Jerome murder trial set

JEROME — A date has been set for the murder trial of Charles E. Heughins, 46, Jerome. Fifth District Judge James M. Cunningham set Aug. 13 as the trial date for Heughins, who is charged with three counts of first degree murder in the alleged shotgun deaths of his estranged wife, Clara Irene Heughins, 40; her sister, Joy Lauraine Nelms, 50, and her father Cecil Moore, 71. The alleged triple murder occurred on the morning of April 22 at the Moore home in Jerome.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Delano DeFreeze, brother of slain Symbionese Liberation Army leader Donald DeFreeze, has asked revolutionaries from throughout the U.S. to attend the latter's funeral here Thursday. DeFreeze said his family is taking the death "beautifully" and the SLA members who died in last week's shootout in California died for a cause. He said he suspected his telephone has been tapped by the FBI and that strain of recent events had left him unable to work.

If anything is relevant and material, it's going to be produced by the United States," Gesell remarked during his third day of oral arguments on pre-trial motions.

Nixon rejects 2 subpoenas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today refused to comply with two House Judiciary Committee subpoenas for tapes and documents regarding his role in Watergate. Nixon made his defiance of the subpoenas known in a personal letter to Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., who is conducting the committee's inquiry into whether Nixon's actions warrant his impeachment. James D. St. Clair, Nixon's Watergate lawyer, informed reporters of the President's decision but both he and Rodino declined to make Nixon's letter to the House public for the time being. St. Clair was asked by reporters whether Nixon's response to the subpoenas was negative. "I think that is a fair characterization," he said. St. Clair said the committee, emerging from a closed session, said Rodino had informed the panel that Nixon had turned down the demand for materials. A committee member said James D. St. Clair, Nixon's chief attorney, also turned down a committee request for 58 tapes related to campaign contributions from International Telephone and Telegraph (ITT) and milk producers. St. Clair, who attended another closed session of the committee, said the panel would be given a transcript of part of an April 4, 1972, conversation dealing with the ITT contribution. The partial version apparently would omit a conversation between Nixon, former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman and then Attorney General John N. Mitchell in which plans for spying on the Democrats might have been discussed. The White House decision to refuse the subpoenas appeared "certain to erode still further the President's support in the committee, jarred Tuesday by the testimony of a March 21, 1972 tape in which he discussed E. Howard Hunt's demand for hush money,

Henry still seeks Golan withdrawal

DAMASCUS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger sought a break through tonight to complete the agreement on military disengagement between Syria and Israel but he indicated he would fly home this weekend even without it. Kissinger conferred two and one-half hours in Jerusalem with Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir and then flew his ninth shuttle to Damascus to talk with Syrian President Hafez Assad for the third straight day. A high American official about his plans said Kissinger was seeking a breakthrough on several of the still-pending issues — a thinning out of forces, a buffer zone, a role for the United Nations, and exchange of war prisoners. He declined to identify the one he said was most difficult, but it may be a thinning out of troops on both sides of the demarcation line which has already been agreed. For the Syrians, thinning-out too far might weaken the defenses of Damascus. The official said Kissinger doubted there could be a cease-fire unless he gets complete agreement on this trip. After meeting Mrs. Meir, Kissinger said publicly that he expected to go home this weekend, and the high official about his plans said he wanted to start Friday or Saturday. At the same time, he left the door slightly ajar that Kissinger could stay another day if complete agreement depended upon it. Kissinger refused to predict the exact day of his departure.

Shells fire village

UNITED PRESS International Syria said one of its intensive artillery batteries set fire to an Israeli settlement on the Golan Heights today, causing destruction and fires which are still burning. It was the first Israeli settlement reported hit in the 72-day-old war of attrition. Israel heightened its anti-infiltration alert on the Lebanese frontier today and sent reinforced patrols into the streets of Jerusalem to guard against Arab guerrilla attack. One 380-student high school in East Jerusalem was ordered shut at noon for what one teacher described as "a security alert."

Troops, mechanized patrols and helicopters prowled the northern front to guard against infiltrating guerrillas bent on carrying out another raid like the one at Maslout a week ago.

Evelyn Campbell defeated Joe Loper, 61 to 29 in Zone 1, while in Zone 2, new comer Grant Zollinger polled 194 votes over 67 for incumbent Fred Matz. Jim Campbell is the new trustee in Zone 4, defeating George Serr by 22 to 56. Bill Fleming unseated Frank Orth, by a vote of 29 to 26 in Zone 5. School administration officials said there had been no issues raised previous to the election. Voters recently approved by 74 per cent a $900,000 bond issue to construct a physical education complex and vocational education building.

TF suspect arraigned in bed

TWIN FALLS — Jerome Cree, 43, was arraigned in his room at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital late Tuesday on first degree murder charges. He is charged with the death of Jerry Parrott, 39, Twin Falls, in a house fire at 1041 Second Ave. W. early Saturday morning. Magistrate Court Judge Daniel Meehl went to the hospital room for the arraignment. Cree is also charged with two counts of attempted murder. Judge Meehl said Cree requested the services of a public defender but may be entitled to legal services through the Indian Council as he is an Indian. An investigation is being made by police who believe Cree was held in lieu of $30,000 bond on all three counts. Meehl said no preliminary hearing has been requested, pending legal counsel for Cree, but a preliminary hearing will be scheduled within the next 10 days to insure no delay in his court appearances in the event a preliminary is requested. Cree is charged with setting fire with gasoline in the home of Pearl Tipton early Saturday morning. Parrott died in the fire and Mrs. Tipton escaped the building unharmed. Priscilla Machipiness, 29, Twin Falls, killed her own 21-month-old baby in the fire, in addition to charges of first degree murder in the death of Parrott. Cree is charged with the attempted murder of Mrs. Tipton and Mrs. Machipiness. Mrs. Machipiness is listed in serious condition in the hospital and Cree is reported in fair condition. He suffered burns about the legs and lower body during the fire.

Fish market glut cuts MV trout expansion

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

BUHL — A national fish market glut has caused Magic Valley's biggest trout producer to drastically curb its expansion program. Clear Springs Trout Co., Buhl, has at least temporarily halted its farm pond program which produced about three million pounds of fish annually, according to Larry Cope, the company's general manager. He expects the ponds to be back in production within a year. But, operation of the new Box Canyon hatchery, will more than offset the curbing. Clear Springs will grow more trout this year than it has before, he said. Previously Clear Springs has paid farmers to install ponds on their land and to feed fish. The company supplied the fish and the feed and paid the farmers 10 cents for every pond of gain. Cope said Clear Springs had planned to keep the program going, but a poor fish market has forced the company to change course. Sales of the nation's seafood industry, including fresh water fish producers, are down 28 per cent this year, Cope said. National supplies of fish are up 46 per cent, he added. Meanwhile, fish is selling at $110 per ton and recently has been as high as $50 per ton, up from $120 a ton last year. Clear Springs grows roughly five million pounds of fish each year, produces between 30 and 60 per cent of all the trout grown in the Magic Valley, Cope said. Magic Valley, in turn, grows about 90 per cent of all the trout marketed nationally, he said. Low demand during Lent was the first strong indicator of a poor rainbow trout market, Cope said. He said Clear Springs sells trout at about $1.40 a pound to stores.

With beef prices dropping somewhat and consumers concerned about high prices, the trout did not sell so well, he said. Soan, however, trout may be less expensive to raise: Cope said "with bean prices dropping and reappearance of anchovies off Peru, we're hoping we'll get relief on our feed costs." Soybean meal and anchovies are primary ingredients in trout feed. Ken Ellis, head of Clear Springs' farm pond program said about 50 farmers with about 200 ponds were involved with the program. Growing about 9 inch fish to 12 or 13 inches, the ponds produced about 2.75 million pounds of trout yearly, meaning a $275,000 gross income for the 50 growers. "It's going to hurt the economy of the area," Ellis said. But, he said, most of the growers used the ponds to supplement farming income.

Buhl attorney Robert Weaver said he will be hurt. He said he recently put in four ponds at $5,500 each and has only been able to harvest one 80,000 pound or 46,000 crop of fish. "You get a good return on your investment if you can keep your pond supplied with trout," he said. Another trout company is growing at a rapid pace. According to Thousand Springs Trout Farms assistant production manager Mike Fennen, that firm is expanding its production about 25 per cent this year. Fennen attributed the company's ability to expand to a highly aggressive sales program. While Thousand Springs' trout are the highest priced in the area, Fennen said. Clear Springs in the past and up to today has not had the sales department that Thousand Springs has had," Fennen said.

AF dam official slaps 'blackmail'

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News Writer GOODING — "We're through giving. Now we're going to shoot hard ball," said Wagner, an American Falls Reservoir District official.

Wagner's slap was aimed at federal and state agencies which are "blackmailing" plans to construct a new American Falls dam.

He voiced the challenge in an address Tuesday before the Gooding Chamber of Commerce in its monthly meeting at the Lincoln Inn.

Executive director of the reservoir district, Wagner said the Idaho Fish and Game Department, the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service and the Environmental Protection Agency are the chief culprits because of their environmental demands.

He said piers for the dam bridge have been built and work is to start soon on the fill for the roadway to the bridge.

"There is no major move to be made until the blackmailers are satisfied."

One of the points of contention is the forebay on the east side of the reservoir. It is considered a good fishing location. The reservoir district has offered $325,000 to the State Fish and Game Department as compensation for these fishing facilities, but the agency wants more than $500,000, Wagner said.

He accused the agency head, Joe Grelecke, with "talking out of both sides of his mouth."

The EPA is demanding six parts per million (ppm) of dissolved oxygen or 50 per cent saturation, whichever is higher. In water below the new dam, Wagner said the district is unable to reach the 90 per cent level, and is asking that the 8 ppm be considered acceptable. This will be brought up at a hearing scheduled May 29 at Burley.

The Bureau of Reclamation, which has operated the dam for 47 years, has allowed the reservoir to "become a sewer," the official said. Raw sewage from cities and processing plants has been dumped into the Snake River for many years and has increased algae until the oxygen count is unacceptable, he charged.

There is good fishing for seven or eight miles below the dam, Wagner said, but the fish and game department "doesn't publicize that."

Every year the construction of the dam is delayed, the cost increases 2.5 million, he said. He urged chamber members to write Gov. Cecil Andrus and legislators fighting the reservoir district in its fight against the government regulations.

One of the moves the reservoir district officials plan to make to fight back is what they consider unreasonable attitudes of wildlife interests is to urge all farmers on the Minidoka project and across southern Idaho to post their farms with no trespassing signs to eliminate hunters.

Discussing the seriousness of the situation, Wagner said the dam is now open to 34 per cent of normal capacity because of continuing deterioration. He told chamber members, "Your businesses won't be worth a plug nickel if there is no water to this tract."

Phil Davies, chamber president, said the group is "100 per cent" behind the reservoir district in its attempt to begin construction of the new dam this fall.

National holiday changes confusing

Idaho Sen. James McClure is co-sponsoring a bill to restore the national observance of Veterans Day to Nov. 11.

That's the traditional date for the observance, which was originally Armistice Day — the day when World War I ended in November, 1918.

A few years ago, Veterans Day was shifted to the fourth Monday in October, along with some other changes in holidays which created a series of long weekends throughout the year.

Pressure to restore Veterans Day to its original place on the calendar has cropped up from time to time. Most of it has had the backing of veterans' and patriotic organizations.

We're not opposed to long weekends and certainly favor commemorating important events in United States' history. But perhaps the twin should be separated and the events marked on their anniversaries.

It seems that this nation has enough of a problem in keeping its history and traditions alive without constantly juggling holidays, confusing the calendar and the populace.

Perhaps one of these times, the dates for commemorating historic events will be fixed and then left alone long enough that Americans will know what to celebrate when — and when they can look forward to a long weekend without worrying which holiday it used to be.

Process starts

For weeks a segment of the anti-Nixon forces has resembled a Roman mob roaring in the Coliseum for more Christians to be thrown to the lions.

To their credit, some semblance of traditional American fair play has been restored by top Democratic leadership in the Congress urging that the orderly legal processes of the Constitution be followed in the present political crisis.

Rumors of resignation and "urgings" of that step have been taken frequently recently. It even went so far that Americans For Democratic Action were urging that in case of resignation, the President be granted the President against prosecution in the courts.

The impeachment process, as outlined in the Constitution, provides for no punishment, but merely removal from office. Prosecution could follow in criminal proceedings.

Senator Byrd of West Virginia, followed closely by Mike Mansfield of Montana and then Speaker Carl Albert of the House, pointed the way by urging that the President be impeached by further ouster for resignation; or resignation itself, even though the President has adamantly denied any such intention on many occasions.

Unlike many foreign systems, the American plan of government does not provide for changing the head of the executive branch on the basis of a no-confidence vote. It is important that no precedent be set which might change our procedures in that direction.

The House Judiciary Committee is now considering a recommendation to report. It will be several weeks, or even months, before it has concluded its deliberations and made a decision.

Shriill screams for ill-considered action at this time is no less than unjust and possibly prejudicial since the ordained legal process has begun.

The judiciary committee, in the beginning of its deliberations, still has to determine the basis on which it will form and make its report to the House.

The question of strict construction versus liberal interpretation of the Constitution has to be resolved. Will the President be charged only with one of the charges specified or will it be broader than he might be able to handle?

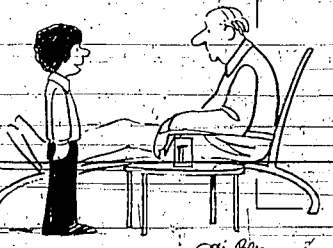

These are very important questions. They will affect our concept of government as long as the nation will last in its present form.

We think it time that the seers, and prophets and Jeremiahs of disaster spent a little time in silent meditation. Continuance of their venomous attacks which seek to ret rid Richard Nixon's by any means short of a fair trial, makes their devotion to the Constitution somewhat suspect.

This may not satisfy the Waldies and Abzugs and Drains, but we think it will be approved by the people.

Our prescribed legal process for coping with the situation, which is now pretty well solidified, has begun.

Little evidence Nixon changing 'Gate tactics

(C) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — In his revealing interview with James J. Kilpatrick of the Washington Star-News, President Nixon gave three main reasons against his resignation or impeachment.

First, it would be "wrong." For, he added, "I am not guilty of any offense under the Constitution that is called 'an impeachable offense.'"

Second, it would weaken future presidents by making it more difficult for them to make the tough decisions. "Every president in the future would be constantly poring over the polls and looking over his shoulder toward Capitol Hill."

Third — the key point, he added — "The United States holds the key to whether peace survives and whether freedom survives. I have to be here, and I intend to be here. This is not an overly modest appraisal. For, on point one, he presumes to pass judgment on his own case before the jury has heard all the evidence. On point two, he presents himself as the protector of the presidency, which his administration has weakened. And on point three, he seems to think he is the main hope of peace and freedom in the world.

This was the theme of Louis XV: "After me the deluge." There is obviously something tonsy-turvy in all this, considering the deluge Nixon has already created. For the hope of peace and freedom in the world lies with a united America, not with a divided nation under a President who has lost the trust of a majority of the people.

Presumably, he means by this that there is now a chance to make some progress toward a more stable world order, (1) while Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-Lai are still in power in China; (2) while Brezhnev is showing some interest in nuclear arms control in the Soviet Union; (3) while Sadat and Arafat are a moderating influence in the Middle East; and (4) while Europe is staggering toward some kind of common purpose.

There is something to be said for this argument. This is indeed a time of change and opportunities for compromise; but it does not follow that disaster will overwhelm the human race if Nixon doesn't "seize the moment."

Foreign policy, the President told Kilpatrick, is no longer made by foreign ministers. It is made by heads of state. This will be news to Herod the pillboxer, and the Queen of England.

And the remarkable thing about all this is that Nixon really believes he has not committed a crime, believes he is saving the presidency, peace and freedom, and believes he can do all this and have an impeachable trial too.

Of course it was assumptions like these that led him into such deep trouble in the first place. He was going to run things his way with his private gang, and no nonsense from the Congress or the press or the tabloid.

And there is little evidence that he has changed his tactics, even now. He is still fiddling with the tapes and still misjudging public reaction. Still talking endlessly, even after the transcripts blew his cover, and still thinking he can regain the confidence of the country, which is inconceivable, even if he is not impeached and convicted.

White House makes progress with probe strategy

WASHINGTON — Three weeks ago, just before the White House transcripts were released, President Nixon and his inner circle decided at the last moment to eliminate from the Sept. 16, 1972, conversations his threats against the Washington Post.

For once, Nixon was acting neither out of impulse nor miscalculation. Rather, drastic censorship was part of an attempt to limit impeachment proceedings to the narrow question of criminal complicity in the Watergate cover-up.

What's more, this strategy may be inadvertently aided by the House Judiciary Committee's decision to first take evidence on the cover-up.

In response, the committee is splitting after one week of hearing evidence. Most Democrats and some Republicans contend a broad picture of the President's activity is essential to weigh impeachment. But hard-core Republicans echo the White House line, arguing the inquiry should begin and end with the "Watergate" cover-up.

Actually, the White House has always been most concerned for non-Watergate reasons about the Sept. 15 meeting between Nixon and John W. Dean III, then his counsel. Nixon has been extremely worried about his reprisal talk on Sept. 15.

EVANS & NOVAK

Most of those threats were retained in the Sept. 15 transcript as originally prepared for public release. But a last-minute decision before the transcripts went to the nation April 30 eliminated Nixon's threat that the Washington Post would have "damnable, damnable problems" renewing its television station licenses and that "we are going to fix" the Post's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams.

Superficially, the strategy backfired. When the deleted remarks leaked, the impression of White House duplicity was reinforced. Disclosure of presidential threats prompted impeachment investigators to search for White House follow-up challenging television station licenses.

Nevertheless, the strategy is having its desired effect — with many committee Republicans. By cutting out the threat against the Post, Nixon made his point that it is irrelevant.

Some committee members also feel White House strategy has been unintentionally advanced by committee counsel John Dean's plan for presenting evidence. Instead of beginning with peripheral issues such as the ITT affair or the milk fund and working toward the Watergate climax, he started with presidential involvement in the cover-up. If no criminal liability by Nixon can be proved here, these Congressmen believe, Dean will seem picaresque when he turns to ITT or the milk fund.

On balance then, Nixon's Republican defenders on the committee were cheered by the opening week of listening to tapes.

The committee majority, including a few liberals, believes Congress must seriously ponder a President threatening governmental force against private corporations and citizens.

It also is more insistent than ever that Congress get not just transcripts but tapes, to discover deleted material.

But the White House never has hoped for more than a substantial minority on the liberal-loaded Judiciary Committee.

Even if inadequate to block impeachment on the House floor, a sizeable minority would make Senate conviction less likely. The White House made progress last week.

Ransom theory falters

Reg Murphy, the editor of The Atlanta Constitution, has lines on his face he didn't have a year ago.

So would you and I have if we had spent most of 50 consecutive hours gagged in the trunk of a car breathing a blend of carbon monoxide and fetid air, and being driven hither and yon by a kidnapper who wondered whether he should take his pistol back to the trunk and fire off a shot at the temple.

Murphy's general views on kidnapping are worth more than people's own would think. And although one likes to believe that the age is not coming when we will be carrying cards in our wallets entitled: "Helpful Hints in Case You Are Kidnapped: Mutual of Omaha's Special Behavior Guide," it pays to listen.

For instance, on a pending matter, Murphy is committed. He opposes legislation that would make it a felony to submit to the demands of the kidnapper. The morality of this law is totally correct, and the theory of it is seductive. Crime should not pay, and therefore those who might be tempted to pay criminals should be prohibited from doing so. But there is as good an example as any of the collapse of theory up against experience.

In point of fact, the chances are worth more than people's own would think, that a parent, or even an employer, will put up money rather than hazard the life of a member of the family or an employee. It is true that in doing so one encourages the practice of kidnapping. But in failing to do so one increases the chances of harm to an immediately identifiable victim. It is, simply, a dilemma.

Now it is Murphy's point that if the pending bill becomes law the result will be to cease to coordinate these payments with the police. And this happens, then the chances of identifying the criminal (and incidentally retrieving the money) are drastically reduced. And here is where the real encouragement to the criminal comes in. As the practice of kidnapping succeeds, so will the profession grow.

As things now stand, Murphy points out, kidnappers with one or two extraordinary exceptions — for instance the first guy who bailed out over the Rockies using a parachute — have not got away with it. This is because the technology of crime detection has greatly advanced since the days when Lindbergh's kidnapper could snatch up the money and escape, however briefly, without a trace.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

Nowadays you can — for instance — impregnate the satchel with the money in it with an essence that will catch the nostrils of a police ruler miles away. Nowadays you have helicopters that have infra-red eyes that can spot and follow an automobile which has been invisibly dosed with a substance as irremovable as Macbeth's stain.

It is Murphy's point that all these instruments are lost to the victim if the law passes which would require the police to say over the telephone: "Sorry, sir; we cannot connive in any way with you in the paying of ransom. The law would make us accomplices in the commission of a felony."

The distinction to be drawn, surely, is between that which an individual will almost certainly do, which the state cannot prevent him from doing; and that which a state can prevent itself from doing. The state has control over its emotions — or should have.

Harriman speaks out for presidential leadership

(C) Chicago Daily News WASHINGTON — The Democratic leaders stood in labyrinthian array, clucking pliously about the horrors of resignation.

Their words creagled with sanctimony. If President Nixon were forced out of office, they solemnly suggested, the nation would be forever scarred and future chief executives would be no more secure than say, a light-fingered tribal chieftan.

The Republicans calling for Nixon to hit the road were simply afraid of defeat — in the November elections, the Democrats declaimed. The sporting thing to do, these gim-lipped strict constructionists said, was to let the Constitution work its will. The impeachment process was the honorable course to take. The way staked out by the founding fathers in their infinite wisdom.

"Unspoken in all this was a creeping suspicion that the Democrats will like it just fine if Nixon is still squirming his way through the Watergate quagmire come November.

PETER LISAGOR

It took a Democrat beyond ambition to state the obvious, namely that the system has been despoiled by mean-spirited sharpies with the political vision of a two-bit ward heeler. The Democrats, Averil Harriman, 73, and indeluctable, was honored here the other night for all the history he made under Roosevelt, Truman, Kennedy and Johnson. At a dinner of warm tributes and reminiscences by Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., Margaret Truman Dandley, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Landa Johnson Bobb, Harriman got in a few jabs about the obligations of public service.

He recalled that Roosevelt once said, "The presidency is not merely an administrative office. It is primarily a place for moral leadership."

Coming from Harriman, the quotation had the sweet ring of truth to it. And the assembled Democrats — including several of the same leaders who had danced around the moral issue earlier in the week, applauded their guest of honor. "It's interesting that that wasn't an out-of-the-way thing to say in those days," Harriman added on his own.

Jokes were made about Harriman's inadequacies as a politician, although he did manage to win a term as governor of New York. And a very soul or two indulged a jest that a man with several million in the bank could afford a loftier moral view of government. But there was no laughter when the brightly octogenarian talked of ideals and integrity and a "spirit that has to come back into our lives." Some detected a troubled silence in the hall, despite bursts of applause.

As remote as it may seem, somehow Harriman's words were more real than the struggle-fidden, defensive, self-pitying environment of the Nixon-White House.

"In this kind of environment, everything and everybody becomes a bit corrupted, including the language."

The President's resignation probably would be unwelcome, leading to a generous division in an already volatile society. But it could turn out to be a truly moral act, and that prospect seems beyond the grasp of the Democratic leaders in Congress.

Age overtaking Soviet Navy, may reduce fleet size, US studies indicate

(4) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Old age is overtaking the ships of the Soviet navy and should reduce their number considerably by the end of the decade, a Defense Department study has concluded.
 The study, which provides a new and different perspective on the Soviet naval threat, has become a key factor in a debate between the Defense Department and the Navy over whether the naval balance is shifting against the United States.
 In defending a multibillion-dollar ship construction program, leading admirals have tended to project a picture of a growing, more modern Soviet navy, challenging control of the seas by the United States.

 In his annual summary of the U.S. military posture, for example, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told Congress, "The Soviet naval capabilities are becoming more formidable every year." Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., the chief of naval operations, went a step further in a recent interview by flatly stating that "the lines have crossed" and the U.S. navy could no longer control the sea lanes in time of war.

 Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger has openly deplored what he describes as "alarmist" views of the Soviet naval threat. His position is that the Soviet navy is no larger than it was in 1958 and is getting older while the US fleet is getting younger and beginning to expand.
 Schlesinger's position is based in large measure on a study prepared by the office of program analysis and evaluation in the Defense Department.

 The study reaches the over-all conclusion that after a major warship construction program in the 1950's, the Soviet navy now faces the problem of obsolescence, that will force the retirement of older ships — and a consequent decrease in the size of the Soviet fleet.
 In contrast, according to the study, the U.S. Navy began its major post-World War II ship construction program several years later and can not look forward to a younger and larger fleet than that of the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union began its major ship-building program before the United States largely because of a need to replace the relatively small, poorly equipped fleet it had at the end of World War II.
 Large ship construction programs during the 1950's increased the size of the Soviet fleet from about 220 major seagoing ships to about 700 by the late 1950's. This fleet was relatively younger than the U.S. fleet, which was composed largely of ships begun in the final stage of World War II.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Fissures, hemorrhoids defined

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
 Dear Dr. Thosteson: How can a fissure be cured, with or without an operation? What causes a fissure?
 Must a rectum be closed because of such a condition, whether a fissure or hemorrhoids? When rectum is operated for either fissure or hemorrhoids, how long generally speaking does it take to heal?
 Under these conditions should the patient eat anything or be on a bland diet? Is there a medicine for such trouble? Will the trouble return? — E.W.
 That's a handful of questions! An anal fissure is a split in the surface membrane of the anus, and when one occurs, it usually becomes infected, resulting in bleeding and a discharge. And pain. There is no medicine that will cure a fissure. Cure is achieved by surgical removal of the affected tissue, and letting the healthy tissue heal together. This takes about 10 days or so. No, the rectum is not closed for that or for hemorrhoids. After surgery a diet with plenty of bulk usually is recommended, the purpose being to promote bowel action and thus to avoid adhesions. A bulk-producing medication may be used as well for the same purpose. With good bowel habits, a fissure is not likely to recur — but it can recur if stool material is hard. So learn to keep the stool soft, and avoid straining in the bathroom. Removal of hemorrhoids takes about the same time for recovery, as correction of a fissure, and the dietary considerations are similar. Again, there is no medicine that will cure hemorrhoids, although in mild cases medications can promote the patient's comfort. A hemorrhoid is a varicose vein, and such a vein, once removed, cannot recur. That does not mean, however, that other veins cannot become varicose. Avoiding recurrence requires the same precautions as for avoiding another fissure.

 Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been applying an ointment to my face nightly which contains 5 per cent red mercuric oxide. Could this be harmful in any way to my skin? — G.H.
 You leave me in the dark as to why you are using the ointment, but I hope you are doing it under a physician's supervision. It is potentially dangerous because mercury can be absorbed through the skin — although it takes considerable use for this to reach a dangerous amount.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Mental Health Association has compiled a social services directory for the Magic Valley region.

The directory, which includes information about residential facilities, location and criteria for all related services in Region V, was published under the direction of Mrs. Bryan Harris Sr., Hansen, board member.

The original material was compiled by the South Central Idaho Mental Health Inc., staff hired to write the grant for funding for comprehensive mental health services for the area, which has been approved, but not yet funded.

Copies will be distributed through the Community Action Agency, library, chamber of commerce, Newcomers club and other groups interested.

Mrs. Harris told association board members Monday night at a meeting at her home.

Anyone interested in obtaining free copies of the directory may contact Mrs. Harris at 423-5045, Hansen.

The Antique Festival Theatre benefit performance, scheduled for Aug. 21 at the College of Southern Idaho Arts Auditorium, will be held again this year, according to Lotus Schumaker, Past president, this year the theatre group will present "Rip Van Winkle" and proceeds from the performance will be used for mental health association projects.

Mrs. Harris was appointed to act as treasurer until a permanent one can be selected. The post was left vacant when Debbie Kraus moved to Boise recently.

Sue Kiang, membership chairman, reported on the successful membership dinner April 29 when Dr. James Biese, Boise, administrator of the Department of Environmental and Community Services, was the speaker.

Lenora Smith, publicity chairman, was authorized to attend a citizen participation workshop June 24 at the Rodeway Inn in Boise, sponsored by the Idaho Mental Health Association. This event is primarily for mental health advisory board members and there will be resource persons present from Seattle and Berkeley.

Tracy Bailey, local VISTA worker, reported a training meeting is scheduled June 1 at the DECS Clinical Services office to train persons to help with returning mental health patients under the "Community Friends" project.

Tony McNew, DECS official, will train the volunteer participants in the program.

The county mental health association will hold the next meeting at Miss Bailey's home, 309 1/2 Third Ave. N., Twin Falls, June 21.

FILER & FILLMORE — TWIN FALLS

Station start slated

BUHL — The new FM radio station KMTW has a target date of June 15 to begin broadcasting. Board members of the station were told Monday afternoon.

Three representatives of the new 100,000 watt stereo radio station spoke at the group's weekly luncheon meeting at the R and R Cafe. They included John Carlson, program director, and Wayne Schmitts, KMTW area representative.

The new station is located one mile west and seventh-nights of a mile south of Twin Falls and will have the largest wattage of any station in the state, Carlson said.

Both protests filed against the new station have been denied by the Federal Communications Commission. He said. They were filed by KART, Jerome station, and by KMTV television station, Twin Falls, protesting the call letters.

Dick Tulinga is president of the corporation which owns the new station and Mark Whitesides is sales manager. The new station will be primarily an entertainment station, with five minutes of news planned every hour, the speaker said.

The independent station has been allocated 96.6 kilocycles. The men were introduced by Don Hall, program chairman.

Gooding growth reported

GOODING — The city of Gooding is growing and residential construction and school enrollment both are up, Gooding City Council members heard Monday night.

The data was included in a comprehensive report on development and land use for the city presented by Mrs. Pat Klingler, chairman of the city planning and zoning commission.

She said the population of the city in the 1970 census was 2,599 and the trend is toward increase since the last census.

She said the economy is basically agricultural and people are settling here for retirement.

Bids were opened on a new police car for the Gooding police department with the contract awarded to Rice Motor Co., whose bid of $3,861.14 was low. City Clerk George Silva said other bids were received from Harbaugh-Motter Co. for $4,200 and three bids from Gooding Ford, lowest of which was $4,137.23.

The new car, which is expected to be delivered in from 30 to 45 days, will make two for the department, Silva said.

University selection okay asked

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — The University of Idaho will ask its board of regents to approve the selection of Dr. Robert Ferguson as new dean of the College of Engineering at the board's June meeting.

Ferguson, professor of chemical engineering, is currently an assistant at the Escuela Politecnica Nacional in Quito, Ecuador.

He has served as chairman of the Department of Chemical Engineering since 1965.

March blackmail review jars Nixon supporters

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's support on the House Judiciary Committee has been jarred by the playing of the March 21, 1973, tape in which he discussed Edward Hunt's demand for blackmail payments.

Nixon's sharpest critics on the impeachment panel said the tape convinced them he had ordered the payment with the words "Jesus Christ, get it!"

Even Nixon's supporters were less prepared earlier to see the conversation in a favorable or neutral light. But one Nixon loyalist said the tape exonerated the President and urged him to broadcast it to the nation.

"Today was a bad day for the President," said Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., usually a Nixon supporter, after emerging from the closed session at which members listened to the one hour and 43 minute tape. "But the evidence isn't in yet," Wiggins said.

Today the committee returns to examining the events of March 21 at its session, and it expected to receive from James D. St. Clair, Nixon's watergate lawyer:

Nixon's response to last week's two subpoenas for 11 more watergate tapes and for entries from Nixon's official diaries.

A reply to the panel's request for 60 tapes on whether campaign contributions from ITT and the dairy industry bought political favors. A refusal to volunteer those tapes is sure to produce yet another subpoena — the committee's fifth.

And an explanation of why Nixon furnished only a three-page transcript of his subpoenaed March 17, 1973, conversation with John W. Dean III when Nixon himself reveals — on a later tape which came into the panel's hands from special prosecutor Leon Jaworski — that the March 17 discussion was 45 minutes long and went into Watergate in detail.

The significance of that discovery is that it puts in dispute Nixon's repeated assertions that not until March 21 did he learn the full details of his administration's involvement in the Watergate coverup.

But the later tape, of June 4, 1973, shows that Nixon discussed "the possible involvement of White House personnel" four days earlier than March 21, Chairman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., D-N.J., said in a written statement.

After hearing the March 21 tape, Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., said it showed Nixon issued a "direct order" to Dean to meet Hunt's demands. "I don't think investigators have established that Hunt was paid $75,000 within hours of that conversation."

Nixon has contended he was merely drawing Dean out in that conversation, playing devil's advocate to learn the facts.

Busing rejected

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston voters in a nonbinding election Tuesday rejected the idea of compulsory busing to achieve racial balance. The 12-17 per cent turnout was the lowest in the city's history.

Election Commissioner William McDermott said the final vote was 30,789 to 2,282 against the proposal. He suggested that Gov. Francis W. Sargent's recent proposal to substitute a voluntary desegregation plan had some effect on the turnout.

Wallace sets pace in preference poll

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Gov. George C. Wallace has been running for "chief" of President Nixon and Sen. George McGovern in a presidential preference poll conducted by "Wallace's" campaign coordinators, his staff said Tuesday.

Joe Azbell, communications director for Wallace's national campaign organization, said the support for Wallace has been picking up so fast during the past three months that he sees great things ahead in 1976.

"Right now he's fantastically up," Azbell said. "Based on the last 90 days... I am convinced beyond a shadow of a doubt that if he were the nominee of the party in 1976 he could win."

Azbell said the purpose of the questionnaire sent out to various segments of the population nationally was to isolate where Wallace was strongest and assemble the names of Wallace supporters by zip codes so they could be called if Wallace decides to run for president again.

Freedom pledged

LISBON (UPI) — Portugal promised today to grant independence to its African territories, possibly ending the reign of the world's last great colonial power by next year.

Antonio de Almeida Santos, Lisbon's new overseas minister, made the announcement and publicly committed the infant Portuguese government for the first time to giving the colonies black majority rule.

Portugal's unsuccessful 13-year war to suppress black liberation movements in Africa was a key factor in the military revolt last month that toppled the right-wing dictatorship of Premier Marcello Caetano.

KC prisoners free guards

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Three guards were overpowered and held hostage for two hours Tuesday night by rebellious prisoners in the Jackson County Jail at the downtown courthouse.

The guards were released unharmed on county executive George Lehr's acceptance of the prisoners' demand for a news conference.

The inmates threatened to kill the guards if police and sheriff's deputies "moved in" to quell the disturbance.

Subpoena power upheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee's Special Watergate Investigator Leon Jaworski said today he has the authority to subpoena President Nixon for information.

But in adopting 13 to 1 a resolution "opining" that Jaworski should not have the authority to subpoena President Nixon for information, the committee deleted a proposed second paragraph which would have said Nixon must obey such subpoenas.

And the committee voted down to 5 a proposal by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to hold public hearings in which Jaworski and presidential lawyer James D. St. Clair would debate how far the prosecutor's powers extend.

With those actions, the committee ducked the brunt of a potentially explosive issue.

Jaworski said the issue this week when he formally complained to the committee that Nixon was trying to dictate what evidence Jaworski could use and trying to deny his right to subpoena information from the President.

In a letter to the committee Monday, Jaworski said Nixon's stand violated assurances made to him when he took on his job that he would have the right to see the President for information. That letter prompted an emergency closed-door session of the committee Tuesday.

What emerged was a resolution commending Jaworski for "fidelity" to his duties.

Cubans called entry 'tools'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell indicated Tuesday he thinks the Cuban-American defendants had more reason than former White House aide Ehrlichman and Charles W. Olson to believe the 1971 Ellsberg break-in was authorized.

"I'm in sympathy with your clients," Gesell told Daniel E. Schultz, attorney for Bernard T. Barker and Eugene Martinez, alleged look part in the burglary itself. "They were tools."

Olson and Ehrlichman had said they were the President's "tools" in a moment later.

Gesell found out in a minute whether the search was authorized Tuesday.

Gesell completed 14 days of hearing oral arguments on national security aspects of the Ellsberg case, scheduled for trial June 17.

He was to hear arguments today on a variety of motions and conclude the pretrial hearings Thursday by ruling on motions involving publicity aspects surrounding the case.

Ehrlichman, Olson, Barker, Martinez and former White House aide G. Gordon Liddy were indicted March 7 for alleged conspiracy to violate the rights of Daniel Ellsberg, the psychiatrist whose office was attacked Labor Day weekend, 1971. Fielding had been treating Daniel Ellsberg, who three months earlier turned to reporters the Pentagon papers on the origins of the Vietnam war.

Some of the defendants have contended the break-in could be justified if grounds a search was authorized by the President under his power to protect national security.

Health tactics assailed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Senate Democrats have accused the administration of using deceptive and misleading tactics to promote its national health insurance proposal.

The charges Tuesday at the opening of a new round of congressional hearings on health insurance came from Sens. Russell B. Long, D-La., and Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., cosponsors of a rival bill, and from Sen. Walter F. Mondale, Minn.

But they were not alone in objecting both to provisions in the proposed and the selling of it.

Mondale said Nixon's Comprehensive Health Insurance Plan (CHIP) would provide benefits for only one in four Americans, to which Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger replied: "It's perfectly true that to get benefits you have to be ill."

Weinberger was the first witness at the hearings, which continue today, providing testimony from the US Chamber of Commerce, Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., several professional health organizations and a labor group supporting a fully federalized health insurance system.

Auxiliary elects

SHOSHONE — Mrs. Reid Newby is the new president of Shoshone American Legion Auxiliary.

Elected to serve with her are Mrs. E. D. Saras, vice president; Mrs. Elmer Terry, secretary; Mrs. William Thompson, chaplain; Mrs. Raymond Freeman, historian; Mrs. Hal Ross, sergeant-at-arms, and Mrs. Ray Coles, musician.

Fertilizer aid deal pressed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A $180 million line of credit to the Soviet Union will aid in the export of 400 million worth of U.S. industrial equipment and an increase in domestic fertilizer supplies, the Export-Import Bank has announced.

In addition to the credit, another $180 million will be provided for the Soviets by private American financing not guaranteed by the bank, said Eximbank chairman William J. Casey Tuesday.

"The credits are to be repaid in 24 semi-annual installments beginning May 20, 1979, with Eximbank's direct credit of $180 million to be repaid out of the last 12 installments," the announcement said.

The Bank for Foreign Trade of the USSR will pay interest on outstanding balances at an annual rate of 8 per cent. But the "blended" interest rate of Eximbank's loan and loans by U.S. commercial banks will be "at present prime rate levels, approximately 7.8 per cent a year," Casey said.

Eximbank will be involved only in financing U.S. exports. "But this transaction is part of a program between the Soviet Union and American companies under which super-phosphoric acid, which the U.S.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock prices opened higher in moderate activity on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday. The Dow Jones industrial average had risen 0.55 to 810.08 shortly after the opening. Issues rising in price led losers by nearly two-to-one, of the 383 stocks traded.

On Tuesday, the market was unable to sustain a mild rally that came in apparent response to the easing of the response index climbed in April at its smallest monthly rate in eight months. The Dow fell 2.89 to 809.53. The loss was the fifth in a row for the widely followed market indicator, and brought the aggregate decline during that period to 38.33 points.

The three principal factors that have been holding back investors are inflation, watergate and soaring interest rates.

One possible market salvo is a move by Congressman Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.) to press for lower capital gains taxes, including those that affect stock transactions.

British troops rip barricades

BELFAST (UPI) — Thousands of British army troops, their faces blackened in combat, moved in at 7 a.m. today and tore down barricades blocking Belfast streets to enforce a week-old general strike. When daylight came, defiant Protestants put them up again.

The army operation, the biggest in nearly two years, was achieved without a major confrontation with Protestant loyalists who have paralyzed Northern Ireland with a strike. The strike was in protest against any political moves that might give Catholic Ireland a say in Ulster politics.

By daybreak virtually all Belfast streets were clear. But it was a shord-lived peace and more than 100 roadblocks went up again during the morning. Men in combat jackets and the uniforms of extreme right-wing Protestant organizations manned them, clubs in hand.

"It's worse today than yesterday," one police source said.

Sporadic violence broke out. In Dundoinal, on the outskirts of East Belfast, police fired tear gas at a group of Protestants. A small-scale riot ensued and army troops moved in to rescue the police, spokesman said.

In the Newtownards-Road area in East Belfast, a civilian, riding a motorcycle was shot and injured—and a bystander killed by shots from an unknown source, police said.

The British government had warned it would not yield to the demands of the self-appointed Ulster Workers Council (UWC), which called the strike to overturn the current power-sharing government, and prevent what it called a seizure of the Protestant cause.

"The government will not be intimidated or blackmailed," a British statement said after a Tuesday night meeting between Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Northern Ireland Secretary Merlyn Rees in London.

US hearing aid industry probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission said today it is launching an investigation of the hearing aid industry to find out if consumers are being misled by deceptive advertising and marketing practices.

Announcement of the investigation came just two weeks after the agency accused six major hearing aid manufacturers of falsely claiming that their products are new and different and will help anyone with a hearing loss.

The new investigation will go beyond the manufacturers and into distributors, promoters, retailers and sellers of hearing aid devices, the agency said.

The probe was announced in accordance with a new policy under which the industry's marketing investigations are revealed in advance.

The commission said it was for the time being taking no position on whether there had been any violation of the law. In the proposed complaint issued two weeks ago, however, the commission said the manufacturers had "failed to tell potential customers that no hearing aid can restore normal hearing and that using a hearing aid cannot halt or slow the progression of hearing loss."

Named in the earlier proposed complaint were Sonotone Corp., Elmford, N.Y.; Seeburg Industries Inc., New York City; (through its Quality Division, Minneapolis); Tectron Inc., Providence, R.I.; (through its Miteco Hearing Instruments Division, Minneapolis); Radiocor Corp., Cantonburg, Pa.; Dabberger Electronics Corp., Golden Valley, Minn.; and Bellone Electronics Corp., Chicago.

Revised energy bill voted down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A revised version of the energy bill voted in March has been narrowly defeated in the House. It would have allowed President Nixon to order gasoline rationing and roll back oil prices.

The bill was defeated 207-191 in a roll call vote Tuesday, but could be brought back to the floor if its supporters get clearance from the House Rules committee for another vote.

Nixon vetoed the original version March 8 because it called for an oil price rollback and because it would have authorized unemployment compensation to workers left jobless as a result of the energy crisis.

"The bill, which would have provided the new powers only through June 30, 1975, would have ordered prices on crude and refined oil products to return to the Nov. 1, 1973, base price, which was $4.25 a barrel. An exemption, however, was provided for the sale of only 8,400 barrels per day to protect small, independent producers.

In its monthly report on consumer prices Tuesday, the government said gasoline in April cost 40 per cent more than it did one year ago.

The American Automobile Association (AAA) said Tuesday its survey of 3,444 stations in all states except Alaska showed average gasoline prices about the same this week as they were last week: 55 cents for regular and 59 cents for premium.

Fire razes casino

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A fire destroyed an 8-million-dollar casino in the past here, such as the Vegas Strip Tuesday night. Firefighters managed to scrape off the currency which had been used to wallpaper the inside of the rear.

The blaze broke out shortly before 8 p.m. at Bob Stupak's World-Famous Million-Dollar Historic Gambling Museum and Casino.

The casino opened in early April and had a gambling license for 15 slot machines.

Antique slot machines also are on display as a collection of gambling chips, and photographs of former gambling figures in the past here, such as Bugsy Siegel.

The walls and floors of the "million-dollar casino" literally were papered with $1 bills which were covered with plastic. Firemen were successful in saving most of the currency by ripping it off the walls in sheets and stacking it outside on the hood of a car.

Pleads guilty

LONDON (UPI) — Former psychiatric patient Ian Ball pleaded guilty today to six charges stemming from his bizarre attempt to kidnap Princess Anne, Britain's highest judge ordered him committed to a mental hospital indefinitely.

Planked by five policemen in the prisoner's dock at the Old Bailey, Ball pleaded guilty in a low-but-firm voice to the charges read by Lord Wiggery, the lord chief justice.

Lord Wiggery ordered Ball committed to a "secure mental hospital" for an indefinite period.

Rehired

"TOO MUCH" male attention was given as the reason for firing Mrs. Peggy Hughes, Moline, Ill., Feb. 15 from her job as a packer in the shipping department of the International Harvester Co., Farmall Plant, Rock Island, Ill. She was rehired May 14.

Submarine escapes trap

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — An unidentified mystery submarine apparently escaped today from a trap set by Swedish destroyers off an island in the Baltic Sea, a military spokesman said.

"We haven't had any contact with the sub since last night and apparently it has left," he said.

Swedish warships dropped depth charges near the submarine and the spokesman said the navy vessels hoped to find debris possibly identifying the vessel's nationality.

The submarine took refuge Tuesday at a bay in Swedish territorial waters near the island of Gotland. Two other craft were spotted in international waters in the Baltic Sea off Sweden.

The navy spokesman said the warships "do not intend to destroy the submarine, which cruised at a depth of about 300 feet but occasionally rose close enough to the surface to use a periscope."

Hawaiian luau highlights day

TWIN FALLS — Fifth graders at Washington Elementary School took a quick trip to Hawaii for lunch Tuesday.

The voyage into the spirit of the tropical island took place during the traditional year-end luau lunch. Fifth graders learn about the United States in social studies classes, and finish the year studying Hawaii.

Each boy and girl made a paper lei for the party, and the girls each had a colorful flower for their hair made by the mothers' group. Many of the girls wore grass skirts over summer shorts. Everybody went barefoot.

Lunch tables were set on the floor with paper palm tree decorations and paper leaf napkin holders. In the corner, a volcano smoked, although it occasionally had to be prodded by principal William Stover.

The luau began with the soft-toned voices of the children singing a Hawaiian grace. Accompanying them were students who had learned to play the music on guitars and ukuleles.

Then it was lunchtime. Hawaiian type food was prepared and served by mothers in flower print dresses and leis. Partygoers got balcony, cheese and pickle kabobs — chunks stuck on a stick, plus jello salad, macaroni salad, and toasted bread. For dessert, fruit kabobs, ice cream, cookies, and to go with, strawberry punch.

After eating, the children performed the Hawaiian stick dance, thinking, where two sticks are hit together in rhythm while dancers jump between the sticks. Dances and hula were performed, and then another grace was sung in Hawaiian.

Although most elementary schools in the district used to have luaus, only Washington still keeps up the tradition. Next year, because of changes in curriculum, there may be no luau at Washington school either.

US land under Blaine rule: Boller

HAILEY — Blaine County has jurisdiction on building permits on Forest Service land, according to Steve Boller, Blaine County attorney.

A letter read before the county Planning and Zoning Commission last night quoted Boller as saying, "we as a county have jurisdiction over all county land on all building permits."

Mary Jane Teren read the communication from Boller which said Blaine County should ask the cooperation of the Forest Service in such procedures.

The question came up, according to commission members, as a result of Sun Valley

Company's proposed ski development in the Cold Springs area. The Forest Service supervisor's office in Twin Falls is reviewing the plan. Approval of the plan should come this week or next, according to a Forest Service official who helped prepare a resource statement which accompanied the plans.

Commission member Teren said the county should take an active interest in the Forest Service lands. She said an environmental impact study was important on major developments such as the Sun Valley expansion proposal. The present resource plan prepared by Butch Harper, Ketchum ranger office, says the planned development does not require an environmental impact study.

Bob Barnes, planning and zoning administrator, said Sun Valley requested a permit to build a restaurant and a shed on Bald Mountain in 1972. Barnes said the commission issued a permit and charged a plan-checking fee. Sun Valley paid the fee and the construction was considered legal, according to Barnes.

However, according to commission members, a permit was never issued for ski lift expansion by Sun Valley County last year.

"If we have jurisdiction," Barnes said, "then we want permit fees."

Commission members said other projects of the size proposed by Sun Valley would require environmental impact studies.

Admiral Barnes said Sun Valley owned deeded land at the bottom of Cold Springs. He said before anything was done to that portion, Sun Valley would have to present the commission a plan and a permit would have to be issued before any construction could begin.

The commission agreed to contact Harper and invite him to the June 4 commission meeting to explain Sun Valley plans and give the commission the Forest Service recommendation on Bald Mountain.

Anne-Laurie Burton conducts storyline program

Little People's Program highlights 'Y' activities

TWIN FALLS — People of all ages are being considered in programs offered at the YM-YWCA in Twin Falls.

Something new this year called "Little People Program" has been selected for continuation. Designed for pre-school children and their mothers, the Little People program extended over five weeks this spring as an experiment.

"It was so successful" it will become a permanent part of the YWCA's schedule, says Sally Moynese, executive director.

During the five weeks, the pre-schoolers took part in such programs as planting seeds and small plants, cookie baking and a final program featuring a storyline program by Anne-Laurie Burton of the Twin Falls Public Library and "Libby, the Library Elephant," a large patchwork elephant.

A picnic in the "Y" concluded the program. Others who took part in the special sessions included Easy Palmer, instructing in mix and measure, cookie making, Merle Stoddard, rhythm and movement to help develop coordination; life from the earth, with Elizabeth Moynese showing children how to plant seeds and care for plants.

Mothers attending the programs assisted with the children and at the same time gained tips on entertainment and educational activities they can continue at home to broaden the children's understanding of daily surroundings, Mrs. Moynese said.

Another session will be offered this fall. Additional information is available by calling Mrs. Keith Fullmer, 423-5650.

Blue Lakes tourney lands record field

A record field, headed by two ex-championship duos, will begin play in the three-day Blue Lakes Invitational golf tournament Thursday.

ROCKY HAGAN, left, and David Nye have been honored as the outstanding athletes at Valley High School. The senior boys were presented with trophies by the Valley High School Boosters' Club. Hagan, who participates in football and basketball, was named outstanding athlete, while Nye, who is a football player and a wrestler, was named most dedicated member.

Back to defend their titles will be Wally Lowe Jr., Boise, and Al Rohweder, Twin Falls.

Because some teams will complete their action Thursday, the awards banquet of Saturday night has been omitted this year.

The field will be allowed two-thirds of their handicap to a maximum of 27, reports host Professional Nate Ross.

John Unitas questions dedication

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — John Unitas, one of the greatest quarterbacks in pro football history, is concerned about the attitude and behavior of fellow players today.

"The game is a lot different than it was five or six years ago," Unitas said Tuesday. "It gets to where you don't know which end is up, what the hell their thinking is."

The young just don't have the dedication I would like them to have. You can't get them to do the things they should be doing. They don't seem to care whether they play football or not as long as they make the team and get their check."

Unitas came to the San Diego Chargers last year from Baltimore. He played little and San Diego won only two games.

He said his statement did not apply just to the Chargers, however.

"It's the general attitude," he said. "And that's the thing that irks me more than anything else."

Unitas, 41, probably will retire after this his 20th season. He expects to continue in his role of working with young quarterbacks Dan Fouts and Jesse Frelvas with little playing time.

Bonavena decisions Middleton over 12

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Argentine heavyweight Oscar Bonavena using a relentless sledgehammer left hand, dropped his opponent once in the seventh round and went on to a unanimous 12-round decision over Baltimore's Larry Middleton Tuesday night.

Bonavena, the '75-favorite, was unrelenting in pursuit of his much taller opponent. Using a left hook almost exclusively, Bonavena staggered Middleton in the sixth round.

From the knockdown on, Middleton was reduced to holding and defending himself against the pursuing "South American." The eighth round Middleton was unable to score until late in the fight after distracting Bonavena, ranked ninth among heavyweights, with a series of butts.

The fight was lacking in finesse as both men slipped in the staves after delivering wild, misguided combinations. Late in the fight, even though the outcome was no longer in doubt, Bonavena continued to pummel his foe across the ring, nearly dropping him again in the seventh round.

POCATELLO (UPI) — Defending champion Gonzaga piled up 27 runs on 27 hits and nine Idaho State errors Monday to take both ends of a doubleheader and the Big Sky Conference baseball title. The favored Bulldogs, who lost the opener of the best-of-three series to ISU Sunday 4-1, bounced back 14-4 in the opener Tuesday and coasted through the tiebreaker 13-0.

Boy okay after lightning bolt

IRVING, Tex. (UPI) — It was the bottom half of the second inning and third baseman Greg Lehrer fiddled with his glasses to peer at the dark rain clouds that rumbled out of the west.

The pitcher threw a ball and the catcher missed it. Look of my glove and shifted some dirt in front of my feet," he said Tuesday. "The next thing I remember, I was in the hospital."

The 14-year-old boy had been struck by lightning.

The bolt shredded his White Sox cap, entered his body through his forehead and exited through his right heel. Burns on both spots showed the lightning's power.

Greg was knocked unconscious and might have died but for heart massage and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation by two policemen who had been coaching another nearby game.

The boy lay limp for 40 minutes. His legs, burned together, had to be pulled apart. The zipper on his uniform was melted. His heavy metal belt buckle was so hot it couldn't be touched. A chain around his neck was disintegrated.

The metal on the chain was blackened but not destroyed. It couldn't be touched. A chain around his neck was disintegrated.

Greg has superficial burns on his body, and a ruptured eardrum which is expected to heal. And he and his mother have a new outlook.

Changes put coaching back in NFL coaches

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is the year National Football League coaches return to working for a living.

The NFL owners have made some drastic rule changes aimed at ending the "three-yard and a cloud of dust" mentality which had taken over the league's coaching fraternity.

Kansas City Chiefs' Coach Hank Stram, never known as one to shy away from the innovative, generally likes the rule changes.

The most important thing about the changes are they are dramatic changes, said Stram, here Tuesday for the NFL coaches' meeting. "It's important for fans to be able to relate to what the changes are. Fans can relate to moving the goal posts back 10 yards or putting the ball on the 49 when a field goal from there is missed."

On the other hand, Don Shula, whose Miami Dolphins have pounded the league into submission with a bullish running attack and a light weight field-goal kicker, finds it hard to work up any enthusiasm for the rule changes.

"I still feel pretty much the same way as I did initially—some I can live with and others I just don't like," Shula said.

The new rules are designed to open up the NFL's dormant offenses and will put a premium on coaching strategy.

And, if the changes are not welcomed by all coaches, the football strategists are hard at work making the necessary adjustments.

The day after the changes were announced, the Chiefs moved the goal posts to the rear of the end zone and had punter Jerrel Wilson at work angling his punts out of bounds.

Couple weds in park ceremony

TWIN FALLS — Elizabeth Anne Davenport and David Bruce Wilkes were married May 4 in a ceremony at Shoshone Falls Park. Rev. Dr. J. William Jones, father of the bride, conducted the wedding service beneath a white archway strewn with ivy garland and white daisies. The wedding party entered to "A Time for Us." Readings and poetry preceded the vows. Soloist was Hubert Hendrix and the wedding party exited to "In the Garden" by Beethoven.

William Jones, Nampa, The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Wilkes, Twin Falls. The couple was honored at a reception after the ceremony. The bride's table was decorated in blue and yellow with sprays of flowers from tier bouquets surrounding the candelabra. The theme of spring dictated the decoration of the cake which was separated between tiers with cherub pillars and covered with white icing and white daisies. The cake was topped by a cherub seated in a fountain intertwined with daisy chains. Serving at the bride's table were Mrs. Bruce Kunkel, Mrs. Don Lambert and Heather Graven. Dianne Wilkes, sister of the bridegroom, registered guests. Flower arrangements for both the wedding and the ceremony were planned by Mrs. Bruce Kunkel, the bridegroom's aunt. The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal luncheon earlier in the week of the wedding. The couple will reside in Twin Falls.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID B. WILKES

Mini-Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released interviews for some new books at the library. "Fedayeen" by John Laffin. The opening shot of the Palestinian Revolution was Jan. 2, 1965. This is a study of that movement. "The Summer After the Funeral" by Jane Gardam. Sixteen-year-old Athene faces the most untheatrical arrangements as she drifts, as if in a trance, through a vagabond summer. Funny and poignant. "Crown of Aloys" by Norah

Lofts. The character and times of one of the most intriguing moments in European history, Isabella I of Spain, are brought to life in this novel. "Divided Soul" by Henri Trouat. The author, a Russian-born biographer, focuses on the life and times of Nicholas Gogol and imparts an understanding for the work as well as of the man. "Falling Bodies" by Sue Kauffman. Emma had a lifestyle in which all systems were gone — it seemed. Then came the rough year and Emma, her husband, Harold, and son, Benji, were launched on a roller coaster.

TF 4-H club meets

TWIN FALLS — The Healthy Cookle Cutters met Saturday at the home of Dianne Platt, leader, using the roll call topic, "Favorite Subject in School." Members discussed the 1973 annual 4-H report and solving "Little Darling" candles. Girls in the "Let's Entertain" project discussed and planned a father-daughter party and a children's party for youngsters 3 to 6 years of age.

Members in "Stitches" started embroidering on pillows and Susan Baker gave a demonstration on tying out and marking a pattern. Refreshments were furnished by Miss Platt and Janene Webb.

Project discussed

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls chapter of the Idaho Writers League held its regular meeting Monday. Consideration was given to a statewide project of publishing a bi-centennial book of writings about Idaho, ranging from early history to modern times. Writings would come from all parts of the state.

Miss Iona Gould, Burley, reported the recent publication of her book of poems titled "No Word from Gauge." She told members of her five year preparation for publication and need for careful selection of word and critical appraisal of work.

Laura McAnulty reported the sale of an article to the Audio Visual Instructional Magazine titled "Media-Based Learning Research Center." Ethlyn Walkington reported the sale of a story of juvenile fiction, entitled "Use Your Head." Sadie Hager had two sales of poems, entitled "Hill Farmer" and "Autumn Fires" to the Ozark Mountaineer.

A program under the direction of Estelac Harris compared two separate approaches as means to successful writing. Assigned topics for the June meeting will be perfect days and sunrises. Place of meeting will be announced later.

DEAR ABBY: I was quite amused at the letter in your column from the secretary who objected to doing personal jobs for her boss and his family. She should have MY boss. I've been with him for 16 years. I get along fine with him, his wife, their five children—three of whom are now married—(and I heartily agree) that I hired out to work eight hours a day, so if he wants me to do something other than straight secretarial work, I should do it.

I have vacuumed his office, met planes, trains and buses, shopped for gifts for his wife, children and grandchildren, typed essays and term papers for his high school and college children, and have even scouted for information for his wife when she was involved with the Junior League. I've gone to his home for dictation, have worked evenings, weekends and holidays, and have never felt that any of these duties were beneath my dignity as a secretary. Oh, we've had our differences, but I've never refused to do anything he's asked me to do; and he's never asked me to do anything immoral or illegal. I love my job; he's a wonderful boss; and the pay is exceptional.

HAPPY IN DALLAS

DEAR HAPPY: I'm glad the pay is exceptional because you certainly are.

DEAR ABBY: This is to thank you for publishing that hilarious column in which you included all those formal divorce announcements. I laughed until my sides ached. When our daughter was divorced two years ago, my husband and I went through all the agonies other parents endure when their married children divorce. ("Hart," there some way we can keep them together? The whole town is talking. What will we tell people?")

Now we realize it wasn't all that tragic. Our daughter is soon to marry another man, and this one is a prince. I just had to tell you that I got a wonderful laugh out of that column. I'm only sorry we didn't know such announcements were available two years ago. We'd have sent some.

N.Y. POST READER

DEAR READER: Thanks, I needed that. Not everyone saw the humor in that column, and to those who did not, I apologize. Read on.

DEAR ABBY: Recently you published some formal divorce announcements: "Mr. and Mrs. John Jones take pleasure in announcing the divorce of their daughter, Alice, from that stob she married in 1963, etc."

Was that supposed to be funny?

Perhaps I failed to see the humor of it because I am going through a heart-breaking divorce right now.

Only last week I was in court when my husband walked in. I had all I could do to keep from going over to straighten his tie, and that tell me he should have worn his pale blue shirt with that suit. We had been married for 26 years.

Camporee awards 3 special awards given at camporee

HAGERMAN — Three individuals who contributed to the building of a dam to expand Camp Roach for use by Boy Scouts received some unusual "thank you's."

About 200 Boy Scouts from the Falls District covering western Twin Falls County and Jackpot, Nev., signed some 15-foot long scrolls which were presented during the 1974 camporee during the past weekend.

Receiving the awards during an Order of the Arrow ceremony were E. J. Morgan and Larry Fairbanks of PMF, Inc.; Lt. Ernest J. Kendrick, from Co. D, 321st Engineering Battalion, Army Reserves in Twin Falls, and Amcor Pipe Co.

These individuals and companies donated costly material, heavy equipment and many hours of manpower to build dam across part of the Snake River to give the Scouts access to an ideal 20 acre camping site, previously inaccessible.

Because of this effort, Scout officials said, the camporee was able to accommodate the 200 boys attending the festivities. Parents also attended the camporee ceremony including a "tag out" ceremony for about 35 new candidates elected to various units during the winter months. Parents attended dinner as guests of their sons' units at the individual campsites.

During the camporee a clean-up program was also held to clear fallen timber and old pipeline from the new 20-acre site so it can be used for future camping activities.

Set. Del Tuttle commanded a group of Army Reserves which donated labor for the dam building project. Amcor Pipe Co. donated the giant sections of pipe which were installed to carry the flow of water through the construction area. Each of the three sections of concrete pipe weighed six tons.

PMF Inc. donated heavy equipment and crews working until midnight one night to complete the project.

I've lived more years with him than without him and this divorce still seems so unreal to me. (He asked for it. He has somebody else.)

Anyway, I fail to see anything funny about divorce. At the bottom of your column it says, "You'll feel better if you get it off your chest." Well, I did, and I do. Thanks for listening.

STILL HURTING IN L.A.

THREE special awards were presented during the 1974 Camporee of the Falls District Boy Scouts at Camp Roach. Honored for helping make the expanded camp possible were E. J. Morgan, Larry Fairbanks and Lt. Ernest J. Kendrick, from left. Glen Arrington, Order of the Arrow, in Indian costume, presents the awards.

ROSE Swan, Head Start teacher-director in Jerome, left, discusses the pilot program in teacher assessment with Child Development Associate program representative Maynard Yutzy. Mrs. Swan is one of six volunteers for the assessment program being directed by Yutzy.

CDA teacher certification plan stresses ability

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A new concept in teacher certification may grow from a nation-wide project which has its beginning in the local Head Start program.

Teacher certification based on ability rather than education is the final goal of the Child Development Associate (CDA) program being conducted nationwide in about 200 pilot projects by the Child Development Consortium funded by the federal office of child development.

Maynard Yutzy, representative of the CDA Consortium, was in Twin Falls this past week setting up assessment teams in several tri-county Head Start programs.

Yutzy described the project as "a competency-based credentialing program." This means that teachers assessed by the teams can be certified by the CDA on the basis of their performance in the classroom and not on the number of college degrees they have earned or the number of hours they have spent as students in the classroom.

Pilot projects for the program are focusing on teachers in pre-school classes "because we don't have to mess with accreditation and certification."

Still in its infancy — the program has been operating only one year — the CDA is not accepted as proper certification for teachers in the nation's school systems. The pilot programs are focusing on 200 Head Start teachers and day care instructors throughout the nation.

Six Head Start teachers in Jerome, Cassia and Twin Falls counties volunteered to be assessed by the CDA teams. The teachers include Rose Swan, Jerome; Laurell Adams, Oakley; Irene Taylor and Esperanza Gerhard, both Burley; and Mary Helwich and Bulvinia Rodriguez, both Twin Falls.

assessment, each team works under one of six different conditions, with members taking different roles.

On all the teams the teacher candidate has a voting position and is able to vote any other team member, Yutzy said.

The team "has to actually see the teacher in action," he said. The teachers "are right there and you're seeing them in action. We can give them feedback and help them accomplish things."

The teacher is assessed in six critical areas: establishing and maintaining a safe and healthy learning environment, advancing physical and intellectual competence,

Because children don't develop at the same rates in the same areas of studies Yutzy said, activities should be "structured on the basis of the child's feedback when he says he is ready" to tackle the subject.

Competency of any teacher does not necessarily depend upon the amount of education he or she has had, Yutzy said, but on actual performance in the classroom.

The CDA program hopes to incorporate this philosophy nationally in educational systems so stress will be placed on performance rather than education in certifying teachers.

"A lot of teachers are working women with families who find it difficult to go away to school," Mrs. Swan said. Head Start stresses career development, she said, encouraging teachers to further their education as much as possible.

"A competency-based credentialing program."

Highway projects underway

SHOSHONE — Two new projects got underway this month in the Shoshone District of the State Highway Department.

A seal coat will be applied to about 23.88 miles of I-80N, West Jerome-Greenwood and cover coat material will be stockpiled adjacent to State Highway 25 near the Hansen Bridge. Circle A Construction Co., Twin Falls, is the contractor for the $199,864.80 project, according to Howard Johnson, district highway engineer.

The other project is to provide cover coat material in stockpile on US 26, producing aggregate and placing a plant mix pavement and leveling the road bed between Shoshone and Richfield. Holmes Construction Co., Heyburn, has been awarded the $133,460 contract.

Minor traffic delays can be expected on a 25 mile section of I-80N, between Valley Road and Meridian Road. The project includes modifying existing slopes, minor structures, signing, illumination, guardrail and seeding and reconditioning of frontage roads. At the present time the minor structures are being done and the guardrail is being removed and reset.

Seal coating will not start until after June 15 on the road from Minidoka to West Kimama.

At the Cotterel point of entry on 7 miles of I-80N (Junction I-15W to Cotterel) hauling and placing borrow and excavating for the roadway work is being done at this time. This project includes construction of roadway, drainage structures, plant mix pavement, signing and illumination.

Work will resume next month on the Sweetzer and Cotterel to Idaho road.

Work on the Snake River bridge to replace the Perrine crossing bridge is progressing, Johnson said.

The subcontractor, P. J. Construction Inc., is installing rock bolts in the north and south canyon walls and drilling in preparation for blasting of the south foundation site. The rock bolt operations, for stabilizing the canyon walls, are nearing completion on the south side. Miller Construction Co. is completing concrete placement for the north and south bridge piers.

Concrete for the bridge decks is being placed at this time for the two steel and concrete bridges over the east Snake River crossing near King Hill.

A detour road is being used at this time at the East Bliss interchange and another, which is now under construction at the West Bliss interchange, is expected to be opened next week. Pipe is being installed, roadway subgrade being constructed and concrete pier columns for the railroad overpass are being constructed.

The contractor expects to begin erecting the maintenance building walls next week at the Bliss site where two buildings are going up. They include a 44' by 162' foot concrete and pumice block maintenance building and a metal sand shed.

Crews are hauling and placing borrow for the roadway subgrade on US 20-26; Silver Creek West. Minor traffic delays can be expected there.

Stonemasonry on the bridge abutments are being constructed for the steel bridges over the Malad River on I-80N.

Minor traffic delays may also be expected on about 5 miles of State Highway 24 in Lincoln County where excavating and construction of embankments for the roadway are underway.

Work hasn't started yet on bridges on US 93 in the Sawloda Valley 30 miles south of Twin Falls. Nelson and Company, Twin Falls, contractor, has the $169,189.20 contract.
