Nixon mulls VP choices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon solicited recommendations today for a new vice president, passing word that he was looking for the best man regardless of whether he has White House aspirations. Some Democrats said he should not consider possible 1976 candidates. On Capitol Hill, where the Senate and House will have to give approval to Nixon's choice, several Republicans appeared to be trying to build a groundswell for House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan. Another said Gov.

Nelson A. Rockefeller was anxious to be tapped. The White House said Nixon would move expeditiously to select a successor to Spiro T. Agnew. Some sources within the White House said the President already had picked his man, having anticipated Agnew would quit under the burden of criminal allegations against him. House Republicans held a caucus this morning. Afterward, it was reported several members expressed a preference for Ford. Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, like Ford, from Michigan, told a reporter, "I'm picking Ford. Everyone I talked to had the same preference." The members were told to submit sealed nominations to Ford, as their leader, by 3 p.m. MDT. Ford said he would deliver them to Nixon by the President's 4 p.m. deadline. Rockefeller's reported willingness to take the job was reported by Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y. He said he had talked with the New York governor, several times a presidential candidate.

Some Democrats cautioned that Nixon should look beyond those regarded as White House candidates and choose someone noncontroversial who could win quick congressional approval. But Senate Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin of Michigan said Nixon made clear during a meeting with GOP House and Senate leaders Wednesday afternoon that he would not be bound by any such restrictions in his selection.

Strevell oil test started

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

MALTA — A Texas company is drilling what it hopes will be the first producing oil well in Idaho. Standard America of Fort Worth, Tex., has been working on a well about one-half mile north of Strevell for nearly three weeks and had reached the 4,200-foot depth Wednesday.

Drilling superintendent Ray Cottrell says the firm will "keep drilling" until it hits oil, which it expects to find between the 5,000 to 8,000 foot levels.

Standard America is drilling on land belonging to the Barnes brothers. It has obtained the oil lease from another person, who owns the mineral rights on the land.

According to Cottrell, other wells are planned for the area, which has been thoroughly studied by the company and is felt to be promising.

There are only three other oil wells in the state of Idaho, Cottrell said, but none of these is producing. Two are near Mountain Home.

If the well produces, the oil will either be shipped by truck or run through a pipeline near Malta, Cottrell said. The drilling rig is being run by Big Horn Drilling, Casper, Wyo. About 15 men are working at the well.

Jerome site picked for 64-unit motel

JEROME — A 64 unit motel complex will be built about two and one-half miles south of Jerome.

Bert S. Mitchell, representative of Innkeepers Company, said the complex will be built at the intersection of Interstate 80N and Lincoln Road.

A. R. Spaulding, Pocatello, is president of the company, which owns a Rodeway Inn at Blackfoot and has another under construction in Twin Falls.

Mitchell, who met with the Jerome Development Corporation, asked for financial backing from the corporation for construction of the motel complex. It will include a restaurant, lounge and nine-hole golf course.

Estimated cost of the project, exclusive of the motel, is $425,000.

Bliss couple die in crash

GOODING — A Bliss High School teacher and his wife were killed Wednesday afternoon when their auto collided with a beet truck on Highway 20-26 one mile west of Gooding. Warren Peters, 25, Bliss, driver of a small car, and his wife, Cheryl, 21, were traveling west when their vehicle collided with a truck driven by Henry Jones, 60, who was crossing the highway going south at 4:05 p.m. Mrs. Peters was dead at the scene and her husband died shortly after being taken to Gooding Memorial Hospital, according to Bill Dunn, deputy sheriff. Jones was not injured, but there was extensive damage to the side of his truck. The Peters car was demolished. Investigation is continuing, Dunn said.

US interests said first

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson said today the interests of the United States — and not of Spiro T. Agnew — were best served by the arrangement under which Agnew pleaded no contest to a tax evasion charge and resigned in disgrace.

Richardson, ruling himself out as a potential successor to Agnew in the course of an hourlong news conference, defended the "plea bargaining" arrangement negotiated with Agnew as one which spared the nation a prolonged period of agony.

More on Agnew, pp. 8, 10, 21

Richardson said he was "wholly confident" that until last July, President Nixon had no knowledge of Agnew's dealings with Maryland contractors while serving as the top elected official of suburban Baltimore County and then as governor of Maryland.

The White House indicated today that Nixon would nominate a successor to Agnew within a matter of days. Some aides said Nixon, anticipating that Agnew ultimately would be compelled to resign, had already reached a decision.

Richardson's name had been mentioned as a possible Agnew successor, but he said he would not take the job. "I think it would be highly inappropriate for me ... to be for one moment considered as a successor to him," Richardson said.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was described by Rep. Peter Peyser, R-N.Y., as "anxious and willing" to be selected, while sources close to John B. Connelly — the most controversial of those mentioned in speculation as Agnew's successor — said Connelly "couldn't turn it down" if chosen.

US ability to recover concerns TF residents

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Local political reaction to the resignation of Vice-President Spiro Agnew Wednesday was marked by concern for the nation and its ability to recover from the jolt.

"I'm stunned and shocked," said Twin Falls County Republican Chairman Doug Kramer.

"I only hope now that the Democrats in Congress, particularly Frank Church, won't seize this opportunity to block Mr. Nixon's appointment of a successor."

"I think it would be bad for the nation to have Congress in a six-month debate simply because of politics," Kramer said.

Kramer said, "I think President Nixon should nominate someone who is capable of being president in the event of his death. That necessarily implies that whoever he names could conceivably be a candidate in 1976."

"Quite frankly, I would hope the President would select someone from the West of the caliber of Reagan," he said.

Kramer said Agnew's resignation and conviction for income tax evasion will have little effect on local elections.

Asked if the Watergate issue will be affected by the Agnew scandal, Kramer said, "Apparently Watergate is dying down now. They (Senate Watergate Committee) are in the dirty tricks end of the investigation. As many Democrats as Republicans are involved in that."

Orriette Sinclair, Republican National Committeewoman from Twin Falls, said, "I am very surprised. I would assume he is hopefully doing this for the good of the nation."

"I really don't know what's going on behind the scenes. We are pretty far removed from all that action."

Mrs. Sinclair said, "I don't think politics should enter into the appointment of a replacement. Whoever can do the best job should be appointed."

Canyon rim protection prompts new corporation

TWIN FALLS — A group of Twin Falls citizens plans to form a corporation to insure "orderly development" of the Snake River Canyon Rim.

The corporation will "try to coordinate ... a push for the development of the rim in an orderly manner, including parks, recreation areas, etc., and well-planned housing," according to spokesman David Mead.

In a private meeting Wednesday night, a group of 18 people named a committee of 4 to draft plans for the corporation. Charles Brumbach, Leon Smith, Ann Swape and Mead were appointed to the committee.

Brumbach said incorporation would allow the group to "act quickly" if the county decides to permit residential and commercial development of the rim without thorough supporting research.

The corporation will ask for a court injunction, "if necessary," to stop hasty rim developments, Brumbach said.

Mead said the group would ask Twin Falls County commissioners for a one-year "moratorium" on rim developments.

"We don't think the moratorium will hurt anyone," Mead said.

"Proper research, study and investigation has not been done" concerning the canyon rim, according to Brumbach. "We understand they (county commissioners) are going to back off, as reasonable men ... and try to make a decision for the betterment of all."

The group met with Boise attorney John Chapman Wednesday night. Chapman, a Twin Falls native, is chairman of the Boise Green Belt Commission.

Chapman reportedly told the group that a 70-foot setback along five miles of the Boise River in Boise has increased the value of abutting lands.

The Green Belt Commission, which has a budget of $180,000 this year, has purchased one-third of the setback land "at a fair price," Chapman said. The remaining land is due to be purchased within three years.

Philpino hijackers surrender

HONG KONG (UPI) — Three confused young Filipinos armed with pistols and a hand grenade hijacked a Philippine Air Lines (PAL) jetliner from Manila to Hong Kong today, but surrendered to police in exchange for a promise of amnesty, the Hong Kong Information Service said.

The Hong Kong Information Service said Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos offered the hijackers amnesty if they would surrender.

"The three young hijackers of the PAL BAC 111 have decided to return to Manila," the information service reported. "They made their decision after (PAL President Benigno) Toda had on their behalf obtained from President Marcos an amnesty for hijacking the aircraft. They have surrendered their weapons."

Cambodia terrorists hit park

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Terrorists lobbed hand grenades today into a park near the former royal palace in Phnom Penh while 100 home guardsmen were training there, wounding more than 20 persons, at least six of them children.

On the battlefield, field reports said Cambodian troops today rounded out three weeks of bloody fighting by reopening vital Highway 4, Phnom Penh's only supply road to the sea.

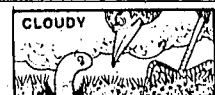

Prime Minister In Tam, reportedly under pressure from the military and claiming "there are rumors against me," announced his resignation from public office Wednesday night.

Saigon outpost wiped out

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist troops wiped out a militia outpost early today deep in the Mekong Delta about 120 miles southwest of Saigon, military sources said.

Of the 16 men guarding the position, six were wounded and the other 10 are missing, the sources said.

The attack was the latest incident in chronic fighting that has raged since the Jan. 29 cease-fire through the ricefields of Chuong Thien Province.

'Coffee break'
Car damages restaurant

TWIN FALLS — Damage estimated at $3,500 resulted to the J.B.'s Big Boy Restaurant in Lynwood Shopping Center early today when four Kimberly teen-agers "stopped in for coffee."

City police said the heavy station wagon, driven by Debra Kay Glenn struck the front wall of the building near the main entrance as the vehicle was being parked. The driver told officers her foot slipped off the brake pedal.

The vehicle jumped a concrete car stop, crossed through a small planter area before crashing into the brick portion of the front wall.

Several plate glass windows were broken out, bricks were knocked from the wall and interior damage resulted to the wall and furnishings.

Officials at the restaurant said there were no customers in the booths adjacent to the wall. None of the young women in the car was injured.

Passengers included Linda Allred, 17, Brenda Sutweeks, 17, and Nina Hansen, 17.

Officers said they had been decorating for the Kimberly High School and decided to have coffee before going home. The accident occurred about 6:20 a.m.

House favors AF dam

SHOSHONE, Idaho (UPI) — Shoshone Republicans have told House passage of a bill to construct the new American Falls Dam now looks very favorable.

Leon Grieve, manager of the Big Wood Canal Co., said Wednesday at a Rotary Club meeting construction of a two-lane bridge across the dam is scheduled to begin this fall with construction of the dam scheduled to begin in January 1974.

Grieve said canal companies and districts have thus far advanced $400,000 toward engineering costs of the project.

In order for the canal companies to advance the engineering costs, the way had to be cleared by special legislation passed in the last Idaho Legislature.

TWIN FALLS — Gym students working out in the hallway, balcony and auditorium is not an unusual sight on chilly days at Robert Stuart Junior High School.

Having only one small gym to accommodate 588 students taking P. E. this term, P. E. teachers have to find whatever space is available, according to Jack Watts, principal at Robert Stuart.

"We adjust and do the things we like to do, but the teaching becomes a problem," Watts said. He said it is difficult for gym teachers to work with their students when four classes, totalling over 120 kids, are using the gym at once.

Scheduling is no solution to the space problem because the gym is used continuously during the school day. When basketball season starts it is in constant use from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., Watts said.

One of the proposals of the $3.5 million school bond is a P. E. "teaching station" (with no lockers or showers) and a four-classroom addition to be constructed at Robert Stuart at a cost of $450,000.

Ironically, this construction would probably have its greatest impact on Vera C. O'Leary, Twin Falls' largest school besides the high school, with over 1,000 students, has practically no outdoor play area. According to O'Leary's principal Carl Snow the school's gym teachers now take gym classes out on the front yard, to the city park across the street and to Harmon Park by bus.

When the weather is cold, gym facilities are not adequate to serve all the students every day and must be shared on a rotation basis, Snow said. The classes work-out three days a week in the gym and study subjects like health in classrooms two days each week when the winter sets in.

Gym classes at O'Leary have as many as 55 students. Academic courses are also crowded, Snow said. Some classes have up to 38 students while the smallest class in the school, remedial reading, has 28 students.

With an average of 20 students per classroom, overcrowding in the academic courses is not a great problem at Robert Stuart, according to Watts.

Although it is now filled to capacity, if four classrooms and a P. E. teaching station are added, Robert Stuart would be able to accept about 120 O'Leary students, Watts said. This would help to alleviate the crowding at O'Leary which has no space available for playing fields, he added. Snow said the shift of students also would help to equalize the size of the two schools.

Robert Stuart was built with plenty of space to expand, Watts said. The four classrooms and project room would be built on the west side or on the northwest or southwest corner of the school, although no definite plans have been made yet, he added.

Balloon loses ground

—ROARINGS SPRING BRANCH, Ore. (UPI) — Publisher Malcolm Forbes, 56, is trying to head his hot-air balloon eastward across the nation, not back towards the Pacific shore from whence he started.

That's why contrary winds kept him grounded Wednesday in the dry lake bed where he had landed Tuesday after going 30 miles south and 8 miles west.

He had taken off last Thursday and has had two days in which he did not take to the air.

Blaine accepts bid for new shop

HAILEY — The Blaine County commissioners have accepted a $40,478 bid to construct a new county maintenance shop.

Successful bidder was Q Span Sales Co., Blackfoot. The project had been re-bid after original bids came in at about $57,000 to $59,000.

The new 50-by-82-foot metal shop will be located at the southwest corner of the Friedman Memorial airport south of Hailey and will replace existing shops in Hailey and Bellevue.

According to Jeff Bennett, commissioner, construction will begin next week toward a Jan. 1 completion date.

Body found

BOISE (UPI) — State police have found the body of a man who had been missing since Sept. 14 inside a car pulled from the Boise River seven miles from Boise along Highway 21.

The man was identified as Val G. Toolson, 36, Boise, an employee of the Boise Cascade Corp.

An autopsy concluded death was caused by drowning.

Idaho State Police Cpl. Donald Ikenberry said Toolson's car was spotted Wednesday.

CSI receives 'part' of audit

TWIN FALLS — Preliminary Federal audit findings on the College of Southern Idaho's administration of its work-study program have been sent in part to the college.

However, CSI will not respond to the draft findings until it receives all of them, according to CSI President James L. Taylor. "Who the hell ever heard of part of an audit? An audit report is a complete report," he said Wednesday.

James Durnall, assistant regional audit official for the Region 10 Health, Education and Welfare Audit Agency, said all the draft findings should be sent to CSI by next week. After that CSI will have two weeks to respond and make corrections before a final, public report is drawn up. Durnall said the final report should be ready by the end of this month or the beginning of November.

HEW began the audit in early July after CSI's own auditing firm showed that $1,466 in "unrecoverable payments" had been made to CSI college students for work-study when they could not possibly have worked.

5 hunters found

SALMON — Five hunters were reported missing over the weekend in the Salmon area. Four of them showed up after being out overnight but the fifth was found during a search by helicopter Monday afternoon.

Craig Cotterell, 30, Bellflower, Calif., was last seen by his hunting companions near their camp at Yellow Jacket Lake west of Salmon Saturday morning.

The hunter spent two nights out without matches to start a fire and was located by the search craft in Wilson Creek in the Bighorn Crags area.

Cotterell was picked up and returned to his hunting camp "cold and hungry."

Sheriff William Baker said he received reports that hunters were missing from their camps, two in the Lake Mountain area, one in the Moyer Creek area and one in the Donnelly Gulch area, all on the Salmon National Forest.

The sheriff also advised that a range cow had been shot and killed on McKim Creek 28 miles south of Salmon over the weekend. "Spotlighting" deer hunters are suspected.

Spiro Agnew

He is now a man whose actions in the charges to which he admitted guilt are both tragic and disgraceful.

The 39th Vice-President of these United States rose to the heights at a dizzy pace and suffered a fall to the depths at a pace and suddenness unbelievable.

He was the first man to resign under fire in the high office he held. His actions which brought about his fall were tragic both for him, members of his family, the Republican party, the Nixon Administration, our nation and all Americans.

As a politician, as a statesman, as a leader who commands respect, the former Vice-President is all through.

The nation should be saddened by this whole course of events. But it should not mean we coast along with the tide. It should mean that action is swift which will get us back on the right track and once more bring back the confidence we should have in our leaders and the self-respect which should come as a matter of course.

Politics has proved that big money can make it a dirty business. Reform is needed right down to the grass roots.

The time has come for a resounding demand from all citizens to end the possibility of such a national disgrace happening again. It will be difficult but, surely, a way can be found.

Our feelings in this instance and in the general course of events we have noted of late can be summed up in one statement.

We are ashamed.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Profile Suffering

WASHINGTON (NEA) — It may be that those of use who have been writing that President Nixon could not endure his seventh crisis, Watergate, because it seemed beyond control have been quite wrong.

As one of many observers who have kept on totting up the difficulties which still lie ahead for him, I do not find it easy to backtrack. But a fresh look at the man and his dilemmas is giving no pause.

In fact, the list of difficulties is long. He may lose the issue of the Watergate tapes in the courts, and then have to decide whether to defy a Supreme Court judgment, recognizing that such defiance might be grounds for impeachment proceedings.

He has special prosecutor Archibald Cox and his predicted string of Watergate indictments to worry about. Cox could write a critical report on the President's role.

So may the Ervin Senate committee next winter. Then there's the Agnew problem, a possible winter home fuel crisis, an economy still struggling with serious inflation.

It all sounds like too much for anyone to bear, particularly a man who, writing of his life in the early 1960s, divided it up into "Six Crises" — all of which he nevertheless weathered and, by his definition, somehow controlled.

But I think that approach of his really puts us off from a deeper reality. What emerges from a fuller reading of his behavior, his utterances, the things he himself brings out in that celebrated book, is that his whole life is a crisis, almost by the day.

Political science scholar James David Barber, in his somewhat controversial book called "The Presidential Character," cited five occasions (up to 1962) when Richard Nixon was "about to quit" public life. Since Watergate broke in 1972, the President may have given thought to that notion at least one more time.

The overriding fact, of course, is that he did not quit. By his own words, crisis is agony. But he has truly come to expect suffering, not just in relatively brief periods of high stress but as the continuing price of living in public life.

As other running themes in Mr. Nixon's career, Barber finds he does not really look for counter-vailing enjoyments, that his view of men is that — at least in politics — they are basically, untrustworthy and disloyal, that for decades he has had to battle to control his tendency to fight back against his "enemies" with every weapon at his command.

In a significant summary passage, Barber writes: "Clearly Nixon is one for whom the burdens outweigh the pleasures. His political life — which is nearly his whole life — is a punishing one. At most he derives from it a grim satisfaction in endurance, but there is not much of the spontaneous, easy enjoyment a fundamentally self-loving person feels. For reasons not yet clear, Nixon exerts extraordinary energies in a life which brings him back extraordinary hardships."

To Barber, the President is a man preoccupied less with the substance than with the forms, techniques and tactics of politics, and preoccupied always with his self struggle. His reward? — Power — but power without clear ends.

Wounded Knee

The cost of the government — that is, to the taxpayers — for the Indian uprising at Wounded Knee, S. D., last March is now figured to be close to $4 million.

The Justice Department's bill is $3,528,000 and includes expenditures for federal marshals and FBI agents, equipment, negotiating personnel, etc.

Direct spending by the Bureau of Indian Affairs includes: Repair of bridges, roads, equipment — $130,600; Repair or replacement of homes — $148,000; Range restoration — $44,000; General cleanup area — $7,000. Emergency assistance to displaced families — $15,600; Repair of community center and Head Start building — $29,800.

The combined total comes to $3,903,300 and doesn't include any personal losses or expenses of private citizens in the area.

The entire series of Indian wars in the latter part of the 19th century, which culminated in the original Wounded Knee, probably didn't cost much more.

MR. SPECTATOR

What's In A Name?

A policy of plain labeling is being urged on meat retailers by the National Livestock and Meat Board. The effort is aimed at reducing the names of cuts of beef, pork and lamb from an estimated 1,000 to about 315, and to translate the fancier monickers to plain, descriptive terms.

It would be a boon, especially to the more mobile part of the population that finds a New York strip in Kansas City is a Kansas City steak in New York. One obvious part of the problem is localisms. The uniform labelers won't try to break too much with tradition.

A porterhouse, a T-bone and a club steak are all variations on a theme, and their differences are understood from coast to coast. Filet mignon is fancy French for a tenderloin cut, but the term is understood. But what's the matter with clear, plain terms like chuck, round rump and rib?

All meat label jargon isn't meant to be deceptive, but much of it is. It will taste just as good (and cost just as much) called by its plain, comprehensive names, and the customer will have a chance to know what she is buying for all that money.

HAPPINESS DEPENDS

Are richer people really happier than poor people, or do they just think they are? And, as people work themselves up the economic scale, at what point do they achieve happiness? Philosophers have argued these and related questions for centuries. The answers are still inconclusive.

A University of Pennsylvania economist, Richard A. Easterlin, reports a study he conducted revealed that taken as a whole rich people are happier than poor people but wide variations in attitudes on happiness exist. People generally tend to compare their lot with that of their neighbors.

Although incomes and living standards in the United States today are both considerably higher than they were in the 1940s, the happiness scale has not risen correspondingly. Why? Because, theorizes Easterlin, material goods available for consumption have risen dramatically in the last 30 years, outdistancing higher incomes.

If that is so, national income has no bearing on the happiness of the individual. What matters is his relative standing among his peers. If happiness is a relative condition, as some sociologists studying the behavior of primitive tribes have indicated, it could help explain why some young people tend to hold back and take a good look at where they are going before they start running to get there.

The Experience

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The heartbreaking experience of a dear, close and completely honest friend makes this reporter exceedingly wary about coming to conclusions in the case of Vice President Spiro Agnew — even if he is indicted by an impartial grand jury.

The story to be told in this column points up the virtue of suspending judgment, until all the facts are in. When they are, then let the chips fall where they may.

The story is this: My friend, whom I shall call John Doe, was accused of bribery, and indicted by a grand jury. An attorney had written in his notebook — and sworn — that he had bribed Doe for voting for the rezoning of a piece of property, a vote calculated to make a considerable sum of money for the lawyer and his clients.

That was the story the prosecutor told the grand jury.

On the basis of this evidence Doe was indicted and brought to trial. The case dragged on and finally came to court. But the judge threw it out with a vigorous attack on the prosecutor.

For it turned out that though Doe was indicted for accepting a bribe for voting for the rezoning measure, he had actually voted against it, as the record clearly showed. His vote, in fact, had cost the false-swearing attorney and his friends a considerable sum of money.

I personally overheard the attorney tell a friend that Doe's election had cost him a hundred thousand dollars a year (back when that was equivalent to double that sum today).

Though Doe was clearly innocent according to the public record, though there was absolutely no shred of a case against him, and though he was completely cleared, his business was ruined and his life was in shreds for years because people remembered the indictment — and not the facts.

Later, the prosecutor who had brought the charges before the grand jury, was asked why he had done this cruel thing, knowing he would lose in the end. (He might win over the jury with twisted evidence no one was permitted to refute. But he could not possibly have hoped that his case would stand up when the actual voting record and other relevant facts were presented.)

The prosecutor's answer was simple and blunt: "Don't care about convictions, indictments are what I want."

None of this is to imply that Mr. Agnew is innocent or, that he is guilty. But, he, as a man, deserves that we hold our judgment until there is an open and complete hearing in which he can face his accusers.

GEORGE S. THOSTESON, M.D.

Hepatitis

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am recovering nicely from a bout of serum hepatitis (without any record of a transfusion or needle to have caused it).

My physician doesn't seem to have any enlightening material on the subject and certain aspects (diet) had to be painfully extracted from him. I was kept in the dark, and I don't like it. — F. D. C.

Sorry you are so grumpy, but I doubt if your doctor was trying to hold out information. More likely, there wasn't much of value to tell you except for what you already knew.

Hepatitis is a liver infection caused by a virus. There are two types of hepatitis, one known as infectious and the other as serum hepatitis. In either case, the infected liver is put under considerable strain.

Infectious hepatitis is primarily spread by contaminated food or water sources. The incubation period is about two to six weeks.

Serum hepatitis is transmitted primarily by the virus getting into the blood stream, as by a blood transfusion or a needle contaminated with the virus. It is a distinct and known danger to addicts who inject drugs, the danger arising, of course, that these people use each other's needles without meticulous sterilizing.

It is known that the disease is passed along by means other than transfusions or dirty needles. Since it is essentially a matter of the virus getting into the blood, any small cut or abrasion or scratch could be the point of entrance if the virus happens to be there. It is possible, I dare say, that the virus might be transmitted other than through a break in the skin, but I do not know that that has been proved one way or another. Anyway, there is also this difference between serum and infectious hepatitis: the incubation period of serum hepatitis is much longer, anywhere from one to six months. Special tests can be used to distinguish between the two types.

With the liver congested by the disease, bile which normally would flow to the gall bladder and thence to the small intestine is absorbed through the other body tissues causing the jaundice or yellowness that most frequently accompanies hepatitis as well as other liver disorders.

Treatment doesn't lend itself to much discussion. There is no medication to combat the virus, so good nursing is the recourse, until the patient's own defense mechanisms overcome the virus.

Ample rest is essential, and a restricted diet is followed until the jaundice subsides, which indicates that the patient is overcoming the virus. This can take a month or so.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What causes ringworm and what can you do for it? Can it be caught from animals? — A. S.

Ringworm is a fungus infection of the skin. It can be caught from an animal with fungus skin disorders, or from people with it.

There are fungicides (medications that destroy fungus) but I take a dim view of attempting home treatment. See your doctor.

US revenue aid slated

SEATTLE, Wash. — Special arrangements to make early Revenue Sharing payments to 53 local governmental units in Idaho not receiving quarterly installments on Oct. 5 have been made.

Bernard E. Kelley, chairman of the Northwest Federal Regional Council, said in the Office of Revenue Sharing in the Department of the Treasury has arranged to send checks to the governmental units as soon as reports with the Office of Revenue Sharing are filed.

The three reports, which were to have been filed before Sept. 24, are:

- Planned use report outlining plans for spending revenue sharing funds
- Actual use report showing how each recipient spent all funds paid under revenue sharing through June 30.
- Planned use report covering plans for spending fiscal 1974 funds.

Kelley said that normally governments with delinquent reports would not be paid until next January, but since the program is new the office felt special consideration and assistance were due the local units.

Another special payment will be scheduled in November for governments unable to comply until after Oct. 16, but before Nov. 1.

US feels Israeli war may continue

By GEORGE SHERMAN and JEREMIAH O'LEARY
(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — The United States government has concluded that the Middle East War will continue to escalate with heavy losses to both sides and that no decisive direction of battle is yet in sight.

Informed sources in Washington believe Israel will eventually prevail but not without a long, hard fight and many casualties.

(President Nixon invited congressional leaders to a morning briefing on the Middle East situation by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. Those invited included the leadership of both parties and the chairmen — and — ranking minority members of the Foreign Relations, Armed Services and Appropriations committees in both houses.)

"We don't know how long it will go on," State Department spokesman Robert McCloskey said Tuesday. "The battle has ebbed and flowed since Sunday. It would be unwise to forecast any outcome in the next 24 hours."

This view, which is also shared by military and intelligence sources here, underlines the new obvious fact that the Egyptians and Syrians are giving Israel a much stiffer battle than anyone here thought possible when the war began last Saturday.

There also is strong evidence that the United States, which depends on Israel for most of its information about the conflict, has no clear idea of what the warring nations have lost in terms of planes, tanks, men and terrain and no basis for judgment about the outcome.

"The numbers game on Israel and Arab losses is a morass of conflicting claims," said one well-placed official. He said indications now are that Israel has lost more than 50 planes but added that the combatant nations are the only ones who know how badly they have been bloodied in the conflict. Another source said it appears the Israelis have been giving the United States far more optimistic reports than the situation deserves.

McCloskey, who is emerging as the key spokesman for the various U.S. departments including the Pentagon and White House, said, "It is most difficult to say what the precise situation is."

"At one point in his briefing Tuesday afternoon, McCloskey used the expression 'protracted war' but later withdrew it. He was commenting on the Israeli raid on Damascus and said, 'Reports we have seen indicate the targets were military but I've seen press reports that some civilians have been killed or wounded. Monday I said both sides have made some effort to avoid involving civilians. We hope this will be the case in a protracted war.'"

McCloskey's comment came before reports from the Syrian capital indicated that the Israeli attack had struck a Soviet installation and caused 30 fatalities.

Pressed on the word "protracted," McCloskey said he should have avoided that word and said the United States had no idea how long the war would continue.

While the military position and any precise count of Israel's losses remain obscure, Washington believes its ally has lost at least 50 planes, one-tenth of the Israeli air force.

Dog causes mishap

TWIN FALLS — Fritz, a German Shorthair, was the cause of a traffic accident in the Twin Falls High School driveway Tuesday afternoon.

The animal, riding in a van driven by Ron Cook, jumped into the front seat, causing Cook to lose control of the vehicle, and it rolled into a ditch, according to Twin Falls policeman Ron Robertson.

Cook and a passenger, Trent Trappen, were uninjured, Robertson said.

McGovern denies claims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern has denied as "impossible" the claims of a young Republican spy that it was so easy to infiltrate Democratic camps that he ended up watching television with McGovern at the Democratic National Convention.

Michael W. McMinnow, appearing before the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday, bragged of infiltrating the campaigns of three Democratic Presidential hopefuls without anyone suspecting he was gathering political intelligence.

He became a security guard at McGovern's penthouse suite at the Doral Hotel in Miami Beach, he said, and one night he watched the convention with McGovern.

McGovern rebutted McMinnow's claims in a letter to Sen. Joseph Montoya, D-N.M., a member of the committee.

McGovern said he did not recognize a picture of McMinnow.

"Since there was a Secret Service agent stationed immediately outside the door of my suite whenever I was there, and since even close members of my staff were cleared to enter only when I wanted to see them, the sort of access he claims would have been impossible," McGovern said.

McMinnow, 27, Louisville, Ky., said he was hired in February, 1972, by a man using an alias and he never did know until the hearings this spring that he was working for a representative of the Committee to Re-Elect the President.

McMinnow said he volunteered to work in the campaigns of McGovern, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie in four states and Washington, D.C., rising to positions of trust and responsibility.

"I was never challenged at all," he said. "They were damn glad to get a volunteer."

While working for the various Democratic candidates, McMinnow said he telephoned daily reports to a contact in Washington.

from committing troops to battle for more than 90 days without specific legislative authority. It also reserves to Congress the right to end hostilities earlier by a simple majority vote not subject to veto.

The bill is the product of a Senate-House conference and is not subject to amendment before the House votes on it.

Though the conferees produced a bill that won wide support from liberal and middle-of-the-road senators, one of its original backers, Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., turned bitterly against it and carried a small group of liberals with him.

Eagleton charged in a debate with Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., that the compromise in effect gave "an open-ended blank check for 90 days of warmaking anywhere in the world on presidential authority alone."

"I helped give birth to this bill three years ago, but the baby has been kidnaped," Eagleton said.

Javits acknowledged the bill had been weakened from an earlier Senate version, but said it remained "a real, active, substantive and effective restraint on the President. He must seek the consent of Congress to make war."

If the bill passes the House it will mark the first time the Congress has legislated to restrict presidential powers in the military field.

Nixon warned on tape issue

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has warned President Nixon not to leave anything on the table in ignoring a ruling by the Supreme Court ordering him to surrender the Watergate tapes.

"A refusal to comply with a Supreme Court decision could raise the gravest possible situation imaginable," the majority leader told reporters.

Mansfield clearly indicated he considered any such exercise of presidential power to be grounds for impeachment. The Senate would sit as the trial court if the House voted to impeach the President.

One compromise ruling that some members of the high court are reported to be mulling over is a decision that the President lacks the authority to defy a Grand Jury subpoena, combined with an admission that the court lacks the constitutional power to direct the President to do anything.

"No President is above the court," Mansfield remarked. "He is a transient occupying that office."

Mansfield said he felt, though, that any ruling by the court would not be ignored by the President.

Nixon moves to pick VP

 "He doesn't buy the idea that it's got to be someone who the people wouldn't elect," Griffin said.

Griffin said Nixon laid down three qualifications for his nominee:

"First of all, that the person must be well qualified to be the President of the United States, and he does not automatically rule out someone who might be a candidate in 1976."

"Secondly, the nominee's views on foreign policy and domestic policy should generally coincide with his as the vice president would support him."

"And thirdly, of course, it's got to be a nominee who can win the support of both the House and the Senate."

Whoever Nixon chooses, he is expected to make the nomination this weekend or "the first of next week," according to Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield who, along with House Speaker Carl Albert (now next in line for the presidency), conferred with Nixon Wednesday evening.

Of the names mentioned so far, Connally—a good friend of Nixon's who twice has served him as an advisor, including a term as Treasury Secretary before switching parties—appeared to be by far the most controversial.

Asked whether Nixon should avoid picking someone with 1976 aspirations, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said "I don't want to impose that structure on the President," but then observed:

"Mr. Connally, for example, is a very controversial figure, and his selection might well spark the kind of partisanship we want to avoid."

Humphrey interviewed along with Muskie on the NBC-TV Today Show, and he agreed with Muskie, saying "It would be better if the President did not present a name that would polarize the political situation."

Griffin said the matter could provide a "real test" of the character of the Democratic-controlled Congress, saying that in the selection "I would hope that they don't sink to the level of putting it on the basis of partisan politics."

Griffin did say he felt someone in Congress might have a smoother road to confirmation. He said Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., was one of those. Others mentioned in various speculation include Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., House GOP leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, and Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt.

Whoever Nixon chooses, he is expected to make the nomination this weekend or "the first of next week," according to Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield who, along with House Speaker Carl Albert (now next in line for the presidency), conferred with Nixon Wednesday evening.

Of the names mentioned so far, Connally—a good friend of Nixon's who twice has served him as an advisor, including a term as Treasury Secretary before switching parties—appeared to be by far the most controversial.

Asked whether Nixon should avoid picking someone with 1976 aspirations, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said "I

Winding up job, Spiro at office

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Spiro T. Agnew worked in the vice presidential suite of offices in the Executive Office Building next to the White House today closing out his affairs.

An administration official said Agnew, who went off the federal payroll at 2:05 p. m. EDT Wednesday when his resignation became effective, would be given a "reasonable and appropriate transition period" and whatever staff support he needed for the time it takes to clean up his affairs.

The official also said the White House would attempt to find jobs for members of the vice president's staff who want to stay in government.

Asked whether Nixon should avoid picking someone with 1976 aspirations, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said "I

Quit post for Senate in 1832

FIRST U.S. vice president to resign was John C. Calhoun. He quit office in 1832 in closing months of Andrew Jackson administration to claim Senate seat won in South Carolina. (UPI)

GOP claims scored

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A 1972 campaign aide to Sen. George S. McGovern accused the Senate Watergate committee today of a "profound disservice" by allowing Republican witnesses to charge Democrats with political dirty tricks.

"The McGovern campaign was founded not on dirty tricks but on the truth," Dick Stearns, western state coordinator for the McGovern campaign, testified. "In 1972, we made mistakes, but we did not commit crimes."

Stearns was the first of two

McGovern campaign aides called to testify today as the committee began looking into the Democratic side of possible political shenanigans. Also summoned, at request of Republican staff members, was Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's political director.

McGovern himself denied the claims Wednesday of a Republican political spy who said it was so easy to infiltrate Democratic camps that he watched television coverage of some of the Democratic convention at Miami Beach with McGovern.

Nation's interests said first

 Richardson said Agnew must still settle accounts with the Internal Revenue Service over paying back taxes and penalties on thousands of dollars. He is accused of accepting from contractors some in his vice presidential office in the Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House as recently as last Christmas time.

Papers Richardson filed in federal court in Baltimore Wednesday said Agnew took $85,000 in cash from two of the four principal businessmen named as involved in the undercover arrangements.

Agnew was fined $10,000 and placed on three years' probation by Judge Walter E. Hoffman. Agnew insisted outside the courtroom that he was innocent of bribery and extortion allegations against him, but admitted in court that he did not pay taxes in 1967 on money accepted from contractors.

The tax issues, Richardson said, "remain to be worked out," but he pursued further, between the Internal Revenue Service and counsel for the vice president.

While federal prosecutors in Baltimore wanted to require that Agnew be jailed briefly under any plea bargaining arrangement, Richardson said he, as the nation's highest prosecutor, was convinced justice had been served.

He said he was keenly aware "of the historic magnitude of the penalties inherent in the vice president's resignation from his high office and his acceptance of a judgment of conviction for a felony." In Baltimore, Maryland Attorney General Francis B. Burch said Agnew "has suffered enough," and that he would recommend no prosecution be undertaken in state courts against Agnew. Richardson said he was wholly confident that President Nixon "knew nothing about Agnew's dealings as Maryland governor with contractors until last August."

Agnew first informed Nixon of his troubles, Richardson said.

Volunteers perform good deeds

TWIN FALLS — Volunteer workers in Twin Falls, all members of the Snake River Leo Club, are currently doing their "good deeds" for the community in the way of assistance to senior citizens. The newly organized club consists of members 13 to 18 years of age. They work in groups to assist any senior citizen in Magic Valley who needs the assistance. Their specialties include lawn mowing, window washing, moving heavy items, even writing letters and doing whatever odd jobs need their attention. Randy Cliff, president of the club, says there are a number of elderly residents, including widows who live alone, who need help with such chores as raking lawns this time of year. Anyone needing the services of these young volunteers may call 734-5157 or 734-5417 after 6 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays. The organization is sponsored by the Snake River Lions Club.

points including three aces and a king, four good diamonds; a doubleton spade. His four-club bid is a slam try!

South just goes to four diamonds to show that he really has a two-suit hand. North raises to five and now it is up to South to use that imagination and bid the diamond slam.

It is a very sound contract! Actually, if spades broke 3-3 or diamonds broke 2-2 he would be able to make all the tricks. As it is he has to lose a spade or let East get in an overruff.

We don't claim that the only way to get to this slam is by use of the Jacoby transfer. All we do claim is that the bid lets us get there in the most elegant manner.

By Edward & James Jacoby

South holds only 10 high card points but they are an ace and two kings. In addition he has two five-card suits and should realize that a slam is possible despite an opening no-trump.

He can get there with the use of the Jacoby transfer plus a little imagination. His two-club call is a spade transfer. His rebid to three diamonds is a game force and shows either a three-diamond two-suit or a one-diamond feature.

North has a maximum hand in support of diamonds — 17

DEAR ABBY: After 20 years of marriage (and five children) my husband and I decided on a trial separation. I begged him to go to our minister or a marriage counselor, but he refused.

Even tho I loved him, after a year's separation, I filed for divorce, thinking that would bring him to his senses. I was amazed and heartsick when he let me go ahead with the divorce. After the divorce was final, he informed me that he was getting married again in two weeks!

Abby, this brought forth such a feeling of love for him as I had never known before. I made a complete fool of myself by telling him how much I loved him, and begging him to marry me again. He said, no, his mind was made up. My whole world fell apart.

The night before he was to be married, he phoned me and said he would always love me, but was going ahead with his marriage anyway. This really tore my heart out.

With the help of tranquilizers and my friends and family, I'm slowly getting my head together, but I can't stop loving this man. Don't tell me to keep busy. I am employed full-time and have a 10-room house to take care of, plus three children still living at home.

If I could only hate him, it would be so much easier, but I love him. Please help me. I am 43, which is a terrible time to be left alone. Sign me,

Preparing for show

TWO ENSEMBLES from the Episcopal Women's Thrift Shop which will be modeled in the Saturday style show and luncheon are shown here by Jeri Robbins, left, and Charlotte Green. Admission to the event, beginning at 12:30 p.m. is one "white elephant."

Special TF style show set

TWIN FALLS — Pantsuits, formal dresses, children's ensembles and other up-to-date fashions, no item selling for more than $6, will be shown in a special style show Saturday.

The show is the third annual for the Ascension Episcopal Church Guild. Annually the women select some of the merchandise from their own Thrift Shop and model them for the public to call attention to their shop.

From the Thrift Shop, located in the basement of the church, and open Tuesdays from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.,

Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. the Guild raises money with which to help meet church needs.

Mrs. Howard Ward, one of the show committee members, said the women have paid off the mortgage on the church building, put a new roof on the building and have purchased a number of special items.

In the Saturday style show there will be 73 ensembles modeled, ranging from women's sportswear to children's school clothes, lower and formal dresses, shoes and even a few men's jackets.

In addition to the style show there will be a "dime-a-dip" luncheon featuring homemade hot dishes, salads and some desserts.

The public is invited to attend and the luncheon will be served at noon with modeling of fashions beginning at 1 p.m. in the Bishop Rhea Auditorium.

Purpose of the style show, Mrs. Ward said, is to call attention to the many outstanding items offered in the shop for all interested persons, and to help promote church projects.

Some of the outstanding bargains on the racks in the shop, some of which will be modeled in the show, include a three-piece suit which sold for $80, now going for $48; a smart afternoon frock for $2; a child's jumper-blouse ensemble, at $1.50, and a three-piece wool white dress for $3.

She still loves 'ex'

DEAR CRYING: The milk is not only "spilt"—it's curdled, so quit feeling sorry for yourself. There is a valuable lesson to be learned here. A woman should never file for divorce, hoping a man she loves will come to his senses.

Your "ex" has a mean streak in him a mile wide. Why else would he call you the night before his marriage to tell you he would always "love" you, but he's marrying another? You may need a therapist to help you get over him. But get over him, you must!

DEAR ABBY: There are quite a few couples we simply have stopped seeing because they never go anywhere with our children. We know they can afford baby sitters, but our gentle hints have been ignored.

Unfortunately, their children are neither well behaved or babies who will sleep peacefully thru an evening.

When the children have not been actually destructive in our home, the afternoon or evening has been completely dominated with their being disciplined by their parents, an activity we hardly can expect to find entertaining.

Abby, don't you think when we issue an invitation to a couple, their children should be left home unless they are specifically invited? We miss seeing some of these people whose adult company we enjoyed, but we just refuse to put up with ill-behaved children. Do you blame us?

MARYLANDER

DEAR MARYLANDER: No. But I think you are foolish to remain silent and continue to miss the adult company you formerly enjoyed. What's so difficult about saying, "We'd like to see you, but please leave the children home this time"?

Janet Mallory, Knight recite vows

HAILEY — Janet Lee Mallory and Eric Knight were united in marriage in afternoon rites Sept. 29 at the St. Charles of the Valley Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mallory and Knight is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knight, all Hailey.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Father J. M. Gohardt before an altar flanked by large baskets of Red Rover chrysanthemums and yellow gladioli. Red, with burgundy ribbons. Matching arrangements graced the back altars.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full-length gown of candlelight lace and taffeta. The old fashioned design of the gown featured a fitted bodice, high neckline and long sleeves.

A cummerbund of taffeta was set softly into the waist with fly-away tails of taffeta flowing down the full-skirt, which was banded at the bottom with a ruffle of taffeta. A matching, tiered veil of illusion was held by a lace Juliet cap.

The bride carried a bouquet of Forever Yours Roses and an over 100-year-old silk handkerchief that had belonged to her great, great, grandmother, Ann W. Mallory. Her only jewelry was a cameo brooch — a gift from the bridegroom.

Special guests at the wedding included Epifania Inchausti, grandmother of the bride, and grandparents of the bridegroom, Doris Knight, Jerome, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shirts, Salt Lake City.

The couple was honored at a reception immediately after the ceremony in the Parish Hall.

The hall was decorated in autumn colors, with hues of yellow, gold, orange and burgundy. Carrying out the autumn motif were arrangements of cattails and fall leaves set into wall frames with streamers.

The bride's table was draped with yellow satin cloth and trimmed with yellow bows and a white skirt.

The bride's father created a four-tiered wedding cake, topped with wedding bells and decorated with pulled sugar red roses and yellow forget-the-nots. A second cake was decorated as a gift with a large pulled sugar bow, carrying the inscription "Rick and Janet."

The cakes were flanked with silver candelabra, holding burgundy tapers and deep red and yellow carnations.

For the buffet table, a bouquet of Red Rover mums and red and yellow carnations with gold tapers was set on green table cloths. The guest tables were also set with green cloths with gold tapers, surrounded by autumn leaves.

U coordination plan wins nod

By DAVID ESPINOZA
Twin Falls writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Board of Education today approved the outline of a coordinated system of higher education that designates the University of Idaho as the state's chief research center and calls for university status for Boise State College.

The plan also calls for research to be conducted at Boise State and Idaho State University that is "related to the disciplines represented in their curricula offerings and toward fulfillment of their public service obligations."

Meeting at the College of Southern Idaho, board members explicitly rejected a three-tiered system, however, that would have recognized the University of Idaho, the other Idaho universities and colleges and community and junior colleges as the three elements.

One board member expressed fear such a separation would "do harm to the public relations of the University of Idaho and to other schools." Board member A. L. Alford, Lewiston, urged other board members not to let "semantic damage to the system of higher education."

The three-tiered system was rejected 5-2, with Janet Hay, Nampa, and Dr. J. P. Munson, Sandpoint, favoring, and Alford, Ed Benoit, Twin Falls; M. T. Deaton, Pocatello; Ken Thatcher, Idaho Falls, and Supt. of Public Instruction D. F. Engelking, opposing the three-part plan.

Other elements of the outline of mission and roles include:

- The University of Idaho will continue to have major responsibilities for liberal arts and science undergraduate programs as well as in agriculture, forestry, mining and engineering and graduate programs as "justified by the demands of students and the resources of the state."

— Both Boise State College and Idaho State University share the general mission of providing undergraduate level education in academic and vocational technical areas;

— Lewis Clark State College will continue to emphasize the areas of liberal arts and sciences and provide a "strong vocational-technical program;"

— The board of education will seek greater coordination of lower division academic programs among the four year institutions and the state's junior and community colleges.

The move to designate the University of Idaho as the state's senior research center and chief center for research-oriented graduate education was approved on a 4-3 vote.

Hay, Benoit, Alford and Munson supported the effort. Munson said such a designation was "only recognizing the status quo in the present system of higher education."

Engelking was the only board member to oppose legislation to designate Boise State College a university. He said it would create political problems in the legislature in an election year, and urged postponement of the effort for one year.

In other action today, board members agreed to seek supplemental appropriations from the state legislature next year to cover the cost of a 5 percent pay raise for faculty and classified personnel at the higher education institutions.

Estimates of the cost provided by the Department of Higher Education were incomplete but exceeded $800,000.

Board chairman Dr. John Swartley, Boise, said there wasn't sufficient money in individual institutional budgets to cover the cost of the increases, which had not been anticipated when budgets were drawn a year ago.

An expected confrontation among institution administrators over the proposed statement of missions and goals failed to materialize during a board planning committee meeting Wednesday.

But the president of the University of Idaho student board told board members he and other student leaders disagreed.

Carl Wurster, a Twin Falls native, said the state's student presidents favored a two-tiered system of higher education. He outlined a plan of junior and community colleges with two-year curricula feeding students into one of the three regional branches of the lone university.

Wurster's proposal put the branches at the sites of existing state colleges and universities, Boise, Moscow and Pocatello.

The student presented board members, meeting as a committee of the whole, with the Associated Student Body President's response to the controversial discussion paper prepared outlining future roles and missions of institutions of higher education.

The student response was in sharp contrast to presentations made by administrators from the state's four colleges and universities, who tended to raise questions with specific points in the prepared report, but steered clear of recommending stripping the individual schools of their identity.

Wurster said the report, prepared by Director of Higher Education Milt Small, "does nothing more than delineate in written form, the status quo." Small praised Wurster's observation as "many ways the most perceptive comment" in the discussion to that point.

Wurster's challenge to Small's report pointed out that other states comparable in size to Idaho have no more than two major institutions, and have, he said, a stronger, more unified system of higher education.

Valley Comment

What do you think of Agnew's resignation?

Grant Patterson, Halley — If he's guilty why shouldn't he resign when he gets caught at it? He shouldn't have run, period.

I think political parties of this country should start cleaning house themselves before running candidates. They could do it through investigations of their major candidates before they (the candidates) run for the higher offices. With a small percentage of the money they spent on political campaigns they could run the investigations.

Ryvona Stephens, Twin Falls — I'm totally surprised. I really didn't think the guy was guilty. It might shake people's confidence in the government. With the Watergate incident and all where there have been so many people in high government office put under the thumb so to speak I imagine most people will begin to wonder about government.

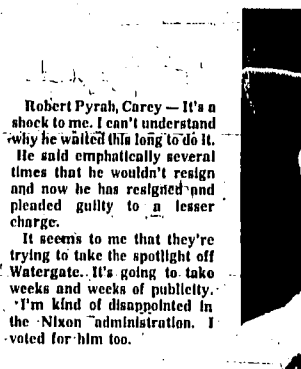

Judy Jones, Wendell — I hope he's not the scapegoat for Nixon. If he's guilty the only thing he can do is resign. (But there's serious doubt in my mind about whether he is guilty.)

I think this is going to clean up the government. This thing will make politicians more honest. They know they can get caught now.

Stan Grant, Jacksonville, Florida — I think the resignation is good because if everybody is crooked in the government then what kind of government can we have? Our government is based on honesty and if we can't have that in the offices of the people who represent us, what kind of government will we have?

Robert Pyrah, Carey — It's a shock to me. I can't understand why he waited this long to do it. He said emphatically several times that he wouldn't resign and now he has resigned and pleaded guilty to a lesser charge.

It seems to me that they're trying to take the spotlight off Watergate. It's going to take weeks and weeks of publicity. I'm kind of disappointed in the Nixon administration. I voted for him too.

Jim Fenwick, Sun Valley — I thought he was in there pretty deep. If he's guilty he should be out. I think it will have a bad effect on the Middle East. The morale of Washington D. C. is pretty bad already. They've gotten rid of nine aides. If he was guilty he should have resigned before.

5 file in Hansen

HANSEN — Five candidates have filed for three seats on the Hansen City election Nov. 6. Voters also will decide on a dog control ordinance.

They include incumbents George Urlo, John Braehler and John Hopkins, and newcomers Mrs. George (Sandra) Golay and Art Mitchell, former marshal and watermaster.

Both Urlo and Hopkins are filling out unexpired terms of former councilmen, Don Puder and the late Kenneth Mothershead.

All three posts are for four years.

Hansen has had no type of dog control the past few years, according to Mayor Harold Miller Jr. and when the council wanted to improve the existing ordinance, there was so much opposition the matter was dropped, he said.

Recent complaints have caused the issue to be placed on the ballot.

2 seek re-election

RICHFIELD — Two incumbents have no opposition in their bid for re-election in the Richfield city election Nov. 6.

Only petitions which have been filed, according to Mrs. Ruth Swainston, city clerk, are for James M. Brown and Linley T. Sanders, whose terms are expiring.

Holder councilmen include Mrs. Billie Swainston and John Lemmon. Mayor C. W. Ward's seat also is not up for election.

Mrs. Billie Swainston and John Lemmon were named registrars for the election during the Tuesday night council meeting.

The city clerk urges voters to check on their registration. She said some people who think they are registered are not.

The council also reported the new sewer system lagoons are being tested for leakage, and evaporation. It is hoped the new system will be ready for use before winter, Mrs. Swainston said.

Mayor post sought

HAILEY — Two candidates are running for Halley mayor and five hopefuls want the two council seats to be filled in the Nov. 6 city election.

Incumbent Mayor Lawrence Heagle will be challenged by Ralph Rutter. Candidates for the council posts include incumbent D. W. Dunn, Don Angell, J. E. Woodbury, William Whitaker and Robert Ward.

Incumbent Neal Nyblad did not file for re-election.

3 seek 2 posts

SUN VALLEY — Three candidates have filed for the two council seats to be filled in the No. 6 city election.

They include incumbent J. G. (Jap) Hammond, Robert Kross and Arthur Strom. Incumbent councilman James Patterson did not seek re-election.

Halley home damaged

HAILEY — Fire caused about $500 damage to the Glen Albrethsen residence, West Walnut street, Wednesday morning.

According to Halley Fire Chief Bob Thompson, the fire call was received about 9:10 a.m. Two trucks and 14 volunteer firemen responded.

Thompson said the wood around a stovepipe had ignited, sending flames through a wall to the exterior and traveling up an exterior chimney.

Fireman contained damage to the residence exterior and minor smoke damage to the inside. They completed mop-up operations by 9:40 a.m.

Posts not contested

HAGERMAN — There are no contested City Council posts in Hagerman.

Incumbent councilman Charles Kiser will seek a four year council position unopposed.

Robert Anderson is unopposed in his bid for the four year council post previously held by Robert Jones. Jones is not seeking re-election.

Ketchum vote draws interest

KETCHUM — More interest is reflected in the Ketchum municipal election Nov. 6 than in most Magic Valley towns, with 10 announced candidates for three posts.

Four men are seeking the four-year mayor term and six persons, including one woman, are vying for the two council positions to be filled.

Incumbent Mayor Kenneth Richey is opposed in his bid for re-election by Paul Bedell, John (Jake) Davidson and William Brand.

Council candidates include Bert Barlow, George Humiston, Phillip Pachner, Peter Flood, Martha Poitevin and Jack Corcock.

Councilmen Gerald Sidwell and Vern McClelland did not file for re-election.

Computer bid accepted in TF

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County commissioners Wednesday purchased a computer for the assessor's office which will be used to institute a mail-in auto license system.

The commissioners approved a bid from Burrough's Corp. of $24,619 for the computer. It was the only bid submitted.

County Assessor Ron Taylor said the computer will be used to start a mailing system for auto license renewal which will make it unnecessary for the automobile owner to come to the courthouse to renew his license plates.

Before the mailing system can be instituted, Taylor said, all vehicle registrations will have to be entered on punch cards. The computer will then automatically send auto owners a notice of payment for license fees and their new auto registrations.

Taylor said the system would not be in operation at the beginning of 1974, but he estimated it would be in use thereafter. He said auto owners will be assessed an additional 50-cent mailing fee in their license costs, but he said this was less expensive than driving to the courthouse.

The computer will also be used to type up property owner tax statements from ledger cards, Taylor said.

While he foresaw no cutback in the assessor's office staff, he did say the computer will prevent additional hirings which would otherwise be necessary.

If there is good response to the license mailing system, he said, the computer will pay for itself.

County Auditor Harold Lancaster said the computer will be compatible with one recently purchased for his office and could substitute in case of a breakdown.

6 candidates file

SALMON — Six candidates have filed for the three Salmon City Council vacancies to be filled in the Nov. 6 city election.

They are Bob Stephanshan, incumbent; Margaret Nilsson, Vince Ingham, James H. Bennett, Merle Lippitt and Dale J. Smith.

Mayor William Cannon was the only person to file for the position of mayor.

Vacancies on the council result from the death of Dr. Roy Sinclair and the decision by Mrs. Jean Tornita not to seek another term.

No candidates, but no problem

DIETRICH — No candidates have filed for the Dietrich city election Nov. 6, but that is not unusual.

If voters write their names in, the incumbent candidates will serve, according to Mayor Clifford L. Davis.

"That's the way we always do it," he said.

Because several councilmen have moved from the district, all four council posts and the mayor's seat will have to be filled, Davis said.

Four-year terms of Sidney Edwards Sr. and Roger Stoddard are expiring and Terry Costello, councilman, as well as Mayor Davis both are serving under appointment until the Nov. 6 election.

The fourth council post never has been filled since the incumbent moved.

Nether the lack of any announced candidates nor the informal method of election bothers Davis. If the people indicate support by writing their names on the ballot, all the office-holders will continue to serve, he said.

No one protests

RUPERT — Architects have been authorized to proceed with plans for the Mindoka County judicial building, following a public hearing.

No one appeared to protest the new building, which is being built on the corner of Eighth and G streets.

Commissioners discussed limiting land development to plots of five acres or more where the high water table is within 40 feet of such plots. They tabled the matter until more information can be obtained from the planning and zoning commission.

Commissioners plan to draw up a legal contract with the mortuaries concerning indigent burials. Cost will be $300 for an adult and $150 for a child. The family may decide which mortuary they want and if there is no family, the county will alternate mortuaries.

Families must put in an application if the county is to assist with costs and it is suggested the family pay as much of the cost as they can.

Martin O'Donnell from the Mindoka County Historical Society appeared to ask for county funds for the society. He was told to submit a budget.

Walt Charles of the search and rescue team, asked for any radios taken from the police cars after the county converts to the high band system. He said they could be used in the search and rescue vehicles. Commissioners referred him to Sheriff Theo Johnson.

Idaho coyotes growing bolder

BOISE (UPI) — Coyotes, so brazen they are coming into towns have created a major problem this year for stockmen in Idaho and eastern Oregon.

A police car ran over one and killed it in Ontario, Ore., recently. Motorists have spotted them running along the interstate-highways. Coyotes killed and ate part of a calf even as it was being born near Parma.

Coyotes attacked and killed 16 replacement lambs in one night in a small pasture at the ranch home of Allen Erstrom at Willow Creek, Ore., northwest of Vale, Ore.

And ranchers say the problem is getting worse.

Ted Bokides, Weiser, quit the sheep business started by his father-law 45 years ago because he no longer could cope with the predators. They killed 500 lambs in one band. Bokides was killed at Cuprum, along the Idaho-Oregon border this summer.

"We'd find a lot of them ripped up and dead," Mrs. Bokides said.

Several factors seem to be contributing to the problem.

But stockmen generally put a large share of the blame on the president's ban on use of the toxin 1080 on public domain. Without that to control their numbers the coyotes have multiplied drastically, stockmen claim.

"Definitely some means of control is needed," Bill Whitton, information officer for the Idaho Farm-Bureau-Federation, said.

Farm

Possibly a bounty might help, he said. Dealers last winter offered as much as $15 per hide for coyotes in the Magic Valley, he said, and a similar offering this winter would help.

"When you put the high loss ratio with high operating costs and poor prices for sheep, and lambs—compared with beef prices," he said, "the sheepman is not making the money this year he is entitled to."

Farm Bureau members are among those who want 1080 reinstated, Whitton said.

Whitton and Bob Henderlinder, executive secretary for the Idaho-Cattlemen's Association, said the problem probably will get worse unless something is done.

"The jackrabbit population is at a low ebb," Whitton said, "and the predators are turning to small calves, sheep and game animals."

Henderlinder agreed. "The rabbit population is way down," he said, "and we'll undoubtedly find them (coyotes) in bigger packs with less control of them."

He said his association "has had reports of increasing attacks on fall calves and that his members are very concerned about the big calving season next spring."

Possibly there is something the legislature can do, Henderlinder said, adding he expects to meet with some legislators later this month to discuss the problem.

A few years ago one lawmaker proposed a bounty on coyotes and the issue became embroiled in controversy, bordering on emotionalism before the bill finally was defeated. Henderlinder is uncertain whether his association will propose one, however.

European tobacco mart seen fading

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States could lose much of its lucrative tobacco market in western Europe within four or five years unless the European Common Market (EEC) agrees to revise some of its restrictive trade policies, an Agriculture Department official said today.

Part of the problem is a new system of "buyer's premiums" paid to purchasers of a number of varieties of tobacco grown in Italy, France, Germany and Belgium. These subsidies, which greatly reduce the net cost of tobacco to buyers, are already sharply increasing exports of Italian burley.

But since the potential for expansion of European tobacco acreage is limited, an expert said, the greatest threat to U.S. growers lies in the Common Market's system of tariff preferences for "associated countries," including Greece, Turkey and a number of African nations.

Tobacco from the "associated" countries can enter the nine-nation Common Market at a zero duty rate. Competitive American tobacco currently must pay duties ranging from 15 to 18 cents a pound.

B. G. Andres, a tobacco specialist in the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS), said African producers already are rapidly expanding their output of flue-cured and burley tobacco, the two main U.S. export types. In Greece and Turkey, most production is in Oriental and aromatic tobaccos, which are not directly competitive with American leaf. But those nations have also begun to expand their burley harvests, Andres said.

Government estimates indicate that in the year ending last June 30, the nine-member EEC bought $318 million worth of unmanufactured American tobacco. This was 52 per cent of the U.S. export total. But Andres said experts believe the U.S. will face a "serious" drop in EEC sales within a few years if African producers, operating with their built-in tariff advantage, continue to expand their plantings.

A report by another FAS tobacco specialist, meanwhile, indicated the "buyer's premium" policy for EEC leaf is encouraging production there by allowing purchasers to get European-grown tobacco for only a fraction of the government-subsidized price. A buyer of 1972 crop Grade A Italian "bright" flue cured tobacco, for example, would have paid the equivalent of 88 U.S. cents a pound.

But he would also have gotten a "buyer's premium" subsidy of 54 cents, reducing his actual net cost to 34 cents a pound. American flue-cured tobacco going to Europe this year, in comparison, sells for $1 to $1.15 a pound and on top of that the buyer must pay a tariff of about 18 cents a pound.

In most cases, Andres said, the buyer's premium amounts to between two-thirds and three-quarter of the selling price. But in some cases, a report by Robert W. Johnson indicated, it can offset virtually the entire price. Johnson's report said a buyer of 1972 Grade C Italian Burley would have paid 34 cents a pound and received a premium of the same amount, leaving him a net cost of almost zero.

Andres said U.S. negotiators have tried, without success so far, to persuade the Common Market to grant trade concessions offsetting the impact of its tobacco policies. He said the issue of fair treatment for U.S. tobacco exports will get significant attention in a new round of international trade talks launched recently under the general agreement on tariffs and trade.

Buhl-WR, Valley-Wendell games top Friday's fare

Buhl travels to Wood River for a key South-Central Idaho Conference test Friday afternoon while Valley goes to Wendell for a Little Five loop game with championship overtones to highlight a seven-game Friday schedule.

Every game is key in the SCIC since all the teams are tied with one loss going into the two-day weekend. The loser has a long way to come, however, since the loop race lists only four games.

There is only one common opponent—between Buhl and Wood River so far, both bowing to Mountain Home by eight and five points, respectively. Both have managed winning seasons basically on defense—nothing strange in Magic Valley where offense is basically a nasty word this fall.

Wendell is running ahead of the Little Five Conference now with the other four members having one or two ties. A Valley win, however, would bring four teams into a tie at one loss but this conference is used to multi-champions. Should Valley drop this one, having lost one game in six outings, the Vikings will be all but out of championship consideration. It is their last loop game of the season.

In other action, the Burley Bobcats, with a share of the Eastern Idaho Conference title in hand, point toward the Tigers at Mountain Home. In the Cross State league the Bobcats have that loss to Buhl hanging over them and must beat the Tigers. Jerome currently leads the Cross State with no losses.

Two of the winless clubs, Castleford and Hagerman, will meet at Hagerman in a Magic Valley Conference battle Friday night. The winner will leave the cellar but little consideration is long gone.

Hansen plays a home game with Wealside, subbing for North Gem. The Cowboys switched with the Pirates so the fifth-district teams would play Grace twice each. Hansen gets the game, but Coach Gordon Hogan wanted North Gem since that's his pre-alma-mater.

ABA players collect full concession in contract row

DENVER (UPI)—The players and owners of the 10 American Basketball Association teams averted an opening night strike Wednesday by agreeing to a three-year contract only hours before the season's first tipoff.

Under the contract, ABA players no longer will have to fly tourist. They will fly first-class like the players of the rival National Basketball Association.

Arlin Preblud, director of the ABA Players Association (ABAPA), and Denver Rockets owner Frank Goldberg, representing the league, settled the contract near dawn at the end of an all-night negotiating session.

The season opened Wednesday night with San Diego at San Antonio, New York at Indiana and Memphis at Utah.

"People in the past have felt that the ABA Players' Association was merely running mimeographed copies of the NBA agreement," said Preblud, a Denver attorney. "But that is not our position at all. If you look at the contracts the NBA players and ABA players have negotiated over the past five years you will see that in that space we have run a lot faster than the NBA.

Pacers drop Nets 118-99

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—George McGinnis fired in eight straight points late in the fourth quarter as the defending American Basketball Association champion Indiana Pacers won their season opener Wednesday night 118-99 against the New York Nets.

McGinnis pushed Indiana into a 92-91 lead at 5:13 to play. Then Indiana broke open the close contest by outscoring the Nets, 14-4, to take a 106-95 lead with 2:25 left.

McGinnis led the Pacers with 27 points and center Mel Daniels tallied 22. But game-high scoring honors went to Julius "Dr. J." Erving for the Nets who netted 42 points.

Agreements were made in the areas of first-class air travel, daily expenses, the playoff pool, pension negotiations and for complete dental care for the players and their families.

Stars nip Tams in last seconds

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The Utah Stars pulled out a 111-109 American Basketball Association win over the Memphis Tams on Willie Wise's final basket with 25 seconds left in the season opener for both teams Wednesday night.

Memphis' George Thompson tried to save the game with a desperation three-pointer at the buzzer, but the ball missed the basket completely.

UCLA will go without best ends

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The UCLA football team's two defensive ends—Cal Peterson and Fred McNeil—apparently will not play in Saturday's game against Stanford because of injuries, coach Pepper Rodgers said Wednesday.

Rodgers said the pair are probably the best set of defensive ends in the country, both winning all-conference honors last season.

Peterson, who suffered a chipped elbow bone in a freak accident during Monday's practice, will be lost for at least a week. He will be replaced by Junior Dale Curry.

McNeil, still recovering from an ankle injury in the Utah game, will make the trip to Palo Alto but probably won't play, Rodgers said. Junior Herschel Rumsey will play. McNeil's defensive right end spot against the Cardinals.

The Bruins went through a rugged one hour and 45 minute practice Wednesday, working on one of their weak points—defensive punt returns.

Portland Minico entertains Skyline, ready for Twin Falls invades Highland Big Sky

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Portland State University will have to beef up its football program if it wants to join the Big Sky Conference, Commissioner John Roning said Tuesday.

Roy Love, PSU athletic director, said he is confident the school is ready to do so.

Roning and Love made their statements at a meeting of the Oregon Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

Portland State has applied for Big Sky membership but action on the application has been delayed.

"The football program is the big question," said Roning. "The Big Sky has seven of its present members participating in football and we would like to have an eighth football participant." (Gonzaga does not compete in football.)

Roning said the conference is not interested in adding a member which cannot compete at Big Sky level. PSU is 0-4 this season, including a 64-7 loss to Boise State of the Big Sky.

The Minico Spartans, without much to cheer about for the past three weeks, will entertain the Skyline Grizzlies Friday night while the Twin Falls Bruins draw the dubious honor of trying to tame the undefeated Highland Rams in the mindome.

The two Magic Valley Southern Idaho Conference members have their work cut out for them. Skyline should be sky-high coming off the upset decision over Borah while Twin Falls, despite a new-found punch in its offensive line, figures to get a supreme test on the ground and in the air from Highland.

Minico's fortunes turned sour immediately upon a third-game visit to Borah. Since then the Spartans have lost three times. Last week they lost to a surprisingly ground-conscious Meridian crew. This time around they figure again to see some aerial action.

Skyline brings Gary Moss, the kick return and pass receiving premier athlete of the league thus far; Moss has caught 22 passes for 472 yards and five touchdowns. In addition, he's run a reverse for another score (against Twin Falls) and leads the league in punt returns with three for 198 yards and one score.

For a lot of Twin Falls players it will be like old home week but in a wrong-way mirror. Many of the Bruin players are former teammates in one sport or another with Mike Falash, Highland quarterback, who now reigns as the SIC total offense leader with 10.5 yards for 79 carries. Falash also ranks in the top five in rushing with 316 yards in 33 carries and second in passing with 520 yards, hitting 22 of 45 attempts for four touchdowns.

Twin Falls displayed its first offensive nerve in year against Nampa as sophomore Mike Allison romped for 28 yards and the offensive line carved out some nice openings but Highland's defensive line will be bigger than the Bruins offensive wall and the problems will begin there.

The second problem is whether the Twin Falls passing secondary can contain the Falash-inspired passing attack should the line manage to control the Ram rushing.

With his 263 yards last week, Allison jumped from nowhere to third in rushing with 422 yards in 77 carries.

He also ranks eighth in total offense but is the only Bruin to show up on the loop's offensive statistics.

Minico's Ritchie Donper ranks third in total offense with 630 yards and a 5.9 per carry average and is third in passing with 33 completions in 71 attempts for 442 yards. He has four touchdown throws.

Micky Hanks of the Spartans is first in kickoff returns with 16 for 351 yards and is fourth in total receiving with 10 for 80 yards (mostly swing variety) and one score. Pat Warburton is second in receiving with 13 catches for 250 yards and one touchdown.

Camas County takes 25th straight win

FAIRFIELD — Senior halfback Layne Osborne romped for 28 points and the Camas County Musers roared to their 25th straight victory.

Friday afternoon by defeating the Carey Panthers 64-6.

The Musers, looking for their third straight undefeated season, led 20-0 at the end of the first quarter and pushed that to 56-0 going into the fourth period.

Again the Musers turned to all facets of the game to get points on the board. Larry Lee romped 80 yards on a kickoff return and Osborne scored on a 40-yard punt return.

In all Osborne scored four times and tacked on a pair of two-point conversions. Lee, the heir apparent to Brent Giesler's quarterback spot next season, picked up 18 points while Giesler scored 10 more.

Osborne broke the shutout bid in the fourth period on a three-yard keeper by quarterback Jerry Ivie.

Rockets rout Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Mike Newlin paced a balanced Houston scoring attack with 19 points Wednesday night to lead the Rockets to a 104-68 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers in a National Basketball Association game.

The loss marred Gene Shue's debut as the 76ers' coach, but boosted the Rockets' record to 1-1.

Houston jumped ahead to stay 25-22 at the end of the first period and went into the final quarter with a 76-65 margin.

But Philadelphia battled back to within four points twice at 79-77 and 78-74 with 9:04 remaining.

Rudy Tomjanovich and Galtvin Murphy, who combined to score Houston's first 16 points of the final period, then paced a Houston counterattack that opened it 92-78 lead with 3:49 remaining. The Rockets led by as much as 18 points twice the rest of the game.

Timely homers let Orioles force playoff to last day

OAKLAND, (UPI) — Andy Etchebarren and Bobby Grich, defensive players turned hitting liars, drilled key home runs and Grant Jackson pitched shutout relief ball over the final 2-3 innings Wednesday to lead the Baltimore Orioles to a 5-4 victory over the Oakland A's and tie the American League Playoff series at two victories each.

Etchebarren, a veteran catcher who complained during the regular season because he wasn't being used often enough, hit the first pitch to him by a firing Vida Blue in the seventh for a three-run homer to tie the score at 4-4 and Grich, a slick fielding second baseman who hit only 12 homers this year, hit a solo blast off Rollie Fingers in the eighth for the winning run.

Jackson took over in the middle of the seventh when the A's put the go-ahead run on second on a single by Bert Campaneris and a sacrifice by Joe Rudi. After Eddie Watt hit Bahdo, Jackson came on and retired the next two batters to end the threat. After that the only man to reach base on him was Ray Fosse, who walked after two out in the eighth.

Baltimore's victory thus set up Thursday's final game of the best-of-five Playoffs as the one which will decide who represents the A.L. against the New York Mets in the World Series. Jim Hunter, the second game winner, will pitch for Oakland and Doyle Alexander, winner of 12 of 20 late season starts, will draw the starting assignment for the Orioles.

The A's, who could have wrapped up their second straight pennant by winning Wednesday, staked Blue to a 4-0 lead by the sixth and kayued nemesis Jim Palmer in the process, but Blue, throwing strictly fastballs, ran out of steam in the seventh and by the time Fingers got warmed up, the score was tied.

Earl Williams, who hit a homer for Baltimore's only run in a 2-1 loss Tuesday, started the seventh inning rally by drawing a walk after one out. Then, Don Baylor and Brooks Robinson hit back-to-back singles for one run and Etchebarren, who hit only two homers in 54 games this season, connected on Blue's first serve for the homer that made it a new game.

That finished Blue, who was touched for four runs in less than an inning in the opening game of the Playoffs, and brought on Fingers, the A's top reliever.

Rollie Fingers up the seventh without further damage but Grich started the eighth with his game-winning homer. It was the first home run served up by Fingers since July 29.

Grich said it was the fourth game-winning homer of his two-year big league career. He hit two off A's pitching and one off Boston and in all three previous instances the Orioles won by 2-1 scores.

He threw me a good pitch, said the 24-year-old infielder.

REJECTION AND ACCEPTANCE are registered as Oakland leftfielder Joe Rudi drops his head after Bobby Grich homered for a one-run lead in the eighth inning Wednesday that led the American League championship playoff into a fifth and decisive game Thursday. Bitter and sweet

Grich clutch hitting usual against A's

OAKLAND (UPI) — Clutch hitting inside the Oakland Coliseum has become sort of a habit for second baseman Bobby Grich of the Baltimore Orioles.

He drilled a 1-0 pitch off ace reliever Rollie Fingers leading off the eighth inning Wednesday to break a 4-4 tie and send the Orioles and Oakland A's into a winner-take-all fifth game of the American League playoffs Thursday.

Grich's 385-foot shot over the leftfield wall climaxed a Baltimore comeback from a 0-4 deficit and snipped a 3-for-15 series drought for Grich.

"That's the first homer I think I ever hit off Fingers," said Grich. "I hit a fastball that's all they've been throwing me in this series."

"I really didn't think we were out of it even though we trailed 4-0. When we came into the dugout in the top of the seventh, we all started yelling. We figured it was now or never."

Grich, who hit 12 homers during the regular season, has walloped three game-winning home runs in the Oakland Coliseum and four in all. Over the past two seasons, he has won two games on the home field of the A's with roundtrippers off righthander Jim Hunter.

"Now I feel this series has turned in our favor," said Grich. "I can feel it. We're coming back."

The Orioles tied the game 4-4 in the seventh on a run-scoring single by Brooks Robinson and a three-run homer by jinx-plagued catcher Andy Etchebarren.

Etchebarren was spiked on the little toe when he collided with first baseman Earl Williams as Williams caught a pop foul in the eighth. The Baltimore catcher also was macked by two foul tips and was banged twice on the legs when hitters discarded their bats.

Berra figures job safe after taking NL pennant

NEW YORK (UPI)—Yogi Berra thinks his job is safe this time, and you know something? It is.

"I don't have the same feeling that I had the last time," said Berra, who managed the New York Yankees to the American League pennant in 1964 and then was fired after losing the World Series.

Cardinals release Maynard

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—The St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday released wide receiver Don Maynard, the National Football League's all-time leading receiver in both catches and yardage.

Maynard, 36, was acquired by St. Louis Sept. 10 in a trade with the New York Jets for an undisclosed draft choice. He played in two games for the Cardinals, catching one pass for 18 yards.

San Diego wins without Wilt

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Veteran Stew Johnson scored 38 points and rookie Dwight Lamar added 30 Wednesday night as the San Diego Conquistadors showed they didn't need coach Wilt Chamberlain on the court to win their ABA opener over San Antonio's Spurs 121-106.

World Series in St. Louis and told them I probably wouldn't be seeing them again."

Berra celebrated the New York Mets' pennant-clinching quietly Wednesday. He has been through enough of them, as player, coach and manager, that he doesn't have to get too excited. But you could tell he felt this time it was something special.

"Yeah, this..." he paused, running over his baseball thrills. "And the Hall of Fame wasn't had either. Who ever figured we'd be in the Series?"

"The pennant was a struggle for the Mets, a last-place team as recently as Aug. 30. They didn't win the Eastern Division until a day after the regular season was supposed to end, and they finished with only 82 victories, the worst record in history for a first-place team."

Cleveland defense bends more

CLEVELAND (UPI)—The Cleveland Browns traditionally put together a "rubber band defense" that bends but doesn't break.

But this year they aren't even bending very much—although their toughest test is yet to come in next Monday night's home game against the National Football League champion Miami Dolphins.

Cleveland defense bends more

Despite a 23-6 defeat by Pittsburgh, the Browns rank as the top defensive unit in the American Football Conference, giving up only four touchdowns in victories over Baltimore, the New York Giants and Cincinnati.

Reds trace losing woe to not getting Seaver early

NEW YORK (UPI)—Sparky Anderson—a nice guy—who almost finished first, was characteristic in defeat—no excuses.

"We should've gotten (Tom) Seaver in the first inning," the Reds manager said after the New York Mets had sent his Cincinnati ballclub home to an early winter Wednesday by winning the final game of the National League playoffs, 7-2.

The Reds loaded the bases against Seaver in the first, but like so many times before in this improbable series, they were unable to produce a run. And so Seaver, even though clearly not at his sharpest, coasted along to the ninth when Tom McGraw came on to preserve the win.

Pete Rose, the lone consistent Reds hitting hero throughout the series, pitched Anderson's summation.

"You can't win when the guts of your batting order doesn't drive in runs," said Rose, who wound up 2-for-4 with one run scored and 3BI for the five-game playoff. "Too many times we had men on third and couldn't score a run."

"About all I can say is the Mets deserved to win—they're a scrappy team that doesn't give up and they'll be a credit to the league in the World Series. I hope they win it."

Rose, once again booed lustily by the rowdy New York fans who hadn't forgotten the Monday brawl that began between the hustling Reds' leftfielder and Met shortstop Bud Harrison, never gave up, especially after it was apparent that even a sub-par Seaver would be hard to catch with a five-run lead.

In the sixth, he tried vainly to prevent the Mets' final run by leaping through the air in pursuit of a double into the leftfield corner by Seaver. For his trouble, Rose received a cup of beer poured over his head.

"I couldn't get the smell of it out of my uniform," said Rose. Then he added smiling, "I even felt a little dizzy from it since I don't drink it."

All I wanted to do when it was over was to get Pete out of there safely," said Anderson, who appeared more shocked over the fans' behavior than his club's failures. "Can you imagine you're in the United States of America when people act like that."

"Either they're on dope or something else, I don't know. I do know that normal people sure don't act like that." Rose agreed that the fans weren't nearly as worthy of the win as the Mets.

"I wanted to beat all 55,000 of those people today," Rose said. "The way they act, they don't deserve to have a champion." Somebody asked Anderson if he thought the fans' rowdiness worked to the Mets' advantage.

"No way," said the Reds skipper.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market, stunned by Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's resignation and concerned about the Middle East war, opened lower Thursday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 0.23 at 960.34 shortly after the opening. Declines led advances, 126 to 100, among the 307 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover amounted to more than 350,000 shares. Agnew's resignation hit the market late in the day and analysts said this accentuated a downward trend which had prompted profit taking. Just how much an effect this will have on the market later is a question among analysts. Most feel it will be short-lived.

One of the biggest concerns right now, analysts said, is the Middle East situation. "If it is prolonged, it could have some serious effects," one analyst said.

Bankers endorse changes

(c) Chicago Sun-Times CHICAGO — The leadership of the American Bankers Association has announced here that it endorses most proposals of the Nixon administration to restructure the nation's financial system.

ABA President Eugene H. Adams and Chicago banker Frank E. Bauer, chairman of Central National Bank and ABA Government relations Council head, told the banker's annual convention Tuesday it would accept broadened powers for its competition, savings and loan associations and savings banks, but only if "the rules of the ballgame are the same for everybody."

Specifically, S&Ls and savings banks should be allowed to make consumer loans and offer personal checking accounts, the bankers said, if law advantages for all are made equal.

Key modifications the ABA proposed for the White House-sponsored Hunt Commission report to change the financial structure of the country included that no phaseout of interest lids on time deposits be enacted. Banks do not want open competition on interest rates they offer small savers, Adams said.

The ABA also called for elimination of differences in the amount of interest banks can pay out and the amount other thrift institutions can pay.

Young lady, which of these words most accurately describes how you would prefer to look? 1 Healthy 2 Sexy 3 Dramatic 4 Natural 5 Sophisticated When a national magazine put that query to 62,000 women, two out of three voted for "natural." Neither "dramatic" nor "sophisticated" polled high at all. And "sexy" was listed by fewer than one out of four.

The only ring any man should wear is a wedding ring and even that should be as simple as possible, contends that great French expert Madame Dariaux. This is the same authority, you may recall, who insists women inherit the trait of jealousy, "so can't help it."

"Happiness," writes a San Francisco dad, "is getting up at 2 o'clock in the morning to feed the baby and finding two bottles, one for the baby and one for me."

Two out of three women markedly change their hair, either with scissors or lint, every year.

LICE are exceedingly sensitive to temperature changes. They won't tolerate much variation. That's why the African medicine man always first examines his patient's head. If the lice are still there, the fever hasn't been too great. The patient probably will survive. But if the lice are gone, look out! That's bad. Very bad.

So what have you and I learned heretofore about that South African herb known as the streptococcus? Not much, I'll warrant. But found out it turns out the world's smallest seeds. Takes 1,800,000 of them to weigh an ounce.

Only one railroad freight car in every three gets there on its scheduled arrival day. But nearly nine out of 10 freight trucks do.

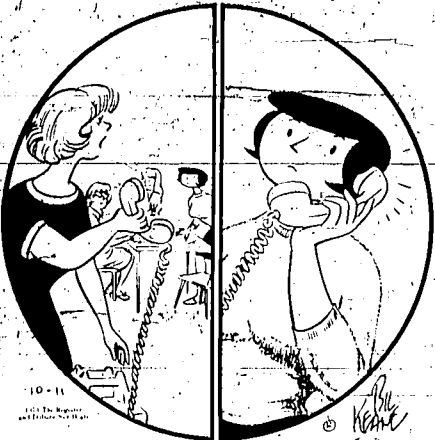

GESTATION
O Which takes the longest to have a baby, a horse or a zebra?
A A zebra. At 365 days. Mare takes 330 days.

Most any young fellow will believe a girl who tells him he's different! This comes to mind because a feminine subscriber requests that our Love and War man recommend some conversational tack she can pursue to arouse her bashful boyfriend's lively interest. Nothing to it. Our L. and W. man suggests, "I've never met anyone like you before."

The old Greeks believed that deep blue variety of crystalline quartz known as the amethyst worked in a dandy manner to keep the possessor of same from getting drunk. So said Greeks carved it into drinking cups. Highly prized, those fellow with an amethyst cup held quite an edge at the party. That word "amethyst" comes from two Greek words meaning "not to be dropped."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1973

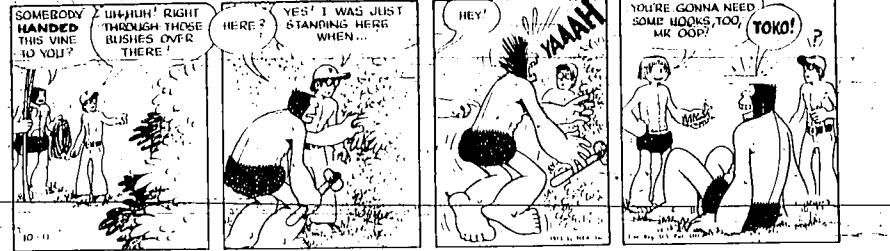

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's Full Moon is likely to bring too quick action, with mistakes resulting from unpredictable and impulsive conditions that take away from mature and deliberate judgment. Then little of value will be done. Avoid acting before you have studied all factors of any situation and have made sensible appraisal.
ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Do not act hastily with an associate and sever valuable connections. You can solve problems by careful thought and study. Use your head and stop being so emotional.
TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Visit an expert and get the proper method for making some interest highly successful. Stop being demanding with the one you love, or you get into trouble. Help a friend.
GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Join with close ties at some recreation that deepens bonds with them. Do something patriotic. Show real interest in a new associate and gain goodwill.
MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 23) Please bigwigs and close ties today and safeguard your present fine position with them. Make sure you do not lose your temper. Don't criticize others.
LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Expand; make sure you are studious and careful about same. Get facts you need carefully. Refrain from acting too quickly because a new associate applies pressure.
VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) Handle monetary affairs wisely and don't make any scenes. Not a good day to have that talk with one you like, you could get into a serious argument. Await better day.
LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) Study your relationships with others and talk over how to improve them. Listen to their ideas carefully. Try not to get into any arguments. Smile more and all is well.
SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) Get busy yourself instead of expecting others to help you so much. Take the health treatments you need so you become stronger and happier. Think constructively.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21) Plan time for pleasure that is not expensive yet can give you much happiness. The Full Moon can make your mate moody, so be patient. Be considerate.
CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 20) Use tact, avoid arguments at home that could be costly and depressing. Quietly get rid of whatever is causing trouble. Take a personal interest in the welfare of others.
AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) Much care in driving is necessary now to avoid dangers of any kind and insure safety. Try to cheer your contacts who are feeling dejected. Avoid criticism.
PISCES (Feb 20 to Mar 20) You may feel a financial lack today but if you cut expenses you start the ball rolling in the opposite direction. Get good ideas for advancement from an expert.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — he or she will be one of those highly energetic young people who is apt to go from one thing to another without completing anything or being prepared well first, so give discipline early needed to make this a successful and happy life. Slant the education along lines that will be of help to others, such as psychology, personnel, medicine, law, etc., whether male or female. Give good grounding in music, too.
