Giant health plan funded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon signed a law Saturday which offers families a less costly way of receiving good medical attention from doctors.

The measure provides $250 million in direct subsidies over the next four years to demonstrate the feasibility of a national network of health maintenance organizations (HMO's), the formal name for prepaid group health plans.

These are centers where for a single annual fee a family is assured of receiving a year's health care no matter how frequently a doctor's services are required.

Backers believe HMO's promote better health since people no longer need to be wary of the cost of seeing a doctor at the first sign of ill health.

The HMO's also have a profit motive to practice preventive medicine — looking after patients when they are well so that they are less apt to become ill.

The chief drawback from the viewpoint of many laymen is that they are not certain to see the same doctor on every visit.

Those HMO's now in existence often are staffed by a large number of specialists so patients on each visit are sent to the doctor best qualified to treat their ailments.

In a statement released here and in San Clemente, Calif., where the bill was signed, Nixon said the HMO method "represents one response to the challenge of finding new and better ways to improve health care for the people of this country."

Casper Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, told a White House briefing that on the average families could expect to spend less for their health care under HMO's than they do under the existing system of a fee for every visit to the doctor.

Dr. Charles Edwards, assistant HEW secretary, said HMO's could provide "the continuity of care that a lot of people don't have on today's health scene."

In addition to the $250 million in direct subsidies for HMO's, the bill authorizes $125 million through July 30, 1978 for loans and grants to support HMO's, and for health services for the poor and health research. The active funds must still be appropriated.

The bill was pushed through Congress by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate health subcommittee.

Avalanche kills Utah skier

SYNDERVILLE, Utah (UPI) — An avalanche roared 300 yards down a ski resort gully Saturday, killing a 30-year-old ski instructor.

A spokesman for the Park City West ski resort said Rex I. Potter, of Salt Lake City, was swept into a tree by the river of snow, knocked unconscious, and then suffocated.

Potter was skiing with two other instructors when they were hit by the avalanche in an area between the regular ski runs. The snow partially buried Lester Perry of Salt Lake City.

Richard Parker, also of Salt Lake City, narrowly escaped the slide and skied down the mountain for help.

Missiles may cross Gem skies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Air Force has asked congressional permission to fire eight unarmed intercontinental Minuteman missiles over Montana, Idaho and Oregon to the Pacific Ocean, with debris falling into unpopulated areas.

Oregon Gov. Tom McCall reacted angrily and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he had serious questions that the test was necessary.

But Rep. Dick Shoup, R-Mont., from whose district the missile would be fired, said it was "only reasonable" to test America's lines of defense.

The Air Force said Friday it was asking Congress for permission to test fire four missiles — without nuclear warheads — next winter and four more the following winter from sites near Malmstrom Air Force Base, Mont., near Great Falls, Mont.

It said five pieces would fall into sparsely populated areas of the Idaho panhandle: the missile's two, and one half ton first stage and four 60-pound panels.

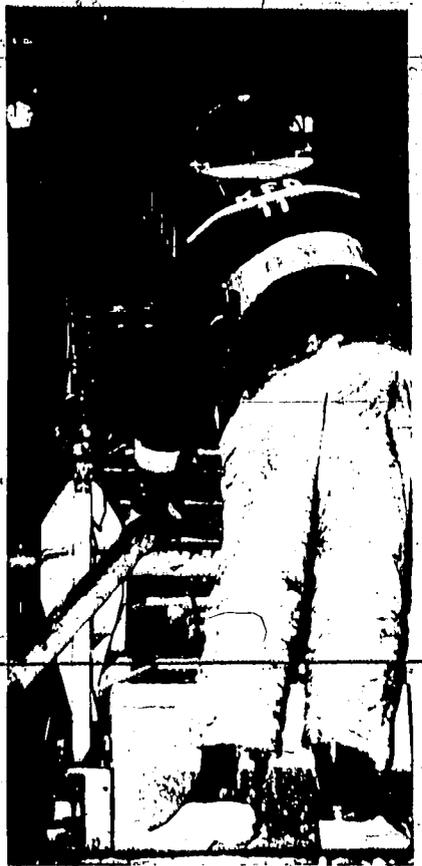

Until now, the Air Force has tested its missiles and crews by carting them down to Vandenberg Air Force Base on the California coast where they could be fired 5,000 miles over the water. This has been criticized as unrealistic because crews had plenty of time to green their missile and the Vandenberg test site was not the same as a field of 200 missiles like that around Malmstrom.

McCall said in Salem, Ore., that his reaction could be taken "McCall has a tantrum." He said he had talked with Idaho Gov. Cecil Andrus whose "reaction was the same as mine and may even more strenuous."

Jackson said, "I have a serious question in my mind that this is really necessary. If the failsafe system is operated, the missile will come down in 100-pound bits and this will be a dangerous thing if it should fall over a populated area."

Shoup, from Missoula, Mont., the largest city in the missile's flight path, said it was "a good idea to test our defense system. We are putting a lot of our hopes for safety in this line of defense and I think it is only reasonable to test it."

SV Lodge burns again

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

SUN-VALLEY — Fire broke out in the Sun Valley Lodge for the second time in two days early Saturday morning, prompting suspicion of arson.

The fire occurred in the attic above the Ram restaurant and, according to Sun Valley Co., Inc., vice president of hotels and marketing, Ed Pilkerton, resulted in minimal damage with minor water damage.

No injuries were reported. The blaze was contained in about one hour by 46 members of the Ketchum and Sun Valley fire departments.

Dan Kelly, Idaho state investigator, is in Sun Valley investigating the incident.

Pilkerton said arson had not been ruled out on the Saturday morning fire or on a fire early Friday morning which broke out in the Sun Valley Lodge fourth floor attic. That fire also caused minimal damage.

On the Saturday morning fire, 115 guests lodging in rooms above the restaurant were transported to the Sun Valley Inn dining area where they were served coffee and breakfast. Shortly after the fire was extinguished, a majority of the guests were returned to their rooms. The remainder were taken to Sun Valley Lodge condominiums.

The 46 firemen, a ladder truck and three pumper trucks were called to the fire by a Sun Valley night security agent who reported smoke coming from the roof about 2 a.m. Firemen remained at the scene until about 5:30 a.m.

The cause and estimated damage of the Saturday morning fire has not yet been determined.

Sun Valley reported that all of the resort lodging and dining facilities, including the Ram restaurant, are open and operating on a regular schedule.

Energy crisis: Ration exemptions sparse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal energy official said Saturday the government anticipates granting very few exemptions if gasoline rationing is imposed.

Doctors, clergymen — even congressmen — will have to buy coupons from other drivers if they cannot live within their ration, the official, John Hill, told UPI.

Hill, an assistant to presidential energy adviser William E. Simon said the key to avoiding the black markets and administrative troubles that plagued gasoline rationing in World War II is the negotiability of coupons. Motorists who don't need all they get will be able to sell their surplus coupons for whatever price they can command.

Simon announced Friday that the standby rationing plan could take effect by March 1 if needed. He also announced an allocation plan which would give filling stations about 80 per cent of gasoline demand and would, in effect, amount to a "moderate form of rationing," he said.

Violence at gas pumps?

By United Press International

An irate motorist threatened a service station attendant with violence when the gas pump went dry Saturday before he got his $1 quota. One of several thousand drivers using federal government "gasoline price watch" telephones complained he had to pay $6.42 for two gallons of gasoline.

Police and government agents told "horror" stories of the gasoline shortage as motorists in some parts of the country found themselves in what could be one of the worst of 1973's gasless days, with the promise of worse to come in 1974.

Service station operators were locking up their pumps and going home in several East Coast and Midwest cities as they used up the last of their reduced monthly allocations. No fresh supplies were expected until next Wednesday, the day after New Year's and the end of the holiday season.

Traffic on most major highways across the nation was reported lighter than usual Saturday, which police attributed to the gasoline shortage. Service stations in parts of the South, Southwest and West Coast appeared to be open as usual, but traffic was much lighter.

British economy crippled

LONDON (UPI) — Britain's unemployment rolls may rise to one million persons by Monday — the start of the emergency three-day work week — as a result of layoffs caused by fuel shortages, industry sources said Saturday.

The economic crisis the government has described as the country's gravest since World War II showed no signs of easing as leaders of Britain's 260,000 coal miners postponed further talks on their overtime ban until next Wednesday.

Government figures published Friday showed 544,000 persons eligible for unemployment benefits have been laid off because of the energy crisis. A Department of employment spokesman said many others have been put out of work but are not counted because they had their own guaranteed income agreement with employers and were not eligible for government benefits.

Ships collide: fuel spilled

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — A Navy cargo ship and a Liberian freighter collided Saturday, crippling the Navy vessel and spilling 16,000 gallons of fuel oil 11 miles off the beaches of scenic Big Sur.

No injuries were reported among the 50-man civilian crew aboard the Navy's Private Joseph F. Merrill, or the civilian freighter Pearl Venture.

The Navy ship's fuel tanks were ruptured in the collision off Cape San Martin, 160 miles south of San Francisco. It created what the Coast Guard called a "medium size" spill.

IRS 'absolves' Nixon group

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Henry S. Reuss said Saturday the Internal Revenue Service had "absolved" President Nixon's re-election committee of taxes due on $18 million in stock contributions.

An IRS decision that the committee must pay taxes only on profits from stock sold after Oct. 3, 1972, will mean that only about $3.4 million of the estimated $18 million to $20 million in stock contributions is taxable, Reuss said.

Queen Elizabeth abdication denied

LONDON (UPI) — A royal source firmly denies that Queen Elizabeth is considering abdication in favor of her son, Prince Charles.

The rumors were touched off when William Hamilton, labor member of parliament and a royal critic, said the decision of the Queen to remodel her private estate at Sandringham could indicate "an early abdication."

US gas supply: 30 days

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The American Petroleum Institute's latest estimate gives the nation a 30-day supply of gasoline and 58 days of home fuel oil.

The Institute, an oil industry association, said in a report that gasoline stocks as of Dec. 21 totaled 203,173,000 barrels — enough for 30 days at present consumption — as compared to a 33-day supply on the same date in 1972 and a 36-day supply in 1971.

Stocks of distillate fuel oil, mostly used for home heating, totaled 203 million barrels on Dec. 21 — a 56 day supply — as compared to a 48 day supply on that date in 1972 and a 66 day reserve in 1971.

Israeli plane hit by missiles

By United Press International

Egyptian missiles shot down an Israeli reconnaissance plane over the tense Suez front Saturday.

An Israeli military spokesman accused Cairo of fomenting an "eve of war" atmosphere in an effort to pressure concessions at the Geneva talks and impose a strain on the Israeli economy.

As the Israeli charge was aired, Egyptian officials said that high tension continues on the front lines as a result of Egypt's policy of "steady harassment" and "attrition of the enemy."

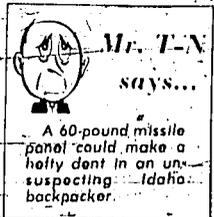

An Israeli soldier was wounded by small arms fire Saturday in one of several incidents in the vicinity of the kilometer 101 marker on the Calco-Suez highway, the Israeli military command said.

A U.N. spokesman in Cairo reported 40 shooting incidents between Egyptian and Israeli forces and five cases of air activity in violation of the cease-fire on Thursday.

An Egyptian military communique Saturday said that "an enemy plane attempted a reconnaissance flight over our troops stationed in the southern sector of the front."

The plane "was seen falling in flames east of Lake Timsah," just south of the city of Ismailia, and the wreckage is now in Egyptian hands, the communique said.

The Israeli military command confirmed that Egyptian surface-to-air missiles shot down one of its unmanned spy planes Saturday.

A 60-pound missile panel could make a hefty dent in an unsuspecting Idaho backpacker.

Amtrak train overturns

ANDERSON, Calif. (UPI) — An apparent mechanical failure caused three sleeping cars of an Amtrak holiday train to derail and overturn Friday, injuring 80 of the 450 passengers.

No fatalities were reported aboard the sleek Coast Starlight and only 14 persons required hospitalization.

The train was en route to Los Angeles from Seattle when the derailment occurred at 3:48 a.m. while the train was traveling 60 miles an hour.

Three additional cars of the 17-car train left the tracks but remained upright. Southern Pacific, which operates the train for Amtrak, said the apparent cause of the accident was a mechanical failure beneath one of the derailed cars.

Most of the 14 persons hospitalized were treated for fractures, mainly back and shoulder injuries.

"It's incredible that we have such relatively minor physical injuries," said Tim Johnson, a spokesman for Southern Pacific.

Many passengers praised the work of rescue teams which used axes and power tools to remove the injured from their berths. A number of passengers were brought down the sides of the overturned cars by ladder.

M. A. Schooley, a passenger who awoke on the floor after his car overturned, said the rescue work was performed "without panic."

"Everything was extremely well organized, especially the rescue teams," he said.

Humbert Deem, a Southern Pacific inspector who was riding the train as a passenger, said, "There was a lot of confusion, but not really panic." He said some passengers had to "break the windows to get out."

A nurse who aided the injured said the passengers were "relaxed and rolled with the punch because they were asleep."

The forward 11 cars of the train continued the journey south a few minutes before 9 a.m. and arrived in Oakland at 1:40 p.m., about five hours late.

Passengers who did not wish to wait in Oakland five hours for transportation to Los Angeles were transferred to buses.

Four-day school week pondered by TF officials

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — A four-day school week is being considered by the Twin Falls School District according to District Supt. George Staudaher.

But, contrary to common rumor, the schools will resume normal schedules Jan. 2, Staudaher said.

"I don't think we are going to make any kind of move until the middle of January at least," he said.

If a school day is cut out, longer hours might mark the four remaining days. Staudaher said the trustees are also considering shortening hours of operation for the regular five day week, to save energy.

What changes do take place will depend largely upon the gas supply for busing. Staudaher said that according to Dick Kirkman, who runs the district's buses, the gas outlook is uncertain. Staudaher said Kirkman has not received a promised gas allocation for the months ahead.

The district is also considering cutting out bus stops in case gas runs short, the superintendent said.

Haldeman scheme disclosed

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — A personal memorandum from the late J. Edgar Hoover has disclosed that H. R. Haldeman prompted the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the White House to issue a misleading explanation of the Bureau's controversial investigation of Daniel Schorr, a newsmen for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

According to the Hoover memorandum and other Justice Department documents, Haldeman, while chief of the White House staff, conceived the misinformation that Schorr had come under investigation because he was being considered for a government post.

The FBI and the White House press office both advanced that explanation after details of the Schorr investigation came to light in late 1971. But Haldeman conceded before the Senate Watergate Committee in August that Schorr had never been a candidate for a job in the Nixon administration.

He did admit to asking an assistant, Lawrence Higby, for a "background check" on Schorr but insisted that he could not remember why. John W. Dean III, the dismissed presidential counsel, earlier told the Watergate committee that the Schorr investigation had been prompted by "political" considerations.

The Hoover memorandum dictated after a telephone call from Haldeman on Nov. 10, 1971, relates that it was at the behest of the former White House chief that the Bureau adopted the position that Schorr had, in fact, been under consideration for employment.

The Bureau subsequently provided this misinformation to Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., who had asked for an account of the matter in connection with a Senate inquiry into relations between the government and the press. Ervin also heads the Watergate committee.

In Hoover's confidential memorandum, written the day before the Schorr investigation became the subject of news reports, the late FBI director recalled Haldeman's warning that "obviously the White House would have no useful purpose in getting any more publicity than is necessary" on the Schorr matter.

Haldeman said he thought they would slough it off over there (at the White House) and if they (newsmen) ask any questions, say they would not have anything to say as obviously information is sought on individuals at various times for various reasons such as appointments, routine checks, et cetera.

Hoover concluded, "He assumes that is the position the bureau would take." On Nov. 11, 1971, the day that some details of the Schorr investigation appeared in the Washington Post, Ronald L. Ziegler, the White House press secretary, told newsmen that Schorr had been under consideration for a government job "in the environmental area."

Because the district's school and office buildings are heated with coal or natural gas, which are still available, Twin Falls schools are not faced with a heating problem, yet, Staudaher said.

So far, the district has cutback on its heating of buildings to 68 degrees. No other energy conservation steps have been taken, he said.

Staudaher said that school lunch prices would stay the same as they were at the beginning of the year and that students will still have to pay a nickel for extra milk.

GM cuts workers

(c) N. Y. Times Service
DETROIT — General Motors Corporation announced Friday that it plans to lay off 88,000 workers because of poor sales of its standard-size cars.

Of those laid off in 10 plants across the country, 48,000 will be on temporary furlough lasting up to 10 days, while 38,000 will be on indefinite layoff.

The cutbacks which are due to start in January and February, follow shortly the layoff of 120,000 workers for five days the week of Dec. 17.

Gas price crackdown due

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork announced Friday that the Department of Justice would seek restraining orders against gasoline dealers found to be changing motorists excessive prices over the New Year's weekend.

Bork noted in a statement that recent reports told of "gas stations charging customers as much as 69.9 cents a gallon" for fuel. "This sort of price gouging at a time of short supply cannot go unchallenged," he declared.

Another Justice Department official explained that, although his agency would continue to be on the alert for price gougers during the New Year, Bork's order was aimed primarily at stopping the practice over the next four days, when the expected closing of many gasoline stations would provide "a better atmosphere for gougers to operate."

Idaho regulators

A scathing audit of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission leads to the nearly inescapable conclusion that it is one of Idaho's worst administered governmental units.

The Idaho legislative auditor has issued a performance audit of the commission which found it to be an agency charged with important tasks but whose unsupervised employees would rather golf than work while the job remains undone.

A few examples from among the audit's findings: - The IPUC has no clear goals and objectives. - Workers are poorly supervised. Auditors found workers on the golf course or at home while supposedly on duty. Some employees have "extremely light workloads," and "excessive idletime."

- There is no record kept of public complaints in the IPUC's transportation division, and complaint records were begun only in 1972 in the utilities division.

- Little attempt has been made to monitor service provided by the regulated firms.

"Adequacy of service is monitored on a passive rather than an active basis. That is, the problem normally develops to the point of public reaction before steps are taken to correct it," the auditors said.

- Financial evaluation of motor carriers was poor. The IPUC does not require motor carriers to produce financial data, even when an application for rate increases is requested.

The transportation division has adopted an informal policy of "de-emphasizing" enforcement of carrier rules and regulations.

Auditors found an IPUC officer was unprepared to issue citations during a two-day safety inspection check because he had failed to bring a single citation form with him.

The state ranked lower than all adjacent states in number of warnings and citations issued. For those issued, no records are kept.

- The field agent in Idaho Falls files travel vouchers claiming he spends the majority of his time "patrolling and roadblocking." Yet none of the law enforcement personnel or motor carriers interviewed there had "ever heard of, or seen, a roadblock by IPUC personnel."

The list of complaints goes on and on. - Even so, the legislative auditor did not express any judgment on how effective the IPUC has been in its primary functions - to ensure adequate service and to set rates which provide reasonable rate of return.

However, it would be reasonable to assume that an agency of such demonstrated incompetency in so many areas probably also is incompetent in maintaining service and regulation charges.

In fairness to the IPUC, steps already have been announced to help matters. One of the most important is the decision to hire a professional administrator to try to pry some performance from - or replace - lackadaisical agency staffers.

But the problem clearly goes far deeper than that. It can be simply stated this way: "Who regulates the regulators?"

The governor as chief executive can appoint new commissioners but can't tell them what to do.

Only the legislature, through its power of the purse, has any real hold over the agency.

But the legislature is ill-suited to serve as an executive policeman by grabbing, say, a golfing inspector by the scruff of the neck and the seat of the pants. And it cannot ensure good administration by passing new legislation.

The only other legislative remedy, cutting the flow of funds to the agency, would only ensure needed regulation is not accomplished.

The best short-run solution is to encourage tough-minded public performance audits of the agency. The audits could be handled either by the executive or legislative auditors.

Perhaps such public audits could succeed in mortifying the agency into action.

Failing that, the only alternative would be to bring the agency "back into politics," by placing it directly under the governor.

The agency will have to straighten itself out or be straightened out by someone else. The regulators cannot remain unregulated.

By NEA-London Economist News Service. LONDON - Governments all around the world are busy redefining the sums of their economic prospects for 1974 in the light of the oil crisis.

The exercise may amount to little more than doodling at this stage, and nobody would chance his shirt on the results.

But the figures that are popping up are very uncomfortable: the revisions are pointing up just how poor prospects were even before there was talk of an energy shortage.

The most worrying figures came from the United States, where for the first time the Nixon Administration has released official forecasts of the impact of the oil shortage.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, had been expecting America's gross national product to grow by just 3 per cent in 1974 year on year, compared with 6 per cent in 1973, but now reckons that the oil embargo could cut as much as 2 per cent off that, leaving a bare 1 per cent. This would mean an actual downturn in the first quarter.

The Department of Commerce put it rather differently, and more dramatically, by arguing that supply shortages could have a maximum 4 per cent impact on gnp if things went badly

Britain's is more likely to be 2 per cent than the target 3 1/2 per cent.

Interest rates are still rising in America and President Nixon is still banking on proposals for gasoline rationing. No one is quite sure what Japan's measures mean. Yet recessions feed each other.

Industrial countries normally rely on each others markets to take three-quarters of their total exports, and although some underdeveloped countries (as producers aside) are now flush with reserves they may hesitate to run these down sharply if a world recession does come and finally bursts the commodity price bubble.

Moreover, of the rich countries' total exports to one another, exports of motor vehicles account for 11 per cent in Common Market countries as a group, for nearly 16 per cent in North America, and for 20 per cent in Japan.

And the car industry and all its outcriers are particularly vulnerable in the oil crisis.

Purchases of cars and parts account directly for nearly 7 1/2 per cent of total personal consumption expenditures in America, and for almost 4 1/2 per cent in Britain. And Germany economists estimate that, although cars account for just 8 per cent of manufacturing turnover in Germany, if all the indirect feedbacks into other industrial output and demand are taken into account, roughly 15 per cent of Germany's gnp comes from cars.

Small car manufacturers, like Volkswagen, Chrysler Britain, British Leyland and Ford, hope that they will get a positive fillip from the oil crisis. Nor are Jaguars expected to suffer much; not with waiting lists of up to a year.

But German's Ford and Opel are pessimistic, and so are the Japanese manufacturers. It may be impossible (even undesirable in the long run) to save all the auto men from a halting. But ministers ought to be moving to limit the damage elsewhere much more decisively than they have so far.

wrong, which would imply throwing a much higher proportion out of work.

Even without taking this kind of figuring into account, other countries, particularly Germany and Japan, the next two biggest in the growth league, expected their economies to slow down quite sharply in the year ahead, and are now talking of zero growth.

Nor are the two middleweights, France and Britain, expected to do much better. The betting now is that France's growth rate will be more than halved, to under 3 per cent next year, while

People should set decision date

WASHINGTON - If members of the House will not fix an absolute deadline for the impeachment of Richard Nixon, the people in their own minds should fix a deadline of their own: March 1, 1974.

Such a deadline, I submit, would give the House Judiciary Committee abundant time in which to act. In his memorandum of Nov. 13, Chairman Peter Rodino disclosed an orderly plan for investigation in three broad areas of "criminal offenses, nonindictable offenses, and campaign and personal finances." That plan now is being pursued by a professional staff with a million dollars to spend.

It is a fair surmise that 90 per cent of the evidence necessary for committee action already has been gathered by the General Accounting Office, by the Senate Watergate Committee, and by other agencies public and private. All that is required for the first step of impeachment is a body of evidence sufficient to establish probable cause. It would be up to the Senate, later on, to decide if the evidence proved guilt beyond a reasonable doubt.

Two months surely would seem time enough for the House to receive a bill of impeachment against the President, and to vote it up or vote it down.

The House committee is not suffering for want of articulate support. The AFL-CIO, the Civil Liberties Union, and Americans for Democratic Action are howling for Nixon's scalp. To The Nation magazine, the question of impeachment is not if, but when. A Senate document on the history of impeachment is into its second large printing. Constitutional lawyers, chewing their cuds, are as happy as cows in the clover.

Yet it is a curious thing. At the time when a full head of steam should be developing, some of the steam seems to be leaking out. It was no trick at all to talk of impeachment when impeachment was an abstract proposition. It has become something else entirely as the House gets down to the nitty gritty.

There is the matter, for example, of the President's tax-free expense account. It has become a matter of record. But many members

JAMES KILPATRICK

John Kennedy? What about Lyndon Johnson? What sums were spent to improve their private homes? Why were these Democrats so unconcerned with the matter of Bobby Baker?

These are politicians in the House; they too have raised money for election campaigns. How close have they themselves walked to the fine line that divides the implicit bribe from the no-strings gift?

Granted, two wrongs cannot make a right, but in law and politics, two wrongs can make a respectable precedent. Let members of the House reflect upon these matters for another two months, and then vote.

Vote! By the Ides of March, the President might have this agony behind him.

Ear troubles

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had otitis media for over 20 years. In the last three years every time I lie on my left side I feel a tremor run through my head and fade away in my chest. Could these tremors be the result of otitis media? Also, is otitis media dangerous, and can it be corrected by surgery? - J. H.

Otitis media - which is infection of the middle ear - can affect the balance mechanism, and that may explain what you feel as a tremor.

If the infection (the otitis media) is not eliminated, deafness can result. But the infection frequently can be corrected surgically by providing adequate drainage, plus use of antibiotics.

Plates not for dining

Remember when a plate was something to put food upon?

Today that is sometimes the truth and sometimes it just isn't so. It is the "just isn't so" part which interests us today.

We are discussing "collector plates" which are now available most anywhere. These plates sell for something like $15 to $40, or so and are what is known as limited editions. In other words, a certain number of the plates are made and then the mold is destroyed.

The idea is that these limited editions turn into good investments. One company dealing in such plates advertises that in 1969 a plate they offered was available for $9 and it is now worth up to $215. Another which was available for $25 in 1971 is now bringing $200. In another instance the "worth" has increased 600 per cent.

We assume that if you buy one of these plates as an investment you had better put it in a safe deposit box at the bank. Why? What if you hung it on the wall and it slipped? What if you were moving it from here to there and you dropped it?

The available plate editions run from anything to most anything else. From the religious to the unusual and from the interesting to the non-interesting.

The entire project is getting much like a book-every-month club. You can be notified when something new is available and you can get it - providing you have the money, of course.

The entire process isn't really something new. We are told the first dated annual plate was made in Denmark back in 1895. It sold for 50 cents and is now worth about $2,700.

To buy or not to buy, that's the question! We haven't made up our mind as yet. For the price of some plates now being offered you can buy a service for eight! Putting out money for only one plate will require an amount of thinking on our part.

Mr. Spector admits it is something to ponder. But then if scores and scores of people turn out scores and scores of numbered rare limited edition plates which are bought up by scores and scores of people - who will be left to pay the high prices for such plates a few years from now?

MR. SPECTATOR

Could be that everyone will have all the plates they need. Then you needn't put them in a safety deposit box. Just hang them on the wall and look at them.

Because if you do sell them at a great profit there will be something the Internal Revenue Service calls capital gain - and, brother, that can kill any profit you had in mind!

JUST REMEMBER Mr. Spector must point out there is one thing money cannot buy - and that is poverty. And along this same line, and what with the New Year parties celebrations coming up, just remember to never hit a man when he's down because he may get up!

TODAY'S CHUCKLE: Another thing about capitalism - everybody knows who's in Grant's Tomb.

Oil-fueled age nears conclusion

(c) New York Times Service. PARIS - The political aspect of the Arabs' oil embargo against states considered unfriendly to their cause has been permitted to obscure the fact the age of petroleum-fueled industry is drawing to a close just as the industrial revolution fueled by coal drew to a close earlier, or at any rate shifted gears.

Oil and natural gas, which are so richly concentrated in Arab lands, represent a magnificent means of pressure on complex technocratic societies.

As a political weapon, fossil fuels are useful to the Arabs so long as they retain at least minimal unity on an international issue - as in the dispute with Israel. This is a far more effective weapon than skyjacking, kidnapping, letter bombs and assassination.

The oil embargo, resulting from Saudi Arabia's strategy, has forced the world to realize that the entire energy question is a long-range problem. Not much time remains to settle it. Even the Shah of Iran is quoted as believing: "We have to force development of others things and not waste oil."

He is right. It is high time that industrial nations, recognize the truth. The coal of Wales and the Ruhr which initially gave England and Germany their boost into the modern power system, has dwindled. Although coal is far from finished as an energy source.

Its supply has been vanishing rapidly this century.

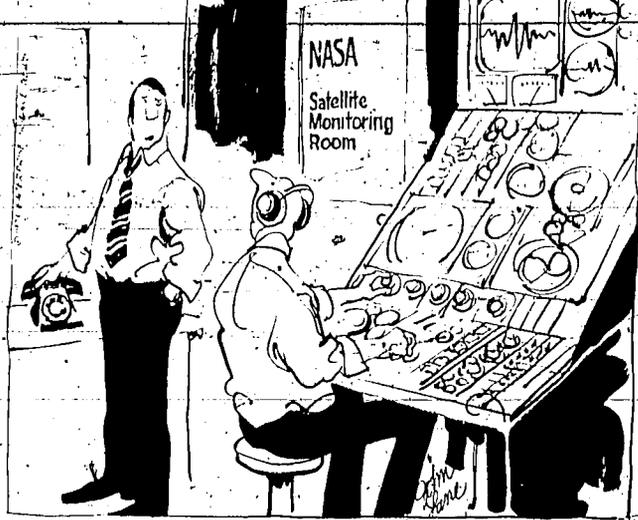

Because the cost of supplying coal mounted while its availability declined, technological countries and ample time to adjust to the arrival on the market of cheap supplies of oil. These fueled new power, textile, petrochemical, transportation and other industries.

Nevertheless, despite untapped supplies in the Middle East and other known reserves in the North Sea, China Sea, Siberia, Alaska, Africa and elsewhere, planners are aware the limits are being approached faster than realized.

This was what the Shah was thinking about. It is also behind the Arab producers' move, raising petroleum prices while simultaneously limiting supplies. The exporting country continues to receive as much or more for its product while hoarding stocks.

That formula is bound to continue into the indefinite future - no matter what solution is devised for Palestine.

The fuel have-nots are simply going to have to pay more and more for less and less energy. This problem, while abruptly exposed by the Palestine crisis, in the end has nothing to do with it.

Judges, bureaucrats put lid on information

By JACK C. LANDAU
(c) Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — The so-called Freedom of Information Act — which was supposed to give the public more information about federal government operations — is being strangled by bureaucrats and judges.

It takes from six months to a year to obtain court review of most government decisions to withhold information, with another year added if the government decides to appeal.

Last winter, the Supreme Court ruled the President could withhold just about anything he wanted to keep secret under the act by making a claim of "national security."

And now the U.S. Court of Appeals here has ruled the Justice Department, FBI and other federal agencies can ban public disclosure of information they claim is contained in "investigatory files compiled for law enforcement purposes."

The government is free to keep "investigatory" information secret even if its disclosure would be harmless, and even if there is no investigation involved, the appeals court said in a recent case.

It involved a writer, Harold Weisberg, who wanted to obtain the results of FBI laboratory analysis in connection with the murder of President Kennedy in 1963.

Weisberg claims disclosure of a spectrograph analysis would call into question some conclusions of the Warren Commission report. He filed suit under the Freedom of Information Act, which says that "each agency shall make available to the public information" in its possession that does not fall within one of seven exemptions.

One of these exemptions is for "investigatory files." Since virtually every government agency has some kind of "law enforcement" function, "investigatory" exemptions can be claimed by every agency from the Labor Department to the Social Security Administration.

The FBI did not claim, in response to Weisberg's suit, that release of lab reports on the Kennedy murder bullets would directly endanger any aspect of any criminal investigation.

It argued instead that releasing the Kennedy assassination information would have an indirect effect because it "would open the door to unwarranted invasions of privacy, and possible abuses by persons seeking information from the files."

A U.S. Court of Appeals three-judge panel ruled against the FBI. It said the law enforcement agency had not proved any harm would result from disclosure.

But a 10-judge panel of the appeals court later reversed the three-judge panel. It said courts will not sit in judgment on the FBI as to whether a "classification is proper."

Recently a Justice Department official said he could not understand why the press doesn't trust the government to fairly enforce the Freedom of Information Act and why the press is supporting "radical" reform in several bills now pending before Congress.

Development near rim desirable

Editor, Times-News:
Recently a problem has arisen in Twin Falls County, which must be resolved in the immediate future:
This is the question as to the development of properties north of the city of Twin Falls and specifically west of Grandview Drive and north from Pole Line Road to the Snake River Canyon Rim.

A small segment of the county's population has protested several residential subdivisions which have been proposed in the area.
It is my opinion that development in this area is not only feasible but is most desirable. My reasons for this are many and varied.

Perhaps of prime importance is the fact that the area, which is bounded by Eastland Drive, Rock Creek, the Snake River and the City of Twin Falls is no longer prime agricultural land. Even though most of the land is fertile and very productive, the eastward sprawl of Twin Falls has rendered the land unfeasible for the production of crops.

Today, from this area, it is nearly impossible to transport farm commodities to warehouses and other agricultural services and processors which lie exclusively in the south part of the city. In order to take sugar beets from this area to the sugar factory, trucks must stop at seven stop signs and cross three major arterials — Blue Lakes Boulevard, Addison Avenue, and Kimberly Road.

Since the proposed belt road around the city is at least ten years away, it will be of little value to farmers in this area. If that facility was in existence today it would be valuable.

By that time, however (according to Professor Ross Fasolino of Idaho State University) Twin Falls will have nearly 40,000 population. If this prediction comes true, and it seems very possible that it might, where will new property centers be located?

It seems only logical that by then the area north of the city must be developed. Irrigation services in the area are poor because all laterals come through the city of Twin Falls and many residents thereof dump garbage, lawn clippings, leaves and many other things in them.

As a result, farmers who use siphon tubes are constantly plagued by their being plugged with such rubbish. Flooded fields have been the result of this quite frequently. It is not uncommon to even find old tires in the headgaps in the area.

While a great deal of the land in the area is good, productive land, that which is along the canyon rim is very sandy and thus is extremely marginal. Only poor yields can be expected from such lands.

David M. Richey, the newly appointed city-county planner stated in the Dec. 16 issue of the Times-News that in the future, "scablands" should be used for further development of Twin Falls. Where else, to the proximity of Twin Falls do such "scablands" exist except along the canyon?

The area surrounding Twin Falls is noted for its superb soil. It is evident, then, that some good, productive lands must be utilized.

Sewer services are now readily available to most of this area. With hookups to such, pollution by septic tanks would not take place. Currently there are vast subdivisions east, south and southwest of the city which have no such services and thus the pollution of underground water supplies is a reality.

Such development should be curtailed until sanitary services can be provided. City water lines can easily be extended into this area and thus there would be no need for wells. Natural gas lines, which are already in the general area could be extended.

Proponents of "Canyon Incorporated" have apparently not bothered to look at the Federation Lookout on the end of Washington Street lately. It is overgrown with weeds and abounds with beer cans, pop cans, wine bottles and much other rubbish.

To reserve the canyon rim in its entirety would be foolish and extremely costly to the taxpayers of Twin Falls County. The most logical place for a park on the canyon rim is on the north side of the river overlooking Shoshone Falls.

If a state park could be established here and an interchange placed at the site on the Interstate, it could be a valuable rest stop for travelers as well as a prime facility for all residents of Magic Valley.

If we stop development to the north of Twin Falls, which way do we develop? To have a city in one strip stretching from Filer to Kimberly it would be nearly impossible to provide the necessary sanitary services as well as police and fire protection.

A compact city is the only answer and to allow the city to grow north to the Snake River and west to Rock Creek is the only feasible means of achieving such while preserving our agricultural economy.

To develop the city southward would mean battling up the existing agricultural suppliers and warehouses and thus more headaches would result.

Social as well as land-use planning should be considered in deciding the fate of this area. Since the area is near to the College of Southern Idaho as well as convenient to the shopping areas of Twin Falls, it would be a convenient place for people to live.

Also, it is in a reasonably central location to the developing industrial complexes in Jerome and Twin Falls. It is a very logical developmental area.

If the owners of the area aren't allowed to subdivide their properties in a logical manner, what is to become of them? Today it is evident that large corporations are buying up property and corporate farming is the only way to make money in farming.

The small farmer, until this year, has had it very hard to make ends meet. Small farms are not economical. If property owners can't sell their property for development who can they sell it to? Do we want out-of-state interests to come in to buy up all the property? I believe that most Idahoans want to keep Idaho for Idahoans.

Perhaps certain people would like to see development stopped for the time being so as to drive the land prices down and they buy the land at those reduced prices. This would then be a great way to invest one's money for speculation when he knew that inevitably the land would have to be developed and that then he could sell it and make great profits from his investments.

Much of the property in this area has already been partially surveyed for development because the intent of such was made months ago and the owners or developers were given the go-ahead by the county zoning board.

Now, because a few influential citizens, many of which don't even own property in Idaho, have protested the inevitable development, the zoning board has become a puppet in their hands and can't think for itself.

If this development is not allowed, who is going to assume the costs of the developmental work which has already taken place? Could it be that "Canyon Incorporated" would or would the individuals behind the scenes in this organization like to?

Speak out on problems

Editor, Times-News:
Please allow me to take this opportunity, to congratulate two Magic Valley citizens for having the courage to speak their mind on one of our most crucial national issues.

I refer to two open letters published in the Wednesday, Dec. 19, issue of The Twin Falls Times-News written by Steven Hirst and Dr. John McNeese, both of Twin Falls, putting in true perspective the implications behind this nation's energy crisis.

The letter written by Mr. Hirst, stating that he is a "Tired American," tired of being pushed around by a small group of bureaucrats such as the much too powerful Environmental Protection Agency and a few spineless yes men politicians who are telling the automobile industry how to engineer automobiles that produce less than 10 miles per gallon, and inferring the fish production in the Magic Valley is polluting the waters of the Snake River.

Right on, Mr. Hirst, I too would like to state here and now that we should let the Arab nations "eat their oil."

As Dr. McNeese so aptly stated in his letter, I am ready to pay the higher prices for gas and fuel, providing that the American people are not asked to shoulder the blame.

It is indeed true that this nation needs a change of attitudes and actions.

Noted news commentator Paul Harvey has stated many times that "government is a good servant, but a bad master."

Government will continue to be a master until we the people reverse our present attitude of complacency and rise to publicly tell government what changes we want made.

Government is like asparagus, from time to time it must be cut back or it grows to seed.

Perhaps it is time to give serious thought to insisting that government be cut back to the point where it will be more responsive to the needs of the people.

We simply must stop, "letting George do it." Oh, don't get me wrong, George is willing to continue doing it and will continue to go right on doing it to the American people.

Mrs. Robert B. Miller
Shoshone, Idaho
I urge each and every one of you to cry out publicly in the media, instead of in the coffee shop.

Make your desires known to the fat rulers who continue to inflict hardship upon those they should instead be serving.
Write your congressional delegations and send copies of your letters to area media.

Tell solons views on crisis

Editor, Times-News:
People! There is a crisis going on—we've been told — conserving power?

Christmas tree lighting may go on inside, no outside lighting — some have more than ever. Turning off freeway lighting — then towns like Salt Lake light up earlier than usual to get the spirit of Christmas because not having as much business.

Turning off lights and not use power for hair dryers and electric tooth brushes, etc. But does the bill go down? Turn down the thermostats, wear sweaters, you're being cut 50 to 55 per cent from last year. Can you get getting by on half the fuel?

The wind blows just as hard and the cold just as cold. (Thank heavens for the winter so far, huh?)

Lay off thousands to be supported by the government which is supported by you and I at $2.17 and $3 an hour, besides taking care of your own. Hard for two, how about six?

We had gas to fight the wars and play war soon as they stopped, everything goes fobewoy, queer? Turn it down, up goes prices. Slow down cars, save on gas, higher the prices, higher the blood pressure, more divorces or more babies with stay at home to watch ball games that burns the lights and re-re-runs. Get cable so you can have a better selection of re's.

Higher the food, clothing etc. You can't make it stretch that far unless your checks are rubber when it looks like they're trying, with more cattle rustlers, stealing, bad checks, conserving power at one time it seems the government wouldn't let more (water) power plants be built, now they're talking of building atomic powered ones, can you see what will happen when they're built in places with quake faults like in California. Be most like the atomic bomb of World War II.

How can our boys overseas do their jobs if they can't fight if no fuel, because that's what they really are there for if need be, isn't it? They can't hitchhike, ride bikes home. Maybe they'd better come home and take care of their own.

If anything happened to them, they wouldn't get the benefits they would be entitled to anyway because they're not there in act of war.

I am getting sick of Watergates, Nixon's taxes, the dirty dirty, to occupy minds, to keep the minds off of the crises at hand. Lets face it, the rich get richer and the poor get poorer.

Freezing to death and all the rest of it while the big shots are sweating, flying, driving, eating and dressing.

Now they are starting to ship in coal from Poland, cheaper than ours by a dollar? How come? One half the fuel for several states or partial states and 30 to 40 per cent less gas for most average guy and the best to come.

Toilet paper shortage, this is the limit! They said in Twin Falls paper Dec. 42 — it may become necessary if we don't lift price controls left up domestic pulp and limit pulp export. Export nothing, you wouldn't give to your neighbor, just because you'd promised and let your children do without.

What happened to the smarts — man to moon, at one time couldn't happen in a thousand years we said from the horse ill now. They're surely a few more smarts to come all this way. Surely everyone wasn't looking somewhere else, to get in this fix it's hard to believe, and in one year too, or there abouts.

Some I've talked to says I am not going to get shook up, if it's meant to be, it will be, what good will it do to make yourself sick when you can't do anything about it anyway. Write to Hansen and everyone of the congressmen, the President himself. After all they may open a few before they decide it would be cheap fuel.

I may embarrass my children who live in reading distance except my boy in Thailand, and be laughed out of the neighborhood, but do feel people are going to have to tell how they feel and this is on the order I wrote my Congressman.

DST plan creates hazards

Editor, Times-News:
The last two decades the American people have been brainwashed to follow all rules and regulations whether the rules are good or bad. We are not to think and use our own intelligence, just do as we are told.

This daylight saving time is a good example. If we follow this absurd law we are forcing our children to walk to school in the dark or to stand out on busy highways waiting for the school buses in the dark.

The road hazard is much worse at dawn than any other time of the day. We will kill more people on the pre-dawn roads if we are afraid to keep our clocks at the same time and not change them; we could just open the Magic Valley schools and all businesses an hour later. There is no sacred rule saying we have to open the doors at any specific time. When the sun comes up an hour earlier we could go back to the earlier hour.

I doubt if we'll do this, we are too conditioned in being ruled. One of these days they'll tell us to go to the canyon rim and jump over — believe it or not, we'll do it.

Common sense required now

Editor, Times-News:
Has it come to the point where a man aspiring to public office must have his whole personal life, like a basketful of unwashed diapers, flapping on the clothes line, in full view of God and everybody?

The man for investigation, if carried to all members of Congress, would empty those august halls of most of its inmates.

Few could pass an examination that revealed the throat cutting, the fudging of expense accounts, the undercover funding of their campaigns, the promises to certain interests, the outright bribery that elected them and keeps them in office.

Certainly there are honest men who could come clean in any airing of their private lives and finances. It is on these men that the future depends.

If this inquisition is not controlled we might ask St. Peter to condemn the next batch of sinners to service in the United States Congress. Idaho has much to be proud of besides its matchless scenery.

It is incredible that an acknowledged shake-down artist, standing within a breath of the highest office, could bargain with our highest courts for a token penalty and complete liberty.

This highlights the fact that a man who has no leverage will go to jail while his accuser goes free even though he is an accessory to the crime. If in danger just go to the judge and squeal on your partner.

Not one of those accused of scandal in Washington will serve a day when the bargaining is finished.

Deep down in his soul every man knows that nothing new has been exposed in the Watergate hearings. Only the bumbling of an over blown and over financed bunch of amateurs.

As one Senator stated, "This wouldn't have happened if it had been left to professionals." It would appear then that to exchange one political party for another would simply be to exchange thieves.

The national fault today is that we have been conditioned for 40 years to look to government for every directive in our daily lives.

Like a little boy who has played too long and found the bathroom too far away, in the face of any adversity, blubber and scream, "Why didn't, why don't, why hasn't the government done something?"

Government cannot do something we are unwilling to do ourselves.
In the present energy emergency we have no right to squall when we can afford to buy a $2,000 car for a half grown man to drive four blocks to school, build a $750,000 gymnasium and hire a $9,500 teacher to exercise him.
So long as we see an $8,000 camper, a boat, two snowmobiles, three cars and a motorcycle in one family it seems time to substitute reality for indulgence.
And this medium of common sense must come from within ourselves and not from a bureau in Washington whose staff may have majored in flower arrangement or sexual adjustment (our colleges offer courses in both).

Environment hints offered

Editor, Times-News:
To the citizens of Twin Falls:
In these Christmas holidays with joy and happiness flooding Twin Falls, one looks over the upcoming year.

The year 1974 is going to be a major turning point in United States history.
The big government hassles, fuel shortages and the other national problems concern the entire populace of the nation we so proudly call the United States of America.

The people in general of Twin Falls look upon these as the problems of the big cities. They don't have anything immediate to worry about. They are wrong!!!

Twin Falls faces a serious fuel crunch in 1974. Who cares? About one per cent of the population of Twin Falls. The people that are trying to do their part in conserving fuel are getting very discouraged.

A friend of mine put it this way, "I think that when I drive on the highway at 45 miles per hour and a pickup truck passes me at 80 miles an hour that all that I am doing to save fuel is good, but all I am doing is allowing someone else to abuse it longer."

Fuel is just one of the hassles we have. If people would just use their head in matters like these, the world would be a better place to live.

If any one is interested in how they can do their part for the environment, write me at 143 Pierce, Twin Falls. I will do my best to at least send you some guidelines for improving the way you use the environment.

Hospital given applause

Editor, Times-News:
I have only twice in my lifetime had to spend time in a hospital, and I am into what is now known as the Senior Citizen category.

The only time I have missed off the job in either the summer months or the fall and winter season has been two times when I have undergone major surgery.

Both times were at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and both of these surgeries were performed by especially talented and very capable surgeons.

My 1955 stay in this fine hospital, as I remember it was something over two weeks that time and I was afforded the best of professional care, by a staff some of whom are still here, very dedicated to doing what was necessary for the patient's care.

Very recently, Nov. 28, I was again admitted to Magic Valley Memorial and another major surgery was performed, by another fine, talented and dedicated surgeon.

There were others who contributed to the success of both of these procedures, anesthesiologists, other surgeons assisting and scores of other people too numerous to mention, who also served in their own way and who are fine, dedicated people in their respective fields.

My purpose in writing at this time is, not only to publicly thank this fine group of people, but to also give special mention to a very effective hospital staff, who made my stay both as pleasant as possible and as rigorously medically safe as possible also.

This I am sure does begin with hospital management and continues down through lines of authority, from doctors who prescribe, to head nurses whose responsibility it is to see that the orders are carried out, down to those who are directly responsible for dispensing medications, and to nurses and aides who pleasantly make it their business to take care of the patient's comfort.

I was able to observe, objectively, the procedures and dedicated way in which these people studied Doctor oriented orders and carried them out. All of their time, except the time it took to take professional care of each patient, was spent in the studying and interpretation of order and adding pertinent information to each chart to enable the Doctor, at his next visit, to evaluate the patient's progress or regress.

I spent my time on the fifth floor and I can honestly say that those people, on all shifts did, what I would certainly say, a most dedicated, pleasant, and truly professional job in their relationship to Doctor and patient alike.

When we are sick or hurting food just doesn't appeal to us and sometimes we get back at the world by taking our pot shots at those who plan the men us and prepare the foods. I would also like to thank these people for the very, very tasty way in which food was prepared and the wide variety offered each individual patient in line with his or her recommended diet. Each day we were given a menu at breakfast for all of the meals the next day and we could pick any one or more of several choices, and I am told, at no extra charge, and when the food comes it is tasty and in some cases would surpass a lot of home cooking. I hope this last remark doesn't get me in trouble with my wife or any other of you fine wives who may read this, but I would say that the food was beyond reproach.

To sum all this up I would like to say a sincere "thank you" to everyone who helped in any way to make my recent stay in Magic Valley Memorial, both constructive and very, very pleasant for me, and to say, Let's continue as a community to support our fine institutions and each other in our several needs.

Egyptian prof urges even handed policy

TWIN FALLS — An Egyptian professor said here the United States should look to its own interests and gain Arab oil through an "even-handed" policy in the Middle East.

The U.S. should not support an "expansionist" Israel.

That is the theme of Dr. Ragaf El Mallagh, economics professor at the University of Colorado, who presented his views here while visiting relatives in Jerome. Mallagh was born an Egyptian Copt (Christian sect) and is now a U. S. citizen.

"The administration has not been candid enough with the American people as far as the importance of Arab oil," Mallagh asserted. He said the United States, with 20 per cent of its oil supplies from Arab nations, "depends very heavily upon the Arab world."

The dependence will be greater in the future, he said, because 70 per cent of the world's oil supply is located in the Middle East.

Without Arab oil, the U. S. economy will plunge into recession while being caught in heavy inflation because the energy component makes up 25 and 15 per cent of heavy and light industrial production, respectively, he said.

Mallagh termed the energy crisis as "the biggest lie" and the idea of self-sufficiency as "the biggest national mirage that ever existed."

He said no energy crisis would exist if Arab oil were flowing and that although the United States should strive toward energy independence it should remember that achievement of this goal would "completely change our types of living."

In shaping our Middle East policy "no conflict whatsoever exists between our moral standard and our economic needs," Mallagh said. The economics professor said not the Israelis, but the Arabs feel threatened.

"I have no objection to being pro-Israel, but I do have objection to Israeli conquests," he said. He maintained the Middle East conflict now revolves around two basic issues: the expansion of Israel and the rights of the Palestinians.

Mallagh said Israel is now five times larger in territory than when first partitioned in 1948 by the United Nations. The need for security is no justification for taking Arab lands, he maintained: "Any country can go to war using the excuse of security. Germany has done that under Hitler."

To stop the conflict, Israel should return to its pre-war 1967 borders, Mallagh said. He said Arab states would recognize the right of Israel to exist in peace if it did this.

For security, Israel could have the guarantee of the United Nations. "I think this is the only security that any country in the 20th century can agree upon," he said.

Mallagh said Arab nations are now only asking for the implementation of U.N. Resolution 242, calling for Israeli withdrawal from 1967 occupied territories.

"The Arabs are not trying to get a change in policy. They are trying to get implementation of a declared policy... a policy against the admissibility of using force to acquire land," he said.

Any senator, such as Frank Church, D-Idaho, and Henry Jackson, D-Washington, who approves of weapons support for Israel "is really doing his country a disservice. One wonders if they are really representatives of Israel or the United States," Mallagh said.

Besides giving up occupied territories, Israel will have to "restore the human and political rights of the Palestinian people" to achieve the conditions of peace, Mallagh said.

He said this could be achieved either through repatriation or monetary compensation. The United States could absorb some Palestinian immigrants just as it has taken in Cuban refugees, he suggested.

"We can have Israel and oil if we use an even-handed policy," Mallagh said.

Five injured in 3-car accident

TWIN FALLS — A three-vehicle accident in the 1300 block of Blue Lakes Boulevard North about noon Friday resulted in minor injuries to five persons.

City police reported a vehicle driven by Thomas Mahan, 56, Jerome, who was accompanied by his wife, had stopped to make a left hand turn into the Holiday Inn parking lot when it was struck from behind by a vehicle driven by Ronald Dwight Patterly, 18, accompanied by a brother, Lonnie Patterly, 14.

The impact forced the Mahan vehicle into a northbound vehicle driven by Jonathan Paul Brown, 20, Twin Falls.

Drivers and passengers in the three vehicles were all treated for cuts and bruises. None was hospitalized here. Mr. and Mrs. Mahan returned to Jerome to be examined by their own physician after being taken to Magic Valley Memorial by ambulance.

Brown was also treated by his physician and the Patterly boys suffered only minor cuts and bruises.

TF youth charged with burglary

TWIN FALLS — About three hours after city police received a report of a burglary, an 18-year-old Twin Falls youth was in custody charged with the crime.

Twin Falls Chief of Detectives Tim Qualls said Michael Allen McCall, 18, was arrested at his home at 219 Sixth Ave. E., where a search of his apartment with a search warrant revealed a quantity of items.

Qualls said about $707 in stereo equipment was taken from Cesco Stereo Shop, 331 Main Ave. E. sometime between 8 p.m. Thursday and 9 a.m. Friday. The burglary was reported to officers about 9:30 p.m. By 12:30 p.m. officers had arrested McCall, charging him with first degree burglary.

Officers said they also recovered items believed to have been taken from the Head Start school in two burglaries and from the Twin Falls Public Library. One of these burglaries occurred Wednesday night and the other Thursday night.

Investigation is continuing. Qualls said, McCall was in custody Friday pending arraignment.

Andrus asks Idaho exemption on DST

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has signed a proclamation exempting southern Idaho from daylight saving time a step he hopes will save the state from getting the state legislature to keep Idaho on standard time.

The proclamation was sent to the Transportation Department for approval. Andrus said if the agency does not approve the petition, then it will be necessary for the legislature to try to exempt Idaho.

Andrus said daylight time year-round would be an undue hardship for a large segment of Idaho's population.

He said it would be disruptive to school schedules, difficult for farmers and ranchers and it is not necessary for the major population centers.

SPOTS AND STAINS can victimize any carpet, as a look around the house now the holidays are over will quickly show. High soil-resistance is a valuable asset of today's new chemical fibers and fine wools, but prompt attention to stains will keep your carpets looking their best.

As with any staining, the sooner removed the better. Use a sponge or clean white cloth to blot up excess liquids promptly. Don't "scrub" the spots. A spoon or spatula is good for removing solid spills without injuring the carpet.

There are special carpet cleaning detergents, or make a solution of one teaspoon mild liquid detergent with one teaspoon white vinegar in a quart of warm water. Never use soap. It leaves a sticky residue that attracts soil. A non-flammable drycleaning fluid is effective for oily stains.

It's important to keep from getting any carpet too wet. Soaking causes matting and even mildew. Be sure to dry the carpet thoroughly after cleaning. Warm air from your vacuum is good, and blot up excess dampness with towels. After drying, gently brush the pile to restore its original texture.

She estimated the loss at $82 including the purse, about $7 in change and a paycheck.

An employee of Dean Motor later told officers a purse had been found on their lot between two parked automobiles. The contents had been removed and left nearby with the exception of the valuables.

Novelist Solzhenitsyn discloses Russian plots

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nobel prize-winning novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, in a new book described by the publisher as his "most politically dangerous," charges that Russian dictator Josef Stalin plotted mass executions and enslavement of Jews that may have been thwarted only by his death.

In an expose of the Soviet secret police, prison camp and terror system, in the book called "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956," Solzhenitsyn wrote that Stalin in 1953 planned public executions in Moscow to whip up anti-Jewish sentiment to such a pitch that the entire Jewish population of three million could be transported to Siberia allegedly for their own safety.

But in an angry debate with some of his close associates who opposed the plan, Stalin suffered a stroke from which he died, according to the New York Times which Saturday published the first of three excerpts of the book, the English version of which is copyrighted by Harper & Row.

The 606-page description of the Soviet prison system from the days of the Bolshevik revolution to 1956 was smuggled out of the Soviet Union. It is being published in the original Russian by YMCA Press in Paris, and will appear in English, German, French, Swedish and Spanish editions.

Publisher Jean Morozov said the book was "the most politically dangerous" Solzhenitsyn has written and said he thought it was part of the writer's last literary testament.

Solzhenitsyn lives just outside the Soviet capital under what he has described as threat of exile in Siberia. He has complained Soviet authorities have compelled him to live apart from his wife.

In Moscow, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said he could not discuss the matter.

Boris D. Pankin, head of the new Soviet copyright agency, said: "Only recently I discussed that question with a UPI correspondent. I answered all his questions, and now I do not have time to go into that."

Pankin said in the interview last week that any Soviet author who published abroad without going through his agency is violating Soviet law. He also hinted at legal action against any foreign publisher who brings out such a book.

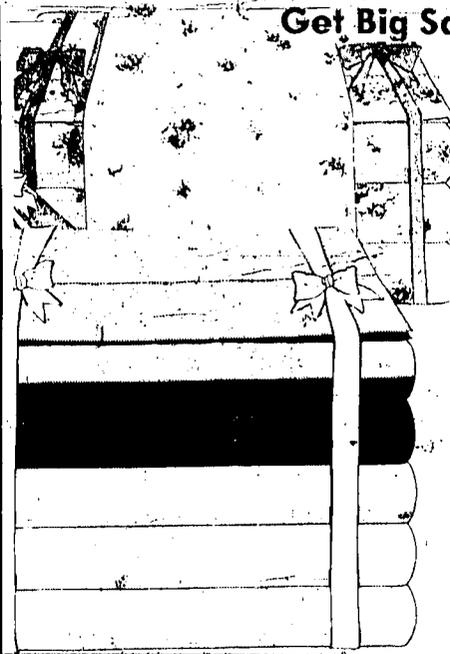

Solzhenitsyn gave a statistical comparison between conditions under the Czars and in the Soviet Union. In every category — arrests, terms of imprisonment, executions — he found the Soviet government worse than Czarist rule by up to 1,000 to one.

Solzhenitsyn's new book consists of two parts of his seven-part autobiography. Unlike his earlier novels about life in Soviet political concentration camps, "A Day in the Life of Ivan Denisovich" and "The First Circle," the new book marks Solzhenitsyn's first work using real names of persons.

Last Aug. 28, Solzhenitsyn told Western newsmen his life had been threatened, apparently by KGB agents, who demanded he stop his dissident activities and writing.

Golda appeals for votes

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir appealed Saturday for reelection votes as the leader of a government that would bargain firmly with the Arabs but leave room in a Middle East peace agreement for territorial compromise.

Beginning the last 24 hours of campaigning before Monday's voting for the Knesset (parliament), Mrs. Meir told a rally of new Soviet immigrants that "never has our fate depended more on the outcome of an election."

A last-minute flurry of newspaper advertisements and broadcast appearances by 21 party slates concentrated on Israel's bargaining position at the Geneva Middle East peace conference and how much occupied Arab land could be safely returned in the framework of a settlement.

Incomplete public opinion polls showed Mrs. Meir's Labor Front variously standing to lose five to 10 seats in the 120-seat Knesset, or else holding its own against the center-right Likud bloc.

Both lists were fighting hard for the ballots of the undecided electorate, said by the polls to range from 20 to 40 per cent. For the first time since 1949, large numbers of mobilized reserve soldiers—who have not been polled in the surveys—will vote at polling places in frontline positions.

Mrs. Meir's address before the Russian-speaking audience was the climax of efforts by both major lists to recruit votes from the nation's single largest ethnic voting bloc. Most of the immigrants, she reminded them, received permission to reach Israel since she took office in 1969.

The Prime Minister said the Labor Front "cannot concede any territory that would create a border which we ourselves cannot defend."

She said Israel would not give Syria back the Golan Heights, "allow Jerusalem to be divided again, or permit the border with Jordan to return to its pre-1967 status, when the center of the Jewish state was only 11 miles wide."

Mrs. Meir said Sharm el-Sheikh, at the southern tip of the Sinai peninsula, would not be returned to Egypt "or handed over to someone else to guard the Straits of Tiran for us."

At the same time, "the new borders will have to be different," she said.

Oil tankers 'queue up' on coast

(c) N. Y. Times Service NEW YORK — Scores of oil tankers are queuing up along the East Coast, bobbing in line for the dwindling dock space and scarce storage facilities to unload their cargo, according to coast guard and petroleum industry officials.

And, in some rare instances, the captains of ships owned by freelance "speculators" have also been looking for the best price they can get for their precious product, according to several oil cargo experts.

It has been the mild winter weather and a heightened energy consciousness, officials said, that have caused the tankers to fill to capacity, creating the shortage of storage facilities. And the heavy tanker scheduling, in anticipation of record-high demand by the oil companies, has kept the sometimes inadequate unloading bays filled to capacity as well.

At least four governors of East Coast States have expressed concern over possible bottlenecks in the flow of petroleum. Governor-elect Brendan T. Byrne of New Jersey said that the "tankers were out there waiting for their price."

The oil industry officials themselves, however, claim that the long lines at the unloading quays are not causing any major bottlenecks and point to the federal regulations established by the Cost of Living Council to indicate that even if they wanted to, they could not profit by holding up oil deliveries waiting for higher prices.

But a survey of ports along the Northeast coast Saturday disclosed at least two dozen tankers waiting for space at docksides.

Escape hatch

AN ESCAPE for prisoners — in the case of fire only — is being installed at the Twin Falls County Courthouse. Here heavy equipment from Northwest Rigging and Crane Co., Twin Falls, hoists a load of heavy tools to the top of the tube-like escape structure being installed for fire protection. The work is part of the jail remodeling program now nearing completion.

Tax money buys filet mignon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Almost $2 million a year in tax money is spent to underwrite cheap meals for the military brass. That allows one admiral's dining room at the Pentagon to serve rock lobster tail or filet mignon dinners for only $2.10 complete from soup to nuts.

There are 23 such dining rooms or messes for the military elite, 11 in the Washington area and the rest scattered around the globe.

The armed services say no tax money goes for the food, but tax funds do pay for considerable overhead such as waiters' salaries, utilities and the restaurant space itself.

A civilian cafeteria operator said labor costs in most cafeterias add 50 per cent to the cost of food with utilities and other charges on top of that.

The Pentagon reported to the House Appropriations Committee recently that in the 12 months from July, 1972, through June, 1973, more than $1.6 million in tax money was spent on the salaries of servicemen assigned to the messes and $230,000 was laid out for other overhead.

The committee called that "excessive."

Many Pentagon workers who aren't entitled to eat at the elite messes in the building ask why generals, who make $31,000 to $51,000 a year, should get the special savings. "I thought food stamps were for the poor," said one worker. Others defend the private dining rooms as a perk of rank.

Top ranking civilians also have membership in the restricted messes.

The Pentagon has six cafeterias for the 25,000 employees not privileged to have mess membership. The cafeterias are run by a private firm which adds to the price of its food the costs of labor, taxes, licenses, utilities, rent and profit.

The Pentagon cafeterias also run two dining rooms with waitress service where the cheapest luncheon available recently was a club sandwich with cole slaw for $1.70. Prices ranged up to $2.30 for a pot roast dinner.

Ration policy tough

The question of exemptions and exceptions should be largely settled by the "white market" system under which rationing coupons could be sold or exchanged freely by those who receive them.

The reason for having transferable coupons is to reduce the black market, and avoid having the government make all those distinctions between professional classes," Hill added.

"In World War II, you had to have a large administrative force just deciding special appeals and such."

Hill said "We just really want to take care of health matters and emergencies."

There may be some exemptions or higher allotments of coupons for health or emergency reasons, but not many, he said.

"Foreign diplomats will probably get an extra allotment of coupons. They might not speak English well, and car pooling may be difficult, so theirs would be a special burden," Hill said.

Although the rationing plan envisions giving coupons only to licensed drivers 18 and over, Hill said there would be exemptions on a case-by-case basis for younger teen-agers who are their family's major breadwinners "or have jobs critical to their support."

"We will be very severe there," he said. There are many more youngsters whose driving is mostly for fun or to school. They could buy coupons from buddies, he said.

Special exemptions might also go to jurors, particularly in rural areas, or rehabilitation patients who have to get to therapy sessions.

Even there, some may have to buy their extra coupons on the open market, he said.

"I believe doctors are not in any special category," Hill said. They should be able to buy extra coupons when they need them.

Congressmen? "We are wrestling with them right now," Hill said. Unlike foreign diplomats, for instance, Congressmen "know their way around and they speak English," so they should be able to buy extra coupons.

"Off the top of my head, we do not see any need for special treatment" for Congressmen, he said.

Taxi drivers who own their own cars and buy gasoline at retail will probably get a higher allotment, as will independent delivery men and others whose driving is a living, he said.

If somebody is hundreds of miles away from his "home base" coupon headquarters and runs out of gas, he would probably just have to buy some coupons, Hill said.

42 bodies found

KUCHING, Sarawak (UPI) — Rescuers Saturday said they had recovered a total of 42 bodies and said 80 or more persons were still missing after a small passenger ship sank off the coast of Sarawak this week.

Officials said 41 survivors were rescued after the 227-ton "Pulau Kidang" sank early Thursday morning near the Malaysian state.

Sarawak's chief minister, Datuk Haji Abdul Rahman Yakub, declared Sunday a day of mourning. Movies and places of entertainment were asked to close down as a mark of respect for the victims.

Hitchhiking women killed

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (UPI) — The bodies of two young California women, who apparently had been hitchhiking, were found in a ditch along Interstate 65 and officials said Saturday they may have been thrown from a truck.

A bulletin was broadcast for a flatbed truck which the girls reportedly were seen getting onto, but police withheld other details of the investigation.

The women, found Friday, were identified as Nancy Jane Morey, 20, of Sacramento, and Barbara Therse Boynton, 18, of Oakland.

Police said the girls apparently died of head injuries.

George Haynes, special agent for the Tennessee Bureau of Criminal Identification, said the bodies were lying about 50 feet apart—too far, the officer said, for the girls to have been hit-and-run victims. Williamson County Sheriff Fleming Williams said a tire tool and a knife with a four inch blade was found near the death scene, but added that neither victim appeared to have been beaten. A search of the victims' backpacks, found near the bodies, indicated the women had hitchhiked to Tennessee from California.

British oil deal said 'speculation'

LONDON (UPI) — The British Foreign Office Saturday described as speculation a report that Britain would conclude a 10-year agreement with Saudi Arabia for 30 million tons of oil annually in return for sophisticated weapons and heavy industrial machinery.

The report quoted the Beirut Magazine Al Diyar as saying a British team would shortly fly to Saudi Arabia to finalize the deal.

Officials in London termed the report "speculation," but they did not rule out such a visit. Diplomatic sources said the use of the word speculation did not indicate a categorical denial of the report.

The sources said Foreign Office officials seemed to question the details—particularly the figures. The report follows a visit to Saudi Arabia three weeks ago by Lord Aldington as a special envoy of Prime Minister Edward Heath. Aldington, accompanied by a Foreign Office energy expert, had talks with Saudi Arabia's King Faisal and his ministers.

Crisis cuts holiday travel

Some of the most bizarre tales came from New York City. Three young gunmen hijacked a truck carrying 3,000 gallons of gasoline, police said.

One man told state officials, who set up special "hotlines" along with federal government agents to receive complaints of price gouging, that he had to pay $6.42 for two gallons of gas at a Manhattan service station. Another said his car's gas tank was topped off with water, and he was still charged.

In another case, a driver lined up with other motorists outside a Staten Island, N.Y., filling station for an hour to buy his quota of gas. When he got to the front, the pump ran out after he received only $1.84 worth.

Police said the service station wouldn't give him gas from another pump unless he went back to the end of the line, so he left. He returned a few minutes later and threatened the attendant with a gun, but left without getting any more.

In Chicago, attendants at one string of stations were reported to have taped the meter to block out the price, charged $1 a gallon and pocketed the difference—more than 50 cents a gallon.

Acting Attorney General Robert H. Bork ordered U.S. attorneys across the country to go to the homes of judges if necessary to get court restraining orders against service stations gouging motorists.

The Internal Revenue Service set up price watch complaint centers. Service stations charging more than allowed under federal price ceilings are ordered to roll back prices and face a $2,500 fine. One oil company cut off supplies to a station that charged 89.9 cents a gallon at Christmas.

In Baltimore, IRS official Gloria Tanski estimated that they received more than 140 calls in the first three hours of the New Year's holiday weekend.

The New Hampshire Automobile Association said gasoline supplies are "drying up at a rate faster than anticipated as the end of the month nears."

The Automobile Legal Association in Massachusetts said trouble cuts from motorists who run out of gas are running "very, very high, much more than normal."

'Grave' crisis hits Britain

The country's fuel stocks have dwindled as a result of the miners' ban on overtime work in a demand for higher pay and similar actions by electric power workers and train engineers who haul coal, when coupled with Arab oil cutbacks. The government has had to impose the three-day work week in order to save stocks on energy.

One ray of hope was the decision Friday by 18,000 electric power engineers to call off a two-month old ban on overtime work. This should enable the Electricity Generating Board to switch power across the nation to where it is most needed.

Government controls on the use of electricity, unusually mild weather and cuts in use by domestic consumers have slowed the rate of depletion of coal stocks at the power stations.

However, the amount of coal available at power stations has been reduced from 16 million tons on Nov. 24 to 13 million tons a month later.

Lawrence Daly, general secretary of the Mineworkers' Union, said Saturday the three-day working week is a public measure designed to turn the public against the miners.

He contended that coal stocks "are probably higher than at this time last year."

Greek detainees sent to island

ATHENS (UPI) — The Greek government Saturday sent a number of political detainees to the prison island of Yura, relatives of those sent there said.

The detainees, numbering over 30, included former Center Union member of Parliament Ioannis Charalambopoulos, 54; left wing trade unionist George Sterghiou, 68, and journalist Nikos Klaus, 30, relatives said.

They said the detainees, under police guard, were put on a special boat to Yura early Saturday. The 20-square-mile island in the center of the Aegean, which was used as a site of exile since the time of the Roman empire, is a treeless, waterless formation of volcanic rock.

Greek authorities built a prison for Communist detainees during the civil war of the late 1940s.

New year brings welfare reform

Times-News Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Welfare reform will come to Idaho — and the rest of the country — with the new year.

For an Idaho citizen now receiving aid because of blindness, disability or age, the reform will mean at least as much income as is now the case. Instead of one government check, though there will likely be two in the mail each month, one from the federal government and one from the state.

For the taxpayers of Idaho, state officials say the reform won't directly increase the cost of public assistance. Indirectly, however, there could be an increase of as much as $2 million over the next 18 months.

The additional cost could result from an expected increase in the medical assistance program — separate from but related to categorical grant programs.

According to legislation that will govern the new Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program, the federal government will guarantee eligible recipients in the three categories a minimum monthly income of $130. The figure for an eligible couple is $195.

Idaho has decided to make sure that no person will take a reduction in income because of the reform, however, to do that, the state will supplement the federal government check or keep income levels stable.

A state check could range in size from a dollar or two each month to as much as $62, according to James Wilson, eligibility director for the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS).

The federal legislation also guaranteed the 50 states that reform wouldn't cost them any more money than assistance is already costing — about $2.1 million for Idaho.

According to the DECS director of Management Services, Howard Jamieson, that is the state's share of current aid to the blind, aged and permanently and totally disabled.

Nevertheless, DECS is going to ask the 1974 legislature for a supplemental appropriation of $2 million. According to Jamieson, there was so much uncertainty earlier this year about the reform then pending in Congress that the lawmakers didn't appropriate money for the full fiscal year. The amount of $2 million is required to keep the state participating for the next six months.

The change in the program is going to affect about 6,000 Idaho assistance recipients. Jamieson said there are about 2,600 persons receiving old-age assistance. The average monthly cost to the state for supplementals for those people will be about $26, he said.

For the 100 persons receiving blind assistance, DECS figures show the cost to the state averages about $24 a month. For the 3,300 cases of permanently and totally disabled, the cost will also be about $24 a month.

According to figures in the DECS regional office in Twin Falls, over 800 people will find a change in the assistance payments with the first of the year. The Nov. 1 regional caseload shows 430 persons receiving old age assistance, 389 getting disability assistance and a caseload for blind assistance of seven people.

While the SSI program won't directly increase the state's cost of public assistance, it will probably lead to an increase in the number of people eligible for medical assistance.

That in turn, according to DECS figures, will mean a greater cost to the state — as much as $500,000 for the last six months of this fiscal year and $2 million for the next year and a half.

As a result, Jamieson said, DECS is going to ask the legislature for a supplemental of $500,000 for the remainder of the current year to allow the state to meet its share of the costs.

The only alternative, according to Jamieson, would be to permit the federal government to administer the program itself but still with the same amount of state funds.

According to Wilson, some federal officials are estimating that medical assistance caseloads will nearly double with the SSI program.

The Social Security Administration, he said, anticipates an increase to 6.3 million eligible Americans from the present 3.3 million over the next year.

The increase in Idaho will also be substantial, Wilson and Jamieson agree. But Jamieson is predicting a gradual increase of 3,000 to 4,000.

Christmas theft nets thieves $1,250

TWIN FALLS — Reed Coulam, Twin Falls City building inspector, told city police today his loss in a Christmas house burglary is about $1,250.

His home was entered sometime between Dec. 24 at 10 a.m. and Wednesday morning when the break-in was discovered. Officers said a door and window were broken out.

Coulam said several items were taken from his home including a 10-inch color television set. Officers are continuing their investigation. Two juveniles were taken into custody late Wednesday in connection with destruction of property at a building site at the corner of Morningside Drive and Sigrid Street.

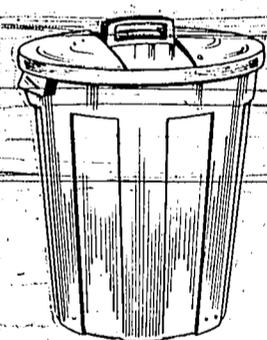

Twin Falls Police Capt. Tim Qualls said an alert neighbor reported hearing someone in the partly completed building owned by Vernon Smith. The boys were apprehended near the building site with the aid of private citizens. Damage to the building included torn plastic window coverings, broken glass and wall boards. Smith said the loss would amount to several hundred dollars.

Local residents optimistic about coming year

Question: What do you foresee for 1974?

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News Writer

John Rosholt, lawyer: "The next five years in agriculture here may be the most profitable of any we've ever known. As life gets more complicated, there seems to be more legal business."

The National Environmental Protection Act and Occupational Safety and Health Act, for instance, as well as possibility of congressional passage of a National Land Use Act all have created complex situations sometimes requiring legal action."

Frank Barnett, Twin Falls police chief: "It looks like the continuing gas shortage will slow down traffic, as far as accidents and injuries are concerned. The fewer miles driven, the less chance of accidents."

"I don't see any increase in crime in relation to the economic condition. In the past increases in crime have come with good times. The cases of stealing for necessity — like breaking in for a loaf of bread — are very small in proportion to the total crime load. Many who are involved in crime would be there no matter how many jobs were available."

John Christoffersen, mayor: "1974 will generally be a year in which we'll have to pay attention to the things we do in order to make it go ahead."

"In the city we are committed to several actions — completion of the $400,000 fire station, the airport tower and starting construction of the $4 million secondary sewage treatment facility. We are anxious to go ahead as funds are available for the longer we wait the more expensive it will become."

John Massey, businessman: "Americans have more money than they ever have had. Some areas of merchandise may be in short supply like denim and tery cloth, but I think it will be temporary and only on some items for a few months."

"You might not be able to get pink or blue towels, for example, but probably you could substitute white or yellow. We depend heavily on farmers for our income and look forward to an excellent year."

George Staudaher, superintendent of schools: "Probably one of the biggest things, in its effect on financial support for our schools, is what happens to a decision made by District Judge J. Ray Dartsch that the way we tax our property is unfair."

"I understand Atty. Gen. Tony Park is going to bring it to the Idaho Supreme Court. If the decision is upheld it will affect the entire state. The energy crisis also could affect school activities, like wrestling, basketball and drill team trips."

Rev. Ray Jones, minister: "I don't foresee too much change, but it will be a time in which we get our backs to the wall, but will rise to the occasion and do what we have to do."

"It's going to be a year to test our moral fiber and we're going to have to exercise some faith and much courage. Our affluence has softened us up so we don't face up to the real problems, but when forced to do something, we usually come through."

Ruth L. Brown, president of Twentieth Century Club: "The year 1974 will be a real challenge of people in the United States. We have taken, so many comforts, conveniences and even luxuries for granted during recent years that tightening our belts will not be easy."

"But in the past we have always been able to put the good of America ahead of our individual wants, and I am sure we can do so again."

C. E. (Corky) McKean, bartender: "I see 1974 as continuing to be a good year for all kinds of business. I don't see why it won't be just as good as last year."

Arlan Call, librarian: "This past year has seen a trend toward greater use of the library and this trend should continue, with less gas and other forms of entertainment available."

"We have reason to hope for a major addition to the library now that construction money impounded by President Nixon has been released. Whatever Idaho gets, Twin Falls is in first priority for buildings funds."

Rolfe Moore, newsman: "I see a pretty fair year for Magic Valley, probably better than in most areas. We're lucky in that we don't have an electrical power shortage and the shortage of petroleum hasn't affected local manufacturing industries and, if you can believe what you hear, we're still going to progress. The increase in (radio) competition is going to result in better service. We're going to have to do a better job."

Former Twin Falls woman to star in movie

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A former "young" movie star who grew up in Twin Falls has firm advice for would-be actors.

"Definitely don't go to New York or Hollywood unless you have an insatiable desire to make it," says Robyn Hilton, who stars in "The Last Porno Flick" just produced by Bryanston Pictures, "for it's very difficult." The 29-year-old actress who has reached a milestone with the completion of two major films — "Blazing Saddle," a satirical comedy on the west of the 1890s, as well as the "Last Porno Flick," said in a telephone interview she plays the part of the "dumb blonde."

Her press agent's publicity material says she's a sex symbol and proud of it and points out there is a current revival of interest in the so-called glamour queens. Back in the 1930s, and 40s one could count 10 or 15 such sexpots, but now no one can come up with a name besides Raquel Welch, the release says.

The material also lists her birth date as 1949, making her an alluring 24 years old, but student personnel files at Twin Falls High School, where she was listed as a student in 1961-62, give her birth date as 1944. This apparently reflects the obsession with youth so sacred to press agency.

Miss Hilton, who retains her married name for the state, is the former Robyn Molyneux, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Molyneux, lived here for many years.

"I'm related to all the Molyneuxs," she said. At Twin Falls High School she played the lead in "The Solid Gold Cadillac" and later attended Brigham Young University for three years before going to Hollywood to seek her dramatic fortune.

Although the press agency material says she landed television roles quickly and has done guest appearances on the "Dean Martin Show," "Tonight Show," "Love American Style," "Police Story," "Needles and Pins" and "Bob and Carol, Ted and Alice," Robyn said via phone that she "starved for two years" doing television commercials, and programming.

Acting is very interesting, but very hard work, she declared, and one has to "be very dedicated." It's far from glamorous, but she obviously loves it, despite a rigorous schedule of arising at 4 a.m., being on set with makeup at 5:30 a.m. and on camera by 9 a.m.

After a 20-minute lunch break the day usually ends around 8 p.m. During the filming of a movie, she works this kind of schedule five days a week, and the filming usually takes between 8 to 10 weeks.

The manager takes 15 per cent of her earnings and the agent takes another 10 per cent, Miss Hilton says, adding it took her two years to get a good agent. Getting an agent seems to be the first step toward "making it" in Hollywood, for the agent then can bargain with both producer and director, Miss Hilton says, and one's chances of working are much better.

She said she knows some people who have been in Hollywood for 20 years and can't get an agent. Usually there's a panel of 10 people who pick who the agency will accept and the competition is "very heavy," she said.

Colleen Hawkins, Kinyon recite vows

BUIH - Colleen Hawkins and Joe Kinyon were united in marriage in a double ring ceremony Dec. 15 at the Buih Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of June Hawkins and Merle Hawkins, both Buih. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. David Kinyon, Castleford.

Rev. Glenn Wallman performed the ceremony before two large Grecian urns of white chrysanthemums, tipped with blue and silver, and gold candelabra with blue tapers.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a gown of polyester organza which featured a sequin trimmed yoke and lily point sleeves. Her chantly-lace mantilla veil formed a train. She carried a cascade bouquet of orchids.

Tammy Givens was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were LaDawn Hawkins, sister of the bride, Lou Ann Kinyon, sister of the bridegroom, and Janice Carter. Dee Dee Snodgrass was flower girl and Jonnie Knudson was ring bearer. Pam Snodgrass was train bearer.

Candlelighters were Marty Hawkins, brother of the bride, and Chris Burkhalter. Greg Cooke served as best man. Ushers were Marty Hawkins, Curt Carter and Chris Burkhalter.

Mrs. Charles Lehrman served as organist.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth. The four tiered wedding cake was decorated with blue roses and silver leaves with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The cake was baked and decorated by Mrs. Leonard Walcott, Buih.

The cake was flanked with candelabra decorated with blue tapers and carnations and two small heart shaped cakes with the bride and bridegroom's names.

The cake was cut and served by Dorene Clark. Mrs. Forrest Weaver poured coffee and Alyce Warr served punch.

Tammy Long was in charge of the guest book. Kathy Long, Laura Rae Weaver and Susan Clark were in charge of the gifts.

Special guests were Mrs. Dorothy Hoskins, Buih, grandmother of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Denver Kinyon, Castleford, and Mrs. C. A. Human, Hazelton, grandparents of the bridegroom.

people around and success results more from being in the right place at the right time than talent, unfortunately, according to the actress.

"She says she has been compared to Carole Lombard and describes her acting roles as the "typical dumb blonde, with a comedian flair." She's an ardent fan not only of the late Miss Lombard, whom middle-agers will recall as Clark Gable's wife who was killed in a plane crash; but of Marilyn Monroe and Judy Holiday.

"They were gorgeous and besides being accomplished dramatic actresses, they all possessed such a wonderful flair for comedy," she says.

Her typical role, she says is a secretary who can't type, and, of course, shorthand is out of the question.

"She says she has been play acting since she was 3 and met considerable resistance from her parents, who are staunch Mormons, when she let it be known she wanted to become an actress.

"She studied dancing for 15 years and has also taught dancing in Utah and Idaho. While in Twin Falls she worked briefly at KMVT.

"The actress says she is half Scandinavian and half Cherokee Indian. The agency material says she doesn't drink, smoke and doesn't go to parties. She has a steady boyfriend and is into numerology and reincarnation.

Her ambition, the press release says, is to become a super star and then retire to an island and have lots of babies.

Altrusa initiates at party

TWIN FALLS - Six new members were initiated by members of the Twin Falls Altrusa Club during their holiday party Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. E. F. Prafer.

Those initiated and presented corsages were Adah Mae Bell, Frieda Melton and Glennis Hopkins, all Twin Falls; Beverly Smith, Filer; Debbie Williams, Jerome, and Lillian Mefford, Buih.

New members were introduced by Virginia Bancroft, with Marie Sanders, conducting the initiation service.

Four other new members, Carolyn Comer, Myrtle Dodson, Elaine Call and Pat Knutson, will be initiated during the Jan. 8 business meeting at the Colonial House. June Brown served as hostess, with Norma Herzinger, vice president, giving the welcome.

Utah orchestra sets 2 TF concerts

TWIN FALLS — The Utah Symphony Orchestra directed by Maurice Abravanel will present two concerts in Twin Falls in January.

Known as one of the top ten symphonies in the world, the group will appear here Jan. 15 and 16 under sponsorship of the district 5 Junior Music Clubs.

A special student concert is planned for Jan. 16 at 10:30 a.m. in the Fine Arts Center of the College of Southern Idaho. An evening concert open to the public will be held Jan. 15 at 8 p.m. also in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

Tickets for the special student concert will be on sale at Magic Valley schools following the holiday vacation. Deadline for purchase of the tickets is Jan. 5.

The College of Southern Idaho's Cafeteria will be open to serve lunches to groups of students who notify the concert chairman by Jan. 5 of their desire for lunch before returning to their schools.

Mrs. Donald Youtz, 795 Walnut St., Twin Falls, 83301, telephone 733-7905 is concert chairman.

Tickets for the evening performance are on sale in local music stores as of Jan. 1 or may be obtained from Mrs. Youtz.

Proceeds from the symphony performances will be used in the scholarship fund for assisting talented Magic Valley students of music and dance.

Maestro Abravanel is now in his 27th year as director of the Utah symphony making this the longest tenure of any conductor with a major U.S. orchestra.

An American citizen of Spanish-Portuguese ancestry, he was born in Salonika, Greece, and reared and educated in Switzerland.

Abravanel came to the United States in 1936 as the youngest conductor ever engaged by the Metropolitan Opera. He had already established himself as a brilliant young conductor in Europe and had rendered guest conducting assignments in Berlin State Opera and had served as musical director for the Balanchine Ballet Co. in Paris as well as conducting for the Paris opera.

Abravanel also directed the Sydney, Australia, Symphony and began his work in Utah in 1947.

Since that time he has directed performances in schools throughout the Intermountain area and is particularly well known for his work with youth and for involving young musicians in performances with his orchestra.

His associate conductor, Ardean Watts, who was born in Kanosh, Utah, was educated in Idaho before attending the Academy of Music in Vienna, Austria. He will conduct the special student concert.

Watts joined the Utah Symphony in 1956 and has founded the successful Utah Opera Co., acting as executive and music director for the company. He is professor of music at the University of Utah.

Car thief didn't get far

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Even the dark cloud of the gasoline shortage has its silver lining, at least for Thelma Ruiz.

The thief who stole her car got only 75 feet before it ran out of gas and he had to leave it.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Allen and I are planning on getting married soon, but something about Allen bothers me. He has "Helen" tattooed on his chest, and my name is Rosemary.

Allen knew Helen years ago and says he doesn't even know where she is now, but Abby, how would you like to rest your head on your husband's chest every night and see another girl's name staring you in the face?

Allen says he doesn't think it's possible to remove a tattoo, but a tattoo artist says he can add some art work to the "Helen" so it will look like "Rosemary."

Tattoo problem

What do you think of this idea? Before I tell him to go ahead, I want to be sure he can't get the "Helen" off completely.

ROSEMARY

DEAR ROSEMARY: There are many different methods of removing tattoos. Some doctors recommend skin grafting, others prefer a method called "dermabrasion." Allen should investigate all the known methods and make his choice. He'll feel a lot better when he gets "Helen" off his chest. And so will you.

DEAR ABBY: This is a question many young men must have on their minds and your answer will be very beneficial to hundreds of thousands of fellows.

MUST a male be circumcised? And if so, why?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Altho some disagree, the overwhelming majority of medical authorities agree that circumcision is necessary for hygienic reasons. And it is a fact that the wives of circumcised men are far less likely to have cancer of the cervix than wives of men who have not been circumcised. (P. S. Contrary to what many believe, circumcision originated with the Egyptians. The Jews later made it a religious rite.)

DEAR ABBY: When you spoke to our high school in St. Louis, when I was a teen-ager, you gave us your definition for maturity. I kept it for all these years, and now it's lost. Will you please give it to me again? Thank you.

STILL READ YOU

DEAR STILE: Maturity is the ability to do a job whether you're supervised or not; finish a job once it's started; carry money without spending it. And last, but not least, the ability to bear an injustice without wanting to get even.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SICK OF BEING SICK IN ELIZABETH N. J.: Try this: "Talk health. The dreary never smiling tale of moral maladies is worn and stale. You cannot hope to charm or please by harping on that mincey chord 'disease.' So, say that you are well, and all is well with you, and God will hear your words and make them true." (Ella Wheeler Wilcox.)

Rupert couple weds

West opened the four of clubs to his partner's ace. East led the eight of clubs back. The Professor who was declarer turned to the student who was watching him and remarked, "This may be one of the toughest hands of the year to play."

Then he discarded his ten of hearts. West was in with the queen of clubs and for want of anything better to do led a third club.

The Professor discarded his jack of hearts on dummy's 10 of clubs and proceeded to cash dummy's ace and queen of trumps. If both opponents had followed he would have played a third trump, discarded his queen of hearts on the jack of clubs and conceded a trick to the ace of diamonds but West showed out on the second trump.

The professor promptly led dummy's king of diamonds. East thought a while and played low whereupon the Professor led a low diamond. East ducked again and declarer's jack held the trick. A third diamond knocked out East's ace and there was no way to keep the Professor from discarding his queen of hearts on the last diamond.

As the Professor said at the start, it was a tough hand. Just try and find any simple way to bring home 10 tricks against good defense.

Magic Valley area termed 'Athens of Idaho' in cultural activity

By LOHAYNE O. SMITH

TWIN FALLS — The year 1973 can be recorded as one of continued vigor in cultural activities for the Twin Falls area.

The head of the Idaho Arts and Humanities Commission has called Magic Valley "The Athens of Idaho." According to Doris Yontz, music club official, and the number and caliber of musical or dramatic offerings, especially this past fall, easily confirm the compliment.

Last fall the music or theater lover had something to attend nearly every weekend, sometimes to the frustration of actors and musicians who had to choose between the various productions in which they participated and directors who were, to some extent, vying for the same talent, as well as audience.

These included productions by College of Southern Idaho, Little Theatre and Children's Theatre and concerts by Northwest Wind Quintet, Philadelphia String Quartet, Magic Valley Symphony Orchestra and Community Concert, all within a few weeks time.

The past year also saw the inception of at least one new vocal group — the Magic Valley Chorus, which made its debut on Palm Sunday under the direction of Roger Vincent, well known vocalist from Ellet.

In the fall the group joined forces with the Magic Valley Symphony for an ambitious undertaking of Mendelssohn's "Elijah" oratorio.

In a lighter vein, barbershop music continued to be popular with annual programs by both the Magichords and their female counterparts, Sweet Adelines. Both groups add interest to their programs with outside talent.

By far the most popular, country music continued to draw overflow crowds at each of the benefits held by the two local groups, in January, February and October. Charitable organizations and individuals also benefit from these events as the country music organizations designate their proceeds to a worthy cause.

Local theater groups prosper in our community, providing the theater lover with a plentiful menu to suit all tastes. The annual musical production of the Dilettantes of Magic Valley provides acting and production opportunity for a large number of "lay" people who earn their bread by more mundane means, but whose interest in the stage propel them into untold hours of preparation before the March presentation.

There's the Little Theatre, an offshoot of the Dilettantes, whose members want to do other types of drama throughout the year, and ambitious and well done productions by both the Twin Falls High School and College of Southern Idaho drama departments.

In addition to all this, Children's Theatre under the adept leadership of Beverly Sturgill, not only adds another charming performance for adults as well as children, but through her federally funded pilot project has strengthened the local school's curriculum offerings with classes in specialized aspects of drama and stage productions.

The largest group, in terms of geography and audiences reached, is the Antique Festival Theatre, which started some 10 years ago as a summer repertory group at Duhl under the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Aldrich Bowler.

Since then it has grown to year around productions which now encompass not only Idaho but neighboring states and presentation of many workshops in schools. This fall the group played to 14,670 high school and junior-high school youth.

The original summer repertory was expanded to schools in Idaho in the fall of 1972 and this current school year the presentations will be divided with high schools and junior high schools in the fall and a spring tour for elementary grades next spring.

In music, as well as drama, the public schools and CSI do much to supplement the cultural diet, even though many in the audience at junior high and high school seasonal concerts are the usual "captives" kind, there because of duty.

The college also adds to the musical scene with stage and concert band performances and faculty recitals in addition to a major musical.

This past summer young instrumentalists from the area, directed by Larry Curtis, CSI band director, presented concerts both here and at Ketchum.

Musical students also gain from the multitude of musical activities, for most of the events sponsored by the Twin Falls Music Club help provide money for scholarships.

This past year more than $6,000 was given to about 160 students currently studying either music, dance or drama.

Another enduring musical group whose popularity never wanes is the Twin Falls City band, which has functioned, without a break, for more than 60 years. The Thursday night band concerts are a traditional part of summertime for many families and groups who often hold their meetings at the park on that night.

In the art field, this past year saw the closure of the Art Mart in Twin Falls, because Twin Falls Bank and Trust needed the space it had made available to artists.

But the Art Guild of Magic Valley has expanded its hangings to include the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, the YW-YMCA building, Heritage Manor and the Idaho First National Bank in Filer.

The group, the major organization for artists in the area, held its early "art in the park" show in June and displayed members' work at the Mall Art Festival in July.

The visit here last May of the Art Train, sponsored through the Idaho Arts and Humanities Commission, was a highlight for those interested in various art forms.

The year ended with a well-received presentation of "The Messiah" under the direction of Carson Wong, Jerome, which was inspiring both from a musical standpoint and in symbolizing cooperation of musicians from throughout the area.

Alaskan dog at home in TF snow

By HONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Nikki felt right at home in Twin Falls Saturday morning although he has never been here before.

Nikki is an Alaskan husky, accustomed to the deep snow and cold winter weather of the Bering seacoast. He arrived in Twin Falls with other members of the Rogor W. Lileks family Friday.

The family is moving here from the Bethel, Alaska, where Lileks served with the Social Security Agency for the past year. He accepted a promotion and transfer to Twin Falls with the same agency.

Nikki, an 8-month-old Siberian Husky, spent most of Saturday giving the Lileks children rides on a small sled, living up to the customs of his ancestors. A beautiful white husky, he already weighs about 90 pounds and will probably reach 120 at full growth.

The Lileks obtained him from Eskimos in the village of Koniganak on the Bering seacoast. He was flown as a small puppy by bush plane from his home to three villages while Lileks handled intricate work for the Social Security Agency and then by jet to his new home.

He accompanied the Lileks' four children, three other dogs and one cat via jet plane to Seattle and from there to Twin Falls by automobile.

"It took him a while to get used to traveling,"

Lileks said, "but he doesn't seem to mind now."

As soon as Nikki saw snow on the ground Saturday morning he cried to be let out of the temporary home at the Monterey Motel. Mrs. Lileks said, Nikki now eats dog food, but if someone offered him a fish he would probably pounce on it, Lileks says. Fish is the native food of the dog and about all they eat in their native surroundings.

Lileks said the gasoline shortage may bring back the importance of the dog in Alaska.

The advent of the snowmobiles has all but replaced the sled dogs, he said.

In Alaska the big husky dogs now are used largely for racing or are maintained as pets even in the villages, Lileks says. The snowmobile is the "family car" in all parts of Alaska and in winter months when fishing is underway the rivers resemble freeways they are so full of snowmobile traffic.

Gasoline was selling at $1 a gallon when the Lileks left there and it may be higher now, they said.

Had the Lileks family remained in Alaska another year as originally planned they had hoped to use Nikki in races after proper training.

The Lileks family enjoyed living in Alaska, they say, although there were some hardships there. The Eskimo villages all have their own schools up through eighth grade and the people are most education prone, Lileks said.

After grade school the children nearly all go away from home to reside in the larger towns where high schools are available. Many also go to college, he said.

About 40 per cent of the schools are under the Bureau of Indian Affairs system and about 60 per cent are state operated. Teachers sign up for a two year teaching duty and reside in the villages with the families during that time.

Housing is somewhat primitive in some of the smaller villages where the Lileks were located but in some areas government housing has provided good homes.

Iglous are not the common mode of living although they are used by the fishermen when they leave home to fish. They are built close to the river or sea and provide shelter during the fishing season. Sometimes an overturned boat will be used instead.

Lileks said his work for the Social Security agency there was interesting in that he traveled into the small villages to make out claims for those reaching retirement ages and leaving their jobs in the canneries, or for widows receiving death benefits or to assist with injury claims. He said there are a number of deaths because the Eskimos live hazardous lives and there are many fishing accidents and drownings.

The family said they found the Alaskans extremely friendly and enjoyable but they have found Twin Falls equally enjoyable in the brief time they have been here.

Rate hike hearing set

BOISE (UPI) — A public hearing is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Jan. 15 on the application of Intermountain Gas Co. for a rate increase to offset increased pipeline costs for natural gas.

Overall, the proposed increase would average about 17 per cent. The residential rate would go up about nine per cent.

El Paso Natural Gas Co., boosted its charge to Intermountain to 61.34 cents for thousand cubic feet from 52.61 cents per thousand cubic feet.

Fire damages feedlot

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (UPI) — A fire in the electrical equipment room at the Harding Land and Livestock Company feed lot here caused $50,500 damage and knocked out power in the area.

Company officials said the fire Friday night was apparently caused by a malfunction in an electric control panel in the room. The wiring, transformers, cable and other equipment in the room were destroyed.

But the damage was limited to the equipment, and there were no injuries.

The fire was controlled about 8:00 p.m., and power to the area was restored about a half hour later.

Boys rescued near Boise

BOISE (UPI) — Two teenaged Washington boys, rescued after spending a night in the snow after missing a warning post along a ski run, are planning to hit the slopes again.

Rod Tayet, 16, and Arlen Podruchny, 16, both of Tacoma, Wash., were reported in satisfactory condition at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise Friday, where they received treatment for minor frostbite.

They were rescued from Pine Creek Canyon north of here earlier in the day.

Podruchny and Tayet each have five years of skiing experience. Podruchny said he has won several trophies for skiing, including one last year at crystal mountain ski resort near Tacoma for hotdog competition.

Boise crime rate told

BOISE (UPI) — The growth of the Boise area, accessibility of transportation and the release of ex-convicts into the state's main population center are reasons the city's police chief gives for a high crime index in Idaho's capital city.

Chief John Church said Friday there are many factors contributing to the increase in crime in Boise.

"The fact that we don't know the people in the community as well as we did 10 years ago," Church said is part of the problem stemming from the rapid influx of people. Completion of freeways and the larger airport contribute to rapid movement of people through the area.

Tanker overturns

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — A GASOLINE TANKER trailer overturned on snowslick Interstate 80 near Ustick Road between Caldwell and Nampa today but the driver escaped injury.

Investigating officers said the accident occurred about 8:20 a.m. the trailer, loaded with 4,000 gallons of gasoline, blocked the westbound lanes of the divided highway for about one hour, 15 minutes.

Gasoline was pumped from the trailer and Caldwell fire trucks were standing by in case of fire or explosion. The truck was owned by Caribou Four Corners Oil Co.

Sculpture displayed

BOISE (UPI) — An 11 foot high metal sculpture of a miner will be on display on the first floor of the statehouse next Friday. It is similar to a memorial statue for miners killed in the Sunshine Mine disaster.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said the sculpture is owned by the Bunker Hill Co., Kellogg, and will be loaned for an exhibit in the state house for one year.

A special ceremony will be conducted at 10 a.m. Friday, James H. Halley, president of the mining company, presenting the sculpture.

Legislative preview set

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Legislature leaders will give a preview of the coming legislative session at the Idaho Press Club Headliner luncheon Wednesday noon.

Sen. Majority Leader Phil Batt, R-Wilder, and House Majority Leader H. Fred Koch, R-Boise, will answer questions about legislative issues. The second regular session of the 32nd legislature will convene Jan. 14.

Stockton man held

TWIN FALLS — David Earl Powers, 32, Stockton, Calif., was in custody Saturday in lieu of $5,000 bond after being arrested by county officers Friday night and charged with assault with a deadly weapon.

County officers said he allegedly entered Jan's Lounge with a knife and threatened the bar tender and customers in the establishment. The complaint against him was signed by Linda Alanis, bartender.

Powers was taken into custody at a home on Route 1, Filer, shortly after the alleged incident.

Aldé reassigned

NAMPA (UPI) — Frank Ernest, whose performance as administrator of the Idaho State School and Hospital came under fire recently, is being reassigned to a job in Boise, it was announced Saturday.

E. D. Wenger, deputy administrator in charge of region III of the Department of Environmental and Community Services, said Wenger will be replaced by Robert Decker, deputy administrator or region VII in Idaho Falls.

Probe continues in Rupert death

RUPERT — Mindoka County Coroner Robert Walk said Saturday an autopsy revealed Mrs. John Praegitzer, 72, whose body was found near her automobile Monday night, died of a skull fracture and extensive brain damage.

He said the mysterious death of Mrs. Praegitzer and the injury of her husband are still under investigation.

Mrs. Praegitzer remained in fair condition Saturday, unchanged since he was admitted to Mindoka Memorial Hospital after being found lying in a drainage canal just off the highway on 450 North Meridian Road.

Officers say there is no explanation for how the Rupert couple was injured. Their automobile was found near the road but was undamaged.

Mrs. Praegitzer was found by passing motorists. She was lying in the road about 11 p.m. Monday. She died Wednesday. Moans from her injured husband led authorities to him. He has been unable to tell officers of circumstances surrounding the mysterious incident.

Rides for free

Child abuse reports double in valley

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Reports of child abuse have doubled during the past two months in the Magic Valley.

According to an Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services official, Kent Henderson, children's services consultant for DECS, the rise in abuse reports is attributed to the publicity given to a new DECS program which maintains a 24-hour reporting and follow-up service.

In November, 79 reports were made. About 30 of the complaints concerned physical abuse of a child and the rest pertained to child neglect.

In December, 83 complaints were made with about the same ratio of physical abuse and neglect cases, Henderson said. He said that during those months about half the reports were made during "off-hours."

Physical abuse cases ranged from burns from hot food being forced down a child's throat, cigarette burns in the scalp, arms bruised with handprints from rough grabbing, and bruised faces, backs and sides from striking.

Henderson said that none of the children had broken bones from physical abuse and that none had suffered irreparable injury. But, the beatings were still "pretty traumatic" to the children.

Henderson also mentioned numerous examples of child neglect which DECS caseworkers have come across. Many children, from infants to 6 year olds, had been left alone for several hours or even a day.

A couple of children were malnourished. Others had broken bones or illnesses that had not been treated. Some children had been "constantly belittled" or made fun of by parents. Other children, aged from 7 to 15 years of age had been "exploited" by parents by being forced into hard labor or by being made to solicit money in bars.

A number of children lacked clothing to protect them from the harsh winter.

Following an urgent report of child abuse where the child is in physical danger, a caseworker is sent out immediately. If an imminent danger to the child's welfare is found, DECS requests the police to remove the child from his parents.

In these more extreme abuse cases — about 20 per cent of those reported court proceedings are held to determine whether the child will be put in the custody of DECS for an indeterminate period not exceeding two years, Henderson said. DECS ends up with custody in about half to three-fourths of these cases, he said.

DECS then finds the child a foster home or — if necessary — an appropriate institution, while working with the child's family to make the child's return possible.

Because of expanded facilities to work with parents, DECS is now returning more children to their families, Henderson said. He said that 90 children are now in DECS' foster care and that last month 10 children were returned to their parents.

In other, less severe cases, the family is helped with services ranging from homemaking instruction, psychological therapy and budget counseling.

Babysitters are found to enable the mother to go out shopping. This last service, though small, is often "the thing that really changes the family," Henderson said. He said that abusive or neglectful parents frequently are frustrated in their isolation from the community and take it out on their children.

The DECS child-abuse program now makes use of 10 caseworkers who also have other casework throughout the Magic Valley. Although serious cases are handled immediately, border line cases may take up to two days to care to, Henderson said. He said the small staff is the program's greatest problem.

In a recent survey of 50 persons in the valley, DECS discovered that 20 people had a solid idea of what the child abuse program is and that 9 people had at least heard of the program.

As the widespread publicity for the new program fades out, however, Henderson expects the number of abuse reportings to decrease somewhat.

Persons wishing to report a child abuse case may call 734-2700 at any time day or night.

Still critical

TWIN FALLS — Five-year-old Frances Rene Barber, Caldwell, was listed as still critical but improved Saturday at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

She suffered head injuries in a Thursday traffic accident 15 miles east of here on I-80N in which her 12-year-old sister, Brenda Faye Barber, was killed.

Three other children injured in the same accident were released from the hospital in good condition Saturday. They included Lori Kay Bates, 11; Rita Barber, 10, and Karen Barber, 9.

The children were members of a church group traveling in a caravan from Caldwell to Flagstaff, Ariz. Two of the vehicles in the caravan collided on the icy highway. There were 10 persons in each vehicle.

Air force wants to fire missiles over Gem state

The Air Force said that if a Minuteman blew up in the first 102 seconds of flight, which take it 100 miles down range, the debris would be scattered over land area — how wide depending partly on how early the detonation took place. In safety tests the largest single chunk has weighed 100 pounds.

But after 102 seconds, the Air Force said, the missile would have so much momentum that debris would not land until it had been hurled 600 miles across Idaho and Oregon and into the Pacific Ocean.

Of almost 70 Minutemen fired from Vandenberg, "some" have had to be destroyed in the first 102 seconds of flight, an Air Force official said. He said the exact number was classified.

The Minuteman would be the biggest but not the first missile fired over the United States.

During the last 13 years the Army has fired 200 smaller-Pershing missiles over a 500-mile long course from Utah to New Mexico. All parts of those missiles fall on land whereas the bulk of the Minuteman would plummet into the ocean.

Gem leaders concerned with missile firing safety

Concern that safety precautions must be employed was dominant in comments from Idaho political leaders in reacting to proposed Air Force plans to fire Minuteman missiles without warheads over the state toward the Pacific.

The Pentagon announced Friday that the Air Force plans to ask Congress for permission to test the missiles from silos in Montana.

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said the proposal did not meet with his favor.

He said it was his understanding that the first stage of the missile would drop in the state, mainly on federal land.

With all this debris falling from Idaho skies, Andrus said, "Chicken Little couldn't be so lucky."

The governor said, before he could agree to the test, he would want to know more about them, such as economical and environmental impact, and what's to be gained by spending the $27 million dollars of tax money the tests are expected to cost.

Orofino Mayor A. B. Curtis, said he thinks the plan is "a hell of a good idea, what's wrong with it if it's the only way we can see if they work."

Curtis discounted the possibility of portions of a missile landing on a populated area, saying, "You might fall off a curb, too."

A resident of the community, Barry Owen, was less in favor of the proposed tests.

"I don't think anybody wants a ton of metal to hit em in the head," said Owen.

Lewiston councilman Brian Bundy Grangeville Mayor Ralph Hof both want assurance that the missiles would pass over unpopulated areas.

Sen. Frank Church, James McClure, and Rep. Steve Symms, all said they want more information before deciding whether to support the planned tests.

Church said he wants to see what comes out in a briefing the Secretary of Defense plans to give congressmen on the tests before he will take a stand on the proposal.

Church said he shall insist that the precautions will be adequate before any test launching occurs.

McClure said the tests should be performed from a Pacific Coast station if possible.

2 boys charged with vandalism

TWIN FALLS — Two boys, ages 11 and 13, were taken into custody through a report from a concerned citizen this week and charged with malicious destruction of property.

City police said a neighbor heard pounding at the site of a new duplex owned by Vernon E. Smith and under construction at the corner of Morningstars Drive and Sigrid Avenue.

A young man, sent by the neighbor to investigate, chased the two boys to a nearby parking lot and they were in custody of the young man and the property owner when police arrived. Damage was estimated at about $100 including broken windows and wallboard.

He added that if the actual launch of a missile with a dummy warhead from Montana is absolutely necessary to the defense of the nation, then that test should be conducted with the strongest possible assurance that neither persons nor property in Idaho are placed in any danger.

Symms said the proposal "is another example of Idaho being 70 per cent owned by the federal government."

Symms said under the plans for dropping debris mainly on federal lands the only liability would be to the federal government.

"It would be difficult for any of us to make too much of a squawk about it as long as no personal property or lives are endangered," said Symms.

Farm project funds impounded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has decided to impound nearly half of $175 million voted by Congress to pay farmers for conservation and environmental protection projects.

The Agriculture Department announced Wednesday that it will spend only $90 million in 1974 on a renamed Rural Environmental Conservation Program (RECP) and that the other $85 million approved by Congress has been held up by the White House's Office of Management and Budget.

Refusal by an administration to spend money which Congress ordered be spent is called "impoundment," and its legality is at issue in a number of lawsuits involving other programs that are pending in the courts.

In another development, the Agriculture Department said it had White House clearance to spend $10 million on reviving a Water Bank program to preserve farm marshlands for migratory birds. That is the full amount voted by Congress for 1974.

The administration's decision to spend even $90 million on the conservation program represents a concession, since the administration a year ago canceled a predecessor program called Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP). But congressional critics are not expected to be satisfied with the limited revival.

The new program will involve two types of federal agreements with farmers. One will pay them part of the cost of approved conservation and environmental protection practices, a continuation of a program going back under varying names to 1936. The second type of contract will provide cost-sharing payments for conservation work done over periods ranging from three to fifteen years.

Retail meat prices defended

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers is convinced meat retailers are not violating phase four price rules despite the widening gap between wholesale and retail meat prices, a member of the CEA told reporters Thursday.

New CEA member Gary Seevers said here he supposed that the government could engage in "jawboning" retailers to get prices down, but said he thinks there is some merit in letting retailers absorb profit now as they absorbed losses during the summer.

Seevers said the essence of his philosophy about meat prices is that although retail prices did not automatically follow wholesale prices downward, retail prices will not be expected to go up much when wholesale meat prices rise this winter.

'Excellent' farm year due

WASHINGTON — "From a cash basis standpoint, 1974 will be an excellent year" for the farmer, according to Robert L. Walton, chairman of the Agricultural Bankers Division of the American Bankers Association (ABA).

In remarks prepared for delivery before the Farm Credit Panel, National Agricultural Outlook Conference, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Walton said,

"Many farmers have held off selling 1973 crops, which will mean additional income in early 1974."

Walton, who is also president of Farmers and Merchants State Bank in Bushnell, Ill., said, "This, on top of an anticipated better-than-average year for 1974, indicates the farmer will have another good year and consequently a reasonable growth in his net worth, though perhaps not quite as good as 1973."

Walton also made the following points:

- Loan demand should remain strong.

Merchants and dealer credit of more than short term will be hard to obtain.

No major change in farm lending rates of the rural bank will occur.

Land prices should begin to level out after the first quarter of 1974.

While noting that 1974 looks like a good agricultural year, Walton foresees the possibility,

Bull test facility set

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — The newly-formed Four Corners Beef Cattle Improvement Association says it will build a bull test facility at Colorado State University's San Juan Basin Research Center at Hesperus, Colo., next summer.

Grant Paulek, president of the board of directors of the four-state group that includes cattlemen from Utah, Arizona, Colorado and New Mexico, said the station would have 40 pens, each of which would accommodate five bulls.

At the Wednesday meeting at Colorado State University, Paulek said the test station will be completely breeder-owned and operated.

He said the university will advise in development of the testing program. The facility will raise better breeder bulls for ranchers in the four states.

Cattlemen cite energy needs

BOISE — Administration officials in Washington are being reminded of the critical importance of adequate fuel for the total job of producing, processing and transporting food — in particular where a perishable commodity like beef is involved.

Farrell Daniels, Malad, president of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association, pointed out that cattle industry representatives have been meeting with energy officials in several government agencies, and the cattlemen have stressed energy needs in transporting and processing livestock and meat, as well as in actual livestock production.

Daniels told of meetings which representatives of the American National Cattlemen's Association have had in Washington. The ANCA represents the Idaho Cattlemen's Association and other affiliated beef cattle groups in the nation's capital.

Daniels quoted from a statement made by ANCA spokesmen, including Stanley Schoelerman, Spencer, Ia., chairman of the ANCA Transportation Committee.

Schoelerman pointed out, "It is vital that we keep commodities flowing through the complete food pipeline, all the way from farm or ranch to the supermarket. If fuel shortages interrupt the flow at any point, particularly where we are dealing with live animals or perishable foods, the entire production and marketing system is disrupted. And, with a disruption, we are likely to wind up using extra fuel — not saving it — and costs are increased, and supplies may be more limited". C. W. "Bill" McMillan, ANCA executive vice president, said the government is now showing an increasing awareness of the total food picture, although the livestock industry still lacks definitive answers to many questions.

Currently, it was noted, a Department of Agriculture executive is the only official pipeline which agriculture has into the Administration's central energy offices. However, ANCA has recommended that the new "super" energy agency include a special section which would be concerned exclusively with energy and food.

ANCA previously had recommended that the Office of Petroleum Allocations include a special "food desk" to deal with problems related to food production, processing and distribution, and officials were responsive to this. Other initial ANCA recommendations included:

- Increase the per axle truck load limit to the standard recommended by the Bureau of Roads when the interstate highway system was built (22,000 pounds);
- Raise the truck speed limit between 9:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m. each day;

— Streamline Interstate Commerce Commission rules, particularly in regard to backhauls; — Be sure that truck stops remain open on Sunday. It was also suggested that ANCA set up a national truck clearing house to help eliminate empty return trips.

"We already have a limited supply of livestock trucks," Schoelerman said, "and if we scale back our hauling as a result of a 20 per cent reduction in speed limit, we will cause a real truck shortage and a real bottleneck in our beef pipeline. Also, danger increase stress and the danger of disease and mortality."

US gains trade edge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Commerce Department Thursday reported record imports and exports for November as the balance in trade turned $85.7 million in favor of the United States.

U. S. exports totaled $6,819 million and compared with $6,733 million in imports on a seasonally adjusted basis.

Commerce said the November export exceeded by $71 million the previous record set in September. The import total was $712 million higher than the record August level.

For the first 11 months of 1973, exports on a seasonally adjusted basis were at an annual rate of $69.7 billion, about 42 per cent higher than the 1972 11-month total of $49.2 billion.

ALL POTATO GROWERS

The Potato Growers of Idaho Inc., in their continuing effort to serve all potato growers, wishes to pass on their findings of the current potato marketing conditions.

- 1 — The movement and processing of potatoes in Idaho and across the nation is much ahead at this point in time compared to last year with disappearance equaling the record high level of the freeze damaged 1966 crop.
- 2 — About 37.5 millions cwt. of potatoes were used for processing in Idaho, Maine, Washington, Michigan, Minnesota and North Dakota — 11 per cent more than the 33.7 million cwt. utilized by December 1, 1972!!
- 3 — Inventory of finished product by the processor is down considerably from a year ago indicating strong demand during the month ahead.
- 4 — Potato prices throughout the United States are trading in the $4.25 to $6.25 area — outlook for Idaho is bullish and the near term price indicates a potential market of $4.25 to $5.00 per cwt.
- 5 — Prices for frozen french fries and dehydrated potato products continue to spiral upward.
- 6 — Farmers and processors have been assured of adequate fuel supplies for the harvesting and processing of crops.
- 7 — Potato growers and the industry are to be commended for the continuous orderly marketing of their 1973-1974 potato crop.

Indications are for the continuing strong demand which should cause prices to rise throughout the balance of the marketing year.

Hazards exist in geothermal fuel

DENVER — Care is needed in geothermal energy production to protect against possible earthquakes, land subsidence and other environmental dangers.

According to William L. Miller, a Bureau of Mines physical scientist, other geothermal hazards include well blowouts, noise, noxious gas and water pollution.

Their potential for environmental damage near sites where underground steam deposits can be tapped for power were outlined by Miller at the Colorado Geological Society's geothermal energy symposium in Denver, Colo.

The world's geothermal resource zones are near areas of earth crustal movement, major fault zones and volcanic activity, Miller explained, and underground changes associated with movement of fluids during geothermal development may cause an increase in seismic activity.

Careful seismic monitoring, before development, is needed to establish a "base line" for natural seismic activity in geothermal areas, Miller said. The California government and the U.S. Department of the Interior are now establishing such a monitoring network for the state's Imperial Valley, he said.

Miller pointed out that generating power from geothermal fields is not necessarily incompatible with the natural environment, and cited examples where grazing and agriculture are intermingled with the steam wells, pipelines and generating plants of geothermal power installations.

On the other hand, he noted, 16 square miles of land surrounding a geothermal operation in New Zealand have sunk as much as 2 1/2 feet due to removal of underground fluids. In sensitive areas like the Imperial Valley of California such subsidence could threaten reservoirs and irrigation canals, as well as buildings and pipelines.

Most of the adverse environmental impact from geothermal power development would probably be local, Miller said, and might not be as severe as some of the environmental effects of fuel-powered plants.

USDA family food aid up in October

SAN FRANCISCO — Participation in its family food programs — food stamps and food distribution — increased by 100,000 persons from September to October, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has announced, but the total estimated participation of 14.6 million was still 100,000 under October of last year.

Participation in the national school lunch program in the same period increased nearly 100,000 to an estimated 24.4 million, which is about 500,000 fewer children than participated with state and local governments.

The figures are preliminary and may be revised later. Food stamp program participation figures for October show an estimated 12.5 million people took part in the program, an increase of an estimated 300,000 over September, and an increase of 500,000 over October 1972.

The value of bonus food stamps totaled $191.5 million in October. This represents an increase of $5.4 million over September, and $18.4 million more than October a year ago.

The number of people taking part in the food distribution program in October totaled 2.1 million. This was a decrease of 200,000 from the previous month, and a decline of 600,000 from October 1972, as projects continued to switch from food distribution to food stamps.

Campus militants spawned radicals

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (UPI) — Campus radicals of the 1960s were the offspring, literally and figuratively, of the campus radicals of the 1930s, and the large number of common traits suggests that radical movements may be a recurring pattern, a Michigan State University professor said today.

Henry J. Silverman, speaking to the American Historical Association convention here, said many college teachers of students of the 1960s were themselves radicals in the 1930s.

"There seems to be a parental... connection that binds the two eras together in an almost blood relationship," Silverman said.

Common elements in the two movements, he said, are disdain for earlier liberals, rejection of the same targets for attack, an underlying Marxist ideology, antiwar sentiment and action and sudden death.

"Nothing seems more constant in human history than the rebellion of youth," Silverman said. "Any idea that until recently there has been only peace and calm on American campuses, only satisfaction with college life, does not jibe with historical reality."

"In 20th century American history, it is the 1930s and the 1960s which witnessed fully developed student movements seeking profound transformation of the existing political, economic and social system."

The difference in the two movements, he said, were that the 1930 radicalism had an economic base, while the 1960s had a moral base.

In addition, the earlier radicals had ties with American communist and socialist parties, but their later counterparts generally remained apart from existing American parties.

The 1960s were also distinct in the emergence of a student righting and of an aggressive black student movement.

TF ties point record in defeating Burley 96-59

BURLEY — The Twin Falls Bruins, equalling the school's highest point total ever, defeated the Burley Bobcats 96-59 Saturday night.

The victory wound up the non-conference portion of the Twin Falls schedule following an 82-55 decision over Jerome Friday evening.

Twin Falls was never in danger of losing the game but the Bruins really blew it open in the third period when both teams started running. The difference for Twin Falls in this running situation, something the Bruins always have tried to do, is that Kent Schmidt came off the glass consistently and filled the third lane. From the middle vantage point either Landy Haynes or Eric Hovey piled assist passes and the Bruins scored 31 points in the period.

Burley became the first to try to stop the Bruins by stopping top scorer Hovey. The Bobcats dogged him with Paul Jackson and kept three men out to watch the guards. Hovey must have had a dozen assist passes as the Bruin big men had their biggest nights, four of them in double figures. Kim Nielsen and Schmidt shared honors with 16, one more than junior Dennis Bowyer.

The Bobcats made a stronger earlier showing than in their first meeting with Twin Falls. Twice the Bobcats led on the outside hitting of Brent Bodilly (18 points) and Ed Rasmussen. Rasmussen's long one-hander tied it 6-6 midway through the first period but then Jim Lash, Nielsen, Haynes, Bowyer and Schmidt wound up the quarter for a 10-point advantage.

That moved out to 17 points early in the second period, as Lash hit two straight fielders' and Nielsen got a follow shot. Over the next three minutes Burley outscored Twin Falls and on three occasions lowered the deficit to 11 points.

But the Bruins again finished the period with the final six points and Schmidt opened the second half with two more field goals.

The chance for the upset disintegrated with the score at 47-30. Nielsen started it with a field goal and Hovey followed with five straight points. After Lee scored for Burley, Schmidt hit on two straight fast break buckets and Hovey added another to move the lead to 62-32.

From all angles

By Larry Hovey

There are some unhappy class A-1 basketball coaches and schools around the central and eastern part of the state when the light of the ideas bounced around in the "secret" meeting of the state board of control is shed.

In the first place, the meeting was moved, without knowledge of the A-1 schools at least in the Magic Valley and eastern Idaho regions and thusly maintain those in the Boise area — where the meeting was held.

It was reported last week that the board nixed the 16-team idea. But here's how. Only the Magic Valley representative, Mr. Carothers of Shoshone, stuck steadfastly to wishes of those he represents and voted for the measure. The eastern Idaho representative shrank in the face of the attack, which ostensibly, we were told, was in the name of the energy crisis.

This week words roared Magic Valley that the automatic eight-team tournament may be recycled. And that would go this way. Two from the north, two from the Boise area, two from the Potlatch-Idaho Falls area and one from Magic Valley. The eighth team would be selected on the basis of "merit and record."

Now this plan is being translated into Magic Valley and Eastern Idaho-ese. The Northern five schools, on basis of their strong showings the past two years, have decided they have the three best A-1 teams in their area. They would like a special acknowledgement along that line.

(But two weeks ago they were against the 16-team because it would force them to bring three. One, in fact, said it would attend a 16-team even if it were eligible.)

Some doubts raise in this and the eastern area as to the position of their SIC counterparts to the west. Although the west has assured the east it indeed didn't know the meeting had been moved up a day, the east points out one of the other-than-athletes representatives is from an SIC school. Since it was a day meeting, they reason it doubtful the administration of that school spent the day without a band instructor in the classroom. Someone had to arrange for a sub.

The eastern boys figure, correctly, that Highland, Idaho Falls and Skyline have to be considered among the best teams around. The others aren't shabby but those, looking at the records, figured to be the cream.

Automatically, then, this new idea rejects a strong contender at the district level. Of course, Magic Valley hasn't received any A-1 or A-2 consideration for the past 10 years and we have to accept that as a matter of course for now.

There is talk afoot of calling a special principals-superintendents SIC meeting in the immediate future for taking the proposed SIC invitational 16-team basketball tournament off the "tabled" list for possible implementation by this spring.

Under this plan, which the principals voted to table until the August meeting, all 12 SIC teams would get into the tournament plus four invited clubs. What it basically does is gut the A-2 classification and take about $16,000 out of the state treasury in receipts. Additionally, if that comes about, any district competition would be for first-round positioning purposes and that would cut both the district and the state out of five per cent off the top each. These funds are supposedly used for underwriting other activities, music, drama, debate, but the state, with a huge surplus of money now, has curtailed some of these.

Now you might well ask how the Idaho Falls-Pocatello and Magic Valley A-1 schools can get the other two A-1 regions to go along with the idea. The fact is, they can't influence the north. But they can get the west for one very good reason — football.

In the past two or three years there again has been a definite switch in the balance in this state. Four years ago the Boise area was the one booming along with new schools and A-1 teams cropping up. It definitely held sway since it was obvious to those attending meetings they were waiting only for one or two more prime candidates to void the SIC and become a pure western Idaho alignment.

But at the November SIC meeting, the Achilles heel was displayed. Boise athletic coordinator Ron Runyon said two of his Boise schools were begging for a 10th football game. The SIC had grown from seven to eight to nine to accommodate the non-conference scheduling problem of Borah, paying for long history of success.

Borah did not have a 10th game last year. Runyon said he couldn't find one for Boise High to that date and held little chance for prospects cropping up. In addition, Montana reportedly is thinking of curbing all out-of-state competition which would leave Capital without a 10th game.

In the east, Burley, Honneville and Blackfoot say they want in the SIC — but at the same time decline to fill any of those Boise non-conference dates. Jerome is going to be A-1 pretty quick now. Rugby and Madison are there. Add the six current eastern division SIC members and you can have a 10 to 12-school league immediately.

That would leave half the West division of the SIC looking to fill not one but four non-conference dates.

But by the same token, considering Jerome to be A-1 within two years, the real conference balance in either direction will lie within the boundaries of Magic Valley. Twin Falls, Burley, Jerome and Minico could make either side autonomous.

The shoe slowly is moving to the other foot. Heretofore unconsidered Magic Valley A-1 teams soon will have to be considered if not from a competitive standpoint, then from a power base.

All things come to those who wait — it says. Maybe. Just maybe!

Coach Don Haynes sent in the second unit in the fourth quarter and it enjoyed a 24-point period to tie the record.

Twin Falls won the preliminary 56-41.

Friday night the Bruins carved out 40 points in the middle quarters to roll past Jerome 82-55 for the second time this season.

The victory came a little tougher in the second meeting as Jerome made two runs in the first half. But as the last one ended the Bruins blazed away in a rash of points over the next eight minutes and went to the bench with two minutes left in the third quarter.

Jim Lash, Landy Haynes and Eric Hovey opened the game with Bruin points and a quick 9-2 lead but Nelson and Lee Chapman brought Jerome back to within two points.

Twin Falls stretched out again and this time ran up a 28-14 advantage before Chapman and John Donkersloot combined to outscore the Bruins 10-4 over the next three minutes. Chapman's jumper cut it to 32-24 with 2:33 left in the half. But Jerome couldn't score again before halftime while Lash hit four and Hovey and Haynes two each for a 40-25 intermission bulge.

Kent Schmidt opened the third period with six Bruin buckets and after Haynes stretched the lead to 20 points, Hovey hit a red-hot streak worth 10 points in 73 seconds.

He started with two free throws, added a crumple off a steal and took a nifty assist pass from Haynes for two more. He then hit a long shot and score another crumple after Haynes made a defensive steal. Kim Nielsen followed that burst with a three-point play to follow the game open.

Twin Falls won the opener 63-40.

Beman new PGA tour boss

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Professional Golfers Association gained a commissioner, and Deane Beman's five children have gained a father.

Beman, a four-year veteran, was named Saturday to replace Joseph C. Dox, Jr., who is retiring in February, as commissioner of the PGA's Tournament Players Division.

Consequently, Beman is retiring from tournament competition to devote full time to his new post.

"My kids are all very happy," Beman said from his Bethesda, Md., home. "The prospect of me being home seems to interest them. They think they might have a father now."

The 35-year-old tour veteran has won $369,347 since turning professional in 1967, but previously has said the toughest part of the PGA tour is the extended absences from his wife Miriam and their five children.

Despite three operations in the past six years, the fiercely competitive Beman has always battled determinedly to rejoin the tour, much as he has missed his family.

"I don't turn my back on it (the tour) with anything but the greatest memories," said Beman. "I was asked some months ago if I would consider becoming commissioner. It took me several months to decide. But, after a lot of consideration, I decided it was the opportunity of a lifetime."

"The job of commissioner requires a great deal of travel, but I will get to see my family more than I have in the past. That was certainly part of my consideration and weighed heavily on my decision."

Expansion, Rozelle said he expected only four teams to be added by the end of the 1970's.

"Four is a better number for scheduling purposes than six new teams," he explained.

Rozelle touches on new loop, expansion and rule changes

MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle, covering a range of topics from no-shows to the new rival World Football League, said Saturday the National Football League will decide next month on whether to move next season's Super Bowl from New Orleans to Los Angeles.

Rozelle, addressing a news conference prior to Sunday's Miami-Oakland American Conference title game, said construction problems at the Louisiana Superdome might cause the change in sites.

"If the Superdome isn't ready, we'd have to decide what would have to be done," said Rozelle. "Right now I'd have to say Los Angeles is the top contender. Miami is set for the 1976 game, but we don't want to switch that or move it up a year because Miami is one of the key cities in the bi-centennial celebration and we want to be part of that."

"We'll probably decide sometime next month before our league meetings Feb. 24-25," Rozelle also covered a number of related topics. They included:

No shows, Rozelle said Congress told the NFL early this year, when blackout legislation was passed, the league would be helped if it were damaged by the lifting of the blackout.

"Our radio rights were hurt, but our concessions did not go badly," Rozelle said. "But, also, we had the best weather we've had in years."

The NFL, "I know so little about the NFL," Rozelle said. "I only know what I read. There isn't much we can do except keep ourselves strong. They seem interested in present NFL cities and the 'big-city markets.'"

Expansion, Rozelle said he expected only four teams to be added by the end of the 1970's.

"Four is a better number for scheduling purposes than six new teams," he explained.

Buhl smothers American Falls for eighth win

BUIH. — The Buhl Indians seized control of everything late in the first quarter and rolled past the American Falls Beavers 73-38 Friday night.

Unlike last week's two-point squeaker against American Falls, the Indians did about whatever they pleased. American Falls managed only five points in the second and fourth quarters as the zone defense and a rash of turnovers prevented the Beavers from getting a normal amount of shots.

It stayed like last week's game ended with the Beavers holding an 8-7 lead late in the first period. But Buhl then outscored American Falls 14-1 over the last three minutes and pushed the game out of reach with a 17-5 blitz in the second period.

Buhl won the preliminary 53-40.

Georgia edges Maryland 17-16 in Peach bowl

ATLANTA (UPI) — Quarterback Andy Johnson scored one touchdown and threw for another Friday night and defensive back Dick Conn recovered two crucial Maryland fumbles to give Georgia a 17-16 Peach Bowl victory over the Terrapins.

Conn recovered a wild pitchout from Maryland quarterback Ben Kinard on the Terps' eight-yard line late in the third quarter and Johnson scored moments later on a one-yard plunge to break a 10-10 tie.

Maryland drives were stopped twice after that within the Georgia 15 and the Terps had to settle for two Steve Mike-Mayer field goals.

Mike-Mayer and Georgia's Allan Leavitt matched field goals in the first half. Georgia's first half touchdown came on a 62-yard pass from Johnson to tailback Jimmy Poulos and Maryland scored when tailback Lewis Carter hurled a halfback option pass to Walter White for 68 yards. Carter, with the scoring pass and 126 yards rushing, was named the game's most outstanding offensive player. Georgia's freshmen linebacker, Sylvester Boler, got the defensive award.

The game was scoreless until the second period, when Johnson tossed the screen pass to Poulos and the tailback fled 62 yards for the opening score. Maryland responded on its next play from scrimmage with Carter's long pass to White to tie it up.

Moments later Mike-Mayer kicked a 36-yard field goal to put the Terps ahead briefly. With 10 seconds to play in the half, Leavitt kicked one from 26 yards to knot the score 10-10 at halftime.

Georgia was 6-4-1 for the regular season and Maryland 8-3. It was the first bowl game for Maryland since 1956. Georgia went to the Gator Bowl in 1971.

Padres sold without owners' permission

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Financier C. Arnholt Smith informed the national league Friday that he had sold his Padres baseball club to a Los Angeles group without the league's blessing.

Smith, whose financial empire suffered severe setbacks through legal action by federal agencies earlier in the year, said financial considerations compelled him to sell.

The buyer was the group headed by Hollywood race track director Marge Everett, grocer Vernon Underwood and attorney Neil Pappano, Smith said in a telegram to NL president Chub Feeney.

"I think this is very good news for San Diego, not only for its baseball fans but for its taxpayers," mayor Pete Wilson said. "We see no reason why league approval should not be forthcoming very promptly."

Smith also told Feeney his negotiations with the Washington, D. C., group headed by Joseph Danzansky had fallen through.

The league gave conditional approval to sale of the team to the Danzansky group earlier but withdrew it a week ago. Smith had negotiated a conditional sale to the Everett group before the Danzansky transaction was okayed, but that development apparently precluded consideration of the Everett deal.

Wilson said Smith told him he informed the league his note payment due Jan. 5 would be paid on time. In the city view, that assurance meant there was no reason the league should not accept the sale and that the Padres should not be playing here in future years, Wilson said.

"We have as a city examined the character, the financial stability and the prospects of a successful operation by the new purchasers, and we have not only found that they passed muster, but that they in fact promise an aggressive operation," the mayor said. "So we hope that there will be prompt league action approving the purchase."

Texas Tech passes defeat Tennessee

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Texas Tech quarterback Joe Barnes passed for two touchdowns, one a 78-yard bomb to Lawrence Williams, and scored Tennessee Vols. Barnes, a senior who led the Raiders to a 10-1 regular season, run and passed for 231 yards.

Barnes' other touchdown pass, a seven-yard strike to tight end Andre Tillman, came with 2:26 left in the third period after Tennessee had cut the margin to 14-10.

His touchdown run, a 57-yard keeper, eliminated a six-yard drive with 4:56 left in the first period. His long touchdown pass for Williams, which found the Texas Tech receiver wide open at the Tennessee 35, came with 5:16 elapsed in the second period and gave the Raiders a 14-0 lead.

Tennessee had closed the margin to 21-10 early in the final period and had a chance to go ahead late in the period but Ricky Townsend, who kicked two field goals earlier, missed a 32-yard attempt with 3:35 left to play. The Raiders quickly led the game when fullback James Mosley ripped off a Gator Bowl record 70-yard run to carry the ball to the Tennessee 10 and freshman Larry Isaac scored from three yards out two plays later with Texas Tech's fourth touchdown.

The Gator Bowl had been billed as a duel between Barnes and all-Southeastern Conference quarterback Condredge Holloway.

Hot American Falls cools Jerome 89-77

JEROME — The American Eagle Beavers shot a sizzling 64 per cent Saturday night and dented the Jerome Tigers 89-77.

But American Falls then hit another hot streak and threw quickly away.

Holloway gained 201 yards, 194 by passing, and threw a seven-yard touchdown pass to tailback Haskell Slanback, who had scored earlier on a four-yard run, but the Tennessee star was unable to carry the Vols in during two late fourth period drives.

The Beavers, who scored only 10 points in two quarters against Buhl Friday night, hit a blistering 11 of 14 in the second quarter Saturday and wound up with a 33-point period. That erased a five-point Jerome lead and left the Tigers behind for the night.

Jerome carried the rebounding advantage 49-29 and took 75 shots but couldn't match American Falls' accuracy.

The Vols, three point underdogs after an 8-3 season, trailed 14-3 at halftime. Their lone first half score came on a 30-yard field goal by Townsend with 6:03 left in the half, after David Page had recovered a Texas Tech fumble at the Raiders' 35 yard line.

Jerome, which shot a very respectable 42 per cent, got 27 points from junior Lee Chapman and stayed within hailing distance. Going into the final period the Tigers trailed by nine and with two minutes to play cut the deficit to five.

Missouri has third Big 8 tourney title

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Gary Link hit a basket and two free throws in the last minute Saturday night, pushing Missouri to an 80-70 victory over Iowa State and winning the Big Eight Basketball Tournament championship.

was called for a technical foul on the play when he hung on the rim in an attempt to block the shot.

Smith ran for 65 yards in the first half when the East built a 21-7 lead and never was seriously threatened. His touchdown runs covered two and one yards and won him the William Coffman Trophy as the game's outstanding offensive player by one vote over quarterback Norris Weese of Mississippi.

The Cyclones tied it up again, however, before Link connected on a baseline jumper with 54 seconds left and added a pair of free throws at the 35-second mark.

Eberhard converted the free throw and Steve Dangos hit a jumper for a 76-72 Missouri lead, making it a five-point play.

Weese, who prefers running with the ball, gained more than 70 yards on the ground and scored a touchdown on a one-yard sneak. Marang, a quarterback who prefers to throw, connected on a five-yard pass to Don Clune of Pennsylvania for one touchdown and 32 yards to Paul Seal of Michigan for another TD.

The title was Missouri's fifth in the 20-year history of the event.

Link led the Tigers with 26 points while Dangos had 16, Gail Wolf 14 and Eberhard 13. Sophomore Herbie Ivy led Iowa State with 23 points, while Craig DeLass added 15 and Wes Harris and Wilson had 13 each.

James McAlister of UCLA ran one yard on the last play of the first half for the West's lone score. Bill Sandifer, McAlister's UCLA teammate, had 12 unassisted tackles and recovered a fumble to win the Jack Spalding Trophy as the game's outstanding defensive player.

Missouri, down by 10 points in the first four minutes of the game, caught up and passed the Cyclones early in the second half, running off eight straight points for a 51-48 lead with 14:06 left.

But Iowa State came back and the last 10 minutes were nip and tuck, neither team able to gain the advantage.

Temple tops Cal in Quaker City finals

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Joe Anderson and Joe Newman scored 13 points apiece Saturday night as Temple pulled away in the second half to defeat California, 51-42, and win the Quaker City Basketball Tournament.

Jerry Baskerville added 10 points for Temple, now 8-2, and Meier paced California, 5-5, with 14.

Arizona State edged Utahs

The Owls led 19-14 at halftime, but fell behind 24-21 when Carl Meier sank two free throws with 16:17 left in the game. Temple then regrouped and reeled off 13 straight points for a 34-24 lead with 17:01 remaining.

It was the second Quaker City title for Temple, which captured the crown in 1967. The tournament, which suffered from poor attendance, will move to Providence, R. I. next season.

Arizona State relied on clutch foul shooting by Lionel Hollins and Ron Kennedy in the last few seconds to ease by Utah State, 76-72, Saturday night.

The Golden Bears never came closer than six points the rest of the way.

In two earlier consolation games, Jim Outermark scored six points in overtime to lead Penn State past Cincinnati 73-66 for third place and St. Bonaventure bested Penn 77-70 for fifth.

With 30 seconds showing on the clock and Utah State leading 71-70, Hollins was fouled by the Aggies' Jimmy Moore and went to the line in a one-and-one situation. He hit both, giving the Devils the lead they had relinquished just 25 seconds earlier.

Manhattan collects ECAC cage crown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Manhattan parlayed an unyielding zone defense and 18 points from big Bill Campion Saturday night to down St. John's 74-65 in the championship game of the 22nd annual ECAC Holiday Festival.

Wasley led the Sun Devils with 18 points and 11 rebounds, and Utah State's Jim Boatright tied him for high point honors.

Ken Gray added 12 points for Arizona State. Hollins and James Brown had 10 each. For the Aggies, Moore had 16 and Ray Thompson had 10.

Both Utley and Chuess were held to two points in the first half.

Virginia scoring was led by George Carter with 36 points and George Gerwin with 23.

Enflier, Bill Taylor and Joe Bryant combined for 46 points to spark LaSalle to an 83-78 victory over Princeton's third place.

In addition to Campion, who led all scorers, Manhattan also got 16 points from its play-making guard Mahoney, 10 from Mike Young and nine from George Bucci—all in the second half. The 6-11 Campion was overwhelmingly chosen the most valuable player in the tournament.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Barty Smith of Richmond cracked over for two touchdowns and Gary Marang of Boston College passed for two more scores Saturday in the underdog East overwhelmed the West, 35-7, in the 49th annual Shrine football classic.

Smith ran for 65 yards in the first half when the East built a 21-7 lead and never was seriously threatened. His touchdown runs covered two and one yards and won him the William Coffman Trophy as the game's outstanding offensive player by one vote over quarterback Norris Weese of Mississippi.

The game was one sided from start to finish as the East, led by the running of Smith, Weese and Charley Young of North Carolina State, piled up 230 yards rushing and Marang and Weese, with an assist from Smith on three option attempts, picked up 120 yards passing.

The West, favored by 6 1/2 points, managed only 35 yards rushing and 107 passing. All-America David Jaynes of Kansas, Mike Boryla of Stanford and Danny White of Arizona State alternated at quarterback for the West and between them managed only 107 yards passing.

Playing a big part in the East victory was the defensive work of James McCollum of Kentucky, Dave Gallagher of Michigan, Ed Jones of Tennessee State and Carl Barzhauskas of Indiana. The four shut-off the West running game and forced Jaynes, Boryla and White to throw on the run.

Utah coasts past Vandals by 116-79

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah came within one point of the Special Events Center scoring record Saturday night as they rolled to their eighth straight win, a 116-79 romp over Idaho University.

The Utes raced away from the Vandals in the opening minutes of both halves. The only thing that kept the score from going higher was that Bill Foster pulled his starters early in the first half, and no regular was on the floor five minutes into the second stanza.

Scot Jones had all 20 of his points in the first half as the Utes ran to an 18-3 lead in the first five minutes and were ahead 68-35 at the half. Utah scored the first 12 points of the second half and Foster started pulling out his starters for good.

Guards Tickey Burden and Ty Medley each had 18 for Utah. The 116 points is the highest of the season for Utah and the fourth time they've gone over the 100 mark.

The outclassed Vandals from the Big Sky Conference fell behind on poor first half shooting and were never in the ball game. They hit only 11 of 40 attempts from the floor in the first half and finished the game shooting only 34.8 per cent. Utah blizzeted the nets with a 53.5 per cent average.

Ty Fitzpatrick was high for Idaho with 17 points. Three other Vandal players scored 10 points — Steve Tom, Roger Davis and Henry Harris.

The win boosted Utah's record to 8-1, which equals the number of wins all last season when the Utes went 8-19.

Idaho is now 4-3. All three Vandal losses have been to Western Athletic Conference teams, Arizona, Arizona State and now Utah.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

How well you get along with men is not important, young lady. What's vital is how well you get along with a man, just one. That is the contention of Phyllis McGinley.

Among recent college graduates, one out of every three men earns more than $10,000 a year, one out of every 14 women does likewise.

A British scholar who devoted 42 years to a study of the Robin Hood legend contends the original Robin was only a fair shot with a bow and arrow.

There are computers now so swift and enormous that one such is capable of calculating some separate item of information about every human being on earth within 20 minutes.

POLYGAMY

Q: In the early days of multiple marriage in this country, how many of the early Mormon men actually married more than one woman at a time?

A: About 15 per cent. Wives were expensive. Still are.

A pair of sisters named Charlotte and Charlene asked what their names signify. Our Name Game expert looked into that several years back. He reported young ladies so called are supposed to be exceedingly strong. Patient Enduring Steadfast. That kind of strong. Has nothing to do with weight lifting. Charloottes and Charlones, he says, hold up under the long hard grind of slave wages, temperamental husbands, sassy kids.

And to his collection of redundancies, our Language man most recently has added "continue on," "Costa Mesa plateau," and "mental telepathy."

DRUGS

It's frequently claimed in print that women are more sensitive than men to most drugs. Asked a physician the why of this. Said he: "Simple, men's bodies generally are considerably bigger than the women's, but the sizes of their dosages tend to be equal."

How can you call yourself a Biblical scholar, if you can't name the fellow noted in the Good Book for his reckless driving? Spring this query on your old Sunday school teacher. Right after you read Second Kings 9:30. And the driving is like the driving of Jehu, the son of Nimshi, for he driveth furiously.

Most of the Very Important Persons listed in "Who's Who" are firstborn sons. So were 21 of our presidents. As is a phenomenally high proportion of our astronauts, scientists and top business executives. Some scholars conclude therefore that firstborn sons are far more likely, nevertheless, you get it.

TWIN FALLS — 'Tis the season, 'tis the season, to be jolly' especially for Carolyn Cameron of Hansen.

She has won Twin Falls' Christmas Mystery Melody Contest and $525 in gift certificates from downtown merchants.

Sponsored by the Downtown Merchants Association, the contest gauged Miss

Contest entrants had to guess the names of the songs and submit their lists to a merchant by Dec. 21.

Miss Cameron identified 30 of the displays correctly.

Each merchant donated a $15 gift certificate for the winner and a $5 cash contribution for the charity of the winner's choice.

Fuel shortage freezes 'invasion' by Japanese

By EDWIN DABRY (c) 1973, Chicago Sun-Times

It is a reflection of the sorry state of the world.

Just a few weeks ago almost any publication you picked up featured a story with a headline something like this: "Japanese firms invade U.S. in full force."

If the headlines were on the overblown, scare side, there was truth behind them. By the same token, an appropriate headline today might read: "Japanese invasion stopped cold."

"Cold" would be a good word choice. It is, of course, the fuel shortage that has cooled off the great Japanese expansion of 1973.

The Japanese no longer have any thought of conquering the world with their mountainous board of dollars. The dollars are disappearing; the Japanese concern is with survival.

With the lights going off all over the world, Japan is in a position worse than that of most of the industrial nations. It imports almost all the oil and natural gas it uses. It can't fall back on coal because it has none. And it must buy almost all the raw materials it processes into finished goods for sale in its own markets and to the world.

The Japanese dwarf trees are beautiful. So try using them as the raw material to produce paper. Next to soap, the number one target of Japan's current fever of hoarding is toilet paper. But government economists are more concerned with paper for record-keeping and for packaging.

The weeks' big story out of Japan was that the government had told Japanese airlines to cut in half the number of jet airliners they planned to buy from the U.S. The stories indicated the jets would not be purchased because there would be no fuel to fill their tanks.

That's not the real story. The real story is that Japan needs the dollars, the millions, that would be spent to buy the jets to purchase oil and coal. And the other raw materials to keep the Japanese industrial machine running.

No matter how attractive the deal, Japan does not now have the dollars to invest in American shopping centers and American hotels. It must reserve its money to buy $4 crude oil at $8 and $15 a barrel.

"Just chaos," is the way one Japanese businessman traveling in the United States this past week characterizes the Japanese situation at the moment.

He expects the Tanaka government to fall within a matter of weeks, denounced for its failure to prepare for the energy crisis.

Kumihiko Adachi, senior vice president of Mitsui & Co. (U.S.A.), doesn't quite go along with that panicky analysis. But, as the representative of one of Japan's great multibillion-dollar trading companies, he does say:

"What is your American expression? We are just trying to keep our face out of the water."

With a little help, Adachi finds the right colloquialism: "We are just trying to keep our head above water."

"The situation," Adachi says, "is about 180 degrees from what it was a few months ago." Then, under pressure, the Japanese government was encouraged to overseas investment in almost anything reasonable as a means of putting to work Japan's great hoard of dollars and reducing the tremendous Japanese advantage in trade with the U.S.

Now the idea is simply to lay hands on the raw materials and the fuel to keep the Japanese economy running.

Or as Adachi puts it specifically: "We were looking for a coal mine we could invest in for the future. Now we are only interested in buying coal for use today. Now we have to use our money for survival."

Hailey's Hiawatha Hotel opens under new owners

HAILEY — Blending 90 years of history with modern conveniences, the Hiawatha Hotel, Hailey, has opened its doors under a new ownership.

The new owners, Stan Rice and Gary Sullivan, are from Boise, where they own Quinn's Lounge and Restaurant.

Originally named the Alturas Hotel, the facility opened with a grand ball on May 25, 1888. Construction costs were $35,000 and furniture costs totaled $5,000, excluding the $5,000 spent for fixtures for the bar and billiard hall.

The social and business hub of the booming Wood River mining interests, the hotel was billed as the "finest hotel between Denver and the Pacific Ocean."

The early-west theme of the facility is highlighted with Charles Russell prints, which are hung throughout the hotel.

Special hotel features include the dining room, which is open from 6 a.m. to 2 a.m.; the Sweetwater Saloon complete with a pot-bellied stove, open from 10 a.m. to 1 a.m.; and a swimming pool heated with natural hot water piped from a spring two miles west of Hailey.

Accommodations include rooms with double beds and a bath as well as dormitory style rooms with twin beds and community showers and baths in the hall. The later rooms are designed primarily for skiers who need a place to sleep for only short times at night. Group rates are available for large groups.

This spring the owners plan to convert a room on the back of the dining room into a private dining room to serve conventions and large private parties.

Office on energy holds fuel guide

BOISE — Implementation of proposed new federal fuel guidelines has been delayed until mid-January, according to the Idaho Office on Energy.

Gay Davis, assistant director of the office, said Thursday the delay leaves states without authority to act in the area of gasoline shortages. Mrs. Davis said the office is still permitted authority to reassign up to 10 percent of the middle distillates coming into the state to meet emergency conditions where they exist.

The proposed new regulations would have expanded that authority to include gasoline and also would have permitted the office to create a reservoir of three percent of the fuel coming into the state to deal with emergencies.

Mrs. Davis said federal energy officials told the Energy Office Thursday the implementation of the proposed new regulations had been put off until Jan. 15, 1974. They were originally expected to go into effect Thursday. The delay will permit federal authorities to design new allocation forms to assist state offices.

Mrs. Davis also said the state office was still awaiting detailed information about the stand-by rationing system announced earlier in the day by federal energy czar William E. Simon. "The only information reaching state officials late in the day was from news reports, she said.

QUESTION: What are your New Year's resolutions?

Sherl Hettenbach, Twin Falls:
"I really hadn't thought about it, because I brok them all the time anyway."

David Marsh, Twin Falls:
"I don't know. Do my best to help the economy of the nation and get all my bills paid off."

Joy May Morse, Twin Falls:
"I don't know."

Artie White, Twin Falls:
"Better luck than I've had this year. Keep my good health."

Nancy Adfield, Jerome:
"Well, I really haven't made any New Year's resolutions yet. Think I will? Not on New Year's Day — probably through the whole year."

John Mathlesen, Seattle:
"I suppose one of them is going to be to climb Mount Rainier this summer ... and to try to be a better person."

Quake ranch studied

HOLLISTER, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists do more earthquake watching on Howard Harris' ranch than anywhere else in the world. But the 64-year-old rancher rides the constantly-trembling San Andreas fault line with nary a worry.

His ranch is located eight miles south of Hollister, a city of 7,500 persons called the "Earthquake Capital of the United States."

The area has been unusually quake-free so far this year, despite a prediction in the spring by government scientists that there would be a heavy tremor centered on the Harris ranch.

The 3,500-acre Harris ranch runs along both sides of the San Andreas fault for about five miles. It has so many earthquakes that he turned over part of his property for the scientists to play on. They come from the University of California, Stanford and the U.S. Geological Survey to test out schemes for predicting quakes.

It is easy to see the fault line cutting through the terrain on the ranch, and how the earth is moving about two inches a year on one side. At one place the fault cuts a deep crack, 50 feet wide. Harris has built a road into it for the curious geologists.

"At the upper end of the ranch you can see where our creek has moved four miles north in the last 20,000 years," he says. "Sometime, thousands of years away, Los Angeles will be moving north past San Francisco."

The visiting scientists have installed elaborate devices for measuring every movement of the earth, the sound of the rocks creaking, and the magnetic fields which they say are related to earth movements.

Early this year the government scientists proudly made their "first" off-forecast prediction of a quake. It was to happen on Harris' ranch within a couple of months. When nature did not cooperate, the scientists admitted they would have to go back to the drawing boards on predicting.

"I can predict one for next Tuesday," says Harris. "And I couldn't go far wrong. If you look at the statistics, once a year we have a really sharp quake. Every three or four months we have one, maybe 4 or 5 on the Richter scale. We have one here every day, depending on how severe it has to be to be called a quake."

The rancher says he can tell when an earthquake is imminent by watching his cattle or the birds. "They sense these things," he says. "We hear a low rumble before a quake. The cattle and birds pick this up long before we do."

RANCHER AND GEOLOGIST Howard Harris rests hand atop "position monument" on his ranch and points finger in direction in which the earth has shifted about four inches in the last five years on his land near Hollister, Calif. (UPI)

Insulation business also feels shortage

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With heating fuels in short supply many persons are investing in insulation to conserve energy.

But, in a year of shortages, insulation, too, is short, according to a local insulation manufacturer.

"We're finding consistently that we and other (insulation) companies cannot meet the demand," Gloria Hamilton, who owns and manages Hamilton Insulation Co., Twin Falls, with her husband, said. Normally, Mrs. Hamilton said, Hamilton Insulation is one week to 10 days behind in completing insulation jobs during the busy winter months. This November the company finds itself three weeks behind in meeting orders and "doesn't have assurance that it can get insulation through winter."

The squeeze is due to the shortage of paper used as an insulation base by Hamilton Co. and to the severe shortage of boric acid, an essential fire retardant chemical.

Because of environmentalist pressures, Borax Co. in Death Valley recently cut down its production of boric acid by 50 per cent, Mrs. Hamilton said. She said boric acid is manufactured only in Death Valley in the United States.

The effect of the cutback was drastic, she said, "It's like taking 50 per cent of our gas away."

Newsprint is short because foreign competitors are now buying it at twice the price, Mrs. Hamilton said. Previously, Hamilton Insulation bought much newsprint from Montana sources; now, Japan buys it all, she said.

However, the insulation maker estimated that locally only five per cent of the available paper is used.

She said that Hamilton Insulation has contacted Twin Falls city officials about the possibility of making a separate garbage pickup of newspapers, which the company would then purchase.

The city expressed interest in the idea but proposed that the paper be sorted at the dump, she said. This would cause problems, Mrs. Hamilton said, because paper previously mixed with garbage might be wet. Ironically, wet newsprint can burst into flames through spontaneous combustion, she said.

At present Hamilton Insulation lacks the facilities to process bulk paper, but when the company moves to a new site in the old National Starch Factory it might develop these facilities, she said.

Hamilton Insulation distributes insulation material throughout southern Idaho and installs insulation locally. The company uses about two to three thousands bags of the material monthly and manufactures about six to seven times that much, Mrs. Hamilton said.

The company pays $12.50 per ton of newsprint (.625 of a cent per pound) and welcomes paper brought in by individuals and organizations, Mrs. Hamilton said.

MRS. GLORIA HAMILTON
... can't meet demand

Secret shredder

TWIN FALLS — Apparently, Twin Falls has its own secret shredder.

Local companies and the United States Post Office commonly destroy confidential materials in the Hamilton Insulation Co.'s paper processor, according to Gloria Hamilton, co-owner of the company.

When a company's officials bring in such materials to the plant they often stick around to make sure that all the matter is destroyed, Mrs. Hamilton said.

The material is then made into insulation. Who knows? Antiques may not be the only secrets in your attic.

Cash looks younger

(c) New York News Service
GREENVALE, N. Y. — Johnny Cash looks 10 years younger. He has lost the tension in his mouth, the burned-out look in his eyes that lasted after his self-destructive decade. He is 41 years old and he bounces like an athlete when he talks.

The general explanation for his good health and international fame as a country singer is that Cash has long since put the pills behind him and has an enduring love affair with June Carter, his wife since 1968.

But that is not the explanation that Cash and Miss Carter give. They say the difference is his religious experience in recent years — "The coming back to Jesus," as he put it.

The new peace coincides with one of the major departures of Cash's career — creating the movie "The Gospel Road," about the life of Jesus. It was filmed in Israel "with a lot of faith and a lot of June's money," he said smiling. That film, which had its metropolitan benefit premiere Wednesday has reportedly cost the Cash family $500,000 — with no immediate prospect of breaking even.

Churches agree on ministry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An international, officially appointed joint commission of Anglican and Roman Catholic theologians and bishops today issued a statement declaring the two churches in substantial agreement on the nature of ministry.

The statement is a major step toward reunion of the world's 600 million Roman Catholics and 45 million Anglicans even though it carries only the authority of the commission. Two years ago the Commission, established in 1970 by Pope Paul VI and Anglican Archbishop Michael Ramsey of Canterbury, issued a similar statement of agreement on the doctrine of the Eucharist-Holy Communion.

Although the Commission said there were still differences between the two churches, the agreement "has ... put these issues in a new context." Nor does the statement broach the problem of authority or papal primacy.

Colson new person through Jesus Christ

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles W. Colson says he has become a new person through Jesus Christ.

There are obvious changes in the man who once was known as the White House "tough guy." He sat in shirtsleeves at his oval desk Friday and talked calmly and quietly for almost an hour about what has happened to him. His language was clean of the profanity that once marked it.

He spoke of reading the Bible, of praying daily, of "doing a lot of thinking." Outside the snow was falling.

Some things have not changed. Pictures of Richard Nixon and Spiro T. Agnew hang on the walls of his law office in a modern building three blocks from the White House. So does the big framed certificate of his appointment as special counsel to the President.

He hasn't changed his political philosophy. He has "nothing but enormous admiration" for Nixon. He continues to represent the Teamsters Union.

He said the great sin of Watergate was arrogance, "the great sin of a lot of us." He is reluctant to talk about Watergate, because he thinks it would be self-serving to do so and his lawyers have told him not to.

Colson, 42, who grew up in Massachusetts, said he often had thought about religious things. His thinking jelled last March in conversations with Tom Phillips, head of Raytheon Corp. and an old friend. Colson said his search was unrelated to Watergate, which was just beginning to unravel.

He read "More Christianity," by C.S. Lewis, the British thinker and patron saint of evangelical Christianity, and it all came together in August during a week on the Maine coast.

Son Harold E. Hughes, D-Iowa, a liberal who is retiring from the Senate to become a religious lay worker, has become one of Colson's best friends and spiritual confidantes. Hughes acknowledges he had deep reservations when a mutual friend asked him to talk with Colson. But the three men met in the recreation room of Hughes' home.

"I told him quite honestly that I had doubts, that we came from opposite ends of the political spectrum and that I had been antagonistic toward the administration because of the Watergate and Ellsberg break-ins," Hughes said.

"Needless to say, he dispelled any doubts. At the end of the meeting I embraced him and told him, 'You are my brother in Christ,'" Hughes said.

"I will stand with him in any circumstance. He has my complete trust. I would trust him with my life, my fortune, whatever I have. 'I have come to love Chuck Colson.'"

The year has been tough for Colson. He had recommended E. Howard Hunt Jr. for a White House job; later Hunt was convicted as a Watergate mastermind. Jeb Stuart Magruder testified that Colson, prior to the Watergate break-in, had urged quick approval of a domestic intelligence-gathering plan. Former White House Counsel John W. Dean III testified he had been told Colson had proposed the fire-bombing of the Brookings Institution and that Nixon had remarked he should not have discussed clemency for Watergate defendants with Colson.

Colson denied wrong-doing at the time of those charges. He still will not speak directly about them except to say he was guilty of no criminal offenses in the White House.

Excerpts from the Colson interview:

Q. Can we go back to your conversation with Tom Phillips? You said you talked to him last spring.

A. What impressed me about Tom was that I had known him quite well before I went to the White House and I had not seen him while I was in the White House. I saw him in March and he was just a really totally different human being. We talked a little bit about it, and he said he had been through quite an experience in his life for he felt something missing, he was having difficulty justifying himself to himself, and he was spending a great deal of time agonizing over whether he was the person he thought he wanted to be. He attended a Billy Graham rally in New York. He had been doing a lot of reading. But after the rally he walked through the streets of New York alone one night, and it just all came to him. He accepted Christ, he committed his life to Christ. I guess what impressed me was that someone of Tom's intellect, intelligence and someone of his background, that was quite similar to mine, had come to this on his own. He really hadn't had anyone walk him through it, or help him with it. That impressed me so much that I started giving it a lot of thought, and doing a little bit of reading here and there. Then I spent some more time with Tom in early August and read chapters in Lewis' book, "More Christianity."

Q. What was your own state of mind in March and again in August? You've had a tough year, obviously. Were you searching for something else, or

A. Yeah, well Q.—and his words fell on fertile ground?

A. That's a good word to describe it. His words fell on very fertile soil. I guess in March, I did, I felt very unfairly accused of everything under the sun in the newspapers. I was obsessed with the thought that my own reputation was going to be destroyed by all this stuff that was being printed. This was before the Ervin hearings and before the special prosecutor started. And I was totally wrapped up in myself and my own problems and my own worries and I was emotionally exhausted after four years in the White House. It wrings you out and you're just out of steam. So it was kind of down. All my life at various times, I had thought about God, wondered about it. I think I had gon that other people have had. I was in the Marine Corps and have seen grown men praying from time to time. But you know, that isn't really finding that eternal truth—that's praying out of fear, which people do in their lives. But I've had other periods when I gave some serious thought to converting to Catholicism at one point because that had appealed to me as something with a sort of an eternal, something with standards that you could accept and understand. I didn't, I was not a very good church-goer, have never been, am still not. I don't find the organized church helps that much. I mean, if you go to church simply to have the minister talk to you and tell you what you ought to hear and then go out and forget it, then it just becomes like brushing your teeth in the morning.

Q. I guess what I'm asking, were you really in the midst of despair and you reached out and grabbed this?

A. No, no. That wouldn't be the right way to characterize it. No more despair than anybody who's looking for some spiritual value in his life and hasn't found it. Not particularly because of Watergate, no. Because when all this first started, with me at least—I wasn't the target of anybody's investigation... I had been testifying voluntarily and I had not expected I was going to be the target of anything because I didn't think I had any reason to be. So it wasn't quite like you were placed under the gun of criminal prosecution and reached out and grabbed something to save you.

Q. It wasn't foxhole?

A. No, it wasn't foxhole.

Q. What was the reaction of your old colleagues at the White House?

A. A lot of them were very

been searching for a long time. In my particular case, it preceded all the turmoil of the last year. I had been born and raised an Episcopalian, went through the Sunday School routine with my parents, both of whom were quite religious. I'm married to a Roman Catholic who is very faithful to the church.

Q. You were probably one of the last persons in town who would be accused of having had religious thoughts

A. Yeah.

Q.—and to hear you say this is something of a surprise, to say that you had a bit of a search, an openness, even before the March-August period.

A. I've had the same experiences with foxhole relunderstanding. I talked to a lot of them, some very interested.

Q. Have you had spiritual discussions with Haldeman and Ehrlichman?

A. No.

Q. The President?

A. I'm not going to get into whom I've talked to and whom I haven't.

Q. How are you sustaining your experience with Christ? You meet with whom?

A. Hughes, Congressman Al Quie (R-Minn.) and Graham Purcell (D-Tex.), Doug Coe, who runs the prayer groups here in town. We get together at least once a week. I meet often alone with Hughes or Doug. I do a lot of reading.

Q. What are you reading now?

A. I just started reading " book that Harold Hughes' wife gave me about the apostles. I read the Bible from time to time. I try to set a little time aside each day, do a lot of thinking.

Q. Praying?

A. Sure.

Q. Daily?

A. Yeah.

Q. What does this experience mean in terms of repentance?

A. What does it mean in terms of repentance? That is the other great obstacle to people accepting Christ. They think they really have sinned in their life—and therefore they really don't deserve to be good Christians. And that's the other great false obstacle we create to really accepting and opening ourselves to the personal relationship. And it's wrong, because all has been forgiven us. Christ has atoned for all of our sins. You do repent and can repent and are forgiven.

Q. In terms of yourself, it's the view of some people that if you truly were to repent you might have to go to jail.

A. I have said repeatedly there isn't anything that I know I did when I was in the White House that involves me in any of the criminal charges.

Q. Well, without being specific about Watergate, you are willing to repent of anything that you did wrong?

A.—Well, we have all done a lot of things—I mean that—I don't know who is ready to cast the first stone. I know plenty of things in my life that I am sorry about. That doesn't—I don't want to—the one thing I don't want to do and certainly for any newspaper story, is try to relate my own beliefs today with Watergate. I just am not going to do that. I think it could be misinterpreted or misunderstood and I don't want to relate the two, either.

Thoughts From Other Years And Other Times — A Future Legacy

By nature sin is dark, and loves the dark, still hiding from itself in gloom, and in the darkest hell is still itself the hell, and the severest woe, where all is woe.

Error is a hardy plant. It flourishes in every soil.

All kindness begins in purpose.

Be not forgetful to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares.

The only way to keep a secret is to say nothing.

Hope is the only tie that keeps the heart from breaking.

Come unto Me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

The tooth often bites the tongue and yet they keep together.

Experience keeps a dear school, but fools will learn in no other.

The noblest remedy of injuries is oblivion.

The best sort of revenge is not to be liked by him who did the injury.

Old quarrels and old charges are best left alone: Raise no unsavory odors. If evil will die, let it die.

It takes two to make a quarrel.

Half heart is no heart.

Many would be cowards if they had courage enough.

A little of everything is nothing in the main.

I hate to see a thing done by halves; if it be right, do it boldly; if it be wrong, leave it undone.

Tall trees catch much wind.

Peace begins just where ambition ends.

No ruins are so irreparable as those of reputation.

How will it look by daylight?

Advice is easier than helping.

He who loses money, loses much; he who loses a friend, loses more; but he who loses his spirits, loses all.

That honesty pays, that public spirit pays, that trickery and dishonesty do not pay, are written in letters of fire.

We must treat each man on his worth and merits as a man.

We must see that each is given a square deal, because he is entitled to no more and should receive no less.

The man who is always having his feelings hurt is about as pleasing a companion as a pebble in a shoe.

Confess that you were wrong yesterday; it will show that you are wise today.

If you make your bed, so you must lie on it.

It is hard to get two heads under one hat.

Correction should not respect what is past, so much as what is to come.

The teacher who has forgotten his boyhood will have poor success.

He who commences many things finishes but few.

The boughs that bear most hang lowest.

Which Way to Look?

A New Year is about to be born. Should you glance back or look ahead? It's up to you. Those who have lived other years have left us a legacy of quotations, of ideas, of suggestions.

Before we enter upon a New Year, perhaps it is well to read the selected few on these pages today and to weigh them in the promise of a tomorrow — 1974.

The selections come from here and there, put together by Gus Kelker, who also took the pictures — the "pitcher" (actually a vase) with the big ears, from Portugal; the Thing of Beauty, a delicate porcelain figurine, from Spain.

Love is not without its bitterness.

This is My commandment, that ye love one another, even as I have loved you. Greater love has no man than this: That a man lay down his life for his friends.

True love never grows old.

There is sweet and holy blindness in Christian love.

Charity cannot dwell with a mean and narrow spirit.

We have in our scheme of government, no room for the man who does not wish to pay his way through life by what he does for himself and for his community.

Far and away the best prize that life offers is the chance to work hard at work worth doing.

Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.

It is finished.

We cannot erase the sad records from our past.

There is a past which is gone forever; but there is a future which is still our own.

Today is yesterday's pupil.

A man who does nothing never has time to do anything.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

A short cut is often a wrong cut.

What is the best thing to do in a hurry? Answer: Nothing!

The Mass of trifles makes magnitude.

Even the king pulls on his trousers one leg at a time.

A pendulum travels much, but it only goes a tick at a time.

Every day a thread makes a skein in the year.

Little strokes fell great oaks.

Little things are great to little men.

Little things please little minds.

Contentment comes of the heart, not of the house.

Punctuality is the soul of business.

There is not a quality of function either of body or mind which does not feel the influence of habit.

Thou shalt be steadfast and shall not fear.

A brave retreat is a grave exploit.

He must be pure who would blame another.

A conscientious liar is one who has misrepresented a matter so long that even he himself believes it to be as he says.

Make the night night, and the day day, and you will live happily.

The rotten apple injures his neighbor.

Stars teach as well as shine.

An honest man is not the worse because a dog barks at him.

He may hope for the best that's prepared for the worst.

A fine cage won't feed the bird.

Necessity is a hard nurse, but she raises strong children.

Pluck the rose and leave the thorns.

Creditors have better memories than debtors.

Better a poor man than a liar.

A thing of beauty is a joy forever.

He that loses his conscience has nothing left that is worth keeping.

Blessed is the peacemaker, not the conqueror.

Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted.

Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God.

No man e'er found a happy life by chance.

There is no better looking glass than an old friend.

Of listening children have your fears, for little pitchers have great ears.

The fool shineth no longer than he holdeth his tongue.

A slip of the foot may be soon recovered, but that of the tongue perhaps never.

The worst wheel of a cart creaks most.

The more we limit and concentrate on happiness, the more certain we are of securing it.

'Black Jack' last US mount

KINSOLVING
Washington Bureau

ARLINGTON, Va. — The commanding officer of the last 30 horses in the United States Army smiled when I asked about "Black Jack," the sole surviving U. S. Cavalry mount, who is now featured in military funerals.

"That horse is phenomenal," said Col. Harvey H. Perritt, West Point, '52. "He has an eagle eye for any camera lens — particularly TV — and will always pose."

"But the last time he was on TV we got letters from all over the country protesting how far we had made 'Poor Black Jack' walk — because he's 27 years old."

"'Poor Black Jack,' — that's a laugh! He wore out three men!"

Col. Perritt's men — 1,123 enlisted and 54 officers of the First Battalion (Reinforced) of the Third Infantry Regiment — appeared to be harder than this.

"Well, even the strongest 170-pound man can get tired of trying to hold 1,700 pounds of horse," explained Col. Perritt, "especially when the horse keeps raising his head up — and decides to process sideways."

"On the other hand, Black Jack is simply lovely with small children. It's just that he tries to kick me. Fortunately, he's missed."

Col. Perritt's command, "The Old Guard," stationed at Ft. Myer next to Arlington Cemetery, is becoming known nationally for more than its horses, who are used for funerals.

For in 1960 part of this military unit whose origin was in 1784 began wearing their original Continental Army uniforms. They also re-formed the same file and drum corps established by order of Gen. George Washington.

This unit parades with muzzle-loading flintlocks, which they fire in executing a drill called "Feudeljae" — originally taught — to Washington's troops at Valley Forge by Baron Von Steuben. The Old Guard also includes the U. S. Army Drill Team, 20 men, four of them sergeants, who hurl and twirl their 1903 Springfield rifles with bayonets fixed — as if they were majorettes batons.

"Of course we're better than the Marines!" contended Lt. Col. Oren Culpeper, a six-foot three-inch Ranger from Malvern, Ark., who is Perritt's executive officer.

The Marine Corps — as well as the Navy, the Air Force and the Coast Guard, all have their own drill teams, who were in action together last week welcoming Romania's President Nicolae Ceausescu to the White House.

"Well, let's say the Marines are our closest competition," modified Col. Perritt, "at home, that is."

Then pointing to four large color photographs on his office wall, Perritt noted: "There's our real competition."

The army, navy and air force units of both the Peoples Republic of China and the Soviet Union — being reviewed by President Nixon in the Peking and Moscow airports — both looked immaculately groomed, impressively uniformed and exceptionally disciplined.

"Lots of military equipment can't be visible to the public or to visiting dignitaries," explained Perritt. "But the public and the army both feel that this unit belongs to them. It costs a certain amount of money to look like a first rate world power. How much is it worth to have Brezhnev welcomed as impressively as they welcomed President Nixon?"

Total cost of operating the Old Guard was $377,000 last year, not including pay. This included annual infantry training at Virginia's Camp A. P. Hill — for the Old Guard is always subject to alert, particularly when Washington is threatened with riot.

"I've been here nearly two years and things have been quiet, fortunately," noted Perritt. "We were called out when there was an attempt to demobilize Washington in 1970, but the D. C. police and the D. C. National Guard handled that. We were visible, but I'm glad they didn't actually need the Regular Army."

The Old Guard has many specialties such as: flag bearers, pallbearers, canoneers (for 21 gun salutes), funeral riflemen, guards for caskets of dignitaries lying in state, riders or leaders of horses and, as perhaps the most constantly visible, the lone sentry who guards the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

The Fife and Drum Corps has during the past year fulfilled more than 400 engagements before an estimated 1.4 million people.

"What surprises me," observed Perritt, "are the young people who watch our 'Spirit of America' pageant or our 'Torchlight Tattoo' that we perform at the Jefferson Memorial on Wednesday nights from June through August."

"There are not only a great many more young people than I would have expected, but they're generally much better behaved than some of their elders. They cooperate when we have to move out and they don't disrupt a ceremony with loud talking."

The mention of young people occasioned my observation that none of the Old Guard have long hair.

"Neither do any of those Russian honor guards," noted Perritt. "This regulation causes some unhappiness, mainly female-connected. I know because I was harassed by my wife and mother to let my hair grow. But we're trying to make this an all-volunteer outfit and I would say that 98 per cent of our men have great self pride. I have seen them hang in there even though they were literally green and about to faint."

"If anyone feels faint: 'I tell them to kneel on one knee and then move to the rear. That's better than falling, in which case our non-coms pick them up.'"

"With the twirling fixed bayonets there are bound to be accidents such as happened to SP-4 Richard Sapsang of Fargo, N. D. whose weapon slipped, subsequently requiring eight stitches — but only after he finished a 'Torchlight Tattoo' while bleeding."

All members of the Old Guard must be high school graduates and at least 5 feet 8 inches with appropriate weight. They can join the unit directly from civilian life and remain for a full three years, although basic training must be supplemented with 30 to 90 days of "ceremonial training."

Col. Perritt enjoys his command enough to comment: "This is a two year assignment so I will be transferred in six months. Almost anywhere I go will be down. For I am aided here by suggestions from almost every horselover in America, almost all of the Army's mothers and nearly all of my fellow officers."

Mrs. LeRoy Gardner and pitcher

MRS. LEROY GARDNER, Shoshone, shows one of the chocolate or coffee pitchers she has recently made in the porcelain dimers are work she does at her home.

Hobby becomes business

SHOSHONE Mrs. LeRoy Gardner, Shoshone, has turned her talent to not only a delightful hobby, but to a parttime business enterprise. She sews, makes most anything from a ski jacket, to sleeping bag; she paints in oil and water colors, and she turns out dozens of dinnerware and ceramic pieces each year. She sells her paintings and dishes not only in Magic Valley but in the Salt Lake City area. Three dinner sets she recently completed had 14 place settings in each. There were three plate sizes in each chocolate pots, water pitchers and three large platters. Her tea sets include cups and saucers, sugar and creamers in addition to the tea pot. Most designs take three firmes in her kiln, not to mention the painting of the design to begin with. There are 10 and 9 inch plates in the dinner sets, in addition to the bread and butter plates. At a week apart, the plates can be fired over a three-week period, and turning out the entire dinner set may take several weeks, she said.

Mealybug hard on houseplants

By GEORGE ABRAHAM FIGHTING MEALYBUGS: One of the toughest insects on houseplants is the white mealybug. It looks like a small fluff of cotton found in leaf axils and on stems of plants. Each one is oval, white and waxy-coated.

Mealybugs are sap-sucking insects which secrete a sticky honeydew material. Control: Getting rid of mealybugs isn't always easy. Swabbing a matchstick with cotton and dipping rubbing alcohol is effective.

Apply to the cottony masses. Some people claim they have good luck by dipping the swab in nail polish remover to kill the pests.

No material will keep them off permanently since new mealy bugs hatch out to reinfest your plant. That means getting after them again about a month later.

Scale and mealybugs can be dislodged by mixing up some soap and water, then take an old toothbrush and scrub the affected area. The mechanical motion breaks them up and then you can wash the area off with the soap suds.

Sprays aren't too satisfactory. If any one has a better way to control mealybugs, please write and tell us how you do it.

PLANTS CUT YOUR FUEL BILL: In these days of a fuel shortage, we'd like to point out that trees and shrubs can actually save you money. Here's what we wrote in the 100-word of our first book, 12 years ago:

"There's more to gain from landscaping than merely the aesthetic. Good landscaping cuts down on your fuel bills in winter and makes your home cooler in summer.

"A properly located shade tree can reduce summer room temperatures as much as 20 degrees. Trees not only eliminate the 'attic furnace,' but will cut your fuel bill by as much as 30 per cent by acting as a windbreak.

"To heat an ordinary house, it takes twice as much fuel at a temperature of 32 degrees and a wind of 12 miles per hour as it does for the same temperature and a wind of 3 miles per hour. Trees also help purify air by taking in carbon dioxide and giving off oxygen."

If you're looking for something different to give your friends, something that will help clean up our environment, consider a tree. We should plant 10 trees for every 100 automobiles and 100 trees for every truck on the road.

And remember this, trees, unlike most things you buy, increase in value. A tree that costs you $10 today may be worth $200 to $300 or more in 10 to 15 years.

WATERING HANGING BASKETS: Growing plants in hanging baskets is very popular today, but one drawback is they are apt to be messy when you water these containers.

Someone came up with the idea of watering hanging baskets by placing an ice cube or two in each container. The ice-cube method doesn't drip water on your rugs or floor and it doesn't harm the plants, according to the many readers who've written to tell us about it.

POISON IVY CURE: We've had a lot of cures for the home-grown kind (for poison ivy and they all seem to be good. Here's another one to add to your list if you're from the "old remedy school."

Use hot vinegar, a reader suggests. "If you use this, it is a sure cure and while it may sting at first, the final relief is well worth it. Pat it on with cotton all over.

"Years ago when clear naptha was available this was what we used, except on the face. Hot vinegar will not hurt the face. Eyes are always protected even with this cure.

MAKING A COMPOST PILE: A reader saved all his leaves and wants to make a compost pile. Someone told him he has to buy a lot of miscellaneous items to add to the compost. A fertilizer dealer also told him there will be no nitrogen available in spring so what should he add to the pile?

A compost pile isn't that complicated. You can sprinkle a little lime on from time to time. Also add your coffee grounds, tea leaves, etc. A compost doesn't need huge amounts of nitrogen and we're sure that the small amount that's needed will be available.

If you can't get any form of fertilizer, the materials in your compost will have enough for the composted material. If you can latch on to animal manures—rabbit, hen, cow, horse or sheep manure—add these to the compost as these contain certain amounts of nitrogen and other plant nutrients.

ZEBRA PLANTS: Gardeners have a habit of naming any plant with variegated or colorful leaves "zebra plants." One common zebra plant is Aphelandra squarrosa. It has green leaves with white veins.

It likes a semi-sunny (not direct sun) situation, and a soil mixture of 1 part each of sand, peat and loam. Keep it evenly moist. Browning of leaves is due to hot dry rooms, dry soil.

Another "zebra" plant is the "inch plant" or "wandering Jew" (Tradescantia) having large blue-green leaves with white stripes. It takes a sunny to semi-shady window and same soil as Aphelandra. It will grow in plain tap water.

Another common "zebra" plant is Zebrina pendula, commonly called "wandering Jew" also. Foliage is green, red, yellow and silver. Grow in a sunny or semi-sunny window and give same care as the other "zebra" plants.

The Gossip Column

By Robin Adams Sloan
QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Why can't rock musicians get reservations at luxury hotels? Because most hotels in the U. S. and abroad would sooner rent rooms to a traveling gang of drunken acrobats than a rocker. One group, The Who, have done about $300,000 worth of damage in their last eight years of touring. They were jailed last month in Montreal until they paid nearly $3,000 for wrecking their rooms. Another problem, with rockers is the groupies, whose activities have scandalized both guests and even the base hotel managements.

Q: I saw a poll last week that said the public doesn't believe there is an energy crisis. I agree. — G. W., Orlando, Fla.

A: We disagree. Check the figures in your local area of central Florida. Disney World reports a 12 per cent drop in attendance for the two weeks following the President's

JUDGE JOHN SIRICA
 ... Time's Man of year?

November 25 energy speech. Motels are running at 50 per cent of capacity and the new Sea World attraction opened its first show on December 15 to a stadium two-thirds empty.

Q: Who will be Time magazine's Man of the Year? — N.O., Aurora, Ill.

A: The bets are on for Judge John J. Sirica, the scourge of Watergate.

Q: What's the highest advance ever paid for a paperback? We need to know for a college discussion group. — E.P., New Haven, Conn.

A: Best evidence is that the New American Library paid $1,250,000 for paperback rights to "The Joy of Cooking." They put half a million copies into print and would do more if it weren't for the paper shortage.

No, not a pop fire hydrant! Andy Warhol sent a carefully wrapped Christmas gift from his place to the home of Jackie Onassis. It was an early lithograph done by the master and now worth a small fortune. But the gift wasn't from Andy to Jackie. It was from Andy's mongrel dog "Archie" to Jackie's elegantly bred pet, "Hans."

Q: I'm fascinated with Uri Geller, the Israeli who supposedly makes clocks turn and keys bend. Why can no one decide definitely whether he's just a magician or a man with super powers? — R.D., Floral Park, N.Y.

A: The final tests to determine whether Geller has extraordinary psychic abilities will come next month in London. Geller has accepted an invitation to go before a special research committee set up by the prestigious British scientific journal, New Scientist.

Q: Why doesn't George Foreman do some of those TV commercials or endorsements? — V.R., Vancouver, Wash.

A: The heavy-weight boxing champion says, "I don't believe in lying about some product just so I can make money I'm a fighter. I think I ought to make money fighting." Brave words from George considering that he is financially hard pressed. Right on George — a recent survey showed athletes' endorsements don't sell products anyway.

Q: Am I right that Jean Seberg seems to have disappeared? — St. Paul, Minn.

A: Jean had a bad few years when her marriage to Roman Gary, the novelist, broke up. However, she married a 29-year-old American director, Dennis Berry, recently and they live in Paris. The newlyweds are in London now while Jean co-stars in a movie with Kirk Douglas.

WOULD YOU BELIEVE THE FOLLOWING ROMANCE RUMORS? Paulette Goddard and pop art's Andy Warhol? Liza Minnelli and the handsome black star of Broadway's "Pippin," Ben Vereen? Robin Adams Sloan welcomes questions from readers. While Sloan cannot provide individual answers, questions of general interest will be used in the column. Write to Robin Adams, Sloan, care of this newspaper.

Q: Has Peter Finch's new wife, Eletha, been married before? How many children do they have? — G.M.G., Florissant, Mo.

A: This was the British actor's third marriage and the

PETER FINCH

Jamaican beauty's first. They have a 3-year-old daughter, Dee Dee, and she has an 11-year-old son, Christopher. Both children live with the Finches in Switzerland.

Q: Does Mae West really still see people, give interviews, and talk about sex personally? Isn't that all just press agency for a woman 81 years old? — P.O., Boston.

A: It may be press agency, but it's Mae's own press agency. She does indeed give interviews and she does indeed make statements like the following, which is recent: "I've taken care of myself all my life. I have never shed a tear over a guy, they ain't worth it. Don't ask me how many love affairs I've had because I can't remember. But none of them lasted longer than a year and a half. I like 'em short, tall, fat, thin, doesn't matter as long as they got personality." Happy New Year, Mae.

PETER FONDA

Q: Is it true that Peter Fonda has dropped out and is living in a commune? — D.O.C., Chittenden, Vt.

A: No, he's in Spain doing a thriller movie at the moment, to earn some money. Peter lost the fortune he made from "Easy Rider," putting up the money for his other movies. After he and his wife split, Peter quit Hollywood and now lives on his boat, which is moored off an island in the Pacific. For company, he has his girl friend of two years, Kathy Speer. Young Fonda says he has given up both marriage and motorcycles.

NANCY MAGINNES

Q: What's with Bob Dylan? Do you think he's now going to be a movie star instead of a singer? — K.D., Dallas, Tex.

A: Dylan did not do very well as an actor, but as a singer next year he will probably be a record breaker. Bob has formed his own record label, Ashes and Sand, which Elektra will release. The first album has ten new songs and will be released next month to coincide with Dylan's national tour. Advance orders indicate that both the record and the tour will be sellouts. So who needs to act?

Q: We all know that Henry Kissinger's number one girl is Nancy Maginnes from New York. How come we don't read any stories about her? — J.J., Elizabeth, N.J.

A: You don't read any stories because Nancy, who works for Nelson Rockefeller, has flatly refused to talk to reporters or be interviewed by anyone. Nancy's low profile is an order from her, Henry.

Q: I resented your recent answer about the death of my idol Bruce Lee. What exactly did the coroner say about the manner of his death? — F. T., Seattle.

A: The King Fu king died in the Hong Kong home of actress Betty Ting Pei. Ostensibly, he had gone to see her to discuss her role in his new film, "Game of Death." The coroner ruled that he died from "misadventure," meaning they really did not know the exact reason for the blood vessel that burst in his brain. Speculation had it that the rupture might have been caused from a bad reaction to a painkiller taken the day before. Lee had complained only of a headache before he died. Cannabis (marijuana) was found in his stomach, but ruled out as a cause of death.
