

Christmas

Humble shepherds, tending their flocks by night, harkened to the angels' glorious message of the Savior's birth and came in from the field and found Him asleep in a manger... and they adored Him. Wise men, journeying from the East, followed the Star to Bethlehem seeking the newborn King to bestow on Him their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh... and to worship Him. As we rejoice this Christmas, let us cherish the spiritual rewards of love and friendship, peace and contentment. It is with heartfelt gratitude for your continued confidence, that we extend the season's best wishes.

Yule traditions vary

While little children in the United States hope for the arrival of a jolly old man with eight tiny reindeer, children in some sections of Italy and Russia look for an old woman carrying a broom.

Though the idea of a special Christmas gift bearer is almost universal, the physical appearance of the bearer and the dates on which he or she arrives, vary considerably according to researchers for the World Book Encyclopedia.

In sections of Italy, La Befana brings the Christmas presents. She is an old woman of witchlike appearance who comes on January 5, not Christmas Eve.

One night, three wise men passed her house and invited La Befana to travel with them to find the newly-born Lord. She decided not to go until she had finished her sweeping chores.

When she finally began her journey, intending to bring a present for the Child, the star of Bethlehem no longer lit the way. Now she wanders around the world looking into the faces of sleeping children hoping she will someday find the little Lord.

In Russia, La Befana is called Baboushka. She wanders about Russia on January 6, knocking on each child's pillow as she continues her endless search.

Religious motif remains

BY GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Fads in Christmas cards come and go—but one theme goes on forever. The religious motif. "Christ is still in Christmas, it's that basic," said David Cohen whose business is greeting cards.

"Year after year, the customer will select the Christ Child, the Madonna and Infant, the Three Wise Men..." Cohen believes he has a pretty good pulse on greeting card trends. His family-operated business sells 3.5 million Christmas cards alone each year.

That represents a healthy chunk of the total market. The National Association of Greeting Card Publishers estimates that altogether some three billion Christmas cards will be sent this year.

Cohen's firm, Fifth Avenue Cards, Inc., was founded by his father, Isadore, in 1938 in what the son called a "hole in the wall on Fifth Avenue."

Now three of the second generation have joined their father in the business—Irvig as president, Sheldon as vice-president in charge of franchising operations, and David, vice-president of store operations. The stores now number 60, stretching from Burlington, Vt. to Fort Worth, Tex.

"I've been watching trends since I was a kid and would drop into the shop after school," said Cohen in an interview.

"What has happened is not the change in the Christmas favorites, but a gradual increase in card costs. I can recall when the nickel or dime card was the big seller.

New World's First Christmas Symbol

The timber from Columbus' ship, the Santa Maria, was used to build a fort on the coast of Haiti after it was caught on a reef and abandoned.

The shipwreck occurred December 25, 1492, and so the wooden fort was named La Navidad, the Nativity, making it the first symbol of Christmas in the New World.

Hermie Talamantes
Bickel, Twin Falls

Tree origin said shrouded

BONN (UPI) — The origins of the Christmas tree seem to be shrouded in the mist of a pre-historic snowstorm.

In some lands the custom of rallying round a fir tree just seemed to pop up from nowhere, as it did in Switzerland, complete with its own local legend.

Authorities in many European countries point to Germany and say it came from there, although, oddly, some German sources say it did not.

"Contrary to popular belief, the use of Christmas trees did not originate in Germany," says one German brochure on National Christmas traditions.

"Traces of this custom have been found in Rome and Greece, where trees and twigs were decorated at festivals occurring about the same time of year as Christmas."

But many other authoritative sources say "It is generally believed the first Christmas tree was of German origin dating from Boniface, English missionary to Germany in the 8th century, who replaced the sacrifices to Odin's sacred oak by a fir tree adorned in tribute to the Christ Child."

If Boniface was an English missionary, how come the custom is said to be of German origin? The implication is Boniface found the fir adorning Germany's landscape and liked the look of them. They would also be easier to manage than an oak, but that is editorial speculation offered by this writer.

Introduction to England
The Encyclopedia Britannica says: "It is known that the German Prince Albert, soon after his marriage to Queen Victoria, introduced it into England" with that German immigrants brought the custom to America.

Historians and reference works consulted in Sweden and Austria generally agreed the Christmas tree custom was imported from Germany in the late 18th century.

A country that has its own birth of the tree legend is Switzerland.

The Swiss legend says that long ago in the Alpine village of Reckingen a woodcrafter said he could hear a magnificent fir tree singing.

After much haggling with local authorities, the legend goes, he got permission to chop the tree down and carve a statue of the Virgin Mary from it. He did so and when everyone gathered to view his work, Mary opened her mouth and sang...just that once.

Since then, the legend concludes, the Swiss chop down fir trees for Christmas.

(But not just their own any longer. The Swiss today import Christmas trees from Finland for lack of enough of their own to go around.)

The difficulty in pinning down the origin of the Christmas tree custom depends upon how far back in history you want to go — into pre-Christian pagan times.

Many reference works give a nod to the Druids, philosophers of ancient religious cuts in France, Britain and Ireland.

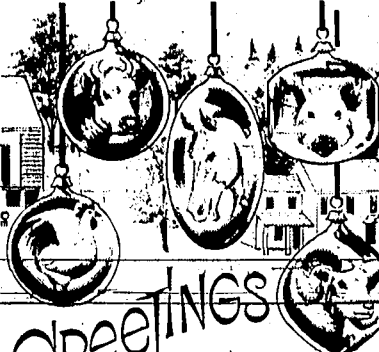

For the year-end feast of Tyr, God of the Sun, War and Justice, the Druids would pile spruce and fir trees atop the handiest hill and fix chicken entrails and fruit to the boughs.

Then they would put a torch to the trees and roll these festive fireballs down the slope, to the glee of the faithful watching for that signal to begin feasting and the drinking of mead.

In the Christian era, though, Germany begins coming on strong in historical records of Christmas tree custom around the 16th or 17th centuries.

Some sources say artisan guilds began setting up small fir trees decked with apples, nuts and paper flowers in the 15th century. Other sources peg the custom to the Alsatian city of Strasbourg, now in France, about 1605.

From that Renaissance Era, at any rate, the custom blossomed into the candle-decked "Tannenbaum" beloved first nationwide, then worldwide, and celebrated in many a carol and poem.

Temporary
seasonal

MOSCOW — If you have a tendency to overspend each year for Christmas gifts, you're certainly not alone. Ralph Benke, University of Idaho, assistant professor of business, credits the "temporary euphoria" of the holiday season with turning normally responsible spenders into yearly overspenders.

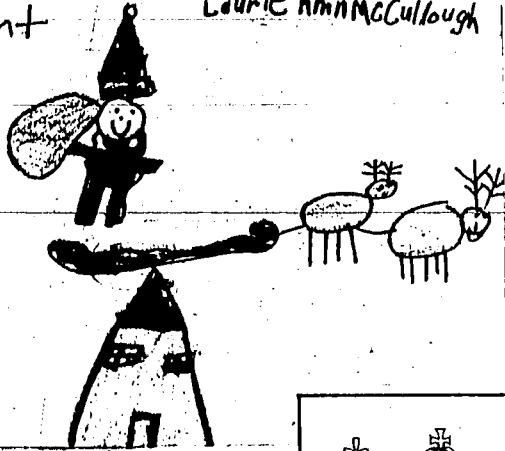

"Everyone gets caught up in the Christmas spirit and loses the ability to manage money properly. This is the season to be jolly and everyone wants to make everyone else happy," he said.

Benke said it is quite common to overspend the planned Christmas budget. The result is a tendency to charge gifts "and the bubble tends to burst rather drastically at the end of January. You can literally find dozens of people who spend the first six months of each year paying off Christmas."

Benke said the key to a Merry Christmas is to start planning four or five months ahead of time.

Bethlehem busy

BETHLEHEM, Ky. (UPI) — Christmas takes on an extra meaning each year for the postmaster in this Kentucky community named for the small town where Christ was born nearly 2,000 years ago. Each Christmas season, Mrs. Ann L. Payton sends out between 45,000-50,000 Christmas cards from her small post office located in her home. And each card is hand stamped with both the town's postmark and a special Christmas postmark depicting the three wise men following the star to Bethlehem.

Santa first 'printed' in 1844

NEW YORK (UPI) — The oldest depiction of Santa Claus as we know him today—furred, suit and cap, boots and backpack—was printed in a New York weekly newspaper in 1844.

The New Mirror's engraving by an unknown artist is captioned "Santa Claus: The Night Before New Year." It also states that the picture was designed expressly for the publication by Sherman & Smith, an engraving company.

The date of the engraving gives lie to the tradition that famed cartoonist Thomas Nast, who often portrayed Santa Claus in the 1860s and 1870s, was the first to picture the "jolly old elf" described by Clement Clark Moore in his popular poem, "A Visit from St. Nicholas."

Since Nast was born in Germany in 1840, he would only have been four at the time of publication of the New Mirror picture. Apparently the engraving was forgotten for more than a century, when a copy turned up in the hands of a private collector.

it's Christmas

Christmas is the bright star that welcomes the Prince of Peace. It is the shining eyes of a child, transported by the magic of the Christmas Story. Christmas is a warmly lighted home where kindly thoughts abide in friendly people. It is the look of wonder on a child's face when the glittering Christmas tree twinkles with colored lights. Christmas is a mighty city lighted up . . . a peaceful village glowing warm against a wintry sky. Christmas is a lighted candle in the window - a gracious welcome to all who pass . . . the weak, the friendless, the tried, the true. May the lights of Christmas and its tender blessings shine in our hearts throughout the coming New Year.

Christmas Tree Roots In German History

The Christmas tree has evolved from German origins to become one of the most universal symbols of the season.

The first Christmas tree is attributed by some to St. Boniface, an English missionary to Germany in the 8th century.

He persuaded his converts to stop placing sacrifices to Odin beneath the sacred oak tree, and instead to adorn small fir trees in their homes in tribute to the Christ Child.

Another story is that the Christmas tree comes from medieval morality plays of the upper Rhine River.

But the most popular account of the modern Christmas tree's origin dates to the 16th century, when Martin Luther was supposed to have introduced the use of candles on the tree.

The story goes that Luther was walking through a forest on Christmas Eve when he was overcome by the beauty of the starlit heavens, the snow-covered landscape and the twinkling frost on the trees.

Rushing home to reproduce the scene for his family, he brought a small fir tree into the house, decorated it with candles to simulate the winter night sky, and called it a Christmas tree.

The tradition gradually spread. It arrived in America with the Hessian soldiers who fought as British mercenaries during the Revolutionary War, and it persisted with the Pennsylvania Germans.

A Living Tree

NEW YORK (UPI) — Are you ecology-minded? If you are, join many other homeowners who are turning to live Christmas trees for the holiday. A live tree is one with roots. You use it for Christmas indoors and then plant it later for enjoyment for years.

Get recommendations from your local nursery on varieties suitable for your area. Some of the more popular choices are Scotch pine, Douglas fir, balsam fir, blue spruce, black spruce and Eastern red cedar. Be sure there is enough room on your grounds to accommodate a growing tree of the kind you select.

Let grocer assist in Yule gift

NEW YORK (UPI) - Want to give a holiday gift of food but don't have the time to brew, bake or concoct it in your kitchen? Let the grocer help.

Many food stores cater to holiday trade by packaging and shipping food gifts on order.

A fruit basket can cost less than you think and makes a magnificent gift. Many grocers will make up a fruit basket to the size and price you specify.

During the holidays the baskets usually have grapefruits, navel oranges, tangerines, pears, yellow and red apples, grapes and bananas. Larger baskets also contain cheeses, fancy cookies, candies, nuts, liver pate and crackers.

If you can afford a higher price tag, the basket might contain also canned hams, imported salamis, preserves, marmalades, fruit cakes. They make a nutritious and fine gift everyone in a family can enjoy.

Glad Christmas Tidings

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you're tired of the uniformity of mass-produced items for Christmas decorations, make your own this Yule. You can pick up most of the material you need from country roads or in abandoned fields.
But, a word of caution: get permission from the property owner to collect if it's private property. And remember that most parks have regulations against taking anything from the property. Collect cones, nuts and seeds, among other things.

JULIE ROBEY
... second grader at Bellevue, daughter of

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the most festive traditions of Christmas each year is the family gathering around a piano or organ to sing old and new carols.

The caroling custom goes back as far as 129 A.D. when the Bishop of Rome instituted the tradition of celebrating the Nativity with songs of Noel.

By the 5th Century in France people were gathering in the village squares to sing some of the same Yule favorites we know today. But the musical accompaniment came from a lute or lyre, two instruments very popular at that time.

Among the carols whose tunes or words were sung then, says the American Music Conference (AMC), was one we know today as "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

The 5th century version of this carol consisted of a dialogue between a Druid and a scholar. Early Christian missionaries adapted the song to include religious subjects: one God; two testaments; three Patriarchs; four Evangelists; five Books of Moses; six Water Vessels at Cana; seven Sacraments; eight Beatitudes; nine Degrees of Angels; Ten Commandments; 11 stars that appeared to Joseph; and 12 apostles.

In Sweden it is still customary to herald in the Christmas season by playing the Advent hymn on trumpets, trombones and kettledrums. This tradition dates back to the second half of the 7th century.

By the 16th century, European nobility were no longer in the habit of singing their own carols. However, they did employ minstrels—also called waits—to play Christmas songs outside the chambers of members of the family. These minstrels normally performed on the shawm, an early oboe.

Keep yule trees fresh

Fresh Christmas trees are easy to find and keep that way with just a few simple steps.

When at a Christmas tree lot, there are three ways to test a tree's freshness. A tree is too dry and you should look for another one if: (1) the needles easily break when gently bent, (2) needles fall off the tree in large numbers when the tree is lifted several inches and the butt end sharply tamped against the ground, or (3) the end is dry instead of wet and sticky.

It is advisable to buy a tree as soon as possible when the selection is best and trees are freshest. This is because a tree can be kept fresh much better at home than on the lot.

When you get home, first make a diagonal cut at the end to open up as large an area of tree stem as possible for sucking up water. Place the tree in water that is deep enough to cover the top of the cut. Then keep the tree in a cool, shady place until you bring it indoors.

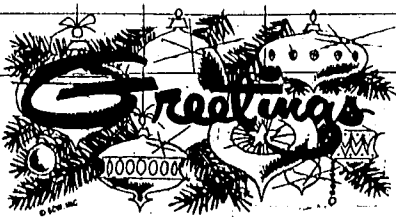

Once inside, make a fresh diagonal cut and put it in a stand with water again covering the top of the cut. It is a good idea to check the water level daily.

Many tree growers recommend that you put a teaspoon of turpentine in the water to dissolve the resin which can seal off the tree's water-absorbing vascular system.

Be very careful that you keep the tree away from heat sources, such as heating ducts or television sets. Evergreens can become combustible when dry.

You should also be very careful if you decide to buy an artificial tree. Look for labels on plastic trees certifying slow burning materials. (And on metallic ones use indirect spot lighting, since lighting hung directly on the tree can cause shocks.

Merry Christmas to all our friends! We hope your holidays abound with happiness.

"It was a massive bomb," an army spokesman said.

Japan emergency declared
TOKYO (UPI) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka proclaimed a state of emergency in Japan Saturday in an effort to tide over an "unprecedented national crisis" created by Arab's oil squeeze and the nation's overheated economy.
The Arab oil embargo hit Japan hardest because it came at a time the country, which must import more than 99.6 percent of the oil need for its economy, was experiencing its worst postwar inflationary rising prices.

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison filed suit Friday charging the candidate who apparently beat him by 2,221 votes in a party runoff had used widespread vote fraud to take the victory.
Garrison said his count showed there were 2,446 more votes cast in the Dec. 15 Democratic runoff in which he faced Harry F. Connick than are registered on the precinct lists.

Mishap kills auto dealer
BURLEY — William Edgar Studdard, 47, Twin Falls, was fatally injured early Saturday morning when he was hit by a truck moments after walking away from another accident.
Studdard, operator of a Twin Falls used car firm, died at Cassia Memorial Hospital about two hours after the accident on Interstate 80N four miles west of Burley.
Idaho State Police Officer DelOn Jones said Studdard was driving west about 5 a.m. and towing a station wagon behind his car. The station wagon apparently came unhooked or slid on the slushy highway, going into the median, Jones said. The station wagon pulled Studdard's car to a stop across the inside lane of the highway.
An unidentified passing motorist apparently stopped to help, Jones said. Studdard flung down a truck and semi-trailer driven by Donald H. Zander, 54, Salem, Ore.
As Studdard crossed the highway to speak to Zander, another truck and semi-trailer, driven by Kenneth Brukey, 61, Sparks, Nev., approached from the east. Jones said Brukey apparently could not stop and his truck collided with the rear of Zander's truck.
The force of the collision shoved that truck forward, striking Studdard, who was standing on the highway in front of the truck.
Studdard was pulled from beneath the trailer of the second truck after the collision. He was taken to the Burley hospital in a Mini-Cassini ambulance.
Neither Zander nor Brukey were injured. (Obituary, p. 2) regretted the failure of Congress to act on the energy legislation but that he understood the difficulty in reaching agreement on complex legislation in the last days of a congressional session.

Nixon pledged to "get on with the job even without having the legislation in place" and said that he hoped to work with Congress "in a spirit of constructive cooperation" to obtain prompt passage of an energy measure early in the new year.
The House adjourned at 2:01 p.m., the Senate at 2:53 p.m.
The end came quietly, in contrast to the stormy session in which the House, early Saturday, killed a modified emergency energy bill that had been stripped of provisions designed to curb windfall profits of the oil industry.
The Senate had approved the bill last night after day-long pressure from the White House and the oil industry to remove the windfall profits section.
Angered at what they considered the Senate's conceded to "big oil," House members rejected the stripped-down bill by a vote of 219 to 34 early Saturday morning.

Then, obviously fearful that they would be blamed for fleeing town without acting to ease the energy crisis, the House refused to adjourn. Back in session again at noon, it was tough and go for a while as to whether another attempt for final adjournment would succeed. It appeared that the House might not be able to establish a quorum, thus forcing a return on Monday. (Continued on p. 7)

Ag aides rehired by Idaho

By DAVID ESPRO
Times-News Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Officials at the University of Idaho College of Agriculture have offered jobs to five former employees who were terminated earlier this year during a "financial exigency" at the college.
The college offered to reinstate the personnel after the board of regents directed it to do so if federal or state funds permitted. The college terminated a total of nine tenured personnel within the Agricultural Research and Cooperative Extension Services programs because of the financial emergency last spring.
Five of the men appealed, and a special university appeals board recommended they be reinstated. University President Ernest Hartung asked the regents in October to accept the appeals board report.
A spokesman at the college said Friday letters offering positions had been mailed to five of the people involved. In addition, two others were given jobs earlier this year.
Department heads notified the personnel of the decisions to reinstate them earlier this month, the spokesman said, and college Dean A. M. Mullins confirmed the reappointments in letters that went out Dec. 14.
Three of the five persons are offered research positions in the Twin Falls area. They include Gene Carpenter and John Kolar agriculture research professors, and Fred Gilbert, an extension specialist in the Twin Falls office. The college spokesman said Gilbert had not yet accepted the offered position, but the others had.

No mistletoe aboard Skylab

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skylab 3 astronauts, determined not to miss holiday festivities, said Saturday they have built a Christmas tree out of odds and ends in the orbiting lab, but they can't find any mistletoe.
Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue, in the 37th day of the three-month flight, said they built a makeshift tree in their voluminous station and are looking for decorations.
"We've still got to trim our tree, but we've got it built now," Carr said.
"I'm afraid to ask what you used," replied ground communicator William Thornton.

minutes. The mood in the closed session was described as much more relaxed and businesslike than the first meeting Friday, when Israel and Egypt engaged in sharp exchanges.
Accordingly, Israeli, Egyptian and American diplomats agreed that the talks were off to a good start, although they cautioned that a permanent settlement remained a long way off. But Israelis and Egyptians used virtually the same language after Saturday's meeting, saying "we have broken the ice."
U. S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, whose diplomacy was instrumental in bringing the Middle East belligerents to the conference table, and who engaged in a round of bilateral talks here, left for Washington Saturday night.
For political and psychological reasons, the foreign ministers of Soviet Union, Egypt, Jordan and Israel and the U. S. secretary of state were anxious to leave the impression that the peace talks would remain in continuous session, even though the first round has concluded.
Apart from agreeing to a military working group on the separation of forces, they said in a communique that more committees would be set up later to deal with other issues.
They also said that their ambassadors to the talks would remain in Geneva although the envoys would have little to do until the military group reached some agreement on how to disengage Israeli and Egyptian troops along a jagged front on both sides of the Suez Canal.
The delegates thus decided in their closed meeting Saturday to move the talks on the troops issue to Geneva from Kilometer 101 on the road from Suez to Cairo. The talks in the desert broke down last month after Egypt accused the Israelis of stalling.

Restoration suspended at Bethlehem church
BETHLEHEM (UPI) — Arab workmen, restoring Bethlehem's Church of the Nativity which stands on the site where Christ was born, put away their tools Saturday and began preparing the church for Christmas Eve services.
An estimated 5,000 pilgrims are expected to throng into "Manger Square" in front of the church on Christmas Eve when the traditional midnight mass is celebrated. The square Saturday was already crowded with tourists who traveled to the city for the Christmas season.
Just before noon, an Arab Muezzin chanted one of the five calls to prayer, traditional each day among the town's Moslem population, and as his shrill voice echoed through the square and over the rolling countryside stretching out below the hilltop town, Christian church bells rang out around the square.
Police hung a white silk screen on the front of a police station near the square.
"That's for the people who can't get inside the church Christmas Eve," a man selling color slides said. "They can watch the mass as it is projected up there by the television cameras."

Terrorist bombs jar London theatre

LONDON (UPI) — Terrorist's bombs exploded in London's jammed entertainment district Saturday night, sending hundreds of Christmas partygoers rushing through the streets, police said. Two persons were injured in the second day of terror bombings in downtown London.
Police said three bombs exploded in three movie houses in London's West End, the city's entertainment center of theaters, restaurants and cabarets.
The explosions were in a movie house complex at the Swiss Center in Wardour Street, the Cinecitta in Pantion Street and Jacey's in Leicester Square, police said.

A police spokesman said a man and woman were reported "slightly" injured in the blasts, believed to be part of the latest terror campaign by the outlawed Irish Republican Army.
Police said all three explosions, described as "minor," were caused by small charges under the seats of movie house. Each blast blew a hole in the floor but caused little other damage, they said.
Mrs. Betty Edwards, 30, an usherette in one of the movie theaters, said: "There was a great flash and a bang and I was knocked sideways," London Fire Brigade said the Swiss Center blast was followed by a fire, which was quickly controlled.

Two persons have died and more than 300 persons wounded in England by the bombings this year.
So far 73 persons have been injured in 18 London bomb explosions since Monday, the last being policeman Det. Brian Phéasant who was wounded earlier Saturday when one of several suspicious packages taken to a South London police station exploded in his hands.

A police spokesman said police received a warning explosives had been planted in the cinema complex and were already clearing the area when the three bombs exploded.
Hundreds of late night moviegoers rushed out of the complex and two other late night movie houses also were emptied, police said. Saturday's night's explosions came as hundreds of Christmas partygoers thronged through Leicester Square, police said.
Police said the latest explosions occurred shortly before midnight—34 hours after three similar bomb blasts injured four persons in downtown London.

TF Jaycees conduct yule shopping tour for needy

TWIN FALLS — Youngsters from needy families were treated to a Christmas shopping tour Saturday by the Twin Falls Jaycees.

The Jaycees annually sponsor the shopping tour for area children, providing them each with new clothing purchased at a discount from local merchants.

According to tour chairman

Ray Abundis, 14 children from four needy families went on the tour this year. The children ranged in age from 1 1/2 to 14.

Washington men charged

HAILEY — Two Washington state men have each been charged with possession of a controlled substance.

According to the Hailey Police Department, Kenneth Ludwig, 25, Seattle, and Robert Bergbladh, 29, Richland, were arrested Saturday morning in Hailey.

Both were being held Saturday afternoon in the Blaine County jail in lieu of $500 bond each.

Arraignment is scheduled for Wednesday in county magistrate court.

The shopping tour began at 8 a.m., Abundis said, with each child selecting about $65 worth of discounted clothing.

Following the shopping tour, the children were taken to the Jaycee hall where Santa Claus presented them with personal gifts donated by merchants and Jay-Cettes served hot chili, milk, oranges and candy.

The Jaycee tour follows the annual door-to-door orange sale by the service club which is used to raise money for the children's clothing and the Christmas party.

Man held in assault case here

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was arrested for assault with a deadly weapon Friday evening after he threatened to shoot a neighbor and then struck him with the gun.

Cliff D. McDowell, 61, was arrested about 7 p.m. by Twin Falls sheriff's deputies after he hit a neighbor during a struggle over the loaded gun. According to Deputy Harold Jensen, McDowell had gone to the neighbor's with a gun to settle a long-standing dispute.

After threatening to shoot the man, McDowell and the neighbor struggled for the gun and the neighbor was hit in the head and cut, Jensen said.

Deputies arrested McDowell a short distance from the neighbor's house after the neighbor called to report the incident. Jensen said a high bond on the assault charge was set to hold McDowell overnight while tempers cooled. Saturday, McDowell was released on his own recognizance pending further action.

In an unrelated case, sheriff's deputies Saturday arrested Boyd Graham, 32, Twin Falls, for assault and battery.

According to Gigi Erdoisa, instructor, the ceremony is a tradition, but not a requirement and most schools of nursing have their own caps. The 14 women and 2 men received the Idaho state cap with blue and white stripes to match the student uniform.

The ceremony indicates "you're this far — you're on your way," she said. It is held when students are about one-fourth through the year's training program.

The course involves basic nursing skills, technical and semi-professional skills beyond the nurse aide level, and practical nurse functions under direction of registered nurses and physicians.

Dr. Vaughn M. Pond, chief of staff at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, was guest speaker and invocation was given by Robert F. King, bishop of the LDS first ward.

Orval L. Bradley, director of the department vocational education at CSI, welcomed students. The capping ceremony was conducted by Ruth A. Malone, and Ruby Crosby, director of nursing at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and St. Benedict's, Jerome, respectively.

The state approved program, leading to application for licensing with the state, is given at CSI with training at the local hospital. This year students also take training at the Jerome facility, Mrs. Erdoisa said.

Musical selections were presented under the direction of Gene Milden, including Laura Holy, vocalist, and Randall Davis, guitarist.

Burglars take 2 toilet bowls

TWIN FALLS — Not only is there an impending toilet paper shortage, toilet bowls themselves are in short supply.

Twin Falls police had evidence of this Friday when Gene Hamilton of Hamilton Roofing, 224 Caswell Ave. W., reported that someone had stolen two toilet bowls and three toilet tanks from the restrooms at his business.

Hamilton said the theft occurred between Tuesday and Thursday. He told police there was no forced entry as the door to the rest rooms was off. Hamilton valued the fixtures at $225.

In other burglaries reported

Friday: — Head Start employee Dennis Dean told police the Head Start quarters at 139 6th Ave. E. were entered between 5:30 p.m. Thursday and 8 a.m. Friday and took about $33 in food and other items.

— James R. Stagner said someone stole two trailer house tires and rims from his property at 725 4th Ave. W. Stagner valued the tires at $150. He said they were taken about Dec. 14.

— Gene White reported an antique brass hall tree was taken from a garage at 1139 Falls Ave. E. White valued the antique at $150.

Buhl man arrested

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls sheriff's deputies Wednesday arrested a Buhl man on a charge of delivery of a controlled substance.

Sheriff Paul Corder said the arrest of James LeRoy Davis, 23, was made in connection with earlier drug raids in Twin Falls and Jerome counties more than a week ago in which 20 persons were arrested. "We're just gathering up loose ends," Corder said. He refused to say what kind of drugs figured in Davis' arrest.

Davis remains in custody at the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

In unrelated cases, Corder said his officers were investigating a break-in Wednesday at Bishop Ready Mix Concrete on Addison Avenue West and a break-in last week at the Fred Munyon residence north of the Piler fairgrounds.

Corder said a cash box containing $10 in cash and several personal checks made out to Bishop were taken in the ready mix burglary.

Munyon reported a gun, a watch and other items valued collectively at about $70 were stolen from his home, Corder said.

TF man arrested on grand larceny

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police Thursday arrested John Anthony, 20, Twin Falls, on a charge of grand larceny.

Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said Anthony was arrested in connection with the theft of tools from a truck about a week ago.

Anthony was already in the county jail when he was arrested on the grand larceny charge. He was arrested by Twin Falls police on Nov. 29 on a charge of first degree burglary.

Anthony's bond on the burglary charge, originally set at $1,000, was raised to $3,000 Thursday. He was placed under an additional $1,000 bond on the grand larceny charge.

Capt. Qualls also reported the arrest of two juveniles Thursday in connection with the theft of a purse from the William Toolson residence earlier in the day.

Qualls said detectives are investigating the theft of $155 in stereo tapes from a car belonging to Jonathan Brown, Twin Falls, and the theft of about $60 in firearms from the residence of Jerry Knauss, Twin Falls.

Brown told police the tapes were taken from his car between noon and 1 p.m. Thursday while his car was parked in the Ace Hansen Chevrolet parking lot.

Knauss reported the theft at his home occurred between Dec. 6 and Dec. 10.

STATIC is a sometimes annoying property of fibers that we're all conscious of, whether on automobile upholstery when sliding off the seat or in carpeting.

Different chemical fibers have individual characteristics for static build-up. Nylon can be a great offender. Polyesterers build up less natural static than nylon, but they are not completely static free. The acrylics, on the other hand, are virtually static-free.

Static, of course, is more than a source of small "shocks" in carpets. It's also a source of dust and dirt, since the static attracts dust. However, manufacturers have long been aware of this problem, so techniques have evolved for treating the nylons and polyesterers, for instance, to make them free of static. Carpets so treated will tell you so on the label.

We won't give you any static when you bring us your carpet questions and needs. We will give you helpful answers... and we can show you the finest values around in carpets of every color, texture, and fiber content. Visit our beautiful carpet showrooms today.

World must change present atmosphere of fear

On the meaning of Christmas: 3 viewpoints

FATHER COSMAS WHITE, O.S.B.
St. Benedict's Priory, Twin Falls

For a Catholic priest, Christmas means first and foremost Midnight Mass, the Mass of Christ, commemorating the birth of Jesus, our Lord and Savior.

At Christmas people especially want to sense God, to thank Him without rhetoric or passion, and we try to convey the love of Christ to people as best we can, to portray the wonder that is Christ. We never succeed fully, but we try.

Christmas in the Catholic Church is a time for tradition. They are confessions to hear, the church to be decorated, a choir to be trained, Holy Communion to be taken to the sick, caroling, indoor and outdoor cribs to be laid out, Christmas cards to send out and open, gifts of cookies, divinity and fudge; baskets of food to be given away, tree lights and holly, wrapping paper and Christmas dinner with turkey and cranberry sauce.

Catholic

Christmas is a special time with one's family, taking time to talk with the ones we love. It can mean for parents and children alike a discovery perhaps in a new way that they are really loved.

Love and more love is what Christmas is all about; a love of family, a love of friends, a time for giving, a festival of man's dignity.

All of us are very conscious of gifts, of course, at this time of the year. "I wonder what I'm getting for Christmas" is an often-thought of thought.

Surprises are great and happiness is to get gifts. We also find in Christmas the joy of giving. It is a good experience to shop for someone else, to spend some of our money on them, to wrap up packages in Christmas finery, to see the gratitude of someone we love as they receive our gift.

Gifts even play an important role in the biblical Christmas story. The Wise Men from the east bring their famous gifts of myrrh, frankincense, and gold to the Christ-Child. More importantly, the Christ-Child Himself is God's gift to us, the greatest of all gifts at Christmas, the gift of His Son.

A Savior

By GLENN L. SORENSEN
High priest, Dietrich Ward, LDS Church

Who among us hasn't opened a Christmas card and been surprised and thrilled to see that it came from someone we least suspected even thought of us, and yet, had taken time to concern themselves about our feelings at this particular season?

Suddenly there is a glow of warmth and love toward that person, and others around us, that permeates our whole environment.

As we see these acts multiplied around our communities, whether it be cards, gifts, visits or just a smile in passing, one can't help but wonder about the reason for this attitude and wish that it would last forever.

It is then that our thoughts go back to the times when we were taught by our parents, schools, churches and friends about the great event that took place that changed the course of history by changing the attitudes of people, and of course, it is then that we find ourselves reflecting upon the birth of the greatest person ever to live upon this earth Jesus the Christ!

Unlike other great men, Jesus' birth was different in that it had been promised even before this world was in existence. Moses, Abraham and Isaiah all taught that Jesus would someday be born of woman and grow to be an adult and would do something for mankind and the world that no other person could do.

So it was that when the time had come for Him to be born, our Father in Heaven arranged for the birth to be as common as any other birth of the times; and, yet, because of the great importance attached to the event, the exact

A gift is a symbol and an expression of love. Without love, a gift is meaningless. Without the gift, love would still find a way to express itself. This what is so important about God's gift to us in the manger. It represents the depth of God's great love for us all. That is what is important about gifts at Christmas time.

The story of Christmas is illustrated in countless ways throughout the world. Seven hundred and fifty years ago, on a windswept Italian mountain cave near Greccio, St. Francis of Assisi assembled the first creche. Francis was 42 years old; he would be dead at 45.

The original creche was built high on Mount Lacrone, but was later moved down closer to the village. Francis hoped to make the story of Christmas more vivid in the minds of the shepherds and farmers living there.

Peasants brought an ox and a donkey; someone brought a little wooden statue of Jesus. There were no figures for Mary, Joseph or the Wise Men but Greccio became the first of many new Bethlehems. St. Francis carved over the crib: "Paupertate Dives," "Wealthy Poverty."

Christmas also means "a festival for children," and of all the people and customs next to the Child Jesus, Santa Claus is the most famous. The original Santa Claus was a real Christ lover, a fourth century bishop of Myra, Turkey, by the name of St. Nicholas.

He took part in the first ecumenical council of the Christian Church at Nicea in 325. Crusaders in the Tenth Century brought back tales about his miracles and care for the young, which made St. Nicholas famous as a friend to children. His legend was brought to the new world by the Dutch.

He was at first depicted as a tall, serious, thin man who either travelled on foot or on a white horse. His symbol was three bags of gold, a symbol used today by pawnbroker shops.

In 1822 a Clermont Clarke Moore, a teacher of oriental languages and a father of nine children, gave us his current image, that of a jolly elf in a red suit and white-cotton whiskers, still giving away presents.

Santa Claus is part of the adventure of Christmas. Much of the enchantment of the day would be missing without him. He is the spirit of goodness that we want to be, loving and generous enough to give away presents on the birth of our Savior.

Light Enough for Everyone

Christmas prayer

It doesn't seem as much like Christmas this year, God. With all the talk of Watergate and the Energy Crisis, it's hard to get into the Christmas Spirit.

When I stop to think about it, though, I know I shouldn't feel that way. You are just as real as ever, and a true Christmas celebration is an inward, rather than an outward, thing, anyway. Even if we don't have as many lights or quite as much warmth — even if we have more problems than usual, help us to look to You this Christmas and recognize Your love in all the circumstances of life.

Help us to find strength to see us through all our difficulties, and especially help us to count the blessings that still remain and have a Christmas with a new upward dimension this year.

— Uletta Martin

In answering he gave the key to His Mission on earth "thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. And the second is like unto it. Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." Matt. 22:36-39.

How completely different from the doctrine of an "eye for an eye" that prevailed, and still does among those who haven't caught the beauty of the teachings of the Savior. Christ taught us to "love our enemies" and "do good to those who wrong us." How significant then, that this babe was to bring peace and love and joy to the hearts and souls of men!

After Christ was crucified and resurrected, He left this earth with the promise that He would return again to it and then would take His rightful position as King of Kings and Lord of Lords and would rule with love and peace.

We find joy in the traditions about us and happiness in the fact that we are living in this world at this particular time.

It is my witness that this babe is our Savior and that He is concerned over us and loves each of us every day of our lives and it is my prayer that we all may catch the vision of His message and have a Merry Christmas!

Fulfillment

REV. HERBERT E. MORRIS
First United Methodist Church
Twin Falls

Christmas is the fulfillment of God's promise to mankind. It is more than a day to be celebrated at the close of the year. Rather, it is the opening of new life for those who receive the promise.

God Almighty, whose essence is Divine Love, became man and dwelt among us. We feel his presence and we reflect His glory, as we bring love and joy to others in the spirit of Christ Jesus.

Christmas for Christians is more than accepting the story of a babe in a manger and shepherds watching their flocks or Wise Men following a star, even though all of that is a part of the excitement of the season.

Christmas for Christians is knowing that the babe became our King and thanksgiving that God in his graciousness saw fit to become man, that we might receive forgiveness for our sins and be saved to a better life.

Protestant

A Christmas understanding of forgiveness brings to our hearts and minds the peace that passes all human understanding, which in turn sends us forth filled with new joy and good cheer.

God's great gift to us is life eternal through Christ. The babe in the manger becomes a symbol of that incalculable gift.

The coming of God in Christ to the world we call the Divine Encounter. Jesus is both totally Human and totally Divine. He is able to bring to us the power and personality of the Father, even as he suffered and died like a true and obedient son. This event which took place in the history of mankind so changed the life of the world that the Roman authorities started a new calendar. And all events preceding this marvelous one are referred to as B. C. or before Christ.

But this season should be more than a historical memory. It is an opportunity for each one of us to endeavor in a new and real way to have our lives possess new meaning, because we are followers of Christ.

Where there is discord, we are called upon to bring peace. Where there is despair we ought to be instruments of Hope. Where there is hatred our lives should be dedicated to bring love.

Even as Christ reconciled the differences between the Divine and Human, our mission becomes one of building bridges than span the separation of lives in our day.

The true spirit of Christmas is the good tidings of great joy that come when as disciples of Christ, we have been instruments serving Him as reconciling ambassadors in the world in which we live.

Yule magic remembered

Editor, Times-News:

Perhaps the fuel shortage and inflation will return us to a more simple life, such as this Christmas story.

There was always a certain magic in the air on Christmas Eve in our small Idaho town. The anticipation grew as the days passed, and being a child, I always harbored a silent fear that the special night would really never arrive.

Supper, over early, dishes done, bundled into our warmest attire—and my sister and I were ready to be wrapped in the blanket fitted into the warm shelter attached to our large sled and thus be transported to our church for evening services.

With great awe we watched the transfiguration of townspeople we knew into Biblical characters who reacted for us the story of the Nativity. And each year we were more impressed with the everlasting beauty of the depicted story. Of course, it was the greatest day ever when we were old enough to take part in this yearly pageant, even if our contribution consisted of only being part of the children's choir.

After the religious ceremonies were over, we knew that we would be treated to a visit from Santa Claus. Although I don't actually recall that I was confused or upset by the fact that Santa took on a new personality each year, I do remember one who was jollier and more fun than the rest. I later learned that this was a young high school boy who was actually so full of "the Old Nick" that he had a difficult time staying in school because of his mischievous nature.

And true to legend — we each received a Christmas stocking with an orange in the toe and filled with nuts and candy. Our grubby little hands became stickier and stickier as we retrieved the sweets—which became pinker and pinker as the red net stockings faded on our goodies. Later, from beneath a huge decorated tree, Santa produced a gift bearing the name of each child present. I never plug in the lights on a Christmas tree without recalling the happiness I felt when I received a string of bright electric lights to decorate our tree, replacing the candles we had previously used.

Happy, but tired from all the excitement, we were once again ready to be bundled snugly into our sled and start home. How I tried to stay awake in order to drink in each precious moment, sound and sight. I am sure that every Christmas Eve was the coldest, briskest and brightest night of the year. The deafening silence was broken only by the crackle of the footsteps of our parents and the skimming song of the sled runners on the frozen snow.

Oh, yes, there was always a certain magic in the air on Christmas Eve in our small Idaho town.

LETTERS Rural view of animal problems

Editor, Times-News:

An open letter to the Humane Society:

Inoculated in your statement in the Times-News where you said that approximately 70 percent of the animals you are getting are from the country.

Please let me make you acquainted with the reason you are getting so many animals from the country. If your city people would take their unwanted animals to the shelter and pay their entry fee instead of loading them up and hauling them out into the country there wouldn't be so many from the country.

In June someone dumped a big black Labrador female pup at our place and our daughter made friends with it. She caught it and took it to the shelter and paid the entry fee.

On the 14th of December someone left us another dog and last night, the 15th of December, that dog was about 60 or 70 feet from our house barking. By morning, I was fed up with the dog's solo and I went out to turn the record, but was too dark to see.

That was the fourth—this summer and about a week ago someone brought two poodle pups to Charles Harris' place and my daughter advertised them on "Swap and Shop" and she got calls from as far as Rupert.

If your city folks don't want their products, then get rid of their factory and we would all be better satisfied.

Don't think I am objecting to the "Society" for I am not. I think it is a good thing for it puts a wanted and an unwanted together.

These people that wanted the farm to have the responsibility of taking care of or destroying their unwanted, would leave their animals in daylight so we could get their license number we would be just as good to them. We would take them back to them.

Sincerely
A. W. Marken

Bruin fan anticipates IF rematch

Editor, Times-News:

I'd like to point out that this isn't "sour grapes" against a good Idaho Falls basketball team.

In Wednesday's game they played hard and hit the boards very well, coupled with two players getting hot shooting streaks and tenacious defense. This doesn't bemoan the final score. Every team in the S.I.C. is going to get beat, even our powerful Bruins. This is a complaint against one specific play which didn't necessarily allow the Tigers to win the game, but didn't hurt them a dollar's worth, either.

A Tiger player flattened Landy Haynes, injuring him temporarily, and while on the floor Landy was treated to a foot in the skull, and the Tiger player went blithely on to score a lay-up. No foul was called, and the basket equipt. I question the precedent, not the two points.

What are the referees for? It has always been my belief that one of their functions is to keep the action from getting too violent, thus protecting the players on both teams, and that they are to be impartial in doing so. By succumbing to the home court pressures, these two referees could have opened Pandora's Box of Violent Fouls throughout the league. I'm sure any other S.I.C. team scouts which were present took note of this procedure, and will caution their own clubs to come to I.F. expecting a rough-and-tumble, anything goes ball game.

Unfortunately, these men failed to perform in one instance. And I don't think, considering the rest of the ball game, which Twin won from the field, and lost at the foul line, that Perry Mason has to be called in to find those referees at least as partisan as J.F. coach Les Rowe. True, Twin Falls has had it too easy so far to be in top form, and Idaho Falls played a whale of a ball game. They might have won without the football tactics. But . . .

Oh, well, I feel we come out ahead, because Coach Haynes proved himself a winner by the way he conducted himself.

First of all, he didn't allow his team to sink to roughhouse tactics. Secondly, he didn't lean over and say, "Go hurt somebody, Brent." And he accepted the fact that Idaho Falls played very good ball. For a team to be a winner the coach has to be a winner. I think we have a winner.

And when Idaho Falls comes to Twin I'm going to take my little girl to see the game. I'm going to let her count the Bruins' score. I want to see if she can count past one hundred!

Ohio not state?

Editor, Times-News:

What would happen if one of the states of the United States wasn't really a state?

And what if there were a president elected from this state which wasn't really a state? Wouldn't all the legislation passed under his term be null and void? In fact wouldn't the vice president really be president?

And what about an amendment to the Constitution of the United States which was ratified only by the exact number of states, including this one which really wasn't a state, and therefore could not ratify an amendment?

These questions make for some interesting discussion, especially since the research into the legal records makes the above assumption true, that of a state not really being admitted to the United States. Even Congress itself tried to cover up this mistake when, on Aug. 7, 1853, it tried to pass a resolution to say that this territory was really a state and made the resolution to March 1, 1863.

But the people of this "state" were never submitted a state constitution to ratify, which negates statehood, as well as the fact that the Congress was trying to make a law retroactive by that long is certainly questionable.

Some of the items which are now in doubt as to their legality are of course the title guarantees; the legality of presidential appointments made during President William Howard Taft's term who was not a resident of the United States, as the Constitution says; the validity of laws passed by the Congress during those years, because, if Mr. Taft was not president, then the vice president was, and the person of James S. Sherman, acting as vice president, but who was really President, could not call the United States Senate into session.

Also now brought into serious doubt is the validity of the 16th Amendment to the constitution, the income tax law, because of the fact that it was not ratified by enough states, as well as the administrative faults incurred by Mr. Taft, not really being President.

If you have not already guessed it, the state that is not a state to this day is Ohio, which was never admitted to the union legally.

For further information on this subject, write to the National Educator, Box 333, Fullerton, Calif., 92632. Much research has gone into finding these facts and now it will be up to the people to decide what to do about them, that is if the news media will allow the information to go to the people.

Hughes back in Bahamas

(c) New York Times Service
SAN FRANCISCO—Howard R. Hughes, the reclusive billionaire, has gone to the Bahamas and a penthouse complex in the Xanadu Hotel at Freeport, apparently to prepare a refuge from the federal indictments expected to be returned against him this week in Las Vegas, Nev.

The legal problems that may await Hughes in Las Vegas are not clearly defined on the public record, but they are described in sketchy detail by sources in and out of government there.

"Like the problems of Vesco, the Hughes troubles are with laws passed to strengthen the Securities and Exchange Commission's supervision of the American stock markets.

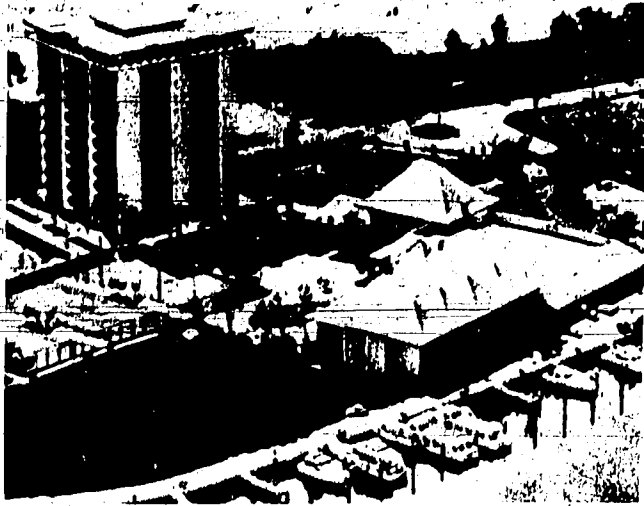

While for Vesco the problems arise from his takeover of the remnants of Investors Overseas Services, for Hughes they arose from the takeover of a small feeder airline, Airwest, which has been renamed Hughes Airwest.

This was Hughes' second visit to the Bahamas. In 1970, he moved there secretly, giving up residence of four years in the penthouse of the Desert Inn Hotel in Las Vegas. He stayed there until March, 1972, when he went from the Bahamas to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in a chartered yacht.

From Fort Lauderdale, he flew in a chartered jet in Managua, Nicaragua, where he lived off and on until a year ago. There was an interval during which he lived in a hotel in Vancouver, B.C.

Earlier this month a magistrate in Nassau, Emmanuel E. Osadesbay, refused after a hearing to order the extradition to the United States of Robert L. Vesco, the financier, who is accused in indictments in New York of wire fraud and conspiracy to obstruct justice.

The charges now being considered in Las Vegas against Hughes and some of his present and former associates are based, according to reliable reports, on possible violations on laws on stock trading.

Hughes' newest hiddenaway?

Basque agents sought

MADRID (UPI)— Spanish police Saturday named six Basque separatists with political criminal records as members of the assassination squad that killed Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco in a bomb blast.

Police said the six suspects were still at large and launched the biggest manhunt in recent Spanish history to capture them.

They also detailed how the six tunneled beneath a street to lay an explosive charge near a church where Carrero went to mass each morning and then executed a split-second master plan to blow up his limousine.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco attended a memorial mass Saturday for his slain prime minister and was hailed by a crowd of 3,000 persons shouting "Franco, Franco!"

Police said all six suspects sought in the killing were members of the Basque Homeland and Liberty (ETA), a militant separatist organization with headquarters in southern France.

Police said the assassination team was composed of five students and one worker, all aged between 23 and 27 years. All had participated in previous bombings, bank holdups, kidnappings and other politically motivated violence, police said.

Photographs of the six were flashed Saturday night by Spanish television.

The Spanish-French frontier was virtually closed to Spaniards coming from the Basque provinces of northeastern Spain.

Fish explosion

WACO, Tex. (UPI)—Large numbers of blue tilapia, a freshwater fish native to Africa, have been found in a power company cooling lake near Waco.

Biologists say temperatures remain high enough in the lake during the winter to permit survival and breeding of the fish, and tilapia now threaten to overpopulate their surroundings.

Allowance considered 'salary'

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON—The treasury has been treating the annual expense allowance of the President of $150,000 as a form of "salary" subject to withholding tax at least since 1959 and possibly since 1951, the official in charge of these matters said Friday.

Arthur Blech, the President's tax accountant, said immediately available records showed that there had been withholding at least since 1959. He made no judgment, however, on whether the President's tax return should treat this sum as salary or expense reimbursement for purposes of how to take deductions against it.

John K. Carlock, fiscal assistant secretary of the treasury, said immediately technical result was to save the President some taxes in the 1969-72 period because he was allowed a higher deduction for his "contribution" of his vice-presidential papers to the national archives.

An Internal Revenue Service spokesman said he could give no interpretation of the correctness of Blech's decision. The President's tax returns for 1971 and 1972, in which this issue was relevant, were audited and cleared by the IRS.

New US appeal court proposed

(c) Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON—A federal commission has recommended that Congress create two new U. S. Courts of Appeals by dividing existing appeals courts in the Far West and the South.

The proposals were made by a 16-member commission on revision of the federal court appellate system headed by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb. They are intended to ease the case load on the Far West and deep South circuits which are the busiest in the nation.

The 15-judge deep south circuit is so busy that it has cut out the time-honored tradition of oral arguments by lawyers in 60 per cent of its cases.

The second busiest circuit is the ninth circuit in the far West with 2300 filings for its 13 judges. It would be split into two courts with nine judges each.

The suggestion to split the far West circuit drew criticism from Southern California which, under the proposal, would be put together with Arizona to make a separate court.

Many lawyers and judges believed that there might frequently be two different federal rules in the state—one based on the Northern California court and one on the Southern California court.

Under the proposal, the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit, which now takes in six states, would be divided into two three-state systems—for Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi and for Florida, Georgia and Alabama.

The U. S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, which now takes in nine Western states, would be divided into two appellate courts—for Southern California and Arizona, and for Northern California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, Alaska and Hawaii.

Both proposals are certain to cause some controversy. There is strong opposition to splitting California and there is known opposition to dividing the deep South circuit because of its strong stand on school desegregation.

BONN (UPI)— West Germany's autobahn, already the most modern and extensive superhighway network in Europe, grew by another 270 miles in 1972 to a total of 3,285 miles, according to government fig-

The U. S. Postal Service had asked the government's price controllers for permission to increase total mail revenues by $1.5 billion, or 18.7 per cent in 1974. The added funds, to be derived from an increase in most mail rates, were expected to help the debt-ridden service to operate on a break-even basis next year.

The council, citing its campaign to hold down increases in the cost of living, said it would allow only a $1.3 billion, or a 15.8 per cent, rise.

The CLC said it reached its decision, in part, from testimony given during two

Montanan burned in welding mishap

TWIN FALLS — A Montana man was listed in poor condition in Maple Valley Memorial Hospital Saturday after suffering severe burns in a welding accident Thursday.

George Dyson, 32 Belgrade, Mont., was being treated in the hospital's intensive care unit for third and second degree burns on the arms, hands and face. Dyson was burned Thursday when a can of cleaning solvent, accidentally touched with a welding rod, exploded and splashed him with flaming liquid.

According to ambulance operator Cloyce Edwards, the accident occurred about 2 p.m. at Full Circle, Inc., a farm supply co-op near Curry. Edwards said he thought Dyson's life was saved when Hayrard Wilcox, Twin Falls pulled Dyson down and smothered the fire with a canvas. Wilcox, 46, suffered burns to his hands. He was taken to the hospital, treated and released. Deputy Sheriff Harold Jensen said Dyson was welding material on a metal table when he accidentally touched the can of solvent.

Santa's safety sleigh

ENGINEERS at Calspan Corp., a safety research firm in Buffalo, N. Y., produced this conception of Santa Claus' sleigh if it were built to safety standards required of Detroit automakers. Energy powers fizzle as Congress goes home

(Continued from p. 1) But a sufficient number of members trickled into the Chamber, some obviously called from their homes, to establish the necessary quorum of 217. There were loud cheers when No. 217, Joe Skubitz, R-Kan., rushed into the chamber to be counted. In the end, 218 members showed up. Even then there was a reluctance on the part of some House members to end the session without another try at working out a new compromise on energy legislation.

What appeared to be upmost in their minds was what the people back home would think about Congress seemingly running out on the energy crisis. Rep. Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts, the House majority leader, assured them that nothing could be gained by staying in session. "It's come down to Christmas Eve," he said. "We're in a stalemate." He said that Senate

First round closes in Geneva sessions

The present plan calls for Maj. Gen. Ensis Silasvuo, the Finnish commander of the U.N. emergency force in the Middle East, to come to Geneva for some of the talks. There were reports that the Soviet Union had expressed interest in participating in the Suez negotiations along with the U.N., but a U.S. State Department spokesman said that there was no agreement for either superpower to get involved in the day-to-day talks on troop withdrawal.

The decision to discuss the canal question as the top priority is in line with Kissinger's strategy of trying to get both sides to work first for agreements that appear attainable. The Egyptians have also wanted the appearance of continuing talks to avoid losing what they call "the momentum" of their effort to get Israel out of territory occupied since the June, 1967 war.

The Israelis also had no objections to the procedures. For one thing, nothing substantive is likely to emerge until after the Israeli elections on Dec. 31, a timetable that suits domestic political considerations. The military committee is expected to begin work some time next week. Unlike the open session Friday, the talks in the confocal chamber in the Palais Des Nations, the seat here of the United Nations, were held Saturday behind closed doors. Some of the delegates said the lack of television cameras and newsmen helped the foreign ministers to reach their decisions without polemics. Much of the work here in the past three days, however, has been conducted through bilateral contacts in various hotel rooms and diplomatic missions. Kissinger was particularly busy, meeting again with Abba Eban, the Israeli foreign minister, and then twice with Ismail Fahmy, the Egyptian foreign minister. He lunched with Andrei A. Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister, and also saw Zeid el Rifai, Jordan's prime minister and foreign minister.

Late present

SANTA CLAUS, Ind. (UPI) — Santa Claus won't get his "Christmas present" on time this year. The town board of this Southern Indiana community last year dedicated a new town hall as its "Christmas present." This year's present was a new $31,340 fire truck for a recently organized volunteer fire department. However, the town board has been informed the truck will not be delivered until Jan. 10.

Cautious optimism after first talks

(c) N. Y. Times Service GENEVA — In separate press conferences Saturday, spokesmen for Israel and Egypt offered cautiously optimistic appraisals of the opening round of the Middle East peace conference.

Remarkably, considering the bitter enmity that separates their two countries, both men avoided polemics and name calling. Their similarly subdued presentations reflected the new and more promising mood that permeated the conference on its second day. Speaking for Israel, Foreign Minister Abba Eban told newsmen "There is a feeling something new has happened, that a new opportunity has arisen."

Minutes after Eban finished,

Tahsin Bahrir, the compact, dapper spokesman of the Egyptian delegation, strode into the large former conference room.

"In the last two days we have started to clear a small wedge in the minefield of difficulties that lie ahead of us," he said in a low hoarse voice.

"It is only a little start, but it has the ingredients of success," Bahrir said. "It is a ray of hope that we want to enlarge upon."

The restraint was in sharp contrast to the harsh, argumentative tone of opening statements Friday.

"Both sides had to get it out of their system yesterday," a U.N. official observed. "In a sense, the conference really began today."

Share prize

MADRID (UPI) — Hundreds of Spanish cleaning women shared Saturday in the $1.3 million top prize in Spain's Christmas lottery, believed to be the world's richest drawing. The director of Limpieza Galicia, a company whose female employees clean buildings, ships and airplanes, said each would get a $3,200 share of the prize money.

Jeep and Raul play at Coy's

TWIN FALLS — Currently appearing at Coy's Restaurant and Lounge at the Holiday Inn, Twin Falls, is one of the most versatile duo to play the Northwest. Raul and Jeep, who started their engagement last June by manager Jake Elter have virtually kept the lounge packed throughout the past six months. Their engagement ends January 5: The duo will then head for Sun Valley, where they will be appearing at Coy's Restaurant and Lounge at the Holiday Inn for two months, beginning January 7.

Upon completion of their engagement at Sun Valley, they will appear at the Cock O' The Walk at the Rodeway Inn in Boise for an unprecedented seventh time. They will be back in Twin Falls again in 1974. The duo has been traveling the Northwest for the past 5 years, working mainly in Idaho, because it appears the people of Idaho won't let them leave the state. The group hails from Long Beach, California where they have played at the Grand Hotel at Disneyland, Proud Bird at the International Airport. During the past five years they have been held over in practically every club they've worked: twenty-six straight weeks at the Ponderosa in Idaho Falls; five months at Vinge's 93 in Missoula, Montana; four months at the Sage Coach Inn in West Yellowstone; four different engagements at the Westbank in Idaho Falls; six different engagements at the Cock O' The Walk at the Rodeway Inn in Boise; also Jackson Hole, Wyoming; Elko, Nevada; Medford, Oregon were among their past engagements. They also played 22 straight months at the King's Table at Santa Anna, Calif. Their music has a wide range from standard tunes, Latin, pop, western and rock for your dancing and listening pleasure. Both are very talented in singing and performing together. Their harmony rises at the top and instrumentally you have to look twice, or you might think they were a four or a five piece group. How so much music can come from two guys is worth seeing. With all their talent and personality, they really have something going for them.

Raul, guitarist and vocalist, began his musical career several years ago with his group called the Continentals. In Jackpot, Nevada, as a house band backing up shows. Later, when he decided to move on to southern California, he organized other groups. After a while he and his guitar alone entertained at the top clubs in that area. He has played most of the Western States.

Some time ago Raul and Jeep combined their talents to form their own unique sound, unmatched by any duo in the country.

Jeep, the drummer and vocalist, hailed from Long Beach before teaming with Raul. He played shows, backed up recording stars, such as the Olympics, the Costers, The Diamonds, Chuck Rio of the Champs and Jimmy Reed, all with million seller records, and traveling from Southern California to jobs in Alaska and Canada.

Raised in Bay City, Michigan, Jeep remembers how he played his first job with his cousin Jim 16 years ago, New Year's Eve. Both played the only 4 songs they knew, all night for free. Jeep said it was hard work on an $11 set of drums, and he is sure he won't forget those songs.

Coy's Restaurant and Lounge, located at 1350 Blue Lakes Blvd. North, has banquet facilities to accommodate 550 people; a 24 hour coffee shop; a buffet dinner every Tuesday. The management and staff would like to wish each and everyone a Merry Christmas and a Joyous New Year.

Commercial jets given more fuel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon Saturday announced a compromise agreement with the Federal Energy Office calling for immediate diversion of military jet fuel to keep the U.S. civilian airlines flying during the holidays.

A Pentagon spokesman said the Defense Department would provide 900,000 barrels of jet fuel to U.S. international airlines. He said an additional 900,000 barrels would be provided "if and when future conditions warrant."

The settlement represented a compromise over an original demand from energy policy chief William E. Simon that the Defense Department immediately give up 1.3 million barrels of military fuel. Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger protested Simon's original directive, and Pentagon sources said the new decision was the result of this.

The Pentagon announcement came as Congress adjourned until Jan. 21 without passing emergency energy legislation.

Kissinger during Mideast meet

Happy Kissinger heads home, long trip ended

GENEVA (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger ended the most intense diplomatic mission of his career Saturday, buoyant over his stunning success in bringing Israel and the Arabs to the peace table after 25 years of bloody conflict.

"The secretary is very happy indeed," State Department spokesman George Vest told newsmen as Kissinger wound up his 13-nation tour of Europe and the Middle East with a meeting of foreign ministers at the Geneva peace conference.

"They not only have come to the table together, but they have taken the first step."

In addition to the Middle East, Kissinger's hectic and dramatic 15-day journey touched on virtually every major crisis confronting international relations, from the energy shortage to the Vietnam war.

Saturday's session in Geneva was the last foreign minister meeting of the opening phase of the Middle East peace conference. The ministers reached a major agreement for Israel and Egypt to begin immediate negotiations on withdrawal of troops near the Suez canal.

"The road to peace will be long and sometimes painful but what we have done here is an achievement of which the principal parties and the United Nations should be proud,"

Kissinger said in a statement before departing for Washington.

"As I go back to the United States to report to President Nixon I leave with nourished hope," Kissinger said. "We have completed the first stage of the conference and we have achieved substantially what we came here to do."

Before leaving, Kissinger met in private for the third time this week with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, who had been designated co-chairman of the ministerial conference along with Kissinger. He also held other private talks with the foreign ministers of Egypt, Israel and Jordan.

Kissinger then flew to Washington, where he was expected to arrive Saturday night.

Vest said that unlike the opening of the conference, where both Arabs and Israelis first threatened not to remain because of dissatisfaction with seating arrangements, the meeting Saturday was cordial.

"There was no language that could have been characterized as anything but low key," Vest said.

Asked to sum up the situation briefly, Vest said "the foreign ministers have recessed, a military committee working group has been set up and nothing has been adjourned."

Wedding reports irk HK

GENEVA (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was reportedly irritated Friday by constant rumors that he will marry New York socialite Nancy Maginnis on Dec. 28.

A spokesman denied the story saying: "The story is not true." Kissinger refused to comment.

Although the rumors have persisted for several weeks, a report on the NBC Today Show mentioned a specific date for the first time.

Kissinger was in Geneva where he is co-chairman of the Middle East Peace Conference with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

High-ranking American officials, traveling with Kissinger for the past two weeks, have acknowledged that Kissinger, who is divorced from his first wife, does plan to marry again some time. But they have refused to identify who he would marry or where or when the marriage would take place.

Plot foiled

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Military authorities announced Saturday that soldiers had shot to death five men in a clash with a group of alleged terrorists trying to blow up an electrical supply line to the Chilean capital.

The authorities said they also gathered evidence in the Friday night clash showing that the men were carrying out a subversive plot code-named "Plan Leopard" for "sabotage and terrorism" against vital installations throughout Chile.

Shell sales clip brass

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The High Command said Saturday a Cambodian general and two colonels had been suspended and 20 lesser-ranking servicemen and civilians arrested in connection with the illegal sale of American-made brass shell casings.

It was the biggest scandal to hit the Cambodian army since the discovery of some 50,000 "phantom soldiers" for whom commanders pocketed wages over the past two years.

The Command said it had seized 57 tons of shell casings earmarked for illegal sale and export, while sources said about 150 tons were already exported.

It said the commander at Takeo, a general whose name was not immediately available, and the subdivision commanders of Koh Kong and Kampot, both colonels, had been "relieved of their functions."

Joint Jerusalem rule endorsed by Africans

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — A delegation of African leaders told Pope Paul VI Saturday that Jerusalem—a city sacred to three religions—"should not be under the exclusive control of any one religion," a Vatican spokesman said.

With an apparent eye on the Geneva Middle East peace talks, spokesman Federico Alessandrini said the position was stated by Emperor Haile

In the past, the Vatican has sought internationalization of Jerusalem but in a statement Friday, coinciding with the opening of Middle East peace talks in Geneva, the pontiff noted: "the special character" of Jerusalem and underlined the Vatican's desire to have a say in its future.

Alessandrini said the African leaders exchanged views with the Pope on peace and world security "and more particularly on finding a just solution to the Middle East crisis, taking into account the legitimate rights of the people of Palestine."

"Foremost among their preoccupations," he said, "was the question of Jerusalem, that it should not be under the exclusive control of any one religion and that a solution must be found to its status on the basis of United Nations resolutions."

3 SBA aides fired

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Small Business Administrator Thomas S. Kleppe, acting to clear his agency of allegations of widespread corruption, announced Saturday he had fired three top officials for mismanagement and improper activities.

He said dismissal notices had been served on Thomas F. Regan, former director of the SBA's Richmond, Va., district office; Russell Hamilton, former director of the Philadelphia regional office, and Joseph Clark, Hamilton's deputy director in Philadelphia.

Kleppe said the three were fired for "mismanagement, improper administration in taking care of their responsibilities and poor judgement" in handling the agency's loan and lease programs.

He said the dismissals had nothing to do with allegations of criminal conduct made during two weeks of House hearings.

Kleppe said the firings were part of an agency "house cleaning" he had promised the House Small Business subcommittee.

He said the dismissals had nothing to do with allegations of criminal conduct made during two weeks of House hearings.

In three days of testimony at the subcommittee's hearings, Kleppe had promised to conduct "fast audits" of all SBA loan offices, personnel investigations and an internal reorganization.

Hamilton triggered the SBA hearings when he told House investigators of illegal loan making and possible criminal activities in the Richmond office during Regan's tenure as director. The subcommittee subsequently killed a bill to finance SBA loan programs for two more years and settled instead on a temporary funding plan.

Press hits rate hikes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — United Press International and other news organizations are challenging rate changes by American Telephone & Telegraph Co. on grounds they would be discriminatory and impede the free flow of information.

In filing its new tariffs with the Federal Communications Commission, AT&T said they were necessary to meet new competition permitted by the commission in heavily populated areas that produce major revenues.

The revised rates would affect so-called private leased lines used by news services and other for-voice and data communications. The Associated Press, which like UPI uses such circuits to distribute news, also is protesting the rate changes.

AT&T heretofore has averaged its costs on a nationwide basis in establishing rates. It now wants a two-tier system calling for lower rates in some 370 high density big city areas and higher rates in smaller cities.

In a protest filed with the commission last Monday, UPI called this unfair to several thousand newspaper and broadcast subscribers in smaller communities and said it would tend to discourage the dissemination of information.

The news service asked the FCC to suspend the revised rates and to enter into a hearing as to the legality of the changes. They now are scheduled to go into effect Jan. 14.

The Associated Press filed a similar petition Thursday. The British news agency Reuter and the Dow Jones financial service also object to the rate revisions.

Call release scored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A group of reporters, editors and columnists threatened legal action Saturday unless the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (AT&T) agrees to stop giving their phone records secretly to the FBI and other law enforcement agencies.

The group, known as the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press, charged that the practice jeopardizes the confidentiality of their news sources.

A Washington law firm representing the committee warned in a letter to John DeButts, chairman of the board of AT&T, that if the firm does not comply within 30 days "appropriate legal action" will be taken.

The group also asked that the company disclose all instances in the last five years in which their home or office telephone records have been secretly supplied to government agents and that in the future, any newsman whose records are sought must be given advance notice so that he can seek court action to block the move.

Thirty-eight newsmen from New York, Washington, Boston, Chicago and St. Louis joined in the demand.

The arrangement came to light last spring when then acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray III informed a Senate confirmation hearing that the agency, by use of a secret subpoena, had obtained home and office phone call records of columnists Jack Anderson and Leslie Whitten over a six-month period.

Guerrillas released

RABAT, Morocco (UPI) — Morocco said Saturday that Kuwait has decided to turn over to the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) the five Arab guerrillas who landed in that Persian Gulf sheikhdom in a hijacked jetliner after killing 32 persons.

(A Kuwaiti official denied, however, that any decision had been taken.)

The Moroccan foreign ministry released the text of what it said was a letter from Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sabah Ahmed Al Jaber to Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Tajibi Benhima, replying to Morocco's demand that no mercy be shown the guerrillas, whose victims included four Moroccan officials, two of them cabinet ministers.

Group refuses to ban candles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Products Safety Commission refused Friday to ban millions of Christmas and other candles with lead in their wicks but cautioned that consumers may be exposing themselves to a potential hazard by burning them.

"Our initial research reveals that there is some lead given off by burning these candles," the agency said. "However the amount of lead given off does not constitute an immediate hazard and the commission will not immediately ban the candles."

The commission rejected a request from a Ralph Nader-backed research group for an immediate ban on the candles, sold under several brand names and distributed throughout the country. They contain lead wires around which the wick is wound.

The Nader group contended the candles emitted poisonous lead fumes into the air and gave off lead particles as they burned.

The commission said "we do not consider limited use of candles with lead core wicks during the holiday season to present an unreasonable health hazard. However, consumers should recognize that they may be subjecting themselves needlessly to increased lead concentrations through use of the candles."

Oil allocation system delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government probably will postpone until next month the imposition of oil allocation regulations for various segments of the economy, it was learned Friday.

Officials said the likely delay of the Dec 17 starting date was prompted by a heavy influx of comments on the proposed rules and priorities. The effective date of the allocation system was expected to be put off until some time in January.

In another step, William E. Simon, the nation's energy chief, promised consumers to set up an independent mechanism to verify oil industry figures on the shortage.

In a meeting with consumer groups, Simon acknowledged that a major source of the shortage figures came from the American Petroleum Institute, a trade group representing the oil industry.

Simon said that a mechanism to validate the figures was needed and the government is attempting to set up an agency to do the job.

He again promised his recommendations on rationing shortly, but said "before imposing the burden of rationing, we must be sure conservation measures are not going to work."

"We can lick this thing through conservation," he said.

A former member of the Federal Power Commission, Lee White, now a representative of the Consumer Federation of America, said he believed the opinion among the administration's consumer advisory committee on energy was "universal" in favor of rationing.

"There is no way short of some form of rationing in which the dislocation caused by the energy crisis can be shared equitably by all Americans," he said.

Simon denied as "absolutely false" Defense Department suggestions that his agency acted arbitrarily in diverting supplies of military jet fuel to commercial airlines. "We consulted with the Pentagon," he said.

Murky waters nets fortune

LONDON (UPI) — Roger Coyle dove into the River Thames a few days ago and burst to the surface with a $75,000 Christmas present for himself, court officials said today.

A hunk of metal the 25-year-old skin diver picked off the bottom turned out to be a solid gold sword encrusted with 300 diamonds.

Museum experts who estimated its value said it may be the sword Lord Nelson was given after the battle of the Nile in 1798.

"When I pulled it from the river I thought it was worthless," Coyle said. "Then a friend robbed it against the mirror of my car and it scratched the glass and we knew they were diamonds."

Coyle, who described the sword as his greatest Christmas present ever, is now awaiting a treasure trove inquest to give him legal title to the booty, court officials said.

NORAD to monitor St. Nick's journey

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — About 6,500 pairs of eyes will be glued to radar screens Monday in search of a special blip moving across the skies.

Officials of NORAD, the North American Air Defense Command headquartered in Colorado Springs, announced Thursday they would be monitoring the annual flight of Santa Claus on his journey from the North Pole to homes all over the world.

The defense agency, which normally scans the skies for hostile aircraft or missiles, said Santa's sleigh, which appears on radar scopes every Christmas Eve, is "extremely slow-moving, seemingly heavily laden" and appears to be headed toward "every youngster's rooftop or chimney."

NORAD spokesmen said a message would be flashed throughout North America once the sighting had been confirmed.

"Santa is coming," the message states. "Provide a safe escort for the jolly old man and his reindeer-powered vehicle so that he may provide a day of peace and joy to both young and old."

Spokesmen said Santa has agreed to give NORAD his flight plan this year to insure that his upcoming journey will be safe and speedy.

"Although thousands of air defense technicians will be on duty away from their families again this Christmas to help guarantee peace on earth, they will enjoy keeping a radar eye out for Santa Claus," a spokesman said.

Gem hotlines incorporate

By MARILYN ELLIOTT, Times-News writer
BURLEY — The Burley-Rupert Hotline, a local telephone listening and referral service, joined the recently formed Idaho Hotline Association this week.

The local hotline was organized nearly two years ago by a Burley High School student and in the years since its beginning has undergone several major structural changes in an effort to bring more professional and efficient service to the Mini-Cassia area.

Fewer than ten area residents currently belong to the organization, which incorporated last spring. These members are responsible for manning the telephones, contacting referrals, raising funds and handling paper work.

The Idaho Hotline Association, which developed from a training seminar in Mountain Home this fall, will back up the local hotline organization by providing help in training, fund-raising, recruiting, and coordinating of activities.

The local hotline organization has already received some help from the state association. Three members of a special troubleshooting team met with local volunteers last week to help establish guidelines and some short-term goals to strengthen the Burley-Rupert Hotline.

Doug Peterson, interim president of the state association, told local members that the Mini-Cassia area would probably serve as a target area for the troubleshooting team. Many hotlines in the state were facing individual problems, he said, but this area was critical because of a lack of services similar to those provided by the hotline.

As a result of the meeting, recruiting efforts will be stepped up in the next several months, the organizational structure will be revised and expanded to include technical help from the community, training efforts will be increased and public misunderstanding of the organization will be attacked and, according to the plan, hopefully reversed.

In addition to the regular hotline number, 678-0162, which is open from 8 to 12 p.m. every night, the organization now has a daytime number for people who have questions about or are interested in joining the hotline. The number, 678-9410, is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The Burley-Rupert Hotline is manned entirely by volunteers and is completely dependent upon donations to support its services. With its incorporation as a non-profit organization last spring, hotline donations may now be made, tax-free.

Although it is listed in the yellow pages under "drugs," the hotline is not devoted solely to drug-related problems. Hotline members man the telephone each night to listen, talk, or provide information about any subject the caller is interested in.

Members currently range in age from 17 to 40. They have information on hand about social services in the area and on a wide variety of subjects that are of interest or concern to individuals in the community. The hotline has a list of referrals, all professionals, to whom callers may be directed when specialized help is needed.

Many of the calls to the hotline, though, require none of these services. Many callers just need to talk to someone — someone who will listen and will care. The hotline is there to serve these needs too. Every call, regardless of its nature, is kept completely confidential. Confidentiality is stressed repeatedly by the organization.

Before joining, individuals are screened by a special board of hotline members. After joining, each member must undergo a period of training before he actually handles phone calls. Training ranges from the handling of drug-related calls to sessions on the art of listening, "involved listening," or empathy, underlines every session.

Although the organization is dedicated to having the telephone manned seven days a week, a staff shortage has left it with evenings when no one is available to man the telephone. Members hope to permanently rectify the situation with stepped up recruiting and training efforts now underway.

Salmon mayor-elect slates changes

SALMON — Mayor-elect Don Vial confirmed Wednesday that he is planning changes in city government with the goal to improve efficiency in the city operation.

Vial, who will become mayor Jan. 7, said he feels it was the mandate of the voters that such changes should be initiated.

School fuel aid channeled

BOISE — Idaho school districts will process their energy problems through the State Department of Education Energy Task Force.

Deputy Supt. of Public Instruction Harold Farley said Wednesday that school district officials were confused over whom to approach with their problems until the State Office of Energy was organized by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

He said by working with the department's task force, school districts could channel their emergency requests to one source and the committee in turn will be a central focal point for the Office of Energy.

Farley said the committee spent all day Wednesday going over a draft of the mission and purpose of the task force, along with proposed recommendations affecting school districts which will be presented at the January meeting of the State Board of Education.

He said 13 recommendations on energy conservation in heating and transportation have been sent to local school administrators.

Questionnaires have been sent to the state's 115 school districts seeking information on methods of heating, use and average consumption, and that data is being gathered for a summary report on bus routes, mileage and costs of gas.

One of his first undertakings will be the assessment of job responsibilities at city hall, particularly the office of city clerk.

He said that he had advised city works Supt. Virgil Schofield that he will not be hired under the new administration and that there may be a probationary period for Harold Neyman, city clerk.

He said he felt confident in the chief of police, Frank Evans, and how he has been running the police department.

Vial said he has met with the councilmen who will be in office in January to obtain their feelings and that "most" feel the way he does.

Vial said that to him, the results of the election and expressions to him from city residents, indicate need for changes in city government.

The incoming official indicated he plans to see to completion projects begun by Mayor William Cannon including the city water filtration system and the bar sewage system.

One of his long-range goals will be the improvement of city streets.

He suggested the possibility of improving so many streets each year and correction of drainage problems.

Another undertaking which he said he feels is vital is a new census of the city's population. He said the belief is that there are more persons residing here and a new census could result in more federal revenue sharing money.

Vial said he had advised Schofield of his decision prior to Jan. 7 to give Schofield time to look for new employment rather than wait to the last minute.

He said he is looking for a replacement and hopes to obtain a works superintendent with greater knowledge in engineering.

He added that he took the action because he felt that is what the people wanted.

Vial spoke to the Lemhi County Republican Women's Club Tuesday noon, outlining his ideas, and received the support of that group.

He said he will work with the new City Council in solving the problems of the city. And he intends to work with Neyman to determine where greater efficiency can be achieved. Vial said another project that must be seen through to completion is the establishment of a sanitary landfill and that a sewer district will need to be created on the bar to establish a sewer system for that area.

One of his chief goals, he added, will be a long-range planning to improve the city of Salmon.

Starting terms as city councilmen in January will be Dale Smith and Jim Bennett. Bob Stephanishen was re-elected to a second term. Holdover councilmen are Hoy Durand, Jack Cook and Ralph Frazee.

Misdirected shovels filed in closet

BOISE (UPI) — Two shiny new shovels and a $2 check from the Tax Commission are among the latest items in a stream of misdirected merchandise and mail that ends up in the State Auditor's office.

The wooden handled shovels graced a corner in Auditor Joe Williams' office for two weeks before they were filed, in a closet, to wait until the staff can determine their correct destination.

Williams said some state office ordered the shovels from Strevell-Paterson Co., Salt Lake City, Utah but the company did not designate which state office on the mailing label and billing.

Shipping papers indicate the shovels cost $4.95 each plus parcel postage, which brought the total bill to $13.30. But the only address was to the State Auditor's office and attempt to have the company find out who ordered the shovels so far have failed.

"We get merchandise or equipment six or seven times a year," said Williams. "usually, they are small items and usually they come parcel post."

A lot of mail from state offices, when it is returned by the addressee, winds up in the auditor's mail. Such was the case with a $2 check made out by the State Tax Commission as a tax refund for a couple living in San Leandro, Calif.

The check was mailed to the state auditor with a handwritten note, indicating the couple now have divorced.

The note, signed by the man, suggested the state officials "mix the check up with some bureaucracy and..."

"I don't need $2 had enough to bother with you," he wrote.

Williams said the Tax Commission check will be sent to the proper state office for appropriate processing.

With the shovels, he said, all the obvious offices—Building Services, Department of Highways, Fish and Game Department, and Public Works—have been unsuccessful in finding who ordered them.

Williams is not worried about what he'll do with the shovels if he cannot find their correct destination.

"I told the crew the other day we'd keep 'em around the office," he said. "We might need 'em after the legislature gets here."

Power output

SANTA FE (UPI) — New Mexico produced more than 18.8 million kilowatt hours of electrical power last year, a report by the New Mexico Bureau of Business Research shows.

The figure is more than double the amount of electrical power produced in 1967 in the state. The biggest increase in production in recent years came in 1970, when the last two units of the optreversal Four Corners power generation station was completed.

Public television corporation sought

BOISE — The state director of administrative services suggested Thursday creation of a public corporation as one way to oversee public television in Idaho.

D. E. (Skip) Chilberg told a three-member committee of the State Board of Education he thought a year long study of the future of educational television should be made with the corporation—one of the alternatives under consideration.

The board members, A. L. Alford, Jr., Lewiston; Ken Thatcher, Idaho Falls, and superintendent of public instruction, D. F. Engelking agreed to recommend the study when the board meets in January.

Chilberg told the board members Administrative Services will submit a fiscal year 1975 budget proposal to the legislature for educational television. He also said he would have no objection if the State Board of Education, as has been suggested, were to take over control of the program.

A preliminary budget that has been prepared requests $1.7 million in state funds for the operation of educational television for the coming year. Of that amount, $962,000 is earmarked for the projected equipment and installation costs of a proposed Public Television Translator and Interconnect System.

Gem agencies seek funding

Times-News Capitol Bureau
BOISE — State agencies are poised to ask the legislature for substantial amounts in supplemental appropriations for the remainder of the fiscal year.

But a check of some of the offices indicates the exact figure hasn't yet been determined, and in some cases the requests haven't been forwarded to the office whose staff will prepare the request for hearing by the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

In one instance, a request has been forwarded, but may be increased, pending the outcome of staff discussions within the agency. In another agency, the budget officer said he hadn't known about a supplemental request being prepared, yet the legislative office is expecting one.

John Anderson, legislative fiscal officer, said Wednesday nine agencies had indicated they would seek supplementary appropriations totalling about $26 million in state general funds.

There are smaller requests for increases in dedicated funds and in one case, an increase expected in federal money. The figures don't include possible requests to cover a 5 per cent pay raise ordered by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.

By comparison, the legislature appropriated slightly less than $200,000 during the 1973 session for supplementary appropriations for the last fiscal year. It also, however, created a $5 million contingency fund for this year in anticipation of massive cutbacks in federal funds.

It is from that $5 million that the agencies are seeking their additional appropriations. The requests so far include:

- the Department of Environmental and Community Services; $1.6 million, with a possible increased request to $2 million;
- the Public Utilities Commission (PUC) $5,603;
- the Department of Parks, $337,502;
- State Library, $201,000;
- Statewide Information System $310,570;
- Tax Commission $148,200;
- Penitentiary, (amount unknown)

In addition, the PUC wants a supplemental from dedicated funds of over $22,000 and the State Plumbing Board of $4,000. The Bi-Centennial Commission lists a federal supplementary of $10,970.

Howard Jamieson, director of budget and finance at DECS, said the departmental request was in anticipation of state costs under the new federal supplemental income program. He also cited an expected increase in the cost of medical assistance because of altered eligibility guidelines.

Another factor, he said, was a requested increase in the amount the state pays nursing homes for client care. The state wants an increase to $13.50 a day from its present $12.70.

Jamieson also said staff discussions recently had focused on a possible increase for shelter care costs amounting to $300,000. He said no firm decision had been made on whether to request that money, which would bring the department's total supplemental request to about $1.9 million.

The state librarian, Helen Miller, said her agency's request was to cover the expected loss of federal funds at the library. The Department of Health Education and Welfare appropriations measure has still not been signed into law, however, and there is still some uncertainty about what effect it will have on some of the state's programs, including the library.

One spokesman at the penitentiary said he was unaware of its request for a supplementary appropriation. Anderson, however, said his office had been told there would be one, but hadn't yet learned how large it would be.

At least one agency, the Commission on Human Rights, is planning on requesting supplementary funds that the legislative office doesn't yet know about. The commission has approved asking for funds to upgrade the salary of the newly appointed administrative director.

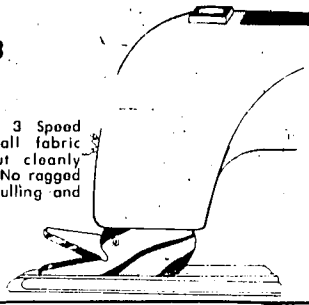

A spokesman for Andrus also said he didn't know whether the governor expected to ask for additional funds for the newly established Office on Energy.

134 condominiums in Elkhorn sold

ELKHORN — The first 134 condominiums constructed in Elkhorn at Sun Valley have been sold, according to Jack Marshall, vice president and general manager.

Elkhorn, Sun Valley's second village, is being developed by subsidiaries of the Johns-Manville Corp. and the Sun Valley Co.

Marshall said the 88 "village" studio and one-bedroom units and the 46 "Bonne Vie" two, three and four-bedroom units — placed on the market in summer, 1972 — are now privately owned by individuals or groups from 24 states and Japan.

He said the next phase of the joint venture's condominium construction includes 89 one, two, three and four-bedroom units in "Indian Springs."

Marshall also said that 66 out of 133 lots in "Twin Creeks I and II" have been purchased and four private homes have already been built. The nine "Independence Creek" ranch sites were sold last summer.

About $15.1 million has been spent in Elkhorn at Sun Valley. Completed recreation facilities include two swimming pools; a pool house outfitted with saunas, showers and changing rooms; eight tennis courts; a year-round skating rink and outdoor playground, and a recreation hall.

A triple-chair lift runs from Elkhorn Village to the top of Dollar/Elkhorn Mountain. The 18-hole golf course designed by Robert Trent Jones, has been seeded and nine holes are schedule for play during summer, 1974.

Warm welcome

TWIN FALLS — Santa Claus may get a little chilly Christmas eve when he flies through the sky delivering gifts, but Thursday he basked in the warmth of a mob of Magic Valley Camp Fire Girls.

Bluebird, Adventure and Discovery club girls from Buhl, Burley, Filer, Gooding and Twin Falls met at the Southwestern Idaho Council of Camp Fire Girls office on Addison Avenue West to decorate Christmas trees to be donated to the Meals on Wheels program.

Santa Claus made a surprise appearance and was momentarily caught in a crush of chattering, giggling young ladies before order was restored. Santa greeted the girls by taking them on his knee one at a time, considering their Christmas requests.

When Santa departed the girls and a few group leaders had punch and cookies and sang Christmas songs.

Aerosol drug spray recalled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said Friday that thousands of canisters of aerosol drug spray for asthma patients were being recalled because of a leak which could cause heart problems and other adverse reactions.

The spray is the same as one associated with several deaths in Britain a few years ago, but the FDA said there have been no reports of deaths or injuries linked to the current development.

Sold only by prescription, the sprays involved are contained in a metal canister, less than two inches high with a plastic mouthpiece. Asthma sufferers hold the spray to their mouth and release a mist into their lungs which relaxes bronchial tubes and allows them to breathe normally again.

The FDA said the sprays, 145,000 of which have been sold since 1971, carry no name on them. The aerosol canister is silver metal and contains a blue and white label. There is, however, an instruction sheet provided with each spray which lists the name — "Metermatic Aerosol" as well as the distributor's name — "USV Pharmaceutical Corp." or "Elson's Corp."

The FDA also said that sprays sold since 1968 can be identified by one of the following numbers printed on the instruction sheet or near the metal rim at the top of the canister: 52447, 50804, 48388, 47507, 47250, 46702, 46354, 52448, 48389, 47076, 47506, 46355, 51077, 47074, 47075, 47103, 46701, or 46082.

The agency said asthmatics who have such inhalers should contact their doctors or drugists for a replacement.

Construction funded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon signed legislation Friday providing $2.6 billion for military construction in the fiscal year ending next June 30.

The Military Construction Appropriation Act fell $286 million short of the total Nixon had requested. More than three quarters of the total reduction —$221 million — was the result of earlier congressional cuts in authorizations.

The White House said the rest of the reduction, $64.8 million, consisted of cuts made possible by canceling projects at military bases which are being closed or by deferring some projects that may be funded through programs.

Tulniga hired

BOISE (UPI) — House Speaker Wm. J. Lanting, R-Twin Falls, says a former Twin Falls broadcast newsman will serve as assistant chief clerk for the 1974 legislative session. Lanting said he has hired Richard A. Tulniga to succeed Harry Worrell, St. Anthony, who served as assistant chief clerk for several sessions. He said Beth Fitzwater, Boise, will return as chief clerk of the house.

Drive turns up problems

BOISE (UPI) Idaho's campaign against child abuse, during its first three months in operation, has turned up teenage victims of incest, physical abuse in the schools, and parents admittedly doing wrong who want help. The Department of Environmental and Community Services is conducting the campaign of public service advertising in the mass media, using posters and telephone stickers to urge people to report suspected cases of abuse and neglect. The department Friday reported calls in four DECS regions have doubled or tripled, and in three others have shown a gradual increase. The Region Four headquarters here has had 140 calls since the campaign started Oct. 1. That is an average of 56 calls per month and compares with 20 calls per month during the six months before the campaign started. The eight-county Region Seven in Idaho Falls had calls jump from 16 to 48 per month.

Citizens confused

BOISE (UPI) — The Citizen's Advisory Committee on Legislative Improvement has found the average citizen is confused about just what the legislature is doing, and frustrated by an inability to get involved in the legislative process. A report prepared for the second session of the 42nd Idaho Legislature, notes that a legislative public information division would open up the legislative process to the average citizen. Committee Chairman John Mix said, "We want to create a well-coordinated public information program. Our program is a positive one," Mix said. "We feel the legislature is much too important to be misunderstood."

Exemption asked

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, is preparing a bill to exempt southern Idaho from the emergency Daylight Savings Time Act of 1973, so school children will not have to go to school in the dark. Little said for children to wait for buses in the dark could be a hazard. He said there would be one problem, however, as the act is effective Jan. 6 and the Idaho Legislature will not convene until Jan. 14.

IF firm low bidder

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — The Ormond Construction Co., Idaho Falls, was apparent low bidder for construction of a waste storage decontamination facility at the National Reactor Testing Station. The company submitted a bid of $135,746 for one plan, and $130,067 for an alternate plan.

Andrus raps proposal

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus says proposed mandatory fuel allocation regulations would have in adverse effect on the state's agriculture, recreation, logging and mining industries. The governor sent a telegram to federal Energy Administrator William E. Simon, telling Simon there was no mention of support funding to meet the state's increased costs of administering the program. "The role, structure and funding of the local boards is ambiguous and should be clarified," Andrus added. He said the regulations failed to take into account a state with low population centers, wide geographic expanses, and a lack of passenger train or mass transit systems.

Church addresses lawyers

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, in an address to the Third District Bar Association, said the nation needs a Mid-East policy that is pro the American people. Church said the present policy "was built upon the desert sands. We were told that the Arab sheikdoms would never get together nor could they drink their oil. But they did get together, and they are now making more money selling less oil than they ever made before." Church described the Arab boycott as "an act of economic aggression" which small countries cannot wage against large without the backing of a big power.

Guides favor roadless plan

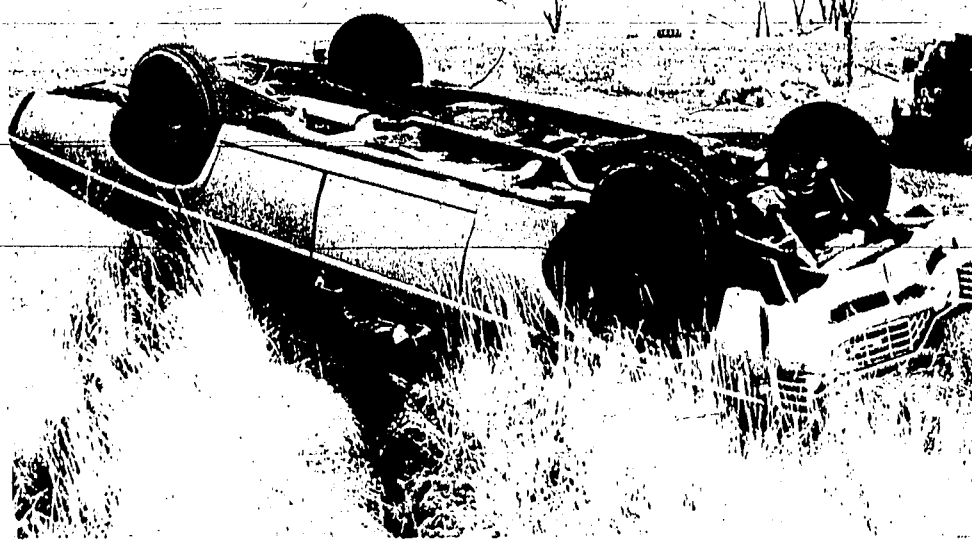

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association says it favors a roadless recreation designation, rather than wilderness classification for the Idaho and Salmon River breaks areas. A poll of the association members showed that 70 per cent supported a roadless designation, because of the restrictive interpretation of wilderness by the Forest Service.

Sheriff deputies 'sick'

SANDPOINT, Idaho (UPI) — Boundary County sheriff's deputies are on strike — plan to call in "sick" Monday in protest to their unmet demands for what they consider a "livable wage." The deputies had asked for an increase from $533 monthly to $650, but the board of county commissioners turned them down. Instead, the commissioners offered a flat $50 per month raise which the Deputies termed "unacceptable."

Session set

BOISE (UPI) — The second regular session of the 42nd Idaho legislature convenes at 11 a.m. Jan. 14 and Gov. Cecil D. Andrus will address a joint session on the "state of the state" at 1 p.m. House speaker Wm. J. Lanting, R-Hollister, said Andrus will deliver his budget address to the legislature on Jan. 17. That will be one day earlier than usual. Lanting said the earlier budget message was an attempt by the governor and the legislature to get the session off to a quick start. Meantime, the joint finance-appropriations committee will form a vanguard for the session when it opens budget hearings Jan. 7 — a full week before the session convenes. The revenue and taxation committee's subcommittee on revenue projections meets in Boise Jan. 11-12.

Jerome car overturns, injures girl

Crash hurts Jerome girl

JEROME — Alvinia McCoy, 15, Jerome, was injured Thursday in a one-car rollover in Jerome.

Jerome police reported that Miss McCoy was a passenger in a car driven by James Rick Baysinger, 16, Jerome, which failed to make a curve, hit a ditch and flipped on its top. Baysinger received minor injuries from the mishap.

Baysinger was headed west on West 10 Street which curves into North Birch Street. The car skidded 123 feet before hitting a ditch, was airborne and wound up on its top, according to the police department.

He was cited for failure to keep his vehicle under control. Miss McCoy was taken by ambulance to St. Benedict's Hospital with head injuries where she was treated and released.

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Myrtle C. Burdett, former mayor for the city of Shoshone, has offered her services to coordinate rides and people for out-of-town travel.

The suggestion to help save fuel in transportation, was made by Mrs. Burdett who said "if any one is interested in a ride to an outside area or are willing to take a passenger or two with them if they are going someplace, they may leave the information with her and she will try to connect the two. Her telephone number is 886-2310.

Blaine man hurt

BELLEVUE — A Bellevue man is listed in serious condition at Blaine County Hospital following a head on collision Saturday morning four miles south of Timmerman Hill.

According to Idaho State patrolman Max Simpson, Robert L. Jones, 20, was trapped in his vehicle for about 40 minutes and suffered chest and leg injuries.

Norma Schmid, 62, Bountiful, Utah, mother-in-law of Jones, also suffered undetermined injuries. Other passengers in the Jones vehicle, his wife Katherine, and sons, Robert, 4, and Brandon, 1, were treated for minor injuries.

Vickie Lynn Gill, 25, Filer, driver of the second vehicle, also suffered minor injuries. According to Simpson, Miss Gill was traveling north on highway 93 and Jones was traveling south, when one or both cars went out of control and skidded into each other. The accident occurred about 8:15 a.m.

150 families get baskets

TWIN FALLS — Christmas will be merrier for about 150 Twin Falls county families through the co-ordinated program of the Y with Mrs. Marvin Molyneux, chairman.

By Christmas Eve all the baskets will be delivered, Mrs. Molyneux said. The Twin Falls Fire Department will deliver toys to families Monday afternoon.

The Twin Falls Elks Lodge is responsible for 80 Christmas baskets and St. Edward's Catholic church will donate 40 baskets. Boy Scouts from Troops 65, 67 and 100 gathered food collected by the various schools in the area, sorted it and assisted in distributing the baskets.

A similar program is being conducted in the Buhl, Filer and Castelford area under the direction of Mrs. Pauline Warner, Wendell. The Twin Falls Jaycees sponsored a shopping tour for 14 Twin Falls children as their annual Christmas project.

Cassia eyes school plan

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

BURLEY — The Cassia County School Board hashed out details for the new Burley Junior High School with an eye toward February bid openings at a special meeting Thursday night.

The plans for the new junior high, which were expanded when a fire in October burned the old building to the ground, were cut back to basics by the board, to keep the costs down.

When the district passed the $3.9 million bond last spring, $2.1 million was budgeted for the junior high school. Architect William Richardson told the board Thursday night that costs for the building could reach up to $2.6 million if the extras were not deleted from the plan.

By unanimous vote the board decided to limit project costs to $2.3 million. This figure will include the $95,000 spend for the land and about $150,000 in architect's fees. Part of the reason for the high cost was the loss of equipment in the fire. The district plans to use about $200,000 of an expected $1 million in insurance for the new junior high.

To cut down costs, the board decided to plan for only 38 teaching stations, the same number that were in the old junior high, instead of the 41 they had hoped for earlier. The three planned industrial arts rooms will be retained but one is planned for "temporary" use as two classrooms.

The gymnasium will lose the eight feet the board had recently added, which will reduce seating capacity to about 450 from a previous capacity of 700. Bid plans will not call for bleachers, curtains or backstops in the gymnasium.

Site improvements will be limited to the area immediately around the building. The furnishing listed in the bid specifications will be limited mainly to those needed for science, sewing, cooking and other specialized areas.

The board is hoping individuals and organizations will be able to raise the funds to fill in the gaps. The Malta Lions Club recently raised about $12,000 for purchase and installation of the seating for the new Raft River auditorium, slated for construction in the same bond.

The board authorized the architects to proceed with the plans for the junior high school and for the new Burley elementary school.

The elementary school will have 18 teaching stations and is planned for an April bid opening. The completion of the plans for the school awaits firm word on the amount of the insurance payment for the fire because the school will be built with those funds.

Completion for both buildings is set for the fall of 1975.

Bids will be opened Jan. 14 for the cleaning up and filling in of the old junior high site. The board wants to sell the property as soon as possible.

Fraud charged in gem stone sale

TWIN FALLS — A prominent Twin Falls insurance executive was charged with the "false and fraudulent" sale of gem stones in a civil suit filed here last week.

The suit charges that Fred Frazier, president of Sierra Life Insurance Co., allegedly sold a Boise couple, Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Kramis, gem stones worth $2,000 for $20,000 after telling the couple the jewels were worth more than $200,000.

The Kramis' allege that Frazier, acting through an agent, contacted them last April and told them he was selling "rare high quality" jewelry at about 20 per cent of its appraisal value. They allege that Frazier told them the jewelry was being sold at such discounts because the jewelry owners were motivated by tax purposes.

The Kramis' also allege that to back up his claims of the value of the gems Frazier presented them with an appraisal of the stones by Prestige Premiums, Walla Walla, Wash., indicating a market value of about $243,000.

The Kramis' then bought the jewels for about $20,000, the suit says, but when they sent the stones to a second appraisal firm, Eugene Chaput, San Francisco, the gems were given a BOISE — Two of the state's top education officials disagreed sharply Friday about the direction of reorganization of education in Idaho.

Superintendent of public instruction D. F. Engelking said action taken Thursday by the Executive Reorganization Commission would reduce his position to that of "errand boy" for the Board of Education.

Board chairman Dr. John Swartley, Boise, said the effect of the commission's action was to maintain the "status quo" between the board and the state's top school officials.

Both men emphasized they hadn't received official word of the commission's action, and were relying on newspaper accounts. But Engelking, angered by the proposal, said it could result in unqualified persons seeking the job he has held for 15 years.

The commission proposed making the superintendent executive secretary to the board for matters of secondary and elementary education. The board itself would be the governing authority for educational concerns in the state.

"It's certainly not the intent of the state board to divest the state superintendent of his powers," Swartley said, "and I don't think the suggested reorganization of the department does this."

The superintendent said that "anytime you have a person run for elective office, then make that official an errand boy for the state board you've got a poor proposition." He said the effect of the proposed reorganization would be to shove the superintendent into a corner.

He also suggested that if the commission's recommendations were adopted by the legislature, the elective position of superintendent might as well be abolished. "If they don't give him any authority," Engelking said, "there's no point in having one." He said a candidate for superintendent ran "just as hard" as one for governor to win election.

Tarkenton, Vikings oust Redskins 27-0

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — The frantic Fran Tarkenton, the darling scrambling quarterback who is finally living down his reputation for being a loser, tossed a pair of fourth-period touchdowns passes to John Gilliam Saturday, sparking the Minnesota Vikings to a 27-0 NFC playoff triumph over the fired-up Washington Redskins.

Stymied for most of three quarters by George Allen's solid defense, Tarkenton led

Tarkenton's first touchdown pass to Gilliam, who couldn't hold on to a pair of important losses in the first half, climaxed a brilliant 71-yard drive in eight plays to wipe out a 13-10 Washington lead.

On Washington's next offensive pass, Nate Wright picked off a play by Billy Kilmer—the Washington quarterback who played an excellent game considering the fact that he got out of the hospital on Thursday.

Wright returned the ball 20 yards to the Washington 8, and two plays later, Tarkenton came up with the kind of patented "Scrambling Fran" play that has given him his reputation. Trapped behind the line of scrimmage, he darted to his left, reversed his field, and then started running to his right as his receivers moved frantically in the end zone. Tarkenton then hit Gilliam in the right corner of the end zone for the touchdown.

That made it 24-13 and proved to be the difference after Washington's Ken Steno blocked a punt and Kilmer fired a 28-yard touchdown pass to Roy Jefferson with 6:28 remaining in the game.

Fred Cox kicked a 30-yard field goal with 1:40 remaining to give the Vikings their final victory margin of seven points. The Vikings had been favored by eight.

A Tarkenton scramble was his second touchdown pass on the kind of play that used to drive Coach Norm Van Brocklin wild in Tarkenton's first stint with the Vikings. It was Van Brocklin who first hung the tag on Tarkenton as an exciting player who would blow his unorthodox play as he would win with them. But now Tarkenton has led the Vikings to 13 wins in 15 games this season.

Tarkenton, who was only eight for 18 in the first half, came back in the second half to hit eight out of 10 to wind up with 16 of 28 for 220 yards and two touchdowns.

Oscar Reed, the unsung halfback who got a chance to see daylight because the Vikings were concentrating on Chuck Foreman, rushed for 96 yards in seven carries, including a sensational 48-yard run early in the third period that set up a two-yard touchdown run by Bill Brown.

Curt Knight, the oft-maligned Redskin field goal kicker, missed a 17-yarder in the first period as the Redskins fans winced. He later missed a 49-yarder but he came back in the second half to connect on field goals of 52 and 42 yards. The 52-yarder tied Knight's personal record and also tied the NFL record for the longest field goal ever in a playoff game.

Six points for Vikings

Cornerback injuries led to Washington's playoff downfall

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — For George Allen, the man whose motto is, "Life is Winning," defeat is never easy to accept.

But the Washington Redskins' controversial coach still was proud of his team Saturday even though they were beaten by the Minnesota Vikings, 27-0, in the NFC playoffs.

"There were a lot of adversities today but our team has come a long way. I'm very proud of our football team," Allen said.

The main adversity was the injury to cornerback Pat Fischer, who suffered broken ribs in the first half. He tried to play with the injury but eventually had to leave because of the pain. The Redskins' reserve cornerback, Ted Vactor, was also injured and the Redskins had to use their third-string cornerback, kickoff return man Speedy Duncan, in that slot.

Fischer suffered the injury while making a fine tackle on Oscar Reed, who had caught a Fran Tarkenton pass, early in the second period.

Duncan was burned on a pair of touchdown catches by John Gilliam that turned the game around in the fourth period—although the fourth one was a Tarkenton scramble that was extremely difficult to cover.

Allen said, "The loss of Fischer was extremely costly. John Gilliam is an All-Pro receiver and even when our people are healthy, he's extremely difficult to cover."

Allen said he thought there were two turning points in the game—the final play of the third period when Charley Hirsch was stopped on a third-and-one play and the second when Nate Wright intercepted a Billy Kilmer pass on the first TD pass to Gilliam.

"After Hirsch was stopped on the third-and-one we were able to kick a field goal for a three-point lead; but we felt he would have been in position to score a touchdown if we had gotten that first down," Allen said. "And then Minnesota drove to a touchdown which gave them momentum."

Allen said the Vikings are "a very fine football team and they can play anybody."

back to the 8 early in the final quarter with Minnesota leading, 17-13. On the next play, Oscar Reed ran two yards and on the next play Tarkenton made a scrambling pass to Gilliam for six yards and a touchdown.

"The Vikings are a very good team," Kilmer said. "Fran hung in real tough and did a helluva job."

Washington, running back Larry Brown ran for 115 yards in 29 attempts for one of the best showings of the day, but he walked out of the dressing room with his head hanging low.

"We made too many mistakes," he said. "The team with the least mistakes usually wins. We made too many mistakes and we lost."

Allen kept newsmen waiting for more than a half hour after the game before allowing them into the dressing room. By that time, a number of the players already had left.

Eller's histrionics sparked Viking win

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Carl Eller, an off-season actor, put on an award-winning emotional performance at halftime Saturday to inspire his Minnesota Viking teammates to a come-from-behind victory.

Eller's unusual outburst at halftime lifted the Vikings out of a rut to a 27-0 NFC playoff triumph over the Washington Redskins.

worked up. He told us to get off our dead behinds and start playing football."

Reserve defensive lineman Bob Lurtsema said, "He kept getting madder and madder as he talked. He told us that we had to go out there and take charge of the game. And we really came out smoking in that third period, that was the difference in the game."

John Gilliam, who caught two touchdowns passes from Fran Tarkenton, said, "Eller told us we weren't mad-enough in the first half. He got us going."

The Vikings came out and scored 21 points in the second half after trailing 7-3 at halftime to turn the game around.

Eller said his halftime talk was "a spur of the moment thing. I know it was kind of against protocol. Usually only the coaches talk at halftime. But we had lost in the playoffs before and last year was a particularly frustrating year for me and the team. Something like that stays with you a long time."

Tarkenton, once termed a "loser" by his former coach, Norm Van Brocklin, completed eight of 10 second-half passes for 105 yards and two touchdowns while bringing the Vikings from a 7-3 halftime deficit.

"I've been called a loser," Tarkenton snapped after the game. "And I've been called a scumbler. The only thing I want to be known as is a winner."

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant, his usual composed self after the close victory, told newsmen, "We must have resold pro football to a lot of viewers today."

Grant cited several plays—a dropped pass from Tarkenton to Gilliam, Bob Bryant's fumble of a Mike Bragg punt and Mike Baas' interception of a Tarkenton pass—as "big plays" which kept the Vikings in a whole the entire first half.

"At halftime," Grant said, "we talked about loosening up and getting our running game going. We rushed for only 20 yards in the first half and realized we couldn't win on passing alone."

"Reed really did the job for us. We gave him the game ball. His teammates call him 'The Seed,' and you could see why from the way he kind of squirts through the holes like a watermelon seed squirts through your fingers."

Reed, who rushed 17 times for 95 yards and caught five passes for 76 yards, said other teams had been "keying" on fellow running back Chuck Foreman since early in the season.

"I've been here six years now," Reed grinned. "I really don't have any great explanation for the way I played today. It was just about time I did something."

Grant said the Vikings would hold a squad meeting Sunday morning and take off until after Christmas before traveling to an unspecified warming climate to prepare for their next game.

"I'm just gonna sit back and watch television tomorrow," Grant said. "This game might have been our last guys' Christmas presents to their wives."

"Eller didn't write anything on the blackboard," explained running back Oscar Reed, "he punched it, tossed it around and kicked it. Man, he was really

Playoffs put Orioles in black

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Only the five game American League championship series saved the Baltimore Orioles from losing money in the fiscal year ending Oct. 31, club management reported this weekend.

In a letter prepared for stockholders, Executive Vice President J. Frank Cashen said, "Exclusive of championship series revenue, the Orioles showed a loss of $264,810."

"However, participation in that five-game championship series produced extraordinary income of approximately $350,000 which enabled the corporation to show a pre-tax profit of $85,190 and a modest post-tax net profit of $45,521."

In fiscal 1972, a year in which the Orioles did not make the championship playoffs, the club sustained a loss of $214,582, Cashen said.

Detroit stuns Michigan St.

DETROIT (UPI) — Owen Wells scored a layup basket with 10 seconds left in an overtime session Saturday night, rallying the University of Detroit to a 75-71 victory over Michigan State.

Detroit led most of the first half but went to the locker room at halftime with a narrow 38-37 lead.

Wells and Walter Smith led the Titans scoring in the second half but the Spartans came back and went ahead with nine minutes of play left.

The lead wavered until deadlocked 63-63 at the end of regulation play.

Knicks win

NEW YORK (UPI) — Rugged Dave DeBusschere muscled his way to 25 points Saturday night in leading the New York Knicks to a 99-88 victory over the Detroit Pistons.

DeBusschere scored a 12-0 surge early in the third quarter with eight points that carried New York to a 62-52 margin. His 15-foot jumper with three minutes gone in the season tied the game at 52-all and a Dean Meminger layup put New York in front for good.

Buckeyes use frosh punter

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes said Saturday that freshman Mike Kauton probably will replace Tom Sklabady as the Buckeyes' punter against University of Southern California in the Rose Bowl.

Sklabady, the Buckeyes' punter all season, suffered a fractured ankle in Ohio State's 10-10 tie with Michigan Nov. 25. Sklabady averaged 35.7 yards on punts this season and Buckeye opponents returned 15 punts only 34 yards this year.

Hayes admitted his decision about Kauton may have been provincial because the freshman is from Caldwell, Ohio.

"That's a good country because that's where my people come from," he noted.

The Buckeyes worked out Saturday and then visited Saturday with their coach, John McKay is giving his team Saturday and Sunday off.

Gophers edge Butler 70-68

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Dennis Shaffer hit five of Minnesota's points in the third overtime Saturday night to lift the Gophers to a 70-68 victory over Butler.

Shaffer finished with 25 points to lead all scorers in the contest. His 18-foot jumper with five seconds left in the third extra period was the clincher in the game. He also hit a bucket in the first overtime.

Trailing, 57-55, Minnesota's Phil Saunders hit a basket at the gun to force the first extra period. In the second overtime, Butler held a 63-59 edge, but baskets by Tony Dungy and Kenny Robinson knotted the contest again.

Louisville tops Bradley

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Ninth-ranked Louisville launched its bid for the Missouri Valley conference championship Saturday night with a 74-65 victory over Bradley behind 10 points by Bill Butler and 17 by Allen Murphy.

Scoring the first eight points of the game, the Cardinals never headed as they posted their sixth straight win since a season-opening loss to Cincinnati.

Arizona State rips Pitt 28-7 with late surge

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Arizona State, its high-powered offense stymied through three quarters by penalties and turnovers came up with three fourth-quarter touchdowns to defeat Pittsburgh 28-7 in the third annual Fiesta Bowl Friday night.

Danny White, chased 20 yards behind the line of scrimmage by Mike Bulino, lofted a pass covering 60 yards to Greg Hudson in the end zone with 10:54 left in the game to start the fireworks and put the Sun Devils ahead 16-7.

Woody Green added touchdown runs of 23 and one yard to clinch the victory for 10th-ranked Arizona State.

Green's 23-yard run came 70 seconds after the White-to-Hudson pass and on Arizona State's first play after Neal Skarin blocked a punt. The final touchdown was set up by a 50-yard pass from White to Morris Owens that gave ASU a first down at the Panthers' one.

The anticipated offensive show got off to a good start when both teams scored in the first two and one-half minutes of play, then became bogged down in a match of turnovers.

Pittsburgh freshman Tony

Dorsett led the scoring 47 seconds into the game, going in from the 12 on two carries after White fumbled the snap on the first play from scrimmage. Less than two minutes later, Green went over right tackle from the three to climb a 73-yard drive on four plays, highlighted by a 51-yard pass from White to Hudson.

Oakland shatters Pittsburgh 33-14

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Old George Blanda booted four field goals and Willie Brown ran 54 yards with a pass interception Saturday as the Oakland Raiders defeated the Pittsburgh Steelers 33-14 in the opening round of the AFC playoffs.

Three of Blanda's field goals came in the second half when the Raiders scored 23 points, two of them after pass interceptions, as Oakland advanced to the conference championship for the fifth time since 1967. The Raiders will play the winners of Sunday's Cincinnati-Miami game for the conference championship on Dec. 30.

The 1974 fishing regulations are now available at the local vendors. There are two changes this year in the format. First, the resident fish species are covered in a separate pamphlet from the salmon and steelhead. The other change involves the front cover which has a place for a mailing address rather than the usual fishing picture. This will save considerably on mailing costs, since no envelope will be required.

There are minor changes in the regulations for Magic Valley Region. Fish Creek Reservoir does not have a winter ice fishing season this year because it was felt the fishermen had harvested a sufficient number this past fall and some trout should be allowed to remain until the general fish season beginning on May 24, 1974. The Fish and Game Commission has doubled the limits on this reservoir when they learned it was to be drained last fall. However, it was not drained and sufficient water remains to carry over the fish in the reservoir.

Little Wood and Roseworth Reservoirs will have the usual ice fishing season from January 1 through February 28. Both should be good fishing. Those people fishing Emerald Lake and the Minidoka Gravel ponds after January 1, should note that the trout limit has been reduced to 5 fish per day. This type of regulation is being applied in many new areas that receive heavy fishing pressure and contain planted trout in an attempt to better distribute the catch.

Salmon Falls Creek from the Nevada line downstream to Salmon Falls Creek Reservoir is now open year around along with the reservoir itself.

There are many waters that are open year around in Magic Valley. The spring areas such as Niagara Springs are some of the better producers during the winter months and the dry fly fishermen can even take his limit, on some of the warmer days in these year round springs averaging 59 degrees.

Mormon Reservoir near Fairfield is another year round water that should provide some good ice fishing this winter since anglers were catching 2 and 3 pound trout this fall. Check the regulations for your favorite area.

The Department recently received a shipment of the Idaho Lakes and Reservoir booklets which supplies information on location, fish species, and picnic facilities of most of the larger lowland lakes and reservoirs in the state. You can order a free copy from the Jerome Regional Office, Box 428 or call them at 324-4359 and request a copy.

three pass interceptions and did not make a single mistake on route to the victory which atoned for a loss to the Steelers in the opening round of the 1972 AFC playoffs.

Blanda, who celebrated his 46th birthday last summer, booted field goals of 25, 31, 22 and 10 yards, and the only time he missed was on a 49-yard try late in the game when the Raiders were merely playing out the clock.

Pittsburgh quarterback Terry Bradshaw harassed throughout by the Oakland front four of Tony Cline, Otis Sistrunk, Art Thoms and Horace Jones, rarely had a chance to set up on passing plays. However, he accounted for all the Steeler points with a four-yard throw to Barry Pearson with 1:55 left in the second quarter and a 28-yard loss to Frank Lewis with 9:12 remaining in the game.

Hubbard's first touchdown and Blanda's initial field goal staked the Raiders to a 10-7 lead at the half and Blanda followed with two more field goals and Brown ran 54 yards with his pass interception in the third quarter for a 23-7 margin.

Blanda nulled his fourth field goal in the third minute of the final quarter and then, with the Raiders conceding short passes, Bradshaw passed to Lewis to close the gap to 26-14, but that score proved academic when Hubbard, carrying the ball on every other play, marched the Raiders to the Pittsburgh one with less than two minutes remaining. He then dived over for the final score.

Raiders say they'll be perfect soon

OAKLAND (UPI) — Perfection breeds champions and coach John Madden and quarterback Ken Stabler think the Oakland Raiders are nearing that plateau.

Playing flawlessly on offense against one of the toughest defensive lines in pro football, the Raiders handed the Pittsburgh Steelers their worst whipping of the year Saturday to vault into the American Football Conference championship against either Cincinnati or Miami.

"We played close to a perfect offensive game and it was definitely a team victory ... no grudge thing," said Madden of the 33-14 pasting.

"When we played Pittsburgh in the past we had some bad experiences with too many turnovers and mistakes. Today, we wanted to play a strong, solid football game and that's what we did."

Oakland had no fumbles and Stabler was without an interception while hitting 14 of 17 passes for 129 yards. In fact, the only Raider letdowns were when Stabler got sacked twice for 13 lost yards.

There were 12,800,000 registered motor vehicles in California in 1962.

Steeler coach says team was badly outplayed

OAKLAND (UPI) — "They beat the hell out of us, it's as simple as that."

That was Pittsburgh Steelers' coach Chuck Noll's overall observation of Saturday's first round AFC playoff with Oakland which the Raiders won, 33-14.

"Their line (defense) blew us out," said Noll, "and their backs ran through tackles. Not very much about the game was worth a damn as far as we're concerned. There are no high points for us."

Noll could have added that the 1973 season also is all over for the Steelers, who won the AFC Central title last year and got into the 1973 playoffs via the wild card. Now, they go home to watch the rest of the NFL post-season play on television.

The Raiders dominated the Steelers both ways. On offense, they held Franco Harris, Frenchy Fuqua and company to only 65 yards and while Terry Bradshaw did throw for 167 yards and Pittsburgh's two touchdowns, he was in trouble on nearly every play.

Three interceptions — by Oakland's Phil Villapiano, Willie Brown and George Atkinson — led to 13 Raiders points and the Steelers never recovered from the mistakes.

Brown's interception came in the third quarter with the Raiders in front by only 16-7. Bradshaw tried to throw a sideline pass to Preston Pearson but Brown read the play correctly. He stepped in front of Pearson and threw the ball into the air and then ran 54 yards unopposed for a 23-7 edge and that was the ball game.

"It was a play action pass," said Noll. "Bradshaw was supposed to pre-read the coverage and he didn't."

Padre fans shouldn't celebrate too soon

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — San Diego Padres' president E. J. (Buz) Bavasi urged San Diego fans Friday not to celebrate too soon about the failure of a Washington, D.C., group to meet conditions to buy the National League Baseball club.

"I wouldn't break open the bottle if I were them," he said. "Joseph Danzansky has done everything the baseball people asked him to, and he isn't through yet."

Bavasi earlier announced he would remain in California if the club moved to Washington. He said his son, Peter, would continue to serve as general manager with the club.

"I believe the matter is still open for the Danzansky group unless (owner C. Arnholt) Smith feels the National League is ready to operate the team until it proves itself."

San Diego mayor Pete Wilson said, "I am obviously delighted with the news and am bound and determined to keep the club in San Diego."

"I'm not surprised that the conditions attached by the National League club owners proved so onerous that they had second thoughts. He said he had talked with the group formed by Hollywood race-track director Marjorie Everett earlier in the day. She told him she "stood ready to go ahead with the operation of the club and make it a winner."

The city has lawsuits totaling $84 million against the transfer.

Wilson said, "We would love to dismiss the suits. Our purpose is not to collect the damages, but to keep the club in San Diego."

Earl Monroe activated

NEW YORK (UPI) — Earl Monroe, sidelined since late August because of surgery for bone spurs, Saturday was picked on the New York Knicks' 12-man active National Basketball Association roster.

Monroe, who underwent surgery in August for removal of bone spurs from his left foot, has missed the Knicks' first 34 games. To make room for him, the Knicks placed veteran guard Dick Garrett on waivers.

Pupil more relaxed than teacher for AFC playoff

MIAMI (UPI) — An apprehensive teacher takes on a confident, self-assured pupil in Miami's Orange Bowl Sunday when the world champion Miami Dolphins play host to the Cincinnati Bengals in a first-round AFC playoff game. The game matches the old master, coach Paul Brown of Cincinnati, against one of his former players, Dolphins coach Don Shula, with Sunday's winner taking on the survivor of Saturday's Oakland-Pittsburgh game next Sunday for the AFC title and a trip to the Super Bowl in Houston on Jan. 13.

"Paul Brown's greatest asset is his ability to teach," said Shula, whose Dolphins were 12-2 this season and captured the AFC East title. "Once you learned something from Paul Brown, you never forgot it."

Brown, who led his Bengals to a 10-4 record, including six consecutive victories at the end of the season for the AFC Central title, will find out for certain Sunday how much Shula has retained.

A sellout crowd of more than 80,000 fans will watch the nationally-televised game, but the south Florida area will be blacked out since there were still tickets unsold at the 72-hour pre-game deadline. The game has no special monetary value, with players receiving only a regular one-game salary.

"Both teams are well balanced, but mistake-proof Miami seems to have the edge in experience. Oddsmakers think so, too, and have established the Dolphins as eight-point favorites."

Miami offers a powerful running attack led by Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris, a brilliant tactical quarterback in Bob Griese, possibly the game's most dangerous receiver in Paul Warfield and an opportunistic defense headed by end Bill Stanfill and safeties Dick Anderson and Jake Scott.

That defense could be weakened, however, by the absence of tackle Manny Fernandez, listed as doubtful for Sunday with a thigh injury. He will be replaced by Maully Moore.

Balance is also the keynote for Cincinnati. Ken Anderson, the quarterback matured late this season and combined with wide receiver Isaac Curtis for a devastating long-range punch. Rookie Boobie Clark and Essex Johnson both came very close to the 1,000-yard mark this season and double as dangerous receivers. A defense headed by tackle Mike Reid and middle linebacker Bill Bergey takes a back seat to none.

Yankees going back through applicants after Cronin ruling

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frank Robinson, Dave Bristol, Eddie Stanky, Maury Wills, Bill White, etc.—all the familiar names—have returned to the forefront as candidates for the New York Yankee managerial job in the wake of Joe Cronin's turnaround decision last week that made Dick Williams still property of the Oakland A's.

With Williams having been snatched from beneath their Christmas tree and replaced by a stocking full of coal by Cronin and A's owner Charles O. Finley, the Yankees now face a decision of either (1) finding a new manager to replace the departed Ralph Houk or (2) compensating Finley with some prize players.

White Finley has previously demanded players such as all stars Bobby Murcer and Thurman Munson as payment for the rights to sign Williams, in recent weeks he "softened" his asking price to the two prize Yankee farmhands, outfielder Otto Velez and pitcher Scott MacGregor.

It would now appear the Yankees, if a lesser compensation with Finley can't be agreed upon, will have to find a new manager while Williams sits out the two remaining years on his contract.

Robinson, Wills, White and current Yankee Coach Elston Howard would all give the New Yorkers a glamour image of having hired the first black manager. Wills and Howard are known to be interested, but prying Robinson away from the California Angels could possibly open up a new can of Williamslike worms. White has not expressed any great interest to abandon his current position as Yankee broadcaster.

There have also been reports that the Yankees might try to lure Earl Weaver away from the Baltimore Orioles but again, after the Williams mess, that would seem a very remote possibility. Coaxing Eddie Stanky away from the comfortable life of a college coach at South Alabama would seem like a slightly better bet.

Bristol, meanwhile, always is popping up as a managerial possibility, the latest being as Williams' replacement with the A's.

Michigan topples Bowling Green

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Leonard Worrell sank three free throws in the final 11 seconds of play Saturday night to boost Michigan to a 70-66 victory over Bowling Green in the title match of the Michigan Invitational Tournament.

Michigan dominated the first half and a 20-point Wolverine outburst gave them a 41-20 halftime advantage.

But Bowling Green roared back in the second half to pull to within one point, 67-66.

Dick Selgo of Bowling Green fouled Worrell with 11 seconds to play and Worrell sank one of two tries from the free throw line to make it 68-66. Worrell was immediately fouled again and he hit both shots to assure the Wolverines the win.

Kevin Brown and Stan Frankowski combined for 48 points in the tourney's consolation match to boost Fordham to an 88-72 victory.

Dayton edges Cal in tourney finals

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — The University of Dayton, behind the shooting of Rickie Smith and Mike Sylvester, managed a 66-62 victory over the University of California Saturday night in the championship game of the Dayton Invitational.

The Flyers, tied four times in the game, managed to break away in the second half building a seven-point lead.

The Golden Bears were down at the half, 36-35. Smith, who collected 20 points in the game, was voted the most valuable player in the championship.

In the consolation game, Drake University downed the University of Georgia, 66-60.

Drake, now 5-2, took advantage of Georgia's turnovers and poor shooting in the first half to jump to an early lead and a 15-point halftime margin, 34-19.

High scorers for Drake were Larry Haralson and Andy Graham, both with 18 points. Ed Peterson dumped in 18 for Georgia.

Kentucky slips by Stanford 78-77

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — A stolen ball and three foul shots in the final two minutes gave Kentucky a 78-77 victory over Stanford Saturday night for the championship of the University of Kentucky Invitational Tournament.

Earlier, Ohio State held off a determined Dartmouth team, 85-80, to take third place in the tournament.

Stanford's towering front line totaled 53 points over Kentucky's shorter but quicker man-to-man defense throughout the game.

All three of Stanford's front line fouled out, however, enabling Kentucky to secure its victory in the final minutes.

With the game tied 71-71, Kentucky's junior forward Jimmy Dan Conner stole the ball from the Cardinals Ben Blunt and made the layup, which put the Wildcats ahead to stay.

Stanford's 7-foot center Rich Kelley grabbed 27 rebounds, tying a tournament record, and stuffed in 28 points to lead in both departments.

Kentucky's Kevin Grevey led the Wildcats scoring with 25 points followed by guard Ronnie Lyons with 21 points.

Center Glenn Price paced the Bonnies' attack with 21 points while forward Eastie Hollis had 14. St. Bonaventure suffered its first loss in seven starts.

UCLA rips Bonnies' undefeated boast

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Top-rated UCLA put six men in double figures Saturday night and the Bruins demolished previously unbeaten St. Bonaventure 111-59 in their sixth win of the year and 41st in a row over four seasons.

Junior forward Dave Meyers led the Bruin onslaught with a career high of 10 points while Keith Wilkes and Ralph Drollinger had 14 each.

All-America center Bill Walton, playing only 22 minutes, had 13 points and 17 rebounds for the Bruins and guards Pete Tygovich and Andre McCarter added 10 apiece.

CYCLE WINNERS MOTORCYCLE SHOP NAMED BY "NAME GAME" WINNERS. TWIN FALLS — With the country on the verge of gas rationing and energy chief William E. Simon asking for consumers to use only 10 gallons of gas a week, motorcycles may soon become a principle mode of transportation. Somewhat in anticipation of the use of motorcycles, Nyle Smith, Twin Falls, has purchased, renamed, remodeled and enlarged the local Honda and Kawasaki motorcycle distributorship. Formerly, named Dlasus Motors, the business at 1806 Kimberly Road has been taken over by Smith and his wife and renamed as "World of Wheels." The name is unique because it was chosen in a "Name Game" contest put on by Smith. He said he wanted the public to name his business, so to those two who submitted the most original, workable and useable name, he has given a new motorcycle. Contest winners were Thayne Hendricks, 11, Bellevue and June Abernathy, 10, Twin Falls — two of the youngest entrants. Smith said the entries were judged on originality, seriousness of thought, in the end, parts of the best two names were used in the final name. Smith also uses the slogan, "The Motorcycle Supermarket," because his shop is in the unusual position of selling two directly competing motorcycles — Honda and Kawasaki. Since Smith and his wife have taken over the business, they have enlarged the display area and the service department. He said the business emphasizes satisfying the customers and giving prompt service on their motorcycles. Smith said he is selling a record number of motorcycles for this time of year. He said sales are generally very slow because of the winter season, but business has been going at a record pace. No doubt they will go to some extent anticipating those gas stamps or ration of 10 gallons, and the 300 miles the mini-car will take them on those 10 gallons. Christmas means singing, Santa and goodies for retarded class

By BART QUESNELL.
Special to the Times-News
The festivity of Christmas to retarded children means Christmas trees, singing and Santa Claus, not too unlike other children.

According to Gladys Coxen, director of special education at Robert Stuart, each child in the school (some just slow learners) can understand Christmas differently.

She said some of the students say "Christmas is a day when Jesus was born and others say that's a story and don't believe it."

"For most," she said, "it means toys and Santa Claus." Several teachers play "Silent Night" and "Away in a Manger" but many of the kids probably don't comprehend the meaning, the director said.

Some years the classes have played out the Christmas pageant obtaining robes from the Salvation Army for one occasion.

This year one class will take the play to several rest homes in Twin Falls.

Many of the teachers are careful not to throw too much religion of Christmas into their classrooms. The practice is contrary to state education policy.

Mrs. Jane Haggardt, one of the eight teachers in special education at Robert Stuart, has cut pictures of the journey to Bethlehem from magazines and posted them about the room with a small memoranda about each segment of the story.

Other teachers have had the children formulate their own ideas. Several students have drawn Christmas scenes, cut them from stiff poster paper and taped them on windows and in halls.

Huge Santa Clauses are prevalent.

Some of the students copy figures onto wood and then use a wood-burning kit to engrave the plaques. A smooth coat of varnish turns the once dull piece of wood into a loving present for mothers and fathers.

Simple pieces of wood with pictures pasted onto them serve as other simple presents.

The children, depending on their ability to grasp the meaning of objects, are often pleased with simple toys.

Here's a list of what many of the children have said they wanted.

Pocket radios, some dolls, even some 17 year olds like them; combs, records, rings, necklaces, powders and perfumes, small puzzles, stuffed toys, billfolds and harmonicas.

Sounds like a normal list but Mrs. Coxen points out that all objects have to be especially safe.

"Some of the younger children are very careless and objects can be dangerous," she said.

All of the children love clothes, Mrs. Coxen explained. Bubble blowing kits are the favorite however.

It's not easy to provide gifts at Christmastime for all the children.

Many of the parents are on welfare, according to Mrs. Coxen and don't have the money.

Many people contribute funds however, and every year a grandmother, daughter and granddaughter present gifts in a special session.

Santa Claus always shows up and cookies are devoured by the hundreds each year.

Since 1959 Gladys Coxen and the supporters of the special education classes have made sure that the children see Santa, sing Christmas carols, eat lots of candy and cookies, and have the chance to blow bubbles.

Today's hand is of little interest to rubber-bridge players. Almost any pair would get to three notrump and score an easy game.

Duplicate players would do the same, but there is a lot of difference between making one overtrick and two.

At first glance five notrump looks like a wrap up. South is sure of the ace and king of each major suit, six diamond tricks and the ace of clubs. Yet West has a play at his disposal to give South a chance to wind up with one trick less than other declarers.

The play isn't at all difficult. South can win the first spade or hold up and take the second. In any event, he should lead a diamond and here is where West can throw that monkey wrench in South's machine.

He plays his king of diamonds! This play won't make any difference to anyone who sees all the cards as we do.

At the table, South is only looking at his own hand and dummy. He will only make three diamond tricks if that king was a real singleton and he wins the trick. He can be sure of five diamond tricks if he lets the king hold.

Most declarers would let that king hold on the theory that four notrump made won't be a bad score but three notrump-down, one will be and the West player smart enough to play the king will have shown a nice match-point gain by his play.

Popular new knit fabrics pose new problems in upkeep, according to Becky Culp, clothing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Some loosely woven knits are bad about snagging—the biggest problem consumers cite, she said. The strength of the fibers causes pilling when they work to the surface in small balls and don't break away.

Woman lives a century

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — She loves Christmas and this year will celebrate a very special one — her 100th!

Eagerly looking forward not only to Christmas, but also to her birthday three days later when she will become 100 years old, is Mrs. Tina Knyprsta of Sky View Manor.

Mrs. Knyprsta's birth in 1873 is recorded in an old family Bible which belonged to Mrs. Knyprsta's mother, The Bible, a treasured family heirloom nearly 270 years old, is written in Holland Dutch. The book is covered with leather and has hand-hammered hinges and catches.

Attached to it is a chain, and as Mrs. Knyprsta demonstrated, she used to put her hand through the loop and carry the Bible to church.

The youngest of ten children, Mrs. Knyprsta was born in Anjum, The Netherlands in 1873. She came to the United States in November of 1904 and settled in the Chicago area where two of her brothers lived. She was married to H. G. Knyprsta March 25, 1904.

The couple came to the Twin Falls tract in the spring of 1908 and lived for 28 years on a small farm east of Buhl. In 1936 they retired from farming and moved to Twin Falls. Mr. Knyprsta died Dec. 6, 1950.

The couple had four children. Mrs. Fred (Elizabeth) Ringert lives in Castleford and Mrs. Welden (Tracy) Haskins lives in Twin Falls. Mrs. Everett (Sophie) Bechtold died in Boise in 1959, and Mrs. Frank (Clara) Brinkman died in Texas in 1962. Mrs. Knyprsta has 11 grandchildren and 5 great-grandchildren.

She also has many nephews and nieces still living in Holland and she plans to send them copies of the paper with her picture.

She still remembers Christmases back in Holland when she was a child. "We all went to church," she says, "where everyone sang Hallelujah! Christ is Born! Then we came home and St. Nicholas had been to our house and left presents for the children hidden throughout the house." Mrs. Knyprsta says her favorite Christmas carol is "Silent Night."

When asked what she wanted for Christmas, she said there was nothing special she had been wanting, that she just loved Christmas for itself. She enjoys the groups of carolers who come to the nursing home during the holiday season to sing for the residents.

She has lived in Sky View Manor for 12 years and is the oldest resident of the home. She is known to everyone as "Tina" and is a great favorite of all the nurses and personnel at the home. She is a lifetime member of the Presbyterian Church.

Her mind has remained remarkably clear, according to her family, and she still takes a lively interest in news and current events. A favorite Christmas gift several years ago was a subscription to Newsweek magazine.

She used to enjoy watching the news on television but now that her eyes are beginning to fail, she turns to her radio for news of conditions in the world today.

Mrs. Knyprsta admires President Nixon whom she thinks has a "big job" at which he is trying to do his best.

In honor of her 100th birthday anniversary, an open house is being planned for Mrs. Knyprsta from 2-4 p.m. Dec. 28 at the manor. It will be a gala event, complete with refreshments and a decorated cake.

MR. AND MRS. OLEN W. FOREMAN

Ceremony unites couple

TWIN FALLS — Linda May Watson and Olen Wayne Foreman were married in an evening ceremony Dec. 8 at the First Presbyterian Church, Twin Falls.

Rev. Robert Van Nest conducted the double ring candlelight ceremony. The church was decorated with red carnations, white chrysanthemums, pine boughs and holly.

The altar was accented with five candelabra decorated with chrysanthemums, carnations and holly and two large baskets of red and white flowers. A large Christmas tree decorated with white ornaments and small white lights was placed at the side of the altar.

The aisles were marked with candelabra trimmed with white carnations, pine and red velvet ribbons. The windows of the church were decorated with pine arrangements and candles.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire styled gown. The bodice and long slim pointed sleeves were decorated with pearls, crystal bugle beads and scalloped Chantilly lace.

The dress featured a transparent yoke with high Victorian neckband and a full sapeau skirt with Chantilly lace appliques. The skirt fell to a wateau chapel-length train bordered with lace, and crystal bugle beads.

Her matching chapel-length mantilla of nylon illusion bordered with Chantilly lace was held by a lace and pearl pillbox headpiece. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried a nosegay of red carnations, white roses, pine and holly tied with red velvet ribbon.

She carried a 75-year-old handkerchief borrowed from a close friend.

The couple had memorized their vows and recited them to each other. At the end of the ceremony, the bride presented her mother and her mother-in-law each a white rose from her nosegay.

Mrs. Roger Steers, Port Arthur, Tex., was matron of honor. Mrs. James Watson, sister-in-law of the bride, was bridesmaid.

Mike Olson, Fort Collins, Colo., was best man. Ushers were Warren Paul, LaFayette, Colo., and James Watson, brother of the bride.

Sharon Wood, Imperial, Neb., cousin of the bride, was flower girl and Gregory Fritz, Yuma, Colo., cousin of the bride, was ringbearer. James Watson was candlelighter.

Mrs. David Mead and Mrs. Robert Van Nest presented two vocal duets with Mrs. Charles Allen as accompanist.

Mrs. Harley Paynter was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Joe Shelby cared for gifts.

The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony at the Blue Lakes Country Club.

The bride's table was covered with white satin with a sheer ruffled skirt over red satin with swags of red and white chrysanthemums, carnations and streamers of red satin ribbon.

The table was centered with a three-tiered cake with fresh flowers between the layers. The cake was set on a red fountain surrounded with greenery and red flowers. Six individual heart cakes were placed around the fountain.

The cake was iced in white and trimmed with clusters of red lilies and green leaves and had three satin wedding bells in front of a heart-shaped arch on top. Crystal candelabra holding red tapers and trimmed with red and white flower swags and red ribbon flanked the cake.

A white Roman champagne fountain and silver coffee service completed table arrangements.

Guests were seated at quartet tables covered with white satin cloths with red and crystal centerpieces and red satin matchbooks and red napkins with the couple's names.

Punch and champagne were served by Mrs. Barbara Stump and Mrs. Geraldine McQueen. Cake was served by Mrs. Harriet Denton and Mrs. Stan Crom. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Charles Robinson.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner at the Turf Club Friday evening.

Off-quality fruits and vegetables often can be purchased at reduced prices but may not represent a savings. Waste in preparation of the poorer quality produce may offset the price reduction.

A shrunken garment sometimes can be steamed and stretched back into shape. But usually it reverts to its shrunken dimensions upon hanging for several hours.

Snags on knit garments should be pulled to the underside of the fabric with a needle or needle threader with a fine wire loop. Cutting the snag off can leave a hole that's almost impossible to mend without showing.

To remove balls or pills from worn areas of knit garments, carefully shave the fabric.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: About a month ago we had a flash flood, and I lost nearly all the treasures I had saved for 45 years. Albums filled with pictures and snapshots, letters, clippings—none of which can be replaced. I had them stored in plastic containers, and when I opened them, all I found was mud and water!

It seems that a part of my life is gone, and I am heartsick over it. I am 60 and have had a very happy life. Our children are married and gone, and there are just the two of us.

I've tried to keep busy and not dwell on my loss, but it is on my mind constantly. I wish I could forget this terrible nightmare!

Someone I feel that you can help me. Abby, have you ever lost any of your treasures? And if you have, how did you get over it? DEPRESSED IN HOUSTON

Treasures lost

DEAR DEPRESSED: Yes, Dear, I lost my beautiful mother in 1915. [She was only 37.] And a few years later, I lost a wonderful father. [He was 62.] And not a day passes but what I don't thank God for letting me have my parents for as long as I did. I know many who were not nearly as blessed as I, and I think of those who have survived a far greater tragedy—losing their children.

Now, what were you saying about clippings and pictures and other "treasures"?

DEAR ABBY: Out of the blue, my wife told me she had just terminated a love affair with a friend of ours, but she wouldn't tell me his name. I now feel very awkward around all our friends, and I've asked my wife to tell me which one it was so I will quit having negative feelings about all of them. She claims it is all over now so his name is unimportant. How can I get her to name the man? I do not want to end our marriage. EENY MEENY MINEY MO

DEAR MO: Tell your wife you think she invented the whole story to make you jealous, and unless she tells you his name, you aren't buying her "confession."

DEAR ABBY: I have had several heated arguments with my wife over the following problem: When I die, I want to be buried as soon as possible. I do not want a funeral, with flowers, prayers, a priest, and a bunch of long-lost relatives and friends kneeling beside my made-up corpse. I believe all that nonsense only prolongs the agony of immediate family and close friends.

My wife says she will not allow my wish to be carried out. Can I take legal action now to assure me that my wishes will be carried out? NOT A FANCY MAN

DEAR NOT: Morally, it would seem only right that you should have your say about what happens to your body after your demise. But legally, your remains may become the "property" of the next of kin. If I were you, I'd talk to my lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I had an argument about something and hopes you can settle it. Does Lawrence Wolfe's champagne lady have false teeth? Or are they her own? CURIOUS IN LANCASTER

DEAR-CURIOUS: They're hers. [I got it straight from the horse's mouth.]

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69706, L.A., Calif. 90066. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 122 Lusk Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Shock tactics applied

By HEDRICK SMITH (c) New York Times Service MOSCOW — Soviet authorities have turned to shock tactics to curb the rising tide of interest in mod fashions, especially among Soviet young people.

One newspaper has devoted an entire page to warning Russians with a yen for the latest styles of the physical hazards of platform shoes, tight-fitting jeans, women's beauty creams, men's long hair, and brightly colored nylon sport shirts.

Item: A 27-year-old woman crossing a street in a maxiskirt and platform shoes, tripped, stumbled, fell and was run over by a car and hospitalized with two broken legs.

Item: A 62-year-old woman, plagued with chronic hypertension, died within a few hours of rinsing her hair with ursoil, a mercury-based Soviet hair dye, to which she was unknowingly allergic and which caused severe swelling, bronchial asthma and fatally high blood pressure.

Item: A young student doing practical work at a factory was badly injured when his long hair got caught in the spinning shaft of a lathe he was operating and which lacked a protective screen.

Item: A 25-year-old worker in a radio assembly plant was badly burned and partly disabled when his bright nylon sportshirt caught fire when he accidentally caused a short circuit in the equipment he was using.

In each case, the hunger to be fashionable was blamed by the Soviet experts quoted by Literturnaya Gazeta, the Writers Union weekly, which delved into the topic.

One specialist suggested, moreover, that there was something basically alien to proletarian society in the current urge to be fashionable.

From time immemorial, the word "fashion" has been linked with another word—idleness," observed Dr. Loansky, director of the Institute of Sanitary Education, "but ours is a society of toilers. They spend a considerable part of their lives at plants, factories, offices. Our fashion must not only be democratic but also realistic, which means that it must be brought as close as possible to the real lives of people.

"We must understand once and for all," he went on, "that what is acceptable for an idler strolling the boulevards of Paris all day or killing time in bars at a Florida resort is not always suitable for a working lad from the uralmash (a huge machine-building plant in the Ural Mountains), or a girl weaver from Tryokhorka (a big textile plant near Moscow).

By western standards, the fashions on Soviet sidewalks are still fairly conservative, though this fall more young men were sporting necklength hair and before the winter cold snap forced women to don boots, a sprinkling of platform shoes could be seen at theatrical performances and around some of the more fashionable shopping or residential areas of the city. Maxis, however, are a rarity.

The young, impatient with the relatively slow spread of mod fashions, quite frequently accept foreign tourists during warmer seasons and literally try to bargain for the jeans, stylish shoes, bright shirts or other modish attire they are wearing.

Older people and some officials have fought this trend.

Numerous articles in the Soviet press have depicted Western fashions as insidious and subversive incursions from a decadent bourgeois society. But official attitudes have relaxed toward some items, such as women's pants suits and wigs.

The Literturnaya Gazeta display also made the point to Soviet readers that some Western specialists were concerned about the deleterious effects of some modern fashions. It quotes French doctors as having told Paris match that tight-fitting jeans and other similar garments can cause physical deformities and that low-slung modern furniture causes drooping spines, lumbago and other problems.

Wins painting

Painting given to TF boy

TWIN FALLS — An 11-year-old Twin Falls boy was the lucky winner of a painting donated to the Twin Falls Soroptimist Club for a fund raising effort.

Curt Tidmore won the painting "Aglow" after his name was selected from among those of about 700 ticket holders.

The painting was donated by Twin Falls artist Novella Lazaros. The painting shows the rays of the sun breaking through the forest. Mrs. Lazaros said it was inspired by a child about Curt's age who was walking through the woods.

Curt, the son of Mary Tidmore, said he will leave the painting with his grandmother, Mrs. Jay Davis, until he is older.

Money received in donations for tickets on the painting will be used by the Soroptimists to purchase a special thermal blanket for Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, and for other projects.

Cheaters will 'be surprised'

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — A computer device to stop slot machine cheaters by sounding an alarm or stopping the machine will get a trial run in a Las Vegas casino.

A 60-day trial for the device at the MGM Grand Hotel was approved Thursday by the state gaming commission.

Cheaters balk Nevada slot machines of $10 million a year, using everything from gum wrappers to hairpins, the commission was told. But the new device will spot any irregularity in a machine and ring a bell or lock the "one arm bandit," an electronics expert said.

To make up for the energy shortage... Our house is at 244 DuBois Ave. The display is a masterpiece of technical and creative talent.

SIGNS outside the home of the Donald Lambert's inform passers-by that the Idaho Power Co. has sanctioned the giant Christmas display nearby and the family is conserving energy in other ways to make up for the "luxury."

Report From America: A street in mourning. By EDWARD A. PULTON - IRVING, Tex. (UPI) - Cripple Creek Street in this Dallas suburb each Christmas decks itself in red. Strings of lights outline each of the 24 homes and large, red bulbs outline the sidewalks and driveways, all around the yard. Each year, Cripple Creek Street is jammed during the evening with cars of families touring the quarter of a mile from Grauwiler Road to the dead end of Cripple Creek around the circle and back out again, looking at the lights. Not this year. "People are going to think we're in mourning," said Mrs. Robert Byrd, who lives in the 1713 lot of Cripple Creek. Mrs. B. R. Bell, of the 1524 lot, has participated in the red light show the past four years, and she said she had a lot of pride in the street. "We've had many a car drive up and down this street," she said. "You couldn't even back out of the driveway for the cars on some nights." "Why, if we'd give our address or write a check someplace, then lots of people would say, 'Why, you live on that beautiful street.' They see it every year. We were proud of it."

This year Cripple Creek Street is a casualty of the energy crisis, and President Nixon's request that Americans turn off their outside decorative lights during the 1973 holiday season. There was no community effort to keep the lights off this year, just as there was no organized community effort to turn them on during past years. This year people just didn't put them out. In past years, more people each year would put them out, until all but a few homes were involved. Mrs. Sid Kay, 1091 lot, said the light show began with the ladies in three bridge clubs deciding it would look good, and then pushing for the decorations in all the streets. "It was several years ago, and it just kept spreading down the road," she said. "Now, this year. Well, it's the energy crisis. I'm looking forward to it looking good again, like it did, but its going to be another three years."

Divorce is no problem. Staying hitched is what's so difficult.

MRS. RONALD T. WILSON

Miss Apperson weds Wilson in cathedral

TWIN FALLS — Kris-Tina Apperson and Ronald Thomas Wilson were married Dec. 22 in an afternoon ceremony at Saint Mark's Episcopal Cathedral, Salt Lake City. The ceremony was performed by Father Edward Howlett before an altar flanked with two unadorned Christmas trees. Two red poinsettia plants were placed on the altar along with the holy candles. The traditional Episcopal service included celebration of the Holy Eucharist.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth Rhynsbarger Apperson, Salt Lake City, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Karl J. Wilson, Twin Falls. The bride wore a floor length dress of ivory tulle lace underlined with ivory polyester satin. The dress featured a stand-up collar, long tapered sleeves and a high waistline with lace covered cording where the bodice joins the skirt. The bride designed and made her dress and veil. Her veil of ivory tulle was held in place by a modified bishop's band covered with lace to match the dress. The carried a classic bouquet of red carnations, holly and evergreen tied with red velvet ribbons.

Joy Apperson, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. David Wilson, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Lance Apperson, brother of the bride, was the bride's escort. The couple was honored at a small family dinner at the home of Karleen Wilson Gillespie immediately following the ceremony. A reception in the couple's honor was given later in the evening at the Gillespie home. Decorations were in a Christmas theme and featured rip-off man for Whoville. With tongue in cheek and apologies to Dr. Seuss, the second period American humanities class in Room 211 has put President Nixon in a Grinch role for a bulletin board display titled, "How the President stole Christmas."

Designed, drawn, cut up and pasted entirely by the students, the bulletin board shows the chief executive — complete with that distinctive nose — dressed in a Santa suit. As Santa, Nixon is stuffing the Christmas tree lights into a sack labeled "energy saver." There's a thermostat on the wall beside him — turned down to "freezing" from the more desirable temperatures of "brr," "cold," "comfy," "warm" and "hot."

Next to the fireplace is a window edged with frost and the slogan "Spirit of '73." When the youngsters first came up with the idea for the school's annual Christmas bulletin board "decorating" contest they approached teacher Margaret Dominick somewhat gingerly. "They didn't know if I'd like it," Mrs. Dominick said. "They said, 'It's kind of controversial.'"

She said as long as they understood the President really didn't steal Christmas. "A few of them felt it was disrespectful," Coleman said. Mrs. Dominick said the students did not mean any disrespect but simply had chosen a distinctive means to highlight a national problem at yeuletide.

While the display caught attention of those with a political funnybone it managed to win only a runner-up in ninth grade competition. Another American humanities class across the hall came up with the school's grand prize winner; a snow scene with bambi-like deer, a grinning snowman, a Christmas tree, Santa Claus and a tombstone with the legend "Santa Is Not Dead." It was titled "The Spirit of Christmas is Alive and Well."

TF family promotes lighting contest despite 'shortage'

TWIN FALLS — The Donald Lambert family loves Christmas lighting displays and will have a big one at their home this year. Mrs. Fran Lambert says there's no use in having a "black Christmas," especially since Idaho Power has energy to spare and is willing to supply the holiday displays. "Some ladies like diamonds and furs. I like Christmas displays," she said.

So the national energy shortage will take a back seat to the Lambert's giant display this year at 244 DuBois Ave. Mrs. Lambert is a free-lance commercial artist and beauty consultant. Her husband is a telephone engineer.

For the past 13 years they have combined their talents to create unique Christmas displays in their yard.

They have won several first place awards and honorable mentions in annual display contests. Mrs. Lambert said they will slow down next year. They will not create a new display.

But she is firm in supporting a revival of the Christmas decorating contest which was dropped this year. She said she will put up $200 for a first place award and hopes to raise more money through $5 entry fees for participating homes.

Mrs. Lambert said the contest would "benefit all Twin Falls, both economically and beautifully."

"I would like to see Twin Falls put on the map as being the Christmas Display City of the West," she said. "I would like to see every block in Twin Falls have at least one display."

'Miracle on 34th Street' occurs on 36th St. for youth

By KEITH BROMERY (c) Chicago Daily News CHICAGO — A "Miracle on 34th Street" occurred on 36th Street — far — an 18-year-old partially blind youth whose life long dream to be able to drive a car became reality in time for Christmas.

But the miracle maker in this instance was not Kris Kringle of Macy's Department Store on New York's 34th St. It was Dr. William Feinbloom whose office is at E. 36th St., just two block away. James DeMuth, an albino with only 10 per cent vision, was legally blind, before he and his mother, Audrey, made the trip from a Chicago suburb to Dr. Feinbloom's New York City office, in late August.

From then the miracle took less than two days to occur. Dr. Feinbloom fitted Jimmy with an experimental pair of telescopic bi-optic glasses which increased his vision from less than 10 per cent of normal to over 66 per cent normal vision.

The new glasses, which have inch-long miniature telescopes mounted over the lenses, permitted Jimmy to recognize a close friend at distances of over a city block away.

Normally a person would have to come almost up in his face for Jimmy to recognize him.

But — most of all — Jimmy's miracle gave him the vision to do something that he has wanted to do for years, that most said he would never be permitted to do — to drive a car.

"Jimmy's father and I had completely given up," she said. "But Jimmy wanted to drive and he continued to have faith that somebody somewhere could come up with an answer."

Jimmy ran across an article on Dr. Feinbloom's work in the field of congenital nystagmus or "dancing eyes" in a National Science Magazine. "Dancing Eyes" is the inability of the eyes to focus on one point, causing the focus point to continually shift. It is a

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will appreciate philosophies of all kinds and should have a good education. Then there could be fame in this chart as well as much good done to the masses because of the fine understanding here. Teach early not to be so opinionated on the nature could become intolerant. Give good spiritual training early, good nutrition. The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU.

Numagour movies set in ancient Greece and old Rome show soldiers marching in step. A technical error, that First military men to march in step were the Swiss pikemen about 500 years ago. Why is not generally known. Fact was they carried 18-foot spears. So they marched with great discipline in step. To keep from hitting one another's heads off. Riflemen of later days did likewise mainly for the same reason.

Seasoned citizens recall the gas rationing of World War II, but many have forgotten that a 35 m.p.h. speed limit was imposed nationwide then, also. The penalty for breaking that one, it was, was loss of ration coupons. The Federal government car put teeth into its speed recommendation, please note.

Union asks better fuel allocations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Farmers Union urged the Nixon administration to strengthen fuel allocation regulations for agriculture.

In a letter to energy chief William E. Simon, Union president Tony Dechant said his group's executive board had found that the revised regulations announced Dec. 13 gave proper emphasis to agricultural production needs.

However, Dechant said, the new guidelines placed diesel fuel in a category two priority for allocations, "which would create more problems than they would solve."

He said in 1972 farmers used about the same amount of diesel as gasoline in their tractors and in their overall operations and that under the revised guidelines farmers would theoretically be eligible in 1974 for 110 per cent of the volume used in the same month in 1972.

"The problem, of course, is that the Dec. 13 regulations place diesel for agricultural production in category two," along with other second-priority users," Dechant wrote.

"He said his organization is 'fully cognizant' of the high priority given to category one users such as hospitals and energy producers.

At the same time, in view of the large amount of diesel used by farmers — and the fact that farm tractors, irrigation pumps, etc., cannot shift to gasoline, particularly at this time when replacement parts are impossible to secure — farmers also have no feasible alternative to diesel for essential farm operations."

He said the regulations are revised again, "it is a virtual certainty" that most farmers will not receive even 110 per cent of their 1972 usage.

"And in view of some 17 per cent increase in harvested acreage projected for 1974... this would not be enough to meet the full 1974 requirements of many farmers," he added.

He said therefore that agriculture should be shifted to category one, and farmers should be assured either 100 per cent of current requirements, or 115 per cent of purchases during 1973.

He said the regulations should also require that if a major supplier pulls out of an area he has been serving, he must continue to supply through remaining jobbers and dealers. He said there should also be a provision that the products be channeled to and for the use of that suppliers' farm and ranch customers at levels the higher of either 115 per cent of 1973 purchases or full current requirements.

"Unless the federal government is prepared to force the integrated oil companies to maintain full service to everyone they supply today — and the Dec. 13 regulations do not include the muscle to do that — then explicit provision should be made to deal with a situation where a supplier pulls out of an area and leaves hundreds of farmers or others without a source of supply."

Forest service, BLM increase 1974 public land grazing fees

SALMON — Grazing fees on public lands are being increased by the US Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management for 1974.

Bob Graves, branch chief in charge of range management on the Salmon National Forest, indicated there will be an average increase of 21 cents per animal unit month for grazing cattle on this forest.

Harry Finlayson, Salmon District Bureau of Land Management manager, indicated the AUM increase for cattle on BLM ranges in the district will be 22 cents.

The fee for sheep on the forest is expected to increase four cents, 17¢ in 1973 to 21½ cents in 1974.

Finlayson said the animal unit month fee per cow in 1973 was 70 cents which will increase to $1 in 1974; sheep was 15 cents which will increase to 20 cents, while the per-horse month charge was $1.56 which will increase to $2.

Graves noted the Salmon forest is broken into three different units. Unit 3 in 1973 charged 68 cents per cattle AUM and in 1974 will charge 92 cents, a 35 per cent increase. Unit 3 has four per cent of the permitted cattle on the forest.

Unit 2, with 21 per cent of the permitted cattle, was 70 cents last year and will be $1.01 in 1974, a 28 per cent increase. Unit 1, with 75 per cent of the permitted cattle, was 88 cents in 1973 and will be $1.09 in 1974 for a 24 per cent increase. Graves said there were 10,078 cattle making up 37,000 animal unit months grazing on the Salmon-Forest. Finlayson advised the Salmon BLM District licensed approximately 110,000 animal unit months of cattle use, 2,217 animal unit months of horse use and 11,331 animal unit months of sheep use for a total of 124,048 AUMs.

Growers, company settle sale terms

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI) — The sugar beet purchase agreement between the Great Western Sugar Co. and five major grower associations has been settled, assuring an early start on local 1974 contracting, the state Department of Agriculture said Thursday.

Negotiations were completed at the local level after settlement of main issues, without change from the 1973 contracting during a meeting at Scottsbluff, Neb. The company pays on a basis of volume and quality.

A five-state area, including Wyoming, is covered by the contract. The sugar beet industry was responsible for $22,676,000 in cash receipts in Wyoming last year.

The settlement, earliest since 1967, enables sugar beet contracting to begin in January, two months earlier than last year. It also allows an earlier start on planting the 1974 crop.

"Sugar beet growers can now move ahead quickly and more confidently with their crop plans. This settlement adds to the combination of circumstances now building up for in favor of the beet crop," said James A. Krentler, chairman of the board of GW Sugar.

Meat for aid plans purchased

WASHINGTON — The US Department of Agriculture (USDA) has purchased 1,504,000 pounds of canned luncheon meat, at an approximate cost of $1,239,000, for distribution to needy families.

USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service paid from 77.42 to 79.22 cents per pound for the luncheon meat. A total of 1,296,000 pounds offered within the award range was not accepted because of freight and distribution considerations. Offers were accepted from three of the six bidders. A total of 6,840,000 pounds was offered. Top price bid was 81.01 cents per pound. Total purchases for the program amount to 15,480,000 pounds at an FOB cost of about $12,513,000. Funds for the purchase are provided under Section 32, Public Law 74-320.

Next offers are due by 1 p.m. local time in Washington, D.C., Wednesday, Jan. 2, 1974. USDA will make acceptances by midnight Monday, Jan. 7, 1974, for luncheon meat to be delivered March 1-15 inclusive. Freight costs to approximate destinations will be considered. Inquiries should be addressed to the Livestock Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

House plant pest control aids told

MOSCOW — Control most pests of house plants with insecticide sprays or dips, says Roland Portman, University of Idaho Extension entomologist.

Slugs and snails are exceptions. Control them with poison baits, he adds.

Insect pests most often found on house plants are aphids, mites, fungus, gnats, mealybugs, millipedes, psocids, scales, thrips and whiteflies, according to Portman.

Although insecticides can be applied as dusts, sprays and dips usually give better control. Sprays and dips are also less likely to leave objectionable residues and do not drift to nearby objects so readily when applied.

For best results, begin treatment at the first sign of pests, Portman advises. If infestation continues, repeat control measures in a week or two days, unless otherwise noted under recommendations for specific pests.

Insecticides such as chlordane, lindane and malathion may be mixed with water and used as a spray or dip. Portman recommends one of the following mixed in a gallon of water: chlordane, two teaspoons 45 per cent emulsifiable concentrate; or lindane, one teaspoon 20 per cent emulsifiable concentrate; or malathion, two teaspoons 57 per cent emulsifiable concentrate.

The wetting power of a mixture is improved by using a mild detergent. Add enough detergent so water feels slick to the touch. Then add the insecticide. The detergent also reduces visible residues.

Spray plants until they are wet — no longer. Apply spray with a good hand atomizer or small compressed air sprayer. Hand atomizers that hold a half pint to a quart of spray are about the right size. Use an atomizer that delivers a continuous spray and has an adjustable nozzle that can be turned to direct the spray up or down.

It is sometimes more convenient to dip plants into the insecticide spray mixture. When dipping, put the mixture in a pail or pan large enough to accommodate the largest plant to be treated.

Turn each plant upside down and immerse foliage and stems in the mixture for a few seconds.

Keep your hands out of the solution.

To keep loose soil from spilling out when the plant is turned over, hold crumpled paper or a cardboard disk firmly over the soil. Slit the cardboard disk to fit around the plant stem.

Washing broad-leaved plants with soapy water and a soft brush or cloth may be all that is needed to remove aphids, mealybugs and scale insects.

'Waves' hike prices on fertilizer

CHICAGO — Edwin Wheeler, president of the Fertilizer Institute in Washington said two recent "shock waves" have caused fertilizer price increases.

His comments followed reports that John Dunlop, chairman of the Cost of Living Council, was about to impose price controls on the fertilizer industry for price increases in excess of what it had promised the C.I.C. when the council decontrolled prices Oct. 25.

Dunlop reportedly said prices were decontrolled with the understanding controls could be reimposed for industry noncompliance with C.I.C. agreements.

Wheeler explained the recent domestic and international fertilizer price increases. "The Midwest cutoff of crude oil and naphtha have serious repercussions everywhere except the U.S. other countries use those products as feed stock for the production of nitrogen for fertilizer, but the US is using natural gas for that purpose. Nevertheless the international price of nitrogen is responding to this situation," Wheeler said.

The second "shock wave" was the unanimous decision of Morocco, Tunisia and other North African countries to raise the price of phosphate rock 165 per cent in October. "This has caused wild international pricing," Wheeler said.

In cases where water is extremely hard, as much as two teaspoons of a mild detergent per gallon of water may be required.

Although sprays are used most often to treat plants, they can also be used on surfaces of soil, pots, saucers of shelves to help control some pests.

What does Christmas mean to you?

George Grant, Rupert — It means a lot of hustle and bustle, I guess. It's a time for family and friends to get together. Christmas is getting awfully commercial.

Karen Wood, Ketchum — "It means getting out of Los Angeles and getting back home to Ketchum. We just like to get away from the city and the fast kind of Christmas. Christmas should be a time for slowing down."

Cary Ann Shelly, Twin Falls — "That you get presents."

Homer Ballenger, Twin Falls — "About the same it has always meant ever since I was a kid. I still think there is a Santa Claus. I think each Christmas makes me stop and think about what it meant: the first place to those people that were living in that time and I've never run across anything that proved them wrong."

Wesley Dryden, Jerome — "I think it's a time for friends and family. A time to reflect upon life and to try to reflect upon the mission of the Savior. Christmas becomes so mechanical. You've got to give someone a present because they give you one every year — the spirit of giving is lost."

Jason Dahl, Deeth, Nev. — "Santa Claus. I like Santa Claus because he brings me toys."

Duke's bananas won't ripen

By RAYMOND R. COFFEY

(c) Chicago Daily News
LONDON — The Duke of Devonshire is going to have to do without his favorite bananas this Christmas.

Because of the fuel crisis the temperature in the tropical greenhouse on his estate has had to be lowered and the bananas, a special variety named for the duke's family, won't be ripe in time.

This story of the duke's distress might seem a bad joke in a world worried about shivering through the winter without oil and facing the threat of recession in the new year.

It was reported with a straight face in the Nottingham Evening Post, and it touches on a question of almost as much concern to some Britons as the imminent economic calamity their country faces.

That question is, is Britain's famous "Dunkirk Spirit" dead?

The pound sterling's value is sinking out of sight, the trade deficit is at an all-time high, labor disputes involving the coal miners, train drivers, power plant workers have created chaos, fuel shortages have put industry on a three-day week, people are afflicted with power cuts and lack of heating, the government has declared a state of emergency, drastic measures to raise taxes and otherwise control inflation are in the cards, record-high unemployment is being predicted, and TV will be cut off at 10:30 each night.

Leaders in industry and politics seem to be arguing only whether this is the worst disaster faced by Britain since 1926 (the nationwide general strike), 1929 (the great depression) or 1940 (World War II).

And yet, as the account of the duke's banana problem suggests, people don't really seem to be taking it all seriously — don't seem ready to rise to the challenge.

Ever since World War Two Britain has taken a special pride in its "Dunkirk Spirit," the Churchillian oratory about "Their Finest Hours," the stoic courage that saw them through the Nazi blitz.

People never tired — or used to — of telling Americans about how the British are at their best "when we have our backs to the wall."

But their backs are certainly to the wall now, yet one sees little evidence of that old British bulldog.

Instead there is a cynicism, a smugness, a kind of perverse self-satisfaction with the "British way of life" and its special kind of civility and eccentricity.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The boomerang is a sickle-shaped throwing stick with arms slightly curved in opposite directions as in an aircraft propeller. The only returning wooden boomerangs are used by Australian aborigines for sport. The World Almanac notes. Larger, less angled, nonreturning boomerangs have been used as hunting weapons in other areas of the world.

Woman 'stacks' Nixon support letters

OLNEY, Md. (UPI) — Anyone wishing to express support for President Nixon may eat fried chicken or a pancake supper, march with placards or sign petitions. Now there's a new alternative.

She is Mrs. Dolores Smith, Olney, and for the past three months her work of dedication has been to "stack and stack" pro-Nixon letters she gets as testimony for the news media and other nations that the United States backs its chief executive.

So far, she said she has "stacked" over 200 such letters, most of them from retired or military people.

The 40-year-old Maryland housewife conducts her campaign from a card table in her living-room, sometimes working into early morning.

"In this time of crisis, our President, the man we elected, needs our full support to carry out the urgent tasks before him...I firmly believe this," she said.

She has followed the Senate Watergate hearings, kept track of opinion polls, read the Constitution in full for the first time, written and phoned congressmen and made several frustrating attempts to interest Washington newspapers, radio and television stations.

Reading about the outpouring of telegrams that followed the dismissal of special prosecutor Archibald Cox, she did some figuring.

"Even if every one of the 56,000 messages were critical, my almanac says 45 million voted for him in 1972," she said. "There really is a silent majority out there...."

Not long ago Mrs. Smith was a silent American herself and she doesn't find easy to explain the transformation.

One element, she said, was open-heart surgery this past year on one of her four-year old twin daughters, Stacy, which she described as a maturing period.

She has drafted an information which says "the office of the President is regarded with great respect by countries around the world" and requests that "each concerned citizen write a letter to the President pledging him the support he needs to build a better America."

DELORES OLNEY

"I merely want to provide the silent majority out there with an opinion poll of its own...I want all Americans to evaluate the issue fairly."

Santa Claus can be frightening

NEW YORK (UPI) — Santa Claus, despite all those jolly ho, ho, ho's, can be a frightening figure to young children.

David Elkind, a professor of psychology, says that three- and four-year-olds often have a different idea of the Santa image than what adults have.

"Some children," he said, "are as afraid of Santa as they are of any other stranger."

So now that the season is here and the little ones will be going to the stores to visit Saint Nick, prepare for the call by telling them in advance what Santa will be like.

"Tell them what's happening while you wait in line," he said. "And take them to a reputable store."

A child never should be forced to visit Santa or sit on his lap, said the psychologist. If a child becomes frightened, don't get into a discussion of whether Santa is real because that misses the point.

What is real to the child is not Santa in the abstract but his fear of Santa in the flesh, he said. If the child becomes frightened, simply leave the store, accept his feelings about Santa and comfort him.

Elkind is a professor of psychology at the University of Rochester, author of numerous works on child behavior, author of children's books also, and

Gem man wins battle with Kissinger

By DWIGHT JENSEN

Special to the Times-News

WASHINGTON — An Idaho man has won a political battle against Henry Kissinger; now he's trying to join forces with Kissinger to win another one.

William D. Eberle, Idaho's top man in the diplomatic corps, is President Nixon's special representative for trade negotiations. He reached that post after a career in business and public service.

He is a former speaker of the Idaho House of Representatives, a former vice president of the Boise Cascade Corp., and was a corporate president in New York City before he took over his present job during Nixon's first term and began representing this country in trade negotiations all over the world.

In recent months a good part of his time has been spent working with the House Ways and Means Committee preparing the new trade bill, which passed the House overwhelmingly last week in spite of Kissinger's opposition. The bill goes to the Senate.

But Eberle and Kissinger are unanimous in opposing an amendment proposed by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Washington, that would prevent the United States from granting certain trade privileges to the Soviet Union unless the Soviets liberalize their emigration policies regarding Jews.

Eberle says the emigration question should not be part of the trade bill. In his words, "You would not expect the United States to change its law if the Soviet Union passed a domestic law. That question should be left up to diplomatic negotiations. Progress is being made. The Soviets are allowing more Jews to leave. We should not jeopardize that progress with this amendment."

Eberle thinks one of the good things about the bill is that it is designed to give Congress a larger role in future trade negotiations.

"I believe Congress has given away too much of its authority in that field," he said. "Of course, the Congress must delegate a great deal of authority to the President, and he in turn delegates it to me. But I think it is time that Congress reclaims some of that power for itself, and this bill will do that. We are urging Congress to put its own members on the negotiating team."

That part of the bill may also help Eberle in what he says is the only Watergate-related program he has had as a trade negotiator.

"Sometimes we are asked if Congress will back up the commitments that are made by the administration. So far we've been able to convince them that they will."

Having Congress itself in on the negotiation should lend more weight to such assurance. Eberle says that shortages — not only the fuel shortage but shortages of scrap steel, agricultural commodities and other items — give him some problems because other countries, while negotiating, try to improve or protect their positions regarding those items. The declining stock market, he said, is discouraging, but it has no direct effect on the negotiating he has to do.

Speaking of two exports that concern the West, Eberle said he anticipates no trouble in the immediate future concerning either logs or wheat. He said wheat "seems to be on a plateau now" and trade in that commodity is going smoothly.

As to log exports to Japan, "There was a problem last year because demand was so high in both the United States and Japan. But now the price is going down and I believe the situation is easing."

Eberle looks forward to a busy year in 1974. His agenda includes an entire new round of GATT negotiations, as well as at least two major negotiating sessions with the European community, one having to do with trade impairments caused by recent political and diplomatic developments and the other dealing with cereal exports.

He seems enthusiastic and optimistic about the nation's trade position in 1974.

KEN GJEMRE

Man chucks his executive image for used bookstore

DALLAS (UPI) — For eight years, Ken Gjemre wore the blue serge of a senior vice president of a jewelry corporation.

Now he wears wrinkled shirts that he can't keep tucked in, and he shuffles with his dog through the aisles of his shop jammed with 250,000 used books and magazines.

"I guess I've been an environmentalist all my life—even before we knew the word—hating to throw things away and hating the waste," he said. "Then finally I couldn't take it anymore."

So he chucked his executive image. Gjemre, 52, now has a beard and a potbelly.

"I really got to the point philosophically and politically where I couldn't live a lie."

He said his "recycling" book store is not a mere whim, but the outgrowth of a greedy society.

"I think I'm the prototype of the future," he said, sitting on a car seat converted into a couch. "We are going to have to see much more of this with the inevitability of shortages and having to cut-back on the world's resources."

Gjemre's store winds through doors chopped through brick walls, the ragged edges still bare, into the reference room packed with encyclopedias and then into a section for religious works.

"For years I had been quite upset with the waste that's in the retail kind of operation," he said. "I started out with small appliances and soon realized that about nine-tenths of everything we sold wasn't being used. They were given as gifts, like waffle irons, and ended up in someone's closet and never really used."

Now Gjemre sells only used books, magazines and records. He pays 10 per cent of the face value for current magazines and then sells them for half their original price.

"I don't buy anything from publishers. I buy only from people," he said.

Along one wall of his shop, a complete set of Life Magazines is stacked. And a row of apple crates line the aisles filled with aging National Geographic. He has an autographed copy of Richard Nixon's "Six Crises" for sale at $15, and recently sold a first issue of Playboy for $200. A four-volume set of Eros magazine, which cost publisher Ralph Ginzburg a conviction for obscenity, goes for $135.

Under a smudgy counter top lies the first issue of Harper's Weekly, dated 1867, and a rare first copy of Life.

"I was casting about for something to do, because I knew I couldn't go back," he said of the store. "There was no sense for me to be over there play-acting, and when you're in that kind of responsible position, you almost have to believe what you're doing."

"I suppose at next holiday time we'll hear Bing singing of a BROWN Christmas!"

Christmas dream

NEW YORK — "A Dream for Christmas," a Lorimar production starring an all black cast headed by Hari Rhodes, Beah Richards and Lynn Hamilton, is a tender, moving story of faith written by Emmy Award-winner John McGreevey ("The Waltons") with Max Hodge, which will air on Christmas Eve, ABC-TV, 7-8 p.m.

The Rev. Will Douglas, (Rhodes) pastor of a Baptist Church in Sweet Clover, Ark., is offered a new post in Los Angeles when a state highway sounds a death knell for the tiny town.

He, his wife, mother and four children make the long trek across country in his vintage automobile which finally succumbs as they park in front of his new church.

It appears that the elders tried to get in touch by mail to tell Rev. Douglas the church was to be torn down in a few weeks to make way for a new shopping center. He has five weeks in which to preach the gospel and, adding to his problems, most of the once flourishing congregation has moved on to newer and finer churches.

For Christians, Faith Is The Tie That Binds

By O. A. (GUS) KELKER

What is Christmas? It is the anniversary of a Birth? Then it must be a birthday. Whose birthday?

It is the birthday of Jesus Christ. But who is Jesus Christ? We are told He was — or is — the Savior of all mankind. We are told He was born in Bethlehem. We are told He was the Son of God, that His mother's name was Mary and that her husband was Joseph, a carpenter.

We are told that Three Wise Men found the Mother and Babe in a manger and that they fell down and worshiped Him. We are told that the Angel of the Lord, in a dream, told Joseph to take Mary and the Babe and flee into Egypt because a ruler named Herod would surely have the Babe killed if found.

And when this Herod died, the Angel told Joseph to come to Israel with Mary and Jesus "for they are dead which sought the young child's life."

And so Joseph, Mary and Jesus came to dwell in a city called Nazareth, that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophets. Jesus Christ could be called a Nazarene.

Since life came to this planet Earth gods have dwelt in the minds of the people. We are told Jesus Christ was the Son of THE God.

Today, some 1974 or so years since Jesus, according to belief, was born in a manger, hundreds of thousands of people worship gods, but not the God who was the father of Jesus.

One word stands between most of us and the belief Jesus was, in truth the son of the real God. That word is faith. Without it all religion and beliefs would fail. It is the one word that holds the Christian world together.

Faith has to be the one tie that binds. Why?

Here we have a man who is credited with changing the way, the thinking of a goodly portion of the people of Earth. But really, except through faith, we are not really certain He lived at all. We do not know what He looked like. We do not know the sound of His voice. All we know is that, through faith, He fits into the pattern of what each of us feels. He should have looked like, He should have spoken like.

And the promises? We are told that if we follow the rules He established — or preached — we will have life everlasting. In so many words we will enter into Heaven.

What is Heaven? Again that one word tells us what it is and that it exists at all. It fits our own conception.

So in brief, we either believe or we do not believe.

Somewhere along the line a lot of people have become all mixed up over this day of Christmas. It has developed into a time of great celebration but often the reason for the celebration — the birth of a Babe in Bethlehem — is lost.

A lot of people do not buy the story of Jesus. These folks look to Christmas as a few hours of giving — human giving.

A lot of people do buy the story of Jesus. These folks look to Christmas as hours of giving — spiritual giving.

Actually, there is no middle ground. One group of people are right and one group is wrong.

The path you follow, the belief you have, your acceptance or rejection of that one word "faith" is really up to you.

Which brings to mind the 17th verse of the Third Chapter of the Gospel according to Saint Matthew. Jesus had just been baptized by John The Baptist.

And the Spirit of God, like a Dove, came down from above: "And lo a voice from Heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

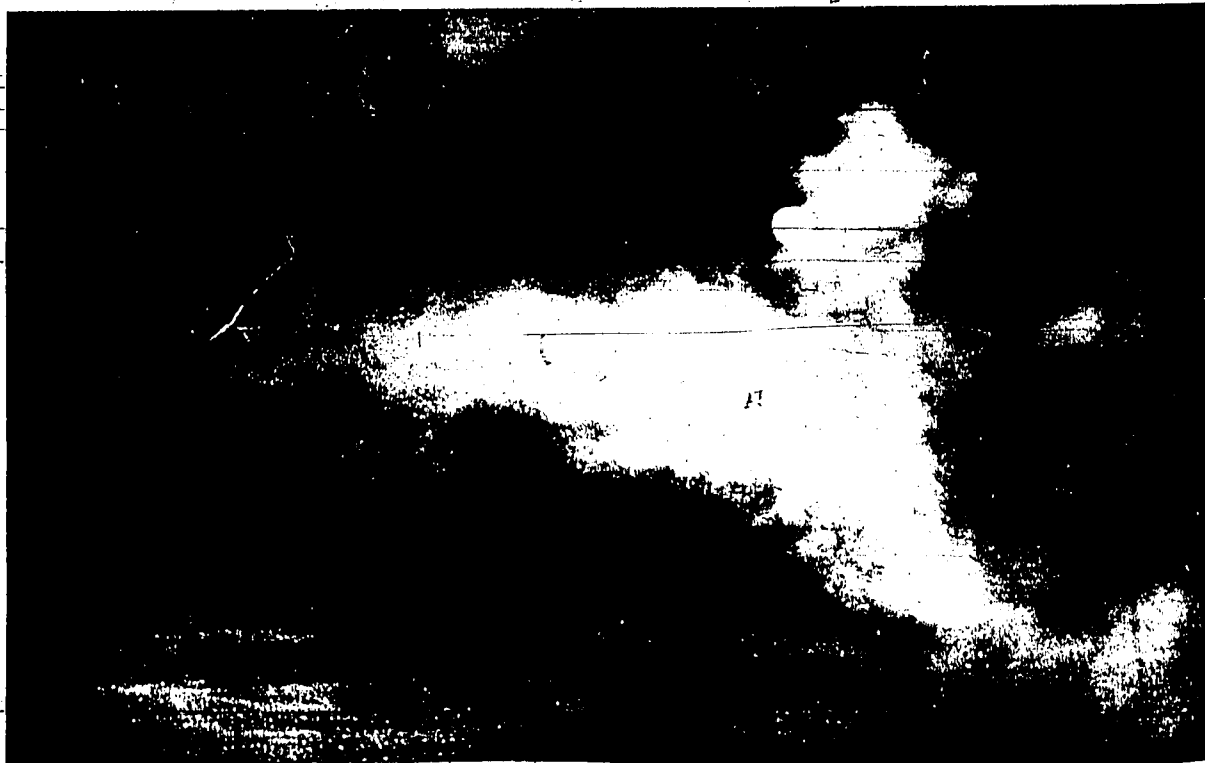

One word will convince you this all happened. Like we said, the word is Faith.

And Tuesday is the day to believe on.

Man believes world to end

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Deep down in his basement, in a state of suspended animation, Edward Ben Elson has 10 bushel baskets full of little people, he says.

They are only one inch tall, but they weigh what normal people weigh.

Elson says they were delivered on Monday by a 10-foot tall visitor who landed his spaceship on Elson's lawn and made 10 trips to the basement carrying the baskets.

All told, Elson says, there are 143,000 miniaturized human beings. He says it's up to him to pick up 1,000 more.

The whole thing is connected with Elson's theory that the world will end Christmas Day.

"The comet Kohoutek will mix with the atmosphere on Christmas and the earth will drown in a sea of petroleum oil," Elson said Tuesday from his McFarland, Wis., home.

"It's ironic that the world's energy crisis will be solved," he added. "But the solution will exact such a terrible price."

Elson is an attorney who has drawn headlines before for his ways. A couple of years ago, he announced his candidacy for state office while standing naked inside one of Madison's topless bars.

He also ran for state superintendent of public instruction last year, saying one of the planks in his platform was to do away with education after the seventh grade.

Elson says his latest adventure started last February.

"This beautiful, black, womanly angel came to me and said, 'Eddie, because of the goodness in your heart and courage in trying to bring some measure of justice to the mentally ill, you are the man we picked for this.'"

"The angel told me that 14,000 people would be picked and on Dec. 24 the comet would hover over McFarland, an astro-escalator would descend and we would all climb up and leave before the world ends."

Elson isn't sure exactly where the comet is going to take everybody, but he said, "from the way the angel smiled, it must be someplace special nice."

Elson says he thinks all the little people are looking forward to the trip, but he can't tell because they have some kind of a protective shield around them.

Elson said only the "divinely touched" can see the little people and, not long ago, a photographer came to the Elson home, didn't see the people and accidentally stepped on two of them.

"I got angry and kicked him out of the house," Elson said. Elson said he did sell two of the miniature people to a car dealer who planned to use them in a promotion as hood ornament.

"I didn't want to, but I had to raise some money," he said.

An attempt was made to reach the car dealer, but there was no such person listed in the Madison Telephone Directory.

This Santa Claus carries gun, badge

By MARCIA CHAMBERS
(c) N. Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — Two tourists from Argentina spotted a sidewalk Santa outside Macy's at the corner of Broadway and 34th Street the other day and asked him to pose for a photograph with them.

Santa said, "Of course," and the tourists nonchalantly left their four pieces of leather luggage and two purses unguarded on the sidewalk as each whipped out a camera. Christmas crowds swirled about them.

From all directions, eyes focused on the luggage. The stares came from a man who looked like a hippie, a man who looked like a drunkard, a man who looked like a student and a man with a newspaper under his arm. Even Santa stared. The photographing over, the travelers thanked Santa, picked up their luggage and went on their way.

They did not know that the man who would appear in their photographs was a policeman who carried a gun and badge in his red Santa suit pocket and had been trained to observe the world as no other santa ever has.

His name, of all things, was John M. McNicholas and he noted that he had not even looked at the tourists during the picture-taking. "I only saw their baggage," he said. "All it takes is a second and, poof, around here, it's gone."

Police officer McNicholas and his fellow Santa, officer Adam J. D'Amico, along with the hippie, the drunkard, the student and the man with the newspaper, were all working undercover in what the police department has appropriately labeled: "Operation Santa Claus." In the last week, they made five arrests.

The two Santas, both 24 years old and both on the police force three years, plus the four men in the back-up unit, belong to the anticrime unit operating in the West side's midtown south precinct. This unit and others like it have become one of the police department's most successful and innovative weapons in fighting street crime.

The Santa masquerade was designed to achieve constant surveillance of the increasing numbers of muggers, shoplifters and pickpockets who tend to work overtime during the Christmas season and who feel most at ease in the crowds that move through Herald Square, one of the city's busiest shopping districts.

Inspector Milton Schwartz, commander of the midtown-south precinct said word of the new Santa-policeman had enhanced the effectiveness of the anticrime campaign.

"Criminals are not sure if Santa is Santa or if Santa is a potential police officer, and Santa's presence can therefore act as a deterrent to the criminal," he said.

"We take the Santa role very seriously," D'Amico said, ringing his bell as he stood at his station at the corner of Broadway and 34th Street.

As if on cue, a 3-year-old child, holding onto his mother's hand, emerged from Macy's saw the Santa and practically leaped into his arms.

"Ho, ho ho, have you been a good boy all year?" asked D'Amico of Sebastian Pippins. Sebastian nodded solemnly and said he hoped he would get toys for Christmas.

"Santa is perfect for our work," D'Amico noted, his nose by now turning an appropriate red from the frosty weather. "Here we can stand outside all day and blend in with the surroundings, without being conspicuous. It is perfect surveillance."

During their seven months with the anticrime squad, the men have masqueraded as hippies, bums, drunkards, deliverymen and sanitationmen.

For every man in masquerade there are two in plain clothes, who at the slightest signal — a nod, a glance, the frantic ringing of a Santa's bell — will move to watch a suspect or chase one. On the Santa assignment, the back-up team always makes the arrest, thus protecting Santa's mask and at the same time preserving a child's belief in the man with the red suit and white beard.

Some say soft water harmful to plants

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
ROOTING HOUSE PLANTS: Readers tell us they have trouble rooting slips of geraniums, impatiens, coleus and other items. They rot in the water. Does a water softener have a harmful effect on rooting plants?

This is something not every one agrees upon. In many cases water passing through mechanical softeners does have a harmful effect on plant growth.

Hard water contains large amounts of calcium and magnesium. Softeners exchange the calcium (harmless) for sodium (harmful).

Sodium is more harmful than calcium because it has a tendency to puddle a soil (make it sticky) or "defoliate" it, leaving such soils in poor physical condition.

Many home owners state that it makes no difference in rooting or growing their plants. Actually, I doubt if softened water has any effect on the rooting of plants.

Why not try rooting plants in a mixture of sand and peatmoss, or just plain washed sand. Or use perlite or just plain vermiculite for rooting your house plants.

These materials are completely sterile and should root your cuttings. If you use sand, be sure to buy the sand from your lumber yard. Beach sand, or gravel bank stuff is not clean enough.

Remove the bottom leaves from your cuttings and insert them into your favorite rooting material. Don't pack the material around them, just firm it lightly. Keep the cuttings moistened, but never soggy, or never dry. Don't expose them to bright sun.

Many home gardeners enclose their cuttings in a plastic sheet to trap moisture and heat inside. A clay pot 10 to 12 inches wide, makes a good container for starting your plants. Fill it with sand, and place a small clay pot inside, level with the surface. Water is poured into the small pot where it seeps out to keep the sand moist.

AVOCADO TREES: Getting the alligator pear seed (avocado) to start seems to be no problem. Getting a shapely plant is. The reason: the avocado plant should be pinched when it's 10 inches tall — when it's young and throw out buds. Do not wait until the plant is 3 or 4 feet tall for pinching.

When you pinch the top out then, it often grows into a letter "T" at the top, but the main stem remains bare. If yours is that way, — all stem and no leaves, you'll have to be brutal and snip the trunk back about half way or more. This may cause the remaining stem to throw out buds and produce a bushy plant.

Citrus plants such as orange, lemon or tangerine may often get quite tall and need early pinching to keep them down. A reader asks us if it's true that muriatic acid is good for such plants. This hot acid will kill your plants and shouldn't even be around the house.

BEAN WEEVIL: Ever notice weevils in your stored beans? Bean weevils can ruin a jar of dry or shell beans, making them unfit for food or seed. The weevil begins its work by attacking the growing pods in the garden.

When the dry beans are hulled and stored they are already infested with the small white grubs. When beans are stored in a warm place, the grubs mature and eat their way out of the dry bean, leaving small holes.

Actually, when you eat fresh green beans from the garden, you unknowingly eat the tiny grubs. The buggy dried beans are not appetizing, but there is a way to prevent them:

(1) Store beans in cans in an unheated outbuilding or porch (beans won't freeze).

(2) Or you can dip the beans in boiling water for 1 minute and then spread them out to dry (not usable for beans to be used for seed).

(3) Or, heat the beans in a shallow open container in an oven for one-half hour at 130 degrees. Seeds may be heated to a temperature of from 130 degrees to 145 degrees without affecting their germination.

POISON IVY CURE: A reader writes: "You asked about possible treatment for poison ivy.

A vitamin C pill dipped in water and rubbed over the blisters just as they begin to appear will stop the itching in a few moments. Keep applying it whenever itching starts again."

SWEET CIDER AGAIN: Different readers write us about keeping cider sweet; "Cider heated to the boiling point and while hot, sealed in a sterilizer container will stay fresh until the seal is broken. Heating will not affect the taste."

Another reader freezes his cider: "Put apple cider in one quart glass fruit jars, and fill to within 2 inches from the top. Put lid on and place in deep freeze." We freeze ours in plastic jugs and it keeps fine, tastes good.

STARTING RHODODENDRONS: We've been asked how to start rhododendrons. There are three main ways to start rhododendrons: By cuttings, layers, and by seed. If you try rooting them, half and half mixture of sand and peatmoss. Never let the cuttings get dry. In fact, they need almost 100 per cent humidity.

If you have a heated coldframe or greenhouse, rooting is much easier. While rooting a temperature of 75 degrees is about right. Take cuttings of young shoots of the current year's growth. Remove bottom leaves and insert into the rooting mixture.

Layering consists of bending a shoot to the ground and anchoring it to the soil. Rooting takes place where the shoot is in contact with the soil.

You can grow rhododendron from seed but it is a long term, uncertain business. Gather seed when capsules are turning brown or blackish. Sow seed in sand-peat mixture and cover with polyethylene. We start ours under fluorescent lights. Grafting is another method used and if you have a heated greenhouse, try your hand at it. Starting new rhododendron plants is not easy, but it can be done, using any of the above methods.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: R. D. of Twin Falls: "Please tell me what I can put around my flower beds to keep out the neighbor's cats and dogs."

I wish we knew of a simple way to keep cats and dogs out. Some say that a solution of nicotine sulfate sprayed on tulip beds, evergreens, etc. will do a lot to discourage these pets as they do not like the odor.

Moth balls, flakes scattered on the ground keep animals away for a while. Some people dip cotton balls in turpentine and hang them in areas where the animals congregate. Some use ammonia.

Probably the most effective method is to put a small fence up. One person makes mud balls and stores them next to the kitchen door. When a cat or dog comes around he throws the ball and hollers "skatt!" People who have been using bonemeal as a fertilizer are apt to be bothered by dogs, since they smell the bone and start digging for it.

Red hot pepper mixed with water and sprayed on shrubs will keep dogs and cats away. Some dust the powder on the ground and it works fine for them.

Does any reader have a better method for keeping dogs and cats out of the garden or away from shrubbery? Please write and tell us.

T. G. of Hansen: "Why don't you tell your readers to plant more nut trees? As a source of proteins and fats, the nut is vastly superior to the ox and the pig. The nut is sweeter, cleaner, safer, healthier and cheaper than any source of animal products.

I just read that nuts contain a material that fights cholesterol. This material in nuts is called lecithin, and it is believed to have soaplike properties which tends to dissolve cholesterol and reduce the size of fat particles in the blood stream. Please name a few nut trees we can plant for food and ornaments."

Try the English walnut, a fast growing shade tree 30 to 40 feet high. Filberts or hazelnuts are easy to grow, reaching 15 feet high. Try the chinese chestnut, reaching 35 feet tall. Also try shellback hickory and pecans. Most nut trees need a pair for cross pollination.

We agree that nuts are highly nutritious and a good source of protein. We're glad to learn that not everything we eat turns into cholesterol.

Nuts are excellent sources of vitamins, calcium, phosphorus and iron and they deserve a greater place in our diet than they now have.

W. T. of Buhl: "We have a crabapple tree but hesitate to use the fruit because we heard it was poisonous. It was reported so by the National Clearinghouse for Poison Control Centers in Washington, D. C." Are crabapples poisonous?"

No, they aren't. Many people use them for jams and jellies. Crabapples, raw, in jelly or in pies are perfectly safe and rather delicious.

The Clearing House did report a death from crabapple poisoning but we were told this was an error and due to a mistake made by a clerk.

Many plant and plant parts are said to be poisonous when actually they aren't. True many are poisonous and should be avoided. We plan to carry a series on poisonous plants, shortly.

The Gossip Column

Q: You wrote of UFO's and the possibility of life from other planets monitoring us. Is there really any scientific basis that this might be true? I said scientific! — G. S., Ridgefield, Conn.

A: A young Scottish researcher, Duncan Lunan, has produced amazing star maps which he says prove that a star probe orbiting the earth at the distance of the moon could be responsible for certain signals being received on earth. Now Prof. Samuel Kaplan of Russia's Gorki University says mystery signals being picked up in the USSR may come from a technically advanced extra-terrestrial civilization. Russia's Academy of Sciences Institute of Cosmic Research has picked up the sounds, using small nondirectional aerials.

SO WHO LOOKS THE MOST LIKE MOSHE DAYAN?

Yul Brynner, of course, and he will play the Israeli general in a movie titled "War of the Day of Atonement," complete with eyepatch. The resemblance is uncanny.

Q: How old is Lana Turner, how many times has she been married and what happened to her daughter, the one who killed Lana's underworld boyfriend? — H. A., Dearborn, Mich.

A: Lana is 52, has been married seven times and is currently single again. Daughter Cheryl is 29 and works as general manager for her father Steve Crane's chain of restaurants. Cheryl shares a house with Lana's mother in the San Fernando Valley. Lana lives alone in a Los Angeles apartment and spends a great deal of time with her male confidant and assistant, Taylor Pero.

Q: Jackie Susann is way over 40, but she looks so young. Has she had her face lifted? — E. R., Boston.

A: The best-seller writer says she hasn't gone the face-lift route because "once you do that you look like a young Egyptian mummy, and anyway your bitchy girlfriends can see the stitchmarks." Jackie says she's lucky to take after her mother, who looks 50 at 70. She also applies pure lanolin at night direct from a tube kept in the refrigerator. "I've no intention of dying of old age. I'll just melt to death," quips Jackie.

Q: Will a film be made of the controversial book, "Portrait of a Marriage," about the homosexual marriage of Vita Sackville West and Harold Nicolson? It would make a great movie. — W. C., Rochester, N. Y.

A: The son of the unconventional couple and author of the book, Nigel Nicolson, says he will never sell the dramatic rights, though he has already been offered a fortune for it. Many people criticized Nicolson for revealing the sordid facts of his dead parents' lives and he doesn't wish to be accused of further bad taste.

RUMOR OF THE WEEK: A

small group of Washington insiders is betting that President Nixon will use the excuse of poor health to quit the White House by next spring. The theory is based on the number of times that the Chief Executive in recent speeches has said, "as long as I am physically able." The White House watchers think the President is laying the groundwork now for an impeccable retreat from the Oval Office.

Q: Will you tell me how a highly respected and brilliant author like Gay Talese is so willing to discuss in print all those details of his extramarital life? — T. V., Searsdale, N. Y.

A: There are two theories in literary circles about this. One is that Talese is going to live out his fantasies and the heck with everybody else — and, of course, he is doing research for his book on sex in America. The second theory is that the writer is too good a reporter and much too bright to get caught with his gray flannels down in print. What he's doing is building a special public personality for his forthcoming sex book.

QUESTIONS YOU NEVER ASKED: Why did Aristotle Onassis upset Paris by failing to show up at the Maxim's dinner party for the Versailles fund-raising gala? Onassis antagonized the Parisse creme de la creme for a very good reason — he was involved in negotiations because of the political upheaval in Greece. First things first.

Q: How do Barbra Streisand and her sister, Roslyn Kind, get along? — J. E., La Jolla, Calif.

A: Not very well. The situation between Barbra and her 23-year-old half-sister has deteriorated since Barbra got Roslyn a singing date at a Las Vegas club. Roslyn gripes, "It was the worst place you've ever seen — absolutely no one knew it existed." Barbra isn't saying anything, but Roslyn goes on and on: "If only Barbra would say something nice about me when she is asked, I've always worshipped her as a person and a performer, but I feel she is now hurting my chances to succeed."

Q: We've heard enough about Princess Anne and her marriage. What's the romantic lowdown on Prince Charles? — L. H., Wooster, O.

A: Charles is going to take the international bachelor award away from Dr. Kissinger any day. Our spy in Spain says he was seen kissing Lady Jane Wellesey, 22-year-old daughter of the Duke of Wellington, while they were both supposed to be out shooting — or perhaps watching — birds.

Q: Are Andy Williams and Claudine still married? — B. V., St. Louis.

A: Yes, and they'll probably stay married because Claudine is a devout Roman Catholic. The 31-year-old former Las Vegas showgirl and the singer have been married 12 years and have three children. They do not live together, however, and Claudine is having a romance with 28-year-old Vladimir Sabich, a professional skier.

Q: Was everyone shocked and surprised by the breakup of Mary Tyler Moore's marriage? What was the real reason? — R. C., Sacramento, Calif.

A: That one was a stunner, particularly since Mary had been spending every free moment at TV rehearsals working on an elaborate needlepoint Christmas gift for her husband. Some say her diabetes makes her irritable and difficult at times to live with, although she's very easy with co-workers. Others believe it's just another uncomfortable situation where a husband (the president of their TV company) is, in essence, working for his wife.

... just uncomfortable

TURNABOUT'S FAIR PLAY: Marthe Richard's name has been mud in France ever since she forced the Paris brothers to close after World War II. (At the time, the famed Resistance heroine had plenty of clout.) Now, nearly 30 years after, Madame Richard has written a sensational book in praise of the brothel. She says she was wrong in closing them down, that they constituted important social institutions.

Q: Has Marla Schneider, who played opposite Marlon Brando in "The Last Tango in Paris," made any more movies? — E. J., Youngstown, Ohio.

A: Marla is doing one in Barcelona directed by Antonioni and starring Jack Nicholson. Right after filming began, something displeased the actress so she got sick and couldn't come to the set. Antonioni, a wise Italian, immediately sent to the U. S. for another star. As soon as the lady arrived, Marla recovered instantly and the replacement was sent back home.

Q: Whatever happened to the synthetic cigarette you wrote about some time ago? Has it been developed? — E. T., Boston.

A: The English Courtauld Company's synthetic ciggie, Planet, is still being test-marketed. So far consumers haven't liked it much. They say it tastes like "old rope, paper, menthol, nothing much at all." They've sold so poorly it's a moot point if Planet will be exported to America.

Q: Does John Lennon think he can win out in his fight against being deported? — J. W., Hyde Park, N. Y.

A: He must, because he says, "I'm not setting foot outside America until all this is resolved." Lennon claims that when he said his phone was tapped on the Dick Cavett TV Show it caused the government to stop tapping him. He has grown chummy with Cavett, New York Mayor John Lindsay, and other influential people in his fight to remain in the U. S. John also says he was helped by taking primal therapy in California. "I'm not saying I'm not neurotic anymore... but now I can handle it better, cry, let off steam, get it out of my system."

Q: I know Hugh Hefner of Playboy fame was married and divorced. Did he have any children by that marriage? — L. L., Norfolk, Va.

A: Hefner has a son and a daughter. The boy is in high school; the girl recently graduated from Brandeis University, having been elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

... not bitter

Q: Has anybody ever tried to make up to Ingrid Bergman for the unhappiness heaped on her at the time she ran away with Roberto Rossellini? I still feel bad about this. — O. P., La Jolla, Calif.

A: Relax, Miss Bergman, now successfully acting on the London stage, is not bitter. Hollywood did try to make amends in 1956 by putting her in "Anastasia," for which she won her second Oscar. Also, because she had been denounced by one U. S. Senator, Illinois Senator Charles Percy tried to undo this by saying in the Senate:

"Miss Bergman is one of the world's loveliest, most gracious and talented women. I know that across the land millions of Americans would wish to join with me in expressing their regrets for the personal and professional persecutions that caused her to leave this country at the height of her career." Good enough?
