

Panel's demands stir new fuss

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two members of the House Judiciary Committee contended today that the panel had requested only as much information from the White House as was necessary to rapidly complete its impeachment investigation.

"The information we have asked for has been specifically described," Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said. "There isn't the slightest intention of any body on the Judiciary Committee coming over to the White House on a fishing expedition or pawing through documents."

The 16-member committee is seeking from the White House six files, various documents and an index of White House files. The information is in addition to what President Nixon's lawyers have offered to turn over to the panel.

The President's chief Watergate attorney, James D. Stoen, wrote the committee that his request for information amounted to virtually identical to what the committee had already requested and would completely destroy the presidency as an equitable branch of our government.

Appearing on the ABC's "Today Show" after Edwards, Rep. Robert McClure, R-Ill., said St. Clair's letter indicated that there is a "misunderstanding that is most unfortunate" on what the committee is seeking.

Both McClure and Edwards said that the panel had no intention of pawing through the use of its subpoena power to try to force the President to relinquish the material.

"Without question if we don't get what we're looking for," the committee will undoubtedly authorize the issuance of a subpoena," McClure said.

"It is in the best interest of the country, and of the President to get this over expeditiously," he said. "The only way for that to occur is to get good cooperation from the White House."

A House ethics panel published today showed that at least 70 percent of persons questioned felt the committee should recommend impeachment if Nixon did not provide the information it seeks. Thirty-two percent opposed such action.

McClure posed a question whether they felt the President had been "frank and honest" on Watergate matters or had "withheld important information." 18 percent said they believed he had been honest while 31 percent thought he had withheld information. The committee chairman, an attorney, said that if it is not satisfied with the information that has been requested and that it will assist upon getting all of the information.

In addition to the White House material, the committee is also planning to subpoena the records of the Attorney General's office, including the release of materials to the press by a grand jury. Materials and a widely received deal with the President's handling of the Watergate matter.

McClure and Rep. Robert Kastenbaum, D-Wis., another Judiciary panel member, discussed Sunday the alleged lack of White House cooperation and the possibility of subpoenas.

Arabs delay meet, embargo decision

(C) New York Times Service
 CAIRO — A meeting of Arab oil ministers called by Egypt to consider lifting the oil embargo on the United States was postponed until Wednesday in Tripoli, Libya.
 Representatives of only six of the nine Arab countries that originally imposed the embargo last Oct. 17 showed up here, and they decided that nothing could be done without the other three absentees were Algeria, Libya and Syria, which have indicated resistance to a lifting of the embargo and oil production cuts before more evidence of progress is seen on Israeli withdrawal from the occupied Golan Heights.

 President Anwar El-Sadat of Egypt has said the embargo should be lifted in view of the Arab oil ministers' decision that brought about military disengagement of Israeli and Egyptian forces on the Sinai front.
 Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian oil minister, who came here for the meeting, has been quoted in recent press interviews as saying that the embargo no longer served a useful purpose and should be ended.

 However, Yamani told reporters Sunday there cannot be a meeting of the Arab oil ministers without the Algerians.
 The change of the site to Libya restored the conference to where it was held originally according to an invitation that the Arab oil ministers had sent to oil producers involved in the embargo.

Ransom effort said not sufficient

(C) New York Times Service
 SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst said in a tape-recorded message to her parents Saturday that enough was being done to bring about her release from "those who kidnapped her more than a month ago."

"I don't believe you're doing everything you can to get me out of your power," she said in a barely audible voice. "I don't believe you're doing anything at all. You said it was out of your hands; what you should have said was that you wanted your hands off."

The 20-year-old daughter of the newspaper executive, Randolph A. Hearst, spoke for the first time on the tape, which was left in the woman's restroom at a restaurant near downtown San Francisco.

In addition to the message to her parents, Hearst also was heard to speak from the self-professed kidnappers, the group that calls itself the Symbionese Liberation Army. It was the fifth taped communique from the group since Feb. 4 when Miss Hearst, a student at the University of Berkeley, was abducted from her apartment.

Hearst said Sunday that she would have no comment until after she had had time to study the message. However, in a reference to the communique, she said, "I know I shall have to mutter all the words dictated by the kidnappers."

In the message a woman who said that she was a general in the organization accused Hearst of "showing contempt for the people" with the quality of food he was providing in a detention center. She was ordered to establish "a good-will posture" Hearst had raised $2 million and set up the free food program. In a television appeal last week he asked the kidnappers to allow his daughter to communicate with her family.

The message contained a copy of the Symbionese war council was determined that communication between P.O.W. Patricia Hearst and her family will come only after the immediate creation of the peace talks. In mechanisms whereby Russell Little and Joseph Remiro can communicate via live national TV with the people.

Store manager ransoms wife

ATLANTA (UPI) — The manager of a K-Mart discount department store reported a $20,000 ransom Sunday after three men kidnapped his wife and threatened her life.

The abduction marked the fifth time a K-Mart manager's family in less than three months.

Similar incidents have taken place in Detroit and Nashville, Tenn.

Daniel, who was found locked in the trunk of her own car, was taken to the home of William, manager of a K-Mart in suburban Decatur, who took $20,000 from the store safe and handed it over to a masked gunman at a drop-point in a local country club.

Police said gunmen forced their way into the Daniel home about 11 p.m. Saturday night. The masked men blindfolded, gagged and tied Mrs. Daniels for three young children who were watching.

When Daniel came home from work a short time later, he was ordered to take his children and go back to the store, which was closed.

After he went to the store, he received instructions by telephone on where to take the money.

Police said Daniel followed the kidnappers' orders, and when he turned over the $20,000 ransom, the kidnappers could find his wife's car.

She was still blindfolded and gagged and was curled up in the trunk of her compact car, which was not injured.

Harvey Kreske of Kreske Co., which owns K-Mart, said the company had no way to counteract the abduction.

"I can't tell our manager how, if you get confronted with a situation like this, give me everything you've got," Kreske said.

Eagleton opens budget battles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., opened his budget battle in Congress by attacking Air Force plans for a $2.5 billion fleet of airborne command posts.

Attired with information from the General Accounting Office (GAO), Eagleton says the proposed $2.5 billion Air Force fleet of command posts is a "wasteful and unnecessary" type jets would be used to carry out equipment orders to military units.

"I'm not sure if you're going to do anything about the drain because the planes are unlikely to be used in combat."

In a letter to Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and a separate statement released Sunday, Eagleton said the project should be canceled. He has asked GAO analysts to brief the committee Tuesday.

Armed Services doesn't kill the project, said Eagleton will fight it in his own right. He says the project is a "wasteful and unnecessary" type jets would be used to carry out equipment orders to military units.

Campaign spending debate due

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is headed for another battle over how to control those envelopes full of $100 bills that have become a mainstay in political campaigning.

The debate is expected to revolve around the use of tax money for individual campaigns.

This solution, accepted last month by the Senate Rules Committee, would pay for election campaigns out of the federal treasury. This plan, expected to be passed this month, would sharply limit the amount of money that can be spent in a campaign.

It was introduced by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Carl Albert, R-South Dakota.

Widow wins lawsuit

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The widow fired by the University of California for being stingy with mayonnaise and to-bee with Sloppy Joe's has won her job back along with $7,500.

That's great, said Doris Judd, 59, when she learned of the Superior Court decision from a newspaper. "I don't know you rights, you're going to win."

Visiting Judge Anthony Brazil ordered the UC Davis campus to give Mrs. Judd her job back and provide her with back pay for 12 months, about $7,500.

Mrs. Judd, the mother of five married children, was employed as a food services job cafeteria worker for seven years before she lost her job in what she described as an injustice.

The charges against her included leaving a piece of mayonnaise on the way to the edge of the bread, taking an average of 13 minutes each to put a sandwich on 50 hot-ops and wrap them and making too many Sloppy Joe's sandwiches on one occasion.

She also allegedly forgot for three days in a row to make two submarine sandwiches for teachers at the private junior.

Mrs. Judd's attorney, Loren McArthur, of the California State Employees' declared Justice prevailed.

He said the judge described Mrs. Judd's firing Feb. 9, 1973, as "absurd and ridiculous."

McArthur said the wage against the widow was built after she offended some "big cheeses" when their breakfast was not prepared fast enough.
