Reorganization snagged

By DAVID ESPO
T-N Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Executive reorganization into its first real opposition of the 1974 legislature Friday when three dissident House members kept the first bills bottled up in committee. —Reps: Lee Barron, R-Corral; John Reardon, R-Boise, and Wayne Loveless, D-Pocentello, kept the first four reorganization measures from leaving the House Printing Committee through a series of parliamentary maneuvers. Although they were outnumbered by a 2-1 margin—the three conservatives never permitted a vote on a motion to print the measures, and finally forced the committee to adjourn until Monday without taking any action. The three objected to a fiscal note on each of the measures, which said "no known fiscal impact" would result from the reorganized departments. Reardon said the fiscal notes, as drafted were a "dereliction" of the committee's duties. By House rules, each legislative proposal must be accompanied by a fiscal impact note, explaining the anticipated effect on state expense of the measure. While the printing committee wrangled over fiscal impacts, the Executive Reorganization Commission conducted the final public hearing in the reorganization procedure and organized itself into the Executive Reorganization Committee to begin introduction of bills. The committee reached approval on all-but 5 of the proposed 21 bill reorganization package. Four of the measures were quickly sent to the House, meeting in late afternoon session, to allow a head start on printing over the weekend. When they were referred to the printing committee, however, Reardon immediately challenged the fiscal impact notes. "It just doesn't seem reasonable or rational to me there could be no fiscal impact," he said. "I dispute this statement." (Continued on p. 7)

Oil firms given antitrust break

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration secretly gave the oil industry an antitrust exemption beginning in 1970 so it could form a solid front against Arab threats to nationalize the companies, according to Senate testimony made public Saturday. James Akins, former head of the State Department office of fuels and energy, told Senate subcommittee last October the exemptions were made on grounds of "national interest" based on fears the Arabs would take over American-owned firms. The testimony was made public by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the subcommittee on multi-national corporations. Church opens hearings Wednesday on the international dealings of oil companies dating prior to World War II. "I testified that the government extracted no concessions from the oil industry in return for the antitrust protection, and was shut out of the industry-Arab negotiations intended to avoid nationalization. Despite the government-approved oil solidarity, the companies signed an agreement with the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) on Valentine's Day, 1971, for a five-year production program which would have brought the OPEC members an additional $10 billion. Akins said that agreement was well on its way to breaking down when the October war broke out in the Mideast. He said in his view the fundamental reason was the rapidly rising demand for oil in the West and Japan, combined with a growing understanding by the Arabs that they provided an irreplaceable resource.

Privilege list asked

(c) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — President Nixon has been asked by Federal Judge Gerhard A. Gesell to sign a point-by-point claim of executive privilege if he wants to resist a subpoena of five Watergate tapes by Senate investigators. Gesell, who has a reputation as a fearless jurist, turned down the White House request to throw the Senate Watergate Committee case out of court. He indicated in a brief order that he would be bound by the U.S. Appeals Court opinion that the President must let judges rule on claims of privilege regarding the celebrated recordings of Nixon's conversations.

'Copter crashes

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls men were back home Saturday after a narrow escape when their helicopter crashed atop Spruce Mountain, 40 miles from Wells, Nev.

Vern Haney and Dave Freeman, both pilots, and Jim Stark, a mechanic, crashed Thursday in an attempt to reach another stranded helicopter on the mountain peak. The first helicopter, piloted by Haney, became stranded Wednesday as it flew in repair parts for a microwave station on the summit. A belt broke on the Reeder Flying Service craft as it landed on the snow-covered peak. Haney and his passengers, Bus Stepp, operator of the microwave station, and Stepp's son, walked off the peak. Another helicopter, flown by Freeman and carrying Haney and Stark, went in Thursday and crashed in a sudden down draft. After a night on the mountain, the three men walked out and returned to Twin Falls Saturday in a Redco plane. They suffered only bruises and cuts but lost all their tools in the snow.

Huge irrigation projects eyed

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer

BUHL — Two huge private reclamation projects are planned along the western edge of Twin Falls County across the Salmon Falls Creek from the Twin Falls Tract. The projects to be owned by about 100 people, would irrigate about 47 square miles of desert scrubbrush and cheat grassland. They would cost over $1 billion to construct. The fate of the mammoth reclamation projects depends on the outcome of a hotly contested vote by stock holders on the Twin Falls Tract to the east. The only economical way to transmit water to the project is through the canal system that now serves the Twin Falls Tract. Those seeking to develop the project have asked the Twin Falls Canal Co. to carry water through its canal system from Milner to near the Salmon Falls Creek Canyon to the project site, where it would be stored in two reservoirs. The developers have offered to pay the canal company handsomely to carry the water.

First of series

The Canal company's directors have expressed approval for the project and have called for a special advisory election of stockholders on the plan. But strong opposition has developed from stockholders who fear the agreement to transmit water could comprise their water rights. The feelings of the canal company's stockholders will be known after balloting ends Feb. 1.

The Canyon View and Tuana projects would rely on off-season spill water from Milner Dam. According to Gale Conner, a Castleford farmer and a director of the Canyon View Irrigation Co., the projects' use of established irrigation canals to convey off-season water for winter storage is unprecedented in the Magic Valley.

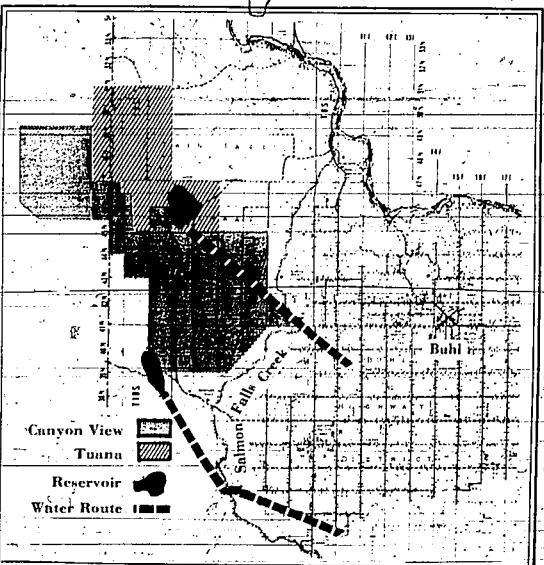

Conner said the Canyon View project should be producing crops by 1976 if a contract with the Twin Falls Canal Co. to convey water is signed. The Tuana land might be producing crops one year sooner, according to Tuana Mutual Irrigation Co. President Harry LaMoyné.

The Canyon View project involves about 60 people who have filed on 20,000 acres of federal Bureau of Land Management lands. They propose to take water between Sept. 15 and Dec. 15 for storage in the Blue Gulch Reservoir about seven miles northwest of Castleford. The water would be fed through the Twin Falls Canal Co.'s highline canal to its end about four miles south of Castleford, Conner said. At that point it would go through a retractor device measuring a maximum flow of 400 cubic feet per second.

The water would then be diverted to a new earthen canal winding five and one-half miles to the edge of the Salmon Falls Creek Canyon. With roads on each side the width of the canal and its right-of-way would be 100 feet.

Conner said that one and one-half miles of the canal would cut through irrigated farmlands. Near the edge of the Salmon Falls Creek Canyon, the water would lead into a seven-foot-wide pipe angling to the canyon's bottom 474 feet below the pipe would run underneath the creek and up the other side. Because the west side of the canyon is at a lower elevation than the east, no pumps would be needed to carry the water through this $902,000 aliphon.

From the canyon's far edge, another canal would carry the water through drylands about 1.5 miles to the proposed Blue Gulch Reservoir, capable of storing 60,000 acre feet. With the use of sprinkler irrigation this winter storage would supply water for one year's crops to 20,000 acres.

Projects would water 47 square miles

'Gate panel hearings cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Watergate committee Saturday abruptly postponed public hearings scheduled for the next two weeks to avoid prejudging the upcoming New York trial of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans. Committee chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., issued a 41-word statement saying the committee was putting off the scheduled three days of hearings next week and the week following. No new starting date was announced. President Nixon's millionaire friend Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo and a Howard Hughes aide G. "Bebe" Rebozo and a Howard Hughes aide of about $100,000 contribution from Hughes to President Nixon's campaign fund. Mitchell dropped a threatened antitrust action against Hughes in 1970 after part of the money was contributed. Mitchell and Stans have been indicted on charges connected with a $200,000 campaign contribution by financier Robert Vesco. Their trial is expected to begin in mid-February. Ervin's statement did not explain the possible connection between the trial and testimony Rebozo and others were to give the Watergate committee. But a committee spokesman said the decision was made on the basis of information Ervin obtained Friday from the U.S. attorney.

Jordan requests renewed spirit

By LORAYNE SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — America needs a renaissance of spirit, former US Sen. Len Jordan said here Friday night.

Speaking at the annual banquet of the Snake River Area Council at the Holiday Inn the former senator said, "America is sound but something is wrong in places where it should not be wrong. What we have among all the other crises is a crisis of spirit."

In a low key address which had no hint of partisanship, the longtime public official who served as Idaho governor prior to going to Congress, stressed the "almost impossible pressures" of the office of US Senator.

Beginning with Abraham Lincoln's famed statement that "A house divided against itself cannot stand," Jordan traced the ever increasing "relentless pressures" of the presidency and how it has brought not only President Nixon, but the four previous presidents to either low points in popularity, abandonment of their political future, death or heart attack.

Truman's original popularity sank so low, despite his achievement of the Marshall plan and action to keep Greece from going communist, that he was not re-elected in 1952.

The speaker told of his association with former President Eisenhower who suffered a heart attack in his office, and recalled the tragedy of President Kennedy who "started with great vigor and high promise" only to be struck down by an assassin's bullet 1,000 days later.

Likewise Lyndon Johnson, who won the presidency by a landslide in 1964, sunk so low in popularity he did not even attend "his own convention in 1968," Jordan said.

Nixon's first term also held high promise, the former Republican senator said, citing the President's almost "accomplishments in disengaging the nation from Vietnam involvement and reopening lines of communication to China as well as accommodation with Russia.

The speaker also cited the assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy and the wounding of Gov. Wallace, as part of the "terrible dangers" imposed on those who seek the high office.

"We must do something to protect the presidency," he said. "We must do almost impossible for anyone to serve there."

Jordan closed with an appeal to "give the President the constitutional prerogative of being considered innocent until proven guilty" which, he said, "we demand for the least of any of us."

"These are serious times and I don't see any light at the end of the tunnel," he said.

After the banquet when further questioned on the Watergate scandal, the longtime Republican said, "I'm not sure either Nixon hit or got off his back — and get on with the business of the country."

Service recognized

5 area scouters receive top award

TWIN FALLS — Five Magic Valley community leaders who have worked in the Scouting program for many years, received the coveted silver beaver or silver fawn award Friday night.

Honored at the Snake River Area Council's 49th annual banquet at the Holiday Inn were Lewis K. Dille, Burley; Valdo Gray, Gooding; John Woodbury, Halley; Gerald M. Gehrke, Wendell, and Carolyn V. Cleverly, Burley. George Haney, Twin Falls, who was out of town on business, will be presented the award when he returns.

The presentation of the awards, the highest a local council can bestow on volunteer Scouters, climaxed a smoothly run two-hour program which included an address by former US Sen. Len Jordan and recognition of many other men who aid the Scouting program in the eight-county area. Nearly 300 persons attended.

Key leader awards, given to outstanding leaders within the various districts of the council, were presented by Robert Day, Twin Falls, council commissioner.

Recipients include Arriel Green, Twin Falls, Falls District; Ray Helma, Burley, Cassia District; Dick Goelsch, Jerome, Northside District; Joseph Ivie, Bellevue, Wood River District, and Dale Butler, Rupert, Minidoka District.

Darl S. Glead, Scout executive, presented plaques to three Scouters who worked with the Jamboree troops attending the national Scout meet at Farragut last summer. They were Bob Roe, of the Knoll Grange troop who served as Scoutmaster for the Jamboree troop; Dick Sterling, Twin Falls, assistant scoutmaster, and Fred Locke, Gooding, as council training coordinator for the jamboree, which was attended by 179 boys from the Snake River council.

Glead also noted that "the man who is a heartbeat away from the Presidency is an Eagle Scout."

C. P. (Coly) Parrish, council president, was given a special plaque in appreciation for his work as president the past two years.

In his annual report Parrish said there are 271 units within the council, 10 over the goal and the number of boys earning Eagle rank tripled in 1973, climbing from 62 in 1972 to 386. He said the fact that Dec. 31 was the deadline for attaining the rank under the old requirements undoubtedly contributed to the record.

He presented special awards to Jack Muldoon, Twin Falls, council special events chairman, who served as master of ceremonies, and Dr. Terry Smith, Twin Falls, chairman of the Jamboree committee.

The silver beaver award ceremony was conducted by James S. Kinney, national council representative, assisted by Blaine L. Shaffer, program director at the Twin Falls Scout office. Taped commentary was given on highlights of the recipients' work.

Dille is a veteran of 23 years.

In Scouting, having been an active adult Scouter since becoming a Scoutmaster in Jerome in 1950, Gray, a former Gooding City councilman, has served 31 years on the committee of troop 33. Woodbury has served as district chairman and Order of the Arrow chapter advisor as well as other district posts and Gehrke, who has been on the area council executive board for 12 years, also has been council vice president. Haney has been a scout for 16 years, and currently is chairman of the Falls district.

Mrs. Cleverly has been a den mother, trainer, Roundtable leader and currently is on the Cassia district Club Scout committee.

Diane Hopperstead Ronn presented vocal selections accompanying herself on the guitar and "to the group" in singing. Rev. Albert Allen led the invocation. Troop 65, Twin Falls Christian Church, had the opening and closing ceremony.

LOSE A POUND A DAY AND MORE Vitamin 'E' Discovery Offers Fast Weight Loss

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of easy weight loss while still eating almost as much as you want.

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon & eggs and still lose weight.

Obtainable (candy-free) vitamin E tablets, as used in the diet plan, contain a new scientific combination of ingredients that quickly curbs and controls the appetite, while also giving the wonderful benefits of Vitamin E which is so essential to good health.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical test, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein "will double the speed of fat utilization" — with the use of Vitamin E.

E-DIET AVAILABLE

To get a copy of this highly successful diet and E-Tablets, send $5.00 for 10 day supply or $7.00 for 30 day supply to: Vita-E Diet, Dept. G-9, 31025 Burbank Bl., North Hollywood, Cal. 91601. (Unconditional money-back guarantee if not satisfied).

Farmers also need fuel for railroad

The possibility that the Union Pacific Railroad may cut railroad service to rural areas of the Magic Valley provides a classic example of confused priorities in dealing with potential energy shortages.

Clearly, the railroad's right hand is doing what the government's left hand is doing. One of the cornerstones of the Nixon Administration's energy crisis policy has been to provide enough fuel to meet farm needs. Not only do Americans need to eat, but surplus production provides the foreign exchange dollars which buys expensive foreign oil.

But consider the railroad's survey in the Magic Valley. Apparently the railroad may decide to curtail rural service if it doesn't get enough fuel. The assumption on the Railroad's part is that its fuel supply may be cut on agricultural-service routes.

If so, local farmers could face a remarkable situation in which they are given enough fuel to run their tractors and trucks, but deprived of a way to get their crops of market because of fuel cuts to the railroad.

Railroad officials blithely say farmers can use trucks to haul produce to seacoast markets. What the rail officials do not say, however, is truck haulage of the same grain or potatoes would use far more fuel than if the same hauling job were done by the railroad.

The solution is simple enough. The government should assure the railroad there will be enough fuel to operate farm-service routes, in effect, giving hauling crops the same high priority as growing them.

Then the railroad should keep up its service to farmers. Once given fuel assurances railroad cutbacks would become suspect as not really being related to fuel shortages at all.

Facts needed

It seems nearly each time a Magic Valley county approves its tentative budget for next year someone mentions a variation of the same theme. It goes something like this: "Our budget is this big, not counting Federal Revenue Sharing money."

It is doubtful any county official is trying to confuse his constituency, but that is just what happens.

A budget has two basic parts. One part says how much money will be spent in various categories. The other part says where the money comes from.

The "budget, except for revenue sharing," remark confuses because it mixes up talk of the spending side with talk of the money-raising side.

Worse, it suggests some spending is "free" while other spending is costly, coming from taxes. Really, all categories come from taxes.

A second often-heard comment at budget time is a refrain that sounds like this: "We're increasing spending but not taxes."

What is usually meant by the person making such a statement is that local tax levies will not rise. What is not said is that the extra spending came from somewhere.

Usually it comes from additional local taxes raised even with a stable mill levy — through assessment ratios, higher assessments and new property joining the tax rolls. Additionally, extra money usually comes from federal and state sources.

It clearly is confusing to talk of higher spending but stable taxes. That money spent came from taxpayers somewhere.

What each citizen really needs to know at budget time is simply stated:

1. How much is the county spending on what projects. How does this compare with previous years.
2. Where is the money coming from. How much is from federal sources, how much from state sources. Most important to taxpayers at the local level, how much is coming from local taxes. How do these compare with earlier years.

Magic Valley citizens should be told the answers to these questions, without rhetorical camouflage.

"All right, boys and girls, get out your electronic calculators - it's time for math!"

Henry can't seem to escape 'finger man' past

(c) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — Even as secretary of state Henry A. Kissinger can't seem to escape his ambiguous past as a finger man for FBI wiretaps.

His role in plugging suspected news leaks is recalled by the announced retirement of Lt. Gen. Robert Pursley, 46, who served as a confidential military aide to three defense secretaries and has commanded U.S. Forces in Japan since 1972.

Pursley, then a colonel, had his telephone tapped in early May, 1969, for a brief time and again in May, 1970, while he was acting as an assistant to Melvin R. Laird, then secretary of defense. Pursley served in a similar capacity with Laird's immediate predecessors, Clark Clifford and Robert McNamara.

Laird said in a recent interview that the tap on Pursley's phone was "perhaps on a list that Dr. Kissinger had suggested to the FBI."

Laird, who is himself retiring as presidential counselor, said he was not aware at the time that Pursley's phone was tapped and the wiretap was removed "after about two years." Laird said he was "disappointed" when he learned of the wiretap. But apparently he made no special protest either to President Nixon or to Kissinger.

A series of published accounts recently identified the White House "plumbers" as the agents who discovered that military liaison personnel on Kissinger's National Security Council staff in the White House had delivered unauthorized documents and data to the joint chiefs of staff. Adm. Thomas Moorer, JCS chairman, has minimized the material as "useless" and claimed he was fully aware of what he needed to know about NSC staff activity.

Kissinger has claimed he did not know a former aide, David Young, was involved with the "plumbers."

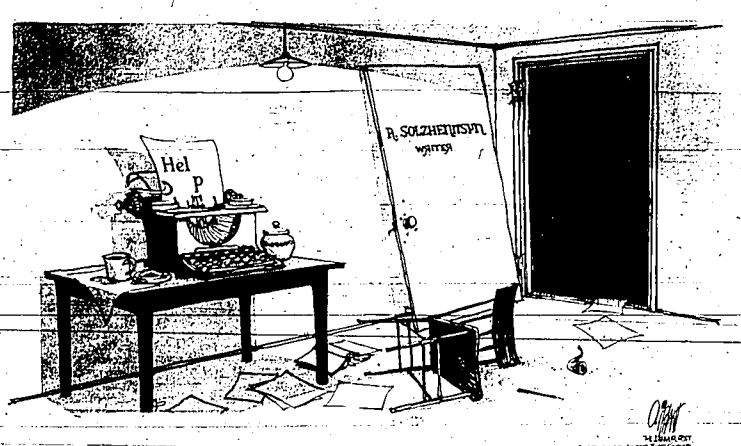

The "plumbers" were created by the President to investigate and prevent news leaks, but as testimony before the Senate Watergate committee revealed, they engaged in the break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

At the time of the confirmation hearings to be secretary of state, Kissinger's role in the wiretapping episodes between 1969 and Feb. 10, 1971, when the taps were reportedly removed, was explored.

When Kissinger's involvement in White House wiretapping ventures was first disclosed last May, he said he thought "it was my duty" to safeguard sensitive national security material from leaking to the media. He said he could not remember precisely why he supplied names in early 1969, except for concern over news accounts of the shooting down of an electrical spy plane over North Korea.

Laird said he was not aware of why Pursley's phone was tapped.

Other sources here speculate Pursley was tapped as well as his associations with Clifford and McNamara as well as Laird.

Only 1 way to lose job

WASHINGTON — Geir McCarthy, who more or less ran for President in 1968 and '72, does have a point.

The former Senator from Minnesota thinks we should punish naughty Presidents by repealing the constitutional two-term limit and "say a President has to keep running."

McCarthy always keeps looking close to check, so he may have been kidding when a lecture delivered to a group of reporters and students. But I for one will take the proposal under advisement, if only as a device for sparing the people of America the trauma and agony — and boredom — of another Watergate scandal.

The two-term amendment never makes sense. It was simply a right hook to Franklin D. Roosevelt did not get to serve third and fourth terms in the White House by executive fiat but by vote of the people.

ANDREW TULLY

Anyway, although McCarthy didn't say so, the two-term limit could be an awkward temptation for President ending with his second term.

That two-term limit can work both ways. In a sense, it must be a relief for a President to know he can't run for a third time. Now, at least, he can give the back of his hand to Congress, the media and, for that matter, to the voters who showed their disrespect by refusing to reelect him unanimously.

Surveying the damage done to their careers by Watergate et al., Republican members of Congress up for reelection this year might be interested in revisiting the two-term thing. The fact that all the polls show Richard Nixon's popularity at all the same low doesn't hurt him except where his feelings are. And although everybody likes to be loved, I suspect that in his secret heart Nixon is not all that upset about the polls.

But Nixon is a Republican President and the voters' tendency has always been to take it out on all party officeholders when "a national administration is in trouble. Some GOP members of Congress have even taken that kind of handwringing on the wall and decided not to run again. Others are in serious trouble. Democrats who ordinarily could not be elected god catcher are gleefully pounding the Congressional campaign trail.

McCarthy says a President shouldn't even be allowed to resign. Says it's against the law, because Nixon was elected by the people to serve a full term. Instead, McCarthy wishes Nixon could be forced to run for reelection and be beaten. "His idea seems to be that it is the people who should heap disgrace on Nixon, not the Congress."

Republicans in Congress might regard such an eventually with considerable skepticism. Some 1976 what they want most is a Presidential nominee — preferably from some desert island of Hawaii — who can go around asking the voters: "Watergate who?"

Thought for today

Herbert Hoover, 31st president of the United States, said, "Older men declare war. But it is youth that must fight and die."

Truth in labeling may be good idea

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — One of Fred Allen's radio characters was an amnesiac who kept trying to remember who he was by the process of elimination: "I don't carry an umbrella," he would muse, "so I can't be Neville Chamberlain."

Few of us at that time caught Allen's subtle sociopolitical message — that people tend to identify themselves in terms of what they are not. Thus, many of us apply political labels like "liberal" or "conservative" to others, resisting the application of either label to ourselves, or permitting only a sister-kissing label like "moderate."

Because the best way to sell candidates is to attack the opposition, even people who accept the label "conservative" define it in terms of what they are against: coddling criminals, raising taxes, or what have you.

Rarely do conservatives define their label in terms of what they are for, and for a good reason: a fundamental split is built into conservatism.

One side of conservatism emphasizes traditionalism, permanent moral values, respect for institutions and order in society. The other side stresses libertarianism, individuality, and holds personal freedom to be the great value.

These two sides of conservatism will agree on the need for self-reliance, diversity and for halting the growth of big government and will feel comfortable sailing forth together against the centralization of power usually urged by their common adversary, the liberal.

But the two sides of conservatism will tear up the turf in doctrinal battles against each other: most traditionalists take positions against present-day drug usage and abortion while many libertarians argue that those are matters for the individual to decide.

Might it not be useful for conservatives to open up their "movement," to recognize conflicting causes within it, and encourage inwardly the same kind of ideological diversity it espouses outwardly?

Labels could then cease to be onerous or fuzzy. "Libertarian conservatives" would then be able to gauge what they held in common with "Great Society disillusioners" and Mallhusians could dance with Marcussians.

My own label? I'm working on that, by identifying and eliminating alternatives. Conservative traditionalism is not for me, nor are Galahathian liberalism, New Federalism with an underpinning of libertarianism has its attractions.

Sometimes I like to carry an umbrella. Maybe I'm Neville Chamberlain.

Checks disappear next

Do you pay your bills by check? Yes? Well, the day is not far off when you will not do that way. The trend is now away from check payments and toward electronic payments.

There is a good reason for the anticipated change. Mr. Spectator found out. Last year (1973) individuals and institutions wrote more than 25 billion checks, against $1 billion accounts with balances aggregating $19 billion.

More importantly, with volume increasing by 7 per cent annually, the total could double within a decade — and in dollar terms, the total is projected to rise one-half times in just a half-decade.

MR. SPECTATOR

There have been, of course, improvements in the methods of handling checks. The most recent has been the development of a nationwide network of facilities for the overnight processing and settlement of checks.

There are now nearly 50 regional check processing centers in operation.

And right here in Lewin Falls one of two airplanes land at Joslin Field each day to rush local checks to the Boise processing center.

But all this is said for some merchants. There is too much speed involved to get that check cashed and when electronics enters into the thing, without any checks at all, it will be more speedy.

The sad part? No longer will the merchant be able to write a check and anticipate it will take four to eight days to "clear," so he can get enough money in his account to cover it. He had better have the amount "in" before he sends the check (or electronic impulse) "out" or he will be in deep trouble.

ANOTHER RECORD

Hughes Aircraft officials tell us that the airline flow more passengers more miles in 1973 than in any year in history. The passenger total reached 3,365,000. The miles they flew was just shy of 1,250,000,000.

At the same time it was disclosed the average load factor (percentage of seats filled) achieved an all-time annual high of 51.3 per cent. Which all proves that regardless of the records being set there are still a lot of airline seats left for people to sit in.

TODAY'S CHUCKLE

Once there was an absent-minded man who found himself holding the automobile door open for his wife when nobody was even looking.

PROGRESS

See by the paper where widening of Blue Lake's beach is coming our way. "I will go from four to five lanes from the city limit clear down to Washington School. Lovely, lovely, lovely — but Mayor Winston Jones says it will be three or four years to completion even after it starts. It will all end up being beautiful, but good Lord — more torn up streets for more years."

HANG THE ENERGY CRISIS — KANG THE LIGHTS BURNING

To combat energy crisis, try these programs

(c) New York Times Service
Here are a few programs the government would be promoting rigorously if it seriously believed in the energy crisis:

(1) Bundling revival: This early New England custom permitted a variety of people, especially sweaters, to sleep in the same bed while fully clothed. A campaign urging people to bundle with their car pool could concentrate enough body heat in American beds to save 200,000 barrels of heating oil per night.

(2) Beds over saving time: Does anybody really know why we switched to daylight saving time? It transferred an hour of winter darkness from pleasant evening to dreary morning. We light the candle just as long, but now we curse the darkness, too. This change makes sense only if the government makes everybody stay in bed an hour longer.

(3) Gas-Pump tax audit: The government's 10-gallon-check limit should be abandoned. A sense of normality must be restored at the filling station. The present system converts the gas tank of the American family car into a hoarding place for vast gasoline surpluses.

This will be easily stopped if Internal Revenue assigns every filling station, say, a five-cent daily notice to be issued to gasoline buyers. — These notices would say: "Congratulations! A computerized random-distribution process has selected you for special tax audit by the Internal Revenue Service. You will appear at the examination chamber at dawn tomorrow with enough clothes for a three-day stay. Next-of-kin must not be notified of your whereabouts."

Soon, people without real need for gasoline will stop driving into every gasoline line in town, and filling stations will go back to keeping decent hours.

(4) Get the muscle out of the skies: There are now 105 "major-league" professional athletic teams. All are in almost constant flight to perform in a variety of widely scattered cities. The travel is of limited importance, since their games are staged largely for television audiences. It can be abolished, with a tremendous saving in jet fuel, by requiring that all professional games played for television be in one city.

All 105 teams would then relocate in a single urban center. All the games would be played right there on dozens of gridirons, courts, diamonds and rinks, before hundreds of television cameras relaying the various games to the appropriate market areas.

Night games would be ruled out. In a genuine energy crisis television would have to stop transmitting after 8 p.m. to discourage people from constantly opening and closing their refrigerator doors.

(5) No disposal: Los Angeles rests on an assumption of eternal oil. If the crisis is real, it must go: "The solution is cruel but workable: We will have Secretary of Agriculture Earl Buttz trade it to the Russians for a song."

Dollar regains power, not moment too soon

By NEA-London Economist News Service

The slightly dollar, top beast of the economic jungle has returned to azeritidy. It has happened not a moment too soon.

Open warfare threatens between the other animals, and American leadership is needed to save the free world from tearing itself apart. Whether it will be forthcoming, given President Nixon's commitment in the problems of Watergate, remains to be seen.

The troubles stem from a shift in the balance of economic power. For more than 20 years western Europe and Japan have prospered on plentiful dollars and cheap oil.

The oil powered the growth of industry (particularly in Japan), and dollars in profusion made easy markets for the products. The economies of Japan, Germany, France—and Italy—emerged from postwar shambles geared to oil and exporting.

While they have prospered, the rich Anglo-Saxons and the poor Arabs and Afro-Asians, on whose life this prosperity depended, have grown relatively poorer. This could not last.

The supply of dollars was bound to dry up when America could no longer run deficits with impunity. This has been a slow process, but it is nearing completion. America's return to a trade surplus.

In contrast, the end of cheap oil was abrupt because it was political. Oil can be produced at only a fraction of the cost of coal. The oil-producing nations, as a group, are poor while the main oil consumers are rich.

Yet because oil wealth was concentrated in the hands of a few low-population countries, such as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, with more money than they could spend, the rich consumers have been allowed to take the lion's share of the economic rent from oil's cheapness. Many industrial countries took this for granted.

They have only themselves to blame for the consequences, although it is a misfortune for everybody that they have come so abruptly.

It is easy to see how the suddenness of the readjustment now could lead to another world slump. Higher oil prices since October, costing industrial countries up to $50 billion a year, will have the same demand-deflationary effect as a comparable increase in domestic indirect taxation. Following the first price rise in October, most governments had the sense to resist further demand-deflation, despite increased cost inflation and trade disruption.

But none has had the courage to reflate when faced with the multibillion deficits that will be caused by the latest price increases.

Most of them argue that demand-reflation can do no good when output is constrained by a shortage of oil. Instead, a scramble to corner oil supplies has begun, with Japan, France and Britain taking the lead.

Each has its own special reasons for pursuing national self-interest:

Japan is overwhelmingly dependent on oil; France needs at least a 5 per cent annual growth to keep unemployment down; and Britain's industrial troubles rule out drastic aggressive trade policies will follow, as countries struggle to foot the oil bill. Japan has given notice of its intention by allowing the yen to devalue.

Only swift action can prevent this situation deteriorating into open trade and economic warfare. Collective action is likely to prove too slow, as the pressures on individual countries to do their own thing are too great. America is the only country which can either opt out or jump in to hold the ring.

There are three steps America could take:

Reflate its own domestic demand to ensure at least one prosperous market; offer substantial bilateral support, effectively recycling Arab money, to any country standing back from beggary; and launch an investment drive by American multinational corporations into the world's heavy capital goods industries.

Without such help, these industries may be crippled by a world slump in 1974-75, just before... they should face enormous demands both from energy investment and the industrialization of oil producers.

Consumers in industrial countries must ultimately foot the bill for higher oil prices, but that is no reason why output should be cut when the world faces the greatest period of industrial reconstruction since the post-war years.

Japan warned

(c) Chicago Daily News

TOKYO.—A top U.S. official has reminded the Japanese it would not be a good idea to run up another huge trade imbalance with the United States.

Assistant Secretary of State for East Asian Affairs Robert G. Ingersoll said Japanese leaders were aware of the "dangers" to U.S.-Japan relations in letting trade between the two countries get out of hand.

His warning came amid reports Japan is getting ready to launch another all-out export drive, with the United States as its chief target, to offset its vastly increased oil import bill, a result of the Arab oil squeeze.

Japan's auto industry already has geared up to exploit the increased American demand for small cars.

U.S.-Japan relations reached crisis proportion in 1972 when trade between the two countries soared to $4.2 billion in Japan's favor. Although official figures for 1973 are not yet in, it is estimated the U.S. deficit will drop to $1.4 billion.

Full report on Cassia presentation offered

Editor, Times-News:

Your paper gave a report of the Cassia County Commission meeting of January 14, 1974 and your reporter quoted my statements to the board, which I would like to comment on and give a full report to the people of Magic Valley. Your reporter did a fine job but I did not.

In 1972 we took the annual report of the monies received by the Idaho Veterans Affairs Commission and averaged all of the 44 counties in the state as to how much money was received per veteran in each of the 44 counties of the state.

This proved something very startling. Two counties in the state received $425.84 per veteran and $431.89 per veteran. We know that all veterans are of the same age group according to war era and all have basically suffered the same deterioration of health, because of their wartime service and that makes no difference where these veterans might live.

To determine what has been lost to the veterans and the economy of the state which affects every citizen of the state we used the county with $425.84 per veteran and this proves that losses to the economy of Idaho amounted to $31,173,407.

We are all interested in Magic Valley and we find that lost to the economy of this area was $6,036,595.77.

With 17 army veterans in the area, this is an average of $89.05 per veteran against the state average of $120.99 per veteran.

We do not feel that the citizens of this area will take kindly to this loss to the economy when this is brought to light. We cannot blame county commissioners for this until such time as these facts are brought to light and we find some commissioners are concerned and others are not.

One commissioner went so far as to state in a letter to the editor that these figures mean nothing and if this were true why do these boards keep minutes of their meetings because this official has stated that these records mean nothing.

Upon research we find that the Idaho code has two laws 65-601 and 65-602 and one is very strong and the other very loose. Yet nearly everyone in Magic Valley understands farming and every good farmer finds that money spent on fertilizer pays much more than the cost of the fertilizer. Therefore the cost of good trained service officers will bring many more dollars into our economy than the cost of these service officers. It is our prayer that the officials concerned will in 1974 correct this situation in the Magic Valley and the economy of the area will be greatly improved.

Floating franc severe blow

By LEONARD SILK

(c) New York Times Service

NEW YORK — What does the French decision to float the franc independently mean for the future of the European economic community? And what impact will it have on the world monetary system?

France's action was a severe blow to the Common Market because it unilaterally broke the European monetary agreement solemnly entered into by heads of government at the Hague summit of October, 1973, called by France's President Pompidou himself.

These two meetings set a deadline of Dec. 31, 1980, for achievement of full European economic and monetary union. Creation of the monetary "snake" — the linking together of Common Market currencies with fixed exchange rates which linkage floats more or less as a unit in foreign exchange markets — was regarded as a crucial step in that direction.

The snake itself now involves only the currencies of West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg and Denmark, as well as of Norway and Sweden, which are not Common Market members.

The West Germans speak of keeping the snake alive in hopes that the French will rejoin it. Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing of France speaks of floating for only six months. The West Germans had even offered Paris a $3 billion loan to support the franc — which the French refused. The Common Market has always been regarded in Bonn — and in Paris — as most importantly a French-German union. Bonn is fearful of being isolated in Europe, so close to the Russian bear.

What remains of the snake today, then is really a Deutschmark bloc, to which the Benelux — and Scandinavian — currencies — are closely tied. Spain, linked more closely with the French franc; on Tuesday floated her peseta. Concomitantly, France and the other Common Market countries, Britain, Ireland and Italy, will one day be part of an exchange-rate union but it is hard to see when, after this latest failure.

Last weekend France did not work to see whether it would be possible to walk to a joint European devaluation, or downward float in relation to the dollar and other currencies — it just cut the franc loose.

Paris was afraid of losing the pile of gold and other chips she had built up by running balance-of-payments surpluses.

The French float, assuming it staves off a run on the franc without generating competitive devaluations, could prove — especially to France itself, the chief ideological champion of fixed rates — that floating is not necessarily a disaster and, with agreed rules, can constitute the basis for a seaworthy international monetary system.

Single stand on abortion

Editor, Times-News:

In reference to Mr. Spectator's remarks on abortion in Sunday's Times-News.

If someone held a loaded pistol with a hair trigger to Mr. Spectator's head, Mr. Spectator would yell murder and plead for mercy — yet abortion of an unborn helpless child is no less murder.

It's unfortunate that Mr. Spectator didn't inherit his mother's traits and human qualities; evidently she didn't believe in abortion or he wouldn't be here to make asinine remarks.

God said it all against abortion when He said "Thou Shalt Not Kill."

Same men control both US political parties

Editor, Times-News:

For many years it has been said that our national politics is divided into two main groups, Democrats and Republicans, both controlled by the same men behind the scenes.

Sunday, the Twin Falls Republican Central Committee published the letter of Otto E. Passman, a Democratic Congressman, again substantiating this fact as he enumerates all questionable actions of President Nixon.

Mr. Passman attempted to water down the unlawful activities of the Republicans connected with Watergate by exposing the unlawful activities of the Democrats in the Kennedy-Nixon election in 1960, and the Johnson-Billy Sol Estes and Johnson-Bobby Baker affairs.

What he is attempting to say is that one evil justifies another and that since every one is doing it it isn't so bad.

Mr. Nixon is presented by Mr. Passman as one of the really great Presidents because he got us out of Viet Nam. He forgot to discuss peace at any price, or no peace at all.

Some of our most able military leaders, who since World War II were forced into retirement to allow room for the puppets to assume command, stated that the military would have been brought to an end militarily within six weeks at any time.

As it now stands that country is still at war and American non-involvement was bought with a commitment of billions of dollars to be given those people. Money we do not have.

Our Supreme courts and law and order are supposed to have been brought back to decency by President Nixon. Isn't it odd that those men who now are in the Supreme Court continue to coddle the criminal and harass the law-abiding citizen.

Unrestricted abortion has been one of the great blessings this body has forced upon America under Nixon. Current crimes have never been higher, and never has there been greater threats to family life than now.

Can we praise any president who abuses the Republic of China, which has been a faithful friend, and embrace on their terms, the tyrants of Communist China and Russia? These monsters know no loyalty to anyone and it has been proven that every treaty and arrangement they have ever made has been to further their quest for world conquest.

President Nixon's wheat and food arrangement has kept them from collapse with give-away prices and terms which will never be paid. When will they pay the past billions loaned them?

Mr. Passman would have you believe that President Nixon and the Republicans have returned America to a state of financial security.

Isn't it interesting that under President Nixon we acquired more national debt in four years than both liberal Johnson and Kennedy stacked up together during both their terms in office? No group of legislators and no President has ever lived more wastefully and done more to bring America closer to total financial collapse than President Nixon, and our present Congress, both Republican and Democratic.

What is the answer to these problems? All elected officials must repent of wrong doings. They must restore confidence by displaying integrity and common sense in law making. People must be honest with themselves and weed out politicians who say one thing and do another.

We must discard the evil social programs and shameful handling of finances which is now going on. It is time that we turn to less influential candidates, ones who are honest, who support the Constitution, and who will not give away America just to gain personal power and money.

Our legislators must learn that there is also the word "NO" in the English language. The American Party stands for the best of the need for the return to patriotism and sensible government.

Poll shows Nixon safe in ouster vote

WASHINGTON (UPI)—One in eight congressmen now is ready to vote to impeach President Nixon and almost twice as many would like to see him resign.

But these members of the House who have already reached the decision that Nixon must leave office are still a small minority.

A United Press International survey, conducted late last week, shows more House members currently oppose impeachment or resignation than favor Nixon's removal from office.

But the largest number, by far, are undecided on whether Nixon should be impeached and feel the question of resignation is the President's to answer, not theirs.

UPI reached 402 of the 431 congressmen. All participation in the survey on resignation and 339 replied on the issue of impeachment.

The survey showed that 55 now favor Nixon's impeachment; 87 do not; 182 are undecided; and 74 declined to comment.

The poll disclosed that 89 favor resignation; 139 do not; 48 are undecided; and 126 declined comment.

The survey was taken shortly after Congress returned from a month-long recess and as the House Judiciary Committee begins its impeachment inquiry in earnest.

Almost all of those who favor impeachment and most of those who want Nixon to resign are Democrats. But the responses crossed geographical lines with similar answers from all sections of the country.

Those willing to state their views were criticized by Rep. John F. Hunt, Jr., N.J.

"Any congressman who expresses himself either against impeachment or for impeachment until all the information has been produced before the Judiciary Committee should be disqualified from voting on impeachment on the floor," Hunt said.

"Any congressman who expresses himself either against impeachment or for impeachment until all the information has been produced before the Judiciary Committee should be disqualified from voting on impeachment on the floor," Hunt said.

"They are obviously biased one way or another even before they hear the testimony. Everyone is entitled to a fair trial, even a rapist or a murderer."

Many of those classifying themselves as undecided or those who did not want to comment sided with Hunt, but without criticizing their more outspoken colleagues.

Israel, Syria duel

By United Press International

Israel and Syria engaged in artillery duels Saturday on the Golan Heights cease-fire lines while Israeli troop withdrawals continued on the Suez front, their pace temporarily slackened by the Jewish Sabbath.

Syria reported an initial clash in which it fired artillery shells at Israeli units engaged in construction work, destroying several items of equipment and inflicting "a number of casualties on the enemy," it said.

Two Israeli artillery batteries were put on alert in a later 40-minute duel in which Israel opened fire first.

The Israeli military command reported three hours of intermittent Syrian artillery barrages in which three Israeli soldiers were wounded. Israel said it returned the fire.

An Israeli field reporter in the Sinai said that Israeli troops and equipment pulling out of the Suez Canal's west bank were being redeployed along a new line ranging from Balouza on the Mediterranean to Ras Masala on the Gulf of Suez.

Some withdrawals, he said, were carried out by naval vessels headed out of the Gulf in the direction of Sharm el Sheikh on the peninsula's southern tip.

Orders have been given to leave some captured Egyptian missile bases and their subterranean bunkers untouched, the reporter said, in accordance with an agreement reached Thursday by Israeli and Egyptian generals.

The artillery clashes were the first of any consequence on the northern cease-fire lines since Egypt and Israel signed their troop disengagement pact on Jan. 18.

LONDON (UPI) — Coal miners leaders served notice Saturday they will plunge Britain into a crippling national mines shutdown in two weeks and will impose a total power blockade on the country.

Railroad engineers also threatened to step up road disrupting beginning Monday.

Engineering Union chief Hugh Scallan said three million engineering workers will launch a slowdown to back a 30 per cent pay boost demand as soon as the mine conflict ends.

Other unions, including newspaper printers and unions representing 52,000 British Ford Motor Company workers, joined in with demands far exceeding the government's 12-15 per cent anti-inflation ceiling.

WASHINGTON — The White House acknowledged Friday that President Nixon met last May with Richard G. Danner, a Las Vegas gambler who delivered a $100,000 payment in 1970 from Howard T. Hughes to Charles G. Rebozo, Nixon's close friend.

In response to questions about reports of the meeting, Gerald L. Warren, the deputy White House press secretary, characterized it as a "casualty" visit of five or 10 minutes by Danner to the President's Camp David, Md., retreat.

Warren said the brief conversation had not touched on the Hughes money, a subject that Warren has previously maintained that Nixon and Danner never discussed.

The White House did not immediately comment on a related report in the New York Times Friday that Danner had told the Senate Watergate Committee of an earlier meeting between himself and the President at Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., estate, just after Danner says he passed part of the Hughes money to Rebozo, who has said that he

Truckers erupt

By United Press International

Shots were fired at three trucks, thousands of roofing nails were scattered on at least five highways and two fire-bombs were seized Saturday in strikes by dissident truckers refusing to wait for a nationwide shutdown by Independent operators.

A federal judge Saturday ordered truckers to quit using citizen band radios to keep track of vehicles carrying milk near Youngstown, Ohio, one of the hot spots in the citydown by drivers protesting high fuel prices and a lid on freight rates.

A coalition of trucking organizations has scheduled a nationwide shutdown to begin next Thursday.

Authorities said that violence in the strike by hundreds of drivers in Ohio was mounting. In Pennsylvania, where the firebombs were seized in the third day of a partial shutdown, police said they received more complaints from truckers that harassment by strikers had been stepped up.

A Lawson's milk truck was hit by gunfire three times early Saturday as it traveled on Interstate 76 at Rootstown in the Akron area. There were no injuries.

Hughes eludes court warrant

(c) N.Y. Times Service

RENO, Nev. — Lawyers for Howard R. Hughes successfully forestalled Friday the issuance of a bench warrant for their billionaire client at least until Wednesday.

Hughes, who has not appeared in public for more than two decades, was due in federal district court here Friday to be arraigned on criminal charges of stock manipulation, conspiracy and wire fraud. The charges, which related to Hughes's purchase of Air West in 1968, were contained in a federal grand jury indictment of Ec. 27.

The reclusive Hughes, as expected, did not appear in court, but remained in retreat in the Bahamas. Nor were any of his lawyers in court acting as his official representative, Judge Bruce Thompson ruled, because none had submitted a signed authorization from Hughes.

US Attorney W. Devoe Heaton, noting that attempts to serve Hughes with a subpoena had been unsuccessful, asked that a bench warrant be issued. Moses Lasky, a San Francisco attorney who proposes to represent Hughes, objected. He asserted that there was no need for a warrant until Thompson ruled on his motion that the indictment be dismissed.

Gem highway $ may drop

Guaranteed fuel asked

Lenaghan blasts 'vested interests'

BY DAVID ESPINO
T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Idaho is faced with a decline in highway money for the next fiscal year because of lower fuel consumption, according to state highway officials.

Carl Moore, chairman of the Board of Highway Directors, told legislative committee Friday the drop in revenue for the next fiscal year from state sources could reach $8 million to $9 million. Of that, Moore told the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, $5 million to $6 million would have gone into highway construction projects.

Moore told members of the committee a two-and-a-half-cent increase in the state gas tax would bring revenues back to the initial projections. But he and other highway officials stopped when specifically asking for the increase from the present eight and a half cents per gallon.

Vic Richardson, state highway engineer, told the committee the state would give priority to "essential maintenance programs and to federal-aid construction programs to avoid the loss of federal funds. As for the state-funded program, Richardson said, they will be analyzed, priorities established, and, if necessary, some projects delayed."

One project that won't be delayed, however, is the construction of the bridge crossing at the American Falls dam. Some state projects have been delayed because of the urgent priority the bridge construction has been given, the highway official said. The cost of the project is $3.3 million.

Richardson also told committee members the Perrine-Bridge was under construction, with work expected to stretch out through part of the next fiscal year. In addition, the state is working on 16 miles of interstate highway south of Burley, widening the road to four-lane width, he said.

The proposed fiscal year budget for the Department of Highways for the year beginning July 1 includes $22.7 million, with $10.5 coming from state sources and $12.2 from the federal government. The remaining $1.2 million is from local units of government.

The current fiscal year budget is set at $25.35 million, with $50.35 coming from the federal government, nearly $10 million more than is anticipated for next year.

The fiscal 1975 program budget calls for $61.9 million to be spent on construction and $18 million on maintenance.

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Two Magic Valley legislators introduced a memorial in the House Friday asking that an area's fuel allocation remain unchanged even if a distributor goes out of business.

Reps. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, and J. Vard Chaburn, R-Blain, co-sponsored the memorial, asking that the Federal Energy Office and the US Congress "take cognizance" of problems that could result in an area lost part of its allocation.

"In no case shall the allocation of fuel made to an individual dealer leave the area he previously served without the dealer is able to remain in business," the memorial states.

Lenaghan, who also heads the State Office on Energy, said as long as Idahoans continued a policy of "prudent conservation" with heating fuels, there shouldn't be any serious problems. But he warned the situation was going to worsen "as far as gasoline is concerned."

Lenaghan was critical of the federal government for its handling of the energy crisis. The state office had been handling problems referred to it, Lenaghan said, but as soon as the staff adjusted to the authority it had under November regulations, the federal government changed the rules.

MV projects told

Bad roads cited

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The Idaho Department of Highways plans six construction projects in the Magic Valley area over the next 18 months, according to state officials.

Department spokesmen speaking before the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee Friday, outlined 23 construction projects involving federal aid scheduled for construction during the current fiscal year and during fiscal 1975.

The Magic Valley projects include:

- State Highway 21 east of Shoshone where a portion of gravel road will be paved;
- Widening US 93 between the new Perrine Bridge and the Interstate 80 connection to four lanes;
- Reconstruction of part of Addison Avenue in Twin Falls;
- Construction of the interstate north of Bliss "in the near future";
- Construction of the interstate east of Glenns Ferry;
- Work on a seven-mile stretch of State Highway 68 north of Mountain Home, currently in "very deficient" condition.

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Only one-third of the state's 5,000 miles of highways rates as "adequate" according to the Department of Highways.

Department officials told the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee Friday at current federal aid funding levels, slightly less than one-half of the deficient sections could be improved over the next 20 years.

Therefore if remaining deficient state highways are to receive any improvements whatsoever — even modest improvements — the funding must come from state sources, according to material the department prepared.

The material also notes a "decreasing emphasis" by the federal government on the interstate highway construction program. A reduction of about $10 million dollars is expected for the next fiscal year, which will push the completion date of the state's interstate roadway into the middle of the next decade.

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Sen. Robert Saxvik, D-Burley, appended to follow senators not to respond publicly each time a newspaper editorial appears they disagree with.

The Burley radio station operator said in a floor speech he often disagreed with editorials published — and cited two recent Times-News editorials as example.

"I see editorials in my home town paper that I could shoot out of a barrel as fast as I could, but I have faith in the public to sort these things out and figure out whether that fellow is really knowing what he is talking about. I know editorials are to influence public opinion but the public won't be fooled by erroneous editorial writing. I think we should take it on the chin."

Prior to Saxvik's remarks, Republicans had spoken out against an editorial that appeared in the Friday editions of the Idaho statesman. It criticized several Republicans sharply for their role in the confirmation hearings of Robert Lenaghan to the Public Utilities Commission.

Saxvik appeals: 'Stifle yourself'

Saxvik wryly said the Republicans should "welcome to the party." He mentioned a Times News editorial that appeared before the legislature convened blaming Gov. Cecil D. Andrus for lack of cooperation in the cancellation of the scheduled pre-session budget hearings of the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee.

"Well it's no secret," he said, "that the two chairmen of that committee are from Twin Falls County, home of the newspaper."

The second editorial, Saxvik, disagreed with criticized Andrus for his public school budget recommendations.

Saxvik says the editorial "goes on to tell how he's really drubbed it into education with his conservative-type appropriation recommendation in his budget message and then in the last paragraph says "the big spender." How contradictory, Saxvik said.

The editorial had complained the governor had asked too much spending increases while his overall budget was greatly increased.

A public hearing was called on the appointment last week and several representatives of regulated industry spoke out against the appointment.

In addition to the vested interests, Lenaghan said, "Some people would like to play politics and that's fair game." His remark was an apparent reference to the hearings that had been called.

Game control slapped by Yost

Legislative Log

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The Idaho Fish and Game Department has neglected to "keep in tune with the upland game bird situation in the Magic Valley," according to Sen. James Yost, R-Wendell.

Yost said Friday the department should make corrections in management of sport and natural birds. Yost also added his thanks to the commission for shortening the bag and season limit last year "even though they stated it wasn't their intention, but for the land owners."

The Wendell Republican said increased hunting pressure has resulted in a decrease in the number of birds. In addition, he said, the decline in overgrowth and cover due to improved farming methods has forced birds into brush lands and to seek refuge and nesting areas in agricultural areas.

The decline in cover, Yost said, has increased the danger to nest eggs from predators, a situation further complicated by federal restrictions on some effective methods of predator control.

Yost quoted fish and game director Joseph Greenley as claiming there was a "bust" in the annual hatch last year. But he said Greenley "wouldn't, or couldn't," give a specific reason of reasons for a poor production year — even though the spring weather was "ideal" for a hatch.

Election bill OK'd

Snags hit reorganization

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The Senate approved 2-1 Friday and sent to the House a measure designed to clear up any legal problems that might surround the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital bond election.

The measure says any elections in Idaho, including bond elections, may be conducted by means of vote machines or tally systems.

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, the floor sponsor, said bonding attorneys had raised questions about a bonding election conducted with the machines under current state law.

Barker told the Senate he didn't want to "see the bond election go down the drain because of technical problems."

Baron said in his arguments in committee his members owe a duty to the House and a higher duty to the public to make this information (the impact) accessible. The legislature's rule, he said, is "specific. I must appeal this to the House."

Snags hit reorganization

Rep. C. Wendell Miller, D-Idaho, Falls, told the committee, however, there was no fiscal-note required because there was no known fiscal impact of the four measures. Rep. James Elgin, R-Caldwell, argued the statements of purpose attached to the four bills were adequate, and advised the three objecting members to take their fight to the floor.

A vote not to print the measures, made by Barron, failed on a 63 vote; Barron then immediately made an appeal and set off an hour-long series of parliamentary maneuvers that ended in adjournment.

At one point, chairman George R. Danziger, R-Cambridge, declared a recess, jumped from his chair and rushed for the committee room exit. "We're getting into mighty deep waters," he said to a startled room, "I need some help."

Other recesses were called, and finally Danielson brought House Majority Leader H. Fred Koch into the committee as a parliamentarian. The dispute continued, however, until Danielson finally gave in to a motion by Lovless that the committee adjourn.

When the committee resumes its deliberations Monday at 8 a.m., Barron is expected to present his appeal.

The four bills before the committee included those dealing with the office of the secretary of state, a department of correction, a department of health and welfare (currently the Department of Environment and Community Services), and a board of examiners.

Baron said in his arguments in committee his members owe a duty to the House and a higher duty to the public to make this information (the impact) accessible. The legislature's rule, he said, is "specific. I must appeal this to the House."

Tuana and Canyon View, having invested in a multi-million dollar water conveyance system across the Salmon Falls Creek Canyon, and aware of several hundred thousand acres of potentially irrigable land on the west side of this canyon — will they be satisfied with a dry conveyance system during the summer months?

We're not only worried about protecting our water rights — we want to protect our water. There are many ways of reducing the quantity of our water without affecting our water right. Acts of governmental agencies, such as the Environmental Protection Agency restricting runoff, and new judicial interpretations can leave us with less water. It certainly would be in the interests of Tuana and Canyon View to promote these developments.

We are not against progress, and the proper development of our resources; but we do not think this will be the last chance developing the land west of Salmon Falls Creek. Hopefully, future proposals will be better. We earnestly believe that any water proposal entered into by the Twin Falls Canal Co. should be under the control of the Twin Falls Canal Co. from start to finish.

Our rights and freedom of operation of our canals may be in danger of being encroached upon. Why invite any future entanglement??

TF extension council elects

TWIN FALLS — Duane Hammeyster, Filer, will head the Twin Falls County Extension Advisory Council for 1974.

He was elected during the annual meeting Friday of the College of Southern Idaho by some 40 representatives of commodity groups, farm organizations and extension homestead and 4-H councils.

William Loughmiller, Tullister, outgoing president, conducted the meeting. Other new officers include Richard Kelley, Filer, vice president, and Mrs. Roy Jesser, Kimberly, replacing long time secretary, Mrs. Frank Southwick.

Patricia Kleinkopf, county home economist, reported on the demonstration club and council activities of the 4-H economics clubs and activities during 1973.

Work being undertaken to help low income families was reported by Lillian Dougherty, coordinator for the county extended food and nutrition educational program. She discussed the special 4-H club camp held for children of low income families last summer in the central Idaho camp.

In connection with this camp program, Mrs. Frank Southwick, Buhl 4-H leader and advisor for the 4-H Builders Club, said a major project for builders involved planning the financial needs, administration and fund raising activities to conduct the camp program.

Lynn Merrick, extension agricultural agent in charge of 4-H programs, said 1973 activities saw 700 4-H members complete 1,200 projects. He said efforts are being made to expand 4-H programs in the directions of older youngsters and urban membership.

Donald Youitz, extension agricultural agent and county staff chairman, said last year's farm production in the county was outstanding. Price trends, he said indicate about a $17-million increase for the year on beans and wheat alone.

Other reports included those of Blaine Lindford, district extension supervisor, and William Chancey, chairman of the county commission. Lindford reviewed the various extension programs and services in the 12 south-central Idaho counties of his district.

Chancey expressed appreciation to the extension staff and council on behalf of the commissioners including himself, William Wiseman and Merl E. Leonard.

A complete file of local organizations who have volunteered their assistance to the Hotline, is kept on hand in the hotline office so members can refer callers with technical questions or serious problems to someone trained in that specific field.

The board decided to revise and update the referral files and to provide in the new organization for their constant upkeep.

Dillon and Picania will keep in close contact with the Burley-Rupert Hotline for the next several months and return for several additional training sessions while the local hotline is completing its reorganization.

Local directors met with the state officials to discuss fund raising techniques. The Burley-Rupert Hotline is funded entirely through donations. Members said that "even paying the phone bill is a constant struggle."

Volunteers in the local group participated in an exercise designed to team them to listen and understand other people as well as define their own goals and values.

Training sessions are planned for all volunteers, and

Hospital 'watch dog' work explained

TWIN FALLS — Functions of the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Audit and Utilization Committee are to guarantee patients the utmost in medical care and yet keep individual medical records in complete confidence.

This was explained Friday by James Rosenbaum, hospital administrator, in outlining the hospital's compliance with Public Law 92-60. He said the audit and utilization committee is made up locally of doctors on the hospital medical staff. Only these doctors have access to the medical records in the committee procedure.

Rosenbaum said the law requires a review committee to "watch dog" all hospital care and handling of the various admissions is part of the 1972 Social Security amendment and was originally intended to protect those persons coming under the Social Security Act, but has been extended to cover all patients.

He said it is another way in which the medical profession, through its own efforts, continuously works to insure the best possible medical services in the community.

He explained the audit and utilization committee of professionals studies the method in which each case is admitted, diagnosed, managed and dismissed from the hospital.

Particularly the committee makes certain a patient is dismissed within the recommended period as national standards. If the patient is kept in the hospital longer than standards indicate, some special review of the case will result.

Studies by the committee are then presented in group categories by illness or disease only and without patient names to another committee known as the Joint Conference Committee.

Here the case studies are reviewed for general information, or for whatever procedural changes may be recommended. This committee, Rosenbaum said, consists of 13 members including himself, six members of the medical staff and six members of the hospital board of directors.

Value of the studies, the administrator said, is to point up any weaknesses or special trends in medical care or hospital procedure so corrections can be made before problems develop.

Rosenbaum said the committees have been functioning for some time but only recently did the law require hospital board minutes reflect the receipt of the reports and the progress of the program.

Station at SV seeks FM okay

HAILEY — Sun Valley Radio, Inc., owner of KSKI radio station, has applied for a Federal Communications Commission (FCC) license to operate a class A FM radio station.

According to Sun Valley Radio president Kent Frandsen if FCC approval is received the new multi-plex stereo FM station would transmit from the top of Bald Mountain on a frequency of 93.5 megahertz.

Frandsen said the corporation has immediate plans to about triple the size of the present KSKI main office located three miles north of Hailey. If the FM station is obtained, he said future plans may include adding an auxiliary broadcasting facility in the Sun Valley area.

The proposed FM station would operate from 6 a.m. to midnight and would basically cover the Wood-River Valley from Timmerman Hill north to the North Fork area.

Frandsen said the corporation is tabulating the results of a recent survey, which has been mailed to Blaine County residents to ascertain music and programming preferences for the proposed FM station.

He said about 30 per cent of the questionnaires have been returned which he termed as a "good response" because of the survey length. The proposed FM station's programming will be "influenced a great deal by the final results," he said.

The president said he also was reviewing several syndicated music services that are used in major metropolitan markets such as San Francisco and Los Angeles. He said these are "highly professional services" and have proven track records.

Local identity of the proposed FM station will be retained through blending the syndicated service with special programming, which would further reflect the survey results.

The special programming may include jazz, classical or big band music, he said.

TF couple held on drug charge

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls couple was arrested by the Twin Falls county and city drug control unit officers Friday night and charged with possession of a controlled substance with intent to manufacture.

Sheriff Paul Corder said Robert L. Collins, 31, and his wife, Jenene 24, were taken into custody at their home southwest of the city late Friday after search warrants were obtained and their home searched. He said a large quantity of marijuana seeds, stems and pipes, roach clips and other items were seized.

Collins was being held in county jail in lieu of $2,500 bond pending court arraignment Monday. Mrs. Collins was released on her own recognizance to care for the couple's small child.

Sheriff Corder said the arrests resulted from an investigation which has been underway the past three months.

Big cars safer than little ones

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A highway safety study says your chances of getting seriously injured or killed in a collision between two small cars are two times greater than if you are involved in a crash of two big cars.

A second study shows that Postmaster speaks to secretaries drivers of subcompact cars who use seatbelts. "Far and away the best protection is a seat belt in a full size and unbelted in full size and subcompact 1970-72 models.

Results of the likaste car study showed that "chances of injury and death increased with decreasing vehicle weight. Chances of severe injury and death increase especially rapidly in cars weighing less than 3,000 pounds," the study said.

The researchers "documented for the first time that the risk of severe injury and death is about twice as great when two smaller cars crash than when two larger cars crash."

In the study on belted and unbelted drivers, the researchers found:

"Overall the injury picture for belted drivers in subcompacts is almost identical to the situation for unbelted drivers of standard size cars."

TWIN FALLS — Lloyd Bert, Twin Falls postmaster, spoke on problems and improvements in the postal service for the Twin-Idaho Chapter of the National Secretaries Association.

A question period followed talk at the "Holiday" luncheon night.

Peggy Fields was initiated as an associate member. She is an instructor at College of Southern Idaho.

Plans were discussed for the "Community Services" program to be held in February and Secretaries met in April.

Mrs. Muriel Muth, secretary of Harry Brumbach, is chairman of Secretaries week activities.

MUCH BETTER IF THERE ARE NO DRAFTS

Whatever the winter temperature setting, you can make a drafty home much more comfortable by following these practical suggestions:

- 1 Weatherstrip doors and windows. Keep frosty breezes outside where they belong.
- 2 Caulk around window and door frames or any other opening which lets warm air out and cold air in.
- 3 If you don't have storm doors and double windows, use easy-to-install plastic sheets for weather protection.
- 4 Select insulation-type draperies or heavier materials. Close drapes against the cold, open them to the sun.

You can get insulation planning help without obligation at your local Idaho Power office.

17th century cure for litterbugs

MILLBORO, Va. (UPI)—Fearing their scenic little community was fast becoming an overzealous garbage pit, the Ruritan Club of Bath County looked to the 17th Century for a solution.

The 30 members of the club have unanimously endorsed a resolution asking that the wooden stocks used in colonial America be brought back as a punishment showing "righteous scorn and indignation" toward anyone littering the county with cans and bottles.

Ed Walters, chairman of the special committee on the problem, explained: "For years the Ruritanians have tried to educate the people and have helped clean up litter. But this year it seems the problem is as bad if not worse than ever before. A few members suggested that maybe the stocks might be considered cruel and unusual punishment," Walters said. "But maybe that's just what's needed to make people stop and realize what they're doing."

The Ruritanians spurred more mundane answers to litter such as recycling, increased policing and stiffer fines for the long-in-the-chek suggestion of reviving the use of stocks—wooden contraptions that bind a person's hands, ankles and neck into a slightly bent posture of humility and contrition.

"This is a rural county with sparse population," Walters said. "We've got mountains and streams and parks and some of it has been designated as scenic areas. But it's both the tourists and the locals who are causing all this litter trouble," he said. "To be honest most of it comes from the people who live here.

"One weekend we went out and picked up 24 bushels of trash—from just a 1.3-mile stretch of road. Picking up cans is a good experience spiritually but it doesn't give you a very good picture of your fellow man."

Marijuana may weaken defense

NEW YORK (UPI) — A group of Columbia University researchers today reported marijuana may weaken the body's defenses against disease by inhibiting division of the white blood cells that fight viruses.

...against legalizing the sale and use of marijuana. In a series of tests with two groups of subjects—one which smoked marijuana at least once a week and one which did not smoke it at all—Nahas' team said the cells' ability to divide—to reproduce—was 40 per cent less in regular marijuana smokers than in nonsmokers.

Pray solons take action on DST

By RICHARD CHARNOCK BOISE (UPI) — Whatever this second regular session of the 42nd Idaho Legislature decides to do about the controversial time question may be decided before Feb. 3.

on a year-around basis. To some, nothing could be worse. To others being out of step with the rest of the nation — and particularly neighbors like Utah — is the worst thing that could happen.

Nevertheless, whatever that ultimate decision is by the legislature those who live in Southern Idaho are in for it if the lawmakers dilly-dally around or make a decision and then change their minds.

So far this year, southern Idaho has gone from Mountain Standard to would you believe — Mountain "Non-Advanced" Time. If it goes to daylight and then back again, look out folks. You're on Mountain, You're Time.

New cartoon appears today in Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Andy Capp is a long-standing male chauvinist. Although he probably wouldn't know the meaning of the term, the cocky little Limey is an entertaining cartoon character. He'll make his appearance in the Times-News beginning Monday.

Andy and his long-suffering wife Florrie are the anchors of the widely-syndicated strip drawn by Briton Reggie Smythe. Smythe's creation appears in 28 nations and in 13 languages, and collected strips have been published in paperback book form as well.

Andy, a caricature based on the North England working man, was created by Smythe to aid in a circulation campaign for the London Daily Mirror, for which he was working in the years following World War II. Smythe moved to the newspaper from a "joke factory" — a job he wanted to support his wife Vera whom he wed after a long correspondence of eight years. Their correspondence began while Smythe was serving with the British Eighth Army in North Africa during World War II. Smythe is a veteran of 11 years with the British army, entering shortly before the war broke out.

Andy Capp is a left-handed, soccer loving, unemployed Limey, whose main interests are in helping his wife spend her paycheck, dodging honest work, and avoiding rent collectors. How he does it will entertain all his readers.

IRS revamps tax appeals system

(C) New York Times Service — NEW YORK — The Internal Revenue Service, in a major effort to make it easier and less expensive for the taxpayer to defend his tax deductions, is quietly revamping its tax-appeals system.

Starting around April 1, after new guidelines have been sent to all IRS offices, revenue agents at the district level in many such offices will be permitted for the first time to use their own judgment in settling small cases involving $2,500 or less.

Heretofore, district tax agents were compelled to best settlements with taxpayers on the facts alone. As an IRS spokesman put it, they had to proceed as if the IRS would win every single case. Now, however, district-level agents also will be permitted to consider the "hazards of litigation" in the event of an actual taxpayer suit. "If, in the view of the IRS agent, there was a possibility the government might lose in court, the agent would have the authority to decide in favor of the taxpayer."

In the present two-tier appeals system of the Internal Revenue Service, only appellate division officers have forced authority in resolving disputes on other than the merits of the case. This procedure, however, has been of limited use to small taxpayers, said Donald C. Alexander, commissioner of internal revenue, because there are only 38 appellate division offices in the entire country. In many instances, he said, the small taxpayer does not think it is worth his while to travel "several hundred miles" to appeal. District conferences, by contrast, are available in "many IRS offices," he said.

Bernard Barnett, national tax partner in the accounting firm of Seidman and Seidman here, said that many accounts favored the new IRS program. "It means you have a chance at the lowest level possible," Barnett said. "The lower the level, the better for the taxpayer normally."

He explained that appeal to higher levels could be lengthy and possibly result in the raising of "new issues." Moreover, he said, appeals to higher levels involve more professional assistance — and more expense: Accountants, for example, command as much as $50 to $75 an hour and more when they help taxpayers with the IRS.

When a taxpayer is unable to negotiate with a revenue agent at the district level, the taxpayer can appeal to either the district or the appellate level for review. Generally, at this point, the IRS will issue to the taxpayer a so-called "stay order," inviting him to take his dispute to a district conference. He then has 30 days to apply or remit the funds in dispute.

Taxpayers also may appeal directly to the IRS's appellate division in the form of a written protest, outlining the facts and why they feel the treasury agent is wrong. If there is no agreement at that level, taxpayers also have access to the United States Tax Court. But to appear there, taxpayers first must obtain an IRS letter of deficiency, spelling out the amount of taxes sought.

This letter, also called a "90-day notice," gives the taxpayer 90 days to remit or appeal to the tax court. Alexander contended that if taxpayers made more effective use of district level conferences "the number of cases going to the appellate division and the small claims division of the tax court could be measurably reduced."

"We reach agreement with the taxpayer on 70 per cent of the cases of $2,500 and under at the district conference level," a spokesman said. "In some cases, the taxpayer concedes he's wrong. In others, we concede we're wrong. In still others, we reach a middle ground."

Woman, son, 14, charged

CHICAGO (UPI) — The wife and 14-year-old stepson of a wealthy Air Force major have been charged with hiring a man posing as a gangster hitman to kill the major in suburban Schaumburg.

Mrs. Marlene Swinley, 32, was charged Thursday with solicitation to commit murder of her husband of 10 years, Major Dewey Swinley, 45. Her son from a previous marriage was named on the same charge in a delinquency petition.

The two allegedly schemed to pay $5,000 for the contract murder of Swinley on his return from Germany to their home in an exclusive section in Schaumburg, the Cook County state's attorney's office said. Swinley, believed worth half a million dollars, is a transport pilot assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Ill. He frequently flies between Chicago and Germany.

Mrs. Swinley was arrested in a shopping center parking lot in Schaumburg after she allegedly paid $100 to "Jimmy Sunshine," an undercover state's attorney's investigator. The alleged scheme to kill the Air Force officer was similar to one in which the estranged wife of Chicago multi-millionaire Samuel J. Popoff, 59, was recently arrested in Beach, Calif., and charged with hiring two men to kill Popoff.

Commission lifts spray glue ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission said Friday it will roll back its ban on millions of cans of spray glue because five months of research have been unable to prove that using it could cause birth defects.

The ban, which has been in effect since mid-August, will be rescinded on March 1 unless new information is developed before then to make the commission adopt different action.

Commission chairman Richard O. Simpson said the research reports submitted to the panel "were all overwhelmingly in favor of lifting the ban. That doesn't mean there was no doubt. This is one of those cases where no one is 100 per cent sure."

But Simpson said he felt the commission did the right thing in ordering the ban because at the time there was very little information available to back up a study made by Dr. J. Rodman Seely of the University of Oklahoma.

Gentlemen:

I am pleased to advise that Mr. Lex H. Kunau and Mr. Richard A. Brizee were re-elected as Directors of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Twin Falls at the Annual Depositors Meeting held on the sixteenth day of January, 1974, for a three-year term.

During the year 1973 the Association had another excellent year. Our assets are now $75,077,481.55... an all-time high. Due to the wonderful support of the people of Magic Valley, we were able to increase our savings $7,241,300.40. We loaned $13,247,167.55, which enabled us to increase our loans $5,513,683.05. We paid our depositors $3,517,084.71, which was an all-time high and the largest paid by any of the local savings institutions in Magic Valley.

We expect 1974 to be an excellent year subject to the seriousness of the energy crisis and anticipate loaning over $15 million and paying our depositors over $4 million in interest during the year.

Mr. Fred House, a graduate of Idaho State University with a Master of Business Administration, joined our staff the first of March, 1973, and is currently working in our Savings Department.

We anticipate expanding our "IBM" system to a completely on-line system and have hired Mr. Ralph Carpenter, a graduate of the University of Idaho, who has just returned from a three-year tour of duty as a First Lieutenant, to assist Mr. James Dodds, our Vice President-Treasurer, in the programming and operation of this improved IBM installation for the better service of our borrowers and depositors.

Very truly yours,
James A. Sinclair
President

Green-ink hampers Soviet zip codes

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet version of the zip code system to move the mail more rapidly is not catching on as fast as planners had hoped. In fact, almost three years after the introduction of the six-digit postal code, only 60 per cent of the letters and post cards mailed carry it.

The government newspaper Pravda recently reminded readers that it was up to them to make the system work. Some who remember to use the code invalidate the effort because they write in green or yellow ink, the kind the computer cannot read, the newspaper said.

When the computers were first introduced, the efficiency of the nation's postal service rose 20 per cent, Pravda said. But the maximum benefit from the mechanical sorters will only come when 75 to 80 per cent of the mail is coded.

"The psychological barrier has not yet been overcome," Pravda said. It acknowledged that many people find the codes difficult to remember — not only their own, but those of others. A long-waited book of codes will be available shortly, the newspaper said.

For instance, you can choose a one-color shag and still get pattern, by choosing one that has varied pile lengths, creating a pattern of shadows. When several colors are combined with varied pile lengths the richness of pattern is increased.

Some patterns are created in solid-color carpets simply by cutting. Such "sculptured" or "carved" carpets may have a lively abstract pattern or one that repeats itself, such as a South Sea effect or a leaf design.

Additional patterns are created by combining looped yarns of different lengths, or weaving loop and cut pile together, sometimes with the "flocked" appearance. Remember, all of these patterns are available in a wide variety of fibers, such as rytons, acrylics, polyesters and wools. And self-patterned carpets are excellent at hiding the signs of foot traffic and soiling.

Spring turkey hunt, big game opening dates set

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Fish and Game commission has fixed opening dates for big game hunting seasons this fall, according to commission chairman Jack Alvord, Pocatello.

The commission also established Friday, Idaho's first spring gobbler hunt.

Hunting for shotgun and longbow hunters in management units 11, 13, 14, 18, 19A, 22, 23, and 39 for nine days begins May 4. Shot shells must contain 20 or smaller size shot.

Man-made calling devices are available to bring tom turkeys close enough for hunters to make positive identification. Luring calls range from a simple box, slaty, dog bone, yelp or many other types.

Most other "turkey states" hold spring gobbler hunts. Because of the skills required to successfully "call up" toms for positive identification, hunter success is generally very low. A spokesman for the department advised that the spring gobbler hunt will provide top quality hunting.

Unsuccessful hunters can use their turkey tag for the general either-sex turkey hunting this fall.

Only minor adjustments from last year were made in starting dates for big game hunting.

Four elk units in Eastern Idaho will be changed from general hunting to controlled hunting, with permits available through public drawing. Two new controlled moose hunts are added, and three old ones dropped. Two new antelope hunts have been added this year.

A new bighorn sheep hunt in Owyhee County will open for the first time on Jacks Creek. This will be hunt 541, where intensive aerial survey work of the Jacks Creek and the Shoshy Canyons found wild sheep in huntable numbers.

Opening dates for 1971 elk and deer hunting seasons are the same as last year except for the change made by advancing to the new year. The general opening date in the roadless back country for both elk and deer hunting will be September 14.

Perimeter units with some roads open for both elk and deer hunting October 5. Other more accessible Southern Idaho units open October 19. Panhandle management units start elk and whitetail deer hunting November 2.

Three deer units and six elk units carry different opening dates than last year. For deer, these are: units 9A and 21A, October 5 and 63A October 19; for elk: units 9A, 21A and 38, 59, 59A and 81 (proposed controlled hunts), October 5. Units 62 and 67 will open for elk hunting November 30.

Madison stops late Burley rally 59-52

REXBURG—Madison of Rexburg broke out to 14 point leads in the second half, then weathered a furious Burley closing press for a 59-52 victory Friday night.

Behind Rich Nielsen's 20 points and 17 from Keith Robinson, Madison appeared coasting home in the fourth period when Burley's press took effect. Javier Cardiel hit four points to start it and Steve Helzman added six in the closing three minutes.

Burley's best shot came with a minute left when Helzman narrowed the count to 56-50 but Nielsen then scored and Robinson followed with a free throw to tie it.

Pirates stun Devils

MURTAUGH—The previously conference winless Hagerman Pirates, with Tate and Martin spotting, the final margins, surprised the Murtaugh Red Devils 55-52 Friday.

Murtaugh led by narrow margins throughout the game and Hagerman didn't catch up until 52-52. Then in the closing minutes Tate shoved the Pirates ahead and Hagerman regained possession on a Devil turnover. Martin's free throw

Mushers top Tigers to hike loop lead

FAIRFIELD—The Camas County Mushers, hitting their first 10 points of the second half, dropped Richfield 63-58 Friday night to extend their Northside Conference lead to two full games.

Rolland Weeks provided most of the impetus in the third period when the Mushers erased a six-point halftime deficit to take the lead. Weeks hit 13 of his 25 points during that span.

Although Richfield trailed thereafter, the Tigers seldom were back more than three to five points. Piper's shooting worth 10 points in the last quarter, kept the Tigers in the thick of things.

Oakley rolls past Declo 70-56

DECLO—The Oakley Hawks put 26 points on the scoreboard in the first quarter and went on the easy defeat Declo 70-56 Friday night.

Both teams scored 26 field goals but Oakley went 18 out of 20 from the free throw line while Declo was only four out of 11.

Declo topped Oakley in the preliminary game.

GF drops Filer in low scorer

FILER—The Glens Ferry Pilots outlasted the Filer Wildcats 44-34 Friday night.

The low scoring affair saw the Pilots take a slim 9-6 margin in the first quarter and then lead 18-16 at the intermission.

Glens Ferry opened up an eight-point bulge in the third quarter. The error-ridden Wildcats had the Pilots committing 22 turnovers. Filer went 16 out of 56 from the field.

Glens Ferry defeated Filer in the preliminary game.

Kimberly rallies by Hansen

HANSEN—After trailing 20-12 in the first quarter, the Kimberly Bulldogs rallied to top the Hansen Huskies 64-57 Friday night.

Byron Stanger scored 12 points in the first quarter to lead Hansen to the 20-12 margin. He finished the night with 29 points.

Kimberly, however, came back in the second quarter to come within a single point at 35-31.

In the third quarter the Bulldogs took a slim 50-48 lead. In the fourth quarter the score was tied at 56-all when Kimberly scored eight points while limiting Hansen to a point.

From the free throw line Kimberly converted 18 out of 31 while Hansen made only five out of 10.

Kimberly beat Hansen 60-40 in the preliminary game.

Buhl slips to victory over Valley

EDEN-HAZELTON—Mike Hamilton's three-point play midway through the fourth period helped the Blue Devils stave off the Valley Vikings 55-47 Friday night.

Although trailing by eight to 10 points throughout the first half, the underdog Vikings came back in the second period to whittle the deficit to two points.

Hamilton then connected on the three-point play and the Indians went into a deliberate game to waste the clock away.

Pride's important thing in Ali-Frazier rematch

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's a matter of pride.
 Both Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali, who meet tomorrow night in Madison Square Garden and on closed-circuit television all over the world, have inordinate amounts of personal pride, and for the loser of the scheduled 12-rounder, that pride will be shattered, perhaps forever.
 The deep pride of each man has been evident in the final days leading up to the rematch and has been responsible for the frenetic, chaotic press conferences staged here the past week, with all the star and Frazier always the foil.
 It reached a climax Wednesday, when Joe blew his "cool" at last and Ali had to come to the real or threatened move Frazier made at Rahaman, Muhammad's brother. The two shoved and wrestled each other, but no physical damage was done to either man.
 Ali may regret the encounter, which he engendered by referring to Frazier's "ignominious" "black vs. white" with Frazier the "white" may be calculated to force Frazier into a rage—and no one fights at his best, no professional that is—in a rage. Frazier's fury could turn into cold anger, and make him that more dangerous.
 For Frazier prides himself on what he has accomplished. He has, he feels, shown his fellow blacks the way to live in the world. Ali, instead, has taken his stand on almost an "us against them" program.
 "I won the last time. To the black people, I won," says the former Cassius Marcellus Clay. "Look at the fight," says Frazier. "The decision was unanimous. I won it all the way."
 That first meeting, on March 8, 1971, was billed quite correctly and simply as "The Fight." Both were unbeaten, both had valid claims to the world heavyweight title, both were classic examples of the boxer and theslugger, and both were full of pride in their accomplishments in and out of the ring.
 The magic of that March encounter which transcended a mere fist fight can never be recaptured. This one is for the light bulls, who hope to see, one more time, the Ali and the Frazier they once knew.

 There is little likelihood they will, for time and circumstances have seriously cooled each man since Frazier's hand was lifted in victory after 15 rounds of savagery and skill, alternated by Ali's perhaps fatal error of clowning away a couple of rounds.
 The lustre is off both now. Frazier frittering away his title by going in overconfident and overweight against the hammer fists of George Foreman.

UCLA avenges lone defeat, belts Irish 94-75

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Brilliant Bill Walton, playing as if he was on a personal vendetta, poured in 32 points Saturday night as UCLA's aroused Bruins humiliated No. 6-ranked Notre Dame 94-75 and won back their claim as the top college basketball power in the nation.

Walton, who had 24 points in UCLA's 71-70 loss at Notre Dame last weekend, also pulled down 11 rebounds in the rematch with the team that ended UCLA's NCAA-record 86-game win streak.

Walton led the Irish with 25 points, while teammate Gary Brokaw added 14.

Walton, who blew an 11-point lead with 3 1/2 minutes to play at Notre Dame, never let the Irish get close in the second half this time. Walton hit a field goal only nine seconds into the second half to make it 45-32 and the Bruins then sped away to a 51-34 lead with 37:34 to play.

Walton and Wallace combined for 32 of the Bruins' 43 first-half points.

February 12 - Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Bond Issue.

Our hospital is responding (at or above capacity) to the human health needs of Twin Falls County through inpatient, outpatient and emergency services. It will be serving the health needs of more people in the years ahead.

The bond issue will relieve the constant overcrowding that now exists. A newly modernized hospital will be designed, equipped and staffed to encourage its use on an outpatient basis, where possible, to slow the worrisome escalation of medical care costs, and will assure continued participation in the Medicare and Medicaid programs.

We, the undersigned citizens of Twin Falls County are dedicated to helping provide hospital care of the highest quality to our generation and for the generation to come. We solicit your support.

Successful activities under way for TF retired seniors program

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The Retired Senior Volunteer Program in Twin Falls is well launched with at least three successful activities underway.

Known by its initials as RSVP, it is part of a national program known as ACTION. It is under the local direction of Nancy Taylor, whose office at College of Southern Idaho is headquarters both for volunteers wanting to offer their services and requests from institutions needing volunteers. The local program began last spring.

One of the most successful projects being carried out is the "mobile meals." Volunteers, who are senior citizens themselves, take nutritionally balanced hot meals, purchased from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital kitchen, to elderly people unable to provide for themselves.

Up to 20 persons are fed each day through the dedication of a group of volunteers who include Marguerite Knull, Leta Daniels, Dorothy Summers, Meris Miller, Bertha Franklin, Pat McDonald, Angie Karel, Howard Burkhardt, Geraldine Miner and Frank and Lee Mansfield. There also are others who assist occasionally. Mrs. Taylor said two different volunteers pick up the meals from the hospital and deliver them to shut-ins each day. In some cases, this service means the shut-ins can remain in their own homes and not have to go to a nursing home.

The recipients of the "mobile meal" are charged 70 cents per meal if they can afford it. All of them pay at least something, Mrs. Taylor said. The Junior Club has donated $650 toward the project which assists in cases of extreme hardship.

"We said the volunteers run into all kind of situations and some of them take longer than others to deliver the meals because they stop to chat. One man who receives meals is 91 and volunteers understandably become fond of their "customers." The meals are placed in plastic foam containers with light fitting covers and the RSVP volunteers deliver them in their own cars.

The same type of program is also being carried out in Coaling, under direction of Marlene Lees, director of the Senior Citizens Center there. RSVP has also begun a regional newsletter to give information and news to senior citizens in all eight Magic Valley counties. Articles concerning legislation of interest to seniors, as well as who won what quilt and who is celebrating their golden wedding anniversary are all included.

Anyone wanting to be put on the mailing list should notify Janie Boyd, who is secretary to the RSVP director, Lynn Carlton will head the production end of the newsletter with Lillian Armga editor.

Recipes and poetry also are included in the newsletter. The first edition went out this past week. Until named, the publication is called Magic Valley Newsletter. A contest currently is being carried out to give it a title, Mrs. Taylor said.

Retired teachers also are volunteering their professional skills, as well as human concern, to help tutor youngsters who need not only the extra boost but equally important, the personal attention of an adult.

All of these programs could use additional volunteers, Mrs. Taylor said, and more meals could be taken to the elderly who need such a service if more retired people would volunteer a little of their time.

Dave Mitchell, who at 84 enjoys helping do dishes at the Senior Citizens Center in Twin Falls where he also serves as general handyman, put it well when he said, "There must be hundreds of senior citizens just sitting in their homes with time on their hands. This place (the center) shouldn't be able to hold them all."

It's not that every older necessarily needs the 50 cent meal served at the center, he said, but they usually do need the sociability and interest created in becoming part of a larger group with planned activities.

The Senior Citizens Center, which organically is separate from the RSVP program, but cooperates with Mrs. Taylor's volunteer activities, is planning a dance Feb. 7 at the Odd Fellows Hall to raise funds for the center at 421 Third Ave. W., Twin Falls.

LILLIAN ARMGA, Twin Falls, seated, and Janie Boyd, secretary to Nancy Taylor, director of the RSVP program, go over plans for the next edition of the Magic Valley Newsletter, one of the projects of the senior citizen volunteer program.

Willing hand

Special skills

MRS. MARGUERITE KNULL, retired teacher from Washington school in Twin Falls, finds rewarding volunteer work using her skills in helping children who need special attention. Here she shows book to little Lisa Bess, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Maddox. Jerome Lisa is a client of the DECS Clinical Services Center.

Good luck of fishermen provide real treat at Apres ski party

Fish fry

WHEN Bob Smith, at left, isn't operating the lifts at Pomerelle, he is fishing. This week he combined his two talents to treat employees of Pomerelle to a fish fry of large trout from Island Park barbecued by him and his wife. In addition some cisco from Bear Lake — the tiny silver fish that can be eaten whole were provided by Rick Anderson, another employe. The event, as it turned out, was held on the first wedding anniversary of Woody and Sandy Anderson, resort owners. At right, Sandy serves a plate of cisco to Woody Anderson, Claude Jones, Hochen, a German Shepherd and Irene Suttin, all from left.

Annual jamboree

LOOKING FORWARD to the 13th annual Country Music Jamboree Monday and Tuesday nights at the CSI Fine Arts Auditorium are Carleita Cox, left, president of the sponsoring Magic Valley Country Music Association; Ryvana Stephens, one of the vocalists who will perform, and Warren Barry, state director of the Idaho Easter Seal Society.

Jamboree proceeds earmarked

TWIN FALLS — About 45 persons, all professional musicians, will be providing entertainment at the 13th annual Country Music Jamboree — Monday and Tuesday nights at 8 p.m. in the CSI Fine Arts auditorium. All the participants are

Potluck set

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Country Women's Club decided Thursday to have their annual potluck dinner in February. The Wednesday meeting was at the home of Mary Parks. Dorothea McCracken conducted the club's business meeting. The February dinner will be at the home of Mrs. McCracken. The afternoon was spent visiting.

members of the Magic Valley Country Music Association, according to Carleita Cox, president, and the group will donate all proceeds from the annual jamboree to the Easter Seal Foundation. Zeb Bell, Kimberly, professional rodeo announcer and former disc jockey, will be master of ceremonies. He is now in the insurance business in Twin Falls. The fast-moving two-and-one-half hour show is being produced under the direction of Slim Dosey and will include a wide variety of music. Mrs. Cox said, with "something for everyone." The musical menu will run from country rock to religious and will include oldtime fiddling as well as piano music with vocal backup. Over the past years many charitable organizations and facilities have benefited from the association's jamboree. They include Harbor House, Idaho Youth Ranch at Rupert, YMCA and the Easter Seal Center and scholarships for CSI. Funds from this year's jamboree will hopefully assist in the building of a new Easter Seal Center here, according to Warren Barry, Twin Falls, state director of the Idaho Easter Seal Society. He said the center serves children from throughout Magic Valley. Mrs. Cox said it is important that the group or facility receiving the proceeds from the jamboree offer services to persons throughout the valley since the country music association membership includes musicians from throughout the valley.

Her elbow length veil was held in place by a turban of maracane jersey and accented with strings of small pearls. She carried a white Bible, a gift of a great aunt, topped with her bouquet of white rosebuds, gardenias and greenery.

Edda Lancaster, sister of the bride, and Julene Damon, cousin of the bride, were bridesmaids. Angela Duell was flower girl. Toby Lucich, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer.

The couple was honored at a reception in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth with greenery rope scalloped. The all white three-tiered cake was decorated with arches, with cherubs and clusters of iridescent grapes. The cake was placed on a fountain and was surrounded with heart shaped cakes. A crown of white chrysanthemums was placed on top of the cake.

Mrs. E. Eslinger served coffee. Mrs. Curtis Wilkins cut the cake. Mrs. Pearl Nelson served punch. All are aunts of the bride.

The bride was honored at pre-nuptial showers given by Mrs. Ron Silvers and by Mrs. William Wright and Mrs. Warren-Rasmussen.

North's jump if four spades was intended to show good spade support and a minimum hand. He sure had what he advertised, but no one can find any fault with South's investigating seven and finally settling for six after North showed no kings at all.

Looking at all the cards the slam is not a good one. South needs a good break in diamonds to collect 12 tricks. The best percentage play is to lead a diamond to dummy's nine. If loses to the king or queen declarer comes back to his hand and finesses the jack.

As you can see this play is going to work. West holds the queen and 10.

At the table, West made things more difficult to South. West went up with the queen of diamonds on the first diamond lead. South, the late Albert Morehead covered with dummy's ace; stripped the hand of hearts and clubs and led a second diamond.

West played low, but it was one of those cases of Greek meeting Greek. Morehead knew that West was capable of playing queen-10-small. He finessed the nine and made the slam.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Being a minister of the Word of God, I don't have too many gripes, but when this individual came to me today to perform a funeral service for a friend of his who doesn't even belong to my church, I blew my stack! I would rather do ten sermons or ten weddings than one funeral, and I'll tell you why—

Some people think nothing of spending $2,000 or $3,000 for a funeral, then they say to the preacher, "I won't embarrass you by offering you money, so I'll just say 'Thanks.'" Or else they say, "I'll be around to see you later." And that's the end of it.

This has happened to me so many times I am sick of it. Ministers have expenses like everybody else, but most people overlook that fact.

Thanks for letting me get this off my chest, Abby. And don't sign me "Pastor," I am not! I am a

MINISTER OF GOD IN MINNESOTA

Minister insulted

DEAR MINISTER: I'm glad you were able to write to me and get it off your chest. Only God knows what you might have done with all that resentment and hostility.

DEAR ABBY: Count me as one grandmother who would feel insulted if I were offered money to sit with my grandchildren. I am babysit with strangers for pay, and I could use extra money, but I would rather sit with my grandchildren for nothing.

FRUDD GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Not all grandmothers can afford that luxury. Let's hear it from Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from "Working Mother" regarding paying the Grandmother for sitting with her baby.

I have eight grandchildren, and for most of my married life I have had to work to supplement my income. When each of our three children married I made it clear that I would be available to sit with their children in emergencies, but any other time I would expect to be paid the same rate as any other sitter. This doesn't mean I don't love my grandchildren, it just means my time is as valuable to me as their time is to them, and I also need money to live on.

The younger generation seems to think that grandparents have nothing but time on their hands, and they are just dying to spend it on their grandchildren. My grandchildren are frequent visitors to our home. They are always welcome, and one of the little ones will stay overnight or for a weekend just for a treat, but if their parents plan an evening out and ask me to all, they pay me the going rate. I wouldn't have it any other way and neither would they.

"Working Mother" should remember that grandparents are just parents grown a little older, a bit wearier, and no wealthier.

MR. AND MRS. PAUL MESSNER

Paul Messners set open house Feb. 3

KIMBERLY — Mr. and Mrs. Paul Messner, Kimberly, will observe their golden wedding anniversary with an open house from 2 to 5 p.m. Feb. 3. The couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Messner and Mr. and Mrs. Harry (Mary Ellen) Bolton, will be hosts for the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Messner were married Feb. 5, 1924, at Winthrop, Minn. They farmed near Winthrop for five years, moving to Idaho in the fall of 1928. They farmed in the Twin Falls community until the fall of 1943, when they bought a farm on the Salmon Tract. In 1955, they bought a farm south of Hansen and built a home in Kimberly where they have since resided.

Two honored by TF Elks lodge

TWIN FALLS — Two members of Twin Falls Elks Lodge were honored Thursday night at a meeting attended by about 250 members. O'Dell Sweet received the "Elk of the Year" award while Jack Thorpe was honored on his 93rd birthday anniversary as the second oldest Elk member in the state. Clayton Rudd, exalted ruler, said Sweet had, in the judgment of the lodge, made the largest contribution to the promotion of the order, primarily through his work relating to youth. Sweet has coached the Elks-sponsored Little League football team since 1965 and "not only is a good Elk, but a responsible father, and dedicated to promotion of youth." The honoree works for Idaho Power Co. Jack Thorpe joined the Elks Lodge in 1903, and became a member of the Twin Falls unit in 1911. He has been one of the most devoted Elks in Idaho, according to the exalted ruler. Domer Bertsch conducted the recognition service and in commenting on his service, said Thorpe has been active in the American Legion, participating in Memorial Day programs for many years. He was presented with a certificate of appreciation and honored at a special birthday dinner prior to the lodge meeting. A special award was given him by the PER group, Rudd said.

Dance alliance formation slated

TWIN FALLS — Formation of a Dance Alliance in Idaho, to provide a training base from which to supply dancers for professional dance groups within the state is being planned.

This was reported by Beverly Hackney following a meeting and student-auditions in Boise recently.

Charles Bennett, president of the Performing Dance Association and artistic director of the First Chamber Dance Company, New York City, addressed the meeting.

He spoke to persons interested in forming a state unit to affiliate with the Dance Alliance of the Northwest States. This area includes Alaska, Idaho, Montana, Washington and Oregon. Bennett said the Idaho dance student is much like a pre-medical student. He or she must leave Idaho to complete professional education. He said when the student reaches the intermediate status, he or she leaves the state and doesn't return.

Currently, Bennett said, Ballet Folk of Moscow, which will be performing in Twin Falls in February, is the only professional touring ballet company in Idaho. Carl Petrick, Ballet Folk director is building from within his own area. The Dance Alliance will provide trained dancers for groups such as the Folk Ballet

An audition for scholarships to the First Chamber Dance Company's summer dance laboratory to be held at Ft. Worden, Wash., was held during the Boise session.

Fleming Halby, principal male dancer with the company and former premier dancer with the Royal Danish Ballet Co. conducted the audition class. "Mr. Halby is a demanding but sensitive teacher," Mrs. Hackney said. "His rapport with the dance students was excellent."

Mini-Reviews

"TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have pleased mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"The Two Nuns" by Anne Spivey. Two lives dedicated to the service of God — two minds at total war over how to achieve it. The climax is like an exorcism — but who won and who lost?

"Peace Among Christians" by Augustin Cardinal Bue. This is a study in dialogue between two great apostles of the 20th century.

"Principles of American Weather Chemistry" a Novel by Thomas McMahon. A startling and highly original work of fiction which paradoxically combines the highest gaiety with the deepest sense of corruption.

"Land Grab" by John Upson Terrell. Here is the truth about the early American west that few Americans are completely aware of and one that we would like to live down.

"Man Without a Face" by Isabelle Hollan. Charles at 14 can't know much about love. Then he learned that love has many faces and that it can be unpredictable and disturbing.

Teaching Jobs

"NEW YORK (UPI) — Teaching of the gifted and handicapped offers strong job opportunities, according to the Education Yearbook (Macmillan).

Despite the generally tight employment situation in education — surpluses in many teaching categories — there is an inadequate supply of properly trained tutors to staff programs for exceptional children. Individual state programs for such children range from modest expansion of existing programs to development and implementation of ambitious master plans. During the past two years a number of states have established target dates of five years for providing full service programs for all eligible children and young adults in the exceptional grouping.

"The Honorary Consul" by Graham Greene. Graham Greene has created a peculiarly his own in the political chaos lying beneath the surface of South American life.

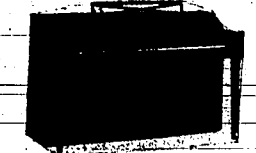

"Contact: The First Four Minutes" by Leonard Zunin. How to develop and improve techniques for establishing meaningful human relationships during the first few minutes of an encounter with strangers, friends and loved ones.

"Woman Hunt" by Francis Ryek. One of the most exciting suspense novels yet ever written. "Stranger at the Gate" by Evelyn Anthony. Here is a masterful novel of the infamies of the dark Nazi era imperiling past and present loves. "Dawn of Zoology" by Willy Jay. A fascinating adventure of man's early attempts to unlock the secrets of the mysterious animal kingdom.

Nixon lifts wheat quota

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon Friday ordered the first suspension of wheat import quotas since World War II as a precautionary step to avert the threat of serious domestic wheat shortages and rising bread prices this spring.

With record exports cutting drastically into U.S. wheat reserves, the lifting of quotas effective Saturday through June 30 will permit an unrestricted flow of wheat and flour from Canada if necessary to meet demand until an expected bumper 1974 wheat crop reaches the market early this summer.

Deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon's action, recommended by the Tariff Commission on Thursday, would "have a stabilizing effect on price."

Questioned about criticism of the administration for letting exporters take such a large share of U.S. wheat production, Warren said: "The continued sale of American agricultural products to foreign buyers is important to our credibility as a foreign supplier."

Agriculture Department officials dismiss warnings of bread shortages this spring, and say there will be enough wheat to see the country through until the new crop arrives. Although imports from Canada are possible, said Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll G. Brunthaver, "I don't think it will be needed."

The 33-year-old wheat import quotas have not been suspended since the two war years of 1943-45, when the United States imported a total of 183 million bushels of wheat. In other years, the country has been one of the world's leading wheat exporters and has bought little if any from abroad.

But 1973 was the second consecutive year in which record-level export demands, including the massive Soviet grain sale of 1973, have drained the entire U.S. wheat crop. Last year, exports combined with domestic demand exceeded the total harvest by nearly 250 million bushels, forcing a fallback on carryover wheat stocks.

Sugar Act hearings set

WASHINGTON — The House Agriculture Committee will hold hearings in mid-February to determine what revisions need to be made to the Sugar Act before its renewal, Committee Chairman W. R. Pogue said Wednesday.

Pogue said he understood that all elements of the industry, including producers, processors and refiners, distributors and users would attempt to present agreed legislation, but that so far no progress had been made in this area. He called on proponents in the industry to agree upon basic features of the legislation by Feb. 1. If no such agreement is worked out, the chairman said he would expect to move on his own and introduce a bill at that time believing that prompt action is essential.

Wheat stores to be low

(c) New York Times Service
CHICAGO — Supplies of wheat now held in American elevators will be drawn down to dangerously low levels before the harvest of the 1974 crop begins in mid-May.
 But Middle Western grain dealers insisted this week that there was no reason to expect a serious shortage of flour or bread between now and early summer, though the price of both may rise again by then.
 In this time of shortage psychology, when such items as toilet tissue are being hoarded, market analysts are not advising consumers to go fill their freezers with 45-cent-a-lb flour.
 "We have as much wheat for sale now as any time in the past 10 years," said Jim Jordan, Kansas City Board of Trade representative for Union Equity Cooperative elevators, rising that high. With wheat at $5.70 a bushel last week, there was roughly 7 cents worth of wheat in a loaf of 45-cent bread. At $1 a loaf, wheat would have to reach more than $10 a bushel, which no one here could imagine.
 The Agriculture Department is still estimating that there will be about 200 million bushels of wheat, roughly equivalent to a seven-week domestic and export supply, left over from the 1973 crop at the time the 1974 crop starts coming in.
 While some Middle Western grain dealers believed this estimate was too optimistic, they said they were certain that there would be enough wheat to last through the 1973 crop year.
 "We're not going to run out of wheat," said Joe Gregg of Morrison, Gregg and one of the largest handlers of winter wheat in the nation. "There is a possibility of using almost all the winter wheat we have before June, leaving us with little reserve. But I think it will be impossible to run clear out. The price for it is high now, and if it goes up any more, it will ration itself. The flour millers can still buy as much as they are willing to pay the price for." Many farmers in these areas are still holding their 1973 wheat to sell it this year and pay 1974 taxes on it. That wheat will be available for sale when they think the price is right.

 "Now if the supply should drop down much below 200 million bushels by early May, it will mean the wheat is scattered in a lot of smaller elevators and it may be harder for a miller to find," he went on. "But we certainly won't have run out."

Surplus dairy buys down

By BERNARD BRENNER
WASHINGTON (UPI) — With American milk production dipping abruptly last year, government purchases of surplus domestic dairy products fell to the lowest level in two decades while imports of cheese and other dairy foods jumped to a new record, Agriculture Department records indicate.
 Officials said the department's net purchases under its dairy price support program in 1973 dropped to the equivalent of 2.1 billion pounds of milk at an estimated cost of $86.5 million. This compared with net purchases of 5.2 billion pounds of milk equivalent for $112 million in 1972.
 The department does not actually buy fluid milk under the support program. However, it sets a minimum support price for manufacturing-grade milk, which is used in making butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk. Then, it offers to buy any of these manufactured products which the open market will not take at prices geared to reflect the basic milk support.
 In most past years, purchases have been heavy and most of the excess has been funneled into donations to schools and needy people. Last year, however, after some early purchases, mostly of butter — officials found market prices holding above the support level and government purchases dropping to the vanishing point.
 Officials said the 2.1 billion pounds of milk purchased last year was the smallest, total since 1953. The estimated 198.5 million cost "was the lowest since 1966.

The virtual disappearance of dairy surpluses through most of 1973 came in a hectic year for milk producers. With feed grain costs soaring, a growing number of farmers sold their herds because rising milk prices failed to keep pace with increases in production costs. As a result, milk production which had been rising for three years declined about 3 percent to 116.8 billion pounds.
 As prices rose at the farm and retail level, meanwhile, the administration moved to protect consumers of dairy products by easing import quotas in order to boost the vanishing domestic supply. Friday's report showed that product imports for 1973 rose to a record total of 4 billion pounds, compared with 1.7 billion pounds in 1972.
 Department summaries showed that as 1974 began, the Agriculture Department's dairy "surplus" stockpile contained only a token 5 million pounds of butter and was completely bare of nonfat dry milk and cheese.
 No forecasts of 1974 price support purchases were issued. Government experts, however, have predicted that U.S. milk production probably will continue declining through at least the early part of 1974.

Commonest complaint among homeowners about their abodes is "too few electrical outlets." ... Could it be true, as recently reported, that Dean Martin won't ride in an elevator?

Oldest known riddle is in the Book of Judges, chapter 14. ... You can put about 50 seasons of water in the average drinking glass, if you so desire. ... Typically, a left-handed batter gets to first base just about two-thirds of a second faster than a right-hander.

Q: "I know there's a catnip, but as there such a thing as dog-nip?"

A: There is. A weed called Shung Kooose Foot Smells terrib-ly. But dogs tend to go into a high rapture when they hit a patch of it.

Have you ever met anybody who ever met anybody who ever met anybody who actually saw an eagle carry off a lamb? Neither have I.

Quoth Albert Einstein: "Of what is significant in one's own existence one is hardly aware, and it certainly should not bother the other fellow. What does a fish know about the water in which it swims all of its life?"

You know that slick trick that a shoe salesman measures your feet with? An English monk invented the thing more than 300 years ago.

SADDEST WORDS

"Insufficient funds" are not the two saddest words in the English language, sir," writes an inmate in the Idaho State Penitentiary. "Sadder are 'parole denied' and 'goodtime forfeited.'" Indeed, indeed.

Just amazing! Jews comprise less than a half of 1 percent of the world's population. Still, 12 per cent of all Nobel Prize winners in physics, chemistry and medicine have been Jews. As asked if this signifies superior brains. Don't know. More probably, superior mothers.

Great, hail the hotwater in America is used for bathing! It's not enough to record that a duck ordinarily has much feathers than a chicken. Be specific. Say a grown duck has approximately 12,000 feathers while a grown chicken, as previously reported, has only about 8,000.

Do you think there is too much violence on TV programs? Should there be more censorship?

Dennis Cook, Twin Falls: There is lots of violence but it (violence) can be handled in a manner—to be exciting, however, it can be nerve-racking and tense. I think the amount of violence tends to isolate people and make them more reluctant to become involved or help people. I enjoy the specials, such as the National Geographic and other educational shows, but I don't care to sit and watch TV all night. I don't go for censorship — it's up to the individual."

Mrs. Norman Herrett, Twin Falls: "I think there is too much violence. I don't know if people care what their children watch, but it would be good to have other things to watch."

Robert Youree, Twin Falls: "I don't think there's too much violence. I watch television quite a bit."

Mary Perry, Route 4, Twin Falls: "I don't watch TV much, but I sometimes think it (violence) does hurt the younger generation for it's like any environment — if you have a good one, you'll be good. It depends upon a person's own morals and education as to how the violence affects him or her."

Minnibelle Hardy, Twin Falls: "I don't watch TV much since I work the graveyard shift. I mostly prefer musicals. I don't care for the violence so don't watch it."

Rod Earth, Twin Falls: "I think children should learn from their parents about right and wrong. They can see on TV what the world is like and that crime doesn't pay in the end."

Myrtle Hatcher, Twin Falls: "I don't watch TV much but I like programs like Medicine more than the shoot-'em-up stuff. Some of the programs do have a lesson for families, but I prefer to read more than watch TV."

Paul Grace, Twin Falls: "It depends upon who's watching. Considering I have two children growing up, there probably is too much violence on some shows. On some programs the violence is well placed, but not on others."

Cancer-cured patients still carry scars

By WILLIAM HINES

(c) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — On any typical day in the United States, about one million persons are under treatment for some form of cancer. Each year 663,000 Americans get the devastating news that they, too, have contracted a malignant disease. About 350,000 Americans die of cancer in a typical year.

These facts, quite well known, strike terror to the hearts of most citizens, who have been shown in survey to fear cancer above all other ailments, even the No. 1 killer, heart disease.

What is less well known is that each year roughly 315,000 Americans are pronounced cured, in the sense that a term of years (usually five) has passed since the end of treatment without a recurrence of the cancer that once afflicted them.

Actually, these fortunate people have a life expectancy no different from others of the same age, sex and racial group. But many of them bear scars — physical or psychic or both — that they will never lose. These are the "walking wounded" in the war against cancer.

As the treatment of cancer by surgery, radiation, drugs or a combination becomes more effective, the number of successfully treated patients is bound to increase. So is the number who survive their bout with cancer more or less unscathed.

Late last week at Georgetown University here, a symposium on problems and challenges presented by the "successfully treated cancer patient" was held. It was sponsored by the university's Vincent T. Lombardi Cancer Research Center, named for the famed Green Bay Packers and Washington Redskins football coach who was one of the 350,000 cancer sufferers who failed to make it through the year 1970.

In a series of scientific, sociological and economic discussions, the enormous impact of rehabilitating these "walking wounded" was outlined for about 200 listeners. Perhaps the most insightful, and certainly the most poignant, statements came from former cancer patients who now — in the view of competent medical authority — are over the hump.

"Sometimes it's hard to put up a good front when you only have half a one," an attractive registered nurse in early middle-age said. Twelve years ago she lost a breast to cancer; her rehabilitation was neither brief nor easy.

A 36-year-old airline employee, recovered from Hodgkin's disease (cancer of the lymphatic system) told how he still worries about his prospects — should he lose his job due to the energy crisis — if a new prospective employer should learn of his medical history.

The need for "TLC" (that hard-to-define ingredient of medical treatment called "tender, loving care") was underlined by the cured-cancer nurse. "Surgeons wipe up blood; they don't wipe up tears very well," she remarked.

Dr. C. Gordon Zubrod, director of the division of cancer treatment at the National Cancer Institute, keynoted the meeting.

"Even though a third of patients with cancer are cured, the treatment leaves in its wake a series of new problems for the patient, his family and society," Zubrod said. "Relatively few physicians have emphasized the need for equal attention to long-term problems of cancer patients. The need for absolute frankness with people newly afflicted with cancer was emphasized by speaker after speaker. A few participants spoke of patients who 'just can't take it' and who must be shielded from the knowledge that they have cancer, but acknowledge that they are few.

The consensus, clearly, was that, with improvements in treatment, increased specialization of doctors and institutions, and better health insurance programs it is extremely difficult to expose a patient to sophisticated cancer therapy and at the same time keep him or her in the dark about the nature of his disorder."

Hand-in-hand with frankness about the disease, Zubrod pointed out, is frankness about prognosis if a cure is achieved.

The tremendous economic cost of cancer was outlined by Dr. Thomas H. Alnsworth, Jr., of Chicago, a former official of the American Hospital Association, who now serves as a consultant to hospitals.

The total direct cost of actual treatment of a cancer patient, Alnsworth said, ranges from $5,000 to $20,000 a year (most of which is probably covered by insurance if the patient has a good policy). Indirect costs — such as loss of income, added expenses to the employer from absence due to sickness, and the like — can be double this figure. The aggregate economic cost of cancer, reckoning one million patients at any given time, is thus somewhere between $15 billion and $60 billion a year. This is 1.5-6 per cent of the U.S. gross national product.

What about preventing cancer by means of universal periodic physical examinations for early detection, when the disease is most readily curable?

It has been calculated, Alnsworth said, that it would cost $20 billion a year as present physicians' rates to give good cancer-detecting physicals to every American, and would take up 3 1/2 months out of the working year of every practicing doctor in the U.S.

And the conferees agreed that social attitudes toward cancer — once medieval in their unwillingness even to mention the disease — are improving but still have a long way to go.

Gerald R. Ford of the White House, at least one member of his family would feel right at home there.

The Fords' 16-year-old daughter, Susan, the youngest of their four children — worked at the White House all last summer, selling official White House guidebooks to the tourists who throng through the presidential mansion.

But while Susan, a junior at Holton-Arms School, found the mechanics of the White House intriguing, she has no desire to live there. Susan says, "I haven't thought about it, really. I wouldn't know what to do if I ended up there. It's a huge place."

Her three brothers — Michael Gerald (Mike) 23; John Gardner (Jack), 21; and Steven Melgs (Steve), 17 — are equally cool toward living in the nation's No. 1 mansion.

They're a remarkably calm, solid group of young people, whose heads don't seem turned one degree by their father's new eminence. Not only are they not looking ahead to the White House — they don't even want to move into a bigger family residence now that their father is vice president.

Their pleasant four-bedroom house in Alexandria, Va., adequate by normal suburban standards, seemed a bit crowded when it had to stretch to accommodate the Secret Service, and an office and secretary for Mrs. Ford — plus a constant stream of reporters and TV crews.

But the family voted unanimously to stay put. "This is the Fords — our house, our neighbors, our friends," says older brother Mike. "We all feel very strongly about it," says Susan. "When the subject came up" Steve said, "No way. A Ford will always live in this house."

Betty Ford says fondly that her husband, the new vice president, is a "square." As for her children, they've never been in a protest march, they're not into drugs, they don't even seem to have hangovers.

On the other hand, they don't have bristling short hair or American flag pins in their lapels, either.

Mike, the oldest, is "into religion," in a serious way, studying in a divinity school outside Boston, with plans for devoting his life to "Christian service."

"We were, I'd say, a typical middle class suburban American family that attends church on Sunday. We all were fairly active in the church, but I never really received too much spiritual growth in my childhood and adolescence."

"It was in college that I was having to ask myself serious questions about my future — what is there to live for, and things of that sort, besides the immediacy of waking up every morning and going through a regular routine."

These questions, and also justness of getting caught up in my own evil nature, I guess, made me really begin to feel that there's got to be more here than we can see and can touch. It was in my junior year in college that I was led to receive Jesus Christ as my Lord and Savior."

His parents' reaction to his choice of a religious vocation was "very typical of them," Mike said. "When I shared my decision they said, 'I've very proud of you.' I kind of chuckled. That's Mom and Dad. They always are very supportive in all our activities, and they like to see us succeed. "I had to explain to them it wasn't really a success — any achievement that I went through. It was just a personal discovery. I think once they understood the whole abuse, and perspective of my decision, they were really happy for me."

Jack Ford also has his career goals sorted out — although he admits he might not be so clear if his father hadn't become vice president. "So many people have been asking me lately, 'I've had to think about it.' A Senior at Utah State University, he is majoring in forestry. He plans to get a master's degree in watershed management, and work for the National Park Service — which he did "last" summer in a temporary job.

Eventually, he may want to go to law school, and "get into the environmental aspect of land use."

Jack, the only one of the Ford children with anything like political interests, worked as a volunteer in Florida, when then-Rep. William Cramer was running for the Senate. And in 1971 he worked for the Committee to Re-Elect the President, touring a kind of organizing young people on college campuses.

None of the Fords' children seem to have gotten into the campaigns for office. "He always was very conscious of not trying to use us," says Jack. "We had the opportunity, but all of us were pretty much involved in our own affairs."

Steve Ford, a senior at T. C. Williams High School is "the brightest of us all — and also a wonderful athlete; he's just all-around everything," says brother Mike. "You take anything that's good in one, and anything that's good to Jack — and Dad — and put 'em together. You've got Steve."

Steve thinks he wants to be a doctor or a dentist. He wants no part of politics "because the day never ends. I want to be able to do my job, and then go home the end of the day, and spend time with my family."

Susan has specialized in modern dance — as did her mother — and recently has become interested in ballet, as well.

She wants to go to college "in the South" — possibly also Wake Forest. "I like the climate, and it's quiet," she explains. "I do in a way want to get away from Washington, just from the hectic part of life — and relax for a couple of years."

Actress transformed

CICELY TYBON stars as a fictional 110-year-old former slave in the title role of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," a two-hour drama special Thursday, Jan. 31, on the CBS television network. Makeup for her at age 110 took almost six hours to complete, with individual foam rubber pieces being applied to her face and neck, then tinted. Eyebrows and facial hairs were applied one at a time. A "held cap" that created a receding hairline and a wig completed the transformation. (UPI)

Way Back When—Page Two Was The Real Newsy Page

By O. A. (Gus) KFLKER
Down through the years of newspapering, the obvious news has been on Page One. The news of everyday living—the stuff making a community tick and pull together and grow—has been on the inside pages. Up until recently the "newsy" page of the Times-News has been Page Two. In fact, for some 61 years of the period between the birth of the Twin Falls News and today, the Page Two concept was followed. Today the local news is spread throughout most papers.

But for the 61 or so years a glance at Page One provided the obvious while scanning Page Two revealed the pulse of the community. Today's reproductions of Page One of the Times-News coinciding with the end of World War II prove the point. You can see the headlines on these pages—four on these pages and one reproduced on the front of today's Idaho Magazine.

We'll turn them over for you and make a few notes about what was on Page Two in each case. So here goes:

AUGUST 6, 1945
Page Two
Five complaints of over-celling charges were handled in July by the price panel of the war price and rationing board with settlement and refund amounts of $38, it was announced by A. S. Henson, board chairman. Members of the Twin Falls price panel are Dan J. Cavanaugh, Mrs. Frankie A. Brown, Lionel A. Dean, Kenneth C. Beach and E. A. Manning. Announcement was also made that new rationing books, much smaller than other ones, will be issued in December through the public schools.

A back-to-school promotional campaign and opening and closing hours will be discussed by the merchant's bureau of the Chamber of Commerce. Les Crowley is chairman of the committee.

Mrs. John E. Hayes has been elected a director of the Idaho Council, American Pioneer Trails Association. She was the only Magic Valley resident elected.

Arthur Griff told police Saturday night his automobile had been run into while parked near the carnival grounds and a door of the vehicle dented. Fire broke out in the potato cellar on the Wendell Glenn ranch, a mile and one-half north of Kimberly yesterday morning, and was still raging hours later. Half the cellar had been destroyed. Combustion among old (and sold) potato sacks was believed the cause.

Townsend Club members from Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Hagerman and Filer, met for a picnic Sunday afternoon in Twin Falls with William Glauer, Hagerman, discussing the present economic system as it affects the Townsend plan. The plan, he said, would decrease rather than increase the public taxes. Thirty-five members and their families and guests attended the 20th Annual Twin Falls Grange picnic Sunday at Shoshone Falls. Grange members swapped stories after a nice lunch.

Page Two
For want of an envelope many a Twin Falls resident in need of rationed commodities came near doing without those items this week. That was the condition of the Twin Falls ration board office Friday morning when the long awaited order-envelopes had not reached the office, and the present supply was practically gone. Carl Anderson, chief clerk, reported. The day was saved when 5,000 of the much needed articles arrived.

Least Gene Hall was arrested in Manila with a fighter replacement pool, according to word received here by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hall, 452 Ash St. Next week new library maps of the world will be put on display and may be circulated, Jessie Fraser, librarian, announced. Three traffic law violators were fined in police court Friday. Robert Randall was fined $10 for speeding. A. E. Wood and Mrs. Ros James paid $1 each for over-parking. Mary Jane Hawley, Buhl, is spending the weekend as the house guest of Joan Benoit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Benoit, 136 Seventh Avenue East. Only emergency beds were available at the Twin Falls County General Hospital Friday. Mayor Bert Sweet said that five long blasts on the siren atop the Twin Falls fire station here will signal the official end of the war in the Pacific. The five long blasts will be repeated three times so there will be no mistaking the signal.

Page Two
Four marriage licenses issued Friday afternoon were received by William J. Peters and Leona Rae Hughes, Twin Falls; George A. Cummings and Blanche D. Hoover, Twin Falls; Robert A. Carter, Filer, and Frede Mac Keith, Jerome; Benjamin B. Hughes, Jr., Twin Falls, and Fay Brizee, Ogden, Utah. A 1939 coupe driven by George R. Winkler, Route One, Filer, collided at 9:05 p.m. Saturday with a 1937 sedan which had stopped on Washington Street near Filer Avenue, according to State Patrolman John A. Leiser, who said he had witnessed the accident. At the sedan's wheel was Mrs. Eloise Welker, 150 Fillmore Avenue. Winkler's car, the officer said, was going at a considerable rate of speed. The Diamond Hardware Store, which has operated under the name for the past 36 years, will be known as the Schwedman Hardware Company, owner R. J. Schwedman announced following meeting of company directors. Wedding bells rang Saturday afternoon for Peter Primiano, Sun Valley, and Miss Verna Mae Ryan, Halley. The couple were married at city hall by Judge James O. Pumphrey. Anyone interested in seeing the results obtained from the use of WEEDICIDE on plantain, chickweed, ragweed, morning glory, dandelion and many others is especially invited to see the laws at the Twin Falls Mortuary, 253 Second Avenue North. The chemicals are available at Dingel and Smith Seed Co.

Page Two
More than 200 unmanned, paper balloons—some carrying bombs—landed in western North America after being launched in Japan, it was revealed. Two Japanese balloons landed near Twin Falls. It was disclosed Wednesday with relaxation of censorship. One fell last February and the other late in March. None carried explosives.

Twins, a boy and a girl, were born to Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Williams, Buhl, Wednesday at the Twin Falls County Hospital maternity home.

Mrs. J. Rowley who lives two miles east and one-half mile north of Hansen, reported to Sheriff W. W. Lowery Tuesday that someone had stolen 75 New Hampshire Red chickens from her ranch. Maurice K. Tallock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Tallock, 325 Seventh Avenue East, has been promoted to hospital apprentice first class. He enlisted in August, 1944 and is now at the Naval Hospital, Newport, Rhode Island. The Knoll Grange will meet at 5:30 p.m. Friday at the home of Mrs. Charles Kevan.

Members are requested to bring pie. Mrs. H. W. Merritt and her daughter, Marion, 833 Shoshone St. North, have returned from Greeley, Colo., where they had attended the summer session at the Colorado State College of Education.

SEPTEMBER 2, 1945
Page Two
Two teen-agers harvest workers who decided to fly back to their home town of Calhoun, Mo., had their wings clipped late Friday when Sheriff C. H. (Bob) Mountain Home, apprehended them as they landed west of that city. They allegedly stole the plane in Portland, Oregon. Funeral services for Martin Jensen were held at 4 p.m. Saturday in the Reynolds Chapel, with the Rev. L. S. Oliver, pastor of the Nazarene Church officiating. Burial was in the Rock Creek cemetery. Orriette Colner, Hansen, deputy clerk of the district court since November, 1944, has resigned to begin work for the E. W. McRoberts Co., stocks and bonds agency, in Twin Falls. She is taking the position vacated by the former Sheriff Smith. Mrs. John Welles of Louisiana. Col. and Mrs. H. G. Lauterbach, 325 Second St. North, have returned to their home here after visiting friends in Salt Lake City.

The special memorial day service planned by the Twin Falls—Magic Valley—Bany Mother's Club has been postponed from Sept. 5 until Sept. 12 because of the County Fair.

Lieut. Ivan G. Johnson and wife, St. Louis, and Lieut. Ivan B. Johnson, Ft. Belvoir, Washington D. C., twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Johnson, are visiting at the home of their parents on today leaves. Verne Sinema, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sinema, 1340 Maple Ave., has left for Boulder, Colo., to accept a position as archeologist. She is a graduate of the University of Colorado.

Miss Marcella Redmond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Redmond, 304 Fourth St. West, left Friday for Coeur d'Alene where she will enter the Academy of the Sacred Heart for her sophomore year. Mr. Redmond is sports editor of the Times-News. Rationing of gasoline, fuel oil, oil stoves and all processed foods requiring blue points has now ended. Book Four sugar stamp 38 is good through Dec. 31.

Forecast calls for partly cloudy conditions Monday with scattered thunderstorms. Yesterday's high was 99 and the low was 48.

Baby's crib called lethal

By KAREN HASMAN
 (c) Chicago Daily News

A baby's crib can be a lethal weapon. An estimated 200 infants die each year in accidents related to crib design or construction and another 50,000 babies are injured so seriously they require treatment in hospital emergency rooms.

After Feb. 1, the government will require that full-sized cribs meet safety standards designed to protect babies from strangulation, suffocation and falls.

If you must buy a crib in the next 30 days, however, the consumer product safety commission has some hints that will help assure that you are getting a safe crib.

The commission is a federal regulatory agency set up to oversee 10,000 consumer products.

"Cribs that meet the new safety standards are already available in some stores," a commission spokesman said. "Parents should be encouraged to ask for them."

"They will be clearly identified by a conspicuous label on both crib and carton which says 'this crib is in accordance with new safety standards.'"

If you can't find one of the new cribs before February, here are pointers to follow in making a crib purchase.

— Choose one with closely spaced slats. The new regulations will require that there be no more than 2 1/2 inches between slats to insure that babies will not slip between the slats feet first and strangle.

— If slats are more than 2 3/4 inches apart, buy bumper pads. Make sure they run around the entire crib, tie or snap into place, and have at least six straps. Use the bumper until baby can pull into a standing position.

— Be sure the mattress fits snugly. If you can insert more than two fingers between the edge of the mattress and the sides of the crib, the mattress is too small.

— The latch or lock for the drop side of the crib should not be easy for the infant to trip.

— Make sure the top of the rails reach 28 inches above the mattress to prevent baby from falling out.

Sprout gardens said 'in' thing today

A KITCHEN FULL OF SPROUTS: Sprout gardens are the "in" thing today. The oriental people have been masters of the art of sprouting. Since this type of gardening is new to me, I decided to give it a try.

I took a glass jar and put a screen on the end (you can use any screen or cheesecloth) and then screwed the lid on. The screen is for air.

Next, I put about a 1/2 cup of mung beans in the jar of water, let them soak for 24 hours, then drained the water off. Wring a towel around the jar to keep it dark, and place the jar on its side in a spot that's about 70 to 72 degree F. A pilot light on a gas stove gives off enough heat.

Next step is to rinse the mung beans in the morning and again the evening for 3 days. Shucks float to the surface and they can be removed. We think they're nutritious—and leave them alone.

After sprouting, remove and put in colander, where you can sort out any which didn't sprout. Sprouts can be cooked (stir fried) blanched, eaten raw or in salads. To keep them fresh we store them in a plastic dish in a refrigerator. One thing we've found out is that many seeds rot if left to stand in too much water. You can't avoid seed rot, and it shuts off air, induces spilage. Sprouts should be in a glass container for best results.

As you can see, we have a lot to learn about sprouting, and hope readers who are experienced in sprout gardening will send us their methods.

Meanwhile, here are some seeds home owners are using to grow healthy, nutritious sprouts in their kitchens: alfalfa, rich in vitamin C and K; barley, a cereal. Use the unshelled barley. Beans. Most sprouted beans need steaming before they are edible. buckwheat, rich in vitamin B, E and iron. Red clover, fine source of chlorophyll.

Corn, and crepe, garbanzo, also called chick-pea or Ceci ("chee-chee") bean. Netlis, high in iron and B Vitamins. Mung bean, high in calcium, phosphorus, iron and vitamins A and C. Delicious bean variety: Mustard (black), oats (unshelled), radish (both red and black) make ideal sprouts. Rye, sesame, high in protein and iron. A and E. Soybeans, said to be most nutritious of all beans for sprouting. Sunflower, high in phosphorus, calcium, magnesium and vitamins D and E. Wheat, an easy sprouter, contains protein, vitamin E and other goodies.

Let's hear from readers who have done just what you're doing: MEALY BUG OUTDOOR: Recently we mentioned using alcohol on mealbugs. Several readers wrote to tell us a better method for coping with this tough pest on house plants.

Many have had success with mealbugs by using a systemic bug killer (Ortho granules) in small quantities scattered down to the size of the pot. The material is absorbed by the plant and when the insect sucks the plant juices they are finished. Works on all house plants having mealy bugs and scales, including crown of thorns which is a target for this pest.

NOTE: Never use these materials on any plants with are edible or have edible fruits. The Isotox systemic insecticide is generally recommended for outdoor plants such as roses and other ornamentals which get aphids, mites, thrips and hard-to-kill items such as scale and leaf miners.

SUNFLOWERS: We've been asked if there is a sunflower which produces smaller seeds than those found in bird seed mixtures. You can buy short growing sunflowers which produce several small heads with smaller seed.

Sungold, a variety of sunflower which has many big, full-double-blooms of brilliant golden-yellow. Autumn beauty has combinations of red, yellow and bronze blooms on husky, upright plants growing 5 feet tall.

The large, single sunflower seed normally used for birds produces one large head full of plump seed. Stems reach 10 to 14 feet high.

FREEZING TOMATOES: Last year a reader raked us over the coals for our instructions we have on freezing tomatoes. Several readers have come to our rescue to tell us that they froze tomatoes and they were great for cooking, making spaghetti, etc.

KEEPING LEFTOVER SEED: That seed you had left over from last year is still good if . . . if you keep it in a dry place. Best storage temperature is around 40 degrees. If the relative humidity is between 30 and 40 per cent, the seed can stand a below-freezing temperature. If stored in a damp area, freezing temperatures might kill the seed.

Pretty soon you'll be sowing seed, so test them for germination. All you have to do is place the seeds between layers of a wet blotter and see how many sprout. This accurate and quick test will tell you whether it's worthwhile to store seed over the winter or buy new seed.

SMALL PHILODENDRON LEAVES: Why do philodendron leaves get smaller and smaller? It may be due to hard soils—or a lack of organic matter. Such soils are hard to keep moist and water merely runs down the inside of the pot, leaving the cores dry.

Another cause is simple starvation, or a lack of light. Add some peat moss to the mixture and feed your plants once every 2 or 4 weeks with a liquid plant food.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: D. R. of Twin Falls: "Our yard space does not allow room for vegetables. We want to plant tomatoes very badly. Last year we made room for one plant we grew in a barrel and it was supported by a wire cylinder 18 inches in diameter and 2 feet high, made of 6 inch mesh concrete reinforcing screen.

"The plant grew 9 feet high and was a delight. Now, we are told not to plant tomatoes in the same spot this spring. Is that true? What can be done to condition the soil for a plant in the same spot this year?"

Chances are you won't have a bit of trouble growing a tomato in the same spot this year. If you did it year after year, in the same spot, you could run into verticillium or fusarium wilt. You might want to scrape off the upper 3 or 4 inches of soil and add new soil to replace the top. Mix the new with the old and you should have a good crop of tomatoes. We are happy to see people who lack space grow tomatoes in containers. This is an easy way to grow vegetables without a garden. Don't overlook herbs, lettuce, onions, radishes, endive and dozens of other vegetables that can be grown in some form of container.

Soil for containers can be a mixture of 1 part each of sand, peat and loam. Most items like a bright window, or grown directly on the patio, or in full sun. If you happen to have a little extra space in the backyard, set the containers along—the fence—in the foundation planting or up against a building that gets full sun.

H. G. of Hagerman: "Can you tell me why my Boston fern loses its leaves. We have it in a room where the temperature is around 65 degrees." Boston ferns do have a habit of losing the small leaflets (called pinnae) from the sword-shaped leaves (called fronds). One reason is the air is too dry for the plant. It's natural for the plant to shed some of the leaves as it grows older.

I've never seen a Boston fern which didn't shed the small leaflets. They like a humidity soil (1 part each of sand, peat and loam). Do not let the soil get dry as it tends to encourage leaf-shedding. They like a uniform supply of moisture at all times.

Avoid direct sunshine, and keep the fern in a spot where people don't brush against it.

Not first energy crisis

NEW YORK (UPI)—This isn't the first time the American motorist and his vehicle have been threatened by an energy crisis.

Now it is the first time the United States has turned to shale to help the motorist through an oil shortage.

In the United States facing a gasoline famine? That's why Elliott Mitchell of the Geological Survey in the February, 1918, issue of National Geographic. "Shall we be required to forego automobile except to meet the stern necessities of war and military traffic?"

Soaring demand for oil in World War I led the United States Geological Survey to erect an "oil still" in Colorado to extract oil from shale rock.

The 1918 National Geographic article was accompanied by a photograph with the caption:

"The horseless vehicle's threatened de-thronement has been definitely arrested and the uninviting prospect of a motorless age has ceased to be a ghost stalking in the vista of the future."

World War I ended before real production began and the plan was dropped. It was simpler and cheaper to pump oil from the ground.

Now, however, the government is again looking at the same method of obtaining oil.

The Department of the Interior is opening six tracts of public land in Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming to petroleum companies for experimental work in crushing shale rock to extract oil.

The idea was not new, even in 1918. Oil had been produced from shale in Scotland for 70 years. Tons of rock were crushed and heated. The rock gave off petroleum vapors which were condensed into crude oil and natural gas.

A generation earlier, Mormons used the same process in Utah to obtain oil lamps. Even the earliest settlers of the American west had learned that when they built their campfires against certain rocks, the rocks themselves would burn.

Before the Civil War, 50 firms were extracting oil from shale. However, once the first oil well was drilled in 1859 at Titusville, Pa., the shale process was too costly to compete.

It takes more than a ton of the richest shale to extract one barrel of oil. Petroleum companies still are required to minimize environmental damage by landscaping and reseeded when they are through mining, adding to the cost of the product.

The experimental program now in progress will "allow us to learn whether our 600-billion-barrel shale oil reserves can be developed at acceptable economic and environmental costs," according to Secretary of the Interior Rogers C. B. Morton.

Fair Credit Reporting Act not perfect

By DON WYCLIFF

(c) Chicago Daily News
Gregory Spratt was a teenager living with his family in a small, midwestern town of about 250 persons, the kind of town where everybody knows everybody else.

One day Gregory's father took him to the local hospital to be examined by the family doctor. The same day, three other youths were brought into the hospital to be treated for problems resulting from drug abuse.

The townsfolk put two and two together and got five. It soon was being said over the back fences that Gregory Spratt was on drugs.

Several years later, after Gregory had joined the Air Force, gotten married and become the father of a small child, he received a notice of cancellation for the insurance policy he was required to have as an off-base resident.

He queried the insurance company on the cancellation and was told that Retail Credit Co., a giant Atlanta-based credit reporting firm, had conducted a background investigation on him and reported he had a history of drug abuse.

His efforts to convince the insurance company that the report was false were fruitless and so he contacted Retail Credit Co. and asked that they reinvestigate the matter, suggesting that the doctor who treated him might be the most reliable source of information. The company agreed to reinvestigate, but responded to Gregory's suggestion by telling him that he could not change their information-gathering practices.

Gregory Spratt was not the young man's real name, but everything else in the story is factual, said Fairfax Leary, a Temple University law professor who formerly was associated with Ralph Nader's Center for Responsive Law.

Spratt finally got his insurance reinstated, Leary said, but only because during his search for help he happened to run into Leary, who happened to know the insurance commissioner from Spratt's home state, who was able to get the situation rectified.

But justice in such cases should not depend on mere happenstance, said Leary, because "credit is too vital a part of our lives today."

Spratt's problem occurred after April, 1971, when the Fair Credit Reporting Act went into effect. The act was intended to curb just such abuses as the one he suffered.

However, it obviously has not been completely successful. Spokesmen for consumer groups and civil-liberty organizations have argued for tighter controls, citing other cases similar to Spratt's.

The American Civil Liberties Union told how it went to the assistance of a man whose insurance was canceled after his son was identified in an investigative report as "a long-haired hippie suspected of drug abuse."

Sen. William Proxmire, (D-Wis.), who sponsored the credit reporting act, said in a speech to the senate last August that it "has provided consumers with important new protections in the credit reporting area."

However, Proxmire added that after two years of experience with the law, certain deficiencies have been revealed.

He proposed a set of amendments to "close some of the gaps" like the one in which Spratt got caught.

The most important of the amendments "deal" with "investigative consumer reports," which differ from the basic credit report.

A normal credit report contains basic identity, employment, personal history, employment record, credit history and public record information which granters of credit "use" to decide whether an individual is a good risk for a loan or a credit card.

Investigative reports, however, delve into "a consumer's character, general reputation, personal characteristics, or mode of living," according to the Associated Credit Bureau, Inc., a Houston-based trade organization whose membership includes virtually all of the country's 2,000-plus credit bureaus.

They most often are requested by insurance companies trying to decide whether to grant a policy or employers trying to make a decision on a potential employe.

REAL ESTATE: Elizabeth Taylor is the chief bidder for the Cadillac Drive house in Beverly Hills owned by Liz's great pal, the late actor Laurence Harvey. Liz doesn't particularly need a house in Beverly Hills, but she wants to help out Harvey's widow, Paulene, and daughter Dorothea by paying them a pretty penny for the manse. Paulene has gone back to work modeling in London.

Q: I'm still fascinated by Jackie Onassis and I wondered whether she's still hounded by the public wherever she goes? — M.M. Ames, Iowa.

A: Public interest seems not to have diminished at all. In chic shops and restaurants people watch her covertly, but when she goes to department stores or the theatre she's in danger of being mobbed. The other-week Jackie and sister, Lee Radziwill, went to see Liz Minelli's one-woman show. During intermission half the audience got up and wandered down the aisle to where the President Nixon will incur a nervous illness in the spring. PLAYBOY STRIKES OUT: The wife of Israel's President Ephraim Katzir wanted to send copies of Playboy to Israel but got stuck serving on the Suez Canal and asked U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Keating to order them. However, when Israel's religious leaders heard of it, they condemned the idea, saying the magazine would undermine the moral fibre of the troops. The rabbis won and the soldiers have to content themselves with the usual entertainment fare — university lectures — and classical music programs.

Q: What's the biggest phase of show business? I say television. — L. E. Miami, Fla.

A: Sorry — it's the record business, with sales amounting to $2,000,000 in 1972. TV earns $1.5 billion, films earn $1.3 billion, sports make half a billion. Music lovers also spend $150,000 annually for rock concerts. There are at least 50 music managers earning from two to six million dollars a year.

Q: Would you settle this argument? Did the Rockefeller family donate the land that the United Nations is on or did they sell it to the U.N.? Somebody told me that the family made a huge profit on this property. — L. T. Jackson Heights, N.Y.

A: The Rockefeller family donated five acres to the United Nations. However, they did own a lot of acreage surrounding the U.N. parcel which at the time was not considered premium real estate. The prestige of the U.N. enhanced surrounding property values; and so the Rockefeller family did end up with a lot of land that had skyrocketed in price.

Q: Have you any idea what caused John Lennon and Yoko Ono to separate? — L.L., Waukegan, Wis.

A: Yoko feels that they spent too much too much time with each other and all that intense togetherness caused friction. One of the reasons they moved from their little Greenwich Village place to a huge luxury apartment was in an effort to give each a little more breathing space. Friends say that Yoko's efforts to have a baby after two miscarriages put too much pressure on their relationship.

Later at the luggage examining counter another official simply waved him through with a friendly greeting and no pawing through the suitcases.

Q: Was there anything to those stories about Richard Furton romancing Sophia Loren while he was separated from Elizabeth Taylor? — K. E., Alamogordo, N.M.

A: At first we thought it was just talk, but now important sources close to the film that Burton made with Loren make us think there was a little fire amid the smoke. Sophia didn't let matters go too far, but in one scene where they did five takes and the dialogue went, "I can't marry you or go away with you," Sophia cried real tears and was terribly upset.

The book is 18,000 words long and the assassinations of her two sons plus Ted's accident at Chappaquiddick are hinted at throughout and dealt with in the last chapter. Rose Kennedy also writes of her former daughter-in-law's marriage to Ari Onassis — most sympathetically. The royalties from the book will all go to charity, especially to groups dealing with mental health.

Chances better for producing boy

(c) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — A technique of separating human semen has been developed that, the experimenters believe, can sharply increase the likelihood that a couple desiring to produce a boy rather than a girl, can do so.

The method, reported by a group at the Schering Laboratories in Berlin, involves screening from human semen those sperm that would produce females. The remaining sperm would then be used for artificial insemination.

The procedure, dependent on the slightly greater swimming ability of male-producing sperm, cannot be used to favor the birth of girl babies. However, a research project in this city has developed a method of increasing the production of female mice.

Its approach is immunological and thus differs basically from that of the Berlin group. So far it has only increased the proportion of female births by eight per cent. However, in an editorial the British Journal Nature has said of this effect:

"Although small, one can imagine many situations in farm livestock where such a change, if accompanied by no decrease in fertility, would be of considerable economic importance." The method was described in the Nov. 30 issue of Nature by Dorothea Bennet, professor of anatomy at Cornell University Medical College, and Edward A. Boyse of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center here.

The Schering results are reported in the Dec. 14 issue of Nature. Using semen provided by 17 donors the experimenters were able to increase the percentage of male-producing sperm from roughly 50 per cent to 57 per cent. Determination of this change was made possible by a new staining process that singles out the male-producing variety.

The sex of the mammalian offspring, be it a man or a mouse, is determined by the sex chromosome carried by the sperm that fertilizes the egg within the female. Chromosomes are the bundles of genetic material that become apparent during cell division.

Each individual carries two sets of chromosomes within the nuclei of his body cells; one set from each parent. The egg cells and sperm carry only one set so that, when combined, a double set results.

So far as the sex-determining chromosomes are concerned, the normal male carries one of the "Y" type from his father and one of the "X" type from his mother.

The female carries two of the "X" type and can only produce egg cells with X-type sex chromosomes. The male, however, can sperm with either X or Y-type sex chromosomes, making for an almost equal production of male and female offspring.

The German technique was developed from earlier work in Britain, notably by A.M. Roberts at Guy's Hospital Medical School in London. Dr. Roberts pointed out last year that X-type sperm carry slightly more DNA (deoxyribonucleic acid) than Y-type sperm.

This makes the X-type sperm slightly heavier and 1 per cent fatter. Consequently, on the average, it swims 0.15 per cent slower than the Y-type sperm. Sperm are propelled by a wiskash tail, or flagellum.

Roberts showed that, when sperm were liberated at the top of a tube of seminal plasma (from which sperm had previously been eliminated) the Y sperm tended to move down through the fluid more rapidly than the X sperm. This produced a region in the tube enriched in X sperm.

He noted that boy babies outnumber girl babies in a ratio of 106 to 100 and suggested that this might in part "be due to preferential progress of the lighter Y sperm through the female reproductive tract."

The Berlin group — R.J. Ericsson, C.N. Langevin and M. Nishino — has sought to select a medium sufficiently dense and viscous (that is, resistant to swimming), to screen out the weaker swimmers most effectively. They have used various albumin solutions derived both from eggs and from cattle serum.

The mouse studies resulted from evidence reported in 1955 that female mice develop an immunity to a substance of unknown type associated with the Y chromosome of male mice. Three years later it was suggested that serum from such immunity after skin grafts from males, might be used to kill off Y-type sperm and tip the balance in favor of the X type.
