Guerrillas seize embassy

KUWAIT (UPI) — Arab and Japanese guerrillas seized the Japanese embassy in Kuwait today and threatened to kill the ambassador and five other hostages one by one unless Japan sent a plane to Singapore to rescue another group of guerrillas involved in a hijack operation there.

The Japanese government said the hostages included Ambassador Yasuoka Ishikawa, Second Secretary Koichi Kimura, Third Secretary Shosuke Itoh, attaches Mmakihel Wada and Shuhei Wada and a Japanese woman employe, Miwako Yagegashi.

Mindszenty loses offices

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty was dismissed Tuesday by Pope Paul VI as primate of Hungary and archbishop of Esztergom.

Officials said the move removed a main source of friction between the Vatican and Hungary.

Mindszenty has been a symbol of resistance to Hungarian exiles during imprisonment and later asylum.

Bar aides expel Dean

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Former White House Counsel John W. Dean III was expelled from the Virginia bar Wednesday for "unethical, unwarranted and unprofessional conduct as an attorney at law."

Attorneys for Dean had asked the three-judge disciplinary panel to suspend Dean, rather than disbar him until more evidence is available about his Watergate role.

Mr. T-N says

We hope the new Eagle fighter plane flies like its namesake with less trouble than the F-111.

Kidnapped lawyer escapes

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) — A prominent Miami Beach attorney who was abducted Tuesday evening and held for $40,000 ransom escaped his captors and was found safe today, the FBI said.

The FBI also said police had arrested two suspects in the abduction of Charles "Buddy" Courson, and that the ransom had never been paid.

Witchcraft charge denied

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (UPI) — Bob Williams was fired as chief psychologist at the Kansas State Industrial Reformatory here after a "newspaper revealed" he practices witchcraft.

Williams is suing to regain his job. He said he believes that his witchcraft practice has never interfered with his work. He said, "Evil has absolutely no role at all."

Moorer denies spying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, testified today that he gave no instructions to gather secret documents from the National Security Council because he received the information needed through normal channels.

Moorer was appearing before the committee investigating reports of a spy operation that passed documents from the National Security Council and its head, Henry A. Kissinger, to the Pentagon in 1970 and 1971.

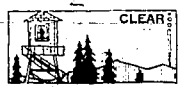

Kissinger was to testify later in the day.

Israel softens stand

By United Press International

Israel has yielded to pressure from the United States to soften its conditions for negotiating a troop disengagement with Syria, the newspaper Ha'aretz said today. Officially, the government denied the report.

According to the newspaper, Prime Minister Golda Meir and her cabinet have agreed to start talks in Washington with a Syrian envoy on troop disengagement before the International Red Cross visits Israeli prisoners of war held in Syria.

Most shackles may drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration recommended today that mandatory wage and price controls be ended except for petroleum and health care after April 30.

But Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz suggested continued controls might be asked in other areas.

"We may want to recommend another industry or two as time goes along," Shultz said in testimony to a Senate Banking subcommittee.

Shultz and John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, outlined the administration's recommendations to the subcommittee, which is considering whether controls should be ended when they expire April 30.

Dunlop said the government's 2 1/2 year, anti-inflation program was a mixed success but had largely outlived its usefulness.

Shultz did not specify which industries he might ask Congress to continue controlling, nor did he indicate when a request might come.

Subcommittee members said in opening statements that they agreed the time had come to end most, if not all, controls.

"It's fair to say the success of the program has not increased with age," Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said.

"Public opinion surveys now show significantly less desire for price freezes than earlier in the year. In addition, they reveal a great willingness to dispense with controls altogether," Dunlop said.

Unless Congress extends the Economic Stabilization Act, Phase IV wage-price controls will end April 30, when that statute expires.

Price curbs on petroleum are covered by a separate law that lasts until Feb. 28, 1975. Oil prices are administered by the Federal Energy Office.

President Nixon promised months ago that Phase IV would be "phased out," but Dunlop's comments were the first concrete proposals by the administration for the immediate future of the stabilization program.

Gasoline increase proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Energy chief William E. Simon Thursday will urge the nation's refineries to cut back heating oil production and increase gasoline output, it was learned today.

Sources in the Federal Energy Office said the move was designed to head off the growing possibility of gasoline rationing during the warmer weather.

The report came as Congress moved to give striking truckers immediate help with rising fuel costs. Simon said today he had been assured Congress would act quickly on a resolution allowing the truckers to pass on "the explosion in fuel costs."

The resolution passed the Senate Tuesday and went before the House Commerce Committee today.

In December refineries were told to cut back gasoline production to insure enough heating oil through the winter.

The energy sources said Simon is considering a pricing formula that would allow the refineries to increase their profit on gasoline, but at the same time lower the price of heating oil.

Simon said today on the NBC Today Show that motorists, who have been plagued with long waits at service stations to fill their tanks, would not face gasoline rationing in the near future.

Eagle on wing

THE FIRST F-15 Eagle to be tested by the Air Force other than at special facilities or the McDonnell-Douglas factory in St. Louis, Mo., was delivered to Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., today for testing of its tactical electronic warfare system. Delivery of the fighter and its systems to the Air Force is expected later this year. The aircraft was the 15th to reach flight status. (UPI)

Strikers blamed for bridge blast

By United Press International

A Pennsylvania Turnpike bridge was dynamited early today in violence linked to the nationwide truckers' strike and a supermarket chain was forced to airlift meat as food supplies disappeared from store shelves.

State Police said the bridge spanning the Beaver River north of Pittsburgh was only slightly damaged by the explosions and remained open.

They said the dynamite charges were ineptly placed at the bases of two concrete pillars supporting the bridge and caused only minor structural damage when they exploded.

A hole 27 inches long was gouged in one of the massive pillars, which measure 7 1/2 feet by 10 1/2 feet at the base.

The blast was heard at the State Police barracks at Beaver Falls, four miles from the bridge, troopers said.

Violence climaxed a second victim Tuesday when a South Carolina trucker was shot and killed as he was driving near Harrington, Del. Two protesting truckers were shot and wounded late Tuesday night while on picket duty at a highway intersection in northwest Alabama.

One truck was shot early today in Montgomery County in Ohio and two windshields were smashed. Minor violence also was reported in Pennsylvania.

A tractor-trailer driver was charged with obstructing traffic after he dropped his trailer in the Holland Tunnel during the morning rush hour.

The tunnel links New Jersey and New York City and police said the action appeared to be deliberate and halted inbound traffic for 45 minutes.

In Washington, a spokesman for the truckers said that despite the announced freeze on diesel fuel prices, the strike will continue indefinitely. The spokesman, Leonard Fleet, said the administration has ignored other issues involved such as freight rates and until it does consider them the week-old strike will go on.

Panic buying was reported on the increase as the effects of the strike by independent truckers to protest diesel fuel costs continued to spread. Some supermarket outlets and independent grocers reported their shelves virtually bare as food sales soared and deliveries nosedived.

Unemployment continued to grow as a result of the strike. Nearly 20,000 U.S. auto workers were idled or put on short shifts Tuesday because of a parts shortage and thousands more faced layoffs.

In Detroit, American Motors Corp. today announced more temporary layoffs because of forced cut backs due to parts shortages.

AMC said it was idling 3,500 workers at its jeep complex in Toledo, Ohio, Thursday and Friday and 1,100 workers at its Brampton, Ontario car assembly plant were laid off today, stopping production at that facility.

Jaworski stays mum

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said today he would not take a position on whether President Nixon should be forced to turn over tape recordings to the Senate Watergate Committee at the risk of prejudicial pretrial publicity.

U. S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell on Jan. 25 asked Jaworski to spell out by today what effect the Senate subpoena would have on pending criminal cases or possible further indictments.

Gesell also asked Nixon for "a particularized statement."

Funding problems still unresolved

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Thrown into the same ring Tuesday, Magic Valley's two councils of government (COG) exchanged punches but failed to resolve their mutual funding problems.

The bout was set up by the Idaho Planning and Community Affairs Agency, which detailed the big cut to federal funding for both COGs and asked them to find a solution.

The state planners obviously favored a merger of the South Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association (SIRPDA) and the Wood River Resource Area, Council of Governments (WRRACOG). The union would encourage more efficient use of the reduced funds, pooling them for the benefit of the entire eight-county area represented by the COGs.

Oregon wreck kills TF man

TWIN FALLS — Louis Emory Orndorff, 37, Twin Falls, was killed in a single car accident near Burns, Ore., early today.

His 5-year-old son, the only other passenger in the car, survived unhurt.

Relatives in Twin Falls said the child, Louis Emory Orndorff Jr., crawled up a steep embankment after the accident and flung down a motorist passing a short time later.

The family said the accident occurred about 1 a.m. and the child would have frozen to death or could have been hit by a car. He was taken to the home of Deputy Sheriff Jerry Foscoe in Jordan Valley, Ore., pending arrival of Twin Falls relatives.

Orndorff and his son were driving to Twin Falls from Oregon where the older Orndorff had been working when the car went out of control and overturned. It rolled down an embankment on a highway between Home and Burns. The highway carries little traffic.

Orndorff's wife, Grace, two stepdaughters and his mother, Mrs. Laura Orndorff all reside in Twin Falls.

Emergency, outpatient facilities proposed

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Of primary importance in the proposed Magic Valley Memorial Hospital bond issue are the expansion of emergency room services and development of an organized outpatient department.

Twin Falls County residents vote Feb. 12 on the $4.6 million bond issue.

When the hospital was built in 1950, emergency facilities consisted of a single emergency room with an adjoining utility room. Since then, the utility room has been converted to a small treatment room, with all supplies, work areas and nurse's stations crowded into these rooms.

Neither space for equipment has expanded at the rate needed to deal with the 739 per cent increase in cases treated since 1956, according to the hospital's annual reports. In 1956, there were 786 emergency cases; in 1973 4,809 received treatment.

Adding to the problem of inadequate space is use of the emergency entrance by the public. This entrance is closest to the public parking area north of the building.

The confusion caused by public traffic around the emergency room is increased by inadequate waiting areas. Not enough space is presently provided to handle a large number of people waiting for treatment or for someone receiving treatment. Both the emergency and emergency room use the same entrance and exit areas. That creates an awkward situation if many people are present.

The present emergency facilities are too small, Director of Nursing Ruth Malone says. "For a community this size, the emergency room is outdated."

The proposed emergency facilities will be located in a new structure, attached to the north side of the hospital.

Covering 3,000 square feet and costing an estimated $177,000, the proposed emergency services department would be on the northwest side of the addition. The emergency entrance would be at the northwest corner of the building. This location would take advantage of a new hospital entrance road to be constructed by the county at the west edge of the hospital grounds, as well as permitting access from Shop Avenue, West.

A separate entrance for the morgue and autopsy department would be provided on the west side of the addition but further south.

The proposed emergency department would include a large minor treatment space, a divisible into 4 small treatment areas, an emergency operating room for major cases, and a cast room. A waiting room, nurse's station and a press or police room would complete the facilities. A storage room, two work rooms, and "scrub-up" room would be located between the emergency and outpatient surgery departments, and would be used by both.

Hospital Administrator James Rosenbaum said the plan would probably be changed slightly, with arrangement and types or locations of rooms being altered in the final design.

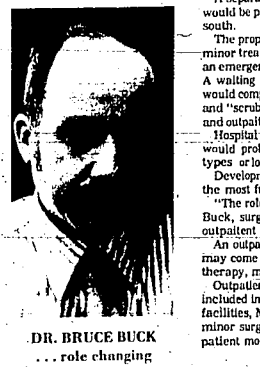

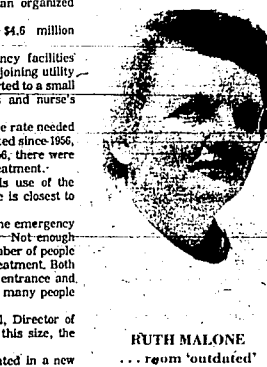

Development of an organized outpatient department is one of the most fundamental changes included in the proposal.

"The role of hospitals is changing," according to Dr. Bruce Buck, surgeon. Increasingly there will be "more and more outpatient services — this plan looks ahead."

An outpatient is one who doesn't require a hospital bed. He may come to the hospital for laboratory tests, X-rays, physical therapy, minor treatment or other services.

Outpatient surgery, a new concept in treatment, is an advance included in the proposed outpatient department. With planned facilities, Magic Valley Memorial would be able to undertake minor surgical procedures on an outpatient basis, saving the patient money and bed space for the hospital.

Negligence lawsuit filed in TF

TWIN FALLS — A $50,000 negligence suit has been filed in Fifth District Court as a result of a motor vehicle injury.

Charles G. Bean has filed suit against Lyle R. Alley and Tom Holmes alleging that negligence on the part of Alley while driving a pickup truck and backing to Holmes resulted in an injury to Bean.

Bean contends that he was driving his pickup truck west on a county road northwest of Elter when a pickup driven by Alley collided with his vehicle at a rural intersection. Bean claims the collision, which took place on June 27, 1973, occurred as a result of negligence on the part of Alley.

In the suit, Bean seeks $50,000 in general damages; $3,000 in future medical expenses; $2,000 in lost income; $225 for current medical expenses, and $25 for vehicle damage.

Ape man fossils found

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. D. Carl Johanson removed three fossils from a battered cardboard box and said at a news conference Tuesday they were "certainly, the oldest, most complete specimens of fossil man that had been found anywhere in the world."

The discovery of four leg bones and a skull segment of ancient African apemen proves for the first time that man's ancestors walked upright on two legs three million years ago, the anthropologist said.

The lower thigh, upper shin and two upper thigh bones were found within a 10-foot area in the hot, dry, Afar-Awash Valley in Ethiopia in November. The little skull fragment was picked up among chunks of sandstone a mile away on Dec. 10, only two days before the three-month expedition ended.

Johanson, assistant professor of anthropology at Case Western University in Cleveland, said the earlier discovery of a skull fragment containing a tooth in Kenya shows that man-like creatures lived as early as five and one half million years ago. But there has been no evidence until now that these hominids walked erect earlier than two million years ago.

"The great importance of the little bits of leg bones is the fact that we now have, absolute, concrete evidence that our ancestors walked on legs over three million years ago," he said.

"So we have expanded our knowledge of this particular kind of fossil man well over a million years. Some of my colleagues are a little unhappy with that because they had postulated that it was a much later evolutionary development."

"It is also extremely exciting because it seems to show a mosaic of characteristics which means we may be getting back to some of the beginnings of when man was beginning to experiment with this new posture and this new mode of locomotion."

Veterans' response said good

TWIN FALLS — The Disabled American Veterans Hall, on Shoup and Harrison streets, will remain open on Thursday for consultation with veterans and veterans widows.

Earl Newton, DAV commander, said the DAV and FEW service officer will continue serving veterans on Thursday as long as the response remains as good as it has been.

There were 16 or 17 persons conferring with the service officer in past weeks, the commander said.

PATRICIA HEARST — kidnap victim

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The FBI reported today there had been no contact with the kidnapers of Patricia Hearst and no demands for ransom had been made.

Her publisher-father Randolph A. Hearst, appealed Tuesday to the three young kidnapers to show compassion for his 19-year-old daughter and to free her.

The young University of California student was dragged screaming and only partially clothed from her apartment Monday and forced into the trunk of a getaway car by two black gunmen and a white woman.

FBI agents said today there had been no word, no hint of why the sophomore student was abducted, — no demand for money.

The armed trio gained entrance to the apartment by kicking down the door. The woman rang a door bell and pleaded with Miss Hearst's fiancé, Steven A. Weed, 26, a graduate student in philosophy, Monday to use a telephone since her automobile had stalled.

Weed declined to admit her, but two men with guns appeared and forced her into the apartment. They kicked and beat Weed with a wine bottle and dragged away the young woman, who screamed: "Oh, no! No! No!"

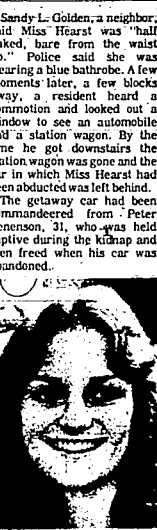

Alleged killer of 4 waives extradition

MIAMI (UPI) — Roger Caryl, 18-year-old one-time Eagle Scout charged with killing four persons at a Montana dude ranch last October, has admitted a hearing he is the person in a Justice Department wanted poster and said he would not fight extradition back to Montana.

In a brief appearance before U.S. Magistrate Peter R. Palermo, Caryl waived extradition proceedings, waived his right to a lawyer and admitted his identity. He was held in the Dade County (Miami) Jail pending arrival of warrants from Montana, expected in a day or two.

Caryl was arrested Monday in nearby Fort Lauderdale, where the FBI said he had been living in a trailer park and working in a palm furniture shop. He was recognized from a wanted poster in the local post office by someone who called federal officers, the FBI said.

The one-time Decatur, Ill., Eagle Scout led a posse of more than 50 lawmen on a two-week manhunt through the Montana wilderness before eluding the searchers, stealing a pickup truck and escaping. The truck was later found in Colorado.

Auto dealer tells 'price fixing'

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Six Twin Falls automotive parts dealers met last fall to discuss fixing a charge for deliveries of small orders, according to one parts dealer.

But other local parts dealers either deny such a meeting took place or refuse to comment on the matter.

Speaking on price fixing in general, State Deputy Atty. Gen. Wayne Meuleman said, "Combinations to fix prices to restrain trade and to unfairly compete... as long as it constitutes a conspiracy, may possibly violate state and possibly federal anti-trust laws."

However, Meuleman would not make any comments regarding the alleged meeting except that he does not know whether it would constitute a violation of the anti-trust laws.

In the past two weeks, four of the six parts dealers here who offer delivery service, have charged $1 on all deliveries or orders under $3. A fifth dealer is soon to follow.

According to Carl Felton, manager of Kirkham Auto

Parts Service Co., the manager and owners of the six companies met around October to discuss a charge for deliveries.

Kirkham is the only jobber which has decided to not charge for deliveries of parts totalling under $3.

No decision to impose a specific charge was reached at the meeting, but "I think the $1 charge was discussed mostly," Felton said.

Felton did not know whether such a meeting would be legal. "This is one thing we (the managers and owners of the different parts dealerships) were a little skeptical about," he said.

At the end of the meeting "everybody just left" with "different ideas," he said.

According to Felton the other dealerships represented at the meeting were MacKenzie Auto Equipment Co., Motor Mercantile, United Automotive Inc., Step-Ken Auto Parts Co., and Nordling Parts Co.

Felton said he has not been pressured to go along with the delivery charge which the other jobbers are imposing.

New service offered by CAA

TWIN FALLS — A new service to helping low-income families find housing is being offered by the Community Action Agency.

CAA has been helping people find housing in an informal way for a long time, according to Irene Smith, CAA worker, but in the past several weeks a program has been organized.

Basically a referral service, it is for people who have not succeeded at finding housing that suits their needs, or for those who don't know where to look.

The agency has "better luck" in finding housing, organizer Mrs. Smith says, because she has names of property-owners and people to call for possible housing in the area.

Also, landlords sometimes call when housing becomes available, she said. With families asking CAA to help find housing, the agency has begun to serve as clearing house for housing information.

People with inadequate funds for housing are directed to agencies which might be able to help.

Mrs. Smith says she hasn't had any failure yet. In the past week or so, she helped seven or eight families, working with each until she found some sort of housing.

Various local charitable groups are beginning to help, providing food, transportation or funds for emergency housing, Mrs. Smith said.

The program is basically aimed at low-income people, but in case of a fire or another emergency, CAA may be able to help other families, Mrs. Smith said.

Canton, auxiliary convene in TF

TWIN FALLS — Colfax Canton No. 13 and Ladies Auxiliary Patriarch Militant met Monday night at the Twin Falls IOOF Hall.

Mrs. Helen Breeding, president, conducted the business meeting, introduced the business meeting, introduced Brig. Gen. Lefroy Fonten of the department council and Mrs. Velma Fonten, officer of the guard of the department association of the LAFM, both Rupert.

Open house set

TWIN FALLS — A PTSA open house is planned at Twin Falls High School April 30 for incoming students and their parents.

The open house was announced at a PTA meeting Monday night at Vern C. O'Leary Junior High School. At the meeting, the timing of the coming workshop was discussed.

PTA presidents were asked to give Roy Hoper, council president, one or two names of PTA members who should receive outstanding service awards.

Pancake supper slated by grange

TWIN FALLS — The annual pancake supper of the Knoll Grange Boy Scout Troop 62 is planned from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday in the grange hall.

The event is conducted annually by the Grange to help raise money for Scouting activities.

This year's event will provide funds for summer and winter camping programs, help pay for merit badges and group activities including pack trips.

Leslie (Bill) Dean, general chairman of the event, said there are 12 boys in the troop and they have twice earned honors as the top grange sponsored Boy Scout troop in the nation.

Over the years, he said, there have been 44 Eagle Scout badges earned by members of the troop.

The menu will include pancakes, scrambled eggs, sausage, hash browns, coffee or milk and a cake walk.

The public is invited to attend. Special family tickets are available at a reduced rate.

Installation set

TWIN FALLS — Installation of new officers and a discussion of "Family Planning" are planned for the Thursday meeting of the Young Mothers Council Service.

The group will meet at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist Church, 919 Shoshone St. E. Karla Bezel will lead the discussion on family planning.

Officers to be installed include Mrs. James Green, president; Mrs. Mike O'Dell, vice president, and Mrs. David Bezel, secretary-treasurer.

Mothers of pre-school children are invited to attend. Baby sitting services are available. More information may be obtained by calling the new officers.

Income up

BONN (UPI) — The average income for West German citizens should average 22,400 marks ($9,030) by 1985, according to a financial survey conducted by the Swiss firm, A.G. Prognos.

The annual average income for West Germany's 38 million citizens in 1970 totaled only 7,400 marks ($3,080).

Safety first

Out of the first few days of Magic Valley youngsters going off to school before dawn — thanks to daylight saving time — comes evidence that some of the basic pedestrian safety rules will have to be reemphasized and observed.

A couple of instances of the violation of those rules have come to our attention — youngsters walking along streets with traffic instead of against it, others wearing dark coats and crossing against traffic lights.

So far, this area has been fortunate. There have been no accidents with fatal or other serious consequences.

But it seems that it might be well for parents and teachers to stress to their offspring and their charges that their lives might well depend on following those basic safety rules.

Fortunately it won't be long before daybreak is half an hour earlier and these youngsters heading for school will be visible to motorists again.

Open meetings

Leviston Tribune

The governments of Oregon and Washington manage to function and function well with relatively strict prohibitions against fetidulous use of secret meetings...

State Rep. Gary Ingram of Post Falls has introduced legislation to ban secret meetings in local government. Exceptions would be made only for the usual reasons — such as petty personnel matters and bargaining on the price of real estate.

Significantly, Ingram's law would put some teeth into the Idaho law. Actions found to be improperly conducted in closed meetings would be ruled invalid. And any official who voted improperly to close the meeting could be fined up to $100 and the legal costs of the citizen who brings the matter to court.

The greatest benefit of the law would be the doubt it would plant in the minds of public officials thinking of closing a meeting. Each time closes sessions were considered, the public officials would also have to consider whether the closure was in the public interest.

That might create a sort of positive paranoia that would drive public officials toward erring on the side of conducting the public's business in public.

Comeback due

Portland Oregonian

The return of the windmill salesman to rural areas is no longer as unexpected as a buggy whip drummer. But the new salesman will be offering an entirely different product than his predecessors who are estimated to have sold 6.5 million from 1880 until the depression of the 1930s spawned rural electrification programs.

Most of the western windmills that still dot an occasional farm were used to pump water. A few generated electricity and some ran small sawmills.

But the new windmill salesman will be offering a sophisticated product, tested in wind tunnels and incorporating technology, undreamed of in the 19th century. They may all capture more wind, and some, like a German model, may operate quite well in a breeze.

But what is certain is that the new models will not be nearly as reliable as the old, which hardly ever broke down. It is encouraging that NASA is working on windmills, hoping to achieve the perfect windmill that would convert 59 per cent of the wind energy to useful work.

But when the "perfect" windmill is achieved, the toughest problem still remains: How to efficiently store electricity. Until that is licked, the new windmill salesman will be selling a lot of batteries.

Red flags not waved in budget

(c) Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — President Nixon waved no red flags at a snoring Congress Monday in submitting a $304.4 billion budget reflecting "moderate restraint" in federal spending.

In contrast to a year ago, when he exhorted Congress to keep a lid on spending and to practice an uncommon frugality, Nixon recognized the uncertainties of a slowing economy caught up in an energy crisis in his fiscal 1975 budget message.

He said his administration was prepared to use "a range of measures" to support the economy, declaring that "a slowdown should not be permitted to go too far." This was, in a way, an extension of the promise made in his State of the Union address last week that "there will be no recession."

Administration officials said the stimulants under consideration include a strengthened unemployment insurance program, federal projects that can be accelerated, a speedup in the timing of the flow of payments, and stepped-outlays in defense spending.

Treasury Secretary George P. Schultz even left open the possibility of a tax cut "at the end of the line." Schultz also skirted around defining a recession, saying that the old yardsticks are inapplicable because of the energy-short dislocations.

From a political standpoint, Nixon clearly was anxious to avoid major controversies with the Congress. There were few blunt edges in his message and only the most routine reiteration of his new federalism philosophy which would emphasize the most important grant programs in favor of revenue sharing with states and localities.

He said he would propose federal aid for health, education, community development and transportation in accordance with his philosophy that state and local authorities are best able to make the decisions on how the money should be spent.

Although he still hopes to end such programs as the Hill-Burton Hospital Act and education aid to affluent districts which contain non-taxpaying federal installations, the President muted the rhetoric accompanying these objectives.

"Philosophically, the President is marching along the John Maynard Keynes vein, instead of Adam Smith," one observer remarked in noting Nixon's embrace of deficit financing to meet an economic slump.

The budget message underlined the President's stated belief in strengthening "the role of the individual" and he used it as a frame in which he outlined a national health insurance plan that would combine private insurance coverage with federal support for low-income family medical protection.

One of the more domestic initiatives contained in the budget, he called upon Congress to work with the administration in replacing what he described as an "inefficient and inequitable" welfare system with one that is "simple, fair and compassionate."

The administration has in mind direct cash payments to qualified needy, as the President indicated in the State of the Union address. But, the proposal is several years in the future, according to officials.

He also attacked the bite and determination of last year's budget, partly because of the political need for conciliation but also because of recognized uncertainties in the economy itself.

THOSTESON, M.D.

Taste improves

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Regarding loss of taste, I read about it after having had that trouble two years. I took a clipping to my doctor, and he had me taking zinc for 30 days. The last few days I noticed a distinct improvement.

The zinc is an irritant and must be taken with a meal, not before, or it will cause slight nausea and unpleasantness.

I made the mistake of tapering off on the zinc after several months and drifted back into the no taste, no smell problem. Had more trouble when resuming it, but read a further article on taking glutamic acid hydrochloride which permits the zinc to be absorbed.

Since taking that for a meal, and a new non-prescription which the doctor recommended, a multiple vitamin-mineral preparation containing a small amount of zinc, I have had great results. — Mrs. G. K.

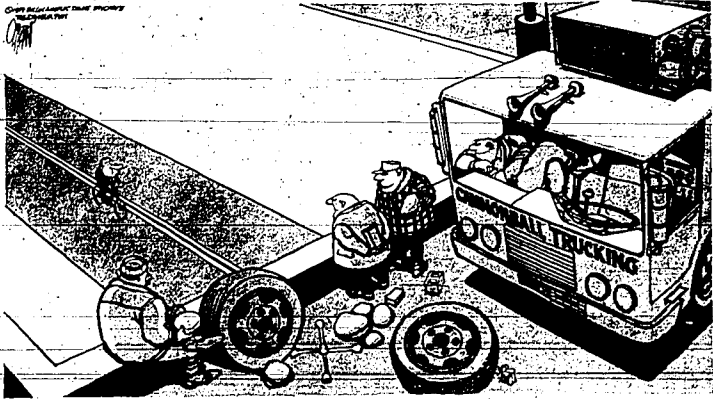

Half-hour delay

BOISE — A decision by the Boise school board to start grade school classes at 9 a.m. beginning Monday meant only a half-hour delay from the previous class schedule.

Boise Supt. Lloyd Eason said the delay, made as an adjustment to daylight saving time to prevent several months of walking to school in the dark, would last only about a month, or until earlier sunrises coincided with the old schedule.

No change was made in the class schedules for junior high and high school pupils in Boise.

In an editorial last Friday suggesting that the Twin Falls School District poll parents on whether to make a similar adjustment in elementary school classes, the Times-News said Boise had delayed class starting times by an hour. The error is regretted.

YOU READY FOR YOUR NEXT CRISIS . . . ?

More insurance, bigger premiums

WASHINGTON — American workers have now had time to digest the fact of life that the more insurance they buy the bigger the premium.

In this case, the insurance is Social Security, one of the great programs of the post-war century.

Last year, a bighearted — and politically conscious — Congress put through a two-step benefit increase of 10 per cent — and simultaneously raised the maximum wage base on which the 6.55 per cent Social Security tax is imposed from $10,000 to $13,200. For those who took only a quick look, this seemed nice.

But two results are already discernible. For many individuals, Social Security payroll withholdings now exceed income tax withholdings.

Worse still, higher Social Security benefits have added fuel to the fire of inflation. Said a report by the Congress' Joint Economic

ANDREW TULLY

Committee, "The budget costs of consumers rose dramatically during 1973, primarily as a result of inflation, but to some extent because of increased tax payments. We estimate an 11 per cent rise in Social Security payments for the low-budget family over 1972, and a 31 per cent rise in payments for the intermediate and higher-budget families."

In meat-and-potatoes terms, the committee's study figured that "the increased cost of Social Security payments (taxes) was so large in 1973 that it increased its share of the average consumer's budget from 4.2 to 5.1 per cent. With higher Social Security taxes this year, the high cost of living will take another jump."

Increasing the maximum wage base for 1974 won't boost the tax, or contributions, paid by the low-budget family. But middle-budget families consist of people, too, and for them the additional tax will be about $106. The high-budget family will pay an additional $140. And some of the benefits paid out of the Social Security trust fund go to 10 million children and

Hospital bond issue queried

Editor, Times-News:

I just want to suggest to you that you've neglected one idea for stressing hospital needs which might just be good: a patient in a bed on the front lawn under a tent. This might really be effective on the hospital bond issue.

About two years ago I remember an editorial and/or some news releases relative to the excess of hospital space in Magic Valley. Specifically, you wrote that the Twin Falls Clinic was just not needed, excess accommodation the community could do without. This provoked a reply from one of its staff and from several defenders of that splendid privilege facility.

The near communities of Gooding, Jerome and Burley have built new, or updated their hospitals but now that the farmers of Twin Falls County actually made enough off of their '73 crops to pay their bills, we'd better take some of it away so they won't get any big ideas. Was that the rationale?

It's the fact that anyone over 17, property taxpayer or not, can compel us to pay this much more in taxes that really gets to me. Hadn't been $25 more a year I could swallow that. But again the property taxpayer will get hit. There are things that Magic Valley Memorial Hospital needs. I do not argue with that. But I do not think that over the long haul we can afford this size of a bond issue.

MRS. ED CONRAD Gooding

Not approved

BUHL — Ted Quigley, Buhl, said Monday his name was "mistakenly" included on a letter to the editor that appeared in the Times-News Sunday. Quigley said he had not approved the use of his name with the letter.

widows who have never contributed a dime to the fund. That's as it should be, of course, but it is indisputably an expense item and thus contributes to inflation.

Maybe Rep. James A. Burke, D-Mass., has the solution. Burke has said that the general Treasury should take over some of the cost of Social Security. Burke would reduce the rate of the payroll tax on employers and employees to 3.9 per cent each. He would increase the maximum annual earnings which the tax is levied from the present $13,200 to $25,000. The result would be a deficit of between $4-and $6-billion annually, to be covered from Treasury funds raised by other taxes.

You're right. The dough would have to come from somewhere, meaning increased taxes in other fields. But I for one would not go into a tantrum if our ruling lords slapped increased excess taxes on luxury items such as cigarettes, booze, diamond rings, emerald necklaces, automobiles in the dreadnought class and excess profits earned by the big oil companies.

You go looking for money where it is and it is not in the pocket of the Social Security pensioner or the coal miner.

Viewer raps TV 'rights'

Editor, Times-News:

The following is an open letter to the public which has been written to Orval Hanson, Frank Church, James Moore, Steven Symms, and Dean Burch who is the FCC chairman in Washington, D. C. Anyone wishing to write to these parties may obtain their addresses by calling Cable-Vision, Inc., as I did.

Dear Sir: I am writing to you in regards to Docket No. 19554, concerning the rights given to our local television station, Channel 11, Twin Falls, Idaho, in accordance with the Federal Communications Commission.

Mainly, my right of Freedom of Choice. As a resident and taxpayer of the State of Idaho, and a natural-born citizen of these United States of America, I'm confused about my rights that are declared in the Constitution of the United States of America.

Recently, I find this Freedom of Choice has been taken from me by the FCC. I am writing to you, only to find that Channel 11 has been given their "first rights" due to the Federal Communications Commission's prime time ruling, and I have missed the program completely.

What gives anyone else the right to "choose my channel" for me? I paid for the television set, I am buying my home that the television rests in, and I pay taxes on the property the home rests on.

I also pay a cable-cable-vision $6.00 a month, by my choice, to enjoy their better viewing offered, better selections of programming, better variety, and better management.

The management at Channel 11 does not pay the $6.00 monthly fee for the service offered to me by the cable-vision company, so why should they have the right to designate at what time of day a program will be aired, say one hour earlier, when I may choose to watch it on the cable service, one hour later? Channel 11 does not realize their loss, not just viewers, but advertisers as well.

Afterthought: "Democracy" Let us guard it closely, this thing called Liberty.

Abolition of DST asked

Editor, Times-News:

An open letter to President Nixon: After reading the headlines in yesterday's local newspaper, the Twin Falls Times-News, says: "Time running out on S. Idaho DST exemption," I am compelled to write you this letter.

That headline should have read: "Time running out for the political leaders at Wash. D. C. to abolish the unconstitutional DST." Last winter, sometime before you asked for this daylight saving time, you said it would save energy.

May I ask: What kind of energy? Not electrical energy, for the hour we save in the evening "used in the morning." If it was to conserve on the gas, you've made the wrong move. You should have abolished it all together. Why do I say this? Mostly common sense.

A groceryman told me: "With DST, I normally sell more snack foods. People have an extra hour and they are on the go more." If they are on the go more, they burn more gas.

An attendant at a service station says: "Normally our gas sale has picked up after DST is in effect. This means more gas sales. A country-side grocery store that sells both. Manager says: "I always expect my gas pumps sales to pick up after DST, snacks also. When people have an extra hour, they're not going to sit home and do nothing. I'm a newspaper editor says: "When I get the extra hour, I'm going to do more golfing, and Godless hearts may follow a crude and pagan creed. But no appeal of passion will sway this "Happy Breed."

Long, long years we've labored for this precious thing. Bought it with our sorrows and our suffering. The freedom of religion, the rights of speech and thought.

The way of life and living, for which we've worked and fought. Heavy are the burdens that the free must bear:

I'm sure not going to walk to the golf course." More gas burned.

Even scores of friends also say, "If gas is available, we will be on the go more." Most agree with me in saying, "Abolish DST and do away with those three-way weekends. This not only would save gas, but lives." "Speaking of lives: Have you been reading lately of the schools across the nation who want to start school one hour later since DST? Why? Too many, yes, too many children are being killed in the pre-dawn hours crossing roads to board buses. Doesn't this bother your conscience?"

I did have one person to give DST a good word: A radio news commentator from Oregon, to whom I wrote, said, "I don't think that DST will save any energy of any kind but I feel it will help some on the crime in late evening hours when the purse snatchers are attacking the elderly who are on the road home from the stores. The DST will close stores one hour earlier and give these old people, who are victimized, an extra hour, to get home."

I'm a handicapped person, an ex-math teacher, and my math says, "They've gone the wrong way with DST." You should abolish it. If you people over there in the White House would use your heads for something else other than a hat rack, and think of what you are doing to our country and your fellow men, you'd shape up or ship out. I'm getting tired of this dog eat dog.

Life and death

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most sea life undergoes quick death, and if that were not the case there would be scarcely room for swimming.

The shad, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica, is reputed to lay from 30,000 to 100,000 eggs per year and an individual oyster can produce 55 million to 114 million eggs during its lifetime.

The Atlantic cod is said to lay as many as 9 million eggs annually and the American eel from 5 million to 20 million every year.

Nussbaum speaks to TF group

TWIN FALLS — Marlin Nussbaum, Twin Falls Future Farmers of America speech contest winner, presented his winning talk for the I.B. Perrine Toastmasters Club Monday.

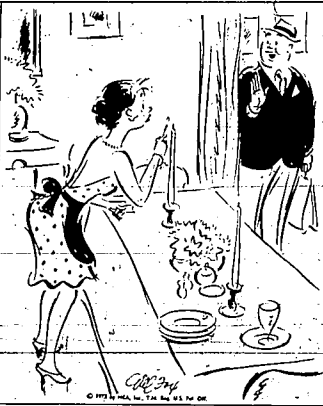

Members were advised the serious speech contest will be April 5.

Dwight Shaw was the speech winner. Bob Holloway and Nussbaum won table topics honors. Bill Foster was toastmaster.

Syrian attacks draw reactions

By United Press International
 Israel today threatened a "vigorous and immediate reaction" to Syrian attacks on the Golan Heights, but U.N. officials reported establishing a peace line between opposing armies on Egypt's quiet Suez Canal front.

In Cairo, the authoritative newspaper Al-Ahram today backed Syria's tough position for negotiating a troop withdrawal pact with Israel.

The newspaper said the agreement should link pull-backs with Israel's withdrawal from all occupied Arab lands and Jerusalem's recognition of the rights of Palestinian refugees.

Political sources in Damascus said visiting President Tito of Yugoslavia would attempt to promote a troop disengagement accord in talks with Syrian leaders.

The sources said Tito would urge Syria to accept the Geneva peace talks set up by the superpowers after last October's 17-day Middle East war.

In Washington, the White House said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko paid "special attention" to the Middle East crisis during talks Monday and Tuesday.

Syria said more fighting erupted on the Golan Heights

Tuesday and reported several Israeli casualties. Israeli spokesmen said the front was quiet.

"The Syrians are trying to force a retreat on negotiations with Israel by heating up the sector," an Israeli military source said.

The source said Israel was "maintaining a policy of vigorous and immediate reaction to all Syrian aggressive initiatives."

Israeli leaders have refused to negotiate until Syria turns over a list of prisoners seized during the 1973 war. Egypt and Israel exchanged prisoners as the first step of their cease-fire agreement and began withdrawing troops on Jan. 25.

In Cairo, a spokesman for the U.N. peacekeeping force said Egypt and Israel have finished thinning their forces in the southern sector of the Sinai Desert along the Suez Canal's east bank.

He said U.N. troops had established a buffer zone between the opposing forces, as spelled out in the troop pull-back agreement signed Jan. 18.

He said the southern Sinai area was not divided into three parts. Egyptian troops were in Gaza, a strip along the canal. Israeli forces were 13 miles east of the waterway and UN troops occupied a buffer zone between them.

Innocent verdict

Doctor acquitted of murder

MINNEAPOLIS, N.Y. (UPI) — A jury took exactly one hour Tuesday to find Dr. Vincent A. Montemarano innocent of murder in the death of a patient that authorities had initially said was a mercy killing.

Montemarano was charged in the Dec. 7, 1972, death of Eugene Bauer, a terminally ill cancer patient at the Nassau County Medical Center. The 34-year-old physician was accused of injecting potassium chloride in the patient's arm.

District Attorney William

Cahn, who first characterized the death of Bauer as "a mercy killing," later said, instead, that it was a "murder of convenience."

He said the doctor administered a fatal injection so he would not have to return to the medical center that night to pronounce the death of a man who was comatose and dying of cancer of the pharynx, pneumonia in both lungs and a pulmonary embolism.

A hush fell over the small courtroom when the eight-man, four-woman jury entered the room. "We took only one vote, and it was unanimous for acquittal," a juror said later.

Cahn, who prosecuted the case himself—something he had not done before in his 11 years as district attorney—smiled faintly and then congratulated the defense lawyers, J. Russell Clune and James O'Brien.

After the verdict was announced, wild, spontaneous cheering from more than half the spectators filled the room.

Montemarano watched the jurors "quietly" and when he heard the verdict slumped back into his chair.

"This is the greatest moment of my life," Montemarano said. "I'm going to get a good night's sleep for the first time in eight months." Then he laughingly added: "After that I'll probably get drunk for a week."

"I was scared," he said when asked if he had doubted the outcome of the trial.

Rebel forces close highway

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel forces sleeping up their drive against beleaguered Phnom Penh today, seizing six miles of a strategic highway on the southern outskirts of the capital.

Field reports also said 100 government infantrymen Tuesday night abandoned an outpost three miles southeast of the capital and withdrew to within a mile of Phnom Penh's city limits.

The rebel drive on Phnom Penh closed Highway 2 from the southern boundary of the capital to Prek Ho, the front line of Cambodian troops on the southern front.

Rebel gunners pounded a refugee camp and cigarette factory on the edge of Phnom Penh with mortar fire Tuesday. The high command said today the attack was followed by a three-round rocket assault on a southern suburb.

Fifteen civilians were killed and 25 wounded in the mortar barrage, field reports said. The shells struck the main building of the Khmer Tobacco Co. and a nearby warehouse which had been converted into a refugee camp.

Field reports said a government outpost at Prek Pra, 30 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, was overrun Tuesday night after a barrage of mortar and automatic weapons fire hit the camp. Government casualties were not known.

The Prek Pra outpost was on the east bank of the Tonle-Bassac River, within sight of the United Nations bridge leading into Phnom Penh.

In another development, the Cambodian military command said government troops "liberated" about 1,000 persons from rebel control in the rice-growing province of Battambang; area 145 miles northwest of Phnom Penh.

The command said the operation was ordered "to protect the gathering of rice in the region of Stung Mongkol Borei." It gave no details on casualties.

DST sponsor changes mind

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Calif. (UPI) — Rep. William Keichum, R-Calif., who coauthored the bill that brought in winter daylight savings time as an energy saving measure, now says he will sponsor a bill to get rid of it.

"The time to admit a mistake is when you've made one," Keichum said. "The change in winter daylight time has saved little energy, but has caused many hardships," and even led to an increase in fuel use by parents who drive their children to school in darker morning hours, rather than let them walk.

Belfast officials seal mailboxes

BELFAST (UPI) — Postal authorities spread out across Belfast today, sealing corner mailboxes to thwart a wave of bombings that injured several persons during the last two weeks.

A British army spokesman said the order to seal the boxes came after extremely violent protests in Londonderry, the bomb-laden and sprayed shrapnel over a wide area.

Two bombs exploded in mail boxes in Belfast Monday night, wounding nine persons, one of them seriously, police said.

The spokesman said mailboxes in both Protestant and Roman Catholic areas of the city had been blown up, each with an estimated five pounds of explosives.

He said a blast in one Roman Catholic neighborhood seemed to prompt another blast in the other's as revenge. There are an estimated 300 corner mail boxes in the city.

"It seems whoever set them didn't care who got hurt, just so long as someone did get hurt," a police official said.

So far, 949 persons have died in four years of strife between Protestant and Catholic minority Roman Catholics and British troops in the province.

In other violence, two bombs — one in Newry and the other in Londonderry — caused minor damage late Tuesday, police said. Neither bomb injured anyone.

The bomb in Newry was planted outside an automobile showroom. In Londonderry, the bomb was placed outside a supermarket. In both cases, police had cleared the area after receiving a telephoned warning.

Kissinger plans visit to Moscow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will visit Moscow in late March to make plans for a visit by President Nixon to the Soviet Union later in the year.

The White House announced the trips Tuesday at the end of a visit here by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

A communiqué said: "It was agreed that Secretary Kissinger will visit Moscow in the second half of March 1974 in connection with preparations for the visit to the Soviet Union, which will take place this year in accordance with the agreement reached in June, 1973."

No date for the Nixon meeting with Soviet Communist Party Secretary General Leonid A. Brezhnev was mentioned, but officials indicate the President hopes to make the visit in late spring or early summer.

It would be the third Nixon-Brezhnev summit. Nixon visited the Soviet Union in May 1972 after his trip to China. Brezhnev visited the United States in June 1973.

State Department officials said Kissinger and Gromyko agreed the second round of Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) would begin Feb. 19 in Geneva.

U.S. officials hoped that a treaty could be negotiated limiting development of offensive nuclear weapons in time to be signed by Nixon and Brezhnev at the summit meeting.

The communiqué said "special attention was devoted to the Middle East" in Gromyko's talks here. It said both Washington and Moscow believed the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe "should reach a successful conclusion as soon as possible."

"The question of mutual force reduction" in "Central Europe" was touched on," the communiqué said.

Bill moves

BOISE (UPI) — The House State Affairs Committee headed off a possible legislative slowdown Tuesday when it sent to the floor with approval a bill to ban smoking in certain public places.

Rep. Wayne Loveless, D-Pocatello, threatened the first big filibuster of this legislative session earlier in the day because his bill had reposed in the committee without action for a week.

Automakers face mounting layoffs

DETROIT (UPI) — The country's automakers, already reeling from layoffs caused by slumping sales, were faced today with mounting layoffs due to parts shortages caused by the nationwide truckers' stoppage.

As many as 28,000 auto workers were idled Tuesday at seven Midwest plants because the dispute, but many were sent back on the job today.

In addition, more than 75,000 workers were off the entire week because of big car production cutbacks.

Ford Motor Co. was forced Tuesday to cut its second shift at the Lorain, Ohio, assembly plant to four hours because completed cars were piling up in storage lots and there was not enough room to build more.

More than 1,400 workers were sent home.

The inventories of parts are running low at other Ford plants and the company faces additional layoffs if the stoppage continues, Richard L. Howard, transportation procurement and analysis manager in charge, said.

The auto industry is heavily dependent on truck transportation to keep the parts pipeline open.

REP. ORVAL HANSEN asks disclosure

By DAVID ESPO T-N Capitol Bureau

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho said this week President Nixon should cooperate fully with the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment investigation.

In a telephone interview, Hansen said the president should make available to the committee all information that is "materially relevant" to the investigation including tapes, memoranda and other papers.

The congressman said he expects a vote in the House on a bill of impeachment sometime later this year, and said "I haven't made up my mind yet" on how his vote would be cast.

The Judiciary Committee is expected to issue its impeachment report this spring, Hansen said the House is now embarked on a "course that will result in a final vote after the committee concludes" its work.

In his recent trip around the second Congressional District, Hansen said, he found voters had lost some of their past confidence in the President.

"But those who have taken kind of extreme positions" either for or against the president leaving office, "are a little bit softer," he said.

Hansen said some of the president's more vocal supporters among his constituency were "obviously shaken by some of the recent disclosures" while the most consistent critics of the President "sense the possibility of an impeachment" with all its implications to the country.

On another topic, Hansen said he would withhold the names of persons donating less than $100 to his reelection campaign, as the law permits. His most recent federal campaign report included a list of persons who bought more than $100 in tickets to his fund-raising dinner in Twin Falls, but did not list those who bought less than $100 in tickets.

Hansen said his office has a complete list of donors, but won't make it public because no one was told it would become public when the money was solicited.

The congressman said, however, he had no objection to releasing the names if the donors themselves want to.

Assessment lid

BOISE (UPI) — House taxwriters agreed Tuesday to introduce legislation limiting tax assessment of farm properties exclusively to actual and functional uses.

Sought by Rep. E. V. McHann, R-Ketchikan, the bill would apply to assessment of agricultural properties of five acres or more. It would limit to those two criteria the determination of market value of the property for tax purposes.

Conservatives win

BOISE (UPI) — House conservatives challenged the authority of the speaker today and won 45-21.

Rep. C. I. Otter, R-Caldwell, tried to force Speaker Wm. J. Lanting, R-Hollister, to send to the Judiciary Committee his resolution to limit the state budget increase for fiscal 1975 to 5.5 per cent from 1974. Lanting planned to send the resolution to the appropriations committee.

Rep. Edward W. Rice, R-Boise, objected to changing the traditional procedure of the House, by which it is the prerogative of the speaker to assign bills to the committees. Rice's objection was sustained 45-21 on a roll call vote and Lanting sent the resolution to appropriations.

Senators consider revamp

T-N Capitol Bureau — BOISE — The Senate, public hearings being held today, is prepared today to vote on a reorganization plan for the state's legislative-district boundaries.

Three separate reorganization measures are on the third reading for final consideration. Two of them would split Gooding County between two legislative districts, while the third measure would leave it intact in District 22, where it now falls.

The three measures include: — One sponsored by Sen. J. Ellison Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, which increases the population of District 22, Camas and Elmore Counties, by adding a precinct from Ada County in District 17. Steen's proposal also rearranges Districts 9 and 14, by taking part of Ada County and moving it into District 9, which includes all of Lewis Valley, Idaho, Gem and Adams counties.

— A measure sponsored by Sen. Walt Yarbrough, R-Grand View, putting the Bliss and Henderson precincts of Gooding County into District 22, with Camas and Elmore Counties, and leaving the rest of Gooding County in District 22. Yarbrough's bill also includes the changes in District 9 and 14 that are in Steen's measure. In addition, it makes changes in three legislative districts in eastern Idaho.

— A third measure, which has already passed the House, splits Gooding County between districts 22 and 23, and incorporating somewhat different changes in districts 9 and 14, does not make any changes in eastern Idaho.

— The Senate State Affairs Committee conducted a public hearing on the three measures Tuesday.

Hard line on pushers for Andrus

T-N Capitol Bureau BOISE — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus took a hard line against drug-pushers at his news conference Tuesday urging that dealing in drugs — including marijuana — be a felony under Idaho law.

And, the governor said "people who use marijuana need help."

Andrus said the sale of marijuana is just as bad as the sale of any other drug. "People who smoke marijuana," he said, "need help," adding that if enforced assistance is needed it should be looked into.

In other law enforcement topics discussed during the news conference, Andrus said he had been assured by Atty. Gen. W. Anthony Park that narcotics enforcement difficulties would be ironed out before the function shifts to the Department of Law Enforcement with government reorganization.

Andrus also said he would oppose "any legislation that would give law enforcement" a blank check to wiretap within the state.

Time change bill amended

BOISE (UPI) — A bill to put Southern Idaho back on standard time next fall was amended in the House today to make the effective date Oct. 6 instead of Oct. 1.

Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth, sponsor of the bill, called for the amendment. He said that would make the time change occur on a Sunday and would be least-disruptive that way.

Andrus says 'responsiveness' main factor in reorganization

By DAVID ESPO Times-News Capitol Bureau GOV. Cecil D. Andrus said Tuesday money was not the "overriding argument" in favor of state government reorganization during the 1974 election.

"No one ever said this would be a great savings in money," the governor told a news conference in his office, claiming the main point in favor of reorganization was greater "responsiveness to the people."

Andrus told newsmen in response to one question that changes had been made in the proposed reorganization legislation since he saw earlier versions that he could not accept.

He made his remarks at a general news conference after signing into law two pieces of legislation designed to facilitate funding of a replacement dam at American Falls.

Several conservative members of the legislature have kept up a running criticism of the reorganization legislation, claiming it is a "fraud" in part because it won't result in a savings to the taxpayers of the state.

In another area, Andrus said the idea of a disaster relief bill in the legislature is "a good one," but steered away from discussing specific legislative proposals.

The governor said the federal government will advance 75 per cent of disaster area, and also said some localities can use tax anticipation notes or local surplus in funds to finance immediate reconstruction.

He did observe, however, that some members of the Senate have "serious reservations about giving up" their right to appropriate state funds. A disaster relief bill that has already cleared the House enables a special committee to decide where to spend funds on an emergency basis.

On other subjects, Andrus — Sounded less than optimistic over the confirmation hopes of Robert Thomas, appointed by the governor to the Fish and Game Commission. The governor said he didn't "have a feel" whether confirmation would be successful, but said he thought "tempera might have cooled" since the confirmation fight over Robert Lenaghen to the Public Utilities Commission.

GOV. CECIL ANDRUS "no savings"

Changes proposed

T-N Capitol Bureau BOISE — A study group looking into local government in Idaho issued its final report Tuesday, calling for basic constitutional changes in the way counties are run in the state.

Among the recommendations of the six-month study are proposed constitutional amendments providing local option to permit three, five or seven member county commissions.

Another major recommendation of the study group is that non-property taxes be used to finance local government.

Currently, each commission has three members. The study group also wants a constitutional amendment to provide county option of electing a county supervisor as chief local executive or appointment of a county administrator.

Another major recommendation of the study group is that non-property taxes be used to finance local government.

School tax relief measure proposed

T-N Capitol Bureau BOISE — The House Appropriations Committee introduced legislation Tuesday that, in effect, provides tax relief to counties to make up for extra levies required a year ago for education.

The measure appropriates $908,000 from the general fund for 42 counties. Each county would set the amount it raised in taxes by order of the State Board of Education to offset the general fund holdback ordered by the governor during the last fiscal year.

The bill also requires each county to cut back its tax levy for the 1974 tax year in the amount it receives from the state. The sponsor of the measure, Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, said earlier in the session he would introduce the bill because of the "unnecessary" taxes that resulted from the holdback.

The bill would appropriate the following amounts to Magic Valley counties:

- Blaine, $17,565; — Camas, $2,578; — Cassia, $25,164; — Elmore, $18,399; — Gooding, $15,074; — Jerome, $16,500; — Lincoln, $7,214; — Minidoka, $18,560; — Twin Falls, $32,048.

Revamp ravelling

BOISE (UPI) — One of the basic trends of government reorganization nearly became unraveled in the House Tuesday.

After floor and committee action the bill headed for the Republican caucus.

By a vote of 46-20, the House reconsidered the bill for changes an "executive department for fish and game and sent it back to committee for amendment.

Floor sponsor Ray Lincoln, R-Twin Falls, said the bill's executive division heads from the merit system and some feel this would be bad in that agency. But some members of the reorganization committee said that will deliberate to keep it in line with other agency reorganization thereby making state officials more responsive to the public.

Although the House voted to send the bill back for changes the committee balked, refusing to put it into committee of the whole for amendment. Chairman Harold Snopce, R-Moscow, said the GOP caucus may have to resolve the issue today.

Farm support funds cut sharply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With direct federal farm subsidies at the lowest level in 19 years, President Nixon proposed to Congress Monday an Agriculture Department budget in which two-thirds of the money would be spent for food stamps, school lunches and other aid to the general public.

Officials said only $757 million would be needed for farm commodity support programs, including $286 million for direct payment subsidies in the 1974 crop season. This would be the lowest subsidy total since 1955, when only $200 million was spent.

The direct subsidy payments were $3.9 billion in the 1972 crop season and $2.5 billion for the 1973 crop season.

Total agriculture spending proposals for the fiscal year beginning July 1 are estimated at $2.2 billion, down $127 million from the current fiscal year. Also included was expanded credit for rural development and electrification, but the budget request proposed a slight cut in rural housing loans.

The sharp decline in direct subsidies was the result of a new type of support program adopted by Congress last year for feed grains, wheat and cotton. Under this program, effective at the beginning of this year, support subsidies are paid only if market prices drop below "target support" levels.

Wheat payments will also drop to zero and only a nominal $4 million, compared with $75 million last year, is expected to be needed in cotton subsidies.

For conservation payments, the budget proposed $117.2 million, up $21.8 million from the year earlier. The administration had sought to eliminate the program entirely but backed down after congress voted $175 million for the current year.

For water and sewer grants, Nixon proposed $20 million, a $10 million cut from the current year and far below the $150 million Congress voted this year.

Nixon also proposed:

- Nearly $5 billion for food assistance to needy families and school children, up nearly $1 billion from the current year.
- Nearly $541 million for agricultural research and extension, a $33 million increase including a $9 million increase for research on stopping up production of meat and soybeans.

Another cut in Food for Peace aid to needy countries, which would get shipments worth $981 million compared with $1,094 billion in the current year.

Government-backed loans of $2.3 billion for rural electric and telephone co-ops, up nearly $400 million from the current year.

Forest Service appropriations at levels geared to keep new timber sales at the current year's level of 11.8 billion board feet.

Government-insured rural housing loans, plus grants, totaling $2.1 billion, a $16.8 million cut from the current year. Officials said more stress will be placed in the new fiscal year on repairing and rehabilitating homes, and less on building new homes in an effort to assist needier rural people.

Truck strike cost rising, Butz says

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The truckers strike will cost the American economy tens of millions of dollars, perhaps hundreds of millions of dollars, within one week, according to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

"The less to date would not be great," Butz said Monday. "But it will pyramid very, very rapidly if we don't get this thing settled and get these products moving promptly."

"If we don't get this thing settled in a week, the loss will easily run into tens of millions of dollars if not hundreds of millions of dollars."

"The real loss will be for consumers, indeed for the families of truckers themselves, that aren't able to find the products they normally expect on the shelves of the supermarkets of America."

Speaking at the 70th annual convention of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association, Butz said the government should try to regulate food prices.

Improving fuel supplies seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The farm fuel supply outlook will improve in a few weeks, as oil companies and local distributors struggle out of their current confusion about how to operate under new federal allocations rules, the Agriculture Department predicted today.

Officials said they are convinced farmers will get enough fuel to avoid any major hitches in their drive for record food and fiber production this year.

They conceded, however, that although prospects for nitrogen fertilizer supplies appear to have improved, farmers still face the prospect of shortages of nitrogen and phosphate as they gear up for the spring season.

Supplies of gasoline for farmers were said to be still short in many parts of the country and one or more counties in Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Nebraska and Kansas reported cases where farmers had to idle machinery for lack of gas last week.

Much of the trouble was blamed on "confusion of lack of understanding at the distributor level" about allocation rules.

Beet worker pay hiked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department today announced approval of a wage hike for sugarbeet field workers, including a 7-per cent increase in minimum hourly wages.

Officials said the wage floor for hand labor operations would be raised, effective Feb. 18, to $2.30 an hour. This is 15 cents above the current minimum.

For work performed on a piecework basis, rates would be raised by amounts ranging from $1 to $2.50 an acre. The new floors include $16.50 an acre for thinning, $14 for weeding, $21.50 for hoeing and $25.75 for hoe-trimming. A rate for blocking and thinning, applicable only in California, was raised to $37 an acre.

Officials said other piecework rates can be negotiated by workers and their farmer-employers, provided actual earnings do not dip below $2.30 an hour. As usual, officials added that the minimums can be reduced 15 per cent for 14 to 15 year-old workers.

The wage minimums are set under the Federal Sugar Act. That law requires farmers to pay wages approved as "fair and reasonable" by the secretary of agriculture if they want to qualify for government sugar support subsidies.

Kind hands get more milk

ST. LOUIS — Dairy cows that develop emotional problems at milking time if they are not on good terms with the workers who operate the milking machines, a representative of the University of Idaho Cooperative Extension Service said here Tuesday.

Edward A. Fiez of Caldwell, said cows with emotional hang-ups become prone to udder infections. The extension dairy specialist said a cow which resents mechanized milking procedures will withhold some of its milk. Incompletely milked cows are susceptible to mastitis disease.

Fiez addressed the annual conference of the National Mastitis Council, an animal health organization. His topic was "Principles of Milking Management."

Mechanical flaws in automated milking systems cost dairymen profits and contribute to the mastitis problem, Fiez said. In his speech, he outlined methods for recognizing and correcting defects in milking machines and dairy barn procedures. Citing the need for a "feeling of good rapport" between the cow and her human associates, the University of Idaho dairy specialist cautioned dairymen against hiring workers who are "careless and inconsiderate" in their associations with animals.

"When a cow is handled gently and kindly, she is healthier and more productive," Fiez said. "We can speed up milking by streamlining our procedures, but one thing we'll always need in the milking parlor is kindness."

Econo worry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Texas Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and John Tower believe the grassroots concern of Americans is the economy.

In a survey by United Press International, Bentsen, a Democrat, said most Texans are "concerned by the high cost of living and feel the administration is doing a poor job of managing the economy."

Tower, a Republican, said most people are "concerned with the economy and the energy crisis."

Machinery demands go unmet

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Farm equipment dealers can't meet the demand for machinery and have orders on hand which will last into 1975, an implement dealer said today.

"There is a fantastic shortage of farm equipment," said Edward Elliot, Burley, Idaho, president of the Intermountain Association of Hardware and Implement Dealers.

"My dealership hasn't received a tractor delivery in two months," he said. "Farmers are all wanting to buy more equipment. They've had lean years and now, with high profit years, they're real wanting equipment."

He said he can't meet the demand for tractors, and has orders to last into 1975.

The association is conducting its 70th annual convention here.

ATTENTION!

TWIN FALLS CANAL CO. STOCKHOLDERS

Thanks to an alert Times-News reporter, we now know how easily conveyance agreements can lead to claims on our own water. The Tuana project has storage capacity for 23,900 acre feet of water, but is expecting delivery of 33,000 acre feet. Thus, on-season water deliveries must have been a part of the Tuana plans. The Deep Creek filing gives further credence to this thought. Despite assurances in the Times-News and Buhl Herald from Harry LeMoyné, Tuana president, that the filing had been withdrawn, we are now aware that, in fact, it hasn't. And it now appears the filing will not be withdrawn — only amended.

The Canyon View system, like Tuana, is designed to utilize on-season water. Their canal can deliver water to the reservoir, or, through utilizing a bypass, convey the water directly to the project's land. This by-pass is of value only for on-season water. Our conclusion: Both Tuana and Canyon View systems can and will use on-season water and the Twin Falls tract is the best place to get it.

Mr. LeMoyné has also stated that further expansion of the projects will be prevented by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management designation of the lands for cattle grazing. But, statements from Dave Baker, B.L.M. realty specialist for the Jarbidge Resource Area, in the January 31 Times-News article indicates that the lands can be reclassified.

Our conclusion: Additional land can be made available, and will be farmed — if water is made available. But remember, any water for expansion would be from on-season flow, as both storages would be filled with off-season water.

In the January 31 Times-News article, John Rosholt, Twin Falls Canal Co. attorney said "he cannot" project whether the court would overlook a sound legal argument to say no "to any request by Tuana or Canyon View for Twin Falls Canal Co. water during a water-short year. But the court's ruling would affirm the canal company's long established priority." In other words, we could end up with our water right — but less water. (If you'd like to learn more about how water can be taken without altering water rights, read the adjacent article, A Way With Water.)

There is too much muddy water surrounding the Tuana-Canyon View proposal. Our best insurance is to Vote NO!

For those of you who want to change your vote — THERE'S STILL TIME. Go to the Twin Falls Canal Co. office, request a new ballot, date it, and vote. The latest dated ballot will be counted. But hurry — the votes will be counted February 11th.

IF YOU HAVE ANY DOUBT -

VOTE NO!!

COMMITTEE TO PROTECT OUR WATER

A Way With Water

Any farmer who irrigates his land knows that his "water right" must be protected or his farm is valueless. Not many farmers know that their water can be lost in part by many ways without any loss of water rights. Perhaps the best illustrations of how this can be done comes from the history of the Twin Falls Canal Co.

The Twin Falls tract was among the last of the big irrigated developments on the upper Snake River. As a result, they had the "poorest" water rights. During the late summer the river flow dropped and their water rights were cut.

The crops suffered, sometimes to the point of failure. The Canal Company attorney, J. R. Bothwell, mounted attacks on the upstream water users to obtain more water for the Twin Falls tract.

The most important of these was the Foster decree which hinged on the concept of "beneficial use." The argument was that the early filings had claimed far more water than they could put to use and they were not entitled to water which they were not putting to "beneficial use."

Bothwell won and Twin Falls got more water. This was done without attacking the established water rights of the upstream filings.

Another dispute that involved some bizarre arguments illustrates how imaginative a water attack can be. Bothwell argued that the river bank was a natural reservoir and that if the Twin Falls Canal Co. were to be charged a transmission loss for water which was lost in seepage between the storage site and the point of diversion from the river, it should be given credit for water which ran or oozed back into the river when the river dropped.

The dispute did not involve a lot of water for Twin Falls, just a few more days of river water before they had to use their Jackson Lake storage. The dispute resulted in the formation of the Committee of Nine.

Bothwell is a legendary figure along the Upper Snake River — a hero to the beneficiaries of his legal skill and a villain to the victims. In retrospect, it was probably not so "much" Bothwell's skill, though it was undoubtedly his, that was the key to his success. It was inevitable from the moment the tract was developed that it would have to get a fair share of the water. Since the other users had more water there was everything to gain and nothing to lose in attacks on their water. If Bothwell lost, Twin Falls Canal Co. lost a lawsuit; if Bothwell won, they won water. As long as the Twin Falls Canal Co. had lawyers with the imagination to invent pretexts for claiming water, the company would gradually gain water until they had an equitable share.

When the American Falls Dam was completed the fighting was replaced by cooperation, exchanging, renting, selling and loaning so that no one would suffer too much. There was a balance between available water and the need for water and for nearly 50 years there has been little trouble on the Upper Snake River. Now new technology has opened the possibility of using water that has been wasting during the winter and also the possibility of releasing some of the water, needed under older methods of irrigating to irrigate lands previously unusable. If these new possibilities are exploited carelessly without the proper planning, and without thorough knowledge of how much water is available and how much land can be taken into irrigation, there will be new battles, and it again will be the older companies who are the losers. It would be hard if the Twin Falls Canal Company were to voluntarily enter into agreements which resulted in their being the first victims in a new water war.

WFL completes draft, changes alignment

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — The fledgling World Football League completed the final 30 rounds of its college draft Tuesday, confirmed that the Memphis franchise would probably move to Portland and said the ownership of the Philadelphia franchise has been set.

The drafting emphasis was based on players who could be signed and those with local appeal.

"Most people drafted with the idea in mind of those people they could sign and on the basis of territory," said league president Gary L. Davidson. "The draft went a lot faster than we thought."

The announcement of a likely switch of the Memphis franchise to Portland was made by Davidson and team owner Steve Arnold of San Francisco. They confirmed that Memphis city officials had withheld agreements on a lease for use of Memphis Stadium out of hope of obtaining a franchise from the rival National Football League.

"We have a real political problem in Memphis," Davidson said in the league's office here, south of Los Angeles.

"It's a good situation as far as an antitrust suit goes, but it's not good as far as a football franchise is concerned," he said.

"It's likely that we will not go to Memphis. It's also likely that the NFL will not go there either and they won't have a football team."

"We are very interested in Portland. We would like to have another West Coast team," Davidson said.

With an eye toward Portland, the Memphis franchise traded its seventh and eighth round draft choices for signing rights to running back Woody Green of Arizona State, a native of Portland.

Davidson said the Memphis and Philadelphia franchises were "the most unexpected" of the WFL's 12 teams. But he indicated the situation in Philadelphia would change now that a group headed by Harry Katz had bought the franchise.

So far, the WFL has signed four highly-sought players, running backs James McAllister and Kermit Johnson of UCLA, offensive lineman Booker Brown of USC, and tight end Tom to the Southern California franchise, and defensive tackle Lucious Selmon, of Oklahoma who signed with Toronto.

The WFL teams drafted their first six rounds Jan. 22.

Going in the early rounds of the final 30 Tuesday were such better-known players as Bill Simpson of Michigan State, drafted by Detroit; Dave Latham of Syracuse who went to Birmingham; Carl Smarshall of East Carolina who was picked by Washington, D.C.; Mark Krogan of Colgate who was also picked by Washington; Jim Allen of UCLA who was drafted by New England and Durwood Keeton of Oklahoma who was picked by Southern California.

The WFL will conduct its draft of professional players at Chicago Feb. 18-19, and Davidson indicated he did not expect a lot of NFL players to switch to the WFL.

"I don't think the question is that of 'jumping leagues,'" he said. "We'll try to sign players whose options run out. We will sign players for future contracts. We expect to sign at least 60."

"I think the NFL will put pressure on their players to sign before we complete our draft."

JAPAN'S Heichi Wajima bows in apology as Brazil's Miguel DeOliveira hits the deck during their world junior middleweight title bout. The latter had stumbled over Wajima's leg. Wajima retained his crown on a majority decision over 15 rounds. (UPI Telephoto)

Maravich put on suspension

ATLANTA (UPI) — "Pistol" Pete Maravich, on what is expected to be a two-game suspension for "disciplinary reasons," probably will be reinstated Thursday after he meets with Atlanta Hawks Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons.

Maravich, second leading scorer in the NBA with his 28.3 ppg, was suspended Tuesday morning and although neither he nor Fitzsimmons would talk about the cause it has been reported that the action was the aftermath of an argument the two had on a plane returning from the Hawks-Sunday loss at Houston.

"Pete and I had a productive meeting this morning," Fitzsimmons said Tuesday after announcing the suspension. "I expect to meet with him again on Thursday."

"Just one incident (believed to be the argument on the plane) resulted in Pete and me getting together for a talk," the Hawks coach continued. "I brought up some other things I didn't like and I encouraged Pete to do the same. It's done. It's handled."

"I want Pete to meet with me again on Thursday. I want to make sure he's ready to play again and, hopefully, he will be a player for that day."

The high-scoring guard, who makes about $5,000 a game, wasn't on the scene Tuesday night when Atlanta posted a 121-103 victory over the Capital Bullets, who lead the Hawks by six games in the NBA's Central Division.

In addition to Maravich, the Hawks are expected to be without the services of high-scoring Lou Hudson (25.9 ppg) tonight when they host the Los Angeles Lakers. Hudson was forced to leave Tuesday night's game with 7:28 to play in the third period after hurting his back.

"I admire and respect Cotton for handling this situation head-on," said Hawks General Manager Pat Williams. "We are behind Cotton 100 percent."

Fitzsimmons was "ecstatic" over the Hawks beating the Bullets without Maravich, and without Hudson for nearly half the game.

West going through final NBA motions before his retirement

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — If you come up with those same charged little bubbles inside I do watching Jerry West glide up and down a basketball floor, then you'd better hurry out and catch him quick because he's already past the twilight, and if you want a whole lot longer it'll be too late.

Jerry West is hanging up his sneakers after this season.

He has decided, in his own mind anyway, to call it a career after 14 seasons with the Los Angeles Lakers, but like so many other superstars he's having a spate of trouble making the final official announcement.

"I know I've slowed down," says the popular, slender, flat-nosed West Virginian, a producer of more than 25,000 points for the Lakers since he first joined their back in 1960.

"I don't have the consistency and I just can't keep up the pace anymore."

Honesty always has been one of Jerry West's strong points, and he's being completely honest now.

He's not letting himself be deluded by bare statistics. He's averaging 23.6 points a game now, but that would be a record year for anybody else but it isn't anything special for West. As a matter of fact, apart from his rookie year when he averaged 28.6 points a game, this season's showing constitutes his most modest point performance.

Jerry West doesn't make this his last year though.

He looks at more important things. His reflexes for example. They're nowhere near what they once were. Nor does he have the stamina he once had. People tend to forget Jerry West is 35, perhaps because he's so skinny. Individuals who don't put on weight always look younger than those who do.

Another thing, probably far out-weighting anything else, is the intense desire, that tremendous enthusiasm which was a Jerry West trademark for so many years. It's no longer there. Maybe it marks the Lakers' perennial All-Pro guard to admit that, but whether he does or not, it's unfortunately true.

The question is why?

The answer is fairly simple, the way I see it, anyway.

To begin with, there's the natural decline in enthusiasm which comes with age. Then there's that little thing professional athletes seldom talk about but always have kicking around in the back of their minds. It's called pride, sometimes modesty.

Jerry West's wife, Jane, says he's "antsy."

He forever wants to get on with what's next, she says. For many years, he was antsy about playing on a world championship team and for awhile there he began thinking he'd never make it. Finally he did through two seasons ago.

"Jerry West enjoyed that" so much, he thought, he'd stick around for a second helping. Now he's getting the feeling there may not be one for a long time. The Lakers lost in the finals again last season and although they're contending for the top spot in the Pacific Division now, Golden State is the hot club at the moment. The Warriors are coming in a hurry and under the NBA's new playoff plan, the Lakers could be out of the playoffs if the Warriors finish first.

He has been around a long, long time. Nobody has to tell him that with Walt Chamberlain and Jim McMillan gone, the Lakers' immediate future is rather bleak like the late afternoon sun, not too bright. Maybe even slowly sinking in the west.

Somehow Jerry West must feel there is no real incentive left anymore.

A pulled abdominal muscle he has been playing with for some time now doesn't make the whole thing any more enjoyable. Then there's that root of all evil — money.

The Lakers are paying West $275,000 a year. Not bad, you say. Not so good, Jerry West thinks when he compares that with the $600,000 a year he's earning as a lawyer from San Diego in the ABA for three years.

As matters stand now, West is the Lakers' No. 1 advertisement, the same as he has been for most of the 14 seasons he has been with them. Yet, he isn't even the highest paid member on the club. Elmore Smith is, and it doesn't matter that the Lakers haven't had a contract when they put him from Buffalo in the McMillan deal.

A little thing like that can sour a man when he thinks he should be drawing the top salary.

It wouldn't necessarily cause him to quit, but it's certainly one of those things he'd think about when he finally made up his mind to do so.

Jerry West has made up his mind.

Hurry up and see him before it's too late.

He's still worth the price of a ticket, and then some.

Palmer hoping classic gets him on winning track again

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — While someone else conceivably could sneak past to win the $100,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic starting today, most of the attention on the PGA tour — at least this week — will center on Arnold Palmer, a man who has been there, and Johnny Miller, a man who'd like to get there.

Palmer slipped an 18-month slump to win the Hope Classic a year ago for the fifth time. That put him in the record book with Ben Hogan and Sam Snead.

Three weeks ago the 26-year-old Miller, 18 years Palmer's junior — won the Tucson Open for his third straight victory. Last week he picked up $5,054 at the Hawaiian Open and he now has 1974 earnings of $94,055.

Palmer, of course, would like nothing more than to win the Hope again. Snead won the Greensboro Open a record eight times and Hogan won both the Colonial and Western Opens five times.

"I like the desert and I usually play well here," Palmer said on the eve of the 49-hole, five-day event. Last week in Hawaii "Arnie finished in a tie for 71st and it marked the first time in his long career he has failed to win any money after making the cut."

If Miller finishes fourth or higher this week he will top the $100,000 mark, the earliest anyone has reached that plateau in any year.

Jack Nicklaus to win the team crown for the United States.

Still, Miller doesn't rate himself with the best in the game.

"I'm not as good as Jack Nicklaus or Lee Trevino," he said, "but I guess I'm not bad for a 26-year old. The key to my game, especially this year, has been my putting. If I putt well, there isn't a tournament I don't think I can't win."

'Bama back opts for 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers, weak in the rushing department the past two seasons, Tuesday signed their No. 1 draft choice, Wilbur Jackson, running back, from the University of Alabama.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed but Jackson's agent, Clifford Paul, said it was a multi-year and included a bonus.

Jackson's decision to join the National Football League dealt a blow to the World Football League's Birmingham, Ala., franchise which had selected him No. 1 in its draft.

Jackson was the 49ers' first of two first round choices in last week's NFL draft. He was the ninth player taken overall, and second running back chosen — San Diego tabbed Bo Matthews of Colorado.

During his three-year varsity career at Alabama, Jackson, 6'2, 185, averaged 7.3 yards per carry.

Marquette milks Badgers

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Maurice Lucas sank a 30-foot jump shot as the horn sounded to give fifth-ranked Marquette a come-from-behind 93-58 win over the Wisconsin Badgers Tuesday night.

Lucas shot climaxed a tense battle between the intransigent rivals in which Wisconsin had victory seemingly in hand only to lose at the final horn.

Selmon goes with WFL

TORONTO (UPI) — In their first player-signing, the World Football League's Toronto Northern Tuesday announced the acquisition of Lucius Selmon, an all-American lineman from the University of Oklahoma.

A standout for three seasons with the Sooners at middle guard, the 21-year-old Selmon was named to eight all-American teams in his senior year.

However, he was drafted only 16th, by the New England Whalers, in the National Football League draft. This was apparently due to his lack of height.

But at 5-foot-11 and 240 pounds Selmon has been labelled a "carbon copy" of Jim Stillwagon and Granville Higgins by Northern general manager Leo Cahill.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stock prices opened higher Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up 1.72 at 822.36 shortly after the market opened, followed by a steady but slightly better than a w-to-ratio among the issues traded.

Brokers had expected the strong independent trading in rejection of a White House attempt to mediate their dispute on fuel costs and supplies to have a further depressing effect on the market.

The truckers' strike already has forced the shutdown on several auto plants, interrupted deliveries of food and already scarce fuel supplies, and added another uncertainty to the nation's economic outlook.

Investors are wary that these developments may cut back business profits even further than expected, brokers said.

U.S. AGRICULTURE — Farmers expected to get 15 percent of their crop insurance claims. The National Farmers Union said the federal government had approved a plan for a 15 percent payment of crop insurance claims.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new survey showed that 78 percent of manufacturers expected to increase production in 1974. The survey, conducted by the National Industrial Conference Board, found that 78 percent of manufacturers expected to increase production in 1974, up from 72 percent in 1973.

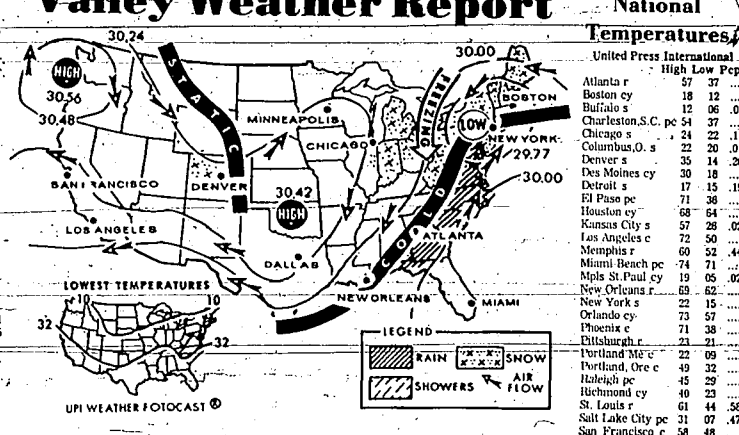

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board voted 5-4 to raise the discount rate by 1/8 percent to 9 1/2 percent. The move was the first increase since 1968.

NEW YORK (UPI) — The price of gold fell to a low of $341.20 an ounce on Wednesday. The price had risen to $345.00 earlier in the day.

High pressure blocks Gem storms

Twin Falls, northside, Burley-Rupert area: Partly sunny through Thursday—Continued. Low tonight 15 to 22. Highs Thursday mid to upper 50s.

Outlook for Friday, partly cloudy and warmer.

Hailey, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley: Partly sunny through Thursday. Continued cool. Lows tonight zero to 10 below. Highs Thursday, in the 20s.

The high pressure is slowly moving into a position where it may form a blocking storm system northward into Canada and allowing them to finally penetrate into the Intermountain region east of the Continental Divide.

However, in the interim, especially in eastern Idaho, some slight fogging can be expected from the north.

Little change in temperatures is expected through Thursday, with highs mostly in the 30s and lows in the teens and 20s.

The extended outlook for southern Idaho calls for milder weather over the weekend with temperatures mainly in the 30s and 40s in the afternoons.

Gem building gains

NEW YORK (UPI) — Idaho construction contracts gained both in December, 1973, and for the entire year. W. Dodge Division, McGraw-Hill Information Systems, reports.

For December, 1973, total construction in Idaho was $226.5 million, up 45 percent from $157.2 million in the same month in 1972. For the entire year, total construction was $355.1 million, up 19 percent from $298.2 million in 1972.

Non-residential construction in December was $177 million, up 2 percent from $172 million in the same month in 1972; residential was up 22 percent at $178.5 million from $145 million in 1972, and non-building construction rose from $45.6 million to $132.4 million.

Jamboree proceeds go to Easter Seal

TWIN FALLS—Members of the Magic Valley Country Music Association presented a check for $3,267.11 to Friends of Easter Seal during a special dinner gathering Monday night at the Turf Club.

The check represented proceeds from the 13th annual Country Music Jamboree presented Jan. 28 and 29 at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Rollie Moore accepted the check on behalf of Friends of Easter Seal noting the funds will be used to assist in building a new Easter Seal Center here. He said the center serves children from throughout Magic Valley. The check was presented by the group's president, Carlotta Cox.

Holy Houtburg served as master of ceremonies for the event with special recognition given to various members of the news media and Zeb Bell, professional radio announcer, and former disc jockey, who served as emcee for the jamboree.

Mrs. Cox presented several awards to association members for outstanding service and assistance to the organization. Awards went to Gene Bosserman, originator of the jamboree; Rudy Williamson, the group's vice president; Slim Dossey, director of this year's show, and Dick and Carol Shaffer, who are moving to Boise. Mrs. Shaffer is secretary for the group.

Over the past years many charitable organizations and facilities have benefited from the association's jamboree including Harbor House, Idaho Youth Ranch at Rupert, YM-YWCA, the Easter Seal Center and scholarship for CSI.

Proceeds presented

REPRESENTING Friends of Easter Seal, Rollie Moore accepts a $3,267.11 check from Carlotta Cox, president of the Magic Valley Country Music Association. The check represents proceeds from the recent 13th annual Country Music Jamboree.

Mini Reviews

TWIN FALLS—Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"The Chandler Heritage" by Ben Haas. Spanning three generations and nearly a hundred years, this is a novel about a great southern family dynasty.

"In One Era, Out the Other" by Sami Levenson. Nobody in the world pulls our world together (or takes it apart) the way Levenson does in this funny, moving odyssey.

"America" by Allstar Cooke. An alive and open-hearted view of our history; a book imbued with all the wit, color, knowledge and home truths born of its author's enduring affection for his adopted country.

"In High Places" by Douglas Haston. Climbing is a great "armchair" sport. Here is a chance to experience at second hand the realities of life and death in high places.

"The Dynamics of Motivating Prospects to Buy" by H. B. Rames. Hank Rames is that rare "man for all seasons"—a salesman, a salesman and an educator's educator. Here is a thorough and useful book to all states people who are committed to growth and success.

"Language of the Law" by David Melinkoff. The author leads us on a grand tour through 15 centuries during which the language of the law has developed to its present state.

"China, Past and Present" by Pearl S. Buck. The author shares with her knowledge of China's past and present, its history, religion, customs and culture and her own memories of China, personal and public.

"Glad to be a Lady" by Jane Althea Hurcha. Set in the glittering court of Naples, this novel is of two diametrically different women and the tempestuous love affairs that touch them in sympathy.

"The Coat" by Hugo Charlier. Two autumn days in 1941 are re-created. The wartime atmosphere is brilliantly evoked.

"The White Man's Road" by Benjamin Capps. This is the story of a magnificent horse stealing raid led by Joe Cowley; how it was planned, why it was planned and how it turned out.

way back then by Ely Culbertson. His six-club call was the grand-slam force asking Waldy to bid seven if he held two of the three-trump honors. In other words, if he held the queen, indication to the ace already shown.

This elegant bidding shows why Club conventions are for experts only.

The hand was played in a team game. At the other table P. Hal Sims, another of the great players held the South cards. North opened one diamond. Sims responded one spade, North jumped to four spades. Sims asked for aces and bid the grand slam when North showed him two. Not elegant, but satisfactory.

TWIN FALLS—Mrs. Roy Slotten, state president of the League of Women Voters, addressed the Twin Falls Business and Professional Women's Club Monday night.

The dinner meeting was at the Depot Grill.

Mrs. Slotten was introduced by Mrs. R. C. Adamson, program chairman. She spoke on legislation and the Equal Rights Amendment. She told of the many benefits that would be accorded women by the passage of this amendment.

Mrs. Faye Hoffman, president, told members that BPW clubs throughout the nation have raised $167,000 from the membership to assist in the passage of Equal Rights legislation. The Twin Falls club's quota of $116 has been met.

Mrs. Walter Miller, chaplain, gave the invocation. The next meeting will be Feb. 18 at Sunnyview Courts. The program will be on parliamentary procedure under direction of the parliamentarian Minerva Lorain.

Coeducational shop class

Metal crafts class featured at TFHS

TWIN FALLS — Curriculum change at Twin Falls High School this year included a "metal crafts class taught by William Jacobsen. The class is the first shop class of its type at the school that is coeducational. It consists of four to six weeks of formal classwork and 12 to 14 weeks of shop work.

Students learn welding, foundry work, and casting and by using these skills make decorative and useful articles such as bowls, candle-holders, chess sets, knives and some "op art."

"Some students feel metal is harder to work with than if it is," said Jacobsen. There is a small amount of heat fear at first because the average student is used to temperatures around 212 degrees Fahrenheit, the boiling point of water, as being hot, when working with metals students deal with temperatures between 1,200 and 1,700 degrees, he said.

The other metal classes offered at TFHS include three first year classes and one advanced class of selected students. The new class has been considered a success and probably will be continued next year, Jacobsen said.

Home agent selected

GLENNIS FERRY — Mrs. Marilyn Jordan, home extension agent for Elmore County for about seven years, has been named home economics journalist on the State Extension staff. She will be living in Moscow, with her two daughters.

Friday afternoon a salad bar luncheon was held at Green Hall by the Worthville club as a farewell to Mrs. Jordan. Members presented gifts to her. Mrs. Jordan showed slides taken on her recent trip to Norway. She will be leaving on Monday for her new home and position.

Manicurist's job cut short

CHICAGO (UPI) — Undercover police Monday arrested five persons at a recently opened parlor offering customers a manicure and shoe shine from a naked woman for $11. Lt. George Bleck of the police department's prostitution unit said the arrests were made at the Haven Naked Manicure Parlor after a police officer paid $6 for a topless manicure and a woman employee started to perform an "obscene act" for an additional $10.

'Conditions' tagged to abortion issue

WASHINGTON — One year after its landmark decision giving women the right to have an abortion, the Supreme Court is confronted with a second issue in the same area: laws requiring the consent of a husband or parent for an abortion.

In an appeal filed last week, the state of Florida asked the highest court to reinstate Florida's provision which makes a woman's right to an abortion conditional on the consent of her husband if she is married or the consent of a parent if she is under age. The Florida consent requirement was struck down last August by a special three-judge federal court in Miami, which leaned heavily in its ruling on the Supreme Court's abortion decision last January.

In that decision, the justices gave women in their first three months of pregnancy the right to have an abortion, as long as a doctor agreed to perform it. The justices said that state officials could interfere in the middle three months of pregnancy only to assure that an abortion was performed under safe conditions. States could prohibit abortions during the final three months of pregnancy, the justices said.

The next consent requirement in Florida was attacked in a lawsuit by three doctors, a married woman unable to obtain her husband's consent for an abortion and an unmarried minor whose parents refused to approve an abortion. Both women were in their first three months of pregnancy.

Nixon explains health care plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon said today every American would be assured "a basic and comprehensive health care protection" at a cost they can afford under his new health insurance program.

Nixon said the plan "would finance virtually all of the health protection people need — hospital and physician's care in and out of the hospital, drugs, laboratory tests, x-rays, medical devices, ambulance service, treatment of children, catastrophic illness — and even mental illness, including alcoholism and drug abuse."

occupations would be subsidized, partly by the government. The existing Medicare program for persons over 65 would continue, with improved benefits.

"The insurance itself would be channeled through private insurance companies," Nixon said in a statement issued in conjunction with his appearance before the American Hospital Association. "The overall result is that we would not have to add new federal taxes."

Briefs

TWIN FALLS — The Stringing Sixties will meet at 8 p.m. Friday at the IOOF Hall. Live music will be featured for dancing.

TWIN FALLS — Squilla Club will have a potluck supper and pinocle party for members and friends at 7 p.m. Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Taylor. Everyone attending should bring a covered dish and own table service.

Malta woman honored

MALTA — Mrs. Helen Peterson Kelsey was honored on her 80th birthday at an open house at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Wayne Whitaker, Malta. Mrs. Kelsey was born Feb. 1, 1894, at Assyria, Mich., and moved with her family to Idaho and later taught school in Carey. After the death of her first husband, Arthur E. Peterson, she lived in Blackfoot and later married Robert Kelsey and moved to Malta. The open house was hosted by her two daughters, Mrs. Whitaker, Malta, and Mrs. Jay Wake, Burley, and son, Mylo Peterson, Mackay.

Patchwork project scheduled by guild

SHOSHONE — Members of the Episcopal Guild will be collecting pieces of fabric to use for special "patchwork" project they expect to carry out the coming year. They will collect brightly colored materials, especially satins, silk and velvets, but also solicit any type natural or synthetic pieces.

In addition to such things as plaid skirts, members hope to make pillow covers and bedspreads. The next meeting will be at 2 p.m. on March 1 at the Jennings house. Mrs. Ivan Hopkins and Mrs. Gene Harris will be hostesses.

'Nice' lady takes town to 'cleaners'

MARSHALL, Ill. (UPI) — She was robust, friendly and respectable. A solid citizen in this little, close-knit rural community, "the nicest lady in town," some said. That's why people here have a hard time believing she may have taken them for $1 million or more.

But state investigators say that apparently is just what Mrs. Sylvia Ritter Millhouse did with the Marshall Loan Co. she inherited from her father and ran out of a storefront office on the town square for 30 years.

"To put it bluntly," said Thomas E. Raleigh, supervisor of consumer credit in the Illinois Department of Financial Institutions, "she took the town to the cleaners."

Raleigh and state investigators have closed themselves in a back room of the loan company to begin examining the "quite bizarre" records found after Mrs. Millhouse died in December at age 65.

A preliminary audit showed at least $51,000 was missing and that the final total will probably be over $1 million, Raleigh said. But it may take weeks before the exact amount is known.

None of the money was insured.

"Many people in around this community — about 16 miles west of Terre Haute, Ind., and 200 miles south of Chicago — refuse to believe they might have been deceived by the pleasant, round-faced woman who ran the loan company office here.

Some 200 investors, about half of the people who have money invested with the firm, came to the office Monday to collect deeds, mortgages and other papers, but not their money.

"They're going to have to prove a lot to me," said Herman Morris, a construction worker who stands to lose $6,000. "She was quite a gal."

Now Frank "Fence" Greig wip up his hands when asked how she continued to operate, especially in a county seat swarming with lawyers who should have known something was wrong. "Hell, I don't know," he said. "It's stupid."

Clark County Circuit Court Judge Calvin Bennett said "From what I can tell the shortage is not embezzled money, but is the result of poor management."

Mrs. Millhouse drove a Cadillac, but lived modestly in a 40-year-old frame home on 1 1/2 acres of land. The value of her estate was estimated at only about $25,000, but she had deeded land worth about $75,000 to her son by a previous marriage, David Nash, shortly before her death.

Her closest surviving relatives said they know nothing about any missing money. Her husband, Jerome, runs a barber shop in town. Her sister-in-law Martha Buckner worked at the loan company office. "I was just as surprised as everybody else," Mrs. Buckner said.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: On our wedding night, my bride said, "It's been such a beautiful day, let's not spoil it with sex." She gave me no hint while I courted her that she felt that way about sex. We were engaged for a year, during which time she never let me go beyond a goodnight kiss, but I thought it was because she had such high moral standards.

It took me five weeks to consummate our marriage, and then it was very unsatisfactory. She regards sex as a "dirty" and I'm always urged to "hurry up and get it over with."

I tried to be patient and considerate, and I let her alone for two years while she went thru the motions of getting "psychological counseling." Now she uses all the excuses women in use to avoid sex. "I have a headache. It's too late. I'm too tired."

Husband stunned

She doesn't want a divorce, and says if I found a girl friend it would be all right with her as long as she didn't know who the girl was.

Is this marriage worth saving? UP A CREEK

DEAR UP: It is, if you don't mind living with your wife's suggestion of a girl friend would "make a mockery of your marriage. Unless she makes a serious effort to change her attitude about marital relations, you'd be justified in settling her free to find a man who shares her feelings, while you find a woman who shares yours.

DEAR ABBY: I read the article about the 31-year-old married man who still wets the bed, and I sure felt sorry for him because I'm 15 now, and I used to do the same thing until two years ago. Then my parents sent for something they saw advertised in a Sears catalog. It's like a rubber bed sheet with a buzzer connected to it. I'd sleep on the bed, and the minute it started to get wet, the buzzer would go off when I'd wake up and go to the bathroom.

At first I had to change the bed sheets, but after a while, the buzzer seemed to wake me up in time to stay dry all night.

I hope you print this, but please don't sign my name or everybody in Worthington, Minn., will tease me. Just sign it. "HOW DRY I AM!"

DEAR DRY: Trust me! You're nice to want to share your solution with others.

DEAR ABBY: On Christmas Day a relative with whom I had been on the outs for four years telephoned me and said, "There is no sense to our being mad at each other for the rest of our lives. Let's be friends again!"

I wept. He later told me that he had been inspired to call me when he read in your column, "Call up an enemy today and bury the hatchet."

Thanks a million, Abby. DE ESPANA

DEAR DE: De nada!

CSI aide addresses TF meet

TWIN FALLS — Dr. James Taylor, president of the College of Southern Idaho, discussed the economic impact of CSI on the Magic Valley Monday afternoon in a meeting of Southern Idaho Life Underwriters.

The association met in the Rogerson Hotel. Dr. Taylor explained the general curriculum offered at the college and discussed proposed extensions in training now available to students. He described listed some physical changes which will be forthcoming.

There are now 3,000 persons attending classes, he told the underwriters, and the enrollment represents 23 Idaho counties, six foreign countries and four other states. During the business meeting the insurance officials approved a resolution endorsing the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital bond issue. The next meeting will be March 4.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES. Your ideas are excellent now and you should make rapid progress over a long period of time. You can use up-to-date methods for accomplishing your goals.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Talk over with an associate how present routines and problems can be handled with more efficiency. Show that you are very dependable.

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Improve on your regular routines and increase your income. Don't be so stubborn that you lose out on fine opportunities in your grasp.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan how to get relief from a stressful situation that has you bogged down and worried. Obtain information you need from an expert.

MODERN CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Engage in routines that are important and be successful with them by not confiding in others. Kin can be of great help now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Allow your friends to understand your needs better now and will give you the support you need.

THIS TIME: Attend the social tonight.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) If you make the right contacts, you can get much accomplished today. Improve your health and become a more dynamic person.

LIRIA (Sept 23 to Oct 23) You have some excellent ideas and should put them in operation quickly or you lose out. Engage in group activities you enjoy.

SCORPIO (Oct 24 to Nov 21) Make sure you take care of your obligations before you make improvements at home. Find the information you need to make progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21) Listen to what a clever associate has to say today and benefit by the advice. Handle correspondence and make out vital reports.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 30) You need to make more money and you find that a bigwig can be very helpful in showing you how this can be done. Show appreciation.

AQUARIUS (Jan 31 to Feb 19) You are inspired to gain your cherished aims at this time. Use the social avenue to achieve greater success and happiness.

PISCES (Feb 20 to Mar 20) You have to use your finest judgment to gain the data you need. Some of your desires should be eliminated. Show that you have wisdom.

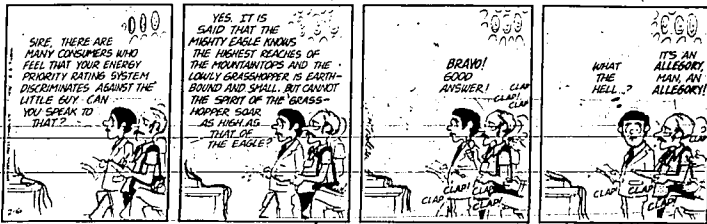

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will have excellent ideas of an inventive nature and should be accorded a fine college education to bring out the practicality that is needed to make them workable. Your youngster will be bored with whatever is old-fashioned, but will appreciate the never-changing ancient basics. Religion a must here.

THE STARS IMPART: they do "not compel" what you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

If a man knows the color of a woman's eyes, he is romantically interested in her. At least, that's the common belief among wives. Keep it in mind, er. Should your wife ask you the color of your secretary's eyes, just shrug. Incidentally, it's said only three husbands out of every five know the colors of their wives' eyes.

- Q. "All right, Louis, how long on the average are the ears and tail of the South American sloth?"
- A. Won't late, er. Has no tail nor ears.
- Q. "What drew the bigger crowds in Spain, the bullfights or the soccer matches?"
- A. The bullfights. But not much bigger.
- Q. "Can you name the only mammal that can't be successfully stuffed or mummified for display in natural museums?"
- A. The whale?

RAPE TRIAL

Mark Twain told this: "There was a wife but a lawyer there (in Hartford, Conn.) by the name of Clarke, who was famous for two things: His dimunuteness and his persecuting sharpness in cross-questioning witnesses. It was said that when he got through with a witness there was nothing left of that witness, nothing but a limp and withered leg. Except once. Just Irish woman, a mauler of a woman, and she was testifying in the morning and found the accused lying beside her, and she discovered she had been outraged. This tiny lawyer, Clarke, said, 'Now, madam, what an impossible thing you are hoping to persuade this jury to believe? If one may take so preposterous a thing as that seriously, you might even charge me with it. Come now, suppose you should wake up and find me lying beside you. What would you think?' She measured him critically and at last said: 'with your thin and judicious eye and said, 'I'd think I'd had a miscarriage.'"

THE HARD FACTS

Just about half of those surgical nose jobs are performed on men. Did you know one of Alaska's glaciers is bigger than all of Switzerland? If the youngster isn't old enough to walk, it ain't old enough to get carried. New England physicians are the lowest paid in the country; poor fellows. Black widow spider's poison, part for part, is about 15 times more potent than a rattlesnake's.

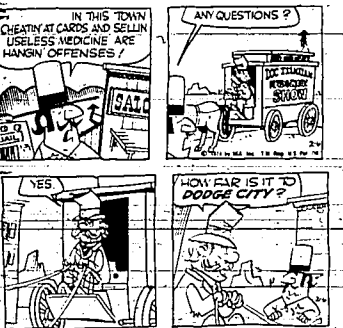

What, you can't name the only two current words in English that begin with the letters "dw"? Spring that one on the family scholar. Reply should be dwarf and dwell.
