Egypt pushes oil weapon worse
ALGIERS (UPI) — Egypt called upon Arab foreign ministers preparing Saturday for next week's summit meeting to escalate the use of oil as a weapon in the conflict with Israel.
Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy, speaking at a closed session of 16 foreign ministers, was quoted by conference sources as telling the delegates, "We should continue to use the oil weapon skillfully and thoroughly and continue to escalate the use of this weapon."

Agnew denies misconduct
ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Former vice president Spiro Agnew says his no contest plea to an income tax evasion charge is not grounds for disciplinary action and he wants to prove it in court.
Agnew's attorneys filed a brief in circuit court here conceding facts, but denying misconduct on his part.

Ulster violence kills 2 more
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A landmine-killed a British soldier in a patrol approaching an Irish Republican Army stronghold at Crossmaglen Saturday and a 17-year-old youth died in an exchange of fire with troops in Belfast, the army said.
Shots were fired at the police station in Aghalee, 13 miles southwest of Belfast, and a 30-pound bomb damaged an inn at Castelwellan, 25 miles south of Belfast. No one was hurt in either incident.
The soldier was killed instantly by a land mine detonated from woods a half-mile away.

Jazz great Pierce dies
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Joseph (De De) Pierce, 60, noted jazz musician, died Friday. He was a trumpet player.
Pierce and his wife, Billie, a pianist, played together for about 50 years. Despite blindness in the 1960s, Pierce came out of retirement and kept busy during renewed public interest in jazz.

Ben-Gurion condition worse
TEL AVIV (UPI) — David Ben-Gurion, the 87-year-old former prime minister who helped lead Israel to nationhood, took a turn for the worse Saturday in his fight to recover from a stroke, the national radio said.
The broadcast said Ben-Gurion's blood pressure and pulse dropped during the night and that his condition was deteriorating from complications following the cerebral hemorrhage last Sunday.
Ben-Gurion was reported in serious condition most of the week, but Thursday his doctors said he was improving.

Nixon sets energy talk

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Nixon will announce today what he described today as "tough, strong action" to meet the energy crisis.
The principal steps are expected to be a ban on the sale of gasoline on Sundays and reduced distribution of home heating oil.
The President called reporters into his White House oval office Saturday morning to say that he would speak briefly at 5 p.m. MST on nationwide television to outline measures he would order to conserve on the consumption of gasoline and fuel oil.

Officials said the emphasis would be on conservation rather than rationing of gasoline or fuel oil—a step that Nixon has made clear he would accept only as a last resort.
Meanwhile, House Speaker Carl Albert, in a 22-page statement, blamed Nixon administration policies for the energy crisis, which he said could lead to a recession with more than 8 per cent unemployment next year.
Among the steps the administration is believed ready to take are:
Gasoline stations would be directed to close from 9 p.m. on Saturday until midnight Sunday to discourage driving and gasoline consumption. It was not immediately clear whether such a ban would go into effect next weekend or in the following week.
A cutback in deliveries of home heating oil by distributors by about 15 per cent.
Administration sources said the objective was to reduce consumption of heating oil by 15 per cent in residences, 25 per cent in commercial buildings and 10 per cent by industry.

Solon aid speeded hospital opening

By DAVID ESPO
T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The head of the state's largest agency said Saturday he agreed to arrange the opening of the vacant tuberculosis hospital in Gooding "sooner than it would have happened" in exchange for a key state legislator's support for the department's legislative program.
Dr. James A. Bax, Department of Environmental and Community Services administrator, said he had the facility opened in Gooding to get Rep. Vernon E. Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, behind legislation that was pending.
(Related story, p. 17)
The proposals included the merger of three state agencies into DECS, and package of environmental protection bills.
Ravenscroft, reached for comment by telephone, denied there was any formal arrangement made. "There was no deal made that he (Bax) would do this and so and I would do this and so," he said.
Bax made his remarks in an interview at his home in which he declared he had put his job on the line in order to accomplish the goals he has set out for DECS. He said he would resign his $42,544-a-year administrative position if he became ineffective or a "political liability" to Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.
Speaking for himself and his family, Bax said, "We love Idaho, but it's not worth being a hypocrite and playing some of the silly little political games."
The 1973 legislature, he said, had him "going out and making deals" with the lawmakers. As an example, he cited the reopening of the former state TB hospital at Gooding.

Israel, Egypt holding firm on Suez pullback

(c) New York Times Service
JERUSALEM — Israeli officials said Saturday a major gap still separates Israel and Egypt on the question of disengaging their forces along the Suez Canal.
The officials said "no meaningful progress" had been made at an 80-minute meeting between Israeli and Egyptian negotiators on the Cairo-Suez highway.
They said while Egypt might be anxious to conclude a withdrawal agreement prior to the opening of the Arab summit conference in Algiers on Monday, Israel would not be rushed into an unsatisfactory agreement.
According to authoritative Israeli sources, the two sides have put forward the following proposals at the front line talks:
— Israel has suggested that the two armies withdraw to lines some six miles back from the respective sides of the canal. A United Nations emergency force would be inserted between the lines and the canal would be re-opened to commercial shipping. Under this proposal, both sides would give up the territorial gain they achieved during the war. Israel would sacrifice its bridgehead on the western bank of the canal, while the Egyptians would abandon their positions on the eastern side of the waterway.
Egypt has proposed Israel withdraw unilaterally from the west bank. In exchange, Egypt has offered to thin out its forces on the Sinai side, reducing the number of tanks and artillery pieces, but still retaining a substantial number of troops in both the northern and southern sectors of the canal.

BUTTE, Mont. (UPI) — Masked gunmen escaped with $140,000 Saturday in a daring daytime robbery of the Wells Fargo Armored Car Service in downtown Butte.
The robbery by either two or three bandits, one armed with a shotgun, took place in the bookkeeping department of the First Metals Bank, where Wells Fargo rents vault space.
Two guards were jumped by the bandits and forced to open a safe between 8:05 and 8:20 a.m. The gunmen entered the building through a drive-in bank window, police said.
The guards reported the robbery after freeing themselves from adhesive tape binding. They told police they couldn't be sure if there were two or three men involved.

Some drivers slowing

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Motorists using interstate highways in Magic Valley are apparently voluntarily reducing their speeds in response to appeals for conservation of gasoline.
State Police Lt. Roy Thomas said in a two hour speed survey by state officers Thursday, automobiles clocked were driving at an average speed of 63 miles per hour and trucks at an average 65 miles per hour.
The survey was taken Thomas said, on Interstate 80 near the Highway 50 interchange. He said the area is posted for a 70 mile per hour speed limit.
Thomas said the state has adopted lower speed limits but highways have not yet been posted.
"We expect the new signs to be posted within two weeks," he said, "and after that we will begin patrolling and issuing warnings to those exceeding the new recommended speeds."
He said the new speed will then be 60 miles per hour on the interstate highways and 50 miles per hour on other highways. Lt. Thomas said state officers will give motorists an opportunity to become accustomed to the new maximum speeds before citations are issued.
Survey figures from Thursday indicated a number of interstate motorists are now traveling at 50, 55 and 59 miles per hour while trucks are continuing to move at nearer the maximum.
Thomas said one automobile driver traveling at 88 miles per hour "created a sharp climb in our averages" and paid for it with a citation.

Murtaugh man dies of wound

TWIN FALLS — An inquest is expected to be called by County Coroner Cloyce Edwards in the death of John A. Dunningan, Jr., who died Friday night of a bullet wound in the head.
Dunningan was injured Tuesday night at his home in Murtaugh. He died about 9 p.m. Friday in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital without regaining consciousness.
Sheriff Paul Corder said Saturday he will meet with the county prosecutor Monday to determine what charges are to be filed in the death. He said a brother of the victim, Willard Earl Dunningan, 18, has been held in custody since the shooting. He was charged with obstructing an officer and bond set at $4,000 by magistrate court, pending the outcome of his brother's condition.
Corder said witnesses at the Dunningan home indicated the shooting was an accident but followed an argument between the two young men over an automobile transmission.
Sheriff Corder said he talked with Edwards Saturday and believed an inquest will be called.

Big thirst

SPARKS, Nev. (UPI) — The FBI Saturday began a search for 700 cases of whiskey stolen from a railroad boxcar.
The cases of half-gallon bottles were discovered missing in the Sparks yards Friday night by Southern Pacific Railroad inspector John M. Adams. Adams said it appeared the rail car was broken into at Sparks.
Police said the FBI was called into the case because the theft could have occurred anywhere along six different lines.

New oil field found

LONDON (UPI) — The London newspaper, The Observer, said Sunday Gulf Oil Co. has discovered a major new oil field off the west coast of Africa that is being compared in potential to reserves in the sheikdom of Kuwait.
(A spokesman at Gulf's Pittsburgh, Pa., headquarters said he knew of no such discovery, declaring that a find rivaling the magnitude of Kuwait's resources comes "once in a million years.")
The strike lies just off the coast of the Portuguese African territory of Angola, where guerrillas of the Movimento Popular de Libertacao de Angola (MPLA) are operating against Portuguese troops, the newspaper said.

TF kidnapper of 3 sought

TWIN FALLS — Officers in three states searched Saturday night for a man who abducted three young women in Twin Falls Friday night but later released them in two widely separated areas.
The three women were forced into a car at gunpoint about 10 p.m. Friday in downtown Twin Falls, officers said.
An alarm was broadcast early today to Utah, Wyoming and other areas of Idaho after the last of the hostages was released near American Falls.
Twin Falls Capt. Tim Qualls said the man drove from Twin Falls toward Nevada with the three women in the vehicle. Near Hollister he put two of them out of the car, then drove back to Twin Falls with the third, switched to his own automobile and headed toward Pocatello.
Reports of the incident indicated the abductor bound the hands and feet of the two women when he left them near Hollister but they were able to work their bonds loose and then walk to a nearby home for assistance.
At American Falls he allowed the third woman to leave the vehicle. She caught a ride to Balfey with a truck driver and was returned from there by Twin Falls police.
"We are lucky these women are alive," Qualls said.
He declined to release the names of the women or the description of the suspect. Qualls termed reports from wire services "fictitious" and said reports that a Folsom, Calif., prison-escapee is being sought as the suspect may be totally incorrect.
"The information did not come from the originating investigative officer," he said.

Reformers seek Nixon's approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon was asked Saturday to counter some of the taint of Watergate by supporting a measure which would provide the most sweeping reform of election campaign practices in history.

In a letter, Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., asked Nixon to endorse a bill coming before the Senate next week which would ban private contributions in presidential and congressional elections and provide tax-dollars to fund those campaigns. The sponsors fear Nixon will veto it.

"There are few steps that can better signify to the public our collective determination to reform our electoral processes and to restore faith in government than to enact a comprehensive system of public financing of federal elections," wrote Schweiker, part of a bipartisan coalition which claims the support of 51 senators.

The proposal, sponsored by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., is to be offered Wednesday as an amendment to a bill to raise the $465 billion ceiling on the national debt. Expiration of the existing ceiling Nov. 30 would hamper government financial operations and make the bill difficult to veto.

The debt ceiling bill has passed the House so the fate of the reform, if the Senate approves, would rest with a conference committee.

Blank tape drew scribe's complaint

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A White House official said Saturday the subpoenaed Watergate tape containing an 18-minute blank in President Nixon's conversation with H. R. Haldeman is the same tape that Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods, spent about 30 hours trying to transcribe.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica demanded immediate custody of Nixon's Watergate-related tapes when a White House lawyer told him Wednesday about a recently discovered segment missing from the crucial tape of a 2-1/2 hour meeting between Nixon and former aides Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman on June 20, 1972, three days after the Watergate break-in.

The official, who declined to be named, said Sirica's demand still was "under consideration." He was the first White House aide to identify the June 20 tape as the one Miss Woods has complained was difficult to transcribe.

White House attorney J. Fred Buzhardt told reporters Wednesday that the June 20 tape had not been transcribed.

Earlier, Miss Woods testified at a Sirica court hearing that she spent about 30 hours at Camp David, Md., during the weekend of last Sept. 29 doing her best to transcribe a tape she said she could not identify. She said the "quality was very bad," but never mentioned an 18-minute gap in the conversation.

'Mini-court' plan wins expert's OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Constitutional law expert Alexander M. Bickel Saturday endorsed a proposal to create a "mini-court" to screen the flood of appeals burdening the Supreme Court and took a polite swipe at Justice William O. Douglas.

Bickel, a Yale law professor, came out in favor of a new National Court of Appeals in a pamphlet published by the non-profit American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research.

A special study group headed by Harvard professor Paul Freund originally recommended that the new "mini-court" be made up of a rotating panel of federal appeals judges who would preview and weed out the more than 4,500 petitions for a hearing filed with the Supreme Court each term.

Douglas, 75, a veteran of 34 years on the high court, is the only justice who has opposed the proposal. He contended that the nine justices are underworked rather than overworked.

Bickel called Douglas' view "singular" adding, "Decision for him is quite apparently a series of high-speed, high-volume events, not the process that the study group described and sought to foster."

Texan asks IFT merger probe push

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Tex., says neither Acting Attorney General Robert Bork nor Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski will take the responsibility of investigating possible White House involvement in the merger between International Telephone and Telegraph (ITT) and the Hartford Insurance Co.

Pickle, a member of the House Commerce Investigating Subcommittee, said Friday each man suggested the other as the investigator.

Bork attributed "exclusive authority" to Jaworski, and Jaworski said jurisdiction should lie in the Justice Department.

Restrictions on the use of fuel by private airplanes and boats.

Federal standards for dimming outdoor lighting, such as billboards and signs.

A proposed reduction in highway speed limits, probably to 50 miles an hour for cars and 55 miles an hour for buses and trucks.

The president, however, would have to have emergency legislation passed by Congress before the federal government could impose such a speed reduction.

Reduce production of gasoline and increase production of home heating oil, diesel and jet fuel and residual oil, the heavy fuel used by power plants.

Another possibility raised by officials was that the President might move shortly to impose mandatory allocations of residual oil, which is in critical short supply, particularly among utilities in the Northeast.

Broad gap remains on pullback plans

Both sides have rejected the other's proposals, Israeli sources reported. They said Israel was unwilling to consider the Egyptian offer since it would leave what one official described as a "major fighting force" intact on the eastern side of the Waterway.

Israeli officials believe Egyptian President Anwar El-Sadat is under considerable pressure from other Arab states to win at least a partial Israeli withdrawal prior to the opening of the Algiers summit meeting on Monday.

This, they believe, explains the urgency with which the Egyptians have pressed the negotiations at the front lines. Meetings were held on both Friday and Saturday, the Moslem and Jewish sabbaths, and Israeli sources said the Egyptians had made it clear at both sessions that they would like to reach an agreement as quickly as possible.

US seeking to free 16

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department said Saturday negotiations were under way to attempt to return to the United States 16 scuba divers who were forced to land in Cuba on Thanksgiving due to a breakdown of their airplane's equipment.

But Paul Hare, the department spokesman, would not verify earlier reports that the Cuban government was asking for $11,000 in return for the Americans and the aircraft.

Earlier in the day, Norris Bryan, president of the company that chartered the twin-engine Lockheed Lodestar airplane for the group of scuba diving enthusiasts, said he had been notified by the State Department that Cuba was asking for $11,000, reportedly the cost of repairs on the aircraft.

concert set

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho schedule of events for the week include a barbershop quartet performance Friday and Saturday in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

On Monday intermural bowling will be held in the Magic Bowl at 2 p.m. followed by an Alcohol Safety Program at 7 p.m. in the student conference room.

The CSI Basketball tournament also opens Monday and continues through Tuesday in the CSI gymnasium at 7 p.m. There will also be a student program and board meeting at noon Tuesday in the student conference room.

The Veterans Club meets in the conference room at noon

Wednesday and a Twin Falls High School Music Department performance is scheduled in the Kino-Arte Auditorium Wednesday at 8 p.m.

The student senate meets at 1 p.m. in the conference room Thursday and a movie, "The Candidate" will be shown in the auditorium at 8 p.m.

The basketball tournament continues Friday with CSI playing in Ontario, Ore. A dance will be held Friday from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. in the cafeteria and the barbershop quartet performances are scheduled at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the auditorium.

Advance registration for I. D. cards for those planning to attend CSI next semester is now underway.

Speaker set

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Immanuel Lutheran Parent Teachers League will sponsor an appearance of Rev. Walter Lang, Nampa, Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school.

The speaker will present slides and a talk on programs of the Bible Science Association Inc., of which he is executive director. The slides will show the time of dinosaur life and other matters pertaining to "creationism."

The Bible Science Association was incorporated in 1964 and works to find and make available a collection of books, sound tracks and films on creationism. Some of this material will be available during the Tuesday night meeting.

Group to meet

TWIN FALLS — Ron Sealey, Boise, will be featured speaker Thursday night at the annual meeting of the Twin Falls Mental Health Association.

The dinner meeting is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. at the Turf Club. Officers will be elected according to Louis Schumaker, president.

Sealey is editor of Hope magazine, and volunteer for the Idaho State Mental Health Association. He quit school in the 10th grade, had five step-mothers and at the age of 10 tended bar.

The speaker has served time in prison and been hospitalized for mental illness six times before complete recovery. He now spends much of his time speaking around the state to help dispel the stigma of mental illness.

While in Twin Falls he will address the Kiwanis Club Thursday noon.

Persons wanting to hear the speaker but not attend the dinner are welcome to do so. The dinner will be held in the banquet room at the Turf Club.

Reservations can be made by calling Tracy Bailey at 733-5702.

TF woman to complete term

TWIN FALLS — A 22-year-old Twin Falls woman was ordered to complete a sentence to the Idaho State Penitentiary for violation of her probation this week in Fifth Judicial District Court.

Tedie Edwards, Twin Falls, was sentenced by Judge Theron W. Ward to control of the State Board of Corrections with the first 120 days of the sentence to remain under court jurisdiction. She had been sentenced in 1972 to a five year term which was withheld and a two year probation ordered.

The sentence involved two counts of forgery.

The court ruled the woman had left the area without notification of her probation officer, changed place of residence and failed to make reports to the probation officer and had failed to cooperate in an effort to obtain employment.

Dorothy Jean Leedom, Twin Falls, entered a plea of innocent to forgery charges when she appeared before Judge Ward. Ward said a trial date will be set during the January term of court.

John W. Bubb, 20, Twin Falls, was sentenced in September to five years on a second degree burglary count and the sentence was commuted to two years probation. Judge Ward ordered the probation revoked and the sentence executed with Bubb to be taken to Boise by sheriff's officers immediately.

Icy conditions on Nevada route

HOLLISTER — County officers warn drivers traveling US Highway 93 south into Nevada to watch for extremely icy conditions in a number of areas.

Officers said an accident three miles south of Hollister was reported Saturday afternoon and while officers were investigating a second happened in the same locality.

Idaho Highway Department officials reported they had sanded curves and intersections along the highway in the vicinity of Hollister but did not have adequate sand to cover the straight sections of the highway.

One officer at the accident scene said it was so icy it was almost impossible to walk from one vehicle to another while investigating the accidents.

There were no injuries, but officers said night driving could result in serious accidents if motorists do not take the changing conditions into consideration.

Other highways were reported wet with icy spots. State police said several accidents had occurred on Interstate 80 between the Valley Interchange and the Burley area where some drifting and freezing snow was reported late Saturday.

Damages sought on loss of honey bees

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls County man is asking $63,130 damages from a trucking firm and its agent for the loss of honey bees last summer.

In a damage suit filed in Fifth Judicial District Court here, Charles M. Miller charges Austin, Truck Brokerage Inc., and Harry Blasey and John Doe doing business as B and G Farms, with the loss of a number of colonies of bees. He said he contracted through the brokerage firm for transportation of the bees from California to Idaho.

On June 6, 1973, he charges the trucking firm left the truck loaded with the bees in Reno, Nev., for 12 hours during the heat of the day. As a result Miller charges 1,260 colonies of bees were damaged, 850 of them being killed and the others being rendered unproductive for approximately one year.

He seeks damages for the value of the bees, the loss of business for the year and interest on the loss.

Land owners sued

TWIN FALLS — Condemnation actions have been filed in Fifth Judicial District Court here by the Idaho Department of Highways against two additional property owners.

The board of highways, plaintiffs in the suits, seek land for the widening and improving of US Highway 93 in the west portion of Twin Falls.

A number of similar actions have been filed against property owners near West Five Points and on Addison Avenue.

Named defendants in the latest suits are Robert Hutchinson and Nell Grover and G. H. Grover.

Store in TF sued

TWIN FALLS — Briant Lowell West has filed suit in Fifth District Court here against Safeway Stores Inc., asking $500,000 damages.

He charges he was in the Safeway Store on Main Avenue North in Twin Falls July 14, 1972, when an employee pushed a grocery cart full of merchandise into him. He alleges resulting injuries permanently disabled his left leg, resulted in costly medical bills and loss of employment.

In addition to the half-million general damages, the plaintiff seeks $8,000 in loss of employment and $5,000 medical and hospital costs.

Our prediction:

The Stock Market Will Move Strongly Upward

The past week we have seen some of the lowest stock prices in 20 years.

How do I make money in the stock market?

- Minimize losses, let profits "RUN". Use stops to protect profits and limit risk.

What am I buying when I buy stocks?

In buying stocks you buy earnings (present and/or future) and corporate assets. In terms of these measurements, stocks are near their lowest levels in the last twenty years. Most stocks are selling below book value, and actual asset values are grossly understated on most corporate balance sheets. The replacement and/or appraisal values of production facilities, land, etc. would be several times the depreciated (for income tax purposes) asset value on the balance sheet. In many instances the purchase of stocks at the present time is equivalent to purchases of other equities at 50¢ on the dollar.

And...

CORPORATE EARNINGS ARE SETTING NEW RECORD HIGHS. WE BELIEVE THE "ENERGY HYSTERIA" WILL NOT HINDER PRODUCTION CAPABILITIES OF ITEMS IN DEMAND.

Emergency act fraught with future danger

WASHINGTON — Twenty years after the nation should have launched a crash program of energy development, we seem to be rushing into one. I strongly suspect we are rushing the wrong way.

Two major pieces of legislation now are working their way toward enactment. The first is the National Energy Emergency Act of 1973; it may be too much. The second is the National Energy Research and Development Policy Act of 1973; it is almost certainly too little.

As to the first bill: So far as its general provisions are concerned, dealing with fuel conservation, the legislation plainly is needed to cope with the situation that confronts us at present. This much also should be understood: The bill is fraught with the most dangerous implications for the future. What is involved here is a massive delegation of power to the President.

Patrick Henry laid down the sound advice, nearly 200 years ago, that in political matters power should be delegated sparingly: "If you give too little power today, you may give more tomorrow. But the reverse of that proposition will not hold. If you give too much power today, you cannot retake it tomorrow, for tomorrow will never come for that purpose."

The Energy Emergency Act pays small heed to Henry's warning. The bill calls for "prompt action by the executive branch" to deal with "severe economic dislocations and hardships, including loss of jobs, closing of factories and businesses, reduction of crop plantings and harvesting, and curtailment of vital public services, including the transportation of food and other essential goods." The presidential responsibility would appear to be comprehensive.

Under this legislation, the President is directed to promulgate "a nationwide emergency energy rationing and conservation program." He is directed to fix priorities on fuel consumption. His authority is to extend to "transportation control." He is to impose restrictions against the use of fuel for certain uses he deems "non essential." No such awesome powers ever before have been delegated, in peace time, to a resident.

Given the gravity of the present situation, perhaps some such powers have to be delegated, but they ought to be subject to restraints and checks and balances. The bill provides few.

There is this to consider too: The bill opens the door to now and still more pervasive federal regulation of the market place; it imposes new federal authority upon the traditional responsibilities of state and local government.

The second of the two major bills prompts equal concern. If our nation truly is to achieve "energy independence," the major thrust of a research and development program must be directed less toward fossil fuels and atomic fuels and more toward what the experts call "the exotics" — the energy of the sun, the energy of the wind.

One hears pathetically little talk on the hill of harnessing the sun and the wind. If these resources could be mastered — and they can be mastered — much of the problem would be solved not merely for the here and now, but also for the world and for the future.

Our concerns this winter have to deal with power in two meanings — with political power, and with kinetic power also. The problem is to control the one and to expand the other. If we fail, we can look to the day when two lights grow dim — the lights of freedom, and the light of industry as well.

Camas Prairie next?

The appearance of big-money land buyers in Camas County is only the most recent example of the need to think out what the future course of Magic Valley should be.

It is not now far-fetched to imagine the Camas Prairie becoming the Camas Subdivision.

It is altogether likely that the handful of people who inhabit Camas County, who are among the wealthiest in Idaho as they live the good life in the thinly-settled dryland farming and ranching valley, will experience a fundamental shift in their way of life. In the foreseeable future they may become hosts to California.

The Camas Prairie is the big developer's dream. It is the wide open spaces tucked into a manageable cozy valley. It has blue skies, hot water springs and ski runs. It's off the beaten track, unspoiled.

Surely the Crandallme Land and Cattle Co., which has been buying everything in sight in the county and offering to let the sellers "name your own price" must not be unaware of the possibilities.

Imagine the ad in the Los Angeles Times: "Own your own ranch where Indians once harvested the blue Camas lily. Hot springs, golf course, ski resort. Just a stone's throw across the Sawtooth Range from Sun Valley. Your own five-acre piece of God's Country, from $10,000."

There would be buyers aplenty. The same kind of process already has begun in Blaine County and threatens to start soon in the Hagerman Valley and along the Snake River Canyon rim.

The unfortunate thing is that the sudden development boom has hit each of these areas before the areas residents were prepared to deal with the forces of change.

For example, Camas County is currently in the process of drafting a land use ordinance. But before the rules for development could be laid down there, something of a land rush had already begun.

Similarly, in Twin Falls County, the county commissioners have approved new developments along the Snake River Canyon rim at the same time they were grappling with various proposals for zoning and land use planning.

Again, the development was begun before the local community could come to grips with the problem.

There is no question that there will be widespread development in Magic Valley along lines that are only vaguely clear to us at the present.

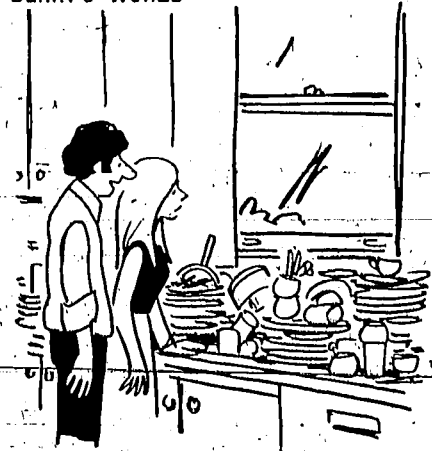

There is nothing inherently wrong with development. What we have today in the valley resulted from ambitious development schemes fostered by the pioneers.

But it is equally clear that development must be something that is thought out with the best interests of the valley in mind. Not only short term profits but long term benefit must be kept in sight.

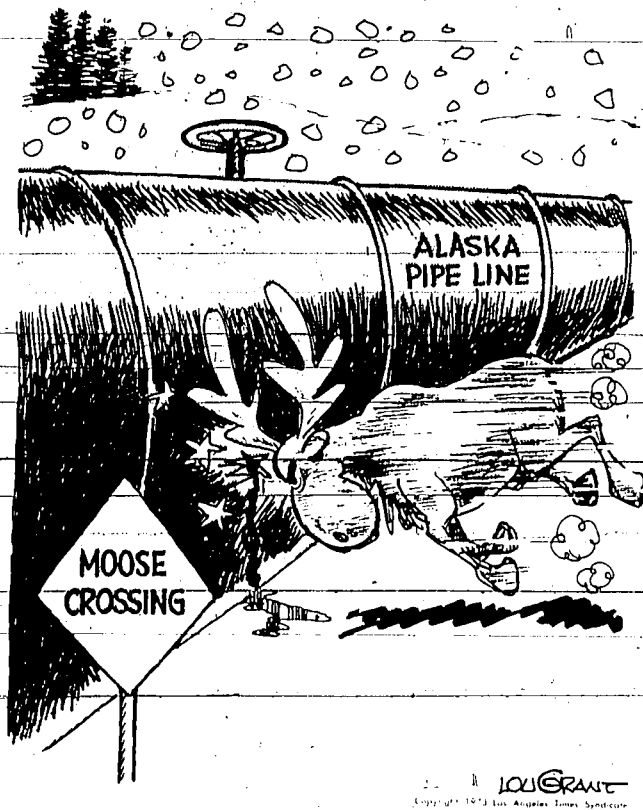

The recent discovery of about a mile of bulldozed streambed on the Crandallme newly acquired property in Camas County strengthens the conviction that good development is too important to be left to the developers.

There is no area of greater public need in the Magic Valley today than the need for serious thought and effective action to shape the future of our own "piece of God's Country."

Energy bill raises more questions than 'Gate'

WASHINGTON — If you're trying to figure out what you should be thankful for, you might be thankful you don't have to handle the fuel shortage or administer the national emergency energy bill (S. 2589) just passed by the Senate.

This bill gives the President vast discretionary powers to conserve fuel of all kinds, but it raises more questions than Watergate. For example:

— It authorized the President to limit nonessential fuel consumption, but how do you cut consumption — by rationing fuel or taxing it?

— How do you make a fair choice between allocating furnace oil for New England as compared with gasoline for California and Florida?

— How do you share the limited supplies even within a state like California, which is warm in the south and is often chilly north of San Francisco? Or between congested cities like New York and sprawling cities like Los Angeles?

JAMES RESTON

— What is "essential" in one area of the country, or even one part of the state, may not be "essential" in another. S. 2589 empowers the President to reduce consumption by eliminating "non-essential recreational activities."

— Under S. 2589, the President could control advertising, blackout all lighted billboards or "pleasure driving" on Sunday, but do you permit advertising for little cars and ban it for Cadillacs and the other big gas-guzzlers?

It is interesting how the Senate has dealt with this problem. In the middle of trying to restore its own authority after Vietnam and Watergate — even while it was in the process of considering the possibility of impeaching the president for exceeding his constitutional powers — it tossed responsibility for handling the fuel crisis to the President, without defining the principles or the policy that should guide him.

But under the pressures of the latest Middle East war and the Arab oil pressures on the United States, Western Europe, and Japan, the Senate has rushed through a loose, imprecise, and at some points even incoherent bill, and the House would probably have done the same if it had not been for the Thanksgiving recess.

So maybe the Thanksgiving recess in congress is a blessing that will give the Congress time to reappraise the situation. The House has not yet voted on the problem. It will be roughly a month before the issue can go to the floor for a vote and to the White House for the President's signature.

This will give the oil-producing nations of the Middle East time to think whether it is in their long-term interests to blackmail America, Western Europe and Japan. It will give the Congress time to think about the implications of S. 2589, and tidy it up a bit. And it will give the press time to make sure it is ready to report on the new complicated federal regulations on fuel, so the people will know what the government is doing before the regulations create even more divisions than we now have.

Price spiral grips Mexico

MEXICO CITY — Mexico is in the throes of an inflationary spiral that has increased the wholesale price index by more than 78 per cent in the past year, according to government sources.

The phenomenon has brought wide consumer discontent and has been instrumental in triggering at least 1,000 strikes — some of them major ones — involving tens of thousands of workers since January.

Many additional threatened strikes were headed off only because the government ordered the minimum wage increased by 18 per cent in mid-September and promised to review any cost of living increase again in January.

Inflation here has not been as severe as in some other nations in Latin America, but it is viewed seriously by the administration of President Luis Echeverria.

From August, 1971, to August, 1972, the consumer price index went up 5.1 per cent, although it has escalated this year to 13 per cent. Mexican inflationary trends have roughly paralleled those in the United States.

The Echeverria administration has announced an anti-inflation program to try to keep the inflationary trend in check, including controls of public expenditures and efforts to liberalize international trade to improve Mexico's balance of payments.

It would appear those efforts are not successful. Prices are rising and many businessmen are ignoring government plans.

Fund refusal surprises IRS

It just isn't this way in any Magic Valley community we are aware of.

Across the small towns and townships of this good-old-America there are still some people who stand up on their hind legs and howl. Rather, we mean communities howl.

The office of revenue sharing in the Internal Revenue Service has been surprised to learn that more than 130 towns, villages and townships have returned their revenue sharing checks with comments that they cannot be bothered or don't believe it anyway.

MRS. SPECTATOR

In some cases, Mr. Spectator was told, some of the town fathers simply decided that the red tape, minimal though it is, is not worth the small check they are entitled to. In other instances the comments are more pointed.

The mayor of Coahoma, Tex., returned nearly $2,000 with the comment that the program is "one step forward toward an even larger federal government which means increased taxes and increased dependence upon the federal bureaucracy by local governments."

From Sutton, Neb., came this rejection notice: "We will run our own business out here in Nebraska... so quit bothering us."

In a way it's a somewhat refreshing contrast and reminds us of our days as a reporter in Twin Falls 35 or so years ago. We remember when the WPA (or was it the PWA?) wanted to give the city a subway under the railroad tracks on Shoshone Street leading to South Park. The City Council members told the federal government to go take a jump in the lake. Then the offer was made to use PWA (or was it WPA?) funds to build two new grade schools. The taxpayers told the government people to get lost — and the citizens passed tax bonds to pay for their own schools. Now tax bodies are condemned if they do not grab federal money.

Gad! How times have changed hereabouts!

BETTER BELIEVE IT

Mr. Spectator bought a brand new dictionary for the office at home. Cost (and we hate to admit it) was $50. Mrs. Spectator said we would never be around long enough to use all those words listed in the thing. And she might just be right. But it does give one a sense of having something in reserve — having a book that large.

DC law firm charges Nixon with 28 'indictable crimes'

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — A public interest Washington law firm headed by William A. Dobrovir has published a massive exposition of what it asserts are "indictable common crimes" committed by President Nixon.

The paper lists 28 counts of alleged criminal violations committed by Nixon both directly and through his White House and re-election campaign staffs and his private representatives. The alleged crimes involve the Watergate scandal, campaign financing, violation of civil liberties and the use of federal funds for personal enrichment.

The crimes claimed by the law firm to have been committed by the President and his subordinates include conspiracy, illegal wiretaps, burglary, obstruction of justice, perjury, conspiracy to defraud the United States, several counts of bribery and fraud in connection with campaign contributions and responsible for the illegal acts of his subordinates.

President Nixon and his representatives have denied on a number of occasions this year the commission of crimes or any other wrongdoing in connection with the Watergate break-in and campaign financing and related issues.

Dobrovir cites a 1938 case against racketeer Charles (Lucky) Luciano as a precedent for holding the head of an organization, Nixon in this instance, criminally favorable to the contributors, embezzlement and tax evasion.

The report by the law firm deals only with possible criminal offenses by President Nixon. It does not discuss potentially impeachable but non-indictable offenses such as the usurpation of Congress's war-making powers.

The report on President Nixon's alleged criminal offenses is the latest and most detailed of a number of papers made public in recent weeks on possible indictable

Leads said out

NEW YORK (UPI) — Convicted Watergate burglar James McCord said that many important leads in the investigation were stopped by the Department of Justice or the White House, according to a Parade Magazine story published Sunday.

According to McCord, the FBI was required to clear all important leads in their investigation with the Justice Department before acting on them, Parade said. The magazine said the FBI thus was hamstrung by individuals determined to cover up the crimes.

Arab envoys confer

ALGIERS (UPI) — Foreign ministers from 16 Arab nations opened a two-day conference Saturday and the first speakers said chances of a Middle East peace settlement were diminishing.

"The chances of battle are increasing because the last few days have proved that Israel insists on aggression and expansion and the United States continues to back Israeli aggression," said Arab League Secretary-General Mahmoud Riad of Egypt.

"We are meeting here to mobilize Arab efforts for the battle," he said.

Riad said Israel's aggression and U.S. support "should increase the Arab nations' determination to realize victory because our demands are legitimate."

Skylab crew ready for space studies

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab 3's astronauts took the day off Saturday, sleeping late and catching up on housecleaning chores so they will be ready for 11 weeks of intensive space research.

Gerald P. Carr, Edward G.

Gibson and William R. Pogue slept two hours late Saturday, waking at 9:15 a.m. EST to the song "Paralyzed" by the Starbuck Cowboys, a noisy combination of band and song.

"It's time to get up and enjoy your day off," ground communicator Robert Crippen told them. "Our team of flight controllers has been practicing all week for today. We've been loafing."

The final Skylab crew spent an easy day cleaning their kitchen, bathroom and three bedrooms and sorting equipment for their science work.

Flight controllers were still studying the affects of losing one of three spacecraft controlling gyroscopes. Officials said the chances were "nil" that a second gyro would fail which would force an early end to the 84-day holiday flight.

The astronauts conducted several medical experiments during their first week in space, but don't begin the other major tasks until Monday. Flight planners scheduled the first earth resources picture-taking sweep over the United States for that day. The pilots are to man the solar observatory control panel for the first time Tuesday.

Skirmishes take toll

SAIGON (UPI) — Truce violations rose to the highest total in a month Saturday and nearly 100 persons on both sides died in the fighting, the South Vietnamese military command reported.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, reported 111 cease-fire violations in the 24 hours ending at noon today. It was the highest such total since Oct. 24, when there were 120 in the corresponding period.

Hien listed 63 Communists, 34 government soldiers and 11 civilians killed in the fighting.

'Kwai' star dies at 83

TOKYO (UPI) — Sessie Hayakawa, the Japanese-born actor best remembered for his role as the swaggering prison camp commandant in the film "The Bridge on the River Kwai," died Saturday after a lengthy illness. He was 83.

A spokesman at Kyoundo hospital said the cause of death was softening of the brain complicated by pneumonia.

In the movie, "The Bridge on the River Kwai," a World War II story of life of a British battalion in a Japanese POW camp in Thailand, Hayakawa played opposite British actor Alec Guinness, the commander of the Allied prisoners.

A TIME FOR FOR FACTS

Boise Cascade Corporation has submitted a carefully drawn proposal for reclassification of the Idaho Primitive Area and the Salmon River Breaks Primitive Area.

The proposal takes the middle ground between those who would have all the Idaho Primitive Areas preserved for the few who can afford or are physically able to get to it at all, and those who are equally extreme in advocating total declassification, which would possibly mean depletion of the esthetic and natural resources of the Idaho Primitive Areas.

Boise Cascade's proposal has been misunderstood and in some cases attacked, often with little regard for reality or fact. We urge you to consider the charges against the proposal and compare them to the facts.

CHARGE

Boise Cascade's proposal includes no Wilderness classification at all for the Idaho Primitive Areas.

FACT

Boise Cascade's proposal calls for a Roadless Recreation Area totaling nearly 600,000 acres along the main Salmon and its Middle Fork. The character of the Roadless Recreation Area would be identical to that of a Wilderness Area with minor exceptions. For example: The Roadless Recreation Area would permit primitive camping facilities along these rivers, whose waters are being increasingly dirtied by the thousands of people who float and boat the rivers. If it will serve to depolarize the controversy, Boise Cascade is perfectly willing to call it Wilderness, forego the phrase Roadless Recreation, even though management of the area as Wilderness would deprive the public of the benefits inherent in a Roadless Recreation classification. We believe the rivers should be out of bounds for any activity except recreation. Without roads, no dam building, no mining, no timber harvesting, no other commercial resource use could or should take place.

CHARGE

Boise Cascade's proposal would destroy invaluable salmon and steelhead habitats as a result of road construction and subsequent logging.

FACT

Boise Cascade's proposal is consciously designed to protect these habitats. Under our proposal, no logging or road building or mining or dam building could occur in the 579,098 acres extending 136 miles along the Salmon. In those areas where the Boise Cascade proposal would allow timber harvesting under a graduated multiple use concept, there are strict provisions for the protection of fish and game habitats, scenic areas, and water quality.

CHARGE

Boise Cascade's plan would open the Idaho Primitive Areas and the Salmon River to dam construction, mining, road building and other kinds of activity that would destroy its wild character.

FACT

Boise Cascade's proposal would not permit any such activity within the 579,098 acres—it proposes as Roadless Recreation (or Wilderness) Area. That includes dam building, road construction or any other commercial resource development in the main Salmon river and Middle Fork canyons. Under the Boise Cascade proposal, these rivers would be out of bounds for any activity except recreation.

CHARGE

The timber in the primitive area is only 1.3% of the timber being exported to Japan.

FACT

That is true, but this country imports more wood than it exports. In 1971, as a matter of fact, the U.S. imported 1.6 billion cubic feet of timber more than it exported. None of the timber in the primitive areas would go for export. Timber from these areas would go to local mills, maintaining Idaho jobs and contributing taxes to Idaho.

If other timber were available, Boise Cascade and the industry would seek it out. In Idaho we are fully utilizing our own lands, and no other timber is available.

CHARGE

No loss of jobs or other economic disruption would result in Idaho if none of the harvestable timber in the Idaho Primitive Areas was made available to the timber industry.

FACT

In the past few years, the Forest Service has reduced the amount of timber available for commercial harvesting by at least 50 million board feet. Boise Cascade's proposal would provide the industry with 40 million board feet of replacement timber from the Idaho Primitive Areas. Without replacement timber, Boise Cascade and/or other forest product companies in southern Idaho will be forced to shut mills. There is no way around the unhappy fact that shutdowns will result in loss of jobs and loss of tax revenues.

Since 1970, 300 jobs in the timber industry in Idaho have been abolished. Mills at Moscow, Orofino and six other towns have been closed. Boise Cascade last year cut back production at its Barber mill by one half for lack of timber. Many towns—towns like Emmett, Council, Cascade, Salmon, Grangeville, Horseshoe Bend, McCall—are heavily dependent upon the timber industry for the economic well-being of their citizens.

Two and possibly three service jobs are put in jeopardy for every job abolished. In 1972, county, school, bridge and road funds in Idaho realized $6 million from timber sale receipts alone. Property taxes on wood products manufacturing facilities accounted for hundreds of thousands of dollars in state and local government support.

Boise Cascade's proposal is a suggestion for the resolution of an issue that is vital to every individual in the state of Idaho. The outcome will affect not only the environmental quality but the economic vitality of Idaho for years to come. Whether you agree with Boise Cascade's proposal or not, you should be fully aware of the facts and then you should be heard. You can make your opinion known by writing the U.S. Forest Service or by writing to any or all members of the Idaho Congressional delegation.

Vesco tie ends US drug probe

(c) N. Y. Times Service
 WASHINGTON — For more than a month, Senate investigators have been studying allegations that federal agents suddenly ended a narcotics investigation after an undercover worker brought Robert L. Vesco's name up as the reputed financial backer of the smuggling of 100 kilograms of heroin.
 The staff of the Senate permanent subcommittee on investigations has put in touch with employees of the Bureau of Customs, the drug enforcement administration and the Secret Service about what has been done with information produced by the undercover man, Frank Peroff.
 Peroff was a supplier of information for about six months for all three federal agencies, as well as for the French and Canadian police, before he notified his control agent that he had been told Vesco was to provide $300,000 in financing for a 100-kilogram heroin purchase.
 Peroff, 36 years old, had no proof Vesco was involved, and provided only the information he said had been given to him.
 After Peroff related to federal agents that he had been told Vesco was to be the backer of the scheme, a sequence of events occurred, Peroff and other sources said.
 Federal agents, who had provided for the use of an airplane for the smuggling scheme, withdrew use of the craft.
 Peroff was told by the agents to create problems by making impossible demands on the Canadian criminal group he was dealing with.
 When the Canadian group moved to meet the demands, Peroff was taken out of Canada by the agents and was then ordered to tell the smugglers that the deal was off because his plane had been repossessed.

New Miss World

RECEIVING CROWN of Miss World 1973 is Marjorie Wallace, Miss USA. She received her crown from Miss World of 1972, Belinda Green in London Friday night. Miss Wallace, 19, is a blonde from Indianapolis, Ind., and the first American girl to win the crown. (UPI)

Profit lid asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The AFL-CIO asked Congress Saturday to consider an excess profits tax to keep the energy industry from reaping a windfall from fuel shortages.
 The labor federation also urged Congress to block an administration effort proposed by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz to curb gasoline consumption by imposing a higher tax. It indicated it would prefer rationing.
 The AFL-CIO's position on the energy crisis was outlined in a letter from its chief lobbyist, Andrew J. Biemiller, to Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., whose House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee is considering a bill to give President Nixon broad emergency powers to deal with shortages. The Senate already has passed a similar bill.

Alert data asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., Saturday called on Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to honor his pledge and make public the facts about the U. S. military alert ordered during the Middle East crisis.
 Proxmire said Kissinger, at an Oct. 25 press conference, promised to disclose the reasons for the alert.
 But Kissinger, at another press conference last Wednesday, said he regretted making the promise and added that it would serve no useful purpose to reveal the reasons for the world-wide troop alert.
 President Nixon ordered all 2.3 million American military personnel on alert Oct. 24 after the Soviet Union threatened to put troops into the Mideast. The precautionary alert, described as the most serious since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, was cancelled after about 48 hours but some U. S. units remained on alert for another 10 days.

Money reform aired

PARIS (UPI) — Finance officials from the United States, Japan, Britain, West Germany and France are meeting privately in France to discuss world monetary reform, diplomatic sources said Saturday.
 A spokesman for the British Embassy said Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber arrived in France this afternoon for a meeting of the type news reports have mentioned.
 French Radio said the meeting is taking place at the Loire Valley home of French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing 150 miles south of Paris.

Don't lose your shirt heating a drafty house

For the house that's drafty enough to dry the laundry, heating costs can take you to the cleaners. As energy prices increase (and there's no escaping the fact that they will), a wasteful heating system can be a drain on the budget.

One helpful answer is thorough insulation. We recommend Idaho Power's Gold Medallion standards: ten inches overhead (R30); six inches in the floor (R21) and four inches in the walls (R12)*. Then install double windows and doors and you'll add to your comfort and savings.

As you save your shirt, you'll save energy, too. It's the wise thing to do in these energy-short times.

For assistance in your insulation improvement plans, call your local Idaho Power Company office.

Henry sure about taps.

(c) New York Times Service. WASHINGTON—Secretary of State Kissinger has said privately he is "virtually certain" his telephone was tapped sometime after he joined the Nixon administration in early 1969, according to a former White House associate.

Kissinger, who recently returned from a trip to China and the Middle East, reportedly made the remark shortly before he was confirmed as Secretary of State in September. When the associate, a former White House official, pressed Kissinger as to who he believed might have ordered such surveillance, the secretary replied, "At least now you know the plumbers don't work for me."

The reference was to a White House group called the "plumbers" because it was assigned to halt leaks of information.

Kissinger, the associate said, would not elaborate on the basis for his suspicions.

The secretary denied through a State Department spokesman earlier this week that he had "ever expressed such a belief to anyone."

Told of Kissinger's "total" rejection of his account, the associate, who asked not to be identified, replied that he would stand behind his version of the conversation.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy White House press secretary, asked to comment on the report, replied "We have no evidence whatsoever that Secretary Kissinger's phone has ever been tapped."

If Kissinger's reported belief is correct, it might mean that the Nixon administration's effort in 1969 and 1970 to halt leaks of sensitive foreign policy information to the press extended far higher than previously realized. Kissinger was one of the three men who played a central role in the investigation of "lesser" government officials suspected of leaking such information.

Bax says hospital opening speeded up

"That happened sooner than it would have happened," he said of the building's reopening, "because of the fact that Vern Ravenscroft supported some legislation that was a consideration."

Part of the hospital facility is now in use as a sheltered workshop program in Region V. Bax said the program was a good one.

Bax said much of Ravenscroft's concern over the merger bill was with fiscal savings that might result. He said Ravenscroft expected to be shown how savings would result from the creation of DECS.

Ravenscroft confirmed that the two men had discussed reorganizational savings a number of times, including one night in Bax's office. "He was lobbying for his bill and he was also concerned about environmental protection," Ravenscroft said.

The lawmaker also said he had "demanded a written summary" from Bax about the savings that could result from reorganization. He said he still had the summary Bax had provided him and would watch it during the 1974 legislative session against what actually occurred.

Ravenscroft said he and other Gooding County area legislators had been trying for three or four years to have the hospital reopened. He said he had discussed it with Bax but also said "I don't recall that he gave me any deadline or that I asked for one."

He also said he voted on legislation solely on the basis of merit. He said he had successfully attempted to have the original merger proposal amended to give more authority to the board of environmental and community services.

He also said he had initially opposed some of the environmental protection legislation until it was rewritten to remove some of the provisions he found offensive.

Bax pledges 'no deals' in Senate

(Special to the Times-News) BOISE—Dr. James A. Bax, administrator of the Department of Environmental and Community Services, declared Saturday he would "love" to win Senate confirmation in his job but said he wouldn't make any deals to win votes.

"Jim Bax's ego isn't as important as the things that this department does," Bax said in an interview.

He said he came to Idaho to accept an administrative job in state government and found himself getting comfortable. Spoking of the 1973 legislature, he said, "it kind of got to me, I wanted to be comfortable and live in Idaho."

As a result, he said, "I started going out and making deals," even though he said he never compromised on services the department was providing.

But Bax said he now realizes "I'm not a politician and I'm not going to try playing at it. That game is over with. I'm not going to try to please the legislature per se."

Atty. Gen. W. Anthony Park said in an opinion last week Bax was required to seek confirmation from the state Senate as DECS administrator. Originally hired as director of the former Department of Environmental Protection and Health, Bax was appointed to head DECS when it was created earlier this year.

Bax said last week he had assumed all along he would have to face confirmation.

'Army' yule bells begin

TWIN FALLS — Salvation Army volunteers are standing on cold-street corners ringing bells to remind holiday shoppers of the need to help less fortunate persons in the community at Christmas.

Capt. Dale Vilen said the family Salvation Army kettles went into service Friday with volunteers collecting funds to provide Christmas dinners for needy families in the community.

Capt. Vilen said between 80 and 90 families are expected to receive food boxes and toys in the annual Christmas campaign.

The Salvation Army works with the Twin Falls VFWA, Elks Lodge and other community clubs in providing for needy families.

Visits will also be made to the nursing homes in Twin Falls with gifts for all residents and a special holiday dinner will be served the prisoners in the Twin Falls County jail.

In addition, the nursing homes in Buhl and Kimberly will be visited. Marjorie Hoops, in charge of service organization participation in the program, said a plaque is awarded each year to the organization whose members collect the most money through the kettle program.

Mrs. Hoops said organizations wishing to assist with the kettle collection campaign should contact her. The Soroptimist Club, current holders of the top collection plaque, will be ringing bells at the Kettle stands Dec. 8 and the Twin Falls Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs will assist on successive Saturdays.

Other clubs are invited to assist and individuals who cannot afford a cash contribution may help the cause by assisting in the bell ringing.

Letters will also be mailed to business firms and individuals this month asking their contributions to the holiday program by donating to the Salvation Army.

Kettles need filling

CHRISTMAS dinner and toys for needy Twin Falls area families are in the making with Salvation Army kettles on busy streets to gain money for the project. From left are Mrs. Dale Vilen, Salvation Army; Renee Hatimond, youth volunteer, and Marge Hoops, in charge of service club participation.

Percy slaying suspects named

CHICAGO (UPI) — Two members of a gang of housebreakers were linked Saturday to the unsolved slaying of Valerie Percy, daughter of Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., seven years ago, the Chicago Sun-Times reported in its Sunday edition.

In a copyrighted story, the newspaper named the two men as Francis L. Hohimer, 46, a burglar now serving a 30-year sentence at the Iowa State Penitentiary in Fort Madison, Iowa, and Frederick Malchow, an accomplice of Hohimer, who died in 1967 after he escaped from authorities and plunged into the Schuylkill River near Norristown, Pa.

Miss Percy, 21, died after being hit on the head twice and stabbed 10 times in the senator's home in suburban Kenilworth, Ill., early Sunday, Sept. 18, 1968. Police have

Items stolen

TWIN FALLS — Edwin Edwards told city police Saturday someone took several items from his mobile home in the Pioneer Trailer Park.

He said he missed the items late Friday. Included were two rifles, a cassette player, some tools and cameras.

Total value was estimated at $270.

Hohimer was accused of being Miss Percy's assailant in statements given the Sun-Times by Hohimer's brother Harold Wayne Hohimer and crime syndicate figure Leo Rugendorf, a known fence for stolen jewelry. Rugendorf died in 1972 after telling two Sun-Times reporters that Hohimer said he killed Miss Percy.

Hohimer flatly denied he killed the girl when confronted at the Iowa prison, the newspaper reported, and instead accused Frederick Malchow of the crime.

He said a bloodied Malchow, along with two other gang members, Harold J. (Jimmy) Evans, 28, and William Jack-

Bond funding studied

By RICHARD CHARNOCK BOISE (UPI) — Sale of revenue bonds to the State Treasurer to finance state building construction is being considered by the Andrus administration, an Idaho State official said today.

D. E. "Skip" Chilberg, director of administrative services, said he has asked for an attorney's opinion on whether this would be permissible under the Idaho Constitution.

Chilberg said the proposal is yet another possible way of raising money for much-needed building construction — at institutions, in the Capitol Mall and in regional centers around the state.

Earlier, Chilberg disclosed the administration is going to propose creation of a State Building Authority — a sort of "public corporation" — to issue revenue bonds for building construction.

Already on the drawing board is a five-story state office building in the Capitol Mall to be constructed with $4 million in surplus and reserves of the State Insurance Fund. It will be paid off with interest over a 20-year period with rentals and then will be purchased by the state for a nominal sum.

These are among methods the administration has proposed to get around the constitutional debt limitation of $2 million and not have to increase taxes which support the permanent building fund. With an anticipated income of $5 million per year, the building fund has received building requests in excess of $40 million for next year.

Chilberg said Wyoming has a similar constitutional debt limitation and gets around it by having its Capital Building Commission issue revenue bonds.

He said these bonds then are bought by the state treasurer with investment funds and paid off with interest through rental charges.

If this is deemed legal in Idaho, he said, the Legislature could set up the machinery whereby an agency could sell the revenues bonds to the treasurer. At present, he said, State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon is investing $72 million worth of funds.

Whether another commission or agency should be created to handle such bonds, Chilberg said, has not been decided.

"We haven't pursued that matter," he said. "This is very much in the stage of preliminary investigation."

He said the plan could apply to all state buildings, however, and not just those in the mall or in the regional centers.

Witnesses elude Senate questions

By JAMES R. POLK
(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON—A Washington lobbyist and the former head of Phillips Petroleum Co. have both used the Fifth Amendment to elude questioning by Senate Watergate investigator on an illegal $100,000 donation in cash to the Nixon campaign.

The witnesses, company lobbyist Curstons Sack and former board chairman W. W. Keeler, will not be called to testify at the Senate hearings because of their refusal to answer questions, a Watergate committee official said.

Phillips—the only company not prosecuted so far after its earlier admission of an illegal contribution—will thus become the only firm which has confessed wrongdoing to escape scrutiny in the open hearings.

The Senate hearings, rushing toward conclusion, will plunge into what may be the final two weeks with another round of corporate witnesses next Tuesday.

Tentatively scheduled to testify are an official of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co., which used $30,000 in kickbacks from a consultant in Europe as a Nixon donation; the head of Braniff Airways, which flushed $40,000 in company funds through Panama for Nixon; and a former lawyer for Hertz Corp., under investigation for possible company donations to the presidential campaign of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Me.—After their testimony, the Senate hearings will move into the heavy flow of milk money for Nixon on Wednesday or Thursday. The hearings may run four days next week.

Braniff, 3M and four other firms whose officials appeared last week have pleaded guilty to illegal corporate donations, but Phillips Petroleum—which announced last summer that its $100,000 came from company money—has yet to be charged by the Watergate special prosecutor's office.

There are indications the court action is being delayed until the hearings have run their course.

Gulf Oil—one of the prosecuted firms—was found to have practiced a pattern of illegal donations to several candidates, using readily arranged hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash taken out of offshore company funds in the Bahamas.

Gulf, Ashland Oil and Phillips each admitted illegal $100,000 Nixon donations. Amera Less also gave about $100,000 or more through its executives at the same time—apparently—in a legal and voluntary manner. But no evidence has turned up publicly so far on any similar contributions from several major oil marketing companies.

The lobbyist and the former board chairman appeared before Senate investigators on Tuesday.

Alabama merchants urged to light up

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI)—Christmas lights used by merchants as decoration during the holiday season will not contribute to the nation's energy crisis, according to an Alabama Power Co. official.

W. O. Whitl, a vice president with the Alabama Power Co., told merchants Thursday that the holiday lights could actually lead to a decreased need for heating fuel inside the stores because of the heat they generate.

He said the lights use a small amount of electricity.

The merchants had been apprehensive about using the lights, fearing the public would think they were wasting electricity after they have been urged to turn off their own lights and turn down the heat.

Council warns of dangers

COEUR D'ALENE—Environmental decisions to close up large areas of forest land as wilderness could adversely affect the very values being advocated for protection, said the Idaho Forest Industry Council president.

James Martin, president of the council, said short sighted preservation and environmental decisions regardless of the sincerity of their efforts cannot only have dire consequences for the economy of Idaho but can damage the resources the environmentalists seek to protect.

In a statement today the council announced general support of recent public statement by Boise Cascade president John B. Ferry, Boise, and Glenn Steiner, owner of Steiner Lumber Co. of Elk City and Kamiah.

Heavy harvest drops French wine prices

PARIS (UPI)—Despite inflation, the price of wine is dropping thanks to a record harvest, perhaps the best in a century, the newspaper France-Soir said today.

This year, grape pickers brought in 2.08 billion gallons, outdoing the 1962 harvest of 1.92 billion gallons and comparable only to the legendary 1875 output, the newspaper said.

The record production, according to France-Soir, explains the price drops of from 2 to 16 cents per bottle in wineshops.

Part of the drop is due to the 60 to 300 per cent price increases registered beginning in 1972, France-Soir said. These increases were the result of growing foreign demand and a relatively poor harvest. In 1972, only 1.4 billion gallons were brought in.

The newspaper said that wine harvests around Europe were also up. In Italy, the harvest totalled 1.82 billion gallons and in West Germany 286 million gallons, both increases.

The global European figure was 4.21 billion gallons, or about 910 million gallons above the 1970 average, France-Soir said.

Q—What about the nutritional values of different brands of margarine? Are cheaper brands as nutritional as the more expensive ones? —Mrs. C. R., Fairmont, Minn.

A—The label can give you a clue. Although most margarines do not use animal fat (lard or hydrogenated lard), some less expensive brands might do so. The first ingredient named on the label is the one with the greatest weight. Look for ones which have liquid oil as the first ingredient.

For people who worry about heart disease, some doctors recommend the use of oils that are polyunsaturated. The oils with the highest rating of polyunsaturated to saturated fat (in this order) are: safflower, corn, sunflower, soy, cottonseed. Coconut oil is saturated and should be avoided.

All brands of margarine are required to have 15,000 IU vitamin A per pound. Some brands contain vitamin D which really isn't necessary because you can get this vitamin in fortified milk and breakfast cereals.

Margarine has about the same amount of fat and calories as butter with the exception of a "low-fat" margarine which has 40 per cent fat.

Soft or liquid margarine will have a higher polyunsaturated fat rating than hardened stick margarine.

You can get an interesting book, "Nutrition Scoreboard," which rates food according to positive and negative nutrition values. Soft margarine is rated zero while one pat of butter is rated minus three.

Under "all-star food," frozen broccoli is rated plus 116. Under "junkyard foods," soda pop is rated minus 92. The book, prepared by Dr. Michael Jacobson, is available for $2.50 from Center for Science in the Public Interest, 1779 Church St., N. W., Washington, D. C. 20036.

to include a late payment charge when the bills are due the same day they are received. — J.D., Davidson, N.C.

A—Technically, yes. But you should call or write the utility. Most will remove the charge. If this sort of thing is repeated, you should send copies of your bills along with a complaint to your state utility commission. Your local government officials can tell you where the commission can be reached.

Q—Is it better to have a new roof installed or roof repairs done in summer or winter? How do you find a good contractor? — R. S. R., Freeport, Pa.

A—Local contractors know which times of the year are best. It varies. Also, there might be "slack" seasons where you can get a better price.

Try to pick a contractor who is a member of the National Roofing Contractors Assn. Most will give two-year guarantees. New shingles of top quality (25 pound) should last for 15 years.

Plastic or "miracle" coatings are at best a temporary patch job and are not recommended.

Q—I'm a widow 75 years old and I do housework at $2.50 an hour about eight hours a week. I get a small Social Security check. Do I have to pay income tax on my earnings? — A.K., Weed, Calif.

A—If your wage earnings are under $2,000 a year, you don't have to pay income tax. Also, after age 72, all restrictions on how much you can earn in order to keep getting your Social Security checks, are waived. You can earn more money and still get your regular Social Security checks.

Oil crisis makes happy man of oriental manager

By KEYES BEECH
(c) Chicago Daily News

TOKYO — One of the happiest men in Japan these days is Tetsuji Uetake, manager of a briquet (compressed coal dust) plant in Tochi Prefecture northeast of Tokyo.

It's all because of the oil crisis.

Briquets, along with another old-fashioned fuel, charcoal, were a dying industry, a dim and distant memory of the bleak postwar years, until the Arabs applied the oil squeeze.

Now Uetake has more business than he can handle. His plant has shipped more than 3,000 tons of briquets during the past three months, double the same period last year.

"And we still have a backlog of orders for another 1,000 tons," he grinned.

"We're at least six weeks behind in deliveries," said another briquet-maker. And the price of briquets has soared from about 75 cents to $3 for a bag of 14. Ditto charcoal, as charcoal burners make their appearance in Japanese kitchens for the first time in years.

Some housewives have dusted off forgotten coal stoves — only to be told, "Sorry, there's no coal."

Kerosene, on which a majority of Japanese rely for fuel for their homes, has become so sought after that one department store is offering a drum of kerosene as a sales promotion gimmick.

If the briquet and charcoal makers are happy about the oil shortage, nobody else is. "It hit us right in the middle of our affluence," confessed a Japanese newspaperman.

"We seem to be running out of everything all of a sudden," grumbled a Mitsubishi white collar worker. Japan is in the middle of such a paper shortage that newspapers may have to cut back on their pages.

A few weeks ago the country experienced a toilet paper shortage. An old woman was tripped to death in a rush for toilet paper. Some companies have instructed their employees to use both sides of office stationery to conserve paper.

But it is the oil squeeze that is cramping Japan's affluent life style. Already, some of the more spectacular neon signs for which Tokyo is world-famous have begun to flicker out.

Starting Dec. 1 if not sooner, restaurants, stores and nightclubs will be asked to close earlier. Filling stations will be closed Sundays, and although the government isn't saying anything about it now, gas rationing is a definite possibility by January.

"This will hit the Japanese public where it really hurts."

Indian leader urges boycott

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The militant American Indian Movement urged Indians Friday to boycott white men's bars during the Christmas holiday season and abstain from alcohol as a poison "used for 300 years by white invaders to suppress and oppress Indians."

Dennis J. Banks, the movement's executive director, said in a statement that "with the coming of the white man's holidays, there will be a mounting pressure on Indians throughout the United States to continue self-genocide with white man's whiskey."

Alcohol, he said, "is the dominant causative factor in the decimation and destruction of Indian people." Banks urged all reservations to "boycott white man's bars and sources of this destructive poison."

Crib-burning TV show to court

BROWNSTOWN, Ind. (UPI) — A dispute over a TV documentary showing a burning baby crib Friday went into Jackson Circuit Court.

The American Broadcasting Co. brought in three experts to testify about a documentary on fire hazards scheduled for showing next week.

The Smith Manufacturing Co. filed a $5.5 million libel suit and is seeking an injunction barring the showing of the controversial section of the documentary showing the baby crib burning, one manufactured by the company.

AIC brought in Jules Bergman, the coordinator of the documentary, Pamela Hill, the producer, and Dr. Robert Brady Williamson, associate professor of engineering science, University of California at Berkeley, to testify.

Bill would halt US aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Bill Stuckey Jr., D-Ga., a member of the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, said Friday he plans to introduce legislation next week giving President Nixon the power to halt U.S. aid and trade to oil-producing Arab countries because of their oil embargo.

The Georgia congressman said, too, the President should also have the power to cut trade to countries acting as conduits for U.S.-produced goods that end up in Arab nations.

"We don't want to see the situation where the Soviets sell their wheat to the Saudi Arabians and then fill their own silos with U.S. wheat," he said.

He said the United States could not continue to "take the abuse of the oil embargo after sending Treasury dollars for the economic development of these very same countries. Give the President power to trim trade and aid will provide Secretary of State Henry Kissinger with "another tool" in his negotiations.

Vote set on reform of campaign finances

By JAMES R. POLK, (c) Washington Star-News
 WASHINGTON — Spurred by the Watergate scandals, the senate will vote next week on a reform move to switch to federal financing of political campaigns for both the White House and Congress, starting in 1974.
 A two-party coalition of senators has mounted a strong drive to the its overhaul of campaigns into the vote-resistant debt-ceiling bill as an amendment, bypassing a roadblock on the House floor and forcing a showdown by the end of next week.

After Senate passage, the debt bill is to go directly to a House-Senate conference committee, with agreement on a final version hoped for by a week from today — the deadline to avoid a sudden drop in the ceiling on government borrowing.
 The campaign reform would provide tax-paid matching funds for presidential primaries as well as the November election, and would also cover the general elections for the Senate and House.
 Its backers are claiming support from a scant 51-member majority in the Senate, although the headcount is shaky and still shifting.

State removes 5,700 billboards

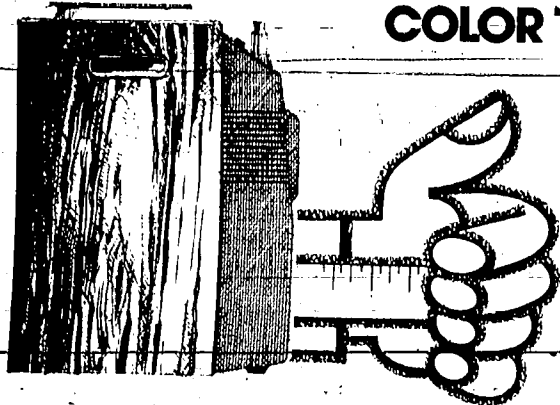

SHOSHONE — To date, over 5700 billboards have been removed from the state highway system since July, 1972, when then Secretary of Transportation, John Volpe, and Gov. Cecil D. Andrus took down the first sign on Interstate 80N west of Boise.
 At that time, there were some 7,302 non-conforming or illegal signs dotting the Idaho landscape.
 As of Oct. 1, according to Idaho Department of Highways' District Engineer

Howard Johnson, 862 out of 1545 signs had been removed along state highways in the 10 southern Idaho counties under his jurisdiction.
 The disappearing signs were "non-conforming" under the Federal Highway Beautification Act of 1965. "Non-conforming" means location of a sign in a land use zone other than "industrial" or "commercial."
 Under state law all off-premise signs within 660' of any Primary or Interstate highway are required to have an outdoor advertising permit. New advertising signs may not be closer together than 500 feet on Interstate highways or 250 feet on primary highways outside of city limits, 100 feet within city limits.

WHY MGA SOLID STATE COLOR TV?

Our 110" Thinside picture tube is thinner than most.

Fits On A 12" Bookshelf.

And that contributes to the sharpest, clearest picture possible. Most MGA color TVs feature the 110" "Thinside" picture tube. It takes up less space. And that means most MGA color TVs can fit on a bookshelf. And every MGA color TV must survive a grueling, 48 hour high-voltage "on/off" test before it leaves the factory, while most also have a special FAILSAFE 100% solid-state chassis.

So take an MGA color portable off our shelf, and put it on your shelf. We've got the MGA line at Mel Quale Service Company in Twin Falls.

CS-150 — 15 in. deep, means portable color TV. FAILSAFE solid-state de-pendability 100-degree Thinside picture tube (only 14" deep). Color Lock. Automatic Fine Tuning.

US wants mid-east conclave

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Foreign Minister Abba Eban said today the United States wants a Middle East peace conference to begin in mid-December despite Israel's Dec. 31 national parliamentary elections.

Landing at Lod international airport from a trip to the United States, Eban said he will report this to the Israeli cabinet which meets Sunday.

"I explained to Secretary of State (Henry A.) Kissinger that the Israeli delegation could not make any concrete commitments until after the election," Eban said.

"Nevertheless, the United States believes that opening the negotiations in mid-December has a number of advantages which are likely to influence the international atmosphere."

Choosing mate guided by economic principles

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — The same forces that explain what you buy in the economic marketplace may explain why and whom you will marry, according to a paper published recently by a University of Chicago economist.

Gary S. Becker, a professor in the economics department, calls it "a theory of marriage" that explains through economic principles how we go about choosing a mate.

Marriage, he says, is nearly always voluntary and therefore falls under the theory of preferences, which assumes people marry to raise their "utility" above the level it had when they were single.

What they gain from a marriage can be thought of as "commodities" like quality of meals, quality of children, prestige, recreation, companionship, love and better health.

Most of these commodities can be purchased on the open market by single persons, Becker admits, but he says marriage continues to prosper because it offers the opportunity of having one's own children.

In recent years, he writes, "economists have used economic theory more boldly to explain behavior outside the monetary market sector. As a result, racial discrimination, fertility, politics, crime, education, statistical decision-making and other behavior are much better understood."

Marriage is one of the few areas that the economic theorists have overlooked, he says, even though it lends itself readily to such an analysis.

Becker's book-length thesis, relying on complex mathematical formulas, indicates that patterns of marriage can be charted.

Strip mining called delusion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Ken Hechler, D-W. Va., said Friday claims that more strip mining of coal would help end the energy shortage crisis is "a fraud and delusion."

"The bleeding hills of Appalachia will be dealt a death blow if President Nixon has his way in stepping up the strip mining of coal," he said.

Hechler, the most outspoken critic of surface mining in Congress, also attacked delays in passing federal strip mining control legislation in the House, and questioned why the United States was exporting nearly 10 per cent of its total coal production to Germany, Japan and other nations if the U.S. energy situation was so critical.

"It is a fraud and delusion to claim that more strip mining will help solve the energy crisis, when there are 222 billion tons of low-sulfur, deep mine coal readily available, and only 32 billion tons of low-sulfur stripable coal which can readily be recovered," Hechler said at a news conference.

"The people of Appalachia have suffered enough in the rape of the land, the ripping up of our hills...and the human tragedy visited on the people who are forced to live in strip-mined areas," Hechler said.

"Now we are being called upon to make the final sacrifice by devastating our land and people to keep the lights burning elsewhere."

Hechler said Congress was delaying action on a surface mine reclamation bill and that the administration was trying to weaken the bill. He cited recent statements by Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, energy adviser John Love, and Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon seeking to eliminate certain provisions of the House or Senate measures.

Seven Mini-Cassia youths get awards

RUPERT — Seven students in the Minico and Burley high schools have received the James P. Lincoln Arc Welding Foundations awards for special projects this year.

Richard S. Sabo, secretary of the foundation said Gary Beaver, Rupert, received $15 for a cattle squeeze chute as the second high honor in the region.

Fifth place regional honors, a $50 cash award, went to Dennis Cole his two-horse trailer project. Sixth place, $25, went to each of four other Minico High School students. These include Daniel Pasley, for a 15.5 foot bulk flat bed with removable sides; Kevin Harper, a roll over corrugate opener; Keith Kraus, a squeeze chute and Cliff Anderson, also a cattle squeeze chute. Instructor is Keith Merrill.

Clayne M. Robinson, a student at the Burley High School received a $25 sixth place regional award for a deluxe swing set. His instructor is Wayne A. Reddekopp.

Merry Pet

Linda Merry, DVM

Question: Everything has a name and I know that the wartlike process on the inner front leg of a cat has a designation. I should like to know the name for it and feel that you can help me.

I refer to the process that has no claw (not the dew claw) and is about 2 1/2 inches up from the toes of our cat. One of the pair of processes between the bases of the last pair of walking legs of a king crab is called a chilarium.

If that has a name I know that a cat's fleshy prominence has, too. Thank you for your help. I so enjoy your column in our daily newspaper. Incidentally, I'm a lover of words, a verbomaniac, as well as an cilurophile.

Answer: If there's one angle, notch, or prominence of the body left unnamed, some prolix barbarian is certain to rush right in and rectify the situation. Ask any struggling anatomy student.

In this case I found two names for the pad you describe. In our U.S. texts it is called simply "the carpal pad." In French texts it is referred to as "the hypothenar pad."

Either way, it is a true foot pad which lies behind the carpal bones in both the cat and dog.

Question: I have two questions. What is the length of the interim between heat periods for a cat? Is a cat eight years of age too old to be spayed?

Answer: Cats have seasons of heat two or three times yearly; usually in mid or late winter, late spring, or early summer. But cats believe in doing things wholeheartedly, and during these seasons they come into heat three or four times in a row every 15 to 21 days.

Multiply that out and it can amount to 12 heats yearly if the cat isn't bred meanwhile.

A cat is never too old to be spayed if she still has all her working parts and is in physical condition to withstand the operation.

Anesthesia is a greater risk in older animals but even that has been minimized through the use of gas anesthesia machines.

If I were you, I'd make an appointment with the veterinarian, let him examine the cat (check her heart, lungs, and kidney function), and then take his advice on how safe it would be for your animal.

Question: Can you tell me why it's always possible to tell a dog apart from a cat when you see them running, even if they're the same size or at night?

Answer: They have different systems of locomotion. A cat walks or runs by moving the front and back legs on one side, then those on the other side. The only other animals that ordinarily move like this are the camel and giraffe.

If you have a question about your pet, send it to "The Merry Pet column," the Times News.

DECS to ask $30 million from state

Caldwell boy shot

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Ronald D. Stansell, 6, Sunny Slope, was in poor condition today at Caldwell Memorial Hospital after being accidentally shot with a 12-gauge shotgun at his home.

Canyon County authorities said the boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Stansell, was watching television, when his 16-year-old brother picked up the gun to go hunting, and it accidentally discharged, hitting Ronald in the upper left arm.

Parking case studied

BOISE (UPI) — Earl Manchester got another day in court Friday concerning his battle over parking meter fines, and magistrate Alan Schwartzman took the case under advisement.

Manchester, 63, was on trial for failing to pay for parking tickets, his argument being that the tickets were given illegally. Judge Schwartzman gave the defense 20 days to file briefs, the state 10 days to respond, and the defense another five days to reply to the state's response.

The prosecution contended Manchester was responsible for parking ticket placed on his car.

Salary hike asked

BOISE (UPI) — If a citizens group had its way, the Governor of Idaho would make $42,500 per year and there would be a full-time Lieutenant Governor making $35,000.

The group initiated a bipartisan effort Friday to increase salaries of the state's elected officials and district judges.

Former State Sen. W.L. "Bill" Crookham, Caldwell, said that while Idaho ranks "notoriously low nationally in elected official salary, it would be the intent of the group to balance Idaho's current salary level with sister states, or at least those with similar economic climate.

He said he will call for drafting of legislation to increase the governor's salary to $42,500 annually, an increase of $12,500 over the current $30,000.

Boise suit filed

BOISE (UPI) — R. Scott Patterson, saying he was paralyzed by a trampoline accident at Capital High School two years ago, has filed a more than $2.5-million damage suit against the Boise School District.

The suit filed in Fourth District Court Friday said the mishap occurred while Patterson was under the supervision of the defendants—the district, the board of trustees and school employees. The suit charges failure to exercise duties of supervision.

Patterson received spine and nervous system injuries as a result of the accident and is a permanently disabled quadriplegic, according to the suit.

Narcotics probe to end

BOISE (UPI) — An inquiry by a Colorado official into the operation of the Idaho Narcotics Enforcement Bureau is expected to be finished by the end of December.

John MacIvor, director of the Colorado Bureau of Investigation, according to Attorney General W. Anthony Park, has completed a visit to Pocatello and is to go to Coeur d'Alene next week.

Motion denied

HAILEY — Fifth District Judge Charles Scoggin has denied a defendant's motion for either a new trial or reduction of the $125,000 general damages awarded a Ketchum couple in the death of their 13-month-old son.

Judge Scoggin had taken the motion under advisement after a Nov. 1 hearing.

The total $145,885 general and punitive damages awarded to Craig and Ann Rumpeltes, Ketchum, in their suit against Mico Mobile Home Sales and Leasing Co., Boise, was the highest award ever given in a child death case in Idaho.

The award was made by a nine woman, three-man jury in Hailey on Sept. 14.

Rail tracks cleared

PLUMMER, Idaho (UPI) — A section of railroad track near here has been cleared and open to traffic following the derailment of 11 cars of a Chicago-Milwaukee St. Paul and Pacific Railroad freight train.

A spokesman said Saturday most of the cars derailed remained on the ground just off the track. The cars contained general merchandise.

The derailment of the 45-car train occurred late Thursday, and crews spent most of the next day clearing the line.

No estimate of damage or cause of the derailment was given by the railroad.

Lights not popular

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — Retail store owners in this Northern Idaho community are in agreement that both indoor and outdoor Christmas lights and decorations just won't be a big sales item this year.

Store owners said the reason appears to be the Northwest's energy crunch.

In a survey of Coeur d'Alene's downtown area, three stores which normally stock lights won't have any this year, and one other store said it would sell last year's leftovers and not order any new supplies.

Three other stores reported they had drastically cut their orders and one merchant said he ordered his normal amount, but did not expect to sell as many as before.

Coeur d'Alene merchants said they felt indoor lighting sales would be lower than previous years and outdoor light sales would be near zero.

DECS reorganization hit

BOISE (UPI) — A federal official says a recent reorganization in the Department of Environmental and Community Services may jeopardize federal funds to Idaho, but the administrator of the department says not so.

Richard Grant, state coordinator for regional funding for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Seattle, said that several million dollars in federal funds are in jeopardy because of the reorganizational changes made 10 days ago by administrator James Bax.

Ketchum youth shot

KETCHUM — Steve G. Poetter, 30, Ketchum, was listed in good condition Saturday at the Moritz Community Hospital, Sun Valley, with a gunshot wound in the foot.

Poetter sustained the wound Thursday.

He told a Blaine County deputy sheriff he had been hunting about four miles north of Ketchum. He believed his shotgun was on a safe, but it fired when he slipped on a snow-covered log.

The charge hit his right foot.

By DAVID ESPO

T-N Capitol Bureau

BOISE — The Department of Environmental and Community Services is going to ask the state legislature for about $30 million in state money next year, according to Dr. James A. Bax, administrator.

Bax said in an interview Saturday the money — an increase of about $5 million over this year — would go for increased aid to the poor, blind, elderly, disabled, and underpaid DECS employes.

He said he would also seek an increase in the amount of money the state could pay to shelter homes. Citing the current payment schedule as an example of "hypocrisy in government," Bax said it costs the shelter home about $6 a day to care for a client, while the state can pay only $4 a day.

Bax also said he would try to raise the payment level for "Aid to Families with Dependent Children to reflect 1973 needs.

The current payment is at 80 per cent of the 1971 consumer price index, with an increase to 90 per cent scheduled Dec. 1.

Bax said he expected an increase in federal money to the agency would bring the 1975 fiscal year budget to $80 million to $85 million. He vowed to turn the money into increased services for the people of the state while at the same time cutting administrative costs by eliminating some of the government in the state capital.

Regionalization of the department is working, Bax said, claiming the regions are staffed with "the most brilliant team of people who have the most brilliant groups of ideas." He said the department was trying to install a comprehensive computer system in the central office to coordinate some of the regional functions.

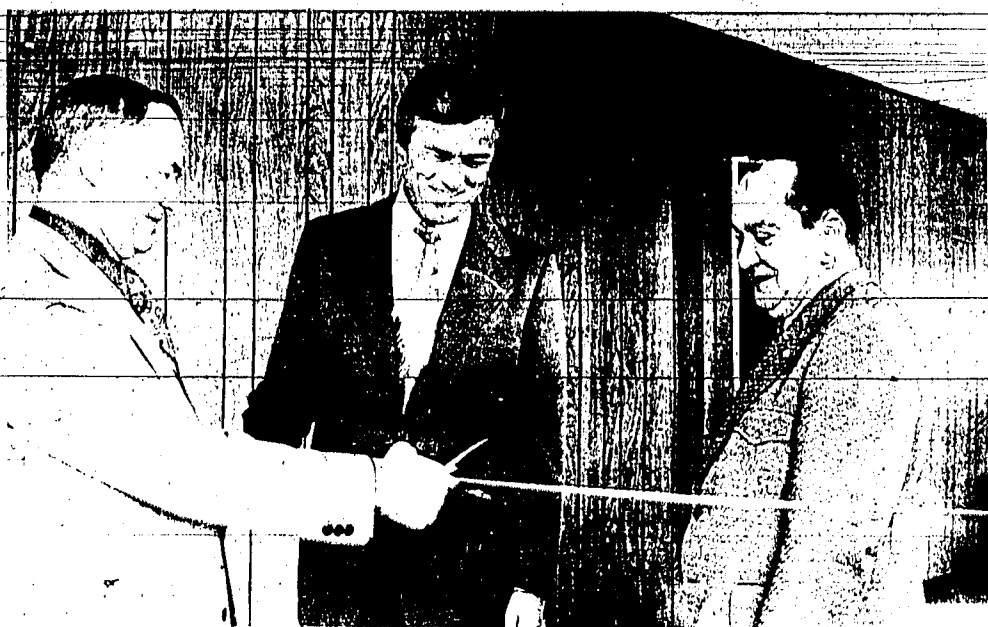

"The goal of DECS is to provide better services and more services for the people who have nowhere else to turn," Bax said.

And while he pledged the department to reorganizing that with cutting back expenditures, "The purpose of government is not to save money. The purpose of government is to spend money in a wise way to serve people," he said.

Bax said he hoped the issue of welfare payments would not be put to rest noting that the state had succeeded in cutting back in the error in the welfare program. He said it could do more to help the people who are legitimately receiving welfare.

"Now that the rolls are honest we have to see that our payment levels ought to be honest," he said.

Compared to national figures, he said, "Idaho is getting off very cheap when it comes to welfare."

3 ribbons cut

TF airport security concourse opens

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Three ribbon cutting ceremonies at the Twin Falls City-County airport Saturday morning inaugurated a new $35,000 security concourse and baggage facility.

City Manager Jean Milar who presided over the brief ceremony said the entire project was provided by Twin Falls County with the cooperation of the county commissioners who designated revenue sharing county funds for the improvement.

County Commissioners William L. (Bill) Chancy and Merl Leonard officiated at the ribbon cuttings with Mayor John Christoffersen and other city officials, airport commission members and the contractor and architect attending. Don Hughes, security officer, was also present.

The first ribbon was cut at the entrance of a large carpeted foyer where the air carrier passengers will gather before security screening. The next section to be officially opened was the security concourse. Here passengers will enter through a metal detecting device and will then wait in the long hallway type room to board the plane. Once they have entered the security concourse they will remain there until boarding the plane, Milar explained.

The third area is a shelter type structure where passengers may claim luggage without having to wait in weather. Construction which was opened Saturday is on the east end of the existing airport terminal and is completely carpeted and of glass, frame and masonry construction.

Milar said the new "passenger service" facility is to speed up handling of security measures and better serve the public. It was designed by Harold Gerber, architect, and built by Arrington Bros. Construction Co., Twin Falls.

Holiday makes confusion on TF highway petitions

TWIN FALLS — Anyone interested in running for a seat on the Twin Falls Highway District Board of directors should file a candidacy petition Monday — and then hope.

The official deadline for filing of candidacy petitions was Friday, but since the election notices were not published until Thursday, a holiday, a Highway District official said an attempt will be made to get late-filing candidates on the ballot.

Two four-year terms on the board are scheduled to be filled and, as of Friday, only the incumbents had re-filed for election.

Chief Highway District engineer Keith Anderson said Friday that "it would have seemed a little better if this (the election notice) was out earlier."

Anderson said the highway district would "certainly make every effort to get this (the name of any late-filing candidate) on there (the ballot)."

The highway district election is scheduled for Dec. 3. Board chairman Kenneth Poe, representing subdistrict 1, and Lloyd Shewmaker, representing subdistrict 2, have re-filed for the seats they now hold. The third seat on the board, held by Orep Jones, is not open for election.

Anyone wishing to attempt to get his or her name on the ballot must have a candidacy petition, available at the highway district office, 1234 Highland Ave. E., with the names of at least five registered highway district voters.

Anderson said the highway district was not trying to keep the election under cover by not publishing an election notice until the day before the filing deadline.

In the last week or so, Anderson said, 29 notices of election have been tacked up throughout the district in "well-populated" places, such as shopping centers, the courthouse and city hall.

Interruption

SHOSHONE — Electrical service will be interrupted periodically in Richfield and Dietrich areas Thursday, according to Kenneth Blackburn, manager of the Shoshone office.

The hours of interruption will be from 1 to 7 p.m.

A sectionalized switch on the transmission line serving the two communities will be installed, Blackburn said. The switch will help prevent extensive outages caused by storm or accidents in the future.

Idaho Power will work to hold the outages to a minimum, Blackburn said.

$100 offered at Hagerman

HAGERMAN — A $100 reward has been offered by citizens of Hagerman for information leading to the conviction of persons committing vandalism at the Hagerman Cemetery, according to Jack Allen, sexton.

Allen reported vandalism occurred at the cemetery at night during the past two weeks. The worst damage to date was done Tuesday night following or during the snowstorm.

He further reported cars have torn up the roadway, especially on the corners, and have also torn up the turf by driving across the grass.

Allen said the gate to the cemetery is usually locked at night, but this has not always kept the vandals out and at one time the gate was damaged when someone tried to gain access to the cemetery.

Allen said the vandalism has been reported to the sheriff.

Blaine predicts larger enrollment in schools

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A "skyrocketing" school enrollment has been predicted for the Wood River Valley over the next ten years, according to Blaine County school officials.

Their report is based on a comprehensive study prepared by the Population Study Group — chaired by Don Bennett, Ketchum — of the county schools and facilities study.

The report indicates that Wood River Valley school enrollment will jump by 283 per cent over the next 10 years, increasing from 1,300 students in April, 1973, to 5,000 elementary, junior high and high school students by 1983.

Total valley population, which encompasses the Ketchum, Sun Valley, Hailey and Bellevue communities, is expected to increase from the present level of less than 7,000 to more than 24,000 in 10 years, the report states. The county growth rate has been about three times the state increase over the past three years.

According to the report, large-scale development impact on the school system is evident in the statistics. Five major projects — McCulloch, Sun Valley-Elkhorn, Indian Creek, Mountain Meadows and Bigwood — are expected to contribute about 1,000 additional students or about 50 per cent of the total anticipated increase over the next ten years.

The report includes data on school enrollment and population trends from 1968 to 1973; a detailed study of present enrollment, and a 10-year projection of anticipated school population increase.

Analysis and tabulation of 1,300 questionnaires completed by parents of all students enrolled at the time of the survey provided basic demographic data. A compilation of information on all subdivisions and development projects in the study area provided the basis for forecasting school population increase.

Anticipated unit sales, projected to 1983, were translated into housing units, population and students in calculating the school population increase.

Facts indicated by the survey include that one out of every five of the area's residents is a student enrolled in a Wood River Valley school.

The report states that more than 40 per cent of the current enrollment is comprised of students whose families have moved to the Wood River Valley during the past five years.

Students have come from 27 out of the 50 states and from a half-dozen foreign countries. California heads the list with seven times as many influx students as the next states, Washington and Utah, the report states.

The survey also fixed the present student population center at about one mile north of Hailey. By 1983, according to the projection, the center will have shifted southward to within the Hailey city limits.

Here he is!

SANTA CLAUS arrived in several Magic Valley towns this weekend, in preparation for the Yule season. Here he is greeted upon arrival by special charter plane at the Burley Municipal Airport Friday noon. He was escorted to his workshop at the city hall by Burley police. The workshop will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. every Saturday until Christmas.

'Black hole' detected

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (UPI) — A star that doesn't twinkle because its surface has collapsed—perhaps the inevitable end of large stars—has been reported by University of California scientists.

Astronomers have long thought such stars, called "black holes," were possible, but because of their darkness were unable to be seen.

But researchers reported in the current issue of the Astrophysical Journal that a black hole was detected by the effect of its intense gravitational field on a neighboring star, "Cygnus X-1," which is 8,000 light years from Earth.

Robert P. Kraft, leader of a graduate student team during last summer's project, said the findings were "the best we have or even the best we can even hope to have."

Black holes may be the result of a star's nuclear fire dying out and eventually collapsing on itself, increasing the star's mass. The gravitational field becomes so strong that not even light can escape, Kraft said.

The strong gravity sucks gases into the black hole with such energy that X rays are produced, which helped lead to the discovery, he said.

Kraft said Cygnus X-1's orbit indicated an invisible companion.

Happy holiday

NO gas shortage here! Holiday traffic is backed up as far as the eye can see on the Long Island Expressway during the peak hours of Thanksgiving Day. (UPI)

Ski group alarmed

BOSTON (UPI) — The National Ski Areas Association (NSAA) says emergency energy legislation pending in Congress could cause financial disaster in states whose economies are largely dependent upon recreation.

"It should go through as written, it will bankrupt certain states," said Phil Camp, a spokesman for the group which is headquartered in West Hartford, Conn.

Cal Coniff, executive director of NSAA, Camp and other executives of the skiing-recreation industry plan to go to Washington next week to implore Congress to re-examine the legislation so they "understand the true economic implications of what they're about to do."

The NSAA said it objects because the proposed law says that when it comes to fuel allocations, the recreational industry, of which skiing is a vital part, will not be considered a vital industry and therefore will not be able to receive fuel.

What that means, Camp said, is that the recreational industry will be the first to be denied fuel.

"No way should we be considered a luxury," Camp said. "We're not a luxury. We're an industry."

New Vitamin Q aids blood clots

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Dr. Armand J. Quick, a researcher on the staff of the Medical College of Wisconsin and developer of a widely used test for blood coagulation qualities, has announced the discovery of a new vitamin — Q.

In 1934, Quick, 80, developed the Quick test to determine the clotting ability of a person's blood. It is used in examinations to determine what anticoagulants may be safely used on a medical patient.

Quick said he has treated about 25 patients with a soybean extract containing Vitamin Q, which he said is essential to the blood's clotting mechanism.

Last year, Quick reported that he thought he had discovered a new vitamin. After treating the patients, Quick said he is more certain of his discovery.

Quick said his research should not result in people stocking up on soybeans. He said only a small amount of the vitamin is probably necessary for the proper working of the blood.

"I don't want this abused," he said. "It's not a cure-all, as some have claimed for Vitamin C."

Quick's discovery

apparently confirms what other researchers have proven in test tube experiments—that a soybean extract, belonging to the phospholipid family, hastened the clotting of blood in test tubes.

According to Quick's theory, the substances must be a vitamin if it was needed by the body, but not manufactured by the body. Vitamins, he said, are substances the body cannot make for itself.

Quick said he first tested his theory on a person suffering from a hereditary blood disorder called thrombocytopenia, which is a tendency to hemorrhage.

Quick found the 44-year-old patient's ability to stop bleeding from an ear prick was significantly prolonged and decided to test the soybean principle.

He said the man's bleeding time returned to normal after taking daily doses of the soybean extract for a week. Quick, who has studied the man's condition for 21 years, said it was the first normal bleeding time he had shown since Quick had known him.

Quick said he has received promising results after treating patients with other bleeding disorders.

Kohoutek aids blood clots

By United Press International

Kohoutek, the "comet of the century," isn't putting on much of a show yet but as it gets closer to the sun in the next few weeks, astronomers expect most folks will be able to see a dazzling display of lights.

Donald Ehlers, director of the Southern Connecticut State College's planetarium and observatory, says the comet could turn out to be only a blurry white haze to the human eye.

Some experts have said Kohoutek, discovered last spring, will be even more brilliant than Halley's comet, which streaked across the sky in 1910.

However, Ehlers said, "comets are unpredictable. It's difficult to forecast with certainty how the comet will appear until it actually happens."

As the comet draws closer to Earth during the next few days, it will be visible nearer and nearer to dawn, Ehlers said. The contrast will be less as the sky gets lighter.

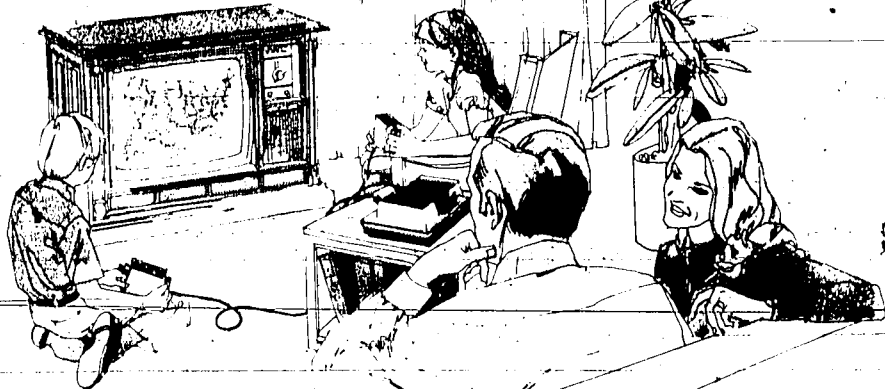

The comet is scheduled to be at its closest point to the sun Dec. 28.

Soviets due US farm help

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A new system for selling American farm and food technology to the Soviet Union will be in operation "soon," Agriculture Department officials say.

Gordon O. Fraser, an official of the department's foreign agricultural service, said in an interview here he expected to see the start of negotiations between Soviet agencies and U.S. agribusiness firms under the new arrangement within the next few months.

The system, a formal new channel to put Soviet officials in touch with the American technology they want was set up last week in Moscow during a conference on U.S.-Soviet agricultural cooperation. It was one of a number of agreements brought home by a U.S. negotiating team headed by Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll G. Brumthaver.

The Russians are interested in getting American know-how on the organization and management of large scale agri-business enterprises," Fraser said. He said this applied especially to production and processing of livestock products including poultry, beef and pork.

Under the new Moscow agreement, Russian agencies which want to find new technology will approach the EAS. The U.S. government agency will relay the request to its Cooperator Council for Agricultural Market Development, a panel including a long list of farm and agribusiness associations.

That panel, working through one of its member groups, then will put the Soviets in touch with one or more commercial companies in the field involved.

After that point, Fraser said, any arrangements between Russian agencies and U.S. firms will be straight business deals, resembling one recently-concluded deal in which Ceres International, Inc., a Colorado firm, is currently building a 20,000-head feedlot for beef cattle for a Soviet state farm near Rostov.

Fraser said in most cases the Russians may buy a package of technical advice and - or U.S. equipment which they will operate themselves. But there is a possibility, he said, that "joint venture" deals in agricultural production may be developed.

U.S. officials say the new arrangements offer a number of advantages to this country. Some American farm and food processing firms may be able to profit from sales of production and processing systems and equipment in the long run.

As Soviet production of poultry, beef and other livestock foods continues to expand, the Soviet Union might want to buy increasing volumes of American feed grains and soybeans.

Idaho pork producers slate meet

BURLEY—The Idaho Swine Producers will meet Wednesday and Thursday at the Ponderosa Inn.

A feature of the session will be the organization of the Idaho Porkettes, with Glenda Wrigley as chairman. The group consists of women involved or interested in pork production.

Joe Wilhelm, president, said a featured speaker will be Ann Norman, of the National Pork Producers Council, who works with media food editors and industry home economists.

Speaking at the evening dinner meeting will be Dr. Jack McCroskey, head of the department of animal industries, University of Idaho.

Other speakers during the two day meetings will include Dr. James H. Bailey extension veterinarian at South Dakota State University; Dr. Lauren L. Christian, of Iowa State University; Gene Willett, New Plymouth, Idaho, pork all-American.

Snake reservoirs under 1972 levels

IDAHO FALLS—According to a report by Arthur L. Larson, Snake River watermaster, Snake River reservoir contents are mostly below levels of a year ago.

Reservoir contents in acre feet with comparisons to a year ago are given for Jackson Lake, 70,160, 80,600; Pallsades Reservoir, usable, 795,900, 888,000; Island Park Reservoir, 76,470, 82,500; American Falls Reservoir, 681,240, 731 million; Lake Walcott, 52,140, 62,600; Grassy Lake, 0,910, 13,300.

Stream flow amounts in cubic feet per second with comparisons to a year ago are given for Moran, 444, 453; Henry's Fork below Island Park Dam, 288, 896; Halse, 1,600, 3,410; Shelley, 3,060, 5,710; Neelay, 2,166, 11,200; Snake River near Mindoka, 3,140, 12,100; Snake River at Milner, 1,800, 12,600.

Flow figures in cubic feet per second with comparisons for a year ago in irrigation facilities are given for Milner S. S. Canal, 470, 705; Gooding Project, 318, 200; N. S. in Gooding, 370, 640.

Precipitation amounts in inches are given for last week, Nov. to date; normal and snow depths for Moran, 76, 4.71, 1.88, 23; Island Park, 1.48, 4.67, 2.74, 18;

County setup changes

WASHINGTON—Although the biggest talk about Agriculture Department restructuring this fall has centered on a potential combination of USDA's Export Marketing Service with the Foreign Service and a rearrangement of the watchdog office of inspector general, the first announced change came when USDA said it will regroup about 7,000 county USDA functions to produce "one stop service" for farmers, rancher and rural residents.

The consolidation of half of the department's existing field offices—means that the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Farmers Home Administration, Soil Conservation Service and the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation will be working from one office, just like the 1972 Rural Development Act dictates.

Ag. Secy. Earl Butz said it was about time the system was brought into the 1970's, claiming that since farmers are being asked to go "all-out" in food production next year, the department ought to offer a streamlined service that lets producers take care of their government business shopping list in one building.

Butz also said the action is needed to reduce confusion among rural citizens who need USDA housing, community facilities, water and sewer and industrialization program help.

The 7,000 office move is phase one of a complete consolidation of the department country functions.

The rural development act is interpreted as wanting other government department field offices to combine also with USDA staff, but agriculture department officials currently think that combination task too large.

Grangers demand supplies

LINCOLN, Neb.—Officials of the National Grange said delegates to the Grange's national meeting feel farmers can't meet the call for increased production in 1974 without adequate supplies.

The delegates said farmers must be guaranteed adequate supplies of fuel, fertilizers, chemicals, machinery and other production inputs in order to increase 1974 crops to the called for levels.

The delegates called for passage of legislation directing the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to accept and approve registration applications for the application of DDT to protect against insect infestation in forests and on agricultural crops where no other effective insecticide is known.

First sale Tuesday

BLACKFOOT—The first public sale of Simmental cattle in Idaho is scheduled at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the Blackfoot Livestock Commission Co.

About 100 head of females and one purbred bull will be sold, Howard Dygert, Idaho Simmental Association president, said.

The sale will follow the third annual convention of the association, set for Monday and Tuesday at the Rodeway Inn. A dinner is planned Monday evening. Marketing, ranch management and livestock financing are among topics scheduled for discussion.

Farm

Turkeys abundant

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—There will be no shortage of turkeys this holiday season, according to the Family Economics Bureau of Northwestern National Life Insurance Co.

The nation's turkey growers have prepared 132 million birds for market, up two per cent over last year. Turkey prices will be higher than last year in spite of the larger turkey crop, due to higher demand during the beef shortage.

The insurance company's report said that depending upon the area of the country and the type of bird purchased, the average Thanksgiving or Christmas turkey will range from 59 to 89 cents a pound, compared to 39 to 69 cents a pound last year.

Also contributing to the increase in turkey prices is the increase in the price of soybean meal and corn — important parts of a turkey's diet. Corn is up 90 cents a bushel from last year and soybean meal by $40 per ton.

Rice hulls make power

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Texas inventor says he has developed a long-life electrical power source generated by bacteria and rice hulls. The organic battery, called a current cell by Lyle D. Atkins, produces one half a volt of direct current regardless of the size or shape of the battery. And it comes with a one-year guarantee, but Atkins says it can easily last five years.

By using more batteries or adding more pairs of electrodes to one battery, more power can be produced, enough to power lights, minor appliances or radios.

Atkins said bacteria react to organic material used in the cell to produce the electricity, but he still isn't sure why, even after 16 years of research.

The bacteria, which come from an ocean source, is the key factor and a well-guarded secret.

Atkins said rice hulls work best with the bacteria because they are high cellulose and the bacteria don't break it down as fast. Almost any organic material will work, but the higher the cellulose, the longer the life of the cell.

The Biocel Corp. produces the battery now in the form of a science kit and on special orders, but it plans more mass production as the cell becomes more popular.

Atkins said the future of the cell should be secure, because people will eventually need a power source at the location it is being used. He said individual batteries could be used to power lights in each room of homes or other buildings or to run radios or appliances. Now the battery is being produced for use in highway caution lights which must operate 24 hours a day.

"It may not answer all the power needs of the future, but every little bit helps," said Atkins.

Duchess takes magazine to court

PARIS (UPI) — A Paris judge today ordered the seizure of the December issue of the French language edition of The Ladies Home Journal because it contained excerpts from a book about alleged romantic affairs of the Duchess of Windsor.

Judge Michel Olivier ordered the seizure and banned the sale of the issue at the request of a lawyer for the widow of the Duke of Windsor. Olivier said the article was "very suggestive" and contained many alleged details on the private life of the duchess who had not been informed of the article in advance.

The seizure, Olivier said, amounted to a "characterized attempt at her private life."

Murders may be linked

ROCK HAVEN, Iowa (UPI) — Police in Iowa, South Dakota and California said Friday they were investigating a possible link between the shotgun killings of four South Dakota teenage boys and two girls in Marysville, Calif.

The two girls, ages 12 and 13, were killed by shotgun in a wooded area near Marysville Nov. 11, according to police, who said a description of the incident showed apparent similarities to the slaying of four boys in an isolated state park near the Iowa-South Dakota border last weekend.

A Lyon County Sheriff's office spokesman said the Marysville report was one of several received by investigators.

The spokesman declined to say whether sketches of three suspects were producing any help in the nationwide manhunt. The sketches were drawn by an artist based on descriptions given authorities by a 13-year-old girl who witnessed the shootings near here and later, she told police, was raped and returned to her home by one of the gunmen. The girl, whose name has been withheld, allegedly had accompanied the four boys.

The four victims, Stewart Bunde, 18, his brother, Dana, 14, Roger Eason, 17, and Michael Hadrath, 15, all of nearby Sioux Falls, S.D., were shot while on a party at isolated Gitche Manitou State Park northwest of here near the South Dakota border.

The Iowa Bureau of Investigation was studying evidence gathered at the scene and in a van owned by the Bunde family which was driven back to Sioux Falls by one of the gunmen following the shootings.

BURLEY — Staff Sgt. Scott E. Schwaeniger, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Schwaeniger, Burley, has received the US Air Force Commendation Medal at Fairchild AFB, Wash.

Sergeant Schwaeniger, a weapons maintenance technician, was cited for meritorious service at Andersen AFB, Guam.

He now serves at Fairchild with the 92nd Munitions Maintenance Squadron, a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

A 1962 graduate of Declo High School, he attended the College of Idaho.

BURLEY — Marine Pvt. David D. Matsaw, son of Mrs. Mary K. Lopez, Burley, graduated from basic training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego, Calif.

FILER — Airman 1C Gary E. Shouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Shouse, Filer, has graduated at Lackland AFB, Tex., from the U. S. Air Force security policeman course conducted by the Air Training Command.

The airman, who was trained in security and law enforcement, is being assigned to Francis E. Warren AFB, Wyo., for duty.

Airman Shouse is a 1973 graduate of Filer High School.

SHOSHONE — Navy Engineman 3C Jerry L. Brit, husband of Mrs. Nancy Brit, Shoshone, was awarded a letter of commendation by the commanding officer of the USS Deliver, a salvage ship with home port in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

When faced with the absence of an engine man first class, he stepped in to fill the vacancy and performed in an outstanding manner.

The responsibilities which he fulfilled are those normally expected of a higher-rated and more experienced petty officer.

Swainston is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Swainston, Richfield. He and his wife and their two sons live in Guam.

Buhl — Marine Cpl. Kenneth H. McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jaymes, Buhl, was promoted to his present rank while serving in Guam.

SALMON — Sp. 4 Terry J. Balliett, 21, participated in support of the 2nd Battalion 61st Air Defense Artillery, 2nd Infantry Division during the live fire phase of the Unit's Operational Readiness Training Test.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Balliett, Salmon.

JEROME — US Air Force 1st Lt. Thomas H. Gano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Gano, Jerome, is a member of a unit which has recorded 100,000 accident-free flying hours spanning 11 years of typhoon reconnaissance in the Pacific.

Lieutenant Gano is a pilot at Andersen AFB, Guam, with the Air Weather Service's 54th Weather Reconnaissance Squadron "Typhoon Chasers."

Aircrews, flying specially equipped WC-130 Hercules aircraft, have made approximately 5,000 flights into the "eyes" of more than 300 tropical storms and typhoons during that time. They collect such data as the speed, direction and pressure of the storms and feed the information to all military and civilian weather agencies throughout a wide area of the Pacific.

The lieutenant was commissioned in 1971 upon completion of officer training school at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Watergate furor stirred

(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration has precipitated a new furor over the breadth of the investigation by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Acting attorney general Robert H. Bork issued a regulation on Tuesday which says President Nixon can limit the Watergate investigation so long as congressional leaders approve the limitations. Bork said the regulation would strengthen the independence of the Watergate prosecution force.

But Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., saw the regulation differently. He "should stun the Senate and all concerned Americans by revealing a massive new loophole which might serve to aid and abet the continuing Watergate coverup," said Kennedy.

"Investigations can be shut off, sensitive areas protected from the scrutiny of the special prosecutor, and friends of the White House given refuge, all with the Congress as the inadvertent cooperator," the senator said.

And Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield was said to be displeased with the regulation, partly because he was not consulted before it was attached to Jaworski's charter. Mansfield is one of the eight leaders who would be consulted about limitations.

The majority leader was also said to disagree with Kennedy and other senators that the congressional leaders were only to be consulted to approve or block Jaworski's removal from office. A "consensus" — of six of the eight — would have to approve for Jaworski to be fired.

When the charter was issued upon Jaworski's acceptance of the Watergate prosecution post, "There were scant indications that the 'consensus' provision could be used for any other purpose," Kennedy said.

"This is the way it was understood by the Senate," said Kennedy. "This was the interpretation of the media. This was the understanding of the courts in written opinions. And this was even the belief of the attorneys for the Justice Department."

Jaworski appeared to be undisturbed by the regulation. A spokesman for him said that the regulation would indeed strengthen the independence of the Watergate prosecution force.

Bork said the regulation was left out of Jaworski's original charter because of a "drafting error." Jaworski took over Nov. 5, two weeks after Archibald Cox was fired as special prosecutor.

The breadth of the Watergate investigation was a constant issue during Cox's tenure, according to Cox and former attorney general Elliot L. Richardson.

James S. Doyle, spokesman for Jaworski, said Friday that he saw nothing sinister in the change of working.

Doyle suggested that in placing responsibility on Congress to limit the scope of the investigations, Bork had made it impossible for the President to place him again in the position of having to give an unpopular order to the special prosecutor.

Bork needed to fire the President's order and fired Cox, even though he later admitted that he felt uncomfortable about his action.

Cox and Richardson told the Senate Judiciary Committee recently that the White House complained about probes by Cox's staff into such matters as the financial affairs of Charles G. Kebozo, the President's friend.

Thieves make b-i-g mistake

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Two would-be thieves made a big mistake Thursday when they attempted to rob a drug store in suburban Penn Hills Township while a detective was checking prescriptions in the back of the store.

Police said Lt. Detective James DeMarra was looking through a two-way mirror in a back room when two armed men entered the pharmacy and demanded narcotics.

Police recovered the drugs and confiscated their sawed-off shotgun and pistol.

Meat eating declines

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
 Indications are that American consumption of meat will drop to 180.3 pounds per person in 1973, the lowest level of meat eating since 1967 when 178.3 pounds of meat were eaten per person, according to David H. Stroud, president of the National Live Stock and Meat Board.

He said the decline was due to the meat shortage this year, but that next year should be more normal.

Stroud said per capita consumption in 1973 is expected to break down this way: beef, 112.4 pounds, down nearly four pounds from last year; pork, 83.2 pounds, a drop of 4.2 pounds; veal, 2 pounds per person, the lowest it has ever been; and lamb, 2.7 pounds, down from 3.3 pounds in 1972.

"This represents a relative shortage in the sense that less meat has been available than had been predicted for 1973," he said. "We're not experiencing a shortage in the sense of 'running out' of meat, but the supply is less than consumers have been accustomed to having available. The amount of beef, veal, pork and lamb available is almost nine pounds less than in 1972 and 11.5 pounds less than the record-breaking 191.8 pounds consumed per capita in 1971."

The amount of meat available to each American this year — though low — contrasted to the past couple of years — will still exceed by more than 10 pounds the per capita intake of just one decade ago. The figure in 1963 was 169.7 pounds — and that also was a record high.

Stroud said the outlook to the end of 1973 is for considerable more meat in supermarket cases than during the past summer, with the amount about the same as this time last year.

This could mean a continued leveling off though we hoped there would not be further drops in retail meat prices.

Stroud said the number of hogs on farms and cattle in feedlots reaching market weight are sufficient to keep supplies at per-year levels this fall. But too great a drop in retail price would back up to producers and could cause "non-expansion moves by farmers."

Noise making toys get 'silencers' this year

(c) Chicago Daily News
 CHICAGO — Two-gun tots will have "silencers" on their toy pistols and machineguns this year, providing Chicagoans with the quietest Christmas in years.

Commissioner Jane Byrne of the city Department of Consumer Sales announced that she has received pledges from all the major toy manufacturers that their noisemaking toys this Christmas will comply with a city's noise ordinance, limiting decibels to the maximum of 85.

Last Christmas, she ordered cap pistols and toy machineguns removed from the shelves because their decibel ratings hit as high as 120 and usually were not less than 90.

The crackdown brought redesign of toy weapons and other noisemakers, including toy saws, sewing machines, rocket ships, jet planes and other toys that make a racket. Comr. Byrne said cap pistol noise was reduced by lowering the amount of powder in the caps.

Mattel, one of the largest toy manufacturers, and several other toy firms, pledged compliance with the noise levels.

Mattel also pledged to dealers that it would swap new, less-noisy models of toys for last year's in cases where retailers were unable to dispose of them, Comr. Byrne said.

Comr. Byrne also will meet with the toy manufacturers of America as they present their code for voluntary compliance with a city ordinance against dangerous toys.

The industry filed a suit against Comr. Byrne and the city after her crackdown against dangerous toys last Christmas season, but they have agreed to withdraw it after approval of the compliance code. The code already has been approved by the federal government, she said.

She warned parents, however, that "we haven't inspected every toy and any that appear to be in violation should be reported to us."

Black leader knocks evangelical Christians

CHICAGO (UPI) — A black evangelist said Friday that evangelical Christians are more concerned about "just toward swivel-hipped secretaries than the callous manipulation of the Justice Department to re-elect the President.

The Rev. William Pannell, of New York City, vice president of Evangelical-Tom Skinner Associates, told a three-day conference that conservative Christians have seen sin in individual but not national terms.

"Sin is real, but alms are not, greed is real, but excessive profiteering in the name of free enterprise is not," Pannell said.

"Just toward swivel-hipped secretaries is real, but the callous manipulation of the Justice Department to re-elect the President is not," Pannell said.

Pannell gave the keynote address at the Thanksgiving Workshop on Evangelicals and Social Concern. About 50 persons, from across the spectrum of evangelical Christianity, are attending.

Evangelical Christianity is conservative in its doctrine, but to the lament of many of its members, has been archly conservative in recent years in its approach to social problems.

Much of the discussions at the workshop dealt with the Evangelicals' approach to social problems, specifically black-white relations. But aside from Pannell's indirect reference, there were almost no comments about the Watergate affair or President Nixon's domestic problems.

The conference is expected to produce a strong declaration on social concern before its adjournment Sunday.

"We seem to have an inadequate theology of sin," Pannell said. "We have dwelled so long on the gross sins of individuals that we show very little understanding of the corporate nature of sin."

Bickel PTO sets auction Dec. 7 to aid playground

TWIN FALLS — An auction to raise funds for new playground equipment at Bickel School will be held Dec. 7 by the Parent-Teacher Organization.

A host of items ranging from new to well used household items, art objects and handcrafts suitable for holiday gifts will be offered. The Bickel auditorium will open at 8 p.m. with the auction to begin at 7 p.m. Persons wishing to bring items with them for sale may do so and the auditorium will be open the extra hour to accept late entries.

Mrs. Dale Newby, general chairman, said some antiques, paintings, homemade candy, bread, pastries and a special booth featuring Mexican food and handcrafts will be featured.

Refreshments will be served and door prizes awarded. Floyd Drown, auctioneer, will conduct the sale. Artists include Drown, Elsie Stafford and Roberta Dunlap, each donating paintings for the event.

Mrs. Newby said there are no public funds available for the playground and the PTO is attempting to provide the needed items.

Additional information about the auction is available from Mrs. Pat Lane, 734-2706; Mrs. Dale Newby, 734-2781 or Drown, 733-9226.

Weird scenario puzzles writer

By DAN JEDDICKA
(c) Chicago Sun-Times
One wonders when this weird scenario will be finished. The safety and ecology gales sweeping across the motoring world have given us cars that won't start unless lap and shoulder belts are fastened, a development that raises serious questions about interferences with personal freedoms.

The federal government's strict auto emission standards were rammed down the throats of automakers, only giving them time to develop pollution control systems that cause increased gas consumption, poor starting and marginal performance.

Now, Congress is having doubts about the validity of the standards, which were quickly approved despite an appalling lack of scientific evidence to justify them.

There is so much more. Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) joins the long list of politicians who have become involved with autos, proposing that speedometers only read up to 90 m.p.h. to cut auto accidents and deaths. The fact is that about half of all auto accidents occur at speeds of under 30 m.p.h. Habitual speeders, drunks and dope addicts won't be deterred by speedometer numbers.

The Environmental Protection Agency releases unrealistic auto fuel mileage figures that doubtlessly are accepted without question by legions of motorists. The EPA, which stoutly defends its figures, found in a recent check that the Opel Manta Luxus auto gets fuel economy nearly 50 per cent better than it originally reported.

Lawmakers support banning the Indianapolis 500-mile race to save fuel for the country without bothering to find out that Indy cars use methanol, not gasoline.

Then there is Ralph Nader, who built his reputation on the alleged unsafety of the now-defunct Chevrolet Corvair, a really advanced auto that was vindicated by the government after its death. Nader was a staunch supporter, along with bogus Washington auto experts, of the heavy, lumbering impractical Experimental Safety Vehicles (ESVs) that the government had built for it at a cost of millions of dollars.

The ESVs turned out to be rolling fiascos, and nobody in Washington really wants to discuss them anymore. An air bag system failed to activate on one ESV during its breathlessly-heralded press presentation of it; despite the fact that it had been prepared like a moon rocket.

One shudders at the announcement that Sen. John Tunney (D-Calif.) is behind a major effort to develop the "perfect car of the future."

College professors, who ride 15-speed bicycles across wooded campuses, scream about abolishing autos and putting everyone on urban mass transit systems and long-distance trains. They ignore the fact that most urban transit systems are so dirty, noisy and inefficient that motorists contend with rush-hour traffic to avoid them.

The professors, like the faceless, paper-shuffling bureaucrats and digitminds in Washington, patently refuse to acknowledge that the long-distance train business began declining about the time William McKinley got shot.

Detroit's automakers seem to be afraid. They respond to many attacks with wooden silences or feeble, muted whines. If they won't defend themselves, who will? And if people don't protect some of the nutball auto improvement ideas flowing from Washington and elsewhere, they'll wake up one day to find things a lot worse than no-start belt systems in their cars.

Potato prices are down, the U.S. Department of Agriculture notes, adding they should continue to be cheaper through the winter. Onions should also be plentiful, with prices returning to more familiar levels, the department said.

Nicklaus, Miller unhappy with play, but still lead

MARBELLA, Spain (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus called his performance "lousy" and Johnny Miller said his was "irritating," but the two combined for a 145 Saturday to enable the United States to maintain a three-stroke lead over a resurgent South African team after the third round of the World Cup golf competition. In addition, both Nicklaus and Miller moved into a tie with Lu Lian-Huan of Taiwan for individual honors with totals of 210. Hugh Balocchi scored a three-under-par 69 and Gary Player had a 70 to enable South Africa to move up from fourth place into second at 423 with only one round to play on Sunday. Both Nicklaus and Miller failed to break par for the tricky, 6,965-yard Nueva Andalucia course, shooting a 73 and a 72 respectively to bring their 54-hole total to a 12-under-par 420. Miller's 72 came just one day after he set a record of 65 for the par-72 course, and neither he nor Nicklaus could give an explanation for their scores. The South Africans were seven under par and only one stroke behind the United States after nine holes Saturday. But

MISSOURI'S John Kelsey (84) is tackled by three Kansas Jayhawks after a gain of 22 yards on a pass play. Kansas erased a late 13-0 deficit to win 14-13 with 1:47 left in the game. (UPI Telephoto)

Penn State overhauls Pitt on 24 points in final quarter

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Tailback John Cappelletti's five-yard touchdown run triggered a 24-point Penn State rally in the fourth period Saturday that gave the Orange Bowl-bound Nittany Lions a 35-

13 victory over cross-state rival Pittsburgh and an unbeaten regular season. Linebacker Tom Hull ran 27 yards with an intercepted pass for another of Penn State's fourth-period touchdowns; flanker Chuck Herd caught a 32-yard pass from Tom Shuman for another score and Chris Bahr kicked a 45-yard field goal — his second of the game — in turn an otherwise tight game into a rout.

Maryland shatters Green Wave by 42-9

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Tailback Louis Carter passed for two touchdowns and ran for two more to power Peach Bowl-bound Maryland to a 42-9 victory over 16th-ranked Tulane Saturday. Carter scored on one and four yard runs and three touchdown passes of 32 and 44 yards on option plays. Starting quarterback Ben Kinard threw a 57-yard touchdown pass and substitute Al Neville threw four yards to complete the Maryland scoring. The Green Wave, headed for the Astro-Bluebonnet bowl, got its only points on a four yard pass by substitute quarterback Terry Looney and a 24-yard field goal by David Falgout. The Terps ended their best season in 18 years with an 8-3 record. Tulane is 8-2 and finishes its season next week against LSU.

Shorter claims AAU run title

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Frank Shorter, former NCAA long-distance champion who now runs for the Florida Track Club, edged Doug Brown of Tennessee by two and one-half seconds Saturday to win his fourth National AAU Cross-Country title. Shorter came close to losing. He stopped with 200 yards to go to remove a spike from the sole of his shoe. Then he plunged ahead to beat Brown in their duel over the 10,000 yards Santo Fe course. Shorter's time was 20 minutes, 52.2 seconds and his victory helped his club to its third straight national crown.

Pitt, bidding for an upset prior to its Dec. 21 appearance in the Fiesta Bowl, scored all of its points in the second period on a 14-yard run by phenomenal freshman Tony Dorsett and field goals of 31 and 50 yards by freshman Carson Long. Cappelletti, a senior, easily outshone Dorsett in their battle of Heisman Trophy candidates. The Penn State tailback had 161 yards on 37 carries and his touchdown ignited a Nittany Lion offense that had been consistently held in check by Pitt. Cappelletti finished the regular season with 1,522 yards, while Dorsett, already the most productive freshman running back in college football history, ran for 77 yards on 20 carries to finish with 1,586 yards for the year. It was Penn State's 20th consecutive victory at home, its 23rd in a row against an Eastern opponent and its eighth straight win over Pitt in a series that now stood even at 35-35-3.

End of pass play

Kansas edges Missouri in final 1:37

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — David Jaynes twice fired 14-yard touchdown passes in the fourth quarter, the first to Bruce Adams and the second to Emmett Edwards with 1:37 to play Saturday, and freshman Mike Love kicked the winning extra points, lifting Liberty Bowl-bound Kansas to a comeback 14-13 victory over Sun Bowl-bound Missouri.

Kansas ended its regular season with a 7-3-1 record, its best since 1968, while Missouri fell to 7-4, losing four of its last five games.

The final touchdown came on a fourth-down play, capping a 42-yard drive that began with 4:17 left. Jaynes dropped straight back and pegged a perfect strike to Edwards, the Big Eight's leading pass receiver who made a diving catch with Missouri's John Mosley hanging all over him at the goal line. Missouri built a 13-0 lead with two lightning like touchdowns in a one-minute 44-second span late in the third. Junior quarterback Ray Smith, making his first start ever, broke around the right side of an option play and scampered 45 yards for the touchdown that broke a scoreless deadlock with 3:51 left in the period. When Kansas was stopped on the ensuing possession, Mosley fielded Marc Harris' punt and escaped a series of tackles before breaking out of the pack behind Bob McRoberts' field-clearing block and scoring on a

USC stuns UCLA to clinch Rose bowl berth

Six turnovers pave way for 23-13 win

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Underdog USC recovered four UCLA fumbles and intercepted two passes Saturday to beat the wishbone Bruins 23-13 and earn its sixth trip to the Rose Bowl in eight years.

Hadren, the slick junior quarterback from West Covina, Calif., and tailback Anthony Davis each scored a touchdown in the game that gave the No. 9-ranked Trojans the Pacific Eight championship.

Davis, becoming the second Trojan running back in history to gain 1,000 yards in two straight seasons, scored on a four-yard run in the opening quarter and Hadren passed 16 yards to his coach's son, Johnny McKay, for a second period score.

But it was mistakes that hurt the eighth-ranked Bruins, who went into the game as the nation's No. 1 scoring and rushing team. They committed two turnovers in each of the last three quarters.

Little Chris Limahela, a 5-foot-5 Indonesian-born soccer style kicker, booted field goals of 35, 32 and 28 yards for the Trojans. His last two 3-pointers were the only Trojan scores in the second half.

USC, which lost to Notre Dame and tied Oklahoma, was a three-point underdog, the first time the Bruins have been favored in the game since 1961.

But given six turnovers and able to control the ball on Davis' running and Hadren's scrambling, USC nullified the high-powered Bruin wishbone.

UCLA's only touchdown came in the second quarter on a three-yard run by Kermit Johnson. Efren Herrera kicked a 42-yard field goal in the opening quarter and booted a 27-yarder in the last quarter.

Artimus Parker, USC's senior safety and holder of the Pac-8 record for career pass interceptions, picked off a John Sciarra pass and recovered a fumble by Johnson late in the second quarter. It was Parker's eighth interception of the season and the 20th in his career.

By winning, USC extended its

McKay says Trojans were at their best

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — University of Southern California will go to the Rose Bowl for the sixth time in eight years and the Trojans' John McKay wasn't afraid to say why after his club beat UCLA 23-13 Saturday.

"It was our best game," said a smiling, cigar-chomping McKay in a jubilant USC dressing room, "and undoubtedly it wasn't their best because of their fumbles."

The underdog Trojans recovered four fumbles and intercepted two passes to beat the wishbone Bruins.

"This brought us back to where we belong—in the Rose Bowl," McKay said. "I think we're going to play Michigan, but I really haven't thought about that yet."

In a subdued UCLA locker room, Pepper Rodgers slouched with one leg propped up on a chair and frowned. "Six turnovers was it. Otherwise it was a pretty close game. We just haven't done that before, but everybody did it."

McKay said his Trojans used the same formations they did in beating No. 4 Great Britain, also a wishbone team, to a 7-7 tie. He also cited the quickness of his linebacking corps for stopping UCLA's outside running game.

"You're not going to outrun our linebackers," McKay said.

Pac-8 unbeaten string to 18 games. The Trojans have won 14 conference games in a row.

UCLA, which finished the season at 9-2, had a nine-game winning streak broken.

By collecting 174 yards in the first half, the Bruins broke the all-time conference total offense record of 4,950 yards set by the 1970 USC team—UCLA needed only 11 yards in the game.

USC scored the first two times it had the ball, marching 68 and 80 yards for its touchdowns.

After kicking off and making the Bruins punt, the Trojans took 15 plays to march from their own 32 to score, with Davis going in to the end zone on a pitch-out from Hadren around right end.

On the drive, Hadren completed three passes for 30 yards. The march was kept alive when Davis ran five yards around right end on a fourth-and-three situation on the UCLA 27.

After Herrera's 42 yarder, USC needed 12 plays to score, with Hadren hitting McKay in the end zone on a scramble play.

Hadren, an understudy to Mike Rae on last year's national championship USC team, completed 8 of 15 passes for 94 yard, while Davis, the hard-running junior from San Fernando, Calif., rolled up 145 yards in 27 carries.

Johnson, UCLA's career and single season rushing record holder, picked up 107 yards in 17 carries. James McAllister carried the ball 23 times for 98 yards.

Florida's defense holds off Miami for 14-7 decision

MIAMI (UPI) — Quarterback Don Gaffney threw for one touchdown, running back Vince Kendrick ran for another from 12 yards out and a stubborn Florida defense stopped a fourth quarter Miami (Fla.) rally Saturday to take a 14-7 win.

The Gators had taken a 14-0 halftime lead, but an aroused Miami defense allowed Florida no second-half first downs and gave the Hurricane offense a chance to threaten.

Miami had made it 14-7 with 11:11 to go in the game when quarterback Ed Carney hit freshman tight end Phil August on a 29-yard scoring pass.

Then in the waning minutes, Miami started a drive from the Hurricane 39, featuring a Carney pass of 21 yards to Steve Marcantonio and 13 yards to freshman scabbard Tim Morgan.

Miami moved to a third and goal to go on the Florida five, but the Gator defense rose up and threw Carney for a three-yard loss and stymied a pass on the goal line to sew up the win.

The Gators had rolled to their 14-0 lead on a seven-yard scoring pass from Gaffney to burly wide receiver Joel Parker and a 12-yard touchdown sweep by Kendrick.

Florida scored its first touchdown in the opening quarter on a 53-yard, seven-play drive and made it 14-0 at halftime by capitalizing on a Hurricane mistake.

The first quarter drive was highlighted by a 29-yard strike up the middle from Gaffney to Parker, a 220-pound, 6-5 wide receiver, to the Miami 19. A penalty and a six-yard pass to running back Jimmy Dubose set up Kendrick's scoring sweep.

The second touchdown was set up when Hurricane freshman Larry Cain fumbled a Gator punt and linebacker Tony Anderson recovered for Florida on the Miami 17.

Three running plays took the ball to the seven where Gaffney sent Parker into the left flat and laid the ball in for the score.

Miami drove to the Florida 23 in the first quarter, but Johnny Williams fumbled and Gator linebacker Sammy Green recovered.

The win gave the Tangerine Bowl-bound Gators a 6-1 record and Miami slumped to an even 5-5. The win also gave Florida a 18-17 edge in the series that goes back to 1938.

Texas Tech rallies past Arkansas 24-17

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — Larry Isaac, a swift freshman, ran for three touchdowns Saturday to give Gator Bowl-bound Texas Tech a 24-17 comeback victory over Arkansas.

Isaac raced 13, 14 and two yards to go with a 39-yard field goal by Don Grimes, and Tech closed out its regular season play with a 10-1 record.

Tech, which meets Tennessee in the Gator Bowl December 29 in Jacksonville, Fla., wound up in second place in the Southwest Conference with a 6-1 mark.

Arkansas, a seven-point underdog, belted to a 10-0 lead up the third play of the second quarter when fullback Marvin Daily scored on a one-yard smash to cap a six-play, 45-yard drive set by Rollon Smith's 30-yard punt return.

The touchdown followed Mike Kirkland's 36-yard first quarter field goal and put the Razorbacks ahead early.

Tech came roaring back to take the lead on a 76 and 51-yard touchdown drives in its next two possessions, Isaac scoring on sweeps of 13 and 14 yards at the end of them.

Grimes widened the lead to 17-10 in the third quarter with his field goal. But the Razorbacks came back on an 80-yard six-play move with freshman fullback Don Watson breaking a tackle and scoring on a 30-yard run. Kirkland's kick tied it at 17-17 with 6:25 left in the third quarter.

Tech cranked up its winning march in the fourth period, again going cross country for 67 yards in seven plays, Isaac getting his third touchdown on a two-yard run. Quarterback Joe Barnes got the drive's longest gain, 30 yards to the Arkansas 31 on a draw.

Warriors drop Knicks 107-99

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors opened a 25-point second quarter and then hung on to defeat the New York Knicks, 107-99, Saturday night as Jim Barnett scored 24 points and Cazzie Russell added 20.

The Knicks closed to within seven points twice in the final period, 89-82 and 95-88. A five-point spurt by Barnett and a pair of foul shots by Rick Barry opened a 103-90 Warrior lead with 3:06 remaining and New York could not catch up from that point.

Walt Frazier's barrage of 34 points kept New York in the game. He scored 14 points in the third period after netting 16 in the opening half. The Knicks' leading scorer then fouled out with 3:44 left in the game.

Vols outlast Kentucky 16-14

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Fullback Bill Tucker exploded for a 60-yard touchdown run in the third quarter and the Tennessee defense weathered a Kentucky rally to beat the Wildcats for the ninth straight year, 16-14, Saturday.

With quarterback Mike Fanuzzi scrambling, the Wildcats drove 74 yards only to have Ron Stepe miss a 35-yard field goal with 19 seconds to play in Kentucky's late bid to end the Tennessee jinx. The Wildcat junior quarterback outgained Tennessee's Conledge Holloway 160 yards rushing to 20.

Fanuzzi, forced to carry an extra-offensive load because Sonny Collins was hampered by a foot injury, rallied the Wildcats for two third-period touchdowns after they had fallen behind, 16-0.

Stanford topples California

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Ron Inge and Scott Laidlaw scored touchdowns five minutes apart late in the game Saturday to give Stanford a 26-17 victory over California as the Cardinals capitalized on four mistakes for all but six of their points.

Stanford, finishing the season with a 5-2 record in the Pacific-8 Conference and 7-4 overall, scored a touchdown and two field goals on California turnovers. The Cards added what proved to be the winning score following a 20-yard punt by Steve Bartkowski of Cal.

The Golden Bears, 13-point underdogs, took a 17-13 lead in the second minute of the fourth quarter when quarterback Vince Ferragamo went a yard after Bartkowski set things up with a 50-yard pass to Wesley Walker.

POINT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Senior quarterback Don Woods, setting a new school offensive yardage record in a single season, ran for touchdowns of two and four yards and threw a 37-yard pass for another to lead New Mexico to a 30-13 Western Athletic Conference win over Colorado State Saturday.

Hob Berg hit field goals of 37, 27 and 28 yards and kicked three extra points to round out the Lobos' scoring and tie a school record for the most field goals in one game.

It was the season finale for both teams, with the Lobos finishing 4-7 overall and 3-4 in the WAC.

LOOSE BALL dances off the fingertips of Ohio State safety Rich Parsons as he is about to be hit by Michigan's Dave Metz (83) and Larry Banks (32) during Big 10 action Saturday. The teams grappled to a 10-10 draw and a vote Sunday will decide which goes to the Rose Bowl. (UPI Telephoto)

Ohio State, Michigan tie 10-10 to share loop title

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Dennis Franklin's daring 10-yard touchdown run on fourth down with inches to go enabled fourth-rated Michigan to tie top-rated Ohio State 10-10 Saturday and throw the Big Ten's Rose Bowl berth into a vote of the conference athletic directors.

Two last-minute field goal attempts of 50 and 44 yards by Michigan's Mike Lantry had the distance but were wide to the left and then the right and so the national collegiate record crowd of 105,223 and the national television audience will not know until the Big Ten announced which of the two teams will go to the Rose Bowl at 1 p.m. CDT Monday, when the vote is announced in Chicago.

Michigan, which entered the game a three-point underdog and finished with a 10-0 record, flubbed an excellent opportunity to win when Ohio State coach Woody Hayes inserted senior quarterback Greg Hare in place of sophomore Cornellius Greene to throw the first Buckeye pass of the game late in the fourth quarter only to see it intercepted.

Safety Tom Drake stepped in front of halfback Brian Basehangel on the 42 of Ohio State and took it to the 33 with 52 seconds left in the game.

Senior quarterback Larry Cipa, who entered the game when junior Dennis Franklin suffered a shoulder injury on the previous drive, ran one play and threw an incomplete pass to stop the clock—but Lantry, who had only missed three of 10 field goals all year, was wide to the right and Hare got a chance to throw three more incomplete passes before the clock ran out.

Franklin had engineered the Wolverines from their own 11 to the Ohio State 49 with less than six minutes to play before his shoulder was hurt when he was hit after completing a pass to fullback Ed Shuttlesworth. Cipa gained ninety more yards before Lantry missed his 58-yard field goal try.

Ohio State was held without a first down in the first quarter but sensational sophomore Archie Griffin set up a 31-yard field goal by Blair Conway with a 38-yard run on the first play of the third quarter as the Buckeyes took a 3-0 lead.

Griffin, who gained 163 yards to enhance his Heisman Trophy chances, also set up a five-yard TD run by freshman Pete Johnson with just 53 seconds left in the first half when he carried five times for 41 yards in a 55-yard drive. Johnson carried three Wolverines with him into the end zone to give the Buckeyes a 10-0 halftime advantage.

Franklin kept handling the ball off over center to Shuttlesworth at the start of the second half and that, with some key passes on second game interspersed, set up a 30-yard field goal by Lantry and the junior's own game-tying TD.

apparently deprived of their first national title since 1960, but stopped Franklin on the option play and Michigan abandoned it until Franklin faked to Shuttlesworth up the middle and swept right end untouched for the game-tying TD.

Coach Bo Schembechler went for the tying points by kick and sustained the try for two since the game still had nine minutes to play, his defense was working and his offense moving the ball.

Shuttlesworth gained 115 yards with 29 carries, most of those in the second half, while Franklin, who was intercepted by Neil Colzie in the end zone in a second half drive, completed seven of 12 passes for 99 yards. His 27-yard pass to tight end Paul Seal set up the lone touchdown by the Wolverines.

Hayes figures Michigan will get Rose bowl nod from voters

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Woody Hayes acted as if he'd just lost the Big Ten championship.

"Would you believe the Rose Bowl berth and the national championship he wanted so badly? His Ohio State Buckeyes, undefeated and ranked as the No. 1 team in college football, had to settle for a tie Saturday with No. 4 ranked Michigan, 10-10, taking away his school's right to decide which conference team would head for the Rose Bowl.

"The Big Ten athletic directors will decide now.

"We had to win this to go and we didn't," Hayes said. "If we were selected to go, we'd certainly go.

"But after you coach in this league as long as I have and don't get a say in who goes, you've got to let them (the athletic directors) decide.

Hayes' team came to life after a drab first quarter in which the Bucks did not collect a first down to score 10 points in the second quarter. But that was it.

"We thought we'd come out in the third quarter and go ahead by 17 points," he said. "But we didn't get it."

Except for sophomore running back Archie Griffin, who gained 163 yards in 30 carries, the Ohio State offense acted like a sleeping giant—not able to come up with the big yards when they were needed. And after Michigan tied the game late in the fourth quarter, the pressure of the game showed just how bad the nation's No. 1 team's passing game was.

"We didn't pass earlier because we couldn't," Hayes said. "Our passing is not good. It's never been satisfactory. I couldn't tell you this during the season, though. It's not good—it's never been good."

Ohio State didn't pass until late in the fourth quarter when backup quarterback Greg Hare entered the game. He was 0-1 and threw one interception—although the last three were simply desperation bombs.

Ohio State appeared headed for the Michigan end zone shortly after the Wolverines scored the tying touchdown midway through the final quarter. With Griffin fumbling through and around Michigan tacklers on four straight carries, the Buckeyes moved the ball from their own 20 to their own 49. But Griffin was injured on his last carry and had to leave the game.

He was replaced by Elmer Lippert and the Ohio State attack just wasn't the same. After two plays, Griffin came back in but his third down carry was stopped and Ohio State had to punt.

"That probably killed Ohio State's bid for a triumph. I'm not making any alibis, but we were moving that football until Griffin was injured," Hayes said with a trace of a smile on his face.

BYU posts series record in whipping Utes 49-22

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Gary Shelde, ignoring sub-freezing temperatures and a first-half snowstorm, passed for four touchdowns and 254 yards in powering Brigham Young to a 49-22 upset win over Utah in a Western Athletic Conference game Saturday.

Shelde's fourth scoring pass—his 21st of the year—ties him with Virgil Carter and Danny White for the WAC record for touchdown passes in a single season.

But it was his trio of scoring aeriels in a 3:49 span midway through the second quarter which gave the Cougars a lead they never relinquished—and started them toward running up the most points ever in their 49-game series against archrival Utah.

BYU opened the scoring on a 51-yard first-quarter field goal by Dev Duke through a blinding snowstorm which blanketed the field with about four inches of snow during the first half.

Freshman tailback Jeff Blanc scored the Cougars' first TD on a one-yard plunge which capped a 75-yard BYU drive. Blanc had 87 yards rushing and two touchdowns in his first start for the Cougars.

Shelde started his passing exhibition with a nine-yarder to fullback Dan Taylor in the corner of the end zone, five plays after Keith Rivera recovered a fumble on the Utah 35.

Shelde struck again minutes later, after John Betham returned a punt 24 yards to the Ute 42. The junior quarterback went to Betham on a 32-yard scoring pass five plays later.

The Utah fumble on the ensuing kickoff gave the Cougars the ball again, and two plays later Shelde passed 35 yards to Betham to make the score 30-0.

Utah finally got on the scoreboard with 2:29 left in the half on a 37-yard field goal by Dan Marrelli.

BYU then scored the next 16 points after halftime. Rivera tackled Utah quarterback Don Van Galder in the end zone to give BYU a safety after Mark Giles had punted to the Utes' one-yard line.

The Cougars took the free kick and churned 60 yards in eight plays with Blanc going through the line for his second one-yard scoring plunge.

CSI takes Ricks basketball tourney crown

Eagles open 2-day meet here Monday

Sports

Kansas St. nips Colorado 17-14

REXBURG—The Colgate Southern Kings Golden Eagles outscored Ricks 10-4 over the final five minutes Saturday for a 67-54 decision and the championship in the first Ricks Holiday basketball tournament.

Western Wyoming dropped Powell, Wyo., 96-79 in consolation play. The two Idaho junior colleges gained the final bucket of the breakout, making it 63-52 before Michnelis scored Ricks' last points.

The first half was a matter of ties and small CSI leads most of the time. The Eagles made one attempt at a breakout midway through the half when Ron Frazier and Barker got back-to-back buckets to open up a 27-20 advantage.

But Ricks battled back with Mike Rencher and Michnelis getting the points and in the final minute Rencher and Hymas scored to give Ricks that 34-31 halftime lead.

Dugger and Bob Durham immediately brought CSI into a tie as the second half started and Dugger's four points opened up a 41-36 lead. Ricks fought back to within one and then CSI found out why the SIC finished the past two years when in the Woods, two-time scoring champion, got hot. He reeled off eight points without a miss with Dugger and Fryson keeping the Eagles close. In the Woods' last bucket made it 50-48 and set up the final five minute flurry by CSI.

Dugger, Fryson and Barker were named to the all-tournament team by participating coaches and news media.

Friday night the Eagles used their 14 feet of centers, Tom Barker and Lon Frazier, to put down Western Wyoming which always has been able to give CSI some problems.

Barker scored 21 points in the first half to keep the Eagles ahead and Frazier came up with 12 second half points — near the midpoint — to finally break CSI into a comfortable lead in the 75-64 game.

CSI never trailed, although Western five times managed ties in the first 10 minutes of a typically rugged opening few minutes. Then Arnold Dugger and Frazier hit buckets and Barker added a three-point play to zip the Eagles from a 16-all deadlock into a 23-17 lead.

Western managed to stay within nine at halftime, after one falling behind by 12.

Early in the second half Phil McDougald and Hutton reduced the margin to seven points and it was still seven with 13 minutes left. Then Frazier hit back-to-back buckets on an in-bounds play and good inside feed by Ron Fryson. Dugger added a free throw to make it 64-42.

Frazier's tip and a short jumper by Fryson made it 60-46 minutes later and the Eagles were in command. Their biggest advantage came in the closing two minutes when Dugger hit three points for a 73-56 lead. In the last minute, the teams committed eight fouls — four each — with Western picking up six points at the line and a final bucket by Ron Hansen to establish the final count.

Both of the CSI break-away coincided with the admission of both Barker and Frazier into the lineup. The Eagles then turned to a zone defense and the much shorter Western Wyoming team had no real outside threat to crack it.

Three years ago, in an angry tirade over the ouster of Charles Farmer as Twin Falls basketball coach, we put our prediction for the next three Bruins seasons up for all to see.

We said the next year (two years ago) would be about the nadir of Bruin basketball, the second year (last season) would see an improvement and the third (this year) could be the best we've seen in Bruin land since we started watching in 1946.

Our reasons for such predictions were based on height coming up in the junior high school at that time. And since that time we've had apprehensions about that final prediction. In the past several days, however, our prediction looks good. For the same reason — The height is starting to produce.

Now we fully understand this puts a big load on Coach Don Haynes. But Coach Don Haynes also fully understands the situation because he struggled with it for the same three years.

He sat and watched 6-6 Kim Nielsen, 6-9 Kent Schmidt and 6-7 Jim Lash. Sometimes good, sometimes very bad. Most often just inconsistent. Nielsen started arriving last year. We can report that Coach Haynes, however, is breathing a little easier.

"It just seemed like one morning, about three weeks ago, Lash and Schmidt got out of bed and decided to be basketball players. They both seemed to just bloom in the same practice. I went home and told my wife I hoped it wasn't a mirage. The next night they were good again, rebounding very well and tipping and shooting well. It was like that ever since. They haven't always been that sharp but neither one of them has had a bad practice."

It all comes out like "don't pinch me, I'm happy the way I am."

We caution readers not to understand too quickly what we're trying to say. We are saying this will be a very fine basketball team. We are not saying this team is a cinch to win everything.

Checking things out realistically, one has to figure Borah to win the SIC. The Lions should be the class of the west division. They also will be home to Twin Falls, Highland and Skyline this year. That's a big plus as it means it can afford a loss or two this way and still take it all by dominating the west. Twin Falls had that advantage last year but couldn't capitalize. It had both Borah and Capital here.

The eastern division is a horse of another color. It would not be unrealistic to see a straight home and home win-loss split. Everyone in the eastern division seems to be back. Kelly Newton moved to Twin Falls but the other four Idaho Falls starters are there. Skyline started four juniors most of last year. Highland has two good starters returning and picked up a fine transfer in Wally Foster of Shelly. Minico could have the best team under Coach Gary Swan's reign. Pocatello will be smaller, but should also be the quickest.

For the most part, Twin Falls will have three 6-5 men on the bench, which will be about as many as some teams will have on the floor. With a plethora of good guards, the press shouldn't hurt the Bruins.

In fact, little should hurt Twin Falls except its defense. Coach Haynes is working harder on that phase right now than ever before.

What it boils down to is that Twin Falls should never be out of a ball game. It should have a laugh or two its way, but never one against it. It appears the idea of breaking the school's all-time 17-3 record (1959) will depend on how Twin Falls can handle the final minutes of about seven games.

It is an axiom in sports that you win the close ones at home and lose them on the road. There are times it seems in the SIC that it is a rule. But it is at such times that the character of a team is built.

When you win a few close ones, you start expecting to. Its confidence and poise and teamwork in tight quarters that will dictate the final record of the Twin Falls team.

In a lot of ways, the Bruins will be a fun team to watch.

scramblers of three yards by Billy Waddy and five yards by Joe Duen and Fred Lina added to the points.

The loss overpowered a 113 yard rushing performance by Buffalo senior Charlie Davis which gave him 3172 career rushing yards.

The Wildcats, who trailed 14-0 at the half, also scored on a two-yard run by Isaac Jackson in the third quarter, and a nine-yard run by quarterback Steve Grogan, who also ran for a two-point conversion with 10:31 left in the game.

Colorado, which lost five fumbles, saw two passes intercepted and had a blocked punt recovered on the four to set up Jackson's touchdown run, scored on second period.

Houston overpowers Wyoming by 35-0

HOUSTON (UPI)—Quarterback D. C. Nobles scored two first half touchdowns and No. 2 signal caller David Hustrmann engineered scoring drives of 52 and 65 yards Saturday night to power the No. 14-ranked Houston Cougars to a 35-0 victory over the Wyoming Cowboys.

The Cowboys never mounted a serious drive against the Cougars as Houston hampered their own efforts in the first half with five fumbles, three of which were lost to Wyoming.

Houston's first TD came after a Cowboy fumble at their 8-yard line and Howard Elbow pounced on it at the Wyoming 16. On the first play, Nobles sprinted for the score.

Houston struck again with nine minutes left in the half when Nobles broke free on an 11-yard run, capping a 64-yard, 9-play drive. Nobles also passed for the conversion.

The Cougars put the game away early in the second half on a 28-yard touchdown run by Reggie Cherry. Then with Hustrmann at the helm, Houston scored twice more, on a 23-yard run by Donnie McGraw and a 37-yard pass from Hustrmann to Miller Bassler.

Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl bound Houston, sixth nationally, in total offense, ground out 480 yards on 66 running plays. Nobles led all rushers with 126 yards on 13 carries and was helped by McGraw with 114 yards on 14 carries.

ATTENTION ALL POTATO GROWERS!

This is a fourth in a series of ads to keep you informed of the potato market conditions as they now appear nationwide. Area by area is as follows:

- A. WASHINGTON REPORTS SALES FROM $3.75 TO $4.00 PER CWT FIELD RUN.
- B. RED RIVER VALLEY SALES ARE FROM $4.00 TO $4.25 PER CWT FIELD RUN
- C. MAINE IS REPORTING SALES OF $6.00 PER CWT FIELD RUN FOR DELIVERY JANUARY FIRST.
- D. IDAHO — THE EASTERN PART OF THE STATE REPORTS SALES AS HIGH AS $4.25 PER CWT FIELD RUN WITH A THREE TO FIVE PERCENT PENCIL TARE WITH A STORAGE INCREMENT WEEKLY THEREAFTER.

Mr. Potato Grower, as a producer, can you justify selling your crop fifty to seventy five cents per cw. lower than the prices currently being paid to the grower by the fresh shipper?

Demand for all processed product is currently running above available supplies with prices far above normal levels.

BSC nips David 32-31 in last nine seconds

Bowl-bound Broncos score 25 points in last period

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — Jim McMillan connected with a 3-yard touchdown pass to Dave Nisely with two seconds left Saturday for a come-from-behind Boise State touchdown and a 32-31 win over UC Davis.

McMillan, who played only in the second half, hit 21 of 32 passes for 313 yards and three touchdowns in taking the Boise State team into the Division Two NCAA playoffs next week against South Dakota.

Boise State, down 24-7 going into the final quarter, took the decision on McMillan's pinpoint accuracy. With just over 10 minutes left in the game, McMillan hit Don Hunt on a 24-yard touchdown pass, but Rolfe Woolsey missed the point-after kick.

Davis twice then made deep thrusts that would have ended Boise State's chances. George Frederick killed the first one with an interception at the 10-yard line and he almost broke the return open, being hauled down from behind on the Davis 29-yard line. But two plays later Davis intercepted the ball back and freshman quarterback Jim Speck quickly led the Californians downfield.

Davis appeared going in but Ron Neil made another interception in the end zone to bring Boise State out to the 20-yard line. After a pass interception call, McMillan scrambled 39 yards to the Davis 29-yard line. After a pass interception call, McMillan turned to Smith for 34 yards and the touchdown that closed the gap to 23-10. The two-point conversion pass failed.

Boise State held after the ensuing kickoff and marched downfield again after a Davis punt. The Broncos took the lead on an eight-yard run by McMillan for a 25-23 lead but again the point-after kick failed. That came with 2:37 remaining in the game.

The comeback appeared killed, however, when Davis immediately responded with a drive that ended on a 35-yard pass to Mike Anderson from Speck, who then threw to Fred Hamilton for the two-point conversion.

With just 1:34 left in the game, Boise State again turned to McMillan and he rolled the Broncos downfield until hitting Nisely with the nine-yard scoring pass that tied the count. Woolsey, who earlier had missed two point-after kicks, drilled the last one to win it.

Lightning causes game delay after tingling Rice players

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Rice University quarterback Fred Geisler stood in the pouring rain Saturday ready to call the signals for a play at midfield.

It was pouring rain and Geisler reached forward in an attempt to dry his hands on an already wet towel hanging from the waist of center Mike Goode.

"I heard it and I saw it out of the corner of my eye and I felt a tingle in my hands," said Geisler.

What Geisler heard and saw was a bolt of lightning which sprang from an electrical storm and speared Anson Carter Stadium early in the second quarter of the Rice-Texas Christian game. It sent fans and players scurrying for cover.

Most of those in TCU's 16-story high pressbox thought the lightning hit in the lower deck near the south goal line. People standing on the field, however, thought the bolt struck the upper deck near the press box.

Wherever it hit, it scared people silly.

Rice halfback Gary Ferguson, who was lined up behind Geisler in the Rice backfield, leaped backwards three yards when the bolt hit.

Referee Ken Fulkner wasted no time in calling time out and summoning Rice coach Al Conover and TCU coach Billy Tobitt to the center of the field.

Colonels drop Q's 124-121

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Kentucky Colonels, with Dan Issel, Louis Dampier and Artis Gilmore combining for 91 points, defeated the San Diego Conquistadors 124-121 in an American Basketball Association game Saturday night.

WSU mauls Washington

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Washington State fullback Andrew Jones ran for three touchdowns and quarterback Chuck Peck passed for two Saturday as the Cougars clubbed Washington 52-20 and left the Huskies without a Pacific-8 conference victory for the first time in history.

Colonels drop Q's 124-121

The refs, Al and I decided to go to the dressing rooms and wait it out.

Colonels drop Q's 124-121

Because of the threatening weather, the fact that there was few students on campus during the Thanksgiving holiday and the poor record of both clubs, there were only 12,000 people in the stands. The area where the lightning hit was empty.

Colonels drop Q's 124-121

The Cougar defense, in fact, forced two early turnovers that sent the Cougar offensive unit on its way to racking up the worst beating ever given the Huskies in this 66-year-old cross-state rivalry.

Colonels drop Q's 124-121

The victory was the 15th against four losses for the Colonels who lead the Eastern Division of the ABA. For San Diego, who trails the Western Division, the loss was number 14 against eight triumphs.

Colonels drop Q's 124-121

Dampier led the way with 31 points and Issel and Gilmore added 30 each. Gilmore also snagged 21 rebounds.

Colonels drop Q's 124-121

Hudson is normally a forward, but played guard most of the game because of Atlanta's injuries at that position. Starting guards Pete Maravich and Herm Gilliam are both out with injuries. Gilliam has missed the last eight games, and Maravich injured a heel in a game Friday night.

Colonels drop Q's 124-121

Kent State romps to win

Bucks belts Hawks 112-92

ATLANTA (UPI) — The 30-point scoring of Bob Dandridge and a strong second half defense gave the Milwaukee Bucks a 112-92 victory over the Atlanta Hawks Saturday night.

Bucks belts Hawks 112-92

Dandridge had 14 points in the first half, and 16 in the second. Atlanta's Lou Hudson scored 25 in the first half, as Atlanta took a 57-51 lead.

Bucks belts Hawks 112-92

The Bucks double-teamed him in the second half, holding him to four points.

Final decision on San Diego baseball fate awaits meeting of club owners

By Leonard Koppett (N.Y. Times Service) NEW YORK — Baseball's internal politics and power struggles, so often a source of trouble and inefficiency for America's oldest organized mass-audience sport, has created a new mess in the still unresolved disposition of the San Diego Padres.

Contrary to the announcement made Friday by Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego, the sale of the club to a group that would keep it in San Diego has not been "approved." The potential buyers and the city of San Diego have reached agreement on what the terms would be, but "approval" can come only from the 11 owners of the other National League clubs, and they have not acted yet.

Furthermore, they are not likely to act before at least one more round of the conflict that has kept them stalled since last May, when it was first announced that the Padres would be sold and moved to Washington, D. C., in time for this 1974 season.

The split in opinion is deep enough to require a face-to-face meeting of the club owners, not merely a telephone poll. And since the league is scheduled to meet anyhow a week from Monday in Houston at baseball's annual winter meetings, it is quite possible that no special meeting will be called before then.

Child expert says punishment important

By DONALD M. SCHWARTZ
(C) Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO—“Lots of mental health people feel punishment doesn't exist, or shouldn't be used. Which I think is complete nonsense. I think there are many important places where punishment is very important for a child and his growth and is probably very necessary.”
Sound different? The words—contrasting so sharply with decades of a more indulgent psychoanalytic influence—were uttered by Michael Goldblatt, a child behavior therapist.

Goldblatt, a clinical psychologist at St. Christopher's Hospital in Philadelphia, took part here in the recent annual meeting of the American Association of Psychiatric Services for Children.

Goldblatt, who helped conduct a workshop on behavior modification, said his approach to dealing with disturbed children is growing throughout the country.
But he indicated that the growth isn't limited to emotionally disturbed children. One of his examples was that at some 15 universities in the Philadelphia area, courses providing information on behavior modification are given to schoolteachers as well as potential psychotherapists, which can lead to “trickledown” effect similar to the widespread influence Freudian ideas have had.

Explaining how behavior therapy differs from the more traditional, analytic therapies, Goldblatt said: “Deal mostly with the present, the here and now.”

—“Do not subscribe to a disease, or medical, model (attitude) when talking about maladaptive behavior.”
—“Do not subscribe to the theory of symptom substitution.” He explained that if behaviorists were to treat a child to eliminate a tic, they would not feel “that something else would come in its place.”

Hobo quits rails after 35 years

BEND, Ore. (UPI) — Allison M. Coutts, 64, a hobo who has been riding the rails for 35 years has had it. He's switching to buses.
Coutts spent Thanksgiving in a bed at St. Charles Hospital recovering from injuries suffered in a train derailment. He spent 2½ days pinned in the wreckage of the train in freezing weather.
He said he hopped a Burlington-Northern train in Klamath Falls, Ore., and was headed north when 47 cars derailed near Crescent, 50 miles south of her.
Coutts said he was thrown “a city block” but was pinned inside a boxcar.
“I landed on my head, where it would do the least damage,” Coutts said. “They said it happened about 4:45 p.m. Sunday and I came to Monday afternoon.”

Coutts said he heard bulldozers and men cleaning up the derailment, but “no one expected anybody to be aboard and it wasn't until Wednesday that he was discovered pinned between a wheel and a rail.”
“When I got out of that car Wednesday afternoon I said this is it,” Coutts recalled. “I had been in four wrecks this summer, and I walked away from them. But this time they took me out in a stretcher.”
“I've got a few banged up fingers, and broken ribs, but outside of that I am the most fortunate being alive. But that was my last ride. When I go now I'll go on the bus.”

“Gas Gives You A Better Deal”

THUMBS UP! Richard Hamann, 10, who has a fatal disease probably was the happiest boy in Chicago Thanksgiving day, when he fulfilled a life-long wish to fly. At top Richard is all set to go and at bottom he is in the lead. (UPI)

‘Thumbs up’

Sick boy gets life-long wish

CHICAGO (UPI) — For Richard Hamann, a 10-year-old with a fatal disease, it was a great Thanksgiving.

Richard, a victim of muscular dystrophy, got one of his life-long wishes—to be like his dad and fly in formation in a Navy fighter plane.

“Gee Dad, this is great,” Richard said. “When can we come up again?”

The boy, son of suburban Oak Lawn Police Sgt. Richard Hamann, a one-time Navy pilot, has wanted to fly in an airplane since he was about three.

Young Richard was fitted with headgear and goggles and placed in the rear cockpit of an AT6. He gave the customary thumbs sign and over Chicago they went. Two chase planes followed.

Burley man named

BURLEY — New officers of the Idaho Agricultural Consulting Council include Roscoe Rich, Burley, vice president.

Mel West, Paul, will serve as the Idaho Potato commission member on the council. Pat Tate, Boise, who is associated with the Triangle Dairy at Brunau is president of the council.

“I've told him stories,” his father said. “He's always had the desire to go up in an AT6 or SNJ4. You make a lot of promises. You try to find the time.”

Hamann, who hasn't flown a Navy plane in more than 20 years, obtained the plane by placing an ad in Aviation News. Dr. Louis Antonacci, an Oak Lawn dentist, and Dr. Austin Gibbons, an Elgin, Ill., physician, offered their AT6's and a flight plan was drawn.

Francois H. Palma, operator of Flight Horizons and Patterns at Chicago's Midway Airport, volunteered his facilities for the Thanksgiving Day jaunt.

Hamann, who has six other children, says he hopes to get Richard a flight with the Blue Angels flying team and to take him on a trip to Disney World in Florida.

“I'm making arrangements to take him to Glenview Naval Air Station, maybe for a ride in a jet,” his father said. “And I'm going to see to his going to Disney World in the next six months if humanly possible.”
“I was worried about him,” St. Hamann said of his son—who for the past two years has been confined to a wheelchair. “But he took it just great. He just kept pestering me to go back up. He's raring to go.”

Symphony, chorale to give 'Elijah'

NORMAN LOGAN
guest soloist

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — More than 80 area musicians — will join voices and instruments Tuesday night in presenting Mendelssohn's "Elijah" oratorio.

The event, incorporating the fall concert of the Magic Valley Symphony orchestra, is scheduled at 8 p.m. in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts auditorium. The vocalists will be members of the Magic Valley Chorale, a group of singers formed last spring under the leadership of Roger Vincent, Filer. Del Slaughter, orchestra director, will conduct.

The oratorio, considered by critics to be far superior to the composer's other large choral works, tells the dramatic story of the prophet Elijah as found in the Old Testament.

The first part of the work relates how the prophet caused a drought in Israel because the people had forsaken the Lord and instead turned to worship of the false god, Baal. Elijah intraciously raises a widow's son from the dead, then challenges the prophets of Baal to a contest to determine who is the true God and when he is victorious, Elijah has the evil prophets put to death.

The second part of the oratorio is concerned with efforts of Elijah's enemies to kill him and the protection afforded him by the Lord and finally his ascension to heaven in a fiery chariot.

The composer, who is mostly remembered for his brilliant imaginative and fairy-like music, was urged by his benevolent but autocratic father to write an oratorio.

This type of music was popular in England since the days of Handel, and with Mendelssohn's frequent visits there he became popular. The "Elijah" was first performed at the Birmingham Festival of 1846 and in England, at least, was considered one of the great masterpieces of music. But later reaction against the composer resulted in a lowering reputation of his choral works as well as instrumental music.

Critics feel Mendelssohn's works cannot approach the profundity of Bach, whom he recently admired, or the elemental power of Handel, but they stress the beautifully polished workmanship, delicate scoring, charm and color of this oratorio.

Concert goers are urged to read the original account in the 18th chapter of First Kings in the Old Testament, to familiarize themselves with the dramatic events vocalized in the oratorio.

Soloists for the Tuesday night performance include Jack Van Buren, tenor; Joan Carr and Helen Allen, sopranos; Lanis Kingsford, Buhl, alto, and Norman Logan, University of Idaho, Moscow, who will substitute as the baritone soloist for Roger Vincent who is ill.

The boy soprano part will be sung by Merrill Bradshaw, Kimberly, junior high voice student of Mrs. James Keefe.

Logan, who has directed choral numbers many times in the Magic Valley, both at high school music clinics and with Methodist church choirs, has sung the role of Elijah previously and while in Twin Falls for the music clinic last weekend offered to sing the role if Vincent was unable to do so.

Miss Kingsford, who teaches elementary and choral music at Buhl, is a 1972 graduate of Utah State University, where she earned a degree in music education. While at Utah State she soloed with the band and symphony orchestra and was alto soloist for "The Messiah" with the USU Chorale. She also has sung roles in "Stop the World," "Oliver," "George M," "Once upon a Mattress" and studied with Dr. William Ramsey.

Mrs. Carr, who teaches English and speech at O'Leary Junior High School, majored in piano, public school vocal music and voice. She has degrees from Doane College, Crete, Neb., and the University of Wichita, Kan., and did graduate study at Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill.

She taught vocal music in public schools in Geneva, Neb., and Clarinda, Iowa and before returning to public-school teaching here, she taught voice and piano privately. She was a voice student of the late Lucille Lippincott, Boise and Twin Falls, and has participated as soloist in many community productions of "The Messiah" and other religious works.

She directed the Twin Falls Music Club chorus for five years and is now choir director and organist at the Valley Christian church, and has participated in Dilettante musicals and in the opera, "Carmen," given by the Music Club and CSI.

Mrs. Allen holds a BA degree from the University of Oregon and an MA from Portland State University. She studied voice with Prof. Russell Anderson and Mme. Rose McGrew at the University of Oregon, with Mabel Riegelman in San Francisco and in Boston.

She was soprano soloist in the "Elijah" for three consecutive years with the Central Oregon Oratorio Society and in the "Messiah" at the University of Oregon, The Palles and Hodd River, Ore., and the Seattle area.

Before coming to Twin Falls where her husband is pastor of the Episcopal church, Mrs. Allen was soloist in the Seattle Chorale and the Leonard Moore Chorale, a small group of 25 singers under Columbia Artists management which performed in the Pacific northwest and Canada. She also has been soloist in "Anahel and the Night Visitors" and in numerous productions of "Seven Last Worlds of Christ."

Van Buren, German teacher at the Twin Falls High School, was a soloist last April when the Magic Valley Chorale made its debut production of the Easter portions of the "Messiah." He also soloed with the high school band's pop concert in the spring of 1972 and was soloist with the Riverside Chorale in Bach's "Magnificent" and with the BYU a cappella choir.

No tickets will be available at the door the night of the concert, according to Jean Sutcliffe, orchestra business manager, but tickets now are on sale at Warners, Music Center, formerly Garths and Sullivan's Music Store in the Lynwood Shopping Center. Patron Patron tickets will admit entire families to the concert.

TF girl studies engineering

TWIN FALLS — Marilyn Olmstead, Twin Falls, has a strong interest in the outdoors, heightened by her work with the U.S. Forest Service, the past four summers.

Now she is preparing to combine that interest with a promising profession by studying in the Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering at Utah State University.

Miss Olmstead is one of 15 women in the College of Engineering at USU. Dr. Irving S. Dunn, dean of the college, and other engineering leaders throughout the nation, have been placing stress on the many opportunities available in Engineering professions, and particularly for women engineers.

"Civil engineering has traditionally been one of the strongest programs at Utah State, and opportunities are excellent for good students in the field today," said Dr. Elliot Juch, head of the Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering at USU.

"There are jobs with federal, state and local governments as well as every type of industry. It is a truly broad and dynamically expanding profession," he added.

"No other discipline has more impact on the environment than civil and environmental engineering," Dr. Rich said. "Our civil engineers are trained and educated to implement new technology for man's benefit, and at the same time to assure that progress is compatible with the environmental needs of the future."

Miss Olmstead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Olmstead, Twin Falls, was graduated from Twin Falls High School and attended the University of Idaho and Boise State College before transferring to USU this year.

She has worked with forest service survey crews on the Salmon, Targhee, Sawtooth and Boise National Forests, and also has worked with J.U.B. Engineering Planners in Boise.

She would like to work, after graduation, in designing and constructing timber purchase roads, and possibly in engineering consulting.

Mrs. Carlton Daniels helps energy crunch

Wood stove beats energy crunch

By MRS. MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News writer

FILER — Old-fashioned values and objects are showing up more and more these days.

In Filer, Mrs. Carlton Daniels has put a Montig wood range in the kitchen next to her electric stove and finds it is helping the energy crunch since she can use it both for cooking and for heating the house.

Mrs. Daniels bought the green and tan stove at a sale earlier this year because, as she said, "I just loved it." The next "little stove, which" will bring a nostalgic smile to many homemakers, is in very good condition, has the top warming shelf and two recessed niches to hold salt and pepper shakers and a grease container.

There has always been something especially warm and comforting about the heat radiating from a wood-burning stove and the sound of wood crackling as it burns. On the practical side, these stoves are invaluable for burning up trash which would otherwise have to be carried away. The Daniels family uses wood scraps to keep the fire going.

And the cooking? There's nothing like a stew or large kettle of vegetable soup simmering away on the back of the stove, or a pot of beans in the oven, cooked slowly to bring out every morsel of good taste.

And what cook can resist baking up something extra like a pan of gingerbread or some large raisin-filled cookies, because "I had the stove going anyway."

Mrs. Daniels' husband and two sons enjoy the stove as much as she does and it seemed only natural to install a large comfortable chair and reading lamp nearby. The family say it's surprising how much the stove has cut down on their furnace fuel as it helps heat the house.

No wonder these stoves are quickly bought up at auctions, and as one antique dealer said, are "our best selling item."

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My telephone just rang. It was a doctor telling me that my 16-year-old daughter was just in his office asking him for birth control pills. Abby, what are these young people doing to us mothers?

I knew she had a steady boy friend but I never dreamed they would be in need of anything like that. I am heartbroken. I tried to raise this girl right. Where have I failed?

ASHAMED TO SIGN MY NAME

DEAR ASHAMED: You haven't failed, and if you tried to raise her right you need not be ashamed. I am NOT in favor of premarital sex, but once a girl has gone all the way, it is unrealistic to think that she will stop simply because she is denied the pill. So then what? She risks becoming pregnant. And if she does, what has the doctor accomplished? He will have been responsible for (a) an unwanted baby, (b) an abortion, or (c) a hasty marriage. Which would you choose for your daughter?

Consider the baby

If you are among the mothers who say, "If that's the way she is going to act, then let her suffer the consequences," please consider the baby. Don't you think every child should come into this world, wanted by its natural mother? I do.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17, and have no living father. He and my mother were divorced 13 years ago, and he was killed in an automobile accident three years ago. After his death my brother and I were advised that we were to receive Social Security benefits to be used for our education and welfare.

We have been getting these benefits for three years now, and with my portion I have been able to buy a car, all my own clothes, and still manage to put aside some money for college.

My problem is my friends who do not feel that I deserve this money. They say I am "ripping off" the government every month. I think I deserve this money because my father never was able to pay child support when he was alive, and now I am being taken care of.

Answer soon, as I am made to feel guilty about this.
DIRTY MONEY

DEAR DIRTY MONEY: What's "dirty" about it? Your friends could be jealous. And one way to put a stop to that is to keep quiet about what you have and where it came from. It's nobody's business.

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a man I love very much. My name is Christina and his name is Christopher. We are both called "Chris," which has been quite confusing at times.

I have just given birth to twins—a boy and a girl. My husband wants to name them Christian and Christina, respectively. I think this would be a terrible confusion for the twins and us in this household.

Can you offer a suggestion? Please hurry your answer.
CHRIS

DEAR CHRIS: For Chris's sake and yours, insist upon John and Mary, Jack and Jill, or any other combination of less confusing names.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "NOSY IN WAYZATA": The last I heard, Don was in the hospital with knee trouble. [His wife found a blonde on it.]

Dilettante Group slates auditions for "Fiddler"

TWIN FALLS — Auditions for "Fiddler on the Roof," this year's Dilettante spring production, have been scheduled.

The tryouts will be at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Washington Elementary School.

The musical offers a variety of roles for young and older singers and actors. Anyone interested in participating in tryouts should be prepared to sing a song.

Those auditioning for character parts should sing a song from the musical. Those interested in chorus parts can sing any song from a musical.

Persons auditioning for the roles of Golda and Tevye are to be prepared to sing the duet "Do You Love Me?"

Dance auditions only will be conducted Friday. Rehearsals for selected dancers will be Saturday.

General tryouts for singers and actors will be conducted Saturday. Anyone who would like to help with backstage work is invited to come sign up either night.

Singers who do not have an accompanist for tryouts will have an accompanist provided at the auditions.

Anyone with questions concerning the auditions may call Colleen Latham, 733-6027 or Brad Hickerson.

The musical is scheduled for presentation March 14-18. It will be the group's 18th annual production.

Fred Schiebe, Lewiston, will be director. Del Slaughter will direct the orchestra.

to be automatic. But declarer surely holds four spades so if you throw a spade he will play ace-queen of spades; lead a heart to his king and squeeze you out of a heart or diamond by playing his fourth spade.

The answer is a resounding "No!"

You simply unguard your jack of hearts. Now if declarer runs off four hearts right away you can afford to throw a spade because he won't be able to get to his hand except by overtaking dummy's queen of spades with his king. If he cashes the ace and queen of spades first and comes to his hand with the king of hearts you just haven't been squeezed and won't be squeezed since he can't exert the right pressure.

Take a look at the bidding and the North and East hands. West opens the eight of diamonds and you have to defend as East.

You have no problem at trick one or when South leads a club to his ace at trick two, but when he continues with a second club to dummy's king you have to make a discard.

You can't afford a heart. Obviously, declarer holds the king of hearts and you will be making dummy's fourth heart a winner. How about a diamond discard? This should set up a good diamond, or maybe two good diamonds for declarer.

City dogs: Defenders or polluters?

By MIKE ROYKO
 (c) Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — Everybody who lives in the city has a favorite source of outrage, the thing that makes the temples throb, fists clench, eyes bulge, stomach churn, and brings vows to find a job in Florida. It can be a gapers' block on an expressway, or a noisy neighbor, jet planes skimming the chimney, people who speak into lines, information operators who don't know the alphabet, telephone solicitors or parking tickets.

But I don't know anybody who can get more worked up than the dog-haters.

They don't actually hate dogs so much as they hate the things dogs do on sidewalks and lawns, and their owners for permitting them to do it.

Sometimes the outrage takes the form of action, as recently happened in the case of Leona Roman, an accountant.

Mrs. Roman, who owns two dogs, has been hauled into court at least twice by one of her lawn-loving neighbors.

During their last dispute, the neighbor flung the source of her anger into Mrs. Roman's face. As Mrs. Roman said: "then we began smacking each other back and forth." A judge will have to resolve their differences.

The city's most widely known dog-hater is Studa Terkel, another deep-thinker, and host of a daily radio show.

He recently wrote an article for Chicago Guide Magazine telling of his struggle with the way dogs conduct themselves. He said they are always leaving things for him to step on, and trying to bite him.

It is even worse for him, he said, because he wears suede shoes.

The way Terkel described conditions in his neighborhood, you would think his neighbors were walking pet elephants. The piles are so high, he literally climbs to work each day.

While many people cheered Terkel's blast at dogs, I have to take issue with him.

For one thing, as an intellectual, Terkel is partly to blame. He doesn't walk the way most people do, keeping an eye half-peeled for obstacles.

As a deep thinker, he often walks in a daze, muttering great thoughts to himself, waving his arms, while gazing into the sky and pondering the limits of the universe. That's his job.

Well, when you walk around that way, something is bound to get you. If it isn't a dog it will be a fireplug, a tree, or a needy teen-ager.

But beyond that, Terkel erred in not considering the benefits of dogs, which far outweigh their few unfortunate habits.

Before recorded history, dogs were there to help fight off the strange beasts that tried to get into man's cave.

And after all these centuries, they are still doing it in Chicago, leaping at the strange beasts that come crawling through windows.

What would Terkel have had the dog do when a snarling monster tried to get in the cave — phone the American Civil Liberties Union?

Should I awake some night and see a modern beastie in the doorway, would Terkel be of any use to me? Why, even if he were there, he'd probably thrust a microphone in the fiend's face and ask him about the meaning of life. But my trusted dog would gnaw off a bit of the stranger's hip, teaching him about life.

Terkel, who claims to like people, is always talking about how important love is to mankind.

wag their tails, make yipping sounds, jump around happily, and bark at your potential enemies.

But what do people do with their love?

Furthermore, there wasn't one case of rabies in Chicago during that period.

So you are much safer being bitten by a dog than making love to a human being.

I have more statistics. Last year, there were 16,000 dog bites in Chicago. That may sound like a lot, but considering there are an estimated 400,000 dogs in the city, that's only one bite for every 25 dogs.

Meanwhile, there were 301,000 crimes — which is one crime for every 11 people.

And there were also 750,000 moving traffic violations — all potentially deadly.

That means there was one highly unfriendly act for every three people.

After considering these figures, Terkel should stop yelling about dogs.

Current Cues

By HELEN WALKER
TWIN FALLS — For most of us the year end holidays conjure up visions of friends, food, festivities, food, family, food.

While many stomach upsets are the result of overeating and drinking, some health problems are related to unsafe food handling and preparation.

There are several important rules for food safety.

- Keep hot foods very hot, cold foods very cold.
- Continually cleanse hands, utensils, cutting surfaces.
- Promptly refrigerate foods after quickly cooling them.
- Freeze perishable foods that must be stored for longer than a few days, if the foods are freezable.
- Carefully thaw foods under controlled conditions and use promptly.

Bacteria thrive in foods such as milk, eggs, poultry and meats. Fish and finely chopped foods like stuffings are excellent media for the growth of any bacteria that may be present.

To keep cold foods cold means at temperatures between 32 degrees and 45 degrees F. in your refrigerator.

Let's look at freezer temperatures. Refrigerator frozen food compartments are not considered "true freezers," unless they have a separate door on the appliance and maintain a temperature of zero degrees or lower.

To keep hot foods hot means using very hot temperatures, between 140 and 212 degrees.

Most bacteria are destroyed within minutes at 165 degrees. It is safer practice to roast large turkeys, unstuffed. The stuffing in a turkey over 16 pounds may never reach 165 degrees F, which is the temperature necessary to destroy most bacteria.

Thawing frozen food requires know-how. It is not wise to leave a large piece of meat, casserole or a solidly frozen chicken or turkey on the kitchen counter to defrost. The outside portion of the food will warm up to room temperature long before the inside of the food defrosts. It is safest and best to thaw frozen foods slowly in the refrigerator.

If foods must be defrosted quickly, place in two thicknesses of brown paper bag — this acts as an insulator for foods defrosting on the kitchen counter. Paper holds in cold while the inside gets a chance to defrost.

By observing safety rules for food preparation and storing, a happy and healthy holiday season can be enjoyed by all.

Mini-Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Officials of the Twin Falls Public Library have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"No Bed of Roses" by Faith Baldwin. How Faith Baldwin solves the problem of this young marriage set in a typical New-England-town-makes-for-an-enchanting-and-romantic-novel.

"Psyote" by Alice Marriott. A remarkable perceptive account of the controversial Psyote religion.

"The Limits of American Capitalism" by Robert L. Heilbroner. In all likelihood, barring the advent of a catastrophic war, capitalism will continue as the dominant system of the western world during the remainder of this century and well into the next.

"Octoberfest" by Frank De Felitta. A fascinating suspense novel with a murder chase involving the chief inspector of police on a search for justice and the hunted criminal bent on his own bizarre pilgrimage of retribution.

"Los Angeles Rams" by Steve Bisheff. The great years of the Los Angeles Rams were from 1945-1955 and there are the years that are spotlighted. But the years of lesser glories are here, too.

"Matala" by Malcom McConnell. Set in the Congo, the action takes place in one crowded week between Christmas and New Years, 1965.

"My Wide World" by Jim McKay. Jim McKay's 12 years with ABC have been truly exciting, sometimes tiring and always rewarding; but there never was anything like the summer of 1972.

"Castle in Spain" by Benjamin Tammuz. The unlikely love affair between Elianum, a 29-year-old Israeli journalist and Nora, a beautiful 44-year-old Scandinavian woman.

"Dutch Uncle" by Marilyn Durham. Fleeing the wives of a San Francisco woman in March 1880, Jake Hollander arrives in New Mexico as the incredulous and outraged custodian of a pair of Mexican orphans.

"On the Policy of the Soviet Union and the International Situation" by Leonid I. Breznev. This book contains the major policy statements of the general secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the USSR.

"North By West" by R. D. Symons. Here, in two simply beautiful stories, is a celebration of the importance and reality of man's relationships with the primal environment.

"Adventures of an Oldtimer" by Lela Roberts. Captures with vividness and immediacy the day-to-day, year-to-year existence of one of our "last frontiersmen."

"The Tightrope Man" by Desmond Bagley. Pow-ahooka can compare with the pure terror of looking into a mirror and finding a completely unknown face reflected back.

"The New Agenda" by Andrew M. Greeley. The popular and prolific Father Greeley tackles what he feels are the real religious issues at the bottom of present-day frustrations and anxieties.

"The Heart Listens" by Helen Van Slyke. At the center of this book is a gallant woman. The story spans the years from the first quarter of this century in Boston to the early 1970s in Southern California.

"Collision" by James Lynne. In a tale whose focal point is a horrifying "Moment of truth," the author tells the action-packed story of a number of people who had nothing in common until one fateful moment.

"The Winter Soldiers" by Richard M. Ketchum. The story of a tiny band of men held together by George Washington in the face of disaster and despair.

"Small Changes" by Marge Piercy. This novel follows the crisscrossing lives of two women, Beth and Miriam in their loves and careers, in their fears and passions, in their perceptions of the world around them — and of themselves.

"Dr. Gully's Story" by Elizabeth Jenkins. Based on the actual case of a scandalized London in the 1870s.

Holiday Fair set by TF Relief Society

TWIN FALLS — Women of the Twin Falls West Stake Relief Society will have a Holiday Homemaking Fair from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday at the stake center on Harrison Street.

Knitting, crocheting, embroidery, quilts, pillows, men's, women's and children's clothing, gift wrap, things for toys, art and pictures will be featured. There will also be Christmas ideas and a taste and tell booth.

Recipes and patterns will be sold at cost. There will be entertainment throughout the day by Relief Society choruses. Style shows will be given at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

The public is invited and a small admission will be charged.

Fire eater stymied

By United Press International

BLACKPOOL, England (UPI) — Judy Allen, 28, uses less than a gallon of gasoline a week, but she says the fuel shortage could put her out of work.

Judy, a professional fire eater, is due to begin a week's theater booking Sunday. But garages have banned the supply of gasoline in cans in a bid to stop motorists from stockpiling.

"Two garages have refused to fill a container for me," she said Thursday. "I need petrol (gas) for my act."

TF La Leche league sets monthly meets

TWIN FALLS — La Leche League of Twin Falls will begin a new series of discussions Nov. 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Deanna Roberts, 1805 Dorian Dr.

The first of four monthly meetings will cover the advantages of breastfeeding to mother and baby. Discussion leaders will be Mrs. Adrienne Thomas and Mrs. Judi Bean.

The league is a non-sectarian, non-profit organization whose purpose is to encourage "good mothering through breastfeeding." All women interested in breastfeeding are invited, and babies are welcome.

At any time a mother may call La Leche League for telephone counseling at 734-4213 or 324-2410.

Maintain Christmas tree freshness with formula

TWIN FALLS — A simple formula is available to maintain the freshness and fragrance of evergreen Christmas trees and evergreen arrangements.

The formula was developed by an Illinois florist and it does provide a countermeasure to the danger of a dried out Christmas tree.

To prepare the solution, mix in a large container, one-fourth cup micronized iron (available at garden supply stores), two cups light corn syrup, four teaspoons household liquid chlorinated bleach and one gallon hot water. Stir. Pour or ladle hot mixture into tree stand.

Check liquid level daily and add more formula as needed. After all the formula has been used, continue to keep container filled with warm water.

University of Idaho alumni, Gooding High schoolers meet

MOSCOW — Clive Strong, Wendell, senior business major at the University of Idaho will make arrangements for meetings of high school students and U of I alumni in the Gooding area.

The meetings are scheduled for early January and give students and their parents a chance to sit down and learn about the university, according to Roger McQueen, high school relations field agent.

John Faulkner, Gooding, is the alumni representative for the Gooding area.

Ron Jones, Rupert, freshman business major will arrange meetings in the Rupert area. Darrell Hatfield, Rupert, is the alumni representative.

Meetings in Twin Falls will be arranged by Nancy Bonnett, a freshman psychology major. Jerry Meyerhoeffer, Twin Falls, is the alumni representative.

MR. AND MRS. BINGHAM celebrate 60 years

TF couple honored

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bingham, Twin Falls, will be honored with an open house celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary Sunday.

The event will be from 2 to 4 p.m. at the couple's home, 327 Quincy, Twin Falls. Hosts for the event will be Mr. and Mrs. Charles (Fern) Bingham, Buhl; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph (Cloten) Glerisch, Burley; Mrs. Virginia Bingham, Twin Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Lynn (Marie) Saunders; Idaho Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Lynn (Dorothy) Montgomery, Wendell; and Mr. and Mrs. Deloy Bingham, Twin Falls, the couple's children.

They were married Nov. 20, 1913, in Ogden, Utah. They moved to Burley in 1918 and farmed there until they moved to Twin Falls in 1943. They retired from farming in 1957 and moved to their present home in Twin Falls.

The family invites friends of the couple to the open house. The couple requests no gifts.

By PAUL MOLLOY
(c) Chicago Sun-Times

In the yard back of the big house the truck driver plucked cloths from his mouth as he hung his socks in the November sun. "That damned curfew!" he snorted. "Screwed up my bowling again last night."

Wringing a tuop on the nearby porch, the stout, balding plumber wheezed: "How about a curfew on your nose?" Your snoring kept me awake all night."

Inside, other men were washing dishes, scouring the two bathtubs or writing their children that they might be home for Christmas. A typical morning in the house of no women.

The house is on a tree-lined street in Joliet, Ill., an in-between home for men engaged in group living while cushioning the shock of re-entry into the social order they once abandoned.

This Joliet Halfway House, where men who have arrested the incurable disease of alcoholism pause for weeks, or months, to reorient their thinking. They have been institutionalized, but have no homes of jobs to return to. Or they are from an untenable home situation where the tense environment could send them stumbling into a relapse.

There are six such places for male and female alcoholics in the Chicago area, with the rationale of a "sliding board" into normal living environment. They provide an atmosphere similar to normal living—with the emphasis on rehabilitation in a peer group through self-help with mutual problems.

The staff is headed by Director Patrick Quinn and Manager Patrick Walsh, both fulltime counselors. It includes Nick Kowalski, a pixieish aide who makes sure the men make their beds each morning and are in by 11 p.m. curfew, and the cook, Adam Wieske. The house mascot is a tenacious dachshund named Hundum. All are arrested alcoholics, except Hundum who barks only at nonalcoholic visitors.

The Joliet House—a 1972 budget was underwritten by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission, the city of Joliet, the Will County Board of Commissioners, industry, service clubs and private donors.

By the end of the year more than 200 men will have been "processed" at Joliet Halfway House. Sixty per cent have made it back into the real world, according to Quinn, and 35 per cent of these are in the Joliet area and on a near-daily contact with the house. As "graduates," they volunteer their time and efforts to help their successors, especially at the three AA meetings, which all residents must attend each week.

"With local industry," Quinn said, "it's almost a matter of one hand washing the other. We're glad to help companies that have employees with drinking problems. At the same time, the companies are encouraged to use our graduates when they have job openings."

"We're trying to relieve the taxpayer's burden by taking what might be a public nuisance off the street, working with him, and returning him to the street a healthy person."

"We think the public is just as proud of the house as we are. We've had no undercurrents, except from a few individuals who don't understand the house's purpose. We have acceptance because the public knows that with each man we help here the cost in hospitals and jails and in time lost at work is lessened."

Cerebral palsy talk slated

TWIN FALLS — Shirley Fritchhoff, executive director of United Cerebral Palsy of Idaho, will be guest speaker at an organizational meeting for parents and persons interested in cerebral palsy children.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Child Development Center, 803 Harrison, Twin Falls.

Affiliation with the United Cerebral Palsy organization will be discussed. The organization has a developmental disabilities grant to assess needs and services available to the cerebral palsied population of Idaho.

Bodies need fueling

(c) Chicago Sun-Times - Bodies will need fuel of their own to keep warm and active during the fuel shortage. More calories are burned up in cold weather than in warm temperatures, so they should be replaced, not replaced them will mean weight-loss and tiredness.

Children playing in the brisk outdoors after school need a hearty snack instead of letting them eat empty calories from

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES Think out a new plan to extend your activities and interests far beyond their present boundaries, especially those of a philosophical, religious, scientific, or educational nature.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study the outlets you want to retain in your life and decide which should be further extended. Contact new personalities you wish to have for good friends.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Rely on hunches which are accurate and teach right decisions in personal dealings. Plan better way to handle obligations. Talk to the right people.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Good day to sit at the dinner table with associates and hash over plans for the future, deals to be made. Handle civic affair early.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do some special favors for loyal, helpful persons to whom you owe a debt of gratitude. Take care of any health problem and exercise more.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Join congenials for amusements. Use some new tactic that will please more. Don't be a pushover for anyone.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle accumulated small tasks around the house. Show appreciation for kin instead of criticizing them and get proper results. Think kindly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend inspiring lectures, services to become a more alert, up to date person. Then get together with congenials for good times. Pay your part of bill.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get a success attitude and you find you hit on the right idea to have it. Ask business expert for suggestions. A successful social evening.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your health and appearance for necessary improvements. Put those social ideas to work and get right results. Stay within budget.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't limit your abilities and you will be far more successful. Talk over ideas with experts, but don't confide in others. Have a romantic p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact many good pals now and have the suitable type of day you like. Add new types to your present roster of friends. Retire early.

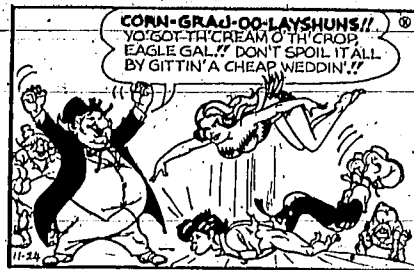

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make this a day for charitable or social work that you like. Impress higher ups with your ability. Dine out with kin for a delightful time.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will look at the world through rose colored glasses and should have as fine an education as possible, including foreign languages, so the wonderful promise in this chart will be realized. Otherwise your youngster could soon get into a bad habit of brought up under disadvantages. Teach early to go to bigwigs for assistance and get it. Imports exports line here.

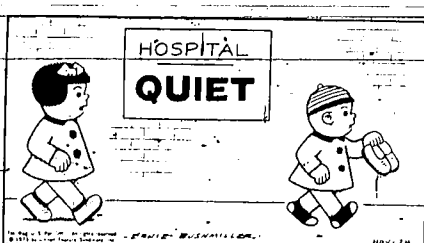

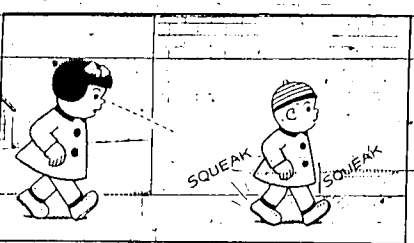

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Statistics show the man is more likely to commit suicide than the woman after a marriage breakup. That was reported. Client asks why. Experts think it's because the woman usually stays home in familiar surroundings while the man leaves to start fresh. They're under the impression the suicide rate among divorcing women would be higher than that among divorcing men, if the men generally remained with house while the woman left.

Most every fellow spends about four days a year shaving. Traditionally among the Mohammedans, the burial cloth is acceptable, but the coffin is prohibited.

Did you know the average housewife, if such there be, runs as much risk of accidents as the average baseball umpire, if such there be? Insurance statisticians report that

ABOUT $10 O. "How much was that ancient coin mentioned in the Bible, the Shekel, actually worth?" A. Equivalent of about $10.

Of course you knew that Mary had a little lamb, but were you aware that said lamb was a twin, pushed out of its pen by the mother? And of course, further, you knew the lamb followed Mary wherever she went, but were you aware that this most famous of all lambs in America was finally gored to death by a cow? So the historical footnotes report.

Thousands a week pile up on the rocks or on one another now in waterways worldwide.

SURVIVORS After most every major air raid on German cities during World War II, slick dealers swiftly bought up the I.D. papers of men killed in the bombings there. They resold said identification data to German army deserters of similar age and description. Thus, the old records there still list as dead numerous seasoned men who survive, even now.

It has been widely reported that the great Thomas A. Edison slept but little. However, among inventors, he was the exception. Studies show most inventors are long sleepers. Say, nine hours or more. Also, they're known to be somewhat anxious and a little depressed a lot of the time. Most salesmen, on the other hand, are short sleepers. Maybe seven hours or less. Mentally, those short sleepers tend to be up, not down, usually.

Predictably, that article around the house most apt to be identified with the injury of a child under age 10 is the bicycle, the statisticians report.

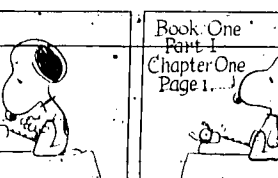

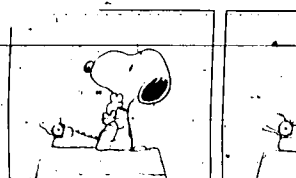

An Eskimo igloo is made of frozen snow, not ice, remember that.

Valley Comment

What do you feel you have to be thankful for this Thanksgiving season?

Vicki Olsen, Twin Falls:
 "I'm thankful for the snow so I can go skiing. I'm thankful for the very understanding roommate that I have."

Bob Conrad, Twin Falls:
 "That there's not too much snow.
 "Everything in life, I guess. I just feel lucky in comparison to a lot of people — the country I live in I've got a lot more than a lot of people."

Harry Gibson, Twin Falls:
 "Well, I'll tell you, I'm thankful I'm alive, because I've had two light heart attacks ... I can't work but I'm still able to get around.
 "Heck, people complain about how rough things are, but I can't see anything. I can remember way back in the 30s and I still had a good time — back-in-the-Depression."

Terri John, Twin Falls:
 "I don't know. Just everything. I don't know. I got married."

Jack E. Nipper, Twin Falls:
 "My doctor bills have been paid. I'm a hemophiliac and my doctor, Dr. Katz, wrote to the Bloodmobile in Boise and they said they could pick up all the bills for anti-hemophiliac concentrate, which average three units per month at $30 per unit. That's as long as I live in Idaho. To have this come through ... I tell you, that's fantastic."

Al Nelson, Twin Falls:
 "Just health and life, and I have an abundance of both. Of course, there are just hundreds of things that I'm grateful for, so it's hard to specify."

CSI channel 13 foot in door

TWIN FALLS — The educational TV channel 13 which the College of Southern Idaho began operating this fall is considered a "foot in the door" toward the ultimate goal of locally produced shows.

Presently, the college-owned translator picks up the signals from KAIT at Boise State College, and translates it for viewing in the Twin Falls area.

All programming is decided at KAIT where BSC has a staff of about 20 persons. Some shows are originated schedule is comprised of programs selected from the several nationwide educational TV stations.

The CSI channel 13 is broadcast from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 5 to 10 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

In addition to the obvious audio-visual aid for classes at CSI that wish to arrange viewing for specific programs in their field, the educational channel has evoked a wide response from residents scattered throughout the area.

Response from viewers has been received from as far as Gooding, Eden-Hazleton area, Buhl, Murtaugh, Shoshone, and Kimberly, according to Holly Houfburg, who has been designated to handle information about the project. He is in charge of vocational audio-visual programs with curriculum development at CSI and public relations.

He said the verification of such wide viewership is remarkable, technically, since channel 13 operates on 100 watts, compared to 300,000 watts for KMYT. The engineering staff of KMYT, headed by Gib Anderson and Bon Mauldin, installed the equipment for CSI gratis, provided technical advice and "got us going," Houfburg said.

The physical layout for the new educational channel is not large. The one piece of equipment, the translator, is located on the Jerome butte. No personnel is needed and the KMYT engineers handle any repairs.

The translator cost $5,000, Houfburg said, and since the installation was provided free by the local TV station, this was the only cost to the college.

Apparently many TV viewers in the area appreciate having additional program offerings, according to letters Houfburg has received.

Channel 13 offers seven national educationally acclaimed programs as "Neighborhood." The station also provides an additional teaching aid to public schools in the area, many of whom have contacted CSI for the channel 13 schedule and for aid in setting up viewing rooms.

All classrooms at the college were built to accommodate TV use, Houfburg said with conduits to complement inter-campus communication. It is also possible for CSI teachers to obtain a video tape of a channel 13 program to be used at a later time. Arrangements for this service, CSI use only, can be made through the college library or Glenn Baum, he said.

Since the station, as yet, is "strictly an engineering project, not a production one," Houfburg says there has been no conflict between departments to influence or control its use.

The only way anyone at CSI could produce a TV program now would be to tape it locally and then transport the tape to Boise State station which is an origination point.

Houfburg said there are three colleges in the State University of Idaho and Idaho State as well as Boise State, having "point of origination" i.e. able to produce their own television shows.

He praised the foresightedness of Dr. James Taylor, CSI president, and college officials for "reserving" the application for channel 13 which was allocated to this area, originally for another commercial station. But when this did not materialize, the college was able to obtain the operating rights for the channel until the translator operation could begin this fall.

Houfburg stressed channel 13 is not on cable and is only receivable right "from the air." TV viewers who can't receive the channel off their channel 11 antennae are advised by engineers to look into getting an antenna, even "rabbit ears."

Hoffman tales changed

(C) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — When the Metropolitan Opera puts on its new production of Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman" on Thursday, it will not exactly be the "tales" with which most people are familiar. Of course, many producers take liberties with this work. The City Opera production not long ago omitted the postlude.

But, by and large, there has been a traditional sequence: the prologue, followed by the Olympia scene; the courtesan act in Venice; the Antonia scene and the postlude. However, Offenbach did die before finishing the opera and there is some doubt about the actual sequence he had in mind.

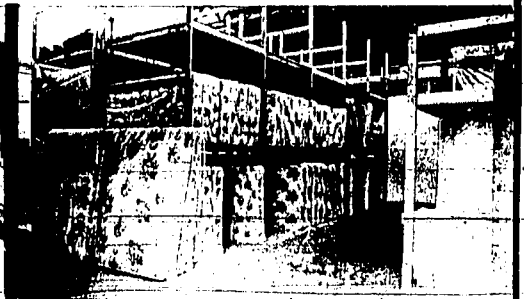

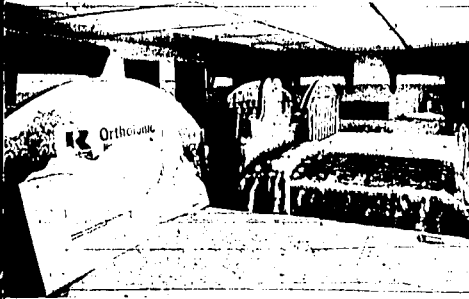

At the premiere in 1881 there were major departures from Offenbach's piano score. The director of the opera-comique feared that the "tales" would be too long, so he cut, transposed and did other violence to the score.

Poor Offenbach. He so much wanted to compose a "serious" opera. Perhaps it was the case of the clown who wanted to play Hamlet. When he returned to Paris in 1876 after his trip to America, he was ailing and dejected. The 57-year-old composer was a has-been. Offenbach, the once-popular creator of "Orpheus in the underworld," "La Perichole," "La Grande-Duchesse de Gerolstein" and almost 100 other comic operas, was generally ignored. New favorites, such as Charles Lecocq, had taken his public away from him.

"One has grown old," sighed Offenbach. "One has been blinded by the grossest flattery and dreamed the dream of eternal glory; and then one day everything collapses, the glory is a dust heap, and one is buried before one is dead."

New services at old facility

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News Writer

GOODING — A child development center-satellite office will be the first of several new programs planned for the tuberculosis hospital.

The placement of the office here makes a growing momentum to locate district state offices in the once deserted buildings.

The DECS satellite office will offer speech and hearing therapy, diagnosis and screening, and will work with the schools in helping children with adjustment difficulties, according to Tony McNiven, program administrator, DECS.

Clinical services will also be offered at the hospital soon through DECS mental health division. A psychologist or clinical social worker will provide therapy for all ages. McNiven said that Phil Grover, an adult psychologist, comes to the hospital once a week now and that a child psychologist is expected soon. Within a month a social worker will be hired, he said.

The DECS staff will travel to Fairfield or Shoshone as needed. "We are trying to get services to everybody as close to them as possible," Mill Klein, assistant director region 5 DECS said.

An in-residence short-term treatment program for children is also planned for the hospital facility. McNiven explained that in cases where a child is removed from a foster home or his real home, the hospital would be used as a temporary shelter for the child with no place to go.

He could remain at the facility while studies are conducted to determine a more permanent arrangement or while difficulties with his real parents or foster parents are being ironed out, McNiven said.

Another program, slated for July would utilize the hospital as a place where difficult to manage children could stay for possibly six to eight weeks and undergo therapy.

Rather than shuffling these behavioral problem children from home to home the child could remain at the hospital while the natural parent or foster care is enhanced.

McNiven said this program could probably only handle six to eight children at a time and would require 24 hour staffing and food service.

A minimum security facility at the TB hospital for youth offenders is also planned for this summer. The hospital would provide a place for offenders to stay until their hearing and where they could be counseled by social workers and psychologists. McNiven said area judges have indicated a need for such a program.

"The newer programs planned for the hospital will be more difficult to implement because the new programs must be able to mesh with the ones already here," Klein said.

The Northside School's Cooperative classroom, contracted by DECS, is already located in Tyler Hall, at one time nurses quarters for the hospital. The classroom is affiliated with the Child Development Center at Twin Falls and offers special education for 13 students from the Jerome, Gooding and Shoshone school districts.

Becky Deibert and two aides evaluate the children's self-help skills, measure their academic and communication capabilities and provide occupational and leisure time activities. The children receive speech and language therapy once a week.

The adult activity workshop which offers pre-vocational training, is conducted in the older section of the hospital complex by Fern Fowler, a DECS therapist technician. Twelve clients, most of whom are referred by social workers and the Child Development Center, learn sewing skills and the use of tools and shop machines.

According to Mrs. Fowler the activity workshop has a contract with the Jerome School District to produce 12 dozen bean bags for the elementary students.

Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, also located in the TB hospital has recently obtained a vocational counselor, Paul Kiang, Twin Falls, who divides his time between the office here and the MVRS Twin Falls workshop, according to William Gailey, assistant director.

MVRS has applied for a janitorial contract with the state to clean the hospital. Gailey said the MVRS clients would be paid by piecework at competitive janitorial wages.

The kitchen at the hospital will be operational in two months and will provide food services for the cooperative classroom children and MVRS and adult activity workshop clients. The kitchen will be staffed by a nutrition adviser and MVRS clients will serve as kitchen aides, Gailey said.

MVRS, a private organization with contracts with DECS, offers vocational training for handicapped persons over 17 years old from the Magic Valley area. The MVRS trains dishwashers, maids and janitors at the hospital.

The Bridges Are There, But The People Mover Ferries Are Coming Back

By O.A. (GUS) KELKER
SAN FRANCISCO — Remember back when the ferry boats churned back and forth across San Francisco Bay in all directions? Remember how riding the ferry was the highlight of any trip?

Then came the bridges and the ferry boats ended their task.

This is the tale of one of those bridges — the Golden Gate Span — and how the ferries are coming back as people move along with that grand bridge which first opened in 1937. Back in those days the daily tally of cars and trucks hit 9,000. By the end of 1970 the daily total went over the 90,000 mark and now it's way above that.

So the ferry boats will be back — brand new ones — to get the people from Marin County into "The City" and back home again. Of course, the bridge will still be full of traffic but with energy lack being what it is, the ferry boat role will be important — and appreciated.

Right now, according to officials of the Redwood Empire Association, the first of three fast and brand new ferries will be delivered in the summer of 1974. But we're getting ahead of our story as told to us by the Redwood Empire people, who like to say that most bridges go from shore to shore — but not the Golden Gate Span.

The story goes back at least a half-century. Golden Gate's graceful span actually starts its leap exactly where the eye says it does, at the south end of the yawning channel to San Francisco Bay. And its girders and roadway are anchored one mile northward at Lime Point on the rocky shores of Marin County.

But commuter auto traffic in the 1970's recognizes none of these boundaries. It churns, honks and proliferates not only on the bridges but also on the approaches, extending backward to choke both bedroom and office communities.

Like we said — the first year brought on a total of 9,000 car and truck crossings. That's way back when.

Then directors of the Golden Gate Bridge had been blocked by San Franciscans in their first attempt at a solution — the construction of a second deck. Thus they had to look elsewhere.

After much debate, a two-pronged attack was adopted. The district secured authority to operate a bus system. Greyhound Lines, a private concern, was carrying some 4,300 commuters daily. A pittance! The vehicles were old and uncomfortable. Money was being lost.

So the Bridge District took over and installed 188 new airconditioned, color coordinated busses and by the end of the first year of operation (1972) had carried more than 7,000 commuters daily. Many "riders" came from Petaluma and Santa Rosa in Sonoma County.

Second prong of the assault was amphibious. For generations ferry buffs (like we said) deplored the loss of the Golden Gate commuter boats, which had become a way of life.

San Franciscans especially loved the ferries and they found an advocate in Bridge Director Stephan Leonoudakis. Gaining allies, Leonoudakis and Co. persuaded the District to embark on a watery experiment — the revival of the ferryboats.

The other day officials of the Redwood Empire Association told us that it seemed so logical to take the step. Marin county commuters could get to the boats with comparative ease and could walk to work from a terminal at the foot of Market Street in downtown San Francisco. As with the buses, each commuter diverted to other modes of transport meant part of a car "saved" from rush-hour traffic on the bridge.

In August, 1970, a jaunty motor-ferry MV Golden Gate, began its runs between Sausalito and San Francisco. It carries an average of one million passengers a year, aided by an informal and pleasant service policy that includes bike-racks for sportsmen and going-home happy hour.

Encouraged by this success, the Bridge directors determined to expand the waterborne arm. In August of last year they got a $16.5 million grant from the Federal Department of Transportation to pay two-thirds of the cost of the expanded ferry system. Powered by gas turbine engines and water jets, the new boats will carry up to 760 passengers apiece, and will be able to use shallow water channels and dock in the central part of Marin at Larkspur. With maximum speeds of 25 knots, they should be able to buzz passengers back and forth in half an hour — faster than the present commute-hour auto speed.

Officials of the Redwood Empire Association said the initial verdicts on the two-pronged transit approach seem favorable. Six million commuter-crossings have been siphoned off into the busses, another million passengers used the ferries and both promise to increase. In the year which ended June 30, 1973, 30.6 million vehicles crossed the bridge itself, an increase of only one-half of one per cent over the previous 12 months. Prior years found the increase ranging from two and one-half to five per cent.

It may be necessary to increase tolls to tie the whole thing together. But we are sure area residents will "buy" the package. If they didn't there would be something terribly wrong.

We almost forgot to mention it but the District now has an enlarged title. It's The Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District.

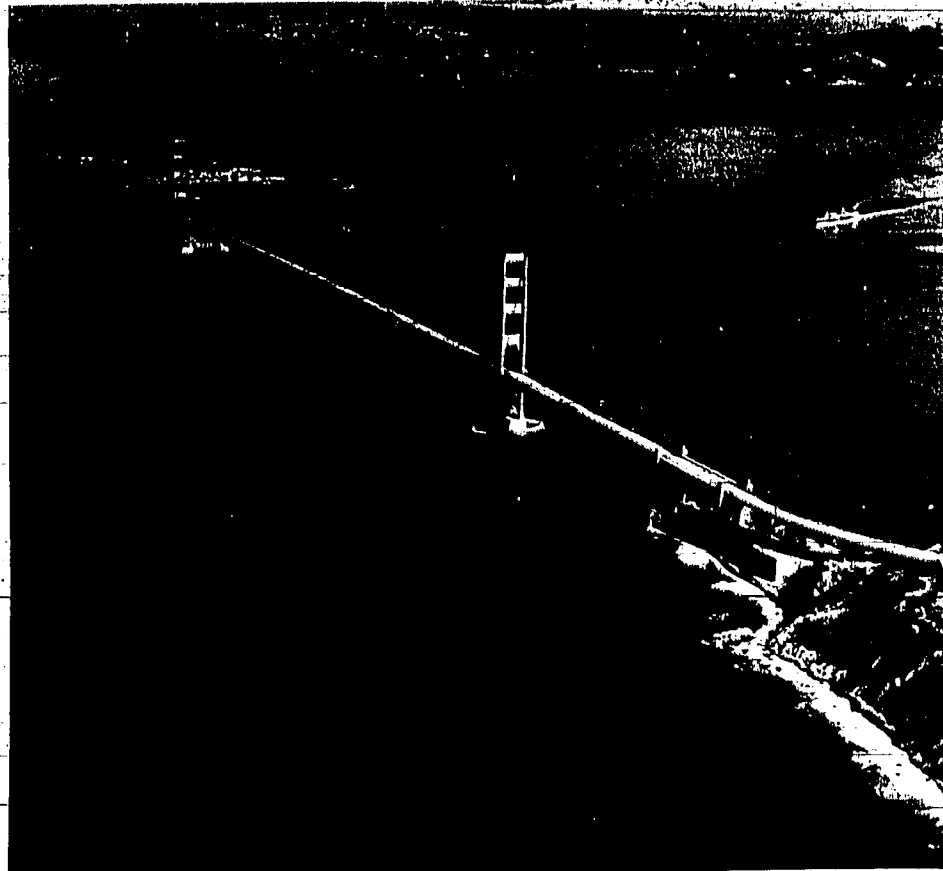

So there you have the story of the bridge that goes a great deal further than from one shore to the other.

And take our word for it — it's quite a thrill to make the round trip. The other day we drove over the Golden Gate Bridge going north and then caught the ferryboat coming back to San Francisco.

The bridge ride was great — but it was the ferry boat jump which brought back memories. The MV Golden Gate wasn't as big as we remembered the old paddlers of years ago — but it was a boat. And coming from Idaho where most boats are 10 or 12 feet long, it was a thrill to smell the salt water — and duck the seagulls.

And we can hardly wait for the new and high-speed ferry boats.

Who wants to ride in an automobile when a ferry boat is available?

Firefly light has no warmth

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
FIREFLIES - FOR ENERGY? A high school biology student sent us this question: "With all the talk about an energy shortage has any one given thought to hooking up fireflies (lightning bugs) as a source of energy?"

We aren't sure whether the student was trying to pull our leg, or whether he's serious. At any rate, it's a good question and it prompts us to say something about "lightning bugs."

First, give up the idea of using lightning bugs to keep you warm during the fuel shortage. The glow they give off is colder than a witch's breath—if you had enough of them you might be able to read by them.

Firefly lanterns are tiny organs on the underside of the abdomen. The flash of a firefly isn't an electrical spark in some believe. It's a chemical reaction in which energy is released as visible light.

The reaction involves the oxidation of luciferin, the light-emitting molecule.

What is the function of the flashers of light emitted by adults? Is the energy used to keep warm? No, the purpose of the flashing lights is sexual communication!

There are about 40 species of fireflies. With some, when a female sees a glowing male, she turns on her lanterns, and likewise when a male sees a glowing female, he wheels in flight and drops down to the ground where the female firefly is.

You can fool a male by covering a flashlight bulb with green cellophane and allowing the green light to show through tiny holes in black electrical tape, but that's really not very fair.

Firefly larvae are called "glowworms," commonly seen along stream banks and in roadside ditches, especially on rainy evenings.

Is the chemical in the firefly poisonous? A reader told us she placed a glass of iced tea on a lawn chair and a firefly fell into it. She fished out the insect and drank the tea.

Suddenly she became violently ill and was rushed to a hospital. She was told by specialists that the chemical, probably luciferin the light producer, was responsible for her sickness.

If any one can shed light on this for us, we'd be grateful.

Meanwhile, getting back to the biology student's question, we don't know if any one has tried harnessing luciferin for light or for energy. Perhaps if we run out of fuel this winter, we'll be forced into studying such possibilities.

As a final note, glowworms are beneficial in that they eat snails and various worms in the soil. And their irregular flickers are fun to watch, if you live in an area which has the firefly.

POISON IVY CURE: A reader writes: "Let me tell you about the poison ivy remedy used by the hill folk in Tennessee. Just plain old castor-oil rubbed on the skin dries up the area and keeps the itch down.

"Poison ivy seems to run a 10 day course no matter what you do but the castor oil will take the itch out until it heals underneath."

"Back in the '50s when I was a teenager in Tennessee I got a real bad dose of poison ivy on my face, hands and knees. It got so bad I couldn't walk around and my whole body was swelling up from the overload on my kidneys.

"For three days I was flat out on the bed and had to be helped to the bathroom. Then one of the hill ladies told mother about castor-oil. She went to the drug store and bought some and applied it, using dad's handkerchiefs as a wet compress."

"The relief was so great I could hardly believe it. By the next morning I was back out working the flower beds of the garden."

The castor oil seemed to form crystals for the ivy liquid and I could just brush them off. Took about three more days to heal up the infected sores but it didn't leave any scars."

Thanks for the tip. We like to hear from folks who have firsthand tips for The Green Thumb.

PINEAPPLE PLANT: Having trouble rooting the top of a pineapple plant? If so you might be giving it too much water. A shallow saucer with a little water in is enough to get it rooted.

After roots form, pot the plant up in a mixture of one part each of sand, peat and loam. Be sure to put pieces of pebbles or charcoal in the bottom of the pot for drainage, since the pineapple likes good drainage.

Grow in a bright window. Getting the pineapple to flower is often tricky. It needs to be stimulated by traces of ethylene gas, and one way to do this is to put an apple next to the pineapple plant, enclose it with a plastic sheet to trap the gas given off by the apple.

It doesn't take much to trigger the pineapple into forming a flower.

SPIDERS ARE BENEFICIAL: You may not like spiders but they do catch a lot of flies and other insects. Although the silk in a spider's web seems fragile, it's really one of the strongest materials known.

The strand in a web will stretch one fifth its length before breaking and it possesses a tensile strength exceeding that of steel.

QUESTION BOX
QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. G. of Twin Falls: "Why is it I have such poor luck with our house plants? We buy potting soil and can't even get them to grow in this. Would we be better off if we mixed our own?"

Some of the soil mixtures we've seen really aren't mixes at all, but just ordinary black muck or peat, that's been bagged up and sold. This attractive, black humus is seldom satisfactory when used alone.

You should mix sand, some soil and some perlite or vermiculite with it. Often muck is used for sowing seed, and the results are disappointing. If you're going to sow seed, use one of the prepared seed starting mixes which commercial growers use.

No reason why you can't mix up your own potting soil. It's a good idea to do this now for winter use. Our standby is 1 part each of peat, sand and loam is fine.

Loam is the top 8 inches of your garden soil. Alone, it's not good for house plants, but if you mix it with equal parts of peatmoss, vermiculite or perlite and sand you have a good potting mixture. The texture of a soil mixture is the important point, not the color.

At this time of year when plants have been brought indoors, leaves often turn yellow or drop off. This is due to change in temperature and humidity. The lower light intensity and lower relative humidity found in your home compared to outside are environmental changes to which the plants are subjected.

When you turn the heat on, not only is the air warmer, but also it is relatively dry. Also, when plants have been "hardened" off, with cool night temperatures out-of-doors, and then thrust into a hot, dry-house climate, it's rough on them.

C. D. of Shoshone: "Please tell me what care our gardenia needs. Ours keeps on losing its buds."

The gardenia or Cape-jasmine (gardenia jasminoides var. veitchii) or common florist's gardenia, needs high humidity indoors. Pots can be placed on a tray of dampened pebbles. Keep adding moisture to the pebbles and it will supply the air with added water vapor.

We syringe the foliage of ours daily and place a light plastic sheet over entire plant to maintain proper humidity. Give the plant good light, but not direct sunlight.

A south window usually gives the proper exposure. In order to initiate flower buds, the night temperature should be 60 to 65 degrees and the day temperature 70 to 75 degrees.

By the way, you can start new plants by taking tip cuttings and inserting them in a box of moist, clean sand. Keep a plastic sheet over them to maintain high humidity. It takes about 6 weeks for sufficient root growth. After that, pot them into 3 inch pots.

All fruit trees do better if interplanted with a rooster tree. One tree by itself seldom produces a full crop. The variety of a rooster tree chosen will not affect the appearance or characteristics of your fruit.

Nut trees also benefit from a nearby rooster tree for cross-pollination.

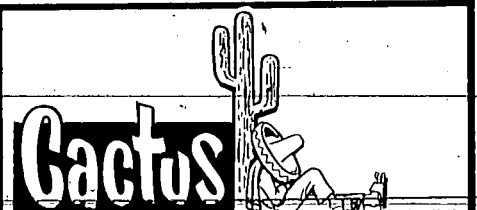

GROW ORCHIDS AT HOME: We haven't had much on growing orchids at home.

Will orchid growers send us their tips on growing them indoors? Please tell us if you've ever used gravel for growing orchids.

NASTURTIUMS INDOORS: Ever grow nasturtiums in your home? Some gardeners say they make a fine house plant, one being over 10 feet long and loaded with blooms. Nasturtiums are climbers, ideal for training up and around windows. They'll take semi-shade, have few problems.

Aphids might bother them indoors, but spraying with soap suds and nicotine-sulfate will check them. Do NOT overwater your pots of nasturtiums or they'll die. Dry soils cause dry leaves.

Nasturtiums are highly edible. Mix nasturtium flowers with butter or creamed cheese, and spread on nut bread. Or drop a nasturtium seed into a cup of tea. Or cut up tender nasturtium leaves, mix with dressing and spread on then buttered bread.

Guitarist performer at CSI doesn't like lights

By GEORGE WILEY

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Would you turn the house lights off, please?" Leo Kottke said.

The guitarist arrived late for his Monday night concert at the College of Southern Idaho. He told a journalism student later that he didn't like to see the eyes of those in the audience.

Kottke seated himself on a stool and began to adjust the microphones and tune the bigger of his two 12-string guitars. "Give me a little more bottom, please," he asked the technicians in the sound booth.

"This is the hardest part of the job," he told the audience.

Without announcing the name of a tune Kottke, who is now getting national attention, began to play slowly and then with increased tempo, when he reached the first crescendo, the audience let out a roar of approval.

For the next two hours, Kottke played, without an intermission. He told stories.

He told the story of a Spanish conquistador seeking gold among the Indians. "The Hopi saw him covered with metal and thought he was a god," Kottke said. "They told him the gold was to the north. He rode north with his metal suit, his Hopi dolls and his godlike grin. The Zuni thought he was a fool and they killed him. You'll hear all of that tragic tale in this song."

Kottke played another song in memory of his grandfather, who he said wanted to die a grand death but who died lying on the couch after eating macaroni and cheese. "My grandmother was looking for his heart pills at the time."

A self-taught guitarist, Kottke has been playing for 13 years. Within the limits of self-teaching, he knows the instrument.

Kottke handled mood delicately, moving intensely from serenity to thunder. He worked his rhythms against one another with instinctive, often brilliant, timing, keeping a booming bass line while countering with upper register harmonics, changing swiftly from one rhythmic pattern to another.

BUT Kottke's style, his strong suit, is also his weakness. His rhythmic patterns, originally exciting, by the end of the performance repeated themselves in tune after tune. One heard the long hours of what Kottke called "plunking around" and the isolated repetition.

After the original stylistic shock, one wished for a puncture of Kottke's self-system from outside, a bursting of the congealed, self-taught patterns.

At his best Kottke gave one visions of boulders flung one after another into quiet water, while above the water birds flapped and squawked and sang against the crashing of the stones. At his worst Kottke gave one the feeling of watching the same scene on color TV while eating a quick-beat sandwich from a plastic bag.

After the show Kottke relaxed with a can of soda and acknowledged the limitations of his self-teaching. When he gets time, he said, he will study guitar. "I'm going to study so I can make up for what I missed."

Kottke also said he rarely plays with other musicians, because his own system is uniquely unmixable.

Kottke looked tired. He relaxed with his soda and answered questions from the press. He said he was impressed with the moral determination of modern Russian authors to suffer great deprivation in the name of their principles.

NY museum gets new collections

(c) N. Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — For anyone — amateur or professional, curious layman or devoted scholar — with an interest in the history of modern art, the two exhibitions that have now come to the Guggenheim Museum are events of capital interest. Both the Lydia and Harry Lewis Winston collection — a significant part of which constitutes one of these exhibitions — and the Kasimir Malevich show, organized by Diane Waldman, the Guggenheim's curator of exhibitions, contain a great many works that are normally inaccessible to all but a few specialists. And what luck for all of us that the museum has managed to bring them in at the same time, for they have the additional interest of illuminating each other in many interesting ways.

The nucleus of the Winston collection is concentrated on the work of the Italian futurists, and is especially rich in examples of Giacomo Balla and Umberto Boccioni, but it is by no means limited to Futurism. Among the 254 items on view in the museum — selected from a total of over 600 in the collection — are five extraordinary sculptures by Medardo Rosso, the Italian contemporary of Rodin who meant so much to the futurists (rather wise quite brutal in their judgement of all Italian attempts at modernism other than their own), and important works by Brancusi, Delaunay, Van Doesburg, Giacometti, Miro and other eminences of the modern movement in Europe.

TF family has five generations

TWIN FALLS — Five generations of the late Joseph Cooke; longtime Twin Falls resident, gathered recently.

Mr. Cooke married Sabra Skeen July 3, 1917, and four years later they moved south of Twin Falls where they had an orchard and raised eight children.

In 1948 they moved to Pocatello where he worked for the Union Pacific railroad until his death 10 years later. In 1970 Mrs. Cooke moved back to Twin Falls and now resides with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Del Jenkins.

Mrs. Cooke has 21 grandchildren and 23 great-grandchildren. She does fancywork and also enjoys flowers.

During World War II, she had four sons in the Navy at one time.

Q: What is the point of these steroids that foreign athletes take? Do they just put on extra weight? — M. Y., Staten Island, N. Y.

A: The steroid scandal may boil over in American sports as well. A British Olympic shotputter has confessed that he took steroids for years and that's how we won. Doctors used to think the steroids only added weight, but new investigations indicate they make the athlete much more aggressive and increase his speed as well, at great risk to his health.

GUESS WHO'S ON THE PRESIDENT'S SIDE? None other than Chief Osce Djan II of Aburi. He has offered the Nixons a house in Ghana should they want to retire and get away from it all. What's more, the Chief offered Mrs. Nixon a job as village schoolmistress. (She was a guest in Aburi last year.)

warehouse; Oswald shot Kennedy from a warehouse and hid in a theatre.) We can think of one more coincidence — both assassinated Presidents were shot in the head.

Q: Is the German munitions firm of Krupp out of business now? — J. K., Louisville, Ky.

A: No, indeed. The Krupp empire is indirectly back in the arms business, making submarines, Leopard tanks, and anti-aircraft flak tanks through subsidiary companies.

RECONCILIATION TIME? Beatie-watchers are saying that the latest lawsuit may finally reunite the quartet: George Harrison, Ringo and John Lennon have filed suit against their former manager, Allen Klein, claiming, among other things, damages for alleged misrepresentation. Remember back in 1971 Paul McCartney sued to break up the partnership, claiming that he did not like Klein as manager. Now it looks as if all employees of Ari and Jackie Onassis' fired? Onassis caught them selling some of Jackie's personal belongings. Apparently it's not just autographs (which she will never give) that her fans want. They crave gloves, scarves or underwear. The underwear especially sells for as much as $1,000 to these slightly crazed, worshippers.

BOMBSHELL BOOKS: Historian David Irving's 2,000 pages of documentation set for publication next year in which he will say that Adolf Hitler was kept in ignorance about the genocide Germany carried out against the Jews. Irving claims Heinrich Himmler managed the scheme and kept it from Der Fuehrer until 1943.

THEN THERE'S BIRN Crozier's two-volume "De Gaulle in History," which claims Le Grand Charles was a fine writer and politician but a poor actor who always missed his cues. Crozier says if De Gaulle had only retired three years earlier, he would have gone down in history as great, but that his hanging on made him anathema to the French and to history.

Q: Since Frank Sinatra's comeback on TV and records, can I expect to see him in a movie soon? — love him. — E. P., Duluth, Minn.

A: In spite of Sinatra's sensational TV reappearance, movie prospects are less bright. Garson Kanin has been trying to sell Sinatra on a musical remake of the Forties classic "Born Yesterday." (He'd play an uncouth junk dealer with a blonde girlfriend.) But Warner has already turned a deaf ear to the project and one of the other companies are not to bring Sinatra back to the screen because they are mostly concerned about the youth market.

Q: Has the President's Texas attorney, Charles Allen Wright, resigned? — H. E., Tulsa, Okla.

A: The distinguished University of Texas professor says he has not resigned, merely that the work he was hired to do has been completed. Friends say, however, that the scrupulously honest and highly respected Wright is disillusioned. It seems he found his duties for the President so onerous that he threw up each morning before going to court.

Q: If the rumors are true and Marlon Brando has retreated to his Tahitian hideaway, I guess he's forgotten about the American Indians, and that his Academy Award statuette was just that. — H. K., Oakland, Calif.

A: Au contraire. Marlon Brando is here in the U. S. and doing a film designed to expose the plight of the 843,000 Indians in this country. Brando has been to Washington to discuss ideas with Ralph Nader, who is also coming to the aid of the Indians.

Q: How does Richard Barton feel about his wife divorcing him? Is he glad or sorry to lose Liz? — F. G., Baltimore.

A: Richard is very unhappy and tells one and all, as he goes in and out of Rome these days, how upset he is that she is going ahead with the divorce. Richard was heard to explain recently, "If I'm divorced, I shall never resign. I shall never resign. I shall never resign. I shall never resign."

Q: I know Lawrence Harvey had a major operation. How is he doing? — D. J., Erie, Pa.

A: Harvey is desperately ill and in great pain in London. Even after his last cancer operation and cobalt treatments, Harvey did his valiant best to keep working, traveling, promoting the film "Night Watch" and staying in good spirits. His wife, Paulene Stone, whom he married last New Year's Eve, has told her modeling agency she can't work now because she plans to devote all her time to nursing Larry. The couple has a 3-year-old baby.

Q: Why don't they make the interiors of airplanes flame-proof for better safety? — J. S., Chicago.

A: The matter is under advisement since safety engineers know it would cut down air crash deaths from smoke inhalation. Incidentally, chances are that the stewardess uniforms already are flameproofed. They can melt but they can't burn.

Q: You mentioned many months ago that Martha Mitchell was writing a book. Is she still at it? — T.C., Miami, Fla.

A: She's working on it with her biographer and friend, Winzola McLendon. We think there will be an announcement by the end of the year, particularly since our spies saw Martha lunching with a top editor from a major publishing house in an elegant Manhattan restaurant which is a hangout for the literati.

... no nudes is good news

was great in her first movie with Elliot Gould. Is she doing another? — G. L., Peoria, Ill.

A: At the moment Nina's spending time with her children and she just lost a big part in a new film. The reason: They wanted her to do a nude scene and she refused.

Q: My cousin showed me a penny with President Kennedy's profile looking into Lincoln's. Are these coins legal? Where can I get one? — J. K., Paterson, N. J.

A: These coins are not in circulation but can be bought from the U. S. Coin Company, Box 10113, Charlotte, N. C. 28201 — two for $1.00. The coin is a commemorative that comes with a card listing the astonishing coincidences between Lincoln and Kennedy. (Lincoln elected in 1860 — JFK in 1960. . . Both slain on Friday. . . Seven letters in each name. . . Lincoln's secretary, Kennedy warned him not to go to the theatre; Kennedy's secretary, Lincoln, warned him not to go to Dallas. . . Both their successors were named Johnson. . . Both shot Lincoln in a theatre and hid in a four were in agreement again. All you need is a little suit with your friends.

Q: I don't understand about Dustin Hoffman. For quite a while we didn't read anything about him and now you see his name everywhere. — L. L., Brooklyn, N. Y.

A: Simple explanation: Dustin is back at work. He has two movies coming up, "Papillon" and the Lennie Bruce story. Hoffman has a run of bombs, four to be exact, starting with "John Loves Mary," and he just dropped out to get himself together.

Q: Can you tell me what happened to my idol Bruce Lee, who died in Hong Kong? Was he buried there? — N. B., Boston.

A: Bruce Lee is buried in Seattle. At least two companies are racing to bring out books on the Kung Fu king who died, not with the boots on, but in bed with his mistress surrounded by spent capsules of amyl nitrate ("Poppers" to the uninitiated.)
