Mideast peace feelers?

By United Press International
Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir announced today without giving details, that Israeli troops are operating west of the Suez canal behind the massive Egyptian force poised across the waterway. President Anwar Sadat threatened to retaliate with missiles if Israel strikes the Egyptian heartland.
In speeches within hours of each other, the Egyptian and Israeli leaders laid down their first conditions for an end to the fighting in the Middle East war which began with the surprise Egyptian and Syrian attacks on Oct. 6.

Sadat told the Egyptian Parliament in Cairo in an "open letter" to President Nixon that there could be an immediate cease-fire and reopening of the Suez canal if Israel would withdraw from the Arab territory it occupied during the six-day war in 1967.
Mrs. Meir said Israel has received no cease-fire proposal but would not accept an end to the fighting unless it provides for a complete exchange of prisoners.

"Egypt and Syria have not been hit hard enough to want a cease-fire," she told a special meeting of the Israeli Knesset (Parliament) in Jerusalem.
The rival speeches came amid ground, air and sea action on both the northern front between Israel and Syria and the southern front between Israel and Egypt.
Russia was supplying the Arab states and a

U.S. airlift was bringing urgent replacement arms for Israel, which has lost large numbers of tanks and up to a quarter of her first line aircraft in the 11 days of fighting.
The situation already threatened the detente between the superpowers. Ironically, the fighting went on as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger shared the Nobel Peace Prize with Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam for their negotiations in arranging a cease-fire half a world away.

TF votes today

TWIN FALLS — Polls will be open until 8 p.m. today for Twin Falls School District patrons to vote on a proposed $3.5 million building program.
To pass, the bond proposal needs a two-thirds approval vote. It is the district's first bond issue since 1962.
The tax cost of the building program is estimated at $10.40 annually for every $10,000 of property owned.

Emphasizing elementary-level needs, the building program includes:
— Construction of a new 24-classroom elementary school just north of the high school at a cost of $1.65 million.
— Additions of a four-classroom and library complex to Morningside Elementary and Harrison Elementary schools at a cost of $300,000 each.

— Addition of a four-classroom and library complex and a physical education teaching station (a gym without showers and lockers) to Robert Stuart Junior High School at a cost of $450,000.
— Demolition of the 1908-portion of Lincoln School and construction of a 12-classroom replacement structure at a cost of $650,000.
— And site acquisition for a future junior high school at an estimated cost of $150,000.

Construction of a total of 2 extra classrooms for the school system would greatly alleviate space problems, Twin Falls District Supt. George Staudaher said. In Harrison and Morningside Elementary Schools as many as 38 students are crowded into classrooms in the upper grades and as many as 35 students per classroom on the junior high level.

Prize winners

OSLO (UPI) — Henry Kissinger and North Vietnamese negotiator Le Duc Tho today won the 1973 Nobel peace prize.
Kissinger, the new United States secretary of state, and Tho negotiated the Vietnam cease-fire in a series of meetings in Paris last year. Neither was mentioned as a nominee during deliberations of the Nobel peace committee.

Moratorium bid ignored

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Ignoring pleas for a building moratorium on the Snake River Canyon rim, Twin Falls County commissioners Monday approved a controversial 35-acre subdivision there.
The action was taken while the new county zoning ordinance remained in limbo without final action by the commissioners.
The commissioners earlier had indicated they would refer the proposed zoning ordinance back to their zoning commission advisers to include zoning regulations which would have prevented subdivisions such as the one approved Monday.
Acting unanimously, the commissioners approved plans for the "Meander Point" subdivision immediately east of the intersection of Rock Creek and Snake River canyons.
According to Commissioner Merl Leonard, the plat approval was contingent upon property owner Harold Frazier resolving access to the property to the satisfaction of the Twin Falls Highway District.
However, highway district engineer Keith Anderson said the district had already committed itself to building one of two accesses to the property.

"I really believe if they have approved this thing that all he needs is a building permit to start building," Anderson said. Leonard said "This application was made several months ago. What my feelings are doesn't make any difference... legally, he has met the requirements."
County zoning administrator Ed Woods said the zoning commission approved the Frazier subdivision on April 12. Under the existing county zoning ordinance, Woods added, subdivisions are permitted anywhere in agricultural zones, which is the designation of Frazier's property, as long as they are approved by the zoning board and the county commissioners.
Frazier Monday declined to discuss his plans until he had met with his engineers today. He did say the access problem "has been solved."
According to Anderson, the highway district has been committed for "some time" to improve the road to Frazier's property, if Frazier can get a 50-foot right-of-way along the existing road.

$4.6 million for hospital

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Memorial Hospital trustees Monday approved preliminary plans for a $4.6 million hospital addition in preparation for a bond election.
They agreed to submit the building plans to hospital department heads for comment prior to taking final board action. After that, the county commissioners would have to authorize a bond election.
Hospital administrator James Rosenbaum recommended an election be planned for mid-February. Earlier, hospital officials had considered holding the election in November, a date Rosenbaum said would be premature.
"Everyone in the community should know what we're doing and what we need" before such an election is called, Rosenbaum said Monday.
He said the February election date would give architects time to draw bid proposals and still give contractors time to bid before hopefully beginning work on the expansion next June.
"I would not want to see it (the election) go past the second Tuesday in February," Rosenbaum said.
Architect Charles E. Hall of CTA Architects told the board the estimated $4.6 million cost of the proposed new wing for the hospital would be broken down into $4.1 million for construction and equipment costs with the remaining $500,000 to pay for architect fees and other related preparation costs.
Hall said the hospital expansion would add 50,000 square feet of floor space to the existing 105,000 square foot area, providing the hospital with about 35 new beds and a badly-needed expansion of the outpatient department.
Hall said the Twin Falls area has been given top priority by state health officials for the construction of outpatient services. Earlier designs which called for the construction of a separate boiler room and laundry building, Hall said, have been abandoned as too expensive because of the cost of excavation. He said the present boiler room and laundry would be enlarged.
Hall estimated that the hospital expansion would take two to two-and-a-half years to complete because of the need to keep the hospital open while construction was underway.

Murphy makes bid for GOP standard

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Writer
BOISE — Lt. Gov. Jack M. Murphy declared his candidacy today for the Republican nomination for governor in 1974.
Speaking at a news conference in Boise, Murphy said his 20 years of experience of service in Idaho qualified him to seek the state's highest office.
"It should be emphasized in the beginning," he said, "that the campaign we start today is a primary one. If Idaho's Republicans select me as their nominee, we will then look at the questions of a general election contest with the nominee of the Democratic party."
Following his announcement in Boise, Murphy boarded a plane for a flight to Twin Falls where he had scheduled another news conference. He is the first announced gubernatorial candidate of either party.
Murphy made it clear in answering questions he would concentrate his primary efforts against other Republicans rather than incumbent Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

4 Arabs seek Nixon meet

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Four Arab diplomats sought an urgent meeting with President Nixon today in a bid to keep the United States out of the Middle East conflict, diplomatic sources said.

Oil appeared to be their bargaining chip. The sources said the U.N. ambassadors of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Algeria and Morocco decided to seek a meeting with Nixon soon after the United States announced it began resupplying Israel with military equipment.

The diplomats said the four would leave their U.N. posts early today for the capital Washington, although there was no indication that Nixon would receive them.

Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and a lesser extent Algeria have enormous reserves of oil and are among the largest suppliers of petroleum to the Western world.

Speculation has increased recently that the oil-rich Arab countries would try to force a change in U.S. policy by raising the possibility of a total or partial embargo of oil shipments to the West.

While the sources said the ambassadors would try to convince Nixon to stay out of the conflict, they did not say whether the diplomatic campaign would be directed against armament shipments to Israel or to prevent direct military intervention by the United States.

The U.N. Security Council has tried and failed four times to find a settlement to the latest fighting in the Middle East. So far, no concrete proposals to stop the war have even been discussed.

The General Assembly Monday elected Iraq, one of the Arab participants in the Middle East war, to membership on the Security Council for a two-year term.

Israel immediately protested the move.

Mobile home park annexation eyed

TWIN FALLS — Ordinances annexing and permitting a mobile home park on Eastland Drive property owned by Arlie White were put on first reading at the City Council meeting Monday.

White plans to put about 60 mobile-home units on his 10-acre tract between the new K mart development and television station KMVT.

One of the ordinances would give White's property a residential-medium-zone designation. The other would allow a mobile home park as a conditional use in the RM zone.

Twin Falls Police Chief Frank Barnett objected to the White project in earlier council meetings. He said the mobile home park would add to traffic congestion on Eastland Drive and conflict with low-density housing in the area.

The council also heard the first reading of an ordinance vacating public right-of-way near Morrison Drive.

Requested by developer Frank Cook, the vacation would aid Cook in splitting up lots on his six-acre tract overlooking Rock Creek.

Cook agreed to grant the city a 15-foot utility easement to replace the current street easement on the east end of Morrison Drive.

The council, after putting annexation of Harbor House property on third and final reading, postponed a vote after learning that the property would be given a residential-professional zoning designation.

The Harbor House property, located at the end of Fillmore

Street, is surrounded by low-density zoning.

In other action Monday, the council:

- Approved an agreement with Riddle, Roth, Evans and Evans, a Twin Falls accounting firm, for auditing of city books until June of 1974.
- Appointed Ken Aamodt and Carl Murray to the Youth Advisory Commission. They will replace outgoing commission members Stephanie Parker and Bob Williams.
- Approved an agreement providing annexation of the K mart property and 420,000 from K mart for future connection to the main sewer line between Twin Falls and Kimberly.
- Heard the first reading of an ordinance revising city electrical inspection and registration fees.

Good for business

BERKELEY, England (UPI) — The quick brown fox gave the Berkeley hunt hounds the brush off and the hunters a hangover when he led the pack to the Plum of Feathers pub then vanished into an unused drainage.

"The fox nips into the drain and the hounds can't get it, so the members of the hunt come in to drown their sorrows," said landlord Phil Hodgkinson. "It has happened to the hunt twice this season. I haven't trained the fox, but it's very good for business."

County okays rim subdivision

The existing road to Frazier's proposed subdivision runs to the north off Pole Line Road, two miles west of Washington Street. The road is paved a mile north of Pole Line Road. From that point it turns west for a quarter mile and then goes north another three-quarters of a mile to Frazier's property. The road is unpaved gravel from the point it turns west.

Anderson, the highway district, will put through a road along the section line for three-quarters of a mile and then turn west for a quarter of a mile, achieving the same result as the present road.

The highway district is reluctant to build along the section line, even though it already owns the access, Anderson said, because to do so would cut present farm fields in awkward segments. However, until the right of way along the present road is firmly in hand and incontestable, the department is refusing to go through abandonment proceedings on the section line right-of-way, Anderson said.

He said there are two small segments of public land, one to the east and one to the northwest of Frazier's property, for which access must be assured. To give up the section line access without absolute surety of access along the present road would jeopardize access to the public lands, Anderson said.

Anderson questioned Frazier's statement that access problems have been solved.

"I don't have any factual information on this," he said. "I feel quite certain that it (access along the existing road) has not (been cleared) or we would

College has no word on human rights commission

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho has received no communication from the Human Rights Commission on the Terrill-Castaneda vs. CSI case, CSI President James L. Taylor told the college trustees Monday night.

Nearly two months ago the HRC found reasonable cause CSI discriminated against Mrs. Castaneda on the basis of sex. A reconciliation proposal was to be drawn up by the HRC within a week of the Aug. 18 hearing and sent to the college.

No one at the HRC office in Boise was available this morning to explain the reason for the long delay.

Following the hearing, Mrs. Castaneda told the Times-News that HRC Attorney Director Fred Grinnard her early last week the reconciliation agreement proposal would be sent to the college in time for the Monday night board meeting.

On Aug. 21 CSI trustees expressed unwillingness to cooperate further with the HRC on the Castaneda vs. CSI case. Board members said at that meeting that HRC activity had been both inept and unjust.

Dr. Taylor also announced the college has not received the federal Health, Education and Welfare audit on CSI's administration of the work-study program. HEW audit officials had planned to turn the preliminary audit in to CSI the first of this month for comment. Upon close questioning last week Taylor said the college had received parts of the audit, but not the full report.

Taylor also mentioned the State Board of Education meeting on the CSI campus last week. He said in one board session the "role and mission" of CSI was discussed at length and that "probably the most meaningful thing" was that the state board went "on record that they would like to leave this institution with its local governs."

Under the continuing education program the college may offer third and fourth year courses soon, Taylor said. Such courses would be recognized for credit at sister institutions around the state.

Polls open til 8 p.m. today in TF school vote

The new classrooms would mean that classes would have 26 students on the average. Also, the new classroom would give the district enough room space to begin a kindergarten program if the funds are available, Staudaher said.

New classrooms at Robert Stuart Junior High School will help alleviate crowding at O'Leary where classes are often composed of 35 students and where practically no playing field exists.

Approximately 120 O'Leary students will be transferred to Robert Stuart if the classrooms are built.

The proposed gym "teaching station" would help to accommodate the new students and would lessen the extremely crowded gym conditions at the school now, Robert Stuart Principal Jack Watts said.

During the basketball season the gym is used from 7 a.m. until 11 p.m. At times, four classes totalling around 120 students are in the gym at once.

Acquisition of a new junior high school site will be in preparation to replace O'Leary, Staudaher said. The replacement will be necessary because the school is in an "old, antiquated building" and because of the lack of playing field for the students.

The 1968-portion of Lincoln School, which is to be replaced, is known as a firetrap among school and fire department officials. Open stairways and old heating flues in the building would "act like a chimney" rapidly spreading flames should fire break out, Twin Falls Fire Marshal Fred Higgins said.

CTA architect Ed Peterson said the new addition would probably be one story high. Heating and cooling problems and inadequate classroom space make the building "educationally unsound," according to Lincoln Principal Keith Turner.

The new elementary school will replace Washington School, located at North Five Points since 1916.

Because planned street widening at the two points will eliminate at least four out of 20 classrooms, Staudaher believes the school will soon become "economically unfeasible" to operate.

"The traffic hazard is now the most urgent problem at Washington for Principal Bill Stover. He remembers two children being hurt in traffic in recent years.

A number of years ago a girl was killed by a truck at the busy intersection.

Costs for the proposed projects have been estimated by determining present costs and raising them 12 per cent, according to Peterson. He said inflation has been 10 to 12 per cent per year during the past few years and he expects this trend to continue.

Twin Falls man flees officers

TWIN FALLS — Richard Ray Bradley, 24, Twin Falls, was still at large early today after he fled the Twin Falls County sheriff's office while being booked on charges of assault with intent to commit rape.

Sheriff Paul Corder said Bradley was arrested by city police and brought to the sheriff's office for booking and custody. City officers had left, Corder said, and the man watched for an opportunity and then fled out the side door of the office and courthouse.

Corder said he has been attempting to eliminate the problem as other prisoners have used the same method of escape on previous occasions. The booking area is at the desk facing the rear door which takes only a "second or so" for the prisoner to make good his escape.

The escape occurred at 5:45 p.m. Monday. Bond for Bradley had been set at $25,000.

Sheriff Corder said officers from the city and county were unable to find a trace of the prisoner Monday night. A search continued Tuesday.

Bike-a-thon funds not yet collected

TWIN FALLS — The winners of the American Cancer Society Bike-a-Thon in Twin Falls Saturday and Sunday won't be known for two weeks.

According to Mrs. Richard Barber, chairman of the project, it will take that long for participants to collect donations from their sponsors.

Mrs. Barber said Monday there were 53 bikers in the ride down to Shoshone Falls and back up the canyon Saturday, an additional five members from the Seventh Day Adventist Church made the trip Sunday, she said.

This was the first Cancer Society bike-a-thon in Twin Falls, Mrs. Barber said. She said she thought the event was successful, although she did not know how much money has been raised.

"Even though we didn't have too much participation, I think we're going to come out real good," she said.

She said three bikers alone brought in around $300 in donations, including a donation of $100 from Dr. George Miller on behalf of two of his sons who rode in the event.

Mrs. Barber said sponsored riders would not average anywhere near $100 each, but she forecast the event a success.

"We had an awful lot of help," she said. She commended the CSI Circle K Club, Twin Falls High School Key Club, local law enforcement agencies and the National Guard for their help. She also thanked the Amateur Radio Club of Magic Valley for monitoring the bike-a-thon.

"Everybody made it down to Shoshone Falls and everybody made it back up," Mrs. Barber said. "There were no flat tires, no spills, no accidents, and we finished an hour ahead of schedule."

Thank God It's Friday

WASHINGTON — A spy in the lower echelons of the Agriculture Department reports that a clerk has been reprimanded and threatened with discharge if he continues to greet the end of the workweek with the utterance — on government time — "Thank God It's Friday!"

The man's superior readily confirmed the report. "I am a public servant," he said. "A three-judge panel has ruled that the Nativity scene which has long been a part of Washington's annual Pageant of Peace during the Christmas season is excessive entanglement by the government in religious matters because the Federal government helps to fund the pageant.

"Therefore, I have banned the use by members of my staff of any reference to a Divine Being during office hours, even if employed as a cuss word, such as 'Goddam.' The salaries of these people are paid out of the Federal treasury. They have no right to involve their government in excessive entanglement in religious matters."

It figures. The man is only leaping to the intent as well as the letter of the judicial panel's ruling. His subordinates are still free to mention God in the privacy of their homes or in their favorite saloon or brothel. They may even go to church on Sunday. But the man is saying in effect that the Supreme Court's position on the constitutional reference to the separation of church and state must be upheld by every officer of the Federal government.

At the same time, this latest development puts to shame other criminal government practices. Lawbreakers in the Treasury Department are still coining money which carries the motto: "In God We Trust." In courtrooms across the land, witnesses are made to swear they will tell only the truth, "so help me God." For many years now, the pledge of allegiance has included the phrase "one nation under God."

We need some consistency around here. As Gertrude Stein might have put it, religion is religion. If we're going to ban the Nativity scene, we've got to ban such symbols of pagan religions as the yule log and the Christmas tree, Mistletoe was not invented by Romeo and Juliet, but by the ancient Druids, who forced their flocks to worship a variety of rather untidy deities. Gift-giving, blast the habit, is a throwback to the pagan unconstitutional Christmas Saturnalia of ancient Rome.

Indeed, the whole Pageant of Peace package should be ruled unconstitutional because it is staged to celebrate the Christmas season on property owned by the White House behind the Federal government. How about those scofflaws, the Nixon family? How do they get away with setting up a Christmas tree in the publicly owned White House and singing Christmas carols?

Christmas parties in government offices should have been banned long ago because they break up so many happy homes. Now the Nativity scene case has given our rulers a golden opportunity to save millions of marriages.

Why should a partially subsidized U. S. Postal Service be forced to deliver cards and packages? Abolish pay taxes, too. If the Constitution says what the Supreme Court says it does, no employe of the Federal government anywhere should be paid for goofing off on Christmas Day.

Let's remove tongue from cheek. We have become a nation of fools, turning our backs on our traditions in the name of legalism. Flooded with hundreds of thousands of criminal cases they can't handle, our courts take refuge in delays, continuances and the outright release of murderers and rapists. Yet a three-judge panel can spend hundreds of man-hours compiling a 51-page decision on a case involving a Child in a manger. The important, they postpone; the trivial they do now.

Vengeance

Arab price, frustration and wishful thinking rather than a realistic assessment of probable consequence, have once again set off major military conflict with Israel, the fourth since the small nation thrust itself into existence in 1948.

It is difficult to believe that Egypt and Syria, with limited assistance from Palestinian guerrillas and reportedly some Moroccan troops, actually entertained hopes of crushing Israel and slaying at long last the Gordian knot of the Middle East by their two-front invasion launched on the Jewish holiest of holy days, Yom Kippur.

Even if their objective was to retake chunks of former Arab territory occupied by Israel since the 1967 Six-Day War, either to strengthen their bargaining hand against Israel or to improve their military position in anticipation of yet a fifth Middle East war inside a generation, simple realism dictates that such a result would be as unacceptable to Israel as outright defeat itself.

It was precisely because of Arab refusal to bargain, to recognize Israel as a permanent entity and because of constant harassment and threats from Egypt's Gaza Strip and the Golan Heights bordering Syria that Israel launched its 1967 blitzkrieg and has tenaciously held onto its territorial gains since then.

How could any Arab strategist, knowing anything at all about the Israeli character, expect Israel to commit less than its full military power to retaining that which has given her her only real security in 25 years?

This leaves as a third alternative the objective of simple revenge, of harming Israel as much as possible, of action, even if ultimately useless, rather than more months and years of inaction, of using all those beautiful weapons that have been accumulating since 1967.

The price of this kind of glory comes extremely high.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba, who has the reputation of being the most independent-minded leader in the Arab world, told a reporter on the first day of fighting that "the outcome will not be favorable to the Arabs."

If this kind of realism even begins to permeate the minds of Egyptian and Syrian leaders, we might begin to speak of peaceful solutions to the perpetual Middle East crisis.

Israel is driving home once again the lesson that she will not yield to force of arms.

Will the Arabs finally begin to learn that lesson? Or like the Palestinians, frustrated in direct conflict with Israel, will they take another tack — like using oil to pressure Israel's supporters in the West?

Meanwhile, the United Nations was proving once again that it is much less than the sum of its parts.

So politically paralyzed is the U. N. that the Security Council, designed to preserve the peace of the world, could not even issue a simple call for a cease-fire.

Reform And That Jewish Vote

WASHINGTON — Democratic politicians are grumbling that Baltimore city councilwoman Barbara Mikulski has not only sold out to the extreme reformers as chairman of the party's Delegate Selection Commission but has compounded that error by needlessly offending Jewish voters.

Miss Mikulski scheduled working sessions of her commission's 17-member drafting committee over two weekends to coincide with the two most important Jewish religious holidays, Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

When this was pointed out to Miss Mikulski, she responded that no member of the drafting committee or the commission staff is Jewish, so it did not make any difference. But it did make a difference to Democratic national chairman

Robert Strauss, who is Jewish and was personally offended by Mikulski's attitude.

Moreover, many non-Jewish Democratic politicians felt that both the unintentional exclusion of Jews from the reformer-dominated drafting committee handicapped by Miss Mikulski and her scheduling of the meetings showed insensitivity to a harsh political reality: the 1972 convention delegate quotas, now being reconsidered by the Mikulski commission, contributed to massive Jewish defections from Sen. George McGovern.

So George Barrett, a labor lawyer from Nashville, Tenn., made one last effort in the drafting committee Sept. 30. Could the committee at least recess between Friday sundown Oct. 5 and Saturday sundown Oct. 6, the 24 hours of Yom Kippur? Miss Mikulski objected on grounds the agenda could not be changed.

Two months earlier, she had been asked by Lawrence Peirce, chairman of the national civil rights committee of the Anti-Defamation League, not to schedule meetings that would "conflict with days of holy obligation, high holidays or the Sabbath."

That Aug. 8 letter from Peirce also complained that commission hearings were not conducted in three states with heavy Jewish population: New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. "This commission has frustrated its charge by skipping over these areas in which the majority of Jewish voters live," he wrote. "This is the antithesis of affirmative action (to insure minority representation)."

Key advisers to Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, including some of the state's powerful Democratic politicians, are privately pushing him to run against one of the Senate's most important doves: Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Bumpers, 48, still popular after three years as governor, would be strongly favored to defeat Fulbright, first elected to the Senate in 1944, in the 1974 Democratic primary. But Bumpers hoping for a place on the national ticket in 1976 and backed by several Democratic governors as a presidential darkhorse, will think twice about alienating the politically potent peace bloc by opposing Fulbright.

Bumpers' advisers acknowledge that risk but feel it is outweighed by the fact that defeating Fulbright would make Bumpers a national figure and give him a long-term political base.

That Old Man Winter

Looking East we can see that Mt. Independence and Mt. Harrison are fairly well covered with snow.

This means that Old Man Winter is not too far away. We have lived in snow country all but three years of our lives and, frankly, we really do not like it. This will turn us off with a lot of people (including members of our own family) who like to get out into that white stuff and do their thing.

Well, we can see the great benefit snow does for providing water for the farmers and for drinking... but other than that they can just forget the whole concept of winter.

Having spoken, we now look forward to the first day of spring, which will be here on March 21, 1974.

MY GOODNESS

We understand or have been informed that a group of local citizens are trying to form an organization which would make it possible for county prisoners to be housed at one of the plush hotels north of our fair city, instead of in that county jail complex at the county court house.

They reason that, with all the complaints of how badly the prisoners are being treated, there just has to be some incentive to get people to go to jail or we will end up with a jail and no customers. But with first class accommodations promised like at the motels the incentive should be there!

We must guarantee prisoners their constitutional rights: It would be terrible if people would get the idea that a jail was a horrible place to be put into.

SURE CURE

"News that the laser beam is being used to remove warts sends the mind back to Huckleberry Finn.

Huck and his friend Tom Sawyer knew what to do about warts. Soak them in stomp water in the dark of the moon (or was it at midnight?) and say the correct incantations. It was a sure cure, as millions of readers remember.

There are those who formerly believed the way to remove a wart was to tie a string tightly around it. Some then removed the string, buried it, and when it rotted, presto! the wart rotted off, too.

Some believed a wart was best removed by tying a horseshoe tightly around the growth. There were other more delicate cures.

Laser, of course, is short for Light Amplification by the Stimulated Emission of Radiation. It is science's most promising new wonder tool, used for everything from communicating with other planets to performing delicate surgery. To the average citizen, it too seems like a form of black magic.

But it does seem a little strange to find laser replacing stomp water or rotting twine as a cure for warts.

that somewhere along the line although warned well in advance scores and scores of people forget to get their orders in for their greetings. Result, they run to the stores a couple of days before Christmas and grab what they can find. We know you are not one of these — so be sure you get the cards you want, get them early and then just sit back and hope only the people on your list are those sending you their greetings!

The Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have several skin "tags" on my neck and under my arm, about a quarter-inch long. What causes them and how can I get rid of them? They are a nuisance to say the least. Are they warts?

Mrs. C. L.

From your description, probably not warts, but rather overgrowths of the outer skin layers called papillomata. Harmless, but you can make a mess of things if you try to remove them yourself. Wiser to have your doctor remove any conspicuous or annoying ones. The cause of them is not known.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 28 and have had tonsils and adenoids. I have a fear of being put to sleep. Are there any doctors or surgeons who could take them out under local anesthetic? — M. A.

Yes, this can be done with local anesthesia.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung disease, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of this newspaper, requesting a copy of the booklet, "How to Control Emphysema," enclosing a long, self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My son is being treated for fluid in the ear following a bout with hay fever. The doctor prescribed a decongestant and nose drops, but after several months there

Defense Priority

If the renewed Middle East conflagration has proved nothing else, it has proved the folly of letting down United States defenses. What shape is the U.S. in, militarily, if it were involved in war?

That is the question which underlies the entire reason for defense. The world in which we find ourselves is far from a perfect, peaceful community of nations. That may be the dream of millions, but it is not yet reality.

Perhaps it never can become peaceful unless the free nations continue to maintain defenses adequate to discourage would-be aggressors from launching military adventures. If that is the price of peace, it will be cheap in terms of lives and nations saved.

A number of attempts are being made in this session of Congress to slice large chunks out of the $81.1 billion 1974 defense budget. Some senators have proposed cutting as much as $14 billion, others are opting for a $4.5 to $5 billion reduction.

This despite the fact that $4.7 billion increase in the new budget is accounted for almost entirely by pay raises ($4.1 billion), and the defense outlay now consumes 13 per cent less of the federal budget than it did a decade ago.

Eliminating unnecessary spending wherever it can be found ought to be an ongoing concern in Congress, but a legitimately strong defense must retain a high priority. The world scene rules out anything less.

Agnew fades from US political scene

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spiro T. Agnew has said goodnight to the Americans who belovied in him.

He faded from the American political scene in a sad televised speech to the nation Monday night in which he protested his innocence of criminal wrongdoing, said he was driven from the nation's second highest office by the testimony of frightened men trying to save themselves and admitted nothing except the possibility he had violated the "new public Watergate morality."

The former vice president gave no accounting in his 22-minute address for cash contributions he has acknowledged receiving from Maryland contractors in 1967 and acknowledged spending for political purposes.

Nor did he address the specifics of the U.S. government's charges in U.S. district court last Wednesday that he had received cash payments totaling at least $47,500 from those contractors, beginning while he was governor of Maryland and continuing long after he became vice president.

He confined himself, instead, to an attack on the news media for publishing leaked stories about the government's case against him, an assault on prebargaining and an expression of continued loyalty to President Nixon.

The speech was without precedent in American political history. It was delivered—emotionally and calmly—just five days after Agnew stood before a federal judge in Baltimore, pleaded no contest to a 1967 tax evasion charge, resigned the office he held for five years and accepted a judge's verdict of three years' probation and a $10,000 fine.

"While I am fully aware that the plea of nolo contendere was the equivalent of a plea of guilty for the purpose of that negotiated proceeding in Baltimore, it does not represent a confession of any guilt whatever for any other purpose," he said.

He said he had decided not to fight the government's charges because "the American people deserve to have a vice president who commands their unimpaired confidence and implicit trust. For more than two months now, you have not had such a vice president."

"If I had remained in office and fought to vindicate myself through the courts and the Congress, it would have meant subjecting the country to a further agonizing period of months without an unclouded successor for the presidency," he said.

Agnew said his claim days before his resignation that he would not resign even if indicted was a "fragmented verbal assertion."

The government—in its court-presentation filed in Baltimore last Wednesday, said Agnew as governor of Maryland received cash from contractors doing business with the state which was divided three ways—50 per cent for himself and 25 per cent for each of two aides. The government statement said Agnew continued receiving these payments regularly through 1972, some of them slipped to him in envelopes in Agnew's office next door to the White House.

But Agnew said the government's case has been publicized and broadcast as indisputable fact, "even though it rested, on the word of 'bribe-brokers, extortionists, conspirators.'"

Agnew, himself, in his statement filed with the court, said:

"I admit that I did receive payments during the year 1967 which were not expended for political purposes and that, therefore, these payments were income taxable to me in that year—and that I so know. Further, I acknowledge that contracts were awarded by state agencies in 1967 and other years to those who made such payments and that I was aware of such awards."

But in his speech Monday night Agnew denied "the insinuation that I pocketed large sums of money ..."

He said he had never "enriched myself in betrayal of my public trust" and claimed a net worth "less than $200,000, (which) is modest for a person of my age and position."

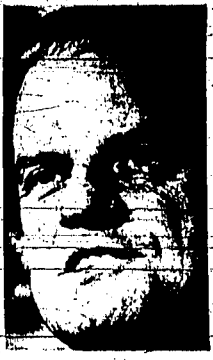

Agnew called for a reexamination of the law enforcement tool — long used by prosecutors — to grant immunity to one defendant for his testimony against another. He said it was "an open invitation to perjury."

But Agnew said President Nixon, who did not watch the speech, was not responsible for his misfortunes. He said Nixon "has done his best to accommodate human decency without sacrificing legal rectitude."

"The reports from unidentified sources that our meetings were unfriendly and even vitriolic are completely false," Agnew said.

"The former vice president, at the opening of his speech, said he did 'not want to spend these last moments with you in a paroxysm of bitterness ..."

At the close he expressed hope for the future of the United States and said: "Thank you, good night and farewell."

BILLY GRAHAM talks to press Graham asks for support

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — The Rev. Billy Graham said Monday that President Nixon will make better administrative appointments as a result of scandals implicating that some political leaders who preached morality were "hypocritical."

"We have been living in a period of moral permissiveness," the evangelist said. "Some people who have been preaching against it have been hypocritical apparently." Graham did not mention former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew by name.

Graham, who has officiated at two religious services at the White House during the Nixon administration, said Nixon "will be a better President in the appointments he makes."

However, Graham told a news conference, the issue of government corruption must be placed in perspective: "Out of all the people working in government, only a handful have been involved in this whole sordid business," he said.

IRS ponders Agnew tax collection

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) indicated today it may attempt to collect taxes from Spiro T. Agnew all the way back to the days when he was Baltimore County executive.

The taxes and penalties could total more than $100,000.

While refusing to comment specifically about Agnew, a spokesman for the IRS said it was common for a criminal charge of tax evasion involving a relatively small figure to be followed by civil proceedings for a much larger amount.

The spokesman said the IRS is under no statute of limitations in filing civil suits to collect back taxes.

In resigning the vice presidency last Wednesday, Agnew pleaded nolo contendere (no contest) to one count of income tax evasion for 1967. The count alleged that Agnew and his wife stated their taxable income for that year as $26,099 while actually it was $55,599.

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson told the court the government would not pursue further criminal charges against Agnew.

But in a 40-page "exposition of the evidence" against Agnew, the Justice Department said the former vice president collected:

— Approximately $50,000 in cash between 1966 and 1972 from Allen Green, president of Green Associates, Inc., a Maryland engineering company; "to influence him to select the Green company for as many state road contracts as possible."

— At least $37,500 from Lester Matz, president of two Maryland engineering companies, between 1968 and 1971.

— "Substantial cash payments" from seven engineering firms, presumably including the Green and Matz companies, and one financial institution during the time Agnew was governor and vice president. The exact amount was not given.

Agnew's 'Said it all, gentlemen'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew strode briskly from the television studios in suburban Washington after his speech Monday night and told a cluster of waiting newsmen: "I've said it all, gentlemen."

As the newsmen fell silent, he got into a bronze-colored Lincoln Continental, one of the few remaining trappings of his once high station, and drove quickly off into the night.

Still under protective security of the Secret Service, Agnew had arrived at the National Broadcasting Co. studios 45 minutes before air time and strode briskly through a group of newsmen with a tight smile on his face.

Two aides and three security agents were with him. His wife and children watched the 22-minute address on television at home, two miles away.

Agnew went directly into a first floor studio, sat down before a blue drape at a desk with two microphones and checked the arrangements.

He rejected a prompter, saying he couldn't see it and feared he might lose his place.

He bantered with photographers, obeying their instructions to "shuffle the papers."

Then everybody was out but four technicians.

Dressed impeccably in a gray suit, he appeared drawn but determined. Closed circuit television cameras focusing on his hands as a technician called out: "30 seconds to you, Mr. Agnew" showed not a tremor.

Unfairly judged?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Gerald R. Ford says the subject of news leaks against Spiro T. Agnew have not been "adequately discussed" and that Agnew was unfairly judged.

Ford told newsmen before

Survey shows disbelief about Agnew's speech

By United Press International

Unemployed Greg Icard of Buffalo, N.Y., summed up public reaction as gathered in a UPI survey to Spiro T. Agnew's speech Monday night. "I didn't believe a word," Icard said. "If he wasn't guilty, why did he resign?"

UPI reporters across the nation asked persons at random what they thought of Agnew's speech, in which he denied accepting kickbacks and said he resigned for the good of the nation and his family.

The overwhelming reactions were disbelief and sarcasm. A few, however, said they still backed Agnew.

"I've never seen him so humble and I doubted that he had it in him," said Tom Butler, 44, an insurance salesman in Chicago. "But I don't believe a word of it. He was just trying to get out as best he could and leave everybody with a clean taste in their mouths."

"At least he didn't say 'You won't have Agnew—fo-kok around anymore,'" said Walley Coffey, a bartender in Seattle. That was a reference to President Nixon's statement that the press would not have him to kick around any more after he was beaten in the California gubernatorial race in 1962.

Carl Maxey, a Spokane,

Wash., attorney, saw a similarity between Agnew's speech and Nixon's Checkers speech in which Nixon, then a candidate for vice president, denied a political slush fund had been set up for him. "His (Agnew's) hope apparently was if people believed Checkers, they'd believe this," Maxey said.

"It turns out the law and order administration belongs in jail," said Michael Terry, a high school senior in Louisville, Ky. "I felt sorry for Agnew tonight, but what the heck. If I did what he did, I'd be up the creek. What makes him better than me?"

In his speech, Agnew said the news media carried inflammatory and inaccurate accounts of the proceedings against him. "The news media doesn't have anything to do with his troubles," said Doris Vogel, a housewife in Columbus, Ohio. "He made his own troubles and the news media just reported them."

But George L. Rines Jr., a salesman from Forest Hill, Md., said he was still 100 per cent behind Agnew. "Part of the trouble is you people (news media)," he said.

Rupert S. Huntington, a paint salesman from Annapolis, Md., also supported Agnew. "What he was trying to point out was that he's the scapegoat," Huntington said.

Miss I. Lower of Towson, Md., had another reaction. "I'd much rather someone just came up and said 'I'm innocent' or 'I'm guilty' and sum it up and be brief. They say so much. And none of it's important."

Fuel price hikes given nod

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Beginning today, motorists have to pay more for gasoline again. The East of Living Council announced Monday that retailers will be allowed another round of gasoline price increases.

The latest price hikes, which also apply to diesel fuel and home heating oil, range up to one and a half cents a gallon, but most dealers will get less than a penny a gallon increase.

After allowing the increases, the CLC clamped a two-week price freeze on the three petroleum products and set a new price control formula beginning Nov. 1. The new formula will allow automatic increases to flow from refiner to service station in jumps of a penny a gallon.

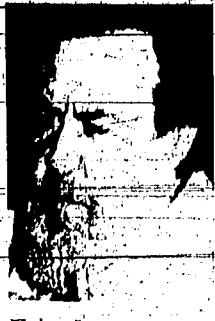

Under the old formula, which confused the public and angered dealers and Congress, gasoline producers and wholesalers were free to raise prices to reflect the rising costs of crude oil. But retailers could not pass along higher costs to the motoring public. Instead, they had to absorb the added costs while waiting for special permission from the CLC to boost prices.

The new rule, which is open for two weeks to public and industry comment, "eliminates the squeeze on the little guy," one CLC official said.

Charles Owens, director of the Council's energy division, said, "It's a move toward simplicity... we're going to allow the marketplace to make a little more of the decision about when dealers can move their prices and I have a feeling that the dealers will find the marketplace is tougher than the Cost of Living Council."

Under the price hikes approved Monday, Atlantic Richfield (ARCO) may raise its prices one and one-half cents per gallon. The other permissible price hikes (in cents per gallon) were Sun Oil Co. (Sunoco) 1 cent; Standard of Ohio 1 cent; Hess 4-5 cent; Standard of Indiana (Amaco) 4-5 cent; Gulf 1/2 cent; Phillips Petroleum 1/2 cent; Cities Service 1/2 cent; Shamrock 1/2 cent; Union 3-10 cent; and Shell 1-5 cent.

Skylab shift hinted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency may advance the launch date for the last Skylab space station crew one day to Nov. 10.

A NASA spokesman said Monday that refined tracking data for the orbiting laboratory show it would be easier for astronauts Gerald P. Carter, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue to carry out a normal rendezvous with Skylab Nov. 10 than on Nov. 11 as originally planned.

Dr. James C. Fletcher will review all aspects of the Skylab mission, Oct. 24 and will set a definite launch date then. The time for a Nov. 10 launch from Cape Kennedy would be 11:41 a.m. est.

Carr, Gibson and Pogue are scheduled to live and work aboard Skylab for 56 days.

US agencies ask change in American living ways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two government agencies today were urging Americans to make substantial changes in their daily habits — one to save fuel and the other to clean up the air.

William E. Simon, deputy treasury secretary and chairman of President Nixon's Oil Policy Committee, wants Americans to begin an "all-out" voluntary effort to conserve fuel to make the country independent of Middle East supplies.

He said Monday that such an effort could save 2.7 million barrels of oil a day, more than enough to offset the current dependence on imports of Arabian oil, now running at 1.1 million barrels daily.

Such conservation measures, said Simon, would include reducing highway speed limits to 50 miles per hour; tuning up automobile engines every six months; using cold water detergents to wash clothes; lowering thermostats in homes and office buildings by three degrees; increasing the load factors on commercial aircraft, thus lowering the number of flights; and greater use of car pools and public transportation.

Meanwhile, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Monday announced further steps for cleaning up the air around major cities by encouraging Americans to change their driving habits toward car pools and mass transit.

EPA's plan calls for parking taxes in parts of California to encourage people to use mass transit. Some businesses would be required to give priority parking space to car pools to pay bus fares of workers who don't drive.

There would be a parking surcharge of 25 cents per hour in parts of Boston, again to cut down on use of private cars. In Denver there would be car pool and bus lanes and a limit on future construction of parking lots.

However, EPA Administrator Russell E. Train said he was asking Congress to revise the Clean Air Act of 1970 to allow him to relax even more stringent rules announced earlier, one of which would have had the effect of banning all cars from Los Angeles by 1977.

Simon told newsmen the steps his office proposed would not involve a "major change in life styles."

"If consumers would voluntarily implement these measures," he said, "the savings could enable the United States to avoid an energy problem."

Off schedule

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Ministry of Agriculture explained today why there is a slight shortage of eggs in the markets. It said hens have been thrown off their laying schedule by the nationwide blackout.

Vegetable prices drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Very few foods, or other things for that matter, cost less now than a year ago. But the Agriculture Department reported today that "as fall began" this month, average fresh vegetable prices were running "slightly lower than in 1972."

A report on the vegetable situation said more plentiful supplies of onions and salad vegetables contributed to the "easier" price situation. It added that fall production of 14 fresh-market vegetable crops is expected to be up 4 per cent from last year.

"Nevertheless, continued strong demand will keep vegetable prices on the high side," the report added.

Economists said also that although 1973-74 supplies of processed vegetables will be up slightly from the previous season, cost increases for the coming season will be greater than those posted in 1972-73 because of more liberal economic control regulations in effect since Sept. 10.

"Price restraints in late 1972 and much of 1973 tended to hold down the rate of price-rise for many processed vegetables while prices of many other items were rising sharply," government specialists explained.

The report also said supplies of seven major frozen vegetables, including snap beans, lima beans and sweet corn, will be up "moderately" in coming months. Among canned vegetables, bigger supplies are expected for snap beans, beets, tomato products and sauerkraut.

Experts noted that the U.S. fall potato crop is expected to be 2 per cent above the small 1972 harvest, but predicted farm prices may remain above last year's levels for several months, at least.

Charges dismissed

DETROIT (UPI) — A federal judge has dismissed conspiracy charges against 15 new left radicals because the government refused to reveal the methods it used to gain its evidence against them.

It was another in a long series of cases prepared against radicals of the 1960s by the Internal Security Division of the Justice Department that have either been dismissed or lost by the government.

U.S. District Judge Damon A. Keith threw out the case Monday when the government said it could not disclose the details of its electronic surveillance of the 15 radicals without jeopardizing national security.

Included among the defendants were names that made headlines in the late 60s during the heyday of radical protest. The list included Mark Rudd, onetime national leader of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) and Bernadine Doherty, once national secretary of the Weathermen and now believed to be in exile in Algeria.

UFOs zip about in Dixieland

PINE LAKE (UPI) — Sheriff's deputies chased five orange-reddish flying objects 12 miles through the Louisiana piney woods late Monday night and early today.

Deputy Michael Moore said the ships almost attacked a police car.

"One of our deputies was scared pretty bad," Moore said from the Washington Parish Sheriff's Department. "He turned on his red lights, and they came down at his patrol car. He turned them off and they just vanished like in a cloud."

Moore said the ships, reported 150 miles northwest of similar sightings at Pascagoula, Miss., "came right down at you and then vanish above the treetops."

Moore said several deputies were out chasing the ships and one of the men tried to take pictures.

"Our deputies spotted five of them, and a bunch of witnesses saw them too," he said.

In another sighting reported near Slidell, across Lake Pontchartrain from New Orleans, Lloyd Mercier said he was driving home when he saw an object "approximately 15 or 20 feet in diameter and it had a streak about a foot wide straight through the middle."

"I was driving and I said, 'That can't be the moon, it's too large to be the moon.'"

"I'd say it was approximately 325 to 200 feet in the air and gradually it disappeared. It took five to six minutes."

"All I could see was a red glow. It looked like it came straight out of the water" of Lake Pontchartrain," he said. "I've seen it tonight with my own natural eyes. I have to believe what I see. It was no moon and it was no balloon, and it was no ship."

Gem salary setup said 'tradition'

BOISE (UPI) — A member of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' staff receives his salary from the state law enforcement department funds, but Andrus says the arrangement is a matter of tradition rather than deception.

David C. "Chris" Carlson receives a $1,000 per month salary while acting as the governor's aide but is listed on statehouse records as "special information officer—detached" for the Commissioner of Law Enforcement.

Neither Carlson nor administrative assistant William J. Murphy could explain why Carlson is paid from these funds and both said they did not know if it was a means of hiding from the legislature the size of the governor's immediate staff.

Andrus, however, said no deception was intended.

He said the practice of having one member of the governor's staff paid by law enforcement funds goes back to the administration of Gov. Robert E. Smylie and the idea probably was originally to have law enforcement protection for the governor.

"Frankly, I don't need anybody carrying a gun on my staff," Andrus said, expressing his known repugnance for armed guards. "I assume my predecessors told the same way."

He said both Smylie and former Gov. Don Samuelson had staff members paid from law enforcement funds.

Carlson's predecessor in Andrus' office was John D. Hough, who is now special assistant to the governor.

Hough, as press secretary, was a full-fledged office staffer for Andrus.

Neither Carlson nor Murphy could explain the difference.

Andrus said Carlson took the place of some other employee who was paid by law enforcement funds but the governor could not remember which one.

When UPI asked Carlson about his role as an information officer for Law Enforcement Commissioner John Bender, Carlson said he had not been asked to do anything for Bender.

"It is my understanding I should do so should John request it," Carlson said. "As of today John Bender never requested me to do anything special for his office."

Andrus said he had at least one other employee on another agency payroll and he could not understand why anybody would question the practice.

'Gate sentence easing sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A lawyer for four Miami area men serving indefinite prison terms in the Watergate burglary case says, "They've been punished enough. There's no reason they ought to be in jail."

Attorney Daniel E. Schultz was scheduled to appear in U.S. District Court today (10 a.m. EDT) to ask that his clients be released while they fight to prove their innocence.

Schultz represents Bernard L. Barker, Frank A. Sturgis, Virgilio R. Gonzalez and Kenneth W. Marriner. Another defendant, E. Howard Hunt Jr., is similarly seeking release from prison.

All five pleaded guilty to conspiracy, burglary, bugging and wiretapping of Democratic headquarters and have been behind bars ever since, primarily at a federal facility at Danbury, Conn.

But they recently asked U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica for permission to switch their pleas to innocent and to be released from custody pending final disposition of their cases.

The five men contend they were lured into believing Watergate was an spy operation sanctioned by the government and later pressured into pleading guilty and keeping quiet.

Sirica has set a hearing for Oct. 20 on the change of plea request.

Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox has opposed releasing any of the men from prison, stressing their backgrounds in undercover work and use of aliases and suggesting that makes them bad ball risks.

Sirica told Hunt and the four Miami-area men at sentencing in March that their final sentences would depend on how well they cooperated with authorities.

Forest service studies possible wild regions

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Agriculture Department Monday added 355,965 acres in Utah and 1,027,849 acres in Idaho to lands being studied for possible inclusion in the National Wilderness Preservation System.

Regional Forester Vern Hamre said all of the Utah acreage and 1,283,914 acres in Idaho were in the Intermountain Region of the Forest Service, headquartered in Ogden, Utah. The remaining Idaho acreage was in Forest Service Region One, headquartered in Missoula, Mont.

Hamre held a news conference at the Salt Lake Federal Building to outline the region's involvement in the program, which increased wilderness areas under study by 80 per cent nationwide.

In Washington, Forest Service Chief Joyn R. McGuire said 274 areas covering 12,289,000 acres in 14 states and Puerto Rico would be studied for inclusion in the Wilderness System.

Pending completion of the studies — which McGuire said might take "a decade, maybe two" — the lands will remain undeveloped. Logging of timber will not be permitted, but exploration and mining activities may be allowed under provisions of the Wilderness Act of 1964.

Union chief rips Nixon's policies

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — AFI-CIO President George Meany accused the Nixon administration Monday of incompetence, corruption and stupidity.

"We see utter incompetence in the domestic field. We see corruption at the highest levels of government, and we see gross stupidity in dealing with our foreign policy," Meany told the AFI-CIO Union Label and Service-Trade Department convention.

Meany also said in a report to the overall AFI-CIO convention opening Thursday that the nation's major problem is the public's lack of confidence in government. This stems, he said, mainly from inflation and the Watergate scandal, and the administration's failure to tell the whole truth about them.

The 79-year-old labor leader said the failure of the White House to control inflation and to adopt "equitable" economic controls was the main evidence of its incompetence in the domestic field.

On the corruption charge, he pointed to the resignation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and to the Watergate break-in and related crimes committed by administration officials and Nixon re-election officials.

Idahoans welcome fuels price boost

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Petroleum Council welcomed the cost of living council action allowing an increase in gasoline prices but the director said he is waiting for the removal of all controls.

"The Cost of Living Council Monday allowed an immediate increase in retail gasoline prices to meet higher costs. Costs then will be frozen until Nov. 1.

"I am sure the retailers will be happy with another crumb tossed their way," said Douglas Bean, executive director of the Idaho Petroleum Council.

Bean added that "the whole freeze on retail gas prices is unjust and unjustified because gasoline is the one prime example of a consumer product that has not gone up very much in price."

He said most people don't realize the price of gasoline is less than 30 cents per gallon and the 12 cents taxes added by federal and state governments brings the pump prices up

2 unhurt in crash

BOZEMAN, Mont. (UPI) — Two Pocatello, Idaho, men escaped serious injury Monday in the flaming crash of a single-engine airplane on Bozeman Hill.

Gallatin County authorities identified the men as Glen S. Marshall, the pilot, and Robert Van Der Boegh, the owner of the Cessna 170.

The plane crashed Monday afternoon on Bozeman Hill while on a flight from Billings to Pocatello.

Marshall and Van Der Boegh jumped clear of the craft, which burst into flames upon crashing into the hillside. The men hitch-

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Maybe my experience will help some other women whose husbands have a drinking problem. My husband used to drink three to four cases of beer a week. I promised him that any day he didn't drink more than two bottles of beer, I would make love to him any time of the day or night. Now a case of beer will last forever. Many days he will hurry home from work to get home before the kids. He used to stop to have a few beers with the guys. No more. It worked for us, so it may work for someone else.

SOBER LOVER IN MINNESOTA

Love slows beer drinking

DEAR SOBER: "Land of the sky blue waters" should be changed to "land of the true blue lovers." Congratulations, even though I am opposed in principle to using "love" as a reward . . . and withholding it as a punishment.

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for the guy who shot the dog with a .22 rifle. I would do the same to every dog that comes on my property, but there is a $100 fine for firing a gun in a residential neighborhood.

I say, if dogs were taxed, we would have a better U. S. A. in which to live. Dogs in Europe are taxed.

DOG-HATER IN SOUTH CAROLINA

DEAR DOG-HATER: Dogs are "taxed" in the U. S. A. (What do you think a dog's license is?) In Italy, watchdogs are not taxed, only "luxury" dogs (pets) are taxed. Of course, you might have a difficult time trying to convince the tax folks that your pet is also a watchdog, or that your watchdog is also a pet.

DEAR ABBY: This has been bothering me ever since it happened. Please tell me what to do if it ever happens again.

While at our school dance, a boy asked me to dance with him. I really didn't want to, but I didn't know how to turn him down without embarrassing him. How do you turn a boy down? Please print this because I'm sure many other teenage girls share my problem.

CONFUSED GIRL

DEAR CONFUSED: You don't! Sometimes the easiest way around something is straight thru it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALL WHO OBJECTED TO MY REPLY TO "STEVE'S GIRL" (who said she "loved" her job, but that Steve insisted that after they married she would work only 8 hours a day, 5 days a week, and no more. Steve didn't think a woman could successfully combine marriage and a career which demanded more time away from home than that.) I said I thought Steve's request was not unreasonable, but if SHE did, she should hold up the wedding bells.

Hundreds of readers wrote to ask me if my answer would have been the same had Steve's girl demanded that Steve work only 8 hours a day, 5 days a week.

Emphatically NO! It's a fact of life that working women who are married must do double-duty. After their 8-hour day away from home they are expected to run a home and raise the children, too. I'm not saying it is FAIR, or even that that's the way it SHOULD BE, I simply say that in 99 per cent of the American homes, that's the way it IS!

MR. AND MRS. GARRY WARRICK

Pair united in Rupert service

RUPERT — Vicki Lynn Staker and Gary Lee Warrick were married in Sept. 28 rites at the country home of the bride's parents near Rupert.

Dr. David Buzza conducted the double ring ceremony before a white backdrop with an orange valance and candelabra with orange and yellow chrysanthemums, daisies, baby's breath and roses. Orange candles accented the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene E. Staker and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Warrick, all Rupert.

The bride wore a princess silhouette gown of sheer organza and chantilly lace with a full skirt. The gown featured a chapel train edged with lace and an oval neckline with lace trim. The full sheer sleeves were gathered to lace cuffs. Her chapel length mantilla veil was edged with lace and held by a crown cluster of organza leaves and lace petals accented with aurora borealis stones. She carried a cascading bouquet of orange and yellow roses, chrysanthemum-daisies and baby's breath tied with orange ribbon.

Her dress was borrowed from her sister and she wore pearls belonging to her grandmother and earrings of her mother's.

Mrs. Michael B. Robertson, Twin Falls, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

Craig Warrick, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Grover Newman, pianist and Claude Bowman was soloist.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

The four-tiered wedding cake was placed in the center of the serving table. The cake was topped with orange and yellow chrysanthemums and bells. The table was covered with white organza over orange satin.

Orange frappe and yellow and orange mints were served from the table. A floral arrangement matching flowers in the candelabra completed the setting.

Hurricane lamps lit the home's outside entrance.

The Methodist Women of Deborah Circle assisted with the reception.

Mrs. Wallace Brown, grandmother of the bride, poured coffee. Mrs. Walter Paulsen, aunt of the bride, cut and served cake. Shelly Holly served frappe.

Luz Paulsen, cousin of the bride, attended the door and received the gifts. Linda Warrick, sister of the bridegroom, had charge of the guest book.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner at Price's Cafe, Burley.

The bride was honored at a pre-nuptial shower given by Mrs. Carl Benke and Deborah Benke.

Out of town guests attended from Burley, Nampa, Preston, Pocatello, Moscow, Bountiful, Utah; Midvale, Utah, and Sunset, Utah.

Following a wedding trip to Sun Valley, the couple resides in Caldwell, where the bridegroom is employed by Pelter Trucking.

Newlyweds feted at Shoshone yards

SHOSHONE — Newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Don McNally, were honored at a reception carried out in the Western theme Saturday evening at the Shoshone Sale Yard, cafeteria and arena.

The new Mrs. McNally is the former Barbara Nowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Nowell, Shoshone. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Pat McNally, Ovando, Mont.

The pair was married Sept. 28 by Magistrate Nancy Haddock, Shoshone.

In addition to an artistic arrangement of sagebrush in antique iron pots, large wagon wheels and burlap were used to give highlight to the Western motif. The gift table was draped to the floor with burlap.

An Irish linen cloth covered the bride's table, centered with a large one-layer wedding cake. The outer edge of the cake was led in a larjet effect, tied in with the Hono and the official brand of the two along with standing horseshoes and daisies through the interior.

Mrs. McNally, an artist, has long used the brand on her paintings, bar B, while his official brand is a lazy M, D. They were dressed in Western attire.

A stimulation of an emerald wedding ring floated in ice form in the punch bowl. The punch ladle belongs to the bride's maternal great-grandmother while the coffee service came from her paternal ancestry and dates back more than 100 years.

An aunt of the bride, Mrs. Herman Fisher, Walnut Grove, Calif., poured coffee and Mrs. Harrell Thorne poured punch.

Assisting with service were Mrs. Charles Errington, Mrs. Art Gnesa, Mrs. Carl Korner, Mrs. William Korner, Sr., Charles Nowell, brother of the bride; Charles Errington, Robert Bartlett, and Newell McMullen, Belvedere, Calif., a cousin of the bride.

Family members and friends attended from the Magic Valley area, Utah, California and Montana.

A pre-nuptial shower was hosted a week before the wedding by Mrs. Charles Errington, Mrs. Gosna and Mrs. Morvyn Ridinger.

The bride's parents hosted a buffet dinner for Montana relatives at 4 p.m. Saturday at their home and Sunday morning they hosted breakfast for Montana, Utah and California relatives and friends.

The newlyweds will make their home at his ranch at Ovando. Open house will be sponsored there on Oct. 20.

Society president Ken Mann, Lewisston Parks and Recreation Division director, said the award is considered by the society a membership to be the highest honor it can bestow in the parks and recreation field. Mann said both Twin Falls and Idaho Falls made "tremendous headway in providing parks and recreation services under his direction."

Mets see outfield problem as series resumes tonight

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Mets will have baseball's rowdiest fans behind them when the World Series resumes Tuesday night at Shea Stadium, but they're still going to need an outfield.

New York must find a way to cover-up for Rusty Staub and Willie Mays now that the Oakland A's know both of them can barely throw good enough to reach second base. Staub can hardly swing a bat, and Mays has problems catching routine fly balls.

The Series was evoked at a game apiece Sunday when the Mets won 10-7 in 12 innings in a four hour 13 minute marathon, the longest game in World Series history, and the teams have their best pitchers ready for game three.

Tom Seaver of the Mets, a 19-game winner and the National League's earned run average leader, (2.00), will oppose 21-game winner Jim "Catfish" Hunter who had the A's best won-lost percentage for the second straight season.

A sellout crowd of nearly 65,000 will be on hand for the 8:30 p.m. EDT start while the A's must be concerned about the fans, who harassed the Cincinnati Reds and threw garbage at Pete Rose during the NL playoffs, the Mets problem is more basic.

"I just don't know," admitted Manager Yogi Berra when asked about his outfield problems before the Mets boarded their charter plane Monday for the return cross-country flight. Staub's problem is a sore right shoulder, injured when he crashed into a fence last Tuesday in the fourth-playoff game. Time may help heal the injury as the Series progresses, but nothing will help the 42-year-old Mays whose skills have been reduced by age to a fraction of what they used to be.

New York almost has to have either Staub or Mays in the lineup because there's not really anyone else. Both flew home Sunday night, ahead of the rest of the team, and Staub worked out at Shea Stadium Monday, hoping to speed the healing process.

Mays took the day off to reflect on his game-winning hit Sunday, which helped atone for a couple of glaring misplays he made in the outfield.

Cleon Jones and Don Hahn are the other regular New York outfielders. Berra can use utilityman Jim Boachamp or rookie George Theodore in the outfield but putting either into the lineup would be a desperation move.

Staub is starting to heal

NEW YORK (UPI)—Outfielder Rusty Staub of the New York Mets took some extra batting practice Monday and reported his injured right shoulder was "improving every day."

Staub, who flew back from Oakland ahead of his teammates Sunday night, spent about 15 to 20 minutes in the Shea Stadium batting cage early Monday afternoon to work on his timing.

It was not known, however, if the red-haired outfielder would start in Tuesday night's third game of the World Series.

Staub, who injured his shoulder in the fourth game of the national league playoffs with Cincinnati when he crashed into the rightfield fence at Shea while making a spectacular catch, did not start the first game of the series but played most of Sunday's 12-inning marathon.

Staub collected one hit in five at bats Sunday and experienced pain in his shoulder every time he swung.

A's stage protest over treatment of Andrews

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Oakland A's, wearing No. 17 taped to their uniforms during Monday's workout, are convinced that owner Charlie Finley fired Mike Andrews for making two errors in Sunday's 12-inning World Series loss to the New York Mets.

"It was a bush thing to do," said Jim "Catfish" Hunter, who will oppose Tom Seaver in the third game of the Series Tuesday night at Shea Stadium.

Asked if Finley had cut Andrews from the roster, second baseman Dick Green said, "I just assume so. Most of the things on this club come from him."

A statement was issued by the team physician, Dr. Harry Walker, and Andrews signed his name at the bottom after a sentence reading "I agree to the above." Asked why Andrews signed the statement, Hunter said "I don't know if he did."

Reggie Jackson, the A's player representative, said that the first players knew about the incident was when Andrews didn't show up on the team bus heading for the airport. "Some of the guys were yelling 'where's the player rep,' and since I'm the player rep, I counted heads and we only had 23 7es."

he's not involved in this."

Williams, the Oakland manager, denied the charge that Finley had fired Andrews. "To my knowledge, he hasn't been fired by Mr. Finley," Williams said. "I wouldn't think so," when asked if Finley would fire Andrews without telling the Oakland manager.

Green, the A's regular second baseman, said "Andrews purpose wasn't to field. His purpose was to pitch. He could do that with a sore shoulder. Apparently, I may not make the trip back to Oakland if I make a couple of errors."

That was the second player problem to hit Oakland in the Series. The A's previously were denied permission to add utilityman Manny Trillo to their roster to fill a vacancy and Manager Dick Williams said that might have cost them Sunday's game.

"If I had Trillo, he would have been at second in the 12th and not Andrews, and maybe he doesn't boot the ball," Williams said.

The change from Oakland's calm fans to New York's fanatic ones will be an abrupt one and Reggie Jackson said "it'll probably scare me."

Several of the Athletics wore the number in protest of the placing of A's Mike Andrews (who wears No. 17) on the disabled list following Andrews' costly error at second base in the 12th inning of game number two won by the Mets on Sunday. ## Officers hired to control fans

NEW YORK (UPI)—The New York Mets, shamed and furious over the shambles made of Shea Stadium by fanatics during the National League playoffs last week, will have at least 1,000 special officers and city police on duty Tuesday night for the third game of the world series.

Jim Thomson, club vice president and business manager, said that a force of about 670 special police has been hired to maintain control inside the park and that 330 N.Y. City police thus far have been assigned outside the stadium.

Thomson added that the club is still willing to hire additional specialists, who are drawn generally from the police departments of suburban towns as "moonlighters" to augment the regular special police.

Asked if Finley had cut Andrews from the roster, second baseman Dick Green said, "I just assume so. Most of the things on this club come from him."

The A's players, taking a brief workout at Shea after their coast-to-coast flight from Oakland early Monday morning, had taped the "17s" to their uniform shoulders before making the field.

No. 17 was the number of Andrews, who was placed on the disabled list Sunday night after he made two errors in the 12th inning in Oakland's 10-7 loss to the Mets.

Andrews did not accompany the team to New York and is believed to have gone to his home in the Boston area, although his bags, placed on the chartered flight before the game, currently rest in the lobby of the downtown hotel here where the A's are staying.

Williams said "I wouldn't think so," when asked if Finley would fire Andrews without telling the Oakland manager.

Green, the A's regular second baseman, said "Andrews purpose wasn't to field. His purpose was to pitch. He could do that with a sore shoulder. Apparently, I may not make the trip back to Oakland if I make a couple of errors."

Deron Johnson said the A's "were in mourning for Andrews. It's like the Pirates."

The Pittsburgh players this year wore No. 21 on their uniforms in memory of the late Roberto Clemente.

Johnson said "Andrews can swing against southpaws and he could have helped us out. It's amazing the stuff that goes on around here."

Tug McGraw likes to satisfy ego as Mets top relief ace

NEW YORK (UPI)—Tug McGraw admits that relief pitching can be a real ego trip.

"I've got a strong ego," the New York Mets' premier reliever says, "it's a great feeling for me when I come in and get guys off the hook or save the situation for us."

McGraw, who didn't get into a game when the Mets beat the Baltimore Orioles in five games in 1969, is getting quite a chance of satisfying that ego in this year's series against the Oakland A's.

He's worked in the first two games, has a win in his credit and says he's ready to come back Tuesday night in the third game at Shea Stadium even though he pitched six innings to the Met's 10-7 thriller over the A's Sunday.

Tuesday night against the Oakland ace, Jim "Catfish" Hunter, and the Mets hope they don't have to call on him.

Pitching coach Rube Walker said, "We really don't want to use McGraw but he could go for an inning."

It was McGraw who set the tone for the Met's late surge with his cry, "you gotta believe." And he played a major role in their surge after having all kinds of problems early in the year.

"It was just between my ears," he says, "there was nothing physically wrong with me. I just lost it for a while."

McGraw says he feels the Met fans are bound to help New York at Shea Stadium. "The only time the Oakland fans really came alive the way we're used to it was in that ninth inning when they tied the game. But at Shea, it's going to be like that for nine innings. It has a positive effect on us, it charges you up and it has an effect on the visiting club."

McGraw is a player who gets involved, emotionally in a game. In fact, he admits that he blew the two-run lead in the ninth inning Sunday because, "I got carried away and I lost my concentration."

But he said once he blew the lead, he was determined not to blow the game. "After they tied it up, I still believed. I kicked myself in the butt and told myself I wasn't going to let them beat me. Even when Harrelson was called out at the plate in the 10th inning, I started to get upset but then I told myself I still had to go out there and pitch and there was nothing I could do to change the decision or the situation."

Williams said "I wouldn't think so," when asked if Finley would fire Andrews without telling the Oakland manager.

Green, the A's regular second baseman, said "Andrews purpose wasn't to field. His purpose was to pitch. He could do that with a sore shoulder. Apparently, I may not make the trip back to Oakland if I make a couple of errors."

Csonka leads Dolphins past Cleveland 17-9

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Larry Csonka scored a pair of touchdowns on two-yard runs Monday night to lead the defending Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins to a 17-9 victory over the Cleveland Browns and into a first place tie with Buffalo in the AFC East Division.

Csonka, who ran for 114 yards in 21 carries, scored his first touchdown with 4:39 to play in the third period and then bowled over again with 4:22 remaining with the clinching score.

The victory raised Miami's record to 4-1, while the Browns slipped to 3-2 and a tie for second place in the AFC Central race.

Halfback Mercury Morris set up Csonka's first TD with a 70-yard-run to the Cleveland 9. He swung left, then cut back to the right and cornerback Clarence Scott was barely able to tackle him.

Csonka then carried three straight times for the touchdown.

His second score was set up by linebacker Mike Kelen intercepted a pass by quarterback Mike Phipps at the Browns' 47 and returned it to the 18.

Garo Yepremian put Miami on the board first with a 30-yard field goal midway through the second quarter after missing an earlier 52-yard attempt.

Cleveland kicker Don Cockroft kicked field goals of 30 and 44 yards in the final three minutes of the second quarter to give the Browns a 6-3 lead at the half.

Cockroft's first boot came with 2:55 to play in the opening half after Ben Davis intercepted a Bob Griese pass and he then hit from 44 yards on the final play of the half.

Cockroft added a 35-yard field goal late in the third quarter, but missed two other attempts in the second half as Miami never let the Browns closer than their 45-yard line after intermission.

The Dolphins sacked Phipps five times for 36 yards lost as they stymied the Cleveland offense in the second half.

The attendance was 72,070 with 7,397 no-shows. It was technically a sellout and was the first local game televised here this season.

Sid Gillman takes over Houston coaching post

HOUSTON (UPI) — General manager Sid Gillman Monday fired head coach Bill Peterson and took over himself as coach of the Houston Oilers, who have not won a regular season game in more than a year.

"The decision was mine and solely mine," said Gillman, 61, who has a successful record as coach with Los Angeles and San Diego. "We are in a winning business. There's just no excuse for failure in our business."

Peterson, 49, who in less than a season and a half with Houston compiled a 1-10 record, said he was stunned by Gillman's action.

"I've heard of it happening to others," he said. "But I never thought it would happen to me. I still want to coach."

Peterson had a five-year contract with the Oilers, and Gillman said he would honor the remaining three and a half years.

"I would expect them to honor it," said Peterson. "I was given, in good faith, five years to produce a winner for the Houston Oilers. There are some good young players out there. I hope somebody else can turn the situation around and win."

Houston last won a regular season game on Oct. 7, 1972 — 26-20 over the New York Jets.

The subsequent 16 straight losses make up the fourth longest losing streak in NFL history and a loss this week to Cleveland would tie the Oilers for the third longest losing streak in pro football history.

"It was necessary for us to relieve Bill Peterson of his duties as head football coach," said Gillman. "The reason are quite obvious. His record was 1-10."

Gillman joined Houston, the worst team in the NFL last year with a 1-13 record, last March. He quickly swapped top draft choices for experienced players to quickly produce a respectable team.

But Houston dropped its five first games this year, including a 35-20 loss to Denver Sunday.

"This is a great football team," Gillman said. "There is no excuse for our performance of Sunday. None. None whatsoever."

"I am not a messiah. We hope we can at least give our club some respectability."

Peterson was Houston's eighth head coach in its 13-year history. He built a successful record at Florida State and served one season at Rice before Oiler owner K. S. (Bud) Adams lured him crosstown in 1971 with what Peterson said was a "lifetime," million dollar contract.

Gillman dismissed speculation that he wanted the head coaching job all along.

"I did not come to the Houston Oilers with the idea of becoming a head coach or a coach," he said, although he took command of the Oiler's anemic offense Oct. 3.

No new coach will be hired until the end of the season.

"We will look at all the sharp young assistants in the NFL," Gillman said.

Scott Hunter apparently is back as regular for Packers

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — This hasn't been an easy year for Scott Hunter.

But the man who broke most of Joe Namath's passing records at Alabama apparently is back as a regular in the National Football League and he's showing signs of emerging as an established quarterback.

"I've always had the confidence I could do the job," Hunter said. "But it's taken a series of breaks and mistakes — on the part of others — to give him his chance."

Like Bart Starr, the Green Bay quarterback before him, Hunter has at times been the object of scorn and ridicule in his early professional days.

A few weeks ago at Green Bay he was booed as disgruntled fans blamed him for being unable to move the team. By last Sunday, however, the boos had changed to cheers.

Much of Hunter's unpopularity stemmed from last season when, as a second-year pro, he completed only 43.7 per cent of his passes as the Packers used defense and the running of John Brockington and Mac Lane to win a National Football Conference Central Division title.

The passing lack was spotlighted in the playoffs when the Washington Redskins ignored Hunter and concentrated their defense on stopping the run to score a 16-3 win.

That game set Coach Dan Devine searching for a passer, but he had little success during the off-season.

The established veterans — like John Hadl and Roman Gabriel — commanded a price that was too high in young talent. So, Devine sent two future draft choices to Miami for Jim Del Gaizo, like Hunter a third-year player with promise.

Del Gaizo apparently had won a starting job in his first pre-season start, quarterbacking the Packers to a 19-6 lead over Pittsburgh before leaving just before the half with cracked ribs.

The injury sidelined him for the first regular season game and Hunter was impressive in the 24-7 victory over the New York Jets. The next week, however, he had trouble against the Detroit Lions and was rescued by Del Gaizo, who then started the next two games.

But Del Gaizo had his problems and the job went back to Hunter again as he came off the bench in the second half to rally Green Bay to a 16-14 win over the New York Giants.

Sunday, against Kansas City, he appeared to have picked up where he left off, combining with Brockington to roll up more than 200 yards in total offense before both were forced to leave the game because of injuries that occurred near the half.

Hunter's 12 for 18 passing against the Giants and the Chiefs has lifted him over the 50 per cent completion mark for the first time in his career. He has hit 55.1 per cent of his throws this year and has learned that the short pass can be an effective weapon.

"Pro football may be a little conservative," he said. "But you can't flim flam anyone very often, anyway. You've got to go with the percentage type plays."

Starr was around to help Hunter his first two years and Hunter, once described the experience as like "opening an encyclopedia."

Sooner coach is happy with play

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer acknowledged Monday that this year's club was playing just as good as last year's Sooners — who finished as the No. 2 team in the nation.

Oklahoma, which opens its Big Eight Conference campaign Saturday against Colorado, was relegated to mediocrity after graduation of several stars and loss of its only experienced quarterback in a recruiting scandal that also cost the Sooners two years' probation.

"We had players last year who would beat out some of the people we have now," Switzer said. "But as a team I'd say we're playing as well as we did last year, maybe better."

Switzer said the Sooners are better than last year in three key backfield areas — quarterback running, fullback and at one-halfback.

"The only area where we're not better is that we don't have Greg Pruitt," he said.

Switzer said the running of Steve Davis, who hadn't played a down of intercollegiate football before the season began, had been a key to the success of Oklahoma's Wash-bone. Switzer has said Waymon Clark, a junior college transfer, is potentially one of the best fullbacks Oklahoma has ever had.

The third plus in the Sooner backfield is that Joe Washington, a while running the football as a freshman, is even more exciting this year.

Washington rushed for 118 yards in Oklahoma's 52-13 romp over Texas and threw a 40-yard touchdown pass to sophomore split end Tinker Owens.

Switzer said he was as surprised as anyone at the lopsided score of the Texas game.

"At the half we were so close just those three big plays were the difference," Switzer said of three scoring bombs.

"We talked to both the defense and offense at the half. I told the defense they hadn't proved to me they could stop Texas. The offense hadn't proved they could move the ball. But when we took the second half kickoff and went on down to score I thought 'we'd win.'"

Switzer said Colorado looked better than the team that beat the Sooners last year. The Buffaloes are deep in running talent and "their receiving corps is the finest in the Big Eight," he said.

Ohio St. increases lead as top college football team

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ohio State has increased its lead as the nation's No. 1 college football team, and Alabama is the new No. 2 club in the latest ratings of the United Press International Board of Coaches.

The top-ranked Buckeyes, who showed off their touted defense Saturday in blanking Wisconsin, 24-0, picked up 27 first place votes (an increase of seven from last week) from the 35 coaches on the board for 341 points. The Crimson Tide moved up to No. 2 in the wake of Nebraska's disastrous loss to Missouri.

Alabama, now 5-0 after all but eliminating Florida from the Southeastern Conference race, 35-14, picked up five first place votes and finished with 271 points. Nebraska, meanwhile, dropped from second all the way, down to 11th after being tripped up by Missouri, 13-12, over the weekend.

And Oklahoma, which tied Southern Cal in the Trojans' backyard two weeks ago, began its move to the top by climbing three slots to No. 3 after annihilating Texas, 52-13, in Saturday's nationally televised "Battle of Dallas."

Casals is heckled by gallery

BOCA RATON, Fla. (UPI) — Rosemary Casals ran into stout opposition from BAPHAIT DOWNS and the gallery Monday before winning her way through the first round of the $10,000 Virginia Slims tennis championships.

Miss Downs, of Alamo, Calif., pushed the third-seeded Casals in 1971 in both sets before losing 6-4, 7-6. Many spectators cheered the unseeded underdog and booed Casals, apparently as a result of Casals' performance as a television commentator during the Billie Jean King-Bobby Riggs challenge match.

Miss Downs pushed to a 3-2 advantage in the first set before losing. She then forced the second set into a tiebreaker and took four of the first five points. The gallery boos came when Casals took the next four points for victory.

Top-seeded Chris Evert of nearby Fort Lauderdale easily advanced through the first round with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over Kristine Kemmer of Los Angeles.

Tina Zwaan of The Netherlands produced the only upset of the day by beating Valerie Ziegenfuss of California, 3-6, 6-0, 6-1.

Kerry Melville, the sixth seed from Australia, had to go three sets to down Toni Pretz of California, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1.

Walton is sent home for trim

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA basketball coach John Wooden Monday sent star center Bill Walton home to get a haircut as the Bruins opened basketball practice at Pauley Pavilion.

Wooden, 63, told reporters gathered to interview his players that he probably would remain here for at least one more season after this season.

"Not just one more, at least one more," he said. "I want to keep the door open."

Wooden, who is starting his 28th year at Westwood, celebrated his 63rd birthday Sunday. Although he was hospitalized briefly with a heart condition during last season, he reported he was in "excellent" health.

"I've been watching my diet and walking briskly five miles a day," he explained.

Walton, college basketball's MVP the past two seasons, showed up with his hair too long for his coach's standards and Wooden sent him to the barber shop.

"We'll have a very fine team this year," said Wooden, whose clubs have won a collegiate record 75 straight games and seven consecutive NCAA titles.

"We'll stick with the same style of ball we've used the last two years to take advantage of Walton's abilities."

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices opened broadly lower Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange in the wake of the previous day's heavy profit taking. Trading was moderate. Minutes after the opening the Dow Jones industrial average had dropped 0.83 to 966.81, with declines more than three-to-one ahead of advances.

Profit taking entered the trading picture in full force Monday. The Dow tumbled 11.59 to 977.04, and more than 1,700 issues joined in the decline.

With a highly uncertain news background — including the Middle East war, government scandals and pressing economic problems — many analysts expect the market to undergo further declines. They point out the list has gained with barely a pause for an entire month, and is due for some technical retrenching at lower levels.

Mrs. Floyd Kisting reads soil temperature

Technique helps spuds

SHOSHONE — A new soil-temperature testing technique may result in fewer bruised potatoes on the market.

One of the eight soil thermometers located in the area is at the Floyd Kisting farm in Dietrich. Mrs. Kisting reads the instrument twice a day, recording the high and low temperature.

She said county extension agent Ivan Hopkins advises against digging the potatoes until the soil temperature is 45 degrees.

The county agent explained that if the potatoes are harvested at below the 45 degree level, they will bruise more easily.

He said this is an effort to get an idea of general soil temperature in this area and the overall results from the eight locations are then compiled at the weather station in Kimberly.

The project is being carried out through cooperation of the Extension Service and Department of Commerce Weather Station and the machines are located from Bliss to Raft River.

The clock-like face of the device is registered with steady high and low temperatures of the soil, registered actually through attachment to the thermometer placed in the ground on a pole.

Range bull sale slated Oct. 26

FILER — More than 185 breeding animals will be auctioned at the 34th annual range bull sale here Oct. 26. The sale will begin at 11 a.m. at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds, Jim Faulkner, Bliss, sale manager, said.

The bulls are consigned to the sale by registered cattle breeders in Idaho, Utah and Washington. Herefords — polled and horned — Black Angus, and Shorthorn bulls are listed.

The sale is arranged by the Idaho Cattlemen's Association. Grading of bulls is set for Oct. 25. That same day, the annual dinner served in connection with the sale is scheduled at the Rogerson Hotel in Twin Falls. Wilson Kellogg, Idaho commissioner of agriculture, will address the dinner.

Bill Rehm, Belgrade, Mont., and Clayton Tschirgi, Fruitland, will call the sale.

Valley Briefs

TWIN FALLS — CSI Faculty wives and women will go to Jackpot, Nev., for a dinner party. The bus will leave at 9:40 p.m. Oct. 27 from the Fine Arts Auditorium. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Carol Bearup, 733-6476.

Air conditioning is a standard built-in feature of 70 per cent of the cars manufactured in Detroit.
