

Valley Comment: labor unions

QUESTION: What do you think about the recent union drives in the Magic Valley?

Mrs. Ralph Lowe, Twin Falls: "It's a good idea really. Unions as far as I'm concerned can help you in a big company. But I don't see a need for them in a small company."

"Unions can make better working conditions for the employees. But it depends on what kind of union it is. I know of several that have really not supported the employees. If you get a good one behind you, that's all right. If not, you're sunk."

Warren Ely, Twin Falls: "I think the union has been a good deal down through the years. They've made mistakes, yes, but they've helped a lot of people that wouldn't have been helped if it hadn't been for the union."

William Houser, Twin Falls: "A union can be good and it can be bad. It's only as good as the people make it. A good union will not only give you a good wage and good hours, it's got to give you a decent retirement and decent benefits." "Striking is just about the only way that you're almost guaranteed that your wages will keep up with the cost of living."

Ruth Williams, Twin Falls: "If you don't have unions you have low wages. I was raised in the South where the workers were getting very small wages. My father was a textile worker and when they unionized they got better wages, better working conditions and better treatment by the bosses."

Brian Fonesbeck, American Falls: "If it's a good union, it's okay. But our unions in Idaho tend to lean toward management and are kind of pressed under a little."

"I think it's good if it's balanced between the management and the people so they are not always striking but are still getting benefits for the people."

Girdys Coxen, Twin Falls: "I think they've been helpful in many instances. But they can be too demanding."

"Not always. But sometimes they don't consider the total picture. They don't consider the ultimate consequences."

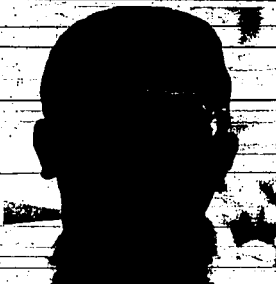

J.D. Crego, Filer: "I don't think it's very good. I grow up thinking about those things in a conservative way. It's better to have supply and demand set the price rather than it being set by unions."

James Miller, Twin Falls: "I think that when they first started they were a good thing. But the pendulum has swung the other way."

"Before, the factories all had the power. But now it's turned to where the unions have all the power. I'm not for unions at all."

School can be fun TF children find

TWIN FALLS — At least 44 Twin Falls youngsters are spending this summer in school and liking it that way.

The youngsters are all in school for the first time and are part of the Twin Falls School District's new kindergarten program.

Three kindergarten classes are held each weekday morning at Morningside School to prepare children who have not attended either Head Start or private kindergarten programs for their first-grade experience this fall.

"We are very thrilled with the program," Dennis Messenger, director, said. The response was greater than expected, according to Messenger, and both he and the children are excited about it. Dolores Tarks, kindergarten teacher, said the children are being taught math, reading and writing readiness. Each day the students make some kind of art project so they have something to take home to show their parents.

In addition to the traditional cookie and milk treat Mrs. Tjark said she takes her class to the playground for a "break" each day. About 45 minutes is as long as they can last without getting out and moving around," she said.

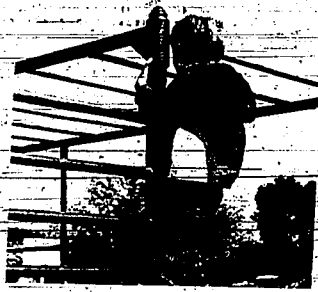

Classes started May 30, and a few days later the children had learned their classmates' names and were poking and talking to each other about the and coloring and all the other exciting things they were learning.

Mrs. Lena Schmeckel's class had begun a special project in nature study centered around the tree. By looking at the tree each day, pointing out its beautiful parts and learning its importance, the children learn about their environment and begin focusing their attention on trees instead of the blacktop, Mrs. Schmeckel said.

Congressman's wife returns to theater stage

By LOUISE LAGUE
Star-News Staff Writer

Never trust a South African romance. Look what it did to June Duncan!

There she was, a 29-year-old English actress just getting established professionally and just sick and tired of falling in love every six months. So what happened? Touring in South Africa, she met one Orval Hansen, from Idaho of all places, and on leave from graduate studies at the University of London.

Two weeks later, he proposed, but she retreated to England, considering it just one of those things.

"He was never very demonstrative in person," she said in an interview yesterday. "But he wrote wonderful letters. My father said never believe what a man writes in a letter, unless he's a lawyer. Well, Orval was a lawyer, so I married him."

TODAY he is Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, and she is June Hansen, Congressional wife, mother of seven and professional actress with Arena Stage.

Mrs. Hansen's first Mrs. Bumpett, the nosy neighbor in David Storey's "In Celebration," marks her return to the professional stage after 19 years of bearing and raising children, godmothering 72 cats from a single fertile beast, and doing suburban-American things.

"I didn't really stop acting when I married Orval," she said. "We moved right to Idaho where I was lovingly greeted by his family. They didn't know what to expect of an English actress. He had sent them two pictures one of me as a nun and one as a wench, and told them I was a cross between the two."

"Orval started touring for the state legislature right away, and my acting experience helped in the campaign. Every time he ran, I had another baby. The first time I was very pregnant and went knocking on doors. 'I'm June Hansen,' I'd say, 'and I want you to do something for

Only cowards vacation without their children

By ERMA BOMBECK

There are families who take vacations with their children.

There are families who prefer to stay at home with their children. The surviving cowards!

Sure, it's easy to spend time with your kids when you have a stove to cook on . . . a washing machine that doesn't eat quarters . . . and a freezer you can run to for a gin poppalee anytime you want.

But-out there on the road—in a leaky tent, a sandy bed, and mildewed marshmallows . . . it's a jungle.

Our neighbors, Wanda and Duward, have never taken a vacation in their lives. When their children were infants, do you know what her excuse was for not traveling? "What fun would it be for me to wash diapers in a saucupan and sit in mosquito-infested cabin while my husband fished?" So, who promised her a rose garden?

When their children were toddlers, she again stayed home saying, "All our children can do now is fall in a lake, upset a boat, or drool chocolate all over their clothes." So what are kids for?

When their kids were 9 and 11, she informed me they were staying home because other parents told them all their children needed about 1000 quarters in a magic fingers vibrating bed.

But there were other chances for them to be one of the gang. One year they rejected a vacation because their daughter had a boyfriend who threatened to turn to crime if she left him. Another year, their son had a job and they would have had to plan their vacation between 9 p.m. Sunday and 4:30 p.m. Monday.

It's hard to love people like Wanda and Duward . . . people who are practical, sensible, and perceptive. I had just about given up on our having any kind of a relationship when she informed me this year she and Duward were going on a vacation . . . without the children.

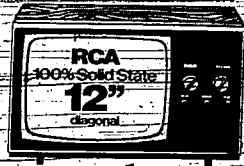

"I think they're old enough to be trusted and mature enough to be left at home alone," she said. "I have a freezer full of food for them, notes all over the refrigerator, and emergency numbers in case they need us."

Man devotes life to wildlife causes

SALMON — When the meeting concerns fish and game, the one person most likely to be around is Ray J. (Rocky) Holmes of Twin Falls.

Holmes has devoted the past 21 years to serving the public interest in fish and game matters.

He served for 18 years as a member of the Idaho Fish and Game Commission from the fourth district, until April, 1971.

After that, Gov. Cecil Andrus and the commission selected him to represent the commission on the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Licensing Board.

Holmes, who was on hand for the weekend meetings of the Idaho Outfitters and Guides Association in Salmon, said that the Idaho Fish and Game Department has developed into a "high quality" department.

He described Joseph Greenley, department director, as "very outstanding, very qualified, hard working, dedicated director."

"Under his direction we are going through a new reorganization which is going to bring a marked improvement for wildlife management, bringing authority closer to the people," Holmes said.

Holmes, who founded Holmes Oil Co. in Twin Falls November, 1936, still operates the business. He is 73.

Holmes has devoted much of his life to community service. In Twin Falls he served on the chamber of commerce and its past president, and the Kiwanis Club, also as past president and past lieutenant governor.

He received the Twin Falls Jaycees senior citizen community service award twice.

"My interest in better government caused me to work with the legislature about 35 years ago," he recalled. "Having been in business on collecting gasoline taxes all these years, I was concerned about political control of the Idaho Highway Department."

Holmes was a leader in organizing the effort to take the Idaho Highway Department out of the politics and into the present department.

"It took seven biennial sessions to get that accomplished which was only achieved with the aid of a lot of other fine people," he said.

Holmes became acquainted with Sen. Len Jordan, who, upon becoming governor, asked Holmes to serve on a committee to reorganize the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

He said the group reorganized the fish and game department over the next few years so that it developed into what is considered nationally as one of the outstanding fish and game departments in the United States."

Holmes says that his involvement in community and state service has brought him at times to the point of spending "more time on these interests than on his own business."

Holmes says today, he feels the department is suffering from political pressures being exerted by environmental extremists.

As to his future, he says he will continue to work in the public interest as long as he's able.

"As long as they feel I can render a service to the state and as long as I can do it, I will. I'm like an old firehorse. I don't know when to quit. It has become my greatest interest."

"Both statewide and nationally I've met some of the finest people I've ever known. They've dedicated their lives to conservation of the resources not only of this state, but the United States."

"While trying to improve the habitat and natural resources of the nation you come in conflict with many important industries. One of the problems has been in setting down wild industries. I feel we can do it. We can work out a workable plan and still have a good program for wildlife, conservation and resource management."

Holmes says he's always hunted and fished and has been close to nature.

But with advancing years he's put his gun aside and taken to "camera hunting."

"One of the finest experiences for people is to get close to nature, to see the beautiful scenery, experience the quiet and solitude, walking the trails and stalking game."

He said he is never happier than when in a hunting camp, with friends, sitting around the fire at night, visiting and telling stories.

"And I'm a pretty good cook," he commented.

At the annual Wildlife Federation meeting in Lewiston this year he was presented an Idaho Wildlife Federation trophy for his many years of service to fish and game.

Holmes was born June 1, 1901, in Oskaloosa, Iowa, but was raised in Pendleton, Ore. Before going into his own oil business he was a district sales representative for Shell Oil Co. for 12 years in Eastern Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming and Montana.

He and his wife Gladys have two daughters, Sheryl Yanksee, Twin Falls, and Charleen Von Gortler, Tucson, Ariz.

Skyscrapers can affect weather

HOUSTON (UPI) — Skyscrapers in big cities can affect the weather like mountains do, and they have significantly changed rainfall patterns all over the world, according to research scientists. Dr. Joseph L. Goldman.

"The tall buildings act as a mountain to the wind," said the University of St. Thomas professor, associate director of the Institute for Storm Research.

"As the wind blows over this very low sloping surface, it impinges on these buildings. Some of it goes up. Some of it goes around."

"When it goes up and around, it is lifted," he said. "It cools and condenses. It forms clouds and then it rains."

He said the effect of skyscrapers has already shown up in meteorological statistics. In Houston, for example, the east side received more rainfall than the west because it is nearer the primary source of moisture, the Gulf of Mexico.

"We now find that it is dryer in the downtown area."

where it used to be wet before," Goldman said. "The west used to be dry relative to the downtown area and the east."

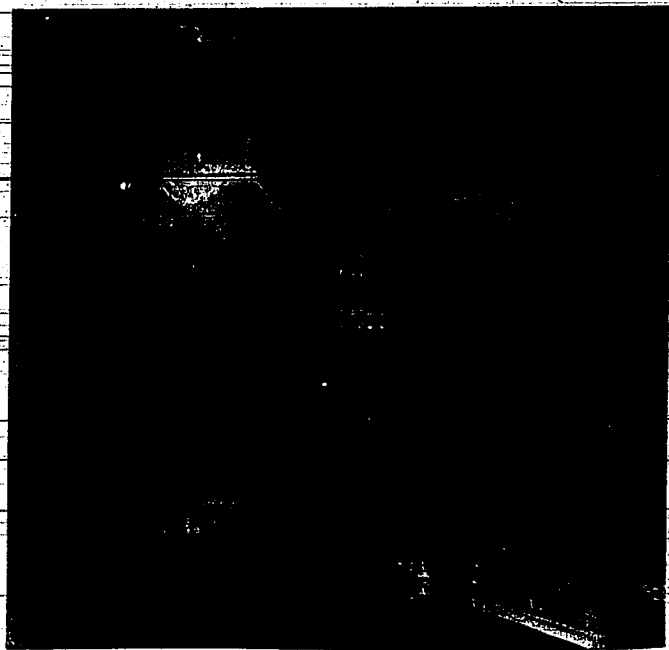

"It's happening all over the world," he said.

"Goldman suggested the change in rainfall patterns caused by the buildings be applied to practical urban problems, such as planning drainage systems and the problem of sinkage."

The land sinkage — up to 8 inches a year in some areas — is caused by giant industries sucking millions of gallons of water from beneath the surface. It would help for the industries to switch to surface water.

"Goldman said big cities require a great amount of water to survive, and he takes issue with those who think there won't be enough in the future."

"I'm sort of an optimist," Goldman said. "I think it's very possible we can progress into the metropolis with a very efficient system. The source of moisture is right here. I think we'll have all the water resource we'll need."

Old home remodeled as antique shop

By MELBA THORNE

Times-News writer

SHOSHONE—A Shoshone couple has remodeled an old home in the area into a bright-appearing "Antique Shop-Home."

Mr. and Mrs. Don Keffler, owners, will officially open the shop Wednesday with hours from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The Kefflers came to Shoshone from Missoula, Mont., for Mr. Keffler's health. He and his wife have enjoyed watching the shop take form and are anticipating meeting folks from this area.

The remodeled home was an attraction because of its old-apparel lines. Mrs. Keffler's colorful re-decorating and finishing have preserved and added to the overall effect.

The home which, was owned for years by J. O. Helderman, Twin Falls, has decorative pillars and porches. The original designs date back to the beginning of the century.

Two front rooms have been prepared for the shop display. In addition to the show case containing various novelty and art items, the shop includes antique refinished pictures, collector's designs, kerosene lamps, tables, wash boiler and boards and trunks.

Mrs. Keffler has made several "rock" pictures for the shop. The tiny tin bugs, owls, chipmunk and even the watermelon he is eating, are made from rocks. She has collected and painted.

One of Mrs. Keffler's pictures on display in the shop is made from wood bits and rock, in addition to oil paints. It depicts a country landscape complete with log house, nut bushes, wagon, cutting block and ax, and a rising sun.

Mrs. Keffler said the picture is called "Sun Up." She said she spent two hours making the broom that stands on the porch of the log cabin.

Antique display

STANDING behind the display case in her new antique shop is Mrs. Doris Keffler, Shoshone. She made the picture she is holding which, along with many others, can be purchased at the shop.

New soft contact lenses have good, bad, points

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are there any dangers in wearing soft contact lenses, provided all precautions are taken? Are they better for teenagers than regular contacts? — E. A. B.

Probably no more dangerous than the hard contact lenses, but there are advantages as well as disadvantages.

The soft lenses mold to the contour of the eyeball better and is more comfortable, and in some eye conditions, particularly if the cornea is of unusual shape, the soft lenses have a definite usefulness. Eye specialists would advise you about that — in fact, my advice is to listen to what the specialist tells you, rather than insisting that you want a certain type.

Your Good Health

It is essential that the soft lenses be sterilized every day, because bacteria have been found either from handling the lenses or from contamination carried in the air.

The soft lenses must be handled most carefully because the very thin covering can be ruptured. They can be lost more easily and be harder to find because of their jelly-like consistency.

Vision may not be as sharp with the soft lens, but the difference is not great.

The soft lens may have to be replaced oftener than the older type.

But some patients can tolerate the soft lenses better than the hard.

Hence valid arguments for and against. But the soft lenses are newer and improvements are being made constantly. So I repeat: pay attention to your eye specialist's advice.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Did you ever hear of putting an incision in the gall-bladder and letting the bile drain? What is the outcome, will it ever heal? Is it just an experiment? — C. B.

Yes, it is commonly done. A tube is put through the gall-bladder wall and extends through the skin to the outside. The tube is eventually removed or extruded and both incisions heal.

It's not an experiment, but it is a technique to be used only at the surgeon's direction, depending on the nature of the gall bladder problem.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have to know as soon as possible what you have heard and what you know of a lens implant for cataracts. — B. J.

My knowledge a lens transplant is not done for a cataract. Are you sure you aren't thinking of corneal transplant — transplanting the cornea or outer covering of the eyeball? That's done regularly.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Had a test for glaucoma and it registered "26." Can you tell me something about it? Does high blood pressure have anything to do with it? I am taking medication for that. I am 68. — Mrs. S. D.

Glaucoma is an increase in pressure within the eyeball, but has no direct relationship to high blood pressure. It can occur in patients with normal blood pressure. Occurrence is a coincidence, albeit a rather common one because high blood pressure is so prevalent.

A reading of 26 is elevated, since 20 is regarded as top normal. Prompt — and continuing — treatment with eye drops is the right course, since untreated glaucoma can cause blindness.

Matted fur needs brushing

By LINDA MERRY, D.V.M.

Question: I have a two-year-old calico cat. She had been first to kittens last month. After they were born, she stopped cleaning herself. I was wondering what would help the rats on the rear-end-of-her-back?

Answer: The best rat chasers around are a good stiff brush and a fine-toothed pet comb. Use performed to see what damage occurred within the body.

Often it's possible to give a diagnosis simply on the basis of what is seen: ruptured liver, twisted intestine, hemorrhage in the brain. If poisoning or disease is suspected, tissue samples or stomach contents may be sent to the laboratory for further studies.

The Merry Pat.

Question: I have two cats. They worked out. Rats that defy combing may be hard to be sure you can see the bottom blade of the scissors through the hair before cutting — cats are thin-skinned.

So much for the batch of rats. What worries me is a lady cat who suddenly neglects her toilet. A well-groomed puss who typically becomes sassy may be too sick to lick. I wonder if your cat doesn't have a low-grade uterine infection which began when the kittens were born. Low-grade infections don't always lay low and I think she'd better see her doctor before she has more troubles than a ratly-fur coat.

Question: I had a parakeet. He was fine, nothing was wrong except he was in the moulting season. And then I went to check on him, and he was dead at the bottom of my cage. I checked to see if he was caught on something but he wasn't. Could he be died of heart attack? If so, how do I prevent this? Or could he be died of something else?

Answer: Something like a pretty loose diagnosis but it's about as close as a veterinarian can come on a dead bird with no history, no exam, and no necropsy.

Necropsy is the word we use for a post-mortem exam on animals. I Autopsy for people. Whenever an animal dies suddenly, with no previous signs, a necropsy may be Necropsy frequently reveals fascinating facts, but the request must be made in advance. To a decomposition being at this point I'm afraid it's too late to diagnose your parakeet's problem.

Question: How do you stop a dog from jumping, biting, and taking things away from his OWN MOTHER?

Answer: His OWN MOTHER will stop him when she's had all of it she can enjoy. Mama dogs are very effective disciplinarians in their own right. But if she seems to enjoy more of it than you can, the havoc may be stopped by discipline. Be certain, though, that you are consistent and aren't punishing a puppy for being a puppy.

Stock cars hit dirt track in Magic Valley races

By ED MITCHELL
Times-News writer

PAUL Gold's first dirt-track car racing is happening in the Magic Valley this summer.

A line-up of 17 stock cars put on an enthusiastic show last weekend at the motocross track west of Paul with racing in several classes including women's and junior classes.

The racing was sponsored by the Magic Valley Stock Car Club, Inc. for the first time this year.

The cars are older model American sedans, most of them apparently resurrected from back yards and junk piles. All of them showed the effects of numerous dings and bashes that are certain to occur in dirt track racing. They are equipped with crash cages completely surrounding the driver in the cockpit.

The bars used for the cages look massive enough to be a gym set for King Kong.

The track is built inside a motorcycle racing track in a quarter-mile oval. Although it provides safe and exciting racing, it cannot be said that dirt track events are clean fun. Even after sweating with water truck, dust is thick on cars, drivers and spectators.

Equal rights for women appear to be taken seriously in the Magic Valley Stock Car Club. Women in coveralls working on their cars are an accepted part of the scene as are women competing in races.

In last weekend's event, there were also the attractive female fans in brief outfits which are part of the racing tradition in every form of the sport of all continents. Hopefully this will be the last tradition in racing to go.

Several of the cars are owned by proprietors of body and machine shops, an ideal arrangement since severe wrinkles almost always develop in the cars' skins before the event is over. Others are sponsored by area businesses and private people.

The racing itself is entertaining to watch as well as to participate in. Dirt track racing without the dangers, sometimes associated with more sophisticated equipment and higher speeds.

Because of the nature of a dirt track, cars spin and slide, sometimes managing a complete rollover, but the action is usually harmless to the driver.

This type of racing is the least expensive in automotive sports. Basically anyone with enough mechanical aptitude to put an old car together and make it run well can try his hand at it without mortgaging his home.

Most forms of car racing began with similar equipment on this type of track. Unfortunately for persons with moderate incomes, the situation changed so that now big-time stock car racing requires an effort costing hundreds of thousands of dollars per season.

Many of the drivers who are nationally known and earn salaries in the Joe Namath category started in the same type of racing you can see any weekend this summer in the sagebrush boon-docks of Minidoka County.

Races are scheduled through September 28.

Black walnut roots can injure plants

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

BLACK WALNUT A VILLAIN?

We receive many letters asking us why you can't grow vegetables near a black walnut tree. Black walnut trees are highly prized for the nuts and timber, but scorned in another way. Here are some answers to questions we receive:

(1) Do the roots of a black walnut tree really secrete a poison? Ans: Yes, the roots contain a phenolic plant poison called Juglone. This compound is NOT secreted into the soil, but when susceptible plants touch the roots, injury occurs.

(2) How far out is the toxic zone? Ans: The range is as far as the spread of the root system, anywhere from 50 to 60 feet, and up to 80 feet.

(3) What are the susceptible plants? Ans: No one has compiled a list yet, but highly susceptible plants include many evergreens, azaleas, rhododendrons, and many vegetables such as tomatoes, corn, potatoes, plus dozens of others.

(4) How about sawdust, wood chips, or leaves from walnut trees. Are these safe to use? Ans: Yes, only the roots exude the poison.

(5) After the tree has been cut down, is the soil poisonous to plants? Ans: Once the tree has been killed or removed, no more Juglone is made.

(6) Would you recommend a black walnut tree on a small lot where vegetables are to be grown? Ans: No, not if you want to raise vegetables.

ROOTING CRAPPLIES: One of the slickest ways to start your own grapes is to use milk cartons and "crapplies." Go to a friend who has grapes and select some "crapplies" canes which have been pruned. Get a cutting about 8" or so long, and try to have 2 good nodes (the spot where buds are).

Insert the cutting into the vermiculite and keep it moist and in a sunny spot. The woody stem will root within a month, and you'll have roots on both sets of nodes.

Early spring - March through May - is an ideal time to root your grapes, although you can root them in the summer.

The usual method for starting grapes from cuttings is to select them in fall, store in moist sawdust in cellar and keep them that way until spring, then set them out in the garden where roots will form from the callous produced in fall and winter.

By rotting them in milk cartons in spring or early summer, you save yourself about 6 months to boot. The resulting plants will be exactly like that of the parent vines.

A slower method of starting grapes is by making a tip cutting. Place the end of a cane in the ground and cover with soil. It will root at the node or joint.

CARS CAUSE POOR PLANT GROWTH: How can automobiles affect plant growth in your flower boxes or made by automobile exhaust and sunlight.

The bad poison (Ozone) is formed by automobiles through tail pipe. Sunlight causes a splitting of the nitrogen oxides to form atomic oxygen, which combines with nitrogen to form poisonous Ozone (O₃), which not only causes damage to plants, but also to man and animals.

This bad poison (Ozone) is not restricted to main traffic areas, but is distributed into your home and greenhouse and gardens by air movement (wind).

Green Thumb

We don't know how ozone affects people, but with plants it causes "flecking" on leaves. The flecks are dead spots in which chlorophyll has been killed. Ozone enters the plant's leaves through gates called stomata. When the gates are closed (night time, dry conditions) no fleck injury can occur from ozone because the pollutant can't get into the leaf.

Another type of Ozone injury besides "flecking," is smaller flower size, change in flower pigmentation (coloration), reduced crop production and altered maturity dates. One researcher found that blossom size on Blue Lavender petunia plants was reduced by 40 percent, and this occurs with no visible injury to the plants' leaves. Other types of injury include bronzing, stippling, and bleaching of leaf surfaces.

The injury may look like mite, red spider, aphid, or leaf hopper injury. If close examination does not reveal the presence of these pests, there's a good chance that injury may be due to Ozone exposure.

Petunia, geraniums, morning glory, tomato, bean, squash, cucumber, pumpkin, and maple are some of the more sensitive plants. Some plants are more resistant to Ozone injury and we hope we can get additional information.

We hope we can get reduced traffic acid cars which produce no or little nitrogen oxides and hydrocarbons from the tail pipes.

ETHELLE TOMATOES: Purplish tinge on marigolds and tomatoes may mean a lack of phosphorus in the soil. Apply a liquid plant food to see if it works. Change the purple color, and bring in the green. Sometimes a dry condition or low night temperature will cause purple foliage.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: "Will you please settle a question for us? Each spring my husband gets hay fever just by working in the garden. I maintain it's not hay fever because there are no plants around. I think it's something else."

There are plenty of plants around in spring which flower and produce "hay fever." For example, pollen dust from spring-flowering trees, such as ashes, birches, hickories; oaks; maples, sycamores; black walnut, butternut, and dozens of other produce large amounts of air-borne pollen dust. Many of these plants produce pollen right up until the time various grasses and weeds start to flower. In some states there is no practical escape from the pollen.

People blame roses and golden rods for their hay fever, but actually these plants are not guilty of causing the allergy. Ragweed is the main culprit.

Did you ever try rooting hardwood cuttings by using honey? I've tried many materials but find that honey is one of the best materials for starting roses, grapes, evergreens, privet and dozens of other plants. I found this trick from a magazine put out by the North American Foreman.

Here's how I did it. I made a mixture of one teaspoon of honey to a cup of water and added a few grains of permanganate of potash - just enough to color the water. Take the cuttings and stand them in the solution for one hour before planting in your favorite rooting medium. We like to use a mixture of peatmoss and sand, although we've had good luck using vermiculite and perlite. Try this method.

CHAR-LE' HORSE . . . FINEST RIDING SUPPLIES

Gayle and Dan Bennett, owners of Char-le' Horse, are pictured above looking over their new shipment of sterling silver show bits. These bits range in price up to $160. For the next 2 weeks, they will be offering as much as $50 discount on them. These beautiful bits are just one of the many areas where they are expanding their inventory. Char-le' Horse has found a good market in custom built saddles. They receive their saddles from Don Brown of Boise and Bob Selver of Oakley. They also handle factory built saddles for a more moderate price.

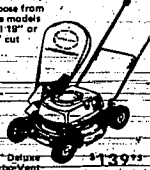

Char-le' Horse custom builds all of their own tack: bridles, breast collars, saddle bags, rifle scabbards and holsters. Gayle Bennett states that many of their customers have expressed interest in the brands they post on their walls. These are cut from tanned sides and have found many local brands. In the 2 months Char-le' Horse has been open, they have found a good market in Twin Falls for their equipment. For all your riding supplies come to Char-le' Horse, located at 560 Main Ave. So, and examine their full line.

LIZ TAYLOR

Love did not spring eternally

NOTHING IS SO BITTER AS A GREAT LOVE TURNED SOUR: Elizabeth Taylor is reported telling friends she could not cope with Richard Burton's "male menopause" and his need for constant reassurances via firm young flesh. She also added he was acting like a pig. Is this the lady who said she felt like half a pair of scissors without her Weishman? Is this the face that launched a thousand ships to undying love? Did she finally withdraw and custom-stale a his Cleopatra's infinity variety? Vag!

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: How does Cary Grant feel about gossip? Well, like all movie stars he professes not to like it and yet the actor (who thinks he is 70 but isn't) since his birth certificate was destroyed in World War I) continues to encourage wagging tongues by being seen everywhere with 27-year-old Maureen Donaldson. Maureen met Cary last August at a film festival in Sun Valley, Idaho. She works as an associate editor for a movie magazine run by Hollywood's leading gossip, Rora Barrett.

Q: We read every word of the White House transcripts. But it seems to me President Nixon showed us two tall stacks of bound volumes on TV. How could these many volumes add up to what turned out to be only one fairly fat book of print? — P. O. Evanston, Ill.

A: The President did indeed have the pages of the transcripts put into many notebooks, but each one you saw on television (when he made his speech) contained only about 25 pages of actual manuscript. The entire transcript given to the U. S. Printing Office made a stack of ordinary typing paper about six inches high. It was easily compressed into smaller type to make one normal-sized book.

Q: What is the current news about John Lennon? — C. K., Akron, Ohio.

A: Lennon and his wife, Yoko Ono, are reportedly definitely finished and Lennon is hoping to remain in the United States. He is getting all the necessary permits to work in this country and is looking for a house in California and an apartment in N. Y.

Q: I for one was very sorry when the Diana Rigg TV show was dropped. Why? That great actress doing? — D. H., Providence, R. I.

A: Diana is playing Eliza Doolittle in Pygmalion in London and still happily married to her Israeli painter.

NORMAN MAILER A SHRINKING VIOLET? Look like it. He recently penned a preface for a book on graffiti titled "The Faith of Graffiti." The book contains photographs. Mailer didn't want to do the preface for the book under its original title, "Watching My Name Go By." He said, "Certain immaturest literary men cannot afford titles like that."

Q: We were walking in a local cemetery here on Long Island and saw a gravestone marked "Gary Cooper." Can it be the actor or is he buried in Hollywood? — T. H., Southampton, N.Y.

A: The actor, who died of lung cancer in 1961, is buried in the Sacred Heart of Mary & Jesus Cemetery in Southampton where you saw his simple marker. His widow, "Rocky" Converse (now married to a New York plastic surgeon), had Cooper's body moved from L. A. to Long Island recently because she says, "He loved the ocean, loved the lobsters, loved the whole Southampton." Cooper's grave is surrounded by hyacinths and tulips with a three-ton, rose-colored stone as his permanent monument in this small resort town.

Q: You have written about Cher's life these days but I want to know what's happening to Sonny, surprised to see a few guest appearances by Cher, if their divorce and child custody arrangements go through, without too much bitterness.

Q: Will I ever get to see my favorite actress, Natalie Wood, on the screen again? I read she didn't want to work anymore. — A. W., Memphis, Tenn.

A: Natalie, who has been acting since the age of 4, does not really care much about working these days and hasn't made a movie in five years. However, now that she and husband Robert Wagner have just had their first baby, Nat is going back to work, co-starring opposite Michael Caine in "Fat Chance." The Wagners have put their Palm Springs home up for sale and will move back to Hollywood.

GUESS WHOSE BEST FRIEND — Director

Michael Hitchcock has just cancelled all his plans to make his next movie in London, which was to be "The Rainbow Pattern" from a thriller novel by Victor Canning. It seems Hitch has acquired a little terror named Sara and when he discovered that Sara would have to spend six months in quarantine before coming into England he tanked the movie project rather than be separated from his pet.

Q: What happened to Lawrence Harvey's young widow? Does she live in Los Angeles or London? — M. M., Ashville, N. C.

A: Paulene Stone Harvey has been in London since the death of her husband last November. She's been living quietly with her two children, seeing only close friends such as John Collins and David Coven.

Q: Who has sold the most LP albums? I vote for the Beatles. — N. E., Forest

ANN-MARGRET

Hills, N. Y.

A: You lose. Early in 1969, Herb Alpert and the Tijuana Brass had five albums in the Top 20 at the same time. No other group or solo artist before or since has equaled that record. In that same year, Herb and the Brass sold over 10 1/2 million albums. That's still the record. Herbie's newest, "You Smile—the Song Begins," marks the comeback of these record breakers.

Q: Do you think Judy Garland ever suggested that both her daughters would follow in her footsteps as performers? — R. D., Rockland, Me.

A: Judy knew that both girls would be entertainers. She predicted that Liza would skyrocket to the top and that Lorna would reach the same peak eventually but would come up much more slowly. Judy also felt that although Liza had the spark Lorna had the truer voice.

Q: It is true that Ann-Margret is going to portray Marilyn Monroe in Arthur Miller's "After the Fall"? — R. R., Houston, Tex.

A: Ann-Margret was asked to play the late

Marilyn Monroe in the TV version of Miller's controversial play but turned it down. According to her manager, AM felt that MM had already been so "exploited" during the recent 10th anniversary of her death that she didn't want to participate in any of it.

Q: What happened to Red Skelton? — L. J., Daytona Beach, Fla.

A: Red had been disappointed ever since his TV contract was cancelled three years ago and his nightclub engagements were not drawing. But he has just signed to co-star with Jack Benny in the movie version of the Broadway hit, "The Sunshine Boys," and is now happier than ever again. This will be his first movie in more than a decade.

Q: I read that autobiography BY A British author, who had a sex-change operation and has been wondering what his wife thinks about all the wide-wide publicity the book has received. — E. A., N. Y., N. Y.

A: Elizabeth Morris, who was Jan Morris' wife and now calls herself Jan's sister-in-law, has been terribly upset by some of the vicious criticism leveled at her former husband and the book, and she feels that Morris loyal she feels that Morris took a bold and courageous step and has united her and their children "with love and happiness."

Q: What is your guess about the Jackie and Art O'Connell marriage? Still solid, would you say? — G. V., Waco, Tex.

A: We'd say pretty good. Jackie is beginning to move out more on her own these days. Art doesn't have much interest in U. S. politics so it was Jackie's desire to come out for John Glenn in his Ohio Senatorial race. She also decided on her own to make friends again with Frank Sinatra and go to one of his concerts and have dinner with him later. Remember, the Kennedys dropped Sinatra when the family felt that associating with Sinatra would hurt the late President's image.

Theater calls June Hansen back to stage my husband that I can't do myself. I meant vote, of course.

"In later campaigns, I pushed a big English pram full of campaign literature and babies. And then I got at home a lot. I put the back of my hand on my forehead and say, 'How is it that nobody will pick up anything?'"

"The anything?"

THE FAMILY moved to Arlington when Hansen was elected to Congress in 1968, and Mrs. Hansen plunged into the role of Congressional wife. "You know," she said, "contrary to publicity, most Congressional wives are warm and wonderful people who are proud of their husbands and don't begrudge them the time away. I know a few are unceremonious of their own meaning as people, but most don't feel that way. I don't."

"Orval will be in Idaho every weekend between now and August, when he's up for re-election, but I make dates with him for dinner. We always dine by candlelight and with wine. And the children don't really mind a woman who puts her husband first."

Up until now, Mrs. Hansen has been doing little things with little theaters in Arlington, but when she read that Arena would be doing two English plays, she wrote to ask for an audition. "I had read 'In Celebration' and I liked the part of Mrs. Burnett—nothing heavy, just short speeches."

When it came time to cast, Arena called her in for a tryout. "I was sitting right here at this conference table between John Dillon (director of the play) and Alan Schneider (associate director of Arena) and I could hear them thinking: 'We can't cast this woman. She talks too much. We'll never get on with rehearsals.'"

"I got the part, and an understudy role in 'Relatively Speaking.' I suppose I don't really have time, but you must make time for the things you like to do, and this is the thing I like to do. I don't really stop my life to act; I have lots of time to do my mending between scenes."

The Hansen children, now ranging in age from 8 to 17, take care of each other pretty well, and do most other household chores, leaving mother free to hit the boards.

SINCE previews for "In Celebration" began, the children have been coming in shifts to see her perform. Mrs. Hansen said, and so have members of Rep. Hansen's office staff, not to mention "a group of congressional wives and their husbands. I mean congressmen and their wives."

Rep. Hansen himself didn't see the show until June 4, when he returned from his current trip to Idaho. "He told me on the phone, 'Please try to keep the show open until the 4th.'"

After the run of "In Celebration," Mrs. Hansen said, she will keep on looking for roles in British plays, "because I just don't feel right taking an American accent." But there will be a moratorium in her career come midsummer. That's when she goes back to Idaho to campaign.

Pesticide dangers menace entire Magic Valley

By DAVID HORSMAN Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A "potential killer" looms over nearly every population center in the Magic Valley, according to state and area officials.
"Pesticide-icide" could pour deadly "nerve gases" into the air and lower sections of any city, they warn.
The threat exists because increasing amounts of dangerous chemical pesticides are being stored within population centers. Some of the pesticides give off toxic fumes when exposed to extreme heat. Some, mixed with petroleum derivatives, are potential explosives. Many can be fatal under normal conditions if used improperly.
The danger actually covers the whole state. About 3.2 million pounds of pesticides will be used in Idaho this year, according to a state official, and that figure is expected to jump to about 4 million pounds next year.

called the situation "frightening."
"Found-for-pound, the potential dangers of pesticides are much greater than dynamite," he said, yet there are no firm regulations for handling and storing the chemicals in the state. The lack of controls is lamentable, according to Dr. Curtis.
"About all we can do is recommend corrective measures when firms are discovered using unsafe storage or handling practices, he said. Then, "we can wait until someone is poisoned and go out and tell them not to do it anymore."
The health district is currently putting together a set of rules that it hopes will eventually be adopted statewide.
W. W. Benson, an employee of the State Department of Environmental and Community Affairs and director of the Idaho Community Study on Pesticides, said some of the pesticides, which Dr. Curtis describes as "nerve gas," compare to the World War I and II nerve gases.
"A few years back, Oregon made a big deal about shipping nerve gas through the state, and this is just as hazardous," Benson said.

Nixon bones up on Middle East

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon, working in seclusion at his nearby Camp David, Md., retreat, plowed through secret briefing papers Saturday in last minute preparation for a trip to the Middle East and a personal bid to strengthen a new relationship with the Arab world.
Aides said Nixon, who was scheduled to depart Monday morning, was studying intensely a pile of classified documents related to the economic, military, and diplomatic issues he will be discussing with leaders of Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Jordan and Israel during the 14,770-mile journey.
They said the trip, most extensive ever taken by an American president into the long-hostile area, is designed mainly to permit an exchange of views at the highest levels rather than to pin-down concrete agreements.
White House officials emphasized that the President chose to go at a time of rapidly rising U.S. prestige resulting from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's successful peace-making missions. They added that Nixon hoped to further that trend.
The President conferred by phone for 30 minutes Saturday with Kissinger, who will be among a long list of people accompanying him to the Middle East.

Some officials speaking privately acknowledged that Nixon sees the Middle East trip and his subsequent journey to Moscow June 27 as a way to offset pressure for impeachment and the disclosure last week that a federal grand jury had named him as an indicted co-conspirator in the Watergate coverup.
Most specific details of Nixon's Middle East travel remained secret Saturday, partly for security reasons and also apparently because White House officials still were trying to tie up many loose ends in the hurriedly arranged itinerary.
Nixon's first stop in the Middle East will be Wednesday in Cairo, where he will stay for three days and meet for the first time with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat. Egypt is the longest stop on Nixon's itinerary and could prove the most significant in view of Sadat's influence on other Arab leaders.
Before going to Cairo, Nixon plans to spend two nights resting up in Salzburg, Austria. It was learned Saturday that he also would break up the flight home by stopping off in the Azor Islands and thus delay his scheduled return by one day until June 19.

Israelis slay 4 guerrillas

By United Press International
An Israeli patrol killed four heavily armed Arab guerrillas in a shootout Saturday near a settlement along the Lebanese border only hours before Israel received back the last of its prisoners of war known to be in Arab hands.
Two pilots were exchanged for 19 Lebanese civilians who had been seized by Israeli troops in retaliation for an earlier guerrilla raid into Israel.
The guerrilla infiltration was reported by the Israeli high command as Israel began pulling out its troops and weapons from two oases of land on the October war battlefield in the first stage of disengagement from the Syrians on the Golan Heights front.
The Israelis began pulling out from the southernmost corner of the bulge they thrust into Syria during the war and from another slice of captured territory north of the Quintra-Damaqus Highway, the military source said.

In Damascus, U.N. sources said the implementation of the accord worked out in negotiations by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was proceeding "well and fast" and might even be completed ahead of schedule. Units of the U.N. Disengagement Observer Force were taking over the areas evacuated by the Israelis, the source said. The entire 1,240-man U.N. force arrived in the Golan Heights Friday.
The Israeli military command said the gun battle with the guerrillas occurred near the settlement of Adami, 3 1/2 miles south of the Lebanese frontier.
Each guerrilla carried Soviet-built submachine guns, grenades, medical supplies and propaganda literature of the Al-Fatah guerrilla organization, it said.

Henry ordered taps ended

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Henry A. Kissinger's National Security Council staff was directed responsible for ordering the Federal Bureau of Investigation to end the 17 so-called "national security" wiretaps on newsmen and officials that began in 1969, highly placed sources said Saturday.
The sources said that as late as February, 1971, when the last eight wiretaps were shut down, specific termination orders were telephoned to the FBI by Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., current White House chief of staff, then a Kissinger deputy.
These new allegations, supported by officials closely involved in the wiretapping program, contradict Kissinger's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last September in hearings on his nomination as secretary of state.
Kissinger told the Senators that after May,

1970, he and Haig were in touch with the FBI only when the wiretaps produced a "particularly egregious" report.
He explicitly told the Senators that he never "explicitly" dealt with the question of terminating the wiretaps.
"I assumed that a wiretap which proved unproductive was terminated," Kissinger testified.
The sources told the New York Times however, that FBI records showed that Kissinger, through Haig, rebuffed at least two and possibly three of the Bureau's requests in mid-1969 that a tap stop at the home of Morton H. Halperin, then a Kissinger aide, be terminated because it was unproductive.
One memorandum quotes Haig as citing Kissinger by name in rejecting the Bureau's pleas, which were made in June, a month after the wiretap was put in place, and again in late summer.

Tornadoes, floods claim over 20 in central states

United Press International
Tornadoes and flash floods smashed through Oklahoma and Kansas and more than a foot of rain pounded Arkansas Saturday, killing a dozen persons in the three states and injuring at least several hundred. The three-day death toll stood at 40.
President Nixon declared Arkansas a disaster area following a tornado last Thursday which killed four and extensive flooding throughout the state Saturday which left three more dead.
Kansas Gov. David Hall prepared requests for disaster relief for his state, and particularly for Tulsa, the state's second largest city which was hit by several tornadoes at once Saturday. Eight persons died in tornadoes and floods in the state, with five of those occurring in Drumright, midway between Oklahoma City and Tulsa.
Another tornado at Emporia, Kan., destroyed all 20 stores in the Flint Hills Shopping Center, then hit a nursing home and a mobile home park. One person was dead and 80 were injured at Emporia, and authorities dug for possible victims at the shopping center and nursing home.
Kansas Highway Patrol officers said 75 to 90 cars were tossed into the air at the shopping center and left in heaps of metal in the parking lot. The victim of the Kansas tornado was Neva Harding, an elderly Emporia woman, believed killed at the trailer park.
"It was lucky at least that it hit right after all the stores closed at 6 p.m.," a policeman said. Two of the Oklahoma fatalities occurred in a nursing home in Drumright which a witness said "looks like it just exploded." Three others were killed in the city. Elsewhere in the state, one man died in Tulsa when a tree fell on him, another died in a tornado in Westville of the Arkansas border and the eighth drowned in a typhoon looting in Chewey as National Guardmen evacuated 40 other persons.
The Red Cross said at least eight houses were destroyed in Oklahoma City, 16 others were heavily damaged and another 100 received some damage. Eighteen persons were injured in Oklahoma City, but none seriously. There were more than a dozen tornadoes in other Oklahoma cities.
Mrs. Ron Iselman stayed with the survivors at the Drumright nursing home, shielding them from the heavy rain because the one-story structure no longer had a roof.
The Arkansas flooding was most severe at El Dorado, located on the southern border near Louisiana, where 12.43 inches of rain fell between 6 a.m. Friday and 6 a.m. Saturday. The storms were expected to continue through Sunday.
Police reported water over the rooftops of houses and 40 families evacuated from the Collin community just north of El Dorado. The Red Cross said 250 homes were affected in all.
Nixon declared Arkansas a major disaster area and ordered the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration to make available temporary housing, special unemployment benefits, low interest reconstruction loans and utility repair.

Few primary battles loom in MV districts

BY CRICKET BIRD Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — Primary election battles between Republican candidates for the Idaho Legislature loom in four of six Magic Valley legislative districts.
Democratic candidates entered in less than half the races, are unopposed by members of their own party.
The only primary election contest in the six Valley districts for state senator is in the Republican party.
There are seven Democratic competitors with 24 Republicans who are candidates for the state Senate and 12 House seats up for election in the Magic Valley.

If either party has a vacant spot on the ticket after the Republican election, Aug. 6, the party organization can appoint a candidate for the November general election.
In the 20th Judicial District, the seat being vacated by retiring Judge Charles Scoggin had drawn three candidates. Three other district judges have filed for reelection.
Filing deadline for candidates was 5 p.m. Friday, but officials from the secretary of state's office say they will accept candidates who file by mail, as long as the letters have a 5 p.m. Friday postmark.
Positive filing results show a Senate primary election contest in District 22 which includes Camas, Elmore, and parts of Twin Falls and Gooding counties.
On the Republican ticket, incumbent Sen. J. Wilson Steen, Glenn Ferry, faces Lee Clinn, Mountain Home. Steen is seeking his third term. No Democratic candidate is running for District 22 senator.
Republican candidates for District 22 House seats also face a primary contest. Incumbents Virgil L. Kraus, Mountain Home and Charles Lee Barron, Corral, will face Dan Kelly, Mountain Home, on the ballot.
Filing for District 22 House seats on the Democratic ticket are Bernard L. Brown, Mountain Home, and Karl E. Kehn, Hammett.
Two other primary contests are set in Twin Falls County districts:

In District 24, the west part of the county, incumbent Rep. William Roberts, Buhl, faces Lawrence Knigge, Filer, and Noy E. Brackett, Twin Falls. In the Republican contest for house seats, Rep. William D. Tamm, the other incumbent is retiring. So far, no Democrats are in the running.
District 24 incumbent John M. Barker, Buhl, faces no opposition from either party in his bid for the Senate seat on the on the Republican ticket.
In District 25, the east part of Twin Falls County, four Republicans are vying for the two House seat nominations.

Demo candidate raps water bill

TWIN FALLS — A Democratic candidate for lieutenant governor said the U.S. Justice Department had drafted a bill to claim much of Idaho's water.

The federal agencies, he said, said projects planned and approved in Utah would require 104,000 acre feet of water per year more than the state had available.

Resources Council had asked the states in the interstate compact to consider transfer of jurisdiction over water rights and re-allocation of storage.

believe in the basic concept that people themselves ought to be allowed to determine what is good for themselves rather than government agencies at all levels.

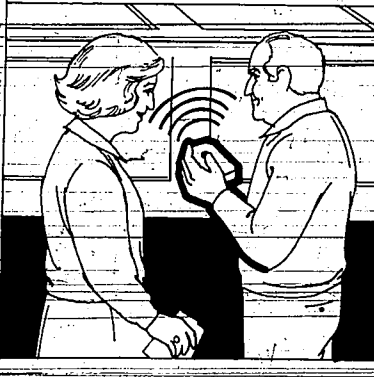

RAY RIGBY candidate

He said such a proposal was a serious threat to Idaho's surplus water which could lead to transfers of water from the Snake River for use in producing coal for shale oil in adjacent Colorado River Basin states.

He supports a proposal for an Idaho presidential primary election.

Indian nuclear blast shakes non-proliferation

By NEA London Economist News Service
India's debut as a nuclear power was described by its prime minister as "nothing to get excited about."
In these strident times, it is good to learn that the great British tradition of understatement is alive and well, and living in New Delhi. But in any event the successful test explosion of a nuclear device on May 18, below ground in the Rajasthan desert west of Jaipur (and about 100 miles from the Pakistan frontier), is something Indira Gandhi can well feel bland about.

Mrs. Gandhi is once again the bestriding figure she was after her army beat Pakistan's in 1971.
Indian official statements continue to emphasize that the test explosion was intended to serve strictly peaceful purposes. "India has no intention of becoming a nuclear-weapon power," said its delegate to the Geneva disarmament conference. There is no need to challenge the sincerity of these protestations. Similar ones were made about the purpose of French nuclear research in the 1950s, only a few years before France acquired its first bombs. What needs to be understood is that a country's ability to explode any kind of nuclear device shows that it is close to the development of a usable weapon.

Among specialists, it has long been widely assumed that India would sooner be in a position to make nuclear weapons if it chose to. Now the world knows. And it is the capability, not the stated intention, that impresses people.
Unlike their prime minister, India's newspapers have got excited. That would hardly be justified by a mere technical advance in "mining and earth-moving operations," the phrase used in the official announcement of the test. Labor is not so scarce and expensive in India as to make it uneconomic to carry out big earth-moving operations conventionally. And Pakistan's prime minister, Bhutto, is not thinking about earth-moving when he speaks of a peaceful development.

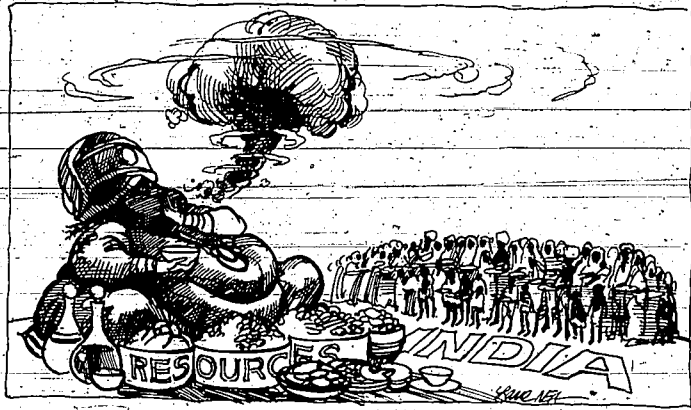

India's conventional military superiority over Pakistan has been so great since the 1971 war that the equation of "power" is not greatly affected by an explosion. What most worries Bhutto is the prospect that India will no longer be inhibited by the possibility of run-up against Chinese nuclear power.

The Chinese, as is their habit, have kept very quiet. But they will be calculating the time it will take India to acquire missiles capable of carrying nuclear warheads. Three years, some say. It is not a perspective likely to encourage the Chinese to intensify their support of Pakistan.

But the Rajasthan blast's implications extend far beyond the triangular relationship of India, Pakistan and China. The first test is in the door of the club of five nuclear powers whose membership, unchanged since China qualified in 1964, corresponds to the privileged permanent membership of the United Nations Security Council.

"INDIAN GENIUS TRIUMPHS!"

—Indian Newspaper Headline

The nuclear nonproliferation treaty that took effect in 1970 was aimed at restricting the club to those five. Its prospects of success were dimmed by the non-adherence of two of the five (China and France) and of a disturbingly large number of countries that could be ranked as near-nuclear by reason of their advanced military technology and their access to nuclear materials used for power production.

Of these near-nuclears, only Canada and Sweden were quick to ratify the treaty. Australia and West Germany have, after long hesitation, joined them. Japan, which signed in 1970, has still not ratified. Other non-adherents in addition to India and Pakistan, include Argentina, Brazil, Israel and South Africa.

Now that India has got the club door wedged open, it is pretty plain that other near-nuclear states will reveal a livelier interest in getting in too.

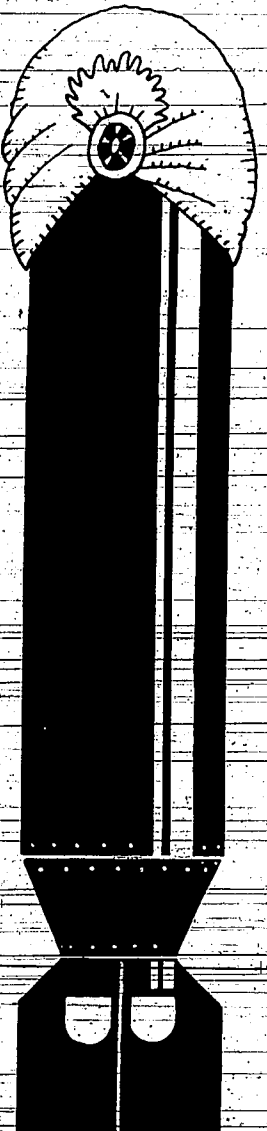

The explosion in Rajasthan has not yet blown the whole nonproliferation system skyhigh, but it ought to enforce an urgent reappraisal of the system's present and future effectiveness — and limitations.

Quite apart from the straight political and military pressures that are pushing several governments to develop nuclear weapons, there is the technical problem of controlling the plutonium that is produced in the potential nuclear powers' supposedly peaceful reactors.

Plutonium output from reactors is going to multiply rapidly in the next few years, and the job of keeping tabs on it will get far too big for the present resources of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

It is pretty clear that if the attempt to curb the proliferation of nuclear arms is to be continued at all, it is going to need a much bigger effort. That rumbling noise from Rajasthan could even prove timely if it helps to shift the Chinese (because Indian bombs would have a special meaning for them) and the French (because they are now shaking free from some of the more cherished dogmas of Gaullism) towards a more positive attitude to the nonproliferation treaty.

But does anyone still care enough? (C) 1974 The Economist of London

'American connection' Soviet economic key

By LEONARD SILK
(c) New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The chairman of the central bank of the world's leading capitalist economy and the premier of the world's leading Communist economy sat down in the Kremlin last month for three hours of conversation over tea and biscuits.

What did Dr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and Alexei L. Kosygin, the Soviet premier and chief economic executive, talk about?

Their discussion ranged widely over the world monetary system, the role of gold, debtor-creditor relations (the United States), Soviet-American trade, Soviet aspirations to make the ruble convertible, the American constitutional system, détente, Jewish emigration, and much more.

What emerged from the Burns-Kosygin conversation and discussions that the federal reserve chairman had with other leading Soviet officials was a fascinating picture of the Soviet hierarchy trying to rid itself of traditional ideology and to bring their nation forward as a major power center in the world.

During his May 5-11 visit, Burns also talked with, among others, Finance Minister, Vasily Garbuzov, the head of the state bank, Metelgi Sveshnikov, and the head of the bank for foreign trade, Yuri Ivanov.

The Soviets see their American connection as a principal element in their picture of the Soviet economy. It is the major economic figure. Burns says he heard no talk about Marxism, and no political speeches critical of the United States, as he had on his last visit to the Soviet Union in 1963. Instead, he heard only "great admiration" expressed for the United States. What accounted for the change of tone? Burns says the Russians were perfectly candid about their motives: "They want to build up their economy and improve relations with the United States. They want to import American technology, managerial skills and capital."

But they appeared not to understand that President Nixon could not "command" Congress — or the Export-Import Bank — to increase loans to the Soviet Union.

The Eximbank has just granted a $180-million loan to Russia to help finance construction of a huge fertilizer complex at a cost of 6 percent — half, or a little less, of the prime commercial lending rate in this country and well under the current 7 percent rate on other Eximbank loans.

Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. Why are the Soviets, with the second-highest gross national product in the world, the second-largest gold producer, and huge reserves of platinum and diamonds, not to mention oil and gas, so anxious to get credit at the lowest possible rate from the United States, which is in the midst of a severe credit crunch?

The answers reveal much about current Soviet economic thinking. Partly the answer seems to be that the Soviets think of their monetary trappings and precious stone reserves as a "war chest" to be hoarded as much as possible.

"Obviously, their whole desire to obtain credits is in fact a desire to get real resources without giving up their reserves," says George Garvey, who accompanied Burns on the Soviet trip. "There are very few things the Russians hate more than uncertainty," Garvey observes. "I find this helps explain why they would like a high fixed price for gold. Since there are only two large sources of gold — South Africa and the Soviet Union — a Russian official who sells at the wrong time is exposed as a blunderer."

Along with their reluctance to part with their gold, the Russians hate to give information to those from whom they seek huge credits at bargain rates.

Burns tried to explain that, in the past, detailed financial information from debtors to creditors was a normal and necessary part of the game, and if the Russians did not want to surrender financial data in one way, they could do it in another.

But the Russians responded by accusing the Americans of having a "legalist mind." Burns said he found Kosygin "a good business man, with a quick mind." The federal reserve chairman had not asked to see Kosygin before he arrived, but was summoned to the Kremlin when he returned from a trip to Kiev.

United States Ambassador Walter Stoessel sat in during the Kremlin meeting, together with Garvey.

One of the most striking impressions the Americans gained was the Soviet desire to move into the world as a monetary power. As the leader of a "ruble bloc," the Soviets appeared to be seeking help in how to go about making the ruble more freely convertible into other currencies, and attracting other countries to their Comecon bloc, roughly, the Soviet equivalent of the Common Market.

The Soviets would also like to open a branch of their foreign trade bank in New York, giving them a direct window on Wall Street, at least figuratively.

Tiny, distant Diego Garcia focus of argument

By CONGRESSIONAL QUARTERLY
WASHINGTON — Diego Garcia, a tiny, British-owned island in the middle of the Indian Ocean, is hardly a household name.

Yet on Capitol Hill it is at the center of a controversy over big-power rivalry, national security and U.S. overseas involvements.

Pentagon plans to expand — a U.S. communications station on the island into a naval support facility and to lengthen an existing runway suffered a setback May 24 when House conferees "reluctantly" agreed with a Senate decision to delay action on the request. Funds for the project were dropped from a fiscal 1974 supplemental defense bill. But the issue is far from dead. Congress soon will be looking at it once again as part of the regular fiscal 1975 military budget.

Following are arguments on both sides of the issue.

PRO:
Vital U.S. strategic and economic interests in the Persian Gulf region were made painfully clear during the recent Middle East war and the oil embargo. The United States cannot afford to sit idly by and watch the Soviet Union fill the power vacuum in that region of the world.

"Unless we are willing to forfeit to Soviet influence and domination the entire Indian Ocean area and all the nations which border on that great ocean, we must in our national interest provide a modest naval support facility on Diego Garcia." House Armed Services Committee Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La., told his colleagues during a debate on the issue.

"There can be no doubt that when we talk in terms of showing the flag and gunboat diplomacy, as far as the Indian Ocean is concerned, the power vacuum has been filled by Soviet ships, not those of the U.S. Navy," insisted Rep. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich. Critics charge that plans to expand the Diego Garcia facility would provoke the Soviets into a costly arms race. But the Soviets already are well established there with support facilities scattered throughout the area. And once the Suez Canal is reopened, the Soviets will be able to deploy two or three times the ships operating there.

Meanwhile, the U.S. carrier task force in the Indian Ocean must operate from the U.S. base in the Philippines — some 4,500 to 5,000 miles away. Besides its obvious strategic advantages, a support facility on Diego Garcia would be far more economical and efficient.

"What is involved here is simply a desire for putting a little gas station, if you will, down here in the center of the ocean so that any American ships operating in this very large and strategic ocean might be able to get some fuel on a whim," explained Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y. "And it's incredibly cheap. The expansion plan has a price tag of an estimated $32.3 million."

Modern air — the best description for the proposed expansion. The extended runway will not be long or wide enough to handle continuous operations of loaded B-52 bombers, a fear of some critics.

CON:
Much is made of Soviet naval activities in the Indian Ocean. But how deep is that involvement?

"With a carrier task group in the Indian Ocean, the United States far outweighs and outguns present Soviet capabilities there," Robert L. Leggett, D-Calif., insisted during House debate. "No Soviet naval threat in the area may well have been overstated," he said. "U.S. expansion of the Diego Garcia station will only set off another costly arms race around the ever-oprting arms race with the Soviet Union. This is one region in which we have been successful in avoiding confrontation," Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., pointed out.

was the verdict of Sen. Calborne Pell, D-R.I. "The plan has been almost uniformly opposed by U.S. allies and neutrals in that region. It runs counter to the Nixon Doctrine of lowering the American profile abroad and relying on regional states to insure regional security."

Détente was greeted with such fanfare and raised hopes for a new era. But it can have little meaning when the Pentagon starts making foreign policy and the U.S. and Soviet navies are confronting each other in what was once hoped to be a "zone of peace." Now is the time to negotiate.

No one would deny that the price tag on Diego Garcia plans is modest. But soon the Navy will be wanting new fleet tankers and supply ships to maintain the base, perhaps a new nuclear task force for the Indian Ocean.

The military indicated in hearings that it originally had favored a longer and stronger airfield to accommodate B-52s.

The aim is to protect American oil company investments in the sheikdoms of Arabia. "Once again the American taxpayer is being asked to support the cost of gunboat diplomacy to protect the interests of certain corporations — corporations which pay little or nothing in federal taxes — corporations which were actually used by the Arab states last fall to enforce the oil embargo against the 26 Fleet," declared Rep. Charles A. Wank, D-Ohio, during debate.

Primary battles loom in 4 Valley districts

Incumbent Ralph E. Olmstead, seeking his second term, is faced with Joseph D. McCollum, Twin Falls, who was appointed recently by Gov. Cecil Andrus to fill former Rep. Ray Lincoln's term and T. W. Silvers and E. J. Morgan, both Twin Falls.

Raymond Graham, Twin Falls has filed as a candidate for representative on the Democratic ticket.

Incumbent 25's incumbent senator, Richard S. High, a Republican, is unopposed in his bid for a fifth term.

Another Republican primary contest is set in District 25, which covers all of Jerome and parts of Lincoln and Gooding counties.

Three Republican candidates have filed for the seats vacated by Earl Greenwald and Vernon Ravesscroft. They are Clair K. Ricketta, and Gordon R. Hollifield, both Jerome, and John H. Brooks, Gooding.

Candidates running for House seats on the Democratic ticket are Anna Louise-Hobson-Hunt, and Richard Strickland, Gooding.

Incumbent Sen. James A. Vost, R-Wendell, will face a general election contest for the District 25 seat with Arlyne B. Klasing, Dietrich. Vost seeks his second term.

In District 26, covering all of Cassia and part of Minidoka counties, Incumbent Sen. Robert Saxvik, Burley, seeking his third term on the Democratic ticket, will face a November battle with James H. Roper, Burley, who is running on the Republican ticket.

Republican incumbents Ernest A. Hale, Burley, and J. Vard Chaburn, Albion, face no opposition from either party in their bid for reelection to the House from District 26.

Incumbents in District 21, which covers all of Blaine County and parts of Lincoln and Minidoka counties, face no opposition so far.

John T. Peavey, R-Rupert, seeks his third term in the Senate. In the House, E. V. McHan, R-Ketchum, seeks a third term, and Steve Antonio, R-Rupert, seeks a fourth term.

In the race for district judge in the Fifth Judicial District, Douglas D. Kramer, Twin Falls; Gleason Anderson, Burley; and Severt Swenson Jr., Gooding, have filed for the seat now held by Judge Scoggins.

The three other Fifth District Judges, Thornton Ward and James M. Cunningham, both Twin Falls, and Sherman J. Bellwood, Rupert, have filed to succeed themselves. They face no opposition.

Judicial District Five covers all eight Magic Valley counties.

Bank threatened

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI)—The FBI said Saturday it received a letter signed by the Sramblass-Liberalis-Army-threatening to blow up a major Twin Cities bank in the next few days.

The letter was addressed to a Twin Cities newspaper which was turned it over to the FBI.

The letter said, "One of the big Twin Cities banks in the next few days will be blown up." It included numerous profanities and anti-capitalist remarks, and was signed, "SLA, Armies No. 7 and 8."

Mansfield draws plans for impeachment trial

(C) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—Sen. Mike Mansfield, the Senate Democratic leader, took the position Saturday neither this fall's election nor the probability that some "lame-duck" senators should interfere with any impeachment trial of President Nixon.

Even if impeachment proceedings should not reach the Senate until shortly before the November elections, as seems likely, Mansfield said he believed the Senate should proceed with a trial on a six-day week basis.

If an impeachment trial should extend beyond the November elections, Mansfield proposed that newly elected Senators should be seated as "alternate jurors" in a special section of the Senate galleries.

Then, under his proposal, the newly elected Senators would be prepared to replace defeated or retired Senators as jurors.

If the impeachment proceedings should reach the Senate in early January, in a provisional way, the Montana Democrat has begun drafting plans for a Senate trial in the event that the house should vote articles of impeachment. He is attempting to approach the task with as little publicity as possible. He does not want to be prejudging the outcome in the House but at the same time he believes he must be prepared with at least "contingency plans" to assure a speedy trial.

Mansfield already has had discussions with Sen. Hugh Scott, the Republican leader. The one point they have agreed upon is that if the House votes for impeachment, the Senate should immediately go into executive session to determine the rules and procedures for an impeachment trial.

The tentative plans are now running into political and legal complications because of the likelihood that impeachment proceedings would not reach the Senate until this fall and then could extend through the November elections and into the new Congress.

The present timetable of the House Judiciary Committee is to complete its action by the end of July, with the House voting on any articles of impeachment proposed by the committee by the middle of August. With the President then given time to prepare his defense, should the House vote for impeachment, it is unlikely that a trial could begin in the Senate before mid-September.

US, Saudis sign economic accords

(C) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—The United States and Saudi Arabia signed a wide-ranging military and economic agreement Saturday that both sides said " heralded an era of increasingly close cooperation" between the two countries.

American officials said they hoped the new accord would provide Saudi Arabia with incentives to increase oil production and serve as a model for economic cooperation between Washington and other Arab states.

Secretary of State Kissinger and Prince Fahd Ibn Abdul Aziz, the Saudi second deputy premier, and a half-brother of King Faisal, signed the six-page agreement.

Under the terms of the agreement, two joint commissions, one on economic cooperation and the other on Saudi Arabia's military needs, were established.

The economic commission will hold its first meeting in October in Saudi Arabia. It will be composed of members drawn from the departments of state, treasury and commerce, the national science foundation and other American agencies, as well as comparable Saudi Government bodies.

The clashes stemmed from an incident last Monday in which 23 worker representatives were arrested in connection with demands for more free-nationalist.

Security forces tried unsuccessfully to break up the protest with tear gas, calling in the military when work violence began to grow, the sources said.

'Pesticide fire' menaces Valley

Every major and minor city is sitting with this potential danger now," said Higgins.

Higgins recently took action to eliminate the problem. The City Council ordered Henry's Farm Sales to move its supplies of dangerous chemicals to a site outside the city limits.

But most other cities, including Twin Falls, have done nothing to force removal of pesticides.

Twin Falls City Manager Jean-Miller said the chemicals are "zone controlled." "I think they're only in the industrial section of the city," he said.

"We would be in trouble in certain areas if we had fires," Miller said. "We do have to keep a very watchful eye open."

He stressed that "it poses no greater problem each one of us has in our homes."

Miller said he is personally more concerned about huge quantities of pesticides stored at the city site than about the chemicals are used for gassing during the growing season, he said.

If a fire or explosion occurred at this airport, we could have the dammed gas going out there that you've ever heard of," Miller warned.

Twin Falls Fire Marshal Fred Higgins said "we're probably not doing the job we should be in controlling pesticides," but "we're working on it," he said.

The fire department plans to set up rules for storage of the chemicals, according to Higgins. "We're looking on buildings and sprinkler regulations—something along the line of explosives requirements."

Higgins admitted that there's a pretty dangerous thing, "but, on the other hand, do have other things that are dangerous that we've lived with for years. There's certain risks we take to keep the community functioning," he said.

He also confirmed that sections of the city "might have to be evacuated." If large fires break out, he said, "Dr. Carle was more definite on that point. If a fire is discovered, they better start directing traffic," he said.

Also, Twin Falls firemen didn't really have a chemical blaze, according to city officials, they aren't equipped with rubber uniforms that would completely shield them from toxic fumes.

Although the firefighters do have self-contained breathing units, their clothing is "not adequate in all cases," said Bobby Bopp, Twin Falls fire chief.

"We're not completely covered and if it was to get on the skin it could be very hazardous," Bopp said.

Bopp confirmed that the pesticides are "a very definitely dangerous if stored improperly. Dynamite is dangerous if it's stored improperly," he said.

Women win French jobs

PARIS (UPI)—Premier Jacques Chirac Saturday named two women as junior ministers in the new French government and created a new department in charge of immigrant workers.

Captured tank goes to depot

ISRAELI truck hauls disabled Soviet-built Syrian tank of Golan Heights as withdrawal of forces preceded Saturday. Truck is passing fence marking 1967 cease-fire line. Captured equipment is being removed as well as Israel's own supplies. (UPI)

Panov, wife released

(c) New York Times Service MOSCOW — Ballet dancer Valery Panov was officially informed by Soviet authorities Saturday that he and his pregnant, hospitalized wife have permission to emigrate to Israel and must depart from the Soviet Union in five days.

"I am very excited, very emotional," the 35-year-old former Kirov ballet star said by telephone from Vilna, the capital of Lithuania where he and his wife are visiting his brother.

Originally, Panov had been skeptical of news leaks last night by semi-official sources that the couple would be allowed to leave 27 months after they first applied. But Saturday, he was summoned by the visa office in Lithuania and told that approval for both his and his wife's visa applications had been granted by the visa office in their hometown of Leningrad.

"I'm not used to it yet, but we are very happy," he said. "I have to leave within five days from today."

The couple must appear at the Leningrad-visa-office Monday at 10 a.m., he said, adding: "I won't stay here an hour longer than I have to, but everything will depend on OVIR (the visa office). I have so many things to do, so many formalities."

The break in the long-deadlocked Panov affair raised speculation that some other Jewish activists, long refused permission to emigrate, might also be granted visas as a prelude to President Nixon's visit to Moscow in late June and an inducement to the American Congress to grant lower tariffs to Soviet imports into the United States.

But in Moscow, four platinos secret police officers roughly argued the leading organizer of an unofficial scientific seminar, sponsored by 19 Jews and a number of foreign scientists including eight Nobel laureates, Alexander Voronel, 42-year-old experimental physicist was warned by senior internal security officer that he faced prosecution if he persisted with plans to hold the seminar, his wife, Nina, said.

Nixon Cuban panel mention conflicts

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — President Nixon's mentioning in a conversation in the Oval Office on March 21, 1973, of a "Cuban committee" that might have served as a conduit for money to some of the original Watergate suspects appears to conflict with Nixon's public assertions that he had no knowledge of any payments to the defendants before that date.

According to the White House transcript of the conversation, the President first mentioned the existence of the "Cuban committee" when John W. Dean 3d, who was then counsel to the President, was reciting how money had been raised to assure the defendant's silence until after the 1972 election.

"They put that (the money) under the cover of a Cuban committee, I suppose," Nixon interjected.

"Well," Dean agreed, "they had a Cuban committee and some of it was given to (E. Howard) Hunt's lawyer, who in turn passed it out."

The President said, "(unintelligible), but I would certainly keep that cover for whatever it's worth."

In a statement on the Watergate affair last Aug. 15, Nixon said he had testified for the first time in the March 21 meeting with Dean that individuals on his staff and in his re-election organization had arranged for cash payments to six of the seven men arrested in connection with the Watergate break-in.

He had been told by Dean, the President recalled in August, "that the money had been used for attorneys' fees and family support, not that it had been paid to procure silence from the recipients."

The apparent conflict arises in part from evidence gathered by Watergate investigators in Florida indicating that the so-called "Cuban committee" applied for formal registration as a charitable organization in that state in February, 1973, and that its application was approved March 20 — the day before the Nixon-Dean conversation.

Ellsberg tie in office ransacking

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — A New York psychoanalyst who treated Mrs. Daniel Ellsberg has disclosed that his office was searched by intruders in November, 1971, less than three months after the attempt in Los Angeles by the White House "plumbers" to steal Ellsberg's medical records from the office of his former psychiatrist.

Dr. Robert U. Akereit, who practices in Manhattan, confirmed in a telephone interview that his office had been entered, apparently surreptitiously, and left in considerable disarray, but bank checks were the only items missing.

At the time of the intrusion, a cabinet in Akereit's office contained a file relating to his treatment of Patricia Ellsberg. The cabinet was unlocked, he said, and had also contained the bank checks. The doctor said he had no way of knowing whether or not the files on his patients had been photographed or otherwise tampered with.

He did not report the break-in to local or federal authorities, the doctor said, but simply asked his bank to void his old account and issue him new checks. Akereit said the new account was opened on Nov. 12, 1971, and on that basis he placed the time of the break-in as the previous evening.

The government apparently had knowledge of Akereit's professional relationship with Mrs. Ellsberg at least five months before the November intrusion.

On the day after the first publication of the Pentagon papers, Akereit recalled, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation came to his office seeking information on Mrs. Ellsberg. He said he sent them away.

The first installment of the secret Defense Department study of the Vietnam War, which Ellsberg said he had given to the press, appeared in the New York Times on June 13, 1971, a Sunday.

Sirica relaxes secrecy order

(c) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — Federal Judge John J. Sirica lifted Friday the protective order that has kept secret for almost a month the court papers describing President Nixon as a co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

He did so at the request of the President's lawyer, who said, through his lawyer, that news reports of the naming of Nixon as an undicted co-conspirator had made further secrecy unnecessary.

The judge's action, announced Friday afternoon, did not lead to the immediate release of the papers, for they are currently at the Supreme Court, pending the high court's heading of the battle between the President and the special Watergate prosecutor over the latest subpoena for tapes of presidential conversations.

However, since Sirica was the one who sealed the papers, his ruling clears the way for their release. A spokesman for the Supreme Court declined to say when the court might act on the matter, but some action next week is considered possible.

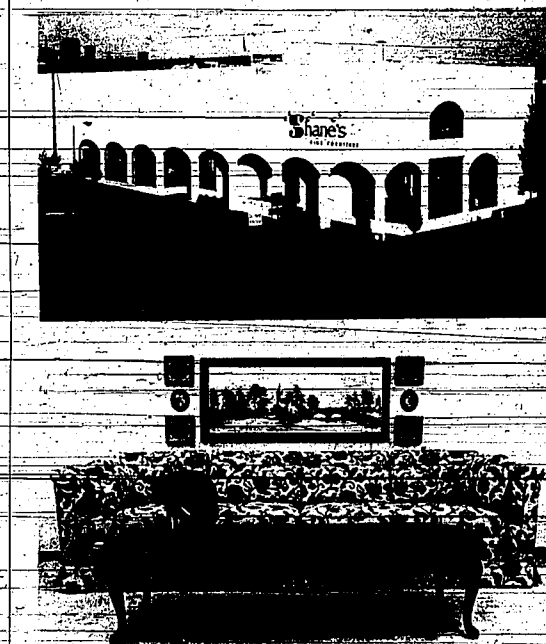

Sirica also announced Friday that a tape recording of one of Nixon's conversations with his aides was "unquestionably relevant" to the Watergate prosecution's inquiry into possible White House abuse of the Internal Revenue Service.

"He said he would turn it over to the prosecution, unless the President notified the court on Monday that he planned to appeal the ruling."

In a related development at the federal courthouse here Friday, Sirica's role as judge in the upcoming Watergate cover-up case was confirmed by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

VOLCO CARPETS FLOOR FASHIONS

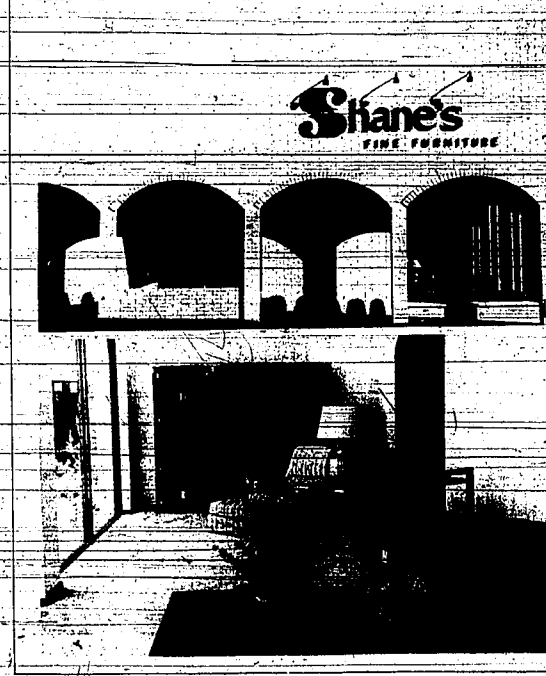

NEWLYWEDS have enough budget worries without hearing heavy talk about carpeting, you might say... but when it comes to making the most of a new home or apartment on a shoestring budget... carpeting... is something to talk about.

Want to make do with make-it-yourself furniture? You can give it style and elegance by putting it in the gracious setting carpet creates. You can make a skimpily furnished room look more "finished" and luxurious with that same carpet.

Carpeting does a lot more for young families, like creating "living" floors that are great for those casual parties where a lot of young people just like to sit around and rap, and formal dinners don't matter. Carpet also insulates against sound as well as cold. And what could be better when the first baby begins to get around than a cushioned, quiet, warmly carpeted floor?

Putting it all together, carpet makes sense. As for that budget, you'll find a fine selection of quality carpets well under $10 a square yard. In fact, you can quality peddle, when you look over our new collection from America's finest rug manufacturers.

Gem aides, justices unopposed

BOISE (UPI) — The deadline for filing nominating petitions in 1974 election races passed Friday leaving three incumbent state officers and two Supreme Court justices running unopposed.

Secretary of State Pete T. Conrass, a Republican, State Auditor Joe R. Williams, a Democrat, and Treasurer Marjorie Hath-Moon — a Democrat — are without opposition in the primary race.

Supreme Court Justices Allan Shepard and Charles R. Donaldson are unopposed in their bids for re-election to the Idaho high court on non-partisan ballots.

Incumbent Sen. Frank Church will be opposed by Leon R. Olson — a Republican — who Party to face Idaho's senior senator in the primary.

Republicans in the race for the U.S. Senate seat occupied by Church are Robert Smith of Nampa, formerly administrative assistant to Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho; Charley Bolsinger of Boise, a retired military officer; and Donald L. Winder of Boise, formerly state director of the Farmers Home Administration.

Guy — Cecil D. — Andrus, a Democrat, and Gov. Jack Murphy, a Republican, are running without opposition for their party nominations for the state's highest office.

Rep. Symms does not have any opposition for the GOP nomination for First District congressman. Orval Hansen faces George Hansen for the Republican nomination for Second District Congressman.

Atty. Gen. W. Anthony Park, a Democrat is without an opponent in the primary race but Tim Hopkins of Idaho Falls and Wayne L. Kidwell, Boise, are squared off for the GOP nomination to take Park on in the general election.

Two Democrats, J. Ray Cox, an attorney from Hayden Lake, and Ken Miller, a Sandpoint newsman, will fight it out in the primary for the right to face Symms in November.

The Democrats will choose between Max Hanson, a realtor, and Keith Holte, both of Idaho Falls; for a contender to stand against Orval or George Hansen in the general election for the Second District Congressional seat.

Candidates for the lieutenant governor's seat being vacated by Murphy include Republicans Paul Harsweg, a public relations man for J.R. Simplot Co. in Caldwell; State Rep. Vernon Havenscroft of Tulle and Hope, Kading, a Boise housewife.

Democrats seeking the nomination for lieutenant governor are two former state senators, Ray Rigby of Rexburg, and Neil Solberg of Grangeville and Senate minority leader John Evans of Malad.

Candidates for the office of superintendent of public instruction are Republicans Donald S. Henney, a former school official from Garden Valley; Harmon J. Groesbeck of Idaho Falls; Ezra Moore and Charles Brown, both former state department of education officials.

Democrats seeking the state's highest education office are state senator James Stotcher of Sandpoint and Roy Truly, formerly administrative assistant to En-

Family affair?

BOISE (UPI) — The 1975 Idaho Legislature may turn into a family affair with the possibility of a father-son gubernatorial combination.

Democrat Jim Hill filed for the state senate, and his wife, Susan, also a Democrat, is seeking a house seat in district 17.

In District 10 Bernard Ben Otter, Wieser, filed for the Democratic nomination for the house. His son, Rep. C. L. Otter, R-Caldwell, is a candidate for re-election from District 12.

Tornado batters weather office

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — A tornado struck the building housing the National Weather Service office at Will Rogers World Airport shortly Saturday. All personnel were reported safe, but the office had to be evacuated because of a gas leak and exposed electrical wiring.

The tornado continued to move eastward across Oklahoma City and ham radio operators kept Civil Defense authorities posted on its movements.

The twister was reported to have touched down at a number

Satellite in place

GREENBELT, Md. (UPI) — Controllers at Goddard Space Flight Center Saturday stopped NASA's newest weather satellite at 45 degrees west longitude over Brazil to begin an expected five or more years of returning weather data, including the first day and night pictures from synchronous orbit.

The first duty of the Synchronous Meteorological Satellite-1, known as SMS-1, was to transmit cloud cover returns and other data in support of an international investigation of weather in the earth's tropical belt. The investigation, beginning June 15, is known as the GARP Atlantic Tropical Experiment.

Gem strike talk slated in Boise

By United Press International
Negotiations are scheduled to get underway in Boise next Wednesday between the Associated General Contractors and striking construction workers.

The meeting was scheduled at the request of federal mediators Jack Garvey and Dan Edwards of Salt Lake City.

Both John Mollitor, executive secretary of the AGC, and Robert Kinghorn, representing the five striking crafts unions, agreed to meet with the mediators an effort to end the strike that began the first of the week.

The strike has killed up to 100 million workers and halted 100 million construction projects.

Kinghorn said there is not much difference in the positions of the two sides.

He said there is no way of knowing how long the week-old strike will last, but added "I hope it doesn't go long."

Mollitor said he felt the two sides had polarized during the labor dispute.

"The main point of disagreement," Kinghorn said, "is the first year wage increase, the increase for June 1 this year."

He said this management offer is "10 cents less than they had already negotiated three years ago."

Kinghorn said the contractors agreed to meet with the mediators an effort to end the strike that began the first of the week.

"We want that reinstated and 50 cents per hour in new money," he said.

County government study panels set

TWIN FALLS — A three-point Idaho Legislative Council study of laws affecting county government and operations began at a Boise meeting this past week.

County Commissioner Merl Leonard said Saturday.

Leonard and Jerome County Commissioner John Van Orman attended the Friday and Saturday session as Fourth District representatives of the Idaho Commissioners and Clerks Association.

Leonard said, three subcommittees were named to conduct the study of Idaho county government operations.

State Sen. Dick Smith, R-Rexburg, was appointed chairman of the committee study administration. Rep. Ralph Wheeler, R-American Falls, was named to head the committee study of the relationship between operations of county and city governments. Rep.

William Onweiler, R-Boise, was named to head the committee studying revenues, finances and taxation.

Leonard said an advisory county council representing county officials is still to be appointed.

He said the results of the study, which could result in a statewide referendum, will be sent to the state legislature.

Among matters which the committee on administration will investigate, he said, are the possibility of amending Idaho law to permit election of a county supervisor, increasing the maximum number of commissioners from three to seven, and the question of election of county commissioners by residents of the districts which they represent.

Leonard said the latter step would be a change from commissioners running on a county-wide ticket.

Also attending the meeting was Rep. Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls. The legislative council vice chairman, Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, conducted the two-day session.

Meeting set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger will meet with German Foreign Minister Hans D. Genscher Tuesday near the German-Austrian border for discussions of common interest.

The State Department announced Saturday.

Tape spurs search for SLA

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Saturday intensified their search for Patricia Hearst and law enforcement authorities

Reporters listen

HOLDING microphones and recorders near speakers, newsmen listen to taped message supposedly from Symbionese Liberation Army members, delivered to Los Angeles radio station KPFK Friday. (UPI) two Symbionese Liberation Army companions following release of a taped message by the trio vowing a fight to the death.

Police said reports of sightings of the three increased after the tape was played over several radio stations. Eleven reports from persons who said they saw Miss Hearst and William and Emily Harris went to police stations late Friday and early Saturday. But leads proved fruitless, police said. The FBI said it had no new leads.

The tape was delivered to station KPFK, a listener supported station which has refused to turn the original tape over to the FBI. It did hand over a copy, however, which the federal agency is examining.

On the tape, Miss Hearst revealed her love affair with "Kujo," believed to be Willie Wolfe, 29, one of the six SLA members who died May 17 in a shootout with police.

The 33-minute tape also carried message from "Tico" or "Pico" and "Volanda," whom authorities said they believed to be William and Emily Harris.

Miss Hearst's voice was subsequently identified by her parents at Hillsborough, Calif. Calling herself "Tanla," Miss Hearst said: "When it was ripped off by the pigs [wh] they murdered Kujo, ripped off the same way that thousands of sisters and brothers in this Fascist pig state have been ripped off of people they love."

"We mourn together and the sound of gunfire becomes sweeter."

The male voice on the tape said the SLA moved its operations to Los Angeles May 1 when it became clear the pigs were preparing to trap us on the San Francisco Peninsula.

Harris denied he shoplifted a pair of 90-cent socks from an Ingleswood store May 18 after purchasing more than $30 worth of clothes and so eventually leading police to the SLA hideout where six of the group's members died in a shootout and fire. He blamed a clerk for stopping him outside the store and said he couldn't allow a search because he was armed. The Harris fled as a third party, now known to be Miss Hearst, sprayed the front of the store with bullets from an automatic weapon.

On the tape, Patricia Hearst said the SLA saved her life by kidnapping her from an apartment near the campus of the University of California at Berkeley Feb. 4.

Miss Hearst has been indicted on 21 charges including kidnapping, various degrees of assault, robbery, car theft, and a federal charge of possession of an automatic weapon.

Strike sought

PARIS (UPI) — The Women's Liberation Movement of France called on French women Saturday to boycott sex-harassment, child rearing and low-paying menial jobs in a three-day strike for female rights.

There was no indication whether the strike was being followed.

The feminists last week scrawled graffiti in subway stations saying, "Women strike June 8-9-10."

One woman interviewed on Radio Luxembourg announced, "We will give up sex and doing dishes and we will kick any man who makes passes at us on the street."

Emigration scored

CAIRO (UPI) — Palestinian leaders appealed to the Soviet Union indirectly Saturday to stop the emigration of Soviet Jews to Israel.

The appeal came in a political declaration adopted by the Palestine National Council which has begun meeting in Cairo since June 1 to map future strategy in the Middle East.

Without mentioning the Soviet Union by name, the declaration said: "The Council appeals to all justice and peace loving peoples and governments of the world and all liberation and progressive forces to struggle against Zionism actively aimed at the immigration of more Jews to occupied Palestine (Israel)."

It said such immigration "contributes to the consolidation of the Zionist settlers' military establishment... and represents a continuing Zionist challenge to the national rights of our people."

The Soviet Union has been one of the main sources of Jewish immigrants in recent years.

SF hospitals send patients home

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Forty strike-bound hospitals Saturday discharged all but the most seriously ill as a walkout by 4,000 nurses demanding more pay and less work went into its second day.

of strikerauthorized nurses in intensive care facilities. Both the hospitals and the strikers insisted that no seriously ill person was denied proper nursing care. However, the supervisors worked long hours, and sometimes called for help from doctors on the hospital staffs.

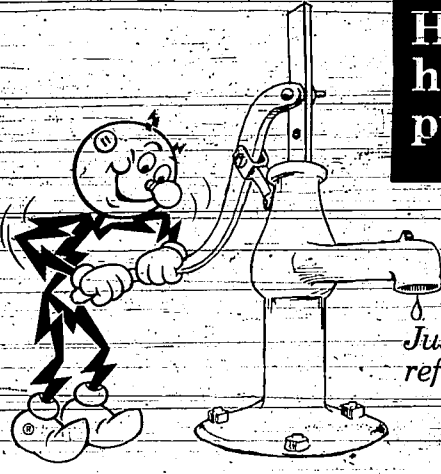

Some patients discharged were sent to convalescent institutions to complete their recoveries. Others were sent home.

The hospitals ceased admitting persons for treatments that could be postponed. Emergency and obstetric wards remained open.

The strike began Friday as 8,000 nurses from all over the nation were arriving in San Francisco for the national convention of the American Nurses Association.

The strikers are members of the national's group's local unit which is seeking to negotiate a new contract. Major issues involve pensions, cutbacks in the work load, wages and guarantees of every other weekend off.

The nurses' contract expired in January.

How does a heat pump pump?

Just like your refrigerator!

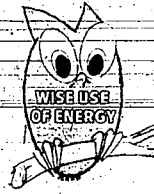

Pumps come in many shapes and sizes. You don't think of your refrigerator as a pump, perhaps because it pumps heat instead of water. It makes air cold by removing some of its heat. It can make room air cold enough to freeze ice cubes. The removed heat adds warmth to your kitchen.

Using the same principle as the refrigerator, the heat pump takes warmth from outside air even at winter temperatures. The heat it produces can warm your home. When cooling is needed, the heat pump reverses itself to provide very effective air conditioning, year-around comfort from a single system.

In our area it is not at all unusual for the heat pump to deliver two units of heat for every heat unit of electricity it uses. The mechanical leverage employed in this unique system results in far greater efficiencies in energy utilization than is possible with conventional heating systems.

With energy conservation of prime interest, the efficiency of the heat pump looms in importance, especially when the installation is brought up to Idaho Power Company's recommended standards. Additionally, in our case, it conforms to national goals in replacing scarce petroleum based fuels.

Several reliable heat pump models are now available through heating dealers. Conversions of present systems often are practical, more so when existing warm air ductwork is satisfactory. You can get further information and planning assistance by calling your local Idaho Power Company office.

AFT summer rehearsals start

HAGERMAN — Rehearsals are under way for the 11th summer season of the Antique Festival Theatre.

H. Paul Kliss, associate producer and faculty member at the College of Southern Idaho, is directing two productions, a musical version of "Rip Van Winkle" and the Italian comedy "Mistress of the Inn."

The third offering of the summer's repertoire is a musical review "Country and Western" with original music by Jim Cockey with lyrics by the theatre's resident playwright, Gary McDonough.

Aldrich Bowler, the theatre's producer-director, says nearly everything in this season's set will be recycled. The crew headed by Arvid Olsen from the University of North Carolina has pulled mats to salvage lumber which now costs 21 cents per running foot and taken apart old sets to reuse plywood. Hardware has been sorted and boxed for attachment to new set pieces.

The Hagerman American Legion Hall where the company warehouses its theatrical materials has been thoroughly reorganized by Bitsy Bidwell, costume designer, and tour director with the theatre now in her sixth tour.

Ralph Welz, the theatre's secretary, has sent out subscription letters and season tickets. Magic Valley theatregoers are urged to purchase their season tickets by sending $10 checks to Box 26, Buhl.

The three plays will be performed in towns and parks throughout the Magic Valley area during July and August.

Fishy story

LOS, Sweden (UPI) — Albin Norring, 79, had flub for dinner Thursday. It was a 12-pound pike that nearly killed him.

"He was so heavy the boat overturned when I tried to land him. The next thing I knew I was in the water, trying to swim, but the pike swam circles around me and tied my legs with the line," Norring told neighbors who heard his cry for help and came to his rescue.

The fishing line was wound so tight around Norring's legs that his rescuers had to use scissors to cut him loose.

Street named

PARIS (UPI) — Paris named a street after Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower Friday.

The city council in a ceremony inaugurated the short street, formerly Avenue Selves, which runs between Avenue Franklin D. Roosevelt and Avenue Winston Churchill on the side of the Grand Palais exposition hall.

Eisenhower's granddaughter, Susan, now Mrs. Alexander Bradshaw, flew to Paris for the ceremony. Others among the 1,500 guests included members of the French government and military staff and members of U.S. and French war veteran groups.

The street naming came a day after French and American groups staged ceremonies on Normandy beaches to observe the 30th anniversary of D-Day.

LOGAN — Two students from Magic Valley are valedictorians of the 1974 graduating class at Utah State University.

More than 2,000 students will receive degrees in commencement exercises June 8 with Vice President Gerald R. Ford as speaker.

Servicemen

ELBA — Marine Capt. Donald R. Barker, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Barker, Elba, has reported for duty at the Marine Corps base, Camp S.D. Butler, on Okinawa.

A 1971 graduate of the University of Idaho, Moscow, he joined the Marine Corps in May, 1972.

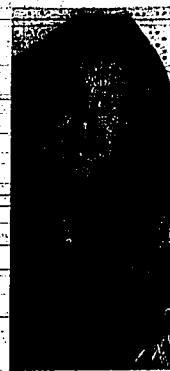

JoAnne V. Gerrish, Filer, is co-valedictorian of the college of humanities, arts and social sciences, and Mary Louise Seymour, Murtaugh, is co-valedictorian of the college of education.

Mrs. Gerrish, the former JoAnne Vincent, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Vincent, Filer, and has been active in the symphonic orchestra and band. She plays flute, oboe and piano and belongs to Orchestra and the USU Dance Theater.

Miss Seymour, daughter of R. H. Seymour, Murtaugh, majored in communicative disorders and works with young children having speech and hearing problems. Both students have a straight A average.

Grange to meet

KING HILL — The King Hill Grange No. 162 will meet Tuesday at their hall at 2:30 p.m. A new master will be elected, due to the resignation of Martin Woodward, and a new overseer will also be elected due to the death of H. O. Lips, Bliss. The charter will be draped in Mr. Lips' honor by the Grange.

Sexless crawlers

SELLING night crawlers is still big business in Magic Valley. Paul and Joe Whelan, young sons of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whelan, Filer, believe in advertising and have made a large worm figure on top of a sign reading their night crawlers as "Sexless but Fearless — Thoughtful and Well-Trained."

Airline asks right to end flights to 2 areas

TWIN FALLS — Hughes Aircraft has petitioned the Civil Aeronautics Board for an immediate hearing on an application for unconditional suspension of air service to the Burley-Rupert or Sun Valley areas.

On Dec. 25, 1969, Airwest had been granted permission to stop service to the Burley-Rupert area through the Burley Airport and to Sun Valley through the Halley airport.

At that time the "suspend" order was granted on condition Trans-Magic Airlines — now Air Idaho — provide service. On May 13 Air Idaho made application to the Idaho Public Utilities Commission for authority to suspend the Burley service. This was granted and it stopped Burley service last Friday.

O. A. (Gus) Kellner, assistant to the manager of the Twin Falls City County Airport, where Air Idaho maintains headquarters, said today local airport board members had been informed by Airwest officials they are asking for a permanent rather than conditional suspension.

In a communication to Joslin Field officials, Hughes Aircraft officials said the inability of the Burley-Rupert airport to handle Airwest's smallest operating aircraft (the F-27) together with the proximity of the Burley-Rupert area to the Twin Falls airport and the very low air-traffic potential of the Burley-Rupert area all point to the fact that the reinstatement of service by Airwest during the period of time required would be wasteful of Airwest's facilities and contrary to the public interest.

In announcing the Elmore sets fete

on July 4

GLENN'S FERRY — Plans for the Glenns Ferry annual July 4 celebration are under way. It will be held at the Glenns Ferry park. There will be a town team softball game and races for the children.

There will be food and game booths and the Old Timers of the area will be guests and get free dinners again this year.

The gymkhana will be held at the fair grounds area, and fireworks will be shot off in the evening. Anyone interested in entering the parade should contact Jerry Bybee, and all organizations who wish to have a booth space is to contact Kay Clark.

withdrawal of the Burley-Rupert stop from scheduled service. Air Idaho officials cited lack of public support for such service.

At the same time, according to the correspondence received by Joslin-Field officials, Hughes Aircraft contended that Idaho Air was generating "approximately 84 passengers per flight" at Burley and the loss per landing was set at $64.55.

On Monday, Sun Valley Key Airline officials, Salt Lake City, announced interest in making Burley a regular stop. The Utah line now operates between Salt Lake City, Sun Valley and Boise with small propeller aircraft.

"It is not clear if the Civil Aeronautics Board will automatically grant Airwest's plea. If Key Airlines provides the service that Air Idaho has stopped," Kellner said. "In the petition to the CAB, Airwest termed service to Burley uneconomic and not needed. However, members of the Joslin Field board have been informed by Burley officials that they are actively soliciting entry of Key Airlines into the Burley-Rupert area and plan a meeting in Burley June 19 to discuss the situation."

Officials of Air Idaho at Joslin Field said today they will maintain scheduled service to Sun Valley, Boise, Salt Lake City and Elko, Nev.

Gets award

GLENN'S FERRY — Rick Wetclum, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Wetclum, Rupert, former Glenns Ferry resident, is a recipient of four-year Army ROTC scholarship to further his education. He is a graduate of Minidoka County High School, Rupert. He is planning to attend the University of Utah in Salt Lake City, where he will major in pharmacy.

While in college, all his expenses will be paid with the exception of room and board plus he will receive a $100 a month subsistence allowance. Upon completion of college and receipt of a bachelors degree he will be commissioned a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army, where he will fulfill a four year obligation.

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford School District has cassette listening stations for six classrooms, thanks to a joint gift.

Sgt. Richard Peters said each year the Farmers Bank of Buhl gives the district money for purchase of equipment or materials and this year their $1,000 donation was used as matching funds in a Title 3 language arts project in the grade school. The gift enabled the school to obtain an additional $1,000 in matching federal money.

Items purchased included, in addition to the listening stations, more than 1,000 reference and library books for all elementary classrooms in grades one through eight.

Library accepts books

SUN VALLEY — Books dealing with the art of fly fishing have been donated by the Sun Valley Fly Fishers to the Ketchikan Community Library.

Dr. Lynn T. Levy, club president, said the books have been collected as a club project. Most of the volumes are new, but a few have been donated by members from their private libraries.

Fly fishing is becoming more popular each year, he said, and it is hoped these new books will help members of the community improve their skills. More books will be donated as funds permit.

Dr. Levy also reports the fly fishers held a cleanup drive in the Silver Creek area recently, collecting more than 22 large trash bags.

TF VFW elects officers

TWIN FALLS — Officers were elected at a recent meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2136 of Twin Falls.

Lynn Young was elected commander; Frank Dornick, junior vice commander; Raymond Grano, junior vice commander; Robert Messenger, quartermaster; Robert Stewart, chaplain; Henry Van Patton, judge advocate; Donald Sorlus, secretary; Mike Wingard; Johnnie York and Gene Cunningham, trustees; and Gene Cunningham, service officer.

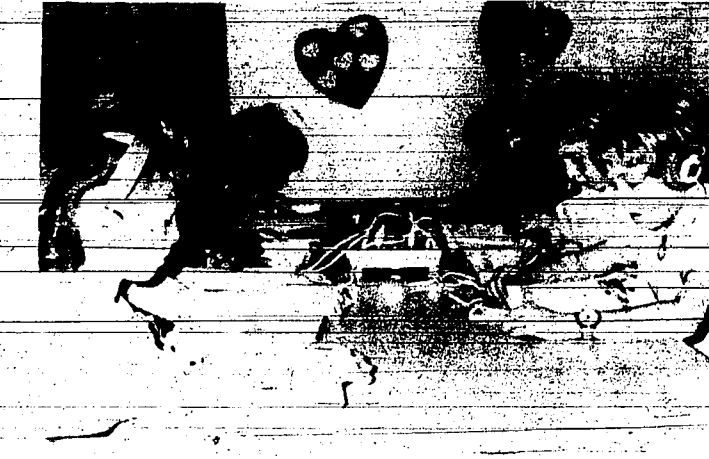

The next meeting will be June 18 at 8 p.m. at the National Guard Armory. All members are invited to attend.

Henry denies charge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger denied Friday he initiated wiretap surveillance of White House subordinates.

Kissinger made his comments when testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in support of the administration's $4.2 billion foreign aid bill.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, told Kissinger he raised the issue because of a possible conflict in his confirmation testimony before the committee last September.

"Did you initiate any recommendations for such wiretaps?" Muskie asked Kissinger.

"No, I did not," Kissinger replied.

Kissinger, who became irritated when newsmen pressed him on the issue during a news conference Thursday, said he appreciated Muskie raising the matter which concerned a wiretapping program initiated by the White House to stop leaks of classified documents to news media.

"I testified before this committee that the program was decided upon at a meeting between the President, the then attorney general, and the director of the FBI," Kissinger said.

"I was told the program was decided upon," Kissinger said. "I was asked to supply the names of persons who had had access to the documents that were leaked."

"I had no reason to think, and to this day have no reason to expect, that the program was anything other than legal."

"My role was to submit the names of individuals who had had access to the documents that had been leaked."

"I will stand by what I said before this committee."

Emigration number slows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Friday there has been at least a 25 per cent reduction in the number of persons allowed to emigrate from the Soviet Union.

Kissinger told the Senate

Foreign Relations Committee that the emigration figures for May "has been reduced more than any other month this year."

He said an amendment to the trade bill introduced by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., which would require a relaxation of emigration restrictions by the Soviets as a prerequisite to trade concessions, has resulted in a "hardening" of Soviet emigration policy.

"There has been a reduction of 25 per cent at least," Kissinger said.

Wind upsets big trailer

TWIN FALLS — The Perrine Bridge was limited to one-way traffic for several hours Friday after a trailer loaded with fiberglass bathtub tipped over in high winds.

The accident occurred about 10:30 a.m. Friday when the trailer was blown over by winds up to 33 miles per hour. The flatbed trailer, loaded with bathtubs from Component Structures Inc. of Idaho, tipped into the northbound lane of the bridge, forcing the pickup truck pulling it to tilt into the east rail.

Traffic on the bridge was limited to the southbound lane, which was not blocked. Idaho Department of Engineering, completing office work at the strike-stalled site of the new Perrine Bridge, went onto the windblown bridge to direct the alternating streams of one-way traffic.

Deliver Kenneth E. Hoffman, 27, Boise, said he had no indication the trailer would tip before it suddenly blew over.

"I knew it was blowing, but I didn't think it was that bad," Hoffman said. "It had been blowing ever since I left Mountain Home."

Structures, said he was bound for Twin Falls and then to Lewiston, Mont., from Boise.

"The trailer just went over — poof — and I had to ride the truck into the railing to keep from rolling off the truck," he said.

Idaho State Police estimated damage to the pickup truck at $800 to $900 with little damage to the trailer or its contents.

2 area boys given posts

BOISE — Two Magic Valley youths were elected to serve top governmental offices of Gem Boy's state which ended Saturday.

Tucker Woodson, son of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Woodson, Twin Falls, was elected lieutenant governor in special elections this week. He acted as president of the senate during mock legislative sessions.

Rick Hoskin, Jerome High School senior, was one of five boys staters elected to the Supreme Court in Boise.

Another area youth, Don Fena, 50, of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Fena, Heyburn, narrowly lost the governor's race to Danny Byram of Mountain Home.

The 350 boys staters returned from their week in Boise Saturday.

No contests

BURLEY — Incumbent county officers in Cassia County will have no opposition in the August primary election.

And only one post will be contested in the November general election. Lyle N. Murphy, Elba, has filed as a candidate for third district county commissioner on the Democratic Party ticket. Murphy will face Republican Orville Bekke in November.

Other incumbents filing in addition to Bekke include treasurer Shirley Povlsen; assessor Calvin G. Heiner; clerk Frank Kearns; coroner C. Bruce Young; prosecuting attorney Roger C. Johnson; and second district commissioner John A. Clark, Oakley.

The deadline for candidate filings was Friday at 5 p.m.

Dietrich woman seeks post

DIETRICH — Arlyne B. Kislung, wife of Dietrich rancher Floyd O. Kislung, has announced her candidacy for the office of state senator for district 22 on the Democratic ticket.

As immediate past president of the Idaho PTA, Mrs. Kislung has worked for quality education for all children in Idaho and stresses the need for public kindergartens in the state.

As wife of a rancher and former legislator, Mrs. Kislung is aware of tax, water and legislative matters.

Since the population and problems in Idaho have not increased at the same rapid rate as legislative spending, Mrs. Kislung is an advocate for the return to biennial sessions of the legislature with the provision for a special, brief budget session if it is deemed necessary.

Mrs. Kislung has participated in many community, county and state activities. She has served as local, district and state president of the Idaho PTA and was a member for two years of the board of managers of the national PTA. She has had 10 years experience as a member of the Idaho PTA Legislative Committee. During her term as state president, the Idaho PTA instituted legal action against the State Land Board, et al, for restitution of State Endowment Land funds which benefitted Idaho Public Schools.

Her activities include past patron of OES; past governor of Job's Daughters; Shoshone; count memorials chairman for the Heart Fund; past officer of the Civic Club and is presently serving as third vice president of the Idaho Federation of Women's Clubs.

In political circles, Mrs. Kislung has been active in the county and state central committees for many years, serving in the various capacities of chairman, precinct committeewoman and state committeewoman. She acted as chairman of the credentials committee for the Democratic convention held in San Valley in 1972.

The Kislungs have been residents of the Dietrich community since 1938. They have three children and seven grandchildren.

Bellevue asked for bite in dog leash law

BY BART QUENNEL
Times News Writer

BELLEVUE — Bellevue City councilmen heard arguments for a change in dog leash law Thursday night with some "bite" in it.

The council set new dog licenses at $10 for all dogs in a special meeting in May. Most opposition Thursday night stated the $10 fee alone was not enough to control the problem.

James Pigg, former Bellevue mayor, told the council he would pay $10 for a license "providing you give me some protection." He said the law does not protect non-dog owners.

Alderman Mike McGraw said the $10 move was set to eliminate new dogs in town and to thin out dogs that did not have owners. According to McGraw, "if people take care of their dogs, we wouldn't have to propose a leash law."

He said the fee would encourage people with seven or eight dogs to get rid of them.

TRAILER tipped over by high winds blocked the southbound lane of the Perrine Memorial Bridge for several hours Friday.

Magic Valley county candidates reported

Blaine incumbents file

HALLEY — All incumbents except the prosecuting attorney have filed for re-election to Blaine County posts here.

Two races for county officers will be contested in the November general election but there appears to be no races for the August primary.

Lillian Wright, D-Halley, has filed for the present county treasurer seat held by Rodette Fry, running on the Republican ticket. Ivan J. Gustafson, Republican, has filed for the District 2 county commissioner seat held by incumbent Jack R. Bennett, D-Ketchum.

Thomas Campton, D-Ketchum, lawyer, has filed for prosecuting attorney. Steve Boller, present prosecuting attorney, has decided not to run for re-election.

Incumbent county commissioner C. W. (Andy) Gardner, D-District 2, has filed without opposition. Incumbent clerk recorder and auditor, Marie Twie, Democrat, has filed for re-election as has Delmer C. Nicholson, Republican, for the county assessor position without opposition.

All other filings are for precinct committeemen.

Joek Peterson, Republican, and Roland Peck, Democrat, have filed for precinct committeemen from Carey; Homer Gordon Eccles, Republican, has filed for precinct committeeman from Gannett-Placeo, along with Jerry Alfred, Democrat, for that area.

Alberta Guffy, Democrat, has filed for precinct committeewoman from Bellevue.

Hazel L. Brown, Democrat, has filed for the first precinct in Halley. John K. Barlow, has filed on the Republican ticket for that same precinct. John A. Davies, Republican, has filed for the second precinct in Halley.

One contest

JEROME — Only one contest on the county level has developed in Jerome County for the August primary election.

Ed Messinger, Jerome County Resident since 1923, will oppose incumbent J. Howard Jepson for the county assessor's seat on the Republican ticket.

Of the 15 declarations of candidacy petitions filed in Jerome County, only one was on the Democratic ticket. Carl Stephens was the lone Democrat filing Friday. Stephens is running unopposed for the county treasurer position. Stephens has been county treasurer for 24 years and if elected begins his 12th year.

Also filing candidacy petitions this week — all on the Republican ticket, and all unopposed — were: Mrs. Virginia Rickerts, who will be seeking her second term as Jerome County clerk of the district court, auditor and recorder; Eugene Fredrickson, prosecuting attorney, who will be seeking a third term; and John Van Orman and Claude Bernard, who have both filed for re-election as county commissioners.

Van Orman is completing his third term in office. If re-elected, his term would be for four years. Bernard has been county commissioner chairman for the past two years. His term would be for two years.

Dr. Lauren Neher is seeking re-election as county coroner. Dr. Neher has served in the position since 1964. His Republican opponents, Dan Sauer, Canyonville district; Jerry Doughty, Falls City, and Gordon Hegler, Grandview.

Seeking election for their first term as Republican precinct committeemen, are James Jones, Elba precinct; Leonard J. Peterson, Bishop; John Hohnhorst, Hazelton; and Russell Howell, Jr., Northwest precinct.

Junior special causes interest

SHOSHONE — A passenger train in Shoshone this day is quite a sight. One such train has been seen this week along the railroad tracks in the center of Main Street on two different days.

The train was "The Junior Old-Time Special" and runs once a year from Omaha, Neb., picking up the junior old-timers along the way to attend a convention at Sun Valley.

To qualify for the trip the employs may have from 10 to 20 years service with the railroad.

This year the 250 attending came from Omaha, Kansas City, Marysville, Salt Lake City, Pocatello, Ogden, Nampa, Los Angeles and Seattle and other points within that general area.

The convention special called for a barbecue, two days of meetings and a number of parties.

The train traveled back through Shoshone at 2 p.m. Saturday, left at 7:50 p.m. for Sun Valley.

Those attending from the West Coast area joined the troop at the Shoshone depot.

Shoshone firemen answer two calls

SHOSHONE — The Shoshone City Volunteer Fire Department answered two calls Thursday.

One was at the Shoshone Sales Yard gravel pit about 4 p.m. where some lumber and tires were burned. Cause of the fire was unknown, according to Boyd Alexander, fire chief.

The second call was at 7:50 p.m. when a trailer house parked behind the McCall Hotel. It belonged to Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Gray. They had gone out for a few minutes and the fire is believed to have started in the furnace area.

Two TF races

TWIN FALLS — Two incumbent county officers here will face contests in the primary election Aug. 6.

Twin Falls attorney William Hoffield will oppose incumbent prosecuting attorney Robert Taylor on the Republican ticket. Leonard J. Eitner has filed as a candidate for the post on the Democratic ticket.

The other primary contest is between incumbent County Commission Chairman William Chancy and George Benham, a former law enforcement officer. Both men seek the Republican Party nomination for second district commissioner.

Incumbent third district commissioner William Wiseman, Twin Falls, a Democrat, will face a general election opponent, Republican Ann Cover, Twin Falls.

Other incumbent county officials who filed for candidacy were unopposed, including veteran county clerk Harold Lancaster, a Twin Falls Democrat; treasurer Ruth K. Jones, also a Twin Falls Democrat; coroner Clayton Edwards, a Republican from Twin Falls; and assessor Ronald Taylor, a Kimberly Republican.

Deadline for candidate filings was Friday at 5 p.m.

No Gooding race

GOODING — Gooding County voters will not have any races in the Aug. 6 primary for county offices.

A complete list of candidates filing by the Friday afternoon deadline, shows mostly incumbents seeking re-election.

Candidates filing on the Republican ticket include Doris O. Robertson, treasurer; Wes Tronson, assessor; Merle Oswley clerk; Bob Burks, Wendell, third district commissioner; John R. LeMoine, Hagerman, second district commissioner, and Dr. James L. Molchan, coroner.

Democratic candidates include Nelson R. King, Wendell, third district commissioner; Margaret Clemens, incumbent clerk, and Andrew James, incumbent prosecuting attorney.

Filing candidacy petitions for Republican precinct committeemen were C. Edward Gunnins, Orchard Valley; John W. West, west Wendell; Janet Sears, west Gooding; James E. Varin; north west Gooding; and Michael Arkosch, northeast Gooding.

Democratic precinct committee filings are Mary A. Goss, west Gooding, and Stanley Haslovec, Hagerman.

No Mindoka race

RUPERT — No candidates for Mindoka County offices will face opposition in the primary election, and only one will face a Democratic contest.

Incumbent county coroner Vaughn Bar, a Republican, will face Democrat, coroner candidate Kenneth Christensen in the November election.

Filing deadline for candidates was Friday at 5 p.m.

Filing as a candidate for prosecuting attorney is William Manning, a Republican. Incumbent Robert Nielsen is not running for the county attorney's post.

Other incumbents who have filed as candidates in the Aug. 6 primary election include Treasurer, Phyllis Norby, Democrat, clerk August Bekke, Democrat; assessor, Claude E. Bowman, Democrat, second district county commissioner, Lyle Barton, Republican; and third district county commissioner Joe Hills, Democrat.

Lincoln faces 1 primary race

SHOSHONE — One primary election contest has emerged for county offices in Lincoln County.

Republicans John A. McKenzie, Shoshone, and Walter W. Borman, Dietrich, face each other in the race for second county commissioner. McKenzie is a bank employee and Borman a farmer. The Aug. 6 primary election winner will face Victor J. Rozzuto, a Shoshone businessman who is seeking the second district post on the Democratic ticket.

Second district incumbent Glenn L. Sorenson, a Dietrich Republican, is not running.

Two candidates will compete in the general election for assessor. Edward D. Savaria, Shoshone, is running on the Republican ticket and Ernest Boesiger, also Shoshone, as a Democrat.

Incumbent assessor Sanford Connel, D-Shoshone, is not running.

In the third district county commissioner race, only one candidate filed to replace Republican incumbent C. F. Chaffield. Everett L. Ward, Richfield farmer, will run on the Democratic ticket.

Other Lincoln County filings were all by incumbents, including clerk Mrs. Joy McClure, Dietrich; treasurer Myron T. Johnson, R-Shoshone; prosecuting attorney Howard E. Atkins, D-Shoshone; county corner R. G. Neher, R-Shoshone.

Deadline for candidate filings was Friday at 5 p.m.

Buhl fete

BUHL — Plans are under way for the annual Sage Brush Days celebration July 3 and 4 in Buhl.

Chris Blastock, Filer, is retaining quotes for the event and applications for candidates for the event are being accepted. They were obtained immediately from Bob Freeman, 643 S. Main, Kallifelsch is resigning July 15.

There will be a rodeo performance both nights at the Buhl rodeo arena and a parade is planned.

ARLYNE KISLING announces

Annual ram sale at Filer Aug. 3

FILER—The 33rd annual Idaho ram sale will be Aug. 3. The Idaho Wool Growers Association is arranging the sale, at which 560 choice rams will be offered, with animals consigned to the sale having passed three inspections. All animals offered will be sheared June 15 or later, with most having been grazed on the range. Pen sizes will vary from one to 10 head, with pens of 10, 3 to 9, and 1 to 3 offered. Ellis A. White will call the sale, assisted by Lawson Howland, Don Patterson and Ed Duren in the ring. Dr. Robert Simmons, veterinarian, will be present to issue health certificates on any rams leaving Idaho. Ram inspection is scheduled in advance of the sale, with inspectors beginning at Moscow and working their way to the southeastern part of Idaho. Dr. Joe Dahman, superintendent of the University of Idaho research center at Caldwell, and Lew Williams, association secretary, will conduct the inspection. The midsummer meeting of the association's directors is also planned at Filer on Aug. 3 in conjunction with the sale.

Colorado feeders push beef quotas

DENVER (UPI)—The Colorado Cattle Feeders Association (CCFA) has joined beef organizations urging President Nixon to reimpose quotas on foreign cattle. The CCFA and the Denver-based American National Cattleman's Association are among the organizations seeking a reimposition of beef import quotas. "We have written to the President," Skau said. "Right now, other countries have closed their doors to imports to protect their producers," but the United States is becoming a dumping ground. He said the beef industry was not seeking an embargo of beef imports. "We're just asking for a limitation at a time we have an over-supply of the domestic product," Skau said.

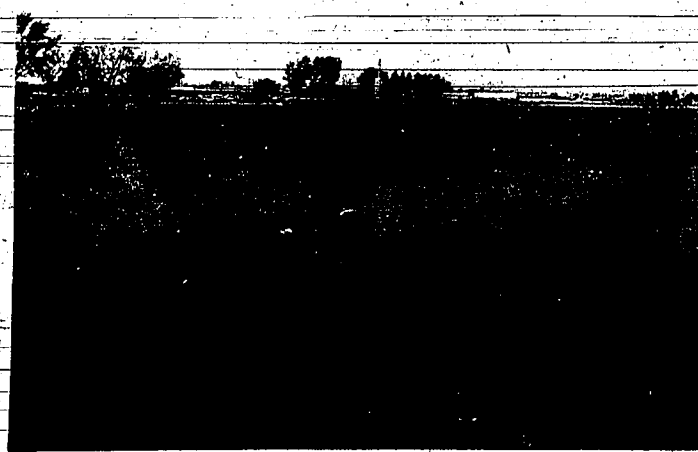

The spokesman said three major feedlots in Texas with a combined capacity for 155,000 head of cattle were forced to sell out because the price pinch was so extreme. "The CCFA and the Denver-based American National Cattleman's Association are among the organizations seeking a reimposition of beef import quotas. "We have written to the President," Skau said. "Right now, other countries have closed their doors to imports to protect their producers," but the United States is becoming a dumping ground. He said the beef industry was not seeking an embargo of beef imports. "We're just asking for a limitation at a time we have an over-supply of the domestic product," Skau said.

Diversion plan denied Club meets

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The director of the National Water Resources Council has told the Senate that water will not be diverted from the Northwest to other regions. Director Warren D. Pate said he made the emphatic "no diversion" comment during testimony before the Senate public works subcommittee on water resources. Idaho Senator James McClure said he hoped the policy statement by the council director would "cool off" the current effort to divert water surrounding a water resources questionnaire circulated by the council.

Club meets

TWIN FALLS—Clever Kitchen Kids 4-H Club discussed work and record books at a meeting Thursday. Types of quick breaks and safety while baby sitting were other topics discussed. The next meeting will be Thursday at 1:30 p.m. at 416 Pierce St. Seven members were present for the last meeting.

China wheat sales one time only?

(c) Newhouse News Service—American wheat sales to mainland China, interrupted in recent months because of microscopic plant-fungus in U.S. shipments, may end when existing contracts are fulfilled, a top grain export executive says. Fate of the two-year-old trade apparently hinges on what U.S. government and grain trade officials call "sensitive," unofficial negotiations now going on between U.S. exporters and the Chinese. Wheat is the largest American export to the People's Republic of China in 1973, according to the Commerce Department, which accounted for $177 million of the $798.1 million in U.S. goods purchased by the Chinese. Exporters are seeking relief from a provision in contracts that allowed giving the Chinese the right to reject on delivery shipments containing a certain strain of plant fungus, or smut. The unusual contract clause was agreed to, according to Richard K. Baum, president of the Portland, Ore., based Western Wheat Associates, one of two major market development associations in the United States—because exporters felt it would cause no significant problem. They were wrong. An increasing incidence of the smut strain TCK last summer prompted the Chinese to levy fines on American exporters. In recent months, three shipments were rejected outright at a cost of more than $1 million each to the exporter. As a result, shipments were stopped several weeks ago and a team of Agriculture Department experts was sent to China to learn what it could about the problem. Team members reportedly found the Chinese adamant about keeping TCK smut out of their country because of the drastic impact its introduction could have on grain yields there. The team's suggestions to exporters, according to Baum, are that China-bound wheat be routed, for the time being, at least, through U.S. ports on the Gulf Coast, where TCK smut infestation is low, and that exporters work with the U.S. government to institute more careful testing procedures for wheat before it leaves the United States. In return, exporters are asking the Chinese to waive their right to reject cargoes once they arrive in China. A Chinese response to the American request, Baum says, is expected sometime this week. Negotiations, he explains, involve current contracts still calling for U.S. shipments of about 60 million bushels worth more than $200 million. "Unless some changes are made in the current contract," he adds, "I doubt any new contracts will be signed. Before that happens, the grain trade needs some kind of concession on the rejection requirement." An Agriculture Department official calls Baum's assessment of the situation "reasonable" in light of the fact it is "impossible" to calculate the risk of rejection. Meanwhile, he adds, exporters may be required to decrease their prices to the Chinese in order to work out an agreement covering shipments still under contract. He cites China's need for wheat as crucial in setting the tone of current negotiations. In any event, shipments from West Coast ports will be avoided by exporters for the time being, because of the high incidence of smut cargoes that have originated there. In the past 11 months, Baum says, more than half of China-bound wheat shipments from Portland and Seattle have contained traces of the disease.

By contrast, only 4 of 70 shipments originating at Gulf Coast ports have been tainted with the TCK strain. "The Chinese have not excluded any ports or class of wheat from what they import," Baum emphasizes. "They simply want wheat free of TCK. "It's our responsibility. The grain trade is trying to find the safest place to ship for its own survival." The trade executive says shipments from West Coast ports may continue if some means of shipping wheat free of the spores can be found. There is some suspicion that cargoes pick up "the smut" during storage. "At this point," he continues, "grain trading companies" still feel they can resolve the problem on an individual "exporter basis." He admits, however, its solution could be expensive. "If exports are resumed and there are further rejections," he adds, "then obviously the industry can't do it alone and may seek government help."

What to build when a pole barn would be too expensive.

Our Citation attached buildings come in six sizes—up to 70 feet wide, and as long as you want to go. Inside, there's extra headroom, because the rigid open-web steel framing holds in a Citation does away with low-hanging chords. The sidewalls are vertical—not slanted, not curved. So the floor space is 100% usable, and you can put doors, windows, and shelves anywhere.

And, yes—because of pre-engineering and mass production a Citation often does cost less than a pole barn.

New field challenge for UFW

MONTEREY (UPI)—Teamster Union President Frank Fitzsimmons challenged Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union Thursday by signing an agreement to represent 40,000 field workers in California. "I don't look at him as a trade unionist," Fitzsimmons said of Chavez, who has led strikes by field workers against employers in California and Arizona. A jurisdictional battle has flared in the central California agricultural region since last year, when growers previously represented by Chavez' union signed contracts with the Teamsters. Fitzsimmons said in a ceremony inaugurating Local 1979 that he was "no longer interested" in working out an agreement with Chavez. While he spoke, a fight broke out between UFW supporters and Teamster Union members.

FOWLER, Colo. (UPI) — Most horses nowadays have been bred up to make good gentle riders and its hard to find good rodeo bucking horses anymore. So Harry Vold is raising his own.

He is breeding them mean, breeding them back in the wild canyons, back into the muslins that were quicker than a rattlesnake's strike and could run with the antelope.

"Throughout this country everyone has gone to raising the meanness and buck-out-of-horses," he says. "My experience is that disposition makes a bucking horse. They need race horses all the time and that's just what I'm doing."

Vold, a veteran of 25 years of supplying bucking stock to rodeos, is the first contractor to breed and raise his own stock. He has found good bucking mares and bred them with the meanest stallions.

His first foals are just five years old and within a year or two Vold figures to put them on the rodeo circuit.

The big thing, as far as Vold is concerned, is making sure the animals can run free.

"I've got a lot of country down here and a lot of canyons," he said. "I just let them grow up in their own environment. I want them to have the desire to jump from a rattlesnake, be afraid of a coyote or run with an antelope. I want them to be everything that makes a wild horse to be there for these broncos."

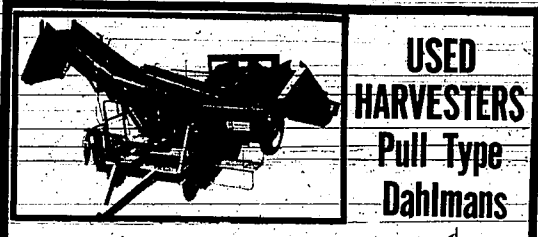

The problem is expense. The price of land keeps rising and the value of cattle is skyrocketing. Vold admits he wonders sometimes if his pasture land might not profit from the use of more cattle and less horses.

"But heck, we need more bucking horses," he said. "Oh, sure, all the rodeo companies seem to have enough horses, but anyone who is riding bucking horses will tell you there are a lot of horses that just shouldn't be out there."

Vold has the figures to back up his claims of success.

Usually only five per cent or so of the animals he buys turn out to be good rodeo stock. Under the breeding program nearly all of the 80 horses roaming his ranch near Fowler appears headed for a rich life on the circuit.

"As big as the rodeo business is, they are going to have to have good bucking horses or else they are in trouble," said Vold. "And I'll tell you there won't be any problem in getting more than five per cent of these animals to buck."

May farm prices drop in most Gem categories

BOISE (UPI) — Prices received by Idaho farmers for grains, cattle, and livestock products declined during the month ending May 15, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

They were below the previous month and the same date a year ago for beef cattle, calves, hogs, eggs and wool. Wheat, oats, barley, mixed grain, milk and milk cows declined from the previous month but were above a year ago.

Potato prices continued upward to a record level, the reporting service said.

Other prices increased from the previous month were noted for dry beans and lambs.

Prices paid by Idaho farmers for bran, middlings and 14 per cent protein dairy feed hit record highs. They also were up for laying feed and chick starter.

But mid-May price declines were recorded for soybean meal and 16 per cent protein dairy feed. Commercial red meat production in Idaho during April was down two per cent from March at 27.6 million pounds but up sharply from the same month a year ago, the reporting service said.

Cattle slaughter during April totaled 41,500 head compared with 30,000 a year earlier. Hog slaughter at 9,800 head was up 24 per cent.

Milk production in Idaho during April totaled 131 million pounds or six per cent less than a year ago. Output of American cheese, at 1,822,000 pounds, was up 24 per cent from April of 1973.

Creamery butter production, at 1,047,000 pounds, was off sharply from the 1,940,000 pounds produced a year ago. Ice cream production at 284,000 gallons was down eight per cent from the 300,000 produced in April of 1973.

Farm Cotton supplies for US tighten

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's textile mills will find supplies of the types of cotton they normally use "extremely tight" for the rest of the period, this fall, Agriculture Department specialists warn.

For the marketing year which opens on Aug. 1, experts say in a recently published analysis that supplies will be up from the relatively low level in the 1973-74 season which ends July 31.

"Overall stocks in the 1974-75 season will be certainly adequate" to cover the predicted domestic and foreign demand for about 13 million bales, experts added.

The pinch forecast in the analysis could develop about November, experts indicated. At that point, specialists said, domestic and foreign buyers will probably have used up the comparatively small "old" million-bale supply of "old" cotton carried over from the 1973 crop, while less than half

Peach crop prices rise

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Inflation has caught up with peach lovers.

Consumers will pay higher prices this year for canned peaches from California.

Canners and peach growers agreed Thursday on a price of $132.50 per ton for this year's crop, $35.50 more than last year.

This will represent only part of a yet unannounced increase for canned peaches, according to the California Peach Canning Association. The association said increased costs to canners will also help raise the price to consumers.

Ed Wingfield checks mill

Windmill work no easy living

HAMILTON, Ill. (UPI) — Edwin Wingfield may be the best-known windmill repairman in the nation. He says he knows of no others in his line.

"It's not an easy way to make a living," he said in an interview.

From his Hamilton home — across the Mississippi River from the Iowa-Missouri border — he travels hundreds of miles to jobs. Sometimes he just cruises rural roads looking for a windmill that needs fixing. "I can size up a windmill in two minutes. I can tell you how old it is, what repairs have been made, and what's wrong with it," he said.

When he spots an ailing windmill from the road, he pulls up to the farm house, introduces himself as "the windmill man," and offers his services. Often the people have been trying for years to find someone who could repair their windmill.

Wingfield said he "never had any trouble" with the door to door approach. "Everyone likes to talk windmills, but some don't want to have them fixed," he said.

Wingfield is a self-taught repairman — he was in construction until a day 23 years ago when a friend asked him to help repair a windmill. "I have sort of a categorical mind when it comes to windmills," he said. "I remember them like I remember faces."

HAYLAGE DAY - JUNE 12, 1974 1 P.M. to 5 P.M.

Relieves labor pains.

A big pain most farm feeders feel comes when the hay bales help us source and use the haying system. There's another sharp stabbing pain when the bills come in.

Harvestor owners are different. They cut the hay when its ready. Chop and fill a day or two later. No crew. And no bales to swing around. Labor pains are gone.

No more hay bales. Because you cut your hay crop as haying, you eliminate bale bucking. And you're out of the field faster.

Little Current runs to easy Belmont triumph

NEW YORK (UPI) — Little Current exploded in the stretch at Belmont Park Saturday, just as he did two weeks ago in the Preakness, and pulled away from eight rivals to easily win the 16th running of the Belmont Stakes.

Little Current's victory gave Joe W. Galbreath's Darby-Dun Farm its second Belmont Stakes victory. Galbreath won the Belmont with Chateaugay in 1963 but it was the first victory for the owner and trainer Ron Rondinella.

The victory was worth $101,970 and it raised Little Current's lifetime earnings to $395,164. "It was the fourth stakes victory for this stretch running col who earlier in the year won the Everglades Stakes at Hialeah Park and finished fifth in the Kentucky Derby.

Rivera, who drove Little Current through a hole along the rail to win the Preakness, used the rail again to gain contention. But when the first turn came, he swung the col to the outside and in a twinkling went past Cannonade, Jolly John and Rube the Great, who still were in the straightaway.

Jolly John outpaced Cannonade for second place in a photo finish. Rube the Great finished fourth, followed by Kin Tūn, Shady Character, Hudson County, Sea Songster and Bold Falcon.

El Espanolito was declared out of the Belmont Stakes Friday night to run in an earlier race on Saturday.

Shady Character and Jolly John battled for the early lead with Cannonade behind. Little Current meanwhile was a dozen lengths behind them in eighth position with only Kin Tūn trailing him.

After a mile, Cannonade and Jolly John had headed and struggled for the lead and continued that struggle as they circled the final bend but by then Rivera had Little Current in high gear. In a twinkling, he was fourth and in another flash, he was in front and steadily increasing his victory margin.

"I kept him back easy. He was in front and in the first turn and into the backstretch, Rivera said. "I was in no hurry. I stayed close enough and at about the 3/8ths mile I had him in the lead. At about the quarter pole, he was really going. He was ready and he took the lead with about 3-16ths of a mile" he got, after that it was his race."

After running far back in the early stages of the mile and a half race as is his usual custom, Little Current started his move toward victory on the final turn.

In an amazing display of speed, the son of Sea Bird sprinted inside several horses and then swung out to take command shortly after engaging the stretch.

Once the gallant little colt was straightened out at the start of the home stretch, the $169,950 race was all over. Little Current, with jockey Miguel Rivera, steadily increased his margin and he scampared over the finish line seven lengths in front of the Preakness.

Jolly John finished second, only a nose in front of Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner.

Little Current, who never galloped in the Kentucky Derby when he was almost knocked down in the field of 23, was timed in 2:29.1-5 over the testing distance. He was the favorite of the crowd at $2.90 and he paid $3.00, $4.40 and $3.40 across the board. Jolly John paid $15.40 and $7.60 while Cannonade paid $3.80.

Easy win for Rivera
LITTLE CURRENT with Miguel Rivera in the saddle finishes the 16th Belmont Stakes seven lengths ahead of Jolly John and the field. (UPI-Telephoto).

Haynes resigns as T.F. coach

Don Haynes, who capped a brief three-year basketball coaching career at Twin Falls by leading the Braves to their first-ever state championship this spring has resigned to accept the head job at Lewis and Clark high school in Spokane.

"Everyone says when they leave somewhere that it was a difficult decision for them," said the famed "Bald Eagle." But no one in Twin Falls will understand just how hard it was for my wife and I to make this decision. Everyone has been so wonderful to us here that we had decided that we would spend the rest of our lives here."

But in the end there were two things. The first is my parents live in Spokane and I would like to be closer to them now that they are growing older. The second is the money. We just couldn't turn down a $6,000 a year increase," he said.

Haynes turned down the job when first contacted shortly after the season's completion. But last Saturday, the district contacted him again. "I told them no on the first call, but they said just wait for the others. For the next four or five hours I got five calls from them, and then I made six myself. I know a lot of people in here. Actually, I was looking for reasons to say no, but I couldn't really find them."

Haynes said Lewis and Clark is the smallest of the seven Spokane schools but "everyone I talk to feels you will have the best material up there over the next two or three years. Then they definitely are going to recruit and our school will be about as large as the rest."

Coch Haynes added another plus for this job will be "watching Eric (Hovey) progress as a player." Hovey started two years and played varsity all three years under Haynes before signing a basketball scholarship with Gonzaga University in Spokane. Hovey already is a member of the team.

The Haynes family will move to Spokane as soon as previous commitments have been fulfilled. He is to meet at a couple of basketball camps in the intermountain area this summer and also is slated as a coaches clinic speaker in Denver and Kansas City.

Japanese player is expected to break Aaron's home run record

TOKYO (UPI) — Many Japanese believe Sadaharu Oh, the Yomiuri Giants' first baseman, will break whatever career home run record Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves may establish before his retirement.

Oh, who recently hit his 600th homer in his 16th season, is nearly seven years younger than Aaron. Further, Japanese ball parks are smaller than those in the U.S. major leagues where Aaron has surpassed Babe Ruth's mark of 714 and is still going.

"Oh is 34 whereas Aaron is 40," said Japanese baseball commissioner Nobuoto Ohama, "and I think Oh has an excellent chance to set an all-time home run record."

Oh turned 29 last year in the closest rival in "home run hitting" in Japan, is Katsuya Nomura, 39, manager and catcher of the Nankai Hawks of the Pacific League, with 585 career homers.

Like Babe Ruth, Oh was a pitcher in his early baseball days. He was the star pitcher of a Japanese high school team in Tokyo and for that he was given a rich contract of $250 by the Yomiuri Giants. But before long he was made a first baseman to play regularly because of his good hitting.

Oh was warm in his praise of Aaron's achievement in breaking Ruth's record.

"At his present pace, Aaron should be able to hit quite a number of home runs this season," he said. "I don't see any prospect of retirement at the end of this season. I should like to see him continue to be in uniform and challenge the 800th homer mark."

Oh, a citizen of Nationalist China on Taiwan but born and educated in Japan, has been the "home run king" of the Central League since his best year was in 1964 when he belted 55 homers.

It must be said, however, that Japanese ball stadiums are smaller than those in the U.S. major leagues and some of the home runs Oh has had would have been caught in the major leagues.

Thus, at Koshien stadium, Oh has a 10-foot lead over Babe Ruth, who hit right and center field. Other ball parks in Japan are generally smaller.

Oh is such a standout, however, that manager Tetsuharu Kawakami of the Giants believes Oh's equal as a home run hitter will never be seen in Japan.

"Oh has an unorthodox batting style, something like the late Mel Ott of the old New York Giants. A left-handed batter, he raises his right foot at the pitcher's delivery and steps in with a powerful swing. As the most feared batter in organized Japanese baseball, pitchers opposing him have been told by their managers to walk him if he came to bat with men on base.

He has a total of 1,671 bases on balls in his 15-year career as of 1973. This season in his first 41 games this season, he had 57 walks.

Even before Oh became a star, Frank "Lefty" O'Doul, the 1920 and 1922 National League batting champion in the U.S., predicted Oh would become a great hitter.

One of his frequent trips to Japan, O'Doul went out to see the Giants' work out at the Yamagata grounds in the Tokyo suburbs, and said, "There is a young fellow by the name of Oh, a pitcher on the Giants team. He has a perfect batting swing and I want to predict right now that he will be one of Japan's greatest hitters."

Tennis matches attract top pros

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (UPI) — Sun Valley's world class exhibition tennis matches July 4-6 will attract top ranking professionals Yia Siskaris, Alex Olmedo, Steve Davidson and Mike Franks, Sun Valley tennis pro Paul Wilkins said today.

Wilkins said that breaking up the professional competition will be pro-am round-robin doubles match play by nine amateurs and nine professionals on the second day of the match.

A former Wimbledon and U.S. Open Singles champion, Seixas was rated first in the United States three times and has been ranked as one of the top 10 players on 13 different occasions. He was a member of the U.S. Davis Cup team for seven consecutive years and has served as both playing and non-playing captain of the team.

Olmedo was ranked second in the United States in 1958 and was number one in the United States in 1959. He won the 1959 Wimbledon championships and the national intercollegiate singles championships in 1956.

He was a member of the U.S. Davis Cup team in 1956.

Davidson is a Swedish Davis Cupper and former top ranked player in Europe. He also was a former French champion and Wimbledon doubles champion.

Franks was the number one player at UCLA, a two-time All-American player, Davis Cup team member and formerly ranked as one of the top 10 players in the United States.

British golfer tops Gabrielsen for win

GULLANE, Scotland (UPI) — Jim Gabrielsen, the 32-year-old American Walker Cup champion from Atlanta, will never forget Muirfield's 447 yards 18th hole.

The historic Scottish links could never have witnessed such a traumatic ending to a major championship as the drama that unfolded today when the American insurance broker lost the British Amateur golf title to Britain's Trevor Homer by two holes.

Gabrielsen, on his own with one to play in the 36 holes final, triple bogged the last and a series of errors that a golf triathlete would have blushed to admit.

"I am so bitterly disappointed," Gabrielsen said, "that I will square with three holes to play." It was the shattered Gabrielsen's first reaction.

The tragic ending to the American's title hopes, with 13 games played by the pair on the final green, marred a brilliant recovery by Gabrielsen, who had been outplayed over the first 27 holes.

"The way he played today at that point, admitting, 'I was playing too cautiously and it was a tribute to Trevor's golf that he was that far ahead. But when I got down from 30 feet to birdie the 29th, I knew I still had a chance."

Gabrielsen crashed a 300 yard drive down the next fairway, wedged to a yard for another birdie and then was square at the 33rd hole. Homer went through the green into a bunker. But then Gabrielsen made what he later considered his vital error.

"I wanted to win but I had a four instead of a five in and put it through the green into bad rough. It was a bogey for me and Trevor was in front again," he said.

"I wanted to win to have a good chance of getting back my Walker Cup place, now I'll just have to make a big effort in the U.S. Amateur. But never mind. I will be back in Britain. I don't know when but I love playing golf here."

"Muirfield is the most magnificent course I've played in Britain," Gabrielsen said.

Homer, after receiving the trophy, said, "Jim is a tremendous competitor. How tragic that he should go down in history as the man who lost the amateur title by taking seven at the last hole when I've would have been much better for him if I had held my birdie putt on the 17th by two-and-one. He didn't deserve that ending."

Sandra Palmer leader in Las Vegas tourney

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Sandra Palmer shot her second consecutive round without a bogey Saturday, a two-under-par 71, to gain a three-stroke lead after three days of the $100,000 Desert Inn-LPGA Golf Classic.

Even with the perfect conditions, the best score of the third round was only a 70, turned in by Jane Blalock, who is six strokes off the pace at two-under-par 217.

She could never remember. But even without a bogey Saturday, her third round was much tougher.

Three strokes behind in second place was Joanne Carner, Palm Beach Fla., who had to sink a 30-foot eagle putt on the 18th green to get under-par with a 72.

Now it's Player's turn for try at grand slam

By JOHN S. RADOSTA (C) New York Times Service This year it's Gary Player's turn.

Whoever a strong golfer like Ben Hogan, Sam Snead, Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus or Player wins the masters in April, the speculation immediately swings to his chances of winning the next three elements of the grand slam of professional golf, the holy grail that no man has yet found.

Having won this year's masters with a handsome 10-under-par 278, player is now set for the second stage of the slam.

Player is quite confident. "I'm really enthusiastic about my chances," he said the other day. "I am playing as well, if not better, than at any time in my life, and I have never been more prepared mentally."

And Player has a goal. If he can win this open he will curtail his globe-trotting schedule so that he can spend more time with his family on his ranch near Johannesburg.

The sequence of the grand slam is the masters, the United States Open, the British Open in July and the Professional Golfers Association Championship in August.

New York slips by Astros 6-5

HOUSTON (UPI) — Wayne Garrett's ground ball to shortstop scored John Milner from third base with the winning run in the 14th inning Saturday night and carried the New York Mets to a 6-5 win over the Houston Astros.

With one out in the top of the 14th, Milner doubled and Don Hahn was walked intentionally. Relief pitcher Ray Sadecki singled to lead the bases and Garrett then hit a sharp grounder to shortstop Roger Metzger who chose to go for the double play.

Player's incentive. If I win here I will have won four major championships twice around, and I will have two legs up on the one-year grand slam.

Meet marks broken at Portland

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Seven meet records fell Saturday at the second annual Rose Festival Northwest Prep Invitational Track and Field Meet at Mt. Hood Community College.

Keith Tinner of Tacoma, Wash., and Miller Carls of Medford, Ore., repeated as two-event winners. Tinner captured the 220 and 440, the latter in a meet record time of 48.1, while Carls took the 100- and 330-yard hurdles in times of 14.2 and 37.7.

Also surpassing the state standards in the 800 was Frank Widy of Boise, Idaho, with a time of 1:53.8. Other meet records were set by Tim Foy of Bend in the discus with a throw of 185-7/8, Scott Fisher of Medford, 19-9 in the pole vault; Tom Grif, Victoria, B.C., 4:11.2 in the mile run and Ed Mann of Spokane, 6:49 in the high jump.

Kaline, Horton lead Tigers past Angels

DETROIT (UPI) — California pitcher Frank Tanana was done in Saturday by his former Detroit Tigers idol Al Kaline and Willie Horton.

"The thought that I was pitching against guys I'd been rooting for," he said Saturday.

"Al Kaline of course, you know," Tanana said. "But it's show good a hitter he is, that's how you think of him. You intend to put them all in categories."

"When a Horton comes up, you think 'power, down, away.' What did Frank do? He got it up, up, and up."

"I've seen Willie since I was a kid, in Tanana said. "I gave him a high heater and 'yacca.'"

Jerry Moses also reached Tanana for a home run, a two-run shot with one out in the seventh and Ed Brinkman broke a 0-28 slump when he drove Tanana out of the game one out later by hitting his fourth home run of the season.

The three home runs came: the 13th, 14th, and 15th home runs Tanana has given up 106 2-3 innings.

Tennessee ends UCLA reign in track championship

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The University of Tennessee, with an awesome display of running prowess led by sleepchaser Doug Brown and half miler Tom Thomas, captured its first NCAA Track and Field Championship in history Saturday and ended UCLA's three-year reign as titleholder. The Volunteers came in with first places from Brown and Thomas and produced four seconds, but still had to sweat out the final event — the triple jump in which UCLA had one last chance to win its fourth consecutive crown.

Tennessee finished with 60 points and UCLA 56. The final day of the meet was paced by two others and had to take five places. Brigham Young finished third with 41 points while North Carolina Central wound up in fourth with 35. In quick succession after the crowd steeplechase finish by Brown and Addison, the Volunteers captured — third place in the 440-yard relay, came up with a second place in the 220-yard dash from Reggie Jones, had a second place effort from Darwin Bond in the quarter mile and then won what turned out to be one last chance to win its fourth consecutive crown.

Brown and teammate Ron Addison ran one-two in the 3,000-meter steeplechase to start the afternoon and put Tennessee in front for good. The Volunteers kept piling on points until it appeared they would win the team title easily. But UCLA's Rory Kooling, long jumper, had the edge in the high jump, to finish third and the Bruins' mile relay team pulled an upset victory in the mile thanks to an anchoring leg of 45.2 by Maxie Parks. That left it up to Clarence Taylor, who had to finish third with Tom Thomas, who had Bruins 50 tie Tennessee and second for them to win. Taylor was in third place with two jumps left, but he was passed by two others and had to take five places. Brigham Young finished third with 41 points while North Carolina Central wound up in fourth with 35. In quick succession after the crowd steeplechase finish by Brown and Addison, the Volunteers captured — third place in the 440-yard relay, came up with a second place in the 220-yard dash from Reggie Jones, had a second place effort from Darwin Bond in the quarter mile and then won what turned out to be one last chance to win its fourth consecutive crown.

by a foot injury and had dropped out of the six mile run Friday night. "I knew I would win it, though," Brown said. "With three laps to go I looked back and saw that Addison and I had 25 yards on the field. I told Ron then that 'we got to go' to get one-two. Ron said, 'I know you're going to win it.'"

UCLA placed Francois Toussaint third and Tom Moore fourth in the pole vault, an event won by Ed Lipscomb of Oregon State with a vault of 17.3, a height also cleared by Jeff Taylor of Washington-Lipscomb won by virtue of fewer misses.

Winning shot JESSE STUART of Western Kentucky jumped the 560 Saturday in the 53rd NCAA track and field championships in Austin, Texas. Stuart's put of 68'3" was enough to take the win. (UPI Telephone)

White Sox president praises fans action

CHICAGO (UPI) — John W. Allyn, president of the Chicago White Sox, Saturday praised the actions of fans, police and firemen and particularly fans who a smoky fire disrupted Friday's night's baseball game against the Boston Red Sox.

Allyn said he was "impressed" by the firemen and police who kept the game going in a mannerly fashion, without shoving or otherwise displaying any signs of panic. Allyn said in a statement, "On the field the fans responded to all public address announcements and all requests of the ushers, and remained in a jovial mood."

Ducks are noted for wanderings

Small ducks are noted for their wanderings far from their native flyways. A recent example is revealed by the return of a leg band from Moscow, U.S.S.R., a half a world away from Market Lake, Idaho.

The band was recovered recently at Anadyr, Russia, and dispatched to Ringing Centre near Moscow, then to the U.S. Bird Band Laboratory at Laurel, Maryland, and finally relayed to the Idaho Fish and Game Department in Boise. The plates are labeled by "Mr. Bird Banders" himself, Ken Mackenzie, Roberts, a district manager for the Fish and Game Department, March 1965. One-of-a-kind—active air-borne banders in the country, Mackenzie will be participating in "a" two-week cooperative State-Provincial waterfowl program in Alberta, during late June and early July.

According to Dick Norstrom, state bird supervisor, Idaho Fish and Game Department, the goal is to gather more information on Alberta geese flocks, which play an important part in the geese population in Idaho during late fall and winter.

Chicago puts Sox out of league lead

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox exploded for 13 runs and 18 hits—three homers—on Saturday night to knock the Boston Red Sox out of the American League's Eastern Division with a lopsided 13-6 triumph.

Cubs beat Dodgers in 11th

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Billy Williams, who entered the game as a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning, doubled home pinch-runner Ken Frailing from second base with one out in the 11th inning Saturday night to give the Chicago Cubs a 5-5 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Chicago's George Mitterwald opened the Chicago 11th by drawing a walk off reliever Jim Brewer, now 43, and Frailing was sent in to run that. Mitterwald sacrificed. Frailing to second and Williams, who had a pinch-single in the ninth when the Cubs scored a run to tie the game, then delivered his double to left field to score Frailing.

Horacio Pina allowed the Dodgers only one hit in three innings of relief to pick up his third win in five decisions. The Cubs led the score in the top of the ninth inning with a run off ace Dodger reliever Mike Marshall. Bill Madlock and Williams opened the inning with pinch-hitting to score runners on the corner and Don Kessinger followed with a sacrifice fly to left to score pinch-runner Matt Alexander to make the score 5-5.

Seales is winner in second

LACEY, Wash. (UPI) — Former Olympic star Sugar Ray Seales knocked out John L. Sullivan with a barrage of punches in the second round Saturday night to win the Pacific Northwest middleweight championship. Sullivan, at 154 pounds, of Olympia, was never in it. He appeared tense in the opening round and was "letting" three times in the second round before the bout ended at the 2:43 mark.

Trojans win in college series

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI) — Southern California's Trojans, who are shooting for their fifth straight College World Series title, pounded Texas with a 4-0 rout on Texas to a first round, 9-2 victory Saturday night. Heavy-rain showers at the conclusion of the game forced postponement until Sunday night of the contest between Selton Hall and Southern Illinois which would have wrapped up the first round of play. That will be the only game played in the series Sunday.

Miss-Casals continues win streak

DETROIT (UPI) — Rosie Casals continued her winning ways Saturday night as the Detroit Lions recorded a 28-25 victory over the Florida Elamings in World Team Tennis competition. The boys, winners of 10 out of 16 matches this season, had led Florida 18-13 before the Flamingoes went ahead 22-21 in the final set.

Minnesota's Rod Carew possesses style to emerge as .400 hitter in American league

By DAVE ANDERSON (c) New York Times Service NEW YORK — For more than three decades, the .400 hitter has been an extinct species in baseball. But suddenly, the Rod Carew of Minnesota twinking emerged as a miniature brontosaurus in the tiny type used for the top 10 batters. Rod Carew was hitting .402 before Friday's game with the Boston Yankees at Shea Stadium but his good start is not the reason he might hit .400 this season.

With a .318 lifetime average entering the season, high among active American league batters—Rod Carew—was developed a serene confidence. "I don't worry if I go for 4 in a game," he says. "The other team is paying that pitcher to get me out. There's always tomorrow. But at the plate, I don't think the pitcher out there can get me out. I don't study pitchers, except for their fast balls. I don't wait for that one pitch. And with two strikes on me, I can work a pitch. Some batters get two strikes and give up. Not me." "Born-and-raised in the Bronx, I learned to hit tennis balls and 'big wads of paper taped into a ball' but soon he was a little league player.

Wohlhuter breaks own track meet

EUGENE, Ore. (UPI) — Rick Wohlhuter of the Chicago Track Club broke his own world record in the 880-yard run Saturday night with a time of 1:44.1 at the Hayward Field Restoration Meet.

Wohlhuter breaks own track meet

Wohlhuter set the previous record last year at 1:44.6. Wohlhuter ran the first lap in 51 seconds flat and was paced by University of Oregon quarter-miler Dacre Bowen. But Bowen did not maintain the pace and dropped from the race just after the 40-yard mark. Five-American records fell at the meet on the Oregon campus. Steve Prefontaine sprinted past Frank Shorter to a 1:25.14 in the three-mile run. Prefontaine's time beat Jerry Langren's record of 1:23.03. Shorter also broke the record with a 1:25:20. Debbie Quarter of the Falcon Track club of Seattle broke the American record in the women's 5,000 meters with a 16:46.2 clocking. The old record was set by UCLA's Claire Schaefer, who ran at 17:32. High schooler John Hundley, of Sheridan, Ore., high jumped 6-9 3/4 to break the American women's record of 6-0 3/4, that she set earlier this year.

Hubert Green fires 66 for Philadelphia classic lead

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Hubert Green, eluding bogey trouble with a "little bit of luck" and a lot of skill, shot a smooth six-under-par 66 Saturday to take a two-stroke lead over the third round of the TVB Golf Classic.

Green's sub-par round featured six birdies and no bogeys for a 54-hole total of 209, 13 under par, and withstood a challenge by U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller.

Miller, who started the day at the Whitmarsh Valley Country Club two strokes back of second-round leader Green, also had a 66 with seven birdies but suffered a bogey on the par-three 12th.

One-stroke-back Miller at 206 was little-known pro Tom

Jenkins, a second year tour player who responded to the pressure by shooting a consistent four-under-par 68.

John Schtee, who started the day tied with Jenkins and one shot back of Green, shot a 69 for a 207, nine under par.

At 208 was Bob Wynn, while Mike Hill, Tom Kite and Hale Irwin had 54-hole totals of 209.

The three at 210 included defending champion Tom Weiskopf, Lee Elder and John Lister. Masters champion Gary Player was back at 214.

Green, who started the day also six-under-par, had birdies on the third and fifth holes and then saw potential trouble on the eighth hole turn to his advantage.

His drive on the par-four hole was heading for the left rough when it struck a spectator's umbrella and bounced back onto the fairway. Green was so delighted that after asking permission of his playing partners, Miller and Schtee, he exchanged balls and gave the original to the spectator, who told him the bounce was "an example of Green-power."

Miller, the tour's leading money-winner just ahead of Green, was hot on his playing partner's trail with four birdies on the front nine, but suffered a bogey on the par-three 12th when his three-iron tee shot missed the green and it took him three more to get down.

Green, meanwhile, birdied the same hole with a three-foot putt, got another birdie on the 13th by sinking a 12-footer and picked up another stroke on the par-five 17th when he was on two and two-putted from 35 feet away.

He again skirted trouble on the par-four 18th when his drive found a left fairway trap. But his seven iron out of the sand plunked onto the green 18 feet from the pin, from where he two-putted.

Green, who has two tournament victories so far this year and has won over $126,000, said if he doesn't break this tournament record of 14-under-par Sunday "I won't win."

Tony Conigliaro tries to forget baseball but bitterness remains

BOSTON (UPI) — Tony Conigliaro is trying to forget baseball but he'll never blot out the bitterness he feels toward the Boston Red Sox.

Conigliaro, 29, shot the California Angels and baseball in July 1971 after the vision in his left eye had deteriorated as a result of a beating four years earlier while with the Red Sox.

The former slugger right fielder has adjusted to life outside baseball but has never gotten over the manner in which the Red Sox traded him to California after the 1970 season.

"The Red Sox had always treated me well until the trade was made," said Conigliaro. "They never told me I was traded. I heard it from an airline stewardess while I was down in Connecticut."

"I felt after giving them eight years that I at least deserved the respect to be called into the front office and told I was traded and that the Sox figured the trade would be good for both teams. I would have said, 'Fine.'"

"Then after the trade we had harsh words. They said they never knew anything about my eye being bad—and they did. They had to know."

"It's funny. When it comes to trading time they treat you like they own you, which they do, but... anyhow, that's when I lost respect for the Red Sox."

Conigliaro is an owner now, himself. He and his brother Billy, a Red Sox castoff who was released this spring by the Oakland Athletics, operate a country club and lounge in Nahant on Boston's North Shore.

"Billy's disappointed about being let go because he thought he had a good spring," said Tony. But he keeps busy with the club, sailing and photography.

Tony's outside interests include chairmanship of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Blindness and a supporting role in the Ealing foundation, which researches certain eye disorders.

"These groups were great to me. Without them, I would have lost all the sight in my left eye. So I am glad to help them when I can."

One of Conigliaro's other hobbies is karate, which he attributes to keeping him in baseball for 2 1/2 seasons after Jack Hamilton of the California Angels caught him flush in the eye with a fastball the night of August 18, 1967.

"I've been studying karate five years and I'm a first degree brown belt now," he said. "In my comeback year (1969), my depth perception was zero in the left eye and the next year when I hit 36 homers and had 115 RBIs (both career highs), karate was the biggest reason I could play."

"Karate teaches you how to concentrate. So when I got up to bat, I just concentrated completely on the ball and forgot about my handicap."

But in the middle of the 1971 season with California, total concentration was no longer enough. "It got to a point where I not only had the eye injury, but I had a pinched nerve in my neck and a pulled muscle in my shoulder blade. I couldn't swing right."

The only time he's picked up a bat since then was last month when he was the guest of honor at a local Little League game. He threw out the first ball then got up to plate with one of the younger's bats. "I hit a home run over the short fence and broke the bat," he said. "And the poor kid was really upset. It was his favorite bat."

The next time he'll go to the plate will be late August in an old timers' game in Atlanta. "At 29, I'll be the youngest old timer there," he said.

Coach wants more black officials

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Coach Dave Bethany of Texas Southern, upset at what he considered to be inconsiderate officiating at the NCAA Track and Field Championship, said Saturday his school would become a leader in lobbying for more black officials for future NCAA meets.

Bethany, who said that he had received harassment calls from people who did not want him to participate in the NCAA championship, was particularly incensed at Texas Southern's mile relay team being disqualified during its semifinal heat Friday night.

"We were running right next to Seton Hall and the official said our man ran all the way out of his lane for six steps, Bethany said.

"That means both runners were running in the same lane for about 40 feet. I would like to know how only one official saw that when something like that should have been visible to everyone."

Bethany said if it could be proven to him his team was at fault, he would graciously accept the decision.

"But look at North Carolina Central in their heat of the 400-yard relay," said Bethany. "Every one in the stands knew they passed out of their lane. But that wasn't called."

"All talk for inconsistency in judging," Bethany said calling attention to such incidents would "make officials tend to make sure they have made the right decisions before announcing them in the future."

Deadline nears for TN tourney

JACKPOT — Deadline for entering the Times-News Manly Valley women's golf tournament is June 15, reports Linda Yarrow, event chairman.

The chairman said the tournament would be run at the Westview Golf Club on June 21 and 22 with the luncheon and awards wrap-up slated for about 4 p.m. June 21 at Cactus Pete's Horseshoe Club.

Those entering should send a $30 fee plus an IGA handicap card, which will be limited to a maximum of 36. Entries should be mailed — to the host professional, George Guy, Box 17, in Jackpot.

Currently the format calls for a doughnuts and coffee each morning in the clubhouse from 8 to 9 a.m. with a shotgun start opening action both days.

Castelford fetes retiring teacher

CASTLEFORD — Irma Haley, who has taught English and home economics at Castelford High School the past 16 years, will retire officially June 30.

She was honored at a faculty banquet and presented a gold watch by school trustees and faculty. Members of the Castelford chapter of Future Homemakers of America presented her an engraved silver tray and floral arrangements.

The 1974 school annual was dedicated to her and Mrs. Haley was named the Outstanding FHA adviser in Idaho at the state FHA convention in Moscow this spring.

She received her BA degree from Moscow State Normal College in 1960 and her MS from the University of Idaho in 1968.

During her years of teaching here, the Castelford unit received the FHA adviser award five times; state scrapbook award three times and the district scrapbook five times. She also served as district FHA adviser five terms.

1974 MERCURY COMET SPORT COUPE

This is the tough little car that built a name for durability. Built of the same type, high quality steel as our biggest Mercury's. Big car ideas, big car stomps — but priced right and equipped to please. Over 100 new Comets in stock right now in a variety of beautiful colors.

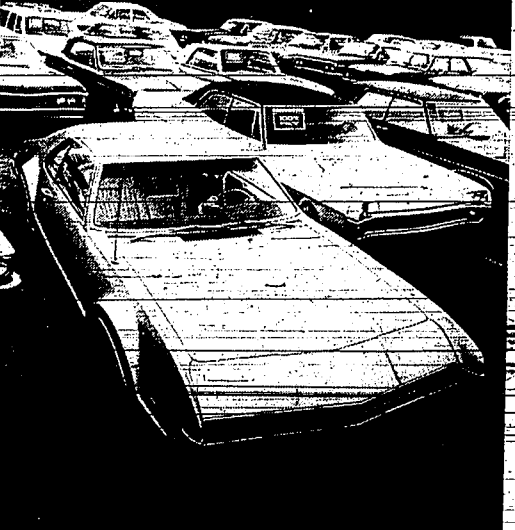

The Comet pictured above is equipped with a thrifty 6-cylinder engine, fully synchronized 3-speed manual transmission, dual racing mirrors, deluxe 2 spoke steering wheel, impact resistant bumpers, 100% nylon wall to wall carpeting, dual hydraulic brakes with warning light system, locking steering column and bland-air heater with 3 speed blower. This beauty turns on a dime and leaves nine comets shoving.

TWIN FALLS — "Mame," that favorite character of Broadway and motion pictures, will be doing her bit to help the Twin Falls Red Cross chapter on June 26.

A gala premiere showing of the film, "Mame," starring Lucille Ball, is scheduled at the Tri-Cinema Theater 1 for Magic Valley drama and music enthusiasts.

The Cinema 1 has made arrangements to donate all proceeds from the premiere to the Twin Falls Red Cross chapter which is trying to make up a $6,000 deficit in the 1974 budget resulting from the fund drive falling slightly short of the goal.

Hazel Wilder, public relations director for the chapter, said the Cinema 1 has gone all out to provide the Red Cross chapter with an outstanding product to offer movie goers.

There will be a "gold row" section in the theater for those wishing to make special donations for the evening's premiere event. Many other community residents will be forming theater parties with dinner prior to the showing and will attend in a group, Mrs. Wilder said.

Gov. Cecil Andrus has announced he will send a representative to the event for a brief comment during intermission. Mayor Winston Jones will also participate.

All residents of the area are invited to attend the special showing and at the same time help the Red Cross meet its budgetary needs for the year.

Connie Lee is chairman of the premiere arrangements with Ted Manker as co-chairman. Wayne Kullander, manager of the Cinema Theater, is assisting the Red Cross committee with the event.

Tickets may be purchased from the committee members from the Music Center in downtown Twin Falls, Penny-Wise Drug in Lynwood shopping center or the Red Cross Office. Mrs. Lee may be contacted at 734-5222.

Kullander said the showing of "Mame" will continue but there is only one premiere night and that will be the Red Cross event.

The theater will not only donate the night's proceeds but will furnish a staff, the theater facilities and equipment for the evening.

"Mame" is a long-time favorite of movie goers and musical comedy fans. It has enjoyed long Broadway runs as a theater production and many residents will remember "Auntie Mame" of some years back.

Lucille Ball was selected to play the role as the only member of the screen community who could fulfill the high-spirited and delightful portrayal of the title role.

Appearing with her will be Robert Preston, famous "Rustle Man" as Beauregard Burside and Beatrice Arthur in the role of Vera Charles, the whiskey-toned actress she played in the stage show, "Mame."

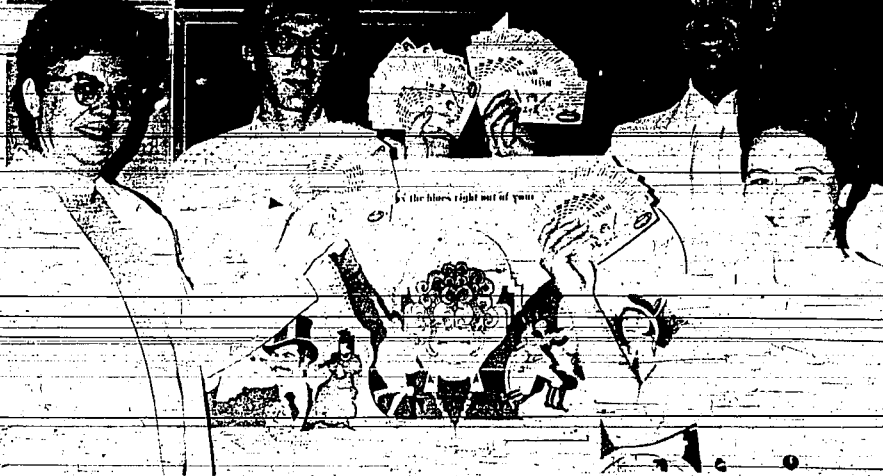

Many other talented performers have joined in bringing dance, song and comedy into the film version of the famed lady.

Premiere showing

LUCILLE Ball and Robert Preston, two long admired film, stage and TV performers, are united for the first time in "Mame," a musical based on the famous book and stage play. Magic Valley theater goers will have the opportunity to see the film during a gala premiere showing June 26 at Twin-Cinema Theater 1.

Women's baseball games draw large crowds

By MARILYN ELLIOTT

Times-News writer

TWIN-FALLS — Women's baseball is drawing crowds away from the men's competition at Harmon Park these warm summer evenings.

And the reason could vary well lie with the nature of the game — not just the nature of the players.

The tense excitement, the fierce competition and the occasional brilliant play — often considered the domain of male competition — are all there, especially in A league games.

The sport is drawing not only increasing numbers of spectators, but increasing numbers of players. When the slow-pitch method was adopted by the city recreation department about three years ago, the women's league had about eight teams.

The next year, the number increased to 14. This year there were 18 teams and several more had to be turned down for lack of facilities, according to women's league director Julie Astorquia.

Part of the reason for the increased interest is the switch to slow pitch, according to Miss Astorquia. A team with a good pitcher is almost guaranteed the game in fast pitch, she said, while slow pitch is "a hitter's game. Everyone can hit. You need a good outfield."

With two leagues, women's baseball manages to hit a wide segment of the community. The A league caters mainly to younger, more competitive women, while the B league attracts numbers of women just playing for fun, she said.

The difference is often evident in the games. Wednesday night six A league teams played at South Park. During the course of one game, a girl was carried injured from the field, at least one home run was hit, two coaches neared apoplexy, umpires were subjected to harsh expletives and fans were brought to their feet several times.

The score ended 14-13. The atmosphere is a little different at B league games. While many members of A league teams are seasoned players, most of the B team members are "occasional" athletes who join teams for exercise and diversion, though they take each game no less seriously.

and the game less tense, though no less fun, for B league members. Scores are often lopsided. Each run is greeted by cheers from the stands and fellow team members, alleviating some of the pain from aching muscles when the game is over.

Players are single or married, fit or out-of-shape, and range in age from high school sophomores to 45-year-old women, all are having fun. Two more diamonds will be added to Frontier Field next year, Miss Astorquia said, and with the increase in facilities she expects an increase in the number of teams.

Salmon socialites hold meet

SALMON — The Salmon Social Club held its monthly meeting Thursday at the W. T. Williams home.

Mrs. Williams served as hostess. She introduced two guests, Susann Barth and Mrs. Rose Maxam. Phoenix, Ariz., who was the founder of the club and the last living charter member.

Mrs. E. E. Taylor presented the program, "a game some people play," to the 12 members — Mrs. Maxam, Mrs. Charles Odell, Mrs. Rodney Davis and Mrs. Margaret Stewart won prizes. Mrs. Taylor presented the roll call.

The hostess prize was received by Mrs. B. R. Courtney. Edgite was given to Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Courtney and Mrs. Odell. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Williams.

The next meeting is scheduled for July 11 at the Roy E. Smith residence with Mrs. Courtney as hostess. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Stewart will be co-hostesses. The roll call will be favorite picnic food. Maxine Nelson will be the program chairman.

Pioneer daughters elect aides

TWIN FALLS — The Twin County Company of the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers elected officers for the next two years at the annual Brigham Young dinner Thursday.

Members unanimously elected Emma S. Luke president, Elva Hibbard first vice president; Blanche Inman second vice president; Goldie Tolman secretary-treasurer; Sylvia Williams registrar; Elsie Hammond historian and Lydia Ward LDS chapel by president Kate B. Carter of the Central Company of the DUP in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Emma Luke was elected as the first president of the local chapter on April 25, 1938. Mrs. Luke read the original minutes of that first meeting, and led the group singing the theme song accompanied by Nagasa Luke, Shogaku Maeda, Emagaki, Japan, and Shimbou Kaniko, Susbo, Japan, sang two LDS hymns in Japanese accompanied by Bonnie Lamborn.

Mrs. Goldie Tolman presented the Invocation. President Luke responded by reminiscing that the DUP was organized 36 years ago in the First Ward LDS Chapel by president Kate B. Carter of the Central Company of the DUP in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Musical play set

Club sponsors musical play

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Music Club is sponsoring a one-act musical play entitled

"Slow Dusk." The play will be presented June 26 at 8:15 at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Center Auditorium. It will be followed by a champagne buffet at the Blue Lakes Inn. Tickets for the play or play and buffet are available at Twin Falls music stores. Starring in the musical are Mrs. David Mead, Mrs. Lloyd Walker, Roger Vincent and Jay Fowles. Paul Kils is directing and Lawrence Curtis will be conducting the orchestra.

The play is sponsored by the Idaho State Commission on Arts and Humanities. The Twin Falls Music Club is affiliated with the National Federation of Music Clubs.

Class planned at YMCA

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley YMCA will hold a class on the Artex painting method. According to Chuck Upton, YMCA director, the session will be for adults and teenagers at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Y.

Miss Twin Falls prepares for pageant

TWIN FALLS — Janice Cook, Miss Twin Falls for 1974, will go on her way to Boise Tuesday to compete in the Miss Idaho Pageant June 11-15. Janice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey M. Cook, was crowned Miss Twin Falls in July, 1973, in the local contest sponsored by the Twin Falls Lions Club. —Thurston, local parent, chairman, has coordinated all of Jan's activities as Miss Twin Falls. A senior at Utah State University, Janice is majoring in home economics. She has been an honor student throughout her schooling and is a member of Alpha Lambda Delta scholastic honorary.

While at Utah State, Janice has reigned as homecoming royalty and is currently the intercollegiate Knight royal queen for the national organization. She is a Xi Omega and also a member of the USU intercollegiate girls' golf team.

Sixteen young women will be vying for the Miss Idaho title and the opportunity to compete in the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City later this year. Preliminary competition in bathing suits and evening gowns plus talent presentation will be held Thursday and Friday evening with final competition and the crowning of Miss Idaho Saturday evening. All competition will be conducted at the Capital High School Auditorium in Boise.

Janice's talent is unique in that she will make an original fashion — and — modeling presentation — wearing five complete outfits in three minutes.

Other Sky High Flyers attending the congress are Alan Howard, Nick Nash and Martin Noonan.

The Damascene Gallery of AMERICAN WILDLIFE

Damascene silver was inspired by an ancient craft that flourished in Damascus a long long time ago. It is a deeply beautiful technique. And it is much, much more. It is the exciting interplay of precious metal tones achieved by layer after layer of silver, bronze, and copper. These are art mediums, done mostly by hand, ages ago, but new dimensions to the collector's world. And only the craftsmen at Reed & Barton could have created this distinguished new series of limited edition metal sculptures on American wildlife. Two of these are original works from the renowned Damascene author and artist, Robert Milton Johnson. The third and fourth in this series are classic reproductions from Currier & Ives historic American Field Sports group. Each of the so unique new Damascene metal sculptures has been mounted on rich, warm finished wood, are 12" x 12" x 1 1/2" hanging, and produced in an edition limit of 1 to 3500 pieces, thus assuring the collector of continued high value. Moreover, the two metal pieces in this series by Robert Milton Johnson have a huge signed on the back by the artist himself. Limited metal sculpture editions $12,500. — 12750" each.

AMONG THOSE celebrating the 60th anniversary of the Morningside Club are from left: Pearl Fedacia, the longest club member — 50 years; Vera Holland, the oldest member of 91 years; Rhoda Hall, club president, and Isa Phipps, the club's newest member with six months participation. All are Twin Falls residents.

Jerome couple plan open house June 16

JEROME — Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Russell, Jerome, will celebrate their 50th Wedding Anniversary June 16, at a reception in the Jerome United Methodist Church.

The reception, sponsored by the couple's children and grandchildren, will be held from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. A short ceremony will "institute" in the sanctuary will precede the reception in the church parlor. Family and friends are invited to give more time to city affairs.

A former Jerome mayor, Mr. Russell for twenty years was employed by Speth Chevrolet Co. before buying the Jerome Farmers Insurance agency in 1946. He sold the insurance agency in 1967 and retired.

Mr. Russell was elected mayor of Jerome in 1970 and served one term. Prior to being elected mayor, he assumed as chairman of the Jerome County Republican Central Committee, a post he resigned to give more time to city affairs.

In addition to serving as mayor, Mr. Russell is a past district director of the Jerome Lions Club and a charter member of the Jerome Elks Lodge. He is a member of the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission, a member of the housing commission of the College of Southern Idaho, a board member of Live, Inc., and also serves on the board of the Jerome Methodist Church. His hobbies include fishing and gardening.

MR. AND MRS. J. A. RUSSELL

Mrs. Minnie Russell is a member of the women's society of the Jerome Methodist Church and the Milton Church. She sang with the church choir for about 30 years and also served as a church board member and a Sunday school teacher.

Mrs. Russell is a member of the Jerome Art Guild and a past president of the St. Benedict's Hospital Guild. She is also a past president of the Jerome Business and Professional Women's Club. She was noted "Woman of Achievement for 1965."

The Russells have one son, who lives in Seattle with his family, and a daughter, who lives in Riverside, Calif. The couple also has seven grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

The couple has requested that no gifts be brought to the anniversary reception.

TF women's club observes 60th year

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Morningside Club, a long-time Twin Falls institution, Wednesday celebrated the group's 60th anniversary.

More than 30 members and guests attended the club's birthday party at the home of Mrs. Bess Davis.

The club sets its birth on March 27, 1914, when 13 women from Elizabeth Boulevard and the surrounding neighborhood met at the home of Mrs. Avis Schneider to organize a club.

Now, 60 year later, the club has about 15 members and a long history of service activities.

The name of the club, which has not changed over these 60 years, was chosen because the women lived on the east, or "morning" side of town, and because some of the original members had moved to Idaho from Morningside, Iowa.

The club's name was given later to the street where several members lived and eventually to Morningside School, located on that street.

First president was Mrs. Schneider, secretary was Dorothea Putzier and treasurer, Alice Thompson. Mrs. Ida Scribner, one of the 13 charter members, still lives in Boise. Mrs. Scribner was not able to attend the anniversary celebration.

The members of the Morningside Club long have sought to combine social and service activities.

For more than 20 years, the club was affiliated with the Rural Federation of Women's Clubs, and worked with the federation, supporting its many activities.

Club activities have been thought to the time.

During World War I, the members participated in Red Cross work, rolling bandages and making bed shirts, bathrobes, bed socks and washcloths.

War-time club members, despite their long skirts, decided to be ready to defend the country; they learned to shoot. During that time, the club members practiced shooting until each woman was able to demonstrate that she could "hit the Kaiser, either at long or short range," according to club history.

The advent of World War II brought club members back to Red Cross work. Almost every meeting during the war was spent on Red Cross sewing, the history repeats, and club members sometimes went en masse to Red Cross surgical rooms to roll bandages.

The birthday party was attended by many bright-eyed women, dressed in their best to enjoy the special program and plentiful refreshments.

Guests present included Martin Jensen, Roma Allen, Helen Epperson, Mildred Walker, Doris Garrett, Doris Wilks, Ruth Moore and Carolyn Holland.

Other guests were Helen Justman, Barbara Wolverton, Eva Olsen, Esther Noble, Bertha White, Ruth Burgardner and Norma Davis.

Miss Turley, Mattice exchange promises

TWIN FALLS — Pamela Turley and Rick Mattice, both Twin Falls, were united in marriage May 24 at the First Baptist Church.

Rev. Jim Hughes performed the ceremony in front of altar decorated with pink chrysanthemums and yellow and white daisies.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woody Turley, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin with an upper bodice and wrist-length sleeves of lace. A lace veil cascaded to her feet. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations, yellow and white daisies and tiny rosebuds.

Phyllis Stewart was maid of honor. Patricia Vinyard and Pam McMullin were bridesmaids.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mattice. His best man was Dennis Hyatt, and ushers were Mark Mattice, brother of the bridegroom, and Gene Turley, brother of the bride.

While Rick was escorted, accompanied by Dick Chilcote at the organ.

The reception was held in the recreation room of the church. The bride's table was covered with white lace over pink. The tiered wedding cake was surrounded by daisies and baby rosebuds.

Calvin Walker was in charge of the guest book. Jackie Mason, Boise, cut the cake, Lillian Welch, Buhl, served the cake and Flame Klundt served coffee and punch. Ida Hermon and Curtis Schrupp were at the gift table.

The new bride changed into an apricot knit dress with white accessories for her honeymoon. The bridegroom will leave for assignment with the Marine Corps in San Diego, Calif., this month.

Everyday is Father's Day with a gas grill

Gas vs. Charcoal The unfair comparison.

It's unfair to compare our new gas barbecue grill to the old-fashioned charcoal barbecue. A gas grill simply has too many advantages.

To cook with our new gas barbecue, all you need is a match and a 10-minute warmup.

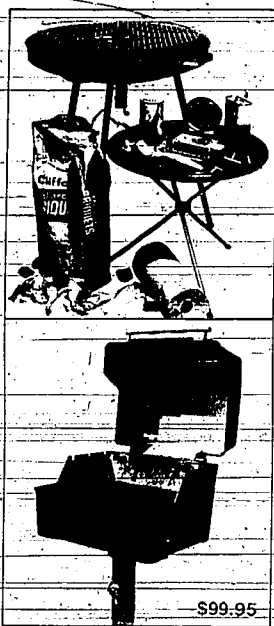

To cook with a charcoal barbecue, you need a barbecue grill and messy charcoal and lighter fluid and a lot of matches and a lot of time and cleanser.

You'll get the same charcoal flavor either way but gas is so much easier and cleaner. Be fair to dad: Take an unfair advantage and let him barbecue with clean natural gas.

Give dad a gas grill this Father's Day. We'll finance it. Make payments with your gas bill.

2 plan agencies to meet June 14

SHOSHONE—Magie Valley's two regional planning agencies will meet here June 14 to discuss possible administration of senior citizen funds for the area.

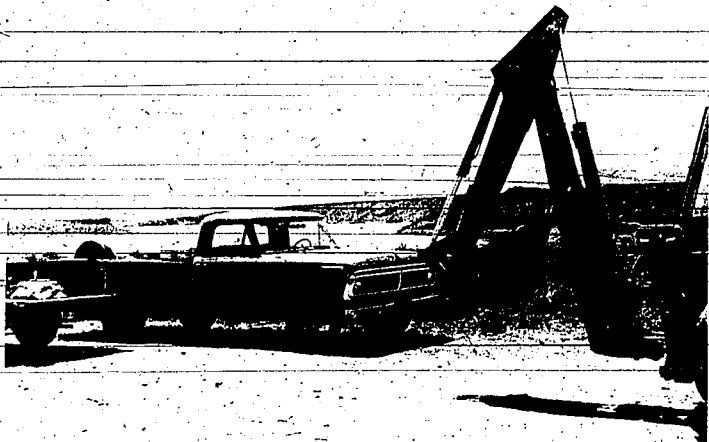

The South Idaho Resource Planning and Development Association (SIRPDA) and the Wood River Resource Area Council of Governments (WRRACOG) have applied for authority to handle the aging funds after they merge on July 1.

The two groups will join as the Magie Valley Association of Governments.

A task force of Magie Valley senior citizens recently voted to name the College of Southern Idaho (CSI) as its funding agent. But CSI has not applied for the job and the Idaho Office on Aging (IOOA) must make the final decision.

The South Central Community Action Agency, in addition to the planning group, has asked to be named the administrative agent.

A representative of the IOOA will address the joint SIRPDA-WRRACOG meeting, scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Lincoln County courthouse.

Facility under way

CONSTRUCTION of a $125,000 boating and camping facility on the east shore of Salmon Falls Reservoir immediately above the dam is underway. On Bureau of Land Management property, the project is being financed by the federal government in cooperation with the Twin Falls County Waterways Commission. Salmon Falls Canal Co. will help maintain the facility, which is owned by a partnership of Roger Rogerson. The dam was built in 1910.

Annual meet

TWIN FALLS — The Magie Valley Rehabilitation Service directors will hold their annual meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the First Baptist Church Fellowship Hall.

Nine directors will be elected, according to Jeff Grammie, executive director. Annual report on operation of the rehabilitation service will be given and awards will be given to present directors.

The facility includes evaluation, training and sheltered employment for the handicapped.

Wendell plans Gooding meet

WENDELL — Two delegates from the Wendell City Planning Commission will attend the next meeting of the Gooding County Planning Commission, it was decided at the Wendell group's meeting here Thursday night.

David Slusher, chairman, and Ben Morgan, vice chairman, will attend the county meeting June 27 at Gooding.

Area students earn degrees

LOGAN, Utah — Idaho students received degrees from Utah State University in commencement exercises Sunday.

Education degree candidates include Karen Jane Allen and La-Nae Kendall, both Burley; and Linda Renee Parker, Castleford; Mark E. Johnson and Kerry Vardon Otto, both Burley, received degrees in natural resources.

Rodney A. Endow, Declo, received a degree in agriculture; Flier resident Joann Vincent, a degree in humanities, arts and social sciences; Gooding's Dean Lloyd Brown, agriculture and Hazelton's Curtis Scott Beames business.

Degrees were awarded to Michael D. Dahmer, engineering; and Clarence Wesley Welch, natural resources, both Jerome; Brad Gregory Anderson, Ketchum; and Mary Louise Seymour, received degrees in education.

Sally Payton, Oakley, is a degree candidate in humanities, arts and social sciences.

Rupert graduates include Grover Robert Newman, business; Barbara Jean Bures, education; Martin Lee Nielson, natural resources; and Mary Jo Hansen and James Boatwright, humanities, arts and social sciences.

GOLDEN, Colo. — The Adolph Seors Co. has raised the price it pays for aluminum cans.

The firm's distributors have begun paying 15 cents per pound, up from the earlier 10-cent-per-pound rate.

The firm maintains more than 200 redemption centers in the 11 western states. On the average, there are about 24 aluminum cans per pound.

Land rented

BURLEY — According to officials of the Magie Valley Co-op, the land used for gardening by the group is rented, not owned as reported.

The error appeared in a story June 2 about a Co-op meeting to organize a gardening group. The Times-News regrets the error.

5,000-YEAR-OLD CHINESE HEALTH REMEDY FOUND

PEKING (Special) — Health researchers in China have uncovered an amazing rare old Chinese herb remedy that possesses spectacular healing qualities and reportedly has been used for 5,000 years to cure or give relief to a host of the most common illnesses suffered by mankind. Dramatic claims are being made that this "miracle herb" called ginseng may actually hold the key to a longer healthier life. Indeed, there is one historical case of a user living to be 256 years old.

Helps Many Illnesses

Like acupuncture, the remarkable healing properties of this remarkable herb were once considered "folklore and superstition" but modern researchers around the world are suggesting that it may actually regulate many of the body's processes to increase SEXUALITY, relieve HEART DISEASE, relieve ARTHRITIS, check gray hair, "loss of HAIR," improve DIGESTION, slow down ARTERIOSCLEROSIS, relieve ASTHMA, cure the FATIGUE, improve DIABETIC CONDITIONS, relieve inflammation of the URINARY TRACT, help chronic BRONCHITIS, relieve BACKACHES and PAINS, and generally improve your health by increasing your body's potential to heal itself.

Salve the Skin Effects

Ginseng is a drug, but an herb or vegetable that is extremely rich in vitamins and minerals. What's more, this amazing natural remedy is completely safe and non-toxic with no side effects. Unfortunately, high-grade ginseng is in short supply, and brokers and processors around the world are "draining themselves" for a "run" on the market as the herb's purpose — "near miraculous" healing properties become more and more known to the general public.

Now Available in U.S.

Now you can get a generous 30-day supply of this amazing natural remedy direct from a major supplier — sending only $10.00 check, cash or money order to Health Laboratory Dept. 1100, 2142 Palm Springs, Calif. 92262. This wonder herb is said to have helped millions of other people, and it may help your health problem too. Isn't it worth a try?

Former British seaman on 54-year voyage home

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — With a little help from his friends, including the future king of England's son-in-law, Prince Talbot, late of the Royal Navy, was headed home for England Friday, looking for a pint of real British beer and his old shipmate, Bill.

"It was a long voyage," Talbot beamed as he stepped from the Royal Navy. Now 73, with his record cleared, he took his spanking new honorable discharge and went off to see what more than a half century had done to his homeland.

He expected to be greeted at the airport by his sister, Melvina, 56, whom he has not seen since she was a year old.

"I want to see the house in Lowestoft where I was born," said Talbot. "I've been studying British history and looking for this chance to visit home — before it's too late for me — for the past 10 years."

Talbot jumped ship in Montreal on June 6, 1920, "because I faced another 11 years in the service," he said. "I wouldn't have done it in wartime."

He said his uniform, tied to New York and has lived ever since as an American under the name of Edward Clayton.

He served two hitch-hikes in the U.S. Navy, including service in World War II, getting honorable discharges. His first wife, whom he met in 1927, died in 1945 without ever learning his real identity.

He said he told his second wife during "a family spat" and "she thought I'd killed someone in England to make me desert."

In March, the HMS Jupiter, carrying Prince Charles as communications officer, docked in San Diego, Talbot, who said he had been thinking for years about clearing his record, astonished the deck crew one day.

He marched aboard, saluted the ensign in proper naval fashion, identified himself as a deserter and surrendered.

The ship's captain assured him the Royal Navy wasn't interested in carrying him home in irons, and told him to go back to his San Diego home and wait. There were reports the Prince helped speed up the paperwork that resulted in the British consulate in Los Angeles relaying to him an honorable discharge and a British passport last month.

Talbot said he was looking forward to his first visit to "a real English pub to sink a pint of real English beer," and plans to look for Bugler William E. Marsh, of Malton, Essex, a shipmate who deserted with him but later returned to British jurisdiction.

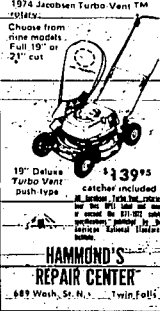

"I want to find out what happened to Bill," he said.

He plans to return to the United States, he said. The 73-year-old ex-sailor has a 28-year-old wife here and two children, 5 and 3.

CIA revamping shifts jobs, creates paradox

WASHINGTON — Divided by the domestic politics of the Vietnam conflict and the Watergate affair, its influence in the White House broken by the practitioners of détente, the Central Intelligence Agency is undergoing a major, perhaps fundamental, transformation.

Its chief — the covert operations that once marshaled large mercenary armies in Laos and Latin America and toppled undesired governments in Iran and Guatemala — are now largely retracted.

The highest organ in the bureaucracy, the Board of National Estimates, a federal court of intelligence, has been abolished.

Under its new director, William E. Colby, some of the agency's functions and priorities have been shifted, with seemingly paradoxical results.

While President Nixon has given Colby more power and responsibility than most of his predecessors, the director has markedly less access to the White House.

While he may not face as much rivalry from the military intelligence establishment as some critics feared, Colby's agency is being challenged by the State Department's Intelligence and Research Bureau, newly revitalized at Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's behest.

These changes, which by the nature of the intelligence profession have taken place quietly, become known through interviews in the intelligence community.

The rules of the game requires that there be no attribution of information acquired from high intelligence officials. When Colby sees newsmen — he has done so more frequently than any of his predecessors since he took over last summer — he requests that not even the terms "officials" or "sources" be used.

The mandate given Colby by the President provides him not only the power to preside over all intelligence operations, but also the power to allocate the entire intelligence budget of about $6 billion.

Even tactical intelligence, previously an activity jealously maintained by the military services, comes under his purview.

Impelled by apparent failure of Israeli tactical intelligence during the October war, American intelligence officials have decided to place greater stress on relaying information on the deployment of opponent forces to field commanders in West Germany and South Korea.

But the most striking changes in the Central Intelligence Agency have come at the top, having been initiated by Colby himself.

He replaced the 18-man board of national estimates and its staff of 20 last October with a system manned by what he calls national intelligence officers.

The board formerly produced long-range estimates of the intentions and capabilities of antagonists.

The new 11 national intelligence officers are expected to range through the entire government and beyond to put together their evaluations.

The new officers are preparing more short-term assessments and fewer long-range estimates. This is partly in response to the demands of their chief consumer, Kissinger.

Explaining why he believed the change was necessary, even though regrettable, an official explained:

"The board couldn't have gone on. It was in a helluva rut. It thought in big strategic terms and didn't get into grubby options. It was often too general and philosophical. Also, its profound skepticism on Vietnam didn't help the board in this town."

The new estimates carry dissenting views from within the intelligence community as an integral part of their texts. In the old system dissidents were registered as footnotes.

Kissinger was described by an agency official as "wanting to appear dealing with real, live problems this week or next week."

The official said there was a lack of elegance and orderliness in the hastily written estimates of today, and a lack of "the rigorous review that 10 or 12 sophisticated and judicious minds could put together." But he maintained that Colby's system has demonstrated gains in flexibility and responsiveness.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 9, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Pleasant and interesting times can be yours now and by yourself with mentally and spiritually alert people, so join group or other activities for new outlets.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Know early what you want to do with good friends and then join with them at appointed time. Avoid on-again-off-again relationships.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Join with bigwigs who can give you the boost you need toward advancing in your career. Express any desire to get into philosophical or philanthropic matters.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Crystallize ideas so you know exactly what you are doing now and later. Then join new friends for interesting activities.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Your intuition is very accurate now, so be sure to follow its promptings. Modernize your activities. Romance is favored in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Receive agreements for better relations with partners. Once better record is reached, go out for social activities with them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show those who have been good to you how appreciative you are and that you repay kindnesses brilliantly. Impose the weekly agreement for better relations with partners. Once better record is reached, go out for social activities with them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) An ideal Sunday to be with kin and do what is mutually enjoyed. Talk over important matters with partners. Once better record is reached, go out for social activities with them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into the philosophical studies you like, the most during a m. Then you can get about with good pals and be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you desire to have greater responsibility, clear your record by greater heights. Discuss any doubts with clever business partners.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get busy with whatever is of real importance to you in a personal way today. Join pals you like who will want to be with you in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meditating upon eternal truths is wise now, and studying new wisdoms, which is what a Pisces likes to do. Get needed data from a wise partner.

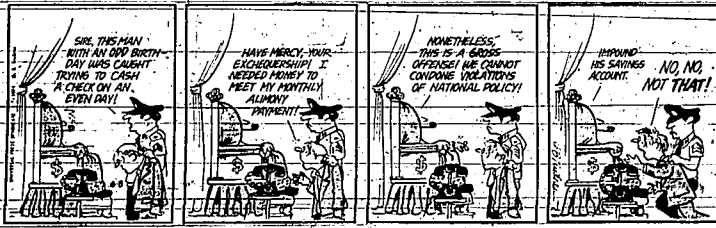

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will get along very well with others and will be easy to raise. If given chance to do and problem to solve, for this young person has the ability to solve them and thrive on such activities. Life's work should be slanted toward serving the public in general. Take care that you give a good diet early in life.

"The stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

What a sales clerk ought not to say to a browsing customer is: "May I help you?" Mainly, because a browsing customer can reply with a flat, "No, thanks." That's the opinion of a marketing expert. Better the clerk simply say: "Good morning." Or: "Are you looking for a gift or something for yourself?" Whatever, that conversational opener ought not to be of the sort that can be brushed off with a simple no.

How much does the earth weigh? Approximately 6,370 plus 18 billion tons. Figure enough rain, hail and snow falls each year to cover the entire country with water 30 inches deep. But about 21 inches of that evaporates back into the atmosphere. Six inches soaks in or runs off. And you use about three inches of it all!

COLORS
Not every body realizes that the subjects of study in colleges are associated with colors. Dentistry, for instance, is blue. Engineering, orange. Journalism, crimson. Law, purple. Medicine, green. Philosophy, dark blue. Public Health, salmon pink. Science, gold and yellow. Theology, brown. And veterinary medicine, gray.

How much time of actual news do you get on a half-hour network television news show? Just 23 minutes 30 seconds, ordinarily. The eight most commonly used action words in all languages are said to be: Do, make, say, be, have, take, give and know.

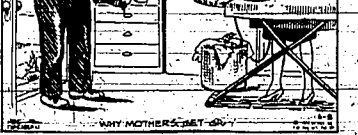

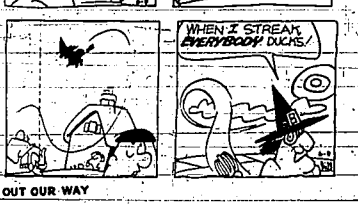

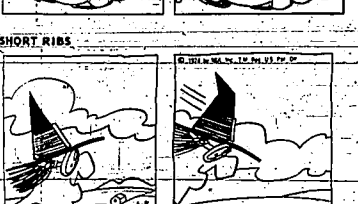

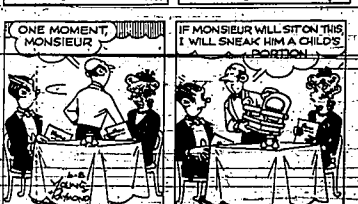

FENCE
The board of a certain Canadian school commissioned an old boy called Swede to build a fence around the place. Swede took, too, turned out. With a wide gate. But down in one corner, Swede cut a fair-sized hole in the thing. Board members asked why. "I know kids," said Swede. "Put a gate in, they'll climb over. This way, they'll go through the hole. Fence lasts longer."

The two most violent earthquakes ever recorded both centered under water in the Pacific. One, on Jan. 31, 1906, broke about 200 miles off the west coast of South America. The other, on March 2, 1933, hit off the east coast of Japan. No, they weren't the deadliest, just the most violent!

Am asked how a horse, a cow and a mule are apt to behave in a burning barn. The horse will freeze, so needs to be heavily folded to be led out. The cow will walk out quietly enough with a couple of swats on the rump. But the mule without encouragement most likely will kick the door down to get away.

Ohio's Powell joins retiring aides' exodus

(c) New York Times Service
 WASHINGTON — Rep. Walter E. Powell, R-Ohio, who once said he wished to spend 30 years in Congress, is retiring from the House in disillusionment at the age of 43 when many politicians are just starting a career.
 "I'm really not happy doing what I'm doing," Powell said in an interview Friday.
 "The health-care legislation did three things that irked him the most about Capitol Hill — a lack of personal involvement in the legislative process, a general dislike for big-city life, and money problems.
 "Some of us are immune to Polio's fever," Powell said, adding that the life of a congressman "isn't for everyone."
 More than a few of his colleagues apparently agree. To date, 28 representatives have announced their retirement while 13 others are leaving the House to run for either governor or senator. The exodus — on the basis of statistics maintained by the House, looks as though it may be a record.

 Powell, the youngest of those retiring this year, will not be eligible for the large pension that some of his fellows will receive because his length of service, two terms, is relatively brief.
 The Watergate and impeachment issues that may bring some Republican candidates to defeat this year have apparently not played a significant role in Powell's decision.
 His eighth congressional district in Ohio is normally 'Republican and conservative, befitting Powell's 95 per cent "correct" voting record in 1972, as judged by the Conservative Americans for Constitutional Action.
 Conversely, the Liberal Americans for Democratic Action awarded Powell a 6 per cent "correct" voting record in 1972.
 Powell said that his decision to retire from Congress was made late last year. "I almost dropped out two years ago, changed my mind, then concluded that I was right the first time," he said.

Treasure hunt begins

GEORGETOWN, S.C. (UPI) — A professor of archeology has joined a salvage team in an effort to determine if a report of sunken Spanish treasure ships in Winyah Bay is a hoax.
 Dr. Robert J. Stephenson said Thursday there was a "distinct possibility" of a hoax.
 "There are questions about whether the whole thing is for real or whether it's a hoax," said Stephenson, head of the University of South Carolina Institute of Archeology and Anthropology. "I honestly can't tell you there's a ship or three last ship."
 Stephenson said he would meet today with officials of Expeditions Unlimited, which has been conducting the search, to do "some re-evaluation of the whole thing."
 He said he expected to have a more definitive statement about whether the recovery operations would continue by Saturday.
 Wade Quattlebaum, a marine contractor and amateur diver from Vance, claims he discovered the ships in 1967 and that they contained some $7 million worth of gold and silver.

 He has been at odds with state officials since 1970 over salvage rights and he has refused to reveal the locations of the vessels until the state promises to build a state museum to house the ships and any artifacts recovered.
 Expeditions Unlimited of Pompano Beach, Fla., recently contracted with the state to conduct the recovery operations with the firm to retain 45 per cent of the coins and precious stones which might be realized along with 55 per cent of any media rights it might realize.
 The remainder of the treasure and the ships, which Quattlebaum says date back to around 1680, would go to the University of South Carolina.
 Stephenson has said if the ships are found it would be "one of the most significant finds in underwater archeology."

Mona Lisa to travel to Moscow

PARIS (UPI) — The Mona Lisa, currently on display in the National Museum of Tokyo, will make a side trip to the Pushkin Museum in Moscow before returning to the Louvre in Paris, it was announced today.
 Louvre officials said France had agreed to a request by the Soviet Union that the Leonardo da Vinci painting be shown in Moscow beginning June 14. The Tokyo exhibition which opened April 18 will end June 10 as scheduled.

 The Mona Lisa's first trip abroad from the Louvre was to New York in 1963.
 Louvre officials said "all security measures for the transport and exposition of the Mona Lisa were worked out in close collaboration and agreement between French, Japanese and Soviet museum officials."

Jerome magazine planned

JEROME — A new, monthly publication is being planned for circulation in Jerome County. The publication, a magazine format, should be issued for the first time September 1, according to its founder Dave Smith, an experimenter for the North Side News.

Backers for the new publication, whom Smith declined to name, are Jerome County residents. Smith said antique printing equipment is being sought for production of "Frontier Spirit," in keeping with its title. He said the first printing press ever used in Jerome County had been acquired in addition to other such equipment.
 Issues will emphasize photography, Smith said, with a format somewhat like the nationwide magazine "People."
 Smith said following his departure from the North Side News, "a lot of people came forward and said to me, 'We enjoyed your writings about the more important issues... why don't you start your own newspaper?'"

Smith said the publication, titled "Frontier Spirit," will "place special emphasis on the people and the land and their right to develop the land as they see fit for themselves and their children."
 "It was the frontier spirit of these people that carved Jerome County into its present form from desert land and the publication will work to help keep that spirit alive," Smith continued.

Nixon to Japan undecided

TOKYO (UPI) — Newspapers Friday quoted Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka as saying President Nixon's visit to Japan this year was "still undecided."
 Tanaka was also quoted as saying "there is no reason why President Nixon has to visit Japan by the end of this year."
 Japanese newspapers reported Tanaka made the statement at a news conference held in Matsue, about 300 miles northwest of Tokyo, where he is on a tour.
 They said the prime minister also ruled out the possibility of Nixon making a stopover in Japan en route home from his visit to Moscow later this month.
 Tanaka and Nixon have agreed on exchange visits between the U.S. president and Japan's Emperor Hirohito at an appropriate time.
