Sirica demands tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica has asked President Nixon to give him all subpoenaed Watergate tapes immediately, following announcement of another gap in the recordings.

Judge calls for tapes of last week that the subsequent conversation with Haldeman was noticed and was found to include the 18-minute segment which contained only a hum.

Nixon was told on Friday there was a problem with part of one tape but that it had not been determined if that tape was covered by the subpoena, the official said. Nixon was described as still confused at that point when he met with editors in Memphis Saturday and told them he had no more "bombs" to disclose about Watergate.

The official said there were portions of the Nixon-Haldeman conversation that were intact, and they related primarily to Nixon's schedule.

Buzhardt said all the other tapes being turned over to the court had been examined and "were audible."

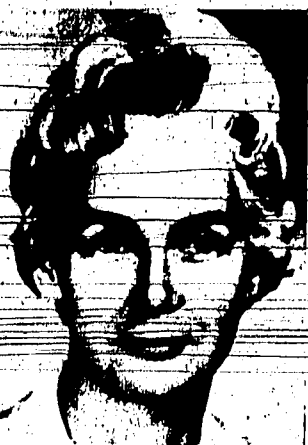

Sirica has appointed a panel of six technical experts to see if any tapes he receives have been tampered with.

In other Watergate developments:—

—On request of administration prosecutors, Sirica, delayed until Dec. 5 granting immunity for John H. Meier, a former employe of billionaire Howard Hughes, to appear before the Senate Watergate committee. The delay means the committee cannot pursue its inquiry into a transaction reportedly involving Hughes and President Nixon's friend Charles G. "Hebe" Hebezo until after a grand jury has heard testimony.

—The senate judiciary committee couldn't make up its mind between bills for a court-appointed prosecutor and guarantees against firing the administration's prosecutor, so it sent both versions to the Senate for it to decide.

—Acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork said the administration would not fire Jaworski or limit his jurisdiction without a "consensus" in Congress. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called this "a massive new loophole which might serve to aid and abet the continuing Watergate coverup."

Autopsy tests reveal cause of Jerome death

JEROME — Tim L. Draper, 36, Jerome, died Wednesday morning from an apparent overdose of drugs, Jerome County Coroner Lauren Neher said today the preliminary report of an autopsy showed death was caused by an overdose of drugs and not from injuries he received in a car accident Nov. 8.

Neher said further tests are pending and results are not expected for a week to 10 days.

Jerome Sheriff Eliza Hall said he was not sure if the overdose of drugs was accidental or intentional.

"I was called to the Draper home by his wife about 3:45 yesterday morning," Mrs. Draper reported she had gone to bed and left her husband sitting in a chair in her living room watching television. When she got up to see why he hadn't come to bed, she found him dead in the chair," Hall said.

Hall said that at the time he found Draper he thought he had died from possible injuries he received in the car accident.

Draper was cited for driving while intoxicated after the accident.

Hall said further investigation is pending into the incident.

2 women escape from kidnapers

JONESBORO, Ga. (UPI) — A minister's wife and daughter held in ransom for the release of a bank robbery suspect either escaped their captors today or were set free, police said.

Capt. W.E. Rowell of the Clayton County Police Department said he had been informed they were "all right" and were on their way home. He said he did not know whether they escaped or were freed.

Police had issued a plea for the kidnapers to make contact so they could discuss the exchange of the jailed suspect. Rowell said he did not know whether any exchange had been made. The woman and her teen-aged daughter were kidnaped early Wednesday night that a "second party" had received a call allegedly from the three gunmen who abducted the women nearly 20 hours earlier. However, they said the call might have been a hoax.

Clayton County Police Capt. R. T. Thornton appealed to the men to "please call the telephone number you have been calling. You will be given another telephone number to call and talk directly with the authorities so we can be assured of the safety of the hostages."

The men entered the home of the Rev. E. M. Nelson Jr., pastor of the Jonesboro United Methodist Church, around 2 a.m. Wednesday and seized Nelson's wife, Jackie, 44, and daughter, Debbie, 16.

The men, in their 20's, and wearing blue jeans, demanded the release of Daniel Warren, 38, of Nicholson, one of three men being held in the Clayton County Jail for the October robbery of the Bank of Molema in South Georgia.

Thornton said Wednesday night the men had not contacted either authorities or Nelson and that "it now looks bad for the women."

County Police Chief Howard W. Smith said he too was "worried as hell about them." Smith said the men were expected to call early Wednesday and give further details of their demands, but severe thunderstorms knocked out electricity and telephone services at county police headquarters for five hours in the morning.

Nelson said his home phone was tied up constantly with inquiries from friends and members of his church.

After services were restored in police offices, Smith ordered most lines left open and Nelson asked Jonesboro residents not to call his home.

In a brief late afternoon meeting with newsmen, Nelson criticized police officials for "creating a complete mixup in communications" and issued a plea to the abductors.

"What I'm doing is waiting," he said. "If they'll tell me what to do, I'll do it. At this stage of the game, I'll do anything to protect my family."

Nixon eases pressure, still has 2 nightmares

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Nixon is now running around the country like a traveling salesman, and he has relieved the pressure for his resignation by opening himself to questions and promising full disclosure of all relevant Watergate evidence, but he is still living with two nightmares.

The first is what "full disclosure" will do to him, and particularly to his colleagues who are now under suspicion or indictment when the evidence on Watergate and related crimes is presented in court. And the second is what public reaction will be to this administration if the energy crisis is really severe this winter and leads to an economic recession next year.

It may be that what's left of the tapes and the other evidence will not incriminate the President himself.

Accordingly, by promising full disclosure, Nixon may save himself, but at the same time, full disclosure may incriminate and convict other White House and campaign assistants, and they are likely to have a great deal to say about their own and the President's role in all this rather than going quietly to jail.

Also, in handling his own defense in his meeting with members of the House and Senate, he has in effect been lobbying the very men who must sit as jury and judge in any impeachment proceedings brought against him, and he has been excusing the firing of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox by implying that both Cox and former Attorney General Richardson went back on a compromise he thought he had made with them.

Nevertheless, Nixon has undoubtedly helped his own case by facing the Congressmen and the editors of Time magazine.

The question is what comes next, in the courts and in the economy.

Nixon has handled his psychological question body and effectively in the last few days. Even his friends in Congress who were willing to forgive or excuse his role and his handling of the political crisis, were troubled about his brooding isolation, and his sudden defiant appearances. They were not so concerned about his Watergate "mistakes," as he calls them, as they were worried about him — whether he was in charge of his problem or even of himself.

This fundamental problem he has handled very well recently. From his excessive secrecy he has suddenly moved to an almost frantic series of speeches and confrontations. In the process he has been responsive to questions, much more confident than he was a week or so ago, and he has taken the headlines away from his critics.

The Middle East war and the ensuing energy crisis helped him temporarily. But in the long run, the energy crisis was a blow to Nixon, for it threatens a hard winter, more divisions within the country, and probably more unemployment and even higher prices.

At home it confronts him with an awkward dilemma. To cut consumption of gas, heating oil and other fuel, he can appeal to the people to cut down the heat in their houses and their speed on the road, but industry uses 70 per cent of American energy, and volunteer austerity will not deal with the problem. He either has to ration fuel or tax it heavily, and even his closest aides are divided on whether to ration or tax. The effects of all this on public opinion, and on the attitudes of the people toward Nixon and his administration, are not hard to imagine. Watergate has always been basically a political question rather than a legal question, and the decisive jury for Nixon is the people.

That is why he is now traveling the country trying to restore confidence in his leadership, but the progress he has made depends largely on the mood of the people, and they are not likely to be in an amiable mood if they have a cold winter followed by unemployment, a recession, and more charges by the Watergate gang after the President makes his "full disclosure."

Revive dreams

Ten years ago today, President John F. Kennedy was slain in Dallas.

That tragedy was one of the watershed events in American history. It was one of the most memorable, as well, and almost every American old enough to recall the shock of the news flashes about the shooting and death of the then president can pinpoint where he was and what he was doing.

In retrospect, the double shock of Kennedy assassination and the subsequent killing of his suspected assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, was the first of a series of dislocations which have wracked the nation.

In the decade since, there have been the Vietnam War with its attendant protests and bitter divisions, the killings of Martin Luther King and Robert Kennedy, and turmoil on the nation's campuses and in its urban streets. The bitter brew was capped by the Watergate scandal and its erosion of confidence in the executive branch of government.

As a result of that long series of troubles, it seems Americans have tended to become doubters and questioners instead of dreamers and achievers. Perhaps the latter — the loss of the ability to dream and achieve, on the personal and national level — is the greater tragedy of the past decade.

Ten years after Kennedy's untimely death, many Americans have looked back and analyzed the event and the man and the circumstances of the time. But having re-examined the events of November, 1963, and the 10 years since, what then?

A look back can show from whence a man or a nation has come. Both must then turn to the path ahead and confront its challenges, great and hazardous though they seem.

Among the most notable traits of Americans has been their resilience and their determination to meet and overcome challenges. Both those capabilities have been tested many times in the past 197 years. Both undoubtedly will be tested in the future.

Those traits have been linked closely with dreams of Americans for a strong and sound nation, a world at peace, and harmony between men and creeds, no matter what their flag.

Perhaps it is now time for Americans, having looked back at the tortuous path of the past decade, to turn their determination toward the challenges of healing their nation's ills and turning their dreams of a better nation and world into realities.

And from their striving may well come not only a revival of the ability to dream of great achievements but also a United States of which its past presidents — John Kennedy and all others — could be proud.

MR. SPECTATOR

Thanksgiving Day unique

Thanksgiving is not an American monopoly. Men have given thanks since they were civilized enough to feel gratitude for their blessings. But it is true that the American Thanksgiving Day is a unique expression of a universal human emotion.

Part of the appeal of the day is the flavor of American food. And Mr. Spectator hopes you have had it — or will get it — today. It is possible for the main dish of the Thanksgiving dinner to be something other than turkey — but if it is turkey (and you have been able to pay the price) there is no question that at least in one respect the day has been properly observed.

The cranberry sauce and pumpkin pie are traditional, too. Why is the feast important? Because the family gathers to enjoy it together.

The American family has been subjected to harsh strains in a changing society. But it is still the solid foundation of the American character. On this Thanksgiving Day we help to keep it true by happy ritual.

Since that story's first Thanksgiving of the Pilgrims the holiday has gradually evolved. In the process American presidents in long succession have made their contributions. Many have issued moving proclamations in calling for observance of the day.

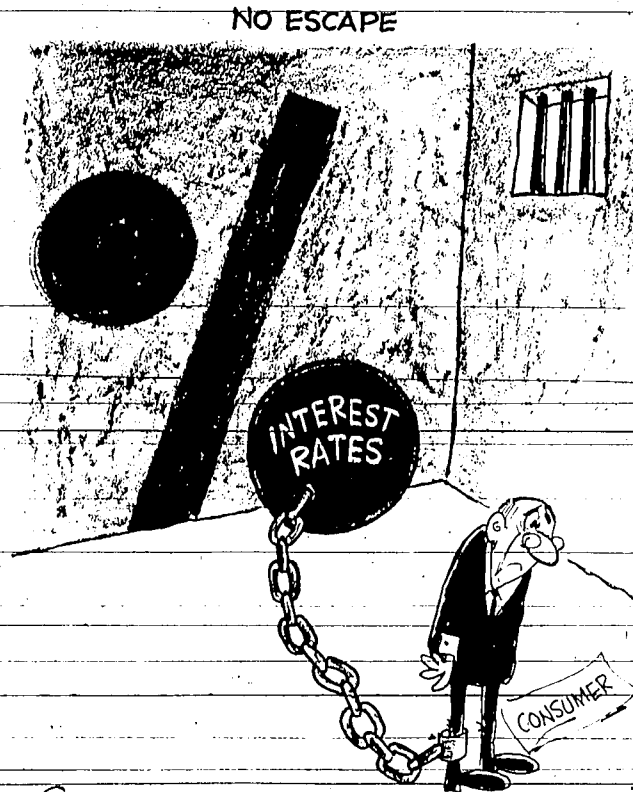

While Presidents continue to issue these proclamations each year, actually the day has been set aside by action of Congress since 1941.

That action came after President Franklin D. Roosevelt, in 1939, set the next to the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving Day. That year November — as it does this year — had five Thursdays in its 30-day span and Roosevelt acted with the purpose of permitting a longer Christmas shopping period.

Mondale: idea awaiting time

Hey, I have seen Walter Mondale. I fear he is an idea whose time has not come.

It was at the celebration to honor the 50th anniversary of the "new leader." That is a little journal, published in New York, which played an important role over a generation gently but firmly detaching social democracy from Bolshevism.

It is associated with a remarkable man, dead now ten years, whose benign shadow continues to hover over a journal identified by one of the speaker as the "only" intellectual journal that wasn't pro-Communist during the 30's and 40's.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

That is slightly exaggerated, but close enough to remind oneself how lonely was the company of the anti-Communists in left high brow circles. Sol Levitas of the New Leader brought out his weekly journal by wheeling articles from authors, and contributions from labor organizations, and by straining to pry open a modest little hole within which the American left could play a modest anti-Communist game. This was as difficult as running a republican plot inside Buckingham Palace, but no one did it better than the now leader.

The principal speaker was Senator Mondale, who was given a medal of courts.

He came on nicely. Here was the man about whom the intellectual power brokers have been whispering excitedly for months now: One week in the New York Times I counted three references to him in the columns of those influential men who come up with wonderful ideas about who the next president of the United States should be.

Senator Mondale started off with a nice self-deprecating reference to his political genealogy: His father too was a socialist, he said, but he suspected it was because both Hoover and FDR wanted to eliminate prohibition.

But Senator Mondale was in a jam of sorts. He was addressing an audience liberal like himself in all questions of domestic policy. But it was also an audience pretty generally anti-Communist by conviction and, where the interests of Israel and the Soviet Union collide, unflinchingly on the side of Israel. Senator Mondale is not known as a Senate hawk. Indeed, he is one of the senators who have voted against military parity for the United States in Senator Jackson's bill in SALT II.

Accordingly, the Senator spent most of his time wheel-spinning.

Guess what he favors? Right — cleaning up campaign financing, taking constitutional precautions to see to it that Vietnam never happen again, making the president accountable to the people, reaffirming our basic commitment to social justice and other galvanizing social innovations.

The audience was not impressed. The Social Democrats are truly the despised of history. They are uncomfortable among the Right and, on the Left, they are always being either betrayed, or lied to. It is good that the new leader perseveres, and symbolic of its plight that its circulation is a mere twenty thousand.

Each to his own

(Portland Oregonian)

President Nixon's thermostat-setting advice indicated that he is more influenced by his experience at the Washington White House than that in his alternate residences in Florida and California.

In his address to the nation on the energy crisis, he asked the public to reduce thermostat settings six degrees. That, he observed, should bring room temperatures down to 68 degrees, resulting in a fuel saving.

The arithmetic of the matter is 68 plus 6 equals 74, a temperature the President apparently considers the normal thermostat setting. That may be true of the chilly area of the North Atlantic states and the Midwest. But elsewhere in the nation, including the Pacific Northwest, normal thermostat settings are lower. Many westerners will find that they need not reset thermostats to achieve the 68 degrees desired by the President.

Talking turkey about first holiday

(c) New York Times Service
Since the country is probably beyond shock by this time, there can be no harm in telling the truth about the first Thanksgiving Day.

It began, as everyone knows, when Myles Standish sent John Alden as a surrogate proposer to Priscilla Mullens, Standish at that time was the most important man in Massachusetts.

Being such an important man, he naturally did not want to become personally involved in competitive activities, such as asking a woman to marry him, because he believed this would be bad for his image as a man above partisanship.

Moreover, he was terrible at asking women to marry him. There was something about the look in his eyes, said the women to who he had proposed, that made women think he was the kind of man you wouldn't buy a blunderbuss from, much less marry.

Standish had proposed too many times and been rejected by so many women that he was widely known as "the Hubert Humphrey of the Puritan Party." And so, when he caught Priscilla's hand in marriage, he decided to stand above the proposal and send John Alden as a surrogate.

Standish did not trust Alden, however. It was not his custom to trust many people. He particularly distrusted Priscilla. That was why he wanted to marry her.

When Alden arrived, he was three hours late for the appointment because one of Standish's aides had deliberately given him the wrong address in order to make him look foolish. "I see why they call you the Massachusetts Bay Muskie," said Priscilla.

"Will you marry Miles Standish?" asked Alden.

"Marry him?" asked Priscilla. "I wouldn't even buy a used blunderbuss from him."

RUSSELL BAKER

In his misery, Alden was too crushed to say "No" when Priscilla asked him to marry her.

To his surprise, Alden found Myles Standish in happy spirits when he went back to report how the proposal had gone.

Standish felt so good about his narrow escape from the marriage that he decided to hold a great party of Thanksgiving.

Coal won't solve US energy crisis

By BRUCE INGERSOLL

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
Americans must not delude themselves that the coal industry is ready to rescue them from the spreading energy shortages, caution executives of the nation's biggest coal-mining companies.

King Coal, having been deposed in the postwar years by cleaner, less bulky fuels, is in no position to make a significant comeback, now or in the next several years, they said.

Carl Bagge, president of the National Coal Association, foresees virtually no rise in coal production unless the power companies and other major coal consumers are given long-term exemptions from clean-air regulations and unless "overzealous" mine-safety inspectors are ordered to be more lenient.

Bagge said stripmining regulations passed by the U.S. Senate, if enacted into law, would "force the industry underground and prohibit strip mining." No surface-mining company could afford to meet the bill's reclamation requirements, he said.

The industry already is troubled with falling productivity and will be extremely hard pressed to supply all the east coast utilities that are expected to reconvert their oilburning power plants back to coal. Bagge and company officials emphasized.

Push as they will, most of the companies concede they will be fortunate this year to match their output for 1972. The entire industry, to varying degrees, has been hobbled by a plethora of problems.

Transportation — Many companies, including Freeman Coal Mining and United Electric Coal, subsidiaries of General Dynamics, are plagued by what has become a chronic shortage of rail cars. In addition, barges for waterborne coal are now in limited supply, chiefly because of the heavy grain movement.

Shortages — some mines are running low on diesel fuel to keep their coal-hauling trucks rolling.

Ammonium nitrate, an explosive used in strip mining, is not only scarce but expensive, too. Even harder to obtain are the long steel roof bolts used to reinforce the ceilings of mine tunnels.

Accidents, violations — Mines often are forced to shut down because of mechanical breakdowns and accidents, such as the one that befell Consolidation coal.

Mine inspectors are periodically closing down mines until violations of the coal mines health and safety act are rectified.

Otis Gibson, president of the Illinois Coal Operators Association, figured total tonnage from the state's mines will fall 8 per cent short of the 65 million tons produced last year.

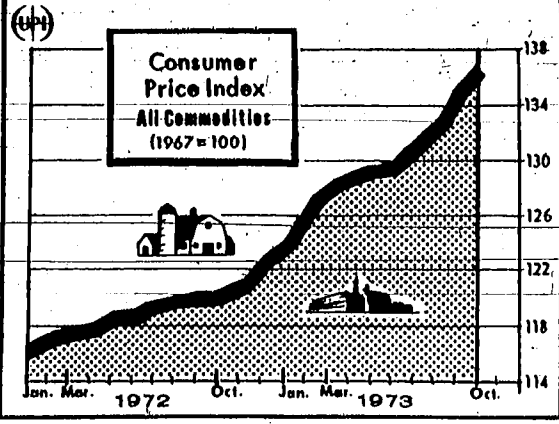

United Press International
 Americans old enough to remember looked back today to the events of 10 years ago that took from them their president, John F. Kennedy.
 "As we give thanks for the bounty and the goodness of our land, let us also pause to reflect on President Kennedy's contributions to the life of this nation we love so dearly," President Nixon said in his Thanksgiving Day proclamation.
 In Dallas on the eve of the assassination, about 200 persons carrying candles marched solemnly from the Texas Schoolbook Depository to Kennedy Memorial Plaza. Three hundred others had gathered at the memorial on a bright day, much like the Friday afternoon on which Kennedy was slain.

 "Today the world remembers, and Dallas remembers," Charles G. Cullum, a Dallas civic leader, said.
 "We can honor his memory with deeds of human service and human compassion. We gather in humility and reverence. We remember the pain at the loss of so gifted a leader—the greatness of the Kennedy vision to call America to a new and higher purpose."
 "Ten years have not blunted his accomplishments. They have not erased the shock," Dallas Mayor Wes Wise, a news reporter 10 years ago, said as he laid a wreath of white chrysanthemums and red carnations on the black marble memorial.

 Sen. Jennings Randolph, D-Va., remembered sadly the junior senator who was presiding over the Senate on Nov. 22, 1963, Edward M. Kennedy, being told that his brother had been shot.
 "I remember what happened," Randolph said in a Senate speech.
 "I shall never forget that through the door on the left, the doorkeeper—a large man, he moved very quickly—stepped up to that desk, where Sen. Ted Kennedy was sitting and whispered the tragic news."
 Sen. Kennedy's face turned gray. He covered his face with his hands. Then he rushed out of the chamber.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., remembered attending a luncheon in the Chilean embassy when he heard the news in a telephone call from the White House. He felt "shock and trauma," he told the Senate.
 "I think he (Kennedy) will be remembered by Americans and by those abroad for courage and the vision of a better and kinder world," Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said.
 A memorial mass was scheduled today at Holy Trinity Church in Washington, where the late President occasionally worshipped. Sen. Kennedy was expected to visit the graves of his two slain brothers, John and Robert, at Arlington National cemetery.

New Ford probe slated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., said today he will press for a broad investigation of Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford's admission that the Justice Department aided his abortive 1970 effort to impeach Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.
 Waldie told UPI that when the House Judiciary Committee resumes its hearings Monday on Ford's nomination, he will ask that key figures named by Ford as helping the impeachment investigation be called to testify.

Ford told the panel Wednesday he sought help early in 1970 from former Attorney General John Mitchell who sent Will Wilson, his deputy in charge of the criminal division, to talk with Ford.
 Ford said Wilson gave him a list of what he called "certain areas I should pursue." He added his legislative aide, Robert Hartmann, did most of the work in seeking evidence against Douglas. A House Judiciary subcommittee voted not to pursue impeachment proceedings against Douglas.

Thieu shakes up military

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu replaced two of his 13 division commanders and six of his 44 province chiefs today in a major military shakeup.
 Informed Vietnamese sources said the aim was to cut out corruption and dead wood and stiffen local commands in preparation for an expected Communist offensive late this year or early next year.
 Including a smaller shakeup in late October, one multiprovince regional commander, four division commanders and six province chiefs have been removed in less than a month. The sources said further shakeups may be in the works as well.

 The high command announced the replacement of the commanders of the 9th Division in the Mekong Delta and the 23rd Division in the Central Highlands.

Fund probe pushed

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The secretary of state's office reports that it is nearing a conclusion to an investigation into the use of as much as $2 million in once-secret political campaign funds by President Nixon's former personal attorney.
 Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., a Democratic contender for governor, is conducting the probe involving the use of 1968 presidential campaign money by Herbert Kalmbach of Newport Beach, Calif., Nixon's attorney until several months ago.
 Tom Quinn, deputy secretary of state, said Wednesday in an interview that Kalmbach was "bending over backwards to be cooperative with us."
 Brown's investigation centered on the use of between $1 million and $2 million funds left over from the 1968 campaign.
 Quinn earlier said Kalmbach had paid $200,000 to $300,000 of the total to help a Democratic opponent of George Wallace in Alabama's Democratic gubernatorial primary election in 1970.

SBA links located

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A House subcommittee has evidence that may link the White House to alleged corrupt loan activity in the Small Business Administration.
 United Press International learned that the information, obtained by House investigators, is to be presented at hearings of the House small business subcommittee, which begin Tuesday.
 The sources said investigators have found "documented evidence" of "direct links" between SBA loan irregularities and the White House.

 They said hints of White House involvement first surfaced when the House Banking and Currency Committee started looking into charges of widespread corruption in SBA about one month ago. More information was obtained "very recently," the sources said.
 Next week's subcommittee hearings follow several days of testimony behind closed doors.

US airlines hike okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday approved a 5-per-cent fare increase for U.S. domestic airlines, effective Dec. 1.

The fuel shortage has forced the airlines to cut more than 500 flights nationwide, creating the prospect of increased profits because of heavier passenger loads on the fewer remaining flights.

The board conceded the flight cutbacks would create "at least a short-run impetus toward improved profitability," but said the fare increase would not result in "excessive profits" for the airlines.

The fare boost, which the airlines requested several months ago before the jet fuel shortages, was expected to increase their revenues by about $370 million a year, officials said.

The industry has appealed for the higher fares to compensate for what it said was a slowdown in passenger traffic growth and a rise in operating costs.

Among the 11 major domestic airlines, passenger traffic in the first six months of 1973 was up 6 per cent, about half of advance estimates and down from a 12 per cent increase in 1972.

The CAB said the airlines apparently will have to make further cutbacks in service because of fuel shortages, although the situation was too uncertain to undertake an investigation of the true impact on profits.

"There is little or no likelihood" of the airlines "earning excessive profits" during the next year as a result of the fuel emergency, and in any event, we intend to monitor closely the airlines, financial results to insure the continued provisions of vital services at fair prices," the CAB said.

Moscow shows 'sullen' US display

By CHRISTOPHER WREN (c) New York Times Service
MOSCOW — A subdued, almost sullen composite portrait of American life has gone on display at the House of Friendship, an international culture center here.

The exhibition, which is titled "In America," features sketches by five Soviet artists who have visited the United States on cultural exchanges.

It opened last week to commemorate the 40th anniversary of the establishment of Soviet-American diplomatic relations.

If one were to judge by the works on display, the artist Orest Vereysky, Vitaly Gorayev, Tair, Salakhov, Georgi Tutlze and Alexei Shmarinov brought home visions of a hollow, even alienated society.

However, the 72 sketches in charcoal, crayon, ink and watercolor were apparently culled from the artists' more extensive American portfolios. One relative said that the pictures had been selected by the House of Friendship and not by the artists themselves.

The sketches showed the Soviet preoccupation with some of the material aspects of American life — super-highways, skyscrapers, automobiles and billboards. The settings were nearly all urban, mostly New York, but also Chicago, Washington, Boston and San Francisco.

The pictures, avoided the usual disparities of life so often exploited here to caricature the United States' Harlem Street scenes — emphasized neither poverty nor racial inequality.

But the bleak moods of the sketches contrasted with the lavish heroic themes through which the Soviet Union prefers to view itself. If such a subtlety evaded some Americans who were invited to the exhibition, it was not lost on Soviet viewers.

The texture of American life was best captured by Vereysky, perhaps the most prominent of the artists. In one amusing line drawing, six customers straddled stools at a lunch counter. In another, baseball fans sprawled out to watch a game in Kansas City.

A caustic watercolor by Alexei Shmarinov showed two Catholic nuns strolling below a billboard that advertised vodka at $2.27 a bottle.

But Gorayev peeped his sketches with bleaker subjects — lonely patrons in a bar, idle policemen and pedestrians waiting numbly for a street light. The city scenes by Salakhov were virtually devoid of people. His skyline of New York set skyscrapers and billowing smokestacks against a baleful red sky.

The show's total effect suggested that America might be a curious land to visit but no place to live. One Russian remarked as he walked through, "There isn't one cheery face. I can't believe that life is so drab over there."

Holy payoffs?

BOSTON (UPI) — The District Attorney's office and police Wednesday announced a combined investigation into alleged payoffs to police by Roman Catholic clergymen to ignore illegal gambling activities.

A spokesman for the police department said the allegations "first came to light in a letter to Post Office Box 911, the special police mailbox for persons wishing to report corruption."

The district attorney's office received the same allegations, the spokesman said, "and has been working on the investigation in cooperation with the (police) special investigation unit."

The allegations involve payoffs to police by members of the Roman Catholic clergy, reportedly so officers would ignore illegal gambling activities at certain churches.

Police Supt. John Kreckler, commander of the special services section, said he has contacted Roman Catholic church officials and has been assured of full cooperation.

Solon vows fight on park space tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Stanford Parris, R-Va., said Wednesday the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) will have to take him to court to collect a proposed commuter tax on parking spaces in the Washington area.

Parris said the EPA proposal, designed to cut down on pollution while reducing gasoline consumption and commuter automobile traffic, is "taxation without representation."

On Tuesday, the EPA announced that it will impose a 50-cent per day surcharge for parking on thousands of Washington area commuters starting on June 30, 1975. The surcharge would increase in 50-cent increments until it reaches $2 a day on Jan. 1, 1977.

EPA officials said its plan, devised under authority of the Clean Air Act of 1970, also would require all Federal agencies in the region and all private employers in areas served by mass transit to charge the going market rates for parking.

"If this tax proposal applies to Capitol Hill parking areas, and I hope it does, then EPA is going to have to sue me in a court of law to collect this tax," Parris said.

"This is absurd, assinine and unjust," said Parris, "and furthermore, it is unreasonable, unenforceable and, in my opinion, exceeds the statutory authority of EPA."

Alabama finds new gas field

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — The Mallard Oil Co. said today it has discovered a major new gas field in Escambia County and will build a $9-million processing plant.

Philip Lamoreaux, supervisor of the state Oil and Gas Board, said Mallard discovered the big Escambia Creek field will produce 800 million cubic feet of natural gas, about double the amount anticipated.

"If we had a dozen or so fields like this in Alabama, and there's every reason to believe there are, it would alleviate the present (energy) shortage," Lamoreaux said.

Negotiations are being made with Alabama consumers for the new gas resources, Lamoreaux said, and most of the gas should stay inside the state.

Nine million cubic feet of gas and 765 barrels of condensate oil produced from condensing natural gas will be produced by the field each day.

DRIVE TO BUY! WHERE PRICES ARE ALWAYS LOWER!

Testimony given on auto prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — General Motors Wednesday completed testimony by the big four automakers for wholesale price increases on 1974 model cars, but auto dealer and consumer witnesses said they hiked would inhibit efforts to conserve gasoline and control inflation.

GM Comptroller Archie M. Long told the Cost of Living Council that GM had absorbed $208 in cost increases in the past year and that its smallsize cars were underpriced.

"To continue the undervaluation of domestic model cars must be questioned seriously both on grounds of equity and of economic efficiency," Long said.

Council Director John T. Dunlop did not attend the hearing, but told his regular weekly briefing that a decision on the automakers' request would be made "promptly."

Long said despite record sales and a 20 per cent increase in earnings for the 1973 model year, profit margins fell 20 per cent. He said sales of 1974 model cars have slipped 6 per cent.

But Ann Brown, consumer chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, said GM and the other three automakers were unjustified in arguing for $2.3 billion in inflationary price increases on grounds of reduced sales.

"If demand declines, the auto industry's response is to raise prices, while the response in competitive industries is generally to lower prices," she said.

The National Automobile Dealers Association said its 30,000 members believe price increases would drive sales down further.

In addition, NADA President John S. Hincley said, "the automakers would probably make the biggest price mark-ups on small cars, which would inhibit growing public preference for small cars and the national interest in conserving gasoline."

Astro walk threatened

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab astronauts have mildew in their longjohns and it threatens to postpone today's plans for a record-setting walk in space.

Flight officials were sending the men an alternate flight plan calling for catching up on space station chores in case the water-cooled underwear isn't dried out. The astronauts tried wiping the mold off the underwear and hanging them up to dry overnight hoping they'll be ready for man's longest spacewalk.

Rookie astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue were confident, however, the drying process was working and they would be able to make the walk, to load cameras with fresh film and repair a faulty earth-sensing antenna.

"Little bit of Old Spice here and there and under the armpits and they'll be okay," Mission Commander Carr predicted Wednesday night.

Gibson and Pogue open a spaceship hatch at 11 a.m. EST to start the planned 6 1/2-hour walk while Carr stays inside to monitor their progress.

Flight director Neil Hutchinson said the holiday stroll would be a long one and a hard one, that could last eight hours, and he wouldn't be surprised if the men were late getting started.

The men have a lengthy shopping list of chores to perform, with the tricky antenna fixt job last. Hutchinson said the progress of the work would be assessed throughout the spacewalk and the crewmen called in, and sent out again Friday if they become fatigued.

"There's no question it's probably the hardest (spacewalk) to do done except for the one where he worked on the solar panel back on Skylab-1," Hutchinson said.

SPACEWALK engineering specialist, Bob Kain, points to the Skylab Space Station antenna which Skylab crewmen will attempt to repair during a Thanksgiving Day spacewalk. The crew will use tools similar to the ones on the table including the special screw driver Kain is using as a pointer. The motor which turns the antenna is thought to have shorted out. (UPI)

Henry warns Arabs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has warned Arab states to end their oil embargo and said Israel will have to withdraw from some of the Arab lands it occupies.

In a news conference Wednesday, only five days after his return from a round-the-world tour that included talks with Arab rulers on a Middle East cease-fire, Kissinger suggested it was unreasonable to continue the embargo now that Israel and Egypt have stopped fighting.

While US military support for Israel was the Arab's justification for cutting off the flow of oil to the United States, Kissinger said Washington was simply helping bring a "just peace" to the Middle East, without favoring either side.

"However, it is clear that if pressures continue unreasonably and indefinitely, then the United States would have to consider what countermeasures it would have to take," Kissinger said.

Despite the complex problems involved in working out a stable cease-fire, he said, "we can look forward with some confidence to peace negotiations during the month of December."

In the negotiations, Kissinger said, there will have to be "an element of withdrawal" by Israel from occupied Arab land as well as security arrangements acceptable to both sides and possibly "outside guarantees" of a peace settlement.

Kissinger said it was probably both Washington and Moscow would take part in the negotiations, and that a formal announcement might come within a week.

On other matters, Kissinger discounted speculation his three days in Peking was aimed at hastening full normalization of relations with China, saying "it remains to be explored as to the form future relations should take."

Said there was "no confirmed evidence" the Soviet Union had introduced nuclear weapons into Egypt.

The population of Arizona increased from 1,002,000 in 1960 to 2,035,000 in 1973, a rise of 21 per cent, the Valley National Bank of Arizona reports.

Swiss ban

(c) N. Y. Times Service

GENEVA — The Swiss government announced today a general ban on the use of motor vehicles, planes and boats other than by public transport services for the next three Sundays as a fuel conservation measure.

The government is also introducing on Monday a rationing system aimed at reducing the consumption of gasoline and other motor fuels by 20 per cent and heating oils by 25 per cent.

This is to be achieved by limiting deliveries of motor fuels to service stations until the end of the year to 80 per cent of what they were during the same period a year ago, while deliveries of heating oils to consumers are to be reduced up to 75 per cent of last winter's.

Japan urges withdraw

TOKYO — The government of Japan formally urged Israel today to withdraw from Arab territories occupied during the 1967 war and warned obliquely that if Israel did not comply, Japan might break diplomatic relations.

In a statement by the cabinet this morning, the Japanese said that "the government of Japan will continue to observe the situation in the Middle East with grave concern and, depending on future developments, may have to reconsider its policy toward Israel."

The statement, jointly approved by the cabinet that is collectively responsible for such policies, marked Japan's most positive effort to take a pro-Arab stance on the Middle East question.

The major reason behind it was mounting Arab pressure on Japan, largely by cuts and threats of further cuts in Japan's oil supply. Japan is the world's second largest consumer of oil, after the United States, and gets about 15 per cent of it from Arab states.

The statement, couched in terms of Japanese support for United Nations resolution 242, contained little that was new in substance. But the tone and the emphasis on clauses favoring the Arab cause was a move in a new direction.

Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira called on 10 Arab ambassadors immediately after the cabinet meeting to inform them officially of the new policy. Whether it will satisfy Arab demands, however, was an open question.

ICC drops rules

(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — The Interstate Commerce Commission agreed today to eliminate some of its complex regulations that are resulting in millions of gallons of diesel fuel being wasted every year.

The commission proposed regulations that would partly eliminate so-called "gateway" restrictions on trucking firms. In return for the partial elimination, some truckers would have to give up some of their route authority.

As a result of these restrictions — which are designed to avoid excessive competition — and other similar ones, the trucking industry may be wasting about 230 million gallons of diesel fuel each year or 10 per cent of its total consumption. Gateway rules alone are estimated to be wasting 23 per cent of total diesel fuel consumption.

PURCHASE SET

WASHINGTON (CNS) — The Agriculture Department today announced issuance of a set of 14,480 purchase authorizations to Portugal for $7,960,565 worth of yellow corn and yellow sorghum.

Authorization 35-505 provides for $5,314,500 worth, or about 50,000 metric tons, of yellow corn, grade U.S. no. 1 or better, in bulk, moisture content not to exceed 15.5 per cent.

Authorization 35-506 provides for $2,646,065, or about 24,750 metric tons, of yellow sorghum, grade U.S. No. 2 or better, in bulk.

Contracting period for both is Nov. 13-30, delivery period.

Display set

BOISE (UPI) — Manuscripts from the American Revolution will be on display at the Idaho State Historical Museum beginning Dec. 2 through the assistance of the Idaho Bicentennial Commission.

The exhibit will be in Boise until Dec. 30. The Idaho State Museum is the first Western museum to show the collection being circulated nationally by the Smithsonian Institution.

The major events of the 29 years from the Stamp Act of 1765 to the election of George Washington as first president of the United States are highlighted by letters written by John Hancock, Washington, Nathaniel Greene, Thomas Jefferson, Lafayette and others.

Class reconstructs JFK assassination

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The assassination of President John F. Kennedy is reconstructed yearly in Point Park College journalism classes through the original minute-by-minute United Press International account.

Point Park Instructor George Thomas, who was executive news editor of a Pittsburgh television station during that eventful day in Dallas, saved the now faded dispatches that rolled off a UPI teletype machine Nov. 22, 1963.

He said he shows it each year to the students in his classes so they can experience the unvolving of the tragedy and note how reporters met the challenge of reporting "one of the greatest stories of the century."

"When the roll reaches the words, 'Flash President dead,' students reflect an emotional letdown, though they hardly remember him," Thomas said.

Murder charge dropped

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — Nezperce County sheriff's deputies said today they may drop a murder charge against Seldon Hatton, 46, Lewiston, because the man he shot drew first.

Hatton, a bartender at Jim's Playroom at Myrtle Beach 15 miles east of here, was charged with murder in the shooting death Monday night of Harvey Cantrell, 39, Orofino, at the tavern along U.S. Highway 12.

US flooded with heroin

By ORR KELLY
(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — The United States is being flooded with "brown" heroin from Mexico — at least partially as a result of a successful crackdown on sources of "white" heroin from France and Turkey, the head of the drug enforcement administration said today.

John R. Bartels Jr., administrator of the newly formed agency, said in an interview that the Mexican heroin — previously unknown on the east coast — has recently been detected throughout the eastern states.

The two types of heroin are distinguished by a difference in the way they are produced, Bartels said.

White heroin comes from Turkey and is processed in small laboratories near Marseille, France. In Mexico, one step in the process is skipped, leaving the heroin with a brownish color. Thus, the drug's origin becomes simpler to determine.

Within the past year, a combination of law enforcement, diplomacy and treatment has caused a significant reduction in heroin abuse in big east coast cities, Bartels said.

The U. S. persuaded Turkey to restrict the production of opium poppies that supply the raw material for heroin and, at the same time, worked with the French to shut down the Marseilles labs.

An intensive treatment effort helped reduce the demand for heroin while narcotics agents sought to break up the traffic within this country.

That victory, however, may be short-lived, Bartels said, because of the influx from Mexico.

Bartels said there is no way of knowing how much heroin is moving through the underworld at any one time. But the kinds either seized or purchased by agents indicate where it is coming from.

As recently as a year ago, none of the heroin picked up by D.E.A. along the east coast had the brownish tint of Mexican heroin. Of all the heroin obtained by the agents throughout the country, 71.7 per cent was white and only 28.3 per cent brown.

By the middle of this year, brown heroin was being found nationwide. Of all the heroin picked up, 54.9 per cent was brown and only 45.1 was white.

The shift from white to brown heroin has been even more dramatic over a slightly longer time period: In fiscal 1972, 92 per cent of the heroin picked up was white and only 8 per cent brown. In fiscal 1973, the average was 62.9 per cent white and 37.1 per cent brown. By the end of fiscal 1973, more brown than white was being picked up.

Bartels said U. S. officials are working with Mexican officials in an effort to control the flow of brown heroin, but the long border between the two countries complicates the task.

Pair starts tour with truck of snakes

ALBEMARLE, N.C. (UPI) — Randy Gallagher and his wife soon will embark on what they hope will be a lengthy tour of the United States, financed by taking along a van full of pets.

Gallagher, a machinist in a textile mill, and his wife, Shirley, a local music store clerk, have quit their jobs and put their money into a heavy-duty pickup truck and 30-foot trailer to be filled with a wide assortment of poisonous snakes.

"I'm wanting to see some of this world," said the 24-year-old Gallagher in the den of his spacious house in this western North Carolina town. "I haven't seen too much yet."

The lanky, mild-mannered Gallagher has been "handling" snakes since he was seven years old and seems undaunted as he pokes around in a glass-fronted box containing an assortment of cottonmouths, copperheads and rattlesnakes.

"I've got a respect for them," he said. "I'm not scared. Snakes are real nice pets if that's what you like."

"Most of the snake shows have large snakes, pythons and all," he said. "I don't know of another traveling exhibit with primarily poisonous snakes."

But he does plan to take along an eight-foot yellow anaconda, a member of the boa family, and a few other non-poisonous snakes contributed by local residents who give him a call when they find unwanted reptiles in their yards.

"It's nothing but some spilled blood if he bites," said Gallagher as the anaconda curled its way around his neck. "It has very sharp teeth and it takes about a month to fully recover after he bites you."

The Gallaghers have been planning their road show for several months and hope to lure enough people through the trailer at 50-cents a head to finance the project which has already required an investment of approximately $17,000.

"I've been buying every poisonous snake I can get my hands on," said Gallagher who is currently in the market for a king cobra to round out his act.

"I've been trying to talk Randy out of the cobra," said Gallagher's petite wife. "There's not even anybody who can teach him how to handle it king cobra, but he feels like this would be a real attraction."

Ski injury rate six in 1,000

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Six of every 1,000 persons who take to the nation's ski slopes will be injured—two of them seriously—this winter, according to the Insurance Federation of Pennsylvania.

The figures were contained in a report released Tuesday by the federation on a 10-year study by Dr. Arthur Ellison, an orthopedic surgeon and ski expert.

According to Ellison, beginners, both male and female, will suffer the most injuries, with an accident rate of 25 per 1,000 skiers also uncommon. The report also noted that more women than men are likely to get hurt on the slopes.

Ellison said some 105,000 Americans break bones, dislocate joints, sprain ligaments or cut themselves skiing each year.

The federation suggests these tips for safer skiing:

- Choosing a trail or slope that "best fits your ability."
- Riding ski lifts safely by not bouncing or swinging and holding ski poles safely by the shaft and keeping ski tips up when approaching the landing platform.
- Loosening up before starting on a run to stretch muscles that have been in one position on the lift ride.
- Giving moving skiers the right of way and preparing to react to unpredictable movements of other skiers.
- Resisting the temptation to "take just one more run" when feeling tired.

Nomination deadlock ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has ended a months-old parliamentary deadlock which has stalled 40 other nominations and nearly 4,000 military promotions by agreeing to vote Dec. 10 on Helmut Sonnenfeldt's nomination as treasury undersecretary.

Sen. Jess Helms, R-N.C., had blocked the nomination, waiting until the House Internal Security Committee investigates charges Sonnenfeldt was a security risk because as an aide to Henry A. Kissinger he allegedly leaked data to Israel.

Sonnenfeldt has denied the charges.

The committee plans to hold hearings during the first week in December on the charges and the Senate agreed Tuesday to vote on Sonnenfeldt's nomination after those hearings.

The failure to vote on Sonnenfeldt stalled the nominations of others who were scheduled behind him on the Senate calendar. Also stalled were the promotions of military officers.

The agreement to vote on Sonnenfeldt opened the way for confirmation of the others.

British police to ride buses

By United Press International
British police did their bit today to ease the oil shortage by advising officers to catch a bus to the scene of crimes rather than drive their cars, if possible.

A London newspaper columnist advised bomb makers to start using dynamite instead of Molotov cocktails which use gasoline.

In West Germany, a motorist held up at a filling station attendant at gunpoint for a tank of gas, then paid for the fuel before fleeing. A British motorist told an attendant to "fill her up." His tank would take only eight pence worth of gas.

Europe's fuel problems have had their funnier side and have created a field day for newspaper cartoonists.

The Paris afternoon newspaper France Soir today depicted an Arab holding a gas pump hose curled in the form of a hoop and Europe jumping through it. The London Daily Mail showed Britons lining up at a pub and asking the bartender "Fill us up — we're not driving."

Another newspaper showed an Arab in a Cadillac whipping past a Briton chugging along in a small car at 50 miles per hour, the speed recommended for motorists by the British government.

The British government also ordered all government departments and nationalized industries to reduce fuel consumption by 10 per cent, but the navy said one ship would be exempt — the royal yacht Britannia being used by Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips on their Caribbean honeymoon.

Tanks suffered in France. The army's armored forces were banned from taking part in the Armistice Day parade to conserve fuel.

In Belgium, streetcar drivers found that it is not only motorists that hold them up. A streetcar broke down on carless Sunday in Brussels and backed up 25 other streetcars before it could be moved.

A similar jam lasted for several hours when two streetcars collided in Antwerp.

Economists give views on crisis

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Eight prominent economists, four of them Nobel Prize winners, said Tuesday the word "crisis is much too strong" to refer to America's energy situation.

Dr. Kenneth Arrow, who won the Nobel Prize in 1972, called a news conference at Harvard University to read the unprecedented joint statement.

He described the situation in a "difficulty rather than a crisis" to which Americans can adjust their standards of living.

He quoted statistics to the effect that the nation could survive a 25 per cent cutback.

The group, which in addition to the four Nobel laureates included John Kenneth Galbraith, an economic adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, also contended "there was and is no connection between Middle East peace and the oil monopoly of Arab and non-Arab nations."

"If some perfect Middle East political settlement were reached tomorrow, the oil-producing countries would not give up a cent of their gains."

Arrow suggested that one possible short-term solution to America's oil shortage would be increasing excise taxes, rather than rationing gasoline.

However, Robert M. Solow, professor of economics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said he favored rationing because excise tax hikes would lead to extensive problems.

Wages hiked

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television network stagehands on the West Coast will be making $6.35 an hour by 1977.

The stagehands union Tuesday ended a three-week strike against ABC, CBS and NBC West Coast studios by voting to accept a contract offer of a 42 per cent pay increase, spread over four years. The stagehands now make $4.47 an hour.

Robert Julkendall, chairman of the negotiating committee of Local 33, International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, said the union abandoned its attempts to get more fringe benefits, and repealed many union work rules, in a bargain with the networks to get higher salaries.

"The members had a choice, and they felt they needed the money more than anything, to keep up with the high cost of living," Julkendall said. The union represents 600 carpenters, prop men and others who do behind-the-scenes labor on live and videotaped network shows.

A group within the union, led by executive board member Jim Fox, charged the settlement was illegal and said its members would not return to their jobs.

Search for Nessie called off

LOCH NESS, Scotland (UPI) — Yoshio Kou took a farewell stroll along the misty banks of Loch Ness and gazed wistfully over the lake's green waters. Kou, head of an 11-member Japanese expedition looking for the fabled Loch Ness monster, called off the search Tuesday with just "queer sounds" and "strange bones" to show for his efforts.

The Japanese team gathered up its array of expensive electronic equipment and left for a brief visit to London before returning home. The leader, however, said the Japanese would come back next spring to try again.

"We regret very, very much that we were unable to obtain any recorded evidence that the monster exists," Kou said before leaving.

He said two of the team's divers reported hearing "queer sounds" while probing the lake's murky depths one day. On another occasion, he said, they sighted two "strange bones."

"They said the bones were about the size of a chair and appeared to be resting on some object 'below' them but the bones were too deep for the divers to reach," Kou said.

He said the expedition spent about half its $300,000 budget since arriving in the Scottish Highlands Sept. 7 to begin the search for "Nessie," the supposed hump-back monster many local residents think dwells in the lake.

He said the rest of the money would be used to construct a diving bell which several members of the team will bring to Loch Ness next spring to probe the lake at greater depths.

The team abandoned plans to bring in a midget submarine from Japan when it was realized the craft could not dive to the lower reaches of the lake, believed by some scientists to be 1,000 feet deep in some places.

Oil lack hits US military

By United Press International
The worldwide shortage of oil caused by Arab oil cutbacks hit the U.S. military today and officials in Bangkok said the approximately 400 American warplanes based in Thailand as an Indochina deterrent have had their wings clipped.

The officials said there have been cutbacks in the training missions that have been flown each day by B52 strategic bombers and various types of jet fighter-bombers in Thailand since bombing halted last Aug. 15, although they maintained operational readiness would not be affected if the planes were ever again called back to combat.

UPI Correspondent Robert Kaylor reported from Bangkok that oil industry sources there said the Arab boycott has virtually dried up the normal supply of jet fuel and other oil products to American bases, forcing the U.S. government to turn to alternate sources.

The bombers, fighters, reconnaissance—and support aircraft located at six air bases in Thailand represent the largest concentration of U.S. air power outside the United States.

According to oil industry sources, more than 90 percent of the jet fuel and other petroleum-oil-lubricant (POL) products used at the bases come from Arab refineries in Bahrain and Saudi Arabia, which have shut the faucet on supplies. Most of the remainder came from refineries in Singapore, the sources said. Singapore last week announced it was halting deliveries to the U.S. military in Southeast Asia.

There were these other major oil developments:

—Eric Blumenfeld, a member of the West German Parliament, told newsmen in Copenhagen today that the United States and European nations will hold high-level talks next month to coordinate oil policies. His statement followed oil talks on Tuesday by the Common Market foreign

Iraq snubs Arab confab

(c) New York Times Service BEIRUT, Lebanon — No Iraqi representatives will attend the Arab summit conference that is to be held in Algiers next week, the Iraqi government news agency announced Wednesday.

Coming after a declaration by a Libyan leader, Col. Muammar El-Qaddafi, that his regime would not be represented at Algiers, the Iraqi announcement had the effect of further undercutting the meeting's significance. The summit is meant to cement Arab unity in the wake of the October Arab-Israeli war.

The Iraqi news agency report, which was relayed to the Lebanese capital, said a high foreign ministry official had given this explanation of Baghdad's stand: "Iraq does not consider that the covering of the Arab summit conference will achieve the Arab masses' aims of liberation and continuation of the struggle against Israel."

An Iraqi contingent fought on the Israeli-Syrian front last month and suffered heavy losses. But the radical Iraqi regime, which is generally regarded as a maverick among major Arab governments, has refused to accept the cease-fire that was originally urged by the United Nations Security Council on Oct. 22.

The Iraqi news agency report indicated that Baghdad was nettled by the fact that the cease-fire had been accepted by the other main Arab belligerents in October: Egypt, Syria and Jordan.

The report quoted the foreign ministry official as saying: "Some Arab states during and after the war have shown unilateral attitudes in the adoption of resolutions directly affecting the interests of the Arab world and its future without heeding the views of the other Arab states and their masses, who devoted all their potential to the battle."

Earlier, the Iraqi foreign minister, Murtada Abdel Baki, noted that the Arabs were divided between supporters and opponents of the Arab-Israeli cease-fire.

Because of that split, he said in a magazine interview published here Wednesday, for Iraq to attend the conference would only add fuel to the intra-Arab rancor.

"We will not attend unless there is a new development in the interest of the Arab cause which could make us reconsider," he said, adding that "our opinion is that the summit cannot be held unless there is a clear agenda, and unless the results expected are clearly defined."

Arab foreign ministers are to gather in Algiers Saturday to lay the groundwork for the summit meeting, which is scheduled to start next Monday and last through Nov. 20.

IBM files appeal

DENVER (UPI) — International Business Machines Corp. (IBM) Tuesday filed a counter appeal against the Telex Corp. in the gigantic antitrust and theft of trade secrets case which has now reached the U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals.

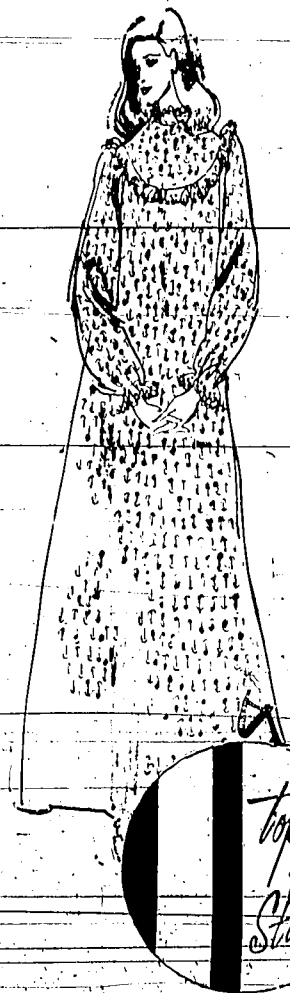

IBM, ordered by U.S. District Court Judge Sherman A. Fine to pay $250.5 million for antitrust violations, asked for a stay on the injunction which prevents the computer company from violating the Sherman Antitrust law.

IBM's appeal contended the injunction is too vague and should be stayed pending appeal. Another petition asked the Appeals Court to combine IBM's appeal with the one filed by Telex on Oct. 17. Telex has appealed the $21.9 million judgement awarded IBM for stealing trade secrets.

Santa Claus school

THERE WAS a sound of Christmas music in the air and St. Nick appeared to be everywhere — it was the Sears Santa Claus School in Dallas. To teach Santa how he's supposed to perform they had the youth directors from the nation's largest Baptist Church, a third grade teacher and a psychologist. (UPI).

Widow accepts settlement

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — A widow with six children has accepted a $425,000 settlement for the death of her actor husband who was killed by a "blank" cartridge while rehearsing for the play "Oliver."

Wayne Carpenter was rehearsing for a drama class at the Bakersfield College Desert Campus in Ridgecrest when he was fatally wounded on stage March 17, 1971.

Mrs. Carpenter sued the District and Wint Dillon, who fired the fatal shot while playing the part of a policeman in the play.

The script called for Dillon to fire two shots at Carpenter. Mrs. Carpenter contended Dillon had made the blank cartridges in his home but failed to clean a small broken-off piece of bullet from the casing of a .38 caliber shell.

Mrs. Carpenter sued the Kern Community College

Replaced

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Big Bertha of the Baltimore zoo's reptile house had a vicious hiss for the energy crisis Tuesday when she was displaced by an otter.

The 170-pound Burmese rock python, all 12 feet of her, was moved from a reptile center cage to a cell in the wall of the reptile house to save energy.

Frank Grove, reptile curator, said the lobby and center cage used half of the heat of the reptile house. It was being turned off.

With fangs bared and tongue flicking, Big Bertha manged a vicious hiss as five men moved her to the less glamorous winter quarters.

Big Bertha's eviction meant the center stage would be taken over by an otter, which thrives on winter temperatures.

TF road election planned

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Highway District will hold an election of board members on Dec. 3.

Two four-year board posts, representing subdistricts 1 and 2, will be filled in the election. Kenneth Poe is currently the subdistrict 1 commissioner and Lloyd Shewmaker represents subdistrict 2.

Both incumbents have filed for re-election, according to a highway district spokesman.

Candidacy papers for the election must be filed with the highway district by 5 p.m. Friday, the spokesman said. Petitions may be picked up at the highway district office, 1234 Highland Ave. E.

Candidates must be at least 18 years old and reside in the subdistrict they represent.

The election will be held in all nine highway district precincts. Polls will be open from 1 to 7 p.m.

Dog owner may be prosecuted

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI) — A spokesman for the Hudson County Prosecutor's Office said Tuesday it may press criminal charges against Rufus Howard, 42, Jersey City, whose two dogs allegedly mauled and killed 6-year-old Herbert "Junior" Russell of Newark on Monday.

An autopsy performed by the Hudson County Medical Examiner's office revealed the child died from a severed jugular vein. The report also said the boy's buttocks, neck and right ear were "eaten away."

The child's body was found late Monday by police in a vacant lot where he sometimes played with one of the dogs standing over the body.

Police killed both animals and subsequently found the body of another dog and the bones of other animals apparently killed by the German shepherds near the lot.

Howard told police he kept the dogs in a fenced-in area, but police said the fence had a hole. Howard also said the dogs should not have been hungry since they were fed two cans of dog food on Monday. Police said the dogs were not licensed.

The boy was reported missing by his grandmother, Ruby Johnson, about a half-hour before the body was found.

An unidentified 5-year-old boy in the neighborhood told police the boy was attacked just before dark. Other neighbors said the dogs often barked and attacked people walking along the street.

Burglaries checked by TF police

TWIN FALLS — Burglaries of the YMCA-YWCA building and the Red Steer Drive-In were under investigation by city police Wednesday.

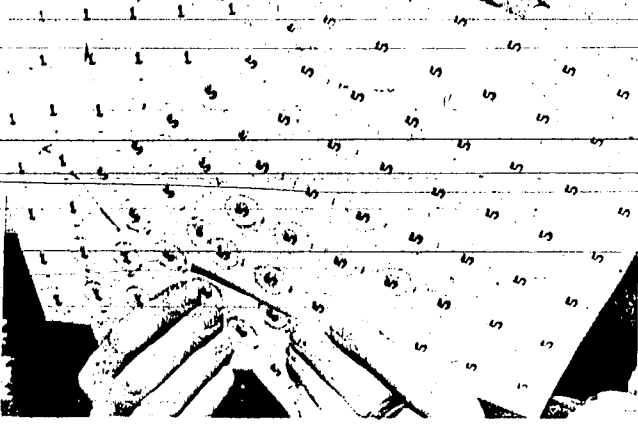

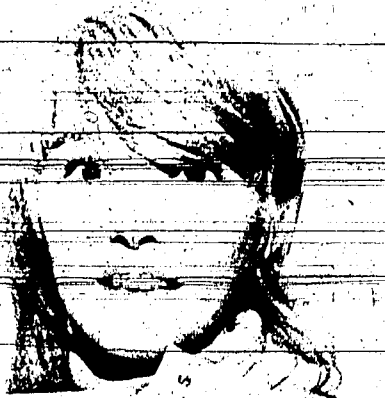

Officers said the YMCA building was entered sometime early Tuesday morning and about $15 in small change taken and about $150 damage caused to the building.

Reports indicated entry was gained by breaking open a door and the burglars then broke door glass and doors on offices throughout the building.

At the Red Steer Drive-In on Addison Avenue East, the building was broken into and the manager's office entered and ransacked but nothing was missing.

City police were also investigating two automobile burglaries Wednesday including the theft of three guns from a pickup truck owned by Melva Dixon, Twin Falls. The vehicle was entered, officers said, while it was parked in the Longview Fibre Co. parking lot Tuesday.

A pickup owned by Charles Pries, Twin Falls, was burglarized Tuesday, apparently in the high school parking lot. Taken were a stereo and a number of tapes valued at $175.

Classification sought for Salmon drainage

BOISE (UPI) — Two Idaho conservationists made a plea today for classification of 2.3 million acres of the Salmon River and Idaho Breaks Primitive areas to protect the rivers, wilderness, fisheries and wildlife.

Ted Trueblood, Nampa, told a news conference the most important thing in upcoming classification of the Idaho primitive lands is to preserve the water of the high-quality rivers.

He said Forest Service proposals for classifying the drainage of the Salmon would allow logging in certain areas and would result in depleting the wild sheep and goats and damage to the water quality.

Trueblood and Ernest Day, Boise, director of the National Wildlife Federation and the River of No Return Wilderness Council, want to see the Upper Salmon classified as wilderness, the Middle river designated scenic and the Lower Salmon listed for recreation. Such classification, Trueblood said, would prevent the building of dams. One dam would be the end of the steelhead in the river.

Day said a proposal by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus to classify 1.8 million acres leaves out some of the areas the council thinks should be included but it "would do a good job."

Day said the areas should be preserved because the land managed since the 1930s as primitive area, are "a scientific laboratory" of wildlife and big game and represent for people who visit there a "place for adventure."

He said a proposal offered last week by Boise Cascade Corp. was not a compromise at all but "the most monstrous ripoff that ever was."

He said the corporation plan calls for corridors up every canyon and recommended saving canyons of rivers that would have been saved under legislation protecting the rivers.

Urgent

BOSTON (UPI) — John A.S. McGlennon, regional Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) administrator, said today the fuel oil situation in New England has deteriorated substantially and latest estimates show a shortage of 40 to 50 per cent. McGlennon made the revised prediction after meeting with major fuel oil suppliers Tuesday. The new estimate doubles the original estimate of a 25 per cent shortage of fuel oil. He said the greatest crunch will be felt in supplies of industrial or residual oil but warned that home heating oil supplies were facing a similar shortage. "We simply have got to take more urgent action," a spokesman for McGlennon said. "Merely reducing highway speeds and lowering thermostats simply will not do enough." He said McGlennon had wired the President endorsing the proposal for a shutdown of gasoline stations on Sundays.

planned

TWIN FALLS — Members of Immanuel Junior Music Club observed "musicianship through improvisation" at a meeting Tuesday. Plans for Christmas enrolling and a Christmas variety program for the December meeting were made. Roger James reported on the performance given by the "Northwest Wind Quintet." Heidi Schurzman, Kristy Wolters and Debie Peen reported on a musical they attended. It was reported that the operetta "Tom Sawyer" was well attended. Those who participated were thanked. Lori and Terry Bingham played violin selections to accompaniment provided by their mother. The Immanuel Junior Music Club is an affiliate of the Federated Music Clubs.

Visits slated

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. William Moran, worthy matron of Magic Chapter No. 82, Order of Eastern Star, said today chapter members have received invitations to several official visitations. The Pocatello Chapter invited members to the worthy grand matron's visit Dec. 8, and the Idaho Falls chapter sent an invitation to attend her visitation Dec. 7. Chapter members were also invited to her visitation to the Hollister chapter Dec. 13. The Rupert chapter invited members to attend their friendship night Dec. 13, Mrs. Moran said. She reported that members of the Wendell, Filer, Buhl, Jerome, Hollister, Hagerman and Twin Falls chapters visited during the friendship night conducted by Chapter No. 82. She said Helen Beem, Filer, and Mary Frazier, Hagerman, were honored by chapter members for 50 year OES membership.

Officers named

BUHL — Members of Clear Lakes Toastmistress Club elected Fleeta Baron president at an organizational meeting Tuesday night. Other officers of the new organization include Frances Hesselholt, Castleford, vice president, and Leona Wheeler, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Baron conducted table topics, Louise Koontz, a guest from the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club, presented an education lesson and a parliamentary lesson. Mrs. LeRoy Arrington, Twin Falls, regional extension coordinator, led a discussion on the Toastmistress organization, what it is, and how it can help women improve themselves. Annette Jenkins, secretary of the Twin Falls club, was a guest. The next meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Dec. 6 at the R and R Cafe, Buhl. All adult women in the Buhl-Castleford area who are interested in Toastmistress are invited to attend.

Cutback eyed

BOISE (UPI) — State Purchasing Agent Dan Pilkington says Idaho state government will be lucky to receive 95 per cent of the gasoline it used during 1972.

Contracts for bulk gasoline from major oil companies begin in January and at that point the purchasing agent feels the state may not receive any.

Pilkington said the state used 2.5 million gallons of gasoline supplied by bulk contracts last year and another million gallons through credit card purchases.

"I would imagine that some state travel will have to be cut out," Pilkington said. "I'm glad I'm not the one who has to make such decisions."

Parole system queried

BOISE (UPI) — The wisdom of the state's parole system has been questioned by Canyon County Sheriff George Nourse.

Nourse told the Idaho Press Club Wednesday he cannot understand why a parolee who violates his parole by committing another crime must be convicted before being returned to prison.

"He said the taxpayers already have paid for conviction of the man once on the initial crime and should not have to wait until the man is convicted of a second crime before sending him back to prison for parole violation."

Nourse also said he felt more money should be spent at the local level rather than the federal or state level for law enforcement.

Synms raps commercials

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, says he was upset by commercials selling the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Symms, who has a bill pending before congress which would repeal OSHA, said, "I was stunned when I turned on my television set at home and found myself face to face with a commercial praising OSHA, and this at a time when there are bills pending to amend this act, in addition to my own bill."

He said there is no justification for the Labor department to use taxpayers money to sponsor TV spots promoting "this dictatorial mess."

Vote set

MERIDIAN, Idaho (UPI) — Voters will cast ballots next Tuesday on whether to issue $3.2 million worth of bonds to erect an additional high school building.

If approved, the money would be used to construct a senior high school housing grades 11 and 12 about a quarter mile from the present school.

Hearings scheduled

BOISE (UPI) — At the request of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, the U.S. Forest Service is scheduling evening sessions for some of its wilderness hearings next week.

Andrus asked regional foresters to extend the hearings into the evening hours so working people will have a chance to testify at what he called "the most significant public forum in a decade."

In question is the future of Idaho's primitive forests.

Monday's hearing will begin at 9 a.m. at the Roadway Inn in Boise and will continue until 5:30 p.m. An evening session now is planned from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m.

A similar schedule is planned for the Ponderosa/Lewis and Clark Motor Inn next Wednesday in Lewiston.

Ruling praised

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — A school superintendent who heads up the State Board of Education's ad hoc committee on school financing says he's "delighted" with a court ruling invalidating the present financing.

Fourth District Judge J. Ray Durtschi declared Idaho's present system of school financing unconstitutional on grounds it does not provide equal educational opportunity to all public school pupils.

Caldwell Superintendent Jerry Evans said he was "delighted, to say the least," with Durtschi's ruling.

"I'm especially pleased with the wording of the ruling because Judge Durtschi makes it entirely clear that the whole financing scheme for public schools is unconstitutional," Evans said.

Felton services set

MOSCOW (UPI) — Funeral services are scheduled Friday morning for Second District Judge Thomas H. Felton, one of the most popular public officials in the inland empire as far as journalists were concerned.

Felton, 67, died of cancer Tuesday at a local hospital.

The district judge was voted by journalists in 1967 as a recipient of the "Freedom of Information" award for being "the most cooperative public official in Eastern Washington or Northern Idaho for giving information to the press."

Felton was appointed to the second district bench in 1963 by then Gov. Robert E. Smylie.

He had begun legal practice here in 1937 and had served as city attorney from 1945-63. He was past president of the Latah County Bar Association. Felton also served as chairman of the Listed 'critical'

TWIN FALLS — John Dunnagan, 19, Murtaugh, was still in critical condition this morning at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he is being treated for a gunshot wound in the head.

He was hospitalized early Wednesday morning following a shooting at his Murtaugh home.

Sheriff's officers are holding a younger brother, Willard Earl Dunnagan, 18, in custody pending the outcome of the older youth's condition.

Jerome man injured

TWIN FALLS — Two disturbances in Twin Falls early this morning resulted in one man being hospitalized in Jerome with shotgun-pellet wounds.

Ronnie Lee Hankins, 24, Jerome, was taken to the St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome for treatment and was listed in good condition.

Twin Falls detective Captain Tim Quintis said the city is investigating the incident but will probably not be able to question Hankins until Friday.

Police received a call shortly before 1 a.m. concerning a fight at the Brand Lounge. When officers arrived the individuals involved had moved outside and scattered. Officers arrested Nancy Hankins at the lounge, charging her with resisting arrest.

Radiation reported

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — Pioneer 10's sensitive detectors have measured increased particle radiation in its flight to the planet Jupiter.

Officials at the Ames Research Center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Wednesday that instruments made at the University of Chicago picked up the change.

Meanwhile, a scientist at the University of California in San Diego warned the $50 million spacecraft could be destroyed with a big increase in radiation intensity.

"Neither one of them knows anything about agriculture," Douglas Hollowell, manager of the 910 Ranch which Roger Crandlemire recently bought and a friend of both the Crandlemires, said. At least, he added, they had never been involved in ranching before.

George Crandlemire said his brother started in the cattle business because ranching is "always the love of a city boy." Also, with the price of beef soaring "the cattle business is a darn good business," he said. He added that ranching is just one enterprise which his brother has entered recently.

The purchase of large plots of property at the base of Soldier Mountain by Roger Crandlemire also causes suspicion. Last spring he bought the 1,600-acre 101 Ranch and on the first of November the 1,411-acre Hidden Paradise Grazing Association ranch.

"He has attempted to purchase every ranch in the southern exposure of Soldier Mountain," Mike Randall, part owner of Three Mile Ranch, which is adjacent to the Hidden Paradise property, said. However, Randall said that Crandlemire had not attempted to buy his ranch, probably because he knew he would not get anywhere.

Talk of Roger Crandlemire's attempts to purchase a great deal of property is common around Fairfield, but some of the talk may be mere rumor.

Only one out of five persons whose ranches were talked about said Crandlemire tried to buy the land, Mrs. Wesley Fields said. "He (Crandlemire) manager Bob Bayless makes an offer to us for the Hetsprings Ranch 10,000 acres every month or so, but we're not selling."

Mrs. Fields did not remember the last price offered but said "he goes up every time" and "last time he said 'name your price.'" Her husband later refused to comment on the offers.

The price at which Roger Crandlemire has bought land is considered inappropriate for a cattle operation by ranchers in the area. George Crandlemire said that $250 per acre of the 1,411-acre Hidden Paradise Ranch was "in the ball park" of what was paid.

"Any time it's (the price) more than $125 an acre around here, then it's no good for ranching — it won't pay for itself," rancher Hollowell said. He said that the ranch land used to sell at this price "not so long ago."

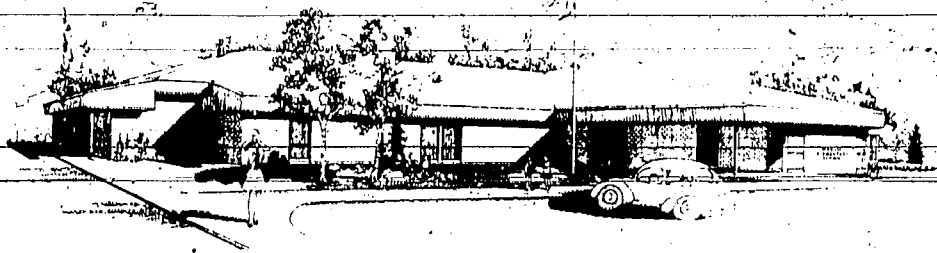

Hollowell, whose father sold the 910 Ranch to Crandlemire, said that he himself is looking for ranch property at $200 to $225 an acre. He said he would buy the land "as an investment."

"There's a lot of rangeland that's been bought up here that could not possibly feed enough cattle to come out on the price," said Fairfield City Clerk Loy Vanskike. He said some of the rangeland goes for "up to $100 an acre — but that's not practical."

Vanskike said rangeland prices have risen for the past five or six years and have shot up rapidly in the past two years. He believed people purchased such land out of "romantic" feelings.

George Crandlemire has also brought property in the Fairfield area. In spring he purchased the 840-acre Baker Ranch and prior to that a 160-acre plot which he is now putting the "Smoky Dome Ranches Subdivision" on. On the Baker land he has put in a cross-country motorcycle run for races, horse stables for raising of Arabian horses and a lake.

George Crandlemire said his brother had to purchase a lot of property to graze his 1,250 head of cattle. Crandlemire's manager Bob Bayless said that for winter pasturing and feed purposes Roger Crandlemire had also purchased a ranch in Wendell and two in Haigerman.

Architect's sketch of new Declo Elementary School

Cassia sets bid opening

BURLEY — Architects presented the Cassia County School Board with architectural drawings of the new Declo Elementary School and gymnasium at a special meeting Tuesday afternoon in Malta.

Bids for the two projects will be opened Dec. 3. The $3.9 million bond passed last spring budgeted $800,000 for the two projects.

Bid specifications listed as alternates two extra classrooms in the elementary school, addition of movable cabinetry, folding seating in the gymnasium, a divider curtain for the gymnasium, construction of parkways and sidewalks and the installation of a private sewage system in the event the new Declo sewer system is not completed in time for hook-up with the school.

The board agreed to accept, an alternate on the previously accepted bid of Nielsen Construction, Twin Falls, for the installation of 300 seats in the Raft River auditorium.

The bid price of $12,930 is being raised by the Malta Lions Club through local donations.

The board authorized the administration to discuss the responsibility of the insurance company with the insurance adjuster before making a decision on bids to dismantle and level the rubble at the old Burley Junior High School site.

As an emergency action, the board had earlier taken oral bids and made an agreement with Bonneville Wrecking Co., Salt Lake, City, Utah. The company was to move out the larger pieces of rubble and level out the rest, filling the site in with dirt for a fee of $10,500.

The agreement was protested by one of the bidders, Klopffer Concrete, Paul, which said it had received the wrong information about the project.

The administration then asked the Salt Lake City firm to hold back their operations. According to the administration, the firm first agreed, then several days later changed its mind.

Architect Keith Richardson told the board that "no building can be built on what's there." All of the debris must be removed from the site and the area filled in with dirt so any kind of construction would be possible on the site, he said.

The board authorized the administration to delay any action until it is determined if the insurance coverage includes the demolition of the site.

Proposal rejected

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council rejected an engineer's proposal Tuesday night and restated its desire to build a sewer system to cope with future problems.

Frank Lebrock of Hamilton and Voeller Engineers, Pocatello, asked the council to consider constructing a new sewer line on H Street in the older section of the city and sealing up lines in the area before moving ahead with plans for a new trunk line.

Lebrock is negotiating with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for the city, to speed up allocation of funds for a new sewer and lagoo system. Rupert is completing final requirements for the grant, but was delayed last week once again when the EPA asked for additional study.

According to Lebrock, the agency wants to seal the old sewer lines, reducing sub-water problems before starting on the new project. By sealing the old lines, the exact needs of the new system could more accurately be determined.

The council told Lebrock that the sealing project could take years and in that time the present system could develop problems. There is currently only one trunk line out of the city.

The older lines could be taken care of later, according to the council, but the welfare of the entire city must be considered at this point.

Lebrock was instructed by the council to explain the situation to the EPA and ask for permission to build the trunk line down A Street as originally planned.

In other action, the council approved an ordinance setting speed limits within the city at 25 miles per hour unless otherwise posted.

Gem agency eyes grants

Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — State officials are studying a new system of computing welfare grants as a means to reduce the error rate in the Aid to Families With Dependent Children (AFDC) program across the state.

According to Howard Jamieson, DECS director of management services, the installation of a "unit system" is being tested in Region IV welfare offices to see whether it can cut down on the percentage of error in the program.

Two other steps have been taken, according to Jamieson, in an effort to meet department and federal goals of eliminating some of the built in error in the program.

In a policy statement issued last week, DECS administrator Dr. James A. Bax listed reduction in the error rate by one third in the AFDC program by July, 1974 as one of ten new agency goals.

In addition, federal legislation requires only five per cent error margin in the individual states' AFDC program by July, 1975, with interim steps established leading to that goal. The penalty for failure to comply is loss of some federal matching funds used in the welfare program.

According to Jamieson, the "unit system" substitutes a simpler method of computing grants in the place of calculating dollar amounts. By adding up the number of "units" a family of recipients is eligible for and multiplying by a fixed dollar amount per unit, the risk of error in calculation is reduced, according to Jamieson.

He said experiments in South Dakota with a unit system have resulted in significant reductions in the error rate in that state.

"Of the margin of error of 19 per cent statewide, Jamieson said, almost half is directly attributable to arithmetical errors made by eligibility workers in calculating the size of a grant a family should receive.

As a second method of reducing the error in the AFDC program, Jamieson said, DECS recently reclassified the salary for an eligibility worker, increasing it by ten per cent. The hope of the department, he said, is to attract more qualified personnel in the regional offices.

In addition, Jamieson said, the state eligibility officer is taking one week of each month to travel to the seven regions to conduct in-service training for workers.

An attempt is being made, he said, "to bring home" the urgency of accurate grant calculations.

Jamieson said he could not estimate the cost of the new effort to cut back the error rate except for the ten per cent increase in the salary of the eligibility worker.

Jerome plans 3rd bank

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer

JEROME — The Idaho First National Bank will establish a bank in Jerome by the first of the year, making the third bank in the city.

In a letter to the Jerome City Council from C. E. Ireton, manager of the Wendell bank, the firm requests a sub-alley located on the property the bank has purchased be vacated by the city to enable the bank to construct a building and parking area.

Ireton said the bank is considering a specially designed mobile bank unit, approximately 24 by 50 feet, which would be used until the permanent building is completed. He received approval of the council for the mobile structure so it could be brought to Jerome prior to the end of the year.

The bank has purchased property at the southeast corner of South Lincoln and West Ave. B. The location includes property presently occupied by Rice Chevrolet Co. Ireton said the bank will take possession of the property in about 30 days. The new facility will include off street parking and drive-in facilities.

In other business the council:

No crisis seen

TUTTLE, Idaho (UPI) — Rep. Vernon F. Rovenscroft, R-Tuttle, feels a district court ruling Idaho's school financing system unconstitutional could be easily taken care of in the next two legislative sessions.

Rovenscroft, who was chairman of the revenue and tax subcommittee on school funding in the last legislative session, said the ruling today by Fourth District Judge J. Ray Durtschi does not pose a financial crisis for the state.

He said the ruling "underscores the judgment of the Legislature in coupling the tax relief package last winter with the school equalization issue and by so doing there only remains four mills of the Idaho tax structure that is not equalized."

He said there currently is equalization of 22 mills of the instructional program and one mill of the transportation program for a total of 23 mills of the 27 that the districts are permitted to levy without a special ballot.

"I would judge that given two years of lead time, which is essentially what is given, that this additional four mills could very easily be closed."

— Referred a request for annexation of six acres of land owned by Sam Daniels to the Jerome Zoning Commission. The property, located on North Fillmore, would be for construction of a 44-unit apartment building, to be built by Ron Moulton.

— Heard a report on operation and maintenance of the Jerome waste water treatment plant from the Department of Environmental and Community Services. According to J. M. Runsvold, environmental engineer, the report was made following an annual inspection required by the Environmental Protection Agency. The most important finding, requiring action of the city is the generally sub-standard level of maintenance and housekeeping currently performed at the plant.

— Contributed to understanding of the sewage department which is unable, as things now stand, to perform more than emergency repairs simply to keep the plant in operation.

"It is recommended that the city hire at least one additional man for the sewage department."

— Heard a report from Police Chief Howard DuBois that he has hired Betty Jo Sparks as a dispatcher. He also requested permission to hire George Silva on a temporary basis to fill the position of patrolman until a permanent one can be found.

Insurance burns hole in Cassia budget

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

MALTA — Fire and liability protection is going to burn a big hole in the Cassia County School District budget next year.

District treasurer, Matt Warr, told trustees at a special meeting in Malta Tuesday that the district's insurer, Farm Bureau Insurance, is requiring an appraisal of all buildings in the district in addition to a 25 per cent rate increase when the insurance comes up for renewal next month.

Last month the district was hit by a fire which gutted the Burley Junior High School. Farm Bureau Insurance is paying the district about one million dollars for the damage.

According to the administration, the appraisal alone could set the district back $20,000. The district paid out about $12,000 last year for fire and liability insurance, according to Supt. Harold Blauer.

"The board authorized the administration to negotiate with the insurance company so the district will have time to evaluate the new insurance policy."

An advisory committee for a Title VII desegregation program was discussed by the board. According to provisions of the legislation, the committee must be composed of a majority of minority membership.

Instructional supervisor Norman Hurst said there was "absolutely no pressure upon us" to set up the desegregation program.

The district is currently being studied by the office of Civil Rights of the Department of Health Education and Welfare for possible discrimination policies.

"If the district qualifies for the Title VII funds, the new program would provide money to the district for desegregation and bilingual programs. In addition, it could help meet the requirements of the Civil Rights Commission, Hurst said.

Supt. Blauer read the non-discrimination policy of the Pocatello School District to board members. The policy rejects any kind of discrimination in any employe or student in the district.

The board decided to write and adopt a similar policy which would be sent to all employes and students of the district.

Poultry prices to remain high

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rising production will hold broiler-chicken prices down for the next few months but egg output is rising more slowly and prices will remain relatively high for the rest of the year, Agriculture Department economists predict.

They added that turkey prices also will be comparatively high through the Thanksgiving-Christmas holiday season because—although production is up—a reduced storage supply will hold overall available poundage about 2-3 per cent below a year ago.

The poultry and egg production summary issued by Agriculture Department experts said egg production, after angling 5 per cent below a year earlier from January through October, is now "back on an expansion path." By early 1974 monthly egg production figures should match year-earlier levels and there probably will be a "significant increase" in production by mid-1974, the report said.

Experts noted the number of eggs in incubators for hatching Nov. 1 was up 15 per cent from a year earlier, which means a probable 14 per cent increase in the number of young chickens available for expanding egg-laying flocks later in winter and early next spring.

Egg prices, after peaking in August, declined into October and then rose again this month as mid-month wholesale prices averaged 60 cents a dozen, up 7 cents from October. The report said prices will remain high through the end of the year but will decline seasonally later in the winter and next spring.

Broiler chicken production, recovering faster than eggs, will top year-ago rates in November and December although total 1973 output will be about 2 per cent below 1972, the report added. Experts predicted November-December supplies will be 2-3 per cent above a year ago. They said production may dip temporarily in early 1974 but then may resume its upward trend in the spring.

Broiler prices, which reached a record of 74 cents a pound at wholesale in early August, were down to about 33 cents a pound, wholesale, in mid-November. Economists said prices would remain "weak" during the rest of 1973. Winter and early spring prices may rise and remain above year-ago levels, but the report added next spring and summer will probably see broilers selling below the high levels of a year earlier.

Sugar quotas remain

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department's tentative proposal to abolish a 40-year-old federal sugar control program has picked up some support but it still "borders on being a long shot," an administration farm official said today.

"It has some chance. There is some interest. But it's safe to say most people still feel they understand the old law," Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll G. Brunthaver said in an interview.

Brunthaver said the department had no word yet on whether the White House would accept the proposal as a formal administration policy, thus clearing the way to present it to Congress early next year. If the administration does accept the plan, it would have to "show hard" to get it through Congress, Brunthaver said.

Under existing law, the agriculture department decides each year how much sugar can be sold in the U.S. at prices considered fair to both growers and consumers. It then carves this consumption quota into supply quotas for individual producing areas in the U.S. and more than 30 foreign countries. Prices are manipulated, and when necessary, by raising or lowering the quotas.

Under the agriculture department plan, all quotas would be abolished and the U.S. market thrown open to all comers, except Cuba, on a free competitive basis. The incomes of domestic growers would be protected if market prices fell below a fixed level.

"The 'Target' plan would cover only the average amount of acreage used for sugar crops in recent years, however, and would not protect growers on any expansion in the future if market prices declined.

Most wild Utah horses run free

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Most of Utah's wild horses and burros are now free to roam unmolested on their home on the range. The Bureau of Land Management said Tuesday only four people put in claims by the Nov. 15 deadline to recover horses or burros running loose on public lands — and one of those was the vice president of the National Mustang Association.

Kent Gregersen said he made claims on horses in five state BLM districts to prevent a Mustang slaughter like the one that occurred in southeast Idaho last March.

"I put in claims for mainly one reason," Gregersen said. "So they won't let some ranchers come in and do what they did in Howe, Idaho."

"Now if they have a roundup, I'm entitled to get in there, inspect the horses, and see what's going on," he said.

Under the Wild Free-Roaming Horse and Burro Act of 1971, citizens had until Nov. 15 to claim animals on natural resource lands. Unbranded and unclaimed animals now left on the lands will be protected and managed as wild and free-roaming.

Jack M. Reed, public information officer for the BLM, said Gregersen and three ranchers filed only eight claims, but they involved more than 100 horses in six of the state's eight BLM districts.

"It's difficult to come up with a definite number of horses because they are also claiming all offspring from the animals," Reed said. "Any number is merely an estimate."

Only one burro was claimed. "One guy is claiming four mares and a jack and their offspring, which would be mules," Reed said.

The BLM says there are 600 horses and 63 burros running free on public lands. All those will continue to roam free until the BLM and the state brand inspector examine and approve each of the ownership claims.

When the claims are approved, the owners may roundup their stock.

Claim investigations could take several months, Reed said. He predicted no roundups would begin until next spring or summer. Gregersen's five claims run counter to the claim of at least one other rancher. He admits he did it to maintain leverage with the BLM.

"If the BLM plays it like they are supposed to, then I will relinquish my claims," he said. "I'll sign a release."

Gregersen recalled the roundup of about 60 horses by ranchers in Idaho last year, apparently with BLM approval. Seven of the animals were driven over a cliff during the roundup and the rest were sent to packing houses. The government stepped in and saved 19 of the animals.

Gem wheat meet set for Boise

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho State Wheat Growers Association will hold its annual convention Nov. 28-29 at the Rowendy Inn with Ray Davis, president of the national association discussing national issues.

Jerry Rees, executive vice president, also will be present for the discussions on national issues.

Davis is a native of Potter, Neb., and has operated a farm there since 1946. He has been active in farm programs for the past 20 years.

Rees joined the national association in 1970 as executive vice president and in 1971 was given the additional responsibility of administrator of the National Wheat Institute.

Other speakers will include Dr. Raymond Miller, Director of research, University of Idaho; Evan Koller, chairman, Region Five, County Weed Control Area; Rich Pennell, regional sales manager North Pacific Grain Growers, Portland, and Louise Shadduck, administrative assistant to Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho.

The four day meeting also will include a panel discussion on transportation and discussions on marketing.

Feed grains boost Soviet crop outlook

WASHINGTON (CNS) — Since the Soviets are bringing in a 1973 grain harvest that appears to be 10-15 million tons over what they originally pushed for, the additional tonnage could be used to rebuild stocks, to increase feed use of grain above original plans and/or to expand exports, the Agriculture department's Foreign Agriculture magazine said today.

Of the estimated 215 million ton harvest, 83 million is feed grains — barley, oats and corn — and will be by far the largest even, since harvests in 1972 averaged only 630 million tons. About 105 million tons is estimated for wheat production.

Because of heavy precipitation during harvesting over large areas in both European and Asiatic USSR, the quality of much of the 1973 grain crop is probably below average and the amount of excess moisture and foreign matter contained in the 215 million ton gross harvest figure is somewhat greater than normal.

Planting conditions for winter grains this fall indicate the Soviets are off to a good start, although it is too early to estimate the size of the crop relative to the 1973 harvest.

As of Oct. 15, seeding of winter grains totaled 82 million acres, or 98 per cent of planned area.

Hereford sale set

RUPERT — The Idaho Junior Hereford Association will conduct the fifth annual 4-H and FFA calf sale at the Valley Commission Co. Friday.

Several "good" Hereford calves are expected, according to Deanne Scott, reporter for the association. This sale is one of the group's annual money-making projects.

Hot stew and chili will be sold before and during the sale, she said.

No crop cut in '74 seen

WASHINGTON (CNS) — There is currently no indication that the Agriculture department will take action to set aside 1974 cropland and effort to save fuel, a department spokesman said.

Instead, he said, the department will meet next week with representatives from farm implement manufacturers to develop a program to educate farmers in methods to conserve fuel. No date has been set for the meeting.

The USDA position is that if farmers will exercise fuel conservation measures, they will be able to increase the amount of land they farm and still keep within their allotted fuel supply. Officials concede that if the Arab oil supply is not restored by next spring, farmers probably will not be inclined to increase production acreage.

Officials are also concerned about public reaction to the high-priority status given to farmers, ranchers and food processors, should the fuel supply continue to tighten. The feeling here is that the public, still upset about the Russian wheat sale, will react unfavorably to reports that farmers are using more fuel in order to grow more crops for export.

Pioneer II seeks Jupiter's secrets

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
 WASHINGTON — The mighty planet Jupiter, an object of scientific wonder ever since Galileo discovered in 1610 that it had moons, will yield some of its most fascinating secrets before another fortnight has passed.
 The key to unlock the mysteries of this solar system giant is a little unmanned spacecraft called Pioneer 10, which already has probed farther into space than any man-made object before it.

Pioneer will rush past Jupiter's cloud tops at 42,000 miles an hour Dec. 3, snapping rudimentary television pictures as it goes.

Scientists who have guided Pioneer for the past 67 days across nearly 60 million miles of emptiness talked with reporters for two hours about the coming Pioneer-Jupiter encounter. Their consensus was that unless something goes sadly wrong in the next two weeks, a whole new era in interplanetary exploration will open.

This will be an era, one scientist explained, when spacecraft at last venture out to where the real solar system action is. As Dr. S. Ichitani of NASA headquarters put it, 99 per cent of all the matter in the sun's planetary system is out beyond the orbit of Mars.

From Mars inward to Venus — mere spitting distance as interplanetary stretches go — has been the sphere of solar system exploration up to now. A spacecraft launched early this month is inward bound toward Mercury, the Sun's closest satellite, but will not arrive there until March.

By that time Pioneer will be millions of miles beyond Jupiter, outward bound on a journey that will never end unless it is intercepted some time in the unforeseeable future by intelligent beings elsewhere in the universe.

Just in case such an interception takes place, Pioneer displays an anodized aluminum plaque engraved with the nude figures of a man and woman and some cabalistic scientific notation which scientists hope will convey to the interceptors an idea of who we are — and where.

Dr. John Naugle, head of NASA's space sciences division, termed the plaque "the exuberant shout of a healthy, vigorous, inquisitive form of life."

Right now this inquisitiveness is focused on a celestial body more than 10 times the diameter, 300 times the mass and 1,000 times the volume of our own Earth, which contains more matter than everything else in the solar system put together excepting only the Sun itself.

The only planet except Earth that is known to have a magnetic field and a surrounding "Van Allen" radiation belt, Jupiter has a peculiarity that especially fascinates scientists. Astronomical measurements in radio frequency and other wavelengths have shown that Jupiter gives off roughly twice as much radiation as it receives from the Sun.

The Earth gives off about 1,000,000 times as much radiation as it gets from the Sun, and the excess is easily accounted for by the decay of radioactive elements deep inside. But there is no such simple explanation for Jupiter's huge energy imbalance, and science is seeking an explanation to which Pioneer may provide a few clues.

Pioneer several months ago survived without any damage at all a trip through the asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter. Now scientists are keeping their fingers crossed against an even worse potential peril as the spacecraft approaches its target planet.

They fear that Jupiter's intense radiation belt may be sufficient to disable temporarily or even drown out electronics on the spacecraft. There was, a scientist explained, no practical way to test the instruments in a near-Jupiter environment before launch.

The danger zone is considered to begin about 300,000 miles from Jupiter's cloud tops. Pioneer will enter it at midday Dec. 3, about six hours before closest approach to the planet.

This will be a real cliff-hanging time for scientists controlling the flight from NASA's Ames Research Center near San Francisco. So far will Pioneer be from Earth at encounter time that it will take 46 minutes for signals to cross the interplanetary void at the standard speed of light, 186,000 miles a second.

Thus, if anything goes wrong, the news will be three-quarters of an hour old before the Ames scientists get it, and an hour and a half will have elapsed before any sort of remedial action taken at Ames can affect the spacecraft's future behavior. Finally, two and a quarter hours will have elapsed before the controllers learn whether their troubleshooting worked.

In addition to photographing and otherwise sampling Jupiter's murky atmosphere, Pioneer is expected to take pictures of at least four of Jupiter's 12 moons, and to return highly refined data on the mass of the giant planet.

This mass data is expected to improve chances next year for a twin spacecraft, Pioneer 11, to come even closer to the jovian cloud-tops. It should also simplify plans now under way for a 1977-81 flight of another spacecraft that will fly by Jupiter and then speed on to a subsequent encounter with the ringed planet Saturn.

Fears recession

THE SOMBER mood of the New York Stock Exchange is reflected by this exchange employee taking a break after closing. Prices on the NYSE fell Tuesday to their lowest level in two years in heavy trading generated by concern over energy problems and fears of a recession. (UPI)

Hoffa called damn liar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamster President Frank E. Fitzsimmons called James R. Hoffa "a damn liar" Wednesday for saying the union contributed $80,000 to $70,000 to President Nixon's re-election campaign instead of the $11,000 it reported to the government.

Newsweek magazine quoted Hoffa this week as saying he had been told that Teamster business agents were assessed $1,000 each for the Nixon campaign last year. Hoffa also said the union asked "friends" in Las Vegas who had borrowed money from the Teamster pension fund to also contribute to the campaign.

Fitzsimmons acknowledged giving $4,000 himself, but said former Teamster President Hoffa had had "no way of knowing anything about what this international union does" since Hoffa went to prison in 1967 for pension fund fraud and jury tampering.

"When he says he knows certain things about donations of this international union being greater than what was reported, he's a damn liar," Fitzsimmons told a news conference.

When asked if the 2 million member union, largest in the nation, had reported all its campaign contributions, Fitzsimmons replied, "absolutely, every quarter."

Hoffa has said he plans to run against Fitzsimmons for Teamster president in 1976 if he can get lifted his parole restriction barring him from holding union office until 1980. Although Fitzsimmons was Hoffa's hand-picked successor, the present Teamster leader acknowledged that relations between them have soured since Hoffa went to prison.

"Reports that we are close and friendly, and in constant contact are not true," Fitzsimmons said.

Fitzsimmons also predicted that President Nixon would survive his Watergate troubles and finish his term.

"He's done a great job for this country," Fitzsimmons said. "Personally, I think he's been the most influential President that this country has ever had and I'm sure that he will end his term in the glory that he deserves."

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has approved a request from Union Pacific Railroad to dualize its agencies at Downey and Mc Cammon.

The commission agreed with the railroad's contention that the agencies in the two communities generated insufficient business to justify the presence of two full-time agents.

Clouds, threat of snow over MV

Twin Falls, northside, Burley-Rupert area: Considerable cloudiness today through Friday with chance of a few light snow showers. Highs both days in the 30s; Overnight lows near 20. Probability of precipitation 10 per cent or less.

Camas Prairie, lower Wood

River Valley: Considerable cloudiness today through Friday with chance of a few light snow showers. Highs both days 25-35. Lows 0 to 10. Probability of precipitation 10 per cent or less.

Synopsis: A cold unstable upper level trough of low pressure remains nearly stationary over the intermountain region. Little change is expected in the weather over Idaho through Friday, meaning considerable cloudiness with scattered light snow showers will continue. Highs are expected to be generally in the 30s and morning lows teens through 20s. Precipitation totals during the last 24 hours have generally been light and range from .34 in Mullin which has 10 inches of snow on the ground to .11 at Boise and .03 at Pocatello.

Strode ranch sold to Arizona couple

CAREY — Jay and Nevada Strode, Carey, have sold their Dry Creek Ranch located two miles northwest of Carey.

The Strodes formerly owned a large cattle ranch at Jackpot, Nev., and have been active in the cattle business in Carey for a number of years.

The purchasers are Joe and Carrie Ellsworth from Chandler, Ariz. They own and operate a large dairy in that area.

Ellsworth plans to expand his Idaho operation and grow out his replacement heifers in Idaho, according to Harry LeMoyné, Twin Falls, real estate man.

The Ellsworth also purchased the Leslie Day Ranch, adjoining the Strode Ranch, making a total acquisition of approximately 2,400 acres with a purchase price in excess of $500,000 LeMoyné said. The sale was effective Nov. 1.

Kootenai farm yield hits peak

COEUR D'ALENE Idaho (UPI) — While yields were down, farm production values in Kootenai County rose to a record $11 million this year, according to Clyde H. Stranahan, county Agricultural Extension Service chairman.

Stranahan said the increase was about $1 million over last year.

He said the largest individual crop in the county was grass seed, which brought in about $3 million.

"We raise 90 per cent of Idaho's grass seed in Kootenai County and Idaho was the second state in the nation in grass seed production," Stranahan said.

He said grass seed yield was actually down but the growers received double or triple the prices per pound over previous years.

Stranahan said farm production included $7.3 million in crops and $4 million from livestock, poultry and dairying.

ISU meets Northern Arizona in finale

POGATELLO—Idaho State closes out a disappointing football season Thursday night against Northern Arizona. Game time is 8 p.m.

The game is billed as a "family night" and two adults and four children under 16 will be admitted for only $5.00. The ISU Athletic Department is giving away 20-pound turkeys to the largest family to take advantage of the offer, and also to the individual wearing the most orange at the game.

The Bengals are currently 2-8 on the season after a 43-0 loss to Idaho, while NAU is 3-5 after taking last weekend off to get ready for the Bengals.

When it rains it pours, and no one knows that better than Idaho State Coach Bob Griffin. On the heels of repeated injuries that have struck ISU this fall, comes the loss of ISU's two top offensive linemen. Tackle Tony Tamonas, a returning all-conference performer, had ligament damage to one of his knees and he's out, and guard Brian Verleuille had a hyper-extended elbow with some nerve complications and he's a doubtful participant in Thursday's contest. They will be replaced in the starting lineup by Dennis Janssen and Joe Leach.

The Bengals set several dubious records in the loss to Idaho. ISU was minus six yards rushing and 54 yards total offense. Punter Steve Baller had a workout like no punter in previous Big Sky history.

He had 14 opportunities to punt, and had 587 yards punting, both new conference records. One time Baller ran 30 yards back to his end zone to pick up an errant center snap, and kicked it to Idaho's 38 before being hit by three Vandals.

The stage will be set Thursday for Joe Mattie to achieve what very few college football players have ever achieved. Mattie needs to make 18 tackles to reach an even 200 stops. The previous ISU record was 120. Should Mattie reach the 200 figure the game will be stopped and he will get the game ball.

Northern Arizona boasts the leading rusher in the conference, 5-5, 180-lb boulder Jim Smith. He's rushed for 1089 yards and 8 TD's. Directing the NAU offense will be QB Wheatie Tavernetti, who replaces the oft-injured Dave Mender. Rick Wilson, the flanker, tops the team with 25 receptions.

NAU's three wins are a tribute to Coach Ed Peasley, who had numerous players expected to not turn out for football. Then injuries hit the Lumberjacks, and few expected the Lumberjacks to do as well as they have.

"It will be a difficult struggle," says Griffin.

"Northern Arizona is a good, tough, Big Sky football team. This game gives us an opportunity to close our season with a win. The last game is the one people remember, and it will give us a chance to redeem ourselves from the Idaho game."

This one will hurt

GRIMACING Larry Jones of Philadelphia appears anticipating a solid rap from Omaha's Howard Komives (15) on this drive to the basket Wednesday night. Philadelphia won 103-90. (UPI telephoto).

Cousy wants out now

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Bob Cousy, coach of the National Basketball Association Kansas City-Omaha Kings since 1969, said Wednesday night he planned to submit his resignation, and hoped that it would be accepted immediately.

The former Boston Celtic great said he had not discussed the resignation with the Kings owners or with President and General Manager Joe Axelson. "I will honor their wishes," he said. "If they want me to remain until the end of the season I will do it. My wish is that it will be accepted immediately."

Axelson said he would meet with the owners Thursday in Kansas City to discuss the resignation. When asked if he was surprised by the move, Axelson said, "Frankly not."

Cousy, 41, said, "There comes a time in life when there's more to life than winning and losing and playing in basketball."

Cousy said his reasons for resigning were "private and personal." He noted that his wife commutes from Boston and both his daughters still live in Boston.

OJ needs 135-yard average for record

BALTIMORE (UPI) — O.J. Simpson needs to average 135 yards a game in the Buffalo Bills final four contests to equal Jim Brown's all-time one season rushing record of 1,863 yards.

Sunday's encounter with the faltering Baltimore Colts could make or break his effort to smash the mark set in 1963.

When the Bills beat Baltimore 31-13 in Orchard Park last month Simpson ran 166 yards and two touchdowns in Buffalo's first regular season win over the Colts in a four-year series.

The Colts, 2-8, come off a 22-14 loss to the Washington Redskins, which was closer than the score indicates. Curt Knight's fifth field goal, a 29-yarder with 1:10 left, put the Colts away after a strong second half rally.

"I'm really proud of our kids," said coach Howard Schnellenberger. "We gave it a good shot (against Washington) but we were not good enough. I can see some light now."

The Colts show improvement in their offensive ground game. Quarterback Marty Domres piloted both Colts scores against Washington, 67 and 71 yards with a ground game that showed muscle and strategy hidden in earlier games.

The Colts defense, lacking fluid teamwork in the first half of the season, is beginning to knit but will find difficulty reckoning with Simpson and his Buffalo blockers.

Domres will start despite six injuries in the last month. He sprained an ankle, chipped a bone in the thumb of his throwing hand, broke his nose twice, has an infected ear and injured ribs.

Linebacker Mike Curtis remains sidelined with a shoulder separation.

Oklahoma holds big data lead

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Statistically speaking, Nebraska will be overmatched Friday when the 10th-ranked Cornhuskers try to derail third-ranked Oklahoma at Norman.

The stampeding Sooners lead four of eight team statistical categories, according to the latest figures from the Big Eight Conference.

Nebraska leads one, pass defense, and, unfortunately for the Cornhuskers, they won't see many aerials Friday.

Oklahoma ranks No. 1 in rushing offense (378.2 yards per game), rushing defense (105.2), total offense (474.3) and scoring offense (36.4 points a game).

Nebraska is yielding only 38.8 yards a game passing, but is sixth in rushing defense, giving up 194.8 yards an outing.

Kansas is the passing offense leader, picking up 196.6 yards a game throwing. Oklahoma State ranks first in total defense with a yield of 222.7 yards a game and Missouri tops the field in scoring defense, allowing 12.1 points per game.

76ers thump Kings 103-90

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Tom Van Arsdale fired in 28 points against his former teammates Wednesday night and Fred Carter collected 26 to pull the Philadelphia 76ers to a 103-90 National Basketball Association victory over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

Kings Coach Bob Cousy submitted his resignation after the loss, citing "private and personal reasons."

The 76ers led most of the game, allowing the Kings four brief one-point leads.

"A Van Arsdale jump shot with nine minutes left in the game snapped a 72-72 deadlock and he and Carter accounted for 22 of the 76ers' next 24 points as they rocketed to a 97-84 lead.

Nate Williams led the Kings with 22 points, followed by Sam Lacey with 21.

Rose asks fans 'don't get angry . . . I only played'

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Pete Rose is worried baseball fans might become angry because he was named the National League's Most Valuable Player instead of Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell.

"I don't want people across the United States to get mad because I won it," Rose said at a Reds' banquet held Wednesday in his honor. "It wasn't my fault Stargell didn't get it. I just did as good a job as I could."

Rose, effervescent as he accepted the congratulations for what he called his "greatest individual honor," said he was worried about starting a controversy with Stargell, who came in a close second in the balloting and let it be known he deeply wanted the award.

"The first thing I asked after I was told I won was, 'Who came in second?' I wouldn't have felt badly coming in second to Stargell, or even third to (San Francisco's Bobby Bonds)," Rose said.

Rose said a "small thing" in the MVP polling flattered him more than polling the most first place votes.

"I was no lower than third on my ballot," he said. "I feel so good that every writer who voted at least thought I was among the top three players. I look for small things like that and it tells me something."

Rose also raised the possibility that he could be traded, despite the MVP award.

He noted he plays for Cincinnati Reds President Bob Howsam.

"Mr. Howsam is concerned with the team, not individuals," Rose said. "He'd trade me tomorrow if he thought he could get a winner."

But Howsam doesn't want anybody to think he's about to put Rose on the trading block. Howsam credited Rose with building his much sought "team attitude" as he introduced Rose at the banquet.

"Not only was he great in the field, but this year Pete matured into an outstanding leader for our ball club. Howsam said in serious, business-like tones. "I think it's important for other young men to study Pete's career. If they give it all they have, maybe they can accomplish the things Pete has."

Rose surprised some people when he was asked what he would most like to be remembered for when his playing days are through.

"I'd like to be known as the best switch-hitter that ever lived," he said.

Rose has 2,132 career hits and if he can top the 3,000 mark — his personal goal — he figures he will be the best ever to hit from both sides of the plate because enroute he will pass Frankie Frisch's 2,860 hit record for switch-hitters.

Rose says he also is determined to help the Reds win the World Series.

"I did everything possible to try to get us into it this year and even almost started World War III," he said, referring to his fight with Bud Harrelson of the New York Mets in the National League playoffs.

MVP usually means more money, but Rose insisted he would not use the award as a wedge at contract time.

"It's not necessarily going to mean that I'm going to hold out for $200,000 just because Richie Allen and Hank Aaron get it," he said.

Ali, Frazier agree with N.Y. tax men; they'll pay on 100 per cent of income

ALBANY, N. Y. (UPI) — The path to a Jan. 28 rematch in Madison Square Garden between former heavyweight champions Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali was cleared Wednesday when the state announced an agreement had been reached on their tax liabilities.

Tax Commissioner Mario A. Procaccino announced that both fighters conceded they were subject to state personal income tax on 100 per cent of their income derived from or connected with New York sources.

Both are out-of-state residents, and a lack of understanding as to their tax responsibilities had threatened to prevent their rematch from being held in New York.

Procaccino said the agreement worked out "is the same basis on which state personal income taxes are levied against any non-resident of New York State who earns money in this state."

"It sets no precedent, creates no double-standard," the tax commissioner said.

Frazier won a unanimous 15-round decision in his first fight with Ali at Madison Square Garden on March 8, 1971. On the same day the tax department issued a property tax assessment of $340,000 on each fighter's purse in order to protect the state's interests pending the determination of taxes and interest due the state from the fighters.

Procaccino's statement said the agreement establishes that the fighters must pay taxes on all income derived from or connected with New York sources.

Procaccino said the understanding was worked out with Bruce Wright of Philadelphia, attorney for Frazier, and Robert Aron of New York City, Ali's lawyer, after conferences in which Michael Burke, president of Madison Square Garden Inc., had participated.

"I don't understand any of this financial stuff," said Ali when contacted at his training camp. "I just hope the fight comes off in New York, the capital of boxing. I think it will come off now."

Frazier, meanwhile, said he would fight Ali anywhere, even in the street.

"I want to fight him in the ring, not in the street," said Ali. "I want to whip him where we fought before."

Financially strapped Squires peddle Nater to San Antonio

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The Virginia Squires, beset by poor attendance and dwindling finances, Wednesday traded rookie center Swen Nater to the San Antonio Spurs of the American Basketball Association for a first round draft choice and an undisclosed amount of cash.

A team spokesman said Earl Foreman alone decided to make the trade and arranged a press hearing to announce it.

Foreman, whose team is reportedly up for sale and possibly close to being taken over by the league, made no announcement on the Squires' precarious financial situation.

The Nater trade was the second major deal of the year for the Virginia team. Superstar forward Julius Erving was sent to the New York Nets of the ABA for an undisclosed but substantial amount of cash earlier this year.

Squires' coach Al Bianchi, unhappy at the trade of another of his team's stars, said he "was not going to throw stones" at Foreman because "the guy has lost a ton of money" since he bought the team in 1969.

Bianchi said his reaction to the trade "doesn't have to be said."

"Any kid knows that a good 6-10 center is hard to find, but when you get into this kind of situation, you get to where the boss runs the show."

Nater, 6-10, was the Squires' No. 1 draft pick last season after he spent most of his college career on the bench at UCLA.

He played in 16 games this season, averaging 13.3 points and 6.6 rebounds per game. The Netherlands native had started only three games but Bianchi said he is going to give Nater and the team's other rookies more playing time after the squad's 5-11 start this year.

Bianchi also said he knew of no deadline set for the team's sale.

"This deadline situation is not an ultimatum but just a question of whether someone is going to buy the team or it goes back to the league," he said. "I have no idea if it's between now and Dec. 1, I'd expect it to go back to the league."

ABA boss upholds protest

NEW YORK (UPI) — American Basketball Association Commissioner Mike Storen upheld Tuesday a protest by the San Antonio Spurs, marking the first time in the seven-year history of the league that a decision has been made to replay any portion of a game.

Storen ruled that the final 30 seconds of a game between the Spurs and Indiana Pacers, originally played on Nov. 14, be replayed.

The protest was prompted by a referee's call in the final seconds of the game at San Antonio, with the Spurs leading 83-81.

San Antonio had gained possession of the ball in the backcourt with 34 seconds remaining. Four seconds later, still in their backcourt, San Antonio had the ball knocked out of bounds by an Indiana player.

Instead of being given an additional 10 seconds to bring the ball past midcourt as the rules require, a backcourt violation was called on San Antonio after seven seconds, with Indiana then given possession.

The Pacers then scored a three-point field goal, winning the game 84-83.

Storen ruled that the game clock should be reset to 30 seconds, the 30-second shot clock reset to 26 seconds and that San Antonio be given the ball out of bounds on the baseline in its backcourt with 10 seconds to advance the ball past midcourt. The score would revert to 83-81 in favor of the Spurs.

Even LSU impressed by Alabama's grid statistics

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Even Louisiana State coach Charlie McClendon seems a little awed by Alabama's statistics.

After all, second-ranked Alabama leads the Southeastern Conference in total offense, total defense, rushing offense and scoring. Bear Bryant's team has a 387 yards per game rushing average, over 500 yards per game in total offense, and has averaged 41.2 points per game.

"I guess maybe if you look at it on paper, I don't guess there's any reason for us to play the game, because offensively and defensively and in the kicking game—the three phases of the game—they outrank the Tigers in every phase," said McClendon.

But before anyone decides to pass up LSU-Alabama's nationally televised game Thursday for a third helping of turkey and dressing, McClendon is quick to point out that "statistics don't put points on paper," he said. "What's acquired on paper means past accomplishments. It doesn't say anything about what's going to happen or what is happening."

And seventh-rated LSU is Alabama's equal in the most important statistic — games won. Both LSU and Alabama are 9-0 and their game will decide the SEC championship. Their bowl bids are already tucked away—Alabama will play Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl while LSU will play Penn State in the Orange Bowl. McClendon said the game is the biggest that any of his teams have faced in his 12 seasons as head coach at LSU. "This is probably the biggest game I've had as far as a team is concerned," said McClendon. "I may have had other games that meant more to me personally." Alabama's offense is led by senior halfback Wilbur Jackson who has averaged 8.6 yards a try for 639 yards this year. Crimson Tide quarterbacks Gary Ruttledge and Richard Todd have combined for 641 yards rushing and 1,012 yards passing and a total of 15 touchdowns. LSU may have to play Alabama without two of its starters on the right side of the offensive line. LSU's offense is led by quarterback Mike Miley and tailback Brad Davis. Miley has completed 44 of 78 passes for 703 yards and seven touchdowns.

From all angles

A question from a reader asks basically how many basketball players have the colleges of Idaho sent into the professional ranks. And, we assume from the tone of the letter, isn't the leader, College of Southern Idaho?

The only thing we have to go on is memory, which could be a trifle faulty but should be fairly close.

University of Idaho has sent two into the NBA. The first, again to our knowledge, was a man from Walla Walla, Wash., who played center at Idaho and played a year or two with the Boston Celtics. That was around 1950. Then, of course, there's Gus Johnson, who played only one season for the Vandala, leaving school when Joe Cipriano moved to Nebraska, and found great fame in the NBA until his knees gave way.

By the same token, however, Boise Junior College must be credited with Johnson, too, since he went there a year before going farther north.

College of Idaho can boast that Elgin Baylor, regarded by many as the best forward in the game's history and a member of the NBA hall of fame, attended the Caldwell school as a freshman before transferring to Seattle University.

Idaho State contributes Ron Boone, currently one of the ABA's top scorers with the Utah Stars. The Bengals have had probably more basketballers drafted than the other schools but we recall only Boone lasting much longer than a while.

College of Southern Idaho has three in the pro ranks — all three rookies this season. They are Ron Behagen, with Kansas City-Omaha; Tim Bassett, with San Diego of the ABA, and Nate Stephens. Stephens played here only one season before moving to Creighton with Coach Eddie Sutton, then to Long Beach State.

None of those listed is an Idaho native. The only one that we recall making it for any length of time was Gary Freeman, a 1965 graduate of Borah. He attended Oregon State.

Magie Valley football teams did not fare well at all in the recent playoffs and there generally is a feeling among the participating coaches that their boys weren't really up for the game.

One of the two winners, Mike Matthews, felt his Deyle Hornets started a little under par emotionally but then came up well. Murtaugh felt their payers were in good stead.

Buhl Coach Jon Jund, whose Indians were defeated, said he felt his boys had the "mindome jitters" and never did recover. However, he said they had been higher prior to two games he could easily recall. Valley didn't play much until the second half.

Wendell Coach Yogi Behrens, another of those losing a playoff, said "I felt they were up for the game. All year they said they wanted a playoff. But when we got into the playoff we did things and made mistakes we hadn't made all season." "I think the problem really is there's nothing to play for. It really becomes just another game and it's more fun to make the playoff than to play in it. That's because it is the goal of the season," he said.

Of course, Camas County waltzed to a third straight playoff but here, following the contention of Coach Behrens, there's an added kicker. It is billed as the state eight-man football championship. That's an incentive even if it isn't really officially recognized by the state activities association. The others simply are an inter-district playoff leading to an 11th game but no more.

TD record

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — Billy Johnson rushed for three touchdowns Wednesday night to become collegiate football's all-time three season TD scorer as he led Widener College to a 49-20 rout of Fordham University in the Thanksgiving Bowl at Convention Hall.

Johnson's three touchdowns boosted his three year mark to 62, eclipsing the old mark of 60. The four season record is 64. Johnson dashed four, 65 and seven yards for his touchdowns and wound up with 215 yards rushing on 27 carries.

For his collegiate career, the 5-foot-9, 170 pound halfback had a total of 3,735 yards rushing on 412 carries, and finished with 1,502 yards on 169 carries this season.

Dallas must top Miami to keep bowl hope alive

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins and Dallas Cowboys gather for a holiday collision Thursday in a game that means a lot more to Dallas than it does to the defending Super Bowl champions.

Miami—rucked up another AFC East title last week with its 17-6 decision over Buffalo, but Dallas is embroiled in a battle to secure its eighth straight playoff berth.

"If we both play up to our potential it should be a low-scoring, tough football game, but with men like (Paul) Warfield, (Marlin) Briscoe and (Bob) Hayes running around you never can tell," said Cowboy coach Tom Landry. Kickoff for the nationally televised game is 2:30 PM CST.

A sellout crowd, only the second of the season for Texas Stadium, will be on hand.

Dallas goes into the game deadlocked with Washington for first place in the NFC East and will know before kickoff whether it must whip the Dolphins to stay in that position. Both the Cowboys and Redskins are 7-3.

Washington meets Detroit earlier Thursday in Detroit.

"We have got to be able to move the ball against their defense," said Landry, referring to the AFC's defensive leader. "If you are forced to throw the ball we are against you."

The Cowboys have had an inconsistent offense through the entire season—looking good one week and flat the next—and now injuries have cropped up on Dallas' defensive unit.

Both of Dallas' defensive ends, Larry Cole and Pat Toomay, could be forced out of Thursday's game in which case they would be replaced by rookie Harvey Martin and third-year man Bill Gregory.

Miami's biggest concern is over defensive back Jake Scott, who is listed as probable despite a dislocated thumb.

This is the first regular season meeting between Miami and Dallas, although they met in Super Bowl VI, captured by the Cowboys, 24-3.

Dallas also won a preseason meeting this year, 26-23.

"We've never beaten Dallas and this will be our third meeting," said Miami coach Don Shula. "That in itself should be incentive enough."

"It's always tough preparing for Dallas, and with a shorter time than usual it's even tougher. Preparing for their variety of formations on offense takes time for the defense."

HAPPY HUNTER Lynn VanWagoner, Twin Falls, displays the 1,500-pound moose he shot during a hunting trip near Cave Falls above Ashton recently. The moose, which boasted a 46 1/2-inch spread, was one of three found simultaneously by VanWagoner and he picked out the largest. An elk hunter reported seeing the three to VanWagoner who then backtracked the tipsters.

Nicklaus-Miller team favored in world cup meet

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — One hundred golfers representing 46 countries tee off for the 21st World Cup today with the favored U.S. team of Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller facing a strong challenge from the defending champions Hsieh Min-Nam and Lai Liang Hunn of Taiwan and South Africa's Hugh Baiocchi and Gary Player.

Hsieh, who also won individual honors to add to the team title in last year's World Cup at Melbourne, attacked the flag all the way Wednesday to win the professional division of the Pro-Am tournament, the traditional curtain-raiser to the four-day, 72-hole tournament.

The short, shrewd Hsieh scored 67 to tie the record for the difficult 6,905-yard, par-72 Nueva Andalucia course. He had an eagle three on the par-five third hole and exploded out of a bunker for a birdie three on the par-four 14th.

Miller shot a 71, and Nicklaus, still pacing and charting the course on which he was playing only his second round, a 77.

"The course is in excellent condition but not conducive to low scoring," Nicklaus said.

Still, on the basis of performances this year, the U.S. pair was overwhelmingly rated favorites by golf officials assembled here. Miller, the current U.S. Open champ, appeared to be satisfied with his game, especially with his putting on the fast and tricky course designed by Robert Trent Jones.

One thing worrying officials was the weather, which has been unseasonably cool and wet. Today's forecast was for cloudy skies with possible rain and high winds.

With many players still trying to get acquainted with the course, pro-am results did not appear to be overly conclusive.

Still, adding up pro scores in the Pro-Am tournament produced some good hints as to the form of the teams.

South Africa's pair had the lowest score with Baiocchi shooting a 69 and Player a 71 for an aggregate of 140. Adding Hsieh's 67 to Lai's 74, Taiwan's pros totaled 141 in the Pro-Am.

Japan's Toru Nakamura, at 22, the youngest player in the field, and his team-mate Isao Aoki both had 71s, which gave the runner-up team of the 1972 World Cup a theoretical 142—the same aggregate as New Zealand's two pros, Simon Owen with 68 and Dennis Clark with 74.

Miller's 71 and Nicklaus' 77 added up to 148, eight strokes more than Baiocchi and Player's 140.

The World Cup, which is long on honor but short on prize money—cash prizes total a $7,500—is being played on Spains Costa del Sol for the first time, although the 1965 edition, won by Player and fellow South African Harold Henning, also took place in Spain—in Madrid.

Rose Bowl 'big tilt' scheduled on coast

By IRA MILLER
UPI Sports Writer

Contrary to popular belief, there's only one "big game" in college football this Saturday and it will be played at Los Angeles between UCLA and Southern California.

Sure, Ohio State and Michigan meet for the "Big Ten" title... or is it the "Little Ten"...

At Ann Arbor, Mich., but if the recent past is any indication it doesn't matter which team gets through that game undefeated. It still will be beaten in the Rose Bowl.

Ohio State is ranked No. 1 and Michigan No. 4 but the Big Ten really is living on its past reputation. The Pacific-8 champion has won the Rose Bowl four years in a row and in six of the last eight years, and most of the time its victories have been called "upsets."

There's no reason to believe the 1974 Rose Bowl should be any different than, say, 1972, when an unbeaten Michigan team lost to Stanford, or 1971, when Stanford defeated an undefeated Ohio State team, or 1966, when UCLA beat an undefeated Michigan State team in the Rose Bowl.

It may be closer, however, than Southern Cal's 42-17 blowout of one of Ohio State's supposed powerhouses a year ago.

UCLA, winners of nine straight games since an opening loss to Nebraska, is favored to beat Southern Cal in their showdown game and Ohio State is given an edge over Michigan, in both cases by less than a touchdown. Both games will be on national television.

The big Thanksgiving weekend of football actually began Thursday and continues today with Nebraska playing at Oklahoma. The Sooners are two-touchdown favorites to win and clinch the Big Eight championship, but they're not going to a bowl game since they're on probation.

Nebraska, headed for a Cotton Bowl date with Texas, still can win the Big Eight if it beats Oklahoma and then Oklahoma State does the same next week.

Saturday's schedule of "traditional" contests also includes the Pitt-Penn State showdown for the Eastern title at University Park, Pa.

The unbeaten, sixth-ranked Lions—headed for the Orange Bowl against LSU—have beaten Pitt easily for the last seven seasons, or ever since Joe Paterno became their coach, but this year's game may be a little more competitive than the others. Pitt has a winning record, 6-1-1, and is going to a bowl, the Fiesta. The game features two of college football's best running backs: Penn State's John Cappelletti and Pitt freshman Tony Dorsett.

Arizona State meets Arizona for the Western Athletic Conference title and spot in the Fiesta Bowl opposite Pitt in another matchup Saturday.

And up at Syracuse, N.Y. Ben Schwartzwalder closes out one of college football's greatest careers when he coaches his final game as Syracuse, a dismal 2-8 this season, meets West Virginia. Schwartzwalder, whose teams have won one national and four Eastern titles, has compiled a 153-90-3 record in 25 seasons at Syracuse.

'Holiday' will go to loser of Ohio State-Michigan contest

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Holiday? Sure, right after the Ohio State-Michigan game—but only for the winner.

Thanksgiving Day will be just like any other practice day for the squads of both Woody Hayes and Bo Schembechler as they prepare their teams for Saturday's Big Ten and Rose Bowl game at Michigan Stadium.

Schembechler, coach of the fourth-rated Wolverines, was rejoicing with the coming of the holiday. Hayes probably was too.

"It'll mean less distractions," Schembechler said. "The kids will be going home for the weekend and we'll be able to concentrate more."

Concentration is indeed the key for Michigan against top-rated Ohio State. The Wolverines can't afford any of the mistakes that have plagued them this season when they take on the Buckeyes, favored by only three points since they aren't at home.

The risk of a costly mistake would indicate this potentially epic struggle could degenerate into an ultra demonstration of the Big Ten's conservative philosophy of offense: each team will run three plays into the middle of the line and then punt.

Schembechler seemingly doubts the ability of his defense to contain the Buckeyes, or at least prevent them from scoring.

"We have to avoid giving up the big play and possess the ball some," he said. "Our offense helped a year ago by controlling the ball, but our defense gave up the big play."

Ohio State won that one, 14-11. Michigan has the edge in kicking for this game. Freshman Tom Skladany of Ohio State has only punted 32 times for a 35.7 yard average. Senior Barry Dotzauer of Michigan has averaged 39 yards for his 49 punts.

The biggest edge is place kicking. Junior Mike Lantry, a left-footed kicker, has put balls out of the end zone from his own 30 on kickoffs and has a school record 51-yard field goal this season.

"He's a strong kid," Schembechler said of his three-point man. "He's one of the most dedicated kickers I've ever seen. The big difference between this year and last year is consistency and confidence."

He throws the shotput 55 feet, you know," Schembechler said of Lantry, a former Marine who served in Vietnam. "And I played slow pitch with him this past summer—he hit every one out of the park. That's how strong he is."

But the coach didn't call on him for last year's game. The Wolverines were pushing the Buckeyes all over the field and Schembechler felt if you can't make one yard when you need it—which his team didn't—you don't deserve to win.

You can expect the same thing this year, unless Michigan has trouble moving the ball. Then Mike Lantry might see a lot of action from the Ohio State 40 yard line.

Los Angeles tops Bullets

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Los Angeles, led by seven-foot center Elmore Smith, poured through five unanswered points in the final period Wednesday night to break open the bulgame and defeat the Capital Bullets 106-97.

Gail Goodrich led the Lakers, who played without starters Jerry West and Bill Bridges, with 24 points.

San Diego rips Cougars

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The San Diego Conquistadors, led by rookie guard Bo Lamar's 36 points, scored a 139-125 ABA victory over Carolina Wednesday night, handing the Cougars their worst defeat of the season.

The Q's, leading 71-67 at the half, shot 61 per cent in the third period and outrebounded the Cougars 17-10 during the period, opening up a 109-89 bulge with 50 seconds left in the quarter.

Nets demolish Utah 105-92

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Rookie forward Billy Schaeffer scored a career high 18 points, all in the second half, Wednesday night to pace the New York Nets to a 105-92 victory over the Utah Stars.

Julius Erving's 18 points in the opening half paced the Nets to a 48-40 halftime lead.

However, Net rookie forward Larry Kenon got in foul trouble in the third quarter and Schaeffer got his chance.

Erving paced all scorers with 28 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and was credited with six assists. John Roche chipped in with 10 points for the Nets.

Tams riddle Pacers 108-99

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Rookie forward Charlie Edge scored 10 points and had eight rebounds in the last quarter as the Tams squashed the Indiana Pacers, 108-99 Wednesday night in American Basketball Association play.

Tams guard Johnny Neumann led the game with 28 points, and guard George Thompson had 16.

Indiana forward George McGinnis led the Pacers, scoring with 24 and guard Don Freeman collected 22.

Church leader thankful

SALT LAKE CITY — President Harold B. Lee, world leader of the LDS Church has called upon all Americans to join together in expressions of gratitude to God for his blessings upon us.

In his message for Thanksgiving, 1973, President Lee said:

"Again at this season we pause to give thanks to that Power which hath made and preserved us a nation."

"We have so much to be thankful for. Even the troubles in which we presently find ourselves remind us of the genius of the government under which we live. For nearly two centuries we have been prospered and blessed under a constitution which Gladstone declared to be "the most wonderful work ever struck off at a given time by the brain and purpose of man."

"During these two centuries many nations have come and gone, or they have painfully passed through the travail of changes in their governmental structure, while this nation "under God" has weathered every crisis which has confronted it. It has done so under a Constitution which was inspired by the Almighty for the blessing of his children."

"The priceless freedoms of the Bill of Rights are the envy of millions over the earth. Let us give thanks for the precious boon of liberty—vouchsafed under the heaven-inspired charter of our government," he said.

British leader warns Arabs 'knife has 2 edges'

By RAYMOND R. COFFEY

(c) Chicago Daily News

LONDON — As their oil cuts sliced deeper into British life and comforts Tuesday, the Arab states were bluntly warned that a knife has two edges.

Prime Minister Edward Heath warned that by cutting back on oil supplies the Arabs "run the risk of heavily damaging their friends in Europe."

And this, he said, was bound to make it more difficult for (the European Common Market) and others to find the resources to help the rest of the developing world.

Heath, speaking to parliament Monday, also observed that the steadily rising oil prices resulting from Arab policies "could be offset by the purchases the Arabs and their friends in the other developing countries have to make from the industrialized nations that use the oil.

Until, Heath spoke Britain had been bending over backwards, to the point of embarrassment, trying to mollify the Arabs and assure its own oil supplies by persuading the Arab oil states that it deserved a place on the list of "friendly" nations.

And in fact Britain and its Common Market partners, except for Holland, have been exempted from the next monthly 5 per cent cutback in oil supplies.

But Britain's fuel situation is still perilous and becoming more so, and Heath's warning was the first hint from Britain of possible unpleasant consequences for the Arabs. The Arabs until now have been almost swept away in exultation at the success they've had in using the oil weapon as a means of exerting international pressure on Israel.

But the Arab states themselves and most of their strongest supporters, are developing "third world" nation badly in need of help and technology from the oil-gulping industrial nations.

And their interests and those of their friends can be damaged if they push the oil weapon too hard.

Heath's warning came as his government ordered a 10-per cent cut in deliveries of all gasoline and other oil products effective immediately.

The order applied to suppliers and did not involve direct rationing — though that may come next, and soon.

Motorists were also asked to cut maximum speeds to 50 miles an hour to conserve gas, and to avoid Sunday driving as much as possible.

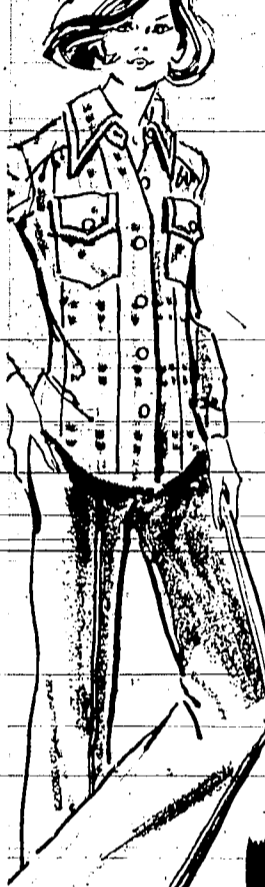

Britain's energy problems are more complicated than most other European countries because it is also threatened by current labor disputes involving the coal miners and electric power workers.

Mexico fights terrorism

Naive

Boise sets change

By ROBERT R. THOSTEL.
(c) Chicago Daily News
MEXICO CITY — The mayor of the city of Guadalajara, Jalisco, has asked for military assistance to help stem terrorism in that city, Mexico's second largest.

In the last year, Guadalajara has had more than a hundred shootings, kidnappings, bombings and robberies with a possible political motivation. Earlier this year U.S. Consul Terrance Leonhardy was kidnapped and returned safely after the government complied with kidnapers' demands to fly a number of "political" prisoners to Cuba and pay a cash ransom for the diplomat. Last month honorary British Vice Consul Anthony Duncan Williams and prominent industrialist Fernando Aranguen were also kidnapped in Guadalajara. In their case, however, the government refused to comply with demands to pay $200,000 cash and fly fifty-one "political" prisoners to North Korea. Williams was released by the kidnapers after being "judged" innocent of being a bourgeois capitalist, but Aranguen was killed and his body left in the trunk of a car in Guadalajara.

There have also been a number of bombings against banks, government buildings and public utilities.

The son of the city's fire chief was recently shot and killed. Last week, two soldiers were killed and robbed of their weapons and ammunition. This morning two more students were shot.

On November 10th Guadalajara Police Chief Jesus Ahumada resigned saying that he could not produce any concrete leads to the solution of these crimes. Since his resignation no new progress seems to have been made in dealing with the situation.

One government official told the daily news that "Guadalajara is experiencing a manifestation of increased left wing guerrilla activity which is on the upswing throughout Latin America. Guadalajara represents one of the best targets in Mexico for violence because it combines a large wealthy foreign community wealthy national industrialists, a large politically conservative block, and a well organized left wing sector of the population."

He said that the problem will be difficult to cope with because these terrorist groups are very small and appear to operate in a number of uncoordinated groups.

Alfonso Barrera, press spokesman for the Guadalajara mayor's office said "the mayor has simply asked for military aid under a provision of our constitution which allows him to request this type of aid when the safety of the population is threatened. This aid is only being used to protect banks in order to free the police force for other work. Although Guadalajara has the largest American community living in Mexico, other than the kidnaping of Leonhardy, the Americans have not been affected.

PARIS (UPI) — The Duchess of Windsor said today readers would be naive to believe a new book that says her greatest love was not the former king of England but an Argentine diplomat.

The Duchess was asked to comment on "The Women He Loved," a biography of her by Ralph G. Martin, author of best-selling biographies of Sir Winston Churchill, Franklin D. Roosevelt and others.

"The excerpts that I have been told about do not deserve my comment on my part," the duchess said.

"If some readers are naive enough to believe what is printed about me, I can only feel sorry for them."

Excerpts from the book were published in the Ladies' Home Journal.

BOISE (UPI) — Meter madd Monday night for his plan to transfer meter mads to the city treasurer's office.

Prince given odd gifts

LAUNCESTON, England (UPI) — Prince Charles received, among other oddities, two greyhounds, a pound of pepper, a hunting bow, gilt spurs and a load of firewood Monday.

They were presented to him, as his due as the Duke of Cornwall, by his Duchy tenants. The heir to the British throne also received a pound of herbs, a grey cloak, 100 old shillings, a giant salmon spear and a pair of giant gloves.

The ceremonial handing over of tenants' dues last held 37 years ago — dates back to 1337, to the time when Edward the Black Prince, the first Duke of Cornwall, regularly rode down to the duchy for some hunting and a good time with his friends.

The ceremony, watched by thousands of spectators, took place on a green beneath Launceston's Norman-bulwark and was witnessed by befurred, cock-hatted duchy mayors and mace bearers.

Prince Charles received the greyhounds from Lt. Col. John Molesworth-St. Aubyn of the Manor of Elerky in Vern in the West Division of the Hundred of Powder.

he keeps — the Prince handed out a white rod as a kind of receipt.

With the exception of the dogs the dues were stored in Launceston Museum which now has a virtually complete feudal dues kit for the next ceremony.

The quaint rents have remained a colorful hangover from England's days of old when knights were bold and a pound of pepper, a grey cloak and salmon spear were no mean gifts.

But today the duchy, which has many large estates in Cornwall and Devon, demands something more substantial from its tenants.

Mood of Egyptians called 'determined psychological mobilization'

By HENRY TANNER
(c) New York Times

CAIRO — Almost a month after the cease-fire with Israel, the authorities and citizens of Cairo maintain a stance of determined psychological mobilization. The blackout is still in full force. For about two hours after dusk, darkened shops cater to a fraction of the usual evening crowd and meals are served hurriedly in half-empty restaurants whose windows are papered over. After 11 the streets are totally dark and empty — a strange sight in a city where in more normal times the cafes and little food stores are busy until dawn. The universities are still closed and no date for their reopening has been set. Sandbags still protect the

where the wealthy and elegant normally gather, peasant women in dark robes and headscarfs seek out the building where their wounded soldier sons are convalescing. In a nearby field, teenagers standing at three tables are taught by army officers how to assemble, dismantle and handle small arms.

At a grade school in Heliopolis, a residential suburb, the other morning, boys from 7 to 15 stood at attention in straight rows saluting the flag and singing patriotic songs before marching off to their classrooms. They marched in unison to the drum of a school band and swung their arms high like soldiers.

Patriotic plays are running in most Cairo theaters and on television the themes of liberation and war are emphasized in the movies. "Pull yourself together," with its joyful exuberance and its exhortation to accept pain and endure, is a good reflection of Cairo's mood. The crossing of the Suez Canal on Oct. 6 was an act of liberation for most Egyptians. The cease-fire came as a bitter disappointment. And the mood, from officials to modest citizens, now is that the fight has never really stopped. It is being fought by other means such as oil, and the possibility of new fighting remains present in virtually everybody's mind. The average Egyptian feels that the Israeli thrust onto the west bank of the canal and the encirclement of Suez city has not in any way diminished the Egyptian army's initial victory in crossing the canal and establishing itself in the Sinai for the first time in six years.

Writer awarded prize

PARIS — This year's Goncourt prize was awarded Monday to the Swiss writer Jacques Chessex for his novel, "L'Ogre."

France's most coveted literary award thus went to a fairly traditional psychological novel of almost classical formal perfection on the theme of how an overpowering father figure drives a son to suicide. The short 235-page novel, the author's fourth, is partly autobiographical.

Chessex is a 39-year-old Lausanne high school teacher of French literature whose father, also a college professor, had a powerful personality. Similarly, "The Ogre's" hero a Lausanne college professor and his father, a physician, is properly overwhelming. But in the novel, the father's sexual prestige so impressed the son that even after the father's death his image haunts him, to the point that he is unable to cope in a love affair with a teenage girl and chooses death.

Yet from a previous, closely autobiographical novel by Chessex, the reader would know that in real life, the author is rebellious and strong. And according to Grasset, his publisher here, he married, was divorced and now lives with someone else.

It was the first time that the 70-year-old Goncourt prize went to a French-speaking Swiss writer. In his home country, Chessex already has a reputation, for his novels as well as for several volumes of poetry.

While Goncourt prize recipients still get the same number of Francs as in 1963 — 50 (about $11) — their books are assured of sales in the hundred thousands of copies. The tall, mustachioed author said here today that his novel had a didactic purpose, to help his Calvinist-educated countrymen — "among them many of the intellectuals and especially the teachers" — to overcome their complexes "through a better understanding of their difficulties."

Chief loses home, wife after UFO

(c) Newhouse News Service
PAIKVILLE, Min. — A little more than a month after Falkville Police Chief Jeff Greenhaw photographed what he believes to be a silver-suited creature from outer space, he has lost his automobile, his home and his wife.

The 23-year-old police chief drew national attention Oct. 17 when he photographed a metallic looking "being" after a woman called that an unidentified flying object had landed.

Greenhaw became a national celebrity, his picture on television and front pages.

Then he started getting threatening telephone calls. One caller told his wife of three and one-half years, "I'm going to get your husband for taking my picture."

Greenhaw says that on Oct. 21, "My car engine blew up." Three days later, his wife left him and Greenhaw filed for divorce. It was granted. While Greenhaw was at a football game, his mobile home was destroyed by fire.

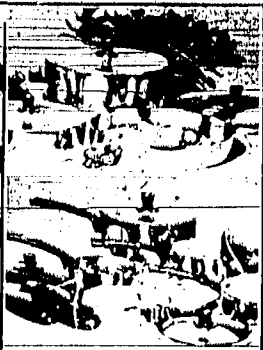

"It almost seems like somebody or something wants me to leave Paikville," he said, "but I've already made up my mind that I am not going to leave."

Greenhaw said he now believes the object he photographed was a being from an alien planet.

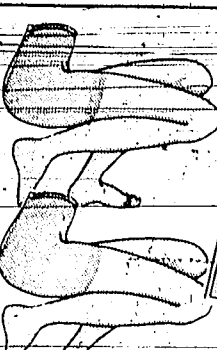

"Why shouldn't there be life on another planet?" he asked. Then he went fishing, with fingers crossed.

Wild Horse Act useful

(c) Chicago Daily News
 WASHINGTON — The Wild Horse Act, which Congress passed at the urging of a "children's lobby" two years ago, is proving its usefulness. "We feel if there had not been a law passed two years ago, there would be no wild horses today," commented Mrs. Joan Blue, vice president of the American Horse Protection Assn. (AHPA).

Because it is now illegal for ranchers to round up wild horses and sell them for dog food, Rep. Gilbert Gude (R-Md.) and the AHPA, along with other congressional friends of wild horses were able to do something when the law was violated last February.

Sixty wild horses had been rounded up near Howe, Idaho. Nearly half stampeded off a cliff to their deaths after having "hog rings" affixed to their nostrils, the 37 survivors were shipped back to Idaho Falls, Idaho, and are being held at the Union Pacific stockyards.

Four of the 19 have brands on them and apparently got into the wild horse roundup accidentally. The remaining 15 will be set free if they are not claimed as private property. To make certain that the horses are released so that they can be returned to roam "wild and free" on the public lands, Gude disclosed that he himself has filed with the appropriate authorities at the Bureau of Land Management a claim to the 15 horses.

Gude introduced the law two years ago that evolved into the Wild Horse Act at the urging of his son, Greg. Then, 12, Greg had become interested in the plight of America's wild horses through a book he received for Christmas. Thousands of children and adult horse lovers joined Greg in urging Congress to pass the law after Gude introduced it. At his news conference, Gude was critical of the Bureau of Land Management which is charged with enforcing the law. He said that a local BLM official reportedly had given verbal permission for the illegal roundup. "I am very disappointed with the Bureau of Land Management," Gude said. "It has dragged its feet on enforcing the law." The law provides for a penalty upon violation of up to one year in prison or a $2,000 fine for each violation, or both. No action has been taken against the ranchers involved in the roundup, according to Gude, because the Justice Department feels it has insufficient evidence. Because of the law, however, Gude said there are still 17,000 wild horses alive today.

Anne cherishes gift

LONDON (UPI) — Among the Chippendale jewels, bone china and other fine wedding gifts lay a tiny, solitary toffee.

The candy, sent by two little girls, was displayed with three rooms full of glittering wedding gifts sent to newlyweds Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips when the presents went on public display Tuesday.

Anne, in an interview before her wedding at Westminster Abbey last week, said the candy was one of the presents she and Phillips cherished most among the 2,000 gifts they received.

No amnesty for B. Arnold

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite pleas from historians, the Army will not grant amnesty to America's most famous traitor — Maj. Gen. Benedict Arnold, convicted two centuries ago of misconduct in office.

Dr. Vincent A. Lindner, a history buff from Scotch Plains, N.J., several months ago brought the case of Arnold before the Army Board for Correction of Military Records, saying the evidence was insufficient for convicting Arnold in 1780.

Raymond J. Williams, secretary of the board, said Monday: "Our concern was to see the guy (Arnold) get a fair shake. But the evidence Dr. Lindner produced was not sufficient to raise a reasonable doubt of Arnold's guilt among the board." He said the five board members were unanimous in refusing amnesty to Arnold.

Williams explained that: z lb3nold 7720abfvarfated for treason in betraying the plans of the fort at West Point, N.Y., to the B u ck dtibeforo he could be captured and later served as a redcoat officer.

But before going to West Point, Arnold was military commander at Philadelphia.

Protests from Congress and the AHPA put a stop to the slaughter and led to the federal government taking the horses into custody. Nineteen of the 37 horses who arrived in North Platte are still alive today. The others were in such bad shape they died or had to be killed. The 19 survivors have been shipped back to Idaho Falls, Idaho, and are being held at the Union Pacific stockyards.

Four of the 19 have brands on them and apparently got into the wild horse roundup accidentally. The remaining 15 will be set free if they are not claimed as private property.

To make certain that the horses are released so that they can be returned to roam "wild and free" on the public lands, Gude disclosed that he himself has filed with the appropriate authorities at the Bureau of Land Management a claim to the 15 horses. Retailers remain flexible

(c) New York Times Service
 NEW YORK — Rarely during the year do so few days mean so much to so many retailers.

The 27 shopping days that begin Friday should represent 20 to 25 per cent of the entire year's business for most of the country's 1.6 million retail stores. This could add up to sales of $122 billion if hopes for an 8 per cent increase over last year's total are realized.

The hopes are based, as always, on an elusive quantity: the typical American consumer. And this year, perhaps, there is a particularly elusive element because of a complex brew of social, political and economic circumstances.

Last spring, when the nation's retailers mapped their fall and Christmas buying strategies, few envisioned a worsening of the Watergate situation, a Mid-east war, an energy shortage or even lingering inflation.

The impact of these on the consumer was heavy, at least on his state of mind. But the effect on retail sales was uncertain. Some months sales were up more than others, and the trend began slowing.

After waiting almost too long — into mid-October, when most merchandise had already been shipped to the stores and paid for — many merchants decided to hold down further buying and carefully trim their expenses.

The rest is up to the buffeted consumer. Will he throw off his worries in a gift-buying binge? Will gifts be more sober, more practical than in other years? How can retailers operate effectively in a market obscured by shadows?

Interviews this week with three representative retailers (each in a different segment of retailing — department stores, specialty stores and discount stores) disclosed a strong intent to put on the brakes while remaining as flexible as possible.

WASHINGTON — Strip mining of coal from the American West, on a crash basis, remains the keystone of President Nixon's answer to the nation's widening energy gap.

enough water for reclamation without requiring large-scale diversion.
 Nixon administration officials are depending on Western coal, which is low in sulfur, to fill a large part of the nation's fuel needs over the next few decades — until such new energy sources as breeder reactors, fusion power and solar energy are developed.

According to geologists, the Northern Plains contain more than 30 billion tons of strip-minable coal. In addition, there is nearly as much coal on Indian-held lands in the Southwest.
 Coal gasification — still a commercially unproven process — is seen by energy officials as the key to harnessing this huge resource.

They joined forces with Eastern environmental groups two weeks ago in a court suit designed to prevent a government agency from selling water to support the large-scale gasification of coal and power-generating complexes envisioned on the Northern Great Plains.
 The suit, if successful, would block the federal Bureau of Reclamation's plan to divert more than 1 million acre feet of water a year to mining interests.

Already, the agency has granted options for 623,000 acre feet of water to at least a dozen companies interested in developing coal gasification or liquefaction plants, including Exxon, Mobil, Shell, Gulf, Peabody Coal Co., Reynolds Mining, Panhandle Eastern Pipeline and the Colorado Interstate Gas Co.
 Without the water, plans envisioned by the Nixon administration and industry for producing gas from 300 million tons of coal a year — half of last year's total United States output — would collapse.

The ranchers contend the Bureau of Reclamation has no authority to divert water from federally-financed irrigation projects such as the Boysen and Yellowstone dams near the Montana-Wyoming border. To do so, the ranchers claim, reclamation officials must get new authority from congress.
 The suit, joined by the New York-based Environmental Defense Fund and the Natural Resources Defense Council, is pending before federal district court in Billings, Mont.

While the legal battle might slow development of coal gasification, it would not block administration plans to transport Western strip-mined coal by rail as far east as Chicago and as far south as Louisiana. Such surface mining operations require only limited amounts of water for land reclamation. The coal companies maintain they have

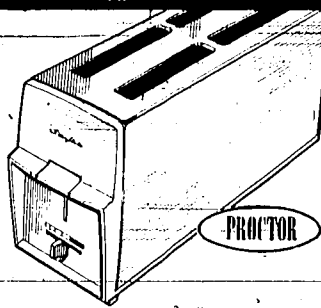

Canadian oil fuss continues

(c) New York Times Service
OTTAWA — Unlike all the other industrialized countries of the west, Canada produces more oil than she consumes, but that does not prevent oil from being increasingly the subject here of public bellowing and sharp political dispute.

The suppliers, the consumers and the government are all suddenly preoccupied with a problem that they have not known before. And as Canada's long, harsh winter begins, there is even talk of rationing.
 In Alberta, where most of the oil comes from, the provincial government has angrily broken off energy discussions with Ottawa, and on the floor of the House of Commons here, the parliamentary opposition lends boisterous discussions about the energy problem every day.

Elsewhere in this huge rich land, which is the United States' largest foreign supplier of oil, Canadians are paying higher prices for heating oil and gasoline this week, and worrying about government warnings that there will be further price increases, and quite possibly severe shortages, before spring.

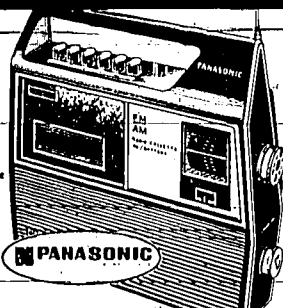

The present crisis which Canada finds itself in is due to the deplorable lack of planning by the federal government over the past 10 years, declared Thomas C. Douglas, a leader of the new Democratic Party, which holds the fragile balance of power in the house, in a speech expressing a standard theme of the weeks-old debate. Canada has plenty of oil, and it would be self-sufficient with a bit of export capacity left over, if there were adequate pipeline connections from the west where the oil is, to the east

Soviets also have problems

(c) New York Times Service MOSCOW — While Americans debate the propriety of expensive improvements on President Nixon's private homes, the Soviet press is exposing officials in the Georgian Republic for diverting public funds to build a thorn-and-venice hunting lodge and forest hideaways.

The suits may not seem scandalous by American standards but they are enough to make Soviet eyes pop, especially when a paper like Pravda asserts that grandiose mansions were put up over a number of years "with the direct indulgence of the central committee of the Communist Party of Georgia, the Council of Ministers of the Republic, and the silent approval of the State Construction Trust of Georgia."

One mansion, with a billiards room, a marble staircase, and marble floors in the bathrooms was for higher-ups in the Georgian Republic Forestry Committee. It cost 137,000 rubles — nearly $193,000 — according to Pravda.

The Vartiansky state farm in Gori district spent 62,300 rubles on a well-upholstered guest house and the neighboring Kolkheti State Farm spent three times that amount on an even plusher version. The officials of the game and hunting reserves administration, the consumer society, a central cooperative administration, and other state agencies had similar fancy setups.

The masterpieces thus far, is a 350,000-ruble mansion in the Georgian "City of Makheta, put up for the top officials of the Georgian Cooperative Repair and Construction Enterprise. Nearly half the cost was for plush paneling, traditional Georgian metalwork and other artistic decorations. The furnishings for "the satisfaction of the esthetic, refined tastes" of the inhabitants. There were four, Pravda said.

A host of public and party officials have been ousted in a purge that has been going on since the ouster of the former party boss of Georgia, Vnally P. Zhavannadze, an alternate member of the politburo until his "retirement" in September, 1963.

His successor, Eduard A. Shevardnadze, a strict career official from the interior ministry and the Georgian communist party, has been engaged for 14 months in the most severe purge in the history of the Republic.

The Shevardnadze crackdown has turned up corruption in the court system, wide mismanagement of economic enterprises, and a variety of official malfeasance in the Republic where Stalin was born.

The Tuesday issue of the Georgian Communist Party newspaper, Zarya Vostoka, reaching here yesterday, reported that carelessly constructed hospitals became unusable after short periods and that hospital statistics were falsified to whitewash officials.

Chief doctors were said to have turned "transport set aside for the hospital into private cars for them and their families." Through corruption at the "Billisi Medical Institute, students were admitted "who lacked the essential minimum of knowledge," the paper said. Worse, it added, "violation of sanitation laws" in some medical establishments had become "the cause of human victims."

Thailand will leave Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos — Thailand will withdraw all its irregular forces from Laos by next June 13, their former commander was quoted as saying in Thailand's English-language daily, the Bangkok Post.

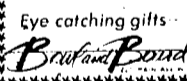

Lt. Gen. Viton Aswas was reported as saying that 13 of the 30 Thai battalions in Laos had been withdrawn by July 1, 1973, and that by the new year only 10 Thai battalions would remain.

The general added that if a Lao coalition government is formed before June 30, the Thais would withdraw within 60 days of its formation as stipulated in the Laos protocols signed Sept. 4 between the Lao government and the Communist-led Pathet Lao.

At the height of Thai involvement, there were 17,700 Thais in a 30,000-man irregular army led and funded by the United States.

The remaining troops were Meo Hill people and Lowland Lao. These irregulars are scattered along Route 23 between Pakse and Pakxong in South Laos, at Sun Thong, Long Thong and Xieng Lom in North Laos, as well as the Sala Pou Koun greenroads between Vientiane and Luang Prabang.

These troops, U.S. officials say, will leave huge gaps in the Lao line when they are withdrawn, except for those at Xieng Lom — at Xieng Lom in northwest Laos close to the Thai border, the irregular troops share in the defense of Thailand itself.

TWIN FALLS — Seven cadets, the largest Magic Valley contingent to attend the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado, are currently receiving training there.
Maj. Larry Christensen, academy liaison officer in Twin Falls, said applications are now being prepared for additional appointments for the coming crop of cadets. He said high school students who are interested in entering the air force academy should begin preparing in their junior year of high school.

Selection of nominees is based on scholastic records, progress toward leadership in school, determination of participation in extracurricular activities and results of college testing programs.

Maj. Christensen said he is willing to meet with the students and discuss preparations and appointments. Ten senior high school students are selected as nominees for each congressional delegate from Idaho and selection is determined from this group at a rate of two cadets per delegate each year.

Christensen said the seven cadets now in the academy include Gary Arford and Pat Burbank, both Buhl; Pat Charlton and Brad Gerdes, both Twin Falls; Steven Keith and Clifton Peterson, both Jerome, and Paul Shrum, Glenns Ferry.
An Idaho Association of Academy Parents is being formed in Magic Valley. Mrs. Ruth Peterson, Jerome, reports. She said mothers of the cadets have been invited to join the group, the first in Idaho, and tobe expanded state wide.

Mrs. Peterson who recently visited her son at the academy, said larger areas maintain such organizations. Parents, through the organization, can keep in touch with academy programs and assist their sons during training.

One of the programs being conducted at the academy is the POW survival training. In this, cadets are subjected to pressures which would be used against them by the enemy to gain information.

RUPERT — Mr. and Mrs. Hauker Baldwinson, Haueragerdi, Iceland, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Edda Greenwell, to Scott Cunningham.
Cunningham is the son of Mrs. Sally Cunningham, Rupert, and the late Roy Cunningham.
The bride-elect attended high school in Iceland and the College of Southern Idaho. She is employed at the Medical Center Laboratory, Twin Falls.
Cunningham, a graduate of Minco High School, received his B.A. degree in political science from the University of Idaho in 1970. He is administrative assistant for region five of the Department of Environmental and Community Services.
The couple plans a Dec. 7 wedding in Trinity Lutheran Church, Rupert, with Rev. Leonard Mietzner officiating. They will reside in Twin Falls.

Abby

Couple recites promise

DEAR HEADERS: On Thanksgiving Day we thank God for our blessings. My personal blessings are many. Among them are the many letters I receive from those who read my column.

MAY I share a few letters with you that have made me thankful that I am Dear Abby:

DEAR ABBY: How does a person say, "Thank you, for saving my life?" I will be grateful to you for the rest of my days for recommending Overaters Anonymous to me.

I have been in this group for five months and have shed 50 pounds! "O.A." is a beautiful fellowship of people who are all hurting for the same reason—compulsive over-eating.

You have helped thousands of people like myself. I was told that one chapter alone received more than 20,000 letters from hurting people. I am able to wear blouses and slacks for the first time in 17 years. I am so grateful to you, Abby. You have given me new hope, happiness, and a feeling of self-worth I never knew possible. Love from all of us "O.A." members.

DEAR ABBY: I will forever be thankful to you for your column giving the Euthanasia Council address, [250 W. 57th St., New York] so I could send for a Living Will, demanding that I be allowed to die with dignity when my time comes.

When an animal gets old and sick, everyone says: "Aw, put the poor thing out of its misery." But human beings are kept alive in "convalescent homes." [Convalescing from what?]

It is just as natural to die as it is to live, so why deny God's will, and prolong needless suffering with transfusions, tubes, needles and drugs?

I could write about what happened to my mother. What was done to her was brutal. I even felt sorry for the poor doctors who knew all hope for recovery was gone, but who kept that poor 90-year-old alive month after month, not wanting to be accused of "murder." What nonsense!

Until euthanasia—which is not "mercy killing," but simply NOT prolonging life uselessly—is understood, I wish I were a horse with a broken leg. God love you.

DOROTHY L. IN MANCHESTER, CONN.

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for telling me to write to Fredericks of Hollywood to order a false fanny. I ordered one and have never been happier. I have a fairly nice shape, but am so flat in back, nothing looked good on me. Also I am so boney, sitting for any length of time without a cushion was sheer misery. Now that I have this padded girdle, I look great and feel wonderful.

GLORIA IN GREAT FALLS, MONT.

DEAR ABBY: I have YOU to thank for this letter which I just received from my sister-in-law.

"Dear Agnes:
Now that it's Thanksgiving, I thank God for relatives like you with whom I can be perfectly frank!
For years our families have been exchanging Christmas gifts. At first they were modest little toys for the kids, and some inexpensive dodad for the grownups. Somehow it got out of hand, and every year the gifts became more costly.
Let's face it, the spending, shopping, gift-wrapping and delivering has become a chore, so let's knock off buying presents for the adults, and just send gifts to the youngsters this Christmas. I will if you will, okay?
This idea isn't original. I got it from 'Dear Abby's' column. It makes a lot of sense, doesn't it?"

Love,
YOUR COUSIN SUE

KING HILL — Paula Marnoch became the bride of Stewart Rooney at 1 p.m. Nov. 10 at the First Baptist Church, Sunland, Calif.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Inn Marnoch of Sunland. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Veronica Rooney of Burbank, Calif.

Rev. John E. Lane officiated at the double ring ceremony, before tall baskets of red and white roses, stock and carnations.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride wore a satin gown designed with a snow lace bodice and cuffs. The gown was accented by a flowing train and was worn with a shoulder length veil. Her bridal corsage was a tear drop cascade bouquet of white carnations, red rose buds and baby breath.

Mrs. James Percy, Nampa, was matron of honor and Mrs. Greg Grant, La Crescenta, Calif., was bride's matron.

Patrick McGinley was best man. Greg Grant and Kenneth Marnoch were ushers. Mr. Elvin Chaney was organist.

Mrs. Kenneth Marnoch, aunt of the bride, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Louis Masterson, maternal grandmother of the bride, King Hill, was seated at the coffee service. Mrs. Roy Marnoch, King Hill, paternal grandmother of the bride, presided at the punch bowl.

Pamela Marnoch, cousin of the bride, registered the guests. Scott and Eric Marnoch, cousins of the bride, assisted with the gift table.

The new Mrs. Rooney attended school in King Hill, graduated from Capitol High School in Boise, and Glendale College, Glendale, Calif., is now a student at the Los Angeles County Hospital School of Nursing, and is employed by the Los Angeles Women's Hospital. The bridegroom attends California State College and is employed by the Los Angeles Times.

10 minutes later. He played fast at the start, but slowed down to a crawl after he had thrown the slam out the window.

We have to sympathize with the old man. If his partner had just applied the 11 of ACH and asked himself, "How can I make this?" all would have been well.

South would lead a trump to dummy at trick two so that East had showed out, whereupon he would take and lose the club finesse. West could lead a trump or anything else, but South would get to ruff out his last two hearts after discarding one of dummy's on the third club and wind up with game, slam and rubber.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

"Are you really 900 years old, Mr. Methuselah?" the reporter asked.

"No, I am not," was the reply. "I just look that old because of what has happened to me at the bridge table. Take this hand as an example. I sat North and probably aged 50 years while my partner hacked away at it."

"He ruffed the diamond lead; played ace and a small trump and then lost the club finesse. West was mean enough to lead out his third and last trump. My partner cashed his two clubs to discard a heart from dummy, but it didn't help him a bit. He had to lose a heart trick some

'Christmas Collage' set by CSI group

TWIN FALLS — A Christmas motif has been chosen for the CSI Drama Department's next production. Entitled "Christmas Collage," the show will be done in reader's theater style and directed by Fran Tanner, chairman.

The program will be presented in Theater 119 of the Fine Arts Center at 8:15 p.m. Dec. 6, 7, 8, with a special Sunday matinee Dec. 9 at 2:15 p.m. for senior citizens only.

The hour and a half production will feature poetry, prose and drama. Material has been especially chosen to emphasize Christian ideas about Christmas in a unique, satisfying and often humorous approach.

The three-act will be comprised of "The Long Christmas Dinner," a one-act play by the famous American playwright Thornton Wilder; "Stubby Pringle's Christmas," a new Christmas tale of the Old West; and "Yule-Lore," a compilation of prose and poetry.

Tickets may be purchased from the Music Center or at the CSI Commons. CSI students will be admitted free with their activity cards.

Book Review

By JULIE CAUGHEY
Twin Falls Public Library

TWIN FALLS — "A Season of Weathering," by William A. Owens, is an autobiography of a country boy from Texas growing up in the hard times of the late 1920s.

Mr. Owens' book is not one of self pity, but rather of pride in his ability to support himself while going to school and helping to support his mother and sister.

His jobs were many and varied; he went from county to county in Texas picking cotton and doing other types of farm work, working as a stockboy for Sears' and for Kresses', and even waits tables in a boardinghouse.

The author's strivings for a livelihood and an education in light of great adversity make a poignant tale. His reward and fulfillment are realized when he does himself become a teacher and helps others find a better way of life.

Holiday party planned

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls American War Mothers will have a Christmas party and gift exchange during a luncheon Dec. 14 at George K's.

Mrs. B. F. Vice, president of the organization, said $150 has been sent to the Boise Veteran's Hospital and Soldier's Home to fund their Christmas program.

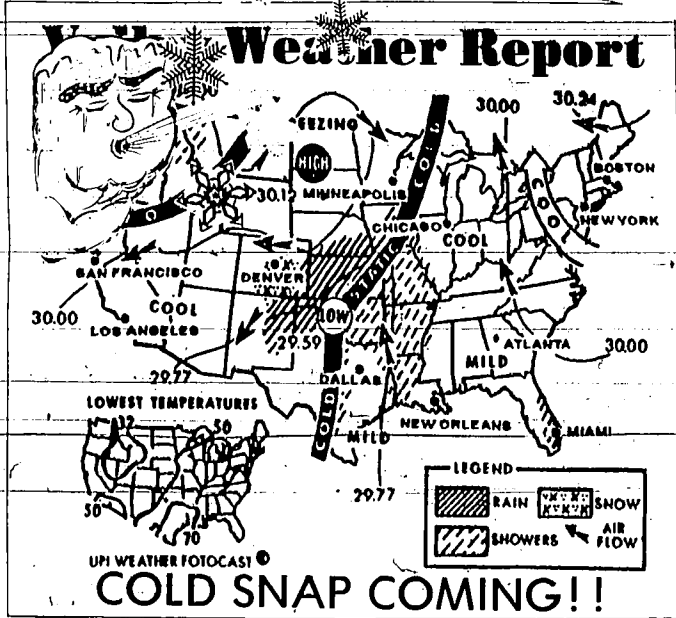

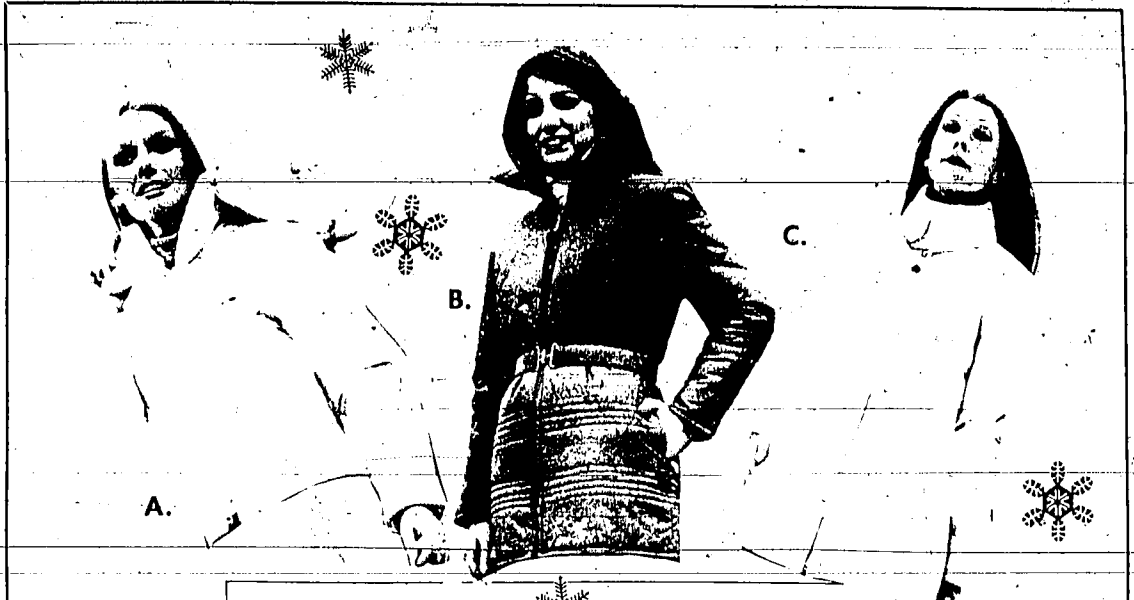

The money is used to provide a birthday cake for each veteran whose birthday anniversary falls during the time he is in the hospital.

Janie Reports...
JANIE ARMSTRONG, Consulting Home Economist for Buttrey Food Stores

It's fun to prepare a favorite dish for guests — but have you ever found yourself missing a crucial ingredient for your recipe when there was not time to run to the store? Well, sometimes you can use a combination of other foods as a satisfactory substitute for the missing item. That way, dinner can go off without a hitch — with your guests none the wiser! Following are some of the foods you're most likely to be out of, along with reliable substitutions:

1 cup buttermilk or sour milk: 1 tablespoon white or cider vinegar or lemon juice plus enough milk to make 1 cup. (let stand 5 minutes)

1 cup whole milk: 1 cup reconstituted non-fat dry milk plus 2 1/2 teaspoons butter or 1/2 cup evaporated milk plus 1/2 cup water.

1 whole egg: 2 egg yolks.

1 teaspoon baking powder: 1/4 teaspoon baking soda plus scant 1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar.

1 tablespoon flour (when used to thicken): 1/2 tablespoon cornstarch or 1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca.

1 ounce chocolate: 3 tablespoons cocoa plus 1 tablespoon butter.

1 cup corn syrup: 1 cup sugar plus 1/4 cup liquid.

1 cup honey: 1 1/4 cups sugar plus 1/4 cup liquid.

*Use whatever liquid is called for in recipe.

You might want to keep this little guide in a handy place — you never know when you may be caught short!

Turkey business quite profitable

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON—Prices of holiday turkeys are up sharply this season over what they were a year ago, even though the Agriculture Department has been forced to discontinue the practice of helping the industry restrict production by issuing marketing "guides" that would probably be illegal without government auspices.

Turkeys are a classic example of the bureaucratic fighting that has been going on inside the administration affecting supplies and prices of food.

Food stores are paying about twice what turkeys cost last season. How much the consumer pays will depend on how big a loss the retailer is willing to take in order to lure holiday shoppers into his store.

Just prior to every spring hatching season since 1945, the department's marketing service consulted with representatives of the National Turkey Federation before putting out that year's market analysis and advice.

Early in the year growers were raising 15 per cent more birds than last year, a trend that could only dampen prices if continued.

So the government told producers in February that they should restrict their output to three per cent below the second half of last year during that period this year if they hoped to improve their earnings by ending up with a total for the year only about one per cent above 1972.

This was particularly embarrassing because Treasury Sec. George P. Shultz had just announced that the administration would bring down food prices by increasing production.

The Cost of Living Council permitted the February marketing guide for turkeys and then ordered the Agriculture Department not to issue any more in the future.

Prices of corn and soybean feed started up—a result of the big grain sales to the Soviet Union. But shortages and rising prices of feed had caused a corresponding rapid increase in the price of fowl. Only recently, as growers rushed their turkeys to market at lighter weights in order to take advantage of the higher prices, have wholesale prices declined, reflecting the increased supply.

The Poultry Science Club at Ohio State University sells holiday turkeys as a fund-raising activity. This year the club is pricing its Thanksgiving turkeys at 89 cents a pound, far above last year, and was surprised to receive more advance orders than last time. So far consumption has not suffered.

Ralph Baker, an agricultural economist at Ohio State, said the turkey business is quite profitable now.

Not unlike other forms of agriculture, it has become concentrated in fewer but much larger, totally "integrated" operations, many of them owned by feed manufacturers. Big operators have become more efficient. The pounds of feed required to produce one pound of meat dropped from 6.3 in 1940 to about three now.

In 1964 grower-processors averaged a return after taxes of 13.3 per cent of their net worth. At that time retail turkey prices were averaging 40.6 cents a pound. The farm share was 26 cents (or 64 per cent) and the retail margin amounted to four cents a pound.

This August, the farm share of a medium-sized, ready-to-cook turkey was 70.4 per cent of the retail price.

The farmer was paid 56 cents a pound, and the city-receiver (or jobber) charged 60.4 cents. The retailer paid 71.0 cents for his turkeys and charged 73.5 cents a pound, less than a cent a time. During the holiday season retailers usually sell turkeys at below cost.

Therefore, as far as turkeys are concerned, Agriculture Sec. Earl B. Butz would seem to be off the mark in blaming high retail store labor and distribution costs for high prices.

2 vicious dogs kill New Jersey boy, 6

JERSEY CITY, N.J. (UPI)—Two vicious dogs killed a 6-year-old boy Monday and partially devoured his body before they were killed by police, who were also attacked by the animals.

Police said two patrolmen found the tiny body of Herbert "Junior" Russell of Newark about 11:30 p.m. in a vacant lot near a cluster of abandoned

Object follows women

ROSEBUD, Tex. (UPI)—Faye Seeley and Faye Hileman thought the bright object gleaming in the darkness of the central Texas sky was a star. Then it started following them.

"It was so quick, I didn't see it move," Mrs. Seeley said Monday. "It was on the left side of the car one second and on the right side the next."

The women were returning to their homes in Rosebud with their children Sunday night from Buffalo, Tex., where they had left their husbands deer hunting.

They first saw the triangular shaped object about 8:16 p.m. and thought it was a star that alternately brightened and dimmed. Then, it began to pounce their car.

"It came down to about two car lengths off the ground and just sat there like it was daring us to come closer," Mrs. Seeley said.

Mrs. Seeley, who was driving the car, said she turned the car around and sped off in the opposite direction.

"It rose back into the air a little distance and began to follow," Mrs. Hileman said. "It came quickly for a while as if trying to catch up."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES Consider all aspects of a course of action and prepare to put these in operation with an interesting campaign you now can devise and perfect. Consider what others need and help them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle obligations with dispatch and please all concerned. Conscientiously keep any promises. Avoid one with a bone to pick with you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Consider future trends you desire in association matters and make concrete plans, draw diagrams. Improve public affairs also. Think constructively.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan your time and activities wisely in early a.m., then plow through energetically. Find the best way to improve your health. Plan a trip soon.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Enjoy some amusement that will help you relax, feel happier. You are highly creative and can express yourself beautifully now. Avoid a hypocrite.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) The situation at home is rather difficult but fact on your part will help. Make some concession that insures peace. Keep temper in check.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Shop, keep appointments, handle correspondence and get affairs in fine order. Paperwork is most important. Get out of disadvantageous position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your financial affairs for greater success. Get your relations with others on a better basis. Read your newspaper carefully for opportunities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Improve health and appearance. Dress well and gab about socially for a good time, meet interesting personalities. Avoid hypocrites.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle own affairs wisely and avoid the public. Find more up-to-date system that will make life easier and more prosperous. Avoid shallow persons.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be sure you know what friends desire from you and do your part. Get out to social affairs that attract you. Avoid troublemaker.

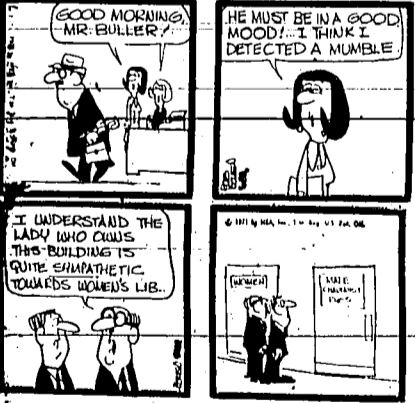

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep active at important career and public matters. Use your finest talents and make big progress. Look to that person you like for a big favor you need.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Put through ideas that can add to your current knowledge. A new associate has the information you need. You may have a very interesting experience.

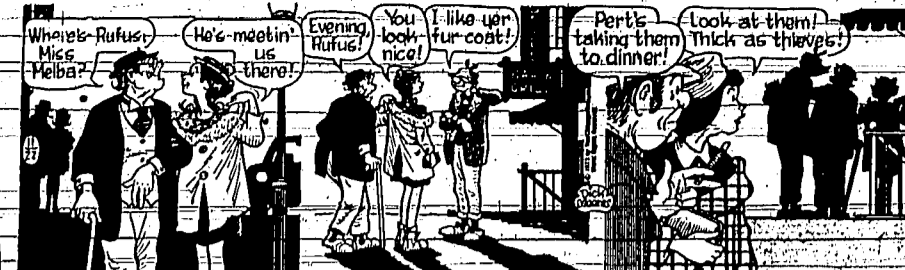

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be overly determined to have own way, which should be curbed early, but once your youngster has made a decision, nothing can change it, which is good later in life, since it is the key to the success possible in this chart. Teach early to consider the wishes and feelings of others, then fine partnerships can be formed, especially of a business nature. Give good ethical training early.

Only one Frenchman in every four ever uses a toothbrush at all. The French Ministry of Health found that out in a survey recently. Interesting. But not as interesting, I think as the fact that in 15 per cent of the French homes where any toothbrush is used, at least five people use said same toothbrush, the one and only.

A bookbinder in New York City has covered his volumes whenever possible over the years with material appropriate to the subject matter. His "Marchant of Venice," for instance, appears in shavskin. His Bible, in lambskin. First book he ever did like that was a novel about life in prison, covered in zebra hide.

Those clay pigeons the shotgun boys like to break up in midair cost money, don't you know. So some bright shooters now are making their own wing targets out of ice. Mix a little red ink with water and freeze it in muffin tins. Then pack them out to the firing range in picnic coolers.

DOGS
Remember, all the poodle parlors get booked solid during the several weeks before Christmas. No girl called "Margaret," should forget her name in Greek means "pearl." Only classical artist whose albums ever sold more than a million copies is Van-Gilburn. It's a most unusual Virgo girl who does not love peas, say the stargazers. That baby will start to show signs of being either right-handed or left-handed at about six months of age, ordinarily.

Suddenly, at Alpena, Mich., a car in an accident caught fire. A brewery truck skidded to a stop behind it. The trucker grabbed a case of beer, threw it violently to the ground beside the blazing car, then opened one beer can at a time to use the spewing foam to put out the flames. Smart fellow, that one.

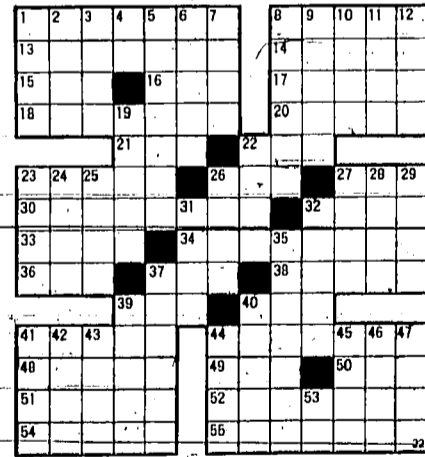

CHILD KILLER
History tells us a certain Frenchman named Giles de Laval tortured and murdered at least 46 children before he was executed in 1440. Evidently, there was a sort of dark cast about his jowls, because he was nicknamed "Barbe-Bleue." Anyhow, he was the evil inspiration for that classic by the writer Perrault entitled "Bluebeard," who in the fiction killed wives, not children. This comes to mind because a customer asks if anything in history compares with the recent Houston killings of young boys.

If you intend to walk across any streets in the near future, better be particularly careful between 6 and 9 p.m. during the month of December. That's the time more than any other when pedestrians are apt to get hit by cars.

Late shows off Japan TV sets

TOKYO (UPI) — The government Tuesday asked Japan's television stations to turn off the "late-late show" for the rest of the energy crisis, and struggled to avoid a total cutoff of Arab oil without breaking ties with Israel.

Ten large industries, including automobiles, steel and petrochemicals, today began operating under a 10 per cent cut in supplies of oil and electricity. Drops of 6 to 7 per cent in steel production were predicted.

The government ordered all gas stations to close on Sundays and holidays after failing to get operators to do it on their own.

Other actions included a train engineers' strike that left four persons injured, and closing of the Tokyo Sugar Exchange because of hoarding and speculative buying.

Through public and private channels, Arab countries that supply 40 per cent of Japan's oil pressed for an immediate break in trade and diplomatic relations with Israel.

Shohei Mizuno, president of the Japan Arabian Oil Co., delivered a personal message from King Faisal of Saudi Arabia to Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka. "There are no neutrons," he quoted the king as saying. "Only our enemies and the people we know."

Mizuno said Japan faces a complete cutoff of Arab oil unless she changes her stance on the Israel question by the time of the meeting of foreign ministers of Arab nations Nov. 24.

Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira said Japan will not break relations with Israel at this time. He told newsmen the government will issue a new policy statement on the Middle East on Thursday.

Government sources said Japan would call on Israel to retire immediately from territory won in the 1967 Six Day War and turn it over to the Arabs. The statement also is expected to commit Japan to active financial support of the economic development of the Arab countries.

Spray adhesive ruling unstuck?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is considering whether to change its stand on aerosol spray adhesives, which it removed from the market two months ago after a birth defects scare.

Commission Chairman Richard O. Simpson said his agency has received two new studies on the subject and a re-study by the man who first drew attention to the problem, Dr. J. Rodman Soely of the University of Oklahoma.

He said, however, the issue is a "very complicated question," and the new studies do not agree on whether there is a correlation between use of the sprays and chromosomal damage or birth defects.

"It depends on how you interpret the results," Simpson added. He said the science of chromosomal readings is "frustratingly imprecise."

Simpson said Monday the Soely study involved a re-reading of his earlier findings, and "he came out with much the same conclusions." Animal studies, he added, have shown no chromosomal damage, but there has been toxicity involving eye and nose problems.

"All we could do then and all we could do now is to make a rational decision based on the facts," Simpson said, adding that he realized the commission might be accused of having jumped too fast in its initial decision if it reverses it now.

He said the agency's first duty, however, is to protect the public.

In August the federal commission banned the sale of 13 aerosol spray adhesives manufactured by Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co. and by the Borden Co. The sprays have been used commercially, and in the home for hobby purposes.

Athabasca oil sands development beginning

(c) New York Times Service
 EDMONTON, Alberta — Energy shortages and supply interruptions are focusing renewed attention here on Canada's Athabasca Oil Sands, one of the largest oil deposits in the world.
 In the sticky sand along the Athabasca River 200 miles north of here is several times as much oil as the total reserves in the rest of North America, and the arduous and expensive recovery process is beginning.
 The oil sands have great potential significance to the Americans as well as the Canadians, said Premier Peter Lougheed of Alberta, whose government two months ago finally agreed to permit an American-owned consortium called Syncrude Canada Limited to begin building an extraction plant near the Athabasca early next year.

Another American-owned company is already producing there, and several other companies are conducting experiments.
 Lougheed is looking to the oil sands to take the place of conventional oil reserves, which have begun to decline in Canada.
 The Athabasca deposits contain perhaps 80 billion barrels of oil that geologists say can be recovered by the methods now in use, and as much as 200 billion barrels more that should be recoverable eventually. The total conventional oil reserves of the United States, by comparison, are 37 billion barrels.
 The present technique — in which the sand is mined and then mixed with steam and hot water, to get the oil out — is extraordinarily expensive. But soaring world oil prices have made the huge costs seem less of an obstacle.
 Building the extraction plants is also slow;

according to present estimates, Athabasca production will by 1990 or so reach only 1 million barrels a day, which is the amount of conventional oil that Canada now exports to the United States, and half this country's total production.
 Some oil men would like to see a crash program to accelerate that development, but none has been planned.
 An average of 40,000 barrels of Athabasca oil is now being pumped every day to a plant opened in 1967 by Great Canadian Oil Sands Limited, the only company to have achieved commercial production so far. Great Canadian, owned by the SIBCO CO., says it is still losing several million dollars a year on its operation.
 Syncrude, which hopes to be producing 104,000 barrels a day by 1978, is already spending $2 million a month, just on getting the ground — most of which is spongy muskeg — ready for construction.

 "It's a whole new economics, as distinct from a place like Kuwait, where the oil just flows out of the ground," explains H. Brent Scott, Syncrude's vice president and general manager, who is eager to dispel the notion that the Athabasca deposit is a bonanza for the oil companies.
 "Think of a 100,000-barrel-a-day refinery — that's not a huge operation — but just to be able to produce the oil to supply a refinery that size, we will have spent $1 billion, before operations begin," Scott said.

US court asked to nullify Florida law

(c) Washington Star-News
 WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court has been asked to strike down a Florida law requiring newspapers to provide free space for a reply from any politician they criticize. The request came from the Miami Herald after the Florida Supreme Court, ruling last July in a case involving the newspaper, had upheld the state law.

The statute, which makes it a misdemeanor for newspapers to refuse to publish "any reply" from a criticized politician "does not constitute a violation of the First and 14th Amendments of the Constitution," the state court declared. In its appeal to the Supreme Court, the Miami Herald contended that the law is "a novel form of governmental regulation of the press which is ostensibly designed to promote fairness in elections, but which in fact represents a severe restraint upon the exercise of journalistic discretion by putting the government in the editor's chair." In essence, the newspaper said, the law "conditions a newspaper's right to print editorials, news stories, advertising or any other matter bearing unfavorably upon political candidates."

The newspaper added: "Censorship of newspapers in the guise of promoting fairness by requiring a right of 'reply' or 'access' is, nevertheless, censorship."

The Florida law violates the First Amendment guarantee of freedom of the press and the 14th Amendment right of due process, the Herald contended.

The dispute involving the Miami newspaper goes back to 1972 when it refused to give Pat Tornillo Jr., a candidate for the state legislature, space to respond to editorials critical of him.

The Florida Supreme Court held Tornillo had both the right to space for a reply and to seek damages against the newspaper.

While the appeal is pending before the United States Supreme Court — whose decision was not expected for several weeks — the Herald has asked Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. to stay the ruling of the lower court, which was scheduled to go into effect Tuesday.

In its request to Powell, the newspaper said the Florida ruling "would fling open the doors to the pressroom by permitting free access to a newspaper's columns to any candidate criticized in the newspaper."

The appeal represents the most important dispute between the press and the government before the highest court this term.

Bentsen eyes Demo nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., D-Tex., said Tuesday he plans to test the political waters during the next year to see if it is feasible for him to seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976. Asked on the NBC-TV "Today Show" about whether he would seek the presidency, Bentsen said he planned to spend the next year campaigning for Democratic senators and helping them to raise money.

"Then at the end of the year we'll see how we've done, and then decide whether it is a realistic thing or not to do," he said. "I know the place where a man can do the most for his country is right down at the White House... so we'll look at it then and decide what should be done." Bentsen said he had no interest in being a candidate for vice president.

US embassy sinking in marshy Bangkok subsoil

(c) Chicago Daily News
 BANGKOK — The U.S. Embassy here is slowly sinking. Part of the $2 million, three-story office building is settling into the marshy Bangkok subsoil at the rate of about one half inch a year, experts say — faster than the leaning tower of Pisa is leaning.
 It isn't going down evenly. Some parts have dropped six inches in recent years while others have sunk only three. Walls are cracked, windows shattered. In some places there are small steps where floors once were even. Several rooms have been declared unsafe and are abandoned.
 The building has literally been cut in half, a stopgap measure to prevent the part sinking faster from pulling the rest of the embassy down with it.
 "There is a temporary partition in the ambassador's private office where a wall was knocked out as a safety measure.

 American sources familiar with efforts to keep the embassy standing say, a $300,000 contract will soon be awarded to put it on more solid footings.
 The trouble, engineers say, is that pilings supporting the building don't go deep enough. They plan to ring the sagging embassy with 98 new concrete pilings, then prop it up on steel beams slipped under the building and resting on the sunken pillars.
 The embassy was constructed in three phases beginning in 1952, when a two-story structure was erected. A third floor was added in 1959 and that, engineers say now, is probably when the trouble began. In 1966, a separate three-story addition was put up.
 "The problem isn't unique to the embassy. Buildings all over Bangkok are sinking and have

 Earlier this year, the U.S. military command in Thailand was forced to delay opening some of its offices because the new nine-story skyscraper they are located in began to tilt the day after it was opened for business. It took $1 million to prop the tower up.
 Some authorities say the sinking phenomenon is the result of pumping water for the city's three million inhabitants from artesian wells beneath Bangkok. The most pessimistic of the authorities say someday the whole city will slowly vanish.
 Meanwhile, when they finish propping up the embassy, the experts can turn their attention to the American ambassador's 100-year-old residence just across the road.
 Columns supporting the mansion are starting to lean and there is a definite slope to some of the floors.

Economy car

BOISE (UPI) — Mayor-elect Dick Eardley plans to substitute an "economy car" for the traditional mayor's black limousine when he takes office next January.

"If the city is asking all employees to drive small cars, there's no reason why the mayor can't do it, too," Eardley said.
