. Kalmbach.

Asked if he would name Chapin as his supervisor of the cross-country political sabotage, Segretti said news stories to that effect were based mainly on "speculation."

The senators wanted to examine Chapin but excused him when his attorneys said he would invoke his Fifth Amendment right to remain silent if called as a witness, a committee announcement said.

Chapin, who worked closely with the President and White House Chief of Staff H. R. (Bob) Haldean in his four years with the Nixon administration, knew Segretti from their student days at the University of Southern California. Segretti said he has not talked to Chapin recently.

Called before Federal Judge Gerhard Gesell late yesterday, Segretti bowed his head and spoke in low tones to describe how he arranged to have a college student circulate a letter on phony stationery of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie (D-Me.), the Democratic front-runner.

The fake Muskie document contained slanderous accusations against two Democratic rivals in the Florida primary, Senators Hubert H. Humphrey (Minn.) and Henry M. Jackson (Wash.); apparently so all three would be discredited with the voters.

Segretti also arranged for circulation of cards purporting to have Muskie backers comparing another Democratic contender, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, with Adolf Hitler. Wallace won the primary and Muskie finished a poor fourth.

Judge Gesell deferred sentencing until a probation report on Segretti is ready.

Judge John J. Sirica quickly signed immunity orders for Segretti, paving the way for his testimony before the Senate panel and the Grand Jury investigation conducted by Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Emerging from the courthouse with a wide grin, Segretti sobered as he confronted television cameras, saying: "I regret my involvement — no question about that."

He pleaded guilty to three misdemeanors, less serious than felonies, possibly in the hopes of avoiding disbarment. Before serving in the Army's legal branch, Segretti was a lawyer in the Treasury Department.

Chemical life?

NEW YORK (UPI) — You just think you live in a house or apartment. Dr. Bernard Weiss of the University of Rochester School of Medicine, at a meeting on environmental chemicals, said:

"We live in a chemical soup; it's hard to isolate the many factors involved." He noted further that "some environmental chemicals cause changes in behavior."

Health care challenged

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News Writer

medical care is less than anyone of us would like it to be.

been rated "only poor to fair."

will be protected, Bruning said.

SUN VALLEY — A special assistant to Gov. Cecil Andrus has challenged health care officials to improve medical care quality and access.

St. J. Bruning spoke Monday before the 30th annual Idaho Hospital Association convention in Sun Valley.

Despite facts like Americans spend about $40 billion annually for health care, Bruning said, in Idaho and nationwide "the condition of Bruning said he was "not damning everything about the health care system." However, he said, "No reform can take place if we adopt a complacent attitude."

"The patient is what health care is all about," Bruning said.

"In 1973, too many may not receive adequate health care," he said.

Bruning said, according to a survey, 43 per cent of American hospital care has

He also said that medical bills have been cited as the cause of 60 per cent of bankruptcies cases.

Medical bills "hit" every member of the middle class as well as the poor, the special assistant said.

Because Idaho has a lower per capita income, Bruning said the problem of poverty cannot be dismissed "as irrelevant in this state."

All any citizen wants is assurance that he will find a doctor when he needs one, that he will be able to afford the cost and that his consumer rights

"Too many Americans, too many Idahoans lack this assurance," Bruning said.

The special assistant said that a "major question" needed to be posed: "Does every American citizen have access to good health care regardless of his ability to pay?"

Recognition of a citizen's "absolute right" to quality health care must become a goal, he said.

National health insurance, which would be open to everyone without restrictions, may be one solution, Bruning

But, to ensure success, Bruning said such insurance "much a accomplish restructuring of the health care delivery system." He also recommended — that the insurance be used to pay for health services which would be coordinated on regional, state and community levels.

Bruning countered objections that national health insurance may be too expensive by stating, "I believe any country that can afford to explore space could also afford to improve the health of its citizens."

Valley Comment

QUESTION—Are you in favor of the proposed 300-foot agricultural setback along the south side of the Snake River Canyon rim as approved by the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning commission? Would you like to see the County or the City and County, purchase the private land for a canyon rim park?

Elizabeth Shafer, Twin Falls:

"Well, it depends on the land — some of it's farmable and some of it isn't, I guess. That which is farmable should be left . . . I wouldn't want to live on the rim myself . . .

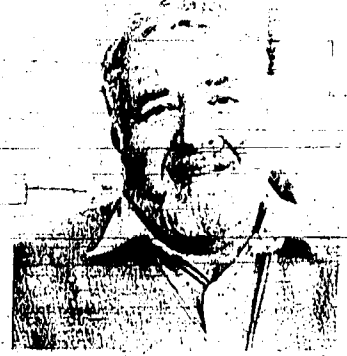

"I suppose there are some places that should be left open (to the public) with a very good view . . . There are houses there now some very beautiful ones. I don't think it would hurt the view any (to build nice rimside homes).

Warner Howard, Twin Falls:

"I think that's a good idea. I think it will be all right.

"No, I don't think it would do any good (for the County to make a rim park). I think the added cost to the taxpayers, such as myself, would be more than it's worth to the public."

Frank Baker, Twin Falls:

"Yes, because, it would keep it for future purposes, for the children and . . . you know."

"Yes, I would rather see them do that (County buy the land for a park) rather than let it lay idle. It would be all tied up anyway, if they build houses every few acres.

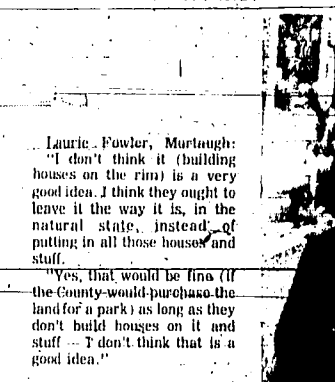

"Yes, the public should have access . . . It's all going to be fenced in one of these days."

Jack Cuppett, Twin Falls:

"I believe, really, that individual property owners should have the right to do with their property as they see fit, as long as it fits certain zoning qualifications.

"What I'm trying to say is that there's plenty of BLM land to be used for public access. Plus that, I think if an individual were asked to deed an acre or so of ground for public access at special points of interest, he would . . . I see no reason to tie up the whole of a man's property."

Laurie Fowler, Murlough:

"I don't think it (building houses on the rim) is a very good idea. I think they ought to leave it the way it is, in the natural state, instead of putting in all those houses and stuff.

"Yes, that would be fine (if the County would purchase the land for a park) as long as they don't build houses on it and stuff . . . I don't think that is a good idea."

Betty Hornaday, Hagerman:

"I think it should be left as it is — agricultural. I really don't like to see it developed at all.

"I would be in favor of a park . . . I think anything that's natural is a tourist attraction anymore. We didn't want to see Box Canyon developed the way it is either, but there was nothing we could do about it. That was a shame."

Lake yields body

JEROME — The body of Dean Dotson, 26, Twin Falls, was recovered Monday night from Wilson Lake, where it has been trapped since Aug. 12.

dam area when he spotted the body half submerged in debris near a regulation gate.

Hall said the body was beginning to decompose, but was mostly intact and no indications of foul play were evident upon a brief examination.

Mr. Dotson and his brother-in-law were wading on an old road bed which goes into the lake on Sunday, Aug. 12, when he disappeared. Mr. Dotson, who was unable to swim, stepped into a hole and was washed downstream by a strong current.

The Jerome County sheriff's department and volunteers had launched a large scale search for the body in August.

Attempts by his brother-in-law to bring him to shore were futile.

The Jerome County sheriff had been lax in attempts to locate the body. Members of the family have stated that they felt the sheriff did not conduct a thorough enough search of the area.

The body was discovered at about 6:45 p.m. Monday by the Wilson Lake watermaster.

Members of the Dotson family had charged that the Jerome County sheriff had been lax in attempts to locate the body. Members of the family have stated that they felt the sheriff did not conduct a thorough enough search of the area.

According to Jerome County sheriff, Eliza Hall, the watermaster as well as other canal company officials have conducted periodic checks of the Wilson Lake area for Mr. Dotson's body. Hall said the water was being shut down at the dam and apparently the current change dislodged the body which had been trapped in debris and moss near the dam.

Members of the Dotson family had charged that the Jerome County sheriff had been lax in attempts to locate the body. Members of the family have stated that they felt the sheriff did not conduct a thorough enough search of the area.

Rim zone hearing focus

Dr. Roberts Monday described Concerned Citizens as "a loose coalition of professional people and their families." He listed some of the members: Charles Brumbach, a Twin Falls attorney; David Mead, an officer with the Idaho First National Bank, and Ralph Olmstead, area legislator and farmer.

8. Zoning the strip does not prohibit construction of "less desirable" facilities than residences.

Canyon rim land owners, after an organizational meeting last week, drafted a petition for the hearing asking "that the 300 foot strip, lying immediately south of the canyon rim . . . should not be given a zoning designation different from that of adjoining lands to the South."

The League also asks the retention of the residential agricultural zone on Blue Lakes Boulevard north of Pole Line Road.

The rim owners petition backs up the request with the following points:

Concerning the planned unit development (PUD) ordinance under consideration by the commissioners, the League recommends that "open space" in a PUD "be consistent with protection of the public at large, the neighboring properties and the future residents of the project."

1. Soil conditions in the strip are not suitable for agricultural purposes.

Bob Wills, Twin Falls, vice-president of Wills Construction Inc., will act as a spokesman for the Magic Valley Home Builders Association at the hearing.

2. The topography of the "strip farming" is "impracticable."

Wills objects to a provision in the proposed ordinance that requires public hearings for all subdivisions in residential medium and residential agricultural zones more than one mile from a municipality.

3. The cost of public development of the strip is prohibitive.

If a zone permits subdivisions, public hearings should not be required, according to Wills.

4. Creation of canyon "viewpoints" would better serve the goal of the proposed ordinance.

"If that's where they (subdivisions) have got to be, then we should make it easy for them to be there," he said.

5. If developed for public use, the cost of insuring the strip by the "public authority" would be a financial burden to the local taxpayer.

6. The proposed ordinance deprives the property owner of his rights without just compensation.

7. Zoning the strip agricultural would hinder the county tax base.

County drops rim zone

Informed today of the county commissioners' decision to discard the zoners' setback recommendation, Assistant Atty. Gen. James C. Weaver said, "I don't think that's absolutely necessary."

He sidestepped a question concerning the obligation of the county commissioners to consider public sentiment as expressed through the zoning commission's setback proposal. He said, "If the commissioners pass the ordinance, then the people would be perfectly in order to petition for amendments."

Although he declined to give a definitive opinion without a complete briefing on the issue, Weaver said, "It sounds to me that it may be time for the county to sit down and find out what direction they want to go."

The rim setback was not the only change in the ordinance recommended by the zoning commission after the public hearing. Several other recommendations that would have cut back the "fingers" of zoning around Twin Falls City apparently will be ignored by the county commissioners for the same reason.

"It just seems to me that the proper thing to do is hold tight and not get everyone upset by public hearings, etc."

The "fingers" included a commercial general zoning strip along Highway 93 west of Twin Falls, a residential medium zone extending south along Airport Road, and residential agricultural zones along Orchard Drive and 3600 North Road.

Although the zoning commission voted unanimously to recommend the rim setback, zoning chairman Koutnik said, "I hope they (county commissioners) pass it as it was printed in the paper because they can amend it."

Koutnik admitted the zoners had mishandled proposed changes in the ordinance. "We now know we couldn't do what we were doing," he

Crippen reported that a portion of the $3,000 from the capital improvement fund which was turned over to the recreation department could be used to repair the city swimming pool. The said sandblasting would cost between $1,200 and $1,300 and should be done this fall. Filling and painting could be finished in the spring, he said.

Fire damages Bellevue cellar

BELLEVUE — Fire caused an unestimated amount of damage to a root cellar and its contents at the Robert Thomas family residence early this morning in Bellevue.

The fire occurred shortly after 1 a.m. at Fifth and Chestnut. The one story, wooden framed house was believed to have been built in the 1880's.

According to fire chief James Pigg, 11 Bellevue volunteer firemen responded and used the pumper hose to "knock down" the main fire in the root cellar, located on the east side of the residence. Then, he said, hose was connected to the nearest hydrant, about 400 feet away from the scene.

Pigg said the fire was contained to the root cellar, however the residence sustained smoke damage.

Fire fighting operations were hampered, Pigg said, and a portion of the root cellar's sod roof caved in, burying the smoldering sod and a layer of straw. Firemen used breathing apparatus to gain access to the fire.

Pigg said the fire apparently centered around a freezer in the root cellar, but said the cause of the fire could not be determined without further investigation.

TF man named to zone board

TWIN FALLS — Max Mueller, a Twin Falls landscape architect, was appointed to the Twin Falls City Planning and Zoning Commission Monday night.

Mayor John Christoffersen made the appointments at the City Council meeting.

Mueller fills the commission seat vacated by John Rosholt, who resigned in August.

A resident of Twin Falls since November, Mueller heads his architectural firm, Designers West. He is currently designing a golf course for Simplot-McCollum Corporation's Snake River Canyon development, Canyon Springs.

"I definitely would like to see more attractive entrances to Twin Falls, particularly on Highway 93 on the west and Blue Lakes on the north," Mueller said.

"I can see where we'll have nothing but a neon strip all the way down Blue Lakes," he added.

The City Council Monday reached agreement on lease fees for car rental firms at the City-County Airport. The vote ended more than two months of negotiations between the rental firms and the city.

The Council voted to set the monthly fees at $275 or six per cent of each firm's gross income, whichever is greatest. The percentage rate will be boosted one per cent per year during the first four years of the ten year lease, to a final 10 per cent.

Phil Cargill, owner of the Hertz agency at the airport, said he would "resent" any percentage rate in the lease agreement.

"On a percentage basis, I'd have to quit," Cargill added.

The city's recommended lease terms will be forwarded to the county commissioners for their consideration.

The Council also authorized City Manager Jenn Milnar to complete purchase of the Leitchler property adjacent to City Hall. The property, under the guardianship of Twin Falls Bank and Trust, will sell for $14,750, according to Milnar, who based the price on two appraisals.

The city will purchase the property to provide space for planned new fire and police stations adjoining City Hall.

Gooding ponders pay increase

By PEGGY CIU
Times-News Writer

GOODING — Gooding city councilmen took under advisement a suggestion that city employees receive a five per cent and later a seven per cent pay increase.

Mayor Harley Crippen recommended that the five per cent raise include October, November and December and that the seven per cent increase become effective the first of the year.

"It is going to be close, keeping within the budget," the mayor said.

Councilman Don Sims requested a report from the city clerk so that a determination can be made of the costs by department involved if the increase is approved. The report will be made at the next city council meeting Oct. 15.

City clerk George Silva reported favorable opinions from other cities concerning local improvement districts. He said that at the clerk and treasurer's convention in McCall Sept. 21, most city representatives expressed satisfaction with the LID plan.

Crippen said that the council could consider

LID programs for Gooding and added that would be a good way to replace sidewalks.

The council moved to rescind a previous motion which forbade owners of the Gooding County-International Raceway to farm land leased from the city at the racetrack.

Crippen said Craig Mueller could farm the land providing any improvements are subject to the approval of the council.

Approval of the farming came after attorney Cecil Hobley read a notice of claim to the city. The notice, from Gooding County International Raceway, stated the firm would farm the land as stated in the lease agreement and if the city continued to object the corporation would consider a breach of agreement and would ask for a declaratory decision and possibly sue for damages.

Crippen reported that he will attend a Senate sub-committee hearing in Burley Saturday concerning the American Falls dam. He said the city has 395 water shares in the American Falls district. The city will support Senate bill 1829 which provides for private financing of dam replacement at the earliest possible date.

Hobley will attend the hearings representing American Falls water users. He said water users have been on purchased water since the first of September and that unless there is a good winter, there will be no water to buy next year.

Councilman Sims reported he saw no justification for replacement of the blinking light at Sevent and Idaho which was removed a year ago. He said a study showed that only four minor accidents have occurred at the intersection during the past two years, all of them during the time the light was functioning.

The council had received requests that the light be re-installed because of several near accidents.

Crippen reported that a portion of the $3,000 from the capital improvement fund which was turned over to the recreation department could be used to repair the city swimming pool. The said sandblasting would cost between $1,200 and $1,300 and should be done this fall. Filling and painting could be finished in the spring, he said.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Opines that renowned anthropologist Margaret Mead: "Women are much fiercer than men... Men make up rules of warfare as if they were making up games. No fighting at night. No fighting when it's raining. No killing women and children. Women simply don't think that way. The ferocity of the girls in the activist groups is far more horrible than men's. They kick below the belt!"

How do you like your family name? Surveys show that 26 per cent of the men and 33 per cent of the women don't much care for theirs. The percentages of men and women who don't like their given names are even higher.

Maybe it's no surprise at all to learn that those citizens who live to 100 years of age or older tend to have had far more children than average.

O' Louie, remember that old rhyme which describes your nature according to the day on which you were born? I arrived on a Sunday. What's that make me?

A. You're blithe and bonnie, good and gay. That thing goes. Monday's child is fair of face. Tuesday's child is full of grace. Wednesday's child is full of woe. Thursday's child has far to go. Friday's child is loving and giving. Saturday's child works hard for a living. But the child born on the Sabbath Day is blithe and bonnie, good and gay. The Ladybird was born on Monday. With perfect accuracy I was born on Thursday. Got that? Just about right, too.

Grownups are keeping their teeth longer these days. Twenty years ago, the dentists extracted twice as many teeth per citizen as they do today, the record shows.

SOCIALISM

Socialism or no socialism, it's claimed by some authorities that Sweden is run by just 12 key families. Is that possible? No, this isn't meant to be an editorial on political philosophy. Find it fascinating, however, that in the welfare states, as the general benefits offered to the public grow broader and broader, the actual wealth, power and influence becomes concentrated in fewer and fewer hands. Average Swede pays 50 per cent of his income in taxes.

Ready to diet, young lady? Try lunching each day on one hard-boiled egg plus two prunes, nothing more. That's how Lady Bird Johnson does it.

It's said 50 per cent of the women after menopause suffer that troublesome thing called thinning hair.
