US may scrape through

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If American drivers continue to save gasoline and if domestic refining holds up, the nation can get through its energy pinch without rationing gasoline, federal officials said today.

"Not only this, they said, but there will be enough heating oil to go around this winter unless the weather turns unusually severe," and provided that most Americans keep thermostats 6 degrees lower than last winter.

The officials said it is likely the final decision on gasoline rationing will not have to be made until summer brings peak demand.

John C. Sawhill, deputy director of the Federal Energy Office, outlined more details today of a standby rationing system, to be put into effect only if and when needed.

Sawhill said the FEO was setting up the gasoline standby plan in all its details for possible implementation in March 1.

The FEO will have the first rationing coupons printed by the end of January and is arranging for storage space for 1.6 billion coupons, Sawhill said. There are about 12 million licensed drivers in the nation.

Sawhill pointed out that the FEO does not have authority now to order rationing. It will propose it be given that authority in the energy emergency legislation Congress will consider when it returns next week.

GEORGE FRIDMANN, chairman of the "best resources" subcommittee, said the current situation is a gap of 2.2 million barrels a day between demand for gasoline and the supply. Simon said that he still sees a 20 per cent gasoline "shortfall" for the immediate future.

Blaine schools closed by snow; Galena shut

KETCHUM — Blaine County school classes were dismissed today; crews are working to reopen Highway 93 over Galena Summit and avalanches have closed a portion of the Warm Springs road, all because of the weather.

Supt. Wayne Pagg said school was closed after three school buses became stuck shortly after starting their routes. Children on these buses were returned to their homes, he said.

State highway officials in Shoshone said plows are cutting through heavy drifts over Galena Summit, which has been closed since Monday afternoon because of blizzard conditions, but it is expected the route would not be opened today.

(Related picture, p. 11)

According to Ketchum district Forest ranger, Gilbert Farr, about five avalanches had been reported in the Penny Lake Recreation area.

One large slide, he said, has covered the roadway with about three to four feet of snow.

Blaine County Commissioner Jack Bennett said the closure of a mile of the road from the curve adjacent to the Grand residence to the Lower Board Ranch, will remain in effect until the snow stabilizes and the forest service determines that safe conditions exist.

About 45 persons lived at the Lower Board Ranch during the winter. Farr said the area avalanche hazard stemmed from warming temperatures and rain. These weather conditions are expected to continue for about the next three to four days and the avalanche hazard is expected to continue, he said.

Farr recommended that all back-country activity, including cross-country skiing, helicopter ski touring and snowmobiling, be postponed until snow conditions stabilize.

The county had accepted snow plowing responsibilities for the Warm Springs Road this winter, subject to avalanche hazard, to facilitate school bus travel at the request of Lower Board Ranch residents.

However, the commissioners said this past fall that the road is subject to avalanche danger.

Highway officials also said a snow slide blocked Highway 93 10 miles northeast of Stanley. This portion is expected to be cleared sometime today.

Tape erasure probe studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice John J. Sirica said today he is considering turning over to a grand jury the question of how an 18 1/2 minutes segment was erased from one of President Nixon's Watergate tape recordings.

At the White House, a presidential spokesman declared that there was no erasure—deliberate or accidental—of the tape by Nixon himself, and urged the public not to make "premature judgments" about the causes of the obliteration.

Sirica's comment about a possible grand jury inquiry came during sharp exchange between the assistant special Watergate prosecutor, Richard Ben-Veniste, and Charles S. Rhyme, lawyer for Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's private secretary who was asked by the President last fall to transcribe some of the taped conversations.

Said Sirica: "I have to decide I might as well as tell you in open court—whether or not I'm going to recommend to the special prosecutor this case should be submitted or whether the special prosecutor should seriously consider going to the grand jury.

"I want to hear all evidence. That's the decision I have to make. I think that decision is the course."

Presidential spokesman Gerald Warren issued a brief statement from Nixon's lawyers on the disclosure Tuesday that a buzz over 18 1/2 minutes of a conversation between Nixon and his former chief of staff, H.R. Haldeeman, on June 20, 1972, was caused by a series of manual manipulations of a tape recorder.

The statement pointed out that Sirica was still conducting hearings and that "premature judgments about causes of that gap in the White House tape are unwarranted."

Warren refused to answer questions about the tape development except to a question whether the President himself might have erased the tape.

"No," Warren responded to that question. He later amplified this to cover both accidental or deliberate erasure.

Six technical experts who examine the controversial tape reported to Sirica Tuesday that they did not know who caused the gap in the tape.

Gooding accident kills Caldwell man

GOODING — Steven Edward Fuller, 24, Caldwell, was killed Tuesday night when the pickup truck he was driving swerved in an attempt to miss a calf on U.S. Highway 20-28.

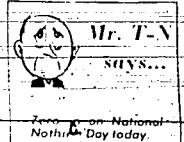

Sheriff Earl Brown said the westbound truck went into control and overturned into a rock pile. There were no witnesses to the crash which occurred about 6:12 p.m. Tuesday six miles west of Gooding.

Fuller was dead on arrival at Gooding Memorial Hospital. The sheriff said brand inspectors had been unable to determine the owner of the calf which was also killed. It did not match the brands of any of the cattle operations along the highway.

He asked motorists to watch for livestock in winter, even though the area is fenced.

"If you're driving a small car you should try to swerve, but with a large truck bed I have been better off hitting the calf straight on," the sheriff said. "But his reflexes probably caused him to swerve."

TF County may spend $7.3 million

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County spending may rise to $7.3 million this year according to preliminary figures.

This compares with $6.6 million last year. The tentative budget—figures include federal revenue sharing funds.

Without counting revenue sharing funds, the new budget would be $6.7 million, compared to $6.7 last year.

The tentative budget can be reduced but not raised when county commissioners' final action following hearings beginning Feb. 11.

Last year the county budgeted $412,540 in revenue sharing funds and this year the figure is $507,700.

County Clerk Harold Lancaster said his office staff has been working to "finalize the overall budget department by department since Monday evening, and expects to have the work completed sometime today.

Without going into detailed examination of the figures, Lancaster said he believes the budget can be met without a major tax increase.

Henry, Sadat meet

ASWAN, Egypt (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met again today with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in search of an Israeli-Egyptian agreement to disengage their forces.

Said Kissinger, American sources said they had solved 75 to 80 per cent of the problems.

The cease-fire along the canal was still precarious, and a U.N. spokesman said Egyptians and Israelis fought so fiercely on the outskirts of Suez City Tuesday that U.N. troops had to evacuate one position and arrange a frontal truce. The spokesman said the two sides died with artillery, mortars, machine guns, tanks and antitank guns.

Kissinger shuttled back to Aswan today from Jerusalem where he had met Israeli leaders during the night. American officials expressed optimism and Kissinger himself said he could "perhaps eliminate" the gap between the Israeli and Egyptian positions. He met alone with Sadat for 90 minutes and then drove to the New Cataract Hotel overlooking the River Nile.

MV hospital jammed

TWIN FALLS — The 128-bed capacity Magic Valley Memorial Hospital had a total occupancy of 131 patients Tuesday night.

Administrator James Rosenbaum said 16 of the beds are pediatric and it was necessary to double up some of the cribs in the rooms to make space for adult patients.

All of the treatment rooms were being used as patient rooms and every other corner was utilized," he said.

Rosenbaum said this was the largest census the hospital has had and so far it has not been necessary to use hall space for patients.

"That will be next," he added.

TF Husky station falls to energy ax

Gas cut to TF station; supply goes to another

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Husky's Husky, a long-established service station on Washington Street, people supply cut off, has taken to the energy crisis.

At the same time its former supplier, Husky Oil Co., has taken on a new customer, the Twin Falls 2-11 stores.

The fuel rollout stems from a fuel allocation system which gives stations only what fuel they used last year.

Gwin's Husky suffered a three-month gas cutoff during the winter of 1972, and now its gas has been "put off" for that three-month period, according to Frank Tillman, Northwest division manager for Husky.

Since gas is allocated in proportion to 1972 distributions, Gwin's would not be able to obtain enough gas to make a decent return this year, Tillman said.

He said no final decision has been made to close Gwin's permanently.

Regarding taking on 7-11 stores as new customers, Tillman said Husky is not distributing its own gas to the 7-11 stores. He said that through an exchange system, Husky is supplying the stores with Powerene Oil, which is not a Husky product. The exchange occurs through the Salt Lake division of the company.

Tillman was not able to explain how the gas exchange works to clarify why the Husky could have used the Powerene Oil exchange to continue to serve its established customers.

"It seems unfair," Heba Gwin, dealer said. She said Husky is "still delivering to four places in town that seem into business since we went in" business eight years back.

Mrs. Gwin said she and her husband had been able to slowly build up their business to where they were selling 20,000 to 25,000 gallons of gasoline monthly prior to the gas shortage.

In November and December, however, the station only received 6,500 gallons per month from Husky.

Mrs. Gwin said her station closed in 1972 for three months because of difficulties in getting its pumps repaired.

Husky eventually replaced the pumps.

She said a Husky official told her that the station was being shut because Husky did not have enough fuel for all its customers and because the small station was "too expensive" to operate.

"All they've put in is four new pumps and a host. I can't see where it's costing them money," she said.

Mrs. Gwin believed that her station has been closed permanently.

Despite the closure, she said her husband plan to stay in the car business. "We're hoping to get a repair shop set up here at our garage at home," she said.

TF US 93 widening planned soon

TWIN FALLS—Members of the Twin Falls Highway and Safety Committee decided Tuesday they will recommend that the widening of US 93 through north Twin Falls be undertaken as soon as possible.

A letter to former Mayor John Christoffersen from R. K. Sorenson, district location engineer with the Department of Highways, said the department is currently preparing an environmental impact statement on the project from North Five Points to the Perrine Bridge. The engineer asked for comments by Feb. 1 from the city.

The letter pointed out the present plans call for widening the highway to the limits of the existing right-of-way and the rebuilding of — major intersections — with additional right of way possibly to be acquired.

In their recommendation for the City Council Tuesday, the committee emphasized the need for sidewalks on the more developed portions of the highway, but said they do not wish the effort to include sidewalks to take on such importance that it will hold up the badly needed widening program of Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

City Manager Jean Millar said the trees along the route will probably take on an importance in the impact statement and suggested the committee give the City Council some indication of their views. The trees, mostly about 60 years old, have long beautified the highway entering Twin Falls, members said, but are nearing the end of their lifespan, Millar said.

Members generally said they like trees and shrubs but if they have to give way to progress this must be safely and an orderly flow of traffic are more important in this case than beauty.

Dick Kirkman, committee chairman said.

The committee discussed lighting and signal installation along the route with possible lights to control access to the main highway at Heyburn and at the Caswell entrance of the Blue Lakes Shopping Center.

An interchange type intersection at Pole Lane Road was also discussed as part of the plan.

In other business, the Washington Street North from West Five Points to Falls Avenue and the other on Blue Lakes Boulevard South from the Five Points East to the city limits.

The engineer also listed six priority points for new signal lights including Addison Avenue and Eastland near the New K mart store; Sixth Avenue North and Shoshone Street, Locust and Addison, Fourth Street North and Shoshone Street, Washington Street and Filer Avenue and Washington Street and Falls Avenue.

Ed Kibbe, member of the engineering department said a traffic accident comparison of 1972 and 1973 is expected to show an overall decrease of about four per cent. He said some 22 intersections where five or more accidents have occurred have been studied.

On these, he said, the parking of pickup trucks and campers prevents motorists from having a clear view of the intersection. Signing to prohibit parking of such vehicles at the intersection would cost about $3,000 to $3,500 per sign.

In 1974, Michael said, two federal aid secondary projects are planned. One would be

Machines set for bond vote

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The Feb. 12 Magic Valley Memorial Hospital bond issue election will be the first bond issue election in Idaho to use voting machines—and it wasn't easy.

Fred Decker, attorney for the hospital, said there will be a saving of more than $5,000 to the county by using the voting machines because there will be less personnel and only one ballot per machine.

He said since Idaho law covering bond issues doesn't refer to voting machine procedure, it was necessary to obtain a legal opinion from the office of the Idaho attorney general, then get a resolution passed by the county commissioners, and last but not least, get approval of the bonding agents.

not have counting boards and others," he said.

Each of the county's 47 precincts will use only one machine except the two largest. Lancaster said it is hoped the legislature will revise the law in view of the trend toward voting machines, and hopefully make it retroactive. It may not come in time for the Feb. 12 election here, he said.

In a two-page opinion, Anthony Park, attorney general, told Lancaster, "you have asked my opinion as to whether or not you can ignore the provision of Section 31-1908 Idaho Code which requires the use of paper balloting in county bond elections and instead conduct the election with voting machines as authorized for all elections in Section 34-2102, Idaho Code. It is my opinion you can."

Park pointed out the section requiring paper ballots was enacted in 1969 and remained in part unaltered since 1925. The second section on voting machines was enacted in 1970.

Park said it appears unreasonable the legislature would authorize voting machines for one type of election but not for another.

"It is my opinion," he wrote, "the legislature clearly intended the latter act to supersede the former when voting machines were desired by an election jurisdiction."

"Harold Lancaster is probably the best county clerk in Idaho and is used to 'pioneering' election procedure. He went ahead to get the clearance for us in good style," Decker told the hospital board.

Lancaster said there is a state law requiring one judge and four clerks at each election board, whether or not machines are used, and whether or not it is a simple yes and no vote.

"We will probably still have to comply with this but we will

Progress not halted

AMERICAN FALLS (UPI) — Neither subzero weather nor freezing water have prevented the crews working for Peter Kiewit and Sons Construction Co. from working on the new American Falls bridge.

Kiewit has the first phase contract for more than $80,000 to complete the substructure of footing and tiers for the bridge.

Company spokesman Mike McMurdy said the crews have not missed a day of work all through the subzero weather but cold has impaired efficiency.

Kiewit has until April 15 to complete the first phase of the bridge.

The bridge itself will be built by Hensahl and Phelps Co. at a cost of $1.2 million.

TF hospital adopts plan

TWIN FALLS — Adoption of a Utilization Review Plan for Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and creation of a utilization review committee was voted Monday night by Magic Valley Memorial Hospital trustees.

The plan was required by a federal law.

Hospital Administrator, James Rosenbaum said the plan will establish a lay committee to review all cases in the hospital, including diagnosis, treatment, management while the patient is in the hospital, and even the dismissal date.

If the committee finds the doctor has not dismissed the patient on the required date, he will be questioned.

Rosenbaum said this assures the medical staff members will do the best possible job, not only in their own opinion, but in the opinion of a separate committee.

The procedure, he said, began on a daily basis at the first of the year. He presented an example of the reviews in which 30 appendectomies were reviewed. Of these only seven showed some form of complications and each was reported in detail, including the special treatment required. In the analysis of the cases, only one recommendation was made, he said, that for a better medical history of some of the patients.

A meeting will be held in February in San Francisco, to which one board member, an administration and records representative will go to review the full aspect of the law establishing the Utilization Review plans.

Rail need discussed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Lautenberg, R-Idaho, said today he would seek restoration of rail passenger service to Idaho.

The Idaho Republican said it was "a matter of urgent necessity" as highway transportation faces fuel shortage restrictions.

Lansan said he planned to introduce legislation next week requiring the secretary of transportation to restore such service.

"This legislation is needed to alleviate impending hardships on Americans in many parts of the country such as Idaho which do not have access to the functioning public transportation system," Hansen said.

Ill-starred WH venture abandoned

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — It was about time the White House abandoned its ill-starred venture into candor.

It has been a source of nothing but trouble for President Nixon. What had come to be known as "Operation Candor" was in fact a venture into confusion, coercion, and, in a figurative sense, cannibalism.

Once-trusted aides have been slyly skewered as connivers, and the so-called "white papers" issued in the name of candor have been at best tasteless pranks.

In these remarkable defensive documents, on both the milk fund and the ITT case, Nixon has contradicted himself.

In the ITT affair, for example, two former attorneys general, John Mitchell and Richard Kleindienst, have picked perjury charges by insisting they never discussed the matter with the President. Either that or Nixon has slanted the truth in his assertion that both Mitchell and Kleindienst, not to mention John Eisenhower, and the rest of the critical points in the anti-trust action against the ITT conglomerate.

In the milk fund case, the President makes the point, which probably can be sustained in court, that what was done was neither illegal nor unprecedented.

PETER LISAGOR

From the "white paper" on the milk fund, he had occasion to know if good deed about the largesse of the milk producer, even though he maintained that the knowledge had nothing whatever to do with raising price supports.

So, in concluding his answer to the President, he felt obliged to dispute what he has said in the past, to refute what Mitchell and Kleindienst have testified under oath. The answer must be that the documentation in the hands of the special prosecutor — the tapes and the memoranda — forced the admissions.

Nixon could hardly claim he was kept in the dark about certain transactions. It taped conversations with Mitchell, Kleindienst, Charles Colson and others bear witness to the contrary.

As it turns out, "Operation Candor" was a no-win proposition from the start. First was the parade of Congressmen into the White House to hear from the President that he would produce proof that the allegations of impropriety and wrongdoing were false, that he had nothing to hide and would therefore stop hiding it.

A fair of the Smiths, including a televised encounter with the nation's editors and a closed confrontation with Republican governors, supposedly gained ground for the President. But then followed the 15-minute hurr on a key tape and the operation sputtered. Came the income tax returns, with more questions raised than answered, and the President slipped back into his brooding isolation.

And now, with the two "white papers" on milk and ITT, the White House says that the President will tolerate no further allegations and will turn his attention and energies to other matters.

So the operation, which was probably foredoomed, has been closed out. And to sum up, one is drawn back to Lewis Carroll. "I can't explain myself, I'm afraid, sir," said Alice, "because I'm not myself you see." "I don't see," said the caterpillar.

Arabs ready for defense

By DREW MIDDLETON
(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — A comment by Secretary of Defense James H. Schlesinger that there was a "risk" that military power might be used against the Arabs if oil curbs become really severe has aroused a storm of protest in the Middle East.

Schlesinger's remark has also produced an acknowledgment by military circles of the difficulties of "gunboat diplomacy" in the contemporary world. Schlesinger has said since making his original comment that the likelihood of deployment of western military power in the Middle East is "extremely low."

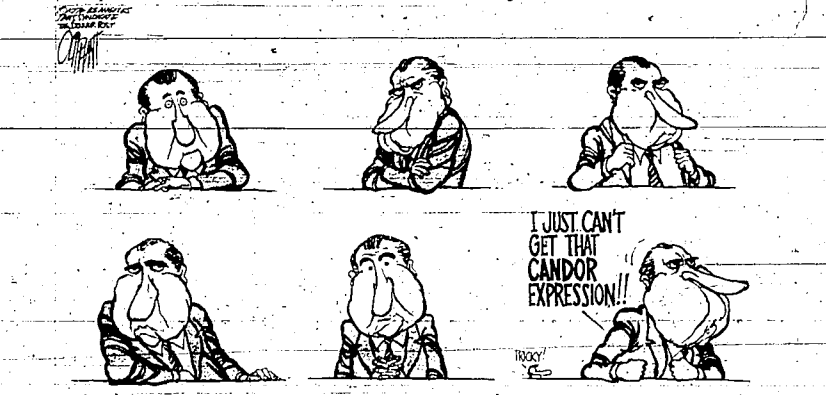

The comments brought into the open a discussion that has been going on in the United States and Western Europe almost since the command of the National Guard, Kuwait during the Arab-Israeli war in October.

Military sources discussing the subject are cautious. They say such operations, which would probably involve airborne troops at the outset might be easy to launch but there would be serious problems in sustaining them.

Demolition plans, announced by Saudi Arabia and Kuwait in the event of military intervention, are another strongly inhibiting factor in any contemplated military action. According to Arab diplomatic sources in Beirut, the Saudis have prepared their main field at Ghawar, considered one of the world's richest, for demolition. The operation is said to be under Prince Abdullah bin Abdul Aziz, commander of the National Guard. Kuwait has announced similar preparations.

Discussing Schlesinger's comment, a neutral Western diplomat said whatever its intent, "It is clear that it addresses the Arabs and not them on the scene."

State Department officials maintain that there is no inconsistency between Schlesinger's words and the more conciliatory position taken by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Gangsters deal with gangsters?

WASHINGTON — The report that the United States and Panama have agreed "in principle" to end American jurisdiction of the Panama Canal is not a signal for dancing in the streets. Indeed, it might be wiser to sell the Big Ditch to the Mafia.

Fortunately, the agreement concluded by U. S. roving ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Panamanian Foreign Minister Juan Antonio Tack is a preliminary. But, "in principle," it calls for Panamanian sovereignty over both the canal and the Canal Zone, American payments to Panama in future years, defense of the canal and maybe construction of a second ditch to accommodate giant tankers.

This is a big responsibility to hand a Panamanian government which has never been known as a collection of Anglican archbishops. Even in Latin America, Panama has raised eyebrows — sometimes indignantly — for a venality that comes close to being total.

American intelligence and police charge privately that government of "strong man" Gen. Omar Torrijos is sole owner of Panama's rackets.

Most lucrative of these is illicit trafficking in narcotics, particularly heroin. Involvement of several Panamanians for smuggling into the U. S. 151 pounds of pure heroin with a street value of $27 million.

In review, the briefing team cited 30 major heroin seizures during the preceding 18 months. The seizures ranged from 13 pounds to several hundred pounds. Five of the seizures came from or passed through Panama.

One of those arrested was Raphael Richard Gonzalez, son of the Panamanian ambassador to Nationalist China; the courier who dropped in the 101 pound of heroin. The briefing team concluded that based on the customs investigation — the Richard case reached into the highest levels of Panamanian officialdom and included Morales Torrijos, brother of Gen. Omar Torrijos, and the Panamanian foreign minister, Juan Tack.

Subsequently, the subcommittee took note in its report that "as in every other part of the world, local nationals and officials succumb to the enticement of easy money and are lured into the drug traffic. This has happened in Panama. The question is whether the United States is negotiating a treaty that involves a 70-year, $5-billion U. S. commitment, not to mention the security of the United States and this hemisphere with a government that condones or is actually involved in a drug-running operation into the United States."

Well, Panama is still operated by the Torrijos gang, including the same Juan Tack who negotiated the agreement, "in principle" with Ellsworth Bunker to relieve the U. S. of responsibility for running the Panama Canal. Call the cops.

The Panama government was described in a secret briefing given members of the Panama Canal subcommittee of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee by agents of the U. S. Customs Service. Intelligence for the briefing was gathered during prosecution of

THOSTESON, M.D. Gradual cut in drug best

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please tell me how to get off cortisone? When I try to drop the amount one-half milligram I get ghoulish feelings, air or was — taking it for asthma, but my asthma is better now. I've been on it since 1950. — G. P.

To begin with, you should undertake this with your doctor's guidance, and I suspect from your letter that you are trying to do it on your own. After prolonged use of cortisone, the function of the adrenal glands is greatly suppressed — the glands no longer are producing as much cortisone as they used to, and it takes time for them to resume full normal activity.

Therefore cortisone this to be withdrawn gradually. It must not be done abruptly.

Continually, this is done by taking the cortisone less frequently, say every other day instead of daily, and then every third day, over a period of time. If there are no untoward symptoms, then the size of the dose can be gradually reduced — again under your physician's guidance.

In your case, 23 years is a long time to have been taking cortisone. If your adrenals do not resume adequate functioning during the withdrawal period, you may have to continue taking a small dose indefinitely.

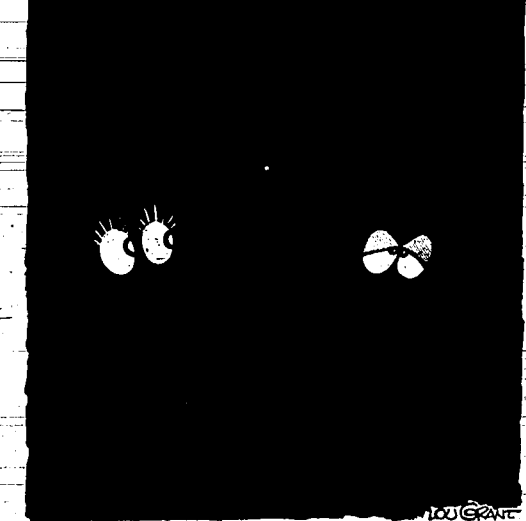

Dear Dr. Thosteson — The weather conditions or sudden changes in the weather or temperature affect the flow of gastric juices in the stomach? I seem to suffer very much when there are drastic weather changes. — C. M. K.

My answer would be yes, although I do not know how or why. It is well established that ulcer patients have trouble flare up in spring and fall — when the weather is changing.

All this for only 11¢ a gallon

WASHINGTON — The Ripoff Oil Co. was worried. A meeting of the executive committee was called to discuss combating the bad publicity from the energy crisis.

Harlan Mudbank, president of Ripoff, presented the problem. Wilton Willbank, advertising vice president, said, "Why don't we launch a national campaign to show that in spite of the crisis, Ripoff is keeping its prices down?"

"Excellent," said Mudbank, "but where do we get the money to pay for the campaign?" Willbank replied, "By raising the price of our gasoline a penny a gallon."

Mudbank smiled. "Good thinking. If there are no objections, the proposal is accepted. Are there any other ideas?"

Marvin Snowbank, vice president in charge of public affairs, said, "It seems to me the key to a good idea is Congress. We must persuade our lawmakers that we are doing the best we can to provide fuel at reasonable cost."

"Snowbank read from a paper. "Our Washington lobbyists believe we can do it by adding only two cents to what we are now charging for a gallon of gas."

"It doesn't seem out of line," the comptroller said. "It cost us a cent a gallon to elect Nixon. For two cents a gallon we're getting an entire Congress."

"Good," said Mudbank, "what else can we do to win the American people?"

Rinoholt Sandbank, the vice president for financial affairs, said, "One of the things that seems to be bugging the American people is our profit picture. I estimate we stand to make 150 per cent profit after taxes this year. We must persuade the country these profits are within cost-of-living guidelines."

"How?" said Mudbank, "what else can we do to win the American people?" I estimate we stand to make 150 per cent profit after taxes this year. We must persuade the country these profits are within cost-of-living guidelines."

"By distributing American flag pins for every customer's lapel, I can't conceive of anyone getting no profits if we give them a free American flag."

"These lapel flags aren't cheap," the comptroller protested. "We'll pass on the cost to the customer. Three cents a gallon for the privilege of wearing Old Glory," said Sandbank.

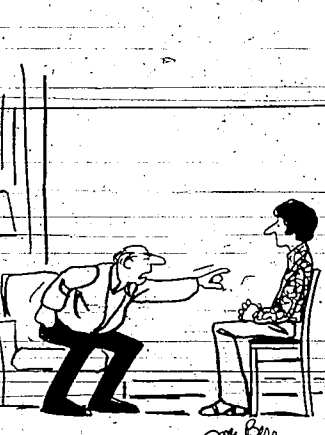

No objection was raised and Mudbank continued. "While we're at it, I'd like to bring up another problem. No one is certain how long this energy crisis will last."

"It is possible that someone will develop an automobile that doesn't use gasoline. In 20 years this could put us in a terrible profit squeeze. We must prepare now. What do we do?"

The vice president for financial affairs said, "It's obvious. We charge an extra nickel a gallon which we'll invest in tax-free bonds. No one can object to our ensuring ourselves against future unfair competition."

Mudbank seemed pleased. "This has been a most successful meeting. Now let's all go out and shoot some ducks." Copyright 1974, Los Angeles Times

Erasure disclosures said setback for Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI)—

Some leading Republicans today acknowledged that the new tape erasure disclosure was a heavy, new setback to President Nixon in his efforts to weather the Watergate crisis.

"This is the penultimate link in the chain of evidence that has steadily been forged to show that there has been a conscious, deliberate effort to obstruct justice," said Rep. John B. Anderson, Ill., second ranking member of the House GOP leadership.

"One has the feeling of approaching the final denouement in this drama," said Anderson. "I fail to see how this can do anything but accelerate the tempo of the impeachment process."

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn., a member of the Senate Watergate committee, said it was "a tragedy that anything is being handled in such a way as to impair the integrity of the tapes (and) that's what happened, apparently."

The new House GOP leader, John J. Rhodes, Ariz., said he wanted to hear all the evidence before making a substantive comment but said the new development "doesn't help" Nixon's supporters in their arguments against impeachment demands.

The comments followed disclosure Tuesday by technical experts that 18 1/2 minutes of one of Nixon's Watergate conversations were erased by a series of manual manipulations of a tape recorder.

who examined the tape was more serious that the original announcement that a gap existed.

"This shifts the burden back to the President to substantiate the original story or explain that something happened of which the President has no knowledge," Fallsback said.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., another Watergate committee member, said, "If the net effect is what it appears to be, it would be very, very serious indeed," said Baker.

experts made to U.S. District Court Tuesday on the gap in a tape of a conversation between then White House Chief of Staff

H. R. Haldeman and President Nixon June 30, 1972, three days after the Watergate break-in.

"If the net effect is what it appears to be, that is that it was not accidental, it would be very, very serious indeed," said Baker.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, a committee member, said he was "very much disturbed and distressed" by the experts' report. "I was hoping that the technical experts would have reported that this was the result of some accident," he said.

Another committee Democrat, Sen. Joseph M. Montoya, N.M., said the revelations

"clearly justify going into this matter of the tape gap a little more in depth by the committee as well as the court."

Goldwater, who has defended Nixon in a round of speeches in recent days, said "it's nothing more than technicians explaining how 18 minutes of silence occurred on a tape. My confidence in the President is still strong."

Technicians give report

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Here is the key part of the technicians report on the 18-minute gap in one of President Nixon's Watergate tapes:

"Magnetic signatures that we have measured directly on the tape show that the buzzing sounds were put on the tape in the process of erasing and re-recording at least five, and perhaps as many as nine, separate and contiguous segments.

"Hand operation of the keyboard controls of the Uher 5000 recorder—was involved in starting and again in stopping the recording of each segment.

"The magnetic signatures observed on the tape show conclusively that the 18 1/2-minute section could not have been produced by any simple, continuous operation."

"Further, whether the foot pedal was used or not, the recording controls must have been operated by hand in the making of each segment.

"The buzzing sounds themselves originated in noise picked up from the electrical power line to which the recorder was connected."

Author harassed

MOSCOW (UPI)—Friends said today Soviet author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn has been besieged with angry phone calls in what his wife called "a war of nerves."

The secretary of the official Soviet Writers Union, Sergei V. Mikhailov, also suggested in a Moscow Radio broadcast Tuesday that Solzhenitsyn leave the country. The broadcast was the first time any official representative has made such a suggestion, although there has been speculation among Western diplomats that Solzhenitsyn might be ejected.

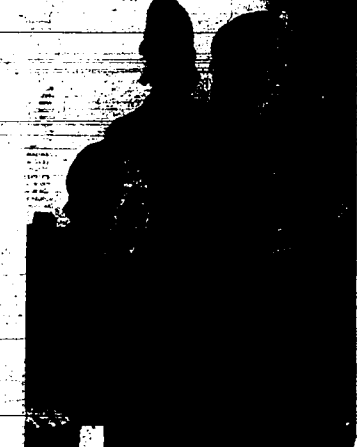

The Nobel Prize-winning author has received heavy criticism in the Soviet press since the publication in Paris earlier this month of his new book on Stalinist prison camps, "The Gulag Archipelago."

"Literaturny Gazeta, weekly newspaper of the Writer's Union, Tuesday called Solzhenitsyn 'an enemy of the homeland, an enemy of his compatriots, an enemy of all that is dear and sacred to each of us.'"

Solzhenitsyn's friends said ununiformed police and plainclothes KGB secret police were stationed outside the home Tuesday. But newsmen who went to the area today saw no sign of any police.

Answers questions

MOVIE actor John Wayne has himself a hearty laugh Tuesday as he answers questions from the stage of the Harvard Square theatre. Wayne, on an invitation from the Harvard Lampoon, rode through the streets of Cambridge and answered questions about his new movie. He might be laughing about his "bodyguard" supplied by the Lampoon.

Students quiz western hero

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI)—"Is that a wig you're wearing?" shouted a student from the back of the theater. John Wayne, the aging hero of scores of westerns and war movies, grinned and pulled ever so gently at his light brown hairpiece. "This is real hair," he shouted back. "It's not mine. But it's real hair." The audience cheered and roared with laughter.

"Wayne, 66, was pelted with snowballs and poked by unfriendly Indians as he braved enemy territory at Harvard University Tuesday for a good-natured roasting. He even managed some quips of his own about President Nixon and the White House tapes.

Wayne, bare-headed, smiling and smoking a cigar, dodged snowballs as he rode 10 blocks atop an Army armored personnel carrier, through the streets of Cambridge to the Harvard Square Theater. A few of the snowballs hit their target but Wayne batted some away.

"Wayne was challenged to a verbal shoot-out with students by the Harvard Lampoon because of his conservative views and tough-guy image. The college humor magazine's editors dared him to "appear in the most radical, most intellectual, in short, most hostile territory on earth."

Instead, Wayne received a standing ovation from the capacity audience of 1,600 persons. "Duke, Duke, Duke," they chanted as Wayne walked on stage carrying a toy rifle. He was given the Lampoon's "Brass Balls Award" and made an honorary colonel in the Army reserve.

"Coming here is like being invited to lunch by the Borgias," said Wayne. About 20 members of the American Indian Movement picketed outside the theater.

Antitrust probe under way

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) have launched an antitrust investigation of oil and gas executives who serve on the boards of one or more competing corporations, according to Rep. Bill Gunter, D-Fla.

Gunter said Tuesday he received a letter from Assistant Attorney General Thomas E. Kauper of the antitrust division saying a Justice Department investigation is under way and that "we understand FTC's is also."

Gunter last month urged the two agencies to investigate possible violations of the Clayton Act by high industry officials who appear to serve on multiple corporate boards. The firms engaged in competing aspects of the energy business. He enclosed a list of 30 top energy officials who appear to have such conflicts.

Joint panel power Senate target

By DAVID ESPNO
T-N Capitol Bureau

BOISE—Senate leadership began Tuesday to move against the independence and power of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee. The State Affairs Committee, composed of elected leadership of both parties, agreed to have printed two bills that had been drafted by Sen. James Stoecheff, D-Sandpoint. One would return the state to biennial budgeting. The other would abolish the joint committee and its staff offices and would create a Bureau of Public Accounts to assume post-audit responsibilities now carried by the Office of the Legislative Auditor. Sen. H. Dean Summers, R-Boise, committee chairman, told Stoecheff there was "a lot of feeling in both caucuses about the power of the joint committee and its actions." He also told Stoecheff he wanted more specific information about the types of work done by the committee's staff and its effect on saving the state money. The committee also agreed to ask the joint committee's co-chairman, Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, to meet with it and explain the joint committee's workings. President Pro Tem, James Ellsworth, R-Leaders, who voted against having printed the bill to abolish the committee, said he didn't question the competence of the staff. In fact, he said, its presence should give the legislature the ability to put the state on a biennial budget "and do the job we didn't have the staff to do before." Sen. Ralph Vaynbro, R-Grand View, a member of both the State Affairs and Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, also voted against Stoecheff's proposal. He said the committee's handling of the post-audit function had saved the state needless expenditures it had been making prior to the audits. Stoecheff argued before the committee that annual budgeting was costing the state more money than biennial budgeting would, and in addition, said, "most of the audits aren't that great." A move against the joint committee had been expected when the legislature convened Monday. Legislative council members, meeting in December, had discussed possible legislation giving them, rather than the joint committee, authority over the post-audit function. At the time, several of the council members expressed concern with the power and independence of the committee. One member said the committee had become almost a fourth branch of state government. Stoecheff, a member of the committee he seeks to abolish, would set up a bureau of public accounts with his legislation, with the governor as the chief officer. Committee members weren't as kind with some of Stoecheff's other proposals. They held for further study one to abolish the office of the state purchasing agent, claiming it would cost the state discounts it now receives and would complicate the state's purchasing of equipment. Stoecheff said the question was one of "philosophy," and wanted to permit more Idaho firms to do business with the state. His proposal was to let each state agency handle its own purchasing requirements. The committee also held for further study another of Stoecheff's bills, one to prohibit any state employe from receiving a higher salary than the governor makes. Exemplified would be those officials currently getting more than the $30,000 the chief executive now makes. The committee will appoint a subcommittee to study the question of salaries for top state officials.

Gem energy officials work in twilight zone

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE—State energy officials operated in a twilight zone between federal and state authority on one set of rules expired and information on the new rules not yet available to them. The new regulations issued by the Federal Energy Office (FEO) and effective Tuesday, alter the regulations issued by the Federal Register, Richard L. Brown, head of the Idaho Office of Energy, said a copy of the register was being flown to Boise on a commercial airliner. "Until he and his staff can figure out what their authority is, however, Brown said he would rely on 'law-abiding' and deal with emergency cases as they arise. "We're just going to jawbone and solve the hardships," he said, "there will be no long-term allocation. We just be reacting to what the feds are doing." Later in the day, however, Brown was more optimistic. He reported people were willing to "wait and see" what the office's authority was. He said he was confident the office could "make things work."

The state director attended a briefing in Seattle, Wash. Monday provided by FEO staff personnel. But, Brown, said the federal authorities had no answers to the questions raised by state officials, and wouldn't have any until the regulations had been printed. As a result, Brown said, his office will either be negotiating with Washington, D.C.-based FEO officials "on every specific question." Under the regulations that had been in effect until this week, the State Office of Energy had authority over middle distillate fuels coming into the state, with the ability to restrict a fixed percentage of the fuel to where it was most needed. Under the proposed new regulations, that authority will be changed to permit control over gasoline supplies, and also to create a "set aside" of all fuel amounting to three per cent of the state's total. Other changes are expected in the priorities for various industries under the new regulations for diesel and gasoline.

Tax trim backed

BOISE (UPI)—State Rep. Peggy Bunting, R-Boise, called Tuesday for a one cent reduction in the state sales tax and said she will introduce a personal bill to do that. "You as a housewife concerned about the rising cost of living," Mrs. Bunting said, "cutting down the cost of living can only be effective with the pocketbook." By cutting a penny off the three cents on a dollar sales tax, she said, the legislature can do something every housewife can see immediately. "You see what goes out of your purse," she said. Mrs. Bunting said her proposal—which would be effective only for one year—would cost about $23 million in revenue. She said it could come out of the "anticipated general fund surplus."

Lanting selects panelists

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE—House Speaker William Lanting, R-Hollister, said Tuesday he would appoint the House members who served on the Executive Reorganization Commission to the legislature's special committee to handle reorganization. Both Houses of the legislature have approved the establishing of the Joint Select Committee to handle the anticipated 1,000 pages of legislation that will be introduced to streamline Idaho's executive government. Lanting has originally expected to expand the size of the joint committee beyond the size of the interim commission, but he said his discussions with Senate leaders "had shown" no enthusiasm for the idea. House members who served on the reorganization commission include Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow; Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls; Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth; Rep. Israel Merrill, D-Blackfoot; Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont; and Rep. Edward Rice, R-Boise.

Solons dive into Gem government revamping

BOISE (UPI)—Bolstered by the governor's endorsement of an interim commission proposal, the Idaho legislature is moving quickly to set up a committee to study government. Both houses have passed a resolution authorizing select committees to handle reorganization bills; the commission has given the legislature its first briefing and bills are nearly ready for distribution. Sen. Warren Brown, R-McCall, chairman of the Reorganization Commission, told a meeting of both houses Tuesday the 21 reorganization bills should be ready for distribution to lawmakers by late today or Thursday. The chairman said the bills would be discussed early next week and a final public hearing on the reorganization would be conducted Jan. 23. It was hoped by Brown that amendments could be done before the bills "were presented to the floor." Through reorganization, Brown said the joint gathering "we're trying to build a functional government." "Rep. Larry Jackson, R-Boise, questioned whether there would be a conflict of interest with the departments of insurance and labor under a single head. "How can this man wear two hats?" asked Jackson. He was assured by commission counsel Robert E. Spradley that the group found no "essential conflict" and it would return the functions to where they were for 40 years.

Andrus abolishes 9 Idaho agencies

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus gave a shove to reorganization of the state's executive branch Tuesday by issuing an executive order to abolish nine state agencies and agencies which have been created by past executive order. The agencies to be abolished were: the Idaho Rural Development Council; Council on Juvenile Prevention and Control; Advisory Council for Idaho Office of Economic Opportunity; Governor's Executive Committee on Data Processing; Coordinating Committee for Cooperative Power Planning System and Capitol Area Coordinating Council. The functions of other agencies will be absorbed by the order will be absorbed within the framework of the reorganization plan. Agencies and boards abolished included: State office of child development; Agricultural

Removal backed

BOISE (UPI)—Rep. C. W. Neider, R-Coeur d'Alene, made a public appeal Tuesday for support of proposals to remove the three per cent state sales tax from groceries.

Restoring former time line in Idaho studied

BOISE (UPI)—Gov. Cecil D. Andrus broke into a wry grin and provoked a stream of chuckles when he told the Legislature today to expect when it comes up on Daylight Saving Time. "I've never had as much correspondence as I have had on this," said Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs. Sen. H. Dean Summers, R-Boise, said it's one of the most controversial subjects introduced as his constituents' concerns—he has seen in his legislative service. Eastern Idaho legislators followed by UPI asked their concerns strongly favor going to DST. Those in the Magic Valley were split. So were those in Southwestern Idaho. Many in the North said the people in the South should decide. "An interesting wrinkle developed, however, several legislators said they would like to see the old time zone boundary restored—putting Eastern Idaho on Mountain Time and the western portion of Southern Idaho on Daylight Time. "If I have to vote I'll vote for Daylight Saving Time," said Rep. Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls. "I'm going to have a bill prepared to request the time zone be changed and come straight south—hitting about Salt Lake City." "Every thing west will be in the Pacific time zone and Pocatello and Idaho Falls and the eastern part in the Mountain Time Zone," Lincoln said. "It will put us in line with sun time." Rep. James Elgin, R-Caldwell, who said he will have to vote for exemption from DST if it comes to that, also favors changing the zone boundaries. He would run the line somewhere between Mountain Home and Twin Falls. If the vote were taken right now it appears Daylight Time would win. Of 41 House members polled it was 17-9 for DST, 11 undecided and three willing to do what a majority in the South want. Of 21 senators questioned, it was 9-7 for Daylight Time, three undecided and two saying the South should decide. Reps. Lee Barron, R-Corral, and Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, already have introduced a bill to exempt Southern Idaho from first time. Unless this or something like it is passed by Feb. 3, the state automatically will go on Daylight Time. Many lawmakers still are questioning constituents about the issue and it appears their final decision will depend on the pressure they receive when the time arrives for a vote.

Confirmation asked

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Senate received from Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Tuesday for confirmation the names of 20 persons he has appointed since adjournment of the 1973 legislature. Included were such controversial ones as James A. Bax, Boise, as administrator of the Department of Environmental and Community Services; Robert Lenaghan, Boise, to the Public Utilities Commission and Robert G. Thomas, Coeur d'Alene, to the Fish and Game Commission. Other appointments are Monroe C. Gollagher, Boise, commissioner of insurance; Ewing Little, Wallace, tax commission; Robert Doehittle, Priestly, River, member of the DECS board; Alma Clark, Burley, board of tax appeals; Blaine Evans, Boise, Idaho Personnel Commission; Les Falter, Pocatello, endowment investment board; D. E. Childerg, Boise, director of administrative services; Calvin Wright, Boise, soil conservation commission; Ibery Smith, Boise, state library board; Marshall Edson, Boise, public employee retirement system; Earl Gunnell, Soda Springs, parks and recreation board; Edward Benoit, Twin Falls, board of education; Steven Melkie, Marsburg, endowment investment board; William Dec, Grangeville, board of correction; and William L. Crookhan, Caldwell, judicial council.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, announced plans for a meeting of emergency medical conference at Idaho Falls Feb. 15-16. The conference will be sponsored by the Idaho congressional delegation in cooperation with the Mountain States Regional Medical Program and the Idaho State Emergency Health Program.

Speed study sought

BOISE (UPI)—Idaho Gov. Jack Murphy Tuesday asked the chairman of the Idaho Transportation Reorganization Committee to look into problems surrounding a 55 mile per hour speed limit for the state. Murphy wrote Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, that the state's law enforcement agencies were faced with a complex problem in the enforcement of the speed limit. He referred to statutory provisions which, by some interpretations, allow Idaho's speed limits to be set only on the basis of safety, not for energy conservation purposes.

KEN AAMODT, left, and Melva Nussbaum, Twin Falls High School students, will attend the 12th Internomountain Science and Humanities Symposium at the University of Utah March 6-9th.

2 attend science symposium

TWIN FALLS — Melva Nussbaum and Ken Aamodt, Twin Falls high school seniors, have been chosen to attend the 12th Internomountain Science and Humanities Symposium at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City, March 6-9.

The two were nominated by the science and mathematics faculty members of TFHS. Nominees' names were sent to the Idaho State Department of Education where the selections were made.

The purpose of the symposium is to stimulate and motivate good math and science students toward increased study and effort while in high school to prepare themselves for a scientific career.

Both students will hear numerous scientific papers presented by high school seniors over various fields of study and will also attend several science seminars.

Miss Nussbaum who is Pep Club treasurer and active in International Club and Girls League, has expressed a secret desire to "work for Ralph Nader" and sees the symposium as an opportunity for being exposed to various fields which might lead to a career in science.

Aamodt, whose main interest lies in electronics, looks forward to the symposium as "a means of studying and gaining knowledge of the advanced equipment they have down there."

Both students are taking chemistry and algebra II classes.

China negotiates for American helicopters

WASHINGTON — China is negotiating for large American helicopters, which might be used in military patrols along her northern borders with the Soviet Union.

Informed sources say that the U.S. government has taken the "initial step" of allowing United Aircraft Corp. to give Peking "sales information" on the Sikorsky medium-heavy helicopter — the SH1H.

A spokesman for United confirmed that preliminary conversations with China for a fleet of helicopters are under way both in Peking and at the company headquarters in East Hartford, Conn.

At the same time, according to diplomatic sources, United is further along in talks with Romania for coproduction of 50 of these helicopters valued at $100 million.

That deal, which would need government-backed financing from the Export-Import Bank, is now being discussed in Bucharest, after an informal meeting between President Nicolas Ceausescu and United officials in Connecticut during Ceausescu's visit to the United States in December.

Romania, the most independent Soviet ally in East Europe, has repeatedly refused to take sides with Moscow against Peking. Officials note that a helicopter deal with either Peking or Bucharest would be the first time the United States has allowed heavy-duty helicopters to be sold outside the western allied world.

While to China, say U.S. officials, is bound to increase suspicions in Moscow that the United States is taking sides in the Sino-Soviet dispute. Therefore, they suggest, any completion of the current "preliminary discussions" between Peking and China will involve a policy decision by President Nixon.

United Aircraft officials say that both China and Romania would be sold the commercial version of the SH1H. It would not contain such military features as bullet-proof gas tanks, "hard points" for attaching machine guns, missiles and bombs or have the more powerful engines used by the American military.

For this reason, licensing for the export would go through the Commerce Department rather than the State Department, which operates the restrictive munitions controls list. Under the Communist countries are embargoed, unless the President specifically authorizes them.

But Pentagon officials acknowledge that distinction between civilian and military uses is virtually impossible to make for helicopters. Nothing would prevent China, they say, from using the SH1H to ferry its patrols between border outposts on the long Soviet border.

Repeatedly Peking representatives suggested that might be one possible use. These representatives apparently first suggested to United that the company co-operate in setting up an assembly plant for the helicopter in Sian, in north central China.

But company officials say that China has been told such a deal is out of the question because the United States does not want to allow such advanced technology into China.

The most that would be possible, would be delivery of a limited number of helicopters with spare parts from the United States.

In the case of Romania, however — whose relations with the United States have steadily grown more cordial over the past five years — just such a coproduction offer has been made by the company with U.S. government blessing.

According to informed diplomats, Romania has stressed the civilian uses of the helicopter, such as for transportation in desolate, rural areas. Currently Romania relies on Soviet helicopters and a limited number of French helicopters.

China had its first contact with United Aircraft through its maintenance teams that traveled to Connecticut to learn about the Pratt-Whitney engine produced by the company for the Boeing 707 jet airliner. China has purchased 10 707s, and the first was delivered last month.

Tunisia, Libya hold merger talk

TUNIS (UPI) — Prime Minister Hedi Nouria said Tuesday Tunisia will hold more talks with Libya about the proposed merger announced Saturday by Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba and Col. Moammar Khadafy, Libyan chief of state.

Political sources said there can be no union at least for several months because the constitution must be amended to allow for the holding of a referendum.

At the same time, the Tunisian government news agency published reservations about the merger plan expressed by Morocco and Algeria.

The announcement Saturday said Bourguiba and Khadafy had agreed to merge their countries into a single Islamic Arab Republic with one president, one flag and one constitution.

On Monday, Bourguiba fired

Foreign Minister Mohammed Masroufi, leading Tunisian architect of the plan.

Nouria said Monday it will be necessary to revise the constitution and while waiting for this "the Government will engage in negotiations with the Libyan Government to determine the content of the union and the stages of its realization."

Political sources said Nouria's statement indicated the government felt no urgency about implementing the union.

Libya might go ahead with its own referendum, but the merger could not legally go into effect until it was approved by the people of both countries, the sources said.

Nouria spoke after a session of the Republican Council, under chairmanship of Bourguiba, in which he reshuffled the cabinet and leaders of the ruling Socialist Destourian party.

'Sister Fix-It' repairs typewriters

CHICAGO (UPI) — They call her "Sister Fix-It" because she is a nun who has a way with broken-down typewriters, radios and television sets.

Sister Valentine Marie Schold said her religious order, the School Sisters of Notre Dame, "put me into teaching, but on the stipend I've been fixing and repairing."

Now 50 years old and approaching her retirement, the nun wants to make her hobby a profession.

"This way I could be useful in my 'third age,' what you call retirement," she said. "You do have to look forward to retirement," she said.

Last summer she persuaded a typewriter manufacturer to give her a crash course in typewriter repair.

"For 25 years I've wanted to repair typewriters," she said. The complex mechanics takes years to master, but after two months' training "Sister Fix-It" tackled her first broken-down typewriter. Six months and 56 typewriters later, her track record is perfect, she said.

Next on the agenda is radio and television repair. She persuaded her reluctant convent superiors to let her enroll in two courses at Wright College.

There have been a few mishaps, Sister Valentine Marie said.

"I still don't know everything about the repairs. A tuner I shorted almost electrocuted me."

Accident kills bride, groom commits suicide

PINCONNING, Mich. (UPI) — Three hundred guests were waiting for Alicia Rodriguez at a church for a full-dress wedding rehearsal Friday.

Also waiting was her fiancé, Juan Gonzalez, 31, and the Rev. George C. Garmyn, who was going to marry the couple Saturday.

"Everyone began wondering where Alicia was," Garmyn said. "Fifteen minutes went by, then 20, then 30."

"Suddenly, somebody ran into the church and shouted, 'Father, there's been a terrible accident and Alicia was in it.'"

Miss Rodriguez, 18, the eldest of 11 children, was dead, killed in a two-car collision that police said was caused when her brother's car went out of control and crashed into an oncoming vehicle.

Gonzales went to his fiancée's home and sat in the living room for hours. "He wouldn't say anything to anyone," said Miss Rodriguez' brother, Adolpho, 16.

Suddenly, Gonzales ran from the house.

"No one saw him again until Sunday, when he parked a borrowed car in front of a bank in the nearby village of Au Gres and shot himself in the head with a .22 caliber rifle. He died four hours later in a Saginaw hospital."

Miss Rodriguez was buried in her wedding gown Tuesday. Gonzales' funeral was scheduled for Thursday. His family said he would wear his wedding suit to his grave.

The News said the late Nikos Vardinoyannis, the board chairman and managing director of Hellas, contributed $15,000 to the CRP prior to the signing of the contract with the Pentagon in September, 1972. He gave the CRP an additional $12,500 the week President Nixon was reelected.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, said he has asked the Senate Watergate committee to look into the contributions of Vardinoyannis. Following Hart's request, the Justice Department asked the office of Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski also to look into the matter.

"The News reported that Motor Oil Hellas delivered less than half of the contracted fuel to the Navy but was paid in excess of $1 million more than was agreed upon in the contract. This meant the

Greek oil firm played hanky-panky with CREEP

DETROIT (UPI) — A Greek oil company awarded a U.S. defense contract to provide fuel for the U.S. 6th Fleet, received more money than they agreed upon and has had the contract renewed at double the cost, the Detroit News reported Monday.

In a copyrighted dispatch from Washington, the News said that the Board Chairman of Motor Oil Hellas of Athens, which won the contract although it was not the low bidder on the original or renewal, contributed $27,500 to the Committee to Re-elect the President.

The News said the late Nikos Vardinoyannis, the board chairman and managing director of Hellas, contributed $15,000 to the CRP prior to the signing of the contract with the Pentagon in September, 1972. He gave the CRP an additional $12,500 the week President Nixon was reelected.

contract which was originally called for $1.3 million, skyrocketed to about $11.4 million.

The contract ran from Oct. 1, 1972, to Sept. 30, 1973, and was supposed to provide 1.2 million barrels of oil to the 6th Fleet for $1.7 million.

But Hellas didn't have its own refinery operating at the starting time of the contract and wasn't able to give the Navy the regular shipments of oil until February, 1973. As a result, Hellas only delivered 40 per cent of the contracted oil but was paid $5.8 million.

Hellas also was unable to supply the properly mixed JP5 jet fuel that had been contracted for, but later provided it at an inflated price.

When the initial contract expired, Hellas was awarded a renewal—despite lower bids from three companies. Two American firms—Exxon and Mobil—were denied the contract running Oct. 1, 1973 to Sept. 30, 1974, despite lower bids.

The renewal calls for Hellas to be paid $11.4 million.

Vardinoyannis, 42, died from a heart attack as negotiations for the contract renewal were underway.

Supreme Court blocks civil rights charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, by a 6 to 3 vote, today blocked an attempt by a group of civil rights activists to file charges of racial discrimination in federal court against two state judges.

The complaining group from racially-troubled Cairo, Ill., who are mostly black, alleged that Judges Dorothy Spomer and Michael O'Shea of Alexander County, Ill., circuit court sentenced blacks to longer terms than whites; set bond without regard to individual circumstances; and required blacks to pay for jury trial without requiring others to do so.

The law suit filed by the plaintiffs followed demonstrations in Cairo and economic boycotts of merchants said to have been unfair toward blacks.

Justice Byron R. White, reversed a ruling by the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals which said the blacks have a federal case if they can prove it.

White said the complaint "failed to satisfy the threshold requirement" of the Constitution "that those who seek to invoke the power of federal courts must allege an actual case or controversy."

He said the group must point to some threatened or actual injury resulting from what it claims is illegal action before a federal court may assume jurisdiction.

CSI to 'cap' nurses

TWIN FALLS — Capping ceremonies for the 1973 nursing class at the College of Southern Idaho will be held Friday at 8 p.m.

The public is invited to the event in the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium. High school students who are interested in a nursing career are extended a special invitation.

The capping ceremony is for students who have completed two semesters of nurses training and "have passed the point of probation and are now seriously attempting to become nurses who can undertake patient care," according to a CSI release.

GEORGE BURKE, right, instructor for a special weaving short course which will begin at 7 p.m. Feb. 3 at the College of Southern Idaho, helps a student with a weaving project she has set up on her loom. The class will be taught in room 131 of the vo tech building at CSI and will run for nine weeks.

Weaving taught

CSI sets weaving course

TWIN FALLS — George Burke will instruct a short course in weaving at the College of Southern Idaho beginning Feb. 4.

The nine-week course will be taught from 7 to 10 p.m. in room 131 of the vo-tech building at CSI.

Burke said students must furnish their own small four-harness table loom which they can carry back and forth between home and the classroom. He said a certain number of used looms will be available for purchase and that he will have new looms for sale at a discount price.

According to Burke, the course will cover fundamentals of yarns and spinning, twill, plain, brocade, damask, lace and tapestry weaves, loom structure and design; different types of looms, their advantages and disadvantages and fabric analysis.

He said projects will not be the major goal of the course, but it is planned that each student will complete one project by the course end. Registration will be conducted during the first class session.

Filer phone firm to elect officers

FILER — The Filer Mutual Telephone Co. will hold its annual meeting at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Filer company office.

Two directors will be elected at the meeting. Arnold Gier and Merl Leonard, incumbents, are running for reelection. The annual operating report will be presented by C. M. Cunningham, manager, and Mrs. Helen Cannon, certified public accountant, will give the auditor's financial report. A question and answer period on company operations and future plans will be held.

2 men sent to jail

GOODING — Owen Fallon, 19, Gooding, and Charles Twilchell, 20, Hagerman, were sentenced in Gooding Magistrate Court Tuesday to five days in the Gooding County jail on charges of petty larceny and obtaining beer for a minor.

Twilchell, Fallon and a juvenile were arrested in December after being identified by a member of the Lawrence Adams family, officers said, for stealing gasoline from the family's pickup-truck in Wendell.

James Burke, deputy sheriff, was the arresting officer.

BLM plans protest meet

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone District Advisory Board will hold a public protest meeting on Jan. 21 to consider and recommend actions on protests, late grazing applications, fiscal year 1975 project work plan, and proposed grazing policy on rules of fair range practices. The meeting will start at 8:30 a.m. in the conference room of the district office of the Bureau of Land Management in Shoshone.

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — President Nixon was reported "greatly angered" at revelations of mutual espionage and enmity between Henry A. Kissinger and the Pentagon in 1971 and 1972. In addition, the White House, which had classed earlier reports as "inaccurate" in semi-official statements, refused to comment on new reports of more incidents.

Monday White House sources said privately that Nixon had passed on his wrath to subordinates. But the sources declined to speculate about what had triggered his delayed reaction.

Political sources in Washington, however, said that one reason may have been that the growing volume of reports tended to put Nixon in a bad light in his relations with the Pentagon, particularly the joint chiefs of staff.

Early reports, these sources said, suggested a plot by the joint chiefs to gain access to secret White House information. But later fuller reports showed the White House itself had been clandestinely active at the Pentagon, including a Kissinger-approved tap on a telephone in the executive office of Melvin R. Laird, then defense secretary.

The political sources indicated that examples of White House suspicion of the joint chiefs would do Nixon no good with conservatives in Congress — both Republicans and Democrats — who are strong supporters of the military.

Rupert fuel cut to 80%

By ED MITCHELL
Times-News Writer

RUPERT — An amount equal to only 80 per cent of 1972 fuel usage will be supplied to Rupert for municipal purposes, according to a letter from the American Oil Co. to the City Council.

Mayor Wendell Johnson read the letter from the oil company to the City Council Tuesday night. American Oil had refused to bid for the city fuel contract last fall because of uncertain supply and prices. The letter stated that municipalities have lower priority in receiving fuel than farmers, who will receive 100 per cent of their 1972 allotment.

Councilman Clark Cameron and Dwinell Allred were appointed to a committee to meet with American oil company representatives to work out the details of a new program for the city dog pound. The city dog catcher, George Pierce, will manage the pound and care for the dogs. The county will pay 50 per cent of the cost for improved service.

Councilman Cameron said "the program must be workable and tied together."

Mayor Johnson announced a budget of $12,520 for the services of the county land use planning committee planner. The county will pay 50 per cent of the cost, leaving Rupert, Heyburn and Paul with 27 per cent, 14 per cent and 9 per cent respectively.

David Wilson, city waste water department head, was presented a certificate from Idaho State University county commissioner of a 180 hour course in waste water treatment and plant operation. Johnson made the presentation.

In other action by the council, each councilman was appointed to work with individual city departments. The ordinances for uniform codes covering housing, fire, signs, buildings, mechanics and electric were read for the third time and approved.

GF Chamber installs

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenn's Ferry Chamber of Commerce held its installation dinner Monday night in the Trophy Club.

Larry Stevenson, outgoing president, introduced the new president, Gerald Bybee. Bybee introduced his officers as K. Clark, first vice president; George Lucia, second vice president; Mrs. Merl Cherry, secretary; Mrs. Ralph Hall, treasurer, and he named Mrs. James Robertson on the membership committee, Mrs. Joseph Doyle on the publicity committee.

Richfield school reopens

RICHFIELD — Schools in Richfield reopened this morning although icy highways continued to hamper attendance somewhat.

The schools were closed Tuesday by an unusual weather condition. Law enforcement officers said the roads, all with a hard packed snow floor, became so slick even cars with chains could not stay on them. Rain and melting and freezing conditions created the problem Monday, officials said.

County officers reported so many cars left roadways they were unable to keep a record of the number. Slight thawing Tuesday afternoon created ruts in most of the roads making it possible for school buses to complete their routes.

Elks convention set

SALMON — The mid-winter convention of Idaho Elks opens here Thursday and runs through Saturday with some 50 Elks and their wives expected to attend.

A featured speaker at the group's Saturday night banquet will be Robert Yothers, national grand exalted ruler from Seattle.

Employees tested

BOISE (UPI) — Forty persons at the Idaho State Laboratory have been tested for exposure to "San Joaquin Valley Fever" after a culture of the illness was opened to the air by mistake.

The disease called coccidioidomycosis has symptoms which resemble influenza.

Hagerman bids set

HAGERMAN — The Hagerman School Board will call for bids for construction of a new elementary school January 24.

The board is requesting the bid request during the school board meeting Monday night.

In other board matters, Black told trustees that there will be enough coal to heat the schools for the winter.

The trustees agreed to continue participation in the federal impact program which provides the district pay 21 cents and 12 cents per federal impact student in order to receive impact program information.

Approval was given for a field trip by eighth graders and government classes to Boise to observe the legislature in session.

Juvenile cited

BELLEVUE — A Bellevue juvenile has been cited for alleged reckless driving and operating a snowmachine on a public highway.

According to Bellevue city marshal Bud Taylor, the 17-year-old youth was arrested Monday night. A hearing is scheduled for Thursday in Blaine County Magistrate Court.

Traffic toll mounts

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (UPI) — The Idaho State Police have added another toll to the 1973 traffic toll with the death of a Hayden Lake man over the weekend as the result of an earlier accident.

State Police said Roy L. Myers, 48, died in Kootenai Memorial Hospital Sunday from injuries suffered in a head-on collision on U.S. Highway 95 north of Athol Dec. 19.

Pinehurst evacuated

PINEHURST, Idaho (UPI) — The small mining community of Pinehurst has virtually been evacuated due to flooding from Pine Creek.

Dikes holding back water from the town in the silver-rich Coeur d'Alene mining district of Northern Idaho broke late Tuesday and allowed Pine Creek, swollen by rain and runoff, to flood through the town.

The Shoshone County Sheriff's Office said approximately 150 families have been evacuated from the area and a helicopter from Spokane was being brought in today to rescue an estimated 50-60 people stranded on the west fork of Pine Creek.

Felony conviction modified

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho supreme court has modified a felony conviction on illegal possession of marijuana and returned the case to Fourth District Court for sentencing on a misdemeanor.

The high court held that the Uniform Controlled Substances Act of 1971 reduced the offense of possession of marijuana from a felony to a misdemeanor and the act was applicable to the proceedings against the appellant, Sam. J. J. Pontier.

Bliss calls for bids

BLISS — Bliss school trustees called for bids for purchase of one school bus at their meeting Monday night.

According to Superintendent Burton Lenker the district will have to be more selective when considering bus trips due to the rising cost of gasoline.

The district has decreased the number of buses to athletic activities from 2 to 1. Non-athletic bus trips may be reduced.

A request for a March trip by elementary students to Boise to visit the historical museum was tabled until the February board meeting.

Contract signed

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Parks and Recreation department has signed a contract with Richard Carothers Associates, landscape architects and environmental planners, for the Veterans Memorial State Park master plan.

Steven W. Birk, parks director, said the $300,000 contract awarded to the Boise firm, will provide input in the areas of project management, landscape resource analysis and design services.

Area range plan eyed

By PEGGY CHU
Times-News Writer

GOODING — Gooding County may not participate in the range deputy program to control cattle rustling unless the cattlemen contribute financially to the program.

According to Ben Glauser, county commission chairman, because the program benefits the entire interest group, the cattlemen should pay their share.

"I don't think its too much to ask the cattlemen to participate. We feel that there isn't much interest in the program if they don't contribute 10 cents a head (cattle)," Glauser said.

The county paid $1,000 last year and other counties in the region participating in the program also contributed that amount. The project is 75-per-cent federally funded, but the federal money is on a decreasing scale. This means the county will have to increase its share.

Cliff Harris, Wendell cattlemen, met with the commission to request that the range deputy program be continued. Harris said the county would prefer to meet with the commission but did not appear.

According to John LeMayne, county commissioner, unless more interest is shown by cattlemen, the project may be dropped from the new budget.

James Baker, one of the range deputies, has resigned, Sheriff Earl Brown announced.

County attorney Andrew James reported to the commissioners "an attorney general's opinion that the county may not budget and levy county funds for a senior citizen's program. James' opinion to the commissioners last month was that they could not levy for the senior citizens because there is no legislative authorization for the proposed county funds."

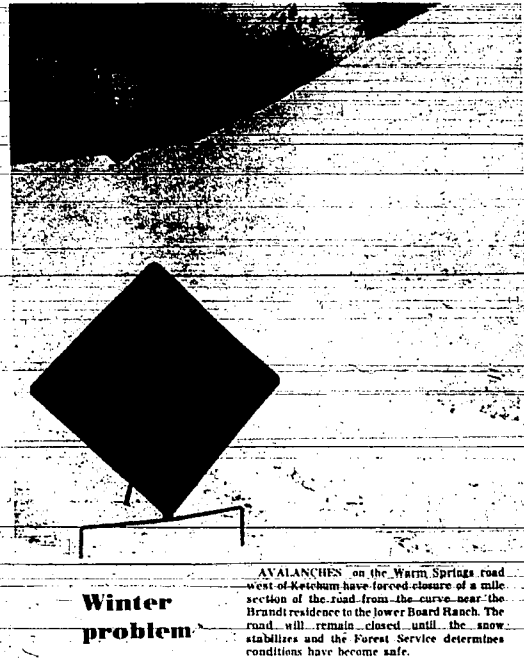

Gooding mayor Leo Rice met with the commission to request $5,000 in the forthcoming budget for city recreation, the city dump and the airport. The request was taken under advisement.

The county has requested bids for insurance coverage for a blanket bond for county officials. Fred Locke, insurance agent, met with the commission to discuss the blanket policy.

Milt Klein, regional director of the Department of Environmental and Community Services, Twin Falls, requested the commission to appoint a representative to the DECS Advisory Board. The appointment has not yet been made.

Representatives from the Wendell Veterans of Foreign Wars Post requested county money for repairs at the Wendell War Memorial Hall. American Legion representatives met with the commission last month to make a similar request. The commission has agreed to make a contribution, but the amount has not yet been determined.

Floyd Thornton, road and bridge department supervisor, discussed improvements on county roads with the commissioners. Specifically discussed was graveling roads in the northwest portion of the county.

Winter problem

Winter problem

AVALANCHEN on the Warm Springs road west of Ketchikan have forced closure of a mile section of the road from the curve near the Brandt residence to the lower Board Ranch. The road will remain closed until the snow stabilizes and the Forest Service determines conditions have become safe.

'Criticism' not heard

KIMBERLY — Two people who intended to attend a "Citizens' Forum" on the school board meeting Monday night because of the board policy that criticism must be presented in writing.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bondurant said they were part of "quite a gathering" which included teachers, visitors and others, probably 35 to 40 people.

Supt. Bugg said "they know the policy, they were here when it was made."

The superintendent was returned at the December meeting for another year, according to the clerk of the board.

Bondurant said "most of the group attending the meeting were members of the instructional staff" who were expected to come to faculty meetings.

He also said the policy requiring criticism to be in writing and signed was "not readily available." He said that he planned to formally submit his request that the board retire Bugg, who according to Bondurant, told trustees a year ago it made no difference to him if he stayed another year or not since he was of retirement age.

"They only listen to what they want to," Bondurant said.

During the brief executive session of the board, trustees gave authorization to advertise bids for a 66-passenger bus. Bids will be opened at the next meeting, Feb. 11.

Boise firm gets Burley contract

BURLEY — The Demolition and Clearing, a Boise wrecking firm, was awarded the contract for removal of debris and land filling at the site of the former Trinity School which was gutted by fire December 1.

The Cassia County School Board called the bid Monday night of $9,497 over the objection of Bonnevillie Wrecking Co., of Salt Lake. David Pitzen, representative of the Salt Lake firm, said a claim for $2,000 will be lodged against the project because of loss of profit.

Bonnevillie Wrecking was originally given the project under emergency procedures when the school board feared the collapse of remaining walls of the burned-out school.

Equipment being sent from Salt Lake was stopped on the road before it reached Burley and returned to Salt Lake when a local wrecking firm threatened a law suit against the school board. The school board was forced to open competitive bidding for the project as provided by law.

Herman Bedke, attorney for the Cassia School Board, said he was responsible for the decision to stop Bonnevillie Wrecking before they began the project and to advertise for bids. Referring to the loss of profit claim by the firm, Bedke said "well, it's not as though we come to it."

A delegation of 13 parents with children in Cassia County schools appeared before the board in appeal for reconsideration of the special education needs in planning new schools.

Hassel Shockey, spokesman for the group of parents, said, "Special education has been second best for years." He said a committee of parents will be appointed to work with the school board to formulate a special education plan to receive the attention it deserves in the future.

The school board approved a settlement by Farm Bureau Insurance of $1,108,619 for the junior-high school. The settlement was slightly more than had been expected.

Final drawings for the new junior high school were shown by the school district's architect, William Richardson and approved by the board. Original plans were changed to reduce the volume of the new building while retaining the same floor space.

The gymnasium will be expanded from the originally planned size to allow a full size playing floor and to permit assembly of the full student body.

Board members also approved the basic concept of plans for the new elementary school to be built south of 27th Street near Overland Avenue. Changes were made in the plans for the school to provide for 24 teaching stations instead of 18. Part of the planned multipurpose room will be used for special education.

In other action by the board, the 1972-73 audit report was read and accepted.

Charges of discrimination by the father of a junior high school student were heard by the board near the end of the meeting. He said that his child had suffered in several incidents involving teachers and administrators at the school. He asked for "protection" for his child from further incidents and said that court proceedings are underway in the case.

Support grows for 'serious' music

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — While a "serious" music will be completely subsidized by tax money in America, according to the conductor of one of the country's leading symphony orchestras.

Maurice Abravanel, conductor of the Utah Symphony which performed in the USU Fine Arts auditorium Tuesday night said support for good music in the US is growing.

Some years ago when federal money was first allocated for promotion of the arts, the amount was $4 million. Today, an estimated $2 to $25 million will be available, he said.

The permanent director, who in the past 20 years has built the Utah orchestra into one of the top symphony groups in America, said "Today in Congress there is majority support for federal support of the arts."

He also believes the number of people, particularly young people, who support good music is growing in America, citing the example of the San Francisco Symphony which had 200,000 subscribers in 1947 before a major western city.

In contrast, the Twin Falls performance of CSO was attended by a capacity audience of 1,000, thanks to the sponsorship by the District Junior Music club and vigorous ticket selling by adult Music Club members under the leadership of Doris Youst.

The symphony performed a student concert here this morning and were to play this afternoon at Minico High School. Rupert Theatre club will play at Burke College Tuesday.

"It is as easy to talk to as the man next door, he believes "this kind of music will stay as long as there is anything human and thinking of the master, past masters of Beethoven's favorite Third Symphonies, obviously so appreciated by the local audience, one has to agree."

Jerome OK's pay increase

By CHARLOTTE BELL
Times-News Writer

JEROME — The Jerome City Council has approved a 3.1 per cent salary increase for city employees.

The council unanimously approved a new salary schedule Tuesday night which provides increases varying in size with the employee's position. Most of the department heads and insured employees received the largest per cent increase. The police department employees received a substantial increase, average pay going from $315 to $393 a month.

The new pay scale will also alleviate discrimination which has existed in different departments, especially in the street and water department, where new employees received about the same pay as an employee who had been working for seven or eight years.

The council fixes its salary schedule on information obtained from a survey of five surrounding Magic Valley towns. The survey was conducted as to the pay scale of the surrounding towns' employees from which an average was taken.

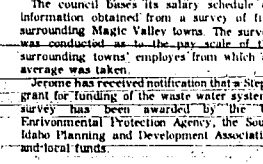

The council also received notification that a Step I grant for funding of the waste water systems survey has been awarded by the US Environmental Protection Agency, the South Idaho Planning and Development Association and local funds.

The grant will be used to pay the Boise engineering firm of Cornell, Howland, Hayes and Maryfield (CHH) consulting engineers who are compiling a comprehensive survey of the Jerome plant and all sewer lines to determine proper location in preparation for application for a federal grant. The survey is expected to be completed in mid 1974.

Mayor Charles Hancock requested the council to conduct a census of Jerome to determine possible growth of the town since 1970. Hancock said a comparison of water meter installations, telephone and power hook-ups would give the city a good indication of the growth.

He said the city revenue sharing money is based on the census and the mayor population, the more funds received. The council approved his suggestion to contract school Supt. John Campbell to obtain a history or civics class to conduct the survey on the population.

"This was pointed out" if considerably growth is shown since 1972, the city will ask the census bureau to take a new count in Jerome.

Support grows for 'serious' music

BOISE — The Utah Symphony, which performed in the USU Fine Arts auditorium Tuesday night said support for good music in the US is growing.

Some years ago when federal money was first allocated for promotion of the arts, the amount was $4 million. Today, an estimated $2 to $25 million will be available, he said.

The permanent director, who in the past 20 years has built the Utah orchestra into one of the top symphony groups in America, said "Today in Congress there is majority support for federal support of the arts."

He also believes the number of people, particularly young people, who support good music is growing in America, citing the example of the San Francisco Symphony which had 200,000 subscribers in 1947 before a major western city.

In contrast, the Twin Falls performance of CSO was attended by a capacity audience of 1,000, thanks to the sponsorship by the District Junior Music club and vigorous ticket selling by adult Music Club members under the leadership of Doris Youst.

The symphony performed a student concert here this morning and were to play this afternoon at Minico High School. Rupert Theatre club will play at Burke College Tuesday.

"It is as easy to talk to as the man next door, he believes "this kind of music will stay as long as there is anything human and thinking of the master, past masters of Beethoven's favorite Third Symphonies, obviously so appreciated by the local audience, one has to agree."

He also says as far as composition of serious

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices opened higher in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday.

Trading on the Big Board was delayed by fifteen minutes due to computer problems experienced by the Exchange's largest member firm, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner, & Smith, Inc.

Shortly after the opening, the Dow Jones industrial average had risen 0.42 to 846.65. Advances moderately led declines among the 392 stocks across the ticker.

News that the government had decided against ordering a five per cent cutback in gasoline production in the first quarter of 1974 held stocks to a modest advance in light trading Wednesday. The Dow added 0.22 to 846.65.

Volume figures on the Big Board have slowed steadily since the beginning of 1974, suggesting investors are waiting for more news developments in Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's peace efforts in the Middle East.

Other unfinished business, as well as investors are concerned, include: President Nixon's political future, and the impact skyrocketing oil prices will have on inflation. Many analysts feel the market will remain in the current "holding pattern" pending clarification of these and other uncertainties.

Scientists dispute DDT claims

SEATTLE (UPI) — Some of the U.S. Forest Service's own scientists say they don't believe the official Service claim that DDT is the "only proven effective control measure" against the tussock moth.

That claim is the basis for a request that the Environmental Protection Agency allow the Forest Service to spray up to 490,000 pounds of DDT on 100,000 acres of trees being damaged or killed in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

However, none of the service's research entomologists interviewed were willing to back that claim, nor were any of them willing to offer reasons why the EPA should grant the Forest Service—and Agriculture Department request.

And significantly, none of the Forest Service's research entomologists were involved in writing the environmental impact statement on DDT and the moth, according to the report's prime author, David Graham.

The impact statement is the primary supporting document in the request for DDT, which has been phased out except for emergency uses.

Not will any of the Forest Service's research entomologists testify at the EPA hearings that began Monday in Portland and continue today in Walla Walla.

If their views are represented at all when the EPA makes its decision on DDT, it will probably be through published research papers used by others in the hearings, or through informal channels.

The research entomologists and other scientists tend to be in the same camp as environmentalists in opposing the use of DDT, while the Agriculture Department, the Forest Service and forest products manufacturers support the use of DDT against the moths.

Both sides agree that the tussock moth has done some serious damage to trees. Official Forest Service statistics are that 8 percent of the trees on 650,000 acres of infested land are being killed in the current outbreak.

Both sides also agree that it will be impossible before March 1 to tell just how effective natural control will be against the tussock moth. At that time, the prevalence of a naturally occurring anti-moth fungus can be measured.

The Forest Service says it needs an answer to its request by March 1, so it can begin preparations to spray, should DDT prove necessary.

The entomologists disagree with the official Forest Service stance on three issues: First, whether or not there is convincing evidence that DDT or any insecticide can diminish the number of trees killed by the tussock moth, and second, if some insecticide should be used, whether or not DDT has been shown to be the most effective pesticide.

Both these issues hinge on a third point, which facts should be trusted? Those of research entomologists, or those of the men who run the operations to control the pest?

All entomologists interviewed agreed that DDT has not been scientifically proved effective against the tussock moth. As Prof. Donald Dahlet, a University of California, Berkeley, entomologist with 10 years experience on the tussock moth said, "There's no evidence that DDT is effective against the tussock moth. The literature just doesn't show it. I would say that the scientific community agrees it would not be worthwhile to spray with DDT."

The answer to what to do with the tussock moth is with a healthy mind.

Conflicts facing Salmon BLM aides developing unit plans

SALMON — The Bureau of Land Management's Salmon District is faced with resolving public conflicts in the development of a long range plan for the first of seven planning units.

The conflicts have emerged from a series of public meetings held to review BLM actively specialist recommendations.

Grant Harbour, area manager for the BLM, advised that the conflicts involve lands, range, wildlife, recreation and wild horses.

"Some members of the public feel lands should go to private ownership while others want all public land to be retained by the government," Harbour said.

"Some groups suggest that all sagebrush—possible but impossible to review—BLM actively specialist recommendations. One committee suggests that while a sagebrush spraying benefits livestock, it also benefits wildlife.

"One committee suggests that stream banks can be benefited by rest-rotation grazing. Another group suggests that removing livestock from the stream bottoms is the answer.

"One group suggests that BLM retain agricultural trespass lands—that border a stream in federal ownership, while another committee suggests that the lands be sold to the person using them.

"One committee suggests restricting off-road vehicles to existing roads and trails while another group wants unlimited use of public lands by off-road vehicles.

"One committee suggests that a study should be made to determine if there is public interest in the Challis wild horse herd while another group states that public opinion had already shown an interest and no study is needed."

Harbour noted that after the BLM has analyzed the public's recommendations, the BLM will incorporate them in the Challis Management Framework Plan now being written.

Some time toward the end of February, the plan will be distributed to all those who participated and comments can again be made, after which the plan will be written for the final time.

Harbour noted, however, that change can be made when conditions and public input suggests a change is needed.

In July, the BLM dropped from the plan proposals to acquire private lands for access, wildlife needs and fisheries needs.

"BLM has been criticized by some groups for dropping these proposals," Harbour indicated.

Their recommendations are that BLM should leave the way open for acquiring private lands in the future. They recommend that the BLM should be able to buy private lands for a willing seller that provide access, wildlife needs, fisheries needs or even future livestock needs.

The BLM official commented the BLM is now in the process of analyzing public input and will have to start making decisions on which way to go on controversial issues.

"Of course, no one is going to be oversteering his way. Some issues can be compromised, but others may have to go one way or the other. However, all recommendations from the public will be considered before making a decision."

Diet lacking fiber may boost hazard

(Chicago Daily News) CHICAGO — Fast-rising cancer of the bowel is being blamed on too little roughage in the diet and too much beef.

A seminar at the University of Chicago cited these as leading theories to account for the "alarming" rate of increase of cancer of the colon.

It now is second only to the skin as the most common site of cancer," said Dr. Bernard Levin of the Pritzker School of Medicine. In terms of death, it ranks next to lung cancer in men and breast cancer in women.

The theories blaming lack of fiber in foods, such as vegetable and cereal— are backed by world-wide studies of diets, said Levin.

Bran, whole oats, whole wheat and corn are prominent foods with fiber content. Fibers are that portion of the food not digested by acids of the stomach.

As for beef, Levin noted that the high consuming countries, Denmark, Scotland, Argentina, Uruguay and the United States — are also the countries with the "fastest-rising incidence of colon cancer."

"One theory is that fibers accelerate the passage of the food through the colon so that whatever cancer-producing agent is present in the diet has a minimum of contact with the lining of the walls of the bowel," said Levin.

It is also conjectured that bacteria in the bowel of westerners is different from that of other populations and act on fats, as well as urea, to produce cancer-causing agents, he added.

Dr. George Block, U. of C. professor of surgery, said "bolder operations" are producing a greater chance of longer survival in colon cancer.

"This is one area in which radical surgery is indicated," Block told the seminar. "In case of the breast and in other cancers, extending the operation has not resulted in increased survival. But in colon cancer it has paid off."

Radical surgery does not necessarily mean a colostomy or ileostomy (bowel opening through the abdominal wall), he said.

Bargaining bills lack backing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A top Agriculture Department official is advising farm groups to avoid sweeping, politically impossible bills seeking new legislation this year to strengthen the bargaining power of farm cooperatives.

"In 1974 it may be better to wait until better bargaining legislation rather than to attempt to run with it," Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter said.

"Emphasis must be given to issues that are critical, not just desirable," Yeutter said in a speech prepared for an annual bargaining conference "entitled by farmer cooperatives."

Yeutter, in an interview, explained he was urging the go-slow approach "because of the political realities of this year."

He noted that processors are facing continuing increases in food prices, he said consumers and most members of Congress are likely to resist most new proposals to strengthen farm bargaining power.

"Justly or unjustly, most nonfarmers will see these things as possibly increasing food prices or restricting competition," Yeutter said.

Yeutter told the bargaining conference "that the administration supports the idea of farm co-op bargaining, in principle, but wants any new legislation carefully constructed to 'balance the pendulum of strength, not simply swing it from one side to the other.'"

Yeutter said there may be a prospect for the government in bargaining as a "referee" to assure arbitrators in the "marketing process." But he added the administration wants to leave the actual business of bargaining in the private enterprise sector.

"We do not want to see a huge federal bureaucracy developed to administer a farm bargaining program," he said.

US losing ground

WASHINGTON — Although Okinawan pineapple sales to Japan have an advantage over sellers, they cannot meet Japanese demand which has zoomed upward, an Agriculture Department publication said today.

Because of the rising consumer demand, Japanese import quotas have inched higher, and imports of fresh pineapple, for example, from Hawaii other than Okinawa, jumped by 24 percent between 1968 and 1972, despite import duties.

Only 88 per cent of Japan's fresh pineapple market, which is increasing, has been filled by Taiwan, since quantity restrictions on this product were removed in 1963.

In an 85 per cent share in the Japanese pineapple market has been declining. Imports of fresh pineapple from the United States have declined sharply in the past several years from 1968 to 1972.

Sugar need increased

WASHINGTON — U. S. domestic sugar requirements for 1974 were estimated 500,000 tons to total 12.5 million short tons for the value, the Agriculture Department announced today.

The Florida Louisiana mainland cane quota was increased by 50,000 tons, making available 414,234 tons of raw sugar for importation into the U.S. on a first-come, first-served basis from any sugar producing country other than Cuba and Southern Rhodesia.

Fuel crisis fears

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers reported critical fuel shortages in only a few areas last week but voiced fears they won't be able to keep all their equipment running when the heavy field work season arrives in the spring, an Agriculture Department report said today.

The summary, based on reports from the department's county and state field offices, also indicated the fuel crisis appears to be slowing beef shipments from at least one Iowa Beef Packers, a major producer, reportedly could not move 355 truckloads last week because of equipment shortages resulting from truck operators switching to produce hauls from the west coast. Extra Value meat cuts... per serving costs!

Cost "per serving" varies with appetites...

Figuring cost "per serving" rather than cost per pound will give you a more accurate accounting of what you spend for meats, and of the value you receive for the money spent. Of course, first you'll want to be sure to check the meat trim carefully when you compare prices. Well-trimmed meats lower "per serving" costs. Another factor that affects "per serving" cost is obvious, yet is a factor we sometimes tend to overlook. And that's the size of the portions served. Nutritionists say that some of us eat more meat than necessary for sound nutrition. You might want to consider decreasing sizes of servings, which is your personal option. Cost "per serving" is important to you. Next week, another suggestion to help lower "per serving" costs...

Buttrey's Extra-Value-Trim... lowers "per serving" cost!

Sue Ellen Stockham, Jerke recite vows

MR. AND MRS. MARION D. JERKE

WENDELL — Sue Ellen Stockham and Marion D. Jerke were married in a 2:30 p.m. ceremony Dec. 29 at the Christ Lutheran Church, Wendell.

Rev. Willard G. Pultz performed the ceremony in a setting of baskets of white gladioli and green spider chrysanthemums accented with green candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stockham Sr. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Jerke Sr., all Wendell.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown featuring a lace trimmed sweetheart neckline. The waistline and long sleeves of the gown were also trimmed with lace. The gown was made of organza and fell to a chapel train which was also lace trimmed.

Her elbow length veil was held in place by a headpiece of white roses and natural greenery with green and silver streamers on a white Bible.

She carried a handkerchief which belonged to her maternal grandmother, Kathy Murphy, Twin Falls, niece of the bride, as memento of honor.

Larry Walters, Buhl, was best man. Ushers were Wally Jerke, Jerome, brother of the bridegroom, and Ron Stockham, Gooding, brother of the bride. Curtis Jerke, Jerome, acted as a witness of the bridegroom, and Ray Saffa, Wendell, nephew of the bride, were candlelighters.

Barbara and Leslie Isaacs and Danette Chapman, all Wendell, acted as a vocal selection. Mrs. Faith Eaton, Wendell, was organist.

About 150 guests attended a reception honoring the couple at the Wendell American Legion Hall.

Sally Andrews, sister of the bride, was in charge of the guest book. Gifts were cared for by Mary Ball and Debbie Landert, nieces of the bride.

Martha Jerke, and Dolores Jerke, sisters-in-law of the bridegroom, and Martha Jones, Gifts were carried by Jackie and Corina Stockham, nieces of the bride.

The bride's table was covered with a green cloth and centered with an arrangement of pine and Christmas balls.

The wedding cake was baked by Mrs. Ella Robinson, Jerome. Mary Stockham served cake, Jan Stockham poured coffee and Debbie Stockham served punch. All are sisters-in-law of the bride.

Guests were seated at quartet tables covered with white tablecloths and centered with arrangements of pine and Christmas balls.

The women of the Lutheran Church assisted with the reception. Tables were cleared by Brenda Murphy, niece of the bride, and Shellie Jerke, niece of the bridegroom.

The bride was honored at a miscellaneous show given by the women of the Lutheran Church at the church with Lois Beebe and Pauline Adams, as hostesses. Sally Andrews and Jan Stockham also gave a miscellaneous show at the Stockham home.

Following a wedding trip to Boise, the couple resides in Wendell. The bride is a 1970 graduate of Wendell High School and has attended Twin Falls Business College and the College of Southern Idaho. She is employed by the accounting department of the Upperware Co.

Couple exchanges promises

TWIN FALLS — Rosalie Phillips and Curt Echavarren were married in December at the First Church of the Nazarene, Twin Falls.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by Rev. Joseph Chastain, before an altar flanked with baskets of blue chrysanthemums and white poinsettias.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvan Phillips, Flater. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Joyce Echavarren, Twin Falls.

The bride wore floor-length princess gown of white satin with a scooped-neckline, fitted bodice and long sleeves covered with Chantilly lace, made by her mother. The matching face veil was held by a satin tulle cap trimmed with pearls made by Mrs. Joyce Houston, sister of the bride. She also wore an antique pearl and gold locket of her mother's.

She carried a bouquet of baby's breath and cascading white roses entwined with blue satin flowerettes tied with long blue satin streamers.

Carla Holmes was maid-of-honor, with Kysa Kohl and Connie Johnson as bridesmaids. Kelly Cantrell was flower girl.

Best man was Arlan Askew, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Terry Phillips, brother of the bride, and Larry Askew, cousin of the bridegroom. Clint Kohl was ringbearer.

Mrs. Richard Green was organist, with Mrs. Robert Cantrell, soloist.

A reception followed the ceremony at the church. Mrs. Ralph Andree and Sharon Hughes served the three-tiered cake which was decorated with blue roses and white bells.

The guest book was attended by Conale Hendrix. Gifts were received by Nita Echavarren, sister of the bridegroom, at tables decorated by Mrs. Myrna Roach.

The bride was feted at a pre-wedding shower given by Carla Holmes.

After a wedding trip to Boise, the couple resides in Twin Falls where the bride is a senior at Twin Falls High School and the bridegroom is employed by Albertsons.
