meet the Good Eggs

the guys at Dutch's who, day in and day out, give you more for your furniture and appliance dollars.

Let's face it. In times like these, getting more for your dollar isn't just important. It's vital. and that means you have to be pretty doggone careful about buying something from someone you don't know. Even some of those you think you do know. Someone who promises a lot before the sale. And then says "good-bye" after the sale. He's the hard-boiled egg. The guy who's out to sell you anything he can. Any way he can. He makes his bundle off "once-a-week one shot" sales. He's the guy who always SEEMS to have the lowest price in town. When actually it's always just a little bit more. Makes you wonder if everything is really on the up-and-up. These are the kind of things that make the Good Eggs bail. It's time we set a few things straight. There are good reasons why we sell the volume of furniture and appliance that we do. Day in and day out. Our products are good. And we're good dealers. Our prices are competitive. Our service is dependable. And we've earned a reputation for taking an interest in our customers. After the sale is made. We live here. We've lived here all our lives. We're not here to make a bundle in a hurry. Just enough to keep on paying the bills and to provide for our families. We're out to make you happy. To keep you happy. And the only way we can is to offer you the best of everything. Across the board. We own our own building, there's not many of us here. Our heads are small. Consequently, our overhead is less. . . . and we can actually sell for less. We're just a little bit different from most of the other stores. We care. These are just some of the reasons our friends and neighbors from all over Magic Valley keep coming back to us. Everytime they're looking for furniture or appliances. It's really the only smart thing we can do. For you. And for us. Come in. Meet and visit with the Good Eggs. Today. You'll see for yourself. There's not a rotten one in the bunch.

don't pay more. don't settle for less.

We'll take such good care of you, you'll probably say nice things about us to your friends. In fact, that's what has made our business grow. No expensive salesman get your elbow. But you get everything that is important. We uncrate, inspect, assemble and deliver what we sell. And guarantee it all for 30 days. Or bring on nearly every item on our floor. Every day of the year.

you get your sweet mule we make unusual deals.

You can't go wrong doing business with us. We won't allow it. And in our several years of business in Twin Falls, we've made quite a few unusual deals. Deals we doubt any other furniture and appliance dealer would touch. Service is important to you, and to us. And the truth is, there are places to cut costs and places not to cut them. We think we know the difference. We cut costs in our buying, handling and selling. On every point - quality, selection, service and value, we really think you'll come out ahead if you string along with the Good Eggs. You'll like the way we do business.

Columnist calls it '30,' discloses identity

Reverend to the citizens of Minidoka Valley
William E. Howard, General Manager
Sunday, March 3, 1974

This is the end of the trail. Mr. Spectator is fading fast and is slowly moving on today's column is his last.

We have had a lot of fun writing this column since we wrote the first one for the Old Time Falls Bulletin and called it "Breezin' Around With Mr. Spectator."

We have had one last time. We are the only Times-News columnist who never used his real name - until today, that is.

But all have had an opportunity to say their think. We have a lot of people who believe we must be a little different. We have a lot of people who think we are a little different.

Posse should read US Constitution

To date, only one elected official in Minidoka County has spoken out strongly against the formation of a posse comitatus.

The only local elected official who, to our knowledge, has dared to oppose the group is the county's prosecuting attorney, Robert Nielsen.

The posse of crime the right to bypass the courts in the pursuit of errant public officials who he believes have acted unconstitutionally.

Minidoka County have had to say Sheriff David Johnson. "It is just taking a wait and see attitude about it."

Sen. John Peavey, R-Idaho: It's time he said for citizens to be concerned in the affairs of government.

Rep. Steve Antone, R-Idaho: He said he hadn't paid much attention to the group.

Rep. E. A. McManis, R-Idaho, whose district includes Minidoka County: Formation of the group is "fine," he said, however, it wouldn't be "cricket" for the group to take the law into its own hands.

They choose of those public officials to stand up to a clearly dangerous organization is difficult to understand.

It would be too cynical to say that these elected officials are dodging the issue for the sake of votes for the officials clear are men of principle who do believe in the American system of government.

The problem may be the difficult one of separating good people from bad organization. The people involved in the posse movement are well intentioned and seriously seek good government.

The proper role for Minidoka's public officials is to help inform the well-intentioned but misinformed posse supporters about how the American system works under the Constitution.

To protect individual citizens, the U.S. Constitution was filled with checks on the power of government and repeated insistence on procedural safeguards that include the right to be confronted by witnesses against him and the right to have "compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in his favor, and to have the assistance of counsel for his defense."

The elected officials of Minidoka County and elsewhere have a major educational task ahead of them.

But if the teacher remains silent, some good people may not know what the Constitution really says. It is time for elected officials to speak up.

Where has all the gasoline gone?
The Shah of Iran says the United States is getting as much oil as it did before the embargo, but President Nixon and William E. Simon, the energy administrator, say they know how much oil is not getting. Public confusion is spreading over the energy crisis, despite the President's assurance. While the crisis has been passed, the problem remains.
How long will it last? Until summer, "I don't know," says Simon. "Or for the next century," as such pessimists as Prof. Jay W. Forrester and Donella H. Meadows of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology believe.

A jump occurs whenever the cost curve of an oil technology "kisses" the cost curve of a new technology.
Based on the assumption of efficient markets, the cost curve of oil technology (but is competitive markets with free-flowing international trade, the North Sea magnetic model produces a different picture.)
Some time before the end of the 21st century, the pessimists have predicted, this petroleum-based economy will collapse unless energy is stopped and lifeless "fossil" is changed.

SV pianist slates concert

TWIN FALLS — A Sun Valley star, pianist Walt Wagner will present a benefit concert March 10 in Twin Falls to raise funds for the city swimming pool.

Considered a favorite in college and university centers, Wagner has also performed in Spokane, Seattle and San Francisco and has toured with the Peggy Fleming Show — "A Concert on Ice." He has been in Sun Valley the last three seasons.

The benefit concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. March 10 in the Fine Arts Auditorium at college of Southern Idaho, sponsored by the CSI Lyceum committee. Arrangements are under the direction of Dr. John McNeese of the board.

Tickets are available at the "V," the Music Center, Shaver's Newton's Ragged Coffee Shop and for CSI students at the college book store.

The Seattle native has been a musician almost from the time he could climb onto piano stools. Both his parents were musicians and Walt's first piano teacher also was his mother's teacher. He began piano lessons at 4 years of age.

At Foster High School near Seattle, Wagner was a sophomore, turned a rock band, the Rebels. For six years as the Rebels' leader as "The Beatles" the Wagner group, ranging from five to ten musicians, depending on the money he had, did a booming business in the State of Washington playing dances, mostly in the big ballrooms.

By the time his rock phase ended, Walt had finished high school and was attending Central Washington State College and the University of Washington.

"I was in college that I first became influenced by Roger Peterson, who had the Columbia label," he said. "His impressions are well-versed, almost classical. And my greatest influence has been my classical training."

If I defined the influence any further, I would say a primary factor had to be the Russian composers, Rachmaninoff, Shostakovich and Prokofiev. "I really don't know how to describe something from almost all the good composers, all the good pianists."

Bringing everything together took a great deal of absorbing and study. And preparing what Wagner suitable Wagner worked as a typewriter operator in a shipbuilding firm, a clerk, a clerk-typist and other jobs before playing nightly in front of a live audience. He worked a lounge piano bar, building his own ability to communicate through his music to the audience.

"Everything came together for him when he played with brass and drums as a solo at Seattle's prestigious Windjammer for two solid years. He left there for Sun Valley and the Calico Resort.

TF man charged over copyright

TWIN FALLS — Ronald H. Victor, 31, Twin Falls, has been arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation agents and charged with violation of the copyright act in connection with the alleged bootlegging of stereo tapes.

Robert W. Evans, special agent-in-charge of the Idaho-Montana division of the FBI, said Victor was arrested on a bench warrant issued by U.S. District Court, Jerry L. Glapp, Boise, following a six-point indictment handed down by a federal grand jury in Boise.

The indictments charge Victor violated the U.S. code prohibiting the copying of commercial tape.

Victor, who is single, is the owner of Sound-Tapes in Twin Falls, and indictments involved incidents which allegedly occurred at his business establishment.

Victor was arrested when U.S. Magistrate Harry B. Tufner, Twin Falls, and has been released on a $200 bond. Pending his appearance in U.S. District Court in Boise.

Opponents say Gem tax relief measure packed too much money

By DAVID ESCOFF
FN Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Two Magic Valley lawmakers who opposed a tax relief measure in the House Friday felt it would commit too much money in the area of relief.

Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft, R-Dottle, said the proposal involved an amount of tax relief that was "too high in relation to other tax measures."

House Speaker William Lanting, R-Boiler, said his vote against the measure was really a vote for education. He said that the bill passed there would have been no way to provide large increases for public schools next fiscal year.

The measure, which would have restored "double deductibility" to the state's tax law and would have extended the current $15 grocery allowance or income tax, went down to a 29-41 defeat. House leadership and a bloc of Democratic votes formed the basic coalition to thwart the bill.

Three of 12 Magic Valley lawmakers voted against the measure. Aside from Lanting and Ravenscroft, Rep. William Roberts, R-Boiler, opposed the bill. Roberts is the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Ravenscroft said the state is under a court order to equalize funding of public schools before July 1, 1975. He said the opportunity to equalize the financing would be minimized by putting the $10.3 million into income tax relief.

In addition, he said, the "matters of amount" contained in the bill that caused him to vote against it.

Lanting said his "no vote" was cast because the measure would have reduced state revenue by "too much" as permitted by the legislature. He said he would have appropriated adequately for the state agencies and, especially, for an education effort.

The same Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' proposal for houses was "pretty high," and added if $10.3 million went into tax relief, there wouldn't be enough funds to go around. Andrus has proposed a $1.1 million tax relief package including $2.8 million in property tax relief and $1.3 million in special "senior" benefits relief for the elderly on their property taxes.

Lanting said his vote wasn't against tax relief, but "a vote for schools." He said he would like to see the legislature approve some form of tax relief, but "don't spend what you've got."

Some of the House members who supported the package acknowledged it would take a lot of money out of the state's revenue. One member, Rep. Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, said that would help slow the rise of inflation, however.

He said his vote for the measure was in part a "blow at excessive spending" by government. He acknowledged the budget would be stretched if $10.3 million went to tax relief, but said increased funding for public education would be possible by cutting back in the appropriations to some other state agencies, including the Department of Environmental and Community Services.

Rep. Bill Hale, R-Barry, who also voted for the bill, said he thought it would have provided too much for tax relief, but, "I still had to vote for it." Hale said the bill "save the working class people a six reduction and it can help the working class people including the school teachers and the administrators at school, that's what they need."

General fund surplus estimates said too low

(Times-News/Capitol Bureau)
 The legislature's estimate of $23.7 million for the state general fund surplus could be as much as $10 million less, according to the chairman of a subcommittee that arrived at the estimate.
 Ron Vernon F. Havenscroft, R-Tuttle, said in an interview last week estimates provided by the state's seven revenue offices are "surprisingly low" because the figure his subcommittee on revenue programs arrived at in its report, Havenscroft said, he does not anticipate an effort by taxpayers to reduce their tax payments.
 Havenscroft also said the subcommittee's estimate of fiscal year 1975 general fund surplus is "very responsible and very factual." The committee has estimated that $23.7 million will be available for the general fund for appropriations for the year beginning July 1. This represents $1.2 million more than Gov. Cecil D. Andrus estimated.
 Havenscroft, speaking in a news conference, expressed a preference for property tax relief, especially in rural areas, over a continuing equalized school funding by July 1975. He said legislation is being prepared to equalize funding.
 Havenscroft's bill also calls for $1 million in state funds for the program.

providing two mills property tax relief on a permanent basis, with two more mills relief temporarily.
 The result of the program at the end of five years, he said, would be a more equalized system of school funding, with districts permitted to levy 25 mills. Currently, districts may levy 27 mills.
 He said a package of legislation would also provide for equalization of federal funds made available under the present Title I Law and program, which provides for aid to impacted areas. Equalized funding would also be available on the basis of sparsity factors for school and for transportation costs.
 He said the package would not equalize in the areas of coverage levels and would not deal with school construction funds.
 Havenscroft also said new programs would be hard to fund for the coming year, although he proposed some changes in his proposal for an equalized school tax relief.
 He also said that he would like to see $1 million in state funds made available to local districts for "kindergarten" or "for elementary school" programs.
 Havenscroft's bill also calls for $1 million in state funds for the program.

Transfer blocked

BOISE (UPI) — An attempt to transfer surplus general fund monies to reduce school levies was resisted by the Idaho Senate Saturday.
 A bill which would have transferred any surplus in the general fund on June 30 to counties to replace the eight mill school levy.
 Despite arguments that it would provide tax relief, opponents of the measure successfully argued that there were other areas where the money may be needed.

Open meet bill out

BOISE (UPI) — Over objections from Rep. Edward W. Hare, R-Boise, the House Judiciary Committee transferred new legislation.
 "We're conducting public business and we ought to do it in public," Ingram said.
 The bill would have transferred any surplus in the general fund on June 30 to counties to replace the eight mill school levy.
 Despite arguments that it would provide tax relief, opponents of the measure successfully argued that there were other areas where the money may be needed.

Magic Valley farmers face spring-fertilizer shortage

Meanwhile, Soss says, the demand for fertilizer from Farm Service has gone up 10 per cent since last year.

Soss attributes the shortage to a combination of factors, including a 10 per cent increase in the price of nitrogen fertilizer.

Aggravating the problem are the restrictions on the amount of fertilizer that can be imported from Canada and Alaska.

Japan's shortage of American vessels to bring ammonia from Alaska to transport fertilizer from Canada and Alaska to fertilizer production plants, he says.

If fertilizer is "as tight as it has been this year," Soss says.

Because fertilizer prices have been high, the price of fertilizer will be high, Soss says.

Jack Presnell, Kimberly-Clark manager of Henry's Fertilizer, says that the price of fertilizer will be high, Soss says.

Presnell says that the price of fertilizer will be high, Soss says.

Presnell says that the price of fertilizer will be high, Soss says.

Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, reports shortages of natural gas and low energy priorities for fertilizer producers have partly caused the shortage.

Sandy Stephenson, sales manager for natural gas service, says that the shortage of natural gas is a major factor in the fertilizer shortage.

Hansen has called for the temporary suspension of the Jones Act which stipulates that shipments between ports must be made with U.S. vessels.

Magazine salesgirls leave TF

TWIN FALLS—A group of magazine salesgirls left Twin Falls Thursday after the Twin Falls Police Department received complaints about their selling techniques.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said a group selling magazines for Library Magazine Service, Orlando, Fla., were canvassing Thursday representing that they were custom-buses from Florida trying to collect enough sales "points" to win college scholarships.

Barnett said the use of the scholarship gimmick was an "old trick" used to sell magazines. After the police department received complaints from a couple of businesses, the group of about 10 girls and a male supervisor was asked to leave town.

"They were going to go to Boise last night anyway," he said, "and we suggested they get an early start."

a sense of accomplishment

MIDGE ARRHART
a chance to meet people

Each plays his role for different reasons

BY HELEN GEE SMITH
Times News writer

TWIN FALLS—When Shakespeare wrote "All the world's a stage," he meant it in a literal sense. And all the men and women merely players. The stage here is describing the Twin Falls area.

Although amateur stage first at the Pioneer High School and now in the Fine Arts Center here, their vehicle of expression has been the Dilettantes of Magic Valley, a group which began practicing nearly every night for many weeks. The chorus directed by Carson Wong, began before Fred Schiebe, Lewiston, arrived for the first time.

For adults who have to earn their living, and even students anxiously studying over, or even looking at their books, the attitude is rigorous.

And before they can even get to their envied position they have to pass auditions, which can be unnerving for many.

Mit Barrus, Twin Falls high school biology teacher and entrepreneur barber-shop singer, said he became completely engulfed at the group. Bryan Smith, a high school thespian, recalls his audition so he "couldn't hold the script."

Why then do so many people donate the unbelievably many hours required for participation?

To learn the fascination that has spread the footholds into an unimagined several of the participants, both old and new for this year's production, he believes there must be more than the dark suspicion, still held by some unsympathetic spouses, at least, that anyone connected with the theatre must be slightly "off."

There are too many people of all ages, occupations, both men and women, and young people involved in the singing, costuming, orchestra, ticket selling, as well as setting and singing to justify any explanation.

Estimates vary between 50 and 200 as the number of people involved in some way in this year's show. They include housewives, truck drivers, professional shopkeepers, farmers, teachers and students to name a few.

According to Dr. Art Frantz, former president who has been with the group since its beginning, "You have to take it. When the Dilettantes started, he recalls, there was the feeling the amateur actors were providing something to do. You have to take the senseless of good things."

"This is no longer true, for since the Dilettantes began, at least three other drama groups have become active. All complement each other: The Children's Theatre, Antique Festival Theatre, and Little Theatre have all enriched the kinds of drama available to Magic Valley."

And the little theatre is a direct offshoot of the Dilettantes, composed of members who wanted to "right theatre" in addition to the steady musical.

"Those of us to make a living here feel participating is one way to pay something back to the community," Dr. Frantz, a dentist, said.

But the big point, according to this veteran actor, is the feeling of fulfillment of being able to "take hold of a part and complete it."

Much of life's activity is never ending, he feels. One's job or cleaning the house goes on and on, but a show has beginning and end and when it's over there's a sense of accomplishment.

Proud of his association with the Dilettantes, Dr. Frantz painted out several valuable by-products from the group's formation, in addition to the obvious one of providing yearly community entertainment.

He recalled the Magic Valley Symphony Orchestra is the direct outgrowth of the ensemble formed to play for the first Dilettante show held by some unsympathetic spouses, at least, that anyone connected with the theatre must be slightly "off."

the importance of each part, no matter how minor.

"People should never say, 'I'm only in the chorus.' Every walk-on part is important to the show or it wouldn't be there."

And Mrs. Gee, who terms herself the "Mother of the Musical," also sees practical benefits from the practice which are an important part of the total setting for many in the group. It makes it much easier to relate to each other on stage if you have become "even" slightly acquainted with the other person at a social gathering, she said.

make friends and have fun of being together. (He's probably thinking of the parents.)

Community service and enjoyment of this kind of music were the reasons offered by Del Slaughter, musical director, who has conducted many of the past shows. His participation of his 50 member pit orchestra who also volunteer their time.

So, everyone involved, from the lowest among them, some players or chorus members, to leading lady Jean Deffenberg, probably could echo the line from Hamlet: "The play's the thing."

Barrus is one of seven or eight teachers from Castlafford and Jerome as well as Twin Falls, who finds participation in the musical a welcome change from classroom routine.

Barrus said he has had opportunity to meet people he's heard of and seen, but never known and also it enables him to build a "different" rapport with students.

Editor retires

O-A (GUS) KELKER, long-time newsman was honored by fellow employees and presented a gilt Thursday afternoon upon his retirement from the Times News. Kelker served as reporter and photographer before quitting about 1945 to operate his own photographic shop. He returned to the Times News in 1962 as feature editor and later was named editor.

Though the musical has been in Twin Falls for 14 years, this is his first experience in the group. Both he and his wife were invited to sing in the chorus for "Caravan" in the fall.

This was a "totally good experience," Barrus said, so he decided to try out for "Fiddler" even though the auditions were "totally new" to him and his wife declined to try out.

The creative aspect of community theatre was stressed by Miriam Breckenridge, also past president of the group.

"I love theatre and music and have a strong conviction that it's great to have local community theatre," she said.

In addition to providing a creative outlet for participating individuals, perhaps more importantly, it allows us to work with all ages.

"Theatre is not so structured and divides by age barriers, it's great to have just people — both sexes, all ages and backgrounds," she said.

"I think some who have played character roles have broadened their outlook in meeting to work behind stage and that the audience should never forget, if it weren't for the people behind the stage, there'd be no show."

She's worked with non-profits and she's described as a "never-ending giver" who's "not finding time" to do it, she said. "The director says he needs."

Mrs. Breckenridge, whom theatre goers will remember for her convincing portrayal of a poor "Spiegel" in "The Pale Lady," also has checked out performing. This too, is exciting, she says, to try to recreate a period or a look through clothing.

"I love to be on stage and try to succeed in it," she said. "That's why I feel I'm a dilettante."

For budding high school actors, landing a part in a Dialectic show is a big step. Bryan Smith, one of many of Brad Hickerson's drama students who have followed their instructor's interest into community theatre, says he likes being part of a student group.

"It's neat to see how everyone works out his problems and the show starts to fall into place. By the end you're living your part," he said.

Also, there's satisfaction in being part of something that will provide entertainment and give people a happy, enjoyable actor believes. You get to

Local teen loses 105 pounds

Sunday, March 2, 1974 Times News-Tribune, Twin Falls, Idaho

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times News writer

TWIN FALLS — Kathy Murphy is only half her former self.

She says it feels "great." Kathy's former self was a 215-pound sophomore at Twin Falls High School. Now 18 and a freshman at the College of Southern Idaho, she has lost just about half the person who once appeared before her when she looked into a mirror.

The amazing 105-pound loss, achieved in 16 months through diligent adherence to the Weight Watchers program, "changed my whole life," she said. "Two years ago I was in a shell. Emotionally, the weight loss made a big difference."

Kathy said although her grades "may have gone down," since the loss she is now getting out more and having more fun. "I have less time to study," she said.

Williamson seems to be the problem at her. Kathy now works as a baker. "It doesn't bother me at all," she says. In fact, if it weren't for her, she would have quit her job at all. "Kathy says she used to be withdrawn because the public."

Kathy developed new patterns of eating to achieve the weight loss. For example she began taking her own lunches to school and had no trouble finding enough variety to make it interesting. She let no one tempt her, "because I had a goal to reach and I intended to get it done." Instead of eating "popcorn with everyone else," she said, "I ate 2 cents worth of raisins."

Her dedication to the program was so great according to Weight Watchers' lecturer Paul Guyer, that Kathy checked in for the monthly class before attending her high school graduation exercises last night.

Mildred Anderson, a Jerome Grandmother, beat Kathy's loss by dropping 110 pounds in six weeks on the Weight Watchers program. Mrs. Anderson, a registered nurse at a Twin Falls nursing home, says the weight loss "made a new grandma out of me."

"Instead of just sitting in a rocking chair, I can now get up and play with the grandchildren," she says. "She has five grandchildren."

The two women just happened to get the safety belt fastened in the car. "Mrs. Anderson says both Kathy and Mrs. Anderson were introduced to the program through friends and they have since started adding up the program."

While on the program, "exercise was really behind me," Kathy said. An extra incentive from her family was the promise of a whole new wardrobe, she said. "And I got it."

Both women were awarded the hundred-pound award and given a life-time membership in Weight Watchers at a recent meeting. Kathy was the first teenager in Magic Valley to receive the honor, according to Mrs. Guyer.

Abby

Abigail Von Buren

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband and I are dating again. We may get married again, but not right away. He has to make good a few promises first.

We have two children, ages 8 and 11, who live with me. They know their father and I have been divorced for over a year, and in all that time I have conducted myself like an unmarried woman. I have dated other men, but I have never allowed any man, including my ex-husband, to spend the night here.

My ex has asked if he could stay overnight when he leaves his job. It would save him driving about 20 miles because his place of work is near my home, and he lives on the other side of town. What do you think?

It makes sense with the gas situation, doesn't it?

LEILANI MULLINS engaged

Buhl girl tells plans to marry

TWIN FALLS—Mr. and Mrs. Angie Mullins, Buhl, announce the engagement of their daughter, Leilani Stogum May Buhling, 19, to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ewing, Buhl. Miss Mullins is a senior at Buhl High School. Ewing is a 1973 graduate of Buhl High School and is attending the College of Southern Idaho, Twin Falls. A May wedding is being planned.

Don't share bed with ex

DEAR ABBY: It's okay as long as you don't have a bed-sharer, too!

DEAR ABBY: I was all set to have a face-lift by a beautiful, famous plastic surgeon. The man I had made a deal with when I told him I had no discussion with my husband because I didn't want any hassles over it. The doctor told me he wouldn't do it without my husband's approval.

Abby, it's MY face, and my money, and I am 45 years old, so why should I need my husband's approval? Now can you tell me why a doctor would take this ridiculous attitude?

FLABBERGASTED IN PHOENIX

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: Your doctor probably has a terrific face-lift himself, and a doctor who tells you that the doctor you just saved a life with your husband because you were afraid he'd object, so the doctor fears if he performs the surgery, your husband may come after him with a deadly weapon, shouting, "What have you done to my wife? I liked her face the way it was!"

DEAR ABBY: Earl and I have four wonderful children and a good marriage. One we DID have, until a few months ago. Then a young woman [I] call Vera, joined his organization and started confiding her marital problems to him. [He] repeats them to me. All Vera's problems seem to be about her sex life with her husband. Earl says it's good for her to confide in someone.

Abby, it upsets me to have Earl tell me these things, and I am beginning to wonder why a woman should tell such intimate things to a man she hardly knows. Or do you think maybe they know each other better than Earl lets on? Should I tell Earl I don't care to hear any more about Vera's sex life? I don't want to see him away from me. We've always had such a nice, intimate open relationship.

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Vera's good friends at her marital problems with a professional counselor, and Earl should tell her to unload her problems. It may be good for Vera. But when Vera unloads on Earl, it's bad for your marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and my fiance, and I agree that we must wait any children or even young men aged there. Would he be okay to put "No children under 18 admitted" on the invitations?

PAT ASPENGLIO

DEAR PAT: No, it sounds like you're sending out invitations to an X-rated movie.

TF blood donations handled at Boise center

TWIN FALLS—Residents of the Twin Falls area are being asked to assist in the March blood drive Monday from 1 to 6 p.m. in the Catholic Parish Hall.

The American Red Cross blood committee headed by Tom Rued is asking residents to donate 150 pints of blood to meet the March quota.

Blood received in the Twin Falls drive and others around the state goes directly to the Boise Blood Center where it is tested for various factors, labeled and distributed back to the 48 hospitals served by the center.

In Twin Falls almost 1,000 units of blood were made available from the center for treatment of patients during the past year.

During the year, the mobile units and the center will collect about 25,000 units (pints) of blood from donors in Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

Early this year the center observed its 25th anniversary service to the region. During its entire 25 years, the center has been headed by Dr. E. F. Sestero, who has directed it through many years.

He received his medical education at Georgetown University, served with the U.S. Navy during World War II and practiced in Idaho for a number of years before becoming medical director of the Regional Blood Center.

National Red Cross officials Dr. Sestero is recognized in the blood program as having the greatest professional knowledge of regional blood center operation from a medical-technical standpoint as anyone in the country.

Success of the blood center depends on the many blood-drawing stations around the country, says Rued, and the success of the Boise blood center largely with the hundreds of volunteers who donate blood and who work in the blood centers to assist the donors and receive and ship the blood.

Working in the center with Dr. Sestero are: Elaine Pakon, R.N., chief nurse, and three nurses and six supervisors.

These nurses travel with the mobile unit and direct the collection of blood from volunteer donors. Volunteer nurses help those by taking medical histories and performing the professional standards of the bloodmobile visits in their communities.

Another member of the medical team at the center is Robert Kober, chief technologist. He is assisted by five full-time and two part-time laboratory technologists.

They test each unit of blood by prescribed standards of the American Red Cross and federal government. This testing includes a sophisticated method of testing carries out computer-processed, and involves various testing methods.

to prevent the use of blood for transfusion and save an already sick patient from contracting further illness.

In addition to whole blood the laboratory makes a variety of blood components: various components of whole blood is also prepared and offered by the center. These include gamma globulin, serum albumin and plasma protein fraction.

Robert Gaudin, administrator of the regional center in Boise and has the responsibility for general program operations; financial management, personnel and supplies. He heads a secretarial and clerical staff to maintain records and keep the blood center business going.

Area station managers say radio doing good job

BY CHECKER BIRD
TWIN FALLS—Area radio stations are doing a good job of bringing music and talk to Magic Valley area station managers.

Managers were in response to a Times-News report Feb. 20 of petitions in circulation which urged the FCC to regulate radio programming. The purpose, according to the petition, is to let residents air grievances, and to consider in light of citizen complaints, the licensing of local stations. All Idaho radio stations are due to be licensed by the FCC in the next few weeks.

When Lee Jerome, owner of KATV and KMPV, was the most public in his response. KATV ran an editorial for several days against the FCC's action.

Lee said the FCC's action was "lacked diversity." Lee said he had never had any request for jazz, rock or folk music. "We've had just a slight input on classical to the point where we have already purchased some of the recordings," Lee said, "the station can't really do anything for them yet."

Lee said he was going to the Magic Valley area to get programming to suit people in California or to suit people who have come here from other parts of the country. "Lee said another specific point mentioned by

Wind breaks TF window

TWIN FALLS—Highwinds Friday and the heavy snows that followed early Saturday caused some damage in the Magic Valley.

Winds up to 60 mph per hour blew out a plate glass window at the Furniture Warehouse on Main Street by about 3:30 p.m. Friday.

A woman passerby hearing the cracking glass, jumped out to see what was going on.

No estimates of damages incurred in the incident were available, although two chairs were reportedly damaged.

The wind broke the night window at the Elmer Johnson Farm north of Boise.

The wind also broke a window at the home of a woman who was sent flying into a corral killing a saddle horse which belonged to Hansen's daughter. Winds also damaged a granary, knocked down a light pole, and loosened the roof of another barn on the Hansen property.

The extent of the damages has not been determined, Hansen said, but the horse was worth about $2 million if you include the grain.

About six inches of heavy wet snow fell Friday night and early Saturday in Twin Falls. The snow fell in several inches in the area.

Burley had about three inches of snow, Rupert, eight inches; Jerome, seven inches; Hazelton, six inches and Gooding, a trace.

Hagerman reported 37 inches of rain.

Idaho State Police said State Highway 27 between Burley and Oakley was closed for a time late Friday because of blowing dust. The interchange for Highway 180 was nearly blocked by drifting dirt for a time because of high winds, and new construction work was stopped.

Galeum summit remained closed due to drifting snow on Saturday. The pass was closed Friday morning following heavy snowfall.

The State Highway Department officials said that snow on the highway was not a problem in Idaho, but that snow and blowing dust were a problem in the area.

On Thursday, the highway department reported that the highway was nearly blocked by drifting dirt for a time because of high winds, and new construction work was stopped.

Hog prices had crept up from the $9.65 to $12 in February, 1971 before beginning the boom when bottom prices hit a record one and 200 last month.

Amorous passenger turns plane back

CIUDAD BOLIVAR, Venezuela (UPI) — A passenger kissed a tour guide and a stewardess aboard an Avensa airlines jetliner Thursday and the pilot turned the plane around, made an unscheduled landing and ejected him.

Capt. Efraim Blanes, pilot of the plane en route from Ciudad Bolivar to the jungle resort of Canaima, turned back after 25 minutes in the air and landed in Ciudad Bolivar.

The "obstreperous" passenger, who was not identified, was handed over to national guardsmen at the airport. They reported he was drunk.

Judge orders feds to justify X-ray use

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge has ordered the government until March 11 to justify the use of X-ray machines at airports to thwart potential hijackers.

U.S. District Court Judge Harrington D. Parker responds to a request by American Family Federation for World Friendship and Friendship (AFFF) and granted a stay until March 11 in order to issue the day before to enforce a stay.

The AFFF requested the stay for the purpose of determining what your future course of action will be.

The AFFF machines in use at many airports around the country "scan" the passenger's carry-on luggage for weapons or explosives. The FAA considers them a crucial part of its anti-hijacking system.

California legislation out of the "machines as a result of a suit filed by the AFFF in Federal court in San Francisco. The suit seeks injunctive relief to force the FAA to advocate "leath-

Wendell edges Kimberly for A-3 crown

Bunn hits final 4 points to squelch late bid 58-55

SIOSHONE Senior Matt Bunn hit the final four points of the game as the Wendell Trojans beat back the fourth quarter rally of Kimberly 58-55 to claim the fourth district A-3 basketball championship.

The Trojans did it the hard way, coming out of the losers bracket and winning the last three nights of the tournament. Kimberly, given the Cinderella tag for this tournament, who put Wendell in the loser bracket with a two-point upset last week.

Although Kimberly has won the title after being the only undefeated team in the meet-up one point, the consolation for Coach Dick Rees and his Bulldogs is to be the runner-up in Wendell in the state tournament opening at College of Southern Idaho gymnasium Thursday afternoon.

Kimberly will go against the northern team in the 9 p.m. opener while Wendell will take on the runner-up club from the third district in the nightcap. Wendell had a little trouble getting started but once it did the Trojans led almost the entire game. Stinson and Strickling did most of the first half scoring while Bunn, the club's leading gun, was held to give a halftime bar wound up with 17.

Kimberly would have been out of the thing in the third quarter but for the sudden shooting brilliance of Holly Houburg. He came off the bench early in the third quarter and hit just about everything he put up, sending up the night with game honors at 20 points.

Kimberly's biggest lead came in the first period at 10 and Wendell topped a 10-11 tie at the end of the first half. Strickling got them on the board, the Trojans hurried back into a 12-10 first quarter lead.

Sisson opened the second period with two buckets and Wendell was ahead 15-10 for a long time. Wendell's biggest margin came in the final three minutes when it trailed 24-23. Houburg served up a little omelet by getting four points after that, although Kimberly still led by one.

The first four minutes of the game was a matter of basket matching, but then Houburg started his tear. He hit two buckets to reduce the deficit to two points. Strickling and Kimberly's Tony Slane had offsetting buckets.

Houburg ended the third quarter and opened the fourth with two buckets after he had hit for Wendell, put in a follow, then Rod Malone hit the first of a one-and-one, free throw situation, missed.

The second and Houburg talked it into the lead 34-32. Kimberly Tracy Scott then arose with a six-point outburst over the next couple of minutes as the teams traded buckets. Bunn then sent Wendell up three, but after the last one Tom Standley hit two free throws and Slane hit a jumper, with 1:45 left, and the ball.

But a missed free throw turned that around and in the last minute Bunn showed Wendell back on top with a rebound bucket. Wendell then regained the ball after a missed Kimberly shot and went into a delay. That paid off when Bunn slipped behind the horsing Kimberly defense for the clinching points with six seconds left.

Friday night the Wendell Trojans put the tournament into an extra session with a 60-51 victory over Kimberly.

The Trojans dominated most of the game out at one point in the third quarter held a 19-point advantage. Kimberly rallied in the final four minutes to come within one point.

The Bulldogs scored the first three points of the game before Wendell came back to lead 10-5 with two minutes remaining in the quarter. Wendell led 12-12 at the end of the opening quarter.

In the second quarter the Trojans went to a 20-16 margin and ended the first half with a 37-21 lead. Bunn led the Wendell scoring in the first half with 12 points.

In the third quarter the Trojans scored six points while the cold-shooting Bulldogs could manage only six.

Wendell held a comfortable margin in the first half of the first quarter and with four minutes left in the game were up 55-37. Then the Bulldogs began to rally. With two minutes remaining the Bulldogs had cut the margin to 44 points and were behind 59-47 with a minute remaining.

Hudson led the rally for Kimberly, an one-point margin. He scored nine points in the second half, finishing the night with 21 points. Standley added eight points in the last half.

USC edges Cal, keeps title hopes alive

IRVINE, Calif. (UPI)—Danny Anderson's jumper with three seconds left in a pulsing overtime Saturday evening at the Southern California state college basketball race with a 70-67 victory over California State University at Long Beach. USC, now 4-2 in the conference with one game left to play, quickly answered the hit with a free throw for the final point. Anderson's jumper was not entirely to one, as Anderson took a free throw on technical and major foul a two-point lead.

The Trojans got the ball a fifth time on the resulting jump ball and with one second remaining they hit the winning shot. Anderson's jumper was not entirely to one, as Anderson took a free throw on technical and major foul a two-point lead.

Wood River cops A-2 district championship Wolverines topple Jerome by 45-34

Umpires okay three-year pact

The Wood River Wolverines won the district four A-2 championship Friday night with a decisive 45-34 victory over the Jerome Tigers.

Wood River, undefeated in the tournament, will advance to the state playoffs in Boise this week. Jerome, runner-up in the tournament, topped Sun Valley Thursday night to enter the finals.

In the first quarter, both teams looked like they were playing a season opener instead of district tournament finals. Steve O'Toole put the Tigers on top 2-0 at the start of the game.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Major League umpires have given preliminary approval Saturday for a three-year contract with the American and National leagues, calling for annual increases in minimum salaries and other benefits.

John C. Kelly, attorney and negotiator for the umpires, said the position remains in a limbo state until representatives of both leagues reached agreement on the contract after two days of negotiations Feb. 27-28 and in a preliminary pact Sunday.

The contract, which was indicated acceptance of a written contract to be signed by the Major League Baseball Players Association, effective this year, will increase from $12,500 to $13,800 in 1974, to $15,000 in 1975, and to $16,500 in 1976.

Umpires, with 4700-year service will receive $2,000 this year, $2,200 in 1975 and $2,400 in 1976 compared to $1,800 minimum in the old agreement.

Umpires, with 24 years' experience, will receive $25,000 minimum, plus receive before every other umpire has worked.

The agreement calls for arbitration of all contract disputes. A grievance procedure for umpires.

Other new benefits included: increased dental and disability benefits; better benefits for family members; and a pension plan to be set up for umpires.

Compensation for umpires for the 1974 season was boosted from $8,000 to $8,500 this year with additional benefits of $100 annually in each of the first two years and the league championship compensation was boosted from its current rate of $300 a year.

The league also agreed to rotate umpires for World Series League Championships and for the game with umpires working two events.

Entries accepted for outlaw tourney

Entries for the annual "Outlaw" basketball tournament currently are being accepted, reports tournament chairman Lee Bartlett.

Bartlett said the 16-team single-elimination "outlaw" tourney will run March 20 through 24 at the Fillet high school gymnasium.

Bartlett said the tournament is "limited to teams and personnel from within the geographical confines of Blaine Valley. Any player is eligible provided he has not played on any A-2 basketball team or played on or against any college or junior college team.

Each team is restricted to 10 players on the roster.

Modified high school rules will govern the tournament, with exceptions being 15-minute halves and three-minute overtimes. The one-minute overtime will not apply until the last five minutes of the game. Seven fouls must be charged against a team before common foul result in free throws in any circumstance.

Those interested should contact Bartlett at 1240 Harrison Park Ave. Twin Falls or by phone 733-7726.

Griffin gets MVP honors

CHICAGO (UPI) — Archie Griffin, Ohio State's All-American tailback, was presented the Chicago Tribune's silver football Saturday as the most valuable player in the 1973 season.

Griffin, who received the Tommie Spinks award from the Associated Press, is the first sophomore to ever receive the honor.

Wood River's 45-34 victory over Jerome was the closest in the district.

The Tigers, who were in the losing column in all three quarters, were held to 13 out of 16 attempts while the Wolverines managed only a pair of free throws.

In the first half, Wood River was 12 out of 21 from the field while the Tigers were only five out of 21 from the field.

Wood River scoring in the first half, with nine points in the second half. Chapman and Staley scored first goals to bring the Tigers within 11 points at 20-9. Then Thompson scored three points and Aldinger a field goal to put the Wolverines in a 21-13 dominating position with less than six minutes left in the third quarter.

The biggest play in the Wood River was a 38-yard field goal by Aldinger with 2:30 remaining.

Walters hit field goal at the start of the fourth quarter as the Tigers trailed at that point 35-28. Wood River's Thompson hit a free throw before halftime to bring the score to 35-29.

The Tigers within eight points at 40-22 without six minutes left in the game. That score, however, was the closest in the district.

The 10-minute overtime was a 10-0 final minutes each.

Wood River dominated from the free throw line, converting 13 out of 16 attempts while the Tigers managed only a pair of free throws.

Twin Falls tops Minico for regional title

Lash, Haynes and Hovey spark 54-43 decision

Twin Falls' victory over Minico in the regional title game was a result of a combination of factors, including the performance of Lash, Haynes and Hovey.

Coach Haynes felt there was another factor. "The boys felt they had it pretty well locked up in the fourth quarter and missed. We didn't put much pressure on their defense. It appeared he was right. With the score 54-43 with four minutes left Lash got loose inside and gave the Bruin fans a real headache about thinking the ball. First course, second, but also was the victory sign.

Twin Falls' early scoring was a key factor. "Blinded Minico's plan for a hold down offense as the Spartans had to try to play catch-up. However, they stuck to their game plan and did not come back to the third and fourth quarters. That victory was due to the outside jump shooting of Steve Virtue who hit seven of 10 attempts.

Minico did not shoot badly, in fact they shot 47 percent in the first half, but trailed 23-15 because Twin Falls shot 67 percent.

The early 10-point deficit came on two buckets each by Haynes and Lash and another by Dennis Bowyer. Twin Falls missed only one during that stretch but Lash tailed it back up.

It was Haynes with four fast and Hovey with two points each as Twin Falls made it 27-15 in the second period, but it was as far as the Bruins could get away.

Minico's bid to come back in the third quarter was thwarted by Hovey who pushed in 11 points. Kyle Keller and Russ Terry also opened the ball with buckets but Hovey and Haynes replied for Twin Falls. They traded points over the rest of the minutes before Virtue hit a three-point play and Schultz. Morehouse connected to reduce the margin to 43, but Hovey hit twice from the line and after another Virtue bucket, Matt Wescot's driving shot and Hovey's free throws lifted Twin Falls ahead 48-31.

Early in the fourth period Virtue hit four points and Krey scored the game-winning shot. Minico had a chance to get closer, but missed a one-and-one. Then Haynes hit a free throw, missed the second and Matt Schultz tucked it back in. Schmidt scored the next time down the floor to make it 53-36 and then came the Lash dunk.

Morehouse wound it up with four points, two of them at the buzzer, and Keller put a three-point play as Minico got as close as it had been since the early-second period.

The two Twin Falls victories in the tournament were the first since 1963. Coach Wescot has suffered in district games play over seven years at Oakley and Minico.

Oakley nips Castleford for championship

Pickett paces overtime decision despite Wiggings, Easterday play

MURTAUGH — Don Pickett put the Oakley Hornets on his slender shoulders and carried them past Castleford 59-57 in overtime Saturday night and into the state "A" basketball playoffs for the first time in four years.

Oakley's weakness at guard was noticeable when the Wolves turned to their press. It was take-aways that let them dominate in the second and third quarters to reduce the seemingly insurmountable deficit at 51-40 at intermission.

The first half was a tight struggle, with the visitors leading at the buzzer by 12-10. Pickett threw in the first four-point shot while Castleford's Wiggings went out on fouls. Only Easterday was able to get some air at the buzzer by taking a foul. Easterday and Wiggings put on a great outside shooting display, as they hit 12 and 10 respectively in the early rounds. Castleford's defense held the Wolves seemingly always in an inside position on the offensive boards.

But Pickett, the tallest man on the floor at 6-3 and the best leaver in the district, started cutting on strong on the boards and his scoring picked up. He proved enough to offset Castleford's usual backboard dominance.

Rabbit got Oakley untracked momentarily. Easterday and Foukal ran in two points each for a 53-52 tie at the tip-off. Pickett nailed a tip-off 2-3 missed from throw — on his third attempt — and Oakley then regained possession and went to a tight contest.

The Hornets wanted the ball back for five seconds when another steal set up Easterday's unbelievable bucket.

Pickett opened the overtime with two free throws, then a foul and After Easterday replied for Castleford, Whiteley hit a base-line jumper and then came back with a driving hook or about eight feet. Nelson then tucked it away with four free throws while Castleford could manage only a bucket by Easterday.

Castleford's first shot in the tournament hit an iron pipe session Friday night with a 72-69 win over Oakley in overtime.

With seven seconds left in the game Castleford led 57-51 with seven seconds left. Then Don Pickett came out for a pair of free throws to put the game into overtime. Pickett scored 10 points in the final quarter and Dave Wiggings scored 14 points. Pickett's overtime heroics were capped by a pair of free throws that won the game for the Hornets. The victory was capped by a pair of free throws by Nelson and Pickett. Lott and Easterday led the scoring effort for the Wolves in the overtime. Oakley jumped to a 19-margin in the quarter. The Hornets led throughout the second quarter and kept up their lead at intermission.

Whistling Heard retains lead in Citrus tourney

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Whistling will be heard in California. Jerry Heard cruised a Saturday to hold the lead after the third round of the $150,000 Citrus Open golf tournament at Inverrary.

Heard capped the day with a 75-foot birdie putt on the last hole to tie the trail.

Of course, you had cost him a birdie on the 17th hole. He really wants to win here.

Heard, who hasn't won a tournament in a year and a half, "I want to play in the Tournament of Champions. I think it will be a good thing if it will do it."

Hurting and whistling as he walked the fairways, the 1972 Citrus winner had five birdies and two bogeys to claim the last bogey on a disturbance in the crowd.

"I heard some girl holler and it really disturbed me," he said. "But you can't blame the hollers. The spectators are always nice."

Leonard Thompson, who won his first tournament last week at the Jackie Gleason Invitational, also shot a 69 for a threeway tie with Homer Hickox and Bob Murray at Inverrary par 206, two strokes behind the leader.

Alone in fifth place was Chuck Henderson who shot a 68 for a one-stroke lead over Tom Murphy, who had a 68 with five birdies and one bogey, also fussed about an unruly crowd.

On the 15th green the sand gol livery at some people who were having fun with a "Fanus" of beer.

"I'm very even-tempered," Murphy said. "I just stay mad all the time."

Hickox shot a 65 with eight birdies and five bogeys and commented, "I hit the ball better than I have in a couple of years."

In a bunch of seven players at over 200 yards, Steve Brice, Cranton, who also edged a 66 with a bogeyless round and six birdies.

Cranton hit three putts of 25 feet or better and said, "All I want is to win. I don't know if I should have made it. I think the ones I don't expect to lose are the one for me for last week. I hope Cole, Brett Vancey, Bruce Dowlin, Bob Uecker, Hale Heard and Jimmy Watkins.

Two of the eight black pros who started the tournament finished Saturday's rounds at Inverrary behind 209, just five strokes behind the leader.

Charles Siford got the center and Joe Elder posted a 68.

Heard said that Sunday "I'll just shoot right at the pins and try to make some birdies."

Thompson, who had six birdies and three bogeys, said that he had a "Fanus" made in his mind.

"When you win there's no describing the feeling," he said.

"I didn't believe it would happen but it makes you want to win again."

Cole, a skinny South African, was billed as the next Gary Player, had a sensational start with seven birdies on his first 10 holes, but fell into trouble on the back nine with two bogeys and a double bogey.

Cole wore the South African Open last year.

"I just want to know," he said. "I don't know why because the greens are hot so good as they are in the States."

Energy crisis speeds growth

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The energy crisis is accelerating the growth of the oil and coal industries, according to a report by the U.S. Geological Survey.

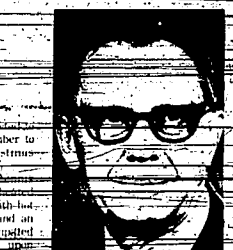

The report states that the demand for energy is increasing rapidly, and that the supply is being depleted. This has led to a sharp rise in prices and a search for alternative sources of energy.

The survey also notes that the government is taking steps to conserve energy and to develop new sources of power.

Greyhawk lodge project start set this spring

Construction of the Greyhawk Lodge in the Boise area is expected to begin this spring. The project, which will include a large resort building and surrounding grounds, is being developed by a local real estate firm.

The lodge is planned to be a major attraction for tourists and is expected to provide a significant boost to the local economy.

Cattle futures decline

CHICAGO, March 2.—Cattle futures prices declined today, with the market closing lower than it opened. The decline was attributed to a surplus of cattle and a lack of demand.

Prices for various grades of cattle, including steers and heifers, all showed a downward trend. Market analysts expect prices to remain volatile in the coming weeks.

Idaho industrial output increases

Industrial output in Idaho has increased significantly in recent months, according to a report from the state's economic development office. The increase is attributed to a combination of factors, including rising demand for raw materials and improved production efficiency.

Key industries such as mining, manufacturing, and construction are showing strong growth. This trend is expected to continue as the state's economy recovers from the effects of the previous downturn.

Telephone firm aide retires

A high-ranking aide at a major telephone company in Boise has announced his retirement. The aide, who has spent the majority of his career with the company, will be missed by his colleagues.

He is expected to retire in the near future. His departure leaves a significant void in the company's operations, and it is likely that his duties will be redistributed among other staff members.

Privileges scored

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The U.S. House of Representatives has passed a bill that grants certain privileges to foreign investors. The bill is part of a broader effort to attract foreign investment and stimulate economic growth.

The legislation allows foreign companies to acquire U.S. assets more easily and provides them with certain tax and regulatory benefits. This is seen as a major step towards opening up the U.S. market to international investors.

Bank lists business increases

Local banks in Boise and other Idaho cities report a steady increase in business activity. This is reflected in higher deposit levels and increased lending to businesses and individuals.

The banks are optimistic about the future of the Idaho economy and are continuing to offer competitive rates and services to their customers.

Production boosted

Production of various goods in Idaho has been boosted by a combination of factors, including improved weather conditions and increased investment in new technology. This has led to higher output and lower costs for producers.

The boost in production is particularly notable in the agricultural and manufacturing sectors. This is expected to lead to increased employment and higher economic growth in the state.

Silver-off daily limit

NEW YORK, March 2.—The price of silver has reached a new daily limit, with prices fluctuating significantly throughout the day. This volatility is due to a combination of factors, including changes in supply and demand and international market movements.

Analysts are watching the silver market closely, as it is expected to play a key role in the global economy in the coming months.

Coertzen joins truck line staff

Robert Coertzen, a former executive at a major trucking company, has joined the staff of a local trucking firm. Coertzen brings with him a wealth of experience in the industry and is expected to contribute significantly to the firm's operations.

His new role involves overseeing the firm's fleet and managing its relationships with clients. This move is seen as a strengthening of the firm's management team.

Conoco buys gasoline

Conoco has purchased a large quantity of gasoline from a local supplier. This purchase is part of the company's ongoing efforts to secure a steady supply of fuel for its operations and to support the local economy.

The transaction is expected to result in lower prices for Conoco's customers and is a sign of the company's commitment to the Idaho market.

Loss a pound a day and more

NEW YORK, March 2.—A study has shown that a diet of Vitamin E can help people lose weight and improve their overall health. The study found that participants who took Vitamin E supplements lost an average of one pound per day, with some losing even more.

The researchers believe that Vitamin E helps to regulate metabolism and reduce inflammation, which can lead to weight gain. This discovery is seen as a major breakthrough in the field of nutrition and weight management.

Business Briefs

- Local businesses report a strong start to the new year, with sales up and profits rising.
- The Idaho Chamber of Commerce is planning a series of events to promote the state's economy.
- Several new companies have been established in Boise, bringing jobs and investment to the area.
- The state government is considering a new tax package to stimulate economic growth.

Livestock

OMAHA, Neb., March 2.—Livestock prices were steady today, with a slight increase in the price of cattle. The market was active, with a good number of transactions taking place.

Prices for various types of livestock, including cattle, hogs, and sheep, are generally stable. This is due to a balance between supply and demand in the market.

Vitamin E Discovery Offers Fast Weight Loss

NEW YORK, March 2.—A new scientific discovery has produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people and is gaining a following in the U.S. and abroad.

The diet, which is based on a combination of Vitamin E supplements and a low-calorie, high-fiber diet, has helped many people lose weight and improve their health. This discovery is seen as a major breakthrough in the field of nutrition and weight management.

Kimberly Scout honored

KIMBERLY — Brian Allen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Allen, Kimberly, is the fourth Boy Scout of his family to earn an Eagle award.

Brian was presented the honor during ceremonies last week in Kimberly.

He is a member of Troop 88 and serves as senior group leader. The 13-year-old boy attends Kimberly Junior High School and has been in scouting more than five years.

In receiving the award, he is following in the footsteps of his three older brothers. Mrs. Allen said this makes it 100 per cent of the Allen family as heirs of the Scout of her sons.

Almanac scored by imported fish eat vegetation

(By Chicago Sun-Times)

CHICAGO — It was just a matter of time till someone would look back 107 1/2 years after the first issue of the Farmer's Almanac came out, someone did.

The "Almanac" is a compendium of practical knowledge that predicts the weather, describes the planets, routes through the skies and lards its pages with corny old jokes, has been touched by controversy.

Feminists don't like the Almanac. They say the jokes are cruel and stereotype women as ditzy, brainless, stupid blowblows. In a way, they are right.

Diny Geiger has done plenty of enquiring at women's expense during his 30 years at the Almanac's helm. There was a comparison of men and women last year that credited men with high marks for "bigger" brains. That same issue indicated one city was "down" — "Dixie" — "It is wonderful. It keeps a lot of women home who otherwise might be out driving."

Well, that one was a stretch. Geiger is now out of his Lewiston, Ore. office. "People love jokes like that. When I go on a talk show, I get lots of calls from women about those jokes. They try me, not to change."

Another year has rolled around, and with it the 1974 Farmer's Almanac. Here are a few funnies from the new book.

Can you imagine anyone as unhappy as a woman will live secret and a dead telephone?

Or: My wife Cora is going home to spend two weeks with her mother-in-law. She does this every year. It's a refresher course in nagging.

The Almanac takes special delight in fat women and girlish judging from the newspaper's usual war-holding taxes, blubber bands and flabators.

And if you thought that '73 was vintage or '74 was bad, those jokes are low-down. You won't believe it.

Seems Geiger has had a small change of heart after a few discussions with the members of a feminist group he decided to include something called "Feminists Pray" instead of "Women" in one of the Almanac's prayers.

"I think I have a relationship with the feminists," Geiger concluded.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. Many private lakes and ponds in Alabama are being locked with Siberian plant-eating fish that "mow" down underwater weeds like cattle eating grass in a pasture.

The fish, the white amur, is billed by some ecologists as the answer to "plant pollution" in lakes. It was introduced into the United States in the early 1960s on an experimental basis.

Much of the early experimentation was done by Auburn University's Great Lakes and state concerns in Arkansas, where the fish is used widely for "plant control."

It is said to be the best control yet for weeds and such that hinder growth and production of other fish.

John Lawrence, professor of fishery at Auburn, "They'll eat about any kind of plant life, including algae and other pest plants caused by chemical pollutants."

Capable of living 16 years and growing as big as a cow in native waters, the amur can consume four times his weight a day in vegetation. Amurs even keep the edges of a lake trimmed to inches above the water's edge and will gnaw up grass clippings from a lawnmower like a "big to do."

As one amur fancier put it:

Charles Watkins, owner of Elmore County Fish Hatchery and early pioneer in raising amurs, said his original batch once gobbled up a whole lot of hay within two weeks.

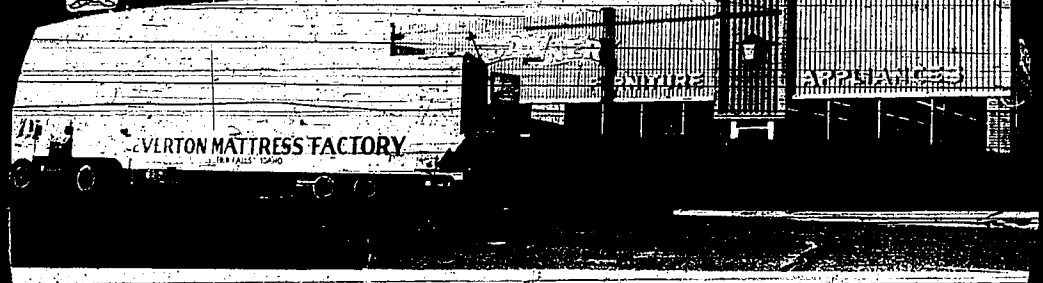

"I had about 15,000 of them from 15-night hatching in the lake," he said. "They pushed and pulled that ball of hay all over the place, taking out the hay."

The amur, though, won't eat other fish, which benefit from the removal of weeds from lake habitat.

The amur will not reproduce out of 16 nations — waters except sometimes under a complicated method in which hormones are used.

You can hardly find much in demand and hard to reproduce," Watkins said. "About the only place I know where they've done it is in Arkansas."

Valley Comment

QUESTION: Do you think the income tax structure is fair?

Mary Lou Frazier, Twin Falls:

"I think it's fair. I'm not discriminated against personally—we are paying higher taxes. We have to put back more than we have been put sure for that like it is just."

Larry Williams, South Dakota: "No, I don't, because I have to pay on a percentage basis for the total year's income and I only made a small part of that's income here in Idaho. It is better to have an income tax than to base it on property."

Lee Eldredge, Carey: "Not at all. I don't think so. Look what everybody can get away with. There are too many loopholes. The worker people are paying the bulk of it. Taxes are eating up the working man's wages."

Samy Humbach, Wendell: "I suppose it is as fair as it can be. I think we are overtaxed. I think we are paying too much. I don't feel so many of our tax dollars should go to our welfare program."

Gretchen Rust, Sun Valley: "No. I pay more taxes than Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan put together, and I'm not sure I don't pay more than Joseph Adlo. It must be the structure that is unfair. Someone should take a look at some of the tax breaks or should make more money so I'm comfortable paying the taxes."

Doug Howe, Jerome: "The graduated income tax 'seems' to take away the incentive to earn more. I think sometimes the money is put in places it's not called for. I think our welfare system should be less dependent on income to go to the recipients and not qualified. I don't have any better ideas at this moment."

Patricia Blake, Weiser: "I don't know. I think that the higher the tax brackets are, the more the consumer pays in taxes because of the structure set up that way. The man that works for wages pays the most tax. The higher the income, the more 'breaks' and 'more exemptions.' The wage earners should have a better break. Maybe no tax at all on the first $5,000 to $8,000 in wages."

Janet Luckman, Kimberly: "No. The only way taxes can be fair is to have a flat tax rate for every income. Right now, the tax the way it is now, the middle income people are paying all the taxes."

Pills stop women's heart palpitations

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You wrote that "accelerating heart beat (heart) cause worry." I am 60 years old and had palpitation for many years and doctors told me the same thing.

One day I got tired of that advice and asked my doctor if he had anything that would help me fight these spells, and if so, I wanted it. He gave me a prescription for half-grain phenobarbital tablets, a bottle of Valium.

That was three years ago and I haven't taken them all, but I never have palpitation any more. I put them by my bed every night. Please tell your patients about it. If I had not asked for help, I'd still be having spells. — Mrs. C. F. S.

Good for your doctor. He hit the right answer for you. Palpitation, which worries so many people so much, in the vast majority of cases comes from two causes. The first is nervous tension, which includes the sheer tension of worrying about the spells. The other is overstimulation from too much smoking, coffee or other forms of caffeine, or drug stimulants.

Well, you never managed to convince yourself that your nerves were your enemy, but your doctor gave you a mild sedative — and that did the trick. A tranquilizer probably would have done as well, but the phenobarb was simpler.

Frankly, there are some patients to whom I would give that drug and you would be one of those who have a good judgement to use it only occasionally.

There are other patients to whom I would not give it, and I refer to the pill-poppers who lean so heavily on medication that they don't know when to stop. Some of them would take the phenobarb every night, and indeed, some would start gradually taking two, or maybe more until they got since it appears in pretty much the same place and the same time each month. I would suspect that it is a form of herpes simplex — "kin to the cold sores" that periodically bother some folks — I have seen lesions on thigh and buttocks that I guess would resemble yours.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is a tubal pregnancy? A friend of mine had one and so did her sister. Is it hereditary? — L. S.

Dr. George Thosteson

themselves into a habit of taking them, or even intravenous poisoning.

It's a safe drug when used according to instructions, and as you have used it — but overuse is a possibility of which we must always remain aware.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: At the onset of menses each month, I feel a sharp pain about the size of a silver dollar appears at the base of my spine, or sometimes on the left hip. It's itching and burning lasts four or five days. Is there any particular cause? — Mrs. W. T.

It is pretty much impossible to diagnose skin eruptions or lesions without seeing them, so I would suggest having a dermatologist examine you when this occurs.

All I can give you is a guess:

booklet, "How To Take Care of Your Heart," enclosed a long self-addressed (use zip code), stamped envelope and 25¢ in coin to cover cost of printing and mailing.

Dear Thosteson: I welcome all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The climbing perch or walking fish is known for its ability to stay out of water for days. The fish has a special breathing organ called its gills which enables it to absorb atmospheric oxygen or take oxygen from water. The World Almanac says, "The fish with the power to crawl out of its water and live on land is the lungfish and pacu fish. The popular aquarium fish with a long, thin, wavy tail is the walking catfish."

Poor single mothers increase

By SUSAN HOGG

(U) Newhouse News Service WASHINGTON—Welfare welfare needs data, once-obscure—are weeded-out and the aged and disabled discouraged—is an ever-increasing percentage of poor and 40 mothers and 45 children dependent on the dole—between 1960 and 1972, the percentage of female-headed families in the nation's population rose from 23.9 percent to 43.3 per cent for whites and from 42.9 to 48 per cent for blacks, according to a study by the Urban Institute, a Ford Foundation think tank in Washington. The study said families receive federal welfare benefits. Any welfare reform scheme to make these women economically independent brings in head-on collision the Puritan work ethic and the tradition of motherhood.

Complicating this dilemma are other factors, including the changing work roles of women, soaring rates of divorce and illegitimacy and a genuine but inflationary economy.

President Nixon's state of the union address promised a new attempt to reform the "unfettered" welfare system. The details of the new system are not clear, but it is thought that reform will be based on some form of a guaranteed annual income, available to all poor, intact families. Some women have no male breadwinner and receive maintenance payments in New Jersey and elsewhere have shown that male heads of poverty families respond to the guaranteed income by continuing to work or by seeking jobs in order to work their way off welfare and out of poverty.

The Urban Institute, say the work incentives of a guaranteed income—which allow welfare recipients to earn money from a job without losing dollar for John their welfare benefits do not have the same effect on welfare mothers.

Isabel C. Sawhill and Heather Ross, economists at the Urban Institute, say that only about 10 percent of the women now on welfare could be expected to look for jobs under an income maintenance plan.

"For a lot of these women it's simply easier to stay home and let the state act as their husband," says Mrs. Ross. "In some cases, welfare is a more stable and generous source of work in order to keep the family above the margin of poor poverty.

Thus the man earning $3,000 dollars a year is the most likely to have a wife who works to bring the family income up to $4,000 or $5,000.

Other working mothers are forced into the job market (or the welfare rolls) by divorce. Divorcees have scored over the past decade, so today almost 50 percent of all marriages are broken. At the same time, the chances are increasing that the divorcee has no means to support herself and to contribute to the support costs of their children," says Mrs. Ross, who points out that the participation of job income in the job market is actually declining.

"Talking about jobs for welfare clients got to be the reactionary, anti-minority, anti-black position of the 1950s," she says. "Today that's no longer the case."

But once the decision is made that single mothers should work, the crux of the problem becomes what to do. What should welfare mothers steal the show, as the job went during the Great New York City blizzard of 1968?

Ms. Ross says Ms. Sawhill says the answer lies in major changes in the job market, changes that are probably beyond the reach of any single government action.

"The economic boom of the 1960s, fueled by the Vietnam war, helped a substantial number of men lift themselves and their families out of poverty; but little for women who are relegated to the lowest paying jobs, even though many welfare mothers are better educated than the men who are moving up the economic ladder with assembly-line jobs," Ms. Ross says.

Clerical work is a good example. The limited openings for women in the ranks of nonunion, non-union women are competing for menial jobs. Ms. Ross says. Welfare mothers consistently have positions of such clerical nature and more likely to have a high school diploma.

Overcoming pervasive sex discrimination will require the cooperation of labor unions to open the ranks of factory workers to women; and to organize the low paying clerical and services professions—waiting on table, running, school teaching—that women now dominate.

The federal government can help by enforcing the Equal Employment Opportunity Act, opening the ranks of the professions to college-educated women—and freeing the secretarial jobs they hold that a high school graduate could perform, Ross and Sawhill say.

But if the job market requirements that training and job placement services give priority to male heads of families on welfare in the 70 states where they are eligible should be eliminated, the two economists add.

Public employment might afford new job opportunities to welfare mothers, although the costs are enormous and such positions cannot compete with the private sector in terms of wages, Ms. Ross says.

Shorter working hours for women would create more job slots.

"I'd like to see men work six hours and women work six hours, freeing up men to help care for children, and helping to get more men into the costs of day care," Ms. Sawhill says.

Finally it may be necessary for people's tastes to change when it comes to what type of work they are willing to do.

Ms. Ross says higher wages for dull, dead-end jobs would help women workers into such positions, but welfare mothers could also be persuaded to work on their own or through the force of the law—to accept them.

Some welfare proposals would do much to cut back on government expenditures, but Ms. Ross says.

Next: Part II, women and welfare—the economic and political realities.

Any scheme to make these women economically independent brings into head-on collision two American mores—the Puritan work ethic and adoration of motherhood.

income than marriage to a low income male.

She may have been capable of 20 years ago when a woman's right to stay home and care for her children was unquestioned, but Ms. Ross and Ms. Sawhill say the chances have changed. Many women have an out-of-pocket income from a working woman wage, earning under age 18, and in increasing numbers, mothers of jobless schoolers are entering the job market. The two economists point out an interview and working papers drawn up at the Urban Institute.

These working mothers are not necessarily seeking jobs to liberate them from the drudgery of housework, in fact, Ms. Sawhill says, the lower the husband's income, the more likely his wife is to will have children before her income goes on the rocks.

Chicago magazine pronounced it the middle and upper middle class, than among the poor (where illegitimacy is higher), and many of the women, like their working class sisters, are seeking their own way without the help of government.

Ms. Sawhill and Ms. Ross note. The dependence on welfare liberalism, Ms. Sawhill and Ms. Ross say welfare mothers, like divorcees and working-class housewives, should be working in order to gain the economic independence that will help them out of poverty rather than relying on the state for a guaranteed income.

At present, Tom has a few problems. They started July 17, 1973 (The first day of the riot). I think Tom is real tired that's why he's not doing too good when the rules Police Dept threatened to turn their K-9 unit loose on him. Tom had never seen a dog before—no dog he thought they were by C.I.S. As Tom has regained no of the Yard for six years, he was not going to be intimidated by a couple of... intruders. Namely, one, Dobberman and another, Bull Terrier. It was evident that Tom had intentions of attacking the dogs, when several of us intervened and chased him away before he committed suicide.

On July 24 we were locked in our cells and times got hard for all of us including Tom. We were put on a diet of box lunches so Tom went on the same diet as the other inmates. The people on the ground floor had a hard time getting food through the window of the cell.

When the gassing started, Tom got his share of that also. I think he was very brave, he was fighting with another cat. A guard gassed him with a 12 gauge gas gun. When Tom refused to quit fighting, rumor has it the guard kicked him this time.

We haven't been able to prove this to our own satisfaction. All we are sure of is Tom is missing half his teeth.

We probably have him on a boiled egg diet, but a cell could not keep his stomach indefinitely on boiled eggs, regardless of whether or not we had any more money to buy like to have a hot one and look at him. I have never heard of a cat receiving false teeth, but I would imagine anything is possible.

The convicts of the penitentiary are not asking charity for Tom. We will take up a collection among ourselves to pay the medical expenses. We will feed the rest of us as well as do anything to help him, just as we would help any other fellow convict.

Inmates feel Tom is one of us

By United Press International Colville, Idaho (U) Letters gathered by UPI from Charles Stotts, Inmate No. 82953 of the State Penitentiary, McJannet, Oklahoma.

The inmates of the State Penitentiary have been asked to give their names to support different humanitarian causes. We now respectfully request your support in a cause that is extremely important to us.

There are presently several cats within the penitentiary. We would appreciate your help in finding a private home for one of them. The name of the cat is Tom. Tom was born July 25, 1967. There are several tales I could tell you of Tom's exploits. However, it is doubtful that any of these tales would help in securing a home for him. Of Tom's not much to look

His job carries iron worker to heights

By Maxwell Elliott
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Like his father, Ron Baldner is an ironworker.

He often finds his work taking him to staggering heights.

Baldner is the ironworker foreman for the Industrial Construction Division of Allied Structural Steel Co., the firm building the new bridge north of Twin Falls across the Snake River Canyon.

Thursday he rode the recently completed catwalkway across the canyon. Some days he spends suspended from the canyon rim.

Baldner termed it "interesting" hanging out over the canyon like that. "Sometimes I wonder it should take a cut in pay for the scenery," he said. "I'm working," he said. Then he added he wouldn't accept a pay cut.

He has been doing iron work steadily for about 10 years, he said, but worked "about 20" at the trade since he was 16 years old. His father was an iron worker for 25 years, he said, and he used to "go along in the summer to get out of my mother's hair."

The work he did then was a punk's work, mainly setting nuts and bolts and doing miscellaneous chases, but it led him to men more after three years of college he returned to the job full-time.

Although his father was reluctant to have him enter the trade, his only son came to be an iron worker. It will be okay with me," Baldner said. The greatest hardship of the job, he said, was that it "takes the worker away from his family for long periods of time. At one point while he was growing up, Baldner did not see his father for about two years, he said, while working in Puerto Rico. Of course, that job took the whole family to Puerto Rico for over a year, he said.

Baldner moved to the Magic Valley last spring and hopes to make it his permanent home. He said he would like to work here. He said, although he would like to go over for a job, he would take his family with him.

Of the 10 ironworkers employed for the bridge construction at one time, he said, nearly all were away from their homes in such places as New Mexico and Alaska. That's the hardest part of the job, he said.

Height has never bothered Baldner. "As you work at the craft and get to understand what you're doing, you lose all the fear of 9000 feet," he said. "You develop confidence in yourself."

He insists that "it is no more hazardous than any other kind of job. There is a different outlook in every kind of trade."

"It is really fulfilling to see what you build," he said. "You're making the growth of the country."

"It is an unending challenge working up there in the air," he said, "and you never stop to think of the height if you know what you're doing and have confidence in yourself."

Now 39, Baldner said he has worked on various towers and warehouses of high buildings throughout his career. The new bridge, he said, "isn't that high a structure. You will find higher buildings in some cities."

He will be working at heights up to the feet during the construction of the new bridge.

One section of the tower that he worked on is over 200 feet high, he said. While in the midst of that job, on top of the tower, the wind came up and began swinging the tower in a wide arc. He focused his concentration on the job while up there, he said, when the job is the toughest part of the work.

"There isn't any specific type of person who takes up ironwork," Baldner insisted. "I was no just as different as any other group. Their off-work interests are so diversified you couldn't define it."

Baldner enjoys hunting and motorcycling when he is not working. Some of the men farm, some are horsemen and some golf in their off hours, he said.

Although most of the ironworkers for the Twin Falls job are from Southern Idaho, men employed through the Pleasanton union local, he said, many iron workers run into old coworkers in different jobs.

When Baldner was working on towers, he worked jobs ranging from Canada to Mexico, he said, and kept running into the same bunch of old fellows.

"Most guys that do it, do it because they really like the work," he said.

There's a lot of camaraderie. The whole respect for one another. They have a little respect for one another for doing it."

Now that the tower is up, and the catwalk strung and in working order, Baldner is the only iron worker employed at the site. His work will be mainly on the ground for the next few months, supervising the catwalk operators as they work on the ground and the construction position on the canyon wall to build footings for the V-shaped beams that will hold up the bridge.

Until the steel comes I'll just be flagging the guys and seeing the responsibility of that job is on them, when the crane goes down and one of ten men in a truck, eight, three-in-a-row," he said.

About 20 iron workers will be added to the crew this summer as work on the actual bridge construction begins, he said. Baldner will only assist and handle high-levels for the ground.

Baldner said the crew will get the cable run and was a great day for me. Baldner likes his job. "I wish you, you have to like your job," he said.

"I'm a carpenter," though, when asked if he planned to continue as an iron worker, he said. "I'm always open for something different."

Dwarfs have problems

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — Leonard Sawisch is one of the little people. He hates buying pants; thinks parade are a drag and never sits down at football games.

A 4-foot-4 dwarf, the 25-year-old Michigan State University graduate student plans to spend his life working with people his own size — children — as a teacher and researcher. "Kids feel more comfortable with me because of my size," Sawisch said. "Because I'm so small, I don't impose an authority image, and that's why it's so easy for them to relate to me. The novelty is greater with them, but it wears off quicker than it does with adults."

Now teaching a course on child psychology, Sawisch also is conducting research on creativity in children — from fifth graders to tenth graders to college students.

He thinks his findings may provide some clues towards personality development in dwarfs and answers to the social stigma of being small.

"Don't call Sawisch a midget. 'I'm not a midget,' he said, shaking his head and smiling. "You see, most people think all little people are midgets. But a midget is someone who is dwarfed and perfectly proportioned. A dwarf can be any little person perfectly proportioned or not."

An active member of Little People of America, Inc., Sawisch says the days of "dwarfs are over. But, he said, some stigmas remain. "It's not you, there's something wrong with it's the attitude of people around you," he said. "And it's not the person's individual problem, it's society's."

Sawisch, who is married to a 3-foot-9 brunette named Francis, does not let his size shrink his self-esteem. "Regardless of my size, I'm a fantastic guy," he said. "The biggest advantage in being a dwarf is taking advantage of other people's stereotypical of little people."

"If you are aware of how people react to you, you can use this knowledge to manipulate them. I tend to manipulate them to the point it upsets them, and then they realize that I am just another person like they are."

Little People of America, which was founded in 1951, has some 2,000 members. Sawisch estimated there are at least 10,000 dwarfs in the United States.

He also points out "Everybody has been a dwarf at some time in their life."

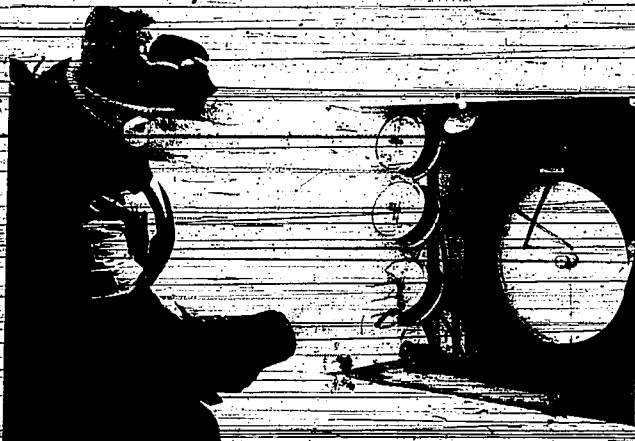

Pension figures changed

TWIN FALLS — Pension rates for the commander of the Twin Falls Disabled American Veterans (DAV) chapter were quoted incorrectly in a Times-News article last Sunday.

The figures for commander Earl Newham, inadvertently identified as Ira Stradley, were compensation and social security payments being received by Johnny York, state DAV department commander. York was cut from 100 per cent compensation to 50 per cent compensation this year, he said, which brought his compensation check from $325 per month to $165 per month. York said he could not hold down a job because of war-connected sinusitis, wounds and a tuberculosis condition, but that if he did work, he would lose nearly $200 a month in social security. "I can't live on it," he said.

Newham is receiving $164 a month from the veteran's administration for a non-service-connected disability, but he said he has been unable to qualify for social security. Newham, who said he can't do the work he is trained to do, took the social security forms to the veteran's administration to be filled out this year, in hopes Social Security officials recognize his disability.

"I don't know what's going to come of it," he said.

Maurice Faubion checks temperatures

Soil temperatures important

By HART QUENELL

Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — The soil temperature in the trench Wendell last summer was 30 degrees colder than a field in Twin Falls on the same day. With that, much difference in germination becomes only a wild guess when the same two farmers are planning to harvest potatoes from the same soil-temperature readout.

There may have been discrepancies in reading and installation of the instruments that recorded the temperatures, according to Maurice Faubion, head of the Kibler office of the National Weather Service.

Working through the Snake River Conservation and Reclamation Service, Faubion's job is to assist farmers with soil temperature readings, wind velocity, evaporation measurement and other procedures to help them determine harvest and planting times especially.

Soil temperatures in potato harvest time are usually said to be below 45 degrees potatoes become brittle and can bruise easily.

The soil test is being conducted again this year with Faubion and other officials examining the methods used.

"We were surprised there was such a difference," Faubion said, "and we're going to check it carefully next time."

farmers are relying more on their own observation to research findings, according to a report given by the research center. Favorable soil conditions are critical in asking for soil temperature at planting time, too. Studies have shown, Faubion said, that a correct soil temperature, combined with proper amounts of soil moisture can work as a definite germination catalyst.

"In the long run a farmer will yield a better crop job," he said.

Although many people think of the weather station in a forecast sense, Faubion explained that the newspaper and radio weather and temperature forecasts are simply a benefit. Snake Valley receives

Each of the four national weather stations in Idaho serve the area they are in, according to Faubion.

Whereas Boise concentrates on the urban population and works according to population station is interested in farming and agricultural related activities.

The weather forecast for Snake Valley is sent from the national weather center in Washington to Boise which sends the forecast to Twin Falls.

Faubion makes small changes in the forecast but for the most part takes what Boise has given him. Faubion said this year he is going to begin a further assistance service in giving soil temperature readings plus also assistance in crop planning and irrigation. Snake Valley farmers a better guide to plant, irrigation practices

Writer has good luck planting peach seeds

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
PEACHES FROM SEED:
Many have asked us what happens if you plant a peach seed (called a pit).

We always say that the chances are very good that something wild or common fruit. Sometimes you will get a good peach.

One reader disagrees and urges people to grow peach trees because they can't go along with you on the idea that it doesn't pay to grow peaches from the seed. I have peach trees from the third generation and I have never grown a real peach. I have had some peaches but they are cups. I would not think of planting or budding a peach tree.

It is true a peach tree does not come true from seed. You plant a white and you get a red and you may get a red or yellow peach. However, they will be large and very tasty, providing you do one thing—transplant. Plant the seed where you want the peach, covering it with 3 or 4 inches of soil. They will come up the following spring.

Grow three or four times and transplant them in November. You have to transplant them or they'll be small and knobby. They seem to be more sturdy and our taste more than those of the grafted varieties.

I planted 17 white peach seeds 20 years ago. Got 10 peach varieties—a respectable number. I also raised a few from Alberta and I am sending them to you.

Green Thumb note: Glad you had such good luck with your peach trees from seed. We've had some excellent peaches from seed and we've had some hard ones, too. You can't crack your teeth on Nurserymen still prefer to bud known varieties on to peach seedlings because they're sure of what they're getting.

It should be mentioned that many of today's popular varieties of fruit, especially apples, were discovered as chance seedling trees scattered millions of seeds scattered by birds, people and animals.

For example, apple Red delicious was discovered as a chance seedling in Peru. Iowa home-bred variety was found in Ohio and was discovered in Porter, W. Va. The McIntosh was found growing in brush land in Ontario, Canada.

Another method in which new varieties are obtained is through mutation. This is a long-range project since it takes time for a tree to be evaluated. Mother nature gives us new varieties through mutation or a sudden "sporting".

In 1924 a red delicious apple tree in Monroeville, N.J., produced a fruit with better color. Stark Bros. Nursery purchased the tree for a reported $100, naming it new fruit Starling delicious. There are at least 35 other named varieties that have occurred from red delicious mutations.

FIREPLACE FUEL: A long-time enthusiastic fire-builder writes: "We use the gum balls (brown seed pods from sweet gum—Liquidambar styraciflua)—several hundred of these somewhat prickly balls are mixed with kindling wood to help get a good fire started. They give forth a lovely rosy-purple glow. We use all of our wood'shavings from my yard's trees and shrubs."

"Anything over 1/4 inch in diameter is cut into length and piled in a 6-foot-long bin. These twigs really are good. They are not like the kindling you use, but are a mix of ash and give forth a variety of colors while burning. Use all of my prunings except the leafy foliage, which I burn in a barrel for the trash collector."

Good tips. We suggest you use the foliage for mulch or compost, good for bad soils.

TRIMMING GRAPES: Grapes are one fruit that can be grown for ornamental purposes and for food. They can set off property boundaries, add privacy, screen unsightly areas and are ideal for shading and cooling.

One good grape vine should produce 13 to 20 lbs. of edible fruit, depending on variety, culture and climate. Young grapes are a mass of tangled mass, now a good time to unangle them with a pair of clippers. Commercial growers use a system of pruning known as the "four-cane knifed system." It means that an idea also developed it. A good idea consists of "balanced pruning" (trimming according to the amount of growth that's available. For all practical purposes, the home grower shouldn't be worried about how the commercial grower does it. The secret is to get the clippers and start clipping. Grape pruning has its own language. The trunk is the main stem of the vine. "Shoots" are mature, woody shoots. "Canes" are stiff extensions of the main stem. "Spurs" (also called "renewal spurs") are young but come that are cut back to two buds close to the trunk. These will produce fruiting wood for the following season. A "sucker" is a shoot or cane coming up from the lower part of the trunk.

"It is a habit I have developed to look to trim my grapes. First, you want to save any buds of last year's growth, about 3 to 4 foot long and about as thick as a lead pencil or slightly more. These buds near the center of the cane produce more than those at the base of the cane or near the tip. This, cut off the ends of the canes, leaving 3 to 12 buds. Remove all unnecessary old wood as well as less vigorous canes of last year's growth. That's the general idea of grape pruning. In short, the purpose of pruning is to insure the production of fruit and control cane growth so that the cane and fruit are in balance at all times.

LUFEA GOARDS AGAIN: Our note about the "dish rag" guard brought us many letters.

Growing up gourds is easy for some, but trying to dry the gourds and get the skin off is the big problem. Since we had such good luck growing and preparing the "dish rag" guard, here are our suggestions: 1. You can soak the entire gourd 3 or 4 days in plain water and peel. Or, (2) you can put the gourd in a bucket of water with a small amount of water. Then cover and steam really until the skin is soft. Cut off stem end to expose the ends of "ribcages" which unlock skin. 3. Pull each string to the end as you would pull a string on a joint wrapper (4) Peel off the skin with your fingers (5) Then wash the peeled gourd in several rinses of water to get out the mucilage and seeds. PLANTS IN BEDROOM: The myth that keeping growing plants—in the bedroom or sleeping room at night—is unhealthy is pure nonsense. The myth is based on the idea that plants give off much carbon dioxide at night. Actually even a large plant will raise the normal CO2 level only 1-1,000 percent and decrease the oxygen level only 1 percent during the night. This isn't enough to worry about, so keep all the plants you want in your bedroom or home.

THE GREEN THUMB QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. R. of Twin Falls: I heard that it is harmful for house plants to have fruits such as bananas, apples, pears, etc. lying around. Is this true? Or is it just a myth? They give off ethylene gas, they give off ethylene gas.

It is true that you shouldn't have fruit lying around.

"An unmarked requires this" is a phrase you hear in many situations.

Any couple married long enough to use up their wedding gift of macramé in the spice rack deserves another gift. It's called a ribbon present.

If you have time on your hands, watch strap.

"Add to your dictionary of collective nouns an error of computers."

Keep our fingers crossed with fruits because these do give off ethylene gas, which is a natural process. It shortens the life of cut flowers, but for all practical purposes it won't do much harm if the fruit is in the kitchen.

Ethylene is a plant hormone necessary for plant growth and development. Ethylene also causes an apical thorn that can cause injury to flowers and other plants in short. ICS author Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde says that ethylene gas is produced in growth processes of plants such as seed germination, induction of flowering, promotion of flowers, fruit ripening, and leaf falling. It can have a bunch of green bananas and want to hasten ripening—enclose the bananas in a plastic bag and the hormone gas (ethylene) stays inside the bag. It's interesting to see how green sprouts in the sprouting mung beans inside the bin. The vermiculite doesn't mold.

Great idea. One of the big problems in starting seed getting a good starting mixture. Mix of loose black peat, soil, and vermiculite. You are not suitable for seed starting. Greenhouse operators use a "soilless mixture" consisting of peat moss and perlite, all being sterile. The soil in your garden is not suited for seed starting, mainly because it's too heavy or is loaded with disease organisms. You canuse 1 part perlite from your garden, 1 part peat and 1 part sand, as a starting mixture. If you want to be in the oven at 120 degrees for 1 hour. It also makes a good mixture for potting house plants.

Maternity termed 'temporary disability'

By KAY MILLS
Newhouse News Service
WASHINGTON — The Labor Department has proposed new guidelines against sex-discrimination that would require federal contractors to treat maternity leave as they would any other temporary disability.

The proposed guidelines also would allow a policy on non-discrimination of such fringe benefits as insurance, pensions and retirement programs. The proposals affect about 250,000 firms holding federal contracts or subcontracts, including federally-assisted construction contracts.

The guidelines, published in the Federal Register, accept equal treatment policies which have evolved on a case-by-case basis at the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. In addition, they spell out some requirements immediately clear in previous rules.

The proposed changes also should make the guidelines "consistent with some recent court decisions," explained Peter A. D'Amico, chief of the division of policy development in the department's Office of Federal Contract Compliance (OFCC), which administers the guidelines.

For example, the proposals require affirmative action by employers to recruit, train and promote men and women for those jobs when they have been previously excluded because of their sex.

This requirement and one on action to correct effects of past discrimination spell out government policy which resulted from the landmark settlement between the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. and the federal government last year.

While not required to admit past discrimination in that case, AT&T did agree to job placement and training programs for minorities and women and gave them 16 million back pay.

The proposals cover non-discrimination in job advertisement, recruitment, selection, seniority, wages, conditions of employment and benefits. They state that women shall not be rejected for employment, suspended from employment or required to take leave involuntarily solely on account of the condition of pregnancy, or because of sick leave purposes. The guidelines say that "medically verifiable or contributed-to-by-pregnancy" absences, including childbirth and recovery, should be treated as other temporary disabilities.

The Labor Department offers two alternatives to federal contractors to comply with non-discrimination requirements or contributions to insurance, retirement or ponion programs. The first alternative would require employers to provide only equal benefits, a policy now held by EEOC. Because of the way some programs are based on actuarial tables, that might mean higher contributions for one sex to yield equal benefits, Mr. Wooten said.

The second proposal would permit, as the OFCC does now, either equal benefits or equal contributions.

Other provisions in the new guidelines state that: Employers shall not ask job applicants of one sex for information they do not request from the other sex, such as any anticipated temporary disability, child care problems or marital status. Employers shall not deny employment to women with young children unless they do likewise for men. Employers cannot make available benefits for the wives and families of such employees unless they are also available for husbands and families of female employees and vice versa.

Companies cannot employ a policy of not hiring both husbands and wives if that policy consistently discriminates against either males or females. For example, if a college is found to hire only the husbands or only the wives in teaching couples, it would be in violation of this guideline.

Ex-counsel discusses repentance

By PETER HENSON/ALBANY
QUESTION: "Do you, or do you not believe, Mr. Colson, that repentance is one of the fruits of the spirit by which Jesus said his disciples would be known?"

ANSWER: "I called Charles W. Colson, former special counsel to the President of the United States, during an exclusive interview in the column.

His "yes" reply, however, suggested no possible connection with the Colson known as the White House's "resident tough guy" and master of the "dirty tricks" division. Moreover, he exceeded in manifestly one fruit of repentance. For when asked if either of his grandmothers had died in a "snafu," he explained: "Both of his grandmothers are deceased. (a) He has long regretted his having said that for the sake of Richard Nixon's campaign he would walk over necessary."

Relieved indeed to learn that this former officer of the U.S. Marine Corps regretted his "snafu" was a witness to the willingness to trample elderly ladies, I sought for further fruits of the spirit.

What specific fruits that you have discerned in the "snafu" repentant about?"

"I had in mind the numerous aspects of the Watergate slench with which Colson had been intimately involved. But he replied rather bluntly: 'I would not say that. That's between the Lord and my self.'"

By striking central to all of this confidential repentance, I convert Colson, whose "White House itself" a "prayer"

Q: How old is Gina Lollobrigida and has the Italian actress ever married? — H. McV. Worcester, Mass.

A: She's 32 and her name has been linked with a number of men—always much younger than she but Gina says she doesn't want to be tied down. The latest love is 25-year-old Swedish actor Bertil Ohlsson. They're together constantly in Rome.

Q: Last fall a young British girl was robbed and beaten by a mugger in a Miami bus terminal. How do you think enough to go home but what happened? — D. D. Columbus, Ga.

A: We've only one old student Helen Evans as normally recording her own and those in her home for a book. However, she's final year. She still needs major plastic surgery to remove the scars which were caused by a roller coaster in the boardwalk. She's a beauty. Helen's mother has low salt glands and the company needs a transfusion.

QUESTION YOU DIDN'T ASK: Why are Lucretia Welch, Barbara Chamberlain, Oliver Reed, Geraldine Chaplin and Michael York all absolutely furious? Well, recently they saw a screening of a film they had dug in Spain called "The Three Musketeers." But an enormous amount of the footage seemed to be missing. Now they've found out that the producers actually shot two movies at the same time, and for lack of a better name called them "Erantic" collections. Well, so you said and it was discovered that starting they had added to work for a certain number of weeks, in a certain way, something called "The Project."

Q: You're always hearing about American plots who flow with the French Lafayette Escadrille in World War I, on the spot. How many U.S. fliers were there in the group? — L. Z. Pueblo, Colo.

A: Actually, only 11 American pilots ever belonged to that famous squadron and only one—Bill Doherty, retired and living in Hawaii survives. Over the years there have been named to include Arthur M. Lafayette Escadrille, Mary U. S. fliers did serve with the Lafayette Escadrille. Curious when an American pilot was shot down by the French in the First World War.

Q: How can we learn more about this Dr. Geller who beams eyes and knaves and forks through the force of his mind? — S. J. Parry, Fla.

A: The San Diego Times-Sun have been publishing about him. Dr. Geller has been in the past four years and the man responsible for the long series of investigations into Geller's strange powers by a team of scientists. Dr. Stanislovski reports a number of medical, cancer and psycho-physiological phenomena "The Sacred Mushroom." Q: You're the only one I can ask because I don't want to look like a fool in front of my friends. Tell me, do the dolphins in "Day of the Dolphin" really speak or don't they? — S. L. New York, N.Y.

A: Those dolphins were obviously intelligent but they don't speak and thousands of other people have asked that same question. There's something audiences don't follow: the dolphins weren't dubbed in a sound studio by writer actor Bob Alton. Q: Why, you're Paul, every one told how he happened to be kidnapped? — V. B. Lolly, Calif.

A: The South Wales has had a kidnapping victim for 10 months as a kidnap captive. He's absolutely terrified, lying in wait for him. When they finally speak, they'll be a nightmare. He's home alone at about three in the afternoon, but he's been kidnapped, and he's been kidnapped.

Hospital makes dying easier

By RAYMOND R. COFFEY

CHICAGO Daily News
"Dying — Death" said Dr. Cecil Saunders, one of a whole lot of problems that you face in life.

And at St. Christopher's Hospital here, a hospital that specializes in care of terminal cancer patients, Mrs. Saunders and her team have developed a remarkably different approach to helping people face up to this "problem" of dying.

One ingredient of that approach is liquor.

Dr. Saunders, a tall, gray-haired, formidable, forthright lady, objects indignantly to "frivolous" suggestions that St. Christopher's offers its patients a "last fling."

But as part of the effort to make their last days as pleasant and comfortable as possible, she has allowed a drink — a nip of sherry, a pint of beer or whatever — when they want one.

Another ingredient of the program is heroin.

The drug is given to patients in a subcutaneous injection. Christopher's own technique of "drug discipline" to head off pain and dispel the sense of doom and distress usually seen in terminal cancer.

A third part of the program is a vital part in Dr. Saunders' view — is Christianity — the "relativity of earthly life" sharing represented in Christ's peace and happiness in the garden of Gethsemane, with willow.

"We don't preach at people," Dr. Saunders said, "but we are Christians and believe in the consolation of the end." St. Christopher's, located in the working-class Sylvanham section of southeast London, opened in 1967.

In the coming year a vision of the end of Dr. Saunders' 18 years before this hospital was visiting a young man dying of cancer in a 50-bed ward.

The hospital is operated by a non-hospital trust, a voluntary foundation and is independent of the British National Health Service, though about three-fourths of its costs are met by the NHS.

The five-story hospital, with 500 beds and the biggest ward contains four levels.

An equal number of patients are handled by an out-patient department.

Ten per cent of the beds are reserved for long-term, non-cancer patients, usually people with neurological illnesses.

hospital staff expends much of its effort in helping the family face up to death as well as the patient.

It even provides living quarters for families who cannot manage any other way.

When "I was there, the parents of a 18-year-old boy had been living at the hospital for five weeks in order to be with him as much as possible until the end.

One of the important elements in St. Christopher's approach is, simply, "taking time" with the patient, taking such time as giving them a back rub if they want one, just being with them.

"What we try to do," said Mrs. Versna A. Gallon, the nursing manager, "is relieve physical, mental and spiritual distress."

"Patients are never told anything that they wouldn't see," she said. "Mostly they know what is the matter with them but that doesn't mean they accept it."

"What we are trying to do is make them accept it in their own way and their own time."

In that hospital, she said, "people tend to run away from the dying." Even family members often don't want to grieve — people are always telling them to "look up" or "cheer up" here to stay rich with them — patients and family.

St. Christopher's has a "no alcohol" policy in the program, she said. "We don't want to minimize the value of alcohol as a great comfort in a great life of sobriety — a social occasion, or a great sedative."

The hospital also has an R.S. way to fulfill the small wishes of the patients — letting them go home to have a look at their old dogs, see their pet, let their children see young.

One time a staff member recalled a lady who wanted to see some ballroom dancing. So a couple of professional dancers were brought in to perform in the hospital dining.

"The hospital has also created a kind of 'community' atmosphere to dispel the gloom usually associated with hospitals.

There is a nursery for the children of staff members who bring some youthful cheer and high spirits to the place.

There is also a small wing where old folks who are not ill but who bring the other end of the age scale into the hospital.

On the use of heroin, Dr. Saunders observed that in many cases the pain is unbearable, that is, practically knocked out with pain killers.

The typical U.S. hospital involves waiting until a patient is in pain and pleading for relief and then giving too big a dose of drugs. Often, too big is too long a rap for a patient.
