Fierce tank battle engulfs Suez Canal

By United Press International
Israel said today its rampaging tank force spearheaded 12 to 15 miles into Egypt, cutting behind the massive Egyptian army in the Sinai Desert and advancing to 50 miles of Cairo. The Israeli armed forces chief said the major Israeli offensive is near.

On the third day of increasingly ferocious fighting on the crucial front of the Middle East war, Israel claimed that its forces destroyed 70 Egyptian tanks and shot down 25 Egyptian and Libyan planes.

The United States announced that a "limited number" of American military personnel had been sent to Israel to help with the airlift of American supplies pouring equipment into the country to replace the planes and tanks lost if the 14 days of war. Russia had its own airlift going to the Arabs.

Trying to take the pressure of the Egyptians, Syrian and Jordanian forces launched two counterattacks against Israeli forces in Syria today, but an Israeli spokesman said both of them were beaten back with the loss of about 30 tanks and two Syrian planes.

Israel said the spearhead it sent across the canal into Egypt Tuesday fought off human wave counterattacks during the day by Egyptian infantry trying to halt it.

On the northern front, the Tel Aviv command said Arab troops counterattacked today after two days of relative quiet to put pressure on Israeli forces holding 300 square miles of Syrian territory seized during the current fighting.

The command said the Syrian, Iraqi and Jordanian troops attacked behind the forward Israeli lines at the central sector of the Golan Heights, but were turned back with heavy Arab losses.

An Israeli spokesman, in comments about the fierce fighting in the south, said today, "I am satisfied with the results, but there is no shutting our eyes to the heavy price we are paying."

From Egypt the story was different. The 2:10 p.m. (6:10 a.m. MDT) communique in Cairo said the great Sinai armored battle was increasing in ferocity and that Egyptian forces continued to besiege the Israeli commandos on the west bank of the canal, destroying part of the Israeli forces in the Deversoir area "as a prelude to liquidating them."

However, it indicated more Israeli forces had infiltrated during the night.

It said Egyptian artillery and planes are inflicting "severe losses" on Israeli tanks and armored cars and had shot down four Israeli planes.

The Egyptians said the Israelis had brought up reinforcements in the Sinai to compensate for heavy losses.

Influential Egyptian editor Mohammed Hassenein Helkal cautioned in the newspaper Al-Ahram against expecting any early end to the fighting.

Both Israeli and Egyptian officials described the fighting as the biggest armored battle of all time, rivaling the massive North African and European tank engagements of World War II. Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said his men "have gained the initiative" on the southern front and were moving toward the war's "decisive battle." Egypt said its troops were fighting with "tenacity and ferocity" despite stiff Israeli opposition.

The Israelis reported pouring more men, tanks and artillery across the 102-mile-long canal today in an attempt to build up a two-pronged armored vise to crush an estimated 100,000 Egyptian troops in the Sinai desert.

Vivian Burden dies in Gooding

GOODING — Mrs. Vivian Burden, 58, Gooding, Gooding County clerk, died Thursday in the Gooding County Hospital after a long illness.

She has served as clerk since her election in 1970 and had been employed by Myron Harbaugh Motor Co. She was a long time employee of the Morrison-Knudsen Co., Boise.

Mrs. Burden was active in business and professional women's clubs and was president of the Gooding Credit Bureau. She served as county chairman for the American Cancer Society. (See obituary p. 2)

Dean pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John W. Dean III, President Nixon's former legal counsel, pleaded guilty today to conspiracy in connection with his role in covering up the Watergate burglary. He claims President Nixon was aware of the coverup.

Dean, wearing a green plaid suit, stood erect before Judge John J. Sirica and answered in a deep voice that he was "knowingly, voluntarily and intentionally" entering his plea.

Gilda hits Cuba

MIAMI (UPI) — Tropical storm Gilda slashed across Cuba today with torrential rains that routed 40,000 people from their homes, then aimed toward the Bahamas on a course that will slap southeast Florida with gale winds.

Residents of the Florida "Gold Coast" from Fort Lauderdale southward through the keys were told to secure all loose objects around their homes and businesses and to prepare for above normal high tides and up to six inches of rain that could flood low-lying roads.

Cartoonist Kelly dies

WOODLAND HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Cartoonist Walt Kelly creator of Popo, Albert, Churchy La Pemme and a swampful of talking creatures that were true political animals died Thursday.

Kelly, 60, suffered a stroke at the Motion Picture and Television Country Home and Hospital, where he was hospitalized last month for insulin shock while on a business trip here from his home in New York.

US tourists leave Cairo

CAIRO (UPI) — A group of 400 American tourists, many of them Jews, left Cairo today en route home after being stranded here since the outbreak of the 1973 Middle East war.

The Americans, and a sprinkling of Canadians, were the last of several thousand visitors to be evacuated from Egypt, now in the 14th day of its war with Israel.

They left in a convoy of 15 buses for the Mediterranean seaport of Alexandria, where they were to board a Greek charter ship for a voyage to the Greek port of Piraeus and a subsequent flight home.

Their departure had been delayed several days because of the initial unwillingness of Greek crews to sail into a war zone.

Mitchell trial delay asked

NEW YORK (UPI) — Federal prosecutors today asked that the conspiracy and obstruction of justice trial of former cabinet officers John Mitchell and Maurice Stans be adjourned until Jan. 7.

The prosecutors cited the decision Thursday by Federal Judge Lee Gagliardi which left in doubt the possibility of a key government witness testifying as the reason for requesting the adjournment.

Gagliardi's decision could prevent former White House counsel John W. Dean III from testifying as a witness at the trial which is scheduled to begin Tuesday.

Beirut casualty

WOMAN wounded in Thursday's attack on the Beirut branch of the Bank of America is taken to an ambulance. Lebanese police and army troops stormed the bank today, freeing 26 hostages and killing four Arab gunmen. One American hostage was reportedly killed by the gunmen. (UPI)

Retail food prices down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retail food prices, the biggest contributor to the current inflationary binge, declined in September for the first time in more than a year, the government reported today.

The 1.4 per cent drop in supermarket prices followed a 2.4 per cent price explosion in August, the biggest monthly ascent in more than 25 years. Rapid ups and downs in food prices, resulting from distortions caused by the administration's price control program, have been forecast by government economists. They have cautioned that one-month declines do not mean that the nation has licked its inflationary problems.

Other economic indicators indicated the economy had settled into a somewhat comfortable growth rate in late summer, but one official warned that inflation "is awful and ... will remain so" for a time.

The decline in food prices last month first since May, 1972, and the biggest since August, 1958 helped keep the overall cost of living index—a gauge of consumer prices—to a modest 0.3 per cent rise in September.

The August rise was 1.6 per cent, which figures out to a 2.3 per cent rise if carried through for a full year.

Soaring mortgage interest rates pushed the usually stable cost of services up 0.9 per cent, the steepest monthly ascent since March, 1970.

TF school equipment smashed

TWIN FALLS — Burglars broke into the Twin Falls High School cafeteria sometime Thursday night and caused an estimated $5,000 damage to four dispensing machines but gained only a small amount of change for their effort.

Twin Falls Police Capt. Tim Qualls said someone entered the building, broke into the cafeteria, overturned two large soft drink refrigerator dispensing machines and beat them apart. Two snack dispensing machines owned by Western Music were also forced open and torn apart.

High school Principal Frank Charlton said nothing else in the building was damaged. Because the machine coin compartments are emptied every day the intruders apparently obtained only a handful of cash.

The break-in was discovered about 8 a.m. today. City police are continuing their investigation.

Mishap kills Norland tot

NORLAND — Five-year-old Brigham Albert Bingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Bingham, Norland, died about 8:30 p.m. Thursday night when a tractor on which he was riding ran over him.

The boy was riding on the left fender of the tractor driven by his father when he fell off and under the wheel. The tractor was being driven from a silage pit area near the family's home. He died immediately of head injuries, according to Lincoln County sheriff B. J. Anderson.

Lincoln County coroner Dr. R. G. Nohr and the sheriff investigated the accident at the scene. Norland is about 17 miles east of Dietrich.

UFO in Blaine?

By TERRY CAMPBELL, Times-News Writer

BELLEVUE — A UFO — described as an extremely bright object which shot the air from a hovering position — was reported sighted east of Bellevue Thursday morning.

It reportedly was visible for over one-half hour. Carla Brannan, Ketchum, who was babysitting overnight on a ranch in Muldoon Canyon, made the sighting.

Brannan said her 6-month-old son, who was staying with her at the ranch, woke her about 7:30 a.m. She said she saw the object from a window, hovering over a small pond about one-fourth mile from the house.

"For a second I thought it was a star," she said. But, as she became fully awake, she said she realized the object was not a star, airplane or helicopter. Brannan said she could not distinguish the object's shape because of the brightness of its light.

As she watched it, she said it remained close to the ground until a car, with its lights on, came up the road. Then, she said, the object "shot up in the air" and traveled westward.

"It seemed like a second. The speed was astounding," she said. After the car passed, the object "came right down," she said. It remained hovering until, as the sun came over the mountains, the object gradually moved upward and toward the west.

'Cafeteria connection' tied to aid

By BILL LAZARUS, Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In a strange connection, Twin Falls High School eating habits are affecting distribution of federal funds to underprivileged students here.

Disinterest in the free hot lunch program among high school students is directly tied to the amount of money received in other federal programs.

The Twin Falls School District uses hot lunch eligibility figures — which school officials say tend to be highly inaccurate on the high school level — when filling out application forms for Federal Title I moneys, according to assistant district Supt. Camden Meyer.

While 22 per cent of all elementary students in the district are from low-income families, 14 per cent of junior high students and only 4.8 per cent of high school students are from poverty families, the figures show.

This could mean students from poverty backgrounds here drop out of school at an extremely high rate.

Or it could mean that while children grow up and father moves along in his job most families move out of the low income bracket.

Meyer termed the figures "ridiculous" and suggested a third explanation for the low income gap. Statistics gathered from the free lunch program.

Parents apply for the lunch for their children by completing poverty-level income vouchers which their children bring home for them to sign. In upper grades, and especially in the high school, many students do not bother to bring these vouchers home, Meyer said.

This disinterest in the hot lunch program at the high school level is shown by the fact that the high school gives out fewer free lunches than any grammar school in the district despite having more than twice as many students as any grade school, he added.

Meyer said hot lunch eligibility is one of many standards recommended by the state for districts to use when applying for Title I. Whatever standard is used the state demands proof of the number of poverty students claimed to be attending each school.

The advantage of using hot lunch eligibility figures is the district has vouchers proving the statistics' legitimacy, Meyer asserted.

These figures determine which schools within the district receive how much aid. Only "poor schools" with 50 per cent more students from low income families than the average school in the district receive funds, Meyer said.

In Twin Falls, Bickel, Lincoln and Washington schools on the elementary level and O'Leary school on the junior high level qualify as project schools.

Meyer believes the sole emphasis on poverty students by Title I is discriminatory. Previously, he said, Title I was geared to help all students with learning difficulties in the district, not just those from poverty backgrounds.

Identifying such students "makes hypocrites out of the kids and parents," Meyer maintained. "This is one of the things that I don't like about the program. We are supposed to do something up and above what we do for everybody else."

Taking a general stance on identification of poverty students Meyer said, "We don't want to know what they are."

Jackson attacks cabinet

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., renewed an attack on Nixon Cabinet members today, saying "I will count it a great day when we don't have (Agriculture Secretary Earl L.) Butz to kick around anymore."

Jackson, who sharply criticized Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger a few days ago for pursuing detente with the Soviet Union while Russian arms were being sent to the Arabs to fuel the Middle East War, assailed Butz for promising continued U.S. farm sales to the Soviets.

In a prepared speech to the AFL-CIO convention, Jackson said: "I had hoped that we had learned the lesson of last year's grain deal. You remember, that was the bargain in which the Russians got the wheat and we got the chaff."

"But the architect of that horror — Secretary of Agriculture Butz — has just been to Moscow, where he told the Soviets: 'U.S. exports into the U.S.S.R. will include a considerable volume of farm products. This trade will be beneficial for the United States economy, for American farmers and for the cause of peace.'"

Said Jackson: "This was his statement, reported on Radio Moscow, on the second day of the Middle East war. I will count it a great day when we don't have Butz to kick around any more."

Jackson also criticized the administration for offering the Soviets "billions of dollars in government subsidized credits at 6 per cent interest at a time when he said Americans were paying 10 per cent for mortgages and auto loans and often could not borrow even at that rate."

AFL-CIO President George Meany refused this year to invite President Nixon or his top aides, other than Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, to speak at the convention because of Meany's strong opposition to administration economic policies.

Over 70 cadettes and sixth grade Junior Girl Scouts are expected to take part in the three-day event which will be at the Gooding Armory.

Registration for the scouts will be today at 7 p.m. The girls will sleep at the armory tonight and Saturday night and during the day join in group craft activities and learn more about scouting. The girls will spend part of Saturday swimming at the Gooding State School.

It is anticipated that several of the deaf scouts in Gooding will attend the event and some time will be spent teaching the girls to communicate by sign language.

While the programs will be supervised by several Girl Scout leaders from throughout Magic Valley the girls will be able to choose their own activities and their own group.

Auxiliary discusses scholarship

TWIN FALLS — Scholarship programs of the American Legion Auxiliary to assist daughters of disabled veterans were discussed Wednesday night during a meeting of the Twin Falls Auxiliary.

Afton Buckley, Onkley, one of several guests, discussed the program and funding plans. Dorothy Showers, president of the Filler Auxiliary, discussed membership and introduced other guests from the Filler unit. Lois Matheny, Eden, past Department Auxiliary president, was also a guest and initiated two new members, Mary Jennings and Betty Dameron.

A total of 22 members and five guests attended the regular no-host dinner meeting in the Big Boy restaurant. Eva Smith received the mystery package.

Good report

GOOD NEWS for United Fund workers was announced Thursday by Dr. Terry Smith, campaign chairman. During the second report luncheon, he told workers the drive is $8,000 ahead of last year at this time.

UF campaign ahead of '72

TWIN FALLS — United Fund campaign returns stood at $34,465 at noon Thursday, about $8,000 ahead of the same point in the campaign a year ago.

This was announced by Dr. Terry Smith, campaign general chairman, during the second drive report luncheon Thursday noon at the Turf Club.

Reports were also given by Hazel Wilder, commercial division; Ross Prather, education; and Fred Prazier, special task force.

Prazier, vice president of the United Fund organization, introduced a plan for payroll deductions to assist the campaign and to make giving less painful for employees.

He said his firm, Sierra Life, instigated the plan this past year and when the drive began, had $2,500 to give to the drive workers.

Hot onions

TWIN FALLS — County law enforcement officers are looking for one or two truckloads of "hot" onions.

Sheriff Paul Corder's office was advised Thursday of the theft of one or possibly two truck loads of sweet yellow onions from a field north of the Highline Canal at Hansen.

Flora Larsen, who reported the theft, said the onions were sacked and in the field and the thief drove into the field and loaded up the sacks.

TF woman injured in auto collision

TWIN FALLS — Elma Larue Miller, 42, Twin Falls, received a cut over the left eye in a traffic accident about 4 p.m. Thursday when her vehicle collided with one operated by Sharon Lorraine Ctelia, 21, Twin Falls.

City police said damage was estimated at $800 to the Ctelia vehicle and $600 to the Miller automobile. Ctelia was traveling north on Shoshone Street South when Miller turned left from the opposite direction and the two collided. The accident occurred at the intersection of Shoshone Street South and South Park Avenue.

League urges rimland remain agricultural

TWIN FALLS — Members of Citizens to Save the Canyon Rim have met with the county commissioners to urge passage of the new zoning ordinance, leaving all canyon rim lands as presently zoned.

Elma Nelson, a member of the citizen's group and president of the Twin Falls League of Women Voters which has also urged preservation of the rim, said today the citizens' group urged that the rimlands remain agricultural as presently zoned, not just to the depth of 300 feet as recommended by the county zoning board. "We never have asked for a 300-foot setback," Mrs. Nelson said, "that was the zoning commission which arbitrarily set that."

Mrs. Nelson said the citizens' group members asked the commissioners to pass the new zoning ordinance as soon as possible, "but we felt legally the best course of action would be to leave the agricultural zoning along the canyon as it is presently."

"What we're really concerned about is that there will be more plats filed under our current zoning ordinance, and it's really inadequate," she said.

Mrs. Nelson said the group had not changed its position on passage of the zoning ordinance. "When we asked for more time on this thing, it wasn't really for more time on the zoning ordinance, it was for more time on this (rim) land to allow us to explore methods of purchasing it."

Following is a copy of a petition to Congress listing 24 reasons the United States should withdraw from the United Nations Organization. Actual petitions will be circulated in the Twin Falls and other Magic Valley areas during the coming months by members of the John Birch Society. It would be helpful for residents to study the petition carefully, become aware of the dangers of the U.N., then sign a petition to Get U.S. out!

A Petition To Get US out! of The United Nations

1. The United Nations was founded by Communists to serve Communist purposes.

2. The most important officials of the United Nations have always been Communists or Marxists who were working visibly and entirely for Communist aims.

3. Today the United Nations is completely controlled by Communist influences and outright Communist personnel.

4. The Communists are our deadly enemies who openly boast of their intention to subject the American people to the same form of tyranny now suffered by the people of Soviet Russia and of mainland China.

5. The Communist tyranny converts every country under its rule into a gigantic prison, which offers security of an impoverished sort at the cost of all freedom. And the secret police become far more brutal than the wardens of any normal prison would ever be.

6. The economic system of Communist countries is based on the philosophy of scarcity, while the American system has been based on the philosophy of abundance. Our design calls for a million salesmen to market the few mules, where the Communist practice calls for a million ration clerks to divide the too little.

7. Life within these Communist countries is so shoddy, miserable, and hopeless that countless thousands get themselves killed, or sent to the horror of slave-labor camps, every year, just for even thinking about escape or revolt.

8. It is the obvious purpose of the Communist bosses, whom George Orwell called the Inner Party, and who now are, some times called the Insiders, to use the United Nations as the initial framework for extending this cold-blooded Communist tyranny over the total population of the earth.

9. And the longer we stay in the United Nations, the closer we come to the same fate as that of so many nations already behind the curtains. So we say Get US out!

10. The United Nations ideology adopted the ideology, purposes, methods, and Aesopian language of the Communists as its own.

11. In this system of "morality," for instance, whatever helps the Communists is good, no matter how foul the action might be by civilized standards. And whatever sets back the Communist advance is immoral.

12. When the UN sent its "peace-keeping force" of cruel mercenaries into the Congo, for example, to destroy the very stable, peaceful, and comparatively prosperous state of Katanga, and thus to bring all of the Congo under Communist control, these mercenaries engaged in direct UN orders in the bombing of civilian hospitals and ambulances, and in spreading death and terror as widely as they could. This action was "good," not "evil," because the terror helped to carry out Communist plans.

13. Also, the highest UN officials lied brazenly to the whole world about what had happened until (and even after) the forty-six civilian doctors of Elisabethville, who had lived through this reign of terror, unanimously testified to the truth. Veracity, on the part of the UN officials, would in this case have been considered by them as "immoral," because it would have been harmful to Communist designs.

14. To the United Nations hierarchy the word "peace" means, as it always does to the Communists, only one thing. And that is, for any area, a situation where there is no opposition to Communism. Otherwise, in their rationale, there would be no peace, but only strife or potential strife, until the Communists had subjugated the people (which they always call "liberation.")

15. So all of this drive for a huge military "peacekeeping force" for the UN is a deceptive fraud. What the UN really seeks, and the Insiders of the Conspiracy are seeking for it, is to have enough land, sea, and air armaments turned over to it, primarily by the United States, to serve as a sufficiently powerful international police force to achieve and maintain "peace" meaning a complete subjugation of the people to Communist rule all over the world.

16. In less tangible but even more serious areas of concern, there exists the same subservience of the UN to Communist "principles" and purposes. The Communists seek to weaken, and then eliminate, the three basic human loyalties: loyalty to God, loyalty to country, and loyalty to family. The UN appears to move even further towards a final goal by seeking to destroy or to subvert to its own uses all religion, all governments, and all traditional human institutions.

17. The truth seems to be that the United Nations is operating as the tool of a Master Conspiracy. It is patently using subversive longrange strategy, through every conceivable form of dirty tactics, to lower the moral, economic, and military strength of the United States down to the level of the leading Communist nations. So that, in accordance with the well known master plan of the Conspiracy's Insiders,

18. And there is no practicable way to offset the separate effects of all the UN's deception, pressure, and propaganda to that end. The only real answer is to pull our country completely out of this phony pretense of a "parliament of man," and stand on our own feet again as to our own beliefs and purposes and principles.

19. The United Nations is not getting any stronger today. But, perhaps partly for that very reason, it is getting more audacious, and therefore more dangerous to the United States.

20. The UN is engaged in a continuous, lying, and vicious effort to destroy altogether the anti-Communist nations or governments that are left anywhere in the world. Outstanding examples are Portugal, Rhodesia, and the Republic of China on Taiwan.

21. But the UN continues to welcome as new members such incredibly murderous and foul Communist regimes as East Germany and Red China (the latter in flagrant and brazen violation of its own charter).

22. Because of the size of Red China's population, it may be normal and permissible for Peking to maintain a staff of about three thousand people as its UN delegation in New York City. This means three thousand Chinese Communists whose suitcases cannot even be opened by American customs officials. It also means the end of all problems on the part of Chou En-lai in connection with transporting his enormous quantities of heroin into the United States.

23. The United Nations headquarters in New York City are known to be also the very headquarters for Communist espionage operations in the United States. And with Red China in the UN this situation will become tremendously worse. Why should we be so stupid as to help our enemies in every way that we can to weave the rope with which to hang us?

24. And why pay for it all besides? We have one vote in the UN General Assembly out of 135. Yet a two-thirds voting majority of that General Assembly can be formed out of nations which, all together, pay only five percent of the UN budget. While in one way of another our country finances about forty percent of the total expenditures of the United Nations and all of its worldwide agencies. Why should we be so stupid? Especially since all of that money is being used by the Communist United Nations, directly or indirectly, for the purpose of destroying the independence of our nation and the freedom of our people.

tapes. For much the same reasons, there is great skepticism about hints from the White House that Mr. Nixon might voluntarily hand over the tapes if not compelled to do so by the courts.

President's favor for political reasons that would not be considered by a lower court. To prevent the worst confrontation yet in a year of governmental chaos, they hope, the high court might save Mr. Nixon from any need to defy it.

rules against him, Mel Laird will make that last final effort to urge presidential compliance. The present climate at the White House strongly suggests that he would lose, and Richard Nixon would face a crisis dwarfing even Watergate and the Agnew affair.

Complacency

Edward Teller remarked recently on an indifferent attitude on the part of young people toward science and technology.

Can this apparent apathy be due only to a nonmaterialistic approach to society, as some have suggested? If this is true, some cold and hungry people may, in not many years, be wondering why electric guitars became museum pieces.

Or is the indifference Prof. Teller noted traceable to a conviction in the minds of some young people that there is not now any technical work worth doing?

A National Science Foundation report to the President has recommended that some way be found to establish "indicators" that will show the country just where it stands in science and technology.

Some standards the report mentions include scientists and engineers engaged in research and development work per 10,000 population (25), percentage of Gross National Product spent on such R & D (2.6), number of patents registered, volume of scientific literature and so forth. The report points out that none of these taken alone is conclusive. The question is not whether the Soviet Union has more than the U.S., but whether either country has the right number.

However, there is one indicator that can't be ignored: Some scientific and technological problems are not being attacked with what some Americans consider to be acceptable urgency.

Is there a crash program to solve the problem of energy shortages? Can science help fight inflation? Advantages have been found previously in comparing U. S. progress to that of the Soviets.

The first Soviet sputnik in the 1950s sent a shock through the U. S., and generated a space program which has brought this country to where astronauts circle in space continuously for weeks and months with negligible public notice.

Perhaps a realization that this nation is trailing in some fields will cause it to speed up, not necessarily with the idea of winning a race, but on the basis that more could be done to solve the problems at hand. Complacency still remains the foe of progress.

MR. SPECTATOR

The Perspective

It has to be some sort of perspective. Within a few minutes in time the other day three business jets (the small ones) landed and took off from the Twin Falls City-County Airport enroute from here to there.

Total value of the three planes about $6 million.

That same day the people of the Twin Falls school district authorized bonds in the amount of $3.5 million to be issued for school buildings, rooms, etc. And here some people thought that $3.5 million was a lot of money. It's just all in the way you look at it, we guess.

FUEL SHORTAGE

Three major airlines — United, American and Trans World — are getting together to reduce competitive flights to reduce fuel use. In many cases planes from each line go from one place to another at the same time with only about half a load of passengers.

Which reminds us that even in Salt Lake City there are two flights leaving from there to San Francisco (Western and United) within five minutes of each other.

GIVEAWAY DEPT.

We have seven pups to give away. The mother is a cross between a Dingo and German Shepherd. Three of the pups have natural bobbed tails. Four are males and three females and four are pure white. They are real cute. See them at the Chuck Hartman place one and one-half miles south of the southeast corner of Buhl or call 543-4763.

FIREPLACE WOOD

Here we sit with no fireplace. We used to have a dilly in our former home but our present living quarters do not have one.

Everyone else with a fireplace is stocking up with wood to cut down on the use of electricity and gas. Which brings us to remind you that if you want to get burning wood you had better hurry — it will soon be in short supply.

GOOD RESULTS

The results of the school bond election in Twin Falls showed that our citizens, if the need is made known, will support a project. But don't get any wild ideas that people here vote for anything! Needs are responded to — yes! Unnecessary things are turned down — yes! And that's the way it should be.

But this one thing concerns us. The bond publicity termed the old Lincoln school building a firetrap. So what do we do — let the kids continue to use it even after the warning has been given? And who would be to blame if a real and tragic fire did break out in the building?

AN OLD FRIEND

Dick Moon, from up Boise way and an official (public relations) with Mountain Bell dropped in to chat. He, at one time, was a reporter on this old newspaper. He's some guy — always smiling and you would be shocked if you know how many people in Twin Falls still remembered him and still responded to him in a very warm and friendly manner. Which all means, we would point out, that he is an unusual fellow.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE:

A problem child is one who puts two and two together and gets your number.

A Thought

For the scripture says, "You shall not muzzle an ox when it is treading out the grain," and, "The laborer deserves his wages." — I Timothy 5:18.

Every man should make up his mind that if he expects to succeed, he must give an honest return for the other man's dollar. — Edward H. Harriman, American railroad magnate.

Presidential defiance of the high court, Mr. Nixon's aides admit privately, would set off impeachment proceedings in the House. Even if the House voted down impeachment, this ultimate threat to Mr. Nixon's political legitimacy would further disrupt the nation. For that reason, Nixon administration officials hope the Supreme Court will make an essentially political decision and avert the constitutional crisis by ruling in Mr. Nixon's favor.

By a tortuous process of reasoning, the burden of avoiding yet greater turmoil, therefore, rests with Mr. Nixon but with the Supreme Court. Since the President has made up his mind, Nixon partisans insist it is now up to the court whether or not to provoke an historic constitutional confrontation.

Nor does this seem an elaborate and not so subtle presidential bluff. Many prominent Republicans in Congress, the administration and even the White House itself genuinely believe today that Mr. Nixon will never surrender the tapes. Butressing that conclusion are these new items of evidence:

Item: Presidential counselor Melvin R. Laird, who alone among Mr. Nixon's senior advisers urged him to turn over the tapes to special prosecutor Archibald Cox in the first place, is readying an eleventh-hour effort to urge compliance with a possible court order. Laird says he trusts and hopes that no such final decision has yet been made by the President, but he leaves the impression he is not at all confident in either his hope or trust.

Item: Highly placed officials who last summer were stressing that no decision had been finally made now refuse to discuss that question one way or another. But at the same time, they give the distinct impression that Mr. Nixon has crossed his Rubicon and will never surrender the tapes.

Item: The July 26 statement by assistant press secretary Gerald Warren that Mr. Nixon would obey a "definitive" Supreme Court order to surrender the tapes is now virtually disowned in private by Mr. Nixon's lawyers. They tell friends the word "definitive" has never been used in White House discussions and is not a precise legal term. So, where in the world Gerry Warren got it from is something they say they wonder about.

What complicates the thinking at the White House is the absolute certitude of Prof. Charles Alan Wright, Mr. Nixon's lawyer, that the Supreme Court will rule in the President's favor. There seems an almost desperate desire by both the President and his senior aides to believe Wright.

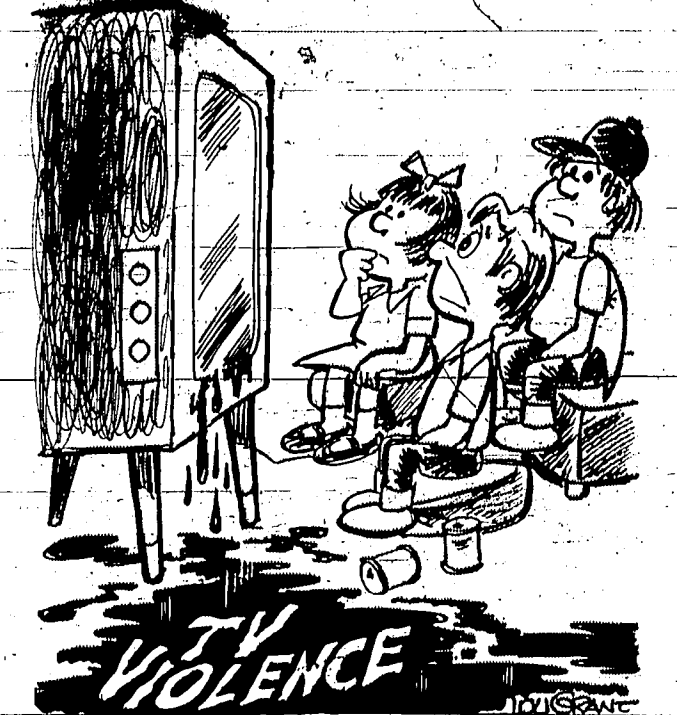

Their belief was not shaken by last Friday's decision against the President by the U.S. court of appeals here. "What else would you expect from that bunch of liberals?" asks one presidential aide. One political figure who usually reflects Mr. Nixon's views believes that the Supreme Court will understand that any order to hand over the Watergate tapes would sabotage the presidency. He believes "those wise old men on the Supreme Court" will not want to open the floodgates for a torrent of lawsuits by Watergate conspirators, J. Calley and scores of other federal defendants to loot the secret White House tape closet.

To highly respected lawyers in Washington (including some high in the Nixon administration) such an argument is nonsense. They believe a plan for selective release of portions of the tapes is feasible and hence suspect that the President is truly most worried about what's on the President's favor for political reasons that would not be considered by a lower court. To prevent the worst confrontation yet in a year of governmental chaos, they hope, the high court might save Mr. Nixon from any need to defy it.

A Story Recalled

WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary Rogers Morton's proud announcement that Federal agencies had dropped their winter thermostat settings by four degrees, to a range of 70-72, to save fuel this winter recalls a Winston Churchill story.

Churchill loved his comfort and convenience and he was annoyed when his valet fell ill on the eve of a visit to the Riviera villa of the actress, Maxine Elliot. So as he trudged up the steps of Maxine's elegant pad his first words were: "Do you realize, my dear, that I've come all the way across France without my man?"

"Oh Winston!" cooed Maxine. "How brave!"

Elliot-wise, Secretary Morton obviously believes Federal workers will be roughing it come December and deserve both sympathy and admiration. They won't get either from me. If the thermostats have been lowered to a range of 70-72 degrees, that means they formerly were set at 74 to 76 degrees, which may explain why so many government workers came home well-dressed despite the capital's numbing cold that sometimes drops the mercury as low as 25 degrees.

It may also provide a clue as to why, sometimes, so little work is done in official Washington. My trade forces me to visit numerous government offices in wintertime and the warmth in which those bureaucrats bundle themselves can only be described as approaching that of a miniature Hell. The blast of hot air that greets a visitor makes him curse his carelessness in not packing a bathing suit in his overcoat pocket.

Any temperature above 70 degrees is for roasting pork, not protecting a human animal from the ague. If a body wants to sweat, he should move to Miami Beach or Beirut, the nearest saunas. Most doctors, even some who hold oil and gas stocks, will depose that the common cold thrives in overheated rooms and that telling, as it were, on a revolving spit makes emergence into the outdoors perilous. But the record shows that these assorted sawbones preach to the unregenerate. Affluence has made Americans extremists in the matter of indoor temperatures. Just as we convert our homes and offices into blast furnaces come autumn's first down, so do we turn them into deep freezers in summer's heat.

Especially in Washington, where July is bearable only for the banker who has just donated two pints of ice water to the Red Cross, a heavy hand is used on the air conditioning controls. The theory seems to be that if the temperature outside is at the boiling point, the indoors should be chilled to the frigid setting at which strong men are seized with malarial shakes. Off for a summer evening at certain homes, I have taken to cunningly acoutering myself in heavy tweeds to ward off pneumonia.

Contrariwise, there are those frugal and snobbish householders — happily in a minority — who overdo the fuel-saving bit when blizzards are raging. In certain circles, it is thought very British to offer guests a mere 60 degrees of warmth when the outdoor thermometer says a freeze has arrived.

A friend noted for his irascibility solved that problem when he found himself sitting down to a dinner table whose mutton was congealing in what appeared to be cold air issuing from the radiators. He offered his host $20, cash money, to turn up the thermostat "so my teeth will stop chattering."

The heat arrived in somewhat less than due course, but George was not invited back.

'Plumbers' thought foreigners pressured Ellsberg

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House plumbers were convinced that Daniel Ellsberg was pressured by a foreign power into publishing the Pentagon Papers, Egil — Bud Krogh, head of the secret unit, said today.

Krogh said "this was something the unit believed" when E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy burglarized the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971.

"There was a belief I would describe it as working hypothesis — that there had been direct foreign involvement in the disclosure of the Pentagon Papers.

"We weren't sure to what extent, and it was imperative that we try to determine whether Ellsberg was operating under pressure from another power — this is something that the unit believed at that time," Krogh told United Press International in an interview.

Krogh, 34, has admitted responsibility for the break-in, but said "all of the work" of the plumbers "was presented to me as a matter of the most urgent national security in 1971 by the President." He did not, however, say the President ordered the Ellsberg burglary.

"All of the work of the plumbers, as I viewed it then and as I view it today, was designed to serve the interest of national security," he said.

But Krogh said he now feels the mission was a mistake. "It was an overreaction to the circumstances on our part, but we felt we were doing the right thing at that time," he said.

Krogh indicated he believed the unnamed foreign power might have been using Ellsberg to damage President Nixon's strategy to end the Vietnam war.

He said the unanswered question about Ellsberg was this: "Was he in fact involved with another power or not?"

"That, to us related directly to the ability of the President to negotiate an end to the Vietnam war. Was he (Nixon) actually being fought by another power in this way?" That, Krogh said, was the question the plumbers asked.

Krogh pleaded innocent Thursday to two counts of lying before a Watergate grand jury about the operations of the plumbers. He also had been indicted by a Los Angeles grand jury investigating the burglary of Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office.

FBI probing Indian's death

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — FBI agents entered the tension-filled Pine Ridge Indian Reservation Thursday to investigate the shotgun death of Pedro Bissonette amid charges by the American Indian Movement (AIM) that the militant Indian was "assassinated" by the federal government.

Bissonette, 33, a leader of the 71-day armed takeover of Wounded Knee last spring, was killed Wednesday night on a highway four miles north of Pine Ridge. Officers were trying to arrest Bissonette on two warrants, one stemming from his Wounded Knee activities, when he advanced on them with a gun.

Early today about 30 supporters of AIM who were holding a vigil at the Pine Ridge Public Health Service Hospital dispersed without any incidents.

"There is no doubt about the fact that the federal government assassinated Pedro Bissonette," Russell Means, another AIM leader said Wednesday. "They tried to kill him several times before."

Means issued a call to all

"Wounded Knee veterans," AIM members and others, to meet in Minneapolis, Minn., Monday and to go Pine Ridge to the Bureau of Indian Affairs and "battle the question of law and order on the reservation once and for all." It was a BIA officer that shot Bissonette.

Dick Wilson, Oglala Sioux tribal president and an anti-AIM supporter, said he would support the BIA police against the accusations of AIM leaders until and unless they are proved guilty of wrongdoing.

Bissonette's body was flown to Scottsbluff, Neb., where an autopsy was performed by a pathologist Thursday in an attempt to settle the dispute over how Bissonette met his death.

Meanwhile, BIA Police Chief Del Eastman ordered his officers on maximum 12-hour shifts when the crowd gathered round the hospital.

Israel snags war settlement talks

By United Press International
 Consultations to end the Middle East war were reported at the highest U.S., Soviet and Egyptian levels Thursday but hope for a quick settlement was tempered by conflicting official Israeli views on whether an outside peace plan would be accepted.

In Washington, President Nixon and his chief aides were continuing "delicate diplomatic contacts" with Arab and Israeli officials in search of a peace plan but while there were some signs of optimism, no concrete results were reported.

In Cairo, the Middle East News Agency said Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin had left the Egyptian-capital after holding three "lengthy" meetings with President Anwar Sadat. Diplomatic sources said Kosygin's mission was to "probe the possibility" of a cease-fire, but the nature of the talks was not revealed.

Israeli diplomatic sources at the United Nations said the only immediate prospect for ending the fighting would be an in-place cease-fire. Barring that, they said, Israel could be expected to mount an all-out offensive against the Arabs within the next two days or so.

In Jerusalem, however, a senior Foreign Ministry official told UPI reporter Peggy Polk that Israel and the United States both oppose an in-place cease-fire. He also rejected any moves toward an outside peace plan and said the war will end only through direct Arab-Israeli negotiations.

While the specific purpose of Kosygin's trip to Cairo was not revealed, diplomatic sources in Moscow said he was probably playing a conciliatory role, trying to convince Sadat to accept a cease-fire that would give Egypt the west bank of the Suez Canal.

In Washington, deputy press secretary Gerald Warren told newsmen Nixon and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had intensified their contacts with Arab and Israeli leaders and were optimistic about the possibilities of a cease-fire. He said Nixon met for an hour with Kissinger, who then briefed the cabinet on the situation.

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey, however, said there had been no significant progress in the past 24 hours. He said the administration was not in a position to confirm reports in congressional circles that there might be a "break in the situation" in the next several days.

At the United Nations, the Israeli diplomatic sources said an in-place cease-fire would leave the forces of both sides remaining where they are at present.

This would mean, they said, that Israeli forces would stay for the present in a distance of 15 miles—within artillery range—from Damascus, that their

Gem PTA meet set

McCALL (UPI) — Statewide membership of the Idaho Parent Teachers Association Saturday will vote on whether to support a strong separate department of public school instruction.

The issue is one of several legislative proposals facing the group at its annual state convention today and Saturday at Shore Lodge, Mrs. Verna Fuller, Boise, president of the PTA, said members also will be asked to go on record as favoring election of State Superintendent of Public Instruction on a non-partisan ballot. Idaho voters previously have rejected such a proposal.

The state executive reorganization commission has stated publicly it is uncertain on what recommendation to make regarding the entire education structure in Idaho.

The two day session will feature addresses by Elizabeth Mallory of New York, outgoing national president of the PTA; Superintendent of Public Instruction D. F. Engelking; and Jay Sheldy, investigative reporter for the Lewiston Morning Tribune.

There also will be workshop sessions and panel discussions before the convention concludes with a banquet Saturday night.

Andrus rips 'fast-buck artists'

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus told an environmental and land use planning conference Thursday that "we want and welcome growth in Idaho so long as it is on our terms."

"No longer will we be content to shut our eyes and let some fast-buck artist rip up our land, cheat our people and then move on, hiding behind the magic words 'progress,' 'economic activity,' or 'growth,'" he told a luncheon session of the meeting sponsored by the Idaho Farm Bureau Federation.

He said the land is the basis of Idaho's quality and Idahoans must not let it be thoughtlessly destroyed.

Much new development in the state, he said is not paying its way.

"It brings new costs far in excess of new revenues," he said. "Existing taxpayers already taxed to the limit are being asked to pick up the tab.

"Compounding the problem is the fact that much of Idaho's prime agricultural land is being gobbled up in the process," he said, citing developments west of Boise instead of into the foothills north and northeast of the city where he said it should be.

"We hop, skip and jump all over the countryside, putting housing in one place and stores in another and jobs somewhere else," he said.

"In the process prime farm land is gobbled up with no thought to the expense and effort that will be required to get an equal amount of dry land back into production by the same laborious process of clearing and irrigating."

Then, he said, the problem is compounded by tying the unplanned developments together with a complex of highways through more prime farm land.

He called for a halt to this sort of thing and suggested nine points land use planning legislation, now under consideration, should contain:

- New and more effective tools for planning and zoning commissions.
- Balanced representation on all planning and zoning commissions.
- State review and comment on local plans.
- Some kind of statewide land use planning process for developing state policies, state guidelines and official state positions that can provide a framework for local planning agencies.

Auditor Williams asks state-owned land sale

BOISE (UPI) — State Auditor Joe R. Williams called Thursday for sale of all state-owned cropland as soon as the land department completes its inventory of such holdings.

"I think the state of Idaho should be in the agriculture business," Williams told fellow members of the land board while they were considering a new formula for assessing the state's cut on sharecropper agreements.

"I think all cropland definitely committed to agriculture should be sold to the farmers. We should put it up for sale and put it on the tax rolls."

David Tidwell of the land department told the board that an inventory of cropland now is 83 percent complete and should be finished by next year.

He proposed and the board approved that the rental rate on lands not yet inventoried be doubled. On lands which have been inventoried, he said, the rate should be based on the average of grain prices for 1971, 1972 and 1973.

Tidwell said, the state received an average of $3 per acre for its croplands before it began inventorying them. He said those the department has inventoried now produce an average of $6.25 per acre in revenue.

"To allow time for board members to become thoroughly familiar with the new formula the board put off action on it until its November meeting.

Meantime, the board approved a land swap with airport owner Jack Hoke, Boise, which will enable expansion of the Strawberry Glen Airport along the Boise River near Boise. It is subject to environmental considerations.

It okayed a proposal to turn over to the Pilgrim Cove Lessees Association at Payette Lakes near McCall the state-operated Pilgrim Cove water system.

And it authorized spending up to nearly $13,000 on a sewerage treatment facility and cost estimate study for Indian Creek-Pinto Point area of Piest Lake.

But it put off until November consideration of a bridge in the narrows between upper and lower Twin Lakes in Kootenai County.

Earlier, state parks director Steve Bly told the board he will ask the next legislature for $1,430,000 to build a sewage and water system at Heyburn State Park.

Gem nuke monitoring eyed

BOISE (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission says it has no objections to Idaho monitoring its national reactor testing station near Idaho Falls for possible radiation leaks.

But the Washington, D. C. office of the Atomic Energy Commission said it would have to turn down a proposal for AEC to pay for such off-site surveillance because it does not have the funds.

In a letter to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, AEC Chairman Dixie Ray, said the state proposal for independent monitoring "appears to be well conceived."

"However," the letter said, "we regret that AEC does not have funds in its current appropriation to pay for such a state underwriting and are doubtful that authorization could be obtained for such a program."

Earlier, the Department of Environmental and Community Services put together a proposal asking the AEC to pay for the state to monitor the AEC's national reactor testing station, because of indications that there were possible leaks.

An official at DECS said the only monitoring activity the state was presently doing was to check information sent to it by the AEC.

DECS administrator James A. "Bax" said the federal government ought to pay for the monitoring. He made the statement after a Los Angeles Times article said there was possible radioactive leaks into Idaho's ground water.

Andrus later wrote a letter to Chairman Ray asking that the monitoring program be funded by AEC. He sent a copy of the proposal with a cover letter.

"We are in agreement with your desire to develop and maintain a state environmental surveillance capability," Chairman Ray said. "Toward achieving this goal, we would be happy to

Texas town UFO 'host'

By United Press International
A small fishing and farming town on the Texas coast is making itself the official host for all the UFOs reported in American skies.

"It just occurred to me that no one has ever made those little fellows welcome," Mayor W. C. Jackson of Palacios (population 4,000) said Thursday. "So we—the town council—issued a proclamation to make it official."

Jackson said next Wednesday between the hours of 1 and 5 p.m. would be designated as Palacios' First Annual UFO Fly-in Day at the municipal airport.

Reports of "strange" flying objects were just about as common as explanations for their existence from coast to coast Thursday, but police at New Albany and Clarksville, Ind., staked out a field where UFOs had been reported and made three captures.

What the police caught was three plastic trashbags with wooden crosspieces supporting tiny lighted candles.

"It really gave the feeling of the real thing," one officer said. "It glows and is kind of spooky looking." He blamed the

Lesson given

TWIN FALLS — "On Any Day" was the subject of the cultural at a Wednesday meeting of Sigma Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at the home of Mrs. Sue Cummins.

The Halloween party planned for Oct. 27 was discussed. Plans were made for the annual flea market Dec. 1 at the Presbyterian Church.

A white elephant sale was held following the meeting while refreshments were served.

creations on local children. Traffic backed up for miles near Greenwood, Del., as motorists stopped to stare at a bright orange disk. It was proved to be a seven-foot hoop dotted with orange lights and powered by a fire-department generator. Five local volunteer firemen were charged with disorderly conduct.

Residents at Bedford, Mass., reported mysterious flashing objects to police. They turned out to be a search light marking the opening of a new store.

Not all of the sightings reported Thursday night were explained so easily.

Outside Minneapolis-St. Paul, patrolman Bradford Roy said he saw a "flying pancake triangle" with red and white lights that darted through the sky in silence.

More than 50 residents in the Florida panhandle reported UFOs, some flying in formation. Clinton Chiles and Toby Howell of Mary Esther, Fla., told police they were trout fishing when they spotted an object 1,000 feet above the water.

"It lit up the entire area and made no noise and slowly moved out to sea," they said.

Hundreds of Ohio residents flooded police and sheriffs' switchboards with frightened calls of very bright white lights moving through the sky.

L.J. Lorenzen, director of the Aerial Phenomena Research Organization in Tucson, Ariz., said the sightings result from Americans' need for diversions from scandals at home and wars abroad.

"We have so many problems of our own such as scandals and wars that the diversion is welcome," he said. "People are also tending to view the phenomena with more respect and less ridicule than ever before, which has encouraged more people to report what they see."

THESE FOUR strange lights were captured on film by a Columbus, Ohio, Evening Dispatch photographer after law enforcement officers reported receiving more than 150 calls from persons claiming they had seen UFOs in different parts of Ohio. (UPI)

Funeral business probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) has opened the first stage of an investigation into the funeral home business to determine if Americans are being cheated by the $1.8 billion-a-year industry.

The pilot project, announced Thursday by the FTC's bureau of consumer protection, involves 76 funeral homes in the District of Columbia. They were ordered to submit within 20 days, under oath, answers to questions about their rates, whether their rates were posted and whether every customer is quoted the same prices.

"There is a total lack of price information available to consumers with regard to funerals," said J. Thomas Rosch, director of the consumer bureau. "But after a house, car and perhaps a wedding, funerals are the most expensive item facing a family."

The study, Rosch said, is a pilot project whose results we want to assess before moving on a nationwide basis. There have been complaints coming in to the FTC from around the country, he added, and the question may eventually be the subject of hearings by the agency.

Prices being charged by the nation's 22,000 funeral parlors, Rosch said, range from about $400 for the simple pine box with no viewing or other amenities, up to perhaps $2,000. There is no hard evidence that prices are fixed, he said. The FTC's investigation will range into other aspects of the business, including the relationship of cemetery arrangements to the funeral homes.

Floodlights lure UFO's

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — If a Martian in a flying saucer spots a blinking circle of colored lights and lands on a rocky hillside near Lake Travis, Ray Stanley figures he will have saved the U.S. government $995,000.

He bought 100 outdoor flood lights, 6,000 feet of wire, an old record turntable, a long extension cord and assorted electronic gadgetry for less than $5,000.

With the equipment set up in a circle—and with a little luck—Stanley hopes to lure a bona fide UFO to within camera range, if not to an actual landing, and record history's first contact with an extraterrestrial being.

"If the government had gone to the trouble to set up this kind of thing, it would have cost about $1 million," Stanley said as he adjusted the equipment in the fading evening light.

Stanley and the crew of 15 volunteers who comprise Project Starlight International, a division of the Society for the Understanding of Man, began plotting UFO reports five years ago.

"One curve indicates a rash of sightings about every 26 months, which people immediately notice as the Martian approach cycle," he said.

Maybe 10 per cent of the people would say there is no such thing as a UFO, but many people want to believe, and many people want to see it.

The group designed the circle of lights, which they say is visible from 150 miles above the hillside. The lights are shaded with the colors of the rainbow—red, orange, blue, green, yellow, indigo and violet.

In the center of the circle is the record turntable, converted into a switching device which fires off an electrical charge to six of the 150-watt light bulbs every quarter second. A bright white spotlight sends three short bursts of light and a long glow to convey logic to any intelligent being who might spot it from above.

"The whole system represents the hydrogen atom, the basic building block of the universe," Stanley said.

More than a score of aircraft pilots saw the light in the first hour of darkness Thursday night, but if any passing spacemen passed by they didn't stop for a closer look.

A special anniversary service is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at which Rev. Donald Waterwood, pastor of Immanuel Lutheran Church, Twin Falls, will speak. Soloists will be Mrs. Jim Hopkins and Mrs. Gary Bohling.

The congregation will hold a potluck continental dinner in the church parlors at noon. Youth of the church, directed by Martin Woth, will decorate the dining area for the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Voorhees, youth counselors, will assist.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Spreiter will act as host and hostess for the event. Mrs. Donald Schroeder and Mrs. Spoeber will serve as organists.

Mrs. Neil Stiegemeier, Mrs. Sam Middleton and Del Wuebberhorst are in charge of arrangements for the event. St. John's Lutheran Church was started as a mission in 1937, and officially organized as a congregation in 1943, under the pastoral leadership of Rev. Louis Witte, now deceased.

After worshipping in various rented churches in the community, a school-chapel was erected and dedicated in 1946 on the corner of 12th and Poplar.

This building served the congregation's needs until 1956, when a permanent church building was dedicated on the same corner. During the ensuing years, the congregation has been served by the Pastors Wiebel, Reimnitz, Hilgendorf, Treit, and presently R. J. Scholz.

Charter members of the congregation still affiliated with the congregation are Sam Dussa, Emil Hahn, John James and Theodor Rangen. Along with their wives, they will be given special recognition during the services as well as at the dinner.

The public is cordially invited to attend or participate in any of the activities.

BISHOP VICTOR L. BROWN, presiding bishop of the LDS Church, will speak at the Twin Falls West Stake conference Saturday and Sunday at the stake center, 600 Harrison St. Joel A. Tate, stake president, said visitors are welcome and a youth conference is set for 8 a.m.

Burley coed retires from position

CALDWELL. — The idea of retiring from an important position at the age of 19 seldom occurs to many today's young people.

But that is the situation confronting Anne Schorzmann, of Burley, who for the past year has served as vice-moderator of the Synod of the Pacific of the United Presbyterian Church (UPC) in the U.S.A.

She has been the only vice-moderator of any synod in the country who is a woman and a youth. In addition to her duties as vice-moderator, she currently is a junior English major at the College of Idaho.

Miss Schorzmann was appointed to the position of vice-moderator at the meeting of the Synod of the Pacific last fall in Reno by the elected moderator, Rev. George H. Pike, minister of the First Presbyterian Church, Vancouver, Wash.

"Anne has been a real asset as vice-moderator of the synod. She has been a positive and forceful advocate for youth having an active role in the church. Anne has provided insights into synod matters that older members often overlooked," Pike stated.

Miss Schorzmann became involved in church work during her high school years when she was selected an elder of the First Presbyterian Church in Burley. She then became active with Christian Education work on both the presbytery and synod level.

During her senior year of high school, she was a youth advisory delegate to the General Assembly of the UPC in Denver. She is also a member of the Synod Missions Council, which determines what business will be considered at the Synod meetings.

Her current interest is the establishment of Young Adults

Advocates Groups within the Synod. At the synod of the Pacific meeting, now underway in Boise and on the C of I campus, she hopes to get by mission to schedule a retreat for young adults in the Synod in order to establish these groups on a local level.

As part of her duties as vice-moderator, she participated in the last Synod meeting and will participate in the worship service in the upcoming meeting. She has made several speaking appearances, including one at Boone Memorial Presbyterian Church in Caldwell where she explained the importance of the upcoming Synod meeting to their church and to the C of I.

"Love thy enemy..."

This is a religious precept that challenges the mind. Love my enemy when I can barely deal calmly with my in-laws? Yet this hard saying has validity in a world where even a small act of violence has such unforeseeable repercussions. Scientific advances have heightened our mutual vulnerability. Only love and non-violence can sustain us. We may concede violence is in all of us. So is God. Try His way. It works. Firms idle oil acres

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — The nation's oil companies are withholding from production untold quantities of badly needed oil and natural gas kept in shut-in wells on nearly a million acres of the most productive federal offshore lands, two Federal Power Commission economists testified Thursday.

George L. Donkin and John W. Wilson told a Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee hearing that the oil companies alone have the detailed information that can measure the relationship between the idle acreage and the present oil and gas shortages.

Further, the economists contended, figures supplied to the FPC by some of these companies for study of gas reserves were in many cases misleading and inaccurate, since some major producers with thousands of acres of shut-in wells in the offshore Louisiana fields filed reports with the commission claiming they had no available reserves.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the hearings, said he was baffled over why the companies could not obtain adequate information to document the extent of the natural gas shortage.

He said it "seems that there is a tremendous kind of juggling of figures and hiding behind a number of semantic differences" in connection with the type of data the oil companies are providing to federal agencies.

The subcommittee is investigating the circumstances surrounding an FPC staff member's attempted destruction of back-up data used by the commission to determine the extent of the natural gas shortage. Some of the information the economists used came from documents in question, while other information was provided by the Bureau of Land Management.

Strom expecting again

GAFNEY, S. C. (UPI) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and his wife, Nancy, are expecting a third child 'early next year,' the senator announced today.

Thurmond will celebrate his 71st birthday in December. His wife is 27.

In an interview from his Washington home with radio station WAGI, Thurmond said the baby is due in early March.

"We are grateful that the Lord has given us two other beautiful children and we hope this one will be normal and healthy like the others."

The couple's first child, Nancy, was born in 1971, three years after their marriage in Aiken, Mrs. Thurmond, the former Nancy Moore, was once a Miss South Carolina beauty queen.

The radio station contacted the senator by phone shortly after he had completed a three-mile morning jog.

Tax reform proposed

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Tax reform advocates Thursday urged that legislation raising the federal debt ceiling be used as a vehicle for increasing the "minimum tax" on those who otherwise escape income taxation by manipulating so-called "loopholes" in the law.

The proposal came up as a new drive for tax reform opened in the House Ways and Means Committee.

The reformers contended that the present minimum tax, enacted in 1969, is so soft it is "pathetic." They proposed to raise an additional $4 billion of revenue by eliminating deductions and exemptions from the minimum tax and increasing the rate.

Democratic Reps. Brock Adams of Washington, John E. Moss of California, Henry

S. Reuss of Wisconsin and Frank Thompson Jr. of New Jersey, leading the reform drive, declared in a statement at a committee hearing Thursday that a "down payment" on comprehensive tax reform is needed this year to help overcome a "crisis in taxpayer confidence."

Charges that the Internal Revenue Service has been used to reward friends of the Nixon administration and punish enemies have undermined "public belief in the impartiality, incorruptibility and non-partisan nature" of the IRS, they said.

The Nixon Administration opposes the effort to attach tax reform to the debt bill, but the reformers believe the legislation would be vetoed, because the debt ceiling must be raised by the end of November.

Conservatives accuse WH of delaying rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A conservation group accused the White House Thursday of attempting to delay or kill proposed regulations designed to stop power plants from discharging heated water into streams.

The Sierra Club said John A. Love, White House energy adviser, had urged the Environmental Protection Agency not to issue the regulations, which it said were technically due Thursday.

The club made public two White House memoranda, one a report to Love on the situation and the second from Love to EPA Administrator Russell E. Train.

"To undermine regulation of thermal effluents is blatantly in violation of the new water law," the group said in a letter of its own to Train. "Such a weakening has been advocated by the electric utilities and it is now apparent that they have now met with sympathetic responses in the White House."

Thermal pollution — the discharge of hot water used during the course of making power — has been a subject of controversy because it raises the natural water temperature of a stream, driving out certain cold water fish, such as trout, and perhaps decreasing the amount of oxygen in the water.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a male, age 52, married for 30 years, and I am still very much alive in every respect. For several years now, my wife, who is a very attractive woman, has come to bed fully clothed in her uniform of pajamas which are buttoned high up around her neck and tightly secured at the waist, the wrists, and ankles. There is just no getting in anywhere. She also has yards of toilet tissue wrapped around her head to keep her hair intact, and the whole paper-head is covered with a ridiculous ruffled nightcap.

Helmet leaves him cold

I wish she would get one of those lovely nightgowns I have given her out of the drawer and wear it, so I could tell I was sleeping with a woman. I just can't stand those pajamas and that helmet!

Does any other man feel the way I do? I hope to see your answer before the fire goes out.

ANTI P. J.'S IN CAROLINA

DEAR ANTI: Yes, most of them do. Women, what are you saving your lovely, feminine nightgowns and hairdos for? It's later than you think.

A woman who goes to bed looking like a scarecrow reminds me of the bride who came to her own wedding in rollers—because she wanted to look nice for the reception.

DEAR ABBY: I am an 18-year-old virgin and proud of it. My problem is whether to remain a virgin. Half the guys I talk to want virgins for brides. The other half want girls with experience so they know what's going on when they're honeymooning. What do you think?

Another problem: One night my boy friend and I were sitting in his car making out in front of my house. We weren't doing anything indecent, but a nosy neighbor told my mother about it, and now she won't let me go out for a month.

Can you help me? MISS NO NAME

DEAR MISS: Stay sweet as you are. And endure your penalty like an obedient daughter. And don't ever make out in a parked car again. It's dangerous in more ways than two.

DEAR ABBY: We are 10 mothers writing this letter because we all have the same problem. We don't know what the laws of this state are pertaining to students' rights. Here are a few of our complaints:

1. If a teacher can't control the class, she marks everybody zero or "F" for the day.
2. If a student loses his money (or if it is stolen) he isn't allowed to use the phone to call home so someone can either bring him lunch money or lunch.
3. Do teachers (or principals) have the right to whip a kid without his parents' permission? (They do in this school.)
4. One child stayed out of school for religious reasons and in order to embarrass him the teacher asked the child to stand in front of the class and say a prayer.

MISSOURI MOTHERS

DEAR MOTHERS: You seem to have some legitimate complaints. Go to school and have a talk with the teacher and the principal. If you do not get satisfactory answers, appeal to the superintendent of schools. And as a last resort, there is always the Board of Education.

How could South have made the contract? Real easy. He should win that first spade with the ace, cash one trump, lead a diamond to dummy and ruff a diamond, enter dummy with the king of trumps, ruff another diamond, draw trumps, enter dummy with the king of spades, discard three clubs on the good diamonds and give up just one club trick.

Incidentally, we like North's five-heart bid. He had much more than his two-diamond bid had shown and no good way to show excess values without a bid beyond game.

Answer tomorrow.

Oswald & James Jacoby Where did you dig up that five-heart bid? growled North. Are you some sort of nut?

"I guess I am," replied North. "Anyone who expects you to take 12 easy tricks when you can find a way to make only 11 must be crazy."

After the 10 of spades was played from dummy at trick one, East held back his seven and South was delighted to win the dummy. He was delighted for a while, but later on, after he had drawn trumps and cashed his ace of spades and discarded two clubs (one on the king of spades and one on a

Robber requests decent funeral

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Ralph Carattini, in trouble with the law 13 of his 24 years, was worried about a decent burial. Ten minutes before he died the convicted bank robber wanted assurance he would be put away in style.

But barricaded in a seventh floor room of the Hotel John Marshall for four hours after firing at Richmond police, Carattini received no assurance. He died in room 738 as officers blasted the door with shotguns.

Carattini was found sitting in a chair, a rifle between his legs, and an apparently self-inflicted wound in the abdomen — fulfillment of a vow he made to kill himself before surrendering.

Jack D. Yancey, a case worker at Petersburg federal reformatory where Carattini was serving a seven-year term for bank robbery, was the last person to talk to him. Yancey stood outside the door of room 738 and tried to talk Carattini into coming out.

Carattini replies through the room of the downtown hotel were muffled. But shortly before police began their flurry of gunfire he asked Yancey to see that he got a good burial.

"There ain't no such thing as a decent burial," Yancey told him. "Burial is the most barbarous thing we have in our existence. There ain't no decent funerals, man."

Carattini ignored Yancey's plea to come out and put down his weapons.

Ten minutes later from the room there was a shout and a sound of breaking glass. A police officer yelled that Carattini jumped out the window.

Two more shots were heard. Police blasted at the door with shotguns. More shots from within were heard. Finally police blasted the door open. Carattini's body was inside.

Traffic drives couple from home

AUBURN, Wash. (UPI) — Traffic accidents literally have driven Mr. and Mrs. Donald Thompson out of their home three miles west of here on a 9-curve.

Five times in the past five years vehicles have come crashing into their house off the Auburn-Enumclaw Highway.

The most recent crash, on Monday, punched a 10-by-10 foot hole in their bedroom wall.

The Thompsons were in bed when books, wood and rubble landed on them.

Despite a compound fracture of her left arm, Mrs. Thompson managed to dig her way out and get aid for her husband, who was knocked unconscious.

Orange juice spiked

LAKELAND, Fla. (UPI) — At least 15 persons have been hospitalized in central Florida after drinking orange juice spiked with drugs which was dispensed at shopping centers.

An attractive woman described as in her late 20s, authorities said.

Authorities said the juice apparently was spiked with a strong tranquilizer-hallucinogenic substance that rendered victims unconscious minutes after they consumed it.

Authorities said the woman, wearing a "floppy hat," worked the Wabash Shopping Center near Lakeland Wednesday and the Orange Blossom Shopping Center at Orlando and a Daytona Beach jewelry store Tuesday.

In Orlando, Ralph Rech, manager of Gordon's Jewelry Store told how he and two other employees were victimized.

He said the woman, who said she was from the "International Survey Company," entered the store and asked them to sample two brands of orange juice.

Rech said he drank two half-inch vials labeled "Brand A" and "Brand B" as did two other employees, Edward Albert and Mrs. Cleo Richards.

Rech said one sample tasted like orange juice and the other was tasteless. He said the woman left the store smiling and in about 15 minutes he and the others felt the effects.

"I'm not sure what happened," he said. "But in about 15 or 20 minutes we'll become very dizzy and we were just looking at each other asking what was happening."

He said a young man then entered the store to have his watch band repaired and while he was examining it, the drug started to hit harder. He said he went into the restroom and apparently passed out.

He woke up about 3 a.m. today and it took me awhile to figure out what had happened," he said from his Orange Memorial Hospital bed.

Five drug companies agree to refunds

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Five major drug companies have agreed to pay a $1.14 million settlement in a suit alleging they overcharged Utah residents for antibiotic drugs during an 11-year period.

The Utah Attorney General's office Wednesday said the out-of-court settlement was the largest consumer settlement in the state's history.

Under terms of the agreement, $985,000 would be distributed to Utah consumers overcharged by American Cyanamid, Charles Pfizer and Co., Bristol-Meyers Co., Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., Squibb and the Upjohn Co. from 1954-66.

The suit was filed in 1968 in Utah and 48 other states, charging the companies with restraint of trade and conspiracy to monopolize the manufacture and sale of "broad spectrum antibiotics."

In 1969, Utah turned down a $350,000 settlement. In that year 43 of the other states reached an agreement with the companies.

Korean troupe performs

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — East met West through the charming medium of 31 talented Korean youngsters at the first Magic Valley-Community Concert of the season Wednesday night.

The audience, which filled the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium to capacity, loved the appropriately named Little Angels, breaking into appreciative applause several times mid-way through some of the difficult folk dance formations which require exceptional skill, such as the famed Fan dance.

The children, all outstanding individual ballet dancers selected through national contests in Korea, also sing with the same mixture of sweetness, innocence and professionalism, indicative of their extensive training and discipline.

Anyone watching the grace and agility with which they perform their sometimes almost furious movements, as in the Warrior and Mask dances, can realize how much energy the children expend.

And to keep up this pace, they must have at least one Korean meal daily, usually about an hour before performances, according to driver of their bus who has rather "adopted" the entire troupe.

Ray DeBoard, Kansas City, Mo., said he happened to be the driver assigned the group on its first United States tour and now they just call me wherever I am. Far more than a bus driver, DeBoard takes a fatherly interest in the youngsters, points out the sights and has even visited them in Korea.

He and his wife are raising two Korean children and plans to entertain the Little Angels in their home. The children understandably call him "Uncle."

He said the dancers need the Korean diet of rice and seaweed as American foods are too rich. However, the children have developed appetites for Kentucky fried chicken and French fries which are "gam-ja" in Korean.

While many of the dances the Little Angels perform deal with legends from Korea's long history and date back as much as 5,000 years, there is still a universality of the emotions portrayed.

The beautiful Dance of the Angels, pantomiming the love story of an angel and young shepherd and his grief when she returns to Heaven, would be understandable in any culture.

The dances portraying a wedding, spring time and harvest festival all touch on emotions shared by all mankind, including the deft portrayal of two "lions" whose long red tongues and mop-like manes added a humorous touch.

Any man loves a touch of Black Velvet.

Blaine asks stop in Gem land plan

By DAVID ESPINO

Times-News Boise Bureau
BOISE — Concerned about recent "very acute growing pains," the Blaine County Commission has appealed to the State Land Board not to select any new lands in that county.

New lands are lands now belonging to the federal government which the state may choose in exchange for state land chosen by the federal government. The newly acquired state land could be resold or put to other use by the state.

A letter from commission chairman C. W. Gardner to Land Board members said the commission questioned the wisdom of adding "2,500 acres of potential subdividable land under our present and probable future circumstances."

The letter continued, "After discussion the Blaine County Commission unanimously passed a resolution respectfully asking the Land Board of the State of Idaho not to select any" land in the county.

But some Land Board members disagreed. Attorney General W. Arthur Park said a letter should be written back to the commissioners explaining that they would be involved in any possible future decision to sell the lands to private interests.

State Supt. of Public Instruction D. F. Engelking was also skeptical saying, "I don't see any reason to grant their request at this time. I don't see why they are so shook up."

A total of 2,500 acres in Blaine County is under consideration for new lands, property now under federal jurisdiction that the state wants to acquire in exchange for land the federal government took from it in the past.

The Land Board also heard a proposal to raise the rent on state owned dryland and heard one member say the state should sell the land and get out of the "agriculture business."

State auditor Joe H. Williams said the state's interests would be better served if the approximately 55,000 state acres committed to dryland farming were put onto the tax rolls.

Williams made his remarks after a presentation by Land Department official David Tidwell, who said a three year reclassification of the lease agreements is nearing completion. Tidwell said a complicated formula had been devised to adjust the rates.

But he recommended that for lands that had not been inventoried the present rate should be doubled beginning

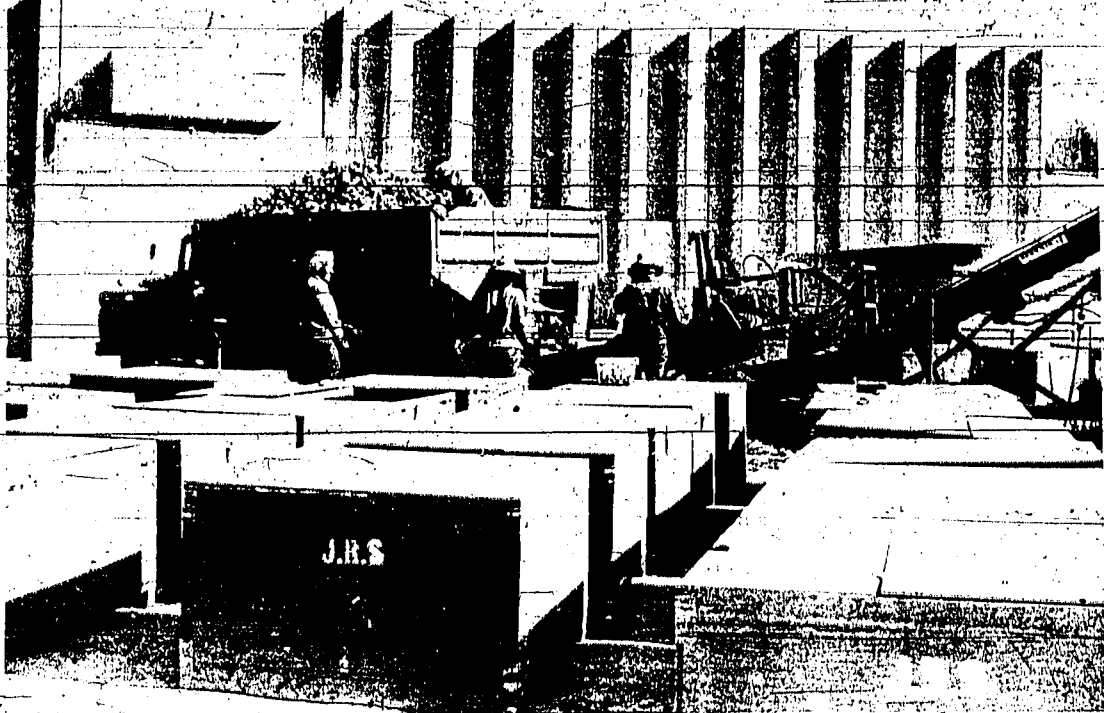

Jan. 1, 1974 and for lands that had been inventoried in recent years the rate should be adjusted using an average of grain prices for the past three years as a review factor. Under the plan, Tidwell said, there would be an annual review.

Secretary of State Pote Conarrasa asked why three years were used to compute the factor and asked for more time to look over the proposal. Action was deferred until the November meeting of the board.

Parks and Recreation Director Steve Bly also told Board members he would seek $1.4 million from the legislature next year to construct a sewage system at Heyburn State he hoped to have completed by 1975. Bly said his proposal would include linking float homes to the facility as well as cabins and commercial sites in the area. In other business: Representatives of residents of cabins on state land around Payette Lake and Priest Lake met with Board members and expressed concern about possible large hikes in their rental fees. Jerry Merryweather, of the Payette Cove Assn. warned the Board "some of the natives are getting a little restless up there on increased costs."

Gave approval for the exchange of state land for private land to permit the expansion of the Strawberry Glen Airport in Boise. The owner of the land told Board members he had gone through 11 state and local agencies to clear his plans and could see no reason for a recommended hearing to permit the agencies to discuss the plans again. Board members agreed.

New spud storage cellar busy at Jerome Potato storage cellar in operation at Jerome

JEROME — The newly completed Simplot potato storage cellar is in full operation east of Jerome on Highway 93.

The facilities completed in time for this year's potato harvest houses some of the most modern equipment available.

The cellar features four compartments measuring 60 feet wide, 30 feet deep and 16 feet high. Each compartment is capable of storing 125,000 sacks of potatoes.

Each section is automatically controlled for heat, humidity and air conditioning and maintains a temperature of 45 degrees.

Large conveyor belts that handle up to four truckloads at one time carry the potatoes into the cellar. With the new equipment a total of 15 trucks can be unloaded per-hour.

Bill Harding, foreman for Simplot, said about one-third of each load is sent as samples for grading.

One of the most modern scale houses is located at the cellar. "The scale can be operated by one person. The new equipment can weigh and stamp the weigh card in one operation," Harding said.

He predicted that at the peak of the harvest around 200 potato trucks will be weighed per day.

Trucks are sent over the scales from other potato storage cellars located at Bell Rapids, Hagerman and Heyburn.

Jerome school band tour OK'd

JEROME — The Jerome School Board, in a special meeting Thursday night, approved an Idaho tour for the high school band and denied the group's request for a California tour.

Terry Standley, band director, met with the board to request approval of a revised proposal of a tour to California he had been denied earlier. Standley had requested permission at the last school board meeting to take the band on an 11-day tour through the central part of California.

The revised proposal requested a 9-day tour using five school days as opposed to seven school days which would have been needed for the previous tour.

The request was denied on a three to one vote with Mrs. Cheryl Hymas casting the only affirmative vote. Board chairman Lyle Van Orman was not at the meeting.

Supt. John Campbell asked Standley what the band's "track record" was, or what achievements the band had made that would warrant approval of such a trip.

Standley told the board the only competition open to the band was the district music festival in which a superior rating has been awarded. He said some competition is available through the District Four Music Educators Association which he personally felt was a weak organization and would not want the band associated with it.

Carson Wong, choral director, denounced Standley's attitude toward the association, stating it was a fine organization and was proud to have the Chorallers a part of it.

Wong also explained the process he uses to plan trips for the Chorallers, noting that he prefers to schedule the students in small schools because the response is better than in larger schools where students look down on small towns.

Jack Nelson, Jerome, who assisted with the band tour last year, spoke highly of the job Standley had done in preparing the tour and how well the students behaved and helped.

The majority of the board agreed that the trip was still too long and that not enough experience had been gained by the band to plan a tour of the magnitude of the California trip.

The board, however, did approve a 3-day trip for the band to the Boise and McCall areas sometime in late March. The estimated cost of the Idaho tour is $850 as compared to $2,400 for the California trip.

Gem energy emergency not dependent upon feds

(Special) to the Times-News
BOISE — The head of the newly created Idaho Office of Energy said Thursday declaration of a state energy emergency isn't contingent upon a similar declaration at the federal level.

Robert Lenaghan said an attorney general's opinion written last month has established the authority of the Public Utility Commission (PUC) to "act in an emergency in allocating or cutting back energy to advance the interests of the people of Idaho."

Wednesday, Andrus combined the office with three other steps, that he said marked "the beginning of an era of voluntary and mandatory energy restrictions."

Lenaghan said in an interview his office would be preparing for the emergency it hoped would never arrive and would be declared only in extreme circumstances. "We will have all the preliminary work done in case of an emergency," he said. He said the state recognized that "all information available should be gathered in a central clearing-house so it can be presented to the governor or PUC for that reason the office has been established under my supervision."

Lenaghan said he expected a full-time staff would be hired and operating next week. He indicated he would be responsible for policy decisions and would hire someone else to oversee the "every day nitty gritty of the office."

He hinted broadly he would appoint a young staff member to serve as his deputy when he said his past experience in government to delegate large amounts of authority to young, inexperienced persons had been successful.

Lenaghan said the new office would cooperate with the states in the northwest.

Petitions verified on Filer recreation area

TWIN FALLS — Petitions for the creation of a Filer recreation district were filed and verified Thursday in the office of the Twin Falls County clerk.

Clerk Harold Lancaster said the petitions needed 200 names to call for an election on formation of the district and there were 245 proper signers.

He said the petition asks for creation of the district as a new taxing agency in the county and would follow the same boundaries as the present Filer Highway District.

petitions, an election will be held Nov. 27 for voters of the area covered by the highway district, to determine if the recreation district is to be formed. Filer Mayor Dan Kauffman and William Brake are directing efforts for the new district.

Brake said the district has been proposed to help finance maintenance and continued operation of recreational facilities in and around Filer.

Several years ago a new city park was built in Filer and last year swimming pool was added. The district sponsors hope to enclose the pool for year-around use later.

Brake said under the law a recreation district can levy up to three mills but it is believed one mill would be sufficient to meet present needs.

He said residents from the city and rural area around Filer use the existing recreation facilities and a district levy would mean those who benefit are helping pay costs rather than just the residents of the city of Filer.

Other recreation facilities could be added at a later time, he said, if a broader base of revenue is made possible.

Gooding land sold

BOISE — The State Land Board Thursday approved sale of over seven acres of state land needed for Interstate 80N construction in Gooding County.

The land was originally obtained by the state during negotiations for the proposed Malad River Gorge State Park, but is needed by the highway department. The approved sale price was $1,450.

CSI closes Monday

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho students and faculty will have a holiday Monday in observance of Veterans Day.

There will be classes as usual on Nov. 12, however, Louise Flowers in the office of CSI president, Dr. James Taylor, said when the schedule of school dates was made on Oct. 22 was the official Veterans Day.

Next year, she said, the college will change its policy to follow the Idaho Legislature's designation of Nov. 11 as the official Veterans Day.

Other schools in Twin Falls will remain open both days while federal offices, including the post offices in the valley, will be closed Monday.

State, city, county and most professional offices will close Nov. 12 to observe the official Veterans Day as designated in Idaho.

Idaho Supreme court to hear 14 cases in TF

TWIN FALLS — Fourteen cases will be heard by the Idaho Supreme Court when they convene Tuesday in Twin Falls for a one-week session.

The Twin Falls term of the court will hear 13 appeals to decisions and sentences in the Fifth Judicial District Court and will include a hearing on the petition for review of attorney Richard R. Black, Twin Falls.

He has petitioned the court for a review of disciplinary proceedings instituted against him by the commissioners of the Idaho State Bar.

Sessions in Twin Falls will continue through Oct. 30. Among appeals are two involving cattle theft charges: James B. Trowbridge, Shoshone, has appealed a five year state penitentiary sentence ordered by District Judge Charles Scoggin after he entered a plea of guilty to the theft of four calves while employed for Star Lake Cattleman's Association as a range rider.

Willis B. Webb, Gooding, appealed a similar sentence. A jury found him guilty of the theft of three calves. He contends he was deprived of equal protection of the law and due process of the law on grounds the theft of a calf is grand larceny while theft of an inanimate object of value less than $150 is petit larceny.

A co-defendant in the case who has not appealed, Irene Miller, was placed on supervised probation. The Webb case is scheduled for Oct. 30 at 1:40 p.m. The appeal of Trowbridge will be Oct. 21 at 9 a.m. and the Black hearing Oct. 26 at 10:30 a.m.

Other appeals to be argued in Twin Falls include that of George Lemon and Norman Sandak, Hagerman fish hatchery operators, appealing a decision by District Judge Theron W. Ward affirming a decision by the Idaho Department of Water Administration in their original case against Earl M. Hardy and Richard Kaster regarding a priority date on water rights in the Hagerman Valley area. This will be heard Wednesday at 9 a.m.

An appeal of a decision by District Judge James M. Cunningham in the case of Sterling H. Nelson and Sons against John Bender, commissioner of law enforcement, and Clark Hand, Idaho State Police superintendent, will be heard Oct. 29 at 10 a.m. The decision of the court required a change in certain highway weight limits, holding the state law on these limits to be unconstitutional.

Appellants in the case are the members of the Idaho Highway Board of Directors who argue they should have been allowed to intervene in the case.

Other appeals include the Commercial Credit Corp., appealing a Cassia County case decision by Judge Sherran Bellwood in its action against Chisholm Brothers Farm Equipment, Tuesday at 9 a.m.; Jim Warren appellant whose case was dismissed against Mark Hansen and Janet Hansen, to be heard Tuesday at 10:30 a.m.

The State of Idaho appealing dismissal of criminal information against Lois Nadine Jennings, charged with writing an insufficient fund check, Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.; Roy A. Miller appellant and Wanda K. Miller, respondent, with the appeal covering a child custody decision in favor of the defendant.

The appeal of the City of Burley in the case of Ardell and Lila

Daley, Max and Sheila Dayley against the city over a quiet title action on the part of the Dayleys in which the city was ordered to stop diverting storm sewer drainage to their property, to be heard Thursday at 9 a.m.

The appeal of Vernal Peterson from a verdict in favor of Orville J. and Rokunno Holland and John W. and Helen M. Holland regarding an automobile accident in Gooding County, at 9 a.m. Friday; the appeal of Norris Shaub from a judgment wherein he was found in contempt of court for violating the terms of an injunction prohibiting him from diverting water from the Mendini Tunnel to be heard Monday at 1:30 p.m.

The appeal of Arthur Peterson, Wendell, to a verdict in favor of Massey-Ferguson Credit Corp. over the purchase contract of farm equipment to be heard Oct. 30 at 9 a.m. and the appeal of George B. Saviers and other petitioners to action by Judge Scoggin refusing to issue a writ of mandate against the mayor and City Council of Halley in the matter of the Bainsmoot condominium access to be heard Oct. 30 at 10:30 a.m.

Milk price hike opposed

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON—In what officials privately termed a victory over dairy interests, the Cost of Living Council reported the Agriculture Department has opposed an increase this winter fluid milk prices paid to farmers.

Although the department's recommendation could be overruled by the White House, the council director, John T. Dunlop, indicated at a news briefing that he thought a reversal was unlikely.

As the topic was discussed on dry milk, imports of which have already been increased once this year by 100 million pounds. The quota had been 1.8 billion pounds. The council has recommended outright suspension of the quota, so that unlimited quantities may be imported for the duration of the suspension.

The council said it hoped to make a similar recommendation for cheese imports. The cheese quota also was increased by a specified amount earlier this year. But holders of import licenses, officials said, have not used them fully because the licenses also deal in domestic cheese and wanted to protect their prices.

The licenses are awarded on the basis of historical importing patterns, which makes it difficult for a newcomer to get a license.

Dunlop and Kenneth J. Feder, the council's senior food economist, reported that a recommendation for an increase in butter imports has been sent to Nixon. Grade A butter prices at wholesale climbed to 85.75 cents a pound on Oct. 5 from 61 cents on July 18.

Shortages "have been reported by trade sources and recent dramatic price increases verify a tight supply situation," the council said.

The wholesale price of a 40-pound block of Wisconsin cheddar cheese touched 84.5 cents a pound on Oct. 5, up from 60.25 cents a year earlier. Nonfat dry milk cost 49.69 cents a pound at wholesale, up from 35.50 a year earlier.

Butz hits high market profits

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Despite recent drops in wholesale cattle and hog prices, supermarkets have been fattening their profit margins instead of cutting beef and pork prices, according to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz.

Speaking to the National Association of Food Chains annual convention Wednesday, Butz conceded that the adjustment of meat prices is "no simple matter" because retailers reduced their price spreads earlier when uncontrolled live animal prices pushed up against ceilings on wholesale and retail meat.

"The food chains, for the most part, at least, did a magnificent job keeping as much meat as possible on the shelves during the price ceilings earlier this year," Butz said. "I realize you may be doing all you can to pass on to your customers as much price relief as possible—but that right now you are frankly playing 'catch up' to balance out these very slim or perhaps negative margins of last summer."

Both consumers and farmers, expect every cent that live animal prices decline to be passed on in the form of lower consumer prices "as quickly as possible," Butz said.

Grain reserve set

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Complying with a congressional directive, the Agriculture Department today designated 50 million bushels of government-owned oats as a "disaster reserve" to be sold at cut rates to farmers hit by droughts, floods or other emergencies.

The designated stock constituted about 8 percent of the 77 million bushels of oats owned by the department. Creation of the formerly reserved emergency stockpile had been required by a section of the new omnibus incumbent community committees will fill out the states.

Those eligible to nominate, run for office, and vote in ASC committee elections, include farm owners, tenants, age 18 or older, without regard to race, religion, color, sex or national origin—Idaho being a community property state allows both husband and wife to vote.

Clover seed yield rises

BOISE (UPI)—For the third consecutive year, Idaho's red clover seed production is expected to decline sharply, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

The service said the state's 1973 red clover seed production will drop to a new record low of 825,000 pounds, down 37 percent from 1972. The most recent survey shows that the 1973 crop will be harvested from 2,500 acres, compared with 4,000 acres last year.

Jones goes 7 under to lead Kaiser tournament

NAPA, Calif. (UPI) — Grier Jones, unless this year but needing a big pay check to top the $100,000 mark, shot a seven-under-par 65 Thursday to take the first-round lead in the $150,000 Kaiser International Open.

WHA assumes control of Blades as team can't meet payroll

NEW YORK (UPI) — The World Hockey Association took control of the New York Golden Blades Thursday night when the club was unable to meet the first salary payments of the season.

It was the second time in its many years that the league has had to come in and rescue the important New York franchise. Last year the WHA took control of the team on Nov. 15, after the 16th game of the campaign, and maintained it through the end of the season.

Brent, looking somber, said he was "hopeful" of regaining ownership. "I'm trying to do everything I can not to prejudice the position of this team," Brent said.

The Golden Blades have been burdened by the $20,000 rental fee they must pay Madison Square Garden for each home game, which dictates a crowd of at least 7,000 to break even.

Athletics recognize their series position very well

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dick Williams knows the feeling well. The Oakland A's manager is faced with either winning the next two games his team plays or finding himself the skipper of a club that loses the 1973 World Series to the New York Mets.

League pennant," Williams recalled, thinking back to his days as manager of the Boston Red Sox. "We beat Minnesota the two games and won the pennant so it can be done. "But, then I've also been in the situation the Mets now have, needing to win only one of the final two games in order to win the Series. It was in 1952 when I was with the Brooklyn Dodgers and we went home to Ebbets Field with a 3-2 lead but we lost the last two games and the Series to the New York Yankees. "Williams was in a fairly cheerful mood Thursday night even though the A's lost to the Mets 2-0 as New York took a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven game series. "We'll go back to Oakland and try our best Saturday. That's all we can do," added

Williams who already has confided to his players that he plans to quit as manager of the A's following the Series. "We're being dominated by their pitching," said Williams. "We were hitting .215 I think in the previous four games and we certainly didn't raise our average tonight. But we did hit some good shots but the Met defense was great again. "That (Bud) Harrelson at shortstop is just tremendous. He's all over."

OUTFIELDER Joe Rudi tumbles after crashing into the fence to catch Cleon Jones' long drive in World Series action Thursday night. The catch saved a run but the Mets won 2-0 and went ahead 3-2 in the best of seven series. (UPI Telephoto)

Aftermath of college try

Harrelson's glove starting to rankle Oakland's batters

NEW YORK (UPI)—"I saw their third base coach counting our players to make sure we only had nine guys," Bud Harrelson grinned Thursday night after the New York Mets made all the right defensive plays to beat the Oakland A's 2-0. "When we had a chance to break the game open," noted Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's, "they made the good defensive plays. "We hit the ball hard except when Campaneris struck out to end the game but it didn't do us any good. They made the plays."

Jackson was especially chastened when Harrelson, the Met shortstop, took a hit away from him when he blasted the ball right up the middle with two out and two on in the sixth inning. "They tell you to hit the ball right on the button and right up the middle and that's what I did. But it was just an out," he noted. "Jackson flung his arms up in frustration going down the first base line when he saw Harrelson roam behind the second base bag, snare his hard grounder and then scoot to second base for the inning-ending force play. "He's paid to hit the ball and I'm paid to catch it," Harrelson said. "I know I don't contribute enough with my bat but my asset is my glove," he said. "When I'm going well, I want every ball hit my way. And when our pitchers are going well, I can cheat a bit and afford to take chances and that's what I did on the ball Jackson hit."

Bucs swap Cash for Phil hurler

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Pittsburgh Pirates, filling a desperate need for "able bodied arms," Thursday acquired southpaw Ken Brett from the Philadelphia Phillies for hard-hitting second baseman Dave Cash in the first major baseball trade of the off-season. Brett, who last year made bigger headlines with his bat by hitting home runs in four consecutive starts—a major league record, gives the Pirates much needed pitching help, while Cash is expected to add punch to the Phillies' infield. "I don't think it's any secret to anyone who saw our pitching staff last year that we would be looking for some arms," said Pirates' manager Danny Murtagh, who announced the trade along with Pittsburgh general manager Joe Brown and Phillies GM Paul Owens. "Brett is a good one who can step right into our starting rotation.

Finley to let Williams go, but hold club

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dick Williams is free to leave the Oakland A's after the World Series if he wishes to accept the managership of the New York Yankees but A's owner Charlie Finley scotched reports Thursday he has any plans to sell the club. Williams has told his Oakland players privately that he's resigning after the World Series against the New York Mets and Finley fended when questioned as to whether he would stand in his manager's way to accept a similar job with the Yankees. "The important thing, however, is that Finley never said no and the Oakland owner was known to have revealed privately he will let Williams go. As for the possibility of his selling the A's, however, Finley couldn't have been more emphatic.

FFB Boosters shift format

The Twin Falls Bruin Boosters have switched their weekly meetings to 7:30 p.m. each Tuesday at the high school cafeteria, reports President Vede Walker. Film highlights will be shown whenever possible and parents of junior high students are invited.

Highland nips T.F. sophs

POCATELLO —The Highland Rams hit on a 66-yard pass play late in the third quarter and clipped the Twin Falls sophomores 20-17 Thursday night. Twin Falls went ahead with the opening kickoff, driving to the 30 before Ken Elk went in from there. Gene Turley converted. Highland replied with a march to tie it and early in the second period Elk scored on a 44-yard jaunt. Just before the half ended Highland again led 14 on an 18-yard pass. Elk's 66-yard romp in the third period set up a 23-yard field goal by Turley but only a few plays later Highland hit on the decisive pass play.

McGraw felt A's waited for screwball

NEW YORK (UPI)—Relief pitcher Jerry McGraw of the New York Mets explained Thursday night that he crossed up the Oakland A's in the fifth game of the World Series "by throwing mostly fast balls and curves when they were looking for screwballs."

Berra said he took starter Jerry Koosman out of the game because "He had trouble with his breaking ball" throughout the game and "I think I have the best pitching staff in baseball. "I think McGraw is the best relief pitcher in baseball," said Berra, "and I think he proved it tonight."

"I was battling myself with my control," admitted Koosman. "The air was very dry and I wasn't getting a good grip on my breaking balls. I'm not at all tired and could work a couple of innings Sunday if I'm needed in the seventh game. "Don Hahn, whose sixth-inning triple drove in the Mets' second run, conceded "it was the biggest hit of my career" although he added, "don't forget I've gotten some other big hits, too." "Vida Blue was throwing very hard," said Hahn. "They were playing me to hit his fast ball toward right field. But I was super-relaxed and I cut down on my swing and pulled it to left center."

Tendency to overrespond. So on. No real crippling troubles were confessed. But each man about selling his own honesty by admitting some minor discredit. Then up jumped a gentleman who replied: "I won't report any faults, failures, weaknesses. I'm 45. I'm the best 45-year-old I know how to be. I have all the experience in this business that my years permit. When I'm 55, I'll be better, that's all." And don't you know he got that job?

Israelis may be forced to peace

(c) Washington Star-News
 WASHINGTON — Israel is economically unable to wage war at the present rate for more than 30 days and will have to seek a negotiated peace unless a decisive battle is won over the Arabs soon, according to United States government analysts.
 The fact that no decisive battle has yet been fought after 35 days of the war is regarded in Washington as favorable to the Arab cause. Unless Israel can pull off a major military triumph on the Egyptian front within the next two to three weeks, U.S. sources believe the Israelis will be forced to accept a negotiated solution.
 Although as of Wednesday afternoon there was no sign of a decisive turn in the battle, there were a number of indications that such a crucial collision might be coming up. The opinion in Washington is that the Israelis have already advanced as far as they want to on the Syrian front. The main battle, strategists here say, will probably be fought against the Egyptians along the Suez Canal.
 Both sides have held back important strength from the fight. The Egyptians have managed to keep most of their 620 warplanes out of sight and out of combat while the Israelis, now fully mobilized, still have not committed the bulk of their army of 276,000. The U.S. information is that heavy fighting, mainly involving tanks and infantry, is in progress along the Egyptian front.

 "The main battle may have already begun," said one U.S. source. He added that Israel is now keeping newsmen away from the Sinai battle arena in what may be an effort to conceal Israeli plans for a decisive battle with the Egyptians, who are dug in along a narrow front along the east bank of the canal.
 The Israeli war aims against Syria seem in Washington to already have been accomplished. With Israelis as close as 14 miles to the Syrian capital of Damascus, it is possible for Israel to shell the city with artillery. If Egypt or Syria escalates the war by attempting to use bombs or missiles against populated centers in Israel.
 The question now centers on whether the Israelis can use their air force to knock out Egyptian anti-aircraft missile position and radar guidance system in coordination with some kind of knockout victory on the ground. The Soviet Union and the U.S. are continuing their massive efforts to place arms out or expended by the warring nations, and it is believed here that the military balance has been maintained.

Soviets monitor Mideast

(c) N. Y. Times Service
 NEW YORK — The Soviet Union has orbited four reconnaissance satellites in less than two weeks, an unusual launching rate that is being interpreted in Washington as evidence of Soviet efforts to monitor the Middle East war almost continuously with cameras.
 The frequency with which the satellites are launched and then brought back to earth could give the Soviet military valuable tactical information on Israeli land, sea and air forces as well as on movements of the United States fleet in the Mediterranean, according to informed sources in Washington.
 It was not known whether any of the information is being passed on to the Arabs.
 American Observers of Soviet space activities recalled that similar "quick-look" reconnaissance satellites were deployed during the India-Pakistan war in December, 1971.
 The air force will not discuss the operations or results of its secret satellites.
