TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Alpha Cederburg, 81, Twin Falls, was listed in "fairly good condition" at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Saturday night after being hit by a mirror on a pickup truck. Police said the woman was crossing Washington Street South near Swenson's Market when she was struck. She sustained head and face cuts and possible fractures. Police said she was struck by a mirror on a truck driven by Benjamin Glassinger, 18, Filer, who told officers he didn't see her until after the accident.

Trucking shutdown scheduled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mike Parkhurst, editor of trucking industry publication "Overdrive," said on steps of U. S. Capitol Saturday that as many as 100,000 drivers will join in two-day shutdown Thursday and Friday. Parkhurst said neither Teamster President Frank Fitzsimmons nor President Nixon "has the influence or the power or the respect" to stop the shutdown. Drivers are protesting speed cuts, fuel costs. (Related story, p. 6.)

A scheduled communique on the progress of the talks apparently will be put off until Sunday, the sources said.

Police Seek TF Gunman

TWIN FALLS — Police Saturday were seeking a lone gunman who held up the Stinker gas station on Kimberly Road about 11 p.m. According to police officers the gunman escaped with about $150 after clubbing a woman at the gas station with the butt of his shotgun. The armed man was described as a slender Mexican with "bushy" hair. He apparently entered and left the gas station on foot, police said. Magic Valley Memorial Hospital officials refused to release the name of the injured woman. She was described in satisfactory condition with lacerations of the scalp. No further details were available.

Nixon books thrown open

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Nixon made public Saturday voluminous information, including his income tax returns for his first four years as President, which he said should lay to rest "false rumors" about his personal finances.

The extensive disclosures, unprecedented for an American President, came only after several months of persistent reports that Nixon had profited improperly from his high office. Previously, he had maintained that he was entitled to the same privacy as every other American.

(Related stories, p. 7-8)
At the same time, however, he acknowledged the more "questions and controversies" would flow from his disclosures.

Two of the major controversies — whether he realized a capital gain on the sale of San Clemente land and his large deduction for his gift of personal papers to the national archives — he submitted to the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation and promised to abide by the committee's ruling, even if this meant paying $276,000, plus interest, in additional taxes.

The statistics and documents, put together on an emergency basis over the past three and a half weeks, were designed to show, as the President said at Disney World, Fla., on Nov. 17, that he was "no crook." — that he had no portfolio, that he had not illegally sheltered income on which his daughter Tricia should have paid taxes, that campaign funds had not been used in the purchase of his San Clemente home. What the material showed included the following: During four years as President, Nixon became a millionaire, by more than tripling his net worth, which was $307,141 when he entered office, with virtually all of his income deriving from his $250,000 a year salary and expense allowance.

By taking advantage of a wide assortment of deductions and exemptions, Nixon for three years paid about the same income tax as the typical wage earner making $15,000 a year, or a total of $5,969. In his statement today, Nixon said, "I have proceeded in a manner I thought both prudent and in the best interest of my family." — The President's personal financial history is very complicated and intertwined with deals involving his wealthy friends. Many questions of legality remain. For example, while his accountant found that he realized no capital gain on the San Clemente land, a firm he hired to audit his property deals, Coopen and Lybrand of New York, found that he had a $117,370 gain. — Ethical questions were raised by some of the foreclosures. When Nixon was vice president, he accepted from Elmer H. Bobst, then chairman of the Warner-Lambert Pharmaceutical Co., a trust fund of more than $25,000 for his elder daughter, Tricia, most of it in Warner-Lambert stock. (Continued on p. 7)

TF County salary schedule studied

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — County commissioners are setting budget figures for 1974 and a major item of consideration is the salary schedule for some 90 employees.

Commission Chairman William Chancey said the county had contemplated a five per cent salary boost for all employees but has revised the thinking to consider instead a flat figure increase.

He said the commissioners are considering a figure between $200 and $400 per year to be added to all salaries and will probably give all employees the same amount of increase.

Some employees and at least one department head, Sheriff Paul Corder, have said the county pay scale is below federal, state and city rates. Sheriff Corder said he may get public criticism or he may get public praise, but either way, he is going after salary increases for his men and women to bring them in line with city officers' salaries and with pay in other major counties of the state.

He said he has asked for what will amount to about a 20 per cent raise for all workers to bring them up to standard, once this is achieved he would accept a cost of living increase annually.

Corder said his officers are paid by the month. Unlike other department employees they work all holidays (unless holidays fall on a regular day off) and are often called on to work long hours at no additional pay.

"If there are 18 work hours in their day, they still get the same pay they get for 8 hours," he said, "and there are far too many 18 hour days in law enforcement work."

Corder said he has asked for a salary increase for himself when salaries are set next March. He said he now makes $791 per month. (Continued on p. 9)

Arab oil envoys hint embargo may not last

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Two Arab oil ministers indicated Saturday they believed the embargo on petroleum shipments to the United States and the Netherlands would be lifted sometime in 1974.

The ministers, Belaid Abdeslem of Algeria and Sheikh Ahmed Zaki-Al-Yamani, have been in Washington representing the Arab countries in talks with United States officials.

Speaking to newsmen of the embargo that was initiated at the conference of oil ministers in Kuwait Oct. 16 at the height of the fourth Middle East war, Yamani said: "I think we can change sometime in 1974."

Abdeslem said in an interview he had been "encouraged to a certain degree," by what he had heard from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, that the United States would influence Israel to accede to a peace settlement that would lead to a lifting of the embargo and restoration of oil production.

Saudi Arabia was unreservedly behind the idea of an embargo against countries favoring Israel, he said, but initially resisted the idea of a cutback of production. Algeria was also more inclined to an embargo than a cutback, Arab officials said.

The move toward cutting back on production came when radical Arabs walked out of the conference in Kuwait after hinting menacingly that those who did not participate in reduction would face reprisals against petroleum installations by Palestinian guerrillas.

The cutbacks have reduced production in the participating countries from 20.47 million barrels a day to 15.74 million barrels. A further 5 per cent cut could take effect next month, but neither oil minister seemed enthusiastic about such a step.

TF project delay seen

By JUDY PRISLEY
Times-News Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Delay in funding and constructing the Salmon Falls irrigation project in the Snake River area south of Twin Falls is presently anticipated by a spokesman in the Department of the Interior.

"Because of the existing energy crisis, priorities are being reevaluated and single purpose projects like that proposed at Salmon Falls are sure to face the administration's cutback," said a staff member of interior's bureau of reclamation's division of planning.

In October, 1972, a bill passed Congress with appropriations of $62,258,000 for the Salmon Falls irrigation project that would serve 64,000 acres of land. The bill also provided for additional expenditures to meet rising costs.

"Chances of funding any time within three years are rather remote," the staff member stated. "That is not an optimistic thing to say. It is not a very bright outlook, but it is an honest appraisal as I see it now."

He pointed out that "the situation could be turned around, but that is unlikely unless we hit a food crisis."

Other government projects in Idaho face more optimistic futures according to Bureau of Reclamation officials. (Continued on p. 9)

Suez units trade fire

By United Press International

Egyptian artillery hammered — Israeli positions along the West Bank of the Suez Canal Saturday, wounding 10 Israeli soldiers, a Tel Aviv command spokesman said. Small arms activity was reported on both sides of the canal.

In Israeli-occupied Jordan, an Israeli military governor was wounded by a terrorist's grenade in the city of Nablus. The Israeli casualties were a record toll for a single day during the Middle East ceasefire.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Brussels NATO talks, a prelude to his trip to Middle East.

In Tel Aviv, the military command said the Egyptian artillery on the West Bank of the canal opened at a position southeast of Nafisha, in the Ismailia district of the canal. Israeli artillery returned the fire, the command said.

The command said elements of the Egyptian 3rd Army, using small arms, opened fire seven times on Israeli positions on both sides of the canal. There were no reports of casualties.

Saturday's incidents brought to 32 the number of frontline wounded reported by Israel since the cease-fire began Oct. 24. Seven Israeli soldiers have been killed, according to command reports.

In Cairo, Egypt announced it would attend the forthcoming Arab-Israeli Middle East peace conference in Geneva, Dec. 18. However, Egypt warned it was remaining in a state of "total mobilization."

Kissinger arrives for key meet

(c) New York Times Service

BRUSSELS — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived here Saturday night for a crucial meeting with America's European allies and said that "a new act of vision" was needed to preserve the alliance's strength.

Speaking to newsmen after disembarking from his Air Force 707 jet, Kissinger said in his talks with the other foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in coming days, "I will stress that the Atlantic alliance remains the cornerstone of American foreign policy."

"But I shall also emphasize that a new act of vision is necessary so that it can remain the cornerstone of our common endeavors," Kissinger said. It was not immediately clear what this new "vision" was that Kissinger was referring to.

Prior to his departure from Washington, senior State Department officials said Kissinger did not plan to seek recriminations about recent problems within the alliance, but would instead look ahead for ways of acting in unison in the future.

Kissinger, who goes to London Tuesday night after the conclusion of the Nato meeting and then continues on to the Middle East on Thursday, in advance of the Geneva Middle East peace conference starting on Dec. 18, believes the United States and the Europeans must face up to the problems within the alliance, before it atrophies.

There differences in viewpoint were underscored, he has said, by the recent events in the middle east when the Europeans looked upon the Arab-Israeli war primarily as a local conflict not involving NATO's interest, and the United States regarded it as a possible confrontation with the Soviet Union with implications for the Atlantic alliance.

Referring to his call last April for "a new Atlantic charter," Kissinger said here the United States had made an initiative toward Europe to redefine our relationship in the light of these new conditions.

Magistrate court divides

TWIN FALLS — Plans to return part of the magistrate court to the old court house to alleviate overcrowded conditions in the judicial building were confirmed Friday by the county commissioners.

Chairman William Chancey said the commission has given the U. S. Border Patrol personnel notice to vacate the offices they now occupy on the third floor of the courthouse.

This area was at one time the location of the justice of the peace court for former Justice Fred P. Maughan who now supervises the traffic division of the magistrate court. Judge Maughan will be "going back home," commissioners said, and will take three of the magistrate court clerks with him.

This will leave space for the criminal and juvenile division of magistrate court under the supervision of Judge Daniel H. Mechl in the newer judicial building.

Harold Lancaster, county clerk, auditor and recorder, said the judicial building was erected in the probate court era and was designed for a probate judge, judges chambers and three women employees.

"We now have two judges and seven women working in that space. They are literally climbing over one another and our file rooms are up to the ceilings," he said.

The workload of the magistrate court has been far greater than anticipated and the space designed for a probate court type operation has not been adequate, Lancaster said.

Magistrate court replaced all city police courts and justice of the peace courts in the county with two judges working full time to meet the work load. Because of the heavy load, Judge Russell Shaud, Jerome magistrate, has been assisting in Twin Falls at least one day per week.

Motorists over scare

By United Press International—Motorists in many parts of the country appear to be over the initial scare of running out of gas on Sundays. With the onset of cold weather and the fuel pinch, it seems more Americans are spending weekends at home.

Gasoline station operators reported Saturday they were kept busy by motorists filling up, but demand did not seem to be as heavy—and certainly not as frantic—as last weekend when President Nixon's gasless Sundays first came into effect.

According to a random check by UPI, service station operators in Los Angeles said business was not as heavy late this week as before the first gasless Sunday. "Most people are over the initial scare," said one dealer.

Of three stations checked in Fresno, Calif., one said business was about normal, another that he was selling double the amount normally sold on Saturday and the third said business was heavy but not rushed.

Sentle, Wash., and Denver,

Colo., service stations said business was heavier than normal, but one said "not too much."

The Auto Club of Michigan predicted that one out of every five gas stations will stay open in the state Sunday. Two of three stations telephoned said business was about 50 per cent up over a regular Saturday. The third said it was out of gas.

Business was reported up slightly by some Indianapolis stations, others said it was up "considerably," but all still had gasoline for sale.

In Pittsburgh, gas sales of three stations checked were reported sharply higher with supplies dwindling fast.

In New York, the Penn Central railroad said it would add an average of one 100-seat coach per train Sunday, to increase the numbers from three to four, to help out travelers. The Seattle, Wash., metropolitan transit system this weekend began operation of "Hot Dog Special" buses to three Cascade Mountain ski areas.

Station sold

TWIN FALLS — Sale of KLIKX radio station for approximately one-third of a million dollars was announced Friday afternoon.

C. N. "Roscoe" Layne, president of Sawtooth Radio Corp., station owners, announced the sale to two Denver radio men, Leonard Kehl and Charles Tuma. He said both new owners will move to Twin Falls to actively take over the station management.

This will make it the only locally owned and operated station in Twin Falls, Layne said. He said a number of interested buyers have contacted him in the past year but he and other members of the owning corporation were not interested in selling to an out-of-state concern.

Both Kehl and Tuma have been in radio in Colorado for a number of years. They say they are sincere in their plans to retain all current personnel including Layne who will no longer manage the station but will continue in an advisory capacity and assist in the sales department.

The KLIKX format will remain the same, Kehl said, with the possible exception of greater emphasis on news, especially local news. He and Tuma were formerly associated with station KBTR, a 24-hour news station in Denver.

Kehl is president of the new owner corporation which will continue to be known as Sawtooth Radio Corp., and Tuma is secretary-treasurer.

They will serve as co-owners and both say they plan to purchase homes and move to Twin Falls before the first of the year.

Kehl has been affiliated with radio in Denver for 18 years and Tuma for 7 years. Tuma was news director for KBTR during most of the time with a staff of 24 reporters.

He is married and he and his wife, Jelene, have two children, Teddy, 3 and Emily 3 months. Kehl has a wife, Genya.

KLIKX is a 5,000 watt station and operates from 5 a.m. to midnight. It has served the Magic Valley area since about 1948. Other owners of the selling corporations include Virgil Wilson, Claudy Layne, Paul Wilcox, Holland Houborg, Juneau Shinn and L. James Koutnik.

Layne, active in radio since 1930, is a native of Buhl and returned to Twin Falls a number of years ago from Idaho Falls where he assisted with the rebuilding of radio station KID and the building of KID-TV.

Both Tuma and Kehl were high in their praise of the Twin Falls area as an ideal community in which to live and operate a business. They expressed confidence in the economic growth potential and said a comparison of this and many other communities in the western states convinced them to purchase the Twin Falls station. Attorneys handling the sales contract are Fred Plankey, representing the buyers and Fred Decker.

UF '73 income reported

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls United Fund reported Friday 1973 income of nearly $90,000 as of Nov. 30.

Of this income about $74,000 was handed out to various charity or service agencies, with an additional $13,000 for salaries, campaign expenditures and other costs being spent by United Fund itself. This left the UF with about $3,000 in cash on hand at the end of November.

By far the lion's share of UF 1973 income through November, about $85,000, was in the form of contributions from persons and groups.

The biggest recipient of UF funds was the Snake River Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which received about $22,000 through November.

Other recipients were: Red Cross, $13,200; Salvation Army, $12,375; YWCA, $8,460; YMCA, $8,034; Camp Fire Girls, $6,000; Mental Health Association, $1,237; Arthritis Foundation, $990; United Service Organizations, $750; and Silver Sage Girl Scouts, $412.

Besides hearing the financial report at the Nov. 30 meeting, UF directors allocated $4,500 of 1974 UF funds to complete December 1973 disbursements to agencies. This money will be replaced from accounts received during December.

The UF board also approved the transfer of funds from Bank of Idaho to Twin Falls Bank and Trust.

The UF agency relations committee was asked to have its proposed 1974 agency allocations prepared by the next board meeting, scheduled for Dec. 14 at 7:30 a.m. at the Depot Grill.

Canyon advisory group commended for its work

TWIN FALLS — The Canyon Advisory Committee was commended Friday for its work on the county zoning ordinance.

Twin Falls County commissioners praised the advisory committee for research and recommendations on planning for the Snake River Canyon.

"The canyon advisory group came up with a very commendable plan," commissioner Merl Leonard said in reference to a presentation by canyon advisory chairman Dave Armstrong at the zoning board meeting Thursday.

"The plan showed a lot of good judgment

... They certainly put a lot of time and thought and effort in on it."

Armstrong Thursday presented maps and overlays developed by the City Parks and Recreation Department for the location of city parks. Armstrong said a similar plan will be developed by the advisory group for canyon rimlands, with areas for development and preservation detailed.

County commission chairman William Chancey agreed with Leonard that the advisory group had done a fine job. "We need all the input we can get," he said. Both commissioners said they were not opposed to the designation of canyon rimlands as an agricultural zone.

Chancey said that the zoning of the rimlands as agricultural, while delaying and development for residential purposes, would "give the advisory group more time" to study the rim and its possible uses.

"That's the crux of the whole thing," agreed Leonard.

Commissioner William Wiseman was not present during the exchange with Chancey and Leonard. Wiseman had estimated earlier that it would be at least 30 days before the commissioners received copies.

Vital service

The recently formed Canyon Advisory Committee has undertaken a vital service to Twin Falls County.

Named by the County Planning and Zoning Commission to come up with a solution to "this problem of the canyon rim and of development in the area," the group quickly overcame natural conflicts within its ranks and agreed to work toward a much needed land use plan for the Snake River canyon rim north of Twin Falls city.

The county zoners, pushed for fast action on the new zoning ordinance, were admittedly "somewhat in doubt as to how to proceed" on the rim problem when they turned to the citizenry for advice.

Much to their credit, the advisors took their appointments seriously, immediately discounting any hasty recommendations. Early in their first meeting, they agreed that time and expertise were needed for the solution—a comprehensive land use plan.

They recognized the value of a "planning process" introduced by member Dave Armstrong and committed themselves to a study that could take up to a year for completion.

And they didn't ask the county for a big budget to do the job. Each member has taken a part of the study work load, to be completed with a minimum of paid professional aid.

When the advisory committee outlined its proposal Thursday, the zoners were justifiably "overwhelmed." They backed the advisors fully, capping the support with a recommendation that the rim be zoned agricultural to restrict development until the land use study is completed.

The ultimate success of the advisory committee's work now rests with the county commissioners. If they accept the zoners' recommendation, the commissioners must defend the rim zone as an interim measure and undoubtedly endure some pressure to allow developments.

The advisory committee promises to work hard on a canyon rim plan that will serve the best interests of the county. It deserves support.

It is astounding to hear liberal Democrats suggesting that tax or other monetary penalties ought to be invoked to control the use of the automobile.

Proposals that gasoline prices be raised, heavy taxes put on gas-hog automobiles, highway toll gates be established and that parking lots be heavily taxed to discourage their use would only establish an elite corps of drivers who have the means to pay any penalty enacted.

To thousands of low-income bread-winners the automobile is a necessity. Without it they do not work. When the cost of gasoline is boosted, parking fees raised and taxes levied on the machine itself, it is this group that will have to take bread off the table to pay.

For most drivers there is no alternative transportation system now operating. Even with the optimum expansion of bus and rapid transit service and their full use, thousands of workers will need a car to get to their jobs.

It is this group that must heavily depend on the second and third-hand gas guzzlers that Detroit and some foreign manufacturers produced in recent years. They cannot always afford the luxury of buying a late model six or four cylinder machine that gets better than 20 miles to the gallon.

Those drivers with high incomes or who can charge off the costs to their businesses will continue to use their cars when gasoline hits $1 a gallon or even if parking lot fees are tripled. They will also pay what would be ruinous taxes for the low-income driver.

Probably half of the drivers on the road daily can barely afford current transportation costs. Safety and anti-pollution devices have only added to their costs. Food and transportation are costs they cannot avoid and these two sectors have been the hardest hit by soaring prices and inflation.

Real fuel economy must start on the assembly line. If there is to be a large tax on large automobiles it ought to be at the manufacturing level.

Senate campaign rule defeat may not be so bad

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — The latest battle in the Senate to get some honest rules for financing political campaigns was defeated, but this was only the opening skirmish in a long war, and maybe the vote to delay a decision was not all bad.

Many of the senators who sustained the filibuster were not voting to maintain the present system of financing campaigns, which they know is a national disgrace. They were voting rather against the shotgun tactics of the reformers, who hitched the bill onto the emergency debt ceiling legislation.

Maybe under the circumstances, the effort was justified, but its failure is no tragedy. There are also many others who oppose on principle lacking a controversial bill onto a must-bill like the debt-ceiling question to force the President to agree to something he doesn't want in order to get legislation he has to have.

First, after all the financial outrages of the 1972 presidential campaign, after all the misuse of funds by the Committee to re-elect the President, and after all Nixon's rhetorical promises to correct the evils of the old campaign system, he has said not a word in support of those pressing for reform.

"Finally I Feel Important!"

Task can't be done

WASHINGTON — It is an aspect of the national character — and ordinarily a good aspect — that Americans tend to regard no problem as too difficult, and no obstacle as insurmountable.

This is the spirit of can-do, the spirit of roll up our sleeves and get the job done. But as Congress struggles with the task of election reform, a pessimistic comment is in order: This job can't be done.

That is to say, it cannot be done effectively, or wisely, or as it may prove, constitutionally. Every proposal that has been advanced thus far is defective in some fashion.

Consider, if you will, a couple of constitutional points. Last weekend's hassle in the Senate involved a complex proposal for the public financing of presidential elections. The underlying theory is that Congress has the power, by simple statute, to pre-empt the presidential field. That notion is widely held.

The notion strikes me as dubious. We tend to forget, that properly speaking there is no such thing as a "national presidential election." We tend to forget that we do not vote directly for a McGovern or a Nixon. What we do, of course, is to vote state-by-state for presidential electors; and the Constitution scarcely could be more explicit on the responsibility for choosing them.

make no law abridging free speech. When we give money to, say, Common Cause or Public Monitor, which exist to voice our liberal or conservative views, we are exercising a First Amendment right to put our money where our mouth is.

The troubling thought will not go away that any attempt by Congress to prohibit or to limit private contributions to political campaigns will collide head-on with the First Amendment. The fellow who gives $5 to the campaign fund of a presidential candidate is engaged in a form of expression. This is equally true of the fellow who gives half a million. I am not convinced that Congress can limit the size of a contribution any more than Congress can limit the size of a book.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Put the constitutional points to one side. Most of the reform proposals aim at some quantitative limit on campaign spending. The base figure usually mentioned is 15 cents per voter. That may be sufficient for Congressman John W. Incumbent, who has served in the House for 20 years and has every advantage of his office. It may be altogether insufficient for young Shirley B. Challenger, who is making her first campaign. If Ms. Challenger is held to the same limits imposed upon Rep. Incumbent, few candidates named Challenger will ever be elected.

A dozen other objections to public financing have been raised. The plan, in my own view, has small appeal. Yet the existing system has equally small appeal; it reeks of corruption, bribery and extortion.

How can the dilemma be resolved? I do not think it can be resolved. It can only be meliorated by the searing forces of public exposure and public opinion.

Taking one objection against another, the least unsatisfactory course may lie in adhering to old principles of freedom and federalism. Relying upon these, we might muddle along for another 200 years.

Record traffic due at TF airport

Jet plane traffic at the Twin Falls City-County Airport next Saturday will be more active than movement inside a re-activated beehive.

Reason? Because a dozen jets will arrive that day, bringing in some 1,200 people. Eleven Hughes Airwest DC-9's and one Western Airline 737 will make up the incoming "fleet." Four Airwest planes will come non-stop from Los Angeles and two from San Francisco, also non-stop. The five regular flights will come by way of Salt Lake City from California and Boise from Seattle and Portland. Western's jet will come from San Francisco.

The arrivals, from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. will set a record for Joslin Field both in number of jets during an 11-hour period and also number of passengers. Most of the visitors will be headed for Sun Valley and places winterized. Record traffic, according to Paul Shoaff, local Airwest manager, is expected to continue throughout the winter.

OH, COME NOW All this fuss to get the trains running again. One proposal would call for a guaranteed 400 passenger load every day through the Shoshone-Gooding area. We would have to see it to believe it. We can remember attending a big that time, and two of them had never even been on a train.

Turn ration setup to mob

WASHINGTON — Everyone has ideas on how to deal with the energy crisis. I have had two suggestions from friends that seem to have merit. One concerns the Mafia.

According to Time magazine, the Mafia is already set to go into the black market gas business as soon as rationing becomes official. The Mafia has printers lined up and a gas stamp distribution plan allocating different territories to worthy dons. It is to the credit of the mob that they have been able to get their gas-rationing system into gear long before the government.

For this reason, it has been suggested by my friend, Keppleman, the government's entire gas-rationing program be turned over to the Mafia on a contract basis.

ART BUCHWALD

"Rather than try to fight the mob's black market plans, it would be far more economical to let them administer the allocation of fuel in the United States.

"We all know," Keppleman said, "that the mob is much more efficient than the government when it wants to do something, and they're certainly better at eliminating red tape than anyone else in the country."

Doberman, another friend, has come up with a plan to save a large amount of gasoline in this country.

"The biggest user of gas," he maintains, "is television. Almost every police show and private detective program has automobile chase scenes that go on for miles. If you eliminated the chase scenes from television programs such as the Hookies, Mannix, Cannon, The FBI and Hawaii Five-O, you could have 10 per cent of all the gas used in the United States."

Said, "It's possible that your TV police and private detectives might agree to abandoning their cars in chase scenes, but what about the bad guys in the show? Suppose they insist on still making their getaways in cars?"

"Then they should arrest them before you go to the commercial."

US phaseout should be done right

(c) New York Times Service

LONDON — The hottest theater ticket in London these days is "Saturday, Sunday, Monday," the Old Vic production starring an aging Sir Laurence Olivier, about a family that nearly comes apart because its members took each other's love for granted.

That is what has been happening in the family of nations that make up the western alliance. Until the Mideast war shattered some shibboleths, Americans thought Europeans would "go along" on major East-West confrontations, and Europeans took for granted the permanent preserve of a major American armed force on the Continent to hold off the Soviets.

Last week, the Defense Department sent a signal to Western Europe, hinting that some of our bases there would be closed. With 310,000 men committed to NATO, and a quarter of a million dependents along, it is about time that this sort of signaling and fencing be backed up with some hard looks at the reasons why the United States has troops in Europe in the first place.

1. The tripwire. This fairly discredited theory holds that if Americans are killed in a Soviet attack on Europe, we will be in the conflict without delay, and the knowledge of that automatic United States involvement would deter the Russians. On the basis of that argument, we might as well bring the troops back and leave the dependents there.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

2. Sphere of influence. America's national interest is served, we are told, with Europe under our sphere of influence, which is assured by the presence of our troops; without that stiffening presence the Europeans would soon become Soviet vassals.

3. Mutual and balanced force reduction. This has a logical ring. Instead of pulling out by ourselves, and getting nothing for it from the Soviets in return, why don't we put off "unilateral" reduction until we see how the talks with the Russians go?

Answer: Any agreement we ultimately make with the Soviets on the pace of reduction locks us in; we could not pull out more rapidly, and so we would lose what little leverage we have with our allies.

4. Flexible response. That's military jargon for not having to reply to a conventional attack with a nuclear counterattack. The idea is to field an army strong enough to force the Soviets to spend at least a week taking over Europe, giving Henry Kissinger time to fly to Brezhnev's dacha and work everything out on the basis of the cease-fire lines in the Franco-Prussian War.

America's national interest is to begin reducing our military commitment to NATO now. The way we do it is important — not in a fit of pique, but in close "consultation" with allies; not all at once, but on a timetable that would let allies take up the slack.

We should take this step for the big reason — to induce Europe's self-defense — not for any demeaning reason.

Now's time to use conservation suggestions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Muller, an Interior Department employee, has been compiling conservation suggestions for 15 years. Now, he thinks, is the time to put them to use.

The following are some of the tips extracted from Muller's list:

- Residential:
- Insulate attics of existing homes to at least 6 inches and walls to 3 1/2 inches.
- Weatherstrip and caulk all houses.
- Plant deciduous trees and vines on south and west sides of homes to provide protective shade against summer sun.
- Require that all roofs of new buildings be light in color.
- Eliminate tax advantages now enjoyed by people living in single family houses to encourage people to live in multifamily dwellings that require less energy for heating and cooling.
- In winter reset home heating thermostats to 70 degrees in daytime and 60 degrees at night. In summer, raise thermostat settings to 78 degrees 24 hours a day.

- Wash dishes by hand in lieu of using a dishwasher.
- Minimize use of hot water for washing clothes. Wash in cold water using a modern cold water detergent.
- Educate Americans to turn lights off when the last person leaves a room. Children are especially prone to forget to do this.
- Adopt daylight saving time in winter and double daylight saving time in summer.
- Use lighter colors for walls, rugs, draperies, furniture, to reduce amount of artificial lighting required.
- Unplug all existing quick-on television sets when not in use.
- Transportation:
- Install radial tires on all vehicles.
- Do not fill gas tanks over one-half full.

-When stopped in traffic while going up a hill, don't use accelerator to keep the car from rolling back. Use the brake.

- When stopping for more than a minute, turn off the engine.
- Keep tires properly inflated. Underinflated tires waste fuel.
- Ban automobile and boat racing. These races themselves consume fuel; they stimulate interest in fast travel, fast cars and powerful engines, all of which is in the direction of higher fuel consumptions.
- Provide bicycle paths in cities and suburbs.
- General:
- Buy products made of recycled material whenever available.
- Buy products made of natural materials in preference to those made of man-made materials; manufacture of wood or cotton garment requires less energy than one made of synthetic fiber.

Opinions split over US gasoline rationing

By CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERLY
WASHINGTON—No one seems really to want it, but for the first time since World War II, 110 million American motorists may soon open their mail to find books of rationing coupons that they will have to turn in at their local service stations in order to receive a basic allotment of 10 to 15 gallons of gas per week.

That, at least, was a contingency measure mentioned by President Nixon in his Nov. 7 energy message and one which some administration officials and members of Congress have predicted will have to be instituted before the 1973-74 winter is over.

The Senate has already passed legislation, requested by the White House, that would empower the President to ration gas. But opinions are sharply divided on the wisdom and effectiveness of rationing. Following are arguments on both sides of the debate.

PRO:
 Gas rationing may be distasteful, but it is more equitable and effective than other alternatives. A gasoline tax hike of perhaps 30 to 40 cents a gallon from the existing four-cent tax would be a regressive measure that would disproportionately hit low-income groups and those who depend on the automobile for their business.

Moreover, there is no assurance a boost in gas taxes would have the desired effect on gas consumption. A tax that is too small may not curtail gas sales at all, while one that is too heavy could contribute to unnecessary inflationary pressures. Some economists have argued that gas demand is relatively inelastic and that even with a sizable gas tax hike, people would go on filling up their tanks with little hesitation.

Some government officials and economists have suggested the most efficient way to deal with the gasoline shortage is simply to let prices rise, thereby encouraging greater fuel production while limiting consumption. But this approach also is filled with inequities. Again, low-income groups will bear most of the brunt of a price increase, while the oil industry will pocket windfall profits with no assurance that the money will be used for increased exploration, research and development of new energy sources.

A World War II-type system of nontransferable coupons would give each motorist a basic weekly allotment of about 10 to 15 gallons, which is generally a sufficient quantity to ensure against undue hardship while curtailing unnecessary auto travel. Those who need more for their business will receive additional coupons.

Alternatively, a system of transferable coupons, whereby an equal number of coupons would be distributed to each motorist without attempting to assess individual need, also would be equitable. The coupons would be marketable, so that a motorist who does not need all his coupons could sell them to others who did. A possible advantage of this plan over nontransferable coupons could be that the cash value of the coupons might dissuade motorists from unnecessary driving.

Unlike a tax hike or gradual price rise, a rationing system will have an immediate and dramatic effect as soon as it is put into operation. The coupons will serve as a pointed and visible reminder to all Americans of the need to conserve energy.

Finally, there is simply an urgent need to deal with the gas shortage as soon as possible. In the words of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., "there is just nothing else we can do in the short run to meet this terrific shortage that we are going to have in fuel."

CON:
 A rationing program would be unfair, costly and impossible to operate efficiently or effectively. A World War II-type coupon system would require a huge bureaucracy of perhaps as many as 10,000 persons to administer, with no assured method of determining the genuine needs of each individual.

Should a low-income worker stranded in the suburbs without available public transportation receive the same allotment as a wealthy man who also drives to work but could easily commute by train? The rationing authorities will have no foolproof and equitable yardstick to measure whose need is real and whose is artificial, and it is axiomatic that they cannot avoid special influence, corruption and bribery.

There are problems inherent in distributing the coupons as well. Will they be handed out to every licensed driver—even if he doesn't own a car or doesn't drive at present—or should they be given out to owners of all registered vehicles? If the latter, would a three-car family receive three times as many coupons as the one-car family, or would the allotment be limited to the equivalent of one automobile per family, regardless of dependence on cars?

Judging from the World War II experience, any coupon system would quickly give rise to a flourishing black market. Coupons would be stolen and counterfeited, while some persons would falsely assert that their coupons never arrived in the mail.

Rather than encouraging Americans to conserve gasoline, a rationing system will simply provoke each individual to wrangle as much as he can from the rationing authorities.

Fuel squeeze pushing drivers off road

SOUTH HOLLAND, Ill. (UPI)—Robert Geist sat in the lounge of the Calumet Union 76 Truckstop, staring morosely at a blonde selling soap on the color television, waiting for money from home so he could get his rig rolling again.

"I guess this is the last load," he said. "I can't do it no more. I've got a load of beans out there from the Dakotas for eastern Pennsylvania and I'm already two days late. I'm out of diesel fuel and out of money."

"This trip used to cost me from $100 to $125 and I started out with $200. But they were charging me 40 cents a gallon in Iowa and giving me only 50 gallons at a time, so I had to keep stopping. Then, at Freeport, a trooper stopped me for having Minnesota plates and not paying the Illinois truckers' tax and he took my last $25. I've been here since last night."

"So I'm waiting for my family to wire me $150 from Minneapolis so we can go on. The trip will cost me $200-$250 before it's through. I can't make it on that. We'll go on relief, I guess, and our nine kids. I've been a trucker 10, 15 years. I've never been on relief."

Geist, husky, 39, booted and denim-clad, was talking soberly of giving up a way of life.

So were a lot of the other close to 100 truckers from around the country waiting, eating, drinking coffee, or just wasting time

Wednesday afternoon in this capacious complex on the Calumet Expressway just south of Chicago, designed expressly for the over the road driver.

 ...ponders quitting

Many of them were, like Geist, independent operators who own their own rigs or pay for all their operating costs. Of four chosen at random, all said they were getting out of trucking or feared they would be forced to soon.

They talked of the price of diesel fuel, which used to cost them 26 cents a gallon scarcely a year ago and is now, they claimed, going for 87 cents a gallon on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

They bristled at lowered speed limits which, they insisted, cause them to burn up to 25 per cent more of the precious fuel in order to wind up at their destinations so late that their next haul of the week must be canceled and they are $100 to $200 poorer.

They spoke darkly of Watergate ("They think this whole fuel shortage is just a coverup for Watergate," a waitress said). There was talk of fighting back.

One of those who said it was James Tibbs, 43, of Lawrence, Ind. His face shows the seams of 18 years of truck driving—18 years of which he figures he has spent an elapsed total of five with his wife and six children.

"I backed out. I can't see working for nothing. I might as well be home broke with my family than doing that."

Guerrillas hold power

(c) New York Times Service
BEIRUT, Lebanon—The claim of the Palestinian guerrillas that they are the sole representatives of Palestinians in Israeli-occupied territories—a position now formally accepted by most Arab governments—is among the most difficult problems facing a Middle East peace conference.

Recognition of the claim by the Palestinian resistance, led by Yasser Arafat, the chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was a major decision of the conference of Arab leaders in Algeria, at which Arafat was an honored participant.

But King Hussein of Jordan, who stayed away from the meeting in protest against the majority stand, rejects the claim as it extends to the 500,000 Palestinians living on the West Bank of the Jordan River, which was occupied by Israel during the 1967 war.

Hussein, who sent only a token force to Syria a week after the Arab war with Israel began in October, has threatened to stay away from any peace conference if Egypt and Syria do not recognize his right to speak for the Arabs of the West Bank and the former Jordanian sector of Jerusalem.

Jordan has been invited by the United States and the Soviet Union to take part in the conference. But the Soviet Union has also encouraged the Palestinian guerrillas to proclaim a government in exile of a Palestinian state in territories now held by Israel.

Arafat said at a news conference in Libya a decision in favor of such a "Palestinian state" had been accepted in principle by the guerrillas.

Israel has consistently said she will not negotiate with the guerrillas, and that she will not accept the formation of a new Palestinian state independent of Jordan in any part of the occupied areas.

YASSIR ARAFAT
 ...claim recognized

semiautonomous state federated with Jordan, or if they preferred independence.

The proposal for a plebiscite is rejected by most of the Palestinian guerrilla leaders, who claim a "revolutionary" right to represent the Palestinian people, not only in occupied areas, but also in Israel.

Canyon rim resident expresses concern over what may happen to area

Editor, Times-News:
 I have been reading, with much interest, the many articles regarding the Snake River Canyon rimland that have been appearing in our local newspaper these past few weeks. From what I can gather, the county zoning commission is quite anxious to receive a recommendation from the citizen's committee, appointed to study the matter, on how to go about resolving the canyon rimland issue. Thus, a recommendation from the citizen's committee may be imminent.

As a property owner in the canyon rim area, I am quite concerned about what will happen to the canyon rim. I attended the meeting held at CSI during the month of October by the Twin Falls County Commissioners. The purpose of this gathering was to give the public an opportunity to express their views concerning the canyon rim issue, and specifically, the change in the county zoning ordinance along the canyon rim area from residential-agriculture to strictly agriculture. The meeting was well attended although Mr. Average Citizen of Twin Falls County was weakly represented. Individuals, representing private interest groups and other organizations were present along with various real estate people, land developers, some builders and rimland owners.

prepared statements were read but there was very little spontaneous input from Mr. Average Citizen. Thus, one tends to question the validity of conclusions drawn on such a gathering.

Regardless of my place of residence, I have been striving towards objectivity in trying to decide what the outcome really should be in this matter. Should we try to preserve the present status of the rim by having a 300 foot in-depth strip along the rim with no more residential building as proposed by the League of Women Voters? Or should special scenic points with public access be secured? Some want no part of the rim and favor the residential-agriculture zone as originally proposed. It is not an easy matter. There are both pros and cons on all proposals.

While there has been much concern and interest expressed in the canyon rim there has been little said in regard to the canyon bottomland and floor. I believe equal or greater concern should be extended to the canyon floor. This is where nature abounds. During my youth, I spent many a day exploring, hiking, fishing, hunting and observing nature in its finest splendor in the canyon bottomland that extends from the Pillar Falls regions to the Twin Falls area.

The canyon bottomland is where the action is.

Wild flora and fauna flourish. The Snake River Canyon, and its contents, is truly a geological and physical wonder.

What are we presently doing to preserve this precious piece of nature?

What good will it do to preserve a strip along the rim if the canyon floor might be stripped of its natural beauty due to commercial interests or if public access to the canyon floor becomes blocked? The development and commercialization of our canyon floor has already begun. Commercial fisheries extend from below the Perrine Bridge to the Hagerman Valley area.

A golf course is being developed by private parties on the southside of the Snake River floor below the Perrine Bridge. Thus, what I consider really worth preserving is being gobbled up.

I am also surprised at the little interest being displayed in the canyon rim land along the north side of the canyon. There are many choice viewing places along the north side of the rim that extend east of the Perrine Bridge. Much of this land is under BLM jurisdiction. If we, as citizens of Twin Falls County, desire more designated rim viewing areas, then consideration should be given to securing access to some of the northside rim area from the Bureau of Land Management.

We should truly be thankful for the strong and stable agricultural economy that we have in this valley. Because farming has flourished the need for other goods and services has evolved giving rise to other industries and businesses. We must not jeopardize our agricultural economy by allowing the over-development of prime farmland. However, in looking at the proposal to establish an agricultural strip or zone along the canyon rim, it appears this is an unrealistic request. Much of the rimland is unfarmable because it consists of solid lava formations slanted with sagebrush and cheatgrass that becomes parched by mid-July. This is why the people owning the canyon rim area where I reside sold one acre parcels along the rim for building purposes. It was impossible to get water to and there was limited soil to grow things in. Thus, while I am in favor of agriculture, I am confused as to why the agricultural strip along the rim when much of it is unfarmable.

I am also concerned about public access along the canyon rim if proponents of the 300-foot agriculture strip are successful. Will this mean that the public should and will have access on this strip? If so, I say that the public access should be limited and controlled at designated areas. The road that I and my neighbors use to drive into our home area is supposedly a private road according to the Twin Falls Highway District because it has a dead end. Thus, I and other homeowners are financially responsible for the upkeep and maintenance of our road which includes gravel hauling and grading. We do not go out of our way to restrict other traffic from our road. Because of our generosity, our road always seems littered with beer cans and other refuse.

In the springtime we have another problem. Teenagers and adults alike shoot at rockchucks with high powered rifles in our general home area which poses quite a danger. Then, when duck season begins in the fall, hunters place themselves in strategic locations along the rim to take potshots at ducks as they attempt to wing their way out of the river floor barely over the canyon rim on their way to evening feeding grounds. How unsportsmanlike can you get! The point is that given the opportunity there will always be a small minority of people who will take advantage of a situation while showing little respect for the privacy and private property of others.

And yet, I keep thinking of the three choice picnic and scenic areas already in existence—the Shoshone and Twin Falls areas plus the prime vista provided in the Perrine Bridge area— that offer the public the opportunity of enjoying this scenic splendor of the Snake River Canyon. You should ask your friends and neighbors, however, how many times they have frequented these areas in the last five years or even the last year for that matter. Do we really need other scenic areas along the canyon rim?

If so, it will have to come at a price. It seems only equitable that present rimland owners be financially compensated for their land holdings.

at present market value regardless if we retain the agriculture or revert back to the residential-agriculture zone.

WHAT DO THE CITIZENS OF Twin Falls County want to pay this price? What should the cost be? No one has really come up with any figures as yet.

Rather than leaving the Snake River Canyon rimland zoning decision up to a citizen's committee that may include private interests, to the county zoning commission, or to our three Twin Falls County Commissioners, I am in favor of giving all legal voting citizens of Twin Falls County the opportunity to be heard by having a county-wide vote on the following choices:

- (1) A residential-agriculture zone as originally stipulated in the county zoning ordinance without designated public access areas
- (2) A residential-agriculture zone with developed public access areas
- (3) A 300 foot agriculture zone with no public access or
- (4) A 300 foot agriculture zone with developed public access areas.

There is much at stake here. Let's give all citizens of legal voting age in Twin Falls County a voice and a choice in this issue.

Hearing portent ominous

Editor, Times-News:
 Regarding the Upper Snake River planning hearing held last Thursday in Twin Falls. For a hearing that portends such ominous changes in our lives and for a hearing that was the only chance for Idahoans to voice their objections to such changes, people were kept notoriously unaware that it was going to be held. It necessitated five calls to Twin Falls and two long distance calls to Boise to find out the time and place that it would be held. We assume that anyone less persistent did not find out.

This hearing, far from being a sounding board for the concerns of Idahoans, was in fact a presentation condemning the major southern Idaho industry, namely agriculture, as being the major pollutant from silt blown and washed in from dry and irrigated farms; and against the logging industry and existing dams. The implementation of their recommendations would necessitate the removal of existing dams, the end of irrigation and much dry farming on the Snake River plain, and the discontinued use of logging trails and access roads.

The concerns of the environmental group are in direct opposition to those of the people of Idaho. And if pollution is their concern, why were they willing to dismiss with a single statement the number one potential pollutant of the Snake River—below the Milner Dam, namely, the deposits of atomic wastes placed so strategically hazardous in the Snake River aquifer? The argument defending the leaving of those wastes buried above our drinking water was that they are in such safe containers, to which we can only reply that those "safe" containers will make it all the safer to remove them to a non-hazardous location.

Now as for the silt accumulating in the existing canals from irrigated and dry farming and the logging industry. It seems to us that this is a concern more for farmers than for anyone else, for a dam's volume that is taken up with silt is unavailable for storage of water.

And that to us is the major concern. Silt in irrigation water is certainly no problem, as it contains vital nutrients for plant growth and slows down the erosion of irrigated land, since muddy water flows much slower than clear water. Secondly, silt may not be that much of a problem. Since Milner Dam is merely a diversion dam, it is obvious that the silt contained in those diverted waters is mostly deposited upon the land that they irrigate.

And now one last comment: one reporter (radio) of the hearing said that the proposals of the environmentalist group were well received. They were not! There wasn't one witness from the audience who approved their recommendations.

Interested parties have fifteen days from the date of the hearing (Nov. 29) to file their protests with the Department of Environmental and Community Services, State House, Boise, Idaho, 83720, ATTENTION ENVIRONMENTAL SERVICE.

Who's going to save who?

Editor, Times-News:
 The government's gonna save us.

Congress is trying to get rid of the President. But Congress keeps passing laws to give the President vast powers to control this or to deal with that. These alarming powers are always assumed so the government can "save" us from whatever had thing they tell us is troubling us. But who's gonna save us from the government? For a whole generation we have been tangled up in no-win wars. Congress has given the past five presidents power to "save" us (or somebody) from Communism. None of those five presidents have shown the slightest intention of winning those wars. Congress never declared any such wars, but has always given the President power to spend our blood and our money on them. About a hundred thousand Americans have been killed in those exercises of presidential ambition. Who's gonna save us from the government?

The President has "saved" us from being disliked by the Chinese Communists. He had Free China thrown out of the U. N. and practically cut off diplomatic relations with them. He elevated the mainland murderers in their place. Congress voted a big pile of your money to publicize the whole sordid business. In exchange, the Reds gave us vague hints they might start being nice.

The President has "saved" us from being disliked by the Russian Communists, too. He has given them unimaginable amounts of our groceries. Congress voted a big pile of your money to buy all that grain for them. We have the Communists' solemn promise to pay us, with interest, in 20 years or so if they still feel like it. Partly because of this, it costs you more money than ever to feed your family.

The government "saved" us from the high prices by grabbing power to freeze prices. Then the government "saved" us from the shortages caused by the price freeze by grabbing power to ration your necessities. Who's gonna save us from the government?

Citizens: The government has already grabbed power over you. This very winter some non-elected bureaucrat could cause your children to freeze just by not processing your plea to be allowed to buy fuel. He may not like your attitude or something.

What are you waiting for? Some nations can only hope for relief by shooting their governments out of power. We Americans can still influence our government with words. Before you even read the rest of the paper, write a letter to one of the politicians you voted for. Don't threaten him. Just explain how you feel about government power grabs. If you, yourself, won't write that letter, nobody's gonna.

Union chief, Nixon meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons concluded a meeting with President Nixon Saturday by asking the nation's truckers to abandon their protest of fuel shortages. But a dissident group of drivers promised to press ahead with plans for a two-day work stoppage.

Both Fitzsimmons and Simon, who has been named to head the new Federal Energy Administration, left the clear impression that no final decision had been made on the speed limit issue. Nixon has asked Congress for legislation creating a 55 m.p.h. speed limit for trucks and a 50 m.p.h. limit for cars.

Referring to the price problem, Simon said he and his staff were investigating the possibility of providing additional gasoline and diesel fuel for trucks and added that the Internal Revenue Service was trying to find and correct any evidence of retail price gouging.

"I need the help of the truckers, the people who are out on the highways — if they could call and identify any abuse of this pricing mechanism, we'd like to know about it — so we could help," Simon said.

Fitzsimmons said his union never advocated blockades of major highways set up by many independent drivers last week.

"I urge truck drivers everywhere to exercise patience and discipline while the issue is being resolved," Fitzsimmons told reporters after the White House session. "I do not condone blockades or nationwide strikes."

Impeach inquiry starting

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The confirmation of Vice President Gerald R. Ford apparently proved to be a dry run for the House Judiciary Committee's investigation of grounds for impeaching President Nixon.

Committee staffers said Saturday that the impeachment inquiry, which began officially in October, will swing into full tilt this week now that they have completed their investigation of Ford.

Several of the staffers said they anticipate the impeachment probe will take much longer, assuming that Nixon offers the same defense as each of the 12 officials impeached in the past — that it is "politically motivated." But the White House has not yet indicated how fully it will cooperate with the committee.

The committee's 38 members — 21 Democrats and 17 Republicans — will be briefed by the staff next Tuesday on a mountain of material that already has been collected and the field of candidates for a special counsel to oversee the proceedings. The field has been narrowed down to four from more than 100 prospects, according to sources.

One committee staffer said there has been some pressure from some of his colleagues to issue subpoenas soon to demonstrate that the committee is not stalling. But he indicated subpoenas are not likely until at least January after a special counsel has been hired and he has determined what materials are needed.

Possible Hughes-Nixon tie spurs panel probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The intriguing financial and political dealings of elusive billionaire Howard Hughes and his possible link with President Nixon have rekindled the nagging investigation of the Senate Watergate committee.

The committee probe has been stalled since the Senate's August recess. But the hearings probably will regain nationwide television coverage next month when the committee calls President Nixon's close friend, Charles G. "Boke" Rebozo, and possibly the President's brother, F. Donald Nixon, to testify.

The committee investigation centers on $100,000 Hughes gave Rebozo for Nixon's use, and the link between the political contribution and Donald Nixon's financial dealings with the Hughes empire. It has subpoenaed two former Hughes associates, 16 current employees and has already interviewed the President's brother.

"Both Sen. Ervin and I feel the Hughes investigation is as important as anything we've produced so far," chief committee counsel Sam Dash said in an interview. "That's the main reason we suspended the hearings, to give investigators the time to develop a complete case.

"Without going into the specifics of what we've turned up, I'd say it was a very important part of our investigation. I'm delighted we've had this extra time."

Dash said "over 100 witnesses" have been interviewed in the Hughes case, most of them by Terry Lenzner, one of the committee's chief investigators.

Committee sources said some of the interviews have indicated Donald Nixon interceded with the President to win approval of the sale of Air West, an airline, to Hughes in 1969 for $90 million. Donald Nixon reportedly denied this when he was interviewed.

The most important testimony in private session so far has come from two former Hughes aides, Robert Mahou, who once ran the Hughes Nevada empire, and his associate John Meier. But the problem with their testimony is that both are involved in complicated multimillion dollar lawsuits with their ex-boss.

Meier was granted immunity for his committee appearance by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica last week.

Grenade wounds aide

TEL AVIV (UPI) — A grenade was thrown Saturday at an auto carrying the Israeli military governor of occupied Nabulus as he drove through the city's old quarter, injuring him and his driver, the military command said.

The city, largest on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan river, was sealed off, all Jewish visitors told to leave, and a round-the-clock curfew, the first there in two years, imposed.

The official, Col. Eliezer Segev, was reported out of danger after undergoing surgery at Hadassah Hospital in Jerusalem. He and his driver, who was slightly wounded, were struck by shrapnel.

SBA charge denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An official of the Small Business Administration (SBA) said Saturday that charges that the agency as a whole is "corrupt and mismanaged" are untrue.

Randall L. Woods, assistant SBA administrator for congressional and public affairs, issued a statement in response to an earlier announcement that a House subcommittee was investigating the SBA's Richmond, Va., office and 21 other regional offices on charges ranging from "sheer mismanagement" to corruption.

The House Banking and Currency subcommittee will begin questioning SBA Administrator Thomas Kleppe on charges that have arisen in five previous days of hearings. The subcommittee probe so far has centered on illegal loan activities in Richmond. Thomas Regan, former head of the Richmond office, has been accused of approving more than $11 million in loans and lease guarantees to benefit his brother-in-law.

Woods said the SBA was inevitably going to sustain some losses on its loans to small businesses "especially since we are in business to accept riskier loans than the private sector would."

He added: "It will ill serve the small business community however if every delinquent loan or other unsuccessful venture SBA undertakes is used to create the impression that the agency as a whole is corrupt and mismanaged. That simply is not true."

(Continued from p. 1) Release of the information was handled by the White House with an extraordinary sense of urgency. It appeared to be part of a White House campaign to restore public confidence in Nixon and relieve, as much as possible, the pressures that have been building for his resignation or impeachment.

The President has not paid any state income tax since he has been in the White House. His assistants said this was because they were informed by an independent firm in California and state taxing authorities that he was not required to pay the tax, though he votes in California and maintains a home there.

Nixon does not see his paycheck, White House officials said. His check goes monthly to his California attorney, Herbert W. Kalmbach, who deposits it in the Nixon account at the Key Biscayne (Fla.) bank and Trust Co., which is headed by Nixon's friend, C. G. Rebozo. Money to pay certain expenses, such as taxes and mortgage notes, however is kept in a separate account in Newport Beach, Calif., in the security Pacific National bank. Kalmbach and his law partner, Frank DeMarco Jr., are authorized to sign checks on this account, but Bloch does the bookkeeping and prepares Nixon's tax returns. When a surplus of money builds up in a checking account, the officials explain, it is automatically transferred to Nixon's savings account.

In a statement released with the documents, Nixon said: "With the documents and papers released today, I am making a full disclosure of my financial affairs as President of the United States. No previous president, to my knowledge, has ever made so comprehensive and exhaustive a disclosure as I am making today, with regard to assets and liabilities, expenses and income, during his tenure of office.

"Even though both American law and tradition protect the privacy of the papers I am releasing today," Nixon continued, "those documents are being made public because the confidentiality of my private finances is far less important to me than the confidence of the American people in the integrity of the President."

Nixon said even though the Internal Revenue Service had approved his tax returns that included the possible capital gain on the San Clemente land and the deduction of more than $570,000 for his vice presidential papers, public doubts would not be satisfied without an independent review. "For that reason, I have asked the members of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue taxation to examine the procedures relating to both matters and to decide whether, in their judgment, my tax returns should have shown different results," Nixon said. "I will abide by the committee's judgment."

The committee is headed by Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., who told the President in a telephone conversation Thursday that the committee would take on the review.

As a further step to quell criticism of his real estate transactions, Nixon said he would will to the people of the United States his home at San Clemente, currently appraised at about $500,000. Transfer would be made at the time of the President's death or that of Mrs. Nixon, which ever is later.

Nixon has been able to triple his net worth while in office, largely because of his small tax payments and the fact that many of the expenses are paid for by the government.

In addition to his salary of $200,000 a year, he receives an expense allowance of $50,000 which he treats, as provided by law, as if it were income.

White House officials disclosed that of the $200,000 he received in expenses during the four-year period, he used about only $108,000 of this on actual expenses, which he deducted from his income tax. The remaining $92,000 went into his bank accounts and was taxable.

The $108,000 went for such things as the total cost of maintaining his Key Biscayne home, because he has an office there; 25 per cent of the upkeep of his San Clemente home, because it is estimated that one-quarter of its functions are official duties; Christmas cards; gifts for foreign leaders; and some entertainment expense.

However, such items as state dinners for foreign dignitaries, the President's transportation and upkeep of the White House are paid by the government. The first family is billed regularly each month for a variety of household expenses, which are paid out of the President's own income.

'Puter crimes

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Donn B. Parker of the Stanford Research Institute says statistics show the average financial crime with computers involves a loss of about $1 million compared with about $100,000 for conventional embezzlements.

Parker thinks computers will result in a reduction in the number of white-collar crimes against computers but that drop will be offset by an increase in the amount of money stolen. Parker also sees a trend toward unauthorized use of credit rather than thefts of money.

Computer fingers President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon was nabbed by the IRS computer when his federal income tax return looked fishy.

The computer noticed that Nixon had a large income but paid very small taxes in 1971 and 1972, and immediately "a red flag went up," White House aides said Saturday.

Although his returns were audited, they added, the Internal Revenue Service was satisfied everything was in order.

The IRS summoned Nixon's accountant, Arthur Blech, and his attorney, Frank DeMarco Jr., to a meeting in Washington on May 23 when the computer's red flag showed Nixon had total income of $262,304.75 in 1971 and $268,777.54 in 1972—but paid only $878 federal income tax the first year and $4,298.17 the second.

The IRS subjected Nixon's returns for those two years to a "full field audit," his aides said, although they conceded that a key document—the claim that Nixon on March 27, 1969, donated his vice presidential papers to the National Archives and claimed $235,000 worth of deductions over four years—was not challenged.

Returns tabulated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here is a table of the federal tax returns filed by President and Mrs. Nixon since 1969:

1969 1970	Adjusted Gross income	$328,161.52	$262,942.56
	Deductions	178,535.10	307,181.92
	Exemptions	1,800.00	none
	Taxable Income	147,926.42	none
	Net Tax Paid	72,682.09	792.81

1971 1972 Totals	Adjusted Gross Income	$282,394.75	$268,777.54
	Deductions	255,676.69	247,569.77
	Exemptions	1,350.00	1,500.00
	Taxable Income	5,358.06	19,707.77
	Net Tax Paid	878.08	4,298.17

Had Nixon not donated his personal papers to the National Archives and taken the deductions, he would have had to pay these additional income taxes each year:

1969 1970 1971 1972 total	$63,333 $32,099 $65,678 $73,796	$234,900

Gift saves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon saved almost $235,000 in federal income taxes between 1969 and 1972 by donating his personal papers to the federal government and taking deductions for them, White House aides said Saturday.

Nixon paid a total of $78,651.10 over the four years, they said.

Exemption questioned

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A California tax official said Saturday there is a "serious question" about President Nixon's claim of exemption from state income tax.

The state tax collection authority said it wants to know why the President has not paid California taxes.

William M. Bennett, one of three members of the state Franchise Tax Board and chairman of the tax-collecting Board of Equalization, said the fact that the President is registered to vote in California indicates he is a resident.

"That ordinarily means he pays taxes here," Bennett said. "You can't vote here unless you're a resident, and that has a lot of tax consequences."

Villa donation set after Nixons death

WASHINGTON (UPI) — La Casa Pacifica, President Nixon's Spanish-style seaside villa, will be donated to the American people after Nixon and his wife Pat are dead, the President said Saturday.

The half-million dollar complex overlooking the Pacific Ocean, which consists of a 14-room house and a number of outbuildings, will be given as a "conference center, guest facility for visiting dignitaries, and a working base for future presidents," Nixon said.

The announcement of the gift of the Western White House was made as Nixon disclosed all his financial and tax records to try to dispel rumors that he has profited illegally from his presidency.

In announcing the gift of the villa, Nixon said: "I have directed my attorneys to take the necessary steps to accomplish this, so that future administrations and future generations can take advantage of this beautiful western setting to help maintain a truly national perspective for the presidency."

The main house, built in the 1920s, consists of five bedrooms, each with a bath; a living room, a formal dining room, a sitting room, a pantry, a kitchen and service porch, and two storage rooms. The only second-floor room is Nixon's office.

East of the main house, on property with 350 feet of oceanfront, is a guest house with two bedrooms, a bath and a sitting room. Other structures on the property include a caretaker's house, a playhouse, a greenhouse, a laundry, garages and a 40 by 25-foot outdoor swimming pool.

Stressing he was responding to questions about a hypothetical taxpayer, the spokesman said that if the President sets up a trust that would automatically convey the property to the government upon the death of himself and his wife, they could live in the house until their deaths but be eligible for a deduction immediately.

By LESTER KINSOLVING
Times-News Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The 123 pages of mimeographed disclosure of President Nixon's finances seemed to stun the White House Press corps as they sat waiting in the little theatre-type briefing room.

For here there seemed to be an unprecedented disclosure of a President's personal finances — which is such sharp contrast to the White House's general secrecy.

The loudspeaker in the small auditorium was playing background music, and the selection, newsmen noted with amusement, was "Here Comes Santa Claus," just before Press Secretary Ron Ziegler walked on stage, accompanied by Attorney Kenneth Gimmel of Philadelphia and accountant Arthur Blech of Los Angeles.

The disclosure reveals among other things that the Nixons paid an income tax of $792.81 in 1970 and $878.03 in 1971 — on an income for these two years of $525,326.

During the two years, the Nixons claimed deductions for taxes ($45,050) charitable contributions ($202,063), interest on loans ($176,057), medical expenses ($150), and miscellaneous ($78,035) — for a total of $502,855. The Times-News asked:

"Can the White House provide some sort of rationale for the average U. S. taxpayer who gets far less than $200,000, $50,000 expenses and a rent-free house but who certainly pays more than the $835 average paid by the President during 1970 and 1971?"

Ziegler: "I can provide a short and direct answer. The President wanted a western White House and felt the need to get outside Washington. Friends helped him finance this friends who neither sought favors nor were given any. The decision was made by the President."

"Those who prepared his tax forms took the deductions, which are available to you and me and any taxpayers. They were appropriate deductions in which the President was not involved."

Was Ziegler suggesting that the President was oblivious to what deductions were made? "I don't want to pick up on that," replied Ziegler, "and please do not draw any conclusions from it."

Accountant Blech then told the assembled newsmen: "I've never talked to the President or any one else at the White House. I just make out the forms."

Another newsman asked: "Didn't the President say in April of 1969 that 'Some wealthy people are paying too little tax, and some poor people are paying too much tax, when everyone should be paying a fair share?' Does he think that $800 out of more than a half a million is his fair share?"

Ziegler: "Those deductions were made under law. I haven't talked to the President about the questions you raise."

The President's press secretary and close advisor was then asked about the President's recent announcement that his estate at San Clemente will be given to the United States after his death of Mrs. Nixon.

"Well, the President hasn't actually deeded the property yet," Gemmill said when asked by the Times-News when this gift was actually made.

"When did the President actually decide to make this donation?"

"He's been considering it for years," answered Ziegler — hastily calling for the next question.

Will he claim this gift as a deduction like he claimed the gift of his papers?

"That is not planned," replied Blech. "The Times-News then asked: 'Why does the President, if he's really been planning to donate San Clemente for years, take until now to announce it?'"

Ziegler: "We announced it now because it is his intention to do so."

Investments yield wealth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has grown wealthy, chiefly by investing in real estate, according to his accountants.

Their statement on Nixon's finances, released Saturday by the White House, said Nixon has tripled his net worth during five years in the Presidency.

It was $307,141 on Jan. 1, 1969, and had grown to $988,522 as of May 31, the statement said. By now, the accountants said, it is over $1 million.

The statement said Nixon realized profits of over $580,000 from three real estate deals. In one of them, his daughter Tricia was a minority partner and turned a handsome profit herself.

The profits came from the sale of stock in Fisher's Island, Inc., a corporation formed to acquire and develop Fisher's Island in Biscayne, Bay, Fla.; from the sale of his Fifth Avenue apartment in New York City, where he lived while practicing law; and, with Tricia, from an investment in two lots in Florida.

The Fisher's Island stock cost Nixon $109,891 in 1957. He sold it back to the company on May 22, 1969, for $371,782, a profit of $184,891.

The New York apartment, purchased in 1963 for $166,800, was sold on May 31, 1969, for $312,590. After sale-related expenses the profit amounted to $142,912. He escaped taxes on that profit by investing it in his new home at San Clemente, Calif., which is legal.

With a $20,000 loan from Tricia, Nixon invested $30,080 in April, 1967, in two undeveloped lots in Florida.

They sold them on Dec. 28, 1972, for $150,000, leaving a profit after expenses of $111,270. Tricia's share in the profit was $44,508, part of which she received and paid taxes on in 1972 and $32,891 of which she must pay taxes on this year, Nixon's accountants said.

TF county '74 salary schedule major item for commissioners

Other sheriffs include Bonneville County, $475 per month; Ada, $1,292; Bannock, $917; Kootenai, $1,000; Latah, $870; Nez Perce, $833; Shoshone $833; Minidoka, $712 and Cassia $666.

Sheriff Corder said he feels the salary increase for his deputies is more pressing than his own. His chief deputy earns $640 per month, while chief deputies in other counties include Ada, $1,025; Bonneville, $775; Kootenai, $700; Latah, $800; Nez Perce, $875; Minidoka, $861, and Cassia, $816.

Corder said when he gets a well-trained deputy, he can go "down the street" for more money. City police pay schedules in Twin Falls, he said, include $914 per month for the chief and $750 for the assistant chief, compared to the chief deputy at $640 a month.

A city police captain earns $730 at full position pay after his second year. A lieutenant receives $712 and a sergeant, $670. A city patrolman at position pay earns $617 per month and a radio operator the same but starts at $558. A desk secretary receives $495 after her second year.

At the county, the sergeant next in rank to the chief deputy, receives $443, and the radio operator $438 and a civil desk deputy (woman) $413.

In the driver's license bureau, one girl with eight years experience is getting only $371 and the sheriff has asked this be brought up to $450. He said she qualified for food stamps as she is single and supports a daughter.

Another office woman deputy with 17 years experience makes $497 and if she leaves and now employees were to replace her, he said two women would have to be hired to do the work.

All other departments in the county are staffed largely with women except for the department "heads." Most women feel they are not adequately paid and many say morale is exceptionally low among the county women employees.

Only one woman elective official serves in the county, Ruth Jones, treasurer. The yearly pay for elected officials as approved by the county commissioners include treasurer, $9,250; Harold Lancaster, clerk, recorder and auditor, $9,750; assessor, Ronald Taylor, $9,500 and Sheriff Paul Corder, $9,500.

The prosecutor, receives $14,000 and the county commissioners, $8,800. In both of these departments the legislature sets a maximum salary scale.

County clerk Harold Lancaster, who provided the county salary information, said in his own office the highest paid woman, a deputy with 20 years experience, receives $618 per month and the newest and lowest paid employee, $350.

A clerk in his office, including the district court clerks, with about 10 years experience, would receive $453 per month.

These include court reporters who require a bank of special knowledge of legal matters which a new employe could not provide. Lancaster said everyone needs more money, but there is a limit as to how far you can ask the taxpayers to go.

Sheriff Corder said he has tried to get other department heads to join him in urging all county salaries be brought up to a logical level but has gained very little support.

Several employees say the department heads must be re-elected and therefore like to hold their budgets down to an impressive low and as a result salaries become less and less realistic as they can be controlled while cost of new equipment and supplies cannot be controlled.

Women salaries include the assessor's license department, $497 per month for the woman in charge, $342 for the lowest paid. One male deputy at $618 works in the upstairs assessor's office.

Some other county salaries include the treasurer's office, top women, $497 and down to $420, $397 and $358 for the lowest.

In the county agent's office, $325, lowest, $352, full time with experience, and in the treasurer's office, $497 for the top deputy treasurer, $420, $393 and $358, lowest.

By comparison, federal women employees working in Twin Falls (the U. S. Forest Service offices) receive a lowest starting salary of $419; $490 for two to three years experience, and $505 for the same experience in a more demanding job up to $750 for women with lengthy terms of service and demanding work.

Women and men in federal offices work on the same salary scale if jobs are similar.

City of Twin Falls salaries for women are $432 to begin work, $456 for one year and $481 in the third year or position pay. Water department women receive $420 to start, $443 and $466.70.

One woman who left a county position for a city one said it was purely a matter of money. She started a $70 per month more than she was making.

Salmon Falls fund delay anticipated

Although completion of the Teton Dam project on the upper Snake River is "at least a couple of years off," it is expected that this multi-purpose facility will not be halted.

Involved in the Teton Dam project are flood control, irrigation, some power, municipal and industrial water supply, recreation and conservation, and "we are determined to proceed," the government spokesman said.

Like-wise, no interruption is expected in the replacement of American Falls Dam, a project to be largely financed by Idaho Power Co. with federal assistance. Greatly increased power potential will result.

Legislative action on American Falls Dam has moved ahead speedily because of the urgency of replacing the existing dam. Unanimous approval for reconstruction cleared the full House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs on Tuesday.

A floor vote in the House may be on the calendar for Dec. 17 or soon after.

"At Salmon Falls no power is involved and there is no power potential," the spokesman continued, emphasizing that it is the single purpose use (irrigation) that is responsible for the low priority for funding.

Gyro plagues Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) — Engineers tried to devise a scheme Saturday to avoid more erratic behavior in one of Skylab's last two working stabilization gyroscopes.

Astronauts Gerald E. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue, unconcerned about the minor problem, took pictures of comet Kohoutek through the space craft's windows, then maneuvered their three-bedroom space home out of its normal orbital position to take more data on the earth.

Making their first earth study photo sweep completely outside the United States, the space pilots were aiming an array of instruments along a 6,000-mile path from central Asia to Australia.

Back Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) —

About 75 persons paraded outside the White House in 40-degree temperatures Saturday, waving miniature American flags and singing "God Bless America" to show their support for President Nixon.

The group, known as "Friends of the President," marched in a circle on the sidewalk along Pennsylvania Avenue.

Magistrate court due new quarters

Chancey said by dividing the court into two locations the county will be utilizing its own courthouse space rather than renting to other agencies. This should provide at least a "stop gap" solution to the magistrate court space problem, he said.

There will be a court room area for Judge Maughan, who now holds court in his private office, a jury room that might be free, and sometimes even the law library of the judicial building.

In addition to the office space used by the border patrol the past 18 months, an adjoining space housing the Youth Rehabilitation Services has been vacated.

This department, under the direction of Larry Hauber, is now part of the Department of Environmental and Community Services and Hauber and his staff have moved to the old nurses home adjacent to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where other DECS offices are located.

County officials have just completed refurbishing the exteriors of the old hospital building and old nurses home with these buildings now serving county and other agency needs for office quarters.

Chancey said the fourth floor of the hold hospital building is being remodeled on the inside for future office area as expansion of existing county offices will require.

He said the border patrol has been asked by vacate court house offices by April 1, and the court move will be made as soon as the space is available.

Small claims and traffic cases coming before Magistrate Maughan will be handled in the third floor area of the main courthouse after that time.

United Fund nears top

TWIN FALLS — Donations such as the $750 check from the Union Pacific Foundation received Friday are expected to push the 1973 United Fund campaign over the $100,000 mark.

Fund chairman Dr. Terry Smith, said the collections as of Friday were $92,323, nearing the record campaign receipts of $93,518 obtained in the drive a year ago.

"We are confident the last minute donations, some of them coming from out most generous contributors, will help us reach the magic $100,000 mark," Dr. Smith said.

Earl Faulkner, chairman of the blue chips division, said the Union Pacific Foundation gift was received from W. K. (Bill) Hendricks, UP traffic agent.

The Twin Falls United Fund board of directors will hold a meeting Dec. 14 at 7:30 a.m. at the Depot Grill. Final campaign reports will be given at that time. Agency allocations for 1974 will be discussed.

The United Fund collections support 10 community agencies.

Fund boosted

BLUE CHIPS donation of $750 is received by Earl Faulkner, United Fund volunteer, left, from W. K. (Bill) Hendricks, Union Pacific Foundation. This is one of several large donations expected this week to push the United Fund campaign past the $100,000 mark.

Auto emission standards frozen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Commerce Committee has voted to freeze for at least one year "clean air" emission standards for automobiles which had been scheduled to become effective in late 1975.

The committee, at a meeting late Thursday night prior to voting some time today on the overall emergency energy bill, forged a compromise solution between the Environmental Protection Agency, which sought implementation of the stricter standards, and a White House suggestion for a two-year delay.

Besides approving a one-year delay, the committee specified that Director William E. Simon of the newly proposed Federal Energy Administration could decide later whether to delay the standards still another year.

The standards specify the amount of pollutant emissions an automobile is allowed to give off. Under the Clean Air Act, some standards are set to go into effect for 1975 models cars, sold in late 1974, and the EPA envisioned making the standards tougher in 1976.

The committee compromise means autos will have to meet the 1975 standards but not the stricter standards for 1978 models proposed by the EPA.

A move to defer for three years the standards due to become effective next fall was defeated.

Wallace denies brother involved

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace has denied that his brother, Gerald, is involved in a fraud case involving the sale of non-existent machinery to the state. "He's not involved in this," Wallace, referring to his brother, told United Press International Thursday in an exclusive interview. "Federal agents have been down here and checked him, they didn't find anything; you've been down there and you didn't find anything. He's not involved."

run at the presidency in 1976, has said he will not permit anyone to "taint" his reputation. Gerald Wallace works as an attorney in Montgomery and caused his governor-brother some embarrassment last summer when he was brought before the State Bar on charges of fee splitting and influence peddling. He was acquitted and details of the testimony were never disclosed.

The fraud case involves the alleged sale of machinery parts to the state government by a firm which prosecutors claim had no inventory, and only one customer—the state of Alabama.

The state filed suit Wednesday charging Machinery and Supplies Inc., of Montgomery, and its secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Ruby Lee Latham of defrauding the state of $94,736 through the sale of non-existent machinery.

A local newspaper has alleged that Gerald Wallace once had in his possession a vehicle belonging to Machinery and Supplies. This came to light, the newspaper said, when Wallace was involved in a auto accident with the vehicle in December of 1972.

The state has offered Miss Latham protection, saying it understood her life had been threatened in the event she talks. Attorneys for the woman refused the offer.

Nixon's chopper may land free of charge

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — Victor Leisner and his son, Mike, have agreed to let President Nixon's helicopter land free of charge on a small section of their 50-acre farm. The helicopter has been making occasional landings at nearby Caloctin High School when fog stops the chopper from setting down at Camp David. There was some concern about the noise and possible hazard to students at the school, Mike Leisner said Thursday.

"Now the President can land here without causing any problems."

"The Navy offered to buy or lease the farm land, but the family refused since 'Dad... didn't want to become entangled in red tape over government property.'"

Mike Leisner, a registered Democrat, called the favor "a simple act of good will."

He said he doesn't expect a thank-you card.

"I'm sure the President is a very busy man," Leisner said, "especially with Watergate."

Nixon avoids state taxes

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Nixon, who maintains a residence and votes in California, would pay that state's income taxes on his government salary if he followed the example of the state's senators and representatives in Congress.

Even at the low rate that his $200,000 salary was taxed for special reasons, Nixon may have avoided about $20,000 in California taxes.

Last weekend, White House sources leaked the statement to the Associated Press that Nixon had not paid either California or District of Columbia income taxes since he became president.

The statement was part of financial material about Nixon provided to the news service. Nixon has promised to give full details on his personal holdings.

Senators Alan Cranston and John V. Tunney, both Democrats, and a partisan mixture of 23 of the 49 Californians in the House of Representatives all said they paid California income taxes on their federal salaries.

No California congressman questioned said he did not pay income taxes in his home state. California observers feel that a disclosure that one did not pay would be politically damaging in the state. Nixon, barred from seeking a third term as president, has no further voter relations problem in the state.

All the state's congressmen are covered by the same federal law that governs Nixon's liability for state income taxes. This is a statute that exempts elected federal officials, and those whose presidential appointments must be confirmed by the Senate, from the District of Columbia's income taxes, but makes them responsible for paying taxes in their state of residence.

The man who defeated Nixon for the presidency, John F. Kennedy, paid state income taxes in Massachusetts from the day he was first elected to Congress until he was assassinated in 1963. President Johnson, Nixon's immediate predecessor in the office had no such liability because Texas had no state income tax. State tax information on other recent presidents was not immediately available.

The Associated Press reported that "Mr. Nixon's tax advisers concluded he was not liable for California state income taxes, although California is his voting residence."

Sources in Sacramento said that residence for tax purposes is a much litigated subject in California, and that the franchise-tax board decides virtually each case on its individual elements, so that for practical purposes, each appeal is a new question.

Markin Huff, executive officer of the Franchise Tax Board, has issued orders to his staff not to comment on the Nixon tax matter, even in hypothetical terms. Hugh Flournoy, a Republican who is state controller and a member of the board, said he wanted the Nixon tax question discussed in an executive session next Tuesday.

In general terms, California law defines a resident for tax purposes as "every person who is in the state for other than a temporary or transitory purpose, and every individual who is domiciled in the state who is outside the state for temporary or transitory purpose."

Fuel pinch

GROWING energy crisis begins to make a noticeable impact on car sales in Germany as well as elsewhere in the world. Here the display area of a large Dusseldorf, Germany, dealer is full of cars but empty of buyers. (UPI)

Satan-worshippers may have burned church

LAUDERDALE LAKES, Fla. (UPI) — A pre-dawn fire that officials said may have been started by a satan-worshipping cult destroyed the St. Helen's Catholic Church here today.

Fire Chief Larry Stewart said the three-year-old church on Oakland Park Boulevard was a "total loss." He estimated damage between $250,000 to $500,000.

The chief said it took fire fighting units from three communities nearly three hours to bring the church fire under control.

"We are keeping in mind a possible connection between this fire and cases in Oakland Park and Plantation of church vandalism and desecrations by an apparent satan-worshipping organization," Chief Stewart said.

"When we were able to enter the building, we found evidence of a breaking and entering and a subsequent arson to cover the break-in."

Most of the occultists breaks have been in churches in Oakland Park, where detective David Truman blamed the incidents on "Satan worshippers who are using the churches for their sexual black masses."

South Korean students freed

(c) New York Times Service
SEOUL, South Korea — President Park Chung Hee Friday ordered that all students arrested for recent anti-government demonstrations be freed immediately and those expelled from their schools be reinstated.

Following the order, education minister Min Kwan Shik announced that from now on the government would allow an "autonomous management of school affairs under their own responsibility through the establishment of their educational authority."

The action came a day after Yun Chu Yung, the minister of culture and information, told South Korean newspaper publishers and managing editors that the South Korean Central Intelligence Agency would not harass the press and that the operations of news

Strict government controls of the universities and the press had been the main grievances of Korean students who have staged protest demonstrations in the past two months.

The release of arrested students, a freer campus atmosphere and the removal of overt press controls represented the first major concessions on the part of the government since Monday's cabinet reshuffle and the replacement of the chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, the most hated symbol of repression here.

The students, freed within hours of Park's order, included nine who had been indicted on charges of violating the law banning unauthorized demonstrations and eight who had been serving jail terms after summary court trials.

Charges against three others who had been under investigation without detention were also dropped.

Forty-one students who had been expelled from school or forced to quit "voluntarily" are to be reinstated, and 56 other students who were suspended from the university in early October had been allowed to return to school later that month.

Min said in his statement that "the government will do its best to create a favorable atmosphere for studies and I hope that the students will return to the schools with a fresh mind and concentrate on studies in the future."

All schools in Seoul closed for winter vacations, two weeks earlier than usual.

Mitchell refuses offer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell has refused to plead guilty to one count of participating in a Watergate cover-up in order to escape prosecution on possible other charges, the Washington Star-News reported Friday.

The newspaper quoted informed sources as saying Mitchell, already under indictment on a campaign violation charge involving fugitive financier Robert L. Vesco, was made the offer by former Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox early in the fall.

Vesco gets haven

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Fugitive financier Robert Vesco can move to Argentina without fear of extradition to the United States to face criminal charges here, according to a court ruling reported Thursday by newspapers here.

La Razon and La Nacion newspapers both reported that Vesco and an associate identified as Ulrich Strickler have been granted permanent residence visas in Argentina. They said a federal judge has ruled they are not subject to extradition on the charges facing them.

Vesco is wanted in the United States on stock fraud charges and obstruction of justice in connection with an alleged illegal $200,000 donation to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

He is now in the Bahamas where a court is hearing a U.S. request for extradition. Indications were that the court would refuse the extradition request.

La Razon and La Nacion said Federal Judge Luis Maria Rodriguez — who has since retired from the bench — ruled Oct. 22 that no grounds exist for the extradition of Vesco or Strickler to the United States from Argentina under the existing extradition agreements between the two countries.

Mild weather, cooperative citizens cut power consumption

United Press International — One of the mildest Novembers in memory, together with strong indication that Americans were "cooperating in saving energy," resulted in electrical power consumption decreases last month in widespread areas of the country. In New York City, Consolidated Edison reported Thursday the first drop in the use of electricity for November since World War II. A spokesman for the company that provides all the electric power for metropolitan New York said he could not recall a decrease in electric sales even in the 1930s. Con Ed vice chairman Louis H. Roddis Jr., who also reported lower natural gas and steam sales, said the electricity decrease of 5 per cent was a "strong indication" that New Yorkers were "cooperating in saving energy."

The metropolitan Washington area, served by Potomac Electric Power Co., had been expected to use eight per cent more electricity in November, 1972, than for the same month last year. But a spokesman attributed a nearly five per cent decline to "chiefly because of warm weather."

"We feel that a good portion of this is due to conservation measures," he added.

In Dallas, a spokesman for the Dallas Power and Light Co. reported a decline from October to November "but it's very difficult to say if this was due to people being conservation minded" or moderate weather.

Consumers Power Co., the biggest supplier of electricity in Michigan, said November usage was down five million kilowatts or about 1 per cent. The company had expected an increase of 10 per cent.

While its figures were not out yet, Commonwealth Edison Co. in Chicago said a declining trend had been evident in the last two weeks, mostly because of weather but partially because of wiser use by consumers.

The huge Tennessee Valley Authority reported a total of about 9.2 billion kilowatt-hours in November, the same as 1972 despite a 10 per cent growth in sales during the year.

Burley arson check bears completion

BURLEY — Investigations possible arson in a fire which gutted the Burley Junior High School in October should bear completion of the initial phase, according to a spokesman.

Nielson, Cassia County prosecuting attorney, said Friday he hadn't received a report from the state arson investigator who has been working on the case, but that the initial phase should be bearing completion.

Cassia County school superintendent Harold Schill said Friday, "I haven't heard a word" from the investigator through the probe was continuing.

Blauser said he asked for the investigation through Nielson's office about the middle of November because "if someone set it (the fire) we ought to know about it and they should be dealt with accordingly."

If arson should be proven, the insurance premiums for the school would remain unchanged, according to Blauser. The district is receiving about $1 million in insurance for the school.

Earlier, fire chief Douglas Schill said arson would be "impossible to prove" because the school was burned out so completely.

Toastmistress tie

TWIN FALLS — A three-way tie for the blue pencil was declared at the Friday meeting of the Twin Falls Toastmistress Club in the Colonial House.

Three women were named for the best speech award: Louise Koontz, Kimberly Virginia Eldredge, and Frances Wohlhoff. Castleford, Eleanor Burkhardt served as Toastmistress.

The theme of Christmas song titles was featured by Virginia Eldredge for table topics. Eleanor Burkhardt earned the red pencil for best table topics.

Shirley DeLuca was inducted into membership by Orriette Sinclair.

The next scheduled meeting will be Jan. 4 at the Colonial House.

Death probe closed

CAT DWELL (UPI) — Catwell police have closed the investigation into the gunshot death of June Helton, 29, who was found dead in her bed Nov. 15.

Police Chief Charles W. Helton said the woman was found lying in a natural position with no signs of a struggle or violence in the apartment. She had been shot in the head.

Fathers' toys

IONIA, Mich. (UPI) — Some 20 children in various Michigan cities will get Christmas toys from their dads without knowing where their fathers are.

Michigan State Penitentiary officials at Ionia and the Salvation Army of Grand Rapids have joined in a decision for the third year to give toys from "father," who hasn't been home for a while.

In November, more than 1,000 inmates selected toys for their children. They had choices of 18 toys for various age groups selected and offered by the Salvation Army.

Members of the Michigan Telephone Company's Pioneer club wrap the presents and mail them to the kids — with "no return address."

When the toys are delivered, there is no indication that they are from the prison or the Salvation Army has had a hand in the project.

FLOOR FASHIONS

Walt Andersen

Larry Shitter

CHILD-PROOFING is built into today's carpets, which can be made moth-proof, static-free, sunfast and mildew-proof. Easy cleaning and stain-resistance are big pluses, of course, when children are wreaking havoc and pets should be a factor in any carpet choice. Nylon tones rather than bright or very deep colors are advisable, helping to make the carpet look soil-free between cleanings. Or specify a carpet fiber that is known for soil-resistance, such as a treated nylon pile. An even better choice would be a multi-color carpet, popular today and available in an ever-widening range of mixes. The combination of two or more colors tends to "hide" spots and soil, the eye being deceived by the varied colorings in the carpet.

China, Russia said seriously perturbed about possibility of change in presidents

LONDON (UPI) — China and Russia are seriously perturbed about the impact that any possible change in the U.S. presidency could have on their respective relations with the United States.

Diplomats have lately been making discreet inquiries in talks on the diplomatic cocktail rounds about the likelihood of President Nixon stepping down or being forced to vacate the post of Chief Executive.

The inquiries have reflected growing anxiety over their respective future relationship with America and the fate of the "detente," the policy of improved Russo-American and Sino-American cooperation.

They seem anxious to speed the conclusion of projected agreements with the United States on political and economic cooperation for fear that any new U.S. administration may go slow or even change its policy.

The Communist line is that once such agreements have been formally concluded any subsequent U.S. government, as they put it, must honor them.

Both Peking's and Moscow's leadership have established a working relationship with Nixon and they have left little doubt they would prefer it to continue.

Premier Chou En-lai in Peking and Soviet Party Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev in Moscow have each had close direct dealings with Nixon and are worried about what any possible change might involve.

Both have also established a close working relationship with U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in his capacity as Nixon's personal policy adviser and trustee.

Both have deliberately shut their eyes to the Watergate affair and what it has done to undermine Nixon's position. The public in China or Russia has hardly any knowledge of the Watergate affair; let alone its wider implications. There have been only occasional references to it in the Communist press.

Communist diplomats have maintained the firm line that their governments deal with the official representatives of any country while they are in power.

They furthermore insist that in the event of any change, the present policy of "detente" should be continued.

Election set on Ford seat

Ford from his 5th Congressional District seat. The deadline for filing for the race is Dec. 24 and the primary election is set for Jan. 15, 1974. Two prime Republican contenders for the seat are Sen. Robert Vander Laan, R-Kentwood, Senate Majority Leader, and Sen. Milton Zaigman, R-Grand Rapids.

Old tales

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wilma Scott Heide, president of the National Organization for Women (NOW), always gets a laugh and applause on the lecture circuit when she cites "old husband's tales."

Legislative bills prefiled

BOISE — Three bills have been prefiled for the 1974 legislature, including one that would change the financing system for special education classes in the state.

Introduced by Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, the proposal changes the formula through which money is distributed to school districts to pay for the special education instruction. The measure eliminates the current practice of providing the same amount of funding for each handicapped student in favor of a weighted system that established funding on the basis of the handicap and the classroom setting.

The proposal is the result of a special education interim legislative committee that Barker chaired. The committee has met twice since its formation during the 1973 legislature.

Barker's proposal, prefiled with the office of Lt. Gov. Jack McMurphy, would provide different funding for school districts which teach classrooms with only handicapped students than it would for those which mix the handicapped with the other students.

For the first time, the bill would also give a district more money to educate students who are "academically talented." In addition to the funds provided for students with specific disabilities.

Another bill prefiled, sponsored by Sen. Art Murphy, D-Millan, would permit golf courses, ski resorts and lake resorts to sell liquor on Sundays between 2 and 11 p.m. if they had regular licenses.

The other prefiled bill, also sponsored by Murphy, would require the Fish and Game Commission to regulate an open season on upland birds for Idaho residents exclusively and a second for Idaho and out-of-state residents.

There is currently only one open season, open to all hunters.

Under legislative rules, bills may be prefiled in the Senate but not in the House.

Trappers record

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri fur hunters and trappers took almost $2 million worth of pelts in the 1972-73 trapping season, an all-time record, according to the Missouri Conservation Commission.

Prince crashes

LONDON (UPI) — A car driven by Prince Charles Thursday collided with two other autos, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said. No one was hurt.

The accident happened outside the home of Mrs. Leonard Guppy of Preston, who said, "When I arrived home, there were police everywhere."

The palace spokesman said the prince continued his journey in another vehicle. He had been driving from Portland, where he is attending a naval course.

House group okays emergency powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Commerce Committee approved Friday the National Energy Emergency Act to give President Nixon broad powers to cope with energy problems. The vote was 24 to 13.

The bill would authorize the President to shift priorities and supplies of fuels to get them to the neediest users, and to order conservation measures that would have the demand to the available supply.

Nixon has expressed hope the bill would be enacted by the middle of the month. The bill softened an original reference to rationing, leaving it optional with the President. The Senate approved a bill directing the President to include rationing plans among contingencies for dealing with the fuels emergency.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, Chairman of the House Commerce Committee, expressed hope the House can take up this bill next week.

The House bill would authorize Nixon to impose national highway speed limits, order business to cut down their consumption of energy, limit some advertising and transportation, and direct power plants to switch to less scarce fuels such as coal.

Westerners oppose daylight time

By JUDY PRISLEY
T-N Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Bills that passed overwhelmingly in the House and Senate to initiate year-round Daylight Saving Time drew some dissent from western delegates.

When this bill, designed as an energy-saving measure, met a vote in the House of Representatives, it was opposed by Republican congressmen Orval Hansen and Steve Symms of Idaho.

In later Senate action, the DST proposal met opposition from Republican Sen. James A. McClure of Idaho. In the House, however, the legislation passed 311 to 88 and in the Senate 68 to 10 in favor of returning the entire nation to Daylight Saving Times for a two-year period.

"I object to making Idaho school children stand in the dark waiting for school buses," McClure stated, adding that he doubts the time change will help very much.

Idaho's senior senator, Democrat Frank Church, supported the bill although recognizing "it will cause some problems."

Hansen held that same concern as other dissenting delegates for rural children facing morning departures for school in the dark.

Awards presented

Postal employes honored

TWIN FALLS — Several awards have been presented employes of the Twin Falls Post Office for their safe driving records. Lloyd Libert, postmaster, announced today. He said Dwight Shaw, one of the long time employes, has completed a 20 year driving record for the post office on a rural route without a single accident or traffic citation. Libert said this represents a total of about 550,000 miles which is an outstanding record. In addition to a safe driving pin, he was awarded a certificate as an "accident free rated expert" driver.

Bob Benoit received a pin for six years of safe driving; Andy Cooper, five years, and Raymond Olsen was honored for 17 years of mail delivery without an accident.

By LESTER KINSOLVING
T-N Washington Bureau
WASHINGTON — Two Republican senators were flown as the only passengers aboard an Air Force jet from Oklahoma to Washington Sunday morning — by order of the White House.

President Nixon's deputy press secretary Gerald Warren admitted when questioned at a White House press briefing Tuesday that Senators Dewey Bartlett and Henry Bellmon were offered the flight because:

"I'm told that this is a courtesy extended to senators and the practice goes back for several years."

The two senators were flown back in order to cast their votes against cutting off a filibuster against a campaign financing amendment to a debt ceiling bill.

They were the only two passengers aboard an Air Force VC 140 Jet Star, according to the Pentagon.

The plane's round trip from Washington consumed 2,800 gallons of fuel, according to Major Robert O'Brien, of the Air Force public information office.

Sen. Bartlett's office told the Times-News that Sen. Bellmon's office tried to obtain reservations on a commercial flight, but was not able to do so. Charles Palmer of Sen. Bellmon's office explained that actually the two senators "had commitments" in Enid, Okla., until late Saturday night. This, he said, made it impossible for them to leave, when offered the flight by the White House on Saturday afternoon, and still arrive in Washington for the Sunday morning vote.

When asked what was this Saturday evening commitment which precluded commercial flight, Palmer initially declined to reply — but finally disclosed:

"They were co-hosts at the Grand National Quail Hunt — which is more important than it sounds because the guests include industrialists from all over the country."

The special Air Force plane was provided the two Republican senators by the White House congressional liaison office, according to Warren.

But on Tuesday afternoon, President Nixon's newly appointed "energy czar" promised:

"I wasn't aware of this case — but I certainly intend to look into it."

Federal Energy Office

director William Simon was introduced to the press by President Nixon himself.

After his opening statement, the Times-News asked Simon about his reference to our being "a nation of great energy-wasters" — in light of the special plane devoted to just two Republican senators.

— He assured the press that he intends to look into this case.

Give your family a gift of comfort

It's energy-saving time! Time to make your home warm and free of drafts. Time to be sure you have double windows and doors. Inexpensive plastic can help substantially, if you prefer. Then add weather stripping and caulking to reduce infiltration. It's comfort time!

Give yourself savings in heating costs

You'll not only save energy. Weather conditioning your home is a common sense practice that also saves money. Experts have estimated that double windows, for example, can pay for themselves in six years or less. As heating costs go up, this is one way to help keep them under control.

For planning assistance to help reduce heating losses in your home, call your local Idaho Power Company office.

Dam approval pleases Orval

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Rep Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, said Thursday he was "extremely pleased" by approval earlier this week in the House Interior Committee of legislation authorizing replacement of the American Falls dam. Hansen pointed out that nearly 900,000 acres of productive agricultural land is dependent on the water stored at the dam. Its storage is limited to 65 per cent of capacity because of deterioration. The combination of reduced storage capacity and one or two more dry seasons could result in serious crop losses," Hansen warned.

The congressman said he hoped the House would consider the bill under suspension of the rules. He said that would permit the bill to be passed as early as December 17.

The bill was introduced simultaneously in the House and Senate on April 10 with the support of Hansen, as well as Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, and Sens. Frank Church, D-Idaho, and James A. McCure, R-Idaho.

Andrus supports DECS administrator

Andrus fights closure

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's governor has vowed to fight any attempt to force the mandatory closure of gas stations on Sunday, even if it means going to court.

During a news conference Friday, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said he hopes a law will not be passed requiring service stations to close on Sundays, because it would be a great detriment to Idaho's recreation industry.

He said it was a very good possibility and if a law is passed, "I will have to challenge it," because he doesn't believe that government has the right to tell a man when he can dispense gas.

Wrapped in work

BOISE (UPI) — A Boise trash hauler got wrapped up in his work Friday when he spent more than 90 minutes trapped inside a garbage truck.

Gary Emery, 25, tossed a trash can full of garbage into the back of the special truck and the compactor device caught his arm and hoisted him in with the aromatic load.

Police and firemen worked with cutting torches and hydraulic jacks to free the man, who suffered hand injuries.

When finally freed, Emery said "I suppose you all wonder why I called this meeting."

Conference on dam

BOISE (UPI) — Legislative proposals concerning a new dam and bridge over the Snake River at American Falls will be outlined Monday by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

The governor has scheduled a press conference at 9 a.m. to discuss the proposals.

Andrus said he hoped for quick passage of federal legislation authorizing construction of the new dam, which is to be paid for by bonds issued by water shareholders.

Burley slates session

BURLEY — A public meeting will be held at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Ramada Inn, Burley, to discuss the new American Falls dam development. All interested persons are invited to attend and ask what questions they may have.

Flood meet set

BOISE (UPI) — Boise River flood problems will be discussed Dec. 17 at a workshop conducted by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The corps says it is investigating the flood problem in Ada County and will submit several alternative solutions now under consideration.

The corps also announced a workshop Dec. 18 in Boise to study deterioration problems of the Barber Dam on the Boise River.

Murphy 'disturbed'

BOISE (UPI) — Lt. Gov. Jack Murphy said Saturday he failed to comprehend how Idaho's executive officers could oppose projects in sister states when the assistance of those states is needed for the American Falls Dam.

Murphy wrote Gov. Cecil D. Andrus that he was "particularly disturbed" that Idaho was opposing federally funded projects in Utah and Colorado when the American Falls Dam legislation was coming up for a vote in Congress.

Health grant awarded

BOISE (UPI) — The Mountain States Regional Medical Program today awarded a $10,000 grant to the Idaho Emergency Health Plan for the remainder of fiscal 1973-74.

Paul Anderson, director of the Idaho Emergency Health Plan, said most of the grant will be used to conduct workshops throughout the state where physicians and nurses will learn the latest methods of initial care for seriously injured persons.

He said that other activities to be funded from the grant will include regional emergency health conferences, the training and evaluation of students in the pilot trauma-intensive care paramedic project and the promotion of successful methods of

Boise aide resigns

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise Model Cities Citizens Advisory Board today announced the resignation of Clint Haakonstad, who has served as chairman of the board since its founding four years ago.

Haakonstad said he was resigning from the board in order to be able to devote more time to his business and family.

Owyhee official on probation

MURPHY, Idaho (UPI) — Mrs. Sadie S. Eisenhart, 71, Owyhee County treasurer for 21 years, has been placed on supervised probation for three years after pleading guilty to embezzling.

She received the probation from District Judge Gilbert C. Norris on condition she cooperate with Owyhee County officials in recovering any and all funds on behalf of the county.

BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus told a news conference Friday the administrator of the Department of Environmental and Community Services still had his blessing.

Andrus said Dr. James A. Bax, DECS administrator, "was hired to do a job and he's doing it." The governor noted that Bax served at his pleasure and added, "If I were not in agreement with the overall objectives of the department he'd be unemployed."

Andrus made his remarks in response to a question from a newsman. Bax, the controversial $32,544 a year administrator, has been in state government for about 18 months.

Andrus also said, in response to another question, that either the trout industry in the Magic Valley area is going to have to meet federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) water quality standards "or the EPA standards will have to be changed." The trout industry has claimed recently that the federal quality standards will hurt their business.

The governor also told newsmen "total openness and honesty" are the ways to restore public confidence in government and governmental leaders. While agreeing that the public is often skeptical about its leaders, Andrus said, "I would hope that Cecil Andrus doesn't have as much of a job to do as some people at different levels" in restoring confidence.

Bellevue Council accepts bid for tree removal

BELLEVUE — The Bellevue city council has accepted a $825 bid from S and V Construction for removal of trees on city streets in east Bellevue.

The sole bid was received during a council meeting Thursday night and was accepted with a completion date set for Dec. 25. The council had decided to remove the trees after receiving an attorney's opinion stating the city is responsible for anything on city property that constitutes an eminent danger.

In other action the Council:

— Was notified by Gordon Vert, owner of Gordon's Body Shop that city gasoline prices will increase from the present 30 cents per gallon to 46.4 cents when he has exceeded his monthly quota.

Vert said the situation will occur about one or more weeks each month as he has to pay more for the gasoline he buys beyond his quota.

— Agreed to charge Tom Richmond $50 for each of three hook-ups and a planned fourth hook-up to homes he constructed between Walnut and Chestnut Streets to compensate for his installation of a water line to serve the houses.

Richmond had constructed a line under a March, 1972, resolution that persons wishing water service in outlying areas must install the line at their own cost. That resolution has since been rescinded with the city assuming responsibility for installing the lines and the hookup fee was set at $300.

— Agreed to not seek an extension of a law enforcement planning grant to fund 75 per cent of the costs for a high band radio for the marshal's car. The grant had been obtained but not used about two years ago.

Mayor L. T. (Pete) Johnson said the grant would involve about five years of reporting and said he felt it would be easier to purchase a radio outright.

The mayor also said he felt purchase of a replacement car for the marshal is a greater priority and appointed Alderman John Pascoe to look into the possibility of buying an available used police car.

— Allocated $219 to fund additional costs for protective gear for the volunteer fire department. The council previously allotted $1,200 for the project with the fire department contributing $400.

— Agreed to charge Pat Barker $225 for damaging a fire hydrant. Barker was originally billed $275 for labor and a new hydrant but had protested the bill because he said the fire hydrant he damaged had been repaired and installed in another location.

2 state proposals would vary tax assessment rate

BOISE — A state senator has proposed a pair of constitutional amendments to let taxes be assessed at different rates for varying classes of property.

Sen. James Stojcheff, D-Sandpoint, made his recommendation in two of five bills he has prefilled for the 1974 legislature.

Stojcheff has also proposed a net four-mill reduction in statewide property tax reduction by cutting back on the amount local school districts can levy without override elections.

Also included in the senator's proposals is one to exempt food purchases from the state sales tax. Restaurant bills would still be subject to the tax according to Stojcheff's plan.

The fifth proposal, made by the Sandpoint Democrat, would require the State Tax Commission to make available for the public its report on county assessment ratios and equivalency determinations.

Stojcheff's five proposed measures brings to eight the number now prefilled with the office of the lieutenant governor for the 1974 legislature. Under legislative rules only the senate accepts prefilled bills.

The constitutional amendments proposed by Stojcheff would remove the restriction in the constitution calling for uniform taxes on different types of properties. One proposed amendment strikes a provision in the constitution that every person or corporation pays taxes "in proportion to the value of his, her, or its property."

The second amendment Stojcheff wants would permit the legislature to "distinguish classes of real and personal property," but would require that taxes be uniform within an individual class.

One of the tax cuts Stojcheff is proposing would reduce the authority of school districts to tax to 22 mills from 27, but would give them an additional one-mill authority for transportation services in the district.

Jerome woman appointed

JEROME — Mrs. Don (Louise) Rehwalt has been appointed to the regional advisory board of the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS).

Mrs. Rehwalt's appointment was made jointly by legislators from Dist. 23, Rep. Earl Greenawald, Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft and Sen. James Yost.

Purposes of the board are to determine the health and social services needs and problems of the citizens of the region; to study services provided by DECS by site visitations; to review state laws relating to the department; to consider budgets for adequate financing of programs; to recommend programs; to stimulate interest and secure maximum support for DECS programs, and to be a consultant body to the deputy regional administrator.

Mrs. Rehwalt is affiliated with the Jerome County Planning Council and serves as its secretary.

Board plans no action

GOODING — Gooding County Memorial Hospital board chairman Lee Wagner said the board will not take any action concerning allegations that patients of Wendell doctors had been refused treatment at the Gooding hospital.

Wagner said that the board would continue the same policy as it has in the past which is "in case of emergencies, no one will be turned away."

Wagner said that when a patient of a Wendell doctor comes to the Gooding hospital an attempt is made to contact his doctor. If it is an emergency and the Wendell doctor cannot be contacted, the person is treated by a Gooding doctor at the Gooding County hospital.

He said that the board had not investigated recent allegations and did not plan to. He said any allegations made by Wendell doctors that Gooding doctors would not treat their patients when they are away does not concern the hospital but is strictly between the doctors since the hospital cannot treat a patient or admit a patient without a doctor.

The hospital board met last night and according to Wagner, it was not an executive session and the matter was not discussed.

Shoshone crash noted

SHOSHONE — Michael Edward Burnett, Palm Springs, Calif., was released Saturday from St. Benedict's Hospital where he was treated for injuries suffered at 12:35 a.m. Friday in a traffic accident.

He was treated for bruises and cuts following a one car accident 10 miles north of Shoshone when his 1957 pickup truck, traveling south, ran off the highway and into the rocks. The vehicle was demolished, the officers report. The report was filed in the Lincoln County Sheriff's office by David Swamer, assistant chief of police in the city of Shoshone.

Burnett was treated by a Shoshone physician and then taken to the hospital in Jerome following the accident. He was cited for driving while intoxicated, the officers report showed.

Reports of the accident were unavailable to the press Friday morning. The investigating Shoshone police and Lincoln County officers who had been on duty when the accident occurred Thursday were off duty at home asleep Friday morning, making the report unavailable.

A story in Friday's newspaper was unclear as to which officers were asleep Friday morning. No on-duty officer was asleep.

Pickup site

KETCHUM — The Bald Mountain Hot Springs Swimming-Pool south of Ketchum has been designated as a pickup area for southbound commuters on foot.

According to a release from the Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce, Mr. and Mrs. Fenrol Houk, owners of the facility, have given permission for its use to Ketchum Police Chief Dennis Haynes and Lloyd Curtis, executive chamber manager, who organized the pickup point in an attempt to conserve gasoline.

The release stated that hopefully residents who must drive their cars will stop and pickup persons who do not have transportation or who have willingly left their car at home.

Curtis has also contacted Wally Young, president of the Hailey chamber, who will look into finding a similar pickup area in Hailey.

Ketchum will continue bus

KETCHUM — The Ketchum-Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce will continue to operate its two mini-buses after an attempt to sell the transit system failed.

A Chamber of Commerce report said the chamber was approached by a prospective buyer about two weeks ago. However, an adequate settlement could not be reached.

Entertaining the sale of the bus company, the chamber said, stemmed from the chamber's desire to channel its annual fund raising profits into more and diversified community needs. If the bus system is sold, the "fund-aid bus" event would become the "fund-the-community."

The chamber said it had initially planned to purchase the buses, then donate them to the city of Ketchum. The chamber still wishes to do this, especially now with the curtailment of fuel allotments.

As a non-profit organization, the chamber report said, the group feels it should not be operating a business and could not take advantage of any fuel allotment which would be available to a city-owned transit system.

However, the report said, if the city is still unable to accept the responsibility of the bus system, the chamber will entertain proposals from interested private concerns.

The bus system, entering its third winter season, will begin operating Dec. 17.

Idaho PUC studies power firm's request for turbine generator in Blaine

HAILEY — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has taken under advisement the Idaho Power Co. request to construct a turbine generator and transmission lines in Blaine County.

The action came after a day-long hearing Thursday in Hailey.

The power company, represented by general counsel James Bruce, Boise, and Thomas Nelson, Twin Falls, presented 10 witnesses who discussed the proposed facilities, projected environmental effects and anticipated area growth.

Acting as intervenor was Boise attorney John S. Chapman representing Mrs. Dorothy Chapman who owns about 320 acres neighboring the Wood River substation about two miles north of Hailey.

Idaho Power proposes to install a 50,000 kilowatt combustion turbine and a 50,000 barrel oil storage tank — totalling $5.5 million — north of the substation, and to convert existing 48,000 volt lines to 138,000 volts from the substation to the Ketchum substation at a cost of about $385,000.

Glenn J. Hall, Boise, Idaho Power vice president of engineering, operations and construction, said the turbine was needed during June through September, 1974, to make up for an expected power deficit caused in construction delays on the new Jim Bridger generating plant, Wyoming, and to help the company meet its summer load requirements for irrigation, air conditioning and other uses.

Hall also said the turbine would provide emergency service in the Hailey, Ketchum and Sun Valley area after the 1974 summer and would contribute to system reserve capacity.

The area is presently served by a 48,000 volt line from Shoshone to Hailey, Hall said, and 72 mile long, 138,000 volt line from the King substation to the Ketchum substation.

Hall said a prolonged outage of the principal transmission line is possible because it crosses terrain subject to severe winter weather conditions.

Hall also stated that the peak Hailey area load in the 1972-73 winter was 30,000 kilowatts and said this load was expected to increase to 50,000 kilowatts by the 1979-80 winter.

The turbine, Hall said, would utilize natural gas, supplied from a pipeline to the plant, and would use oil in the winter. Annual operating and maintenance cost, excluding oil or gas costs, would be $75,000, he said.

Hall also said construction must begin on the plant by about Jan. 1 to ensure completion by June. If construction had not begun before September, the power company would probably not go ahead with the project, he said.

Boyd Pond, Boise, Idaho Power transmission engineer, testified on the proposed construction of the 138,000 volt transmission line.

Pond said the existing 48,000 volt transmission line right of way will be utilized from the Wood River substation to Gimlet. From Gimlet, the line will use the existing 48,000 volt distribution line, generally located along the U. S. Highway 93 right-of-way into Ketchum.

The proposed transmission routing through Ketchum will be up Highway 93 to Riverside Street, northeast on Riverside to Leadville Avenue, northwest to First Street, along First to the alley between Walnut and Spruce avenues, down the alley to Third Street (Sun Valley Road) and along Third to the Ketchum substation.

Pond said the line will be re-built pole for pole with the existing poles to be removed upon completion of the new line.

The new poles, he said, will be 70 feet in length, with 61 feet above the ground, and will utilize curved, wooden mast arms. The construction will be essentially complete by about June 1, Pond said.

John Harolan, Boise, project engineer for the turbine, testified that the generator would be located 252 feet from the east edge of Highway 93 and 580 feet from the nearest residential building.

Harolan said the oil storage tank, located northeast of the substation, would be served by a buried pipeline extending to the railroad tracks. Railroad tank cars will transport the fuel to the pipeline, he said.

The turbine, Harolan said, will be about 32 feet high at its highest point, about 118 feet long and about 61 feet wide. It will utilize a modular-type construction, with all its operations enclosed and will be painted an off-white, he said.

The tank, he said, would have an actual maximum height of 27 feet and will be a maximum of 100 feet in diameter. It will be surrounded by a two-foot high dike, he said.

Harolan said the company plans to plant 80 trees with an initial height of 10 to 15 feet around the turbine and substation.

The proposed turbine will produce 47 decibels of noise at 400 feet, Harolan said. The standard plant would normally have a 60 decibel reading, he said, but Idaho Power paid $88,000 to have that level reduced.

Charles L. Barrett, Boise, power company accountant, testified that the company would pay about $80,000 in ad valorem taxes as a result of the construction of the turbine and the transmission lines.

Also testifying on behalf of Idaho Power were J. Robert Anderson and Norman Dibollus, both employed by the General Electric Co.; J. R. Allen, Trico Development Corp.; Phillip Canger, vice president of Sun Valley Co. Inc.; Jack Marshall, Elkhorn general manager, and John Jacoby, Ketchum building inspector.

Nick Purdy, county planning and zoning commission chairman, said he had recently visited several similar turbine plants as the guest of Idaho Power and General Electric.

He said the sound level at one plant near Boulder, Colo., was "not objectionable at all" and said that no emissions had been coming out of the turbine smoke stack.

Ralph A. Pifari, real estate consultant for the Western National Corp., Boise, said his firm owned a one-half interest in about 100 acres located south of the substation and extending to about the northern Hailey City limits.

Pifari said the property was zoned R-1 and the firm hoped probably to use it for a residential development.

Although not debating the location of the turbine, Pifari said he "very strongly" protested the location of a spur railroad line adjacent to his firm's property to allow the tank cars to unload oil to serve the turbine.

Pifari recommended that the power company use an existing spur about less than one mile north and extend an underground pipe to the turbine site.

He said the pipe extension would cost the company about an additional $25,000 to $30,000. However, he said this figure would be matched by the adverse effect on his firm's property by the spur line's present location.

Chapman protested both the turbine generator and the transmission lines.

The attorney said he felt Mrs. Chapman and Wood River Valley residents were opposed to the project because it "will seriously and adversely affect the environment" of the valley.

After the hearing, he said the transmission lines "will go right down the middle of the valley;" the "emissions from the plant will seriously deteriorate air quality," and the oil tank and oil cars "will impose a serious safety hazard to the people in the surrounding area and future subdivisions."

Richard Meyer, Ketchum, recommended that before the record was closed, the general public "should be given an opportunity to get involved" by extending the hearing into the evening hours.

Plant protection seminar scheduled

MOSCOW — Between 100 and 125 persons are expected to attend an agricultural seminar on plant protection scheduled here Jan. 7-11.

Sessions will be in the Agricultural Science Building on the University of Idaho campus. The seminar is sponsored by the College of Agriculture. Instructors will be College of Agriculture scientists and industry and governmental representatives.

Purpose of the seminar is to provide the latest information concerning developments in the total agricultural pesticide spectrum, according to Dr. Lambert Erickson, UI professor of weed science assisting with seminar planning.

Information presented will be especially useful to representatives of agricultural chemical industries and various state and federal agencies, county extension agents, and vocational agriculture teachers.

Erickson said the seminar registration fee will be $20. One hour of college credit will be granted to those who request it and qualify.

All who plan to enroll for the seminar must pre-register. This can be done in either of two ways, Erickson advised. One way is to visit any county extension office in Idaho. All offices have the materials needed.

The second pre-registration method is to send registration fee, along with name and address, to Plant and Soil Science Dept., c/o Mrs. S. Granlund, University of Idaho, Moscow, Idaho, 83843. Persons choosing that method will be sent a completed registration form and seminar information.

Seminar subjects will include state and federal laws and regulations concerning agricultural chemical use. Legal matters relating to the agricultural chemicals will also be discussed.

Instructors will present information on pesticides and plant physiology, plant nutrition, weed prevention, herbicides, plant diseases, insect identification, and insecticides and plant chemistry.

Principles of soil fumigation and pest, vegetation, and plant disease management principles are among seminar topics planned as is agricultural chemical use safety practices and principles.

Farmer meet set

RUPERT — The Mal-Cassia Farmers Union will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Mindoko County Courthouse in Rupert to discuss how the fuel crisis personally affects the Farmers Union member and his ability to produce food and fiber and to pay his bills.

Major problems facing the farmers in the area will be discussed and plans made for the Utah-Idaho Farmers Union convention scheduled for the Ponderosa Inn in Burley Jan. 10, 11 and 12. All farmers and their wives, whether or not they are members, are invited to attend the Tuesday night meeting.

Coyote's food misunderstood

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — A dead Latah County coyote that had eaten 27 mice has stirred much interest and some misunderstandings about a study underway in Moscow on coyote food habits.

Dr. Maurice Hornocker, leader of the Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit at the College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences, said the study is being conducted by Peter Black, an undergraduate wildlife management student.

US, Canadian harvests key to world supplies

(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — A single poor harvest in the United States and Canada could trigger a worldwide food shortage at least as serious as the energy crisis, a leading agricultural expert warns.

"The current global food shortage is often regarded as a temporary situation," Lester R. Brown told a news conference here. "But there are many indications that it signifies a fundamental change in the world food economy."

Brown, now on the staff of the Overseas Development Council and formerly a Department of Agriculture official, pointed out that grain is the key to the potential crisis and that the U.S. and Canada—together control a large share of the world's exportable supply of cereal than the Middle East of oil.

This being the case, he explained, crop failures in North America, coupled with population pressures and rising affluence—which prompts people to purchase meat derived from grain-fed animals—could easily combine to produce sellers' markets and consequent famine around the world.

For example, Brown said, people in the developed nations now consume at least five times as much grain per capita as the average person in the developing countries. But as larger numbers of people in these areas have become more affluent, the gap has begun to close—creating an intensifying international competition for the limited supply of grain and grain-based protein.

As things now look, he explained, the situation will double the demand for food by the year 2000.

One of the most ominous aspects of the pending crisis, Brown reported, is that—despite bumper grain crops in North America this year—grain reserves are at an all-time low. Thus, while the U.S. had enough grain in storage in 1961 to last the world 94 days, it has enough to do so now for less than a month.

Among other factors cited by Brown as making the outlook gloomy:

—A world fish catch leveling off and even declining—limiting the usefulness of the oceans as alternatives to meat as a source of protein.

—A scarcity of land available for agriculture in the developed world and a deterioration of the quality of land through erosion, deforestation and over population in underdeveloped nations.

—Fertilizer shortages due to the energy crisis, which has created scarcities of naphtha and natural gas—the raw material for nitrogen-rich agricultural chemicals.

—Water shortages in some parts of the world and serious frequent flooding in others—traceable in part to changing weather conditions and in part to man's abuse to the land.

—Failure to increase the productivity of the soybean—the richest source of plant protein.

Utah's prices higher

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah's farmers and ranchers got slightly higher average prices for most commodities in mid-November than during the previous month.

The Utah Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said early figures showed higher prices for wheat, hay, dry beans, alfalfa seed, hogs, sheep, turkeys, wool and milk.

Prices were lower for beef cattle, calves, milk cows and barley. Potato and egg prices were unchanged, according to the report.

Wheat prices jumped 18 cents per bushel from mid-October to mid-November, averaging $4.05 per bushel. That's $2.35 higher than a year ago.

Barley was 10 cents lower than in October but 94 cents higher than last year. At $41.50 per ton, alfalfa was the highest on average since April. Dry beans went up $4.00 per cwt., and established a record high at $24.00 per cwt.

Average prices for beef cattle and calves declined during the month but advances were made in hogs, sheep and lambs, and wool.

Cows were $28.00 per cwt., down $4.00 from a month ago. Steers, heifers and calves all showed declines, while hogs, lambs and sheep showed small gains.

Milk off

BOISE (UPI) — Milk production in Idaho during October was down 6 per cent compared to the same month in 1972. Production of American cheese showed an increase of 22 per cent for the same time.

The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today 126 million pounds of milk was produced in Idaho during October and 4.3 million pounds of American cheese.

Farm

Dollar, predator solutions proposed

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The president of the National Wool Growers' Association told cattlemen and sheep herders the future holds two major problems for them — too few dollars and too many predators.

Bill Siddoway advised the first joint state stockmen's convention Thursday to fight low incomes by exporting their products and to battle coyotes by supporting legislation allowing the use of toxicants.

"We must begin using modernized methods of merchandising our products. Why not export some of our meat?" he asked the ranchers attending the opening session of a meeting of the Utah Cattlemen's Association and the Utah Wool Growers' Association.

He named the Arabs and the Japanese as the primary overseas customers.

"The Arabs have oil. They eat lamb. They can trade us oil or money (from what I hear they have plenty of both) for lamb. It would also be feasible to send lamb to Japan," said the woolgrowers' leader.

"If we exported our products, we could raise our prices since there would be greater demand. And we could increase production. Then we could concentrate on fighting the predator," said Siddoway.

He lashed out at legislative attempts to ban toxicants and praised the stockmen's efforts at battling those efforts.

"The legislation was nonsense. Fortunately, it is practically dead. We did pretty well and now have it sacked," he said.

He predicted ranchers will be allowed to use the M-44 cyanide gun, but "we need other tools to fight the coyotes."

Siddoway told the ranchers their efforts may be helped by the energy crisis and the food shortage, "which will make the public realize our importance."

Rhoana Findlay, president of the Utah CowBelles, outlined a program her group initiated in Utah schools to help residents live with the shortages and the rising food prices.

The group is conducting a beef education project in 30 schools, teaching young homemakers how to choose the best quality meat for the lowest price, how to plan time in the kitchen and how to prepare meats.

"The program combines public relations, beef education and beef promotion," said Mrs. Findlay.

Earlier in the day Gov. Calvin Rampton told the ranchers the agriculture industry in the state will receive the second highest priority in fuel allocation but urged them to make maximum use of their shares.

"We will give a very high priority to production and distribution of food, but this does not mean that you can be wasteful," Rampton said. "You simply can't afford it."

Fuel shortages hamper farm expansion planning

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Plans by California farmers and ranchers to increase their operations to meet growing worldwide demands will probably have to be abandoned because of fuel shortages, a top state agriculture organization said Thursday.

"The situation is critical," said Allan Grant, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation, largest agriculture group in the state with 60,000 members. "The impact of the fuel shortage will be felt not only in food prices paid by consumers but also in industries related to agriculture, such as trucking firms, supermarkets, restaurants and others," he added.

Grant said that because agriculture was the No. 1 industry of California, farmers "must be guaranteed adequate supplies of necessary resources." Farmers, Grant said, "are in a real bind. Many had purchased large diesel tractors in order to handle their increased acreage. Now they are unable to get the diesel fuel, they are unable to obtain an allotment for the necessary quantity of fuel which they now require." Grant also said questionnaires distributed to bureau members "indicate that obtaining adequate supplies of fuel, particularly diesel fuel, is a critical problem throughout the state."

Alaskan town for Christmas

CANTWELL, Alaska (UPI) — For the period who has everything, how about an Alaskan town situated on 242 acres?

The entire town of Cantwell, with the exception of the railroad station and post office plus a few homes, is for sale. Situated in the shadow of Mt. McKinley, the highest peak in North America, Cantwell comes complete with a restaurant, motel, two gas stations and a ready made population of 200.

Herman Cotter Jr. put the town on the market because he wants to move 205 miles south to Anchorage. He's asking $750,000.

T-N Washington Bureau WASHINGTON, D.C. — The blocking of federal interstate highways by truckers was declared to be "not a federal but a state issue," by President Nixon's deputy press secretary, Gerald Warren, in a White House press briefing Thursday.

Warren's statement was promptly challenged by several newsmen, who asked why this obstruction of federal highways is not a federal issue.

"There are proper ways of settling disputes when there are potential signs of iniquities," explained Warren. "Isn't it a crime to interfere with interstate commerce?"

"I won't debate legalities," said Warren.

The Times-News then asked: "If the Nixon administration countenanced police sweeps which arrested everyone upon the streets of this city one mayday, regardless of whether they had anything to do with attempting to demobilize Washington, why is there silence from the White House when the Teamsters deliberately block the nation's highway system?"

Warren declined to comment.

CBS commentator Dan Rather then asked about Charles Colson, a former White House aide who has been identified during Watergate hearings as closely connected with "dirty tricks" during the 1972 presidential election campaign, who is now employed by the Teamsters.

"What was Colson doing in the White House this morning?" asked Rather. Warren, looked slightly abashed, paused briefly, and answered: "Well, he was attending a prayer breakfast."

When this evoked expression of general surprise from the assembled newsmen, Warren angrily retorted: "Why is there such a reaction when people gather to practice what they believe in?"

But, Warren was asked, is not Mr. Colson now a lobbyist for the Teamsters? "Well suppose he is?" shot back Warren, visibly annoyed. "Sen. Hughes of Iowa was the speaker, why is there any difference between Mr. Colson being present and Sen. Hughes?"

FTC announces two new consumer laws

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two new rules designed to protect consumers from fast talking door-to-door salesmen and hard selling mail order houses will go into effect next year, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) announced today.

The door-to-door rule says that any salesman doing business outside his store, including by telephone, must give his customers the right to cancel an order within three days after the sale, without penalty.

The rule applies only to sales of $25 or more in consumer goods and services.

"It is premised on the theory that during the three-day cooling off period the consumer may reflect upon the wisdom of his purchase and perhaps consult more knowledgeable members of the family or consumer protection agencies," the FTC said. "If he should then decide that his purchase was unwise he may cancel the sale."

The rule goes into effect June 7, as does the second provision covering "negative option" sales plans — tactics sometimes used by book and record clubs which notify their customers they will be sent a "selection" unless they notify the company they don't want it.

Under the new rule any firm using such a plan must clearly disclose that fact in any advertising or other promotion material. The sellers must also give their customers at least 10 days in which to notify the firm not to send the merchandise, and the seller must also guarantee postage for merchandise returned to it by customers who did not order it.

LOW COST IN-STORE FINANCING, WE CARRY OUR OWN ACCOUNTS

S. Africa terminates gold plan

By CLYDE W. FARNSWORTH (c) New York Times Service
 PARIS — South Africa and the International Monetary fund announced today the termination of a 1969 gold sales agreement that dealers in Europe described as "dead as a doornail" anyway.
 The first reaction was that there should be little if any effect on gold prices, which today edged up about $1 an ounce to $107 in relatively quiet trading in London and Zurich. Signed in December, 1969, the accord had two principal provisions. In effect, it underwrote the output of South African mines by assuring that their production could always be sold at the "official" price. South Africa was obliged in turn, when it needed to sell gold in the private market, to do so in an "orderly manner."

 The announcement, which was issued in Washington and South Africa, said the initiative for termination had come from South Africa.
 It follows within three weeks the termination of another gold agreement made in March, 1968, that barred bullion sales on the free market by national monetary authorities.
 That decision paved the way, theoretically at least, for massive offerings of gold. The day it was announced, gold prices tumbled $7, to $90 an ounce, but the uncertain economic outlook — the threat of a generalized recession with inflation — has caused prices to bounce back again.
 Gold is a haven for investment in troubled times. The prices of all metals and most raw materials have similarly bounded up.
 According to an I.M.F. statement in Washington, South Africa said that in its view "the basis of the policy on sales of South African gold to the fund had been removed by the termination of the March, 1968, agreement."
 South Africa, the biggest producer of gold in the world, used its sales agreement with the IMF in 1970 and 1971, but subsequently there was little need to implement the provisions because of the steep rise in the free market price.
 Today the price stands at nearly three times the official price of $42.22, at which inter-governmental valuations are made.

 The accord had permitted South Africa to sell some of its output directly to the IMF at the official price, which in 1969 still stood at $35 an ounce.
 Otherwise South Africa could have been forced to direct all its sales to the free market.
 While some congressmen and treasury officials in the United States wouldn't have minded seeing the price of gold plummet, there was little sympathy for this point of view in Europe.
 The actual agreement was negotiated by the U. S. and South Africa and then it became incorporated in IMF rules.
 The U.S. was under pressure from its European partners in those days to reach the agreement with South Africa. Subsequently, American treasury officials were criticized in congress for accommodating South Africa.
 South Africa has lately been selling considerable quantities of gold on the market. The latest reporting period showed sales at a rate of $4.5 million a week, representing both newly mined output and gold from South African reserves.
 The reason for the heavy sales is that South Africa is in balance of payment deficit at the moment. Like most industrial countries it has been hit by the higher cost — and shortage — of oil.

Facility pledges total delivery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U. S. Postal Service pledged Friday that despite fuel shortages, every post office in the nation is going to be empty of mail after the last deliveries Christmas Eve.

"We are committed that on Christmas Eve—Dec. 24—our post offices will be free of mail. Postmaster General E. T. Klassen announced in a news conference.

Klassen said this did not mean every letter, card, and package will get delivered by Christmas no matter how late it is mailed, because "there will always be mail in the pipeline."

But he said it was a "commitment to the American people" that barring unforeseen events that the postal service cannot control, mail will not be backed up as last year when 300 million pieces clogged post-offices and distribution centers on Christmas Eve.

"We don't plan ever to get caught as we did last year, again," Klassen said.

The 1972 crisis resulted from a hiring freeze imposed in March and not lifted in time and from an unexpected crush of Christmas advertising mail, he said. Klassen believes he has adequate manpower this year.

 The big problem this year is fuel shortage. The Service and its many contract operators are having to scrounge for the 45 million gallons of fuel needed this month for 224,000 vehicles and 176 air taxis.

Highways blocked by trucks protesting energy restrictions during the past few days have held up the mail in isolated instances, he said.

Klassen said other factors, however, are working in favor of a "record performance" for 1973.

—Manpower stands about 700,000 employees, up from 675,000 last year working conditions are improved, largely through automation and modernizing installations, he said. Klassen said the workers are "committed to do the work."

—People are responding to plans to mail early and the millings are now 7 per cent to 13 per cent ahead of last year, depending on the class of mail.

—The service has been adding 10 piggyback vans a day for several days and aims at getting 100,100 in use for combination rail and road movement of the mail.

—Standby plans are being made to get military help, if it is needed.

Consumer tips from YOUR GAS COMPANY

save more money with gas when you dry clothes

Use a full load. Try to dry as many clothes as possible in one load without overloading your machine. Fill your machine about two-thirds full for maximum clothes drying benefit.

Judge the time for drying the load. It is better to set your machine for a shorter time period. You can always reset it later if necessary. This way you are not wasting fuel on clothes that are already dry. Besides, over-drying is harmful to some fibers.

Sort clothes. Put those to be ironed in separately for a shorter drying time. When finished they'll be just the right dampness for ironing.

When drying clothes do it with gas. It's economical. And it's clean. Gas burns with no smoke and virtually no emissions, so it doesn't ruin the air we breathe. Gas is dependable. There is enough gas for home use for many cold winters and hot summers. We sell gas dryers. They're on display in all gas company offices. We'll finance your new gas dryer and handle the installation. Make payments with your gas bill. In Idaho we have gas to burn. But we all must burn it wisely. That's why we take the time to tell you about ways to use gas wisely.

Bell shoots Buhl past Vallivue

BULL. — The Buhl Indians rode the scoring of Monty Bell and the rebounding of the Hamilton brothers to a 57-51 decision over the Vallivue Falcons Friday night for their third-straight victory.

It was a physical game that saw Buhl win it at the free throw line. Vallivue harassed defensively the entire night and picked up several fouls in jumping the ball off the offensive board after a Buhl player had secured it.

Bell blazed for 12 points in the first quarter but didn't get the ball that much thereafter. Pat Hamilton, although the shorter of the two brothers, was the more effective on the boards.

Buhl held the lead just about all night and late in the game looked like a shoo-in with nine points and 57 seconds left to play. But Vallivue, on two steals, cut the deficit to four points, cut the deficit to four points in 16 seconds and then got the ball back three seconds later. A turnover killed its chance and Mike Hamilton then tucked it away with two charity throws.

Bell shook loose inside repeatedly for close-in shots in the early skirmishing with Vallivue replying on the scoring of Del Christensen. Vallivue caught up at 14-14 — after falling behind on an 8-8 situation — but Bell gave Buhl a 16-14 rest edge. Dee Pickett tied it for Vallivue seconds later but Bell quickly threw in four more points and the Indians were ahead to stay.

By halftime the Indians were up by nine but then struggled with only three points through the first four minutes of the third period. Vallivue was only slightly warmer but did cut the lead to six points before again falling back by nine.

Two and one-half minutes into the final period the Falcons, with Christensen getting four of the points, again allied into the lead at 45-41 but Pat Hamilton and Tom Carson steadied Buhl and after another Christensen bucket, Bell and Mike Hamilton shot it back to nine. It stayed like that until Vallivue's last-minute rush.

Vallivue took the opener 54-44.

OAKLEY. — Don Pickett scored all his 10 points in the third quarter Friday night when Oakley broke away from Carey and stormed off with a 61-41 victory.

Carey, with Jerry Ivie getting 12 of his points, stayed in contention through the first half, trailing 20-18. Oakley built the lead largely on the 14-point production of Sharp. But after outscoring the Panthers 20-9 in the third quarter, Oakley was the easy winner.

Oakley won the first game 39-37.

BURLEY. — The Burley Bobcats ran up a 24-2 first quarter lead and went on to beat the hapless Jerome Tigers 85-52 Friday night.

The Bobcats were successful in their home opener while the Tigers remain winless for the season.

After building the commanding early lead the Bobcats maintained a 48-21 margin at the intermission.

The Burley reserves took over in the second half and 12 Bobcats made the scoring column with three players in double figures. Kerry Taylor, high point scorer with 16 points for Burley, sprained his ankle in the third quarter. Chapman was the leading scorer for the Tigers with 18 points.

Huskies outlast Richfield

RICHFIELD. — The Hansen Huskies repented a narrow victory over the Richfield Tigers 31-27 Friday night in a game punctuated by a bizarre ending.

The Huskies, who won 30-34 last week, saw their six-point lead — big for this low scoring affair — dwindle to one-point with eight seconds left — and Richfield had the ball. A Tiger was called for an offensive foul and Hansen was given a one-and-one free throw situation. That brought Coach Leroy Johnson off the bench to the tune of two technical fouls and Byron Slinger then hit three of the four charity tosses to pull the Huskies out to the final four-point margin.

Richfield fell behind on a two-point second quarter — but only by three points. Hansen managed its six-point lead at 20-14 in the third quarter by outscoring the Tigers only 8-5.

Should a skier buy a place at Sun Valley just because the skiing's great?

Of course not, though the skiing might be reason enough for some. Sun Valley has some of the world's most magnificent slopes.

One of the country's most famous mountains, Baldy, stands tall and challenging for the expert skier. And for the not-so-expert, there's the famous teaching mountain, Dollar/Elkhorn.

But Elkhorn at Sun Valley is a great place to be, anytime, even if you don't like to ski.

For the sports-minded, Elkhorn has tennis, year-round skating, riding, swimming.

And there's terrific golfing. There's a beautiful 18-hole golf course in Sun Valley, and by next summer, Elkhorn will have its own course designed by Robert Trent Jones.

For the outdoorsmen, there's fishing, hunting, and hiking in the nearby Sawtooth Mountains, one-time retreat of Ernest Hemingway. There's a real community growing in Elkhorn. It's more of a village than a weekend resort. Many Elkhorn residents live there year-round. Others make it their second home.

The price is another reason not to be overlooked. For as little as $12,500 you can own a fully-improved, quarter-acre home site. For $25,000 you can own a 5-acre ranch site. Financing is available for lot sales.

Or you can select a condominium that's ready and waiting, just a few minutes walk from the ski lift to the top of Dollar/Elkhorn Mountain.

It's one measure of Elkhorn's value that almost 30% of the purchasers are ready to move in Idaho. So don't wait until the ski season starts. There are only 2950 acres in Elkhorn and more than 1800 have been reserved for natural or open space.

Shoshone went on top 16-13 in the first period but Hagerman came back with 29 points in the second period to lead 42-34 at the intermission.

The Indians came back in the third period to trail by only one at 42-41 before Hagerman scored. Hagerman still retained a one-point margin at the close of the third quarter.

Shoshone's Haddock scored 10 points in the last quarter to lead the Indians to the win. Haddock finished the night with 21 points.

Shoshone nipped Hagerman 36-35 in the preliminary game.

CSI faces big four-game week without Ron Fryson

Storm warnings are flying over the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium with University of Nevada-Las Vegas Jayvees coming to town Monday and Tuesday and sophomore starter Ron Fryson hobbling around in a walking cast.

Fryson became the latest added to the growing list of injuries sustained by Coach Jerry Hale's crew this year.

And this one could be critical. Consider:

— Las Vegas is coming off a win over Arizona Western, regarded as having as good talent as any junior college team in the nation.

— The two Las Vegas home games will be followed by two in Eastern Idaho at week's end. The fourth game, Saturday night, will be at Ricks College and this is a "must" game since it figures into who will enter and host the regional tournament next March.

— Fryson is scoring roughly 27 percent of CSI's points over the first eight games in addition to running probably second and no worse than third in rebounding.

"It's going to put a lot of pressure on a couple of other young men on this team," Coach Hale said. "They are going to have to start looking at the bucket."

Fryson joined sophomore guard Roger Campbell, on the sidelines in rather similar fashion: Campbell popped a knee out when he simply turned while dribbling.

The largest crowd of the season — at the Utah State game Thursday — saw Fryson injured but probably like most never imagined the seriousness of the thing.

Fryson, all alone, was dribbling up the floor against Utah State. His foot hit a slick spot and slipped perhaps two to four inches, Ron recalls. Fans will remember the incident as the one he appeared to simply dribble the ball out of bounds after losing his balance for no apparent reason.

But when the foot came off the slick spot, Fryson felt the pain. Following the game he said he hurt his toe. Friday morning, X-rays showed a hairline fracture of his foot and he will not see any action until after the Christmas break at least.

Coach Hale believes Las Vegas will easily be the toughest foe coming into Twin Falls thus far, and perhaps for the year.

"You don't know exactly who they'll bring here because of the frosh eligible rule," he said. "I know they've been playing some freshmen on the varsity but they can, if they want, move the players around. We do know that Jeep Kelly (considered perhaps the best high school guard in the nation last year) will be here

UCLA wins 78th straight win 77-60 romp over S. Methodist

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — UCLA, behind Bill Walton's 25 points and 16 rebounds, made it 78 games in a row by coasting to a 77-60 victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night.

The Bruins, coming off a one-point win over Maryland last weekend, settled the issue in the first half when they outscored the Mustangs 18-0 over a six-minute stretch to build up a 35-12 lead.

SMU, now even on the year at 2-2, was paced by senior forward Sammy Hervey's 22 points and 16 points from sophomore center Ira Turrell. Walton got 18 points and 14 rebounds in the first half, hitting eight of his first 11 shots to give UCLA a 40-20 intermission margin.

The Bruins also got 12 points from senior forward Keith Wilkes and 11 from junior forward Peto Trgovich.

The game was the first basketball meeting between the two schools. SMU plays at UC Santa Barbara Monday night.

UCLA, which has won seven straight NCAA titles and nine in the past 10 years, faces second-ranked North Carolina State next Saturday in St. Louis. North Carolina State was 27-0 last season.

N.M. Staters thump BYU

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (UPI) — Freshman Richard Robinson led a quartet of New Mexico State players in double figures with 20 points Saturday night as the Aggies beat Brigham Young, 93-74.

Beames' late free throw tips Gooding

EDEN-HAZELTON — Kim Beames hit a pressure free throw with two seconds left Friday night to hoist the Valley Vikings past the Gooding Senators 45-44 in a non-conference game.

Beames winning bucket came just 30 seconds after his 30-footer gave Valley a tie.

Gooding, which trailed most of the time from the second period on, had flurried and went ahead 44-41 with 48 seconds left. Beames then launched his bomb.

Gooding worked several seconds for a shot but missed the chance with Valley rebounding. Beames was then fouled and hit the first of a one-and-one situation.

Both teams started slowly, knotted up at 6-6 at the end of the first quarter. But Valley bounced out from there to gain a 22-13 intermission lead. The Vikings went ahead once by 10 early in the third quarter but Gooding closed from that point on.

Gooding won the preliminary easily.

Murtaugh avenges loss to Mushers

MURTAUGH — The Murtaugh Red Devils avenged an opening loss to Camas County by defeating the Mushers 56-51 Friday night.

Camas County, last year's A-4 consolation champs, opened the season with a 59-50 victory over Murtaugh, last year's state champions.

The Red Devils led the Mushers 13-10 in the first quarter but the Mushers tied the score 28-28 at the intermission.

The game remained close in the third quarter with the Mushers leading by a single point when the period ended. In the last quarter Perkins scored six and Wright added five points to give the Red Devils the five-point victory. In the last quarter Osborne scored seven for Camas County.

Osborne was the game's top scorer with 20 points. Wright was high point man for Murtaugh with 19 points.

Murtaugh defeated Camas County in the preliminary game.

A-State ends Wildcat skein

MANHATTAN, Kan. (UPI) — Arizona State ended Kansas State's winning streak at 24 games with a 71-66 victory Saturday night.

Kansas State tied the game at 64-64 on two free throws by Cal Gerlach with 2:09 left. But Arizona State countered with two free throws by Lionel Hollins to put the Sun Devils on top for good.

Howard Payne drops Broncs

For safety buy a full-size car

For safety and mileage drive it slower.

THE BIGGER YOUR CAR — THE SAFER YOU ARE

A study conducted by the New York Department of Motor Vehicles and funded by the U.S. Department of Transportation proved a very important fact: the bigger your car, the safer you are.

"Your chance of avoiding death or serious injury in a crash is three times as great in a luxury car as in a subcompact, and your chances are more than twice as good in a standard-size car."

Yes. A big car will probably use a little more gas than a small car. But how much? The difference may cost you $120.00* per year, depending on how much you drive and how you drive. But when it comes to your family's safety, isn't it worth it?

* Based on 11,000 miles per year — 22¢ per gallon. Small car 25 mpg average, full-size car 15 mpg average.

THE USAC BUICK ECONOMY RUN PROVES THE CASE FOR SLOWER DRIVING

The United State Automobile Club sanctioned economy run for Buick began in San Diego on November 10th. It ended in New York on November 16th. Two identical Buick Electra's, Buicks' biggest, were in the test.

One Electra, driving at 70 miles-an-hour averaged 15.3 miles-per-gallon. The second Electra, at 50-miles-an-hour averaged 18.3 miles-per-gallon. 19.6% greater gas mileage for a 20-mile-an-hour reduction in speed.

How you drive a car can mean the difference between driving a small car or enjoying the safety and comfort of a full-size one. Isn't the safety and enjoyment of a full-size car worth the small inconvenience of arriving a few minutes later?

IS A FULL-SIZE CAR MORE ECONOMICAL THAN A NEW SMALL CAR?

It could be. A lot depends on where you buy it. Abbie Uriguen's has a full selection of late-model re-newed cars that have been thoroughly reconditioned. Re-newed to provide you with mile after mile of trouble-free driving.

More important, the purchase price of any one of these re-newed cars is no more than a new small car. Because one very large important cost has already been paid: DEPRECIATION. All you pay for is value.

ABBIE URIGUEN'S HAS THE RE-NEWED CAR CENTER

Abbie's Re-newed Car Center is more than just a "Used Car Lot."

Every re-newed car at Abbie's has been thoroughly gone over and totally reconditioned. It's covered by the dealer's own guarantee that you must be completely satisfied with it.

You should be able to have new-car confidence in any used car you buy. At Abbie Uriguen's you can have total confidence in any re-newed car you choose. It's as close to new as you can get. Inside and out.

Bruins rip Caldwell by 95-54 in league opener

The Twin Falls Bruins turned on their devastating height against a rather weak Caldwell team Saturday night and rolled to their third straight victory 95-54.

Conference season opener, the Bruins blew ahead 28-10 in the first quarter — and still had a three-minute scoreless spell. For the third game Coach Don Haynes, who substituted quite freely through the first three periods, didn't let a starter play in the fourth period. But the second five, paced by Santos Salinas' 10 points, struck for 10 to open the lead still further.

Caldwell's main hope was junior Tim Batt who staged a 24-point scoring display, but that was nullified by the Bruins' Eric Hovey who tanked 20 and Caldwell had nothing close to matching the other three double-figure scorers Twin Falls had.

Only once in the game did Caldwell have anything close to a flurry. That came in the second period when Twin Falls moved up 34-12 and then saw Caldwell outscore it 10-2 to reduce the margin to 34-14. But Jim Lash and Hovey then broke loose for four and five points, respectively, to blow Twin Falls ahead, 49-28 at intermission.

Hovey scored 11 of his points in the first six minutes of the third quarter and Lash came up with six points off the offensive boards before Coach Haynes went to the bench with a 74-39 advantage.

Twin Falls sophomores took their third straight 59-47 after being tied 42-42 late in the third quarter.

Idaho tops Reno

MOSCOW, (UPI) — The Idaho Vandals built a 10-point lead two-thirds of the way through the first half and used a nine-point scoring burst in the second half to whip the University of Nevada-Reno 68-58 Friday night.

With the Vandals leading 40-40 early in the second, Idaho scored nine straight to make it 55-40 and the game was out of reach for Reno. Leading the Vandals in scoring were Henry Harris with 18 and Ty Fitzpatrick with 16. For Nevada-Reno, Pete Padgett and Marvin Buckley each had 16.

HAILEY — The Wood River Wolverines pulled away in the last quarter Saturday night to post their second decision of the year over Kimberly 60-52.

The Bulldogs, who fell out of contention in the second quarter of their first meeting, gave the Wolverines a lot more trouble. It generally was a two to four point game and wound up 41-41 at the end of the third period.

But the Wolverines starting hitting in the fourth quarter while Kimberly's point production fell off.

Borah overhauls Minico 66-60 with 22-point fourth quarter

RUPERT — The Borah Lions, rated the class of the western division of the Southern Idaho Conference, had to come up with a closing rush to defeat the Minico Spartans 66-60 Saturday night.

Minico, hit by injuries and young, wasn't expected to give the veteran Lions this type of action. But Coach Gary Swan's charges put a shutout on high scoring center Randy Lee.

easy buckets off steals and the two fought nearly head-to-head until the final two minutes.

Minico's chances for the upset died when, after the Spartans solved the press for three apparently easy layups, the shots rolled off the rim.

Connor, hitting the offensive board for a crucial rebound shot in the closing rally, scored eight points in the final period — mostly from the outside. Thompson hit six and Lloyd Neher had five.

Borah won the preliminary 53-50.

Louisiana Tech nips BSC in last 12 seconds

21-yard bomb ends see-saw tilt 38-34

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (UPI) — Quarterback Denny Duron threw 21 yards to Roger Carr for a Louisiana Tech touchdown with only 12 seconds left in the game Saturday to give the Bulldogs a 38-34 Pioneer Bowl triumph over

Boise State. Louisiana Tech's victory sends the Bulldogs to the NCAA College Division playoffs against Western Kentucky next Saturday in Sacramento, Calif. Duron's pass capped a 55-yard drive and overcame a 34-

Triple-handed receiver catcher

EXTRA-HANDED Tyrone Jones of Louisiana Tech seems to have a definite advantage in tackling Boise State's Don Hutt at the end of a pass play in the Pioneer Bowl Saturday. Actually the third hand comes from teammate Larry Griffin. Hutt was named the top offensive player of the game but BSC was beaten 38-34 in the last 12 seconds. (UPI Telephoto)

Boise State grabbed the lead at 20-17 on a 35-yard pass from McMillan to Dave Nicley, but Tech came back to claim a 24-20 margin with an 80-yard, eight-play drive capped by a 59-yard pass from Duron to Carr.

Again McMillan rallied the Broncos, hitting John Davis on an 80-yard pass for a touchdown with 11:42 to go in the game. Six minutes later Duron, who finished with 16 of 30 passes for 258 yards, had Tech back out in front with a one-yard run. Boise fashioned its final lead with 3:43 left on a 31-yard pass from McMillan to wide receiver Don Hutt. But the 34-31 margin did not stand up against Duron's passing.

McDaniel finished with 20 carries for 116 yards and two touchdowns for the winning Bulldogs. McMillan connected on 23 of 38 passes for 363 yards and three touchdowns in the losing effort.

Oakland overpowers Kansas City 37-7

By JOE SARGIS UPI Sports Writer OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Marv Hubbard and Charlie Smith ran for 200 yards between them, including a touchdown apiece, in leading the Oakland Raiders to a 37-7 rout of the Kansas City Chiefs Saturday and a step closer to the AFC West title.

The victory gave the Raiders an 8-4-1 record and put them a game ahead of the Denver Broncos, who meet the San Diego Chargers Sunday and then play Oakland next week. The Chiefs suffered their fifth loss compared to six victories and two ties and thus were eliminated from any chance for post-season play. Hubbard, who usually plays his best against the Chiefs, ran for more than 100 yards and scored on a 31-yard dash up the middle in the first half when the Raiders opened a 20-0 lead. Smith tallied on a 10-yard run in the fourth quarter when the Raiders converted two pass interceptions into 14 points to make it a rout.

The other Oakland scores came on a pair of passes by Ken Stabler—a nine-yarder to Fred Biletnikoff and a three-yarder to Cliff Branch—and George Blanda added field goals of 20, 28 and 27 yards

Vikings roll past Green Bay 31-7

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — The playoff-bound Minnesota Vikings, led by two Fran Tarkenton touchdown passes and the burning of rookie Chuck Foreman, showed no mercy for numerous Green Bay mistakes Saturday, crushing the Packers 31-7. The Vikings, rebounding from the first shutout loss in 11 years a week earlier, scored touchdowns following a fumble recovery, an interception, a short punt and a blocked field goal and then added a field goal after another interception.

John Brockington provided the only real cause for joy among the Packers by rushing for 124 yards in 27 carries to climb over the 1,000-yard mark for the third time in as many years as a pro—a feat never before accomplished in the National Football League.

Brockington, who received a standing ovation when it was announced, has 1,002 yards with one game to go.

But the hero of the game as far as the Vikings were concerned was cornerback Bobby Bryant who intercepted three Jerry Tagge passes and returned one of them 40 yards for a touchdown.

Bryant's runback came in the first quarter less than a minute after the Vikes took a 7-0 lead on a 21-yard TD pass from Tarkenton to Stu Voigt.

Williams paces Wildcat win

EVANSTON, Ill. (UPI) — Junior college transfer Willie Williams hit nine quick points in the first six minutes of the second half Saturday to help pull Northwestern from a 31-30 halftime lead to a 76-65 victory over DePaul.

Northwestern, playing deliberate-style basketball under new Coach Tex Winter, shot only 38 per cent from the field but committed 11 fewer turnovers than DePaul in handing the Blue Demons their first loss in three games.

DePaul was hampered when its center, Richard Sloger, committed four fouls in the first 15 minutes of the game. Williams, a 6-foot-4 forward, and Bryan Ashbaugh each scored 17 points for Northwestern, which is now 3-1. Mike Boeinsky led DePaul with 19.

Wittenberg has title

PHENIX CITY, Ala. (UPI) — Quarterback Lloyd Ball scored four touchdowns on sneaker plays Saturday to lead Wittenberg University to a 41-0 win over Juniata College in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl and clinch the NCAA College Division Three national championship.

Ohio Athletic Conference, scored on its first three possessions with drives of 78, 49 and 33 yards.

Ball sneaked across from the two in the first quarter for the Tigers' first score. He added two touchdowns in the second quarter on one-yard sneaker plays and came back in the third quarter, sneaking over from the one for another score.

West Kentucky tips Grambling

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Quarterback Dennis Tomek passed for 285 yards and two touchdowns to lead undefeated Western Kentucky to a 28-20 Grantland Rice Bowl victory over Grambling Saturday and put the Hilltoppers in the NCAA Division 2 championship game.

Western Kentucky, now 11-0 for the season and second-ranked nationally, will play Louisiana Tech in the Camelia Bowl in Sacramento, Calif., next Saturday to decide the Division 2 national championship.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, DECEMBER 9, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today's Full Moon has many tests, but if you take them in your stride you can accomplish a very great deal. If you upset present conditions because you are restless and want changes you may land behind the eight-ball.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get out to the services that inspire you, but use caution in motion. Don't react sarcastically to the comments of others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Although you may feel unhappy with your present financial set-up, this is not the time to make any radical or thoughtless changes. Get advice from experts.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be charming to gain cherished wishes. Don't use radical plan now for social advancement. It could get you into hot water instead.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Keep promises made to others instead of fretting over them. Assist others with their problems, also. Put your religious beliefs to work.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Make this a day of rest instead of permitting your overly energetic friends to take you out for strenuous sports. Do something thoughtful for mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can handle outside affairs well now, so get busy early. Plan what must be done so you improve image with the public.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Check new ideas with a trusted adviser, or you could get into trouble. Don't permit a new contact to get you off the track.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Use good judgment handling any problems today instead of following hunches. Make allowances for an associate who is not feeling well or acting quite right.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) An associate wants to make new arrangements, so listen carefully but don't commit yourself until you have slept over them. Don't give advice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Show appreciation to one who has done you many favors. Plan time to rest and relax. Don't neglect spiritual studies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Have a delightful time without spending too much. Find out what one you like would appreciate, then try to please.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show devotion to home ties since they feel neglected. Steer clear of talks with others that could mean arguments. Think.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have a mind that literally roams the universe. Plan now to give a fine education to this unusual youngster who can then achieve real fame and fortune. Situations arise very quickly in this life which only proper training will fit to handle satisfactorily. A powerful, fast thinker here. Much travel is denoted. The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Young lady, if you intend to suggest marriage to a man, better pick one with a college education. Studies show those college boys are far less likely to get irritated by a feminine proposal. Men with no college generally tend to resent such forward performances by females, evidently. Or so our Love and War man contends. He gets his data from a report by a team of psychology scholars who thought a study on the matter worthwhile.

Only one obese teenager in 28 ever aims down to normal weight. Understand there's an Eskimo language edition of the Sherlock Holmes stories. Approximately 27 per cent of the citizens hereabouts can claim hazel, gray or green eyes. So few realize that the word "green" means both "pleasantly alluring" and "marked by a sickly appearance." Also note, please, the typical wife fixes her husband 40 meals at home for every one meal he buys her in restaurants.

LICENSES

Was none other than that savvy Leo Davids who predicted that less than one third of the future marriages will produce children. He's the prognosticator who contended matrimonial mates will need government licenses to become parents. And he said we could expect an end to divorce after trial marriages get underway.

Statistically, the man whose father died at age 80 or older can expect to live just about 10 years longer than the man whose father died before the age of 50.

Closer you get to the equator, the more kinds of evergreens you find.

MARIJUANA

The medical boys are trying to figure out a way to experiment legally with marijuana in the hope that it can treat glaucoma by reducing pressure in the eyes. Unfortunately, government regulations inhibit. The research scientist with a basket of marijuana today is like yesterday's surgeon with a skeleton in his closet. Too bad.

Q. "Do U.S. presidents live longer or shorter than their normal life expectancy?"

A. Depends. Before 1850, the presidents outlived their longevity expectations at the time of taking office by an average of 2.9 years. Between 1850 and 1900, the presidents fell short of their longevity expectations by an average of 2.9 years. In this century, they've lived an average of 11 years less than their expectations. But the assassinations of McKinley and Kennedy, plus the deaths in office of Harding and Franklin Roosevelt have gummed up the statistics.

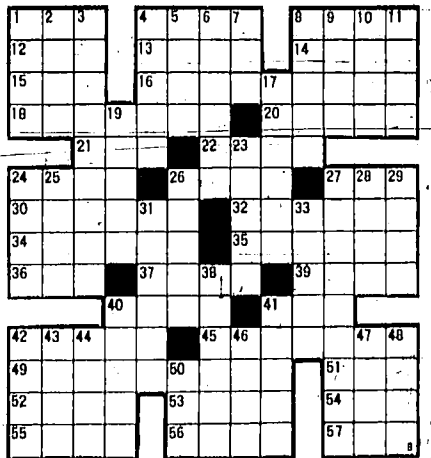

Q. "The blondes outnumber the redheads, do they not?"

A. Slightly. Figure 8 per cent are blondes, 7 per cent are redheads.

changes seen unlikely

By DWIGHT JENSEN
Special to the Times-News
BOISE — Idaho bankers and retailers would probably like to see state law changed to let them raise interest rates — but they apparently don't think they could get the job done and don't plan to try.

Present state law puts a 10 per cent interest limit on most bank loans, an 18 per cent limit on consumer credit financing, and a 15 per cent ceiling on bank charge cards.

But the interest rates that banks themselves have to pay are up around 9 per cent, so that 10 per cent maximum has become the standard interest rate on a loan to even a good customer.

With things that tight, men connected with the banking industry still say they have no plans to ask the legislature for a higher ceiling. "From this legislature," those contacted agree, they could not expect a sympathetic hearing.

Sen. H. Dean Summers, R-Boise, a businessman who has often fought against bankers on the floor of the legislature, is now himself involved in the ownership of a bank. He says he would not be surprised to see a bill introduced that would remove all interest rates. But even he doesn't predict that it could pass.

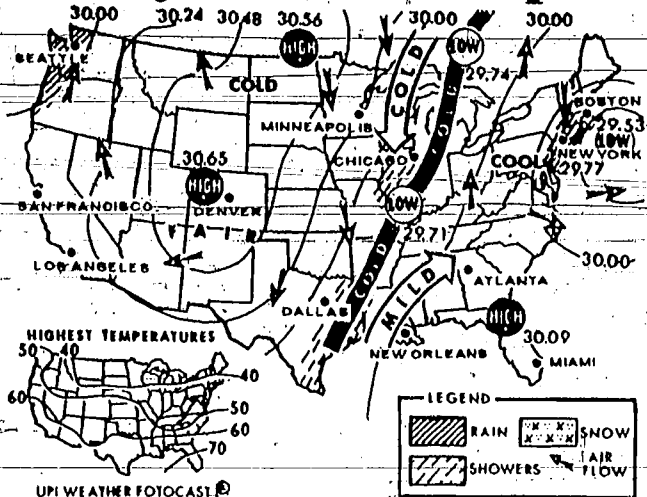

The bankers argue that removal of all limits would be best in principle because it would leave it up to competition to set interest rates.

Retailers who extend credit are also in a pinch for money, but they, too, seem to agree that this legislature would not give them what they want and there's no use making enemies by asking for it.

Grand jury studying purchase

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — While the Senate Watergate Committee probes the secret political avenues Howard Hughes may have taken to buy Airwest airlines, a federal grand jury here is pursuing its own probe of the industrialist's purchase.

Meanwhile, a third agency, the Securities and Exchange Commission, is also taking a look into the multimillion dollar airline transaction in 1968 and 1969.

It was reported that grand jury witnesses were to appear here Friday and that the federal panel might be asked to return a number of indictments in the Airwest case early in 1974.

The grand jury reportedly is investigating why Airwest finally sold for $16 million when its board of directors agreed in 1968 to sell the commuter airline for $94 million.

Meanwhile, in Washington, the Senate Watergate Committee is looking into reports that the President's brother, Donald Nixon, interceded with the President on behalf of Hughes in the Airwest matter.

Idaho farmers' prices mixed

BOISE — Prices received by Idaho farmers for the period ending mid-November were mixed, according to the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

While prices for some commodities registered declines, new highs were recorded for dry beans, dry peas, alfalfa, hay and milk. Compared with mid-November a year ago, all farm commodity prices were higher.

The reporting service said mid-November prices paid by Idaho farmers for a selected group of feed concentrates were generally slightly lower than a month earlier. Price declines were noted for cottonseed meal, soybean meal, laying feed and chick starter. Dairy feed increased from the previous month with bran and middlings unchanged. All prices for the selected group of feed concentrates were above year ago levels.

Nationwide, the prices paid by farmers for feed declined two per cent from Oct. 15 levels. Mixed livestock feeds and high protein feeds contributed most to the decrease. Hay prices were up from a month earlier. The index was 52 per cent above Nov. 15 a year ago.

The index of prices received by farmers decreased three points to 181 per cent of the January-December, 1967 average during the month ended Nov. 15. Contributing most to the decrease since mid-October were lower prices for cattle, calves, upland cotton, broilers, and soybeans. Higher prices for milk, rice, potatoes and tomatoes were only partially offsetting. The index was 38 per cent above a year earlier.

The index of prices paid by farmers for commodities and services, interest, taxes and farm wage rates for Nov. 15 and 15, up two-thirds of one per cent from a month earlier. Lower prices for feed and feeder livestock were more than offset by higher prices for other production and family living items. The index was 16 per cent above a year earlier.

Hailey, Camas Prairie and lower Wood River Valley areas: Fair today and Monday with cool temperatures. Highs both days 25 to 35 and lows tonight 10 to 20.

She certainly fell for him!

VENTURA, Calif. (UPI) — With their excellent marriage proposal behind them, Stephen and Kimberly's wedding ought to be a piece of cake.

Stephen Lester, 23, was riding around the city Friday with his fiancée, Kimberly Sauerman, 18, when he got the irrefragible urge to propose to her. But fate called first for a "falling out."

As he proposed, Lester said later, Miss Sauerman leaned against the passenger door of his pickup truck and turned to face him. But the door suddenly gave way, the bewildered girl just fell out.

Suffering minor cuts and bruises, she was treated at the county hospital. The story ended happily. Kimberly said "yes."

Former children's home aids disturbed youths

TWIN FALLS—The former Children's Home of Idaho has taken on a new image. Now known as Warm Springs Center, it is one of the few facilities in Idaho dedicated to helping emotionally disturbed children.

Some 8 to 10 years ago it was a child adoption agency and center officials say many people in Idaho still think of it in these terms. This year the name was changed and a new brochure setting out the programs and goals has been published.

Mrs. Robert Goss is the Twin Falls representative on the center's board of directors. She said many improvements have been made in the program including the selection of Wayne Miller as executive director and Gordon Smith as program director.

The center operates largely on donations from residents and business firms in Idaho who feel the center's programs are worthwhile. Mrs. Goss said there are no state or federal funds received and the center is strictly a non-profit institution.

No child is ever turned away for lack of financing. If the parents can pay for the services they are charged a nominal fee. For those unable to pay, donations and special assistance given the center covers the tab.

Children from throughout the state are served by the center and it is always operating at capacity, the local board member reported.

This year the center is working with the Boise school system to provide counseling and treatment for children who cannot be trained in regular classroom programs.

—A staff of consultants including some of the leading psychiatrists, neurologists and pediatricians in the state assist with the center program.

As a residential treatment facility for psychologically disturbed children from 13 to 18 years of age it offers a therapeutic environment which includes individual, group and family therapy, recreation, an accredited senior and structured living experience.

Mrs. Goss said plans are being made to bring officials of the school to Twin Falls to meet with civic organization and community leaders in the near future.

Recreational programs are an important factor in the center's overall picture. Daily activities are provided with special events including camping trips, skiing, swimming, arts and crafts and other recreational events.

Its versatility, styling, and roominess make it a popular choice in the Dodge pickup line. Now for 1974 we still added another popular accessory... the 4 wheel drive, to make it the most popular pickup combination on the road today.

Original yule precision drill planned by TF team

By TERRISAMPE

Photographs by Don Swensen

TWIN FALLS—The drum beats loud and spirits are strong in the hearts of the drill team members of Twin Falls High School as they prepare their annual Christmas performance for the Dec. 14 Bruin basketball game with Pocatello and the Jan. 4 game with Minico.

Currently, the drill team is bursting the seams of their "tomato" suits, which are red sleeveless, flared practice suits, in rehearsing the yuletide precision drill.

The scene is an imaginary toyshop filled with presents and toys where the girls are portraying different dolls. Tin soldiers, protecting the drill team from the spectators by carrying guns, are dressed in their regular drill team costumes which are two-toned blue flared outfits.

China dolls are dressed in the "tomato" suits with black leotards and black turtle neck sweaters underneath.

Baby dolls will be dressed in baby blue flared outfits covered with a white pinafore overtop.

Last are the clowns—drill team members dressed in brilliant reds, yellows, oranges, greens and blues all combined together in bright balloon jumpsuits.

This original drill, complete with grand finale, was composed by Melody Youtz, captain, and Vicki Sweeney and Cindy Sterling, co-captains. These three girls devised the costumes and drill, put together the music arrangement and are now teaching this "spectacular" to the 73 exuberant juniors and seniors who tried out last spring by auditioning with a variety of kicks, actions, and drill routines.

Getting a drill ready usually involves practices at 7 a.m. and an hour of class time each day, in addition to many hours spent on making costumes and working out difficult maneuvers.

For the Christmas drill, the girls have selected coordinated hair styles, makeup, and nylons.

Mrs. Mary Almquist, history instructor, who has been working with the drill team for four years, and Mary Otto, a 1973 graduate of Idaho State University and a TPHS English teacher, this year are the advisors for the drill team.

'Baby' helped

Gather round kitchen, keep warm with oven

By CAMILLE STAGG JILKE

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

Gather round the kitchen and keep warm by the oven whenever it's on for dinner.

This may be a cold but cozy winter. The thermostats are already being turned down in the national effort to save on vital fuel supplies.

You can do your part, and ask your family to help, to save as much fuel as possible. Think over your habits and avoid being wasteful. Though the fuel you save may seem insignificant, it's not when that amount is multiplied by millions of consumers.

Most cooking is done by gas or electricity. Although many utility companies are not in a crisis situation, every bit of energy saved is important and people are co-operating, as evidenced by fewer lights and cooler rooms.

Here are 20 fuel-saving tips for the cook; some have been given previously but most are new; all bear following.

(1) Plan more oven meals, with main dish, vegetable and dessert that can cook at the same temperature, with time adjusted for individual items. If several things are to be baked the same day, try to fit them into the oven simultaneously, unless they require very different temperatures.

(2) Use residual heat to warm leftovers or various foods. Apply this principle to top burners too, melting butter or chocolate on a still-warm burner.

(3) When preheating the oven, set a timer or watch the automatic oven light and place the food in as soon as the oven is ready, usually in about 10 minutes. While most baked goods require preheated ovens, casseroles and roasts do not. The broiler need not be preheated unless a recipe gives timing for one.

(4) Cooking utensils are important factors in saving fuel, since some, such as heavy glass, do not conduct heat as well as metal and require longer cooking.

(5) Cooking all food only until it is done is important for both palatability and nutrition as well as fuel conservation. Use a meat thermometer to determine when roasts are done, and cook vegetables only until tender-crisp.

(6) Fit the pan size to the burner for maximum efficiency. Confine the gas flame or heated part of the electric element to the diameter of the pan; the pan should not extend more than an inch beyond the burner.

(7) Use pans with tight-fitting lids when bringing liquids to a boil, when simmering or cooking vegetables.

(8) Use high heat only when necessary and use no more water than needed.

(9) Weather permitting, charcoal grilling can be done outside even in winter. If you don't want to brave the winds, you might want to use an hibachi indoors, but make sure it is used near an open window or flue, so fumes can escape. Look for other cooking sources, such as fondue pots with canned heat and casseroles with candle warmers, especially good for reheating. Some are lucky enough to have charcoal grills built in the kitchen; and others have been known to grill foods and toast chestnuts over the fireplace.

Reach new heights

DRILL TEAM members of the Twin Falls High School are reaching new heights in formation perfection for their Dec. 14 and Jan. 4 special performances.

Mexican hat dance site on tour map

TWIN FALLS — It was at Guadalajara where the Mexican Hat Dance was born. This 443-year old city, now second largest in Mexico, will be one of the main visitation points during the annual "Magic" tour sponsored jointly by the Times-News, Hughes Airwest and Western Airlines. The tour, directed by Magic Carpet Travels, will leave the Twin Falls City-County Airport the morning of February 16. The three-night visit to Guadalajara comes after a four-night stay in Mexico City. The trip between the two cities will be by jet.

capital of both northern Mexico and the southwest United States. The climate is semi-tropical, described as not too hot and not too cold. When Times-News tour members visit the average temperature will be in the neighborhood of 75 degrees. A community of churches, parks, shopping areas and outdoor markets. It is also the nation's leading manufacturing center. Several interesting communities in that area will be visited by Magic Valley tour-participants.

colony of retired United States citizens. In addition to the time spent at Guadalajara and Mexico City, tour members will also get the "Pacific Ocean" view while staying at Manzanillo, famous for beautiful beaches. Joe Salisbury, owner-manager of Magic Carpet Travels, will lead the 1974 tour, which returns to Twin Falls after 10 days in the neighboring country. Because of limited available space which has been reserved in advance both on the airlines and at the hotels, an early sign-up is recommended. Cost for the trip will be $575 per person, double occupancy. Information can be obtained at the Magic Carpet offices in Twin Falls or Burley or by writing directly to the tour agency or the Times-News. Detailed data will be mailed on request.

Motorists urge device removal

BOISE (UPI) — Motorists concerned about conserving gasoline are turning to auto mechanics to remove smog control devices which are believed to reduce gas efficiency.

Dale Harsh, co-owner of Boise Tire and Auto Center, said he is asked "all the time" to unhook the systems from customers' cars.

Ray Brown, a partner at Brown's Auto Repair, said that even if unhooking the systems were morally or legally acceptable, it is difficult because in the 1974 models the systems are built right into the engines.

"To alter them, you would have to rebuild the engine," said Brown. While both Brown and Harsh feel the emission control devices interfere with engine performance, Al Fuehrer, an automotive instructor at Boise State College's Technical Education School, has another view.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren.

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I read an article which stated: "Ninety seven per cent of all married men cheat on their wives—and only six per cent of all married women cheat on their husbands."

I told my husband this, and he said he thought those statistics were way off, that it should have been higher for women, and lower for men.

What do you think?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: There is probably no other subject about which so many people lie; so where sex is concerned, I wouldn't accept any figure as gospel.

Sex subject for lying

DEAR ABBY: I am 25, and Kon is 40. We've been happily married for six years and have a daughter 5, and I'm expecting again.

My problem: Kon has three sons, 14, 12, and 9, who have been living with his ex-wife, and these boys are hard to handle. I know because we've had them for vacations.

His ex-wife has had three husbands in the last five years, and now she's living with a minor! Ken says it would be easy for us to get custody of his kids now, but Abby, I don't want them. They like me, and I make them mind, but it's so difficult! The older one has run away twice, and the 12-year-old is on probation for shoplifting.

I don't know what I'll do if I have to raise these boys, Abby. I love my husband and don't want to lose him, but I don't think I can handle those wild kids.

CRACKING UP

DEAR CRACKING: The boys desperately need love and acceptance. Don't reject them. Your Family Service Child Guidance department can counsel you—and them, too. If they make their home with you, give these problem boys a chance to straighten out. Love creates miracles.

DEAR ABBY: Can a widow celebrate her 50th wedding anniversary if her husband has been dead for 24 years?

My mother wants to place flowers on the church altar and buy a page in the church bulletin to celebrate her 50th wedding anniversary, or in some way to memorialize the date she and my father would be celebrating if he were alive.

Abby, I don't want people to laugh at her, but I have never heard of anything like this. Please help me to guide her. I agree, the day should be remembered in some way, but how should she word the announcement without appearing cuckoo?

HER SON

DEAR SON: Your mother could place flowers on the altar in memory of her beloved husband on the day that would have been their 50th wedding anniversary. And she could place such an announcement "In loving memory of my dear departed husband" in the church bulletin.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that if a man introduces a woman in public as his wife, they are legally married.

If this is true, why is it necessary to obtain a marriage license?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: There is a small germ of truth [and then only under special circumstances] in the above statement. Talk to a lawyer in your state about marriage—common-law and otherwise.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 63706, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 153 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Valley Briefs

FILER — The Young Mother's Council will meet at 9 a.m. Tuesday at Peace Lutheran Church. Members are to bring cookies for shut-ins, also to dress warmly for Christmas-caroling and a chili luncheon in Twin Falls.

TWIN FALLS — A special pre-Christmas clearance sale is planned for all day Tuesday from 9:30 to 4 p.m. and on Wednesday from 9:30 to noon at the Presbyterian Church Scotch Shop.

TWIN FALLS — The YWCA is taking orders for Whitelock's peanut brittle. Ideal for family Christmas gifts. Call orders to the "Y", 733-4384. Candy can be picked up within 24 hours of the order.

Letters pour in to Santa

NEW YORK (UPI) — Letters addressed to "Santa Claus, the North Pole" have begun pouring into the New York Post Office, some with long detailed Christmas gift lists, others showing that even the children of New York are caught up in the energy crisis.

One businesslike youngster listed 20 items in a column with the prices marked next to each. The total came to over $300.

Another child asking for 50 gifts including a toy movie projector and a "remote-control ambassador yacht," offered Santa a choice: "These are the things I want. I know you won't be able to get them all so just get the ones you think are the best."

"My father says we have to spend our money wisely because the prices are going up. We shouldn't spend money on things we would want for pleasure," wrote one New York girl hoping for a visit from Santa Claus.

Another youthful writer, who said she was writing on behalf of her five brothers and sisters, said she didn't think they would even have a Christmas tree this year, "because of the electricity."

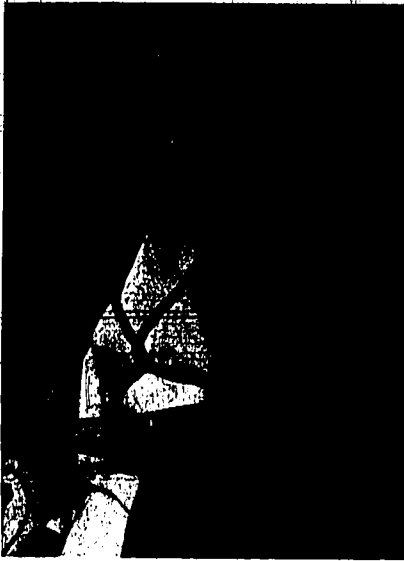

The letters were among almost 2,000 mailed to Santa in care of "the North Pole" on display Thursday at the General Post Office in New York City.

Each year the Post Office receives thousands of letters from hopeful kids, often from needy families.

A special post office fund provides gifts for only a few hundred children, New York City Postmaster John Strachan said. "So we try to encourage the public to peruse these touching, humorous and hopeful appeals and take away as many as their kind hearts and generous pocketbooks will permit," he said.

Valley Briefs

TWIN FALLS — Unity Club will meet at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Nesbitt. Mrs. Eva Olson will be in charge of the program. There will be a gift exchange.

Wendell girl installed queen

WENDELL — Pam Klimes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Klimes Jr., has been installed honored queen of Bethel No. 12, International Order of Job's Daughters, Wendell, organization officials reported today.

Other newly installed officers include Cynthia McCloud, senior princess; Diane Glick, junior princess; Cindy Mason, guide, and Jeanne Benson, marshal.

Newly appointed officers include Janice McCord, chaplain; Mary Brush, recorder; Merrilee Callen, musician; Mary Bird, librarian; Cheryl Glick, treasurer; Julie Mason, inner guard; Joni Black, outer guard;

New messengers for the organization are Becki Firth, Donita Wert, Darlene Wert, Cara Merkle and Barbara Crosby.

Serving as installing officers for the organization were Betty Trounson, installing honored queen; Jan Miller, installing guide; Penny Castor, installing marshal; Shelly Box, Bible bearer; Darlene Standle and Mary Daniels, installing custodians; Joylen Sotlus, installing chaplain, and Dorothy Harris, musician.

Nation takes energy efficiency measures

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Metropolitan Transportation Authority said it will institute beginning Dec. 16 special "two-for-one" fares on city buses, subways and commuter lines to encourage residents to leave their cars home on "gasless Sundays."

MTA Chairman William J. Ronan said that beginning Dec. 16, "we are offering round-trip transportation on the subways and buses in New York City, the Long Island Rail Road, the Harlem, Hudson and New Haven commuter lines of Penn Central and the Staten Island Rapid Transit line for the price of a normal one-way fare" on Sundays.

The special fares will be valid for at least five Sundays, ending Jan. 13.

Ronan said the experiment proves successful, the special Sunday fares will be extended indefinitely.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an energy saving effort, the Navy has ordered three of its laboratories, employing a total of some 8,500 persons, shut down from Dec. 22 until Jan. 2.

A spokesman said employees of the installations have been urged either to take their regular paid vacations during the holiday period or to take off a week without pay. He said those who "object really strongly" to this arrangement, however, would be allowed to work.

Total energy savings anticipated from the shut downs, the spokesman said, include at least 88,000 gallons of heating oil, 4,600 gallons of gasoline and 1.4 million kilowatt hours of electricity.

The closings involve the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C., the Naval Weapons Laboratory in Dahlgren, Va., and the Naval Air Development Center in Warminster, Pa.

Generation gap apparent in how people confront energy crisis

By MIKE ROYKO
(c) Chicago Daily News

The generation gap seems to be reappearing as a result of the energy crisis and the threat of a big economic slump.

Older people and those who are young have been arguing over who is best equipped to face hard times, should they come.

—And some of them disagree as to what sacrifices should be made.

Members of older generations say their backbones were strengthened for life by depression and war. So if things tighten up, they can take it.

"Why in our family," one of them recently boasted to me, "my mother fed us all for a week on one potato and half a cabbage."

"In the winter, our flat was so cold that in the morning we would go outside to get dressed."

"Modern conveniences? Nobody had a car. Even the man who owned a used car, let alone a new one."

"We were so short of clothes that when I graduated, I had to walk up there and get my diploma-naked."

"We didn't have TV in those days. For entertainment, we would sit around in the evening and listen to each other's stomachs rumble."

"But it made us a very close family, especially sleeping in a single bed."

"So I can take it," he said, trying to suck in his 48-inch stomach. "If worst comes to worst, I'll get rid of my wife's car."

"But these kids today can't. And maybe it will do them good, show them that life is no bed of roses or whatever it is they smoke."

On the other hand, many young people say they already are prepared for a period of deprivation.

Even amid prosperity, they have been dressing as if impoverished.

They have taken on a natural-life-style, shunning material possessions and living off the earth.

As one of them said, he munched a bit of organic bird seed: "When I grow hungry, I will just meditate under a tree. I am a follower of the guru Kiss Bipp, who teaches us that everything grows on trees, even money.

"For pleasure, I can raise my own marijuana. But my father cannot make his own gin for his martinis."

"So I need little to be happy. Just my quadrasonic musical system, my 250-record collection, my Honda, a TV subscription to Rolling Stone. A few 40 tickets to rock concerts, my youth-fare pass for the airlines, a jug of wine, a loaf of bread from granny barley's natural-food emporium, and my old lady, Bobbi Jill, known as little earth spirit."

But older people are materialistic. They have surrounded themselves with things like houses, cars, TV sets, credit cards, paneled basements and tickets to suburban theaters.

"They will not be able to cope with poverty or live a simple life. Most of them don't even know how to hook up a quadrasonic system."

The same disagreement occurs when the subject of conserving energy comes up. Both age groups feel the other is squandering our resources on things that could be wasteful.

As one older person suggested: "I think electric guitars should be outlawed."

"According to a study I saw, at any given moment something like 92 percent of all American youths are either playing an electric guitar or listening to somebody play one.

"That means that millions of the rest of us, innocent bystanders, also have to listen to them."

"That's an enormous waste of electricity. Besides, electric guitars lead to no good. Musicians are dressing like women, painting themselves to look like vampires, and biting off the heads of rubber dolls. They should give up his instrument and take up the ukulele."

But a younger person said: "The way to save energy is for older people to give up their cars. Why do they have to go anywhere anyway? Whatever they're going to do when they get there isn't fun. I know it isn't, because if it was, we'd be there. So there's no reason for them to go, right?"

Vietnam veteran has new business

SHOSHONE — "Kinder-toy" is the name of a new business in Shoshone.

Ed Critchell, a young Vietnam war veteran, is not only designing and making the toys, he is painting and selling them.

One of his most popular items is a little barn, some red and others yellow. They are made of one quarter inch plywood, 20 inches long, 16 inches high and 14 inches wide. Inside there is a movable hay loft. Doors are big enough for little tractors to go through.

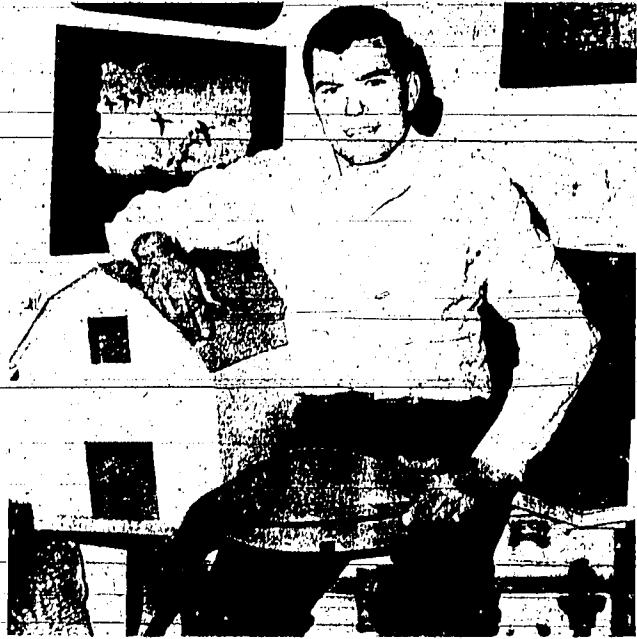

Critchell also makes little tables and bench-type chairs.

He began making things last spring and during the summer made more than 30 dozen duck and geese field decoys. Most of them he sent to a Montana concern for sale, but is beginning to build up a clientele in this area, especially in the Fairfield vicinity.

Critchell was reared in Sainpoint and after his military service lived in Montana a time. He was married a little over a year ago to the former Charlene Carroll, daughter of Elmer Carroll, who is the tri-county home extension agent for Lincoln, Blaine and Camas counties.

Critchell's shop is located just west of the Western Auto Store in Shoshone.

Secretary spanked for errors

CLEVELAND (UPI)—There are no grounds for criminal action against a city councilman accused of tying up and spanking his 17-year-old secretary for making "typing" mistakes, Chief Police Prosecutor Everett Chandler said Thursday.

Police said the parents of the girl, a Euclid High School senior, charged that Councilman John J. Prince, whose term expires next month, punished her six times.

According to Chandler the punishments included tying her, spanking her with a wooden paddle, standing her in a corner and making her repeat, "I am stupid," and taking movies of her while she said it.

The prosecutor said Prince apologized to her last weekend, sent her $100 for extra work she did and exposed the film he took of her.

"The girl's parents were mostly concerned that he (Prince) receive psychiatric treatment," Chandler said.

Laundering causes loss of protection

(c) Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — The toddler's sleepwear wasn't supposed to burn. But it did.

It flamed easily when a match was placed to it; it burned slowly, but well. A child wearing it could have been badly burned.

A test conducted by the Chicago Sun-Times showed that the sleepwear, though manufactured to meet federal flammability regulations, had lost that protection in the wash. That's what the textile industry warns many homemakers may be doing.

In July, 1971, the federal government made it mandatory for clothing manufacturers to produce flame-retardant sleepwear in sizes 0 to 6x.

"Flame-retardant garments may lose their effectiveness if consumers do not pay close attention to care instructions," says Christine Radiske, home economist for the textile industry's product safety committee. "Read the care labels carefully. Directions vary with different garments. The dos and don'ts on the label are vitally important to a child's safety."

Ms. Radiske says, "If the label says no chlorine bleach, you must not use it. You may use an oxygen bleach, unless the label says no bleach of any kind. If the label says cold wash, do not use hot wash. If it says use phosphate detergent, do not use a nonphosphate."

"Certain nonphosphate detergents can build up a film on a fabric, causing a reduction in flame-retardant characteristics. Flame-retardant properties can be restored by washing in a phosphate detergent. In areas where phosphates are banned, a heavy-duty, citrate-based laundry detergent may be used to preserve the flame retardancy."

The sleepwear the Sun-Times tested was washed in nonphosphate detergent, which many ecologists say must be used to curb water pollution.

The government standard requires the fabric pass complicated tests before and after being laundered 50 times. The test is conducted on the basis of whether the garment will become ignited when exposed to an ignition source.

Crib death mysterious

(c) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — Crib death, which mysteriously takes the lives of an estimated total of 10,000 seemingly healthy infants in this country each year, may be caused by a failure of the breathing mechanism while the baby sleeps, according to newly published findings.
 The findings indicate that most babies who succumb to crib death have previously experienced many episodes during which they failed to breathe for relatively long periods. Death would occur when a particularly prolonged failure to breathe ultimately produces heart failure.
 If borne out by further studies, this explanation could lead to the prevention of at least some cases of crib death by monitoring the sleep of those infants who have been observed to stop breathing for more than a few seconds at a time.
 Any explanation of crib death that withstands intensive scientific scrutiny would help to alleviate the intense guilt often suffered by parents who fear they are somehow to blame for the unexplained death of their infants.
 The new explanation, outlined in the current issue of the New England Journal of Medicine and in telephone interviews with leading researchers, fits into the many strange characteristics of crib death, also known as sudden, unexplained death in infancy or sudden infant death syndrome.

 Crib death is extremely rare in the first six weeks after birth and after the age of 6 months. It occurs most frequently among 2-to-3-month-olds.
 One-quarter to one-half of the victims have a mild respiratory infection at the time of death, but no serious damage to the respiratory organs or any infectious organisms have been linked to the syndrome.
 Virtually all crib deaths occur while the child is asleep, and in the few cases when an adult was awake in the room when the death occurred, there have been no sounds, gasps for breath or signs of struggle.
 Crib death also occurs most often among babies who were born prematurely or with a low birth weight, who are males or are members of minority groups.
 Dr. Richard L. Naeye, a pathologist at Hershey Medical Center in Hershey, Pa., performed autopsies on 82 victims of crib death. He found that in nearly all, the muscular walls of the small pulmonary arteries were thicker than normal.

Heart authority says attacks may be down

(c) Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — The government's top heart authority said Friday that the nation has "turned the corner" on coronary heart attacks.
 "The epidemic is not continuing to grow at the same rate," said Dr. Theodore Cooper, director of the National Heart and Lung Institute. "It has reached a plateau and now there is some indication it is going down."
 The knowledge built up about heart disease already has saved many lives and shortened pain and misery, Dr. Cooper said, adding:
 "My expectation is that it will save several thousand more lives that could not previously be saved, even at the present level of information."
 "But we need more data to achieve our goal of prevention and more widespread dissemination of information."
 The one year campaign urging everyone to have a checkup for high blood pressure has been successful in alerting the public.
 "We need to do a survey now to see if this increased awareness is saving lives," he said.
 He expressed regret that the campaign to cut down smoking has been somewhat of a failure.
 "There is a different motivational problem," explained Dr. Cooper. "A smoker may find it difficult to stop, even though he is playing a roulette game. This is different from finding that you already have high blood pressure and ought to do something about it, even if you don't feel badly."

Harem demise described

(c) Newhouse News Service WASHINGTON — It was the toughest nut the Turkish revolutionaries had to crack. They had ousted Abdul Hamid II, last of the sultans, rulers since the 13th century, but what to do with his 900-woman harem? An easy out way would have been to drown them in the Sea of Marmara, as an earlier sultan had disposed of his concubines. But to the revolutionaries' credit, says British Historian Noel Barber, they solved the problem "with a touch of modern panache." "The Young Turks," writes Barber, "advertised in the newspapers, requesting anyone—whose daughter or sisters had been kidnapped for the harem, to come to Constantinople, at government expense, and claim their relatives. "The response was remarkable," Barber continues in "The Sultans" (Simon & Schuster, $9.95), which relates the rise and fall of the Ottoman empire, called by the author "probably the greatest dynasty the world has ever seen." Hundreds of Turks responded to the ad campaign, and in the spring of 1909, the young Turks, officially the committee of union and progress, lined up the harem ladies on one side of a huge room. Then the might-be relatives, including many tribesmen armed to the teeth, passed slowly down the room's other side. "The concubines, protesting and praying," Barber writes, "unveiled in public for the first time in their lives, to recognize, or be recognized, by long lost fathers or brothers. Scores were reunited, and after tearful farewells to their harem colleagues, set off for the rigors of a life in the mountain homes of their families. Whether with pride or regret, no one will ever know. "This was the end of harem life — the last link with the excesses and debauchery of an era that had closed."

Duke of Wellington meets his Waterloo

By RAYMOND R. COFFEY (c) Chicago Daily News LONDON — Now it's the Duke of Wellington who has met his Waterloo

The Belgians have decided to cut off the allowance they have been paying the duke and his ancestors for the past 158 years as a reward for defeating Napoleon at Waterloo.

The payments come mainly from income in farmland and hunting rights near the Waterloo battlefield south of Brussels.

because his 22-year-old daughter, Lady Jane Wellesley, has been linked romantically with Prince Charles, heir to the British Throne.

Key club assists library

FILED — Members of the Filer Key Club helped place books on the shelves of the newly-enlarged town library this week.

Club members of the volunteer service group included Brent and Lynn Thate, Voyné Reinke, Dave Olson, Scott Henry, Dave Shelton and Greg Winkle. They were assisted by Elizabeth Rowland, member of the town library board, and Mrs. F. E. Albin, librarian.

The library, which is in the former Fidelity National Bank building, is undergoing extensive enlarging and remodeling.

The allowance, now paid to the eighth duke, comes to an estimated $50,000 a year.

The decision to cut it off was announced in Brussels over the weekend by Willy De Clerc, Belgian minister of finance. It is not expected that the present duke, one of Britain's wealthiest men, will object. Nor, apparently, will it do much good if he does.

The issue was raised by a Belgian senator who asked if the duke, "with an elegant display of fair play which is customary to the English," would not be prepared to "renounce" the payments, which were "tantamount to an outdated feudal tradition."

He also noted that Belgium had been a faithful ally of the British in two world wars and suggested that if the duke were not willing to give up the money the Belgian government should negotiate a settlement.

They were awarded to the original Duke of Wellington by Dutch King William of Orange and the Belgians had to agree to continue the payments to the duke's heirs as part of the price for their independence in 1830. The present duke, who is worth an estimated $25 million, has been in the news lately.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS GOTT

Irva McDonald bride of Gott

EDEN — Irva Dee McDonald and Michael Douglas Gott were married in an 8 p.m. ceremony Nov. 24 at the Hazelton Ward LDS Church. Bishop Don Black conducted the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nell Cross, Eden, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gott, Murtaugh.

The bride wore a floor length empire style gown of crocheted lace. The dress was trimmed with a ribbon laced ruffle on the bodice and featured a high neckline with stand up lace. The sleeves were puffed to the elbow and fitted to a cuff at the wrist. The gown fell to a long train.

Holly McDonald, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kim McDonald, sister of the bride, Carol Gott, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Ed McClain. Stephanie Ward, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

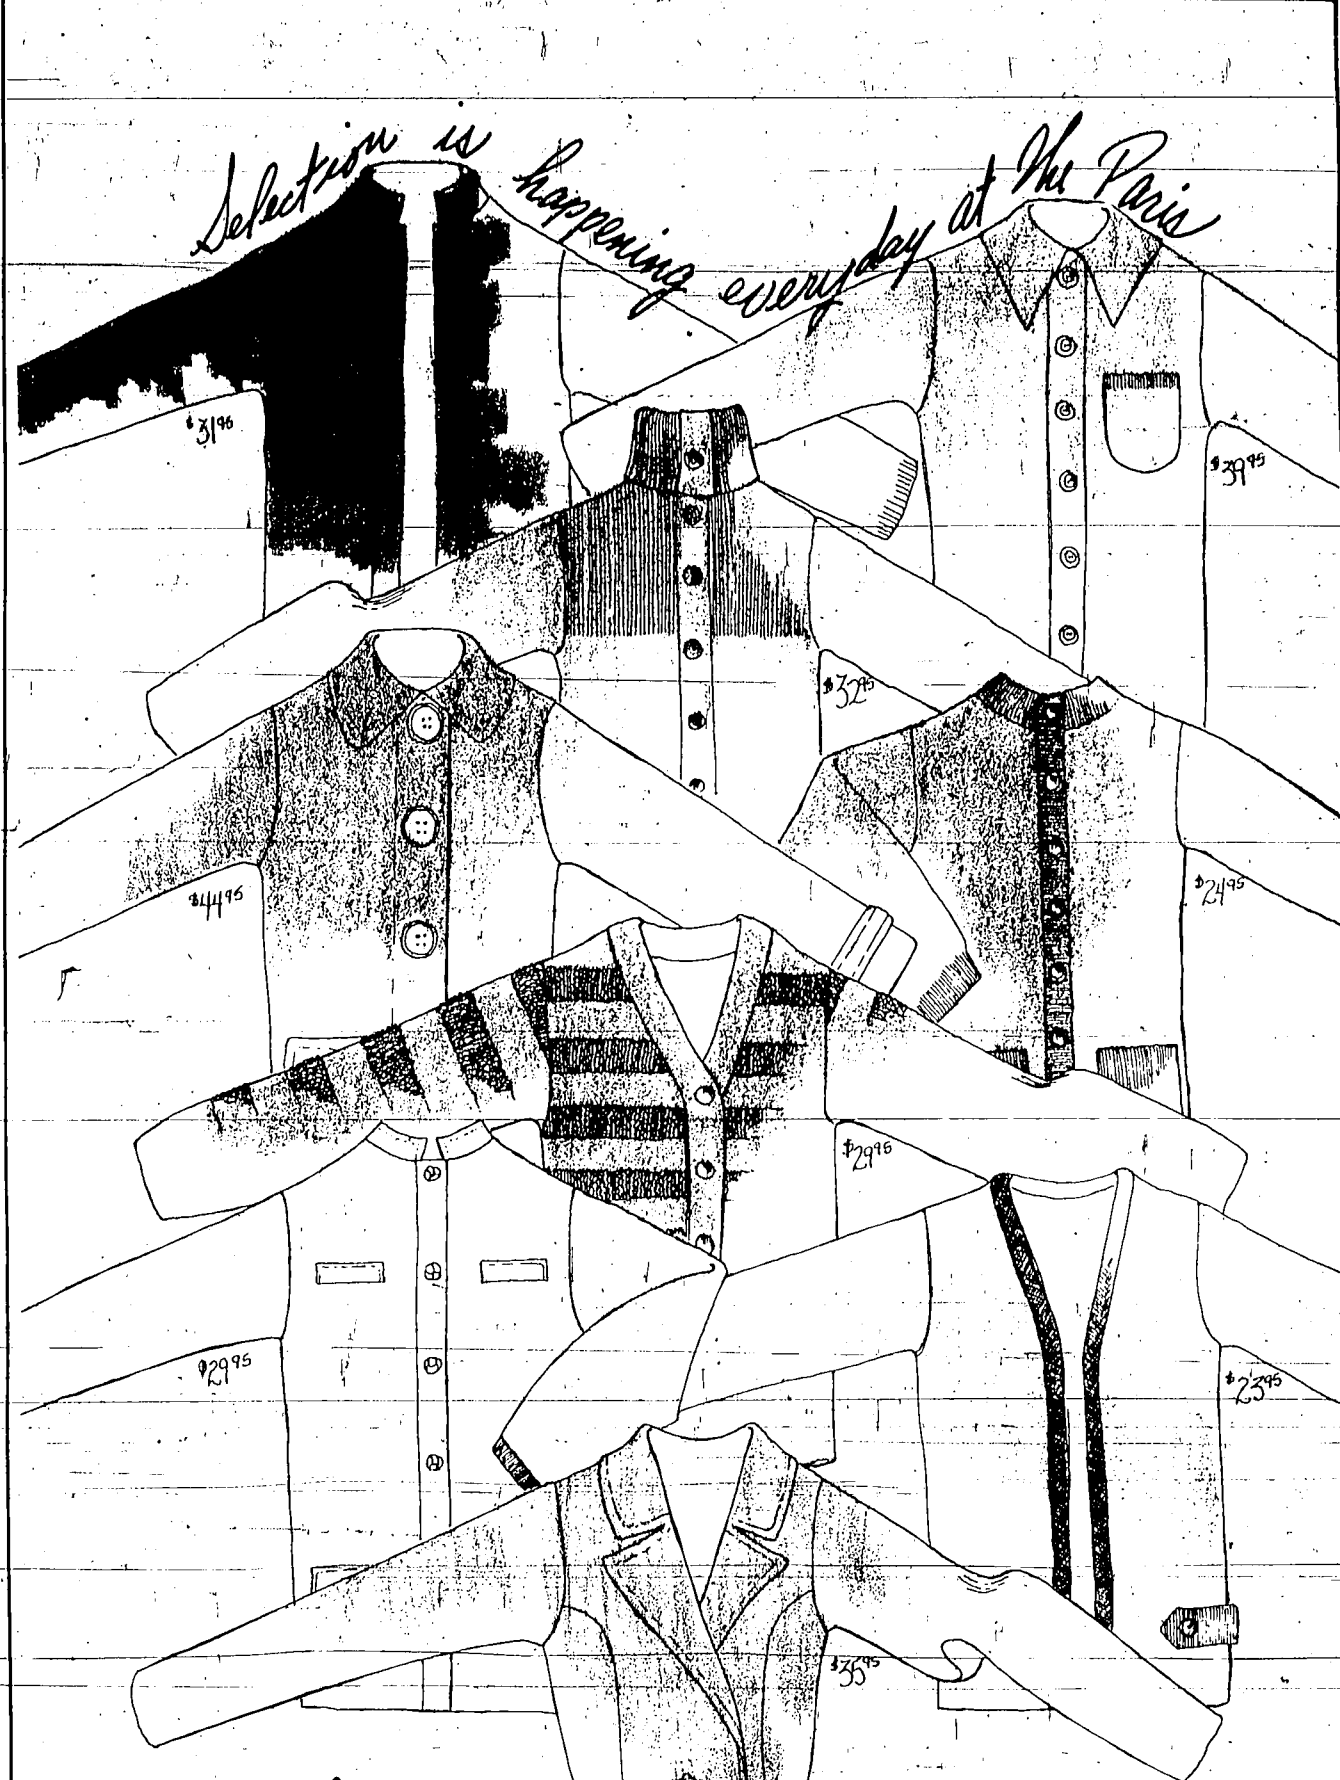

Lynn Dille was best man. Groomsmen were Bill Rehwait, Bob Bloxham and Charles Morrill. Tim Gott, brother of the bridegroom, was ringbearer. Ushers were Joe Nelson, Ed Crumrine and Dennis and Dan Gott, brothers of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Rick Erickson was in charge of the guest book, which was placed in the reception hall. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Orval Bradley, Mrs. Rex McClain and Mrs. Dexter Watkins.

Gifts were received by Tina Kell and Kim Webb, nieces of the bridegroom.

Following a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Hazelton, where the bridegroom is employed by Henry's Produce.

PATHER PANCHALI

by Bibhutibhusan Banerji

A book review by Kathryn Galloway, Twin Falls Public Library.

"Pather Panchali" (or "Song of the Road") by Bibhutibhusan Banerji of Benhall, India, was translated by T. W. Clark and Tarapada Mukherji. The translation was specially commissioned as volume one of the Indian Translations Collection of UNESCO.

Banerji's status as a writer must be assessed in the light of his great popularity in Bengal. Several of his 50 books have required second and third editions.

"Song of the Road" is an authentic and moving portrayal of Indian village life. The daily affairs of these people are shown through the lips, eyes, and minds of two small children: Opu, and his sister Durga. They, with their mother and father, live in direst poverty, but are not unhappy, and find joy in even the simplest things.

Through the children, the reader participates in the many Indian festivals; plays children's games with no manufactured toys and comes to know the caste system for its real cruelty in all the villages of India.

When Durga dies, Opu loses all satisfaction in the little games and pastimes of his childhood. Not even the beauty of the jungles, flowers, wild fruits, and rocks hold joy for him any longer. His only pleasure becomes reading every book he is able to get.

The family's fortunes continue to worsen, until Opu's father decides they must move to another village to begin a new life. Durga, of course, must be left behind and Opu realizes he can no longer see his childhood home and village. As the train leaves for the new village, "... the last chords of sympathy are struck and the rest should be silence."

Beginners are taught to try to develop the suit with the greatest potential when playing notrump contracts.

This is a mighty good general principle, but it is far more important to take advantage of the H in the code word ARCH and ask yourself, "How can I make this contract?" when you plan your play.

If South wins the heart lead in dummy and if he doesn't stop to count to nine he will lead a club at trick two.

East will hop up with the ace and lead a second heart. South will finesse his jack unsuccessfully and West will clear the suit with a third lead. At this point South will see that he needs a diamond finesse to bring home the hacon. He will lose it and go one down, provided West has taken care to hold on to both his hearts.

If South stops to Count his winners, the C of ARCH, he will see that he needs two diamonds and four clubs for his contract. He will also see that if he takes a diamond finesse at trick two he will be able to lose it with complete safety. West will be an lead and won't be able to hurt him with a heart play.

South will clear the clubs next and wind up with his contract and one or two over-tricks. A far better result than down one.

Balloon toy ban asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumers Union asked the government Friday to ban balloon toys made of a glue-like plastic. It said swallowing the substance could give children problems ranging from choking to upset stomach.

The toys consist of a glue-like material which the user puts on the end of a straw. By blowing through the straw, a balloon is formed at the end similar to a regular rubber one.

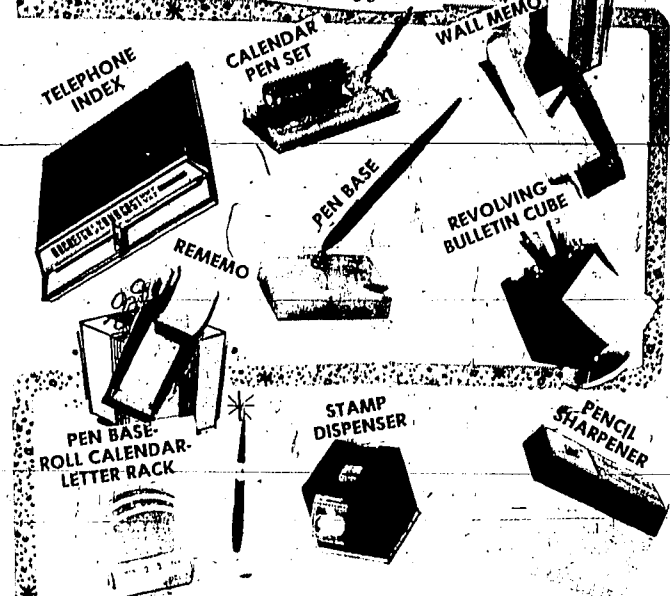

Consumers Union, which publishes "Consumer Reports" magazine, said the balloons are hazardous because children can get the material in their mouths or swallow it. The group asked the Consumer Products Safety Commission to declare five brands hazardous substances.

The problem, the organization said, is because the glue-like material contains up to 25 percent acetone, a flammable material also used in nail polish remover and paint solvents.

The five brands named in the petition are: Superelastic bubble plastic, made by Wham-o Manufacturing Co., San Gabriel, Calif.; and four brands made by Komtoy Corp., Cicero, Ill. — "Bugs Bunny Plastic Balloons," "Mickey Mouse Balloon Art," "Make Your Own Plastic Balloons Blue" and "Wonder Plastic Balloons."

Should outside Christmas lighting be turned off to save energy?

LeEtta Torgerson, Tloga, N.D.:

"Yes. To save energy. You don't really need those lights."
"I'd rather be warm inside my house than see Christmas lights on downtown and like that. I do think that the Christmas lights should be kept on inside."

Don Taylor, Kimberly:
"If there is an energy shortage they should skip a year or two. There doesn't seem to be an energy shortage here. I understand we sell power to other places and this might help them."

Dennis Costesso, Twin Falls:

"No. It's not going to save that much energy. If they would shut down the stores an hour early one night a week that would more than pay for that part of it."

Ruth Glenn, Twin Falls:
"Yes. If we have an energy shortage we should all cooperate."

Ellen Glaccum, Ketchum:

"Yes. I suppose so, as long as there is a shortage we may as well comply. I think the town would look better without any neon lights anyway."

Wayne Corey, Twin Falls:
"Since there appears to be a power shortage, it should be limited. For instance, excessive window lighting and gaudy house displays."

Gene Autry rides the radio waves again

Jerome radio station airs nostalgia a la Gene Autry

JEROME — Nostalgia fans can tune in to KART radio station, Jerome, three times a week to hear "Gene Autry's Melody Ranch Show," a 1940's radio favorite.

Original transcriptions of the half-hour show, dating back to 1947, have been reproduced on tape and will be aired by KART at 2 p.m. on Sundays and 5:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

John Rue, KART operations manager, said "We're broadcasting the shows complete... just as they were performed 'live' before studio audiences and broadcast on the CBS network."

Each show features the music of Gene Autry, The Pinafores, the Cass County Boys, guitarist Frankie Marvin and Carl Cotner's "Melody Ranch Band." Regulars Johnny Bond and Pat Buttram are also featured.

Rue said, "The show is exactly as it was described 25 years ago... a wholesome, homely blend of folk and western music, comedy, adventure, drama and simple story telling."

Each half-hour show includes four songs, comedy segments with Buttram and an eight to ten minute drama, complete with cast, sound effects and background orchestra.

The original show was aired on the CBS Radio Network from 1940 through 1956. During its 17 year run, "Melody Ranch" set a number of records. It was sponsored for the entire period by one product, Wrigley's Doublemint Gum. The show was always in the Top 20 ranking of radio and for many years was among the Top 10.

Today, Autry is head of a self-made empire of radio and television stations, ownership of the California Angels baseball team and holdings in numerous ranches in Arizona, Colorado and California.

Deaf 'hear' television news

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Thousands of persons who are deaf, or whose hearing is impaired, can now understand a television news show for the first time under a system of captioning developed by WGBH-TV, a Boston educational station.

WGBH and 10 other educational stations in the northeast — broadcast a videotape of the American Broadcasting Company's evening news with subtitles similar to those used in foreign films transposed on the screen. The videotape is shown at 11 p.m., five hours after its original broadcast.

In the intervening time, a five-man production staff in WGBH's studios type a transcript of the program, and edit it to eliminate idioms that are incomprehensible to a deaf person. The edited version is then fed into a computer, which makes a tape that creates the captions on the screen.

The technique was developed by the Boston Station under a $106,000 demonstration contract from the United States Office of Education. WGBH, under a previous grant, has been experimenting with special programming for the deaf for the past two years.

In order to broadcast the news program, permission was required not only of ABC, but of each of its network affiliates in the areas where it's to be shown.

Artists sell own poetry, pictures

(c) 1973 Chicago Sun-Times
The American Dream is not only writing a book but seeing it published and selling. It is a dream that mostly goes sour, but Bill English, 26, and Michael Cohen, 31, both working on degrees at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst, found a way to make theirs come true.

English is a poet who writes of a lifetime of emotional problems from being a foster child shunted from one institution to another. Cohen is a Chicago native who grew up in an affluent home, married, has two children and worked in marketing and promotion. He chucked both work and marriage to go back to school, pursue his talent in painting and work with emotionally handicapped children.

Last April, English and Cohen decided to collaborate on a book. The text was to be English's poetry, and Cohen, along with other artist and photographer friends, was to do art.

They put the book together, and then the technical process began. Cohen nudged a relative into giving him $3,500 to pay for paper and printing. He and English participated in all facets of production, from selecting paper and typeface to cutting edges off the books.

They printed 2,500 copies of the book, called it "Common Sense" and put a $3.95 price tag on it. They peddled copies to campus bookstores in Amherst, Wellesley and Yale. Then they attended a meeting of the American Booksellers Assn., discovered they needed a booth, paid $75 for it and found a small Maryland distributor, RPM. RPM took 900 copies and talked Walden Bookstores — there are some 300 nationally — into carrying the book. RPM now wants a second edition of some 15,000 copies printed for distribution.

"Common sense" has no mass appeal. It looks like a jerry-built book and it reads like a lot of the underground stuff in print these days. But that is not the point so much as these two men did write, publish and have begun to sell their own book without the assistance of the big paperback houses.

Says English: "I cannot relate to selling two million copies of anything. Of course, we want the book to make enough money so we can exist. What is important is there hope for our experiences for others to express themselves, too."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

A stalactite is an icicle-like deposit of calcium carbonate which is created by water trickling through cracks in a limestone cavern's roof. The World Almanac says. A stalagmite is a cone of calcium carbonate which rises from a cavern's floor under a stalactite. Famous deposits are found in the Luray Caverns, Va.; the Carlsbad Caverns, N.M.; and Mammoth Cave, Ky.

COMET KOHOUTEK (top) heads toward Earth from outer space and is expected to provide a spectacular sky show in the next few weeks. Astronomers Jon Thomas, left, and Al Hiltner (bottom) prepare to use their 54-inch telescope at the Univ. of Michigan's Peach Mt. Observatory to follow Kohoutek's approach toward Earth. (UPI)

promises Christmas show

(c) Chicago Daily News
Purists may call it 1973F, but to the rest of the World it's Kohoutek — the Christmas Comet.

It was discovered by happy accident eight months ago. Each day since then has brought it closer to the Earth, until now it grows larger in the sky — already visible with strong binoculars.

Soon it will be possible to see it with the unaided eye, for by every prediction Kohoutek will out-shine the great Halley's comet. It will be one of the brightest and most easily observed comets to lodge between the Earth-seen stars.

In another age, Kohoutek would have sent shivers of alarm around an unsophisticated world. It happened in 1843, when the Great Comet came glowing up from the southern hemisphere to answer the millennial predictions of a prophet, William Miller.

But this is 1973, and scientists from the next Skylab crew to the amateur down the street are girding up for a second-by-second watch over Kohoutek's passage.

Lubos Kohoutek, a Czechoslovakian-born astronomer with an international reputation in the field of comets and asteroids, was scanning the sky with a powerful telescope at Hamburg Observatory in West Germany last March 7 when he happened across the soft, white image of Kohoutek.

It was the sixth new comet to be discovered this year, so it was — and is called 1973F. Astronomer Kohoutek also discovered 1973E, although few except his fellow astronomers will ever see it.

From the beginning, Comet Kohoutek was gilded with superlatives, even though comets are notoriously unpredictable.

Jim Seebers, assistant astronomer at the Adler Planetarium in Chicago, explains:

"Because it was discovered so early and so far away — I believe it was the farthest away a comet was ever discovered — it was felt Kohoutek would be a super comet, unbelievably bright. These expectations have been scaled down a little."

Still, scientists expect the Christmas Comet to be a once-in-a-lifetime event as it nears the sun and its brightness increases. From around Jan. 1, Kohoutek will be plainly visible in the western sky after the sun sets. Through December, the comet will be growing slowly more spectacular in the eastern sky before sunrise.

As they track the progress of the Christmas Comet, scientists will be attempting to add to man's knowledge about these visitors from afar. No one has ever landed on a comet, captured one or got very close to one, although the earth did sweep through the tail of Halley's comet once.

Comet Kohoutek is what astronomers call a "long-period comet" — that is, it returns to the neighborhood of the Earth and the sun over a long period of time.

The precise period of Kohoutek has yet to be determined.

Brian C. Marssen of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory has calculated the orbit of Kohoutek and — as reported by Sky and Telescope magazine — set its period at "probably greater" than one million years. If true, that would be astounding.

Seebers at the Adler Planetarium reports that astronomers presently set the period of the comet at around 75,000 years. The last time around, who watched it?

Just after Christmas, Kohoutek will make its close pass across the face of the sun — "only" a shade over 13 million miles away from the inferno. The Earth, by comparison, is 93 million miles from the sun.

This close passage is called the comet's perihelion. Its apelion is the farthest distance it reaches from the sun — and in the case of Kohoutek, this amounts to an estimated 320 billion (B) miles.

Drifting through space, the comet is composed chiefly of frozen gas — "dirty balls of ice," they have been called. Locked into the ice are specks of dust, and perhaps other particles of solid matter.

Catholics abandon pews

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — Church attendance among American Roman Catholics declined at a "catastrophic" rate during the last year, according to the National Opinion-Research Center.

"The changes of the past year may well constitute the most dramatic collapse of religious devotion in the entire history of Christianity," the Rev. Andrew M. Greeley and William C. McCready state in their analysis of data gathered by NORC researchers in face-to-face interview with some 1,500 persons in a national opinion survey.

The research document, made public this week, also states that, in contrast to previous years, the erosion of church attendance is now taking place among older church members.

"It was Catholics born before 1925 who were the most likely to stop attending church during the past year," the sociologists assert. "This phenomenon is dramatic."

Lombardi role prompts 'scary' doubts in actor

Ernest Borgnine, who will portray Vince Lombardi, the late great coach of the Green Bay Packers, in an ABC television special Friday, did considerable soul-searching before accepting the role of the fiery gridiron genius.

The dramatic special, "Portrait: Legend in Granite," will be broadcast from 8 to 9 p.m. MST.

"The prospect was scary," Borgnine admitted. "Playing a fictional character is comparatively simple. You must do your best to understand the role and make your interpretation valid and convincing. But Lombardi — you know that his memory is still fresh and strong in the minds of those who knew him personally and the millions who followed his incredible career. Everyone has his own impression of the man. How can you satisfy everyone — or, even most people?"

"Then too," continued Borgnine, "I have enormous respect for Lombardi. He was larger than life, a miracle maker. Could I come up with a performance that would do him justice, even in my own opinion? And his family and friends — what would be their reaction?"

Borgnine reflected, "Some people used to put Lombardi down for what they regarded as an over-emphasis on winning. But it seems to me, that to him, winning was part of something bigger. What he was after, I think, was to live up to his greatest potential. And he was able to inspire his players to do the same.

He quoted Lombardi's words from the TV script: "All right, mister, let me tell you what winning means. It means — and this is all it means — that you're willing to go longer, work harder, give more than anyone else. If you're smaller, you better be sure you're quicker; if you're slower, you'd better hit harder. You know why most people don't win? Because they don't want it bad enough to work harder than someone else. That's why I'm willing to work harder — and anybody who works for me is going to be willing to work harder and that's why we're going to win. Understand?"

"Somebody once said that Lombardi didn't just turn men into football players, he turned football players into men," Borgnine said.

"I think that to do that, you have to be some kind of man yourself."

Janssen readies fourth TV series

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — David Janssen is poised to star in his fourth television series with two hits, and one failure behind him in his series attempts — a batting average better than most.

As "Richard Diamond" he prospered for three years. His "Fugitive" series was a top-rated show for four years. "O'Hara, United States Treasury" was not as successful, surviving only a year.

Now Janssen is starring as Harry Orwell, a reckless private eye in a two-hour television movie, "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead!"

"Should it catch the fancy of ABC-TV network savants, Janssen will return to the air next season playing Orwell on a weekly basis.

Janssen is an uncommonly logical actor. He knows there are more cops, detectives and law and order guys running amok on the tube than any other hero genre. He also realizes viewers won't tune in an heroic tree surgeon.

"Job placement for television leading men is a problem," he said, grinning.

Travel advice: Think Spokane

(c) Chicago Daily News
Advice for travelers who may have abandoned plans for overseas travel next summer — especially the young people: start thinking Pacific Northwest in general and Spokane, Wash., in particular. Little (population 100,000), old (one century) Spokane is going to put on a full-sized world's fair; Expo '74. And nobody out there is planning on emptying your billfold.

For example, dormitories at three colleges in the area (Gonzaga, Whitworth and Eastern Washington) will be opened to young visitors and the price will be $4 to $6 a day.

Also, there are sites for 9,000 recreational vehicles in and around Spokane. There are also camping facilities and talk that a tent city will be set up for young people, if this becomes necessary.

Peter L. Spurney, general manager of Expo '74, was in Chicago the other day and spoke glowingly of the fair. He estimated that five million persons will attend between opening May 4 and closing day, Nov. 3.

Spurney said things got moving when Spokane decided to clean up its downtown area as a centennial adventure. The cleanup included removal of railroad yards and skid row area on two islands in the Spokane River.

Somebody thought big and suggested holding a fair on 100 acres that includes the islands. A delegation went to Paris and proposed the fair to the Bureau of International Expositions, a step never before taken by any U. S. city.

Approval was won and many nations jumped in with promises of displays.

The United States is doing a thing on the environment, with a structure showing the utilities — a family of four uses built on the outside. Inside will be displays showing the problems of producing power for the utilities.

There'll be entertainment every day in a new opera house and in a free outdoor pavilion being built by Boeing. The nearby coliseum will be used for things like rodeos and shows by the Canadian Mounties.

Expo '74 is going to be very big with families, especially families who enjoy the outdoors, it is predicted. Spokane, in eastern Washington, is within a day of a wide variety of parks, forests, mountains and even the beaches.

Antique Sales Are Where The Action Is

From Long Ago

MRS. BAGLEY glances toward a well-dressed doll from years passed while behind her can be seen three different type clocks. And, for your information, the clocks all worked, too.

The Real Thing

HERE ARE articles of furniture which will make a collector's mouth water. Most of them are in tip-top condition on the day of the sale. "Old" items are now becoming the "in" thing, throughout Magic Valley.

By O. A. (Gus) KELKER

Don't throw anything away — it might turn out to be worth a fortune years from now! And if it is, some relative not yet born might rush out and put a flower on your grave out of sheer gratitude.

We're talking about what will someday become an antique. Generally speaking an antique is something over 100 years old. Why? Because the federal government allows an article over 100 years old to enter the United States duty free. They call it an antique. So that's good enough for a rule-of-thumb situation.

We had never attended an antique auction so recently became curious when we read a handbill heralding an "antique auction" in Paul, managed by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Bagley.

The sale was billed for a Sunday but we went Saturday because we had another appointment that particular Sunday — and also because our wife warned that if we got mixed up in an antique auction we might just get in over our head — financially, that is.

So we went Saturday, a day billed as a "come and look" time with nothing offered for sale but with the "building heated." The building, incidently, was the Hall Building which at one time was a skating rink and at another time was a hardware store.

Inside we met Mr. and Mrs. Bagley who were just-sort of hanging around while interested people looked around.

My wife, Betty, and I introduced ourselves and told the Bagleys we were interested in just what these antique auctions were all about.

The sale managers were cooperative. We found out they sponsored six sales a year at Paul and rented the building to hold them in. They live in Rupert.

We found that most of the sale items come from "back east" and that much of it is bought "over the phone" from "pickers" who call in after inspecting what is available. The Bagleys, who own a large furniture truck, trek back east and haul it out to Idaho. Winter and summer is the best time to buy while fall and spring is the best sale time.

Much of the antiques come from Illinois, Kansas and New York and become available when large homes — say 20 rooms or more are torn down under the "guise of progress."

We found out the breakup of these big homes is fortunate for those who want antiques. Otherwise items would never become available.

We found everything sold is not an antique. Some of the items are simply "old items" which people want for one reason or another. For instance, who could pass up the opportunity to bid on and take home an oak commode!

And speaking of oak — people hereabouts like oak and few of them buy walnut. Why? You're, guess is just as good as ours.

The Bagleys started in the sale business in 1963. They hire the auctioneer to do the spade work. All sales are cash. They repair practically all items offered for sale with the exception of upholstered items. Most people buying upholstered articles want to change the covering anyway.

Everytime there's a sale at Paul, people come from as far away as Salt Lake City, Boise, Pocatello or somewhere else. The bidding is active and the price depends on just how much someone wants a certain article.

At the Bagley sales, furniture is featured, but you will find old bottles and jars, old trunks, copper tea kettles, luggage benches, china closets, chairs and tables, brass beds, rockers, piano stools, high boys, clocks, hotel desks, lawyer book case, dresser round glass secretaries, cast iron pots, picture frames, old telephones, quilts, dishes, grandfather clocks, wall clocks, mantel clocks and what-have-you.

It's a wonderful world to wade through and to look at. But like we said, we went a day ahead of the sale so we wouldn't get caught up in desire.

But if you want antiques — or old items of furniture and the like — and "antique sale" is the place to get it.

You can bid if you want or you can just sit and listen and look.

But if you want to be sure about all this, then (like we said) never throw anything away. In fact, never sell anything. You home will get awfully crowded but when you go you will be appreciated.

Which reminds me of a horrible mistake we made about 15 years ago. We had a genuine rolltop desk we just didn't have any use for so we sold it to a friend for $25.

Well, the other day we were in a Twin Falls store and there was a similar rolltop desk offered for sale. How much? Would you believe $515?

Like we said — hang on to everything you have and the day will come when your descendants will be wealthy!

Where's The Snow?

YOU'LL FIND most everything at an antique auction. Here Glen Bagley sits in a sleigh which might just come in handy during the energy crisis — providing you can find a horse to pull it.

Chairs Were Filled

READY FOR use of antique auction attendees are these empty chairs in a Paul building. All were filled with anxious bidders at the antique sale held the day after the picture was taken.

Steinem: In the limelight

By LAURA GREEN

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — There she sat under the spotlight, before the camera, looking cool, looking blase, talking in a curious way without seeming to move her mouth or jaws. Gloria Steinem looks comfortable in the limelight. She belongs there. She is a woman whose time has come, a woman who chose a cause and rode its wave into the public consciousness. Until recently she was a pretty, lively free-lance writer involved in New York's radical politics scene and romanced by the woman who was an ersatz Playboy Bunny and wrote a devastating piece about waiting tables in spike heels and tight satin suit. For years, she recalls, she wrote about politics, or tried to write about politics, without being taken seriously by her colleagues.

"When I would take a manuscript to the New York Times, someone would ask me to mail letters on the way out," she said.

"If I had something to say at a meeting, everyone would listen politely and then go back to their conversation as if nothing had been said."

She became a feminist because she no longer saw sense in pushing other peoples' politics: "I was tired of working for someone else's cause. I was helping everybody but myself."

Today she is the personification of the women's movement, the feminist, the symbol of the woman, who makes it for and among women. She is what the speaker committees think of when they want to raise money for a feminist project.

She came to Chicago recently to do just that, to make enough speeches and shake enough hands to raise money for the highest priority feminist cause, the Equal Rights Amendment. She touched bases like a triumphant, dark-horse candidate coming back home to thank the folks that put her in office.

The short, shanny woman in slacks, her bare feet suffed into espadrilles, made the round of supporters.

A 7:30 breakfast for 175 businesswomen. A press conference. A ladies luncheon. A speech, a tour-of-a-day care center, a television tape session, a fancy cocktail party, a big speech at North Western University that drew 800 women.

She raised money for ERA Central, the statewide organization that aims to push the Equal Rights Amendment over the top in Illinois this year. In the last session of the General Assembly the bill languished in a Senate committee and lost in the House by 12 votes. This year the amendment's supporters say they see a growing willingness to vote for the ERA. But just in case, Ms. Steinem's trip raised enough money to keep ERA Central in Business through February.

Following Gloria Steinem around gives few, if any insights into her philosophy though a day on the road with her leaves the impression of a modest celebrity who is the perfect saleswoman for feminism.

Gloria Steinem, the person, blurred into the crowd of faces and questions and requests. She signed autographs, she held earnest, instant caucuses, she listened to tales of sexist insults and nodded sympathetically, she made notes of potential articles for MS. ("I come back to the office with little scraps of paper.") She encouraged, she listened she said the right thing. Her interest seemed genuine. And somewhere behind her enormous rose-colored glasses and leoline mane, the real person was safely tucked away from the reach of the crowds.

... And now I would like to introduce someone who needs no introduction, one of the country's best known and most critically acclaimed nonfiction writers. Since her first article was published ...

So begins the biography sheet from MS and so began the introduction of banquet head tables, rosewood and marble living rooms, synagog lecterns and college auditoriums. She sat quietly through the loud and fulsome praise, tapping a pencil against the notebook she carried or looking quizzically at her series of well-groomed hostesses.

Gloria Steinem's speeches are like articles in the National Review or the New Republic. Her audiences have been there before, the listeners know what she will say and they need no convincing, just reassurance once again, that they are right. Gloria Steinem gave them ammo for the fight.

She is the right person at the right time. The sharp-witted, pretty woman from Toledo carried her perquisites — the money and the famous friends — into a world where sisterhood and solidarity are the order of the day and chic lives are suspect. Yet she is unassuming in the face of adulation, and she has taken her place in the feminist Pantheon without evoking much rancor.

As the movement's star ascends so will MS, so will she. Self-made, hard-earned patron sainthood is waiting in the wings.

Minorities ask TV ban

(c) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — A broad range of minority group organizations — Hispanic, Oriental and American Indian, as well as black — has been exerting pressure on television stations in various parts of the country to ban from the air, or substantially edit, hundreds of motion pictures which are considered racially offensive.

Because sensitivities vary from city to city depending on their ethnic components, it is difficult to estimate how many movies — including many film classics — have been deemed unplayable on television in one or another part of the country. But many films that have been found objectionable have been salvaged through the deletion of scenes, dialogue and minor characters, according to program directors checked in several cities.

As networks are editing contemporary movies for sex and violence, local stations are cutting vintage films for ethnic slurs.

A film such as John Huston's masterpiece "Treasure of Sierra Madre" may be kept off the air in areas with large communities of Mexican-Americans but has played elsewhere in the country without significant protest.

That film is held objectionable in the southwest because a menacing character, portrayed by Alfonso Bedoya, is a despicable though somewhat comic Mexican bandit. His role is so organic to the film that it could not be edited without destroying the story.

Most of the so-called troublesome films — were produced in the 1930's when broad use was made of ethnic stereotypes for comic relief or stock villainy. At that time — as one program director observed — the minorities were not recognized, or did not have the energy, to complain.

In some communities the station editors are also burdened by the war films of the 1940's in which the Japanese or Germans were ridiculed or represented as evil.

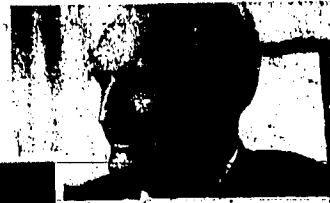

Censorship by citizens groups is a fairly recent phenomenon in television. The Charlie Chan and Shirley Temple film libraries had played fairly comfortably on stations everywhere until three or four years ago: Now they are purchased cautiously, if at all, in areas where the Chinese and black populations have active antidefamation organizations.

Chinese-American watchdogs oppose the Charlie Chan pictures because the principal role appears to promote an Oriental stereotype as well as because the role was invariably played by a Caucasian made-up with "slanted eyes."

Blacks tend to find the Chan films objectionable because of the rolling-eyed cowardice of a secondary comic character, played by Mantan Moreland, whose running line was, "feet, do your stuff."

Movies in which Stepin Fetchit played a prominent role as a dull-witted Negro — including at least two with Shirley Temple, "Stand Up and Cheer" and "Dimples," and the Will Rogers film, "Steamboat Round the Bend" — have been blocked in several cities, either under direct pressure from Black organizations or by the awareness of some stations that they might be inviting needless trouble.

California girds for quakes, lava

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Devastating earthquakes from San Francisco to Los Angeles, lava spewing volcanoes in the north and tidal waves the length of the coast could lay waste to populous California at any time.

In fact, those three potential dangers and the seven others making up the Golden State's top 10 geological hazards, could cause a staggering $55 billion damage, between 1970 and the year 2000, according to official state estimates.

Plagued historically by such deadly events, the state isn't waiting for another disaster — such as the 1971 San Fernando earthquake — before taking action.

The California Division of Mines and Geology has prepared a comprehensive, 112-page report, titled Urban Geology—Master Plan for California, estimating the losses from the 10 hazards — and giving detailed action to take to reduce them.

The report, which took three years to prepare, is designed to help state and local agencies plan for safe and orderly growth in relation to geological hazards.

"It's the first report of its kind made anywhere by anyone," said state geologist Wesley G. Bruer.

"Our main thrust was to examine the nature of these hazards, their magnitude and to try to come up with some thoughts on how they can be reduced," he said.

Although the report details catastrophic life and monetary losses which can be expected from 1970 to the year 2000, Bruer said, "We think it's a matter of fact report and in most respects a conservative report." But he admitted the final figures "sort of alarmed us."

An example of such figures are those listed for earthquakes. According to the report, quakes during 1970-2000 could kill more than 50,000 persons, injure tens of thousands of others and cause an estimated $21 million damage in California.

But the report also states that if its recommendations are followed, quake life loss could be reduced by 90 per cent and dollar damage cut by 40 per cent.

The recommendations, costing an estimated $2 billion, include better quake prediction and vigorous enforcement of improved building codes, such as the tearing down of old buildings.

... fashion-minded

Q: Can you give us something fresh and offbeat about Mrs. Gerald Ford?

A: We can tell you that before marrying Ford, 25 years ago, Betty Ford worked as a fashion coordinator. "I did everything, designed windows, organized fashion shows and modelled." Mrs. Ford continues to be fashion-minded even though Women's Lib says this is trivial. She says, "I don't believe in the dumb dress."

Q: Why does everyone put Princess Anne's looks down? I thought she was beautiful at her wedding. — J.S., Terre Haute, Ind.

A: She was. Knowing she would be seen by the largest audience in her lifetime, the Princess had France's top makeup expert, Olivier, flown across the Channel to do his stuff. He did it!

Q: Sophia Loren is such a good actress, but she usually turns up in lousy pictures. When can we expect something better? — W. E., Albuquerque, N. M.

A: Right away. Sophia has at last latched onto a grand dramatic role, that of a rich gangster's widow living in Swiss retirement. She tangles with an old judge (to be played by Jean Gabin) who has been her life's nemesis. The film, "The Tigress and the Elephant" comes from the Indian saying that a fight between tiger and elephant invariably ends in the death of both.

SOPHIA LOREN
... gangster's widow

Q: Whatever happened to Moshe Dayan's famous daughter? She was pretty quiet during the recent war. — H. J., Milwaukee, Wis.

A: Yael, age 34, is working in Tel Aviv as a director of volunteers in the biggest hospital in Israel. She served in the 1956 Sinai campaign, and in the Six-Day War of 1967 she was attached to the staff of one of her father's generals. This time she stayed out of the front lines, because: "I have two children now and I'm not a free bird anymore." Both of Dayan's sons, Ehud, 27, and Assaf, 23, are members of the army.

EASY GLUM, EASY GLOW: Why do White House aides prefer the President to speak from the press conference room rather than the Oval Office? Because the First Lady has the latter decorated with yellow drapes, which the staff thinks gives the President a sickly look. Mrs. Nixon refuses to change the drapes and the President backs her up. The press conference room, on the other hand, is all blue, which makes Mr. Nixon come across better on the tube.

Q: I love Anita Bryant on those orange juice commercials. Tell us something about her. Is she as sweet as she seems? — G. E., Memphis, Tenn.

A: This is one case where the public image seems to fit. At 32, Anita is a sweet big business. She makes $80,000 a year pushing Florida orange juice and her name is now more familiar to Americans watching TV than those of Arthur Godfrey, Marlon Brando, Harry Keenan, Rod Serling, John Chancellor and Barbra Streisand. A former "Miss Oklahoma," with several big-selling records, she is married to onetime Miami disc jockey Bob Green, now her manager. Anita credits her success to "having accepted Jesus as my savior."

Q: You wrote recently about changes in the weather. Can science ever do anything about changing the weather? — J. K., Terre Haute, Ind.

A: Well, the Chinese are planting vast tracts of forest — in an effort to alter the distribution of rain. In Russia farmers now spread soot or coal dust over the lingering snow to reduce the reflection of the sun and affect rainfall. Efforts to prod rain by seeding clouds with silver iodide crystals work sometimes, sometimes not. Scientists are considering elaborate schemes, including blanketing sections of the sea with H-bombs. But everybody is aware that in an effort to make the weather better, they might just as easily make it worse.

Q: Just how much will Hank Aaron's record-breaking home run be worth to him? — H. E., Boston.

A: Well, in the next two years, the Atlanta Braves slugger will make more money endorsing products than he has in 20 years of playing baseball. Aaron will earn between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000 exclusive of his annual $200,000 salary as a player. Aaron has already signed with Faberge to promote Brut. He has done a Lever Bros. soap commercial and endorsed Oh! Henry candy bars. He expects also to promote an auto, a beverage and certain foods.

Q: Who is the highest paid entertainer? I have a bet on Elvis Presley. — H. W., Huntington, W. Va.

A: Elvis makes about $150,000 a week. Dean Martin receives as much as $175,000.

LIZA MINNELLI
... highest paid

but at the moment Liza Minnelli is leading the pack. She'll be paid $100,000 for one night's work at the Colombe Hill Club of Long Island, N. Y., on New Year's Eve.

Q: I thought psychoanalysts were supposed to keep quiet about patients. So how could Marilyn Monroe's doctor talk about her to a reporter? — K. J., Cleveland.

A: Marilyn's analyst Dr. Ralph Greenson, did talk to Maurice Zolotow because he thought the writer was favorable to the late actress, and both Zolotow and the doctor wanted to set the record straight about Norman Mailer's sensational book of rumors and allegations. The doctor says he long pondered his responsibility before agreeing to talk. But then he says Zolotow published confidential information without the doctor's okay. Now, in the Medical Tribune, Dr. Greenson scorns the work of both Zolotow and Mailer, saying the former "misquoted" him and that the latter "made so many inaccurate, false, misleading statements — bizarre fantasies."

Q: How come we never read anything about Johnny Carson's third wife, Joanna? She seems to stay awfully far in the background. — L. D., Baton Rouge, La.

A: And that's just the way Johnny likes it. Carson always felt that his second wife tried to cash in on his fame and he doesn't want that to happen again. We hear that Johnny wouldn't even let Joanna dance at a charity show, because one performer in the family is all he wants.

Q: First I read that Lisa Kirk did sing for Lucille Ball in "Mame." Now I read she didn't. So what goes? — K. E., Lexington, Ky.

A: The story was all over Hollywood that Lisa did sing over Lucy's own voice for the "Mame" soundtrack. But then Warner's started demanding retractions and now Miss-Kirk herself says she didn't do it. So we guess Lucy is what you'll hear and what you'll hear is what you'll get.

Q: Why in the world did that beautiful Sue Lyon marry man who must stay in prison for years? What's in it for her? — J. W., Mobile, Ala.

A: The 27-year-old blonde actress has always had a philanthropic bent. She used to keep her New York apartment open as a haven for runaway kids and other youngsters in trouble. In marrying convicted murderer Gary 'Cotton' Adams, who is serving two concurrent 20- to 40 year sentences, Sue evidently believes that she is somehow helping him. She became interested in the 33-year-old Gary after social service work with L. A. County Jail inmates. Gary wrote her a letter challenging her to help him and Sue went to Colorado — to see him. She says she fell in love.

AN EX SPEAKS UP: Sacha Distel, who purred some 15 years ago with sex kitten Brigitte Bardot, has spent the years since trying to live down the playboy image he got while living with her. "I didn't want to be Mr. Bardot," says the French singer. Recently Sacha and B. B. got together and cut a record, "The Sunshine of My Life." Sacha claims: "This time I was boss. There were no recriminations. We still like each other very much. I will tell you something else. She is still one of the most beautiful women in the world."

Q: I have an argument going with my know-it-all cousin. He says the English are much more liberated, swinging and sexy than Americans. I say bal. What do you think? — J. E., Boston, Mass.

A: Your cousin is obviously a convert to the Swinging London theory. But expert Gay Talese, now personally researching a book on sex behavior, sides with you. Gay says London night life is tame and seedy and he was unimpressed by visits to mixed saunas there. Gay should know, since he has been living it up for several years of research.

Q: It seems to me flying saucers are always being debunked. Doesn't anyone in this country take UFO's seriously? — H. E., Greenwood, Miss.

A: Lots of people: 51 per cent in a recent Gallup Poll said they believe in UFO's. And Gordon Military College in Barnesville, Ga., is offering eight weeks of lectures on UFO's by a psychiatrist named Bruce Henne. Henne thinks extra-terrestrial beings are looking our planet over prior to making direct contact with us within the next 20 years. He says they behave as we would on another planet, citing the NASA directive which instructs astronauts how to act on an inhabited planet. The NASA rules are to keep to isolated areas at first, to make random contact, and only later to show themselves in populated areas.

Q: I don't care what people say; Eddie Fisher will always be my favorite. I hate it that I can't buy his records anymore. — H. R., Philadelphia.

A: Fisher, now 45, recorded his last album in 1965 —

EDDIE FISHER
... readies act

"Games Lovers Play." But he is ready to resurface. He is recording and rehearsing a new nightclub act.

Q: I thought, the actor who played the Jackal in "The Day of the Jackal" was just great. Why haven't we seen him in another movie? — L.L., Beaumont, Tex.

A: As Edward Fox says, "There's been a lot of talk but no action." Meaning, he hasn't been offered an attractive contract for another film. Right now Fox is working for $60 a week with an English stock company. But it isn't as bad as it sounds; he is sharing a flat with his co-star, actress Joanna David.
