Soviet threat puts US forces on alert

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — United States forces throughout the world were placed on a middle-level alert early today after the Soviet Union reportedly said it planned a unilateral move of troops to the Middle East to police the shaky cease-fire there.
The alert reportedly was ordered during a meeting of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon which lasted from 1 a.m. to 3 a.m. and apparently followed a top level meeting of officials at the White House.

The alert was reported by administration sources to be part of the tense diplomatic maneuvering between the U.S. and the Soviet Union over the way in which the cease-fire between Israel and the Arabs will be enforced.
The move follows reports the Soviet Union told the U.S. it plans to send forces into the Middle East to enforce the cease-fire.

The United Nations Security Council Wednesday met on the Middle East situation and heard Egypt request that U.S. and Soviet troops be used as cease-fire monitors. The U.S. rejected the idea of sending U.S. troops into the area.
Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger briefed President Nixon and Congressional leaders on the situation this morning. He said the U.S. opposes any use of major power forces in the Mideast.

While well short of a full war footing, the alert was still described by those familiar with the details as a "serious" move.
No reserve forces were actually called into active duty and no movement of ground troops was ordered as part of the alert. However, additional U.S. Navy and Marine forces were already moving into the Mediterranean.
An unusually strict blackout of comment concerning the alert was in force at the White House, State Department and Pentagon. But word that an alert had been ordered filtered in from military units and reservists who began receiving word during the night to return to their bases or to stand by their phones.

While the alert involved units of the Strategic Air Command as well as select conventional units throughout the world, informed sources said the focus of the alert was not on the strategic forces.

today in brief

No Idaho comment on alert
By United Press International
The major air force bases in Utah and Idaho had "no comment" today about President Nixon's military alert.
Spokesmen for Hill AFB and Mountain Home AFB declined to answer questions about the effect of the order on their installations.
None of the 72 F111s at Mountain Home took off by mid-morning and airmen said they had received no official notification of an alert. No extra security was apparent at the base.

UN observers take posts
(c) Washington Star-News
TEL AVIV — The first team of United Nations observers for the Middle East cease-fire took up positions along Israeli front lines in Egyptian territory today as the uneasy truce moved into its third day.

Officials here remain optimistic that the cease-fire will hold, despite outbreaks of fighting on the first two days, and they continue to hope that the Arabs, under pressure from major powers, will agree to enter direct negotiations with Israel.

Dayan resignation rejected
TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan offered to resign today but Prime Minister Golda Meir rejected the proposal.
Dayan's move was in response to criticism of Israel's military readiness for the Middle East war and its conduct. Mrs. Meir said she had "full confidence in his work as defense minister," and that questions about conduct of the war should be raised later.

UAW strikes Chrysler plants
DETROIT (UPI) — United Auto Workers members today struck two Chrysler Corp. assembly plants as union negotiators sought agreement on a national contract for 185,000 Ford Motor Co. workers before Friday's 10 a.m. strike deadline.
The strikes against Chrysler's Jefferson Ave. assembly plant in Detroit and the Missouri truck plant at Penton, Mo., began at 10 a.m. when bargainers failed to come up with local contract agreements.

School lunch aid bill passes
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has completed congressional action on a compromise bill to boost by 25 per cent the amount of federal aid to the nation's school lunch program.
The measure, approved on a voice vote Wednesday and sent to the White House, would hike the 8 cent federal subsidy for lunches to 10 cents. The Senate approved the measure Tuesday.
Additionally, the present 40 cents per lunch aid for free lunches would go to 45 cents and the 30 cents now given toward reduced price lunches would go to 35 cents.

Healthy US economy seen
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, sees a healthy economy next year despite possible higher unemployment and inflation.
Stein said food price increases will slow down, and that inflation will be troublesome when controlled prices rise to meet world prices. He said the U.S. will probably escape a recession in 1974.

Press meet delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon called off a nationally televised evening news conference today which had been expected to focus on the Middle East crisis and his handling of the Watergate controversy.
It marked the second time in as many days that Nixon had abruptly switched signals. He originally had planned to deliver a nationwide address to the people on the Watergate situation Wednesday night.
This was abandoned Wednesday in favor of the now cancelled news conference, set for 7 p.m. MDT tonight.
Shortly before noon, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon was calling off the meeting with newsmen so he could concentrate on the still-tense events in the Middle East.
Warren said the news conference would be held sometime Friday at a time to be announced later.
"The President has been concentrating on the Mid-East war and will be throughout the day," he said. "Based on this he has decided to postpone his news conference until tomorrow."
Last night, Nixon conferred with Cabinet-level diplomatic and military advisers at the White House, after Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin handed Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger what was described as a "rough and threatening" note.

Oil try halted

MALTA — The first attempt to find oil or gas beneath the ground near Strevell has failed and the search temporarily halted.
Al Griffith, president of Standard American, which was drilling the well about one-half mile north of Strevell, said Wednesday the well was plugged at a depth of about 7,000 feet Tuesday.
The firm plans to move drilling equipment to another area between Strevell and Malta sometime in November, Griffith said. The firm has acquired mineral rights to the area.
Asked if the firm felt the area was still a good prospect for gas or oil, Griffith said, "yes, very much so."

Former TF assessor Thompson, 70, dies

TWIN FALLS — Former Twin Falls County assessor Clifford Thompson, 70, died about midnight Wednesday in the Twin Falls Clinic Hospital after a long illness.
Thompson retired two years ago as county assessor because of ill health. He had served in that office for 23 years.
He came to Twin Falls in 1933 from Dillon, Mont. He was employed for 14 years at Diamond Hardware and was a stockholder in that company.
When former assessor George Childs resigned in 1949, Thompson ran for the office and was elected. A Republican, he was re-elected, usually without competition, in each successive election and frequently led the Republican ticket in the number-of-votes received.

Gem vote changes proposed

TWIN FALLS — County officials urged Twin Falls area state legislators Tuesday to revise state election statutes to remove inconsistencies.
Twin Falls county's four state representatives and one of two state senators met with county officers at the request of the county commissioners to review problem legislative areas.
The legislators were asked to:
— Amend election laws to allow the use of voting machines in all elections, doing away with the present cost of using paper ballots in bond elections.
— Allow county officials some leeway in the number of election clerks appointed in each precinct to prevent "superfluous" costs in smaller precincts.
— Study the issuance of voter identification cards so voters would know where to vote.
— Realign election districts and set uniform percentages in all districts for the number of petitions needed to call special elections.
— Allow the county wider discretion in determining property tax exemptions.

Air cleanup schedules for sugar plants OK'd

LEWISTON — The state Wednesday approved air pollution control compliance schedules for Amalgamated Sugar Co. plants in Twin Falls and Paul.
The action came during the opening session of the board of the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services in Lewiston. The board will meet through Saturday.
In addition to the two Magic Valley Amalgamated plants, compliance schedules were approved for the Amalgamated factory in Nampa, the J. R. Simplot Co. plant in Pocatello, the Agricultural Products Corp. plant in Conda and numerous asphalt batch mixing facilities around the state.
A DECS spokesman in Boise said the following compliance schedules were submitted to the board for the Magic Valley Amalgamated plants:
In Twin Falls — Addition of a wet scrubber or fabric filter to one of the boilers by Oct. 1, 1974.

Engineering must be completed and contracts let or purchase order submitted for the addition by Jan. 1, 1974. Construction must be started on the addition by May 1, 1974.
The other boiler must be replaced by Oct. 1, 1974, according to the schedule. Replacement must be started by Jan. 1, 1974.
The beet pulp dryer drum at the Twin Falls plant must have modification of its existing wet scrubber by Oct. 1, 1975, the schedule states.
In the Mini-Cassia plant — Addition of a wet scrubber or fabric filter to one of the boilers by Oct. 1, 1976. Engineering must be completed and contracts let or purchase order submitted for the addition by Jan. 1, 1976. Construction must start on the addition by May 1, 1976.
A wet scrubber or fabric filter must be added to the other Mini-Cassia boiler by Oct. 1, 1977.
Emissions from both beet-pulp dryer drums at the Mini-Cassia plant must be controlled by wet scrubbers by Oct. 1, 1974.

US judge dismisses McCulloch case

By TERRY CAMPBELL, Times-News Writer
HAILEY — A US District Court judge has dismissed a class action suit brought by 16 Halley property owners over the 650-acre McCulloch Woodside Development.
Defendants in the suit had been Halley Mayor Lawrence Heagle; the four member city council; McCulloch Properties Inc. (MPI); and Robert P. McCulloch Jr., president of MPI.
The original plaintiffs' complaint had contended that the development — which was annexed last spring — would commit the remaining Halley sewage treatment plant capacity and would exhaust it as early as fall, 1974.
The complaint also contended that the plaintiffs' right to develop and improve their own property would be impaired without assurances that a permit to allow plant expansion and increased effluent discharge could be obtained from the federal Environmental Protection Agency or the State of Idaho.
In his order for dismissal, Judge Ray McNichols said, "the defendants contend that the amended complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted."
"The motion to dismiss appears to be well taken," Judge McNichols said. "It seems unlikely to the court that the plaintiffs can amend the complaint to state a claim cognizable by the court."
However, in dismissing the amended complaint, Judge McNichols allowed the plaintiffs 20 days to file a new amended complaint. If this was not done, he said, "the defendants may submit a proposed final judgment of dismissal for the signature of the court."
Commenting on the dismissal, Woodside project manager Horace Solf said, "naturally we are very happy about the outcome."
"We felt that the people who entered into this suit were badly advised," Solf said. "It has been our feeling that these plaintiffs have never been in danger of losing their right to use of the sewage disposal facility of the city of Halley and

It would appear that the federal court agrees," he said.
Mayor Heagle said, "I really wasn't surprised that it was dismissed."
Robert Ward, one of the plaintiffs, said, "we're going to look at our finances and see if we can obtain additional financing."
Ward said two alternatives which were presently being examined by the plaintiffs and their attorney were to either have the complaint amended or to file an appeal.
The plaintiffs were represented in the suit by Kelchum attorney James Donart. MPI was represented by Stephen W. Boller and the city was represented by acting city attorney Stephen Clayton, both Halley.

TF schools start Title I program

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Following a two-month delay, the Twin Falls School District plans to begin a federally funded program to aid underprivileged students.

District Supt. George Staudacher told school board members Tuesday night the district had received confirmation from Loren Hicks, program administrator for special services at the State Department of Education, that federal Title I funds would be forthcoming.

In mid-September Hicks assured the district of the availability of the funds, but Staudacher — believing the assurance to be shaky — had not started the program.

Tuesday morning Hicks again assured the district $45,000 would be coming for Title I migrant education programs and $97,000 would be coming for Title I "compensatory" programs for other underprivileged children, Staudacher said.

He said the district could now start spending up to 60 per cent or $87,400 of the compensatory program money.

With this money the district will hire two extra teachers to work with underprivileged children at Lincoln and Bickel schools, a "home-bound" teacher to work with spin-blight and other children unable to go to school and a social worker to work with the families of children from low-income homes, Staudacher said.

The money will also be used to enlarge — possibly double — the summer school program and to establish a kindergarten during the summer for disadvantaged children, Staudacher also said the district would like to hire a speech therapy aide.

This year the Title I monies must be directed towards five "project" schools which have a high proportion of underprivileged students. These schools are Lincoln, Bickel, Washington, O'Leary junior high and the special education school.

Office fund law backed

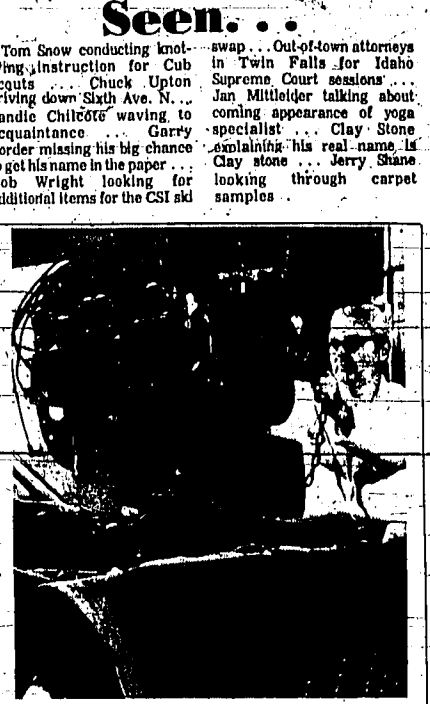

Special to the Times-News
BOISE — U.S. Gov. Jack Murphy has asked the Senate Judiciary Committee to study the possibility of a financial disclosure law governing candidates for public office.

In a letter to Chairman Sen. Edith Miller-Klein, R-Boise, Murphy said it was "apparent, in view of what has transpired on a federal level, as well as other sister states, that Idaho's best interests would be served by having such a law."

He asked the Senate committee to consider several aspects of possible legislation, including which candidates should be covered by legislation and whether all state elected officials should be required to disclose all income and expenses for a campaign.

Other questions Murphy suggested to the committee include the possibility of a limit on campaign contributions from a single source or from out of state sources or on an overall campaign.

The lieutenant governor also asked that the committee learn the possible effect of requiring personal financial statements from candidates at local levels of government such as highway district and cemetery boards.

Church welcomes tapes turnover

Special to the Times-News
WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Wednesday he welcomed President Nixon's decision to turn the Watergate tapes over to a federal judge, but said it was a capitulation forced by the American people.

"The American people were so aroused by the president's defiance of the courts, and his peremptory dismissal of the very men he had pledged to give a free hand in investigating the Watergate crimes, that Mr. Nixon had to capitulate. Never have I seen such a torrent of protest and indignation from the public at large," Church said.

Church's statement said the president's reversal of his earlier decision not to turn over the tapes meant Nixon had "avoided breaking the law he is sworn to uphold, thus removing the immediate cause for impeachment which he seemed determined to thrust into the lap of Congress."

"I welcome his change of course," Church said, "and I hope it doesn't prove simply tactical or temporary. Out of this latest trauma, I pray that Mr. Nixon will come to accept the fact that, in this country, it is the people who are sovereign. Every elected official, including the President himself, is no more than a servant of the people, subject to the same laws that are binding on all citizens."

TV coverage of Gem political issues possible

By DAVID ESPO
 T-N Boise Bureau
 BOISE — If they are willing to spend the money, state legislators may find themselves debating controversial legislation on live television next winter.

Lt. Gov. Jack M. Murphy and House Speaker William J. Lanting, R-Hollister, are polling their legislative members to see whether they are willing to spend the money for the state's educational television stations.

A Citizens' Advisory Committee on Legislative Improvement, chaired by John Mix, suggested the plan in September because it said it would bring coverage of the legislature to 70 per cent of the state, "reaching many citizens for the first time," and could "help create a better understanding of the legislative function."

One proposal lists a minimum expenditure of nearly $27,000 above the stations' normal budget to finance the live broadcasting of the Boise area to Pocatello and Moscow, where the state's two other educational stations are located.

Murphy said in an interview Wednesday the additional money would come directly from funds the legislature appropriates for its own operating expenses each year. He said if enough members approved the plan in the survey he and Lanting are conducting, he expected the stations would go ahead and make the necessary arrangements. But he said he would ask formal approval from the legislature when it convenes.

Paul Corbin, program manager at Boise educational television station KAIS, said Wednesday several changes would be permitted if the extra money were approved. He said the major improvement, however, would be transmission of live shows to KRGH in Pocatello and KUID at Moscow, as well as their transmission in the Magic Valley area on the station licensed to the College of Southern Idaho.

Last year, he said, the educational system had the capability only to do live statewide radio reports, and had to ship tapes of its television programming from Boise to the other stations around the state.

Other planned changes, according to Corbin, include the ability to broadcast from both chambers in the legislature. Last year the only broadcasting of live debate was done from the House of Representatives, because the station lacks the equipment to move from one side of the legislature to the other.

If the additional funds are not approved this year, Corbin said, the live broadcasting will be done from the Senate side of the capitol.

Another change that will be made if the legislature approves the funds, Corbin said, would include expansion of the mighty legislative report program to 30 minutes from its 15 minute format. Last session, the show consisted of a news report summary of the day's events by reporter Gene Shumate as well as an interview with one or more legislators or other officials.

In addition, plans would call for broadcast of a number of public hearings. Last year, Corbin said, two such hearings were telecast live, including one on the proposed repeal of the Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution, and another on a proposed ban on nonreturnable beverage containers.

The minimum figure of $26,678 proposed by the legislative improvement committee would permit broadcast of 54 hours in the course of the session. Each additional hour would cost an additional $296, according to a budget proposal.

Murphy said he was urging legislators to respond to his survey quickly so the stations could make arrangement for the transmission lines before the session begins.

Idahoans voice firing opinions

(Special to the Times-News)
 BOISE — Idahoans haven't been shy about telling their Congressmen how they felt over the firing of Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Spokesmen in the Boise offices of the state's two senators got to work Tuesday and found the phone "ringing off the hook," they said.

Sen. Frank Church's office received about 30 calls Tuesday, with many of the callers urging for the impeachment of President Nixon and others just calling to get the mailing address of the senator, an office worker said.

Sen. James A. McClure's office had a similar experience Tuesday morning, according to a spokesman. The office recorded a heavy volume of calls, with the reaction varying from confusion over the events of the weekend to some who were "quite adamant" against the president. Others called to express support for the president in his firing of the prosecutor.

Rep. Oryal Hansen's office had a smaller volume of calls, about 15, a spokesman said.

McClure backs war resolution

(Special to the Times-News)
 WASHINGTON, D. C. — Sen. James A. McClure, R-Idaho has joined three other senators in sponsoring a resolution calling for Arab recognition of Israel's sovereignty and return of the Israeli-occupied Arab territories, his office said Wednesday.

The resolution calls for creation of a neutral buffer zone between Israel and the Arab nations, settlement of the Palestinian refugee problem and the successful negotiating of a peace treaty within six months of a cease fire in the current war.

McClure said the resolution represents the kind of even handed approach that our government should and must support, if there is to be any permanent peace between the Arabs and the Israelis.

The resolution calls for President Nixon to mediate efforts to bring about a peace that recognizes all the political and economic realities of the region, including the territorial integrity of all the states involved, the need of Israel for protection buffer zones, the Arab aspiration for the return of their territories, and the long-term development of a sound economic base for the elimination of social and political problems.

TF schools neglect needs of poor, migrant children

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer

The Twin Falls School District has been neglecting special needs of its Mexican-American and poor students. The neglect appears to stem from the belief that because all the students are treated equally, all the students share equal opportunities.

District Supt. George Staudner recently said the district collects little data on Mexican-American students because it does not want to classify along racial lines. Instead of grouping by race, the district treats all its students equally, he said.

But, despite the equal treatment, statistics show Mexican-American students are not equal to Anglo students in the district.

Whereas 96 Chicano students are now enrolled in junior high school, only 25 are enrolled in high school. This indicates that more than 70 per cent of the Mexican-American students here drop out between junior high and high school.

Without looking at these statistics, the district cannot recognize this problem. Realization that a problem exists is the first step towards finding solutions.

Another problem the district does not officially recognize is a pattern of segregation of Chicano students here. On the elementary level nearly all poor Chicanos attend Bickel and Lincoln schools. 91 out of 96 Chicano junior high school students attend O'Leary Junior High. The pattern of segregation and the Chicano drop out rate show that by failing to keep tabs on the numbers of Mexican-American students here, the school system may be perpetuating racial inequality.

Ignorance of racial boundaries does not dissolve them.

District officials also seem hesitant to identify children from poverty backgrounds. "We don't want to know who they are," district assistant superintendent Camden Meyer said last week on this matter. "I don't care if he (a student) comes from a poor family or not," Meyer added.

Meyer said the problem with the federal Title I program funds, designed to aid students from poverty backgrounds, is that it makes the district identify and give special help to such students. "This is one of the things I don't like about the program — we are supposed to do something up and above what we do for everybody else," Meyer said.

Meyer's objection leaves out one all important consideration: children from poor families are at an educational disadvantage to begin with. Title I programs are not supposed to give poor students a greater chance to succeed than other students have, they are intended to help such students catch up with the others.

In line with Meyer's objection, the district is being careless in its identification of students from poverty backgrounds. Meyer said the figures the district reports to the state on how many such students attend high school in Twin Falls are inaccurate because they are based on free lunch eligibility data.

Many disinterested high school students do not apply for the free lunch, Meyer said. Correspondingly, the district's statistics on the numbers of poverty background students at the high school are way too low.

The district's two-month hesitancy to start Title I programs this year may have been connected to its unwillingness to deal with students from low-income families as a group.

Uncertainty over federal funding was the official reason why Title I programs had not been begun until now. But the state department of education previously assured the district that at least 85 per cent of the money will be forthcoming?

Why then the hesitancy? One reason may be that for the first time Title I money was tagged to help only children from low-income families this year.

In past years the aid could be directed towards helping all "educationally disadvantaged" children. This requirement was general enough to let the district hire library aides, general teaching aides and a motor skills specialist — persons able to help nearly all district children with the federal money.

Title I money can no longer be used for these general programs, but must be geared towards hiring bilingual aides and creating other programs specifically for the economically underprivileged child.

The school district has continued its past Title I programs with the district's general fund. But, unlike practically every other district in the state, it delayed new Title I programs until this week.

Newsprint prices soar

NEW YORK (UPI) — Canadian International Paper Co., Ltd. announced Wednesday it is raising the price of newsprint in the United States and Canada by $15 a ton to $200, effective Nov. 1.

The announcement took the paper world by surprise because a number of other large paper companies had said they would not raise the price to $200 until next July. These companies had announced that the price would be raised by year-end from the present range of $185-$175 to $183-$190 a ton.

Another Canadian producer, Domtar, Ltd., also raised the price Wednesday, but by only $15 to $190 a ton. Later Domtar said it would have to consider its position in view of Canadian International's $25 raise.

A long strike of five of Canadian International's mills in eastern Canada was settled only a week ago. This strike and other factors in the industry had caused severe newsprint shortages which forced some newspapers to curtail the size of their editions.

Some papers were threatened with having to close down for lack of paper, but none actually did suspend publication because of the shortage, according to the newsprint bureau of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Nixon wants pipe bill changes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's top budget official has threatened a veto of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline bill unless changes demanded by the administration are made, Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., said Wednesday.

Melcher, who headed a House-Senate conference committee that worked out the compromise bill, said he did not plan to seek the changes.

He said the veto threat was made by Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, during a visit to the congressman's office. Ash's chief objection, Melcher said, was to a Senate-passed provision allowing the Federal Trade Commission to go to court to seek injunctions and subpoenas if the Justice Department does not act within 10 days of an FTC complaint of deceptive business practices.

Melcher told the House that Ash had asked for changes in five areas and had said he would recommend a veto if the demands were not met.

"I consider it high-handed of Mr. Ash to carp at this late hour to serve a threat of a veto," Melcher later told UPI.

US eyes Mideast arms curb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is willing to discuss with Russia a mutual reduction of emergency arms shipments to the Israelis and the Arabs, the State Department said Wednesday.

The announcement came after the Pentagon has said that despite the Middle East cease-fire, the U. S. airlift of arms to Israel was continuing in full force although the Soviet resupply to the Arab nations had diminished.

State Department Spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said the offer dealt with the emergency shipments that began a few days after the outbreak of the war earlier this month — and would not affect the normal shipments which both nations have been sending to the Mideast for some time.

McCloskey's statement was the first public announcement of U.S. willingness to negotiate a mutual reduction of the emergency supply programs.

However, he said such talks were "briefly referred to" in the discussions Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger had during the weekend with Soviet officials in Moscow.

A Nixon Turkey is a tough old bird that, instead of being stuffed full of the regular stuff, is completely stuffed with tapes — milos and milos of nasty old tapes. Naturally, a turkey isn't much good stuffed with tapes, but the tapes are very difficult to remove. It is reported that some super chefs back in Washington D.C. (called Justices) do have some knives sharp enough to cut the tapes out of a Nixon Turkey. If that doesn't work, another solution is to let the turkey stand overnight covered with peaches (Impeachment). Swensen's Markets hope someone can get the tapes out of the turkeys. BEWARE OF THE TURKEY: Some professional tape extractors have been chased clear out of the kitchen . . . and almost gobbled up! CHATTING as they leave closed meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee are Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb. Party line split hits House impeachment panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee, which will begin an inquiry next week into possible impeachment of President Nixon, has split along party lines over a plan to grant its chairman full subpoena power. The 21 Democratic members of the panel decided unanimously Wednesday to seek blanket subpoena power for Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J. The 17 Republican panel members said they would attempt to block that move and three other proposals made by the Democrats. The full committee will meet for the first time Tuesday. The session will be closed to the public and news media. Besides the subpoena proposal, the Democrats also favored: —Abolishing a committee rule that requires two days notice before a panel meeting can be held. —Referring a measure calling for re-establishment of a special prosecutor's office and a bill to extend the life of the Watergate grand jury to a subcommittee. —And considering simultaneously the impeachment inquiry and the nomination of Gerald R. Ford to be vice president.

The Republicans held a caucus and endorsed the idea of a subcommittee consideration of the special prosecutor proposal, although they were divided on whether one was needed. Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., ranking Republican on the committee, said that under present rules the chairman would have to get committee consent for each subpoena, and he feels that's the way it should be, so the committee can be kept aware of what is going on. Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., second-ranking Republican on the committee, said, "No question about it," the GOP would fight the proposals offered by the Democrats. Hutchinson said the Republicans were unanimous in the belief the Ford confirmation should be disposed of before any action is taken on the impeachment inquiry. Rodino refused to say whether he planned to use the subpoena power he is seeking to demand the Watergate tapes. He said that "whatever material is necessary and related to matters we think would be pertinent to the various resolutions before us" would be sought, and possibly also "pertinent files," compiled by Archibald Cox.

New scandal?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., has charged that several major oil companies are gaining "windfall profits" by drilling outside two Navy petroleum reserves in California and Wyoming. He said a "second teapot dome scandal" may be under way. Moss made the charges Wednesday in a letter to President Nixon and in a House speech in which he said federal officials may be allowing oil companies to "loot" the Elk Hills and Teapot Dome oil reserves in the two states.

Stopover: Tokyo

TOKYO (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will visit Tokyo next month right after his trip to China, Chief Cabinet Secretary Susumu Nakaido said today. The U.S. State Department said Wednesday Kissinger will visit Peking Nov. 10 to 13 for talks with Chinese leaders. He had originally planned to go to the Chinese capital this week but postponed the trip because of the Middle East war. Nakaido told newsmen Kissinger will stop in Japan immediately after his trip to Peking and confer with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka.

Sirica ponders technical help for review

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A spokesman for Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica said today Sirica is considering whether to seek technical advice to insure that President Nixon's Watergate tapes have not been altered. Experts, meanwhile, disagreed over whether it was possible to make changes in the tapes that could not be detected. The spokesman said Sirica has not decided whether he actually will seek advice. Numerous persons have offered suggestions, he said, and Sirica has told them to present their ideas in writing. Sirica will be out of his chambers until Monday, so he will not be able to hear the tapes before then. The White House has indicated it will move "expeditiously" to provide the tapes.

After three months of litigation, Nixon agreed Tuesday to turn over nine tapes to Sirica for the judge to inspect and decide whether any should be given to the Watergate grand jury. The tapes deal mainly with conversations that could corroborate—or knock down—former White House Counsel John W. Dean III's testimony that Nixon knew about a Watergate cover-up by Sept. 15, 1972. The office, of an electronic engineering firm that has worked with broadcasters for 35 years said in an interview that sensitive amplifying equipment could detect whether a tape had been edited. The engineer, who asked not to be quoted by name, said sophisticated equipment can detect the slightest change in background noise as well as noiseless radiation and emissions from such things as electric motors and fluorescent lights. Backgrounds, he said, rarely remain the same; even a few moments apart. He compared a tape recording to a fingerprint of which there are no two alike. Granville Klink, chief engineer of WTOP Radio in Washington, whose staff works with tapes constantly, said, however, that small magnetite pencils can be used to take out even a syllable. He compared it to touching up a photo. Klink said it is easier to edit a tape by deleting than adding. He said an edited tape can be dubbed onto another tape to eliminate any outward appearance of editing or splicing. Continued dubbing, Klink said, reduces the sensitivity of the recording and blurs whatever changes have been made.

Documents battle may continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite President Nixon's decision to surrender nine of his secret Watergate tapes, there are indications the crisis is far from over. From the President's past statements and those of his top aides, it appears that the White House may plan to give up those tapes and nothing more, and may be digging in for a protracted battle to protect other recordings and documents from disclosure. There are also indications that Nixon's own Justice Department, shaken by the departure of the attorney general and his deputy following the firing of Archibald Cox, may intend to challenge such a presidential plan. Last July 23, in rejecting requests from Cox and the Watergate committee for the tapes, Nixon said "...the tapes could be accurately understood or interpreted only by reference to an enormous number of other documents and tapes, so that to open them at all would begin an endless process of disclosure and explanation of private presidential records totally unrelated to Watergate, and highly confidential in nature." After losing in the courts, Nixon now has agreed to surrender the nine tapes Cox sought. But if Nixon believes these can be "accurately understood or interpreted" only by reviewing other materials, does he intend to part with the other materials as well? Apparently not. At a press briefing Tuesday, White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig stressed that Nixon had decided to surrender the nine tapes as a "single exception" to his earlier refusal to part with any of them. Haig stressed that Nixon's order to Cox the preceding Friday "to quit suing the President had applied solely to "additional personal presidential tapes and memoranda" beyond the nine tapes. Asked if that meant Nixon would resist further subpoenas, Haig replied: "I am not going to take that minefield route this afternoon. I am going to assure you that any course of action the President takes in the future will be within the legal prerogatives of his office." White House spokesmen Wednesday declined to elaborate, referring reporters back to Haig's comments the day before.

Contract levels hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged today that many U.S. military procurement contracts are 30 to 40 per cent higher than necessary because of political influence and the Defense Department practicing buying without competitive bids. The Wisconsin senator, a frequent critic of military spending practices, called on Congress to "sharply limit negotiated government contracts of all kinds." He said 90 per cent of defense contracts are made without bids. The Pentagon had no immediate response.

Power limit bill vetoed by Nixon

(c) N. Y. Times Service
 WASHINGTON — President Nixon, in a new confrontation with Congress, vetoed today a bill that would limit the powers of the President to commit the Armed Forces to foreign hostilities without congressional approval.

Nixon said the bill imposed "unconstitutional and dangerous" restrictions on the president's authority and would seriously undermine his nation's ability to act decisively and convincingly in times of international crisis.

In his veto message, which was expected, Nixon told Congress that he would welcome establishment of a non-partisan commission to examine the constitutional powers of Congress and the president in the conduct of foreign affairs.

It was uncertain whether Congress could muster the required two-thirds vote to override the latest veto, which is the ninth this year. So far this year, the Democratic-controlled Congress has failed to override seven consecutive Nixon vetoes.

The war-powers bill, which was drafted by Congress as a reaction to the war in Indochina, would have required the President to report to Congress within 48 hours after the commitment of Armed Forces to foreign hostilities.

The measure would have required the forces to be withdrawn in 60 days unless Congress approved the action, but the time limit could have been extended for another 20 days if the President certified to Congress that the additional time was needed to complete the withdrawal of the forces.

Also under the bill, Congress would have ordered a halt to the military action within the 60- or 90-day time limit by passing a concurrent resolution, which is not subject to a presidential veto.

Nixon said that he shared the desire of Congress "to assert its proper role" in the conduct of foreign affairs but he contended that the bill "would purpose to take away, by a mere legislative act, authorities which the President has properly exercised under the constitution for almost 200 years."

He said a veto was warranted "solely on constitutional grounds" but added that he was "also deeply disturbed by the practical consequences" of the measure.

Declaring that "the confidence of our allies in our ability to assist them could be diminished and the respect of our adversaries for our deterrent posture could decline," Nixon said that if the war powers measure had been in operation the nation's actions in recent years "would have been vastly complicated or even made impossible." He added:

"We may well have been unable to respond in the way we did during the Berlin crisis of 1961, the Cuban missile crisis of 1962, the Congo rescue operation in 1964, and the Jordanian crisis of 1970 — to mention just a few examples. In addition, our recent actions to bring about a peaceful settlement of the hostilities in the Middle East would have been seriously impaired if this resolution had been in force."

ROBERT BORK
... acting AG

Acting AG states plans

(c) N. Y. Times Service
 WASHINGTON — Robert H. Bork, the acting attorney general, made clear his intentions today to take any necessary steps, including judicial action, to obtain evidence from the White House if it were needed to prosecute the Watergate case.

"I am not going to walk out of this job out of this town, as the man who in any way compromises a duty investigation," declared the tall, red-bearded Yale law professor at his first news conference since taking over the Justice Department four days ago.

Bork said that, based on a conversation with President Nixon on Saturday night, shortly before he became the acting attorney general, he believed that he was free to conduct the Watergate investigations "the way I think they ought to be done."

He said that the President had told him, "I understand that you are devoted to the principle of law, and I want you to carry out these investigations and prosecutions fully."

That same evening the President discharged Archibald Cox as the Justice Department's special Watergate prosecutor. After Cox declared his intention not to abide by Nixon's order to seek no further tape recordings or presidential papers.

But Bork said today that "to tell the truth, it didn't occur to me that I was bound" by the same command, "because it wasn't directed to me."

It was "apparent," Bork went on, "that once I got into this position, I have to have the evidence to carry out these prosecutions fully."

Nixon agreed yesterday to turn over to the Federal District Court here nine tape recordings made in his office over the last year. Cox had sought to use the tapes as evidence before the Grand Jury investigating the burglary of the Democrats' Watergate offices, and the subsequent cover-up.

But it was unclear until today whether Bork would be inclined to seek the tapes or documents if it became clear that they were needed to establish possible criminal misconduct by White House aides.

"I trust it will not come to the problem of having to litigate for such materials, Bork added, "because I anticipate cooperation."

But if litigation should become necessary, he continued, he expected to go ahead in the manner Mr. Cox had chosen, "because he, too, was an employe of the executive branch."

He said that the White House had agreed to the need for "regularized procedures" for obtaining evidence relating to the President and his staff without recourse to the courts. But, he said, he had not yet had time to draft them.

Campaign probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox says before he was fired Saturday he was investigating possible efforts by the White House staff to raise large sums of cash in 1970 for President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Cox also said Wednesday that "possible abuses" of national security and other government agencies, including the Internal Revenue Service, had been under investigation by his task force, now under Justice Department control.

Cox, fired by Nixon last Saturday night as a result of their dispute over Nixon's Watergate tapes, was interviewed by Walter Cronkite on the CBS Evening News.

Cox said he could not with "complete assurance" know what other investigations might have worried the President. But he said: "Inquiries were being pushed into the raising of campaign funds, especially very large funds raised in conjunction with the White House staff in 1970 — raised, I think, chiefly in cash."

Rebozo denies prior knowledge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a close friend of President Nixon, cashed 900 shares of stolen stock in 1968, selling one third of them after he was notified by an insurance investigator they were stolen, the Washington Post reported today.

The stock, worth more than $300,000, allegedly was stolen by the Mafia in 1968 from E.F. Hutton & Co. brokers in New York, according to federal prosecutors. Evidence that Rebozo cashed the International Business Machines Corp. (IBM) certificates was contained in records of a Miami civil suit filed by Hutton seeking repayment by Rebozo, the Post reported.

Rebozo was allegedly told the stocks were stolen by George H. Riley Jr., an investigator for Continental Insurance Co., which insured Hutton.

Rebozo's lawyer, Alan G. Greer, was quoted as saying his client, a Key Biscayne, Fla., bank president, "flatly denies" he was told of the stolen stock.

According to court records quoted by the Post, Riley tried to notify Rebozo twice in October, 1968, before the banker sold any of the stock but was refused appointments on grounds Rebozo was too busy helping with Nixon's election campaign.

But Riley was quoted as saying he met with Rebozo five days after the second appointment was canceled, verified that the missing certificates bore the same serial numbers as Rebozo's, but still found him to be uncooperative.

Rebozo allegedly told Riley he had already sold all of the stock, but the Post said court records showed that Rebozo sold the remaining 300 shares a week after Riley's visit.

The Post quoted a 1971 court deposition by Riley that "this would appear to me to be a shady deal, and I suspect that Mr. Rebozo is aware of this and did not want to become involved..." He also was quoted as saying Rebozo was not cooperative and that "Mr. Rebozo didn't even want to give me the time of day, let alone his file" on the transaction.

The records show, the Post said, that the allegedly stolen stock was given to Rebozo's Key Biscayne Bank as collateral on a $195,000 loan made to Charles L. Lewis at the request of Walter A. Jernigan, a friend of Rebozo.

Rebozo's testimony indicated he canceled the loan after he was visited by the FBI, which had traced the stolen stock to his bank, the Post reported. Rebozo gave as a reason the fact that Lewis had no local residence or business connections.

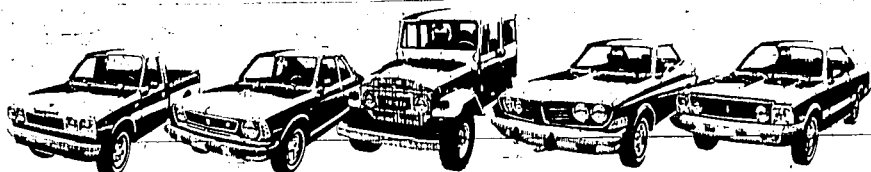

The Post also said the original acceptance as collateral of the stock, in Hutton's name instead of Lewis', and the quick issuance of the loan, applied for under possibly fraudulent terms, was not a common practice in banking circles.

NATO slowed help

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — Diplomatic sources said today that the United States was forced to set up a special system to rush supplies to the Israelis because some of its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies, along with Spain, balked at any cooperation.

The sources said that the refusal was based on a fear that the Arab countries would cut off Europe's oil supplies.

The resupply effort, from bases in the United States, involved aircraft carriers and Air Force tanker planes, military officials disclosed.

The Navy and the Air Force had to adopt this roundabout system, the diplomats said, because — with the exception of Portugal and, to some extent, West Germany — the NATO allies exercised their treaty rights and announced that aircraft en route to Israel could neither land nor fly over their territory.

A main reason cited by Washington over the years for American military aid to Greece and Turkey has been to make it possible to use bases on their territory in Middle East crises.

Air Force contingency plans, according to knowledgeable sources, have looked to at least tacit Greek government cooperation in an Arab-Israeli conflict.

The Turkish Foreign Ministry announced Oct. 11 that American military installations "are for the security and defense of the North Atlantic Treaty area and have been set up solely for defense cooperative purposes of Turkey." Nevertheless, a number of American officials report, Soviet resupply aircraft heading for Egypt and Syria have flown over Turkey and the Turkish government also ruled out any role in the supply flow to Israel.

The United States Navy had a plan for the urgent supply of A-4 Skyhawks to Israel. According to informed congressional and government officials, it worked in the following manner:

The Skyhawks, piloted by Navy men, took off from the East Coast and landed in the Azores to refuel. They then flew to the carrier John F. Kennedy, stationed near Gibraltar, and were refueled by tanker aircraft.

The next leg took them into the Mediterranean, where they landed on the carrier Franklin Delano Roosevelt and stayed overnight. The last leg took Skyhawks into the Eastern Mediterranean, where they refueled in the air near the carrier Independence.

Unanimous choice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If Gerald R. Ford is confirmed as vice president, Rep. John J. Rhodes, R-Aris, will become the Republican leader in the House. His only remaining opponent, Rep. Leslie Arends, R-Ill., withdrew from contention Wednesday.

Rhodes now is expected to be the unanimous choice of the 192 GOP House members for the post.

The 63-year-old Rhodes, serving his 11th consecutive term in Congress, is now chairman of the House GOP Policy Committee.

Restrictions fuel crisis

SEATTLE (UPI) — American Petroleum Institute head Frank N. Icard asserts that U.S. Supreme Court ruling 10 years ago launched the energy crisis and — tax restrictions and too harsh environmental restrictions add fuel to it now.

He told the Seattle Rotary Club Wednesday that the reops were planted when the U.S. Supreme Court placed the price of natural gas under control of the Federal Power Commission.

"That ruling, made in 1954, effectively discouraged investor interest in drilling — both for oil and for natural gas, since the two are frequently found together," he said.

In the 1960s, he said, environmental issues became a major concern and "as too often happens, the pendulum of action swung too far, exceeding in many instances the need and original intent."

He said the chief flows to energy supplies prompted by the environmentalists were delays both in construction of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline and development of nuclear power facilities; a moratorium on producing from 35 petroleum fields in the Santa Barbara Channel; elimination of high-sulfur coal and residual oil from many markets; and increased gasoline consumption — a result of emission control standards.

Another "seriously adverse impact" on petroleum operations was the 1969 tax reform act which, he said, "increased the petroleum industry's taxes by more than a half-billion dollars annually," or the equivalent of about 5,000 new wells.

Oil ban continues

BEIRUT (UPI) — There will be no immediate truce in the oil battle against the United States even if the cease-fire ending the Middle East war takes hold, Arab oil sources said today.

Although there are indications some oil producers already are easing away from their joint decision to reduce exports to the rest of the Western world, the ban on U.S. deliveries will not be lifted simply because the Arab-Israeli fighting ends, sources said.

Arab oil experts say Saudi Arabia, the largest oil producer in the Arab world, may ban or restrict deliveries to the United States for a matter of years rather than months.

"Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, who between them produce more than 11 million barrels of oil a day, have both reiterated since the first Egypt-Israel cease-fire was agreed on Monday that they are holding out for their original demands."

"The Saudi Arabian position has not changed," said a statement from the Saudi Royal Court Tuesday. "We demand withdrawal of all Israeli forces from occupied Arab lands, including Jerusalem, and the return of the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people."

King Faisal, as a devout Moslem and keeper of Islam's two most holy cities, Mecca and Medina, has long insisted that Islam's third holy city, Jerusalem, must not remain under Jewish control.

"Faisal's decision to break with his traditional friend, the United States, cost him lot," a Saudi oil official said in Beirut this week. "Once made, he's not going to reverse the decision unless he is satisfied."

The countries that have cut deliveries to the United States — Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Bahrain, Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Dubai, Iraq, Libya and Qatar — agreed in principle Oct. 17 to cut their production by at least five per cent per month.

Algeria, Kuwait, Libya and Saudi Arabia have announced the first production cut, with all but Libya raising it to 10 per cent. Among them they account for the bulk of Arab oil production.

Of the other countries, Dubai has been forced into a production cut by a fire at one of its wells.

Tussock damage spreads

WASHINGTON — An official for the Boise Cascade Corp. told congressmen Wednesday that the "tussock moth" has caused widespread destruction of the Blue Mountain Forests of Northeast Oregon.

Glenn Parsons, chief forester, La Grande, Northeast Oregon Region, Boise Cascade, appeared before the Forestry Sub committee of the House Agriculture Committee. The committee is considering legislation on the administration of pesticide controls.

Parsons presented a comprehensive review and updating of the tussock moth epidemic which started in that area in July, 1972, and in two summers advanced to infest nearly 800,000 acres, with visible defoliation on 400,040 acres and complete or partial killing of Douglas fir and white fir in an area extending from La Grande some 75 miles north.

Parsons told of futile efforts to obtain government approval to control the pest early this year, after the infestation had expanded from 12,000 to 173,600 acres.

"We strongly appeal for help correcting the inadequate decision-making process presently in effect," Parsons told the congressmen.

"We urge you to recognize the short term between discovery and destructive feeding so that prompt approval, when needed, may be obtained," he said.

Book tells all

NEW YORK (UPI) — What do you do when your faucet starts leaking? Or what happens when a window breaks? Answers to these questions are in the booklet, "Simple Home Repairs," published by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The guide includes information on using tools, kinds of nuts, bolts and screws and simple instructions on do-it-yourself jobs around the house.

To order the booklet, send 40 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

Skylab repair continues

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — Faced with the possibility of a delayed mission for America's last space station crew, engineers today were trying to take the dents out of two damaged fuel tanks on the Skylab 3 launch rocket.

In Washington, space agency administrator Dr. James C. Fletcher Wednesday mulled over a recommendation that the final flight last 60 days, with the option to extend it to 84 days if the crew can stay busy doing orbital research.

Blaine proposal readied

JIAILEY — Detailed information on a proposed juvenile probation officer for Blaine County will be presented to the county commissioners Nov. 14.

The commissioners requested additional information after an about hour long discussion of the proposal Monday with Mack Reynolds, vice president of the Wood River Peace Officers Association, and Supt. Wayne Fagg, Blaine County School District.

Reynolds will present an outline of possible alternatives, projected costs and possible means of funding to the commissioners.

Reynolds told the commissioners Monday that he felt the proposed probation officer should work closely with the court, but would not serve in a punitive role.

Co-ordination of information was needed between the various police agencies within the county who may have had contact with the individual juvenile, Reynolds said.

Based on this information, school information and a total backgrounding of the juvenile, Reynolds said, the probation officer could make a recommendation to the court. Also, he said, the officer could seek aid for youth on probation from community resources, such as churches or the Wood River Mental Health Clinic.

The association vice president said he felt the officer could lessen the work load for local agencies, the courts and the schools.

Fagg said when youth "first got into trouble that is when they need some real down to earth counseling. We have to have some way to help the child and put him back on the right track."

Commission chairman C. W. (Andy) Gardner said, "I think we should give it a try if it is at all possible."

Commissioner Jack Bennett said the probation officer was "probably the cheapest and the best thing we can do for this county."

Impatient driver

SINAI (UPI) — The Israeli soldier's disregard for rank is legendary, but a jeep driver in the Sinai must hold a new record for gall in the face of a general.

The driver pulled up his jeep at an outpost in the Sinai and stopped to let Maj. Gen. Ezer Weizman out to speak to another officer. After awhile, however, the impatient driver got tired of waiting for the general to return.

"Come on, already, Weizman, will you," the young man finally shouted out.

The general turned to the driver, walked back to the jeep and got in without a word of reprimand.

Release denied

BOISE (UPI) — Federal Judge Ray McNichols has denied a writ for release for Larry John Ortega, an inmate of the state prison.

Ortega contended his rights were violated at his trial on a robbery charge but Judge McNichols said the allegations already have been heard by the Idaho Supreme Court and that tribunal found no violations.

Teachers, board exchange ideas

WENDELL — The Wendell School board and teachers met in an informal meeting Tuesday night to exchange ideas for improvement of the Wendell school system.

Suggestions ranged from a possible bond issue to the hiring of an attendance officer to cut down student absences.

According to superintendent Lawrence LaRue, 25 teachers attended. Discussion groups were formed with five teachers at a table who met with each board member for about 30 minutes.

Topics included the feasibility of in-service training programs for teachers, the possibility of hiring an attendance officer to cut down on excessive student absences, discussion of a bond issue to relieve overcrowded conditions, effectiveness or ineffectiveness of cutting grades for unexcused absences, the possibility of a semi-annual social for board members and staff, teacher representation at board meetings, the teacher's role in improving board teacher and board student relationships, encouragement to board members to visit classrooms, the possibility of using adult teacher aides, and the possibility of a school safety patrol to help elementary students cross Highway 46.

The meeting was the first of four scheduled meetings planned to give board members and teachers a chance to become better acquainted, LaRue said.

No action was taken on any of the suggestions made, it was an exchange of ideas only, LaRue said. The next meeting is scheduled for mid-December.

The board met separately with Ronald Rogers, Certified Public Accountant, Jerome, to accept the 1972-73 audit.

Kissinger trip rescheduled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's trip to Peking, delayed by the Middle East war, has been rescheduled for Nov. 10, the State Department announced Wednesday.

Kissinger had been scheduled to visit the Chinese capital Monday but the trip was delayed by his efforts to seek an end to the fighting between the Israelis and Arabs.

A joint statement issued here and in Peking said:

"It has been agreed upon through consultations that the visit to the Peoples Republic of China by Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, U. S. secretary of state and assistant to the President for National security affairs, will be postponed to Nov. 10 to Nov. 13, 1973."

Murphy asks disclosure law in Idaho

BOISE (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Jack M. Murphy has asked the chairman of the senate judiciary committee to look into the advisability of a financial disclosure law for Idaho's political candidates.

"It becomes apparent, in view of what has transpired on a federal level, as well as other sister states, that Idaho's best interests would be served by having such a law," Murphy wrote Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise.

He asked Mrs. Klein's committee to begin a study of the problem as soon as convenient.

"It would not be my desire that legislation be enacted, on a crash basis, simply as a reaction to problems in Washington, D. C., but rather a judicious review of what would be best for the citizens of Idaho," he said.

In considering such legislation, Murphy said, one of the questions which must be answered is whether the law should apply to those seeking post on school boards and highway district boards and small town public offices.

"In many of these areas it is difficult enough to get good people to run for those offices," he said.

"Your committee should specifically inquire into what would be the effect of requiring personal financial statements and as to whether people would be more reluctant to fill these non-paying positions by reason of having to file personal financial statements," he said.

Murphy, who said he would ask for such a law when he announced his candidacy for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, also suggested Mrs. Klein's committee ask whether:

- All state elected officials should be required to disclose all income and expenses for a campaign.
- All officials who in fact win election and/or incumbents be required to file their personal financial statement in a public record.
- Financial contributions and expenses on any campaign be required of mayors of cities.
- Financial contributions and expenses be required of legislators.
- Financial contributions and expenses on any campaign be required of city councilmen.
- There should be a limit on contributions made to campaigns.
- There should be a limit on contributions made from outside Idaho.
- There should be a limit to contributions by any one person.

Romance in a bottle

NANCY DENNIK, 22, will become Mrs. Phillip Kalmerton Friday in a marriage which had its beginning with a note in a bottle. More than five years ago Miss Dennik and a girlfriend found a bottle on a beach on Lake Michigan near Port Washington, Wis. They put a message in the bottle and threw it in the lake. Kalmerton found the bottle and started writing to Miss Dennik and this led to the romance. (UPI)

Buhl student honored at ISU

POCATELLO (ISU) — Dale Duncan, Buhl, has been named the 1972-73 outstanding park and recreation student at Idaho State University by the Idaho Recreation and Park Society.

He received the award at the society's annual banquet in Idaho Falls recently.

The society, comprising park and recreation professionals, educators, park board members and others concerned with park and recreation, presents the annual award to an ISU student and a University of Idaho student majoring in park and recreation.

The awards are made on the basis of academic achievement, work experience, qualities of leadership, and involvement in the student section of the society's activities.

Duncan was statewide chairman of the student section of IRPs in 1972-73. Previously he was chairman of the planning committee that formulated the student section and drew up bylaws. The purpose of the section is to give Idaho students in park and recreation a voice in the society's activities.

DALE DUNCAN top student

The student section is accorded one vote through its chairman, thus, Duncan explained; students are able to have a voice in helping to plan conferences that will reflect their interests. The section also prepares job listings to help park and recreation majors obtain summer jobs in their field.

Duncan is a senior student preparing to graduate in December. In a new program introduced this year, he was one of two senior students who managed the Indian Rocks State Park, 22 miles southeast of Pocatello.

Each student managed the park for half the season between May and October. The students were paid managers of the park without direct on-site supervision. In the summer of 1972 Duncan was director of Buhl's City recreation program.

Unusual meet

BOISE (UPI) — An unusual one-day meeting is on tap for members of the State Board of Education when they meet next week at Lewiston.

Dr. John W. Swartley, Boise, board president, said that institutions of higher learning are not on the agenda. He said business matters of other agencies under board control could be completed in one day.

Regular monthly sessions ordinarily take from two to four days.

The morning session Nov. 1 at Lewiston High School will be devoted to executive committee state department of education and vocational rehabilitation reports.

That afternoon the board will take up agendas of the State School for the Deaf and Blind, vocational education and board work and the Office of Higher Education.

Note in bottle episode results in wedding bells

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Their romance involved a bottle and it included something like a computer dating service application, but there the similarities ended for Nancy Dennik and Phillip Kalmerton, who will be married Saturday.

The bottle was one Miss Dennik and a girl friend found on a beach and the application was a note they sealed inside before putting it adrift on Lake Michigan.

Miss Dennik, 22, said it was five years ago when she and her friend found the bottle near her parents' summer home about eight miles from Port Washington.

"We thought we'd put a message in it," Miss Dennik said. "We wrote our names and addresses and, 'If you would like to write to a blond, 5-foot-2, with blue eyes, or a dark haired girl, 5-foot-10, and if you are unmarried....'"

Phillip and a friend found the bottle and the message a few days later as they were cleaning up the beach at Terry, Andrae State Park, where they had summer jobs.

Although the pair decided to answer the note "as a big joke," the correspondence continued while Kalmerton finished technical school in Oshkosh; took a summer job in Oklahoma and went through basic training at Fort Campbell, Ky.

A few months after the couple finally met, Phillip gave Nancy his high school ring. That was before he went to Vietnam.

He was discharged in 1971 and in April of that year gave Nancy an engagement ring—taped to a bottle.

On Saturday, "the girl from the bottle," as his friends and relatives call Nancy, will cut the wedding cake, which will be decorated with miniature bottles.

Inside each will be a note written by the bridegroom: "I will love you longer than forever Nancy D."

Southeast Asia has oil potential

By LARRY GREEN (c) Chicago Daily News

TEL. XVII — Thought it may be a few years away, Southeast Asia has the potential of battling the United States out of an oil shortage, caused by any prolonged ban on petroleum shipments to America by Arab nations.

Virtually all the key oil-producing countries in the Middle East have announced their intentions to join—or have already become part of—a boycott movement designed to cut off oil to the United States in retaliation for massive American support to Israel in the war with Egypt and Syria.

Among the nations turning off the petroleum flow are Saudi Arabia, Iraq, Libya, Abu Dhabi, Bahrain, Kuwait and Qatar.

The collective move will dry up between six and ten per cent of the U.S. oil supply, a significant amount in the wake of the country's growing energy crisis.

While a steady supply of oil from Southeast Asia, may be a few years off, geologists and State Department experts believe the region has the potential of more than offsetting petroleum supplied by the Middle East.

Though the United States has known about and attempted to keep a lid on Southeast Asian oil prospects for years, it has been reported that seismic studies indicate the coastline between Korea and Burma may contain one of the world's biggest unexplored petroleum fields.

going to make a trick with the king if I held it back and won the trick with the jack. The rest was easy.

As usual, George had been just about as generous as a gold brick salesman. Had he won that first spade with the jack, West would have known that George held the king. When George won with the king it appeared to West that his partner, East, surely held the jack.

The next six tricks were won by diamonds. George discarded the three of spades and king-three-two of hearts.

Then George ran off his clubs. His last card was the jack of spades. West had to throw away an ace and throw the wrong one away.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: While flying from the Midwest to the West Coast recently, I was enjoying the most peaceful nap, when I was rudely awakened by a booming voice from over the loudspeaker which blared, "THIS IS YOUR CAPTAIN SPEAKING—we are now flying over the Grand Canyon!"

Abby, this wasn't a plane filled with sightseeing yokels who had never flown before. I am reasonably certain that most of the passengers had already seen the Grand Canyon from 35,000 feet.

I never did resume my nap, which I badly needed. Be a pal, and print this. It may wake up some of the mike-happy pilots. Thanks!
THE OOOOOONLY WAY TO FLY.

DEAR THE: Consider it done.

Mike-happy pilot rapped

DEAR ABBY: You once wrote that there must be a special place in heaven for second wives. Well, I am wife No. 3, and hope there is more comfort in heaven than on earth for us. This is my first marriage, and I never dreamed it would be like this.

I married a man of exceptional character and ability, and watched two of his well-supported ex-wives literally wipe him out financially when he had a long period of unemployment. Now he is older than his age, discouraged, broke, but still emotionally hung up on his "responsibilities" to his "other families." And they still hang on for dear life. (Five children by No. 1 are grown, but the sorry victims of an incompetent mother and an absent father; No. 2 is pitifully mentally ill.) Needless to say, my needs come last.

While my husband slowly rehabilitates himself and his business, I am supporting the whole ship. I love him, and I married him for better or worse, and feel that's the least I can do. Fortunately, I have a good career.

My faith in God is the only thing that keeps me sane; but I have all I can do to deal with his guilt and my disappointment. How do others handle such problems?

NUMBER THREE

DEAR NUMBER THREE: Those with less character than you refuse to support "the whole ship," thereby adding to their husbands' guilt. It is to his credit that he feels a sense of obligation to his "other families," and to yours that you help him meet it. If you and he feel that the burden is more than you can cope with, I strongly urge professional counseling.

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended the funeral of my best friend, and I have never been so appalled in my life!

A distant relative of the deceased brought an oil painting of her three children to the funeral. It was in an ornate frame, and so huge she had difficulty carrying it.

She went around showing the painting to everyone. Several people acted disgusted but no one said anything. It appeared that the "only" reason this woman came to the funeral was to show off the picture.

Would you say she was out of line? And shouldn't someone have told her so?
WAS THERE IN S. C.

DEAR WAS: She was definitely out of line. But I doubt if anything said to one so obviously insensitive would have penetrated.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Soroptimists honor guests

TWIN FALLS — Founder's Day was observed by the Twin Falls Soroptimist Club Tuesday night with a dinner honoring representatives of other service organizations and surrounding area Soroptimist clubs.

The dinner was held in Rogerson Hotel Roundup Room. Helon Cannon, club president, said the Soroptimist International Association was founded Oct. 3, 1921, in Oakland, Calif., with 80 members. There are now 1,700 clubs with 51,000 members.

Guests introduced included John Henderson and Louise Harral, sponsors of the Golden Age Club of Soroptimists; Tine Hill and Adele Stoddard, Altrusa Club; Faye Hoffman and Laverna Rudolph, Twin Falls Business and Professional Women; Frances Buhler and Betty Almsworth, Magic Valley BPW Club and Hazel Bowden and Edna Bell Oslund, former Soroptimists.

Music was provided by Carolyn Jasser accompanied by Marty Mead. Novella Lazaros, Twin Falls artist, presented the club a painting, "Aglow," which will be used to help the club raise funds to purchase a thermal blanket for the emergency room at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

The large painting is a forest scene, aglow with sunlight sifting through the trees. Within the scene are some 50 tiny forest birds and animals. Miriam Breckenridge, Idaho representative to the U.S. Committee for UNICEF, talked to the club about the purpose and programs of the group. She said the Soroptimist International Association was one of the first women's groups to have consultative status with the executive board of UNICEF.

Females as astronauts?

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI)—Women have fared just as well as men in medical tests conducted in simulated space conditions and a U.S. scientist predicts females will be astronauts by 1980.

Dr. Hans Mark, director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center, told a news conference Tuesday that 12 women volunteers have shown they can withstand as well as males weightlessness and "G" forces encountered upon re-entry to the earth's atmosphere.

Mark said the volunteers all were Air Force nurses and they were tested in programs used on men last year. The tests, he added, will be used to develop selection criteria for women passengers in Space Shuttle missions.

The scientist said women would be sent into space before 1980. One reason, he added, it has taken until now to get women tested is that U.S. spacecraft require a great deal of manual piloting and there have been few female pilots.

Noting that examination of test results is far from complete, Mark said that so far "there is no reason to think women would be any better or worse than men on space flights."

"We see no reason to believe there are any inherent problems to women flying in space," he said.

The women were split into two groups in which eight of the volunteers had two weeks of total bedrest to simulate weightlessness and the remaining volunteers acted as ambulatory control subjects.

Following those two weeks, the women were subjected to gravity forces they would experience on re-entering earth's atmosphere. Relatively low accelerations forces were simulated in tests on the centrifuge. The women also underwent cardiovascular and endocrine testing.

Dr. Harold Sandler, chief of the biochemical research division at Ames and principal investigator for the experiment, said that the women, like the male test subjects last year, experienced 50 per cent degradation or half the physical capabilities while they were weightless.

Bird kidnaped

BIRD SPECIALIST Clifford Lindquist holds a rare Spanish-imperial eagle that was mysteriously kidnaped from a bird preserve in Spain. The 12-pound two-foot high bird, one of only 100 of its species, was captured by California agents who thought they were chasing the owner of an illegal hawk in nearby Hayward, Calif., several months ago. The bird was released from the pursued car and the agents rescued it. Lindquist will accompany the bird-back to its 5,000-acre preserve in Spain. (UPI)

Colleagues say Bork qualified

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—The Yale Law School colleagues of Robert H. Bork, the acting attorney general, Tuesday said they agree that he is qualified for the job, but they added that he might have been better off not accepting the presidential nomination.

Louis Pollack, a professor of law and former dean of the school, said he cannot understand why Bork fired Archibald Cox, the special Watergate prosecutor, instead of resigning, as did the two men higher up in the Justice Department, Elliot Richardson and William D. French.

"If not for this episode, I would have thought Mr. Bork was qualified," Pollack said.

Prof. Eugene Roslow, however, said Bork was justified in not resigning because he wasn't involved in the "promises Richard and Cox made to the Senate."

"Bork has first-rate ability and integrity, although some of the views he holds I might not agree with," said Alexander Bickel, the constitutional law expert. "I disagree on the question of whether executive privilege covers the Watergate tapes. He thinks it does."

Bork took leave from Yale last December to become U.S. solicitor general.

Licenses due

TWIN FALLS—Assessor Ronald Taylor today reminded Twin Falls County motorists that license plates ending in "O" and displaying the 1973 red and white stickers expire at midnight Oct. 31.

He said vehicles with such licenses should be re-licensed with the new 1974 embossed license plates prior to that deadline. The new plates will also end in the letter "O" and will expire on the same deadline date next year.

New plates should be obtained at the assessor's auto license bureau on the first floor of the county courthouse.

Reappraisal slated on Nixon's estate

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI)—The Orange County Board of Supervisors voted Tuesday to pay the state $4,500 to finance the reappraisal of President Nixon's Western White House estate to determine if it has been undervalued.

The supervisors voted three weeks ago to ask the state Board of Equalization to conduct a reappraisal of the value of the estate overlooking the Pacific. Tuesday's vote provided the funds.

The supervisors took action after state tax authorities said there were indications the estate was undervalued on the tax rolls, but the state board could not act until the county asked for its help.

The county assessor has defended his valuation of $1.37 million. Critics point out that Nixon paid $1.5 million for the estate. A major issue in the dispute is whether the work paid for by $700,000 in federal funds spent on the estate can be considered taxable improvements or an untaxed federal installation.

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—Philip M. Jardina, a University of California student, sat under a park tree for 50 nights making notes for a paper on the hoots of owls.

He reports that the screech owl's call lasts two or three seconds and that the record-breaker in his notes made 47 calls in four minutes.

Tupperware completes phase two construction program

Hiring under way at Jerome plant

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer
JEROME — The Jerome Tupperware plant is presently hiring personnel to work in the new $3.2 million addition to the plant.
Robert Bussiere, manager, announced that Tupperware has completed its phase two construction program and is hiring personnel to staff the expanded facility.
Bussiere said Tupperware expects to increase the present work force by 300 employees by Dec. 1, making a total of 700 employees with a $4 million annual payroll.
"The labor market is still here for our needs and the percentage of employee turnover is less in this area than in most regions. However, it is a problem," Bussiere said.
Luther Malone, personnel manager, said that a steady flow of applicants comes to the plant each day. "As it stands now, we will have more applicants than are needed for the jobs available," Malone said. He said the plant will continue to work three shifts five days a week and partial shifts on weekends. He said about 71 per cent of the plant employees reside on the north side and 29 per cent come from the south side, with some commuting from as far away as Carey.
Once in full operation, the Jerome plant will produce one-third of all Tupperware products in the United States. The other two-thirds will be produced at the other two U.S. plants in Halls, Tenn., and North Smithfield, R. I.

"We have been primarily shipping our products to the western states, Alaska and Hawaii and will now ship to additional midwest markets, including Kansas, Oklahoma, Minnesota and Missouri," Ray Camara, assistant manager said.
Construction of phase two was started Feb. 18, by Mitchell Construction Company, Pocatello, and it is anticipated that all of the finishing work will be completed sometime in November, according to Camara.
He said some outside work is still being done and the new storage facilities have not been completed. "The new addition, which is 275,000 square feet and houses 40 additional molding machines as well as storage will double the production capacity of the plant and bring the total square footage to 870,000. The figure includes all buildings and garages," Camara said.
He noted that 10 of the new molding machines are in operation. "We are completing the final installation of some of the molding machines and will bring a few machines into production each week until all 40 machines are working. In full operation, the plant will be processing 26 million pounds of plastic per year," Camara said.
The new addition, which was constructed west of the original building has changed the former L shape to a rectangle.

Hailey council candidate out

HAILEY — J. E. Woodbury has withdrawn his candidacy for the Hailey city council, leaving a field of four candidates for two open council seats.
Woodbury said he withdrew on the advice of his physician. However, his name will remain on the official ballot.
Woodbury said he would "very much urge" his supporters to support Don Angell and incumbent Charles Dunn for the city council and incumbent mayor Lawrence Hengle for re-election.
Other contenders for the positions include William Whittaker and Robert Ward for the council positions and Ralph Rutter for mayor.
Woodbury also urged voters to "study thoroughly" the issue of whether the city should adopt an initiative and referendum ordinance "because the way it is written is very misleading," he said.
"Personally, I would vote against the city adopting" the measure, Woodbury said.
In other election news, Rutter, Whittaker and Ward have invited the other three candidates and the public to an open discussion of election issues because of the "wide divergence of public opinion."
The challenge states that, upon the acceptance of the other candidates, a time and place would be set.

Wrong headline

TWIN FALLS — A headline in the Wednesday's edition incorrectly stated "McClure Raps Nixon Action."
The story for which the headline was written indicated Idaho's freshman senator, James McClure supported the President's action in firing special Watergate prosecutor, Archibald Cox. The Times-News regrets the error.

Ketchum meet set

KETCHUM — The newly organized Hemingway Parents Group has scheduled a meeting for 7 p.m. tonight at the Hemingway Elementary School, Ketchum.
According to member Jean Colven, the group was formed as an outgrowth of the back-to-school night to learn more about the school's operation and to assist with school projects.
Presently, the group has adopted a $2,000 project to bring educational television to the Hemingway School.
Colven said the Ketchum-Sun Valley Papoose Club has pledged to purchase two of the needed eight televisions. The parents group will raise funds to purchase six televisions, eight television carts and to cover cable installation costs.

Gem Supreme Court dismisses appeal

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Bureau
BOISE — The Idaho Supreme Court Wednesday dismissed an appeal by three Jerome city councilmen who claimed they were libeled in a newspaper editorial nearly two years ago.
In a decision written by Justice Joseph J. McFadden, the court ruled the editorial contained "words and phrases highly critical of the appellants which are nothing more than hardy, uninhibited statements."
The three councilmen, S. N. Weeks, Walter C. Bentzinger and Elwin L. Tinker, claimed they were libeled in the editorial appearing in the Northside News Jan. 6, 1972. They were appealing the ruling of Fifth District Judge James M. Cunningham, who said in his decision that "it seems to me that at most the language complained of is unpleasant, annoying and irksome and may well have subjected the plaintiffs to jest or banter so as to affect their feelings, all of which creates something less than libel per se."
One Justice, Allan G. Shepard, in a separate concurring opinion, noted there appeared to be "little danger that the editorial will go down in the annals of American journalism as a classic in political critique. The terms 'Teeny Tyrants,' and 'Three Stooges,' do not really invoke memories of the ringing tocsin of Thomas Paine, the muckraking of a Lincoln Steffens or the odiousness of a Drew Pearson. I would have expected better of seasoned and veteran journalists."

The editorial called for a recall effort to be directed against the three city councilmen because they had, in effect, fired Jerome chief of police C. H. Pantney. It said, "We think it is now time to give these teeny tyrants a short course in Democracy in Action."
The Idaho Constitution provides for the fate of despots, even insignificant ones like these three stooges.
"We urge that these councilmen be recalled as soon as possible."
The recall drive that was mounted early in 1972 subsequently failed, however.
In his opinion, McFadden wrote, "In reading this opinion it is apparent that the publishers were perturbed at the actions taken by the council members in dismissal of the chief of police and were expressing themselves on public actions taken by them."
"It is further apparent from this editorial that the publishers were striving to seek redress for the asserted injustices by way of promoting further action by citizens of the community."
McFadden also wrote in his eight-page decision that the councilmen "as public officials in exercise of their official duties are not immune from the criticism and censure of public debate. The (councilmen) voluntarily entered the arena of public debate and should not complain over ribald or robust criticism of their public action. Political epithets and hyperbole leveled against the actions of public officials are within the freedom of expression protected by the First amendment afforded to citizens criticizing the function of their government."

CSI students back ban on canyon rim building

TWIN FALLS — A survey of 339 College of Southern Idaho students shows overwhelming support for a ban on building along the Snake River Canyon rim.
The students were polled by the Student Senate on Oct. 10.
The survey also indicated that students are almost evenly split on preservation of the old Perrine Bridge when the new structure is completed.
The students were given a choice of four statements concerning building on the rim.
A large majority — 195 — checked the statement favoring a building ban: "I don't think building along the canyon rim should be allowed at all and that the area should be preserved in its natural state."
Ninety-five students supported a one-year moratorium on building: "I think the county commissioners should not allow any building to be done on the canyon rim for at least one year to allow further thought and research on the decision."

Another 69 students backed for a 300-foot setback on building: "I think there should be a 300-foot setback from the canyon rim on all building."
Only 16 opposed building restrictions: "I don't think the county commissioners should put any restrictions on building along the canyon rim."
A Student Senate spokesman said today the survey, and comments added by the students, would be turned over to the county commissioners.
Asked about the Perrine Bridge, 175 students favored preservation of the bridge for use as a pedestrian crossing and scenic attraction while 152 supported destruction of the old bridge when the new one is completed.

Employment terms aired on planner for TF area

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Terms of employment for a professional planner for Twin Falls City and County were discussed at a special "impromptu" meeting of the Joint Planning Council Tuesday night.
County Commissioner Merl Leonard said Wednesday council members agreed to issue an employment contract to the planner with annual salary suggested in the $12,000 to $14,000 range.
Leonard said a bonus incentive plan was also viewed favorably by the council. Under the bonus concept, he said, the professional planner would be hired for a six-month probationary period then would be given a retroactive bonus if retained after that period.
The council also narrowed the applicants for professional planner to five and directed the secretary to arrange for interviews with the five men.

Twin Falls City Engineer George Michael, who had applied for the position of professional planner, was not among the five candidates selected, Leonard said.
In other business, the council voted to appoint City Manager Jean Milar to serve as interim treasurer as well as secretary of the council until the council's annual meeting in January.
Although Milar sits as an ex-officio member of the council serving only as an advisor, Leonard said it was ruled legal for Milar to hold the offices on the planning group.
Leonard said the council's by-laws, submitted at a meeting last week, are still being reviewed by city attorney William Langley and County Prosecutor Robert Galley.
The council also officially adopted the name Twin Falls Joint Planning Council Tuesday. Preliminary arrangement was also made for office space in the old County Hospital building on Addison Avenue.

Supreme Court agenda includes custody appeal

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Supreme Court sessions continued today in Twin Falls with two appeals on the agenda this morning.
Arguments were heard in the appeal of Roy A. Miller over the custody of his child on grounds the District Court improperly awarded the custody to the child's mother.
The appeal filed by Miller is to district court ruling by Judge Theron W. Ward, giving the child's custody to Wanda K. Miller. In his argument, Miller charged the defendant had failed to prove fitness for custody of the child during the lower court hearing.
Also on the morning agenda were arguments in an appeal by the city of Burley to a court order from Fifth District Judge Sherman J. Ballwood over storm sewer drainage. The case was brought against the city by Ardell and Lila Daxley and Max and Sheila Daxley, property owners. They charged the city with allowing storm sewer drainage on their property.
The district court ruled in favor of a quiet title action for the plaintiffs and in doing so ordered the city to cease diverting the drainage to the property in and around Goose Creek, which bisects South Burley.
In its appeal, the city challenges the court's findings that Goose Creek is not a natural drain in which such surface water may be diverted. The Supreme Court heard arguments

Wednesday on a matter of water priority in Hagerman Valley. George Lemon and Norman Standa, plaintiffs in an earlier water suit, appealed to the high court on a decision rendered by Judge Ward which affirmed a ruling by the Idaho Department of Water Administration.
Arguments Wednesday indicated the appellants filed an application for use of the water from Rock Springs and Rock Spring Creek June 10, 1969. It was found the land stated in the application for designation of the water was owned by Earl M. Hardy and Richard Kaster, defendants in the original action. Hardy and Kaster filed an application for the water and also filed an application in November, 1969, to amend their original application, changing the point of diversion to the newly acquired land.
The Water Administration Department permitted the amendment but backdated the appellant's priority to November, 28, 1969.
In arguments Wednesday the Appellants stated the Water Administration had no statutory authority to backdate their priority date and the respondents, Hardy and Kaster, were not adversely affected by the amendment of the application for use of the water as requested by Lemon and Standa.
The Supreme Court will meet here Friday, Monday and Tuesday.

Shoshone studies RR, highway crossing safety

By MELBA THORNE
Times-News Writer
SHOSHONE — Fourteen persons representing the Union Pacific Railroad, City of Shoshone, Public Utilities and Department of Highways met Tuesday to work to eliminate accidents on highway-railroad crossings in Shoshone.
Mayor Ellwood R. Werry said he felt all present want to do whatever is necessary to make the crossings safer, and he added "we are going forward from here into a definite program."
Mayor Werry said the city will look into the possibility of having an educational type program at the Lincoln school as well as further investigate the feasibility of installing flashing lights and arm-gates at the two crossings in Shoshone.
Those present at the meeting Tuesday morning said the only way to really control the problem would be through the installation of flashing lights and the gates.
If this is done, the control for switching engines would be close to the actual crossings, to cut down on the traffic congestion problem, while the through train control would be a quarter of a mile from the crossings, to give plenty of time for alert of the faster moving trains.

Exact speed of the trains through the city after such an installation is one matter to be considered further. The railroad would like to increase the speed under those circumstances.
The lights and arms would be installed on both Highway and Apple Street crossings, as if only the main highway crossing was controlled, it would create what many termed a "trap" on the other crossing. Cost for such installations could run about $80,000 each. The railroad and State Highway Department would share costs on the 93 crossing while the city of Shoshone and the railroad would share the cost of the Apple Street crossing.
Mayor Werry said he hopes to call a public meeting in the near future, at which railroad officials and State Highway personnel will be present to answer questions.
Mayor Werry said there have been nine accidents in Shoshone, on the two crossings, in the past 11 years. "This is a problem that is always with us and we may as well get at doing something about it," he said.

New stretch of I-80 to open

(Special to the Times-News)
BOISE — A stretch of Interstate Highway 80 between Mountain Home and Hammett will be open to traffic in the next several days according to a Department of Highway official.
Pilkington also said current plans call for completion of the interstate highway system between Twin Falls and Boise by the late 1970's. Completion of the project would come in several steps. They include:

— Construction of bridges around Glens Ferry, already underway;
— Construction of a stretch of highway from Glens Ferry to King Hill, set for completion in 1976 or 1977;
— Construction of a Bliss bypass scheduled for completion by 1976 or 1977;
— Construction of a Bliss-Tuttle road, set for the mid-1970's;
— Construction in the late 1970's of the last remaining portion of non-interstate highway from Hammett to Glens Ferry.
Plans for ceremonies to mark the opening of the new stretch of roadway early next month are being handled by the Mountain Home Chamber of Commerce, according to another department official. They were unconfirmed late Wednesday.

Pilkington said current department plans indicate the interstate system could be completed in Idaho in the next ten years. The estimated remaining cost is $140 million, of which $14.4 is budgeted for the coming fiscal year. There will be 812 miles of interstate when the system is finished in the state.
The other planned construction projects in the Magic Valley area include a 20-mile stretch from the Raft River exit of I-15W to American Falls on the east and more work on I-15 between the Utah Idaho border and Malad, including upgrading work near the Cottrell interchange in southern Idaho.
Pilkington said the I-15 work will be let in three separate project contracts beginning at the end of the current decade and stretching over into the early 1980's.
There is a total of 16 miles along the route of I-15 that is not yet in the interstate system, Pilkington said. That section of road will be worked on as two separate projects with completion set for the middle part of the current decade.

In addition to the construction projects in southern Idaho, Department of Highway timetables call for the completion of I-90 in the northern part of the state in several steps. Pilkington said one portion, from the Idaho-Washington state border east to the Post Falls area. When that project is completed, he said, the highway will stretch from Spokane to Coeur d'Alene.

Tighter control sought over commodity trading

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A spokesman for one of the nation's biggest grain firms Wednesday urged Congress to create a new, well-financed independent regulatory agency to stiffen government supervision over trading in commodity futures.

Walter B. Saunders, a vice president of Cargill, Inc., delivered the proposal in testimony prepared for delivery to the House Agriculture Committee, which is considering a series of proposed reforms in futures trading controls.

But the CME, which accounted for 30 per cent of last year's $268 billion in commodity trading, said supervision of markets should be left in the hands of the Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA), a small Agriculture Department agency.

Saunders said a vital first step in restoring public confidence in commodity markets should be creation of a new regulatory agency with enough money to hire a fully adequate and expert staff. He said the agency should be given power to control all futures trading, including trading in metals and other products now exempt from federal regulation.

Camas beads in on league title for weekend schedule

Here it is only two weeks from the end of the season, Magic Valley has 10 high school football games on tap and not one of them is of crucial nature in a conference championship.

The weekend is loaded with non-conference games. The only championship event comes Friday afternoon when the undefeated Camas County Mushers host the Bliss Bears at Fairfield. A victory would give the Mushers sole possession of the Snake River eight-man title for the third straight year. But since the Mushers won their first game against Bliss 76-16 it would appear the only big news available from there would be a Bliss upset of major proportions.

The only league game among the A-2 and A-3 (basketball) classification teams finds Oakley traveling to Hansen. That one opens at 7 p.m.

Jerome will make its first appearance in the midweek, the Tigers playing Blackfoot on the weekend of a doubleheader. Bonneville plays Rigby in the opener at 6:15 p.m. with Jerome and Blackfoot pencilled in for 8:30 p.m.

Blackfoot should be a good opponent for the Tigers, having played to within one point of Burley earlier this year. Jerome is sitting at 4-4 expectedly, and needs a win to get off a two-loss streak.

Wadkins favored in Sahara invitational

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Defending champion Larry Wadkins is an 8-1 favorite today to repeat in the $135,000 72-hole Sahara Invitational and he's got a cute little bundle of new incentive.

Wadkins skipped last week's Kaiser Invitational to fly home to Winston-Salem, N.C., and be with his wife, Rachel, who gave birth prematurely to a 4-pound, 4-ounce daughter, Jessica Dawn. "They're both fine," he grinned.

Wadkins is the top money-winner of the year here with $104,948 and would go well over the $200,000 mark with the $27,000 first prize. Last year he went over the $100,000 mark by winning the Sahara and went on to set a record for a rookie of $116,616.

The 23-year-old Wadkins went to Wake Forest College on a scholarship set up by Arnold Palmer whom he beat here by one stroke last year. Palmer, 44, has never won the Sahara but has finished second twice.

Palmer is No. 22 on the money list this year with $54,644 and would go over $100,000 for the ninth straight year if he picks up the winner's prize.

Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, the No. 1 oddsmaker in this gambling mecca, rated Wadkins at 8-1 and Palmer at 15-1.

"At 12-1 he placed Hubert Green, a young two-time winner this year on the PGA tour, Hale Irwin, Grier Jones and Forest Fezler.

With Palmer at 15-1, he put Dave Stockton, John Schlee, Bob Murphy, Bobby Nichols, and Gay Brewer, back at 20-1, and listed Jerry Heard, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Rod Funseth, Homer Blancus and Bert Grens.

Jack Nicklaus, winner of six tournaments this year, is passing up the Sahara. He is the leading money-winner with $278,124.

Green and Wadkins are the only multiple winners here. Green won the Tallahassee Open and the B.C. Open and Wadkins took the Byron Nelson Classic and the USI Classic.

The Sahara-Nevada Country Club is the site of the 16th annual Sahara and it's a tight 6,800 yard, par 36-35-71 course.

The wind which gusts to 45 m.p.h. early in the week, can be a factor but the forecast is for relatively calm weather with temperatures in the 70's.

White Nicklaus and other top money-winner Bruce Crampton, Tom Weiskopf and Lee Trevino chafe to skip this one, there are plenty of old favorites competing, such as Lionel Hebert, George Archer, Art Wall, Ken Still and George Knudson, not to mention the 1970 winner—Babe Hickey.

NCAA-Canada playoff slated

ATLANTA (UPI) — The NCAA said Wednesday that its hockey champion will meet the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union champion next March in the first North American ice hockey championship.

"This should be quite a stimulus to intercollegiate hockey in both Canada and the United States," said Robert Pugh, executive director of the CIAU. "And I hope it is a stepping stone between the United States and Canada for competition in other sports."

Such a series has been proposed for several years and final hurdles were cleared this week and announced at an NCAA meeting in Atlanta.

Filer comes back from a week off to play the Pilots at Glens Ferry. "I kept hearing about how small Glens Ferry was," says Filer Coach Ray Berryhill. "Well, I got a chance to scout them last week and I'll tell you something. They aren't that small — except they don't have any real big men — and they probably hit as hard or harder than any team in Magic Valley."

Wood River will travel to Wendell where it appears teams going in opposite directions are playing. Wood River started well, playing well in a couple of losses to larger schools. But in the past four weeks they've had trouble keeping a game-long effort going. Wendell opened with two losses in its first three tries and since that has been rolling along well with only a tie marring its record.

Gooding, which has come up with two good conference wins in a row, hosts the Burley Bobcats in a non-league set. Both teams have relied heavily on their defense to good advantage this fall. In Burley's Ken Harper, however, Gooding's defense may be facing its biggest break-away threat of the year.

The Buhl Indians, with a share of two titles, tucked away, will entertain the Valley Vikings, a team that has bounced around as much as any. Valley has shown an ability to win games it isn't supposed to and Buhl can consider that just before kickoff time. Bu, in fact, Buhl has won a lot of game this year and in late August a great many of them were games they weren't supposed to win either.

Shoshone hopes its dedicated football players are back from hunting and fishing for its game against winless Hagerman at Hagerman. The Indians suited up only 13 junior and senior players last week and some heard the call of the wild. That also is one reason that Shoshone isn't interested in football playoffs.

But Hagerman so far hasn't been a super test. Coach Joe James is relying heavily on freshmen and sophomores and this probably is the slowest team foot in the school's history.

It could be air time at Hansen as both Oakley, with Randy Sharp, and Hansen, with Monty Jacobs, like to throw the ball. It is rather for sure that Oakley will. But last week Hansen, running into aerial troubles against Castelford, had to come back to earth to pull out victory.

In another Magic Valley loop game, Raft River, fresh from that upset in the Cassia county hate thing with Declo, comes to Castelford.

While Camas County and Bliss are playing at Fairfield, two other eight-man games are scheduled. Rockland will come to Richfield where the tigers are in second place and hold an earlier decision over the Bulldogs. Carey will be at Dietrich in the other game. Dietrich's last chance to taste victory this year.

Race legal loser welcome to try suit

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — Summit County Prosecutor Stephen M. Gabrial said Wednesday that if the Colorado man who talked his nephew into cheating in the Soap Box Derby wants to sue over alleged commonplace cheating in the event, he is welcome to do so. But Gabrial says he believes Robert Lange Sr. is trying to dilute his own guilt.

Lange, who agreed Tuesday to a non-judicial settlement of a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, said he would take some "affirmative action" against officials of the All-American Soap Box Derby.

"I think he made his statement to draw public attention from him and his guilt and others involved with the action," Gabrial said.

Lange said that rule violations were commonplace at the Derby and his nephew was unfairly singled out. Lange's nephew, James Gronen, 14, won the Derby but was stripped of the honor and a $7,500 scholarship when it was discovered his racer had been equipped with an electromagnetic device capable of giving it a quick start.

Bruins host Pocatello, Minico invades Idaho Falls

The Twin Falls Bruins will host a mercurial-like Pocatello team Friday while Minico travels to Idaho Falls Saturday in the two SIC games concerning Magic Valley high schools this weekend.

The Twin Falls Bruins and Idaho Falls get together Saturday night in Idaho Falls. If the Bruins know exactly what to expect from Pocatello, you can find them listed under the "seerers" pages in the classified. No one has figured the Indians but yet. Pocatello apparently operates under the theory of the Bruins — the whole thing is set by Sept. 1. If either team plans to win that particular weekend they'll be pretty good. If not, it'll be over fairly early. Pocatello has done things like beat Skyline, which handled and happily handled Twin Falls. Then Twin Falls has reversed the think by licking Nampa badly while Pocatello bowed to the Bulldogs. One thing is known. Pocatello has a potential all-conference back in Tony Monroe who has whipped some of the better teams around for a lot of yardage and died against others. Coach Denny Almquist of Twin Falls sees the Indians as a force that defies description. "When they play together as a team, they are very good. When they play like 11 individuals, they can be beaten. Sometimes they'll change from quarter to quarter." Coach Almquist said. He referred to the Indians playing undefeated Capital to a 14-13 halftime near-standstill, then collapsing in the final half.

Coach Almquist described his Bruins in as good as physical condition as could be expected at this time. However, he neglected to mention that the secondary still needs a lot of bolstering. Where once it could be said the Bruins were young and inexperienced, now, after 70 per cent of the season is gone, only the young remains. If Pocatello can pass — and Doug Frazier has 500 yards worth of SIC credentials behind him — the Bruins could be in for a long night.

Minico faces an opponent that is trying desperately not to believe its history. Idaho Falls believes it can get the winning spirit going after many years of "doormatry" in the Southern Idaho Conference. The Tigers, who have won only once, are being indoctrinated to the "win" idea by Coach Bob Omera, former Borah assistant.

Consequently, the Tigers have to be considered. Their statistics have been improving despite losses. Scores like 40-0 don't show that the Tigers amassed the third best total yardage against Capital of any team this year. Minico replies with Ritchie Donner, who figures in roughly two-thirds of all their plays. The senior quarterback highlighted his career this far with 253 total offense yards against Caldwell. That effort raised him to second best in the league.

There is one common opponent between the two. Minico dropped Caldwell 33-28 while Idaho Falls topped the Cougars 20-6 — each representing the only wins of the year. What it boils down to is that the team wanting it most will win it.

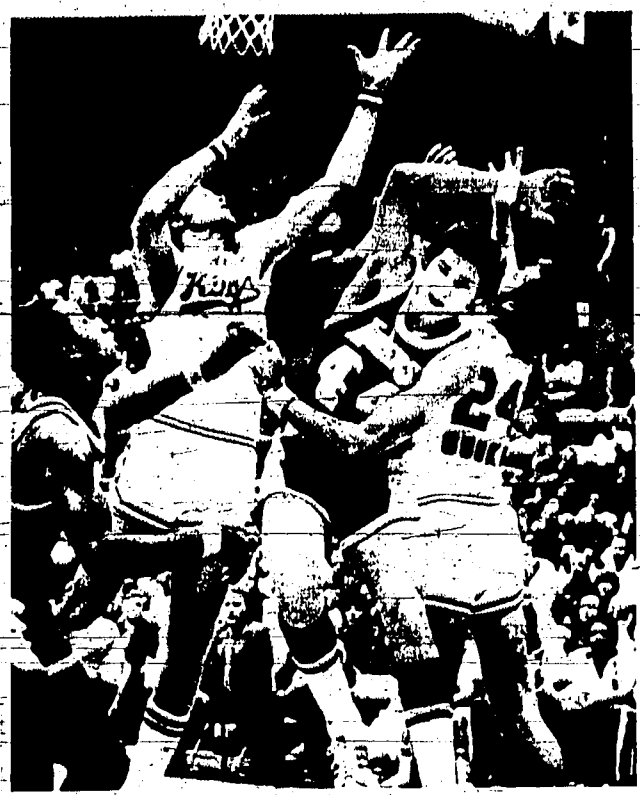

Chuck Finley wants his story told, too

NEW YORK (UPI) — Charlie Finley says he'd like to tell his side of the story. Never at any time, he points out, has he ever told the New York Yankees they could have his manager, Dick Williams, for nothing. If they want him that badly, he says, they can have him — but it's going to cost them a front-line player or a substantial piece of cash. The Yankees aren't going to get Dick Williams any other way, insists the Oakland A's owner. He means it. So much, claims Charlie Finley, that if anybody tries pushing him, he'll go to court.

Let's go back to the beginning of this thing," says Finley. "Dick Williams told our players in New York he was leaving the team at the end of the World Series. He told them before I heard about it. Next thing I know I read in the paper where George Steinbrenner (the Yankees' principal owner) said, 'Gee, who wouldn't want to have Dick Williams?' I didn't say anything when I read that. I didn't rush to the telephone, call the Commissioner and say this man is tampering. I just waited for the Yankees to ask my permission. They asked me at the American League meeting in Chicago Tuesday, and I said no."

Baseball is fortunate to have a man like him. When we talked the other day he agreed with me it's about time we owners put a stop to these managers jumping the way they are. I'm queuing him. You know he just lost a manager of his own. A contract is supposed to work both ways. Charlie Finley still insists he's not standing in Dick Williams' way of becoming the Yankees next manager.

West's 2 free throws let LAnip KC; Behagen collects 18

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Veteran Jerry West fired in two free throws with four seconds left Wednesday night to give the Los Angeles Lakers a 92-91 National Basketball Association victory over the Kansas City - Omaha Kings.

West's two points gave the Lakers a 92-89 advantage. Sam Lacey then scored for the Kings on an uncontested layup for the final margin. A split second 35-foot shot by Lacey was voided as the buzzer sounded just before he launched the ball. That play came after Lacey grabbed the ball on a jump between Gail Goodrich and Nate Williams. Laker Bill Bridges poured in 10 points during the final period and was the game's high scorer with 28. Goodrich added 27 and West scored 20 points for the Lakers.

Lakers to lead only at one point, 92-50, until the final 4 1/2 minutes, and Goodrich put the Lakers in front to stay 84-83 with a hook shot in the lane. Matt Guokas and rookie Ron Behagen each collected 18 points for the Kings. The Kings allowed the

Irish-USC battle figures in national championship

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer
It is coming earlier in the season than usual this year, but this Saturday's intercollegiate football game between fifth-ranked Southern California and seventh-ranked Notre Dame once again can have a direct bearing on the eventual national champion.

It has been 24 years since Notre Dame has had a perfect season, and Saturday's game with the defending national champions should decide if the Irish will break that "jinx" this season.

Southern Cal figures to be the last major hurdle in the Irish's quest to go all the way this year, and if they can achieve that goal then they would be a prime candidate for national championship honors.

The Irish have Navy, Pittsburgh, Air Force and Miami (Fla.)—all relatively easy opponents—left on the schedule.

Tulane's Ellender figures as candidate for coach of year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Within the next two weeks, the college football focus will be shifting to "Who's going where" in the post season bowls and "who's getting what" in post season honors.

One of the most highly contested post season honors is always the coach of the year and although this season doesn't figure to be any different, there is one candidate whose credentials bear close scrutiny.

Bennie Ellender, you may remember the name, is the man who only a few years ago was the architect of small college grid powers at Arkansas State, a member of the Southland conference.

Having accomplished almost everything he could on the small college level, Ellender moved upward and returned to his alma mater, Tulane, in 1970. It was a bold move in as much as the green wave had made remarkable strides under Ellender's predecessor Jim Pittman after years of futility.

Speaking of coaches, is Bill Mallory going to be the latest in the long line of coaches to make a name at Miami of Ohio, only to depart for bigger and better places?

Of his own Indiana team's start: "I think I see the light at the end of the tunnel. Trouble is I don't know how long the tunnel is."

Seven times in the past 10 years the ND-USC clash has had a direct bearing on the national championship.

That's the last time the Irish beat the Trojans. Southern Cal has won four of the last six games, including the last three years in a row, and two other games ended in ties.

Walkaway Johnson back as No. 1 passer

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Randy Johnson, who recently left the team for two weeks over a disagreement with Coach Alex Webster about his playing time, Wednesday was named to start at quarterback for the New York Giants in Sunday's game with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Webster's decision to start Johnson comes as a result of Norm Sneed's failure to generate any offensive leadership in recent weeks.

club's No. 1 choice in the second round of the 1973 draft, probably will be activated for Sunday's game. He will be used as a backup tight end and on special teams.

Johnson, who quit the team because he was not getting enough playing time, returned to the club last week and saw action last Sunday in the fourth quarter of the Giants' 48-28 loss to the Dallas Cowboys. In his one quarter of action he threw for two touchdowns and completed seven of 13 passes for 114 yards.

"We feel Randy is ready to take the pressure they are putting on quarterbacks," Webster said. "It's a change we have to make and we're making it. Norm is a professional. He understands and accepted it 100 per cent."

Johnson and Sneed shared the quarterbacking duties in the pre-season games and both performed equally well as the Giants won all six of their exhibition contests.

Chicago denies Ferguson swap

CHICAGO (UPI) — John Holland, general manager of the Chicago Cubs, said Wednesday "nothing has been finalized" on any trade involving pitcher Ferguson Jenkins.

In six regular season games Sneed completed six touchdown passes but his 14 interceptions were two more than he had all of last season.

Webster also announced that Tom Blanchard had been restored to the role of the team's No. 1 punter. Blanchard, who served as backup quarterback to Sneed while Johnson was AWOL, was replaced as a punter by ex-49er Jim McCann for two weeks but McCann turned in a dismal 25.3 yard average on 12 kicks against Washington and Dallas and had three blocked. He was placed on waivers Tuesday.

Kentucky tops Nets

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Aggressive Wendell Ladner held Julius Erving to his season-low of 20 points Wednesday night and the Kentucky Colonels withstood a desperate rally by the New York Nets to win, 100-96, in their battle for first place in the ABA East.

Ladner almost was the goat in the game when he threw an errant pass to Dan Issel to give the ball to the Nets with 13 seconds to play. But New York failed to score in three shots, two by Erving and one by rookie Larry Kenon.

Bucks drill Buffalo

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks used a big second quarter to post a 130-113 win over the Buffalo Braves in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night.

The Bucks were led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar with 31 points and 21 rebounds. Bob McAdoo was high for Buffalo with 32 points.

Cougars belt San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — The Carolina Cougars combined a red-hot shooting display and stiff defense Wednesday night to down the San Antonio Spurs, 124-92, in an American Basketball Association contest.

Carolina's Jim Chones took game scoring honors with 22 points as the Cougars ran their record to 5-2. Billy Cunningham added 16 and Joe Caldwell and Ted McClain had 14 points each for the visitors.

The Cougars took the lead one minute deep in the game and never trailed, shooting a blazing 68.4 per cent from the floor and falling short of the ABA field goal percentage record by only .6 per cent. They also stole the ball from the Spurs 19 times.

Padres' situation brings ulcers to NL president

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Diego Padres' ownership problems are giving National League President Charles (Chub) Feeney a king sized headache—and maybe even an ulcer.

So much so these days that the usually personable and friendly Feeney is making himself unavailable. And when he is around, he answers all queries about the Padres with "We'll just have to wait and see."

One West Coast newspaper quoted him the other day as saying "the whole situation is giving me an ulcer."

No faulting Feeney. Less than three weeks ago he and the N.L. club owners thought they had the situation finally resolved with the disclosure "an angel" has come forth to buy up the troubled franchise and keep it in San Diego.

This came as good news to all concerned since UPI learned there was little sentiment for selling the franchise to a Washington, D.C. group.

When the owners last met—in Chicago 19 days ago—four of the 12 sold flat out they were opposed to a Washington move and gave San Diego officials another 30 days to look for a monied person who would buy up owner C. Arnold Smith and keep the team in the southern California city.

Smith is in hot water with the Internal Revenue Service and last week also saw his U. S. National Bank of San Diego go under. He accepted a $12 million offer early in the 1973 season to sell the Padres to the Washington, D.C. group.

Last week the "Padres" new "Angel" was revealed to be well-known California horse-woman Marjorie L. Everett. Mrs. Everett is the biggest single stockholder in Hollywood Park.

And only this past Tuesday, Smith's daughter, Mrs. Carol Smith Shannon, said she is willing to buy up all but a small percentage of her father's share in the Padres and join Mrs. Everett as co-owner.

Mrs. Shannon and her father own 34 per cent each of the current Padres stock and the other 32 per cent is owned by club President E.J. Buzzie Bavasi.

Under a proposed new alignment, Mrs. Everett and Mrs. Shannon would own or control 65 per cent of the club and Bavasi five per cent.

According to UPI's source, there is no general objection to Mrs. Shannon but the same is not true of Mrs. Everett.

The objection to Mrs. Everett, UPI was told, centers around the part she played in the 1972 bribery trial of then Illinois Governor Otto Kerner.

She was the federal government's main witness before a federal grand jury in Chicago. The case resulted in the conviction of Kerner and others on a variety of federal charges, including bribery. At the time Mrs. Everett headed the three clubs that operated Chicago's three main racing tracks.

The government's case was that Kerner received race track stock owned by Mrs. Everett at reduced prices and her racing interests in turn received favorable treatment.

"The National League always has been cautious about club ownership," said a source close to the National League. "It's like a private club and the owners usually are very fussy about who comes in."

If Feeney holds to his word he will call the club owners together in 11 more days for an update, which means the situation will have to be resolved by then or permission may finally be granted for a move to Washington, D.C.

UPI also has learned the league has already drawn up two schedules for 1974. One of them lists playing dates for San Diego and the other for Washington.

Bengals try to end jinx

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Bengals went to work Wednesday to try to accomplish something that has been impossible in their six year existence—beat the Pittsburgh Steelers in Pittsburgh.

Coach Paul Brown sent the Bengals through a rugged 100-minute workout on the hot Astor turf at Spinney Field in preparation for Sunday's nationally televised 4 p.m. contest with the Steelers.

The Bengals, 4-2, handed the Steelers their only loss in six games here on Oct. 14. Another Cincinnati victory Sunday would send the Bengals and Steelers into a first place tie in the Central Division of the American Football Conference. A Pittsburgh victory would throw the Bengals two games behind.

Brown said Wednesday he was worried about more than the revenge-minded Steelers.

"Those crowds," Brown pointed out, "Pittsburgh is one of the hardest places to win because of their crowds. Everytime the Steelers make two yards it sounds from the fans like they've made a lot more. It's rough on visiting teams."

Pittsburgh has won 11 straight regular season games at home.

Mike Reid, who helped throttle the Steelers here, remains doubtful for Sunday's game. The standout defensive tackle suffered a muscle spasm in his back at the end of the first quarter against Kansas City last Sunday.

Rice black gridders veto boycott idea

HOUSTON (UPI) — Black football players, angered at the dismissal of split end Edwin Collins by coach Al Conover, discussed boycotting practice Wednesday, but later showed up for the day's workout.

Conover expelled Collins from the team last Monday following a shouting and cursing session between the two.

"They are all present and accounted for," said Conover at the start of Wednesday's session in preparation for Saturday's game with Texas. "I have not been told of any meeting."

The black players did meet Tuesday night, however, and talked their problems over with assistant basketball coach McCoy McLemore, a black.

"I really did not give them any advice," said McLemore. "Al is the head coach and this is all Al's program. I just knew they would be talking about things in the dorm and I went over."

The Tuesday night meeting took place in the room of Cornelius Walker, one of the top defensive players in the Southwest Conference.

"We've got to get this team together," said Walker. "Anything can happen."

Conover ordered Collins to run an extra sprint Monday and the two exchanged curses, prompting the second year head coach to dismiss the Del Valle, Tex., senior.

"I apologized to him Tuesday," Collins said. "I said I wanted to be part of the team. He said he had to stand firm but there was a possibility I might get back."

"I don't know how or when he might be able to come back," Conover said. "I feel time heals a lot of things. It might heal this."

Rice is 1-4 and meets Texas Saturday. Conover said he closed practice for Wednesday only to prepare for the game and it will be open Thursday.

"I have closed practice in the past," he said. "It wasn't closed because of this (Monday's incident)."

Senior players met with Conover following practice

Tuesday and the black players later discussed the dismissal in a closed meeting.

"The seniors just wanted to know where I stood," Conover said. "I explained why he was off the team, that it was a disciplinary action."

In a team meeting before practice Monday Collins told Conover many players dislike Sunday running sessions.

"I told him I was speaking for the players. I said it wasn't my opinion, that I would run whatever he wanted me to," Collins said. "But he took it as a challenge. He asked me if I wanted to quit."

This led to the cursing incident a few hours later. Collins, with the rest of the players, ran four "gassers" — four sprints across the width of the field is one "gasser."

The prescribed time for each one was 35 seconds or less.

Conover expelled Collins from the team last Monday following a shouting and cursing session between the two.

NFL settles suit out of court

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — An attorney for former St. Louis Cardinal guard Ken Gray said Wednesday Gray's $1,750,000 lawsuit against the National Football League team has been settled out of court.

Attorney Martin Green said the settlement did not concern Gray's allegations that the Cardinals gave him "potent, harmful, illegal and dangerous" drugs. He said the case was settled on the basis of negligence on the part of the Cardinals in treating a knee injury Gray suffered in 1969.

Green said he agreed with the Cardinals' attorneys not to disclose the exact amount of the settlement, but said it was "substantially more" than the $28,450 judgment Gray was awarded by the St. Louis Circuit Court last June.

The Cardinals agreed to dismiss their appeal of the judgment and Green said "any further depositions and pretrial investigations" have been terminated.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can now study and work out some new plan of action whereby you are more informed of all the facts and figures of any project in which you are interested and gain the goodwill and the active help of others.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Take care of responsibilities quickly: Don't be so forceful with an associate that you lose him or her. Use tact.

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Use diplomacy if you want to reach a true meeting of minds with an associate, otherwise you only make matters worse. Rise above any limitations. Work.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get duties behind you quickly and well. Plan some time for putting your apparel in better shape and order. Do likewise with your appearance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You want to have fun, but if forceful with others, you could wind up having just the opposite. Spend money sparingly.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Forget own wishes and think about what will make kin happier. Do not add fuel to wrath at home. Use gentle words and storm will be weathered.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) Work out routines more specifically so they will operate more efficiently in the future. Sarcasm with a business or personal ally close to you could bring real trouble.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) Take measures to improve your financial structure through accurate analysis of assets and liabilities. Then know where to invest. Consult with an expert in such.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) A day for self-scrutiny and knowing where to make improvements in appearance and practical position in life. Consult with bankers, experts. Keep active, be happy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21) Problems need careful study to solve them wisely. Plan just how to assist those you like. Be generous but not foolhardy. Relax in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 20) That stubborn friend is not working against you as you suspect, so keep cool. Show others you are loyal and all works to your benefit.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) Avoid risks where your good name is concerned, or you could get into trouble in business, etc. Obey rules and regulations. Show civility if approached by the law.

PISCES (Feb 20 to Mar 20) You have ideas quite different from the average, so study them well before making radical changes you might regret. Don't commit yourself now with some new associate.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those opinionated young people who has to be taught early to listen to what others have to say and correlate ideas intelligently, otherwise much of the fine promise in this chart will be almost lost owing to this deep stubbornness. The fields of medicine and investigation are particularly good here, and the education should be slanted along such lines. Give good athletic training, also. Religion is a must early in life.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock prices opened broadly lower in active trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange against a background of growing concern over the Middle East situation.

Shortly after the opening, the Dow Jones industrial average led advances by a two-to-one ratio among the 334 issues across the tape.

The flow of earnings reports continued to influence a handful of stocks Wednesday, but most other issues showed little change against an uncertain political and economic background. The Dow rose 5.34 to 971.85, but a few more Big Board issues declined than advanced.

Developments in the Middle East were thrust in the forefront of investor concerns Thursday. There were reports Soviet troops were moving toward the troubled area, and key U.S. troops were said to be on alert.
