Evans opposes Idaho dams

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — Washington Gov. Dan Evans Saturday joined opponents of further dam construction in North America's deepest gorge, Hell's Canyon. In a letter to a two-day public hearing, Evans expressed support for legislation calling for inclusion of a 110-mile stretch of the Snake River in the National Wild and Scenic Rivers Act. Under terms of the proposed bill, 282,315 acres of land bordering the river would be set aside as wild and scenic rivers area. Another 864,494 acres would become a national recreation area.

Onassis plans US refinery

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (UPI) — Aristotle Onassis hopes to begin construction of a $600 million oil refinery next year in New Hampshire, according to Gov. Meldrim Thomson. The governor said he met with the Greek shipping magnate Friday in New York City and Onassis told him he hoped to have all the necessary city, state and federal permits to begin construction in 1974 and complete it by 1976. Onassis has promised to "meet all environmental standards" in construction of the refinery to help the New England states overcome a refining shortage.

Propane ban maintained

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — The U.S. border remained closed Saturday to propane gas shipments for Baja California, in spite of reported agreement permitting the shipments. Delivery of the gas was halted abruptly Thursday when U.S. customs officials were told by telephone to stop petroleum movements to Mexico. Liquid propane gas from the U.S. provides the heating and cooking fuel for 95 per cent of Baja California's 1.5 million people. Eliseo Mendoza, Mexican undersecretary of industry and commerce, said a U.S.-Mexico licensing agreement permitting the shipments was reached Friday night.

Trains collide; 2 killed

PLAINVIEW, Tex. (UPI) — Two freight trains collided head-on in the Texas Panhandle Saturday night, killing two engineers. Another freight train derailed to the north, and leaking liquid chemicals fueled explosions that injured 12 persons and set five homes ablaze. All three trains belonged to the Santa Fe Railway Co. V.N. Townsend, a Santa Fe agent, said one of the freights in the Plainview accident was sitting at a siding when the other train approached, headed onto the siding and collided with the stationary train.

Rock 'royalty' wed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Two royal families of the rock music industry were united Saturday with the nation's top black celebrities looking on in a ceremony described by Ebony Magazine as "the wedding of the century." It was the marriage of teenage idol Jermaine Jackson, left, lead singer and guitarist of the Jackson 5 singing group, and Hazel Joy Gordy, daughter of the chairman of the board of Motown records.

4 murdered in Detroit

DETROIT (UPI) — The bodies of two men and two women, their hands tied behind their backs and each shot once in the back or the head, were found Saturday at an East Side home. Police did not identify the victims, but theorized they were slain as a result of a feud among Detroit narcotics dealers. Police went to the house after a neighbor telephoned police to report "unusual noises." Three other persons died in unrelated shootings, raising the city's homicide toll for this year to 719. The previous one-year record was 693.

Teamsters strike supermarkets

DETROIT (UPI) — The Teamsters Union announced Saturday it will strike about 400 Detroit supermarkets at midnight today, a move that could affect hundreds of thousands of customers on the eve of the holiday season. Teamsters Local 337, representing some 2,000 truck drivers, warehousemen and dock workers who serve the supermarkets, called the strike after contract negotiations with bargainers for the supermarkets broke off Saturday afternoon. The strike would affect about 80 per cent of area stores and some 30,000 supermarket employees.

Ford takes 'social' flight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford, using a prerogative of his new office, flew in a White House helicopter Saturday with officials and wives for a social event in Virginia. Ford, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton, Independent Sen. Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell and their wives used the chopper to go to a reception and dinner at Williamsburg in honor of retiring Virginia Gov. Linwood Holton. Ford's press secretary, Paul Mitchell, asked about the trip in these times of fuel crisis, said the helicopter was used because "it's a matter of saving time."

Daylight savers

PRESIDENT NIXON shakes hands with Rep. Norman Lent, R-N.Y., at the White House Saturday after the Chief Executive signed legislation putting most of the nation on year-round daylight saving time. Lent introduced the first daylight saving bill in this session of Congress. (UPI)

Hansen vote set

HANSEN — Hansen City Council members have set Jan. 14 as the date for a bond issue election which, if approved, will provide for water and sewer improvements. The council plans a public hearing Jan. 9. Proposals call for a total bond issue of $265,000, of which $103,900 will be used to improve and expand the city's existing water system. The remaining $161,100 would allow the city to take over the remaining indebtedness of the city's sewer system, including the treatment plant, and become the owner. The facility is now owned by the Hansen Sewer and Water Improvement Association which was formed to finance and build the system.

Busy Kissinger dines in Jordan

AMMAN (UPI) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in the Jordanian capital Saturday night for a midnight dinner with Jordan's King Hussein after talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad in Damascus. A high U.S. official traveling with Kissinger told newsmen the opening of the Geneva peace conference scheduled for Dec. 18 would be postponed three days because of matters that Kissinger has to take up with Israel. He would not elaborate further. Officials said it still was necessary to work out various terms of reference before the peace conference could open. Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy earlier announced the postponement in Cairo. He said there would be a delay "in view of the contacts going on now to prepare for it." Earlier Saturday, U.S. officials expressed confidence the meeting would be held and would be marked by a ceremonial opening.

Trucker protest dwindles

By United Press International
The independent truckers protest against high fuel prices and lowered speed limits dwindled to a few spots around the country Saturday. A national spokesman for drivers predicted that truck traffic "should be almost back to normal" by Monday. Scattered vandalism and violence that marked the two-day protest continued. A tank truck owned by Ashland Chemical Co., of Ashland, Ky., was set afire by a firebomb hurled from a freeway overpass near Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania police said. The driver, Theodore Marlow, Mt. Zion, Ill., quickly put out the fire which caused no injuries or damage. (Continued on p. 8)

Nixon signs DST measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Saturday signed legislation putting most of the nation on year-round Daylight Saving Time to save energy and authorized the use of 2,000 Internal Revenue Service agents to enforce fuel allocation rules. Postponing his annual physical checkup until sometime next week, the President met for one hour with administration energy chief William E. Simon and his deputy, John C. Sawhill. Simon announced the beefed up enforcement actions at a news conference after the meeting. The Daylight Saving Time bill, a compromise passed Friday by the House and Senate, would go into effect at 2 a.m. Jan. 6, and continue until October, 1975. It was designed to save some energy expended for lighting and heating. Simon, who said he had given Nixon a "very positive report" on the government's energy conservation program, announced that the 2,000 IRS agents would begin immediately to enforce the allocation system and crack down on price gouging. The agents have been assigned on a full-time basis for the next six months, he said. Simon added that the IRS agents also will train some 1,000 new personnel to take over the enforcement job by the middle of 1974. "They are going to train and supervise work for us at our direction on allocation, price gouging and any other illegal activities connected with any of these shortages," he said. "We are not going to tolerate any abuse and we will come down on this very hard when it is found out." The federal energy office, which Simon heads, previously has had no far-reaching enforcement program. Simon indicated that Nixon okayed the plans which he outlined. He said they also discussed a three-day-old strike of dissident truckers protesting high fuel prices and lower speed limits; the question of rationing; the present fuel allocation program, and legislation pending in Congress including a proposal to deregulate natural gas at the well head. There were predictions meanwhile that the truckers strike would end by Monday. The forecast came from both Transportation Secretary Claude S. Brinegar and Michael Parkhurst, editor and publisher of Overdrive magazine which originally urged the strike. But J.W. "River Rat" Edwards, an independent trucker who claims to be one of the protest leaders, disagreed. He told newsmen the "men that are behind me... all across this country are not moving (their trucks). There's only one way that those men will move. That will be for me to tell them to move."

Hospital woes listed

By DAVID ESPINO
Times-News Capitol Bureau
NAMPAs The Idaho State School and Hospital (ISSH) is pervaded by law staff morale, poor in-house communication, an unworkable administrative structure and "marginal kinds" of employees, according to a state report. (UPI) Oddly enough, morale was reported highest in the budget office. But one evaluator noted the office's internal affairs were themselves "an area of mass confusion." Some of the officials at the facility apparently are responsible for small amounts of funds, but no accounting procedures or audit trails are available to indicate the disbursement of the money. "I would suggest that immediate action should be taken to correct that situation before someone ends up in jail," one evaluator, a top official wrote. With the fiscal year nearly half over, departmental budgets have still not been written for the $5 million a year institution, according to another evaluator.

"Departmental fiscal operations are being run on a day-to-day basis." The report is the result of an on-site evaluation by a monitoring team of the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS). A 20-member team visited the site for three days in October at the request of deputy administrator Elwyn Wenger. The ineffectiveness of the facility cited throughout the report apparently starts before a person is even admitted for residency. Intake procedures, according to one person who evaluated them, "immediately highlighted lack of communication between program." In addition, the person felt the admission team did not represent the total range of service available at the ISSH. The same person also visited four separate living units and was impressed with the "housekeeping and organization" that had been established. Another person was not so certain when he evaluated some living conditions. (Continued on p. 17)

TF planner interviewed

DAVID RICHEY... new planner

An interview with David M. Richey, newly-hired planning director of the Twin Falls Joint City - County Planning Council, appears in today's "Idaho" magazine. Richey says "majority rule" will eventually determine whether the Snake River canyon rim is developed residentially or preserved for public use.

Tough decisions mark Yule charity

By LORAYNE SMITH Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — It's hard to be put in a position of judging others, especially at Christmas time. That's how Sally Molyneux feels. And there's a good reason. As executive director of the YWCA, she has the unenviable job of determining who should qualify for Christmas baskets. Her only adept in this yearly job are her 10 years of past experience in the post, common sense and a compassionate heart. There are no hard and fast guidelines for "eligibility" for the assistance and she tries to consider each request in relation to the family situation at that time.

Some of the parents may be employed, but illness can be devastating financially so that the family is as "deserving" as another where the father is out of work or disabled. A child requiring hospitalization for two weeks can put a family "thousands of dollars behind," Mrs. Molyneux says. Many of the families whose names are given to the Y for the yearly Christmas basket project are dependent upon Social Security, pensions or disability payments. Many are on welfare. Some of the fathers may have seasonal work, meaning they are not unemployed. One of the biggest factors this year, Mrs. Molyneux feels, is the high rent these people have to pay. Some of the houses, which she described as "nothing" rent for from $80 to $140 per month, according to what the director learns as she visits each family to determine whether or not they need help. Even if a person makes $400 a month, paying this much rent — an older and oft time poorly built home where heating bills are "astronomical" makes it easy to see why there would be nothing to provide extras. One young mother with two small youngsters told her she gets $235 per month in assistance, but pays about half — $115, per month for rent. By the time the woman purchases food stamps, her money is gone. (Continued on p. 9)

Concert Monday

New song

TWIN FALLS — The annual Vera C. O'Leary Junior High School Christmas concert will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The public is invited and there is no charge for admission. Musical groups from the eighth grade band, symphony orchestra and vocal choirs and choruses will perform.

The eighth grade symphonic orchestra, directed by Rick Thorne, will present the "Children's March" by Marguerita Sanfilippo and a rendition of "Christmas In Concert" including "Away in a Manger," "Adeste Fideles" and "We Three Kings of Orient Are" arranged by James MacBeth.

The eighth grade band, also directed by Thorne, will present "The Fifty Ninth Street Bridge Song" by Paul Simon; "The American Christmas Carols," "We Three Kings," "I Wonder as I Wander" and "I Heard the Bells on Christmas Day."

The O'Leary Choir, directed by Dick Smack, will present "Coventry Carol" by Leonard Stand with Tammy Joslin as soprano soloist; "A Star Was His Candle," Teresa Del tuajo; "We've Been a While A-Wandering," featuring JoAlene Gagler and Lori Parker, soprano soloists; Doug Chadel and Doug Egbert, tenor soloists; Tammy McCord and Debbie Mayers, alto soloists and Wayne Malloy and Pete

Shuver, bass soloists; "Christ Child, Christ Child," Marian Chaylsin with Martell Morrison performing on the bells; "Roundelay Noel," Gordon Young, Martell Morrison, bells, and Dennis McCracken, accompanist.

Special guest artists will be the Twin Falls high school girls' chorus, directed by Dick Smack.

They will present "Willie Bring your Little Drum" arranged by Lois Rhea; "Take Me For a Sleighride," Jean Harm; "Alford Burt Carols," including "Caroling, Caroling," "We'll Dress the House," the "Manger Carol," arranged by Mary Caldwell and "Silver Bells," with Jay Livingston, Roy Evans and solists, Karen Fouts, Kristine Rhodes, Sue Carlson, Barbara Henscheid. Jerry Vanderdoes is accompanist.

The orchestra, directed by Richard Thorne will present "Aria from Don Giovanni," W. A. Mozart, and the symphonic Orchestra will follow with "Andante and Allegro," Mozart, and "Butterfly" arranged by Richard Malby. The concert band, directed by Thorne, will close the concert with "Prelude" by A. Corelli; "A Christmas Waltz," by James Nichols arranged by A. Dedrick; "Still We Die Nachts," Carl Bohm and "Song from M.A.S.H." by Johnny Mandel and Mike Altman, arranged by Lowden.

TF council eyes sewer request

TWIN FALLS — City Council members of Twin Falls will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday to consider a number of business matters including a request for water and sewer service by Arlo White.

He is asking the city to serve his property at the edge of the city with water and sewer facilities to enable him to install mobile home parking on the land just south of the new K mart store.

Other items on the agenda include a proposed city and county agreement for joint service at the airport.

The council is expected to authorize an airport tower utility service agreement and to review the lease of city owned water shares not needed for city use. A proposed easement for Intermountain Gas Co., and a request from Senior Citizens will also be reviewed.

The council will name a new member of the Twin Falls Housing Authority board for a five year term. Rev. Leslie C. Brown has been recommended. Members of the council or employees of the city will also be selected to vote the city's water shares in the annual meetings of the Twin Falls Canal Co. and the Salmon River Canal Co.

Horse mishap

KIMBERLY — Jenny Cox, 11, Kimberly, suffered minor injuries in a horseback riding accident here Saturday afternoon.

County sheriff's officers said she and another 11-year-old, Penny Nobles, Kimberly, were riding horses east of the Henry Produce Co., Kimberly, along the highway when the Cox girl's horse slipped on mud beside the pavement and fell.

The accident occurred about 2 p.m. Miss Cox was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for treatment of face cuts and examination for fractures.

Officers said the other girl was not involved in the accident.

Burley man held on assault count

TWIN FALLS — Clayton D. Denton, 41, Burley, was arrested by city police here late Friday and charged with assault and battery and concealment of merchandise.

A police report said Ted Manker, assistant manager of Penny Wise Drug Store at Lynwood Shopping Center, allegedly observed Denton take merchandise from his store and attempted a citizen's arrest.

During the effort to arrest the man, Manker told officers, he was struck in the face by the suspect. Police reports indicated Manker was hospitalized with a fractured jaw.

2 drivers cited

TWIN FALLS — Both drivers involved in an accident about 11:56 p.m. at the intersection of Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Fairway were cited for driving while intoxicated.

City officers charged Troy Allen Koons, 18 and George Duff Clark Jr., both Twin Falls, with driving while intoxicated after the Koons vehicle stopped to turn left from Blue Lakes onto Fairway and was struck in the rear by the Clark vehicle.

Clark and one of his two passengers, Raymond A. Huffing, 22, were treated for head cuts and other lacerations.

Soviet miles

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union covers an area of 8,600,350 square miles in eastern Europe, and northern and central Asia.

Guild holds party

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Bells Lettres Guild will hold their first 1974 meeting Jan. 17.

The group met Thursday night with their husbands as guests for the annual Christmas party. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Burgess were hosts for the event, assisted by Pearl Rayl, Alice Bradford and Eva Stuart.

Betty Ainsworth reviewed the book, "Two from Galilee" by Marjorie Holmes. The book tells the story of Mary and Joseph, two real people whose lives were touched by God. Mrs. Holmes calls it "the greatest love story of all time, told for the first time as a love story."

Christmas carols were sung with Ila Campbell with Santa Claus arriving to present miniature loaves of fruit bread to guests and members.

Worst flood

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The most disastrous flood in Connecticut history took place in March, 1936. Eleven people died when the Connecticut River crested at 37.6 feet. Damage totaled $35 million.

Nixon's tax deductible gift eyed

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Nixon's intended gift to the American people of his house and grounds at San Clemente, Calif., would give him another big tax deduction at about the time that one he claimed for the donation of his pre-presidential papers runs out.
 Tax lawyers who have been looking at the President's financial disclosures calculate that the deduction for the gift of La Casa Pacifica will be somewhat smaller, year by year, than the one Nixon has been taking for the disputed gift to the National Archives of his pre-presidential papers.
 But the new deduction could be spread out over the years from 1974 through 1979, and throughout that period, help to keep president and Mrs. Nixon on the list of high-income individuals who pay relatively little federal income tax.
 The actual deed giving the San Clemente property to the American people has not yet been drawn up because the President's lawyers have not had the time, according to Bruce Whellhan of the White House press office.

 Whellhan also said that so far "nobody has figured out the tax consequences" of the planned gift. "That's down the road."
 A gift of the sort that Nixon has pledged himself to make comes under some special tax rules.
 Since the President and Mrs. Nixon intend to use the San Clemente property throughout their lives and turn it over to the nation only after both are dead, they will be eligible for an immediate tax deduction, but not for the full value of the property.
 Instead, the value of the gift as a tax deduction is calculated according to a formula that is based on the ages of the donors at the time they make the gift.

When the man making such a gift is 61 and his wife is 62 — the ages the Nixons will be in 1974 — 30 per cent of the value of the gift is permitted as a deduction.
 In the statement of their net worth that the Nixons made public last weekend, the value of the San Clemente property was given as $571,000. That, however, as the financial statements noted, was a figure based on the original cost of the property. It is assumed to be worth much more now, not only because of improvements that have been made, but also because of inflation.
 The property is currently valued at $1.3 billion by California authorities, for purposes of the property tax, and some public officials in the state have argued as high as $2.9 billion.
 Thus the value of the gift as a tax deduction could range from about $390,000 to $870,000.

The entire deduction cannot be taken at once, however. It may be spread over six years, but in no year may it be larger than 30 per cent of the donor's adjusted gross income.
 Thus, if the Nixons continue to have an annual income of about $260,000, as they do now, they could deduct $78,000 a year from their taxable income each year for six years, or a total of $468,000.

If Nixon's income goes up after he leaves office, his potential total deduction will be higher.

Nader attorney gets tape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A lawyer for Ralph Nader has obtained a tape of President Nixon's controversial March 23, 1971, meeting with dairy leaders—a key point in a suit charging the administration increased milk supports in exchange for huge campaign gifts.

The attorney, William O. Dobrovir, said Saturday he also has obtained by subpoena the daily diaries for Nixon's former top aides, H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, from mid-1970 until after the 1972 election.

Dobrovir has been gathering evidence in the suit, which is one of several legal actions aimed at the dairy industry as a result of Republican campaign contributions now believed to total at least $527,500.

The Senate Watergate committee has authorized a general subpoena for the administration's dairy records and is expected to focus part of its January hearings on campaign financing on the industry. So far, no subpoenas have been served by the committee.

Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has assigned two lawyers to the dairy matter. The Justice Department is pursuing a civil antitrust suit against Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI), headquartered in San Antonio, Tex., and one of three major milk co-operatives.

The controversy involves these matters:

- Jake Jacobson, AMPI attorney and White House aide in the Johnson administration, testified in a deposition in November he gave $100,000 in cash in August, 1969, to Herbert W. Kalmbach, Nixon's fundraiser and private lawyer.
- Former Rep. Pat Hillings, R-Calif., who succeeded Nixon as a House member before becoming an AMPI lawyer, wrote Nixon in December 1970: "We are now working with Tom Evans and Herb Kalmbach in setting up appropriate channels for AMPI to contribute $2 million to your re-election."
- Hillings also asked that dairy import quotas be tightened. The administration revised the quotas two weeks later, Nader charged, "according to the wishes of the industry."
- Former Agriculture Secretary Clifford M. Hardin set the support price for milk for the year beginning April 1, 1970, at $4.66 a hundredweight, and on March 12, 1971, "after careful review," refused to raise it any further.
- Nixon met on March 23, 1971, with executives from AMPI, Mid-America-Dairies and Dairymen Inc., the three major dairy co-ops.

Europe slaps Arab 'weapon'

COPENHAGEN (UPI) — The nine-nation European summit conference told the Arabs Saturday Europe is willing to cooperate economically, but warned them against wielding their oil weapon too hard.

The formal reply to Arab demands for more European cooperation and greater pressure for Israel's withdrawal from occupied lands was delivered to four Arab envoys Saturday afternoon.

Danish Foreign Minister

K.B. Andersen, speaking for the summit, said: "Europe wanted 'close cooperation' with the Arabs, 'but this cannot be carried out if our attention is constantly disturbed by measures directed against others' — a reference to Europe's suffering because of Arab oil cutbacks.

"Your measures may have a negative effect from your point of view."

Presidents, premiers and foreign ministers of the nine-nation European Common Market, meanwhile, raced to finish their talks on greater European unity.

The summit meeting, side-tracked by the gate-crashing Arabs, wanted to set up machinery for crisis management to give Europe a firmer voice in future international emergencies. It also groped for a joint policy on the emergency crisis but found itself divided on immediate concrete commitments, including the recent proposal from U.S. Secretary of State Henry A.

Kissinger for an American-European-Japanese energy crash program.

Some of the Europeans suspected France and Britain of seeking secret deals with the Arabs to secure their oil supplies.

The positive summit reply to the Arabs temporarily ended the drama caused by the surprise intervention of the four Arab ministers from Tunisia, Algeria, Sudan and the United Arab Emirates with demands from oil-hungry Europe for wide-ranging economic and technological cooperation and more action against Israel.

The Arabs made these demands at a dawn meeting with the foreign ministers of the Common Market nations and asked for a quick response.

Schlesinger blasts Red ambush of 'mercy' copter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger Saturday branded as "very clearly a despicable act" the Communist ambush of a mercy-mission helicopter in South Vietnam, and threatened unspecified U.S. retaliation if such attacks continue.

The State Department also denounced the attack, in which an American officer was killed, as "contemptible" and "criminal," especially since the Communists were notified of the mission in advance.

The unarmed helicopter, which Schlesinger said was clearly marked as a nonhostile aircraft, was carrying four

U.S. Army personnel and three South Vietnamese on a search for the body of an American serviceman believed killed in 1966. The copter was one of three forced down Friday only 12 miles from Saigon.

U.S. officials said Capt. Richard M. Rees, 32, of Kent, Ohio, was killed "in cold blood" by Communist riflemen after the helicopter touched down and Rees raised his arms in surrender. Rees was the second American killed since the Jan. 27 Vietnam cease-fire.

Auto deaths down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas F. Engleton, D-Mo., released a survey Saturday showing a trend toward fewer auto fatalities in states that reduced speed limits to 50 miles per hour during the fuel shortage.

Engleton said his survey showed nine states with 50 mph limits, but only four of them had the new limit long enough to get sufficient data.

Vermont showed a 30 per cent reduction below the average auto death rate; Iowa, 29 per cent lower; Massachusetts 21 per cent, and Washington, 13 per cent below average.

The senator said the showing of reduced fatalities as a result of reduced speed limits was contrary to insurance industry predictions.

"Insurance company predictions based on the weak logic of more injuries and fatalities per accident because of car pooling and smaller cars has not developed," Engleton said.

Military cadets deprived of constitutional rights

(c) N. Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — A two-year study of legal practices at the nation's five military academies has revealed what are alleged to be extensive violations of constitutional guarantees in maintaining conduct, honor and ethics codes.

The survey, soon to be published by the New York University Law Review, cites hundreds of examples of cadets being deprived of due process of law in seeking to defend themselves against disciplinary charges.

The results, according to the study, include unfair expulsion, high attrition rates and, most seriously, the fostering of a contempt for the law that leads to justification of "undesirable military practices."

An alleged disdain for "legal technicalities," such as lack of sufficient evidence, is combined with an exaggerated sense of honor and integrity to produce an attitude of moral superiority, the study says.

This, in turn, enables the nation's highest-ranking officers, 85 per cent of whom in the Army and Navy are academy graduates, "to accept a My Lai massacre of 14 months of secret bombing of Cambodia as protection of the nation," according to Capt. Michael T. Rose, an Air Force Academy graduate and author of the report.

"What the honor code really does is inculcate values that are socially undesirable," Rose said in an interview. "Military honor has traditionally bound the officer corps together, but it has been redefined to contain a super-loyalty that forbids any deviation from the norm."

The survey explores the nature of adjudicatory systems at the nation's five service academies: The United States Military Academy, West Point, N. Y.; the Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo.; the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.; The Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn.; and The Merchant Marine Academy, Kings Point, N. Y.

The 26-year-old Rose, currently assigned to the Judge advocate general's office at McGuire Air Force Base, N. J., visited each academy twice and, with the help of law students and editors of the law review, some of whom also were academy graduates, compiled the documentation listed in 1,800 footnotes.

US, Sweden diplomatic freeze thaws

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Unless President Nixon changes his mind at the last minute, the United States will end a year-long diplomatic freeze against Sweden next month and name a new ambassador to Stockholm, American officials report.

The freeze was imposed by President Nixon after Premier Olof Palme issued a statement on Dec. 23, 1972, comparing the bombing of Hanoi to Nazi and Soviet atrocities in World War II.

A few days later, Nixon ordered the then-vice-chairman of U. S. charge d'affaires in Stockholm John C. Guthrie, not to return to his post and told the Swedish government not to send its newly named ambassador, Yngve Moeller, to the United States.

There was harsh criticism in other foreign capitals of the Nixon administration's decision to resume the bombing of the North Vietnam at Christmas time, some of it voiced in official circles.

This resulted in similar though less dramatic diplomatic freezes of varying length and intensity against Canada, New Zealand, Australia, the Netherlands, Finland and Denmark, according to American and foreign officials.

The freeze against Canadian diplomats was a reprisal against resolution of the Parliament in Ottawa condemning the bombing raids on North Vietnam last December.

It lasted about two months. At one point the freeze was so intense that United States businessmen were specifically warned by White House aides to avoid Canadian diplomats.

Energy-saving DST measure penned

"At this time we're sitting tight," he said. "We're not going to move until we have definite action. We're prepared to sit it out."

Edwards said he could not estimate how many truck drivers he represented.

Simon said the administration is trying to increase the diesel fuel supply and has promised the truckers 110 per cent of the fuel supply they used last year. He said he hoped "these positive steps we have taken will be accepted in a positive fashion by the truckers."

The energy chief said Nixon described the emergency energy bill, which passed the House early Saturday, as a "basket case" because "it's got a mere 200 points-of-difference" with a Senate-passed version. He said he hoped the two versions could be compromised in a House-Senate conference by Thursday and passed before Congress adjourns for Christmas.

"Both versions have some problems," he said. "...the House version with that many amendments we just could not tolerate."

Simon said he and Nixon discussed the possibility of gasoline rationing "at some length," but indicated they still view it as a last resort. He also said his staff would begin meeting Monday with airlines representatives in an effort to relieve a threatened layoff of pilots and flight personnel because of jet fuel shortages.

Expressing optimism that the government will solve these shortages, Simon added that his predictions were not based on the assumption that the Arab oil boycott will end soon. "I'm assuming the embargo will continue," he said. The Daylight Savings Time bill which Nixon signed would put the nation on "fast time" throughout the year for the first time since World War II.

Nixon said this would save the equivalent of 150,000 barrels of oil daily during the winter "with only a minimum of inconvenience and ... equal participation by all."

Daylight Saving Time, normally used during the summer months, would tend to reduce demands for electrical lighting and heating in the evenings by artificially creating an extra hour of daylight.

The legislation exempts Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Indiana, and allows the dozen states straddling two time zones to adopt a uniform statewide time.

At the bill-aligning, Nixon urged Congress to act swiftly on other emergency legislation before it begins its scheduled Christmas recess next Friday.

But congressional sources predicted long, tough negotiations between the House and Senate to compromise their versions of legislation Nixon requested Nov. 8 for sweeping authority to deal with the energy crisis.

Among the major sticking points in the House bill approved at 1:30 a.m. Saturday were a ban on gasoline for pupil busing beyond neighborhood schools and a requirement that Nixon submit all energy saving programs for congressional approval. Neither provision is in the Senate bill, which would empower Nixon to act at his discretion, subject to a congressional veto within 15 days.

As for the truckers' work stoppage, Parkhurst said long-distance truck traffic "should be almost back to normal" on Monday, with only local pockets of resistance.

Parkhurst, basing his prediction on checks Saturday with truckers and truck stops in 10 states, said the major holdouts to ending the strike would be in Old Washington, Ohio; Denver, Colo., and in Lamar, Pa., where, according to Parkhurst, J.W. "River Rat" Edwards heads a group of about 55 followers.

Edwards earlier disputed Brinegar's prediction of a weekend resumption of truck traffic. "Secretary Brinegar does not speak for the truckers," Edwards said. "At this time there has been nothing settled."

Although reduced speed limits is a prime complaint of the drivers, the Senate approved a bill Friday that would force a maximum nationwide limit of 55 miles per hour or threaten noncomplying states with loss of federal highway aid.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., who is campaigning for a reduction in automobile insurance premiums because of reduced speed limits, released the results of a preliminary survey which he said disputed insurance industry predictions that lower speed limits would have no effect on accident death rates.

Pilots due lay off

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — Northwest Airlines said Saturday it will lay off 128 of its "most junior" pilots as part of cutbacks required by the energy shortage.

Airline spokesman Roy Erickson said notices have been sent to the pilots involved. He said the pilots are being furloughed effective Dec. 31.

Henry huddles with Arab leaders

They emphasized that the stronger relations would be noticeable in the near future.

Kissinger, greeted at the Amman airport by Premier Zaid Rifal, received a warm welcome in Jordan, where Hussein has long maintained cordial relations with the United States. The 38-year-old king showed exceptional courtesy to the American Secretary during his last swing through Arab capitals in early November.

After some hesitation over the decision of the recent Arab summit conference to recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization as the "sole representative" of the Palestinians, Hussein this week announced his intention to send a delegation to the projected Geneva peace conference.

The eventual role of the Palestinians at later stages of the conference was one of the topics Hussein was expected to discuss with Kissinger. Another was the future of the Arab sector of Jerusalem, which Jordan insists must be returned to Arab control.

Kissinger was to spend the night in Amman, flying on for a short visit to Beirut Sunday morning before going to Tel Aviv.

Shortly before Kissinger arrived in Damascus, a high-ranking American official traveling with him said the peace conference, originally scheduled to convene Tuesday, may be postponed "a day or so" because of "procedural matters."

(Arab sources in Geneva said the issue of Palestinian representation at the session may cause a delay.)

Kissinger, on a tour of six Arab capitals and Israel, is the first U.S. Secretary of State to come here since John Foster Dulles 20 years ago.

Hundreds of plainclothes police, many carrying machineguns, guarded the airport and the streets used by Kissinger's official motorcade upon his arrival from Saudi Arabia.

Saudi sources said Kissinger tried, but failed, to get King Faisal to agree to lift his embargo on oil shipments to the United States when the Geneva conference opens.

The sources said Faisal insisted the embargo would be lifted only when Israel has started withdrawing from all Arab territory occupied during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war under an American-guaranteed agreement.

Syria, which has had no diplomatic relations with the United States since the 1967 six-day Arab-Israeli war, has expressed official skepticism about the projected Geneva conference.

Trucker protest wanes

Michael Parkhurst, editor and publisher of "Overdrive" magazine, said in Washington Saturday that most of the drivers who stayed off the road Thursday and Friday would be behind the wheel Monday, although "a few guys will want to show how gutsy they are for another two or three days."

Parkhurst said he thought the shutdown "made the public sympathetic to the truckers' plight."

Basing his predictions on checks Saturday with drivers in 10 states, Parkhurst said he didn't expect much truck traffic this weekend since many drivers have decided to rest at home.

"They wouldn't just jump in their trucks at midnight and start to drive somewhere just because the slowdown was over," he said.

In Washington, J.W. "River Rat" Edwards, an independent trucker who claims to be one of the protest leaders, disputed Parkhurst's prediction that truck traffic will be near normal Monday.

Edwards told newsmen the "men that are behind me... all across this country are not moving (their trucks). There's only one way that those men will move. That will be for me to tell them to move."

"At this time we're sitting tight," he said. "We're not going to move until we have definite action. We're prepared to sit it out."

Edwards said he could not estimate how many truck drivers he represented.

Most of the violence appeared to be in Ohio and Pennsylvania where truck traffic remained light.

The Ohio Highway Patrol reported that two more trucks were shot at in the northeastern part of the state. Since Thursday police received at least 85 reports of violent incidents, half of them shoot ings. There were no known injuries, however.

The number of shooting incidents in Pennsylvania reported since Thursday rose to eight, although state police said they knew of no injuries.

Saturday's most bizarre incident took place near East Liverpool, Ohio where a dissident driver hijacked a crane en route to pull a derailed Penn Central freight train back onto the tracks. Police said the crane was recovered and no arrests were made. There were no injuries.

In northeastern Ohio, some drivers tried again to block others at five truck stops. But police said most stops were clear by early Saturday and truck traffic was beginning to increase.

Blockades at truck stops in the St. Louis area ended Friday when leaders indicated many drivers weren't taking part in the protest.

"We're lifting the barricades because too many trucks are not stopping and local operators who have shut down are staying home and sleeping. Instead of coming here to help on the blockades," said Bob Sutherland, a driver for a St. Louis firm.

In Springfield, Ill., Robert Jasmon, the manager of the 2,000-member Mid-West Truckers Association said its drivers planned to be back behind the wheel Saturday.

About 150 drivers ended a two-day blockade early Saturday at two North Carolina truck stops along Interstate 95.

Bomb kills 1 in Ulster

BELFAST (UPI) — A bomb blast killed one man and seriously injured another Saturday at Clady Bridge, near the border town of Strabane, 18 miles south of Londonderry, the Army said.

The two men were walking across the bridge when the bomb exploded. Army sources said it was believed one of them may have been carrying the bomb.

Earlier Saturday, gunmen shot a former policeman through the head and dumped his body alongside a road near Keady on the County Armagh border with the Irish Republic.

The deaths raised the toll to 921 persons killed in four years of nonstop violence among Northern Ireland's majority Protestants, minority Roman Catholics and the security forces.

Elsewhere along the border, at Newton Butler in County Fermanagh, gunmen Saturday night planted bombs that wrecked a jam factory, courthouse and customs-clearance station, police said. The blasts caused no casualties.

The assassination victim was found with a hood over his head and his hands tied behind his back.

Judging who should get Yule aid hard decision

Probably the biggest mistake people make in discussing the plight of lower income people, Mrs. Molyneux says, is to judge a situation by how things look from the outside.

"The amount of dirt can't be a criteria," she laughingly notes, and sometimes people who live in a house which appears to be very adequate from the street need help as much as someone living in a shack.

She estimates probably 10 per cent of those whose names are given to the Y, which acts as a clearing house for all community groups and individuals wanting to participate in the traditional gesture of charity, refuse any help. Often they are the very ones needing or "deserving" it the most.

Then there is the other side of the coin where families, caught in the "welfare syndrome" where children grow up knowing nothing but handouts, not only take but expect more, much to the chagrin of the faint hearted and thin skinned "do-gooders."

"Where children see their parents pulling every string to get all they can, what can you expect?" she asks.

The director has her own ideas about eligibility and when someone, able bodied man has no job "because he can't find any kind of work he likes to do" as one wife told Mrs. Molyneux, she crossed their name off the list. But she also had been careful to learn that they had relatives in the area.

It would be much easier to just give everyone baskets, and one year she did this, recalling she "got so upset at the extremes" and worrying about her decisions. In the long run she felt better about the project that year, but somehow it seems sensible to make some effort to learn the circumstances of each family.

So the director is busy these days calling on the prospective recipients, asking blunt questions and finding all types of deprivation.

Over the last 10 years she has headed the yule project for the Y, the number of families hasn't changed more than 10.

"Each year we gain a few and lose a few," she says. "Some families are on the list every year and other families seek help once and we never hear from them again."

Then there are some "special" families which the prudent director leaves till the end and if there are not enough donors to fill all the baskets these are the families she'd like to forget. But it usually turns out there are enough groups and individuals volunteering to care for everyone.

"We claim to be Christians," Mrs. Molyneux said. "And as Christians our concern is for our neighbors, whoever they are. Christ accepted people as they were."

While the director gets disgusted with "do-gooders" whose only motivation is "social acceptance" she feels the saddest part of the entire project is that people forget to show compassion year around.

"How many of the people who gladly help out now will say in March, 'Let's check the family again and see what they need now.' Finances are prone to be at the lowest tide after a hard winter," she observed.

After the names of the recipients are cleared, many segments of the community take over. About 80 per cent of the baskets are furnished by the Twin Falls Elks Lodge each year.

Catholic Church members "take a tremendous amount," she said, mostly with the Spanish speaking families.

There are between 8 and 10 organizations who "take" a family yearly but never bother to let the Y know. This often results in duplication and many times the only way Mrs. Molyneux learns of it is the following year when she calls on the family.

Such situations are not the family's fault, but it causes criticism of the entire project and could be avoided if all groups or individuals would just let the Y know who they are helping.

She stressed the Y has no intention of interfering with any group's activity, but since they serve as a clearing house for the names, contacting the Y office would eliminate one family getting perhaps several baskets, sometimes at the expense of another more needy one.

Children in nearly all the Twin Falls schools participate by bringing canned goods which are then taken to the Y by Boy Scouts who also help deliver the baskets.

Boys in Troop 67, which now takes six or seven families, who used to "set the basket down and practically run," now want to become involved with the families, Scoutmaster Frank Mogensen has told Mrs. Molyneux.

The experience sometimes is an eye opener for youngsters unfamiliar with how the "other half" lives. One boy reportedly said with great wonderment, upon leaving a home, "They didn't even have carpeting."

While the problems of determining who should receive food baskets, which often also include toys and clothing, is readily apparent, the project also poses the less obvious problem for donors — how to give without strings attached.

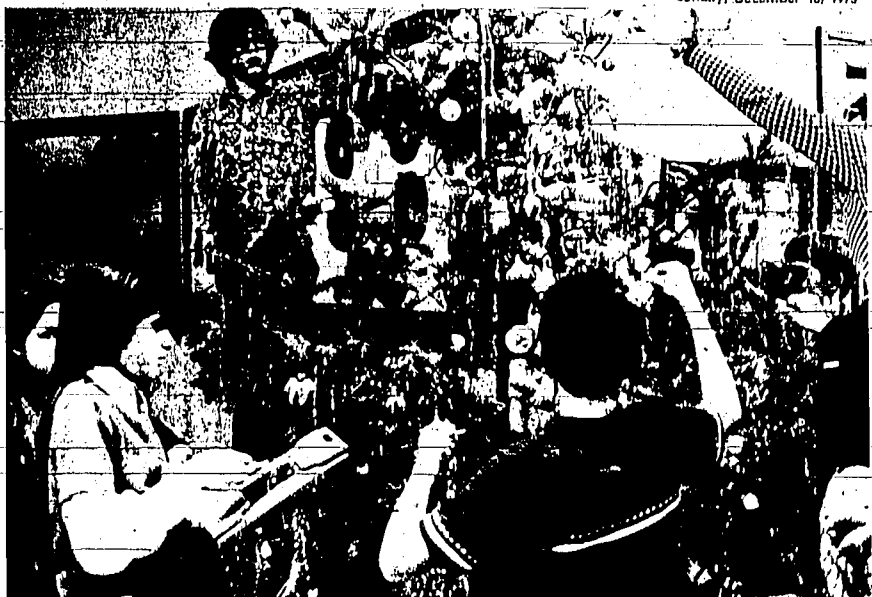

Mrs. Molyneux recalled one woman telling her to please not give her name to a church group for "they tried to convert me last time."

The majority of people participating do it in the right spirit, the director says. They are "glad to help and that's that," but a few become upset if they do not receive a proper thank you note to be read at the next meeting.

Youths also are interested in spreading the Christmas spirit and the Interact Club is participating this year along with college students.

The director sums it up by saying "Everyone is part of the community and we have to show compassion for everybody, whether rich or poor and not try to put people on certain levels. Acceptance is the No. 1 problem."

Good advice, not just at Christmas, but all year long.

Park says Idaho needs rain making legislation

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's attorney general, answering a query from Sen. C. C. Chase, D-St. Maries, who is concerned about cloud seeding in his area, said there is a need for more state legislation on rain making.

Attorney General W. Anthony Park said the cloud seeding operation Chase apparently is interested in is one of two for which permits had been issued.

He said the permit for rain making in the St. Maries area went to North American Weather Consultants, Goleta, Calif., which contracted with Washington Water Power for production of additional rainfall to assist in generation of electrical power.

Park said the cloud seeding operations involving Washington Water and Power and North American had been going on for a number of years in north Idaho. The operations ended Nov. 30, 1973, and the company does not intend to return with its equipment this year.

Chase had asked Park if there were any laws covering rain making because St. Maries residents were worried that the operation could result in a 10 per cent increase in the snow pack that could cause millions of dollars of damage from flooding.

Stereo, records taken

TWIN FALLS — Cheryl Phipps, 247 Elm St., told city police Saturday someone broke into her home and took $270 worth of records, stereo player and speakers.

She said the theft occurred between 6 p.m. Thursday and midnight Friday while she was in jail.

She was one of several persons arrested by city police Thursday night on drug charges.

We're pumping for a cleaner environment

Twenty-five years ago most people in our area scarcely had heard about sewage treatment plants. Since that time, more than sixty municipal plants and more than a dozen industrial installations have been built in the area served by Idaho Power Company.

During that same period of time all of us have acquired a larger awareness of the need for pollution control. Concern for rivers, lakes and clean water supplies have made open dumping of sewage unpopular and illegal.

Sewage treatment plants vary widely in electric consumption. Most of them use dozens of electric motors for stirring, pumping and aeration. New installations require an Idaho Power investment in transformers, distribution and metering equipment.

With the growth of our communities, many plants served by Idaho Power Company are in the process of expansion. Some are adding secondary treatment for improved effectiveness and efficiency of their purification process. Modern plants can require up to ten times as much electricity as earlier installations.

Cleaning up the environment takes ever increasing amounts of electricity. As facilities are built or expanded, you expect the electricity to be available to power them. There are no inexpensive ways to provide it, but build new services we must.

All forms of energy are increasing in cost, as must electricity. But we believe the availability of electric energy for purposes which serve your health, your economic well-being, and your way of life are significantly more important than unavoidable price increases.

TF man arrested

TWIN FALLS — Dee Poolman, 37, Twin Falls, was arrested Friday afternoon on burglary charges.

Twin Falls Police Capt. Tim Qualls said the man is charged with burglarizing the Military Inn Thursday night.

Although nothing was taken, officers found a box of merchandise packed up for apparent removal from the building.

Amtrak said too influenced by congressmen

By STEPHEN M. AUG
(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Amtrak, which has been subject to political influence since its formation three years ago, now apparently is allowing some congressmen to exercise influence over its scheduling much as they have over its route selection.

And while some of the political maneuvering over routes has actually served the public — like a Southern Montana route pushed by Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana which gives easy access to Yellowstone National Park — some of it appears to be inconveniencing many riders.

The congressmen however, contend they are not influencing Amtrak scheduling — only making certain that some communities with rail passenger service don't lose it.

The latest problems involve service between Chicago and Florida and between the Northeast and Florida. In the case of the Florida train, the Chicago Sun-Times contends that a last-minute schedule change may cause up to 6,000 passengers to lose Holiday Hotel and cruise reservations in Florida.

The problems arose about a month ago when Amtrak issued its winter schedules. In the case of the Silver Meteor and Silver Star — two New York-Miami Trains — Amtrak eliminated stops at Waldo and Ocala, Fla., for operational reasons. The trains are considerably longer during the winter because of added passengers, and both communities have short platforms requiring time-consuming double stops.

Service to both communities, however, still would have been provided by trains to Jacksonville for northbound connections, and directly south to Miami and St. Petersburg. The complaints were Amtrak decided to provide a morning departure from Chicago (8:55 a.m.) instead of the normal 8:30 p.m. apparently on the grounds that two days and one night on the train is preferable for older passengers and children, than one day and two nights.

however, meant that the train would have to be routed away from Orlando (home of Disney World) for operational and safety reasons because of heavy rail traffic. Amtrak was to provide charter bus service connecting with the train for the relatively short distance.

The complaints were immediate, Rep. Lou Frey Jr., R-Fla., whose district includes Orlando, complained the change would leave the city without rail service from the Midwest. The change, he said, "seemed utterly absurd from what he had because of the energy crisis."

Frey called Amtrak and on Nov. 28 Joe Matthews, an Amtrak legislative official (and Florida resident); F. S. (Pat) King, Amtrak operating vice president, and Harold Graham, Amtrak marketing vice president, went to Frey's office.

The meeting was followed by a phone call from Frey to Rep. Dan Kuykendall, R-Tenn., acting ranking minority member of the House Commerce Transportation Subcommittee, which presides over Amtrak legislation.

Faster way

GEORGE SPIESSCHAEK, left, drives his team of Belgian Percheron draft horses to deliver beer in Hillsboro, Ore. Regular truck driver Bob Stenlund, right, acted as guide and lumber during this delivery run. The distributor decided to use draft horses for deliveries to save on gas. Regular truck driver Stenlund said, "Using horses is sure a faster way to make deliveries. Right now we're ahead of my normal schedule." (UPI)

2 satellites doing well

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Two communications satellites that will enable the U.S. military to transmit secret messages around the world were reported operating well today after being blasted into stationary orbits on opposite sides of the earth.

The twin 1,200-pound satellites were fired into orbit 22,300 miles above Earth by an Air Force Titan III-C rocket after a 48-hour delay caused by an instrument malfunction.

Air Force spokesmen said the "space switchboards" were operating well in preliminary tests. They will not become fully operational for two months.

The satellites were initially fired into near-circular orbit around the Earth following the 4:57 p.m. MST launch Thursday night. The third stage of the huge rocket then fired the satellites into separate stationary orbits about seven hours after launch.

The satellites, dubbed the "triple seven" satellites by the military, actually appear to hover in one spot over the globe despite being on opposite sides of the Earth.

Each of the twin satellites will be able to handle 1,300 phone calls or relay television and printed messages for military purposes without any danger of the enemy eavesdropping or jamming the satellite to put it out of commission.

Special "scramblers" will be used to code the transmissions to keep an enemy from intercepting the signals. The military says even if the enemy could listen they would receive only garble which could not be decoded.

Listeners are stymied by the way antennas in the satellites are beamed — and by secret techniques used in the command system of the satellites.

Things aren't same for man after 'disclosure'

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
(c) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON—Things are not the same for A. Ernest Fitzgerald even though the air force has taken him back.

The air force fired him in November of 1969 after he disclosed, in testimony before the congressional joint economic subcommittee, that the C-5A cargo plane was costing $2 billion more than originally estimated.

He came back to work at the pentagon Monday as the result of an appeal he won with the Civil Service Commission.

But his new bosses, Fitzgerald said in an interview, told him that he was "coming in under a cloud."

He said, "They have excluded me from any contact with weapons systems—the subject I know best—because they said they wanted to keep me away from the things that got me into trouble before."

Fitzgerald said he was convinced that "the bureaucrats wanted to make an object lesson out of me" so that other Pentagon employees will stay in line rather than follow his example of speaking candidly about embarrassing cost overruns in weapons systems.

Fitzgerald was an efficiency expert with the title of "Deputy for Management Systems" when the air force fired him. In keeping with an order from the civil service commission, the Air Force let him return to his old job and immediately reassigned him to another position with the title of "Deputy for Productivity Management."

The salary in the new job is the same as the other, $36,000 a year, but it is "a very definite demotion," according to Fitzgerald. In the new job, he will be restricted to working productivity problems at Air Force bases and depots in the United States.

The office the Air Force has given Fitzgerald, 43661, complete with his own secretary, is nicer and bigger than the one he had before. The $36,000 salary represents the proper growth of his salary from the $31,000 he was earning four years ago. The Air Force also has agreed that he is entitled to back pay with the exact amount he is due now the subject of negotiation.

But in addition to giving him a less important job, the Air Force has put him in one which may have a precarious future.

Since he is now dealing in a limited number of special projects, Fitzgerald said, there was a danger that he may have been placed in a temporary job which will end once he has completed the projects.

The Air Force always has contended that Fitzgerald was not dismissed because of his disclosure of the cost overruns but because his job was abolished in an economy move. But Fitzgerald confided that he was "socially ostracized" and told by his superior that he had "lost his usefulness" after he decided to "commit the truth" about the C-5A costs.

ROGERSON — Kevin Williams became the first Boy Scout in Rogerson to earn an Eagle badge.

He is a member of Troop 85, with Byron Williams, his father, as Scoutmaster. Kevin, 16, received the award during ceremonies in Rogerson. At the same time, Vern Bungartner was reviewed for Eagle badge honors and is expected to receive the honor soon.

Derald Fitzsimonds, Scout executive, said this may not seem like a high percentage of Eagle Scouts in Rogerson but it is. There are only six boys of Boy Scout age in Rogerson, and four of them are Scouts, all members of Troop 85 and two of these will soon be Eagles. Williams has been in

Syllabus

EXETER, England (UPI)—One item on the menu at Buckereil Lodge had diners guessing: "Syllabus under the Cow."

That is until farmers daughter Caroline Hunt arrived with Jezebel, the pride of her dairy herd, and milked the cow in the middle of the dining room.

Hotel manager Eric Wood added lemon juice, lemon peel, sherry and cognac to the cream in whipping up the syllabus.

His parents currently reside in Twin Falls but because of his association with the Rogerson Troop returns there for his Boy Scout participation.

GOP needs consensus on campaign reform legislation, counselor says

By TOM LITTLEWOOD
(c) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — Republicans "need a better consensus" on the issue of campaign reform legislation, Presidential Counselor Anne L. Armstrong has conceded.

But she indicated that the administration would continue to vigorously oppose any proposal for complete public financing of election campaigns. In Congress and at the White House, Republicans hold divergent views concerning campaign reform, Mrs. Armstrong said. Earlier in the year, President Nixon sent a message to Congress suggesting the creation of a bipartisan commission that would study the subject. Counselor Armstrong agreed at a meeting with reporters yesterday that the GOP was being hurt by its inability to get behind a specific program in the wake of the Watergate affair. She said most Republicans would favor full disclosure of campaign contributions from private sources. Government financing of campaigns is not a popular alternative among those incumbents in Congress who can usually raise more money than a challenger. Mrs. Armstrong referred to the effect that public financing would have spawning perennial candidates "who could not otherwise afford to run against incumbents."

Meanwhile, Nixon was reported leaning toward approval of all or most of a pending pay raise for members of the House and Senate. An independent commission previously recommended an increase in congressional salaries from $42,500 to $55,000 — a 29 per cent raise. The President is authorized under the law to revise the recommendation before it takes effect automatically in March. He can grant the full amount, spread it over a longer period, reduce it, or reject it altogether. A White House source said yesterday that a final decision had not been made but that Nixon was inclined to grant a substantial portion of the increase.

Congressional backlash may delay consumer protection agency bill

By HAILEY MORRIS
(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — A congressional backlash, spurred by suspicions over the role of new "super agencies" in the energy crisis, may hold up passage of anything stronger than the weakest kind of consumer protection agency bill, a key congressman predicts.

The so-called backlash has become discernible only in the last 10 days or so, according to Rep. Frank Horton, R-N.Y., ranking minority member of the powerful house government operations committee.

Businessmen, farmers, and other special interest groups are protesting loudly to their congressmen about some of the decisions made by the EPA and other new agencies such as the consumer product safety commission, Horton said. There is a feeling among many congressmen, he added, that "we are creating too many of these agencies too fast, you could call it backlash."

Horton said that he is not as optimistic as he was that any bill creating an independent consumer agency can be passed. Even if a bill is passed by this congress, Horton said he is afraid that it may be even

High oil prices to continue

(c) New York Times News Service
NEW DELHI — The Iranian foreign minister, Abbas Ali Khatlari, indicated Friday that high oil prices would prevail until the oil industry returned to "normal conditions."

FLOOR FASHIONS
Walt Andersen
Larry Slatter
SPACE-DYEING is one of the few things with such a name that doesn't relate much to our adventures in space. You'll see it referred to in space-dyed nylon carpeting. SPACE-dyeing may not be as exciting as a flight to Mars, but it is making excitement in floor fashions. Technically it refers to the process by which two or more colors can be dyed into the same yarn at exactly the same time. It's a newer technique, and it results in new ways with color in carpets of many, different kinds. Individual yarns carry this subtle marriage of colors for striking effects you can use to make your home step livelier. Such innovations in dyeing have sparking the trend toward multi-hued carpets, from long shags to tightly twisted tweeds, or hi-loop textures. Use your new carpet as a stepping-off place to launch a whole new era of color for your rooms. Our carpet showrooms make a great launching platform for your new carpet adventures. Space-dyed nylon color blends are just one of the exciting directions we have on display. Or we'll gladly bring carpet samples to your home in our spaceship. Give us a call.

He said the steep rise in prices of crude oil produced by Middle East countries were a "sort of accidental and provisional aspect" of the political situation. Khatlari, in a short visit to New Delhi, had discussions with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and other officials on relations between India and Iran. Indian representatives were reported to have expressed concern at the increased price of Iranian oil, which forms the bulk of India's oil imports.

Iran and other oil producing nations, by switching to an auction system instead of a system of bilateral contracts, have forced substantial increases in the price of crude oil. The Iranian government was reported to have sold light-sulphur crude to foreign buyers at auction for as much as $17.40 a barrel.

Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The excavation contractor for the new Perrine Bridge confirmed Thursday that an operating engineer, not a powderman, actually pushed the button on the blast which sent rock crashing into the old Perrine Bridge, closing it for several hours Wednesday.

Paul Judd, owner of P.J. Construction Co., said the "blow" on the dynamite detonator was pushed by Bob Jenkins, an operating engineer not a powderman. Judd had earlier disputed a story by KMYT television reporter Elaine Nielsen that the damaging blast was set off by an unqualified person.

Judd said Thursday that Jenkins had been authorized to detonate the explosion. He said powdermen at the site were busy flagging danger signals to other workmen and that Jenkins pushed the detonator because he was available. He admitted that under union rules "an operator shouldn't help a laborer."

Judd said it made little difference who pushed the button on the detonator as the effects of the explosion were determined by how the charges had been set.

Judd said he himself had designed the charges and that workmen had set them to his specifications. He said there was no negligence in the blasting procedure. He said the rock hitting the old bridge could not have been foreseen.

Mrs. Nielsen said powder foreman Lee Gist had told her that the blast was set off by an unqualified person, but he had not intended to imply negligence when he spoke to the KMYT reporter.

"I told her that I was a powderman here, that I'm doing the blasting here," he said. "She said 'What is he?' I told her he was an operating engineer."

Gist said he did not, however, tell Mrs. Nielsen that he, Gist, was the only person qualified to do the blasting, as Mrs. Nielsen had said earlier he did.

"Most of what I talked to her about was that guy that got fired over there," he said. KMYT news director Dick Tuininga was fired for conflict of interest in November when he refused to withdraw from the city council race.

Gist said he did not think there was any negligence involved in the blast which damaged the present bridge. Asked if he thought the dynamiting was handled by qualified personnel, he said, "I guess they were qualified to — I was working over here (on the south side of the bridge opposite the blast site)."

"I'm the one responsible (for the blast)," Judd said.

Pays off

TWIN FALLS — It pays to advertise. Ernie Willis, Willis Motor Co., asked the Times-News to print a story about two stolen vehicles from his automobile lot a week or two ago and in the story he offered a $100 reward for recovery of the vehicles.

Earl Voss picked up the $100 check Friday morning. He said he had seen one of the vehicles, a Jeep Wagoneer parked at 329 Fifth Ave. N. near his home for about two weeks and wondered why it had no license plates.

"I'm going out now and look for the missing pickup truck," he said.

Inversion boosts urged

BOISE (UPI) — State Sen. James Stoichoff, D-Sandpoint, says the 5 per cent pay increases state employees next month should be inverted to give the biggest boosts to the lowest paid.

Stoichoff said a 5 per cent hike for the higher paid employees will add $1,240 on top of a $24,960 annual salary. But he said that same percentage increase will add only $204 to the lowest salary of $3,876.

Big cut intended, Sen. Jackson says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., suggested Friday that the administration intended to cut back gasoline production by 25 per cent, then pretended the announcement was an error because of heavy adverse reaction.

A federal energy office official insisted that the 25 per cent announcement was an honest mistake, and that 5 per cent — announced hours later on Wednesday night — was the correct, and intended, reduction.

At a Senate government operations subcommittee hearing headed by Jackson, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., first asked John Sawhill, deputy chief of the energy office, if the White House changed its mind after angry reaction.

"I can assure you that no such forces did operate," Sawhill told Percy.

Jackson then interjected: "I have information to the contrary, that the 25 per cent cutback was a definite decision and there was a conscious decision to reduce it to 5 per cent. You are under oath. Did you not discuss 25 per cent?"

Sawhill replied: "We discussed a range of options — one as high as 25 per cent."

Jackson persisted: "Wasn't it stated as 25 per cent and then the impact was so enormous that you came down to 5 per cent?"

Sawhill said that was not the case, but said there was no record of the policy discussions of officials to support him.

Historic patent models on sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Would you like to buy the only authentic model of a patented pillow case stuffer or perhaps the model of an 1871 steam powered rotary engine not so different from today's gasoline-fueled Wankel?

A group of department stores and a young entrepreneur have started selling a portion of one of the largest privately owned collections of Americana.

The collection of Mr. and Mrs. O. Rundel Gilbert of Garrison, N.Y., is of "patent models" — more than 80,000 — all built between 1836 and 1880. It represents about 90 per cent of all the patent models known in existence today. The Smithsonian has about 3,000 of the most historically important models and a few are in other museums and private collections.

They were required to be submitted with patent applications from 1790 until 1880 when the practice was discontinued because the Patent Office had run out of room to store the more than 200,000 it had received. A fire in 1836 destroyed all the models built before then and two fires in later years depleted the number to less than 100,000.

Most of these were about to be sold to scrap dealers when they were rescued by the Gilberts at an auction in 1942.

The collection represents a period of history described by Isaac Fleischnann of the U.S. Patent Office as "the greatest period of invention in American history."

Impounding grants hit by Church

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Thursday he strongly opposed an administration decision to impound $150 million for rural water and sewer grants.

Church wrote administration budget director Roy Ash that "this program held great promise for communities in Idaho and throughout rural America."

The senator told Ash that "your actions in refusing to release the funds for this fiscal year can only lead me to believe that the Nixon administration intends to cancel the program of grants entirely, as it did last year."

In response to last year's action, congress this year included in the report that appropriated the funds language directing the administration to spend the funds.

According to Bentley Blum, the 32-year-old entrepreneur who persuaded the Gilberts to sell some of their models, the total collection may be worth as much as $10-12 million.

About 1,200 are being sold by Garfinkels in Washington, D.C., Neuman Marcus in Dallas, Bullocks-Wilshire in Los Angeles and Hammacher Schlemmer in New York City.

At Garfinkels, $250 will purchase the model of the steam powered rotary engine from 1871. A pillow case stuffer is $150 and a model of a "mattress steamer" is $350.

Inventors granted patents

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — A professor of chemical engineering at the Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, N.Y., proposes moving Arctic and other oil through large pipelines that are warmed by an electric "skin effect." Donald P. Othmer was granted patent 3,777,117 this week for the heat generating system.

can start the off-hook condition and simulated busy signals by pressing a button. Or the device can be set to respond in that way for a specific period.

A new toilet-trained doll has been tentatively named Little Miss Fussy. Julius Ellman of Brooklyn and George Lerner of Freeport, N.Y., toy and game inventors, were granted patent 3,775,901 this week.

Liquid introduced through the doll's mouth collects in an internal reservoir. When the doll is placed on a training seat, a nearby magnet opens a valve, draining the liquid into a chamber-pot.

The toy is being produced for the Nasco Doll Company.

Diogenes found

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Police got a package in the mail Thursday and thought it was a bomb.

Demolition experts found there were no explosives in the box but there was an electric precision drill along with a $20 bill.

A letter with a return address of L. W. Montgomery, Route 1, Landis, Tenn., explained that a drill was stolen from a construction project here eight years ago and the sender wanted it returned with interest for use.

Park seeks shoplifting laws

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General W. Anthony Park told Idaho's school superintendents today he is going to seek tough new anti-shoplifting legislation to combat an estimated $15 million annual loss to merchants. Park said he wants the schools' help in informing students of the seriousness of the crime.

"We also are launching a new statewide concept of crime prevention in the way of a positive public information program," Park said. "Shoplifting is much more than just a social problem and a substantial portion of this problem lies with minors and teenagers." He said he is applying for a federal grant through the Law Enforcement Planning Commission to conduct the program and has received a pledge from the Idaho Retailers Association to match the grant money—expected to total about $25,000. Park said his office is drafting legislation to present to the next session which will call for parental liability in covering the loss of shoplifting crimes by minors. He said it also will include "greater flexibility" for merchants to apprehend shoplifters.

Horoscope

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, DECEMBER 16, 1973

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine day to think in terms of what you can do for others, including those who are aided by groups of a charitable organization. Also, show those who have been helpful to you, that you are appreciative of them.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Good day for improving your surroundings in some way and bringing more harmony into the home. Take exercise and health treatments.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Showing thoughtfulness and devotion to those who are closest to you is wise and brings fine results now. Show your creative skills.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Although the situation at home is hardly ideal right now, a cheerful attitude will soon make it so. Think of the welfare of others.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Concentrate on lofty thoughts and elevate your consciousness to the highest level. Try to help others the best way you can.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take care you don't overspend today or you could regret it later. Listen to advice given you by others, but don't act until later.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you keep busy doing something of a constructive nature, you will be relieved of a feeling of discontent. Strive for happiness.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take up the philosophical studies that you have been neglecting of late and gain inspiration. Then plan the new week carefully.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attending services of your choice will help you lead a more worthwhile life. Use your good ideas on how to get ahead quickly.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle any civic matters in a most conscientious way. Try to be of assistance to others. Take time to visit good friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A situation that has you puzzled only needs perseverance to get it cleared up. Try to understand a new associate better.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do something practical for those who have been loyal to you. Show your appreciation. Show devotion to loved one. Think logically.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try to comprehend the true intentions of an associate and come to a better understanding. Make future plans with close ties.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will want neatness and order, but could get so bogged down with detail in school or work that important issues in life are forgotten or not understood. There's much love of people here and your progeny could do well in charitable work. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Christopher Morley pointed out long ago that dancing is excellent training for a girl. Because it teaches her what a man is going to do before he does it. Please note the phrase, "long ago." Our Love and War man finds it significantly out of date. The new dancing rather is excellent training for a lad, he says. Teaches him to mark time patiently while the young lady does as she pleases.

Q "Which was the fastest of all horses? Man o' War or Secretariat?"
A Secretariat, I think. Man o' War was the best in the first half of this century, though. Pretty hard to say, really. Neither ever had any competition.
Q "I'm a Taurus. How many U.S. presidents were like-wise?"
A Four — Monroe, Buchanan, Grant and Truman.
Q "Do ants have eyes?"
A Some do, some don't.

LOVE AND WAR

Wait, don't turn the page, new statistics just in about courtship and marriage: In 75 per cent of the matrimonial engagements now, the woman is said to court the man. In 20 per cent, the man courts the woman. In 5 per cent, they court each other mutually. Or so the matrimonial researchers contend. This doesn't mean that women are more likely than men to propose, actually. It simply suggests they tend to decide before their respective gentlemen friends do so that they want to get married.

If the tip of a duck's leather is either pointed or rounded, said duck is grown up. But if that leather is notched or squared at its end, you've got a young bird there, mister.

TOMAHAWK

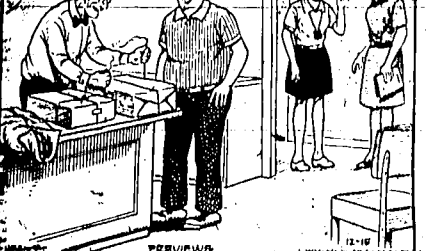

That word "tomahawk" comes from the Algonquian word "tamahaken." But the tomahawks themselves came from Europe. By the hundreds of thousands. Just before and after the American Revolution. They weren't made for throwing, but that's how the Indians used them. And they threw so many away, in fact, that New Englanders mined the little axes for the metal. They're exceedingly rare now. Most all were gathered up from the dirt 300 years ago by the prospectors.

"Beef steak," "gangster" and "sandwich" are said to be three more words now understood in almost every language.

No doubt it's necessary to wash your hairbrush occasionally, young lady. But the whole point of brushing your hair, really, is to bring the scalp oil down to the ends. If you wash all that oil out of the brush, what's the point of brushing? Or so I'm told by a hair stylist of some renown.

TF employment drops in October

TWIN FALLS — The first substantial reduction in employment recorded in 1973 occurred in October in Twin Falls County. Department of Employment figures show the number of jobholders declined by 610 during the month...

The number of workers on the farm increased by 250 as the last major crops of the agricultural season were brought in during October. In general, the department says, employment during the past summer and fall has displayed considerable growth over last year...

July did not decline as it did in 1972 and the expected high of the year recorded this September was close to 9 per cent above last year's high of that month. Two industries continue to dominate the employment increase: Food processing is up $30 from last year and the trades are up $20 in the year's span.

Pleasant temperatures to continue

The Burley-Rupert area will be partly cloudy today with increasing clouds late this afternoon and tonight. Clouds decreasing Monday continued mild overnight lows in the mid-twenties to upper-thirties.

Then, decreasing Monday. Overnight lows in the teens, highs in the thirties both days. High pressure over southern Idaho, but some sunshine through most of the area Saturday along with pleasant temperatures.

eastern Pacific is moving slowly northward and will bring rain or snow to northern Idaho late today with chance of showers over central mountains. Monday the weather will be partly cloudy in southern Idaho with decreasing showers.

Private payrolls climb

WASHINGTON — Private sector payrolls were $11.6 billion higher during the first quarter of 1972 than during the comparable quarter a year earlier, according to a report just issued by the US Bureau of the Census.

Patterns. It covers persons employed in all but government, agricultural and railroad jobs. At the same time, the private sector employment increased by nearly 2.0 million persons to 58.9 million in March 1972, the report says.

'Monopolistic' farming queried

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., has recommended that the Federal Trade Commission be ordered to make an annual scrutiny of the food industry and urged that certain large corporations be prohibited from farming.

of avoiding paying their fair share of taxation," and that stores be required to provide nutritional, grade, drain weight and open-date labeling of food products. James A. McHale, secretary of agriculture for Pennsylvania, testified that corporations not usually associated with farming — such as Standard Oil, Du Pont, Tenneco, Bank of America, Dow Chemical, Chase Manhattan and Getty Oil — are "taking losses on their farming operations which they more than cover with their nonfarm profits."

Businessmen eye economy in 1974

(c) 1973 New York Times Service NEW YORK — American businessmen are generally looking ahead to a good year for the economy in 1974, despite the problems expected because of the energy shortage. But they are solidly opposed to any form of gasoline rationing — and are maintaining their traditional posture against wage and price controls.

US asks 'light' cut

(c) 1973, Chicago Sun-Times WASHINGTON — The administration is seeking Congressional authorization to require business and factories to sharply reduce the lighting levels at work places and in salesrooms and hallways according to President Nixon's new energy chief.

IRS alters tax listing

TWIN FALLS — Charitable contributions must be shown in a different form this year on tax returns, Royce Abernathy, Twin Falls, manager of H and R Block, said. He said a taxpayer should be sure to keep receipts, money order stubs, cancelled checks or documents to support his claim of charitable contributions for the 1973 tax returns.

Britons fear tot boom

LONDON (UPI) — Family planners fear Britain's energy crisis is going to cause a baby boom. Marriage counselors think it might get couples back together again. Liquor dealers report record sales with Britons apparently intent on keeping their spirits up.

A spokesman for the Family Planning Association said the government's decision to take the nation's two television networks off the air at 10:30 p.m.—two hours before normal—will send couples to bed earlier than usual.

"We are all for people feeling more loving over Christmas, but we hope they won't forget to be careful," the spokesman said Thursday.

A Marriage Guidance Council official said, however, the television cuts might save many failing marriages.

"Couples will have to talk to each other now," she said. "That's a good thing because many marriages break up through lack of communication."

Britons appear determined to keep their spirits up at Christmas, the Wine and and Spirit Association said Thursday. It reported spirit sales up 40 per cent, a record for early December.

"I think it will be a very Merry Christmas," an Association spokesman said. "We look as if we are in for a record time."

One of the few Britons who can ignore the fuel crisis is Hannah Hauxwell. The 47-year-old woman lives on a farm without any electricity, piped gas, running water, television, telephone or cars.

"It sounds as if you are all in for a very serious time unless you come to your senses and pull together," she told a newsman Thursday at her 100-year-old farmhouse in County Durham.

She says she gets milk from her two cows, vegetables from her garden and only needs $625-a-year to live.

Boy shoots brother

NEW RICHMOND, Ohio (UPI) — A 14-year-old boy, trying to determine if his .20-gauge shotgun could be fired when he was wearing mittens, accidentally shot and killed his younger brother Monday.

New Richmond police said Kenneth Hauser, 12, was shot as he and his brother were preparing to go hunting. The county coroner ruled the shooting accidental.

Bunker to lead peace talk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ambassador-at-large Ellsworth C. Bunker will lead the U.S. delegation to the Mideast peace talks scheduled to open in Geneva Tuesday, Administration sources said today.

Bunker, 70, has been diplomatic troubleshooter for Presidents Kennedy, Johnson and Nixon, and headed the U.S. mission in Saigon for almost six years.

He was named ambassador-at-large in October to conduct the delicate negotiations with Panama over the future of the Panama Canal and had been scheduled to lead U.S. negotiators at a second round-of-talks after Christmas.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was scheduled to attend the opening session of the Geneva talks.

Prison burglarized

EUREKA, Calif. (UPI) — Four ex-convicts have been arrested for burglarizing the woodworking shop of a minimum security prison farm.

The four stole five redwood burls and table tops worth $395 that belonged to inmates of the Eel River Conservation Camp near Redway, deputies said.

The men, all residents of Eureka, were identified as Glen D. Crites, 24; Charles E. Morton, 30, Alvin L. Prater, 27, and Frank A. Mowczan, 29.

Satellite may aid in search for oil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The search for new sources of oil for the world's energy hungry nations may be aided by the space agency's experimental earth's resources satellite.

George Petzel, a petroleum geologist from the Enson Oil Co., Oklahoma City, Okla., reported Thursday that photographs radioed back by the 570-mile-high satellite permit a rapid interpretation of broad areas of interest and quickly focus attention on geologic features that might hold oil.

Western Oklahoma and the Texas panhandle. The images were interpreted as if the geology of the basin were not known and then the results were compared to what was known.

"We have found that the ERTS (earth resources technology satellite) imagery is an excellent tool for reconnaissance exploration of large sedimentary basins or new exploration provinces," he said. "For the first time, small and medium size oil companies can rapidly and effectively analyze exploration provinces as a whole."

He said the use of satellite photographs could greatly reduce the time required to explore a potential oil-bearing region.

Linda Merry, DVM

Question: I have a Pekingese about 6 years old. Until recently he was very active but lately he has developed a limp in his front leg. I took him to the vet who gave him a shot of cortisone and pain pills. He says it is arthritis.

He is on a good diet and eats well. Would you give me any help for him or is this all that can be done? I gave him aspirin before I took him to the doctor and it helped some.

Answer: Arthritis is a wretched condition whether it affects a human's hands or a dog's legs. And while all arthritis is vile, it certainly is not all alike.

Arthritis means inflammation of the joints. It occurs in several forms — some having a well-understood cause, others being pretty obscure. It's fairly easy to understand how an infection gets away at cartilage and bone to cause degeneration.

It's not hard to reason that continual trauma to a joint could cause the bones to degenerate and then be rebuilt in weird shapes. It's harder to understand why a dog's vertebral column begins fusing together until it becomes just one long bone in places.

If that's a mind-boggler, try figuring out the dog who develops pain in one knee, then the opposite hip, next the forelegs, and then feels splendid until the next joint starts creaking.

When humans think of "arthritis" they usually get a picture of rheumatism. They see permanently swollen joints particularly in fingers and knees, they imagine a lot of pain on movement, and they realize if "you don't do your exercises your hands won't work at all one of these days."

They're right — for people — but not for dogs. This type of proliferative arthritis, where seemingly without reason bone changes occur continuously in many joints, is rarely, if ever, seen in the dog. In fact, we're not sure it exists.

osteoarthritis — a degeneration of bones forming the joints. The bones of the affected joint may be dissolved in some areas and built-up in others. The new bone takes irregular forms which often project into the joint as bizarre, but smooth, fringes and humps.

Such a bump may be caught between the moving bones, broken loose, and become an "interesting critter" called a "joint mouse." A joint mouse is alive, absorbs nutrition from the joint fluid, and spends its time rolling around the joint causing sharp pain if it gets caught between bones.

With or without a joint mouse, an arthritic joint tends to become more deformed and less useful as these changes progress.

Now the sad part — there's not a lot that can be done for osteoarthritis. Aspirin helps to cut the pain. Corticosteroids and phenylbutazone can be used for short periods to relieve a severe attack.

Taking weight off the dog and thus off the joint is a must. So is providing a warm, dry, and preferably springy bed such as a foam rubber mattress.

There is a new drug on the market which may prove useful. This compound, orogel, is injected daily for ten days and is claimed to cut the pain of inflamed joints permanently. It is currently being tested for use in arthritis of people.

FILER'S-HIGH-SCHOOL band and chorus will present their annual Christmas concert Monday evening at the school. Featured in the concert will be left, Sonya Lutz and Shirley Reed of the choir, and Chady Miller and Jim Steelsmith, instrumentalists.

Concert slated

Filer prepares annual Christmas concert

FILER — The Filer High School Music Department will present its annual Christmas concert at 8 p.m. Monday in the high school auditorium.

Russell Terrill will direct the school band and Janet Collins will direct the mixed choir. Shirley Reed is choir soloist and Sonya Lutz and Becky Lutz will present a vocal duet. Jim Steelsmith will serve as band narrator.

Special selections by the band include "Sleigh Ride," "Joyous Christmas" (overture) and "Twas the Night Before Christmas" which will feature narration. Other band selections include "March June," Kentucky 1800 Civil War Suite, "Joy to the World," "Cradle Hymn" and "Adeste Fideles." The choir will present "O Come All Ye Faithful," "Silver Bells," "I Wonder as I Wander," "Do You Hear What I Hear," "O Holy Night," "Carol of the Drum" and "Silent Night." Admission will be charged. Those with activity tickets will be admitted free. Proceeds will go into the band fund.

Benevolent 'Santa' back behind bars

KEY WEST, Fla. (UPI) — A New York youth who balled himself and all the other inmates out of the Key West jail Thursday with $2,405 was back behind bars today, unable to raise $102 bond money.

Robert Vincent Palmieri, 20, of New York City was dubbed the "Santa" of Key West after paying fines ranging from $27 to $189 and posting bonds up to $252 to bail out himself and 23 other inmates.

But Thursday night, Palmieri was arrested again on a charge of indecent exposure.

"He just took off all his clothes on South Beach," said Jailer Robert Hatt.

"He was being held under $102 bond and none of the prisoners he had bailed out earlier had come forward with any cash for their benefactor."

"All he's got left is 41 cents," said Hatt.

with curly light brown hair, was barefooted, dressed in dungarees and a faded red corduroy shirt when he was arrested on Key West's main street at 1:20 a.m. Thursday on a charge of drunkenness.

Starling attack fails, city fathers scratch

(c) New York Times Service
WATERBURY, Conn. — Well, what would you do with 250,000 starlings perched outside your window?

City officials here have gone back to scratching their heads after they tried unsuccessfully last week to shoot the starlings from the trees outside city hall.

The reason that the police tried to shotgun the birds is because the starlings roost there every winter evening and cover everything below them with a slippery, smelly and potentially infectious covering of bird droppings.

"I figure they've won round one," said Frank Dezinno, an aide to Mayor Victor A. Mambruno who was given responsibility for getting rid of the starlings. "I'm just going to wait a little and hope that someone can come up with something to get rid of them."

Twelve policemen participated in the starling attack, which was launched at 3 in the morning last Wednesday. They fired No. 8 buckshot high into the trees and they killed more than 2,000 birds. But additional attacks were temporarily called off after an outcry from a number of residents.

"Starlings have a right to live just like we do," Mrs. Nina Van Duesen, one of those who complained, said. "What they should do is build a wildlife sanctuary for them across the street near the library, not blast away at them while they're asleep."

The complaints have embarrassed the city officials but not changed their determination to take stern measures. "I'm sure the bird lovers would agree with us if they had to walk out of city hall every day at 5 p.m.," explained another mayor's assistant, Robert O'Connor. "You can't walk on the streets and our health director says there is a distinct health hazard."

The evening rush hour here during the winter is bottlenecked daily in front of city hall on Grand Street as motorists fight to get out of the traffic lanes and away from the birds.

"If you stop at a light there for 20 seconds, your car is covered," O'Connor said. "You have to use your windshield washers and scrubbers just to see."

"The bird's habits are well known to the office workers and shoppers in the downtown section. 'You'd have to be crazy to love these birds,' one city hall secretary said. 'I don't like slipping and sliding in the stuff. Why don't they just go somewhere else?'"

Every evening from November to March in recent years the starlings fly in from outlying sections, darkening the skies and roosting until they appear as thick as leaves on the bare trees. Most of them settle in the trees in a courtyard formed by the U-shaped city hall.

The starlings are apparently drawn to the courtyard because it provides them with shelter from the winter wind and also by the faint heat radiated outside by the building's all-night heating system.

Dr. Gert Wallach, the city health director, said tests of the bird droppings indicated that the birds carry histoplasmosis, a fungus disease apparently harmless to the birds, but potentially crippling to humans. No case has been reported here, however.

"And then of course, the sidewalks become slippery and there is the danger of accidents. And, oh my goodness, smell is always in the air."

City hall work crews have been applying sand to the sidewalks every evening and sweeping it up every morning since the birds began arriving two or three years ago. But building, lawns, trees and iron railings in the area remain encrusted with bird droppings.

Edmond Tofeldt, general manager of the Connecticut Humane Society, said his group is "in sympathy with the town authorities and their problem, but how they're going to overcome it, I don't know."

"We would have protested the shooting if we had known about it in advance, but it came up suddenly," he said. "It would have been all right if they had killed them outright, but light birdshot leaves a lot of cripples, and that's cruel. They've certainly got their problems."

Perhaps you've wondered about those sales pitches to buy a lot in beautiful "ranchland" or "ocean paradise." Is it a good deal?

One thing is for sure. It's not nearly as good a deal as the home-site company's salesmen say it is. They often refer to some Godforsaken spot in the New Mexico or Arizona desert as a "good investment."

We're running out of good land, they say. These lots for "investment" are more speculative than some of the wildest stocks offered on the various security exchanges. So, lesson number one: They're not good investments if you're hoping to make some money.

However, some developments, especially those in certain parts of Florida, California and near the established beach and ski resorts, can be good deals if you want to use them as a place to build a vacation cottage with the idea of renting it out when you're not using it.

But before you venture into any purchase of land presented as a good investment or as a possible vacation spot, follow these steps:

1 - "At a sale, do not sign any contract, put down any deposit or otherwise make any decision on buying a piece of property while attending a sales dinner, while visiting the site on a promotional trip (free meal, free toaster, free gasoline and other goodies) or while a land company salesman is in your home."

This crucial advice comes from George K. Bernstein who heads the Federal Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration.

2 - Be sure to get a copy of the "property report" which the federal government requires land developers to make available to prospective customers. Companies that sell parcels of five acres or larger aren't required to make disclosures in a property report.

3 - Have the property report looked over by a lawyer who has worked in real estate. Also, try to get a copy of the land company's regular contract.

It's not required of them to give you the contract but, if they won't give it, what are they trying to hide?

4 - If the lawyer finds nothing wrong with the property report and the contract, your next step is a visit to inspect the property. Your lawyer may get in touch with a lawyer working in the lot sale area. You might also get the names of correspondent banks and savings and loans from your own bank or savings and loan.

Ask these local professionals what they think of the property being offered and if they can suggest other property to inspect for comparison. Local realtors can be a big help with this.

5 - If you find a piece of land that you like that has been thoroughly checked by a lawyer and other professionals, then you should pay cash for it.

You can raise cash by borrowing on your insurance (very low rate of interest if you have cash-value insurance), borrowing on securities or other collateral or by refinancing your home to get a bigger mortgage.

Do not buy land through the normal financing offered by most land sales companies. These deals are called "installment contracts" and you actually don't own the land until you make your final payment. You can't build on it or even camp on it.

While investigating possible land purchases, you might read "America is for Sale" by Dorothy Tynon (Farnsworth Publishing Co., Rockville Centre, Nassau Co., N.Y., $7.95). Ms. Tynon is a former real estate agent who actually joined a major land company to see how high-pressure sales deals were made.

Getting a good lot can provide considerable pleasure for you and your family. But, you have to do a certain amount of homework and remember - never sign anything without an attorney seeing it first.

Christmas coconut delivery strange

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — Ed Clinch got his Christmas season coconut as usual Friday for the 25th consecutive year. The method of delivery, as usual, was unusual.

Clinch's coconut came by horseback, a gesture apparently intended to dramatize the energy-saving attitude of many Americans during the fuel crunch.

Clinch, 58, said he does not know who sends the coconuts, but they arrive about the second Friday of December each year. He thinks they may come from a World War II buddy or buddies with whom he served in the South Pacific.

Delivery was made by James Spurgeon of Princeville, who raises horses and believes more Americans ought to be traveling horseback during the fuel shortage.

Spurgeon said he was given the coconut by another horseman with instructions to deliver it to Clinch, a Peoria park district foreman.

Previous coconuts have come by parachute from a helicopter; hand-carried by local dignitaries, radio and television people; by the Police Department's Canine Corps, and by ambulance.

Coin collectors are in the millions in this country. The Bureau of the Mint alone has names of 3 million collectors on its mailing list.

US predicts record '74 crop

Studies tomatoes

TOMATO growth, particularly the effect of potassium on acidity, is the concern of Royce Otte, left, Burley, in his class project in the crop and soil program at Idaho State University. Gary Andrus, right, Hagerman, and David Jansen, instructor, aid in the harvest of testing samples.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Despite a tightening fuel pinch which is hampering fall plowing for 1974 crops in some areas, Administration officials say they're sticking by projections that farmers will be able to push farm production to new records next year.

Agriculture Department officials, in a weekly survey of the farm fuel situation, said that farmers last week reported gasoline shortages in 28 states and diesel pinches in 23, making the situation for the nation as a whole the worst since late last spring. Officials said normal fall plowing for 1974 crops was being hampered in some areas by fuel shortages.

"There is concern that this curtailment might defer land preparation until next spring when fuels may be even shorter," the report said.

"Some farmers are entirely out of fuel in several states and it is reported that retail service stations are hesitating to sell to them in cans and drums," the report said. It added that federal and state officials were trying to relieve the situation, but complained that word of a recent 60-day order giving farmers priority on diesel fuels was slow in filtering through oil industry channels.

In spite of these problems, the report noted that although the southwest cotton harvest was less than half complete in nonirrigated areas, about 90 percent of the record 1973 crops of corn, soybeans and grain sorghum had been harvested by the end of last week. And Don Paarlberg, the Agriculture Department's director of economics, said in an interview his staff is making no change in projections of potential production increases next year.

Administration officials, seeking increased supplies of food to help hold the consumer price line at home while meeting heavy needs abroad, have dropped all acreage restraints on most major crops and called for an all-out production effort. Agriculture spokesmen have predicted farmers will increase planting by about 12 million acres and may push wheat production, for example, from this year's record of 1.727 billion bushels to a new peak of nearly 1.9 billion bushels. Paarlberg said agriculture experts are going on the assumption that administration planners will regard food production as critically important and will assign allocation to make sure that "the fuel will be there to plant and harvest the (1974) crop."

"We may have to do more fuel conservation and steps like minimum tillage," Paarlberg said. "But we're not contemplating that these very real difficulties will interfere with overall agricultural production." Minimum tillage is a technique in which farmers growing some crops, including corn, can reduce or eliminate plowing and other land preparation under some soil and climatic conditions. Officials said University of Nebraska studies showed that gasoline needs for tractors in corn fields could be cut from 7.4 gallons per acre with conventional tillage to 3.4

gallons for minimum tillage.

Japanese hit by crisis

(c) N. Y. Times Service
TOKYO — A senior Japanese economic official warned Friday that the international oil crisis and the internal inflation here could bring the Japanese economy to a complete collapse.

Eme Yamashita, the vice-minister of international trade and industry, predicted that the oil shortage caused by Arab production cutbacks would last for more than a year and would have a "devastating" impact on Japan's economic growth. In addition, Yamashita said that if the roaring inflation here continued, "the Japanese economy will completely collapse." He further assumed that that would affect the American and European economies and he asserted, "we should be prepared to face that kind of large-scale depression."

Yamashita's remarks to a luncheon meeting of the Yomhuri International Economic Society, were by far the gloomiest heard from a responsible government official since the oil crisis began in October.

Yamashita's forecast took on added weight since he is the senior career official of the ministry most intimately involved with handling Japan's economic problems. Moreover, his assessment was at noticeable variance with those delivered recently by Japan's political leaders, including Premier Kakuei Tanaka.

Yamashita was guarded in his reaction to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's proposal for joint development of energy resources, which the secretary set forth in a speech in London. Yamashita, in response to a question, said, "in the long run, yes, we welcome his suggestion."

"But," Yamashita continued, "the problem we are facing doesn't allow us to have five or six years." He said the issue was to find ways to collaborate in the short run, and that finding agreements on that would not be easy.

He asserted that the $17 a barrel bid in Iran this week was "quite out of the question in terms of common sense." Noting that Japan's foreign exchange reserves had dropped $6 billion since February, he said that the increase in oil prices would have a further impact on Japan's international balance of payments.

Loggers and foresters in the West have measured Douglas fir trees 330 feet high, 45 feet in circumference and more than 1,500 years old.

Energy saving effort may cost lives

Antitrust letters due public status

(C) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON—The Justice Department, in a major procedural change in antitrust law, is expected to make public soon a new rule under which hitherto secret business review letters will be made public.

These letters are part of a business clearance program under which corporations divulge their future plans to the Justice Department in an effort to obtain advance antitrust clearance. A principal use of the business review letters is in connection with proposed mergers.

For years the department has maintained that these letters are private. But last February Mark Green, a lawyer and director of Ralph Nader's Corporate Accountability Research Group, sued the department, to gain access to all business review letters from 1968 through last year.

The suit is still pending, although the department has now indicated it intends to make public at least some of these letters.

(C) 1973, Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON—Energy saving in areas burning high sulfur content coal could mean a hike in the death rate—especially among chronic sufferers of chest ailments, the nation's environmental protection chief has acknowledged.

The number of those affected, said Russell E. Train, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, "is practically impossible to estimate."

However, some EPA studies have shown that in areas like New York and nearby New Jersey, there could be an additional one or two deaths each day over the normal number.

Permission to violate existing air quality standards in that area have been granted by the EPA, allowing them to convert to coal.

The 5 are among a total of 28 plants, stretching from Maine to North Carolina, which William E. Simon, head of the newly established Federal Energy Office has asked to convert to coal by next March.

Two more power plants have also been asked to do so by Simon, but have not yet cleared through Train's office.

Train, former chief of the policy-making council on environmental quality and a strong believer in environmental standards, when asked whether the changeover would affect the health of individuals, replied: "To the extent that sulfur oxides and particulate matter (air pollutants found in high sulfur coal) do have an impact, there will be an effect."

Pressed for an explanation especially on how many deaths might result, he replied: "It's practically impossible to estimate. There will doubtless be some increase in the mortality rate."

He also said an increase could be expected in the amount of respiratory illness—bronchial ailments such as asthma and emphysema, "especially among those susceptible to it."

It should not be very severe, and "most people would get by," added Train.

An EPA spokesman said research indicates that on days when meteorological "inversions" occur—no vertical air currents to carry away smoke and smog—"it is possible to get concentrations of sulfur oxides and particulate matter" that are simultaneous with an increase in the death rate.

In October 1940, a five-day layer of warm, stagnant air and smoke-polluted fog was blamed by the U.S. Public Health Service for the deaths of 20 persons in Donora and Webster, Pa. A total of 5,108 persons, or 43 per cent of the population, was made ill.

A Washington EPA spokesman said that sulfur and particulate pollutant levels must reach 800 before a "normal" health persons would have some effects.

On the other hand, he said, the mortality rate of chronic respiratory ailment sufferers would "probably be higher" if utility plants were forced to shut down completely.

Federal Energy Administrator Simon, who last week sent telegrams to 19 utilities which own the 28 power plants, urging them to convert, said 200,000 barrels a day of residual fuel oil—mostly Mid-East imported—could be saved by converting. A shortage of 850,000 barrels daily is forecast in the first quarter of 1974, most of it along the Atlantic coast.

Psychiatrist eyes crisis

(C) 1973, Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON—The energy crisis may benefit Americans in the long run by forcing them to turn to their inner resources rather than relying on consumption for happiness, a psychiatrist says.

"It's not the built-in obsolescence of our goods that is the problem," University of Chicago Professor Dr. Jarl Dyrud said. "It's the obsolescence of our expectations."

"We have always said to people in this consumption-oriented society that if there is something wrong with you, you can buy something for it, you can buy something that will make you feel better," he said in a telephone interview.

But the energy crisis will force Americans to change their consumption patterns, and examine some of the almost unconscious assumptions that have led to ever expanding expectations about their standard of living, Dyrud said.

The all-pervading myth of modern American life is the "Myth of Progress," of limitless resources and wealth, an ever-expanding economy, he said.

Although experts have been warning of energy shortages for years, Dyrud said, it has taken the present crisis to make Americans ask themselves, "is this really progress, or are we just busily using things up?"

As an example of a different attitude, Dyrud cited a friend in England who had a vintage 1912 Tolee. Said Dyrud: "When I asked him why he didn't replace it, he replied 'it works doesn't it?'"

"The energy crisis has impressed me with its analogy to psychotherapy. You create a crisis that is real but not a disaster," he said. "It's like what you do with an alcoholic—you confront him with the consequences of his action."

He was asked about some of the bitterness the initial phases of the energy shortage have sparked—such as the truckers' blockades and bumper stickers in the southwest that read "let the bastards freeze in the dark." Dyrud said: "I'm worried about this. When people are faced with a crisis that makes them feel helpless, they are going to take action, they won't just drown."

"We need to find some acceptable channels for this action. We throttled the truckers without figuring on their reaction."

In the long run all Americans are going to have to reduce their expectations and give up the myth of progress, he said. But because people have strong need for myths or assumptions that allow them to act without uncertainties, Dyrud said, he was hopeful that the myth of progress may be replaced with a new one.

"Perhaps something like World War II when we were all forced to pull together will happen," he said. "This sounds very foolish and romantic, but perhaps we will see a turning inward, making something meaningful of our lives, an exploration of inner space."

"We can't keep on driving a couple hundred miles on the freeways to get rid of our tensions. We've pushed this thing about consumption to absurdity."

ISU beats Boise Staters after dropping Cal State

POCATELLO (UPI) — Idaho State's Bengals engineered an early 12-3 advantage and managed to thwart several Boise State rallies, as they went on to whip the Broncos 73-65 in a non-conference game Saturday.

Dan Spindler, the Bengal's 6-10 center, led the team through a lax offensive period which plagued second half play. Spindler finished with 29 points to lead all scoring.

The Broncos battled back several times after falling behind 37-22 at halftime. But personal fouls spelled defeat for Boise state as three Broncos marched to the bench with the five foul limit for swinging fists at ISU players. Spindler's point total was a career high at ISU. Guard Kevin Hoyt added 16 points. Forward George Wilson scored 20 points to lead the Broncos. Guard Clyde Dickey and Jim Keyes added 18 and 15 respectively for BSC. The victory boosted Idaho State's record over the 500 mark to 4-3. Boise State is now 2-3.

Gooding St. defeats Rimrock

GRAND VIEW — John Hunter and Cano combined for a lustrous shooting display in the second quarter as the Gooding State Redskins dropped the Rimrock Raiders 65-54 Saturday night.

The Redskins mounted a 14-7 lead then blazed for 26 in the second period when Hunter hit from the outside or flipped the ball inside to Cano when Rimrock's defense came out.

Jerome outlasts Wendell rally 67-64

WENDELL — The Jerome Tigers boomed into a big first-half lead but had to protect a one-point lead over the final minutes Saturday night to nip the rallying Wendell Trojans 67-64.

Lee Chapman and Kelly Emerson opened the game with four field goals apiece to get the Tigers, who have been one of the poorest shooting clubs in the district, off to a winning start.

Wendell managed just two field goals in the first period but Jerome quickly put them in the free throw bonus shooting situation and the Trojans stayed within 10 from that charity point.

Jerome pushed its lead to 42-25 by intermission and then started substituting. Wendell quickly came back, scoring 23 points in the third quarter to reduce the margin to nine.

Over the final quarter, 6-6 junior John Donkersloot, hitting only 10 per cent going into the game, got hot and kept Jerome just ahead. Donkersloot wound up by hitting nine of 15 attempts from the field.

But at about the minute mark Wendell's rally carried it to within a point at 61-60. The teams traded buckets and with the score at 63-62, Wendell twice had possession but lost the ball on turnovers.

Jerome came down and hit after the last one to ice the game.

Godby wins

SALT LAKE CITY — Dyrk Godby of Gooding posted one of the three victories Idaho managed in an all-star boxing match against Utah Saturday night.

Godby decisioned Jim Montoya of Salt Lake City in the 135-pound weight. Other Idaho winners were Jerry Kenne of Emmett and Kit Chacon of Port Hall.

Earl Shields of Twin Falls was unable to fight as previously announced when Utah didn't come up with an opponent for him at 175 pounds.

Knicks drop Omaha 116-107

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dave DeBusschere netted six field goals as the New York Knicks hit a season high 41 points in the third quarter Saturday afternoon en route to a 116-107 victory over the Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

The Knicks, 12-12 two weeks ago, now have won six of their last seven games.

K.C.-Omaha, the only team in the NBA without double figures in the win column, held New York in check during the first-half. The lead changed 11 times in the opening quarter as the Knicks grabbed a slim 27-25 lead.

Pilots rally to top Filer

GLENN'S FERRY — After a first half the Glenns Filer Pilots pulled away early in the third quarter to defeat the Filer Wildcats 44-37 Saturday night.

The Wildcats went on top 9-6 in the first quarter but the Pilots rallied to tie the game 20-20 at the intermission.

Glenns Ferry scored first in the third quarter when they held an eight-point margin at the end of the period.

Shrum was the game's top scorer with 15 points.

Glenns Ferry drilled Filer 48-44 in the preliminary game.

CSI tops Ricks for 12th straight victory

Eagles win 72-63 after belting ISU

REXBURG — College of Southern Idaho, under duress the entire night, outlasted Ricks College 72-63 to run their undefeated record to 12-0 Saturday night.

The Eagles toppled Idaho State 80-45 Friday and now face only an exhibition game at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Minico gymnasium against a Utah team composed of ex-Weber State players. That one is a Shrine benefit.

As usual CSI couldn't build anything close to a safe margin against the Vikings and it couldn't really be counted in good shape until Mike Phillips converted a three-point play with 36 seconds left for an eight-point lead.

Much of CSI's late game would be traced to terrible free throw shooting. The Eagles missed five one-and-one situations and missed three more on the bonus over the last 4:15.

Tom Barker and Bob Durham carried the Eagles offensively through the first half with Arnold Dugger, held to two points in the first half, coming up with 10 in the second half.

After some early ties, Ricks zipped ahead 11-5 and with seven minutes left in the half still had a five-point lead at 17-12. A tip-in by Lon Trotter followed by points from Dugger and Durham sent CSI up to stay at 24-21. But excepting one brief five-point lead, the margin generally was tight.

The first eight minutes of the second half went the same way but then Dugger came up with two straight buckets and Kevin Dablyn added another. After Pratt scored for Ricks Lon Frazier and Dugger punched CSI ahead 50-42.

The Eagles then went into a deep delay and after two and one-half minutes succeeded in pulling Ricks out of its zone. Last time CSI did that it quickly blew away. But Ricks hung in on the shooting of Hymas and Johnson and after Pratt's bucket with 2:18 left, CSI had only a 65-60 advantage. Dablyn hit one free throw and after an Oman free throw in reply, Phillips led it with a driving crippler, then tacked on the extra point.

Friday night CSI had some early problems with Idaho State's Jayvees, then ran away for an 80-45 decision.

Kansas wins Oregon to win own tourney

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Danny Knight and Norm Cook hammered Oregon inside Saturday night, spearheading Kansas to a 67-49 victory in the finals of the Jayhawk Basketball Classic.

Joe Vavricka started the second overtime with a free throw and a field goal, lifting Princeton to a 63-60 victory over Washington State in the consolation game.

Knight, who tallied 24 points and Cook, who had 19, scored 18 of Kansas' first 22 points in the second half when the Jayhawks built a 56-41 lead with seven minutes to play.

Oregon rallied from an early 11-point deficit to a 34-34 halftime tie and once led by as many as five points late in the first half. Ron Lee led the Ducks with 14 points.

A.F. tops Jerome

AMERICAN FALLS — American Falls turned to the free throw line for most of its advantage Friday night to defeat the Jerome Tigers 78-66.

American Falls' Grischowsky, a 6-5 center, accounted for 13 of his 21 points from the foul line as the Beavers jumped into an early lead and held sway throughout.

Vandals rally behind Weist to top Pacific of Seattle 82-70

MOSCOW (UPI) — Idaho's Vandal basketball squad, behind the late surge shooting of Steve Weist, fought of a stubborn Pacific of Seattle club for an 82-70 win here tonight.

Weist hit three late jumpers as the University of Idaho quintet hit for 12 straight points to put the game out of reach.

Pacific had taken a 39-30 halftime lead, but the Vandals caught fire at the start of the second half to take the lead.

The Vandals, however, dropped behind the fourth quarter, 63-62, before they once more found the range.

Weist was the game's top scorer with 24 points, followed by teammates Marty Seligman and Henry Harris with 18 each. Pacific was paced by David Hunter with 23 points.

Steelers rip 49ers to cop playoff spot

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Roy Gerela kicked three field goals to set a Pittsburgh scoring record as the Steelers overwhelmed the San Francisco 49ers 37-14 in a mistake-plagued game Saturday to clinch a spot in the AFC playoffs.

The victory gave the Steelers a season-ending 10-4 record, assured them at least the AFC wild card spot, and kept them in the race for the AFC Central Division title.

The Pittsburgh defense picked off four San Francisco passes and recovered two fumbles, resulting in a touchdown and two field goals.

The 49ers, winners of the NFC West the last three years, wound up the season with a 5-0 record, their worst in many years. It was quarterback John Brodie's final game of a 17-year pro career and although he started, Brodie left early in the second quarter with a sore throwing arm.

Cornerback John Rowser picked off a Brodie pass in the second minute of the game and ran it 71 yards to give the Steelers a 7-0 lead.

But the 49ers, despite two pass interceptions and a lost fumble, were behind by only 14-7 at halftime.

Then the roof fell in as neither Steve Spurrier or Joe Reed could move the club and three more turnovers in the second half enabled the Steelers to control the game.

Muscle rebound

Basketball 'dream game' winds up as 79th consecutive decision for UCLA

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Top ranked UCLA's 78-game winning streak was in jeopardy Saturday before big Bill Walton answered the call.

Walton, benched with four personal fouls after only eight minutes of the first half of the Bruins' nationally televised waste against second ranked North Carolina State, returned with 9:49 left to play and UCLA holding only a two point lead.

"Walton came in when we really needed him," said teammate Keith Wilkes whose hot shooting kept UCLA in the game until the 6-foot-11 Walton could return. "Without Walton, it was bleak. But it's the kind of thing where the show has to go on. We knew he would give us a lift and he did."

Before Walton could get the adrenaline flowing again, however, Steve Nuce hit a 15-foot jump shot from the corner for the Wolfpack and the 4,000 North Carolinians inside the jam-packed St. Louis Arena went wild.

But the challengers from the south were about to learn why the west coast team has won seven straight NCAA titles.

Walton ambled down court and laid the ball through the hoop for a two-point UCLA lead. Then he raced to the other end and grabbed a rebound. Tommy Curtis hit a jump shot and converted a free throw. Wilkes hit two straight baskets, Curtis again, then Walton and the Bruins had outscored the Wolfpack 17-2 over a four minute period to coast off to with an 84-66 victory.

"I knew that I could always bring Walton back in," said UCLA coach John Wooden. "If we lost him, it might be bleak but as long as I could bring him back in—and North Carolina State knew it—it meant something."

Wooden had high praise for Wilkes, who finished with a game-high 27 points, and called him "truly an All American."

Wooden also said that forward Dave Meyers "played his finest game for us."

Walton had outplayed N.C. State's Tom Burleson through the first eight minutes of the contest and the Bruins held a 15-10 lead before he went to the bench with his fourth personal.

The Wolfpack, however, grabbed the lead at 21-20 on a 20-foot jump shot by 5-5 guard Monty Towe and held a 33-32 halftime advantage.

Three quick baskets by Meyers after the intermission put UCLA back in front and the team's were tied 54-54 on Nuce's basket shortly after Walton's return.

Griese hits Warfield with 4 TD passes as Miami tops Lions

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Quarterback Bob Griese and receiver Paul Warfield, tuning up for their AFC playoff test next Sunday, hooked up on four first half touchdowns Saturday to lead the Miami Dolphins to a 32-7 victory over the mistake-prone Detroit Lions in a nationally televised game.

Griese hit Warfield on touchdown throws of 21 and 7 yards in the first and two more in the second, which spanned 16 and 4 yards.

The pair played only the first half with Griese connecting on 11 of 15 passes for a total of 141 yards and Warfield catching six of them for 103.

Garo Yepremian kicked the four extra points and a second-period field goal of 27 yards to give Miami a 31-0 halftime lead, which assured the AFC Eastern Division champions a 12-2 regular season record to carry into the first playoff game against Cincinnati or Pittsburgh Dec. 23.

Last year, Miami won its first-world championship with a 17-0 overall mark.

Detroit never crossed midfield until eight minutes into the third period. The Lions never threatened to score until the final quarter when they got a first-and-goal on the Miami one, but lost the ball on an interception by rookie Henry Stuckey.

Detroit finally did score with 36 seconds left when Steve Owens burst over the middle from five yards out to cap a 61-yard, eight-play drive. The big play was a 35-yard halfback pass from Mickey Zofko to wide receiver Ron Jesse. The Lions finished the season 6-7-1 under new coach Don McCafferty.

Detroit made it easy for the Dolphins, who played the game with six regulars held out because of injuries. On the second play of the game, Mel Farr fumbled and Miami end Vern Den Herder recovered at the Detroit 21. Griese hit Warfield for the score on the next play.

The fourth Warfield touchdown came after Miami's Larry Ball intercepted a Bill Munson pass at the Detroit 33.

Miami drove 82 plays in 10 plays and 64 yards in eight plays to get its second and third touchdowns.

Keller hits 21, Minico defeats Burley 66-61

RUPERT — The Minico Spartans fought off the stubborn Burley Bobcats 66-61 Saturday night to gain a one-game edge in the traditional rivalry.

Kimberly wrestlers top Valley

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly Bulldogs won their first dual wrestling match from Valley in history Saturday afternoon with a last-match 36-33 decision.

Closing pins by Dodge and White brought Kimberly from behind after Valley dominated the middle weights.

Results of the matches, Kimberly men listed first, include 98, Second pinned Johnson; 105 T. Hunt pinned Kincaid; 112, D. Hunt pinned Waters; 119, Prescott pinned Harrall; 124, Koenig pinned by M. Sellers; 132, Surgeon pinned Crider; 138, Johnson pinned by Harrall; 145, Luff decisoned by Deuel; 155, Gudgell pinned by Nye; 167, Robbins pinned by Baker; 185, Dodge pinned Rogers, and heavyweight, White pinned Rust.

G. Ferry outscores Gooding

GOODING — The Glenns Ferry Pilots put three plays in double figures in edging the Gooding Senators 65-62 Friday night.

The Pilots went to an early 12-0 lead in the first quarter and finished the quarter on top 22-10 with Johnson scoring 12 points for the Pilots.

Gooding came back in the second quarter with a press and narrowed the margin to 30-30 at halftime.

Larry Patterson kept the game close for the Senators in the second half with 14 points. He finished the night with 20 points.

Gooding trailed throughout the game until two minutes remaining when they went on top 61-60. However, the Pilots came up with five final points while limiting the Senators to a free throw.

Glenns Ferry nipped Gooding in the preliminary game 39-37.

Hagerman picks up first win

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman Pirates won their first game of the season Friday night with a 55-53 victory over the Shoshone Indians.

Hagerman had lost the first five games with one of those losses at the nads of Shoshone 72-69.

The Pirates finished the last 17 minutes with only four players after four players fouled out and Turner was thrown out of the game for fighting. Hagerman committed 32 personal fouls.

The Pirates led in the first quarter 15-14 and were up by only four at the intermission. Hagerman's Glauner scored eight points in the third quarter as the Pirates jumped to a 47-35 lead.

Shoshone rallied in the closing minutes but couldn't overcome the Hagerman margin.

Keller led the offensive punch for the Spartans in the first quarter with 12 points.

The Spartans came up with 33 points in the second quarter to increase the margin to five points at the intermission.

In the third quarter Minico built a 10-point lead but the Bobcats fought back to come within one at 53-52 but the Spartans added a field goal in the final second of the quarter.

The Spartans could not go out further than a five-point margin in the last quarter and the Bobcats once again came within one point. Blaine Shaw hit a crucial basket in the final going for Minico.

The Bobcats effectively contained Keller in the second half after he scored 14 points in the first half. He finished the night with 21 points.

Bodily was Burley's top scorer with 17 points. Lyons added 13 for the Bobcats.

Pirates nip Tigers in 3 OT's

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman Pirates took three overtimes Saturday night to finally edge Richfield 62-58.

The regulation play ended at 47-41. In the first overtime neither team could build a lead and finished the first overtime at 54-54.

Both teams were cold in the second overtime and each managed only two points. However, in the third overtime season Hagerman started to hit. Jackson and Glauner each had a field goal and Hansen added a pair of free throws for the final Pirate tally.

Richfield led throughout the game until late in the fourth period. Jackson scored in the final minute for Hagerman to put the Pirates in the lead but Tree hit one for Richfield to send the game into overtime.

Richfield led 22-16 at halftime and were ahead eight points at the close of the third period.

Late Carey rally holds Leadore

LEADORE — The Carey Panthers frittered away most of an 18-point lead but came back in the final two minutes to defeat Leadore 64-56 Saturday night.

The Panthers went ahead 53-35 late in the third quarter but Stroud hit three straight field goals to end the period. Carey went into a soft stall but became the victim of turnovers.

The Panthers struggled through six minutes without scoring while Fayle warmed up from the outside to gun Leadore to within four points with two minutes left. But Carey then broke the press for two easy buckets and then added to the margin from the foul line.

Carey won the first game.

JIM BOATWRIGHT, former Minico star and now leading scorer for Utah State, goes up in an attempt to stop a shot by Temple's Dan Koshmer during Volunteer Classic action in Knoxville, Tenn. Temple defeated the Utags 70-61. (UPI-Telaphoto)

Tennessee topples Temple stall 11-6

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Temple held the ball for an 11-minute stretch of the first half and most of the second Saturday night but the slowdown didn't do the Owls a bit of good when Tennessee beat them 11-6 to win the Volunteer Classic in one of the lowest-scoring games in college basketball history.

It was the lowest scoring game ever involving Tennessee and the lowest for Temple in more than 50 years.

For 11:38 of the first half, Temple players — with Tennessee ahead 7-5 — simply passed the ball back and forth among themselves while the crowd of 11,700 boomed, cheered, stamped their feet and occasionally threw cups of ice on the floor.

With about 15 seconds left to go in the first half, Temple's Kevin Washington finally tried to drive to the basket from the right side, tripped over his own feet and dribbled the ball out of bounds.

Tennessee's Rodney Woods, voted most valuable player of the tournament, then shot from about 25 feet at the first half buzzer and missed, leaving the halftime score 7-5.

Tennessee had taken a quick 2-0 lead on a layup by Len Kosmaki, then fell behind and tied the game at 5-5.

Ernie Grunfeld's layup with 12:44 left in the first half put the Vols in front 7-5 and ended the scoring in that period.

Tennessee's John Snow hit a technical foul for Tennessee after 2:02 of the second half, making the score 6-5. The technical was called on Temple for stalling.

Then the Owls went back into their ball-passing act again until 3:12 was left in the game. They simply passed it back and forth, finally calling time out to plot their strategy for the closing minutes.

Temple called time out again at 2:15 after missing an attempt at getting a bucket. At 1:40, Temple's Washington missed from about 10 feet and Woods got the rebound. The Vols turned the ball over on a 10-second violation, but at 1:04, Joe Newman missed from in close and Temple again got the rebound. Then Washington fouled out and Snow got a couple of free throws on a technical foul against Temple's coach, Don Casey.

La Tech romps to grid crown

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Louisiana Tech, sparked by a stifling defense, breezed to a 34-0 Camella Bowl victory over Western Kentucky Saturday to capture the NCAA's College Division II national championship.

The Bulldogs' defense, led by defensive back Wenford Wilborn, linebackers Danny Curtis and Joe McNeely and tackle Fred Dean, blanketed the high-powered Hilltoppers' offense, which had averaged nearly 38 points a game this year during an previously unbeaten season.

Wilborn set up two touchdowns with a punt return and a pass interception as the unbeaten Bulldogs exploded for 27 points in the late first and early second periods.

Should a tennis nut buy a place at one of the world's great ski resorts?

Sure! Sun Valley may be one of the world's greatest places to ski, but it's also a great place to play tennis when the snow's melted away.

Elkhorn Village at Sun Valley has eight beautiful, full-sized tennis courts. You can practice your forehands, backhands and serves from eight in the morning 'til eight at night.

Next year tennis pro John Gardiner plans to manage a 16-court tennis complex just one mile south of Elkhorn Village. Group and private lessons will be available, as well as a special clinic just for children.

Elkhorn is more than just a weekend resort. It's a real community, with many Elkhorn residents living there year-round. Others make it a second home. Whenever you're in Elkhorn, you'll have access to all Elkhorn facilities. And if you're looking for something you don't find at Elkhorn, you can probably find it at Sun Valley. There's something for everybody. Swimming Year-round ice skating, riding, sailing, terrific golfing. There's a beautiful 18-hole golf course in Sun Valley, and by next summer, Elkhorn will have its own course, designed by Robert Trent Jones.

The Sawtooth National Forest, bordering Elkhorn, provides great fishing, hunting and hiking.

And, of course, there's the skiing. Sun Valley has some of the world's most challenging trails and spectacular bowls on its 9,200 ft Mt. Baldy. And the lift to the top of Dollar!

Elkhorn Mountain is only a short walk from the condominiums in Elkhorn Village.

You can own a quarter-acre home site in Elkhorn for as little as $12,500. Or a sprawling ranch site, starting as low as $25,000. Financing is available on lot sales. It's one measure of Elkhorn's value that almost 30% of the purchasers already live in Idaho. So don't wait too long. There are only 2950 acres in Elkhorn and more than 1800 have been reserved for natural or open space.

Form for requesting information about Elkhorn. Includes fields for Name, Address, City, State, Zip, and checkboxes for condominiums, home sites, and ranch sales.

Kimberly tops Valley, claims tourney title

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly Bulldogs piled up a 15-point lead early in the fourth quarter, then outlasted a Rocky Hagen-led rally to beat Valley 60-56 and claim the Snake River holiday tournament championship Friday night.

Hansen, jumping off to an early lead, defeated the Murtaugh Red Devils 59-34 in consolation play.

Valley, a definite underdog, stayed in contention through the first half with Kimberly's Tony Slane, high man with 17 points, canning three straight buckets in the closing minutes for a 35-27 advantage.

The margin stayed about the same through the third quarter with the Bulldogs then appearing on the verge of breaking it open. But Hagen picked up a hot hand at that point and threw in six of his 10 field goals to lead Valley back.

The Vikings reduced the deficit to one point but Brasswell then connected for two free throws and Holly Houfburg came up with a clutch follow shot to push it back to five. Rod Reeves added two field goals after that to keep the Vikings at bay.

In the first game, Byron Stanger and Frederickson got Hansen rattling against Murtaugh which shook up its lineup due to disciplinary action for curfew reasons. The Huskies blew into a 27-11 at intermission with Murtaugh then coming back with its usual lineup.

However, the Huskies had it going by then and Murtaugh couldn't cut into the margin.

Twin Falls belts Pocatello 68-36 for fourth in row

Twin Falls' tall corps dominated the boards and collected 43 points among them in downing the Pocatello Indians 68-36 Friday night for the Bruins' fourth straight victory.

The game basically was over in the first five minutes when the Bruins broke into a 15-1 lead. However, this game wasn't won by the offense. The defense limited the Indians to 10 points in the first three quarters for a 46-18 advantage. The second unit provided a lot of the closing point production but Pocatello also warmed up and matched their total for the entire first three periods.

Kent Schmidt, Dennis Bowyer and Jim Lash combined for the 43 points with Bowyer and Schmidt splitting scoring honors with 16 each. Pocatello did manage to hold down Twin Falls' scoring on the offensive boards better than anyone thus far.

In the scoring race between the loop's one-two total point leaders, Twin Falls' Eric Hovey was limited to 14 points. Hovey hit nine in the first five minutes but Pocatello then assigned a man to dog him all over the court and it pushed him out of his rhythm. Pocatello's Renee Tademey, who came in holding a 23-point average, however, was limited to four.

Hovey's early point spree provided most of the early points and early in the second quarter Tash, Schmidt and Hovey all reeled off unanswered points to make it a 20-point lead. Pocatello did manage to get it down to 17 on a couple of occasions.

Pocatello handed Twin Falls sophomores their first defeat 39-30.

Meanwhile, a precedent was set at halftime when the crowd gave the drill team a standing ovation for its holiday spectacular.

Wood River trims Filer 52-36

FILER — The Wood River Wolverines turned on a stout defense to seize the lead and then beat back Filer's attempt at a closing press to take a 52-36 victory Friday night.

Coach Fred Trenkle's Wolverines limited Filer to just three points in the second period in moving to a 21-14 halftime lead. The game stayed about like that until with five minutes left Wood River, holding a six-point advantage, went into a deep delay.

Filer responded with a press and the Wolverines broke it often enough with inside shots and free throws to pull away. A sidelight of the game came when Filer never made an appearance at the free throw line. Wood River, which pressed throughout the game, was charged with six fouls.

Hospital takes on special holiday look

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In addition to the many dedicated employes of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital there is an unpaid and sometimes unrewarded crew of 250 women who last year spent 14,820 hours serving the hospital and its patients.

You will know them by their pink smocks and their cheerful and willing offers of assistance.

They are the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Auxiliary members and their services range from the present unique and attractive Christmas decorations of the four story building to running an information desk at the hospital.

Delores Brawley is outgoing president, with Vivian Hicks as incoming president for 1974. In her annual report to the hospital board, Mrs. Brawley said senior auxiliary members provided 14,820 hours of volunteer service and the junior members donated another 3,803 hours.

Under the auxiliary's work agenda are such things as a cart service which takes gift and necessity items to the patient rooms for their selection and purchase if desired. The money from this goes into the treasury.

Revenue from handmade ceramics, decorations and toys, most of it under the direction of Barrie Schnitker and Ava Schow, helps the auxiliary with many of its projects.

Small handmade favors, again provided by the volunteers, frequently decorate patient meal carts — especially on holidays or birthdays. A bright pink telephone on the reception desk of the hospital's foyer is the auxiliary's own "hot line" and one of the "pink ladies" mans the desk receiving calls and sending the on-duty volunteers to various areas of the hospital where they are needed to assist a patient or staff member with a special duty.

Admission patients get a friendly hand from the women in the pink smocks and are taken by wheelchair to their designated area of the building. These surgical reception women alone contributed 4,535 hours of work last year.

With the pink ladies desk now located in the main hospital lobby where additional space was provided in recent hospital remodeling, the volunteers provide reception services and public information.

Probably the most noticeable service each year is the holiday decorations. Pat Heinemann, a first year member, has already worked 800 hours of her own time making such elaborate decorations as a gingerbread church in the foyer and a gingerbread train in the canteen.

The church, which is about three feet high, is complete to the stained glass windows PRACTICING for the "Messiah" presentation Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium are Ernest Moss, violinist, Twin Falls, and J. R. Reichard, bass, and Debbie Blades, alto, both Jerome.

'Messiah' scheduled Wednesday at CSI

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two College of Idaho seniors will be among the soloists for Wednesday's production of the "Messiah" in the Fine Arts Auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho.

Bill Buckendorf, Buhl, and Brian Attebery, Caldwell, will be tenor and bass soloists for Handel's well-known oratorio, sponsored by the Jerome schools choral department.

Mrs. David Mead, Twin Falls, will be soprano soloist and Billie Jo Premoe, Jerome teacher, is the alto soloist.

Carson Wong, Jerome choral music director who is conducting the performance, said the Jerome High School varsity chorus is joining with the Magic Valley Community Chorus for the event.

They will be accompanied by the Magic Valley Chamber Orchestra, composed of instrumentalists from Twin Falls, Buhl, Burley and other north side communities.

Tickets for the performance set for 8 p.m. Wednesday are available at Warner's Music Store, Twin Falls, and the Jerome High School principal's office.

While the oratorio is probably one of the most performed choral works in the world since its debut April 13, 1742, it has been several years since the traditional Christmas portions have been presented in Twin Falls.

The Easter portions of the work were given last Palm Sunday by the Magic Valley Chorale, directed by Roger Vincent, as the initial performance of that group.

It has probably been 10 years since the oratorio has had orchestral accompaniment in Twin Falls and most listeners feel this adds much to the "fullness" of the production.

The story behind George Handel's inspired writing of the work is as dramatic as the music itself. At 60, Handel, who had written stately music for 40 years and been honored by kings and queens, was "washed up." Court society had turned against him, he was debt-ridden and a stroke had paralyzed his right side.

His strength had gradually returned, but Queen Caroline, a staunch patroness, had died, his income was again reduced and a frigid winter in England had closed all theaters, making performances impossible.

Walking listlessly down a dark London street, Handel bitterly pondered why God had allowed him to recover if he could no longer be permitted to create.

Upon returning to his shabby lodgings he found a bulk package containing a libretto entitled "A Sacred Oratorio" from a poet of the day, Charles Jennens and a note asking Handel to start work immediately on the oratorio, ending with, "The Lord Gave the Word."

Handel snorted. He was not a pious man, reportedly of violent temper and sometimes swore at the court ladies if they whispered during his performances, but he was always helping unfortunates. But as he leafed through the passages, the words began to come alive, and most concert goers are familiar with how he worked, like a man possessed with "little food or rest, completing the oratorio in an incredibly swift time — in around 24 days.

His servant reportedly told a friend, "... He just stares at me and doesn't see me. He said the gates of heaven opened wide for him and God himself was there."

When the score was completed, the composer slept as though in a coma for 17 days and his poor servant, thinking he was dying, sent for a doctor. But before the doctor arrived, Handel was up bellowing for food, wolfing half a ham washed with endless tankards of beer.

When the physician arrived, Handel told him "If you've come for a friendly visit, all right, but I won't have any of your poking over my carcass. There's nothing the matter with me."

Since he was out of favor in London, Handel took his work to Ireland where he merged two choirs in Dublin. All tickets were quickly sold and ladies were asked to come without hoops, gentlemen without swords to make more room. Crowds waited at the doors hours before the opening and the response was tumultuous.

After the triumph London was anxious to hear the work and — during the first performance there the crowd, following the king's example, surged to its feet during the "Hallelujah Chorus" and remained standing until the end — a custom still followed.

Handel never accepted a shilling for his work and gave all proceeds to charity. It was a miracle that had lifted him from deepest despondency and he wanted it to be "the hope of the world, to light the dark places of the earth as long as there are voices to lift in song, eyes to look to the hills, hearts to hope."

TF sixth graders assist St. Nick

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer.

TWIN FALLS — Sixth graders at Washington school are learning about being Santa's helpers and giving surprisingly adult advice in the process.

They answer letters to Santa Claus written by first graders and teachers at "both ends" of the project and give a fun-way for both younger and older students to learn about letter writing.

Some days ago the first graders "mailed" their letters in the school library where, under the direction of Carol Edwards, librarian, they were dispatched with yuletide efficiency to the sixth grade rooms of Charlotte Wilson, Bob Tucker and Tina Stevens for answering.

Some of the sixth graders expressed dismay at the bad spelling displayed in the letters. Mrs. Wilson said, ignoring the fact that "some of theirs aren't any better."

Student returns to Brazil

SALMON — Fernando Garcia ended an 11-month stay in Salmon this week, excited about returning home to Brazil but expressing hope he can return here some day.

The 17-year-old Rotary Club exchange student completed his high school education at Salmon High School and on returning home will fill a six-month military service requirement before going into the study of journalism in college.

The youth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nilo Garcia Albarce of Mogi das Cruzes, Sao Paulo, Brazil, flew here to pick up their son and went on to New York City for a month-long trip through Europe.

"I met a lot of people, it was a great experience for me and I really enjoyed my stay here," the youth said.

His parents said they were pleased with the friendly reception they had received here.

Neither speak English but Fernando had increased his command of the language during his visit here as a guest of the Salmon Rotary Club.

Camp Fire leaders convene

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls area Camp Fire leaders and their assistants met Thursday for a potluck luncheon and craft exchange at the home of Dot Greene, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Barbara Walte, area Camp Fire director, reminded leaders attending to bring their Christmas trees to the Camp Fire office Wednesday for the Christmas party Thursday.

Members of Camp Fire groups and the leaders will go to the office Thursday for group singing, treats and other Christmas activities.

Those attending decided to meet again in January to exchange ideas for Camp Fire ceremonies.

But the letter answerers show considerable wisdom in their answers. If a child listed a great many wants, he was often gently told that Santa has many requests and can't answer them all.

The sixth graders also are careful not to definitely promise anything; they show typical adult ability to sound sincere, yet not be "planned down."

"I will check into your behaviour and try to get you what you want..." is the predominant theme.

When the requests included BB guns, rifles, mini bikes and other larger, expensive items, the sixth graders invariably caution their younger peers that "many children want them... but you may have to wait until you're older."

Extra bits of advice are included, too, such as "Don't eat too much sweets or your teeth will rot away."

Each sixth grader could decide if he would write as Santa or as an elf and they show great imagination about elves, one writer adding the astounding information that "all the elves are 2 feet high and one is 30 years old."

Occasionally there is a brother-sister, or neighbor relationship between the first grader writing to Santa and the helper who is answering it, which allows for more specific comments, like the child who wanted a dog, but was told...

"You already have one dog... remember to feed him every day."

Another wanting a bird was told "Lots of kids want birds and you have to feed them every day and sometimes clean their cages."

A strong safety consciousness runs through the answers with many of the first graders cautioned to wait until they are older before getting a BB gun.

Most of the little ones assure Santa they've been good, but one frank first grader demanded the ultimate answer, querying "Santa, have I been bad or good?" and was told Santa would "check my list and see if you've been good."

All in all, Santa's helpers at Five Points North in Twin Falls are sensible, friendly and encouraging but they don't promise too much!

Santa's helper

ONE OF SANTA'S helpers in Washington school, Joe Cilek, concentrates on answering a letter written to Santa by a first grader. The sixth graders enjoy the project which teachers use as a "more or less" painless language lesson on letter writing.

Engagement revealed

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. William J. Emerson, Twin Falls, announce the engagement of their daughter, Clare Marie, to Scott Williams, Williams is the son of Mrs. Charles L. Williams, Twin Falls.

Miss Emerson is a graduate of Utah State University and Williams is a graduate of the University of Idaho. Both are employed in Boise.

A December 29 wedding is planned at the home of her parents.

So-Journey sets meet

Holiday concert scheduled

VALLEY SCHOOLS — A concert of Christmas music will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Valley High School by the high school music department.

A new madrigal singing group has been organized at the school and will make its first appearance at the concert, according to Paul Larson, music instructor. The group is composed of 16 advanced music students.

Special Christmas numbers will be performed by the concert-and-cadet bands and choruses.

Special lighting and scenery will add to the Christmas theme of the program, reports Scott Skeem, chorus president.

The madrigal chorus will also sing at church services Dec. 16 at 11 a.m. in the Hazelton Presbyterian Church and at the Hazelton LDS Ward Chapel at 4:30 p.m.

The miniature train includes an engineer in the cab of the engine and a circus car carrying two small zebras, also made of gingerbread, with white frosting stripes.

A giant flocked tree in the foyer is decorated in handmade balls and homemade sugar candy bells, also the work of Mrs. Heinemann. She has made individual pine cone wreaths for all the doors in the building and tiny singing angels which decorate desks and the tables in the dining room.

The decor alone is worth a trip to the hospital, says Mrs. Hicks.

During the Christmas season all new infants delivered at the hospital are presented to the new mothers in a red and white striped Christmas stocking. The volunteers made 59 of these for the current season.

Not only do the pink ladies work they also donated $3,742 to the hospital to purchase equipment the hospital budget could not cover this year. These included $2,500 for a fetal heart monitor, $750 for an IVAC monitor, $395 for a vacuum oven and $97 for a blood mixer.

Mini-Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the Twin Falls Public Library have been released by library officials.

"Lucy, the Bittersweet" by Joe Morella. A candid biography of one of Hollywood's best-known personalities. More than a chronicle of her life—it takes a close look at her checkered private life.

"Operation. Nuke" by Martine Caidin. The "Blonics Man" is featured in this dazzling novel of the ultimate blackmail of our times.

"Krumnag" by Peter Ustinov. This is a novel about a bungling American chief of police in deep trouble. Sardonic, surprising, laugh-filled and compassionate.

"Berlin Ending" by Howard Hunt. Concerns "agents of influence"—high government officials capable of altering the attitudes of an entire country.

"Fair Game" by George Bartram. The scene is international. The plot is bizarre. The characters are perverse. It's a novel that defines suspense.

"Saturday's Children" by Giles Tippette. An intimate view of the total dedication to that warfare-on-Astroturf-college football.

"A One Thousand Summer" by Garson Kanin. A special kind of love story beginning long ago because of an infinitesimal speck, a cinder in Sheila's eye.

"Dr. Moore's Legacy" by Agatha Young. The issue is a heart transplant. Dr. Moore is confronted with the choice between two recipients—a famous senator or the young wife of a doctor.

"Reader in Public Opinion and Communication" by Bernard Berelson. Must be considered essential reading for sociologists and professional persons concerned with communications.

"Nero Wolfe Cookbook" by Rex Stout. Two hundred fifty five recipes by Rex Stout.

Bright quilts offered

TWIN FALLS — Something to brighten the hospital visits for children in the pediatrics department of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital has been added to the third floor department.

A group of nurses decided the small children should not have to use the drab hospital blankets and would be happier with some bright quilts. They took up the old fashioned art of quilting. Within a short time they were joined by another group of quilters, members of the "Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

There are now about 20 bright quilts, many in stripes, animal figured prints or blocks, all tied with bright colors of yarn.

Quilting bees were held at the homes of Nancy Hoyer, a LPN on the floor and at the home of Mrs. Jean Miller, auxiliary member.

Nancy Churchman, head nurse in the department, said this is one of a number of ideas being used to brighten up the pediatrics room and help make hospital visits less painful for small children.

Selects quilt

Carols banned

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — The Ithaca school board has banned Christmas carols that refer to the birth of Jesus, ruling that they make it uncomfortable for children who are not Christians.

Theodore Sturges, schools superintendent, said the policy would keep children from being placed in a position of "remaining silent or walking out or not attending (school functions) at all."

About 100 persons showed up for the board meeting Wednesday night, including religious leaders, some of whom supported the policy as a "reasonable compromise."

However, Howard Andrus, board president, disputed it, saying, "I believe Christmas carols are a part of our American heritage and I would be willing to make a test case of this, if necessary."

TWIN FALLS — Greta Smith was awarded the blue pencil for the best speech at the Magic Toastmistress Club's meeting Thursday.

For best general performance Nettie Mangel was awarded the red pencil.

Mrs. Alda Strong inducted three new members: Mrs. Pat Abers, Mrs. Sandy Moeller and Mrs. Eileen Cappel.

The table topic was "My plans for Dec. 28th." The traveling trophy for the best topic was awarded to Mrs. Moeller.

Greta Smith spoke on "The Big Doll," and Ruby Box spoke on "Margaret."

Christian Women install new leaders

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Chloe Carr was installed president of the Christian Women's Mission Service at a meeting Thursday.

Other new officers are Mrs. Robert Wilson, first vice president; Mrs. George Carroll, second vice president; Mrs. Doris Basinger, recording secretary; Mrs. Maurice Allen, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. P. Bowler, treasurer, and Mrs. William Walker, worship chairman. Mrs. Melvin Esslinger served as installing officer.

General reports were given. Gifts were collected for the Puget Sound Indian Mission and the Beaverton Home.

Group 1 met with Mrs. Floyd Smith to make Christmas gifts for shut-ins. Group 2 met with Mrs. Herman Grabert with Mrs. Ralph Bogar presenting the lesson. Group 3 met with Mrs. Jim Duffel. Mrs. Ray Jones gave devotions. The mother's club met with Mrs.

Duffel and had a Christmas auction. Kay Wall served as auctioneer.

Mrs. Allen, past president, was presented a thank you gift.

Refreshments were served by group 3, directed by Mrs. Bob Norris. Co-hostesses were Mrs. I. P. Sweet, Mrs. Frank Zlatnik and Mrs. Orval Guffey.

Gooding Yule program planned

GOODING — The annual Gooding School Christmas program will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Gooding High School Gym. Participating will be the Gooding beginning band, junior high band, high school chorus and senior high school band.

The high school chorus will open the program with a candlelight service. The various bands will present the second half of the program. There will be 154 students participating in the program, according to the music director. The public is invited. There will be no admission charge.

Opening lead—10♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's four spade opening was an all purpose bid. He didn't know if he could make it or even if he wanted to get to game, but at the same time he felt that if he couldn't make game, his opponents might well be able to do so in a suit of their own.

It turned out that the bid was well chosen. South could and should have made four spades, but a combination of the right opening lead, the right return and poor play by South left him one trick short.

There was nothing sensational about West's opening lead. He had equals in diamonds. East's play of the ace and return of the six were almost automatic plays.

South was in and it was up to him to carry on. It was also up to him to stop and think for a second, but South wasn't a thinker. He wanted to pull trumps and led his nine spot in the hope that if West held the ace, West would duck. West might have ducked except for one thing. He had no low trump to put on the nine. So West played his ace and led a third diamond. East ruffed and promptly took the setting trick with the ace of clubs.

Just a moment's thought by South would have alerted him to this danger. It also would have shown him a simple way to avoid it. All he had to do was to lead his singleton heart to dummy's king and discard his last diamond on the ace.

Popular Cuddles feels unwanted

DUDLEY, England (UPI) — Dudley Zoo's fun loving killer whale Cuddles, one of the zoo's major attractions, feels unwanted.

Because the local government authority wants the zoo to return Cuddles' pool to its original depth, she has been offered for sale at $82,500, and there have been no bidders.

The local authority said the zoo infringed a building regulation, and the zoo said it would cost too much to return the pool to its original size.

"We shall be very sorry to see her go. But it will cost far too much money to build a new pool for Cuddles," said a zoo spokesman.

Unless a deal goes through soon, the zoo may be forced to put the three-ton whale into a small storage pool, he said.

Seniors event set

TWIN FALLS — A colorful afghan made by several of the senior citizens at the Twin Falls Senior Citizens Center will be a Christmas gift for someone.

It is attracting considerable attention at the center and will be given away during the potluck Christmas and birthday anniversary dinner at the center Dec. 20.

The center will furnish ham, coffee and birthday cake for the special event and Santa Claus will be present to liven up the dinner program. Special entertainment is also planned.

All interested senior citizens in the community are asked to attend and to bring a small gift wrapped and ready to present a shut-in at one of the area nursing homes.

Spring fashions show styles 'you' want

(c) Newhouse News Service
NEW YORK — Hold it, ladies! Don't spend all your money for holiday happenings. You're going to want plenty of it for spring clothes. Not because prices are higher (they are, of course, isn't everything?) but because designers have been doing their utmost to give you the kind of fashions you'll want to spend money for, and it looks as if they've succeeded.

a great deal of intricate detailing to make it appear so. From the controlled fullness in the way that gathers are placed in the back of a very simple blouse top, to the pleats that begin as gores, to the way that stripes are used to mark the cut of a garment, it's apparent a great deal of forethought went into creating these clothes.

Now to get down to the basics — silhouettes, fabrics, colors, patterns and lengths. First let's begin with length, since there seems to be some confusion about hemlines again. You'll be relieved to hear almost to the man (and woman) designers are showing short skirts (somewhere around the knee) for day, since Paris and a few American designers have been doing longer hemlines, you'll see them too in most collections. Let me emphasize, however, these are alternate looks and not by any means mandatory.

Eleanor Lambert made this very clear in her press briefing at the beginning of the week. "The new, daytime skirt is an off-beat length that most designers feel young people will like. They all believe that length is for each woman to decide herself. Designers — even the young very avant-garde types, are showing a variety of lengths."

"To report that 'the long skirt is back' is giving women false information. I'm afraid that has happened quite a bit lately, and it just isn't true. Designers aren't going to get themselves in that box again right away."

There's general feeling of bigness in silhouettes.

But here, too, you're offered a choice. There's also volume — sometimes modified — at the top with slender skirts; and slim tops with full skirts or skirts with controlled fullness. Necklines are open (often down-to-there) right across the board for both day time and evenings. Sometimes they're filled in with beads or a scarf. Short cape, bloused or kabuki sleeves are everywhere, along with wrap effects in coats, jackets, blouses and dresses. Waists may be unmarked or sashed more often than belted.

The dress is definitely back, and designers feel ladies are accepting them to such an extent they're even giving the afternoon dresses. These are not strictly for day time and dressy enough for parties.

Use surprise light to catch burglars

(c) Newhouse News Service
MOBILE, Ala. — If you want to protect your home against burglars, a surprise light is almost as effective as a surprise bite.

"A good watchdog is still the best deterrent to burglars, but if you don't have one, your home can be adequately protected by lighting, locks, alarms and good security habits," according to Eugene E. Banathy, engineering manager of International Register Co., who has made a study of home security systems.

One of the most important ways to confuse would-be burglars is never to let them know when you are home. Banathy said this can be done with timers that switch lights, radios and TV's on and off in irregular patterns.

Banathy stressed that it is important to use good locks, because the housebreaker recognizes and respects them. "He won't spend the time to overcome a good lock unless he feels he has a lot of time and a lot to gain," advised Banathy. Banathy also suggested that homeowners:

— Keep shrubbery cut low to avoid giving burglars a place to hide.

— Don't display valuables, especially to strangers. Also, mark items of value with a diamond-point stylus on sale in drug and department stores. — Keep strangers out of your home. If you must let workers in, make them produce identification, then stay with them while they work and restrict their access to other areas of the house.

— Don't make announcements in public about your possessions.

It takes longer

LONDON (UPI) — Nowadays, teeny boppers are taking longer to grow up, said gynecologist Dr. Thomas Damm.

In 1959, the average English girl reached womanhood at the age of 13, and now it is 13.2 years, he said.

Writing in the Nursing Times, he said he believes the age at which girls grow into women goes in 150-year cycles, and it is now on an upswing.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband, Clarence, became a Christian two years ago, which pleased me because I was already one. A preacher named Orville has influenced Clarence greatly, but I can't go along with some of the things Orville has taught him.

For instance, he says no Christian would own a TV, attend a movie, or allow his children to dance or attend school sports. He also says Christian women don't cut their hair or use any kind of beautifying things.

Clarence had a dream that he was speaking from the pulpit, and Orville said that dream was a "vision" in which God was calling Clarence to preach, so now Clarence plans to preach.

One night last week Clarence said he had a dream that we were getting our tobacco crop ready to sell and some unbelievers kept hiding bad tobacco in our good tobacco, so Clarence decided it was a message from God to get rid of our TV, so he took it out in the back and burned it up.

I am torn to pieces over this. Our four preschool children are becoming very nervous. Why don't I leave him? I love him. And I know he loves me and the children. I have been praying for guidance, but am getting no answers. Can you help me?

LOST

DEAR LOST: I think you should see your doctor and tell him what you have told me. And take Clarence with you. If you could get Orville to go along, it might give the doctor a clue as to what you are up against.

DEAR ABBY: I am 38, but I'm told I look about 25. I've had two marriages. Both were failures for the same reason: I picked losers and tried to help them. I've always held good jobs and worked hard and practically supported both these guys, and got nothing but a kick in the rear.

Now I finally met a man who is hard working and successful, and HE wants to marry ME! He bends over backwards trying to be nice to me, and it's a whole new ball game for me. He says he loves me, and I know I love him. I can't believe it. The only catch is that he is 32. He has been married and has two children. I am worried about the age difference between us. He says he's always been "old" for his age, and my being older doesn't bother him because I look and act younger.

What do you think I should do? FAITHFUL READER

DEAR FAITHFUL: I think you should grab him.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument I am having with my husband since we visited his sister and brother in law last week.

I refuse to go to their home again. They have three dogs and six cats which they keep locked up in their house all day, and when you walk into their home the smell could knock you dead. I might add, that both the sister and her husband are chain smokers and neither my husband nor I smoke. So between the animal odors and the smoke, I was ready to keel over.

At dinner, the animals were fed from the same plates we were using. I objected, but was told: "What's the difference? All the dishes go into the dishwasher." This turned my stomach.

I told my husband I wasn't going to visit them again. He said: "They'll be hurt."

What do you say? NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: I say, I don't blame you. If your husband has the stomach for a return visit to his sister's house, kiss him goodby and ask him to please fumigate his clothes before he comes home.

Couple observes 60 years

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Adamson, 137 Fourth Ave. N., Twin Falls, will observe their 60th wedding anniversary Monday.

Joseph W. Adamson and Jane Eva Moyes were married Dec. 17, 1913, in Salt Lake City, Utah, and their marriage was solemnized in the LDS Temple there.

Mrs. Adamson was born May 24, 1893, in Huntsville, Utah, moving to Wyoming with her parents when she was 5 years old. When she was 18, she moved to Murtaugh, where she met her husband to be.

Adamson was born Jan. 14, 1887, at Spanish Fork, Utah. He moved to Murtaugh as a young man. The couple lived in Murtaugh after their marriage where Adamson worked as a farmer and carpenter. They moved to Salt Lake City and lived there three years while he worked as a cabinet maker for the D and RG Railroad.

They then returned to Murtaugh where they resumed farming and lived there until 1932 when they moved to Twin Falls.

Adamson and his son Louis went to Wake Island in 1940 to work in construction. Louis was killed there at the start of the war and Adamson was taken prisoner and spent 48 months in a prisoner of war camp in China.

During the war years, Mrs. Adamson worked for the Department of Agriculture and the State Tax Commission to earn a living for the family. She was manager of Reed's Millinery Shoppe for 10 years and later worked for the Bertha Cambell Shop.

They are the parents of 8 children, 3 daughters and 5 sons. Their living children are Mrs. Edward (Velma) Ulvec, Ingleswood, Calif.; Mrs. William (Jewel) Bakes, Fair Oaks, Calif.; Dale J. Adamson, Las Vegas, Nev.; George A. Adamson, Henderson, Nev.; Warren M. Adamson, Jerome; Robert C. Adamson, Twin Falls.

In addition to Louis, their daughter, Marie, died as a child when they lived in Salt Lake City.

The couple has 23 grandchildren and 8 great-grandchildren.

Minimum teacher salary opposed

BOISE — The president-elect of the Idaho State Superintendent's Association has "mixed feelings" about establishing a minimum salary for teachers in the state.

Everett Howard said in an interview Thursday, however, he opposes statewide uniform salary schedules because of the differences in costs of living in different parts of the state.

Howard, in his third year as superintendent of the Middleton School District, also said equalized school funding is the most serious problem facing Idaho's schools. He applauded a recent court decision that ruled unconstitutional the present method of funding.

"It's a favorable ruling," he said, "It's something we were expecting and it's something our association supports."

Howard said he wasn't certain that a minimum salary for classroom teachers was "the avenue to pursue." He said it would require several million dollars in additional funding for schools to create a minimum, especially if the floor were set at $7,300 a year, as a recent committee appointed by the State Board of Education suggested.

Howard said there would be some school district that "couldn't handle that level of salary," and added, "I don't know if the legislature is ready."

The president-elect said he favored a change to permit school bond elections for construction to win approval with 50 per cent of the vote. It now takes two-third support for a bonding proposal to pass at the polls. In addition, Howard said, school districts need state funding assistance when it comes to constructing new school buildings.

Howard, who takes office in July, also said he thought some of the small school districts in the state would be able to operate "more efficiently financially and educationally" if they merged to become joint districts. He said he was certain "consolidation or reorganization in some form is inevitable," although not in the next year.

Rabbi launches petition campaign for Nixon

(c) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — A million petitions, each with room for the signatures of 15 registered voters expressing confidence in President Nixon, are being prepared by a New England Rabbi who has dedicated himself to the proposition that the President deserves a break.

"The man who brought the nation peace is being denied peace himself," said Rabbi Baruch Korff of Rehoboth, Mass., general chairman of the National Citizens' Committee for Fairness to the President. "Loopholes? Don't speak to me of loopholes. I have yet to find an honest man whose story has no loopholes. Only a fiend or a pathological liar tells a story which cannot be ventilated."

Rabbi Korff has set up offices in Providence, R.I., and has watched his operation grow from one room and a telephone to a new four-room suite of offices with four phones. He has collected $350,000 in contributions and spent nearly that amount on seven advertisements in the nation's largest newspapers.

The latest advertisement no longer was philosophical, as was his plaintive message to Julie Nixon Eisenhower, exhorting the President's daughter to have courage and not to despair.

Now, Rabbi Korff sounds like the lion rather than the lamb, attacking "the predatory McGovernites" who refuse to give up and "the rankst consortium of saboteurs" who would sacrifice the nation to attack the President.

"When cholera is rampant, you won't cure it with aspirin," the Rabbi said in an interview. "You do not cure a plague with a palliative. When you look at the cartoons and listen to the abominations being peddled about the President, you must take off the gloves.

"Attack is one thing, criticism is one thing, disagreement is one thing. But some of these people in the media and elsewhere have ceased to have balanced judgments. The Watergate syndrome has permeated their entire constellation. It is sad, very sad."

An indication of Rabbi Korff's attitude toward Nixon comes when he is asked about the White House Watergate-related tapes.

"If I had been President Nixon when this tape business came up, I would have made a fire and burned them all," he snapped. "It's none of their

And now, Rabbi Korff is on the petition route.

Frank A. Fusco of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., a co-chairman of the committee, is contributing the use of a computer for mailing the petitions to more than 100,000 persons who either have given money or moral support to the non-profit organization.

Each person assuming responsibility of a petition will be asked to sign it, collect 14 other signatures, then make four photo copies.

"We would like the original sent to the President, one copy to the congressman from the district where the signatures were collected, one to each of the U.S. senators from that state, and one to me," the Rabbi said.

Hoses the present anti-Nixon wave as a possible beginning of the end of the Republic, and claims it is due in large part to the President's lack of charisma and differences with the media.

Salmon landfill proposed by panel

SALMON — The Salmon Solid Waste Advisory Committee will recommend to the Salmon City Council that a proposed solid waste landfill be established in the area of the present city dump.

Dennis Walker, committee chairman, said the new location would be further up the ravine behind the present city dump and would not be visible from the community.

Committee members inspected three potential sites

Wednesday.

The city has been ordered to close its open dump.

The Salmon Solid Waste Advisory Committee was appointed by Mayor William Cannon.

Wayne Valentino, committee member, told the Salmon Chamber of Commerce Wednesday noon that the biggest problem is participation in the proposed solid waste collection system by everyone.

Idaho challenges federal ruling

BOISE — Idaho intends to join with other states in a lawsuit challenging a federal decision that has cost the state $1 million in reimbursable funds.

The case involves a memorandum written by an employee of the Department of Health Education and Welfare that established the basis for disallowing state claims for social service funds.

According to DECS council Robert Bushnell, the suit will claim the memorandum was without basis in federal law or within guidelines established for the program. Bushnell also said it will claim the memorandum was applied retroactively for about 18 months.

DECS administrator Dr. James A. Bax, in a letter to a Washington, D. C., attorney who will be handling the suit, wrote, "Please be advised that Idaho is willing to join the other states in the proposed legislation. It is my understanding that your fee will be allocated among the participating states on the same ratio as these states share in the available social services funds as limited by Congress."

Bushnell said the state's share of legal costs could run several thousands of dollars. But he also said the potential recovery from the suit for claims the federal government has denied is about $1 million.

Blaine OK's variance for firm's turbine generator

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News Writer

HAILEY — Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission members narrowly approved a variance to allow Idaho Power Co. to install a turbine generator and oil storage tank north of Halley after a public hearing Thursday night.

Chairman Nick Purdy cast the favorable vote to break a 4 to 4 commission tie.

Variance stipulations include that Idaho Power will maintain a .47 decibel maximum generator noise level; the existing Barite railroad siding north of the site be used to unload oil tank cars and an underground pipeline be installed to the site rather than constructing a new railroad siding and the complex be screened on four sides rather than on the proposed three sides.

The Idaho Power proposal includes installation of a 50,000 kilowatt combustion turbine chamber and a 50,000 barrel oil storage tank, totalling $5.5 million adjacent to the existing Wood River substation, about one and one-half miles north of Halley.

The turbine will operate on fuel oil in the winter and natural gas in the summer. Not under commission jurisdiction is a related Idaho Power proposal to rebuild existing 46,000 volt lines to 138,000 volts from the substation to the Ketchum substation at a cost of about $385,000.

Joe Humphrey, representing Sun Valley Co. Inc. and Elkhorn, testified on behalf of the project.

Opposing the variance was Boise attorney John Chapman, representing Mrs. Dorothy Chapman who owns about 320 acres neighboring the Wood River substation, and Ralph Pifarli, real estate consultant for the Western National Corp., Boise, which co-owns about 190 acres south of the substation and extending to about the northern Halley City limits.

Nelson said the area is presently served by a 138,000 volt line extending 72 miles from the King substation to Ketchum and having a continuous operation capacity of 55,000 kw.; and a 46,000 volt line from Shoshone to Halley with a 5,000 kw. capacity.

The Halley area, including the Halley, Ketchum and Elkhorn substations as well as the Picabo substation, had a maximum winter load of 30,000 kw. with 35,000 to 40,000 kw. projected for the end of the year, he said.

Nelson said Idaho Power feels the generator is the "best solution" to the need for power during the 1974 summer because of construction delays on the Jim Bridger generating plant in Wyoming and the need for emergency backup power in case of failure on the prime transmission line and the need for a reserve capacity.

He said the turbine answered essentially a question of power delivery rather than power supply.

The turbine is only projected to run during the 1974 summer, Nelson said, with usage after that time dependent upon the emergency and reserve needs.

Because of the turbine operating costs, estimated at about 2.5 cents per kilowatt hour, it will only be run when "absolutely essential," he said and termed the later usage as "very intermittent."

Nelson said turbine exhaust emissions will "in all cases be well under one per cent" of what is allowed under Idaho standards. Noise levels will be 46 decibels at 400 feet and 43 decibels at 600 feet — the location of the nearest residence.

The attorney said location of the turbine in Ketchum is not feasible because a transmission line would still be required to provide reliability; no space is available at the Ketchum substation, and because of problems in transporting oil through the city.

Humphrey said the turbine will provide a "long term benefit to the area" and said he feels the impact would be "minimal." However, he encouraged Idaho Power to explore other routes for the transmission line, possibly along the railroad rather than along U. S. Highway 93 right of way.

Chapman said the Wood River substation is not a logical area for "this type of industrial use."

Because of its proximity to Halley, he said the plant will be "right in the way of urban expansion in the next five to 10 years."

Chapman said Idaho Power does not have a guaranteed source of oil and it is "a strange time" to make the proposal when a real shortage of gas and oil exists.

He said the proposed transmission lines would "substantially visually pollute the area" and said there is "no question" the emissions will deteriorate present air quality.

The attorney recommended Idaho Power research possible alternatives including upgrading the transmission line from Shoshone to Halley; finding another location out of the way of urban growth, or locating the plant in the Ketchum-Sun Valley area where the majority of the power needs exist.

Pifarli said he cannot understand Idaho Power "spending the kind of money that is being spent" to provide power this summer when projections indicate another transmission line will be required within several years.

He said he objects "vehemently" to the construction of a new railroad siding because it would have an adverse effect on adjacent property.

Purdy said he visited similar turbine plants and said the noise levels were "reasonable" and he "could not see any emissions."

He said he feels the plant would "probably work in a residential area."

Commission member James Piggy said the overall plan "is definitely a good one" and the proposed layout "can't be anything but an asset" to the substation.

Commission member Gerald Sidwell said he feels the turbine is a "stop gap solution" rather than a long range solution.

Commission member Mary Jane Marin said the present energy situation requires a "complete rethinking of what we do with energy."

Wendell delays water project

WENDELL — Installation of new water mains for Wendell will be delayed until the 1974 budget is adopted.

If the city cannot come up with the $21,810 needed for the digging of trenches and laying of the water mains, city crews possibly could do the work.

Councilmen discussed financial aspects of the project during Thursday night's council meeting. The pipe has already been purchased.

City clerk Gwen Collett said the city does not have enough money to pay for the work at this time. The cost projection is $4,000 more than original estimates, according to city engineer Hugh Hedges.

He said additional funds requested from the Environmental Protection Agency for the city sewer improvement project have been approved by the Boise EPA office. A contract can be awarded after the city receives notice of approval from the Seattle EPA office.

The city has not been able to award a contract to the Neilson Construction Co. for the work because the bid was several thousand dollars above the original grant from the EPA.

In other business, the council:

... Took under advisement a suggestion from city police chief Dale Bunn that the council consider installation of new lights at the city park. The lights presently are not operating.

... Decided city Christmas lights will be turned on from dark until midnight. Earl Johnson donates his labor and equipment to install the lights.

... Mayor Eugene Soares announced liquor and wine applications are due by the next council meeting Dec. 27.

Checks to help blind vet returned since he doesn't need charity

By MIKE ROYKO
 (c) Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — Many nice people have sent me checks, some quite sizable, to help Leroy Bailey, the blind veteran with the mutilated face.

"I'm sure more such contributions are on their way from all over the country. I've had phone calls from people in Boston, Corpus Christi, Mobile and dozens of other cities where the column about the veteran's Administration's indifference to Bailey appeared.

But all the checks are being returned.

The generosity of the senders is appreciated, charity, in this case, is not appropriate.

we have no shortage of them. It might be a very old, lonely, sickly widow, living alone in a dumpy flat, and barely surviving on a two-bit pension. You take her picture, looking sadly out of her window, wearing a faded house dress, and you write about how little she will have to eat at Christmas, and how drab her life is.

And, presto, in a few days the gifts and contributions are pouring in.

Or it might be a husband in a sick bed, a wife in a wheelchair, and then thin, sad-eyed kids who won't even have a Christmas tree because of the family's enormous medical expenses.

And the gifts come rolling in. Those stories repel me. Not the people, but the idea that they should have to depend on a handout.

Why should that old lady be living on a pension that barely permits her to survive? Other countries recognize that their aged deserved something more than a few crumbs after a lifetime of work. Why should they be forced to live in fleabag housing? Other countries, not as rich as ours, provide them with comfortable places to live.

And why should illness or any other circumstances force a family into destitution? It shouldn't. Nor should these people have to depend on anything so chancy as charity and the random attention of a newspaper at Christmas time. They are as poor, lonely and sick in the middle of July.

Charity should exist only to fill in the cracks between the services of institutions that we have created to provide.

It isn't the answer to the problems of the aged, the disabled vets of our frequent wars, the sick or the poor.

We pay handsomely every April 15. And the reason we are such a tax-hating nation is that we get such bum service for our money.

So please don't send any more contributions for Leroy Bailey, and don't be offended or hurt when your check is returned.

"It shouldn't take a noisy columnist and a direct order from the President to get bureaucrats doing what they are paid to do."

There is no reason for men such as Bailey to depend on even one penny of charity.

His medical treatment and the means for a decent standard of living are his right. The agencies we created for this purpose should be taking care of it.

If men such as Bailey have to depend on the generosity of strangers who are touched by their problems, then we are back to the time when disabled veterans survived by going out on the street and selling apples, or pencils.

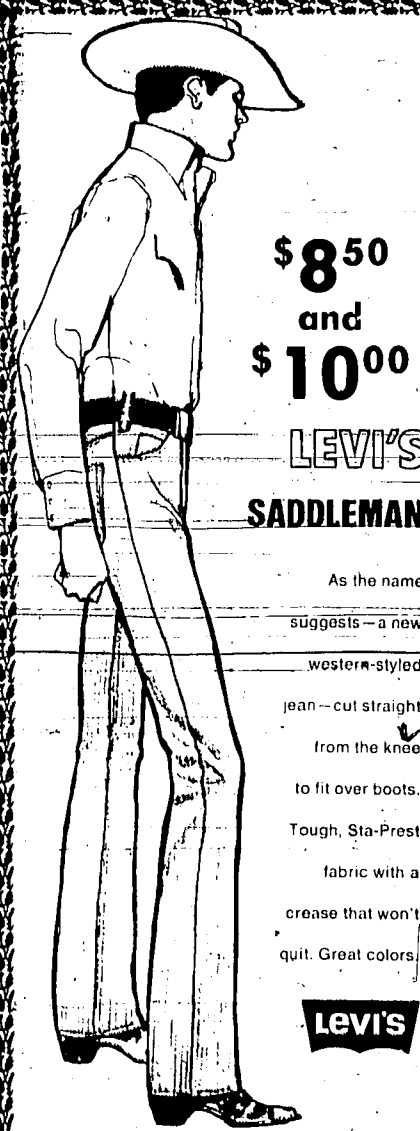

Most of us pay income taxes. Some of us kick in a fairly thick slice of our paychecks. We of the United States to get bureaucrats doing what they are paid to do.

Yet, disabled veterans and so many other afflicted people are treated by governmental agencies as if they are, indeed, charity cases. You would think that some of these paper-shufflers were handing out their own money, instead of ours.

That's one of the reasons I've always avoided the popular journalistic practice of launching annual Christmas do-good campaigns.

They are easy enough to do. All that is needed is somebody who is really down and out, and

Senate OK's pennies of aluminum

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted today to allow the U.S. Treasury to begin making pennies out of aluminum if it wishes. The bill, sent to the House by voice vote with only three senators on the floor, would allow the Secretary of the Treasury to determine when the copper one-cent piece "is no longer practicable."

Crippled girl found in coop

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A crippled orphan girl from Mexico who was forced to spend her days in a chicken coop, underwent the first round of surgery Friday that will allow her to walk for the first time in her life.

Doctors operated four hours on the left foot of Rosalia Avila, 12, born with club feet and discovered crawling and scratching in a chicken coop at a remote farm near Guadalajara more than a year ago.

Surgery on her other foot was postponed for three weeks after damage to the right foot proved more extensive than X-rays had shown, doctors at California College of Podiatry said.

Doctors hope that being able to stand erect like other people will cure Rosalia of her emotional infamy, which they say apparently was caused by her having crawled all her life.

"She thinks like a baby because she had to crawl so long," a hospital spokesman said. "Doctors believe she can be cured emotionally when she can stand up."

The girl was abandoned by her parents as an infant, but was kept by a family with a small farm near the Mexican town of La Piedad. But her foster parents could not care for her during the daytime hours and put her in a chicken coop with the chickens.

She was found there by Sister Bravo, a 72-year old Mexican woman who had lived in San Jose, Calif., most of her life but retired to Mexico.

Sister Bravo used her U.S. Social Security check to take care of 40 youngsters in an orphanage she founded with help of friends in the San Jose area.

Her friends arranged to bring Rosalia to San Francisco for the operation by Dr. Thomas Sgarlato.

Rosalia will spend the Christmas holidays with a San Jose family before undergoing further surgery. Doctors say she should be able to return to Mexico and begin walking by her 13th birthday next June.

Lock trunks

TWIN FALLS — Christmas shoppers have been urged by city police to protect their purchases while shopping by locking them in the trunks of their automobiles.

Twin Falls Police Capt. Tim Qualls said a number of automobile burglaries have occurred recently in which packages visible through car windows have been taken even though the car is locked.

"This is a big temptation," Qualls said, "and burglars take advantage of this time of year to gain valuable appliances and other items in this manner."

Valley Comment

Question: Are you really concerned about the energy crisis? What are you doing about it?

Jane Fields, Jerome:

"Yes! We've tried to keep our heat down . . . We shut our lights off and stuff like that as much as we can."

Wayne Hogue, Murtaugh:
"Yes, I am because I'm a farmer and it could cause lots of troubles."

"Well, I've cut down lots of trips and we're trying to conserve every way we can. We only take necessary trips anymore."

Ken Johnson, Murtaugh:

"Yes, I think everybody's really concerned. I don't think I've really done any (conserving) because I'm pretty conservative anyway. I just try to take it easy on everything."

Wyoma Grandjean, Twin Falls:

"Yes, I am. We stay home more. We've done a little more insulating on our home. Turn off more lights. Keep our thermostat a little lower. I think that if everyone will cooperate we'll make it through this thing without a real crisis, but everybody's got to do it, not just a few."

Pat Green, Twin Falls:

"Definitely. Staying home a lot, mostly. There's not much else a guy can do to help out . . . I think it will (get worse) until somebody does something about it . . . I really don't know what they can do."

Tamzy Webb, Twin Falls:

"I am, definitely. I worry about it. I read everything I can get my hands on. I don't know any solutions to it. I've cut my own thermostat down. I keep my drapes drawn and I've put weather stripping around the door."

Christmas does not have to be a season of expensive gifts that will sit on a shelf after they are unwrapped.

There are a wide range of items and ingredients which stimulate the creativity and enable the recipients to spend many pleasurable hours assembling them.

Here are a few suggestions for presents that generate fun.

Almost everyone enjoys plants, so why not let friends grow their own? A good many of the cooking-flavoring herbs grow well at home. Couple the seeds with a sack of potting soil, a bottle of fertilizer, some planters and a hand sprayer. The sprayer can be bought cheaper in hardware stores and is essential for refreshing plants, cleaning their leaves so they can breathe and watering delicate sprouts.

A gift package might include: eight small clay planters (80 cents), a five-pound sack of potting soil (59 cents), four packs of seeds (35 cents a pack — try dwarf marigolds, rosemary, sage, camomile or basil), a bottle of fish fertilizer (59 cents, optional), a package of 12 peat moss flower pots (59 cents) and a small hand sprayer (about 98 cents). The package totals around $5.

Men are catching up with women in decking themselves with jewelry. It's cheaper, more fun and more creative to make your own jewelry. Ring pieces, beads (glass, wood, ceramic, plastic), threads of all sorts of thicknesses for stringing beads and semiprecious stones — turquoise, coral and amber.

A good package would include a ring base (60 cents), four stones for the ring (2 cents each), a brooch base (59 cents), a cameo (98 cents), three dozen medium-sized wooden beads (20 cents a dozen), 1 dozen small glass beads (2 cents each), to string with the wooden beads), a piece of threading string and a small necklace clasp (about 20 cents). Total cost is around $3.60.

Anyone can appreciate a pleasant fragrance wafting subtle and cool, or just a pleasurable way to cover stale odors. But please, not the horrible manufactured strawberry-coconut scented mass-produced cones of uncertain odors. Incense is a thing in itself; frankincense, mastic and sandarac are resins that exude from a tree. Each can be burned by itself as incense or in a compound mixture of two, or as a formula incense, a specific mixture of resins, herbs and spices.

Choose several ounces of resins and herbs and let your friends mix the scents to their own liking. Dragon's Blood (very heavy) and Ambrette seed (very expensive) are two of my all-time favorites to burn. I recommend a package of a half-ounce of Ditanny (35 cents), a half-ounce Grain of Paradise (40 cents, and these seeds will have to be crushed before burning to emit their fragrance), an ounce of Balm of Gilead (70 cents), an ounce of mastic ($1.25) and an ounce of sandalwood (75 cents, chips preferably, and you probably didn't know sandalwood is the bark of a tree, the use of which dates back to the 5th century B.C.). Add three packages of charcoals (3) to burn—the mixtures on, but place the hot charcoals on a metal surface since the heat will crack glass and burn through wood. Total gift price is about $4.45.

Everywhere you look sequins and rhinestones are sewn on jackets, shirts and pants pockets, along with embroidered designs and patches. For half a handful of rhinestones, a shirt price goes up $10 in a store. For a small mushroom embroidered on a pair of $8 jeans, you will pay $18. Do it yourself. Get a package or two packs of rhinestones in contrasting colors ($1.50 per gross with backs included), two strands of sequins (60 cents per strand of 1,000 or 30 cents a scoop), a plain mesh-backed rose applique (1.50, which can be filled in with sequins) and several skeins of embroidery thread (10 cents each at five-and-tens and sewing centers in large department stores). Total cost of the gift is around $6. Remember to buy the snap-on rhinestones since they are much easier and faster to apply than the sew-on type, unless you are working with very heavy fabric.

An old Chinese recipe for tea reads "when teas taste best: when one's heart and hands are idle, when one's thoughts are disturbed, when shut up in one's home all day, when charming friends visit, in a quiet secluded room with old photos, antiques, mementos and sweet memories. When teas are least appreciated: art work. Watching a play. Opening letters. During stormy weather. Going through documents. On busy days.

There is a time, though, when we all enjoy a cup of hot fragrant tea.

Yellow Pine provides 'perfect life-style'

YELLOW PINE, Idaho (UPI) — They can't grow bananas and papayas here like they did in tropical Samoa, but schoolteachers Mary Anne and Richard Miller think this tiny mountain outpost in Idaho's primitive area has one similar advantage — peace and quiet.

In search of the perfect life-style, the Millers have traveled 60,000 miles in four years, first moving to Samoa to teach in a community college, sampling life in Australia and New Zealand and Europe, then calling home Yellow Pine, Idaho, population 35.

"Our families couldn't understand why we wanted a life of traveling," said Mrs. Miller, 31, mother of three young daughters.

"But they realized it has some advantages," one being able to get away from crowded New Jersey. Their home was Middletown Township, N.J.

"We always wanted to see as much of the world as we could," she said. "We heard about Idaho from people we met in Samoa. It sounded remote and mountainous — those were things we were looking for." In fact, there isn't even a telephone in this community 120 miles northeast of Boise.

One important drawing point for the Millers here was an old one room schoolhouse. And grade school students needed a teacher.

The Millers left behind memories of Australia and New Zealand and decided to explore America for a home. They traveled to Idaho last summer and inquired about teaching jobs in the McCall School District, which includes Yellow Pine. But the school here had been closed due to a shortage of students.

Not taking any jobs, the Millers traveled east through Canada and went to Europe. Finding it crowded and changed, they came back.

By September, enough students were found in Yellow Pine, but they didn't have a teacher. Miller contacted Superintendent Steve Wilson, heard of the opening and took the job.

"The idea of a one room school challenged Dick," his wife said. "He is teaching eight elementary student, including our daughters, Charmaine, 8 and Michelle, 7." Their third daughter, Alicia, is 3.

Historian sees 'oral history'

DALLAS (UPI) — If Dr. Ron Davis has his way, an historian in 1993 will be able to select a tape recording, punch a few buttons and hear Bob Hope talking about soft-shoeing his way down Broadway.

"Hearing historical accounts first hand is a powerful experience," said Davis, an historian at Southern Methodist University.

His plans, which now need only federal funding, would set up a national depository for the oral history of American popular culture at SMU. It would feature toe tappers, banjo strummers, and pie throwers of vaudeville, burlesque and radio.

"Oral history is by no means a definitive source. What you get in oral history is a very personalized look," Davis said.

He said he wants to tape not only the headliners and the top bananas, but the chorus girls and the makeup men and the set builders.

"My theory is that they may have more to tell you," he said.

Davis said the $75,000 he hopes to get in federal funds would pay for travel to New York, Los Angeles, Miami, Phoenix and other towns where the entertainers are kind of clustered.

"My feeling is that we will not attempt to interview people under 65 years old," he said. "Davis said the SMU oral history archives would not include jazz figures, or motion picture personalities, since UCLA and Tulane already have taken over those fields."

Davis, who will handle most of the interviews along with graduate students, said he foresees a possible problem trying to get well-known entertainers to slip off their public "masks."

"One problem is that people who have been in the theater and in show business have been interviewed a number of times and are programmed to bland responses and press agency answers," he said.

"So many times people in the public eye after 30 years begin to take their press coverage serious, and have trouble deciding where the star ends and where the honest individual begins."

He said the age group he is after will probably be the most cooperative.

"I have a feeling that age will probably mellow them."

He said the entertainers would be given complete censorship rights over the interview, and "if they want to put the tapes under lock and key for 10 or 20 years or until their death, we will make that part of the agreement."

Davis said the idea grew out of an oral history seminar last year at SMU in the Depression years.

Graduate students, using tape recorders, rounded up interviews with farmers, migrants, assembly line workers and others who lived in the 1930's.

"It worked so well we are still finding we have material that needs to be finished up," he said.

In the oral history library, a secretary would transcribe all the tapes to writing, which would make research more efficient.

"But the tapes will always be preserved," he said.

BARBS

Just think—a whole new year upcoming to get further behind in the bills.

There's an awful lot of hot air about the energy shortage. Why can't we harness it?

Now is the time for all small countries to begin implementing their New Year's revolutions.

VA hits new low in reply

Editor's note: President Nixon has ordered the VA to take action in this case, after seeing Royko's story in a Chicago paper. We print his original story here because of its general interest.

By MIKE ROYKO

(c) Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — Leroy Bailey had just turned 26. He was one of seven kids from a broken family in Maine. He had been in the infantry in Vietnam only one month.

Then the rocket tore through the roof of his tent while he was sleeping and exploded in his face.

He was alive when the medics pulled him out. But he was blind. And his face was gone. It's the simplest way to describe it: he no longer had a face.

That was in the spring of 1968. He went to an army hospital, was discharged and shipped to Hines VA Hospital, west of Chicago.

After three years and much surgery, they told him there was little more they could do for him. He still had no face.

Now Bailey spends most his life in the basement of his brother's home in La Grange, Ill. The brother moved here from the East to be near him while he was hospitalized.

He knits wool hats, which a friend sells for him. He listens to the radio or to a tape player.

Because of his terrible wound, most of the goals and pleasures of men his age will always be denied him.

But there is one thing he would like to be able to do some day. It isn't much, "because most of us take it for granted. He would like to eat solid foods.

Since 1968, he has eaten nothing but liquids. He uses a large syringe to squirt liquid foods down his throat.

Last year, through some friends of his brother he met a doctor who specializes in facial surgery.

The doctor, Charles Janda of Oak Brook, Ill., said he believed he could reconstruct Bailey's face so that he could eat solid foods.

But it would require a series of at least six separate operations, possibly more. Bailey eagerly agreed, and the first operation was performed at Mercy Hospital here.

Then Janda and the hospital sent their bills to the Veterans Administration.

They did this because Bailey and his brother were under the impression that the VA would pay for any treatment he needed that wasn't available in the VA.

The VA refuses to pay the bills. The reason was explained in a remarkable letter sent to Bailey by a VA official.

"Dear Mr. Bailey:

Reference is made to the enclosed invoice for services given to you for selective plastic surgery done on Sept. 22, 1972.

It is regretted that payments on the above cannot be approved, since the treatment was for a condition other than that of your service-connected disability.

"Outpatient treatment and/or medication may only be authorized for the treatment of a disability which has been adjudicated by the Veterans Administration as incurred in or aggravated by military service.

"Any expense involved for this condition must be a personal transaction between you and the doctor."

It is astonishing, I know, but the VA actually told him that he was being treated for something "other than that of your service-connected disability."

I can't even begin to comprehend what they can be talking about. Until he was hit by a rocket, he had teeth. Now he has none. He had eyes. Now he has none. He had a nose. Now he has none. People could look at him. Now most of them turn away.

So how can this surgery be for anything else but his "service-connected disability?"

The medical report uses such language as "scars, disfiguring . . . exceptional repugnant deformity . . . entire midface is missing . . . massive facial injury."

Bailey believes that the VA thinks he wants the surgery just to look better, that it is "cosmetic" surgery.

Even if that were so, then why in the hell not? If we can afford $5 million to make the San Clemente property prettier, we can do whatever is humanly possible for this man's face.

But Bailey insists it isn't his appearance that concerns him. He knows it will never be normal.

He explains his feelings in an appeal he filed months ago with the VA:

"The only thing I am asking for is the ability to chew and swallow my food."

"This was the purpose for the whole series of painful and unsuccessful operations I underwent in Hines hospital between the day of my injury on May 6, 1968, and my eventual discharge from the hospital in 1971.

"At the time, I was told the very depressing news that nothing further could be done.

"I will never be able to accept this decision . . ."

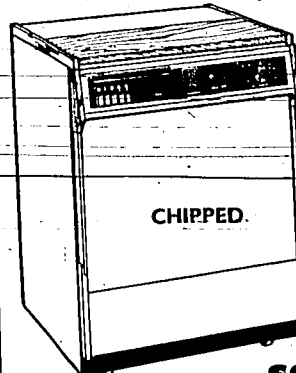

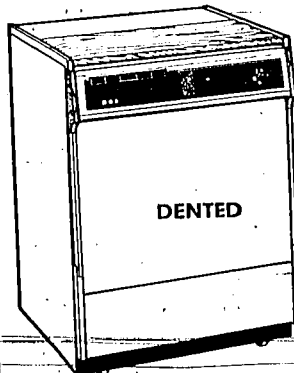

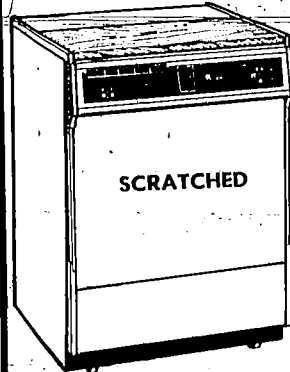

In some bureaucrat's file cabinet is Bailey's appeal. It has been there for many months.

Every day that it sits there, Bailey takes his syringe and squirts liquid nourishment down his throat.

If his appeal is turned down, he will spend the rest of his life doing that. Not even once will he be able to sit down at eat at the dinner table with his brother's family before going back down to the basement to knit hats.

If You Haven't Seen Mexico You Just Haven't Lived

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER

It's only a few hours by jet from Magic Valley to central Mexico — but it is a world apart in time.

And when the big Hughes Airwest DC-9-30 jet takes off from the Twin Falls City-County Airport the morning of Feb. 16 it will have aboard a group of Magic Valley citizens leaving winter here in Idaho and heading for summertime in Old Mexico.

It makes no difference if members of the annual "Magic" tour sponsored by the Times-News have been to Mexico before or if they are on their first visit, it's bound to be enjoyable. With cooperation of the newspaper, Magic Carpet Travels, Hughes Airwest and Western Airlines, the traveler just can't miss having the time of times.

A trip to Mexico is always an exciting adventure. We have been there many times in the last several years and have "covered" the country between the border of the United States and Mexico City as well as the area stretching from the Gulf of California to the plush seacoast resorts further south, then across the area to the Yucatan and the Isle of Cozumel, warmed by the waters of the Caribbean.

Every bit of the way is different. The sights are different, the customs are different and the feeling is different. But throughout all of Mexico the friendly residents prevail and this is what is really remembered.

From Twin Falls, by way of Los Angeles, the local tour members will arrive in Mexico City the same afternoon of the day they leave the snow and winter behind.

And Mexico City! What a place to visit and to explore and to enjoy.

Above all it's a "city." It offers everything found in any other big city of the world — and yet it is a city apart. The tall, and modern hotels and office buildings vie with the ancient churches and the museums for attention. Then, of course, there are the bull fights and that entertainment of all entertainments, the Ballet Folklorico at the Palace of Fine Arts. It's a performance right out of this world.

And the Paseo de la Reforma, the Main Street of Mexico City. It fits in with any other famed boulevard of any city in the world. But it has one thing no other city has — Mexican taxis. Thousands of them and all of them in a hurry. And if you want to ride cheap, catch the cab where the driver is holding up one finger. He signals that for one Peso (about 8 cents) he'll take you down as far as the Avenue goes. Of course, you might have several others in the crowded — and always old taxi (that's why it's cheap) but that adds to the excitement. Believe me, there's never a dull moment.

And outside Mexico City are the fabulous and mysterious Pyramids of the Sun and the Moon at Teotihuacan. Who put them there? Why did the people desert them? Answers are not to be had.

Back in the City the Shrine of Gaudalupe, where the peasant boy saw the Virgin Mary, is a must to see. Devout people? You'll see people crawling on their knees across the stone courtyard to the Church as they seek their God and his forgiveness.

In a few days the scene shifts, by jet again, to Guadalajara, Mexico's second largest city and as different from Mexico City as day is from night. It is a manufacturing area and shopping in the great stores — and also the native markets — is something no traveler will fail to take in.

And not many miles away is Lake Chapala, a great body of water where hundreds of retired United States citizens now make their home. Nearby, too, are the villages of Ajijic and Jocotepec which will also be visited.

Guadalajara is a mile-high city, the weather is warm and while it will be cold back in Magic Valley the temperature there will be a normal "winter" 75 above.

Then by modern bus to the famed Pacific Coast town of Manzanillo where the great cruise ships drop anchor and where golden sand beaches stretch in all directions. Three nights "on the beach" and then by bus again to Guadalajara's modern airport where a Hughes Airwest jet will be waiting to transport tour members back to the United States through Phoenix. And from there to Salt Lake City and on to Twin Falls. On the beach at Manzanillo in the morning and in the terminal building at Joslin Field that same night just before 10 p.m.

Fantastic? Yes, it really is. By cooperation all around, the tour for 1974 is being offered at $575 per person, double occupancy. Signups are now under way and with a limited number of reservations available, we would suggest you really get things moving.

How? Just drop a line to Magic Carpet Travels in Twin Falls or Burley. Tell them you want details of the trip (there's no obligation, of course) and everything will be mailed to you. Better yet, drop into either office and pick up the material yourself.

The 1974 tour — departing Twin Falls Feb. 16 and returning Feb. 26 — will find Joe Salisbury, owner of Magic Carpet, as host.

As Mr. Salisbury says: "Book early because plans work better and pleasure lasts longer if you do."

To which we add: "If Mexico is your destination you just can't help having a wonderful time. Betty and I have been there several times and recommend it. We really mean that!"

Serpent Heads

RETURN TO history is one of the outstanding reasons for a visit to Old Mexico. Members of the February Times-News tour will tread the same walk from which this picture was taken, showing temple balustrades studded with serpent's heads at the Pyramids.

A Famed Avenue

MODERN BUILDINGS line Mexico City's famed Paseo de la Reforma. Buses and taxis vie for attention of natives and visitors alike as they dart up and down the thoroughfare. Here, too, are found many of the city's fine shops.

Four On Guard

WHAT HAVE THEY gazed at these hundreds of years? Like four sentinels on guard, these images carved by Indians civilized long before the Spaniards arrived are typical of many of Mexico's historical areas.

New TF planner begins in '74

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "The one primary objective in planning is to contain growth."

David Richey is the newly-appointed professional planner for the Twin Falls Joint City-County Planning Council. The council itself is still in its embryonic stage, its by-laws and articles of agreement yet to be ratified by the city council and the county commissioners.

As the chief planning expert for the joint planning council, Richey will head a staff charged with drawing up a comprehensive land use plan for Twin Falls city and county. His recommendations to Twin Falls' elected officials will play an important part, probably the most important part, in determining the appearance and functional efficiency of Twin Falls a decade from now.

A graduate of Idaho State University with a BS in architecture, Richey has spent several years in both private and public planning in Oregon, Nevada and Idaho. He is currently employed as a planner by Tudor Engineering Co., Boise.

Shortly after the first of the year, Richey will set up his office in Twin Falls and begin putting together a planning staff. Right now he is looking for a house in Twin Falls for himself, his wife, Nancy, his son, Shawn and his daughters, Christenna and Carrien.

Richey emphasizes that the most important function of planning is to prevent urban sprawl, the spread out, unconnected subdivisions that planners term "leapfrogging." He also emphasizes the necessity of preserving agricultural land. Twin Falls, he says, is "not too bad yet" from a planner's point of view.

"We've got a problem started; there's no question about it, but, really, it hasn't gone completely out of control as it did in Boise. Now in Boise it only took three years for the thing to be a total mess."

Richey's argument against urban sprawl is that not only is it ugly, it is also expensive.

"If they can't contain growth, the taxpayers can expect to pay larger amounts of money year after year to provide services and maintenance . . . as the result of these sprawled out developments," he says. "So, for the taxpayers benefit, if he wants to keep the change in his pocket, he better make sure that the City of Twin Falls and the other communities in the county grow in a natural, uniform expansion.

"It will amount, I suppose, to one landowner at a time being able to develop his land — and the others are going to have to wait . . . In the past we've always had the feeling that farmland was a reserve for future urban growth. That shouldn't be the case anymore. I think we're going to have to start looking at the scablands for urban growth and preserve our agricultural land. Agricultural lands could be the finest and most expensive land there is, just for purposes of survival alone. So, that's why preservation of farmland is a valid consideration.

"Times are changing so rapidly now that the attitudes that we had even 10 years ago sound old anymore, and I think we're going to have to make some efforts to preserve the good farmland. Now, in and among good farmland there are poor areas . . . that's where the housing should go. The order to subdivide, he has to make considerable investment, and without the protection of planning, he may find himself going bankrupt.

Estimating that a subdivider needs to sell three-fourths of his lots in order to break even on his own investment, Richey says that without planning a developer often finds competition from other subdividers bleeding his profit margin, or even causing him to take a loss.

Boise, you can't tell (where the city ends and the farmlands begin) because you've got farmlands interspersed with urban developments . . . so that the whole thing is a mishmash of agricultural crops and urban (residences) . . .

Where once a farmer could spray his crops without worrying about making the neighbor kids sick . . . or if his irrigation water got loose from him a little bit, it didn't flood somebody's basement, but now you've got these potential conflicts throughout the whole county. The people living in the one-acre ranchettes . . . are so spread throughout the agricultural community that they are in danger of being in continual lawsuits with the farmer.

"In Twin Falls County, at least," he says, "the urban area is distinguishably separated from the agricultural area, so you only have a limited amount of fringe areas where the conflicts can occur."

On the controversy over the Snake River Canyon and the development of the canyon rim, Richey says that the canyon could well be the central landmark identifying Twin Falls, but he argues that the development or preservation of the canyon and the rim will depend upon its importance to the citizens of the community.

Also, without regulation of land use, a subdivider may begin preparing his property only to find that a stockyard or some other undesirable business has been put on property adjacent to his own, Richey warns, causing a drastic depreciation in the subdivider's property values.

"So, for everyone to have the maximum control over their economic future, I think they need to support planning and then the regulatory ordinances that develop from it," he says.

Richey points to Ada County and the Boise area as an example of the evils of a lack of planning.

"In the Ada County area,

Evel Knievel couldn't jump the canyon if . . .

problem there is designing sanitation, so somehow or other, you've got to find the right uses for the land, and the land that is more suited for agricultural land can't be replaced, if it's the best land it's the best land, so you need to put the urban growth elsewhere. You have to do that."

Richey says his job as a planner "is to look into those things relative to the quality of living . . . You can't attach a dollar value to these things." And developers and environmentalists can "find a middle ground and attempt to accomplish both ends (growth and preservation of natural beauty, I think everyone will stand to gain."

A landowner who is opposed to planning, who doesn't want any restrictions placed on the use of his land, is "his own worst enemy," Richey says. He says a landowner who wants to subdivide his land needs the regulation and restrictions which come out of planning to which come out of planning to protect his investment just as fully as the taxpayer needs planning to protect him from sprawling growth.

"We're past the age of just taking a piece of land, putting a few stakes on it to identify property corners and selling it raw. You've got to make some improvements," he says.

Since the developer has to make improvements in streets, sewers and other facilities in "Ultimately, the determining factor is going to be the fact that we're governed by a majority rule situation, and if the majority determines that it's essential to preserve the canyon rim as agricultural land then that would be the way it would have to go . . . These are considerations that have to be weighed in terms of existing community values, and I don't know what those values are yet . . . Perhaps the community goals will have been established relative to the canyon-rim before I really get my feet wet and that's okay, for me it will become an accepted fact."

The Gossip Column

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: Recently you wrote about Johnny Carson's wives. But can you just answer a simple question. Is he or is he not a nice guy off camera? — K. E., Seattle, Wash.

A: Opinions vary about Johnny-as-nice-not-a-nice guy. Buddy Hackett, Alan King, Skitch Henderson, Dick Cavett, Al Capp, Woody Allen, Joan Rivers — all sing Johnny's praises and say he is mild-mannered and seldom loses his temper. But Johnny is a bad drinker. He got himself banned from Jilly's nightclub in New York when he pinched some tough guy's girl in the funny. Johnny is said to be ruthless with business associates, demanding Ed McMahon not get too many laughs and asking for unwavering loyalty from all his people while seldom giving any warmth in return.

Q: Who are the major arms dealers of the world? — N. F., New Haven, Conn.

A: The U.S. and Russia lead, with France third in the export of lethal armaments. French sales account for $1 billion 200 million but the British are coming up hard on France's heels. Their 16,500-ton ship, Tarbatness, nicknamed "The Cruise Ship for the Merchants of Death," travels all over the world with a display showroom of missiles, tanks and other military hardware. Foreign visitors can inspect the goods and make decisions to buy in luxurious conference rooms on board. The British have thus nearly doubled their arms exports and they give Tarbatness credit.

Q: Are the CIA and the FBI simply out of hand in this country? For instance, what does it cost us to run the Central Intelligence Agency? — N. E., Grosse Point, Mich.

A: J. Edgar Hoover kept the FBI in line to a surprisingly conservative degree, but many people feel the CIA has burgeoned beyond necessity. In 1973, Sen. William Proxmire — unable to get all the data — stated that the CIA employs at least 148,000 persons and spends 6.2 billion a year. But his figures are thought to be low and some experts think secret undercover work, aerial intelligence, etc., costs us as much as $10 billion a year.

Q: How does Margaret Truman Daniel like being back in Washington, D. C. — H.H., Baton Rouge, La.

A: She doesn't. The Daniels moved back with their four sons when Clifton was made New York Times Washington Bureau Chief. Margaret says,

MRS. DANIEL

14 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho Sunday, December 16, 1973

JOHNNY CARSON

... nonsensical of opinion

"I have never liked the place. It's like a small country town where everyone knows everyone else's business. Washington is only exciting for diplomats, politicians and journalists, and I'm none of these."

Q: Am I correct in suspecting that there is no love lost between Sally Quinn and Hughes Rudd and that that's one of the problems of their morning TV show? — W. Z., Port Washington N. Y.

A: Right you are. Sally and Hughes have never established any rapport either on or off camera. Sally has also been standoffish with the show's staff, and Rudd just tends to clear out as soon as the program is over. CBS execs are predicting privately that the end is in sight.

Q: I read about Holly Woodlawn's troubles with the bottle, but what I don't understand is how this Andy Warhol superstar could have been so poor that she needed to go on welfare. — E. L., New York, N. Y.

A: According to Holly, all Andy paid her for starring in his successful movie "Trash" was a great big $150, and knowing Andy we're inclined to believe her. The world-famous transvestite says that all she has left to her name is an $8,000 gorilla coat "given to me by a very well-known male star whose name I will never reveal."

Q: For some time now we've seen no photographs of that extraordinary black model who was an African princess. Could you tell us please what she's doing? — G. V., Brooklyn N. Y.

A: You must mean Princess Elizabeth of Toru, the sister of one of the Kings of Uganda. For a while she dropped out of modeling to work as a roving ambassador for President Idi Amin of Uganda. Elizabeth's thankless job was to try to counteract the terrible publicity Amin was getting for the massacres of an estimated 80,000 Ugandans in various power struggles. Elizabeth, last seen at the United Nations, has now disappeared. Friends fear that she is in prison in Uganda or worse, since one of her last acts before she vanished was to try to get some close relatives out of the country.

Q: I don't hear much about Shirley MacLaine anymore. Has she retired? — E. P., Ft. Worth, Tex.

A: Shirley is far from retired. She has just finished her second autobiographical book and is editing a 90-minute film on her trip to Communist China. Shirley also devotes time to assisting with grants and promotions for filmmakers. Recently at National Film Day in Pittsburgh, she was annoyed by a reporter who asked, "What cause are you pushing this week?" Shirley is still romantically involved with reporter Pete Hamill.

PEGGY LEE

Q: Is it true that Peggy Lee had a heart attack? — D. L., Los Angeles, Calif.

A: Not exactly. Ms. Lee did collapse in London and was rushed to the hospital but was released in 24 hours. The 53-year-old singer lost an enormous amount of weight in the last three months and that put a slight strain on her heart.

Q: How much do those paparazzi photographers get for their special pictures? Is it worth the scramble? — J. E., Tampa, Fla.

It sure is one publication recently paid $3,000 for a photo of Elizabeth Taylor kissing Henri Wynberg, her new boyfriend. Nude pictures of Jackie and Ari Onassis (separately) were worth even more to the focus-pocus lensmen who took them.

Q: I read in a movie magazine that Elliott Gould and Barbra Streisand are bitter enemies and she won't even let him see their son, Jason. Is that true? — T. E., Massapequa, L. I.

A: Not true. Divorced they are, but friendly they're not. In fact Streisand says she likes to make movies with her ex-husband. They may do "The Merry Widow" together for Ingmar Bergman.

Q: I wish the late, great gospel singer Mahalia Jackson could be memorialized with a stamp the way George Gershwin was this year. How does one go about suggesting such a thing? — G. J., Memphis, Tenn.

A: Subjects for commemorative stamps are decided on by the Postmaster General and the Citizens' Stamp Advisory Committee. Experts in the arts, history, philately and business. Stamps honoring individuals are usually issued on significant anniversaries of their birth. The Gershwin stamp was timed to coincide with what would have been his 75th birthday. Since Mahalia Jackson was born in 1911, it will be awhile before a "significant anniversary" rolls around, but if you want to start your campaign, write: Postmaster General, U. S. Postal Service, Washington, D. C., 20260.

Robin Adams Sloan welcomes questions from readers. While Sloan cannot provide individual answers, questions of general interest will be used in the column. Write to Robin Adams Sloan, care of this newspaper.

Q: Would you satisfy my curiosity and tell me about Elizabeth Taylor's oldest daughter, Liza Todd? How old is she and where does she go to school? — G. McD., Aurora, Colo.

A: Liza is 16, beautiful and very mature looking for her age. She goes to Heathfield, a fancy English school for girls. We hear she has a crush on Helmut Berger, an Austrian actor who co-starred with Elizabeth in her new movie, "Ash Wednesday." Liza has an enormous collection of pictures of Helmut and Mama isn't too happy about that. Among other things, the actor is 29.

LIZA TODD AND MOTHER

... Mama isn't too happy

HEDY LAMARR

... has new love affair

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Whatever happened to Hedy Lamarr?

The 59-year-old actress hasn't been seen much since her extensive plastic surgery last year. She lives in New York these days because she is very much in the thrall of a new love affair. Hedy is currently living in a maid's room in a Park Avenue apartment.

Q: Is Linda Lovelace, the "Deep Throat" star, in jail? — N. V., Des Moines, Iowa.

A: No, no, a thousand times. The pornography rulings only affected the showing of her film, not the actress. Linda has just made news doing TV ads for the M & J Shoe Company in the Los Angeles area. This stung some smarties on Madison Avenue who desperately wanted her for bigger national products. Adman Jerry Della Femina wanted Linda to endorse Teacher's Scotch. He said, "She's a thought leader. I'm serious. The dream of every American boy is to use Linda Lovelace in an ad."

Q: I am shocked that Soviet dancers signed statements condemning Israel during the recent war. Why would they stoop so low? — B. N., Cleveland, Ohio.

A: They felt they had no choice. The artists were warned they wouldn't be allowed to travel abroad any more if they did not sign the statements. This was revealed in an outburst from ballerina Maya Plisetzkaya, who told an English reporter, "Not one man or woman in 220 million can take a free breath under Soviet rule. Every word here is a lie. I hate them."

Plants don't acclimate

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
HOUSE PLANT CARE:
 We're often asked: "Why is it that my house plants start to lose leaves as soon as I buy them and bring them indoors?"

In most cases this trouble is due to what we call a lack of "adjustment"—or to put it in another way, the plants haven't become "acclimated" in the new environment.

The relative humidity of a greenhouse where the plant was reared is around 60 per cent (rain comes when it's 100 percent.) The air in the home often goes as low as 12 per cent. This is 8 to 11 per cent lower than the average relative humidity in the Sahara Desert in the summertime.

These figures don't imply that it's impossible to grow plants in the home. It means that house plants which grow up in a greenhouse where the air is warm and humid need a little tender treatment until they can adjust to new conditions.

Lugging a plant out of a supermarket out into the cold, and into a cold car can cause leaf drop or yellowing. Some people heave tropical plants in an unheated car while they do extra shopping.

Temperatures of 45 degrees F. can cause damage. Immediate injury may not be apparent, but leaf drop and yellowing may show up later.

Once you bring a plant into your home, "harden" it by gradually subjecting it to less favorable growing conditions such as: (1) Keep it out of direct sunlight, but in a fairly bright window.

(2) Keep it out of drafts of cold air near doors, or near radiators or heat ducts. (3) A cool location near a window or in a cool room is best.

(4) Grow it cool. Turning down the thermostat to save fuel will benefit most of your house plants that like low temperatures at night from 60 to 65 degrees. After the adjustment period, the plants may be moved to a permanent location and given less frequent care.

When it comes to watering a plant, many people are all wet in the way they do it. Soil should be kept uniformly moist, but NOT soggy. Very few plants like "wet feet."

Overwatering or poor drainage causes bottom leaves to turn brown, and top leaves to turn yellow. More house plants are killed by improper watering than any other cause. Don't tease your plants with a thimble full of water.

THE PARSLEY MYSTERY: Some readers who grew their own parsley were surprised to find their tops produced big fat roots, similar to parsnips. How come?

The answer is simple: There is a variety of parsley which produced roots that are boiled and served exactly like parsnips. The variety is Hamburg and this parsnip-rooted parsley has large long tapered roots which can be stored and used all winter.

The leaves are "celery-leaf" type which are useful in salads. If you want a parsley that very finely curled, grow the variety called Perfection. The beautiful emerald-green color holds well in cool weather.

You'll like its upright growth and long stems. There's still time to bring in a pot from outdoors or sow seed. We freeze parsley this way: Wash the stems, and while wet, roll them into a "cigar." Then wrap loosely in aluminum foil and place in your freezer. To use, unwrap, slice off what you want, then rewrap and put back into the freezer.

FREEZING TOMATOES: AN ILLUSTRATED READER WRITES: "I blindly took the advice of one of your readers and froze three large plastic bags of tomatoes. Upon defrosting a few in a tossed salad the consistency of the frozen tomatoes was terrible. Did I ruin three bagsful of tomatoes that my husband worked hard to grow all summer?"

Tomatoes must be frozen quickly and in small bags. Use yours for soups or spaghetti, after all they aren't ruined. We've had excellent results freezing cherry tomatoes.

WINTERING GERANIUMS: Probably the best method for keeping geraniums over winter is to place the potted plants in tubs of peat moss and keep them in the cellar.

Sprinkle a little water on the peat moss—enough to keep the plants over winter. Do not water the plants, but simply keep the peat slightly dampened, since the idea is to barely keep the geraniums alive until spring when they can be cut back and repotted.

BITTERSWEET: People who grow bitter-sweet vine are finding it can be a killer to nearby ornamentals. It grows rampant and will kill small trees or shrubs. The only thing you can do is to cut the plant off at the base and let it grow up again. Don't use a weedkiller on it, as you may also kill the young plants nearby.

To us, a good substitute for bittersweet is the so-called "evergreen bittersweet" (Euonymus radicans vegetus), an evergreen vine that can be trained as a shrub or hedge. It has bright, orange-red berries equally as handsome as the true bittersweet.

As a vine, it will climb masonry walls and buildings. Its berries hold up well in indoor arrangements. Spray your clusters with hair net spray to keep berries from shattering indoors.
