Panel sets $400,000 presidential tax bill

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A congressional investigating committee is expected to announce Wednesday that President Nixon owes up to $400,000 in back taxes and that there is evidence of civil fraud. In his returns, the Los Angeles Times said Saturday.

In a report from its Washington bureau, the Times said the Internal Revenue Service, which has announced a reopening of Nixon's returns for audit, is expected to assess the President for the taxes as soon as the report is released.

However, the committee report will not include any recommendation for prosecution on grounds this would be beyond its purview. Despite the President's statement that he would abide by the committee's findings, his attorneys reportedly already are preparing to defend him in the U.S. Tax Court.

The possibility that Nixon realized a capital gain in the complex transaction by which he acquired the Western White House at San Clemente, and failed to report it as such. The possibility that the "Nixon Papers" document was invalid or perhaps fraudulent. The President paid $76,651 in income taxes for the four-year period on an income of $1,121,286.

Diplomatic smile now-in-fashion

(C) New York Times Service
There are those who claim that these days as there are in the latest Paris dresses, and the current fashion among world leaders is the official smile.

Whatever else the great men wear, it seems they must wear a smile for the photographers. Even when they are in the company of their wives and children, they are smiling for the cameras.

Thus we now have by satellite out of Moscow, on our front pages and on the box, photographs of Leonid Brezhnev, the Soviet party chief, and Secretary of State Kissinger not only smiling but laughing with one another like old buddies at a Harvard reunion.

Not so long ago Kissinger was being embraced and even kissed in Arab countries and grinning for the photographers with Sen. Scoop Jackson of the state of Washington, his most persistent and irritating critic.

This is something comparatively new in the world of politics. It used to be assumed that the conduct of human events was a serious business and that the great men of the world were not to be trifled with. They were to be treated with respect and dignity, and their pretensions had to look serious and even solemn.

Still, there is something important, and maybe even genuine behind this official pretense. Even when Brezhnev and Kissinger are disagreeing in private about the control of atomic weapons, the negotiations in the Middle East, and the emigration of Jews from the Soviet Union, they feel that they must pretend to be agreeing.

JAMES RESTON

because their peoples want peace and compromise. Smiling is good domestic politics for Brezhnev in Pravda and for Nixon in Pittsburgh.

So the great men call in the photographers to the Kremlin and flash the pictures around the world. These pictures remind both Carter and Tel Aviv that Washington and Moscow have their own common interests. They also raise questions in Peking, as Kissinger's pictures in the Kremlin and his own pictures in the Kremlin raised doubts in Moscow.

There is, however, an aspect of unreality about all this, even an element of fraud. Governments keep manipulating the competitive development of the media, and their own propaganda purposes.

It is the modern diplomatic game, using words to conceal rather than to publish the truth.

But meanwhile the reality is hidden. The Soviet Union wants in on the Middle East talks and the U. S. thinks this would be a disaster for the Middle East and even for U.S.-Soviet relations. Brezhnev and Kissinger have their differences over the control of strategic arms, the future of Cyprus, India, and the opening of the Suez Canal, Jerusalem, the Golan Heights, and Soviet and U.S. naval power in the Indian Ocean.

All this is clearly the subject for tough and private negotiations, which would undoubtedly be ruined by day-to-day reporting in the press. The reality is not amiable but solemn. They differ but insist on pretending they agree.

This is the only flaw in the diplomatic practice of amiability—it is intended to mislead the public, but it doesn't really do it. It is a passing fashion and is intended only to give the public a momentary illusion of peace.

Thought for today

A thought for the day: American statesman Charles Sumner said: 'There is the national flag. He must be old indeed who can look upon its folds, rippling in the breeze without pride of country.'

Blaine continues education support

Once again local taxpayers have opted in favor of education, continuing a string of positive public votes in the area.

The incredible 89.5 per cent voter support of a $4 million bond proposal for plant facilities in Blaine County unequivocally demonstrates Blaine as the most progressive backers of education in Southern Idaho.

The Blaine issue was a half million dollars larger than last October's successful Twin Falls School District bond. Yet, Blaine County, smaller in both population and tax base than the TF School District showed 20.5 per cent greater yes votes. Twin Falls school officials were happy. Blaine officials should be ecstatic.

Clearly a trend in public commitment for better education has been established. Just recently we have seen bond acceptances in Twin Falls, Hansen, and Blaine County. In addition, worthwhile voters approved a school tax levy increase. All required a two-thirds majority for passage.

Idaho has long been at the bottom of the national scales in educational expenditures per student. With the progressivism exhibited in the past few months, this won't last for long.

'Temporary obstacles'

Christian Science Monitor
U. S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger did not get the conception breakthrough he had said he hoped for from his three days in Moscow, but there is something healthy in that very fact.

The important thing in Soviet-American relations is that the two superpowers continue to talk about their differences. They can't always settle those differences but they can keep them within safe and manageable bounds so long as they can meet and talk about them as they have just been doing.

Dr. Kissinger would have liked to have reached a clear agreement on a new limit on offensive nuclear weapons. He would also have liked a promise of Soviet good offices in Damascus to help end the fighting between Syria and Israel. And his cup of joy would have been running over had the Soviets also promised to let every Jew in the Soviet Union have an exit visa on demand.

But it isn't in the nature of an authoritarian government to give anyone the right of departure on demand. Soviet interests in the Middle East would suffer from any withdrawal of aid and comfort to the Syrians. And the most complex and difficult task for the superpowers is to find a way to bring about an American and Soviet nuclear accords.

No instant agreement is possible in any of these subjects except through surrender of something important by one or the other side. The time for President Nixon to go to Moscow himself in June there may be some further progress on one or more of these subjects. The bargaining process is continuing. Moscow wants American economic and technological aid. Someday it will get it, if and when the price is right. At the moment no agreement is in hand. But that doesn't mean there won't be a fair deal available by June.

Besides, we should all get used to the fact that there neither can nor necessarily should be some new diplomatic miracle every time Dr. Kissinger travels. Keeping up a dialogue is in itself a good and constructive thing.

S. Africa moving toward bias end

DURBAN — It is unappreciated how free the press is in South Africa.

And one cannot imagine a better case being made for a free press than by citing the South African example. Consider, from a single edition of the Durban Daily News:

'The leading "Black" college QUBA here, a former American pundit and his wife were traveling here. When that happens, the government advises the restaurants and hotels on the itinerary of the event, and the rules of social segregation are suspended. On this occasion apparently the news was not thoroughly communicated, and a bartender refused, on the grounds that his client was black, to sell him a drink, whereupon the American checked out.'

'I like to think that if I were an American black I would be glad to go to South Africa, for if I did, that I would patronize only those places open to black South Africans. Be that as it may, it is thoroughly refreshing, that this should be from page news.'

My hosts here (who are white) have been deeply embarrassed by the episode, and one can't help but assume that an accumulation of such incidents lead to reform. And — always impatient Americans should bear in mind that only 10 years ago, in the American South, there was the same sort of thing. Why should we, the most advanced country in the world, with a minority black population of only about 10 per cent, expect South Africa to progress, with a black racial population of 75 per cent faster than we did?

We were — 30 years — behind — England — in abolishing slavery. Why should we expect that South Africa, with problems distinctive to South Africa, should move at exactly the same speed achieved by the American civil rights lobby? Sir De Villiers Geyffers, leader of the opposition United Party, is reported as saying in a speech last night that unless South Africa voters heed the problems, the upcoming elections might lead to a virtually a one-party state. That may be hyperbolic stuff — the United Party is not that impotent, having about 40 per cent of the seats in the present parliament. On the other hand, this is the season for hyperbole, and it is reported in the same paper that one government politician admits that if the so-called Bantustans — the enclaves black principalities spun off by the government — should suddenly turn belligerently against South Africa, 'why we would just have to fight them.'

That is intended to please those in South Africa who believe that independence is coming too fast.

U.S., Russia uncertain of strength

(C) N. Y. Times Service

PARIS — One curious aspect of the continuing superpower negotiation is that neither the United States nor the Soviet Union is exactly sure how strong it is vis-a-vis the other.

It is not always certain what its opponent is in the minds of each party at any particular phase of their colloquy. Just before the current Kissinger-Brezhnev meeting the Russians had been indicating they looked forward to a resumed dialogue in order to get the Salt talks moving again. They made plain this was now their primary objective. It is obvious that if a Nixon spring visit to Moscow is arranged — a basic accord — on strategic armaments will have to be in the works.

But why are the Russians so eager for this when more and more experts conclude the Soviet Union has probably overtaken the United States at least in Europe, where NATO and Warsaw Pact armies confront each other?

Gen. Alfred Goodpastor writes in "Strategic Review" that the Soviet Union has geographical advantages over the West. Forces are inferior to those of the Warsaw Pact and that NATO, as a defensive alliance, is forced in terms of a chess analogy to "always play with the black pieces. The explanation of these apparent contradictions is that probably the military industrial complex and high command of each superpower is inclined to exaggerate the potential of its principal adversary, while the political leadership has to assess the overall picture including relative economic power.

Obviously, no matter whose generals are right in measuring the might of the respective superpowers, Moscow is paying through the nose to keep up its end of the seesaw and, by an effort on Salt, would like to reduce this onerous expense.

Together with a further step toward lessening the mutual arms' burden, Brezhnev clearly hopes to urge Kissinger again to stop trade relations in order to boost the Soviet economy. Russia stands more to gain than America from such massive commercial increase on something like the terms agreed to with Nixon in the past. However, the US President because of its political difficulties at home, has a diminishing chance of getting Congress to approve most favored nation status for the Soviet Union — unless Moscow first assents to emigration restrictions and release of its communist political prisoners.

Yet Brezhnev not only resents such American demands as unwarranted interference in Soviet internal affairs; he would run into trouble with his own hard-core opponents in the party leadership if he seemed to yield on the home front in order to obtain advantages abroad. This places him in a quandary because of his insistence on MFN as the principal token of American goodwill toward the Soviet Union.

Such a compromise formula for avoiding another freeze and getting the Salt talks moving again, something Nixon wants as much as Brezhnev.

But Kissinger is even less likely to sell this without assurances on emigration and political prisoners. The US Congress, then, Brezhnev is to persuade his politburo that Solzhenitsyn, Sakharov, and Soviet Jews are Washington's legitimate concern.

Nostalgia wears thin

(C) N. Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — I have decided not to be nostalgic about the 1930s, despite the decree of the Paramount to be the selling of 'The Great Gatsby.'

I tried for a while to make the style for looking rakish in a Robert Redford "Gatsby" suit, although I do not that I dislike listening to "Dardanelles" played on the Victrola, although I do not that I am so tired of memoirs about what Ernest Hemingway said to Picasso on first coming to tea at Gertrude Stein's that I never want to hear the name Alice B. Toklas again, although I am a major impulsive member. I came upon one in a junk-a few weeks ago in one of those brand-new in-town saloons that are reproductions of 19th-century English pubs.

A friend and I had gone there after weighing two other possibilities. One was a spaghetti house that was a reproduction of a turn-of-the-century Neapolitan trattoria, and the other was a steak house that was a reproduction of an American saloon circa 1890.

I was thinking sentimentally about King Edward VII, which set me thinking, for some reason, about the picture of his father, Prince Albert, which appeared on Prince Albert pipe-tobacco cans in the 1930s, and this started me feeling nostalgic for the 1930s.

In my unhappiness, I suddenly caught a sad glimpse of the future. There would come a day when Americans would want to wallow in nostalgia for the 1970s, and what in the name of heaven, would they seize upon as artifacts of our time?

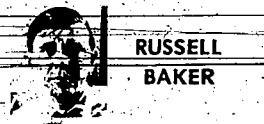

We, who live in a world turning, almost entirely into nostalgia, to wear suits of the past, would be represented in that nostalgic future by what Ernest Hemingway said to Picasso on first coming to tea at Gertrude Stein's that I never want to hear the name Alice B. Toklas again, although I am a major impulsive member. I came upon one in a junk-a few weeks ago in one of those brand-new in-town saloons that are reproductions of 19th-century English pubs.

If Paramount has its way, our children, when time comes for them to look back nostalgically upon us, will not be soupy about us at all, but about imitating Robert Redford dressed as a man of 50 years ago. I can think of only three or four things — so dimly — I can remember that they are certain to be revived by the nostalgic posterity.

The air-line is not only the electronic garage door opener, another Volkswagen, perhaps, the street mugging. Even the flyover will hardly be in a class with the Volkswagens that go with nostalgia for the 1930s: the rubber-seated coupe left to posterity by the 1930s, or the mighty Hudson which people crave in nostalgic yearning for the 1950s. (I am assured, much, though it is to believe that there are people who are nostalgic for the American landscape in 1974, if that is to be the higher course of giving 1985 something better to remember about me. I am not sure what it ought to be, but even white tie, and tails would be preferable to what we now have on the streets at lunch time, headed for lovingly reproduced old England and other points back in time.

RUSSELL BAKER

One explanation for our incessant sentimental journeys back to the 1930s may be yearning for style — jauntyness, elegance, rakishness, which the 1930s had, and which we have lost for many reasons, among them the curious notion that freedom of self-expression requires an assault on standards of taste, which creates style. And so, although a Robert Redford "Gatsby" suit would certainly improve the American landscape in 1974, if that is to be the higher course of giving 1985 something better to remember about me. I am not sure what it ought to be, but even white tie, and tails would be preferable to what we now have on the streets at lunch time, headed for lovingly reproduced old England and other points back in time.

Signs indicate 'era of reconciliation' ending

There have been at least five periods of peaceful coexistence since the Bolshevik seizure of power, one in each decade of the Soviet state. Each was hailed in the West as ushering in a new era of reconciliation and as signaling the long-awaited final change in Soviet purposes.

Each ended abruptly with a new period of intransigence, which was generally ascribed to a victory of Soviet hardliners rather than to the dynamics of the system.

HENRY A. KISSINGER, 1968
By OSWALD JOHNSON
Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State Kissinger's scene-setting mission to Moscow to prepare the third Nixon-Brezhnev summit is surrounded by the diplomatic trappings of great events in the making and major achievements within reach.

Reconciliation is nearing a natural close. Kissinger made his analysis of past US-Soviet misunderstanding in the immediate aftermath of the invasion of Czechoslovakia, and he wrote as an outside observer of US foreign policy power balances in the world and develop new strategies to deal with Europe, Japan, the Soviet Union and China.

Nearly six years later, on his sixth official visit to the Soviet Union as architect of Nixon administration foreign policy, Kissinger has successfully put in train what ought to have been the basic underpinnings of a new era in US-Soviet relations — an opening to China; a reworking of the Atlantic alliance; a new momentum toward free East-West trade; an unprecedented super-power agreement to limit nuclear weapons.

Through it all, Kissinger built up a reputation as a negotiating "magician" who tirelessly probed his adversary to define the limits of its aspirations, and then, on the common ground this revealed, managed to erect common agreement that both could accept because both needed it.

Between the United States and the Soviet Union, that common ground was in recent statements by Kissinger being defined as the already dwindling to an irreducible minimum: survival. Our attempt will be to work out with the Soviet Union the moderate course in foreign policy on which peace in the world depends, and perhaps the survival of humanity depends. Kissinger said in his most recent news conference before leaving for Moscow.

He added, in characteristic understatement: "I agree we are going there at a more difficult period than at some previous visit." A more complex array of forces is at work on this latest period of peacetime coexistence, one which emphasizes the "dynamics of the system" rather than any simple political division within the politburo.

Even as he spoke, there was ample evidence of the extent to which the common ground of agreement had eroded since the palmist days of May, 1972, when President Nixon, shepherded by Kissinger, concluded a series of delicate accords in Moscow, eliminating the SALT I agreement to freeze offensive nuclear arms and phase out the antiballistic missile.

The erosion has been obvious since the October war in the Middle East, when competing great power interests in the region almost led to a dangerous confrontation. Soviet and American pressures, and Kissinger's Middle East diplomacy, urging the Arab oil states to continue their embargo and even, in recent broadcasts, criticizing Kissinger by name.

During the same period, Nixon's domestic support has weakened so dramatically as a result of Watergate that his attention to administration scandals that the impending impeachment proceedings against him are being openly discussed as a factor in the scheduled June summit in Moscow and in the future of détente.

Anatoly Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to Washington, only last week returned here after an extended absence and will have for consultation with the Kremlin leadership.

Here again, the probable fate of the Nixon administration is presumed to have been a key topic. Dobrynin, with a reputation as an acute observer of US politics, can hardly fail to have warned the Soviet leadership that the weakened Nixon administration, with its obvious, but sizeable potential Congressional coalition opposed to the Nixon-Kissinger view of détente, the prospect of a future US administration headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a legendary cold warrior in the Soviet Union, has been a serious fear in Moscow. But the main likely fear at present is that the attitude Jackson symbolizes will crystallize into a real political force during the remaining time left to a Nixon administration.

Kissinger shows other face

By NEA-London Economist News Service

This is a critical moment for America and Europe, more critical than most European politicians have grasped. Henry Kissinger has made it plain over the past two weeks that he thinks the moment has come for the European community to decide just how it means to conduct itself in the world. He has been using many phrases, and some of them have been repeated, which emphasize the "dynamics of the system" rather than any simple political division within the politburo.

A decision on how Europe should behave cannot much longer be postponed. And it is the two social democratic governments of Britain and Sweden, and the German government, however beset by other preoccupations, that had better be prepared to take the matter decisively into their hands.

The criticism that Kissinger has been meting out to the European community cannot be explained as merely an unplanned attack of desperation about the way the European community sent out its invitation to the Arabs on March 4 to have a private get-together.

Mr. Kissinger disliked that, but it needs something more than a fit of irritation to explain why he should have seized upon one audience after another since March 4 — first the journalists in the plane carrying him back from Europe to America, then the Senate Finance Committee, then the letter to Brandt signed by President Nixon, and then, of all things, a congregation of Congressmen's wives — to spell out his complaint against Europe.

It bears all the marks of a premeditated and rehearsed campaign. Kissinger has taken the opportunity to ask the Europeans just what they mean by saying that they want to be a distinct and original entity "in their relationship with the United States."

That word "entity" can point in two different directions. It can mean that the Nine want to work towards a joint European-foreign policy; that will nevertheless continue to be based on the idea of a special connection between western Europe and America, or it can mean that the Nine are looking towards a time when Europe will treat the United States as merely one great power among others, no different in its essentials for Europe's purposes from the Soviet Union or Japan or China.

It can mean either the continuation of the Atlantic community in a loose form, or its dissolution. The French government wants one of those things; the United States the other; and Kissinger is inviting the other Europeans to choose.

The European community's proposal of an Arab-European foreign ministers' meeting was the touch on the trigger that set Kissinger off. But it is the events of the past three months that have made his present campaign possible.

His "energy conference" in Washington last month split France off from the other eight members of the community. The new labor government in Britain this month probably marks the end of Edward Heath's old commitment to French policies.

The combination of these things gave Kissinger the opportunity he needed, the gap between France and the rest of Europe, to open, and he has sent his tanks rolling through it.

It could be a dangerous business, if it meant when a Labor government will be about to break up Europe anyway. But there are steps that the French, too, recognize that moment of decision is approaching.

The way in which Jobert has lately been conducting his negotiations, the accusations of "collusion" between America and the Arab promoters of the energy conference, the curbing before Arab audiences of the American search for a settlement in the Middle East, cannot be accounted for outside the lines of French domestic politics.

Jobert seems to have decided that, if he wants to haul Europe away from the Atlantic connection into a separate block led by France, 1974 is when the matter is likely to come to a head. For France, too, this has turned out to be the Year of Europe.

The EEC's approach to the Arab countries will be a pretty clear test of the whole issue. The Americans say that negotiations about the Arab-European-Arab meeting might have to be held for a settlement in the Middle East. By the time the meeting takes place, late this year or early next year, the Arab and Israeli armies may be well and truly disengaged from each other but the immediate difficulties negotiations will still be acute.

The hardliners among the Arabs may therefore be tempted to use the meeting with the Europeans to get Europe's support for bigger Israeli concessions than Kissinger — who will be doing the actual mediating — thinks he can extract from Israel.

This fear may be exaggerated. The Europeans are just as likely to disagree with each other as with Kissinger. But even if that does not happen, the way in which the Europeans drew up their invitation to the Arabs seems to be incompatible with the sort of consultation that any effective partnership between the Atlantic region and the Arab world requires.

It is true that some of the EEC's governments, though apparently not Britain's and France's, did tell the Americans what they were planning at two or three different stages in the proceedings. The United States was informed, but the Americans were not noted back into Europe's thinking. This is precisely what the Americans complained of last year when the European community drew up the first version of its ideas about relations with America, and it is the same kind of situation in November, and its approach to Japan.

The danger is that the sheer difficulty of the mediating process inside the community may slowly harden into a mechanism which blocks the voices of European liberals. If this happens, that idea of a "distinct" European policy will have taken on a special meaning, the meaning the French want: the cutting for practical purposes of the Atlantic partnership.

Both Britain and Germany "more than anybody else, which can prevent France from leading Europe in this direction. Neither of them now that Heath is no longer in office, shares the French wish for a separate, Paris-centered power, instead of all one led by France."

Ireland, and perhaps even Wilson, can see the advantages of the European community as a body which serves its members' economic interests, and is groping towards a common sense of identity by regarding itself against the United States.

Both Germany and Britain understand the danger which Soviet power will present in the western part of the Eurasian continent, and the indispensability of American protection against that danger, and both of them realize that the US Congress will not go on financing that protection indefinitely for a Europe that makes a policy of drawing America's nose.

They can recognize the argument that Kissinger draws from Demosthenes: if you have Philip of Macedon as a neighbor, you should not divide your forces. The result of France's present maneuvering, if they succeed, will be to open the field of play of the West to a superpower which will help him prevent this.

Political fund raisers find '74 vintage poor

By R. W. APPLE JR.
NEW YORK TIMES SERVICE
WASHINGTON — It is not a vintage year for political fund-raising. A week ago Wednesday, on March 20, the Democratic faithful gathered at the Washington Hilton for their annual convention. The fund-raising dinner, the only fundraising event that the Republican counterparts assembled in the same place. At neither event did the dollars flow like freshets in spring.

According to the best available estimates, official figures will not be available for some weeks — each dinner raised roughly $700,000, meaning that each contributed after the deduction of about $200,000 in expenses, about half a million dollars to party coffers. Tickets to the Republican affair cost $1,000 a plate; those to the Democratic affair were $500.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas and Rep. Wayne Hays of Ohio, the co-chairmen of the Democratic dinner, said after the event that the party had had better years, but noted that the $960,000 gross last year, a record, was not matched this year. Given the general disillusionment with politics as a result of Watergate, as well as unsettled economic conditions, Bentsen said, he was not all that disappointed.

The Republicans, the Democrats, the White House, the Senate and the House Campaign Committee and the Republican National Committee, made no attempt to conceal his feeling that Watergate had hurt his 1974 efforts.

In addition, he said in an interview, Sections 510 and 511 of the new federal campaign spending law make it more difficult for corporations and unions to contribute to fundraising drives through their executives — and that "has hurt us badly."

The 10 to 15 telephone solicitors working in the last week or so in a ballroom of the Capitol Hill made no mention of President Nixon unless asked, which is a highly unusual procedure for any party that holds the White House.

"We did not pitch the President heavily," said Bentsen, even though Nixon had agreed weeks before to appear at the dinner.

fallout was more serious. In 1962, an exceptional year in which the party returned to presidential power after eight years, the dinner grossed $3 million. In 1970, the gross approached $2 million. The average, in recent years, has been roughly $1.5 million.

Richard Good, the executive director of the National Republican Party's Senatorial Committee, which shared in Wednesday's proceeds with the House Campaign Committee and the Republican National Committee, made no attempt to conceal his feeling that Watergate had hurt his 1974 efforts.

Right or wrong, said clearly

Editor, Times-News: The leaving of the Burley and the Boise police chiefs brings some doubt in my mind as to the high school in the State Code, which the Times-News alleges has no provision for hire and fire by municipal police chiefs.

The high police chief is one of the best at his trade in the business or was as he is now away from his trade, and it's doubtful that he'll be easily replaced. Why'd you let?

In a position of authority without even the seemingly obvious authority to fire an inept his other authorities are blamed. The Code needs modification.

Burley now has a knothing commission to supervise a craft that they go to school, pass a test, have on-the-job experience — not indicated.

Harry Vanhorn mentioned the Code in an article in which he was subsequently harassed. Justice Vanhorn is coincidentally — to the other facts of the matter, but the Code as he quoted it was again at fault.

It alleges the mayor of a city should be able to find a worthy police chief in a very short time. Perhaps there was great foresight behind this, as there are now two such worthy applicants in crystal balls.

This should leave us of Twin Falls wondering how it could be so completely overlooked in the State Code, antiquated statutes should be modernized, and Twin Falls and all other towns and cities of Idaho should be free to operate with commonsense directives.

The State Code has also included the son, they would have received some recognition.

When Twin Falls athletics is mentioned around the most of the points in the State schools bank of the spring sports, not football and basketball.

We think it's about time for the Bruin boosters and the Twin Falls public to do the same.

Editor, Times-News: The ultimate reward finally came to the faithful Twin Falls High School basketball team. Three weeks ago when the Bruins finally captured the A-1 state crown.

As a member of the team I was greatly rewarded by this accomplishment — and our overall success this year as a team.

This success can be attributed to the coaching staff, but to the great school support and the faithful community backing the latter being so well exhibited during the game on Tuesday, March 19.

The fine business of Twin Falls took time off from their busy schedules to treat the team, coaching staff, managers and cheerleaders to a delicious steak dinner and then accompanied them to the high school where the "Champion's Day" Assembly was held with the student body and some townspeople in attendance.

Presentations were made by the many dignitaries present, and recognition was given to the Twin Falls High School in many areas. This is what I would like to acknowledge as president of the school.

We appreciate so much the praise and recognition that we have received and would like to return Twin Falls High School student body's thanks to the community. We would like to thank you for your strong, continuous support of our school activities.

(Continued from p. 1) The answer dealt with laws governing the selection of magistrates and procedures for removing them from office. Judge Anderson's name was mentioned three times in the paper. The Cassia County Magistrate Court has been criticized previously in the editorial columns of the South Idaho Press. South Idaho Press Publisher Lloyd Hollinger signed the papers served on the newspaper through the lawyers, the defendants requested a jury trial following the arraignment proceeding before Judge Blacker. No date was set for the trial. Because the charge is a misdemeanor under Idaho law, the proceeding will be conducted in magistrate court. The Idaho Code provides a punishment for libel of up to $5,000 and imprisonment in the county jail for up to six months. Judge Anderson said Saturday that the item in the column "spreads an attempt to edit outside the editorial section of the newspaper." When asked what he felt would be the chances of winning the case against the South Idaho Press and Hollinger, he replied, "I would have instigated the action if I hadn't felt there was a very strong probability that the law hadn't been violated."

Vince Smazal dies

(Continued from p. 1) He had been active in political circles all his adult life but had never held office. Most of his time was devoted to party organization and campaigning for Democratic candidates. Smazal had held the office of chairman of the Democratic Central Committee the past eight years. He also served as chairman of the 1970 state Democratic convention in Twin Falls. He had served as president of the Young Democrats and as a delegate to National Democratic conventions. Douglas Kramer, chairman of the county Republican committee said, "I think he was a fine gentleman and he was a personal friend of mine. I was deeply grieved by his passing. He had served me as a friend and with much consideration and I have never known him to be partisan to the extent he would work against anything that was for the good of the people of Twin Falls County." Kramer said, "William D. Wiseman, county commissioner and close friend of Smazal, described him as a man of integrity, very loyal to his Democratic party." Wiseman said he had found Smazal would put community affairs ahead of politics in the final analysis of solutions. Harold Lancaster, another Democratic county office holder and long-time party leader, said "It was certainly a shock to me to hear the news of a very good friend." William L. Chaney, Republican, chairman of the Twin Falls County commission, also expressed grief at the news of Smazal's death. He said he looked on him as a friend and with much respect.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Randolph A. Hearst made a surprise visit to a state prison Saturday and returned with a letter from a mysterious "Death Row Jeff" urging the Symbionese Liberation Army to begin negotiations for the release of Hearst's kidnapped daughter Patricia. The proposal for immediate negotiations was made by Clifford Jefferson, who calls himself "Death Row Jeff" and has been in the California Medical Facility at Vacaville near Sacramento. Jefferson, who has spent 20 1/2 years behind bars, invited the meetings, and asked authorities to be allowed to meet with Hearst's attorney Vincent Hallinan, the Rev. (Continued from p. 1) He asked for land-use planning, recommended against Stream Channel Act revision, partial state funding for kindergartens, state jurisdiction over occupational safety and health, a compulsory disclosure law and judicialicial restrictions and wilderness. The lawmakers said "no." But they did give him property tax relief for some elderly citizens. They also recommended. They held the line on general taxes although they approved increases in fish and game fees, potato taxes and wheat taxes. They also increased the liquor surcharge — due to drop seven and one-half per cent July 1 — two per cent to raise money for the Alcohol Safety Education Project. This means the surcharge will be 10.5 per cent and one-half per cent instead of seven and one-half per cent. Anderson noted that medical insurance policies provide coverage at the time of birth, for a start on a regional veterinary medical school, a state finance scholarship program, pay in creases for state employees, and money and technical legislation for American Technical College. They also approved a 22-hour furlough program for convicts under the direction of the State Board of Correction. Besides those of rank and file state employees, they approved pay raises for elected officials, Supreme Court justices and district judges. They also hiked salaries of county prosecutors and commissioners.

They created a disaster relief fund to lend money to cities, counties and good road districts to repair flood and other damages to the roads and bridges. They ordered architectural barriers for the handicapped removed from public buildings. They held public meetings. But they took out the civil penalty provisions before passing the bill. They killed a watered-down bill to require registration of lobbyists. After refusing to exempt Southern Idaho from Daylight Saving Time this past winter, they passed a bill to exempt just portion of the state from last time next October. Among the many proposals considered but rejected were amending the public meetings, repeal of mandatory motor vehicle inspection, rescission of the Equal Rights Amendment, prohibition, collective bargaining with public employees, private package liquor stores, increasing of day care homes, refundable containers for beer and pop, reappointment of state political central committee, revision of the public official recall law and prohibition of lending institutions from selling full lines of insurance.

Gem rights panel supplement passes

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The legislature finally approved a supplemental appropriation for the Human Rights Commission Saturday. The House gave its approval to the $7,300 supplement earlier this week. The commission $8,300 for the rest of the fiscal year. Rep. Ralph Ormstead, who has been leading the House effort to get the House to table the bill, talking had the effect of killing a measure. His effort failed, however, so the bill passed. The funds will be used for travel and staff salaries for the remainder of the fiscal year. Ormstead's opposition to the supplemental funding has been fueled by a case involving the College of Southern Idaho and a former professor, Ferrill Castaneda, who claims her contract was not renewed because of discriminations.

School fund approved

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The legislature finished work Friday on a proposal to establish a special tract 13 fund for the support of the State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding. The Senate passed the measure 89-1 only a day after the House cleared the proposal on a 57-2 vote. The measure appropriates the proceeds of a sale of land to

Lobbyist registry measure defeated

T-N Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The last-minute efforts of the legislature to require registration of professional lobbyists were down to a 30-31 defeat in the House Friday. Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Post Falls, the floor sponsor, said the measure was a "watered down version" of a proposal that had been introduced in the Senate earlier in the session. Rep. Edward Rice, R-Boise, said he thought the proposal was a good one and should pass. But he said he was more concerned that it be broadened to cover some of the "faceless" people who sit in committees day after day but aren't known to the lawmakers. Rep. James Butcher, D-Idaho, said he was opposed to the government registering lobbyists. "Recent ideas involved in this legislation that in order for a person to be for or against something he must enter his name on the docket as for or against."

Tax credit extended

BOISE (UPI) — Senators gave final approval Saturday, 30-1, to a bill which would extend the 15 grocery sales tax credit. Sens. James Ellsworth, R-Leadore, and Warren Brown, R-McCall, voted for the bill. Both said they regretted that surplus funds were being used and that the credit could not be made permanent. The credit would be extended for one year. Only Sen. Orval Snow, D-Moscow, voted against the measure. He gave no reason.

Solons boost Idaho junior college academic funding in '74 session

By DAVID ESPO
Times-News Staff Bureau

The 1974 legislature substantially increased funding for the state's junior colleges. It also made available funds for construction of new campus buildings.

House and Senate approved a $2.02 million funding package for academic programs at the College of Southern Idaho and North Idaho College.

The figure represents an increase of $200,000 over what the legislature approved for the current fiscal year. It is also $200,000 more than Gov. Cecil D. Andrus recommended.

The House and Senate also approved a $1.5 million Permanent Building Fund construction program that included money for vocational technical buildings at both campuses.

The final $8.7 million package, funded from the state's $33.9 million surplus, included $1.5 million to finish building under construction at CSI and $1.7 million to finish construction of the building at NIC.

In addition, two other pieces of legislation affecting junior colleges were considered during the legislature, only one of which passed.

The first one provides for immediate disbursement of academic funding to the two junior colleges. The law supersedes the existing law that was passed when the state was on a system of biennial budgeting.

The question of how the state should disburse the funds to junior colleges was a subject of dispute between the schools and the budget office over a year ago.

Efforts to pass the same legislation in the 1973 session of the legislature failed in Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee. This time, the law was introduced from the Finance Committee in the Senate.

A proposal which would have required junior college districts, among other special taxation units, to call public budget hearings before setting their final fiscal year budgets was introduced early in the session but never got out of the House Local Government Committee.

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, also told the Senate in a floor speech on one of the last days of the session he wanted the Board of Education to come up with a method for computing student full time equivalent enrollments that was comparable for all universities, colleges and junior colleges.

Barker said that certain students at junior colleges are not counted in their school's enrollment computations because they attend classes on a trimester basis. Current state law permits computation of students who attend class only in the fall and spring

Vitamin 'E' Discovery

Offers Fast Weight Loss

HOLLYWOOD (Special)—New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of easy weight loss while still eating almost as much as you want.

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from formerly overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want—like the forbidden foods like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon & eggs and still lose weight.

Chevable (candy-like), vitamin E tablets, as used in the diet plan, contain a new scientific combination of ingredients that quickly curb and control the appetite, while also giving the wonderful benefits of Vitamin E which is so essential to good health.

The new Vitamin E diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use up excess fat. According to recent clinical tests, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein will double the speed of fat utilization with the use of Vitamin E.

E-DIET AVAILABLE: To get a copy of this highly successful diet and E-Tablets, send $5.00 for 10 day supply or $7.00 for 20 day supply or $10.00 for 30 day supply to: Vitacore Diet, Dept. # Spending package costs $190 million

Legislative log

Sunday, March 31, 1974—Times-News-Twin Falls, Idaho

Wesler River overflowing

BOISE (UPI)—Waters of the Wesler River were spilling over 115 banks at the Friday bridge 10 miles upstream from Wesler Saturday, the National Weather Service reported.

It said the river was expected to crest later Saturday night well above flood stage. Residents in the area along the river were warned to take steps "for the protection of life."

Times-News Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The 1974 legislative session will begin before it adjourns on a recurring program spending package that will cost $190,250,000.

Included in the state's revenue for the fiscal year that will begin in July is $180.5 million from the general fund; $27 million in revenue-sharing funds from the federal government; and $50,000 from the sales tax that will go towards teachers' retirement. On the spending side of the ledger, public schools will receive $71.75 million; colleges and universities will get $36.4 million and junior colleges $2.02 million. Education programs will receive $12.22 million out of the overall budget.

The new Department of Health and Welfare will receive $28.4 million. Public employee pay raises account for $2.6 million, with $1.6 million going for an invested system that will give higher raises to lower paid employees. The other $1 million is to reallocate certain positions to other state agencies to tune with private industry pay levels.

In addition to the program spending, the legislature approved $1.5 million for circuit breaker tax relief, providing a break on property taxes to the state's elderly and certain disadvantaged groups.

From a general fund surplus of $23.9 million, about $7.7 million went to buildings funded from the Permanent Building Fund.

One time tax relief amounts to a minimum of $1.25 million. Legislation passed, extending the 4½ percent credit on the state income tax for one more year. The same legislation also extended the credit to people who have not been receiving it.

The lawmakers also approved $200,000 in one shot relief in the form of a reduction of the county property tax levy.

The reduction is intended to make up for the extra money that was raised two years ago on orders of the State Board of Education after a spending moratorium was imposed.

In addition, the session approved in its final days an open-ended liability program for one year. Under the terms of the provisions up to $5 million in relief could be granted to the payers of the county property tax of eight mills.

The open ended package would be funded by any surplus that is left over and above the $23.9 million that is estimated to be available. For each $1.2 million above the $23.9 million, the tax payer will have county property taxes reduced by one mill.

A tax that was scheduled to lapse this year was partially reinstated by the legislature. The seven and a half per cent surcharge put on liquor to build the new state prison was due to expire, but lawmakers reimposed two percent to fund the Alcohol Safety Action Program. The two per cent is expected to raise $500,000.

Amendments to the state cigarette sales tax could raise an additional $500,000.

Legislation — Increasing certain tax and game license and fee is expected to generate an extra $1.4 million for the Fish and Game Department.

Passed by the House — Appropriates $1,814,145 for the Department of Health and Welfare for the fiscal year 1974-75. (Sponsor: Rep. L. Barron.)

Valley's votes

Times-News Capitol Bureau
BOISE — Here is the roll call of Magic Valley representatives in the stream channel bill which passed the House Saturday, 41-24.

Against the bill: Reps. Steve Antone, R-Rupert; E. V. Mehan, R-Ketchum.

The general fund agency employees who will receive the benefit of the pay increases will be those who earn $13,800 a year or less. No money was provided for those employees earning above that figure.

All increases voted by the legislature come on top of a five per cent across-the-board increase in state government pay increases for the lowest paid state employees, in addition to a $1 million selective reallocation for general fund agencies.

Gem officials, staff win pay hike

Times-News Capitol Bureau
BOISE — The 1974 state legislature approved pay raises for the rank and file state employees and also for the state's elected officials and judges.

In addition, the members authorized more money for the state's prosecutors and commissioners in most of the 15 counties in the state.

The legislature approved pay raises for all of the elected officials in the state. The next governor will find his salary up to $33,000, an increase from $30,000. The initial elected officials pay raises proposal did not include a raise for the governor. But House Speaker William Lanting, R-Hollister, argued the state should pay its governor more, and the House made the change. The Senate agreed with the amendment.

Other increases for elected officials included the lieutenant governor, raised to $8,000 from $7,000; attorney general, raised to $14,000 from $12,000; secretary of state, auditor and state treasurer to $21,000 from $17,000; superintendent of public instruction to $23,000 from $18,000.

In addition, the legislature approved $10 million increases for the state's supreme court judges and $7,000 increases for district judges. Supreme court justices will receive $35,000 and district judges $30,000 effective July 1.

The pay raises to state employees included a 5 per cent increase for the lowest paid state employees, in addition to a $1 million selective reallocation for general fund agencies.

Barker hits data 'shaft'

By DAVID ESPINOZA
Twin Falls Bureau

BOISE — Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, charged Friday the state legislature was getting "shafted" by the state's institutions of higher education.

"Barker said the four schools, Boise State University, Idaho State University, University of Idaho and Lemhi College, didn't figure their student full-time equivalent enrollment on a uniform system. As a result, Barker said, the distribution of state funding is affected.

"The money the legislature appropriates to higher education is apportioned among the schools partially on the basis of the FTE's.

Barker said he was shocked that the legislature, Board of Education and Office of Higher Education weren't getting accurate enrollment figures.

"Citing an article in the Friday edition of the Lewiston-Morning Tribune setting out the differences in enrollment computations, Barker said he had personally verified some of the disclosures in the article.

Investment plan loses

BOISE (UPI) — The Senate Friday rejected a proposal by Gov. Cecil Andrus to invest insurance fund reserves in construction of a new state office building.

Andrus, a Democrat, proposed paying off the building with interest to the insurance fund with rent by the state agencies using it. Before putting the idea before the legislature, he made a court check of the legality of the plan.

Eighteen Republican senators voted against the proposal. Five Republican senators joined the 12 Democratic senators in voting for the plan.

Idaho water agency given geothermal rule

BOISE (UPI) — Despite a warning the legislature was creating a "dictatorship," the Senate passed 21-22 a bill placing geothermal activities under the Department of Water Resources.

It now goes to the governor for final action.

Sen. Reed Budde, R-Soda Springs, said he was establishing a potential autocrat running "a bureaucratic kangaroo court."

He said "State Land Board jurisdiction is better than creating a virtual dictator over all wells in geothermal regions."

Sen. Wilson Steen, R-Sawtooth, said that comments

Glens Ferry, agreed the land department could handle the matter.

Steen said there were presently adequate provisions in law to protect Idaho water resources.

He referred to the fact that geothermal exploration was being conducted in the Raft River area.

Sen. Dick Smith, R-Rexburg, said he had passed last year's law "practically" and added that the present measure would "simplify" the process.

Senate Majority Leader Phil Batt, R-Wilder, said if the bill was too restrictive, the restrictions could be removed later but "we can't avoid to take a chance with this resource."

had been made on the floor that no problem exists but "those farmers and ranchers in the Raft River area don't think so."

Sen. James Vost, R-Wendell, said he didn't feel that it was necessary to pass the bill at this time.

It comes to a point where we can't stand any more protection," said Vost.

But Sen. John Peavey, R-Rupert, and Robert Saxrud, D-Burley, said the bill was necessary to protect the state's water resources.

Saxrud said that comments

Uniform procedure sought

T-N Capitol Bureau

BOISE — The Senate Health Education and Welfare Committee Chairman requested the State Board of Education Friday to come up with a uniform procedure for estimating full time equivalent enrollment at higher education institutions and junior colleges.

"In a floor speech in which he was critical of the way colleges and universities estimate their FTE's, Barker said he had prepared legislation to permit a change in the way junior colleges make their computations.

But because it was so late in the session, he said, he decided not to press for his legislation. Barker said his proposal would have permitted a trimester system for the College of Southern Idaho and North Idaho College, enabling the schools to compute students who attend school on a year-round basis.

He cited several programs that run on a trimester basis, including nurses' training, medical secretary, forestry and fiscal technology. He said the shift in the computation of FTE's at junior colleges is needed so they can be comparable to those in the colleges and universities.

"I think that the Office of Higher Education and the State Board of Education should in their April session next week, adopt a uniform procedure for all four institutions and recommend the same to our junior colleges," Barker said.

Lucky Boots club holds meet

ETTER—The Lucky Boots and Spurs 4-H Club had its first meeting of the year Thursday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Reed.

New officers were elected and Tammy Allen will serve as president; John E. Reed, vice-president; Jeanne Anderson, secretary, and Tammy Slater, reporter.

The group received record books from last year and discussed future club plans. They decided on Tuesday for a regular meeting date. Each member must bring a picture of himself and his horse to the April 16 meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Reed.

Karen Butler will demonstrate the parts of a saddle and Janet Butler will show how to bridle a horse at the next meeting.

A recreation committee was appointed and includes Nancy Kropick, Tammy Slater and Alice Reed.

12 men receive certification

TWIN FALLS—Twelve area men received certification as multimedia first aid instructors, it was announced Friday.

They were certified after two evening sessions taught by William Paul Davis, the fulltime safety program field representative for the Golden Spoke Division, American Red Cross, Salt Lake City.

The instructors include Frank Mogenson, Laurence Holland, John Parish and Tom Lane.

The course is useful to businesses and industrial school systems, public service groups, police, firemen, highway maintenance personnel as well as clubs and civic organization and Red Cross chapters.

The films for the sessions were borrowed from the US Forest Service but the local Red Cross chapter is seeking donations so that a film will be available when needed for classes in the Twin Falls area.

Accident injures local man

TWIN FALLS—A Twin Falls man was injured slightly by a car accident south of Twin Falls Thursday evening.

Lawrence Allen Goodsky, 27, was treated for lacerations and released from Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Thursday after his pickup truck went off the road in the 500 block of South Washington Street.

Goodsky was southbound on Washington Street when he attempted to pass a vehicle driven by Mike Champasaw. Champasaw's vehicle, driven by Shirley Good, Twin Falls, was northbound on Washington and in the path of Goodsky as he attempted to pass.

Goodsky went off the left hand side of the road, striking a "tree" trunk belonging to George Cunningham.

Goodsky's pickup truck was demolished. Police estimated the damage to Cunningham's property at about $300.

State supreme court opening

 Other cases to be heard by the court at the Twin Falls courthouse annex are as follows:
 Monday, April 1: 9 a.m. — Gary and Vicki Rinehart vs. FAFB Bureau Mutual Insurance Co. of Idaho.
 In their appeal the Rineharts contend that the insurance company is liable for $2,000 in medical expenses incurred by Rinehart after a traffic accident. The insurance company argues that the couple violated their right to the policy claim by signing a full release in settlement with the other party in the accident.

Fifth District Court Judge James M. Cunningham ruled earlier in favor of the insurance company.
 At 10:30 a.m. — Warm Springs Properties Inc. vs. Anna Villa.
 Anna Villa is a resident of Warm Springs, which operates International Village in Ketchum, and is appealing their appeal, that they contracted with Butler Brothers, for construction of facilities at the same time that Anna Villa also contracted for construction with Butler Brothers and unknown to Warm Springs. Butler Brothers used money paid by them to complete Anna Villa's project.

In the original suit, before Blaine County Judge Scoggin, Warm Springs sought restitution of the money allegedly used by Butler Brothers on the Anna Villa project, but Judge Scoggin ruled against Warm Springs, dismissing Warm Springs' claim for failure to present genuine issues of fact.
 At 2 p.m. — Board of county commissioners of Twin Falls County, Idaho, Sacred Heart Community Hospital et al vs. Idaho Health Facilities Authority.
 In their appeal the Twin Falls County commissioners contend that the empowering statute tax exempt revenue bonds under the Idaho Health Facilities Act does not constitute a violation of the state constitution.
 Judge Scoggin earlier ruled in favor of the authority, contending that revenue bonds issued by the authority violates the state constitution in that it constituted a pledge of the credit of the state.

Tuesday, April 2: 9 a.m. — Lisa S. Parker vs. Fred E. Parker.
 The Parker appeal involves a dispute over the division of community property in a divorce settlement. Parker is appealing an earlier Fifth District Court ruling. Fred E. Parker contends that the court erred in its decision for the division of community property.

and Eola D. Luke vs. Howard Conrad and Mary J. Conrad and Conrad Land and Livestock Inc.

In filing an appeal the Conrads contend that an earnest money agreement between themselves and the Lukes in a land sale should not have been enforced since Mrs. Conrad had not signed the agreement. The Conrads seek to overturn a prior ruling by Fifth District Court Judge Sherman Bellwood binding them to the agreement.

Wednesday, April 3: 9 a.m. — John H. Hemingway vs. George Fritz, doing business as Wood River Journal.
 At 10:30 a.m. — Alene F. Ramsey vs. Lloyd E. Ramsey.

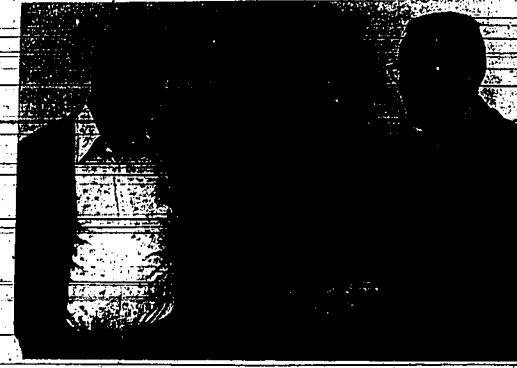

In filing the appeal both parties are seeking changes in certain parts of a divorce decree judgment awarding earlier decrees by Twin Falls District Court Judge Cunningham, including issues of domicile and whether certain US Air Force benefits in the name of Lloyd Ramsey constitute community property.

Thursday, April 4: 9 a.m. — Transnational Sculpture Rentals Inc. vs. Mike Vetter.
 In appealing an earlier judgment by Judge Scoggin, Vetter's attorneys contend that an agreement between Vette and the rental firm was not a lease, but a conditional sales contract, and that it is not bound, as claimed by Scoggin, to continue payments. Vette's appeal also contends that the agreement was unenforceable.

At 10:30 a.m. — State of Idaho vs. James P. Kelly.
 Kelly has appealed a ruling by Judge Cunningham upholding a magistrate court conviction for failure to display lights on a motor vehicle.

Acting as his own attorney, Kelly contends that evidence in his case did not support a guilty verdict. He also claims the magistrate's instructions to the jury were erroneous. Kelly further claims that prejudicial misconduct on the part of the state occurred in the trial. He requests for a retraining order preventing Wood from disposing of their community property following the couple's estrangement.

At 10:30 a.m. — State of Idaho vs. Cleve Starry.
 Starry is appealing an earlier conviction in Fifth District Court Judge West-Prather, the Thompson couple contends that Judge Prather erred in ruling to mitigate damages in awarding the leasing company damages of about $75,000 in the treatment of an equipment lease contract. The Thomasons contend, therefore, that the damage award constituted a penalty.

Presents donation

request for additional instructions by the magistrate prior to jury deliberation.
 At 2 p.m. — Industrial Leasing Corporation vs. Howard Thompson and Mary-Thomas.
 In appealing an earlier ruling by First Judicial District Court Judge West-Prather, the Thompson couple contends that Judge Prather erred in ruling to mitigate damages in awarding the leasing company damages of about $75,000 in the treatment of an equipment lease contract. The Thomasons contend, therefore, that the damage award constituted a penalty.

Friday, April 5: 9 a.m. — Teresa D. Wood vs. Warren L. Wood.
 Teresa Wood has appealed a ruling of Fifth District Court Judge Theron W. Ward which denied her claim for herself and her children of support payments from Warren Wood.

At 10:30 a.m. — State of Idaho vs. Cleve Starry.
 Starry is appealing an earlier conviction in Fifth District Court Judge West-Prather, the Thompson couple contends that Judge Prather erred in ruling to mitigate damages in awarding the leasing company damages of about $75,000 in the treatment of an equipment lease contract. The Thomasons contend, therefore, that the damage award constituted a penalty.

Aeromodelers club gives $100 to swim pool fund

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Aeromodelers donated the $100 proceeds from a flying contest to the YMCA-YWCA swimming pool fund Thursday.
 The money was collected in donations from those south of Twin Falls.

The YMCA-YWCA in the last month during a "win-win" campaign to raise the $150,000 needed to complete the indoor pool.
 Door-prize winners Sunday were first, Randy King, second, Heidi Rathbun, and third, Bob Ullman Jr., winners in the "highest flying kite" category were Robbie Gillespie, first; Brian Coleman, second; and Kevin Carter, third.

Four separate age categories were defined in competition for the first kite in the air. In the 3 to 8 year group Jim Pippitt took first; Mike Jenkins, second, and Robbie Gillespie, third. In the 9 to 12 group, David Showell took first; Jeff Newby, second, and Randy King, third.

If woman named

TWIN FALLS — Marge Hoops, Twin Falls, has been named to represent the fifth district area of the board of directors of Idaho Volunteers in Corrections Inc.
 Del Hansen, Twin Falls, also attended the annual membership meeting in Boise last week.

The volunteers organization represents about 400 persons who serve as friends and counselors on a one-to-one basis with offenders and their families.
 The system is designed to help offenders rehabilitate and statistics indicate the program is reducing the number of returned offenders.

Hank Aaron needs help to break Babe Ruth's homerun record

By HANK AARON
No matter where I go, someone is bound to ask me if I think I will break Babe Ruth's record of 714 home runs. The Babe is a legend now. He created more excitement than any player who ever lived. What I find so hard to believe is that Hank Aaron, a nobody from Mobile, Ala., is the first player in 40 years to challenge that home-run record. How did it come about?

Well, I sure didn't make it on my own. There were a number of people who helped me at crucial times. And because of those people I've tried to live my life a certain way during my 21-year career.

My parents were strict with discipline by your father. When I was 17, I was offered $300 a month to play ball for the all black Indianapolis Clowns. I could hardly believe it. That kind of money for a game you loved! Only when promised to continue my education later (which I did) were my parents willing to let me accept.

So one day in May, 1952, my mother, two of my sisters and a brother took me to the Mobile railroad station for the trip to Charlotte, N.C., to join the Indianapolis team where they were having spring training.

I guess if I had real hero-worship for anyone, it would be for Jackie Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers. I was about 14 when he became the first black to ever play in this league before. Three of us — Horace Garner, Felix Mantilla and myself — were the ones to break the color line.

I'm not the crusader-type, and there were times, frankly, when I wanted out. Like those bus trips from the ball park after each game on the road.

The white players were left at the hotel while Horace, Felix and I were taken to a private home.

The best way to lick this racial thing is to play well. Play so well that the fans forget your color. As one sports writer put it, "Aaron led the league in everything, but hotel accommodations."

You learn a kind of acceptance. You set aside the thing that bugs you so that you can get on with doing what you know you're supposed to do. I'm not trying to preach a sermon with these stories, but they do add up to something basic which I think has enabled me to play baseball year after year. Like my parents and Jackie Robinson and others, I'm learning to do without something I want at the moment to achieve the bigger thing ahead that is really right.

Certain parts of spring training in recent years have been agony and a punishment that I would have liked to skip. But at my age I have to discipline my body to keep on playing.

I also know this: I need to depend on someone who is bigger, stronger and wiser than I am. I don't do it on my own. God is my strength. He gave me a good body and some talent and the freedom to develop it. He helps me when things go wrong.

The Lord willing, I'll set a new home-run record. If I don't, that's okay too. I've had a wonderful time in baseball and have enough great memories to last two lifetimes.

us kids. We had rules, we did chores and we all went to the Baptist church every Sunday.

My father, Herbert Aaron, was a boilermaker's helper in a ship building company and worked long hours to feed and clothe his wife and two children.

My father had a hard time to play ball or talk to us, but when he did, it meant something.

Like the time I skipped school to listen to the Brooklyn Dodger game, at the local poolroom. For some reason he got off early that day and saw me there. I thought I was in for it, but my father didn't punish me. He just asked some questions.

"I was listening to the Dodger game," I said. "I want to be a baseball player."

"I'll learn more about how to play listening to the Dodgers than sitting in a classroom," he said.

"You don't think an educated man, but he and my mama had made up their minds that their children were going to get educated.

"You don't think those fellows playing in the big leagues are dumb, do you?" he asked me.

"No, but they didn't learn to hit and throw in a classroom," I answered.

"You can be a baseball player and get an education too," he continued earnestly.

"Son, I quit school because I had to go to work to make a living. You don't have to. I put 50 cents on that dresser each morning for you to take to school to buy your lunch and whatever else you need. I only take 25 cents to work with me. It's worth more to me that you get an education than it is for me to eat. So let's hear no more about dropping out of school."

You don't forget that kind of black to play in the big leagues. I treat everything I could find about him.

What fascinated me was that Jackie was an emotional, explosive ballplayer. Yet during that crucial first year in the big leagues, he didn't lose his temper in spite of a steady barrage of insults.

How did he keep control? I learned later that he prayed a lot for help. And he also had a sense of destiny about what he was doing, so much so that he felt God's presence with him. He learned to put aside his personal grudges and tempers when I faced a similar situation while playing with Jacksonville, Fla., in the South Atlantic League back in 1954.

Shelter home meet set

BOISE (UPI) — Officials of the Department of Environmental and Community Services plan to meet with shelter home operators and housing representatives Tuesday to discuss objections to proposed shelter home regulations.

Some 200 persons appeared at an official hearing on the regulations Friday afternoon.

After hearing from only four nursing representatives, DECS Administrator James A. Bax offered to set up a meeting with a group of the nurses.

"Your comments have a great deal of merit," he said, adding that DECS will postpone bringing the proposals before its board until after the Tuesday meeting.

Nurses primarily are unhappy with sections of the proposals that are in conflict with Idaho's Nurses Practice Act.

Swisher joins Demos

POCATELLO (UPI) — It's official — former Republican legislator Perry Swisher has joined the Democratic ranks.

Attending a Bannock County Precinct 23 caucus Thursday night, Swisher signed in as a Democrat.

Swisher was awarded second place as a delegate to the county assembly but turned it down, saying:

"I've only been a Democrat 20 seconds—I think I'd better watch."

Swisher is expected to run this year as a Democrat for the State House of Representatives from District 34.

KPortland leaps 17 cars

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Motorcycle daredevil Evel Knievel, Friday night made a world record ramp-to-ramp motorcycle leap over 17 cars, but he talked more about jumping the Snake River Canyon in Idaho than his new record here.

Knievel set the stage — Sept. 4 — for his own publicized Snake River Canyon motorcycle jump. It announced the date prior to HST&P over the 17 cars in Portland's Memorial Coliseum.

Knievel said the Idaho Canyon jump would be preceded a week by a $100,000 motorcycle race on the property he purchased as the site for his canyon jump on a jet-powered motorcycle.

Court upholds statute

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's supreme court Friday upheld the constitutionality of highway weight limitations in the Idaho Code.

Fifth District Judge James M. Cunningham of Twin Falls County earlier had found them to be unconstitutionally arbitrary, unreasonable and irrational.

He found the statute unconstitutional in the application to the general weight limitation statute applicable to all trucks, instead of "just those carrying unprocessed agricultural commodities."

In an opinion by Justice Robert Bakes, the high court said the statute was constitutional until the exception allowing heavy weight for trucks carrying unprocessed agricultural commodities was enacted.

Thus the Supreme Court held that the exception was unconstitutional insofar as it imposed unprocessed agricultural commodities from the weight limitations and that the general weight limitations found in the statute are constitutional.

Groundbreaking April 10

BURLEY — The Burley District Office of the Bureau of Land Management announces the official groundbreaking for the Salmon Falls Recreation Site to be held at 11 a.m. April 10.

The ceremony will be held at the Salmon Falls Recreation site which is located on the east shore of Salmon Falls Reservoir by the dam.

Federal, state and local officials have been invited to participate in the ceremony. The general public is urged to attend this groundbreaking.

Contract awarded

RUPERT — Bids for Minidoka County's new $419,000 judicial building were opened Wednesday afternoon at a special county commission meeting in Rupert.

Wyoming Construction Co., Pocatello, was awarded the project with a bid of $396,400. Neilson Co., Twin Falls, submitted a bid of $398,800 and Ormond Construction Co., Idaho Falls, entered the bidding at $412,970.

The Taylor Co. agreed to a completion date 310 calendar days after the signing of the contract with the county. The building is to be ready for occupancy by August 1974.

Construction may start as early as April 6 on the new building. The facility will house magistrate and district court rooms, all court clerk and record offices, a prosecuting attorney's office, a law library and possibly a second magistrate court room at a later date. The county recorder, assessor, treasurer and county commissioner offices will stay in the old building.

The building will be a light colored brick to match the existing city-county law enforcement building after the law enforcement building is re-erected. The exterior brickwork on the law enforcement building is unsatisfactory because of inferior materials and brick laying, according to the county commissioners.

Shoshone plan OK'd

SHOSHONE — No one appeared at the City Council meeting to discuss the proposed 1974 city budget of $419,607.

It was approved as proposed at a meeting of the council this week, clerk Mrs. Claude Chess said Friday.

Last year's budget was $320,038.50 and amount of that raised by tax levy was based on a 39.61 levy. This year, $53,163 must be raised through tax levy and it is estimated the levy will be set around 42 cents.

The general fund spending for ordinary city services will be $53,163 this year, compared to $47,917 last year.

The largest single amount within the budget, the city street fund is $102,481, but is mostly refundable, Mrs. Chess said.

Budget for the fire department is $10,382.56, with the library fund at $6,053; the recreation fund $2,710; city-ditch $2,509; waterworks, $67,480; sewer revenue fund, $62,600; federal revenue sharing fund, $22,511; swimming pool fund $9,685; and sewer construction fund $80,597.

Two-lane route sought

By TERRY CAMPBELL
Times-News writer

HEBERLEM — The Ketchikan Valley Chamber of Commerce has called for an improved two lane rather than four lane US Highway 93 from the State Highway 93 junction to Nank. The recommendation was included in a Chamber-highway study group report adopted Thursday. The chamber meeting also included a question and answer session with state highway department officials Howard Johnson, district engineer, and Dick Sorenson, district location engineer.

The report recommended the width of Highway 93 and State Highway 75 between Ketchikan and Sun Valley should be "such that rehabilitation and disruption of business and residential areas does not occur and alteration of the countryside be held to a minimum."

The report contained the following comments "where in the interest of safety: ... road surface depths should be at least equal or exceed federal highway specifications to eliminate highway breakup in the winter."

"Existing surfacing, repair and maintenance practices have proven unwise and are not acceptable."

The state bridge count of Ketchikan should be replaced with a wider bridge and approaches should be improved.

"The excessive crown in combination with highway breakup between Cold Springs and East Side Road is a principal cause of winter accidents occurring on this section of highway."

The report also recommended decreased use of the family automobile as well as encouraged alternate means of transportation.

In addition, the group recommended the present Union Pacific Railroad line not be considered for a possible highway route, but it be retained for future mass transit for the Wood River Valley.

Study group chairman Bill Carr said the improved two-lane highway recommendation had stemmed from two previous chamber votes. He also said the automobile was the most "inefficient" form of transportation and said the group favored retaining the railroad line because railroad travel is the most "efficient and safer" transportation.

Hospital bond case hearing set in TF

By CRICKET BRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A hearing which may affect financing of a hospital building program begins Monday before the Idaho Supreme Court.

The court will hear oral arguments in the case, board of county commissioners of Twin Falls County and Sacred-Heart-Community Hospital versus Idaho Falls, et al., versus Idaho Health Facilities Authority.

The case is being heard on an appeal of the decision by Judge Charles Scoggins, in the District Court of the Fifth Judicial District, Camas County. The district court found the state law which created the authority and gave it power to issue tax exempt revenue bonds to pay for building programs for health facilities to be unconstitutional.

If the supreme court decides in favor of the commissioners and Sacred-Heart, it could make a big difference in the way Magic Valley Memorial Hospital pays for its proposed expansion program.

Instead of using a general obligation bond to pay for construction, the hospital could opt for a revenue bond, borrowing the funds from the Health Facilities Authority and paying them back out of operating revenues.

Financing the expansion program with a revenue bond would mean a rise in hospital rates, instead of taxes. Steve Rosenbaum, hospital administrator, said an estimate room rates would probably go up $5 a day, making a semi-private room, which costs $50.50 a day now, increase to $55.50.

"The current utilization of the hospital that would quite cover the expense," Rosenbaum said, adding that the remainder would be picked up from higher rates for drugs, X-rays, dressings and other hospital services.

One benefit of a revenue bond, Rosenbaum said, is that wages of the service pay for it. With a general obligation bond, county taxpayers finance the expansion. Rosenbaum said that about 15 per cent of hospital users are from counties other than Twin Falls County.

In February, Twin Falls County voters narrowly defeated a $4.5 million general obligation bond proposal for expansion of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Third party payers — not the individual — would bear the brunt of the higher costs for 80 to 85 per cent of the patients, Rosenbaum said, citing that percentage as reflecting the number of persons covered by Medicare, Medicaid, welfare, county aid or health insurance.

However, the cost of all these programs, although more indirectly, comes out of taxpayers' pockets somewhere along the line.

A revenue bond election, like a general obligation bond election, is voted on by county residents, but requires only a majority, not the two-thirds approval needed for a general obligation bond.

The authority's power to loan money to hospitals was ruled unconstitutional under Article 8, sections 1-4. Basically, the code states that a county cannot incur "debts except under certain circumstances."

Sacred-Heart of Idaho Falls intended to use Health Facilities Authority funds to reduce a debt it has presently.

Rupert OK's city budget

By ED MITCHELL
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The 1974 Rupert city budget was approved by the city council Monday night with no challenge from the public.

The total spending will fall sharply this year to $1.48 million, a reduction of $79,733 from last year. Most of the decrease is a decrease in the city's second-year sewage treatment project.

General fund spending will increase about 2.1 per cent over last year to $495,562. Most routine governmental services spending comes from the general fund.

The UPRA budget provides for a 5.1 per cent cut of living salary rates for city employees.

Income from local taxes will rise to about $70,000 this year from $66,331 in 1973, due to increased property evaluations. The 24 mill levy will not be changed.

Anticipated revenue sharing funds will be about $45,500 this year, most of which is earmarked for street, sanitation and parks departments. The budget for the parks department was reduced to $38,200 this year down from $97,000 in 1973. The Big Valley Park projects nearing completion, accounting for most of the reduction.

This year's contingency fund is set at $46,340. After approving the 1974 budget, unanimously the city council approved a request by Larry Wright to use tranche instead of cast-iron water pipes in the Vista Village addition of Rupert. Tranche is an asbestos fiber type of pipe. Wright told the council that he had expected to be able to purchase cast-iron pipe for the project from the city.

The city recently decided to disallow the selling of its materials to contractors. Wright said it would take him at least three months to obtain iron pipe and therefore asked to be allowed to use tranche.

Frank Liebrock of Hamilton-Voeller, Inc. the city's engineering firm, presented the final plans for the A street sewer project to the council. They were signed by Mayor Wendell Johnson, retaining bid opening date for the project was set for April 10.

Expo special to stop in GF

GLENN'S FERRY — The Union Pacific Expo 74 Special will make a midday stop here April 20.

Drawn by a steam locomotive, the special will pause at Glenn's Ferry — formerly a division point on the UP — for a waiting stop from 11:15 a.m. until 12:30 p.m.

Along its 2,200-mile route from Omaha, Neb., to the Spokane, Wash., site of Expo '74 World's Fair, the train will bear flags of 13 states served by UP and special messages. The flags and messages will be borne on a specially-pullpiped flat car.

In its trip across Idaho on April 20, the train will pause in Boise for ceremonies at which the Gem State Day and Expo special are presented aboard the "Day of Fair" will be from Pocatello to Nampa. After leaving Pocatello, the train will be due in Shoshone at 10 a.m. and at Gooding at 10:20 a.m.

Scheduling of the special's run from April 15-22 calls for daylight operations to allow interested persons along the route to view and photograph the special train. UP officials said.

The engine is one of the last operating steam locomotives in the nation. It made its last previous visit to Idaho about 10 months ago.

The engine will be over at the UP display at the fair. Ceremonial stops are planned in Cheyenne, Wyo., Salt Lake City, and Portland, Ore.

Future Farmers finish Gem meet with election

By BONNIE JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's Future Farmers of America concluded their 43rd annual convention in Twin Falls Friday with the election of Paul Ogburn, Payette, as president.

Other new officers include Harold Nevill, Fruitland, vice president; Mark Mustoe, Kendrick, secretary; Ron Richards, Aberdeen, treasurer; Mary Warfield, Midvale, reporter, and Jim Smith, Boise, secretary.

Miss Warfield is the second girl to hold a state office with the FFA. She succeeds Carol Seburn, Valluessa, Boise in the same office. Girls have been holding membership in the Future Farmers organization in Idaho since 1926 and Idaho is one of the few states to have a girl holding state office, advisors said.

Barry Johnson, Sandpoint, retiring president, turned the gavel over to Ogburn during installation ceremonies which concluded the three-day convention at the College of Southern Idaho Friday noon.

Delegates voted to hold the 1975 convention in Twin Falls again because of the facilities offered at CSI and the close proximity of motel accommodations.

Other closing business included the delegate business session in which the two official delegates of each chapter reviewed policy changes and resolutions. Retiring president, Barry Johnson also addressed the general assembly with a review of the past year.

Jay Phillips, national FFA vice president from Springville, Utah, was featured speaker Thursday night for the annual state banquet. About 400 members and guests attended the banquet.

The Idaho FFA association's honorary state farmer degrees were presented following the dinner. The six adults winning the recognition included Bob Hinderliter, Boise, executive vice president of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association; Dr. Antis Millina, University of Idaho, Moscow; Larry Holmgren, Notus; John Mundt, Meridian, and Barry Johnson, Sandpoint, retiring state president.

Rail car shortage poses problem for Magic Valley shippers

Even now, when icers are being used and demand for refrigerator cars has not started in California, the firm is experiencing a shortage. At least once a week we get our cars so late in the day that it's too late to start loading, Rasmussen said.

When the weather becomes too warm for icers, he said, some potatoes could be moved by truck. But Rasmussen believed the availability of trucks will be limited. He said there's not much demand for inbound loads to Idaho and that it is not too profitable for the trucks to travel empty to the state to pick up potatoes.

Jim Keegan, owner of Keegan Inc., Twin Falls, said he especially to ship potatoes will get back by at least one-third when warm weather hits. He said he would not use icers between May and about Oct. 10. This year, Keegan will stop shipping potatoes May 1. But, he said, the company will start again about mid-August and for nearly two months it will be curbed in the number of spuds it can send out, he said.

Dennis Wilmore, sales manager at J.H. Henry, Kimberly, believes that his company will be at least 40 percent short on rail cars when the warm weather comes. He said more than one-third of the cars J.H. Henry uses are icers. The mechanical cars carry nearly two-thirds more potatoes than the icers.

Wilmore still expects a serious problem in moving potatoes. Some spuds will be sent out by truck, he said. But, the truck supply is "sporadic" and does not promise continuous movement of the crop. Also, Wilmore said, the shipping rate is 25 to 30 cents higher by trucks and a higher rate leads to a "vicious circle." "The more we raise our freight rates the less people will use Idaho potatoes."

Discontinued use of ice cooled cars will tend to pollute storage this summer and an over supply in the fall, Wilmore said. "The key to marketing," he said, "is the orderly movement of the potatoes. Storage of unmarketable potatoes this summer would make a short crop year into a long crop year and the price would go all to hell," he said.

For the past three years the railroad has put in no replacement orders for cars, he said. And even with the present shortage, PFE is not ordering the newer model cars. "Expected changes have made arrangements to partly replace the railroad's partly facility in Pocatello."

But Ken Evans, manager of the company's icing department, said that the project is "just in a big gray area." Evans said he has contacted one five or six of the larger shippers in regard to setting up contract for supplying ice. Icing could only be done by contract, he said, and the price would be four times greater than that charged by Pacific Fruit Express Co. (PFE) last year.

Dennis Herbold, an officer of Max Herbold, Inc., Rupert, said that since fall his company has had to shut down for three or four days because of a lack of rail cars. He said he expected serious shortage when icers can no longer be used and competition starts coming in from California and other areas in the spring.

According to Sigloh, there have been many times so far this year when shippers have had to shut down for short periods because of the car shortage. He said the main problem is PFE has been eliminating icers without adding more mechanical refrigerated cars.

For the past three years the railroad has put in no replacement orders for cars, he said. And even with the present shortage, PFE is not ordering the newer model cars. "Expected changes have made arrangements to partly replace the railroad's partly facility in Pocatello."

But Ken Evans, manager of the company's icing department, said that the project is "just in a big gray area." Evans said he has contacted one five or six of the larger shippers in regard to setting up contract for supplying ice. Icing could only be done by contract, he said, and the price would be four times greater than that charged by Pacific Fruit Express Co. (PFE) last year.

Rockwell said PFE, which is owned jointly by Union Pacific and Southern Pacific, has 4000 guttor or equipment and owns half of the entire refrigerated car fleet in the United States. He said that discontinuing icing cars had been planned for several years and became effective Sept. 1, 1974. "The ice cooled cars are just not economical... there has to be a time when we change from the old to the new," he said.

He said the ice cars would still be available for winter use for another two or three years. Rockwell could not say, however, why PFE discontinued icing while the icers are still on the line. Some of the shippers are suspicious of PFE's motives in not building more replacement cars.

"They're riding very thin, but damn it they don't make any new cars!... You create a shortage of something, then you can raise your prices," shipper Rasmussen said. Herbold said PFE's eighth rate increase since October, 1972, will become effective Monday. But the total increase is not outrageous compared to other prices inflation, Herbold said that to fill 80,000 pound car to Chicago cost a total $1.52 per hundredweight in October, 1972. In April the price for the same load will rise to $1.76, a 15.8 per cent jump.

Herbold said the situation is not all as bleak. He said that although his corporation has experienced short supplies of cars and expects worse, at times cars have been available and his firm has not been able to use them because of low demand. PFE car distributor Keith Smith believes the shortage of cars will not be disastrous. "True, we are going to have spot shortages... (but) as far as there being a severe shortage it just hasn't occurred. They are going to get their crops moved," he said. But according to the shippers, the shortage may have disastrous consequences for some companies. Rasmussen said the smaller shippers are likely to suffer the most. "I think the smaller companies will be more or less forced out of business" if icers are not replaced with more mechanical cars, he said. He maintained that if the railroad cuts back equally on cars to all shippers, the impact on the firms which load fewer cars will be much more severe.

Horse events planned during '74 Gooding fair

GOODING — The Gooding County Fair will have a jumper and hunter horse competition this year. The event is scheduled for Aug. 5 with jumping competition in the morning and pleasure classes in the afternoon. The fair board will donate $100 toward prize money, according to Mrs. Harvey Block, who represents the Intermountain Jumpers Association. Beverly Swenson, representing the Topnots Quarter Horse Association, has been given approval for a Quarter Horse show in the Gooding area June 22-23 and another for a day at the fair.

Swenson said fair board members at a recent meeting the interest in Quarter Horses has grown and the association will devote considerable time at the June show to the youth division. The drill team competition will be held Aug. 4 with the winner of the junior competition riding the first night of the rodeo, senior division the second night and the Gooding County Sheriff's posse sponsors for the competition, the third night. Rex McAnulty, posse president, has asked for the arena July 27 for the Wood River Jamboree. Dale Hopper and Larry Carpenter have requested more space for swine exhibits. They said they planned to exhibit this year and more pens are needed in order not to interfere with the exhibits. Action was deferred pending consultation with Walt Higgins, fairgrounds manager. Mrs. Lewis Dufce, Sagebrush Art Guild president, thanked the board for the new lighting and flooring in the art display room and asked permission to charge a small entrance fee for each exhibit to raise prize money for the best of show winner. Other possible features of the annual county fair discussed by board members were the Antique Festival Theatre, and 4-H horse show and selection of a general theme for the fair and rodeo, according to Mary Ann Hagen, publicity chairman.

D. Taylor, plant manager for a local ice cream processing plant, said that its ability to supply ice would be limited. Evans said he has contacted one five or six of the larger shippers in regard to setting up contract for supplying ice. Icing could only be done by contract, he said, and the price would be four times greater than that charged by Pacific Fruit Express Co. (PFE) last year.

Weed killer warning out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency warned Friday against using weed killers containing the compound "paraquat." The EPA urged gardeners and farmers to read label instructions carefully. It said six herbicides containing paraquat, used for weed control in some crops and around buildings, are currently marketed. The warning followed several reported poisonings involving swallowing paraquat, the EPA said, one of which resulted in the death of a 10-year-old boy. Another teenager is hospitalized in critical condition from drinking a herbicide containing the compound.

JEROME — Irrigation water for area farmers is now available through the North Side Canal system. Ted Diehl, manager of the North Side Canal Co., said Thursday that water was turned into the canal system Monday from Milner Dam, and farmers wanting irrigation water should notify their ditcher 24 hours in advance in order that the water can be regulated. He said water will be withheld from some of the small canals and laterals until weed burning is completed. Stock water will be released from Wilson Lake when the lake fills, Diehl added. Diehl asked farmers to cooperate with the canal company by removing panel fences and other obstructions from the canals.

New Mexico dismisses players for taking part in boycott

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI)—Head football Coach Bill Mendenhall of the University of New Mexico said Saturday that black players dismissed from the squad would continue to receive their scholarships but would not play.

The 14 blacks, including five starters from the 1973 team, were dismissed after they failed to show up for a practice as part of a school boycott by the black athletes.

The people that show up for practice will do the playing next fall, Mendenhall said.

Probably not. That's why we've prepared a short tape cassette and brochure entitled "Straight Talk About Building." They cover all major aspects of a successful building program. If you're thinking about building, they can save you a lot of wasted time and money. And that's why we want to send them to you.

I'm not talking for arguments, but to friends, and they're telling me exactly how they feel."

Bill Caplan, Foreman's press spokesman, said the champion paid $100,000 of his own money towards the taxes on his purse from Tuesday night and that a bond for another $150,000 was put up. He said he believed Video Techniques, Inc., New York, supplied the bond.

Sadler had said earlier that Foreman would not pay the taxes because his contract with Video Techniques, Inc., promoters of the fight, called for a tax free purse.

Foreman received $700,000 against 40 percent of the total purse for his five-fight deal. Foreman had tried to leave Venezuela Thursday but was turned back at the international airport by immigration officials acting in orders of the income tax department.

Norton's camp started to raise its tax money a day earlier than Foreman's camp and the 29-year-old challenger cleared his mid-afternoon Friday, just before the government offices closed for the weekend.

As the leaders sailed over Becher's Brook, Red Rum was in front, L'Escargot second, favorite Scout third, and Charles Dickens next.

Pistons drop Bulls in playoff opener

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bob Lanier netted 27 points and Dave Bing led 20 Saturday to lead the Detroit Pistons to a 97-82 victory over the Chicago Bulls in the opener of their best-of-seven game National Basketball Association playoff series on national television.

It was Detroit's first win on the Chicago floor in five games this season, and the Bulls, though they finished two games ahead of the Pistons in the NBA regular season, never led. The Bulls were plagued by miserable shooting in the first half, hitting only 36.8 per cent of their shots in the first period while the Pistons, with a 68.4 shooting percentage, roared to a 29-16 lead.

In the second period the Bulls hit only 32 per cent of their shots, and still trailed by 13 points at the half, 51-38.

Chicago rallied in the final half, trailing by only six points at 74-68 after three periods, and four times in the final period closed within four points. But each time the Pistons got the next basket and moved away again.

Lanier caught 12 points in the third period when the Pistons scored 20, and Bing had 10 in the fourth period when the Pistons scored 26.

The Pistons' victory erased the home court advantage which the Bulls had in the seven-game series, with four games scheduled for the Chicago floor if the playoff goes the distance. The next game is slated for the Pistons' court Monday night.

Eagles split twin bill against BYU

PROVO, College of Southern Idaho, riding the three-hit pitching of Roger Bills and an eight-run first inning, dropped the BYU Jayvets 9-4 Saturday to gain a doubleheader split.

BYU, which entered the day with a 15-1 record, won the opener 11-0. The BYU Jayvets then match Tuesday with a doubleheader opening at 1 p.m. in Jaycee Park. Coach Bob Banfield has nominated Ron Bates and Steve Nelson to pitch these two.

seventh, three of those on Fries' bases-loaded triple. The Eagles sent 10 men to the plate in nailing down the victory early.

Joe Velasquez drew a walk and Robb Morgan singled. Mike Treasayne's safety loaded the bases and Nelson drove two home with a single. After Darrell Groves walked to reload the bases, Jeff Spring cleared them with a long double. CSI promptly reloaded the bases on a walk to Jenkins and a hit to Rich Strickland. Velasquez would tie up with another three-run double.

CSI added its nine run in the fourth when Nelson singled and moved to second on Guesas' sacrifice. He flew around on Spring's base hit. BYU exploded for five runs and then lucked it away with another error in the bottom of the sixth. CSI scored one more in the sixth and four in the

Bucks rally past L.A. by 99-95

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Norman Van Lier and Williams sank a 29-foot corner jump shot and Oscar Robertson dropped in two free throws Friday night to lead the Milwaukee Bucks to a 99-95 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers in the first game of their national basketball association semi-final playoff.

It was Van Lier's until about five minutes had elapsed in the first period. Then Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 35 points, rammed in a baseline hook shot to Milwaukee on a rebound. He then tossed until Williams coolly dropped in two free throws after being fouled by Gail Goodrich.

Williams came back with a jump shot from the free throw circle to make it 85-91. Goodrich, who rapped in 31 points, and led-Laker drives that produced a 10-point lead early in the game and a 9-point margin in the third period, put in a jump shot.

There was no more scoring until the final seconds, when the heroics of Williams and Robertson put the Bucks into the lead.

Reed points N.Y. past Capital

NEW YORK (UPI) — The physical presence of a tall skipper, Willis Reed inspired the New York Knicks to a 102-91 victory Friday night over the Capital Bullets just when it appeared the bullets led by high man Elvin Hayes were about to run away from the defending NBA champions.

Reed, who missed four months of the season with an injured right knee and who finished ahead 35-31. He had a capacity crowd in Madison Square Garden, got the Knicks rolling.

With Reed directing the Knicks orchestra in place of Jerry Lucas, they pulled to a 49-42 lead at intermission, and when he left the floor after 15 hectic minutes, New York had outscored Capital, 16-4. It was downhill for Capital after that, despite a superman effort by Hayes who scored a club playoff record 40 points. The Knicks balanced attack on the occasion in the playoffs, especially against old foe Capital, whom they've beaten in the first round in four of the previous five years, two of which they eventually ended up as champions.

DALLAS (UPI) — Swedens Chris Garpenberg of University of Texas-El Paso breezed to a 93 second victory in the 100 yard dash Saturday to highlight the Dallas Invitational track and field meet.

Southern California Trojans, as expected, captured the team crown with 147 points, followed by Texas Longhorns with 133.

Both schools took five first place finishes.

Other team finishes were: UTEP 90, Oklahoma State 45, Rice 39, SMU 28 and Texas A&M 16.

Cooper, Gilkey pace CSI in track meet

OGDEN — Bruce Cooper and Doug Gilkey went one-two in the quarter mile Saturday to highlight College of Southern Idaho's fourth place finish in a college track meet at Weber State.

High winds and odd hampered performances, but Cooper took the quarter in 50.8 while Gilkey was only a step behind at 51.0. Gilkey came back to place fourth in the 200-yard dash while teammate Brent Thompson was fifth.

Greg Haylitt against cleared 14 feet in the pole vault to get fourth place points and Mike Phillips scaled 6-2 in the high jump for second.

Wendell council approves plat

WENDELL — The Wendell City Council approved a re-application plat, presented by Bruce Olsen at a meeting Thursday.

The plat is for a 54-homestead subdivision on former pasture land adjacent to Bolte Street and D Avenue. The developers agreed to increase the utility easement from 15 feet to 20 feet and to increase the size of the north and south street, to 70 feet, leaving the east and west street easements at 50 feet.

The re-application plat is subject to change before the final plat is accepted.

The council awarded a contract for $5,199 for street marking equipment of Salt Lake City for the balance of the material needed to install main lines in order to put the new plum into service. City crews will install the lines.

The council accepted a bid from Leo Rice Motors for a police car at $3,385 with trade.

Ed Olson was appointed to the McGinnis Park board to replace Kathryn Serr whose term expired.

The council passed two resolutions — one setting up a planning commission and the other to control the quality of the water, being discharged into irrigation ditches.

John Wilke met with the council to request that Ready To Four Concrete Co. refrain from discharging waste water into the irrigation ditch above its property.

The council told him to obtain a petition from other downstream users and meet again with council members.

Closes earlier

JEROME — The Jerome Post Office will begin closing a half hour earlier Monday.

Dale Wlad, postmaster, said the new hours will be from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., rather than the 3:30 closure.

Wlad explained that because of the large volume of mail the Jerome post office receives, it is necessary to schedule more employees earlier in the morning. He noted that with the new schedule it is expected that mail will be in the post office boxes at least 30 minutes earlier in the morning.

The old schedule of 7:50 a.m. for mail arrival and 3:30 p.m. for mail dispatch time will remain the same as it is now.

Y lists activities for elementary children

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley YM-YWCA announces a full slate of classes for the elementary children's spring program.

A special Easter Fun Club has been set for April 11, 12 and 13. The annual event will be held at the YM-YWCA building from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. each day. Boys and girls from first through fourth grades can participate in archery, crafts and other activities.

The advanced modeling class for boys from 9 years of age and up will be held on Wednesday and Friday afternoons beginning the first week in April. The minimum of 10 students register.

Class members will construct a model airplane, attach an engine and learn to fly the plane.

A paddle tennis class is slated for youngsters from 11 to 12 years of age beginning Monday. Students will be taught the basic strokes, the rules and methods of scoring during the class, using paddles instead of tennis rackets to give them better control.

Elementary boys can get physically fit for the baseball season in a Saturday-morning spring training class for beginners. The class begins 9:30 a.m. to noon each Saturday from March 30 to May 18. It will teach the boys how to throw, catch and hit the ball, to run bases and to slide.

The Y will offer a class for beginning and more advanced archery on Wednesday and Friday afternoons beginning April 21. Boys and girls will be taught to shoot and be given the opportunity to win awards for their efforts.

While the boys' wrestling class is entering its final weeks, instructor Dallas Willis said boys still have a good opportunity to learn the basics of wrestling. The classes are held each Wednesday from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at the Y.

The boys' dancing class is continuing each Friday evening through May.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

A kindly subscriber sends in the following piece of poetry with a query as to its authorship. Don't know. Don't do you? It goes: "Some men they just like dry. Some men are all liquid in the mind. Some men are absolutely right. Some men are easy feeling but they're so hard to find."

It's a crime to contract a venereal disease in the Soviet Union. And it's a worse crime to spread it. Penalties vary, but they're tough. In the Georgia region, if two years in prison is prescribed for the ordinary case, but anybody convicted of infecting a minor or more than two people generally gets five years.

STRIFEASE
Mrs. Gaska Kop was a professional, stepsize dancer for years in Holland. But business started to fall off in the strip town thereabouts for some unknown reason. And Mrs. Kop got worried. One late night on a radio talk show, she said she'd like to teach housewives to step. Said it would improve their marital relations. Hundreds of letters poured in, asking for lessons. At last report, Mrs. Kop was doing rather well financially, running a step school for unprofessionals.

Who was the first government official of record to set up traffic control regulations?
A: Julius Caesar; I think. He passed a law in old Rome that prohibited women from driving chariots.

What's the living hinge?
A: You must be talking about polypropylene. That's the plastic doctors use to replace damaged heart valves. Note it's spelled "polypropylene."

LIQUOR
Did you realize that the liquor, hereabouts, has 50 per cent of the liquor?

Recently ran a math puzzle here with a surprise in it. Sorry. Correctly, it goes: There was a company of men with seven-ninths of the men in the age group 20 to 30 years, two thirds of the remainder of the men were under 20 years of age, there were 20 men over age 30. How many men were in the entire company? Answer: 470.

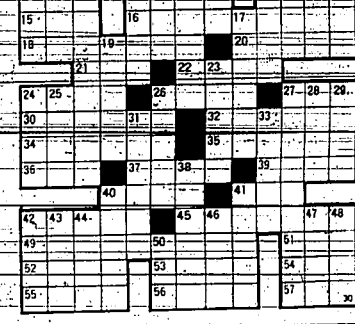

David Hunt was the man who introduced the fortune cookies into this country. Around 1912. That has been reported. Less widely known is the original use of the fortune cookies back in China. Of a social evening, selected Chinese eat around their writing instruments at hand. Each selected one fortune cookie from a central dish. Then each wrote a short essay on the subject in said cookie. These essays were judged at evening's end, and a best writer was named. Quite an honor.

Water salvage controls may pose hardship, North Side group told

SHOSHONE
Implementation of controls for water salvage from basins on Upper Snake River valley may put hardship and expense on irrigation districts and farmers.

Report on the possibility was given to members of the North-Side Communities-In-Action Thursday night meeting in Shoshone.

According to Ben Morgan, executive director of the group, the purpose of the controls is to clear up water in the Snake River through settling ponds, crop rotation and water control.

Spilled crops don't cause erosion, that impedes the quality of water flow back into the Snake River.

Morgan said all canal companies must be under control by 1977 to determine the best way to handle water salvage.

Regulated on the program of water salvage, outlined the history and work done to this point.

toward construction of a new American Falls Dam. "Water rights have been created by cooperation of the whole area. Wagner pointed out and pointed to the reduced storage allowed in the reservoir this time, a cut of 34 percent in all, having a possible disaster effect on farming in the second district of American Falls Reservoir, especially in event of a two-year water shortage."

He said the good timing in rain and storm the past two seasons have saved "the day" so to speak for farmers in this area. But bringing the reservoir back to capacity, which is 1.7 million acre feet, is a necessity for survival of farming in the area.

American Falls Reservoir District No. 4 speculators have 400,000 acre feet of the total amount in the reservoir. Wagner said.

The Bureau of Reclamation will not approve an amount of water to be stored in the reservoir to be increased to capacity until it is repaired.

and hearings determined that construction of a new dam was the best route to follow. Wagner said.

Goals is to have the new dam in operation by 1976 and at that time the storage would again be back to normal.

Financing will be through a bond-selection by shareholders by sale of power over a four-year period to Idaho Power Co. at a cost of $19 million and through the $850,000 government allotment.

All speculators are now under special levy based on the space they have in the reservoir and the money being used for preliminary work.

A number of speculators have expressed concern over this excessive amount of preliminary work.

After the new reservoir is completed, it will then be turned over to the Bureau of Reclamation for maintenance.

Wagner said a new bridge is being built at the reservoir site at this time at a cost of $1.5 million.

and the business meeting. President James Muffley, Gooding, reported Blaine County has appropriated over $30,000 and has begun work on improving its section of the roadway into West Magic Reservoir.

Merie Hanna reported on success of the membership drive for the Hupert Chamber of Commerce, and on dedication of the new chamber building.

John McKenzie reported on work toward rail service through southern Idaho and proposed projects in Shoshone.

Ben Morgan reported on activity in Wendell, stating another bond election for a school gymnasium is being held. He said the improvement projects are underway. Bill Lucke reported on an active chamber of commerce in Gooding.

Special delegates will be in charge of the April 25 meeting to be held in Shoshone at the Manhattan Cafe.

ZCBJ officers

ZCBJ lodge tie for Czech populace

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News Writer

BUHL — They still refer to other nationalities as "Americans" yet they are one of the standard cornerstones upon which this country has thrived.

"They" are members of a long-time group in the Buhl area of Czech descent. Most of the older people came to the United States as small children with their parents; others as youths seeking their own fortune.

Now, their children have grown, often married "Americans" of different ethnic background and many no longer live here. But, no matter where the descendants of these Czech settlers live, they still have one common tie — the ZCBJ Lodge.

The lodge, long known nationally as the Western Bohemian Fraternal Association, in recent years has changed its name to remove the word "Bohemian" and to give emphasis to its membership in a nation.

Mrs. Joe Kucera, lodge president, she points out the area in central Europe known as Bohemia, which was once populated by migrating tribes known as gypsies and the term Bohemians evolved since part of the country was once called Bohemia.

"We don't appreciate having people think we're gypsies," she laughed. Modern Czechs know as many school children as any school child knows, is composed of several provinces or states, each with its own customs and dialect. So even though the Buhl lodge members are Czechoslovakians, some have roots in Slovakia or Moravia.

The national lodge was begun in the midwest in the late 19th century, when European immigration was at its height, to provide moral support for the new immigrants in an alien land.

They needed the fellowship derived from meeting where their own language was spoken among their own kind.

The lodge also provided, and still does, a practical advantage in the form of insurance protection for the struggling new immigrants. It is this aspect of the ZCBJ lodge which probably will attract the attention of those who have not yet come.

Mrs. Oldrich Cetka, who says her husband's last name means bird, reports the Buhl lodge began in the fall of 1920 when there were an estimated 120 Czech families still farming in the Buhl area. The lodge still has close to 300 persons on its membership roster, but primarily because of the insurance protection.

Many parents or grandparents take out policies for the children when they are born and even though these children now have grown and settled, they retain their membership because of the insurance benefits.

The local lodge no longer conducts all the varied type of activities it used to, but the members who still live here, how all retired and living in town, still gather. For the monthly potluck dinner at 8 p.m. the second Sunday of each month.

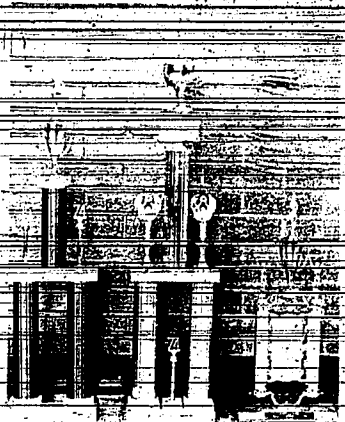

The dinner is followed by a business meeting and then members play pinchic, complete with prizes. Usually there are four or five tables in play.

There used to be a literary club as well as the lodge. Mostly the same people belonged to both groups, but some who could not qualify for the lodge insurance and were thus ineligible for membership only in the literary club.

Both groups once met in a hall in the Fairview district, and after the demise of the literary club the lodge met there until about twenty years ago. Members now rent the Lincoln Courts meeting room for this

TFHS boasts 'best of show' award

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls High School drill team captured the top trophy in the regional competition.

Thirty teams from Idaho and Utah participated in the Intermountain Drill Team competition held in Idaho Falls.

Drill team competition was divided in three categories. Twin Falls took second in the large school, large team division — over 400 students and 24 or more team members. First place went to Skyline High School, Idaho Falls.

Three special awards were presented by the vote of judges and the 30 team advisers, with any team eligible. Besides taking the best of show title, the Twin Falls team drill was judged "Most Original." The prize for the "Most Congenial" team went to Rigby High School. Twin Falls took the "Most Congenial" award last year.

Competition began with a parade, followed by two drill sessions in the afternoon and evening.

About 2,500 spectators attended the event, which was hosted by Skyline and Idaho Falls high schools.

Fifty-four drill team members out of the total Twin Falls membership of 71 competed. The drill performed was a revised version of the Christmas drill used during the basketball season. Music was provided by the pep band under the direction of Richard Thorne.

The Twin Falls performance was rewarded with a standing ovation by spectators and other drill teams, according to participants.

Friday before the competition, the drill team was honored in a special recognition assembly for its performances and school support this year. Mary Almquist and Mary Otto, drill team sponsors, said.

Mrs. Almquist said of the team, "It affords girls an opportunity to participate in performance competitions. It is an activity where girls can gain recognition and work as a team."

Belonging to the drill team builds discipline, companionship and self-confidence in the girls, Miss Otto said.

Both teachers hope that successes like the drill team's will result in continued recognition and support for girls' activities from the school, school administration and community. In the past, girls' programs have lacked the attention granted boys' activities, the teachers feel.

Participating in the drill team takes time and energy, the sponsors said. The girls practiced almost every day, attended football and basketball games, worked on fund raising and costumes, said Miss Otto.

The girls paid for all their expenses on the Idaho Falls trip, except transportation. Buses were donated by the Twin Falls School District.

This year is the second that Twin Falls has competed. Winners of three show trophies, the team topped the field in number of awards won.

Lodge provides many activities

The lodge in a very real sense, provided all the social amenities the Czech families had — it was where they went for their good times, they met their future mates and today it still provides the fellowship grown even more important through years of sharing a commonality.

The lodge members used to hold many dances and each winter they would "produce" three plays which were attended by the entire community even though they were given in the native language. As are all the meetings.

"We never heard of babysitters," Cejka recalls. Many times there would be as many children dancing as adults.

All the special days of the year occasioned special programs, such as Mother's Day and Father's Day. Members used to go to the cemetery on Memorial Day with the girls all dressed in white. The boys—just often was given at funerals, also in the native language.

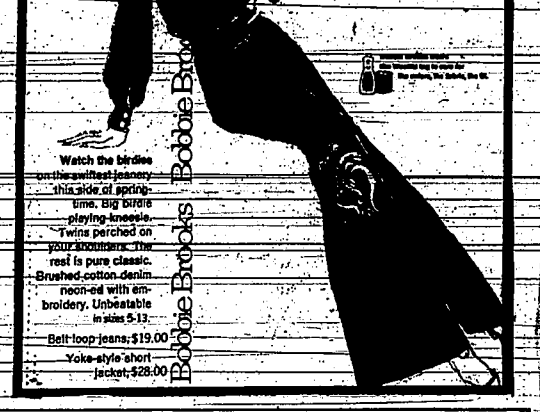

Mrs. Cejka has served as president for 24 years because no one else will take it and Mrs. Kucera also has held office for some years. Her husband has held all the offices. He joined the lodge in 1910 in Saratoga, Iowa.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Paul and I decided not to get married until after he had his Army duty behind him, so he enlisted and ended up in Germany for a year.

When he came back he told me that while he was in Germany he had fallen in love with a girl named Gisela, but the minute he saw me again he realized that I was the one he loved, so we took up where we left off and made plans to marry.

Later I found out that up until a month before Paul and I got married, he was still hearing from Gisela. He called her long distance a few times and even sent her money and tried to arrange for her to come over here.

Marriage hurt by prejudice

After we were married he broke off all contact with Gisela, and everything turned out fine, but I still see with a problem. Now every time I hear the name Gisela I go into a violent rage. Also I hate everything German. I won't let my husband walk anything German on TV and I won't even have a German chocolate cake in the house. If I hear the word "German" on the TV, I turn off the program. I'm afraid if I don't get over this hating everything German I'll drive my husband crazy and ruin my marriage. Any advice?

HURT IN CHICAGO

DEAR HURT: You're lucky you don't live in Germantown, Pa.—You'd have to move. Your jealousy is understandable, but it's become obsessive. Further, your prejudice against an entire nation is unfair and childish, so put aside your anti-German attitude. If you don't, your marriage will be kaput.

DEAR ABBY: I am almost ashamed to be writing this, but you are my last hope.

I am a 44-year-old businessman who has to take a plane occasionally, and my problem is my terrible fear of flying. I have to take about three real stiff drinks before I can get on a plane.

I don't like to arrive at my destination half-plastered, but I usually do. I am not ordinarily a drinking man, but it's the only way I can face a flight.

Do the airlines have any program or course for people like me? If they don't, they should have because I can't be the only person with this problem.

NO BIRD

DEAR NO: I inquired of several major airlines, and there's no such program in existence. But if you will tell the stewardesses about your problem when you board, they'll give you special attention. It's worth a try. She's trained to provide the passengers with more than coffee, tea or milk.

DEAR ABBY: Is it true that you make Jewish jokes?

NOSEY:

DEAR NOSEY: Yup. And a Jewish MOTHER, too!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69709, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

... fifty million kilowatt hours a year!

Your comments or questions are invited. Call your local manager or write: Public Information Department, Idaho Power Company, Box 70, Boise, Idaho 83721.

Idaho Power Company

A CITIZEN WHEREVER IT SERVES

Some fifty hospitals and nursing homes served by Idaho Power Company are using a total of more than fifty million kilowatt hours of electricity in a year's time. That's the equivalent of the energy required for all of the homes within the cities of Blackfoot, Idaho, and Ontario, Oregon, combined.

Normally we tend to think of hospital electric use in terms of X-ray machines and other highly technical equipment. Certainly such uses are numerous, whether it be for incubators or respirators, or for cardiac monitors or other sophisticated devices employed in today's constantly improving medical care.

In addition are some of the more mundane uses of Reddy Kilowatt's services such as cooking, refrigeration, air conditioning and water heating. Several health care institutions also have electric heat, because it's so clean and temperatures can be so effectively controlled.

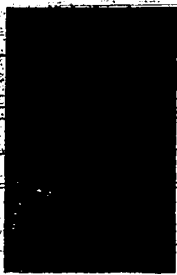

Meanwhile new health facilities are being built and existing facilities expanded. Electronic devices are being installed to take advantage of technical refinements. People concerned with the protection of your health are using more and more electricity. And they rightfully expect that it will be there when they need it.

It's another among the many reasons we need to keep your electric supply healthy.

The human heart does enough work each day to lift the 110 in a body a mile straight up.

Thomas Graham, the first postmaster of Bly, Ohio, named the town, explaining he "saw (took) the name out of the air" as being short and easy to remember.

Valley comment . . .

QUESTION: Is the gas shortage affecting your vacation plans?

Becky Daise, Buhl: "No, because I'm flying, where I'm going. It's in Alabama and I'm only going to be there a few weeks. I know some friends that are kind of having to watch where they're going to see if there's fuel."

Shirley Simon, Fairfield: "Really, we hadn't even thought about a vacation. We're farmers and we don't really think about vacationing in summer. We've already taken a trip this winter for about a week and we didn't have any problem getting gas when we went, but we thought about it all the time."

Robert Loper, Mobile, Ala.: "I just made a trip up from Alabama . . . and the only place we had a bit of trouble was in Alabama. I'm going to drive back. I can't afford to fly."

Merle Peck, Bountiful, Utah: "Yes, first thing, the vehicle uses too much gasoline. Outside of that you can get gasoline if you're willing to pay the price. I'm leaving April first for vacation and I'm going to drive that gas burning pickup."

Tom Stanglee, Twin Falls: "I'm still going . . . to Miami. I've already got my reservations confirmed. People can make adjustments. If they can't adjust to the way of life, they might as well have it up. There's nothing they can do about it."

Jean Stacy, Twin Falls: "No, we usually go to the mountains. We usually don't make our plans till the last moment. I really don't think there's the fuel shortage they say there is."

B. A. Smith, Twin Falls: "If gas gets to where we can't get any it will, otherwise, I'll be up in Canada again this year. That's beautiful country for summer. Canada's got gas, they've been shipping it down, so I'd think it'd be a good place to be this summer."

Juann Thaxton, Twin Falls: "Well, let's put it this way. We are having to put back a definite amount of money to make sure we can go because money talks and that's what says we've got there plenty of money. We just hope the gas is there."

Shoots from poinsettia nothing serious

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

What happens when a poinsettia sends out green shoots from the top or sides?

It's nothing serious — call it "vegetative" growth. You can start new plants by taking these tips and rooting them in plain tap water. Right now, dropping of leaves is a common complaint. Blame it on poor light, high temperature, too much water or not enough.

In May, cut the plant back to within four inches of the pot, and start more new ones from the tops you cut out.

In warm weather the plant is set outdoors, pot and all. Keep it watered until fall, when it's brought indoors. During the summer months be sure to give the pot a twist or turn once every two or three weeks, to break off roots which grow through the pot hole.

SPROUTING SUNBLOWER SEEDS — Removing hulls from sunflower seeds is a half-of-a-job. These seeds are healthier if eaten raw, and one way to get around the problem of hulling them, is to sprout them.

It's simple. You can buy screw tops with screens in which fit over your glass jars or nut jars. Be careful of seed in a quart jar, cover with water, and let stand for two or three hours. Pour off the water. About four times a day, rinse them with water. In keeping them damp, keep them covered with cloth and a rather warm spot, such as a cupboard under the sink. After about a week to 10 days they are ready to eat.

The shells either fall off, or can be easily pulled off. They're soft, and it wouldn't do any harm if you ate the remains of the hulls. Sun flower sprouts make a delicious salad. The seeds must be at least six months old to sprout. If you can't find a screen, put a piece of cheese cloth over the top with a rubber band.

WATERING HOUSE PLANTS — A reader tells us

that a meat baster is wonderful for watering seedlings and small house plants. Another reader recommends saving old newspapers and using them for growing around house plants. It keeps weeds down, holds moisture in and improves the soil texture for the next year. She covers them with soil to hold the shoots in place.

WHY PLANTS LEAVE — Some people really burn their plants up with fertilizers. If plants aren't doing well, it doesn't necessarily mean they need feeding.

Plant foods are not a cure-all for everything, and are not a substitute for good culture. Often too much feeding will cause concentration of salts (includes potassium, calcium, nitrates, phosphate, sulfates and chlorides) to build up in the soil. The college term "soluble iron" found in the soil and which dissolves easily in water. Too many salts damage the roots, cause chlorosis (yellowing of foliage) with leaf burn ("necrosis"), stunting, slow growth of seedlings or cuttings, and actual death of the plant.

Here's how a plant gets too many salts:

(1) Heavy doses of fertilizer. Use liquid plant foods. Light infrequent applications are better than heavy doses.

(2) High concentrations of salts in the water supply.

(3) Poor drainage or plugged drainage holes.

If you see "white" salts on surface of your soil, loosen up the soil with tines of a fork and wash the salts back down in water. Call this "leaching," an effective method of reducing high salts. It simply means watering the soil heavily now and then — repeat in a half hour. The first watering dissolves the salts; the second flushes them from the soil. The water which is thinnest out can be reused — a round-up your evergreens or shrubs.

INDOOR LIGHTS — Those who grow plants under fluorescent lights remember a 40 watt fluorescent bulb gives more light than a 100 watt incandescent one.

Shoots from poinsettia nothing serious

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
 What happens when a poinsettia sends out green shoots from the top or sides? It's nothing serious — call it "vegetative" growth. You can start new plants by taking these tips and rolling them in plain tap water. Right now, drooping leaves is a common complaint. Blame it on poor light, high temperature, too much water or not enough.
 In May, cut the plant back to within four inches of the pot, and start more new ones from the tops you cut out.
 In warm weather the plant is set outdoors, pot and all. Keep it watered until fall, when it's beneath indoors. During the summer months be sure to give the pot a twist or turn once every two or three weeks, to break off nodes which grow through the pot hole.
SPROUTING: SUNFLOWER
 S.R.D. — removing nuts from sunflower seeds is a hull job. These seeds are healthier if eaten raw, and one way to get around the problem of hulling them; is to sprout them.

 It's simple. You can buy screw tops with screens in, which fit over your glass mason or fruit jars. Put a cupful of seed in a quart jar, cover with water, and let stand for two or three hours. Pour off the water. About four times a day, rinse them with water, to keep them damp. Keep them covered with cloth and a rubber-worm sock, stuck in a cupboard under the sink. After about a week to 10 days they are ready to eat.
 The shells either fall off, or can be easily pulled off. They're soft and it wouldn't do any harm if you ate the remains of the hulls. Sun flower sprouts make a delicious salad. The seeds must be at least six months old to sprout. If you can't find a screen, put a piece of cheese cloth over the top with a rubber band.
WATER-ING - HOUSE PLANTS — A reader tells us that a meat baster is wonderful for watering seedlings and small house plants. Another reader recommends saving old newspapers and using them for a mulch around tomatoe plants. It keeps weeds down, holds moisture in and improves the soil texture for the next year. She covers them with soil to hold the sheets in place.

WHY PLANTS LEAVE — Some people really burn their plants up with fertilizers. If plants aren't doing well, it doesn't necessarily mean they need feeding.
 Plant foods are not a cure-all for everything, and are not a substitute for good culture. Often too much feeding will cause concentration of salts (includes potassium, calcium, nitrate, phosphate, sulfates and chlorides) to build up in the soil. The college term "soluble salts" refers to the particles (ions) found in the soil and which dissolve easily in water. Too many salts damage the roots, cause chlorosis (yellowing of foliage) wilting, leaf burn ("necrosis"), stunting, slow growth, of seedlings or cuttings, and actual death of the plant. Here's how a plant gets too many salts.

 (1) Heavy doses of fertilizer. Use liquid plant foods. Light infrequent applications are better than heavy doses.
 (2) High concentrations of salts in the water supply.
 (3) Poor drainage or pinged drainage holes.
 If you see white salts on surface of your soil, loosen up the soil with times of a fork and wash the salts back down in.

INDOOR LIGHTS — Those who grow plants under fluorescent lights remember a 40 watt fluorescent bulb gives more light than a 100 watt incandescent one.

Variety of sinks calls for plans

When you select your kitchen sink you will be confronted with a variety of colors, sizes and number of bowls and materials from which to choose.

Because of its relative low cost, porcelain enamel on cast iron has been the most widely used. The best, stain-resistant, porcelain enamel on cast iron sink has generally been found only in mid-expensive kitchens.

Stainless steel sinks, which are easier to install because they are lighter and have a self-rim, are quite popular. These days, even though there have been reports that they are noisy, scratch easily, and show finger marks.

Criteria given on comfort

How to stay warm and comfortable at 88 degrees is the problem facing most Americans today.

Wearing a sweater or even thermal underwear is one solution, but according to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, some slight changes in the location of heating outlets may reduce discomfort regardless of the temperature.

Comfort is a subjective feeling and varies from person to person. Nevertheless, there are certain criteria which are accepted as standards. For example, people seem most comfortable if there is a minimum difference in temperature between the floor and the ceiling.

Tests conducted at the University of Illinois concluded that hydronic (hot water) baseboard heating panels, when installed on all outside walls, especially under windows, are particularly effective in reducing temperature differences between floors and ceilings.

Also, the baseboard panels act as a barrier against the cold drafts when they are installed on the perimeter of the house.

TE man builds his own home

AIRY LIVING room of the Brian Clark home, at 314 Wendell, Twin Falls, features a fireplace, beamed ceiling and an upper level deck to bedrooms and a family room with a fireplace. Clark built the home almost entirely by himself. He is a marriage counselor and he and his wife Susan have two children.

Spring brings home improvement

TWIN FALLS — With the first warm days of spring Magic Valley residents begin to think in terms of home improvement.

Spring brings a lift to winter-dulled spirits and quickens the energy necessary for all those cleanup, fix-up projects around the home.

Officials in all city halls in the valley report a brisk upswing in building permits. Homeowners are seeking authority to begin new construction, remodeling and additions to existing structures.

The sale of carpets, draperies, paint and wallpaper are up, and before summer arrives the interiors of many valley homes will have a new look.

Home exteriors will not be left out in the planned improvements. With warmer weather the sale of shrubs, trees, bulbs, etc., are up at nurseries in the area.

New looks will soon be seen all over Magic Valley.

Now's time for air conditioning

If you're thinking of installing central air conditioning, you'll be ahead of the game if you call your contractor well before hot weather. The Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute says that most installing contractors are busiest during the hot weather months.

The two keys to obtaining a good cooling system, says ARI, are: (1) purchasing "certified" equipment and (2) using a qualified contractor.

Certified central air conditioning equipment gives the consumer an assurance that his equipment is accurately rated, will operate accurately, and has been sound rated. Certified equipment, says ARI, displays the blue and white ARI Seal for unitary and sound certification.

But certified equipment should be properly installed, and this is where the qualifications of the installing contractor come into play. To calculate the size and kind of air conditioning that will serve you best, an expert contractor will study your home carefully.

He will consider a long list of factors: its orientation to the sun, its size, floor plan, construction, amount of glass area, landscaping and the size of your family.

Man-made stone

THIS fireplace is the focal point in the new home of Gordon and Camille Beckstead, two and one-half miles west of Twin Falls. It is constructed of man-made stone with a gray slate hearth. The fireplace is equipped with a gas jet for easy fire starting. Looking north from the room in which the fireplace is located the Becksteads have a spectacular view of Rock Creek Canyon.

Inviting kitchen

A KITCHEN view of the Gordon Beckstead home shows the cabinets all hand made by the builder, George Menel. The home has living room, four bedrooms, three baths, music room and complete basement with family room in addition to the kitchen and dining areas near the fireplace. Beckstead is a certified public accountant and he and his wife Camille have five children.

Youth change styles

Who started the rumor that young people today have lost interest in acquiring furnishings and decorating their homes, choosing instead to live free of possessions?

It's not really so, say students of the young-adult scene. While it's true that the young aren't buying crystal chandeliers—if they ever did—they have simply redefined what they mean
by furnishing a home.
But they're acquiring things all right, and living happily with them, even if it's now called "creating an environment."

And in the process, a whole new design look has developed, involving lots of pattern cheerfully mixed, colorless, sleek, and underfurnished—comfort and a front-and-center-stage spot for hobbles and interests, including music, hand-crafts and art.

Pattern—in fabric and carpet—is often popular with the newly-settled young. They use it both as a kind of art, and as a way of distinguishing themselves from other furnishings.

A case in point is Barbara's living room, called "Antfon." Nylon, called Navajo, in a vivid color scheme in terra-cotta, blue, brass and green, in a young custom living room.

Cut to large rug area, the carpet is treated like a panel on the floor. It acts as a dramatic focal point for the conversation area, circled—and makes a lively contrast to the boldly patterned chairs.

The stark, white stucco wall provides an ideal background for the warm colors and pattern interactions, giving a cozy, lived-in feeling with no sense of being boxed-down with unnecessary "things."

In-line with young ideas, look for the easy-care aspect of Navajo.

Thanks to the "Antfon" ruler, specially constructed to make soil less visible, the carpet retains its fresh, new look through vigorous family use, and cleans up quickly and easily when needed.

Disney Special
HOLLYWOOD (CBS) Ron
Buzzi will be guest-stars on Sandy Duncan's April special,
"Sandy in Disneyland."

Improving home better way to modern life

The national concept of home ownership appears to have achieved a maturity over the years that opens the way to a better life for more families through improvement of their existing properties.

As Edgar W. Hall, Executive Director of the National Home Improvement Council, an organization with chapters almost everywhere in the United States, points out:

"The home owner of not so many years ago parted begrudgingly with a few hundred dollars to keep his home in good repair."

"But now, home owners look upon outlays of money which may amount to much more, as an investment in better living."

In addition, it is generally recognized that money spent for home improvements in the modern sense — which means up-dating — does pay for itself in insurance and their facilities for living — can contribute substantially to the value of a property.

Thus, should a time come when the owner may want to or have to dispose of the home, it is going to be a lot more marketable than it might have been without improvements.

Impressive total — All this accounts for the fact that an estimated $17 million a year is now being put into home improvements by more owners of existing homes.

Their objectives are made easier to achieve by an industry that has innovated new materials, by contractors who have extended their capacities and skills beyond the basic "fix-up paint-up jobs" to the great new field of home improvement in terms of planning and installing modern new kitchens, luxurious bathrooms,

Yet more assistance is available to the home owner who finds the opportunity through the development of an exciting variety of power tools to actively engage in making many home improvements by his own hands.

In fact, the advancing skills of many do-it-yourselfers, further assisted by the new materials now on the market, have granted them freedom in making bird houses and installing storage shelves, to artisans in their own right, able to execute their own original ideas.

The considerable variety of do-it-yourself wall board decorative paneling and tile, available from building supply stores, come to mind here.

Yes, the day is here when the home worker at his "workshop" fitted out with basic power tools, by the head of the home, may no longer be considered completely equipped.

Apartment department — The advancing skills of the do-it-yourselfers, and they now include many women as well as men, spill over into the apartment house. Whether the apartments are condominiums, cooperatives or just rented, there are many opportunities for improvements, the do-it-yourselfer can accomplish to reflect the personality and enhance the way of life for the occupants.

For the individual home owner there are overwhelming reasons why home improvement should go beyond the essential need for maintaining the property in good condition by making repairs as required by wear and tear and the weather.

Among these reasons is one that is social in its significance, economic in its importance.

Not at all unique is the widespread interest on the part of many people in good homes that have been allowed to — that have stood the test of family life. The only other requirement of these people is that such homes be "up-to-date" in appearance and in built-in facilities — the one step with modern living.

Keep pace — Obsolete the home that has kept pace with its trend is going to be — let men marketable.

Among such homes are the ones that come on the market when the children have grown up and moved away to make a home of their own.

Similarly, the mobility of young couples with one or more children — young couples on the way up who find it necessary to move from city to city as they advance in their careers — could utilize a market for "invest in homes. They will want the most modern up-dated homes they can find.

And in reverse — these same young couples, who may have already acquired a home in the city from which they are moving, will be better off when it comes to disposing of it, if the home they are leaving has been improved up-dated to the moment of their departure.

The concept of home improvement opens wide the opportunity for a new and improved way of life for all families — to serve some practical need.

Lighting not costly, gives high rewards

The correct lighting plan for safety and efficiency often is overlooked by the remodeler.

Yet lighting is probably the least expensive part of a remodeling project, offering a wide range of the home owner or apartment dweller.

Safety, convenience and fashion — these are the big three words to remember when approaching lighting problems. A minor consideration is ease of cleaning and maintenance. Dirt and dust can cut light by as much as 50 percent.

Fashion is highly important because your lighting fixtures and lamps should complement the other furnishings of the room.

Thomas Industries, leading producer of residential lighting fixtures and lamps, suggests this checklist for evaluating your lighting needs.

LIVING ROOM — These living areas are becoming increasingly for decorative accent. A chandelier or ceiling fixture should be chosen to coordinate with the room. Lamps provide illumination for specific areas.

For subtle, decorative illumination, downlights may be used. Recessor bulbs may be recessed into the ceiling along one wall, bathing light on a particular decorative wall, such as brick or stone, or emphasizing an arrangement of pictures.

Track lighting offers complete desirability, providing even the opportunity to achieve function and accent lighting. Track lighting is a concept of recessed light that can be as flexible as the imagination.

Recessed surface mount or in-polehead pendant units. Because movable, adjustable track systems can be selected, angled and pointed in any direction, or grouped for every functional design effect.

They have applications for every room in the house.

BATH — For safety, take the bath must have clear, strong light. There should be one ceiling fixture recessed or surface mounted.

A cabinet mirror should be flanked on either side by fixtures. Recessed or dimmable, free, glare-free light, if the mirror is wall-mounted, should be a minimum of shielded lamp.

KITCHEN — There should be one general lighting fixture for every 50 square feet of space.

Task lighting should include wall or cabinet-mounted fixtures for every three feet of counter space.

The sink and range areas should be lit by wall-mounted track fixtures located 14 to 22 inches above the appliance to direct light downward on work areas.

BEDROOM — Overhead lighting fixture and wall switch by the door. Grouping for lamps in the dark is hazardous. Lamps are appropriate for accent and reading.

Large bedrooms may use either a large ceiling fixture or an off-center suspended fixture, plus recessed wall lighting.

RECREATION ROOM —

A pull down fixture or lamp is advised over a game table or conversation center. Recessed lighting with dimmer switch is another idea.

All of the lighting suggestions discussed here may be viewed as "finishes" lighting and decorating centers where a lighting consultant is available to make specific recommendations for your remodeling project.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The old farm subsidy system with acreage restrictions and government purchases to keep prices up was ended Aug. 10, 1974. The program set market prices for wheat, feed grains and cotton, and farmers would get what farmers would get and when prices fell below the target, it was felt farmers would plant more to meet food shortages, with current high prices, the program would cost taxpayers nothing. The World Almanac says.

Room planner helps in happier arrangements

For those who long to be do-it-yourself decorators, trying to plan and arrange furniture has been like driving country roads without a map — hit or miss all the way. At last, there's a solution: a new large scale magnetic room planner which can be found in furniture department stores and is used by many apartment and householders around the country.

The new system, called TRON Room Planner, was developed by TRON, a former interior decorator who has researched consumer buying problems for the past 4 years.

She found that most people have trouble picturing how the room will look. They don't know where to put furniture, to buy or how to lay it out.

Room arrangement and furniture sizes account for a great portion of all decorating mistakes.

The large scale (1 inch equals 1 foot) is 16 times the size of conventional room planners and you don't have to be a decorator or drafting engineer or fumble with little pieces of paper to professionally plan your room.

You can really visualize how "it" will look finished as it depicts the main articles and squares placed from an airplane as old time diagrams.

There are 187 plastic magnetic forms representing furniture of all shapes and sizes. Simply bring your room measurements to the store, draw it on the planning board and "try on" furniture instead of planning.

Some decorating advice:
A. Don't make enemies with your best friend by letting her help you unless she's been successful as an amateur decorator with a few others than just herself.

Always go to the store and seek the advice of a professional sales person or decorator (they really don't bite and are usually fever).

B. Never measure the room with a cloth tape, use folding coils and stick-on stretch tape.

C. Indicate location and measure, height, depth, width, window and door openings.

D. Having someone help you measure makes the job easier and more accurate.

E. Think in terms of how the room can make the difference between "right space" and "not at all."

TRON makes a small version of the room planner for those that have a tight session. It includes 151 1/2 inch scale static magnetic reusable furniture forms and room planning. If not available in your store, it can be ordered direct by sending $2.00 with your name and address to TRON Co., Inc. 12828 S. Ridgeway Ave., Ashli, Ill. 60558

FLOOR-FASHIONS

WALT ANDERSON

COMPROMISE is something we all discuss in major things we buy from homes to cars to appliances. Dad may want a flashy sports car, but compromise on a family wagon because it's more practical. The budget may mean that Mom has to have a smaller refrigerator than she'd like, or settle for practical basics in the family's fall fashions.

Compromise is between style and practicality. And there's a very human tendency to choose what suits us and rather than what's practical. (as car makers know when they stress elegant fables and jazzy wheel covers.)

But there's one place compromise is no longer a practicality... and that's in carpeting. With the amazing advances in man-made fibers, you can choose from many new carpets that are completely practical — and stylish, too.

Want hard wear and a favorite robin's egg blue color? You can have it. Want a fun-looking shag at a modest price? You can have it. Want a luxury plush that won't show soil or will shed stains easily? You can have that, too.

In today's no-compromise world of carpets, come in and look over the happy selection we feature in every price range, from today's leading carpet manufacturers.

How to keep home more comfortable

The dilemma facing many homeowners this summer is whether or not to install air conditioning when its cost of operation is rising steadily.

Is it better to go broke comfortably or to sweat with money in your pocket?

On the other hand, the National Better Heating-Cooling Council says that by following some basic scientific principles we learned in high school, we can make our homes more comfortable.

At the same time we will be conserving valuable energy. Remember, air conditioning consumes as much or more fuel than your automobile.

Light colors reflect heat, dark colors absorb it.

Therefore, on all windows facing west and south install double-faced window shades with the white-faced shade facing out. This will keep the sun and the heat out of the room. Make sure that all windows are open to keep the air circulating.

If yours is a new home and you are having trees planted, the design team says the south and west ends of your property. They will give shade in the summer and let the sun shine through in the winter.

Plant evergreen trees on the north and east to cut down on the winter winds. Your home will be more comfortable, and your fuel consumption will be lower.

Unfinished abode

The carved design of Peruvian Stone is centuries old, but it is now possible to achieve it more easily and inexpensively with new self-adhesive wall panels.

Made of durable dimensional vinyl, these panels are available in a wide range of washable, grease and stain resistant, wipe clean with a damp cloth.

Applied simply by peeling off the backing paper and pressing on wall. Peruvian Stone panels cover up old walls, or cracked, stained

In less than an hour, the average homemaker can change the total appearance of her living room, dining room, kitchen, bedroom, hallway, playroom or any other room in the house.

Latching plays an important role in the visual effect of Peruvian Stone. Simply latch it into a built-in wall door. Bright, angled light turns it into a shadow play of excitement.

Master bedroom wanted

Do you know why most homeowners expand their homes?

Experts in the field of home modernization say that 60 per cent want more sleeping quarters, most frequently a master bedroom with bath.

Another 15 per cent want more play or leisure space, and the remaining 25 per cent want additional living space for general family use.

No matter what its use, a primary necessity for year-round enjoyment of the new area is to expand the home heating system. According to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, when heating is included in the plans from the outset, it will cost far less than if it has to be added later on.

If the home is presently equipped with hydronic (modern hot water) heating, the job is simplified. Most existing hydronic boilers usually have enough capacity to take on the extra heating load of a new room.

Also, hydronic systems use finger-size flexible tubing to connect baseboard heating panels from one room to another. This usually eliminates the need to tear down walls or rip up floors or other extensive alterations in the home.

It is easily installed and neatly concealed by "snaking" it through stud and joist spaces in the walls and floors.

On July 20, 1969, U.S. astronaut Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin, Jr. became the first men to land on the moon.

JEAN PAUL GETTY
quiet donation

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q: We've heard how millionaire Jean Paul Getty scribbles along and wondered if he ever gives anything to charity. — H. O. O., Oklahoma City, Okla.

A: Getty has donated money quietly to a number of worthy causes. His latest gift was a $50,000 prize to be given to the best effort to preserve the world's wildlife. We've also heard from a close and reliable source that despite his denials, it actually was Jean Paul Getty who provided the ransom money for his grandson.

Q: Will we ever get to see the movie Shirley MacLaine made in Red China? — K.L., Newport, R.I.

A: Shirley has edited the 15 hours of film down to feature length and is showing it on the TV networks. She's going back to the cameras. Film festival. Shirley didn't ask about gross national product and crops. She asked about marriage, money and sex. What did she discuss? — MIMI. I don't think anybody's really interested in sex in China. We had a sexualist in our group and she told me China had the lowest sexual anxiety level of any place ever visited. She is happy place — but, totally sexless. I didn't think about sex the whole time I was there. Though I often thought about the fact that I wasn't thinking about it.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: Why did Ross Kennedy call her book "Woman's Day" instead of one of the more prestigious women's magazines? Because of the matriarch of the Kennedy clan wanted the story of how she raised her children to be the masses so it might be seen by the average wife and mother who probably would never buy the book itself.

ROSE KENNEDY

For the masses

IS SHE OR ISN'T SHE?
Columnists everywhere report Ali MacGraw's Mrs. Steve McQueen is expecting a baby but Ali declares she isn't now.

Ali has she been pregnant in her marriage to Steve. She is reading scripts like crazy looking for the perfect movie role since she had a contract for two or three years? — W. A. N.Y., N.Y.

QUESTION YOU DIDN'T ASK: Did New York City officials have a look at the new Charles Bronson script for "Deathwish" before they gave Paramount license of that great cooperation? The movie is about a man whose wife is killed and child is brain damaged by muggers. He starts a one-man vigilante squad killing muggers and encouraging other citizens to do the same. We predict that the fur is going to fly when this movie comes out next month.

Q: Would you answer one final question about Sally Quinn? I know CBS wanted to dump her, but how did they finally do it since she had a contract for two or three years? — W. A. N.Y., N.Y.

A: CBS told Sally they were going to reassign her to Washington, D. C., to do a sort of inquiring reporter job on the streets of the capital. Sally, being a little overqualified for that job, finally agreed to settle her contract. She is now working at her old stand — Washington Post.

Q: What happened to that wonderful British actor Richard Todd? — G.O., Austin, Tex.

A: Todd quit movies and was a radio performer in England. He recently sold his farm and now has his own theater company in London. Todd divorced his wife of 20 years in 1963 and married the model, 21 years his junior, who was named as correspondent in the divorce. Todd had a son, 21 and a daughter, 18, from his marriage and he and the new Mrs. Todd have a six-month-old baby boy.

THYSELF IN REAR THYSELF: The word around publishing circles is that David Reuben ("Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex") has sold out rather handsomely since his great book success. He seems to feel that he has a lot of enemies and thinks people are not friendly to him.

QUESTION YOU DIDN'T ASK: What is one of the latest theories for our inability to limit world population? Indiana poet and author Don Morae was assumed by the United Nations to do a personal study of world population problems. Morae says that machismo, the concept of male dominance and pride depicted by virility, is probably the biggest single obstacle to a sane population policy.

Q: Is Adele Davis seriously ill or will she recover? — H.F., Portland, Ore.

A: The famed nutritionist is suffering a painful form of bone cancer usually thought to be fatal. Adele says the late English author Agatha Christie told her the good uses of 1500 mg. of painful-kill-thickness, so she plans to see her way out while tripping. The report is that lots of cancer communitarians have been sending Adele the drug.

chickens yes, eggs no

Q: I saw Pearl Bailey doing a chicken commercial and thought she was fabulous. Is she going to do more TV ads? — S. J., Salem, Ore.

A: Well, Pearl Mae was going to do a Playtex ad but she didn't want to be fitted with age of the products and didn't want to read the lines as written, preferring to deliver the commercial in her own inimitable style. The bra ads are now back on the drawing boards.

Q: Do Jane and her brother Peter Fonda agree on things? — K.O., Portland, Ore.

A: On some things they agree, but here is Peter in wild disagreement with Jane: "My sister says power to the people. I say to hell with the people. We're all violent, insane and pathological. People do it all the time. People are dummys. This whole mess we're in has been brought about by people."

Robin Adams Sloan welcomes questions from readers. While Sloan cannot provide individual answers, questions of general interest will be used in the column. Write to Robin Adams Sloan, care of this newspaper.

won't tell all

Q: Have you heard anything about a tell-all book that Lee Radziwill is writing about herself and her sister Jacqueline Onassis? — E.T., Waukegan, Ill.

A: Lee is working on her memoirs now and they're scheduled to be published by Delacorte next spring. The book actually writes her Lou's memoir, will be a reminiscence filled with letters and photographs, but certainly not an expose. Ms. Radziwill will work with editor Eleanora Friede — a neighbor in the Thompsons and friend of Truman Capote, who introduced them. Ms. Friede discovered Jonathan Livingston Seagull so it looks as though Lee is in reputation handy.

Q: Have Mary Tyler Moore and her husband filed for a divorce? — I know they separated. — P. M.D., Youngstown, Ohio.

A: They may reconcile or annul. Right now they're doing the usual thing for often in out-of-the-way Los Angeles district.

Blacking out craze like Russian roulette

Dear Dr. Thosteson: One of the spare time activities in the form of a boarding school here is self-inflicted blacking out. It's done by using a sock or scarf twisted tightly around the neck cutting down blood circulation. blackout occurs. This must certainly be harmful and injurious to brain cells. Please comment. P.B.

I'm always of two minds about mentioning this and variation of it because of putting heads into unthinking heads. But I think I'd be ever more wrong in NOT warning against such tricks.

They are potential killers. The tightened scarf not only cuts off circulation to the brain, which in itself is damaging, but can put enough pressure on the carotid sinuses in the neck to stop the heart. It is as foolish as playing Russian roulette with a loaded revolver.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please send me the booklet on "The Way to Stop Constipation." Enclosed find 25 cents and a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Also, is it okay to have a banana every day? I've had one every day for years. — E.K.B.

No harm. They are very nutritious. No connection with constipation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Does washing your hair affect you when you are on your period? My mother won't let me and my hair gets so greasy. — D.W.

Will this whiskey-old prejudice never die? No, it won't hurt you in any way to wash your hair at that time.

It will only serve to keep your hair from getting greasy. If your mother won't believe me, then tell her to ask her physician. Or ask 29 of them if healthy diet which would provide all of the vitamins you'll need to stay healthy. If you're still concerned, have a thorough physical examination and let your doctor tell you whether you need vitamins and how much, and what kind.

Don't become an alphabet freak. "Bad Breath Can Be Corrected" is the title of Dr. Thosteson's booklet explaining the causes and cure of bad breath. For a copy write to him

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By DR. GEORGE THOSTESON

Realistic Remodeling

The National Home Improvement Council cautions the homeowner who expects to recover his investment in home improvement when he sells his present home not to put more money into the remodeling project than he can realistically hope to retrieve.

For example, if a homeowner's house is presently worth $60,000 on the market and his remodeling investment is $25,000, he will most likely not find a buyer for $75,000.

The Council also provides a rule-of-thumb estimate for various remodeling projects. Naturally, costs vary from region to region. Also, the variety of work done under the various classifications and the size of the space affected will influence costs.

Kitchen Remodeling	$2,500 to $6,500
Bathroom Remodeling	$1,500 to $1,800
Adding a Room	$20 to $40 per square foot
Painting Interior	$1.00 to $1.50 per sq. ft.
Re-siding Home	$75 to $150 per sq. ft.
Harding Aluminum Wood	$75 to $150 per 100-square feet
Adding an Outdoor Swimming Pool	$5,000 to $9,000

she chooses. It will be the same answer, go around and wash your hair.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I like to jog. I am 67 years old and I would like to have a little more energy than I have now when I get through jogging.

I would like to take some vitamins if I knew what kind. I notice some of the runners and Bobby Riggs (the tennis player) take vitamins. Could you tell me what kind would be the best for me and how much?

My physical condition is good. I jog two miles in the morning plus two miles in the afternoon, also ride my bicycle and swim.

To begin with, you're asking quite a bit from a 67-year-old body, aren't you? I have no objection to good exercise and I probably could do with a bit more of it myself.

But the simple fact is that, exercise should cease where fatigue begins. Otherwise you are disturbing the whole purpose of exercise, which is, after all, to keep yourself healthy.

Now, as to vitamins. No amount of vitamins is going to alter the fact that you are 67 years old. There is no magic in vitamins. They are not going to halt the normal aging process one whit, all the wild claims notwithstanding.

My advice is to scale down your exercise to reasonable amounts and maintain

Enlarge, beautify bath with storage units

It used to be that the bath was the least decorated room in the house because what could you do with it? Pictures were plain and furniture was simple.

So were towels. And there was no such thing as a bath boutique to provide decorative boxes, bottles and sundries.

Then somebody—several somebodies, in fact—discovered The Bath. They set about making it something other than a Plain Jane.

One of the somebodies was a producer of bath vanities named Williams.

Now, besides vanities, the Rutt-Williams offers all manner of decorative accoutrements to home improvement, including wall cabinets, mirrors, side and pendant lights, linen caddies, hampers, drawers, medicine chests, even towel racks.

Here are some pointers on bath improvement:

Remember that the more you can build in, the more space you can save. And the more you can enclose, the more attractive the room will become.

A tremendous space-saver is a unit that combines laundry hamper with vanity under a single long stretch or counter incorporating either one or two color-matched boxes.

A great plus is the enclosure of plumbing pipes, which are seldom attractive.

Be lavish with lighting and mirrors. Nobody likes to squint while shaving or applying makeup. Or wait for one's mate to clear out in order to enjoy "spring space" at the one minute mirror.

Even in the smallest full bath, there's usually room to space-out to accommodate two.

And in a half-bath, it's generally less than the more space you fill with cabinets, the better you utilize its limited dimensions.

A bath is usually the hardest room in the house to enlarge. Its fixtures are fixed. Its layout is limited by plumbing connections. Its space is restricted by adjacent rooms.

So the best way to enlarge is from within. And that means finding a better way to use whatever square footage is available, wall to wall and ceiling to floor.

When you do shop for space-extenders, take along a floor plan of your bath room as it's currently laid out. Or do the opposite: bring home catalogs with complete cabinetry specifications so you can best suit the new to the old. You'll be amazed at how much counter space you can accomplish, starting with a vanity and planning around it.

Add storage
HERE'S a way to add storage space to a small bath without a wall mount over the toilet. This unit has two closed shelves and one open, plus a galley for shower necessities.

Valet solves problems

Space: No home ever seems to have enough of this precious commodity, so you have to look for and find it.

Finding storage space in a bathroom is a particular problem, since this room is generally difficult to add onto.

Rutt-Williams offers an answer in a new wall valet to mount over the toilet, where wall space is often wasted. Styles—subdued or painted—door above an open shelf, the compact and attractive unit is only 22 inches wide, 9 inches deep and 24 inches high.

A brass or pewter galley rail-in effect adds a top shelf for decorative accessories such as colorful boxes and bottles.

The wall valet is a fine example of easy improvement for an existing bathroom: a unit to keep in mind also if you're planning to carve a half-bath out of a closet or tuck one under the eaves. You'll find it at your neighborhood bath shop.
