

Experimental narcotic poppies grown in Camas

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Writer

FAIRFIELD—An acre and half of experimental narcotic-producing poppies are being grown on a farm near here.

The red poppies are part of a national experiment intended to produce a widely used narcotic drug, codeine, without relying on the opium poppy.

If successful, this red poppy, named papaver bracteatum, ultimately may eliminate the United States' need to import 300 tons of opium a year.

Experimental poppy sites are located at Fairfield and near Pullman, Wash., and at several other spots across the nation. Mallinckrodt Chemical Co., a St. Louis, Mo., based firm, and the US Department of Agriculture are sponsoring the projects.

Mallinckrodt is paying Don Häuscher, Fairfield, to grow 15 acres of the poppies on his farm.

Like the opium poppy, codeine can be extracted from the papaver bracteatum. But, unlike the opium poppy, codeine is not its primary product—morphine and heroin can be taken practically from this poppy, according to Dr. August H. Honeyer, chemist and consultant to Mallinckrodt.

Codeine is commonly used in prescription cough syrups and as a pain killer. Morphine is used, as a pain killer in extreme, often terminal cases and heroin is outlawed in the United States.

Honeyer described papaver bracteatum as a wild plant from Iran which has never been grown commercially. He said "many problems may be solved before this poppy can become a cultivated crop in the United States."

The problems include selecting the most suitable variety of papaver bracteatum—finding the best fertilizer, and determining the dangers to the poppy crop of insects and diseases. The insect already has been found to devour the plant.

First growing the papaver bracteatum, he said, there are objectives to find a way to supply legitimate medical needs and to eliminate materials from which dangerous drugs like heroin can be made.

With the same idea in mind, the United Nations International Narcotic Control Board is researching the possible use of papaver bracteatum to largely replace the legal cultivation of the opium poppy, Honeyer said.

According to Ray Stratmeyer, division manager for Mallinckrodt, the company has been working on this poppy project for about three years and has sponsored the project in Fairfield for about a year. The firm also has a site in St. Louis, somewhere in Colorado, and in two other sites which Stratmeyer did not want to disclose.

Although Mallinckrodt has not yet determined a commercial location for papaver bracteatum, "considerable chance" exists that it would not be chosen, Stratmeyer said.

Besides choosing a good location for growing—the poppies do best in harsh areas—transportation, land and water availability, land prices and numerous other factors need to be considered in finding the economically best field, he said.

Next spring is the earliest time a commercial crop could be planted. This crop then would not start producing for market until 1975, he said.

"I don't think that would be healthy for the President," said Rep. Trent Lott.

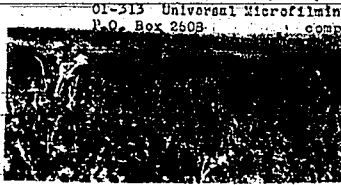

India, currently the source of the United States' legal opium supply has not been producing enough to meet demand. So far, Stratmeyer said, the stock has been taken up with reserve stocks held by the US government.

According to Honeyer, the United States normally imports 300 tons of opium yearly. He could not say how much is available now.

The first commercial step with papaver bracteatum would be to grow enough to supply the demand for codeine, Stratmeyer estimated about four square miles of poppy field would be needed to do this.

If papaver bracteatum proves to be more economical to raise than the opium poppy or if the government passes laws curtailing importation of opium, the papaver bracteatum could ultimately replace the opium poppy for production of codeine, he said.

Rescue team battles Mt. McKinley

MT. MCKINLEY, Alaska (UPI) — A rescue team battled a howling Alaska blizzard Monday night to within 100 feet of a mountain climber fighting for life at the 18,000-foot level of Mt. McKinley, the continent's highest peak.

The climber, Dr. Larry Heggers, 36, a Glendale, Wash. dentist, reportedly was struck by pulmonary edema several days ago as he led a team up the mountain.

"There is one card for the disease—oxygen. A C-131 transport plane at Elmendorf AFB hoped to drop oxygen in containers as soon as thick clouds parted.

Six other men in the party led by Heggers were trying to carry him down to rescuers.

Laotian premier warns resignation

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Premier Souvanna Phouma said today he has done all he can to preserve peace in Laos and will resign if renewed fighting erupts.

"We must prevent any unbecoming events because if a conflict explodes, I can only say, I have done my duty and I will terminate my work," Souvanna said in an exclusive interview with UPI.

The prime minister also said that despite denials by the pro-Communist Pathet-Lao, there are still North-Vietnamese troops in Laos and they must leave under the terms of the peace agreement.

NATO rebukes Netherlands

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The NATO Council rebuked the Netherlands today for announcing plans to trim its armed forces by one fifth and said this would seriously weaken the Alliance's defenses.

The Dutch government Monday published defense plans calling for cuts in manpower and equipment in all three services, saying in the future it would put the emphasis on quality rather than quantity.

The Dutch defense plan calls for dissolving four squadrons of Nike missiles and withdrawing 5 of the 11 Dutch Hawk missile units in West Germany.

US vets protest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Angry members of the American Veterans Movement, frustrated by what they said was a lack of official response to their peaceful protests, today staged a sit-down in the White House and attempted to take over the Washington Monument.

A spokesman for the AVM said that four veterans staging the sit-down in the White House were opening negotiations with White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler's office, but that the demonstrators would not leave until they had talked with administration officials in charge of veterans' affairs.

The Secret Service said none of the White House demonstrators was arrested and "there was no police action."

Man faces charge for taking child

JEROME — A man on leave from a mental hospital allegedly stole a car containing a sleeping infant from downtown Jerome Sunday.

The suspect was detained by a citizen's arrest after he left the unharmed child at a rural home near Jerome.

The suspect faces charges of kidnaping, grand larceny and burglary.

Eugene Fredericksen, Jerome County prosecuting attorney, said "Richard Kyle Miller, 26, Ada County, was arraigned Monday afternoon before Magistrate Judge Dan Meek" in Twin Falls, on charges of grand larceny, second degree kidnaping and second degree burglary.

He was remanded to the custody of the Jerome sheriff in lieu of $5,000 bond. The defendant requested the services of a public defender and no preliminary hearing has been requested.

Fredericksen said Miller on leave from State Hospital South of Jerome, "is charged with taking a car belonging to Dr. Erv Sauey Sunday afternoon. It had been parked minutes before on a street in downtown Jerome by Sauey's fiancée who left her baby asleep in the back seat while she ran into a business establishment.

Fredericksen said burglary charges resulted when Miller allegedly entered a rural home and stole the baby. The child was unharmed and officers were directed to the home after Miller was arrested.

He said Miller was apprehended in a private citizen's arrest after he returned to the city, allegedly driving the Sauey vehicle. Friends of Sauey saw the vehicle and recognized it, Fredericksen said.

Fredericksen declined to release the name of the citizen who made the arrest and the infant or the young mother. He also would not give the name of the homekeeper east of Jerome where the child was later located.

7 Gem employees to be charged in boy's death

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

JEROME — Twenty manslaughter charges will be filed against seven state employees involved in the death of Jeff Hodgson.

Blaine County prosecutor Stephen Boller today said there is sufficient evidence to list the seven as criminally responsible for the death of the 11-year-old Pocatello youth.

Hodgson was lost during a survival training program administered by the Department of Environmental and Community Services in the Mindoka desert June 10. His partially decomposed body was found June 20.

Those persons named are Michael Bybee, Lynn Cameron, Keith Johnson, Jim L. Melver, Erv Sauey, Karen Himesy and Joe Brunson.

Boller said he could not file a complaint against John Johnson, 16, son of Keith Johnson, listed as responsible by the inquest jury because he is not yet 18 years of age.

He also advised yesterday that a petition was filed in a juvenile proceeding against young Johnson as he could not see where any benefit would be derived by either Johnson or society by doing so.

Boller said in a brief when Jeff Hodgson was found and examined by the coroner, he had two holes in the left side of his head from which substantial amounts of brain matter flowed. The coroner was unable conclusively to determine the cause of death but "believes such may have been occasioned by criminal means."

Boller said in a news conference this morning the skull area, according to the pathologist, Boller said the holes could have been caused by insects or lumps of dirt.

"Certainly within the meaning of the statute or survival mission in the area where Jeff Hodgson died at the time it was conducted was a lawful endeavor, which foreseeably might produce death to a child if not carefully planned and conducted."

Boller said he felt the list of defendants was complete and no other would be charged. In addition, he said warrants of arrest would be issued only if the defendants did not voluntarily appear for arraignment.

Mansfield asks economy huddle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield today suggested President Nixon summon a White House conference on the economy because "neither Congress nor the administration is doing a damn thing."

The Montana Democrat said those attending such a conference should include the Joint Congressional leadership, Senate and House experts on the economy, administration advisers and representatives from labor and industry.

Mansfield offered his suggestion as Nixon met with his top economic advisers to discuss continuing inflation, soaring interest rates and the general state of the nation's economy.

Nixon called in Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, presidential counselor Kenneth B. Bush, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns, and Budget Director Roy Ash.

Mansfield said a broad-based White House conference might determine "whether collectively we can attempt to do something instead of doing nothing."

Asked about Mansfield's suggestion, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said "I have serious doubts."

Mansfield was highly critical of remarks by Stein that the nation needs "old time religion."

"What's he want us to do, pray?" Mansfield asked.

Mansfield said a minority in Congress had attempted several moves to deal with the economy such as continuing the cost of living control and continuing Phase II of wage-price controls.

"We have tried, but we are not a majority here," Mansfield said.

He said the American people are fitting "the administration wanting—and they should."

Bones of diplomat found in Sonora desert

$18,000 per inch

WORLD RECORD—$44,000 was paid by an anonymous buyer for this piece of primitive art in London Monday. The piece is a 400-year-old, 25-inch Benin bronze figure of a flute player. In 1907, it brought about $1,100 in another sale. (UPI)

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (UPI)—A broken skull, some human dental records and a wedding ring were presented to authorities today as the last remains of a 31-year-old American diplomat, John Patterson, who was kidnapped in March 22.

The surbaked bones were found in the Sonora desert by a peasant looking for cactus fruits. A shallow grave had been washed away by heavy rains.

The discovery was virtually the first clue in the case since Patterson disappeared March 22 from the U.S. consulate here.

A ransom note was found in the consulate two hours later.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman in Mexico City, without comment until U.S. authorities study the remains, but state police chief Francisco Arellano and Attorney General Miguel Angel Cortés said that the remains were those of Patterson.

The U.S. embassy said Patterson's wife Anne, who was staying in Mexico City, probably would not fly here to identify the remains as planned earlier.

The remains were found in a room in the consulate here approximately 35 miles north of Hermosillo, a northern Mexico state capital, by a peasant looking for a desert fruit called may.

The peasant, identified as Reyes Curtujal, said the body was partially buried and almost totally reduced to bones. Authorities charged that the skull was broken by apparent death blows in the face and the back of the head.

A ring found on the body bore the initials of Patterson and his wife, and the date of their marriage, Feb. 2, 1973.

Authorities said clothes found with the body and dental records led to the identification.

Patterson was on his first diplomatic assignment, as a vice consul in charge of agricultural affairs, when he disappeared from the U.S. Consulate in Hermosillo March 22.

Immediately after his disappearance, authorities found a ransom note and speculated that Patterson had been kidnaped by Mexican guerrillas.

Mexican officials, however, later voiced suspicions the kidnaping had been a hoax.

The U.S. State Department has kept silent about the abduction, confirming only that Patterson was missing, believed—kidnaped—and an unspecified amount of ransom money had been demanded.

TF school board hires Messenger as director

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Twin Falls School Board hired Morningdale principal Dennis Messenger for the newly created position of district superintendent, district director Monday night.

Trustees also approved two contracts for school construction work at the specially called meeting.

Messenger was hired as the district's first official curriculum director.

According to Supt. George Stauder, school trustees and administrators have been considering creating the position for up to five years.

The move came now, Stauder said, partially because we have the money and partially because we need it.

Messenger will coordinate curriculum for the elementary and secondary schools, choosing the textbooks and working on teaching methods. As the new director, he will also coordinate better what we do in the different schools, according to Asst. Supt. Camden Meyer.

There is a need for guidelines, Messenger said, and an evaluation of the total curriculum should be developed, including input from parents, teachers and the administration.

In the past, curriculum has been handled by committees and some administrative members. But administration officials indicated the method had been somewhat haphazard.

In addition, Stauder said the state may require accreditation of both junior high and elementary schools, a move which Stauder said would require a curriculum director.

Messenger was hired by the board on an 11-month contract for $10,000. No replacements have been considered yet for his job as principal of the Morningdale School.

The board's primary business Monday was to complete acceptance of bids on the school construction projects. Trustees voted to change the Project I contract held by Nielsen and Co., Twin Falls, to include alternates 3 and 4, and the addition of P.E. locker rooms and a teaching center.

High Trustees had not taken action on the two alternates of project I, which includes the remodeling of Morningdale, Lincoln, Robert Stuart and Harrison schools, until they received bids on project II, the new elementary school.

When the project II bids fell within the budget, the board could take action to accept the two alternates.

Trustees also voted to accept the bid by Mitchell Construction Co., Pocatello, for construction of the new elementary school, at a total cost of $1,454,500.

Total cost of project II and with all alternates and development on the new junior high school site included, $1,661,140, a figure slightly higher than the $1.5 million bond issue.

Vegetable supply dips

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Summertime supply of major fresh vegetables probably will be about 1 per cent smaller than a year ago, the Agriculture Department said today.

No price forecast was included in the new estimate issued by the department's Crop Reporting Board. In normal circumstances, however, smaller production of volatile crops like vegetables normally means higher prices for consumers.

The report said farmers are expected to harvest 300 million pounds of major fresh vegetables during July, August and September, down 2 per cent from a year ago. If peacocks yields are average, exports said, production would total 48 million hundredweight, 50 million percent from last year's harvest of 50 million hundredweight.

'Drifters' given life sentences

STOCKTON, Calif. (UPI)—Two drifters, accused of killing 17 persons in a bus-state crime spree, were sentenced to life imprisonment Monday by a judge who said they should never be freed because of the "enormity and depravity" of their crimes.

San Joaquin County Superior Court Judge Chris Pappas, in handing down the sentence, noted the "lack of remorse" on the part of Willie L. Steinhart, 28, of Lodi, Calif., and Douglas Greizer, 23, of New York City, for "this tragic odyssey" across California and Arizona.

Steinhart and Greizer were sentenced for nine murders in this county, one far from San Francisco. Greizer had pleaded guilty while Steinhart was convicted after a trial by judge.

The two men met next in Arizona, where they could receive the death penalty if convicted. They were still charged with two counts of murder in California.

In recommending that they never be given consideration for parole, Pappas said "the enormity and depravity" of their crimes made them unfit for parole.

Supreme Court makes news

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court has made history many times, but on Monday it made news.

The chamber has been filled with great men and great issues before. But Daniel Webster and John Marshall and most of the others died before the days of television and instant communications.

Usually, the only arguments before the nation's highest tribunal are heard by reporters, students and lawyers specializing in court coverage.

But the expectations of a historic debate filled the front lawn of the court's white marble building and the participants who entered were photographed and filmed for television, as reporters asked questions.

Every seat in the wine-dressed chamber was filled. Burger read a brief note on Docket No. 73-1766 and 73-1834.

They were filled with reporters, lawyers, five members of the House Judiciary Committee lawmakers and former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman—the only one of the Watergate cover-up defendants to watch the oral arguments that might affect his fate.

The spectators began gathering Saturday morning. About 100 seats had been reserved for the general public and some of them were

New agency name costly

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer

BOISE — A new name may cost the state's largest agency $100,000.

That was the original estimate of the cost of labeling the Idaho Department of Environmental and Community Services (DECS) the Department of Health and Welfare (HAW) according to Howard Jamieson, the department's chief fiscal adviser.

But Jamieson believes that the new name, which became official July 1, will cost considerably less than first estimated.

The adoption of the HAW title marks the fourth time the departments within this super-agency have changed their name since March 1972.

With widespread news coverage of the new name, the $20,000 set aside to publicize HAW probably will not have to be spent, Jamieson says. The department will also save a considerable chunk, he says, by keeping the DECS sign on the doors of its trucks and announcing the real name with bumper stickers.

"I'd like to think that we could cut that ($100,000) cost in half. That's a pretty optimistic estimate," he says. Since the expenses of converting stationery, legal documents and signs are just being incurred, the actual cost of the name change is not really known yet, Jamieson adds.

But even at the optimistic $50,000 estimate, acquiring the HAW name will cost a great deal more than previous name changes.

In the spring and summer of 1972, the Health Department became the Department of Environmental Protection and Health (EPH) and the Department of Public Assistance and parts of the Health Department became Social and Rehabilitation Services (SRS).

These two departments then merged to become DECS in March 1973, which in turn were merged to become HAW this month.

Jamieson says the change to EPH cost about $30,000 and to DECS less than $30,000. The growth of the department to include more agencies and the emphasis on regionalization of HAW are the causes of the added expense in changing names, he says.

New HAW has 22 more service points and about 200 more offices around the state than the more centralized DECS used to have, he says.

Despite the high cost of a new name, Jamieson believes the consolidation of Idaho's departments is creating more efficiency in government. He estimates that intra-department mail is delivered twice as fast this month as it was in June, before the consolidation took effect.

RUSTY DRAPER
seven records

Rusty Draper has been performing for 30 years

JACKPOT — Nov. Rusty Draper has been performing in nightclubs for over 30 years. Originally from Missouri, he began performing when he was 12 moving eventually into the nightclub circuit through San Francisco and earning a total of seven gold records for songs which sold over a million copies.

"Night life ain't no good life but it's my life," says one of his songs, and Draper said that was his theme. Though he has played in nightclubs across the country in the last few decades, Draper said he doesn't gamble and doesn't drink. Drinking hurts his performance, he said. So, while he finishes off a two-week engagement in Jackpot, he spends his spare time on the golf course. That spare time, though, is built around two performances Monday through Thursday and three daily on the weekends. The audiences in Jackpot have been "receptive and attentive," he said.

In spite of earning seven gold records, he said performing was his life — not recording. Draper said he has written about 40 songs, but recorded only two of them.

Drill said constructive

JEROME — A disaster drill held at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome was termed one of the most constructive drills ever held.

Dolores Hanson, R.N., said Monday the overall picture of all the staff — doctors and the volunteers indicated that "this was one of the most constructive drills ever held as more people had studied the plan and knew their duties," Mrs. Hanson said.

Mrs. Hanson said in keeping with the continuing upgrading of the hospital's services to the community, the hospital disaster plan team conducted a mock walk-through practice last week.

"The plan involved 10 simulated victims from a mock accident which occurred at the high school. All of the victims were brought to St. Benedict's by the Jerome ambulance service," Mrs. Hanson said.

The volunteer victims were Casey McGee, Tate Cook, Ed Santos, Joe Fluck, Wade Hyder, Tom Larson, Stacey Preckel, Chris White and Ala Yurkevicius.

Traffic control was provided by the Jerome County Sheriff's office. Volunteer numbers of St.

Benignet's Hospital Guild reacted to the call by providing messenger service, a child care center and assisted the families of victims.

"Immediately on a call from the scene of the simulated accident, St. Benedict's promptly opened the emergency entrance. The medical and nursing staff and all involved hospital personnel were alerted and in a matter of minutes, St. Benedict's was ready to receive the victims," Mrs. Hanson said.

She said following the receiving and caring for the mock victims, an evaluation of the entire procedures was conducted. This included members of the hospital staff and Jerry Ostler from the Jerome Ambulance Service.

"The sheriff reported more volunteer litter bearers were needed as his deputies were helping transport victims and this would not be possible in an actual situation as they would be needed in controlling traffic from the scene of the accident to the hospital. The sheriff suggested the fire department and National Guard be added to the list of volunteers," Mrs. Hanson said.

Hansen criticizes 'price gouging'

TWIN FALLS — George Hansen, a Republican seeking his party's nomination for Congress, said here Monday "the consumer and local retail gasoline dealer appear to be victims of price gouging."

Hansen, running for Idaho's second congressional district representative seat, said the "price gouging and unorthodox business practices... demand investigation and immediate correction."

Speaking to a Twin Falls group, he said "it all adds up to a group of small businessmen being 'caught' in an economic crunch that could force them all out of business and a general public paying outrageous prices for fuel." He added, "gasoline dealers do not deserve special treatment, but they do deserve to be in business on an equal basis."

Senate Watergate panel leaves 'indelible' mark

(C) Washington Star-News
 WASHINGTON — The Special Senate Watergate Committee will issue its final report this week, marking the end of the longest government-sponsored exercise in political consciousness-raising the nation has ever seen.

The seven-member select committee has left an indelible mark on the American body politic, even though the immediate focus of public attention has shifted to the courts and the impeachment inquiry of the House Judiciary Committee.

Opinion polls indicate the Senate committee hearings convinced the American people that Watergate was a symptom of serious government corruption rather than politics as usual. Approval of President Nixon's conduct in office plummeted as the hearings progressed.

Perhaps the most notable achievement of the committee came when it uncovered the existence of the White House taping system — a disclosure which led step-by-step to the firing of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, the initiation of impeachment proceedings in the House of Representatives, and a historic confrontation in the Supreme Court.

The final chapter remains to be written, but there seems little doubt the committee accomplished much of what it set out to do — and in some respects, far more.

The committee was created by a 77-0 vote of the Senate on Feb. 7, 1974, at a time when the executive and judicial branches of government appeared to have badly disabled the investigation of the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate complex here on June 17, 1972.

From the beginning, the Senate panel had three main objectives — to investigate, inform and reform.

"I think the greatest service the select committee performed was informing the American people," said Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. The committee, said Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., "substituted for the greatest service the select committee performed was informing the American people."

Ervin agreed that leaking had been "a chronic sin," but added that "if we're going to make gradations in integrity, between unwarranted leaking and unwarranted withholding of truth, I believe those who withhold the truth are the greater sinners," the chairman added.

Last summer, the Watergate committee hearings kept millions of Americans riveted to their television sets.

the public conscience." Senate leaders from both parties generally gave the select committee high marks, especially for its success in laying the Watergate story before the public.

"Without question, the public education function was the greatest achievement," said Senate Majority Leader

Most of the outlines of the Watergate story were already clear from press accounts published before the hearings began. The public testimony fleshed out details, but seemed — at the time — to be short on bombshells.

"In retrospect, the public looks considerably different despite 'showboating' by word 'Watergate' had ceased to mean just a burglary and cover-up; it had come to represent a far broader pattern of political and government abuse of power.

The later hearings, which covered "dirty tricks" during the 1972 Presidential race and campaign financing abuses, were far less dramatic and, for the most part, merely filled in details of cases already making their way through the courts.

The committee investigation did not stop with the conclusion of public hearings — last November; the staff continued to "come up" with new revelations in the milk lobby case, the "responsiveness program" of the executive branch and the $100,000 Howard H. Hughes donation received by Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo.

If the public hearings and later staff probes produced relatively few new "bombshells," the handful they did produce may yet change history.

Opinion polls indicate the Senate committee hearings convinced the American people that Watergate was a symptom of serious government corruption rather than politics as usual.

Mike Mansfield
 "I believe the committee did an outstanding job," said Assistant Minority Leader P. Griffin, R-Mich.

"They contributed significantly in getting the whole Watergate business out in the open," the Watergate committee has drawn its sharpest criticism for the manner in which it often fulfilled its information function — the "leaks" of documents and testimony that flowed steadily throughout the course of its investigation.

"I think the leaks hurt," said Mansfield. They helped create sympathy for the White House.

The leaks, said Baker, set a "bad precedent" and created an "unpleasant precedent," may have been strongly by the House Judiciary Committee, which has developed its own "leaking" problem.

"We didn't invent the leak — but we raised it to the highest art form," Baker said.

Ervin agreed that leaking had been "a chronic sin," but added that "if we're going to make gradations in integrity, between unwarranted leaking and unwarranted withholding of truth, I believe those who withhold the truth are the greater sinners," the chairman added.

some Senators — and stiff members, despite apparently repetitive or pointless questioning by others, the committee succeeded in bringing out for the first time the full scope of the Watergate scandal.

The crucial details — which sometimes got only a passing press attention in the flood of information tumbling forth each day — transformed the public perception of Watergate.

By the time the first phase of hearings ended Aug. 7, the White House isolation eyed

NEW YORK — NEA — Has President Nixon suffered from a unique system that has allowed a few aides to shield him from the truth? Or have his failures been reflected in earlier administrations?

Richard T. Tanner Johnson implies the latter in a new book "Managing the White House." A former special assistant to the secretary of Labor in both the Nixon and Johnson administrations, Johnson studies the last six Presidents, especially in relation to their delegations of authority.

He links Nixon with Truman, Eisenhower and Johnson as a President who preferred a "formalistic" government. Since all four of these presidents cultivated conflicts of interest, covert bargaining by subordinate and outright scandal, the analysis is an interesting one.

In the formalistic approach, information is funneled from a structured staff to a few aides to the President. The strengths packaged policies. All the formalistic Presidents have been noticeably uncomfortable managing people anxious to avoid conflict and content that a superior management would hedge against human error.

Roosevelt and Kennedy were more tolerant of conflict. They wanted to "shape" the policies themselves rather than choose from them. They suffered few scandals and their subordinates generally refrained from subversion. But not without a price — FBI and JFK so personally stamped their administrations that the successes and failures of these years were direct manifestations of their personalities. Their administrations lacked the order and continuity of their formalistic peers.

Roosevelt's "competitive management" fostered diversity in ideas, openly courted conflict among aides

Report warns more suicides

(C) Newhouse News Service
 WASHINGTON — The post-war baby boom that spawned the youth culture of the 60's and its epidemic of suicide attempts — among the young — may breed an important public health problem of self-destruction in the next decade, says a Yale University psychiatric researcher.

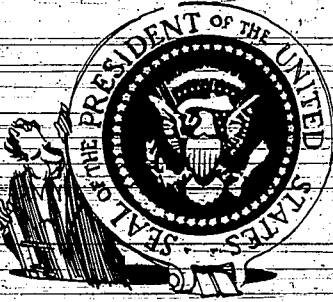

In a study documenting a dramatic increase in suicide attempts over the 1960's among 20- to 30-year-olds, Myrna M. Weissman also found that few of the attempters were finding their way into treatment.

Increasing the risk of a later, completed suicide.

Among the young would-be suicides, said the study published in the Archives of General Psychiatry, most were not serious in their intent, and were making a gesture, a cry for help.

Nonetheless, the study showed that in 70 to 80 per cent of the cases, record of the means of self-destruction was drugs, especially barbiturates, tranquilizers and sedatives that came into widespread use in the 1960's.

The study laid the ultimate cause of the increase in suicide attempts among the young to the "disintegration" of family and religious ties, increasing geographic mobility, and the

of this system, says Johnson, are that it places technical considerations ahead of politics — substituting the merits of a question for its personal implications and preserves order and saves time — in both seeking, however, the formalistic President may suffer from a homogeneity of ideas when the decisions are made by one of his subordinates. If he truly did not sponsor their activities) or from a realistic appraisal of the marginal benefits of such acts and the possible grave consequences (if he did).

Interestingly, insulation hampered other formalistic Presidents — over decision-making. Truman in his invasion of North Korea and Eisenhower in the Suez and Little Rock crises, to take some notable examples. Nixon may have suffered the most serious consequences because he was nurtured with cold-blooded technicians in high places — men whose loyalty was marked by a rigid code of silence and paranoid hostility to external forces.

Like Johnson and Truman, Nixon has been an activist President to the extent that he wanted to sift through prepared information and make the decisions himself. Eisenhower by contrast preferred to rubber-stamp pre-

Trudeau wins big in Canadian election

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's handling of inflation, the issue that topped his Liberal government two months ago, won him a surprising and solid victory early today in Canada's general election.

The Liberals won at least 140 seats in the House of Commons, seven more than they needed to capture control of Parliament for the next four years.

The latest results gave Conservatives 97 seats and the Quebec-based Social Credit movement 12. One independent, a maverick Conservative, was elected.

It was a victory that surprised pollsters, who had predicted that neither Trudeau nor opposition Conservative leader Robert L. Stanfield would gain an absolute majority.

Until his government was toppled May 8 on the inflation issue, Trudeau had ruled for 18 months with a minority government kept in office with support of the socialist New Democratic Party. It was the defeat of the New Democrats that toppled Trudeau.

Ironically, the New

Democrat leader David Lewis, was beaten in Toronto, his party's parliamentary representation was almost halved from 31 seats won in 1972.

The Trudeau comeback, basically a smashing Liberal triumph in the key province of Ontario, gave Canada a clear-cut majority government for only the third time since 1962.

"Canada has come out of this election strong, confident of its future," said Trudeau, who first became prime minister in 1968 when his swinging bachelor image propelled the Liberals to their greatest victory in 15 years.

"I just want to say I want to get on with the job," Trudeau said.

He won by convincing Canadians that a freeze on wages and prices — the major pledge by Stanfield — would not work, Trudeau said. Inflation was a global problem that controls will not solve.

Trudeau easily won a personal victory in his own constituency in Montreal.

which assured his return to Parliament as national leader of the winning party. Stanfield, his third unsuccessful attempt to become prime minister, was personally re-elected in Halifax, but would not continue as Progressive Conservative leader.

The political fortunes of the 54-year-old Trudeau, who changed his tactics this time from an older statesman approach to become a hardhitting campaigner aided by his young wife Margaret, began to revive early Monday night when his Liberals won three new seats in the Atlantic provinces.

Israel reports attack plan

By United Press International

The Israeli national radio and today — Israeli naval raiders — attacked Lebanese shipping in the Mediterranean ports because the government had received information that Palestinian guerrillas planned to attack Israel by sea.

Israeli military sources estimated that 30 vessels were sunk by Israeli gunboats and frogmen in the late Monday attack. A Lebanese Defense Ministry communiqué said at least seven Arab ships were sunk.

Arab fishermen reported at least 33 were sunk.

Palestinian guerrillas vowed to launch a new round of raids in retaliation for the Israeli naval strikes.

The Israeli raid also was believed to be in retaliation for a June 24 attack in which three Palestinian guerrillas landed in a rubber raft near the Israeli resort of Nahariya and killed 100 Israelis, including a mother and her two children. The guerrillas also were killed.

The Israeli national radio said only that the government decided to launch the raids because of information it had received that the guerrillas planned to attack Israel by sea.

It said the government "decided to take a certain political risk" in permitting the sea raids.

World daily press summary said, "It was a civilian target and the attack was meant to cause economic harm to the Lebanese. The Israelis apparently are hoping the fishermen would demand action by the government against the Palestinians."

Political sources in Jerusalem said the government's explanation of the raid was given by Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in a background briefing to Israeli correspondents to which foreign newsmen were not invited.

Beirut press commentators said the Israeli raids were designed to create friction between local civilians and Palestinian refugees.

"The attack was aimed against Lebanese fishermen," a commentator for the Arab

US hands jets to S. Viets

SAGINON (UPI) — The United States has handed over the first full squadron of 29 modern F4E jets to the South Vietnamese air force as part of the piece-by-piece replacement of used war equipment military sources said today.

The sources said this last four-squadron jets — aircraft that Saigon's Pan Son Mint Airbase Monday and were immediately given to the government in 1967, when American troops were still fighting in South Vietnam.

The United States intends to furnish four more squadrons before the end of 1975, the sources said.

The F4E is a bigger, faster and more sophisticated aircraft than any other now being used by the South Vietnamese air force. It flies at 550 miles an hour and can carry 7,000 pounds of bombs.

The older F5A has a speed of 460 miles an hour with 6,000 pounds of bombs.

Both the Viet Cong and North Vietnam had protested the introduction of the new equipment — jet into the government arsenal, calling it a blatant violation of the Paris peace agreement.

The government air force now is flying about five squadrons of F5As and two-seater F5Fs, but at least 30 per cent of them are handicapped because of lack of spare parts of metal fatigue, air force sources said.

The Jan. 26, 1973, cease-fire agreement allows "periodic replacement of armaments, munitions and war materials which have been destroyed, damaged or worn out or used up after the cease-fire, on the basis of piece-for-piece, of the same characteristics and properties."

Naval Academy ousts students

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — The Naval Academy today expelled 20 midshipmen and placed an additional 54 on honor probation in connection with the institution's worst cheating scandal that required the entire 900 member sophomore class to retake a navigation exam.

Vice Admiral William P. Mack, academy superintendent, said the 41 used "poor judgment" rather than cheating.

In a statement released by the academy today, the institution said 30 midshipmen were found to have been involved in the cheating and of them, seven were "suspended" and 13 were placed on honor probation.

It was the largest number of midshipmen ever expelled at one time for cheating.

In addition, Mack said 29 navigation instructors were questioned and a "conclusive" investigation concluded that only one instructor was responsible for the compromise and that no other personnel in the navigation department were involved.

The instructor allowed several midshipmen to examine a copy of the test of a review session prior to the examination, Mack said.

Demo telethon financial boom

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Democratic National Chairman Robert Strauss said today the party's 1974 fund-raising telethon was a political, artistic and $7 million financial success.

Strauss told reporters that the Democrats expected to collect $6.3 million of the $7 million in pledges received during the 21-hour CBS television marathon June 29-30.

Of that, $2.4 million went for air time and production costs, and two-thirds of the remaining $4 million net will go to state Democratic parties.

The national party will get slightly less than $1.5 million, Strauss said, and a large portion of it will be spent on day-to-day party operations during the 1974 mid-term election in Kansas City in December, and the fall campaigns. Some of the funds will go toward retirement of the party's long-term debt, now down to $2.5 million from its $9 million peak after the 1968 election.

Strauss said the telethon enlisted nearly 100,000 volunteer workers, including scores of performers who donated their time and thousands of their door-to-door canvassers.

As Strauss reported on the Democratic telethon, the Republicans sent out a fund-raising letter over the signature of David K. Wilson, chairman of the GOP National Finance Committee, appealing for $2 million in the next 30 days to finance the 1974 campaigns.

Wilson charged the Democratic strategy is to elect a "pro-seg" Congress, which very simply will mean the end of the two-party system in America.

'Housebarn' dream set by scientists

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—The dream home of two University of California scientists is a self-contained dwelling with ponds of algae on the roof and living space shared with a cow and 50 chickens.

The "housebarn" is a perpetual motion machine—would use recycling methods to provide a family of four with power, food and waste disposal.

Such a house could be built for about $10,000 with a cost of between $50 and $100 a year for maintenance, the scientists believe.

Clarence Golueke, a research biologist, and William O. Sudd, a professor of public health, said the object of building such a house was to show that man can live comfortably in complete harmony with nature. They're seeking federal funds for the project.

"Every component of this system has been proven separately to work," said Golueke. "Now all we have to do is put it together."

The key to the circular housebarn is the algae ponds where the tiny plants would absorb solar energy and grow rapidly. The algae would then be placed in an anaerobic digester—a sealed cylinder in the home's center where bacteria literally eat the algae.

The process creates methane, a gas which can be used for heating, light, refrigeration and cooking. The leftover sludge from the digester is a fertilizer for use in the vegetable garden.

Algae got needed for methane and fertilizer production can be dried and used as a high protein supplement for animal feed.

Chickens, the cow and a small vegetable garden provide the human food and a "rot" wheel of provide water for drinking and cooking. The only outside need would be piped-in water for bathing, laundering and algae breeding.

"The small space is like that of a barnyard, nothing vile," said Oswald.

He said the "house" was basically a system that mimics the life process of the planet on a miniature scale, but without the pollution.

LONDON (UPI)—John Michael Bradley, 25, walked into St. Charles Hospital Sunday and said he had a message from God to have my right arm cut off. Hospital personnel turned him away.

A few hours later he returned with a tourniquet on the newly severed arm. He explained that to fulfill "God's message" he had held his arm on a railway track and let a train run over it.

Lincoln pool fund increases

SHOSHONE—The Lincoln County Swimming pool fund received $174.45 from the collection and sale of empty pop and beer cans.

Frank Carothers, city councilman, has been promoter of the project.

He furnished the building for storage of the cans and they were collected and spent many hours crushing and taking care of them.

Altogether, 1,141 pounds of cans were collected. The Idaho Orange Coop furnished, a truck and driver, Clarence Mangin, to haul the cans to Twin Falls to the recycling center.

The cans came from the Mountain View Lions bowling alley and the Columbia Lounge as well as many private individuals.

Floyd Silva presented $50 to the pool fund with his "thud" blessings at a dollar per blessing.

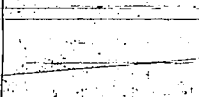

Savings bonds sale reported

SHOSHONE—US Savings Bonds, Series E and H, reached a total sale for the month of May in Lincoln County of $1,419, according to District Smith County chairman.

This brings the total sale for the year at $7,342, or 27.2 percent of the 1974 goal of $27,000.

Poppy planting watched

ANKARA (UPI)—Turkey is planning aerial and land reconnaissance to make sure its farmers do not plant more opium poppy than the government has just allowed them for medicinal uses, Information Minister Orhan Birgit said today.

"We will be holding exercises within the next few weeks in opium poppy growing areas," Birgit said. "Military planes and gendarme units on the ground will cooperate in the exercises to pinpoint illegal poppy fields."

Birgit said the exercises will help to develop methods for keeping opium poppy production from being sold to drug traffickers for transformation into illegal heroin.

Deputy Premier Nihatullah Erbakan asked the United States Sunday to help in keeping the resumed poppy production within legal limits.

"Turkey will welcome the cooperation and technical aid of her ally and friend, the United States, in preventing opium poppy production from being used for illegal narcotics trafficking," Erbakan told newsmen Sunday.

Turkey on July 1 lifted a 10-month-old ban on opium poppy production. A government official said had created a 200-ton opium deficit in the world's pharmaceutical industry and deprived about 100,000 peasant farmers of their livelihood.

The United States had halted the ban as a major victory in the fight against drug addiction.

Ring owner found

LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI)—Larry Gieg was digging a drainage trench outside his home during the weekend when he unearthed a gold wedding ring.

Gieg, seeing the initials and wedding date engraved inside the band, took it to the Lancaster County Courthouse to track down the owner.

The owner, Mrs. Richard Keene, of Lancaster, said she lost her ring 21 years ago when her mischievous two-year-old son, Michael, took it and misplaced it. Michael, now a 23-year-old college student, volunteered to pick up the ring at Gieg's home.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps mine is a unique problem, yet I think not. My wife complains constantly that I never do anything around the house. She says: "The people next door work together, painting, gardening, etc. and their place looks great. You never do a thing around here, and our place looks like a dump. All you want to do is play golf, or bring home extra work from the office." And she is right.

The reason I never do anything around the house is this: I once brought some paint home to paint a room, and she criticized the color. I started to work in the yard and she said: "Quit that—you are making a mess!" Frankly, no matter what I do, she finds fault with it. The golf course is pleasant and quiet. And when I'm doing work I bring home from the office, at least she doesn't yell at me.

Marital trap

I have complimented her on her cooking, the way she looks, her housekeeping, and everything I can think of, but she never even says "Thanks."

I doubt if this could be of any help to me if it were printed. However, there must be other readers who could improve their family relations immensely by just learning to express a little warm, sincere appreciation. This is my wife's name.

A GOLF WIDOW'S GOLFER

DEAR GOLFER: I score your advice a birdie after a good recovery from a common marital trap!

DEAR ABBY: Am I being unreasonable? My husband's part collar dog is 19 years old. He is deaf, and nearly blind, can hardly use his back legs, and has lost control of his bowels. I have to clean up after him. He whines, yowls and barks during the night and I have to get up and let him out.

My husband is a sound sleeper and nothing disturbs him. I have begged him to take this dog to the vet to be put to sleep, but he says: "No! I suppose when I get sick you will want to put ME to sleep, too."

"Abby," this is my second marriage and I want it to last. He has never had it with this dog of his.

I know if the dog could talk, he would beg to be put out of his misery. Please advise me.

DOG THRED

DEAR TIRE: I'm with you. It's cruel to let the animal suffer. If your husband insists that you are wrong, get the vet's opinion. I'll bet he votes with us.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently married. My husband and I invited 200 people to our wedding reception. 140 said they were coming, so we put all the money we had into this wedding reception. Only 55 showed up. After the reception, my husband and I went to a local bar for a drink. About 30 of the people who accepted but didn't show up were at this bar. They gave us some money (with no cards) as a wedding gift. We took it because we were so broke.

I think we should write thank-you notes to the people who handed us money, go to the bar, and hand them the thank-you notes just like they handed us the money. My husband thinks if we do this, we will be as ignorant as they are. I think we are being nicer to them than they deserve by thanking them at all.

What do you think?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Since you weren't sufficiently "hurt" to refuse their gifts, you should acknowledge them properly—in writing, and through the mail.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "M" WHO WORKS IN AN OFFICE WITH PAT: I think that whatever an adult does in his own home is his own business.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

South was sure that North's pass of six spades showed a void of spades. If he also held both aces, a grand slam would materialize. So he bid seven clubs.

West doubled. He was looking for a grand slam. West got greedy. He decided to open his ace of spades and wait for two diamond tricks.

This turned out to be a really expensive mistake. South ruffed in dummy, pulled trumps and made his grand slam since he was able to discard his one diamond on North's long heart and to ruff all his spades.

The bidding of today's hand is typical of what happens in a free swinging rubber-ace-bridge game. It starts out quietly enough and suddenly North jumps to five clubs. East doesn't have much of a hand, but he isn't going to let his vulnerable opponents play at five clubs. Of course, if East had passed the chance he had, West would have tried five diamonds all by himself.

East bid five spades. South six clubs and West six spades. At this point North might have doubled.

On his own, the optimistic who thought that maybe, just maybe, his partner would have the right hand to make seven clubs. So North passed.

The bidding has been:

NFL owners have short memories of '70 strike

BY RED SMITH
(C) New York Times Service
NEW YORK — It was said that this was a dispute which nobody won. That isn't so. The players proved they could stand together as long as needed in spite of pressure from many directions. It was proved that for all their blarney talk for a owners would hold out for a owners would not dare to let off rookies on a clientelle accustomed to something better would not even sacrifice the revenue from one exhibition game. All this will be remembered four years from now when contract talks begin again.

Recognizing the training camp at Florida College as a key battleground, the union player representative, Don Shula, called a solidarity meeting last Friday night. After several hours of oratory, the players voted to hold a vote. At 9:45 a.m. today, pickets displaying the "no freedom, no football" slogan showed up at the college where 21 rookies and selected veterans had been invited to report at noon.

Although the owners' thinking has not changed in four years — of 40 — there are many differences between this confrontation and the earlier one. In 1970 there were 55 bargaining sessions before Pete Roselle, summoned the departments — to the commissioner's office and held them there until agreement was reached 22 hours later. This year the players presented their demands in mid-March. Now in the second week of July, collective bargaining hasn't got off the ground.

Four years ago Theodore Kheel took part in the bargaining as an impartial mediator. This time he is the owners' labor counsel. He does not pretend to be impartial.

In 1970 bargaining was concerned chiefly with money, pension payments and other benefits. There are many financial demands this year, but they are all negligible and unimportant compared to the freedom issue. The players want to be their own men. They demand elimination of the reserve system — options, waivers, reserve lists and the ancient "no trade" restrictions.

On Sunday, Gannon returned to the Chargers because his contract stipulated that if he left camp without permission he would forfeit the bonus he had been signing for. It has been established that once a rookie reports to camp no comes under the umbrella of the National Football League Players Association, the designated bargaining representative. A yellow-dog contract, illegal since the Norris-LaGuardia Act of 1932, stipulates that a worker may not take part in any group action against the employer. Any agreement that makes a bonus forfeit for union activity, the N.F.L.A. holds, is a classic example of the yellow-dog contract.

Although the owners' thinking has not changed in four years — of 40 — there are many differences between this confrontation and the earlier one. In 1970 there were 55 bargaining sessions before Pete Roselle, summoned the departments — to the commissioner's office and held them there until agreement was reached 22 hours later. This year the players presented their demands in mid-March. Now in the second week of July, collective bargaining hasn't got off the ground.

Four years ago Theodore Kheel took part in the bargaining as an impartial mediator. This time he is the owners' labor counsel. He does not pretend to be impartial.

In 1970 bargaining was concerned chiefly with money, pension payments and other benefits. There are many financial demands this year, but they are all negligible and unimportant compared to the freedom issue. The players want to be their own men. They demand elimination of the reserve system — options, waivers, reserve lists and the ancient "no trade" restrictions.

On Sunday, Gannon returned to the Chargers because his contract stipulated that if he left camp without permission he would forfeit the bonus he had been signing for. It has been established that once a rookie reports to camp no comes under the umbrella of the National Football League Players Association, the designated bargaining representative. A yellow-dog contract, illegal since the

These words were written in Atlanta 1970 after the first strike of players in the National Football League had produced the contract that expired on Jan. 31, 1974.

The sentence was downright naive. If a single owner remembers the lessons of the last labor dispute, he has managed to conceal the fact.

Of four years ago the owners still refuse to believe that the hired hands will hang together. They brush off as absurd the players' demand for rights as described in this country's inalienable Bill of Rights.

Finally, another who had signed as a free agent, Jerry Deminian from Miami University, was cut from the San Diego squad after the second practice session. "It was the engineer who told the rookies to come down and mingle with the veterans," he said, joining the picket line.

But he will have to fight his chance to become the first American professional to win the Open on the windswept Royal Lytham course, a seaside par 71 covering 6,822 yards. And Nicklaus is the first to say so.

This problem, he says, has been his alignment. "It's been too much to the right all season." And the result has been a single win on the U.S. tour at the Hawaiian Open in February.

But this is a good-type course for me," he said. "I have always been left-right pattern, too, but lately it's been a shade too much left for me." From a fundamental standpoint I am far sounder than I have been at any time this year. I've been playing through periods of not playing or putting well.

Some Dolphins would rather have that kind of money than pass it up. Whenever one of them says so out loud, the admission becomes a risk for the owners' publicity mills. The owners' hope is that the strike will collapse, and that will be soon enough to begin collective bargaining in earnest.

Bookies lean to win by Nicklaus

LYTHAM, ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — His record this season is spotty and he admits he's having trouble with the "fundamentals" in his game. But ask the bookies who they favor to win this week's British Open and they will give the one name: Jack Nicklaus. The "Golden Bear" has been installed as a 9-2 choice to take his third open title simply on the basis of his past showings in the championship.

He has won the Open twice (1966 and 1970). Finished second three times (1964, 1967 and 1972), third once (1968) and last year came in fourth at Troon, Scotland, with a scorching final round of 66.

But he will have to fight his chance to become the first American professional to win the Open on the windswept Royal Lytham course, a seaside par 71 covering 6,822 yards. And Nicklaus is the first to say so.

Diplomatic negotiations in the Middle East call to mind an Arab tradition. It holds that contracts concluded on paper are worthless. That they can only be validated with guns of gold. Maybe so. Consider, though, that the Arabian Middle East is still not all that highly developed. But the contracts of the spectacular United States primarily have been made on paper.

Q. "How much money does a chicken sexer get?"
A. Anywhere from $12,000 to $20,000 a year. Quite a skill, that. A good chicken sexer can take 1,000 day-old baby chicks and sort out the future hens from the future roosters in an hour.

HOW MUCH edible food does the average grocery store throw away every day?
A. About four garbage cans full. That's the average chain store. Mom-and-pop stores don't junk anywhere nearly so much.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market, which took one of its worst beatings of the year Monday, opened slightly higher in moderate trading Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average was 0.77 points, or 0.4 percent, higher after the opening. Advances led declines, 112 to 78, among the 294 issues crossing the tape.

Money market 'awash' with lending control talk

By H. J. MAIDENBERG
(C) New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The money market is awash with talk that some form of federal control over bank lending may be imposed unless the unrelenting demand by big corporate borrowers for credit abates soon.

Such talk "may" have been a catalyst for a group of treasurers to borrow a record $1.1 billion here in the week ended June 26, the end of the latest bank statement period.

This volume of borrowing, undoubtedly provoked all major commercial banks to raise their prime lending rate, which is reserved for their most creditworthy customers, by a quarter point to a record 12 percent last Friday.

Noting the talk about controls on bank lending, Aubrey G. Lamson & Co. Inc., said in its weekly letter to clients.

"Lamson dealers in Treasury issues, pointed out, however, that: "Some of the bank credit demand last week was doubtless related to the large payments the oil companies will make to the treasury for oil loans."

"Whatever the reason for the heavy and unreasonable demands for bank credit, the cost of money continued to rise last week and prices of fixed-income issues slumped further. And the outlook is for more of the same this week.

"Because of the holiday, short-term yields were cut on an uncommonly large volume of new debt issues hangs over the shrinkage of credit.

Saturday, however, the nation's biggest dealer in fixed-income securities, reported over the weekend.

"Besides having to contend with extraordinarily high levels of interest rates, the volume of new financing will be much larger than seasonal in most major sectors of the market. In addition, the market will increasingly confront growing constraints upon available credit.

"The fear of even higher long-term interest rates has also caused corporate and municipal borrowers to increase their offerings of new issues.

Some $2.8 billion of long-term corporate issues will be put before the public this month, the largest figure since March, 1971, when $4.1 billion of such issues were placed.

"Municipal borrowers will offer a record July total of $2.1 billion of bonds. That would compare with the record for any month of $2.6 billion, set in January, 1971.

IVAN HOPKINS, extension agent for Lincoln County, uses fork lift in loading about 100,000 pounds of wool shipped from Shoshone, by rail. Bean markets reported steady DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Dry edible bean markets were steady to firm during the week ending July 2.

Trading activity centered on export business. Buyers purchased pinto and it was verified that great northern were going to Algeria. Trade speculation on further export movement of both pinto and great northern remained strong.

Domestic demand was still "quite slow," although definitely on the move as some users depleted stocks of early purchases.

In general, pinto markets regained a firm undertone after Mexico bought 124 to 170,000 hundredweight, mostly U.S. No. 2's and No. 3's at $12 to $13. Early in the period U.S. No. 1 beans were selling at $15 to $17, however, by late in the week prices were moving to the $10 mark with a few sales reported at that level.

Great northern received a long-awaited stimulus with exporters' purchase of about 130,000 cwt. and the government purchase of 363,000 cwt. Domestic firm demand was generally weak, however, inquiry gained momentum.

The pinto market was firm because of strength derived from pinto and great northern sales activity. A sample of truckload sales reported early in the period at the $15 to $16 level.

Demand for small reds was quite thin, though some firm sales were reported from sales activity of other varieties.

Trading was nominal in the pinto market in Colorado with prices ranging from $12 to $13.

Trading in southern Idaho for pinto was also nominal with prices ranging from $11 to $12 compared with last year's $12.75 to $13.25. No other quots on pinto were available.

Great northern went for $22 to $24.50 in both western Nebraska and eastern Wyoming compared to last year's prices of $20 to $24 in southern Idaho. Great northern brought $23 to $27 compared to last year's $20.50 to $20.75.

No other quots were available on great northern.

Reds in southern Idaho went for $15 to $20 compared to last year's $15 to $16 and pinto went for $15 to $16 compared to last year's $13.50 to $14. No other quots were available.

In other classes on the California market raw limas brought $13 to $14, large limas, $16 to $17, blackeyes, $20 to $22, and light red kidneys, $42 to $45. Earlier quots were unavailable.

Green splitting burrstone was spotty within 6-inch areas, varying widely within 6-inch areas. In areas quoted below, some bids remain withdrawn, others are subject to negotiations and still others are firm posted bids for the first time in about three months.

Pinkos brought $15 on the grower market in the south-western corner of Colorado; $30 in northern Wyoming and southern Montana, and $30 to $31 in southern Idaho.

French markets brought $20 on the grower market in Idaho and northern Wyoming. Pinkos brought $30 in Idaho.
