BOISE—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus told the legislature today Idaho faces a "state of uncertainty" during 1974, and appealed for property tax relief and protection of the state's great natural resources.
The governor reported 1973 was Idaho's most productive year, with most sectors of the economy showing record gains. For its own part, Andrus said, Idaho is "healthy and prosperous." But he warned that events outside Idaho would greatly affect its future.
"I believe we must face changes in our traditional life styles," he told the lawmakers in his annual State of the State address, "and possibly some aggravations and inconveniences" because of energy shortages.

Speaking in the House chambers, Andrus asked the legislature to enact a series of specific proposals, included among them:
—A "hinkback" reorganization of state government;
—Circuit breaker legislation to give Idahoans over 65 with annual household incomes of less than $6,000 special property tax relief;
—A reduction in the maximum tax levels of local school districts to grant property tax relief to all the state's property owners. Andrus did not specify the state of the relief he was requesting.
—Action to retard the "expanding rate of assessment" by cutting down on a targeted reassessment to 15 per cent by 1982 instead of the planned 20 per cent. Failure to do so, the governor said, would "result" in certain tax increases in the future.

—Expansion of an experimental pre-school screening program for the state's children.
—Experimental veterinary programs in Lewiston and Idaho Falls should be provided across the state, he said, making available auditory, visual, dental and developmental examinations as well as a test for anemia and an assessment of physical growth. A program of this nature would permit early discovery of curable ailments, Andrus said. He also called for change in laws governing health insurance to require policies to cover children at birth instead of the 15th day of life.
—Fornal recognition and at least partial state funding for kindergartens.
—Establishment of a school of veterinary medicine in concert with the neighboring states of Washington and Oregon.

TF County commission sets hospital bond vote

TWIN FALLS—A $4.6 million bond issue election for expansion and improvement of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital formally has been set for Feb. 12 by the Twin Falls County commissioners.
In a unanimous vote today, the commissioners formally endorsed the bond election and asked support for the hospital project from county voters.
The hospital's trustees earlier had supported the bonding commission. Chairman William Chaney said, "The information we get from the hospital board and administrator shows a critical need for hospital beds."
"The hospital is running at 90 to 95 per cent occupancy now and in a severe emergency there would be chaos."
The bond issue would add 30 new patient rooms at the hospital. Other improvements would include:
—Expanded outpatient treatment facilities, including an inhalation therapy unit.
—A large increase in emergency care capacity.
—An increase in surgical facilities.
—Installation of sprinkler systems and new fire doors for safety.
—Construction of a building shell for future bed space.
—Expansion of X-ray facilities.
Additional administrative offices.
The expansion would triple the hospital up to newly adopted health and safety standards adopted since it was built more than 20 years ago, the commissioners said.

Egyptians reject pullback proposal

By United Press International
Egypt today rejected the troops disengagement plan worked out by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi said in Aswan.
Fahmi, 48, said Egypt was demanding that it be redrafted into an "Egyptian plan."
The Israeli plan Dr. Kissinger brought with him was not satisfactory," Fahmi told a news conference here the end of a day of negotiations between Kissinger and Egyptian leaders including President Anwar Sadat.
Kissinger said Kissinger was returning to Israel tonight "with an Egyptian plan and an Egyptian map on disengagement with Israel" along the Suez Canal.

TF avoids flooding
—TWIN FALLS—City Manager Jean Milar said today there has been no flooding of any consequence in the city as a result of the weekend thaw.
Milar said there are a few puddles around the city, "but no property damage" of any consequence.
He said that if the predicted rain had materialized, there could have been a serious flooding problem with the frozen soil and snow cover, but since the rain did not fall, the gradual thaw allowed for gradual runoff and no flooding.

Simon says data check necessary
—WASHINGTON (UPI)—Energy Chief William E. Simon said today the government should be able to require oil companies to reveal much more information on their oil reserves and marketing.
"Otherwise, Simon said, the government would not be able to solve energy problems."
He said that the first of several new congressional hearings planned this week on energy before Congress formally resumes after a month-long recess.
Simon said he had set out current sources of data are voluntary and for many of the programs a new operating data is simply not available. We now clearly need mandatory reporting systems and mechanisms to check and update their proper operation.

Amtrak rejects special SV route

SUN VALLEY—Amtrak officials have rejected a special railroad line to serve the Sun Valley area.
But Sun Valley businessmen are hopeful that a route from Portland might be established, bringing passengers from Seattle, Portland and Salt Lake City to Shoshone.
In a letter to Sun Valley-Retchum Chamber of Commerce Director Lloyd Curtis, Amtrak's agency and sales division manager Arthur Lloyd said that railroad service would not be started at this time.
The energy crisis is putting a real strain on all available locomotives and passenger cars just to keep our present scheduled trains in operation. In addition, we have been unofficially advised that we will not be available for any type of special train operation specifically designed for recreation purposes.
Fearful that the energy crisis would hurt business, at the out-of-the-way resort community, Curtis and Sun Valley Co. owner Bill James wrote Lloyd in late November asking about establishment of a Ketchum-Sun Valley route.
"Despite the fuel shortage and the lack of train service," Sun Valley's business has increased about 40 per cent over last year, according to James. At times, he said, the company's business is up 100 per cent.
James attributed the improvement to Sun Valley's reputation and to the devaluation "turning a lot of people back to the U.S." He said sufficient plane service to the area exists.
Even so, James is hoping to bring in better rail service. He said that Amtrak President Roger Lewis told him that the railroad company "about a year" to respond to our needs.
"If we were given a reasonably high standard of quality, we could put a lot of people who come here back on the railroad," James said.
The quality would come by improving the train and the scheduling for the trains running through Shoshone on a route between Seattle, Portland, Ogden, James said.
James said Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has been talking with Amtrak to encourage improvement of this railroad service. He hoped that one of the two experimental trains Amtrak puts on each year might be on the route serving southern Idaho.

in limits, Lewis said. He said establishing the Portland-Seattle-Salt Lake City route would not involve putting on a special train but would mean improving basic service.
By spring Lewis plans to call Amtrak officials again for a "second round" of talks in the second round to hope for establishment of the service, he said.
Lewis said when the chairman first called Amtrak about introduction of an Ogden-Ketchum train, Congress was in the midst of energy crisis and reconstruction areas were low priority.
"Since then the situation has changed. Both our William Simon and Vice-President Gerald Ford have spoken out for the recreation industry as being of prime national importance," Lewis said.

Gem state services eyed

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus emphasized today his administration is building a "one-door" approach to services across the state. He asked the legislature to make a statewide experimental pre-school screening program for children.

Andrus told the legislature in his State of the State message a goal of the health and welfare programs in Idaho has been to "revitalize, decentralize and streamline the social service delivery system in Idaho." He pointed to successes in obtaining payments for support from absent fathers and drew attention to a lower percentage of people in the state receiving aid to dependent children than nationwide. "Decentralization has made Idaho one of the first states to make community mental health treatment available for 100 per cent of the state's population," Andrus boasted. He asked the legislature to fund on a statewide basis a voluntary pre-school screening program for the state's children. He said the Office of Child-Development had conducted the program in Idaho Falls and Lewiston, with 85 per cent of eligible youngsters from birth to age five participating.

"When parents desire," Andrus said, "the services should be available statewide. They would include auditory, visual, dental and developmental examinations for all children, along with tests for anemia and physical growth. "A program of this nature would permit early discovery of correctable ailments; minimize their harmful effect; and speed recovery before permanent or more serious difficulties set in," Andrus said.

Opinions vary on DST issue

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus warned the convening members of the state legislature today whatever they decided on daylight savings "will not meet with widespread public support."

Andrus noted the lawmakers must act by Feb. 3 if northern Idaho is to remain exempt from daylight savings time. He did not specifically make a recommendation to lawmakers, but he said, "My views are already well known." In the past, Andrus has called for legislation exempt the state. It was Andrus' proclamation to Secretary of Transportation Claude Brinegar that resulted in temporary non-advanced mountain time for most of the state.

Andrus asks tax relief

A state-supported academic scholarship program to assist young scholars to attend Idaho colleges and universities, both public and private. The program the governor recommends calls for 25 scholarships a year worth $1,500 apiece, with a maximum of 100 scholarships at any one time.

Legislation to give the state jurisdiction over the federal Occupational Safety and Health Act. "It is unrealistic to assume that because of the criticism OSHA has received it will be replaced by Congress," he said.

A "strong but fair" campaign disclosure law for statewide and legislative candidates. Approval for his two proposals to permit funding of the proposed American Falls dam reconstruction.

Action on daylight savings time; although he did not spell out what he wanted explicitly. A proposal to pay increases in state employees beyond the five per cent increase they received Jan. 1, but with lower-paid workers receiving a greater increase than those who make more money.

Creation of a State Building Authority to construct state office buildings.
Adoption of the four proposed land use planning bills as drafted by the Legislative Interim Committee on Land Use Planning.
The governor also recommended against any action on stream channel regulations pending a court decision to see whether they apply to lakes. He also said no action should be taken about minimum streamflows until two state agencies have finished studies they are making.
Andrus said he would pressure the federal government for responsible management of the state's primitive area. "We can no longer afford to use up our resources until they are all gone," he said. "We can no longer waste our fish and game, and we can no longer abuse our land."
The chief executive repeated his strong support for creation of a wilderness area from the state's existing primitive area.

Governor appeals for bus systems

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus appealed to the state's larger cities today to develop bus systems to help solve the nation's energy problems.

Speaking in his annual State of the State address, the governor said bus systems, passenger trains in the state and an emphasis on energy conservation in general were necessary if the state is to "cope with this energy situation."

Andrus pledged to the members of the legislature that state would be a good neighbor "should it become necessary to export power to other states to maintain schools, hospitals and warm homes," but he also warned other states against using Idaho's power to maintain out-of-state jobs and industry at expense to jobs and industry within the state. The governor also specifically cited tourism and recreation as one of those industries he intends to protect. "To the individual who skis in Idaho, it is only recreation. But, to the resort owner, to restaurants, to the airlines, and car rental agencies, skiing is the source of jobs and income. It is an industry," he said.

Andrus also told the lawmakers he was renewing an appeal, first made last year, that Idahoans spend their annual vacations inside their home state to help the tourism industry. "From north to south, east to west, and through the rugged primitive area of this state, Idahoans can enjoy the finest vacation anywhere and help keep out tourist industry strong at the same time."

Andrus eyes relief

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus wants the state legislature to give special property tax relief to the state's elderly and "in a more general way" for the rest of the state's property taxpayers.

Andrus called on the lawmakers in his State of the State address today to pass "circuit breaker" legislation to set a limit on the amount in taxes senior citizens must pay. "Just as a circuit breaker prevents an electrical overload, in the same manner, a circuit breaker tax bill prevents a property tax overload for senior citizens," he said.

Andrus said his relief would cover Idahoans over 65 who live in households where the income is less than $6,000. His address did not specify the limit his legislation would suggest.

Andrus also called on the legislature to approve property tax relief by cutting back on the authority of local school districts to levy. Again, he did not suggest how much relief should be granted.

In addition, the governor asked the legislature to limit to 15 per cent the assessment ratio on property in the state. Currently, counties are required to raise the ratio to 20 per cent by 1982. Andrus said, however, that program would lead to certain tax increases in the future, and called for action to "retard the spiraling ratio of assessment."

(C) Washington Star News
WASHINGTON — The Nixon administration has set up a series of inter-agency task forces to work out strategies to meet the international oil crisis.

Six working groups, organized Friday, also are drawing up a program to present to the meeting of major Western oil-consuming countries in Washington called by President Nixon on Feb. 11, a high administration source said.

But the task forces also are expected to work on long-range efforts to help both oil-consuming and oil-producing nations jointly solve their energy and related problems.

Agencies participating in the planning include the State Department, the Federal Energy Office, the Treasury and Commerce Departments, the White House Council for International Energy Policy, headed by top White House aide Peter Flanagan, the National Security Council, and the Atomic Energy Commission.

According to the administration source, these are the areas with which the task forces will be dealing:

- International research and development. The goal here is to develop joint research programs for long-range alternative sources of energy. The emphasis will be on nuclear power and solar energy.

— Allocation short supplies among all oil consuming nations.

— How to get oil-producing countries to diversify their economies. The goal is to help oil-rich nations such as Saudi Arabia, industrialize to assure that they will have a stake in the world economy after their oil supplies run out in the next few years.

— This working group, dominated by the Commerce

Department, will attempt to develop proposals to help Arab nations spend their money wisely. A corollary goal, of course, is to encourage the Arab nations to increase their production to meet current oil needs of consuming nations.

— Pricing. The problem will be to develop a system to establish and stabilize current oil prices levels that have soared in the last year. The Persian Gulf states recently decided to set a posted price of $11.65 per barrel of oil, a four-fold increase over the last year for a commodity that still costs less than 25 cents a barrel to produce.

Effects of oil prices on the world economy, particularly on underdeveloped countries. The high price of oil is particularly rough on such countries as India and the African states, which are also the traditional allies of the Arabs. India, which has been paying $250 million annually in energy bills, is now facing costs close to $750 million a year.

— Energy conservation. This involves getting an information exchange operating among countries on methods to conserve or lower their energy consumption.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss and grow more hair.

For years, "hair loss" has been a "do-or-die" problem. But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women that is not only stopping hair loss, but is really growing hair.

You don't even ask you to take these pills. They begin to work as you try the treatment for 14 days, at their risk, and see for yourself.

Naturally, they would not offer compensation unless the treatment works. However, it is possible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already bald, you can now stop your hair loss. Even if baldness may seem to run in your family, this is certainly not part of the cause of MPM hair loss.

Hair loss caused by whom can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter what the cause, your hair loss will stop when you use our pills. You are not only bald and your hair will grow again, but you will also be able to stop your hair loss and grow more hair. It is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

— Dr. Joseph Laboratories Consult. Inc. will supply you with treatment for 14 days, at their risk. If they believe the treatment will help you, just send them the information found below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, in strict and without obligation. MPM

Russian builds new sub fleet

(C) — New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union is expanding its capacity for building nuclear submarines and starting work on a new, larger class of missile submarines, according to Pentagon officials.

The developments were not completely unexpected, but Pentagon officials said they provide further evidence that the Soviet Union was determined to challenge the long-standing superiority of the United States in nuclear submarines.

The appearance of the larger class of Soviet missile submarines was first hinted at last week by Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger. He said development and the Soviet testing of four new intercontinental ballistic missiles as proof that Moscow was showing a "great deal of vigor" in developing new strategic weapons.

The Defense Department is expected to stress such Soviet weapons developments in the months ahead as it seeks to defend an increased military budget calling for continued construction of the $1-billion Trident submarines—and development of new strategic warheads.

The new class of submarines was described as somewhat larger than the Delta class, which joined the Soviet fleet in 1972. But the key difference is that the new class is expected to carry 16 ballistic missiles with a range of 4,000 miles compared with 12 on the Delta-class submarines.

BYRON de la BECKWITH trial opens today

Arsenal questions into open

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Two key questions that could be answered at a trial beginning today are how authorities found one Byron de la Beckwith was carrying a ticking time bomb and other firearms in his car and what he planned to do with the arsenal.

Beckwith, 52, was arrested at the New Orleans city limits Sept. 27 and charged with transporting an unregistered bomb and a .45-caliber pistol across state lines in violation of state laws.

Neither the police nor the prosecuting attorney's office have ever explained what Beckwith intended to do with the bombs and Beckwith claims he was just in Louisiana to sell old family heirlooms.

Some reports indicated Beckwith planned to bomb the home of a Jewish community leader. Beckwith, a salesman in Greenwood, Miss., was tried twice but never convicted for the 1958 killing of civil rights leader, Medgar Evers. Both trials ended in hung juries.

Beckwith, a descendant of Jefferson Davis, has been indicted for three alleged violations of the Federal Gun Control act. Police found the bomb, rifles, ammunition and paraffin in his car.

Sextuplets make gains

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — The Rosenkowitz sextuplets, three days old today, responded favorably to treatment for a mild case of jaundice, medical bulletins said.

"They yawn, cry and stretch their arms and legs when not sleeping," the latest bulletin said.

The three boys and three girls underwent phototherapy treatment for the jaundice and the disease was "well controlled," a hospital spokesman said.

The sextuplets were born Friday to Mrs. Susan Rosenkowitz, 25, at the Mowbray Maternity Hospital. A bulletin Sunday night said the sextuplets were all retaining their diets of diluted milk.

Neighbors skeptical

TUNIS (UPI) — Neighbors of Libya and Tunisia reacted with coolness today to the two North African countries' plans to unite, the latest in a string of unsuccessful strings of Arab merger attempts.

Morocco's state-run radio ignored the merger proposal and Algeria's government-controlled news agency said the plan might be short-lived and must be met with skepticism.

Tunisia and Libya announced plans over the weekend to ask Algerian and Morocco to join them in the new Arab Islamic Republic.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba and Libyan Revolution Council Chairman Muammar Khadafi reported floods of congratulatory telegrams from their citizens urging speedy unification.

Bourguiba, 70, head of a moderate, pro-Western nation, and Khadafi, 31, leader of a militant, doctrinaire Islamic regime created a surprise

Saturday by announcing plans for the nations' merger.

Diplomatic sources said, however, the referendum might be delayed because of problems in preparing voter lists and printing ballots. Hourghabuntid the balloting might take place on Tunisia's May 20 independence day.

Oil stirs Russian ire

(C) New York Times Service
MOSCOW — Oil is the latest bone of contention in the ever-widening rivalry between the Soviet Union and China.

Moscow, which has long been negotiating with the Japanese for a 20-year oil deal, sharply denounced Chinese efforts to lure away Japanese customers.

In a commentary on the recent visit to Peking by Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ohira of Japan, the Communist Party-daily Pravda asserted that Japanese businessmen were right to be wary of Peking's claims that China has raised its annual oil production to 50 million tons and "will shortly be able to sell up to 5 million tons annually" to the Japanese.

The quick reaction of the Soviet press to the Chinese commercial fevers suggested how sensitive Moscow was about Chinese competition for the Japanese market.

Oil nations say aware of threat

(Chicago Daily News) PARIS—The president of the oil nations' organization said his fellow ministers "look like we have a hydrogen bomb in our hands. We could be destroyed by ourselves, too."

Jamshid Amouzegar, head of the 12-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), said in an interview that all OPEC members are aware of the economic disaster threat. "We do not want to see the west destroyed. They all agree, contrary to what some of them say outside our OPEC meetings," he added.

"A recession in the West means, after six months, recession in our countries," the Iranian finance minister added.

Amouzegar, 50, a Cornell graduate, talked about how oil nations will spend $50 billion of additional income in 1974, in a telephone conversation from Geneva where OPEC decided on a three-month price moratorium this week. The decision to neither raise nor lower oil prices until April 1 came only after several ministers telephoned their chiefs of state for approval.

Some countries apparently wanted a further hike in prices which have quadrupled since August, 1972. Iran favored a 6-per cent cut reflecting the recent higher value of the dollar.

One economist at the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) says the world faces "the most severe threat of combined inflation and recession since World War II" because of steep oil price hikes coming on top of slowdown trends.

Iran will have "about $16 billion in additional revenue next year," Amouzegar said. "We already have plans to spend $12 billion inside our country, leaving $3 to $4 billion extra to invest outside."

Part of the money will go for huge purchases such as a West German project for the world's biggest refinery, and a big natural gas liquefaction deal with the United States, he said.

Outside investments will include stocks and government bonds, including American securities, and also "downstream" investments in the oil business.

Iran is negotiating to buy the Ashland Oil Co. in the United States and experts are working on the price now, the minister said.

"Our economy is tied to your economies. Your factories supply us, and we need your commodities."

In addition, Iran plans direct deals with other developing countries to finance mutual needs.

Amouzegar said he has had preliminary talks with Indian officials about "very, very low interest loans to develop Indian coal and iron ore. We would be the first to purchase that coal and ore for our steel mill."

They plan to move north as the weather improves, spending April in the British Isles (Ireland and Scotland), then in Paris and northern Europe in May and June. They'll wind up their tour in Scandinavia including Norway and Denmark. They plan to return home June 20.

Oil companies to lose future role

(c) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — In the face of skyrocketing fuel prices that are threatening world economic stability, the administration is prepared to strip the major international oil companies of their traditional role as front-line price negotiators with the increasingly powerful and assertive oil-producing nations. A new strategy of direct government intervention in future negotiations between producers and consuming nations such as the United States, Western Europe and Japan was briefly hinted at Thursday by William E. Simon in a joint news conference with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The new approach, evidently still at a tentative early stage of planning, emphasizes further the gravity with which administration energy managers regard the recent decision by oil-rich Persian Gulf states to set an $11.65-per-barrel posted oil price — a fourfold increase over the past year for a commodity that still costs less than 25 cents a barrel to produce.

A new government relationship must be forged," Simon said. "We are going to have to take a brand new look at what the government role is to be, internationally as well as domestically in our energy industry."

Simon added: "I would include pricing. I would include government negotiation versus the way it is done now, in a company-to-government manner."

In private conversation, Simon confirmed that "country-to-country price negotiation was a major element in what he described as a 'new government relationship' with the companies, which have traditionally been left free to work out their own deal in the international market and have been given sweeping preferences to encourage them.

Simon also suggested that the administration's new study of the role of the companies would involve "a look at the tax implications" of present exemptions, which have had the effect of encouraging oil exploration and production in the Middle East, rather than in U.S. territory where oil discoveries peaked 12 years ago.

Thursday's news conference was called to give Kissinger and Simon a chance to expand on the administration plan, announced by President Nixon at San Clemente two days ago, to invite major western oil consumers to a conference in Washington Feb. 11 at which a common approach toward producers would be worked out.

Burley man awarded silver star

BURLEY — US Air Force Capt. Larry J. Chesley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Verli R. Chesley, Burley, has been decorated with the silver star — the nation's third highest combat medal.

Capt. Chesley, who was a prisoner of war from April 16, 1966, through last February, also received two awards of the air medal and two purple hearts.

The captain earned the silver star during an armed reconnaissance mission over North Vietnam April 16, 1966, when he faced intense anti-aircraft fire to lead his flight of two F-4 Phantoms against enemy defensive positions.

The captain attacked the positions until his aircraft was hit and he was forced to eject. He was captured and interned by the North Vietnamese.

Capt. Chesley won the air medals for sustained aerial flight as a combat crew member from Jan. 16, to March 30, 1966, and was presented the purple hearts for wounds received during capture and imprisonment. He is presently attending Arizona State University through the Air Force Institute of Technology advanced education program.

A 1966 graduate of Burley High School, he holds a BS degree in history from Weber State College in Ogden, Utah. The captain was commissioned upon completion of officers' training school in 1964.

Dolphins destroy Vikings 24-7 for pro football title

HOUSTON (UPI) — The poised, polished Miami Dolphins, emboldened by Don Shula to match the legendary Vince Lombardi's record of back-to-back Super Bowl triumphs, proved themselves one of the great money teams of all time Sunday with a 24-7 rout of the Minnesota Vikings for the world title.

It took the hidden Larry Csonka, who crunched over for a pair of touchdowns and cracked the Super Bowl rushing record, just about 13 minutes to wrap up the player of the game award as he howled over the vaunted Minnesota defenders as if they were leopards and gobbled up the "purple people eaters." He carried 32 times for 145 yards.

With the Csonka- and Mercury Morris- and Jim Kick backfield proving to be more effective than Lombardi's Jim Taylor-Paul Hornung combo ever was, the Dolphins won five NFL titles and 56 yards in 10 plays in the first 13 minutes under Bob Griese's flawless direction. They did that the first two times they hit the ball and they went on to demonstrate that they're the "team of the '70s" the way the Packers were the "team of the '50s" back when they won five NFL titles in seven years.

While Csonka scored twice on runs of five and two yards, Kick, who hadn't scored a touchdown all year, plunged over from the one for the other. Dolphin touchdowns and Garo Yepremian, who didn't live up to his game with any of his "passes," had a 28-yard field goal.

By midway in the second period when the Dolphins had a 17-0 lead, the Dolphin fans in the crowd of 68,142 — there were 2,200 more in the 50-degree weather at Rice Stadium with the game being shown on local tv — were chanting "we're No. 1."

It was a galling defeat for Minnesota, which became the first club ever to lose two Super Bowls. The Vikings were beaten four years ago by Kansas City by an almost identical 27-0 score. It was a frustrating game for quarterback Fran Tarkenton, who got his first chance in the playoffs — this season — Healington Stapp and Namath's Super Bowl completion record and he scored his team's only touchdown on a four-yard scamper in the final period. But he was playing catch-up half most of the game and never really had the Vikings close.

There were four different plays that really killed the Vikings. The first one came when Minnesota punted after Miami's first score. Jake Scott fumbled the punt — but recovered his own fumble.

The second came when the Vikings gambled on a fourth-down play on the Miami six in the final minutes of the first half — and failed to make the first down when Oscar Reed fumbled.

The third came when John Gilliam returned the second half kickoff of 65 yards — only to have it called back by a clipping penalty on Stu Uhligh. The final time came when the Vikings recovered an inside kick after their only touchdown — only to have it kick again when Ron Parker was called for being offside.

Those four plays ruined any chance Minnesota had to get into the game. And it didn't help when they stopped Mercury Morris on third down on their own 13 — only to have the Dolphins get a first down on the eight to set up Csonka's second touchdown because of a defense holding penalty on Wally Hilgenberg.

For Shula, who had lost the 1964 NFL title game and his first two Super Bowls with Baltimore and Miami, it wiped out completely any stigma of being a loser. He's now 2-2 in Super Bowls.

Csonka, who had a sore toe besides a case of the flu this week, broke Matt Snell's record of 30 carries for 131 yards in Super Bowl III. He led Elijah Pitts' record of two in one game set in Green Bay's first win-Tarkenton's 18 completions snapped Samulit's mark of 17.

Csonka is voted MVP

HOUSTON (UPI) — Larry Csonka, his right eyebrow bloodied and bruised from "an honest cheap shot," called the Miami Dolphins "comparable to any team that's ever played this game."

Csonka, the bruising fullback who was named Super Bowl VIII's most valuable player after a record 145-yard rushing performance, said after the Dolphins' 24-7 rout of the Minnesota Vikings Sunday that his club was equal to Vince Lombardi's great Green Bay Packers club in the mid-50s.

"I consider we can compare ourselves comparably to any team that's ever played this game," Csonka said, his face showing weariness and strain. "I say we're comparable to the Pack."

Csonka's performance helped Miami join the late Lombardi's Packers as the only team ever to win two Super Bowls. Csonka said the injury to his eye, which was stitched up during the game, came from an over-enthusiastic Viking.

Shula says this title even better than first

HOUSTON (UPI) — Don Shula, flush with the glow of victory, Sunday proclaimed his Dolphins' Super Bowl championship club even better than his first.

"There's no question in my mind," said the Miami coach following his Dolphins' 24-7 decision over Minnesota in Super Bowl VIII, "that this team is better than the one a year ago, even though that team did lose a game." "I thought, from the beginning of this season that this club could be better. We have a defensive unit that is going to get better each year it plays. It's still young. I knew it would be better this year and, therefore, our team would be better. And we played last year without Bob Griese. With him in there this year I thought we would be better. I think today's performance proves that this football team can get it done."

The Dolphins crushed the Vikings with a persistent ground attack that featured the Super Bowl record performance of 145 yards by Larry Csonka.

"Our offensive line was absolutely fabulous," said Csonka, who played the major part in Miami's first two first-quarter drives that put the Dolphins in a commanding lead.

Dolphins in front 14-0 after 15 minutes of play. "Just the chance of having people compare us with the Green Bay Packers is motivation enough for us. These guys make up a great team. There is no rab-rah spirit on this ball club like there are others, but it's a great group of men who happen to get along together pretty good."

And I don't want to blow smoke on coach Shula, but I think he is the greatest there is."

There was speculation before the game that Miami was due for a letdown, particularly since the Dolphins had played such an exceptional game in defeating Oakland in the AFC title game. But there was none of that and Shula said from a technical standpoint his club played at its peak just when it should.

"We played our best football of the season in the playoffs," the Dolphin coach said.

"Coming into this game our big concern was (Minnesota) quarterback Fran Tarkenton. We realized that sometimes during the day we were going to be in a chase. We decided not to chase, but to catch. And today we caught."

Shula viewed the closing moments of the opening half as probably the most crucial point of the game. Holding a 17-0 lead the Dolphins stopped Minnesota on a fourth-and-one situation at the Miami six.

"That was certainly a big play for us," Shula said. "When they didn't get in there at the end of the half it gave us a big boost going into the dressing room."

And as commissioner Pete Rozelle handed the Vince Lombardi Super Bowl trophy to Shula for the second year in a row, he said it better than anybody.

"The Miami performance today makes verbal description inadequate."

Assistant to Shula will go to Giants

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coach Don Shula of the two-time world champion Miami Dolphins virtually confirmed Sunday that his chief aide, Bill Arnsperger, will become the head coach of the New York Giants next week.

"All I can say is that they're getting one helluva coach," Shula said after presenting Arnsperger and Larry Csonka with game balls after his team's 24-7 triumph over the Minnesota Vikings.

"There's been a lot of rumors about that. I guess this puts that rumor to rest," Shula said.

The Giants, who lost their head coach when Alex Webster resigned with one game left in a 2-11 season, have called a press conference for next Wednesday.

But it became an open secret here this week that the Giants had offered Arnsperger the head coaching job.

Arnsperger, who has been associated with Shula since 1964, was the Dolphins' assistant head coach in charge of the defense.

He has been one of the most highly-regarded assistant coaches in pro football.

Dolphins end Viking play

DOUG KINGSRITER (89) with leg over the shoulder of the Dolphins' offensive line coach (85), takes in a Fran Tarkenton pass, good for a nine-yard gain during the first half action in the Super Bowl on Sunday. Also in on the tackle was the Dolphins' Dick Anderson (10). (UPI Telephoto)

Bud Grant knows reason for loss

HOUSTON (UPI) — Unconditional Bud Grant knew exactly why the Miami Dolphins so thoroughly defeated his Minnesota Vikings and captured their second straight world championship Sunday in the Super Bowl.

"They just blocked and tackled very well and ran well," Grant said. "There is no secret to this game — just blocking and tackling. If you don't do either one, you are in trouble."

And Grant said the Dolphins set the tone in the championship game in the first quarter and virtually eliminated a Viking comeback.

"What happened was they took the ball, went down the field and got 14 points ahead," he said. "It's pretty hard to overcome that lead against a good football team in this game."

"You cannot play a good team and not block even with them. When you play good teams, you cannot fall behind in that category."

Grant, his hands stuffed in his back pockets and standing on a small platform in a hot tent behind Rice Stadium, said penalties wrecked any hopes of a Viking second-half comeback.

"But we had a great kickoff return call back and a penalty cost us another big play when a penalty on the kickoff nullified our recovery of the fumble."

The crooked Grant said there was no wig he could "out coach" Miami in this game.

"The players have to get the job done," he said. "There is no adjustment to getting after and tackling people."

Grant complained about the Vikings' practice facilities before the game but said it had no effect on the outcome. It affected the practice, not the game.

What's What

Polygamy was legally abolished nationwide in 1882. That was the same year that Frederick W. H. Myers coined the word "telepathy" to describe "fellow feeling". Same year, too, that Phil Casey built the country's first handball court in Brooklyn. And the same year that Henry W. Seely patented the first electric lantern, that Schuyler Shasta Wheeler brought out the first electric fan, and that William Horlick produced the first malted milk Big Boy, 1882.

The technical boys are working on a radar system now that will automatically put on your car's brakes when you start to tailgate. Good.

"You know that fellow Richard Thomas who plays John Boy on 'The Waltons'? Did he come from a poor mountain family?"

A Not quite. His folks, Richard Thomas and Barbara Falls, run the New York School of Ballet.

U. S. Presidents for many a month have devised ingenious ways to "dodge" photographers. But none I think so cleverly as William Howard Taft. When irked by the camera crowd, he made his point by sending up great clouds of mist around his steamed car, then driving off behind that screen.

How well do you know your husband, young lady? A matrimonial counselor of some experience says a wife is not really acquainted with her husband unless she can specify these three things: 1. What color he thinks becomes her most. 2. His three favorite desserts. 3. What he wants to do when he retires.

Were you aware that bicycles have been outlasting cars for two years running? Not June but December is the big marriage month in Norway. Because of the return of the fishing boats then. Scientists figure man is responsible for only about one half of one per cent of the world's air pollution.

Say you draw an imaginary line from the top of the woman's head to the point of her chin. If it measures 10 inches, her overall height should be 32-33 inches. Otherwise, either her head or her body is not properly proportioned. Generally, the body of a woman should measure six and a half times the size of her head. Or so contends an artist of some renown.

The test tube boys in the Department of Agriculture have come up with an all-fish juice said to be richer in protein than a prime beef-cut-Food. It's known all about it already. They predict it will sell well even better maybe someday than chicken livers, beef tongue or pickled pig's feet.

3 suits filed in district court

TWIN FALLS — A $100,000 personal injury suit, a claim for back wages and commissions and a negligence suit have all been filed here in Fifth District Court.

In the personal injury suit, Francis A. Smith is suing Wynn Construction Co., Jarbridge, Nev., for negligence allegedly leaving gravel piled on a runway ramp causing an accident in which Smith was injured.

Smith claims that a gravel pile several feet high was left on the runway by Wynn on a county road about 15 miles west of Rogerson. On July 3, 1973, Smith claims he was riding in a vehicle being driven east by Spencer Berry and was injured when Berry's vehicle slammed into the gravel pile, which was undetectable because it was on a downgrade.

Smith alleges he suffered a broken ankle, broken ribs and aggravation of a pre-existing neck condition as a result of the accident. He seeks $50,000 in general damages, medical expenses and lost wages of more than $6,000 and court costs. His attorney has demanded a jury trial in the case.

The suit alleges Wynn was working for Twin Falls County when the gravel was negligently left piled in the road.

In the second action, George Jessor filed suit against Lockwood Graders of Idaho Inc. for almost $13,000 in back wages and commissions.

Jessor claims that Lockwood employed him from Oct. 1, 1972, to Sept. 1, 1973, and during the period promised him a 2 percent commission and a 4 percent commission on used equipment sold. He seeks $12,250 in allegedly unpaid commissions, $500 in termination pay and $4,000 in attorney fees.

Jessor maintains that he holds a scraper worth about $12,000 as security against the wage and commission claims.

The third case concerns a $120,000 negligence suit filed against Robert Bateman and Jane Doe Bateman, husband and wife.

The plaintiffs in the action, Lyle O. Schneider and Iols J. Schneider, claim that Bateman negligently started a fire which caused $4,227 damage to a house the Schneiders own at 592 Washington St.
