The sources said the Syrian delegation will be led by Brig. Hikmat Shihabi, chief of military intelligence, and will include a number of foreign ministry and military officials.

Weicker on Wayne's 'bad guys' list

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-Conn., is on John Wayne's "bad guys" list.

Replying to Weicker's charge that the White House had protected friends of President Nixon, including Wayne, from tax audits, the actor said he has "neither needed nor craved favors from the IRS."

"What I need is protection from cheap politicians like you," Wayne told Weicker.

Miner pension kickbacks told

MEDIA, Pa. (UPI) — Two United Mine Workers union organizers testified today they had pensioned miners kick back money which the state contends was used to pay the hired killers of Joseph A. "Jack" Yablonski.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. John J. Rhodes said in a nationally televised interview Sunday he has a feeling there are not enough House votes to impeach President Nixon, although he hasn't made a count.

Rhodes also said on NBC's Meet the Press he did not think the ruling the President owed $46,000 in back taxes and interest would hurt the chief executive's standing with Congress and the people.

Israeli jet downed over Golan

By United Press International

An Israeli plane went down in flames over the Golan Heights today in the first Israeli air loss since the October war. Israel said it captured its first Syrian prisoner in the current fighting.

Syria said it shot down the Israeli plane, Israel said its loss was from a fire aboard apparently caused by "technical mishap."

Israeli military sources quoted by the national radio said the plane was on a surveillance patrol, checking Syrian troop movements, when its crew radioed at 11:30 A.M. (5:30 P.M. EDT) that it was ablaze.

Arab newsmen in South Lebanon said the Israeli plane crashed in flames in the outskirts of Al Khureiba village, south of Shebshiba in the Marjayoun region four miles from the border with Israel.

The newsmen said the parachutes on the Israeli plane landed nearby and were taken by the Lebanese authorities.

A Syrian communique said Syrian defenses shot down the Israeli plane over the Mt. Hermon region where fighting has been going on for two days. The Israeli military command said the crew bailed out because of a fire aboard and "were seen to have parachuted into Lebanese territory."

The Israeli operational warplane used by Israel with more than one crew member, is the two-seater American-made Phantom jet.

The Israeli announcement said the crew was flying in the vicinity of Mt. Hermon when it was abandoned by its crew as the result of a fire, which broke out, apparently resulting from a technical mishap.

Extensive radio interruptions a news broadcast at 1:15 p.m. (5:15 a.m. EDT) to broadcast a new military communique saying that a formation of Israeli warplanes tried to penetrate Syrian airspace in the Mount Hermon region.

The Israeli command said it used an "power Saturday."

Nixon signs $2 minimum wage bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today signed a bill raising the minimum wage for nearly 57 million Americans to $2 an hour for the first time.

In approving legislation almost identical to a measure he vetoed only seven months ago, Nixon brought under the minimum wage umbrella for the first time to domestic service employes and many workers in chain department stores.

The family was a "technical admission," the administration could not have sustained a veto since approval of the measure by Congress was massive.

The signing was less than a ceremony. No congressional leaders were invited, and the only one present for the historic presidential signature were Labor Secretary Peter Brennan and Nixon's assistant, Kenneth Cole.

In his oval office, Nixon took one pen from a box and signed the front of the bill, then with a flourish slid the pen across the desk to Brennan. Nixon then picked the bill up in his right hand and literally threw it into the out-box on the corner of his desk.

In a written statement issued by the White House, Nixon said he had "some reservations about portions of this legislation," but added:

"On the whole, S274 contains more good than bad and I have concluded that the best interests of the American people will be served by signing it into law."

The basic purpose is to increase the minimum wage for working men and women of this country—deserves the support of all Americans.

The federally legislated minimum wage for most American workers has remained static for six years, despite a number of increases in the cost of living. Raising the minimum wage is now a matter of justice that can no longer be fairly delayed.

The new bill, passed by Congress March 21, raises the minimum wage from $1.60 to $2 an hour. It also increases by 7 million to 36.3 million Americans—the number of workers covered by minimum wage laws.

All indications were that even had Nixon decided to sign the bill its inflationary bite would have been overridden by both the Senate and the House. The votes on passage by both chambers were overwhelming.

For most workers covered, the minimum wage would increase in two more steps to $2.30 in 1976.

TF grocery price increase slows

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls grocery prices rose less than one per cent in March, a much smaller increase than in previous months.

Falling meat prices helped hold local price increases down to eight-tenths of one per cent, the month before prices had risen 2.2 per cent. Prices stood at 127.7 per cent higher than a year ago according to a Times-News survey of 20 typical items at five Twin Falls markets.

During March, staples rose about 3.5 per cent. But the average price of beef was down 6.7 per cent during the month. Bacon fell an average of a dime a pound during the month.

The three-pound package of bacon which now costs an average of $1.24, was priced at an average of $1.89 in late October 1973. Eggs were also down about eight cents a dozen from last month, a decline of 8.2 per cent. Potatoes, which had been rapidly increasing in price the last several months, went up only slightly, about three cents for 10 pounds of russets.

The price of milk rose only slightly, about one cent for a half gallon. But the average price was up to about 84 cents from an average of 75 cents last December.

Sugar, which jumped 29 per cent from October to March, went up again but not so dramatically. For a 16-ounce bag, the price averaged 4 cents more this month, about 16 per cent higher.

Another product which has been slowly increasing for several months, coffee, went up about 50 per cent in price, an average of 13 cents for a two-pound can.

Some old faithful products which haven't gone up in price, the several months, increased slightly. Peanut butter went up an average of three cents, 39 cents for a 12-ounce jar, about a 5.3 per cent increase. One less expensive brand of margarine increased 8.1 per cent, or an average of four cents a pound. And corn flakes increased about 8.5 per cent or three cents for a 12-ounce box of a popular brand.

Household products also went up, with the price of a giant size box of detergent rising about two cents for a popular brand. A 27-ounce bottle of floor wax, steady for several months, went up six cents, or about 5.1 per cent.

Burley man shot

BURLEY — A Burley man was injured in a shooting incident early Sunday morning in a night club here.

Miguel Guzman, 20, was reported in good condition today in the hospital.

Guzman was shot during an altercation with another man at the club, according to Burley police Detective Lt. Pete Rodriguez. Guzman was hit in the right thigh with a .38 caliber bullet.

A warrant has been issued for the arrest of Guzman's assailant.

Fewer cattle in feedlots

Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Squeezed between rising costs and a depressed market, Magic Valley cattle feeders are facing badly.

Feeders say they are losing between $100 and $150 on each head of beef they sell.

And except for a brief period at year's end, the feeder business has been dismal since September, the feeders say.

"Diversification has saved most feeders in the Magic Valley, but in other parts of the closed feedlots are common, according to Twin Falls feeder Ralph Umstead. He says most local feeders have other farming operations which at least partly offset their losses.

Even so, many local feeder reports they have stopped purchasing feeder cattle. Some say if the price does not improve within a couple of months they will be out of business.

"It's doing poor, real poor. It's just a matter of who can last it out," John Yore, of Yore Cattle Co., Gooding, said.

"Our operating expenses pretty near doubled

Meir cabinet totters

TEL AVIV — Premier Golda Meir's month-old coalition government appeared to be on its last legs today as leaders of her Labor Party sought a solution to the country's most severe cabinet crisis in more than a decade.

The future of the 21-member regime will become clear by Thursday when parliament debates the devastating impact of the 1973-74 oil crisis.

Meir's cabinet is the last of the coalition government's "first cabinet" since the 1973-74 oil crisis.

Main target of the political uproar is Defense Minister Moshe Dayan. He has been blamed by Labor Party rivals for not having double-checked the faulty intelligence and tactical decisions taken on the eve of last year's war.

Dayan's foes, believed to include Deputy Premier Yigal Allon and Labor Minister Yitzhak Rabin, have been demanding that he accept "ministerial responsibility" and resign.

Costs, market squeeze MV cattle feeders tightly

In the most expensive years and the price is lower than it was in the last several years, he said.

Yore stopped buying feeder cattle about two months ago and does not plan to buy again until the cost of feed drops or demand forces the price of fat cattle to at least 50 cents a pound.

Fat steers are now 42.5 cents per pound while heifers sell at 42 cents per pound, according to Vern France, co-owner of France Feed Lots in Gooding. This is a decline of 26 per cent from the high fat cattle price of 57 cents per head in late July and August, he said.

On a steer weighing 600 pounds upon coming to the lot and fattened to 1075 pounds, the break even price would be 61 cents per pound, France said. He said the animals going to the feedlot cost 70 cents a pound in late fall and now cost another 50 cents a pound to fatten.

"People essentially are more concerned with buying gas, clothing, and other food items," France said. "They don't have the money to spend." Consumption of beef is down several pounds per person. (Continued on p. 11)

LDS members end conference

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Mormons were urged to strengthen their homes as "places of revelation and inspiration" at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints' 14th annual world conference Sunday in the Salt Lake Tabernacle.

The council was from President Spencer W. Kimball, sustained Saturday as the 12th president of the 3.3 million member church.

Calling upon members to study the scriptures, Kimball noted that men sometimes spend 10 to 20 years to learn a profession or earn a doctor's degree, "yet in a few intermittent prayers and some very hurried hours of research they think they can find the truths about God."

Kimball declared that "above all we have knowledge that God is in his heaven, that his

Mr. Nixon's taxes

Christian Science Monitor

There is one good and healthy thing to be noted about the extraordinary events of recent days which end with the President of the United States agreeing to pay nearly a half million dollars in back taxes. The US Internal Revenue Service is now treating the President like any other citizen. And the President is behaving as any other citizen should under similar circumstances.

Having said that it needs to be added that the decision by the Internal Revenue Service to bill the President for four years of back taxes indicates that there must have been some straying into the service area. There are several things to be noted into in the wake of the news. The first is why the President did not pay his taxes for four years. The second is why the Internal Revenue Service is now treating the President like any other citizen.

Another question to be looked into is whether those who prepared the President's taxes were consciously and deliberately counting on special privileges for their client. The Internal Revenue Service has sidestepped this matter. It would almost appear that it had not raised any question of possible fraud in return for a White House agreement to pay up, rather than to contest. The Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation has also sidestepped the question of possible fraud. In effect, both have handed that matter over to the House Judiciary Committee where it now becomes another of the subjects to be reported in a possible impeachment case.

Americans have had an unusual record of paying their taxes fairly and fully. The average American's conscientious in this respect. But that honorable attitude has been based on the assumption that the tax collectors will be fair and impersonal with them. The record of the Internal Revenue Service has on the whole been excellent. But this case certainly raises a question of possible IRS laxness. Public confidence in the fairness of the taxing process is at the foundation of an orderly society. This matter will be cleared away when and if we can be sure that there is not, nor will be, any favoritism for the President or any other individual and his friends or tax punishment of his political enemies.

American Falls Dam project needs review

Idaho Falls Post-Register

Can American Falls Dam be replaced by 1976 and can it be built at the projected cost?

Does the method of construction, moreover, hold significant risk of a loss of water storage during construction?

These are pertinent questions now being raised by Southern Idaho water leaders as the dam's replacement project is being poised.

Bechtel Corporation, a world-wide construction firm involved in the designing and development of the project, is projecting a completion for the spring of 1976. Water leaders feel that this is unrealistic and have carried their concerns to the authors and builders of the project.

If it is done in this time, it will be virtually a new record in dam replacement of this scope and would have to include extraordinary coordination in construction and operation and engineering cooperation. The timetable does appear questionable as an acceptable goal.

The irrigation superintendent's burden of the dam project was originally pegged at $10 million. Now there are estimates of $24 million being bandied about — a large part of the difference reflecting the rising inflation in the construction world.

Some estimates are as high as $30 million in spiteholder cost when everything is wrapped up. The spillover, we are told, would have to assume the swelling cost.

But what may be the most serious question is one which involves the risk of losing a significant amount of the 1975 storage. This could pose a critical crop loss on those irrigated lands dependent on American Falls storage.

The question remains as to whether there is assurance that its construction is flexible enough to tie the left abutment of the old dam to the new work if it becomes necessary.

However, some engineers question whether this will eliminate the risk. It may be recalled that the Bureau of Reclamation abandoned a dam next to the old, or present dam structure, for this reason.

The Bureau's proposed structure would consequently have been further downstream, and Bureau officials have said, would involve a methodology that would not invite the same order of storage risk.

Upper Valley water districts and farmers are vitally involved in the decisions at American Falls Dam because of the water changes that are sure when it comes. When the American Falls Dam is replaced, the water districts and farmers were made which embraced water districts the length of water district No. 1.

There is, in fact, phrasology in the Minidoka Water area's contracts which says that if in giving up Jackson Lake rights for rights downstream Minidoka's water usage is jeopardized, Minidoka has the right of reclaiming or re-asserting Jackson Lake rights.

There is legal question just what the phrasology means and whether American Falls Dam replacement can be interpreted as a casual contract within the context of the contract's intent. But if such jeopardy were demonstrated legally to be within the reach of the contract, then the old upper valley's lower valley water assignment issue would be reinstated.

What would be the effect of such a reinstatement? The water districts were made which embraced water districts the length of water district No. 1.

The shrinking of government red tape in decision-making, in financing and in building, make it a decidedly worthwhile precedent to pursue.

Attractive banner poses danger to freedom

(C) N.Y. Times Service
MIAMI — Sooner or later, it had to happen. Journalism's invasions of privacy and assertions of privilege under the banner of the public's right to know has raised a reaction, even more dangerous to individual freedom, under an equally attractive banner: "the right to reply."

Two weeks from now, the US Supreme Court will hear oral argument in the case of The Miami Herald vs. Tornillo. When the newspaper attacked a candidate for the Florida legislature before election day, 1972, the candidate cited a 1913 statute in that state requiring newspapers to offer their targets free space in which to answer. The candidate, Pat Tornillo, demanded his "right to reply."

To everybody's surprise Florida's high court upheld the statute, and carried "freedom of information" to its logical extreme.

"The right of the public to know all sides of controversy," wrote the Florida judges, "and from such information to be able to make an enlightened choice is being jeopardized by the growing concentration of the ownership of the mass media into fewer hands, resulting in freedom of expression was retained by the people through the First Amendment for all the people and not for a select few."

By giving a maligned candidate for office the chance to answer his critics, and by providing voters with both points of view, the court held that the statute "abridges rather than abridges freedom of speech and press."

Newsman, accustomed to wrapping themselves in First Amendment rights as they subvert a defendant's right to a fair trial, find it difficult to handle an attack from a judicial force wrapping itself in the First Amendment.

How can they declare "but the public has a right to know" when the threat comes from someone saying "the public has a right to know" both sides?

The Miami Herald's editors are troubled, too, by the popular, seemingly unassailable position built into their opponent's case: "The right to truth in advertising, it seeks of fairness."

There is that extra constitutional riposte to those who say "There ought to be a law about access to newspaper space, which begins 'Congress shall make no law...'"

Does this mean there can be no restraint on journalistic power? Custom and tradition, not federal law, should build a little "candidate's privilege," just as it should build a little executive privilege and a little newswoman's privilege against revealing sources.

One day soon, the Supreme Court will strike a better balance on libel, which will help, but the great restraint should be the pressure of public opinion to which almost all journalism reacts.

Expanded letters-to-the-editor columns, more corrections (Warren Hastings was acquitted by the House of Lords in his impeachment trial — my apologies, Warren is a reformer readers can demand from publishers. The teeth-grinding sounds in op-ed departments when intellectually unbalanced commentary is set in type is a happier sound than the flats of editors in judicial robes.)

I see more danger in heavyhandedness than benefits in evenhandedness. You don't subscribe, start your own newspaper — but let's keep it out of court.

Fill shoes of Shultz? Tough job

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — President Nixon is expected shortly to announce major changes in his team of economic advisers to fill the vacuum created by the resignation of Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz.

Energy chief William E. Simon, who also is deputy secretary of the treasury, is virtually certain to be nominated to succeed Shultz. But the versatile Shultz served as an assistant to the President and major donor of both domestic and foreign economic policies, giving him power and influence that cannot be easily transferred to another individual in the government.

As a result, according to administration sources, the President is likely to rely upon several advisors in the restitute now contemplated.

Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisors has long indicated a desire to return to his University of Virginia faculty post this summer. The favorite candidate to replace him, the sources indicated, is John Dunlop, the former Harvard economist now serving as director of the Cost of Living Council.

Dunlop's name has been mentioned as a possible successor to Simon as head of the energy program. However, these sources say that the only likely successor to Shultz is a man named Peter Lisagor, another individual in the government.

What the sources call a re-structuring of the economic management team at the White House was completed last weekend when Roy M. Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, flew to Washington, D.C., with the president. Ash headed a commission on reorganizing the executive branch before taking his present post.

Shultz resignation effective May 1 prompted the overhaul because he was dominating the White House story for a three-day week. The special rapporteur with the President was also the beautiful babe in 1969 — the secretary of labor. He had been dean of the University of Chicago graduate school of business administration.

His willingness to step down from the labor post to accept a lesser role as head of the OMB impressed Nixon. When he became treasury secretary, following the flamboyant John B. Connally, the President made him chief of all economic activity in the White House.

Not only did he occupy a central role in the west wing of the White House, in addition to his treasury office, but he presided over the daily economic staff sessions and co-ordinated all administration policies.

Simon is not an economist and therefore is expected to concentrate on running the treasury department, while the President builds a new team of advisers to replace Shultz. A former Wall Street broker, Simon will be responsible in his cabinet job for the country's international monetary policy.

It is not clear whether Ash's role in the maneuvering for influence will be enhanced by the changes. Insiders suspect that he will be more influential, with Shultz gone. But there have been signs of tension between Ash and Simon over money issues, and these could persist despite Simon's elevated position.

WASHINGTON — Some 50 persons, most of them doctors of philosophy and at a post-graduate level, are participating in a three-day workshop sponsored by the National Institute of Education.

This was a part of the Washington Workshop. These were your tax dollars being spent.

The purpose of the workshop, according to an NIE press release, was to help career counselors expand career options for men and women. The press release was dated February 27, which was perhaps an omen of things to come. As the release noted, the more specific purpose was to examine sex bias and sex fairness in career interest inventories.

An informational paper advised participants at least 25 such inventories are now in use. These are tests in a lay person's word, intended to discover occupational aptitudes.

The informational paper indicated that such inventories are not widely used. Interest tests are not part of the required tests in most local

Constitution for civilized people

WASHINGTON — The only sensible thing to say about the Supreme Court's 6 to 3 ruling against a Massachusetts law that made it a crime to treat the American flag contemptuously is that both the majority and minority were right.

In its ruling, the court wiped out a six-month jail sentence imposed on one white royster at a committee hearing on a bill to change the flag down to the seat of his blue jeans.

So far, so good. The Massachusetts law was a marvel of ambiguity which, as conservative Justice Lewis B. Powell Jr. declared, deprived in a case of due process. What Powell meant was that the 1959 statute was vaguely worded and did not set out any standards. Thus, a woman violator was left ignorant of what would constitute an offense. Nor did the law provide guidelines for law enforcement officers. In short, it was a unjust law — which may explain why it was so seldom enforced during its 15-year life. So the majority properly struck it down.

However, Justice Byron R. White, who concurred in the decision, even declared that the law violated First Amendment freedoms of expression by punishing ideas about the flag unacceptable to the controlling majority in the legislature.

This was surely an unacceptable opinion. Freedom of expression covers a multitude of rights, but Mr. Justice, sure the founding fathers didn't mean it to include wearing the flag on one's behind. Perhaps they should have, but the First Amendment is what it says, not what a Supreme Court Justice says it is.

No, Powell's opinion for the majority was the only possible decision the Court could reach. The issue was pure and simple — one of due process rights that extends even to immediate actions and some of us may find contemptible.

Nevertheless, I was surprised to find Powell bowing to the mores of the times in excusing Cohen's act. While disapproving of the way Justice avoided the issue, I myself was a city street. Powell noted that individuals of all shapes of opinion wear flag symbols (usually, that the flag "has become an object of youth fashion and high camp" and that there exists widely varying attitudes and ideas for displaying something as ubiquitous as... the flag, or representations of it.

It seems to me Powell was saying that, say, 50 years ago it would have been proper for a state to take stern methods against persons who treated the flag contemptuously, but that in these times authorities should be more lenient.

Now, to that, I object. The Massachusetts law was a bummer, but I don't like a Supreme Court Justice saying that laws should be treated as if they were temporary fads. The use of drugs has become emblematic in America, but I don't want the Supreme Court ruling that this is okay because times have changed.

Powell made the mistake common among some elders of leaning over backward to be tolerant of what might be called the New Morals.

Justice William H. Rehnquist was off-base in dissenting, but only because of the presence of the due process issue. He was right in saying that states had a right to prohibit particular displays of the flag, regardless of changing times and mores — as he noted, the flag is something special, "not merely cloth dyed red, white and blue, but also the emblematic manifestation of 200 years of nationhood."

participants arrived. After a general session and a coffee break, they divided into nine separate task forces, each with a chairperson, a facilitator, a writer, and a rapporteur.

Thereupon the participants spent two and one-half days contemplating to each other about sex bias in these interest inventories, and delivering themselves of recommendations for correcting this situation. They were unanimous in asserting that the "generic he" must be stricken from the English language. Antecedent pronouns must be stated alternately as "he" or "she" or "s/he" or "she" or simply "they."

All job titles must be similarly cleansed of sexual connotation. Inventories must be purged of all references to mailmen, pressmen, chambermaids and busboys. These should be replaced by letter carriers, press operators, lodging quarters cleaners and waiters' assistants.

Senators, aides investigating impeachment trial procedures

(c) Washington Star News
WASHINGTON—Unofficial preparations for a Senate trial of President Nixon are already under way, although a House vote on impeachment remains at least two months off.

More than a half dozen Senators have quietly instructed staff aides to begin researching procedural questions involved in the conduct of an impeachment trial, while several others are doing extensive personal reading on the subject. If President Nixon is impeached by the House, should the subsequent Senate trial be televised? Should all other Senate business stop if an impeachment trial is necessary? What standard of proof must be met to warrant conviction of the President and his removal from office? These are a few of the questions on the minds of many Senators these days as they come to grips with the possibility that the House may indeed vote to impeach Nixon — a prospect which only recently has come to be taken seriously.

Senate leaders, who do not wish to appear to be anticipating a House decision to impeach the President, are attempting to downplay the extent of the procedural research now in progress. Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana recently brushed aside a request by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., for a full scale procedural study, insisting such a move would be premature.

IRS chief ducks Nixon question

WASHINGTON (UPI)—IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander would make no comment Sunday on whether his agency had found any basis for negligence charges in connection with President Nixon's income tax returns for his first four years in office.

DONALD ALEXANDER ducks comment.

Alexander, appearing on national television, (CBS "Face the Nation") was asked that since no civil fraud and presumably no criminal fraud were found, was negligence found?

"And the answer to that question is no comment," Alexander replied. "The House has issued a statement, and appropriately so. That statement, so far as this question is concerned, listed the aggregate amount plus interest that the IRS has asserted. It made no further breakdown of that aggregate. We don't propose to do so."

The IRS sent Nixon a bill for $25.7 million in back taxes and the President announced he would pay every penny of it.

On another television network, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., said the Congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue which he cochaired with Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., had never intended to go into the possibility of fraud or negligence in connection with the President's tax returns.

"But I would think the House Judiciary Committee would want to look into this area," Mills said in an interview on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

"I would think there is enough in our committee staff report that justifies further investigation to determine whether the President or anyone connected with him violated the law," Mills said he did not believe the IRS had charged the President a 5 per cent negligence penalty.

Charges irk Donald

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—President Nixon's brother Donald says he barely knows C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo and is outraged by accusations that Rebozo gave him part of the $100,000 Howard Hughes cash.

Donald Nixon, 59, described himself as "outraged and extremely uncomfortable" by the public and broadcast reports that "Bebe" of the controversial Hughes cash went to him and Rose Mary Woods, the President's personal secretary, for their personal use.

impeachment trials and have asked the Library of Congress for guidance on certain "key" questions, according to other Senate sources.

Other Senators who have one or more staff aides at work on procedural research include Majority Whip Robert C. Byrd, D-Va., Assistant Minority Leader Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich.; Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.; Sen. John V. Tunney, D-Calif.; Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.; Kennedy and Hart.

In addition, Senate Parliamentarian Floyd M. Riddick is collecting materials on impeachment trial precedents, although he has declined to discuss the extent of his work.

The Senate Manual includes a 12-page listing of the 25 rules adopted by the Senate in 1868 at the time of President Andrew Johnson's impeachment trial, plus one amendment rule added in 1935.

Mansfield has already said publicly that he believes any trial of President Nixon should be televised in full so the public will understand the proceedings and the evidence on which the Senate will base its ultimate judgment.

Former OEO critics become supporters

(c) N. Y. Times Service
WASHINGTON—The Nixon administration's determination to dismantle the federal Office of Economic Opportunity at the end of June has prompted a growing number of former OEO critics to urge the continuation of its remaining programs in some form.

This new band of enthusiasts for the "long-unbattered" remnant of President Johnson's "war on poverty" includes Republican governors, state officials and Congressmen as well as some Democrats who formerly denounced the agency. They are by no means in total agreement on just how to preserve what is left of the agency's operation. But there appears to be several "general" agreements that the OEO's community action agencies should not be ended by the withdrawal of federal funds which the new fiscal year begins July 1.

The sentiments were expressed in interviews last week with politicians close to the situation and in letters of support for OEO circulating here.

During OEO's heyday, in the mid-1960s, the community action agencies were the economic officer's most controversial programs. Frequently militant, these local organizations organized the more of mayors, governors and other state and local politicians. The reason, as one Democratic convert to OEO, Gov. Philip W. Noel of Rhode Island, put best was "beating up on local officials."

Algeria initiates special meet

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Diplomats gathered today for a U.N. General Assembly session Tuesday at which underdeveloped countries with energy resources will exert their growing influence to demand higher prices from the industrial nations.

Assembly had been summoned to counterbalance President Nixon's conference of oil-consuming countries and a French proposal for an international energy crisis conference.

Although oil and the energy crisis were not on the agenda, diplomats expected them to dominate debate.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, just back from his honeymoon in Apaculco, was expected to speak Thursday.

The United States has been lukewarm toward the special session.

The industrial countries already squeezed by rising oil prices, are not enthusiastic about a surge in the prices of other raw materials as well.

The special meeting Tuesday will be an organization.

This play would work if East held the king of hearts or West held the doubleton king. In this latter case he would have to give South a ruff and a discard." Jim: "It would also have fared miserably this time and South was sure that it would. West's two club overcall had married him with the king of hearts. If he only held two hearts he would have held an eight-card club suit. So South entered dummy with a trump, led a low heart, stuck in his ruff after East followed and poor West was on played.

Oswald: "East's three-diamonds bid was made to suggest a lead. If North had doubled East would have run to four clubs a contract that would only be set one trick if West played correctly. North didn't bother to double and the spade game was reached. This hand is given as an example of how an alert declarer bases his play on knowledge of his opponents' bidding methods. The defense started with the ace of diamonds, a diamond ruff and the king of clubs lead. South took dummy's ace, drew trumps with two leads and discarded his last club and heart on dummy's good diamonds. Then he ruffed

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The other day you published a letter from a secretary who professed to like her job and her boss, but she complained about being sent on non-clerical errands such as picking up other employees or shopping for the boss, too often. This wasn't part of the job, she said, and she resented doing it.

And yet it would seem to me that if the boss sends her on these errands, and she does them on company time, then they are, indeed, a part of the job and she does not have a legitimate complaint. I could see her gripe if she were expected to do all these things on her own time, but this apparently wasn't the case. The problem is simply that she thinks she's being paid for her typing, and the boss obviously thinks she's being paid for her time. I tend to agree with the boss. So long as he is footing the bill, what does it matter whether the secretary is taking dictation or doing the boss' legwork?

MS. JONES

Specify duties

DEAR MS. J: When one advertises for a "typist," "leg work" is part of the job. The applicants should be so advised. An employer does not buy "time," he buys "talent, muscle, or specialized skill." A woman hired to do secretarial work shouldn't be expected to act like the tiddler may more than a man hired to sell real estate should be expected to wax the floors.

DEAR ABBY: I saw you on a talk show recently, and you were asked: "At what age do you think children should be told the facts of life?" You replied, "When they're old enough to ask, they're old enough to know."

I agree with you. I'm with Planned Parenthood, and this morning we heard from a group of angry mothers in one school district who are fuming about our week-long educational programs for 7th and 8th graders, so we've arranged to get the parents together so we can talk about it. By the time we're through, those parents will be saying: "We wish we had this when we were kids." I know, it will happen. It always does.

We have a slogan: "All obstacles can be turned into opportunities." It's true. Hang in there, Abby!

LYN IN YAKIMA, WASH.

DEAR LYN: Education is the answer to V.D., illegitimacy and irresponsible sex. Count me as another who wishes they had sex education in the schools when I was a kid. What people DON'T know, CAN hurt them.

DEAR ABBY: I can't resist writing this letter to "HAD IT IN NASHVILLE," who wanted to have his wife's teeth cemented together to keep her from talking. It will not work. He is underestimating the powers of a woman.

I broke my jaw and had to have my teeth wired together for six weeks. While the dentist was putting the wires on, I was concerned—not that I wouldn't be able to eat—but to see a woman that I could shut up by wiring her teeth together.

My husband will confirm the fact that I had no trouble talking for the entire six weeks. BEEN THERE IN S.C.

CONFIDENTIAL TO MY READERS: Next Sunday is Easter. Please do not give a child a living gift unless he is old enough to care for it properly. Every year a shocking number of baby chicks, rabbits, kittens and puppies have been mauled, mishandled, smothered and neglected to death by children who have received them as Easter gifts, and who regard them as "toys." Have a heart and give small children stuffed animals instead.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 8906, A.A. Call, 3006. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Valley feeders caught in squeeze

France said that the future for feeders does not look hopeful now. Even the federal government's recent purchase of $45 million of choice quality ground beef does not provide much support, he said, because this represents less than one day's kill at present prices.

France believes that the retail price of beef does not reflect the losses feeders are suffering. Meat packers who buy the fat cattle at 62 cents a pound and sell at 67 cents a pound are not reaping the difference, he added. Instead, he said, grocers are making the profits. He maintained that to break even, without the available supply of a retailer would have to sell beef at an average of $1.07 per pound.

Buttre's butcher Glenn Miller agreed with France's break-even figure. He said that Buttre's now sells beef for about $1.25 per pound when all cuts are averaged. The 14 cents per pound gross profit goes towards paying expenses and netting a reasonable profit, he said.

Miller also said that meat prices at Buttre's have dropped at least 10 cents per pound in the last two weeks.

Canned goods costs up

CHICAGO — Consumer prices for canned goods are headed up, despite the fact prices for farm products are finally tapering off after an 18-month climb. This is despite the forecast of a hefty gain in this summer's vegetable crop.

That is because farmers had to obtain the coming year's crops last year — at a time when farm prices were soaring — and farmers' expectations were high. So lower farm prices this year would not be reflected in canned goods until the 1975 marketing year.

No one is more anxiously awaiting this summer's harvest than the grocery industry. Some companies have been allocating canned vegetables and fruits to their stores, hoping to avoid the kind of consumer unrest that led to the toilet paper stampede.

"We've been allocating some vegetables since last fall," said Lloyd Duggan, vice president, and general manager of the canned goods division of Libby, McNeil & Libby. "We've been trying to fair to our customers and stretch the available supply."

As Duggan predicted, the price increase last year, of the amount of land planted in vegetable crops did not pay off, as bad weather produced a low yielding crop.

Additional acreage is expected to produce a large increase in vegetable crops this year when harvesting gets under way in June. "If we get normal yields, we'd expect a 25 per cent increase in tonnage harvested," Duggan said.

In the fruit area, Duggan said, the outlook is "quite good" for peaches, which are harvested beginning in July.

He expects the pear crop to be normal when its harvesting starts in late August.

April crop buyers are in for a disappointment, however, because "it looks like half of last year's crop," he said. Harvesting gets underway in June and "the buds just are not there this year."

(Olmstead said that the market for fat cattle strengthened itself out in January when the animals sold for 55 cents per pound. But, then the truckers strike hit and plugged up the marketing of cattle which created a glut and depressed prices.)

Although the industry has been "seriously crippled," there is "some daylight up on the road ahead," Olmstead said. "Once we cut our way out of this present dilemma... I will see it in a situation where profit is possible."

Olmstead agreed consumption of beef by Americans has declined recently, but he said the decline must be put in perspective. In 1972 the average American ate 115 pounds of beef. Last year the per capita consumption dropped to 109 pounds, but Olmstead said in 1953 per capita consumption of beef averaged only 55 pounds in the United States.

With roasts available at 79 cents a pound, the consumer has good buys on beef available, Olmstead said. The price of ground beef is the extent of the feeders' "The only reason is because the cattle feeder is subsidizing that roast to $100 to $150 a head."

According to former feedlot operator Henry Jones, some feeders who fed cattle in the 1950s of a better price have been doing "more money than they ever thought was possible" — up to $300 per head.

Jones, who used to fatten 20,000 cattle per year, said that he closed the business rather than accumulate losses.

Stabilizers, Jones said, he might begin feeding cattle again.

Arvin Moss, office manager for Ullig Feed Farms, Inc., Meridian, said that although the firm is still feeding cattle it has not bought any for a couple of months.

"If the feeder market continues to be as poor as it is now, Ullig will probably be out of cattle in a couple of months," Moss said. He said there are "not very many men on hand now. But he would not say how many head are in the feedlot, but that he sells the company keeps 4,000 to 5,000 head on hand at one time."

Jim Gill, manager for Simplot Livestock Co., Rupert, said Simplot had stopped buying feeder cattle about two weeks ago. But he said, "I'm not sure if we're buying on a seasonal basis and that so far at least this is not really unusual."

Torn Hovenden, secretary-manager of the Idaho Cattle Feeders, described the feeder situation as a "tug of war."

For rural residents who are competing for American grain used to fatten cattle, Americans will have to pay more if they want to continue to eat beef in the quantities they are used to.

FF police probe burglaries

TWIN FALLS — Several burglaries were reported to Twin Falls police on the weekend.

Capt. Jim Qualls, chief of detectives, said someone entered the Morningside School Saturday night from the roof of the building. The burglar then dropped into a school classroom. Qualls said. While several rooms were ransacked only a $50 Sony tape recorder was reported missing. Qualls added, but school officials estimated damage to the building at $400.

A window was also broken in the YMCA and the building entered but officials said they could find nothing missing.

Officials of the Sunset Motel told police

Saturday someone shot a marble through a front window of the motel with such force it shattered the large window.

Clayton Kimball, 706 Morningside Drive, told officers someone broke into his home during the weekend causing considerable damage to the house and its contents, taking large number of tools. Kimball did not have an estimate of the loss. Officers said someone used a blunt instrument such as a sledge hammer to break holes in the walls. Food items from the kitchen were scattered on the floor and furniture and other damage caused. Investigation is continuing.

Kolb named head of SV ski school

SUN-FALLS — Paul Ramlow has been named head of the Sun Valley ski school director.

He will be replaced by Italer Kolb who has instructed for six years at the resort.

Ramlow had been an instructor for 23 years with Sun Valley. He served exactly two years in his position as director of the ski school. His termination was effective April 1.

Ramlow was released, according to Wally Huffman, recreation director of Sun Valley, because of a decreasing pupil day percentage.

"There was some disquiet, disinterest with the internal administration of the school also," Huffman said.

Huffman cited pupil day percentages from 1969-1970 season as 36 per cent, decreasing to 29 per cent in 1970-71 and to 27 per cent in 1971-72. The percentage of student days has dropped 11 per cent since 1969-70 Huffman said.

According to Ramlow the dismissal resulted from a personal disagreement with the Sun Valley administration.

"My ways of running the school differed too much from the way of running the ski school," Ramlow said.

Huffman said the ski school was trying to approach an ideal 50-50 basis of student-school operator. Some ski resorts are close to that figure, he said.

Marketing procedures according to Ramlow and Huffman were another source of disagreement. Ramlow said Sun Valley wanted more national marketing of "ski packages" arranged. That responsibility was not possible through his administration, he said.

"They wanted me to go over everybody's head," Ramlow said. "It was my responsibility to work through Huffman, the recreation director."

Huffman said very little marketing was done at all. According to Huffman, "There were no national programs developed which would extend the days students spent in class."

Huffman said Ramlow's dismissal was nothing personal.

"We're still good friends," he said, of Ramlow and himself.

Nevada orders roads closed

BLAINE — About 60 miles of roads in the Mountain Gully Ranger District of the Humboldt National Forest have been closed to prevent damage to the forest.

Vern K. Thompson, supervisor of the national forest, said the roads have been closed to protect water softened roadbeds from unnecessary vehicle damage.

Thompson said the roads ordered closed are in the Shinnover Flat and Allegheny Creek areas, but he said some other roads in the district may also be closed.

The closed roads have been posted, Thompson said, and anyone disregarding the policies will be subject to federal prosecution.

Those persons with a justifiable need for access into the closed areas may contact District Ranger Lewis Campbell at the Mountain City Ranger Station for permission to use the roads, Thompson said.

Thompson said the roads will be closed until the end of May or until the roads are firm enough to support motor traffic.

Harry Vanhorn sets story for Thursday's issue

New weekly paper sets 1st issue Thursday

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News Writer

GOODING — Residents of five agricultural Magic Valley counties soon will have a newspaper to read.

And it will be free for picking up off their front porches.

The Enterprise, which has offices at 302 Main St., Gooding, is being launched by Robert Brown, Harry Vanhorn, Gooding, and Margo Brown and Vanhorn are former employees of the Gooding County Leader.

First issue of the weekly paper, which will emphasize local community news, is planned for this Thursday. The paper will be written and put together in Gooding, then the press will return to Boise to be printed, Vanhorn said.

Contrary to popular belief, he says, a newspaper can be produced with modern equipment with a very modest financial investment. Two small machines resembling typewriters print the type for the entire paper.

Brown says total investment is less than $2,000.

The Enterprise's publishers, known as Bliss Productions, Inc. have purchased a German-made used Justewriter typesetting machine. A reporter types his story on the machine, which automatically returns him with and punches small holes in paper tape resembling ticker tape. The tape is then run through a second machine which types out the story in columns with even or "justified" margins.

These columns are then ready to be cut and pasted into the proper layout on the pages, ready to be photographed by the pressman in Boise.

The firm also will lease a CompuGraphic CG-7200, a larger computerized typesetter with sets headlines and ads.

This machine will be leased for about $300 per month, and has not yet arrived in Gooding.

The editors plan extensive coverage of hometown type news in Camas, Elmore, Gooding, Jerome and Lincoln Counties, with a story on the April 30 school bond election in Jerome planned for the first issue.

The philosophy of this type of newspaper is not to be profound, Vanhorn says, but to deal with the community events and "bread and butter" type stories such as Cub Scouts, Little League and PTA, as well as news and photo coverage of sports events.

Readers are catered with national and state news from other news media as well as the established three-paper Vanhorn family owned and operated from previous experience in California and Texas that the formula of a free weekly finds a ready audience which it contains local news.

"Our basic philosophy is that we want a local paper run by local people giving local news," Brown says.

The trick in the success of the Enterprise will be to convince the advertisers that the publication is getting to people and being read.

Since there will be no paid circulation, the distribution problem will be very simple.

"We'll just fill up the back of our pickup, take the kids and spend a day dropping papers," Vanhorn says. His four children, aged 13 to 6, and the two boys, Artie 13 and James, 10, all should become expert throwers after a few weeks.

For rural residents who are missed, there will be additional copies available at supermarkets in towns.

Robert Brown says the initial press run will be about 5,000 copies. The editors plan 14 pages for the first edition.

Vanhorn's wife is doing the bookkeeping for the new business while continuing to work in the office where she is a bookkeeper. Vanhorn formerly was news editor of the Gooding weekly, but lost his job earlier this year when it became known he was on parole from Oregon. Vanhorn recently was cleared from the parole status by the Oregon governor.

In addition to the Browns and Vanhorn, the new business has hired two Gooding High School junior girls on a work-study program who are learning to run the computers, write stories and sell advertising.

The students, Linda Haney and Linda Hastings, are paid for one hour daily five days a week on a government funded job training program. In addition the Enterprise pays them 10 per cent commission on advertising and 20 per cent commission "in" for their news copy.

Two girls under the supervision of Gayle Anderson, Gooding High School teacher, are graded on their performance, gain experience and receive advice assistance from the oft-times harassed publishers. Miss Hastings will be editor of the Gooding school paper next year.

But Mr. and Mrs. Brown are originally from the East, but lived in California for 20 years before coming to Bliss. He has been a television technician and also was associated with theatre work, while Mrs. Brown recently retired as a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force.

"We came to Idaho to retire," Brown laughed, "but we're busier now than we've ever been."

He is president of Bliss Productions, with his wife as secretary-treasurer. Vanhorn and Mrs. Brown are co-founders of the Enterprise, while Brown is photographer.
