GM, union settle contract

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp. and United Auto Workers negotiators, weary after almost 24 hours of nonstop bargaining, reached agreement today on a new national contract.

The settlement came only 90 minutes before the start of a scheduled series of mini-strikes at selected General Motors plants across the country.

The word began going out from union negotiators at about 8:30 a.m. that a tentative agreement had been reached.

Stroke fells Ben Gurion

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Former Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion, 87, one of Israel's founders, was in serious condition today, his personal physician said, suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage that has paralyzed his right side.

"There's no danger to his life," Dr. Boleslav Goldman said of Ben-Gurion, who suffered the stroke Sunday. "His condition has not changed. In medical terminology it is serious."

Senate extends 'Gate jury

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate gave final approval today to a bill to extend the life of the Watergate grand jury until June 5, 1974.

The measure, which goes to the White House, would extend this beyond its statutory limit which expires Dec. 5.

Mrs. Finkbine seeks divorce

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Sherri Finkbine, 40, whose trip to Sweden 10 years ago for an abortion figured in the thalidomide furor of the early 1960s, has filed for divorce, her husband of 29 years said Sunday.

Robert Finkbine, a high school teacher, said the divorce "was a mutual decision." The couple has four children. In 1962, Mrs. Finkbine sought an abortion after learning the drug had caused infants to be born deformed.

Britain cuts oil allocation

LONDON (UPI) — Britain today introduced a 10 per cent cut "across the board" in deliveries of all main oil products.

Peter Walker, secretary of trade and industry, stopped short of direct rationing of gasoline and home heating oil to the consumer.

Israeli economy paralyzed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Sunday the Middle East war has caused "total paralysis of the nation's economic efforts for human needs."

He also predicted negotiations with Arab nations will start next month, and that it is impossible for Israel "to sustain itself in strength" without an "immense assertion of Jewish solidarity."

Cyprus police, guerrillas clash

NICOSIA (UPI) — Security police and guerrillas seeking union with Greece fought a daylong battle Sunday in a mountainous region of the Lamassol district, Greek Cypriot newspapers said today.

The reports said the determined fight put up by the guerrillas raised speculation Gen. George Grivas, leader of the EOKA guerrilla movement that seeks Enosis (union with Greece), might be hiding in the area.

Spanish holdup nets $476,000

MADRID (UPI) — A holdup gang seized $476,000 in cash and checks from a bank van in the heart of Madrid today, police said.

Police sources called it the biggest street robbery in Spanish history. They said the loot included $300,000 in cash and the rest in checks.

Belgians' autos idle

HAY BURNERS replaced gas burners on Brussels streets Sunday as Belgium became the second European nation to ban Sunday driving. Traditional Sunday outings were abandoned by many Belgians as that nation joined Holland in ban. (UPI)

Stream damage probed

By DAVID HORSMAN

FAIRFIELD — The State Department of Water Administration (DWA), is investigating possible major violations of the stream channel alteration act in Camas County.

The investigation concerns the reported destruction of vegetation and "movement of (channel) dirt" along a one-mile stretch of Three Mile Creek east of Fairfield, according to Bob Haynes, Twin Falls, southern district engineer for DWA.

A New Jersey man, Roger Crandemire, owns the land along the stream in the affected area. Haynes said Bob Bayless, Hagerman, ranch manager for Crandemire, talked with the DWA Friday and "has expressed a cooperative attitude" in correcting the marred stream banks and channel.

Haynes said there is a "possibility" of legal action by the DWA against Crandemire if "voluntary corrective measures are not taken."

Crandemire and Bayless were not available for comment today.

Heavy equipment work along the stream has removed "all of the brush growing in the vicinity of the channel and moved dirt material in the stream channel," according to Haynes.

He said the work is "apparently in violation of the Idaho Code (stream channel alteration act)."

"We would like to get a program worked out for restoration of the stream channel," Haynes said, "to restore the esthetic and aquatic environment."

Haynes did not know what Crandemire was planning for the stream area but, in the meeting Friday, Bayless "mentioned something about development."

Camas County Assessor Edward Rangan said today Crandemire has purchased about 800 acres in the area.

"And I heard he just bought another chunk of land," Rangan said.

Haynes said the DWA investigation started "about two or three weeks ago." "We started determining whether we had a case," he added.

UF drive gaining

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls United Fund campaign, now in its "final stages," has raised more than $80,000.

So far, the drive has raised more money than at this time last year, according to United Fund Executive Director Darl Glead.

Last year at this time, $79,000 had been raised with $93,000 collected by the end of the drive, he said. This year's goal is $125,000.

Glead said the commercial blue chip and professional divisions' efforts were nearly completed and drives to solicit money from larger companies and greater than average gifts from individuals were halfway complete. He said United Fund is "still anticipating" one or two community events to raise funds.

The fund raising campaign should be finished a couple of weeks after Thanksgiving, Glead said.

US court takes school appeals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to rule this term on lower court orders aimed at integrating Detroit's mostly black inner city schools with those in nearby white suburbs. At least six other cities are involved in similar litigation.

Michigan state authorities and school boards of a number of Detroit suburbs had appealed the actions of U.S. District Judge Stephen J. Roth and the 6th U.S. Court of Appeals directing a study of school merger plans including the possible use of busing.

The Detroit school board and the NAACP's Legal Defense Fund (LDF), which initiated the suit, had urged the high court to put off any consideration of the case until a formal plan was completed.

The court will hear arguments on the dispute at an unspecified date and then hand down a written decision before ending its term in June.

The circuit court ruling on June 12 slightly modified Roth's approach but indicated that the integration approach basically was acceptable.

Other cities which face similar situations are Indianapolis, Hartford, Conn.; Wilmington, Del.; Buffalo, Atlanta and Louisville.

In other actions, the court: —Ruled 8 to 1 that employers may deny jobs to aliens despite the 1964 Civil Rights Act which bars discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex or national origin.

—Agreed to hear the claim of a white law student that the University of Washington is discriminating in favor of minority groups by favoring the admission of blacks.

—Ruled unconstitutional Missouri abortion statutes on grounds they violated a woman's right to privacy. The court acted in a brief order affirming a ruling by a federal district court which cited the Supreme Court's decision on abortions.

—Struck down an Illinois law which required a 23-month waiting period for voters who wish to switch parties in primary elections.

—Refused to take another look at California regulations prohibiting nude dancing and other sex-oriented entertainment in licensed bars.

Gem sales totals zoom upward

WASHINGTON — Idaho retail sales in 1972 were up 64 per cent from sales in 1967, while the state's wholesale sales rose a whopping 88 per cent.

A U. S. Department of Commerce preliminary census of retail trade shows that during the five-year period wages in Idaho rose 63 per cent, trailing 11 per cent behind retail price increases.

The Department of Commerce report said sales of 5,510 retail establishments totaled $1.54 billion in 1972. The state's total retail workers payroll totaled $171 million in 1972, or nine per cent of the total sales in the state that year.

For every one of the states 37,582 paid full- and part-time retail employees there were $41,004 in sales, the report said.

Measured in the dollar value of sales, the census said grocery stores were the most important kind of business with 1972 sales of $348 million. Next in importance were new car dealers with $278 million and gasoline service stations with $124 million in sales. These three kind of businesses accounted for 49 per cent of the retail sales.

Idaho's 1,803 wholesale establishments sold $1.697 billion in 1972 the preliminary 1972 census report on wholesale trade said, representing an 88 per cent rise in sales since 1967.

During the same period, the wages of employees in wholesale businesses rose 60 per cent to $103 million.

Among retail businesses the percentage changes in sales from 1967 to 1972 ranged from an increase of 88 per cent for opting and drinking places to an increase of 30 per cent for drug stores and proprietary stores, the report shows.

Sunday drive ban for US?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A nationwide ban on Sunday driving and other emergency energy-saving measures are "very real possibilities" because of the nation's energy crisis, one of President Nixon's top energy advisers warned Congress today.

Charles DiBona, the President's special assistant for fuel, told a joint House-Senate hearing that even total compliance with current conservation measures such as turning down thermostats and a 50-mile per hour speed limit will not be sufficient.

He said that an optimistic assessment of these conservation measures, plus hope for increases in domestic supplies, will provide only 2.3 million barrels of oil a day while the shortage is about 3 million barrels a day.

"This means that we're going to have to have stronger, strict mandatory measures," asked Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

"Yes sir, and soon," DiBona replied. DiBona said that among the "very real possibilities" the administration was considering was a ban on Sunday driving. He said that 25 per cent of all gasoline used in private cars is consumed on weekends.

Among other proposals being considered are a ban on fuels for private boats and aircraft; closing public parks to automobiles; closing service stations on weekends; and blue laws to close all businesses on Sunday, he said.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, asked if gasoline rationing was not a better alternative.

"We have people aggressively pursuing a rationing program, but it's a tough, tough job to draw up a plan that is equitable," DiBona said. "If we can take other steps we should."

DiBona said one proposal the government was considering would make it mandatory for people to lower their thermostats to 68 degrees, accomplished by delivering only sufficient fuel oil to heat their homes at that level.

DiBona said that the administration estimates the energy shortage at about 18 per cent — based on the assumption the Arab petroleum boycott continues and it will be a normal winter.

UN talks proposed

By United Press International

Egypt said today it favors the immediate convening of an Arab-Israeli peace conference under United Nations auspices without waiting for the outcome of Israeli elections at the end of December.

The statement came from Egyptian government spokesman Ahmed Anis in Cairo as Israeli and Egyptian officers met for the fifth time today on the Cairo-Suez in what could be the final phase of their Middle East cease-fire negotiations.

Anis was asked at a news conference about the Israeli suggestion the projected conference, provided for in the U.N. Security Council's Middle East cease-fire resolution of Oct. 22, be put off until after the Israeli general elections.

Anis replied: "The Security Council resolution stipulates a peace conference be convened immediately. This is something that concerns the whole world community. So I don't see the thing as being governed by what Israel says or does not say."

A United Nations spokesman said today's talks were between Egypt's Maj. Gen. Mohammed Gemassy, Israel's Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv and Capt. Fallen of Ireland, a staff officer of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF).

A pool dispatch reaching Cairo said the generals had an informal discussion on a return to the Oct. 22 cease-fire lines and that they set up a formal or plenary session for Thursday in which UNEF commander Gen. Ennio Silasvuo will take part. Silasvuo was not present today.

Egypt handed over to Israel at Kilometer 101 the bodies of two Israeli servicemen, one a pilot of a reconnaissance plane killed since the truce and a soldier burned to death in his tank.

The generals had agreed last week on several measures for consolidating the cease-fire.

Interlock hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A New York congressman has introduced legislation to remove the seatbelt ignition interlock system starting with 1974 model cars.

Rep. Carleton J. King, R-N.Y., said Monday his legislation would order the Department of Transportation to rescind the controversial seatbelt interlock regulation immediately.

King said the regulation requires "all persons and objects of sufficient weight in the front seat of any new car" to be strapped in with both lap and shoulder belts before the car can be started.

If the belts are released after the car is running, he said, "flashing lights and buzzers are activated until the belts are refastened."

King said he considered the DOT seatbelt regulations to be "another example of unwieldy and unnecessary interference by the federal bureaucracy into the daily lives of our citizens."

Nice to see the sun shining again.

Skylab crew gains on work schedule

Skylab scientist

CHECKING systems in tunnel between orbiting Skylab space station and Apollo command module is Dr. Edward G. Gibson, scientist pilot of Skylab 3 crew. (UPI)

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab 3 crewman William R. Pogue becomes a space fixit man today to put a fresh supply of fluid in the flying research ship's cooling system that works like a car radiator.

The crew reported no more motion sickness Sunday and officials considered closed an incident Saturday night in which it was discovered the pilots had tied to doctors about the state of their health.

Pogue, mission commander Gerald P. Carr and scientist Edward G. Gibson were running only two hours behind schedule in getting their eightroom orbiting home ready for almost three months of research work.

The third and final space station crew worked quietly throughout Sunday on the activation, and flight controllers happily reported they could find nothing wrong with the 100-ton lab's complex systems.

"Like Skylab 2," flight director Neil Hutchinson said, "their initial whack at everything is taking 150 per cent of the time it should."

But he said that was only because the astronauts were still learning their way around the spaceship and like the first two crews, the "learning curve" should improve.

Hutchinson said for the fixit job, Pogue will clamp a valve over one of the cooling system's lines, screw it into the line for about three minutes and fill the system with fluid. The radiatorlike system that keeps electronic gear cool has been using a backup line since the middle of the Skylab 2 flight.

Hutchinson said if the repairs are successful, the astronauts can use cooling fluid to air condition their spacesuits Thanksgiving Day when they are scheduled to go on possibly the longest spacewalk ever.

If they have to use an air cooled system during the outside work, they might have to break the planned 6-1/2 hour spacewalk into two parts, Thursday and Friday.

US, Russian spacemen launch acquaintances

ZVYAZDNI GORODOK, USSR (UPI) — American astronauts and Soviet cosmonauts who will meet in space in 1975 held their first get-together on Russian soil today at the space training center 20 miles east of Moscow.

The Americans got their first closeup look at the Soyuz space vehicle that will dock with an American Apollo craft two years from now. They also began trying out a few words of the Russian they have been learning in preparation for the joint mission.

"This is just a familiarization visit of two weeks," astronaut Thomas P. Stafford, who heads the three-man American crew for the mission, told newsmen. "We will not do any intensive training."

Maj. Gen. Vladimir A. Shatalov, who heads the cosmonaut training program, said joint training will begin next summer.

The program for the next two weeks, he said, will consist of studies of the Soyuz vehicle and its main systems and briefings on the various Soviet training facilities.

Shatalov welcomed the American crew of Stafford, Vance D. Brand and Donald K. Slayton and their backup crew in a large conference room dominated by a portrait of Yuri G. Gagarin, the first man in space in 1961.

On one wall was a large red banner, "Glory to the Conquerors of Space."

Soviet cosmonauts, who paid a visit to the American manned space center at Houston last July, sat across a horseshoe table from the Americans. Col. Alexei A. Leonov, who made history's first space walk in 1965, and pilot-cosmonaut Valery N. Kubasov are the prime Soviet crew for the joint mission.

Later the two groups chatted together informally, and it was apparent the Russians were further along with their English than the Americans with their Russian.

Officer assists

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Badge No. 8045 performed a job beyond the call of duty Sunday by delivering a baby boy on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge.

California Highway Patrol officer Fred Pylant was flagged down by a young couple in a van just west of the toll plaza. He then aided Patricia Hutton of Oakland with the birth of her child while the van sat on an inside lane.

Both mother and child were reported "doing fine" at a San Francisco hospital early today.

Sorority initiates

TWIN FALLS — Members of Delta Kappa Gamma conducted the annual initiation service at a luncheon meeting Saturday at the Rogerson Motor Inn.

Glady Coxen was presented for membership by June Haggard and was initiated. Marie Beard, Caldwell, Alpha Nu state representative, attended the meeting. Joan Carr sang two numbers, accompanied by Mary Baun. Mrs. Beard spoke on "Search Every Corner." Eileen Quesnell made table decorations in the initiation rose theme.

The December Christmas party will be at 2 p.m. Dec. 15 at the Holiday Inn.

Oil companies assailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre, D-N.H., charged the major American oil companies today with incompetence and selfishness for failing to see the coming of the energy crisis.

McIntyre, in the opening Senate debate on the emergency energy bill, said the oil companies, with the Nixon administration a "willing accessory," have "betrayed the trust of the American people."

The Senate set aside eight hours today for debate on the energy bill that would give President Nixon wide powers to meet the crisis, including rationing gasoline. A vote was expected before the day was out.

The Senate hoped to recess Wednesday for Thanksgiving and return Nov. 26. Most House members, except those on the Judiciary Committee studying the vice presidential nomination of Gerald R. Ford, left Washington Thursday.

McIntyre contended the oil industry had denied for years that an emergency was coming, had opposed repeal of oil import quotas, had urged the American public to use more oil, had built too few new refineries, and had turned their profits into fields other than energy.

"I still cannot find it in me to believe that the industry contrived the oil shortage to drive prices up," he said.

"But, I can find it in me to believe that today's fuel crisis... can be laid directly to the betrayal of the public trust by the major American oil companies. I am charging these giants of the industry with gross incompetence, stubborn blindness, with selfishness and with a lack of foresight that seems totally incredible..."

He said the administration has accepted industry's word without questioning.

"While the crisis is hurting," he said, "...the major oil companies are reaping windfall profits of historic dimensions."

TF woman wins post

TWIN FALLS — Sharon Siemons, Twin Falls, has been named secretary-treasurer of the Idaho Special Olympics, Inc., board of directors.

She said it was reported at a general membership meeting of the organization in Boise that over 3,000 mentally retarded citizens of Idaho were involved in the 1974 program of track, field and swimming competition.

She said the 1974 winter Olympic games will be at Northwest Nazarene College, Nampa, March 14-15. The spring games will be at Idaho State University, Pocatello, in May, 1974.

The Idaho Special Olympics Organization and the Teens Organization for Retarded Children will co-sponsor a 1974 summer camping program at Farragut State Park for 300 handicapped people of Idaho.

Cottrell to the Utah line, two inches of new snow Saturday, icy spots and snowing today.

Carey to Craters of the Moon, icy and snowing.

Lighting decision left to customers

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Power Co. has suggested that customers use "their own best judgment" about holiday displays this year.

The firm said Christmas lighting represents "only a small fraction" of one per cent of total annual electric consumption.

Southern division manager E. E. Haroldson also pointed out that interior Christmas lighting "does not necessarily" boost energy use and Idaho Power expects to have sufficient supplies for all of its customers throughout this winter.

Haroldson said Idaho Power expects energy supplies to be sufficient for its customers this winter because its load peaks occur in the summer.

Andrus, firm disagree

BOISE (UPI) — Boise Cascade President John Fery says his company feels that wilderness classification in Idaho would cause a loss of jobs, but Idaho's governor disagrees.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, in an Idaho Statesman interview, said the timber industry should call for better management practices on forests outside of the primitive area instead of trying to log Idaho's wild lands.

The Boise Cascade position announced earlier calls for a roadless recreation area along the Salmon and Middle Fork and multiple management of the rest of the primitive area.

The governor said two months ago that he supports the total wilderness classification of the Idaho and Salmon River Breaks primitive area. The Forest Service with two major exclusions — however, recommends wilderness designation.

He said in the interview that the loss of jobs argument is "simply hogwash." He said in the past two years the state has managed to increase the allowable cut on state forests by 55 million board feet each year, or more than Boise Cascade wishes to take from proposed wilderness areas.

He said the board feet of timber that Boise Cascade wishes to cut annually in primitive areas — 40 million — could be made up in other areas.

Sugar firm starts plan

OGDEN, Utah — The Amalgamated Sugar Co. will implement an energy-saving program throughout its operations in Utah, Idaho, Oregon and Washington by turning off all unnecessary appliances and lights.

A. E. Benning, president, said in addition five-man energy task force teams have been organized at the firm's sugar factories and offices to analyze the present energy requirements of the company and its employees. All employees will be submitting their energy-saving ideas throughout November to these task force teams.

The employees submitting the three winning ideas at each location will receive saving bonds at Christmas time and the company's engineering staff will then implement these recommendations for saving energy.

Railroads to get much greater use

(c) Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The energy crisis will bring a much greater use of railroads, for freight and passengers.

If private capital cannot keep the railroads running, the federal government would subsidize their operations.

"There is no question that the railroads use less energy for the amount of service provided than other modes of transportation," said federal railroad administrator John W. Ingram.

"At this critical time, it is disheartening to see how underutilized the railroads are," Ingram said a fully-loaded passenger train uses only about 70 per cent of the energy needed for fully-loaded automobiles with the same number of seats. He said freight trains use only one-fourth as much fuel as trucks do to move the same amount of freight. Aircraft carrying domestic freight uses 60 times as much fuel as trains doing the same job. Commercial passenger planes also use many times as much fuel as passenger trains to move people.

Of course, passenger train service under Amtrak, the quasi-federal agency, can be exasperatingly unreliable.

Ingram maintains, however, that substantially more freight and passenger traffic can be handled by the railroads with little expansion of plant and equipment.

"Travel by train should not be prematurely relegated to a bygone era," he said. "We still have crack trains in many areas of the country, despite the fact their utilization is often pitifully low."

President Nixon in signing the Amtrak improvement act of 1973 said: "With our oil resources becoming increasingly precious, not just this winter but for some years ahead, the energy efficiency of rail travel is an especially compelling argument for expansion of appropriate federal assistance to Amtrak."

The new act gives Amtrak passenger trains priority over freight trains with certain exceptions, encourages Amtrak to run its own trains with its own people, and allows the corporation to run its trains at maximum "safe speeds."

Filer Grange hears reports

FILER — The Filer Grange met Friday evening at the Filer Grange Hall.

Legislative Committee Chairman Stanley Walters reported on the Alaskan Pipeline and the American Falls Dam and Grangemaster Everett Bonnichsen installed Loren Drake as Gatekeeper.

Mrs. Lillian Dougherty thanked the Grange for use of the Grange Hall for the 4-H Recognition Banquet.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Krepik were hosts for the evening.

On Nov. 30 the Grange will have its Idaho products supper and Booster Night.

Progress listed on road project

BOISE — About 16 miles of a 21 mile, $2.6 million highway project in the vicinity of Idahohead was completed this month, Idaho Department of Highways officials have announced.

Vic Richardson, state highway engineer, said efforts are being made to bring a 48-mile section of Interstate 80N from the junction with I-15W to the Utah State line up to full four-lane divided highway interstate standards.

Contract for the first half of the project was awarded in August, 1972 and 16 miles of this have been completed.

Another contract has been awarded for $1.2 million to add 7.4 miles of two-lane highway along this route but work on this section has not yet started. By Oct. 1, 1974 the state hopes to have the entire area covered by four-lane divided roadway.

Richardson said a number of serious accidents have occurred in this section and the department is anxious to complete the over all improvement. To improve winter conditions in the area a maintenance station has been added this fall near Sublett.

Tax accountants to attend meet

TWIN FALLS — Tax accountants in the Twin Falls area have been invited to attend a seminar conducted by the Internal Revenue Service Nov. 29 in Twin Falls.

The one-day session is open to all accountants who prepare tax returns. It will be held at the Holiday Inn beginning at 9 a.m.

IHS Director Elmer Kletke

said the meeting is to review the tax laws prior to the tax return filing period for 1973.

Privately employed accountants and bookkeepers who prepare and often assist employees with their income tax returns are also invited to participate.

The Twin Falls IRS office will be closed from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. on the date of the seminar.

Goodwill holds dinner

TWIN FALLS — Members of Goodwill Club, their families and guests met Saturday at Sunnyside Recreation Hall for the annual club Thanksgiving dinner.

Guests included Walter Martha and Douglas Henge, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Groves, Brett

Groves, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Foster, Mabel Arment, and Trudy Ann Mattie.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster showed slides of the "Psalms." Miss Mattie played two piano selections. Dance students from Donna Mauldin's studio presented four dance numbers.

New trend

Portland Oregonian

There is rare good news in the nation's welfare statistics: The Department of Health, Education and Welfare reported Tuesday that, in the fiscal year ended June 30, welfare rolls dropped for the first time since 1967.

The number of persons receiving some form of public assistance decreased during the year by 249,000 to 14.8 million. Costs of all federal-state programs increased $1.1 billion during the year to a total of $19.4 billion, but this is little more than a reflection of dollar inflation.

The cheers, however, should not be too exuberant. The growth in welfare rolls has been up and down in recent years. The current number of persons on welfare is just about twice what it was less than a decade ago — that is a 100 per cent gain in a period in which the national population increased by less than 10 per cent.

U-lib

University of Idaho Argonaut

The typical Archie Bunker types in America find humor in the women liberationists clad in their army boots and wrinkled dungarees looking more like they just emerged from the fields of Vietnam than from American universities. But behind that superficial front of commercial radicalism and despite the sneers of the Archie Bunkers of the world, there is an essential issue at stake and that is that women deserve to compete on an equal basis with men for jobs and pay.

The rest, the bra burning and blue jeans, are nonessential compared to the real issue and many times these things make it easier for the Bunkers to write off the true inequalities.

The real issue connected to women's liberation seems very remote to us when it is read in the national magazines or seen on the national evening news, but last Friday the issue came flying home to rest at the University of Idaho and was very difficult for the Idaho Bunkers to avoid.

The Idaho Human Rights Commission agreed last Friday with our own home grown women's rightists that there is discrimination against women at the University of Idaho. University officials were turning red at the revelation, but it wasn't out of surprise.

The commission's report said just 10 of 104 administrators were female and most were assistants to male administrators or in traditional women's fields such as home economics. The report also cited other areas of probable discrimination, such as a female assistant dean of letters and science who receives $4,645 a year less than a male assistant dean in the same department.

The situation at the University of Idaho is not that much different than it is at other institutions in the United States. It has always been very easy to step on all minorities, though their qualifications are high and women are no exception.

And when it comes time to take seriously these women's nicks worth of complaints and charges, the traditional establishments such as the University have found it easier to step over rather than pick up the women, since they thought the charges were too often loaded with tiny radicalism and lacked respectability.

But now, a respectable commission, which is in its own way part of the Idaho establishment, has joined those women in their charges. And the officials of the University, who have for years passed off the issue, must come to the front.

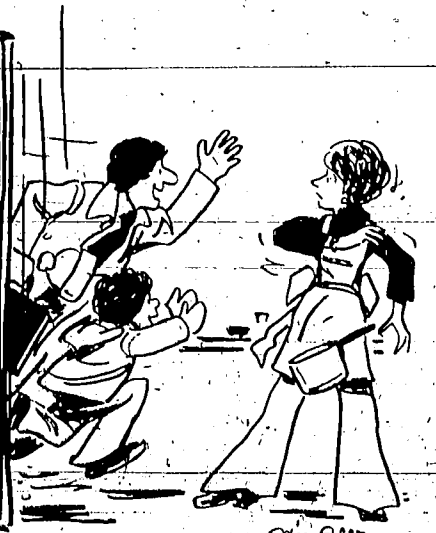

What is dismal about last week's disclosure by the Human Rights Commission is that it took a respectable, established group to make the University admit that discrimination exists, when they knew all along in their Archie-type minds that it did.

What is equally black about the disclosure is that one would normally suspect an institution of learning to be the first orthodox establishment to seek the truth and help the unlearned down the path to equality.

It did not take the Human Rights Commission to tell the officials that there was discrimination at the University and that is why the officials blushed rather than jumped on the evidence. It was easier for officials to step over the issue and laugh at the crazy women than come to grips with the essential questions.

Vice-president Tom Richardson says now that the commission has found discrimination "the next step would be conciliation." He proposes that everyone will now sit down and plan a mutual course of action, which one assumes to mean that everything will be alright in a year or two. But Richardson does not include in his interpretation of conciliation the other meaning of the word, and that is to reconcile. One wonders if reconciliation might mean some kind of compensation for the oppressed from these too blind to find their way down the primrose path to equality.

"YAA HOO! Fuel shortage! Early closing of schools and businesses"

New special prosecutor follows in Cox's footsteps

WASHINGTON — When special prosecutor Leon Jaworski filed a brief last Monday arguing that not even the President has the right to break the law in the name of national security, the last lingering doubts about him by the ardent young lawyers he inherited from the deceased Archibald Cox were removed.

Since arriving in Washington Nov. 5, Jaworski had approved in detail everything being done under Cox, reentering demands for presidential papers which triggered Cox's dismissal.

But there remained the possibility that Jaworski, a Houston corporation lawyer not known for challenging the establishment, would swallow the White House argument that some covert operations of the Plumbers unit should remain shrouded for reasons of national security.

His brief filed in federal court erased that possibility.

This means the prosecution is continuing its potentially explosive investigation of the Plumbers under Jaworski precisely as it did under Cox, demanding documents that are supposed to reveal covert operations — the possible next shock in the Watergate affair.

EVANS & NOVAK

In the opinion of high Justice Department officials, Cox's insistence on probing the Plumbers was major reason for President Nixon's determination to sack him. In sum, Jaworski has been a grim disappointment to the White House. Presidential aides had hoped he would fire some of Cox's lieutenants and bring in his own men, narrow the prosecution down to the Watergate burglary itself and quickly vote out some new Watergate indictments. So far, he has made no change of importance in Cox's operations.

Since even the most intractable hard-liners at the White House do not want a dangerous confrontation with Jaworski, Mr. Nixon's lawyers have indicated to him that all of the material about the Plumbers denied Cox will be made available (though, at this writing, it has not yet been delivered to the prosecutors).

Jaworski's posture has been nearly as surprising to Cox's old lieutenants. On the eve of his arrival here, they believed that Mr. Nixon — though at tremendous cost to his presidency — had tamed the prosecution with his Saturday night massacre of Oct. 20.

Through his attitude from the first day on the job, Jaworski indicated that the Saturday night Massacre had accomplished nothing.

A footnote: White House aides still hope that Jaworski will soften the investigation once the furor finally dies down. In the meantime, they will search for evidence to indicate that at least something was accomplished in firing Cox.

For instance, if any Watergate indictments are returned within the next two weeks (as the White House devoutly hopes), Nixon aides will argue that this shows Jaworski means business while Cox was just out to get the President.

As part of the effective oil squeeze being applied by the Arab world, Italy is being pressured to halt refueling of the U. S. 6th Fleet in Italian ports — a step that would further aggravate the severe fuel shortage afflicting the U. S. military.

Instant Arabs in Europe

(c) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — "The folly of mistaking a paradox for a discovery, a metaphor for a proof, a torrent of verbiage for a spring of capital truths, and oneself for an oracle, is inborn in us." — Paul Valery, French poet and critic.

Valery's view of paradox and verbiage seems strikingly apt in this parochial capital these days. Here, in short takes, are a few random examples:

PETER LISAGOR

The "Year of Europe," so glowingly proclaimed in the flush of electoral triumph by President Nixon and Henry Kissinger, has turned into just so much flap-doodle.

But for the relentless distractions of scandal and corruption here, policymakers and pundits alike would be wringing their hands over the decline of the Atlantic Alliance.

The decline is not irreversible, U. S. Authorities assert hopefully, but all the three musketiers' talk about one for all and all for one sounds hollow and derisive. The Europeans may sleep better knowing that Uncle Sam's silos and subs still retain a commitment to NATO, but they're obviously not keen on accepting chilly bedrooms as the price of that sense of security.

The Arab-Israeli War turned most European leaders into instant Arabs. And it may take all the miracle potions and unguents in Secretary of State Kissinger's medicine kit to soothe the sores opened by the threat of Arab oil spigots being turned off. Arab oil is the lifeblood of European industry, and the embargo was no small matter.

But the Europeans forgot the old community spirit — in near-panic, adopting what the Economist of London called a "Spaniel policy," which meant that any member of the European Economic Community that stood up to the oil embargo (only the Dutch did) must immediately lie down on its back again, put out its tongue and wave its feet.

And when the U. S. laid on a widely trumpeted third-grade military alert, ostensible to discourage a unilateral Soviet intervention in the Middle East, the Europeans managed, again in the economist's inspired metaphor, to "combine the behavior of the ostrich and the men."

"Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party!"

Conflicts of interest mar energy situation

WASHINGTON — No other system so far devised can match or even approach capitalism in the production field, but the energy crisis reminds us again that free enterprise in a republican form of government is still plagued by conflicts of interest.

A Congressional study prepared for Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the Senate's Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations, blames both the White House and the oil industry for the present fuel squeeze.

For three years, says the study, President Nixon stalled on eliminating oil import quotas, while the industry sat on its hands.

The facts bear out this conspiracy. As early as January of 1970, the President's own Cabinet task force recommended that the quota system be dropped.

Seven months later, Nixon rejected a recommendation to substitute a tariff system for quotas, and did not end quotas until nearly three years after receiving the task force's report. Oilmen, of course, were saying that retention of the quotas would encourage new domestic exploration.

Meanwhile, the industry wanted to see which way Nixon would jump. Uncertainty made the major oil companies reluctant to build new refineries.

ANDREW TULLY

Indeed, no new refineries to produce gasoline and heating oils were built during any year in the last four. Only one small capacity increase in refinery production — 690,000 barrels a day — is scheduled for 1974.

That's that: "Indisputably" there's enough blame to go around, and some of it is shared by those members of Congress of both parties who kept yelling about a coming energy shortage, but confined their efforts to speech-making.

Besides, an affluent, warm and automobile-mad populace couldn't have cared less.

Unfortunately, the plain people will suffer most from this universal neglect. For the most part, it is Main Street that will be hit hardest by the shortage of heating fuel and by what administration officials say is the inevitability of gasoline rationing.

Somehow, the wealthy, the powerful and the influential always manage to survive with minor inconvenience, if any.

We all drive too much. But when Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton says there'll be mandatory gasoline rationing as early as January and that the White House is studying imposition of new Federal taxes on gasoline to discourage consumption, he is saying the burden will fall heaviest on those least able to bear it.

Gasoline at $1 a gallon is a hardship for the blue-collar worker who needs his car to get to work, not for the citizen with a chauffeured limousine.

Most experts in government now admit we'll be chronically short of fuel for at least another five years, whether or not the Arabs drop their embargo. But a silver lining can be perceived by looking back to 1970.

In that year, the United States was still relatively self-sufficient in energy. That is to say, oil imports were less than half what they were earlier this year, before the Arab embargo. The country still has substantial oil reserves whose recovery requires only improved drilling techniques, plus a brand-new source on the Alaskan subcontinent.

For the past four years we used up our fuel without either developing new sources or building new facilities needed to process what we had. Nixon's $10-billion "Project Independence" comes late but not necessarily too late.

'Politics of humiliation' casualty of Arab war

By GEORGIE ANNE GEYER

Commentary

(c) Chicago Daily News

Among the many shibboleths which have disappeared during the Middle East War, the least noticed has been the "politics of humiliation."

Israeli-American policy was based on the idea that the Arabs would eventually come around and "be reasonable" if they were punished enough.

Israeli policy had been — before the October War — that peace was not even desirable, because a process of gradual acceptance of reality and "facts" had begun. It might take 10 to 50 years, before the Arabs would eventually accept Israel because of the constant threat of force.

As Gen. Aharon Yariv, one of the Israeli heroes of this war, had said, "our policy is to drive them to political desperation."

American policy-makers came to accept this Israeli premise after Watergate and other frustrations made further efforts in the Middle East difficult.

Implicit was the superficially obvious idea that people will not commit suicide readily. The Egyptians, the reasoning went, knew they would lose "another round" and so, as any rational person knew, they would not start one. "Only they did."

And they did it because people all over the underdeveloped world work from totally different psychological "sets" that often include a far lower tolerance to frustration than in advanced societies.

Indeed, they are perfectly willing to commit suicide — or to force their fellow countrymen to commit suicide — rather than accept any more frustration or, what they perceive as humiliation.

What should be depressing to Americans is that the "politics of humiliation" has failed not only in the Middle East, it has failed in Latin America, in Vietnam and even among the minorities in the United States itself.

One of the first examples that humiliation was at best a dangerous weapon of national policy came in the Dominican Revolution of 1965, when 30,000 Marines were dispatched to contain several thousand Dominican rebels holed up in the picturesque "Old City" of Santo Domingo.

The first American to visit the rebels, Jaime Benitez, rector of the University of Puerto Rico, emerged shaking his head and observing darkly, "what we have here is a new factor in the sociology of violence. These young men are perfectly willing to commit suicide. Now, how are you going to handle this?"

In Vietnam, American policy was based, brick by brick, crumbling brick, upon the idea that a simple escalation of the punishment would force the North Vietnamese to give in. Instead, we left.

The obvious but simplistic solution would be to say, fine, let them commit suicide, but suicide is not only an emotional response on the part of third world peoples; it is now a calculated, sophisticated response to power.

Fifty or even thirty years ago, it would have been self-defeating because the great powers would have helped the weak to kill themselves. Today it is highly effective because in an interdependent, nuclear world, national and ideological mini-suicides can draw everyone in.

The underdeveloped countries know this. So Egypt's President Anwar Sadat struck across the Suez Canal though fully warned by his own generals that he would lose.

And the whole equation changed: Now that thousands are dead, now that Arab oil is shut off and the great powers have been brought to the brink of confrontation, the failure of the politics of humiliation can be acknowledged.

Columnist notes press incident

I do not think the press is "distorted" or "vicious" in any categorical sense, but I do think there is a tendency in the press to magnify, and thus distort; and unquestionably Mr. Nixon is frequently the victim of that kind of thing. Permit me to recount a personal experience.

Ten days ago I spoke at Kansas State University. In response to the question, "What did I think the future held out for Mr. Nixon?" I replied that the odds had now in my opinion changed, favoring the possibility of resignation.

The next day I met happily with Senator Goldwater at the annual meeting of a foundation of which he and I and a few other tigers (including Senators Tower, Thurmond, and Lausche) are trustees.

After the meeting was over, Senator Goldwater and I drove to the airport together and, awaiting our flights, chatted together at the coffee shop.

A moment or two later a gentleman, materialized who identified himself as being from the local CBS. He desired us to perform before his camera crew respecting Mr. Nixon and Watergate.

We declined — ever so politely, and ever so firmly. Presently we got up, passed the camera crew and the indomitable reporter, saying, amiably, not a word.

The following morning, front page, New York Times, "Newsmen in Wichita, Kansas, reported seeing Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona and William F. Buckley Jr., the conservative columnist, in 'deep discussion' at the airport there today.

Mr. Buckley spoke last night at Kansas State University where he said that he believed Mr. Nixon would resign because of the Watergate scandal at the urging of Mr. Goldwater and other friends.

Mr. Buckley and Mr. Goldwater were quoted

by The Associated Press as saying they expected a startling development in the Watergate affair in the next few days."

In due course I received a telephone call from the New York Times, wanting to know more about the sensational development I had predicted. I replied that I knew of no sensational development and predicted no such thing, nor had Senator Goldwater in my presence.

On the matter of resignation, I explained that to say the odds favor resignation is different from predicting resignation. To say the odds favor rain tomorrow is not to predict rain tomorrow.

These nice distinctions were not reported back to the readers of the New York Times. Perhaps the distinctions are too nice.

Professor Hugh Kenner has recorded that a newspaper is a "low definitional medium," and that it is unsafe to attempt in it a thought the accuracy of which depends on the correct placement of a comma.

Now, a week having gone by, I am receiving mail from all over the world, asking when would the news come out of the "startling development" that brought Senator Goldwater and me to make a "secret rendezvous in Wichita, Kansas" for the purpose of discussing the "mechanics of President Nixon's resignation."

In the first place, insofar as it concerns me, it is mysteriously flattering. I have no defusions about my own power to bring Mr. Nixon down.

Who do they think I am? John Dean, III? At the second place, though — at this point several newspapers have received from my own mouth the news that I made no prediction about any Watergate development, I have yet to see a single reference to said correction. This is the kind of thing Mr. Nixon is complaining about, if you see what I mean.

Nixon starts comeback drive, ignores demands

(c) Chicago Daily News
KEY-BISCAYNE, Fla. — President Nixon is starting his comeback campaign without meeting a key demand by Congressional Republicans for immediate public disclosure of the Watergate tapes.

Buoyed by a large outpouring of support in Georgia Sunday the President apparently intends to stomp the nation if necessary to revive his sagging popularity.

He planned a quiet day today at his buyfront home before flying to Memphis Tuesday for a meeting on the energy crisis with Republican governors.

Nixon's news conference Saturday night provided only a few additional bits of information about the Watergate investigation but a dramatic new affirmation of innocence.

"I am not a crook," the President told the Association Press convention of newspaper managing editors.

But he gave no encouragement to GOP members of the Senate and House who, almost unanimously, urged him to make public the tapes that Nixon says clear him of Watergate involvement.

"I trust in some way we can find a way at least to get the substance (of the tape conversations) to the American people," he said.

The President did not refer to Federal Judge John J. Sirica's statement the tapes could be made public any time Nixon wishes to do so.

But White House advisers are talking in terms of a battle to regain public confidence as if the chief executive were running a fourth campaign for his office.

"We've got to take 'em on," said Alexander

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Republican governors checking into their rooms at the Rivermont Holiday Inn Sunday found a note from inn-keeper John Newels.

It asked the governors, here for the Republican Governors Conference, to conserve energy by keeping room temperatures at no more than 68 degrees and to turn off lights and water when not in use.

M. Haig Jr., the President's chief of staff. "We can't go on the way we are."

Sunday's trip to Macon, Ga., presumably to pay tribute to retired Rep. Carl M. Vinson on his 90th birthday anniversary, turned into a mini-campaign outing.

With his wife Pat at his side, Nixon was greeted by thousands of people, waving flags and pro-Nixon signs, an arrival at Robins Air Force Base.

Inside the chapel at Mercer University, Vinson saluted the President as "distinguished and revered" and praised his courage and patriotism. In return, Nixon saluted the Georgia Democrat's support for a strong national defense and announced a nuclear carrier would be named in his honor.

The President raised some new questions and replied to other charges against him in the hour-long session with editors from leading newspapers.

He confirmed reports that he paid only "nominal" income for two years because he took a deduction of $500,000 for donation of vice-presidential papers to the U. S. archives. The Providence (R. I.) Evening Bulletin has reported that Nixon paid $792 in federal income taxes in 1970 and $678 in 1971. The President said the late President Lyndon B. Johnson suggested the tax device.

The President confirmed he ordered a tap on his brother, E. Donald Nixon, for security reasons he did not disclose.

His brother was told about the tap after he asked about it and "he approved of it," Nixon added.

The President said former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell never told him about the involvement of higher-ups in the Watergate bugging.

WASHINGTON — Two Senators and one of the nation's top bankers, taking sharp issue with President Nixon, said Sunday gasoline rationing is essential.

The calls for rationing came from Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the Senate majority leader, Sen. William Proxmire of Wisconsin and David Rockefeller, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Chase Manhattan Bank.

The two Democratic Senators and Rockefeller expressed their views in nationally televised interviews.

President Nixon, during a news conference Saturday in Orlando, Fla., said he hoped it would not be necessary to impose gasoline rationing and that he felt it could be avoided if the public voluntarily cooperated in conserving fuel. Nothing, the President had said, that rationing would be used only as a last resort. Mansfield said on the National Broadcasting Company's "Meet the Press" that "in the meantime, the economy will burn and people will freeze and the end result could be a recession next year."

ITT documents received by aides in early '72

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Federal investigators have learned that on March 6, 1972, an attorney for the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation delivered to the White House a set of what later became known as the "politically sensitive" documents in the ITT affair.

On the same day the documents were delivered, John D. Ehrlichman, then President Nixon's domestic adviser, called William J. Casey, the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and suggested that the SEC's enforcement division not seek the documents by subpoena.

Casey testified about the call from Ehrlichman at a Congressional hearing last June. When the call was made, Casey was unaware of what the documents contained and did not know that they had just been delivered to the White House, according to his testimony.

These 13 documents are considered central to the investigation — first entrusted to the Justice Department but shifted to the special Watergate prosecutor last June — of possible perjury and obstruction of justice in connection with the settlement in July, 1971, of three antitrust suits against the corporation.

The documents are memos and letters by company officers detailing meetings of several high ITT executives, including the president Harold S. Geneen, with administration officials in 1970 and 1971.

These officials were at the time Vice President Agnew, Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst, Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally, Secretary of Commerce Maurice H. Stans, the White House foreign economic adviser, Peter G. Peterson, and Charles W. Colson, counsel to the President.

With the discovery of the March 6, 1972, delivery of the documents to the White House, the investigators believe they have found the answer to two key questions: How and when did Mitchell, Kleindienst, Ehrlichman, Colson and John W. Dean III, the dismissed counsel to the President, first see the documents?

Hitherto, on the basis of testimony last May and June before the investigations subcommittee of the House Commerce Committee, it was believed Mitchell might have seen the documents as early as March 1972, that Dean might have seen them about July 1, and that Kleindienst first saw them on Aug. 25, when he asked Casey, chairman of the securities and exchange commission, for a set.

Activists predict war

HONG KONG (UPI) — Two American anti-war activists said Sunday after visiting Communist-controlled areas of Vietnam full-scale war would likely break out if a coalition government is not formed in Saigon.

Cora Weiss, of New York City, and Don Luce of East Calais, Vt., said they believed the Viet Cong "are choosing the political route right now," but would "react" sometime in the future to alleged government military thrusts into Communist territory and full-scale warfare would resume.

The two spent nearly four weeks in North Vietnam and Viet Cong-controlled sections of the South, including two days at the official guest house in Quang Tri, where their hostess was Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh, foreign minister of the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG).

Ties hinted

BEIRUT (UPI) — The Beirut newspaper An Nahar said today secret contacts are underway aimed at establishing diplomatic relations between Saudi Arabia and the Soviet Union.

It said King Faisal had accepted "in principle" an invitation to visit Moscow.

An Nahar attributed the report to "informed diplomatic sources" and carried it under a front page banner headline.

NY police conduct experiment

Ancstral lands given to Indian

CI'VE Nino Cochise, 99, Tucson, Ariz., who says he is the grandson of Chiricahua Apache Chief Cochise, was given a five-acre parcel of land by the Horizon Corp. near the Cochise stronghold in southern Arizona. He had wished for the land in his book, "The First Hundred Years of Nino Cochise." (UPI)

(c) N. Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — A New York City Police Department experiment this fall found that 51 patrolmen handed "lost" wallets containing $20 or more by strangers and asked to turn them in, 15 officers apparently kept the money without making a report.

The random survey, part of the department's effort to gauge the effect of its campaign against malfeasance, was conducted by the undercover Internal Affairs Division.

"It looks like it shows that perhaps putting on a uniform doesn't change a man's character," said assistant chief inspector John Guido, the commander of the anti-corruption unit. "But if you did the same thing with 10 wallets in the general public, I'm not sure one would find its way back to the police station."

Guido said that only two patrolmen of the 15 handed the missing wallets admitted later that they had kept the money. Others said they had misplaced them, that they had dropped them in a mailbox, or that they could not recall receiving them. All have been served with departmental charges.

The reaction of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, the union of the uniformed force, was swift. "It's the worst kind of sleazy business I've ever heard of where the department sees fit to entice our men into wrongdoing," said Robert M. McKiernan, president of the group.

McKiernan added that he held no brief for the 15 men, "I don't condone stealing or the taking of something that belongs to somebody else," he remarked.

Each of the wallets handed to the patrolmen had a name and address inside. Three of the wallets contained $250; the rest had amounts varying from $20 to $32.

From August to October, plainclothes members of the Internal Affairs Division selected the 51 uniformed patrolmen on duty in various parts of the city. They handed them the wallets, saying they had just found them and were too busy to return them.

Police procedure requires officers to turn found objects in at the local precinct to be recorded and receipted; the objects are then transferred to the property clerk's office.

Most of the 30 cases in which the wallet and money was returned — including all three containing $250 — followed the prescribed procedure.

Nomination said unconstitutional

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A law professor from the University of Chicago said today that Sen. William B. Saxbe's nomination to be attorney general was unconstitutional and that his confirmation could jeopardize indictments and convictions under his administration.

Philip Kurland told the Senate Judiciary Committee that a constitutional provision which bars a member of Congress from appointment to any post where the salary was increased by legislation during his elected term, could not legally be circumvented by a proposed bill.

Saxbe voted to increase the pay for attorney general in 1969

Public opinion urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Michael Harrington, D-Mass., urged the House Judiciary Committee today to seek out public opinion before passing on the vice presidential nomination of Gerald R. Ford.

The president of the National Lawyer's Guild also urged that Ford's nomination be "turned down since his group planned to file a suit challenging the election of President Nixon in 1972.

With most of the rest of the House gone for Thanksgiving vacation, the Judiciary Committee scheduled a full slate of witnesses today to testify on the qualifications of the House GOP leader. The nomination to succeed Spiro T. Agnew must be confirmed by both the House and Senate.

"No matter how much we might like Gerald Ford on a personal level, I believe the President can nominate and we can confirm a man for the job of vice president who has a stronger record with respect to experience and leadership material," Harrington said.

"I believe it might be useful to attempt to enlarge the scope of the inquiry, perhaps to solicit reaction from political leaders from various regions of the country, or to provide a forum in which the people of Presque Isle, Maine, or Montclair, N.J., or Hitchcock, Tex., or Sioux City, Iowa can react."

News Of Servicemen

GLENN'S FERRY — Linda Fulkerson, 23, has enrolled at Boise State on the GI Bill. Fulkerson, a former WAVE in the U. S. Navy, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fulkerson of Glenn's Ferry.

She is a graduate of Ionia Ferry High School and plans to major in business at BSC.

SHOSHONE — OFC Charles W. Daniels is spending a 30-day leave with his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Ricks, Shoshone, and with his father, Sam Daniels, Jerome. Daniels is stationed at Stuttgart, Germany, with the U. S. Army and will return to Germany when his leave ends.

from $35,000 to $60,000. The bill being considered by the committee would return the attorney general's salary to its pre-1969 level.

But Kurland said the bill "would fly directly in the face" of the constitutional prohibition. "I think the language is clear and unambiguous and disqualifies a member of Congress."

He further warned that if the bill was passed and Saxbe confirmed, the constitutional questions raised could "jeopardize the indictments and convictions, brought by the attorney general."

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., chairing the hearings, said the administration-proposed bill to clear the way for Saxbe's confirmation raised "serious constitutional questions," particularly the question of whether a "constitutional bar can be removed by legislation."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Sunday he believed the Saxbe nomination was in trouble because of the salary question.

Athens streets patrolled

ATHENS (UPI) — Troops in tanks patrolled the streets to keep the peace today and Greek police rounded up suspects from three days of riots by workers and students demanding the overthrow of President George Papandopoulos.

Witnesses said "many bus-loads and army truckloads" of arrested suspects were taken to police security headquarters. A government spokesman said they would have their identities checked.

They faced arrest if the government felt they had been directly involved in the riots that began Friday and which appeared to have ended late Sunday night.

"The government will use all the means at the disposal of the martial law to restore complete order so that the country can resume its road towards elections," chief spokesman Spyros Ziournatzis said.

In most parts of Athens today, life seemed normal. Shops and offices were open and pedestrians moved freely. Schools operated and buses ran regularly.

In the center of the city, however, police diverted traffic from main arteries and police officers posted at street corners kept pedestrians moving. They picked up suspects and persons who taunted them.

Police helicopters flew over the city looking for possible demonstrations or gatherings. Most of those arrested were young men with long hair, beards and mustaches and the casual dress of modern youth.

Among them was a young woman in a miniskirt. Chief Coroner Dimitrios Kaptsakis said Sunday nine persons died during the weekend clashes. He said about 140 civilians and 38 policemen were injured.

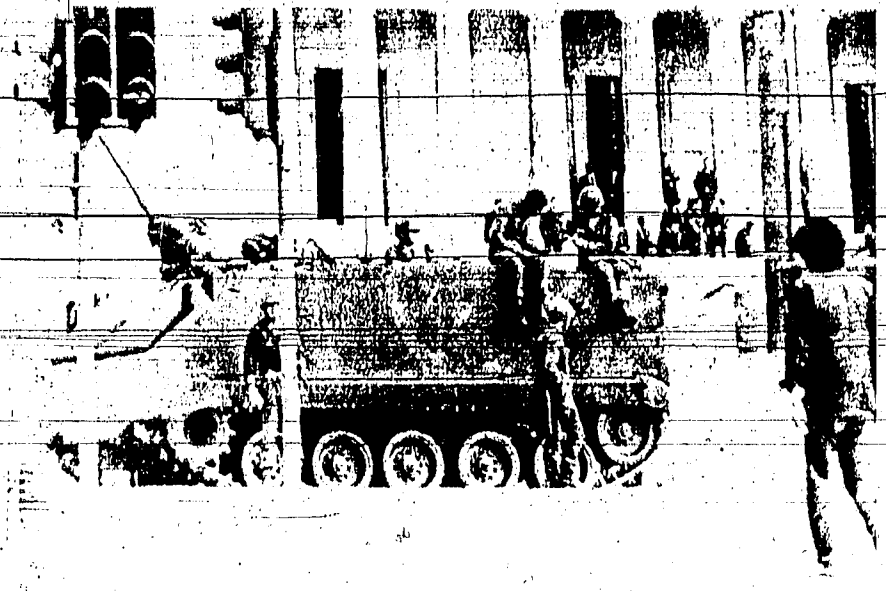

A government spokesman said today police arrested 866 demonstrators at the height of the student-led anti-government demonstration Friday night, but he would not say how many were arrested Saturday and Sunday.

More than half those arrested — 475 — were workers who joined the students in demanding the overthrow of the military-backed regime, he said.

The students began the confrontation six days ago when they occupied the Athens Polytechnic school. They held it peacefully for two days before the army stormed the building and the students took to the streets.

A curfew in the capital Sunday night and early today brought the first calm to Athens since demonstrating students took to the streets Friday.

Youth admits to setting fire

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A young drifter with an arson record, paroled only a week earlier from an Arizona reform school, has admitted setting the deadliest structural blaze in the city's history, police said Sunday.

Michael Altenburger, 18, was being held on suspicion of murder in the Stratford Apartment fire, which killed 24 persons late Thursday night and early Friday.

Police and arson investigators said they would bring charges against Altenburger today or Tuesday.

Retired Roman Catholic Cardinal John Francis McIntire was to say a special mass today for the dead — most of whom were Mexican-Americans — at a church in the downtown Los Angeles neighborhood of the Stratford.

The case against Altenburger includes "physical evidence" in addition to his confession, investigators said. They would not say what that evidence is.

The fire broke out about 11 p.m. in a sofa in the lobby of the Stratford, a 64-year-old three-story apartment house of wood frame construction that housed about 150 persons.

It blossomed fiercely up open stair wells, trapping residents on upper floors. Some burned to death in the beds, others leaped to their deaths on the sidewalk below. Eight of the dead were children. Fifty-two persons were injured.

Altenburger was arrested some distance away, near the UCLA campus, by officers who found him sleeping on a bench at a bus stop, and brought in for routine questioning.

Police said it was learned then that he had been paroled

Nov. 8, his 18th birthday, from the state Industrial School for Boys at Ft. Grant, Ariz., where he was sent after an arrest in September, 1972, for arson at a Tucson mobile home lot where he lived.

"Shortly after his arrest by police Friday, he did confess to setting the fire," said arson investigator Don Brian Sunday. "We've got a good case, but I can't go into too much detail at this time."

Pioneer 10 picks up speed

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — The Pioneer 10 spacecraft has passed the tiny outer moons of the giant planet Jupiter and is picking up speed due to gravitational pull.

The picture-snapping satellite will reach the middle three of Jupiter's 12 moons on Thursday, and on Dec. 3 will reach its closest point, 81,000 miles from the blue and orange striped planet.

It present speed of 22,000 miles per hour will zoom to over 80,000 mph, the fastest of any manmade object, when the spacecraft reaches the rendezvous point.

Oil exporters announce plans

(c) N. Y. Times Service PARIS — Arab oil exporters made a conciliatory gesture to Western Europe today in announcing that petroleum supplies will not be cut back further to most European Common Market states.

An embargo will continue to apply, however, to the Netherlands — and the United States — as decided by the Arab States Oct. 17 in retaliation for what the Arabs consider to be Dutch and American policies favoring Israel in the Middle East conflict.

The organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries, meeting in Vienna, announced that a planned 5 per cent reduction in production would not be implemented for December as it applies to Europe only. But the 5 per cent cutbacks will be applied to oil bound elsewhere, notably Japan.

From the Hague, the Dutch Foreign Minister Max Van Der Stoep, called on his common market partners to guarantee "an equitable supply situation in the member states" reminding them that interdependence was the basis for community cooperation.

By singling out the Netherlands, the Arabs have put considerable strains on common market unity. France and Britain are reluctant to share oil with the Dutch in defiance of the Arab ban.

The community countries, including the Netherlands, had sought to appease the Arabs with a resolution Nov. 6 evincing some willingness to make political concessions.

"The declaration said that a peace settlement in the Middle East must be based, among other requirements, on the inadmissibility of acquisition of territory by force, and added that the "legitimate rights" of the Palestinians must be taken into account.

Autoless Sunday

(c) N. Y. Times Service BRUSSELS — Belgium has become the second European country to experience an autoless Sunday. Nonessential driving has been banned in Holland for the last three Sundays.

The Belgian government ordered the Sunday driving ban last Monday until Arab oil policy toward Europe is clarified. It said the ban would cut Belgians' gasoline consumption by 10 per cent, or approximately 2.5 million gallons per week.

Belgium's roads were virtually deserted Sunday as only cars with special permits and tourists in transit were allowed to circulate between 3 a.m. Sunday and 3 a.m. Monday. By nightfall Sunday the Belgian police reported that 4,500 checks had produced 84 infractions of the strict ban. In such cases drivers were fined the equivalent of $75 and forced to leave their cars where they stood until Monday.

West Germany and Denmark have ordered similar driving bans to go into effect next week.

Caterpillar, UAW set talks today

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — Negotiators for Caterpillar Tractor Co. and striking United Auto Workers called for a full session of contract talks today for the first since union members walked off the job.

A Caterpillar spokesman said bargainers for the farm equipment manufacturer and the union met about 40 minutes Sunday and tentatively set up today's schedule.

Both sides had agreed to recess deadlocked negotiations Wednesday and Caterpillar's 38,000 UAW employees in five states went on strike Thursday.

Neither Caterpillar nor the UAW would comment on issues under discussion in the central talks.

The strike shut down four plants in the Peoria area and facilities at Decatur, Ill., Aurora, Ill., Mentor, Ohio, York, Penn., Denver, Colo., and Davenport, Iowa.

The UAW contract with Caterpillar expired Sept. 30. The firm is the host of the "big three" farm implement companies to negotiate with the union. International Harvester and Deere and Co. reached agreements earlier this fall.

Scientists to convene

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Space scientists from 10 countries will gather Nov. 20 to Dec. 1 to discuss new theories about the planet Mars brought on by information developed by the Mariner 9 mission.

The science of Mars is advancing into a new era as a result of recent spacecraft missions, said Dr. Bruce Murray, professor of planetary science at Caltech, host of the international colloquium. "This colloquium will provide an opportunity for planetary scientists to meet and determine which of the many theories about Martian evolution are the most viable," Murray said. "The session will also explore many of the new questions raised by the Mariner data and outline new directions for future Mars investigations."

He said the meeting at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory at Cal Tech will focus primarily on the surface history and evolution of Mars and its atmospheric history.

A Lovelier You

A GIFT FROM YOU TO YOU

By Mary Sue Miller

If lovelier hands are your idea of a most precious gift, don't depend on Santa to deliver the package. Oh, asking pretty please, you might find some beautifying hand lotions and potent in-your-stocking, But attractive hands are self-given, self-crafted.

Regular attention, special treatments for special problems, and willowy grace go into the making. Regular attention involves oceans of gentle soap suds and soothing hand lotion, careful and frequent manueuvres. Poise and grace come to hands by keeping them relaxed, never tensing up.

For problem hands, here are corrective ideas some to whip up at home, some ready for use at cosmetic counters:

- Milk Soak to soothe and soften workworn hands. Fill bathroom basin with warm water. As water runs, trickle in half packet of instant dry milk and whip to a foam. Soak hands until water cools, pat dry and leave on milk residues for 30 minutes. Or use prepared milk bath.
- Mask for wrinkled hands: Beat white of egg with with uncooked oatmeal to paste consistency; apply to hands and let dry; rinse off. Or apply commercial facial mask. Either way, lines temporarily smooth out.
- Lotion for chap and crack: Glycerin in Allantoin base—Glycerin; moisturizes; Allantoin heals. Hand-silk skin results.
- Gloves, fashion and work: Maybe Santa will handle the fashion glove. But the work glove, a year-round need in never ending supply, is your job.

DO you have a hand problem? Send today for LOVELIER HANDS, a leaflet that covers every step in a quest for hand beauty. It tells how to keep the skin and nails groomed; how to overcome weak nails, polish-chips, discolored knuckles; prominent veins, wrinkles; how to use the hands with poised grace. To obtain your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin.

GF woman honored by Lady Engineers

GLENNIS FERRY — The Lady Engineers met at the home of Mrs. Les Sanders Friday and honored Mrs. George C. Noyes, one of the oldest members.

She was presented at the altar and given a farewell gift as she and her husband are moving to Elly, Nev., to be near their daughter, Mrs. Frances Geming.

Mrs. Noyes has been a member for 54 years, and wears the 50 year jewel pin. She was born in Harrison, Ark., and came to Mountain Home in 1907, one of ten children of the Marion B. Gibson family.

They moved to Glens Ferry in 1913 and that same year she was married to Noyes, a fireman on the Union Pacific. He later became an engineer.

Noyes retired in 1960, after 60 years in Glens Ferry. Mrs. Noyes is a past president of the organization, and served as secretary for 41 years.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: How does one discourage someone (a relative) from sending cookies, cakes, homemade preserves, and other goodies on any and all occasions? (Especially Thanksgiving and Christmas.)

This person is a dear and generous soul, but her kitchen is far from clean, she has a houseful of small dogs running around, and her place smells like a kennel.

I know she spends a lot of time and energy (not to mention the cost of the ingredients) on these things, and we just throw them out. I suppose it wouldn't kill us to eat these gifts, but I get a mental picture of that filthy kitchen and all those dogs licking the cookie dough off her fingers, and that does it. Any suggestions?

WEAK STOMACH IN W. VA.

She's leery of goodies

DEAR WEAK: You could tell her you're counting your calories (Isn't everybody?) and to please help you resist temptation by ceasing and desisting.

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of six adult children. When our youngest was a senior in college we moved to a retirement community, hoping to make a new life for ourselves. Our two youngest moved in with us—temporarily, they said. That was two years ago, and they are still with us.

We couldn't afford a very large place, so we are very crowded. Not only that, but we still don't have the leisure life I had looked forward to.

Abby, how do you tell two grown children to get out on their own? I would like to set a specific date—like next Monday.

My husband doesn't have the courage to tell the boys to leave, but he feels the same as I. What's the answer? How do other parents handle this delicate situation?

Perhaps I should mention these boys are nonpaying guests. GOOD OLD MOM

DEAR MOM: Say, "John and Jim" (unless, of course, their names are Bob and Tom), "It's time you left the nest, so spread your wings and take off."

DEAR ABBY: I read a letter in your column from "FRIGHTENED," who was upset because the oil man she invited in for coffee made a pass at her. You told her most men whose jobs took them into homes were straight, and didn't try that. Well, I used to think so, too, but not anymore.

When we were living in town I let a guy who was working on the house next door come in because he asked me for a glass of water. Well, the baby started crying and when I went into his room to check on him, this bum followed me and tried to get funny, but I got away from him. I called up the company he worked for and reported him.

Later we bought a mobile home and once when my husband was out of town I had sewage trouble so I asked the man we rented the space from if he would fix it. Well, he fixed it, and then tried to fix me, too, and I had another battle on my hands.

I am 24 and happily married, and I'd like to know why these creeps always pick on me? Or are all men sex maniacs? LEARNED A LESSON

DEAR LEARNED: Don't judge all men by the two creeps who gave you a bad time. The lesson you learned, however, is one that all women should learn: Take no chances with strangers!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SO IN LOVE IN GAINESVILLE": Whether he is married or not is beside the point. He SAID he was, which means he wants to end the romantic involvement with you.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 60700, L. A., Calif. 90066. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Shirley Chisholm under GAO fire

Monday, November 19, 1973 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho

(c) N. Y. Times Service
 WASHINGTON — The General Accounting Office has recommended that the Justice Department take legal action for alleged mishandling of funds in Rep. Shirley Chisholm's presidential campaign.

A Justice Department spokesman said Friday that the GAO's recommendation, based on "apparent violations" of the election laws and corporate laws, was "still under evaluation." He said that each of the alleged wrongdoings were misdemeanors punishable by up to one year in prison, and fines of up to $1,000.

The 10-page GAO report cites four areas of investigation: failure to keep accurate records of contributions and expenditures; failure to file reports of receipts and expenditures; acceptance of corporate gifts; and failure to name a chairman of the campaign committee.

The central investigation involves the possible misuse of a $23,000 surplus in Mrs. Chisholm's presidential campaign. The surplus was discovered by federal auditors last July, eight months after election day, and one year after the Democratic National Convention and the termination of Mrs. Chisholm's presidential efforts.

Government investigators found that the fund-raising effort was essentially a one-man operation, operated by the husband of the 40-year-old Brooklyn Democrat, Mrs. Chisholm, who represents Bedford Stuyvesant, was the first black woman in Congress and the first woman to seek the presidential nomination of a major party. "Mr. Conrad Chisholm (the candidate's husband) whose name is not listed on any report or statement filed by the committee, appears to have controlled all committee receipts and expenditures," the GAO report said. "He deposited all receipts of the committee, and he signed all checks which were then co-signed by either Mr. (Cliff) Greene (treasurer) or Mr. (Trevor) Spence (assistant treasurer)."

The GAO report said that the campaign committee's financial report showed a $6,000 deficit, while in reality it had a surplus of more than $18,000 — which Mrs. Chisholm placed at $23,000. The surplus was incorrectly reported Thursday to have resulted from Mrs. Chisholm's congressional campaign, instead of her presidential campaign. "We brought the committee's reporting problems to the attention of committee representatives in a series of telephone calls and written communications during the pre-election period," said the GAO report, which was made last September. "While Mr. Chisholm and Mr. Howard acknowledged the inaccuracies and incompleteness of the committee's reporting and stated they would rule an amended report with our office to date we have not received that report."

New Jerome cafe

Jerome restaurant under construction

JEROME — Construction has begun on a new $87,000 restaurant located on East Main Street adjacent to the new Safeway store under construction.

Scarrow Bros., Jerome, was awarded the contract for construction of the new facility which will be owned and operated by Sam Wong. Wong now operates the State Cafe, which has been in the family since 1917. The old cafe will remain open until the new one is finished, some time in early April.

The new restaurant will be 65 by 61 feet when completed. It will contain three dining rooms plus banquet conveniences. It will feature Chinese and American food.

Architects Holland and McGill, Salt Lake City, have designed the building to be constructed of cinder block with cedar siding trim.

When the new one is completed, the old restaurant will be torn down. Parking will be available in conjunction with the Safeway parking lot.

Soviets agree to crop forecasts

(By N. V. Times Service) MOSCOW — The Soviet Union has agreed to provide the United States with general agricultural forecasts to prevent another disruption of world grain markets such as that caused by Moscow's huge and unexpected grain purchases last year.

For Washington, the agreement disclosed Friday by American officials was a major breakthrough in a campaign to work out smoother long-term trading relations with the Soviet Union.

The United States had felt hampered by traditional Soviet secrecy about key economic statistics, such as advance crop forecasts.

Because of the public and congressional furor over the Soviet grain deal, the Nixon administration has been pressing the Soviet leadership to open up more agricultural information. Washington reportedly warned that it would have to impose export controls and use other pressures to limit grain exports to insure that the American market was not disrupted again if Moscow did not agree to provide the information. The breakthrough evidently came during Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's visit to the United States last June.

The United States, officials said, made the point to Moscow that the Soviet Union could not "just move into the world market and upset the market and prices" when Moscow needed more grain because of a poor domestic harvest, as in 1972, but that other nations needed to know more about Soviet harvest prospects to gear up their own production when the Soviet Union was having a bad year.

Brezhnev and President Nixon agreed to set up a joint Soviet-American committee on cooperation in agriculture, which met here this week. The two delegations were headed by Carroll G. Brunnhaver, assistant secretary of agriculture and B. Runov, a Soviet deputy minister of agriculture.

The first crop to be covered by the new agreement is the Soviet winter wheat crop, which is planted in the fall, and harvested early next summer. Officials said they hoped to begin getting a pattern of statistics on this crop starting in early January.

$7.4 million

OGDEN, Utah — Twin Falls sugar beet growers received $7.45 million as their first payment for the 1973 crop, according to Henry Zobel, Amalgamated Sugar Co. vice president.

Growers in the Mini-Cassia district received $9.71 million, Zobel said.

Initial payments to growers in Oregon, Idaho and Utah totaled $37 million and represent 2 percent of the estimated total payment each grower will receive for his beet crop.

Burley sale steady

BURLEY — Prices were steady on all classes of cattle at the Thursday sale at the Burley Commission Yards Inc. A total of 1,105 head of cattle, 129 head of hogs and 10 sheep were sold.

There were 64 buyers and 94 sellers. Sales officials have announced the sale next week will be on Friday following Thanksgiving. A special horse sale will be held Dec. 9.

Class of livestock and prices paid Thursday include weaner pigs (per head) 22.50-31.50; fat hogs, 39.50-41.80; sows, 31.20-33.40; feeder lambs, 20-31.50; fat lambs, 29-32.80; killer ewes, 8-11.50; breeding ewes, none; baby calves, 81-105.

Light Holstein heifer calves (per head) 180-225; light Holstein steer calves, per head, 170-192.50; light whiteface steer calves 59-73.50; light whiteface heifer calves 53-54.75; common feeder steers, 41.50-43.75; common feeder heifers, 38.50-42.10; Holstein feeder steers, 36.50-42.70; Holstein milk cows and heifers per head, 410-545; stock cows, per head, 385-422.50.

Rodents cause damage

POCATELLO — Small rodents called voles sometimes cause millions of dollars in damages to grain, potato, hay, and fruit crops. Intensive research is currently under way at Idaho State University in order to seek a biological method of controlling vole populations.

"Since poison control of rodent pests has been restricted in order to help protect the environment, a method of biological control of voles needs to be developed," said Dr. Barry L. Keller, an ISU assistant professor of biology who is directing the research.

Part of the study has been funded under a $5,000 research grant from the State of Idaho.

This part is currently proceeding along two paths. Preliminary evidence suggests the hypothesis that voles of larger size are linked to high population densities and voles of smaller size are linked to low population densities," Dr. Keller said. "If this hypothesis proves true, and if it can be applied in practice, it might mean that the smaller voles could be introduced into an expanding vole population to precipitate a population crash. Evidence indicates that the size of the voles is genetically determined and is not due to luck of food.

Although unfunded, James V. Reeves, Walsler, an ISU graduate student in biology is working on a pheromone approach in the control of vole populations. Pheromones are aromatic substances released by some animals in voles they are suspected to affect the ability of the animals to reproduce or to find one another. Additionally, pheromones may regulate aggression among voles.

THE MOST COPIED TV SETS IN AMERICA

HERE'S HOW MOTOROLA MOVED AHEAD WITH SOLID STATE . . .

As the telephone industry recognized the need for better communication systems by devoting time, scientific talent and money to research and development, so too did Motorola exercise leadership in the home entertainment industry by getting into solid state first.

- Motorola INTRODUCES THE FIRST 100% Solid State "large screen" 19" (diagonal) portable all-transistor B/W receiver appropriately called the "Astronaut." 1960
- Motorola INTRODUCES THE FIRST mass-produced, large screen, modular, all-transistor solid state color TV receiver in the U.S.A. (Except for high voltage rectifier). 1967
- Motorola INTRODUCES the first Factory TV Exchange Module Program. 1967
- Motorola INTRODUCES the "Works in a Drawer" Color TV® concept with all its attendant benefits. 1967
- Motorola DEVELOPS a solid state high voltage rectifier. 1968
- Motorola ADDS solid state line voltage regulation to its solid state receivers. 1969

Motorola INTRODUCES QUASAR II COLOR TV®, thus expanding the benefits of solid state into smaller screen sizes and lower price points. 1969

Motorola INTRODUCES THE FIRST one-button Color TV Tuning System — which automatically balances color intensity, hue, contrast, brightness and activates automatic fine tuning — The "Insta-Matic." 1970

HERE'S HOW MOTOROLA MEETS THE CHALLENGE OF SOLID STATE COMPETITION . . . TODAY

1974

It was inevitable that more and more TV manufacturers would take advantage of solid state technology advancements and finally apply them to their equipment. The swing to solid state was predictable even way back in the mid-fifties when Motorola had the foresight and imagination to begin work on the first solid state receiver.

INSTA-MATIC® . . .

Solid state components are ideal for the special circuitry needed for a simplified one button color tuning system. INSTA-MATIC takes care of 5 color tuning functions — Hue, Contrast, Brightness, Intensity and Automatic Fine Tuning — plus, a "6th sense" which helps to maintain picture value when a channel is changed or the signal varies.

SATELLITE® REMOTE CONTROL CHANNEL SELECTION

Because INSTA-MATIC automatically balances the 5 color tuning functions once activated at the receiver, these controls do not have to be on the hand remote control unit. This allowed for development by Motorola engineers of a simplified remote channel selection system. The SATELLITE All Channel Remote Control unit has only two buttons: one for: On Off and Volume — the other for: Channel Selection.

MODULAR CONSTRUCTION — "WORKS IN A DRAWER"® COLOR TV

The small size and compactness of a modular opened the door to new chassis design considerations — and once again Motorola engineers exercised leadership by developing "Works in a Drawer" Color TV . . . wherein the chassis slides out in front of the set for easy accessibility for inspection or service.

RETRO-FIT CONCEPT . . .

Latest circuit and component improvements are added to newly developed modules which will also fit sets made in prior years. Thus, if an exchange replacement module is needed it may even include improvements not contemplated or contained in the original panel.

WARRANTY . . .

Because of the anticipated reliability of its products, largely made possible by solid state components and devices, Motorola guarantees to exchange any defective part (except picture tube) for one year from purchase date of set.

Denver rallies to upset Pittsburgh Steelers 23-13

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Denver Broncos rallied for 10 points in the last six minutes of play Sunday to snap a 13-11 tie and upset the Pittsburgh Steelers 23-13.

The Steelers suffered their first home defeat in regular competition since the final game of the 1971 season. They had won 13 straight league games at Three Rivers Stadium.

Jim Turner's third field goal of the game — a 46-yarder which hit the crossbar — and bounced over with 5:31 left in the game — put the Broncos ahead 16-13, and moments later the Broncos capitalized on a recovery of a fumbled kickoff to score a game-clinching touchdown. That came on a two-yard pass from Charley Johnson to Riley Odoms. It was Johnson's 14th scoring pass, most in the NFL.

The score was set up when Pittsburgh's Steve Davis fumbled the kickoff and Maurice Tyler recovered at the Pittsburgh 27.

Turner's first field goal also was set up by a turnover. Rocky Bleier fumbled at the Pittsburgh 20 on the opening kickoff and Tyler recovered. Falling to move the Broncos called on Turner, who delivered a 32-yard field goal.

Roy Gerela evened the count at 3-3 late in the first period with a 15-yard field goal and put the Steelers ahead 6-3 with a 13-yard field goal during the second period. But with eight seconds left in the half, Turner booted an 11-yard field goal to make it 6-6 at the half.

Holup by a 25-yard interference penalty, the Broncos marched 67 yards after the opening kickoff of the second half and took a 13-6 lead when Floyd Little slanted 10 yards off tackle.

Turner followed with the conversion kick, his 201st consecutive, tying him with George Blanda for the second longest streak in NFL history. Turner's conversion following Odoms' touchdown reception put him in second place.

Pittsburgh rolled 80 yards in four plays to tie the score barely two minutes into the first period. Terry Hanratty passed 42 yards to Ron Shanklin for the touchdown. It was the ninth TD reception for Shanklin this season, high in the NFL.

It was the second loss for the Steelers, who have lost eight games and still lead the AFC Central Division. For the Broncos, it marked their sixth game without a defeat, a stretch in which they are 4-0-2.

Namath appears but Jets lose

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Joe Namath made his first appearance in eight games Sunday and nearly rallied the New York Jets to victory over the Cincinnati Bengals but the clock ran out after his brilliant passing had brought the Jets to within six inches of the Cincinnati goal and the Bengals escaped with a 20-14 victory.

Trailing 20-14 and starting a drive on their own 22-yard line with 1:37 remaining, the Jets moved to the Cincinnati one-yard line on five passes by Namath.

A penalty moved the ball to within a half yard of the Cincinnati goal with 19 seconds to play. Cliff McClain tried to run for the touchdown but was stopped six inches from the goal. Out of timeouts, the clock ran out on the Jets before Namath could get off another play.

Namath's passing accounted for all 78 yards in the Jets' desperation drive. He fired passes of 21 and 16 yards to Rich Caster, then connected with Eddie Bell on a 31-yarder and finally hit Caster again on a 10-yarder to bring the ball to the one.

Namath, out since the second game of the season with a separated shoulder, entered the game with 4:40 left in the contest. He completed his first pass — a 12-yarder to Bell, but that drive ended when Bell fumbled. The Jets got possession again after Cincinnati punted and Namath went to work again.

Cincinnati had jumped to a 17-0 lead in the second quarter on a 24-yard touchdown pass from Ken Anderson to rookie Isaac Curtis. A one-yard TD run by rookie Boobie Clark and a 16-yard field goal by Horst Muhlmann.

The Jets rallied to within 17-14 on two touchdown passes by Al Woodall, a three-yarder to Jerome Barkum in the closing seconds of the first half and a 12-yarder to Caster in the third period.

Dallas tops Eagles 31-10 for revenge

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — Two typically bruising efforts by Walt Garrison — a 53-yard romp with a screen pass and a 33-yard run — ignited a rally Sunday that carried the Dallas Cowboys to a 31-10 revenge victory over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Garrison scored twice on runs of two and one yards, quarterback Roger Staubach balled over from the one, Staubach hit Bob Hayes with a 28-yard scoring pass and Tony Fritsch added a field goal to keep Dallas even with Washington at the top of the NFC East Division.

Philadelphia had upset Dallas three weeks ago, 30-16. Philadelphia jumped in front 10-0, but after falling behind, 14-10, Eagle quarterback Roman Gabriel retired for the day with a bruised right elbow and his club's offense collapsed.

Gabriel had thrown an 80-yard touchdown pass to rookie tight end Charles Young and Tom Dempsy had kicked a 48-yard field goal to give the Eagles their 10-0 lead.

But early in the second quarter, Garrison took a screen pass from Staubach at his own 20 and rolled to the Eagles' 27. From there, Garrison and Calvin Hill took turns running the ball until Staubach took it over from the one.

Two series later, Garrison ignited the go-ahead TD drive with a 33-yard tackle breaking carry that took the Cowboys to the Philadelphia 26. Four plays later Staubach hit Garrison with a two-yard flare pass for a touchdown that put Dallas ahead to stay.

Los Angeles continues win streak over 49ers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Fleet Hapold Jackson caught three touchdown passes from veteran John Hadl, including a 37-yard bomb in the last quarter, as the Los Angeles Rams beat San Francisco 31-13 Sunday for their seventh straight victory over the 49ers.

Jackson, the NFL's number one receiver last season with the Philadelphia Eagles, was on the receiving end of scoring throws of 25 and 22 yards in the second quarter. He caught his 37-yard bomb at 5:17 in the fourth period, his 12th TD reception of the year, all from Hadl.

Hadl, the NFL's passing leader, increased his season's touchdown pass total to 17, including the dozen to Jackson. With four games left for the Rams, Jackson is within five scoring receptions of the fabled Elroy Hirsch's club record 17 TD catches set in 1951.

The victory was the Rams' 11th in their last 13 NFL meetings with the 49ers, who lost their fourth straight game and were mathematically eliminated from a chance for their fourth straight NFC West title.

With an 8-2 record, Los Angeles now has a game and a half lead in the division over Atlanta which is at home on national TV Monday night against unbeaten Minnesota. San Francisco, which lost to the Rams 40-20 in September, was limited to a pair of first half field goals by Bruce Gossett before Vic Washington scored a touchdown on a one-yard run with 5:37 to go.

Trailing 3-0 at the end of the first quarter, the Rams broke open a close game by scoring 10 points in the final 1:11 of the first half and then taking the opening second half kickoff and marching 72 yards for a score. Cornerback Charlie Stukes' two interceptions of Joe Reed passed late in the first half set up the Rams' 10 quick points, a 37-yard field goal by David Ray and the 22-yard scoring pass from Hadl to Jackson.

For their second straight game, the 49ers went with Reed, the 25-year old youngster, as their quarterback although coach Dick Nolan inserted Steve Spurrier late in the contest after Reed was shaken up.

Jim Bertelsen scored on a five-yard sweep around right end to cap Los Angeles' scoring drive at the opening of the second half. The Rams march took 9:33 and 10 plays, all on the ground.

Field goals let Washington win

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Curt Knight kicked five field goals Sunday to carry the Washington Redskins to a 22-14 victory over Baltimore for their first triumph over the Colts since 1959.

Knight's productive day gave him nine field goals in his last two games and he has hit on 14 of his last 16 attempts. It also tied a Washington club record he set twice in 1971.

The triumph ended a nine-game winning streak for the Colts over Washington and gave the Redskins a 7-3 record in their battle for East Division honors with the Dallas Cowboys.

One of Knight's field goals was set up by Herb Mul-Key's 48-yard kickoff return, two others by fumble recoveries, and another by an interception.

His fifth, of 29 yards, with less than two minutes remaining, climaxed a long Washington drive to clinch the win after Baltimore's Marty Domres hit Cotton Speyer with a four-yard touchdown toss to reduce Washington's lead to 19-14 midway in the final quarter.

The Redskins were never headed after Bill Kilmer piloted them on a 64-yard touchdown march in the first period which ended with Larry Brown plunging over from the one.

The two Washington fumble recoveries set up Knight's first two field goals in the second quarter to increase the Redskins margin to 13-0. The first, from 35 yards out, came after Mike Hull recovered a bobbed punt reception by Baltimore's Bruce Laurs; the second, from the 10, resulted from Verlon Biggs' recovery of a Domres fumble.

Don McCauley topped off a 67-yard Colt drive in the third quarter with a 1-yard touchdown to cut Washington's lead, but Mul-Key raced the ensuing kickoff to Baltimore's 47, and Knight booted his third of the game from the 37.

Early in the final quarter Ken Houston intercepted a Domres pass and Knight came through again from the 42, to put the Redskins ahead 19-7.

Domres was unable to complete a pass until 3:47 was gone in the second period, and the Colt quarterback had only four completions in 14 attempts for 28 yards at halftime.

Detroit has easy victory over Bears

CHICAGO (UPI) — The boobies of Soldier Field got what they wanted Sunday when Gary Huff got a chance to show his stuff and Dick Jauron promptly picked off a pass from the rookie quarterback and returned it 95 yards for a touchdown to start the Detroit Lions to a 30-7 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Chicago fans and sportswriters have been clamoring for weeks that Huff replace strong-legged veteran Bobby Douglass. The fans actually cheered when Douglass came up limping at the end of a second quarter six-yard scramble and Huff scrambled on the field.

Huff looked classy as he took the Bears down to the Detroit nine. But then Jauron, a rookie from Yale who had never made an interception as a pro before, cut in front of Gary Cozzins and raced untouched with the ball down the sidelines for the longest pass interception return this year in the national Football Conference.

Jauron got two more interceptions on his big day, one off Huff on the Lions' six and off end Earl Thomas in the end zone. Mike Lucel, returning to action, clipped Huff for two more interceptions.

Cleveland dumps Raiders out of lead in AFC west

OAKLAND (UPI) — Mike Phipps threw seven yards to Fair-Hooker on the fourth play of the second quarter Sunday for the game's only touchdown and the Cleveland defense took it from there as the Browns defeated the Oakland Raiders, 23-9, and knocked them out of first place in the AFC West.

The Cleveland touchdown drive consumed 13 plays over 80 yards and was the Browns' only legitimate scoring chance in the defensive struggle. The Browns shut out Oakland for 55 minutes and 14 seconds before George Blanda booted a 23-yard field goal for the Raiders' only points.

The Raiders had only one other scoring chance but Blanda missed on a 43-yard field goal try midway through the third quarter. The victory gave the Browns a 6-3-1 record and moved them to within 1 1/2 games of Pittsburgh in the AFC Central Division.

The loss was the Raiders' fourth compared to five victories and a tie and dropped them to third behind Kansas City and Denver in the AFC West. Cleveland's front four of Joe Jones, Walter Johnson, Jerry Sherk, and Nick Roman shut off Oakland's running game, harassed quarterback Ken Stabler and generally controlled the tempo of the game.

Plunkett-led Patriots upset Green Bay 33-24

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI) — Jim Plunkett fired a 63-yard touchdown pass in Reggie Tucker and scored a pair of touchdowns a little more than two minutes apart in the fourth quarter as the New England Patriots came from behind to upset the Green Bay Packers, 33-24.

The Patriots, who snapped a three-game losing streak, trailed Green Bay for three quarters and were down 24-10 when Plunkett ripped off the 63-yarder to Tucker for a 26-24 lead at 2:33 of the fourth period.

Defensive end Ray Hamilton recovered a Perry Williams fumble at the Green Bay 26 just two plays later to set up the other score. Plunkett followed with a 22-yard pass to Tucker, handed off to Mack Herron for a three-yard gain, then dived into the end zone for the touchdown at 4:07.

San Diego slips by Saints

The machine will appear at the Western Idaho fairgrounds Thursday through Sunday during the second annual Boise roadster show. # Chiefs topple Houston 38-14

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Mike Livingston passed for two touchdowns and ran for another Sunday, boosting the Kansas City Chiefs to a 38-14 victory over the hapless Houston Oilers.

The Chiefs, who boosted their record to 6-3-1, doubted their season-high-in-points-while-the Oilers dropped their ninth game in 10 outings.

Plunkett finished the day with 18 completions in 32 attempts for 318 yards and two touchdowns, his best performance in three years as a pro and the first time the Patriots passed for more than 300 yards in a game since Babe Parilli connected for 379 in 1966.

Archie Manning hit John Beasley with a 14-yard scoring pass with 58 seconds left in the game to give the Saints a final shot, but a subsequent onside kick failed, and the Chargers ran out the clock.

Golfers dislike format

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Even at the prime rate of $62,500 a day, the world of professional golf has turned thumbs-down on the experimental eight-day tournament.

As a result, when the World Open resumes business next year, it will consist of a standard, four-round format. The side effect, of course, will be the elimination of golf's only half-million-dollar purse.

long," continued the 21-year-old Crenshaw. "I'm glad that this will be shorter."

Livingston threw scoring strikes of five yards to Gary Butler in the first quarter and 24 yards to Otis Taylor in the second quarter then scampered three yards for the third touchdown in the third quarter.

The Packers threatened to run away with the game in the early going, capitalizing on New England mistakes. John Brockington completed an 80-yard game-opening drive with a four-yard touchdown run and Jim Hill recovered Bob McCall's fumble at the Patriot 25 to set up Williams' six-yard scoring run for a 14-0 Green Bay lead at 8:55 of the opening quarter.

White booted his first three field goals in the second quarter to close the gap to 14-9 but a piling on penalty against George Hoey after the clock ran out at the half enabled Chester Marcol to boot a 33-yard field goal for a 17-9 Green Bay lead at the half.

Steve O'Neal's 33-yard punt was a high flier of the type the receiving team would ordinarily let roll, but Smith took it, got a first block from Willie McGee, and dashed straight along the right sideline for the touchdown.

Barber, who waited 16 long years to finally win a big one, was about the only one who wouldn't knock the marathon format once it was over. However, he had 100,000 good reasons for liking it as it was, and he's just as happy that it is being changed.

"Four rounds will be fine with me," Barber said minutes before catching a plane back home to Sherman, Tex., where he's going to use some of his new money to buy land. "I just came to play however they decide it."

Len Thompson, the third-place finisher, said, "It was awfully hard for me to concentrate through eight rounds of golf. You couldn't relax." And Tom Watson, who dropped to a fourth-place tie after leading through the fifth, Houston coach Sid Gillman used both Dickey and Dan Pastorini at quarterback but the Oilers failed to generate any kind of attack until the game was out of reach.

The Oilers finally scored with six seconds left in the third quarter when Bob Gresham took a swing pass from Dickey and bolted 62 yards for a touchdown.

Only a minute earlier Ray Wersching kicked a 28-yard field goal, which had been set up by a 54-yard pass play from Wayne Clark to Jerry Levias to give the Chargers a 3-0 lead.

The Saints narrowed the gap to 10-7 with 1:17 left in the third quarter when Manning hit Jubilee Dunbar on a 9-yard pass to cap a six play, 57-yard drive. Manning, who completed 3 of 3 passes for 38 yards on the drive, rolled to his right, and found Dunbar all alone in the right rear of the end zone.

The six-year pro from SMU, filling for the injured Len Dawson, has a 12-2 record as a starter, including three in a row this season.

Houston scored again with 9:41 left in the game when Fred Willis plunged over from the one, capping a 42-yard drive after a pass interception by linebacker Guy Roberts.

Kansas City's third touchdown, on its second possession of the second half, clinched the verdict. The Chiefs stayed on the ground all the way, rolling 55 yards in nine plays.

Ed Podolak was the work horse in the drive, carrying five times including a 25-yarder to the Houston 16. From the three, Livingston dropped back to pass, found no one open, and dashed across just

Tennis group wants U.S. to field best

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — Wayne Reid, the president of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia (LTA), challenged the United States Sunday to field the best available team possible in the Davis Cup final in Cleveland on Nov. 30.

had moved that any tennis player could represent his country in Davis Cup matches. Fraser said the move was made at Wimbledon this year but was defeated by the Davis Cup nations.

Under the existing rules of the Davis Cup nations no contract professional is eligible to play in the Davis Cup but Reid, in a speech Sunday at the conclusion of Australia's 4-1 victory against Czechoslovakia, said he would welcome the United States fielding anyone they like.

"But we don't care now who they play and we think that any player should be allowed to play for the United States, and this includes Arthur Ashe and Cliff Richey," Fraser said.

Later team captain Neale Fraser said it was his understanding that Australia

"I think the American team will be whatever happens, Stan Smith, Tom Gorman with Smith and Erik Van Dillen in the doubles," Newcombe said. "I don't think they will play Jimmy Connors. After all they have invited him to play in the last two Davis Cups and he has turned down the offer."

Highlighting the event will be the announcement of the winner of the Paul Oslyn Award, given to the "most outstanding and deserving" varsity football player.

"But Australia's point is, it's an open Davis Cup, it should be open to everybody."

For the first time the dinner this year will be potluck.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES. Don't focus on self for best results today and tonight, show others you are concerned for their welfare and happiness; do something to help relieve their burdens. Not good for buying apparel, eat, or nonessentials.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Be patient with a good partner who could be under stress. Avoid civic matters which could prove disappointing. Get into work that really fascinates you.

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Reach better understanding with fellow workers through cooperation. Exercise, or take other health treatments during free time. Evening is fine for light social entertaining.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't overspend on luxuries and feel the pinch later. Attend to business efficiently. More empathy for mate increases happiness and well-being.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Don't lash out at those at home, but do something constructive to improve harmony. Pay bills, cut down on extravagances. Relax and read at home tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Be cheerful whether at business or at home and get ahead faster. Keep an eye on your purse, don't let others shortchange you.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) Improve budget for flexibility and cut down on nonessentials. Make improvements in real estate. Add to value as well as profit, appearance.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) Don't fret over things you don't like, but progress by working at what you do like. Study social matters logically before doing anything about them.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) Get facts and figures straight before acting on puzzling matter. Some situation doesn't please you but don't judge harshly. Make allowances for error in others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21) Don't expect too much from friends now; they are very busy with own affairs. Keep busy at own outlets and get ahead fast, anyway. Enjoy social in p.m.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 20) Trying to pressure others in credit or vocational affairs could lose you their support and goodwill. Study some new system carefully that will build up your reputation.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) You have clever ideas, but before making some change study the matter well. Be sure the trip you are contemplating is really worthwhile.

PISCES (Feb 20 to Mar 20) Get busy at those tasks or you find others could profit instead of you. Mate can be vexing today, but keep your cool. It soon blows over.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a particular charm that attracts almost everyone, so be sure to teach early to choose worthwhile people, otherwise your progeny's potential could be greatly diminished. Law, medicine, or psychology could be fine here, since there is a knack for helping humanity. Give good religious training.
