Nixon, Saudi prince confer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon conferred for 45 minutes today with Prince Fahd of oil-rich Saudi Arabia, one of the five nations he will be visiting on a swing through the Middle East starting next week.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger joined Nixon in the President's Oval Office for the meeting with Fahd, half-brother of Saudi King Faisal. Fahd plays a major role in making Saudi oil policy because he is the nation's interior minister and second deputy prime minister.

Ehrlichman subpoena attacked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The White House moved today to quash a subpoena by John D. Ehrlichman for his files on grounds it was too broad.

In motions filed in U.S. District Court by White House lawyers James D. St. Clair and J. Fred Buzhardt Jr., the White House seemed to leave open the possibility that at least some of the files of the former presidential aide might be produced.

WASHINGTON — The original Watergate grand jury, in an unusual formal vote, decided unanimously in March to name President Nixon as an undicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up, according to informed sources.

Several sources agreed that the 19-0 vote, the first time a grand jury has ever formally linked an incumbent President to a crime, was taken on March 1, the day the cover-up indictment was returned, after the grand jury had been informed that it could not actually indict the President.

Various sources have said that the grand jury wanted to indict Nixon, but was told by Special Prosecutor Leon A. Jaworski that it was either impossible under the Constitution or that least raised enough constitutional questions that it would be unwise to do so.

Instead, the grand jury voted to name Nixon at a later time as an undicted co-conspirator and then — following rulings by United States District Judge John J. Sirica and the U.S. Court of Appeals — sent its evidence against the President to the House Judiciary Committee for use in its impeachment inquiry.

The sources said, however, word of the vote naming Nixon as co-conspirator was not included in the package of evidence sent to the committee.

The grand jury's decision to name Nixon as an undicted co-conspirator is expected to be placed officially on the record when prosecutors file a "bill of particulars" with the cover-up defendants listing, among other things, who is alleged to have been part of the conspiracy.

In his response to Wednesday to the defendants' pretrial motions, Jaworski said the bill of particulars would be given to the defense "in full advance of trial," which is due to begin Sept. 9.

A Jaworski spokesman refused to comment on or to confirm the report on the grand jury vote. The spokesman did say, however, that the names of everyone cited by the grand jury as an undicted co-conspirator are expected to be included in the bill of particulars.

The President's impeachment lawyer, James

D. St. Clair, told reporters, he was informed of the development three or four weeks ago by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

St. Clair made the comment after the Washington Post and the Washington Star-News said the grand jury named — but did not indict the President and others in a sealed indictment returned March 1 against seven former White House and Nixon campaign aides.

The Los Angeles Times, which first reported the grand jury wanted to name Nixon, said Jaworski persuaded the jurors not to mention the President even as an undicted co-conspirator.

Asked about the reports, St. Clair said when Nixon was told that the grand jury wanted to name him, the President said: "They just don't have the evidence and they are wrong."

The names of the seven persons indicted, including top former presidential advisers H.R. Halderman, John D. Ehrlichman and John N. Mitchell, were revealed March 1. No names of co-conspirators were disclosed.

Later, the grand jury turned over voluminous material it used in its investigation, including any evidence relating to Nixon, to the House Judiciary Committee for its impeachment inquiry.

The newspapers cited unnamed sources as the basis for their reports.

The Post said the grand jury's findings were relayed to attorneys for the defendants May 6 at a closed session with Jaworski and Sirica. The judge was said to have ordered those present to maintain secrecy.

Chancey-Benham contest lone race on TF ballot

TWIN FALLS — With only one day remaining to file for office, only one primary election contest has emerged among candidates seeking Twin Falls County offices.

The sole primary contest pits incumbent County Commissioner Chairman William Chancey against George Benham, a former law enforcement officer. Both are seeking the Republican nomination for second district commissioner.

Only a handful of other candidates had filed Wednesday on either party ticket although several have announced intentions.

The only other Republican who filed early in the one week filing period was Robert Galley, incumbent county prosecuting attorney.

Democrats who have filed include William Wiseman, incumbent third district county commissioner who is now serving under appointment, filling the vacancy left by the death of Heber Loughmiller.

Wiseman, a Democrat, replaced the Republican by appointment from Gov. Cecil Andrus.

Harold Lancaster, veteran county clerk, has filed for re-nomination on the Democratic ticket and Leonard J. Eitinger, seeks Democratic nomination for prosecuting attorney.

Ruth K. Jones, long-time county Democratic treasurer, filed late Wednesday afternoon for re-nomination to that office. This year's election will see all Twin Falls County offices

Few MV contests loom for legislative seats

TWIN FALLS — Few people are running for the Idaho Legislature from Magie Valley districts.

There is not a single primary election contest in either the Republican or Democratic party for any of the Magie Valley's six legislative districts.

A total of 24 party nominations is up for grabs in the two parties for state representative.

But so far there are primary election contests in only two races for the House.

There are few Democratic Party candidates seeking legislative seats in the Valley, and none from the American Party who has declared his intentions.

Candidates for the legislature must file their petitions by 5 p.m. Friday.

In the event either party has a vacant nomination after the primary election, the party organization can appoint a candidate to seek office in the general election.

A contest for house seats is set in district 24, which covers the western part of Twin Falls County.

Several persons have announced election plans, including incumbent county assessor Ronald Taylor, and Anne Cover, a city councilwoman who will seek the county commission post held by William Wiseman. Both are Republican candidates.

in the legislature, and three are expected to run.

Joseph McCollum, Twin Falls, appointed by Gov. Cecil D. Andrus to fill Lincoln's remaining term, will be faced by the two other men whose names were suggested to the governor — as Lincoln's successor.

Twin Falls men, E.J. Morgan, a farmer, and T.W. Silvers, former county clerk, are joining the race. So far only McCollum and Morgan have filed with the secretary of state.

Sen. Richard S. High, R-Twin Falls, remains unopposed in his bid for a fifth term as District 25 senator.

A general election contest is shaping up in district 23 for house seats sought by retiring Earl Greenwalt and lieutenant governor candidate Vernon Ravenscroft.

The only candidate who had filed with the secretary of state's office Thursday morning was Gordon Hofffield, a Jerome farmer, on the Republican ticket.

Opposing Hofffield on the Republican ticket will be Earl Greenwalt, former deputy county assessor, who has announced his intention to run. Candidates who have announced on the Democratic ticket are Anna Louise Robinson, a school teacher from Hunt, and Richard Strickland, a Gooding farmer and real estate man.

District 23, which covers all of Jerome County and parts of Lincoln and Greenwalt counties, faces the only declared senate contest. James A. Yost, R-Wendell, incumbent senator who will be seeking his second term, may be opposed by announced candidate Arlyne B. Kising, Dietrich, who would run on the Democratic ticket.

Neither candidate has filed with the state yet.

All the incumbents in district 21, which takes in all of Blaine County and part of Lincoln and Minidoka counties, are expected to seek re-election.

John C. Peavy, R-Rupert, has filed for his third term as state senator. Reps. E.V. McHain, R-Ketchum, and Steve Antone, R-Rupert, have also filed with the state. McHain seeks his third term; Antone his fourth.

The same situation is repeated in District 26. All incumbents have filed and at this time are unopposed. District 26 takes in all of Cassia County and part of Minidoka County.

Robert W. Savick, D-Burley, seeks a third term in the Idaho Senate, and incumbent Blaine, veteran state representative J. Vard Chabrun, R-Albion, is going for his tenth term.

Ernest A. Hase, R-Burley, has also filed for re-election.

In district 22, all of Camas and Elmore counties and part of Gooding and Twin Falls counties, J. Wilson Steen, R-Glenns Ferry, has filed with the state seeking a third term in the Senate.

Charles Lee Barron, R-Corral, has announced his intention to run for the House. The other district 22 incumbents are Virgil Kraus, R-Mountain Home.

Some work resumes

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Members of striking craft unions are returning to work today after the signing of an interim wage agreement with 32 independent Idaho contractors.

A spokesman for one of the union officers in Pocatello confirmed that the fill-in contract had been signed by some of the independent contractors in southern Idaho.

"I think there's a possibility that the industry can survive without the Sugar Act," said Jack Claiborn, who served 14 years as president of Idaho Beet Growers Association and one year as head of the national organization.

"I'm very, very disappointed," he said today. "Right now, with the existing price of sugar, we don't need it. But in the future we might."

"I'd doubt the domestic industry can survive," Claiborn warned.

He blasted the concept that the Sugar Act provides subsidy payments to growers at the expense of consumers.

"It's very, very likely" that the death of the act will eventually cause growers to cut down on their acreages or get completely out of the sugar beet business, according to Claiborn.

Robert Day, manager of the Antifragrant Sugar Co. plant in Twin Falls, had no comment on the defeat of the sugar measure. "Until we look things over and study it, I'm confused," Day said today.

"It's too early for me to assess the effect it might have," he said.

UPI reported the House voted unexpectedly Wednesday to Wednesday to kill the 48-year-old program that kept the price and supply of sugar under federal control.

The congressmen rejected — 209 to 178 — a bill which would have extended the control system for five years. The program now will expire at the end of this year.

The defeated program included guaranteed marketing quotas — 1.8 million — for 32 foreign countries which depend heavily on fixed shares of the rich U.S. market.

Critics of the bill, including Reps. Peter A. Peyer, R-N.Y., and Paul Findley, R-Ill., said the time had come to end the system which Peyer said was costing consumers $600 million a year in higher prices in most years.

Backers of the bill, led by House Agriculture Committee chairman W.R. Poage, D-Tex., insisted the legislation was needed to protect U.S. consumers against near-fatal dependence on foreign sugar crops.

MV industry takes grim view of Sugar Act death

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted unexpectedly Wednesday to kill a 48-year-old program that kept the price and supply of sugar under federal control.

The act had been credited with raising sugar prices in the United States above world market prices in most years. However, there was expected to be little immediate impact from the House action because the current domestic sugar price is above world prices.

In the Magie Valley, spokesmen for the sugar industry grimly warned that the long-term impact of the House action could be depressed sugar prices and the end of the domestic sugar industry.

"I think there's a possibility that the industry can survive without the Sugar Act," said Jack Claiborn, who served 14 years as president of Idaho Beet Growers Association and one year as head of the national organization.

"I'm very, very disappointed," he said today. "Right now, with the existing price of sugar, we don't need it. But in the future we might."

Personal loan bank rates heading up

By United Press International
Bank interest rates for personal loans are going up as high as 14 per cent for used cars loans — United Press International survey shows.
Boston's Shawmut National bank has created general purpose loan rates from 13.5 per cent to 14 per cent. The rate on new car loans was boosted from 9.5 to 10.5 per cent and on used cars from 13.5 to 14 per cent.

The State Street Bank and Trust Co., also in Boston, changed loan rates for new cars from 9.25 to 10 per cent and for used cars from 11 to 12 per cent. A bank spokesman said there were no plans to increase general purpose loan rates.

A spokesman for the Continental Illinois National Bank, largest in Chicago, said the bank cut its loan rate for new cars to 10.20 from 9.75 per cent and for used cars to between 11.5 and 12.67 per cent, depending on the vehicle's age.

The First National Bank of Chicago boosted new car loan rates from 9.75 to 11.08 per cent. Used car loans also were increased.

New York banks exempted automobile loans from rate increases, but have raised other rates.

First National City Bank of New York recently raised rates on 18-month loans of $2,000 and under to 12 per cent from 10.54 per cent. But it reduced the rate on three-year loans of more than $4,000 by a fifth of a

Price hike set

NEW YORK (UPI) — Texaco Inc. today announced immediate increases of 5 cent a gallon in the wholesale price of diesel and tractor fuels and two cents a gallon for home heating oil.

The company said various grades of residual fuels were going up from 42 cents to 47 cents a barrel.

Texaco said the increases were caused by the higher costs of crude oil and petroleum products and were in line with Federal Energy Administration regulations.

No changes were being made in wholesale gasoline prices, the company said.

Kennedy said 'Gate target'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Columnist Jack Anderson suggested today that "the real target" of the Watergate burglars information about Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., because the White House considered him to be President Nixon's possible foe in the 1972 election.

Anderson quoted unnamed White House sources as saying that Nixon's chief of staff at the time, H. R. Hagan, arranged an investigation in April, 1972, of the relationship between Kennedy and Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., who ultimately became the Democratic presidential nominee.

Anderson said his sources told him that the President believed, all the way up to the eve of the Democratic National convention, that McGovern would be induced by O'Brien to withdraw to make way for Kennedy to become the party nominee.

Anderson said Nixon expected O'Brien "to manipulate the party machinery" to get Kennedy named the nominee and that "it was to find out more about this suspected plot, our sources believe, that the Watergate burglars were ordered to break into O'Brien's offices and bug his telephone."

The first breakthrough of O'Brien's offices in the Democratic National headquarters at the Watergate took place in late May, 1972. On a later entry, the burglars were caught in the offices early on the morning of June 17.

Methodists ask impeachment

BOISE (UPI) — The annual Oregon-Idaho conference of the United Methodist Church is being asked to consider a resolution calling for the impeachment of President Nixon.

It is one of several resolutions which have been submitted by local churches and individuals that will go before the new boards and councils for consideration.

The conference ends Sunday with announcement of ministerial assignments for the coming year.

Wednesday, the Rev. Raymond G. Alnes, Phoenix, Ariz., told the conference the church was falling to do its part in eliminating racial discrimination in the country.

He said the civil rights movement "has waned, and there has been a backlash." He said one of the reasons is because of the "low priority" given the movement in many churches.

"Liberation of the oppressed cannot be legislated," he said. "It will be successful only when the members unite in working for it."

Among other resolutions proposed: — A nationwide "anti-liquor" movement.

— "A year long emphasis on the dynamics, importance and style-of workshops that can be utilized to renew and reform the church"

— A reduction in the nation's military spending.

— A halt in all underground nuclear testing by all nations.

— Action "to stop mind pollution and deterioration of civilization due to sale and public display of hard core pornography on news stands, TV, radio and movies."

— Strengthening of the United Nations.

Where are the local candidates?

Whatever has happened to interest in local and state politics? There will be a primary election for state and local offices coming up in August, but there will be few contests.

The filing deadline for most offices is this Friday. Judging from filings and declarations of candidacy in state, there will be only a handful of primary election contests, and few general election contests.

There are more than 100 primary slots open in Magic Valley, including Democratic and Republican party nominations for legislative and county offices.

To date, there are primary contests in only four of these races.

Worse yet, nearly half of the primary slots have no candidate at all seeking nomination.

This suggests that there is little interest in local politics, despite all the talk about "local government being nearer the people," and despite the often disturbing paths being followed by many units of local government.

Just on issue, high levels of spending and taxation, should be enough to bring out a large number of people who may be dissatisfied by the remarkable spending increases approved during recent years by nearly every unit of local government.

On the other hand, there surely are some community needs that should be met which are being ignored. Either viewpoint should prompt new faces to enter politics.

Aside from the general lack of interest, there is a second trend in this year's filings that is disturbing. Where is the Democratic Party in the Magic Valley?

There are many people who are willing to support good Democratic candidates in the Valley, as suggested by the strong support given both Sen. Frank Church and Gov. Cecil Andrus in recent elections.

But so far there is only one Democratic Senate candidate seeking office in the five legislative districts, and only three Democratic candidates are seeking 10 party nominations for the House. County level politics have brought out more Democrats, but only slightly more.

If there ever was a year for new faces, some of them belonging to Democrats, to enter politics it would be this year of widespread disillusionment with politics and politicians.

Apparently the disillusionment will take the form of ignoring the whole thing rather than an influx of new people with new ideas entering the political fray.

Only candidates willing to seek office can give voters a choice. Without choice, elections are meaningless.

Decades bring change

(C) New York Times Service
PARIS — It is hard to realize that 30 years have gone by since history's largest armada landed an allied army in Normandy, breaching the defenses of Hitler's Fortress Europe and launching what General Eisenhower called "the great crusade toward which we have striven these many months."

Many of the dreams accompanying the primarily U.S.-British detachments over steep hedgerows and through green pastures have long since vanished. More than half the populations of most lands involved have been born since that famous June 6 known as D-Day. Only a few of the leading generals who took part are still alive—Omar Bradley, Bernard (LORD) Montgomery and Hans Speldel, German Marshal Hermann's chief of staff.

It is difficult to recall how Normandy was torn apart when that same placid area with its rebuilt monuments and cities, its green-clad ruins, its chomping cows and purring trout streams is marred not by war but by pollution. But, with all Europe, it has changed. Four great overseas empires — British, French, Dutch and Belgian — have broken up since Eisenhower launched his "crusade." The only remaining, Portugal's, is in the process of disintegrating.

Before World War II only Ireland, that tortured land, was politically split. But since the following units have been torn apart: India, which now comprises three states (including Pakistan and Bangladesh); Vietnam (Korea (divided into north and south); Germany (walled and fenced into ideological fractions); and Palestine (an administrative area mandated to Britain by the League of Nations), now split among Israel and its Arab neighbors.

The greatest sundering is, however, not national but continental. Europe is riven in two parts according to political philosophy. The Communist East, bound to the Soviet Union by military and economic ties, has the weaving of Yugoslavia and Albania) has what is left of the largely democratic West, reliant on the United States.

The world recognizes war is now genuinely too dangerous to contemplate and therefore, at last, is getting down to the job of sealing a formal peace on events begun three decades ago. That is the aim of the Geneva conference on European security. The seal is not to be placed on a united world as conceived in U.N.'s title. Europe accepts division now that the two superpowers reluctantly conclude that better is half a loaf than no bread.

Some clergy trying too hard to be fashionable

WASHINGTON — The Knuckheads seem to be taking over a disproportionate share of newspaper space devoted to commentary on the murderous Symbionese Liberation Army. Give this crowd enough time and they'll pass a resolution saying cancer is good for you.

ANDREW TULLY

With my fascination for the horrible, I was drawn by the "eulogy" delivered by a Roman Catholic priest at the funeral in Prospect Park.

N.J. of Angela Atwood, one of six SLA members killed in that Los Angeles shootout. The Rev. Frank Ciro set some kind of a record for dangerous nonsense in the confused clergy division.

Angela Atwood, Fr. Ciro told the mourners in St. Paul's Church was a "dear, honest, sincere girl, who — like Christ — died for her beliefs." The Gospel according to Fr. Ciro seems to picture Christ as an apostle of violence, who would have led his followers on a reign of terror had not Pilate intervened. "He died for what He believed in, and so did Angela," Fr. Ciro announced, apparently deadpan.

Not ruddy quite, I'll go along with Fr. Ciro when he says Christ was admired until he began to talk about "clothing the naked and feeding the hungry." It also admit people haven't changed much in 1974 years; were still a touch absentminded, to put it mildly, when it comes to caring for our deserving poor, and we tend to think a man is wise because he's rich.

But — unless Luke, John and Matthew were kidding us — Christ did not go rampaging around slaughtering the authorities when they refused him to set up a bread line and give everybody a free chair with horses. He did not kidnap young girls and teach them how to chop off the heads of Roman soldiers.

Instead, Christ appealed to the better nature of the populace. He said folks would feel better if they gave sustenance and clothing to the poor and, besides, it was their duty to God to do so. Admittedly, His disciples were ineffectual, but it never occurred to Him to tell Peter to round up his followers and rescue Him from Pilate by force of arms.

"I'm sure Angela Atwood was a dear, honest, sincere girl," at least until she joined the SLA. She was brought up by her parents, or even by her friend, Fr. Ciro, to be a terrorist. But she died as an outlaw who practiced violence. At her death, she was not — as Fr. Ciro proclaimed — "following a Christian vocation." If, as Fr. Ciro said, her death was "an act of martyrdom," it was martyrdom to a ghastly, murderous cause.

Fr. Ciro — and too many other members of the clergy — themselves are sorely in need of help. Quite innocently, I'm sure, they are trying too hard to be fashionable — as actual, but not real, pillars in recent years have suffered from the same obsession.

What I want to hear most at this point is a clergyman quoting the Commandment that says in English plain enough for even the Socialists to understand: "Thou shalt not kill."

'YOU'D BETTER CALL THE REVEREND BILLY—COLSON'S GOT RELIGION!'

Freely singing Colson could be dangerous

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — Presidents like to have one aide who works outside the normal channels and performs menial tasks of a confidential nature, who provides an extra pair of eyes and ears and can occasionally serve as a "hatchet man."

Charles W. (Chuck) Colson was said to fill that role for President Nixon. His surprise plan to one court of obstructing justice in the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist has quickened interest in the man and his relationship to Nixon.

The 42-year-old lawyer maintained the tough veneer of an ex-Marine captain, and earned a perverse fame for loyalty to the President with his 1972 declaration in a memo that he would walk over his grandmother to re-elect Richard Nixon.

It was Colson, who recommended E. Howard Hunt, for covert work in the White House. And because of Colson's connection to Hunt, one of the original Watergate conspirators and a member of the "White House" plumbbers' group, there was nervous concern about Colson once the Watergate story started to unravel.

Although Colson's precise role in discussing executive clemency with Hunt as well as the adding Colson "is an operator in expediency and he will pay at the time and where he is to accomplish whatever he is there to do."

In his book, "An American Life: One Man's Road to Watergate," Jeb Stuart Magruder, who convicted for perjury in the Watergate cover-up and starts a sentence of 10 months to four years in a federal prison Thursday, characterized Colson as "an evil genius."

Colson, a native of Boston, had worked for Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, Massachusetts Republican, and knew his way around Washington. He also lost no time working his way into the President's confidence, according to Magruder.

Magruder writes that Colson moved early to undermine Herbert Klein in an effort to take over Klein's office of communications. Colson also plunged into a series of "dirty tricks" against Democrats, according to Magruder.

From 1970 on, Magruder says, Colson was "the man whose advice the President most often followed on politics and on the media. He started in the White House with one secretary" and by the time he left had dozens of people reporting to him. The rabbi would joke about Colson's ever-expanding empire — "the department of dirty tricks, we called it — and about the fact that none of us knew exactly what Colson was up to."

"The joke would in time be on us," Magruder says, his assent upon others in the administration, Colson is said to be feared most now by the White House because of his alleged involvement in the offer of clemency to Hunt; the scandal that has touched the IPT and the administration's relationship with the glass-bonglomerate, and campaign contributions by the dairy industry in apparent exchange for higher price supports.

In short, if he sings freely, it could be a menacing song.

PETE LISAGOR

President, remains ambiguous, H.R. Haldeman spoke of it, in the March 21, 1973, conversation with the president and John W. Dean in the oval office.

Haldeman called it a "fatal flaw in Chuck,"

Rural living one constant battle for survival

SCRABBLE, Va. — It is not surprising, when you come to think about it, that farmers have had a melancholy press. Country living is one constant, unending, altogether maddening struggle for survival. The only reason that farmers stick to the land is that they're too dumb and stubborn to quit.

Virgil had some dreamy things to say about farming, but Virgil was a poet, and poets are daydreamers; anyhow, Thomas Jefferson used to get lyrical about the "hush" fields of Monticello, but Jefferson had somebody else to do the work. Other wise the literature is mostly gloomy. Emerson wrote of the "embattled" farmers of Concord, and though he was talking of the historic shot heard round — the world, the objective will do anything, use.

Embattled? That is what the farmers are. If you have flown over the Midwest lately, looking down at the flooded lands, you may wonder why farmers keep farming. Half the black topsoil of western Iowa, more or less, has gone floating down the Missouri. There's no way to reckon the damage. The figures are meaningless.

One of the differences between city life and rural life is that most of the harassments of city life are man-made. Traffic, litter, and smog; sirens shrieking and trash cans banging; officious cops and petty regulations.

The farmer also has to cope with the shortage of baling wire and fertilizer and the high price of tractor parts, but most of his troubles arise from the perversities of nature. For the past two weeks my neighbors have been making hay, and they have been dying by inches. Every time they cut a few acres, it rains; and when they cut some more, it rains some more.

It is one thing after another. You wouldn't think that just 90 miles west of Washington, a couple of bears would come down off the mountains and kill a sheep, but it happens. Out here in the Blue Ridge, frost kills the peaches, rain wets the hay, cows die for no reason you can think of, and something has got into the fish.

They may have little sense, but I have sense enough not to get into farming myself. City-bred boys ought to know better. So we just watch, on a small scale, we do a little grading.

Tomorrow we will plant cucumbers for the third time. The rabbits ate the first two sproutings.

Did you ever make war on a vole? A vole is a kind of mouse. He is almost as big as a chipmunk and mean as a snake. Two divisions of voles have been chewing up the jumpers. We butter ham biscuits and my granddaughter's cookies, but the voles are hungry for jumpers only.

Some animal has excavated a tremendous hole in the herb garden. Just south of the thyme and north of the sage. The hole is too big for a chipmunk, and not big enough for a ground hog, and there's no evidence that the critter is a rat. When we get up the nerve we will salt the hole with poisoned grain. By that time the whole place will look like the Catacombs of Rome.

These mild observations have never touched upon trees that fall across power lines, or sows that suffocate the pig, or turkeys that come down with hysteria. From my office window, I perceive that three black Angus heifers have escaped from somebody's pasture.

They are now munching a few hours' d'oeuvres of newly planted pines, and shortly will try the juniper bush. Lasso perches that the rabbits are back at the lettuce, and a chipmunk named Mervyn has swiped all the sunflower seeds put out for the birds. Country living? Try it. You may like it. We love it.

Protest in force

Final day ends amity at governors' meeting

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — After skirting controversy among themselves for three days, the nation's governors fell to scrapping over government ethics, health insurance and oil imports in the windup session of their 58th national conference Wednesday.

"They passed a strong resolution urging 'all levels of government' to adopt 'campaign finance reforms, strict lobbying controls, bans on government secrecy and requirements for financial disclosure by public officials.'

But they adopted a compromise medical care recommendation after rejecting a virtual endorsement of the Kennedy-Mills national health insurance bill, and killed a resolution that would have asked for "price" and supply guarantees "for oil-dependent New England states."

They left town after electing Gov. Calvin Rampton, Democrat of Utah, as their 1974-75 national chairman.

Approval of the ethics resolution was all but assured by earlier unanimous approval of the bipartisan National Governors' Conference executive committee and its 42-member Democratic Governors caucus.

But there was a brief flurry at the last minute when Gov. Malcolm Wilson, Republican of New York, objected to the measure's preamble, which said public confidence in government had been caused by "political processes abused and misused (and) justifications where justice was called for."

Wilson claimed the preamble "casts dreadful aspersions" on thousands of good public servants, and proposed to strike it. Opponents charged Wilson was gutting the resolution.

"The conference killed" Wilson's amendment, 18 to 9, and then passed the original resolution with only GOP Govs. Jack Williams of Arizona and Melvin Thomson of Miss. sharply expressing reservations.

Gov. Daniel Walker, Democrat of Illinois, advanced a resolution that was a virtual endorsement of the national health insurance measure sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark.

"Although the measure Walker was trying to push was the original resolution before the conference, compromise language that would cover a number of health insurance proposals was adopted by a committee and brought to the floor," Walker called it "a nothing statement," and said only the Kennedy-Mills bill addressed itself to the medical problems of the poor. But Gov.

Otis Bowen, Republican of Indiana, a doctor himself, argued that approval of the original resolution would indicate "there is no other way but total socialization of medicine."

Walker lost 23-9, and the compromise passed without further opposition.

Gov. Phillip Noel, Democrat of Rhode Island, asked for conference support of New England's efforts to stabilize the price of fuel oil and guarantee its supply to New England states.

Noel warned other governors that their taxpayers would end up helping pay for welfare costs for workers in his region, who would lose their jobs when oil prices got so high they began driving businesses to the wall.

The vote on the Noel resolution was 13 to 12 in favor, but conference rules required the measure to have a three-quarters majority to pass.

House panel unimpressed by milk fund

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Members of the House Judiciary Committee found little stomach for trying to make an impeachable offense out of President Nixon's acceptance of a $2-million campaign pledge from milk producers that coincided with presidential election worth millions to them.

No member emerging from a closed day-long consideration of the milk case Wednesday was willing to charge that Nixon's order to boost milk price supports, contrary to the advice of his secretary of agriculture, was a quid pro quo for the farmers' contribution.

Rep. Willey Mayo, R-Iowa, said he took the opportunity to complain that the impeachment inquiry's legal staff had not pointed out that half a million dollars in dairy contributions flowed in 1970-72 to congressmen urging the same action as Nixon took.

Mayo said "the coincidence of timing" in Nixon's case "was not enough to sustain an impeachable offense."

But Rep. William L. Hungate, D-Mo., said he retained an open mind on the matter. "The distinction between a contribution and a bribe is sometimes difficult to draw," he said, but it was one that the committee would be compelled to draw.

The members, meeting for their 10th day behind closed doors, heard three tapes about the contribution — from milk — producer cooperatives, including a 50-minute meeting between Nixon and officials of his administration and 18 representatives of the dairy industry.

At that meeting on March 23, 1971, Nixon thanked the dairymen for their "support." Later that day, at a meeting with seven advisers, he made the decision to boost milk-price supports to 85 per cent of parity.

Cook faces charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At age 35, Bradford Cook was the youngest chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission in SEC history.

Only eight weeks into the job after rising through the ranks with a reputation as a tough enforcer and a square-jawed, he was being preparing to prosecute the biggest case of the kind — a charge that financier Robert L. Vesco had "looted" mutual fund investors of $224 million.

Then Brad Cook got caught up in the Watergate vortex and was expelled to quit his government post, another young lawyer disgraced in Washington.

Now he faces the prospect of prosecution for perjury.

On Wednesday, the Senate Appropriations Committee voted to recommend that the Justice Department consider action against Cook.

His fall started 13 months ago on May 1, 1973, when Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., at a routine hearing of his appropriations subcommittee in charge of the SEC budget asked a question out of the blue.

Jaworski yields list

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — The Watergate special prosecutor agreed Wednesday to turn over to defense attorneys in the Watergate cover-up conspiracy case the names of any undicted co-conspirators whose names were missing in the March cover-up indictment.

The concession came in one of 20 documents filed late today by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski in response to a huge number of defense motions filed earlier — for the seven defendants in the case.

The co-conspirator list was of particular importance, it had been expected that Jaworski would turn the list over today but instead he merely consented to do it and named no names.

The diffidence of the special prosecutor is apparently tied to other indications that President Nixon's name may be on that list.

In the May '74 brief to the Supreme Court seeking tapes of 64 conversations relating to this same case, the special prosecutor came as close as he ever had to a public accusation against the President.

He stated at that time that the conversations needed to go ahead with the cover-up trial — 63 of them including the President — had occurred in the course of a "criminal conspiracy" — to obstruct justice.

In addition, on March 1 when the indictments were returned in the cover-up case, a sealed briefcase of evidence bearing on Nixon's actions was turned over to Judge John J. Sirica of the United States District Court for transmittal to the House Judiciary Committee, which is conducting an inquiry on possible impeachment.

Sources at the special prosecutor's office said the list of co-conspirators would be turned over to the defense lawyers when Sirica requested it.

The men charged in the cover-up conspiracy case are former attorney general John N. Mitchell, three former White House aides, H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and Gordon C. Strachan; a former Justice Department aide, Robert C. Mardian, and Kenneth Wells Parkinson, who was a lawyer for the Committee for the Re-

Ehrlichman aides barred from data

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — Highly reliable sources said Wednesday the White House apparently breaking a specific agreement — worked out two days ago with a federal judge, refused to permit John D. Ehrlichman and his attorneys to have full and direct access to Ehrlichman's personal notes of presidential meetings.

The sources said Ehrlichman and his attorneys, William C. Frates and Andrew C. Hall of Miami, were told by two presidential lawyers, James D. St. Clair and J. Fred Buzhardt, the Ehrlichman notes would be screened by the White House to remove unrelated matters before being turned over.

Court insiders said the revised White House policy would undoubtedly concern Judge Gerhard G. G. of United States District Court, who has already threatened dismissal in the case, and also may expose St. Clair to contempt of court charges.

Judge Gessell has called for a hearing Friday on the White House compliance.

During a court hearing Monday in the plumbers case, St. Clair assured Gessell that Ehrlichman and his attorneys would be allowed to directly review the more than two years of notes that had been subpoenaed by the Ehrlichman attorneys.

Complicating St. Clair's position, a number of sources said, was the fact that late last week — Buzhardt, who works closely with St. Clair, informed the special Watergate prosecutor's office that he planned — to go through the Ehrlichman notes to weed out information he deemed extraneous.

Arafat volunteers

(c) New York Times Service CAIRO — Yasir Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, told the conference that he was willing to go to the Geneva peace conference if the Palestinians gave him a mandate to do so.

Addressing a closed evening session of the Palestine National Council, the PLO's parliament, Arafat said Egypt, Syria and the Palestinian resistance together had suffered more than 200,000 casualties — killed and wounded — in the last seven years, from the start of the June war of 1967-1971.

He said 85,000 Egyptians, 80,000 Syrians and 37,000 Palestinians were killed or wounded in this period which included the October war. He spoke on the seventh anniversary of the start of the 1967 war. No such casualty figures have been made public before.

Egypt and Syria, which have signed troop disengagement agreements with Israel and want the Geneva peace conference to take up the political aspects of a settlement, are urging the Palestinians to go to Geneva. A refusal to do so would cut the resistance movement from its Arab support except for Libya and Iraq.

Arafat is regarded as the exponent of the moderate faction within the PLO.

No license

BRUCE VANIER, 23, Milwaukee's "Robin Hood" was cleared of any wrongdoing by the city attorney's office Wednesday for plugging parking meters and leaving envelopes on the cars asking the owners to send him $1 so he could continue his operation. But here, Patrolman Gordon Glazee gave Vanier a "brew ticket" for not having a license on his bicycle. (UPI)

Budget reform bill outlined

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Passage by both House and Senate negotiators have agreed on a budget reform bill designed to help Congress formulate the multi-billion dollar federal budget in a more orderly fashion. Congress may also capture some of the power it has lost to the White House in drafting federal spending plans and in setting national priorities. The budget office would be roughly the equivalent of the White House Office of Management and Budget. Under current budget procedures, appropriations bills are passed separately for various government departments. Often appropriations bills become bogged down and some departments actually operate for the whole year under "continuing resolutions." Under the compromise measure, appropriations bills may be withheld until all of them go to the President in one block. In any case, no appropriation bill could become law until the beginning of the new fiscal year.

Officials attempt to prune budget

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., (UPI) — The Nixon Administration has decided to "prune" the federal budget in a bid to get a handle on the nation's inflationary problems. Chairman Arthur Burns of the Federal Reserve Board

Children treated

NEWARK, N.J. (UPI) — Nearly 100 children were treated at hospitals Wednesday after an ammonia leak from their Roman Catholic school. "It was so thick," said Sister Stella, an eighth grade English teacher, "we couldn't open our eyes, we couldn't even breathe." The wintercloud was released when a crane ripped a two-inch refrigeration pipe at the nearby P. Ballantine & Sons plant which was undergoing demolition. At least 98 youngsters from St. Aloysius School, which includes the first through eighth grades, were treated at hospitals for nausea or running eyes and noses. There were no serious injuries, officials said.

UAW leader re-elected

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock was re-elected by acclamation at the UAW's 24th convention Wednesday. His term was extended to allow him to run the 1976 contract negotiations with automakers. Pete Kelly, Woodcock's only rival for the presidency, said the long term would make the 63-year-old union leader a "fame-duck" president who "won't have to take responsibility for the mess of politics he sells us." Kelly later withdrew his candidacy. His followers, the United National Caucus, also objected to recent negotiations that provided a new contract with no provision to avert layoffs.

Henry warns of troop cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — On the eve of a major Senate debate over troop cuts abroad, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger has warned Congress it would threaten the stability of Western Europe and sabotage the structure of peace in Asia if it orders American soldiers home. Kissinger's warning was contained in a letter made public Wednesday by Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Armed Services Committee. Stennis is fighting to preserve his $21.8 billion, 1975 arms procurement bill intact. It calls for a major, unplanned reduction of about 23,000 support troops in the 300,000-man U.S. force in Europe. But both Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who head a sizeable liberal bloc, have proposed much deeper cuts and they expect to vote full-day today to consider them. Mansfield wants to bring home about 125,000 men, the bulk of them from the European force. Cranston is proposing cuts of 100,000 from the worldwide total of 492,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen abroad, with emphasis on Asia. Kissinger said it was certain that unilateral cuts imposed by Congress would undermine the current mutual force reduction talks between NATO and the Warsaw Pact. But he said even worse consequences could follow. The combination of U.S.-European friction during the October Mideast War and the fall of several European governments since has created an unstable political climate, he said. This has made it "important to avoid at all costs abrupt and destabilizing actions by us." There is no question in my mind that a reduction in U.S. forces in Europe would be "destabilizing." In Asia, Kissinger said, "any major reductions in U.S. forces in South Korea, Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines could seriously jeopardize our efforts to achieve a more permanent structure of peace." In action on the procurement bill Wednesday, the Senate dealt liberal budget-cutters a stinging blow by defeating 59-31 a proposal to cut $25 million from the B-1 bomber program and delay a decision on producing it to 1980. —defeated 52-37 a proposal to cut military aid to South Vietnam unless the Saigon government freed all political prisoners by the end of the year. —agreed to hold hearings on the Feed and Forge Act of 1929 under which the Pentagon government freed all political prisoners by the end of the year.

LONDON (UPI) — The Daily Telegraph said today it had spotted a sign in a Hampshire store reading: "During reorganization the basement will be found on the first floor."

Army recruiting high in May

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Army had its greatest recruiting success in the 18 months since the draft ended in May, attracting even more volunteers than it was aiming for, Army sources said Wednesday. The official recruiting results will not be released until next week, the sources said, but preliminary results showed the Army recruited 14,523 men and women, or 104 per cent of the goal of 14,000. That was a dramatic turnaround compared with May, 1973, when the Army sought 25,000 recruits but could dredge up a mere 6,819 — 71 per cent of the goal. In the 18 months since the draft ended, the Army has previously reached its recruiting goal only twice — last November and December. But despite the repeated shortfalls, the Army actually had only 2,000 fewer GIs than the 78,000 planned strength at the end of March, a shortfall of only 0.3 per cent. By comparison, in the previous dozen years, even with the draft, the Army fell up to 5.8 per cent short of its manpower goals. Earlier this year the Pentagon was publicly predicting the Army could fall as much as 25,000 men short of its goals by the end of the fiscal year, June 30. But now officials believe it is actually possible to meet the year-end goal — something they have done only twice in the previous seven years.

Castleford aides approve budget

CASTLEFORD — Castleford school trustees have approved next year's school budget which is about 17 per cent above this past year.

Supl. Richard Peters said Wednesday teacher salary increases and a $10,000 item for resurfacing part of the playground account for a good share of the increase. The new budget is for $291,000 compared to $248,000.

Under the 11 per cent salary increase, beginning teachers at Castleford will receive $7,000 compared to $6,540 and the top salary scale for a master's degree is $10,000 more than last year's.

The amount budgeted for heat and utilities is up $1,000 over last year and the transportation item shows a $5,000 increase over last year's budget. This includes not only increasing operational costs but about 40 miles extension of bus routes beyond Balanced Rock.

Peters said the district has serviced this area this year, but the item was not previously budgeted.

The playground area to be resurfaced with concrete is between the high school and grade school.

Two bids for the project were opened at the Monday night budget hearing and school board meeting, but were rejected since they were too high. They were about $17,000 and $23,000, Peters said. He said trustees decided to "live within the $10,000 budgeted for the project" and will probably only do a part of the work, with school maintenance personnel to do more of the work.

Ketchum fees cause debate

KETCHUM — A request for better handling of building permit fees sparked a half-hour of heated debate here Tuesday night.

Ketchum City Councilman Jack Corcock asked a better system for building permit fees to be established. He cited examples of permit applications where one house with the same footage as another was being built for $15,000 less. Permit fees go up as the estimate of the building and Corcock suggested people may try to lower their estimate to pay a lower permit fee.

Building Inspector John Jacoby told the members he had a book with fees charged for different types of houses with similar square footage. Joe Koenig, city building department board member, Richard Kessler was out of order in appealing to the council a decision by the appeals board.

Kessler wishes to turn the Odd Fellows Hall into a movie house but was held up by Mayor Brand who also is fire chief. Brand insisted on stand pipes inside the building so a possible fire could be controlled by owners before the department could get to the scene.

Kessler however insists the stand pipe inside would be an exorbitant expense and insists on an hydrant placed outside the residence.

Penny shortage eased

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Crews drove up to a branch of Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. Tuesday, opened their car trunk and revealed $3,435 pennies to stunned banker Dennis J. Easter.

Mrs. Crews explained that her husband, a collector, amassed the coins over several months to pick out the ones he wanted to keep. They decided to turn them in because of the penny shortage, she said.

"We're in pretty good shape here, thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Crews," said Easter. "They really saved us."

HAILEY — McCulloch Properties Inc. may begin constructing a 1,000-acre residential subdivision in Democrat Gulch next year.

The plan was submitted to the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission in May and is near the top for subdivision consideration by the commission this month. The proposed subdivision is just east of the Wood River Recreation Area about one and a half miles west of Hailey. It is adjacent to Fota Run on the west and extends about half a mile east on the north side of the road and about a mile on the south side of the present road.

If the commission approves the plan, McCulloch officials have said they will not start on the subdivision this year. McCulloch is starting construction on the 64-acre Woodside building complex. Harce Self, project manager, said "We'll have our hands full with Woodside to worry about another project this year."

Self said the new project is laid out with just 50 lots on the entire 1,000 acres. Each lot will be one half to a full acre, he said.

"They will be expensive," he said. "I doubt very much if we could keep them down to $25,000 each."

Included in the plan is a 150-acre guest ranch. The ranch will be complete with stables and boarding areas.

In addition, McCulloch will reserve 20 acres for condominiums along the road. Four ranchettes from six to 10 acres are to be sold, Self said.

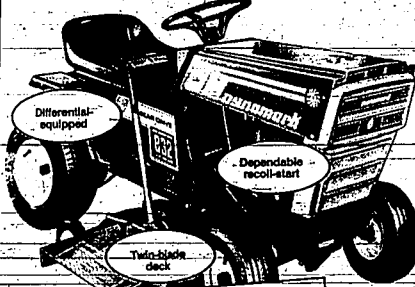

He said a price has not been fixed yet.

The Hailey Hot Springs where the old Hailey Hotel stood is contained in the 1,000 acres. Self said McCulloch has also reserved 20 acres there and has plans to develop the springs but hasn't decided how.

Shoshone man files for county assessor

SHOSHONE — Edward L. Savaria filed his candidacy this week for Lincoln County assessor on the Republican ticket.

The position is now held by Democrat Sanford Connell.

Following the announcement, Savaria said he resigned last week from the "Bureau of Land Management in Shoshone, effective June 30, 1974.

Savaria said a number of persons indicated they would like to see him run for the assessor's office and he feels with his "background and experience he is fully qualified for the job."

A major point he will be making during his campaign is "property of equal value should be assessed equally," that he "hopes to become acquainted with all Lincoln County residents and they elect him, he hopes to serve them well."

A native of Idaho, Savaria was born in Moore and graduated from the Mackay High School.

He attended the University of Idaho, graduating in 1950 in range and forest management. Prior to employment with the BLM in 1950, he has worked for the US Forest Service during his college years.

He was with the BLM in Boise from 1950 to 1956 when he went to Idaho Falls as soil moisture program chief; then went to the state office in Boise in 1958 as a range staff officer; back to Idaho Falls in 1960 as an assistant district manager, and to the Shoshone office in 1967 where he served as chief of division resource management until 1972 and has since been chief of division operations.

In all he has served 28 years and 6 months in government service.

Mrs. Savaria is the former Doris Adams from Weiser. Their children include Mrs. David Holsley-Mosow, Scott Savaria, who will be a junior at the University of Idaho this fall, and Dawn Marie, a second year junior high student in Shoshone.

Savaria belongs to the Shoshone Odd Fellows Lodge and has been interested in projects of culture and promotion for Shoshone area since residing here.

Cassia work halted

BURLEY — Strikes by Magie Valley construction unions have stopped building activity on Cassia County school projects.

Work on Burley's new $2.5 million junior high school stopped Monday except for portions of the work which are being done by non-union labor. Decla Elementary School construction was also stopped. The Decla project would have been completed in the next few months.

"We're in trouble if this goes on for more than a few days," Supt. Harold Blauer said.

TF board delays action

TWIN FALLS — The school board met Tuesday to consider the only bid for the school remodeling project here, but delayed formal action until its next regular meeting.

The sole bid for about $1.4 million was submitted May 29 by Nelsen and Co., Twin Falls, for work on Harrison, Morningside, Lincoln and Robert Stuart Junior High School. School board trustees had said they would act at a June 4 meeting, but decided to delay action until June 11, their regular monthly meeting.

Trustees closed the meeting to discuss a personnel matter after discussing several brief business items. Later they held an informal, closed session with representatives of Nelsen and Co. and the district attorney to discuss bid figures and project priorities.

In the business session, Supt. of School George Staudaher reported he had written to the City Council requesting a fee waiver for project II of the School bond construction program; the new elementary school. Fees for the remodeling project were waived previously by the city. The new elementary school is estimated to cost about $1.45 million.

Hagerman budget adopted

HAGERMAN — Hagerman school trustees have adopted next year's school budget which is $25,000 more than last year.

One citizen appeared at the budget hearing Monday night, but offered no complaint, according to Laura McAnulty, clerk.

The new budget is for $250,015 compared to $235,016 for this past year. The increase results from teacher salary raises, increased Social Security and insurance payments and a $40,000 item for bond redemption which was not needed last year.

The bond redemption is for the first payment and interest on the bond issue voters approved last fall for construction of a new grade school.

The salary hike raises pay for beginning teachers to $7,000 from $6,500 and teachers with master's degrees and 15 years experience will earn $9,838 compared to $9,236.

The transportation item is $23,000 in the new budget, compared to $20,000 this past year, reflecting increased cost of fuel and bus maintenance, Mrs. McAnulty said.

Deadline nears, taxpayers told

TWIN FALLS — County Treasurer Ruth K. Jones today reminded taxpayers the second installment of the 1973 property taxes must be paid by June 20, 1974.

The original tax charge for the 1973 real property in Twin Falls County amounted to $6.8 million. Of this, she said, 72 per cent was collected in the first installment, due last December.

Currently the county treasurer said a balance of $1.78 million remains to be collected. Of this $538,222.18 is due on public utility properties to the county.

On the 1972 total property tax bill, Mrs. Jones said, there is an outstanding $30,763.48 still due and for 1971, $8,414.01 is due.

Mrs. Jones said this leaves only about two weeks for taxpayers to make their final payment.

These may be made by calling in person at the county treasurer's office on the second floor of the county courthouse from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday or by mailing the payments to the county treasurer with a postmark no later than June 20.

Tumbling classes set at Y

TWIN FALLS — Summer tumbling classes will begin Tuesday in the Magie Valley YM-YWCA for youngsters 6 years of age and older.

The program will begin at 7 p.m. in the Y building, 1751 Elizabeth Blvd. Barbara Cuppett, a junior in the University of Idaho, will instruct the tumbling.

She is majoring in physical education at the university and specializing in gymnastics. She has competed in gymnastics events and has taught tumbling and gymnastics to youngsters of various ages.

Mrs. Cuppett said the class will begin with basic stunts and will continue through 12 sessions working up to more advanced forms of tumbling.

She said tumbling is not only an excellent way for boys and girls to gain coordination but helps build physical strength.

Children interested in pre-registration information may contact the Y office, 734-1384.

Judges face election

TWIN FALLS — Magistrate court judges who must file a declaration of candidacy with the secretary of state.

County Clerk Harold Lancaster said today the new election schedule adopted in 1973 requires that magistrates' names appear on the ballot for a retention vote only in the general election this fall.

Charles Scoggin, Gooding, senior judge, has announced he will not seek re-election and is retiring from the position.

Judge Theron Ward, Twin Falls, has filed his nominating petition with the secretary of state and although Judge James M. Cunningham, Twin Falls, and Judge Sherman Bellwood, Rupert, have not filed petitions as yet, Judge

Cunningham said he plans to seek re-election. The offices will be filled on the primary election ballot.

Douglas Kramer, Twin Falls attorney, is seeking the judgeship being vacated by Judge Scoggin. He is a former Fairfield resident and if elected would be required to move to the vicinity of Gooding.

If the magistrate does not wish to seek the office again or if he is removed from office by a majority of "no" votes, the vacancy will be filled by appointment rather than by election.

All magistrates in Idaho are now serving under provisions of the court reform law adopted several years ago. Appointments would be made by the judicial committees of each judicial district. This committee consists of a county commissioner, the senior district judge and several other citizens in the Fifth Judicial District will be up for election this year. Judge

Candidate hits big government

TWIN FALLS — The business world "has done a lousy job of communication," according to P. K. (Pat) Harwood, Republican candidate for Idaho lieutenant governor.

In an interview Tuesday, Harwood said, "I think the business world has got a story to tell."

"I've always felt that what really built the country was the individual in the free enterprise system," he said. "But more I get involved the more I see that the individual isn't really making decisions, but is complying with federal control."

His worry about individual freedoms takes in the business, agricultural and local government communities.

Harwood, a private businessman, is concerned about the "anti-business mentality" some government agencies can successfully be applied to government operations," he said.

"I think some of the more recent price and wage controls have proven that government controls aren't always the best," he said.

"The main thing is that in government we need strong leadership to make changes but at the same time realize what areas we shouldn't get into," he said.

Harwood has taken a leave of absence from his job with J.R. Simplot Co. in Caldwell to devote full time to his campaign. He was director of public affairs for the firm.

He served two terms in the Idaho House of Representatives (1968-1969) from Clark and Jefferson counties.

Harwood also believes that vocational education should be given more emphasis in Idaho. He served three years on the Idaho State Advisory Council for Vocational Education.

"I think we've got to start aiming more at career education," he said. "What Jim Taylor has done here with the College of Southern Idaho is really fabulous."

Harwood is also concerned about the overlapping of taxing units in the state. He said the state currently has more than 700 taxing districts.

The glut prevents many units from having adequate tax bases, he said.

Seeking the lieutenant governor's office "forces the candidates to go out and work for the office," Harwood said. "If nothing else, I'm getting a good education."

Candidates for secondary offices operate on "shoestring budgets," he said. "I'm not packaged and sold by a big budget."

Man shoots horse

PANAMA CITY, (UPI) — Victor Manuel Bustamante was banned from the Presidente Remon race track by the National Racing Commission Tuesday because he shot his horse in a fit of pique.

Friends said Bustamante bet a large amount of money on his horse Pedregales in the 10th race Sunday and that when it lost, Bustamante raced onto the track and shot it in the nose.

Dr. Franklin Chalmers, a race track veterinarian, said the horse was "out of danger." The newspaper El Panama America said fans had to be restrained from lynching Bustamante after the shooting.

Burley buys trencher

BURLEY — The Burley City Council has decided to buy a trencher for the city electrical department from a Twin Falls firm.

The council voted Monday night to buy the trencher from Ditch Witch of Idaho, Twin Falls, for $5,541. No bids had been received earlier when they were first called.

A request by recreation director Jack Keen for a greens mower to be used on the golf course was turned down. The council did approve the purchase of a gang mower from the Floyd Green Co. for $2,853. The mower will be required when the city golf course becomes a full 18-hole course, possibly later this month.

The council also approved a building permit for a $200,000 building for a new Wilson Bates

Appliance and Furniture store. The new store will be built by Ullman Construction Co., Twin Falls.

'Liver-Eating' Johnson returning to Rockies for reburial with VA nod

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In life, nothing kept John "Liver Eating" Johnson out of the mountains — not bears, blizzards or Crow Indians. And though he's been dead for 74 years, the Veterans Administration was no more successful.

Johnson, whose life inspired the movie "Jeremiah Johnson," is going home to the Rockies he loved. VA Administrator Rufus H. Wilson, who earlier ordered that Johnson's planned reburial be delayed, relented Tuesday and gave permission for the mountain man's body to be dug up today at Thursday in a VA cemetery for reinterment outside Cody, Wyo.

The move is the fruit of a six-month campaign by seventh grade students at Park View Junior High School in Lancaster, Calif., who were surprised to learn from a history teacher that the outdoors-loving Johnson lay buried next to a busy Los Angeles freeway.

After 50 years of roaming the Rockies before and after the Civil War, hunting, trapping and fighting Indians, Johnson died at the VA hospital in 1900 at the age of 74. No next of kin were listed, so he was buried in the hospital cemetery.

He is remembered in the western history books for his 15-year personal war of vengeance on the Crow Indians, who killed his wife. The students, inspired by the movie starring Robert Redford last year, began lobbying the VA as a class project to have themselves declared Johnson's honorary next of kin so they could have him reburied somewhere more suitable to his preferences in life.

Guided by teacher M. Robinson, they found a new home for Johnson's bones at Cody's Old Trail Town, a frontier museum collection of cabins, a stage station and other buildings from the late 1800s. Johnson was scheduled to be reburied there Saturday in a ceremony attended by Wyoming historical society representatives and eight of the students from Park View, to be flown out by Warner Brothers, who made the movie that began it all.

Wilson issued a "stop order" halting the planned reburial, saying there was a question about whether the bones should be moved. He said he did not want the VA to be involved in a "commercial operation" and that a Montana congressman, Rep. John D. Melcher, forwarded complaints from Red Lodge, Mont., that it was also in "Liver-Eating's" old stomping grounds and might want to claim the body.

Robinson protested that the kids have been working hard for six months... they showed they could get something done, but then they learned that someone with a little more power can take it right away from you.

Yeggs hit Hughes message center

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Safe-crackers Wednesday broke into Howard Hughes' personal message center — purportedly one of the best-guarded buildings in the country — and opened two files and escaped with $50,000.

for four hours after tying up a guard at gunpoint, but other workers said they were unaware of the break-in.

They must have been very well organized to pull this off, a Hughes spokesman said. It was the third time this year that a Hughes office has been robbed.

The guard, Mike Davis, 40, said he saw two of the robbers but thought there were four or five in the gang. While he was making his rounds shortly after midnight, one of the band stuck a gun in his back and forced him into the building, Davis said.

New plants found

IRA sees Marxist aid

BELFAST (UPI) — Irish Republican Army sources today predicted its Marxist wing would soon end its 18-month self-imposed cease-fire and ally with the more militant Provisional wing.

Known as the Officials, the Marxists have often been at odds with the Provisionals and condemned their bomb attacks on civilian and commercial targets. Their ideological differences have sometimes spilled over into bloodshed.

changed

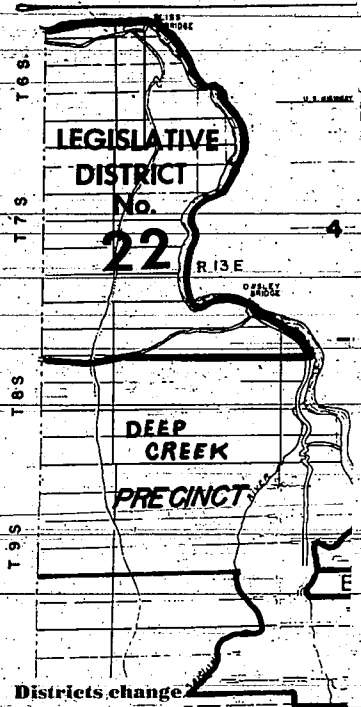

TWIN FALLS — County Clerk Harold Lancaster will have the usual election problems this year but the Idaho Legislature handed him a special one this year.

There have been legislative districts, 24 and 25, in Twin Falls County but this past session, the legislature changed some district boundaries and put a small corner of Twin Falls County in legislative district 22.

In fact, they split the Deep Creek precinct leaving the southern half of it in district 24 and placing the north half in the district 22 which includes Gooding and Elmore counties. Lancaster said he will have to place two separate voting machines in the small precinct of Deep Creek and will have to program a single machine for district 22.

Although the clerk says he is not confused about programming the machines, he is wondering how much confusion the voters will find on election day when they have to determine in which half of the precinct they vote.

Gem AG speaks at Priest River

PRIEST RIVER (UPI) — Idaho's attorney general encouraged the 1974 graduating class at Priest River High School to keep their faith in the nation's system of government despite recent national scandals.

AG Gen. W. Anthony Parkley spoke at a graduation ceremony Tuesday night that a "malaise" of the national spirit does not mean the government is unsound. He assured them the nation will survive the difficulties of the past few years.

He suggested they review the achievements of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Franklin D. Roosevelt and J.F. Kennedy for evidence that the system in the United States produces "people of outstanding integrity and ability and that it will endure."

He said Idaho also has produced public officials who provided "fine leadership and sound government."

He also said he is confident that the principles and ideals upon which the United States is based will be preserved and enhanced as the present generation of high school graduates takes over and the country moves into the 21st century.

Past president of the International Association of Rebekah Assemblies Mrs. Margaret Watts, Twin Falls, was introduced.

Memorial services were held with officers of the lodge participating. Mrs. Goldie Ridgeway gave a tribute to the American flag for Flag day. It was announced mustering in ceremony practice be held in the September meeting. Mrs. Virginia Miller, incoming department association president, will make her official visit to the lodge in November and an inspection will also be held at the time.

Shoshone to stand fire costs

SHOSHONE — Shoshone will be billed for the cost of controlling range fires that begin at the city's dump.

The city also will be billed for any damage caused by fires that are started at the dump, according to a letter from the Bureau of Land Management to the Shoshone City Council.

In view of this fact the City Council asks the public "not to burn" at the city dump. The city employees have not burned trash there for some time, but a number of citizens continue to do so, it says.

The council has agreed to look into possible remedies to drainage problems at the Mott Addition, due to a high roadway construction.

The Pony League baseball schedule for the year has been presented by Reid Newby, councilman.

It shows dates, June 3, Shoshone at Hansen; June 7, Shoshone at Fairfield; June 10, Paul at Shoshone; June 14, Kimberly at Shoshone; June 17, place not named; June 21, Shoshone at Paul; June 24, Shoshone at Sam Valley; June 28, Paul at Shoshone; July 1, Wendell at Shoshone; July 8, Shoshone at Jerome, playing Jerome State Cafe group; July 12, Buhl Rainbows at Shoshone; July 15, Gooding at Shoshone; July 19, Jerome Tupperware at Shoshone; July 22, Shoshone at Kimberly and July 26, Shoshone at Hanley.

Anyone wanting to use the baseball field should notify Ray Kelly, Newby or J.R. Churchman a week in advance of the game.

Studies will be made of the possibility of improving the city water distribution system in the northwest section of the city.

Building permits have been issued to Sharmar Homes and to Evan Knight for new homes in the Mott Addition.

Other permits are for water for Andrew Frees in the Scarborough Addition; James Parish, James Gray, Ron Scott and Homer Owens all in the Mott Addition.

A bartender's permit has been issued to Vivian Marchellus.

Senator charges 'claim jumping'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, charged the National Resources Council Tuesday with "claim-jumping" in its attempt to steal water from the northwest states.

At a Senate Public Works Water Resources Subcommittee hearing, McClure said the council questionnaire which stirred the latest water controversy "was ill-conceived, unfounded and designed in a way as to rekindle long-standing and very real fears of claim jumping on northwest water rights."

"This fight has been fought time and time again," McClure told council Director Warren D. Fairchild.

The senator said that the people of Idaho had fought the water battle "time and time again" and were ready to do battle again against "any attempt to steal their water."

"Any attempt to lay claim on our water, whether through a direct proposal or through the kind of fear-baiting we see today, will bring the same response and its unanimous — 'keep your hands off our water,'" Mr. Clure said.

Assembly line

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (UPI) — Weddings were on an assembly line regularly following graduation ceremonies Wednesday at the Air Force Academy.

An academy spokesman said 78 weddings were held with 34 of the brides coming from the Colorado Springs area.

Burglary probed

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls police were investigating a car burglary and a case of vandalism and theft today.

John Schwartz told police Wednesday that a 16-year-old player and a set of speakers was stolen from his mother's car about 1 a.m.

Shortly after 1 a.m., Schwartz said, he saw two prowlers near his mother's car as it was parked in front of his house on Flier Avenue. When he went out, Schwartz told police, the suspects ran off. He later discovered the missing tape player and speakers, which were valued at about $110, he said.

In the second case, police were investigating the removal of about $50 in plumbing equipment from a house under construction at the end of Stadium Drive.

Opening lead — ♠ K

By Oswald & James Jacoby
"What did I do wrong?" asked South.

"You played the hand like a man trying to force a close mortgage. There is no interest paid on tricks taken early in the play."

West opened the king of spades. East played the deuce and West shifted to the queen of trumps. South grabbed that trick with the king as quickly as he could, thought a while, played his ace of trumps and started after diamonds. He got to discard one spade on the third diamond, but West ruffed in and cashed two more spades to leave South one trick short. Once South grabbed that first trump trick he could think forever and not find any way to make his contract. If he had done his thinking beforehand and let West hold the trick, West could think to his heart's content, but he would not be able to defeat the contract.

If he had a second trump, South would simply run off the rest of the tricks. If he played more spades he would hold South to his contract, but that would be all.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the socially active university professor with a Ph.D. who wasn't sure of what R.S.V.P. meant until he saw it in your column: You replied "ignorance is simply the absence of knowledge which is no crime. We are all ignorant, only on different subjects." Abby, ignorance is "not knowing something you should know." Nescience is "not knowing something one would have no reasonable expectation of knowing."
Your not knowing the distinction between "ignorance" and "nescience" is nescience on your part. The professor's not knowing the meaning of R.S.V.P. is ignorance on his part.

Nescient or ignorance

DEAR FREAK: Since words are my tools, I feel ignorant not knowing the meaning of the word "nescience." Then I polled three newspaper editors, two lawyers, a psychiatrist, the heads of the English department in three of our leading universities, a world famous novelist, a United States Supreme Court Justice, and an expert who writes a syndicated column on words, and not ONE of them had ever heard of the word "nescience." So, now I feel more nescient than ignorant.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl, and my problem involves my psychiatrist. I trusted him completely and told him things I never in a million years would tell my mother, because he led me to believe that everything I told him would be held in the strictest of confidence.

Can you imagine how I felt when I overheard my mother telling a relative on the phone some of the things I had told my psychiatrist? I can't tell you how this upset me! In high school I stayed away from counselors, teachers, shrinks, etc., in order to avoid this.

When I saw my psychiatrist, I asked him why he did this to me. At first he denied it, then he said that my mother had become "concerned" about me, so he told her everything Abby, I thought I could trust him, and he betrayed me!

What is the law concerning a doctor's keeping his patient's confidential? He said he had a right to talk to my mother without my permission. Did he? I am not a minor.
UPSET

DEAR UPSET: Your doctor has committed a breach of ethics, and you would be perfectly justified in reporting him to the Ethics Committee of your local county medical society and/or psychiatric society. I suggest you do just that.

DEAR ABBY: How can I get a reply from a place of business when I write them requesting specific information? I wrote to these people three times and each time I was ignored. I didn't ask for any special favors; I inquired about buying something they sell. What is the matter with people these days? Please tell me how to get an answer out of them.
FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: To insure a reply — and usually a prompt one; enclose a stamped, addressed envelope. If you are ignored, give up. They probably don't need the business, and they certainly don't deserve it.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 8770, L.A., Calif. 90063. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

ISU building started

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Mitchell Construction Co., Pocatello, has begun construction of a $107,000, multipurpose central operations building for Idaho State University.

This new building will serve in a number of roles, including that of nerve center for a university-wide fire alarm system which eventually will connect all buildings and that of focal point for a remote control system to monitor electrical use on the campus.

Now in the design phase, the fire-alarm system will cost an estimated $34,850 and may be completed the latter part of 1974.

Initially, this project will link all the ISU dormitories through individual fire alarm systems to a central control board in the central operations building.

There will be a secondary link to the Pocatello city fire department.

An estimated $23,500 will be spent on the remote control operations system which may be in operation by early 1975. This is in the preliminary design phase now.

To be located in the central operations building this system will allow ISU personnel to monitor at one point the campus electricity consumption and the heating systems throughout the campus.

By allowing the monitoring of the total electric energy being consumed on campus at any given time, this system will make it possible to turn selected systems off—during certain peak load periods and to turn them on during minimal loads.

Bigamist, almost

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — The wedding party for Maria Jose Lasso, daughter of Spanish singer Gloria Lasso, was going full blast when a woman burst into the room and screamed: "Cornello is my husband!"

Cornello — the bridegroom — is Cornello Guillermo Sandoval Castillo, also a singer.

The shrieking woman identified herself as Muleta Cortes Sandoval. She said the groom married her on May 21, 1971.

The bride, stunned, picked up the train of her white wedding gown and ran from the room, followed by her mother.

'Sunshine' bill impure

POCATELLO (UPI) — A spokesman for the Republican State Central Committee sold Bannock County Republicans Tuesday night that the so-called "Sunshine Initiative" may never get on the ballot.

Don Todd, Boise, executive secretary of the committee, said it appears the initiative is defective because it carries two separate proposals — one dealing with campaign finance disclosure and the other with lobbyist registration and reporting.

While Todd said it appeared a court test of the initiative is likely, he did not say who may bring that action.

Meanwhile, Clay Condit, Pocatello, a member of Common Cause, spoke on behalf of the initiative at the GOP County Central Committee meeting.

He said the proposal is much milder than "Proposition 13" which won by a heavy margin in the California primary.

Schweitzer Basin water content high

SANDPOINT, Idaho (UPI) — The Soil Conservation Service says snow depth and water content in the Schweitzer Basin snow courses north of here continues at record levels.

Tom Wilson of the service said measurements taken last Friday showed snow depth at the 6,100 foot level on Schweitzer Ridge averaged 119 inches with 59 inches of water content.

He said this was the highest measurement recorded for this time of year since the snow course was established in 1963. Wilson said a year ago at this time snow depth was 38 inches with 19.1 inches of water.

He said the highest measurement prior to this year was in 1967 when 94 inches of snow and 46.5 inches of water was recorded.

The average is 67 inches of snow and 34 inches of water at the end of May, Wilson said.

Woman appointed as foundation head

BOISE (UPI) — Appointment of Jerris Castro, Boise, as executive director of the Idaho Park foundation was announced today by foundation President Hope Kading.

Mrs. Castro, wife of Robert N. Castro, manager of the Sears-Roebuck & Co. store in Boise's Westgate Mall, long was active in park and recreational development in California. She will assume her duties July 1.

In her new job Mrs. Castro will administer the foundation program of generating gifts for park and recreation use throughout Idaho.

Efforts will be coordinated with the state Department of Parks and Recreation's land program as it relates to parks, beaches, greenways, scenic waterways and trails systems. Assistance also will be given by the foundation in helping other public agencies in securing gifts of land for park and recreational use.

The foundation also will work closely with the Idaho Bicentennial Commission and the Department of Parks and Recreation on the three major state park-bicentennial projects, Mrs. Kading said.

Funds received

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation has received $165,000 from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation for acquisition of 12 acres in Gooding County.

The land is located on the confluence of the Malad and Snake Canyons, approximately 20 miles northwest of Jerome. He said it will be used to develop scenic overlooks, trails and picnic areas.

Jerome meet set

JEROME — Strength and weakness of the geography of Jerome County will be discussed tonight by the comprehensive planning committee at 8 p.m. at Wood Cafe.

Committee members last week gathered data on the geography and will set priorities for goals and objectives.

Also on the agenda will be analyzing of the population and employment of county citizens.

The comprehensive planning committee has gathered statistical data on the county into a workbook. We are compiling a master copy of this for committee use," Forrest Hymas, committee chairman, said.

Contract ratified

SPOKANE (UPI) — Teamsters Union local leaders have ratified a contract with the Inland Empire Chapter of the Associated General Contractors.

The Teamsters officials took the action late Tuesday in approving the contract already ratified by members of five locals in Eastern Washington and Northern Idaho.

The three-year agreement calls for an average wage increase in all classifications of approximately 11 per cent this year, 8 per cent in 1975 and 7 1/2 per cent in 1976. This amounts to an increase of $2.42 over the term of the contract.

Fire razes home

BOISE (UPI) — An estimated $10,000 worth of damages resulted from fire which gutted three rooms of the home of Lloyd Haight, attorney for the J. R. Simplot Co.

The fire, which broke out Wednesday, gutted the music room, den and living room.

Firemen said cause of the blaze was not determined.

Shepard seeks re-election

BOISE (UPI) — Chief Justice Allan G. Shepard will run for re-election for his second six-year term on the Idaho Supreme Court.

He announced his intentions Wednesday.

Shepard has served in the Legislative, executive and judicial branches of government. He was twice elected attorney general of Idaho and served two terms in the Idaho House of Representatives.

Migrant education eyed

NAMPA, Idaho (UPI) — An analysis of migrant education will be provided by the chief of the federal programs at the seventh annual migrant education curriculum workshop starting here today.

Vidal Rivera Jr., from the U.S. Department of Education, will open the meeting.

The two-day session will include discussions on educational, cultural, and literacy activities for language arts, art, music, math, pre-school programs and physical education activities.

PYC hearing to resume

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission will resume Aug. 6 its hearing on the request of Utah Power and Light for a $5.1 million annual increase in rates in Southern Idaho.

The PUC resumed its hearing into the matter Wednesday after two and a half days of cross examination of utility officials. It will conduct direct examination when hearing resumes in August.

3 arrested

MOUNTAIN HOME, Idaho (UPI) — State and local police and narcotics agents have arrested three young persons described as "major" marijuana dealers.

Michael R. Minnahan, 19, an airman at Mountain Home Air Force Base was arrested Wednesday night and charged with felony possession of a controlled drug with intent to deliver.

Officers said his arrest led to the arrest of a young Boise couple four days later.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene C. Cole, both in their early 20s, were taken into custody and also charged with the felony drug count.

Rolling links issues

BOISE (UPI) — The decision to combine the lobbying registration and political campaign disclosure proposals as one initiative resulted because of a ruling by the Washington Supreme Court. Idaho sunshine initiative coordinator Mary McElroy of Boise said.

Mrs. McElroy said Wednesday the Washington and Idaho constitutions are similar.

She said it was first decided to split the proposals, but, after a high court ruling in Washington that all open government issues really dealt with one subject, it was decided to combine the two proposals in Idaho.

Democrats searce

BURLEY — No Democrats have filed for any county office in Cassia County, but courthouse officials say this is not uncommon.

With deadline for filing candidates petitions for the Aug. 6 primary fast approaching, Democrats are active in the county.

Wednesday has been incumbents filing for re-election.

These Republican office holders include Shirley Povison, treasurer; Calvin G. Helmer, assessor; John A. Clark, Oakley, second district commissioner; Frank Kearns, clerk; C. Bruce Young, coroner; Orville Beecher, third district commissioner; and Gordon S. Nielson, prosecuting attorney.

Present committee filing as of Wednesday include Mark Moorman, Pargason; Orland E. Bateman, Burley No. 2; Richard B. Tiley, Starb's Ferry; and George Granata, Burley No. 3. All are Republicans.

Driver and passenger escape injury in Jerome plunge

Lucke Luck

JEROME — A teenage Gooding girl and her younger brother narrowly escaped serious injury Wednesday morning when their car left the interstate and plunged into a canal.

According to State Policeman James Finch, the accident occurred about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday on Interstate 80 about one mile south of Jerome.

Finch said Dagna Rae Lucke, 15, was eastbound on the interstate when she was apparently distracted and lost control of her vehicle. The car, Finch said, went off the left side of the roadway, traveled down the median strip and plunged into a canal. With Miss Lucke in the vehicle was her brother, Ralph Jr., 10.

The first bit of luck for the Luckes, Finch said, was that the car narrowly missed the unspaced end of a guard rail on the highway before it went in the median.

The second bit of luck came, Finch said, when a passing motorist, Edward Owens, 56, Aberdeen, saw the Lucke car go into the canal and stopped his own vehicle to take to their assistance, pulling both Miss Lucke and her brother and a small poodle from the sinking car.

The Luckes escaped with minor bruises and abrasions, Finch said.

The car later floated down the canal, sank and became lodged under a bridge, Finch said. 35th Street from Wendell were called to hook wrecker cables to the vehicle so that it could be pulled loose.

The Luckes, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lucke, Gooding, were also lucky that the car did not overturn as it went into the canal, Finch said.

One bit of bad luck, the poodle, after being rescued, ran off and could not be found.

Finch said the Lucke vehicle was demolished.

1 candidate faces race

JEROME — Only one candidate faces opposition so far in the Jerome County primary election.

Howard Jepsen, Jerome County assessor, is being opposed by Edward Messenger, R. Jerome, who had worked in the assessor's office several years ago.

Jepsen has held the position the past seven years. Both men have filed for the position according to Mrs. Clair Ricketts, county clerk.

Claude Bernard, R. Jerome has filed for another term as county commissioner for the third district. He is unopposed at this time.

Bernard has been chairman of the commissioners for the past two years. He has served as a commissioner for six years having completed the term of former commissioner Willard Lattimer, then was elected for a two-year term followed by a four-year term which he is completing this year.

No petitions have been filed for the commissioner position now held by John Van Orman. Van Orman has not indicated whether or not he will seek another term.

Petitions have been filed by James Jones on the Republican ticket for precinct committeemen (by the Eden precinct, Don McFarland, the incumbent, has not filed for re-election).

Din Shur, R. Jerome, has also filed for precinct committeeman for the Canyonside district. He is unopposed. Shur has served two years in the position.

Mrs. Ricketts has also filed for another term as county clerk on the Republican ticket. Mrs. Ricketts has held the position since March of 1972.

Camas sees no contest

FAIRFIELD — Candidates for five Camas County offices face no opposition so far, either from their own party or the opposition, clerk George Gill reported Wednesday afternoon.

Deadline for candidate filings for the Aug. 6 primary is Monday, Friday at 5 p.m.

Four out of five incumbents have filed for the positions of county assessor, clerk, treasurer and second- and third district county commissioners.

Democrat Earl Wilson, the only new candidate, is seeking the third district county commissioner post which will be vacated by retiring John Humphreys, a Republican. Wilson, a Corral farmer, has served before as a county commissioner.

Edward Reagen, a Fairfield farmer, is seeking another term as assessor on the Democratic ticket. Reagen, originally appointed to the office, has since served a two-year and a four-year term.

Democrat incumbent L.W. Baldwin has filed for the second district county commissioner seat. Baldwin, a Fairfield cattle rancher, has served several terms as commissioner.

George Gill, R. Fairfield, is seeking a full term as clerk. Gill was appointed to the post mid-term.

Incumbent treasurer Loy Vankilke, D. Fairfield, office holder since 1968, is also seeking re-election.

The offices of prosecuting attorney, sheriff and constable are not up for election this year in Camas County.

No race seen at Lincoln

SHOSHONE — It appears there will be no race for Lincoln County office will be disputed neither primary or general elections.

Only two candidates had filed as of late Wednesday. Ed Savaria, who will seek the office of county assessor on the Republican ticket, is a retiring Bureau of Land Management employee from Shoshone.

He will apparently face no opposition from incumbent Sanford Connell, a Shoshone Democrat. Connell is reportedly retiring.

Incumbent county clerk Mrs. Joy McClure, R. Dietrich, is the only other candidate to file so far.

Although incumbents for three other county offices have not filed yet, observers expect they will run. Up for re-election is treasurer Myron T. Johnson, a Shoshone Republican and prosecuting attorney Howard E. Adkins, D. Shoshone.

No diversion

WASHINGTON — U.S. Sen. James A. McClure was told by the director of the National Water Resources Council that there will be no plan to divert waters from the Northwest to any other region for any reason.

The Idaho Republican extracted the emphatic quote "no diversion" from comment he made yesterday during the testimony of council director Warren E. D. Fairchild before the Senate Public Works Sub-committee on Water Resources.

McClure, a member of the sub-committee, said he hoped the policy statement by the council director would cool off the current controversy surrounding a water resources questionnaire circulated by the council, but the Idaho senator gave a stern warning about northwest waters.

"The people of Idaho will do battle at the first sign of any water diversion proposal. Maybe this latest controversy will bring that simple fact of life home. Any attempt to lay claim on our water will bring the same response and it's unanimous. Keep your hands off our water. I can't make it any plainer than that," said McClure.

6 posts vacant

HAILEY — No candidates had filed for six Blaine County offices that are up for election in the Aug. 6 primary and November general election.

Deadline for candidate filings is Friday at 5 p.m. Offices up for election include two county commissioner seats, county clerk, treasurer, assessor, coroner and prosecuting attorney.

Thomas B. Campbell, Democrat, Ketchum attorney, has announced his intention to run for prosecuting attorney. The incumbent, Stephen Bolter, Republican, will not seek re-election.

Other incumbents include Marie Irie, Democrat, clerk, auditor and recorder; Fred Demorel, treasurer; Delmer D. Nicholson, Republican, assessor; Jay Butler, Democrat, coroner; C.W. (Andy) Gardner, Democrat, Halley, second district commissioner; and Jack Bennett, Democrat, Ketchum, third district commissioner.

2 Cassia school contracts awarded

BY EMMITCHELL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Contracts for two Cassia County construction projects were awarded at the school board meeting Wednesday night.

Nielsen and Co. Twin Falls, was awarded a contract for the construction of the new Burley Elementary School with a bid of $1.16 million. Completion date was set for Aug. 28, 1975.

The board received three other bids for the project. The Mitchell Construction Co., Pocatello, bid $1.2 million; Tayson Inc., Pocatello, $1.8 million; and Watts Construction Co., Logan, Utah, $1.2 million.

The contract to remodel the Oakley High School, was awarded to Mitchell Construction Co. for a base bid of $316,000. The other bid from Nielsen and Co. was for $327,900.

The contract calls for a complete remodeling of the lower floor of the building. When the project is finished, total cost is expected to be about $460,000, according to William Richardson, architect for the school district.

The work was supposed to be finished by the time school reopens next fall, but may be delayed by current strikes in the construction industry.

Several of the general contractors who submitted bids for both projects, named Acme Electric, Heyburn, as the electrical subcontractor, including Nielsen Co. on the elementary school bid.

Representatives from Parr Inc., Idaho Falls, a mechanical and electrical sub-contractor, and Mitchell protested all bids which included Acme, saying that firm carries only a class B license.

A class B license allows only $50,000 worth of work on a public works project unless federal funds are involved, which is not the case in the school projects.

This was the subject of a court suit against the Cassia district and Mitchell Construction Co. when the board awarded Mitchell the contract to build the new junior high school last April. Mitchell had named a sub-contractor in their junior high school bid who had only a class B license at the time.

Nielsen Co. sued the district for accepting a bid which, under Idaho construction code, they said was "not responsible."

Wetlesen was the second lowest bidder on the junior high project.

In his ruling on the suit, Fifth District Judge Sherman Bellwood called the situation an "industry problem" and ruled in favor of the school district and Mitchell. The suit has not been appealed.

The Mitchell firm now has construction under way on the junior high project until the recent strike.

When the protests were lodged Wednesday night, Herman Beutke, school attorney, said, "I don't know whether it will be appealed or not, but whether it is or isn't doesn't matter to us; it is an industry problem." The Associated Contractors of Idaho is not running this outfit. I recommend the board note the protest and accept the low bid.

Mitchell representatives commented later the situation "has come full circle."

No candidates for 3 posts

GOODING — No one has filed for three Gooding County positions, Clerk Margaret Clements said Wednesday.

Deadline for candidate filings for the Aug. 6 primary election is 5 p.m. Friday.

As of Wednesday afternoon the posts of assessor, coroner and second district county commissioner from the Hagerman area have no candidates.

Mrs. Clements said she expects incumbent Commissioner John LeMoine, Republican, to file as he has taken out petitions.

There were no races for the primary, up to Wednesday afternoon, the clerk said.

Nelson King, incumbent, has filed for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner from the third district, and Bob Burks, also Wendell, seeks the Republican nomination for the same post.

Ben Glauner, Gooding, incumbent in the first district, is not up for re-election and the sheriff's office, a four-year term, also is not up for election.

Other county candidates having filed candidacy petitions are Mrs. Clements, Democrat, for re-election as county clerk; Doris Robertson, Republican, treasurer, and C. Edward Gunning, Republican precinct committeeman for Orchard Valley precinct.

Blaine County rejects 2,000-acre land offer

HATLEY—A plan to give Blaine County 2,000 acres of land was rejected Tuesday night from the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission.

Nick Purdy, commission chairman, broke a 4-4 tie voting not to give the park proposal favorable recommendation.

Purdy said the vote was only a recommendation to the county commissioners and did not mean the planning and zoning commission had vetoed the entire proposal.

John Kopkes has offered to give the county 2,000 acres, the Indian Creek Ranch, in exchange for development rights of more than 300 acres along the edges of the ranch.

He has asked the commission to waive the ordinance requiring developers to pave all roads in developed areas. He did say he would bring all roads up to county-graveled road specifications.

James Pigg, Bellevue commission member, said, "I have strong feelings against it. I am personally against the project with its many miles of roads. As far as the piece of ground goes much of it is worthless as far as the county is concerned. I think if we were to put roads in later it would be a tremendous expense to the taxpayers."

Martha Polteven, commissioner from Ketchum, said, "I do not think it is the responsibility of the planning and zoning commission to deal with all the problems of cost to the county. I think that is the responsibility of the county commissioners."

Polteven continued, "I would like to see a favorable recommendation first before we give it to the commissioners for the planning and zoning commission should include their own stipulations."

Don Angell, commissioner from Halley, said, "I don't feel the county should give assistance to the developer. I don't morally feel I can vote in favor of it from the city's viewpoint. I don't morally feel I could obligate the taxpayers."

Mary Jane Marin, commissioner, said, "This land is going to be a benefit to the county. She went on to say she feared all the area would be developed if the county did not accept the gift.

Purdy, who voted against favorable recommendation, said "I think we should let the private sector develop land if they want."

Purdy cast the deciding vote.

Duckling cuddled.
ONE of a family of six baby ducklings is cuddled by Eric Reval whose family rescued the ducklings from Main Avenue Tuesday.

Wild ducks find home

TWIN FALLS—Six wild baby ducklings who started life as city doves have a new home at the Idaho Fish and Game Department farm in Jerome.

A salesman at Abble Urigen's automobile agency, 712 Main Ave. S., thought he was seeing things when a wild mother duck and her six babies walked past the automobile agency Tuesday and entered the burned-out building which had housed the Blue Top bar behind the agency.

Assuming they were looking for a drink, he placed a pan of water in the old building but they continued on their way.

The salesman called the Times-News for a picture of the unusual scene but the family had departed.

Mrs. Brent Reval, whose husband works in the Urigen body shop "facing" on Second Avenue South, saw the six babies, minus the mother, cross the busy one-way street. They were found walking in a group down the railroad track near the Twin Falls Commission Co., and taken into the protective custody of the Reval family.

A cardboard box abelter was made to house them until a flat and game official picked them up later in the day.

The ducklings lost a mother in the process, but fish and game officials reasoned they escaped possible death in traffic or being lost and without food and water, and will have a good life at the game farm.

Four teams figure to be contenders in NCAA track

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The NCAA track and field championships, restricted to the decathlon — on Tuesday and Wednesday, turn busy Thursday with qualifying scheduled in 17 events.

The closest meet in years is expected with three-time defending champion UCLA trying to fight off challenges from a half-dozen schools — but most particularly Tennessee, Texas-El Paso and Brigham Young.

UCLA coach Jim Bush, "I'd say UTPE is the most loaded. It's been a long time, though, that I've seen four teams so close."

Bush said he thinks the team that can score 48 or 49 points will capture the title.

Garvey's ninth-inning homer sends LA past Pirates 3-2

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steve Garvey led off the bottom of the ninth inning with his 12th home run of the year to give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh Wednesday night, after the Pirates had rallied to tie the score in the top of the inning.

Dodgers starter Doug Rau had a 2-0 lead and a no-hitter through seven and a third inning, but lost his shutout bid when the Pirates pushed across solo runs in the eighth and ninth frames. The victory went instead to ace reliever Mike Marshall, who yielded a single to Richie Zisk, which drove in the Pirates' second run.

The victim of Garvey's centerfielder far over the outfield wall was lefthander Jim Rooker.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Mike Schmidt hit a three-run homer and Bob Boone contributed a solo home Wednesday night to account for all Philadelphia's runs as the Phillies retained first place in the National League East with a 4-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Jim Lonborg, 6-5, pitched a nine-inning and went the route. Phil Niekro, 6-4, took the loss.

Smith drives Cards past SF
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Reggie Smith drove in two runs with a double and sacrifice fly and Lou Brock had three hits and two stolen bases Wednesday in leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Sony Sibert (8-3) gained the victory for the Cards but needed ninth inning relief help from Orlando Pena.

Atlanta took an L-4 lead with an unearned run in the second when Dave Johnson was safe on Schmidt's two-base throwing error and scored on a single by Marty Fierco.

Williams will own Washington club

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sylvester Williams, a black Washington business executive, was announced Wednesday as holder of the city's franchise in the embryonic World Baseball Association.

Williams, who heads a Washington management consulting firm, told a news conference if the league gets off the ground and he fields a team, he would be interested in hiring Willie Mays or Elston Howard as manager.

He disclosed that he paid $50,000 for the franchise in the prospective new baseball operation contingent on a number of factors.

The immediate problem is that of Columbia's Robert P. Kennedy stadium which has been sold to baseball since the old Washington Senators moved to Texas after the 1971 season.

Second is the problem of forming a league. WBA promoter Sean Downey said franchises now have been awarded to Washington and Jersey City with a third to be announced sometime next week.

Unless the WBA can set up six teams by next year, Williams would be entitled to get his money back, Downey said he hoped to have eight franchises by then.

The third difficulty is obtaining players. Downey listed 52 former major leaguers who were given their unconditional releases, among them former 30-game winner Denny McLain, Orlando Cepeda, Billy Conigliaro, Joe Peplone and Tommy Agee.

Downey said the WBA would need players currently under contract to the American and National Leagues. He also

Celtics sign No. 1 choice
BOSTON (UPI) — Glenn McDonald, the world champion Boston Celtics' first round draft choice last week, Wednesday signed a two-year contract with the NBA club.

McDonald, a 6-6, 180 pound defensive specialist from Long Beach State, was expected to bolster the team's "steady" though defensive backcourt.

"My tongue is already hanging out over the defensive prospect," said Celtics' Coach Tom Heinsohn. "I think with Don Chaney's wing span and Billy Guy's (McDonald's) reach, they should be able to reach from sideline to sideline."

Downey said the WBA would need players currently under contract to the American and National Leagues. He also

NFL owners discuss rule, by-law shifts

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Football League owners turned their efforts toward constitutional amendments and the effects of their widespread recent rule changes in the second day of meetings here Wednesday.

Commissioner Pete Rozelle said that more rule changes have been discussed in addition to the effects the present ones will have on the game in 1974. The Commissioner also said, however, he doubted "any of the present rules would be altered."

The league will finish up its three days of meetings Thursday with a report from management council. John Thompson said he expects the labor negotiations with the Players Association.

A previous rule change that no one on the kicking team be permitted to start downfield before the ball is punted was amended to allow the two outside men on the kicking team to start downfield after the snap.

Gabrielson leads field into British amateur round of 32

GULLANE, Scotland (UPI) — Jim Gabrielson, 32-year-old Walker Cupper from Atlanta, Ga., produced his best golf so far Wednesday to reach the last 32 of the British Amateur golf championship at Gullane's Muirfield links. Gabrielson, America's main hope for the title, following the shock second round defeat of defending champion Dick Side-

rowf, made four birdies and was one under par in defeating Bill Tombling of Dallas, 3 and 2. "I'm getting better accustomed to the course and the little ball," said Gabrielson. "I just had time to catch up with the Walker Cup at St. Andrews. I had trouble with my pitching and putting. So I had intended to play our big ball. But the wind on the first two days killed that idea and now I don't intend to change."

High water slowing Salmon float trips

SALMON — Start of the float boating season on the Middle Fork — and Salmon River — is keyed to the return of both streams to safe floating levels, later this month.

The Middle Fork is running at the seven-foot level, which is extremely high, while the Salmon River here was above the six-foot reading.

Patrols as in the past. Ted Anderson has been named river manager this season. Warren also noted that the road to Daguer Falls on the upper Middle Fork still is closed by snow drifts.

Last season some 4,400 persons floated the river for a new record. Jim Wiley, recreation specialist on the North Fork Ranger District, advised that private party reservations to float the main Salmon River are now some 90 per cent filled for July and August.

Commercial operators indicate their trips are filled in some cases while others are only 60 percent of last year.

Persons floating the main Salmon also need reservations which can be obtained at the North Fork Ranger Station, along with trip permits.

Charles Cortright has been assigned to Corn Creek to check boaters for reservations, issue trip permits and inspect boats and equipment this coming season.

Star-Miller, Salmon, has been awarded the contract to provide the jet boat patrol to Salmon Falls.

More than 4,000 persons floated the main Salmon below Corn Creek last season.

Private party bookings for river are filled until the last week in August. Reservations for departure dates and campgrounds and trip permits are required of both private and commercial groups. The US Forest Service will operate rubber boat and kayak

Padres take shortstop to open free agent drafting

NEW YORK (UPI) — The San Diego Padres, whose wisdom in the past two summer baseball free agent drafts have brought them immediate major league help in the persons of Dave Roberts and Don Winfield, went for Brown University shortstop Bill Almon Wednesday to start this year's selections.

The Padres' success in the draft also lassoed Johnny Cueto as a first-round pick several years ago. However, the Padres are not expecting Almon to duplicate Roberts and Winfield's giant-step-from-college ball straight to the major leagues.

The Padres' previously had drafted the 21-year-old Almon three years ago when he graduated from high school in Warwick, R. I.

At least one other major league team admitted that Almon topped their list of major league prospects. The 6-4, 160-pound shortstop, who is right-handed, but also hit well over .300 and showed exceptional base-stealing success.

Other players well known on an amateur level to go in the first round were Texas-high school pitcher Tom Boggs, who was picked by the Rangers; Wayne Ford's son Edward, a shortstop the University of South Carolina who was chosen by the Boston Red Sox; and All-American high school football player Willie Wilson, who was selected by the Kansas City Royals.

Following the marvelous success of home-state product David Clyde as the top pick in last year's summer draft, the Texas Rangers eagerly swooped up Boggs, a righthander from Austin, Tex. Boggs, who said he was excited to be able to remain in Texas, signed immediately with the Rangers.

The 6-2, 201-pounder from Lehigh High School is reputed to have as much potential as Clyde, although lacking the extraordinary polish displayed by the Rangers' righthander as an 18-year-old pitching in the minor leagues last year.

Ford, who played for his father's Yankees' teammate Bobby Richardson at South Carolina, was the sixth shortstop taken in the first round of the draft.

The Red Sox described Lord as a switch-hitter, who hits better right-handed, and an improved defensive player.

Wilson, rated one of the best running backs in the country last year, was selected as an outfielder by the Royals.

Although Wilson has signed a letter-of-intent to play football at the University of Maryland next fall, the Royals have lured previous first round picks Jamie Quick from the Notre Dame grid program and Luke Olson from Stanford.

A Royals' spokesman said a team scout had talked informally to Wilson and estimated Kansas City's chances of signing him "about 50-50."

There were eight pitchers selected by the 24 teams in the first round and seven shortstops.

The pitchers taken were Boggs; Tom Brennan of Oak Lawn, Ill.; by the Cleveland Indians; Claude Edge of Sacramento, Calif.; by the Milwaukee Brewers; Larry Monroe of Mt. Prospect, Ill., by the Chicago White Sox; Rod Scurry of Sparks, Nev., by the Pittsburgh Pirates; Robert Speck of Beaverton, Ore., by the New York Mets; Richard Sutcliffe, Jr., of Kansas City, Mo., by the Los Angeles Dodgers and Steve Reed of Ft. Wayne, Ind., by the Cincinnati Reds.

The contingent of shortstops chosen, in addition to Almon and Ford, included Michael Milley of Metairie, La., by the California Angels; Dennis Sherrill of Miami, Fla., by the New York Yankees; Gary Templeton of Santa Ana, Calif., by the St. Louis Cardinals; Ted Shipley of Chattanooga, Tenn., by the Minnesota Twins and Richard Dawson of Colton, Calif., by the Baltimore Orioles.

Despite his 5-9 stature, outfielder Lonnie Smith of Compton, Calif., was the third player selected in the draft, taken by Philadelphia's professional football for a number of years.

"I'm happy for the chance," said Huarie. "I'm certainly not too old to play."

Indian brass knoos who's to blame for riot—the umpires

CLEVELAND (UPI) — General Manager Phil Neri of the Cleveland Indians Wednesday chastised the umpiring crew headed by Nester Chylak for losing control of Tuesday night's game with the Texas Rangers that erupted into a knife-wielding, bottle-tossing, bear-riot on "10 cent beer night."

Billy Martin, the Rangers manager, also was accused by Neri of provoking the riot.

Bowling Kuhn, the Baseball Commissioner, said that future game promotions "which cause problems of this type" will be reviewed in advance.

Seghi, in a telegram to American League president MacPhail, also lodged a formal protest against the game which was forfeited to the Rangers. Seghi conceded the "chances are the protest would not be upheld, but he at least wanted MacPhail to know the Indians' side of the story."

The Indians made it clear there would be increased security forces at Municipal Stadium for the final two games with the Rangers on Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Bonda said the incident which precipitated the brawl in which hundreds of fans stormed the field at the stadium came when Martin led his team with bats in hand onto the field. The Rangers say this action took place only seconds before the game.

Burroughs, who was trying to get his cap from a fan who had come out of the stands and snatched it off his head.

"It was bad enough Martin leading his men out there, with our players following to help," Bonda said.

"Whether provoked or not, Martin threw gravel at the fans and thumbed his nose at them near the Texas dugout."

"If the umpires had tried to keep all the players in the dugout and quell the Burroughs incident by itself, I don't think this happening would have occurred. Then it just mushroomed and snowballed and you know what happened after that."

Bonda, only in his eighth month with the Indians, said the incidents which led to eight persons being arrested, one person hospitalized, and several players injured was caused by "all sorts of factors, including the ten cent beer night promotion; the Tribe's tying the game in the bottom of the ninth; students being out of school, and people just wanting to see a good ball game."

Bonda said he defer "my decision on whether or not to suspend the remaining three or four nights."

"I deplore anyone going on the field," Bonda said, "and Phil has ordered more security for future games."

"We've got to learn from this situation and then make a very careful evaluation and worthwhile effort to prevent such incidents from recurring."

"The fans on the field and got away with it, more tried to do it and got away with it, too. They were just trying to play 'King of the Hill.' What one does and gets away with, another wants to try, too."

The wire Seghi sent to MacPhail at American League headquarters in New York said: "While we deplore the incident which led to the forfeiture, we also feel that there was no warning given to the fans during the course of the game by the umpires that any continuation of interruptions of play would lead to a declaration of a forfeiture of the game."

"Also, we're strongly feel that in the ninth inning it should be possible to think back to the Cleveland Indians ball club and the Texas Rangers ball club had gone back to the dugouts unmolested and that the umpires should have made a more concerted effort to have our policemen clear the field so that our game could be resumed."

Seghi said if he had the opportunity to use hindsight he would have made an announcement on the public address system early in the game to tell the fans to stop running out onto the field.

Bonda also called upon the American League to conduct a study on crowd control to help avoid such instances throughout baseball.

"We have to start to give crowd control more consideration and make certain judgments with it," he said. "It will be for the betterment of the fans, the players and the club."

Seghi who said umpire-in-chief John Stevens was in attendance at the game, said he asked him if he would have forfeited the game. Seghi said Stevens responded with a terse "no."

"As it was, Chylak termed the fans as 'just uncontrollable beasts.'"

"We never thought it would reach that crescendo," Seghi said. "The American League expected something to happen because of the incident last week in Texas and had someone here to view the game."

"Insofar as a beer night was concerned, most clubs said they were not contemplating any

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Listen to what a good friend recommends instead of rushing right into something like a bull in a china shop.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Know how to crystallize your public situation, status and this can help you in your career. Be sure bigwigs back you to avoid trouble.

MOON-CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Change your attitude to prevent some possible argument with a partner. Study new information so you are more knowledgeable of modern requirements.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your work is going rather badly right now, so don't let a critical associate get you down. Complete the job at hand. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Look to some good partner for the progress you want to make now, even though your mind is on having a good time. Be appreciative of any help.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Increase the art and culture in your home. Keep calm about something you can do nothing about. Avoid one with a bone to pick.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Buy those things you need the most and keep your eye on your wallet while talking with personnel at stores. Enjoy favorite amusements with congenials.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know just where you are going where money is concerned with kin and reach sensible decisions. Cut down on unnecessary expenses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Conditions may not be as you wish, but keep your cool and handle routine matters so you are not worried about them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get into the practical side of life and forget all that dreaming that could cause you trouble. Follow advice of a financier.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The planets are most favorable and you can now attain fine goals, so stop procrastinating on important matters. Get much done.

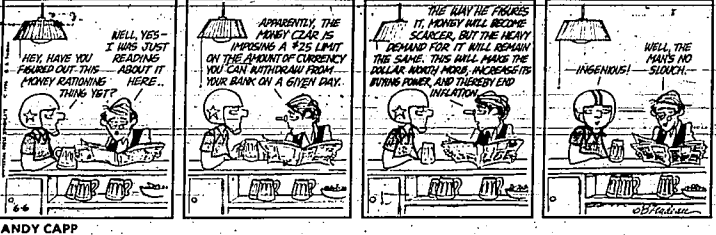

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will love to talk, debate, so slant education along lines of the ministry, politics, teaching, etc., and give a course in logic so that reason is always used. Teach him to come right to the point. Instead of going around the mullberry bush. Then the success becomes far more marked.

ARTHRITIS
Q. "What are the chances of recovery for somebody with crippling arthritis?"
A. Pretty fair. Seven out of 10 such patients are said to get better with the right medical care.

Q. "Louie, your best suggestion, please, as to how I can get my husband to go on a diet?"
A. All right, hang a full length mirror on his shower door.

Q. "What percentage of the cigarette is nicotine?"
A. Maybe 2 to 7 per cent. Depends on the tobacco—Turkish, practically none; Good Havana, not much. Domestic, somewhat more.

First of the world's horse drawn trolley cars turned up 2,000 years ago in ancient Pompeii. The tracks weren't rails, but grooves in the pavement. File that.

ELEPHANTS
Last I heard, male elephant calves were selling in this country for about $560 each; female elephant calves for about $700. Clearly, it's not the cost of the elephant that prevents the elephant's grub. It's known that every elephant is hungry all the time.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks

newly listed, closing in quiet trading on the New York Stock Exchange Thursday.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 2 3/4 points to 1,095.64, the Dow industrials average fell 2 1/4 points to 1,095.64.

Issues gaining in price held a slight lead over losers, among the 374 stocks traded.

The market again demonstrated Wednesday the attention remains keyed to the future course of interest rates.

In the morning hours, the list weakened in reaction to a forecast the previous day by a leading banking spokesman that major banks are not about to lower their prime rates—charged on loans to top-rated business borrowers.

Investors bought heavily in the afternoon—however, the First National City Bank Chairman Walter Wriston said he foresees the prime falling to 7 or 8 percent by year-end.

The Dow finally turned back close, and the Dow ended 1.49 higher to 830.18 on Wednesday, as traders awaited more concrete signs on the future course of the prime rate.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Live cattle

CHICAGO (UPI) — Live cattle futures forged their strongest close in nearly three weeks Wednesday.

Commodity News Service says short-covering, strong local support and rumors of favorable reports from the U.S. Department of Agriculture helped the market rebound after an opening weakness.

A report of odd lots was accomplished as the four near-term contracts were at one time during the session almost at the same price of $37.25 cwt. Later closing on Thursday the highest volume for any May and the fifth-highest for any month in its 55-year history, Everett B. Harris, President, said.

Live cattle, live hogs, lumber and feeder cattle all established records for the month, he said.

Exchange sets record

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sparked by a surge in a live-cattle trading, the Chicago Mercantile Exchange recorded the highest volume for any month in its 55-year history, Everett B. Harris, President, said.

Live cattle, live hogs, lumber and feeder cattle all established records for the month, he said.

500,440 contracts traded, up 449 percent from last year's 345,446.

Live cattle accounted for 267,553 contracts, up 42.1 percent from the year earlier 188,538. It was the third-most active month in the history of the contract, which was introduced in November, 1944. Another factor cited by several traders was the reduction of margins effective April 8. Initial speculative margins for live cattle, live hogs and eggs were reduced to $800 per contract.

Total volume of the first five months of 1974 set all-time record pace of $7.1 billion, up 26.7 percent from $5.6 billion in 1973. Live cattle was down 25 percent to 1,445,481 in 1,173,009.

"It is true that you may fool all the people some of the time; you can even fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all the people all the time." This well-known maxim was recorded in "The Lincoln's Yarns and Stories," by Alexander McClure. McClure says Lincoln also remarked: "If you once forget the confidence of your fellow citizens, you can never regain their respect and esteem."

Missile test shot block thrown up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A stumbling block has been in the way of an Air Force proposal to test five Minuteman missiles across Idaho to the Pacific Ocean...

The Air Force has proven any need for these tests. The proposed test firings have drawn strong opposition from political leaders and others in Idaho, Montana, Washington and Oregon...

McClure said he felt it would be obvious to the Air Force "that when most elected officials from an entire region led by the Senate Majority Leader show such intense opposition to a project, that project has no chance of receiving congressional approval..."

House passes bill setting camp fees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has passed a bill to relate fees for camping at all national parks and most Forest Service areas.

The bill, however, requires that a number of camping facilities be provided before a fee can be charged, and it directs the Army Corps of Engineers to provide at least one large recreational camping area at all lakes and reservoirs with no fee or charge.

The legislation approved Tuesday is designed to correct a fee lapse last year, which resulted in eliminating camping charges at all national parks and most Forest Service areas, at a cost to the government of $1.2 billion a year.

The Corps of Engineers must provide at least one large primitive camping area at all of its lakes and reservoirs, free of charge.

The House passed a similar bill, and differences between the two are expected to be worked out in a conference committee.

Rail cars derail

AVERY, Idaho (UPI)—Six Milwaukee Railroad cars derailed near the Idaho-Montana border, dumping 35,000 gallons of liquid chemicals into Cliff Creek, a tributary of the St. Joe River.

Jim Kimball, regional environmental supervisor for the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services, said there was no discernable damage to the aquatic life from the spill Tuesday.

The railroad tanks ruptured in the derailment, spilling 25,000 gallons of caustic soda and 10,000 gallons of aluminum sulphate into the stream.

A tank with hot lime also opened, but only a small amount of the chemical spilled and none of it went into the creek.

Kimball said the creek is running high and heavy rainfalls have helped to dilute the chemicals.

The cause of the derailment near the Tait Tunnel about six miles from Avery has not been determined.

Kimball said samples of the creek water were taken about 200 feet below the site of the wreck and the water was running clear. The water had turned brown farther down stream where the concentration could be observed.

He said there was no observed damage to aquatic life—no dead fish were found. But personnel from the Idaho Department of Fish and Game were called in.

AF aide named to post

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Air Force Gen. George S. Brown was confirmed by the Senate today to become new chairman of the military Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Brown will serve a two-year term starting July 1 as successor to Adm. Thomas S. Moorer who is retiring. Brown's nomination was approved routinely by voice vote.

Also confirmed was the appointment of Gen. David C. Jones to a four-year term as Air Force chief of staff, along with these other nominations.

Terrell H. Bell, Utah, new U.S. commissioner of education.

Jack Franklin Bennett, Connecticut, and Edward C. Schumley, Maryland, to be undersecretaries of the Treasury.

Catherine May Bedell, Washington state, a new term to the Tariff Commission.

Previous claims queried

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Some previous claims about Alka-Seltzer in particular may have to start running ads confessing that previous claims were wrong, a high Federal Trade Commission official suggested Wednesday.

Such advertising may also include warnings to the consumer on side effects, the proper dosage and other cautions now listed only on product labels, said J. Thomas Rosch, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

Rosch told a Senate subcommittee hearing that the Food and Drug Administration's review of all over-the-counter drugs—the antacid portion of which was completed Tuesday—should make the products safer and effective, but there is a problem, he said, if consumers go on buying nonprescription drugs on the basis of old advertising claims disproved by the FDA review.

Erasing such erroneous consumer beliefs, Rosch said, is a matter "worthy of substantial commission attention." It is possible, he said, that "corrective advertising orders will be requested in order to dispel public misimpressions concerning the use of drug products."
