The 72-year-old, former ambassador to Belgium said on arrival in Sweden relations between the nations are now "very good." Vigorous Swedish criticism of American Vietnam policy led to the break in 1972.

OTTAWA (UPI)—External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp Wednesday said India's underground nuclear test has forced Canada to suspend its multimillion dollar aid agreements with New Delhi, except for food programs.
Canada's nuclear cooperation arrangement with India was suspended and a review will be made of programs involving about $70 million in aid in the mining and manufacturing, electrical power, communications and transport sectors, Sharp said.

Later in Stanton, Del., Ford told a Republican fund raising dinner the House Judiciary Committee doesn't have a case for impeachment of President Nixon. He also defended administration gains in foreign policy.

Nixon threatens bill veto

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon, restating his "unequivocal opposition to forced busing" of school children, has threatened to veto an education bill if it reaches him in the form passed by the Senate, with a mild antibusing feature.
Nixon expressed hope that the bill, approved by a 61-35 vote Monday, would be reconciled with a stiffer House version which contains strong antibusing language.

Church backs 'sunshine' push

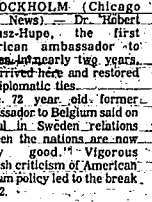

TWIN FALLS—A wire service Tuesday mistakenly reported that Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, had "deemphasized" his support for the "sunshine" initiative in Idaho.
The story should have stated that Sen. Church "reemphasized" his support.
The three-term lawmaker Tuesday made his position official by signing the initiative petition asking for campaign spending disclosure and registration of lobbyists.

Boisean withdraws bid on TF bleacher razing

TWIN FALLS—A Boise contractor said Wednesday he would not honor his bid for demolition of the Lincoln School bleachers because the bid "makes me look foolish."
Mike Stafford of Stafford Excavation and Demolition Co., said he was backing away from his contract Thursday morning because the amounts of the other bids had been made public.
He was critical of the Times-News for printing the amount of the other bids, which he said he and school trustees had asked the newspaper not to mention.
A trustee at the Tuesday night meeting said he hoped the Times-News reporter present would do what she could to "accommodate this man."
Stafford said he would forfeit only the $25,000 bond he had submitted with the bid and estimated that the school district would have to pay $10,000 more under some new contract.
Stafford's bid had been $4,239. Other bids were: Beymer Paving Co., Twin Falls, $23,500;

Fire suspect enters plea

RUPERT—Mary, Odean Sorenson pleaded not guilty to charges of assault and arson here today.
The charges were filed in connection with a fire at the Grain Millers Union offices in Burley last Thursday night.
At her arraignment before Fifth District Judge Sherman Bellwood, Mrs. Sorenson, 32, waived a preliminary hearing. No trial date was set pending completion of psychiatric examination.
She is charged with assault with intent to commit murder and with second degree arson in connection with the fire. Judge Bellwood assigned the case to Herman Bedke, Cassia County public defender.
Bedke said he "intended to rely on the defense that the defendant did not have the mental capacity to be responsible for her actions." He asked to have Mrs. Sorenson transferred to Rupert, where she would be more available for consultation.

GOODING—Two Gooding County residents are in critical condition at Gooding Memorial Hospital today as the result of gunshot wounds in two separate incidents.
Sheriff Earl Brown said both are considered accidental but are under investigation. Jerry Tubbs, 28, apparently shot himself at 2:30 a.m. today at his home at the Gooding Commission Co., where he works. Mrs. Earl Hobbey shot herself about 7 a.m. at her home northwest of Bliss.

MV irrigators protest return flow cleanup burden

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS—MAGIC Valley water users protested shouldering the full financial burden of return flow clean-up here Wednesday night.
About 100 persons attended the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency public hearing on the cleanup program for irrigators.
Protests were mild and specifically directed compared to a November hearing where water users lambasted the concept of government regulation of irrigation water discharge.
The EPA proposes to require large irrigation organizations to determine the amount of pollution caused by irrigation water run-off in 1975 and to develop a control program and schedule in 1976.
Then, under the provisions of the 1972 Clean Water Act, any industry that "uses available technology" would have to be applied by July 1977.
C. E. Veils, chief of EPA's agricultural section, said sediments in the return flow are "one of the most prevalent and significant pollutants."
"Sediment fills in reservoirs, reduces recreational activities, smothers fish spawning grounds, reduces the production of fish food and increases costs of municipal or industrial water supply." Sediment is not only a pollutant but a loss of the most productive soil, Veils said.
Although he expressed appreciation for the cooperative attitude of EPA officials working

Kissinger asks Syrian stand

DAMASCUS (UPI)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger sounded out Syrian leaders today on a possible American compromise proposal on the last two major issues blocking a military disengagement agreement between Syria and Israel. A high Egyptian official was in Damascus to help.
An American official said Kissinger would decide after talks with Syrian President Hafez Assad today whether he will formally put forward the American compromise on Friday or break off his mission and go home without the compromise agreement.
Syrian sources said that the most sensitive issue for Assad is the one about the thinning out of forces along the ceasefire line, because it affects the defenses of Damascus. The Syrian capital is only 45 miles from the proposed new ceasefire line, and Israeli troops drove to within 22 miles of Damascus in October. The other snag was the size of a U.N. buffer force.
Egyptian President Anwar Sadat tried to help break the deadlock by sending his chief of staff, Gen. Mohammed Gannasy to Damascus with a message from Cairo Wednesday night. Gannasy was instrumental in negotiating the Israeli-Egyptian settlement, meeting with Israeli generals for the first time in 25 years of Egypt-Israeli conflict.
With time running short, this was Kissinger's fourth consecutive day of shuttling to Damascus this week. It also was his 10th and possibly last of this mission. Assad and his ministers had considered overnight some unspecified ideas Kissinger had put to them Wednesday.
Kissinger brought his wife Nancy with him to Damascus today to give a formal lunch for the Syrian ministers and officials with whom he has been negotiating.
The luncheon was the first official function given by American diplomats for Syrian officials since Syria broke off diplomatic relations during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Open hearings set

WASHINGTON — In spite of a flat White House refusal to provide additional evidence in the investigations, the House Judiciary Committee plans to plunge into open, televised hearings on President Nixon's political dealings with the International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation and the dairy industry.
The hearings, according to a spokesman for committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., will begin within two weeks and will focus on allegations against the President of bribery, one of two crimes specified by the Constitution as grounds for impeachment.
The panel, currently in the second week of formal proceedings to determine Nixon's fitness to remain in office, will consider evidence in the ITT and milk cases that has been "leaked by the White House and the Dept. of Justice special prosecution force."

Border unit reinforced

By United Press International
Israel reinforced its patrols on the Lebanese frontier today to guard against Arab guerrilla infiltrators and reported one guerrilla killed in a skirmish with Israeli troops. Israel used flares and floodlights during the night to illuminate the frontier region.
A task force of foot soldiers, mechanized infantry and helicopters discovered the guerrilla late Wednesday night near Idmit, a frontier settlement. All three north-west of Maalot, the communist said. Thirty persons were killed at Maalot in an guerrilla attack last week.

Hagerman power station built without state OK

BOISE — Idaho Power Co. officials admitted Wednesday the firm built a power station in Hagerman Valley without required State Parks and Recreation Department approval.
The firm made the statement following release of a letter written by Steven Bly, State Parks and Recreation Director, which charged the firm with "irresponsible action" in building the substation.
The letter, written by Bly Tuesday, said development of the substation without final approval "cannot and will not be tolerated." Bly warned the firm the parks and recreation board may recommend complete removal of the station and renovation of the area.
Bly met with Idaho Power officials Wednesday afternoon to "discuss the problem." Bly said today Idaho Power admitted during the meeting to "a problem of communications" in building the substation without approval, that the firm was "lazy" and that it was willing to "do anything required by the staff" to rectify the situation.
A statement released Wednesday by James E. Brucke, vice president and counsel for Idaho Power, said the clearance "was inadvertently overlooked" in accomplishing the mass of engineering detail required in order to provide this spring the additional substation capacity for pumping plants that lift water out of the Snake River to irrigate thousands of acres in the Bell Rapids area.

Gen water defenses drawn

BOISE (UPI)—Water leaders in Idaho are drawing their wagons into a circle to fend off an attack by the federal government on the Gen. State's water resources.
Gov. Cecil D. Andrus sounded the alarm Wednesday that the federal government is showing new signs of flinching ways to divert water from the Northwest to meet the needs of the rest of the nation.
The alarm went out after the governor received a proposal from the Federal Water Resources Council to meet the nation's energy needs by interbasin transfers of water, by asserting federal control over state water rights and by changing the use of water from the existing reservoir projects.
The Idaho Water Resources Board will conduct a public hearing at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday in the statehouse for Idaho water users to make their feelings known on the proposals. Written statements will be accepted as well as oral presentations.

Judge limits union pickets
RUPERT—Fifth District Judge Sherman Bellwood Wednesday issued a ruling that restricts picketing by the striking American Federation of Grain Millers union.
Judge Bellwood said there could be no more than eight pickets in the vicinity of the main gate at the Heyburn plant of the J. R. Simplot Co. He also ruled that no more than four pickets could be stationed at closed entrances and exits at the plant.
The union should be restrained from obstructing the free flow of traffic to and from the Heyburn plant, the judge said.
The Simplot firm filed a complaint May 6 following the spreading of locks at the main gate and in parking areas. There were an estimated 200 to 300 pickets present at the time the incident occurred. The complaint claimed that company employees were intimidated by mass picketing at the gate.

Ulster Protestants bar most supplies

Seen...

BELFAST (UPI)—Striking Protestant militants formed human barricades across roads today and halted movement of all but essential supplies as a devastating general strike continued to cripple Northern Ireland.

A British Army spokesman said men standing shoulder to shoulder blocked about 30 streets in East Belfast. But he said most main roads were clear. Witnesses said more cars were on the road today than in the past few days.

The army, augmented by 500 troops, infiltrated to the province Wednesday night, kept 15,000 troops on routine patrols, apparently trying to avoid a confrontation that could spark civil war.

Gasoline supplies were running out fast. Men clutching thick clubs in their hands questioned drivers lined up at the few open gas stations.

No new gas supplies were on "essential business."

"We're just going to drain it out and close down," said John Farrell at his gas pump off the Protestant Shankill road.

Bread and milk were delivered and strikers allowed groceries to open four hours a day, although most shelves were bare. Postal services were reduced.

The strike has crippled essential services, halting most public transportation and causing electric power cuts of up to 12 hours daily.

"There are no more trucks we can play," an electrically service spokesman said. "We can continue the present supply—about 30 per cent of normal—for four days at the most."

Of course we're suffering, said Mrs. Alice Trevelyan, a Protestant housewife, in the eighth day of a general strike against Protestants anorced to protest an alleged political "sellout" to the Roman Catholics of Ireland's south.

"But I don't give a damn if we all starve," she said while her three children kicked a ball around a deserted street outside.

"I'd sooner that than be under the thumb of the south. Of course we're suffering, but who ever won anything without it?"

Lt. Col. James W. McLaughlin reported that soldiers blew up a suspect car in a controlled explosion. There were no fatalities to add to the 1,023 deaths already counted in nearly five years of strife among Northern Ireland's majority Protestants, minority Catholics and British security forces.

Belfast and most of Northern Ireland ground remorselessly toward a total shutdown.

Britain re-emphasized its determination Wednesday night not to be blackmailed or intimidated by the extremist Protestant strikers. But the Northern Ireland coalition government saved its "no strike" leaders' demands by postponing into the far future any effective intergovernmental cooperation with the Irish Republic.

Bernard seeks Jerome office

JEROME—Claude Bernard, Jerome County commissioner, said today he will seek another term.

Bernard has been chairman of the commission for two years. He served on the commission for six years, having been appointed to complete the term of the late Commissioner William Lattimer. He was elected to a two-year term and a four-year term, which he is now completing.

Bernard said he is seeking re-election so he can help complete some of the projects he has helped begin within the county, including the new addition to the Jerome County Court House.

"I don't see his conservative, but believes in progress. He is seeking a two-year term."

John Van Orman, Jerome County commissioner, who is term also expires has not indicated whether he will seek re-election.

No one else has declared candidacy for the position.

Defends Nixon

Rogers has previously written songs praising Lt. William Calley and Audie Murphy and condemning Jane Fonda. (UPI)

Hansen raps apathy

TWIN FALLS (UPI)—George Hansen, Republican candidate for Congress, said Wednesday the nation has been plunged into "economic chaos, corruption and oppressive government control" by citizen apathy toward government policy.

"To preserve our freedoms we must take an active interest and an active part in the affairs of government," he told the Twin Falls Lions Club.

Hansen said that a silent majority can soon become "permanently silent" under conditions imposed during these apathy.

The former Congressman from Pocatello said that each candidate for every office must be studied and "go beyond his words and traits to knowing his voting record, his principles and his real intent."

Smith backs cut

BUHL—Cutting federal spending is the best tax reform, said Bob Smith, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate.

Smith addressed the Buhl Kiwanis Club Wednesday.

He said Congress has no real control over the federal budget. The lawmakers' deficit spending has caused the inflation that is hurting Americans, according to Smith.

"Congress must get a handle on the budget to reduce the runaway spending," he said. "If spending is not cut, new taxes will be needed to avoid increased inflation."

"No longer should we pay for big government programs that promise more than they can deliver. Nor should we tolerate 10 per cent inflation which is destroying the value of our dollar," Smith said.

Hansen okays override levy

HANSEN — Hansen school patrons Tuesday approved a 3 mill override levy by a 70 per cent margin, and trustees accepted a revised bid for the planned new elementary school.

Voters also elected two school trustees. Robert Pettigrove was re-elected without opposition in zone 4, polling 9 votes. Art Baily defeated Clarke Bennett, 25 to 1, in zone 3. Incumbent Everett Norris didn't seek re-election.

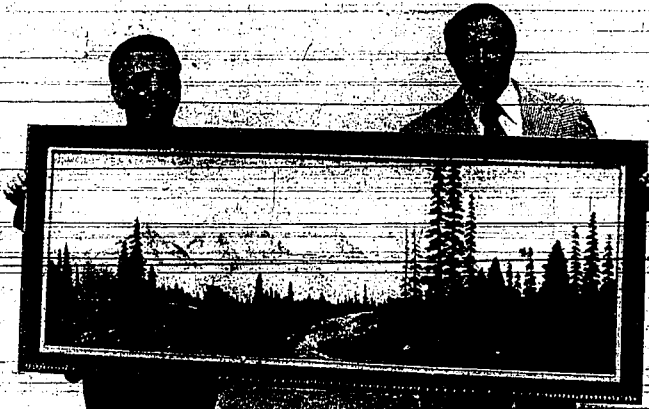

The mill override levy was approved 74-32, according to Supt. Percy Christensen. He said the money will go into the maintenance and operation budget, where most of it will be earmarked for the new grade school.

Trustees Tuesday accepted a revised bid from Neilson and Co., Twin Falls, of $318,618 for the new elementary school for which voters have approved a bond issue of $388,000. Of this amount, $310,000 was earmarked for actual construction costs.

Action on the bids was delayed after the May 8 opening because the firm's original bid of $359,421 was more than budgeted. Rising building costs since the bond issue was passed last fall demanded revisions in the building plans or additional spending.

After conferring Tuesday night with Harold Gerber, Twin Falls architect, trustees decided they could live within the budget if the multi-purpose room was eliminated from the original plans.

Jerome hires director

JEROME — The Jerome City Council Tuesday hired a new public works director.

EDWIN EVANS named to post

Edwin Evans, 49, Twin Falls, was named to the post on Monday and was given formal approval by the council Tuesday night.

For the past four years Evans has been supervisor of the materials lab for the City of Twin Falls. He was in charge of inspecting road and street construction materials.

Prior to his Twin Falls job, Evans worked for 11 years for the California Department of Highways and for four years for the Idaho Department of Highways.

Evans succeeds Bill Block as Jerome public works director. Block recently resigned as both city engineer and public works director.

Jerome Mayor Charles Hancock said the city will contact with J-U-B Engineers, Twin Falls, with whom Block is now associated, when the services of a professional engineer are required by the city.

In other business Tuesday night, the council:

Declined to set a date for the opening of the Jerome swimming pool, S. N. (Shorty) Weeks, councilman in charge of parks and recreation, said he had not received any applications for a lifeguard at the pool, and until the city can hire a lifeguard, the pool would not be opened. The council then approved advertising for a lifeguard.

Richard White, Herman Quintana, and Michael Humphries were approved by the council as volunteer firemen. They replaced Dale Welch and Bill Warring, who resigned.

Howard DuBois, chief of police, said his department will begin Thursday to issue notices requiring the removal of junk on private property in the city. Jerome residents will have 30 days after receiving the notification to remove the items. Failure to do so will result in citations, DuBois said.

Galley in TF GOP race

TWIN FALLS — Robert W. Galley, Twin Falls County prosecuting attorney, will seek re-election on the Republican ticket.

Galley, 45, is completing his second term as prosecuting attorney, and has been associated with the office since 1966. He served as deputy prosecutor under three previous prosecutors.

ROBERT GALLEY GOP candidate

In announcing his candidacy, Galley said there are two major points in his favor — experience and dedication of service to the people of Twin Falls County.

"I have made the prosecuting attorney's office my career and have dedicated my efforts to good law enforcement. I have gained valuable knowledge by actual experience and by upgrading through attending various schools offered to prosecuting attorneys."

"We are fortunate to have excellent law enforcement in this county. Our Twin Falls detective department is one of the best in the state. We have a very good sheriff's department, manned by dedicated people and the state patrol in this area is made up of excellent people concerned with the safety of our citizens," Galley said.

"He said he has cooperated with the law enforcement people and, as a result, has received some criticism by those who feel laws should not be enforced.

"I feel honored that Ray Crandal does not want me to be prosecutor since his office are that I have been too effective in respect to the Alcohol Safety Action Program," Galley said.

He said a recent article in the Times-News said the government has spent $2 million implementing this program. The project has had good results in this county, according to Galley.

"I think all one has to do is contact the people involved in this program to know I have been one of its strongest advocates rather than a deterrent as Crandal states. I believe in being fair but firm in enforcing the law," Galley said.

Galley said his first concern is the protection of the rights of law-abiding citizens of Twin Falls County.

The legislature has passed a law requiring that members of law enforcement agencies be certified.

"They recognize the need to upgrade our law enforcement agencies and to give these dedicated people the advantage of further education. We should not burden these people with increased prosecutor fees."

"My years of working under prosecutors has helped me to know the ins and outs of this office and I am fortunate to have capable and experienced secretaries in the office," Galley added.

Galley is married and the father of five children. He is a graduate of Idaho State University and received his law degree from the University of Idaho in 1951.

TF man injured

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was injured Wednesday when his motorcycle went off the road south of Twin Falls.

John Galen Hill, 39, was injured about 5 p.m. Wednesday when he apparently lost control of his 1974 Honda at the intersection of Airport Road and US Highway 76 near the water tank one mile south of Twin Falls. Hill was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he was treated for multiple lacerations of the knee and leg and then released.

Damage to Hill's motorcycle was estimated at about $200, according to Twin Falls County Sheriff's officers.

Time to watch

After 10 days of wind and cold, Magic Valley weather turned sunny, mild and warm, right for a touch of spring fever. The timing was excellent as far as youngsters are concerned. Most of them are either out of school or soon will be...

Now that they are no longer in class, these youngsters are engaged in a wide assortment of activities — working around home, running errands, playing, competing in sports, or simply shattering domestic tranquility and causing their mothers to count the days until classes resume.

For nine months of the year, most children in the Magic Valley are on the street at certain regular times of the day — morning, noon, and late afternoon.

Most observe traffic rules learned in school but others — due to tender age or concentration on other matters — seem to pay little heed to vehicular traffic.

That more serious accidents do not occur at such times can be attributed to alert drivers and sometimes plain luck.

But the season is here when both drivers of motor vehicles and youngsters need to be doubly alert for each other. Even momentary failure to be watchful could result in tragedy.

Gesell shaft direct

If a President of the United States is convinced that a person or group is engaged in an effort to thwart duly legislated efforts of the nation — even to subvert the government — what are his obligations in such an affair and what are the liabilities to which he may go?

While it is common knowledge that nations have indulged in spying, surveillance, and burglary to advance their national position, such actions have almost always been covert and unpublicized.

In the Senate hearings on the Watergate case, it was revealed that the break-in to the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist was done by the "plumbers" unit which also broke in to Democratic headquarters in the Watergate.

President Nixon has written to U. S. District Judge Gerhard A. Conley, who will hear the case of the six defendants in the Ellsberg psychiatrist case. In it he is reported to have said that the "plumbers" were operating under a "general delegation" of presidential authority.

The language would not mean that he specifically authorized the break-in to the psychiatrist's office. But, it could mean that he has delegated to the group the job of finding if Ellsberg was working for foreign power, and what was motivating him in his activities.

Ellsberg had broken the Pentagon papers to the New York Times, material which was considered militarily classified, and of the greatest confidentiality. He was tried for the deed and overzealous prosecution resulted in a verdict of not guilty. It was not a verdict of innocence, however.

The presidential order could have an important effect on the trial. If it establishes that the defendants felt that they were operating under the general authority of the President in a matter of vital interest to the security of the nation their intent may not be considered criminal.

We do not know what considerations might have gone towards a decision that a matter of this nature was to be investigated by the FBI, CIA or other national intelligence organizations?

But, conceding that there may have been reasons why it was felt that a special investigating unit should be entrusted with the task, the constitutional or moral questions remain:

That is, was this President or any other President within legal rights in taking the step of invading the private office of a psychiatrist or physician to obtain data which it was felt might throw some light on the actions of Mr. Ellsberg?

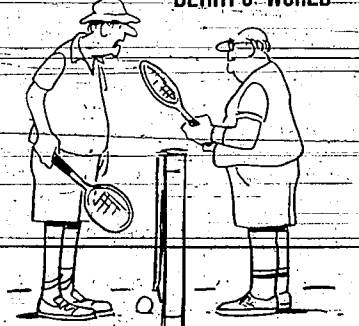

Liberals will undoubtedly argue that the invasion of privacy of a citizen was unwarranted and a violation of constitutional rights of being free from unreasonable search and seizure.

If there was solid conviction on the part of the President that the welfare of the nation was being jeopardized by Ellsberg, could his psychiatric records provide the needed information?

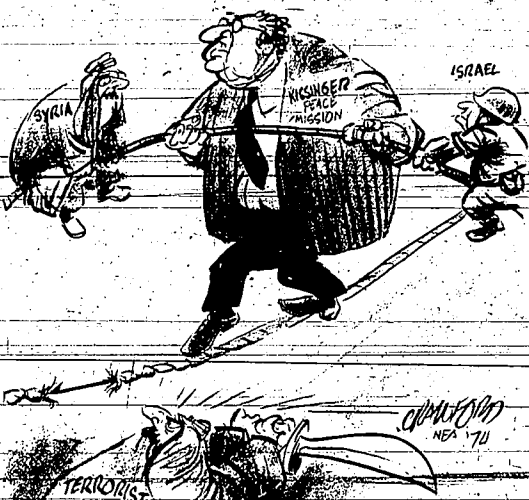

Was the search "unreasonable," since that is the language used in the Fourth Amendment? Should a warrant have been secured? Or would that violate the intent necessary in such an operation?

Judge Gesell may have gone to the heart of the matter when he said he wanted "to nail down clearly... whether or not the President exercised his authority... if he has it, and if my assumption at this point he does — to direct an investigation in disregard of the Fourth Amendment."

TERRORISTS

Game simple back then

WASHINGTON — In the bad old days, the best hitter for average around South Street was my sister, Lucy, who once drove a baseball wrapped in bicycle tape through the Delehanys' kitchen window, at least 375 feet from the flat stone we used for home plate in our backyard.

Lucy was not a pioneer in what Freudian journalists call the "sports sex revolution." She made the team because she was a good ball player, and we boys were not about to let the School Street Bunch sign her to a long-term, no-out clause.

In any case, her parents would not have gone round picketing our games because, they had better things to do, like cooking supper and putting out tomato plants. If kids wanted to play ball they just picked up an alley and played. It was necessary for Pa to take you down to some fancy office and register you for a Little League and suggest strongly that if you didn't get to pitch he'd have a little talk with the Board of Selectmen.

There were, in fact, three girls on our team — Lucy, Martha Blackburn and Molly Egan — and all were regulars. Lucy was not only a line-drive hitter, she was a cunning first baseman, adept at the hidden ball trick, and a notorious tyger of umpires. Martha may have been the strongest player on the team. She was the catcher, sans mask or belly protector. Molly Egan was the best ball hawk in any neighborhood outfield and lured opposing teams with her stily draped pants.

There is no way to say that those girls were neglected. They were all considered a major asset. We told them they were the stars of the game was winning, and it mattered not that Lucy and Molly were a touch too savvy and manipulative managers and both the one of her male teammates for messing up a double play.

The main thing was, parents kept their cotton-picking hands off our games. Strategy was a spur-of-the-moment thing, dependent upon the individual player's guile, or knavery, not upon a frantic, unintelligible signal from some bossy adult. If George Blackburn decided he could steal home he gave it a try, expecting praise from his teammates if he made it and censure if he failed.

ANDREW JOLLY

In fact, few parents ever saw a game, mostly because they were busy but also because they were not that interested. They were glad we were playing ball instead of robbing a bank, but in those days parents sent kids out to play and then left them alone except to rush out and render first aid for a split lipper or a fat mouth bruised by a brass-buck pitch.

Indeed, kids didn't like to have their parents around when they were playing ball. Nothing else. They played by their own rules, which were not to be confused with the Golden one, and parental supervision was frowned upon. A kid might be reprimanded if a squeeze reported that he had punched a School Street player in the nose, but with no grownup eyewitnesses about he could think up a good story to avoid sterner punishment.

Indeed, I want Pa watching any ball game I was in because he had been a superb shortstop as a youth, often forced by poverty to play without gloves, and any comparison he'd make would be odious. As a second baseman, I was not a candidate for rookie of the year with the Boston Red Sox.

Giscard prepares to wield power as French chief

(c) N. Y. Times Service PARIS. — As the French see it, Valéry Giscard d'Estaing won his office Sunday by a whisker, but it was a landslide when compared with the famous victory of John F. Kennedy over Richard Nixon in 1960. Kennedy was only 2 per cent of the vote over Nixon (49.7 against 49.5, with 6 per cent going to Senator Byrd) whereas Giscard gained the Élysée with a 1.4 per cent edge over Francois Mitterrand. But in this French election there was a far heavier tint of right-versus-left ideology than in the US-TPU vote.

before he became fascinated by Kennedy. He spent six months in 1961 traveling across the United States without a penny in his pocket, doing odd jobs. But already, with a fine military record and a first-class education behind him, he was marked by boundless ambition, encouraged by his father, the wealthy boss of his own party. Giscard has attained the goal he set himself, the most youthful chief of the French state in almost four generations. What does he intend to do with the power won?

SULZBERGER

almost as many enterprises as the late Joseph P. Kennedy. By 38 Giscard was a deputy; by 36 the youngest French finance minister of this country; by 1962, the new president had founded Obviously he hopes to unite a riven France momentarily split into rightwing and leftwing halves, becoming "president of all the French." But he intends to rule, not reign, not weakening the executive powers granted by the Fifth Republic's constitution to its president.

Internally, he will obviously have a difficult time applying his determination to curb inflation and keep the franc strong while carrying out some of his campaign pledges to socializing industry and wage burdens. His monetary views should help reaffirm a strong friendship with West Germany, now headed by Helmut Schmidt, with whom he will confer next month.

Giscard is unlikely to alter French nuclear policy or to change the odd-man-out NATO allegiance. His foreign policy emphasis will be on Europe, where he hopes to see France play a positive, yet more accepted role.

In this respect he opposes renegotiation of major terms covering Britain's Common Market entry. He wants to see the USA "pacify" but no sense a "participant" in the European organization. He would oppose consultation with Washington by the community, prior to reaching its own decisions.

It is improbable Giscard d'Estaing will initially sacrifice continuity to change in any fundamental sense. The France he seeks to mold will be more efficient and will give a more youthful and liberal impression. It is likely to produce a compromise formula — more leeway to Fourth republic politics under streamlined Fifth Republic executive.

OTA keeps low profile, drafts first report

WASHINGTON — Whatever became of the Office of Technology Assessment? The answer, planners say, is that the OTA is now quietly in business. It is keeping a low profile. It has not subverted sound government or visibly promoted the fortunes of Senator Kennedy. It has not done much of anything, but it bears watching.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Whether drugs that are the same chemically are the same therapeutically. Senator Kennedy and his fellow liberals generally have argued the public and the taxpayers are being bilked out of billions of dollars by paying higher prices for brand names.

When Daddario said this first study had been requested by Senator Kennedy's health subcommittee, it occurred to me that the investigating panel probably had been rigged to bring in a report that would make the senator happy. Apparently this is not so. The PMA rejects the panel, headed by Dr. Robert Berliner of Yale, as "knowledgeable and responsible." Daddario is determined that OTA's reports will be as objective as possible.

The bioequivalency study, due in June, will be his first test.

The OTA expects to get into solar energy this summer.

It has begun work on a study of automatic train controls, and probably will pursue this inquiry into the field of automation generally. On down the line are reports on marine resources and the technological impact of supertankers, offshore refineries, and deep-sea oil rigs.

All this will be useful. It may also be indicative of work being done by private institutions and by old-line executive departments. Daddario is to prove that OTA will provide objective, authoritative, and valuable reports not available to Congress from any other source.

On some pleasant day in spring next year, the reporter proposes to amble back down the Hill to D Street and to see what the picture is there.

Jewels' ownership creates gem of a problem

WASHINGTON — Dick, where is my matched set of emerald and diamond necklace and earrings? The last time I saw them they were here in the safe. "Uh, I think they are over in the chief of protocol's office, Pat." "What is my jewelry doing over there?" "Well, I don't know how to tell you this, but they're not your jewels."

set for $52,000, and you could raise the money without any trouble at all. The question was not whether you should pay it, but would the jeweler keep demanding more money later on. You said if it cost you more than $52,000, it would be wrong."

"National security, I couldn't let anyone know the Saudis had given us jewels. If I did, the Saudis would start giving us jewels and there would be no end to it." "You know, Dick, that's the only jewelry you ever gave me."

Mclaughlin. Let's ask him. Father, do you think I did anything wrong in not telling Pat the jewels I gave her came from Saudi Arabia? "Bless you, Mr. President. You did the right thing. It would have been immoral to tell her the truth."

Nixon subpoena rejection divides House panel

(C) Chicago Daily News. WASHINGTON—The House Judiciary committee, angered by President Nixon's brusque rejection of two subpoenas and detailed requests for evidence, appears divided over what to do about it.

Some members of the impeachment panel want to ask the courts to decide the issue. A few want to have Nixon cited for contempt of congress. Others say they are undecided.

Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., said solemnly that the president's defiance of the subpoenas and all future subpoenas was "a very grave matter."

"But the only action planned by Rodino was a meeting 'sometime next week' to consider Nixon's refusal to the inquiry into whether he is fit to hold office.

The soft-spoken chairman did, however, oppose any resort to the courts or to the contempt-of-congress route suggested by Rep. Wayne Owens, D-Utah and other panelists.

"Neither of these actions would satisfy the committee's responsibility," said Rodino. "The president has refused to 'comply' with our subpoenas. This only convinces some of us that we are not going to get cooperation."

When the President provided only partial transcripts in response to the panel's first subpoena for tapes of 42 Watergate conversations, the committee voted 23-18 to send Nixon a letter saying he had failed to comply. Except for one Republican and two Democrats, the vote was split along party lines.

The partisan division over the President's handling of the subpoena has deepened. Nearly every Republican asked about the rejection of the two latest subpoenas said Nixon was hurting his cause and increasing his chances of impeachment.

Rep. Robert McCloy, R-Ill., said he retained some "hope" that the president would modify his position to allow committee counsel to listen to the tapes, then advise with a sign.

"Maybe he's hoping. He may see that he's getting on the wrong side of his friends... he's adversely affecting his interest."

Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Ill., deplored the president's refusal to provide the tapes and documents sought in a subpoena that was approved by a 37-1 vote on May 16. "But the moderate Republican, listed as a 'probable' pro-impeachment vote, said he did not believe the failure to cooperate would be an impeachable offense standing alone.

"In the absence of a legal consultation or legal determination it's not going to sell as an article of impeachment to a lot of people," he said.

Railsback suggested House action to give the Judiciary committee the power to seek court enforcement of its subpoena, contending that if Nixon continued to defy a court order "he'd probably be impeached."

Conservative Republicans as Rep. James E. Hogan, R-Md., and Rep. Harold W. Robinson, R-Wis., agreed that the President's refusal to provide more information hurt his case. Hogan in noted that committee members could say that the evidence Nixon retained might have been damaging, even if it were not. "I'm sure that the President's suggestion that divulging the tapes and documents might weaken the presidency, contending that it would strengthen the office instead.

"I have great reverence for the office of the presidency," he added, "but our responsibility is to the American people."

REP. PETER RODINO "grave matter"

Aide cites data need

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Congress needs access to Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) information as much as the White House does, says a former aide to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

By obtaining information from the CIA, the lawmakers would "have it in their power to destroy forever the hobnobbing of an executive monopoly on inside information about the rest of the world," McGeorge Bundy Wednesday told a Senate committee, investigating ment secrecy.

"I think the Congress... should have the same power to commission intelligence estimates as the President and his subordinates," he said.

Plumbers case may be dropped

(C) New York Times Service. WASHINGTON—The House Judiciary committee Wednesday raised the possibility Wednesday that he would be forced to dismiss the case if the government refused to turn over evidence that was helpful to the defendants.

The judge, Gerhard A. Gesell, sternly told attorneys for the Watergate special prosecutor that he might have no other recourse. "If the court rules the documents are relevant and material, and the government refuses to produce them, the prosecution ends," he said.

"There's going to be no executive privilege or national security privilege here," he said. "If something is relevant to this case, the government is going to produce it."

The issue here is national security materials held by the government that the defendants contend is relevant to their defense. The prosecution, on the other hand, contends that the materials are not relevant.

"Tuesday, at a pretrial hearing, Gesell agreed to rule on whether he would issue subpoenas for the materials, and the government refused to produce them, the prosecution ends," he said.

"There's going to be no executive privilege or national security privilege here," he said. "If something is relevant to this case, the government is going to produce it."

Foreign force cut rejected

(C) New York Times Service. WASHINGTON—The House rejected Wednesday a 100,000-man reduction in troops abroad that approved a $474 million cutback in military aid to South Vietnam.

By a 260-163 vote, the House defeated a measure proposed by Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., of Massachusetts, the majority leader, that would have required a 100,000-man reduction in its 438,000 troops abroad in foreign countries by the end of 1976.

The administration, which had marshaled its forces against the amendment, was successful in having the House reject the measure.

Exam reset

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI)—About 300 sophomore midshipmen at the U.S. Naval Academy will have to take a second final examination in navigation later this week because some of their fellow students cheated on the first one, a spokesman for the academy said Wednesday.

Cdr. Robert K. Lewis, Jr., of the academy's public affairs office, issued a statement saying, "Naval academy officials have learned that a final examination has been compromised."

Here's 'Gate tape scoreboard

(C) Chicago Sun-Times. WASHINGTON—What does the House Judiciary Committee want from the House and what has it been given?

The committee has the tapes of 19 conversations—all recordings that had been requested by a grand jury and were surrendered only after the U.S. Court of Appeals here rejected the President's broad executive privilege claims. The conversations were identified by the special Watergate prosecutor as the crucial meetings during the period of the suspected cover-up.

However, his refusal to cooperate by making information available is a possible ground for impeachment in the opinion of many.

The 11 subpoenaed conversations are among 140 that were requested by the committee counsel by letter on April 19, of which 76 were said to relate to Watergate. The White House objected to the broad sweep, and the list was pared down to 11.

In addition, the committee asked for tapes of 20 conversations relating to the ITT antitrust matter and 42 others that were thought to concern milk price supports and campaign contributions from dairy co-ops.

The White House agreed Wednesday to provide a partial transcript of one ITT-related conversation on April 4, 1972—but no others.

Bus mishap claims 80

NEW DELHI (UPI)—As many as 80 persons drowned when a Calcutta-bound bus skidded into the Ganges river near Patna in eastern Bihar state, according to reports published today.

The Times of India said only two bodies were recovered from the swiftness of the India's sacred river during initial rescue attempts.

Police sources estimated that 90 persons including many children were aboard the bus when it veered off a ferry crossing on Tuesday.

They said most of the victims were trapped in their seats and only those standing in the open doorway escaped.

One driver sent to fasten a rope to the bus, submerged upside down in 15 feet of water, did not resurface and is also believed dead.

Nixon-Mitchell talk deleted

(C) Chicago Daily News. WASHINGTON—The White House deleted a 15-minute conversation between President Nixon and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell from the transcript of a taped conversation on March 22, 1973.

The deletion was confirmed by Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., after the tape was played behind closed doors for members of the House Judiciary Committee.

Rep. Thomas F. Railsback, R-Ill., said the Nixon-Mitchell talk at the end of that meeting was "political" but did not relate to the Watergate break-in or the cover-up.

Rodino said the conversation "did not entirely relate" to the impeachment inquiry but refused to elaborate.

The chairman also reported a 57-second "period of silence" on the President's recorded recollections of March 21, 1973, the day that he discussed payment of hush money to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt. Rodino said he did not consider that short gap significant, however.

Classy talk nets full term

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gordon Liddy may not talk much, but when he does, he sure talks classy. Things like "penultimate paragraph" and "my only body is captive, my intellect and will are free."

The mustache-donning former White House and Nixon campaign official, after 15 months in jail, popped back into federal court Wednesday with a slight burst through his self-imposed sound barrier.

U.S. District Judge John H. Pratt, seemingly as startled as everyone else to have Liddy speak up, listened and decided the only thing to do was erase a term of probation he had given Liddy just 10 days before.

The curious scenario began May 10, when Pratt convicted Liddy at a non-jury trial of two counts of contempt of Congress and sentenced him to a six-month suspended sentence plus a year's probation.

Liddy fired off a letter to Pratt May 15 protesting he couldn't possibly abide by the probationary terms because, among other things, they required him not to associate with known criminals.

"At the present time I live in close association with more than 700 such persons," he wrote—the judge—from the District of Columbia Jail.

The question from the Federal Water Resource Council, Higginson said, are comprehensive and would require months to properly answer, but the state has been allowed only two weeks for a reply.

Of special concern to Idaho, Higginson said, is the item suggesting "certain alternative solutions" that the federal government might employ to meet the energy-water requirements, including the interbasin transfer or declaration of federal jurisdiction over water rights, or re-allocation of existing storage.

Higginson said that there is a possibility that states might be faced with proposals for trading off water for other resources, such as "oil or coal," to meet needs of the future.

The director said he feels the federal agencies "have seized on the energy crisis to make a sound round opposition to interbasin transfer of water supplies.

Stephen C. Allred, director of the Idaho Water Resource Board, said he thinks the threat against Idaho's water resources "could be a unilateral action by the federal government to divert water from the Northwest" for use in coal or oil producing regions.

He warned that the action could take water needed for future development of the state, or needed at present.

Allred also said computer simulations on Idaho for the year 2020 indicate the critical need for the state at that time will be water.

Higginson and Allred said they hope to get strong statements from Idahoans on the proposals, to coordinate opposition with other Northwest states (a possibility) and to work with the congressional delegation to fight off the threat.

But Higginson warned, "we have to be on our guard to be sure we don't get outmaneuvered by the rest of the nation if the issue goes to Congress for a vote.

Allred added that in such a case, some of Idaho's "friends" might not be allies because they are producers of oil or coal.

Rare wine

ROY Sheppard holds a job of Chateau Latite, 1884, for $9,000 to an anonymous bidder at Huelbel's sixth national auction of rare wines in Chicago Wednesday. The (job) holds the equivalent of five 24-ounce bottles. (UPI)

Bottle of wine sells for $9,000

CHICAGO (UPI) — A Swiss syndicate of bankers submitted the winning bid of $9,000 Wednesday for a 98-ounce bottle of Chateau Latite 1884 at the Heublein's sixth National Auction of rare wines.

The job of Chateau Latite, called the greatest wine ever, was part of a record $37,246 sale.

English auctioneer J. Michael Broadbent, impeccably attired in black coat with a huge red carnation, gray vest, pink shirt, white collar and a gray and black polka dot tie, said the wine bought at the Chicago auction was "without exception, the best collection I've ever presented."

"There's always a risk with old bottles," Broadbent said. "I'd say I could open it here and now and have a most beautiful wine... a lovely mouthful."

Broadbent said the winning bid was sealed and placed by a man named Arnold Becker on behalf of a "Swiss syndicate" of bankers.

The largest single purchase at the day-long affair was Robert Balestra, 47, a restaurant operator from El Monte, Calif., who paid $21,960 for 30 lots of wine which included Burgundy, German and California wines, for himself and a group of fellow collectors.

Total sales were about $34,000 more than last year's auction held in Atlanta, and brought the six-year total to almost $1.3 million.

In all, 30,000 bottles of imported and domestic quality wine in 600 lots were sold.

John Neal, a fried chicken franchise holder from Columbia, Tenn., was the second highest purchaser at $14,427.

The largest single successful bid from the floor was the $4,000 Bert Bidwell of Aspen, Colo., offered for a barrel of Cabernet-Sauvignon private reserve, vintage 1973, from California's beautiful vineyard. The 40 barrels will yield 19 cases at a price of slightly more than $16 a bottle.

The oldest bottle in the collection, a 1782 Madeira, was sold for $10 to Jobe Bernard of the B & G Distributing Co. of Nashville, Tenn.

Corps action eyed

BOISE (UPI) — The assertion of jurisdiction over Lake Coeur d'Alene by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers could be a result of the Corps' running out of construction work in the rest of the nation, says the director of the Idaho Water Administration.

Keith B. Higginson told a Boise news conference Wednesday he thinks the action by the Corps is "along the same line" as the federal government "moving into more control over water resources.

"But the Corps traditionally has had jurisdiction over navigable waters," Higginson said.

Gem water issue clash expected

EMMETT, Idaho (UPI) — Idaho's Senior Senator has served notice that efforts by the federal government to divert water from the Gem State will meet with rough sledding in the Senator interior subcommittee on water and power resources.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, issued the warning Wednesday after learning of a meeting being called in June under the direction of the U.S. Water Resource Council chaired by Secretary of Interior Rogers C. B. Morton.

The meeting is to secure information from states on the use of water resources to meet national energy requirements, such as the use of water to extract oil from shale rock in Colorado.

"We can achieve self-sufficiency in energy without siphoning water out of Idaho," Church said.

"Idaho's future is too closely bound to the utilization of her own water resources to permit a diversion that would stunt our potential growth."

He also said that since any legislation authorizing interbasin diversions must pass through his subcommittee on water and power, he can "guarantee that any attempt to divert Idaho water elsewhere will meet with rough sledding."

"I am putting the Nixon Administration on notice that it had better check first with my subcommittee before it prepares elaborate plans to tap Idaho water," he said.

Cooperative urged by Idaho leaders

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's governor and a U.S. senator have suggested that the Corps of Engineers and state form a cooperative for the administration of navigable lakes if the U.S. Corps of Engineers will not relinquish jurisdiction over Lake Coeur d'Alene.

Sen. Frank Church and Gov. Cecil Andrus Wednesday wrote to Lt. Gen. W. C. Gribble Jr., chief of engineers for the Corps, advocating reversal of the decision by the Corps to assert jurisdiction over the northern Idaho lakes of Idaho, through legislation enacted during the last legislative session, has now clearly set forth the boundaries of its authority over all encroaching uses. In addition, the beds or water of the navigable lakes of the state," they said.

Renegade heiress hunted

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patricia Hearst, the renegade heiress-kidnapped nearly four months ago, was herself hunted today on charges of kidnapping and 19 other criminal offenses, carrying over potential prison terms to keep her behind bars the rest of her life.

"This is the first time I have ever heard of a kidnap victim becoming a kidnap suspect," said District Attorney Joseph Busch Wednesday as he announced the charges against Miss Hearst.

Busch said he is convinced "she is acting of her own free will" as a volunteer gunwoman of the Symbionese Liberation Army that kidnaped her 108 days ago in Berkeley, Calif.

The FBI and police continued one of the most intensive criminal hunts in California history for Miss Hearst, 20, and William and Emily Harris, 29, and 27, the last publicly identified SLA fugitives.

Miss Hearst's father, San Francisco Examiner editor Randolph Hearst, appeared drained and despondent by the latest turn in the case.

"There's nothing to say, really," he told newsmen at his Hillsborough home. "I don't think it makes any difference in the chance Miss Hearst will ever return safely home.

Miss Hearst, previously charged by the FBI along with the Harrises with violating federal weapons laws, was named on one count of kidnapping, one of kidnapping for the purpose of robbery, five counts of assault with intent to commit murder, five of assault with a deadly weapon, four of robbery, and three of unlawfully taking a vehicle.

The Harrises were named in all the charges, except one count of assault with a deadly weapon.

Most of the offenses allegedly took place last Thursday and Friday as Miss Hearst and the Harrises, according to the charges, robbed and shot up a sporting goods store and fled through the city, commandeering cars at gunpoint and taking the drivers hostage for periods from a few minutes up to 12 hours.

The police department removed guards from the site after squads of men meticulously sifted the rubble, saying they had taken as evidence anything "bigger than a golf ball."

In the process they recovered an arsenal of 19 weapons including a Browning automatic rifle, the BAR, much used as a light machine gun in World War II and Korea, and an unexpected sixth body, that of Camilla Hal.

Souvenir-hunters find items missed by police

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Souvenir-hunters poking in the ashes of the home where six members of the Symbionese Liberation Army made their fiery last stand have turned up a number of items missed by police searches.

Neighbors said two men carried off a bathtub from the ruins Wednesday, saying they intended to make money selling it as "the last place, Patty Hearst took a bath."

The passport of William Harris, still a fugitive with his wife Emily and Patricia Hearst, was reportedly found by two college students, and others found personal documents and a group photo of the SLA, posed with guns before their seven-headed cobra flag.

Harris' passport showed that he made trips to Spain, Poland and Russia recently, according to television station KABC, which said it was found in the ruins by two UCLA students.

The passport was turned over to the FBI, the station said the FBI would not comment.

Dwight Williams, 22, found a crumpled, charred snapshot, showing three men and four women, carrying rifles or automatic weapons, posed before the SLA flag. The women—all of whom appeared to be wearing wigs, as the SLA women have frequently done for disguise purposes—could not be identified.

The men were identified as Donald Defreze, 30, self-proclaimed "Field Marshal General" of the SLA, William Wolfe, 23, who both died in the gunbattle Friday, and Harris.

Other searches found SLA literature, spent cartridge cases and newspaper clippings. The finds were turned over to Appeal published

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In a front-page message, the San Francisco Examiner Wednesday asked Patricia Hearst and Bill and Emily Harris to "stop running and think."

The Hearst-owned newspaper said: "As long as you run, you hasten disaster. You are hunted by an army of police. There is no safe place to hide. Death may be only a breath away."

"But you can surrender and safely

"It's as easy as this number: 781-2424."

"Ask for the Examiner city desk at any hour."

"We promise all the help we can give you. We will act as your intermediary. Within the law, we will do everything possible to protect you from harm."

"In the last few days we have talked with your loved ones. They want you back, and want to help you."

"The message was signed: The Editors."

BURLEY — The Idaho Department of the Veterans of World War I of the USA, Inc., will hold its annual convention at the Ponderosa Inn, Burley, on June 3, 4, and 5.

Hugh H. Judd, Rupert, department commander, will conduct the meetings. New officers will be elected and installed June 5. All members are urged to attend.

Historical society to meet Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — Clay Asher, Twin Falls, one of four young men who retraced the Lewis and Clark trail last summer will appear before the Twin Falls County Historical Society Tuesday.

The meeting will be held in the Idaho Power Auditorium at 8 p.m. Asher will show slides taken along the trail and recount some of the experiences of the modern day trail blazers who followed Lewis and Clark in their route from Ft. Clatsop on the Oregon coast to Dillon, Mont., about 435 miles. From Dillon the Twin Falls man and his companions launched canoes and other craft and floated down the Missouri river some

Parks official speaks

GLENN'S FERRY — Ms. Billie Meuleman, Idaho State Parks public information agent, Boise, was a guest at the weekly Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

She spoke on facilities at Ponderosa, Frazag and Massacre Rocks State Parks. She stated that camping sites are for rent in these parks, supplied with cots, and cooking camp stoves, for those without campers. These sites may be reserved ahead of time. It is hoped that within another year the Three Island Crossing park may also be equipped with such camping sites.

Mrs. Ray Whitl read a draft of a letter she submitted for the members approval, which would be sent to all residents of Glenn's Ferry, asking help in the cleanup campaign.

President Gerald Bybee reported that release forms are now ready to be signed for the removal of old cars and car bodies. Anyone who is unable to do clean-up work is asked to call Mr. Bybee, Larry Stevenson or Chester Pence.

Larry Stevenson reported that the city had drawn up a leash law, but no action had been taken on it. He also announced that the LDS Church will have a carnival and barbecue at the Hull Memorial Park on May 31st.

Seniors honored

School supporters unit organized at Valley

HAZELTON Officers for the newly organized Valley School Organization Supporters held their first executive meeting to discuss plans for the year.

The organization is an outgrowth of the Valley PTA that voted to disorganize at their last meeting this spring. The decision to dissolve was made after a year of discussion by members who feel that their money can be put to better use by keeping it in their own school system.

Mrs. Retha Anderson, former PTA president, notified the National PTA of the Valley PTA Chapter's decision by letter last month.

The valley SOS, as it will be called (for short), will be headed by Mrs. Rex Gardner, president. Mrs. Ruth Olson will be the new first vice president; Mrs. Ed. Ann Maheuer, second vice president; Sally Stigle, secretary; and Mrs. Ruth Bruning, treasurer.

The aim of the new organization will be to be of service and helpful to the schools, instead of just a fund raising one.

The executive board proposed to make a group of resource people available for the teachers to draw from when handier arts, art, or other special projects are needed to enhance the educational process. They want to encourage more art and drama in the schools.

The board planned for a concessions booth at the July 4th celebration in Hazelton. They adopted a letter explaining the goals and intent of the new group that will be mailed to all Valley school patrons this fall.

Worker at BLM office gets award

SHOSHONE — Don Williams, a Shoshone District employe of the Bureau of Land Management, has received the BLM's Incentive Award.

Williams' award is a recognition of improvement of rangeland drill cars which simplifies the changing of broken wheels, assures better wheel alignment and reduces down time during range seeding operations.

St. Louis Mayor John Pooler is a former FBI agent.

What do you do now?

— Bid five diamonds. Your hand looks terrible, but you do have that nice looking king of hearts.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Today's hand represents a lesson in conceit. You arrive at four spades in a match-point game, after a Stayman response to your notrump opening bid.

West starts out with three rounds of diamonds. You discard a club on dummy's jack and are ready to operate.

If you are a really conceited player you see that all you have to do to make an overtrick is to finesse successfully in trumps and clubs. Furthermore, you will surely guess that East has two aces so you lead a trump to dummy's ace and return the jack. The finesse loses and a trump is led back. Now it is up to you to find the queen of clubs. Maybe, you do. Maybe you don't, in any event, the overtrick has disappeared.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding four diamonds your partner has bid two spades. What do you do now?

DEAR ABBY: Maybe this is none of my business but I'm worried about my 14-year-old granddaughter. She is a beautiful child and very mature for her age. That's the trouble, I'm afraid. She's growing up too fast for her own good. She turned 14 last Christmas and her boyfriend (he is 21) gave her a suede coat trimmed with real fur. He also gave her suede boots and a purse to match. That's not all. He gave her a portable TV and stereo set with maybe two dozen albums, plus a ten-pound box of candy. I don't think a girl that age should be allowed to accept such expensive presents from a man, do you? The girl's father (my son) wasn't too pleased, but the mother thought it was just wonderful, and she even bragged to all her friends about it.

Worried grandmother

I can't talk to my daughter-in-law because I'm an old fogey, but I'd like to know what you think about this. I'm so afraid that the child is headed for trouble. What can I do?

DEAR GRAM: Nothing, unfortunately, since her mother thinks it's "wonderful." Let's hope your granddaughter doesn't have any rough sledding before she finds out there isn't any Santa Claus.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a senior in high school. Lots of the kids at this school get drunk, smoke grass and have sex. They think it's cool. I don't do any of these things, and they call me a square. It's not that I'm better than the others; I just don't want to participate in unlawful or immoral activities. Are there many other kids who don't follow the crowd and try to be cool?

DEAR LONER: Plenty. Those "cool" characters usually end up in hot water up to their necks. In your case, square is smart.

DEAR ABBY: So many older people grumble about how neglected they are. I wonder if it ever occurred to them that if they made an effort to be good company, they might attract more people. I realize that nobody can be cheerful all the time, but people who talk of nothing but illness, BURLEY — A 60th Wedding Anniversary open house will honor Mr. and Mrs. L. LeRoy Crane, Burley, Sunday. The Crane's children plan the reception for 2 to 8 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerratt at 300 South 190 East in Burley. All friends and relatives are invited. There is a request for no gifts.

Red-faced officials miss streakers' sex

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Memorial Stadium Monday night as Chancellor Archie Armstrong and female Dykes was completing the commencement speech. Applause and laughter rose from the 3,000 graduating seniors as the streakers passed the restroom where three members of the board of regents and Gov. Robert B. Docking sat. Two men, wearing caps and open graduate gowns made their dash down the steps of death, hardships, present and past, will find that even close relatives give up, and pay only an occasional "duty" visit. "Take my mother," My husband and I drove 30 miles to take her out for dinner on Mother's Day. My husband has a wonderful sense of humor, and he tried so hard to entertain her, but he couldn't get her to brighten up no matter how hard he tried. She spent the whole time talking about illness, and death, and everybody's bad luck, and all the depressing subjects in the world. We could have spent much more time with her, but four hours of her company put us both so down in the dumps we couldn't wait to leave. I was depressed for two days afterwards. Abby, she's so much better off than many others, but she complains constantly, throwing constant digs about how nobody ever comes to see her. I wish she realized that not ALL older people are avoided. Only the crepe-hangers. Please print this. She may see it and get the hint.

DEAR HAD IT: Don't bet the rent. If she sees it, she'll probably apply it to some of her friends.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 62700, L.A. Call, 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Opinions sought on fire requirements for theatre planned at Ketchum

KETCHUM — Outsiders' opinions on fire-safety requirements will be sought before the Ketchum Odd Fellows Hall is opened, as a Richard Kessler appeared before the City Council Monday night seeking a decision to proceed with plans for a June opening of the Magic Lantern Theatre in the hall.

However, Mayor Bill Brand, Ketchum fire chief, said Kessler should be required to install a stand pipe inside the building. A stand pipe, Brand said, would insure enough water pressure in case of a fire. Kessler told the council he was willing to have a fire hydrant installed outside the hall. According to Kessler, a stand pipe installed inside would cost $5,400 and would be over half the cost of remodeling the building. Kessler listed safety procedures he had followed in remodeling. Four exits upstairs and two downstairs, according to Kessler, would afford sufficient exiting requirements. In addition, the old wooden building is being completely rewired with condition. Ionization detectors will be installed in the building to detect combustion. The detectors will automatically alert the fire department if no one is in the building, Kessler said. Brand insisted water pressure in the city's main was inadequate in parts of the city to maintain a sufficient flow. One hydrant connected to the fire pump last week showed only twenty pounds of pressure, he said. According to Brand, a stand pipe inside the building would insure enough pressure in the lines at least to contain the fire and add needed protection for buildings adjacent to the Odd Fellows Hall. Kessler contended "the material does burn. "As it burns," he said, "it creates a gas and smoke. Several people have been asphyxiated from fire-retardant materials and many businesses are thinking of not using it anymore." Brand contended the four-inch pipe going onto the property was not adequate and could not be counted on to provide enough pressure. "The goal of the fire department is to extinguish the fire," Brand said. "But I'm not the fire department," Kessler said. "At just what point is a citizen responsible for fire equipment? There's been a lot of talk about protecting surrounding property, yet the surrounding property is doing very little to protect me."

TF man, 18, faces charges

TWIN FALLS — Charles Anthony Ardisonne, 18, Twin Falls, was arrested by Twin Falls county sheriff's office Tuesday afternoon and charged with destruction of property.
 Sheriff Paul Corder said the charges involve the destruction of some $30,000 worth of electronic equipment and other items at KMVT television station April 13. Bond was set at $100,000 and Ardisonne was being held in the county jail in lieu of bond.

Rupert OK's project bid

RUPERT — The Rupert A Street Interceptor sewer project is under way after a long series of interruptions.
 The town of City Council approved a low bid for the project at a meeting Tuesday night. Galey Construction Co., Boise, was awarded the contract with a bid of $358,664.
 Bids were submitted last month for the project but could not be legally accepted until the city budget was increased to cover unexpectedly high costs.
 The Boise firm's bid was about $158,000 over the amount budgeted last year.
 The city will also handle grant funds for the project. High School sewer project, and it is required to show the money in the budget.
 A petition to add $500,000 to the budget was circulated among Rupert voters over the weekend. It was signed by 746 voters and accepted Tuesday night. There are about 900 voters in all.
 Rupert's sewer work is expected to receive about 90 per cent federal funding from the Environmental Protection Agency. The federal agency is also expected to help with the Milliton High School project.
 The council decided to budget $44,844 in federal revenue sharing funds for the purchase of city equipment. These funds are earmarked for capital improvement purposes by the federal government and must be spent for purchase of equipment or for construction.

2 candidates eye Gem post

JEROME — Clair Ricketts, Jerome, and John H. Brooks, Gooding, today announced candidacies for State Legislative District 23 seats.
 Both men are seeking the Republican nomination for the district's two seats. Gordon Hollifield, Jerome County farmer, announced his candidacy two weeks ago.
 Ricketts presently serves as Jerome County Republican Central Committee chairman, having held the post for eight years. He has been precinct committeeman and state central committeeman from Jerome County.
 He operates a 240 acre farm southeast of Jerome with his brother, Dean Ricketts, and his father, C. Ricketts. He was graduated from Jerome High School and attended the College of Idaho. He served in the U. S. Air Force during World War II.
 Brooks is a Gooding County rancher and farmer and was named outstanding young farmer by the Gooding News in 1971.
 He is a member of the board of directors of the Gooding County Farm Bureau and is past president of the Young Farmers division of the Farm Bureau.
 The two seats are now filled by Earl Greenwall, R. Jerome, who is not seeking reelection, and Vernon Roverscroft, R. Tuttle, who is an announced candidate for lieutenant governor.

Shale permit ordered

KETCHUM — A construction contractor here has been asked to apply for a county permit to haul shale on Forest Service land.
 Willamette Construction, which contracted to haul shale from a pit in Independence Gulch, said Blaine County Planning and Zoning Administrator Bob Barnes asked him to apply for a permit.
 Forest Service officials will consult their own attorneys tomorrow for a ruling, according to Tommy Parr, Ketchum ranger for the Sawtooth Range. Parr said he didn't understand where the county thought they had the right to jurisdiction on Forest Service lands.
 Blaine County attorney Steve Bolter told the Planning and Zoning Commission, according to Barnes, county jurisdiction extended to gravel pits on Forest Service lands.
 "The matter of ownership doesn't make any difference," according to Bolter. "Under the county zoning ordinance, there is a provision regulating gravel pit operations," he said.

Blaine decisions split

HAILEY — One decision was upheld and one reversed Wednesday night by a board considering Gordon Paving and Dawson Ramsey appeals.
 Gordon Paving was appealing to the Blaine County Zoning Board of Appeals a County Planning and Zoning Commission ruling upholding a variance request which stated Gordon Paving would move their base pit from Hidden Hollow by the end of the 1973 building season.
 Dawson Ramsey was asking the board to reverse a recommendation by the Planning and Zoning Commission which denied a change of zone north of Hailey to commercial.
 The pit is leased from the Forest Service by Laverly Laverly. She said the Forest Service gave her the renewable permit three years ago. Shale was taken out of the pit in 1972, according to Laverly, and the county did not ask for a permit, she said.
 The shale is sitting on an unpatented mining claim filed by Laverly. District ranger Parr said she was selling the shale to uncover part of a plotted mineral vein there.
 Laverly said administrator Barnes had asked her also to apply for a permit. She said she will wait until the Forest Service seeks legal advice from attorneys.
 Barnes has said if the county has the jurisdiction to tax, then it has jurisdiction to say what happens on that land.
 Bolter has advised the commission they have jurisdiction also on all building permits on Forest Service lands. The commission issued permits for the construction of a restaurant on Bald Mountain in 1972 to Sun Valley Co.

Substation built sans Gem parks OK

HAILEY — The Parks and Recreation Department received ownership of the area in 1973 and has been cooperating with national studies to determine the best protective program for the area, which has been recognized internationally for its fossil deposits, according to Bly's letter.
 Bly urged the firm to "recognize the fact that the state may request complete renovation of the distributed area or other appropriate measures."
 Bob Brown, Idaho Power public relations official, said Thursday the firm has agreed to the stipulations and would begin compliance as soon as possible, he said. Brown, who has visited the site twice, said it was "in better condition now than when we moved in to start construction."
 Bly said Thursday no fossils had been disturbed, but the issue was "just a matter of Dawson Ramsey wishes to build General Motors sales and service plant in an area now zoned for construction of such a plant.

ROSSETTE HAKE, secretary for the Board of Appeals, said the announcement would come later today on the rulings. She said the information could not be given out until it is filed with the commission.
Gordon Paving continued the Planning and Zoning Commission had no legal power to make the decision, take away a property right and has not zoned any area in the county as industrial. They argued the cost would be prohibitive to move.

MV water users protest

LEON — Leon Grieve of American Falls Reservoir District No. 2 said that with the diminished capacity of the reservoir "our stockholders are facing quite a burden." Having to monitor flows would add to that burden, he said.
 Mark Samuany, son of a Twin Falls farmer, spoke in favor of EPA regulation, but called for more clarification of how it would work.
 With the regulations being applied to irrigation companies rather than individuals "it appears to me that there won't be any controls" on the individual farmer, he said.
 He said that the sill is so heavy that it is like "some people's coffee."
 He said there is an economic problem but that the canal company could probably handle it, although he claimed no expertise on economics. Grieve said the monitoring program should not cost as much as some estimates.
 He said the equipment to measure the flow, the turbidity, and the suspended sediments should cost only about $3,000 and that a lot of the tests can be made by a person working in the field.

Joann Marie, who identified herself as a visitor from San Francisco, said that the financial burden would not be so great if the farmers worked collectively in the monitoring.
Tom Olmstead, a director of the Twin Falls Canal Company, termed sill retention ponds an "expensive luxury." He said he spent about $1,000 for a pond taking the silt from 15,000 acres.
Olmstead also protested that as a director of the canal company, he should be responsible for his neighbors dirty water.
EPA regional counsel Ted Rogowski said that canal company officials could be fined or jailed for letting the dirty water flow out of the company's system.
Grieve added, "I think you have to see that the law is going to be tempered with some justice."

TF planner eyes citizen involvement

TWIN FALLS — Planner David Richey will seek "neighborhood" citizen involvement in writing the Twin Falls County land use plan.
 "But a vital question has to be answered before he can get started — how big is a 'neighborhood'?"
 Meeting Wednesday with his boss, the Twin Falls Joint Planning Council, Richey proposed that the City of Twin Falls be broken up into as many as 15 areas. "Neighborhood" meetings would then be held in each of the areas, he said, and citizen task forces would be set up to work with the planning staff in writing the land-use plan.
 That method is not producing a plan for the city alone by December of 1975, according to Richey.
 Some members of the joint council, however, objected to Richey's proposal because it would limit citizen involvement in the rest of the county until the Twin Falls City portion is completed.

"I hope you could meet in the other communities in the Twin Falls County," said Mayor James L. Johnson, commissioner and chairman of the planning panel. The other cities "are going to feel the step-children if they are left out," he said.
 Leonard also said Richey's suggested time span for the Twin Falls City plan alone "isn't justifiable."
 After the meeting Wednesday, Richey said it "might take another year" — to December of 1976 — to get citizen input and draft a land use plan for the rest of the county. (Twin Falls City is tasked first to write its own plan.)
 Some members of the council suggested that the entire county be divided into "neighborhoods." Under that plan, the City of Twin Falls would be split into two or three sections and joined with large parts of the county for the citizen involvement project.
 Alvin Harris, a planning council member, said that method would "integrate farmers and city residents." Good integration of the two types of problems "is needed," Harris said.
 But Richey indicated that he might have trouble coordinating the public participation if it covers extremely large areas.
 "I hate to get it so broad that I have to juggle too many agencies," such as highway and school districts, Richey said.
 The planning council will make a final decision on the "neighborhood" split up at its next meeting on June 19.
 The council will also put out a land use planning questionnaire to Twin Falls County residents next month, according to Jean Miller, Twin Falls city manager and secretary of the group. He said the 14-question survey should be sent out by June 10.
 Miller said the questionnaire "hopefully will go out to more than 10,000 households" and 12,000 households may be covered by the survey.

Strikers get public assistance

BURLEY — Striking Grain Millers union members were given public assistance Wednesday.
 Workers who have been on strike at the Heyburn Jr Simplot plant since May 2 received food stamps in Minidoka County and commodities in Cassia County. Cassia county does not have a food stamp program.
 Theo Murdoch, regional director of financial and medical assistance for the state Department of Environment and Community Services, said that workers on strike are not entitled to any other form of public welfare under Idaho law.
 Before this week, there had been almost no show of interest in welfare by strikers.
 Strikers will begin to receive the benefits from the union Thursday, according to an announcement by union officials.

Obsidian landowners propose lot sale

BY BART QUENELL
Times-News Writer
OBSIDIAN — Landowners holding 305 lots on the west side of Obsidian have volunteered to sell their property to the Forest Service.
 Ken Dittmer, Sawtooth National Recreation Area private lands superintendent, said the SNRA has had enough volunteers willing to sell to pay out $15 million in three months if money were available.
 SNRA Forest Service regulations released in March ruled that all land west of US Highway 93 through Obsidian would be classified agricultural. The Forest Service gave non-conforming landowners three options in vacating their property.

They could sell their land outright to the Forest Service; or reserve the right of use until Dec. 31, 1988, taking less money for the land at that time. The third alternative was to trade with the Forest Service for land near the designated communities of Sawtooth City and Upper and Lower Stanley.
 Under the original act in 1972, 756,000 acres of Forest Service and private land was placed under the jurisdiction of the SNRA. The purpose of the act was to preserve the environmental and aesthetic values in the area.
 Forest Service rules released this year said the west side of Obsidian and the Pettit Lake subdivision would be returned to agricultural use.

Under the law all dwellings on those sites will have to be removed eventually. The Forest Service is delegated to pay "fair market price" for the land.
 Presently Dittmer said there are six options to purchase land on specific assumptions before the Secretary of Agriculture. The secretary must approve the purchase before the transactions can be settled.
 The Forest Service has been asked by landowners to appraise much of the west side of Obsidian, according to Dittmer. He said no business have signed purchase options with the Forest Service yet.
 All of the 365 lots will have to be bought outright, Dittmer said, since no dwellings or developments exist on them. Several requests have been made, he said, for trading non-conforming lands with acreages in the designated cities.

 "We're in no position to trade yet," Dittmer said.
 He said communities were working toward adequate land control but a community development plan would have to be adopted before lands could be traded.
 Opposition has been most strong in a segment of Obsidian residents and the Custer county commissioners, who insist the Forest Service policy of moving businesses and homes will cut the tax base of the county.

$2,500 car tag memory by 1975

DETROIT (UPI)—The $2,500 American-built car will be nothing but a memory when Detroit puts its flashy new 1975 models on sale this fall.

U.S. automakers introduced subcompacts and were battling to put price tags below $2,000 on them. The latest indication that inflation and government-mandated safety and emission equipment beat them came Tuesday when American Motors Corp. announced its boosting prices by an average of $27.

The cheapest U.S.-built car — an AMC Gremlin — costs $2,481 and will climb another $200-$300 — this — fall. Last summer the Gremlin carried a base price of $2,098, just $98 more than when it was introduced on April 1, 1970.

While AMC's Gremlin has increased $482 since it was first introduced, its competitors' subcompact prices have gone up $53 from its original $1,919 price to its present $2,482. The Chevrolet Vega, which boasted a $2,291 sticker when it was introduced in 1970, now costs $2,504.90.

A spokesman for the federal Cost of Living (C.I.C.) said, however, "The price increases are clearly not in accordance with the commitment made with the council last December."

The AMC increases followed the lead of its chief competitors who boosted prices by as much as $168 this month.

With two increases this month totaling $158, Chrysler Corp.'s 1974 model now costs $498 more than the final price of 1973 models. Ford Motor Co. increased prices an average of $163 this month, making its total for the model year $54, while General Motors' average increase was $128, including $105 this month.

All the automakers have promised "substantial" increases on 1975 models — up to $165 alone for the catalytic mufflers to control noxious exhausts.

'Long way down'

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI)—California Highway Patrolman Tom Noble made a life-saving grab for a man who threatened to leap from the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge Tuesday.

Noble held Eugene Villalobos, 53, until other officers and bridge workers could pull him to safety on the lower deck of the span.

"That water began to look an awful long way down," Noble said. "I kind of wonder about it now."

Old-time remedies effective

Dr. GEORGE C. THOSTESON

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me something about the poison ivy? My daughter has it and it spreads more and more. We just cannot seem to find a remedy or even something for relief. It is "weeping" badly and "feels" sore. — Mrs. E. E. "Poison ivy doesn't spread although it seems to, because not all the exposed spots break out simultaneously."

For poison ivy, the well-tried remedies of calamine lotion, and sometimes starch-baths, usually suffice. But if the trouble continues to spread after a few days, it may mean that some secondary infection has started on top of the ivy poisoning. For that, I have to say see your doctor or a dermatologist. Severe cases need help by a specialist.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: You confuse me by stating that honey has the same effect on diabetes as sugar. My thoughts always were that honey has no sugar in it. I even use it in hot water—for a drink—in the morning and on cereals, with lots of it. — W. H.

Your "thoughts" about honey are dangerous because honey is almost entirely sugar, which is why it is so sweet. And as dangerous as the sugar bowl, for anyone with diabetes.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is chewing gum "digestible"? Is there harm in feeding it regularly to a year-old baby, to be eaten and swallowed like candy? We need your answer. — Mrs. J. H.

No, chewing gum is not digestible. It will pass readily through the digestive tract, though, so no worry on that score.

All the same I would never give it to a year-old baby, because if some of it got into the baby's windpipe you could have a dreadful emergency. A little piece of it could block the windpipe and cause strangulation, which is one of the dangers of babyhood, whether it's a bead, a button, piece of a plastic toy or whatnot.

A distant second among reasons for not giving gum to a small baby is that sooner or later they learn to chew it enough to make it sticky, and then get it stuck in their hair or on papa's easy chair or in the carport.

By STU MURRELL — High water and snow on roads at higher elevations may limit both the success and access for area fishermen the opening weekend of the general fishing season May 25. The heavy snowpack will prevent fishermen from

Worm infestation of trout not hazardous for humans

MOSCOW — Hungry fishermen shouldn't be alarmed to find a snarl of spaghetti-like worms wrapped around the entrails of cutthroat and rainbow trout when the fishing season opens in southeastern Idaho this spring, according to fish health experts at the University of Idaho.

Squiggly problem

JIM CHACKO, a graduate student at the University of Idaho College of Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences, has a three-inch philonema worm from the body cavity of a southeastern Idaho cutthroat trout. Chacko said fishermen will find the parasites in cutthroat and rainbow trout this year, as in past years, but he assured that the squiggly worms are not a human health hazard and can be removed during cleaning. Fish health researchers at the college are studying the philonema problem; however, because natural trout reproduction may be hindered by acute infections of the worms.

Forestry, Wildlife and Range Sciences graduate student from India, said the worms will show up again this year and usually they will turn a few flutter-prone stomachs and raise complaints from irate cooks. "However," he assured, the worms are not a human health hazard and can be extracted from the fish during cleaning. But beyond the objectionable sight of the squiggly parasites is a biological problem that could be adversely affecting natural trout reproduction in the Snake River Valley, Chacko pointed out.

Chacko said that during last summer's investigations he found the worms, called philonema, in 80 per cent of the cutthroat and rainbow trout sampled from 12 different rivers between Palisades Reservoir and Rigby in Madison and Bonneville counties. Funded by the Bureau of Reclamation, Chacko has been studying the philonema problem hoping to find a control method. Working towards a doctoral degree under the college's renowned fish health researcher, Dr. George Klotz, Chacko said a minimum of two years is still needed to complete an extensive study that will provide control information.

Meanwhile, samples of trout, plankton and silt in the Snake River between Palisades and Wolf Flat are now being taken to determine seasonal fluctuations in the parasite population and learn more about the philonema life cycle. "The ultimate aim of any parasite is to get into the final host and propagate the species," said Chacko. He explained that female philonema give birth to young while still in the body cavity of the trout.

But the philonema life cycle could be very complicated, he said, because there are many trout food sources that might become infected with larval stages of a parasite. Chacko said these food sources should be identified and examined. Philonema have been found by previous investigators in the body cavities of sockeye salmon, trout and mountain hilt fish as well as rainbow and cutthroat trout in parts of Canada and other western states, Japan and Russia, according to Chacko.

Spring turkey hunt becomes favorite

Gobbler hunting in the springtime is turkey hunting at its best. That, at least, is the opinion of two experienced wild turkey hunters. One of them, Walt Them, a McCall school teacher, bagged a 20-pound gobbler last week and was on his way home by 9 a.m. on opening day. Them has previously hunted turkeys in the southern United States. Bill Platts, Boise, Idaho zone fishery biologist, United States Forest Service, one of many "successful hunters," reported an outstanding experience. "This was my second unsuccessful turkey hunt in five times out," Platts said. "I stalked, pussy-tooted, even crawled right up on two Coyotes, but no way could get in range of a wily tom. They're smart, especially in the springtime."

The handover at one of the places Platts hunted said turkeys responded to mechanical call devices about the last two weeks of April. Sounds of wild gobbling send the same spine-tingling chills down a spine as the bugling of a bull elk in mid-September. Platts, who previously has bagged two tom turkeys and one he gobbler, says his recent spring outing was more pleasurable, though less successful, than any of the past. Convinced on opening day of Idaho's first spring gobbler hunt, Dick Norrell, a supervisor for the Idaho Department of Game and Fish, said turkey hunting success apparently had been about as forecast very well but some outstanding experiences had been reported. He added that turkey tag sales were not expected to be high. One harvest report card has been received but seven gobblers are known to have been taken so far. The successful gobbler

Jordan may consider WFL offer

DALLAS (UPI) — Dallas Cowboys linebacker Lee Roy Jordan said Wednesday he is not shopping for a World Football League contract but he might not throw out a good offer if it were handed to him. "I feel like I'm never going to rule out the possibility of something that will help me in my future although I feel like my future is in Dallas, Tex.," Jordan told radio station WFEA.

Jordan, who is in his option year and is still negotiating with the Cowboys, said his loyalty was to the Cowboys as long as they were loyal to him. He said his real loyalty is to football. Jordan also criticized 134th District Judge Charles Long's ordering WFL teams to stop trying to sign Cowboys players to future contracts. "I think it's ridiculous," he said. "The ruling was very unfair to anyone not in the position to go out and seek future employment for themselves, especially when they have the opportunity to better themselves."

At least one WFL team has indicated it would be happy to have Jordan on its squad but was reluctant to test Long's ruling which is being appealed by the WFL, Jordan, saying "I'm not a crusader," also indicated his reluctance to test the court.

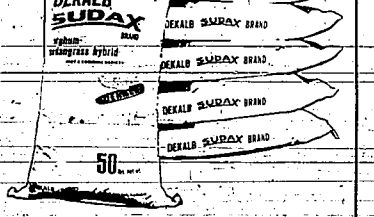

Bruin boss won't sign contract

BOSTON (UPI) — Boston Bruins Coach Ben Guadolin left for his Burrill, Ont., home Wednesday without signing a new contract with the National Hockey League team. Guadolin, whose contract expired at the end of this season, had said he was looking for a long-term agreement and a greater voice in the decision making process of the Bruins. "Bruins' Managing Director Harry Sinden, who met Wednesday with Guadolin, said, "For the moment, we are at an impasse over the length of the contract."

Sinden added that trades and other dealings with personnel were the general manager's province. The coach is involved with performance on the ice, although his coach has always been consulted on trades. But he was not involved with the terms of player contracts and "things of that nature."

Guadolin, who took over the Bruins in February 1973 after Tom Johnson was shuffled upstairs, reportedly is asking for a four or five-year contract. His first Bruins team finished second in the NHL East and was knocked out in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs while this season's team wound up first but lost to the Philadelphia Flyers in the playoff finals.

officer Riggins, said at least one other bearded male turkey was taken in the area opening weekend. Also two gobblers were reportedly taken near Arrowrock Reservoir by personnel from Mountain Home Air Force Base.

Banished owners try to prove Indy track at fault

Trapshoot champions

Ledbetter, Ochsner top TF trapshooters

Ben Ledbetter, who proved the best in the state, and LaVerne Ochsner walked off with honors Wednesday at the conclusion of the Twin Falls Gun Club's spring trapshoot series.

Ledbetter was the top scratch shooter while Mrs. Ochsner won the women's top prize. Ledbetter, after shooting 8,800 records this spring, also took Nov. 1 for the state according to the computer reader from state. Harry Gistler second Ledbetter in the scratch series.

Jim Sisson won the top handicap prize, seconded by Gerald Luther. Brett Nelson was the top junior. Gary Edol 'the leading one' and Melody Maxfield took the "Triad" award.

A total of 35 teams, including 175 individual shooters, competed over the eight-week series which this year had anything but good weather. The 175 figure makes the local club the largest in Idaho.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Attorneys for banished car owners hammered at the U.S. Auto Club and the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Wednesday in an effort to show that the defendants were at fault in cancelling the runs of five potential qualifiers for Sunday's 500-mile race.

Don A. Tabbert, a former U.S. attorney for southern Indiana, called Speedway owner Tony Hulman, Indy vice-president Joe Cloutier and the track's chief steward Tom Blanford, to testify during an eight-hour hearing that was recessed until 10:15 a.m. on Thursday.

Tabbert requested that presiding Judge Frank A. Symmes call a night session so that all witnesses could be heard, but he was overruled by the judges' adamant decision for a lengthier recess.

Five owners — Ron Woods Racing, Rasmussen Racing Products, Carl Gehlhausen, K and F Racing and Webster racing — are suing to force ICA and the Speedway to give them a special qualifying event to prove their vehicles can go faster than the 33 picked qualifiers and the two alternates.

The lengthy hearing was causing concern with both parties since the starters will be testing their carburetors Tuesday and will easily have the advantage should the judge's eventually rule in favor of the plaintiffs.

Hulman, the 73-year old Indy impresario, testified that the energy crisis and poor weather curtailed much of the allotted time scheduled for qualifications and that would certainly cost a bit of money to stage a special qualification day for these people.

Switch to Dodgers proved big boon in Wynn's stardom search

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim Wynn still keeps chewing on that toothpick.

Everything else concerning his new environment. "Beautiful," says Jim Wynn when you ask him how he's finding life with the Dodgers.

Year old right-hander who had pitched for Albuquerque and Waterbury last season.

Campanis said he'd have to check with Bill Schweppe, the Dodgers' director of minor league operations. Schweppe advised Campanis to go ahead and make the deal.

Here, this is from me to you," he said, handing over his old "Astros" jacket to the clubhouse boy the day he reported to the Los Angeles Dodgers at Vero Beach, Fla., three months ago. "I don't even wanna see that thing again."

Different how? "Togetherness," says Jim Wynn. "That's the main difference here. On this ball club, everybody is for one another together, you know what I mean? With the Astros, there was too much individualism. They were not together as a team. Everybody wanted to go his own way. Look, Houston has a great bunch of guys. Lee May was my best friend. But as far as telling themselves they can win, it was impossible."

Campanis recalls the first time he made a mental note to get Wynn if he possibly could. It was at one of those tournaments for ballplayers in Palm Springs and Wynn told Campanis he wished he was with the Dodgers because he had always liked their organization.

Wynn's foursome was directly behind the ones Campanis was playing in. On the first to Campanis hit one of his infrequent good ones, dead straight and well over 200 yards. Because he was in a "stove" group, Campanis decries the first to Campanis play through, and Wynn drove first.

A change had to be made. That was clear. It was made at the winter meetings in Houston last December when the Dodgers got Wynn from the Astros, and the only other baseball change that can possibly compare with it is the one which sent Reggie Smith to the Cardinals from the Red Sox.

The Dodgers' first offer left hander Glenn Osteen even up for Wynn. Osteen is a fire pitcher, but the Astros wanted more.

Campanis, the Dodgers' vice president in charge of player personnel, and his opposite number with the Astros, Spec Richardson, were at one of the sessions in Houston when Richardson said to Campanis he would make the Wynn deal if the Dodgers would throw in Culpepper, a 23-year old right-hander who had pitched for Albuquerque and Waterbury last season. Campanis said he'd have to check with Bill Schweppe, the Dodgers' director of minor league operations. Schweppe advised Campanis to go ahead and make the deal.

With the season barely seven weeks old, Wynn already has driven in nearly as many runs for the Dodgers as he did all last year for the Astros. His 31 hits, going into Wednesday night's game, with the Reds made him the National League leader and his 14 home runs were tops in both leagues.

Reggie Jackson drove in five runs with a home run, a bases-loaded double and a sacrifice while Joe Rudi broke a 4-4 tie in the ninth inning with a two-run double.

The Twins had taken a 2-0 lead in the second when Eric Soderholm reached base on an infield out, went to third on Steve Braun's single and scored on Joe Mauer's single. Braun scored on Glenn Bergmann's sacrifice fly. Jackson's 13th home run, leading off the Oakland fourth, cut the Minnesota lead to 2-1.

Player hopes to break Hill, Trevino hold on Memphis title

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — South African Gary Player, the mighty mite of international golf, sets out Thursday to try and topple the Trevino-Hill dynasty in the $175,000 Memphis Golf Classic.

But Player, the little better from Johannesburg who won another Masters tournament this year, said Wednesday he found the 7,185-yard, par-72 Colonial Country Club course to his liking.

along, the Memphis field is run of the mill. The tournament is caught between the first two "designated" events on the PGA tour, and many of the stars are skipping to rest up for the Kemper Open at Charlotte, N.C., next week.

Among the missing are top money winner Johnny Miller, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Tom Weiskopf and Billy Casper.

ed Colonial National Open at Fort Worth.

Rain beat down on the course during Wednesday's pro-am event but Colonial officials said it would only help the lush course for Thursday's opening round.

Butz's hope of avoiding major challenge wanes

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz's hope of avoiding a major challenge to his jurisdiction over commodity futures markets is waning as the Senate Agriculture Committee winds up hearings on a bill to control futures trading.

Butz aides have asked the committee to approve a House-passed version of the bill setting up a semi-independent commodity futures trading commission but retaining some important links between the commission and the agriculture department.

That agency has been regulating futures trading for half a century through its small Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA).

Many other witnesses, however, ranging from consumer spokesmen to a major brokerage house and the General Accounting Office (GAO), have lined up behind a tougher Senate plan, which would create a completely independent regulatory commission for the $500 billion a year futures trading industry.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., predicted recently the Senate Agriculture Committee will approve the independent commission version.

If the full Senate also approves the independent commission, the final word on the issue would have to come from a Senate-Butz conference committee. That body would have to compromise the Senate bill and the House plan giving Butz some continued authority over commodity trading regulation.

A GAO official, in testimony to the Senate committee earlier this week, urged creation of an independent commission "primarily because it would remove any appearance of a conflict of duties and responsibilities" for the secretary of agriculture.

Under the House bill, the secretary would automatically be a member of the commission and might be its chairman while at the same time acting under laws requiring him to "influence and maintain" prices of many commodities, the GAO said.

House Agriculture Committee Chairman W. R. Ponce, D-Tex., sees an Agriculture Department link to the proposed new trading commission helpful because of the department's expertise in dealing with the farm products that account for most future advice.

But a spokesman for a major brokerage firm, E. F. Hutton & Co., Tuesday testified the new commission should be completely independent because under pending bills it would also regulate futures trading in a number of nonfarm commodities including silver and foreign currencies.

"We urge full independence from the department of agriculture," said Ellen Zavel, president of the National Consumers Congress, in testimony Tuesday.

"The Department of Agriculture is responsible for such activities as forecasting supply... and setting support price levels. We believe it would be a direct conflict of interest for the department to be the regulatory body for its own policies," Ms. Zavel said.

She said setting up a completely independent regulatory agency might help restore confidence in the government among people who have "seen too much of the manipulative influences of certain economic sectors."

Rate boosted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department's Home Administration (FHMA) has quietly raised the interest rate on its insured rural home mortgages an additional one-half of one per cent to 8.75 per cent, it was learned Tuesday.

At the same time, the agency has moved to make a larger number of additional rural families eligible for loans at less than the 9.75 per cent rate by ordering a 21 per cent increase in the income eligibility ceiling applied to FHMA's interest subsidy program.

—SLOSHONE— The Lincoln County Weed Department has laid the same weed spray inventory as used during 1973, according to Byron Hall, supervisor.

"It should carry us through unless something unusual comes up to cause more demand," Hall estimates.

Last year they used 3,500 gallons of 2-4-D. Petroleum based herbicides get as hot as some of the chemical inventory.

Spraying began in the middle of March and to date the work has been mostly soil sterilizing.

quack grass control and weed control on new ground being planted into corn.

Work is about done on winter grain and the present working crews will be supplemented and when high school is up by two more crews, making a total of four active crews for the summer.

One crew, two men, will road spraying, while the others will work alone with three-quarter ton, four-wheel drive, pickups with 300 gallon spray tank-of-fiber glass mounted. It has a pressure dye marker system.

The dye marker is something new with last year's work and according to Hall, helps considerably as it marks the field leaving a red mark at the end of the boom so the crew can tell where to line up and go back. Prior to this it was easy to miss a section of land.

About 80 per cent of the spraying done by the county is on private land, mostly controlling weeds on corn, grain, pasture and ditch banks. Hall said one rig will be kept busy this year on the county highway system, dip-railroad branches and State-highway within the county.

This is part of a contract with the BLM to spray defused Knappweeds.

This weed, which is taking a big toll in areas north of Lincoln county, is only just starting to show up here. The fight against this weed is continuing and involves four counties, Lincoln, Blaine, Camas and Gooding.

The Knapp weed looks like a mustard weed with four-leaf clover.

To finance the weed program with the county the annual county budget is about $45,000, which is rotated with farmers making purchases for service and materials, Hall explains.

"The county is doing a lot of work will be real close as costs of chemicals and other needed operations are much higher than last year.

The 2-4-D will run about $15,000, about $5,000 higher than a year ago, and gasoline and other expenses are up, too.

Working with the department now, in addition to Hall, are James Childs and Ron Engman, with Wayne Hickman and Ed Schwager as part time help. Hickman does some of the office work and Schwager assists in the shop. Two high school seniors will be hired to fill out the summer crew.

Fungus found

PULLMAN, Wash. (UPI) — The Chinese have found dwarf bunt in Pacific Northwest wheat and they don't like it.

Dr. John E. Schaller of Washington State University's plant pathology department said Tuesday that the Chinese have a more rigid form of testing for the fungus than the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Schaller said thousands of U.S. wheat were found to have unacceptable levels of dwarf bunt.

'Strong' measures sought in Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A consumer advocate has urged the Senate Agriculture Committee to approve "strong" legislation to help moderate food prices by controlling wild speculation on commodity futures markets.

The Federal Trade Commission official, meanwhile, urged the Senate panel to ward-pending trading control legislation carefully to avoid any new restriction on the FTC's right to an antitrust cases in the food industry.

James T. Halverson, director of the FTC Bureau of Competition, said the agency has decided to make a major investigation of the food industry to find out whether part of the recent price boom was due to "anticompetitive behavior and structure."

Halverson said it would be "unfortunate to say the least," if provisions in pending bills to set up a Commodity Futures Trading Commission had the effect of keeping the FTC from attacking business practices which boost consumer grocery bills.

"The officials believe, however, that technical language in several of the bills pending before the committee apparently would preserve the FTC's existing antitrust powers."

Lamp pool scheduled in TF area

TWIN FALLS — A second lamb-pool for the Twin Falls County Livestock Marketing Association is planned for June 10.

Lyn C. Merrick, secretary, said lambing will be completed by the date of the Twin Falls Livestock Commission Co. from 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. He said more than 800 lambs are expected in the pool. The lamb committee will mark lambs in Jerome on Thursday, June 6 and in Twin Falls on Friday, June 7 for the pool.

Results of the first pool show 22 lambs were sold with a gross average weight of 109 lbs. Culp and Sons Sheep Co., represented by Reed Culp, Twin Falls, purchased the pool at $47.11 per hundredweight with a 4 per cent shrinkage.

The pool received another bid of $47.05 from Swift and Co.

Added funds sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has asked Congress for $1.5 million to supplement a $195.5-million appropriation to pay for a revived 1973 farm conservation subsidy program.

White House budget officials last year cancelled the program because of the current spending authorization. Earlier this year, however, the administration bowed to a court order and announced it would spend the money, which Congress had wanted disbursed during 1973.

Agriculture Department experts said the appropriation would give them the funds to carry out their pledge to reactivate the 1973 subsidy.
