Appleton crash hurts TF men

JEROME — To Twin Falls men were treated at St. Benedict's Hospital Saturday night after their car overturned on old Highway 25, six miles west of Jerome.
State police said the driver, Robert Scovel, was in good condition with minor injuries. Vern Wilson was listed as "poor" after being pinned in the overturned vehicle about 30 minutes. Both men were believed to be about 30 years old. Officers were checking a report late Saturday of a possible third person in the vehicle.

US jury acquits Beckwith

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Byron de la Beckwith, tried twice but never convicted of assassinating civil rights leader Medgar Evers in 1963, was acquitted Saturday of charges he carried a ticking time bomb into New Orleans last Sept. 27.
Beckwith promptly declared his entire five-month ordeal was the result of a "deeply laid plot."

Maine ratifies rights bill

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Maine Friday became the 31st state to ratify the equal rights amendment to the U. S. Constitution. Only seven more states need to ratify the amendment for it to become the law of the land.
The Maine Senate approved the constitutional amendment Friday by a vote of 19-11, reversing a position it took last summer.

Reikover weds Navy nurse

CHICAGO (UPI) — Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, 73, the nuclear submarine pioneer, reportedly sailed into matrimony Saturday to a U. S. Navy nurse 30 years his junior, but the operations were submerged.
Cmdr. Eleanore Ann Bednowicz, 43, stationed at the Great Lakes Naval Hospital, is Rickover's intended. But newsmen could learn little about the ceremony or where it was to be conducted.

Prompt House vote sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes Saturday called on the House Judiciary Committee to hold limited hearings and vote promptly, yes or no, on a resolution to impeach President Nixon.
The Arizona congressman, who succeeded Vice President Gerald R. Ford as minority leader, said in a UPI Washington Window interview that the House would give the committee subpoena powers soon after it reconvened Monday for its 1974 session.

British satellite 'lost'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The fate of a 960-pound British military communications satellite was uncertain Saturday, but space officials declared the $14 million Skynet II "lost."

Georgia governor in error

ATLANTA (UPI) — At the cost of a lunch and doghouse time, Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter has disavowed his wife, Rosalynn, is for the Equal Rights Amendment.
Addressing an anti-ERA group, Carter said he favored the measure but "my wife disagrees." Then, he learned at a luncheon she favors the measure. She was wearing a button boosting the amendment.

Texas bandit captured

HOUSTON (UPI) — A banding young burglar held 13 persons at gunpoint in a northside grocery for nearly 10 hours Saturday, then took three hostages on a wild ride that ended in his arrest on dead-end dirt road 30 miles north of the city.
The bandit, Wesley Earl Evans, 27, was captured without a shot being fired near Patton Village, a small community on U.S. 59, when police units converged behind him.

Riots erupt in Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — Rioters angered by the arrest of a man searched through the streets of East Belfast Saturday night and gunmen fired on civilians in two sections of the city, police said.
A police spokesman said rioters hijacked at least three buses and set fire to one together with a hijacked garbage truck.

Potential TF park site isolated

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News Writer

FILER — Twin Falls County owns 17 acres of potential park land along a beautiful but inaccessible section of the Snake River.
The county can't get to the site because it is surrounded by private land owned by a corporation which doesn't want "people running back and forth."

The land-locked county site is north of Filer, about four and one-half miles west of the mouth of Rock Creek. The county purchased the land from the Bureau of Land Management in 1972 for $2.50 per acre. The sale included a requirement that the land be used for public recreation. If it is used for anything else, ownership will revert to the BLM.
The county's 17 acres is surrounded by the Crystal Springs Ranch, a corporation owned by LeRoy Bylund, Filer; Ota Lynn, Bagerman, and Wesley Beth, Elko, Nev. The corporation currently raises fingerling fish for commercial use and runs some beef cattle on the 700-acre ranch.

The corporation opposes public access across its land because it plans to start a fish spawning operation, a delicate business, according to Lynn.

"As with any other breeding program, you can't have people running back and forth and perhaps polluting the ponds," Lynn said.
If public access is obtained, "the spawning operation would have to be curtailed. It might damage us to the point where we couldn't continue the program," according to Lynn.

Energy crisis called genuine

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Nixon told the American people Saturday there would be no heating "hardships" this winter and no gasoline rationing in the spring, if their voluntary cooperation in conserving energy continued.
In a midday radio address, Nixon said the energy shortage is "genuine."

— He has directed that "an immediate review be made of the international tax structure to ensure that American companies which are developing energy resources abroad are not permitted to avail themselves of special tax advantages abroad." This was apparently a reference to the complex tax provisions that enable oil companies to subtract from their United States tax bill all taxes and "royalties" paid to oil-producing countries such as those in the Persian Gulf.
— He pledged that the price of gasoline would not go to $1 a gallon.

— He promised to "do everything in my power to prevent big oil companies and other major energy producers from making an unconscionable profit out of this crisis." In this connection, he renewed his request to Congress for a new kind of "windfall profits tax" on oil producers that would rise with the price of a barrel of oil.
— Backing up William E. Simon, his chief energy official, he said he would ask Congress to pass a law requiring the oil companies to provide full and constant accounting of their inventories, their production, their costs and their reserves.

Thermal leases sought

By MARIYNN FLEGGITT
Times-News Writer

BURLEY — Gulf Oil Corp. has leased several hundred thousand acres of land for geothermal research and development in southern Idaho, the Times-News learned Saturday.

Independent lease brokers, hired by the company and operating out of Salt Lake City, have been negotiating leases on state and private lands in Cassia, Ada, Valley, Franklin, Blaine and Madison counties as well as areas in Utah, Nevada and Oregon since last November, representatives for the brokers said Saturday.
The eventual goal is development of a geothermal power source, officials said.
The leases are all for geothermal resources and exclude gas, oil and other mineral resources, they said. "Gulf is not after oil and gas, they are only interested in geothermal resources," a representative said.
No dollar amount for negotiated leases was available, the official said. However, Leonard Funk, Cassia County rancher who leased over 2,000 acres to the firm, said Friday the contract provided a yearly lease fee plus a royalty of 10 per cent.

Staudaher considering Idaho school post bid

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Twin Falls School District Superintendent George Staudaher is considering a race for state superintendent of public instruction, according to reliable reports.
Sources say Staudaher inquired about the requirements for a candidacy for superintendent during his trip to Boise Thursday and Friday. Persons familiar with Staudaher's inquiries said Friday he visited with officials in the office of the secretary of state and Department of Education, as well as with a member of the office of the attorney general, apparently to familiarize himself with the requirements for candidates for the post.

Staudaher said in Twin Falls Saturday he has made some inquiries in regard to the matter but has not made any decisions.

He said he has not discussed the matter with his board of trustees, but has given the matter some consideration. Staudaher added he and his family would be reluctant to leave Twin Falls and this is one of the arguments against such a move.

N. Idaho disaster

By United Press International

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger took his personal Middle East diplomacy to Jordan Saturday as the first step toward trying to win a Syrian-Israeli agreement to disengage their troops on the Golan Heights. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat flew to Damascus for the same purpose.
The task appeared even more formidable than the Israeli-Egyptian agreement Kissinger achieved in a week of commuter flights between Jerusalem and the Egyptian Nile River resort city of Aswan. There was a possibility that more shuttle flights, between Damascus and Jerusalem, might be necessary.
The Israeli-Egyptian agreement appeared to be taking hold Saturday as the U.S. Emergency Force headquarters in Cairo reported

FLOODWATERS surround farm buildings near Pinedale in north Idaho, where 850 houses have been lost and 800 persons displaced. Gov. Cecil D. Andrus called situation "the worst natural disaster in the history of the state." Residents were fighting to keep the St. Joe River in its banks at St. Maries Saturday and Lake Coeur d'Alene was rising 1.8 inches an hour, flooding nearby areas. (UPI) no cease-fire violations along the canal for the second straight day.

Sadat, HK push Golan bids

Syrian President Hafez Assad was reported angered by Sadat's agreement with Israel and suspicious that it might free the Israeli army to act against Syria and Jordan. If Kissinger and Sadat can soothe Assad's doubts and fears, there still remained the overriding problem of the Israeli prisoners of war held by Syria.
Israeli Deputy Premier Yigal Allon reaffirmed Saturday there "can be no Israel-Syrian understanding unless Syria releases a list of POWs and permits the international Red Cross to see the prisoners. Sadat says there can be no discussion of POWs until Israel withdraws from all Arab territory occupied by Israel.
The Israeli-Jordan frontier has been completely quiet although both Jordan and Israel have troops along the border. During the war Jordan made no move to cross the 200-mile border with Israel. But at the Geneva conference in December, the Jordanian delegation said it wanted to disengage along its frontier with Israel immediately.

Jordan entered the October war against Israel Oct. 13, one week after it started by sending two elite armored brigades to fight on the Golan Heights front.

Viets, China clash

SALGON (UPI) — Chinese Air Force MiGs bombed Vietnamese-occupied islands of the disputed Paracel group Sunday morning and Chinese troops landed on the atolls, military sources said.
Fighting broke out on at least one of the islands — Roberts — and six South Vietnamese were killed and 16 wounded in the first minutes of the battle, the sources in Saigon said.
The renewed fighting followed sharp fighting Saturday that caused casualties on both sides and resulted in the sinking of two Vietnamese ships and the "probable" sinking of a Chinese ship, spokesman said.

Aide charges FDA food checks inadequate

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A U.S. Department of Agriculture inspector 4434-US Food-and-Drug Administration inspection of food processors in Idaho is inadequate.
"He claims low quality food that has been rejected by Agriculture Department inspectors often finds its way into grocery shelves because of inadequate FDA inspection.
One of only two FDA inspectors in the state, in response, says there is no problem with the FDA inspection process and no additional inspectors are needed in Idaho.

The job of food inspection is divided between the two federal agencies. The USDA, with a much larger inspection force, inspects firms dealing with dairy and meat products or firms which sell food to public institutions.
The FDA inspects all other food processors. Wayne Williams, USDA inspector at Burley Processing, told the Times-News that in numerous cases low quality food which he has rejected for sale to government institutions have gone on the grocery store shelf.

"For example, he said french fries, defective with potato rot, have been put up for retail sale after he rejected them for government purchase.
"About all the inspection that we do is really for government contracts... there's no way we can stop" the sale of rejected foods to grocery stores, Williams said.

However, he said that within the last year the USDA and the FDA have developed some lines of communication so that the FDA could be notified of "observed quality problems."
Williams said that even with enough inspectors present problems such as a build up of slime along processing lines sometimes occur, but without inspectors the problems are much more likely.

City engineers' study complete

TWIN FALLS — During 1973 the most hazardous intersection in Twin Falls was Fourth Avenue North and Fifth Street North.

The first year statistics of a five year traffic study, reported to City Manager Jean Miller by the city engineering department, show the unmarked residential intersection with a rating of 6.30 accidents per million vehicles.

There were only six accidents investigated by city police there, but traffic counts were lower than at major intersections.

The engineering department report indicates rerouting of traffic from Shoshone Street during reconstruction probably resulted in the heavy accident rate. This placed heavy traffic on a route many of the drivers were not familiar with, the report said.

The number two intersection in Twin Falls is listed as Blue Lakes Boulevard and Falls Avenue where 22 accidents occurred with a rate of 4.32 accidents per million vehicles. The most accidents in any one intersection occurred at Blue Lakes Boulevard and Filer Avenue with 30 accidents, but the volume of traffic made the accident rate relatively low at 1.76 accidents per million vehicles.

Other major accident intersections on the ratio basis included Fourth Avenue East and Second Street East, 3.94 ratio and five accidents; Shoshone Street and Fourth Avenue West, 3.81 ratio and 14 accidents; Fourth Avenue North and Second Street North, 3.48 ratio and six accidents; South Park Avenue and 30th Street, 3.38 ratio and six accidents; Third Avenue North and Third Street North, 3.37 and six accidents; Sixth Avenue West and Shoshone Street, 3.10 and 10 accidents.

The East Five Points intersection had 18 accidents, but only a ratio of 3 while North Five Points with 20 accidents dropped to 2.80 ratio wise because of heavy traffic there.

West Five Points listed to 2.05 accidents and a ratio of 2.02.

Engineers said by comparing 1973 statistics to accident reports of 1972 some unexplainable factors appear.

The Second Avenue East and Third Street East intersection had 15 accidents in 1972 and only five in 1973.

North Five Points was fourth on the list in 1972 with 24 accidents and a ratio of 4.34.

Other charts based on the 1973 accident reports of the city show May and November as the most accident prone months, rather than months when streets are ice covered or when tourist traffic is the most heavy.

Friday is the worst day of the week for accidents and the worst hour is between 4 and 5 p.m. when accidents average between 2 to 3 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m.

Canyon, Inc., eyes friendly suit

TWIN FALLS — Canyon Inc. is still seriously considering a "friendly" suit asking that approval of a controversial Snake River Canyon rim subdivision be revoked.

"However it would appear that we're not going to have any action flight at this very moment because the subdivision approval was conditional anyway," said David Mead, Twin Falls president of the corporation.

Formed last year, Canyon Inc. has pledged support for "orderly development and preservation of Magic Valley lands."

The group petitioned the Twin Falls County commissioners last October, asking the commissioners to nullify their approval of the Meander Point subdivision, a planned 29-acre housing development on the Snake River Canyon rim immediately east of Rock Creek.

The commissioners rejected the petition and Canyon Inc. attorney Charles Brumbach, Twin Falls, said a "friendly suit" might be filed to clarify subdivision law.

Mead said Friday his group had delayed a decision on the suit since a 50-foot wide access road is required to the subdivision before construction can start.

The county commissions approved the Meander Point project "subject to a 50-foot access road to said subdivision," according to minutes of the commissioner's meeting.

Commissioner Merl Leonard said Friday, "We've advised him (Harold Frazier, developer of Meander Point) to refrain from development until access is gained."

Leonard said it is "debatable whether we were legal or not" in setting the access requirement. Of course, a court of law might think different.

Frazier is reportedly negotiating with area landowners for purchase of access rights to the subdivision.

James Sinclair, who owns land east of an existing road to the Meander Point tract said Friday he would give Frazier enough land to widen the road "as soon as he comes up with the cash" to cover improvement expenses, including legal fees, movement of fences and construction of ditches.

Frazier has reportedly deposited $7,500 in Twin Falls bank for the improvements, according to Sinclair. But that will not cover all the costs, he said. "That wasn't what I asked for. It will take at least $15,000 to do the job."

Frazier was not available for comment Friday.

Sinclair was adamantly opposed to construction of a section line road to the Meander Point project. Twin Falls Highway District officials have said they are committed to an all-weather access to Frazier's property.

They said the access would be along the existing road or along a section line on which the district holds a 50-foot right-of-way.

Sinclair said the section line road would cut through his property and disrupt his farming operation.

"We'll take it to the supreme court" if the section line access attempt, he said. Frazier "can sit out there for four or five years during litigation."

PUTTING THE RECORD IN THE PROPER PERSPECTIVE:

Facts about Nixon as a leading Democrat understands them: . . .

(an open letter to the American Public):

My fellow Americans:

Without intending to be offensive, the record should be put in the proper perspective. Let us look at the record when certain segments of the Democratic Party (and there is available information) to support this contention) stole the election from Richard M. Nixon in 1960 by the manipulation of the votes in New Mexico, Illinois and probably Texas, did the Republicans try to impeach and destroy President Kennedy for the actions of certain segments of the Democratic Party? The answer is no.

Of course, as unpleasant as it is to mention the episodes of Billy Sol Estes, Bobby Baker and others, I cannot find that the Republicans exploited these issues in trying to destroy Democratic candidates for any public office. It is wrong, dead wrong, to try to destroy any man through innuendo and false accusations about incidents that he had nothing to do with.

I say, without equivocation or mental reservation that in my considered judgment, President Richard M. Nixon's integrity is unimpeachable. His greatness has been established so much so that certain segments of the Democratic Party, of which I am a member, and for political reasons, are trying to destroy his greatness. It appears that there are many Democratic appointed judges who, through a subconscious urging, may be making themselves a party to the scheme to destroy President Nixon.

When Mr. Nixon was sworn in as President, we were in the midst of one of the most destructive and expensive wars our nation had ever been engaged in. Evidently, President Johnson could not develop a formula to conclude the war so he left the White House a broken, hearted man, and I believe that President Johnson felt he was turning the nation over to a man who had the ability and determination to conclude this terrible war that was claiming 300,000 precious American lives weekly. Could this have so embarrassed the Democrats that they are trying to blot out this great accomplishment?

When Mr. Nixon was sworn in as President, crime was running rampant in this country like never before. He is slowly but surely bringing crime under control. Will this trend be reversed by present day court decisions? What is the explanation for a Democratic appointed judge to sentence a man to 25 years in prison for the Watergate break-in, a crime that was not an act of personal violence and in the same case some other Democratic appointed judge released those who have confessed to armed robbery, rape and arson, maybe with the final judge blaming society for the criminal acts. Where is justice?

When Mr. Nixon was sworn in as President, the Supreme Court was so disturbing the Constitution by previous interpretations, that they were turning our nation into a semi-socialist state. Mr. Nixon's replacing such justices with men who respect opinions based upon the Constitution and such a court ultimately benefit all Americans.

When President Nixon assumed command, he recognized that China with its 800 million population representing 25 percent of the total population of the world was developing nuclear weapons. Even though he had an intelligence operation to know that for the preservation of our Nation we could not afford to permit China to affiliate with the Russians. His decision to go to Peking and establish a semi friendly relationship with China will keep them out of the Russian orbit and could prove to be the greatest decision ever made by an American President. History will take care of this matter adequately.

Mr. Nixon's trying hard to put our fiscal affairs back on a business basis but somehow without exception, every time he moves in that direction the liberals and socialist minded try to embarrass him and stop him, and in too many instances they have been successful.

What is going on in our country? Look at those who are trying to destroy our President! Do you wish to turn this country over to the type of people who by majority nominated George McGovern as the Democratic nominee in Miami? We are in trouble in this country. We are being misled, and some of our best people are having their minds slowly but surely shaped by prejudiced commentators, and the radical segment of the news media. From experience, I can tell you that America's national broadcasters are obliterating anything favorable to our President, spending their time clearing issues, making false accusations and, in some instances, downright misrepresentations. Listen to some of these broadcasters for verification of this statement.

Without attempting to defend their actions, these actions do not involve the security of our country. I am thoroughly convinced that President Nixon had no knowledge whatsoever of the Watergate Break In. Let us prosecute the guilty, but not involve our President when there is no indication that he had any knowledge of their actions.

I could have remained silent during this crisis had I been a political coward, thinking only of the Democratic Party and my personal political interests. Certainly I would have been spared some criticism, but to have been silent would have violated every principle by which I have lived my life. I sincerely believe that in the end right will prevail if not before man, certainly before God, and I am just as convinced that in the end the position I have taken in support of my President will be the correct one. I am neither a Democrat, but I am an American first. I shall support my President, understand political pressure, notwithstanding. I am proud that my President has the courage, wisdom and determination to do what is right, knowing well that his greatness will shine as a bright example to generations yet unborn, and when finally he has gone to his reward, hundreds of millions of people throughout the world will know that this world is indeed a better place in which to live for President Nixon's having lived it.

Finally, may I urge you to read the Constitution of the United States and then ponder this question prayerfully: What crime has our great President committed to warrant the abuse heaped upon him by liberals, Democrats, and bloodthirsty haters and in many instances, in goddamned institutions? Please do your duty and get your communication off to leaders of the House of Representatives, protesting the unwarranted action that is being proposed.

Sincerely,
Otto E. Passman
Member of Congress

Offices entered

TWIN FALLS — Two doctor's offices were broken into Friday night. Capt. Tim Qualls, chief of detectives for the Twin Falls Police Department, reported.

In both instances entry was gained by forcing a window. Dr. Dean Affleck's office, 231 Fourth Ave. N., was entered early Saturday morning and ransacked. Dr. Affleck said he was not able to say immediately if anything was taken.

The second burglary occurred at the office of Dr. W. H. Kramer, 151 Addison Ave. The break-in was discovered Saturday morning by an employee.

Officers said an unknown quantity of drug items was apparently taken.

TF council to hear protests

TWIN FALLS — City Council members of Twin Falls will hear protests from property owners Monday night in connection with Local Improvement District 88.

streets between the district and city. These include Filer Avenue East from Sunrise to Eastland and Falls Avenue East on the portion east of Eastland.

A request for vacation of Butler Street will be heard as will an annexation request from Carolina Paper Box Co.

The council will hear a vote request from Twin Falls Canal Co. to take action on authorization of easements for Kimberly trunk sewer lines, discuss several airport issues and make appointments to the Accident Review board.

Head Start funded

WASHINGTON — A grant of $58,000 from the office of Health, Education and Welfare to continue the Head Start program for one year in Twin Falls and Jerome counties was announced here Friday.

The office advised Idaho congressional delegates, Sen. Frank Church and James H. Eastman and Rep. Orval Hansen who made announcements of the funding.

The funds go to the South Central Idaho Community Agency in Twin Falls to be used for the Head Start program. There are 95 full-time and 175 part-time children served by the two-county program which provides day care while parents work.

Andrus budget blow to schools

Governor Andrus' new budget contains a bombshell buried on page 259. He has turned on the public schools. The proposed budget, if accepted by the Legislature, would reverse the long-term trend in which the public schools have been proportionately high spending increases year after year. This year the schools have been asked to be satisfied with crumbs while other agencies feast. Compare two sets of figures: The public school budget approved last year and now is often provided for a large increase in school spending. Total state funding for public schools rose over 32 per cent, an increase of $17.7 million. This was a much higher percentage increase than the general fund budget as a whole, which rose less than 16 per cent that year. Compare this with Governor Andrus' newly proposed lower priority spending for public schools: Under his new budget, Andrus offers an increase of just $8.1 million, or 11.1 per cent. Meanwhile, the general fund budget as a whole would grow much faster, at 17 per cent. So last year school spending was given a high priority, higher than total general fund spending. But this year schools have been given far lower priority, far lower than the general fund total. And when the school support at the local level following the three mill school property tax reduction last year and the proposed two mill cut this year is included, the change in school priority becomes even more drastic. It is difficult to understand the reasoning which has lead Governor Andrus to reduce school spending priorities. On the one hand he is making no points with the educational community, which has been one of his main bases of political support. He glaws at the hand that feeds him. At the same time he makes no points with conservatives who wish to hold back spending, because his budget for the coming year provides for more, not less, spending than last year's budget. Last year's general fund budget rose 15.6 per cent, while the new budget rises 17 per cent. In short Governor Andrus still is a big spender, but isn't spending big for the school.

Oregon leads

(Christian Science Monitor) Oregon this past week added another episode to its record of taking positive, voluntary action to meet adversity. The state's 1.4 million drivers this week started buying gas at service stations on alternate days—odd-number-ending plates one day, even-number-ending plates the next. A 10-gallon limit is another feature of the plan, devised by Gov. Tom McCall and agreed upon by Oregon's fuel distributors and gas station operators. The plan should shorten the long lines that have been building at gas stations in the state, and help stretch out the supply—which appears smaller for Oregon than for neighboring California, Idaho, and Washington. Oregon thus becomes the first state with an operating rationing system. Of course, Oregon officials recognize that a long-term shortage for Oregon, while neighboring states have more adequate supplies, would undermine the long lines of public cooperation that has made the action possible. And it would be necessary for the oil companies as well as the federal government to ensure that distribution of fuel among the states be equitable. The New England states can make the same case for fair regional allotments. But the fact remains that Oregonians have taken a positive initiative against the fuel challenge and have not simply waited for others to solve the problem for them. The state has shown recently the same willingness to tackle its problems with at least three environmental issues. Oregon transformed in six years the Willamette River from a sterile waterway to a recreational area to which the Chinook salmon have returned. It has declared a successful war on cans and non-returnable bottles that have been littering its majestic woodlands. And it has tried to stem the influx of visitors who have been over-running the state's parklands. Oregon, with its simple voluntary gas rationing plan, once again is showing how common sense, cooperation, and commitment to the general good can be summoned to meet the challenges of change. It is offering a healthy counter to any tendency to treat the energy challenge as the pitting of public oil interests, and government against one another as adversaries.

Counsel picks tip House panel's hand

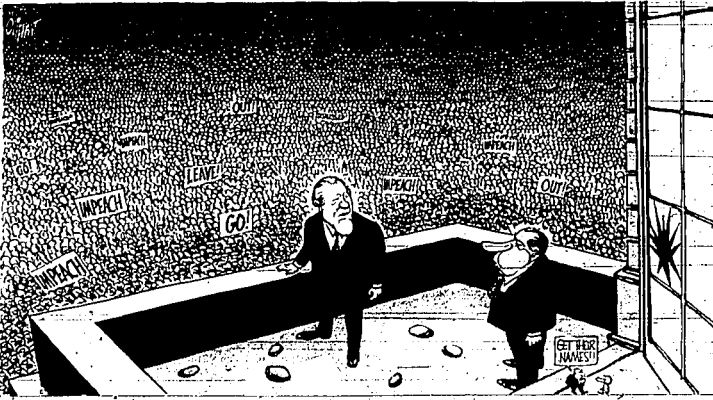

(C) New York Times Service WASHINGTON—By its choice of counsel, the House Judiciary Committee has made it plain that it intends to look busy for a few months and then recommend the impeachment of the President. The minority counsel, Albert Jenner, was represented to be a Republican conservative. But after he had been chosen, word leaked out that Jenner had been a fund-raiser for Democratic Sen. Adlai Stevenson 3d of Illinois, certainly a material fact of his political background that he has concealed from the Republicans who chose him. Jenner tried to brush the Stevenson connection off as some token activity because he was an old friend of the Stevenson family; now it develops that this steady Republican was one of the five sponsors of a breakfast to plan a fund-raising dinner at which Senator Stevenson announced his candidacy for re-election. The dinner, with Jenner on the date, raised $165,000; his personal contribution was $1,000. Every family-should-have-such-a-friend. This effort to conceal and then minimize his active support of a Liberal Democratic senator indicates how much Jenner wanted the job as minority counsel. Then came his appearance on a Chicago television show. If nothing else, counsel to the House committee deliberating whether to recommend impeachment of the President should maintain a judicious silence. But there was Jenner, popping off with his opinion that the President should be "responsible for the actions of aides," commenting on matters that the House of Representatives will be called upon to decide in the most solemn proceeding of the Democratic process. Turning to Democrats, the selection of John Doar to be majority counsel also telegraphs the Judiciary committee's punch. Rarely is the praise for Doar's record as a lawyer and as assistant attorney general for civil rights enforcement, has anyone mentioned a central fact about the man chosen to head the staff that will get the impeachment ball rolling: In his most recent public job, Doar proved an unqualified flop. As president of the New York City Board of Education in 1969, Doar permitted his views and lifelong dedication to the cause of civil rights to get in the way of providing good public education to the children of New York. Doar, whose ideology made him inflexible, presided over a calamitous teachers' strike; reporters on the scene then say his rigidity lengthened and embittered it. Can such a man, who allowed his commitment to the civil rights of one minority to seriously and adversely affect his judgment in his last public assignment, not be an implacable enemy who share the totality of Doar's commitment? Both in terms of his motivation and past performance, John Doar is the perfect choice to head the staff of the Judiciary committee if the ultimate verdict desired is a recommendation to impeach. Conscience or politics may cause members of the committee to set aside the stacked-deck staff recommendations in the end, but spare us the hypocrisy of protestations of staff objectivity. With ideology Doar and publicity-hungry Jenner in command, no fair hearing or dispassionate study is in the cards—a profound mistake in a procedure that should guard its ethics with infinite care. Welcome to Washington, gentlemen.

JUST A SMALL GROUP OF ACTIVISTS

Speaking before group biggest fear

This will slay you, but a survey comes up with the contention more people are afraid of speaking before a group than they are of spiders, bugs and the like. Mr. Spector knows that surveys are a dime a dozen and that practically everyone can conduct one. But the "results" of one conducted by a New Jersey-based marketing research firm is, at least, interesting. We must point out that New Jersey people probably do not think the same as Idaho people, but we will discount that assumption for purposes of today's column. There were 2,500 souls involved in the survey which we are discussing. It indicated two out of five feared public speaking, nearly one out of three height, and more than one in five feared insects and bugs—as well as financial problems and death. At the same time, sickness, death, and lying were feared by almost one in five, while one out of seven feared loneliness. Other fears? Well there were dogs, driving, darkness, elevators and escalators. Women expressed a greater degree of fear for all the items, except the financial problems where both sexes expressed about the same level of concern.

Some 46 per cent of the women feared public speaking with only 36 per cent of the men expressing this fear. But the more an individual's paycheck or income amounted to, the less fear he or she showed for public speaking.

MR. SPECTATOR

So we must assume that the more you make the faster you talk!

ANOTHER CONTEST? We note with interest where Magic Valley Memorial Hospital has liberalized the handling of abortions. This presents an interesting opportunity for local merchants. No more should the "first" baby of the year get presents from the merchants and a picture in the paper on an exclusive basis. From now on we should promote some such contest for the "first" abortion of the year.

A GOOD OUTLOOK Jerry Hunt is one of our real pioneers. Now retired, he is the town's oldest barber. The other day while eating at the Rogerson Restaurant he hung his name on the coatrack. When he came back to get it, it was gone. He hasn't turned up yet. It was a real collector's item and he misses it. He'd had to buy another one. How does he take the whole thing? "If the guy who stole it needs it worse than I do, then I guess it is OK," he said.

A SORRY FELLOW We have a soft spot in our heart for the guy who saved his money all his life, is just ready to retire or has just retired, and his first major expenditure was the purchase of a motor-home to tour here and there. And now, there's no gasoline to move the thing!

TODAY'S CHUCKLE: To those people who are always saying that life is hard, wouldn't you like to ask, "Compared to what?"

Soviet emigration policy target

WASHINGTON—Forced cancellation of the first American tour in 10 years of Lenin's famed Kirov-Ballet was the result of sharp escalation in U.S. reaction against Soviet emigration policy, raising potential new threats to Moscow's and President-Nixon's hope for détente. The escalation transfers anti-Soviet feelings from votes in Congress to the emotional stage of the performing arts in New York City and other centers of culture. The reason for the abrupt cancellation by Columbia Artists Management, whose top officials carried their case direct to the Soviet cultural czar, Mink. Yekaterina Fourtseva, this was clear threat, unless Valery Panov, the former juno (disgraced) principal dancer for the Kirov, and his wife, Galina, were given permission to emigrate to Israel, the City Center 55th Street Theater, where the Kirov was to open in Manhattan, would be empty. That warning to Columbia Artists, couched in "non-ideological" words, came from a high-level committee of actors, playwrights, intellectuals and critics headed by the New York Times' drama critic, Clive Barnes. It was based on a long record of outrageous treatment of Valery and Galina ever since they asked permission to emigrate to Israel two years ago. Valery is Jewish, his wife Christian.

The Panov case has been a cause celebre in the artistic worlds of New York, London and other Western capitals ever since, kept quiet in hopes that Soviet authorities meant what they said in repeated promises.

EVANS & NOVAK

But notwithstanding Soviet policy which allowed missing Jewish emigration to Israel during the Yom Kippur war, a bitter fate befell the Panovs. On Dec. 18, Panov was summoned to the visa section of the Leningrad office of the ministry of interior and informed his application had finally been cleared. And my wife? He asked, "She stays." Such cruelty was scarcely new to Panov. Eight days after his application for emigration visas for all any days that the "ugly American" was dragged into a kind of hearing on his application: As a member of the Kirov collective, Panov needed its consent before applying to the interior ministry. That hearing, turned into a verbal lynching which attacked the company's principal dancer of "crime and treachery," "betrayal of the creative arts" and worse. One week later, Panov was fired from the Kirov on charges of "anarchic behavior and treason." Since then he has been unemployed. His wife Galina, still a dancer with the Kirov but demoted to the rank of ballet, sent an appeal to Nikolai Kosygin, No. 2 boss of the Soviet Union. The letter charges legal fraud in the official reason given for the denial of her visa—that her mother has not given her consent. The private warning by leaders of the performing arts that the Kirov would play to an empty house in Manhattan unless the Panovs got their visas resulted from similar anguish and anger, and that anger is now spreading to Boston, Toronto, Chicago and San Francisco. In London, British Equities, which controls the performing arts, is considering blocking all Soviet cultural exchanges—unless the Panovs are allowed to emigrate. This is no anti-Soviet extremism led by the Jewish Defense League: This is the collective conscience of the West, and as such it represents greater potential threat to Moscow's play for détente than most votes in Congress.

Tapes issue hangs tough

(C) Chicago Daily News WASHINGTON—The question was artless and devastatingly direct, and Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren issued thunderstruck. "Jerry, did the President erase the tape?" asked Adam Clymer of the Ballroom Sun. Warren, who had danced around a series of questions about the June 20 Watergate tape, never straying beyond a brief, formal White House statement, stared at the lecturer in the White House press briefing room for a moment. Evasive action was not possible any longer for the soft-spoken Warren. He started repeating himself about the statement which cautioned against premature judgments about the contents of an 18-minute gap in the tape. But then he appeared to realize that an equivocal response to Clymer's question was hazardous. "The answer to your question is no," he said. "But I am not going to take questions on this matter."

PETER LISAGOR

The questions came anyhow. How did he know? Did the President tell him? Warren dodged and danced and wined, and struggled to maintain control. "There have been many discussions with the President about this matter," he said. But he refused to elaborate. He even refused to say whether the President was in touch with his new Watergate attorney, James St. Clair. Until the technical experts testified about the multiple erasures on the tape, all affected, naturally, the White House had hoped to put Watergate aside and to emphasize President Nixon's involvement with the fiscal 1975 budget, his state of the union address, legislative initiatives, energy matters and foreign policy.

But that session with Warren showed the difficulty Nixon faces. The press spokesman announced the appointment of Kenneth Cole Jr. to be an assistant to the President for domestic affairs. It was a promotion for the year-old Cole, who served under John D. Ehrlichman as executive director of the domestic council and was now to fill the post Ehrlichman vacated in the wake of Watergate revelations. Warren spoke of an energy action group meeting, a Cost of Living Council briefing on Tuesday with Labor Secretary Peter Brennan and British Ambassador Lord Cromer, the latter to say farewell, and a couple of ambassadorial appointments. But there were a scant few questions about anything but the tapes. And Judge John J. Sirica, still seeking an explanation for the erasures on the tapes, indicated he might refer the controversy, to a federal grand jury. All which added up to further absorption in the White House, in the courts and undoubtedly in the Congress with the durable tapes issue, which the President and his associates had hoped would be overwhelmed and sidelined by other national issues.

Japanese unpopularity displayed including Chinese, Dutch, British and Americans—could attest, the anti-Japanese demonstrations were in the best Indonesian tradition. The violence of the Indonesian demonstrations by far outdistanced the hostile reception given Tanaka in Thailand, normally the most hospitable of Southeast Asian nations. Tanaka was dogged by student demonstrations for most of his trip. The reliable exception was the Philippines, which is under martial law and where President Ferdinand Marcos is courting foreign investment. Tanaka's stormy reception removed once and for all any doubts that the "ugly American" has replaced the "ugly American" as Southeast Asia's chief foreign target—if indeed the American was ever all that ugly.

The violent reception given Tanaka in Jakarta touched off some soul-searching in Japanese government and business circles. Indeed it might, Indonesia accounts for 18 per cent of oil-thirst Japan's oil imports. Japanese "economic imperialism" is Southeast Asia's chief grievance against Japan. There is justification for this charge, since Japan has a mortal lock on Southeast Asia's economy. But the situation is far more complex. Southeast-Asian attitudes toward Japan are essentially those of a "soft" society versus a "hard" society. Southeast Asian feelings are compounded of envy, fear, frustration and the suspicion that the Japanese hold them in ill-concealed contempt.

Oil profits tax target

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., said Saturday his House Ways and Means Committee will soon begin drafting a stiff excess profits tax of more than 50 per cent on oil companies to force them to invest more heavily in research and exploration. Declaring that oil companies "have probably a lower reputation than the politician does," Mills said he has warned the industry that the American people think they've had extra tax "preferences," and "they have."

Mills said he personally favors a heavy tax on profits the oil companies reap from the energy crisis above a certain base period, to be poured back into research and exploratory drilling for new petroleum sources.

"I don't know how high we would go, but it would have to be more than 50 per cent," he said.

Mills added that other energy-related matters his committee will study will include the possibility of partial federal financing of exploratory industry work on shale oil and coal gasification.

In an interview, Mills also said: "There was no chance" a general tax reform bill could clear Congress this year, but "I don't think this is the time, with the economy in the doldrums, for us to overload the economy with taxes."

He said his committee would take up tax reforms immediately after considering energy measures, and could have a bill ready for floor action by mid-summer. "There will be no across-the-board tax cut for individuals this year, but it is 'entirely possible' that some other action might be taken to stimulate consumer spending."

It may be necessary to provide tax incentives for food, steel, aluminum and other segments of the economy which are producing below demand.

Demo whip asks 'Gate discussion'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd said Saturday President Nixon should discuss Watergate in detail when he comes before Congress Jan. 29 to deliver his "State of the Union" message. Byrd said in an interview that Nixon will be making a mistake if he pretends his Watergate problems do not exist when he delivers the address before a joint session and on television.

Nixon has to take note of the "incontrovertible fact" that Watergate has severely affected "the true state of the union," the West Virginian said. Byrd noted that Nixon has not mentioned Watergate in any formal communication with Congress.

Floating franc dismays market

PARIS (UPI)—Fighting to protect its economy against spiraling oil prices, France announced Saturday it would let the franc float against the rest of the world's currencies in a move that was received with dismay by its partners in the Common Market.

"This action increases our freedom of action in directing our economic policy," Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing said after a 95-minute special cabinet meeting presided over by President Georges Pompidou.

"The primary national duty from now on is to export, to always report more so as to re-establish the equilibrium of our commercial balance," Prime Minister Pierre Messmer said. Many economists saw the action—set to last for six months—as a de facto devaluation of the franc and said they expected the franc to open Monday below the rate of 20 cents it brought Friday.

The measure, forced by a current French rate of inflation of 10 per cent, largely due to soaring oil prices, pulls France temporarily out of the agreement to support the currencies of West Germany, Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg and Denmark—members of the European monetary union.

In Brussels Common Market officials said the decision to float the franc dealt another blow to the European monetary union and brought confusion to the Market's farm program and its financing.

They said the floating of the franc delayed—and possibly destroyed—the Market's campaign to have an economic and monetary union in Western Europe, including a single currency by 1980.

Steerable warheads in arsenal

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — The Defense Department is developing a new type of missile warhead that can be maneuvered to avoid enemy defenses or eventually could home in on missile silos.

In the acronymic world of the Pentagon, the new warhead is known as MARV, for maneuverable re-entry vehicle. It represents the third generation in a family of multiple warheads that the United States has developed for its strategic missiles.

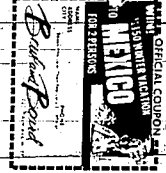

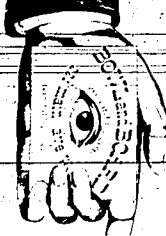

The official baptism of the new warhead came in a footnote to the Defense Department's latest quarterly report to Congress on the costs of major weapons programs. The report noted that there had been a $21-million increase in the Trident missile submarine program to pay for "an advanced development effort for MARV's."

The warheads will go on top of the long-range missile being developed for the Trident submarine, scheduled to go into operation in 1978.

Fog slows crew hunt

PILOTTOWN, La. (UPI)—A layer of fog on the Mississippi River Saturday hampered the search for 14 missing seamen and firefighting efforts against two ships set adrift by a collision.

The ships, the tanker Key Trader carrying 152,000 barrels of home heating oil, and the ore carrier Baube collided Friday at the mouth of the Mississippi. Two crewmen are known dead. Coast Guard firefighting crews Friday night and early Saturday put out fires which raged a mile down the surface of the river because of the floating, burning fuel oil.

Thieu in Saigon — A special joint session of the national assembly voted today to amend the constitution so President Nguyen Van Thieu can run for a third term in 1975. The amendments also extend the term from four years to five.

Staudaher mulling state office bid

(Continued from p. 1) State superintendent is a statewide elected position. The current superintendent, D. F. Engeling, is serving his fourth term in office. Most observers predict he will retire when his current term expires in January, 1975.

Two other persons have been mentioned as possible candidates for the post. They include Roy Truby, administrative assistant to Engeling and Jerry Ewate, currently the Caldwell School District Superintendent. Ewate said several weeks ago he doubted he would make the race. Truby, who has been mentioned most prominently, has also figured in speculation about a democratic opponent to Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho. Staudaher was in Boise Friday for a meeting of the Professional Standards Commission of the State Board of Education. He asked the commission to ask the State Board to approve a teacher contract form different than the standard form the Board has already adopted. One person familiar with Staudaher's inquiries into the possible candidacy said the Twin-Falls administrator was definitely showing an interest in the race, but hadn't made up his mind.

County access refused

Bylund said, "Nobody will accept the damage that they will do. I don't want to be a garbage collector."
The county "will have to condemn a road for one and one-half miles through my property" to gain access, according to Bylund.
"I've turned it over to my attorney now," he said. "I estimate $200,000 to $300,000 damage if we have to do away with the spawning operation."
Don Zuck, chairman of the Twin Falls County Park and Recreation Commission, said the county has offered to blacktop an access road to the 17 acres and build "necessary" culverts. "In fact, we agreed to put up a chain-link fence on both sides of the road to keep the public from trespassing... but he doesn't want us in there."

"At the present time we've kind of given it up because the county commissioners have more or less indicated... that the cost involved in forcing the right-of-way, which we could not be prohibitive," Zuck said.
"We know that we legally could force an entry. But what the court would decide in damages is an unknown factor... They would have to be paid a fair price, the appraised price."
"From the standpoint of what it would cost and how the people would benefit as a result of it, we will probably seek to develop other plans," Zuck said. "We still own the land there, and eventually, if we can't get land access, maybe we could have a boating access. We'd boat to the park and have a picnic."

But County Zoning Administrator Ed Woods said the boating idea is not feasible. The boats would have to be launched near the Crystal Springs grade and brought upstream, he said. This would be practically impossible since a swift rapids would have to be negotiated before reaching the county site.
Woods said the Crystal Springs corporation's whole attitude is "No — they can't stand the pressure of the public."
He agreed that the public would probably damage the spawning operation. "Some jokes would throw a beer can and (the courts) would shut us down," Woods said.
"The spectre that scares me is an injunction," he said. It would cost the county about $75,000 to condemn an access and develop the park, Woods said. That investment would be lost if a court rules that the public damaging the private operation and forces closure of the park.

Lynn said the corporation had offered to trade 17 acres of its land at the mouth of Cedar Creek for the county land. "This would be much more accessible to the public," he said.
The trade was turned down "because they said any land trade had to be adjoining county property," according to Lynn. He said the corporation also offered to "put in water and help in maintaining the 'clean-up' at the Cedar Creek site."
Robert Paine, Twin Falls, attorney for the corporation, said the trade was refused because "the people who were interested in development were interested in property above the rapids. They didn't want anything below."
Paine confirmed that the BLM is trying to "round-up" some land near the mouth of Rock Creek which the corporation could purchase and trade for the county's 17 acres.
Dell Waddoups, a realty specialist with the BLM in Burley, said, "We are trying to work our money out — we're looking for a trade for Bylund."
"Whether it will ever work or not, is something else," Waddoups said. "We're finding a tract of ground at the mouth of Rock Creek that is suitable, if the people will sell it."
He said Bylund has been approached about the land exchange and has expressed approval.
"It's kind of a touchy deal, really," Waddoups said. "We've got to find the land and then approach the guy who owns it."

Henry plans Panama visit

(C) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger plans a visit to Panama early next month to show United States interest in diplomatic efforts to settle the Canal Zone question once and for all, according to informed sources.
Now on a peace-making mission to the Middle East, Kissinger is booked to meet with the Latin American foreign ministers in Mexico City, Feb. 20 through 22. The trip to Panama comes as a surprise because it is described by informed sources as a one-country journey and because Kissinger is known to be planning a more extensive swing through Latin America in the spring.

The decision to go to Panama, according to insiders, emphasizes US concern with reaching early agreement with the Panamanians on the future of the canal, the US-controlled zone and the military bases agreement. There is also interest in possible future expansion of the canal facilities by addition of a third set of locks or excavation of a sea-level waterway.

Balky skylab gyro falters again

HOUSTON — (UPI) — A control gyroscope in the Skylab space ship "falters" twice Saturday, but Mission Control hoped lower temperatures the rest of the journey would solve the problem.
Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue, in their 65th day of the 12-week flight, conducted medical tests and gained more time to view the sun in place of the earth research.

Flight Director Milton Windler canceled the earth pass, but said it had nothing to do with the faltering gyroscope.
The gyro, one of two remaining, has been "hiccupping" much more this week than before, Windler said. He said he hoped it was caused by higher temperatures in the station due to the angle of the sun to earth.
Temperatures climbed above 81 degrees inside Skylab Saturday, but Windler said they would drop by Sunday. The peculiar angle that put the station in 74 consecutive hours of sunlight last week.

Sirica suggests fresh grand jury tape probe

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON — Judge John J. Sirica asked the special Watergate prosecution Friday to give "immediate and serious consideration" to a grand jury investigation of the erasure of 18 1/2 minutes of crucial Watergate tape recording and the alleged non-existence of two other subpoenaed tapes. Officials of the special prosecution said later there was "no question" but that the prosecution would follow Sirica's recommendation. The office of the White House counsel reacted to Sirica's recommendation saying in a statement, "It would be wrong to conclude on the basis of Judge Sirica's decision that an individual in the White House is guilty of improperly or wrongfully in the handling of the Watergate case."

"The American people should be in mind," the statement said, "the focus of the investigation in the grand jury is primarily how the tape may have been erased, not what the tape contained."

Sirica made his request from the bench at the close of a long day of hearings, saying he was calling a recess in order to refer the matter to the prosecution.

"It is the court's considered opinion that a distinct possibility of unlawful conduct on the part of one or more persons exists here," he said in a statement to the crowd that overflowed his second floor courtroom at the U.S. Court House here.

"A grand jury should now determine whether the indications are appropriate." Sirica carefully refrained from suggesting who the wrongdoers might be, and, indeed, from concluding that there definitely was wrongdoing. But he said that it would be a "dereliction of duty" to recess his-and-a-half month long hearing without taking further action — especially he said, "in a case possessing the significance of this one."

Suez pact risk hopeful Dayan says

(c) Chicago Daily News
TEL AVIV — Israel and Egypt will be allowed to keep no more than 7,000 troops, 30 tanks and 30 artillery pieces in their respective forward zones created by the military disengagement agreement worked out under the aegis of U. S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

These and other details have been confirmed by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan in a Hebrew-language TV interview. Dayan estimated that up to 40,000 reservists now on active duty with the Israel Defense Forces could be demobilized once the agreement goes into effect — probably by early March.

Earlier, he told several foreign correspondents that the agreement was a risk for Israel, but that he hoped it would "pay off" as a first step towards peace. "We are exchanging a good military line for something not so good," Dayan said, "on the assumption that the war will not be resumed. He admitted that if hostilities are renewed "we shall have to fight a war under worse conditions."

Answering questions over TV, Dayan contended that there had been a chance in Egypt's position compared with its previous stand — before the Yom Kippur war — when it refused a similar agreement. "This resulted from Egypt's successes in the war," Dayan said, "with her forces having crossed the Suez Canal, as well as from what it failed to achieve."

Prison guard slain as rioting quelled

ATMORE, Ala. (UPI) — A prison guard taken hostage by "revolutionary types" was beaten and stabbed to death before the eyes of the warden when negotiations failed during an uprising at Atmore State Prison.

A second guard was also stabbed, but survived, and one inmate was killed during the bloody outbreak that lasted two hours Friday afternoon. Two other inmates were critically wounded. "Come get us" inmate George Robbins reportedly shouted at the warden and guards before he began slashing away at 55-year-old guard Laell W. Barrow, whose hands had been tied with the federal grand jury's body was brought out. It had five or six stab wounds in the chest and back, authorities said, and he had also been beaten across the head with a pipe.

Dobbins died in a fusillade of police bullets as officers tried to stop the attack on Barrow. Several other inmates were also wounded, two critically. The second guard who was stabbed, Arthur C. Dresden, 55, was listed in stable condition at a local hospital. Warden Barney Harding said the uprising began at 3:35 p.m. Friday when word spread through the prison that an inmate at nearby Holman Prison had been killed.

Rulers out in Belgium

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Belgium's 32nd postwar government resigned Saturday in a coalition breakup caused by the collapse of a Belgo-Iranian oil refinery deal.

King Baudouin accepted the resignation of Premier Edmond Leburton and his Socialist, Social Christian and Liberal coalition. The King asked Leburton to continue in office until a new cabinet is formed.

A royal palace spokesman said the king would begin political consultations Monday but political leaders immediately began a series of party meetings.

Processor inspection in Idaho 'inadequate'

While some food packers "keep plants cleaner than we require," others "let their standards drop" and "push some bad products through the line" during times of heavy production, he said.

FDA inspections, which occur once or twice a year, are not adequate, Williams maintained. "I don't consider it that much of an inspection as far as keeping the plant on the ball," he said. Out of about 15 inspections in which he has accompanied FDA inspectors, Williams said only two could be considered "full inspections." In the others the FDA inspectors "only looked into an aspect of the processing."

"There isn't any real surveillance as such," another USDA food inspector said regarding food processing. The inspector asked to not be named.

He said the FDA is only required to make inspections of food processors once a year and sometimes the inspections are not made that frequently.

He compared this situation to that of meat packing firms where anywhere from two to eight USDA inspectors are present full-time to insure quality and safety of the product.

Furthermore, the inspectors do not consider quality, but look to the most gross type problems, the USDA man said. He said the FDA only takes regulatory action when it finds a product dangerous to human consumption.

Where as the USDA applies stringent standards on the use of "Grade A" and "Grade B," the FDA applies no such standards and a Grade B or Grade C product might legally be labeled Grade A, he said. Only when a product is classified by the USDA grade can a consumer be sure that any standards apply, the inspector said.

He said that while the consumer's choice is the "ultimate standard," by which products are judged, if products were graded then the buyer could buy by price and be sure of the quality. He also predicted that there would be fewer cases of the stomach "flu" if health standards were more strictly enforced.

Idaho FDA food inspector Joseph Stegner believes the FDA has been able to do an adequate job in food processor inspection.

Stegner said the best way to measure adequacy is by determining whether a problem exists. "So far, we haven't had any problems so obviously there's no reason for burning up taxpayers' money in more personnel," he said.

But, he said, a problem could crop up. The FDA tries to visit plants regularly — at least once a year — to insure sanitary processing of food. The visits are unannounced, Stegner said, and, at least up to recently, unannounced. Stegner said that before the energy crisis the FDA inspectors would skip around to different areas of the state to be sure that they would not be expected. Now, however, they are more conscious of fuel and concentrate on one area at a time.

Stegner said that the Idaho FDA inspects between 50 to 75 major canneries and frozen food companies in addition to warehouses, bottling plants, grain storage facilities, bakeries and flour mills. Major processors, plants working with foods which would be dangerous if processed poorly and firms with a "history of poor performance" are given the highest priority, he said.

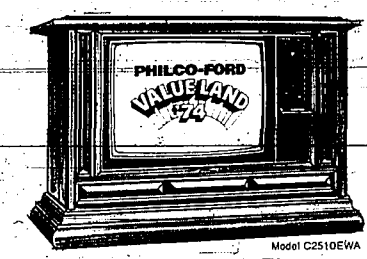

Although the FDA inspectors attempt to keep to a schedule, recently the two men have not been able to do so because of a national emergency with contaminated mushrooms. So far, Stegner said, none of the mushrooms, processed in the eastern United States — have been found in Idaho stores and warehouses.

An inspection of a processing plant is often complex because "almost every firm is an individual," Stegner said. He said "many times plants have their own types of equipment which are unique for that particular process or that particular firm."

When the inspectors run into a processing system difficult to judge they "call upon experts within our agency as well as the national can manufacturers," Stegner said. At times, he said, the schedule recently they have gathered about a firm's processing is not adequate and they have to re-inspect.

Both Oran Scholl, plant superintendent for Green Giant, and Idaho Frozen Foods president Vern Routh said that FDA inspection of food processing firms is thorough and adequate.

Congress granted $3,000 pay boost

(C) Chicago Sun-Times — Members of Congress will receive a $3,000 pay raise this year — from $42,500 to $45,500 — and the same salary increase in each of the next two years.

Administration officials revealed that President Nixon decided to reduce the pay adjustment recommended by a special commission that was created at the end of 1972. The commission proposed a one-step increase to $55,000.

It was up to the president to accept, reject or alter the commission recommendation. His decision will be announced in the new federal budget. Without further action by Congress or anyone else, Congressional salaries will go to $48,500 in 1975 and $51,500 in 1976, then under the Federal Salary Act, it will be time for the appointment of a new quadrennial commission to review the salary scale of Congressmen, federal judges and top officials of the executive branch. The $3,000 raise is about 7 percent.

Staudaher raps Idaho pact form

By DAVID ESPO
Twin Falls School Supt. George Staudaher met with a commission appointed by the State Board of Education Friday to protest the board's adopted standard teacher contract.

Staudaher asked the Professional Standards Commission to pass along to the board a contract drafted by the board to use for its employees for the next school year. In a 45-minute meeting that was often acrimonious, the commission members agreed to send the contract to the board. The State Board of Education must approve each district's proposed contract.

Staudaher told the members of the commission the standard contract the board had approved was a poor one. "I think it opens up to too many questions and possibilities of problems that could arise," he said.

Staudaher also said he first saw the contract Oct. 16, even though several commission members said the form had been circulated throughout the state for several months before that time.

The Twin Falls superintendent also made available to commission members a letter from Fred Decker, Twin Falls attorney who serves the school board, to an assistant attorney general. Decker's letter points to "several serious legal questions in my mind because of the added provisions and ambiguous language."

In his letter, Decker asked assistant attorney general James Hargis for answers to a series of questions, and in addition, he wrote, "It might be nice to have the rationale of the author of the new contract form. The local Boards of Trustees and administrators have no guidance at all on the rationale or the meaning of the changes in the form of the contract."

Roy Truby, administrative assistant to State Superintendent of Public Instruction D. F. Engelking, agreed with Staudaher that the contract form had been a "controversial issue," and said "both sides" had been fully heard before the State Board adopted it.

Hargis told the commission members at the meeting the questions raised in Decker's letter had also been discussed while the contract form was being drafted and agreed to. "There's nothing in this contract that in anyway attempts to change existing law," Hargis said.

The assistant attorney general said the contract form approved by the State Board of Education did not "go through and specify" a series of points as does the contract form proposed by the Twin Falls School Board. "It simply puts the burden back on the district to establish its own policies of employment practices," the contract form, Hargis said, "does nothing that prevents negotiable items from being negotiated."

Staudaher countered, however, by saying that while the local school district had its administrative policies, "this contract (the one the local board adopted) simplifies it for us and it is a better contract form."

Truby told commission members he saw "very little difference" between the two forms.

Dorsey Riggs, commission chairman, said there was no intention "to cram this down everyone's throat," and said the commission had made every effort to keep the local school districts informed when the contract form was being drawn up.

Tax relief endorsed

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, Friday urged members of the Idaho legislature to provide tax relief.

Addressing the House briefly, Symms said Idaho was in the enviable position of having surplus funds in its treasury.

He said House members should "give every consideration" to returning some of the funds to the taxpayers. He expressed no preference about which type of tax relief he would like to see.

Symms said 44 cents of each dollar earned by Americans is spent on taxes.

TF loan firm dissolution asked

TWIN FALLS — AVCO Financial Services of Twin Falls, Inc., will no longer exist if a petition in Fifth District Court is approved.

However, the Twin Falls "Avco" office will still continue operation.

According to an Avco spokesman, the name "Avco" is used both by the parent company, a national firm called Avco Financial Services, Inc., and by a series of local subsidiary corporations.

One of these subsidiaries is Avco Financial Services of Twin Falls, Inc.

The parent company has decided to assume the assets of the local subsidiaries and dissolve the small local Avco firms.

Accordingly, a petition was filed in Fifth District Court by Avco Financial Services of Twin Falls, Inc., to dissolve the company.

Meanwhile, the company spokesman said, the Twin Falls Avco office will continue operations without interruption.

Assuming the court petition is approved, the parent company, a national firm called Avco Financial Services, Inc., and by a series of local subsidiary corporations.

granted, the Twin Falls Avco office will be owned and operated by Avco Financial Services, Inc., instead of Avco Financial Services of Twin Falls, Inc.

Remap measure vote try fails

'Washing' urged

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Magic Valley lawmakers said in a speech on the House floor Friday each state department should be forced to "wash their linen" in front of an agency of the legislature. Rep. E. V. McElhan, R-Ketchum, told House colleagues the investment manager of the State Investment Board drew a $20,000 annual salary without review by the legislature. Noting an opinion from the office of the attorney general had found the procedure legal, McElhan nevertheless said there needed to be some control over the board and its personnel, and over all state agencies.
 "It's high time we do something with this," he said.

Cutback sought in-panel power

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Three Democratic members of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee have called for a cutback in the authority of the committee.
 The three legislators, in a six-page presentation to the committee Friday, also called for a resolution which they said was "the question of whether or not this committee operates under the authority of the legislature—conceded—and under which set of rules the committee shall operate."
 The report was prepared by Sens. Mike Mitchell, D-Bowdoin, and Jim Stinchiff, D-Sandpoint, and Rep. Marlon Davidson, D-Boonville.
 The three held a week-long "rump session" of the committee two weeks ago after a session budget hearings were cancelled by the committee's Republican co-chairman, Sen. Richard High, R-Twin Falls, and Rep. William Roberts, R-Idaho, cancelled the session because of what they said was non-cooperation on the part of Gov. Cecil D. Andrus.
 Charging arbitrariness and a lack of cohesiveness on the part of the co-chairmen, the three Democrats wrote, "The basic issue boils down to this; do we have a government of law or do we have a government of men by the whim of individuals?"

 The three northern Idaho legislators charged the majority with violating the rules of the legislative manual that governs the legislature acting. "If in truth we have really arrived at such a pinnacle of arrogance that we are acting as a legislature unto itself, then we should either disband this committee and start all over again or begin implementing some changes to improve the image and the performance of this committee," they wrote in their report.
 As part of the proposed changes, the three suggested placing the office of the legislative auditor directly under the legislative Council, instead of with the Joint committee, where it now resides.

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Efforts to get a reapportionment bill out of the House State Affairs Committee for a vote on the floor of the House failed Friday.
 Two separate amendments were offered to the proposed reapportionment plan, including one by Rep. Lee Barron, R-Coral.
 Barron's plan would increase District 22, which now includes Elmore and Carnas counties, by taking one Ada County precinct. The basic plan Barron is seeking to amend adds to his district at the expense of western Gooding County and a small portion of western Twin Falls County.
 The Carnas County Republican said his plan would "preserve the integrity of Gooding County and at the same time reapportion the state along one-man-one-vote lines."
 The second proposed amendment would move southern Idaho County, part of District 9, back into District 8 along with the rest of Idaho, Lewis and Nez Perce counties. Offered by Rep.

Harold Reid, D-Grainmont, it would then add to District 9 by taking two areas of Canyon County from District 11 and District 12. Rep. Herb Pitt, R-New Meadows, who presented Reid's plan to the committee, said it would put all of Idaho County back into the same district, instead of leaving it split.
 Committee members declined to let the bill or the amendments to the floor of the House, because they said there hadn't been enough discussion of the proposals to change the plan they saw earlier in the week. Chairman Rep. Harold Snow, R-Moscow, warned committee members the courts had given the legislature only 30 days to reapportion itself.
 "Thirty days in a pretty short time to get a bill as controversial as this through the legislature," Snow said.
 He told committee members weeks and weeks and weeks of negotiations had preceded the drafting of the original reapportionment plan, and conceded it would be virtually impossible to come up with a proposal that would meet with everyone's approval. When he initially presented the bill to the committee earlier this week, Snow said it had the backing of legislative leadership. It was introduced in the House and referred back to State Affairs.

 Barron said his proposed amendment to the plan would take from Ada County one of its most rural districts. "It will do the least violence to Ada County" to put the precinct into a district with Elmore and Carnas counties, he said.
 In other action, the committee voted 9-4 to introduce a measure sponsored by Rep. Walt Little, R-New Plymouth, to let the district boards of health set the salaries of their administrators. Currently, Little said, the salaries must be set in accord with Idaho Personnel Commission guidelines, with the result that the district health administrators make more than many of the county officials. County commissioners from counties within a health district make up the district board.

Natural setting planned for play

Harrison school

IDENTIFICATION of the proposed "creative" playground being planned for Harrison school, Twin Falls, includes: 1) raised mounds, 2) sand "ivers", 3) raised sitting area, providing view of all areas; 4) slide, 5) tunnels, and 6) cargo nets for climbing. The purpose of this type of playground, according to Jann Hutchison who is proposing its development is to create imaginative setting and more nearly represent a natural environment.

'Creative' playground planned for TF school

By LORAYNE G. SMITH
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A new concept in education known as development of "creative" playgrounds is being launched at a Twin Falls elementary school.

Initiated by Jann Hutchison, whose two children attend Harrison school, the idea is to develop a place for children to play which will stimulate their imagination and more nearly resemble the natural environment than the traditional blacktop and metal playground equipment.

Mrs. Hutchison would be the first to disclaim credit for the concept. She first learned about such type of playgrounds while studying for her bachelor of fine arts degree at Utah State University, Logan.

She also participated in building such a playground in Logan, using shovel and the whole bit, as she describes it. And in addition she had opportunity to go back and watch the children use it and talk to teachers to get their ideas.

The project was in connection with some relaxation in landscaping which was her minor. Her interests naturally followed her majors, in interior design and fabric, which led her into managing a shop in Ogden and also working in this field in California before moving to Twin Falls six months ago.

But the experience surfaced recently when her son came home with glowing reports of the school's intramural sports reports, but seemingly nothing of comparable scope for her daughter.

With so few children living on farms there is need for physical work, Mrs. Hutchison believes girls also need opportunity for intra-mural sports.

But the creative playground will benefit every child whether or not he or she is interested in competitive sports.

In addition to trying to more nearly resemble the natural environment, which, she says, adults were fortunate enough to have in the smaller rural schools of years ago, the "creative" playground also stimulates the motor abilities of the child, Mrs. Hutchison says.

"Probably the best aspect of the project, at least for adults, is that hopefully, the materials and labor will be donated and thus cost the school district next to nothing."

She has received enthusiastic support from the Parent Teacher Organization board at Harrison and plans soon to bring the project before a general PTO membership where she hopes to get pledges of assistance in both labor and materials.

The power and telephone companies already have agreed to provide poles and offered to dig the holes for them.

Mrs. Hutchison first learned her idea to Ella Nelson, whose practical know-how, gleaned through experience as president of the League of Women Voters, made her a natural for children involvement.

Together they have worked with Bob Donnelly, Twin Falls School District athletic director, as well as other "key" people including Max Mueller and Jay Pace, landscape architects.

The idea is to create a varied level terrain, including mounds and sandtraps and different objects made from wood that children can use for imaginative ends. There will also be an obstacle course, which won't be actually termed such, but teachers can use it in that way, Mrs. Hutchison said.

The playground will be of wood or wood products and the idea is to eliminate the traditional metal bars and swings which Mrs. Hutchison says are not safe.

Cargo netting may be stretched between telephone poles so children can use it as a balancing beam, with different levels for the different age groups. The idea is to provide a creative play atmosphere for all elementary children from first through sixth grade.

Instead of the metal swings, which Mrs. Hutchison says she has seen hit a child knocking him unconscious, the old tire swung on a rope will be used, again reminiscent of some parents' childhood.

Efforts are being made to get things donated and use materials which are not expensive, she said.

While there will be less chance of students cracking their skulls without metal equipment, the main idea is not safety, she said. For wood equipment can produce splinters and any child can be hurt in any activity through carelessness.

The idea is simply to provide both more natural setting and materials than can be created by blacktop and the traditional playground equipment.

Mrs. Hutchison and Mrs. Nelson are asking for "impul" from teachers whose experience as playground assistants should give them valuable suggestions.

When the Harrison project is completed, the women plan on approaching the other grade schools in the city. They feel once started, the concept will catch on.

Part of the plan is to have more trees and shrubbery and again, the women are hopeful that perhaps people will have an extra tree or bush they want to get rid of.

Mrs. Hutchison, whose husband, Tom, is a contractor, said some commercial playgrounds in California have been built on this concept, but it is comparatively new in school systems throughout the country, but she feels it will soon spread.

Her husband grew up in Magic Valley, having ranched in the Lincoln and Blaine counties.

JANN HUTCHISON initiates idea

Divorce is major fact of American life today

By STEVEN V. ROBERTS
(c) New York Times Service
LOS ANGELES — In 1957, Diane and Winslow Smith got married. Diane had to quit college, but Win was finishing law school, and while she was not in love, he was. Besides, her parents approved. "We didn't think," Diane remembered, "we just did it."

Last year, the Smiths — not their real names — became one of almost 900,000 American couples to get a divorce. Diane, now 36 years old, mother of two and a college student again, explained why.

"In considering the divorce, I thought of my survival, rather than what am I doing? How could I do this to Win? When I went to a shrink, I began to break out of the old things. He was one of the old things I broke out of. I started dating and felt young again. I got a divorce because I felt it was the only way I could expand and grow as a human being."

Divorce in America has become an "epidemic," as one lawyer put it. The New York Times has interviewed dozens of experts on the subject, including lawyers, judges, counselors and therapists; as well as numerous individuals who have recently been divorced.

If there is any consensus explanation among them for the divorce statistics, it is that marriage has been caught up in a revolution of changing expectations. People want more out of their marriages than their parents ever did, and in the words of one counselor, "they're not willing to make do, or slide by anymore."

Traditionally, marriage was devoted to certain purposes: economic survival, emotional security, the procreation and raising of children. In the play "Fiddler on the Roof," when Tevye asks his wife, "do you love me?" her answer is an incredulous shriek: "Do I what?" As Stuart Walzer, a Los Angeles divorce lawyer, said, "that was the strangest question he could have asked her."

In the new world of Tevye's grandchildren, love is only if part of what many couples are demanding from each other. Richard F. Farson, a prominent psychologist and the new head of the Esalen Institute, has written:

"Marriage is now burdened with the expectations that husbands and wives should enjoy intellectual companionship, warm intimate moments, shared values, deep romantic love, great sexual pleasures. Couples expect to assist and enhance each other in ways never thought of as being part of the marriage contract."

These new expectations clash with the traditional ones, particularly when they are hammered into the public consciousness by the mass media, broadcasting the message expressed by one beer commercial this way: "you only go around once in life, so grab for all the gusto you can."

The result, according to the experts, is that people feel they are somehow "missing out," that their pseudo-quest is below par. Add they blame the person closest to them — their spouse.

Some observers see the divorce statistics as a sign of health, others as a mark of moral decay. Most experts welcome the ideals of personal growth and fulfillment, but they worry that other ideals are in danger of being lost — commitment, responsibility, and sacrifice.

Whether it is praised or condemned, divorce has become a major fact of American life.

Today, the governor of Maryland can, with some impunity, move out of the executive mansion and announce he is leaving his wife. A woman like Diane Smith can decide that her own "survival" is more important than the well-being of her husband or children.

This amounts to a basic change in values. People might still promise to remain married "until death do us part," but many of them really mean, "until it does not feel good any more."

Once a relationship goes sour, it is much easier to get a divorce, for a wide variety of reasons.

One child was almost a total bar to getting a divorce, said Dr. Irving Esler, a New Orleans psychologist. "Now, with day nurseries and day care centers and a change in attitudes, that is changing. Now parents feel, 'it isn't fair to the child to grow up in a household where the parents don't love each other. It's immoral thing to do.'"

If divorce is easier, however, the more important question remains: why is it happening? What is tearing the American family apart?

In some places, and among some groups, the reasons for divorce are much the same as they always have been — drinking or a lack of money, for example.

But sex is another classic reason for divorce, and this area, more than almost any other, has been affected by rising expectations — and temptations. Marriage was once considered an opportunity, sometimes the only opportunity, to have sex; now it is often considered a limitation on one's sex life.

"It's almost impossible in this culture to be monogamous," asserted Hugh Keays, the southern author of a new book, "We, the Lonely People." "Just walk on a beach on a Saturday and watch the bikinis — it's absurd! Go to a party and you have some talk about vaginal lubrication. It's like being, at an endless and fabulous smorgasbord."

Sexual satisfaction is one of the new demands placed on marriage. As Dr. Farson of Esalen Institute noted, people expect that the whole range of needs will be met — companionship, intimacy, love, "open" experiences" of all kinds. In a recent study conducted by the Family Service Association of America, 87 per cent of the married couples interviewed said that "communication" was a major area of conflict in their marriage; 72 per cent said they had "open" sex.

Farson thinks movies and television have perpetuated a syrupy sweet, over-romanticized view of family life. "The implication that a constant state of affection and unity in family life is actually achievable gives cause to rising dissatisfaction in one's own marriage," he said.

The media's message is regarded as a major source of the "culture tone" — as Gary Bernard of the American Institute puts it — in which people are more aware of their emotional needs."

Another third source is the movement for human rights that started among blacks in the early 1960's and is currently flowering among women. Feminists have influenced many people who never joined their movement.

Dorothy Davis, a Los Angeles lawyer, remembers that when she first excerpted Betty Friedan's seminal book, "The Feminine Mystique," was published in a magazine, "it caused many divorces you wouldn't believe."

In a recent letter to the New York Times, Dr. Paul E. Kanitz, a Connecticut psychologist, said he had witnessed a "disturbing" increase in recent years of women seeking divorce "in the absence of customary reasons."

"The plaint of the wives," he said, "has been consistent: 'I must find my identity; I must no longer be a slave and a prostitute; I must find my independence.'"

The "cultural tone" that raises new expectations for marriage flows from still another source, what has been called the new "humanistic" psychology. The "Gestalt" theories of the late Fritz Perls are probably the most influential in the field.

The basic message transmitted by the new psychology was summarized by Farson, one of the early leaders of the movement. "You are a beautiful, unique human being, fully worthy, with potential beyond your wildest imagination. Moreover, you've got to get yourself into the driver's seat. You are responsible for yourself. If you are hurting, fix it! Take action! No one will do it for you."

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A new movement—inspiring, receptive gift giving, smiles and positive thinking is catching on at Twin Falls High School.

Candy canes and cupcakes in teachers' boxes and cake to the football team have appeared with cryptic notes attached saying "I think positive" and signed "the mysterious 31." This is all part of the Self Esteem program developed by Glenn Jorgenson, a behavioral scientist from Monrovia, Calif., according to TFHS teacher Carolyn Allred.

Enthusiasm for Self Esteem has penetrated not only the "mysterious 31" students and faculty at the high school, but has seeped into administration. High school Principal Frank Charlton plans to ask the board of directors for Jorgenson's Self Esteem workshop for faculty and administrators in the district. The workshop has already been given in Pocatello School District and will soon be considered for state education administrators, according to State Department of Education consultant Lella Lewis. Jorgenson charges $1,000 base fee in addition to all his transportation and expenses for his "Positive Action: Theory and Technique" workshop. The workshop is presented in two weekends, three weeks apart. Mrs. Allred said the workshop addresses understanding one's own emotional needs. She outlined the following Self Esteem techniques: — call people by name when you address him. — smile a lot. — list positively for six hours a day. During this period one cannot think "negative" thoughts about anyone or anything. — do things for people without taking credit. For example, place a cupcake in the teacher's box and sign "the mysterious 31." — list practice giving and fulfilling promises. — spend 15 minutes a day working on something such as reading a book to broaden horizons.

Instead, the team is now pushing Self Esteem in the schools. This program, Mrs. Allred believes, will better the atmosphere in schools as well as combat drugs.

Book Review

By RUTH BARKER
Twin Falls Public Library

TWIN FALLS — Carter L. Young's western book, "The Captive," introduces the reader to newlywed Elaine Bryant for whom it never rains but what it pours.

Jaine is prairie schooning along the Sante Fe Trail circa 1848 when she is captured by Comanches. Then she is hijacked from the Comanches by a trading party of Cheyennes. The Cheyennes then sell her to two Angus Haves for three horses, two rifles, some cloth goods and a few beads.

For all her troubles Jaine receives only a new name, "Willow," and the realization that if there is any fate worse than being captured by Indians, it is being bought by Angus Haves!

The author is a practiced hand at Western writing and maintains a satisfactory causality rate throughout the book.

Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Charles Scribner's Sons, New York, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that a horse will not throw a pregnant woman. Is that true? Please answer right away as I have to know.

WISCONSIN QUESTION

DEAR QUESTION: This one throws me! Since you can't expect to get the answer straight from the horse's mouth, ask a doctor. I think he'll give you a neigh.

DEAR ABBY: A lady asked if she should have cards printed announcing her recent divorce, and stating that she was available for dating.

The answer is neigh

You told her not to—that the word would get around in other ways. I agree. But my experience along that line goes back to 1932. We lived in Albin, Ia., a block from the railroad. [My father worked in the yards.]

It didn't take us kids long to know when an incoming train carried a lady. The news that there was a hatbox aboard got to us before the train pulled in.

"3 IN SALEM, O."

DEAR "31": Times-Avenues' changed much. Now they travel by jet, and carry wig boxes!

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing a letter which appeared in your column on Oct. 26, 1969. I cut it out of the Minneapolis Star and carried it in my wallet, and now as you can see, it is yellow with age and falling to pieces. Your answer did so much for me. Will you please print it again? I feel certain it will mean a great deal to many others.

MINNESOTAN

DEAR MINNESOTAN: Yes. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Why will a married man pick up some tramp and treat her like a lady? Then he will turn around and treat his wife like a tramp.

LYDIA

DEAR LYDIA: A man picks up a tramp because he wants a female companion who is no better than he is. In her company, he doesn't feel inferior. He rewards her by treating her like a "lady."

He treats his wife (who is a lady) like a "tramp" because he feels that by degrading her, he will bring her down to his level. This makes him feel guilty, so in order to "get even" with his wife for making him feel guilty, he keeps right on punishing her.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "K" IN LANCASTER: For some valuable advice on how to live, ask someone who knows he is dying.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 4970, L.A., Calif. 90009. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

How to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 12 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters on All Occasions."

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND BARP

Cindy Meyer bride of Barp

GOODING — Cindy Meyer and Raymond Barp were married in a 7 p.m. ceremony Dec. 29 at the First Southern Baptist Church.

Rev. John Hoff performed the double ring ceremony in a setting of gold and blue chrysanthemums and white carnations with blue bows. Gold candles were placed in candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Carol Meyer, Twin Falls, and Robert S. Meyer, Gooding. The bridegroom's parents are Grace L. Barp, Kennermer, Wyo., and the late Raymond M. Barp.

The bride wore a gown of ivory antique cotton lace with a high ruffled neckline, fitted empire waistline full sleeves and ivory satin trim. She wore a pearl headband.

She carried a nosegay of ivory rosebuds and blue carnations.

Mrs. Robert H. Meyer, Gooding, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. Gary W. Daniels, Boise, was best man. Robert H. Meyer and John M. Meyer, Gooding, brother and uncle of the bride, served as ushers and candlelighters.

Mrs. Lalene Meyer, Gooding, aunt of the bride, was soloist, and Mrs. Don Simis, Gooding, was organist.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony at the home of Alice B. Cargill, grandmother of the bride.

The bride's table was covered with an heirloom lace cloth—handmade by the grandmother of Mrs. Glenn Thayer, Twin Falls.

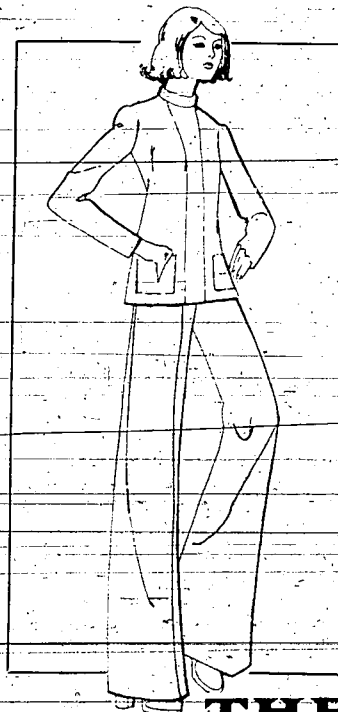

The three-tiered heart-shaped wedding cake was iced in white and decorated with blue and gold daisies. It was topped with a kissing miniature bride couple under a lace heart.

Mrs. Rex Painter, Gooding, and Mrs. Alan Garbally, Twin Falls, cut and served the cake. Mrs. Jody Taylor, Twin Falls, was in charge of the refreshments.

Mrs. Donna Behnuni was in charge of the guest book. Lase Strayer cared for the gifts with the help of Mrs. Larry Moore, Seattle, Wash., sister of the bridegroom.

The couple was honored at a dinner at the Turf Club the evening preceding the wedding.

They reside at 521 South Beach, Boise, where the bridegroom, a graduate of Utah State University, is employed as director of advertising and promotion for Idaho Tele-ignition Corporation, Channel 6 in Boise and Pocatello. The bride is beginning nurses training at Boise State College.

Shoshone woman tells DST plight

SHOSHONE — Whether it is the time change or just plain confusion, Mrs. Robert Lewis, Shoshone, is ready to speak out in favor of Idaho joining daylight saving time.

She said she called the Gooding business handling Trailways Bus Line connections one week prior to the date she wanted to put her son Mike on the bus at Gooding to go to Boise.

She was told the bus would be leaving at 2:10 p.m. Upon arrival there Monday on the appointed day, she found the bus had left at 8:30 p.m. instead of 2:10 p.m.; the hour gained by the bus line in other states with the time change.

She was then told that if she wanted to go to Boise she could catch the bus for Boise at 8:30 p.m.

After finding the cafe in Bliss where the bus stops, she said they waited until 9 p.m. for the bus to arrive, with no one there seeming to know for sure if the bus had come or not.

Finally, they returned to their home in Shoshone, called the Twin Falls office for the bus lines, to learn that the bus left Twin Falls at 6:40 p.m. and should have gone through Bliss about an hour later.

Once again, the time change had caused them to miss the bus.

Another check about time for the bus to leave Gooding on Tuesday indicated it would be leaving at 12:45 p.m. Lewis went there ready to go the hour early, but this time the bus was even a little later than she was told, and the son left on the bus, at last, around 1 p.m.

Figuring the miles she went to try to catch the bus, Mrs. Lewis said she traveled within eight miles of actually making the trip to Boise, spent all day Monday and part of Tuesday. It was just a "pleasure trip," she said, "but, anyway, when it is time for him to come home, I'm going to Boise to get him."

South won the trump lead with his 10 spot and studied the hand a while to see if the 4-0 trump break was going to mean trouble. He saw it... it might if West held a singleton diamond. In that case, he would just have to go down.

At trick two he cashed his ace of diamonds. At trick three he led to dummy's king. Then he raffed a diamond with his jack of trumps; entered dummy with the ace of hearts; raffed dummy's last diamond with his king of trumps; drew the rest of West's trumps and eventually lost the last trick.

Shooting death probed

ST. ANTHONY, Idaho (UPI) — The Fremont County Sheriff's office is investigating the shooting death of Fred Mackert, 44, who was found dying Friday in his mobile home moments after he called the operator for help.

The sheriff's department said Mackert died of a wound from a .410 shotgun fired at close range. They said powder burns on the victim indicated it was homicide "rather than an accident or suicide. Deputies said the man had dialed the telephone operator a few minutes earlier to ask for help.

He died about 10 minutes after the deputies arrived.

The sheriff said no suspects were being held Friday but questioning was continuing.

Relief funds asked

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Highway Department has been ordered to request emergency relief funds to assist in repairing roadways damaged by recent floods and landslides.

The Idaho Board of Highways Directors Friday made the request.

State Highway Engineer Vic Richardson said that effort will be used to obtain emergency funding for both the state highway system and county highway systems that have been hit by the floods and slides.

Shortages explained

BOISE (UPI) — A representative of Standard Oil Co. of California today cited shortages of fuels, minerals and paper and an abundance of people as the valid causes of the present world-wide energy gap.

Owen F. Murphy, public affairs manager for Standard Oil, said for some months the nation has been below the zero population growth birth rate and so seems to be solving one of the most important and long-lasting aspects of the problem.

Superintendent files suit

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — The superintendent of the Garden Valley School District has asked for a court order returning his job to him and a temporary order to prevent the hiring of a replacement.

Donald S. Heney filed the petition in Third District Court in Caldwell after his dismissal Dec. 21 by the Garden Valley School Board.

The petition contends Heney was employed under a three-year contract which was to run through June 1974. He was given written notice of his termination, but the petition says the notice failed to comply with the requirements of Idaho law or the procedures required by the State Board of Education, for discharging certified professional personnel.

Carole Youren, board chairman, when questioned about the dismissal, said "We felt it in the best interest of the school district" and declined further comment.

Roger Williams of Nampa, Attorney for Heney, said no reasons were given and no hearing was conducted on his dismissal.

Distrust unhealthy

BOISE (UPI) — Former U.S. Deputy Attorney General William D. Ruckelshaus says it's healthy to be cynical but unhealthy to have a deep and lasting distrust in our institutions.

"For a free society, there must be trust in the institutions the people — by their votes — have created," Ruckelshaus told the 89th annual meeting of the Greater Boise Chamber of Commerce Friday night.

Ruckelshaus said Americans should insist that those who stand for election "level to us on all matters." "But he said even though the American political system is bending," just cracking along, "it is working."

Condominium damaged

SUN VALLEY — Fire caused an undetermined amount of damage to a trash chute at the Muldoon building in the Cotswood-condominium-and-complex, Sun Valley, Saturday afternoon.

Members of the Sun Valley and Ketchum volunteer fire departments responded to the 2 p.m. fire along with three engines and a ladder truck.

Ketchum Fire Chief Bill Brand said the blaze apparently started in the trash chute on the first floor and traveled up the chute to one half of the distance to the third floor.

Firemen contained the fire from spreading to the condominium units.

TV tests flawless

DENVER (UPI) — Officials said Saturday tests on beaming educational television by satellite into rural schools went flawlessly, enabling a go-ahead for beaming the shows into classrooms of eight Western states this spring.

The testing included signal and interference reports from personnel at earth stations," said Greg Pearson, a spokesman for the Federation of Rocky Mountain States (FRMMS). "Rebroadcasts were relayed through the orbiting satellite."

The tests were relayed by an orbiting satellite from stations in Idaho, Nevada and Utah. Also participating were National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) earth stations at Greenbelt, Md., and Mojave, Calif.

Pearson said the successful testing cleared the way for launch of a second satellite by NASA "this spring to beam educational television into the rural schools."

No flood problem

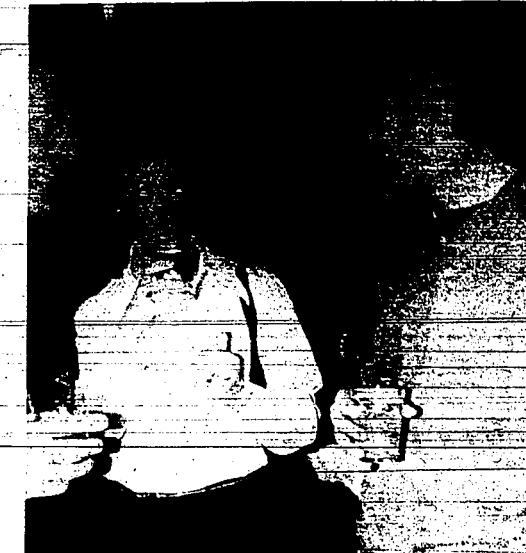

RUPERT — Virgil Temple, manager of A and B Irrigation District, said Saturday, "We have no problem at all" with flooding in Minidoka County.

Flood water covered roads and fields in the county earlier this week when warm weather and rains caused unusually heavy run off.

Temple said most of the water has receded and "unless it rains fall an inch in a big surge we won't have any problem."

The water level at Cap City Lake, a natural reservoir, has dropped 12 inches since Friday, Temple said.

Schools will be open Monday after closing Friday because of the flooding.

Man electrocuted

GLENNS FERRY (UPI) — A Mexican national laborer at the Black Mesa farms south of Glens Ferry died of electrocution Friday while helping move a piece of farm equipment out of a potato cellar.

Elmore County Deputy Sheriff George Taylor identified the man as Vicente Valdez. He was about 20 years old.

Taylor said Valdez and other laborers at the farm were moving a potato piler from the cellar and the boom on the machinery tangled with power lines. He was killed instantly.

Another laborer, Isidoro Cortez, suffered a slipshock when he grabbed Valdez to pull him loose.

Idaho solons to tackle issue of reorganization

BOISE (UPI) — Moving swiftly on election year problems the Idaho legislature will tackle Monday one of the major issues confronting it — a voter mandate to reorganize state government.

Legislators have said that reorganization is the key to "getting out of town" on schedule, which is considered the 60th day.

Both houses of the second session of the regular 2nd meeting of the legislature took the weekend off. But, next week, they will be confronted by public hearings on some of the major issues to come before them this session.

Public hearings are scheduled on revenue propositions, a gubernatorial appointment, Daylight Saving Time and reorganization.

Reorganization will take up much of the legislature's time as the solons begin their second week.

During December, several public meetings were conducted by the legislative reorganization commission to allow the public to comment on how they want the executive branch of government reorganized.

Commission Chairman Warren E. Brown, R-McCall, has decided to give them another chance to voice their opinion.

Brown has scheduled an "all-day public hearing" for public reaction next Thursday.

Before that, however, the legislature will receive a full-scale briefing on the 21 bills to accomplish reorganization.

Voters directed the legislature to cut state government back to not more than 20 agencies, effective Jan. 1, 1975.

Since then, the Reorganization Commission has completed a study to accomplish the wishes of the voters of Idaho.

Next week, the proposals for the commission will receive their first real test. Not only from the legislature but the public.

The 21 bills involving more than 1,000 pages of legislation will be presented Monday and Tuesday to members of both houses.

Brown, his committee members and staff of the reorganization committee, will split legislators into three groups Monday and Tuesday to fully outline the contents of the 21 bills.

Oil firm leases land in Cassia

"This is a very wild play," a representative for one broker said, "but the fact some company is willing to spend all that money on something that could be so important to us is encouraging."

The representative said the company "has given us no indication as to when they will begin drilling," but field operations can not begin until lease negotiations are completed.

These negotiations "may be finished before the end of the year," he said.

John Ripe, an independent lease broker hired by Gulf Oil for the Cassia County area, said Saturday about 70,000 acres have been leased in the county mainly around the Oakley area, and negotiations are "about wrapped up" in this area.

"Ripe said few leases have been arranged in the Raft River area where the Atomic Energy Commission, working with Raft River Electric Cooperatives Inc., and a Texas oil firm, Standard American, both have geothermal leases, "because we didn't want to conflict with local farmers."

"When we saw Raft River Electric Cooperative and Standard American had so many leases in that area, we stayed out," he said.

"There has been a little competition around," an official said, "but there are no problems. There is a lot of room."

Ripe said he is sure the firm has put a lot of research into the area and feels it is a good prospect for geothermal power.

"We've needed wants to spend anything unless they feel it would be profitable," he said. "They're not leasing the stuff for laughs."

"Geothermal energy is fairly new to most of us," Ripe said. The only geothermal plant in the United States is in northern California.

Geothermal power is, however, "one of the cleanest and best sources of energy," he said.

Union of California and Humble Oil Co., are also taking geothermal leases in California, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Montana and Colorado, he said.

There seems to be little geothermal research taking place in the east or midwest, Ripe said. "I have leased all over the country and I have never been to a richer people than I have here," he said.

TF airport commission OK's preliminary budget

TWIN FALLS — Approval of a preliminary budget figure of $349,590 for operation and improvement of the Twin Falls City-County Airport in 1974 was voted here Friday by the airport commission.

Presented by airport manager Larry Merrick and city manager Jean Miller the budget will be submitted to Twin Falls City Council members for final approval.

County commissioners have already approved the 1974 county appropriation for the project.

The preliminary budget for the airport will require only $27,090 from the city and a similar amount from the county. Other revenue will be in the form of federal aid, use fees, rentals and other services.

The budget is divided into the "airport fund" for salaries, operation and maintenance of the airport for a total of $190,560, an increase over $169,336 last year, and the "airport improvement fund" of $89,000.

Included in this fund is a $200,000 general aviation project. It would provide expansion of the tiedown areas and pavement overlay of the taxiways and tie-down areas in the portion of the field used by general aviation planes.

Also included is a $33,000 item for development of a master plan for airport project.

The commission recommended this item be left in the budget but not spent until later in the year or when county and city officials feel the master plan is needed.

Federal funds for any further improvement project would not be approved unless a master plan has been completed.

Other items include $100,000 for the 1973 fire fighting equipment which was budgeted last year but not spent as the equipment has not yet arrived.

An item of $14,000 for a visual landing device to improve safety in low visibility is also included. These items all involve federal assistance.

Conviction appeal due

TWIN FALLS — A Hansen man was freed on appeal Thursday after being sentenced to five years in the state penitentiary on a rustling conviction.

Charles Cliett, 41, Hansen, was sentenced by Judge James M. Cunningham in Fifth District Court Thursday but was released on a $1,000 appeal bond.

Judge Cunningham on Monday issued a notice of appeal to the Idaho State Supreme Court certifying "reasonable grounds" for the high court to review Cliett's conviction for grand larceny by a jury of Nov. 11.

While issuing the notice of appeal, Cunningham Thursday denied a motion by Cliett's attorneys for a new trial.

Cliett was convicted of stealing and selling about 18750 worth of sweater and feeder pigs belonging to Jack Smith and Wayne Bauer, both Twin Falls.

The former operator of the Wooden Shoe Tavern south of Hansen, Cliett was arrested June 2, 1973. He was charged with stealing and selling 84 pigs belonging to Smith and Bauer, between Sept. 14, 1972 and Dec. 19, 1972.

According to court testimony Cliett claimed that the pigs were sold to him by a customer at his tavern. Other witnesses, including a former wife of Cliett's, testified that he apparently received the pigs illegally through an arrangement with employees of Smith and Bauer.

"The decision by a Magistrate Court judge in denying the testimony of Cliett's former wife at a preliminary hearing was objected to by defense attorneys, who cited the statutory ban on testimony by one married partner against the other. The judge ruled the testimony admissible since the relationship had been dissolved prior to the hearing."

Experts may be called

RUPERT — Neurology experts may be called into the investigation of the incident in which a Rupert man and his wife were injured Christmas Eve.

John Praegitzer and his wife, Regina, suffered severe head injuries in an unexplained incident, 74. They were found unconscious near their pickup truck on a county road near Rupert. Mrs. Praegitzer later died in a Boise hospital.

Minidoka County Prosecutor Robert Nielson said Friday although Praegitzer has recovered enough to be released from the hospital, he still cannot recall the details of the incident.

"He is still probably in trauma," said Nielson.

Neurologists are expected to examine Praegitzer next month.

Nielson said he cannot reveal any details of his investigation in the case.

Abandonment studied

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Abandonment of the Union Pacific Railroad branch from Shoshone to Ketchum is being studied by officials of the U.P.

C. R. Rockwell, information officer for the railroad here, confirmed the U.P.'s legal department in Omaha, Neb., is making studies related to the possible abandonment of the branch line. It connects with the main line at Shoshone and serves Richfield, Hilday, Bellevue and Ketchum.

"We are investigating the situation, the economics of all the branches and have been for some time," Rockwell said.

Legislation to be presented to Congress this week would allow a railroad to abandon unprofitable branches through a shortened procedure showing only that they were not paying.

which Apple Street would remain open on the grade installed there and at the U.S. 93 crossing with expenses to be shared by the city, railroad and Department of Highways.

The Friday accident was the second train-vehicle fatality in four months in the city of Shoshone. It occurred on the same woman, Mrs. Loretta McShan, was killed when her car collided with a train in a situation similar to the Friday accident, but on the Apple Street Crossing.

A 19-year old woman was injured in Saturday at the U.S. 93 crossing and was hospitalized for some time. A truck-train accident last summer killed a number of cattle being transported in the truck.

Mayor Elwood Wilson declined to take a stand on the situation but said there is a problem and some type of correction must be made.

Drop gates urged at Shoshone

By MELBA THORNE Times-News-Writer

SHOSHONE — Police Chief John Shaffer, Shoshone, who witnessed a fatal accident at the U. S. 93 railroad crossing in the city Friday morning, has called on railroad officials to install drop gates at the crossing.

Chief Shaffer said he was in the watermasters office on South Rail Street when the Friday accident occurred about 7:30 a.m.

He said he saw the truck driven by John Elmerfeld, 57, Jerome, slip at the crossing and well for an eastbound train to strike the crossing then drive onto the tracks only to be struck by a westbound train as it appeared from behind the first train.

He said in the case of the Friday morning accident, retractable drop arms which would block traffic when a train was in the intersection would clearly have saved the man's life.

Another Shoshone area resident said he was confused Friday on a similar situation when he waited for one train to clear and then started across the tracks, nearly being struck by a second train. The second man was able to stop and back from the tracks before being hit while Mr. Elmerfeld apparently did not have time to correct the situation.

Chief Shaffer said he plans to check all trains with radio equipment in the future to determine speed in traveling through the city. An ordinance requiring trains travel at no more than 35 miles per hour. No estimate is available as to the speed of the train involved in the fatality Friday.

Asked if he would push for an ordinance amendment to reduce the speed, Chief Shaffer said, "I can't really say. I don't particularly want to reduce the speed but I do want cross gates. I don't want to settle for lights alone."

A controversy is currently underway in Shoshone with a number of citizens petitioning for action by the Union Pacific Railroad and city to provide better regulations at both the U.S. 93 and Apple Street crossings.

Shaffer is the first public official to take a stand on the issue.

The railroad has proposed closing of the Apple Street crossing to vehicular travel with a sign and bicyclist. The railroad has also been building a new safety system at the U.S. 93 crossing including the drop gates and flashing lights. All of this would be paid for by the railroad, but in turn the railroad would be granted approval for a 60 mile per hour limit for trains moving through Shoshone.

The city has proposed an alternative plan in which Apple Street would remain open on the grade installed there and at the U.S. 93 crossing with expenses to be shared by the city, railroad and Department of Highways.

Dress code retained at Salmon

SALMON — The Salmon School Board will retain its dress and personal appearance code for students despite a challenge that the code violates student constitutional rights. Representatives of the American Civil Liberties Union from Idaho Falls met with the board to discuss two east Idaho cases involving hair, one at Pocatello and the other at Bonneville High School.

Schuyler Bradley, legal counsel, and Richard R. Hobbins Jr., chairperson, both with the east Idaho chapter of the union, maintained that in the two cases the hair issue was being used as a means of discipline. They said the courts have held that school boards could not use student codes relating to hair as a means of discipline. The two had requested an audience before the board after two Salmon High School students had been sent home to get their hair cut before being allowed last fall to return to classes.

Robert Banks, district superintendent, said after Monday night's meeting that the school board feels the school's dress code is valid and it will remain in effect.

During an hour-and-a-half session with the two civil liberties representatives, the matter was discussed by members of the audience. With numbers approximately 100.

There were outbursts of applause from both sides as different views were expressed, mostly student applause for not having the code and mostly adult applause for having a code.

Richfield hall rates increased

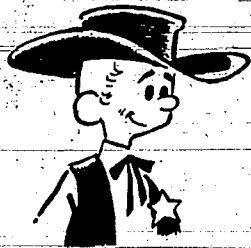

RICHFIELD — Rental rates for the local Legion Hall will be raised due to the higher cost of fuel to heat the building, Legion auxiliary officers report.

Future rate on the basement will be $10 for three hours with an additional dollar charged per hour thereafter.

The auxiliary members have decided to work toward raising money for new drapes for the upstairs windows by collecting old newspapers.

Anyone wishing to donate to the cause may leave them at the Pheasant Cafe or with Mrs. Lester Johansen.

State and national dues have been raised so local dues will have to be raised before the 1975 collections are made.

RICK O'SHAY
... western marshal

Western flavor comic strip begins in T-N

TWIN FALLS — First hand experience with Montana cattle ranching has been translated into a Western comic strip by its creator, Stan Lynde.

Lynde's strip, blending Western flavored adventure and cowboy humor, is Rick O'Shay. The tale of the marshal of the fictional town of Conception — obviously set somewhere in Montana — began appearing on the Times-News comic page on Monday.

Lynde was born in Billings, Mont., in 1931, and grew up on a ranch — on the Crow Indian reservation in southeastern Montana. Following service with the US Navy, he tried his hand at newspaper cartooning and reporting, and developed the idea for his strip while working for the Wall Street Journal and attending art school in the late 1950s.

Rick O'Shay was first syndicated in 1968, and has appeared in newspapers throughout the nation since then. Lynde returned to Montana in the early 1960s and still makes his home there.

The hero of the strip is a clean-cut, "nice-guy" lawman, whose adventures include encounters with outlaws, Indians and other characters. Appearing along with him are his villainous-looking but good-hearted pal, Hipshot Percussion; Gaye Abandon, the operator of a saloon, and Deuces Wilde, gambler and self-appointed mayor of Conception.

Rick O'Shay is one of several new faces now appearing on the Times-News comic page.

Doctor's office entered

TWIN FALLS — For the second time in two weeks the office of a Twin Falls physician was broken into and narcotics stolen.

An employe for Dr. Dean H. Affleck reported to police Thursday that a burglar or burglars entered his office between 6:25 p.m. Wednesday and 9:07 a.m. Thursday and removed narcotics from the medicine case.

Entry to the office was through a window which was broken out on the west side of the building at 231 Fourth Ave. N.

Affleck's employe estimated the dollar value of the missing drugs at about $9.

In an earlier burglary on Jan. 7, police reported a small amount of injectible narcotics taken from Affleck's office. In that burglary a window was removed from the office to gain access.

BLM seeks public suggestions

BURLEY — Suggestions from the public are sought by the Burley District Office of the Bureau of Land Management (BLM) in developing a comprehensive land use plan for Cassia County.

About 25 Cassia County residents met with BLM officials and specialists Wednesday night in Burley to discuss local land use potentials.

BLM district manager, Nick Coakos told the group that "input from interested citizens is the most ingredient in planning future land use in Cassia County."

Residents are urged to express their opinions to the BLM in public meetings, in writing or in person to help land use planners.

BLM specialists presented inventories and potential developments of resources from the separate viewpoints of timber, minerals, livestock, watershed, management lands, wildlife and recreation.

JIM BRIDGER COULD HAVE TOLD US:

It will never grow potatoes

WYOMING LAND RECLAIMED AFTER MINING: Deer and antelope browse on rehabilitated coal mine lands at the Dave Johnson project of Pacific Power & Light Company, a partner with Idaho Power Company in building the Jim Bridger project, 35 miles northeast of Rock Springs, Wyoming. The same people will direct revegetation at Jim Bridger.

How we will reclaim Jim Bridger land after mining

1. Topsoil and overburden will be removed and stockpiled, thus exposing the coal seam.
2. The coal will be removed and taken to the plant to produce steam for turbines.
3. Wetted fly ash will be returned from the power plant to the mine area and placed in the excavation from which the coal was removed.
4. The stockpiled overburden and topsoil will be placed on top of the fly ash and contoured to natural desert configurations.
5. Hardy native-type grasses, legumes, shrubs and trees will be planted.

Named after an early day trapper and mountain man, the Jim Bridger mine-site, coal burning generating plant is located in a barren, unproductive area, too dry for farming, with insufficient grass for ranching, and unlikely ever to grow potatoes. Nevertheless, after the coal has been mined, it will NOT become another Appalachia.

To comply with state and federal regulations, we made a land use study, consulting with scientists and range management specialists. Subsequently a contract was signed with the Plant Science Division of the University of Wyoming's agricultural experiment station. They have conducted several experiments for us both in University greenhouses and at the site.

Sagebrush, rabbitbrush, saltbush, wheatgrass and juniper are among the numerous plants tested in order to develop revegetation procedures to follow mining operations. Soil chemistry tests, earth moving and plantings have taken place. Restoration procedures have been established.

JIM BRIDGER ENVIRONMENTAL COSTS — $60 MILLION!

Reclamation of the mining area is only a portion of the huge environmental cost of the Jim Bridger project. As visitors to Idaho Power's hydro projects are aware, the Company traditionally has been a good steward of the land it occupies. This time, however, estimates of cost for pollution control, revegetation and other environmental concerns are approaching an astonishing $60 million!!!

Costs as great as these inevitably will be reflected in increased electric rates. Accelerated environmental concerns must be paid for by all of us as ratepayers, shareholders and taxpayers.

Family opens antique shop

SHOSHONE — Mr. and Mrs. George Cook have opened an antique shop in the home they purchased a few months ago from Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gladding, Shoshone.

The house on West H Street was chosen by the Cooks especially because it lends itself so well to their antique shop. The house is one of the older homes in Shoshone, with colorful design and adequate space.

The Cooks moved to Shoshone from Blaine County. He works for a contractor, though he is also an artist by profession. He was an illustrator for Emlio Cook and pursued my professional training, but we just didn't want that type of life.

They buy and sell all types of antiques, doing refinishing and some repair work in the process.

Cook said "I could probably have settled in a large city and pursued my professional training, but we just didn't want that type of life."

They have chosen their work and location in view of the type of life they seek for themselves and family.

Shannon, McChargue and plant

New trailer firm opens TF facility

TWIN FALLS — Steel Manufacturing, a new firm specializing in trailers, has opened on Highway 30 west of Twin Falls.

Co-owner George Shannon, Twin Falls, said the firm manufactures "all kinds of trailers," including horse, motorcycle, irrigation pipe and equipment trailers.

Bill McChargue, Twin Falls, joined Shannon in the new business venture.

Shannon said they would "eventually like to handle both new and used trailers," including manufacture and sales.

The two men built a new structure to house the business two and one-half miles west of Magie, Valley Memorial Hospital on Highway 30.

They have been an operation since September.

Both Shannon and McChargue are former teachers at Twin Falls High School. Shannon taught electronics and McChargue taught agriculture.

"Right now we're local," Shannon said, "but we're promoting some products nationwide."

Rules on nuclear blasting recommended

DENVER (UPI) — An independent study released Friday urged Western states to pass laws restricting future underground nuclear blasts by the Atomic Energy Commission to free natural gas trapped in rock.

The report, issued by the Western Interstate Nuclear Board (WINB), to governors of 12 western states, also said the Defense Department prevented scientists from making a full assessment of Project Plowshare.

Project Plowshare is the government program aimed at finding peaceful uses of atomic energy.

"What the report says is that states should establish rules limiting the size of, and a minimum depth of, nuclear or nuclear detonations," said WINB Executive Director. He said state laws would protect residents from "damage from commercial nuclear detonations."

The report also said that the AEC would have to make a major escalation of its underground nuclear stimulation plans if it wanted to tap all lined natural gas believed to be available throughout the western states.

The report said in order to reach all deposits believed available, the government and private industry partners would need to detonate 51,600 explosions of 100 kilotons each.

Oil imports still slide

(C) Washington Star-News WASHINGTON — Oil imports into the United States are continuing the downward trend begun three weeks ago, when the effects of the Arab petroleum embargo first began to be felt, according to the latest statistics of the American Petroleum Institute.

Oil industry figures compiled weekly by the institute, show that imports for the week ending Jan. 11 amounted to 4.96 million barrels a day.

"That's just about at the level we forecast for a fully effective embargo," Eric Magier, the Atomic Energy's Office's assistant administrator for economic and data analysis, said.

The 4.96 million-barrel daily figure compares to the 5.6 million barrels a day in total petroleum imports reported for the week ending Jan. 4.

Bookings increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy conscious Americans are booking passenger train space in advance for the winter months at a rate 2 1/2 times greater than last summer's peak travel period.

Amtrak also says its reservations phone lines are taking a capacity 6,000 calls per day, compared with 32,000 a day during the July-August period, and incoming lines to Amtrak reservations centers soon will be doubled.

Passenger train travel increased significantly when the energy crisis hit Amtrak reservations were up 50 percent in November and 40 percent in December over the same month a year earlier.

The passenger train is considered one of the most energy-efficient forms of mass transportation.

Bid taken

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department said today it has accepted a top bid of $210.1 million by Standard Oil of Indiana and Gulf Oil Co. for the right to develop the first of six oil-shale tracts on federal lands in the Rocky Mountains.

Bids on the Colorado tract were opened Jan. 8 in Denver, and bid openings will be held once a month over the next five months for the remaining five tracts.

Actress talks

TWIN FALLS — Actress Robyn Hilton, a former Twin Falls resident, made a guest appearance on Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show" on television Thursday evening.

Miss Hilton, making her first appearance on the noted talk show, caught the attention of Magic Valley viewers when she identified her home town as Twin Falls. Portions of the ensuing conversation dealt with her Idaho connections, her aspirations as an actress, and her interest in astrology and numerology.

Another guest on the show, actor Fernando Lamas, observed that rains now drenching the west "will make big potatoes in Idaho."

Miss Hilton attended Twin Falls High School in the early 40's as Robyn Molyneux. She is the daughter of Mrs. James Molyneux, also a former resident here.

16-year-old breaks 1,000-yard record

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — 16-year-old Mary Decker, high school student, set a women's world indoor record for 1,000 yards of 2:26.7 Saturday night at the Sunbelt Invitational track meet.

Decker broke away from Miss Larrivue coming off the final turn to win handsily. Miss Larrivue's time was 2:27.3.

Italy's Marcello Lariano, the world 800-meter record holder, easily disposed of the Chicago Track Club's Rick Wohlmuter, the world 800-yard record holder, winning a 600 yard run in 1:10.8. The race originally was set for 800 yards.

Hagan lifts Valley past Shoshone 44-42

SHOSHONE — Rocky Hagan's field goal in the final 10 seconds lifted the Valley Vikings past Shoshone 44-42 Saturday night in a barnburner of a fourth quarter.

Hagan's mop-up point gave Valley a 43-42 lead and Morgan pumped that to the final margin with a late free throw. With just 30 seconds to go, Shoshone put the pressure on when Mike Heath scored for short-lived 41-40 advantage.

But that was the way of the fourth quarter, which opened at 30-30, was tied three times and the lead changing hands four times.

Richfield outlasts Panthers by 46-45

RICHFIELD — The Richfield Tigers weathered a third-quarter blitz by Carey Saturday night and hung on for a 46-45 decision.

Richfield mounted an eight-point lead in the first half with Robinson scoring eight points, but in the third period Jerry Cole and Barton hit 10 and 9, respectively, for Carey. The Panthers moved ahead 35-33.

Richfield reclaimed the lead early in the final period and stayed just ahead. With 45 seconds left Carey elected to go for the last shot — and appeared to be looking inside to the 5-3 Ivie. But Richfield threw in zone and Carey's last long shot bounced away.

Jerome turns back Wildcats by 72-47

JEROME — The Jerome Tigers turned to a zone defense in the second half and hot shooting throughout the game to defeat the Filer Wildcats 72-47 Saturday night.

The much smaller Wildcats made the Tigers fire through the first half, sharing the lead at 32-29.

But the zone left the Wildcats looking at the outside shot and Filer hasn't shown much outside punch this year. In the third period Filer managed only eight points and Jerome pulled away.

Phillips hits 53 to beat Devils

DUBOIS — George Phillips scored 53 points Saturday night to lead Clark County past Center 74-69.

Phillips, a six-foot junior center for Clark County, completely dominated the defensive action.

Dietrich went cold in the first four minutes of the third quarter and Clark County took a 10-point lead. Phillips scored 35 points in the third quarter. Clark County defeated Dietrich 61-52 in the preliminary game.

Utah State drops BYU

LAKESIDE — Utah State's riding scoring squads at the beginning of both halves held on for a 23-26 win Saturday night over Brigham Young.

The Aggies jumped to a 22-8 lead midway into the first half, but had to settle for a three-point margin at the break as BYU's guards began hitting from the outside.

But BYU came out shooting in the start of the second half with Jimmy Moore, Jim Boatright and Rich Hayes leading the way, to take a 58-45 nip with just three minutes to go.

Moore led all the Aggies with 22 points. Boatright added 21 and Hayes 20. The trio also combined for 25 rebounds.

The win capped USU's season record to 6-5. BYU dropped to 5-9 with the loss.

Center John Shumate, who had 25 points in the game, high for the contest, hit two straight baskets. Freshman Adrian Danley connected from 18 feet and junior Gary Brokaw hit twice from outside in 30 seconds to pull the Irish within one point.

Gonzaga tops Idaho

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Gonzaga controlled the backboards and used a sticky, man-to-man defense to knock off the Idaho Vandals 72-60 in a Big Sky conference game Saturday night.

The Bulldogs broke away from a close first half that saw the lead change hands five times. Gonzaga held a 31-29 intermission edge.

Gonzaga's big men pulled down 58 rebounds in the game to only 31 for Idaho, and Steve Marzall had 20 points and 19 rebounds to top the Bulldog attack.

Clay knew winning shot was going in SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Gary Brokaw and Dwight Clay must have practiced the play. "I knew it was in when Dwight lit it," Brokaw said after Clay's shot with 28 seconds to play gave Notre Dame a 71-70 win over No. 1 ranked UCLA to end the Bruins' record 88-game winning streak.

"They sagged — on me," Brokaw said. "And Dwight is my main man on the court and off it, and he was open so I had to go to him. I knew he'd put it in the basket."

It was the fourth time in the last two seasons that Clay has dropped a jumper in the closing seconds to win a game for Notre Dame and he knew the play was coming to him.

Highland scorches Bruins 68-62 in final quarter

Wally Foster's eight-point binge, backed by six straight free throws, led the Highland Rams come from off the pace in the final quarter to beat the Twin Falls Bruins 68-62 Saturday night.

Foster hit three straight field goals and then hit two free throws of Highland came from 33' back and into a 23-26 lead. Ken Schmidt immediately tied it for the Bruins and the teams fought through two more draws. But Mike Falash shoved Highland ahead with two free throws with 2:37 left and Twin Falls, after two possessions, couldn't catch up. Scott Good then moved it out of reach with two free throws. Foster's driving, crippled about 15 seconds from the end justiced the cause.

Trotter's shot lets CSI nip North Idaho

COEUR D'ALENE — Trotter's field goal 30 seconds from the end gave College of Southern Idaho a three-point lead and let them outlast the North Idaho Cardinals 68-67 Saturday night.

CSI hand-to-hand Steve Willis-led second half point explosion that at times threatened to blow the Eagles out of the gymnasium.

Thru victory gave the Eagles a possible edge in the fight to host regional since Rick Colgate, currently tied with the Eagles for that honor, haven't been to Coeur d'Alene as yet.

That helped Highland into a 12-6 lead but Twin Falls then caught up on Landy Haynes' three-point jump. Twice like that the rest of the night. Five times Twin Falls had six point leads but couldn't break it open.

Mt. Home buries Gooding

MOUNTAIN HOME — Mountain Home after leading a single point in the first half, rallied offensively to top the Gooding Senators 61-32 Saturday night.

The Tigers held a slim 97 lead in the first quarter and only led 20-19 at the half.

In the third quarter Mountain Home scored 16 points to only seven for Gooding and the Tigers went to a 10-point advantage.

Highland had a good job in dogging leading scorer Eric Hovey and limiting him to 14 points and a low shooting percentage night. But Jim Lash, Schmidt and Kent Bower scored well inside during the middle quarter.

HAGERMAN — The Wendell Trojans used a 17-point fourth quarter to defeat the Hagerman Pirates 53-44 Saturday night.

But in the third period Rance Tademay waxed hot, hitting 12 of his 14 points in that stretch, to lift Pocatello to top by two.

Miller staggers but holds Phoenix lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, after playing the first nine holes in four under 32, staggered home with a one under 71 — his 10th consecutive sub-par round of the year — Saturday for a two-stroke lead over three others after 54 holes of the $150,000 Dean Martin-Tucson Open.

Miller, shooting for his third straight tournament title this year and fourth in a row going back to 1973, thus had a 54-hole score of 12 under par 204 for a dwindling edge over charging J.C. Swaid, Ben Crenshaw and

Allen Miller. Swaid made the most progress on a warm and sunny day in the Arizona desert country with a seven under par 63 that gave him a 54-hole score of 10 under 195. Along with Crenshaw, who shot a third round 67, and Allen Miller, who had a 69.

Buhl edges Jerome to hold SCIC lead

BUHL — The scrappy Buhl Indians outlasted the error-ridden Jerome Tigers 52-49 Friday night to run their record to 10-1 and remain undefeated in the South Central Idaho Conference.

The game was a series of repeats with Buhl always scoring the last four or six points of a period to lead by four to six points.

It was played with a lot of enthusiasm and was marked by a lot of turnovers, with Jerome having the dubious distinction of leading in that department.

But the Indians took advantage of everything they could. Ron Polking drove the middle for 11 of his 17 points in the first quarter. In the second period, Buhl went to the over-throw into the center for stay-ahead points.

The second half was a stalemate, the teams playing exactly even in points.

However, Jerome definitely was in the ball game with 3:20 to play, trailing only 48-47. Fresh Cary Schmeckpepper opened that to 51-47 with 3:14 left. Then Jerome missed an all-one cripple and came back with a long shot by Emerson to reduce the deficit to 61-49. But Jerome couldn't score in the last 2:45.

Monty Bell gave the Indians a little breathing room with a field goal with 2:05 remaining and it stayed 53-49 until Mike Hamilton hit two free throws with 18 seconds left.

Jerome hit a similar scoreless drought in the third period just after erasing a 37-31 Buhl lead to tie at 37-all with 4:20 left. Bell, Schmeckpepper and Polking pushed the Indians back on top 43-37 before Emerson hit to break the spell just nine seconds short of four minutes.

Polking's driving in the early going got Buhl into a 6-1 lead before Gradon Stanley and John Donkersloot headed the Tigers. After tying it at 4-8, Jerome went into its inter-period swoon and Buhl, with Polking hitting five straight points and Jerry Hills two more, ran out to a seven-point margin.

In the second period, after Jerome had closed to within 23-21, the over-throw to Hamilton paid off for eight points, half of them in the last 93 seconds when Buhl moved off from a 27-25 lead to 33-27.

Wendell surprises Wood River 52-49

WENDELL — The Wendell Trojans nursed a narrow lead throughout most of the second half Friday night to stun the Wood River Wolverines 52-49. The Trojans did it from the four line as the two teams wound up with 19 field goals each. But that was Wood River's foul. The Wolverines hit only 11 of 25 from the line while Wendell scored on 14 of 20.

Wendell came out in a press against the Wolverines who quickly went through 11 for a 22-point period and a 22-18 lead. The Trojans then turned to a zone and scoring quickly settled down.

The teams shot well enough from the field but were very selective. Wood River hit on 19 of 47 while Wendell hit on 14 of 20.

Wendell, trailing 22-28 at intermission, took the lead in the third period and stayed there by a little. Twice the Trojans held five-point leads but that was as far away as they could get.

BOISE (UPI) — Air Force officials assured Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Friday that there would be a minimum of risk from launch of Minuteman missiles over Idaho.

Andrus expressed his concern for the people in the areas over which the missiles would travel.

The officials said final plans had not been completed for the launch of the eight Minuteman II missiles from Malstrom Air Force Base in Montana to a target area in the Pacific Ocean during 1974 and 1975.

Capt. Ken Kissel, strategic operations officer from the Pentagon, said final plans should be completed by April and the governor would be given further briefings.

Brig. Gen. Dave Eason, also from the Pentagon, told Andrus that the chief executive would be kept informed as the Air Force proceeded with its planning.

"Everything is above board," said Eason.

Andrus said he was worried about a "chunk of debris" hitting some sheepherder or other person in the head. He noted that the first stage weighing 4,800 pounds and four other pieces of the missile, each weighing 60 pounds, would land in Idaho.

Kissel said that the areas would be evacuated and the flights would be conducted during the winter to reduce fire danger.

"Winter launches will also reduce the number of people in the area," Kissel said.

He said the risk would depend to some degree in the number of people in an area but debris would be widely scattered, reducing the likelihood of a mishap.

"The captain said 70 tests of the Minuteman II missile have been conducted from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. He said from these tests it has been determined there is a low probability of the missile going awry and being dangerous to the state."

As the presentation reviewing the entire test program was presented for the governor and newsman.

The Air Force plans to launch four missiles each in 1974 and 1975. They would fly across portions of Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington.

Tractor owner missing

THE LINCOLN County sheriff's office is looking for the owner of this tractor discovered overturned along US Highway 83 about three miles south of Shoshone. Deputy John Davis said no one has filed an accident report in connection with the machine. The tractor was discovered early this morning. Although Davis said he did not know if a law had been violated by failure to report the overturn, the Sheriff's office is interested in the incident.

Robbers flee

ALTONNA, Pa. (UPI) — When two robbers entered her confectionery store Wednesday, Mrs. Beatrice Steindel shouted: "Let the dogs loose!" Police said the robbers fled without any money.

Mrs. Steindel has no dogs.

Lincoln aides prepare budget

SHOSHONE — The tentative budget figures for Lincoln County for 1974 are being prepared by Mrs. J. McClure, clerk, after final work of county commissioners this week.

Mrs. McClure said she will prepare the figures for the board as soon as the work load at her office will permit.

As presented to her, they are the proposed figures of the county officers, with the commissioners' notes and changes, thus they must be tallied and checked for accuracy before publication.

Commissioners met three days during the week, with the earlier part of the week spent in hearing proposals by area citizens on various matters.

These included such things as the riding Redskins, represented by John Collins, asking for assistance to improve the rodeo grounds; introduction of substitute county extension agent, Ronald J. Greger; hearing new regulations pertaining to ambulance equipment from Francis Bergin; reviewing the audit and accepting it as presented by Mrs. Helen C. Dickenson; and meeting with a delegation from the Wood River Soil and Water Conservation District regarding its 1975 budget request.

Because of lack of interest by local cattlemen, the commissioners decided not to participate next summer in the four-county range-deputy program. This is the program carried out the past summer to help curb cattle rustling, funds being provided by the four counties participating, Lincoln, Gooding, Elmore and Camas.

The commissioners voted to participate in a four-county weed eradication project. Counties to participate are Lincoln, Blaine, Camas and Gooding.

Herb Love met with the commissioners to propose some type of county program for the elderly. He proposed a social-care-type of program, which would be handled mostly by volunteers.

The commissioners said they "liked" his ideas and approved of his looking further into the matter. However, no definite financial backing may be provided on a county basis.

1974 irrigation water supply good

BOISE — Water supply outlook reports for January from the Soil Conservation Service show if present conditions continue farmers in southern Idaho can look forward to another good water year.

Officials say a good start on the 1974 water supply occurred with snows in heavy amounts in October.

Soil moisture is high because of rains during October and November and reservoir storage, although below average in general picked up from heavy rains following the end of the irrigation season and appears satisfactory at this time.

Nearly all watersheds show 100 per cent or more of average for this time of year.

Watersheds on Little Wood River show 189 per cent of last year's water content at the same time and 114 per cent of normal; Big Wood reports 220 per cent of last year and 153 per cent of normal. Raft River has 186 per cent of last year and 210 per cent of normal while Salmon Falls Creek is 88 per cent of last year and 132 per cent of normal.

The Brunner River has 99 per cent of last year and 124 per cent of normal while the Owyhee River lists 209 per cent of last year and 194 per cent of normal.

Further upstream, in the Upper Snake River Basin, Henry's Fork River lists 160 per cent of last year and 131 per cent of normal while the Teton River has 177 per cent of last year and 129 per cent of normal.

In areas north of the Snake River, snow depths and water content reports are well ahead of last year which was a poor year in that area, and south of the river reports are nearly up to the peak of last year.

Galena Summit had 58 inches of snow—Dec. 26—with 18.4 inches of water compared to 7.5 a year ago. Galena itself reported 49 inches of snow, 13.8 inches of water and 5.8 inches of water last year.

Hailey chamber seeks to fuel recreation

HAILEY — The Hailey Chamber of Commerce has been urged to pursue action to insure that the recreation industry will not be discriminated against in fuel allocations.

Earlier, at the request of chamber member William Burt, the group agreed to write a letter to the state chamber, urging it to contact other state chambers and senators to form a national recreation bloc.

During a chamber meeting Monday, Burt cited a letter from an Amtrak official as the need for continued pursuit of the project. The letter had stated that Amtrak had been unofficially advised that fuel would not be available for any type of special type of special train operation specifically designed for recreation purposes.

After the meeting, Burt said 165 national recreation industry is comprised primarily of small businesses and in Idaho constitutes the second largest industry. He said he was not opposed to recreation allocation cuts, but said that a national recreation bloc was needed to insure that recreation did not receive a lower cut than other segments of the economy.

In other action, the chamber agreed to pay one-half of a $350 liability insurance premium for the Wertheimer Park Rodeo Grounds. The action followed a review of planned rodeo ground improvements by David Lake, president of the Sawtooth Rangers Riding Club, Ted Uring, Idaho High School Rodeo director, and Wally Young, president of the Days of the Old West Committee.

Lake said the riding club and celebration committee plan about $10,000 in grounds improvements, including new metal chutes, new bleachers, pole fencing along US Highway 92 as well as planting grass on the south side of the grounds.

The groups also intend to apply for a state grant.

Young stated that the clubs needed support from Hailey residents as well as area residents to start the project. Without the improvements, he said it would be impossible to conduct another show at the grounds.

Pattern of the Anglo-North American to schedule an appointment at home. So he and his collar can talk privately hard to the point. But the Latin American executive not infrequently sets up two or more appointments at one time. Tests of a batch of college seniors in Michigan show they read at an average rate of 350 words per minute. Same tests given to industrial and department store executives in Detroit show they read at an average of 275 words per minute. The scholars who overtook these examinations concluded this was a pity. Big business readers certainly should outpace inspectors, unless college men said, I don't think so. Speed reading with the finger sweep is dandy in Sociology 16 B. Certain alcoholic drinks of import tend to soothe not just one but two hangovers after a bout with a bottle. Or so says a Northwestern University medical expert. FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JANUARY 20, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are eager to get your affairs on a sound, secure structure now, but it may not be easy because of many interruptions and because you want to argue yourself. Be practical. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on both spiritual and practical affairs to make your life happier and more successful. Avoid arguments with a bigwig. Show respect. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't upset present conditions because you are in the mood for a change. Quietly put in operation ideas given by a recent acquaintance. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Intuition gives you the right impetus now toward right goals, so follow it along with suggestions from an expert. Avoid heavy drinking. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Forget restlessness and listen to what a practical thinker has to say that will help you make progress. Avoid arguments, trouble. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get chores done; avoid tangents. Don't lose your temper. Or something nice for one who has been very loyal to you. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have some new plan of a creative nature that needs an expert to make it successful. Consult with one such today. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Reach a better understanding with kin, but in a gentle fashion. Whatever is detrimental to your best interests should be gotten rid of. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't be afraid of new ideas, you have that are good, otherwise you lose the benefits they could bring in the near future. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get out to night philosophical studies for greater success. Talk to persons experienced in the fields you want to enter. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study yourself well and see where to make improvements in health, loquacity, or thinking processes to become a more important, happier person. Forget social affairs. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to add to present abundance. Listen carefully to what a successful person has to say, suggest. Become inspired. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Analyze what your fondest personal and business aims are and how to gain them easily in the days ahead. Get advice from a good friend. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will not be sold on anything that is foolish or has little substance. The field of business is definitely the forte here, as well as scientific work handled in a businesslike fashion. Give religious training early. Sports are a must here. The stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you!

CHEVY TRUCKS NO. 1 IN 1973

Last year, more Chevy trucks were sold than any other make. And that's especially important to truck buyers this year.

According to manufacturers' reported deliveries, Chevy sold more trucks in 1973 than ever before in history. And more than any other make. We're proud of this sales record and we consider it a strong endorsement from those who know trucks and truck value best.

And let's look at Chevy's truck record in building trucks that last. You have a right to know how long our Chevy trucks have lasted over the years. So we went to the record books and prepared this chart to show you.

We feel it's a fact that helps explain what we mean by "Lasting Chevy Value." And an important fact to consider when you buy a new truck.

When so many people choose Chevy trucks, we think that it's due, in large measure, to the lasting value we build into them.

We know that truck buyers are extremely value conscious. So we provide that value by building it in where it counts. We put a Massive Girder Beam independent suspension system up front. We make extensive use of double-wall construction in cabs and bodies. We even provide computer-matched brake systems.

Another point: Chevy trucks have traditionally high resale value.

Another way to measure truck value is by what it's worth when you're ready to trade. And, according to Automotive Market Reports, an authoritative industry source, Chevy truck resale value for 1/2- and 3/4-ton models is traditionally high when compared to other makes.

Does a Chevy truck give you the most truck for your dollar or doesn't it? Only you can make that judgment. And only after you've carefully considered all the values we build into our '74 trucks. We've covered some of them here. Your Chevrolet dealer has a 140-page book that covers them all. Ask him to show it to you. Then take a test drive in a new Chevy pickup. And find out for yourself why it's the best-selling pickup on the road today.

WE COOL GAS IN THE SUMMER TO WARM YOU IN THE WINTER.

Intermountain Gas Co. is completing a $6½ million investment in a Liquefied Natural Gas (LNG) storage facility so that gas can be stored for use when it is needed most during the coldest winter days. The plant located 15 miles west of Boise will be ready for use next winter. This is how an LNG plant works. From April through September there is a surplus of natural gas. During these months, gas will be diverted to the LNG facility and cooled to a temperature of 260 degrees below zero. It then becomes a liquid and its volume is reduced at the ratio of 600 to 1. When full, Intermountain's LNG tank will store an equivalent of 600 million cubic feet of gas. During peak demand days in the winter, the liquid gas will be warmed and returned to its original state, then released back into the distribution system. This new source of gas will increase Intermountain's available supply by one-third on those winter days when it's needed. Storing gas is one way to relieve the energy shortage. Exploration for new supplies is another. Manufacturing gas from coal or hydrogen is another. Intermountain Gas and the gas industry are actively pursuing all the alternatives to solve the problem. If you are concerned about Idaho's supply of natural gas, talk to the people who know. Call your gas company.

Valley comment

How do you feel about expert testimony that the controversial gap on one of President Nixon's Watergate tapes was erased? How do you feel about the Watergate at this point?

Norma Laker, Twin Falls:
 "Well, don't ask me what I think about him (President Nixon) because the situation we're in now I think he stinks. I think there must have been something there or it wouldn't have been erased."
 "It (Watergate) is strung out and they're not accomplishing anything... I think it should just be taken care of... If it was you or I that had done something like this, do you think they'd still be messing around with us? They'd have locked us up a long time ago. I don't think one American should have any more privileges than another."

Phil Raebel, Twin Falls:
 "Not knowing whether it's a new tape or not... I'd say that's not concrete proof of his (Nixon's) dishonesty. I think they need more concrete proof that there was something underhanded."
 "I'm getting tired of hearing about it (Watergate). I think the press has kind of overplayed it, although I'm sure it's something that ought to be brought to the attention of the public."

John P. Cox, Twin Falls:
 "Well, I'll tell you, since I have been in private investigation and police work 30 years plus, it's pretty hard to tell when something has been erased... I would say it's highly improbable that any expert could testify in that accurately. I think they're assuming facts not in evidence."
 "They're on a witch hunt. They're assuming and accusing right out of thin air. That whole (Watergate) thing is a complete farce."

Virgil Olson, Twin Falls: "I really don't know, to be real honest with you. I think the average man shouldn't judge, unless he has more knowledge. Too many are judging without adequate knowledge. I think more people should concentrate on putting things back together than on tearing them apart."

Larry Blair, Twin Falls: "I think that there's some skulduggery going on somewhere, but I'm a little reluctant to put my finger on Nixon. He's relied too much on his assistants... Nothing has been proven. When they get actual proof that he has been involved in this, then I think my mind would be changed... and until that's forthcoming, I'll stick with the President."

Ed Bonham, Jerome: "I think it's true. I think Rosemary Woods was laying a little heavy on the erase button. All the evidence points to it."
 "I'm tired of it (Watergate). Just get it over with... They're just dragging it on and on... Either impeach him (Nixon) or get him to resign. Just get him out of office."

Honolulu taxi beats 'crisis'

HONOLULU (UPI) — A young taxi firm here has competing taxi cabs beaten when it comes to the energy crisis. The answer is a bright yellow Volkswagen Beetle which weaves in and out of congested traffic, getting about 20 miles to the gallon.

The innovation, by Sunshine Cab Co., has created interest, and the company's little yellow taxi attracts attention wherever it goes.

Chris Ono, 28, president of the seven-month-old firm which also owns some regular sized cabs, took the Beetle for licensing Friday by the Public Utilities Commission, which was somewhat taken aback. But it was legal and the cab is now on the streets.

Ono said he got the idea a few weeks ago because of the uncertainties of the energy crisis.

"I'm out of gas," he said. "I don't know what the government regulations are going to be today or tomorrow."

He said his 32 drivers have to get most of their fuel from commercial service stations because the firm's gasoline supplies can't provide enough for the 24-hour operation.

Sunshine's cabs, including the Beetle, charge the same rates as other firms, because the prices are fixed by law under the authority of the Public Utilities Commission.

Ono said he plans to add two more Volkswagens to his fleet next week, both four-doors, and if the compact taxi idea goes over well, he said he may convert his entire fleet to Volkswagens.

For now, however, the 1970 Beetle rides around town bearing a black "smile" emblem on its sides and is the undisputed eye-catcher.

"The other cabs make all kinds of comments," Ono said. "I just say, 'Look in the back. I've got two customers and you don't.'"

Other cabs, by law, have an assigned number on their lighted rooftop emblem, some in three figures. But the Sunshine Cab Co. Beetle has a special number, "42."

Heyburn engineer buys mine near Sunbeam

By GARY THOMAS
Special to the Times-News
HEYBURN — A local engineer has purchased a mystery-shrouded mine in northern Idaho.

E. D. Moon, a consultant for the firm of Moon Engineering and Consulting Service located here, said Thursday he plans to begin extracting gold from the mine early next spring.

The mine is near Sunbeam on Yankee Fork, not far from the old mining town of Custer. The mystery derives from the fact that Walt Bonnicksen, a hardrock miner who filed the first claims on the mine, disappeared in the area 25 years ago.

Bonnicksen began working the mine in the 1930s, after operations in the Yellow Pine-Sibbite region were suspended.

After the Sunbeam mine was well established, Bonnicksen wrote to his younger brother Bill in California, asking him to come to Idaho.

Bill Bonnicksen arrived in the area on March 30, 1948, and was told that his brother had left to go shopping three days earlier.

Anticipating his brother's return, Bill erected a cabin and settled down to wait for a few days. But when a week had passed with no sign of Walt, he decided to investigate.

Bill and the proprietor of a nearby store, who was acquainted with the old miner, traveled on horseback and on foot to the Bonnicksen cabin to search for anything that was wrong.

The two men found the cabin well-kept, with everything in place but its occupant. Walt had completely disappeared and has not been heard from since.

Walt Bonnicksen had kept track of time by marking off the dates on the calendar on his wall. The last date marked on that calendar was March 28, 1948.

Later, another brother, A. L. (Barney) Bonnicksen of Colorado, arrived to aid in the search. They spent many weeks and tramped many miles in search of the slightest clue to their older brother's whereabouts. But it was to no avail.

Now, 25 years later, Moon has purchased the mine. He said he knows there is gold in the mine because he ran test operations on it last fall.

Moon said he is convinced that Walt Bonnicksen was murdered by person or persons unknown. Moon indicated that the value of the mine, and the market price of gold, would be a logical motive for murder.

Walt's daughter, Nancy Ann, 13, expresses similar sentiments in a poem she has written entitled "The Saga of Walt Bonnicksen." The poem indicates that Bonnicksen may have been tricked into leaving his cabin, and then murdered, the body thrown into the river.

"The poem infers that a friend of Bonnicksen may have been the killer, as the miner did have a few friends but no known enemies.

Bill Bonnicksen? He is 77 now and still helps operate his brother's mine during the summer months, residing in Rupert in the winter. Neither he nor anyone else is likely to ever know what really happened that early spring day in 1948 when an Idaho miner deserted his claim forever.

Britannica offers new edition

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
CHICAGO — The Encyclopedia Britannica is ready with a completely new edition.

The edition, No. 15 in more than 200 years of publication; is the first total reworking of the encyclopedia since the 1923 14th edition and represents a radical departure from the A-through-Z reference-book style.

In preparation more than 15 years and costing a reported $2 million, the new edition is divided into three parts, and spans 30 volumes. The 14th edition has 23 volumes plus a reading index.

The first 10 volumes of the new set are called micropedias. The volumes are references, in alphabetical order, to 102,000 subjects treated in 750 words or less and are called ready references. The micropedia concept evolved, according to Warren E. Prece, editor-in-chief of the new set, to satisfy readers' need for the "hunt-and-find" system of using an encyclopedia.

One's for real

MRS. SUSAN DEFALAISE, lower left, is for real, but she has a lot of "dummy" friends. She's caretaker for the Vent Haven Museum, Ft. Mitchell, Ky., which houses 500 ventriloquism dummies and thousands of other memorabilia. (UPI)

Dummies take over house

By RICK VANSANT
FORT MITCHELL, Ky. (UPI) — It all started with Tommy Baloney, a wooden dummy purchased by businessman and amateur ventriloquist William Shakespeare Berger in 1910.

By the time "W. S." — as his friends in this small Cincinnati suburb called him — died a couple of years ago at age 94, his collection of small wooden figures with rolling eyes and clacking mouths had grown so big that the dummies took over his house. Soon "W. S." was sleeping in the dining room for lack of space.

Berger, who was president of a company and director of a bank, is gone, but his collection of 500 dummies, thousands of photographs, hundreds of books and reams of correspondence and newsletters on ventriloquism, still occupies his old brick house, known as the "Vent Haven" museum.

The three-and-four-foot-high dummies are dressed in all manner of outfits, from tuxedos to comic clothes. They sit lifelessly on chairs packed into the three buildings.

Susan DeFalaise, caretaker of the museum, brought 'a few to life.

"This is Tommy Baloney," she said, putting her hand through an opening in the dummy's back and pulling a lever on a pole extending up to Tommy's head. Tommy's mouth moved

"Tommy was the first dummy Mr. Berger ever bought. It was in 1910."

Most of the 500 dummies here were used professionally this century. Many have unique names like "Willie Talk" and his brother, "Keeny Talk."

Although Berger never performed professionally as a ventriloquist, he had a little stage built in his bedroom where he would practice.

"He formed an international association of ventriloquists and sometimes wrote 500 letters a month to keep it going," said Mrs. DeFalaise. "He collected so much material on ventriloquism that it ran him out of the house. He built a garage to store it in and when that wasn't big enough, he built another garage next to it."

"He left a quarter-million dollars in a trust fund to keep the museum going," she added, museum and to catalogue all the material — but there's just thousands and thousands of items."

When a third museum building was dedicated here last summer, Edger Bergen brought "Charlie-McCarthy" and "Mortimer Snerd," while Jimmy Nelson brought "Danny O'Day," famous a few years back for advertising chocolate on television.

Dying Homes—The Tragedy Of Progress

On Living

It was Edward A. Guest, the Detroit reporter and poet, who wrote: "It takes a heap of living in a house to make it home."

Often, after that heap of living, the home again becomes a house and the house dies. That's the visible tragedy of many houses in the Twin Falls area.

The laughter of the former occupants has gone. The children who grew up there are gone. The windows are boarded and the house has assumed the lonely look of something forgotten. The winter snows cling to the unkempt bushes and trees, the fences sag as weakened posts give in to the inevitable and even the passing birds seem to shun the naked branches.

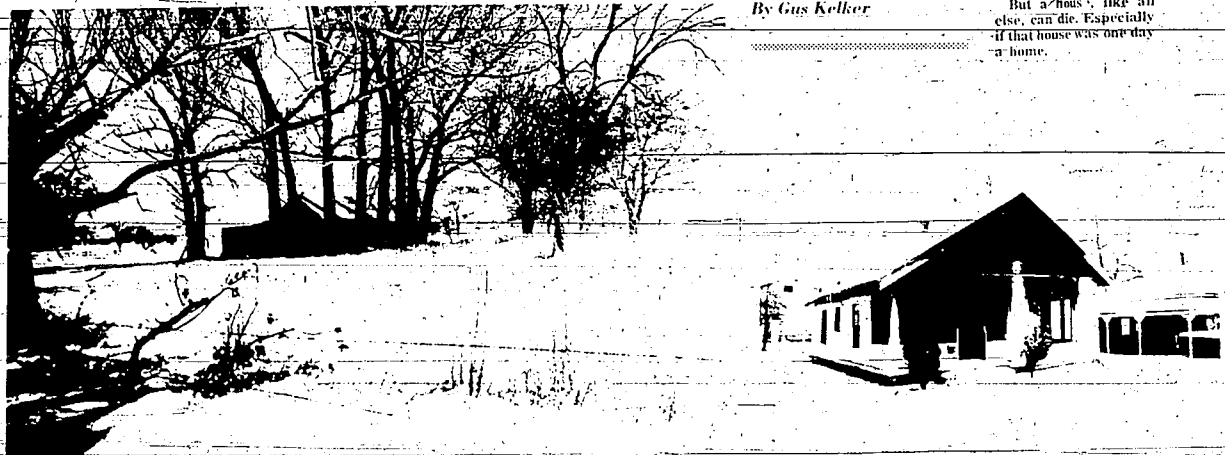

We are told it is all a part of time as it moves on. We are told nothing lasts forever. And it is true — but, regardless, there are few things as pathetic as a house that is no longer a home.

A house doesn't think. A house doesn't breathe or worry or show joy or show sorrow. A house does nothing unless someone makes a cause a reality.

But a house, like all else, can die. Especially if that house was one day a home.

Should people talk to plants?

By GEORGIA DULLEA
(c) New York Times Service
NEW-YORK—Hey, you with the leaves. We can talk now. People are talking to their philodendrons quite openly these days and plants are seeking it up.

It all began with 'Backster's effect.'

Cleve Backster, you may recall, was the Ex-CIA agent who hooked his drone camera messengers to a lie detector in 1966 and discovered that plants are not 'dumb green things that grow, as some owners had supposed. Plants have feelings, he found. They fear, love, hate, worry about dogs and — who knows — they may possess the power to read people's minds.

This was news to people. Hence they began being nice to their plants to make up for all those years they sat bored and lonely in the window-box. When a plant sent up a note about its owner, sent up a cheer. When it got mealy bugs, he sympathized. And plants replied by getting greener and better.

Incidentally you would like a drink?

Now nobody, not even Backster, ever claimed plants could read. So all those books that are suddenly bursting forth to explain the plant-people phenomenon must be aimed at people. Among those published within the last several weeks are 'The Secret Life of Plants' by Peter Tompkins and Christopher Bird, and 'Plant Consciousness, Plant Care,' in which Shirley Ross hints of future 'plant-men.'

Plants do appreciate music, however, as the record industry knows. From Environmental Sounds Inc. comes Dr. George Milstein's 'Music to Grow Plants.' The music is more of a 'sootic hum,' Milstein explains. Seems the vibrations make plants pores (stomata) open wider and longer so carbon dioxide and water vapor are absorbed faster. Naturally, the plant grows faster, too.

As a philodendron, would you comment on this? Also, do you agree with another musical theory that plants love Bach and abhor rock? It was acid rock," contends a Dorothy Rettalack, that made her plants cringe and die in Denver.

Do plants respond to prayer? The Rev. Franklin Loecher, in 'The Power of Prayer on Plants,' describes research in which some corn, lima beans and sweet pea pods were prayed over and some were not. Says Loecher: "Two out of three prayed-for plants came out ahead." Is this a reasonable proportion?

Those who don't pray over but simply chat with plants wonder if they're going about it properly. For example, are Latin names preferred? Do plants really resent nicknames?

Bill Weidner, a cameraman who has studied plants, suspects this: "I know people that patronize their plants. They make little witticisms and call them cute names like 'Clyde.' It's not necessary." Lisa Kral has a Christmas tree named 'Humphrey' in Colebrook, Conn., and sees nothing wrong with that. What bothers Miss Kral is when people measure—the plants with cries of "Grow, grow, grow!" If they think all you want out of them is a blossom, they're not going to be too happy," she warns.

Unhappiness is one thing, but why would a well aspidistra up and die on a certain dentist who went to Miami for a little sun? Carolyn Busch, a plant store owner, insists such tragedies need not occur.

"If you're away from your plants and really love them, and think about them, they won't go downhill," Mrs. Busch says. "I think you know when someone's thinking about you."

Fred Unger of Queens, N.Y., was taking no chances when she checked into the hospital last November with her maranta and exalls. Listen to what happened to them.

The maranta, known as the prayer plant, was in full bloom for the first time in two years with two buds. The exhall regnell was sending forth slender white flowers.

Back from surgery, Mrs. Unger found her plants in bad shape. Neither was blooming. As for the exalls, "its poor little leaves hung way down over the edge of the pot," she said. And the mantra, which sleeps with leaves folded, wouldn't open up in the morning. "Take them home," Mrs. Unger told her husband Milton, "and talk to them."

Fortunately, all three patients have since recovered. But the question remains: Was it Mrs. Unger's operation that made the plants sick? Was it the touch of a strange nurse, watering them and pinching their leaves? Or both? People wonder.

What kind of wood? Anything you can get

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
 FIREPLACE: Before the energy crisis, many people with fireplaces refused to use them because they were so "messy." Now this primitive but cozy method of heating your home is the rage.

People ask us what kind of wood is best to burn. The answer: burn whatever you can get your hands on.

Softwoods like pine, spruce and fir are easy to ignite because they are resinous. They burn rapidly with a hot flame, but a fire built entirely of softwoods burns out quickly.

For a longer fire use softwoods in combination with the heavier hardwoods such as ash, beech, birch, maple and oak.

We've seen many homeowners wisely pick up fireplace wood from local dumps and landfills. As much as 20 per cent of the debris in some towns and city dumps consists of reusable wood, including the logs, limbs and tops of trees toppled by storms.

The cost of air-dried wood delivered to your house varies anywhere from $30 to $50 or more a cord. A cord of wood can be described as a well-stacked pile 4 x 4 x 8 foot.

However, since few people burn wood in 4 or 8 foot lengths, most sales are a "face cord"; that is, a 4 x 8 foot stack cut into desired lengths, usually 12 to 14 inches or so.

Building a fire is a chore to some people. One of our readers tells us he first lights a piece of newspaper in the fireplace. The heat rises up the chimney, taking with it a heavy 12 air up with it. Then he lights the fire itself.

FREE: Would you like to get more comfort from your fireplace? Send me your name and address and ask for "Enjoy Your Fireplace During the Energy Crisis."

This guide was prepared by the U. S. Forest Service and it's packed full of good tips on using your fireplace for greater comfort and efficiency.

FIG PLANTS FROM SEED: Did you know you can start fig trees from seed found in store bags? Get some dried figs from your grocery store, remove seeds and plant them in a mixture of sand, peat and loam.

Press seed lightly into the mixture, then dust a little peat over it. Water well by placing pot-in-pot-of-water.

Place plastic wrap over the top of the pot to trap in moisture and heat. Takes 3 months for seed to sprout.

Young seedlings are very delicate, but will eventually grow rugged. Pot them up in a 3 inch pot using a mixture of 1 part each of sand, peat and loam. Keep soil uniformly moist and grow in a bright window. When tree is three or four feet high, plants will start to bear.

Many gardeners grow figs in tubs. These are brought indoors in winter, or are buried in a trench outdoors. Make sure you cover the trench with straw or sticks. Many nurseries sell potted fig trees which will bear in your home, greenhouse or in the back yard.

HOUSE PLANT: WALLAINS: These are small, bushy 12-18 inch plants to watch out for on your house plants.

(1) Mealybugs. Look for white, waxy, mealy covering along veins and undersides of leaves. Causes stunting of leaves.

Control: Take cotton swab dip in alcohol and touch the white cottony mass. Do not get alcohol on leaves.

(2) Red Spider mites. Tiny mites living on tips and undersides of leaves. They cause entire leaf to curl and twist. Green portions become mottled due to the rasping of tissues.

Control: Dip plant in soapy water. Mites cannot take moisture - it causes them to blot. Insecticides are ineffective since mites are not an insect.

(3) Thrips. Slender, hairy insects, very tiny. They rasp the tissues, causing paling or browning of foliage. Flowers are deformed and flecked or discolored by sucking juices.

Control: Spray undersides of leaves with aerosol spray.

(4) Aphids (plant lice). These are soft bodied pests about 1/8 inch in size, green, pink, red or brown in color. Found at tips of young shoots in clusters.

They cause twisting of shoots, distorted leaves and flowers by sucking juices. Sugary sap oozes on leaves and this attracts black, sooty fungus, making your plants dirty and unattractive.

Control: Sprays with nicotine sulfate, nicotine sulfate is same as Black Leaf 40 - found in garden centers. Wash leaves off in bath tub.

SAVING SEEDS: Many gardeners like to eat squash seed but have a hard time extracting the seed from the flesh. A reader asks if there is a "painless" method for removing the seed, and also for removing the hull.

Here's how to handle the situation: (1) Cut the squash in two, but - do not remove the seeds. (2) Bake the squash in oven until done.

(3) Scoop out seeds from cavity and spread on cookie sheet. Don't worry about squash fibers remaining. (4) Dab a little butter on, salt lightly and return to oven.

(5) Roast at 200 degrees F. for about half an hour. Squash seeds are ready to eat - hulls and all! The hulls, plus the seed itself all have a nutty flavor.

If you're afraid to eat the hulls (there's no machine or practical way to remove the hulls) you can grow the Lady Godiva, a naked seeded pumpkin whose hull-less seeds make a tasty snack. No shelling necessary.

The hull-less seeds are eaten plain or roasted. If any reader does have an easy way to shell or remove seeds from squash or pumpkin seeds, please write us.

Lady Godiva produces pumpkins about 6 pounds or so, which are not of table quality.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. R. of Twin Falls: "Sometimes ago you wrote about starting a pineapple plant. I've started but the top wouldn't root. My sister did the same thing and she has a beautiful plant. What did I do that was wrong and how should she get hers to produce an edible pineapple?"

The first thing to do is to select a nice, fine pineapple with a shiny-green top. Avoid those with a dried up top. Slice off the top with 1 or 2 inches of fruit attached.

Remove the messy part, being careful not to injure the tough little stem in the center. Now air-dry the top until it's partially dry.

Next, line the bottom of a clay pot with chipped rock, gravel or sand-for drainage. Over this place a thin layer of sphagnum moss. Next, place the top in the pot and add just enough soil to cover the stem.

Place it in a draft free, sunny spot. Groom it by nipping off any damaged leaves. Water it sparingly from the bottom each day.

Some people have good luck rooting the top in a shallow saucer of plain tap water.

Usually, a pineapple will not fruit in the home, but it does make a fine foliage plant. You can get the plant to fruit by using the apple trick we've mentioned many times.

Place a plastic sheet over the plant, making sure the plastic gas releases from the apple.

After four or five days, remove the plastic tent and you'll see new leaves starting from the center of the plant.

Finally, you'll see rows of pineapple fruit appearing on the bottom of the new leaves. The fruit that follows is golden yellow and will grow about 6 inches across the top, on a stalk about 1/4 inch thick.

Lewis, Clark trail retraced

Editor's Note: The writer was a member of an expedition which in 1973 retraced the route of the Lewis and Clark Expedition.

By GARY KINSEY

Written for UPI

The American explorers Merriwether Lewis and William Clark probably would not recognize the country they discovered on their 1804-06 trek into the unmapped Pacific Northwest.

At least that's what five of us—members of a modern expedition—surmised after retracing for five-and-a-half months in 1973 the explorers' return route from the mouth of the Columbia River on the Oregon coast to St. Louis, Mo.

Our expedition over the trail blazed by the 31 members of the famous Lewis and Clark expedition, made a round-trip for 3,800 miles along rivers and mountain paths through 11 Western states. A jet could have covered the same territory in three hours.

Our transportation—a kayak and two canoes on the water, and feet across the Rocky Mountains—allowed us to witness a unique panorama of western America for a total of $2,500, about the same cost as the original expedition.

Besides this writer, the modern expedition consisted of Bob Miller, 23, a photographer and former Canadian wilderness guide; Albuquerque, N.M.; Mike Cochran, 29, an illustrator and ex-Marine medic, Grand Junction, Colo.; Mike Wien, 22, a public relations consultant, Chicago, and Clay Asher, 18, an Eagle Scout, Twin Falls, Idaho.

We departed June 7 from Ft. Clatsop, where—the original expedition wintered on the Oregon coast in 1805-06 before returning to St. Louis, and paddled 370 miles up the Columbia and Snake Rivers to Lewiston, Idaho.

From Lewiston, we hiked 435 miles with 65 pound packs across Idaho's Rocky Mountains to Dillon, Mont., where we again launched our craft.

This time, however, the boats floated downstream in the Missouri River headwaters, over 2,800 miles from our St. Louis destination.

During Indian Summer, we paddled east on the Missouri across Montana and then south through the Dakotas, Nebraska, Iowa, and Missouri. St. Louis officials greeted us Nov. 19 when we docked at their city's Gateway Arch, built in honor of Thomas Jefferson, the President who sent us on the original expedition.

What did we see on our expedition? As Miller explained, we traveled across "the same country as the early explorers, but we saw little of what they discovered."

Thick oil spills from ocean liner steamers inland to Portland, Ore., covered much of the Columbia River. Pollution also clouded our St. Louis arrival; among the 630-foot high arch, the tallest monument of its kind in the world until we were less than a half mile away.

For the most part, the once wild rivers have been dammed up.

The U.S. government has constructed 24 dams for hydroelectric power and flood control on the Columbia, Snake and Missouri Rivers.

The dams have backed up nearly 1,500 miles of river water into lakes, creating a boom in local boating recreation but eliminating magnificent landmarks that the explorers discovered, such as the Columbia's Celler Falls, near the Dallas, Ore., and the Missouri's Great Falls, at Great Falls, Mont.

There now are 16 lakes along the Missouri, most of which are nearly 200 miles long. These lakes proved to be our greatest opponent, as we averaged less than two m.p.h. crossing them because of the slack water and high winds blowing in our faces.

We discovered only a 150-mile stretch of water, which we named as it is in the name of Lewis and Clark. Starting at Fort Benton, Mont., the Wild Missouri—as local canoeists christened it—passes through uninhabited western lands.

We drank from mountain streams and the upper Missouri without purifying the water until reaching Sioux City, Iowa, where we saw waste dumped from open sewers into the river.

The Rocky Mountains' Lolo Trail, which the Corps of Discovery frantically crossed here—back in a raging blizzard, now has thousands of eroding acres dotting the once thickly timbered slopes, the results of forest fires and unchecked logging operations.

However, we discovered two items which remained the same: the natives were as friendly and the weather was as treacherous.

We met nearly 2,000 "natives." They were white people, though, while the original explorers encountered Indians. Many families along the route offered us their homes to rest in or provided us home-cooked meals, welcomed changes from our tent and freeze-dried food.

As their journals show, Lewis and Clark always met with the chiefs of Indian tribes along the way to present them with friendship medallions.

In turn, we met with as many "chiefs" of the local "tribes" as possible—five governors and four dozen mayors—to present them with a memento designed to celebrate the 169th anniversary of the Corps of Discovery's departure.

Our first meeting with a governor, Montana's Tom Judge, occurred in the Helena capital building, but we later met him again on Holter Lake, one of the lakes on the Missouri

BOB MILLER, front, Albuquerque, N.M., and Mike Cochran, Grand Junction, Colo., pull their canoes to shore through a rapid on the upper Missouri River in Montana during their five-man expedition retracing the steps, in reverse, of the trail blazed by the famous Lewis and Clark trip. (UPI) near Helena, and attempted to paddle the kayak. He soon was going uncontrollably around in circles on the lake.

Bad weather plagued us as it did the original explorers, more than half of whom could not swim.

Cold rainstorms and high winds often caused us to stop traveling and wait, huddled around a campfire or in our tent, until the weather cleared.

The water often treated five-foot-high waves that capsized our craft 21 times.

Once we nearly lost Cochran, a thin man, when his craft capsized, hitting the Snake River.

In that same episode, we lost our cooking equipment, which forced us to cook out of boiling cans for two weeks until reaching the next civilization at Lewiston.

But, despite the problems, we would follow the trail again.

After all, what closer way is there to see America than by hiking and canoeing across it?

NANCY WALKER

... too successful for hubby

Q: Is it true that Nancy Walker and her husband have split? — H. E., La Jolla, Calif.
A: Yes. Though the pint-sized comedienne is still denying it. Her husband of 20 years, successful vocal coach David Craig, has gone off to live in Rome. The reason? Nancy grows more and more famous every day from her TV acting, television commercials and her directing chores. David is still an unknown, though he has taught many people who couldn't even carry a tune how to sing well enough for Broadway.

Q: I'm trying to follow the ins and outs of Henry Kissinger's love life. So who did he spend New Year's Eve with? — L. T., New York, N. Y.

A: Henry arrived in Hollywood on the Monday before New Year's Eve with a dinner jacket but no date. He asked an important Hollywood woman to fix him up. She called Candy Bergen, who had to be talked into spending that night of nights with Henry (and how come she didn't have a date?). Candy and Kissinger joined Sue Mengers, the Hollywood agent, and her husband, and Bob Evans and his date (he's head of Paramount and All MacGraw's ex). The six of them quietly toasted in 1974 at Evans' house. Next question: What was Nancy Magines doing back in New York?

Q: Is Dr. Christiaan Barnard, the pioneer heart surgeon, still doing his heart-transplant operations in South Africa? — M. N., Toledo, Ohio.

A: At the moment yes, but Dr. Barnard is thinking of leaving South Africa, claiming that unsympathetic press coverage has made it difficult for him to get heart donors. Barnard's most recent transplant patient died and the specialist says that he will now limit surgery to younger patients who have a better chance of recovery.

Q: How is actor James Stacy doing since his horrible accident? — K. P., Kansas City, Mo.

A: Not so good, though the former athlete who lost both an arm and a leg in a motorcycle crash is putting up a good front. Unfortunately the man who hit Stacy had virtually no insurance money. Stacy lives with one servant who goes home around 3 p.m., leaving him more or less on his own. As his leg is off very high up, and with no arm for balance, he has trouble getting around. Stacy was once married at different times, of course, to Kim Darby and Connie Stevens.

Q: How did they get that poor little girl in "The Exorcist" to do and say those awful things? Isn't it a disgrace they made her say such profane words? — P. D., New York, N. Y.

A: All sequences in "The Exorcist" where the child is shown to be "possessed" by the demon, spouting profanity, vomiting on priests, etc. were dubbed. The "demonic" voice is that of veteran actress Mercedes McCambridge.

Q: TUESDAY, THIS MUST BE NEW YORK: Hottest romance on the after-theater circuit in New York is Tuesday Weld and England's Dudley Moore, the shrimp-sized comic currently a smash on Broadway in "Good Evening." These two are really in love. (That's this week!)

Q: If I wanted to go to Europe for fun, where would I be most likely not to run into the energy crisis? — E. P., Baltimore.

A: France is the country least bothered by the energy crisis owing to its being the world's third largest arms dealer, and its friendly attitude toward the Arab world. The energy crisis affects France only because of the shortages in West Germany and Holland. Sometimes businesses supplied by these countries have to close down temporarily. But as far as gasoline is plentiful in France and so is electricity.

Q: Who will play Billy Rose in the Barbra Streisand sequel of the Fanny Brice story? — L. P., New York, N. Y.

A: Both Dustin Hoffman and Al Pacino, diminutive guys, are being considered for the role.

FRIENDSHIP: Billie Jean King and tennis defender, Rosemary Casals. Billie Jean got the message that Rosie's blatant TV praise for her during the King-Riggs match didn't do her (Billie Jean) any good. Also, she thinks it hypocritical that Rosie would agree to ride in the Rose Bowl Parade on a float with Bobby Riggs after she (Billie Jean) had turned it down.

Q: I don't understand why it's so tough to get a college loan. You'd think that the money paid back to the Federal Government by graduates would be enough to float new loans. — E. H., New Haven, Conn.

A: You've touched on a problem that has reached serious proportions. The Federal Government isn't anxious to publicize this fact, but apparently thousands upon thousands of students have defaulted on their government education loans.

BURTON AND LIZ

... he gave concessions

Q: How did the Richard Burton-Liz Taylor reconciliation come about? — J. E., Bayonne, N. J.

A: We hear that Richard gave in and made tremendous concessions to win his bride back. He did this because he is truly concerned for her health and was horrified at the things he heard about Liz's association with Henry Wynberg.

ALI MCGRAW

... now painting T-shirts.

Q: Where is All MacGraw and why isn't she making any movies? — J. V., Kingston, N. Y.

A: As you read this, Ali is either at home in Malibu or at her club, Steve McQueen, the king of the male charmerists, likes his lady close at hand. Ali spends three hours every day working out at her gym and the rest of her time doing the handkerchiefs like hand-painting tee shirts as gifts for friends. However, when you see Ali and Steve together you know that romance has not diminished by a single kilowatt.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: When the French set off their unpopular nuclear tests in the South Pacific, did anybody get hurt? Ironically three French workers who were at home in France when the blast occurred last summer have developed mysterious skin diseases after working on helicopters that did survey work over the site of the Mururoa Atoll.

RINGO STARR

... kids love Alice Cooper

Q: Would you bring us up to date on Ringo Starr? Where does he live, etc.? — F. D., Short Hills, N. J.

A: Thirty-three-year-old Ringo lives in John Lennon's $350,000 home in Ascot, England. He's still married to Maureen and they have three children, Zak, Jason G. and a daughter, Lev. The older children go to a local school in Ascot and aren't bothered by Beatle fans like the kids there, including the Starr children, are Alice Cooper fans. Ringo does have a bit of trouble with the mothers. They are always coming around to get a look at Ringo.

Involvement meet to fight crime shunned

By JACK V. FOX.
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The first enthusiastic estimates were that 100,000 people would overflow the huge Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum.

The occasion was to be a rally expressing citizen support for involvement in combatting crime and terrorism on the city's streets and parkways. In the black community on whose northern edge the Coliseum stands.

It had the backing of a council of black churches in Watts and other black areas and the support of county and city officials.

The Police Department looked at the 100,000 figure with some skepticism and lowered the crowd estimate to 25,000-50,000, assigning the necessary number of officers to handle traffic and security.

The sponsors had talked the Coliseum management into giving them the stadium free for the day. Concessionaires set up their hot dog and refreshment stands. Parking charges were waived. Extra city buses were provided to handle the crowds.

The great day dawned last Sunday, Jan. 13. It was bright and sunny and warm.

And 350 people showed up in the 92,000 seat Coliseum.

A picture in the Los Angeles Times told the story better, as they say, than a thousand words.

It showed a well-dressed black man in his 30s sitting in the stands with his arm draped protectively around the shoulders of his son, a boy around 10 or 11. They were surrounded by empty seats.

And you could almost hear the boy asking: "Dad, why are we here when hardly anybody else showed up?"

The man who spearheaded the campaign for the rally is the Rev. Claude Evans, black pastor of the Garden of Gethsemane Baptist Church.

Evans professes not to be deeply disappointed with the turnout.

Then you ask him why only a sprinkling of people attended.

"I'll tell you why," he says. "It wasn't sympathy. It wasn't the fact the Super Bowl was out that day. It wasn't that the weather was so fine people wanted to do other things."

"It was fear. The people in our community are afraid to stand up against the loud voices of violence."

"They are afraid of retaliation from the militants. They were afraid there might be deliberately staged altercations in the stadium and they were afraid of how the police might react."

"The criminals and the gangs are laughing at the community because they have them scared. They are laughing at the Police Department because all they have to do is yell 'police brutality' and neutralize law enforcement."

Evans says he decided after the Watts riot in 1965 that responsible people in the black community had as much or more of a duty to tackle some of its own personal problems than depending on outside help. "You know it's very popular at a Negro meeting (Evans is one of the few still using the word) to get up and attack while, the police, the establishment, anything."

"Anything except their own community. That can be very dangerous."

Evans says he isn't pro-white, or anti-black or pro-establishment. He says he feels that the only solution for blacks is to look upon themselves as Americans and entitled to all the rights of Americans.

The minister is emotionally critical of the court and probation system of handling young criminals.

"These boys are arrested and they are back on the streets within days," he says. "I know some of them who have been in and out of jail 17 and 18 times and are free right now."

"And it's the black people who are suffering. It's our homes that are being robbed."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Passengers using Japanese railways reportedly left about $3,600,000 in lost money aboard trains during 1971. The Japanese railroads, however, failed to convert this sum into a major asset because all but $30,000 was claimed and collected by the passengers. The World Almanac says.

our women struggled, our schools vandalized and classes terrorized.

"Not long ago two white police officers saw an elderly Negro woman fall to the ground in a park a few blocks from here. They stopped their car and went to her aid. One was bent over talking to her and the other went to the cruiser radio to call an ambulance.

"Someone driving by stopped and started yelling at the police. Other people gathered and the word spread that the officers had shot the woman. One policeman had to draw his gun to keep the crowd back. Now that is insane."

Evans says the fact that only a few hundred people showed up at the Coliseum had not discouraged him.

"It is a spark," he says. "The tiny turnout may be a blessing in disguise. It may start some people thinking and searching their consciences. What number 'we had' was because God wanted it. We will take it and work with it."
