Valley Comment: Sunshine initiative

QUESTION: Do you support the Sunshine initiative? (It requires candidates for state office to disclose campaign contributions and expenditures over $50. Also, paid lobbyists must register with the Secretary of State, listing their employers and the nature of legislation they are interested in.)

Earl Mitchell, Twin Falls: "Yes, because that way everything will be made public and you'll pretty well be able to tell what was spent in the campaign. Might slow down just the people who have money from being the only ones running."

Debbie Simonds, Twin Falls: "Definitely. It's necessary to know where the money comes from. If there's any behind-the-scenes money exchanged, it'd have to be uncoupled. It would clean up our political system a little bit."

Jim Clark, Castleford: "I'm very much in favor of it. It's about the only thing that's going to straighten this country out and get honesty back to the people, and get truth in campaigning."

Bob Garcia, Seattle: "I would support it, most states have something like it in the works. Hopefully we won't have any more unfair pressures on the government by those who have better superior funding. People who have the funds can control things the way they want to. There's nothing wrong with that — it's the way our system is designed, but people should know where it's going."

Paul Fee, Kimberly: "I think if somebody has to do it, they should all do it, make it all the same. Picking on one or two people — that's not right either. I think it'll make them shape up. It's sound to. Maybe it won't correct everything, but it'll help."

M. C. Parker, Twin Falls: "I think they should reveal where their contributions come from. I have less concern over where they spend it, but any sizable contribution they should report. That might take some of the things out of the system that we've been worrying about."

Alys Denton, Twin Falls: "Yes, I think we have a right to know where they're getting their funds from because they may be backed by someone we don't approve of."

Mrs. George Wallace, Twin Falls: "It'd probably be a good idea. It seems like with all the things that have come out lately, the more informed we are of where these funds come from, the less they'll be misused."

Find fun country on Snake River

Fun country awaits the fisherman from Twin Falls Dam to Bliss dam.

This area includes a separate area and each merits comment.

SHOSHONE FALLS: City park and picnic area on south side of reservoir. Over-night camping, water, restrooms, boat ramp.

CLEAR LAKE: Picnic area, water, rest rooms.

THOUSAND SPRINGS: Picnic area, water, rest rooms.

UPPER SALMON: Picnic area, drinking water, rest rooms, boat ramp.

BLISS: Picnic area with tables, drinking water, rest rooms, playground with basketball court and swings, boat ramps.

This area contains so many good fishing spots that only a few can be pinpointed.

First for the boat fishermen—Launch your boat from one of many spots on the highway side (Highway 30) along Thousand Springs area. You can then troll on the north side of the river, or anchor in the clear water along the north shore and still fish. Many large fish are caught trolling here.

Rainbows wait at Jarbidge R.

The Jarbidge River is located 70 miles south of Twin Falls on highway 93.

Facilities: Store, campgrounds, cabins, water and some trailer hookups.

Directions: Turn off highway 93 south at Rogerson and go 50 miles on paved land dirt road to north of Hot Springs. The road to Murphy Hot Springs has been improved and isn't too bad a drive.

The stream has some brown trout but will be still to medium sized rainbow.

The best fishing will be where the east fork and the main fork of the Jarbidge River meet downstream.

Best luck comes from worms and salmon eggs.

A popular trip for the family will be to follow the road past Murphy on Highway 30 to Shoshone town of Jarbidge.

There are many smaller streams in the area that are excellent fishing. You can ask at Murphy's and directions to the smaller streams.

Jures back and forth from the mouth of Thousand Springs down stream to the Hagerman bridge.

Another spot that is underfished and many consider better than most of the lakes is to launch your boat at Lower Salmon power plant. Head up stream fishing the little coves and especially the outlet of Billingsley creek. Also many underwater springs along the north shore will produce good results.

On opening day of last year this spot was a better producer of fish than Magic or any other lake.

Early in the year the water is a factor in fishing this area. A favorite fly fishing spot is Thousand Springs power plant. The 1/2 mile stream produces some excellent evening fly fishing and even this beginner will hit this spot.

It has no brush on the backside of your cast so you can be sloppy and still not get caught in the trees on your back-cast. Any pattern of streamer to produce but a small white nymph is a favorite.

Another spot, that the bank fisherman will like is the upper Salmon Dam area. Determine where and how to fish this area is to look at the diversion dam below the old Owsley bridge. If you cannot get across the bridge and fish the west side of the river.

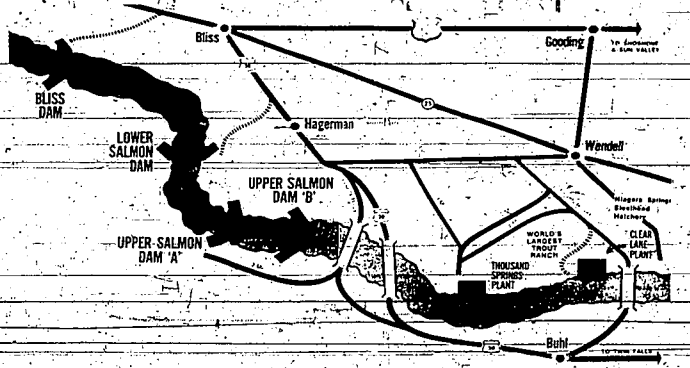

By walking below the diversion you can fish the first 100 yards or walk another 1/2 mile to the large falls below the diversion and fish in the small eddies below the falls. Most of the fish are caught up near the falls and going down stream may be a waste of time.

If the gates are closed, keep on the east side of the river until you come to the first power plant. Put your boat in the water and walk up the canal to the overflow out of the canal. This water runs 1/2 mile from the canal to the old channel of the river.

You will be fishing in rapids and fast water, so wear boots or tennis shoes. The lower end of the rapids will produce some bait fish that can be cut up.

Cast into the current and let it drift into the holes. Fish all the little pot holes you can as the fish will be in the rapids in these holes.

Take caution to watch your footing. Many a fisherman has received his weekly bath in these waters. While the boys are fishing these rapids the kids and mother can fish below the power plant. A small park can provide the necessary shade and cut-off for them while you fish.

Special fishing edition

Information about dozens of fishing spots in the Magic Valley is crammed into this special fishing edition.

An avid local fisherman Robert E. Johnson, Twin Falls, has compiled tips on everything from where to go for fish to what kind of bait the fisherman should use upon arrival.

Over 30 local fishing areas are covered in articles throughout this special fishing edition. So, pick a spot and . . . good luck.

Snake means good fishing

Of all the places I have fished in Idaho, I believe that the Snake river from Twin Falls to Bliss is the best fishing to be had any time, any place.

Over the past 15 years I have fished at least once a week, winter and summer. I have found that if one learns to fish the Snake River, it will always produce any one of the so-called glamour fishing spots.

The secret of fishing the river seems to be "not to fish the river," by this I mean fish the small parts of the river; the narrow side streams, and areas above and below fast water. Also fish where the spring water meets the river water and learn the conditions that make for your best fishing.

The first month of the general trout season I always fish the river. Most of the crowd are up at Magic or the streams that have just opened and I have the river to myself.

Little Wood R. provides fish

Little Wood river is located 30 to 60 miles north and east of Twin Falls.

Directions: Head north on Highway 30 to Shoshone, then west on state highway 26. Areas along highway can be seen and pullouts will provide you with parking.

Rainbow and German Brown will be the catch.

Adventure lies in Salmon Falls Creek canyon

For the fisherman who wishes to have a few thrills, along with his fishing, the place for this hardy soul is in the canyon below Salmon Falls Dam.

This canyon is located 40 miles south of Twin Falls. Turn right at Rogerson and stay on paved highway until you cross Salmon Falls Dam. About 100 yards after crossing the dam, turn right after crossing the regular and follow road. Only Jeep or a wheel vehicle can go very far on this road. It will go west along the rim of Salmon Falls creek about 1/2 mile.

You will have to pick a trail down into the canyon. After climbing (and/or falling) to the stream in the bed of the canyon you can fish up or downstream.

At times the stream will flow entirely under Jarvi lava rocks and will be out of sight. But when you find the small holes in the stream almost any bait will catch you fish.

The fish will not set any records but are plentiful and of two varieties, Rainbow and Brook trout.

Take your make bite kit. If you lose your trail up out of the canyon follow the canyon up toward the dam and there will be a visible trail to the rim.

Murtaugh Lake has good fishing

Murtaugh Reservoir is located in Twin Falls County, about 18 miles east of Twin Falls and about two miles south of Murtaugh.

Access is made on west end, boat ramps and parking are available.

There are some camping and picnic tables. There is an access road to the south side of reservoir.

Bullhead catfish, perch and bass are the catches made.

Fish Festival on Dog Creek

Facilities: None.
 Location: North of Gooding 5 miles, on state highway 46. Go the 5 miles then, when the road turns right, take a left turn and go 1 mile, then right 1/2 mile, then 1/2 mile left.
 The lake contains Rainbow Trout up to 3 lbs. It should have some larger this year, but reports so far show only medium size.
 Most fishermen are area residents and fish from the earth-filled dam. Some prefer to go up the lake about 1 mile and fish from sand bars.
 Worms, cheese, corn, and lures provide excellent catches.

Fishing on Silver Creek

Silver Creek lies north on Highway 93 from Twin Falls to the point where state highway 68 crosses. Turn right and drive until you see signs indicating if the stream is open to fishing.
 You will have to take side roads to the right to get to the best fishing but in places the stream will cross the road.
 Idaho's famed Silver Creek is rated by many experts as the world's finest dry-fly stream. Some rainbows taken here have exceeded six pounds. Much of the stream is fly fishing only so watch for flies. If the stream is fly fishing only or you are able to use other baits.

 Waders or boots are a must to effectively fish this stream. The banks are undercut with Muskrat holes and much of the area along the banks is bog.
 The land owners in the area have had trouble with fishermen in the past and your greeting will be cool if you do not observe all signs and regulations.
 Your best bet early in the season is to fish with wet flies but talk with the other fishermen and get an indication of what is the "hatch" so you may more properly fish this clear, moss-filled stream. Use only access areas where the game department has built "fence-crossers."

Hydrangea colors vary with soil

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
FLORIST'S
HYDRANGEA: When it comes to Mother's Day, the most popular hydrangea (Hydrangeaphyllis) is probably the most popular.

Noted for its showy flower heads of white, pink or blue, this potted plant was introduced from Japan.

For more mileage, keep the soil moist at all times since this plant is a water "hog." In the home it will drop its buds if not watered once daily. The best way to water it is to set the pot in a pan of water and let it soak up water as it is needed.

It likes a bright window, even direct light, but too much sun will cause the petals to turn brown, especially if the soil is not moist.

Webs often asked how florists manipulate the colors. The color of the pink and blue varieties is determined by soil acidity. In other words, pink varieties develop best colors if the soil is sweet or neutral, while the best blue color occurs when the soil is acid.

To make the soil blue or acid, florists add aluminum or iron, since these materials favor the formation of anthocyanin pigment. When the soil gets so acid aluminum becomes soluble and is absorbed by the plant and hooks up with the anthocyanin molecule, resulting in blue coloration.

To get pink coloration, limestone is added to the soil. How about a white flower. If temperatures drop below 10° or 15 degrees, buds winterkill and you get no flowers. If this happens to you cover the plant with leaves-and-enclose them water and placed in garden cover out birds as well as rabbits.

Snails and slugs can be stopped by filling tin pans with 1/2 of beer and burying them to ground level. Slugs and snails will drown in the liquid. Another trick is to place grapefruit and orange skins in garden. Slugs crawl in under them during the day when you can gather and destroy the snails. One gardener caught over 300 slugs that way in one day.

For spider mites on ornamentals, try using five gallons of water and six tablespoons of kaffir lime plus 4 cups of wheat flour. Mix and douse.

Do you have any other "home remedies" to add? Please send them along.

MORE FROM YOUR GARDEN: Home gardeners are taking advantage of every bit of space they have to practice interplanting. This simply means growing some vegetables in between others to get maximum use of limited garden space. For example, sweet corn, winter squash and pumpkins can be planted in combination, especially if early maturing varieties of sweet corn are used.

Early sweet corn has shorter plants than later types, so their shade is not as dense for the young squash plants. Also, the earlier corn can be harvested before growth becomes tangled and passage through the patch becomes difficult. For years farmers have been growing pumpkins in the corn patch. Leaf lettuce may be planted near bush types of summer squash. The large leaves of the squash provide some shade for the lettuce and thereby keep it cooler and producing longer.

Bush beans and cucumbers may even be planted close together. Beans germinate and grow fast to produce their "crop before the cucumbers overtake them. Vinoceros such as cucumbers should be grown on a fence or on cylinders of wire fencing to save space.

Onions and beets can be planted between rows of cabbage.

Through experience, you'll find many workable combinations that will give you more produce from a limited garden space.

Don't forget you can also grow vegetables in containers such as tubs, pots, barrels, baskets, boxes—or whatever is available.

Mackay has great first day

Mackay Reservoir is located in Custer County and over approximately 1,000 acres when full.

The reservoir is in Big Lost River valley about five miles north of Mackay on U. S. 89A. Public access is available along the highway side of the reservoir. An excellent public recreation area lies near the highway—about one-half mile above the dam. The west side of the small bay has parking space for 150 car-bots and 200 recreational 10-day units with tables and fireplaces. The area has toilets and a sanitary dump station for camp trailers.

East-side of the bay has 27 overnight camp units—with tables and fireplaces—and water system with hydrants and faucets—and a few brook trout and kokoiene can be caught.

Mackay Reservoir will match or beat any lake for the opening few weeks. It should be full this year and will provide excellent fishing from the bank and from boats.

Below Mackay Reservoir in the Big Lost River is one of the finest stretches of river in Idaho. Fish up to 6 pounds were reported from this area last year.

Boat fishing Cedar Creek Reservoir

Cedar Creek Reservoir, or Roseworth Reservoir, is located on Highway 200 south of Mackay.

Facilities: There are areas where you may camp out but take your own water. Boat ramp. Directions: Turn off Highway 200 south on Roseworth and drive 16 miles on paved road.

The best luck in this lake comes from fishing in a boat with a slow, troll using live minnows. Fresh fishermen get good catches using worms, corn, cheese, and the lure fisherman achieves his best catches in the minnow. Many fishermen use float fishing in the shallows, and still use the fly.

Fish at Blind, Box canyons

Blind and Box canyons provide fishing near Banbury Hot Springs.

Location: Follow I-80 going west to the Wendell off-ramp, turn left on country road for 1/2 mile to first stop sign, then left on Bob-Ben highway until road meets Bull-Wendell highway. Cross the highway and go toward Snake River one more mile.

You will end up across from Banbury Hot Springs. Climb down the hill to the river and go down stream about one mile.

The first small creek is Blind Canyon and you should be able to cross on a log across the stream. About 1/2 mile out downstream on the Snake River you will come to Box Canyon.

You may fish the river entrance for some good fishing and set up the canyon and fish the holes in the clear waters.

Some good catches of whitefish have been taken where the waters of Box Canyon meet the Snake River. Use a small white fly with a slow retrieve. Boats are a must for this trip. You will have to cross some small streams and you will need them to effectively fish the creeks.

Most of the fish in Box Canyon are small, but on occasion a fish of one or two pounds may be caught in some of the deeper holes.

Try a small piece of night-crawler instead of the whole worm. It will then resemble some water bugs or a gypsy.

Green Thumb

hydrangea? Can you change its color? No. White hydrangeas have no pigment in their petals (these large floral parts), although some may develop with age. The whites do not change and can be grown as you would the pink or blue. After the plants have finished blooming, cut the old flower head off and plant outdoors.

If winters are mild, the buds will come through and bloom year after year.

Sand Dunes lake fishing

Sand Dunes Lakes are located in Owyhee County and cover about 100 acres located in Sand Dunes State Park south of the Snake River between Brunson and Indian Cove.

Turn south on the old road which connects State Highway 51 and Hammett. Toilets, picnic and camp grounds are available.

Some fine catches of bluegill and bass have been taken from these lakes. Fishing a rubber nightcrawler will produce both bass and bluegill.

Fishing a worm with a bobber is a treat for the kids at this lake.

with wire mesh. Or, dig up plant in fall and place in basement, where it is kept during the winter. After spring and it will bloom in your lawn.

INSECT REPELLENTS: Many readers have written to tell us we do not devote enough space for organic gardening methods. Here are some insect repellents, passed along to us by Nichols Garden Nursery and we hope you will try them:

For ants, they suggest a mulch; and a sprinkling of bone meal; Aphids; garlic-wood ashes; and lady bugs will also help. Beetle (Mexican) are discouraged by cosmos, aster and chrysanthemums.

For earwigs, hang strips of rags on stakes or trees and bushes. In morning, take the rags and dip them in a pan of water to drown the earwigs. Flies—hate tansy and basil. For nematodes grow marigolds for two to three years throughout garden.

For slugs and cut worms that wood sticks around the plants. For rabbits put plants with highly-scented talcum powder. It is also good for keeping coons out of corn and other plants. Some claim that gallon glass jugs half-filled with

Tanning slowly prevents sun rash

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there such a thing as sunburn poisoning? I ride a tractor, and my face, neck, hands and arms get as rough as polished. They break out in a rash and it's like poison. H. D. W.

It's a reaction to the actinic rays of the sun, although not strictly a "poisoning" as from poison ivy chemicals or whatever. Still, you can call it sun poisoning without getting much of an argument.

As I'm sure you know, people vary in sun sensitivity. Blonds and redheads burn easily; brunets less so; but even blacks can burn if exposed too heavily.

Bass fishing waits nearby

Two bass fishing areas close by are Diabetes lakes (yes, lakes) and the Hagerman ponds.

Diabetes lakes are located halfway down the Shoshone Falls grade and are part of the City of Twin Falls park system. The Hagerman ponds are located on the Idaho Fish and Game Preserve near Hagerman.

Those of you who have never fished Diabetes lakes will have a pleasant surprise. The lake has been stocked with rainbow trout, but the bass have been there for years and some anglers have been catching them. The most effective bait is a plastic night crawler, (floating type) of a purple hue.

The method of fishing these lakes is to cast out and let sink to bottom then gently move or shake the tip of your rod, watching your line for any little movement. The bass don't pick up "hits" as they gently pick it up and move. When this occurs the line will move in an unnatural way — then set the hook and hang on.

There are small lakes on the upper part of Diabetes Lake and these lakes are good for bass and blue gill. The upper part of the lake is best fishing and a rubber raft or a little walk will get you there. The far side of the lake will give you a better view.

Billingsley Creek good fly fishing

Billingsley Creek is located 30 miles west of Twin Falls in Hagerman area.

Facilities: The town of Hagerman is close by for any supplies you may need.

Directions: On Highway 30, Hagerman and turn north in the center of town. This will take you to the stream. Another access to the stream is to go through Hagerman to the lake system, cross Highway 30 and turn on dirt road to right before crossing stream.

The stream has Rainbow and Greenback trout. It is best fished early in the morning and late in the evening.

Evening fly fishing is a dream. Use red ants, water bugs, and Hoppers, which will produce well. Fishing right all dark will produce the best fly fishing catches.

Your rash and itching is your particular reaction — shared by a good many others, however.

I can suggest only two ways to combat it that are likely to succeed. One is to develop a tan very gradually at the beginning of the sunny season; the tanning of the skin will protect you.

The other is to limit your exposure to the sun. Protective sunburn lotions (those containing a so-called "sun screen" ingredient) should help but may not be enough.

Your Good Health

You know where the trouble occurs — the exposed skin, face, neck, hands and arms. So, try to get in the habit of wearing a wide-brimmed hat, a light scarf or maybe a bandana for the neck, long sleeves, and perhaps cotton gloves.

Above all, try to develop a tan very slowly, starting as early in the season as possible. But you may still need the hat and other protection throughout the summer. You often see men handling tractors or dozers who are bare to the waist and brown as a nut — but with heavy exposure, they even can itch at times. Your solution is to limit the amount of sun you get.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've gotten into the stupid habit of swimming my saliva. My throat is getting sore and I just can't stop. — N. S.

If you even broke that "stupid habit" you might be in real trouble.

The swallowing of saliva is a very natural process. In fact it is the very beginning of the body's remarkable digestive mechanism.

Saliva contains important enzymes that help break down the food chemically for digestion further down the digestive tract. One such enzyme, ptyalin, begins the chemical breakdown of the starches and sugars in our food.

I would look for some other cause of that sore throat. If you have excess saliva being secreted, the cause of that might be ill-fitting dentures, for example.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can alcohol and sleeping tablets be transmitted by the mother to her baby that she is breast-feeding? For example, feeding a child milk from a mother taking the drug, or a drinker of two wine or cognac? — T. P.

Yes, these drugs (alcohol is a drug, too) can appear in the breast milk, so they are to be avoided by nursing mothers.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have heard people talking about hardening of the arteries and that wine, liquor or beer will thin the blood and help circulation. Will a small amount of these drinks each day help the circulation? — Mrs. R. F. G.

Such drinks will not "thin the blood" but can perk up circulation a bit. This will not retard the hardening process, but it won't do any harm. (Keep in mind that I am talking about small amounts — which is not very much.)

Dr. Thosteson welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Rock Creek for family outings

Rock Creek is located from Twin Falls to 30 miles into the south hills.

Facilities: Where the stream is in the Sawtooth National Forest there are restrooms, water and camping facilities.

Directions: From Twin Falls go to Hansen and turn right off highway 30. The road will lead into Rock Creek Canyon.

The fish will be rainbow and from 8 to 16 inches.

Rock Creek is a very nice place to take the family on a week-end of camping-out and fishing. The beaver ponds on the upper reaches of the creek are very good fly fishing.

Bait fishermen can use worms or corn by fishing the holes along the stream.

The lower part of Rock Creek is on private property. It is best observed by good sportsmen creeds.

Salmon Dam has variety

Facilities: Rest rooms, water, camping and boat facilities.

Directions: Turn off highway 93 south at Rogerston and 5 miles on paved road to dam.

This lake is best fished with a boat but many bank fishermen have very good luck in the early spring and late fall.

This lake need not be fished early in the morning or late in the evening. Most good catches are made from 9 to 11 a.m.

The lake has many varieties of fish including Rainbow and German Brown trout, Crappie, bass, suckers, perch and just recently planted Walleye. The lake has two general areas for fishing. The dam area and the Gray's landing area.

To get to the Gray's landing area, go 5 miles past Rogerston on Highway 33 and turn right at sign indicating Gray's landing.

Most experienced fishermen fish the sandbanks. The trout seem to like these sandy beach areas and any bait from corn to worms bring success. Many of the larger fish are caught on cut-bait (perch or suckers).

A new camping area will be in service sometime in 1974 near the dam area.

Trout fishing at Thorn Creek

Thorn creek reservoir is located in Gooding County. To get east from State Highway 46 about 17 miles southeast of Fairfield, or 22 miles north of Gooding. A dirt road runs about four miles to the lake. Toilet and trash receptacles are available. No water and no boat ramp are there but small boats may be launched near the dam.

F and G project kills steelhead, hatches eggs

By BOB JOHNSON
Special to Times-News

SALMON — Since 1969, more than 8,300 steelhead returning to the Pahsimeroi River have been killed and given away after their eggs were removed.

The seeming slaughter is part of an Idaho Fish and Game Department program in which steelhead are killed after their eggs have been removed for hatching and the carcasses given to the public.

Mal Reingold, regional fishery resources biologist, said evidence indicates "that killing the adult steelhead returning to our Idaho stations, taking all the eggs and giving the carcasses to the public is the most beneficial in terms of efficiency, production and utilization of the resources."

The one-ocean fish returning to this station average about 24 inches long and 5 pounds each.

"This means that some 41,500 pounds of fish were given away for public consumption," Reingold said. "In this time of energy shortages, much needed conservation of all our resources, and rising food costs, this represents a protein source of high value, that might otherwise go to waste."

At the present time, the Idaho Fish and Game Department has three stations to which adult steelhead return from hatchery small streams: the Lemhi angle, the Hayden Creek research station and the Pahsimeroi steelhead collection facility, all on the Salmon River.

The large federal facility near Orofino, Dworshak National Hatchery, now is also receiving large returns of hatchery-reared steelhead trout.

Since 1969, it has been the policy at the state installations to take the eggs from the returning adult steelhead by killing the fish with a blow to the head, bleeding it out by severing a main artery near the tail, and then cutting the fish open and removing the eggs. The carcasses are then given to the public on a first-come, first-serve basis.

"Since steelhead do not die after spawning naturally, the question has been raised: why kill them? If released alive after spawning, won't they return to the sea and come back again?" Reingold said.

In some short coastal streams of Alaska, biologists have determined from looking at scales from adult steelhead that some may spawn, return to the sea, and come back to spawn up to five times, he said.

In Oregon, work by F. H. Sumner in 1948 in Tillamook County showed that 12.7 per cent of the steelhead in a sport catch and 21.4 per cent in a commercial catch showed one or more spawning marks on their scales. Two of these fish had four spawning marks.

"Apparently on short run streams, under favorable conditions with no major obstacles, steelhead trout may live to spawn several times," he said.

Hungry fish

"What about Idaho? In 1954, when there were only two dams in existence on the Columbia and none on the Snake, Charles Whitt" looked at scales from 551 large wild steelhead captured at the Lewiston Dam. He identified only nine fish, 13.6 per cent, as having spawned (once before), and none more than once. There are now eight dams: four on the Columbia and four on the Snake," Reingold said.

"In 1972 and 1973, Emil Statick of the National Marine Fisheries Service studied scales taken from 781 large steelhead at Little Goose Dam on the Snake River. He found only two fish that had spawned once before: 25 per cent. What streams these fish were destined for above Little Goose Dam was not known," he said.

"Even before the white man came and changed the river, the 1,600-mile journey from the sea to the Idaho spawning streams and back was a long and hazardous one. Now, with huge damwater areas, nitrogen gas supersaturation, turbine blades, negative pressures, falls over spillways, pollution, delays and dozens of other deadly obstacles, the journey is nearly impossible."

Reingold said that steelhead can be live-spawned. They can be stripped by hand; squeezing the body to force the eggs out.

"This has not proven very satisfactory on these large fish. The force necessary to squeeze out the eggs often damages them and some hatchery men believe it can also cause injury to the fish," he said.

"Some hatcheries use the air spawning technique: a FEEDING TIME brings a flurry of activity at the Niagara Springs steelhead hatchery. The dry feed comes out of the dispenser at the top and the steelhead, which by now may have been planted in the Salmon River drainage somewhere, start thrashing for their share.

hollow needle is inserted into the body cavity and the eggs forced out with compressed air. Both hand stripping and air spawning are only partially efficient; they leave some eggs behind."

"Estimates from fishery workers range from 10 to 15 per cent. A large steelhead may carry 5,000 eggs. Live spawning may leave 500 eggs or more in the fish," Reingold said.

In 1972, on the Pahsimeroi River, station personnel spawned approximately 3,000 female steelhead. These fish averaged around 130 eggs per fish for a total take of nearly 12 million eggs.

"Had we live-spawned these fish and left some 400 eggs in each one, there would have been some 1,200,000 eggs less to hatch," the biologist said.

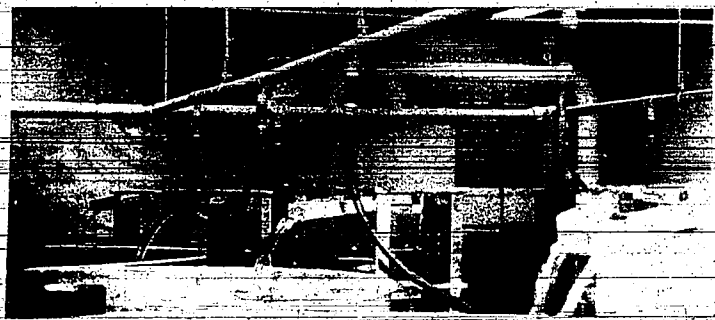

"There are other complications to live spawning and releasing steelhead. Most will return to the hatchery immediately. This creates sorting and handling problems for the hatchery operators and can be a massive problem when several thousand fish are involved," he said.

"Each spawned fish must be marked so as not to be counted over again when it returns. The reported handling can be very hard on the fish themselves, causing sores, loss of body slime and invasion of fungus. This diminishes even further the remote chance of surviving to spawn," Reingold said.

"The fish can be trucked downstream to pass through a fishery again or to reduce the incidence of returning immediately. However, the spawned-out fish are generally lethargic and not as desirable to the sport angler, the rivers are often high and dirty from spring runoff and seasons are usually closed. Also, it is very expensive to purchase and operate large trucks for this purpose," he said.

"A steelhead does not need to return to the sea after spawning and ascend again to reach a large size. Both the Idaho and Washington state record steelhead were caught on their initial spawning runs. Scales from these fish disclosed the Washington record fish had lived at sea for three years and the Idaho record fish for only two," Reingold said.

"Even before the white man came and changed the rivers, the 1,600-mile journey from the sea to the Idaho spawning streams and back was a long and hazardous one."

Hatching tanks

OVERFLOW from the hatching tanks into large holding tanks let young steelhead decide when they want to get into a bigger pond. When they've had enough of close confinement, the free swimmers go out with the overflow. They are held until attaining about two inches before being shipped in to the raceways outdoors at the Niagara plant.

Hatchery helps save steelhead

WENDELL — The Niagara Steelhead plant, once the world's most modern fish hatchery and largest steelhead plant, is now the first known to employ the hatchery-site rearing-tank combination. The changeover, already underway at the plant, which is owned by Idaho Power and operated under the supervision of the Bolivar Quidor and the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

The shift will require expansion to the hatchery building but will result in less crowding and mortality, as the sporting world continues its fight against losing this precious resource in Idaho's waters.

The hatching tanks, built by Idaho Power personnel, are not a new idea but after seven years of experimentation by Quidor and the department, the tanks will, however, offer special modifications best adapted to this hatchery's use.

Totally replacing the tray incubators, the glassed-in tanks will hold from 140,000 to 155,000 eyed eggs. The water is fed from the bottom and the pressure diffused through a three-quarter-inch layer of gravel. The agitation of the water moving toward the surface prevents crowding, and also carries the dead eggs to the surface, away from the healthy ones.

The excess water pours into a large fiberglass holding tank, which is maintained at a 30-inch depth with the excess flowing through waste pipes back into Niagara Springs.

As young steelhead develop into free swimmers, they follow the spout spill into the fiber glass holding tank. They will be held there until two inches long.

Then they will be moved into the raceway by attaching aluminum irrigation pipe to an outlet in the bottom of the tank which flushes them directly into the raceways.

"We see a lot of benefits to this new system. The lack of crowding and the constant separating of the young fish should reduce mortality even lower than what we have achieved," Quidor said. "It takes the stronger fish away from the less mature or weaker ones and gives them more room to develop." By using the aluminum pipe to carry them directly into the raceways we eliminate one more time of having to handle them and that is important."

Another benefit will be the total elimination of lost during steps from the eyed egg to delivery into the raceways.

"We put a check screen in the waste water pipe while we still had the tray incubators," Quidor explained. "We left it there about a week and were amazed to discover it had caught about 60 pounds of steelhead that were getting out of the trays. We had no idea we were having that kind of loss. Sixty pounds of these little fellows adds up to a lot of individual steelhead."

With the probability of four million eggs to be hatched and reared at this plant and Hagerman this year, the plantings for the Pahsimeroi, headwaters of the main Salmon River and the Middle Snake River below Hells Canyon dam again been assured.

Salmon, steelhead numbers protected

Idaho Fish and Game Department

There will always be sea-run chinook salmon and steelhead trout in Idaho, some 800 miles from saltwater.

That was the consensus of more than 100 members and friends attending the 26th annual meeting of the Pacific Marine Fisheries Commission. They agreed that the state's anadromous fish runs in the Snake, Clearwater and Salmon River systems can be maintained and perpetuated for posterity if these fish stocks are protected from Russian trawl fleets, Japanese high seas filleting, the proliferation of dams, and river netting.

Behind this national meeting are a complex of federal and state fish hatcheries that produce millions of salmon and steelhead for release in Idaho headwater streams and coastal tributaries on the lower Columbia River. The big question is what percentage of these fish should be hatchery-produced, and how many should be wild stock.

Federal and tri-state fishery management agencies are pooling more technical knowledge, time and money than ever hitherto before to keep the salmon and steelhead running.

More than $500 million has been spent in the past 30 years to improve the upstream salmon and steelhead runs in the Columbia River Basin.

The fisheries bibliography on Pacific salmon has now reached a staggering 44,000 books, technical reports, trawls and studies — and still there is more to be learned about these species and what makes them tick. Scientists somehow must overcome (1) "losses" of adult upstream fish migrants, (2) downstream small mortality, (3) changes in river environment, including nitrogen supersaturation, and (4) reduced production rate of "wild" chinook salmon and steelhead trout.

Present status of the Columbia River runs is only a fraction of the number of fish observed by Lewis and Clark. At one time, nearly 5,000 stream miles were available to salmon and steelhead in Idaho. Dam construction beginning on the Snake River at Swan Falls in 1907 and presently ending with Dworshak Dam on the North Fork of the Snake River has reduced this stream mileage by 42 per cent.

Just over four decades separate the Idaho days of abundance when spearing and clubbing of ocean-going fish was legal, to a temporary statewide closure of all salmon angling in 1955.

The combination of state, federal and private money has enhanced some steelhead and salmon fishing runs and even established new ones. For example, the Rapid River hatchery near Riggin, Idaho, was called "as a tremendous success" by Burrell R. Bohm of Portland. A record of 17,000 adult chinook salmon, originating from eggs at the hatchery, returned to spawn the past year.

The Rapid River of Circle C salmon fish hatchery is owned by the Idaho Power Company and operated by the Fish and Game Department.

Recent estimates by the Oregon Fish Commission indicate that Idaho produces 39 percent of all the spring chinook in the Columbia River, 45 percent of the summer chinook and 45 percent of the summer steelhead.

The estimated catch of salmon and steelhead during 1972 in the five states represented by the PMFC was 2.4 million fish. This included 1.9 million salmon and 517,000 steelhead.

Most of the catch — nearly 1.5 million fish — was recorded in Washington. The catch in other states included Oregon 586,917; California 245,000; Alaska 123,529 and Idaho 30,000.

The system of federal — state — private fish hatcheries that helps perpetuate anadromous chinook salmon and steelhead trout runs in the Columbia River can be a rather precarious situation. It may be radically affected by the unexpected outbreak of disease, some unexplainable die-off in the open sea, unusually low or extremely high water in rivers; an accidental spill of petroleum or toxic chemicals; landslides — or any number of unforeseen factors.

There is not enough slack in the system to take up the shock of disaster, as there was in the old days when the rivers were so thick with salmon a person could literally walk across on their backs.

So far, technology is providing such refinements as spillway deflectors and additional turbines at some of the dams to reduce the impact of nitrogen supersaturation of fish passage, both upstream and downstream, and investigating the possibility of screening turbines to prevent juvenile fish from passing through them to their death. New water storage reservoirs such as those behind Libby and Dworshak Dams are reducing water spill and nitrogen supersaturation, or bubble disease in fish.

Some scientists see hope for the future in new developments such as saltwater salmon "farm." Fish are raised under controlled conditions and harvested for the market like chickens in a broiler plant. In Norway and other North Sea countries, large-scale Atlantic salmon farms already are in operation on a commercial basis.

The propagation, rearing and harvest of salmon for food in the future probably could be done this way, using hatchery production exclusively instead of nature's wasteful ways.

Idaho is shooting for some natural or "wild" salmon and steelhead production, to be supplemented as needed with hatchery fish stocks. This means that river habitat conditions must be maintained downstream on a level that will be suitable for "wild" adult fish and juvenile downstream migrants. Most efficient locations for anadromous fish hatcheries would be on coastal streams, thus eliminating perilous passage problems through hundreds of river miles to the Clearwater and Salmon Rivers.

Hatchery production already is important to salmon and steelhead anglers in Idaho. Catch estimates for 1972 indicate that 45 per cent of the statewide salmon harvest was returning to the Rapid River hatchery near Riggin. Smaller numbers of salmon were found in the Upper Salmon River drainage, returning to experimental stations on Hayden Creek on the Lemhi River, or Decker Flat.

Anglers become more aware each year of the growing number of hatchery steelhead in their catch. It may vary anywhere from 1- to 60 percent, depending on date and location on the river.

Idaho fishery managers say that the state never will go to an all-hatchery salmon or steelhead production program — or all-hatchery rainbow trout, for that matter. There are too many anglers wanting wild fish in all their perfection and natural glory, rather than hatchery fish as substitutes.

Boats aid fishing at Lake Walcott

Walcott Reservoir is the backwater above Minidoka Dam located about 13 miles northeast of Rupert. There is public access at dam and along most of the north shore. No facilities except toilets at the dam. Road on north rough and drifted with sand at times.

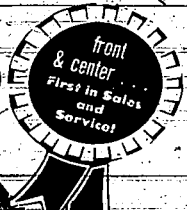

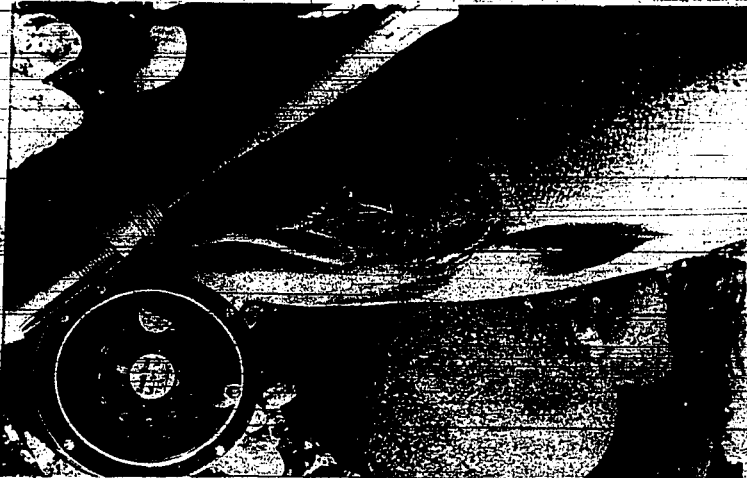

A boat is a must to effectively fish the backwaters of the dam. Gooding fishing is best by trolling with lures near the dam.

For the fisherman who is willing to fish hard for the big one, you can put on waders or hip boots and fish the fast water below the dam. If you come in from the South side you get into some very good side streams. Fish meat and dead minnows are a favorite.

The wet fly is normally cast across and slightly upstream, and allowed to drift with the current until the line becomes straight. Many of the strikes occur when the line straightens out.

AN OPEN LETTER TO FLY FISHERMEN

Magic Valley has long needed a specialty shop for the fly fisherman, whether beginner, novice, or sophisticated angler. A place where he could readily obtain qualified professional instruction, high quality flies, and honest service.

If you are tired of the average thirty-five-cent discount store fly and want quality merchandise, come in and see us at The Fishin' Fool Fly Shop, 760 Main Avenue North in Twin Falls.

We are suppliers for Eddie Bauer, Inc., Recreational Equipment Co., and Patrick's Fly Shop, all of whom have a reputation for buying only the best -- we are not strangers to quality.

We use only Mustad hooks, the best quality materials, and hand tie all our flies from woolly worms to dry flies with the proper techniques -- no short cuts and strict quality control. All of our flies are unconditionally guaranteed, as is customer satisfaction. The price is right; too -- all flies are fifty-cents each or six dollars per Bokers dozen -- they sell for sixty-five to ninety-five cents elsewhere. Custom orders are no extra charge. Remember -- We dress flies; we don't just wrap hooks.

Three fishing areas are located near Carey. Flah Creek Reservoir is located in Blaine County. Turn north from U. S. 20-50 about five miles east of Carey. Some parking, trash cans, toilets, drinking water, and camping space available. Rainbow and some brook trout can be caught.
This reservoir was drained last year and from information the fish will be small.
Carey Lake is located adjacent to the town of Carey. Drive on U. S. 20-50 toward Arco out of Carey. Public access on north and east sides. Parking and places to lunch small boats are available but no other facilities.
The lake has bass and bluegills and some large perch.
Little Wood Reservoir is located in Blaine County. Drive west and north of Carey along gravel road about four miles. Boat ramp on east side but it is difficult to launch boats later in the year. There is a public camp ground with tables, toilets, fireplaces and drinking water.
Rainbow trout will be your catch.

Sublett — fish, no facilities
Sublett Reservoir is located in Cassia County and covers about 100 acres when full. Turn east from I-50N at Sublett interchange, east eight miles on graded road. Forest area. There are no facilities at lake but good U.S. Forest Service campground two miles east.
The lake has Rainbow and Coho salmon.
Coho are meat eaters, so cut bait dead minnows make the best bait. The water is clear so trolling flies is your best bet for boat fishing.

Hagerman fishermen catch rainbows

The Hagerman Game Preserve is located 20 miles west of Twin Falls on Highway 30. Facilities: Rest rooms, water.

'Magic' called queen of fishing

Magic Reservoir is located 50 miles north of Twin Falls on Highway 93. Facilities: Boat camp, cafe, store, cabins, trailer hook-ups, rest rooms.

Their night life and all who fish Magic enjoy the company as much as the fishing.

This area has many small lakes and a stream running through it. The Oster ponds are located in this area and have been producing some fine catches of rainbow. The limit is 5 fish per day. Rainbow, Bluegill, and bass are in the ponds and streams in the game preserve.

Any type of bait will do the job. Early in the season the creek running through the preserve seems to be the best fishing. Later in the season the ponds and lakes will produce better.

Fly fishing from tubes will produce some fine catches late in the day.

Directions: Turn left one mile past the Fish Hatchery. Caves or five miles past the ice caves to the left. Both roads will lead you to resorts on the lake.

Magic has to be called the queen of the fishing in Magic Valley. On opening day there will be shore-to-shore boats. The best fishing will come from boat fishing but many fine catches are made along the shore line.

The area around "Merles point" seems to be a favorite for bank fishermen.

The lake contains Rainbow trout with an increasing population of perch. Many of the perch are now in the 4 lb. class, and the trout last year were up to 15 lbs.

Built lake your choice. Last year nice catches were being taken on cut bait (perch). Many were using the backs out of the perch and then keeping the perch for good eating.

Boat fishermen seem to prefer large woolly worms and small lures. The most successful seem to prefer a "crazy" course when trolling.

The resorts are noted for

It is said that for every day a person spends fishing the gods will grant him another day of life. Perhaps it just seems that a day fishing is worth two of any other day.

Richfield Canal tough fishing

The Richfield Canal is located 30 miles north of Twin Falls on Highway 93. The Richfield Canal is the escaping water from Magic Reservoir. It flows from a diversion 2 1/2 miles downstream from the irrigation fields in the Richfield area.

The fish are red meat rainbow which feed on freshwater shrimp. The canal is hard to fish and many give up in disgust. Many prefer the lower part of the canal to a point known locally as the "y". But any place on the canal will produce large fish.

A secret of fishing the canal seems to be in what and how to use your bait.

Woolly worms used with spinning rods with a lead weight about 18 to 24 inches up from the fly will produce the results.

A little trick to this fishing is to reach into the water along the banks and pull out handfuls of moss and shake this upon a piece of newspaper to retrieve the fresh water shrimp. Then place one or two on the end of the woolly worm.

Throw cross stream or a little up stream and let drift down to the shore line. Any little tug merits a check on your part. At times they will bite very light.

Mormon Res. good fishing

Mormon reservoir is located 70 miles north of Twin Falls on Highway 93.

Facilities: rest rooms, boat ramps, camping spots.

Directions: Go north on 93 to Twinerman Hill to highway 26 going west, then to Fairfield. At Fairfield take a left turn on a dirt road and follow to end of road.

The fish will be very nice red parrout, rainbow or perch.

Those fishermen with float tubes like to fly fish the shallow in the evening hours with woolly worms or a Renegade fly. Boat fishermen will troll a woolly worm.

Most of the bank fishermen will fish with two hooks using corn on one hook and worms or nightcrawlers on the other.

It is suggested that if you bank fish you anchor your pole. Last year I witnessed a fish that took pole and all and was never seen again.

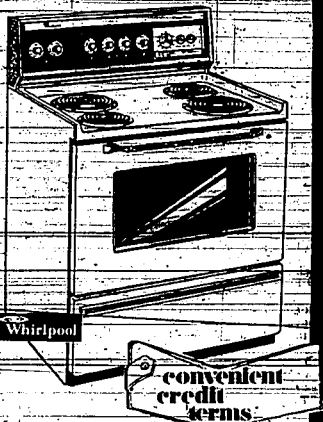

Take at least 2 dozen woolly worms and that many sinkers as you will bring up every few casts and lose the outfit. Just cast, drift, let lie a minute and reel in, repeat.

MORTON SOBELL writes book—On doing time.

By ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN
Q: We're curious to know about Morton Sobell, who was tried, with Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and sent to prison, for his role in World War II espionage. — G. G., Troy, N. Y.

A: Sobell served nearly 19 years of his 30-year sentence in various Federal prisons, including Alcatraz. He was released in 1963. Sobell has always claimed that he and the Rosenbergs were innocent of the spy charges for which the latter were executed. Sobell has just completed a book on the trial, his years in prison, and how his marriage survived the long separation. Titled "On Doing Time," Scribners will publish in October.

THE MERRY MONTH OF MAY IN MONACO: You'll be hearing a lot about one of the world's smallest countries this month. Prince Rainier is marking his 25th year as ruler of Monaco and also celebrating his 51st birthday as well as the 18th anniversary of his marriage to Philadelphia's Grace Kelly.

Q: How come we never see Jimmy Durante on television anymore? — E. D., Washington, D. C.
A: Jimmy, 62, suffered a massive stroke some months ago and has been confined to a wheel chair.

He lives quietly with his devoted wife and their 11-year-old adopted daughter. TALK OF THE TESS: Washington gossipers having a field day over ex-Veep Spiro Agnew's insensitivity in hanging onto his honorary membership at the elite Burning Tree Golf Club in Bethesda, Md. By rights, Agnew's locker space and membership belong to his successor, Gerald Ford, but Agnew seems not to notice and keeps using the club. Senior members don't know what to do about the embarrassing situation. "We give honorary memberships to the President, the V.P., the Speaker of the House and Supreme Court Justices for the durations of their terms. Mr. Nixon is a life member." Everybody wishes Mr. Agnew would turn in his locker key, and go quietly.

Q: Is there anything to astrology? Or is it just the bunk? — H. T., Santa Fe, N. M.

A: Scientists say there's nothing to it but the bellers are many. There are some astonishing coincidences in any case. For instance, every 20 years Jupiter and Saturn come close together. For 120 years, every U.S. President inaugurated in the year of these planets' conjunction had died in office. Who? Henry Harrison (1841), Lincoln (1861), Garfield (1881), McKinley (1901), Harding (1921), Franklin Roosevelt (1941), Kennedy, Kennedy (1961). Four out of the seven were murdered.

Q: Of all the James Bond characters — Sean Connery, George Lazenby and Roger Moore — I liked Lazenby best. How come he never did another 007 and what was he paid for "On His Majesty's Secret Service"? — D. C., Topock, Kan.

A: You're pretty much alone in your choice. The producers couldn't stand his arrogance and even good-natured Diana Rigg thought he was abusive and crude. Lazenby was paid about $50,000 for the role. Reports are that since marriage and fatherhood George is changed man. Lazenby got a comeback chance after three years of unemployment as the star of a new Kung Fu movie "Stone," due for release this year.

Q: Will the new Mrs. Henry Kissinger try to make any changes in her husband's life? — W. P., Chevy Chase, Md.

A: The former Nancy Maginnes is already busy shopping and changing the decor of the Secretary of State's bachelor-house, which runs heavily to autographed photos of the famous. Says the new Mrs. Kissinger of her husband's taste in his home, "Very early Holiday Inn."

Q: Is it true what they say about Carl Stokes and singer Nancy Wilson? — J. H., Boston, Mass.

A: This kind of question intrudes as because who knows what "they" are saying? It's true that the beautiful balck singer and the former Mayor of Cleveland, now WNBC newsman Carl Stokes, are dating and he has visited her in Las Vegas. Nancy also cancelled plans to marry a wealthy Latin Navy man and can't have a lot in common. Both are dedicated to causes they believe in.

Q: Why don't the Fondas get together and do something? I'd like to see this critic's movie family as a trio even though I don't approve of Jane. — P. O., Sausalito, Calif.

A: You are right on the beam. Jane, Peter and daddy Henry are going to make a film of the Howard Fast novel "Valley Forge," with Hank playing General George Washington and Jane and Peter as early Americans.

Q: Whatever happened to Gina "Lolapalooza's" love affair with the heart transplant doctor, Christian Barnard? Those things flame up in the papers and then are never mentioned again. — E. T., Boston, Mass.

A: Miss Lolabridget, 45, is quite candid about her romance with the famous surgeon and just as candid that it didn't take. "I have no wish to see this man again. He is an idiot—a cheap publicity-seeker. I am a top film star. I know what publicity is and how it works." In 1971, Gina sought a court action against the former Mrs. Barnard for publishing love letters Gina wrote to the doctor. Gina lost the case. At the time she said, "I cannot blame myself for having had a sincere feeling for a man the whole world loved and admired, at the time."

Q: Whatever happened to Richard M. Dixon, the President's look-alike? — N. B., Ft. Worth, Tex.

A: All of a sudden, James Earl Ray, who took the name Richard M. Dixon, finds his "act" isn't funny anymore. For awhile Dixon was earning $50,000 a year working conventions but he had a heart attack. Though Dixon voted for Nixon in 1972 and claims he has "humanized" the President by looking like him, he found himself on the enemy's list. If the President is impeached, Dixon may feel lucky if he can get himself arrested, as they say.

Q: Can you tell us something about the Dewhurst lady who won the Tony on TV recently? — W. E., Detroit, Mich.
A: Colleen Dewhurst, who won the Antoinette Perry Award for this year's best actress on Broadway, is considered the actor's actress. She is one of the greatest talents in the professions. Married and divorced from George C. Scott twice, they have two children, Alexander, 13, and Campbell, 12. Colleen now lives on a farm in Salem, N. Y., and can be seen on Broadway in "Moon" for the Misbegotten or on film opposite John Wayne in "McQ."

Patty Hearst in Idaho?

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho State Police issued an alert Saturday for a foreign car carrying four persons, including one who matches the description of Patricia Hearst. Authorities said they were investigating reports the auto was seen in Moscow, Idaho, and later in Fruitland, Idaho. In Fruitland, citizens told state police that a car stopped at a store. State police said the car had California license plates.

Daley leaves hospital

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley was released Saturday from a hospital where he had spent 12 days recovering from a minor stroke. The 72-year-old mayor went to his home to rest in preparation for corrective surgery, expected to be performed in three or four weeks.

Tanzanians sentenced to death

ZANZIBAR (UPI) — Thirty-four persons including former Tanzanian cabinet minister Abdul Rahman Babu were sentenced to death Saturday for treason. A family spokesman said they were "emotionally numb" after the ordeal and did not want to make any statement at this time. "They simply sat in a chair and breathed a tremendous sigh of relief," he said.

Russians arrest priest

MOSCOW (UPI) — Police arrested a controversial Russian Orthodox priest Saturday and hauled him out of his church while his parishioners wept. The priest, Dmitri Dudko, 53, announced he was leaving the priesthood because of "the illegal interference of the goddess in the internal affairs of the church." Church authorities, apparently prompted by Communist officials, ordered Dudko two weeks ago to stop giving question-and-answer sermons in which he dealt bluntly with spiritual and moral problems in this atheist society.

Actor eyes presidency

BANGOR, Maine (UPI) — Gary Merrill, the movie and television actor, showed up at the Maine Democratic state convention Friday to say he wants to run for President. "I have no axes to grind like some of those other people do," said Merrill, a Maine native and unsuccessful candidate for Congress.

Gurney fund disclosed

MIAMI (UPI) — A former fundraiser for Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., has told federal agents of at least 14 federal Housing Administration developers who allegedly contributed $320,000 to a booster fund for Gurney, the Miami Herald reported. The Herald said in its Sunday edition that four of the developers confirmed giving money to Larry Williams, four denied it. Four declined comment and the remaining four refused to answer phone calls or letters sent by the Herald. A federal grand jury in Jacksonville is investigating alleged influence peddling involving Gurney's fundraisers and FHA builders.

Weather satellite to record storms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's first round-the-clock consuming satellite will be operating in three months for the hurricane season in the Atlantic because a small rocket motor successfully pushed the craft into higher orbit, a spokesman said Saturday.

Blaze kills 5

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man died, and two persons were seriously burned in a fire here early Saturday morning. Arson is suspected, although police won't reveal the reasons for their suspicion. According to one witness, occupants of the house suggested the possibility of arson to city police at the scene. Jerry Parrott, 30, died of asphyxiation in the fire which gutted the home of Mrs. Pearl Tipton, 1041 Second Ave. West. Priscilla Machipness, 29, and Jerome Cree, 48, both Twin Falls, entered Magaly Tipton Memorial Hospital Saturday morning with injuries from the flames. Miss Machipness was reported in serious condition Saturday evening with second and third degree burns on 60 per cent of her body. Cree was listed in fair condition with second and third degree burns on his legs. Mrs. Tipton was in the house at the time of the fire. She told

HOUSE where members of Symbionese Liberation Army held police at bay for over an hour burns furiously in Los Angeles Friday. Five members of the terrorist organization died in the flames, including leader Donald DeFreeze. (UPI)

TF man killed in blaze

The Times-News Saturday that the fire could not reveal why information about the fire. "I'm in such a shock, I don't know what to do," Mrs. Tipton said. Twin Falls Police Detective Capt. Tim Qualls said Saturday the department about the fire. Six men and two pumps worked until around 3 a.m., putting the flames out. "All the rooms were pretty well burnt out except one," McCullom said. "Investigation does not turn up enough facts." Twin Falls Fire Department Captain Paul McCullom said the fire was reported at 1:15 a.m. Saturday. Apparently, seven neighbors had called the department about the fire. He said no suspects had been arrested, but would not say whether police had any persons under investigation. "According to Coroner Clarence Edwards an inquest will be necessary if the police

Burley woman arraigned

By ED MITCHELL
Times-News Writer
BURLEY — A 52-year-old Burley woman was arraigned Friday afternoon in connection with the union hall fire here Thursday night. Mary Oden Sorenson was arraigned before a Magistrate Gleason Anderson on charges of arson and assault with intent to commit murder. She allegedly set fire to the office of the American Federation of Grain Millers Union. Bond was set at $5,000. The office is located in a business building at 150 Overland Ave. in Burley. No estimate of damage to the office or other parts of the building has been made. The union office was gutted by the fire. The hallway and adjoining office showed evidence of heat and smoke damage. The incident occurred while about 140 union members were in meetings in conference rooms on the floor below the union office. Five people were in the office on the second floor when the fire started. Witnesses say Sorenson reportedly entered the building two to three times before she was seen to carry a one-gallon plastic jug into the building. Police department officials said earlier that she allegedly used a five-gallon gasoline can to set the fire. Witnesses outside the building said they thought the woman was taking Kool-Aid to the meeting when they saw her carrying the jug of reddish liquid. The woman allegedly took the gasoline to the door of the union office where she poured it on the floor and threw a match in it. She reportedly escaped the building after one of the men in the office, James Clayford, leapt over the blue and pursued her but stopped to give the alarm to union members on the lower floor. Clayford refused to comment on the incident. Other occupants of the office were forced to jump from a window to escape the flames. Zola Peacock, 57, Boise, suffered first and second degree burns. She is reported in fair condition at St. Alphonsus Hospital, Boise, where she was transferred Friday afternoon from Cassia Memorial Hospital. She is a union member and women's auxiliary director of the Committee for Political Education, an affiliate organization of the AFL-CIO. (Continued on p. 16)

Union meet set

BURLEY — An American Federation of Grain Millers union members will be held today in Burley. Grain Millers officials said the meeting at the Ramada Inn at 1:30 p.m. is intended to bring members up to date on the strike against the J. R. Simplot Company at its Caldwell and Heyburn plants. The strike has been going on since May 2, when contract negotiations were declared at an impasse by Federal mediator Jack Garvey.

Henry scores Mideast breakthrough

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger achieved a dramatic breakthrough in his Middle East peace efforts Saturday by winning Syrian acceptance of an American plan for a ceasefire line with Israel in the Golan Heights. Reporting the breakthrough, a high official about Kissinger's plan, said Kissinger was "very optimistic" at completing the agreement on a ceasefire line in talks with Israeli leaders here Saturday night or Sunday.

He said Kissinger will stay on in the area three or four days to try to complete the larger agreement on disengaging the forces of the two countries—a major step toward peace in the area. Israelis and Syrians may then meet face to face for the first time in Geneva to sign the disengagement agreement, the official said. Kissinger himself would not be present in Geneva where Syria boycotted the first round of the Middle East peace conference late last year.

TF land-use plan sparks 'tug-of-war'

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A tug-of-war is shaping up over the amount of time an citizen participation needed for the Twin Falls County land-use plan. Professional planners have put top priority on time-consuming citizen input, while city and county officials stress the need to finish the plan as soon and as cheaply as possible. David Richey, the city-county planner, wants "grass roots" citizen participation in the plan, "relying heavily upon the citizens to do the leg work; assimilate the information, analyze it and form recommendations with the assistance of professional planners." "I am personally an advocate of the people guiding the program," Richey said. "But extensive public input may take more time and money than city and county officials will allow." Richey said a land-use plan for Twin Falls City alone will take about two years if "grass roots" citizen participation is sought. Paul Ostyn, a Twin Falls City councilman and member of the planning panel which drafted the plan, said the city wants "something done in black and white within the next 12 months." He questioned Richey's proposal for "long-term" citizen participation. "I think a good plan should be developed and then taken to the citizens," he said. "But that is the 'least successful method of obtaining citizen input and the necessary public support," according to Richey. "People feel that they are not participating but are simply being informed of the action that is taking place and are being asked to 'rubber stamp it,'" Richey said. "It lacks the dynamics and personal commitment that members of the community can provide when they are more deeply involved," he said. (Continued on p. 15)

Patty not in SLA inferno

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst was not in the house where five Symbionese Liberation Army members were killed in a wild gun battle with police but "General Field Marshal Chique" of the terrorist kidnaping cult was slain, it was disclosed Saturday. The 26-year-old Hearst's granddaughter of legendary newspaper empire founder William Randolph Hearst, was presumably still alive but the mystery of her whereabouts or state of mind was still unsolved. The five killings may have broken the back of the weird cult which was estimated never to have more than a dozen members. After a microscopic examination of the five charred bodies found in the ashes of a yellow stucco house in a black-angry-of south central Los Angeles Friday night, Coroner Thomas Noguchi said that Patricia Hearst was definitely not one of the victims. Noguchi first telephoned the news to Randolph Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, and his wife. They had been living in Los Angeles for their daughter's life since she was kidnaped by the SLA on Feb. 4. A family spokesman said they were "emotionally numb" after the ordeal and did not want to make any statement at this time. "They simply sat in a chair and breathed a tremendous sigh of relief," he said. Noguchi identified four of the five persons killed in the 1,000-shot "war" involving some 500 police and FBI agents Friday. Examination of "combat-carrier" vest and torso X-rays prints established the identity of Chique, the name used by 30-year-old Donald DeFreeze, and three more of the five bodies found in the four-foot-high debris. Noguchi said DeFreeze had claimed in "communiques" and tape recordings to be the leader of the terrorist band, formed while he was an inmate at California State Prison at Vacaville. ## Transportation plan unveiled

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A transportation plan for the Twin Falls City corridor route was unveiled Friday by J. R. Engineers. Twin Falls was presented to the Twin Falls Transportation Planning Committee at a luncheon meeting. The plan includes by-pass corridor routes that would take traffic around the city. The engineering firm also made 40 recommendations for improving existing roads and adding some new ones. The by-pass system, which includes new highways east and west of Twin Falls, is designed to eliminate traffic congestion on inner-city arterial routes. Joe Haynes, a J-R-B engineer, said the new by-pass routes would be about one and one-half mile outside the city limits on the east and west. The exact locations of the roads have not been established, according to Haynes. He based on a map presented to the committee, the by-pass corridor to the west of Twin Falls would enter the area on US Highway 33, swing to the north along a new route about one and one-half miles west of Grandview Drive; and then swing east on existing Pole Line Road, to the Perrine Bridge. The east corridor would follow a line generally one and one-half miles east of Eastland Drive. The south boundary of the corridor route would be along existing Orchard Drive. Meri Leonard, county commissioner and chairman of the transportation committee, suggested the plan be discussed individually by separate factions of the committee, including the Twin Falls City Council, Twin Falls Highway District and county commissioners. The views of these groups will then be returned to the engineering firm for possible alteration of the plan before formal public presentation is made. (Continued on p. 8)

Damaging evidence released by tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The four tapes heard so far by the House Judiciary Committee indicate that President Nixon's staff was aware of illegal activities but there is no evidence he was involved in them.

In four days of closed hearings, the committee has heard only four of the 19 tapes surrendered by Nixon. Two of those, both meetings between Nixon and former counsel John W. Dean III, showed the President had extensive knowledge of the illegal activities carried out by White House aides and his re-election campaign staff.

The most damaging evidence so far was in the tape of a Nixon-Dean meeting, Sept. 15, 1972, three months after the Watergate break-in. A transcript of the tap was obtained by the Washington Post and it showed that significant material had been deleted from the edited version released by the White House.

In the tape, Nixon announced his intention of using the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), Internal Revenue Service (IRS), the FBI and the Justice Department to retaliate against his enemies, particularly the media.

Much of this was in the White House version of the transcript, but deleted was a lengthy attack by Nixon on the Washington Post for its Watergate coverage.

The Post is going to have damnably damaging evidence. Nixon's staff did not release by the White House. He specifically mentioned that the Post would have problems with the FCC in renewing licenses for two television stations in Iowa in Florida.

The revelation immediately prompted the committee to launch an investigation to determine whether Nixon carried out the threat, according to Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif.

Florida groups have challenged the licenses of both stations, and those challenges are still pending. One challenge was filed by two law partners of former Sen. George Smathers, a friend of Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, Nixon's closest friend.

The use of government agencies to punish enemies of the White House is one of the original list of potentially impeachable offenses the committee is investigating.

The second major tape listened to by the committee was of Feb. 26, 1973, the first lengthy meeting Dean had with Nixon since the Jan. 30, 1973, resignation. Dean had been in charge of handling the Watergate case for the White House.

Pentagon 'made rain' during Indochina War

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Comparing it to an elephant laboring to bring forth a mouse, the Pentagon in a document released Saturday finally owned up to its role as a rainmaker during the Indochina war.

Transcript of a top secret briefing on the program given to a Senate foreign relations subcommittee last March 20, was released by Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I.

It showed that the rainmaking program lasted from 1966 to 1972, involved some 2,800 flights by Phantom jets and C-130 typhoon transports seeding clouds with silver and lead iodide, and cost about $2.6 million.

But as Deputy Assistant Defense Secretary Dennis J. Doolin said in an exchange with Pell near the end of the briefing:

"When you look at the amount of rainfall that was in these given areas anyway, and what was added to it possibly by these extra seedings, it looks to me like when you are getting 23 inches in a given area and we add 2 inches, if I was on the bottom, I do not think I would know the difference between 21 and 23."

Much the same thought was expressed by Air Force Maj. Gen. Ray Furlong, who also participated. "Your observation—the elephant laboring and bringing forth a mouse—I think in large measure reflects our current perception," he told Pell.

The briefing showed that virtually all the rainmaking was done in the mountainous trail in the Loatian panhandle. Areas of North Vietnam leading up to mountain passes into Laos were also subjected to cloud seeding from time to time, but that country was put off limits from 1966 to 1968, because of U.S. bombing ended in 1968.

The object, according to the Pentagon witnesses, was to muddy the upwarped roads over which thousands of North Vietnamese trucks carried supplies to the battlefronts in the South.

Most of the cloud seeding was carried out during the months leading up to and out of the east Asian monsoon season. Rain was plentiful enough during the monsoon proper to make it unnecessary.

No typhoons or tropical storms were ever seeded, officials said, because they were producing enough rain anyway.

Israelis turn attention to Golan Heights fight

By United Press International

After two days of fierce reprisals for the Arab guerrilla massacre in the Maalot school house, Israel turned its military attention away from Lebanon Saturday and back to the Golan Heights, where Syrian and Israeli artillery duelled for the third day.

Syrian military communiques issued in Damascus said fighting raged across the entire 40-mile front where Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is trying to draw a ceasefire line to separate the warring armies.

Kissinger carried his shuttle diplomacy in search of military disengagement between the sixth and seventh day, but there had been so much progress that he would stay in the area a few more days.

Beirut radio said Israeli warplanes approached the Lebanese capital several times Saturday and Lebanese planes went up to intercept them. But Lebanese military sources said there were no clashes and the Israeli planes did not attack any ground targets.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said Syrian gunners opened up in the morning on its soldiers at several sectors of the front line in the Heights.

"The fire was returned," the communique said. "There were no losses to the Israeli forces."

One Israeli officer was killed in a similar attack Friday. Tel Aviv authorities announced, bringing to 34 the number of Israeli soldiers killed in the war

Community services win award for man

TWIN FALLS — Rev. Harrie S. Young, Buhl, was honored for outstanding community services during an awards dinner Thursday night at the Rogerson Roundup Room.

The award was presented by Dick Truscott, district representative of Modern Woodmen of America, during a dinner meeting for Modern Woodmen of American Camp 10890, Twin Falls. Members and their families attended the dinner.

Rev. Young was ordained in 1942 and for many years has worked at the Boys Scout organizations serving as international representative, secretary, committee member and has been secretary and president of the Buhl Kiwanis Club.

Another award, recognition of 50 years service, was presented Frank Seuling, Buhl.

Pursue tapes, Hansen says

By BILL LAZARUS Times-News Writer TWIN FALLS—The House Judiciary Committee should pursue its efforts to obtain presidential tapes, according to Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho. The transcripts turned over to the committee in lieu of the tapes "appear to be incomplete," the representative said in an interview Friday. If President Nixon continues to refuse to release the tapes, the courts should decide the issue, Hansen said. Refusal to comply with a court order "would strongly influence the House's forward impetus," he said. But Hansen would not say how he would be influenced if such a conflict between Nixon and the Supreme Court developed. "He said all the evidence would have to be considered as a whole. Also, taking a position now might disqualify a legislator from judging the President later," Hansen said. "Resignation of the President would leave too many unanswered questions at this point," the constitutional process of impeaching ought to go forward," he said. Hansen predicted the Republicans will lose 15 to 20 seats in the House in November or "about the historical loss the party in the White House suffers in a mid-term election." The special elections held earlier this year, he said, were taken as a test of the President's popularity. In November, when incumbents run for their seats, the representatives' records, not Watergate, will determine the elections, Hansen said. The battle to fight inflation, he said, is taking place on two fronts: to satisfy demand and stabilize prices; production must be increased "also government spending must be controlled."

Hollifield seeks TF attorney bid

TWIN FALLS — William H. Hollifield announces his candidacy on the Republican ticket for the office of prosecuting attorney for the county of Twin Falls.

Hollifield, 25, is a 1962 graduate of Hansen High School, is married and lives east of Hansen. He attended Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash., and graduated from the University of Idaho with a bachelor of arts degree in economics in 1966. Hollifield attended the University of Idaho College of Law where he received his juris doctorate degree in June of 1969 and was admitted to the Idaho Bar in September of 1969.

WILLIAM HOLLIFIELD seeks post

In November, 1969, Hollifield enlisted in the United States Army and upon completion of officer's candidate school in 1970, he was commissioned a second lieutenant. While serving as aide-de-camp to the commanding general of the military district of Washington in Washington, D.C., he was promoted to a first lieutenant and was awarded the meritorious service medal. After being honorably discharged in 1972, Hollifield was employed in the criminal division of the United States Department of Justice in Washington, D.C., until he returned to Twin Falls in January of this year to become a partner in the law firm of Taylor and Hollifield.

Presently, he is an active member of the American Bar Association, the Idaho State Bar Association and the Federal Bar Association. Hollifield says that "the people of Twin Falls County deserve to have a well managed and efficiently operated prosecutor's office to insure that criminal matters are disposed of expeditiously and that county officials receive complete representation. This will insure that the personal and property rights of the citizens of the county will be protected. The major areas of concern to Hollifield are juvenile procedures under the Child Protective Act and Youth Rehabilitation Act, matters relating to the Alcohol Safety and Prevention Program, and drug abuse.

Sen. Church visits TF hospital

TWIN FALLS — Employees and medical staff members of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital met with Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, at a luncheon Friday. Church spent about one hour at the hospital before arriving at the buffet lunch in the cafeteria. He toured the hospital's emergency room and talked with several patients. According to James Rosenbaum, hospital administrator, Church discussed various topics with employees including national health insurance, tax relief and others. Physicians on the medical staff talked to the senator about the needs, deficiencies and overcrowded conditions at the hospital, and discussed the attitudes of Congress toward medicine. Church was in Twin Falls to attend a two-day program for senior citizens.

Mini-Cassia remains cool

A major industrial strike is a grim event. Even under the best of circumstances it can divide communities and leave enduring social scars. But when serious violence is added to a strike the lid can blow off. In Burley the combination of a two-week-old strike and a gasoline fire set at the office of the striking union which seriously injured one person is ominous. Under the circumstances, the people of the Mini-Cassia area should be praised for keeping cool heads in an attempt to shut off further trouble. There is a kind of sick logic accompanying the escalation of violence in such circumstances. Jeers can turn to threats. Threats turn to slashed tires or nails-in-the-roadway. Pretty soon somebody gets hurt, and others want to retaliate. That process of escalation has already gone too far in the Burley strike. The time has come for the people involved to step back, curb their anger and do everything possible to cool down hotheads. Further violence will only prolong the strike and dig an unbridgeable chasm that will help nobody and harm an entire community.

One presidential claim supported

At last President Nixon has got some good news. Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has concluded the President did not authorize or have advance knowledge of the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office. Jaworski filed court briefs which argued the White House "plumbers" unit had acted illegally on its own and not under the President's direction. Because of Jaworski's record of stubborn independence from the White House the public should be able to conclude fairly that the prosecutor is correct and the President freed of widespread suspicion that he had advanced knowledge of the Ellsberg burglary. In no sense is the President off the hook, for evidence continues to pile up in other important areas. But the President and the public both are well served when unfounded suspicions are dropped.

Kidnap law

The bizarre turn of events in the Hearst kidnaping case, in which the victim, Patricia Hearst, was identified among bank robbers, raises an unresolved question: At what point shall the police exert a maximum effort without regard for the safety of the victim? The practice of letting families of kidnap victims manage negotiations has never been satisfactory. Criminals are encouraged to engage in kidnaping when they know they will be dealing with grief-stricken families willing to pay a maximum price in return for the safety of a child or spouse. No family can ever be equipped to deal with an organized, or even an amateur, kidnaping operation. The Hearst family was better equipped than most. It had the resources to call in psychiatrists, criminologists and others who could offer insight into the mind of the criminal gang calling itself the Symbionese Liberation Army. What bothers law enforcement agencies is that the Hearst case will only spawn more and more kidnapings. Wealthy people have taken to hiring guards, setting up elaborate alarm systems and taking precautions not to go out alone. But none of these efforts can thwart a determined and well-organized kidnaping gang. Kidnaping is a federal offense. The FBI ought to be placed fully in charge of the case from the moment a victim is reported missing and presumed kidnaped. The police ought to be the ones to determine whether a ransom will or will not be offered or paid. Kidnapers ought to understand, regardless of who the victim is that by law members of the family or friends cannot deal with kidnapers without suffering legal penalties. This is a political response, but if the judiciary and congressional bodies ought to face in writing new anti-kidnaping legislation.

Perfect trial obsession obscures fair trials

LOS ANGELES—Our criminal law has fallen into a condition that may charitably be described as chaotic. That is the judgment rendered by a California jurist in a brilliant book scheduled for publication this month, The Price of Perfect Justice, by Judge Fleming Fleming, of the Court of Appeal of California. As you love the law, do not miss this work. Judge Fleming's thesis goes to this effect: The highest appellate courts in the nation have become so obsessed with "the perfect trial" that they have lost sight of the fair trial. As one consequence, our system of criminal law is bogged down in legalisms, technicalities, and judicial booby traps. In this morass, the fundamental question of guilt tends to disappear. The goddess of justice finds herself holding a pair of cockeyed scales and an impatient crowd. That is too brief a summary of a devastating work of criticism. Other writers on the law tend to single out particular areas for comment, and some of these other writers make clean hits. Judge Fleming's book is a grand slam homer. He clears all the bases.

The California jurist, now 62, writes from a lifetime in court, both at the bar and on the bench. Graduated from Yale Law School in 1937, he practiced briefly in New York, then migrated to California after World War II. He has known both sides of the courtroom of Los Angeles, as an assistant prosecutor and a public defender. He served five years as a trial judge on the Superior Court for Los Angeles County, and ten years ago took his place among the 20 justices who make up the Second District of the Court of Appeal of California. It is from this vantage point that Judge

Fleming has witnessed the deterioration of our criminal law. He and his colleagues have become, in effect, umpires for the games defendants play. Daily they are compelled to give practical effect to the bizarre theories handed down from above. Judge Fleming deftly describes the delaying tactics that impede criminal justice. These he terms "sidetracking" and "mishmishing." The defense lawyer who cheats for advantage in prosecution may begin by attacking the arrest warrants, or the composition of the grand jury, or the qualifications of the judge. A lawyer may then attack the constitutionality of the law itself, or contend that excessive publicity prevents a fair trial, or appeal from the jury's verdict. Once a case gets back on the main track, the prosecution can be slowed to a crawl by a dozen other delaying motions.

'I WISH WE COULD HAVE MET UNDER DIFFERENT CIRCUMSTANCES'

Resignation calls risk destruction, GOP warned

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON—While White House lobbyists drum up support in Congress against President Nixon's resignation, Republicans are being warned they risk destruction of their party with their calls for his departure. Presidential assistant Patrick Buchanan says it would be "close to fatal" if the President were forced to resign and then it turns out he committed no impeachable offense. "Resignation would poison the wells of American politics and the Republican Party—for a decade, if not a generation," Buchanan told newsmen in the aggressive media campaign being conducted by the White House in Washington to encourage resignation. Congressional liaison agents from the White House have been lobbying GOP Senators and House members to make known their opposition to the President's resignation. A drumfire of demands that Nixon bow out

PETER LISAGOR

The White House was further comforted when Democratic Party leaders, in Congress and out, reiterated their belief that the impeachment process, not resignation, was the proper course for determining the President's future. They leavened their sense of Constitutional propriety with the sly political charge that the Republicans clamoring for Nixon to resign were afraid of being defeated in the November congressional elections. The Democrats were not expressing sympathy for the President or prejudging his innocence or guilt as the House impeachment inquiry proceeds. Several of the leaders are known to be shocked by the transcripts and persuaded that an impeachment in the House is likely. This has not caused White House officials to ignore what one GOP legislator called "that phony display of statesmanship on the other side."

They have expressed their preference for the constitutional process over resignation. The articulate White House aide and speechwriter-led compelled to remind GOP lawmakers that they were not dealing with county vice chairman but with the President of the U.S. Buchanan recalled the miles Nixon had traveled in his political career in behalf of Republican candidates and the Republican Party when it was "so some difficulty" his long-suggested rank ingratitude on the part of GOP critics now.

Military gains ground

WASHINGTON—That was a fascinating news story the other day. It said a public opinion survey by the highly respected Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan found that the U. S. military is now the most admired of American institutions. Moreover, colleges and universities and churches and religious organizations rank a close second and third. This might even be called amazing. All three of these institutions have taken a kicking around the last few years—colleges with the billings acquiring a particularly bad name because of the unpopular Vietnam war. It is tempting to suggest that in the stretch of Watergate Americans are turning to old values. Traditionally, the military has been equated with patriotism and another word that has become unfashionable. In the post, it has represented service to the country, and in square language a willingness to die in the country's defense. Our armed forces didn't always deserve the respect in which they were held, but someone is resurgent to learn that people still have faith in the man who wears his nation's uniform. Likewise, it is nice to learn that colleges, universities, and religious organizations are making a comeback. They do, after all, offer us intellectual, moral and ethical help at a time when the country seems to have sunk to the depths of cynicism. We won't have much civilization left if those institutions lose our respect. Even a bad college is better than nothing, and the anti-faithing organized religion remains on the side of a higher morality. That's the survey's good news. The bad news is the low esteem in which those interviewed during the nationwide poll hold governmental institutions. There was no surprise in the result which showed that President Nixon and his administration were the least admired. These people asked if it but the poll shed a frightening distrust of all levels of government. The survey asked 1,444 persons how good a job they felt various institutions were doing. Those interviewed answered by checking one of eight responses ranging from "very poor" to "very good." Well, the military scored 5.5, just below the "very good" mark. Colleges and universities scored 5.48 and religious organizations 5.26. But the best a government establishment could do was 4.17, scored by the Supreme Court. Congress scored 4.59, state governments 4.47, local governments 4.33 and the Federal government a measly 3.6. That's exactly sad, if not a national tragedy. It says to the people, interviewed, have a small confidence in those who are running the people's business. In foreign countries, revolutions have been built on less, and if we operated under a parliamentary system governments at all levels would be endangered and the Nixon administration would be a laughing stock. Happily for public order, election dates are fixed by law. But if I held public office I'd be scared. The bill is tolling for the republican system of government when any poll dismisses the people's representatives with such contempt.

Andrew Tully

TV watchers fare poorly when food on tube

(C) New York Times Service
It seems to me you can't live more than five minutes with the TV set this year without seeing somebody eat something absolutely awful. If somebody usually a woman, getting ready to shove something to eat that is absolutely awful. I wonder if we have passed through some kind of cultural watershed here. The big thing on television used to be headache. Every five minutes they would stop the entertainment, an would come somebody with a headache and then—bingo! the headache would be cured. I haven't clocked a typical evening on the tube this year, but my impression is that those interludes and eating the absolutely awful food is being broadcast by at least two to one. Not surprisingly, upset stomach and indigestion are also doing well. My observations suggest that indigestion is neck-and-neck with headache while upset stomach is doing fine on tube. I said that the food on television was absolutely awful, and that's not fair, of course, because I haven't eaten any of it and don't plan to as long as I have the strength to resist forcing it. The point is that the idea of the TV food—the concept—is absolutely awful. Food should be grown, but this food being sold on the tube has not been grown, it has been manufactured. It is hard to understand the men who eat this food, because they are always smiling after the first mouthful, or nuzzling their wives after finishing the thing off. What the feminist can't seem to understand is presented in all these commercials since they cast the woman in the Cook's role and make the husband the breadwinner home from his labor to play stern judge of the wife's cooking. This is only superficial, however. What is really going on here is much trickier. The point about this television food is that it requires no skill, little time and not much work to put it on the table. A typical tele-drama, for instance, concerns two wives unboxing a spaghetti dinner. Both diners come in boxes. Wife One opens her box and finds nothing but spaghetti. She is in trouble because she will have to add her own. Wife Two, Wife Two had to open only one box to make dinner. Poor Wife One has suffered the indignity of opening two. So while the commercials seem to cast women in the Cook's role, in fact they do not. Now can the woman be cooks when there is no cooking going on? Most of what passes for cooking with television is nothing but opening, thawing and heating. The real message of the factory-food commercials is that if a woman has a beighted husband who believes such archaic claptrap, she can fake the cooking effortlessly, thanks to factory-made food, how time which to do as she pleases, and then reduce the poor slob to eye-rolling delight in her skill in opening a box. Can woman long be happy with such a man? Not likely. These food commercials could bring back the headache.

French pick new leader

PARIS (UPI) — France elects a new president Sunday in what could be the closest presidential contest in a Western democracy since John F. Kennedy defeated Richard M. Nixon by 116,550 votes in 1960.

The French government gave voters an official "day of reflection" Saturday to make up their minds whether to vote for Francois Mitterrand, the candidate of the leftist bloc, or Valery Giscard d'Estaing, backed by most center and right groups.

At the request of interim President Alain Poper, the newspaper France-Soir suppressed the results of a last-minute opinion poll so as not to influence the undecided.

Officially, the campaign ended Friday midnight.

Mitterrand, 57, the secretary general of the Socialist party, is also backed by the Communists. Giscard d'Estaing, 48, a conservative, is the current finance minister in a Gaullist-dominated coalition although he himself is not a Gaullist, but a member of the centrist Independent Republican party. They finished 1-2 in the first round of voting two weeks ago.

Earlier opinion polls showed the two candidates running even in their race to succeed the late President Georges Pompidou.

Aussie election close

SYDNEY (UPI) — Chances of a Labor party victory in the Australian election were narrowed early Sunday when the Opposition Liberal-Country party coalition began to catch up with an earlier heavy swing to Labor.

After the latest count from Saturday's poll Liberal party leader Bill Snedden refused to concede the election and Prime Minister Gough Whitlam did not claim a Labor party win.

and every analysis predicted a decisive swing to Labor.

While Snedden refused to accept defeat at the time, he said it appeared that Labor was likely to continue in government.

But the traditional swing to the conservative parties from the rural areas started to pour in, and the coalition began to pull back the Labor lead.

Early editions of the Sydney

and every analysis predicted a decisive swing to Labor.

But election officers said that second preference votes would decide the outcome. Preferences are based on ballots which provide for listing candidates to cast the votes they poll to other contestants unless one has won a seat by outright majority of all votes cast for that seat.

Two persons drowned in floodwaters in the Kansas City area Saturday and the body of another flood victim was pulled from floodwaters in Illinois.

Rains and thunderstorms fell on much of the eastern half of the nation and western Missouri had up to four inches of rain, which brought the two-day rainfall to seven inches and triggered serious flooding.

One man drowned when a pickup stalled in seven feet of water east of downtown Kansas City, Mo.

Reds close on S. Viet capital

SAIGON (UPI) — Communist rebels scored major military victories in South Vietnam and Cambodia Saturday, moving tanks to within 22 miles of Saigon and driving government defenders from yet another position along Cambodia's Highway 4, Phnom Penh's only link with the sea.

The battle will influence the security of Saigon, South Vietnamese military command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said. "But I would not say the fighting will threaten the capital itself."

Three government outposts between Saigon and the district town of Ben Cat, 27 miles to the north, were overrun in the past two days. The third, An Dien, was lost to North Vietnamese tanks Friday evening. Hien said. Its 250-man garrison and 2,500 civilians fled.

Military officers said the Communists are "assured of a military victory to toast the birthday anniversary" of the late president Ho Chi Minh of North Vietnam Sunday.

Government warplanes bombed the area from the air Saturday and claimed they knocked out one Communist tank and damaged another.

The tank attack on An Dien was the first ever reported in the Saigon area in a Vietnam war history.

Ford eyes impeachment

WAIMEA, Hawaii (UPI) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford expects the House Judiciary Committee to approve a resolution calling for the impeachment of President Nixon and a majority of the House to defile

Here for two days of golfing and relaxation following political appearances in the islands the vice president told a news conference in Honolulu that, "when all the evidence is in, I believe the House committee might vote resolution of impeachment, but I still think a majority of the members will not favor such a resolution."

He arrived at the Mauna Kea Beach Hotel early Saturday after a flight from Honolulu, and a 55-mile drive through pouring rain.

Friday had been a busy day, with three speeches, a news conference, a meeting with top military officials, a tour of the USS Arizona memorial at Pearl Harbor and a reception at the Honolulu home of Clare Booth Luce.

During the news conference Ford urged President Nixon to "bend over backwards" to cooperate with the committee's impeachment inquiry.

Nowadays in Snake River Valley there are jobs other than pitching hay

Skilled craftsman works on circuitry of computer line printer at Boise Hewlett-Packard plant.

Hewlett-Packard jobs are held by both men and women.

Minicomputer work is exacting but far from monotonous.

Remember when we used to lose many of our bright young people to other states because they thought our area lacked challenging jobs? While modern farm management has progressed far beyond milking cows by hand and pitching hay, our area also has a variety of sophisticated new industries which have opened the employment gates for imaginative men and women.

An example is the new Hewlett-Packard plant in Boise. HP people are making mini-computer peripherals, specifically line printers and magnetic tape drives. The company's planned research and development department will challenge the keenest of electronic design engineers.

The technical complexities of Hewlett-Packard products are beyond the understanding of most of us, but their quality is known around the world. Now in temporary quarters, HP's Boise operation presently is doubling in size. The first new building on a permanent site is scheduled for use in 1976.

Reliability of electric service is essential to Hewlett-Packard, and to many other growing industries in our area. So that electric power will continue to be reliable and available, we must build constantly for tomorrow.

Panel trims defense $

(of New York Times Service)

WASHINGTON — The Senate Armed Services Committee has cut $1.3 billion from the Defense Department's weapons and research programs and voted a $700 million reduction in the level of military aid to South Vietnam.

Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., the committee chairman, announced Friday that the committee had approved an annual military procurement bill authorizing $21.8 billion in weapons production and research in the coming fiscal year. The committee bill represented a 5.6 per cent reduction from the $23.1 billion requested by the administration.

The committee also imposed a spending ceiling of $900 million on military aid to South Vietnam in the fiscal year that begins July 1. The administration, which has been thwarted in attempts to raise the $1.125 billion ceiling for the current fiscal year, had requested authority to provide South Vietnam with $1.6 billion in military aid in the new fiscal year.

The administration was expected to view the cut in military aid to South Vietnam much more seriously than the reductions in the weapons programs.

The Defense Department fully anticipated that some Congressional reductions would be made in its weapons programs, although not as large as those approved by the Senate committee.

TF traffic plan unveiled

Those attending the Friday meeting agreed a public hearing will be held to present the plan and obtain public input before the plan is submitted to the Idaho Department of Highways for final consideration and possible implementation.

The plan recommends studies for possible traffic signal lights at Second Avenue East and Third Street East and on Shoshone Street at the Fourth Avenue West and Sixth Avenue West intersections.

Improved sight distance by removal of parking near intersections was recommended at the Second Avenue East and Third Street East, Second Avenue West and Shoshone Street; Fourth Avenue West and Shoshone Street; and Sixth Avenue West and Shoshone Street.

Four-lane highways are recommended on Filer Avenue East from Mountain View Drive to Eastland Drive; on Addison Avenue from Blue Lakes to Washington Street; on Blue Lakes to Eastland; on Filer Avenue from Harrison Street to Blue Lakes and on Washington Street from Filer Avenue to Addison Avenue.

Improvement is asked at Addison Avenue and Harrison Street and Sixth Avenue and Fifth Street.

An arterial route is recommended via Sixth Avenue to Elizabeth, Locust and Blue Lakes Boulevard.

Other traffic signal possibilities are listed for Addison Avenue and Locust Street; Eastland Drive and Kimberly Road; Eastland Drive and Addison Avenue; Pole Line Road and Blue Lakes Boulevard; South Park Avenue and Shoshone Street.

Areas to be upgraded for future arterial route designations include Washington Street from Second to Sixth Avenue; Minidoka Street from Shoshone Street to Second Avenue; Washington Street from Filer to Falls; Falls Avenue West from Washington Street West; Filer Avenue West from Washington Street; Harrison Street from Addison to Filer; Filer Avenue East from Madrona to Mountain View Drive; and Eastland Drive West to Addison Avenue.

Both Fifth Streets South and North would be brought up to arterial standards as would Madrona Street from Pole Line Road to Filer Avenue and the plan asks for an arterial connection from Filer Avenue West to Addison Avenue west of the hospital.

Soviets cut aid to Egypt

(C) Chicago Sun-Times

WASHINGTON — In a move with potentially positive effects for peace in the Middle East, the Soviet Union is reported to be shipping its most advanced weapons to Syria while cutting off Egypt completely.

Intelligence sources said Saturday there are signs the Syrians are receiving the latest model Russian T-72 tanks, SAM-7 anti-aircraft missiles and MIG-23 jets.

At the same time, the sources reported, the Russians have not made an arms delivery to Egypt since April 13 — the longest stoppage for more than a year.

The cutoff "obviously is designed by the Russians to punish Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for his improving relations with the United States and to provoke pressure from the army against him. But officials here believe it will have the opposite effect of moving Sadat even closer to Sec. of State Henry A. Kissinger.

BONN — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt pledged Friday the continuity of West Germany's foreign policy and stressed the need for partnership with the United States in achieving the political unity of Europe.

"The security of Western Europe will, within the foreseeable future, remain dependent on the military and political presence of the United States in Europe," Schmidt told the Bonn Parliament in a policy statement, presented the day after he was sworn in as the new West German government chancellor, replacing Willy Brandt, who resigned.

"We subscribe to political unification of Europe in partnership with the United States," he said.

The middle-of-the-road Social Democrat, who is continuing his predecessor's Social-Liberal coalition, devoted most of his 90-minute address to the "issue" of maintaining financial stability at home, emphasizing his awareness of anxieties over inflation.

"But the fact is that we are doing well and are better economically than most others," he declared, emphasizing that his government would embark on a policy of austerity in public spending "to ward off all excessive demands" in the coming year.

The new chancellor praised Brandt for the "outstanding service" he had given Germans by "winning a position of respect for our country."

Brandt, who stepped down 10 days ago after the discovery of an East German agent in his chancellery, was not present to hear his successor's tribute. He left last night for a short vacation in his home town of Brno.

Schmidt warned the East German government that the "grave spy case" had seriously strained relations between the two Germans, but added that the government intended to adhere to the good neighbor treaty with East Berlin "in letter and in spirit."

Haynes told the committee Blue Lakes Boulevard "is presently a dangerous and aggravating route and is carrying far more traffic than existing conditions would encourage."

He said it must be upgraded to provide for necessary movement. Access routes through the city must be upgraded to carry some of the traffic which has no desire to be on Blue Lakes Boulevard, he said.

For West Five Points, the plan calls for reconstruction to include left and right turning and two-way traffic on Washington Street South.

For West Four Points, the plan calls for left and right turn lanes; at North Five Points, reconstruction for adequate turning and removal of Blue Lakes Boulevard south of the intersection at the intersection; at Falls Avenue and Blue Lakes Boulevard, widening of the boulevard for turning lanes; at East Five Points, improved signing to Addison Avenue.

The plan also calls for upgrading, within the city, of Fifth Streets North and South to arterial standards to carry a heavy flow of north and southbound traffic. The city of Twin Falls has been planning to improve the Third Streets to carry a sizable volume and relieve the Fifth Streets.

Gay propaganda creates furor among 'shrinks'

By MIKE ROYKO
 (The Idaho Daily News)
CHICAGO — Without question, the American Psychiatric Association's biggest propaganda victory has been provided by the Association (APA) when members of the APA recently voted to remove homosexuality from its list of mental illnesses, the gays could say, in effect: "See, the shrinks say we are okay!"

At first, it was a partial victory because the position was expressed by only a handful of psychiatrists on several APA committees. Many other psychiatrists disagreed with the committee and demanded that all 18,000 members of the APA take a vote.

This had never been done by the APA, but because of the furor, a poll of the membership was taken.

They upheld the thinking of the committee by 5,585 to 3,810. Thus, the gays have been saying that there is now no question about it: you're okay, in the eyes of the shrinks.

But I still don't buy it. The voting was not really held on the up and up.

What the psychiatrists don't realize is that they were subjected to an shrewd job of hidden lobbying as you'd ever see in Washington.

The gay movement's leadership knows about it, because they were behind the lobbying.

Here is how it was done, this communist has learned: Before the APA voted on the homosexuality issue, a letter was received by all 18,000 members.

The letter was signed by five prominent psychiatrists. Three are candidates for president of the APA, two are vice presidents.

The letter urged psychiatrists to back the earlier committee's contention that homosexuality should be dropped as a mental illness. It didn't offer any medical ration for doing so. In fact, its most compelling argument was basically that of public relations. It said:

"...we feel that it would be a serious and potentially embarrassing step for our profession to vote down a decision which was taken after serious and extended deliberation by the bodies within our organization designated to consider such matters."

Many psychiatrists believe this letter was the deciding factor in the way the voting went.

But did the prominent psychiatrists whose names appeared on the letter actually write it?

They did not. The letter was composed by the National Gay

Task Force. The guys wrote the letter, said for the reprinting of the letter, and they had a mailing list that was used in sending out the letter.

However, there was nothing in the letterhead, the return address, or in any part of the letter, to show that the guys had anything to do with it.

There was no reason for those who received it to think it was anything more than it appeared: something that five prominent psychiatrists felt strongly enough about to write, sign and send out in an expository mass mailing.

Actually, the five people whose names appeared did not concur in what the letter said. But their only role was to provide their signatures, which were then superimposed at the bottom of the guys' letter.

In other words, the letter was a piece of gay movement propaganda.

Some psychiatrists, after learning of the gay movement's hidden tactics, believe that the referendum results are now meaningless, and that another vote should be taken.

One of them is Dr. Harold Volz, a psychiatrist at the Menninger Clinic. He says: "I believe the letter made the difference in the outcome. But that is not the issue."

"The inpropriety here is that no one suspected that the guy lib originated and financed the mailing."

The standard practice in lobbying is to state who pays for it.

"If our association members are going to be involved in this thing, we ought to have our cards on the table face up."

"The membership should understand who was behind the letter—and how it was promulgated."

I'd agree. The guys have been saying it is time for them to come out of the closet. Then come out of the mail room, too.

Idaho senator seeks No. 2 post

By BILL LAZARUS
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sen. John Evans, D-Mald, believes Idaho needs land-use planning legislation.

Evans, long-term minority leader in the Senate, is now vying for the Democratic nomination to the lieutenant governor race against hopefuls Ray Rigby, Rexburg, and Nels Solberg, Grangeville.

Without land-use plans the farmland around the perimeters of cities is broken up and the tax burden on the local citizens heightened, he said.

Evans said he participated during the legislative session in the drawing up and sponsoring of narrowly defeated legislation which would have required counties to draw up their own local plans.

Secretive lobbying by Morrison Knudsen Co. was one reason this legislation failed in the House, the candidate said.

Contrary to the company's public announcement that it would not lobby for or against this legislation, the Morrison-Knudsen lobbyists "worked in the background, undercover, quietly" to defeat the bill

Evans said.

He said that out of 11 senators from Ada, Canyon and Bonneville Counties — three "urban" counties with the best land-use plans in the state — only one supported the land-use planning legislation.

This, he said, indicates the use of unhealthy influence.

The Sunshine initiative, which would require registration of lobbyists on particular issues and mandate the listing of all campaign contributors who give more than $50, would help curb this type of situation, he said.

As a Democrat, Evans believes he could play a more effective role in the lieutenant governor's office. He said having a member of party different than the governor's in this office tends to make administration difficult. In this situation it is hard for the governor to lead out of the state and leave the lieutenant governor-in-charge, he said.

Evans believes he could expand the office in the area of troubleshooting. As an example, he said the office could take the lead in looking into what kind of effect a proposed industry might have on the environment in an area.

The candidate also believes the state could play a role in making recommendations to Congress on the economy.

Price controls would again be necessary if inflation continues at its rapid rate, he said.

"The philosophy today is to allow the free enterprise system to reach the level of abundance where the supply and demand equalizes and prices stabilize. The only problem is where are the prices going to stabilize? A 100 per cent increase in five years?

To me this is absolutely intolerable," he said.

By keeping controls on some industries and phasing out controls on others, the Nixon administration blundered, he said.

This phase-out, he said, had a stagflation effect on inflation where price increases came in waves putting further pressures on for more increases.

High school diploma earned by TF man, 70

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Just plain experience and a healthy curiosity helped a 70-year-old Osborn Kimpton, Twin Falls, earn a high school diploma in this spring.

"I'm not a genius or anything," Kimpton said Thursday. "I just kind of didn't have too much trouble because I learned a lot during my life."

Kimpton, who quit school in 1922 at the 11th grade, passed his General Educational Development (GED) test a few weeks ago and was awarded a high school diploma by the state of Idaho.

Kimpton's experiences include nearly a decade of "riding the rods" (hopping freight trains) through 34 states, serving in the army for one year, working as a radio telegrapher for the Civil Aeronautics Administration in Alaska during World War II and, more recently, inventing "household" items in Twin Falls.

Kimpton said he "was very well prepared" for the GED instruction. "I have a real curiosity," he said. "My hobby all my life has been learning and books so it wasn't a very tough proposition for me."

Learning "expands your diet," he said. "It's something I've been doing and very sparingly among people — the quality of insight. The way I look at learning it expands your insight but your hunger to have other qualities like honesty, understanding and empathy. That's something that's in very short supply among people."

A widower for eight years, Kimpton described his life as "lonesome," though, he said, "I'm actually a loner."

One of his favorite hobbies is studying "human nature and the peculiarities of regional dialects." He keeps a file on the activities in his neighborhood and draws from his opinions of people from a wide variety of experiences in the country.

Kimpton lives in a ramshackle house and sleeps in a bed in the corner of his living room, which is piled with suitcases, trunks, newspapers and innumerable odds and ends as if he were intending on leaving or had just returned from some long journey.

"I'm a lousy housekeeper," he said. "I'm actually incompetent."

If he doesn't do a very good job of taking care of his own house, Kimpton has aided several Twin Falls "senior citizens" in the past few years.

"Before I even retired (in 1966) I knew lots of senior citizens around," he said, "and about half the time since then I've helped them." For room and board Kimpton takes care of older people "enough so they don't go to rest homes — that's all I want to do — to see them go."

"I don't know what impells me but I've always been one to help people out of misadventure," he said.

The GED program he stated his reason for seeking a high school diploma as "an obligation to demonstrate opportunities under the free enterprise system."

"Democracy and the free enterprise system has its evils and faults, but it is the best regulator of prosperity I know of today. It has to be the natural law of supply and demand."

"Of course," he said, "people get all — their personalities involved in it. The wish to be able to yield, to power — that's one of the bad attitudes of our contemporary society. A person should strive for more humility."

"I think Nixon did a superb job in international relations. He thinks like a general of the country."

Kimpton has a bunch of stinker underlings that got him into this," he said.

Reaching the age of 70 doesn't mean quitting time for Kimpton. He is now trying to get a market and a royalty for a device he invented for increasing the power efficiency of certain engines. He wouldn't describe his invention yet, and unless he finds a market, said he "may die with the secret."

"I have an unusual ability," he said. "If I'm working on something I can set that thing in motion in my mind and if anything is wrong I can correct it in the process of building it — and he's still studying."

"Right now I'm studying how to beat inflation," he said.

Kimpton, who lives on Social Security payments, said, "I find that where I used to have a budget, I can't quite do it anymore. It takes most of my income to live and mynabe a little more."

He wasn't that interested in the high school diploma, he said, "I liked the association with people in a joint effort."

Other senior citizens should "take advantage of GED — it's a great diversion from the political situation, and the world situation," he said.

activity that some of them might enjoy — besides brushing up on things."

"You must read the paper — it's a great diversion from the political situation, and the world situation," he said.

Hanford A leak found

RICHLAND, Wash. (UPI) — Another leak in the underground waste storage tanks at the Hanford Atomic Works has been discovered, and the one estimated to have 2,000 gallons of radioactive liquid.

Officials said Thursday that monitoring equipment alerted them that a 20-year-old tank was leaking May 4 but they were unable to confirm it until now.

The waste, they said, was not expected to contaminate ground water or the nearby Columbia River.

An estimated 530,000 gallons of nuclear waste has leaked from aged tanks at the giant facility since 1958. It will remain radioactive for thousands of years.

A spokesman for the Atlantic-Richfield Hanford Co. said the latest leakage would continue until completion of a solidification program. In the process the waste is turned into a solid — preventing further leaks.

The spokesman said 64 million gallons of the waste has been processed for solidification and 35 million gallons remain to be treated.

Vitamin 'E' Discovery Offers Fast Weight Loss

HOLLYWOOD (Special) — New scientific discoveries have produced a Vitamin E diet that quickly works wonders on overweight people and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with glowing reports of easy weight loss while still eating as much as you want.

Those who follow the simple Vitamin E diet report an average loss of at least a pound a day, and even more without exercise or starvation. Nutritionists' files are bulging with happy testimonials from former overweight people who are now trim and slim again. Best of all, you can still eat almost as much as you want of the "forbidden foods" like steak, chicken, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon, eggs and still lose weight.

Chewable (candy-like) Vitamin E tablets as used in the diet plan, contain a new scientific combination of ingredients that quickly curbs and controls the appetite, while also giving the wonderful benefits of Vitamin E, which is so essential to good health.

The use of the new Vitamin E Diet tablets and foods prescribed in the plan will, through natural action, act to help your body use an excess fat. According to recent clinical test, a person who is deficient in Vitamin E or Protein will double the speed of fat burning with the use of Vitamin E.

Budget okayed

GLENN FERRY — A budget of $538,732.00 for 1974-75 school year was approved at the Thursday evening meeting of the Joint School District 252.

The board also approved the hiring of Mrs. Richard (Carlene) Vinc as a learning difficulties teacher; Thomas Dunn as a coach for the girls track team; Richard Sparks, formerly of Hitchfield, as a junior high school science teacher, and Clifford Mitchell as the science teacher in the elementary school.

Mitchell had requested to change from the junior high school to the elementary school.

Hazelton loan OK'd

HAZELTON — The Farmer's Home Administration has approved a $35,000 loan for the city of Hazelton.

The loan was approved under the rural development program for completion of a waste treatment plant for the city.

Workers file suit

BOISE (UPI) — Five construction workers unions from Boise filed suits Friday in federal district court for $550,000 compensatory and punitive damages against an Oregon firm because of alleged violations of the Labor-Management Act.

The suits were filed against Robert J. Leizer, doing business as Northwest Industrial-Construction, Inc., of Ontario, Ore.

Utah girl trapped

INCOM, Idaho (UPI) — A nine-year-old Salt Lake City girl was trapped for nearly two and one-half hours Friday when her leg became wedged between lava rocks at a rest stop near here.

Lorelei Mooney and her family were on a trip to Montana when she slipped and fell near top between Inkom and McCummond and the girl decided to explore the lava formations. As she was climbing over the rocks, she slipped and her leg became lodged between the jagged lava. Her parents were unable to free her and they called on passersby to help.

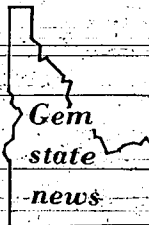

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Mooney said the girl was trapped in the rocks about 8:45 a.m. and it took Bonnock County rescue units until 11:07 a.m. before they could get her out.

Democents face

GRANGEVILLE (UPI) — A former legislator from North Central Idaho has entered the Democratic primary race for lieutenant governor.

Nels Solberg, Grangeville, in announcing his candidacy, said he is familiar with the state of Idaho after serving three years in the senate and "would like to serve the state again as lieutenant governor."

Sen. Ray Ribby, Rexburg, also is a contender for the Democratic nomination for that office.

Bank short of pennies

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Bank and Trust Co., Boise, has added another item to the never ending list of shortages — pennies.

Jack Hornaway, company spokesman, said all Boise banks are experiencing the same problem.

"We get only 550 worth of pennies in each shipment now from the Federal Reserve Bank, and that doesn't even begin to fill the demand," he said.

Hornaway said the situation would ease by mid-summer, the date the Federal Reserve Bank has indicated it will have the problem "taken care of."

Couple seeks refund

BOISE (UPI) — A $136,000 suit was filed in Fourth Judicial District Court by a Boise couple in alleging violations of the Idaho Consumer Protection Act in an identification tag business.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Fred Wright II filed the suit to obtain a refund of the $2,000 they invested in Computer Idents, Inc., an Arizone corp., and $110,000 punitive damages and attorney fees.

Joseph H. McCullum Jr., attorney for the Wrights, said the suit arose from a scheme employed by the Arizona corporation. Johny Bowman Kearney and others to sell equipment to the Wrights for the manufacture of the identification tags.

Lawyer says plant goes back on word to move

By BART GUESNELL
Times-News Writer

HAILEY — Sun Valley Redi-Mix Inc. went back on its word to move after the 1974 building season, according to a Boise attorney.

Howard Manweiler, Boise, represents Frank Somerson, a resident near the Halley plant who filed suit last year against the noise and pollution emitted from the plant.

"The court date for the trial was dropped, however, when Sun Valley Redi-Mix said it would install anti-pollution devices in the plant, enclose part of the plant, and move to the site of the 1974 season, according to Manweiler."

The plant approached Somerson recently with a proposal to move at the end of the 1975 season, which Somerson refused, Manweiler said.

Consequently, he added, a new trial date has been set for July.

"We didn't know until last Monday they wanted another year," Manweiler said. "This whole thing goes back to where we were."

The Boise attorney said his client was still willing to negotiate with Sun Valley Redi-Mix.

"We are willing to give if they are willing to give," he said. "We want something the city and Mr. Somerson can live with."

An employee of Sun Valley Redi-Mix said no formal agreement with Somerson had ever been signed or settled. W. D. (Marty) Martindale, Redi-Mix official, said Manweiler's statement that an agreement had been reached to move in 1974 "was absolutely false."

Sun Valley Redi-Mix has never agreed to any date to move," he said.

The company has agreed to move a silo, Martindale said, as soon as the city council gives approval.

He said the council had turned down a plan to cover the building. "We have made application to do that and the city didn't allow the plan," he said.

"The City Council," according to Manweiler's statements, "knew it was a one-sided view of the action," Martindale said. "We weren't notified, he was even here last week or we would have been there," he said referring to the council meeting called last week.

Crews begin Blaine work

HAILEY — Crews and machinery began hauling soil Saturday into an area north of Deer Creek Bridge to help prevent future flooding on the Big Wood River.

The Army Corps of Engineers has been authorized to spend up to $25,000 on a 10-day project to prevent erosion and strengthen banks along the river.

Flood experts will put rip rap on the left bank of the river near Deer Creek. The rip rap comes from Pienzo quarry and the soil from the sanitary landfill.

The engineers plan to repair a watergate basin near the Bellevue Bible Camp and add a new levee near by.

Dean Hillard, Army flood control expert, will coordinate all state and local efforts and will be assisted by Col. Nelson Connor and Truck gravel loaders and a bulldozer have been rented locally.

James Hagg, local flood control district director, said the district has spent $2,700 on flood control in the last two weeks but the corps of engineers is needed to provide costs of these major projects.

The Big Wood River has risen above the six-foot mark this month but cooler temperatures last week forced the river down. Local Soil Conservation Service officials said water content was 160 to 185 per cent of normal around May 1 and the National Weather Bureau said if the right conditions occurred the river could rise to the seven or eight-foot mark.

Very little flooding was reported last week, except where high water generally cuts through low land south of Bellevue and near Gimlet.

Former aide won't challenge

HAZELTON — Former Hazelton City councilman Leonard Hamilton said Thursday he would not challenge his recall because of breach of an election technicality.

Hamilton said he was aware of a state law which prohibits recall elections within 90 days of a primary or general election, but said he would not use that statute to challenge the Hazelton recall.

"I think I'll just let it go," Hamilton said.

Hamilton's recall election was held May 10, less than 90 days from the Aug. 6 primary election.

Acting Hazelton City Clerk Joan Schwars said Thursday she didn't know whether the 90-day limit would apply to city recall elections in which there is no city primary election.

"If the don't contest the election, the elections stands," she said.

Another Hazelton City councilman, Ellsworth Hensley, had been recalled in a separate election on May 3, prior to the 90-day limit.

More lines set

HEVYBURN — J. R. Simplot officials here to put two additional production lines in operation at the Hevburn plant next week.

Plant manager Fred Jens said Saturday that the company will open two more potato-processing lines if enough additional help is hired. He said production is now over 50 per cent of normal levels.

Jens said about 200 new workers have been hired since the strike by the American Federation of Grain Millers began May 2. According to Hevburn plant personnel manager, John McBride, about 80 Grain Millers union members have resigned from the union and gone back to work at the plant.

Union officials and workers on strike dispute the company's current production figures.

Seniors support no-fault plan

Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A statewide group of senior citizens voted Friday to support a no-fault insurance plan, and have urged their state legislators pay raise.

The group of several hundred seniors also voted to support the establishment of an interim joint legislative committee to study the problems of the aging, reaffirmed its support for the Andrus administration's circuit breaker bill, and gave its backing to the Sunshine Initiative.

The motions for support were made during

Tentative okay

HAILEY — Blaine County teachers have reached a tentative contract agreement with the school board, according to a district official.

But Ray Jefferson, assistant superintendent, would not say what the contract involves.

He said the board and the teacher negotiators decided to not release information until Tuesday.

The budget for the coming year will also be announced then, Jefferson said.

Woman arraigned in case of Burley union blaze

She had come to Burley with Chano Marino, an AFL-CIO official who deals with Spanish-American union members.

Marino was addressing a meeting of Spanish speaking union members at the time the fire was set. Other union members were in a separate meeting. According to Max Stamm a union member present at the conference, the meetings were about to adjourn when the firm alarm was given.

Stamm said the group exited "in an orderly manner" and assembled outside. The crowd dispersed peacefully with "no thought of riot," Stamm said.

Burley police notified the Hevburn Simplot firm to increase security because of possible trouble, according to a Simplot security guard, but no incidents occurred at the plant after the union fire.

Additional guards from the Rupert auxiliary police force and merchant police were put on duty Friday night.

Burley Police Chief Gary Booth said there was not a riot outside the building where the union office was burned, but that 150 to 200 persons gathered in the area.

"They wanted to get to the woman who caused the incident. We had some problems getting her out," Booth said. Witnesses said "there was some rock throwing" after the woman was taken in a nearby house and was escorted away by law enforcement personnel.

Sorenson was transferred to Twin Falls jail, according to Judge Anderson, because the Burley City Jail facilities are inadequate for women prisoners and Cassia County Jail currently has six male inmates.

The Grain Miller Union office has been relocated into one of the conference rooms on the lower floor in the same building. Most of the files were saved from the fire, only a little burned and lost, according to Catherine Marcotte, local union business manager.

Tug of war looms in land-use plan

Richey asked for a "more arduous" form of public participation.

He suggested a method that would "come as close as possible to doing this work on a neighborhood-by-neighborhood basis."

Extensive citizen involvement, however, will be difficult to adequately prepare for, will take more time and will cost more money, Richey said. "We are understaffed for this type of project but Art Barburn, a development specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service will be assisting us, which will use the land considerably."

Richey said he will seek "grass roots" involvement unless his boss, the Twin Falls Joint Planning Council, directs otherwise.

"I must present that track and if the council says I can't then I will follow their order," he said.

Asked if the city might cut off funding of Richey's office if the planning effort takes too long, Ostin said, "I'm sure if progress is being made, I don't see why it couldn't be funded for another year."

The city, however, will "very carefully review" Richey's progress before the next Twin Falls City and County are contributing $20,000 each this year to support Richey's office.

Ostin also said the city will take a "long look" at setting up a separate planning office if Richey's work "drags out."

Max Leavard, a county commissioner and chairman of the planning council, said, "We hope to have some indication of the framework of the land-use plan by the end of this year."

He said Richey should be able to complete the plan in less than two years.

Extensive public input "is all right, as long as it does not draw out the plan to an unreasonable length of time," Ostin said. "We're really looking to expedite this to some extent."

A mail survey on the land-use plan is being readied by the planning office. Richey said he will send the questionnaires to "between 30 and 50 per cent" of the households in and adjacent to Twin Falls City.

Twin Falls City Manager Jean Millar, secretary of the planning council, is "hopeful" of eventually distributing the question sheets to all households, according to Richey.

But the survey will not replace the "grass roots" public input that is needed, Richey said. "It is too broad and doesn't get into the detail of neighborhood," he said.

'Tremor' hits US financial system

By ROBERT D. HERSHEY JR. (C) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — A faint tremor, touched off by difficulties at a large New York bank — Franklin National — is rumbling through the nation's financial system and shaking confidence in its stability.

Rumors are sweeping through Wall Street that a half dozen other banks — for no particular reason — may not be able to withstand any severe shocks. Some jittery investors, apparently fearing an avalanche of failures, are looking (though without any unseemly haste) for more solid ground. And top-level bankers, such as Hank Andross, feel obliged to declare that there is no reason to believe the banking system is in jeopardy.

Such developments can be interpreted in two ways. One is that the inevitable result of a fight against inflation that is now being waged with some vigor by the federal reserve, the instrument of its policy is the banking system.

Interest rates have been encouraged to rise to record and near-record levels, and Reserve has maintained a tight money grip on credit expansion. Last there are any doubt about where it headed, two Reserve officials have spoken bluntly in public about the heavy burden the banking system would be called on to shoulder.

The question now seems to be whether the present "tremor" might be considered a harbinger of progressively severe blows. The prevailing opinion is that it should not. In fact, much more likely, in fact, the current vibration may be just what is needed to prevent a buildup of really dangerous pressures.

The Franklin situation seems to have been enough to erode the "element" of conservatism that hadn't yet occurred and that the Federal Reserve probably is glad to have produced, commented a senior banking official here this week.

The dimensions of the problems at the bank, the nation's 20th largest, are still not fully known. Few, however, expect the bank to fail.

This is despite a recent record of high earnings, heavy loan losses, management shaky enough for the Federal Reserve to have turned down a proposed acquisition because of the likelihood of "undue claims" upon it and the disclosure last Sunday of losses from foreign currency transactions that may swell to $12 million. Its holding company parent has passed the latest common and preferred stock dividends.

The bulk of Franklin's foreign-exchange losses, perhaps 75 per cent, is expected to be reimbursed by insurance. And a $50-million infusion of capital has been guaranteed by the bank's biggest stockholder, Italian financier Michele Sindona, who owns nearly 22 per cent of Franklin's shares.

But, there is also the assumption that the banking authorities would not permit the failure of an institution whose assets approach $5 billion. This reflects the current attitude toward risk-taking in the United States — that the "unthinkable" would never be permitted to happen.

Small investors due better rates

(C) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Persons with as little as $1,000 to invest will have the opportunity from now on to earn the high interest rates the treasury is paying to finance the federal debt.

Paul A. Volcker, under secretary for monetary affairs, promised the House Ways and Means Committee Thursday that the treasury in the future will sell its notes and bonds — though not short-term bills — in denominations as small as $1,000.

The treasury had set a $10,000 minimum on notes sold earlier this month to discourage purchases by small savers.

Volcker made the pledge reluctantly, under the threat of legislation compelling the treasury to lower minimum denominations.

He warned that sales of treasury notes and bonds in small denominations may hurt the floundering housing industry by accelerating withdrawals of deposits from savings and loan associations and banks, thus reducing the amount of money those institutions will have available for mortgage lending.

Expected regulations prohibit savings and loan associations and banks from paying on deposits below $10,000 interest rates as high as the treasury is currently paying.

Honored

ANDY ANDERSON, right, president of Andy and Bob's Motor Co., Buhl, has received Ford Motor Company's Distinguished Service Citation for outstanding service efficiency and customer relations. Phillip Benton, Jr., left, vice president and general manager of Ford's Customer Service Division, presented the award.

SV official resigns

SUN VALLEY — Ed Pilikerton, vice president of hotels and marketing for Sun Valley Co., has resigned.

Pilikerton will become general manager of a Bear Valley, Calif., ski resort.

His resignation will be effective in June. Pilikerton has been with Sun Valley Co. more than five years. He joined the staff in 1968 as director of food and beverages, became vice president of hotel operations and later vice president of marketing. He is a native of Emmett.

Jackpot "springs up"

JACKPOT, Nev. — Jackpot is coming out with spring. A quick-service, short-order cafe is being built by Daniel Smith, Buffalo, N. Y., on the west, or upper, side of US Highway 99, near the south entrance.

To be called "Danny's," it will open in June. Although a patio-resort setting, it will have the inside seating and, like the existing three restaurants in the town, will be open the clock around.

Cactus Pete's casino is being remodeled. Pending construction, the gift shop is being moved to a new location in the existing floor plan.

Present quarters of the shop will become a three-level department.

The pit (gambling area) is being redesigned and enlarged. Vestibule of the main entry way will be reconstructed, the casino owners report.

A $50,000 addition has been completed to Barton's 93 Club, enlarging both the pit and coffee shop. A gift shop is being installed. Management anticipates that improvements will be made to the limited-in-size club house.

The wider front has been filled with a "mirage" that sparks up the night aspect of the part of Jackpot nearest the Idaho border.

Interior improvements to the Horseshoe Casino, which has been founded in 1935 is the oldest, are being planned.

Exterior of a three-bay fire station has been completed, but pouring of a concrete floor and general interior finishing remains, according to Fire Chief Lay-Snyder.

A picnic-type community park is being readied adjacent to the golf course. It should be in use by mid-summer. It will cater mainly to families.

VIC GRAYBEAL promoted

TF firm promotes 2

TWIN FALLS — Royal Manufacturing Co. has announced the promotions of James F. Bach and Vic Graybeal.

Bach was promoted from plant manager to assistant vice president in charge of operations at the Regal plant where he had been employed for the last three years.

A resident of Buhl, for nine years, Bach was previously employed in the contracting business. He is married and has five children.

Graybeal was promoted to vice president in charge of marketing. He previously held the position for one and one-half years as marketing manager.

Graybeal has resided in Twin Falls for the past 25 years. He was employed for fourteen and one-half years with KMTV T.V. and for three and one-half years as division manager for the Svanberg Co. He is married and has one child.

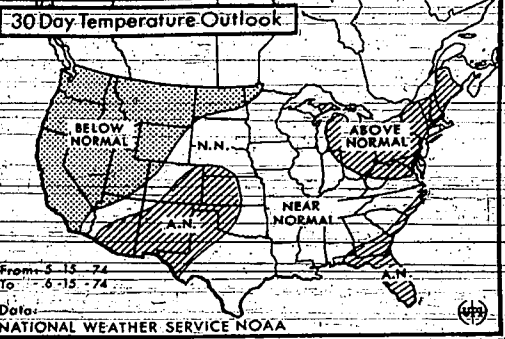

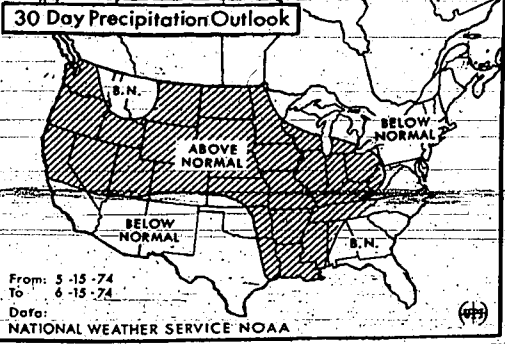

Housing rate up
(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Housing starts rose by almost 10 per cent in April to an annual rate of 1.61 million, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

However, April starts reflected the relatively easy availability of mortgage money that winter.

Water supply reports show high levels

BOISE — Water supply outlook reports for Idaho as of May show Magic Reservoir is expected to have a 187 per cent of normal inflow this summer. "This is the highest average in the state but Soil Conservation Service reports indicate all areas of the state are above normal."

Measurements on Salmon Falls drainage included the Hummingbird Springs depth of 66 inches of snow and 28.9 inches of water, no snow in the lowest elevations and 52 inches of snow and 26.4 inches of water on Deadline Ridge. Magic Mountain listed 49 inches of snow and 24.7 inches of water. All are above normal. On Raft River, Howell Canyon listed 63 inches of snow and 33.5 inches of water, well above the 23.6 inch water average for May 1.

Officials say it will be a good season for irrigation in spite of the lack of precipitation in April and thus far in May. Lower elevation soil moisture content is dropping greatly and fall are below average in soil moisture except in some northern Idaho areas. Officials say all irrigation reservoirs are expected to fill and higher elevation soil moisture remains good to excellent.

The 1973-74 winter was a heavy snow season throughout the state although snowfall was down in April compared to last year. Snowmelt in higher elevations has been retarded by cool night-time temperatures although the first week in May reversed the trend to begin a heavier run-off. Heavy snow packs remain in the highest elevations with considerable runoff yet to come.

The Oakley Reservoir has 181 per cent of normal forecast for this year while Salmon Falls Reservoir is expected to be 187 per cent of normal and Magic Reservoir, 187 per cent. Reservoir reports from the Snake River show Jackson Lake with a usable capacity of 387,000 acre feet with Magic storage reported at 495,000 acre feet compared to 647,000 last year and an average of 501,700 acre feet. Facilities with a 1.2 million capacity has 425,000 acre feet in storage, compared to 975,000 last year and an average of 744,000. American Falls with a 1.12 million useable capacity has 1.2 million as of May and had 1.12 million last year and an average of 1.09 million. Island Park has a capacity of 127,000 acre feet with 110,500 acre feet in storage, now compared to 133,000 last May and an average of 132,100. Officials say the higher elevation areas have been slow to melt, leaving most reservoirs with lower than usual levels and the lower elevation storages are above average because of the heavy snow packs.

SALMON—A new study concludes small communities and subsistence livestock operations within large areas of federal grazing land would be uneconomical for the federal lands were eliminated.

Elimination of grazing from federal rangelands in the 11 western states would require a shift of animals to other lands and would result in loss of these animals from the productive pool.

More animals on non-federal lands would require more intensive use of private rangeland; increase increases in pastures, harvested forages and feed grains, more acreages in cultivation and greater dependence of livestock feeding for meat production.

Only limited acreage is available for development of additional intensive pastures in the United States.

There are among conclusions in a study of livestock grazing on federal lands in the 11 western states by a task force of the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology.

A copy of the report has been received here by the Bureau of Land Management.

"The alternatives to less grazing on federal rangelands appear to be wasteful of natural resources and uneconomical for the producers dependent on these lands unless prices of meat and wool were to be increased considerably," the task force indicated.

"Loss of the products of grazing currently derived from federal lands would increase the scarcity of feed, meat and wool. The mounting demands for grain crops and meat put on an increase in importance of forages on both private and public lands to support the beef and sheep industries."

The reported noted: "The one half the land area in the 11 Western States is federally owned. Domestic livestock graze on 73 per cent of this area. Federal land is estimated to supply 12 per cent of all grazing resources in the region and to provide the equivalent of the feed required yearling for 17 million head of cattle and 1.0 million sheep.

"These grazing lands provide energy, water, minerals, recreational opportunities and wildlife in addition to grazing for domestic animals. The forage on federal lands represent a renewable natural resource and an economical source of feed for production of cattle and sheep."

US-Egyptian export trade boosts studied

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The new era of friendship relations between the United States and Egypt may help stimulate expanding export business for American farmers, a report from an Agriculture Department analyst indicates.

The study by Economist John B. Parker Jr. did not link the prospects for future trade expansion directly to increasing warmth in U.S.-Egyptian relations growing out of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's Mideast diplomacy. In fact, Parker pointed out, Egypt began increasing its grain purchases from the United States more than a year ago at a time when political relations were comparatively cold but U.S. private exporters were offering better price and delivery terms than shippers in other countries.

It may be possible, however, that continued good political relations between the two countries will make it easier to keep commercial export sales rising as well as providing additional shipments to Egypt on credit terms, Parker said in an interview.

Before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, the United States had supplied more than half of all Egyptian food imports, mainly on easy credit terms under the food for peace program. When U.S.-Egyptian relations were broken in 1967 and U.S. stocks later began declining, Egyptian imports of American foods fell from the 1967 record of $191 million to a low of $7.2 million in 1968.

Since the late 1960's, Egyptian purchases have been increasing and they jumped sharply to $123 million last year when the Egyptian buyers re-entered the U.S. grain market on a large scale, Parker said. Total American farm exports to Egypt in 1974 probably will break the old $191 million record.

Looking to the future, Parker said, Egyptian imports of farm products by the late 1970's may rise to an overall total of about $1 billion a year, double last year's rate. Since the U.S. share of the total could be about one-third to one-half, depending on competition from Australia and Europe, this could push American sales to Egypt into the $300 million to $500 million a year range.

Parker said Egyptian farmers generally find it more profitable to grow intensive, high-value crops like cotton and vegetables than to use their limited land for grain. This means a growing market for foreign suppliers of crops like wheat, corn and vegetable oil, the expert noted.

Parker said Egypt's growing food imports in recent years have been spurred partly by a "substantial improvement" in the Middle East country's foreign exchange earnings. Egypt has been netting an increasing flow of Arab money for investments and loans and has been raking in other large chunks of cash for her exports of cotton and rice, Parker noted.

Wildfire benefits studied

SALMON — Region 4 of the US Forest Service is inaugurating a new approach to fire management. "We are trying to get away from the concept of fire control, of just putting fires out, but go to fire management — we also recognize the benefits that can be derived from the use of fires on the forest," Wiley Daniels, fuels management specialist from the region 4 office in Ogden, explained.

Daniels is directing a training session on fuels management for some 80 forest service employees from 11 national forests in the northern portion of the region.

Daniels said that one benefit of fire management would be the revegetation of range and wildlife habitat by prescribed burning.

"We also are looking at the possibility of using wild fire to accomplish wild fire control purposes," Daniels said. "And we are also looking at the natural role of fire from an ecological standpoint. Fire is a historic thing in the intermountain area. It occurs naturally."

"In some places, such as primitive areas, we are looking at the possibilities of pre-planning areas where fires would be allowed to burn to achieve certain goals. We would have a plan in advance in case a fire occurred in a particular area."

Daniels said the session also is considering methods of fighting fire hazard — by getting rid of combustible material.

"Fire management personnel attending the session are from the Salmon, Boise, Targhee, Caribou, Sawtooth, Payette and Challis forests in Idaho, the Bridger-Teton in Wyoming, the Toiyabe in Nevada and the Uinta and Wasatch in Utah."

Daniels said another large consideration in the fire management approach is a chance for sizeable reductions in the costs of fire suppression.

"The forest service also anticipates the new approach will provide safety to fire fighters by keeping them out of extremely steep canyon areas."

Daniels said more advantage of natural features will be taken in the control of fire. "We are going to look at each area and tailor the benefits of fire suppression to the possible damage to the land, the public, safety and personal property — all the values involved," he said.

Fire management considerations will be drafted into the land-use plans of the individual forests now being developed.

Engineer corps dikes Salmon River

SALMON — The Army Corps of Engineers began work Wednesday on an emergency flood control project here to dike some 2,000 feet of the Salmon River south of the city. The work, according to Charles Kane Sr., Lemhi County Commission chairman, was approved after a formal request by the county about three weeks ago.

Two sections of dike will be placed to fill in a gap between the county and city dikes about two miles south of the city.

Kane said that when the new dike is completed the Salmon River above the city will be pretty well protected from the threat of flooding from the Salmon River because of high runoff.

Rules threaten back country, says aide

SALMON — An official of the Idaho Environmental Council has asked the Forest Service not to write into the Wilderness Act, "provisions the public, including conservationists and preservationists, do not want."

Ralph Maughan, Pocatello, vice president of the Council for Southeast Idaho, advised Forest Service regional director J. W. Hamre, regional director in Pocatello.

"I think the Forest Service is going too far in many of its regulations affecting outfitters and guides in national forest wilderness areas. In addition, some of these regulations threaten to turn our back country areas into policed areas."

"The Forest Service is becoming unduly concerned about 'managing' the wilderness established by Congress, i.e., the people who use and enjoy wilderness will be managed."

"Common sense should be the watchword in designing regulations — intended to conserve the wilderness resource. Let me ask you, what good does it do to force outfitters to tear down their camps for one month each year to make them park in pellets for stock just to prevent weed seeds from spreading, and to not allow them to build corrals, and then, just outside an inadequate wilderness boundary, let the bulldozers, etc., roam unmolested?"

"Again, what is the merit of restricting wilderness users very severely in order to prevent pollution of the Middle Fork of the Salmon, but leaving the tributaries of the Middle Fork open to literally millions of times more potential pollution from open-pit mining and timber harvest on the unstable batholithic granitic soils? "As you are aware, there are some who think they have a potent argument against wilderness areas when they talk about the economic benefits stemming from mining and timbering in some areas, of course, they are right; but the millions of dollars in development of these marginal lands.

"If you kill our outfitting industry, by means of unnecessary regulations, you will give substance to those who speak about wilderness 'lock-ups.' There will not be adequate support for wilderness, and all the painted jobs in the world will be no avail."

"The Wilderness Act itself states that commercial services may be performed within wilderness areas, to the extent necessary for activities which are proper for realizing the recreational or other wilderness purposes."

"What commercial services all of our large wildernesses — the Selway-Bitterroot, the Bob Marshall, the Washakie, and the Idaho — would not be properly used (especially in harvesting game). "Please do not write into the Wilderness Act provisions that the public, including conservationists and preservationists, do not want. It is the acid mine drainage, the ungenerated elegants, and the motor vehicle, that people want wilderness areas to prevent. The problems of outfitters camps are very very minor in comparison."

East end Staters named

BUHL — Three local boys from Buhl school and two from Castelford schools have been selected to attend the American Legion Gen. Boys State June 24 at Boise State University.

They are Tim Quigley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Quigley, Castelford; Gary Quigley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Quigley, Jolt Hamilton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hamilton, Scott Horner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Horner, and Mike Guerry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Guerry, all Buhl.

Dale Christensen, commander of the Clark G. Fox Post No. 43 American Legion, said the Legion sponsors the Boys State but needs the additional sponsors who are Rotary, Kiwanis clubs, Buhl Chamber of Commerce, Idaho First National Bank, Farmers National Bank and Castelford Men's Club.

Tim Quigley is junior class treasurer and serves on the Castelford High School student council. He is active in Scouting and 4-H and placed first in the National Math Test in the local school. He recently was accepted into the Society of Outstanding American High School students.

Gary Quigley is an Eagle Scout and active in the Order of the Arrow. He participates in cross-country and track. He is also on the SK Club and Key Club of which he has been vice president and president.

Hamilton recently was elected student body president and is active in sports, participating in junior varsity football and basketball, summer baseball, American Legion baseball, and varsity track, football and basketball. He was named the All-SIC punter in 1974. He also belongs to the SK Club, German Club and Key Club.

Hornet participated in varsity football, wrestling, track and is on the golf team. He also belongs to the SK Club and Language Club. A member of the Order of the Arrow, he participated in Explorer Scouting and helped with the bikeathon for the American Cancer Society. Guerry is Junior class president and has been active in Future Farmers of America, serving as vice president of the West Magic Valley district.

An Eagle Scout, he has been named to attend the 3-DTS computer training school at the University of Idaho, Moscow, June 18-21 and also will attend the Naval Academy engineering and science seminar in Annapolis, MD, June 28-30.

Shoshone schedules car cleanup Monday

SHOSHONE — Plans for Shoshone cars have been made for Monday, according to Shoshone Mayor Ellwood R. Werry.

Persons in Shoshone, Richfield and Dietrich areas with old cars that are junk items or abandoned are asked to deliver them to the Shoshone City dump. Those that cannot be towed to the dump are asked to call the city hall, Shoshone, and efforts will be made to pick them up.

Marian needed 7 skylights, 3 easels and a view of the Left Bank to create her masterpiece.

All she wanted was her own studio. A paint-proof, floor, natural light and room to swing her brushes. The kind of thing no banker could understand, she thought. So she put off asking for a loan through years of canvases leaned against refrigerators, ringing telephones and kids under foot.

Finally, she'd had enough. She worked up her courage and marched into The Bank & Trust instrument loan department. Instead of Mr. Brown and Mr. Smith, she'd been expecting, however, she promptly got her home improvement ban. In no time, a crew of workmen were converting her attic into a studio that would have made Andrew Wyeth proud, even if she did have to give up the Left Bank for a view of the Sawtooths.

That's how we do things at The Bank & Trust.

We aren't bound by stiff corporate policies. We're independent, hometown people. We know our neighbors need money for a lot of different reasons, and we're willing to listen to all of them. Chances are, if your reasons make sense to you, they'll make sense to us.

WALT ANDERSEN LARRY SLATTER

SPRING WINDS aren't just a fable... and the inclement or changeable weather that is so often a part of this season can be hard on things like carpets, when children and adults are making tracks from one end of the house to the other.

It's nice to know your new carpet can be so carefree. It's nice to know you can have a multi-color blend in a pile that is both hard-wearing and beautifully soil-resistant.

Even a thick, deep and luxurious polyester shag in a bold solid color, or a lively multi-color blend is easier to clean and care for than its luxury look might suggest.

The miracle, of course, is in the fibers... these great man-made fibers with natural soil resistant characteristics and a ready response to cleaning. The selection is phenomenal. In fibers, textures and colors.

Spring right into our new carpet and see what's happening with carpets. Our selection is famous... and so is that "something extra" we offer: "In-service" and carpet expertise that's yours for the asking. Shop-at-home service, too!

Ceremony planned for Shoshone students

SHOSHONE — Students of the Lincoln Elementary School will receive physical fitness awards and flag study certificates at 11 a.m. Tuesday.

A new state flag which has been presented to the school will be raised, according to Robert Lewin, American Legion. Lewin was in charge of the school making the flag study.

The public is invited to the ceremony.

TWIN FALLS — Junior Ken Aamodt scored high for Twin Falls High School for a second year in the National Mathematics Examination. Aamodt will receive a bronze medal for his 68 points in the exam.

Of the 39 Idaho schools participating Twin Falls took first with 169 points, 13 higher than second place Caldwell.

Twin Falls has taken first place in the Idaho division three times in recent years, according to Ormond Thomas, head of the TFHS mathematics department.

The examination is open to all students who have studied geometry or higher mathematics courses in the US and Canada.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MAY 19, 1974

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Making new arrangements with the advice of friends makes this a productive and successful day. Make new acquaintances of local merit.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) State your aims to those you trust and gain from their suggestions. Have a charming time at social events but don't be extravagant.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know what your ambitions are for the future and discuss them with key persons. Obtain the information you need but avoid a busybody.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good day to meet with friends and plan the future wisely. Strive for more good. Express personal goals. Relax tonight.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 23) You can now obtain the facts and figures that is impossible to do during week days. Be sensible where personal duties are concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 23) Listen to what allies have to say and step out of that rut you have been in. Make plans how to advance in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Ideal day for using your intuitive faculties and making plans that are workable. A good opportunity to be at your best with loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find out what associates expect of you. Use wisdom in handling one who opposes you. Don't start any arguments with anyone.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plan how to get your daily work done more efficiently. Study new systems. Make new arrangements for the future.

CARRION (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Dealing with an emotional associate means you have to be objective as well as pay commitments for best results. Be logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take steps to improve your surroundings. Listen to the advice of a family member. See to it that everything is operating smoothly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Obtain the data you need that brings you more security. Carry through with the plans you have made. Take health treatments.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have fine opportunities to advance because of the favors that bigwigs will want to bestow on your clever, youngster. Direct the education along lines of big business and property management. Make sure that a course of ethics is given early in life. Don't spoil your progeny on the promised here is bestowed. "The Stars and Planets, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely in your hands.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

When a good-looking fellow and an attractive girl walk by on the street, which one do you look at first? If you're a hunk, you look at the girl. And if you're a girl, you look at the hunk. No question about it. The hidden camera boys have proved the foregoing repeatedly.

The senior Henry Ford walked into his bank one afternoon. "Withdraw $150,000," Caselli counted it. Said to the teller, "Just testing." Then redeposited the whole schmeer at the next window.

An new advent: the most common town name nationwide isn't Salem, with 24 municipalities so named, but Franklin, which identifies 29 towns, followed by Washington, 28.

The airline boys have figured out that a stewardess on one round-trip Atlantic crossing walks about 10 miles.

Q. "What value do young girls grow the least in height? How about young boys?"

A. —Girls, from age 9 to 10; Boys, from age 10 to 11. With numerous exceptions.

Q. "How long does it take the Alaskan dog sled teams to get from Anchorage to Nome in their annual spring race?"

A. From 18 to 21 days.

Q. "What was the biggest insect ever?"

A. A prehistoric dragonfly called the Meganeuron. With a wingspread of 29 inches.

TABLET TALK

In most penitentiaries, a convict who leaves food on his plate at meal's end is liable to disciplinary action. So reports one incarcerated client who complains mightily. That's not new, sir. Was standard table rule in the free world during the 1930s. You could go back for seconds, if they were enough left in the big dish. But if you failed to clean up your plate, you faced extra duty at the chopping block. This worst punishment was taken for granted by the "Sons of Chivalry" no doubt. But nobody, it appeared, a recent gathering of youngsters. That's the point. Already there are a couple of generations who've never heard of such a thing.

Little Current sticks to rail to take Preakness

BALTIMORE (UPI) — For a while it looked as though Little Current just would not have room to run. But a daredevil rider busted him through a hole on the rail and the 99th Preakness Stakes was on.

Two weeks ago at Churchill Downs, in the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby won by Cannonade, the horse wasn't as lucky. When he finally found room to stretch-out in full stride, it was just too late. The son of European champion Sea Bird closed like a thunderbolt but all that mighty effort did was carry him from the tail end of a field of 23 to fifth place.

"This time things were different. He had a new rider, Miguel Rivera, who came here from Puerto Rico in 1967, but became homesick and returned to the island. A few years ago, urged by fellow jockey and bossman Angel Cordero, he returned to the mainland and has been a top notch rider ever since. Only a few days ago, John W. Galbreath, owner of the Darby Dan Farm as well as the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club, signed him on as contract rider.

There is one thing Rivera knows—the shortest way home is a shorter way around the rails along the rail. That was the route he took. It was a smart move and it paid off but only because the game little jockey had the nerve to stick to his game plan. For a while his cause looked hopeless with the finish line only a little more than an eighth of a mile away. There just wasn't any place to go.

Little Current, just as he did in the Kentucky Derby, dropped back to last at the start. At Churchill Downs the only horse behind him was Flip Sal who broke down during the race. This time it was Buck's Bid who broke badly from the starting gate and dumped jockey Don MacBeth. Then down the backstretch—and around the final turn, Little Current started to "pick up horses." At the same time Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner, made a bold bid for the second jewel in racing's Triple Crown. Cannonade circled around three horses to make his challenge for glory in the middle of the race.

Little Current stayed on the rail. Kentucky Derby winner Cannonade, the favorite of the crowd of 54,911, charged past the early leaders halfway down the home stretch to take the lead. Little Current appeared to be trapped behind a wall of horses. But there was a crack in the wall, a narrow opening along the rail.

Rivera headed Little Current for the crack. He lashed the colt savagely with his whip. With a tremendous burst of speed, Little Current was through the slight opening and on his way to victory.

With every stride he widened his lead and he streaked across the finish line seven lengths in front of the closest winners in the long history of the Preakness and one of the fastest, Longshot Neopolitan. Way finished second and Cannonade was third.

"I had a great horse and I never was worried about the inside," said Rivera. "It is the shortest way home and I never had any trouble on the rail all the way. At the eighth pole we were flying and they only hit him once. I want to thank Mr. Galbreath and to Angel Cordero who helped me get my job with him."

Only two horses ever won by wider margins—Survivor by 10 in the inaugural running in 1873 and Buddha by eight in 1889.

Cannonero holds the Preakness record of 1:54 for the 1.36-mile. Secretariat was officially timed in 1:54 2/5 a year ago and Little Current finished in 1:57 1/5, the third fastest running of the race.

Little Current picked up a winner's purse of $156,500 and gave owner Galbreath his first Preakness victory. Galbreath had won the Kentucky Derby twice with Chateaugay in 1962 and with Proud Clarion in 1967 but both were beaten in the Preakness.

Little Current, who had won the Everglades Stakes at Hialeah but failed in the Flamingo and Blue Grass Stakes and the Kentucky Derby, was almost ignored by the sun-drenched crowd. He said $25,000, $15,400 and $7,800 across the board. Neopolitan Way was one of the real long shots in the race and returned $22,000 and $10,000. Cannonade paid $4,000.

July John was fourth. Ben came. Kin-Run, Heir to the Line, J.R.'s Pet, Hudson County, Rubie the Great, Silver Florin, Destroyer, and All Game. Buck's Bid stumbled coming out of the gate and jockey Dan MacBeth was tossed from the horse. He landed on his feet but Buck's Bid got away from him and trailed the field throughout the race.

A disappointed Cordero, who was confident he could ride Cannonade to the Triple Crown championship, blamed the con- spiration of the track for his colt's defeat. It had rained heavily at Phyllo Friday night and track was covered with water when racing started.

"Cannonade just couldn't get hold of the track," Cordero said. "I moved him up in the stretch but he didn't run his race."

EMBARRASSINGLY AIRBORNE. Jockey Donald MacBeth and his mount, Buck's Bid, became airborne just after the horses broke from the gate in Saturday's Preakness. (UPI Telephoto)

Win credited to riding of Rivera

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Miguel Rivera, who is subject to homesickness for his native Puerto Rico, found the shortest way home—to a Preakness victory Saturday.

The 30-year-old jockey found the opening on the rail with Little Current and streaked to a seven-length victory going away.

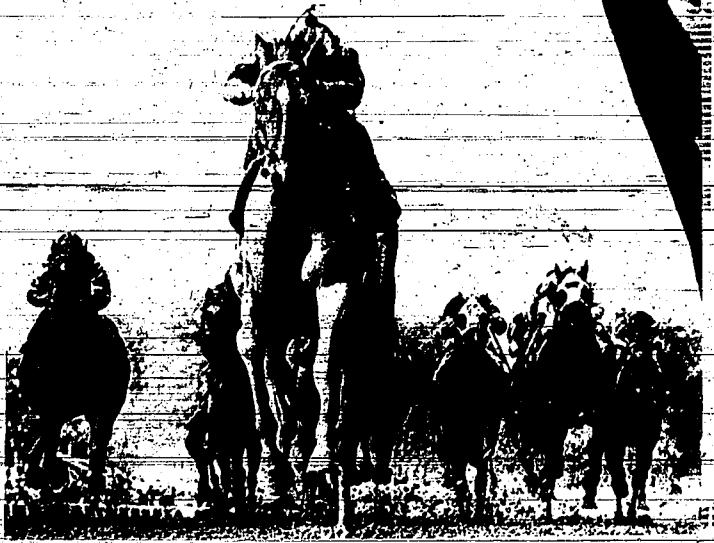

Farm entry in the 99th Preakness. It was Cordero who persuaded Rivera to return to the U.S. racing scene several years ago when Rivera became homesick and went back to Puerto Rico after a successful 1967 riding debut at Churchill Downs.

Cordero made no excuses for Cannonade who finished third and ended any prospects for a Triple Crown winter this year.

"He just couldn't get hold of the track," he said. "I moved him up in the stretch but he didn't run his race."

Rondinello said Cordero had recommended Rivera as a jockey prior to the Kentucky Derby when Little Current finished fifth after running 23rd in the early stages.

USC collects Pac-8 track title without one first

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Without scoring a first place during the entire day, University of Southern California de throne UCLA's Bruins by four points, Saturday in the Pacific Eight track and field championships.

Beaten by the four-time NCAA defending champion Bruins in a dual meet on the same Coliseum track two weeks ago, the Trojans rolled up 134 1/2 points to 100 1/2 for UCLA. Oregon was a distant third with 94 points.

The turning point of the meet came in the 17th event—the 220—when the Trojans had three men score for 11 points to none for the Bruins. That gave USC 121 1/2 points to 112 1/2 for UCLA.

Going into the final event of the day, the mile relay, USC had 126 1/2 to 120 1/2 for the Bruins. The Bruins won the mile relay for the seventh straight time and USC was second to clinch the Pac-8 title for the second time in three years.

Freshman Mike Shavers got a pair of seconds for the Trojans, finishing second in the 100 to Washington's Al Davis and runner-up to Gary Minor of Washington State in the 220 in 9:7 and 21:2. Davis and Minor had the same times.

Shavers also ran the leadoff leg in the Trojans' second-place 400 relay team, which was clocked in 40.1. Washington State, with four individual winners, finished fourth with 76 points while Oregon State, which also captured four events, was fifth with 64.

California was next with 53 1/2 points, followed by Washington, with 50 1/2, and Stanford with 17. "It was a long road back," said USC coach Vern Wolfe. "This feels better than two weeks ago, believe me. But I thought we could win it all along."

"We came on strong right at the end. The 220 turned it around, but it was a team victory. Everything counted."

Jim Bush, the UCLA coach, whose teams had won four Pac-8 titles in five years, also singled out the 220 as the pivotal event.

"The 220 was the difference," said Bush. "We didn't get a point and I thought we'd get about eight."

"USC also scored heavily in the 440 (2-3-4-5 for 20 points). But there's one more meet this season. That will be the rubber match."

Bush referred to the NCAA championships at the University of Texas June 6-8, when the Bruins go after their fifth straight national championship. UCLA had five winners in the two-day competition. In addition to the Bruins' winning mile relay team, they had winners in Clarence Taylor (53-4-1) in the triple jump, Roger Preberg (19:9) in the discus, Mike Parks (46.4) in the 440, and Dave Schiller (61-10-4-4) in the shot put.

The Trojans' only victory came Friday by Olympic long jump champion Randy Williams. The Bruins were hurt when Boone Brown, last year's quarter-mile winner and second-place finisher in the 220, could not compete in those events because of a severe virus. Brown ran the anchor leg of UCLA's winning mile relay team Saturday but did not look sharp.

"I think this defeat will be a help for us in the NCAA meet," said Bush. "Our guys don't like to lose."

California's Rick Brown became only the second man in Pac-8 history to win an event four straight years when he captured the 880 in 1:48.1.

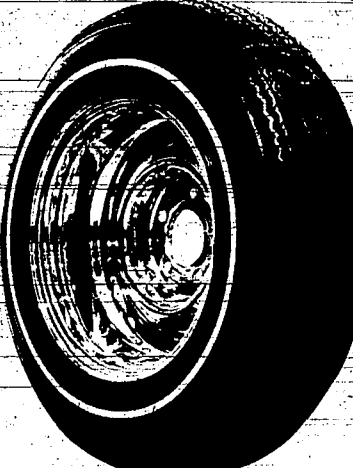

Washington State's John Negro, a sophomore from Kenya who won the six-mile run Friday, upset Oregon's Paul Geis in the three-mile. It was Geis' first defeat in an Oregon uniform.

The Michelin Radials

Michelin XZ
The Michelin XZ are made especially for imported cars. The wide wrap-around tread has over 15% more contact area than cross-ply tires. Up to 4% more than standard radials. The XZ is flexible and tough. A steel cord' belt gives a smoother, safer, quieter ride. There's positive puncture and blow-out protection. The Michelin XZ, an imported radial made especially for your imported car.

Michelin X
There's real gas savings from the Michelin X because the steel cord radial tire rolls easier—your car uses less energy and goes further on a gallon of gas. And they'll cost less in the long run because they'll last. Michelin radials have improved cornering, braking and traction on both wet and dry roads. It's an all-weather, year-round tire. This time, think radial and look to the leader—Michelin.

Hunter and Saras double, Schultz wins third 440

BOISE — An injury dashed Camas County hopes for a grand slam Saturday when Nampa Christian and Butte of Arcos won one-two in the state A-3 track championships.

With sprinter-jumper Layne Osborne hobbled by a pulled groin muscle, Camas County's point production fell back and the Mushers wound up in a tie with co-district mates Gooding State and Glens Ferry at 18 each.

Nampa Christian had 23 and Butte 21, Butte being a chance to win the title in the relay by dropping the baton long enough to have to settle for third.

Meanwhile, the A-3 provided the most individual champions for Magic Valley. Steve Saras of Shoshone repeated in the 100-yard dash, recorded 53-3/4 and tacked on the discus crown to account for all of the "Indians' points. John Hunter took both the mile and two-mile for Gooding State while Castleford's Alan Schultz nailed down a third consecutive quarter-mile crown. Osborne, who figured to be going for four, firsts, was limited to blue ribbon only in the 100-yard dash. The 5-11 sprinter hobbled throughout the day with the pulled muscle, probably track's most painful.

Osborne said two weeks ago it had been sore from the football season and was expected to "last" just two more weeks. But it "popped" in practice last week. Since the muscle is most essential for lifting the upper leg in running and taking off in jumping, he was thoroughly compromised. He was unplaced in the 100-yard dash, got fifth in the triple. He won the 100-yard dash but that, too, had little effect. He was in the thick of the 200-yard dash, a gutsy performance but couldn't quite make it the last few strides to hold up. He went "third" again.

With his point performance limited, Camas County didn't have a chance to fulfill a dream of taking state championships in every sport this year. Along with the state title conference and district laurels, too, Glens Ferry knocked them out of the regional crown last week.

Schultz, third quarter-mile, also topped the 440-yard dash. Molyneux of Carey in the unenviable spot of never getting a district or state gold medal. Again, it was, finally, Carey and actually coming up on Schultz' shoulder before being forced to settle for second spot again.

Hunter won the two-mile in his usual fashion but in the mile he and Nampa Christian's Ware, run what they called a tactical mile. Broken down of its simplest form, the two decided to just watch each other for "hits" and "third quarter taps" and then run a 100-yard dash. Craig Pett of Gooding State, set the pace for three and one-half laps before the two fighters finally broke loose with their kicks. Hunter won it by two-three yards.

Glens Ferry's good showing came on a strong mile relay team victory and a second place by Vine in the discus. Bob Whitney clipped in with a second in the high hurdles and fourth in the intermediates.

Osborne scores for Camas

STATE CHAMPION Layne Osborne of Camas County leans into the tape for the 100-yard dash title in the A-3 division Saturday. Osborne, hampered by an injury, was second in the 200-yard dash.

DOUBLE WINNER John Hunter of Gooding State strides across the line ahead of Nampa Christian's Ware for the mile title to go along with the two-mile crown he won earlier Saturday at the AS State track meet.

THREE-TIME WINNER Alan Schultz of Castleford wins another A-3 440-yard crown while Molyneux of Carey challenges during the state finals in Boise Saturday.

End of dynasty

Havlicek, Kareem on all-NBA team

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Havlicek and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, prolific scorers who led their teams to the playoff championship round, were named Saturday to the 1973-74 National Basketball Association All-Star first team.

Havlicek, who tallied 185 points in leading Boston past Milwaukee in the seven-game title series, drew 12,214 votes for one of the forward positions and Abdul-Jabbar collected 14,541 in balloting by sports writers and broadcasters covering teams in the 17 league cities. New York Knicks' veteran guard Walt Frazier was the biggest vote getter as he gained 15,291 votes. Gail Goodrich of Los Angeles received 11,028 votes for the other guard post.

Forward Rick Barry of Golden State rounded out the squad with a 9,974 total. Frazier was a unanimous choice in 14 of the 17 cities. Guards Norm Van Lier, Chicago, 3,413; Havlicek and Abdul-Jabbar made the first team for the fourth straight year and Frazier was picked for the third consecutive season. Barry now has made it three times, while Goodrich was honored for the first time.

Vois collect 11th crown

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Reggie Jones tied the Southeastern Conference record in the 200-yard dash after Doug Brown became a triple winner Saturday to lead Tennessee to its 11th straight SEC track and field championship.

Jones ran 20.8 in the 220 to tie the SEC record set by Al Coffee of LSU in 1970 and tied by Joe Shearhouse of Georgia in 1973. Brown won the three-mile run in the SEC record time of 13:38.8 to go with his winning times in the 3,000-yard steeplechase and the six-mile run on Friday.

Kansas holds Big 8 crown

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Kansas, powered by a 20 point performance by Mike Lutz, grabbed its eighth consecutive Big Eight conference Track and Field championship Saturday by defeating intrastate rival Kansas State 140-117.

CSU tips BYU for crown

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Tom Rosarend hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning Saturday to clinch a Western Athletic Conference baseball win for Colorado State over Northern Division champion Brigham Young, 4-1.

BYU got its only score in the first inning on a home run by Lee Ing. CSU came back with two runs in the fourth inning on two singles, a sacrifice fly and a Cougar error.

Waldrop named ACC's best

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Sub-four-minute miler Tony Waldrop won the prestigious Anthony J. McKelvin Award Saturday as the outstanding athlete in the Atlantic Coast Conference for 1973-74.

The University of North Carolina track star was the first track performer to capture the ACC honor since Dave Sims of Duke grabbed it in 1966. Waldrop received 75 votes while North Carolina State basketball All-American David Thompson had 52 in balloting by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association.

McCalley sets world deaf record, leads five CSI tracksters to national finals

BOISE, Ore. — Five of eight College of Southern Idaho trackmen earned the right to participate in the national junior college finals Saturday in the region 1 championships. Layne Community College of Oregon ran off with the team title at 221 points while CSI was fifth with 45. But Coach Jim Blaisdell's charges won two events and freshman Steve McCalley shattered the regional and world deaf six-mile record.

Idaho berates neighbors for closing seasons too late

By STU MURRELL
A recent article appearing in Idaho newspapers acted as a catalyst and Washington had closed the commercial, Indian and sport fisheries on the Columbia River. This is like "closing the barn door after the horse is out" since Idaho recommended against a commercial season this year. But these two states set a season and an estimated 30,000 chinook have been harvested by these three fisheries. These salmon have been harvested from a low run that will have extreme difficulty in fish passage past the dams due to high spring flows and already lethal levels of nitrogen caused by large spills.

Reds pin-BH loss on Astros
HOUSTON (UPI) — Johnny Bench's three-run homer in the seventh inning and strong relief pitching by Pedro Borbon Saturday night carried the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-5 victory over Houston that handed the Astros' their eighth straight loss.

Bench's eighth homer of the season erased a 4-1 Houston lead and came off reliever Ken Forsch — Fred Scherman, who had taken over for Astro starter Don Wilson to open the seventh — set-up the blast by hitting a single to Pete Rose and a walk to Joe Morgan.

Cincinnati scored four runs in the first inning on back-to-back doubles by Morgan and Bench, a walk to Dan Driessen and a three-run homer by Merv Rettenmund.

A WFL spokesman said the Florida group is headed by Rommie Loudd, a former football player at UCLA. Loudd plans to move the team to Orlando and play in the Tangerine Bowl, the WFL said.

BOISE — The Jerome Tigers, doubling in the half mile and taking 22 points out of the relay, started a second consecutive Idaho state A-2 track and field championship Saturday.

The Tigers collected points in heavy amounts in taking their third title in four years and piled up 58 points. Emmett hung in better than expected but bowed out for good when Jerome's Johnson and Rod Hillier went one-two in the half-mile for 10 points. Still the Huskies at 47 were well away from third place Bonners Ferry at 32. Senior Kevin Blaisdell, enjoying a fine 22-point individual day, placed fourth at 77 while Bishop Kelly had 26.

Wood River's Randy Collier took his second straight pole vault crown and left a new A-2 mark of 12.7. Jerome's mile relay team lowered the record from 3:30.1 to 3:27.5. The other A-2 mark came in the shotput where Ed Kaulb of Weiser hit 41.3 to shatter the 55.01 mark established by Jerome's Toby Walgamott two years ago.

The Tigers held up very well, except in the hurdles where the point total lagged a bit. Dave Jordan unleashed a 100-meter finishing leg in the quarter-mile relay to just knock Jerome out of relay sweep by perhaps three inches. But the Tigers weren't tested in the others.

The half-mile quarter won by 20 yards and the mile relay by probably 40, maybe 50. Hoskins came from just off the pace in the final turn to win the medley.

Emmett, which had more people in the meet than Jerome, swapped the lead with the Tigers throughout the day until the half-mile. Jerome was trailing by two inches into the one. Johnson stepped out with the leaders and stayed on the pace throughout while Hillier, just as he did last week in district, just stayed in contact.

Coming off the final turn, Johnson went to his kick and only Hillier was able to respond. The blond youngster came on strong and appeared considering quitting.

Price asked for a five-year contract and was not interested for the job earlier this year. When he didn't get it, he settled for the two-season pact.

Price said Friday the multi-year contract would provide the football program with long-needed stability. "One program over the years has gotten the image of being unstable with coaches coming and going," he said.

University president Harlan Cleveland, who is leaving Sept. 1, said the board's action on price was probably a first in the 67-year history of the university.

But regent Wallace Fujiyama said administration, the regents and the government workers union agreed months ago that price should start off with a five-year contract. He added that the regents are not bound to abide by the dictates of the administration.

Several others were considering quitting. Price asked for a five-year contract and was not interested for the job earlier this year. When he didn't get it, he settled for the two-season pact.

Foyt captures Indy pole position for third time

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Ayrton Senna captured his third pole position in a row on Sunday at the Indianapolis 500.

The 23-year-old Brazilian driver, who won the race in 1973, captured his third pole position in a row on Sunday at the Indianapolis 500. Senna, driving for the Marlboro team, was the fastest qualifier with a lap time of 1:57.287.

Other drivers who qualified for the race included Tom Snead Jr., Al Unser Sr., and Bobby Unser.

The 33-car starting field, which will get one more opportunity to make adjustments before the final carburetor tests before the race, averaged 182.787 m.p.h., nine miles slower than last year.

Three former '500' champions broke into the lineup Saturday—last-time winner Al Unser Sr., defending champ Gordon Johncock and Mario Andretti.

former rookie of the year Denny Zimmerman, Glastonbury, Conn., were bumped in the final stages of the trials by faster machines.

The last two to make the lineup also were rookies—Johnny Parsons Jr., Indianapolis, son of the 1950 race winner, and Jan Opperman, Beaver Crossing, Neb.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — The lineup for the May 26th Indianapolis 500 is:

Row 1: Ayrton Senna, Marlboro, Brazil, 1:57.287 m.p.h.

Row 2: Tom Snead Jr., East-West, N.J., 1:57.400 m.p.h.

Row 4: Bobby Unser, Marlboro, Ind., 1:57.400 m.p.h.

Row 6: Mario Andretti, Marlboro, Ind., 1:57.400 m.p.h.

Row 8: Roger McCluskey, Marlboro, Ind., 1:57.400 m.p.h.

Row 10: Jan Opperman, Marlboro, Ind., 1:57.400 m.p.h.

Hannum trying to line up backing to buy ABA Rockets

DENVER (UPI) — Alex Hannum, said Saturday he expected to know within a couple of days whether he had the financial support he needs to buy the American Basketball Association Denver Rocket franchise.

"Let's say I hope to have something firm by late Monday," Hannum told UPI.

"Believe me—I'm making an effort and I feel real good about the possibilities."

Hannum was relieved of his duties as coach-general manager of the Rockets on April 30 and announced at that time he would try to put together a group to buy the Rockets from their San Diego owners, headed by Frank Goldberg. The price was reportedly in the $2 million area.

Hannum said Saturday that one of the reasons he was reluctant to accept a buyout was a consolidation proposal between the NBA and the ABA which was expected to be enacted at the time of his dismissal but has since been dissolved.

Under the plan "five ABA teams—New York, Kentucky, Indiana, Utah and San Antonio—would be placed in the NBA. The five other ABA teams—Denver, San Diego, Virginia, Memphis and Carolina were all for sale and the other five ABA owners would purchase and dissolve the teams.

Under the plan, San Diego would get an ABA expansion team in 1975-76 and Denver would be awarded one in 1976-77.

"With that plan facing him Frank Goldberg asked me to take an extension of my contract to August and see what happened," said Hannum. "He did not want to get stuck with contracts if he didn't have a team. I told him I didn't want to do it and he said he had no choice but to let me go."

Hannum said, however, the plan has since been thrown out.

"He did so, however, he expected an extension of some type, will Denver as a member of the league, by the start of the coming season."

"The NBA is going to go ahead and hold its player draft and there will be a scramble for player talent before something is finally worked out in August or so," said Hannum.

Capital, A-F cop golf titles

IDAHO FALLS — The Capital Eagles, with Jago Lubbert winning the Idaho title at even 20, won the Idaho state A golf championship Friday while American Falls took the B division.

Capital scored 308 while Idaho Falls scored 311. They were followed by Caldwell at 336, Burley 334, Borah 336, Idaho Falls 336, Highland 334, Lewiston 334, Pocatello, Coeur d'Alene 334, Blackfoot 346, Minico 359, Bonneville 371, Madison 371 and Skyline 383.

American Falls took its second title at 321 while Middleton edged Buhl 341-342 for runner-up honors. Joe Higham of Shelley was medalist at 78.

Courtney holds lead, Nicklaus moves up

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Chuck Courtney survived another blustery, humid afternoon Saturday to maintain his advantage after three rounds of the $250,000 Colonial National Golf tournament, but Jack Nicklaus fired one of only three sub-par rounds of the day to move within three shots of the lead.

Courtney, without a victory in the past five years, shot an even-par 70 over the treacherous 7,142-yard par 70 Colonial Country Club course to finish 54 holes at three under 208.

Two strokes back was Winton Indian Rod Curl, who shot 71 and was at 208.

Nicklaus, despite a shaky start, put together a one-under 69 and he was pleased to be in the position he was.

"When I came here at the first of the week," Nicklaus said, "I thought because of the way I was playing that I might be going home after the second round. I've played this course a lot of times and I feel I know the course pretty well."

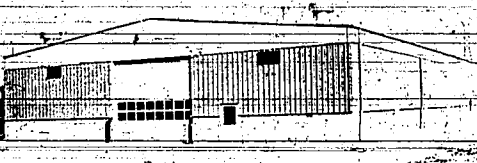

"I like the position of being a couple of shots back where I can make a charge and run by the leaders."

No other golfer was under par for three rounds in the PGA's first designated tournament.

Eric Irwin, who shot a 73, and Tom Weiskopf, who shot 72, were tied for fourth place at even par 210. Julius Boros was a shot back at 211, having fired a 76.

The only rounds under par shot Saturday other than Courtney's 69 were 68 by Monty Kaser and Gary McCord, both of them well out of the running.

Capital takes A-1 crown; Hendrix-led Bruins third

BOISE — The Capital Eagles won their first state A-1 track title after Nampa's Terry Davenport collected three firsts and Twin Falls surprised by grabbing third Saturday at Riggins Stadium.

Way of surprising give-away appeared to one wanted to win it. Disqualification and dropped batons blew Borah out of the water. Injury shivered Burley's Ken Harper on the eve of what could have been his finest hour.

In the end Capital took it with 38 points while Nampa, with Davenport having a hand in all five of its 28 points, was second. Meanwhile, Twin Falls mile relay team, taking a sharp cue from high hurdler Lonnie Hendrix, turned in its best time ever for fourth place. And those two points lifted the Bruins out of a logjam and into third. Twin Falls had 25 while Blackfoot, Borah and Highland had 24 and Skyline 23.

Basically this meet should be recalled for the duels between Borah's Frank Willy and Mike Gregory of Blackfoot. Willy turned in two tremendous efforts in just beating Gregory to his top in the mile, 4:10 and coming back with a fine 1:55.1 and tight win in the half-mile. The problem was, Willy was disqualified for forcing Gregory to break stride while passing, just as the final lap began.

Lonnie Hendrix served up the first bitter dose for the Lions, who figured to be in the thick of it despite the loss of sprinter Mike Chase and the slowing hurt to quartermiler Barclay. Hendrix, getting a fairly bad start, caught up midway through the course and was going away in 14.9 in the high hurdles.

The unexpected, but impressively won, victory capped a great career at TFHS for Hendrix, who lettered in football, basketball and track, was student body president, earned a 4.0 grade point, will

Just a couple minutes later Borah was gone. The starting man on the 200-yard relay, inadvertently kicked the baton out of his hand with his knee one stride into the race. By the time he'd retrieved it, the field was gone.

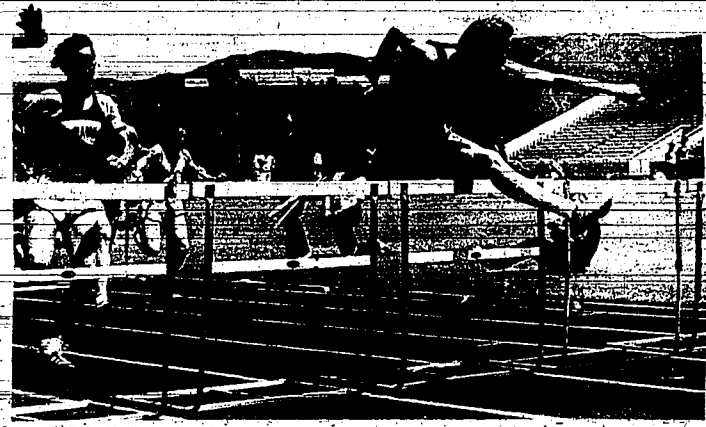

Earlier Twin Falls saw its outside hopes for a fifth straight title go a-glittering in the field events. An injury prevented Gary Miller from even attempting the pole vault.

Terry Hillman and Brent Watson both cleared 35 feet in going two-three in the shotput. But at the discus ring, McDaniel of Boise, after bruising the ground around 142 feet, uncoiled a 165-5 effort on his last throw to relegate Watson to second. In the two-mile, Twin Falls was unplaced although two eastern division, SIC runners, who had never beaten the Bruin entry ran three-four.

Davenport, with six stitches in his leg due to a spiking while practicing baton handoffs, won the high jump, long jump and triple jump — but none at the record distances expected. He also ran on the second place Nampa medley, which was won by a slick-up Pocatello crew with Churchill on the anchor.

Last Wednesday, Burley's Ken Harper was trying to install a sliding french door. The door bounced off his foot. Harper tried to run the 100-yard preliminaries Friday night but couldn't, then scratched for the rest of the meet. The 100 and 220-yard dashes and intermediates all fell within realm of his reach, meaning the youngster might "tingle" momentarily have given Burley its best state showing in years: High jumper, Brent Bodily prevented the shutout with a third.

Tory Lewis of Capital erased Twin Falls' Bill Miller's name from the record book by clearing 45-1 in the pole vault, an inch better than Miller did in 1971. Willy's 1:55.1 half-mile time took Gary Stevens, Twin Falls, off the record list by 1.5 seconds after one year.

LONE BRUIN CHAMPION Lonnie Hendrix steps over the last hurdle enroute to the state A-1 high hurdle championship Saturday in Boise. Hendrix was the only individual from the Magic Valley to take a blue-ribbon out of the A-1 field, but the victory sparked Twin Falls to a third-place finish.

TIRED MILER Doug Larson of Twin Falls seeks a little rest and relaxation after burning in his best time ever for third place in the A-1 mile Saturday during the state meet. He also carried Twin Falls' medley baton to fourth place.

Church's seat sought by Winder

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — U.S. Senate Republican candidate Donald L. Winder believes President Nixon should voluntarily comply with the House Judiciary Committee's subpoenas for tapes.

But, the Republican hopeful would not say whether the committee should continue to insist on obtaining tapes themselves rather than just the transcripts.
"That's a legal question that I can't answer," he said in an interview.

Winder announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination to the Senate race Wednesday in Boise. The recently-resigned Farmers Home Administration Idaho director served in the State House as a representative during the 1967 Idaho legislature.
"Whatever (information), the law allows under the subpoena process should be made available," he said. However, if Nixon were to refuse to turn over the tapes after being ordered to do so by the U.S. Supreme Court, Winder said he did not know what the next step should be.

Financing will be an issue of his campaign. He said he would make all the records of his campaign contributions available and will open his income tax returns to those interested.
"I have offered a challenge to other candidates who are running for the same position to join in an agreement not to accept contributions from anywhere outside Idaho and to return such contributions already received. I think that Idaho this time should elect its own U.S. Senator," he said.
But the challenge only holds if everybody joins in. "If the other candidates aren't going to be bound by this agreement, there isn't any reason for me to be bound by it," he said.
Taxation and inflation will be the primary issues of the campaign, Winder said.
"There is only one way to control inflation," he said, "and that is by a responsible and a responsive Congress that no longer continues to spend money to gain votes for themselves or to add to the massive costs of administration and continued deficit spending."
Winder was critical of President Nixon on the issue of impoundment of appropriated funds by the executive branch.
"Funds that have been dedicated to specific programs should not be impounded," he said.
But, he said that the

Congress, with its record of deficit spending, may not always be justified in appropriating funds for specific programs. "It is not inappropriate in all circumstances to impound funds," he concluded.
The tax burden and spiraling inflation could be alleviated, he said, by cutting back the funds for administration of federal programs.
Administrative cuts and greater government responsiveness could be achieved by encouraging a cooperative relationship between the private sector and government with the private sector providing those services of professional people," he said.

Terri Koch, 13, practices goat tying while Alma Morrison watches

Riders gather

Home arena provides Buhl fun

BUHL — Many people deny the fact there is little for their children to do, but one man at Buhl has done something about it.

Some 10 years ago, when Alma Morrison's son, Mike, became interested in rodeoing, he took some of his 40 acres west of Buhl and built a miniature riding area with chutes so Mike could learn how to compete in rodeos.

Soon, his friends were coming over to ride, and over the years countless youngsters, as well as adults, have not only learned about riding in horse shows or rodeos, but, more important, have had opportunity for family fun together.

Now Mike is grown and lives in Nevada, but the Morrison's youngest child, Darla, 12, inherits the family love for horses and she is among the regular Wednesday participants at the arena.

Each month the riders who practice at Morrison's arena hold a gymkhana and one is scheduled for 1 p.m. today.

There is no charge for the event but the rider's entry fees are used for prizes. All the details and we'll put on even such an amateur event falls to Morrison and he says many times he and his wife have decided "this is definitely the last one."

"But after you see how the kids enjoy it and one comes up after a gymkhana and asks when the next one will be somehow you forget about how much work the last one was," he laughs.

The Morrisons have six children and their home beside the riding area is filled with trophies won through years of riding in horse shows and rodeos.

Darla won her first trophy when she was 4 years old and entered the Shetland pony class in the Magic Valley Western Horse show. Morrison said all his children have loved to ride and two of the daughters were West End day queens at the Twin Falls County Fair.

The Morrison's 40 acres grow mostly hay and pasture, but in addition to these they also "grow" a healthy neighborhood activity center where the "gate is never locked" and anyone who wants to may come and ride.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have been a widower for only ten months, and all I want is to be left alone. I am constantly bothered by widows, divorcees and wives whose husbands don't pay any attention to them. Also, people with the "have-got-a-girl-for-you!" routine. You wouldn't believe the propositions I get.

When I try to bow out politely, they say: "What's the matter, are you some kind of queer?"
Last week a young neighbor from across the street came over with a picture and a story about how lonely she was with her kids in school all day and her husband on the road. Then came the proposition, I finally had to ask her, to leave.

Widower pestered

This morning while taking a shower I heard someone breaking through my front door. It was the lady next door. She said she just happened to see me through my bathroom window, and I looked like maybe I wasn't feeling well so she came over to see if there was anything she could do for me. I had a terrible time getting rid of her. After that, I pulled down my shades and bolted my door. I'm a prisoner in my own house!

How can I get a sign on my front door "Were you invited?" But everyone thinks I mean somebody else.

I am not particularly good-looking. I try not to hurt anyone's feelings, but I don't want anyone pestering me. What should I do?

NO NAME OR ADDRESS

DEAR NO: You've put out a sign, bolted your door, and given me one of the slightest encouragements. All that's left is a watchdog and a barbed wire fence.

DEAR ABBY: I am 49 and going through my menopause. I have had my eyes tested but I can't get any satisfaction from him, so I'm asking you. How can I be absolutely sure I won't get pregnant? (I have three grandchildren!)

My husband is 50, and we're not sex maniacs or anything like that, but we do get together once in a while, and I am living in fear that I'll find myself pregnant with a change-of-life baby. I have told my doctor that, and he said: "Don't worry—women your age seldom get pregnant." Abby, I don't want to take any chances, but my doctor says I don't need to take any precautions.

Is he right? Am I foolish to be concerned? Can you recommend something to ease my mind? NEEDS ADVICE

DEAR NEEDS: You need more than advice. You need another doctor. Even though the chances of your becoming pregnant are small, it's possible I don't blame you for wanting to be absolutely sure. If you don't know another gynecologist, your Planned Parenthood Clinic can give you competent medical advice and recommend the most ideal method of contraception for a woman your age. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: In my work I deal with the public. My supervisor told me that the use of the words "ma'am" and "sir" is not proper—that a "thank you," or a simple "yes" or "no" is sufficient.

He insists that when one uses "ma'am" and "sir" he implies that he is socially beneath the person he is speaking to.

Is my supervisor correct? I don't share his views.

NORTH CAROLINA

DEAR NORTH: I don't share his views either. But customs vary in different parts of the country (for example, in Iowa, where I grew up, "ma'am" and "sir" were used to show respect and had nothing to do with one's social position).

Photographic show scheduled at CSI

TWIN FALLS — The 15th Idaho International Photographic Exhibit will be shown at 8 p.m. May 24 at the College of Southern Idaho mini-auditorium.

The showing will consist of about 500 slides, which were judged as the best of some 2,600 slides making up about 650 entries of four slides each.

Photographers from 44 states and 12 countries have Avark entered the exhibit. Vera Waggoner, Twin Falls Camera Club, said the show is being sponsored by the club and said that for anyone interested in color photography the show is an opportunity to see the work of some of the best photographers in the world.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL HAYNES

Miss Lazaros weds Haynes in TF rites

TWIN FALLS — Elise Lazaros and Michael Haynes were married in an April double ring ceremony at the Episcopal Church with Father Albert Allen officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Lewis Lazaros, Twin Falls, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Marvin M. Haynes, Jerome.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore an empire gown with long, full sleeves with a crystal plated ruffle on the bodice and light pink rosebud trim at the ruffle. Her long veil was of illusion trimmed with Venice lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses, white oleophanis and baby's breath with ribbon streamers and lace.

Novela Lazaros, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Officiant was Kathy Malone.

Randy Williams was best man. Ushers were Danny Bateman and Carl Bartholmew. Carol Barnes was soloist and Mary Howell was musician.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony in the Bishop Rhea Auditorium.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth. Orchid hearts flanked the four tiered, heart shaped wedding cake. The layers were separated with swans and decorated with orchid roses. Bells and doves with a wedding ring topped the cake.

Mrs. Nellie Haynes, grandmother of the bridegroom, and Estie B. Roux, great-grandmother of the bride, were honored guests.

The couple will reside in Mexico, where the bride is employed by Jeebo, Inc.

Graduation changed in Blaine

HAILEY — Blaine County High School graduation dates have been changed from those originally set.

School officials said it was necessary to change the dates of graduation and baccalaureate exercises at Carey and Wood River high schools, from the original schedule because of the difficulty of scheduling speakers.

At Carey High School, baccalaureate services will be at 7:30 p.m. May 26 with Shirl Reay as speaker. Graduation exercises will be at the Carey High School gym at 8 p.m. May 28. Featured speaker will be Dr. Bob Day, former Carey High School principal and now employed by the Idaho Education Association, Boise.

Wood River High School graduation exercises will be at 2 p.m. May 26 of the Wood River High School gym with Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, as featured speaker.

Girl should help swimsuit

(C) Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — Remember the days when a swimsuit was supposed to do something for a girl? Now a girl is expected to do something for a swimsuit.

The so-fits-in double-fabrics that fit like a second skin are the stars of the swim scene today. Their shapes depend on the quality of the figures they drape.

Some are most of the bathing suits engineered like a bridge with suspension and support built in with elastic, stays and padding designed to accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative.

The liberated look is in, which is great for the girl with a frame worth displaying. But it's a disaster for the girl who wants to recouse some of her excess flesh and could use a little camouflage in spots.

Swimsuit designers are playing up the sensuous woman bit by emphasizing slippery jersey fabrics with calculated cling. Most believe in Mies van der Rohe's less-is-more theory and stress simplicity of design and minimum of material.

Bikinis are still very much in evidence in pastels and bright prints as well as solids. And there are more of them with halter tops for the new season.

The one-piece suit is making a strong comeback and many feature deep-plunging necks and cutouts in front and sides. Some of the nostalgic one-piece suits look like they're right out of an Esther Williams or Marilyn Monroe movie. There are strapless mahouts and one-shoulder sarong silhouettes and draped bodices, too.

But any resemblance to the bathing gear of the past is strictly in design. The fluid fabrics used in today's unconstructed suits are far cry from the girde-like styles of a couple decades ago.

Fine Arts facility use planned

Two drama workshops scheduled at college

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Department will offer two drama workshops this summer. The two workshops will run May 27 through June 7, Monday through Friday. The two-hour sessions will be directing from 8:45 a.m. to 10:45 a.m. and survey from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m. Each will earn one and one-half credits.

He said the classes will be oriented for the experienced as well as the beginning director. Materials and activities will deal with common problems in the field, including casting, characterization and staging. Various theatrical forms will be dealt with from the standpoint of the actor as well as the director working with or interested in school, church or professional presentations. The survey of theatrical directing.

experience workshop sessions will be taught by Fran Tanner. They will take a "mini-look" at the high points of the theater's past and its literature. The script will be on the experience of theater history, using films and readings. Both workshops are planned to expand the theatrical awareness of those with a general interest, as well as the in-field participant, whether teacher, coach, performer or audience member.

Car pools slated for area day camp

TWIN FALLS — Jeanna Wright, Camp Fire Girls Day Camp director, said today that car pools will be available to take campers to the day camp.

The day camp will be July 8-12 at Shoshone Falls Park and is open to both Camp Fire members and non-members. The fee will be $6 for members and $7 for non-members. Camp hours are from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., except for the "day-at-camp" when the girls will leave the Twin Falls City Park at 8:30 a.m. The cost of the "day at camp," which is a visit to Camp Tawakani, Camp Fire girls resident camp, is included in the day camp fee. The girls will be transported by bus and will have one meal at the camp, see the facilities and get acquainted with counselors and other staff members. They will return to the park at 6 p.m.

Day camp activities will include singing, hiking, cooking over a camp fire, games, crafts and of course, meeting new friends. It is open to girls in grades one through six.

Mrs. Wright said camperships, to help pay the girls' day camp expenses, are available and girls may also use their "camp stamps." For more information, call Jeanna Wright, 734-4256.

MR. AND MRS. THEO KNIGHT

Theo Knights set open house June 2

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Theo (Ted) R. Knight will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary with an open house June 2.

The event will be from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Twin Falls United Methodist Church. Hosts will be the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Rehwalter, Eden; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene (Gene) L. Knight, Boise, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert (Bob) D. Knight, Everett, Wash.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight were married May 29, 1924, in Maple Vista, Colo. They moved to Twin Falls in June, 1938, where they lived until January, 1940, when they moved to Hazelton. They lived there until February, 1945, when they returned to Twin Falls where they have since lived.

Knight was employed at the Twin Falls Tractor and Implement Co. until his retirement in 1970. He still works for the company on a part-time basis.

The couple has seven granddaughters and four grandsons and eight great-grandchildren. Relatives and friends are invited to attend the reception. The couple requests no gifts.

Discount

TWIN FALLS — Jerry Hillman, Camp Fire Girls field director, said today that a discount is available to girls who register for resident camp by June 1.

Mrs. Hillman said girls who register for a session at Camp Tawakani by June 1 and pay a deposit to hold the opening will receive a $5 discount. She said camperships are available to girls needing help in paying the $35 camp besides the $5 discount.

MR. AND MRS. JIM HUMECKY

Carole Rodman and Jim Humecky wed

TWIN FALLS — Carole Jean Rodman and Jim Humecky were married April 27 in the Idaho Falls LDS Temple with Elder Benjamin Harrison Barras officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Rodman, Rigby, former Twin Falls resident, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davidson, Twin Falls.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Jeanita Haultz, Concord, Calif.

The bride wore a gown with a high-neckline with lace trim, waistline and sleeves. The dress was of tan brocade chiffon with a polyester lining. The bodice was a princess design. The full length skirt was gathered at the waist and had a pleat in the back.

Her wrist-length veil of chiffon was held by a headpiece of lace flowers. She carried a bouquet of red roses, white daisies and baby's breath.

Patricia Rodman, Rigby, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Becky Sje Wright and Kathy Spaulding were flower girls.

Marvin Rollman, brother of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Ricky Jennings and Wally Jensen.

The couple was honored at a reception the same day at the Rigby East Stake Center.

The hall was decorated in a red and white color scheme featuring a garden scene with artificial trees, a white picket fence and lamp posts. A wrought iron cart held gifts.

Mrs. Shirley Wood had charge of the guest book. Kathy Koplin and Mrs. Mary Lou Wright helped in the kitchen. Terri Olson, Sally Brown, Kathy Bayley and Cindy Wood served refreshments. Erroy Hadlock was master of ceremonies.

Following a honeymoon trip to California, the couple resides in Idaho Falls. The bridegroom is employed by the National Reactor Testing Station near Arco.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID WILKES

Miss Jones, Wilkes married in park

TWIN FALLS — Elizabeth Anne Jones and David Bruce Wilkes were married May 4 in ceremonies conducted at Stoshon Falls Park.

Rev. Dr. J. William Jones, the father of the bride, conducted the ceremony which was made up of readings, poetry and songs selected by the couple, before a white archway decorated with an ivy garland and white daisies.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. William Jones of Nampa. The bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Wilkes, Twin Falls.

Escorted by her brother, the bride wore an old-fashioned floor-length wedding gown of white tulle lace accented with a blue velvet ribbon. Her white lace hat was also trimmed with a blue velvet ribbon.

She carried a cascading bouquet of yellow sweetheart roses, blue daisies and baby's breath, intertwined with ivy and blue velvet streamers.

Candis Wilkes, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Karen Kunkel, cousin of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

Ernie Jacobson, Ellipton,

Wash., was best man. Troy Davenport was ring bearer.

Hubert Hendrix was soloist. Randy Davis was instrumentalist.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony.

The bride's table was decorated with blue and yellow. Sprays of flowers from her bouquet decorated the candelabra.

The cake was decorated in a spring theme with pale yellow icing and white daisies. The tiers were separated with cherub pillars. The cake was decorated with a cherub seated in a fountain intertwined with daisy chains.

Serving at the bride's table were Mrs. Bruce Kunkel, Mrs. Don Lambert and Heather Groven. Dianne Wilkes, sister of the bridegroom, registered guests. Mrs. Bruce Kunkel, aunt of the bridegroom, arranged flowers for the ceremony and reception.

The couple is living in Twin Falls.

not afford to ruff it. He found a way. His next play was the device of spades. West did not look like a man who would duck with the ace. Edgar played dummy's jack. It didn't matter. East held all the high spades, won with the queen and led a second diamond.

Edgar won and led a trump. West's 10 lost to dummy's queen. Edgar ruffed a spade, led another trump through poor West and ruffed a third spade with his last trump.

Then he entered dummy with a high club, pulled the last trump while discarding the small diamond and made the last three tricks with his remaining clubs.

Opening lead — 4 ♣

By Orwald & James Jacoby

Edgar Kaplan and Norman Kay have been one of the best pairs in the world for many years. They have never won a world's championship, but name anything else and they've won it. They have several world's championship seconds to their credit.

Their style reflects smooth bidding plus careful, accurate play. Thus, anyone should reach the heart slam with their cards, but their bidding is just about the nicest way to get there. Edgar won the diamond lead and noted that the slam would be a cinch unless all four trumps showed up in one hand. He couldn't do anything. If East held all four. Therefore, he laid down his king of trumps at trick two and found out that West held all four trumps.

He could pick up West's trump, but if he did that he had to find a way to get rid of his small diamond. He could

MR. AND MRS. DAVID B. BUTLER

Carolyn Serr weds Butler at Wendell

WENDELL — Carolyn Ann Serr and David B. Butler were married April 29 at the Christ Lutheran Church, Wendell. The 8 p.m. double-ring ceremony, baskets of pink gladioli and blue baby's breath accented with blue bows decorated the chapel. White tapers were placed on the altar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Serr, Wendell. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. K. Duane Butler, Gooding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white satin with a nylon net overskirt. The dress had long sleeves of net, unthru to wide cuffs and a high neckline with a net insert. A ruffle of lace joined the insert to the fitted bodice.

The skirt was decorated with a scalloped lace ruffle. The front of the skirt and long chapel train were edged with a net ruffle. The gown was worn by the mother of the bride at her wedding nearly 24 years ago.

Her veil of bridal illusion was held by a headpiece of satin with a lace overlay. She carried a bouquet of one dozen pink-mixture roses with feathered white carnations, blue baby's breath and white net tied with white satin streamers.

She carried a white satin and lace covered Bible used by her mother at her wedding.

Kathryn Serr, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Ken Becker, Gooding, was best man. Ushers were Kurt Serr, brother of the bride, and Jim Butler, brother of the bridegroom.

Rita Jean Ruhter, Filer, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Karl Serr, brother of the bride, was candlelighter.

Dean Ruhter, Filer, uncle of the bride, and Jeff Ruhter, Filer, cousin of the bride, were vocal soloists. Diana Ruhter, Filer, cousin of the bride, was organist and accompanist.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony at the church fellowship hall.
