Israeli and Syrian gunners duelled on the Golan Heights front for the 57th day today, but there were indications that the fighting was less intense than in the previous eight weeks.

"It's thinner," an Israeli military source said of the Syrian artillery fire, "but I don't think it's significant enough to make any judgments."

White House hints 'accommodation' on tapes goal

(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Nixon-backed down Monday from his opposition to the Watergate special prosecutor's subpoena for tapes and records of 64 White House conversations by indicating through his lawyers that he was willing to "accommodate" an "accommodation" with the prosecution.

His lawyers also won a five-day delay in the legal proceedings over the subpoena, that until today has been shaping up as another major battle in court.

Nixon's attorneys had asked the federal district court here last week to quash the prosecution subpoena "in its entirety," and had strongly hinted that the President was willing to take the matter to the Supreme Court if the lower court rejected the request.

Monday, however, White House lawyers met at their own request with lawyers for the special prosecutor to discuss ways of dealing with the subpoenas.

Both sides then advised Federal Judge John Sirica of the meeting and asked for a five-day delay. Sirica granted the request in the afternoon, after meeting at the federal court house with Leon Jaworski, the special prosecutor, and James D. St. Clair, the President's chief defense counsel, as well as with lawyers for the defendants in the Watergate cover-up case.

In the subpoena proceedings, Sirica postponed the date on which Jaworski must file affidavits to the court to quash until Friday, and rescheduled arguments on the subpoena from this Wednesday to next Monday. And in a short statement later to reporters, a statement approved by all parties, Sirica implied that the president was considering not just an accommodation or compromise response to the subpoena but instead, actual compliance.

"The continuance was granted for the purpose of facilitating discussions leading to possible compliance with the subpoena," Sirica said in his statement.

The sudden reversal in White House policy came in the wake of widespread negative public reaction to President Nixon's release last week of edited transcripts of various Watergate-related White House conversations.

The president's new stance also came after Jaworski's office "made it clear that the prosecution would not drop its subpoena in the face of the President's motion to quash. That meant that if Nixon continued to fight the subpoena a court battle would ensue in which testimony would be taken regarding the relevance of the material that Jaworski had subpoenaed.

That testimony, some legal observers said today, could make public still more damaging evidence.

The prosecution subpoena was issued at the order of the court after Jaworski contended that he needed the materials for use in the trial in the Watergate cover-up case.

It is uncertain what much of the subpoenaed materials is necessary either to help make the prosecution's case or, because it is exculpatory, to be turned over to one or more defendants.

Several defendants joined in the motion and one defendant, John A. Mitchell, filed legal papers today opposing the president's motion to quash the subpoena.

Portions of 20 of the 64 conversations covered by the Jaworski subpoena were included in the transcripts that Nixon released last Tuesday.

However, the White House asked the court the following day to quash the entire subpoena. Nixon filed a personal statement maintaining that these conversations not yet released were covered by executive privilege. His lawyers argued, in addition, that Jaworski had not shown that any of the materials were relevant or admissible, and that he had not demonstrated an adequate need for them.

Henry hopeful in talks' wake

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger held three hours of talks today with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, then returned to Israel with an expression of hope they had made progress on an Israeli-Syrian peace.

There were indications the fighting on the Golan Heights had tapered off in its 57th day but an Israeli spokesman said it was too early to know for sure. Kissinger was expected to meet with the two sides "to scale down" the fighting.

In Washington, a House Spokesman said President Nixon had been in close touch by cable with Kissinger and had "taken great interest" in the secretary's negotiations.

Kissinger's blue and silver jet landed at Tel Aviv's Ben-Gurion airport at 3:45 p.m. (9:55 a.m. EDT) for his next round of talks with Israeli leaders in Jerusalem where he will seek a comprehensive peace proposal and disengagement with Syria.

Arab newspaper commentaries were hinting that the Kissinger mission was close to breaking down, and a Syrian government communique issued today indicated the Russians had helped harden the Syrian line.

The communique said Gromyko had declared the Soviet Union's full support for the Syrian attitude towards any troop disengagement on the Golan Heights.

"The two sides again reiterated that the process of troop separation should be considered a step toward achieving a complete Israeli withdrawal from all occupied Arab lands, and toward reaching a complete and just settlement to the Middle East problem," the communique said.

A high American official accompanying Kissinger said the Cyprus meeting, held at Gromyko's request, would produce no two-power formula for a settlement and that the decision will be made in Jerusalem and Damascus. The official had reported earlier Kissinger was making progress.

Anti-busing amendments called unconstitutional

(c) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON — The United States Commission on Civil Rights has urged the Senate to reject all major antibusing amendments scheduled to be considered later this week, charging three of the measures are unconstitutional.

Passage of any legislation limiting the power of courts or government agencies to require desegregation through busing, the commission said, "would turn the constitutional plan for the 20th anniversary of the Brown V. Board of Education Supreme Court decision into a dirge."

On May 17, 1954, the high court outlawed the principle of separate but equal schools for blacks in inherently unconstitutional.

The main antibusing proposal before the Senate, introduced by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., would in effect overturn the Supreme Court's 1971 decision in the Swann case that said busing is a legitimate means for overcoming racial segregation, the five-member commission said.

The Gurney amendment, similar to antibusing provisions already passed by the house, terms busing a last resort and would limit transportation to the school closest to a child's home.

"Another provision of the Gurney amendment would prohibit the reopening of existing desegregation cases to conform with the new busing limits. This provision, the commission said, "would reopen old wounds in many communities, bring to a halt the steps that are being taken to desegregate schools."

The Gurney amendment, the commission contracts both itself and the constitution.

Simplot seeks Heyburn 'mass picketing' halt

HEYBURN — The J. R. Simplot Co. went to court Monday to stop "mass picketing" in the five-day walkout of members of the American Federation of Grain-Millers Union.

Fifth District Court Judge Sherman Bellwood set a show case hearing for Thursday on Simplot's request for a permanent injunction to stop the alleged activity.

A union spokesman, Lloyd Ott, had no comment today on the firm's court action.

A Simplot company representative also said today the court suit sought "damages in such amounts as may be proved" against the defendants named in the case.

There were no picketers at the fifth day of the strike, which has affected about 900 workers at the Heyburn processing plant. Union members have also struck the Caldwell plant.

The Simplot company spokesman, William Maxwell, said about 40 supervisory personnel had been brought into the Heyburn area

Monday and had operated the plant on a limited scope. He said the plant was not at full production "naturally."

Ott also said the union would continue its peaceful picketing at the plant in Heyburn. There were up to 50 persons outside the plant Monday, compared to much smaller numbers for the first several days of the strike.

The arrival of the supervisory personnel was accompanied without incident late Monday morning and again at mid-afternoon.

It's a sure sign spring is here when the "pickers" move out in force.

Worker Emerges

RESCUE WORKERS in Sallina, Kan., haul Tony Sanchez to safety from the bottom of a 22-foot deep narrow gate pit. Sanchez was working in the shaft Monday when a 12-foot metal shaft fell, knocking him unconscious. Fellow workers held his head clear of 10 inches of water while rescuers used a line from a hoist to pull him out. (UPI)

AF Reservoir District holds closed session

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — Directors of the American Falls Reservoir District met in closed session for about 30 minutes today.

The seven-member panel reportedly discussed snags in plans for replacement of the deteriorating American Falls dam.

John Barker, president of the district, earlier had told the Times-News that the entire meeting would be open to the press and public.

But the directors called an executive session on the recommendation by Tom Nelson, an attorney for the district.

Nelson left after the closed portion of the meeting. He declined comment on what was discussed.

District plans for the new American Falls dam have been challenged by a state agency and environmental interests. The groups say fish populations may be hurt below the replacement dam.

The district has requested changes in state water quality standards to clear the way for construction of the dam.

A public hearing on the reservoir district's requested changes will be conducted May 29 in Burley before the Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS) executive board.

The district has asked that state water quality standards be waived or changed for the section of the Snake River between the proposed new American Falls Dam and the backwaters of Lake Wallace in Blaine and Cassia counties.

In a petition to DECS, the district requested elimination of water quality requirements that dissolved oxygen levels be maintained at 90 percent saturation levels in state waters.

The current state standard requires dissolved oxygen content of 6 parts per million (ppm) or 90 percent of saturation, whichever is greater.

The reservoir district has said it will comply with the 6-ppm requirement as it applies to water discharged from the new dam. The 90-percent saturation standard, however, is not "economically feasible," according to the district's petition.

Water containing 6 ppm of dissolved oxygen "would be adequate to sustain fish life," the district contends.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department and recreation groups have demanded enforcement of the water quality standards to protect private and commercial fishing interests below the new dam.

According to a DECS report, the dissolved oxygen content of water in the current American Falls Reservoir is "often low," but is boosted when the water is discharged over the existing dam's spillway.

The new dam, however, would eliminate the spillway and discharge all water through power turbines, causing the oxygen "problem" to be "exacerbated downstream," the DECS report said.

Meeting the 90 percent saturation standard could add $200,000 to $300,000 annually to operating costs at the new dam, according to Barker.

He said he expects the requested elimination or waiver to be approved by the DECS board.

Food prices in Valley continue edging higher

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley food prices here have risen less than 1 percent since price controls for food retailers and wholesalers were removed April 15.

The average cost of a 20-item market basket in five local food stores rose about .67 cent from April 4 to April 30.

But costs are up .27 percent from this time last year. Produce prices have shot up 50 percent in the last year, primarily due to the high cost of potatoes. Meat on the other hand has only increased 12 percent during the past year.

Potatoes jumped about 37 percent in the past month, or a total of 30 cents, from an average price of $1.36 for 10 pounds to $1.66. In February, the average price was $1.05.

Bacon and eggs were down. Bacon was an average of $1.17 a pound compared to last month's $1.24, and eggs were 82 cents a dozen, down from 68 cents. In February, bacon was going at an average of $1.48 a pound and eggs were 84 cents a dozen.

Milk and coffee declined in price by about 1 cent each.

But several items, which were steady for several months before the first of the year, have been creeping up since February. One brand of margarine went up 5.8 percent, or 3 cents this past month, a total increase of 24 percent since February.

Sugar was up another 4.5 percent — about 11 cents. Since February, the price of sugar has risen almost 48 percent.

Panorl toilet, germ flakes and a popular detergent were all up a few cents, making increases since February run from 7 to 15 percent.

Steady, or nearly so, this month were milk, beer, canned fruit cocktail and vegetables.

Bureaucratic power struggle delays Gem drug abuse funds

By MARGARET BAILEY
BOISE (UPI) — A bureaucratic power struggle in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has Idaho and 16 other rural states on a merry-go-round in their search for funds for drug abuse projects.

Mark Litvin, director of field operations for the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services, said the state's drug abuse plan was approved by the federal agency, qualifying the state for federal grants.

But he said, no money has been given out.

"The federal people are playing some games, not only with us, but with 16 states. I think that are rural and sparsely populated," said Litvin.

"They are saying that maybe those states shouldn't get any project funds, that they have not documented that they have a severe hard drug problem."

Litvin and representatives of 16 other affected states met last Monday and Wednesday in Cheyenne, Wyo., with Dr. Robert du Pont of the National Institute of Drug Abuse and "told him what we think about the idea about not going to give us any money."

"Even if we have a smaller program, we have a problem with hard drugs and we want to work on it," Litvin said.

"If we have only a few hard drug addicts, they still deserve the same amount of attention as a drug addict in any other city."

He added that Idaho contributes tax money to the federal government for drug projects and as any drug addict in any other from the federal project money.

The state plan for Idaho identifies alcohol as the primary substance abuse problem in the state. Litvin said there is other money from specific alcohol-related projects that Idaho will be able to get.

But the federal alcohol and drug programs are separate and according to Litvin, "right now the drug people and the alcohol people are waging war on each other."

"It's the most confusing thing I've run into in the six years I've been working with federal projects," because of the federal power struggle, the bureaucrats "are spending energy on fighting each other instead of giving Idaho and other states assistance."

Litvin described the problem at the federal level as a lack of coordination among agencies and bureaucrats in the nation's capital who are opposed to regionalization and refuse to provide information to the regional offices of HEW.

"They want this program run out of Washington, D.C., and they want to deal directly with the states."

"We can't get an answer on how much money there will be or what will be funded" in the state programs.

"We're getting bureaucratic rounds in the most severe way — it's just — you've gotten them."

At the moment Litvin said, none of the Idaho programs is in jeopardy because of the slowdown from Washington.

And, until the federal agency gets straightened out, Litvin said the state can go ahead with its plans by using local resources, private groups and what state money is available to coordinate through DES to cope with the drug and alcohol problems in Idaho.

Medicine backfires instead of curing

CHICAGO (UPI) — A three-year medical study conducted Monday confirmed what many Americans already knew — that medicine taken to cure sometimes makes a person sicker than he was before.

An article in the current issue of Journal of the American Medical Association said, "Drug-induced illness has itself become a health problem of considerable proportions."

Of 6,063 patients, 177, or 2.9 per cent, were admitted because of drug-induced illness," the report said.

"The supposedly harmless over-prescription pain relievers, especially aspirin, were most often the cause of unwanted reaction. In second place were the antimicrobial products, such as penicillin," the report said.

The study, conducted at the University of Florida Teaching Hospital in Gainesville by Drs. George J. Caranos and Leighton E. Cluff, said women are more likely than men to suffer from drug-induced illness, because "women are more prone to take medicine."

Study shows opiates seldom used

BOISE (UPI) — The state drug abuse plan for Idaho estimates that less than two per cent of the Gem state population aged 12 to 20 has ever illegally used opiates.

The plan, prepared by the Department of Environmental and Community Services to qualify for federal funding, programs shows that abuse of opiates is isolated in certain areas of the state.

While one aspect of the survey used to develop the report concluded there are 1,576 regular or frequent users of opiates in the Boise area, statistics on deaths, arrests, convictions did not support that number.

The report concluded that a lack of validity checks contributed to the processing of inaccurate data on opiate use. The survey, however, found that opiate abuse is more common in urban areas of the state and in high school populations such as Sun Valley.

The report also found that LSD is the second most commonly illegally used controlled substance, both from reported usage, based on population surveys, and through arrests data.

A low priority has been placed on the hallucinosis problem in Idaho, however, because "while the frequency of users is relatively high within the state, the frequency of usage is low."

The surveys concluded one per cent of students aged 13 have tried LSD while seven per cent of students aged 18 have used LSD.

The interest in the substance drops off sharply after high school years.

The state plan includes proposed state-wide education, habilitation and rehabilitation of drug abusers and program combat abuse.

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) said today that six big manufacturers of hearing aids may be guilty of false advertising for claiming "last" or "best" hearing aids.

The FTC's program of challenging major advertisers to prove their claims. The hearing aid industry was asked to substantiate its advertising in July of 1972.

The complaints say that all six companies made claims for the performance of their hearing aids without revealing to the potential buyer that no hearing aid can restore normal or natural hearing; that using a hearing aid can not halt or slow down hearing loss; or that many persons will not benefit at all from using a hearing aid.

Cambodian DC3 forced down

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — North Vietnamese gunners hit a Cambodian air force DC3 today over South Vietnam, forcing the plane to land at the provincial capital of Tay Ninh along the Cambodian-South Vietnamese border.

Military sources said the plane was only slightly damaged and no injuries were reported. The aircraft was carrying Cambodians back to Phnom Penh.

Tay Ninh is about 80 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. Elsewhere, rebel troops again shelled a government warehouse complex at Long Vei 21 miles northeast of Phnom Penh on Highway 5.

Field reports said five government soldiers were wounded in the latest shelling. Long Vei has been under rebel attack for nearly two weeks.

The garrison is the last remaining government position in the region northwest of the capital. It has about 4,000 government defenders along with 10,000 refugees, most of them women and children.

The position is resupplied by air. It has a radio communications control, both surface access routes, Highway 5 and the Tonle Sap river running parallel.

A government driver to clear rebels off the road 11 miles north of Phnom Penh bogged down. Field reporters said three government soldiers were killed, five wounded and two others captured when government forces tried to retake a position abandoned earlier but seized again by heavy gunfire.

A 25-man convoy arrived in Phnom Penh Tuesday after a successful, but hazardous trip on the Mekong River from Saigon.

The convoy, composed of 13 cargo ships, five oil tankers and 10 barges loaded with ammunition, was hit by rebel gunfire near Kam Tach.

Council aides deny variance

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council signaled Monday night it doesn't want any commercial activity in parts of the city zoned for low density residential dwellings.

Council members denied the request of a Twin Falls couple for a variance to permit the operation of a family-owned business in the area.

Mrs. Daniel R. Barnes lives in a low residential zone in the northern part of the city.

City Councilwoman Ann Cover told the applicants the denial was based on objections from neighbors, not on any problem from the business in question.

She said the council is continuing to receive more objections to neighborhood businesses. She also suggested it is time to begin thinking about eliminating all commercial undertakings in the first class residential areas.

Several other council members agreed with her but set no general policy.

The council voted to annex about 17 acres of the Sierra Life Insurance Co.'s property in the vicinity of Locust Street North and Madrona Street.

The property was zoned low density residential, low density zoning to permit single family dwellings. Earlier the firm had withdrawn a request for annexation of additional land to include a commercial development.

Phillip Straub, an area resident, asked the council whether the action would end his plan for commercialization in the area.

Mayor Winston Jones told Straub the owner of the property could make other attempts to develop his land eventually but future action is now up to Sierra Life.

In other zoning matters, the council approved an ordinance annexing the Armstrong and Pook property near Rock Creek Canyon at the extreme west edge of the city. The developers plan apartment units and the property was accepted as residential medium density zone.

Other actions included an ordinance to the city sign code to eliminate signs for home occupations in the residential low density zones and one to repeal the city zoning ordinance sections which also allow such signs.

In recent requests for home businesses in residential areas properly owners in the proximity of the proposed home occupations have objected to commercial type signs.

The council tabled a resolution to vacate road right-of-way easements in the Morrison Second Subdivision, the Armstrong and Cork development. The council asked for a final plat of the subdivision before action is taken.

Proposals of the developer were for streets, curbs and gutters to be built along the lines proposed by the designer rather than on regular street lines.

Approval was voted for the Cascade Subdivision south of the city, providing some screening or fencing is provided to block the back yards of the homes from view along the Airport Road.

The Wills No. 4 Subdivision in the vicinity of Frontier Field was discussed and approved providing the developer changes the name of the subdivision and provides for continuation of Lincoln Street in the final plat.

In other business the council approved a resolution vacating two streets and an alley and accepting dedication of a road right-of-way in the Victory Subdivision. This is the property along Russet Street owned by Idaho Frozen Foods.

A request from Ward and Curtis for conditional use to allow development of an apartment complex on Heyburn Avenue at the end of Madrona Street was approved providing buildings are located above flood water levels of the Perrine Couleand if easement for foot and bicycle traffic is provided through the property.

TF solon listed 'serious'

TWIN FALLS — Rep. Ray Lincoln, 58, R-Twin Falls, was in serious condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital today.

Lincoln suffered a heart attack Sunday morning at his home and has been in the intensive care unit of the hospital since. A four-term legislator, Lincoln is chairman of the House Local Governments Committee.

TF hearing slated on sex bias

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Human Rights Commission has set June 14-15 for hearing on alleged sexual discrimination at the College of Southern Idaho.

The hearing before the full commission will be held in Twin Falls at 9 a.m. June 14, according to Linda Gonzales, commission director.

She said Monday the hearing had been called following an impasse in negotiations between the commission and CSI in a case involving a former CSI instructor Mrs. Terrell Castaneda.

Mrs. Castaneda had charged the college with sexual discrimination involving her contract nonrenewal two years ago.

Mrs. Gonzales said the commission had found reasonable cause that the college had discriminated in the Castaneda case, and had directed its staff to seek a conciliation agreement to satisfy both the college and Mrs. Castaneda.

Mrs. Gonzales said the commission and the college had reached a substantial agreement on most points of the proposed conciliation agreement, but had failed to reach agreement on several points.

The points under negotiation have not been made public by the commission.

Mrs. Gonzales said the commission will either find the college has discriminated or not discriminated following the next hearing.

TF City Council approves bids

TWIN FALLS — Five bids for city parks and recreation equipment were approved Monday night by the Twin Falls City Council. The council also heard a report on bids for the $5 million sewer plant project.

City Manager Jehu Miller bid the council the bids for the sewer plant are being studied by the consulting engineer, Environmental Protection Agency and the Department of Environmental and Community Services. He said the bid was within the estimated costs but the third phase for sludge removal equipment was above estimates. The basic bid of $4.8 million and an apparent low was submitted by Detweiler Bros. Inc. Twin Falls.

The council approved a bid of $4,929 from Strand Shipping for hauling of three cement plants at Harmon Park; a bid of $16,341 from Super Secur Co., Burlingame, Calif., for restrooms at Harmon and Terry Parks; a bid of $13,129 from Miracle Co., for lot lot equipment; a bid of $13,357.12 from Northside Tractor Co., for a diesel tractor with loader and back hoe, and the Bill Workman Ford Co. bid of $3,457.71 for a station wagon for the parks and recreation department.

The council postponed action on another bid, that of Boggs Builders for metal storage shed for golf carts at the municipal golf course. The bid of $11,884.84 exceeded the estimate of $10,000 budgeted for the project. Council members felt the fact only one bid was received might indicate bids at a later date would bring more bidding interest and a better price.

The restrooms and lot lot equipment are purchased with part of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation project grant while the other items will be purchased from revenues sharing money. The total six bids amounted to $23,027.61 with the city having budgeted a total of $23,900 for all six.

Estimation of big cost storage building is expected to reduce the revenue sharing expenditures still further.

Council members also approved a resolution vacating a 10-foot utility easement in the Wycoff industrial subdivision. City Manager Jehu Miller was authorized to call for bids for sidewalk construction May 31.

Program set

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Vocational Training Center will present "Cinderella" Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church dining room.

No admission will be charged for the local production, although donations will be welcomed. Refreshments will be served following the play.

TF man moved to Utah hospital

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man, critically injured in an automobile accident Sunday morning, was transferred to the Salt Lake Veterans Hospital Monday for special treatment.

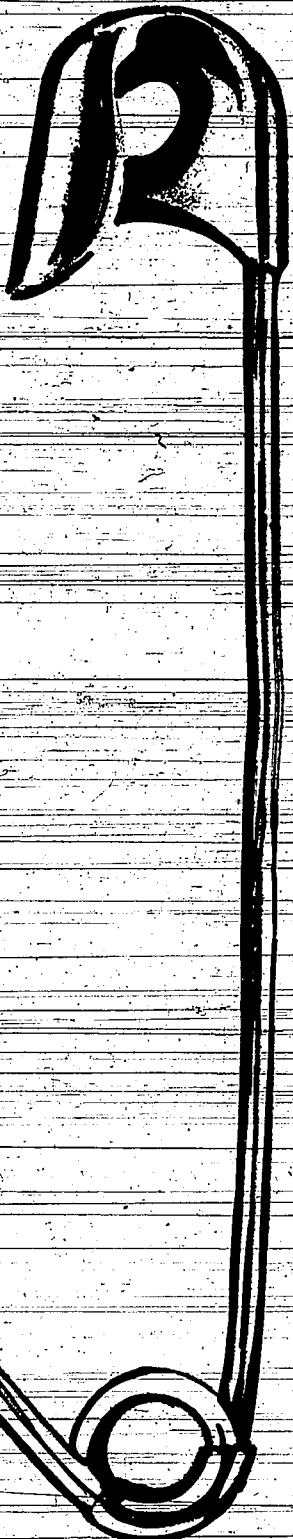

Homer E. Huffman, 32, was taken by plane to the Salt Lake Veterans Facility Monday afternoon to be placed on a kidney dialysis machine. Treatment not available at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Huffman remained in critical condition at the time of his transfer.

Subsidies for area's wealthy

The questionable practice of dunning the federal treasury to pay agricultural subsidies to big farmers has become even more questionable in an era of rising farm prosperity. Idaho farmers and ranchers divided up about $14 million in federal subsidies during 1973. Magic Valley got its share of the booty.

It is ironic that the list of large landowners and corporations who got the lion's share of the federal subsidies—with many exceptions—reads like a who's who of Idaho's conservative political circles. There is a possible double standard in effect, which decries federal spending but which all too readily accepts the handout. It might be added that those receiving the biggest chunks of cash hardly qualify as the Magic Valley's neediest citizens.

Here are the people who got more than $20,000 last year in Magic Valley.

Blaine County: Campbell Land and Livestock Co., $26,068.
Cassia County: Deseret Livestock, $80,520; Simplot Industries, $63,092; Heglar Ranch, Inc., $44,783; R. C. Rich Sheep Co., $33,030; Raymond H. Johnson, $30,521; Parr Bros., Inc., $28,519; Vista Land Inc., $28,035; Howard R. Adams, $27,658; Anderson Bros., $25,537; Critchfield Land and Livestock, $23,923; W. B. Whiteley, $21,587; and Frank Gillette, $20,404.

Gooding County: Ralph Faulkner Land, Inc., $47,093 and Arkosh and Zidan, Inc., $26,050.
Meadowdale County: Simplot Livestock Co., $80,900; H. and K. Farms, $54,036; Rosemary H. Clinton, $34,735; James V. Haley, $34,735; Flat Top Sheep Co., $31,281; Warren W. Heins, $29,134; Bilenco Farms Inc., $27,839; Wilbert H. Miller, $25,492; W. H. Shillington, $24,696; Gerald Morgan, $24,696; Lloyd L. Vern Patterson, $21,428; George B. Brandon, $21,291; and Garro Sheep Co., $20,913.
Twin Falls County: Nohr Sheep Co., $30,367; W. B. Savage Ranches, $22,117.

Other Valley counties had no single person receiving more than $20,000.

There is ample ground for optimism in the 1973 figures. For one thing the total Idaho handout has declined rapidly in recent years. The current total was less than one third of the 1972 payments which had been over $51 million.

It is unfair to blame specific stockmen and farmers for accepting payments that are rightfully theirs under the law. The point is that the law is a poor one. We can see little reason for continuing federal subsidy of large farmers and ranchers, who in Magic Valley at least, would include a good many of the area's richest people.

The wealthy really don't need welfare.

"How Did You Get Your Wash So Bright?"

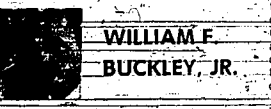

Redress for trial injustice lacking

Concerning the exoneration of John Mitchell and Maurice Stans, a few observations:

1. The anonymous White House spokesman who complained that Mitchell and Stans had in effect been held up as guilty in the public mind is correct. In those pocket collections carried about by the Nixon-haters, those close to Nixon who have pleaded guilty are generally omitted. The point is made, once again, that an indictment is not a conviction.
2. My own feeling is that the charges against Mitchell and Stans were just this side of incredible—and, judging only from the newspaper accounts—had myself concluded that they were not guilty. However, it remains technically possible that they were guilty, and that the jury responded to a number of factors extrinsic of the question of their guilt or innocence.
3. Most directly, there is the question of John Dean's credibility. The reports are again anonymous—from the White House or another source—less than jubilant on the point. Not only were Mitchell and Stans found innocent, they were saying in effect, but Dean has been found guilty. This is a rigorous exercise in logic. The propositions would build as follows:
 - If Dean was truthful, Mitchell and Stans are guilty.
 - Mitchell and Stans were not guilty.

Therefore, Dean was untruthful. This is too easy. One of the jurors was interrogated by a reporter. "We started talking about the credibility of the witnesses and why they were talking now," the young juror said. "We had a reasonable doubt because of these witnesses because we didn't feel the evidence was substantiated."

The reporter pursued the point: Did they in effect find that Dean was not a credible witness? "I'd rather not say," it was never even from the words that the jury, a majority of whom began by voting Mitchell and Stans guilty on several counts, changed their verdicts after examining themselves most strictly on the issue of reasonable doubt.

They exonerated Mitchell and Stans because there was in the jury's mind reasonable doubt concerning their guilt and reasonable doubt about the weight of the evidence of a confessed perjurer. If the identical jury should have turned next to the question of whether Dean had committed a perjury in his Watergate accusations, it would not have been in the least inconsistent for the jury to have found Dean not guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

We are reminded, however, that there are fluctuations, jury by jury, in the criteria given to any given witness. The indictments handed down against a number of White House figures, including John Mitchell who must now stand trial again, are based on the "heavy" but circumstantial evidence makes Dean's testimony plausible: The trials to come will not depend exclusively on his testimony.

Meanwhile one is reminded of the terrible burden of a trial of such complexity on the men found innocent. I do not know how much money Mitchell and Stans spent, but I would be surprised if it was less than $200,000 apiece. I find it incredible that men prosecuted by the government, and found not guilty by the jury, should be left short of the money necessary to defend themselves.

Mitchell and Stans may not be the galvanizing agents for legislation to redress this incredible injustice, but it is injustice nevertheless, and one strains to hear the voice of the civil liberties lobby that seeks to correct it.

The study "Energy and petroleum exporting nations" divides these groups into three: "oil maximizing" production (Two-Kuwait and Libya), "try to" consume oil, received by Saudi Arabia, "Residual supplies" headed by Saudi Arabia, comprise the third group. This indicates as much a division among producers as there is in the United States, France, the Netherlands and Japan.

The same distinction helps understand Middle East.

Saudi Arabia and Egypt have parallel policies that tend to sympathize with U.S. approaches to Middle East problems and to energy. Iraq is pro-Soviet. Libya and Algeria are antagonistic.

Another distinction that must continually be recalled is that West Europe and Japan depend largely on Middle Eastern oil whereas North America is on the self-sufficiency.

OMB, Detroit attack EPA powers

WASHINGTON—A vicious assault by the White House and the auto industry against the Environment Protection Agency's Clean Air Act standards for lead, begun last week, was carried out without talking to EPA Director Russell Train.

The fight is over whether EPA should be stripped of power to test new automobiles for how many miles per gallon they can be going designed by the auto industry. EPA has been measuring miles-per-gallon efficiency of new cars as an offshoot of its legal mandate to control auto pollution.

Auto-makers claim EPA findings are unfair and inaccurate. So, in accord with the Nixon administration's rule of ignoring the consumer, Ash's Office of Management and Budget (OMB) has been plotting a switch of the fuel economy role from EPA to either the Commerce Department or Transportation Department—both industry-oriented.

But behind the White House effort to strip testing from the consumer-oriented EPA is a more dangerous game which goes into a clandestine administration effort to put its own self-pollution control program. The game was spelled out by an EPA emission-control report in this confidential memorandum to Train April 26.

"What we see as really involved in the proposed move of fuel economy testing out of EPA is an effort to ensure that EPA is not engaged in a fight over the auto emission standards... all real influence depends on the ability to obtain, assimilate and use information."

That memo, signed by Deputy Assistant Administrator Eric Stork, said what saved the Clean Air Standards Act during last winter's gasoline shortage was EPA's control of data on which emission standards are based.

In short, once it loses power to tell consumers how many miles per gallon a new car will make, EPA is convinced it will next be plundered of its emission-control authority. This likely benefactor, the Commerce Department, never famed for protecting consumers.

"Through this attack on EPA, Ash has never discussed the problem with Train, although for the first time last week lower level OMB officials began talks with EPA). In contrast, Ash has had chats about EPA with Detroit moguls, Ash told us—he also has discussed the rape of EPA with Secretary of Transportation Claude Brinegar, and with top Commerce Department officials."

Ash, whose power in the Nixon White House is growing, told us "satisfying the consumer" is the main reason for the projected shakeup. During the energy shortage, Ash was Nixon's chief henchman in warning EPA that its emission standards were wasting vast amounts of gasoline. Car-warmer anger over emission controls was exploited by Ash to pressure EPA to relax "Congressionally-imposed standards."

EPA admits shortcomings in its mileage testing and is correcting them. But the most compelling argument for joining mileage testing is the testing is done as part of EPA's emission controls, testing and costs virtually nothing. "As Stork said in his memorandum to Train: 'any other agency'—by its authority, a mammoth job of setting up facilities."

To Ash, as guardian of the President's budget, that would seem to be a good reason for leaving EPA in charge. But Ash's goal is satisfying Detroit.

Thought for Today

A thought for the day: Scottish essayist Thomas Carlyle said: "Adversity if sometimes stand properly, there are a hundred who will stand adversity."

Resigning unthinkable

WASHINGTON—The toughest thing for a business executive when he retires is to realize that, after a long career of directing people and making major multimillion-dollar decisions, he has no one to order around and no vital business problems to resolve.

While this is frustrating for the retired man, it's even tougher on his wife.

The other day Zuckert's wife came over to see me. Zuckert, vice president of a large corporation, had been retired for six months. Mrs. Zuckert was beginning to show the strain. "I don't know what I'm going to do," she said. "Abbot's driving me up the wall. He's running the house just the way he used to run the business."

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"All the drive and energy that went into his 35-year career is now being directed toward me. I am no longer a housewife; I am now vice president in charge of household management. This includes cooking, housecleaning, marketing and getting rid of the garbage."

"Abbot insists that I haven't been running the house at full efficiency, and there is a great deal of overlapping of duties. He's instituted a systems control so we can cut costs and, as he puts it, 'get a bigger bang for the buck.'"

"Abbot always was cost-conscious," I said.

"He wants me to keep by shopping lists in triplicate, and to submit requisitions to the executive committee before I buy any household appliances over $25. When he first retired, I humored him about it. I realized he was in a decompression tank, and it would take time before he realized he was no longer in business."

"But instead of getting better, it's getting worse. Last night he asked me if I intended to take a position on spinach. I said I hadn't given it any thought, and he pointed out that a supermarket was having a sale on spinach and it might be a good time to buy up as much as we could." By summer," he said, "spinach could be in short supply, and we could make a killing in it."

"I replied that we couldn't keep spinach until the summertime and, since there were only two of us, there was just so much we could consume. He ordered me to set up a research and development department so we could find a way to keep spinach fresh until summer."

"You really have your hands full," I told Mrs. Zuckert.

"You don't know what I've been going through!"

"Every time I come home, Abbot has a new chart in the kitchen. He keeps talking about increased production and slashing labor costs. Since I'm the only laborer in the house, it makes me nervous about my job."

"Who wouldn't be?" I asked.

"The worst things are his poems. Every night I throw one on my pillow pointing out a mistake I made that day."

"Have an idea," I told Mrs. Zuckert. "Why don't you threaten to resign?"

"That's," she replied tearfully, "and he said if I did I would lose my pension plan."

Fuel role in policy examined

(C) New York Times Service
CAIRO—If the energy crisis accomplished nothing else, it did provoke up-to-date studies of the role of fuel in a complex modern world and the implications of oil to the economies, commerce and diplomacy of both petroleum producers and industrial consumers.

The most recent study, completed after a late-March meeting of Japanese, North American (United States and Canada) and European experts, has produced conclusions that are heartening although predicated on certain contingencies.

The assumption of this report, inspired by the Brookings Institution, is that neither true peace nor another major conflict will break out in the Middle East and that no important technological breakthrough can be envisioned between now and 1985.

The fundamental conclusion is that unilateral actions will not solve the problems posed which must be faced on a multilateral basis.

To improve their basic position, it is suggested that industrialized nations consider establishing a data bank in which all oil transactions would be recorded. It is also proposed they agree that all bilateral deals would be subject to scrutiny by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD).

Beyond these recommendations, the experts conclude the world isn't faced by an imminent energy shortage and, if nations act wisely, it can avoid continuously rising prices.

Ask Not for Whom the Bell Tolls

'Profit' attack
unreal in tone

Editor, Times-News:
Recently a certain word has been resounding throughout the media with all of its concomitant ugly reactions and abusive connotations. That word is conspiracy. Senators Frank Church and Henry Jackson have unleashed an unprecedented attack on the oil industry that has a tone of unrelenting hostility.

Resorting to methods that can best be described as cashing in on what is hopefully the prevalent atmosphere of the public, both Senators have declared the oil industry guilty, guilty regardless of facts, guilty of conspiracy before trial, guilty of "what? Profits. This is an unequivocal endorsement that profits because they are profits are evil. And the effective punishment to be administered for the sin consists of fines, surtaxes, excess profit taxes, windfall-profit taxes, etc. By what right, by what standard does Mr. Church assume the government should pocket all profits with eroding taxes instead of leaving them with the producers? What does Mr. Church or Jackson or anyone think the producers of oil do with profits?

At a time when the cost of drilling a new well exceeds $100,000 (a large percentage turn-out dry) and the cost of an oil refinery producing 150,000 barrels a day exceeds 200 million dollars and at a time when even in the light of this situation the government wants to beat the industry black and blue, how could such an important economic livelihood continue to be "refined" under such an onerous uncertainty? So how the much chanting mentality consists of "Why aren't there more wells and refineries? Conspiracy! Break them!"

If the word conspiracy is to have any meaning at all, let Mr. Church or Mr. Jackson or anyone observe the following elegant account from Anthony F. Mavriello, an industry spokesman in the N.Y. Times of Jan. 7, 1974. "But it has not been the oil industry that has..."

...delayed for more than half a decade the bringing down of the approximately 1 billion barrels of crude oil from Alaskan north slopes... refused to release federal offshore tracts... imposed emission controls on automobiles costing 30,000 barrels of crude oil a day...

...raised the industry's tax burden at a time when drilling operations should increase. For reasons known only to themselves, Mr. Church and Mr. Jackson chose to ignore these facts.

Unwanted's' fate not kind

Editor, Times-News:
Do people really realize the impact that animals have on our daily lives? They provide food, clothing, entertainment, companionship and a variety of other tangible and intangible necessities to mankind. This has been true throughout history, but we often take the animal kingdom for granted. This is true of some of our beautiful wildlife and valuable domestic livestock and companion animals such as the family dog or cat or horse. We so often regard things as disposable, or simply for our convenience, and we should all...

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Tests major aid in diagnosing VD cases

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I read your statement that a blood test for syphilis is routine as part of a prenatal test. Is this test routine anytime you enter the hospital for a test - G. I. series, etc.?
You also stated that a test for gonorrhea must be made from a smear taken from the cervix. Is this done when you have a Pap smear? - C. H.
It is risky for the baby if a mother has the disease and is not tested for syphilis before the baby is born. And I mean a considerable time before the baby is born, and not just when the mother enters the hospital. As to routine tests of patients in general, many hospitals do make a blood test for syphilis when the patient is admitted but I want you to understand that "admitted" means the patient has been taken into the hospital as a bed-patient. The syphilis test is not...

performed routinely when you go to a hospital just to have X-rays, whether a G. I. (gastrointestinal) series, or others. As for the gonorrhea test, a simplified method has been developed for identifying that germ, and often is done at the time of a Pap smear, although not always, by any means. I have no doubt it would be a good thing to do it a good deal sooner than is now the case, simply because a fairly high percentage of women are found to have gonorrhea although they are totally unaware of it. That's one of the vicious things about gonorrhea: women (but seldom men) can have it without any apparent sign of it. They can spread the disease without knowing it, and they also can, in time, suffer very serious harm themselves, not discovering it until it is too late to prevent or undo the damage.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently had a blood test for...

syphilis which showed positive. But a later, complete test was negative. My doctor assured me I don't have syphilis and never did - but I don't understand why. Could you explain? - T. Y.
It's easily explained. There are various tests for syphilis, some quicker and simpler than others, and what you had first was doubtless a "screening test" which is fine for detecting the great mass of cases but also will give a positive reading in the presence of a variety of virus infections including infectious mononucleosis, malaria, viral pneumonia, liver disease and even certain types of arthritis. When such false positives appear, a more sensitive and more specific test is used to distinguish the false from the true positives.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl, 21, unmarried and a virgin. I would like to have Pap tests. Is it possible to have such an examination? Does the doctor have to use an instrument? Perhaps I should not go for the examination. Can you explain? - R. D.
No reason to avoid the examination. Ordinarily there is an opening in the hymen that is sufficiently large to permit an examination without instruments (except for a simple swab to gather up the necessary matter) and without discomfort. Occasionally instruments may be used if the hymenal opening is smaller...

than usual, but that is done routinely if needed.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you approve dancing for a patient who had apparently recovered from a heart attack? - J. B.

I might, yes, but it would depend on whether he could dance without experiencing such symptoms as chest pain, shortness of breath, fatigue, etc.

New Way Found
To Stop Hair Loss,
Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas - If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss... and grow more hair.
For years, they said it couldn't be done. But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women that is not only stopping hair loss... but is, in fact, growing new hair.
They don't even ask you to take their medicine. They just ask you to try the treatment for 32 days in their clinic and see for yourself. Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.
The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.
Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days at their clinic, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information they desire. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation.

Our LNG Plant can supply 60,000 new homes with heat.

LNG is short for Liquefied Natural Gas, and our LNG plant is scheduled for completion this July. The pictures show how it will work.

If used for residential heating, the 600,000 therms per day output on the coldest winter days would keep an additional 60,000 southern Idaho homes snug and warm. We don't expect a building boom that would add that many homes within the next few years, but if one develops, we thought you'd like to know we'll be ready for it.

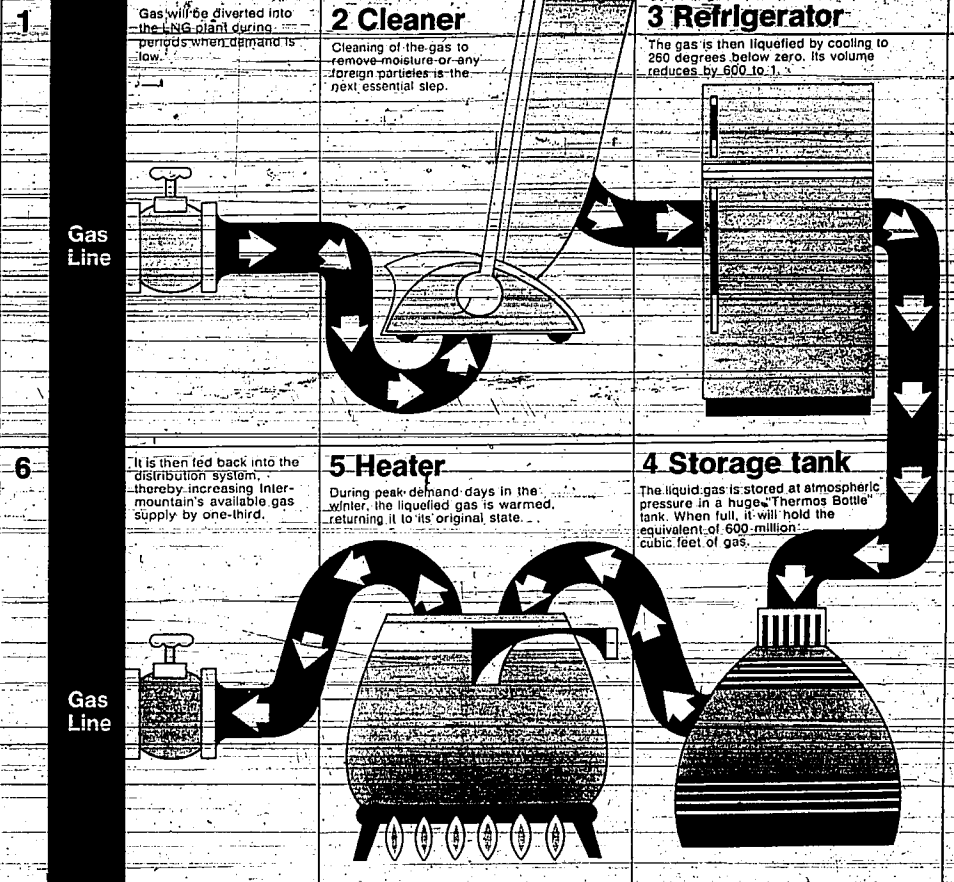

In Idaho, we have gas to burn, but we must burn it wisely. That is why we have customer relations representatives in all our offices... to help you plan your heating, water heating, cooking and other uses for maximum efficiency and economy.

Brandt quits Bonn post in spy scandal echoes

(C) N. Y. Times Service
 BRANDT, Chancellor Willy Brandt, taking responsibility for "negligence" that allowed an East German communist spy to become a member of his staff, took the drastic and unexpected step Monday night of tendering his resignation to President Gustav W. Heinemann.

Brandt, in a two-paragraph handwritten letter, asked that Foreign Minister Walter Scheel be named to fill his place until parliament elects a successor.

Heinemann was in Hamburg and Brandt's chief of staff, Horst Grabert, flew there for a 20-minute conference shortly before midnight.

Heinemann, according to a spokesman for his office in Bonn, accepted Brandt's letter, without insisting that he remain in office. This means that, as Brandt had requested, Foreign Minister Scheel automatically took over from him this morning. A successor must be elected by more than half the members of the Bundestag before May 16, a day after Scheel is expected to be elected president. The most likely successor to Brandt as chancellor appeared to be the 56-year-old finance minister, Helmut Schmidt.

Brandt's sudden move baffled many here, though the weekly news magazine Der Spiegel had reported that there were rumors he might quit.

But it was not until shortly after 7 p.m. that Brandt called political leaders of the government and the opposition to his offices and explained his decision.

Under the constitution, several courses are open to Brandt: He could be re-elected by the Bundestag to succeed himself, he could run for the presidency in Scheel's place, or he could leave the political scene.

Close friends confirmed this past weekend that Brandt had been deeply disappointed and depressed by the matter, which became public on April 25. The day before Brandt's aide for party affairs, Gunter Guillaume, was arrested, and he confessed that he was an agent for East Germany, from which he "defected" to this country 18 years ago.

Reports that Brandt was thinking of quitting had appeared before, whenever he was suffering one of his moods of depression and fatigue.

Brandt's resignation, he has to stay in office until Heinemann accepts it, and he could be held to succeed himself — was explained by a close friend tonight as "a way of assuming responsibility honorably."

The scandal had been reported to be prepared to ask for the resignation of his minister, for research and technology, Dr. Horst Ehanke, who was head of the chancellery at the end of 1962, was responsible for appointing Guillaume to a staff position.

What made the rumors of resignation particularly plausible this time was that Brandt had to make some changes in his cabinet anyway.

Heinemann is expected to be succeeded by Scheel in a special presidential election on May 15. The foreign minister had said for months, however, that he would gladly let the chancellor run in his place for the ceremonial office of the presidency.

Calley ruling pending

COLUMBUS, Ga. (UPI) — The Army asked a federal judge Monday to revoke the ball of former Lt. William L. Calley, now dishonorably discharged and returned to confinement for the My Lai massacre.

Judge J. Robert Elliott said he would rule "shorily" on the motion that the $10,000 recognition bond that he approved for Calley Feb. 27 be revoked.

The judge identified, however, that he would allow Calley to remain free pending appeal of his conviction for the murder of at least 22 civilians at the South Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai in a 1968 U.S. Army operation.

Calley had been confined to his bachelor officers' quarters nearby at Benning until he was granted bond. He has served three years of his reduced 10-year sentence, but has spent only one night in military stockade. He would be eligible for parole in six months.

Elliott set June 24 for hearing arguments on Calley's appeal of his conviction. Calley's attorneys filed a 359-page brief Monday to support his appeal.

The brief contends that

Calley was the victim of command influence in the Army and "intense pretrial publicity" in his court-martial and did not get a fair trial.

Calley, the "only soldier convicted" in the My Lai massacre, originally received a life sentence but that was reduced to 20 years by his commanding general, Army Secretary Howard Callaway, who reduced the sentence to 10 years last month and the case then was passed on to President Nixon for final action.

Nixon last Saturday said he had reviewed the case and would take no further action on it. Calley was immediately given a dishonorable discharge from the Army.

Calley's lawyers, claiming their client had been "muzzled" by President Nixon and Callaway, refused to allow Calley to answer any questions Monday.

On a practical judgment viewpoint, the question is if Mr. Calley goes out and makes public statements, somewhere up the line will someone take offense at those statements and send him paroled," said Kenneth M. Henson, a Columbus attorney.

Nixon's tax, campaign troubles win Pulitzer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The trustees of Columbia University Monday awarded Pulitzer prizes to two reporters who exposed President Nixon's income tax problems and revealed improprieties in financing his reelection campaign.

The award for a "distinguished example of reporting on national affairs" went to James B. Doherty of the Washington Star-News, who was credited with revealing the extent of diary and trucking industry contributions. He identified herpetologist Kenneth R. Felt as a key figure in the President's secret $200,000 donation made by Robert Vesco, the New Jersey financier who has since left the country to escape prosecution.

A similar award for national reporting went to Jack Whitely of the Providence (R.I.) Journal and Evening Bulletin, for his initiative in exclusively disclosing President Nixon's federal income tax payments in 1970 and 1971.

What's on my mind each week is... This week, for example, I wrote about gardens.

Criticism: Emily Genauer of the Newday Syndicate for her art reviews.

The arts awards:

—U.S. history: "The Americans: The Democratic Experience," by Daniel J. Boorstin, senior historian at the Smithsonian.

—Biography: "O'Neill, Son and Artist," by Louis Sheaffer; the book is the second volume of the definitive biography of the playwright.

—The Dolphin, by Robert Lowell, Anthony Hecht, a fellow Pulitzer Prize winning poet, described "The Dolphin" as "intimately linked to the scene, with a personal and personal narrative line."

Book not included in another category: "The Denial of Death," a reflective work by Ernest Becker, a professor at the University of British Columbia who died of cancer within a year of completing it.

—Musical composition: "Notturno," a piece of chamber music by Donald Martino, who teaches composition at the New England Conservatory in Boston.

Special citation for public work: a distinguished composer, Roger Sessions of Princeton, N.J., a 77-year-old master described by the prize committee as "one of the most innovative and productive of composers."

Polk said in Washington after learning of the award, "This was a year in which six or seven Pulitzers could have been awarded for the Watergate disclosures, the breakdown of the Watergate cover-up, the President's personal finances."

Jenner ouster beaten

(C) Chicago Daily News
 WASHINGTON — Attorney Albert E. (Bert) Jenner has survived an open move to dump him as Republican counsel in the House Judiciary Committee on the eve of hearings into whether President Nixon should be impeached.

Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, the ranking GOP member of the panel, squelched a demand for Jenner's scold issued by Rep. Lawrence J. Hogan, R-Md., in a five-page letter to Hutchinson, Hogan outlined his case against Jenner, charging that he violated the committee's rules and suggesting that he was biased against Nixon.

Hutchinson said he took 30 minutes to read Hogan's letter before he issued a fast rebuttal in a public statement. "I do not believe Hogan's demand for the resignation of Mr. Jenner at this point is shared by a majority of the Republican minority," Hutchinson said.

"I would think it foolhardy to dismiss such able and distinguished counsel on the eve of presentation of exonerating material to the committee," he added.

Hogan reportedly had lined up backing from several other of the 17 GOP members of the panel for his ouster. Jenner's attorney, Hutchinson said, stated, Rep. Thomas F. Railsback, R-Ill., said he was afraid Jenner's job might be in jeopardy if it came to a showdown.

Railsback strongly defended Jenner, as did Rep. Robert McCloskey, R-Ill., the second senior Republican on the panel. Rep. Hamilton Fish, R-N.Y., said he would be a disaster if Jenner were forced to leave now.

More conservative members of the committee, such as Rep. David W. Dennis, R-Ind., echoed Hogan's criticism of Jenner. Dennis said, however, that he was not sure whether the 56-year-old corporation lawyer should be ousted.

The usually vocal Jenner had no comment on Hogan's attack. But Fish quoted Jenner as telling his attorney that "Don't worry, I won't resign."

Jenner's defenders praised his professional skills and rejected Hogan's theory that the minority counsel should make "a Republican contribution" to the impeachment investigation.

Anti-lead efforts may be unnecessary

DETROIT (UPI) — All the effort to get the lead out of gasoline to protect the emission control devices on next year's cars, may not be necessary, says a Chrysler Corp. scientist.

Dr. D. Maxwell Teague, Chrysler's chief research scientist, revealed Monday that laboratory tests have shown it is possible to produce a lead-free gasoline in a time for the tetraethyl lead — that may be harmful to the catalytic converters.

The muffler-like devices use platinum and palladium to change harmful emissions of carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons into harmless carbon dioxide and water. They will be virtually all of the 1975 models.

It has been thought the lead added to present gasoline to insure there will be a good supply of unleaded fuel available when the 1975 models are introduced in the fall.

Under government orders, the petroleum industry is working to meet a July 1 deadline to have unleaded gasoline in 111,000 service stations in time for the introduction of the 1975 models. Another 10,000 stations, mostly in rural areas, must have one pump with unleaded fuel by Jan. 1, 1975.

The "hurry fuel tank filler" hoses on 1975 models will allow service stations to use present pump nozzles in an attempt to keep the leaded gasoline out of catalytic-equipped cars.

Ford seeks backing from business men

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford said business leaders Monday night they should not let "morale" feelings toward the White House affect their vote in this year's Congressional elections.

He suggested they vote Republican for their own good.

"Don't come around wringing your hands and seeking pity in '75 and '76 if you don't do something to make sure your friends have a fair shake in the election of 1974," Ford said.

In a reference to the Nixon administration scandal, he said, "Don't take out your moralistic attitude vis-a-vis the executive branch on elected members of the House and Senate."

"I just think before you make a moralistic decision on the senatorial and House races, just bear in mind what you faced as businessmen in 1965 and 1966 when there were 295 people on that side of the aisle and 140 of us on this side of the aisle. You had a tough time as business people."

Ford was referring to the Democratic sweep of the House in 1964, the year of the lopsided Johnson-Goldwater presidential election.

Ford, appearing before a panel of the Economic Club of New York, made his remarks during a question-and-answer session with two panel members selected by the club.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: To begin with, my husband has always been a big liar. Last summer he found a pair of nylon garters under the seat of his pickup truck and when I asked him where they came from and what they were doing there, he said they were probably mine and he was using them for car rags. I told him I didn't wear that kind and they didn't make very good car rags and I gave him something else to use.

I forgot all about it until yesterday when I came across another pair of panties in the glove compartment of his pickup. This time I knew for sure they weren't mine because this pair had "Wednesday" on them. Abby, I know he can't be that despicable for car rags.

Hubby's pickup

What do you suppose is going on? I hope you print this because I'd like to tell my husband he was fooling around with his pickup. He forgot to pick up "Wednesday" on his pants.

NOT FOOTED IN STAMPTON-VA

DEAR NOT: If your husband intends to continue picking up in his pickup, he should tell his friends to pick up after themselves—and that means Monday through Sunday!

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who claims she can analyze a person by his physical characteristics.

For example, she says a high forehead is a sign of a party animal. She includes a low forehead, is a sign of average or below average intelligence. (She has a high forehead—mine is low.)

She also says that people with long, narrow thumbs have a natural advantage over people with short, stubby thumbs because long narrow thumbs are more dependable. Friendly and easy to get along with, but short stubby thumbs mean you are irresponsible, unfriendly and hard to get along with. (Her thumbs are long and narrow. Mine are short and stubby.)

I would like to prove her wrong about her thumb pronouncements but don't know where to find proof, so I am writing to you. DISBELIEVING

DEAR DIN: Since she made the "pronouncements," ask her to prove it. Ask her to give you the only natural advantage of a long thumb—has over the short stubby thumb which is in hitchhiking.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my neighbor who lives directly above me in an elegant townhouse apartment building on the elite east side of Manhattan.

This gentleman lives alone and gets up every morning of his life at 7 a.m. This includes Christmas, New Year's Day and Sundays. He makes noise which lasts until 7 a.m. I don't know exactly what he is doing, but it sounds like he's exercising, rattling on the floor or joggling in one place. All this in his bedroom; which is over my.

I don't have to be awakened now, 7 a.m. and it irritates me to be awakened two hours early every day. Once I'm awake, I cannot get back to sleep.

I've tried everything. I invited him here for a Christmas party, and then gently took him aside and told him that his early rising morning noises bothered me. He said all he does is "get dressed," and he can't understand how that could disturb me.

I talked to my landlady and she said she has only my word, and she can't demand that he leave before his lease expires in three years. My lease has another year to go.

Please don't suggest I try to make friends with him again. It's gone beyond that. I see now, I saw my lawyer at a party recently, and he suggested I phone this neighbor every morning at 7 a.m. and ask him how he likes to be awakened two hours early every morning. Please, please help me. My nerves are shot!

MRS. S.

DEAR MRS. S.: I'd take the lawyer's advice, after which I'd ask my druggist to recommend the best earplugs available. It's that falls, invite your landlady to sleep the night with you, and share a rude awakening.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Officials glean transcript data

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Agriculture Secretary Earl Butte said he had only read a page or two "then I turned it over to my general counsel to look over."

Secretary Casper Weinberger of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said he has "so concentrated on HEW programs he had not time to read through the voluminous document."

"Am I in it?" asked Housing Secretary James T. Lynn.

"No," said a reporter.

"Good," said Lynn, grinning. "One member of the cabinet who has been close to the inner councils for years and asked not to be identified, said that he could not bring himself to read the entire text. He made it clear he found it too 'sordid.'"

The President himself appears to be relatively at peace with himself after having released the transcript. His aides said he was in a "good frame of mind" and amazingly able to carry on his presidential duties. They said that he has been concentrating on the economy, would meet with his top advisers to discuss inflation today and would sign today the new federal energy act.

National winner

WYOMING'S Loren Ann Morris, 18, was crowned America's Junior Miss of 1974 in Mobile, Ala., Monday night.

Susan Stephenson, 18, Lincoln, Neb., was first runner-up, and Lilly Momamura, 17, Las Vegas, Nev., second runner-up in the national pageant.

Mrs. Morris was presented a $10,000 scholarship as the top prize and a pair of $1,000 scholarships for winning the "poist and appearance and youth fitness categories" in preliminary judging. (UPI)

Edited material not sufficient

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Even before reading the 1,300 pages of White House transcripts, many House Judiciary Committee members conclude they need more information from President Nixon to determine whether grounds exist for his impeachment.

A survey of nearly a dozen members on the 38-member committee indicated that most felt that the edited transcripts were "not sufficient." Many indicated they hoped the White House would comply with a request for additional information, especially in the areas of contributions from the milk industry and the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. (ITT).

Reaction from members of the committee ranged from proposals made by conservative Republicans to reopen negotiations with the White House for the release of more material to a recommendation from Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., that Nixon be cited for contempt of Congress.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said he hoped the committee would hold its first closed hearing to receive evidence on Thursday. The committee will hear confidential evidence in closed sessions for about three days and then open public hearings, perhaps by late next week.

In a separate action Rep. Lawrence Hogan, R-Md., sent a letter to ranking Republican Edward Hutchinson of Michigan asking him to request the resignation of chief minority counsel Albert Jenner. Hogan was critical of what he called Jenner's "lack of objectivity" in public statements during the inquiry and failure to serve Republicans.

Hutchinson said, however, "I think it foolhardy to dismiss such an able and distinguished counsel" on the eve of the presentation of evidence to the committee.

WASHINGTON (UPI)— It would be a bigger mistake for Congress not to act on impeachment if the government's integrity is at stake than if it does not act on impeachment, says House Speaker Carl Albert.

"It is a major matter to impeach the President and it should not be done on a questionable or even on flimsy grounds," Albert said Monday.

"It should be done on only the most serious circumstances. Not to take action when the integrity of the government is at stake would be a bigger mistake."

WASHINGTON (UPI)— FBI agents declined to identify the apartment fragments found in the apartment, which was discovered by police last Thursday.

A grocer in the neighborhood said a woman matching Miss Hearst's description shopped several times in his store and apparently was alone.

In tape-recorded messages, Miss Hearst has said she voluntarily joined the SLA as a "soldier" and denounced her family. Her father, Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, said the whereabouts of his daughter was the victim of "mind control."

WASHINGTON (UPI)— The new military junta has offered to free guerrilla prisoners in Portugal's African territories if rebels fighting for independence lay down their arms in Angola, Mozambique and Guinea.

Gen. Francisco Costa Gomes, army chief of staff, returned Monday from a two-day trip to Angola and told newsmen the junta's decision to free political prisoners did not apply to African guerrillas.

"The amnesty does not cover guerrillas, but once the guerrilla movement lay down their arms the guerrillas imprisoned will be released," he said.

The general said his appeal to guerrillas in Angola to stop shooting and talk had been a definite offer of a cease-fire for all the territories.

In contrast to Gomes' comments, Lt. Col. Mateus da Silva, chief of the Portuguese garrison in Guinea, said Monday "political prisoners still detained will be freed in the shortest possible time."

Ketchum election set
KETCHUM — The Ketchum City Council has called a bond election for June 25 for construction of a $225,000 city municipal building.
 The election will attempt to raise monies to house police and fire departments and all city offices.
 Big Wood Land Development Co. has donated land at the junction of Tenth Street and US Highway 53 on the east side of Anderson Lumber Co.
 A mill levy increase has not been set.

Accommodations needed
TWIN FALLS — Overnight accommodations are needed for 45 members of the Utah State University band Friday.
 The band and jazz and percussion ensembles will give a concert Friday evening at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium and members of the band need places to stay overnight.
 Families who could host one or more band members are asked to call Elizabeth Call, Hansen, 425-4878, for more information.

SL couple injured
BURLEY — A Salt Lake City couple was injured Monday in a one-car rollover on Interstate 80 north of the Sublett interchange.
 State police said the driver, Mrs. Edna Whimpey, 62, apparently went to sleep while northbound one mile north of the interchange.
 Her car went off the right edge of the pavement, crossed back over the roadway, passed into the median and rolled over.
 Both Mrs. Whimpey, who was thrown from the vehicle, and her husband, Lynn, who received head injuries, were hospitalized at Cassia Memorial Hospital. They were reported in satisfactory condition today.
 State police said the car was demolished.

Hearing today
TWIN FALLS — An Idaho Public Utilities Commission hearing on an Idaho Power Co. request for a rate increase began at 1 p.m. today.
 If approved, the increase will raise average residential customer bills about $2.19 per month and will bring the company about $9.7 million in additional annual revenues.
 Albert Carlson, president of the power company, said the raise is needed to help finance more than $300 million in new construction by 1978.

TF tops quota
TWIN FALLS — Residents of Twin Falls donated 34 pints more than the 150-pint quota in the Red Cross blood drive Monday.
 Ivan S. Hood served as chairman for the drawing which was conducted by the Red Cross. Hood said that of the 184 pints total, 114 were replacement units.
 Mrs. Shirley Ann Balster received an eight-gallon pin. A seven-gallon pin was given to James Webb and Curtis Smith received a six-gallon pin. Two-gallon pins went to Ernest Pate, Gary Grossman and Gordon Cox. Mrs. Janice Larson, Gary Freeman and Carol Cook received one-gallon pins.
 A list of others participating in the blood drawing will appear later in the Times-News.

Gooding menace
GOODING — Gooding may have a menace.
 The City Council Monday night heard a letter from Larry Henstler of the Gooding police department, declaring the Ruiz Cafe, Hotel and Recreation Center a public hazard.
 He said it was a fire hazard, a health menace, harbored aliens, and was a gathering place for delinquents and stolen goods which, he said, police had confiscated there on several occasions.
 He urged the council to condemn the business. Upon hearing the letter, City Atty. Cecil Hobdy referring to the "good book," assured councilmen the council could investigate and call a hearing.
 "What if they won't leave?" Mayor Leo Rice asked. And who should investigate? Finally, it was decided Police Chief Lyle Clifford and Fire Chief George Anderson should conduct the investigation.

Praise heard
TWIN FALLS — When Mayor Winston Jones called on Harold Cook during the Monday-night City Council meeting, he expected to hear another complaint or special request.
 Instead, he heard praise.
 Cook, who sat through several hours of council business before being asked for his comments, thanked the city for special assistance he has received from the city water department, police department, fire department and the city parks department.

BOR grant approved
BOISE (UPI) — The Bureau of Outdoor Recreation (BOR) has approved $500,000 for land acquisition and underpass construction for Boise's Greenbelt area.
 Greenbelt coordinator Betty Kelley said the BOR grant will be matched by city funds over a three-year period.
 She said the money will make possible installation of three underpasses beneath Boise River bridges. It also will fund development still in early planning stages of 2' Centennial Boulevard underpass which would link mall areas at the Boise Public Library and the Boise Gallery of Art.
 Mrs. Kelley said a third of the half-million dollars will be used for land acquisition.

TF break-in reported
TWIN FALLS — Rick Yarnig of the Pioneer Club on Kimberly Road, notified city police Monday his establishment had been broken into.
 Officers said someone broke out a door glass to gain entry, and took about $40 in change which was left in a trunk in the club. The break-in occurred between 1 a.m. and 8:45 a.m. Monday.

Jim Wilkins, Gooding, tells of work
Gooding city sued by state aide over plane
 By LORAYNE SMITH
 Times-News writer

GOODING — A member of the state Board of Highway Directors and a former legislator has filed a suit over the 1974 destruction of his airplane.
 Lloyd Barron, Corral, is suing the city of Gooding, the state and the Gooding Airport Manager for the plane, which he claimed was demolished in a windstorm at the airport.
 The suit seeks $4,000 for the plane.
 Barron's son, Rep. Lee Barron, R-Corral, lashed the plane at the airport last Dec. 12 in a windstorm. The suit claims the plane was destroyed due to a wind and a failure to fly down equipment at the airport was the cause of the damage.
 Under executive reorganization of Idaho state government, Barron is considered a likely choice to sit on the new Transportation Board which would oversee the state's highways and aeronautics operations.
 The suit was presented at the City Council meeting Monday night and George Silva, city clerk, was instructed to turn the claim over to the city's insurance firm.
 Earl Kelly, airport manager, told council members that the pressure tank at the airport had sprung a leak Monday morning and while the leak had been repaired the tank is "about ready to rust away." He said estimates for the cost of a new tank were $85. The present tank holds 350 gallons and Kelly said a 100-gallon capacity was adequate.
 Councilman Duane Clemente was instructed to check into the repair project.
 Kelly also assured the council that the proposed plan to lease the airport to High Range Aviation Inc., reviewed at the April 15 council meeting, in no way intends to take over control of the airport.
 "It's the city's airport," he said. The proposed lease is still under review by Cecil Hobdy, city attorney, who Monday night urged the council to get financial statement "so you can see what's going on out there."
 City Wilkins who managed the airport for 13 years, gave a detailed report of the problems at the airport for which, he said, there never has been enough money. He said he had spent an estimated $25,000 of his own money over the 13 years for improvements and in labor, and read a lettered account of all the work done there.
 "If you can find anyone to maintain the airport and do a good job, you're lucky," he said. "If you give a lease to an operator and he doesn't give you a dime, but does the job, he's earned his money."
 He said it was not the city's fault but because there is not adequate money for airport operation; the manager has to do much of the maintenance and repair work himself. Lighting on the runway, estimated by Wilkins, will cost $25,000, was financed by federal grants; city help for only $2,800, he said.
 Wilkins also asked the council for clarification on the city code covering subdivisions and told the council since the code specifically excludes parcels of land more than five acres he will break up 50 acres into plots of 5.01 and the "city can't stop him."
 He said subdivisions being in more money to the city in tax revenue than they cost in additional services, citing the Whimpey subdivision which he estimated would bring the city $11,000 in revenue per year.
 In other business the council:
 — Instructed Councilman Paul Klingler to check into feasibility of city participation into a summer music program, Bonnie Gunther, high school music director, said it would cost $300 for a five-week program, climaxing with the band playing for the county fair.
 Klingler is to see if the county and fair board would assist financially.
 — Appointed Paul Paoli to serve on the gas board.
 — Approved a retail wine and bottled-beer license for Roxann Holland, doing business as the North Main Ball Shop.
 — Discussed traffic problems on the turnaround on Orchard Drive.
 — Instructed Klingler to call for bids for a sprinkler system at the East City Park.
 — Decided to delay action on recalling the interior of city water tank until checking with Wendell Spector, said it would cost $300 for a five-week program, climaxing with the band playing for the county fair.

Bellevue aides assume duties
BELLEVUE — The Bellevue City Council installed incumbents and one new alderman at a regular meeting Monday night.
 Incumbents Duke Martin and George McKay and Mayor L. T. (Pete) Johnson, along with newly elected alderman Mike McGraw, were sworn into office.
 In other business, Martin, John Pascoe and McKay were appointed to the streets committee, and Ralph Griffin, Joe Bergin and McGraw were appointed to the water committee.
 The council also voted to rehire Harry Baird as maintenance man for the city; Bud Taylor as city marshal, and Anna Faye O'Donnell, city clerk.
 The council granted Dennis Head a water pipeline transfer to his present house to a newly constructed house on the same property.
 The council added the pipeline arrangement would be non-transferable and that any tenant moving into the old house would have to pay the $300 hookup fee.
 A unanimous vote was cast to place $8,045 of fifth installment revenue sharing funds in the water improvement program.
 The council voted to buy $249.70 in pipe and a metal detector to locate city water mains for improvement. It was agreed to mark the waterline in the Muldoon subdivision with metal spikes so the location of the main would be known in the future.
 Bellevue city council received dog licenses yet, but a special meeting will be called to set fees when the licenses arrive.

Hand leaves Gem police
BOISE (UPI) — Col. L. Clark Hand, after working his way from a rookie to superintendent of the Idaho State Police, is leaving police work to join a Boise bank.
 Hand, 37, who joined the state police force in 1947 and has been very much enjoyed by the work and his "no bad feelings" about leaving. He said his resignation was not related to changes in police work or reorganization of state government.
 He declined to say what bank he was joining or what city.
 Gov. Cecil D. Andrus said he accepted Hand's resignation Monday "with deep personal regret, knowing that we can't stand in the way of a man bettering himself."
 Andrus said under the present law the superintendent is appointed by the governor and serves at his pleasure. After reorganization of the executive branch of government, however, the superintendent will be appointed by the commissioner of law enforcement.
 The governor said he and Law Commissioner John Bennett are working together to make a replacement for Hand. He said there is a man under consideration and a decision should be reached in a few days.
 Hand, a native of Richfield, said the training of policemen has been one of the major changes during the 27 years he has been with the department.

Bellevue planners seek moratorium

By BART QUESNELL
 Times-News writer

BELLEVUE — The city planning and zoning commission recommended a building moratorium for Bellevue.
 In recommending the action to the city council, the commission also favored a bond election to ease the city's water supply problem.
 Bellevue is now supplying residents with water from Seaman Creek, drawing an 80-inch allotment from a possible 150-inch allotment — a natural piping system from the creek into the city's water mains — allows for the distribution of water without wells.
 Bellevue is experiencing a constant population increase, however, of about 10 percent per year. The piping system now employed is barely adequate to meet current needs. One Bellevue resident has complained of a lack of water this month.
 L. T. (Pete) Johnson, mayor, said he is trying to locate 8-inch pipe so a larger water supply can be drawn from Seaman Creek. Johnson said he has been unable to locate the pipe so far.
 "The city doesn't need a bond election, if I can find some pipe," Johnson said. Bellevue can afford the pipe without a bond, he said, if the pipe can be located, he suggested instead raising water rates a few dollars.

HAILEY — The Big Wood River reached its highest level of the year this morning and warnings are out for some flooding later this week.
 The river level today was reported at 5.24 feet, a slight increase over the 5.21-foot level yesterday.
 Sheriff's officers in Blaine county said they have not received any flood reports.
 The National Weather Service in Boise said warm temperatures have already increased the run-off from high elevation snow packs and with continued warm weather some flooding is likely before the end of the week along both Wood River and the Middle Fork of the Salmon River.
 In Hailey, Soil Conservation (SCS) officials and the deputy watermaster said today the condition is not yet serious. Big Wood River receives large amounts of run-off.
 Most high elevation watersheds feeding into the river, however, were running 150 to 180 percent of normal according to the SCS water content report taken a week ago.
 Doug Bishop, soil conservationist with the SCS, said mid-elevation snow is melting in most places which will allow for a more subdued runoff from the higher elevations.
 The National Weather Service has placed the Big Wood River on alert and issued several flood warnings to residents living near the river.
 The Glimet and Bellevue area generally receives the first flooding, according to W.R. Watt, deputy watermaster for the Big Wood River.

Boise Cascade plants struck

PORTLAND (UPI) — A strike against Boise Cascade Corp. idled about 1,700 workers in Oregon and Washington today.
 Five locals of the Association of Western Pulp and Paper Workers (AWPPW) struck Boise Cascade mills at Salmon and St. Helens, Ore., and Vancouver and Wallula, Wash.
 Negotiations began March 19 and strike authorization was given April 25. The strike came after an all night negotiating sessions failed Sunday.
 Negotiations broke down on provisions of the pension and health and welfare plans as well as wage increases for a proposed two-year contract.

Fiance believes Patty's alive

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst's fiance said today he believes she has pretended to reject him and join her kidnappers in order to stay alive.
 "People have to accommodate themselves to difficult situations in order to survive," said Steven A. Weed, 26.
 Weed explained his feelings about the 32-day kidnaping in an article which was published today.
 Weed said that the 20-year-old newspaper heiress must have been "terrified and disoriented and full of hatred" during the first weeks of her captivity. But as she spent more time among members of the Symbionese Liberation Army, "Patty" must by now feel somewhat caught up with the inbred dynamics of the group that holds her.
 Weed said he doesn't think the SLA wants to kill her, but said it is "equally clear they cannot afford to let her go either."
 "They cannot risk Patty's conversion melting away in a few days of freedom, as it sure would," Weed said.
 In a tape recording two and a half weeks ago, Miss Hearst called Weed a "sexist pig" and a "clown" and said she no longer loved him. She said she would remain as a "soldier" with the SLA.

Guide hints news lid

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Newly distributed guidelines for the 11 agencies under the reorganization puts under the governor's office could be used to manage the news, UPI learned Monday.

"News releases and contacts with the news media shall be coordinated with the governor's press secretary," one of the 11 guidelines said.

Signed by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, the guidelines require approval from the executive office of the governor not only for news contacts but for dealings with the legislature.

All new programs and major policy decisions, including federal grants and interdepartmental agreements, shall be made available to the executive office of the governor before approval, another rule said.

Developed behind closed doors, these guidelines are to govern the conduct of agencies reorganization puts under the executive office of the governor July 1.

Among those agencies are the division of tourism and industrial development; the state liquor dispensary; the military, budget and civil defense; and "policy planning and coordination."

Human Rights Commission; State Nuclear Energy Commission; Retirement Board; Commission for the Blind; Commission on Women's programs; state insurance manager; and investment board.

Plans for reorganization were discussed recently by the governor's staff and agencies moved directly under him at meetings closed to the press by Andrus' office.

Andrus compared the meetings to routine cabinet meetings at which newsmen are excluded when UPI asked recently for his rationale in closing them.

UPI obtained its copy of these guidelines from sources other than the governor.

Andrus' guidelines said his chief of staff, assistant William J. Murphy, will be director of the executive office of the governor and "shall be the sole contact with the agencies within that office and the governor."

Each agency must give Murphy a notice of forthcoming meetings with agenda, an invitation to attend and minutes of meetings held.

While the agencies technically are under the governor's subject to his orders through Murphy and closely governed under the guidelines they may not use the name "governor."

Medical ID cards in error

BOISE (UPI) — The medical identification card issued monthly to Idahoans enrolled in the medical assistance program has been distributed without the proper month identification.

Howard J. Jamieson of the Department of Environmental and Community Services said a computer error has resulted in approximately 5,000 of the cards being printed without the phrase "valid only during the month of May."

Jamieson, DECS director of management, said all persons who provide services to the medical assistance enrollees should accept the medical identification card during May.

Pickup tab sticks taxpayers

BOISE (UPI) — The state director of administrative services is driving a fancy new pickup truck at taxpayers' expense, UPI learned today.

Director D. E. "Skip" Chibberg took delivery about a week ago of a sleek, black Ford Ranchero 500 pickup with black and white vinyl upholstery, black dashboard, radio and white sidewall tires.

Chibberg said the 1974 model, purchased through Bob Rice Ford of Boise, cost the taxpayers $3,280.

"At one point referring to it as an 'executive' vehicle, Chibberg said he and other executives in his agency use the pickup. Most of the time it is assigned to him, however."

He said it is used only on state business and is parked at the Statehouse at night. He said he does not drive home from work.

Calling it "kind of a dual purpose vehicle," he said it has been used already to haul communications equipment to Twin Falls from Boise.

"It's saved us from buying two vehicles," Chibberg said. "It serves a good dual purpose and is less expensive than most of the state cars cost."

Chibberg said all he specified when he ordered the vehicle six months ago was that it have light-color upholstery.

"I didn't specify the black dashboard or the vinyl upholstery," he said. "That just came with it."

State Purchasing Agent Dan Pilkington said the dealer bid the vehicle with some of the extras. He said Bob Rice Ford was the lowest bid for the vehicle.

"We had specified six cylinders and it came in eight," Pilkington added.

Chibberg said the vehicle comes in quite handy when he or his fellow executives have to go to the print shop or haul various items of equipment around Boise or elsewhere in the state.

When questioned, however, he said the communications division also has some four-wheel drive vehicles for "use back in the hills."

UPI asked Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, who appointed Chibberg to office, whether he felt it was necessary for state executives to have pickup trucks such as Chibberg's for official use.

Burke's bill asks free seeds, plants

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. James A. Burke, D-Miss., thinks we'd all be better off if we grow some vegetables this summer — so he has introduced a bill authorizing the Agriculture Department to distribute free seeds and plants to anyone who wants them.

Spokesmen for a House Agriculture subcommittee said a hearing on the legislation will be held Tuesday.

Administration officials have already urged the subcommittee in a written report to plant Burke's bill in some quiet pigeonhole where it can wither and die.

The Agriculture Department said Congress has already done all that's needed in this area by amending the food stamp program last year. The amendment allows needy people to use food stamps to buy vegetable seeds and plants for their home gardens.

"But the congressman disagrees violently," a Burke aide said.

"He feels that low-income people are not the only ones suffering from high food costs."

As Burke sees it, the aide explained, his bill would help Americans of all income levels to get the "valuable experience of getting back to the soil and growing their own food and saving some money as well."

Burke estimates his bill to revive the free seed programs the government operated many years ago would cost the Agriculture Department about $6 million a year.

Committee meets set

BOISE (UPI) — Three meetings of legislative interim committees are planned during the next month, Legislative Council Director Myran Schlechte said today.

On May 13 there will be a meeting of the solid waste disposal committee. May 30, the personnel system committee will meet.

On June 6 the county government study committee will meet, he said.

Redwood log perfectly preserved

PORTOLA, Calif. (UPI) — A redwood log discovered near the Oroville Dam has been determined to be 10 million years old and still capable of burning.

Crews of the California Department of Water Resources found the log imbedded in a 30-foot depth of soft rock along with a fern, some fish needles and a leaf.

Examination of the 56-pound log which was three feet long and 15 inches in diameter was made by Dr. D. I. Axelrod of the University of California at Los Angeles.

The "perfectly preserved" miocene-age specimen is now on display at the Lake Oroville Visitors Center.

New York tops Utah in overtime for 3-0 lead

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The New York Jets leveled a balanced attack against Utah Monday night for a 103-0 overtime victory and their third consecutive win without a loss in the American Football Association championship series.

High-scoring Julius Erving of New York was held to 24 points but got offensive help from teammates Larry Konon with 18, Billy Pauls with 17 and Brian Taylor with 15.

The contest was tied 94-94 at the end of regulation play. Konon pumped in the first two field goals in the overtime period and the Jets were never behind after that. Erving tallied the final three points for the visitors.

The two clubs meet here again Wednesday night. If New York wins, it will be the first team in ABA history to sweep the championship playoffs.

The Stars led off the first half with 28. Tammarie Zolpa Roary, out for two weeks because of illness, tallied 22. Wise chipped in 20.

Detroit breaks Chicago streak

DETROIT (UPI) — Jerry Moore lined a two-out single in the seventh inning Monday night that delivered a corner from behind a 5-1 victory for the Detroit Tigers over Chicago, ending the White Sox five-game winning streak.

Trailing 4-3 going into the seventh, the Tigers got singles by Jim Northrup and Gates Brown of Loser Co. Acosta, O., bringing on Chicago relief ace Terry Forster. Pinch-hitter Dick Sharon, forced pinchrunner John Knox but the tying run came in and Sharon, who then scored, scored himself on Moses' single.

The hitter relieved Joe Coleman in the seventh and led his record to 4-0. Ed Herrmann hit his second home run of the season for Chicago carrier that tinning Bucky Dent, whose double drove out Coleman, scored when Ed Brinkman, scored.

Murcer sparks N.Y. past Rangers 6-4

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI) — Bobby Murcer singled in Chris Chambliss with the go-ahead run in the seventh inning.

Murcer's hit came off Yankees' pitcher Tom Seaver, who led from Cleveland last month, reached first on an error by third baseman Jim Fregosi with one out in the seventh and the score tied at 4-4.

On the ground out, Murcer jammed his right knee sliding into second base. He was removed from the game although the injury was later termed minor.

The Yankees scored four runs in the second of starter David ...

Baltimore defeats Oakland A's 6-3

Thomsen fires 63 for win

Host professional Clyde Thomsen fired a five-under par 63 Monday to lead the pro sweepstakes and Jimmy Packard's team won the best-ball division in the annual Twin Falls pro-am tournament.

Thomsen was pressed by Boise pro Arnold Hancke and Blue Lakes assistant Bart Schuurman at 64 while Tony Patterson, Boise, and Tom Patterson, Mosier, had 65.

Packard teamed with amateurs Don Hubbert, Veri McGinn, Bill Cook and Del Rupert for a 29-under par 107.

Tremont, Utah, drew headed by former Flier resident Del Ericson, and Patterson's team from Weiser. Three teams jammed for third at 110.

Boise's Newt Carter won the 63 gross amateur sweepstakes Monday night. He was followed by Bill Carter, Bill Fitzgerald, Boise, and Larry Jackson, Boise, shared second at 68.

In net, five men shared the 9-9 division at 62. These included Jon Riggs; Gary Ellis, Pocatello; Art Weaver, Boise; Hank and Char Hardsley, Nampa. In the higher division, Ron Henric, Tremont, was first at 61, followed by a three-way tie at 62 among Layne Gardner, Gary Roland, Twin Falls, and Bob Seena, Twin Falls.

A total of 33 teams and 165 individuals participated in the one-day event.

Flyers will try to stop Orr, Esposito in Stanley Cup finals

BOSTON (UPI) — It's going to be successful against Orr, you better believe it.

Boston coach Bep Guidolin, after putting his team through a hard one-hour workout Monday afternoon, said if the Flyers insist on being overly aggressive, "that's all right with us."

It was nice to have them back in the net, he said. The Flyers, advancing to the final round for the first time in their history, seemingly have everything going against them in their bid to become the first expansion team ever to win the cup.

Quarry faces Joe Alexander

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — "The worst problem I've got (Quarry) faces Wednesday night," Gil Clancy said, "is that Joe Alexander believes in himself, believes he can take Clancy, the veteran trainer, was talking about the 10-round bout slated for one of his many opponents, Quarry, against the unranked but hard-hitting Alexander in the final venture by Nassau Coliseum into boxing.

For Quarry, who will be 29 on May 15, the bout is an absolute must. The Californian has a $200,000 date with Joe Frazier on June 17 in Madison Square Garden, and it all goes down the drain if — and what an if — he is knocked out by Alexander either an upset win or hurts Jerry so that the June date falls through.

Indians snap Angels streak

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Buddy Bell and Oscar Gamble cracked solo homers in the fourth inning to open the Cleveland scoring and the Indians went on to snap a California Angels' six-game winning streak with a 5-3 victory.

Gamble, the Indians' designated hitter who took a .309 batting average into the game, tripled in John Ellis for the Indians' fifth run in the fifth inning.

Old Angel nemesis Fritz Peterson got his second win in an Indian uniform since being traded to Cleveland from the New York Yankees last month.

Although he gave up eight hits and three runs in only six innings, Peterson ran his career record against the Angels to 16-6. Milt Wilcox worked the final three innings for the Indians.

San Diego nips Phillies 7-6

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Nate Colbert and Fred Knapp drove in three runs apiece Monday night to lead the San Diego Padres to a 7-6 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies for rookie Dave Freisleben's third straight victory.

Kendall put the Padres in front 2-0 in the second when he hit his second home run after a walk to Colbert. Enzo Hernandez doubled and scored on Colbert's single to make it 3-0 in the third.

Philadelphia used a single by Dave Cash, Larry Bowa's triple and an infield out to score twice in the fourth, but San Diego came back with walks to Freisleben and John Grubbs plus Colbert's double to score twice in the fifth.

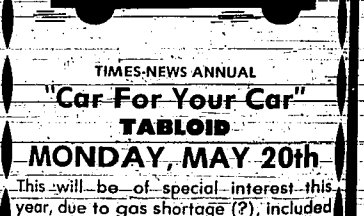

A single by Willie Montanez, Bill Robinson's double and a Bob Boone single helped the Phils tie the game.

Freisleben's lead-off home run in the seventh, knocking out Freisleben (3-0).

But the Padres again padded their lead with two more in the eighth off reliever Dave Wills. Dave Winfield singled and scored on Kendall's double. After an error and an intentional walk, Kendall scored on Hernandez' ground out.

NBA title series comes down to battle between coaches

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — There may be 10 men on the court, but the National Basketball Association championship series rapidly is coming down to a battle between two men.

It is becoming increasingly obvious that Larry Costello and Tom Heinsohn are waging a war of technical coaching skills that is almost taking precedence over the play on the floor.

Like two grand masters of the chess board, they are moving their pawns in a fashion designed to give each one momentary advantage. Costello is regarded as one of the finest technical coaches in the game while Heinsohn is proving his mettle in the heat of competition. The operative word in this series, which is tied 2-2 and resumes Tuesday night at the Milwaukee Arena, is adjustment.

After the first game, which Boston won, Costello said he had to make an adjustment to beat the Boston pressure. He came up with something and the Bucks won the second game.

Then Heinsohn came up with an adjustment to counter the Milwaukee change, and the Celtics took the third game. Costello then moved 6-foot-7 reserve forward Mickey Davis to guard for the fourth game and that adjustment paid dividends in the form of a 97-89 Milwaukee victory that evened the series.

Boston guard Don Chaney, whose brilliant defensive work has caused most of the Milwaukee adjustments, admits the onus is now on Heinsohn to come up with a tactical switch for game five.

"We'll work something out for Tuesday's game," he said. "Make other team adjustments. That's the name of the game in the playoffs. There's a lot of strategy going on out there."

"The big thing Heinsohn has to do for Tuesday is come up with a way to make Chaney effective. In the first three games—the hounded Oscar Robertson so much that Robertson had difficulty bringing the ball up the court and the Bucks had a bushel of turnovers.

But with Davis at Guard, Chaney had to play him and Jo Jo White had to work on Robertson, who responded with 10 points and nine assists. Robertson also had a much easier time getting the ball up the court and the Bucks were able to set up their offense quicker.

"It's probably a safe bet, however, that Costello won't stand pat with the formula that worked Sunday. He will also make some adjustments designed to throw a crimp into the Celtics' plans.

While most experts look for several changes in both game plans, John Havlicek is a little more cautious about expecting anything major.

"We might mix in a few more things for Tuesday's game, but we'll do the same things over again," the Celtics great said. "We've had success in pressing."

The sixth game of the series will be played at Boston Friday night and the seventh game, if necessary, at Milwaukee Sunday afternoon.

Olympic group will test for steroids

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) — The International Olympic Committee said Monday it will introduce a test at the 1976 Olympics to detect the presence in competitors of anabolic steroid drugs.

Anabolic steroids have been widely used by athletes throughout the world to build up their muscles to achieve better performances, but until six months ago no test was available to detect them.

The IOC plans to use a method of liquid chromatography devised by British scientists and announced last October in London by Dr. Roger Bannister, head of the British Sports Council. The test was first used at the British Commonwealth Games in Christchurch, New Zealand, in January.

The IOC's Medical Commission also said it was prepared to accept requests for the use of certain medications during the Olympics. IOC officials said this was partly the result of the case of Californian swimmer Rick De Mont, who was stripped of his gold medal in the men's 400 meters freestyle in the 1972 Munich Games because he was using a medicine containing ephedrine for his asthma.

The IOC statement acknowledged that competitors who also use anabolic steroids some weeks before competition will prove a problem but said it planned to ask the international sports federations to use the test regularly as well.

Pirate coach thinks his team can lead league with home runs

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — In an era when the heroes of Babe Ruth are recalled daily and Hank Aaron has become a legend before retirement, the home run is a must for major leagues.

Powered by Aaron's 40 homers, Dave Johnson's 43 and Darrell Evans' 41, the Atlanta Braves booted 205 homers last season. When Aaron surpassed the Babe's 241 career total a few weeks ago, the obsession with homers deepened.

Bob Skinner, Pittsburgh Pirate batting coach who was a long ball hitter in his playing days, believes his team has the potential to pace the National League in homers. Last year the Pirates had 154 homers. The Houston Astros had 134, including 25 by Cesar Cedeno, 28 by Lee May and 21 by Doug Rader.

Willie Stargell, who topped the major league power hitters with 47 homers last season, also drove in 119 runs and collected 156 hits.

"I think Willie, after Aaron, is the best home run hitter in the National League," Skinner said.

Skinner believes 6-foot-5 Dave Easton, a left-handed hitter who had four homers last season after he was called up from the Triple A farm club in Charleston, has great potential.

"Parker has as much raw power as anyone on the team, with the exception of Stargell," Skinner said. "For a big man he has outstanding speed and once he learns the pitchers there'll be no stopping him."

Right now he's missing pitches that later on he'll pick out of the ballpark like all young hitters he sees for bad pitches at times. But he has the potential of a superstar. He has a great arm and fields well."

Richie Heber, a lefthander who hit 25 homers last season and has six this year, has "one of the fastest bats in the league," according to Skinner.

"He pulls the ball a little too much," Skinner said, "but he knows that strike zone. He's aggressive and enjoys playing, necessary attributes for a hitter of power."

Richie Zisk, another Pittsburgh attraction, a righthander who slugged 10 homers last year.

"Richie hits the ball to the gaps," Skinner said. "This ball game and rallies just like Ralph Kiner's hits did. Ralph was more of a pull hitter than Zisk."

Al Oliver, another lefthander, smashed 20 homers last year and is rated by Skinner as the best line drive hitter in the league, with the exception of Billy Williams.

The Pirates have a total of 25 homers in 22 games this season, a good start toward surpassing last year's mark.

Every scout knows Ruth was a premier pitcher before he was switched to the outfield to get the full benefit of his bat.

Could it be southpaw pitcher Ken Brett is headed that way? He set a major league record last year for pitchers by homering in four consecutive games. Brett has nine career homers, including two this season.

Chicago tops Toros for playoff victory

TORONTO (UPI) — Second period goals by Bob Liddington, Len Fisher, Ron Slesinski and Darryl Wings powered Chicago to a 5-2 victory over Toronto Monday night and gave the Cougars their World Hockey Association semifinal playoff over the Toros, four games to three.

The Cougars, fourth place finishers in the WHA East, beat the first place New England Whalers in the quarterfinals after trailing in that series 3-2 and evicted the second place finishing Toros in similar fashion.

Chicago now advances against the Houston Aeros, first place winners in the WHA West but dates for the matches have not yet been decided because neither team's arena is currently available.

The Cougars' other goal was scored by veteran Duke Harris in the third period while Tom Simpson and Rick Sentes were the Toros' marksmen.

With 30 seconds elapsed in the second period, Liddington hit on a backhand from the slot and at 7:43, Popiel registered his seventh goal 15 seconds after he left the penalty box.

The Cougars' third goal, which eventually proved to be the winner, actually was put into the Toronto cage by Toronto's goalie, Tom Trotter, not his slick and Slesinski pass in front of the net and raised it over a surprised goalie Gilles Gratton.

Every scout knows Ruth was a premier pitcher before he was switched to the outfield to get the full benefit of his bat.

Could it be southpaw pitcher Ken Brett is headed that way? He set a major league record last year for pitchers by homering in four consecutive games. Brett has nine career homers, including two this season.

Buddy Allin, winner of the Byron Nelson golf classic with a record 15 under 223, gets a big laugh as Byron Nelson presents him with the winner's check for 30,000 dollars Monday in Dallas. His trophy is at right. (UPI Telephoto).

Buddy Allin posts easy win in Byron Nelson tourney

DALLAS (UPI) — Buddy Allin had a chance at victory slip away a week ago in the Tournament of Champions, made three straight Monday puts on the back nine and was expected to win an easy triumph in the rain-delayed Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Allin emerged from a stretch duel with a 9-under-par 68 final round over the soggy Pecos Trail Golf Club course, and a tournament record 72-hole score of 15-under 269.

That was good enough for a 4-to-1 victory over Homero Blancas, Lee Trevino, Charles Coody, and Tom Watson, and the win for Allin became the second golfer on the tour this season to surpass $100,000 in winnings.

It was the fourth tour win in less than four years on the circuit for Allin; the slight 35-133 Vietnam veteran who was decorated for bravery as an artillery officer.

The 289 fired by Allin cracked the tournament record of 270 set by Miller Barber in 1968.

It was only one week ago Allin came to the final hole of the Tournament of Champions, but a wayward second shot that caught a bunker cost him an opportunity for the victory that eventually went to leading money winner Johnny Miller.

But Allin was having none of that this week. As many as six golfers had a chance for the title going into the back nine, but Allin settled matters by making birdie putts of five, four and four feet on the 14th, 15th and 16th holes.

Allin's $30,000 first prize check vaulted him from eighth spot in money winnings this year to second behind Miller with $103,919. Miller, who has earned $107,877 this year, was not in the Nelson field.

Blancas, Trevino, Coody and Watson each netted a little over $10,000 for their second-place win at 273-11 under par.

Coody jumped from out of the pack with a last round 66 and Watson had a 67. Watson, a 70 and Blancas an even par 71. Watson was tied with Allin for the lead as late as the 13th hole.

But Watson took a double bogey when he put his tee shot in the water on No. 14, and it was then at that point Allin took over.

Early in the day it appeared Allin's game might be untraveling. He birdied the first hole, but had to save par from a trap on the tough par-3 fourth and then knocked his second shot past the fifth green and suffered a bogey.

He came right back, however, to birdie the par-5 sixth.

Blancas played steadily all day, registering 16 pars after a birdie on the opening hole. But Blancas' putter, which had put him in contention in the first place, failed him time after time in his quest for the win.

Roger Bannister celebrates historic mark, offers predictions on future mile marks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Amid the celebration of his historic first-sub-four-minute mile of 20 years ago, Roger Bannister took time Monday to offer some weighty words for Tony Waldrop.

"I've always said the 3:50 barrier will be broken," said Bannister, who on May 6, 1954, became the first man to break four minutes. "Actually, it virtually has been broken with Herbert Bay's 3:42 for the 1,500 meters at the Commonwealth Games last February."

Bannister, of course, became synonymous with the mile after being the first when he was clocked in 3:59.4 that day at Oxford, England, 20 years ago Monday.

Now a neurologist and also chairman of the British Sports Council, Dr. Bannister talked via trans-Atlantic telephone of that historic run and about how track and sport has progressed since. In the audience was Waldrop, the blond North Carolina senior, who off his heels is the fastest runner in the world, clocked at 3:51.1.

"The record has a long way yet to go," said Bannister. "I predict that man will soon be running 3:40 and, by the end of the century, who knows?"

Three and a half minutes is not impossible, but it is a long way off. With proper training, the human body can stretch to these limits and I believe the people today will do it.

Waldrop, who along with all the great milers of history, will be united with Bannister at a dinner "Sponsored" by Sports Illustrated later this month, agreed, but hedged on whether the words applied to him.

"I think 3:50 will be broken this year," the modest, unassuming Waldrop said. "I don't think I'll be the one to do it, though." Waldrop, who clocked off a string of seven straight sub-four minute miles indoors including a world best of 3:55, said, "I don't believe his own success, even though he admits he's loving it just the same."

"The biggest reason I don't believe it is because this is still all out over to me," Waldrop said. "Knowing my own experience and the newness of the race to me, I still can't believe it. I didn't think 3:55 was possible, and after that, I thought it was two or three seconds slower than that. I really enjoy winning though."

Bannister said he would be celebrating his own with Charles Brasher and Chris Chataway, both of whom helped pace him to the epic 3:59.4.

Brasher and Chataway will all sit around and recall the day and it's amazing how selective each of us is in our recollections," he said.

"Personally remember writing five or six minutes before the race, trying to decide whether to go all out or even though there was much wind and it wasn't an ideal day. But I don't think I'd have ever forgotten myself had I decided not to go for it."

In addition to his profession and duties with the British Sports Council, Bannister still runs eight miles a day, but never with any worrying about the limit," he says.

Waldrop runs a little further. "I run about 30 miles a day," said Tony. "But that's not really much considering that other guys are still running over 100. Usually, I'm a jazy miler. I believe it's the difficulty and the quality of my workouts, however, that makes the difference. And that difference, I'm likely, could mean a 3:50 or better this summer."

Price of frustration is high for followers of New York team

(c) N.Y. Times Service
NEW YORK — Frustration is the chief ailment of the Rangers, usually difficult to put a price on it. But for followers of the New York Rangers, the price of frustration is $5 million.

That's approximately the amount they have contributed to the Madison Square Garden box office in the last eight years for the frustration of watching Stanley Cup "chokers" buyers deserve a refund. The last time the Rangers won the Stanley Cup was in 1940, when a German Army helmet meant Adolf Hitler, now a German pariah, was the champion.

The Philadelphia Flyers fan club for Dave Schultz, the heavyweight champion on skates, that's how long it's been. Two generations. In that time three New York teams that weren't even organized in 1940 have won the championship in their respective sports—the Knicks, the Jets and the Mets. But the Rangers' frustration is a treadmill to frustration that for their followers is really worse than that during all those years when the team didn't even qualify for the playoffs. Now the frustration includes a $15 top for the garden play games.

It's popular now to label the Rangers as "choking" in the playoffs. Steve Vickers even acknowledges it. "I could just play the big one, I wish I could play the big one. It's obvious that the Rangers are overpaid in relation to their success. But the truth just might be that they're overrated and overpaid, that the Rangers just aren't good as their followers, in their desperation, would like them to be."

Two years ago the Ranger front office thought it had purchased the Stanley Cup, but when it opened its treasury to keep the best players from accepting World Hockey Association offers. Instead, it purchased the shock of losing four straight to the Chicago Black Hawks a year ago and the embarrassment of being eliminated this year by the Flyers, a team not even in existence in 1967 when the

This season the Bruins got rid of some good players for young players who put them in their team. It helped them.

By next season, of the 18 Rangers in uniform for the playoffs, only five will be under 30 years old. Fred Park will be 32, Clark Hesketh and Bill Fairbairn each 27, Vickers and Jerry Butler each 23.

In any reconstruction, Park and Tkaczuk would appear to be the most dangerous, the untouchables. Ed Giacomin, the oldest Ranger, will be 41, and goalkeepers usually age well. Any other Ranger probably will be available if the right deal is offered.

There was no wrong deal, the Ranger followers feel, a new deal. Especially at a $15 top.

Francis doesn't recall suggesting that there would be his eventual successor as coach if he were willing to wait.

"There was no real opportunity for him to coach the Rangers, then," Francis says. "I wasn't planning on another coach."

But perhaps Francis, the general manager as well as coach, should think about Vickers' comments after the 4-3 victory Sunday that qualified the Flyers to appear the Boston Bruins in tomorrow night's opener of the Stanley Cup final. Quietly, unemotionally the 48-year-old Flyer coach discussed the Ranger clinically, with Francis.

"There's no particular satisfaction for me in beating the Rangers," he said. "I was once a Ranger player. I'd just want somebody else. I just think we're hungrier than they are, hungrier for success. Even though they haven't won the Stanley Cup, they've had success for several seasons."

The Rangers have better players than us, but maybe they've kept those players too long. After a while, players get old and you don't want to think they own the place. In any 70-year-old club, you can't expect to lose your job. That you can lose your job

Veteran track official hurt

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — A veteran track official was injured Monday in a two-car crash during a practice "first" spooling the safety-gear start of preparations for the 500-mile Indianapolis Speedway race May 26.

In an accident resembling auto racing fans of the bad luck which dogged the Speedway in 1973, assistant chief steward Walter Myers suffered fractures of his left hip and left wrist.

Myers was hurt when drivers Mike Hiss of Justin, Calif., and Tom Bigelow of Whitewater, Wis., were racing along the pit apron in a duel to see who could win the honor of being the first of the year on the track for a tri-ship.

A Speedway spokesman said Myers fell while trying to get out of the way of the cars. Some witnesses said, however, Myers appeared to have been hit or brushed by the Hiss car, owned by Penske Racing of Philadelphia.

Myers taken to the track hospital where injuries were quickly diagnosed. He was transferred to the Methodist Hospital nearby, and reported in satisfactory condition.

Hiss and Bigelow promptly were fined $100 each by the U.S. Auto Club, sponsor of the race, on the grounds they went onto the track under the yellow caution light a moment before.
