Balloon reaches Hollister

REVIEWING THEIR "best day yet" aboard their hot air balloon are publisher Malcolm Forbes (left) and Jimmy Craig, Navy balloon researcher (right). Their landing near Hollister Saturday was something of a homecoming for Craig, who was born near Rogerson. The balloonists were scheduled to leave early today, hoping to reach Pucetello by evening.

Solons' nod may be fast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Gerald R. Ford, assured of easy confirmation as vice president within a few weeks, got his first intelligence briefing from President Nixon Saturday and then flew home to Michigan, insisting again he will not be a candidate in 1974.

could be "adequately explained." He said the money exceeded the amount his personal campaign committee was permitted to receive, and was signed over to Republican national headquarters for its use.

Ford said he would resign as a member of the board of Rosepatch, Inc., of his native Grand Rapids, Mich., his only business connection. He said his only stocks were $9,000 in debentures in his father's company, Ford Paint and Varnish Co., and his real property consisted of his homes in suburban Alexandria, Va., and Michigan, plus a condominium at Vail, Colo.

Balloonist has 'best day yet'

By GEORGE WILEY Times-News Writer

HOLLISTER — Multi-millionaire publisher Malcolm Forbes Jr., called it the "best day yet" after thumping down his hot-air balloon in a stubble field about 3:45 p.m. Saturday a mile west of here.

"We made 110 miles today," said the 54-year-old editor-in-chief and owner of Forbes Magazine, who is attempting the first coast-to-coast balloon journey, as he zipped his leather jumpsuit and wiped sunscreen from his face. He said the 8 1/2 hour flight over desert and farmland was beautiful despite thermal turbulence. "Now we're in good position to go over the Rockies," he said.

With Forbes in the balloon's wicker gondola as navigator was Jimmy Craig, now a balloon researcher for the U. S. Navy who was born in Rogerson.

"Isn't that amazing," Forbes said of Craig. "He landed four miles from where he was born."

While the vans which accompany Forbes' balloon pulled up to the landing site and while a twin-engine plane which also follows the balloon circled the area before heading for Joslin Field, area residents began to gather, looking over the balloonist's paraphernalia.

One woman arrived who has been a high school classmate of Craig. Another woman told Craig she knew his parents.

Attendants in bright red and yellow Forbes Magazine uniforms hopped out of the vans and began to stretch out the deflated balloon and remove the empty propane tanks from the gondola.

About a dozen people called the Times-News to report that they had seen the balloon.

After a short interview, Forbes climbed in a van and headed for Twin Falls and the comforts of a motel. After several days camped in the wilderness, he said, "Twin Falls will look bigger than New York." He joked with the crew about having "arranged" for a Saturday night in town.

Woodcutters busy

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News Writer

TWINFALLS — Talk of fuel shortages has apparently sent a horde of Magic Valley woodcutters into the forest.

Woodcutting permits issued by the Sawtooth National Forest during the past three months were for about five times as much wood as during the same period a year earlier.

Records in the forest office here show commercial cutting permits which include all wood cut for resale and that cut in the northern area for family fireplaces totals 1,402 cords this year, compared to 276 cords for the same period last year. The figures cover the months of July, August and September.

During that time this year and up to the present date in October total harvest included 700,000 board feet, 12,000 cordfeet of the supervisor's office reported. For the same period last year the total was 189,000 board feet.

In the Twin Falls and Burley ranger districts, family use permits are free but those for organizations or commercial cutters are required to purchase a permit.

Lewis Munson, ranger in the district office, said a record is not available on the free permits, but he estimated 10 to 15 times as much wood is being cut this year than in the past.

"Persons have panicked over the fuel shortage, and we have been swamped with requests," he said.

Shells pock Syrian city

By United Press International

Israel said it shelled the outskirts of Damascus Saturday night, wheeling its big 175mm cannons past burned-out Arab armor within 20 miles of the Syrian capital, despite the entrance of Jordanian troops into the war for the first time.

On the Suez front, Egypt said it had captured the last Israeli holdouts—five officers and 32 enlisted men—along the Bar Lev defense line on the East Bank of the Suez Canal. A western correspondent said he saw the Israelis paddy across the canal into Egyptian captivity.

Egypt later clamped a blackout on all news from the Suez front. There was no explanation for the action.

In contrast to the Israelis' report that they were approaching Damascus, Syrian communiques said only that fighting was raging along the entire 60-mile Golan Heights front. Those reports gave no details of where the front lines were located.

The communique from Tel-Aviv said: "Israeli guns tonight shelled military targets near Damascus." A spokesman said the advancing Israelis crushed two battalions of Iraqi troops—described by one officer as "cannon fodder"—brought in to reinforce the retreating Syrians—and destroyed 50 to 60 tanks.

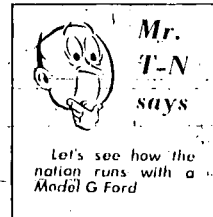

In an earlier military report, Israel claimed it shot down 19 Syrian MIGs in fighting Saturday.

Jordan said Saturday it had sent "a group of our most efficient military formations" to Syria. Israeli military officials did not report any contacts with the Jordanian troops and the long border between Israel and Jordan was reported quiet.

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, promising her nation in a broadcast address that its troops would fight on to victory, declined to say whether Israel intended to capture the Syrian capital with its population of nearly 1 million.

"I don't know what happens now," she said. Mrs. Meir blamed the Soviet Union for arming the Arabs to the teeth and making another war inevitable and appealed to the Arab states to begin negotiations and end the fighting.

Surrender of tapes ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court Friday ordered President Nixon to turn over his secret Watergate tapes to Chief U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica for review, but said Nixon could refuse to provide any tape recording dealing with foreign relations or national defense.

The decision of the appellate court was a blow to Nixon, who has fought to keep the tapes secret, and a partial setback for Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox. He demanded the unedited tapes be surrendered directly to the grand jury.

The Appeals Court perined its order for five days to permit a Supreme Court review. It was almost certain that Nixon would appeal.

Fund loss behind TF program slash

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School District has dropped Title I programs this fall despite Idaho department of Education assurances that money for the programs to aid underprivileged students will be available.

District Supt. George Staudaher said Title I programs, other than migrant education will not be offered until the district receives a definite promise of funding.

Deputy superintendent of educational services Harold Farley said the district is certain to receive at least 85 per cent of last year's Title I allocations.

"I didn't want to commit the school district to spending money unless we were sure we are going to get it," Staudaher said. He said the $45,000 migrant education program, carried on mostly in summer, is going ahead as planned because the money had been promised.

However, approximately $97,000 for other Title I programs might not come to the district, he added.

The basis for Staudaher's worries about the money is a letter sent in mid-September from Loren Hicks, program administrator for special services in the Idaho State Department of Education. Hicks wrote, "It would appear your tentative allotment for 1973-74 would be $96,989." He recommended the district spend no more than 90 per cent of the predicted sum.

Staudaher said he is not willing to spend Title I money because the word "appear" is not a promise but a vague assurance. He said the problem originally stems from Congress which has not yet passed appropriations for Title I for this fall.

"There is no reason for any school district not to carry on part of or all of their programs for Title I," Farley said. He maintained funding is as certain this year as it has been in previous years and that the only difficulty is determining exactly how the money will be divided among different states and school districts.

In any case, the Twin Falls School District is sure to receive at least 85 per cent of the $96,000 it received for Title I programs other than migrant education last year, Farley asserted.

New jets, tanks pledged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has decided to replace at least some of the jet fighters, tanks and other equipment lost by Israel in the first week of the Middle East war, U.S. government sources said Saturday.

The sources said the first shipments were scheduled to leave for Israel within a few days with initial emphasis on fighter planes, primarily the F4 Phantom jet fighter-bomber.

Egypt protests US flights

CAIRO (UPI) — Egypt issued an official protest to the United States Saturday against a flight of two American supersonic reconnaissance planes over Egyptian airspace.

The semi-official newspaper Al-Ahram said the planes, allegedly SR71s, came from bases in Greece or Turkey. American officials in Washington, D. C., refused comment on the charges.

Mays hits but A's win

OAKLAND (UPI) — Baseball immortal Willie Mays got the first hit but the Oakland Athletics won the opening game of the 1973 World Series, 3-1, Saturday.

The A's and the New York Mets square off at 2:30 p.m. MDT today in the second game. Left-handers Vida Blue (20-9) and Jerry Koosman (14-15) will be on the mound for the American and National League champions, respectively. (Story, p. 26)

Panel scores Chile prisons

SANWAGOS, Chile (UPI) — An independent commission of three international lawyers said Saturday an investigation has revealed cases of torture and summary execution of prisoners since the armed forces took power in Chile last month.

The commission report gave no specific numbers of incidents of maltreatment, torture or executions. No names of victims, photographs or other documentation supporting the commission's contentions were presented.

Trudeau China talks 'success'

PEKING (UPI) — Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau said Saturday his talks with Chinese leaders were a "complete success" but admitted that the two nations' approach towards East-West detente was "a major area of disagreement."

TF school bond issue annual cost estimated

TWIN FALLS — Passage of the proposed $3.5 million school bond would cost persons who own property in the Twin Falls School District at the estimated rate of $10.40 per year over a 20-year period for every $10,000 of property owned.

According to Rich Michels, vice president of Idaho First National Bank, which is acting as fiscal agent for the school district, the bond's cost to the individual property owner is likely to be less.

Michels said the cost estimate is partly based on the assumption the district will have to pay 5.5 per cent interest on the bonds sold. If the district were to sell bonds now, however, it would probably only have to pay 4.0 per cent interest.

The reason for the good credit rating for the school district is that it's one of the better credits in Idaho," Michels said. "With a double A rating (the highest is triple A which is rarely given) the school district can borrow on a par with the State of Idaho, which also is rated double A.

This rating, combined with creditors not having to pay taxes on the profit gained from school bonds, makes Twin Falls schools highly desirable to loan money to, Michels said. If the district pays a 4.0 per cent yearly interest rate on the bond, only 6-mills instead of 6.5-mills would have to be raised per year to pay on the loan.

"A mill equals $1 for $1,000 of assessed valuation which is now 16 per cent of actual property value, Michels said. This decrease would mean a savings for the individual taxpayer of 80 cents a year for every $10,000 of property owned.

"Whatever the variation in tax, Michels believes the price is slight to pay for better schools. "For good education $10.40 per year is really not a very big item," he said. (Continued on p. 10)

TF man granted time for plea

TWIN FALLS — Ronald R. Spearing, 29, Twin Falls, has been granted until 2 p.m. Oct. 19 to enter a plea in Fifth Judicial District Court to embezzlement charges.

He faces two counts of embezzlement, one a $53,701 amount and another a $500 amount allegedly missing from Avco Finance Co., where he served as manager in the Twin Falls office. He was arrested June 3, 1973, by city police.

Two other men appeared on embezzlement charges. Lee Cunningham, 18, entered a plea of guilty and requested 120 days jurisdiction from the court. He was sentenced to not more than 14 years under the supervision of the Idaho Board of Corrections and the sentence then suspended and he was placed under 120 days retained jurisdiction by the court, the 120 days to be served in the state penitentiary.

Lennie Ray Limbocher, 18, also charged with embezzlement, entered a plea of guilty and was granted a pre-sentence investigation. Both are charged with taking $1,480.52 in checks and currency from the Fearless Farris station while Cunningham was employed there.

Wanda Lee Johnson, 34, charged with grand larceny, entered a plea of guilty and was placed on 12-month probation. She was charged July 20 with the theft of appliances and other items from Bruckman Trailer Sales.

Terry Wynn Curpin, 23 received a 14-year suspended sentence and 12-month probation on a grand larceny charge. He was charged with taking two rolls of carpet from Blacker's Furniture.

Jeffery Paul Skelter, 19, charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver, was sentenced to six months in the county jail with the sentence suspended for a six-month probation.

All of the defendants appeared before Judge Theron W. Ward.

20 per cent of UF fund gained

TWIN FALLS — The United Fund has now raised $27,023, reaching 20 per cent of its $125,000 goal for the fund campaign this year.

Jack Muldoon, director of report meetings, made this announcement at the first weekly United Fund report luncheon held at the Turf Club on Friday. He said this showed a "very enthusiastic response, but warned the tough job will be later in the campaign."

"That first $50,000 is going to be fairly easy to pick up. That last $75,000 we're going to have to dig and scratch... to raise," he said. Muldoon announced the names of 25 fund raisers who have completed five calls each. He said there are 300 calls in the field.

"We're very proud of the showing so far," Jim Sinclair, United Fund president, said, adding that the campaign is about 20 per cent ahead of the effort at the same time last year.

Muldoon said the next report luncheon will be next Thursday at noon at the Turf Club. The luncheon, which features entertainment and drawings as well as good food, is for United Fund workers. It is sponsored by different Twin Falls businesses and institutions.

Ordinances slated

TWIN FALLS — Three annexation ordinances, including the one to annex property owned by Arlie White and proposed for mobile home park development, will be read Monday night by the Twin Falls City Council.

The council meets at 7:30 p.m. in the city hall auditorium. In addition to an ordinance for annexation of the White property on Eastland Drive, near K mart, another ordinance granting a conditional use on the property to cover mobile home park use. Another annexation ordinance to be presented Monday night will cover the Harbor House property at the end of Fillmore Street and the third will be on the Country Kitchen property north of the city.

Other items on the agenda include an ordinance for street vacation requested by Frank Cook; a resolution on city employee vacation and retirement; an ordinance on city electrical inspection fees and registration; an audit proposal from Riddle-Roth-Evans accounting firm; a proposed agreement from the new K mart and the Mungler parking proposal.

Wanted: four lost pillars

TWIN FALLS — Whoever picked up four limestone pillars at the dump south of Filer last week is urgently requested to return them to the Twin Falls Lions club.

Floyd Miller, club president, said the pillars and two pole candelabras, used for the Miss Idaho pageant each year, were stored in a Filer warehouse. He said the building now has been rented by a new person and is being demolished.

The pillars were set out in the alley and mistakenly taken to the dump, before Miller could pick them up.

The candelabras could be rebuilt, but the pillars, donated to the club several years ago when a private home was dismantled, are not replaceable, Miller said.

Anyone having any information about the equipment is asked to contact Miller at 733-3077 or Edd Bossard at 733-0911.

WHAT ARE THE IMMEDIATE NEEDS OF TWIN FALLS CHILDREN?

- 1. SAFETY
An extremely dangerous traffic hazard has existed at the busy intersection near Washington School for years. Plans to widen Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Addison Avenue East will increase this danger. Also inadequate playground space and fire dangers make replacement of this school a high priority need.
- 2. PHYSICAL WELL BEING
Existing physical education facilities at Robert Stuart Junior High are not capable of handling student requirements. A shortage of gymnasium space exists despite intense use from 8 A.M. to 6 P.M. five days a week.
- 3. ADEQUATE SPACE TO LEARN
Four additional classrooms are needed at Morningside and Harrison Elementary Schools, and Robert Stuart Junior High. The old portion of Lincoln Elementary School must be replaced with 12 new classrooms. Libraries are needed at Morningside and Harrison Elementary Schools. Site acquisition for a future Junior High School must be considered.

IN ORDER TO CONTINUE AND IMPROVE THE EDUCATION OF TWIN FALLS CHILDREN, WE URGE-YOUR SUPPORT AT THE OCTOBER 16th BOND ELECTION.

TO VOTE:
You must be 18 years of age or older, a resident of School District 411 and execute a voter's oath. The polling places are Senior High School, Robert Stuart Junior High School, Washington, Morningside and Lincoln Elementary Schools. Polls will be open from 12 noon to 8 P.M. October 16th.

There Was A Bit Of Good In Mr. Agnew

WASHINGTON — The man who carried the standard against "permissiveness" copped a plea, and in return for his resignation, the judge and the Justice Department permitted him to go free.

The prosecutors must have had the evidence, as they say, and they must have had it cold. Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen deserves congratulations for the confidence he showed in his case, though it can be hoped he will exercise more care in the number of people he oppresses the confidence to in future cases.

People who believed the former vice president's ringing protestations of innocence feel betrayed and shaken; people who felt the lash of his tongue over the years feel vindicated. But his friends and his foes would be mistaken to take the fall of any man to mean the end of all he said and all he stood for.

What was it that Spiro Agnew came to mean in American life, for good and for bad?

He was the man who made "elitism" famous. The "impudent snobs" he inveighed against were often unnecessarily impudent and certainly snobbish. There had always been a disdain for what used to be called "the great unwashed" by a social or intellectual elite. Agnew, as the voice of the "silent majority" (a phrase he coined six months before President Nixon used it) spoke out for egalitarianism, and was promptly, and unfairly, attacked for being a know-nothing or an anti-intellectual.

He stood up for the establishment against "those whose lifestyle has neither life nor style" — the professional aggrainers who all too often did not know what they were for, who wanted only to reject all forms of authority and treated dissent as an end in itself. This is where he smote "permissiveness," deriding the parents who produced a "spook-marked generation" and fell for "demand feeding up to the age of 30."

The rise of Agnew put a crimp in the growth of adversary journalism, causing many writers and reporters, even while angrily wrapping themselves in the first amendment, to wonder if they had not lost touch with their readers or viewers, and to ask themselves if objectivity were not a more important goal than persuasion.

As often happens, in the good, there was bad. Agnew's antipathy to the "media" — that's the sinister word for "press" — which he acquired under the press' bludgeoning in the 1968 campaign, became a kind of obsession with him. Even last week, when he had a chance to strike a blow for individual liberty against prosecution by leak, he could not resist the chance to subpoena reporters instead of concentrating on leakers.

In his anti-elitist posture, he went beyond the expounding of egalitarianism, beyond the dignifying of the browbeaten will of the people, to the unnecessary provocations of the "rotten apples" as he stood before audiences that demurred what politicians call "red meat."

He recognized his own excess; after the campaign of 1970, in which the President designated him the "cutting edge" to keep Democratic candidates away from the economic issue, he restrained his rhetoric and gave evidence of thinking more deeply about those sociological matters he had raised.

As an articulator of unspoken issues, Agnew was good, certainly surprising to the man who chose him; late one Miami night, after his 1968 acceptance speech, candidate Nixon said to him about his running mate: "He can't make a speech worth a damn, but he won't fall apart."

But as a personal symbol, as the embodiment of a type,

Agnew was more than good; he said what he meant, with no foderol. He stood for principle, even though it was unpopular; he stood for character, at a time when charisma was going out of style. And now he stands for hypocrisy, which he so effectively denounced, because he cannot say he was not once on the take.

According to his own anti-permissive precepts, the people who believed in him were wrong, but the people who believed in the message he carried are not wrong; this is a time to believe in "measures, not men."

I'll remember this saddened man for his sense of humor: as we came into San Diego in 1970, he noted how the reporters were picking up his alliterative phrases, so he asked his writers to come up with the highest, self-mocking whopper we could think of to slip into a speech about undue pessimism.

We gave him a choice of "hopeless, hysterical, hypochondriacs of history" and "mattering nabobs of negativism." The vice president laughed, said "Hell, let's use both" and — tongue in cheek — jugged them into the political language.

It's a good thing he quit; he would never again have been a happy warrior.

Vote For Schools

Nearly everyone who has chosen to live in the Twin Falls area has been asked the same question from time to time:

"Why did you pick Twin Falls?"

Nearly always we give some version of this reply:

"Twin Falls is a good place to live. It's a good place to raise a family."

major programs which should put the school district in good shape by the end of this decade.

The area has its share of problems, but in spite of this, most people here are aware of a certain wholesomeness that makes it "a good place to raise a family."

The first portion to be voted on Tuesday deals primarily with the most pressing needs at the grade school level. It replaced old and unsafe schools and will add 12 classrooms to the district total.

School patrons should keep this in mind when they vote Tuesday on a proposed building program for the Twin Falls school system. A good place to raise a family has got to have good schools.

But the current proposal also lays the groundwork for a second bond issue which would focus on needs at the junior high level. The second project, presumably to replace O'Leary Junior High, should be held in the next 5-7 years.

Twin Falls voters long have agreed. They gave overwhelming support to bond issues which built the Twin Falls High School, then Morningside and Harrison schools, and most recently, Robert Stuart Junior High School. There is no reason to believe the community has changed its mind about the importance of good schools.

The school trustees have raised strong arguments to support their first-things-first emphasis on elementary school construction.

— Build a new grade school north of the high school. This 24-classroom unit would replace Washington School, which would be torn down and its site sold.

They have pointed to the age of Old Lincoln School. They and local fire department officials have labeled Old Lincoln a "fire trap" with justification. Clearly it should be replaced.

— Replace the old half of Lincoln School with new classrooms at the school.

The trustees have noted the danger to school children posed by the nightmarish North Five Points Intersection in front of Washington School. At least one school girl has been killed there in recent memory. The bond issue would remove this danger.

— Build four new classrooms and a library at Morningside School.

School officials have noted the high classroom student loads, particularly in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. There many classrooms are jammed with from 35-40 students. The addition of new classrooms will help alleviate the worst of the overcrowding.

— Build four new classrooms and a library at Harrison School.

There are so many needs in the Twin Falls School District that they cannot all be met even with the expenditure of $3.5 million.

— And purchase land for eventual construction of a new junior high school to replace O'Leary Junior High School.

The proposal before the voters Tuesday is a good first step to keep ours a "good place to raise a family."

This construction proposal should be viewed as the first of two

We urge you support. Vote yes Tuesday.

Impeachment: The Negative Side

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. — The student government of Marshall University sponsored a debate here the other night, as part of a week-long study of "The Presidency in Crisis."

audience, even in an area that went two-to-one for Nixon last year, may not reflect sentiment in the House or in the country as a whole. In answer to a student's question, McCloskey himself admitted that impeachment is not a serious or realistic possibility at this time. Nevertheless, he argued the proposition in dead earnest.

Resolved, that President Richard M. Nixon should be impeached.

Congressman Paul N. McCloskey, one of the ablest and most articulate young Republicans in the House, took the affirmative side. Since early June, when his resentful colleagues prevented him from making a formal speech on the proposition, McCloskey has been urging the House to begin at least an inquiry into the impeachment issue. Sunday night, he went all the way and argued flat-out that Nixon should be removed from office.

McCloskey's case rests largely on two events—the President's approval in July, 1970, of a secret plan for gathering intelligence, and the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in September of 1971. He sees both events as clear violations of Nixon's oath to "preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution," and he accuses the President of three specific unlawful acts: accessory after the fact, misprision of felony, and obstruction of justice. He made a persuasive case.

But not a convincing case. In considering impeachment, if ought to be kept constantly in mind that impeachment of a president is a criminal process. Every relevant constitutional provision makes this clear. A president can be removed only on "impeachment for, and conviction of, treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors." The President is to be "tried" by the Senate, with the chief justice presiding. In Article III, impeachment is specifically tied to the trial of all crimes.

authorized. Nixon has said — and no one privy to the incident has contradicted him — that while he ordered an investigation of Ellsberg, he had no prior knowledge of the burglary committed by his own plumbers. When he learned of the break-in, he has said, he promptly directed that it be reported to the trial judge in the Ellsberg case.

Neither of the two events cited by McCloskey, in my own view, qualifies as a criminal act on Nixon's part. It is a matter of pure opinion, on which observers will always be divided, whether a president is "faithfully" executing the laws or is "preserving, protecting and defending" the Constitution. The 1970 intelligence plan was rescinded five days after it was impeachment, thus forcing a trial by the Senate, both the legislative and executive branches would be paralyzed for months. Every action of the President would be read in terms of its effect upon his jurors. The most delicate decisions in domestic and foreign affairs would be thrust into a whirlpool of bitterly partisan emotions. And throughout the agonizing experience, the prospect of a presidential successor would becloud judgment.

The case for Nixon's impeachment fails on practical grounds as well. Public opinion polls, I suspect, do not fully reflect the depth and the passion of pro-Nixon sentiment in this whole affair. Millions of Americans see the assault on the President as a conspiracy between partisan Democrats and a liberal press. An effort at outright impeachment would create political convulsions that would polarize the electorate and tear our country asunder.

All this is not to condone or to excuse Nixon's blunders in office, especially his wretched handling of the Watergate affair. His blunders are monumental, but they are not, in the constitutional sense, "high crimes and misdemeanors." A judgment on this President must be left not to the Senate in a tumultuous hour, but to history, and to the ages.

Those Toy Trains Are Available

By golly, it brought back memories when we recently scanned a newspaper advertisement telling of the availability of model electric train sets.

father's chief clerk.

Well, those three men were so vitally interested in the brand new electric train set which Santa had brought me that I couldn't get around them to even look at it. They were operating the thing while I was standing there, tears streaming down my cheeks, because I couldn't get hold of the things.

We remember our first train so well. We were five years old (it takes something to remember back that far) when it appeared under the Christmas tree that wonderful morning. It was, of course, a replica of a steam locomotive and cars of the era but it was electric — which was really something. It would replace the windup train I had been struggling with for quite a spell.

Now, like I said, I saw that advertisement showing all these new electric trains which are available. And there were even a couple of models of the old steam locomotives which I grew up on, so to speak.

The prices for the various sets and combinations and accessories were not too high. So now I guess I'll have to talk this whole thing over with Mrs. Spectator. You see, Dad is gone now, his boss is gone and the chief clerk is gone. Our children are raised so, as I see it, this is the golden opportunity to buy electric trains which I could operate without opposition!

TODAY'S CHUCKLE:

Somewhere there's something unbecoming about a kid with a Daniel Boone haircut, a Mark Twain mustache and an Abe Lincoln beard telling us that he is rejecting the past.

sweaters and hope for the best. That was before the Middle East war flared again and the threat of reduced oil deliveries emerged. The oil supply situation could become critical with little warning. If the United States were to suffer from interruption of oil shipments from the Middle East, Europe and Japan would nearly choke.

Of all the major industrial nations of the West, the United States has the greatest oil self-sufficiency. That is still not enough to support heat-ast-ual policies, and could fall considerably short.

FRIGID FOREBODING

Without a change in temperature this winter is beginning to look colder, as far as home heating oils are concerned. Because of the unpredictable vagaries of the weather, no one can have an accurate finger on the oil and propane pulse at this stage in the season. But all talk in the speculation is of fuel oil cutbacks.

No mention is heard of expanded consumption, which in the normal course of things would be expected. The fuel game this winter, some officials have been saying, will be to drop the thermostat back several degrees, wear

CHILDREN AT PLAY

Although some of the "dirty tricks" uncovered from the 1972 presidential campaign bordered on filth (forged letters alleging sexual misconduct, for instance), most of them were so petty as to be in a class with school boy pranks.

Sink bombs at a candidate's picnic, invitations to a nonexistent free feed, bribing a taxi driver to report on an opponent's headquarters and assorted political espionage is neither unique nor particularly effective. What it is, is childish.

More "dirty tricks" no doubt will be revealed by the Senate Special Committee, but the sum and total of it is that a bunch of sophomoric kids were at play in what should be a professional's work. As kids will when playing with matches, some of the 1972 juveniles got burned. The effect they had on the outcome was to produce more mud than votes.

Airing the pranks in detail makes them no more interesting. Whether legislative efforts could be successful in eliminating such sore spots on the elective process is doubtful. When the untrained, unprincipled and immature are turned loose in the emotional atmosphere of a political campaign, more legal restraints will prove no hindrance.

Discrimination?

"We are selling parts of our minority population down the river" by making this model of the white Caucasian baby the rule to follow in infant development, says pediatrician Dr. T. Berry Brazelton.

Mayan babies are also more immune to cold and stress.

Some of Brazelton's findings, based on 20 years of practice in the United States, plus studies he conducted in Africa and southern Mexico, are detailed in Race Relations Reporter magazine.

In Africa, if you pull a newborn black baby up to sit, "he has enough motor strength for his head to come up in one heave and they come right up on their feet." Your typical white baby "doesn't have the kind of motor capacity or the energy or the motivation to do what the black baby can."

A newborn Mayan baby, for example, will follow a dangling red ball for several minutes at a time. The best a white baby will do, says Brazelton, is a minute and a half.

No wonder, says Brazelton, that "the white community wants to keep them down. They just might take off."

It is not clear who is keeping Mayan babies down. Maybe it's the Aztecs.

WASHINGTON D. C. — In commenting on the resignation of Spiro Agnew, Sen. James McCleure says: "He has apparently admitted that he used campaign contributions for his personal use and I don't see how anyone can excuse that."

Well, Sen McCleure might ask his very own Republican colleague, Idaho's First District Congressman, Orval Hansen.

For Orval, in commenting upon the resignation of this very same Spiro Agnew, says: "I believe that Vice President Agnew and his family are deserving of our sympathy, understanding and goodwill."

Agnew's family, yes. But why on earth, Mr. Hansen, do you persist in referring to this self-confessed cheat by the title of the high office which he has resigned after so meretriciously discharging it?

And what in the name of common decency do you mean when you say: "The resignation of Vice President Agnew is a deep personal tragedy?"

Which person? We can think of some 200 million basically honest American citizens who, considering this stinking corruption in high places, look on Agnew's resignation as a national cancer, happily excised.

You write as if poor Spiro had contracted cancer, rather than having copped a plea for the same crime that landed the late Al Capone in Alcatraz — and this plea bargaining in order to weasel out of reportedly serious charges of bribery and extortion as well.

It is notable that President Nixon's chief verbal hater (together with John Mitchell) has so recently (as assured a crowd of enthusiastically shrieking GOP females in Los Angeles that he would never resign — even if indicted, and if attempted, via subpoena, to coerce reporters to betray their confidential sources.)

Orval Hansen's inordinate foolishness in this statement appears to be a rather desperate attempt to gloss over a Republican scandal that is an even worse national stench than Warren Harding and his infamous "Ohio Gang."

Yet even Orval's incoherent apologies for the GOP is not in the class with the latest incredibility from Idaho's other Republican Congressman, the Honorable Steven D. Symms.

Congressman Symms charges that Agnew "did not have his fair day in court" — when Spiro appeared in court only long enough to plead guilty and save himself from further prosecution and prison.

Congressman Symms laments "leaks" to the press (and these were hardly from any Democrats, but rather from Agnew's fellow GOPs) while discrediting what is by contrast the tidal wave of Mr. Agnew's criminal activities. Congressman Symms even contends that Agnew is somehow "in honor" to stamp out while the Middle East burns.

(Just who in the world was it that burned Spiro, Steve? Was it Uncle Richard in the Big White House?)

This absolutely astounding conclusion is the product of an imagination run wild; the flippery of a mind in disarray.

Steve Symms is admittedly a congenial and colorfully amusing guy to have around — but in the Congress of the United States?

After all, when serious matters of State were at hand, the court jester was excused, along with the dancing bear and the other pats who were caged or tied up.

Our Once Proud Dollar Isn't What It Used To Be

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER

Editor, Times-News
MADRID, Spain — The day of the so-called "bargains" are over. That good, old American dollar of which we used to be so proud, just isn't what it used to be.

Result? Here in Spain the value of a $20 traveler's check which you bought in the States adds up to about $18.20 when you spend it here for food, lodging, services or gifts. And it varies from day to day. That $1.80 loss on every $20 spent is just an average.

We had a discussion with Gabriel Herrero-Beaumont, director of the magazine "Spain Today" in an effort to find out just what was going on. We found plenty.

"Keeping the fold parity of the peseta," he told us, "means that it has been revalued 10 per cent or more in respect to the dollar. Thus, while the exchange rate had been 64.47 to the dollar, it went down to 58.02."

On the day we talked to him the rate was down to 53.01.

What were the possible effects on Spain with the revaluation in effect?

Herrero-Beaumont said imports from Europe totalled 212,421 million pesetas (for 1972) which is to say 52.83 per cent of total imports into Spain. Exports to European countries were to the tune of 128,202 million pesetas and totaled 57.96 per cent of total Spanish exports through the world.

"As for the United States, imports from there rose during 1972 to 63,208 million pesetas, which is 15.72 per cent of total exports; exports were 36,317 million pesetas, or 16.42 per cent of Spanish world exports.

"If we examine these figures in greater detail, we see that of purchases in Europe, three quarters of the total of capital goods came from European countries and approximately a quarter from the United States. Similar proportions hold for imports from Europe of consumer goods and food items.

"From the United States, on the other hand, the most important purchases were fuels and lubricants.

"The fact that 57.96 per cent of Spanish exports go to Europe clearly shows that European markets are Spain's main clients. It is Europe which is the main customer for Spain's agricultural and industrial products: Seventy per cent of the former and 59 per cent of the latter products are exports by Spain to Europe," he said.

What about tourism, we asked? "As for income coming from the tourist sector, as in the foreign trade sector, most of the foreign in this important industry comes from European countries and only a relatively small part comes from the United States.

"In this field the main unfavorable consequence arises from the possibly greater competitiveness in respect to Spain of the other great European tourist country. Italy, whose floating lira will be worth less and thus become more attractive for European tourists," he said.

The stores in Madrid are well stocked with items of all sorts. Many businesses are geared to tourist trade.

We were rather startled to learn that the country really was more interested in tourists from Europe than from the United States. But that is apparently the case. Of course, we should have realized it is much easier to get to Spain from an adjoining country than it is to get there from the United States.

Spain is really going in for tourist trade, however, regardless of where they are coming from. In this city there are scores of new hotels being constructed and the same was true in every city visited. As a sidelight of tourism, it was interesting to note that even the large downtown stores observe the siesta and are closed from about 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. But when they are open for the late afternoon and evening trade they are crowded it is difficult to get through the aisles. There is apparently no shortage of cash to spend among the natives.

The best bargain in Spain is the taxi. You can ride for miles for an American dollar. Public busses are also cheap and well patronized.

Like most tourists we purchased various items to carry or ship home. But we found no real bargains.

Our guide, a native of Portugal, kept insisting that the "bargain days" were all over in Europe. And she must be right.

But that will not really stop the tourists from coming. Group touring, however, is the one answer to getting closer to a "bargain" than any other way. If you are on your own you might just find the price of that room raised from $15 to $20 a night while you were signing the register. In group touring (we were on one arranged by Trans-World Airlines) you pay the quoted price when you sign up and that's that. People signing up a couple of weeks later might pay more than you pay, but your total price remains constant.

So that's Spain today. No bargains, like the guide kept repeating, but interesting and well worth the price and effort.

The Time Has Come

Editor, Times-News: "Agnew is not representative of the Republican party." "Everyone does it, so why the big deal?" These are just two of the expressions of Republicans in the community of Twin Falls regarding the admission of our former vice-president Agnew — that he is a criminal and has been, since becoming a Republican officeholder. To the first quote I must remind our citizens that day after day we find that the Republican party has become a synonym for big business. It (the Republican party) has adopted the practices of big business, spying, bribes, kickbacks and all the other "good business" practices. One I had an employer who asked all prospective employees the classic question, "Have you ever played football?" He asked "will you be a member of the team?" He implied "will you deceive your fellow employees, will you in fact become a cheat for the company? This, sad to relate, seems to have become the theme song for big business. It is noted in the Watergate hearings, where almost to the man, the answer to why they did the things they did was "I wanted to be a member of the team." In answer to the second most repeated quote of the people in their income tax. I must remind them that everyone DOES NOT cheat. There have been times when an employer invites us to cheat. He bribes us with under the table "incentive" with a little comment that it can be tax free if all will just keep it quiet. Again good business practice. But, most wage earners do not cheat because their share of the country's expenses are taken out of their wages before they can hope to deceive. It is sad to relate, but... one of our political parties has been purchased lock, stock and barrel by those who have their special interests, big business. The leader of this political party, Richard Nixon paid a total of $792.81 in taxes on an income of 11 in excess of $200,000. Most wage earners earning less than $8,500 paid more than that. The time has come. Robert Johnson Twin Falls

Synms Record

Editor, Times-News: There have been several articles in the Times News recently which have been critical of Idaho Congressman Steve Symms' vote against the Lead Paint Act. One of these articles told only one side of the story to imply that Steve Symms has no compassion for the babies of the slums. The article even made reference that some people consider Symms a "right-wing anarchist" because he votes against most federal appropriations. In fairness to a fine Idaho congressman, I would like to point out some of the things that Symms has been doing. Steve Symms voted against giving wage and price control power to Richard Nixon (Congressman Orval Hansen voted yes). I think most Idahonans have wised up to the effects of government control of a free economy. On June 14, 1973, Steve Symms introduced legislation which simply required that Russia and Ted China pay for the wheat, cotton etc. that we send them. Some readers may still believe that we "gold" our wheat to Russia. The taxpayer bought the wheat and we gave it to Russia on credit. Russia's war debt is a typical example of what that means. For any "humanitarians" who think we're feeding Russia's drought-ridden people, I might add that Russia is selling her free wheat to other countries. Steve Symms simply re-establishes the Constitution as the supreme law of the land. Most Americans actually still don't know that international treaties superseded our Constitution, thereby circumventing our guaranteed individual rights and our national sovereignty. That's the answer to how we got involved in Vietnam without the consent of the American people. Steve Symms supported the Crane Amendment to give Americans the right to own gold as a hedge against inflation. Orval Hansen voted against it. Steve Symms has introduced legislation to repeal O. S. H. A. and anyone who thinks O. S. H. A. is a good deal should learn more about it and talk to businessmen and farmers who have encountered O. S. H. A. first-hand. At a hearing in Boise, on July 31, 1973, O. S. H. A. even refused to allow testimony from the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation. Steve Symms has opposed pieces of legislation like the Land Use Act, Seabed Treaty, Genocide Convention, and the Atlantic Union Resolution. Most people haven't even heard of these programs, let alone are they aware of the inherent dangers therein. They had better learn because they are important. Many Republicans recognize Steve Symms as a man who, in these times, has the courage to stand up for the good principles that the Republican Party used to stand for. John R. Cox Twin Falls

Therefore, we have been, we are, and will continue to be opposed to the airport with or without runways and we are involved in any part of site 3, which involves 1600 acres of private, productive land being destroyed for such a project. Direct Landowners: William R. Hill

Stolen Guns

Editor, Times-News: Why all the hoopla about stolen guns? Don't people know there is a sure fire way to recover these guns and put a stop to gun stealing forever? Well, if they don't, I'll clue them in. Whenever these law abiding citizens break down doors of homes or knock out truck windows to steal guns, they immediately head for the nearest place to register these stolen guns, which in this case would be with the "Stud of Chappaquiddick Island" at Hyannis Port, Mass. They used to take them all the way to L.B.J. But he has since gone out of business, for lack of business. I can still hear that screechy voice of his, "We have today begun to disarm the criminal, the insane the screech — screech screech." If this sounds like phonus balonus, so are the political parasite advocates of gun confiscation (registration.) Dave Anderst Hazelton

RAY CROMLEY VA Forgetting?

By RAY CROMLEY After all of America's wars until the middle of this century, anyway — Johnny has come marching home with flags flying and crowds cheering. It was different after the Korean War, which was never officially a "war" but which at least had a definite beginning and a definite end — and far more different after the nation's most unpopular conflict of all. Despite the ovation for some 600 Vietnam POWs, says the Carnegie Quarterly, a publication of the Carnegie Corporation of New York, "over the last decade the public has barely noticed 8 million ex-soldiers as they have returned from duty in a constant, though all but imperceptible trickle." Often, they arrive home, invisible and anonymous, on a night flight from Vietnam. Always, they seemed to disappear before their existence could permeate the public consciousness. Not only has the Vietnam veteran been ignored and forgotten, if not outright vilified, but according to some critics he has been shortchanged in veterans benefits, compared to the veterans of World War II or Korea. This is particularly unfortunate because so many of those who bore the brunt of the fighting in Vietnam came from lower social and economic groups and were not lucky enough to be able to go to college and get a draft deferment. Their lack of education, or even incentive for education, continues to dog them — compounded, claim the critics, by an Uncle Sam who is not only stingy but is not doing all he could to encourage them to take advantage of what benefits they may be entitled to. As it is, says the Carnegie Corporation, today's G. I. benefits are not comparable to those after World War II. Then, the government "paid a veteran's tuition and also gave him a living allowance of $75 a month. The single veteran in 1966 received $140 a month (raised to $175 in 1970 and $220 in 1972), but this had to cover tuition and books as well as living expenses. As recently as last year, although more veterans were using their benefits, their participation was still 20 per cent lower than after World War II. Of 2.3 million Viet vets a Senate subcommittee recognized as "disadvantaged," only one in 25 is using his educational assistance benefits. Yet the two periods cannot be directly compared. The World War II G. I. Bill put a ceiling of $500 on tuition, books and supplies. The present single veteran allowance of $220 a month comes to $1,980 for a year and is almost three times the World War II allowance. While $1,980 is little enough in view of what inflation has done to college tuitions and living costs, there is no limit on what a Vietnam veteran can earn on his own as there was for his World War II counterpart. We also have to ask ourselves what the situation of these millions of socially disadvantaged men would be today had they never entered the service. Obviously, there would be even less likelihood of their obtaining educations or job skills. Certainly, everything should be done to encourage and assist Vietnam veterans in using their benefits. But the opportunities, even if limited, are there for the taking.

Comment: The Dam Cracks

By ANTHONY LEWIS (c) N. Y. Times Service BOSTON — The Vice President of the United States resigns and is sentenced for a felony; it is shattering news for a troubled country. But it also carries a profoundly important reassurance. There are institutions in this country upon whose honor we can still rely. Law and the courts did their duty in the case of Spiro T. Agnew despite the most enormous pressures of politics and emotion. The boast that the great are subject to our law as are the small has been vindicated in a way that must confound skeptics here and abroad. None of that suggests any lack of sympathy with Spiro Agnew. Congressman Paul Findley put it wisely when he said Agnew had "done a great service to the country." The service lay especially in not "containing his own fate" with America's. Agnew's lawyers had undoubtedly advised him that he could put up a long fight against any indictment. His position as Vice President would have given him a substantial Constitutional argument in his defense. And he knew he had widespread political support on the right and sympathy among many others who admired his directness. But to fight on those legal and political lines would have put another damaging uncertainty into the American system. For now, perhaps years ago, evidently decided that sparing the country that burden was more important than keeping alive his personal hope of escape from the charges. It was a decision of honor and courage. That Agnew confronted the realistic possibility of conviction was primarily the responsibility of Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson. In other jobs in the Nixon administration some critics have thought Richardson displayed questionable resolve. But as attorney general he has played the most difficult problems straight. In the Agnew case he had to deal not only with novel legal propositions but with strongly pressed claims of unfairness in leaking of the charges against the Vice President. Richardson really destroyed the latter claims with his answer that the leaks did not come from the prosecution and could not be allowed to interfere with the course of justice. If the denouement of the Agnew drama shows the primacy of law in the United States, that lesson must have a powerful impact upon President Nixon as well. In an immediate sense there is no significance in the fact that Agnew finally pleaded no defense to the charge of income tax evasion. For one of the doubts that shadows the President concerns his finances and taxes. After this, can the Internal Revenue Service refuse to look into the questions about his returns? Can Nixon continue to withhold publication of the facts on his real estate and other transactions? But of course the President's fate may be affected much more deeply by what has happened to the Vice President. The country's natural sympathy for Agnew will surely arouse an insistence that others be judged by the same standards. An insistence that no one be above the law. The great ease of the Agnew case is that history is not essential to the issue. It is one thing, constitutionally and philosophically, to contend that a President is beyond actual criminal prosecution. It is quite another to argue, as Nixon does, that he may decide whether to obey orders of the courts. That proposition seems even less convincing now. Another lesson of the Agnew case is that history is not an absolute bar to political change of constitutional dimension in the United States. No Vice President had ever before been forced from office, but now one has. Nor has any President, until now. One public reaction to this fresh shaking of the American system must be a feeling that the President should remain in office whatever his sins. The United States and the world face today dangers in the Middle East — at this moment, and there will be a yearning for continuity. But there will also be a renewed sense of the resilience of our institution — a strength greater than the person of particular officials. President Nixon thus faces his most awesome responsibility. Rather than put his people to another terrible conflict of law and man, in the tapes case or others, he may eventually choose to resign himself. But whatever that decision, he owes to history now — and to himself — to nominate a successor vice-president who can help to heal a divided and disillusioned country.

Gem aides back Ford choice

By United Press International
Political leaders in Idaho spoke favorably of the nomination of Gerald Ford, R-Michigan, for the vice presidency Friday night.

I. Gov. Jack Murphy, a Republican, said he thinks President Nixon "made an excellent choice—I have met him (Ford), several times and I think very highly of him."

State Auditor Jay R. Williams, a Democrat, said it was a "very good nomination from a Republican point of view."

"I think there will be absolutely no problem with the Congress getting him confirmed," said Williams. "I think he is a good Republican. He stood by the President, I would say, 100 per cent and I would say he was a good choice for the President."

Williams added Ford is "my choice over several other Republicans who have been mentioned."

State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, also a Democrat, said the nomination of Ford surprised her but being a Democrat "I haven't any comment at all."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, in a statement from Washington, said Ford "is a veteran legislator well known to members of the house and the senate. I expect that he will have no difficulty being confirmed by the Congress."

State Sen. James Ellsworth, R-Leadore, president pro tem of the Idaho Senate, said he thinks the nomination was "excellent."

"I think it was well deserved and I think he will serve very well," said Ellsworth.

"Certainly he is a man who has the experience to fill the job. We're real pleased with his selection as vice president."

Republican central committee chairperson Marjorie Miner, Wallace, also expressed pleasure with the selection of Ford.

"I think the president made a very wise, and non political choice," said Mrs. Miner. "I don't think anyone was thinking of Gerald Ford as a potential presidential candidate in 1970 and I see no difficulty in him being confirmed by Congress."

Mrs. Miner said Ford has been speaker at national committee meetings she has attended and she has been impressed that he is "very knowledgeable and—certainly very popular among the people at the Republican National Committee."

Mrs. Miner was hesitant to predict Ford's chances for gaining the nomination for the presidency in 1976, saying "It's hard to say at this particular time. It depends on how he develops as a vice president."

Democratic Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said he thinks the president "displayed wisdom and political acumen in selecting a man who obviously will have no problem in being confirmed as the next vice president."

"Though I don't know the man personally, I am confident he fulfills the criteria for the position laid out as necessary for assuming the nation's second-highest office," said Andrus.

"In these troubled times, I would hope all Idahoans will now renew their dedication to the objectives of peace and a better life for all," Andrus said.

Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, from Washington, D.C., said he plans to vote in favor of confirmation for Ford.

Symms added that the people of Idaho "can rest assured that if Gerald Ford ever should become chief executive they will have a common sense president."

Nixon checks war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon reviewed the Middle East war with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, believed Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford and then flew to Camp David, Md., Saturday for an overnight stay with his family.

A White House official meanwhile reported that Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson were among the five finalists on the President's list of leading candidates for vice president before Ford was chosen.

The official, who refused to be identified, said the other two finalists — previously mentioned in widespread speculation — were former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York.

This official said White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. made two telephone calls to Connally before the President decided early Friday morning to nominate Ford.

Easy confirmation seen for veep nominee Ford

After accepting congratulations from his House colleagues, Ford went to the White House for a half-hour intelligence briefing on the Middle East war from the President, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr.

"Starting immediately," Nixon told reporters, "the congressman will receive daily intelligence briefings and will participate in National Security Council and Cabinet meetings, the same as a vice president would participate, once confirmed."

By 11 p.m. MDT Ford was on his way to Grand Rapids aboard an Air Force jet to make his annual pilgrimage to Cedar Springs, 30 miles to the north, for its traditional "Red Flannel Parade." The town of 1,000 calls itself the red flannel underwear capital of the world.

Before he was thrust into national prominence Friday night, Ford had planned to fly on Salt Lake City, Utah, late Saturday to visit his 21-year-old son Jack, a forestry student at Utah State University. But at Nixon's request, he was returning to Washington from Michigan to attend a White House worship service Sunday morning.

After he returned home from the White House at 11 p.m. Friday, Ford found a message from Agnew, who had resigned two days previous, and returned the call. Agnew was believed to have been at his home in suburban Montgomery County, Md., during the White House ceremony.

"He was very complimentary and congratulated me," Ford said. "I wished him and his family the best." He said they made no mention of Agnew's legal troubles or of Ford's political future.

During his meeting with Nixon Thursday morning, Ford said the President did not ask any probing questions about his background, but "with a smile, he asked how my health was."

This was a reference to Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., whom Democratic presidential candidate George S. McGovern dropped as his vice presidential running mate last year because of belated delivery of Eagleton's history of mental illness.

"I think he (Nixon) assumed that after 25 years of this kind of life, if I had anything in my background that didn't come out, it hadn't been discovered," Ford said.

The White House said Thursday, before Ford's nomination was announced, that all potential candidates for the job had received "appropriate security clearances."

Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., ranking GOP member of the Senate Rules Committee handling the nomination, said the panel had requested a "full and complete FBI file" on Ford, as well as research material from the General Accounting Office and the Library of Congress. Cannon, the chairman, said he would like to see copies of Ford's income tax returns.

Hodino said "the fact that Rep. Ford is a member of Congress will accord him no particular advantage or privilege in the confirmation process."

Business up

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — The resignation of Spiro T. Agnew is proving a shot in the arm to the Dirty Time Co., which manufactures the Spiro T. Agnew wrist watch.

"Ever since Agnew resigned, our phones have been ringing off the hook," said company director Scott Taylor Friday.

"We've had to put three extra watch assemblers on duty round the clock just to fill the latest orders," he said.

VP choice retains youthful, fit look

By United Press International
Thirty-nine years after being named the most valuable player on the University of Michigan's football team, Gerald Ford still looks the part.

At 60, Ford, President Nixon's nominee for vice president, looks more like 50 and his energy seems endless. His square jaw now has jowls and his sandy hair has thinned, but his broad shoulders are still there, above a paunch.

He is "Mr. Clean" in his political and personal life, according to his Democratic competitors and Republican colleagues.

Ford, a 25-year veteran of the House of Representatives and its GOP leader since early 1965, is considered among the lesser orators in the House but rates high in respect for his political fighting to win votes for a bill from his Democratic opponents.

Born July 14, 1913, in Omaha, Neb., Ford was reared in Grand Rapids, Mich., graduated from the University of Michigan in 1935 and got a law degree from Yale in 1941. He served on an aircraft carrier in World War II, finishing as a lieutenant commander when he returned home in 1946.

It was at Michigan that Ford made his name as a football star, playing center.

Here is a sampling of reaction from national leaders to the nomination of Gerald R. Ford to be vice president:

House Speaker Carl Albert: "I think it was a splendid nomination. . . I was probably the first congressman to suggest that if he (President Nixon) wanted a good Republican and a good American, that was one."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott: "I think it dissolves any questions we might have expected in the Congress. I think the Senate would still have a hearing and want to get some questions answered, but they will be, rather quickly, and the House will sweep it through."

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev.: "I think he would have an easier time than many of the other names I have heard mentioned."

Sen. Harry Goldwater, R-Ariz.: "He's a very fine man — just the kind of man we need to fill Agnew's boots."

Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn.: "I think the President chose well. I think Gerry Ford is experienced in affairs that are important to the country right now. I think he's entirely confirmable."

Heat remains on Nixon, TF-party aides believe

TWIN FALLS Leaders of the Democratic and American parties in Twin Falls believe the nomination of Rep. Gerald Ford as vice president will not "take the heat off" for President Nixon.

The county Republican chairman, however, describes President Nixon's nomination of Ford a "good choice."

Vincent Smazal, chairman of the Twin Falls County Democratic Party, said Saturday he believes "under the circumstances" the nomination of Michigan Rep. Ford is a good choice and he will be confirmed by the House and the Senate with little delay.

"I think he is an outstanding man and will do his best, but am surprised anyone would want the position under present conditions. My choice would have been Gov. Nelson Rockefeller or Gov. Ronald Reagan because of their experience in leadership as governors. I don't think the removal of Agnew is going to take the heat off of Nixon," Smazal said.

Nolan Victor, American Party president in Idaho, said he cannot be "completely comfortable" with Ford as vice president.

government and toward one-world government," Victor said.

Don Kramer, Republican Party leader in Twin Falls County, described the nomination of Ford as an "astute and good choice."

"I think Congress will endorse the nomination rather quickly and if this is done it will be the best thing for the nation."

"I also think Gerald Ford is totally capable of being president if need be."

Security tightened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission and the Pentagon have given orders "shoot-to-kill" orders to protect U. S. nuclear weapons from theft by terrorists, it was disclosed Friday.

An AEC spokesman said a letter to guards was approved by chairman Dixy Lee Ray and the five-member commission. The instructions were sent out Wednesday as conflict again raged in the Middle East.

The Pentagon orders were sent out earlier at a time when Arab terrorists were stepping up the pace of their worldwide operations.

Balloonist visits MV

Forbes and balloon designer Ed Vos left Coos Bay, Ore., on Oct. 15 on what Forbes calls an "historic" flight. Within a few weeks Forbes, who is trying for several ballooning records in addition to crossing the continent, hopes to land his 65 foot high blue and yellow balloon somewhere on the New Jersey coast, although he has said repeatedly that "anywhere from Maine to Florida" will do.

Although the balloonists got off to a slow start, first getting stuck in Oregon for two days with bad weather and then drifting off-course into Nevada, Forbes said Saturday's Hollister landing put them back on the flight path.

Today the balloon will leave for Pocatello and points beyond. With favorable winds, Forbes said he hopes to cross the Tule Mountains Monday. Once across the Rockies, he said, he will dispense with a navigator to save fuel and pilot the balloon single-handedly in an attempt to set time aloft and distance records for hot air balloons.

Forbes first began piloting hot-air balloons for sport a little over a year ago.

The specially designed balloon he is using for the cross-country attempt cost $25,000. He estimated Saturday other expenses will run an additional $25,000 to $50,000, although the figure seems low considering that a plane, a helicopter, three vans and a mobile home are accompanying the balloon on its cross-country hops.

Whatever the cost, Forbes can afford it. In addition to his publishing holdings, he also owns three ranches — the largest the 170,000 acre

Trichera Ranch in Colorado south of where Forbes hopes to float over the Rockies — plus a Fiji island, a house on the Thames River in London, a palace in Tangiers and a motorcycle agency in New Jersey.

So passionate is Forbes about ballooning, he plans to open the first all-balloon museum at brother of his properties, the expansive 17th Century Chateau de Balleroy in Normandy, France. It was in France that Joseph and Etienne Montgolfier launched the first manned balloon in 1783.

More onions

BOISE (UPI) — Onion growers in the Idaho-Eastern Oregon area expect to harvest 5,198,000 hundredweight of onions this year, about eight per cent more than last year.

The yield per acre forecast at 495 hundredweight is the same as the September forecast, and is 28 sacks below 1972.

Harvest during September made good headway and by Oct. 1 close to 80 per cent of the crop was out of the fields.

TF cash register theft investigated

TWIN FALLS — Loss of an electric cash register valued at $1,250 in the Dairy Queen drive-in in Blue Lakes shopping center was under investigation Saturday by city police.

Officers said the cash register, owned by Harold Murphy who operates the drive-in, was the only thing taken with the possible exception of some ice cream bars. Entry was gained by breaking a window out of the building. A few pennies were in the cash register at the time. The break-in was discovered by a janitor and occurred sometime late Thursday night or early Friday morning.

Two other burglaries were also reported to city officers. Joe Clements told police someone broke into this gasoline plant building.

Gem executives moonlighting as BSC teachers

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI)—State employees—some of them highly paid executives—are moonlighting this fall by teaching night classes at Boise State College.

Drawing on the Statehouse as well as on the business and professional community in Boise, the college is attempting to flesh out its "extended day" program of classes without leaning too hard on the regular faculty.

But, recognizing the increasing difficulty of finding enough parttime instructors to fill out the program, the trustees Friday approved paying fulltime faculty extra money if they have too moonlight in the program, too.

Among well-known public figures on the extended day faculty this fall is Robert V. Hansberger, former board chairman and chief executive officer of Boise Cascade Corp. Hansberger, for a stipend of $600, is a special lecturer in management for the fall semester.

James Burris, the $38,000-a-year state budget director, is sharing some of his talents with the BSC extended day program this fall—serving as a special lecturer in accounting. He will be paid $450.

Robert Des Aulniers, an executive in the Department of Environmental and Community Services, is signing up as a special lecturer in biology at a salary of $300.

State Rep. Ralph Gines, R-Nampa, is on the extended day payroll as a special lecturer in accounting for a semester stipend of $900.

Arthur Hart, director of the Historical Museum, is listed as a special lecturer in art at a salary of $510.

Merle Wells, director of the Historical Society, is listed among part-time instructors as a special lecturer in the history department at a semester salary of $600.

This was with regular parttime instructional personnel and not with the extended day program listings, however.

Carroll Dospain of DECS is a special lecturer in biology, receiving $300 for the semester.

Reinforcements

EGYPTIAN ARMOR and troops continue to cross pontoon bridges over Suez Canal into Sinai desert, uninterrupted by Israeli attacks. Last of Israel's outposts on Bar-Lev line on east bank of canal surrendered Saturday. Heavy fighting was reported continuing in Sinai. (UPI)

Israeli shells hit Damascus outskirts

UPI correspondent Mitchell Vinicor, reporting from the Damascus highway, said the road was littered with overturned and blackened Syrian tanks and trucks.

In Amman, UPI correspondent Royal Brightbill reported that the city had taken on the appearance of a city at war—a blackout was imposed and fearful motorists lined up to buy gasoline in anticipation of strict rationing.

On the Suez front, Israel said it rejected Egyptian efforts to break through Israeli defense lines in the central and southern sectors of the canal. Israel claimed it had destroyed 70 tanks and six Egyptian warplanes and inflicted heavy casualties.

However, the western pool correspondent reporting from the West Bank of the canal said Egyptian troops used captured explosives to destroy the 100-odd concrete and steel blockhouses of the Israeli Bar-Lev defense line.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat summoned the Egyptian parliament for an extraordinary meeting on Tuesday to consider the requirements of the present stage, resulting from the resumption of fighting with the enemy.

The last Egyptian war communique before the news blackout said Egyptian forces were consolidating their positions on the east bank of the Suez Canal and claimed ground forces shot down 13 Israeli warplanes and three helicopters Saturday.

Egypt also claimed two supersonic planes of a type "owned only by the United States" violated Egyptian air space for the first time Saturday.

Mrs. Meir also accused the Soviet Union of giving the Arabs billions of dollars in military material and training for the last six years.

She said the Soviets had sent 120 warplanes to Egypt and Syria in the last few days alone.

"They knew Israel wasn't going to attack," she said. "All their effort... their billions of dollars and guns and tanks and ammunition went for one purpose—to prepare for a massive attack against Israel."

On the fighting front, Israel's armored spearhead pushed its drive toward Damascus Saturday to crush two Iraqi brigades that tried to deflect their push, now within gun range of the Syrian capital, military spokesmen said.

Israeli headquarters reported no immediate clashes with Jordanian troops. The Jordan Valley, a possible third front in the new Middle East war, was reported quiet.

Bax pay hiked

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has raised the salary of James A. Bax, administrator of environmental and community services, to $32,544 per year, statehouse records showed Friday.

Bax, hired in the summer of 1972 at a salary of $31,000, now makes $2,544 more than the governor. He is one of the top paid state officials. His raise went through as of last July.

Lawyer queries fringe policies

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI)—A deputy attorney general assigned to the State Board of Education Friday raised the question whether Big Sky Commissioner John Roning is entitled to state employee fringe benefits.

Roning is on the Boise State College payroll so he can receive the fringe benefits of a state employee, UPI learned Friday.

Deputy Attorney General James Hargis said he could not recall talking to Boise State College President John Barnes about the Roning matter.

Hargis said he did speak earlier this year to Financial Vice President Roger Green about the possibility of putting Big Sky secretaries on the Boise State payroll for the same purpose.

Hargis said he would have to study the situation further to ascertain just what Roning's relationship is to the state system.

Trustees of the college approved a personnel agenda Friday authorizing a pay increase to $22,050 from $21,000 for Roning and listing him not only as a commissioner but as "athletic consultant to BSC."

Hargis said the arrangement was worked out with the Big Sky presidents to give Roning otherwise unattainable retirement and insurance benefits. He said Boise State was selected to carry Roning on its payroll.

Outpost falls

SAIGON (UPI)—Communist forces have captured a South Vietnam militia outpost on White Horse mountain between Da Nang and Hue, inflicting heavy casualties on government troops, military sources said Saturday.

Shortly after capturing the militia outpost, the Communists launched an attack against a nearby 1st Infantry Division base. The Communists were driven back in the second battle against the infantrymen, the sources said.

ISU tells research concern

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI)—Spokesman for Idaho State University urged the state board of education Friday to clarify its designation of the University of Idaho as the state's chief research center.

Dr. Kenneth Smith, business professor and faculty representative from ISU, said he has received numerous telephone calls from alarmed colleagues since the board made the designation Thursday.

"Many faculty members interpret the action as meaning the University of Idaho should assume the role of leadership in all areas of the university," he said.

ISU President William E. Davis said he too was concerned about what the board meant in its designation.

"I would acknowledge the university is the chief research center for agriculture and related areas," Davis said. "But not in humanities, social science, education or medical arts. To us this is not perceived fact."

Smith said one of the things worrying his faculty is whether the board designation may preclude new research undertaken at ISU.

Dr. John Swartley of Boise, board president, said research specifics can be worked out in the missions and goals assigned to the institutions of higher education.

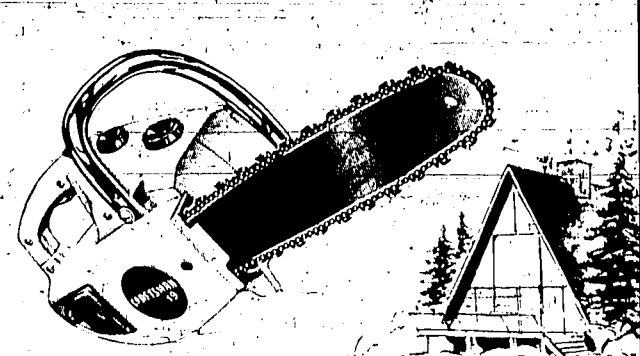

He suggested Director of Higher Education Milton Small work with Smith on a statement to give to the ISU faculty.

"The board gave Boise State College the authority to pay full-time faculty members extra money when they are forced by lack of other qualified instructors to moonlight at evening program classes."

How the house that Jack built saved him a lot of "jack"

When Jack built his home, he insulated it thoroughly for economy and comfort. The result was warmer winters and cooler summers for his family... and more "jack" in his pocket!

If your home is a heat waster, there's still time to follow Jack's example. Insulate thoroughly. We suggest Idaho Power's Gold Medallion standards: 10 inches overhead (R30)*; six inches in the floors (R21)*; four inches in the walls (R12)*. Include storm doors and windows.

In addition to comfort and economy, you'll save energy... and energy saving is everyone's job!

Idaho Power Company
Energy saving is for everyone

Improved insulation in American homes could reduce our nation's energy consumption by 8 to 16 percent over the next ten years, according to the National Mineral Wool Association. This, in turn, would cut air pollution by as much as 2½ million tons annually. Savings to home owners would pay the cost of insulation in a little more than two years on the average, according to the association's report.

TF schools drop programs helping underprivileged

New officers

Farley said the government is now using 1970 census data to determine allocations of Title I. It had been using 1960 census figures. The change in the data used will mean a change in fund distribution.
In order to insure the change would not hurt some states too much the US House of Representatives stipulated that no state should receive less than 85 per cent of last year's Title I allocations.
Considering the issue, the U.S. Senate passed a bill saying that no state should receive less than 90 per cent or more than 110 per cent of last year's funds.

Final passage of the Title I funding bill is now held up because the Senate and the House are conferring about whether to use the 85 per cent or the 90 per cent limiting figure. Farley said the Idaho Department of Education will not be able to promise to districts an exact amount in Title I money until the House and the Senate reach a decision.

"Practically all school districts in the state have started programs in Title I in anticipation of the allocation of funds which will be coming to the state... Title I is here to stay for awhile. Whether we like it or not we're going to get money," Farley said.

Staudaher said the district has begun to plan "extra programs" in case the district has a surplus of funds if Title I moneys for the full year come through. Saying that there is "nothing firm on it yet" Staudaher was unwilling to describe what these extra programs might be.
According to Day Simcoe, district director of special services, Twin Falls Title I programs this year if they are offered will have to be different from those given last year in order to comply with federal guidelines that the programs be specially geared to help children from low-income families.

Previously, the federal government only required that Title I moneys be used to aid all "educationally disadvantaged" children. The district met this requirement when it used the funds to hire library aides, a specialist in psycho-motor skills problems and paraprofessional teacher aides, Simcoe said.

This year, the district has been told by the state that these programs are too general and cannot be funded with Title I moneys, Simcoe said. The same services, however, are being provided now with money from the district's general funds.
Meanwhile, the district continues to hold back on spending Title I money to help economically disadvantaged children. Simcoe said the district has planned new Title I programs involving hiring remedial reading specialists, English tutors and bilingual aides.

These replacement program plans have not received final approval from the state board of education yet, he added.

TF credit group installs officers

TWIN FALLS New officers of the Consumer Credit Association of Twin Falls, were installed Thursday night at the Holiday Inn during a dinner meeting with the Credit Women International of Twin Falls.

Del Van Orden was installed as president; Jerry VanCasteran, vice president; Nan Moon, secretary, and George Hughes, treasurer.

The organization installed Neil Hartley, Neal Garrison and Bruce Bowman as one year directors; Andra Lundin, Hub Reinhard and Henry Cardinak as two year directors.

Installing officer was Leonard F. Itley, Spokane, Wash., president of the 10th District, ICCA. He said the association has 12,000 members in the district which covers Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Alaska and the Canadian provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan.
Rotating president is Sam Yost.

Annual bond cost pegged at $10.40

Twin Falls School Supt. George Staudaher said state laws shifting some of the tax burden from local property owners to the state of Idaho would partly offset the local property tax increase the local bond calls for.

"This year, he said, the district can only tax 27 mills, down from 30 mills last year. The state will make up the $90,000 loss in local taxes, he said.

A bond issue calling for the same construction would cost considerably more in future years, according to Ed Peterson, CTA architect working with the school district. He said during the past two to three years building costs have been rising at the rate of 10 to 12 per cent a year and that current trends indicate the high inflation will continue.

"When you look at these things (inflation factors) it makes you wonder why you didn't get on things (needed building) two years ago," Peterson said. He added that the bond cost estimates include a 10 to 12 per cent inflation factor for the construction to be done next year.

The $3.5-million-for-the-six projects proposed by the bond represents an upper estimate for the money to be spent, according to Staudaher. If costs turn out to be less, the amount of money to be raised by the bond will be lowered accordingly.

Staudaher said the bond, which calls for the construction of 16 additional classrooms for the school district, will necessitate the hiring of eight new teachers for next year at a cost ranging between $80,000 and $90,000 to the district.

The following year four more teachers will have to be hired to fill the 24 classroom-new elementary school replacing the 20-classroom Washington School to be sold. Four classrooms at the overcrowded O'Leary school will be left empty when students transfer to Robert Stuart Junior High School which will have four additional classrooms built.

Staudaher predicts the money to pay the teachers will come from increased local revenue from taxes on new construction in the district and from greater state funding of education.

Last year, he said, assessed valuation in the district rose $2 million to $32 million, meaning $70,000 more for Twin Falls Schools. Deriving his estimate from current building trends, Staudaher said local revenue would increase again by at least $70,000 this year.

Also, Staudaher said he is fairly certain the state will increase funding to education this year at a rate more than making up for money lost through inflation.

Seniors' benefit from new local Mobile Meals program

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS Many senior citizens will be eating better in the future through the "Mobile Meals" program in which low cost, wholesome, hot meals are being delivered to their tables once a day.

The program, just getting underway, but already growing rapidly, involved a large number of volunteers and professionals.

One of the major problems in past attempts to provide such a service was having a place to prepare the meals. Magic Valley Memorial Hospital has come to the aid of the cause. Roger Montink, director of the ARA Food Services Co. which has the contract for hospital meals, prepares the food in the hospital kitchen.

He said the hospital is a logical place for preparing meals because many of the senior citizens are on special diets and the hospital is accustomed to and prepared for a variety of diet types.

Generally the meals include an entree, a meat dish, vegetable, salad, soup or juice, potatoes and gravy, fruit and cookies or similar dessert items. The cost is 70 cents per meal for the senior citizen who can afford to pay.

Nancy Taylor, in charge of the RSVP, a volunteer group which assists senior citizens, said her organization began setting up arrangements with the cooperation of the Senior Citizens Agency of the Community Action Agency.

Small styrofoam containers with compartments for safe handling of the meals and small plastic containers for fruit or pudding, are used to carry the meals to the homes. These containers have been furnished by members of the South Central Medical Society Auxiliary and will be provided in the future by Junior Club donations.

The Junior Club has announced plans to help the program by underwriting the meal costs for those who cannot afford to pay or to purchase containers. Larger styrofoam chest type containers are used to pack several meals for delivery by volunteers of the Senior Citizens Agency and organization.

Mary Maier is co-chairman of the Mobile Meals project for the Medical Society Auxiliary. Others working in the program include Geraldine Miner, RSVP program coordinator, and Mary Ella Bench, coordinator for the Senior Citizens Agency.

Mrs. Miner will direct various phases of the project to participating agencies and individuals as a RSVP volunteer. Mrs. Bench, a Senior Citizens Agency coordinator will work with the senior citizens who wish to participate in the program, and work as an out-reach volunteer in contacting participants.

Nancy Taylor said there is still a need for volunteer drivers who would be willing to donate a car and an hour of their time to pick up the meals at the hospital and deliver them to the homes of shut-in senior citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. Blaine D. Vosburg, both in their 90s, have a hot meal each noon through the program and are among the first senior citizens to take advantage of the service.

Difficulty by some elderly residents to make their slight retirement income cover high cost of foods and their difficulty in preparing balanced meals for themselves or for a couple only results in poor nutrition, says Nancy Taylor.

"We hope the Mobile Meals program will reach as many of these people as possible," she said.

Checks customer list

DRIVER, Howard Burkhart, checks off the list of his "customers" with Roger Montink to get the special diet dinners to the right senior citizens. Burkhart drives the CAA vehicle and is a program volunteer.

Delivered to homes

LUNCH TIME for Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Vosburg, participants in the Mobile Meals program. Includes a visit from Nancy Taylor, standing, RSVP program director.

Identity plates

"NAME PLATES" will be affixed to the vehicles in which the volunteers and coordinators travel. Mary Ella Bench, left, Senior Citizens Agency coordinator, and Geraldine Miner, volunteer, prepare for out-reach trip.

Deborah Milligan, Ward exchange vows

FILER — Deborah Milligan and Jeff Ward were married in Sept. 22 rites at the Filer LDS Ward.

The ceremony was performed by Bishop Ralph Ward, father of the bridegroom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Milligan, Bolton, Ontario, Canada. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ward, Twin Falls.

The bride wore a chiffon gown with full bishop sleeves tapering to a lace cuff. The empire bodice was trimmed with ruffles in a V-neckline with matching ruffles at the bottom of the skirt. The floor-length veil was outlined with beaded lace. She carried a cascading bouquet of white chrysanthemums, yellow gladioli, blue baby's breath and pink tea roses.

Shella Smith, Lehi, Utah, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Angela Ward, Twin Falls, sister of the bridegroom; Cathy Devey, American Fork, Utah; Marie Lawson, Provo, Utah; and Sue Donnelly, Troy.

Stan Ward, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Carl Milligan, brother of the bride, Kent Henstock and Dick Griff were groomsmen.

Preston, Tilley, grandfather of the bridegroom, gave the opening prayer. The bride's father and Chris Milligan, cousin of the bride, were soloists. Randy Milligan, brother of the bride, gave a reading and Lisa Milligan, cousin of the bride, played a piano solo.

Don Royster played traditional wedding music.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony in the LDS Cultural Hall. The computerized guests before a background featuring white Austrian shades with chiffon drapes caught by pastel bouquets and enhanced with crystal chandelier and electric candelabra. The setting was flanked by baskets of yellow gladioli, blue carnations and pink and lavender chrysanthemums.

Guests were seated at quartet tables decorated with pastel tablecloths covered with white lace. Centerpieces were multi-colored bouquets surrounding hurricane lamps.

Punch flowed from a lighted punch fountain. The seven-tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Elizabeth Rowland, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Ethel Royster, Redwood City, Calif., aunt of the bride, arranged gifts.

Special guests were Mrs. Cora Johnson, Idaho Falls, grandmother of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. Preston Tilley, Twin Falls, grandparents of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Jerry Milligan, and daughters, Hamilton, Mont.

After a honeymoon tour of the Pacific Northwest, the couple resides in Twin Falls, where the bridegroom is engaged in farming.

Volunteers needed for UNICEF program

TWIN FALLS — Adults and youths who want to participate in the annual Trick or Treat for UNICEF program in Twin Falls are urged to contact Mrs. Joe (Jean) Clegg or Mrs. Paul (Nancy) Newton.

This Halloween the local UNICEF committee will help children around the world by collecting nickles, dimes and quarters for the International Children's Fund, instead of asking for the usual candy and sweets.

Each year participants hold their own Halloween party following their solicitation. This year's party is slated Oct. 31 and participating groups will select their section of town at a time of their own choosing.

Giving to the volunteers with the official orange and black UNICEF cartons will help millions of youngsters in Asia, Africa, Latin America and the Middle East, according to Jane Brumbaugh, publicity chairman for the local UNICEF committee.

SPICY SAUSAGE.
1 lb. bulk sausage
1 tablespoon
Worcestershire sauce
4 pineapple slices, drained
1 egg, well beaten
1 cup cornflake crumbs
2 tablespoons oil
Mash sausage, work in Worcestershire sauce and cut meat into eight pieces. Shape into patties, one-half inch thick. Wash pineapple slices and dry. Place pineapple slices on four sausage patties. Top with remaining sausage patties. Seal edges well. Make a hole in center of patty by pushing sausage around the center hole of pineapple.

Dip patty into egg and roll in corn-flake crumbs. Heat oil in skillet. Brown patties slowly for 15 minutes on each side. Cook until well browned on both sides.

Serve hot with waffles, pancakes, or French toast.

Girls rodeo group casts vote for Cosell

ELKO, Nev. (UPI) — The Girls Rodeo Association voted sportscaster Howard Cosell as the person they would most like to spend "a weekend on the trail" with, calling him "a pussycat full of tenderness." The GRA, preparing for its world championships at nearby Spring Creek Oct. 20-21, chose Cosell because he's "refreshingly arrogant."

Behind his brusque comments is a pussycat full of tenderness.

GRA president Margaret Clemons said Cosell will be invited to the rodeo as guest of honor.

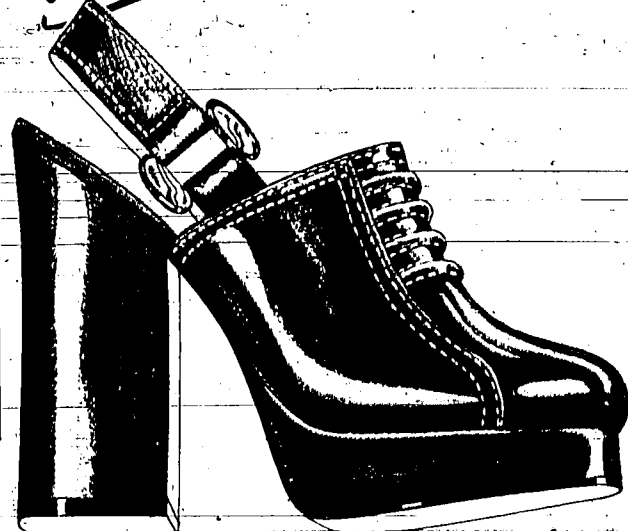

The girls said Cosell has "lovely eyes. All those vitamins must add up to something."

Book Review

Twin Falls Public Library
TWIN FALLS — Sam Levinson is the Koshier Will Rogers of our time. His latest effort, "In the Era and Out of the Other," is loaded with laughs, folksy wisdom and comments on our fast changing time. The book deals mainly with family life and his own childhood. His humor is predominantly ethnic. He has an unending respect for his parents but takes the Schmatz off it with laughs. "We were lucky kids," he writes. "We had a permissive father. He permitted us to work."

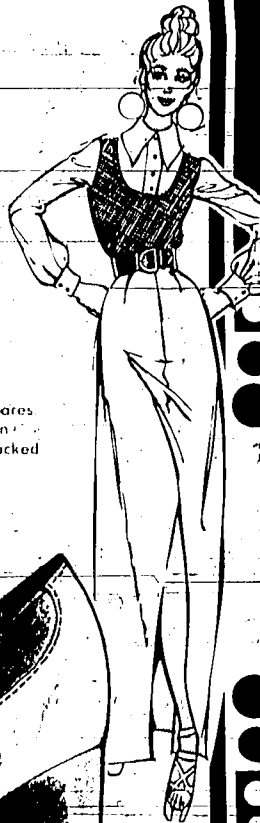

As the title implies, Sam started in one era and arrived in another. The trip, he insists, took half a lifetime and has left the humorist with doubts and misgivings. He's leery of modern gadgetry. "Either I get up a half hour early in the morning to start plugging in or I stay up a half hour later to turn the dial that sets the clock that starts the coffee that triggers the thermostat that flips the switch that starts the oil burner that blows the fuse that shuts off the alarm and everything else in the house that Sam built." The book is a delight for all to read.

Miss Pooler, Pegram wed in home rites

Buhl. — Tea Renee Pooler became the bride of Thomas Pegram in an afternoon ceremony Sept. 22 in Twin Falls.

Bishop Neal Perkins of the Jerome LDS Church performed the double ring ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Call, uncle and aunt of the bride. The bride and bridegroom recited their vows before a white brick fireplace flanked by wrought iron grillwork and a floral basket arrangement of white gladioli, blue mums and pink rosebuds.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Pooler, Buhl. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Gayle Pegram, Jerome.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a Bridal Original gown which created a classic total look. Pearled and scalloped Chantilly lace imported from France created the bodice and sleeves of the polyester mist gown. Matching scalloped Chantilly lace trimmed the chapel length veil which was held in place by a cap of seed pearls and matching lace. The bride's only jewelry was an heirloom ruby ring belonging to her grandmother, Mrs. Leslie Anderson, Twin Falls.

She carried a cascade bouquet of salmon-colored gladioli and pink rosebuds.

Gayla Ellis was maid of honor and Pamela Pooler, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid.

James Davis, Jerome, served as best man. Terry Turpin, Jerome, was usher.

Angie Denton, cousin of the bride, was flower girl and carried a basket of white and blue daisies. Rodney Gano, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

Merrill Call gave the invocation. Mrs. Jim Cox served as organist. Mrs. Arlan Call, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Cox sang a duet, accompanied by Jeannie Anderson, cousin of the bride.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls. The room was decorated in blue and white Austrian valances flanked by white wrought iron aisle stanchions draped in white gypsum garlands and blue bows.

Susie Pegram, sister of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book at a table covered with blue lace on blue tiffeta, backed by white rattan screens. A memory candle was on the table.

The bride's round table was covered with floor-length blue lace over blue tiffeta. The table was catered by a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with clusters of pastel flowers and topped with lace bells. Greenery and flower clusters enhanced the base of the cake which was baked and decorated by Mrs. Carl Rottland, Buhl.

Mrs. Wayne Ellis, Buhl, and Mrs. Dave Mara, Twin Falls, cut and served the cake.

The bridegroom's table was centered with an arrangement of white and blue daisies with a silver punch fountain attended by Mrs. Rod Gano, cousin of the bride, and silver coffee service attended by Mrs. Frank Anderson, aunt of the bride.

Guests were served at round quartet tables covered by long blue lace cloths and centered by hurricane lamps encircled by blue flowers and greenery.

Gifts were displayed on tables covered with white lace. Mrs. Rod Call, Mrs. Russell Denton and Mrs. Arlan Call, all cousins of the bride, were in charge of the gifts. Terri Anderson, Rhonda Anderson, Carol Anderson, and Linda Anderson assisted with the gifts.

Background music was furnished throughout the reception by Jeannie and Maria Anderson, cousins of the bride.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS PEGRAM

Special guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Anderson, grandparents of the bride. Guests attended from Boise, Buhl, Jerome and Twin Falls.

The bride was honored at pre-nuptial showers by Mrs. Arlo Jacobson, Mrs. Johnny Barnes, Mrs. Virgil Thompson and Mrs. Jerry Alexander at the Jacobson home in Buhl, and by Gayla Ellis and Billie Robertson at the Wayne Ellis residence, Buhl.

After a trip to Sun Valley the couple is residing in Buhl.

Scholarships available

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls West Housing Project has made about $1,750 in housing scholarships available to College of Southern Idaho students.

Richard Watts and Sherwood Hirschi, owners of the housing project, through their manager, Mr. and Mrs. Terry Van Natta, made the three room scholarships available to Scott Becker, Austin, Minn.; Sharon Green, Buhl, and Leslie Nielson, Rupert.

According to Paul Ostyn, director of high school relations and scholarship chairman for GSI, the scholarships were awarded on the basis of need, citizenship and scholarship.

FSU president cancels Tempest's date

University President Stanley

Marshall canceled the scheduled appearance of burlesque queen Tempest Storm at the annual Pow Wow show on the night preceding the Seminoles homecoming football game.

Other university spokesmen said the red-haired performer will be paid off for her $1,500 contract to appear in a 20-minute segment of the show.

The homecoming committee had deadlocked 4-4 in trying to decide whether to cancel the appearance, so Marshall made the decision himself on the recommendation of Dr. Stephen D. McClellan, the FSU vice president for student affairs.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old mother of five boys ranging from 7 years old, down to 20 months. I am happily married, or at least I WAS until this unexplainable thing happened.

About three months ago, my husband and I were talking, and I said: "That's what you think, Bob." His name is Joe.

He asked me who "Bob" was, and I honestly couldn't give him an answer. I don't know any Bob, and I don't recall one who meant a thing to me.

I went to you, Abby. I don't know what made me call my husband "Bob."

He keeps bringing it up. I'm sure he thinks there must be a "Bob" in my life. There isn't. How can I convince him? And can you give me one good reason why I called Joe "Bob?"

INNOCENT

Wife can't explain

DEAR INNOCENT: Bob is a very common name, and there are lots of Bobs bobbing around on TV and radio and in the newspaper. Don't let it bother you. With five boys under seven, you could have unconsciously been thinking of this, boob, or boob.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a clergyman. He does the least amount of work he can. Some days he stays in bed until 1:00 p. m. When people call for him I have to lie and say he's "out." His laziness irritates me.

I work hard for the church, teaching Sunday, set up, working with the auxiliary, and helping with study groups.

We've been married for over 30 years, and our children are gone. They seldom come home because their father is so hard to get along with. He never converses; he lectures. He monopolizes every conversation, contradicts everyone, and tells me not to express any opinions in public because I'm stupid.

I can't ask anyone for help with my problem because it would ruin my husband's image. Besides I wouldn't want anyone to know what kind of person he is.

I've secretly considered leaving him, but a divorced minister would have a hard time getting another church, and he couldn't stay here for the shame of it. I could go to my daughter's. She knows what I'm putting up with. Please help me.

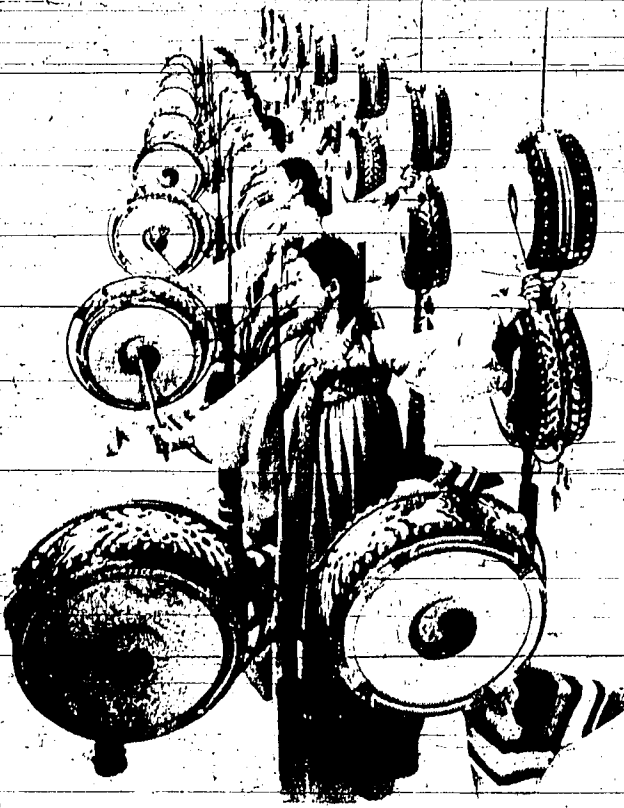

NO IDENTIFICATION, PLEASE

DEAR NO: Clergymen have the same problems as other men. [So do their wives.] Don't let the illusion of his "image" discourage you. He needs counseling, and so do you. Your county welfare or Family Service can offer you excellent confidential professional help. I suggest you get it.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. My mother, who is in her middle sixties, has been ailing for five years, but she absolutely refuses to go to a doctor. She has not had a checkup in 20 years. Just the mention of it infuriates her.

Altho the rest of her is normal, her abdomen has become greatly enlarged, leading us to fear she could have a tumor. She eats very little, but lately she drinks a lot. I suspect she does this because of the pain-killing properties of alcohol.

I have nightmares about her having cancer, but she says a woman her age doesn't have to worry about that.

The Little Angels set Twin Falls appearance

Muckraking author fired

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Muckraking author Jessica Mitford, fired as a visiting college lecturer for refusing to be fingerprinted, plans to show up anyway next week when a replacement takes over.

She had been teaching for three weeks as a visiting sociology lecturer appointed for one semester. Her course on the funeral industry and funerals included a seminar titled "Techniques of Muckraking."

Ms. Mitford showed up at her class Wednesday and said she would teach anyway and 250 students stood and cheered.

Abby, how can we get her a doctor? She reads you faithfully. Can you help?

STUMPED IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

DEAR STUMPED: She is wrong. A woman "her age" is not immune to cancer. Your mother is probably avoiding the doctor because she's afraid of bad news. Stress your love and concern for her without communicating your fears. [P.S. If any doctors out there know of a better solution, I'll be glad to print it. And you may remain anonymous.]

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Don't find yourself ineligible to vote because you "forgot" to register. Call the headquarters of your choice [political, that is], and, if you don't know, ask where you should register. "All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing." [Edmund Burke: 18th Century]

Community Concert season gets under way Wednesday

TWIN FALLS — The Little Angels, National Folk Ballet of Korea, will present the first performance of the season for the Magic Valley Community Concert at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in the CSI auditorium.

The 32 youngsters bring with them many gorgeous changes of costume, exotic stage props and fascinating ancient instruments as well as a dance tradition which dates back into antiquity, according to Kelly Bond, community concert board member.

undergoing vigorous training in their demanding craft since the spring of 1962 under direction of Soon Shim Shin, Korea's most distinguished choreographer and foremost dancer.

Jerome October artist named

JEROME — Artist of the month at the Jerome Library Gallery is Marilyn LaCroix, who presents a collection of oil, acrylic and watercolor paintings.

Mrs. LaCroix has received art training from the University of Minnesota, the University of Idaho, College of Southern Idaho and numerous private instructors. She has won many awards in the southern Idaho area and has exhibited in a number of juried and invitational shows.

Through affiliation with a Santa Barbara gallery, five paintings have been accepted by "Art Perspective '73" to tour London and Paris hotels, galleries and art schools this fall. Her work and background information will also appear in "Who's Who in the Arts 1973-74" and in "Artists: U. S. A., Inc." to be published this fall.

Mrs. LaCroix and her husband, Harold, maintain a home in Gooding where she formerly directed the Top Shelf Gallery at the public library and wrote an art column for the local newspaper.

After many years of activity as organizer and instructor with the Sagebrush Artists Guild in Gooding County, Mrs. LaCroix spent the summer painting throughout the Lost River countryside and has recently opened a studio and classes at 115 Front Street in Arco.

Her paintings hang in states from California to Virginia and in Puerto Rico, England, Holland and Germany. Her work is offered in Magic Valley by KREFT's Interiors, Twin Falls, and at Moonstone Lodge.

Andrus plans to abolish child development unit

By GEORGE FRANK
 BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will tell the 1974 Idaho Legislature he plans to abolish the two-year-old Office of Child Development, which he created by executive order in 1971.

A report submitted to Andrus by office Director Howard Schrag recommended the move, and a series of suggestions to bring services to the handicapped and the potentially handicapped children of Idaho.

Andrus asked about the report, said he would present the recommendations to lawmakers during his State-of-the-State message in January.

He emphasized that the report made a series of recommendations and the last of them was to abolish the office, which was created for a two-year period in December, 1971. He said the office could not be abolished before July 1974.

Schrag said he did not know what he would do when the office is dissolved. He said he is keeping his options open. He was appointed to the position by Andrus. But Schrag said his first concern is to attempt to integrate his employees into other state programs.

Andrus, who declined to give specifics in the report, said it dealt with prevention of child problems through education, early detection of problems, early child development programs and administrative responsibilities for such programs.

"The office will have accomplished its mission when it is abolished," Andrus said.

But he added there are too many children between the ages of birth and five years who have physical, mental and emotional problems.

"These are not just in low income families," Andrus said. He said they come from all classes. He said it is important that the state find the necessary early treatment for these children.

Andrus said the suggestions and recommendations from the office of child development will have to be carried out even though the office is abolished. But he said he did not know at this time with what agencies the responsibilities would be placed.

"The report also dealt with accountability and overlapping services in the field of child development," Andrus said.

Schrag, who was director of the North Idaho Child Development Center in Coeur d'Alene before taking the directorship, said the office spent in the neighborhood of $150,000 during its two-year life. He said all the funds came from the federal government.

Escorted down

FEAR STAINED but uninjured, Roger and Rieley Hull, Ketchum, are escorted off a Bald Mountain ridge by Harold Caldwell, foreground, and Blaine County deputy sheriff Bruce Delsley, background.

Ketchum group hears home aide

KETCHUM — "There's very little difference between these boys and normal boys — they have the same needs and gratifications," according to Clifford Morgan.

Morgan and his wife Lois serve as house parents for The Other Side of Time group home for boys, located south of Bellevue. He spoke Thursday before the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce monthly meeting.

Morgan said the group home's name was derived from a comment in the book Steppenwolf that "young people are quite often the victims of time, especially the lack of it."

The home was initiated, he said, to provide "another side where we do have more time hopefully to meet their (the boys') needs."

Boys go up, helped down

KETCHUM — "Alright, nobody's allowed west of the bridge now."

That was the upshot of a two-hour "adventure" Friday afternoon as two Ketchum boys — Roger Hull, 10, and his brother Rieley, 8, "learned that it is often easier to climb up a mountain than to climb down."

According to the boys' mother, Jeanne Hull, the youngsters, along with a third brother Bobby, 11, "decided to go exploring" on a ridge off Bald Mountain, one mile south of Ketchum.

The trio climbed about three-quarters of the way up the ridge, crossed a shale slope and discovered it was a long way down.

Bobby managed to get to the bottom and alert his mother. Shortly, KOA Campground manager Harold Caldwell and Blaine County deputy sheriff Bruce Delsley arrived on the scene.

The two men re-traced the boys' route up the ridge and Delsley escorted them back across the shale.

All arrived back safely on the ground, with the friendly comment from another Hull brother that, in addition to Caldwell's prescribed restriction, "maybe they should be tied up from now on."

Resource plan group to meet

JEROME — Soil Conservation District representatives of several areas of Magic Valley will present recommendations to the South Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association executive board here Wednesday night.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the Jerome County Courthouse, Paul Kelley, executive director, announced.

Also on the agenda will be appointments to the Governor's Citizen Advisory Committee on housing. Recommendations for membership on the advisory committee on housing and the advisory committee on planning will also be presented.

Ray Mickelson, State Planning and Community Affairs Agency, will give an explanation on a model subdivision ordinance from the agency. A report will be given on the meeting held with the Wood River Area Council of Governments and the State Planning Agency.

Morgan had formerly worked with the California Youth Authority and has previously served as a house parent at the Idaho Youth Ranch, Rupert.

Institutions usually have an overall negative indoctrination. Instead, he said, "The Other Side of Time serves as a 'stable home' setting for a maximum of six minorly delinquent boys or boys who may have problems at home."

"Behind everyone of these boys is an inadequate parent," Morgan said. This situation, he said, was the primary cause of a rebellious attitude.

Boys are selected for placement at the group home usually by a five-member panel, consisting of the executive secretary, Mr. and Mrs. Morgan, the caseworker and one board member.

Morgan said the panel requires a complete record about the boy, including a social summary and physical data, to make a "joint decision whether or not we feel we can give the boy some help."

Pancake feed today

HAILEY — The Other Side of Time group youth home will stage a pancake feed today in Hailey.

The fund raising event will be conducted from 3 to 7 p.m. at the St. Charles Parish Hall. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Fund day set

HAILEY — Hailey merchants are encouraged to attend a planning session Tuesday for the Hailey Halloween Fun Day.

According to merchants committee chairman Ann Dunn, the session will be a no-host luncheon and will begin at noon at the Rialto.

Mrs. Dunn said the Halloween event, scheduled for Oct. 27, will feature a children's costume parade with cash prizes and a jack-o-lantern contest.

Burley vet named

BOISE (UPI)— Gov. Cecil Andrus Friday announced the appointment of Dr. Roy M. Thornburg, Burley, to the state board of veterinary medicine examiners for a four-year term expiring Sept. 1, 1977.

Dr. Thornburg replaces Dr. Delwyn A. Jackson, Twin Falls.

Murtaugh Lions to meet

MURTAUGH — New members of the Murtaugh Lions Club will be honored at a meeting Monday night at the Murtaugh Grange at 8 p.m.

The club initiated a membership drive early last week, according to Club president H. Dale Peterson.

Peterson said Friday the Murtaugh Lions have many new service projects coming up this year, including putting speakers in the high school auditorium, work on the new park and rodeo grounds in Murtaugh and the Lions Club eyesight fund and a new hearing fund.

Hailey man put on probation

HAILEY — Fifth District Judge Charles Scoggin Thursday placed James A. Rigger, Hailey, on probation for two years.

Earlier, Rigger had pleaded guilty to reduced charge of one count of delivery and five counts of possession of a controlled substance in connection with alleged incidents in September, 1972, in Hailey and Ketchum.

During Thursday's hearing, Judge Scoggin initially sentenced Rigger to three years in the state penitentiary then suspended the sentence and ordered probation.

Rigger testified on his profession, family and his attitude. His grandfather, Arthur Ensing, also testified on Rigger's profession.

Judge Scoggin also said he took about 20 letters on behalf of Rigger into consideration in his decision.

Rigger was represented in court by E. Lee Schlender, Ketchum. The state was represented by Blaine County Prosec. Atty. Stephen W. Bollee.

Sheep killed

JILLI, CITY, Idaho (UPI) — The Elmore County Sheriff's office reports 26 sheep were killed Thursday night or Friday morning by a truck traveling on Highway 68.

A deputy said a large vehicle drove through a part of the 2,200 sheep herd on the highway, some five miles east of Cat Creek Summit near the Elmore-Camas County line.

Wilbur Wilson, Hamett Livestock Co., owned the sheep.

Odd Fellows assembly opens

BURLEY — About 500 members of the Grand Lodge of the Odd Fellows and Rebekah Assembly will convene in Burley today for a five day state convention.

The group, composed of members from throughout the state, will elect and install officers and hold business meetings at the Ponderosa Inn.

Registration began Saturday. Decorations of Chivalry will be conferred upon honorees of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. in the Burley High School auditorium.

Among local members receiving the honors will be Fayz Gunmow and Francis Fenstermaker, both Burley; Darin Redman, Abilene; and Naomi Italls and Itella Zorb, both Rupert.

The general banquet will be held Monday night in the Ponderosa Inn. New officers will be installed Wednesday night in the High School gymnasium.

Two injured in Burley mishaps

BURLEY — A young bicyclist and an elderly pedestrian were both in satisfactory condition Saturday at Cassia Memorial Hospital following separate encounters with automobiles.

Adam Saplen, 6, Burley, was injured Friday about 10:50 a.m. at the intersection of Normal Avenue and East 7th Street. Police reported the boy was riding his bicycle east on Seventh when he failed to stop for a stop sign at Normal. He was struck by a car driven by Millie S. Harrell, 57, Burley, who was driving south on Normal at a slow rate of speed, according to police reports.

Edith N. Jensen, 72, Burley, was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital Thursday afternoon after being struck by a car as she attempted to cross East Main Street near Pomerelle Avenue.

Mrs. Jensen was crossing to the south when hit by a car driven by Patricia A. Parker, 30, Murtaugh, police reports said.

Mrs. Parker was traveling east in the right hand lane on East Main. Mrs. Jensen was thrown 48 feet by the impact. Citations are pending, officers said.

Jerome county crash hurts 3

TWIN FALLS — Three persons remained in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Saturday following an Interstate accident in Jerome County Friday night.

State Police reported eight persons in the two vehicles were taken from the scene by ambulances from Magic Valley Ambulance, Twin Falls and Jerome ambulance sources.

Barry Bradford Kimball, 67, Rosburg, Wash., one of the drivers, was listed in fairly good condition Saturday. Also hospitalized were Verna Riley, 46, Richfield, in good condition, and Wendell King, 51, Richfield, both passengers in a vehicle driven by Ralph Riley, Jr., 48, Richfield.

State police reports indicated one of the vehicles was crossing to the left to drive onto an emergency cross-over between the two one-way interstate routes, and apparently collided with the other vehicle in the process. Preliminary reports at the state police office did not give full details.

Officers said five passengers were in the Riley vehicle including Wendell King, 51; Mary King, 46; Adeline King, 49 and Sterling King, 53, all Richfield.

Mary C. Kimball, 60, was the only passenger in the Kimball vehicle. All were taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Except for the three, they were treated for cuts and minor injuries and released.

The accident was reported at 7:01 p.m. at a cross-over just east of I-80 and U.S. 93 interchange.

Governor rapped

SALMON (UPI) — The Salmon Wood Organization has taken Gov. Cecil D. Andrus to task for proposing an increase in size of the Central Idaho Primitive Area.

Mrs. Sue Sisson, president of the local group, advised Andrus in a letter of their concern about the governor's proposal that the primitive areas be enlarged and reclassified as wilderness.

"It is hard for us to understand, especially since our livelihood in Lemhi county depends upon the harvest of the timber from the Salmon and Challis National Forests how the governor of our state could make such a recommendation, particularly after the last legislature sent a unanimous memorial to congress asking for no more wilderness in Idaho," she said in her letter.

TF sheriff faces rights violation

BOISE — An Idaho State Penitentiary inmate has filed a lawsuit in which he charges Warden Raymond May and Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder with violation of his rights.

Paul J. Bjornson, who is serving time for robbery and assault with intent to commit murder, entered three separate actions in US District Court in Boise.

US District Judge J. Blaine Anderson denied a writ of habeas corpus in which Bjornson alleged errors in the pre-trial stage of his case, "including prejudice on the part of the judge who presided at his trial, and that his court-appointed attorney failed to advise him adequately."

In denying the writ, Judge Anderson said the prisoner had failed to properly exhaust all the state appeals channels.

In the other two actions, Anderson accepted the complaints for filing and ordered summonses issued to May and Corder.

In the action filed against Sheriff Corder, which also names May, Bjornson charges that while incarcerated in Twin Falls County jail from Dec. 1, 1972, to Feb. 23, 1973, he was forced to live in unsanitary conditions and was repeatedly infested with crab lice.

He says he and other inmates of the infested cellblock asked deputies to decontaminate cells, clothing and bedding but it was never done.

He claims deputies did provide inmates with an ointment for treatment and finally sprayed around the edges of the cellblock but this was ineffective because the entire area was not sprayed.

He also claims he was restricted in his mail privileges and was allowed to write only two letters consisting of two pages each, per week, and that all mail, including that from his attorney, was censored.

In the third charge, he says that while in the county jail, he was deprived of access to media, exercise, religious services, commissary and personal items, items to perform personal hygiene and certain foods and was kept in unsanitary conditions.

He charges these actions violated his rights under the First, Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments to the US Constitution. No hearing date has been set.

Bjornson was one of two men charged with the robbery of the Union Bus Depot in Twin Falls. The agent on duty was shot and seriously wounded following the robbery.

Sheriff Corder said it is quite common for a jail to be infested with lice on frequent occasions. There is medication available at all times and periodically the jail is sprayed by a professional exterminator to kill the insects.

Sheriff Corder said each prisoner in the county jail is furnished stationary and two stamps per week for letter writing. If they wish to furnish their own postage they may write as many as they like.

As for mail censoring, the sheriff said, all letters in and out of the jail are read with the exception of those from attorneys or judges. If these are opened occasionally it is in error, he said.

YOUNG BICYCLISTS who rode Saturday for the American Cancer Society fund drive include Ken Miller, 10, Dan Miller, 8, and Russell Evans, 10, who pause for a little refreshment after the ride. About 50 young riders took part in the boys' ride, and they finished their trip to Shoshone Falls and back two hours ahead of schedule.

Credit women install

TWIN FALLS—The Credit Women International Club of Twin Falls and the International Consumer Credit Club of Twin Falls held a joint installation of new officers for the coming year Thursday night at the Holiday Inn with 75 members and guests attending.

The Twin Falls chapter of the CWI was organized in 1959 as a result of the belief that through local, state, district and international group effort they can become articulate as an organized body, thereby making possible the promotion of their common interests through the contribution of their combined efforts.

It is an educational group composed of women employed in the field of consumer credit whose common objective is to develop a closer contact and promote a friendly relationship between credit departments of various firms and businesses represented by the members and local credit bureaus, to further the education of its members in the practice and procedure of credit and to encourage and promote the formation of education in credit.

The new officers installed for the coming year are president, Lucille Rosenkrance; first vice president, Jeanne Carlton; second vice president, Marian Kay Williams; secretary, Kathy Gregory; recording secretary, Katie Bixler, and treasurer, Audra Landin.

Grace Garrett, past president, was mistress of ceremony and Nan Moon conducted the installation.

Diane Roan, formerly Miss Idaho, entertained the members and their guests during the banquet preceding the installation.

Church advocates arms for Israel

By LESTER KINSOLVING
Times-News
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The White House declined Thursday to comment upon Sen. Frank Church's plea that Israel be "promptly supplied with such replacements of equipment as she may need to defend herself."

Deputy press secretary Gerald Warren declined to comment upon the Times-News' question as to whether the U. S. should "supply Israel with the tools with which to fend off this attack," according to a statement issued Thursday by Church.

When asked if the White House intends to remain silent in view of the Idaho Democrat's plea for aid to an embattled U. S. ally, Warren replied: "We are continuing our contacts with both sides and urging restraint upon all parties."

Church noted that "Israel has never called for a single American soldier to engage in battle on her behalf." He also noted "the rapid replacement of weaponry being furnished Egypt and Syria by their Arab neighbors."

Warren was then asked by the Times-News whether the President and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, in their extended discussion of the Middle East crisis, had taken up the possible use of an atomic bomb by the Israelis, in the event of an Arab breakthrough.

"We don't discuss military activities," replied Warren.

Regarding the outbreak of war, Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., told the Times-News: "Chances for a quick settlement grow dimmer with each passing day the fighting continues. The fact that the Arabs struck first and on a Holy Day has fired emotions that make a quick settlement unlikely. Therefore, the hope for ultimately bringing hostilities under control rests with the so-called Big Three—U. S., Russia and China... It appears at least for the time being, we are seeing the direct benefit of detente with Russia and China. All three countries are maintaining a hands off policy, and all agree as to the need for an early end to the war."

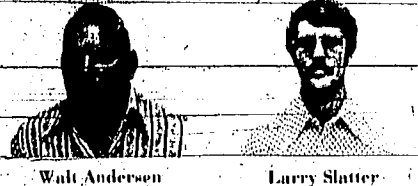

Sen. McGee's statement was made early Wednesday morning, before military analysts at the Pentagon reported massive Russian air shipment of arms to Damascus and Cairo.

Sen. James McCure, R-Idaho, commented: "We have not looked at the basic problem of the Palestinian refugees which has existed since 1948. It is very unfortunate that this war came at a time when we were beginning to look at revisions in our Middle East policy... The return of the territories taken by Israel during the 1967 war should have been a requirement of the negotiations between Israel and the Arabs."

Idaho's First District Republican congressman, Steven Symms, told the Times-

News: "Yesterday, the Senate said that we can't strip-mine coal. The same Senate may vote to intervene in Israel. Well, we should stay clear out of the Middle East war and if we need more oil, we should pay the Arabs more for it."

Floor Fashions

BRIGHT COLORS are making news everywhere on the fashion scene including the new nylon for carpeting. The development of new fibers has produced carpets that have great luster and depth of color and do not show soil as fast as the brights did in the past.

Nylon is a great favorite in the popular multi-level random shear stylings and in high thick shags. The great versatility of the new fiber makes it easy for manufacturers to mix different types to create intriguing new effects of texture and color.

The easy cleanability and natural soil resistance of nylon means you can consider a whole range of lighter or brighter colors you might have shied away from before because you didn't think they were practical. The bulk or thickness of nylon, its relative durability, and its bouncy resilience are well-known. These qualities go beautifully with the practicality of brighter hues and livelier rooms.

Come in and look over the bright ideas in new nylon shags and shears in our big carpet showroom. You'll delight in the vibrant range of color tones, in solids and multi-color weaves, and you'll like the practical installed prices!

Gooding County panel names public defender

GOODING—Gary Shaw was appointed deputy public defender at the Gooding County commissioner's meeting.

Public defender Phillip Becker met with the commission to request the appointment.

The Gooding County Commission is studying the possibility of remodeling the Gooding County jail to accommodate women and juveniles.

According to commissioner John L. Mayne, the juveniles may be housed at the Gooding

TR Hospital, but female prisoners will still have to be put in the county jail.

Dell Taylor and Robert Bolte Jr. met with the commission to discuss the appointment of a new member to the planning commission following the resignation of Sever Swenson. Bolte and Taylor also discussed with the commissioners a proposal to reorganize the planning commission. Under the proposal, half of the members would be charged with planning and the half with zoning.

Jerome project funded

JEROME—St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome, has been named one of 33 hospitals selected to receive funds for an education and training project. The Hospital Research and Educational Trust, an affiliate of the American Hospital Association, announced Thursday that St. Benedict's Hospital had been chosen on the basis of its potential ability to provide new insight into training of hospital personnel. The funds will be used to support demonstration training programs.

RUPERT — Tentative proposals being studied for extension of the North Side Pumping Division of the Minidoka Project will be outlined during a meeting here Wednesday.

About 12,000 acres of dry land is involved. The meeting will be at 8 p.m. in the Civic Center Building, W. A. McGregor, chief of the planning field branch of the Bureau of Reclamation, Boise, said the meeting is being arranged by that office, the Minidoka Project office, and the A&B Irrigation District.

He said a short presentation will be made to inform those attending of the investigation, its status, and tentative proposals for the area. A discussion period will follow and advisory committees will be formed.

McGregor said much of the land was originally scheduled for development in Unit B — the ground water unit — of the North Side Pumping Division. Development of the lands was deferred some years ago because of declining ground water tables and insufficient funds.

The lands being considered in the extension investigation were covered in pre-constitutive planning for the division in the 1950's, but facilities were never constructed except for six deep wells which are not now in use.

The feasibility study was authorized by Congress in 1971, and it began later that year. Field work started in 1972 and is scheduled for completion in March, 1974, with the director's report scheduled for June, 1974.

The study is to determine alternatives for development of the lands, McGregor said.

During the late 1940's and early 1950's, a feasibility investigation was made of the North Side Pumping Division. Construction of the initial phase of the project placed about 75,000 acres under irrigation.

Spuds nipped

BOISE (UPI) — The first general killing frost at midweek ended the growing season for Idaho's potato crop, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Indian summer weather provided excellent conditions for fall harvesting operations, tillage and seeding of fall crops and growth of forage for grazing, the federal agency said.

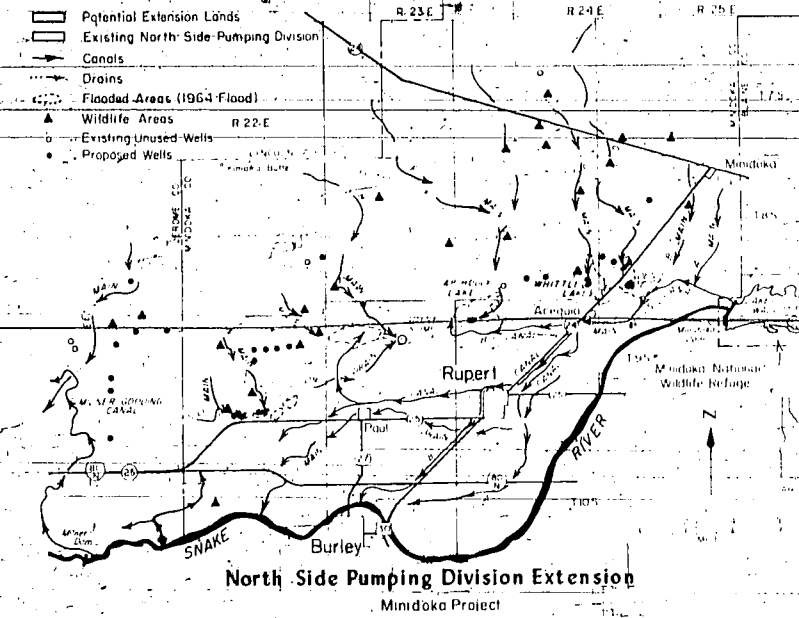

The potato harvest moved into high gear in all areas and by the end of the week about 40 per cent of the state's acreage was done.

Pea, lentil prices told

SPOKANE, Wash. — Average prices for the period Oct. 4-10 have been posted by the Pacific Northwest "Pea Growers" and "Lentil Growers" Association.

Prices for the listed week, previous week and same week in 1972:

Greens	25.10, 25.05, 25.00
Blacks	9.35, 9.00, 8.35
Lentils	28.00, 26.00, 11.40

Granges install officers

KING HILL — Triple installation of officers was conducted Tuesday at the King Hill Grange hall, with Mr. and Mrs. Ira Kistler, Gooding, as installing officers.

Cattle tests due

BOISE (UPI) — The State Department of Agriculture Friday issued an emergency regulation requiring a negative brucellosis test on dairy cattle ordered for sale from lands located south of the southern boundary of Idaho County.

Livestock

Agriculture Commissioner Wilson Kellner said the regulation was necessary because of recent increases of the disease. He said the regulation will serve to locate newly infected herds and prevent further spread of the disease.

Kellner said the testing may be conducted at livestock markets. He said no tests will be required on dairy type cattle consigned to livestock markets to be sold for immediate slaughter. Also, no tests will be required on dairy type cows going to Idaho registered feedlots.

Kellner said steers and sprayed heifers which are officially vaccinated under 30 months of age and dairy bulls under 12 months of age will also be exempted.

Synanon story told to Magic Valley residents

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Residents of Magic Valley will be hearing the story this week of Synanon, a unique center established to help rehabilitate drug addicts and alcoholics.

Two volunteers from the center, Bill Watson, a rehabilitated drug addict, and C. Mason Harvey, a Presbyterian minister, are in Twin Falls this week to address service clubs, civic groups and meet with livestock producers in the area.

They will explain the treatment procedure in the center, its program to help persons from throughout the nation, and the need for support from the northwest states.

Livestock producers of the area will be asked to contribute live beef to be taken to Synanon City in California to be used in feeding the residents of that area.

Other Synanon workers have just completed a tour in the Pacific northwest where they obtained 30 truck loads of lumber from the Northwest Lumber Producers for use in building homes and other housing for the residents of Synanon who are currently being rehabilitated.

Some 16,000 men and women have been offered help at Synanon centers with headquarters in California.

There are now 1,600 residents of the headquarters city, all in various stages of rehabilitation, Harvey said.

He said the treatment at Synanon is carried out without the benefit of any chemicals or medication and there are no psychiatrists at the center.

Each person who accepts help must be willing to follow the prescribed program.

Watson said they are given sympathetic and friendly association with others during their withdrawal from drugs or alcohol and are never left alone.

As soon as they are able, each is asked to do some type of work to help keep Synanon functioning.

"In my case," Watson said, "I dusted bunnies because that was all I was qualified to do."

When the individual comes to Synanon for help, he or she is told what will be expected of them, Harvey said.

"Some have been willing to go along with us on the requirements which include short hair, and have accepted 'cold turkey' withdrawal, but when it comes to work, some decide not to stay," he said.

Rehabilitation usually covers a three-to-four-year period, Watson explained. This amount of time is necessary to make certain the individual will not resume his former habits upon release. There is no charge for anyone asking for help, but most have no money anyway, Harvey said.

"I had a pocket comb when I went to Synanon for help," says Watson.

Like Watson, many of the rehabilitated addicts join the services of Synanon or go to some other area and begin their own rehabilitation facilities.

Persons wishing to consult with the two volunteers regarding their program or needs or wishing a speaker for their group meetings may contact them at the Holiday Inn.

Additional information is available from Synanon Foundation Inc., 1215 Clay Street, Oakland, Calif. 94612. Telephone 415-444-3624.

Dog corners suspects

TWIN FALLS — Three juveniles were arrested by police late Thursday in connection with the opening and ransacking of lockers in the high school.

Emerson Sears, janitor, called city police about 8:15 p.m. to report three boys had fled the locker area after he found them going through lockers. He said another young man and his German shepherd dog were pursuing the trio.

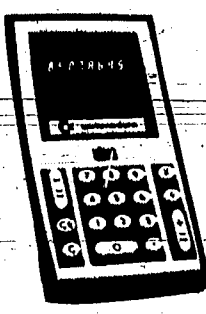

When officers arrived Tom Jacobson and his dog had cornered the three suspects in the Lynwood Shopping Center. The three told officers they did not take anything from the lockers.

Investigation is continuing.

TCU converts Idaho mistakes into win

FORT WORTH, Tex. — Texas Christian converted three quick touchdowns on early Idaho mistakes and went on to defeat the Vandals 30-14 Saturday night.

TCU looked like an easy winner when the Krogs racked up 21 points in the first eight minutes. But Idaho with senior Rick Seefried replacing sophomore Dave Constock at quarterback, then came back and until Dave Patterson scored in the final two minutes of the game and Vandals racked up a big statistical advantage.

Idaho's woes started early, a muddled kickoff resulting in a short punt, and TCU capitalized on that on its second play of the game when Fred Scott burst up the middle for 57 yards.

Three plays after the kickoff Idaho fumbled the ball away at the nine and two plays from there Scott went in from the three. Immediately after the kickoff, an Idaho errant pitchout forced the Vandals to punt out of their end zone. The ball carried only to the Idaho 30 and seven plays later Buster Cowan plunged in from the one. Don Simmons added all three extra points.

Seefried then made his appearance in the Idaho lineup and with a series of passes and the running of Marshall Brantley moved to a first down on the TCU four-yard line but fumbled possession away on the next play.

But TCU tried to pass coming out and Dave Hall intercepted for the Vandals, returning the ball to the 14-yard line. Fredback got Idaho on the board with a one-yard plunge. TCU came right back with a good march, mirroring down at the Idaho 20 before Simmons booted a 36-yard field goal.

From that point on Idaho dominated possession of the ball and its defense held TCU well but it wasn't until the third period that Idaho could score again. A 46-yard pass from twice moved inside the TCU 30 yards line for first downs. TCU's final score by Patterson came after another pass interception by Deedo Turvee at the Vandal 13.

Seefried to Kirk Dennis carried to the TCU 26 and Seefried hit three passes before Brantly went in from the four-yard line. After that pass interception stymied the Vandals as they

Odom set TD mark as Utes rip Wyoming

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Speedy Steve Odom scored twice in the final period to establish a Utah career mark for touchdowns and the Utes rolled to a 50-10 win over Wyoming in a Western Athletic Conference game Saturday night.

Odom hauled in a 41 yard pass from Don Van Galder for one touchdown and returned a punt 78 yards for his second as Utah outgained the Cowboys.

The two scores were Odom's 20th and 21st of his career at Utah. They pushed him ahead of Larry Wilson as the Utes all-time touchdown king.

Rebounding from a crushing defeat last week, at the hands of U.C.I.A., Utah ran up 34 second half points to demolish Wyoming's WAC title hopes before a crowd of 30,244—screaming fans.

Dan Marrelli, who missed his first extra point attempt, kicked the next five in a row and added field goals of 32, 25 and 39 yards as Utah ran its season mark to 3-2, including two wins without a loss in WAC play.

Utah jumped to a 13-0 lead on a four-yard run by Van Galder after Steve Marshall recovered a Wyoming fumble at the Cowboy's 20. And Steve Marlowe dashed 57 yards for a second td and Marrelli's PAT.

Wyoming, forced to play the second period without running-back Charlie Shaw because of an ankle injury, narrowed the Utah margin to 13-10 on a 30-yard field goal by Joe Mariani and Bruce Williams' two-yard plunge, set up by a pass interference call.

Steve Cockreham was dumped eight times by Utah rugged defense, but he still managed to throw for 174 yards in the losing effort. Van Galder passed only for 150 yards as he gave his runningbacks a free reign.

Texas Tech tips A and M 28-16

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI) — Quarterback Joe Barnes threw three touchdown passes and ran for a fourth score Saturday night to lead Texas Tech past Texas A&M, 28-16.

Barnes, capitalizing on Aggie mistakes, threw scoring aerials of 28 and 12 yards to flanker Lawrence Williams and seven yards to fullback John Garner. He then carried the final yard in a fourth-period drive to kill Aggie hopes for an upset.

Don Grimes added a 49-yard field goal for Tech.

Fullback Bucky Sams and Devin Bowers each carried one yard for Aggie touchdowns, and Randy Haddock booted a 43-yard field goal.

Arkansas tops Baylor 13-7

WACO, Tex. (UPI) — Arkansas fullback Dickey Morton shredded the Baylor defenses for 271 yards and two touchdowns Saturday night to lead Arkansas to a 13-7 victory over the Bears and preserve a share of the lead in the Southwest Conference race.

Morton struck for lightning touchdown gallops of 81 and 68 yards in the first half, then the Razorbacks defense held off a last period Baylor threat with a goaline interception by Hollen Smith to save the victory.

Baylor, riding the passing arm of quarterback Neal Jeffrey, drove 80 yards early in the second period for its only touchdown, with tailback Gary Lacy going the final seven yards through the middle.

Minnesota belts Indiana

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Minnesota fullback John King smashed through Indiana's shaky defenses for a touchdown and 179 yards Saturday to lead the Gophers to a 24-3 Big Ten victory.

King, a 218-pound power runner, lugged the ball 32 times, mostly up the middle.

Minnesota is now 2-3 overall, and 1-1 in the Big Ten Indiana is 2-3 and 0-2.

King built up the middle for an 11-yard touchdown in the second quarter. Rick Upchurch ran 12 yards for a touchdown and freshman quarterback Tony Dunny broke four tackles on a 16-yard scoring run in the fourth quarter. Minnesota also scored on a safety.

Canadian trophy

SUCCESSFUL HUNTER Laurence Harper of Twin Falls, displays a moose he shot during a hunting trip to Goose Lake Alberta, Canada. The moose stood seven feet at the shoulder and weighed an estimated 1,400 pounds. Keith Davies of Wendell picked up a four-point bull in the four-day hunt.

Notre Dame blanks Rice 28-0

HOUSTON (UPI) — Work-horse fullback Wayne Bullock scored twice on one-yard bursts and Tom Clements tossed a 21-yard touchdown pass to lead ninth-ranked Notre Dame to a 28-0 triumph over Rice University Saturday night.

Bullock, a 210-pound junior, rushed for 79 yards on 19 carries. He scored first with 2:12 left in the first quarter on a 48-yard drive set up by a Rice fumble and again on the first possession of the second half.

perfect protection, hit Dave Casper with his 21 yard touchdown pass early in the second quarter on a 37 yard, two play drive set up by Joe Alvarado's recovery of a Bruce Henley punt reception.

Notre Dame, undefeated in four games, gave up four fumbles but its stiff defense throttled the Owls, now 1-3.

The Owls deepest penetration was to the Irish 19 late in the second period. Freshman Tommy Kramer threw passes of 13 and 33 yards to Pat Collins before Collins tossed an option pass into the arms of Irish defender Reggie Barnett.

Gary Diminick returned the second half kickoff 39 yards to the Irish 48. Art Best raged around end for 31 yards and Clement hit Bullock with an 8-yard pass before the fullback scored his second touchdown from one yard out.

North Carolina stuns Kentucky

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Quarterback Bill Paschall, a third-stringer at the start of the season, rifled an 18-yard touchdown pass to Ted Leverenz in the fourth quarter Saturday night to enable underdog North Carolina defeat Kentucky 16-10.

Paschall, plugging a gap left by injuries to quarterbacks Nick Vidovic and Chris Kupec, steered the Tar Heels on their decisive 73-yard drive climaxed by his pass to Leverenz. Ellis Alexander added a 32-yard field goal later in the final period as North Carolina snapped a three-game losing streak which began after an opening victory over William and Mary.

Kentucky, seemingly up one week and down the next, struck first on a one-yard touchdown run by Sunny Collins after linebacker Ned Laidvall pounded a North Carolina fumble at the Tar Heels' 35-yard line early in the opening period.

Bill Hite, whose fumble set up the Kentucky touchdown, atoned for the mistake—by barreling five yards for a North Carolina score to produce a 7-7 tie at the half.

Missouri stops Huskers' 2-point play for 13-12 win

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Tony Gillick intercepted a two-point conversion pass by David Humm with one minute remaining Saturday, preserving a 13-12 upset victory by Missouri over No. 2-ranked Nebraska in a game that saw two touchdowns scored in the last two minutes.

Missouri turned a fumbled punt by Randy Borg at the Nebraska four into a one-yard touchdown by Tom Mulkey with 2:01 remaining. Greg Hill, who kicked two first half field goals, booted what proved to be the winning extra point. But the Cornhuskers, riding Humm's passing arm, bolted 72 yards in four plays for their touchdown. Humm passed 31 yards to Rich Bahe and 20 yards to Larry Mshinskie before finding Bahe over the middle for the 22-yard scoring pass with 1:00 remaining.

The Cornhuskers, who like Missouri, had won four straight games, elected to go for the two-point conversion and the win, but Gillick stepped between Humm's pass to Tony Davis. Rich Singer and Hill exchanged two first-half field goals apiece. Singer's three-pointers covered 42 and 29 yards in the first quarter before Hill brought Missouri back with 35 and 31-yard field goals in the second.

The 14th-ranked Tigers were held to only two first downs in the second half and never made a serious threat at the Nebraska goal until Borg's fumble was recovered by Scott Anderson at the Cornhuskers' four with 2:10 left. Mulkey, a reserve fullback, pounded for three yards to the one, then scored on the second play.

Player wins

WENTWORTH, England (UPI) — South African Gary Player defeated Australian Graham Marsh with an eight-foot birdie putt on the fourth extra hole Saturday to win an eight-hour marathon final in the Piccadilly World Match Play Golf Championship. Player was taken to the 40th hole before carrying off the title for the fifth time in 10 years. The 36-year-old South African ended the longest Piccadilly final ever staged after Marsh, a 29-year-old former math master from Perth, missed a great chance to keep the match alive by missing a four-foot putt. Players collected $24,200 for his victory, boosting his earnings for the event to $104,000 dollars in 10 appearances since the championship was inaugurated in 1964. Marsh pocketed $12,100.

It was an incredible performance by Player, who was out of golf for three months earlier in the year because of an operation. All the drama was packed into the second round. The pair finished the first 18 holes all square as the lead was never more than one hole between them. Marsh went around the tough Harrow Road West Course in a four-under-par 70 against Player's 72. The Australian got off to a flying start in the afternoon, winning the 19th and halving the next. Marsh had a slice of luck at the 21st. He struck a camera tripod, but the ball rebounded onto the green and he won the hole to go two up for the first time.

Oklahoma steamrolls Longhorns by 52-13

DALLAS (UPI) — Sixth-ranked Oklahoma pulled its passing attack out of storage Saturday with Joe Washington and Steve Davis stinging the flabbergasted Texas secondary for three first-half scoring bombs that touched off a 52-13 Sooner victory over the Longhorns in a nationally televised game. It was the third straight win for Oklahoma in this 73-year-old rivalry and marked the first time since Darrell Royal became Longhorn coach in 1957 that the Sooners had won three in a row. It was the most one-sided loss by a Royal-coached Texas team.

Las Vegas pins first loss of year on Boise State 24-19

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Senior tailback Mike Thomas rushed for 150 yards and scored a crucial touchdown in the final six minutes as University of Nevada at Las Vegas dropped the Boise State Broncos 24-19 Saturday night. Thomas' running and the surprisingly tough Las Vegas defense turned back the fourth-ranked (college 11) Broncos in the penalty-marred game. The game definitely swung to Las Vegas in the final eight minutes when Boise State fumbled at its 15-yard line and, after a succession of penalties against the Rebels, Thomas finally went in from the nine-yard line on an option pitchout. Chad Thayer, who earlier kicked a field goal, added his third extra point. Boise, which got good offensive thrust after sophomore quarterback Jim McMillan entered the game in the second half, then rebounded for a touchdown with 3:11 left to cut the deficit to five points. But the Bronco defense couldn't prevent Las Vegas from wearing out the clock.

Las Vegas poised a strong threat as Gonzales returned the opening kickoff to the Boise 35 but after two first downs Las Vegas lost the chance on a fumble on a fourth and two play at the two.

The teams then exchange punts before Don Hutt hit Las Vegas 27 and then turned to Donahoe for 18 yards and the score.

Las Vegas came back after Boise punted out of its own end zone to midfield. The Rebels ground to the seven yard line and Thomas then quirted loose on an option. He fumbled in the end zone, but it was ruled he had possession when he broke the goal plane. Thayer kicked.

Seconds later a pass interception returned by Marlin Sievers to the Boise 25 set up the go-ahead points for Las Vegas, Thomas getting the touchdown on an eight-yard option pitch.

Las Vegas added the field goal two plays into the fourth quarter on Thayer's 26-yard kick with Boise replying immediately again getting depth on a long pass to Don Hutt and then McMillan turned to Terry Hutt to five and three plays later McMillan sneaked across.

McMillan passed Boise from its own 10-yard line to the Las Vegas 14 in the last 1:30.

Herrera keeps title with split decision

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Mexico's Rafael Herrera, with both his eyes virtually closed, retained his World Boxing Council bantamweight championship Saturday night by scoring a split decision over former Thailand kick boxer Venice Borkorsor in a punishing 15-round fight at the Forum.

Herrera, making his first WBC 118-pound defense, had the shorter Borkorsor on the canvas in the seventh round for the fight's only knockdown. However, at the end, Herrera could barely see from both eyes while Borkorsor, the former WBC flyweight titleholder, was unmarked.

A predominately Mexican-American crowd of 12,200 cheered the decision. Referee Larry Rozadilla and judge Rudy Jordan had Herrera the winner 143-141 and 144-142, respectively. Judge Chuck Hassel scored the fight for Borkorsor 145-141. UPI's card favored the Thai 143-141.

Herrera's knockdown punch in the seventh round was a sizzling left hook that came at the end of a flurry by the courageous Mexican late in the round. But Borkorsor, who had to give up his 112-pound crown because he no longer could make the weight, rallied strongly in the eighth and opened a cut under the champion's left eye.

CSI splits pair with Boise State

BOISE — Joe Rubino blanked Boise State in two hits as CSI down the Broncos 9-0 after bowing 5-4 in the opener of the season-closing doubleheader Saturday afternoon.

Rubino was overpowering in the nightcap as Boise State never threatened.

Robb Morgan opened the second game with a single and, after two walks, scored on Jeff Spring's ground out. In the second, CSI added three more runs as an error, Scott Becker's single and Kevin Nelson's double each plated a tally.

Rick Spriggs tripled in two runs in the third inning and he later scored on Morgan's single. The Eagles added some single runs thereafter.

Boise State took the second game with a two-run outburst in the fifth inning. CSI opened the game with a 3-0 lead but Boise State scrambled back into a 3-3 tie in the fourth. The Eagles' last lead came at 4-3 in the fifth before Boise State sacked up the victory.

2-1 in first series game

OAKLAND (UPI) — A brilliant pitching effort by Jon Matlack was wasted Saturday when second baseman Felix Millan booted a routine ground-ball to give the Oakland A's the only two runs they needed to beat the New York Mets 2-1 in the World Series opener.

Millan, the infielder the Mets obtained from Atlanta last winter to shore up their defense, allowed Bert Campaneris' grounder to roll through his legs in the third inning, scoring winning pitcher Ken Holtzman with the first run of the game, and Campaneris scored the second moments later.

OAKLAND (UPI) — "We hit 100-line drives," Ed Kranepool said in the losing New York Mets' dressing room. "All it proves is that they can catch line drives in the American League."

Jon Matlack, the losing pitcher, put it this way: "You can't be perfect all the time." He was talking about the game-winning single he gave up to Joe Rudi in the third inning and the error committed by second baseman Felix Millan earlier.

Pass interception helps pave Oregon State win over Huskies

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Defensive back Dennis Downey intercepted Chris Rowland's pass in the third period and returned it 66 yards for a touchdown Saturday to start Oregon State rolling to a 31-7 Pacific 8 football victory over an inept Washington team.

Washington still was in the game at that point, trailing only 14-7. But Downey's sprint fired up the Beavers and they were in charge from then on.

USC rallies in last half to edge WSU

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Blond Pat Hayden fired four touchdown passes; two of them to Lynn Swann, Saturday as No. 5-ranked University of Southern California came back in the second half to beat stubborn Washington State 46-35 and run the Trojans' unbeaten string to 22 games.

MIAMI (UPI) — Third-string quarterback Ed Carney directed the Miami Hurricanes on an 80-yard drive, then scored from the yard out with 56 seconds to go Friday night to give the Hurricanes a 13-10 win over Boston College.

Penn State drills Army

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Tom Shuman limited Penn State's four touchdowns surge midway in the first half with a 66-yard scoring pass to Jimmy Scott and the seventh-ranked Nittany Lions romped to an easy 54-3 victory over West Virginia Army.

UCLA routs Stanford

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — James McAlister ran for 117 yards and scored three touchdowns in less than a half of action to help lead the bruising UCLA ground attack to a new school rushing mark of 621 yards Saturday and a 59-13 rout of Stanford.

INTERTHERM HOT WATER ELECTRIC BASEBOARD HEATING

The INTERTHERM Hot Water Electric Baseboard Heating System is a revolutionary method of electric heating that blankets the home with soft, gentle, economical, healthful, warmth that only hot water heat can provide. With no cold drafts, no chilling ducts, it's the modern replacement for expensive-to-install, heat-wasting central heating systems of all types. And costs much less to install and maintain. Each heater contains a copper tube inside of which an electric heating element and a water and anti-freeze solution which never needs replenishing — are permanently hermetically sealed. Electricity heats the water and anti-freeze solution — which, in turn, heats the room. Can't cause a fire, burn child or pet.

Montana nips Idaho State

MISSOULA, Mont. (UPI) — Montana celebrated homecoming with a victory Saturday afternoon, but not before suffering through some scary moments in a 10-14 win over Idaho State.

The Grizzlies led 19-7 and had the ball with six minutes remaining but gave Idaho State new life with a fumble at the Grizzly 15.

The Bengals scored five plays later on a one-yard run by Ken Monroe and Steve Beller's extra point kick closed the margin to five points with four minutes still on the clock.

Montana fumbled on a fourth and half-yard situation moments later and picked up an apparent first down on a fake punt and run by Dave Harrington. But Harrington fumbled at the Montana 45, giving the Bengals one last chance.

Montana's defensive squad rose to the occasion again as Idaho State was unable to complete any of four pils attempts.

The Grizzlies led early scoring on a seven-yard run by quarterback Rod Svennungsen midway through the first period. After missing the extra point, Bob Turnquist kicked a 37-yard field goal four minutes later and Montana led 9-0.

The Bengals mounted their only sustained drive of the game late in the first quarter and capped it one minute into the second period with a 38-yard pass from Billy Williams to Tom Hoffman. Steve Beller's extra point made it 9-7.

Turnquist missed field goal attempts of 36 and 39 yards in the second and third quarters as Montana continued to threaten without scoring.

Svennungsen directed the Grizzlies on a final scoring drive early in the fourth quarter and scored from one yard out on a fourth-and-goal play.

Turnquist added the extra point and two-and-a-half minutes later booted a 47-yard field goal to give Montana what appeared to be a comfortable 19-7 lead.

Utah State shatters Rams 34-18

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Quarterback Tom Wilson threw an 11-yard touchdown to Craig Clark, fullback Jerry Cox ran for three more TD's and Al Knapp kicked two field goals to lead Utah State University to a 34-18 win over Colorado State Saturday.

The Rams scored in the first quarter on a 31-yard field goal by CSU kicker Herman Morales, but were unable to log any other points the rest of the first half.

The Aggies scored in the first quarter after defensive back Alon McMurray intercepted a Jan Stubbe pass on the CSU 47, cut across the field and ran to the Ram six. Cox swarmed up the middle for his first touchdown two plays later. Knapp kicked the extra point.

CSU led 7-3 at the end of the first quarter, and the Aggies dominated the second period as Knapp kicked field goals of 18 and 31 yards. The score at halftime was 13-3. USU opened the third quarter by recovering a Ram fumble on the CSU 10 and Wilson threw a touchdown pass to Clark on the second play. Knapp kicked the extra point and the Aggies led 20-3.

Montana State blanks Weber

BOZEMAN, Mont. (UPI) — The Montana State University Webbers were down a stubborn Weber State club in the second half en route to a 33-0 Big Sky Conference victory Saturday.

The victory was the Webbers' first shutout since 1966 when they downed Montana 38-0. It was the first time that Weber State had been shutout since early in the 1964 season.

After a scoreless first quarter that saw only one first down by each team, sophomore place kicker Pat Bolton converted a 33-yard field goal mid-way in the second period.

Bolton hit his second field goal, a 39-yarder, late in the third quarter. Then, in a four minute stretch, MSU scored on fullback Don Bagley's one yard run, a 30-yard return of an intercepted pass by Randy Hicke and a 25-yard pass play from reserve quarterback Mike Holder to tight end John McCaffrey.

United States to Host Next Great Depression

We're all invited. That's right, everyone gets to be involved.

Robert L. Preston has written a book, How to Prepare for the Coming Crash. Before you slrug off the possibilities, take note of this. Mr. Preston's foresight is on record. He predicted the following 1973 economic crisis in 1970 and they have occurred:

1. The Federal Reserve raised its interest rates to 5% in January 1973.
2. The stock market fell 85 points in 30 days.
3. The Federal Reserve raised its interest rates to the highest level in history, fulfilling Preston's prediction!

How long has it been since you noticed a relief in food prices, or wage increases to cover the inflated cost of living? These are signs. How long can it continue? Robert L. Preston will tell you it can't continue and that our economy has been pushed to one inevitable, unavoidable result — DEPRESSION.

In his book, Mr. Preston will tell you how to survive the crash and build your fortune. It's all in one book: how to store food, water and medication — where to live, — how to live — what to invest in for your future security. In short, how to survive and prosper.

Remember it's not much of an honor to be invited to a depression. So, prepare yourself and your family — better years too soon than one day too late.

Highland rolls to 49-0 win over T.F.

POCATELLO — The undefeated Highland Rams scored almost at will in the first half and rolled over the Twin Falls Bruins 49-0 Friday night.

Although a definite underdog, Twin Falls, coming off its biggest offensive showing of the season last week against Nampa, was expected to put up a stronger battle. But two turnovers and a long drive quickly showed the Rams ahead 21-0 and it was only a matter of running out the clock.

Although Twin Falls was larger in the line by average, the Bruins' front wall was unable to create any holes for the backs and most of the first half was gone before Twin Falls managed a first down.

Highland fumbled a drive away in the opening minutes at the Twin Falls three but the Bruins fumbled right back at the five and on the next play Larry Kemp went in. On its next possession Highland moved 71 yards on the passing of Mike Falash with Kemp hitting from the nine. Falash then ran the two-point over.

The first play after the kickoff, Jeff Poppleton intercepted a Bruins pass at the Twin Falls 21 and Falash immediately hit Kevin Wellerd on a 22-yard pass and, on the first play of the second quarter Falash dived in from the one. Greg Kawamura hit the first of six extra point kicks.

On their next possession Highland showed some disdain for the Bruins' defense and gambled on fourth and less than one at its own 31. They made that and then Falash hit Wayne Mueller for a 44-yard pass play to the Bruin 12. Kemp later scored from the nine. Highland wound up the first-half stalling on a one-yard plunge.

Erickson added the second half touchdowns from the seven and the 12.

Unbeaten Skyline erases early deficit to overhaul Minico

RUBERT — The undefeated Skyline Grizzlies battle back from a 12-0 first-half deficit and nailed down a 20-10 victory with an interception in the final minute to nip the Minico Spartans Friday night.

Minico sparked throughout the first half and in the final three minutes marched 58 yards to throw a scare into the Grizzlies before Bruce Maycott picked off a pass with 38 seconds left and at his own 24-yard line.

Minico opened well, taking the kickoff and, making some passes with running plays, moving to the Skyline 100-yard line. Frank McCleary burst in from there but the Spartans, who lost kicker Scott Morehouse to a leg injury for the season, couldn't run the two-point game.

In the second period the Spartans put together a 50-yard march, culminated on a one-yard dive by Terry Staller.

Skyline then started the long way back, hitting the SIC's top receiver Gary Moss for three passes and getting another first down on an interference call. Finally Tuck Street threw a 23-yard, touchdown pass to Mike Julian. Kevin Taylor converted.

The Grizzlies moved into the lead with the third-quarter kickoff, driving to the four before Dave Arehart went in

The kick went wide.

Skyline's rally climaxed one play into the fourth period when Arehart went in from the four and Taylor against converted.

Minico punted soon after the kickoff and got a big chance when Skyline fumbled the ball away at the 35-yard line. McCleary immediately put teeth in the threat when he burst for 27 yards to the Skyline eight. A penalty helped to the three and two plays later Tuck Street went over from the one. But Skyline managed to stop McCleary just inches from the end zone on a two-point run to preserve the victory.

Buhl stems Wood River rally with late TD for 25-18 win

JALLEY — The Buhl Indians fought off a late surge by Wood River, then scored some insurance points in the final 90 seconds to claim a 25-18 South Central Idaho Conference victory Friday afternoon.

loss for Wood River which fell back into a tie for fourth with Jerome at 22.

Buhl struck quickly in the second period, too, a quick 13-0 lead. The big play came on the first scrimmage when Dave Watson blocked a Wood River punt, scooped up the ball and went 15 yards to score. Pat Hamilton booted the point after.

Indians moved 65 yards and scored on a six-yard pass from Charlie Hepworth to Pat Hamilton.

Wood River, held to 12 yards net in the first half came back to dominate the third period. This moved 62 yards with the second-half kickoff to score on a five-yard burst by Dallas Barks. The point-after kick was blocked.

Buhl then replied with a quick drive, most of it coming on a 43-yard pass from Hepworth to Scott Waldon that carried to the eight. Two plays later Hepworth went in from the four but the two-point pass failed.

Randy Collier then picked up the scoring, string for the Wolverines, who held possession most of the 12 minutes Collier cut the deficit to six with a three-yard drive with the conversion pass going incomplete. Then early in the fourth period Collier shook loose on a counter play and sailed 60 yards to cut the margin to 19-18. Buhl's defense stopped the point-after run.

Wood River, which picked up 20 yards rushing, up to that point of the second half, then gambled and lost on a fourth-down just about three minutes from the end of the game. Buhl replied with its final drive with Rob Negeledah getting the final few yards.

Devils near playoff spot, beat Trojans

MURTAUGH — Steve Stanger threw for two touchdowns Friday night when the Murtaugh Red Devils defeated Raft River 26-6 and all but need a second straight trip to the midweek for a fourth-fifth district playoff game.

The Devils have lost only to undefeated Deigo and a victory over Hagerman next week would clinch second spot.

It took Murtaugh nearly four minutes into the second quarter to get ahead, the points coming on a 35-yard bomb from Steve Stanger to Steve Pickett. Clint Dille ran the two pointer across. With 1:43 left in the half, Kelly McFarland clinaxed a 70-yard Murtaugh drive by getting the last six yards. That drive started on a Raft River fumble at the Devil 30. Dille again converted.

Two plays into the fourth period Murtaugh moved well out of reach when Stanger hit Scott Perkins perfectly on an over-the-shoulder catch for 48 yards and the third Devil

ISU harriers beat Utahns

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Idaho State, with Jimmie Vince Capell and Jerald Jones running a dead heat, beat Utah's cross country team 28-29 Saturday.

Capell and Jones ran arm-in-arm the last 100 yards of the six-mile distance over the University Golf Course, finishing in 32 minutes and 24 seconds.

Tom Takachi was the first Utah finisher.

CSI harriers win

SALT LAKE CITY — College of Southern Idaho, with ace Steve McCalley and Gary Sievers again going one-two, thrashed three other junior colleges in a cross country meet Friday afternoon.

McCalley led the field over the 3.7 mile course at Sugarhous Park in a time of 19:11 while Sievers was second in 19:25. Monty Brothwell was sixth in 20:16 and Jeff Van Hoozer and Tim Severin ran eighth and ninth in 20:37.

The Eagles wound up with 26 points while Ricks had 39, Eastern Utah 62 and Snow College 83.

CSI will run in the all-Idaho meet in Boise next week but the three major four-year schools won't be there, claiming previous and conflicting commitments.

Wendell and Valley battle to 6-6 draw

WENDELL — The Wendell Trojans missed a late field goal attempt Friday night as they battled to a 6-6 deadlock with the Valley Vikings in a game that did little to clear the middle of the Little Five Conference race.

The result left Wendell in the lead with a 10-1 record, hosted Glenn Ferry into second spot at 1-1-0 and wound up Valley's loop year at 2-1-1.

Both teams were plagued by penalties in the first Valley but in the waning minutes Wendell recovered a Wendell fumble at the Heyard line and ground down to a first down at the Trojan one. Your plays later Valley couldn't get beyond the one and Wendell came back with a 99-yard drive. It took 11 plays and most of it came on Tracy Sebt's 53-yard touchdown jump.

Valley fashioned the tie in the third period when Rick Goodner blocked a Trojan punt with the ball rebounding to the three-yard line of Wendell. McDonald punched it over on the next play but Wendell's McGammon blocked the point after try to leave it 6-6.

Valley mounted a good march in the fourth period but eventually had to punt into the Wendell end zone. From its own 20, Wendell battered downfield to the Valley 11-yard line before fourth down came up. Matt Rumm's field goal attempt just missed by a foot or two to the right.

Westside defeats Hansen

HANSEN — Fifth district A-4 champion Westside used its superior speed to defeat the Hansen Huskies 18-14 Friday night.

It looked like a runaway early when Westside hit for two first quarter scores. The first came on a 19-yard pass from Larry Thomas to Rod Cormia. On their next possession the Huskies sustained a march to the Hansen three yard line and Randy Austin bolted in from

Buckeyes overpower Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — Led by tailback Archie Griffin's 169 yards rushing, unbeaten and No. 1 ranked Ohio State overpowered Wisconsin Saturday, 24-0.

With Cornelius Greene masterful in handling of the option play, the Buckeyes launched relentless touchdown marches of 76, 72 and 78 yards, and the Ohio defense allowed the Badgers into their territory just four times.

It was the fourth victory for Ohio State, Wisconsin is 1-4.

The Buckeyes jumped to a 7-0 lead on Bruce Elna's one-yard plunge in the first quarter. The score stayed that way until the third quarter, when Greene ran in from the three.

The Buckeyes took a 17-0 lead on Blair Conroy's 36-yard field goal later in the third period and finished their scoring on a one-yard plunge by Elna with 5:09 left in the game.

The Badgers didn't get within striking distance during the game and were not able to move the ball onto Ohio State ground for the first time until the closing minutes of the second quarter.

Harper's 95-yard run in last 1:01 lifts Burley past Tigers

MOUNTAIN HOME — Burley's money man, Ken Harper, enhanced his reputation with a scintillating 95-yard dash with 1:01 left in the game Friday night, lifting the Bobcats past the Tigers 14-13.

Harper's big run came one play after Burley's defensive unit had turned in a strong goal line stand that saw Mountain Home with a first and goal at the nine and ended four plays later on the five — thanks to a final tackle by Trent Martindale.

On the next play, Harper started a sweep and shook off a good shot in turning the corner. It took a few steps for him to catch his balance as he continued upfield and it seemed the pursuit would catch him around the 40-yard line. But Harper then stretched out and ran away from his pursuers.

Kerry Taylor for the go-ahead two-point conversion.

It stayed like that until 7:17 remained in the game when Schilz returned a punt 48 yards to put Mountain Home ahead 13-7. The run for two points was stopped.

HELP WANTED
Younger men which means anybody on his way up in the world, are in demand at Personnel Placement Center. One man wants a fellow who can learn to take over his business, another wants a fellow who is hands on but can still run a store. Another wants a man who hopes to be a salesman some day, but wants to learn the business inside out. If you're a college grad, a graduate of a vocational school, or a former military man, you should start your own business almost anywhere. You would qualify for all these positions and it would be a wonderful way to get your feet around entrepreneurship for actual team participation.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

No. 0 on that list of unfortunate characteristics which is most likely to cause a young man to break a matrimonial engagement is said to be his girlfriend's "superior intelligence." It ranks right behind No. 8 which is her "simple inconsiderateness." And No. 7 which is her "egocentric behavior." Or so psychological studies show.

That 30-day period in late November and early December is the time of year when the most babies are conceived. Sixteen out of every 100 babies printed hereabouts are left youngsters. No, miss, why a woman's hair grows faster than a man's I can't explain. The bleaching of clothes is older than the washing of same with soap. In one out of every four murder cases, it was the victim who first resorted to violence, studies show.

EXECUTIVES

Take these two types of executives, the fellow who has worked his way up from the bottom into management as opposed to the fellow who jumped into some top job right out of college. Extensive health records show the bright boy straight from school suffers far fewer illnesses than does the man who climbed high through the ranks. But the why of it remains unexplained.

A medical scholar who has studied left-handedness contends 34 out of every 100 babies would grow up to be left-handed if the grownups around them didn't tamper with their natural tendencies.

Young lady, if you're planning to whip cream for dessert, better order said cream a day or two ahead of time. Thick cream does not whip best right after its first sunrise.

Do you realize the science boys are discovering about 8,000 new kinds of insects every year?

BEEF

Q: "What should the temperature be in a room where you're going to hang a side of beef for aging?"
A: Understand 35 degrees F. is about right.

The more moist the air, the less likely you are to catch cold, contract the flu, or come down with pneumonia. January's average humidity runs 12 per cent. Its incidence of respiratory diseases goes 92 per 1,000. July's average humidity runs 59 per cent. Its incidence of respiratory diseases goes only 27 per 1,000. So reports the U.S. Public Health Service.

Claim is that a single girl's chances of meeting eligible men are worse in Washington, D.C., than in any other big town. That's because the unattached women there outnumber the men considerably, as you may know. But it's also true that many of those girls work extra hours, so find little time to socialize.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES You need a new understanding of the down to earth way to apply your philosophical concepts if you are to gain the advancement you wish. Be more aware of what is going on in the world today and adjust your thinking.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make the conditions of your home more as you want them to be. Get advice from a clever and practical person. Evening is fine for entertaining at dinner.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan time in a.m. for philosophical study or attending services. Later you can enjoy hobbies with good chums. Learn to communicate better and gain more cooperation from others.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Some good pal-ams show you how to gain cherished desires. Handle social affairs on a more practical level. To bed early is best as you need rest.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Enter the right social circles where you can make progress faster in business or personal relationships. Forget the emotional and stick to the practical. Help others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find the right methods to make big headway with high-ups from whom you want favors. Show you have a philanthropic nature. Do nothing that could injure your health.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) First concentrate on the spiritual, then you know how to operate in a more effective and successful way. Make new contacts who have knowledge you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Use intuition when dealing with others for fine results. Show more affection for mate and encourage others who feel depressed. Plan time for meditation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Know what associates expect from you and try to please them; listen closely to what they say. Get into that important civic project. Avoid a troublemaker.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you show appreciation to those who are helpful, you can handle responsibilities easily today. Wear that new apparel for a fine impression.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan to have friends in who have entertained you so much in the past and show your appreciation. Get new interests working in a clever way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can gain the backing of bigwigs in a charming way now during free time. Have home neat to entertain there in p.m. Invite only congenials.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get out to the church or philosophical lecture in a.m. which will help you live a more ideal life. Avoid one who has an axe to grind.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who will do well in the fields of engineering, inventions, marketing products and it would be well to slant the education along such lines. There is a natural aptitude here for finishing whatever is started and this can bring much success in life. Give an opportunity to travel early with good friends as this is most educational. Give spiritual training early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What You're Saying...

What should the US do in the Middle East?

"We should chip in and help them (Israelis). They certainly need our help. Everyone else has ganged up against them."

Norma L. Wiseman, Twin Falls
"Personally, I think it is a political maneuver to catch the world in an oil short condition. They got into it and will now look to the two major world powers (the United States and Russia) to come to their aid and compete for the oil supplies."

Pat Hertlein, Twin Falls —
"I suppose I feel we should stay out of it if we can. It seems we have had enough wars lately and I think we should take care of some of our problems at home."

Guy Mitsuoka, Twin Falls —
"If it's going to be like Vietnam, we had better keep our nose out of it."

Jack Fisher, Twin Falls —
"Blow it up. By all means, I think we should stay out of it. Look at all the trouble we got into in Vietnam and Cambodia."

Harry Cohen, Twin Falls —
"I don't think there is anything we can do to help them. They (Israelis) have a rough row to hoe. We could go in and assist them but I don't think we will. If we get into it, Russia will and we could have another all-out war. I think the Israelis knew this was coming but have been holding off as long as possible. It will be a long drawn out affair."

The Question Of Mandatory Retirement

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Gandhi was 78 when he led the struggle for India's independence. Disraeli was prime minister of England at 76. Clemenceau was 75 when France called him during World War I. Webster was 70 when he wrote the American Dictionary of English Language. Grandma Moses did not begin painting until she was 72, Learned Hand was on the bench at 79, and Pablo Casals, now in the ninth decade of his life, is still making music for the world.

Who was it that said ability ended at 65? Probably Otto von Bismarck, who, after organizing the German Empire, established a mandatory retirement age for his countrymen. (He, by the way, was excluded; he did not leave office until 75).

Bismarck, of course, operated in an age when longevity meant something different than today. His gesture was entirely humanitarian. Yet a century later, though both age and occupation have taken on new significance, the United States and much of the industrialized world still follow the Bismarck example. Sixty-five, sometimes earlier, is by law the age when workers are told their services are no longer required.

Actually, the milestone is not usually so harsh as this. Rather, an exiting employee is told that he's "earned his rest." Then comes the gold watch, maybe a party and everybody wishes the old chap happiness before they get back to running the mill.

To a large extent Americans have bought the retirement laws without objection, and in fact with pleasure. Those in jobs requiring little creativity, or jobs where physical stamina is necessary, look forward to retirement—at least until it comes. "I can't wait to get up and just go fishin'."

But there are others, probably a minority, for whom retirement is like a sentence of death. Indeed, the metaphor is not outlandish. Geriatric authorities say that when some people are forced to leave their jobs, told by society they can no longer perform, the drop-out is the first step to the grave.

Many of these forced retirees do restructure their lives, certainly, and find new interests or outlets; but many, others, as anthropologist Margaret Mead says, "are like the admiral who can't, in retirement, find a substitute for the fleet."

But though the problem has been well known for years it is only recently gaining serious attention. A number of civil libertarians, senior citizen groups and geriatric students are talking now about changing the system.

"Mandatory retirement," says Dr. Eric Pfeiffer of Duke University's Medical School, "is just not very bright." More than that, says a spokesman for the American Association of Retired Persons: "It's clearly discriminatory. The 14th Amendment prohibits age discrimination. Forced retirement is outdated."

The courts, however, have not agreed. The one big case which has been tested, that involving noted philosopher Paul Weiss, was not successful. Weiss, now 73, says he had been offered the Albert Schweitzer—chair on humanities at Fordham University in New York. "But there was a delay and in the end they said they didn't want me." Actually it was the state of New York which, nixed the Weiss appointment—because, as he and his lawyers grumble, he was a few years too old.

Weiss sued and lost. A federal district court said that his denial was "not Constitutionally infirm." A court of appeals upheld the decision. The Supreme Court, giving no reason, as is its policy, refused to hear the matter. (Five of the justices are in their 60's; William Douglas is 75).

Weiss, of course, still believes the courts were wrong. He says the idea of retirement is fine for people who want it; he says those people should be allowed to retire at a fixed age. "But retirement should be based on an individual rather than a wholesale basis. Why should I be denied employment if I want it and can handle it?" Under these conditions, he argues, denying him employment because of age is little different from denying blacks employment because of color.

Actually, Weiss is not out in the cold. When Fordham refused him, Catholic University hired him for a "special" post. He says he's carrying a stiff teaching load, has two books at the printers and is writing two more. "I may not have as many ideas popping out today, but the ones I have are good." He says he's not slowed down and still works "all day long."

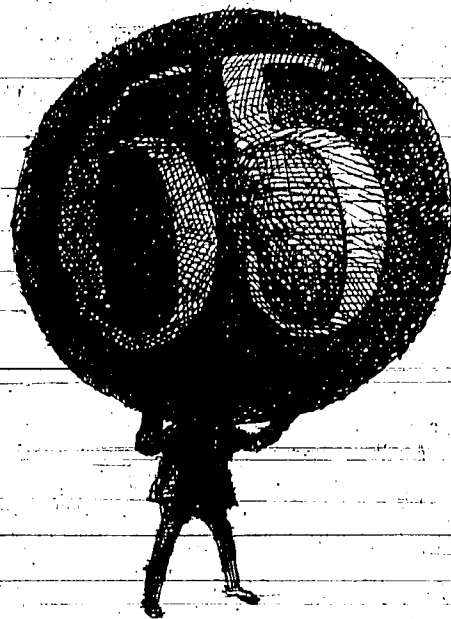

To be sure, Weiss could handle the Schweitzer chair or any other. So too could many people retiring today work on into their 70s with no loss of production or strain. In fact, numerous studies have disproved the image of older workers as falling asleep at their desks, or even ready for a coronary when the boss is pushing something. To the contrary; experts say older people, being less prone to distraction, are often better workers than the young, and certainly more experienced.

Yet a change in the retirement laws does not appear an immediate possibility. American business has operated too long under the out-at-65 principle. The older fellows, for one thing, earn larger salaries than their younger replacements.

But critics of the status quo are not giving up. "Weiss has started something that can't stop," says a lawyer familiar with his case. "There'll be another test, and another, and a thousand more. You just can't kick the old people around anymore."

Waterloo Of Faith Healers

By LESTER KINSOLVING

Diabetes is once more proving to be the Waterloo of the faith healers.

In August there were deaths in both Canada and California due to faith-inspired throwing away of insulin.

In Toronto, potential faith-healer Mark Cowan told a coroner's jury that he had hoped to use his 20-year-old wife as an exhibit of a "miracle cure" and went on to dispose of her insulin.

In Barstow, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Parker were jailed on charges of manslaughter after they withdrew insulin from their 11 year old son, Wesley.

The Parkers then joined some 200 other people in staging a ghoul's delight in the local funeral home. They attracted national attention by refusing to allow the boy to be buried for six days because, they assured everyone, his resurrection was imminent. (The boy was finally buried and the parents are currently held in lieu of $10,000 bail.)

The Parkers claim that they were told by a visiting evangelist at the Barstow Assembly of God, that their boy had been healed of his diabetes. But the Rev. William Robertson, the denomination's Southern California District Superintendent told this column that (A) Parker, months earlier, had become involved in a furious argument regarding the denomination's failure to share his belief in demon possession, and (B) the visiting preacher, had not preached on faith healing, had never told the Parkers that their boy was healed, and had only prayed for healing.

"We believe in divine healing that does not endorse or condone throwing away of life-saving medications merely because the individual is presumed healed," commented the Rev. Mr. Robertson.

It is, of course, easy for the emotional people who jam faith healers' services to misunderstand the sermon. This kind of misunderstanding may well have been the reason why, on July 5, 1959, diabetic Wanda Beach, 37, threw away her insulin and died after telephoning her mother to explain that she had been "completely cured" by a traveling faith healer named Oral Roberts.

Roberts, now a very big time TV producer, (having deserted the Pentecostal Holiness Church for the Methodists) was not available for comment at Oral Roberts University or, according to staffers there, anywhere else. None of the staffers at this glittering campus (the pride of Tulsa) knew anything about Wanda Beach.

There is no question, however, about misunderstanding of the late faith healer A. A. Allen, who wrote: "The gift of healing needs no help from doctors, for it is all-powerful to remove a cancer or a tumor." (The Rev. Mr. Allen died in 1970, in a San Francisco hotel room, of what Coroner Henry Turkel diagnosed as "acute alcoholism.") teacher Cora Louise Sutherland died of tuberculosis after having exposed thousands of school children to the disease because she had refused, as a Christian Scientist, to take an X-ray.

Then in March of 1954, Van Nuys, California, school

Instead, reported Time magazine, she resorted to a Christian Science practitioner who charged her $45 per month to "treat" her with prayer and readings from Mary Baker Eddy.

It remains a mystery why this lethal perversion of the freedom of religion is tolerated in the same nation where one must spend years of study to obtain a physicians license, and is forever thereafter threatened with malpractice suits.

To contend that freedom of religion is at stake is to suggest that it would be permissible for religious fanatics to revive the worship of Molech (II Kings 23:10) and its insistence on burning children to death as an act of human sacrifice.

Such a horrible fate was, of course, not the intent of the Parkers of Barstow. But like Cora Louise Sutherland, young Wesley is no less dead as the victim of what should be recognized and prosecuted as miracle malpractice.

The great refresher!

Screen Gems Productions Are Praised

One of the finest television production firms is Screen Gems. A careful, cautious company with a classy track record, they have made fewer costly errors than any other firm in the business. But last year they made one... and almost two. "The Paul Lynde Show" was a bomb, and the smell of "Temperature's Rising" was only slightly less acrid.

This year, Screen Gems' important new entry is "The Girl With Something Extra," and it was determined at the company's first 1973 board meeting that all stops were to be pulled out for this one. That is why you have seen those two young stars, Sally Field and John Davidson, scooping up piles of publicity by hosting or talking on talk-shows, baffling on "Baffle," squaring-off on "Hollywood Squares," and even posing nude (John, not Sally) for a national magazine.

Let's take a look at "The Girl With Something Extra" in 3D Difference, Depth and Durability.

Difference: Only after their wedding ceremony does Sally Burton reveal to husband John that she is a girl with something extra: a talent for reading minds, and especially her husband's. This shocking, permanent invasion of his most personal privacy strikes John no more than he can live with, but Sally finally convinces him that their love can overcome the problems of an extra-sensory marriage.

John and Sally have all the usual adjustment difficulties of young marrieds plus quite a few entanglements that the average couple never imagined, for Sally's ESP power is far less a tool than a burden. And yet, in spite of all the trouble it causes, this special sensitivity is often a catalyst for warm humorous moments shared by this loving young couple.

2. Depth: When Screen Gems first "suggested" this role to Sally Field, the response she made was unprintable — and not surprisingly. Any young lady with Sally's talent — and, man, she's got it — does not take kindly to the idea of following a flighty Gidget character and a flighty nun character with a flight of fancy about psychic phenomena. But Sally took the role, and she has somehow managed to bring to it a deep sense of believability. And that is the key to this entire series.

John Davidson, in spite of that apple-pie image, is very good in that rough husband's part, and the other two permanent cast members are excellent players: Zohra Lampert and Jack Sheldon.

As always with Screen Gems, direction and production are superb — especially some brilliant touches of direction. There is, of course, the important question of scripts: Can they find enough crisp ones which make effective use of the ESP device? So far, the answer would appear to be yes.

3. Durability: A lot of people began dismissing this series before it ever reached the air, the theory being that we are in the midst of an era of "reality comedy" while the days of witches and Jeannies and flying nuns are part of TV's gimmicky past. It sounds logical, but it ignores a well-proven fact of TV life: There is always room for at least one good exception to every rule —

BARBS

The best thing about the late-late show is that it's so bad it encourages you to tune out and go to bed.

These days, the only gangsters in the movies are the ones who set the ticket prices.

About all we can afford in the way of new luggage is a set of three matching shopping bags from the same department store.

The way they shout at you, some auto salesmen on used car commercials offer mostly hoarse power.

especially if it follows "Sanford and Son."

So, although the series may have some tough times, if Screen Gems can keep those scripts as bright and happy as the first ones while keeping those two young stars jumping through the publicity hoops, we think it will make the grade — mainly because this show really does have "The Girl With Something Extra." She is Sally Field, the girl with an extra abundance of sensitive talent.

Howard K. Smith's Commentary Discusses Case

Familiar Role

BRENDA BENET, wife of star Bill Bixby, plays his romantic interest in "Illusion in Terror," on NBC-TV's "The Magician" Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, in color.

Commenting on what he termed "the Administration's quarrels" surrounding Watergate and the kick-back allegations against Vice President Agnew, ABC News commentator Howard K. Smith said, "A charitable metaphor to describe all this would be an isometric exercise in which the right and left hands of the same body wrestle in debilitating battle. An uncharitable metaphor would be cannibalism."

The full text of Smith's commentary, broadcast on the "ABC Evening News with Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner" and on the American Information Radio Network, follows:

"Whoever is guilty or innocent of what, the Administration's quarrels get more unseemly day by day.

"Since the Senate hearings ran out of steam, as today is evidence they have, Mr. Nixon in his biggest crisis has no constitutional adversary. His own prosecutor he put in office is demanding his own tapes, which demand his own lawyers are fighting to resist. Was ever an Administration so such disarray?

"Now, Mr. Agnew's troubles fall into the same pattern. Looks damaging him came apparently from within the Administration of which he is titular deputy chief. Today the court gave him the right to demand adversary depositions from his own Administration's lawyers to try to find-out and punish his own officials who leaked.

"A charitable metaphor to describe all this would be an isometric exercise in which the right and left hands of the same body wrestle in debilitating battle. An uncharitable metaphor would be cannibalism."

"It is an odd climax of things for a President who more than most believes in a commanding presidency. In act, with his own officers theoretically under his command in mortal war with one another, the impression nobody is in charge is unavoidable.

"If the Executive Branch were off-on the sidelines tearing at its own throat, it would be merely ridiculous. But since it is the motor we count on to govern us, it is a tragedy the people outside the closed contest should not be made to suffer."

The Next President—A Democrat?

By TOM LITTLEWOOD
(c) Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — The chairman of the Senate finance committee is not alone in his feeling that unless the Democratic party tears itself apart again the next President will be a Democrat.

High prices, fuel shortages, government controls, legal bickering and the confusing uncertainty about what in tarhation the national leaders are doing to one another plague the Republican President and his party.

Even Nixon's international detente is threatened.

Stroll down the aisle of a food store these days and you're likely to hear a housewife grumbling about a variation on the red peril theme, the widespread impression that grain generously sold to the Russians had a lot to do with the high price of food.

The President promised the Russians that he would obtain favorable trade conditions for them. But Congress won't budge until the Soviet Union drops its restrictions on Jewish emigration, a highly sensitive issue that involves the internal affairs of that nation and the political demands of an important group of American voters.

After the House Ways and Means Committee finished work on the trade bill, the President, whose political career once soared in the wings of his anti-communist fervor, had this to say: "I am deeply concerned about the bill's failure to provide the tools we need to expand healthy commercial relationships with the Soviet Union and other Communist countries."

In this as in so many other recent issues, Nixon appeared to have been trapped on the under-side.

A year ago it was different. He skillfully managed to be on the up side of critical issues, while the opposition party was hopelessly divided.

A new study of the last election documents shows the difference on issues were more extreme between Democrats themselves than between Democrats and Republicans generally.

For several elections now the ticket-splitting trend has been evident in American politics. But Arthur H. Miller and his colleagues at the University of Michigan's center for political studies cite the following figures that dramatically illustrate the "policy polarization" of the Democratic party in 1972:

Almost half of those who identified themselves as Democrats, or 42 per cent, voted against Sen. George S. McGovern (D-S. D.) and for Nixon. Only 11 per cent also voted for the Republican candidate for the House of Representatives compared to the larger percentage of Republicans (18 per cent) who voted for Nixon and for the Democratic Congressional candidate.

A national cross section of voters was interviewed at length before the election and the same people were contacted again after the election.

In this way the Michigan analysts were able to measure the "cultural orientation" of the sample voters. They found that the enormous gap between those who wanted social change and those who wanted social control contributed in different ways to the growing distrust of parties and politicians.

Almost 9 out of 10 of the Democrats who voted for the President registered a "pro-establishment" orientation, whereas every second Democrat who supported McGovern expressed, "anti-establishment" views on cultural and social issues.

McGovern and the anti-establishmentarians were on the minority side of decisive issues, according to the Michigan data: the conditions for withdrawing from the Vietnam War; economic assistance for blacks; campus unrest; legalization of marijuana; busing; protecting the rights of criminal defendants.

One out of five McGovern voters was black. Without being what the Michigan scholars considered a "social elite," his White supporters were younger, better-off financially, better educated, and less southern than the electorate as a whole.

Miller went on to consider inconclusively whether the election represented a step toward the realignment of conservative and liberal parties. Although there was some shift in party loyalties, with some older, less well educated voters adopting the GOP. The social bases of the two parties remain much the same. After all the speculation about the defection of Jewish voters, the Michigan study found that the Jewish vote for McGovern was 3 per cent more than normal for a Democrat.

However, because McGovern was perceived as the least personally appealing Democratic Presidential candidate in 20 years, issue differences assumed greater importance.

Young people were turned off by both parties and both candidates—a process of disillusionment that is probably continuing in the wake of the Watergate horrors.

McGovern's strategists failed to discern how the considerable alienation on the right would depress the turnout without helping him, the study showed him. The distrust of politicians was not limited to youthful liberals.

Robert M. Teeter, who supervised 1.8 million of commercial polling for the Nixon campaign in 1972, believes the Michigan study overlooked an increasingly important part of voter decisionmaking: the trust factor. Many voters have "trouble sorting out the confusing issues and select the candidate who can be trusted to handle their affairs.

Some Democrats think the party is a cinch to take over the White House if the social-change advocates who are a national minority will only restrain themselves and "do business in a somewhat more conventional manner."

It is possible though that the revolting reaction engendered by Watergate could soon mean that more than a small core of McGovernites has given up on conventional party politics.

Life Blew Hot, Cold For Mike Riley

Suspense Drama Set For ABC

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — About every five years or so, over the past 40 years, I've wondered whatever happened to Mike Riley. Obviously, it hasn't been a big wonder but one of those small, niggling curiosities.

Mike Riley was the Dixieland trombonist who zoomed to sudden, transitory fame in the early '30s when he wrote a song called "The Music Goes Down and Around." It was the biggest hit of the time and became almost a theme song for an entire decade.

I ran into Mike Riley recently. He's 62, a pixie-like man who still has a trace of Brooklyn in his speech — and he still plays the trombone for a living.

He still bills himself as Mike (The Music Goes Down And Around) Riley, still basks in the slightly-frayed glory of that one big hit. He played, in past summer, at Magic Mountain, an amusement park near here. He and his Dixieland group pounded out the old hit for a new generation.

"The kids never heard of me," he says, "but they loved my song and my sound and screamed for more."

He got himself booked, not long ago, at a rock concert at the Palladium. It was a night to remember. In between the bearded, beaded rock groups, out came Riley and his old-timers.

"I could smell the marijuana coming up from the crowd," Mike says. "But they loved me and my music."

He was playing on 52nd

Street in New York, then the jazz capital of the world, when he wrote the song. He had played with some of the big bands and many of the small ones before then. Then the song came out and he was a sensation.

"There were lines around the block waiting to get in to see me," he says, with a faraway look in his eyes.

It was the start of everything — and the end, too.

He rode the success of "The Music Goes Down and Around" as far as it would take him. He played everywhere. For a long time, he was in Chicago, and was pals with Al Capone's brother, Ralph, who used to cook the band spaghetti dinners after their night's work was over.

He made a lot of money and he lost it. Over the years, he got himself six nightclubs. He lost them all.

"For a long while," he says, "I boozed it up pretty good. Then the doctors told me I had diabetes and I'd have to stop drinking. The news was both good and bad — I didn't like to be told I was sick but it forced me to quit drinking."

Despite it all, he seems to be a happy man. He's been to the top, so he had that. Many people never get there at all. It would have been nice to have stayed on top but at least he had a sample.

A star-studded cast is featured in "The President's Plane is Missing," a suspenseful drama about the sudden disappearance of the President of the United States at a critical point in world history, airing as a special two-hour presentation on the ABC Television Network Tuesday, Oct. 23.

Starring in the made-for-television movie based on Robert Serling's best-selling novel are Buddy Ebsen, Peter Graves, Arthur Kennedy, Raymond Massey, Mercedes McCambridge, Rip Torn and Joseph Campanella. Co-starring are Louise Sorel, James Wainwright and Dabney Coleman.

In "The President's Plane is Missing," President Jeremy Haines (the late Tod Andres) is the object of severe criticism when he and his staff leave in Air Force One for a Palm Springs vacation at a time of impending war with Red China.

Panic grips the nation when the plane crashes in the Arizona desert and no one survives. When it is learned the President is not among the victims, Mark Jones (Graves), a crack wire service reporter out of Washington, D. C., begins his own private investigation. He's convinced the President is still alive — somewhere.

MIKE RILEY played his '30s hit, "The Music Goes Down and Around" for the rock 'n' roll kids never heard of me but they loved my song and my sound and screamed for more.

Is History Repeating In Wilmington?

WILMINGTON, N. C. — The years following the Civil War were difficult ones for many white people in this town. The dream was defeated, the slaves were freed and such was the political upheaval that black men, some carpetbaggers, gained control of the city.

By 1898, the strain was too much; 600 armed whites struck back, burning a black newspaper, riding the mayor out of town and killing 10 of the enemy color. Some observers at the time termed the uprising the "White Rebellion."

Today, a quarter of a century later, some Wilmington whites are at it again. Last summer the city experienced six bombings, black people say the word "nigger" is creeping back into the vocabulary, housing discrimination is being practiced in open defiance. It may not be history repeating itself, but, says one man on the street, "It don't seem like we ever learn much."

The beginning of the present trouble is not, precisely measurable. No doubt the underlying hatreds predate any resident currently living. Yet the old prejudices have been severely accelerated, in some cases, by all that has happened to black people since the early 1860s. Says a newsman here: "Some whites just can't accept black progress. A nigger on the police force? Hell, man, that ain't the way daddy would've wanted it. So the rednecks boil a little more each passing year."

In recent years the rednecks have "boiled" over. Black demonstrators rioted in 1970, last year court-ordered school busing was put into effect, and to top it all, this past summer, Angela Davis came to town. Ms. Davis, perhaps, is the personification of all the things the far-right conservatives here are against. She's black, a Communist, has been tried for conspiracy in white murders, and is outspoken. "That bitch," says one white, "was like slapping us in the face."

Thus the long summer of tension here. Bombings occurred in a black newspaper office, in a desegregated school, in a Jewish synagogue, in a Jewish-owned business, and in two apartment houses. Graftig began to appear in the toilets of the local high schools advising blacks to "stay home." Somebody burned a cross on the lawn of a local TV station.

"It ain't really been so jittery right here in the town," says a black resident. "But I got relatives in the country and for the first time in a long time I been nervous going to see them. Out there at night, if your car breaks down, I don't know."

White officials in this town naturally play down the situation. "Mostly," says a city councilman, "it's an embarrassment."

But the white rednecks gleefully say the trouble is only the beginning. "Not that we've had anything to do with the violence," says right-wing leader Letroy Gibson, "but we're getting it together more and more. If the niggers keep marchin', and the Zionist Jews keep pullin' the strings, and if they keep on busin' our children, things are gonna get hotter and hotter."

Gibson, an out-of-towner, is founder and director of a North Carolina Group called Rights of White People (ROWP). He gave up his leadership last year to run for governor, then resumed it on being soundly defeated in the Republican primary. Recently he and several other ROWP members were arrested for conspiracy in the summer bombings, but Gibson is free on $70,000 bond. He says he never bombed anyone, yet he doesn't condemn the bombings at all.

It's fight time the patriots of this state started doing something to protect themselves. You know that Stalin once had a plan for turning the seven Southern states into a new black Africa? You know that, don't you? Well, I say people are still workin' on that plan. The niggers are movin' in and takin' over. We got 'em in our schools, in our churches, Hell, you can't walk down the street no more without elbowin' them."

As for the Jews, says Gibson, "They are pullin' all the nigger strings. The Zionist Jews is behind most of the trouble in the world today, not just here but all over."

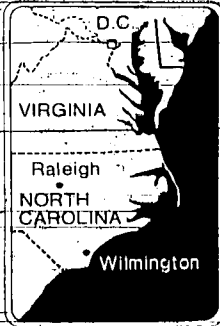

They took over Palestine first, now they want to take over the world. Look at our own government. We got a Jew as secretary of state. Well, thank God for the Arabs, they're finally getting together on it. And so are we in North Carolina — we're getting together to fight what's happenin'.

Apparently, the racists in the state are indeed combining. The Ku Klux Klan is making its first noise in years. Several other white supremacist groups have also given support for the rebellion in Wilmington. Even the American Nazi Party has shown up, for one demonstration alongside the KKK, waving the swastika and asking people for "your name, your address and your money."

Yet the alliance, say locals, is a weak one and there is doubt it can do much more than pick at age old scabs. Recently, on a weekend, Gibson called for a demonstration outside the county jail where one ROWP member is still in jail on a bombing charge. Less than 50 people showed up. The man in jail, actually told police he was embarrassed by it all. Especially the Nazis — "they give a bad name to the real patriot."

The thinking here, then, is that the new white rebellion will be as unsuccessful as the jail demonstration. "This isn't 1898, it's 1973," says Bob Dorn of the city's Human Relations Commission, "I think most whites today abhor this kind of thing."

No doubt most whites do. But as one black says, "I've started looking over my shoulder again, 'cause it only takes one white to do me in."

Farm Trip Turns Food Squawks To Sour Grapes

By JOANNE AND LEW KOCH

Death, mental illness, alcoholism, divorce — until a few years ago such subjects were taboo for 10-year-olds.

When I was a pre-adolescent, if you had read all the books in the black-stallion-and-rusty-a-cocker-spaniel genre, you went on to the wholesome pre-teen novels — "Betsy, Tracey and Tib," Nancy Drew mysteries, along with such non-fiction-classics as "The Stork Didn't Bring You."

I enjoyed these books at the time, as one would enjoy a fairy tale. Yet even in a good fairy tale, the gruesome facts of life — the loss of loved ones and of innocence, man's cruelty to his fellows — were at least embodied in trolls and witches and evil stepmothers.

But in the pre-teen literature we always found the family sitting around the old upright singing Stephen Foster tunes. Problems for Betsy, Tracey and Tib came in small packages with easy solutions emerging before anything like suffering was experienced.

If your folks were divorced or unhappily married, if your father was an alcoholic, if a parent or family member had been killed, disabled or handicapped, there were few books you could turn to for comfort.

I haven't read pre-teen literature since those days, so when I picked up a copy of "Uncle Mike's Boy" by Jerome Brooks (just published by Harper & Row) and noted on the flyleaf "for ten years and up," I expected the boy in the title to come from a happy family that sang around the old upright every Sunday night.

I was literally shocked to find that the boy, nicknamed Pudge because of his chubbiness, was the son of an alcoholic father and a neurotic mother who had recently gotten a divorce. Early in the book Pudge loses his sister and only ally. Did Betsy ever lose more than an address book or a favorite hair ribbon?

With the help of his Uncle Mike Brooks' young anti-hero learns to reap a limited but significant moral victory from the grim facts of his life.

Ten-year-olds need wholesome books in which happy families amble or dance through life without a pratfall. Some kids may have families and life like that. At least it's nice to think that such families exist.

But if nearly half of this country's marriages end in divorce, if one out of nine Americans suffers from alcoholism and one in 10 is afflicted with some form of mental illness, or depression, then there sure are lots of 10-year-olds out there who need a book like Uncle Mike's Boy.

How else can they understand at this awkward age — when approval is so important — that they are not America's freaks but rather its typical pre-adolescents?

New Nielsen Proposals Are Welcome

ABC Television, which has taken the position that improvements in "people numbers" are currently the major priority for the industry, today welcomed the new proposals by the A. C. Nielsen Company to improve its National Audience Composition service. The proposals call for a 50 per cent increase in sample size and an additional four-week report in April.

In response to these proposals, ABC has reviewed its position on subscribing to the overnight Nielsen BIA household rating service, and will now participate fully in that service and an overnight 70 market SLA service for program evaluation purposes. Seymour Amien, Vice President and Director of Program and Primary Research, ABC Television, made the following statement today: "ABC welcome the proposal offered to the industry by the A. C. Nielsen Co. of a 50 per cent sample increase in the Nielsen National Audience Composition service and the addition of an April report as a significant step forward towards the goals of more reliable, stable and complete 'people numbers'."

Country Music Awards Time Comes Again

A multitude of the best pluckers, strummers and lyricists of the country music industry are getting ready for a hot time in the old town of Nashville, Tenn.

It's Country Music Association Awards Time, and on Monday evening Oct. 15 the annual ceremonies will be broadcast on the CBS Television Network, live from Nashville's Grand Ole Opry House, with Johnny Cash, one of the nation's top "countrymen," as host.

The awards will be presented in 11 categories of achievement. Nominations and winners in all categories will be determined by the vote of the entire CMA membership, with all tallies and winners' names held in sealed envelopes until the ceremonies.

The eligibility period in all categories extends annually from Aug. 1 through the following July 31. There is a limit of one nomination per category which a member may make on the first ballot. Only nominees receiving at least five nominations may be listed on the second ballot.

Waiting in the wings for this year's presentation are such great country names as Cash, Eddy Arnold, Merle Haggard, Loretta Lynn and Charley Pride, all former recipients of the prestigious Entertainer of the Year Award. As a special highlight on the program, those greats will get together and twang the hits that made them all winners.

The awards, established in 1967, are not necessarily presented to the most popular or best-selling songs and acts in the country music business. Since only the individual CMA members are permitted to vote, the results reflect the evaluation of what the members consider the best of the year. Nominations in any category do not have to be songs or records of CMA members, nor do performers nominated have to be members.

The 15-year-old CMA has a membership of about 3,200 and, as part of its efforts to promote country music around the world, it conducts surveys of radio and television stations, keeps a running list of country and western disc jockeys and maintains a Hall of Fame which opened six years ago on Nashville's Music Row.

By BUCK BIGGERS & CHET STOVER

We interrupt for this important message — a game of question and answer from the Mail Box. Bet you can't get ten right! Just answer yes or no.

1. Frank Sinatra finally found retirement too dull, yet isn't buddy Dean Martin now talking retirement?

2. With her tremendous success in "All In the Family," has Jean Stapleton and her family changed — you know, gone "Hollywood"?

3. Did some actor really challenge another to an "acting duel"?

4. Are all those sarcastic remarks more than just part of Sonny and Cher scripts?

5. With "The Partridge Family" sliding down the drain, is Jack Cassidy still smiles these days?

6. Is it true Raymond Burr's friends are unable to prepare most of his gourmet recipes?

7. Has Buddy Hackett refused to star in a series?

8. Why would John Davidson, "The Girl With Something Extra," agree to pose nude for Cosmo? Isn't he a married man?

9. I just can't understand people like Brenda Vaccaro and Michael Douglas going on and on living together. Don't they even plan to marry?

10. Why do we keep hearing so much about Carol Burnett's announcer Lyle Waggoner. Is he so talented?

11. The guy with Dinah Shore when she received that Golf Association Achievement in Life Award — was it Burt Reynolds?

12. Isn't MASH's Wayne Rogers the same curly-headed casanova who has been seen lately chasing the ladies with Peter I'alk?

13. I heard Rosalind Russell will "do anything" to get the lead in a certain mini-series. True?

14. So Eva Gabor is married again. Can't she even take seriously something as sacred as marriage?

15. Redd Foxx talks about improving the black man's image; but isn't it true that he hurts that image with the black caricature he plays on "Sanford and Son"?

Okay, let's check you Box Score.
1. YES. I'm not Frank " says Dean Martin. "I enjoy doing nothing, no work, no pressures, no schedules."
2. NO. Jean Stapleton says, "I don't think my family will ever go 'Hollywood.' We all know how fragile a commodity fame is."
3. YES. John Berardino, fiery star of "General Hospital," is sick of the treatment serial stars get. He challenged any prime-time performer to a ten thousand dollar acting duel. So far, no takers.

4. NO. Cher's digs at Sonny are all written by scribes, but this device is being retired. New comedy material will still be broad, but will be grounded in a more sophisticated togetherness theme.

5. YES. Jack Cassidy is happy, but not because he wants failure for his son or wife. He is simply honest enough to admit that his life — especially his marriage — may be entering a very healthy, happy period.

6. YES. Friends have trouble with Raymond Burr's recipes because most of them start with fresh coconut milk.

7. NO. Buddy Hackett looks set for a series in 1974-75. It will be based on the old MGM feature "Pat and Mike." ABC is the network.

8. YES. John Davidson is married, but he agreed to do the nude Cosmo bit to help rating for his series "The Girl With Something Extra."

9. YES. Says Brenda Vaccaro, "If Mike and I decide to have a child, then we'll get married. I wouldn't want to have a kid out of wedlock."

10. NO. Lyle Waggoner happens to be a very pleasant, well-liked guy whose friends have carried him far beyond his talents.

11. YES. Burt Reynolds accompanied Dinah Shore to the Manhattan banquet where she accepted that Achievement Award.

12. NO. Wayne Rogers is a close friend of Peter Falk's, but he is no womanizer. That's bunk. He spends every possible moment at home with wife Mitzi and kids Laura and Billie.

13. YES. Thunderbolts fly from Roz Russell's eyes when she talks about playing Eleanor Roosevelt in the mini-series "Eleanor and Franklin." She really wants that part. But so does a certain redhead.

14. YES. Eva Gabor does take marriage seriously. She needs to love and be loved. It is unfortunate that she has been unable to find a man with a temperament to permanently match her own. Maybe this time.

15. NO. Both as "Sanford and as himself, Redd Foxx has done more than an army of so-called "do-gooders" to help not just the cause of the black man but the cause of all men of all colors throughout the world. When we stop smiling, friends, we are dead.

"Go Ask Alice" Film Slated On October 24

"Go Ask Alice," the award-winning film that was critically hailed as "the finest anti-drug drama ever presented by TV," again presents the true story of a high school girl who is lured into the vicious web of drug addiction in a repeat presentation on the ABC Television Network's "Wednesday Movie of the Week" Oct. 24.

William Shatner, Ruth Roman, Wendell Burton, Julio Adams and special guest star Andy Griffith head the cast; Jamie Smith Jackson made her movie debut in the title role. Ann Ryman, Mimi Saffian and Jennifer Edwards are featured in this story of a girl whose family and friends try to help her fight her way out of the pit of pills and back into the real world.

The film, which was recently honored with the first "Special Jury Award" at the San Francisco International Film Festival, inspired more than a thousand telephone calls and letters from schools, churches and civic groups requesting permission to screen the movie for drug abuse workshops (screening prints are now available). A typical viewer letter (from Seattle) said, "Until tonight, I felt my son was unapproachable on the subject of drugs. After the movie we talked for two hours."

The television press also responded enthusiastically. Pete Rahn (St. Louis Globe Democrat) said, "Go Ask Alice" if the finest anti-drug drama ever presented by TV. Again, encourage those youngsters to watch. Anthony LaCamera (Boston Herald-American) called it "one of the most powerful, most revealing and most heart-rending dramatic films of this or any other TV season." Mary Wood (Cincinnati-Post Times-Star) said, "If it served as a warning to even one young person; it was a great public service." Kay Gardella (New York Daily News), noted, "Occasionally a television film comes along that — like something so agonizingly true — is in the context of today's increasingly complicated world that a critic feels compelled to recommend it."

In the story, taken from an anonymous diary, the move to a new city and school puts great pressure on Alice, a sensitive high school girl. Hoping to be popular, she tries but fails to make friendships with her school's best-liked students. When one of them, Chris, Jennifer Edwards, finally invites her to a party, Alice jumps at the chance.

Carolyn Raskin Gets Plenty Out Of Life

Carolyn Raskin has a philosophy by which she tries to work. "Everyone needs approval and understanding." Anyone burdened with a rule of this nature in Hollywood usually winds up on a psychiatrist's couch. For Miss Raskin it has led to a most successful career as a producer.

The newest confrontation between her philosophy and the over-developed egos of show business came with her dual role as producer and co-director of George Schlatter Productions' "The Shape of Things," to be presented Friday, Oct. 19 on the CBS Television Network.

The unique satirical revue is by and about women. They are calling the shots from behind the cameras, and definitely dominate the stage in front of them. Among the distaffers in the cast are co-director Lee Grant, Phyllis Diller, Valerie Harper, Lynn Redgrave, Joan Rivers and Brenda Vaccaro. Quite a group to handle, and Miss Raskin doesn't seem to have the equipment.

"I can't fight," she says. "I don't have the temperament or the vocabulary for it. I can't even scream. I tried that once, and it was a disaster — no one took me seriously. Instead, I like to be fair and keep things running smoothly."

These methods must work. With her track record, she has to be doing something right.

During the last five years she has produced 14 series and specials. She won an Emmy for "Laugh-In" and was nominated for another for a Frank Sinatra special. The Los Angeles Times has cited her as one of its Women of the Year.

George Schlatter, executive producer of "The Shape of Things," says that she is the brightest woman in Hollywood. "She has a fantastic mind, coupled with a keen sense of humor," he points out. "People adore her. She has the faculty of keeping everyone around her happy and bringing harmony to everything she does."

For Miss Raskin, it's the people she works with who keep her functioning in top form. "Everyone in show business, from performers on to crafts people, are very aware," she says. "They know what's going on in the world. Everything is 'today' with them and I find this atmosphere very energizing."

Her philosophy also has a second line, she points out: "It's my belief that, over-all, we eventually get out of life what we've put into it."

Carolyn Raskin gets an awful lot out of life.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

—Pike's Peak, 14,110 feet high, is often believed to be Colorado's highest mountain. The World Almanac notes, however, that there are 32 mountains in Colorado higher than Pike's Peak. There are 25 other mountains higher than 14,000 feet, making a total of 58 peaks towering over the 14,000-foot mark in the nation's highest state.

Well Known Guests To Join Paar

Alistair Cooke, former Georgia governor Lester Maddox, Luciano Pavarotti, Pat Buchanan, Robert Morley, Charlton Heston, Barbara McNair and Malcolm Muggeridge are the guests of Jack Paar on the ABC television network's "ABC Wide World of Entertainment" the week of Oct. 16-19 (11:30 p.m.-1 a.m., PDT).

On Tuesday, Oct. 16, the "Jack Paar Tonight" show opens the week with a visit from Alistair Cooke, creator of the widely-acclaimed television series, "America." The British writer-commentator is also known to American audiences as the host of "Masterpiece Theatre" and "Ornibus." In a recent New York Times magazine article, Cooke wrote about the golf addict. He is one of that breed, having just completed a round-the-world golf safari.

Also, on that night will be Lester Maddox, who will play the harmonica and sing, in addition to offering his comments on the political scene, and British comic Dickie Henderson.

On Wednesday, Oct. 17, Luciano Pavarotti, one of the greatest operatic tenors of our time, makes his national television debut on the Paar show. Pavarotti, hailed by some as the new Caruso, appears on Oct. 13 and 19 in "O'Elisir d'Amore" at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Pat Buchanan, the 34-year-old speech writer and special consultant to President Nixon, who testified last week before the Senate Watergate committee, will also guest on the Paar show on Oct. 17.

British actor and longtime Paar friend Robert Morley makes a return visit on Thursday, Oct. 18. Joining him are Charlton Heston and singer Barbara McNair, star of the revival production of "Pajama Game," which opens soon in New York.

Green Thumb

BY GEORGE ABRAHAM
H O M E G R O W N
SOYBEANS: President Nixon recently stated that he wouldn't know a soybean if he saw one. Of the 40-million gardeners in America, chances are only a handful of them are familiar with soybeans, their culture and uses.

Why is it that home gardeners haven't been growing soybeans? Some of them have started taking up soybean culture in the backyard.

One of our followers writes: "I grow soybeans in my garden. From one packet of seed I got five pounds of dry beans. One can use them in the green-shell stages, as well. Soybeans contain 37 per cent protein, amino acids, calcium, B vitamins, a small amount of sugar and no starch. They are the best substitute for meat any one can eat!"

Here's my recipe to cook soybeans. Soak in an ice tray for 2 hours or longer, in 2 cups water, 1 1/4 cups washed, dry soybeans. Freeze overnight, remove from refrigerator and drop mass of water and beans into 1 cup of hot water, cover the kettle and simmer 2 1/2 hours.

"Do NOT boil at any time.

Add more water, if needed. Don't add any seasoning until almost tender. Then add seasoning to your own taste, similar to navy beans. It takes 4 to 5 hours to cook. If not soaked and frozen first.

"Use cooked beans in chili con carne, loaf and patties. For soy nuts use cooked beans, brown in 1/4 cup vegetable oil, add salt. Cooked beans put through a meat grinder are used in loaf and patties, seasoned the same as meat.

"Soy grits can be added to cookies, cereals, etc. I had an ample harvest from my garden this year so my freezer is bulging at the seams. I feel like a smart squirrel storing up food for a long winter.

"By the way, I grew pole lima beans on the line fence and my neighbor's dogs bothered the vines. I discouraged them by making a small cheese cloth bag of chewing tobacco fastened with wire twist-ems. Bags were tied to the fence 18 inches apart and the dogs didn't bother once. Renewed the tobacco once. Dogs don't like the smell."

Good tip on soybeans. Next year we're going to raise them in our garden.

G A R B A G E C A N
COMPOSTING: A year ago, a report stated that the average homopwner discarded nearly 3/4 of a ton of food annually. With the high cost of food now, chances are we're wasting 1988.

At any rate, instead of scraps of food winding up in a garbage pail, a better idea is to put them into a garbage can for COMPOSTING. This is the advice of the environmental Education Committee of Rochester, N. Y.

This organization believes that garbage can composting is an answer for people in urban or suburban areas who wish to compost-kitchen wastes, but have little room or who cannot cover properly to discourage insects or animals.

Here are the simple steps to garbage can composting:

1. Take a galvanized garbage can with a lid which fits well, and punch several small holes in bottom.
2. Add three inches of good garden soil to the can.
3. Add 500 red earthworms (called red hybrid or red wigglers). Many firms will supply you with red wigglers.
4. Can may be sunk into the ground (to the level of the lid), allowing the earthworms to work all winter long below frost level. It can also be kept in a cellar, with something beneath to catch any liquid draining out. This liquid is odorless, and can be used on house plants for the nutrients in it.

5. Toss kitchen scraps into the can, to feed the wigglers.

6. Cover each addition with soil or shredded leaves. Order is usually lacking, but coffee grounds are a natural deodorant and should be included anyhow, as worms thrive on them. If any odor should develop, shredded newspaper will take care of it almost immediately.

According to the Environmental Education Committee one can may serve a family of four, if the children are small. Some families start one can in the fall, then add another if this one fills up before spring when they dump the compost on the garden and start over again. Incidentally, the angle worms can be saved when compost is removed.

Many people leave the metal can in their backyards and do their composting in it. Composed material adds a humus to the soil, tightening up a loose, sandy soil and loosening up a heavy clay soil.

HOME MADE CIDER VINEGAR: A reader asks for a recipe for making apple cider that won't change into vinegar. He has heard of using corn cobs or pieces of wood from a sycamore tree for making cider or vinegar.

Can any one step forward and help us on this one? Please tell us how you make (1) apple cider that won't change to vinegar, and (2) how you make good home made cider vinegar.

CYCLAMEN CARE: Your cyclamen should be on its way toward blooming again. If sprouts are up, scrape off an inch or so of soil and add new soil without disturbing the bulb or roots. Many people flower their cyclamen over year after year without changing the soil.

Give your cyclamen a uniform supply of water and keep it in a sunny window. One of the troubles in fall and winter is "blasting" of buds — failure of buds to open. This is due to dry air, dry soil, or cyclamen cool.

Grow in a cool window, give plenty of moisture, and if mites are a problem wipe off foliage with a damp cloth. Yellowing of leaves is usually due to a lack of light or too high a room temperature. Keep plant 70 degrees in daytime and 50 to 60 degrees at night for longer mileage.

NBC And The Talent Search

PANDORA'S BOX: NBC has a talent search going. "Our goal," says Dave Tabet, talent VP, "is to give virtually unknown but experienced talent a forum to be seen and heard." If any of you gals are interested, the place is NBC's Burbank Studios, and the person to contact is Al Treseony, NBC's West Coast talent director.

BOX SEATS: If by some strange stroke of fate, you have never seen one of the Planet-Ape movies, be sure to watch the one on CBS October 26. First of all, this is a particularly good one, "Beneath The Planet of the Apes," with an exceptional performance by one of our favorite actors, James Franciscus. But aside from this, everyone should see at least one of these films if only to enjoy the technical marvel of the makeup. It is an extraordinary accomplishment, the proof being that we have found no one who, after watching one of the films for awhile, did not fall completely under the spell, forgetting the makeup entirely.

MATCH BOX: Sebastian Cabot and Shirley Jones. These stars were in different series which have something in common. What is it? Answer: Both were in "Family Affair" — Cabot in "The Partridge Family." (Thanks to Joe Mahoney, Sandwich, Mass.)

numbers rolled up by these "Dan August" reruns have all three networks hungry for a Burt Reynolds series. But the ratings have done something more than that — perhaps something much more important. You see, it is unreasonable to credit all the success of the "August" reruns to the new popularity of Burt Reynolds, however sensational this popularity may be. The continued high ratings, even against new shows in primetime have made it clear that the Quinn Martin produced series was quite good, itself — good stories, well-acted, clearly and professionally produced. Why, then, did it fail? The answer: plain simple luck. It began at the wrong time and perhaps had the wrong competition. The question it raised is simply this: How many other "Dan Augusts" have been stillborn? Are the CBS and NBC and ABC film vaults full of unheralded treasures which died because of premature birth? The question will not go unanswered. At this very moment, friends, the network film rooms are being carefully inspected by several bright young executives with dust rags and movieclaws.

IDLE CHATTER BOX: Unless your eyes are exceptionally strong, better read these shocking personal items through smoked glass — Deidre Lenihan, star of "Needles and Pins," writes ghost stories for her friends!

(To keep them on pins and needles) — Mike Connors, "Mannix" hero, finally let his hair grow! (Hoping his ratings would do the same) — Terry Anne Meeuwssen, Miss America of 1973, says her appearance with Johnny Carson on "Tonight" was the highlight of her reign! (When it reigns, it bores) — Doc Severinsen, music director of

ABC Programs Cited For High Awards

American Broadcasting Company programs have won awards from the San Francisco International Film Festival and the Columbus (Ohio) Film Festival.

For the second year in a row, an ABC entry has been honored by the jury of the 17th annual San Francisco International Film Festival, Television Film Competition. This prestigious festival runs from Oct. 17 through Oct. 28.

"Santiago's Ark," an ABC After-school Specials' presentation first broadcast on the ABC Television Network Dec. 6, 1972, has received the Golden Gate Award as the best Entertainment Series segment in 1972. The ABC "Movie of the Week," "Brian's Song," won the Golden Gate Award in this same category.

"Go Ask Alice," an ABC "Movie of the Week," entered in the Entertainment Special category, has been singularly honored with a "Special Jury Award." This distinction is not a regular festival award but is given to a production which, by unanimous vote of the jury, is considered so outstanding as to deserve special recognition. "Go Ask Alice" was presented on the ABC Television Network Jan. 8, 1973, and will be rebroadcast Oct. 24.

The Film Council of Greater Columbus has announced that ABC's production of "The Man without a Country" has been chosen to receive the Chris Statuette — the highest award in the Art and Culture category of the 21st annual Columbus Film Festival. The dramatization of this American classic was telecast April 24, 1973.

Four other ABC productions will be cited in addition to "The Man without a Country," "Assault on Privacy," a documentary broadcast on Jan. 4, 1973, and "Children in Peril," telecast March 27, 1972, have been selected by the Education — Social Studies Committee of the festival for Chris Bronze Plaque Awards. Both documentaries were presented in the ABC News "Inquiry Series."

"Tonight," has 50 quarter horses! (He'd have dollar ones if Carson would pay more.)

JURY BOX: You may recall that after Marlon Brando's boring ABC appearance, he and Dick Cavett went out for a night on the town, met freelance photographer Ronald Gallella in Chinatown where, allegedly, Brando punched the photographer in the nose. After the incident, Dick Cavett refused any but the briefest comment on the matter, and we told you this might well be because Cavett feared Gallella would sue. Well, he did. Gallella has sued Brando for $250,000, charging that the actor broke his jaw without cause. And Cavett remains unusually quiet for a talk-show host.
