US to share oil resources?

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — President Nixon may propose next month a long-range plan for sharing U.S. oil resources with the major industrial nations of the world, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said Thursday.
The newspaper said a copyright story the offer to share U.S. oil would depend on an agreement by European nations and Japan not to pursue an independent scramble for oil from Arab nations.

Tourism pledged fuel share

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. tourism industry is considered important to the national economy and will be protected during the energy crisis, Vice President Gerald Ford told a conference of federal officials and industry aides.
William Johnson, of the federal energy office, told the meeting buses and passenger trains will be given 100 per cent of their diesel fuel requirements because of their importance to tourism.

28 feared dead in Colombia

BOGOTA (UPI) — Authorities said today initial reports indicated everyone aboard died when a domestic airliner carrying at least 28 persons burst into flames and slammed into the side of a mountain in southern Colombia.
Witnesses said the Satena airplane, reportedly carrying several employees of a U.S. oil company, crashed Wednesday afternoon into a peak of the towering Andes mountain range.

Phnom Penh battle raging

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Heavy fighting raged on two sides of Phnom Penh today and rebel gunners attacked the capital and Pocheung airport with artillery fire.
Military observers said the insurgent drive to seize control of the countryside raging Phnom Penh involved the biggest guerrilla attack since American warplanes halted bombing over Cambodia Aug. 15.

Scott lists investments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., filed an updated financial statement Wednesday listing investments but withholding their value.
A spokesman said Scott identified the securities, which he holds jointly with his wife, to show he had no conflict of interest. Until the law requires additional disclosure, the aide said, no other information will be made public.

Soviet author denounced

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet columnist Yuri Zhukov denounced novelist Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn anew today but said he did not know what action, if any, authorities would take against him.
In a special television broadcast Wednesday night, Zhukov attacked Solzhenitsyn for publishing abroad a new book on Stalinist prison camp called "The Gulag Archipelago."

Matador returning to ring

MADRID (UPI) — The Spanish News Agency Cifra said today Manuel (El Cordobes) Benitez, 37, who prior to his retirement in 1971, was the most popular matador, will return to the bull ring this year.
The announcement said he will fight 30 times in Spain and 10 times in Latin America beginning in April. His earnings from the appearances are estimated at nearly $1.4 million.

Venezuela may hike oil price

GENEVA (UPI) — A decision by oil-producing countries to freeze petroleum prices for three months ran into trouble today, with Venezuela saying it might disregard the agreement and boost the cost of crude oil Feb. 1.

Canal accord reached

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Veteran U.S. diplomat Ellsworth Bunker, in a 4-hour mission to Panama, won Panamanian agreement to re-open long-stalled talks on the future of the Strategic Panaman Canal, U.S. officials said today.
Bunker and Panamanian Foreign Minister Juan Antonio Tack agreed in principle to negotiate on Panamanian sovereignty over the Canal Zone itself.

Land use key issue, MV solons say

By DAVID ESPFO
Times-News writer

BOISE — Magic Valley legislators heading for Boise to open the 1974 Legislature agree reapportionment, executive reorganization and land use planning will dominate the session.
Most members interviewed expressed hope the House and Senate could reach agreement on a new apportionment plan before the 30-day session-imposed deadline expires in mid-February.
The members, surveyed 10 days before the Jan. 14 opening of the legislature, also said they hoped the lines could be withdrawn in a minimum of the existing 35 districts.
Most of the area lawmakers also expressed hope that the six legislative districts in the Magic Valley area would escape redistricting entirely. "If they try to go across the state and change everything it would be a hassle," according to Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert.
House Speaker William Lanting, R-Hollister, predicted the lawmakers could reapportion their district before the 30 days expire. "I think we can do better than that," Lanting said.
One House member, Rep. E. V. McClain, R-Ketchum, said if agreement on reapportionment and reorganization weren't reached in the first 20 days of the session then a special session should be called to deal with them.

Another House member, Rep. Lee Barron, R-Corral, predicted a "battle royal" with possible court adjudication over reapportionment.
Barron, who represents a rural district, said reapportionment looks "one way" to urban lawmakers and "another way" to those who represent the large districts.
He said the rural lawmakers were "tired" of having "little pieces" of their districts changed, and would try to do the same to the urban-area districts.
Most of the lawmakers surveyed also said they thought the reorganization commission had performed well in suggesting a plan for reorganized executive branch of state government.
However, Sen. John Barker, Ruhl Republican, noted it will have to say "I've never seen a legislature buy an interim committee's report in its entirety." Several lawmakers also expressed disagreement with one or two specific proposals the commission is making.

Rail walkout hits Britain

LONDON (UPI) — Railroad engineers walked off the job throughout Britain today, stranding hundreds of thousands of commuters and paralyzing much of the country's rail network over which critically needed coal and steel supplies are hauled.
In a possible move toward a breakthrough in the crippling industrial crisis Prime Minister Edward Heath invited heads of the 10 million strong Trades Union Congress (TUC) for peace talks and the TUC accepted immediately. The talks were scheduled at 6 p.m. (GMT) at Heath's No. 10 Downing St. office.
Leaders of 200,000 coal miners rejected a government appeal to resume normal working and said they would continue their crippling two-month-old slowdown.
As a result the government put much of industry on a three-day work week in order to save perilously dwindling fuel stocks.
As a result nearly one million workers have been laid off. The government's National Economic Development Board predicted the number soon could balloon to 4 million.
At the same time, unions representing 3 million engineering industry workers decided to call a complete ban on working "beginning at the earliest possible date."
Like the coal miners and 20,000 railroad locomotive drivers, the engineering unions demanded pay hikes well above the ceilings set.

US agency checks gas

BOISE — The Federal Energy Office (FEO) has sent investigators into the four-state western region to monitor compliance with fuel allocation regulations.
One investigator was in Boise Wednesday, meeting with officials at the state office on energy. He declined to say what they discussed, and also declined to have his name used in an interview.
He said he might have to perform undercover work in the future in the state in pursuit of violators of the law.
An FEO spokesman in the Seattle, Wash., region tent office said there were only about six investigators in Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Alaska monitoring the fuel allocation programs.
John Jarstad said the Internal Revenue Service is now training about 10,000 men nationwide to take over the process of looking into possible violations of price regulations beginning next summer.
For the immediate future, Jarstad said, the federal investigators will confine their duties to explaining new procedures for reporting about fuel supplies to local businessmen. In addition, he said, "there'll be a lot of work investigating rumors and putting them to rest."
Currently, he said, the FEO has more authority over allocation of middle distillate fuels (diesel) than it does over gasoline. He said that authority could change next week, however, if scheduled new federal regulations go into effect.
The proposed regulations would give the government the ability to monitor gasoline at the local level instead of at the national level as is now the case.
State officials have also said their authority would be greatly increased in the areas of gasoline if the new regulations went into effect as scheduled. They would be permitted to set aside three per cent of the fuel coming into Idaho for energy purposes. Their authority now is limited to redirecting up to five per cent of the diesel fuel that enters the state.

Jarstad also said there had been cases reported in Washington of Canadian fuel trucks delivering supplies, similar to the practice reported in Twin Falls earlier this week.
Jarstad said he wasn't sure what the FEO's response to the out-of-country suppliers would be.
Richard L. Brown, director of the Idaho Office on Energy, said the information from Twin Falls was "interesting," and that it had been passed along to the Seattle FEO office. "Just the fact that the stuff (gasoline) is available is interesting," Brown said. He said there didn't appear to be any violations involved in the Canadian gas being delivered to a Twin Falls service station.

Aides ask trial shift for Chapin

WASHINGTON Star-News (c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Attorneys for former presidential aide Dwight L. Chapin appear likely to fall with two new moves designed to extricate their client from charges of lying to the original Watergate grand jury.
The attorneys filed two pre-trial motions Wednesday with United States District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell, who already has indicated he is prepared to rule against both.
The first motion charges that the grand jury which indicted Chapin in the second of three Watergate grand juries now in operation — was biased against the former presidential appointments secretary.
The second motion was a request that Chapin's trial, slated to begin April 1, be moved out of the District of Columbia because of the massive amount of publicity here surrounding the Chapin indictment and Watergate-related matters in general.

Al Sharq reported today from Cairo that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger advanced his planned visit to Egypt because Washington received reports of an imminent Egyptian attack on Israeli forces on the west bank of the Suez canal.
Al Sharq, which has close connections with the Syrian regime, attributed the report to "reliable Arab" diplomatic sources.

Weather trouble

Chill keeps grip

KIMBERLY — Bone-chilling temperatures were recorded in the Magic Valley again Wednesday night.
The mercury plummeted to 10 below zero in Twin Falls, 12 below in Hagerman, minus 11 in Rupert, 9 below in Jerome and 7 below in Buhl.
Magic Valley's cold spell, Fairfield, shivered through the 25 below night. The Kimberly weather station recorded minus 4.
The cold snap is expected to continue through Friday. Forecasters say they still hope for a warming trend beginning Saturday.

US sets refinery checkup

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy Chief William E. Simon set up a task force today to audit "price, profit and supply records of every petroleum refinery in the nation."
The program in no way reflects on the refiners, but it will assure us that they understand and are abiding by Federal Energy Office regulations," Simon said.
Simon's action follows contentions of some oil industry critics that the government is not getting accurate production and price figures from the companies.
Simon said the task force would be composed of officials from the Internal Revenue Service and the FEO.
The audit program "is designed to insure that petroleum product price increases are justified and reflect only increase costs to refiners for imported and domestic petroleum supplies and not increased profits," Simon said.

Kissinger off again

Egypt resort of Aswan in a move to speed conclusion of an Israeli-Egyptian agreement on troop withdrawals from the explosive Suez canal front. He is expected in Aswan around 7:30 p.m. Friday (10:30 a.m. MST) to meet Sadat.
Kissinger confers with Sadat then flies to Jerusalem late Saturday for talks with Prime Minister Golda Meir on a reported Israeli plan to withdraw about 20 miles from the canal in return for a thinning off of Egyptian forces on the Israeli side of the canal. He confers with Sadat once more before returning to Washington.

US audit finds irregularities in CSI student aid

TWIN FALLS — Federal auditors today reported irregularities involving about one-fourth of the federal work-study funds used at the College of Southern Idaho.
The audit confirmed earlier reports that the auditors also criticized CSI management of work-study funds, claiming that during certain funding periods the college systematically underspent available federal funds.
The auditors asked that a total of $37,382 be either refunded to the federal government outright or not be spent from current grants, and requested numerous procedural changes in program administration.
CSI officials have responded to the audit, agreeing with most of its findings but challenging one requested refund involving a paycheck of $8,700.
The audit confirmed earlier reports that federal funds had been used to make improvements at the privately-owned home of CSI President James L. Taylor. However, the audit expressed no opinion on the appropriateness of the expenditures.
Despite the irregularities, the auditors said the college "has met the basic intent of the college work-study program by providing part-time employment to students in need of earnings to pursue a course of study."
The sample also revealed 7 of the 50 cases involved overaward of financial aid of $3,862.
— In 34 out of 59 cases in which students received both federal and non-federal financial aid, excessive federal awards of $12,116 were made. The overexpenditure resulted from failure to consider the non-federal income of the students in computing federal aid.
— During the 1972-73 year, 19 out of 23 athletes were given $3,357 in excess of their financial need because of failure to count athletic scholarships as income.
— During the 1973-74 year, 10 out of 11 student receiving athletic scholarships were given excess federal funds totaling $5,228, again because scholarships were not counted as income. College officials said they considered the athletic scholarships as loans, not grants.

The auditors found the college had accumulated $25,887 of excess cash and had expended $4,750 more of CWS funds than were authorized by the grant awards. The audit asked the $4,750 be refunded to the federal government and the $25,887 not be drawn from current grants.
— The college made advance payments at the end of 1970 totaling $3,191. The college's business office added 2,180 hours to time earned by selected students, usually an addition of 100 hours per student. Only 7 of the 23 students paid back the advances by April, 1971. The auditors asked the $3,191 be refunded to the government.
— During the period of the audit work study funds "had been used to pay students to work off campus at the private residence of the college president and to pay for babysitters for another college official. In addition, it was reported that $1,400 was paid to students who claimed time during periods they could not have worked."
The auditors made no recommendations on these findings, noting that the college trustees had required repayment of the $115 involved in the babysitting and reimbursed the federal government the federal share, $1,172, of funds used for payment on hours not worked.

The auditors noted that the college trustees regarded the president's home to be "an extension of the college campus; even though it is privately owned" and that work study funds they considered "proper use of such funds" by the trustees.
The auditors expressed no opinion on the appropriateness of the off-campus expenditure.
HEW auditor James Durnil said he was pleased with the college's response to the audit report. "They've directly responded and they've corrected the whole thing right now," he said, regarding the colleges administration of the work-study monies.
Durnil said the $343 in federal monies spent to improve CSI-PANAMA. JAMES L. TAYLOR'S PRIVATE HOME WERE "IMMATERIAL." HE SAID HE WAS CONCERNED WITH THE THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS INVOLVED IN THE PROBLEMS OF ADMINISTRATION, NOT IN A "COUPLE OF HUNDRED DOLLARS."

New welfare program to increase DECS request

BOISE — An increase in the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits nationally may mean a bigger budget request from the Department of Environmental and Community Services than the agencies originally thought.

DECS director of management services Howard Jamieson said Wednesday he had initially planned on $1.6 million as the state's share of the SSI program for the fiscal year beginning in July.

Now, he said, planned increases in the national benefit level could push the state's cost to $2 million, about what Idaho was paying before SSI was effective.

Jamieson said the "stipend intent" of SSI was "to get the state out of the business of giving supplements to adult citizens."

A congressional measure may force the individual states to maintain their present level of expenditure, Jamieson said, instead of gradually permitting them to ease off.

SSI is the federal government welfare reform program that guarantees each eligible recipient $40 a month, plus a supplement of $100 a month with each couple receiving at least $195 a month.

The program became effective Jan. 1, with Idaho also having to guarantee that no individual would take a cut in income because of the reform.

To accomplish that, the state is supplementing the federal check with another $40 a month, bringing the recipient to the level of support that existed in 1973.

The federal legislation that established SSI, according to Jamieson, also said no state would have to pay more money in supplements than it was already spending on adult assistance.

Congress has already approved one "cost of living" increase in the SSI benefit level, setting it at $10 per person and $15 per couple.

Another increase is expected to go into effect in July, increasing the amounts to $145 and $215.

Before the second increase was approved, Jamieson figured the state's fiscal year 1975 cost at $1.8 million. Now, he says, if Congress forces the states to pass along the federal increase, that cost would rise to $2 million, the same amount the state is now paying.

Instead of letting the state reduce its supplement by the amount of the SSI federal increase, Congress would force the states to maintain its own level.

Whatever Congress orders the states to do, Jamieson also said Idaho has the option of passing the increase in benefits along to the recipients. He said that decision had already been made within the agency "not to pass it along," however.

Jamieson noted, however, that the governor could recommend the legislature spend the extra money, regardless of what DECS is proposing. He also noted the legislature could decide independently to authorize the increase.

Cold, icy rescue

IT TOOK THE combined efforts of park police and city workers, laboring in near zero temperatures, more than an hour to reach across the ice and rescue an 11-year-old boy that had fallen through thin ice on a reservoir near Columbus, Ohio. The deer was released into nearby woods. (UPI)

Runaway Seen... arrested by police

TWIN FALLS — A juvenile runaway from Halley was arrested by Twin Falls police late Tuesday after police say he tried to force a Twin Falls woman to take him to her home by pointing a pellet gun at her.

A large number of police officers began searching for the boy after the woman called police to report an attempted robbery at gunpoint.

According to police reports, there was, however, no robbery attempt and the youth was arrested for "disorderly conduct."

Mrs. Valeria McNevin told police she was washing clothes in a laundromat when she saw the 14-year-old boy hanging around the laundry and asked him if he needed a ride home.

The youth agreed and told Mrs. McNevin he lived near her home.

Mrs. McNevin dropped the youth off at a school building. Later, he had a knock at the door and found the boy standing there.

After having fed the boy dinner, Mrs. McNevin then left to drive him to where he said he lived.

While in the car the boy told Mrs. McNevin, who had her children along, that he had a gun and wanted to be taken back to her apartment.

McNevin drove instead to the Holiday Inn where her husband works. As she stopped the car, the youth opened the door and ran away.

Police collar the youth at the Holiday Inn. Police Chief Frank Barnett said Wednesday the youth would be turned over to Halley police, and possibly to his parents.

TF PTA council meets

TWIN FALLS — Pros and cons of the various time schedules open to southern Idaho were discussed at a Twin Falls PTA Council meeting this week.

Those attending were encouraged to write their legislators to express their views.

Committee reports were given by Darl Gled, legislative; Nancy Brown, procedure; Donna Crist, magazine; Roy Roper, membership and Mayme Ruffing, budget and finance.

Unit presidents were reminded that Life Award recipients should be considered soon and that nominees from each local unit for the PTA Council Recognition Awards must be presented.

The next meeting will be Feb. 4 and a founder's day program is planned.

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls senior citizens are invited to a birthday potluck dinner Friday at the Senior Citizen Center, 421 Second Ave. W. Dinner will be at noon and the center will furnish cake and coffee with entertainment to follow.

Nixon cuts sewer funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today impounded another $3 billion in sewage treatment funds which Congress had authorized for the next fiscal year to help clean up the nation's streams and rivers.

In explaining why he cut back the allocation from $7 billion to $4 billion, Nixon cited competing national priorities for our limited federal resources.

The impoundment was the result of involving funds in the anti-inflation law designed to make the country's waters pure by 1980.

The action brought to $9 billion the amount of money Nixon has refused to spend of the $18 billion provided by the law for a three-year period.

Last year Nixon impounded $6 billion of the $11 billion authorized for grants to states during the first two years of the measure. Today's action involving the last $3 billion covers money to be spent during the business year beginning next July 1.

The money, administered by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), is to be used to help states and cities build waste treatment plants, mains, pumping stations and other facilities.

The treatment plants must be built because the law says that all cities must have secondary sewage treatment facilities — systems that produce largely pure discharge — by mid-1977.

By mid-1980 the cities must apply more advanced technology, beyond secondary treatment.

In a letter to EPA Administrator Russell E. Train, Nixon said a total of $7 billion will actually be available to the states during the 12 months beginning next July 1 because $3 billion in funds he ordered spent previously have not yet actually been sent to the states.

Hospital beds full

TWIN FALLS — For the past three days there have been no available beds at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital during most of the day and night schedules.

As of 9:30 a.m. today there was one bed in the treatment room on the fourth floor and a few cribs. Hospital officials said two beds in the obstetrics room which were available at midnight were taken by new deliveries early this morning.

Hospital officials say the situation is becoming more serious all the time and it is frequently necessary to delay non-emergency type surgeries for several days or more before there can be assured of bed space.

Newspaper racks stolen in TF

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police were investigating several burglaries today, including the theft of display racks from the Times-News and a competing newspaper.

Wayne McWilliams, assistant circulation manager for the Times-News, told police Wednesday a dispensing machine was stolen Sunday from in front of Smitty's Pancake House on Addison Avenue West.

The Times-News rack was chained to a display rack owned by the Boise Idaho Statesman. McWilliams said.

He estimated the value of the machine at about $35 to $70. He said he did not know how much change may have been in the rack.

McWilliams said a reward will be paid to anyone recovering the rack. A spokesman for the Idaho Statesman estimated the value of his paper's missing rack at about $15, about $100 for the rack and $10 to $15 for the change estimated to be inside.

He told police he thought the racks were stolen between Tuesday morning and Wednesday morning.

McWilliams said he was sure the racks were taken Sunday. Police were also investigating the following burglaries:

Duard Lawley, Twin Falls, told police Wednesday his accounting office in his home was vandalized late Monday after an unknown person or persons threw a patio fireplace grate through a rear window to gain entry to his house.

Lawley said a plastic bag valued at about $2 was the only item missing. He estimated damage to his property at about $40.

In a second burglary, Buck Hamilton, Twin Falls, reported about $150 in tools and other items were taken from the cab of his four-wheel-drive vehicle. Hamilton said the burglary occurred between Jan. 2 and Jan. 5 while the vehicle was parked either at his residence or at his place of employment.

Mark Coombs, an employee of the Firestone Tire Store, 410 Main Ave. S., reported that a combination stereo tape and radio unit valued at about $100 was stolen from a display shelf in the store sometime between Jan. 5 and 7, 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Planning group elects

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The fledgling Twin Falls Joint Planning Council elected officers and adopted a preliminary budget at its first annual meeting Wednesday.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Merl Leonard and Twin Falls City councilman Paul Ostyn were elected chairman and vice-chairman of the six-member council, respectively.

Jack Miller, Twin Falls city manager and a non-member, was named secretary-treasurer.

The council also approved a preliminary budget of $40,000 for 1974. Twin Falls County and City will pay $20,000 each in funding the new planning agency.

The budget provides $33,400 in salaries and fringe benefits, including $17,127 for the recently hired planning director, David M. Richey. Another $10,543 is earmarked for a planner and $5,400 for a secretary.

Richey said the planner will be hired by March 1.

Other budget appropriations include $1,310 for office furniture in the planning office, $1,850 for office supplies, $1,000 for the director's and planner's moving expenses, $1,000 for travel expenses, $700 for luncheon meetings, $300 for fees and subscriptions and $140 for printing and equipment rental.

The council discussed a plan under which Twin Falls City would provide a vehicle for the secretary.

Madrigals perform

TWIN FALLS—The Twin Falls High School Madrigals, directed by Richard Smack, performed at the Tuesday night meeting of the Twin Falls Women of the Moose.

Mrs. Charles Reever, Childcare chairman, introduced the group which sang a selection of songs.

Mrs. Melvin Dixon conducted the meeting. Pro items were Mrs. Claude Severt, junior-graduate regent; Mrs. Lewis Hoffman, guide and Mrs. Rowland, assistant.

Mrs. Ron Gogswell was enrolled in the chapter.

A Friendship and Legion pot luck-dinner for the Twin Falls lodge is planned for 7 p.m. Saturday at the Moose Home.

planning office. The county has provided office space for Richey and his staff in the former county hospital building at 650 Addison Ave. W. Leonard said the joint planning effort is a step forward in eliminating any provincialism in the area.

Articles of agreement and bylaws for the group list purposes including development and implementation of comprehensive plans for the county and all its cities, and receipt and expenditure of local, state, federal or private funds.

The planning council will hold regular meetings on the second Wednesday of every month.

Council members include Jack Muldon, representing the Twin Falls City Planning and Zoning Commission;

Corning Lanting, representing county zoning; Joe Ehrenbacher, representing cities other than Twin Falls; Alvin Harris, representing farm organizations; Leonard and Ostyn.

Richey asked the council Wednesday for permission to make the monitoring of proposed state land use legislation a major "work element" of his job.

He said the legislation contains "many items of serious concern to a planner." One of the items of "concern" is the deletion from the bill of a restriction on the number of "estate agents and others" with vested interests on planning commissions, he said.

Ostyn expressed the council's approval of Richey's request. "I think all of us feel that you will have to dictate your own timetable," he said.

Clerk to resign

TWIN FALLS — Evelyn Hintze, deputy clerk of magistrate court in Twin Falls, has submitted her resignation effective Feb. 8.

Mrs. Hintze, a resident of Jerome, has worked for the probate and magistrate courts for 10 years, being employed in 1964 by former probate judge Zor Ann Shubb. He has also worked with judges Richard Reed, Daniel Meehl and Reed P. Maughan.

Mrs. Hintze who has also been studying law to obtain her degree, said she has had to give this up under the heavy load of magistrate court work in the past few years, but her principal reason for resigning is the low county salaries for women employees and growing costs of living expenses.

Mrs. Hintze said she has no special employment plans for the present but will probably go back to work in the future in Jerome.

Prior to coming to Twin Falls she was employed in the probate court of Jerome County for 13 years.

Banquet set

TWIN FALLS—The Annual Chamber of Commerce banquet will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Holiday Inn with James Duffy, president of ABC Television as featured speaker.

Duffy began his broadcasting career as an announcer at radio station WNB in Beloit, Wis. He joined ABC in 1952 as assistant publicity manager in Chicago and worked up to his present position.

Re-locates

TWIN FALLS — The US Internal Revenue Service office in Twin Falls will move to 1061 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. Friday.

Tax auditor Victor Cypher said the bureau is moving from its present location at the Lywood Shopping Center to a remodeled office with more space which is closer to other federal offices.

The IRS office hours will be from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays until tax season ends April 15.

Hall of fame banquet set

TWIN FALLS — Six livestock persons will be honored at the 15th annual Southern Idaho Livestock Industry Hall-of-Fame banquet.

The banquet, scheduled for the Holiday Inn on Feb. 26, is expected to attract between 400 and 500 guests.

Selected from a group of eight candidates by members of the hall of fame directors were Harry W. Noh, Rogerson; Eugene C. Davis, Bruneau; Everett A. Campbell, Bellevue; and Jean P. Etcheverry, Rupert.

Special honorees — two men who were instrumental in founding the organization — will be Jim Seaback and Claude Wilhite, former local livestockmen now living in Spokane.

Directors, meeting Tuesday night at the chamber of commerce office, voted to hold the 1975 banquet in Burley. Date and place will be announced.

At the Twin Falls banquet next month Jack Ramsey of the Idaho First National Bank and Ken Newman of the First Security Bank will be in charge of ticket distribution while Harold O. Hirtz, KMYT-TV manager, will be in charge of publicity.

Ray Rostrom, chamber manager, will be master of ceremonies while Earl Stansell, Southern Idaho Production Credit Association head, will preside and also introduce the special honorees. Invocation will be by Tom Prescott of the Prescott-Craig Agency, Jerome.

All named as having a special part in the program and arrangements are hall of fame directors, Otto Florence Jr., Independent Meat Co.; Gene Hull, College of Southern Idaho; Chall Alfred, Alfred Livestock, Burley; Richard D. Blincoe, Blincoe Farms, Heyburn; Robert O. Carlson, Rangen Inc, Buhl; Robert B. Day, Amalgamated Sugar Co.; L. H. Haslam, Idaho State Bank, Glenns Ferry; Mez McMurray, rector, Burley; Bud Wurdly, Picoabo Livestock Co., Pocatello; Charles Sewell, Twin Falls Livestock Commission Co., Elko, Nev.; R. Lyons Smith, Ida Gem Dairyman Inc, Jerome.

Including those selected for the hall of fame this year, 85 will have been honored in the past 15 years.

The hall of fame is sponsored by the firms represented by the members of the board.

Sorority meets

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. E. M. Wright was guest speaker at the Tuesday meeting of Xi Alpha Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi at the home of Mrs. Helen Payton.

She spoke on getting preschool children ready for school.

Terry Burnett, president of City Council, read a letter to the "Straight Arrow" from Sigma Chapter. "Straight Arrow" will be master of ceremonies for the Valentine dance. Table decorations for the dance were discussed. A report was planned at the next meeting which will be Jan. 22 at the home of Mrs. Annie Swope.

Members donated money to help Candy Stovall with expenses connected with her scheduled surgery in Salt Lake City next week.

Plans for a snow party social were made. The party, which will feature tubing, skiing and snowmobiling, will be sometime this month.

Members of Sigma and Omicron chapters and their families will be invited.

Beverly Richardson won the gift for the evening.

Joint event slated

FILER — Plans for the joint installation of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs were made Tuesday evening during the Miriam Rebekah meeting in the IOOF Hall.

The installation will be at 8 p.m. Friday in the hall and members are to bring either cookies or sandwiches for refreshments.

Mrs. Wanda Rowland, Idaho Falls, will make her official visit Jan. 22 and a potluck dinner is planned for 6:30 p.m. followed by a 8 p.m. meeting in the hall. Members are to meet at 10 a.m. Jan. 19 to clean the hall. A practice session has been set for 2 p.m. Jan. 20.

The Filster live meeting Feb. 2 with Mrs. Betty Haman in charge.

The annual financial report was given by Mrs. Warren Stroud. Mrs. Ruth Massie, noble grand elect, and Mrs. Rex Lancaster, vice noble grand, gave the charges of their offices. Mrs. Mary Williams gave a report and new committees were announced.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Donna Miller, Mrs. Samantha Long and Mrs. Euphie Williamson.

Cheap brake jobs are still murder

You have only to thumb through almost any newspaper to find the advertisement for a Brake Job for $19.95. If you take your car in to snatch up this bargain, one of three things will happen. Either the mechanic will tell you the $19.95 price is just for brake linings and your car needs a great deal more, or he'll take the car, then present you with a horrendous bill that includes "extra needed work." Or he'll let you risk your life by giving you the $19.95 brake job as advertised.

In 1967, a Better Homes and Gardens article exposed the $19.95 industry common. The article was widely applauded and over a million reprints were made. Nearly six years later, however, the $19.95 brake job, and even $9.95 brake job, still is taking people in. Obviously it's time to reiterate — you're wooing disaster and wasting money if you buy new brake linings without having the rest of the system checked and serviced.

A complete brake job normally will cost from $45 to $80 and should include: Rebuilding or replacing wheel cylinders. Installation of new linings changes the stroke of the wheel cylinder piston so that the rubber piston cup must move across a rusted, pitted surface. The end result is that the wheel cylinder fluid will leak on the new linings, which causes dangerous grabbing. If you avoid an accident, you'll have to return to the shop for wheel cylinder repairs and another set of linings (fluid-saturated linings cannot be cleaned up).

Replacing wheel-bearing grease seals. Like leaking wheel cylinders, faulty grease seals are dangerous. Seals should be replaced with every brake job. It's also wise to replace wheel bearings at the same time. Replacing return springs. Weak springs cause pulling or dragging brakes, yet these expensive springs are seldom replaced. Flushing and replacing fluid. Any good brake job must include draining and flushing the entire brake fluid system. Super heavy-duty fluid, labeled as meeting S.A.E. standards, should be used to replace old fluid.

Checking brake lines. One small rust hole or crimp in a line can produce sudden and complete brake failure. Have all lines carefully inspected, including the flexible hoses that connect to each wheel and the metal lines that connect to the master cylinder. Checking brake drums. If drums are out-of-round or scored, they must be resurfaced and turned. New linings should be fitted by arcing them in a brake shoe grinder.

Checking master cylinder. Repair or replacement usually is not necessary, but the master cylinder should be inspected for leakage with every brake job. A brake pedal that sinks slowly to the floor is a symptom of a master cylinder failure.

Replacing brake linings. This is usually all you get with a cheap brake job, and even here the quality of the material may be second rate. Buy the best brake linings available. This means a reputable brand name — not something in an unmarked box. Buying good linings is economical insurance against brake fade, since the difference between poor linings and the best is about $2.50 a wheel.

Your car was designed to use the kind of lining that came on it from the factory, so replace it with the same type whether it is a riveted or bonded lining. (Bonded linings are not better than riveted; in fact, a lower quality material can be used for bonding.) And just as you wouldn't think of buying one new shoe, don't consider having one wheel lined. Wheels should be done in pairs (both front or both back) and must have the same type of linings for balanced brake action. The only exception to the rule of pair replacement is if one must be replaced shortly after a brake job because of a grease or fluid leak.

Play it safe. Have your brakes checked every 10,000 miles and expect to have a complete brake job at about 25,000 to 30,000 miles.

You're courting catastrophe when you attempt to save by doing your own brake job, especially when you consider that the ability to stop is your car's most important safety feature.

Excessive protection

WASHINGTON — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is like a row of one-armed bandits in a Reno casino. I cannot leave it alone. There is some awful, obscene fascination in watching the little wheeled go-around — so much time, money, and energy expended in such idiot pursuits.

through Classification 1515, 'Pacifiers and Teething Rings. Classification 1250 deals with 'Squeeze-Squeaker Toys.' Is there orthographic authority for 'teether'?

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Under Classification 1303, Mechanical Dolls and Toy Animals, Keywind and Battery Operated, the commission is protecting us from 65 listed perils, among them Bloopy Dog, Hoppy Bunny, Bingo Clown, and Quik Quik the Duck, all of which have sharp edges or small parts.

What is the proper function of the government? One would suppose that a proper function of government is to protect the citizen against fraud, mislabeling, and serious danger. But this function ought to be severely limited.

TF library should grow

Twin Falls Public Library trustees should be encouraged on their plans to build a badly needed addition to the city library.

The need is evident by anyone who pays even a casual visit to the present overcrowded structure. Every nook and cranny of the building including the basement is now used for book stacks, work rooms or reading areas.

The library trustees have tried before to expand the structure, but have faced repeated setbacks. Now it appears an expansion is not just a dream but a real possibility. For one thing, President Nixon has released library funds he had impounded earlier. The city library, with highest priority in the state stands to obtain up to $115,000 of the released funds.

These must be matched by local money, which is in hand. The City Council has put aside $40,000 a year in anticipation of the expansion, and other matching money can come from the library's operating budget and the regional library budget.

Our hope is there will be no last minute snags on the project.

The library, along with the College of Southern Idaho, stands at the cultural center of the Valley. The library should be allowed to expand for everyone's benefit.

Idaho tax plan deserves attention

Idaho Falls Post Register There may be an antidote for several problems which have special irritants to many Idahoans.

One problem is the accelerating velocity of out-of-state land speculators buying prime rural acreage for resale. And because Idaho does not have any statewide land-use laws, much of Idaho's strategic land is being speculated, according to Guy Cecil Andrus in a recent article in Executive West magazine.

Another problem is the decay of "downtowns" with resultant expense and the growth of urban sprawl, in city or in rural areas.

Another problem is inequitable property taxing over the state and the attendant problem, long pointed up by farm leaders, of taxing rural areas instead of the basic productivity of the land. This is true of business owners and homeowners, too, in that any improvements they apply result in increased taxation.

Another problem is that there is too much tax-aided land where, if taxes, conversely, were increased on this land, it would be converted into fruitful development or use.

State Rep. William Onweller of Boise thinks he has a solution for modification of Idaho problems. It is a "site value" taxation plan.

He is proposing legislation that would gradually shift property taxes from improvements to land itself over a 10 year period. Ten per cent of improvements would increase by 10 per cent each year over the 10 year period. All property then would be taxed at its highest and best legal use. All property sites on which residences are constructed, for example, would be considered to have a residential highest and best legal use, unless such residence is pertinent and necessary to a farm operation. At the end of the 10 years there would be a site value tax only based on the productivity or usefulness of the land for its best purpose.

It would fit in compatibly with a statewide land use program, which Idaho dearly needs, and it would dramatically simplify assessing the taxing procedures to make them easier to do — and more equitable. Site value standards can be applied with relative uniformity over the state.

Representative Onweller says his bill contains two economic principles: "Increasing the property tax on underused and unused urban land tends to reduce the asking price of land and make it available to development.

"Increasing the property tax on improvements tends to encourage blight and deterioration. Reversing the property tax on improvements will encourage more intensive use and better maintenance."

Representative Onweller's jurisdiction certainly applies to downtown Idaho Falls. Too many landowners simply could not see the merit of making improvements or re-building in the face of the increased tax on these improvements. So, consequently, they did nothing. Onweller's system works like a tax credit plan on capital improvements for businesses afforded businesses as an incentive to improve and add facilities of service to the citizenry everywhere... or their customers.

Representative Onweller points out that the property tax, as it now stands, works against the virtues of the free enterprise system... and it certainly does that.

Essentially, it provides no incentive to better one's lot... and the lot of the people that the firm or the farm eventually serve will bear the service or their products. And the homeowner would end up, under the proposed legislation, that property taxes will be less on houses located in residential zones — an incentive for sound zoning as well. Houses, too, can be improved and enlarged without causing the property tax to increase.

No system can be exactly uniform in "value assessment." The difficulty will be arriving at the "productivity or best performance use of a given parcel of land. But it appears to be no more difficult than the present assessment standards being applied. The shift in the burden of the tax plan also needs careful evaluation, consequently.

Onweller's legislation deserves attention in the Idaho Legislature at the very least, and the time involved in sorting out all of its ramifications. At this juncture, at least, it certainly appears to have more pluses than minuses.

Some hints powerful

Attending church is good for the soul — and it also presents the opportunity to find out what is going on.

For instance, communion was taken while we attended the First Presbyterian Church of Twin Falls last Sunday. It was an impressive service, this Sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

But the day also provided the opportunity for church officials to spread out the packages of contribution envelopes. They were over-talented in the envelope.

Just in case the members missed them coming in, there was a note in the morning bulletin which was clever enough to make even the most determined-to-ignore-it member take notice.

The note read: "If there is a box for you and you do not wish to use it, please let Mrs. Ward know and we can recycle it for someone else to use. After a while, that who, we ask, would decline the opportunity to aid in the support of the church?"

RECOLLECTION Listening to a sermon from Annapolis speaking to Kiwanis members the other day brought recollections of our visit to the academy a couple of years back. And perhaps most vivid of all the recollections is that of a sign on a large fence down near an estuary where small boats ride at anchor. It reads: "It isn't the size of the dog in the fight — it's the size of the fight in the dog."

REALLY NOW? For what it is worth we will get in our two-bit comment. Perhaps the folks who have been moaning about the youngsters being out in the dark in the morning if we had daylight saving time are not getting things in perspective. We can remember walking to school in the dark — and the night-time time was invented — it was because we lived about two miles from where the school was located — but that isn't the point we want to raise.

Our point is that right now, because we are not daylight and it is, we must now get up at 5 a.m. to catch the early morning national news program we used to be able to see by getting up at 6.

And, brother, it's really dark outside at 5 a.m.

REALLY SPRING? Remember a day or two ago when it was only 5 degrees above zero? Well that was the morning Elva Knowles, who lives on Fillmore Street in Twin Falls, looked out her window and saw a tree in her yard full of robins.

MR. SPECTATOR

And in on with winter notes — The Salt Lake City International airport was closed to all traffic for more than seven hours Monday afternoon and night because 13 inches of snow fell there.

Almost planes usually stopped at Salt Lake before coming to Twin Falls skipping the Utah city and landed at Justin Field and the eastbound flights also skipped Salt Lake enroute to the coast. Which proves — perhaps spring has come to Twin Falls, even if it is just a little nippy.

Thosteson, M.D.

Security first

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a four-month-old baby and have tried for three months to stop him from sucking his thumb.

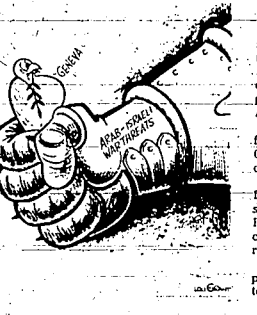

I have put socks on his hands and he sucks through. His father smacks his hand when he puts his thumb in his mouth but it seems to make him suck it more. What should I do now?

Mrs. S.D.G. Start by ignoring the thumb-sucking. It comes natural to a baby. It's a form of security to him. And smacking his hands at this age just makes him want that much more security — from his thumb.

Just let him do it as much as he wants. When he is older, he'll probably outgrow it. Most babies do. If he doesn't stop in a couple of years, that will be time enough to do something about it.

By then he'll be old enough to understand, at least somewhat, about it. Now he can't.

BIRD IN THE HAND

Oil crisis bad for everyone except industry

By LEONARD SILK (c) New York Times Service NEW YORK — The oil crisis appears to be itself worse for everyone except the oil industry.

The major oil companies increased their profits spectacularly during the first nine months of 1973. Exxon's profits were up 59 per cent over the first nine months of 1972; Shell, up 41 per cent; Mobil, up 40 per cent; Texaco, up 35 per cent; Gulf, up 60 per cent; Standard Oil, California, up 51 per cent — and Occidental Petroleum up a tidy 47 per cent.

Although it is impossible to get exact breakdowns between foreign and domestic earnings, it is clear that the biggest gains in earnings of United States-based multinational oil companies came from their profits abroad last year.

Oil industry analysts calculate that the foreign earnings of the major American oil companies were up enormously in 1973, while their domestic earnings increased only moderately.

However, the outlook now is for a dramatic switch in 1974 — with oil industry earnings from domestic operations rising spectacularly and earnings from foreign operations rising only moderately.

This is the conclusion reached by Walter W. Heller, newly elected president of the American Economic Association, and George J. Perry, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution in Washington.

In an analysis prepared for the National City Bank of Minneapolis, they conclude the overall jump in petroleum cash flow in 1974 will be "breath-taking" — amounting to $13-billion, or about triple their present domestic earnings.

There are drawbacks

WASHINGTON — Almost everyone in the White House has been impressed with President Nixon's commercial flight to San Clemente, Calif., for the holidays.

But there are a few people who are concerned the President might make a habit of flying on a commercial airline and it could endanger the national security of the country.

Suppose, for example, the President gets a call at San Clemente from Henry Kissinger in Washington, D. C.

"Mr. President, I think you better get back right away. The Russians are up to something in the Middle East, and it could mean serious consequences for the Free World as we know it."

The President shouts to his wife: "Pat, we have to get back to Washington right away! We're leaving in a half hour."

Nixon dials the airliner: "He gets a recording. 'Due to the energy crisis,' the voice says, 'all of our reservation clerks are tied up. Your call has been put into a computer and as soon as one of them is free, we will connect you.'"

The party of 20 drives to the Los Angeles airport. "You get the luggage," the President yells to Pat. "I'll get the tickets."

Nixon gets into a long line. He waits 20 minutes and finally gets to the counter. "The reservation clerk puts up a sign: 'Next Counter Please.'"

The President says, "Look, I've got to get to Washington, D. C."

The clerk, who is counting his cash, says: "I don't care if you're the President of the United States. This counter is closed."

"But I am the President of the United States," "You are? Could I have your autograph?"

"Yes," the President says, signing his name. "Now can I have tickets to Washington, D. C.?"

"I'm sorry," the clerk replies. "I'm going to lunch."

The President gets in the next line. Pat comes up and says, "You should have gotten in this line in the first place."

A half-hour later the President is at the counter. "I would like 20 first-class seats to Washington, D. C., on Flight 151."

"The reservation clerk goes to the computer. 'We don't have 20 first-class seats. We can put three in first class, 12 in tourist and the rest will have to be standby.'"

"All right, but hurry," the President urges. "The plane is leaving in five minutes."

"Is this family plan?" the reservation clerk asks.

"For heaven's sakes, please, I don't want to miss the plane. A generation of peace depends on me getting on this flight."

"Yes, sir. I'll have to write up these tickets."

"Look, just take this money and write them up later."

"I'm sorry, sir. That would be highly irregular. You do have time, you know."

"What do you mean, I have time?"

"Flight 151 has been canceled. The next flight will leave at 3 o'clock tonight with a change of equipment in Waco, Texas."

Indira may have gained edge

By NEA-London Economist News Service NEW DELHI (LENS) — The Indians are confident that Prime Minister Indira Gandhi got the better of the bargain in her recent talks with Leonid Brezhnev in New Delhi.

She staved off the Soviet leader's plea for Indian endorsement of his "redemptive security" scheme for Asia, even though her warm references to Soviet friendship will have given Brezhnev satisfaction; they show that India does not consider nonalignment to mean a policy of equidistance between Russia and America.

But India stood firm in refusing special facilities in Indian ports for Russia's Indian Ocean fleet, and its embargo on vessels carrying nuclear weapons remains unchanged.

The most important benefit from the visit for India was the 15-year economic agreement signed by the two leaders. For the first time the Russians have promised to improve future credit terms to ease India's staggering repayment burden.

Even more valuable is a commitment to provide specialized components and technological aid for existing plants.

Mrs. Gandhi came away with a Russian promise to see India through its next five-year plan. The actual credits will still have to be negotiated separately for each project. But Brezhnev has given the green light. What the Soviet Union gets in return is the chance to demonstrate — the advantages of Soviet friendship over China's.

New image goal

(c) Chicago Daily News BEIRUT — The Arab countries are launching a campaign to shine up their image in the United States.

A special "people-to-people" envoy from the Arab League will spend three months touring American cities "to clarify the basic Arab position and the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people."

He is Clovis Makoud, 46, former Arab League ambassador to India. Makoud was educated in the United States and has been there several times to lecture.

Makoud said his mission is "to attempt to remove all the factors that block the flow of communications between the Arab and American people."

This finding is based on the following assumptions and notes:

Domestic crude oil in 1974 will sell for an average of $7 per barrel, and imported crude oil will sell for an average of $8.50 a barrel. Domestic petroleum prices, representing a mix of domestic and foreign produced oil, and of "old" (price-controlled) oil, will be up 50 per cent over prices in the summer of 1973.

These price estimates seem conservative. Foreign crude oil prices for deliveries to the United States are in fact likely to average more than $9 if the present Persian Gulf price of about $11.65 holds. But even if there is some price shading or reductions by members of the International Oil Cartel, as some foreign spokesmen have hinted, the average price seems unlikely to go below $8.50.

And the White House has clearly implied its willingness to accept a $7 price for "old" and "new" crude oil in the domestic market.

Given the resulting 50 per cent product price increase over last summer, Heller and Perry estimate that the petroleum industry will realize a $20-billion rise in sales proceeds for 1974.

But this increase in yield will be realized on a lower sales volume — amounting to 2.7 million barrels a day. That shortfall will mean an implicit cost saving of $4 billion, or top of the $20-billion increase in sales proceeds.

Of this $24-billion gain, about $8 billion will go to foreign governments, the economist estimate, while $3 billion will go to the United States government if the administration's windfall excise tax of crude oil is enacted.

Hansen Council formed

HANSEN — Reorganization of the Hansen City Council and approval of a $25,000 interim budget were reported today by Mayor Harold Miller.

During the meeting Monday night, Mayor Miller administered the oath of office to Sandra Goley, newly elected council member. George Urie, re-elected councilman, John Brasler, also re-elected, was not present. Mayor Miller appointed Mrs. Goley as clerk of the council and John Brasler as president. He asked George Urie to serve as fire chief and recreation director.

Mothers plan dimes march Jan. 29-31

TWIN FALLS — The annual Mothers' March of Dimes will be conducted Jan. 29-31 in Twin Falls.

An orientation meeting will be held for volunteer marchers today at 7:30 p.m. in the Idaho Power Auditorium. The Mothers' March will be explained and supplies and materials distributed.

All interested persons are encouraged to attend. Those wishing to work in the march are asked to contact Mrs. Robert Becker, Mothers' March chairman, at 733-1604. During the march, volunteers will go door-to-door collecting contributions for the fight against birth defects.

Forty per cent of all contributions will be retained in Twin Falls County. The remainder is used for national research and public education. A number of local infants and youths receive aid from the March of Dimes—for birth defect problems.

Rehab officials meet here

TWIN FALLS — Vocational Rehabilitation agency officials and staff personnel from facilities throughout the state serving the handicapped met here Tuesday to learn how they could be more effective.

Ken-Jones, Boise, facility supervisor for the VR, said his agency's purpose is to help any type of handicapped or disabled person become employed. Changing standards and study in recent years have shown many persons once believed "unemployable now can be helped to become at least partially self supporting," he said.

The VR works with three criteria, he said. "The individual—must—have—a disability, the disability must be such that it will lead to the employment, and evaluation must indicate good expectation that the person will be able to become employable."

The staff members from the five facilities throughout the state where handicapped persons are trained, including the Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services, Inc., told of their problems. The VR purchases services from these facilities.

Lyle Frazier and Tom Schaefer, Twin Falls, represented Regal Homes in a request for annexation of a parcel of land just north of the city where they hope to build a housing subdivision.

The council approved the plan as presented, except for the three fire hydrants. It was recommended four be installed to serve the subdivision.

Council members were asked to contact the Idaho Power Co. to plan for location and installation of underground cable for the proposed eight street lights. Developers asked this be done before streets and curbs are in. They also asked for a water leakage test which will require use of the city fire truck.

FCC orders meets

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) has ordered public hearings on proposed rate changes by American Telephone and Telegraph Co. for intercity leased lines to enable the commission to hear objections from the news media and others.

REP. BENJAMIN ROSENTHAL, D-N.Y., tells a news conference Wednesday that the oil and utility industries are conducting a propaganda blitz picturing themselves as blameless for the energy crisis. Rosenthal displays one of the ads as he made the charge and announced that a group of Congressmen and Senators have petitioned the Federal Trade Commission to stop the "false and misleading" advertisements. (UPI)

Propaganda blitz

United Press International, the Associated Press and other news services protested to the FCC that the tariff revisions would be discriminatory and would impede the free flow of information. The American Newspaper Publishers Association also opposed the changes.

Lawyers ask trial dismissal

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Defense attorneys for two American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders on trial in connection with the Wounded Knee takeover accused the government Wednesday of creating "an atmosphere of terror" for potential witnesses.

Monetary fund reform studied

(c) N.Y. Times Service — A new strategy for negotiating reform of the International Monetary Fund is emerging at the levels of the United States government, partly because of the uncertainties created by the world oil situation.

Contract 'touches'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Steel union leaders today are putting the finishing touches on their contract demands, which could set a pattern for other labor contracts which will involve more than $ million workers this year.

US consumption of gas drops

By United Press International — President Nixon's administration has launched two initiatives aimed at easing the world's energy crisis, as new figures showed U.S. gasoline consumption is dropping rapidly.

Lost and found

BERLIN (UPI) — West Berliners last year turned in $77,000 in lost and found items, the Bureau said Wednesday.

Signed, blank checks Hughes campaign gift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An agent for billionaire Howard Hughes says he gave a batch of blank checks to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Sally Harmony, secretary to former campaign aide and Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy, said in a sworn deposition made public Wednesday that she filled in the amounts on the checks, totaling $50,000.

In her deposition, given last April 27 in a damage suit filed by the Democratic National Committee against the President, she said she "Watergated" the checks by signing them for Robert Bennett, a Washington-based public relations man for Hughes.

Bennett, in a statement to UPI, said the blank checks were delivered to Liddy because his own secretary was tied up and didn't have time to fill in the amounts.

"The scenario runs this way," Bennett said. "The decision was made to contribute $50,000 from Howard Hughes to the re-election of Richard Nixon."

"I went over to the Finance Committee for the Re-Election of the President on the 6th of April and told them I was prepared to contribute $50,000 of Mr. Hughes' money as his agent," he said.

Because there is a ceiling of $3,000 on giving to any one entity, Bennett said Liddy gave him a list of committees to make the checks out to.

"I took the list back to my office. My secretary was busy and had something important to get out. I said, 'when you get a free minute, type a committee name on each check,'" Bennett said.

He said he was then called by Liddy—who told him the contributions, in order to remain secret, had to be made and processed by April 6 and that the committee was getting ready to make a deposit.

"We don't want to rush you," he quoted Liddy as saying, "but could we get it right away?"

Bennett said Liddy came over to pick the checks up and, after seeing that the amount was not typed in, said "Look, my secretary can do that. Let me take them over and she can do that."

The $50,000 contributed by Hughes through Bennett is in addition to the $100,000 another Hughes agent gave Nixon's close friend Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo. Rebozo has told investigators he kept that money in a safe deposit box three years and then returned it. He filled in blank checks—16 for $3,000 and one for $2,000—were cashed.

'Gate probers question Mitchell

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — The office of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski has questioned former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell about an apparent conflict between his sworn testimony and a taped conversation in 1971 with President Nixon.

Mitchell's previously undisclosed talk with Nixon on the controversial ITT case was revealed in a White House statement denying any presidential misconduct in theitrust suit.

The document said Mitchell urged Nixon to cancel an order to the Justice Department to drop the appeal of a ruling favorable to the giant conglomerate. If the order stood, Mitchell warned, Erwin N. Griswold might resign as solicitor general.

Nixon accepted Mitchell's plea and cancelled the directive he issued two days before on April 19, 1971, to Richard G. Kleindienst, who was then deputy attorney general and in charge of the ITT lawsuit, the White House said.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., drew the appeal of a ruling favorable to the giant conglomerate. If the order stood, Mitchell warned, Erwin N. Griswold might resign as solicitor general.

"There is absolutely no way to resolve the conflicting versions of events. Either two attorneys general committed perjury or the White House has once again misrepresented the facts."

The special prosecutor's office questioned Mitchell about his 1971 meeting with the President, recorded on Nixon's secret taping system, according to Mitchell's attorney, William C. Hundley.

"It's a case of Mitchell backing his buys," Hundley said. "Mitchell's position is that the President was getting bad advice."

Hundley said he saw no conflict between Mitchell's testimony and the White House meeting, saying that Mitchell did not discuss the merits of the ITT case in a brief talk with the President. Mitchell testified he had disqualified himself from the ITT case because his former law firm had represented an ITT subsidiary before he became attorney general.

Latest report version differs

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — The White House explanation of President Nixon's decision to raise milk price supports apparently contradicts a recent declaration by the President that he refused all information about campaign contributions prior to the 1972 election.

A news conference on Oct. 29, the President asserted in response to a question on his campaign finances that he had always refused to accept contributions himself, that he had refused to have any discussion of contributions and that he "did not want to have any information from anybody with regard to campaign contributions."

However, the White House paper, issued Tuesday, disclosed for the first time that the President had received information from two sources about campaign contribution pledges by milk producers before he had decided to grant the producers' wishes by raising milk price supports.

The White House reported that Charles W. Colson, former counsel to Nixon, had written a memorandum to the President informing him of a $2 million pledge from Associated Milk Producers Inc. (AMPI) and suggesting that the President acknowledge the producers' support.

The White House said the President had declined to bring up the subject of the campaign pledge during the meeting.

The White House said allegations that the campaign contributions influenced the decision to raise the milk price supports were totally false.

But the White House material gave no indication that the President had rejected or even was annoyed about receiving information about the promised contributions—or, for that matter, that he did not expect such information as a matter of course.

These leukemic cells become normal cells—but only in the test tube.

"This does not happen when DMSO is given to leukemic animals, but it does give us a clue and I'm hopeful."

DMSO remains an experimental agent for clinical studies in the United States although the Food and Drug Administration has released it as a prescriptive substance for veterinary medicine. A great deal of clinical research with DMSO has been done in foreign countries.

Auto jobs slashed

DETROIT (UPI) — Auto industry layoffs because of the energy shortage effect on big car sales rose to nearly 61,000 today as the Ford Motor Co. announced it will add 2,550 workers to the list of the unemployed.

The latest Ford cutbacks will become effective Feb. 4 at the St. Louis assembly plant, where 1,435 workers are being laid-off indefinitely.

In addition, 7,000 workers at the two plants face one and two-week layoffs next week and in the final week of the month as Ford buys more than 9,000 full-size cars out of its January production schedule.

With the announced cutbacks, Ford will take a total of 8,550 workers. That is, well below the 38,000 General Motors has announced since early December when automakers began cutting back production to reduce their inventories of unsold big cars.

Chrysler has 12,000 workers on indefinite layoff and American Motors, with its heavy emphasis on the hot-selling small models, has furloughed only 200 workers indefinitely.

"The President has never talked to me about any antitrust case that was in the (Justice) department," Mitchell testified on March 14, 1972.

Kleindienst, questioned under oath six days earlier, said "in the discharge of my responsibility as the acting attorney general in these (ITT) cases, I was not interfered with by anybody at the White House. I was not pressured; I was not directed."

Tests spur hopes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Conceding the process so far works only in test tubes, a researcher at New York's Mt. Sinai Medical Center said Wednesday she was "hopeful" the drug, some day, could be used to turn leukemic cells in the blood into normal ones.

In a speech to a conference sponsored by the New York Academy of Sciences on the drug's biological actions, Dr. Charlotte Friend said, "in a tissue culture, when DMSO (dimethyl-sulfoxide) is added to leukemic immature cells these leukemic cells become normal cells—but only in the test tube.

"This does not happen when DMSO is given to leukemic animals, but it does give us a clue and I'm hopeful."

DMSO remains an experimental agent for clinical studies in the United States although the Food and Drug Administration has released it as a prescriptive substance for veterinary medicine. A great deal of clinical research with DMSO has been done in foreign countries.

ANTIQUE JARS AT SWENSEN'S MAGIC MARKETS

JOIN THE NEW AGE-IT-YOURSELF MOVEMENT

Antiques of the future at Swensen's Markets today . . . at reduced prices. Swensen's confidently predict that Kerr Canning Jars purchased this week will become authentic, genuine, honest-to-goodness antiques in about 100 years (if they're not all broken by then).

Furthermore, by buying these antiques now, instead of when they become antiques (100 years from now), you'll be able to save much $$$money; these same jars will probably bring anywhere from $2.00 to $5.00 apiece at any common garage sale or antique auction in 2074. Plus you have the advantage of being able to fill the jars with food for 99 consecutive years (what a bargain!)

Other uses for jars while they age suggested in Swensen's ad last week.

For all other fine bargains (not necessarily antiques), please study the rest of our ad!!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My father died three months ago after a long and difficult illness. I looked after his needs daily, while my brother and his wife looked out the window. After the funeral I let my brother have it; but good, and we haven't spoken since.

My husband, however, never did bear a grudge against my brother. He still plays golf with him, and they are the best of friends. This really hurts me, Abby. Don't you think that out of loyalty to me my husband should not be pulling around with my brother?

REMEMBERS DADDY

Family feud

DEAR REMEMBERS: Not necessarily. I think your husband is showing more maturity than you. I agree, you have good reason to be upset with your brother, but what's to be gained by perpetuating a family feud? It's already causing trouble between you and your husband. Try to forget the past and work toward improving your relationship with your brother. It may take a while, but if you start now, the happy ending will come sooner.

DEAR ABBY: My parents and I get along great except when it comes to their ideas on how I should dress.

I am not allowed to wear midrifts, halters, or anything that shows my lower back. Also, I can't show my stomach or belly-button. To them, if a girl shows her belly-button, it's as bad as going naked.

It's unbelievable how old-fashioned they are in some ways, considering how modern they are in other ways.

Oh, I'm a 15-year-old girl. I really love my parents and realize they care about me, but do they have to restrict my clothing like they do?

ST. CLOUD, FLA.

DEAR SAINT: You should thank your lucky stars they do. There are a lot of welders running around who don't need anything more than an exposed belly-button to set them off.

DEAR ABBY: I suppose I am about the 100,000th girl with the same problem. I've fallen in love with a married man. He's my boss.

He's 20 years older than I am, but we really are crazy about each other. His wife knew about us from the start and sort of accepted it, but he kept putting off leaving her, so I moved out of town and tried to forget him. He called and begged me to come back, promising to divorce his wife, so I came back. Well, he stalled some more.

It's been over a year now. I'm still seeing him, and I'm back where I started from. Recently I called his wife, and she was just great. She said she knew how much her husband loved me and would give him a divorce in a minute, but HE didn't want one.

I'm attracted to him and he said his wife was morally unbalanced and not responsible for what she said, and I shouldn't pay any attention to it.

Who can I believe? And what should I do? ... IN A TRAP

DEAR IN: Get out of his life—and out of town. If necessary, and forget him. And if he calls you again, don't have any more dialog with him. He's bad news.

TWIN FALLS — Swinging Sixties Club will meet Friday at 8 p.m. at the IOOF Hall. Live music will be featured for dancing.

TWIN FALLS — CSI Faculty Wives and Women will have a potluck luncheon Jan. 17 at noon at the home of Mrs. Debbie Kniffel, 808 Chestnut Drive. Those attending should call Marilee Kohz, 734-4927 before Jan. 15.

TWIN FALLS — Amoma Class of the First Baptist Church will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the church parlor.

Medical auxiliary convenes

TWIN FALLS — Medical Auxiliaries are doing much in the way of programs for the aged, child abuse prevention, nutrition in the schools and general health programs, Mrs. Roy Shaub told a luncheon meeting here.

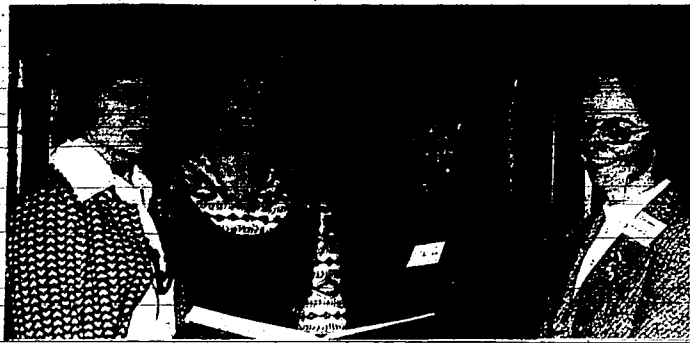

Mrs. Shaub, Twin Falls, is president of the Idaho Medical Auxiliary and was honored Tuesday in a luncheon of the South Central Idaho Medical Auxiliary at the Black Whale Restaurant.

Also honored was Mrs. Quentin Quickstad, Boise, president elect of the state organization.

Mrs. Michael Phillips, local president, and Mrs. Russell Newcomb, local president elect, were in charge of the luncheon.

Mrs. Shaub said state-wide and nationally auxiliary women are turning their attention to important issues and problems and in helping in many health problems. The Education and Research Foundation, since its inception in 1951 has raised more than $6 million to assist in such work.

Mrs. Quickstad announced a workshop to be held in Boise Jan. 31 and Feb. 1. This will be sponsored by the Woman's Auxiliary to the Idaho Medical Association and is a legislative workshop. Current and pending legislative programs will be explained and discussed, she said.

Programs discussed

Fashionable

The energy saving fashion in the laundry room? Using cold water detergent and using, of course, cold water to do the laundry. It saves a lot of energy—in particular the energy needed to heat the hot water. It may become the fashion in laundry rooms everywhere—especially if Uncle Sam mandates that cold water wash is to become the rule.

blame negative doubles for his action. North had barely enough for a negative double at the one level. His three level double had to be close to suicidal.

On the other hand if he didn't have that toy to play with he would have passed. West would have played three spades and been down one after losing two clubs, two diamonds and a spade.

As it was, South bid four hearts in response to his partner's request. When it got around to East, he doubled. West opened the ace of spades and continued with the queen which East ruffed. After this start East still made two trump tricks and a club for a nice 500-point profit.

Library activities

TWIN FALLS — Libraries are not just for reading books. The Twin Falls Public Library also offers games for patrons of all ages and interests. These are available for use in the children's room of the library and include everything from games to interest small children to chess for players of all ages. Games also include checkers, dominoes and BSVT, a crossword game, slate, world and literary puzzles. Appropriate books on strategy and form leveling each of the games are also available to assist the novice or pro alike.

Hoop shoot slated

RUPERT — Competition in the National Hoop shoot will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Rupert Civic Auditorium. Sponsored in Mindoka County by the Rupert Elks Lodge, the event is open to boys aged 8 to 13. The competition will be held for three age brackets: 8 and 9-year-olds, 10 and 11-year-olds and 12 and 13-year-olds.

Jack Bell, chairman of the local contest, said the winner in each bracket will be eligible for competition in the district match to be held later this month in Blackfoot.

He said each boy will be allowed 25 basket attempts. The boy with the highest percentage of baskets will win.

WHEN MOST Magic Valley residents are sealed on snowdrifts this February, participants of the annual Times-News Magic Carpet tour will be seated in the Plaza benches as they visit The Cathedral of Guadalupe, Mexico. The second largest city in Mexico will be one of three areas visited by tour members leaving Twin Falls Feb. 16.

February tour set

'Magic Holiday' tour sellout

TWIN FALLS — The annual Times-News "Magic Holiday" tour is a sellout.

With reservations made for 200 participants, the only "tickets" still available are two which will be sponsored by merchants of Twin Falls and five which will be sponsored by firms in Jackpot, Nevada. The number taking this year's trip to Old Mexico — will equal the number taking the 1973 jaunt to Hawaii.

The tour to Mexico will start at the Twin Falls City-County Airport the morning of Feb. 16 when members board a Hughes Airwest jet. The return trip will be made Feb. 26, with arrival in Twin Falls on the night flight from Salt Lake City. Air transportation between Salt Lake City and Mexico City on the initial phase will be over Western Airlines while return will be on Airwest. The two airlines, the Times-News and Magic Carpet Travels of Twin Falls and Burley are cooperating in the tour.

Tour members will spend four nights in Mexico City, three in Guadalajara — Mexico's largest and second largest cities respectively — and three nights at Manzanillo, located on the Pacific Ocean shore.

Because of the number participating it will be necessary to transport members in two busses for ground portions of the trip. Within Mexico the hop from Mexico City to Guadalajara will be on a major Mexican airline.

Meanwhile, merchants of Twin Falls are launching the program which will see two free tickets — with a total value of $1,150 — offered to citizens of the Magic Valley. Advertising will carry coupons which participants can deposit at the stores. At Jackpot the first free ticket was given away Sunday afternoon and this plan will be followed on each of the next four Sundays.

In the event any of the 80 registered will be unable to go, an announcement will be made thus permitting others to sign up. Joe Stansbury, owner-manager of Magic Carpet Travels, will lead this year's tour.

Chapter No. 29, OES, meets

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Chapter No. 29; Order of Eastern Star, met in a stated meeting Tuesday night with Mrs. and Mrs. James Clark, worthy matron and worthy patron, presiding.

Introduced and welcomed was James Clark, newly elected high priest of Twin Falls Chapter No. 15, Royal Arch-Masons of Idaho. Thank you notes were read from Mrs. Ina Wilson, worthy grand matron, and Fred Curry, worthy grand patron.

Mrs. Clark announced donations are still being accepted on the sign-in. The money will be used for the International Temple Fund.

Regional fuel reserves OK

TWIN FALLS — A sharply reduced supply of petroleum and petroleum-based products is the major factor affecting national economic matters in the first half of 1974, although the regional outlook "is favorable."

While the extent and impact of the Arab oil boycott and the ensuing petroleum gap is yet unknown, it is clear that the productive capacity of the United States will be affected. This is the report of the quarterly First Security Bank News Letter, Twin Falls, Kenneth J. Newman, vice president and manager, said.

The publication is edited by Dr. Elroy Nelson, First Security vice president and economist. The current energy shortage, intensified by the Arab nation crude oil boycott, has focused attention upon this highly complex and far-reaching problem, continues the report. According to First Security, the basic roots of the problem have been buried in depressed prices of crude oil, controlled prices of natural gas at the well-head and unreasonable environmental restrictions. Accordingly, demand for petroleum and natural gas in the U. S. over the past decade has grown by 50 per cent and 65 per cent respectively, and by 1972 these industries provided 78 per cent of the total energy consumed in the U. S.

imported, of which one-third came from the Eastern Hemisphere. With the national consumption of petroleum at almost 18 million barrels a day, the Arab boycott will directly reduce the supply by 2 million barrels a day or about 11 per cent.

The Intermountain region of Idaho, Utah and the southwestern portion of Wyoming has relatively adequate production facilities and reserves to meet the energy requirements of this region.

This includes coal, crude oil and refined petroleum products, electricity, and from areas within and just beyond the region, natural gas. Increased production and utilization are anticipated in 1974 for these energy sources. Government allocation of heating oil, gasoline and natural gas may transfer energy production in the Intermountain region to other regions.

The gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products marketed from the five Salt Lake Area refiners (a sixth — Crown Refining — is being added in 1974) are approximately equal to the total demand for such products in the marketing area of Utah, Idaho, a portion of Wyoming and eastern Nevada.

Exploration, drilling and development of new fields and extension of old ones is accelerating, especially in the Utah Basin and in southern Wyoming. No significant cutback in the utilization of natural gas — excepting interruptible users, is anticipated in the Intermountain area.

Electrical energy utilized in the Intermountain region has doubled over the past decade, continues the report. New electrical generating plants coming on stream in mid-1974 at plants at Huntington, Utah and east of Rock Springs, Wyoming will add almost 20 per cent to the total generating facilities in the region. For the immediate future, construction of additional power plant units must begin at both plants to provide additional generation.

US blockade drop Havana talk price

(c) New York Times Service
 MEXICO CITY — A Cuban diplomat has said Havana would be willing to hold political talks with Washington if the United States lifted its economic blockade of the island.

In a news conference, Fernando L. Lopez Mulino, Cuba's ambassador to Mexico, said Havana's "single and irrevocable" condition for resuming contacts with the United States government was the "unconditional and unilateral" ending of the 12-year-old economic blockade. He also said the United States continued use of its naval base at Guantanamo "is not important to us" and would not be an obstacle to talks between Washington and Havana.

Cuban embassy sources in Mexico City stressed that, despite press speculation that Havana was putting out feelers to Washington, the ambassador merely reiterated Cuba's oil-stated policy toward the United States.

Two weeks ago Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told reporters that "the major obstacle to a rapprochement has been the hostility of the government of Cuba and its commitment to a revolutionary policy throughout the western hemisphere."

Robbery stalled

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — Chance arrival of two children apparently broke up an armed robbery attempt at a Caldwell convenience store Wednesday night.

The youngsters entered the store about 10 p.m. while the holdup was in progress.

Caldwell police said a man and a woman, who appeared to be of Mexican descent, were in the store. They said the man pointed a pistol at the youngsters, told them to shut up and then he and the woman fled.

Clark Arlette Call, 40, was treated at Caldwell Memorial Hospital for a bump on the head and released.

Blaine meet set

KETCHUM — Land use planning will be the topic of tonight's Wood River Roundtable session.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the Ernest Hemingway Elementary School.

Discussed will be four land use planning bills which have been pre-introduced in a series for consideration by the upcoming state legislative sessions. A state-prepared film on land use planning will also be shown, with commentary by a State Planning Agency staff member.

The public is invited to attend.

Roads ley

BOISE (UPI) — Many of Idaho's major roads were snow covered or icy today.

Tire chains were recommended for safe travel on at least two of them — Lookout Pass on Interstate 90 and Idaho City to Lowman on State Route 21.

Probe continues

SUN VALLEY — Investigation is continuing into the two early morning fires Dec. 28 and 29 in Sun Valley.

According to Sun Valley Police Chief Dude Cain, the investigation is being conducted by his department, Sun Valley, Security, and state investigator Dan Kelley.

Cain said Kelley has submitted material found at the second fire in the attic above the Ram Restaurant for laboratory testing. The police chief said some information from several sources had been checked out and eliminated and other leads are being followed.

Both the first fire in the Sun Valley Lodge attic and the Ram attic fire caused minimal damage.

'Coffee break'

TWIN FALLS — Someone left several years' supply of coffee on the door step of Lois Hathaway, 21, Holly Lane, this morning, but she turned it over to the police department.

She said she opened her back door about the time her children were leaving for school and found a large plastic bag full of smaller plastic bags of coffee.

She said a bill was enclosed for $72 for the 60 pounds of coffee. It was issued to the Magic Lake Resort, she said, and probably stolen from a delivery truck.

Preston on DST

PRESTON (UPI) — Preston businesses plan to ignore the fact that the rest of Southern Idaho is on Mountain Standard Time and advance their clocks to Daylight Savings Time.

The Preston Chamber of Commerce obtained agreement from representatives of businesses in the community near the Utah border to operate their firms on daylight time.

Preston's economy is geared to that of neighboring Utah, which is currently on DST.

Commission charged

BOISE (UPI) — A member of the Idaho Racing Commission says chairman permitted illegal licensure of a private race track at Coeur d'Alene.

Kenneth Malone, Engle, made the allegation Wednesday in the wake of reports of a legislative audit critical of Malone.

Father Thomas C. Halpin, a Catholic priest who chairs the commission, denied Malone's allegation.

He said the commission did agree to require the Coeur d'Alene Turf Club, the only exclusively private track in Idaho, to provide an audit prepared by a certified public accountant.

However, he said, the track sent the commission an audit that was "certified" but which had not been prepared by a certified public accountant.

Pollution found

BOISE (UPI) — A study team of Idaho college and university students says it found mercury pollution of sufficient levels to be a serious hazard to any kind of tourist development in Silver City.

The 12-member team spent most of the summer in the old mining region in the Owyhee Mountains analyzing mercury levels under sponsorship of the National Science Foundation.

Dennis Williams, Boise, project geologist, said the team found mercury "getting into the food chain—the fish and plants of the area."

He said the source of the con-tamination was traced directly to the 14 mill sites surrounding Silver City and is a hazard for tourist development of the historic mountain town.

Federal audit claims irregularities in CSI use of student work funds

HEW auditor James Durnell told the Times-News he believes the overpayments to students were made partly because the college had more work-study funds. He said that although there was "no waste of money," the college had more work-study money than other colleges and was trying to use it.

Durnell said that "very few" exceptions students eligible for work study funds got them and students from wealthy families were not among those being paid.

The audit states the overpayments were made because the college failed to consider all sources of income:

- in determining total student resources, college officials failed to include actual student income, parental contribution, non-federal educational assistance, and inconsistently applied their needs analysis system.
- The report also shows that the college overpaid work-study funds because it did not consider scholarships, educational loans and other forms of educational assistance.

In 1972-73, $5,557 in excess awards of work-study funds were made to 19 out of 23 students who had sports scholarships and were on work-study and in this school year $5,228 were paid in excess to 10 out of 11 students who had sports scholarships and were on work-study.

Out of 25 students receiving other types of scholarships or loans and on work-study, $1,271 in overpayments were made "five students."

"These funds could possibly have been made available to other students in need of federal educational assistance," the audit states.

According to the audit, these overpayments were made to scholarship students "because the financial aid officer (David Perkins) was not aware of many of the awards and misinterpreted the terms of the athletic scholarships."

Perkins, the audit says, believed sports scholarships were only "advances to the students which had to be repaid out of CWS (work-study) earnings to the athletic department." Apparently, this caused non-consideration of most athletic scholarships in determining work-study eligibility.

CSI also understated the amount of summer earnings work-study students should have contributed towards their education because it used set figures: $300 for freshmen and $400 for sophomores. Instead, students should have contributed 20 percent of their summer earnings if they were living at home and 60 percent if living on their own. Generally the required contribution is considerably more than the standard used by the college, the audit said.

Even though HEW officials informed CSI officials of the incorrectness of the standards being used, the college continued use of the standards, the audit says.

Accumulation of federal monies and unauthorized expenditures built-up funds were other problems with the college's administration of the work-study program.

"We found the college had accumulated $25,887 of excess cash and had expended $8,750 more of CWS funds than were authorized by the grant awards," the report says.

While the leftover funds should have been used in the next work-study pay period with corresponding reductions in the amount of federal funds during the period, college officials said they were "unsure of what to do with the leftover," the report states.

Of a $11,359 carryover for 1970, the college spent $3,750 between the Jan. 1, 1971 through the June 30, 1972 grant periods. The auditors called for return of these spent funds to the federal government.

In its own exception to the audit recommendations, the college has asked the HEW associate commissioner of higher education that the college not be made to pay the $8,750 to the federal government.

Taylor said the college twice had requested permission to use the carryover money and received no response from HEW. He said that in spring of 1972, one of the federal auditors had contacted the Senior Program Officer of HEW Region 10 Ed Benschart and that Benschart believed the college should not be required to repay the money.

CSI did agree to using the $25,887 in left over money to reduce the amount of federal grant monies now being drawn.

Jerome crews busy

JEROME — Jerome City crews have been busy the past week keeping up with cold weather problems.

City crews Monday fixed a broken strap bolt in a water line on North Buchanan which had been leaking for some time. City engineer Bill Block said the leak was small and was causing no major problems.

Block said the crews have been busy with snow removal and sanding streets since Christmas and have not had time to complete the Christmas decorations which are still hanging in downtown Jerome.

Block said he didn't anticipate any problem with flooding if a sudden thaw should occur. "Our major problem with floods in the past has been along the Northside Canal which runs along Sixth Street."

Crews keep busy

STATE HIGHWAY Department crews in Shoshone have been kept busy this week keeping snow-plows, sanders and other snow removal equipment in working order to keep up with winter snows.

Albion project studied

By ED MITCHELL, Times-News writer

ALBION — Action to begin the new Albion City sewer project was discussed at the City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Albion must have a new sewer system under construction by this fall which will meet federal standards or face fines for stream pollution. Effluents are now going into streams draining to the federal government.

Presently—Albion has priority on federal grants to help finance the project but must begin to use them immediately before other small communities get them.

Local rancher Bennie Smyer appeared before the council to offer to sell land near the city for a lagoon system if the city would allow him to reclaim water for irrigation. He said that he could provide as much land as necessary for the project if the city would pay for the initial seven acres of solid set sprinkler system required to dissipate water from the lagoon.

Smyer suggested that by using this system the city could forego the cost and maintenance of a lift station as is required in the engineers' proposal of a full containment lagoon system.

The council voted to have engineers study the feasibility of this alternative.

Termination 'not clear'

SHOSHONE — It may be lack of communications but two different versions of a job termination in Lincoln County have been made public.

County Assessor Sanford Connell says he notified Mrs. C. F. Chatfield, wife of one of the county commissioners, last month of her job termination as a special secretary.

Mrs. Chatfield said she had asked him as late as Monday of this week if she had a job and his reply was, "I wish I knew."

She said she read about her job termination in the Times-News before she was notified by a registered letter.

Mayor Odeen Redman spoke in favor of the full containment plan as the best long term solution to environmental and maintenance problems. Redman said he felt the Environmental Protection Agency would disallow sprinkler systems within a decade. Engineer cost projections for the entire project including purchase of the necessary land are $12,740.

Albion City residents will be required to pay $8.95 per month for sewer service if a bond election passes. Residents who have built individual sewage units will have to hook up to the city system also.

The council voted to authorize city attorney Herman Bedke to draft an ordinance for a bond election for the sewer.

Authorization also was approved for the following: a pre-application form to be sent to the Federal Housing Administration, signing of application forms by the mayor, preparation of a land action sheet by engineers, engineer application check by the EPA and a project facts sheet to be sent to Albion citizens.

Mrs. Chatfield was hired two years ago to work on the county revaluation program and has continued doing assessment rolls and plat work since that time. She said she was told the assessor was going to need another employee and assumed she would have the job.

"If it was alright for a county commissioner's wife to work two years ago, why isn't it alright now?" her husband asked.

Connell said he investigated the hiring of a county official's wife in view of the nepotism factor two years ago and determined it would be satisfactory for a temporary program such as the revaluation work.

To continue to use Mrs. Chatfield in the office on a regular basis, he said, would be placing himself in a position that might be violating the law.

In announcing her termination, Connell emphasized he had no complaints with her work or her personally. "She did a good job and I have expressed my appreciation," he said. "I don't want to hurt her in any way, but the job has simply ended," he added.

Mrs. Chatfield said she will not contest her orders to leave the job, but does not feel Connell handled the matter properly. She said several persons told her they heard a radio news report about it before she was aware any action had been taken.

Blaine Council of Governments eyed

HAILEY — The Blaine County commissioners and area mayors will continue discussions into the proposed formation of a county council of governments.

After a meeting Tuesday between the two groups as well as community officials, commission chairman C. W. (Andy) Gardner said a second meeting will be scheduled for about mid January. That session will focus on information about councils of government.

Lloyd Curtis, Hailey, said a county council of governments could serve to pull the county together. Members may include area mayors, an appointed commissioner and representatives from such areas as Carey, Pizaba and the locally based Hailey and Kelchum, he said.

"Now is the time to do it," Curtis said.

By discussing the various problems that confront the entire county, a council of governments "probably can do a lot more for the county," he said, and such a group could do a service to everyone who lives here.

Sun Valley Co., president Alan Coleman spoke in favor of the concept and expressed his company's willingness to participate.

Coleman said pressures on the county are going to grow and "a corresponding obligation exists to enhance and maintain the quality of the county."

Calling the concept "a very healthy thing," Coleman said the county has closely interrelated economies.

"This type of initiative is a welcome one," he said, "I just don't think we can communicate enough."

In their action, the mayors agreed to notify the commissioners by Jan. 15 whether their council would favor participation in a proposed county recreation director program.

In the interim, programs submitted by applicants Kenneth Dilworth and James Praegitzer will be presented to the councils for review.

Proposed by the Blaine County Community Service Council, if adopted, the program will be jointly funded by the county and the cities.

Richard Jones, county school district psychologist, said very few activities existed in the county for children and adults except for paying sports.

Jones said the council feels first year expenses should only include the director's salary, travel expense and a small amount of office expense until it can be proven if the program will be successful.

Jones tentatively set this cost figure at $12,000.

Water leak repair set

MALTA — The hot water leak at a plugged oil well near Malta will be repaired sometime today, Standard American president Al Griffith said this morning.

The oil firm, which has drilled two exploratory wells in the Malta area, has been repairing the well for three days. The leak, pouring about 125 gallons of scalding 170 degree water per minute from the well, began about Dec. 28. The well was plugged about Dec. 10, Griffith said the pool of water, which had formed around the well head, was pumped out Monday. Officials then found that the ring on the valve which seals the wellhead, was missing.

Griffith said someone would have to have taken the ring for it to be missing.

Two men fell into the scalding pool the first week in January and were hospitalized with burns.

The oil firm is hoping to begin work on a new exploratory oil well in the Malta area sometime this month, Griffith said, but the starting date and location depend upon the completion of land negotiations.

Blaine board studies appeal

HAILEY — The Blaine County Board of Zoning Appeals took under advisement an appeal of a decision to grant the Idaho Power Co. a variance to construct a turbine generator and oil storage tank north of Hailey.

The action came after a two-hour long hearing Wednesday night.

Board chairman E. Lee Schlender said an executive meeting will be conducted Wednesday and that a decision on the matter will probably be filed by Jan. 18.

The appeal of the Dec. 18 county planning and zoning commission's decision had been made by Boise attorney John S. Chapman on behalf of Mrs. Dorothy J. Chapman.

Mrs. Chapman owns acreage neighboring the Wood River substation — the planned site for the 50,000-gallon oil storage tank, turbine generator and the 50,000-barrel oil storage tank.

During the hearing, arguments were presented by Chapman and Twin Falls attorney Thomas Nelson, representing Idaho Power. Both attorneys also earlier had submitted memorandum briefs.

Chapman's arguments centered on the environmental impact of the planned generator and an additional proposal for rebuilding an existing distribution line from the substation north of Ketchum into a 138,000 volt transmission line. He also questioned the effect of the oil storage tank on the public-health, welfare and safety.

US farm output increase predicted

Kinyon's ASCS term recognized

GUY KINYON, right, a Castleford farmer is presented a plaque on retiring after serving 10 years as county committeeman for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. Presenting the plaque is Kent Kirk, county executive director of A.S.C.S.

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI)—AGRICULTURE published government reports estimating that American farmers could increase output of some major crops by up to 50 per cent in little more than a decade, but only part of the story of the country's food-growing potential, economists say.

The new projections of possible farm output by 1985, published by the Agriculture Department, were based, according to department experts, largely on stepped-up use of techniques which have been used in the past. These include more use of hybrid seed, fertilizers and irrigation, chemical weed controls, and improved farm management.

Within this framework experts predicted last month that given "favorable" farm prices and adequate production supplies, U.S. agriculture could boost output of livestock feed grains 50 per cent by 1985 with an accompanying 44 per cent jump in beef cow numbers, a 30 per cent increase in cotton and a 33 per cent gain in soybeans. Rice production could double and peanut production could soar 400 per cent, the forecasters said.

Specialists in the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service (ERS) add, however, that these projections fall "well short" of what farmers could produce if the public is willing to invest in more tax-supported land development and research and if some new technology emerges.

"The projections did not consider new production possibilities that are now in some stage of research and development," an ERS report notes.

For example, the report says, new hybrids are being developed for wheat, barley and soybeans that could be ready for commercial use within 10 years if a concerted push is made. Wheat hybrids offering yield increases of 15 to 25 per cent are already available in limited quantities but may not make a major impact on production for five to seven years.

DDT hearing dates reset

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, said Tuesday the Environmental Protection Agency has changed the hearing schedule for possible use of DDT against the tussock moth.

Under the new schedule, hearings will be held Jan. 15 in Portland, Ore.; Jan. 16 in Walla Walla, Wash.; Jan. 28 in Coeur d'Alene; Jan. 30 in Seattle and Feb. 1 in Washington, D. C.

A hearing originally scheduled for Jan. 16 in Boise, was cancelled.

Cut wheat exports, bakery aide asks

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A wheat shortage may boost the price of bread to $1 a loaf by late spring unless the administration moves to curb exports temporarily, a baking industry spokesman said Wednesday.

Bill O. Mead, chairman of the American Bakers Association, told a news conference he advocated a mandatory export slowdown for the next six months until the nation begins in July to reap an anticipated record 2 billion bushel wheat crop in 1974. He said he was appealing to consumers because the administration previously has ignored such pleas, insisting that mandatory export limits are unnecessary.

Mead said current wheat exports of 20 million bushels a week should be cut in half. Otherwise, he said, the U.S. wheat reserves will be totally depleted when the season ends June 30.

Although the administration estimates that U. S. wheat reserves will fall no lower than 210 million bushels by June 20, officials quietly have been asking wheat exporters to voluntarily slow down overseas shipments during the next six months.

But Mead described the administration's effort to obtain a voluntarily slowdown as a "symbolic" that has not worked in the past.

Don Paarberg, chief economist for the Agriculture Department, described Mead's comments as "ridiculous" on the basis of the figures cited.

"If prices rise anywhere like what he is talking about," Paarberg said, "wheat would flow in from Canada and put a damper on it."

Jerry Rees, spokesman for the National Association of Wheat Growers, accused the bakers of "chasing prices up themselves with this talk of shortage."

Other industry spokesmen said Mead's estimate of $1 a loaf was based on a prediction that wheat could increase to $12 a bushel by spring, compared with $5.40 a bushel now and $2.94 a bushel six months ago.

At $12 a bushel, they said, the price of making a 15 pound loaf will go up 14 cents and the retail increase would be about 50 cents.

Mean blamed the current situation on the 1972 Soviet wheat deal, which depleted U.S. reserves. He called on President Nixon to honor a pledge he made last June 13 to "put the American consumer first."

NCAA completes meet of sweeping changes

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — No question, it's going to be difficult year ahead for Walter Byers and his National Collegiate Athletic Association Council. Byers and the other members of the Council sat by the past three days and watched the NCAA, during its annual convention, hand over powers to a new group of leaders. For instance, the Convention redefined its amateur code with possible loopholes, gave Byers authority to deal with the energy crisis any way he sees fit. Tighter recruiting in football and basketball and eliminated all restrictions on bowl invitations.

CSI's Ron Estes drafted by Phils

Ron Estes, fastballing righthander for the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles, was selected in Wednesday's free agent baseball draft. Estes, a sophomore for Coach Bob Bartfield's Eagles, was selected in the eighth round by the Philadelphia Eagles, probably at the behest of scout Ernie Schuerman, a Pocatello resident. "I'm Coach Bartfield, half, president for Estes and half for himself, 'our hitting appears to be down and now they're after pitchers.' " "We expected," the coach continued, "that Ron might be drafted last spring because he had a really fine year. I'm kind of surprised he was taken now because he wasn't nearly as sharp in the fall season, except for one game." Kevin Nelson, a lefty and outfielder first baseman for CSI, was not drafted this time around. Nelson has rejected offers from the Giants and Yankees following the past two drafts. "I suppose that they (baseball scouts) have decided to wait to see Kevin this spring. If he has a good one, he'll be drafted again," Coach Bartfield said. Estes, who is married and the father of a daughter, currently is in Anacosta, Mont., with his parents during the semester break. He was not available for comment Wednesday night.

Arnsperger appears to have Giant job

HOUSTON (UPI) — Only a few minor details need to be worked out before Bill Arnsperger is officially announced as head coach of the New York Giants. Sources close to the Miami Dolphins said Wednesday that Arnsperger, Don Shula's chief assistant and defensive coordinator, has agreed to take the job vacated by Alex Webster. Webster is still in the regular season. The only details standing in the way of the announcement concern Arnsperger's exact powers. He has long insisted that he would be under the general manager and the Giants recently have hired former star defensive end Andy Robustelli to oversee their football program. "I talked with the Giants last week and I will talk to them again next week," Arnsperger said earlier this week. The Giants, meanwhile, have scheduled a news conference in New York next Wednesday. Shula also confirmed that two teams had asked permission to speak with Arnsperger last week with the stipulation that no decision be made until after the Super Bowl game Sunday.

Colorado cans all grid aides

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — The University of Colorado assistant football coaches will not be rehired for 1974, apparently clearing the way for further negotiations to lure Miami of Ohio coach Bill Mallory as the new Buffaloes head coach. Sources said Mallory turned the job down last weekend because Colorado athletic director Eddie Crowder would not permit him to bring his six assistants from Miami to Colorado. That apparently has now changed, assistant coach Jim Mora said Wednesday. "We went over to see Eddie yesterday (Tuesday) and he said he was about to conclude a deal, but wouldn't tell us who the new guy is," Mora said. "But he said the new man wanted to bring his entire staff with him." CU executive vice president Roland Rostaustaus also said Wednesday the negotiations for a new coach were nearly completed and he confirmed the man was a major college head coach. Crowder continued to claim no coach was selected and that the job was available for comment. It was known, however, that Crowder and Mallory met privately shortly after midnight Tuesday, even though both men denied that report.

Jackson would like Williams to return

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reggie Jackson, the American League's Most Valuable Player, wants Dick Williams as his manager and hopes the controversial Williams will say just that today. Williams is scheduled to hold a news conference in Florida today, but Jackson, also the MVP in the World Series last October with the New York Mets, said he would not be present because of pressing speaking engagements. The outspoken Jackson, here to receive another award in a long string of honors, said he felt Williams would entertain a sincere request by his players to lead them to a third consecutive world title, even if it meant returning to work for Al's owner Charles O. Finley. "I'm the player representative for the A's," said Jackson. "I have their understanding and backing. We've sent a wire to Dick asking him to come back and manage us, even though we realize he's up against an immovable object (Finley)."

Suns outlast Rockets

PHOENIX (UPI) — The Phoenix Suns blew a 22-point halftime lead and had to fight off Houston in the last three minutes to defeat the Rockets 105-101 Wednesday night in a battle between the cellar-dwellers of the Pacific and Midwest Divisions. Houston, trailing 66-34 at intermission, came back to take its only lead of the game 91-90 with 3:25 remaining. Six straight free throws, four by Charlie Scott and two by Dick Van Arsdale, put Phoenix back ahead by five and the closest the Rockets came after that was 95-93 at the 2:00 mark. Scott led a balanced Phoenix attack with 19 points. Keith Erickson had 18, Van Arsdale 16 and Neal Walk 15. High scorer for the Rockets was Jack Marin, who came off the bench to get 17. Calvin Murphy and Ed Ratleff, another substitute, had 16 apiece for the Rockets.

S.C. batters Lafayette

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Sophomore Alex English ignited a second half spurt to split 14th ranked South Carolina to an 84-63 victory over scrappy Lafayette Wednesday night. The triumph was the 29th in a row for the Gamecocks at home and pushed their record for the season to 8-2. The Leopards kept the margin close and trailed only 64-57 when English began his scoring string. The Gamecocks scored the last 10 points of the game against the pressing Leopards, who lost for the third time in 10 games. English and Mike Dunleavy scored 20 points each for the Gamecocks while senior Brian Winters was the game high scorer with 24. Jim Portray led Lafayette with 18 points and three other Leopard starters wound up in double figures.

Smalley joins family in pro baseball ranks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Growing up in a family where both his father and uncle were major leaguers, it is no wonder that Roy Smalley nurtured a dream to be a ballplayer himself someday. "This has been my lifelong ambition," the younger Smalley, now a manager, said with a taste of success already behind him: "I was in Los Angeles Wednesday after signing a contract with the Texas Rangers." "I'm not there yet. In fact, I imagine I have a long way to go. But this at least is a start and I think you can imagine how a person would feel after dreaming about this since he was five years old, and finally getting a chance." Smalley, a switch-hitting shortstop who helped Southern California win the College World Series at Omaha, Neb., last season, was the No. 1 choice in the winter baseball draft on Wednesday. He was chosen by the Rangers, who earned that privilege by capturing the worst record in the majors last year. Just minutes after making their selection, the Rangers interrupted the draft, which was being conducted by telephone hookup in the commissioner's office, to announce they signed the young prospect. Terms weren't announced, but it was reported to be for a record draft sum of $100,000. Smalley said that both his father, who has the same name, and his uncle, Montreal Expo Manager Gene Mauch, coached him but never forced him to play. "I don't think there was a lot of pressure on me to turn pro," Smalley said. "I'm a 175-pound infielder said. 'We know I wasn't ready. We feel I'm ready now. I hope to stay with the Rangers and not have to go to the minors.' " "I'm pretty excited. As a team, the Rangers are a young club and I think I have a good chance to stick with them. There are more opportunities with a young club and for me

Long Beach St. rejects claim

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Officials at Long Beach State Wednesday suspended basketball stars Roscoe Ponderer and Glenn McDonald — have signed statements claiming they did not let other students take their college entrance examinations for them. Ponderer, a junior forward who was an all-Pacific Coast Athletic Association selection last year, and McDonald, a senior guard, were declared ineligible by the National Collegiate Athletic Association, meeting in San Francisco Thursday. The NCAA said unidentified persons took the examinations for Ponderer and McDonald, and that the test scores were higher than projections based on their junior high school IQ tests.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock prices opened mixed in New York after a day of moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrial average had gained 2.23 to 835.02 minutes after the opening. Declines held a moderate lead over advances among the 421 issues traded.

On Wednesday, inflation fears and concern over an apparent snarl in the Middle East talks sent the Dow to its seventh worst loss ever—28.99 to 824.70.

Since a government report was released early this week showing the inflation rate in 1973 was the worst in 27 years the Dow has plunged more than 45 points.

Also on investors' minds has been the soaring price of oil and its possible worldwide consequences. General concern over the health of European and Japanese economies, battered the stocks of a number of multinational companies in the Wednesday market slide.

Salmon mayor fires city works overseer

SALMON — Mayor Don Vial was sworn into office Monday night and successfully removed the city's works superintendent.

Dale Smith and Bob Stephanshen were sworn in as councilmen.

The third councilman elected in November, Jim Bennett, suffered a heart attack several weeks ago and is now at home recuperating.

Smith is starting his first term as councilman, and Stephanshen, his second term.

Mayor Vial advised again that he did not wish to rehire Virgil Schofield as city works superintendent and the council voted three to two to uphold his wishes in voting to rehire Schofield. Councilmen Jack Cook and Stephanshen
