Items. Last month meat prices went up 2.1 per cent on the average while staple prices rose 1 per cent and the cost of produce stayed the same. Between August and December, however, meat prices dropped 2.2 per cent. Dropping from an average of $7.70 to $1.52 per pound in November, the price of bacon rose again last month to a $1.59 cents per pound average.

A popular brand of clothes washing detergent rose 2.4 per cent in price from 68 cents to 91 cents per 41 ounce, "giant size" box in December. Another price jump is expected soon for milk. Twin Falls area dairy firms said today a 68 cent per hundredweight increase on milk has been ordered to cover the higher cost of feed and other producer costs. This increase will be passed on fully to the dairy farmer, officials said, with no increase to the wholesaler or retailer.

Carl Nelson, Young's Dairy, said this will amount to about 6 cents per gallon on milk, or another 3 cents per half-gallon package. It will also increase cheese prices, he said, with most of the buyer cost being shown on whole milk and cheese.

"It will probably take dairy firms about a week to work up their new price sheets," Nelson said. He added some may have already increased prices 1 to 2 cents per half gallon or a cent per quart in preparation for the new increases.

Milk prices have been climbing steadily the past several months. One specific brand of milk was selling at 71 cents per half gallon on Oct. 1, 68 cents on Aug. 1 and 65 cents June 15. This same brand is now 78 cents per half gallon on grocery shelves in Twin Falls.

Seen... Scotland Yard arrests US girl in arms check

LONDON (UPI) — Scotland Yard imposed light secrecy today on the arrest of an 18-year-old American girl, one of at least three persons picked up at London's Heathrow airport in a mysterious arms smuggling investigation.

Police sources said counterespionage officers ordered a blackout on details of the arrests and Scotland Yard asked the FBI in Washington for a report on the girl.

The sources alleged the girl might have been courier for a band of Arab guerrillas being sent to London to kill prominent Jews. They said more than 30 Arab gunmen were believed headed for Britain and the government had ordered a maximum alert at airports throughout the nation.

Scotland Yard said the girl was arrested Saturday after she arrived at Heathrow on a flight from Los Angeles. Customs men alleged finding five automatic pistols and 150 rounds of ammunition hidden in her luggage.

An official statement said the girl was allowed to leave the airport terminal with her luggage, but was seized when she allegedly made contact with a Moroccan on an airport bus.

Authorities said the Moroccan and a Pakistani who flew in from Los Angeles on New Year's Day were being held with the girl at Felling police station in West London.

Police sources said the girl's brother was arrested Monday when he arrived at Heathrow, but Scotland Yard refused to confirm the report.

The Daily Telegraph identified the girl as Allison Thompson, but Scotland Yard refused to confirm her name.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said the three suspects had not yet been charged. He refused to add anything to the bare official reports.

The arrests came a week after French authorities raided a chateau outside Paris.

Fund drive set at youth ranch

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

RUPERT — The board of directors of the Idaho Youth Ranch has begun a fund raising drive to pay for construction of a new gymnasium and dining complex for the ranch.

James Worsley, director of the home for troubled boys, said Wednesday the board hopes to raise $100,000 in the next four months to match funds already available for the facility.

There is no gymnasium facility at the ranch now, and the residents are fed in a common dining room located in one of the ranch houses.

Worsley said the ranch eventually hopes to add a swimming pool to the gymnasium building. The board is going over priorities now, he said, to determine if the next project should be the swimming pool, which could also be used by the general public, or if a third ranch house to accommodate more boys should be added.

Twelve boys, primarily from southern and southeastern Idaho, live at the ranch now. With the completion of remodeling programs at a second ranch house, about Jan. 15, 24 boys are expected to reside there. All the boys currently at the ranch were referred to the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS), Worsley said. The ranch administration is working closely with DECS, especially in screening and admissions procedures, he said.

Through cooperation with DECS, "we can do a better job," he said, "because they can see our weaknesses and strengths." A liaison between the Twin Falls DECS office and the ranch is expected to improve communication and cooperation.

The ranch has received about 10 requests for private placement of boys, but none have been accepted, Worsley said, although the ranch does plan to accept private placements in the future.

The board of directors adopted a master plan for ranch facilities Dec. 15. The long range plan outlines extensive groundwork as well as living areas, storage buildings, a chapel and a special education building.

Worsley said he is meeting with officials of the Idaho Broadcasting Association next week to develop a special statewide program presenting the ranch and its program to residents. In addition, a public relations firm will be hired to put out a newsletter and press releases "so people know what they're spending their money for," he said.

The board will publish an audit report for the ranch's last fiscal year when it is completed next month. This is the first time the report has been published, Worsley said.

TF firm gets additional fuel

TWIN FALLS — A fuel-starved Twin Falls trucking firm "got through in great shape" last month after a Times-News story described its plight.

Roger Wagner, manager of Wagner Livestock Trucking Co., said in a Times-News story last month his firm would be forced to shut down unless it could get more diesel fuel.

After the story was published, two local dealers called with offers to sell Wagner fuel. He bought 12,000 gallons of diesel and "got through in great shape."

Wagner would not name the dealers. He said his regular fuel supplier, the Phillips-Petroleum Co., did not offer the extra diesel. "I'm in pretty good shape here locally for January," Wagner said.

Diesel fuel prices are still going up, he said, boosting operating costs for the firm's 20 trucks. The fuel has jumped about two cents per gallon throughout the 11-state area traveled by the trucks, according to Wagner.

"Asked if fuel prices could force closure of the firm, Wagner said, "All you do if the price goes up is push it on to the customer."

Wagner's monthly fuel allotment has been cut 30 percent, causing a critical shortage at the end of each period.

Witnesses asked to contact police

TWIN FALLS — Witnesses to a one-car accident on Highway 90 last week's night are requested to contact the state police office, 733 7th, according to State Patrolman George Blackburn, investigating officer. He said the witnesses left before he could talk to them.

Special Minico class scheduled

RUPERT — A special homemaker's decorating class has been scheduled as part of the adult education program at Minico High School.

The class, taught by Mrs. Linda Mayes, will begin today at 7 p.m. at the high school and continue each Thursday for six weeks. An admission fee of $25 will cover the 10 three-hour lessons.

Class instruction will include proper methods of wallpapering and painting, antique and refinishing of furniture, making of draperies and the upholstering of furniture.

Essential basics such as color schemes, furniture arrangement and accenting with accessories such as throw pillows, floral arrangements and wall groupings will also be included.

Mrs. Mayes said she hoped to individualize the class so participants could spend some time working on projects for their own homes. In addition to general class work

"The class is a great opportunity for any individual," she said. "If the enrollment is large enough to warrant it, two classes may be scheduled for the program, Mrs. Mayes said.

Mrs. Mayes has a degree in interior design and has been working in the field for six years. She worked over two years in Calif., over a year for Sears in Twin Falls and has been with the Color Center in Burley for two years.

Burglaries probed

FILER — The second burglary in filer in as many days and one in Buhl were reported this morning by the Twin Falls County sheriff and city police.

Sheriff Paul Corider who assisted Filer officers said the Concord service station in Filer was entered sometime before 1:40 a.m. today. The entry was discovered by a Filer city officer on a routine check of buildings.

A door had been broken into, he said, and the building ransacked but only a few small items and no money taken.

"At the John Deere implement firm in Buhl, a similar break-in was reported and again the building was ransacked and several small items taken."

Buhl city police were also investigating an open door found at another implement firm here, but Sheriff Corider said he had not received a report of a burglary.

Wednesday burglars broke into the Jasper Gas and Oil Co., Filer, and took about $1,023 in cash.

Leave time alone

By a quirk of history, Southern Idaho was placed in the wrong time zone.

Instead of lying at the eastern edge of the Pacific Time Zone, it was declared to be in the Mountain Time Zone.

The mistake had two consequences. First it divided the state into two zones — Mountain Time in the south and Pacific Time in the north. Also it gave southern Idaho an hour less of daylight in the morning and more of daylight in the evenings.

In effect, southern Idaho has always been on Daylight Savings Time.

Then with the introduction of Daylight Saving Time, southern Idaho had what amounted to "Double Daylight-Saving Time," as two hours of sunlight had been taken from the mornings to be given to the evenings.

Now Congress and President Nixon have decided to extend Daylight Saving Time into the winter as a fuel conservation step.

This would put Southern Idaho back into "Double Daylight Saving Time" during the winter where the effects would be most noticed — school children waiting in bus lines in the dark to the dismay of parents, for example.

The legislation is a good idea for most of the country. But for Southern Idaho, where such conservation has always been in practice under double Daylight Time, the legislation is unnecessary for energy savings.

In a normally drawn time zone on standard time there is never more than a half hour discrepancy between "clock time" and "sun time."

A city in the middle of a time zone, for example, would find the sun overhead just at noon. At either edge of the same time zone the sun would be overhead at either 11:30 or 12:30 p.m.

But in the case of Twin Falls, the sun is overhead at approximately 12:38 p.m., showing the city is well into the Pacific Time Zone. The City of Burley would see the sun overhead at about 12:35.

The distortion becomes greater the further west you move in Southern Idaho.

That was with standard time. But look what happens with daylight savings time.

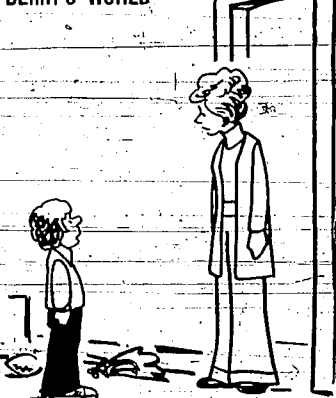

Now the sun would be overhead in Twin Falls at about 1:38 p.m. For those parents worried about their children walking to school in the dark, the sun which rose at about 8:10 a.m. today would have risen at about 9:10 a.m. under Daylight Time. Governor Cecil Andrus was right to ask that Southern Idaho be exempted from Daylight Savings Time during the winter. Federal officials should accept the governor's recommendation.

Calley guilty, but—

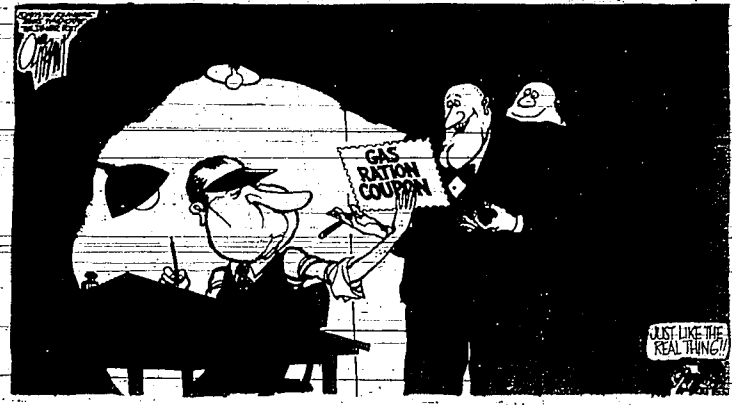

Portland Oregonian
In upholding the conviction and sentencing of Lt. William Calley for the slaughter of civilian men, women and children at My Lai hamlet in Vietnam the U. S. Court of Military Appeals did not get to the point that troubles many Americans.
Calley's guilt is not disputed. What is troublesome is that he, alone, stands convicted of an atrocity that forever stains American history. It is simply incomprehensible to many that superior officers, if not the troops who helped him kill the villagers when they found no enemy soldiers, had no responsibility for the slaughter.

Calley's sentence in 1971 of life imprisonment has been reduced by the U. S. Third Army Commander to 30 years. Calley was confined to quarters at Fort Benning, Ga., rather than prison by order of President Nixon. As commander-in-chief, the President will review the Calley case and decide if the balance of the 30 years should be served. It will be another hard decision for a President who has had many such decisions, and who will be criticized if he lets the sentence stand or if he reduces or commutes the sentence.

Big Brother lays hand on medicine

WASHINGTON — The practice of medicine in the United States enters a new and ominous phase this week, as Big Brother lays his clammy hand upon physicians across the country.

Henceforth, doctors treating patients under Medicare and Medicaid must submit themselves to professional standards review organizations. The doctors have every right to be concerned at the prospect and their patients should be concerned as well.

Such concepts as "professional standards" and "professional review" of course are not new. Every doctor, before he begins his practice, has to pass a "board" of medical examiners. For gross mistakes, he is subject to suit for malpractice. His license to practice can be revoked. No doctor operates with untrammeled freedom.

The PSRO's involve a new form of regulation and supervision that is different not merely in degree, but in kind. These organizations, for all practical purposes, are agencies of the federal bureaucracy. To be sure, they will be composed of local physicians, but they will be funded by Federal funds and they will be staffed by Federal civil servants.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Under the law, each of the local PSRO's "shall apply professionally developed norms of care, diagnosis, and treatment, based upon typical patterns of practice in its regions." Long as a doctor stays within these "norms," he stays out of trouble; but if his PSRO disapproves one of his medical decisions, no funds appropriated under Medicare or Medicaid may be disbursed for payment of the particular claim.

The plan is subject to criticism at the outset merely in terms of the paperwork. It must entail, as the Wall Street Journal has observed, the doctor who submits to this smothering regulation will have little time left for his patients. The temptation, in any doubtful case, will be to abide by the omnipresent "norm" in order clear of innovation, to go strictly by the book.

Granted, the controversy has two sides. Medicaid and Medicare constitute a $17 billion drain upon the taxpayers every year. The people have a right to insist on some accountability.

The protesting doctors who have been flooding me with letters of anguish may be suffering a Chicken Little syndrome. Many of them tend to be somewhat hypochondriacs anyway. The system may not be as bad as they apprehend.

But my own observations of the bureaucratic virus persuade me that the PSRO plan is a wasting disease, insidious and destructive, demanding and grading. And sad to say, the bureaucratic disease is easy enough to diagnose, but almost impossible to cure.

And he thought no one cared . . .

WASHINGTON — Grizzled 1973 was putting things in his suitcase as young 1974 stood nervously in the bedroom.

"Well," said old '73, as he stuffed a few more White House tapes into his bag, "that seems to be about it. The place is all yours. Here are the keys to the house—Oh, by the way, keep the thermostat down to 68 or you may run out of oil by March. You may run out anyway. I don't know what happened. When I moved in everything was great, then in October the bottom fell out, and we have a worldwide energy crisis. 1974 didn't say a word to me about it."

"Yes sir," said 1974.

"Now," said old '73, "here are the keys to the car. You can drive only 55 miles an hour and you're supposed to put only 10 gallons of gas in your tank a week."

"Thank you, sir," said '74, "but I don't drink."

Old '73 poured a double shot and drank it down neat. "You will before the month is out," he said. "If you don't drink you'll really go off your rags."

Old '73 poured himself another double shot. "Yeah, well, anyhow you can expect a lot of shortages. There'll be worldwide unemployment and an unusual inflation. And to President of the United States."

"Well, suppose I told you I'm leaving you a little ole war in the Middle East to give, and if you don't, it could mean high noon for the Kuzbass mines in Siberia."

"I'm certain sane minds will prevail," '74 said.

Old '73 opened another bottle. "Boy, I must say you're a cool one. I like your style. Maybe we can get together sometime and you can let me know how you did."

"I'd like that, sir," '74 said. "Can I help you with your bag?"

"That would be mighty nice of you."

"Okay, sir. Just hold on to my arm."

As they walked outside they saw a cheering crowd, and a band began playing "Auld Lang Syne." Tears welled in old '73's eyes. "I'll be," he said, "all choked up. I don't think anyone cared."

Crisis has good side

With the gasoline crisis upon us, probably some of us will have the opportunity to enjoy a "free" living — and by enjoyment I mean reading the things we want to read and listening to the things we want to listen to.

Most of us read many things — but much of this is because our occupation demands it and it is sometimes things in which we are not really interested. Also, we listen to many things — complaints, speeches, music and the like — forced upon us.

Well, with a lack of gas the possibility would appear to be favorable to missing "a lot" of meetings and such and staying home evenings.

Personally, Mr. Spectator was scanning his bookshelf the other day and noted things like Classical Greece, The Hidden Northwest, The Mountain States of America, The Cowboys, Russia, Turkey, India, two books on the Civil War which had been purchased, put on the shelf and never read.

Then for listening pleasure — things like records we haven't heard for years although we own a fine class stereo. Albums like Pops Festival, Sousa Marches, The Best of Bing Crosby, James Melton by Request, selections by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir, Burl Ives, Ted Lewis, The Mills Brothers, Al Jolson.

And magazines? Scores of National Geographic we put on the shelf after just looking at the pictures.

So, like we said, gas rationing might have a good side. You could read and listen to things of your own selection.

GAS COUPONS
If they go to gasoline coupons it will be the people with money to spare who will "feel no pain."

ART BUCHWALD

"I'll do the best I can with what I've got," '74 said.

Old '73 looked at '74 quizzically. "I'm sure you will. Care to go for a drink?"

MR. SPECTATOR

THOSE MISSILES
If we ever get into a fight with Russia we might wish we had test fired those Minuteman Missiles. Even if they do cross Idaho, the turmoil being raised reminds us of the conservationist turmoil prior to the energy crisis. Could be we would be missing the boat for the second time in a row.

THOSTESON Examination necessity

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had hemorrhoids removed 10 years ago, and had no trouble until recently. My stool is small and movement is painful.

Someone said I could have fissures. What is the difference between fissures and adhesions? What could be done for them and would they have to operate? Would they have to look inside with that light? — Mrs. H. R.

A rectal fissure is a split in the membrane. It can be painful; it can cause muscle spasm, become infected and cause bleeding. So fissures are a possible explanation of your trouble, but not the only one.

Adhesions are scar tissue. This usually forms shortly after the operation, not 10 years later, although I can't arbitrarily rule out adhesions as being at the root of your trouble.

In either case, you need to be examined (with that light!) to find out with certainty what the trouble is.

If a fissure is present, an operation usually is necessary, else the trouble will keep on and become worse. If the answer is adhesions, dilation may be all that is necessary. But it is essential that you find out what is wrong.

Clear-cut advantage Red goal

WASHINGTON — The muscular Soviet military posture during the Middle East war and disturbing trends in comparative U.S.-Soviet defense spending leads senior officers in the Pentagon to this alarming forecast: a Kremlin-with-clear military superiority will begin maximum world pressure as early as 1977.

U. S. intelligence analysts show Moscow spending twice as much as Washington on military research and development and Washington spending twice as much as Moscow on military pay.

Going beyond the usual Pentagon rationale for higher defense spending, this assessment represents deep-seated concern for the future by senior officers. In particular, they believe Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger overlooks the danger of degrading U.S. strength in comparison with the Russians.

EVANS & NOVAK

That decline is pointed up in the U.S. intelligence consensus regarding U.S.-Soviet defense spending. Research and development now account for 25 per cent of the Soviet defense budget, compared with 12 per cent for the U.S.

In contrast, inexorable salary demands of the all-volunteer U.S. armed services mean that manpower alone costs the U.S. 57 per cent of the defense budget, compared with 25 per cent by the Soviets.

These deadly statistics convince high U.S. officers that a long-term concept must be replaced by a revised draft. The chairman of the Armed Services Committees in Congress, Sen. John F. Stennis of Mississippi and Rep. V. Edward Hebert of Louisiana, agree. But they have privately informed the Pentagon that Congress would not act on a new draft-law earlier than 1977. And 1977 is the year U.S. officers see the Soviets achieving conventional superiority.

The question remains what the Kremlin will do with that superiority. The Pentagon has noted with interest a newsletter published by The Economist of London. According to the newsletter:

"Essentially, the East Europeans were told that the Soviet Union aimed in the next 12 to 15 years to devote all its resources (a) to pursuing detente with the West, and (b) to building up its own strength, militarily and economically. At the end of this period — roughly in the middle ear 1980 — the total strength of the Soviet and East European bloc would have increased to such an extent that it would be able to gain the upper hand in its relationship with the West."

High U.S. officers confirm this account's accuracy but predict the "upper hand" stage will be closer to 1977 than 1980.

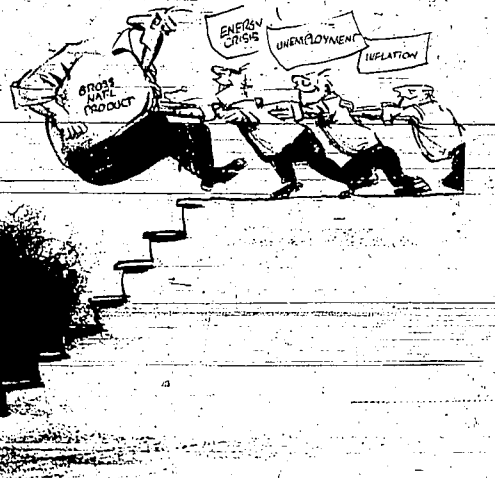

Kremlinologists outside the Pentagon always accuse the U.S. military of accepting the worst possible hypothesis of Soviet intentions, neglecting Moscow's desperate need for Western computer technology and fear of U.S.-China detente. Nevertheless, these experts now believe the Pentagon's fears should be taken more into account by Dr. Kissinger.

This view is held by a distinguished Kremlinologist, Prof. Zbignew Brzezinski of Columbia. Moscow, he said, during a Dec. 7 seminar at the Brookings Institution, continues to "seek a warfare capability to become assured of victory and to have an edge in crisis situations." Hence, the U.S.-USSR missile defense spending to retain superiority.

More important, was this recommendation: Kissinger should participate more actively in drafting the defense budget. To that suggestion from the Columbia professor, the brass in the Pentagon whispers amen.

IRS rechecking Nixon income tax returns

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON—The Internal Revenue Service said Wednesday it was "re-examining" President Nixon's tax returns, but would not say which ones.

Ordinarily, the IRA does not disclose that it is auditing, or re-auditing, any individual, unless a court case develops out of a dispute between the taxpayer and the agency.

In this instance, however, the agency was authorized by Nixon to announce that the examination was being made. The person who transmitted the authorization was Kenneth A. Gemmill, a private tax lawyer from Philadelphia, who worked on Nixon's detailed financial statements that were made public last month.

Internal Revenue officials refused to discuss most aspects of the re-examination. The reason, according to Burke W. Wilsey, assistant to Internal Revenue Commissioner Donald C. Alexander, is "because we want to keep this case as much like an ordinary case as possible."

He said he interpreted Gemmill's authorization in that the agency could announce to more than the simple fact that some of Nixon's returns were being audited a second time.

Ordinarily, when the IRS re-examines a return that has already been audited, it looks only at the years previously audited, or any more recent returns that have been filed.

If that is the procedure followed this time, Nixon's returns for 1970, 1971 and 1972 would be examined. His returns for 1970 and 1971 were audited in May, 1973, in a procedure that consumed only eight days, from start to finish, an unusually brief time.

IRS refused to detail what its re-examination would involve, but answered the key question of whether Nixon's tax return for 1969 would be looked at. That was the year in which he claimed to have made a gift to the National Archives of vice presidential papers valued at $367,000. Whether the gift was actually made before July 25, 1969, the effective date of a statutory change prohibiting tax deductions for such gifts, is in dispute.

Other items in Nixon's tax returns that have aroused controversy include his failure to report what his own auditors believe was a taxable capital gain on the sale of some land in San Clemente, Calif. In 1970, questions have also been raised about the deductions Nixon has taken for his Key Biscayne, Fla., and San Clemente residences as offices.

Nixon, in December, asked the Congressional joint committee on Internal Revenue taxation to decide whether his actions had been proper with respect to the deduction for the papers and the land sale. The President said he would pay delinquent taxes the committee decided he owed.

The committee, decided it would not limit itself to the two items specified by the President, but would examine all of Nixon's returns.

Nixon's tax returns for the first four years of his presidency.

FDA slates heart aid drug check

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON—The Food and Drug Administration is planning to require a batch-by-batch certification of the heart drug Dioxin because some samples have failed to meet acceptable standards in the rate at which the drug dissolves.

Dioxin, which helps the failing heart beat more forcefully, is used by an estimated 3.5 million Americans a year. Since 1971, scientists have known that some Dioxin pills are less effective than others even though they meet federal standards for physical and chemical characteristics including potency.

The drug agency's planned new requirement is an attempt to correct that situation and insure that those who use the drug will get a uniformly effective product.

Rail branch line abandonment measure drafted for Congress

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The administration has drafted legislation that would allow railroads to abandon, almost automatically, unprofitable branch lines—estimated at more than 10 per cent of all U.S. rail mileage.

The legislation also would provide $2 billion in loan guarantees to upgrade rail track, stations and freight cars on profitable lines, and an additional $35 million in grants to establish a nationwide computer system to keep track of freight cars.

The provisions are contained in an omnibus bill, to be submitted to Congress shortly. It would relax government regulation of rail abandonment and rates, prohibit discriminatory state and local taxation of abandonment of any line which was not producing sufficient revenue to cover long-run operating costs.

States and local governments would be allowed to keep such a line running by subsidizing it, and any other railroad or qualified individual would be allowed to buy the line to keep it running.

The Federal Railroad Administration estimates that approximately 21,000 miles of the present 235,000 route miles of U.S. railroads lose money for the railroad that operates them. However, this mileage accounts for less than one per cent of total rail freight, and the FRA says this rate can be more efficiently handled by truck.

The legislation also:

- Would allow railroads, in most cases, to lower rates automatically as a part of the rate for a particular product does not fall below the cost of hauling that product. The ICC has been criticized for keeping rail rates artificially high.
- Would prohibit discriminatory taxation by state and local governments after three years. The FRA estimates railroads lose $55 million annually because of artificially high taxes.
- Would overhaul government criteria for figuring railroad revenue and losses.
- Would require government agencies to pay the same rate as private shippers except in acute times. The government now negotiates lower rates for its rail traffic.

E. HOWARD HUNT awaits appeal

Spending soars in new budget

(c) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON—President Nixon's new budget is going to project spending above $300 billion for the year ending June 30, according to budget director Roy L. Ash.

This apparently will produce a federal deficit in the range of $10 billion, or less, in 1974, a red-ink spending of $3 billion to $4 billion for the year ending June 30.

Ash said the President was not concerned about federal spending surpassing the psychological barrier of $300 billion, unlike the late Lyndon B. Johnson who presented a budget just under $100 billion a decade ago.

"The President gave me very explicit instructions," Ash said in an interview, quoting Nixon as saying: "Don't try to cut it to $299 (billion) to make it look like a bargain basement budget."

The President proposed spending of $288.7 billion a year ago. The $300 billion level was projected in 1971.

Actually, the new budget may go several billion dollars beyond the three-century mark.

Ash said U. S. outlays will amount to nearly $274 billion in the current fiscal year but revenues, increased far beyond last year's estimates because of inflation, probably will be "just short of $270 billion."

Congress, according to Ash, made a net addition of $3.6 billion to spending beyond the $270 billion requests, thus accounting for most of the anticipated deficit.

"We would have liked to have had the line on spending held a bit more," Ash said, but that is not the entire story of what Congress did.

The impact of Congressional spending actions that Nixon did not request, Ash said, will add $10 billion to 1974 spending, also about the size of the anticipated deficit in the new budget.

"Two Social Security benefits are expected to reach $36 billion, about $5.7 billion above the outlays for the current year, Ash said it would take $5 billion or so just to stay even and absorb higher pay and higher prices.

Buggers awaiting rulings

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON—E. Howard Hunt Jr., looking frail and wan after serving more than 10 months in a federal prison for his part in the Watergate bugging conspiracy, was released without bail Wednesday to await a decision on his appeal of his conviction.

The former Central Intelligence Agency operative who pleaded guilty a year ago to helping plan the bugging of the Democratic Party headquarters here, was ordered freed last Friday by a United States appeals court pending action on his request that his plea be withdrawn and the case against him be dismissed.

Hunt, accompanied by two federal marshals, began a four-hour drive to Washington from the federal prison camp at Alderson, Pa., Bernard L. Barker, the second of the seven original Watergate conspirators freed temporarily by the court, was taken from custody at Eglin Air Force Base near Miami and flown to Washington.

Barker, the admitted leader of the break-in team that was arrested inside the Watergate complex by police on June 17, 1972, will be processed and released today, court officials said. He had previously asked the United States Court of Appeals to permit him to change his plea from guilty to not guilty and to grant him a new trial.

Like Hunt, Barker will be freed on his own recognizance and without bail, Hunt, who was accused of having recruited Barker, whom he knew from his days as a CIA agent, as a participant in the Watergate burglary, was sentenced in November to 30 months to eight years in prison and fined $10,000. Barker was sentenced to 18 months to six years in prison and not fined.

Trial postponed

NEW YORK (UPI)—Emphasizing "this is the last false start we are going to have in this case," a federal judge agreed to postpone for the third time Wednesday the obstruction of justice trial of former Cabinet officers John Mitchell and Maurice Stans.

U. S. District Court Judge Lee P. Gagliardi, who will preside at the trial, granted the motion for a delay on behalf of Mitchell's lawyer, Peter Fleming, who is engaged in a major stock fraud trial in Oklahoma City.

Without setting an actual trial date, Gagliardi said the proceeding would begin within two or three days of the Oklahoma case, which a representative of Fleming's law firm estimated would go to a jury around Feb. 15.

The Mitchell-Stans trial had been scheduled to begin next Wednesday. Gagliardi now has granted the defense three delays for the trial, which first was scheduled to begin early last September.

"This is the last false start we are going to have in this case," Gagliardi said.

Mitchell, the former attorney general, and Stans, the former commerce secretary, have been accused of attempting to influence Senators and Exchange Commission investigation of New Jersey financier Robert L. Vesco in exchange for a $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 reelection campaign.

Vote denial hit

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The American Bar Association (ABA) has urged the Supreme Court to strike down state laws which deny the vote to discharged ex-felons.

Giving its views in a friend-of-the-court brief on a case from California, the ABA said: "There is broad recognition today of the desirability of restoring rehabilitated offenders to the normal rights and privileges of citizens."

Police searched the countryside for Sunzato Randazzo, 36, who they said did most of the shooting to avenge the New Year's day death of two of his brothers and the wounding of another two.

Driver cleared

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (UPI)—An Alabama truck driver who underwent a lie detector test Wednesday was declared innocent of any role in the deaths of two young women hitchhikers from California, but was charged with leaving the scene of an accident.

Clauzel Durth of Grove Hill, Ala., told police the two jumped into his truck cab for no apparent reason as it sped along Interstate 65 Friday night.

"I've just served Mr. Durth with a warrant charging him with leaving the scene of an accident," Williamson County Sheriff Fleming Williams said. "The man is telling the truth, and he passed a polygraph test (Wednesday)."

Arias fills cabinet

MADRID (UPI)—Prime Minister Carlos Arias today completed the new Spanish cabinet, cutting down on the changes he originally considered, sources close to the government said.

The sources said key ministers remaining in their jobs included Vice Premier Torcuato Fernandez-Miranda, and Foreign Minister Laureano Lopez Rodriguez.

Defense funds OK'd

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon, without comment, has signed a $7.3 billion 1974 defense appropriation bill, accepting a cut of $35 million from the amount he originally asked Congress to approve.

When he first submitted his $7.25 billion defense request, Nixon said not another penny could be cut from military spending without endangering the national security.

The bill, nearly $2 billion less than Congress voted in 1973, provides the funds for military pay, operations, weapons procurement, and research and development in the fiscal year ending June 30.

Among more prominent items funded by the bill were:

- The Fifty Navy F14 Tomcat jets at $650 million.
- 62 Air Force F15 Eagle jets at $762 million.

Services set for Nashville star

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Singing cowboy Tex Ritter, whose recording of "High Noon" became a Western classic, died of a heart attack Wednesday night while visiting a friend in the Davidson County jail.

A veteran of 65 movies, 78 of them Westerns, and a singing career that touched six decades, Ritter, 67, was visiting Lamar "Jack" Watkins, apparently an employee, when he was stricken. He died at a hospital a short time later.

"He was sitting here laughing and talking about getting this man out on bond and all of a sudden he just slipped out of his chair," said Police Lt. John Brewer.

Services were scheduled Friday at the First Presbyterian Church with burial Monday in Nederland, Tex.

"He was a giant in the industry and we will certainly miss him," said fellow singer Ray Acuff.

Ritter, who got his professional start singing on a Houston, Tex., radio station in 1929, was active until his death.

He was prosperous in his later years, continuing his career and launching a chain of restaurants. In 1970, he unsuccessfully challenged Sen. Bill Brock for the Republican senatorial nomination from Tennessee.

Last month he visited the White House and presented President Nixon with a tribute album from the Country Music Association in which he read portions of Nixon's speeches.

Ritter was one of the original six members of the Country Music Hall of Fame, highest honor in the industry, and was a past president of the Country Music Association.

His biggest record was the Gary Cooper Western "High Noon."

Ritter was born Maurice Woodward Ritter in Panola County, Tex., Jan. 17, 1906. His father raised cotton and cattle

He enrolled in the University of Texas as a law major in the early '20s and used his knowledge of Texas folklore by staging a show called "The Texas Cowboy and His Songs."

He began touring and landed in Chicago where he enrolled for a while in Northwestern University.

He moved on to New York for a try of radio. As a writer and performer he had a part in the original Lone Ranger series. He performed on such radio shows in the 1930s as Death Valley Days, Tex Ritter's Campfire and Cowboy Tom's Roundup.

He moved west to Hollywood in 1937 to become one of the most "active" performers in movie Westerns of the 1940s and 1950s.

Golda attempts new coalition

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Prime Minister Golda Meir's Labor party made preliminary soundings today to form a new coalition government with two minor partners in the old administration.

With final talks in Monday's parliamentary election still being counted, analysts gave the Labor party a chance to salvage at least one of six seats lost in projected results.

Party Secretary General Aaron Yadin said Wednesday he was holding conversations with leaders of the National Religious Party and Independent Liberals before formal negotiations on a new coalition.

Both parties were at odds with Mrs. Meir over Israeli bargaining terms at the Geneva peace conference. They were seeking a stronger stand in the talks, fearing Mrs. Meir's might make too many concessions to the Arabs.

"It is possible to maintain a government on the present status quo, on the basis of the present government's principles, and we will try to convince the honorable representatives of the National Religious Party to return and set up a government along present guidelines," Yadin said.

Leaders of the NRP said, however, the party would insist on efforts to bring members of the hawkish Likud bloc, which came in second in the election, into the government.

Labor officials have opposed letting Likud into the government because of the bloc's hardline stand against territorial concessions at the Middle East peace settlement.

"I'm afraid we'll have to pay a price to the National Religious Party," said Labor spokesman Yoram Peri. "The negotiations to form a coalition will take some weeks, but they won't affect the military talks at Geneva."

A provision in a summary of the election results gave a 39.8 per cent share to Labor, against 28.5 per cent for Likud. The analysts said the large military vote, which was expected to be counted by Sunday, could raise Labor's representation in parliament to 52 and reduce Likud's, estimated 38-seat win.

Pentagon wins 'fuel' battle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon has won a bureaucratic battle with the Federal Energy Office, removing energy chief William E. Simon from full control over military fuel allocations.

The energy office's draft rules issued Tuesday said the Pentagon's desires for fuel should be submitted to the administrator of the Federal Energy Office on a quarterly basis and may take effect only following his approval thereof.

The Pentagon didn't like that because Simon was diverting military fuel to the civilian airlines. It also caused one of those mighty clashes in which federal bureaus seek to keep other federal bureaus from meddling on their turf.

The result was a significant change in the final regulations printed Wednesday in the Federal Register, which said the Pentagon's desires should be submitted to the President on a quarterly basis. The President was substituted for Simon.

Just before Christmas the Pentagon and Simon met head on when Simon ordered 1.5 million barrels of the military's jet fuel diverted to U.S. airlines during international crises. Simon said this would cause military stocks to fall only to 5 per cent short of their end-of-January requirements.

In a rare break with the normal public decorum draped over bureaucratic battles, the Pentagon squawked publicly. Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Freidheim complained that Simon never contacted the defense Department before making his decision and said the military stocks were already 30 per cent short and would be even worse off with Simon's diversion.

Broadcast rights set

(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Soviet listeners of the United States-sponsored Radio Liberty are due to hear broadcasts of the entire text of Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn's new book on the Soviet prison camp system.

Radio Liberty, which is based in Munich, West Germany, reportedly acquired the broadcast rights for the book, "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956," last Friday in Paris.

"We will begin transmitting the full text as soon as the book reaches our Munich editors, probably tomorrow," a New York spokesman for the station said today in a telephone interview.

He said that the 600-page work would be broadcast in installments in Russian and 17 other languages of the Soviet Union from Radio Liberty's short-wave transmitters in Spain.

Radio Liberty's broadcasts are heavily jammed, but its officials say they are certain of reaching the bulk of their Soviet audiences. Some of their short-wave transmissions, they said, are made during periods around twilight when jamming mechanisms fail.

Soviets ridicule contents of book

(c) N. Y. Times Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union today ridiculed Aleksandr I. Solzhenitsyn's newly published expose of the Soviet prison system as a "blanket slander" of the Soviet people "born of the author's 'impotent rage' against the Communist achievements of the Soviet Union."

In the first authoritative Soviet comment on Solzhenitsyn's work, "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1956," published last Friday in Paris, the official Soviet press agency Tass gave no hint of what actions might be taken against either the author or the book's foreign publishers.

But it attacked a number of newspapers, including the New York Times, that had printed segments of the work. Tass said Solzhenitsyn had furnished them with a new chance to try "to accuse the Soviet reality the ulcers and deformities inherent in capitalism."

The Tass commentary, cited in this evening's Russian and only hours later in foreign-language services of the Soviet agency, appeared to be only the first quick rebuttal by the Soviet authorities to try to soften the broad impact of Solzhenitsyn's book. It was issued too late to appear in any Soviet newspaper's today.

Tass did not try to answer the substance of his charges or deal directly with his call for those responsible for repressive excesses in the Stalinist era to be brought to trial, except to assert that these were "old themes" warmed over.

Soviet ridiculed Solzhenitsyn as an egotist who turned his back on his own people like Herodotus — the ancient Greek who burned down the Temple of Diana in Ephesus to gain personal fame — and dismissed western publishers of the book as people bent on "whipping up" anti-Soviet hysteria.

The commentary suggested that Soviet authorities had been especially stung by comparisons, in part of direct, between Stalinist Russia and Hitlerite Germany, made by Solzhenitsyn. It charged that in this "Solzhenitsyn went farther than before."

DST old controversy

(c) Chicago Daily News
 On Sunday, America will set its clock ahead an hour and keep it there for two years. It will be the first year-round Daylight Saving Time in the United States in 28 years and the first time ever in peace.
 The theory is we'll use evening-sunlight—better—and save ounces of oil.
 Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., estimates the savings at two per cent of our electrical output, equivalent to 30,000 barrels of oil a day. But feel free to grumble if you don't like it. Daylight Saving Time has been bitterly controversial from the beginning—and no wonder, since it's essentially a device to convert everybody out of bed an hour earlier.
 Although old Benjamin Franklin toyed around with the idea in the 18th century, the first man to campaign seriously for Daylight Saving Time was William Willett, who got England into an uproar over it as early as 1909.
 Willett wanted to move clocks ahead an hour for 20 minutes, but gradually, by doing it 20 minutes at a time on four consecutive Sundays. The whole idea was ridiculous and would make as much sense as trying to save fuel by setting thermometers ahead two degrees, one opponent scoffed.

 Willett died in 1915, apparently a failure, but one year later, World War I pushed England into trying his energy-saving idea for the duration. In 1916, Robert Garland of Pittsburgh talked the United States and Congress into adopting Daylight Saving Time. It went into effect in 1917 and was repealed in 1919. In the face of massive opposition from farmers, who said they and the cows lived by the sun anyhow.
 The idea had few backers until 1935, when the Chicago City Council voted to put the city not merely on summer Daylight Saving Time, but permanently in the Eastern Standard Time zone—the equivalent of Daylight Saving Time.
 Folks were outraged all the way to New York City. An editorial in the New York Herald Tribune noted with annoyance the argument of Chicago's corporation counsel for the change.

 "In this world of airplane, radio, of wireless photography and of the speeding automobile," Chicago's spokesman had argued, "minutes are precious not only to individuals—but to communities. Chicago sees no reason why she should continue to make the sacrifice of operating on a clock that is set back. Rather, Chicago believes she is entitled not only to her own time but to even faster time—a time in keeping with the swift tempo of the new Chicago, with the new world."
 "There you have it," sneered the Herald Tribune. "The sun gets to Chicago an hour late. It has no conception of progress. Chicago will have no further truck with its leisurely, archaic habits."
 Opposition was also stiff in Chicago. Circuit Court Judge Nicholas Bohling recalls that then Ald. Roy Olin got a phone call one 4 a.m. from a citizen who demanded, "Well, how do you like getting up in the dark?" Olin was especially irked because he had voted against the bill.

 In 1936, Chicagoans in a referendum approved a scaled-down summer Daylight Saving Time proposition by 2 to 1.
 When World War II brought another fuel crisis, the whole country again adopted year-round Daylight Saving Time for the duration, plus six months.
 The war ended in 1945, and the public turned with relief to arguing trivialities, including whether to keep summer Daylight Saving Time.
 The battles for and against were carried out—by referendum—Village-by-village, town by town, until in 1952, 5 out of 14 Americans were on Daylight Saving Time. In 1961 50.7 per cent of the country was forsaking "God's time," as opponents put it.
 Oblivious to all the argument, of course, has been the sun, whose rays creep around the globe in the same unceasing pattern.
 As the world turns, the National Geographic Society explains, a human-being will first see the sunrise one second later for every 1,470 feet farther west he stands.

This rooster really is blue

SPROUTON, England (UPI)—Charlie the rooster has a problem, but doesn't seem too concerned about it.
 He used to be white, but recently he turned blue. Charlie's owner, pub landlord Alan Piper, 37, said he was mystified. Two veterinarians have failed to explain the phenomenon. "I shall wait a few days. Then, if he's still blue, I'm going to take it up with the experts," said Piper.

Scientists study windmill power

(c) Newhouse News Service
 CORVALLIS, Ore.—Oregon State University scientists plan to place instruments atop a 3,000-foot hill in the Columbia River Gorge to find a likely spot for a "wind farm."
 The wind farm would consist of several thousand large windmills created where strong and steady winds blow. They could "make a dent" in the power shortage problem, says Dr. E. Wendell Hewson, director of the OSU Department of Atmospheric Sciences.
 Windmills could be placed on land or anchored to artificial islands several miles offshore. The OSU team is looking for spots where winds average 15 to 19 knots throughout the year. Instruments will be placed opposite The Dalles, in Washington, on a site near a radio antenna so maintenance and access will be easy, Hewson says.
 He foresees a future farm of generators driven by the wind instead of scarce fossil fuels or water power as in the northwest.
 A prototype windmill is still in the "far future" in the northwest because "small utilities that thus far are funding the research can't afford the several million dollars that a first model will cost, Hewson believes.
 He says OSU will seek federal funds from the National Science Foundation, which plans to ask for wind farm proposals from institutions such as OSU.
 Typical windmills would have blades 100-feet in diameter, according to Hewson.
 "And a lot of it depends on how the federal government decides to go," he says.
 Funding from the federal government comes under solar energy research, because winds are created by energy by the sun.

Nixon may announce health insurance plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A comprehensive new plan that will aim at removing "all of the barriers that stand in the path of quality health care" may be announced in President Nixon's State of the Union message, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said Wednesday.
 Weinberger said the new health insurance program may even be announced earlier. Tentative HEW versions of the program would establish a minimum annual payment for medical care, say $150, and medical expenses over that figure would be subsidized by the health plan. The program would pay all medical costs above an upper limit of about $150.
 Weinberger explained that the new system would provide that employers and the self-employed be required to offer health insurance to employees. The coverage would be obtained from the private insurance companies.

Home sweet home largest energy burner Jamboree set

NEW YORK (UPI)—Home sweet home is an energy burner of major proportions. Experts say that one fifth of the nation's total energy is used in the household. Some 60 percent of a family's energy budget goes into heating in winter, cooling in summer cooking and refrigeration. The rest is used in drying clothes, lighting and operation of various appliances.

Ski buffs, hear this now: Do not wear sunglasses on the slopes for looks alone. For eye health, comfort and safety, professionally approved sun specs meet these standards:

Lenses: That reduce the intensity of the sun's burning rays; through polarization or reflection, or a combination of the two. That are ground to be free of imperfections. That are tinted to deflect glare with the least distortion of colors in nature and the perception thereof. That have safety features.

As regards safety features, heat-treated glass lenses are impact resistant. Plastic lenses resist shattering and fog and are very light weight. Both types of sun lens can be prescribed ground and should be if you wear prescription glasses.

Frames, their color and shape, strongly influence your selection of course, but a proper lens is the first consideration. There are just a few rules about frames: They should be large enough to provide ample protection and wide vision; fit snugly but not touch the eye area — the lashes for instance. To check the technical aspects, rely on the expert maker of your glasses.

The frame colors and shapes that flatter tell a fashion story and tickle your taste — well, you're the arbiter extraordinary.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I don't know if you have ever come across a problem like this, but here goes: Is it a sin for a Catholic to have a strong desire for a priest? I must know if I have to confess my feelings to a priest in the confessional before I am able to take communion again.

ATTRACTED

DEAR ATTRACTED: It is not a sin for any person to have a strong desire for a person of the opposite sex. God made us, man and woman, as we are. To be attracted to another person who cannot, because of marriage or ordination vows, respond, is not a sin. But to act upon it, with deliberate intention of making another violate his (or her) vow of celibacy or marriage is a sin.

Desire not sin

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful husband. No woman could ask for more in a man. But he has one habit which I am convinced is a handicap in his line of work. (He's a real estate salesman for a highly reputable company.)

With every pause in the conversation with clients, he gives out with a very forced laugh, the nothing has been said to justify this "laughter."

I have pointed out to him as gently as possible that his phony laugh makes him appear insincere, and I've even told him that I have observed the facial expression on the "people he writes and they register surprise, wariness and even contempt, but it doesn't seem to faze him.

Abby, I don't want the man I love to come over like an insincere phony, because he's not, but if I didn't know him personally, I wouldn't buy a thing from him.

Nervous habit or not, perhaps if you print this, it might help.

CONCERNED IN CALIF.

DEAR CONCERNED: Your mentioning the possibility that your husband's forced laugh could be a "nervous habit" shows you to be on target. Habits are acquired, and can be broken with proper motivation. Was your husband's "laugh" it a handicap, he'll do something about it. Don't nag him. You've made your point, and it's a good one.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 29-year-old woman (closer to 30 than I care to think about) with a problem I've had for years. I have an overbite which has always made me self-conscious.

After talking to my dentist I now must make a choice. Either I must have my two front teeth removed and a bridge installed, or I'll have to wear braces for two years to correct this overbite. What should I do?

ON THE FENCE

DEAR ON: I'd go with the braces. Pulling teeth is an irreversible decision. If you choose the braces, and decide on the bridge later you can always do it, but once you have an extraction, that's final!

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Business and Professional Women's Club is sponsoring the young career girl program for the Twin Falls area this year.

The program is open to young career women between 21 and 28 years of age with at least one year of full time work experience in her career field. Those interested in applying must be employed in business or a profession, outstanding in scholastic work, community service or church work and living, working, training or continuing education in the area.

The girl selected to represent the area will compete at the district level where she will present a talk, complete an application form and submit a picture. District winners will compete in the statewide contest. The state winner will speak at the banquet during the state convention and will receive a gift and a lot of publicity.

All Twin Falls businesses should be notified of the contest by Jan. 15, according to Bonnie Barker, local contest chairman. She said businesses interested in entering an employee may contact her at 733-2887 to obtain application forms. Forms are also available from Frances Buhler, president of the organization, who may be contacted at 733-9221.

Mrs. Barker said the local, young career woman selection will be made at a March 18 dinner meeting. Contestants are expected to attend that meeting. They will be interviewed by three judges and each girl will give a talk on "My Career."

Riding — a bike to save gasoline? Dress warmly in cold weather. Heavy socks. Gloves must allow good finger motion and sure grip. Other warning tips for the bike rider who must pedal when it's cold: — Ski gear works well. A lightweight, insulated jacket is dandy. — Keep a ski face mask handy for those downhill treks when the frigid weather tugs on you and wind's a-blowin'.

— Make sure the pantlegs are tucked in socks or otherwise held tightly in the ankle area. — The wind does not blow thru in the direction of the chain sprockets. — Earfluffs are good. But a woolen cap that pulls down over the ears probably is more suitable.

Operator obeys order

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sam McBride, who won the dubious distinction of being the nation's first gasoline service operator suspended for price gouging, apparently decided to obey a court order and kept his pumps closed Wednesday.

McBride, who also is a Chicago policeman, said Monday he would disobey the court order because President Nixon acted "similarly in events stemming from the Watergate scandal.

Today was a different story. Telephones in McBride's station and home rang but no one answered. Neighbors said McBride's station was empty, devoid of cars and people.

"If the man in the highest office of the land can ignore a court order, I can too," McBride said earlier in a reference to Nixon. "I'm the same as the President. He didn't do anything wrong. I say I didn't do anything wrong. I say I'm not going to close up my station."

McBride's station was ordered closed Sunday night after Internal Revenue Service agents found the station involved in devious schemes to lure motorists to his pumps.

IRS agents investigating complaints involving McBride's Action Super Shell Station in the South Side found the station charging $10 for legal form and a rabbit's foot. The purchaser of the items was entitled to five "free" gallons of gasoline, the IRS said. McBride maintained he was giving away gasoline, not selling it.

The temporary closing order against McBride's station runs for 10 days, the IRS said, but could be terminated sooner if McBride complies with the agency's order to turn in his records and roll back his prices.

The IRS said McBride faced court action Jan. 9 unless he turns in the records. He also could be held in contempt of court and face a possible fine of $2,500 a day if he opened in defiance of the court order, the IRS said.

Youth leaves guitar to mankind

NEW YORK (UPI) — A youth got up from his seat in a subway car New Year's day, placed a guitar case on the floor, and announced: "I'm leaving this behind for mankind."

He then left the car and disappeared into the station.

Suspicious passengers informed transit authorities, who in turn contacted the emergency service of the Police Department.

Police officers took the case away and opened it inside was a guitar.

Woman to resign from jury

DETROIT (UPI) — Marion Crawford is beginning to wonder if a contempt of court charge isn't a better fate than what she currently has been suffering.

Mrs. Crawford says she plans to resign from the Wayne County Citizens grand jury before things get any worse.

Mrs. Crawford has been a member of the grand jury since the end of April and as a result has had to quit her job and is being evicted from her downtown apartment.

She claims that working on the grand jury, which generally takes up two work days a week, has caused her to be as much as two months late with her rent payments when she has the money at all.

Mrs. Crawford said her present employer, the Wayne County Sheriff's Department, doesn't pay when she has jury duty and as a result she isn't even sure how much money she makes as a typist with the department.

Mrs. Crawford gets $15 a day for her grand jury duty and her employer is supposed to pick up the difference on her normal pay check.

Royal rumors fly

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, managed a grin today when he saw a newspaper headline "It's Love" referring to his friendship with Lady Jane Wellesley, and then flew off to Singapore to join his ship.

The headline was one of a number of press articles suggesting the 25-year-old Prince and the 24-year-old daughter of the Duke of Wellington are more than just good friends.

The Sun newspaper said flatly in a front page report of the Royal New Year's Eve party at Sandringham, in which the couple danced together most of the night that they are in love and there may be a spring betrothal.

The Prince winds up his naval career in June, although Buckingham Palace sources say he was recently trying to extend it for a year or so — which would make an early engagement improbable.

Charles left from a military air base at what he described as "a fiendish time of day" — cold and not yet full daylight — while Lady Jane answered the doorbell at her little house in the Fulham district of London to accept a special delivery letter.

"I had a lovely time," was all she would say about her Sandringham visit.

Indian aides wait for boat accident details

NEW DELHI (UPI) — The Indian government is awaiting details of a Dec. 10 accident in which 153 Indians drowned off Dubai after expulsion from that Arab emirate, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said today.

He said the government is in contact with the United Arab Emirates embassy here and with its own mission in Dubai.

According to Indian news agency reports, Dubai authorities put 315 illegal immigrants from India aboard an "indiscreet launch" after they were refused entry into Dubai.

The launch sank off Dubai and 163 of the 315 drowned; the reports said. The survivors returned to Dubai where they were jailed, the reports added.

The reports did not identify the launch.

The Foreign Ministry spokesman said the government had no additional information on the mishap.

News of the accident reached India through cables and letters from the survivors, the agency reports said.

Andrus announced a 60 mile per hour speed limit, and the National Energy Conservation Act signed by the President Wednesday set the limit at 55. "While the national interstate speed of 55 miles per hour more than the President's original recommendation," Andrus said.

Students evacuated

KETCHUM — Students were evacuated from the Ernest Hemingway Elementary School, Ketchum, about 7:30 a.m. Wednesday after a heating system malfunctioned, resulting in no apparent damage.

According to Ketchum fire chief Bill Brand, students were quickly returned to their classes. Brand said a circulating fan in the heating system had become jammed, causing the motor to over-heat and producing a considerable amount of smoke in the second floor area adjacent to the gymnasium.

However, he said the smoke had been cleared out and no apparent damage had resulted. About 10 volunteer firemen, two engines and a ladder truck responded.

Bills prefilled

BOISE (UPI) — Bills to limit big game hunting in Idaho to a 15-day season and require Idaho legislators to register and file financial statements were prefilled today with the lieutenant governor.

Idaho Gov. Jack Murphy, president of the Senate, said the bills were submitted by Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert. The hunting bill would prevent the Fish and Game Commission from setting seasons for deer or elk of more than 15 days in length for the current year and for 1975. The lobbyist bill seeks to have lobbyists registered with the secretary of state and provides penalties for violations of the registration provision.

'Euzkaudi' planned

BOISE (UPI) — A community of up to 30,000 homes called "Euzkaudi" is being planned for 15,000 acres of desert land in Ada County. The name is the Basque word for "Basque Land." It is being planned by National American Enterprises, a firm headquartered in Tugan, Utah.

Economical measure

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho hopes to save $40,000 over the next seven years as a result of an executive order that state agencies purchase smaller cars. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said "by purchasing the smaller engine vehicles the state saves about $500 on the approximately 100 new vehicles Idaho purchases each year." He said this is a savings of $50,000 to the taxpayers. The smaller engine cars would save the state an estimated 40,000 gallons of gasoline, for an additional savings of $10,000, or a total savings of $60,000 a year.

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times News Service
MALTA — Private development of energy sources will be seriously curtailed throughout the state if a request to remove 80,000 acres of Bureau of Land Management (BLM) land near Malta from the public domain is granted, Al Griffith said Wednesday. Griffith, president of Standard American, a Texas oil firm which has been drilling exploratory wells in the Malta area, said the request, made last month by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), "would stop all other companies from investigating oil, gas or geothermal sources any place in the state for fear the government would again step in and withdraw lands from public use." The AEC filed the request with the BLM Dec. 7. The request asked for about 80,000 acres of BLM land to be withdrawn from the public domain "for a period of two years followed by the possible identification and retention by the AEC of 5,000 acres or less of the withdrawn lands for development of a demonstration geothermal power facility." The purpose, according to the request, would be to "illustrate for public and private power groups that the problems related to the economical production of power and the appropriate environmental control of a geothermal system can be solved." Griffith filed a protest on behalf of Standard American on Dec. 20, well within the 30 day time period allowed for protest. "You Idaho people have to stand up and fight," Griffith said. The government controls about 80 per cent of the land in the state and they are increasing their grip through moves like this, he said. Standard American currently owns 4,400 acres of gas and oil leases on state lands and 40,000 acres on private lands. The firm has filed on 60,000 acres of leases on BLM lands. "Lease applications on BLM lands were unexpectedly delayed," Griffith said, and "only learned of the AEC request by chance." The AEC has already spent about $1 million in explorations for oil and gas in Idaho, over half of that in the Malta area. Griffith said. If BLM lands are withdrawn from the public domain it will make it nearly impossible for any firm to develop a large oil field if there is gas in the state. In his protest, Griffith said it had been no indication of either steam or hot water in either well which the firm has drilled near Malta; but that there had been good gas shows. "I do not feel that the AEC has the right to present me or any other private person or company front further exploration," he said. "It is unfair to expect private industry to spend millions of dollars on exploration and then have it withdrawn just when a profit might be realized," he said. Griffith said there was no reason the AEC and private industry couldn't work side by side. It was not in the public interest to withdraw lands that might provide needed gas or oil, he said. "The AEC has been in Idaho for years and has failed to develop a new source of power in spite of their interest and proximity to this area," he said. "It is the view of many that the only reason for their request at this time is that it might embarrass them if we were to develop a geothermal well first."

Standard American has taken geothermal leases in addition to gas and oil leases on some of the land they lease. Idaho District Republican representatives Steve Symms criticized the AEC request last month. He called the move "another nail in the coffin of freedom and free enterprise." Idaho Democratic Senator Frank Church and Gov. C. East said "Amidst lamastedd Symms' stand. Andrus said, "I'm not going to comment on Cong. Symms' charge — I think the people can judge." According to Standard American vice president Bill Denney, "Andrus is not helping the state, he is hurting the state." The firm was going to drill another exploratory well in the Malta area this winter, but in view of the AEC request, Griffith said, it is waiting the first out-what is happening."

"There isn't a anybody finding oil or gas in this state if they cut us off like this," he said. —

Morning fire hits Filer house

Fire razes Filer home

FILER — A Filer house and garage were destroyed by a fire this morning and the owner narrowly escaped injury. Earl Mason, a carpenter, had just put his pickup truck in the garage and gone into his house for a cup of coffee when he heard an explosion in the garage. Mrs. Mason, who is a cook at the Filer Grade School and had already left for work, said they believe a spark caused the gas in the truck to explode. The fire soon spread to the house, but firemen were able to save quite a bit of the couple's furniture and clothing; Mrs. Mason said. Both Filer fire trucks responded to the call at 7:50 a.m. today. This includes the Filer city and the county mutual truck stationed in Filer. The Masons have not set any estimate on their loss; firemen said.

'73 grocery prices jump

Officials of the Dairymen's Creamery Association say the cost of producing milk has also continued to go up and has been reflected in the higher consumer costs in recent months. Inflation, the association officials say, has hit the dairy industry especially hard. In November feed prices were reported by the Department of Agriculture at Oregon State University to have increased by 101 per cent on hay and 59 per cent on dairy mix compared to a year ago. Higher costs of fuel in hauling milk has resulted in increased hauling rates which in turn have further pressured the producers. "The most serious economic problem in the dairy industry is among the manufacturing milk producers who derive their return for milk from the return on butter, nonfat dry milk and cheese," the Dairy Creamery Association states. "The federal government has expanded import quotas that have affected the income generated from the production of these products," association reports show.

1974 baby to Wendell couple

WENDELL — Mr. and Mrs. David Rodriguez Jr., are the parents of the first New Year's child born to residents of Wendell. A daughter, yet unnamed, was born to the family at 6:12 a.m. today at St. Benedict's Hospital, Jerome. The New Year's baby weighed in at 9 pounds - 8 ounces. The fourth child in the Rodriguez family, they have two girls aged 4 and 4 and a son age 9. Rodriguez is a self employed construction worker. He was born and raised in Wendell.

Police check puff of smoke

WENDELL — Sheriff Paul Corder was checking early today on reports of a "puff of smoke" in the South Hills area, southeast of the Magic Mountain ski area. He said an employee of the Twin Falls Canal Co. who was in the vicinity of the South Hills reported seeing the smoke and believed it might mean a plane was down. Officers said a preliminary check with the Twin Falls Airport, Tri-State Airlines and the CAA in Burley revealed an unaccounted for plane. Investigation was continuing.

Snow covered

BOISE (UPI) — Snow flurries and icy spots were reported on most roads in Idaho today aside from the southwestern part of the state. Chains were advised for mountain passes.

Autopsy set on TF infant

TWIN FALLS — A 6-month-old infant, Jerry Lee Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen Morris, was dead on arrival at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital this morning, county Coroner Clancy Edwards reported. He said his ambulance service was called to the home at 399 Diamond Ave. about 9:15 a.m. by city police after the parents called police. He said he has called for an autopsy but there was no indication of foul play or injury in the baby's death. Edwards said the baby was apparently dead when discovered by the parents.

FM station permit expected

TWIN FALLS — Officials of Media West, a proposed new FM radio station in Twin Falls, said today they expect a construction permit by March 1. Richard Tuininga, a city councilman and president of Media West, said Monday in the end of a 30-day period for protests against Media West's application with the Federal Communication Commission for the new station. "So far, so good," Tuininga said. "No protests have been filed as yet." "Our Washington attorneys has advised we can expect the construction permit before March 1. The radio station could actually go on the air with the construction permit," the official said. Tuininga said Boise Cascade Corp., contractor for the station's building will move the structure onto the site about March 1.

J. Alexander, a newscaster at KMVT television station in Twin Falls, said he has been fired by the television station and John Carlson, another Media West representative, has resigned. "I think the reason (for termination) was our filing for the FM station," Alexander said today. "I expected it. It wasn't my surprise." Harold Hirtle, television station manager, said he and Alexander had an agreement about his termination date with the FM station. Carlson, he said, did resign, and is now attending a nine-week National Guard training school in Ft. Knox, Ky. Mark Whitesides, an advertising salesman at KMVT, is also a member of Media West. "I'm going to do my job here as long as they'll keep me," Whitesides said. "I don't care what they expect of me" he said Wednesday.

Tuininga was fired at KMVT, where he served as news director, on Oct. 2, Hirtle said. Tuininga's termination was due partly to Media West plans. Robert Coaker, an area landowner and member of Media West, will leave land to the corporation for the station west of Twin Falls. Alexander said the site is one mile west and three-quarters of a mile south of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital. Tuininga said the radio tower, to be supplied by a Quincy, Ohio, firm, is scheduled to be set up by March 1. Media West has a "target date" of April 1 to start broadcasting, according to Tuininga. The station would have a broadcast range covering the Magic Valley and would air "upbeat, middle-of-the-road" music, Alexander said.

Snow pack water 'up'

TWIN FALLS — The first snow measurements of the 1973-74 winter were announced today, showing snow depths of about the same as last year and an above-average water content. Officials of the Soil Conservation District made the measurements Dec. 31 and compiled statistics today. Officials said if the early trend continues another good water year is indicated. Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened broadly higher in heavy trading on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday, with buying sparked by a 15-point-love margin of the Federal Reserve's requirement for stocks to $100 per cent.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up 1.46 to 856.78, after the opening. Advances and declines by about nine-to-one among the 374 issues traded.

After the market closed on Wednesday, the Federal Reserve reduced the required margin for cash payment required to buy stocks on credit by 15 points to 50 per cent. The move was motivated in part by the sharp drop in the level of margin debt at brokerage houses in 1973, and that in turn was a result of the sharp losses experienced last year by margin customers.

Some observers felt the Fed's action easing margin requirements would signal a general relaxation of the nation's credit policies, but others believe the Fed's attitude toward money rates is largely unrelated to its attitude toward the stock market.

WR-Jerome, Oakley-Wolf tilts open loop schedule

Immediate tests in the South Central Idaho and Magic Valley conferences usher in the league side of the Magic Valley high school basketball season this weekend.

Wood River is at Jerome and Castledale goes to Oakley in the top features, based on pre-season play, but with a total of 26 games - 13 each night - on tap, there will be action for every night.

The SCIC thing at Jerome brings together the tallest - and close to the shortest and the best and worst defenses - Jerome will have a lot taller than the Wolverines but defensively Jerome has been allowing something like 77 points a game more.

"It just doesn't seem like we can keep anyone from scoring," says Coach Bill Emerson. "We've scored well up in the 70s and still lost. But we've also had nights where we're getting more than 45 points, too."

The major problem for the Tigers is that everyone expects a lot from them since they do have good solid height in the 6-5 area. Most fans fall to realize height isn't enough.

Coach Fred Trenkle is on the other side. The Wolverines aren't big but Coach Trenkle admits "a couple of our 6-1 guys can dunk it." Still the Wolverines have that pesky press and that could well be the undoing of Jerome since the Tigers guards haven't been consistent in ball handling this season.

Oakley, the perennial contender, and Castledale, which has been close without trophies for the past two years, should have a solid game. Both coaches demand defense. Both handle the ball pretty well. The one closest to being over the holiday probably will win it.

Burley stays home for a pair of good games. The Bobcats beat Madison in the Eastern Idaho Conference Friday and then look for a repeat decision over the Boise Braves Saturday.

In other SCIC play, the Gooding Senators, finding wins tough to come by, will be at Wilder where Coach Charles Farmer believes his Warriors can at least make the final standings interesting. The two coaches have opposite preferences. Gooding has been able to score - but so has the opponent. Filer's defensive effort has been good, but the offense hasn't produced enough to win consistently.

In the Little Five Conference, Wendell will entertain the Valley Vikings while Shoshone goes to Kimberly. Glenns Ferry takes advantage of the bye to play Mountain Home in the Pilot gymnasium.

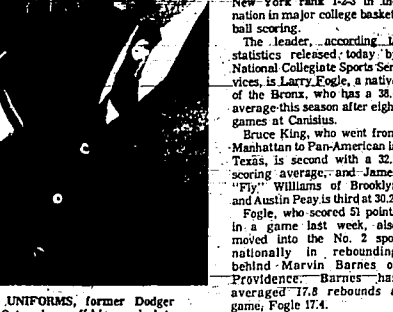

In addition to the Castledale-Oakley game, the Magic Valley Conference offers two others. Murtaugh will be at Hagerman while Tattler travels to Declo.

Camas County, looking like it has a good chance to repeat, opens the Northside loop by entertaining the short Dietrich Blue Devils. Richfield helps Rockland bow into the league at the Bulldog gymnasium while Carey will be home to Bliss.

On Saturday Jerome makes the trip to Gooding while Filer goes to Buhl where the Indians hold one of the fustier records around. Wood River returns a date to Bute of Arco.

Wendell goes down the hill to play Glenns Ferry in a Little Five test that could hold title overtones, while Valley entertains Kimberly in one of those hate things. Shoshone and Declo meet in a 7-3 encounter at Declo, the game, being non-conference.

Hansen will entertain Murtaugh while Castledale goes home to host Raft River in the two Magic Valley Conference battles. On the Northside, Camas County goes to Richfield while Carey moves into Dietrich.

Bruins host Minico Friday and move against Skyline Saturday

Twin Falls and Minico face strong competition in SIC action this week.

They start off by battling each other and then come Saturday tests against Skyline and Idaho Falls.

Technically, it isn't any tougher than either will find the rest of the season because the schedule basically is filled with Eastern division foes. There aren't any palates on this side of the SIC.

Both coaches wonder about the effect of the common meeting Friday in Twin Falls. They know one has to lose, but this being in the past few years has grown into a pretty good rivalry after years of very little over-enthusiasm. "Getting up two nights in a row may prove difficult."

Since both already have a couple of title-dimming defeats however, the coaches aren't expected to bring out their secret plays. They'll be held for tournament time.

Minico Coach Gary Swan feels the key for him will be closing off the inside scoring and preventing the follow shot. "We aren't nearly as tall. We'll have to shoot out well," he says.

Twin Falls Coach Don Haynes thinks it's about time his Bruins controlled a game. "Minico has always done a great job of setting the tempo for every game we've played. They've slowed us down and then beaten us. We've got to get the boards and then move out our pace."

On Saturday night, Twin Falls returns to Idaho Falls - and the Bruins didn't enjoy their first trip there, losing to Idaho Falls 97-71. When they meet Skyline, which is unbeaten.

The Grizzlies use a strong zone and also like to rebound games. Last year, Twin Falls lost to them in their first meeting but the Grizzlies set the tempo in the second and won that one.

Skyline is coming at center with 6-5 Carey Ellis, the SIC's fifth best scorer with a 19.0 average. Three behind him is legitimate Brad Chapple, a 6-2 guard, who is hitting 17.0 per cent.

Minico goes home Saturday to host the best shooting team in the SIC, Idaho Falls' Roger Rowberry, a 6-3 forward with good quickness, is shooting 76 per cent from the field and had a 16.8 average. The center is 6-6 Ross Nickerson, who is averaging 17.2. Jim Martin rings in at 11.6 and Dale Baldwin, last year's leading team scorer, is down some to 8.4 but a definite threat.

Idaho Falls also possesses good overall quickness.

Minico will have 6-4 veteran Scott Mackenzie back to lead for part-time service. "He still can't bend that (football injured) knee much," Coach Gary Swan says "but he helps us only on a log and a ball."

Going into the weekend, Twin Falls has six men showing up in the top 25 SIC scorers and leads the league in total point production. Eric Weaver has pushed his league average to 22.5 and after a sub-

New Mexico opens conference chase against Utah and BYU

By TRACY RINGOLSBY
UPI Sports Writer

Sophomore coach Norm Ellenberger hopes the similarities between his first year at New Mexico and the previous year aren't this weekend.

Last year, the Lobos headed into Western Athletic Conference play unbeaten and ranked 10th in the nation. Their first league game was at eventual WAC champion Arizona State and the varied team from Albuquerque was shocked 67-62.

This time around, New Mexico is once again unbeaten (10-0) and is ranked ninth. But the Lobos open the WAC at home this year with Utah on Friday and Brigham Young on Saturday. Texas Tech, Pasadena, which has built a 9-1 record, hosts the Utah schools in reverse.

The other WAC games this week have Arizona (8-2) at Wyoming and Arizona State at Colorado State on Thursday; Arizona State at Wyoming Friday and Arizona visiting Colorado State in the regional television game Saturday.

"We won nine straight last year and went into the WAC undefeated," said Ellenberger. "Then we decided to start coaching because the WAC was going to be as tough and mugged it up."

The Lobos wound up 9-5 in the WAC.

The statistics cover games played through last Saturday. The top 10 scorers:

Buckeyes ducking Irish overtures

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) - Notre Dame Athletic Director Moose Krause said Wednesday that plans had fallen through for "1973 and 1976" gridiron clashes between Ohio State and the Fighting Irish.

"Woody Hayes just doesn't want to play us," Krause said in a telephone interview. "We've been trying to get Ohio State on our schedule for 25 or 30 years but they just don't want to play. In fact, we had a couple of games scheduled with them but they canceled out," Krause said.

Both Notre Dame and Ohio State want to initiate 11-game schedules beginning this fall and Krause said he and Ohio State Athletic Director Ed Weaver had worked out tentative schedules that would mesh up the Irish and the Buckeyes in 1975 and 1976.

But Ohio State decided against the meetings, he said. "I would assume it was Woody's decision," Krause said. "Ed Weaver was all for playing us."

S.C. defeats Texas Tech

COLUMBIA, S. C. (UPI) - Senior Brian Winters, hitting from the outside, and sophomore Alex English, hitting from the inside, led the 17th-ranked University of South Carolina Gamecocks to an 81-65 win over Texas Tech Wednesday.

Winters topped all scorers with 26 points, and almost singlehandedly kept the Gamecocks ahead during an uneven first half. English, who got in foul trouble early in the game had 23 points for the South Carolina.

Texas Tech was led by sophomore center Mike Bullock who had 25 points and dominated both backboards in the first half. But the Gamecocks managed to keep Bullock from six points in the second period.

Issel and Erving vie for crown

NEW YORK (UPI) - Dan Issel of the Kentucky Colonels and Julius Erving of the New York Nets are having a close battle for the scoring lead in the American Basketball Association, but no one is close to Artis Gilmore in rebounding.

Issel has averaged 28.1 points a game compared to 27.8 for Erving, according to official league statistics through the weekend. Gilmore has averaged 17.6 rebounds a game, more than three ahead of Indiana's George McClintock.

Virginia's Swen Nater leads in field goal accuracy, Mack Chivin of Carolina is on top in free throw shooting and Chuck Williams of San Diego leads in steals.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get into the small details of improving your good looks to win the approbation of others. Accept worthwhile invitations, mixing business with pleasure.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Showing devotion to "good friends" can bring you more support. Invite key persons to luncheon and other to sup in p.m. Get an "in" thusly.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Improve credit and career matters. Make sure every detail of some civic work you do today is right. Put more zip into your life.

VIRGO (Aug. 2 to Sept. 22) Get the right pointers from a specialist in your field for greater success. Do research work; don't overlook some detail that is the key to the whole thing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study your books of record with "associates" that offer to handle your affairs more intelligently. Investigate new subjects that give answers you seek.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan with partners how to have greater success in the future. This is a "to do" list. Find out why one of your associates is so successful. Consider your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Handle duties you've put off now. Study apparel to make it more stylish, attractive. Don't be a copy of others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan to get into amusements you have really liked in the past and have fun. Show devotion to mate. Don't believe tall tales.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) First handle important affairs with "associates" that offer to handle your affairs more intelligently. Increase productivity.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she can easily use charm to get what is wanted without considering the feelings of others; so teach early to give in proportion to what is received and be independent, fair. Give spiritual training early so love of money does not become the all-consuming aim. Musical ability should be encouraged.
