

Millions greet Nixon during rail trip

"I've never seen people so excited and emotional," said a White House official aboard the train. "This is for a President who has run into hostile placards in the U.S.," referring to Nixon's impeachment troubles over Watergate back home.

About 30,000 policemen were turned out for security purposes along the train route, carrying automatic weapons. Helicopters followed Nixon's motorcade through the streets of Alexandria.

Security measures are expected to increase as Nixon continues his journey through the Midwest, especially in view of an Arab guerrilla attack today at the Israeli settlement of Shamir.

Nixon and his wife will spend the night at Ras El Tin Palace, from where King Feroz went into exile in 1952, before returning to Cairo Friday for a visit to the pyramids. He will depart Friday for Saudi Arabia and then will go on to Syria, Israel and Jordan.

"Long live Nixon!" shouted the crowd as Nixon left the Cairo station. He responded with smiles, waves and the V sign Nixon is so known for — arms high over his head, two fingers spread apart.

All along the train route, workers left the fields to watch the train. Women, usually waiting in the background because of Moslem custom, were up front, holding up their children.

"I made arrangements for this special trip to pass by this place where I could see them," said Abdul Hak Ahmed, 35, who led a string of four camels to a spot where the train passed. "I want to go to Mecca most of all but I want to be here, too."

A line of horses blanketed with American and Egyptian flags was strung out along one section of track.

"It's unbelievable," Ziegler said. "My God, it's unbelievable."

Nixon, who was given a gold lifetime pass to the railroad, said he enjoyed the train trip very much. Of the reception he received he said:

"After 25 years of misunderstanding and seven years of bitter misunderstanding, Egyptian-American friendship has a natural foundation and we're building on it."

As overwhelming as the size of the crowd, Nixon said, was his enthusiasm and respect for Sadat.

The reception Egypt has accorded the American leader staggered the presidential party. An estimated 2 million persons had swarmed into the streets of Cairo Wednesday to welcome him. A closer view of Nixon, in a least Wednesday night at a dinner Sadat gave for him, said, "I can think of no day that will stay more in our memory."

The streets of Alexandria — with 2 million citizens smaller than the population of Cairo at 5 million — was jammed today and there was a repeat of Wednesday's welcome.

"Victorious Egypt greets Nixon," "We trust Nixon and we have confidence in You" read some of the signs.

Loudspeakers tried to pass on crowd control safety measures to the multitudes but it was often drowned out by cries of "Nixon-Nix-on."

KH Grange elects

KING HILL — Dick Rolce was elected master of the King Hill Grange Tuesday evening. He succeeds Martin Woodward, who resigned. Tom Timbers was elected overseer because of the death of H. O. Lipe. Timbers was installed by Karl Anderson.

John Davis acted as master and president at the meeting. Mrs. Joel Young, acting as chaplain in the absence of Mrs. Lipe, draped the charter for the train. Women, usually waiting in the background because of Moslem custom, were up front, holding up their children.

"I made arrangements for this special trip to pass by this place where I could see them," said Abdul Hak Ahmed, 35, who led a string of four camels to a spot where the train passed. "I want to go to Mecca most of all but I want to be here, too."

Tussock spraying in E. Washington

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI) — The second spraying of Tussock moth infested forests with DDT took place Wednesday on 3,000 acres of the Colville Unit near Grand Coulee Dam in Eastern Washington.

More spraying the same area — 2,500 acres of public forest and 100 acres of private forest — is scheduled Saturday.

So far no spraying has been scheduled in Oregon or Idaho, according to Terri Gustoff, administrative assistant for the U. S. Forest Service at the Tussock Moth Project Headquarters here.

She said some eggs have begun to hatch in the Halfway, Ore., area and spraying could begin there within a few days. No spraying will take place until next week in the Wallawa and La Grande areas of Oregon and the St. Joe area of Idaho, she said.

No report on the effectiveness of the initial spraying on 1,600 acres of the Colville Unit Sunday has been made, Miss Gustoff said. Entomologists had planned to go into the sprayed area early this week to determine how effectively the DDT had killed the moths, which damaged 400,000 acres of North-west timberland in the past two years.

Spraying the threatened forests was delayed while the states and Forest Service fought for Environmental Protection Agency permission to use DDT, banned for general use but the only known pesticide which will kill the Tussock moth.

State meet starts

Garden club meet opens in TF

TWIN FALLS — Garden club delegates from throughout Idaho convened in Twin Falls today for their 22nd annual convention.

Registration for the two-day meeting began Wednesday afternoon followed by a state board meeting and a reception in the evening, honoring state officers.

The meeting is being held in the Holiday Inn and will feature an address by the national president, Mrs. Howard Kittel, Ft. Worth, Tex.

She will be honored tonight during the annual awards banquet and will also address the organization as to activities of the National Council of Garden Clubs.

Mrs. Dora Hicks, Twin Falls, assisting with convention details, said the agenda for today also included a breakfast meeting honoring district directors and club presidents.

Mrs. Louise Buttle was speaker for the morning program and the Magic Valley district clubs served as hostesses.

A landscape — critics conference was held this morning followed by a workshop session under the direction of state awards chairman, Mrs. Emmett McKinley. Convention sessions officially opened at 9:40 a.m. with Mrs. Victor W. Nelson, Twin Falls, presiding.

Mrs. Ivan Mink, Magic Valley regional director, welcomed delegates. Past state presidents and junior gardeners were honored during the noon luncheon. Mr. Lloyd Staples, Eugene, Ore., was a special convention guest, presenting a floral arrangement demonstration this afternoon.

Closing session Friday will include a breakfast meeting honoring members of the judge's council, flower schools and committee chairmen.

Delegates will conclude the convention about noon Friday following a session on bylaws and resolutions. They will also select the site for the 1975 convention at that time.

Theme of this year's convention is "United We Consider the Earth." Convention chairmen are Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Julian Ricketts.

Garage sale set by Altrusa Club

TWIN FALLS — Final plans for a garage sale were made by members of the Twin Falls Altrusa Club when they met Tuesday evening at the Colonial House.

The sale is set from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday at 106 Lincoln St. Elaine Nesbitt, finance chairman, is in charge of the event. Members will meet at 7 p.m. Thursday at the above address to sort and arrange sale items.

The Hill, president, was in charge of the business meeting.

Peggy Laley, a Department of Environmental and Community Services employee, was a featured speaker. She was introduced by Virginia Bancroft, membership chairman.

Reports were given by the various committee chairmen including installation and plans for a special July picnic sponsored by the membership committee.

Display eyed

KING HILL — Personnel from the Idaho Highway Department public information office were in King Hill Tuesday doing research and photography for a display being prepared for the Idaho Bicentennial celebration.

Theme of the display, which will be located at the College of Idaho, Caldwell, when completed, is "The Route of the Old Oregon Trail."

Highway department employees have found old wagon hubs, coffee grinder, shotgun muzzle and half an oxen shoe and other items which have been fastened on plaques.

The project is being promoted by the Snake River Regional Studies Center at the College of Idaho.

Success leads to TF firm sale

TWIN FALLS — Greater Idaho Inc.'s rapid success led Sierra Life Insurance Co. to sell a controlling interest in its corporation, Sierra officials say.

A Twin Falls based holding company, Greater Idaho consists of Air Idaho, Ponderosa Inns, Regal Manufacturing and Western American Plastics.

Fred Frazier, president of Sierra, told the Times-News Tuesday that Sierra sold Greater Idaho to Best National Enterprises, a Chicago holding company, for around $3.5 million.

The rapid growth of Greater Idaho combined with the regulation that insurance companies have no more than 15 per cent of their assets in holding companies put Sierra in a bind, he said.

When Greater Idaho was formed by Sierra in 1969, Frazier said, Sierra had assets of $10 million and Greater Idaho was worth $1 million. With Greater Idaho being its only holding company, Sierra had only 10 per cent of its assets in common stock, he said.

But, growing at a faster pace than Sierra itself, Greater Idaho comprised more than 15 per cent of Sierra's total assets in 1973, Frazier said. Last year, he said, Sierra had assets of $16.4 million, with $3.1 million in common stocks through its ownership of Greater Idaho.

To bring Sierra's common stock holdings into the proper relation to its total assets, the Idaho Department of Insurance ordered Sierra to transfer $40,000 out of its stock investment in Greater Idaho to a security reserve.

The company did this, but the solution would be only temporary, Frazier said. He said Greater Idaho could be expected to continue to grow at a faster pace than Sierra and again comprise more than 15 per cent of Sierra's total assets.

The $40,000 security reserve could not be invested and because of the company's difficulty in reaching the right balance between its total assets and its holding of common stock.

With the sale of Greater Idaho, Sierra no longer has any common stock holdings, Frazier said. He said he does not know if Sierra will invest in another holding company soon.

Nolan Weston, state chairman of the American Party, said the theme of the convention will be "Statesmen, not Politicians."

He urged individuals and groups concerned about the restoration of constitutional rights and responsibilities to coordinate their efforts to restore government to integrity at the convention.

He extended a special invitation to younger persons who would like to form an American Party youth organization to attend.

Clifford Barborka Jr.,

Rexburg advertising executive and National Lecturer, will be keynote speaker. His wife, Broadway star Melva Niles, will present a miniature concert during the afternoon session.

According to Alice Jackson, state secretary, the American Party will be nominating candidates to run for state and national offices and will be electing officers for the state central committee at the convention. Party finances will be discussed, she said.

The convention will start at 7 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

Milk support charge should go back in cooler

WASHINGTON — The latest charge against President Nixon, churned up by a staff report from the Senate Watergate committee, is that the President accepted a bribe — that in return for a large pledge by his 1972 campaign, he granted the nation's dairymen in 1971 an increase in milk price supports.
The charge strikes me as spurious, but this should be said: If convincing evidence can be adduced under oath, proving that the President's action was directly conditioned upon the campaign pledge, we can forget all the other charges. If the bribery charge is true, Nixon ought to be impeached, tried, and ousted by sunset tonight. Let the scandal go.

vacuum. When the political wheeling-and-dealing of the milk producers is considered in sum, and when account is given to the whole nature of political contributions, the case against Nixon collapses.
Consider for a moment a couple of not-so-hypothetical cases. Let us suppose that a major aircraft company, through its executives, makes large contributions to the campaign of a United States senator. On a crucial vote, involving millions of dollars in contracts, the senator votes with the company's position. In a certain House district where organized labor controls a potent vote, the AFL-CIO makes large contributions to the campaign of the congressman. The congressman subsequently votes for repeal of Section 14-b of Taft-Hartley, a vote worth millions to organized labor.

and the congressman have acted as they did out of personal conviction, or from sheer political self-interest?
In his January statement, Nixon made no bones about his own motivation. He feared a Democrat-controlled Congress would vote by the price increase if he failed to grant it by executive order. The Democrats would thus gain favor with the milk producers, and Nixon would offend a "vital political constituency."
The President also believed — correctly, as it turned out — that the public interest would be well served by the higher support price. Outlays for milk supports actually dropped after Nixon's action — from $214 million in fiscal 1971 to $174 million in 1972.
The milk producers contributed $122,000 to the Nixon campaign. It was a fat sum. But the milk producers were butting-up-against-averages. In the last nine months of 1972, the milk producers gave away $1.5 million in political contributions, most of the sum to Democrats.

In the poisonous atmosphere of Washington, the President rarely is accorded the slightest benefit of the doubt. In an editorial last week the Post seized upon what it regarded as new evidence to grant the higher price support on March 23, 1971, but the leaked staff report "made the highly interesting point that two days elapsed between the President's decision and the public announcement of it."
For the records it ought to be said the President himself made the identical point in his statement of Jan. 8.
The milk deal, in brief, strikes me thus far as something less than a hot story. Members of the House Judiciary Committee apparently feel the same way. My thought is to cool it.

Sunshine Initiative would open politics

The "Sunshine Initiative" deserves support as a good first step toward openness in state politics.
Under existing state law, secrecy has a higher priority than a citizen's right to obtain political information.

An individual now has a right to donate a large sum of money in secret to a political candidate. But that same individual has no right to find out what others are donating in secret.

The result is an electorate ignorant of backroom politics—but suspicious nevertheless. The voter's cynicism eventually undercuts confidence in government. At the same time honest officials are forced to operate under a smothering cloud of suspicion.

In short, secrecy can distort the political process, poison confidence in government and drive good men from public political life.

The problem is easier to find than workable solutions.

In general, the best approach would be to shift the balance away from secrecy toward openness. This shift in priorities is a balancing act, for as an individual increases his "right to know" about politics he also loses his "right to privacy" in politics. The balancing act is doubly difficult because there is no inherent problem with secrecy. For example, secrecy serves the electorate well in the secret ballot.

The Sunshine Initiative begins to shift the balance toward openness. It does so with only limited damage to the right to privacy.

In effect, the initiative declares that the process of campaign financing and the process of lobbying are public, and should be open to public scrutiny. The initiative does a number of good things:

- It requires candidates to reveal the names of contributors who donate more than $50. Such reports, along with an accounting of campaign expenditures, would be filed at regular intervals during the campaign.
- It requires registration of paid lobbyists, and detailed financial reports from them. Lobbyists would have to identify their employers and state what legislation they supported and opposed.
- It would make a wealth of information available to ordinary citizens who now have no such access.
- It would establish a code of conduct for lobbyists.
- It permits any citizen to bring court action to enforce the law.
- And it provides reasonably stiff penalties for violations.

These are useful provisions, and should help. However, there are real problems with the initiative as drafted. Fortunately, most of these can be overcome with remedial amendments.

For example, the task of enforcing the initiative's provision is given to the secretary of state, who is an elected partisan politician.

It would have been better to have some kind of bipartisan commission or agency to assume the role of overseer. It is likely that many questions raised will have a heavily partisan aspect. Whether or not a partisan politician can judge such issues fairly or appear to do so — is not certain.

In other areas the initiative probably does not go far enough. For example, it sets no limitation on campaign spending. Such limits help remove the pressure candidates to obtain funding with strings attached.

But in politics a half a loaf is better than no loaf at all. Taken as a whole, the Sunshine Initiative is a worthwhile piece of legislation which will help swing the political balance from secrecy to openness and from big-moneyed special interests toward the ordinary citizen.

It surely won't solve all the problems, but it is a good start.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Here's your fare and some copper pennies. They're getting scarce, you know!"

"What do you mean you feel left out? You get to take the picture, don't you?"

Single word from US agencies should do job

WASHINGTON — I swallow with glee and some impatience appropriate action by the Federal Trade Commission now that its chairman has told the television advertising industry out loud that offering premiums to child viewers is against the law.

That is to say, I want some cease and desist orders issued against these lawbreakers and I do not want a lot of bureaucratic discussion and legal hair-splitting in courtrooms, nor a pledge by the industry, honest in-jury, that it will reform. As FTC Chairman Lewis A. Engman told the American Advertising Federation in Richmond, a 10-month "effort" by the industry to devise its own new code for children's television had "yielded little, if anything."

I like the way Engman links it to politics, but he gets his point across. He told the AAF he was prepared "to conclude as a matter of law that the inclusion of premium offers in children's television advertising has no place in American marketing and — as I read the law — is a violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act."

On the other hand, I can spare no sympathy for the cereal company spokesmen who whined that putting premiums in packages of Krazy Kunchies is the only way to persuade a child to select from among 50 essentially similar cereal products. Kids do not contumaciously select these days, and if it is time Marna started buying cereal for its nutritive content and not to get a "free" prize for Junior.

At any rate, the good news is that both the FTC and the Federal Communications Commission are taking a hard line toward TV advertising directed at children.

FCC Chairman Richard E. Wiley beefed a group of broadcasters recently with the blunt statement that there was too much advertising on children's TV programs — and that government action might be necessary to reduce it.

The FTC's Engman also took a whack at the content of advertising on children's TV shows. He reminded his audience that the advertiser aiming his message at kids is subject not only to the standards of truthful advertising; he is also bound to deal in complete fairness with his young viewers... advertising directed to or seen by children which is calculated to, or in effect does, exploit their known anxieties or capitalize on their propensity, to confuse reality and fantasy is unfair within the meaning of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act."

In short, Engman was saying that his FTC had not been properly regulating such advertising, since the section he referred to brooks "only all unfair or deceptive methods or practices or methods of business competition." Indeed, children's TV shows and their attendant commercials are now virtually unregulated. As Engman noted, many shows sell vitamins and over-the-counter drugs to kids and advertise dangerous toys and assorted products hazardous to health and safety.

Meanwhile, I trust the FCC will address itself to the glut of advertising on children's programs. The National Association of Broadcasters has adopted a rule regarding commercials on Saturday and Sunday mornings from 10 to 12 minutes an hour, but imposed no rule on late afternoon and early evening shows. That's not good enough, as any parent not afflicted with congenital idiocy can testify.

It, gentlemen. The hucksters will reform and stop using our kids to bustle a fast buck only when they're addressed in plain English.

One word should do the job... It is spelled STOP.

"OH, DARN IT—AND I HAD SO HOPED TO CLEAR MYSELF!"

Congressmen face voters' 'impeachment' threat

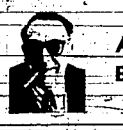

WASHINGTON — Congressman Cheesedip, how do you feel about the Watergate affair?
"I am shocked, appalled and horrified that such a thing could happen in this great land of ours."
"Was it Congress doing this to prevent future Watergates from taking place?"
"We are studying the matter very closely."

"Do you believe there is any possibility that the House will pass serious election-reform legislation this year?"
"I didn't understand the question."

"Congressman Cheesedip, what I meant was that although most members of the House are critical of Watergate they seem to be dragging their feet when it comes to making election-reform bills."

"I will not accept that. We have been talking about it for more than a year. How can you say we're dragging our feet?"
"Mainly because you haven't done anything..."

"Well, I would like to say this. Reforming election campaigns is a serious matter. We have to look at it from all sides. It's true there have been abuses, particularly in financing political candidates, and we're concerned about this. At the same time it would be a mistake if we made it more difficult for men of high principle to fight."

that you are against election reforms this year?"
"I am not against election reforms. I take the position — and I have said this publicly many times — that we must have reforms in our political process. But I believe it would be dangerous to pass any laws that would make it more difficult for well-meaning people to contribute to a political campaign. Their voices should be heard, and if they want to do it by financing a particular candidate then I say God bless them. That's the American way of doing things."

"But isn't that the very thing that got the Committee for the Re-Election of the President in trouble?"
"Isn't that what we should be tarred by what the Committee for the Re-Election of the President did? I am proud to say that, although I have received contributions from the milk producers, the oil companies — and the construction industries, I have never permitted this to interfere in how I would vote on any bill. Every congressman on this hill feels the same way. We didn't, we would ask for stronger election laws."

"Aren't you afraid, Congressman Cheesedip, that if you don't pass some reform legislation you will be impeached?"

"What are you talking about?"
"The Constitution provides that every two years — the American people can impeach a congressman by voting him out of office."

"That's outrageous. You have to prove he's guilty of a high crime or a misdemeanor."

"No you don't. All you have to prove is that the congressman did nothing about corruption in government. Any voter will tell you that's an impeachable offense."

"Hm... I thought you wanted to talk to me about Watergate."

College support explained

Editor, Times-News: Concerning the article in the Times-News Sunday, June 2, "Decision stalled on the MV Senior Citizen fund agent," the article states that the seniors don't support the two groups which have applied to handle the funds. "Everyone seems to be ignoring the fact that three groups applied. The group that is being completely ignored was voted as second choice to the college."

The seniors support the college because at the present time the college is doing more for the seniors than any other agency or organization in the area. Another reason is the college is already established and has all the fiscal capabilities necessary.

The article states, "before the college applies for the administrative meeting between the seniors and the college board would be necessary." This can be arranged at any time as far as the seniors are concerned. Since the Magic Valley Association of Governments does not exist, no one can understand how it would be eligible to handle the funds. If MVAG did exist it would still be opposed on the basis that the Area 4 Planning and Service Council on Aging has been informed by Bobbi Johnson and Del Taylor that the seniors would not be allowed representatives on the MVAG.

How can any agency plan or administer a program without input from the seniors? The Area 4 Planning and Service Council on Aging has also been informed that the planner would be responsible directly to the MVAG.

Why would the Planner be responsible to the MVAG instead of the seniors? What services can MVAG offer the seniors? What fiscal structures does MVAG have? Since it is supposed to be the seniors' program and the seniors are responsible to make matching funds (in kind) why shouldn't the seniors have the right to say who they want to handle their funds and who they want to work with?

An interesting note: On May 13 at 7 p.m. a meeting of the Area 4 Planning and Service Council on Aging was held at the Senior Citizens Center in Kimberly. There were 18 representatives present. The vote tally was as follows: College of Southern Idaho — 17 votes as first choice; Ageless Senior Citizens, Inc. — 8 votes as second choice to the college; Council of Governments — 1 vote as first choice; 1 vote as second choice; South Central Community Action Agency received NO votes at all.

Another point

Editor, Times-News: Health News No. 1 is high blood pressure. Health experts estimate that high blood pressure will contribute to the death of about 250,000 Americans next year.

That's five times the number who will be killed in auto accidents — or one out of eight of all people who will die from anything.

Yet today we know how to effectively diagnose and treat most cases of high blood pressure. We know that through diet, exercise, medication and elimination of cigarette smoking the disease can be controlled.

The medical community is in a position to help prolong the life expectancy and improve the quality of life for the millions who suffer from high blood pressure.

In the United States a massive program is being mounted to inform the public and the health professions about the importance of detecting and treating high blood pressure.

Four points to be remembered are:

1. High blood pressure is very common. Fifteen to 20 percent of our adult population or 23 million people have the disease.
2. High blood pressure is dangerous. It is the leading cause of stroke, heart and kidney disease.
3. Treatment reduces the danger in most people. High blood pressure can be lowered and kept under control with continuing treatment. This greatly reduces the risk of serious complications.
4. High blood pressure usually is deafly cause symptoms. The only way to know whether your blood pressure is high is to go to your doctor and have it read.

The fact you feel fine is no assurance that your blood pressure is okay.

I copied this from a World Health Organization Magazine Feb. 1974, 5 points. Stop smoking cigarettes and live a while longer.

Too many men have gone up in smoke already.

Alkali fingernail enemy

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please discuss why fingernails and dishwashing don't go together. I have tried gelatin, nail hardeners, and keeping my nails cut short, but the only solution for me is rubber gloves which are troublesome in hot weather. I'm in good health otherwise. — C. R.

The chemical explanation is that soaps, cleansers and household cleaning compounds in general contain alkali of varying strengths. Alkali attacks the keratin of which your nails are made.

Use of lemon or vinegar or other mild acid can counteract the alkali afterward, but that doesn't prevent the alkali from doing its annoying work first.

You may avoid some annoyance from rubber gloves by getting cotton-lined ones or wearing cotton gloves under the rubber, or resorting to plastic gloves which permit a little more circulation of air.

You may want to send for my newest booklet, on combating all sorts of nail problems — nails that break, peel, flake, become pitted, and so on. Likewise problems of toenails including one common one: the complaint of toenails that become hard to cut.

If you'd like the booklet, send 25 cents and a long stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of Times-News.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there any truth to reports that certain ingredients in frozen foods are carcinogenic agents? These stories have persisted for some time and I am concerned — as my family prefers frozen vegetables to canned ones. Your opinion would be appreciated. — Mrs. A.A.

My opinion? That people who peddle such scare stories ought to be gagged. With the Food and Drug Administration leaning as far as it is already to prohibit things that are merely suspected of being dangerous, do you think the FDA would sit idly by if anything in frozen foods could cause cancer? Intentionally do the rumormongers ever tell you what they think is in the frozen foods — other than plain food, frozen?

In a word, I'd totally ignore such rumors unless the gaspings can produce more than an unsupported say-so.

Dedication to farmer proposed

Editor, Times-News: I am writing in regard to the dedication of the Bull Republic project in Hagerman on June 22.

The main thing I would like to say is this — pay this project be dedicated to the land owners; may he set the price for produce and be free from the dickering, jehing down public. Let this set of farmers be the nucleus for the rest of Idaho farms to get in our driver's seat for a change and at least have a say of what price we have to have for our crops.

As the natural thing for the Idaho farmer to have his eyes on the soil and plant growth under his bowed back while the buyers get the farmer's price and steals his labor fruits.

You can't watch and think about the buyer when the mind is geared to the overwhelming set of needs for seeing the plank through all the elements of time, sprouting, irrigation and weather gamble.

This is a parallel to "the control of religion by getting a person's head down. Be like the old lead cow elk; get your head up and your eyes and ears open! Speak up!"

Rights' role emphasized

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russian spy chief Andrei D. Sakharov, one of the most outspoken dissidents in the Soviet Union, called today for a world government based on human rights.

Sakharov issued his appeal in an article written for Saturday Review World magazine and telephoned May 11 from his home in Moscow to New York.

The magazine said Sakharov's 4,000-word article was scheduled to be published in the August issue, the occasion of the publication's 50th anniversary.

According to the magazine, Sakharov called for a universal ban to the persecution of nonconformity. He asked that the Red Cross, the World Health Organization and Amnesty International be permitted "to go anywhere" to investigate violations of human rights, "first and foremost into prisons and psychiatric institutions."

Sakharov, a theoretical physicist and co-developer of the Soviet H-bomb, deplored in his article "a world, openly dividing into opposing groups of governments." He urged "a world government with guiding principles based on global human rights," according to the magazine.

The noted advocate of human rights said that socialist countries bear a major responsibility for tensions in the world today adding that "as a citizen of the most influential socialist state, I bear my part of that responsibility."

Sakharov listed as perilous to humanity "the party and state monopoly, the persistent butchery of the uncovered bloody crimes of the recent past; the permanent suppression of non-conformist thought, the hypocritical, self-praising, dogmatic and often nationalist ideology; the oppression in these societies which hinders free contact between their citizens and citizens of other countries and the formation in socialist states of an egotistic, immoral, smug and hypocritical bureaucratic class."

A major role in opposing these destructive tendencies in modern life, Sakharov said, must be played by international organizations such as the UN and UNESCO.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The main reason the U.S. Constitution provided for a census of the American population every 10 years was to give a basis for apportionment of congressional representatives among the states. The World Almanac notes. This apportionment has also largely determined the number of electoral votes allotted to each state. The total number of representatives has been set by Congress at 435 since 1912.

PRESIDENT Nixon and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, along with host, Egypt's President-Sadat, find "comical ground" in enjoying the antics of "belly dancer" Souhair Zaki during her performance at Koubbeh Palace. (UPI)

Palace performance

Belly dancer entertains VIPs

CAIRO (UPI) — Souhair Zaki, who calls herself the "ambassador of love," twirled and gyrated in front of President Nixon and then turned her attentions to Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Nixon slapped his knee, threw back his head and laughed Egypt's top society in joined Wednesday night as the belly dancer went through her sinuous motions after a state dinner in the plush gardens of Cairo's Koubbeh Palace.

The President turned to a smiling Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and the two men began to whisper to one another.

Souhair then performed for Kissinger, who has been belly dancers before. She ran her fingers through his curly brown hair while he beamed and appeared quite composed.

Kissinger, who had a belly dancer sit on his lap during a previous Middle East trip and later quipped he wanted to make the world safe for belly dancers, told newsmen later, "I had a marvelous evening. I saw some old friends."

The dancer did not ignore the presidents' wives. She kissed Mrs. Nixon on the cheek and then did the same for Mrs. Sadat.

Gen. Alexander M. Haig, White House chief of staff, also admired the abilities of Souhair and said, "I would like to see more of that."

At the end, Souhair bowed to Kissinger and Sadat and bowed to the 600 guests.

Manager won't give up tape

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The manager of radio station KPFF has refused to turn over to federal authorities the original of a tape recording by Patricia Hearst, and may be cited for contempt of court.

Will Lewis, 42, was brought before U.S. District Judge Andrew Hanft Wednesday following his refusal to turn over the tape and other material to a federal grand jury.

The judge, who had earlier denied a motion by the station's lawyer to dismiss a subpoena for the materials, ordered Lewis to return Monday for a contempt hearing.

Lewis said that although the station provided the FBI with a recorded copy of the tape, the original is "source material." To turn it over to law enforcement officers would violate the journalistic principle of confidentiality of sources, he argued.

Before the grand jury, Lewis said he cited the protection of the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth Amendments to the Constitution.

He told the newsmen that to turn over to federal investigators original material sent to the station as a public communicate would have a "chilling effect" on the free flow of information.

He said he was not siding with the Symbionese Liberation Army, but "I'm on the side of the First Amendment, and the station's policy is not to voluntarily give up source material."

He is willing to go to jail if need be, he said.

KPFF is an FM station run by the Pacifica Foundation, an educational organization that also operates station KPFA in San Francisco, which has received communications from underground radicals more often than other commercial stations.

The tape was made by Miss Hearst and William and Emily Harris, the last publicly known SLA fugitives. In it, they eulogized the six SLA members killed in a blazing gunbattle with police. Miss Hearst revealed an affair with one of the dead terrorists and said her love inspired her to fight to the death. She praised the SLA for teaching her how to kill to "destroy fascist America."

Israel cool over lavish welcome

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Israel reacted coolly to President Nixon's lavish welcome in Egypt today, warning that closer Arab-American relations may strain the friendship between Jerusalem and Washington.

Israeli authorities, fearing a possible Arab guerrilla attack, also made clear that when Nixon visits the Jewish state, Sunday his movements will be much more limited than during his current stay in Cairo.

They canceled plans for Nixon to make a tour of the sacred monuments in old Jerusalem, territory Israel captured from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East War.

The President will make a stop at the Yad Vashem memorial to the six million Jews killed by the Nazis in World War II. But such a visit is purely protocol and similar to visiting the tomb of the unknown soldier in another country.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, speaking at graduation exercises in the town of Rehovot as Nixon arrived in Cairo, warned that warming relations between the United States and the Arabs may strain the U.S.-Israeli friendship.

"It is very possible that as a result of the American-Arab closing of ranks we shall also have to arrive at differences of opinion or a disparity in views between us and the United States," Rabin said.

Nixon and his party will stay at Jerusalem's King David Hotel, which has been converted into a virtual White House in Israel.

Scouts deny lying widespread

By United Press International
The Boy Scouts of America, responding to reports of padding in membership rolls, said Wednesday the offenders have quit or been fired after being caught.

The Boy Scouts' national office, while denying that the practice was widespread, reported that cheating had been discovered in about 10 areas around the country, and that systematic steps had been taken to root out the practice.

Officials declined to name the areas, and most Scouting authorities across the country denied their areas were involved. Scout officials in Michigan, Texas and Oklahoma, however, confirmed the firings and resignations.

In Detroit, the local director of the Boy Scouts said seven men had left the organization for allegedly lying about membership figures.

Detroit area Director Joseph Wyckoff, blamed part of the padding on pressure from the national headquarters, which set a goal in 1968 during Scouting's Boypower '76 program, with the goal of two million new members in time for the U.S. Bicentennial in 1976.

Wyckoff said he discovered some Detroit units existed only on paper.

In Fort Worth, Tex., the Executive Board of the Longhorn Council of the Boy Scouts said membership padding had been discovered, and steps were taken to remove it. The professional staff members responsible were removed.

In Tulsa, Okla., the Indian Nations Boy Scout Council said two field directors resigned in April after padding local membership rolls with about 2,000 fictitious names.

Former Council President Virgil S. Tilly Jr. said faking of names was accomplished by some over-zealous professionals who enrolled fictitious boys to meet Boy Power '76 goals set by the national organization.

Scouting officials said that since membership rolls had nothing to do with federal or private funds, there was no monetary motive in the cheating.

Rather, they said, in many cases, the Scouting organizer, who had over-pledged future membership, paid for the fictitious memberships out of his own pocket.

The padding incidents were the first reported Monday when the Chicago Tribune disclosed a secret report by the Boy Scouts estimating their true membership in the Chicago area at 42,000 against a claimed membership of 87,000.

Other Scouting officials denied their membership rolls were padded.

Peron given free hand for change

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The entire Argentine cabinet resigned Wednesday night to give President Juan D. Peron a free hand to reorganize the government after he hastily withdrew his own threat to quit.

The 78-year-old president said he would step down Wednesday morning but changed his mind hours later when crowds of up to 100,000 workers converged upon the city's central Plaza de Mayo to shout support for him.

Peron took no immediate action on the subsequent move by all eight members of the cabinet to submit their resignations to help him better deal with a rising tide of strikes, shortages of consumer goods, and violence between rightists and leftists.

"When I came to this country, it was to unite and not to promote disunity among Argentines," Peron said in a radio and television address.

"If I find that this sacrifice is in vain I will not hesitate one instant in ceding this position to someone who can occupy it with better possibilities."

Peron returned to Argentina from nearly 18 years of forced exile in June 1973 and was elected to a third presidential term, which began eight months ago.

The massive demonstration in his support, similar to the Peronist rallies of the 1950s, was swift and well-planned.

S. Viets issue peace proposal

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese government on Wednesday marking the first anniversary of a supplementary cease-fire agreement that has brought no end to the fighting.

A. Kissinger, North Vietnam's Le Duc Tho and representatives of Saigon and the Viet Cong signed a joint communique calling for a strict observance of the Jan. 23, 1973, cease-fire agreement. But the fighting has gone on and negotiations in Paris for a political settlement have broken down.

The Saigon command accuses the Communists of 31,923 trace violations since the June 13 supplementary cease-fire was signed. The Communists, who claim alleged looting and political arrests, have accused Saigon of hundreds of thousands of violations.

On Wednesday the Saigon foreign ministry issued a communique calling for immediate end to all cease-fire violations, return of Communist troops to pre-cessate-fire lines, withdrawal of North Vietnamese troops and war material to the North, release of civilian and military prisoners, respect for the international truce-supervision force and cessation of political negotiations.

The joint communique of one year ago called for an end to fighting within 2 hours. Within 15 days, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong were to sign an agreement for the internal and external release of all prisoners of war.

On the battlefield, military sources said, Communist forces overran a 100-man militia base guarding Highway 7 on Tuesday off Highway traffic to provincial capitals and other cities on the South China Sea coast.

Nineteen militiamen were reported killed and 54 missing.

Movies inspire poet, 13

CHICAGO (UPI) — It was movies and television, not life experience, that inspired 13-year-old Donald Franklin to write his poem about life in the ghetto. The verses made him one of five seventh and eighth grade poets laureates in Illinois.

State Poet Laureate Gen. Gwyn Brooks, who selected the winners said most of the poems were about love and nature. A number of black children, like Donald, however, wrote their poems with a harder edge, she said.

Donald's poem, "In the Ghetto," goes like this: "Describe the ghetto as best you can see. The dirty streets, the drunken man, the lifeless puppy found on the curb, the crying baby that's never heard, broken windows, poverty-stricken homes, platform shoes, natural combs in the ghetto some encounter death."

And some are beaten by merciless thugs. So terrible these things seem to be. But still the ghetto is home to me.

Donald said some friends, the movies and television gave him the idea for the poem. His mother, Mrs. Donald Franklin, described her son as "a bookworm" and a loner who usually writes about the weather, nature or spring.

"I wanted to top it off with something from the heart," he said. "After I wrote all those bad things about the ghetto, I thought I would put in something good."

Distaff-winos

NEW YORK (UPI) — Women are the best wine customers in the United States, says the Newspaper Advertising Bureau. The bureau said 14 million of the nation's 27-million wine drinkers are women. The fat-tax also makes 51 per cent of the wine purchases in the United States.

Policeman seeks hit-and-run horse

TUCSON, Ariz. (UPI) — Patrolman Lyle W. Mann is looking for a hit-and-run horse.

The riderless horse galloped out of the darkness, collided with Mann's patrol car and galloped away. The horse apparently was not hurt, Mann said, but his patrol car has a $50 dent in the right rear fender.

New service at Rupert facility

RUPERT — A new service will soon be offered by Minidoka Memorial Hospital. Victims of head injuries, brain tumors and patients who enter the hospital unconscious will have some of the services of a neurologist almost instantly after July 1.

The service will be provided by a new system in which the local hospital staff can telephone electroencephalogram results to neurologists in Nampa Denver or San Francisco on a 24-hour basis.

Hospital administrator Ed Richardson said Tuesday that the necessary equipment for the telephone-hookup should arrive after July 1. Hospital staff members will receive training in the use of the service.

Richardson said that Minidoka Memorial is the first hospital in the area to have the service which has been in use in other parts of the country for some time.

Patients will be charged a flat-fee of $55 per use of the system. Cost to the hospital will be "minimal" for the telephone company hookup, Richardson said. The system is a product of Neuro-Diagnostic Systems, San Francisco. Cases involving evaluation of headaches, head trauma, brain abscess, cerebral thrombosis (blood clot on the brain), brain tumors and unconscious patients can be handled by the system. It can also be used in evaluation of retarded children, Richardson said.

White House lawyers grant Ehrlichman papers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House lawyers have agreed to give John D. Ehrlichman some documents he wants for his defense, avoiding — at least for the time being — the possibility of a contempt of court citation against President Nixon.

three defendants in the case, because of Nixon's refusal to permit both Ehrlichman and his lawyer to have access to Ehrlichman's old files. Gesell indicated then that he might hold Nixon in contempt of court.

later that privilege has not been waived in respect to materials Ehrlichman may yet demand. He said Nixon still insists that he, not the court, is the final judge of what evidence to surrender.

Toothless patient sues hospital

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ronald O'Banion figures $15,250 should compensate for the "humiliation and embarrassment" he suffered for 33 days after his false teeth were lost. O'Banion filed a suit for that amount of money Tuesday against Jewish Hospital, where his false teeth disappeared with his meal tray. He said he had just returned from surgery, was heavily sedated and placed the dentures on the food tray before falling asleep.

SHOSHONE — All re-appraised property in Lincoln County will continue to be listed on the tax rolls at 80 percent of the appraisal. Lincoln County commissioners decided Monday to continue the program in view of the fact that the country is ahead of schedule on the state required property re-appraisal program which must be completed by 1980. The lowered tax roll listing is an effort by the commissioners to equalize and relieve the tax burden on country taxpayers. Civil Defense Director Reid Newby told the commissioners that the two-way radios for the department's vehicles are now ready for installation. Blaine Linford, from the extension service, met with the board to explain a new program being proposed for county extension agent specialization work. T. V. Strunk was awarded a contract to remodel the Courthouse heating system. Included in the project will be thermostats in each room. The county auditor reported $940.20 collected in court fees and fines the past month with $116.90 collected in recording fees.

Irrigation firm sued by salesman

TWIN FALLS — An Ada County man has filed a $135,000 sales commission claim against a Twin Falls based irrigation firm.

Alton D. Anderson filed the suit against G. T. Newcomb, Inc. in FIDU District Court here.

In the suit Anderson alleges that in the fall of 1972 he entered into an oral agreement to act as a sales representative for Newcomb in southwestern Idaho and eastern Oregon.

Part of the oral agreement, Anderson claims, was by Newcomb representatives that he was to receive 5 per cent of all gross sales made by Newcomb representatives in his territory, regardless of whether or not he personally made the sale.

Anderson contends that he agreed to sell design sprinkler irrigation systems for Newcomb and was given a territory including King Hill and all other areas of southwestern Idaho and parts of eastern Oregon.

Officials change school boundaries

RUPERT — Boundaries for attendance of Minidoka County junior high schools for next year have been set by school officials.

The school board accepted the recommendations of Superintendent Harold Hill on Monday night to change the boundaries to equalize attendance in two of the district junior high schools.

The subject has been under discussion for several months but had not been settled previously because of parental protest over shifting students from one school to another.

Without a boundary change, an estimated 798 students would attend East Minico Junior High School next year with only 624 in West Minico. The schools were built to handle an equal number of students.

According to the new plan, the boundary line will start at the north end of the county following 150 west to 700 north, west to 200 west, south to 1-80, then east to the Snake River. Students living south of 1-80 will attend West Minico, and others will go to East Minico.

Every previous proposal to change the boundaries has been opposed by parents whose children would have to change schools. Board chairman Leonard Martin said, "There are going to be some mighty hard feelings" about this decision also but the board agreed that the change was necessary.

The board discussed alternatives to the decision but voted in favor of it as the best solution.

Bullet enters man's leg

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was injured Tuesday when his pistol discharged in his holster and the bullet entered his leg.

John Moates, 38, Twin Falls, was apparently hunting ground squirrels in the hills south of Kimberly when the accident occurred.

Sheriff Paul Corder said today Moates and a companion, David Ray, 29, Twin Falls, were hunting on motorcycles in the South Hills when Moates' 22 pistol went off accidentally.

Corder said the bullet slammed down Moates' leg and "remained" lodged above his ankle. Moates was taken by sheriff's deputies to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

The accident occurred about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday along Foothill Road about eight miles south west of Kimberly.

Wendell chamber meets

WENDELL — Wendell Chamber of Commerce members heard a report on the new FM radio station in Twin Falls during a breakfast meeting Wednesday.

J. J. Alexander, program director, and Mark Whitesides, sales manager of station KMTW, told Chamber members they will begin broadcasting early Saturday morning.

The new station, located west of Twin Falls, will have the largest wattage of any station in the state, they reported.

Mark Koll, representative to the South Idaho Chamber of Commerce, reported on that group's last meeting and Ben Morgan reported on North Side Communities activities.

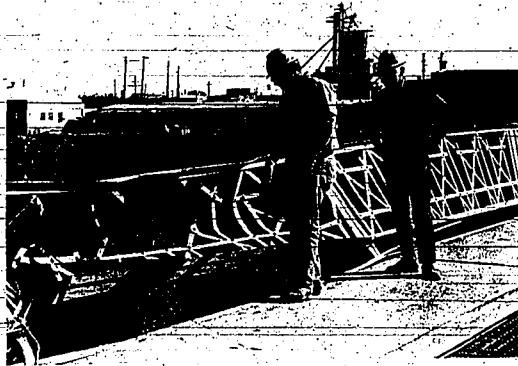

Jim Benson told of plans for 4-H Achievement Day to be held July 13 at the Wendell City Park.

Kimberly aid sought

KIMBERLY — A Kimberly businessman has asked for help from the City Council in enlarging his building to conform to state health regulations.

Eddy Widmer, city clerk, read a letter at the council meeting Tuesday night from Darrell Murray, owner of Val's Butcher Shop, saying he had been told by the health department he has to change his building to conform to new state regulations.

Mayor Von Nebeker said the structure is a non-conforming building, which was already located when the zoning ordinance was passed some years ago, "there is some question" if the building can legally be enlarged.

Councilmen decided Murray should request the state agency to present a written statement to them saying they would close the business if it was not enlarged and then the council will investigate all ways to assist him.

Bill Block, Jerome, JUB Engineering Firm, Twin Falls, told councilmen the Yakima Wash. firm which had the lowest bid on the sewer interceptor project at the May 24 bid opening had made a mistake in its bid, but that it should not cause any serious problem.

The firm had listed only the cost of one crossing when there are six, so the total bid now will be $444,725.49, which is still about $1,900 under the next lowest bid from Nelson and Co. Twin Falls.

Block said the bid had received state approval and is now in the Seattle office of the Environmental Protection Agency. He expects an affirmative answer on the grant in about two weeks after which the city can officially award the contract.

Vawser reported Jeep Bowman wants the city to put in an irrigation ditch to his property, but councilmen said this is a problem between the adjoining property owners and not in the city's jurisdiction.

Minico landfill illegal

RUPERT — Minidoka County commissioners have been told Monday that the county landfill was not in compliance with state regulations.

Roy Rice, Idaho State Environmental Protection Agency inspector, told the commissioners at their regular meeting that the landfill operated by the county is "way out of compliance" and that the situation would have to be corrected.

Rice said that to meet current regulations, 2-1/2 times the present amount of fill material would have to be used to cover waste materials properly.

Commissioner Lyle Burton told Rice that the fill had been operating this year "in the black" and that more revenue will be required to bring the operation into line with regulation.

Two men may be necessary to operate this landfill to handle extra work. The county now has one man working at the fill.

According to commissioners, one of the major problems is in dealing with waste paper, particularly from local industries, which is brought to the fill in large amounts.

Commission Chairman Elmer Ketterling said that the charge for handling waste paper will have to be increased, possibly up to $10 per ton.

Rice suggested that the ultimate answer to the paper disposal problem is in recycling. There are no recycling facilities in the county. Rice said that tonight the city is recycling effort if the charge for disposal of paper is high enough.

The county has been informed that burning will not be allowed at the fill. Much of the paper has been burned in the past. Without burning more of the material will have to be covered.

Rice said the problems of disposal have increased "tremendously" in the last several years because of more complicated packaging of household products. Many modern materials are durable and will not degrade.

Rice told the commission that the state cannot tell the county how to finance the work required by regulations but will demand that the job is done.

Life's battle almost over for Generalissimo

TAIPEI (UPI)—The battle is almost over for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. According to some wellplaced sources, the 85-year-old president of the Republic of China, always a frail man, is now more frail than usual and frequently lapses into senility, unable to perform any official duties.

"He could live for many more years, of course," one of the sources said. "But his working days definitely are over. There can be no doubt about that."

One of the sources described Chiang, who lost the mainland of China to the Communists 25 years ago and has been waging a hopeless battle to return ever since, as at death's door. The source said that there is "virtually a death watch" at the presidential residence in a wooded area called "Scholar's Forest" on the slope of a suburb named "Yanminshan" (Grass Mountain).

Chief government spokesman Frederick Chien, however, denied Wednesday that the president's health was so poor that he could be described as at "death's door." And it's also totally untrue that we are maintaining a "death watch" over our president. It's a flagrant lie," Chien said.

Chiang, who took the mantle of leadership from the founder of the Republic of China, Dr. Sun Yat-sen after Sun's death in 1925, has not appeared in public since July 18, 1972.

The deterioration of Chiang's health and his disappearance from the frontlines of leadership began after an automobile accident in 1969. He spent 3 1/2 months in a hospital as a result of injuries suffered when an army truck hit the car in which he and his wife were riding near their residence.

In July, 1972, only two months after being sworn in as president for his fifth six-year term, he contracted pneumonia, which was complicated by a heart condition. He was in critical condition for about a month, spending much of the time in an oxygen tent.

The last time Chiang saw any foreign visitors was in late March when he received outgoing American Ambassador Walter P. McCaughy and other American guests. They were the first to see him in almost two years.

Whatever the precise state of his health may be, Chiang's day is done.

The leadership that he held so long is solidly and safely in the hands of his eldest son, Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, 64.

"And the republic he will leave behind is prospering."

Each of the guests reported later that Chiang seemed lucid and talked about some matters of substance related to the specific interests of the particular guest. (Some of the guests were U.S. military officers.)

However, none of the guests was a Chinese speaker.

Whatever the precise state of his health may be, Chiang's day is done.

BOISE (UPI)—A Malibu, Calif., man has been awarded $38,250 damages in US District Court for injuries to his ankle that he said resulted from a fall on ice at Sun Valley Lodge.

Timothy R. Lyon, 47, originally asked for damages totaling $50,000 in the suit against the Sun Valley Co. Inc.

Lyon said he slipped on an icy walk while a guest at the lodge in late December 1972. The fall broke his ankle.

He charged the lodge was negligent in allowing ice to build up on the walk where he fell.

Egypt returns university

CAIRO (UPI)—The 55-year-old American University in Cairo (AUC) returned to American control Wednesday seven years after it was seized by the Egyptian government.

Egypt took over the university at the time of the rupture of diplomatic relations with the United States over American support for Israel in the 1967 "six-day war."

The university had continued to operate under Egyptian control.

A few months ago, it became known the government had decided to return it, but Cairo Radio chose to make the announcement only minutes before President Nixon's arrival.

A small but respected institution founded in 1919, AUC is situated in the heart of Cairo, at El Tahrir (Liberation) Square. It has a staff of about 150 teachers, mostly Americans and Egyptians, and a student enrollment of about 1,500.

The university offers courses in management, economics, solid state science, English language and literature.

Scientists begin Big Foot search

(c) The DALLES, Ore. — A team of scientists has begun a sophisticated search for Big Foot, the fabled hairy ape-man of the American northwest.

The base of operations is near the base of Mt. Hood in the main range of the Cascade Mountains, and close to the Columbia River Gorge.

The Big Foot search party is keeping a vigil on a rocky promontory high above the river near The Dalles.

Their watch is aided by sophisticated optical instruments and night-time photographic equipment.

The barren post is in the midst of deep, shadowy crags that seem to appeal to Big Foot, for in past years many people have reported seeing him prowling these heights.

Team members, however, report no new sightings.

They are using as their headquarters the new Big Foot-Sasquatch Rehabilitation Center in The Dalles, Sasquatch is the Indian name for the ape-like creature that some believe has inhabited these mountains and forests for many years.

Big Foot's notoriety has grown to the point that he rivals the Himalayas' Abominable Snowman or Yeti, and Scotland's Loch Ness monster in folklorish mystery and scientific fascination.

Peter Byrne, the Irish explorer who recently founded the "Big Foot" museum, considers it fortunate that the opening coincided with the beginning of the National Wildlife Federation's search project.

Byrne is a friend of Robert Morgan, head of the federation's team. The two men searched for the Himalayan Yeti together on a previous expedition.

The current search is being financed with money donated to the federation by an unidentified woman in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., who has long been interested in getting the goods on Big Foot once and for all.

Byrne says there has been some misunderstanding about the financing and the nature of the federation. He assures those who protest that the expenditure of $250,000 to find what may be a wild goose, rather than a fearsome beast, that the federation is a privately endowed organization, not a government agency.

Byrne set up his museum in a 60-foot trailer on the western edge of The Dalles. Above it waves a yellow pennant bearing a huge black footprint.

Inside, the walls are crowded with reprints of news stories, photographs, charts and drawings, all featuring Big Foot. Display cases contain plaster casts of the creature's tracks and the skulls of prehistoric humans.

Byrne himself has never caught a glimpse of Big Foot, but is 99 per cent sure that the elusive giant exists.

"I have chased Big Foot with enough reliable, stable people who have claimed sightings that I believe I know accurately whether someone is telling the truth about what he said."

"I can't discredit many of the reports I have heard."

Byrne argues that Big Foot sightings have been reported over a span of two thousand years to be a hoax. The museum walls bear copies of newspaper articles about hairy apes in the 1850s.

One purpose of the museum, he said, is to act as a clearing house for Big Foot facts. People who have sighted the creature are eagerly sought.

The center is offering a $1,000 reward to anyone providing information that leads directly to a find by the center's investigative team, a find that is deemed of value.

Byrne says some people have been reluctant to report Big Foot sightings. They fear ridicule for lying or hallucinating. He says he will protect the anonymity of anyone who wishes to.

Though this Wasco County town is by far the largest in the area, it is not the likeliest focus for Big Foot attention.

Folks here have never been appreciably Big Foot-conscious whereas Skamania — and Klickitat counties across the river in Washington have been hotbeds of Big Foot speculation for years.

In Skamania County, for example, a flurry of Big Foot sightings stirred the scattered populace in 1966. Last the furry monster fell "blind" down by a mob and slain, the county board of commissioners enacted an emergency ordinance decreeing that anyone who "willfully and wantonly" kills Big Foot can be tossed in jail for five years. The law still stands.

Truckers cleared of conspiracy charges

WINNEMUCCA, Nev. (UPI) — Two independent truckers have been cleared of charges they threatened another driver during a recent strike.

District attorney William McDonald said Ronald Thomson and John Banks had been charged with coercion and threatening to damage or destroy a vehicle during the May strike by independent truckers in northern Nevada.

McDonald said an investigation showed they were merely trying to tell William Dale, the trucker who brought the charges, about possible trouble if he returned to Reno with his rig. McDonald said they took polygraph tests which satisfied authorities the men were not participating in any threat or conspiracy to threaten anyone.

MV shoppers find sugar prices continue to climb

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Making do with less sugar may become a peacetime—as well as wartime—occupation.

During World War II, sugar was rationed because of limited supply. In 1974, the price of sugar may force shoppers to ration themselves.

In a short six months, the price of sugar has almost doubled. In January, a 10-pound bag cost the shopper an average of $1.65. Now, the same 10-pound bag is priced at $3.25 in most markets here.

The increase amounts to about 97 per cent in six months, an incredible annual rate of 194 per cent.

But the rising price hasn't been halted. At least one market was already selling a 10-pound bag for $3.40, and other stores are expected to raise their prices soon.

At that price, the six-month climb has more than doubled the cost of sugar to the shopper. And "the price of sugar is going to continue to go up," according to company sources.

Alan Hamline, public relations director for White Saffir Sugar, said increases seem to have come almost weekly for the past four or five weeks.

In a normal six-month period, sugar prices could increase once or twice, Hamline said. But since the first of January, prices have gone up 11 times.

And they're expected to go up again. And again.

"The sugar price explosion is caused by the rapid rise in world sugar prices. Sugar men say consumption has outrun production for the past several years. Previously underdeveloped countries are getting more money into their economies, and sugar is one of the products they're buying.

Sugar is moving out of the luxury list and into the basic category in European and African countries, according to Hamline. Increasing consumption of sugar there is helping to jack the world price up.

Per capita sugar consumption in the United States is high—102 pounds yearly. Comparable figures for the most and least sugar eaters are 126 pounds yearly for the Irish, and 9 pounds yearly in China and Afghanistan.

At present prices, yearly per capita cost for sugar, about $18 at the beginning of the year, has increased to almost $20 in six months.

Using a conservative population estimate of 208 million Americans, that means this country is spending about $4.16 billion more on sugar yearly than it would have six months ago.

Back to everyday reality, these soaring prices may mean that the cost of a kid's Yum Yum Cup Cake is out of the range of his allowance, or that mothers bake fewer cakes and cookies.

What's the price going to be in six more months? Supermarket managers and sugar officials shrug their shoulders and say they have no idea.

And at least one person has begun stocking up. Sugar company employe Hamline thinks he's lucky. He and his wife "holed-up" our basement" when a 10-pound sack was $3.

A Lovelier You HOW SPORTING CAN YOU GET?

One says more, and more "cutey" clothes on courts and links—Do the bright colors and fancy trims appeal to you? "Yes," you might answer, "when they're worn by a pretty, well-groomed young girl!"

It's a fact that most tennis clubs have given up stringent all-white court rules. Center courts are sometimes the exception. But how many of us are of center-court caliber, now that everyone's for tennis?

Let's not get so far out of all-white that we look thrown together in a mix-muss of bright shades. Pastels are acceptable as proven by Miss Wade's pale pink dress and hair bow. White dresses with a color accent play a good game; a la Chris Evert.

Couple recites promise

GOODING—Carole Strasser became the bride of Clay Zlatnik in a candlelight ceremony May 21, at the Gooding United Methodist Church.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Edson Gilmore before an altar decorated with arrangements of pink gladiol and white pom-pom chrysanthemums, and candlelight.

Walter Stoller, grandfather of the bride, gave her in marriage. She wore a floor-length gown of white satin with a train. The dress was made by Joan Jarvis, aunt of the bride.

She carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds, stephanotis, and baby's breath.

Julie Stephenson was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sylvia Kraus and Carol Zlatnik, sister of the bridegroom.

Clint Zlatnik, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Bruce Case and Arden Schmitt were ushers. Candlelighters were Randy Davis and Randy Hill. Claudia and Colleen Stoller, twin cousins of the bride, were ring bearers.

2 TF benefit events set on same date

TWIN FALLS—Residents of Magic Valley will have a choice of two major entertainment features here June 26.

The date happened to be selected by both the Twin Falls Chapter, American Red Cross and the Twin Falls Music Club for their special fund raising events. A fund raising organization plans to make any changes at this late time.

The Red Cross event will be a premiere showing of the movie musical, "Mame," starring Lucille Ball. The Warner Brothers production opens here June 26 and the first night has been devoted to a special premiere party showing for the Red Cross. The show begins at 8 p.m. with a special intermission program.

Members of the Twin Falls Music Club are also well along with their planning for a musical play, "Slow Dusk," which will include a champagne buffet to raise money for a club project. Proceeds will go to the CSI Music and Drama Department.

Hazel Wilder, Red Cross publicity chairman, said a number of tickets have been sold for the Mame premiere showing including those in a Golden Row section reserved for those making special contributions.

The showing is designed to help the Red Cross chapter make up a $5,000 shortage in the annual fund drive and officials of the Tri-City Cinema Theater have donated the 500-seat facility, services of their staff and Warner Brothers have donated the film for the one night.

Tickets are available at the Red Cross office, Music Center, Penny-Wise Drug, or from Mrs. Wilder, Ted Manker or Connie Lee, premiere chairman.

Alice Reed, Music Club spokesman, said this event, too, has been planned months in advance and cannot be postponed. Rehearsals have been underway for some time, she said. The program will include songs by four major area vocalists, Mrs. David Mead, Mrs. Lloyd Walker, Roger Vincent and Jay Fowles. The 40-minute love story will be staged in the College of Southport, Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium before an unusual setting of Impressionistic backdrops.

The show itself will be followed by the champagne buffet in the Blue Lakes Inn and theatergoers may attend either the musical event only or both the show and buffet.

Mrs. Reed said about 300 are expected to go from the theater to the Blue Lakes Inn for the final part of the evening's entertainment. Mrs. John McKain is ticket chairman and tickets may be purchased at Twin Falls music stores.

Couple marries at Buhl

ROGERSON — Janie Schuell and Shane Morton were married May 28 in the Buhl First-Freewill Church.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. B. Thomas in the chapel which was decorated with three-piece beaus—candelabra—decorated with white and green gladioli complemented with yellow chrysanthemums, yellow daisies, light green poms, poms chrysanthemums, three-piece carnations and baby's breath. Aisle candelabra decorated to match completed the decoration.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Schuell, Rogerson, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Morton, St. Anthony.

Mr. and Mrs. Shane Morton

The bride wore a floor-length gown of nylon chiffon with a bouffant skirt, high neckline and long full sleeves. The neckline and skirt were trimmed with wide lace. Chantilly lace also decorated the bodice and sleeves.

Her lace edged cathedral length veil was held by a cap of flowers. She carried a colonial bridal bouquet of lily of the valley and white stephanotis with yellow roses and baby's breath. The bouquet was tied with white lace ribbon.

The bride wore Swedish crystals borrowed from her aunt, Mrs. LeVar Hansen, an old opal ring owned by her maternal great-grandmother, a blue garter and a penny in her shoe.

Betty Schuell was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Sandy Whitney, Rogerson; Janice Bird, Halley, and Rita Martin, St. Anthony.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a white slipper satin tablecloth with a white floor length fringe caught at the edges and centered with nosegays of yellow daisies tied with green, bows and streamers.

The four tiered wedding cake had four heart shaped cakes at the base and was decorated with yellow daisies. A miniature bride couple under an archway of lily of the valley with white doves was placed on top. Colonial arrangements of yellow daisies with two yellow lapers in tall crystal compotes completed the table arrangements.

The quartet guest tables were covered with white slipper satin tablecloths with hurricane candleholders, yellow daisies and baby's breath in the center.

Margaret Wood, Helen Yance, Kay Hansen and Betty Jones served cake, punch and coffee. Ann Teater was in charge of the guest book, Brook Morton, Anita Young and Donna Cox cared for gifts.

Following a wedding trip to Jackson Hole, Wyo., the couple resides in St. Anthony, where the bridegroom is employed.

Burley miss, Dayley say vows

BURLEY — Janie Ramsey and Randy Dayley were married in a late afternoon ceremony, May 30 at the home of the bridegroom's mother in Springdale.

Bishop Eugene Christensen, Springdale, performed the ceremony before a rock fireplace flanked with tall white beauty baskets of white chrysanthemums and pink carnations accented with large pink bows and streamers.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Alene Ramsey and Lloyd Ramsey, both Burley. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Max Dayley, Springdale, and the late Max Dayley.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white lace over taffeta styled with an empire waistline, square neckline and short lace sleeves. The bodice was trimmed with white satin ribbon.

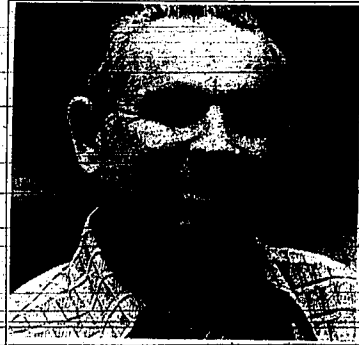

Her elbow length veil of illusion was held by a wide white ribbon crown accented with seed pearls. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink rosebuds surrounded with white carnations and tied with white ribbon and streamers. Linda Dayley, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Kevin Dayley, brother of the bridegroom was best man.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony at Mrs. Dayley's home.

DEAR ABBY: I am approaching 40 and so is my wife. We have been married for 22 years. Like most couples our sex life isn't what it used to be. My wife can take or leave it—I'm no sex maniac; but I'm not exactly dead.

Christmas the wife gave me a Polaroid camera, and just for the heck of it, she let me take a picture of her in the bedroom, unclad. That's when I discovered those pictures really turned me on.

Now, all of a sudden the wife tells me she is no striptease model, and she doesn't want to pose for any more pornography. I say it's not pornography as long as we're married because I'm the only one who sees these pictures.

We are both here again Christmas. I'd like your opinion. Am I kooky or not? SHUTTERBUG

Shutterbug problems

DEAR SHUTTER: Not kooky, just a little far out. Whatever you do behind closed doors that is mutually agreeable is all right, I'm sold. Now all you have to do is sell the wife.

DEAR ABBY: I'm so upset, I don't know what to do anymore. I've called the police, military base, Chamber of Commerce, the base chaplain and three lawyers. As I write this I am crying and have a knot in my throat.

I've been married to a serviceman for 15 years and now he is involved with a red-headed woman who works where he works. (He got her the job.) He picks her up and drives her home, and I see him only when he comes here to change his clothes.

He has told me he doesn't love me anymore, and as soon as he can afford it he will officially divorce me. He's even tried to push me at me. I am so hurt I could die!

I would be away with myself if I didn't have five kids who need me. When I complain about the way he treats me, he beats me up. I know you'll think I'm crazy, but I still love him and want to know how I can get him back. MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: Your chances for getting him back are small, and from your letter, I think you're better off without him. But if you considered doing away with yourself, you need help in handling your problems. It's available through your County Mental Health Association, and Family Service Association. Give them a call.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "AM I AN ALCOHOLIC?": That's a tough one to answer because there is no absolute definition of an alcoholic, but here's a partial checklist drawn up by the National Council of Alcoholism:

• Do you drink heavily after a disappointment or a quarrel?

• Did you ever wake up the morning after to discover you couldn't remember part of the evening before even though you didn't pass out?

• Do you try to have a few extra drinks when others will not know?

• Have you often failed to keep a promise to yourself about controlling an outburst during your drinking?

If the answer is "yes" to any one of the above questions, you have a problem. And the best solution for that kind of problem begins with one telephone call—to Alcoholics Anonymous. They're in your telephone book. It's your move.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "H. IN OMAHA": I don't recommend marrying a man for his money. You may have to divorce him to get it.

Corn crop caution makes experts edgy

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Uncertainty over the size of the 1974 corn crop is producing a nervous air of caution in predictions from government experts on future consumer supplies and prices of livestock foods including meat, poultry and eggs.

Agriculture Department specialists, in a report Tuesday, reported their earlier basic forecast that expected 1974 grain harvests will bring down livestock feed cost. That should lead to expanded livestock production in the second half of this year and continued growth in supplies for consumers in early 1975, they said.

But the outlook could change sharply if crop production falls substantially.

expectations or if there is an unexpected increase in export demand for grain crops, the experts warned.

Economists noted that cattle, hog and turkey producers already have suffered heavy losses this year because of a combination of high feed costs and comparatively depressed prices for their products: If prospects for a corn crop big enough to bring prices down substantially don't materialize, farmers who buy corn to feed to livestock and poultry could change their minds.

"For example, if prospects for the 1974 corn crop drop below the 6.17 billion bushels now projected, look for a dampening of poultry and egg production before year's end, and an impact on first-half 1975 livestock marketing," economist said in an "Agricultural Outlook Digest."

The "projection" of a 6.7 billion bushel crop — the biggest in history and about 1 billion bushels above last year — was based on estimates of farmers' planting intentions and an assumption that weather and fertilizer supplies would be good enough to boost national average corn yields to 97 bushels per acre.

Since the projection was made, however, field reports have indicated that wet weather in many corn belt areas has kept planting behind schedule, a factor that could result in lower final yields. A weekly weather report this week said rains continued to hamper planting progress last week, and estimated that as of June 9 about 91 per cent of the crop had been planted.

Import curb endorsed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Speedy enactment of an import curb on foreign beef imports is being urged by Rep. Steve Symms, R-Idaho.

Symms told Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz Monday he found the cattle industry in his congressional district in "dire straits."

The Idaho congressman said in fact "the situation is so bad that many are facing bankruptcy."

Orange crop yield increases slightly

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prospects for the 1973-74 orange crop improved slightly during May, bringing the crop forecast up about 1/2 of 1 per cent to 216 million boxes, the Agriculture Department reported.

The latest forecast, 1 million boxes above last month's estimate, puts the prospective total harvest 4 per cent below last year's record of 223 million boxes.

The crop-reporting board also estimated grapefruit production at 64.5 million boxes and lemon output at 17.4 million boxes.

The grapefruit forecast compared with a May estimate of 63.7 million boxes and last year's crop of 65.6 million boxes. The lemon figure compared with last month's estimate of 17.4 million boxes and last year's crop of 22.2 million boxes.

As of the end of May, the report said the orange harvest was 91 per cent complete and the grapefruit harvest 91 per cent complete.

The board said processors had used 91 per cent of the oranges harvested so far, 3 per cent of the grapefruit and 35 per cent of the lemons. Experts estimated that producers of frozen concentrated orange juice were getting 1.30 gallons of concentrate from each box of fresh oranges compared with last season's yield of 1.33 gallons per box.

The lemon harvest was 77 per cent complete by June 1. The increase in the orange crop

Shipment slated

TWIN FALLS — Charles Potucek, Kimberley, president of the Twin Falls County Livestock Marketing Association, has announced a wool shipment June 19.

The pool will be loaded at the Jerome railroad depot because facilities are not available in Twin Falls. The wool from association members will be received at 8 a.m. and through noon, Potucek said.

Idaho feeders ask for import quotas

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus and the state's Cattle Feeders Association are in agreement that an economic disaster looms unless there are foreign beef import quotas.

Andrus joined with the cattle feeders after meeting with the association leaders here Monday.

Both Andrus and Robert W. Rebholz, American Falls, association president, urged immediate federal action to reimpose the import quotas.

Rebholz said the U.S. cattle industry has suffered an estimated $1.5 billion in losses the past six months, mostly in equity money, and a lot of feeders cannot survive.

The economic situation, said Rebholz, is "probably the worst disaster that has ever hit since the depression."

Andrus agreed with Rebholz's assessment and predicted the effects of the economic problems could be long lasting.

Rebholz said Canada, Japan

Orofino drops TF legión 5-4

Orofino took advantage of a pair of bases-loaded walks for two ninth-inning runs and defeated Twin Falls Legion team 5-4 Wednesday night.

The North Idaho team opened with a first-inning hit when Finke lived on an error and was singled home by Millard.

In the sixth a walk to Sherrel followed by two throwing errors got another run.

Twin Falls rebounded into the lead on consecutive hits by Bob Woods and Tim Crist and Gary Huff lived on a fielder's choice that retired no one. Curtis Ward drove in Woods with a hit and Crist scored when a balk was charged against Orofino.

Seconds later Mike Gabica sent the Orofino first baseman into the dust on a diving grab of a bounce and Gabica beat the play out as no one covered first. Orofino forgot to check Ward who sneaked all the way in from second during the play.

Schneider was singled home by Finke to knot it in the seventh and then came the fateful ninth. Leach and Williams opened with singles and then came the three walks and two runs before a 5-3 double play got Twin Falls out of the jam.

Twin Falls' last run came with two away in the ninth when Woods was hit by a pitch and flew around on Crist's long double.

Twin Falls travels to Nampa for a three-game set this weekend.

Protects Innocent

HOUSTON (UPI) — An attorney for Dallas Cowboys' linebacker Rodrigo Barnes says the football player dropped a libel suit against a writer because prosecutors of the suit might hurt "individuals who are not parties to the controversy."

A book, "Saturday's Children," said Barnes, then a Rice University defenseman, asked for and got money for playing college football. Barnes has denied every charge and earlier this year he filed the suit against the book's author, Giles Tippet.

Sneaking a run

SNEAKING HOME, Curtis Ward of the Twin Falls Legion hits the plate while the Orofino catcher waits for a throw that never came. Ward scored from second while the Orofino infield forgot about him and held the ball. But the Northern Idaho team won 5-4.

Perry wins 11th straight as Indians down Chicago

CHICAGO (UPI) — Gaylord Perry, who lost opening day, continued his assault on the American League record book Wednesday night by notching his 11th consecutive win in hurling the Cleveland Indians to a 4-0 win over the Chicago White Sox.

Perry's triumph, the 18th of his career, enabled the veteran right-hander to join brother Jim as the all-time major league pitching winners. Coupled with Jim's 60 triumph Tuesday night, the two Perrys have now won 397 games, bettering the previous mark established at the turn of the century by the 56th-year trio of Arthur, John and Walter Clark.

Chicago's 11th loss in 13 games since the All-Star break was the 11th straight for the White Sox. The Indians, on the other hand, won their 11th straight game since the All-Star break. The Indians' record is 11-0 since the All-Star break, while the White Sox are 0-11.

GET BIG RESULTS

Embarrassment sure for some golfers

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (UPI) — Take it from the men who know best, there are going to be a lot of embarrassing and good stories coming out of the U.S. Open, which got underway this morning.

Doomsday was the official word that emanated from the contestants following their get-acquainted practice rounds over the newly-renovated Winged Foot Golf Club, and even Johnny Miller and Hubert Green are expected to have won exactly one-third of the PGA tournaments and $350,000 this year, predicted the winning score could sky as high as 10-over-par.

"You're going to hear some guys tell some great stories as their putting," said Miller, who won the 1973 Open at Oakland, Pa., and has taken five events this year. "You might be surprised at what will win this tournament—it might be 290. These are as tough as any greens in the world and you'll probably see some well-known players coming in at 290 or 300."

"It'll be a joke watching a mediocre putter trying to putt on these greens. The course requires conservative type play. If you can just make pars here you'll be in good shape."

Green, a winner three times this year and second in earnings only behind Miller with $156,000, also predicted the worst after his final practice tour of the 6,961-yard, par-70 course.

"I'm not a predictor, but I don't think five guys will break 200," he said. "It's going to take a guy with a little maturity, a guy who can take adversity and hang on even during bad times. There are going to be a lot of numbers people aren't proud of."

"Nevertheless, I feel that overall it's a great golf course, a great test. I've even seen the rough is deep, but not overly deep. The greens are severe, but playable. The bunkers are difficult, but can be overcome. It's a great driving course."

There was hardly a soul in the field of 138 pros and 12 amateurs who disagreed with the estimate of the course as being difficult. Billy Casper, who won the U.S. Open the last time it was played at Winged Foot in 1959, called it "the toughest Open course I've ever played." Jack Nicklaus, as always one of the favorites, reckoned that a score over par could win; and Arnold Palmer said the important thing here "is to have patience. This isn't a place to get discouraged by a couple of bad holes."

The championship lost some of its charm before it even started as 62-year-old Sam Snead, who competed in 30 Opens, was forced to withdraw Wednesday because of a cracked rib. This is the one major tournament that Snead has failed to win and he said he was playing as well as he ever has before an Open.

Just two years ago, at Pebble Beach, Nicklaus won the Open with a 290, the second highest winning score in 30 years.

Muny links slates father-son tourney

TWIN FALLS — The annual Father-Son two-man best ball golf tournament is set for this Sunday, Father's Day at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

The tournament is sponsored by the Twin Falls Men's Golf Association. According to association president, Ray Cronquist, the terms must be "a father-son combination of father and/or other relative such as son-in-law or nephew. Entry fee for the 18 hole tournament is $5.00.

Clyde Thomsen, Muny golf professional, asked that all participating teams in the tournament schedule tee-off times before 11 a.m. if possible.

Winner of the tournament will receive a traveling Championship trophy donated by Duard Lawley.

Winners of the Men's Golf Association two-man Scotch Ball tournament, Wednesday were: first gross, the Mike Robertson - Dave Driscoll and Kevin Packard - Gary Duncan, 69; second, Gary Jenkins - Bob Slater, 76; and third, Mike Thorne - Gary Bene, 77.

In the net division, winners were: first, Burt Bolinger - Ed McClain, 64; second, Harold Huston - Pete Stover, 66; and tied for third, Teddy Reed and Ken Kreyer, 67.

Twenty-seven two-man teams participated in the tournament.

Royal owner stuns by firing general manager

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — In a move that can only be judged as startling, Cedric Tallis has lost his job as general manager of the Kansas City Royals.

"The man who built the six-year expansion team into a legitimate title threat in the American League was abruptly fired by Joe Garagiola, brief announcement Tuesday night. The responsibility for the brainstorm belongs to one man-owner Ewing Kauffman.

Tallis was as startled as everyone else in the Royals organization when he was called to Kauffman's office at Marion Laboratories on Monday.

Previous announcement was couched in terms that Tallis would remain in the Royals organization as "vice president of baseball." But there is little doubt that Tallis, who in 1971 was voted league executive of the year by his peers, will find another job after this season.

The 57-year-old Tallis attempted to portray his sacking with calm Wednesday in his office, where he spent the day answering calls from shocked

Sanderson vengeful

MONTREAL (UPI) — "I have some things to prove. I want to win the Stanley Cup and I want to beat the Boston Bruins very badly."

That was Derek Sanderson's immediate reaction to the intricate network of deals Wednesday which sent him to the New York Rangers from the Boston Bruins.

Sanderson, the volatile and controversial 28-year-old center, had been suspended by coach Bep Guidolin several weeks before the Bruins entered the playoffs this season, and had said he would never play for Boston again.

He went to the Rangers with his agent, Bob Woolf, and New York general manager Emile Francis agreed on financial terms and the deal was sealed when Boston accepted center Walt Meckheine.

Bulls sign Pondexter

CHICAGO (UPI) — Cliff Pondexter, the Long Beach State freshman basketball star, signed a multi-year contract with the Chicago Bulls Wednesday.

"We felt he had the greatest potential to dominate a game," said Coach Dick Motta, beaming with pleasure over the signing of the 6-9, 250-pound teenager.

Pondexter, 19, was a first-round draft choice of the Bulls. He became eligible because of the "hardship rule" which allows college players to sign professional contracts without their graduating class if there are family financial problems.

Congress lauds Aaron

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hank Aaron, baseball's premier home run hitter, today becomes the first sports figure ever to appear on the podium in the U.S. House of Representatives from either Presidents and prime ministers, national heroes and crowned rulers have spoken.

The Atlanta Braves star, guest of honor at Flag Day ceremonies in the House, will speak from the same historic spot where such figures as Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Queen Elizabeth, Charles DeGaulle and Emperor Haile Selassie addressed Congress.

Little League goes co-ed

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — Little League officials announced Wednesday that it will "defer to the changing social climate" and ask Congress to change its charter to allow girls to play in the organization.

The announcement from the board of directors of Little League Baseball, Inc., and the trusteeship of the Little League Foundation said its action was effective immediately.

"It is the unanimous view of the board and the trusteeship that acceptance and screening of young girls, following registration procedures, should be adjudged by the local league organizations and not by the international body," the statement said.

NHL adds franchises

MONTREAL (UPI) — The National Hockey League, in the midst of stocking its two newest member teams with players for new-season tryouts and training meetings Wednesday, to expand by two more teams in 1976 with franchises being granted to Denver and Seattle.

The new franchises were granted to Denver, represented by Ivan Mullenix, and to Seattle, represented by Vince Abbey. However, the league's board of governors rejected proposed franchise for San Diego.

Co-founders, particularly Montreal's Michel Plasse and minor-leaguers Ron Low of Toronto and Pete McDuff of the New York Rangers — took top priority at the expansion grab bag for the league's two newest members, Kansas City and Washington.

'Rozelle rule' continues to halt NFL negotiations

NEW YORK (UPI) — National Football League players and owners scrimmaged again Wednesday but failed to gain any ground on each other. The owners made one "offer" and suggested three other possibilities towards changing the "Rozelle rule" which has been the main stumbling block in the negotiations for a settlement.

The "offer" the owners made was to substitute collective bargaining between the NFL Players Association and the owners on all salaries instead of individual bargaining between players and their clubs.

Theodore Kheel, representing the owners, said the players "rejected that in 10 seconds."

Kheel said the players "rejected" in 10 seconds a suggestion of salary arbitration.

The "Rozelle rule" — or "Compensation Clause" as Kheel refers to it, requires a team to be compensated when one of its players plays out his option and is signed by another team. The players call that an infringement on their freedom.

Just for the sake of discussion, the owners suggested exploring the player-owner alternatives used in other sports, such as baseball's "5-year, 10-year rule" in which a player can refuse to be traded after 10 years in the majors and five years with one team, or basketball's no-cut clause after a player plays out his option.

All, Kheel said, were rejected outright by the NFL players.

The other major "freedom issue" the Rozelle rule was not substantially discussed.

If Wednesday's all-day session was constructive at all it was in "more in tone" than in solving issues.

"Before it was one side saying 'we're right' and the other side saying 'you're wrong' but now there's an obvious willingness to discuss the issues," said Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, the very articulate president of the Players Association. "But there's still a reluctance by the owners to get down to brass tacks. We haven't heard anything we can really work with yet."

"It was the best discussion we've had so far," Kheel said. "At least both sides are talking."

The Players' representative, Ed Garvey, termed the meeting a "positive session" but said it was all theory and just a "good philosophical discussion."

Both sides will continue talking Wednesday morning but it is doubtful anything concrete will come of that either. At this point, the players and the owners are still trying to understand each other's position. Three more sessions are planned for Washington next week.

The players have threatened to strike July 1 if an agreement is not reached. A strike would cancel the exhibition opener between the Miami Dolphins and College All-Stars July 26.

The owners Wednesday insisted that, should the game not be played, the Dolphins would not be reimbursed for back pay during the strike. The Dolphins would normally receive one game's pay, prorated on their season salary.

Protest denied

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American League turned down a protest by the Cleveland Indians Wednesday and upheld the June 4 "beer night" game forfeit to the Texas Rangers, which didn't really come as any big surprise to Cleveland General Manager Phil Seghi.

Seghi conceded he didn't expect the protest to be upheld by American League President Lee MacPhail when the Indians lodged it on June 5 following the near riot that took place at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium, the night before.

MacPhail heard in person the renewal of the protest by Seghi and Cleveland vice-president Ted Bondo and then told them: "The events leading to the forfeiture by Cleveland to Texas of the game of June 4 were reviewed in detail. The decision of the umpires to forfeit the game has been sustained."

No conversion kick

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — The World Football League eliminated the "automatic" extra-point kick from its games for its forthcoming first season, giving seven points for a touchdown and forcing teams to run or pass to tack on an eighth point.

Snead withdraws

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (UPI) — Venerable Sam Snead, saying "I couldn't play now to save my life," withdrew from the U.S. Open Championship Wednesday because of a cracked left rib.

The 62-year-old Snead never has won the U.S. Open although he was ready to make his 31st attempt in the tournament starting Thursday.

"I started a couple of weeks ago at Kemper and it's been bothering me every day," Snead said just before leaving for home.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

It has long been the popular belief that the fellow who sows a sizable crop of wild oats before marriage tends to be the most faithful during his matrimonial years. That's wrong, says our Love and War man. Recent studies seem to prove beyond doubt that these wild blades who were promiscuous before their weddings are more likely to commit adultery thereafter.

How long did it take your infant son to discover one of his own foet? On average, that happens at about 28 weeks of age. I'm told.

Figure a Braile book will be about 30 times bigger than the same book printed in ink.

One out of every five grownups skips breakfast.

CARRENAL

Are there car rental services in the Soviet Union? A No! At last report, the Russians started such a service 13 years ago, but it folded. Too few cars. Not enough spare parts. And no insurance to cover the renter. A customer would take out a car, blow the engine, be required then not only to pay for the repair, but to pay the daily rental during the repair. This took months sometimes. Terse situation.

If you've ever thrown a pine cone into a campfire, you may recall how the heads explode from them. Or almost. Anyhow, it opens them up in a hurry, releasing their seeds. That's why little pine trees spring up so quickly on those black lands burned over by forest fires. The fire plants the new forest immediately. This is Item No. 14727, in our Ain't Nature Wonderful file.

AGE 50

When a wife reaches the age of 50, and the man finds her no longer responsive to his advances, what then happens? He goes to other women to satisfy his urge. The only solution is to allow the man to have more than one wife, provided he can maintain all of them. That was the pronouncement of a legislator in the Johore State Assembly of Malaya. He and his party strove to pass a law (there to permit polygamy). Its justification, that when a man reaches 50, he has a widely known fact that all women lose their romantic inclinations by age 50.

In that matter of participating sports, more men nationwide favor swimming than anything else. After that comes fishing. Then pool. And camping. So say the surveytakers.
