Investment firm okayed

CAIRO (UPI) — The 10-nation Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed today to form a billion dollar company for investment of petroleum earnings. The company, with a capital of about $1.2 billion, will finance joint projects in both member states and outside. Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmad Zaki Yamani said, "Yamani, chairman of OAPE, said it wanted to "spend some money on world technological progress."

He said the question of a petroleum services company, for exploration and development of oil fields in Arab states, had been postponed for discussion at a later date.

Vets benefits extended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has signed legislation extending Vietnam era veterans' education benefits from 10 to 15 years, the White House said today. Veterans and their wives and widows now have eight years to take advantage of educational assistance benefits. The new law extends this for two additional years to May 31, 1976 for post-Korean peace time veterans and Vietnam era veterans. The legislation also amends the GI Bill to provide that prisoners of war, following their release from active duty, can exclude their time in prison plus any period of hospitalization upon their release in computation of benefit eligibility.

Smuggling charges dropped

ADANA, Turkey (UPI) — An Adana court said today it has dropped smuggling charges against three U.S. citizens, two uncommissioned officers and five American civilian employees at the U.S. air base in nearby Incirlik. The Americans were arrested a month ago on charges of smuggling foreign luxury goods into the country and passing them on to Turks for sale on the black market. Forty-two Turks have also been arrested in the case.

Novelist defends books

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Novelist Kurt Vonnegut Jr. defended two of his books in U.S. District Court Wednesday in Cincinnati. Vonnegut's "Slaughterhouse-Five" and "Cat's Cradle," were described by the Cincinnati school board as "obscene, blasphemous, and obscene." The books, "God Bless You, Mr. Tompkins" and "Cat's Cradle," were described by the Cincinnati school board in 1972 as "trashy" and "stupid."

Warren dies in state

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The body of Earl Warren, who was crowned as one of the greatest Supreme Court justices in history, lay in state in the Supreme Court building today. Warren is set for Friday in Arlington National Cemetery. Never before has the body of a former justice lay in the white marble casket. Past and current members of the court, which Warren headed for 16 years, acted as honorary pall bearers. The casket was brought into the famous Capitol Hill building by eight members of the court police force to be received by Warren's "cousins." Two court policemen stood as honor guards. Near the casket stood the black-draped chair Warren used while he served as chief justice from 1953 to 1969.

Ray wants new trial

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Convicted assassin James Earl Ray will fight a chance Sept. 30 to try to prove in court his contention that he was coerced by his own attorneys into pleading guilty to the shooting death of Martin Luther King Jr. Ray, who wants a new trial, pleaded guilty in 1969 to the 1968 assassination of the civil rights leader and was sentenced to 99 years in prison.

Nomination delayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nomination of Earl A. Silbert as U.S. attorney has been shelved by the Senate Judiciary Committee until, after, impeachment proceedings against President Nixon are resolved. Silbert was the chief Justice Department attorney who handled the prosecution of the original Watergate seven defendants. Questions by committee members over Silbert's handling of the Watergate case have resulted in lengthy confirmation hearings on his nomination to be U.S. attorney for the District of Columbia.

Wednesday's record chilliest

KIMBERLY — Wednesday's temperature set an all-time record for chilly. The thermometer rose only 59 degrees Wednesday, according to the National Weather Service. The previous lowest high temperature for that date was 67 degrees in 1972. It was a far cry from last year's 107 degrees recorded on the same date.

'Gate report claims misuse of campaign funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo channeled secret campaign funds into improvements on President Nixon's Key Biscayne estate and to buy diamond earrings for Mrs. Nixon's birthday, the Senate Watergate Committee suggests in a section of its final report. The report said Rebozo kept the fund in his Key Biscayne bank and that it was composed mainly of a $100,000 cash contribution from billionaire Howard Hughes and a $50,000 contribution from food store chain owner A.B. Davis. The 350-page report, approved Wednesday by the committee more than a year after it began its historic Watergate hearings, will be just a chapter in the committee's final report expected to be released today. White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said today the Rebozo-Nixon campaign funds report mostly was "surprise" suggestion and conjecture with little supporting facts. He said "Nixon never asked Rebozo, the President's longtime friend to raise or maintain campaign funds. Ziegler was especially critical of Sen. Sam I. Ervin, D.N.C., the committee chairman, who Ziegler said presumably made the decision to release the campaign funds section before the committee's final report. Using four secret trust funds in various banks, Rebozo laundered campaign donations and used the money for improvements he ordered for Nixon's estate, the report said. One check cleared through the trust accounts was part of a $5,000 payment made by Nixon to New York jeweler Harry Winston for platinum and diamond earrings the President gave his wife Pat for her 60th birthday in 1972. The funds in this special account were derived from the Florida Nixon for President Committee," the report said. "Therefore, $4,563.30 of the funds originally derived from campaign contributions were used to purchase the platinum diamond earrings."

Ehrlichman involvement told in final arguments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Circling dates on a large calendar with a red wax pencil, a Watergate prosecutor today recited a series of meetings involving former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman that he said led to the Elmsberg break-in. Prosecutor William Merrill delivered his final statements to the jury which is trying Ehrlichman and three others on charges of conspiring to violate the constitutional rights of Dr. Lewis and Gandy, psychiatrist for Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg. The defense started its final arguments late in the morning. The case was expected to go to the jury Friday. Merrill contended Ehrlichman — who also is charged with trying to bribe a grand jury — made false statements after he had taken special actions to hide his involvement in the case by removing the original copies of key memos from the White House files of activity by the "Plumbers" unit. At the time the former White House domestic adviser was interviewed, Merrill said, Ehrlichman had removed the memos and secreted them in President Nixon's own vault where Ehrlichman hoped that they "never see the light of day." Everyone else knew that someone was going to go into Dr. Fielding's office and examine his files without his consent," Merrill told the jury as he outlined a series of key meetings, memos and conversations in which Ehrlichman participated during July, August and September. As he circled the dates on the calendar, Merrill said that despite testimony of a number of witnesses throughout the trial concerning Ehrlichman's participation and conversations concerning the "cover" operation against Fielding, Ehrlichman maintains he does not remember the details of those exchanges.

19-minute gap found on tape

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An assistant Watergate prosecutor told a federal court today there is a 19-minute gap on a subpoenaed tape recording of a conversation between President Nixon and John D. Ehrlichman on March 20, 1973. Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste did not elaborate, but told reporters later the tape is under subpoena by the House Judiciary Committee in its impeachment inquiry. The conversation took place one day before the President has said he first was informed of the Watergate cover-up by John W. Jaworski. Ben-Veniste appeared at a hearing by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica over a dispute between special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and chief White House Watergate counsel James D. St. Clair over 20 presidential transcripts. Jaworski wants the tapes his prosecution of six Nixon former aides who have been indicated in the Watergate cover-up trial. Transcripts of portions of the tapes had been made public by the White House. St. Clair contends that he has agreed only to let Sirica verify the portions of the tapes covered by the transcripts. Jaworski contends all the tapes must be monitored for relevancy.

Rupert receives grant for sewer

RUPERT — Rupert will receive $1.3 million to pay three-fourths of the cost of the city's proposed $4.5 million sewer system. The city also will get $100,000 for sewer work. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency announced the Rupert award Wednesday. The agency will pay for addition of interceptors and the sewer system. The Idaho EPA grant will pay for planning a proposed $1 million improvement project for the city's sewer plant. Total EPA grants for sewer treatment facilities in Idaho were for nearly $10 million.

Tour resumes

SYDNEY (UPI) — Angry Australian unions that had kept Frank Sinatra a virtual prisoner in his hotel room, following his blistering attack against reporters said today they would allow him to continue a concert tour. Sinatra, who earlier called Australian newspapermen "journalist hookers," said he had intended no reflection upon the moral character of the news media. An accommodation was reached following a four-hour meeting among Sinatra, his lawyer Milton Eisenhower and a five-member committee of the Australian Council of Trade Unions. A joint statement said the unions "recognize the unique international stature of Frank Sinatra and his understandable desire to be protected therefrom from an uninhibited exposure to the media." Sinatra said he accepted that the press had to "make every effort to keep the public informed about the visit of an international celebrity." The compromise continued, "Frank Sinatra did not intend any general reflection upon the moral character of working members of the Australian media." He, of course, reserves his right to continue to comment upon the quality of the professional performance of those working members of the media in the future. Sinatra is subject to criticism on professional grounds, just as he acknowledges their same right in respect to his professional performance. "Frank Sinatra also expresses his regret for any abnormal injury suffered by persons as a result of attempts to insure his personal safety."

Shareholders' costs increase

TWIN FALLS — While the estimated cost of the American Falls replacement dam is up 38 percent from last year's estimate, the price tag to district shareholders has almost quadrupled. But according to Idaho Power's share has stayed the same. District shareholders therefore will be paying $18 million instead of $5 million for the dam. The power company's share was based on projected income from electricity, not on the $18 million cost of the dam, said Barker. WBF's, reserves, Idaho Power's, surplus is 1.7 million, according to the cost of the $1.1 million stockholders' share of the project will be $11.24 per acre-foot over the 40-year bond payment period. With interest rates added in, the actual payment for the water will probably be 2.5 to 3 times the amount to John Prosser, an attorney for the district. Prosser predicts an 8 percent per acre foot additional water cost for Twin Falls tree farmers if the bonds are tax exempt.

Gem court will decide fate of AF dam

By BILL LEWIS
Times-News Writer
TWIN FALLS — The immediate fate of the American Falls Reservoir District replacement dam hinges on an Idaho Supreme Court decision that will be made by the end of the year. If the decision goes wrong, the project probably will be delayed a year, according to John Barker, president of the district. Barker is suing Lee Wagner, district executive who has proposed a bond issue to fund the dam. The case was brought to the Idaho Supreme Court in early May and is expected to be decided within a week, Barker said. At issue is whether the district's sale of bonds to be repaid with subsequent payment by Idaho Power can be construed as a loan from the district to the power company.

NEAL Koopman, Denver, got a surprise when he checked under the hood of his car. A snake was coiled around the oil dipstick base. Roger Fox is pictured removing the 5-foot long, black, brown and grey snake. The snake was taken to the city's dog pound until its fate is decided. (UPI)

Leaders summoned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon summoned House Republican leader John Rhodes and his No. 2 man Leslie Arends to the White House today to discuss what aides called "legislative matters," possibly focusing on how to forestall a vote of impeachment. White House aides declined to specify what they meant by "legislative matters." But House sources speculated that the House Judiciary Committee vote on impeachment, tentatively set for the end of July, might be a top subject. The House sources said there was no obvious piece of legislation requiring immediate White House concern. But they added that controlling the nation's 10 percent inflation plans for a national health insurance scheme of the tax bill could be other priority topics.

The President who entertained 10 Republicans and conservative Democrats aboard the presidential yacht Sequoia Wednesday night, planned to meet separately with Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott and his No. 2 man Robert F. Griffin, R-Mich., either Thursday or Friday. The President's cruise with the members of Congress last night was also described as a session to discuss "legislative matters." The President was sought to bolster his support with sympathetic members of Congress on two previous dinner cruises on the Sequoia, May 4 and May 20. Vice President Gerald R. Ford will attend the meeting with Congressmen Rhodes and Arends.

Arraignment set for six

HAILEY — Six employees of the Idaho Health and Welfare Department charged with involuntary manslaughter were due for arraignment today before Blaine County Magistrate V.K. Jeppesen. Stephen Bolter, Blaine County prosecuting attorney, said private attorneys had called his office representing six of the defendants. The six defendants are Mike Bybee, Lynn Gardner, Jim McIver, Karen Kinsey, Keith Johnson and Joe Brunson. He said no word has been received from Fred Chappoy, one of the seven charged. The seven are charged with "involuntary manslaughter in conjunction with a death in a state-organized survival training program in the Mindoka desert. Jeff Hodgson, an 11-year-old Pocahontas boy, was lost June 10 and found dead July 20. The defendants were associated with the program. Bolter said Bond might be set today; but he would probably recommend that each individual be released on his own recognizance. A preliminary hearing is mandatory within 20 days of arraignment. He said the defendants could waive that period. If any defendants do not appear for arraignment next week, Bolter said, warrants of arrest would be served. Magistrate Jeppesen has signed the warrants but Bolter said he would like to see the defendants appear voluntarily.

Battle scarred tom cat, pampered prisoner, dies

JACKSON, Mich. (UPI) — He was the toughest dude in the world's largest wall-to-wall prison.

His prowess as the number one cat at Southern Michigan Prison became legend.

He wore the tulle and his feline body bore the marks of a decade of fighting — scarred face and tail and gnarled ear.

But it was his pampered life as the prisoners' in the maximum security prison because he loved his life.

He apparently was done in by one of the inmates he trusted. He died on a veterinary's operating table as the doctor tried to mend his battered body and broken leg that needed amputation.

Several names were behind the old cat had been in the institution for well over a decade.

Said Peter Greiner, editor of the prison newspaper "The Spectator":

"He'd done more time than most," said Greiner, "and there are few who can remember when the old tomcat arrived."

Tramp became a hero in his time as he strutted the prison grounds. He was featured in many Michigan newspapers and a national magazine about his exploits.

Most stories told of his prowess at knocking off other challenges to his reign and so it was for prisoners had for him as they gave him food and water.

"With one ear bent completely over, a scarred face and tail, the end of which jutted off at a right angle, he looked the part of a true champion," recalled Greiner.

Greiner, when informed of Tramp's disappearance, appealed through the newspaper for a message on Tramp's whereabouts. He was quickly found outside the walls, badly injured by an unknown assailant.

Strike reaches tentative okay

BOSTON (UPI) — Tentative agreement was reached today in the nation's second longest active strike, a walkout by 1,700 production workers at the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard where construction of eight liquefied natural gas tankers has been halted for nearly 17 weeks.

The tentative agreement was worked out in marathon talks between company officials, representatives of Local 5, Shipbuilders Union, AFL-CIO, and W-A Users Jr.

director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The walkout began March 26, and its length is surpassed only by the strike by teachers in the Timberlake School District in New Hampshire, which started Feb. 26.

Greiner, "considered the nation's top labor mediator, flew to Boston earlier this week to work with the disputing sides. The primary area of disagreement had been the company's request for work changes to improve productivity and a proposal that union stewards perform more work in the yard."

The negotiators met nearly all day Tuesday and for nearly 10 hours — from Wednesday afternoon until a 15:30 today, when the agreement was signed.

Details were not announced, but Urey said the negotiators had initiated 22 specific articles filling 11 typewritten pages.

Hansen backs GOP discussion

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Republican party's Jack of Position on the Sunshine and Presidential Primary Initiatives makes sense, according to Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho.

"I think it's understandable that they would not take a party position on either one of these issues," Hansen said in an interview Wednesday.

Hansen said he supports and has signed both initiatives. Sunshine would require campaign financial disclosure and registration of lobbyists. Unlike the Republicans, the Democrats endorsed the initiatives at their convention last month.

The Republican party's refusal to take a position will not hurt the party, Hansen thinks, because "people will look at the individual candidates and judge them based on their stands on these issues."

Occupational Safety and Health — Rep. Hansen disapproved with his party's call for repeal. "My view is that OSHA should not be repealed outright but that it should be modified and improved."

According to the vote on the repeal resolution, he said, this apparently was the view of about half the delegates at the party convention.

Hansen said he would accept contributions from labor organizations such as CIO, the AFL-CIO's political arm, or from extreme groups such as the John Birch Society. White labor has contributed some $100,000 to his campaign.

The question, he said, is not who gives but what they are expecting to buy with it. "The condition I would apply is that there would be no strings if they believe I'm capable and if valuable public servant and they would like me to continue in office and support my campaign, then that's fine," he said.

Hansen expressed surprise that Republican Senate candidate Bob Smith has said enough evidence exists to warrant impeachment of the President. "I can't comment on his statement," he said. "I can't judge until I've seen the evidence," he said, adding that the committee on impeachment has not presented its findings.

Curiosity, Hansen said, prompted him to ask in a recent newsletter questionaire whether President Nixon should be impeached.

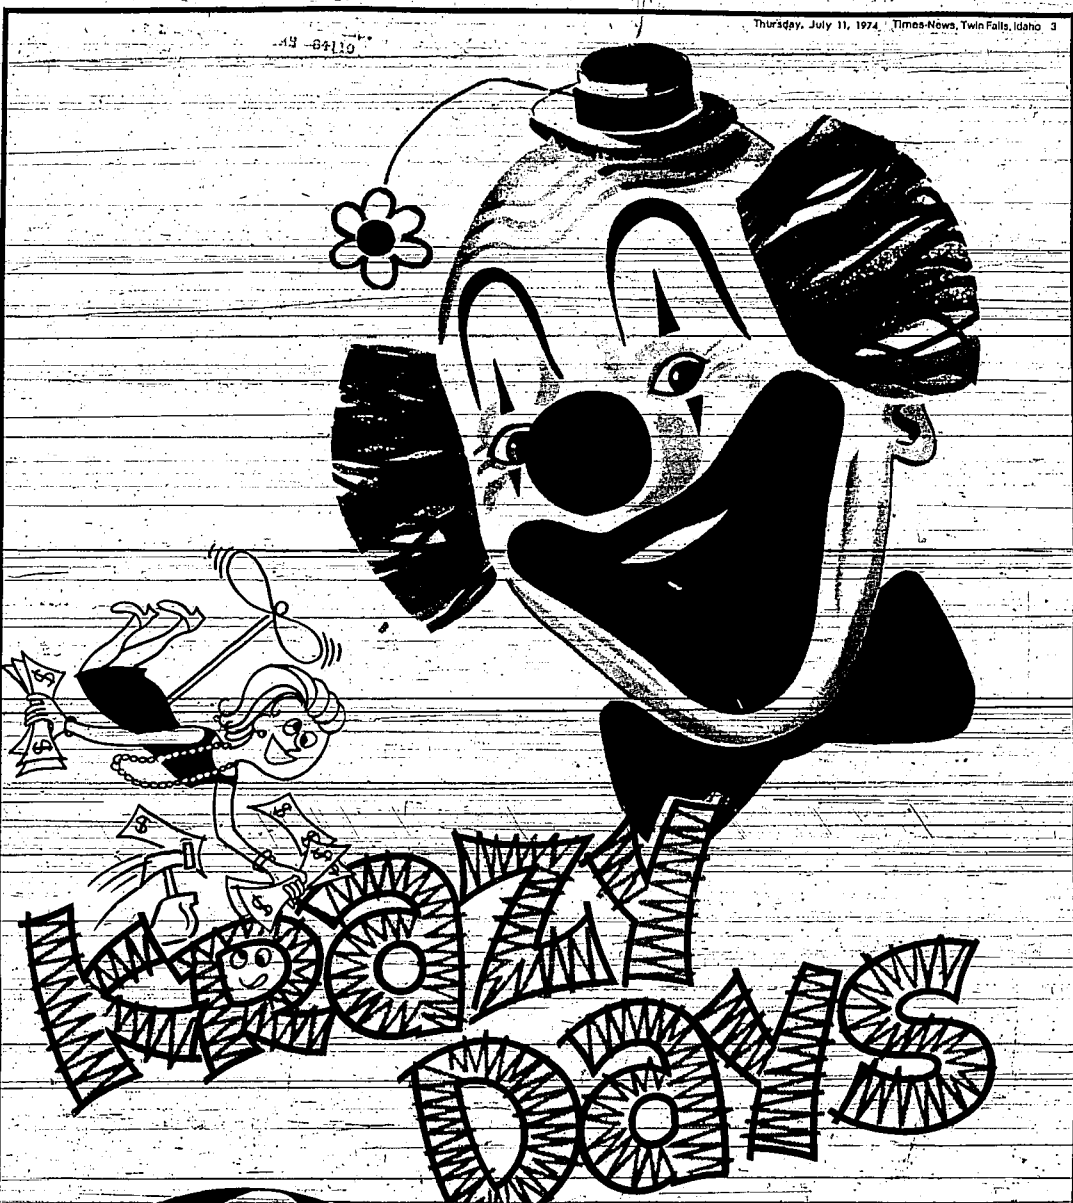

"My decision on impeachment has to be based on my own analysis of the evidence and the law," he said, maintaining that public opinion on the issue should not sway him.

Hansen said he was first skeptical of Nixon's trip to the Middle East, but now thinks "it helped dramatize the energy crisis of the country."

Giving nuclear power reactors to the Arabs and Israelis, he said, was proper under the condition of adequate safeguards to prevent the diversion of nuclear materials for making weapons. He said the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy, which he is a member of, is working with the Arab and Israeli governments on such agreements.

In making a decision on whether Nixon has to turn over 64 tapes to the impeachment inquiry, Hansen hopes the Supreme Court would consider a broader range of executive privilege questions.

He said the House's impeachment decision will "turn very much" on the court's decision.

Blaine program funds requested

HAIHAY — The Blaine County School Board Monday night was asked for $3,000 to continue an expanded arts program.

Steve Valley Arts and Humanities Center director Jim Belson said he expected the program to be expanded. But it will cost $3,000 more than the $2,000 paid in 1973-74, he said.

Belson offered a tentative schedule for the coming year. The schedule includes instructing one group of children from each county school one day a week for three 9-week periods.

The board tabled the action until Belson confers with principals from the schools. The next board meeting will be Aug. 12 at the center. Belson will give a guided tour.

The board is also considering the purchase of buses in bulk. A proposal made by the Idaho School District Council might be a factor.

Supt. Wayne Fagg said that Blaine County has already made plans to buy two buses this year.

Fagg said specifications for Blaine County buses differed from other districts.

Bids on the sale of district bonds for construction of new high school and additions to elementary schools will be opened Aug. 7 at 8 p.m. in the district office.

The board approved a request from extension agent Jim Aiken for transporting 4-H students to camp north of Ketchikan this month in a district bus.

In other action Rhonda Hunt and Art Richards were sworn in as board members. Hunt was elected chairman and Richards vice chairman. Ray Jefferson was voted clerk of the board and Susan McCoy treasurer of the board.

Lief Odmak resigned from the board effective immediately. He is from trustee zone 5 north of Ketchikan. A replacement will be appointed soon, according to Fagg.

Board meetings have been scheduled for the second Monday of each month for the coming year.

Approval expected

GOODING — Final federal approval of the new Gooding County sanitary landfill is expected early next month.

The project was discussed Tuesday by Gooding County commissioners. The landfill is located two miles southeast of Tuttle. It will service the entire county.

The commission has received an initial 30-day approval of the project from

The Bureau of Land Management. The final BLM approval is expected around the first of August, according to Gooding County Clerk Margaret Clements.

House-to-house garbage pickup is being registered by the commission.

The next meeting of the commissioners will be geared to the BLM decision. The date will be announced.

Gurney's indictment ironic, troubling

Sen. Edward J. Gurney's indictment on charges of bribery, conspiracy and perjury provides a doubly ironic postscript to last year's Senate Watergate hearings.

The federal grand jury indictment charged the Florida Republican senator had taken part in a program to collect more than $200,000 in kickbacks from housing contractors.

It is ironic that Gurney's troubles will tend to lend support to the popular notion that members of the Senate Watergate Committee were just as corrupt as the members of the Nixon administration under the committee's scrutiny.

We doubt that corruption among the Senate committeemen was as widespread as that in the White House staff, but it is increasingly difficult to defend such a notion in the face of the Gurney indictment.

A second ironic note comes from the fact that the chorus of supposition about these closed skeletons belonging to committee inquisitors tended to come from the President's supporters. They now have found something to prop up their supposition. It is ironic that it came at the expense of Gurney, the "President's man" on the committee.

The Gurney indictment raises another troubling possibility: What happens when you combine desperate White House staffers bent on a cover-up to protect the President and themselves with a senator who may have been in the tank? Even if Gurney was not a bribe-taker, he certainly was under federal investigation for suspicion of accepting bribes, and therefore vulnerable to pressure.

Under the circumstances one wonders whatever motivated President's strongest defender during those long hot hearings last summer. Hopefully it was conviction, not thoughts of conviction.

Line and sinker

Those concerned about marijuana use among younger folk may have to turn their sights on alcohol instead.

A Department of Health, Education and Welfare study presented to Congress Wednesday said drinking among young people aged 18 to 20 has become nearly universal, even outstripping marijuana use, as UPI put it.

Nearly universal drinking by today's young adults, if true, suggests a major shift from patterns of alcohol consumption of the generation or two earlier. We suspect that no more than half the young adults drank 25 years ago. Even if the extent was larger than we suspect, there certainly were large numbers of youngsters who did not drink.

But even at the lower levels of consumption of earlier days, alcohol has become the problem drug of that generation.

It comes as something of a shock to find alcohol has become the nearly universal drug of choice among younger folks.

Instead of rebelling against the ways of their fathers, the younger people seem to be adopting their parents' problems without so much as a glance at the look, time and stinker.

American food output to be US ace in hole

(C) New York Times Service
During the worst of the crisis, Americans complained that the nations of the Middle East monopolized the world's oil reserves and exported great hardship by charging the "highest prices possible."

Now, with less publicity, the world is facing a food crisis and the main question this time is what the United States and Canada will do about it.

For North America now controls a larger share of the world's exportable supplies of food grains than the Middle East does of oil.

The energy-of-course-argument is because the United States and Canada withhold grain from nations for political purposes, but the price of wheat, soybeans and corn has more than doubled in the last 20 months, and the nations that need food the most are precisely those least able to pay for it.

This raises some hard political and even moral questions, as Lester Brown of the Overseas Development Council put it to the Rockefeller Commission on Critical Choices for Americans: "Can we rely primarily on the marketplace to set the price and determine the distribution of so essential a commodity as food?"

And should Americans continue to consume as much fodder as they now do, most of this consumption is not actually needed.

There is little doubt, as Brown told the Rockefeller Commission, "that a year from now we will see the largest food deficit of any region in history unfolding in Asia... a situation where political leaders in the more affluent countries, including the United States, may have to decide whether to throw up their hands and sort out food aid on an ad hoc basis, or to make a long-term commitment to the food equivalent of turning the thermostat down six degrees... that is, reducing consumption of soy, livestock products in order to free many millions of tons of grain to move into Asia."

World demand for food because of rising population and marginal improvement of living standards in some countries is increasing by 30 million tons a year. In 1961 we had reserves amounting to 93 days of world food consumption. Now, despite very good crops in the major grain producing countries, our reserves are down to 27 days and declining by 10 million tons a year.

The United States farmers and the Department of Agriculture have probably made as great a contribution to world peace as the soldiers at the Pentagon or the diplomats at the State Department. Never can say they did their part in the last 20 years, they have increased corn production by 4 per cent per acre. Soy great has been the development of soybeans that one acre out of six in the United States is now producing 40 bushels of soybeans. Soybean exports now bring in more money than all our high technology exports such as computers or jet aircraft.

Meanwhile, enormous progress has been made in increasing the production of poultry, eggs and milk.

This, however, does not solve the Department of Agriculture experts. They want to know "how can the state of Washington produce 44,000 pounds of milk last year and why the average American hen, even when tricked by controlled lighting, produces only 282 eggs a year, while the Japanese actually induced one hen to lay 365."

Questions suggest watered-down tape ruling

By FRED BARNES

(C) Washington Star-News

WASHINGTON - The justices of the Supreme Court have given indications that they may fall to hand down the long-awaited decision against the President Nixon which many legal experts have predicted.

Nevertheless, the court still appears likely to rule, if only by a 5-4 vote, that the President's decision or by a divided vote, that the President must release the tape recordings sought by Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon A. Jaworski.

During an extraordinary and unprecedented three-hour session in the court's ornate hearing room Monday, several of the justices appeared troubled by some aspects of Jaworski's bid for the White House tapes.

While it is difficult to ascertain how a Justice will vote from the questions he asks during an oral argument, it seemed that Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and Harry A. Blackmun had qualms about a tough constitutional ruling against the President.

Burger, who was assigned to the highest level of the court's oral arguments, was impressed by two points made by Justice John H. Steward, the President's chief lawyer.

First, St. Clair said that most of the tapes contained "conversations... matter... that was completely irrelevant to the case... the case in which Jaworski has asked for the recordings."

And second, the presidential lawyer stated that there would be great "mechanical problems" separating the Watergate material from the cover tapes from June 21, 1972 to late April 1973.

After St. Clair left the podium, Burger asked Philip Lacovara, Jaworski's back up in the argument, to explain how the "mechanical" problem could be overcome.

Blackmun, a chief friend and court ally of Burger, asked only one question, which suggested that he is not convinced that the tapes case was brought before the justices through the proper procedure.

White, an appointee of President John F. Kennedy and always an active participant in oral arguments, asked a series of questions that indicated he believes the court should sidestep some or all of the constitutional issues involved in the case.

Justice Douglas said that the issue of whether the President had the authority to name Nixon as an unindicted co-conspirator in the cover-up could be dismissed as irrelevant to the tapes dispute.

At least three other justices - William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall - voiced agreement with White on this point. Justice Potter Stewart disagreed.

St. Clair had asked the justices to expunge the name of the President as a co-conspirator, saying the grand jury had overstepped its authority in naming Nixon.

White also asked questions that suggested that he might favor a ruling which would make possible point - whether the subpoena of the 64 tapes was justified under the federal rules of criminal procedure. Should a justice decide that the subpoena did not measure up to the standards in the federal rules, he would not have to go any further with the case.

He could then vote to quash the subpoena and avert a ruling on the broad constitutional issues facing executive privilege.

Though Burger, Blackmun and White expressed doubts during the argument, the court's three liberals - Douglas, Brennan and Marshall - made it clear that they will not side with the President in the battle over the tapes.

Douglas, the court's most outspoken liberal, suggested that the tapes must be turned over since they may contain evidence that would exonerate the six defendants in the cover-up trial, which is scheduled to begin Sept. 9.

Brennan, a Democrat who was placed on the court by Republican President Dwight D. Eisenhower, challenged St. Clair's assertion that the tapes case had become a case for the President's disadvantage with the impeachment proceeding in the House.

Marshall, the former civil rights lawyer who was appointed to the court by President John F. Kennedy, made several key comments during St. Clair's presentation.

After the lawyer explained the type of showing the prosecutor would have to make to justify getting the tapes, Marshall commented that "you lost me there somewhere."

The two justices' light comments were enigmatic, says Stewart and Lewis F. Powell Jr., Stewart, an appointee of Eisenhower, disputed statements by both Brennan and St. Clair.

Powell, a Nixon appointee, posed questions that could indicate that he thinks the President lost his right to refuse to yield the tapes under a claim of executive privilege once he was named as an unindicted co-conspirator.

In most cases at the court, Powell sides with Burger and Blackmun, but in the tapes case he does not break along conservative-liberal lines. The old alliance may not materialize.

On an issue as important as the tapes matter, the justices are divided, and that may lead together in a unanimous ruling. But it might have to water down considerably to get all eight justices together.

Even the majority opinion in a divided court might have to be greatly narrowed in order to collect the justices together who adhere to the liberal position.

The ninth justice, William H. Rehnquist, has indicated himself from the case. With Rehnquist out of the case, there is a possibility of a 4-4 ruling - A tie decision would uphold the ruling made by United States District Judge John T. Birtch that the tapes must be released.

In addition, it would uphold St. Clair's refusal to expunge the grand jury's naming of Nixon as a member of the conspiracy.

However, such a ruling would not technically settle the dispute, since the court could not be asked to expunge the name of Nixon as a member of the conspiracy.

But the ruling would not settle the dispute, since the court could not be asked to expunge the name of Nixon as a member of the conspiracy.

The guess here is that the United States could make more friends and progress in the world by solving the food crisis than by fiddling with the missile crisis.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

"Quite a performance," as I say. But there is something that is slowly coming out of it which for convenience might be termed a doctrine. The doctrine does not - of course originate with him, but it is the thrust of his arguments.

Most succinctly stated, it is this: That a President of the United States cannot be removed from office unless he commits a crime. The same kind of crime which, if you will, I committed it, would land us in jail. All the engines of historical and analytical arguments concern toward that conclusion: unless the President has committed a high crime and misdemeanor, he may not be removed from office.

The doctrine and this doctrine lead to a course that leaves the country without the means to assure responsible self-government in certain contingencies. There are any number of activities, not formally proscribed by the law, which a President could legally undertake at considerable cost to the republic.

Let us take one, at the absurd end of the scale, to illustrate the doctrine. Suppose the President woke up one morning and announced that he was feeling so good about the world and human nature, he had decided to commute the sentences of every single American serving time for committing a federal crime.

What would then happen - literally - is that the doors would open and tens of thousands of criminals would walk out into the streets, parading the grinning of the President. But the President would have committed no crime.

Suppose the President woke up one morning and decided that the whole of the American military establishment should move to southern Florida to guard against the possibility of a nuclear attack on the East Coast.

And this, turning any conclusion yet to be reached that the President has in fact been guilty of checking out of office, the House of Representatives should now be considered.

It is a "particular disappointment in Washington that the courts have not been able to make a number of rulings in recent years, really, to use Henry Kissinger's term, the conceptual 'breakthrough' that the agricultural scientists are looking for. They would rather say 'we can't make a missile or so' and keep running behind demand."

There are other reasons. The United States is running out of idle acres. Fertilizer is in short supply because of the rising price of oil and the increased demand.

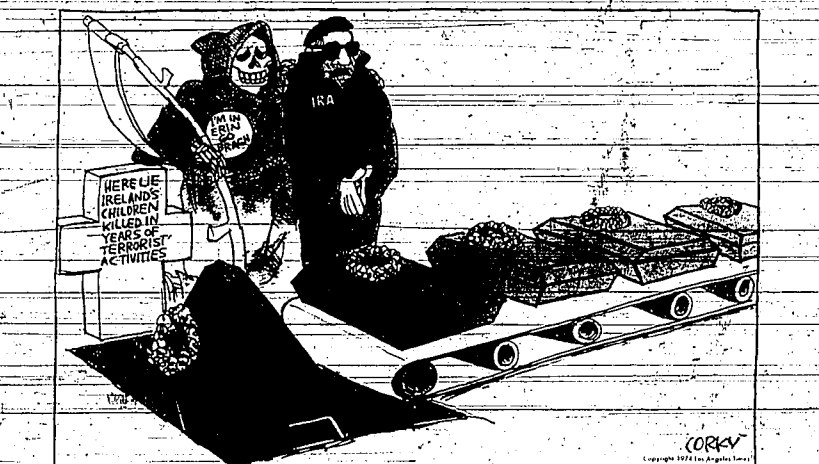

It is also true that the United States is not producing enough grain to meet its own needs. We are also taking out of production about a million good acres a year for highways, shopping centers, and golf courses.

Mortgage payments due on Western White House

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — President Nixon won't be able to meet a $100,000 mortgage payment that falls due Sunday on the Western White House at San Clemente, his lawyer said Tuesday.

The last payment is due for both Nixon and a partnership by two friends, Robert Altmann and C. G. "Bobe" Rebozo, said attorney Dean Butler, and it will have to be refinanced.

In the complex financing of the purchase of the San Clemente villa, Nixon sold 21 acres of the 29.9-acre estate to the Rebozos in a joint partnership, known as the B and C Investment Co. for $1.25 million.

Butler said the President's share of the upcoming payment is $224,440, and the partnership owes the remainder.

There is a problem in arranging refinancing, he said, because "the interest of the other owners in refinancing might be different from the interest of the President. It's a problem of isolating the interests to make them compatible."

He would not elaborate on how Nixon's interests may differ from those of his two friends.

Butler said he may apply for an extension on the payment date, or he may get a short-term loan to meet it.

The extension agreement would have to be approved by the representatives of the estate which sold the house to Nixon and is due to receive the money. The estate's attorney was not available for comment.

Butler's law firm took over "most of the President's personal affairs in California from Herbert Kalmbach, the close Nixon associate and chief fund raiser who went to prison last month for Watergate-related financial transactions.

Butler said he does not consider himself Nixon's personal attorney, but since some of the President's private legal business is still handled by other lawyers, including former Kalmbach partner Frank De Marco, who was a classmate of Butler's in the USC law school class of 1951.

Stevenson has gone on record expressing a flexible attitude on coastal state-claims negotiations in efforts to reach an agreement, provided these are accompanied by assurances of freedom of navigation and agreements for sharing in fishing.

The general debate that has occupied most of the time of 149 states and a host of international organizations attending the United Nations Law of the Sea conference will shortly give way to complex, closed-door negotiations.

The conference's 3,000 delegates and experts, divided into three commissions, will spend the next seven weeks trying to draft universally acceptable rules for problems ranging from freedom of navigation to coastal states' rights and from pollution control to deep-sea mining.

In the initial debate, participating states have expressed their general views on the issues. Many used the conference as a forum to air old political grievances.

Church should have been there

Senator Frank Church should have attended Junior high school with me. He could have saved himself a lot of embarrassment.

I think it was about in the seventh grade that I took a course called "Consumer Economics." One of the chapters had the title: "Read Every Line Before You Sign." It is good advice.

Church, if you will recall, told me a few weeks back that he "honestly" couldn't remember whether or not he signed the lettuce boycott pledge at the 1972 Democratic convention in Sun Valley.

A few days later a press release from his office clarified that statement by saying that if the senator did sign it, he did so inadvertently.

Then a few days later came a clarification of the clarification. Here is the explanation by Church: "I do remember some flap about what kind of salad was to be served at the concluding banquet, lettuce or carrot. I signed on against lettuce — although I would have preferred potato salad — but I didn't read the statement at the time nor have I seen it since."

In the "Home Press Release" he called for opponents to produce the document showing he had actually signed it. He noted that a search of his files failed to yield the document in question so, obviously, he hadn't signed it.

An obvious thought is: "I wonder what else Frank has signed that he didn't remember or read before signing?" Do you suppose that is why he signed the Frank in Gulf resolution on the bill creating the National Water Resource Council?

A few days after my original interview with Church made statewide headlines, a call came from North Idaho from a Democratic friend of mine. He is a party leader and was at Sun Valley in 1972.

Anyway, the guy started kidding me about the interview with Church and how Frank had really pulled one on me. And I thought I had caught him in the middle of a stupid answer. I replied:

The guy's reasoning was this: Church signed the 1972 pledge and any honest Democrat who was there can testify to it.

But the Demo from the north said the only answer Frank could give when I asked about the boycott was to say he didn't remember. "If he said he did he would be in trouble just like Davis was two years ago. And if he said he didn't he would be lying and he knows too many of us know about the pledge. The only smart political answer he could give was to say he didn't remember."

Amazing, simply amazing. The rationale for Church telling me he didn't remember signing the pledge is that it is "a good political answer." I just can't believe it. Honestly doesn't count, only good political answers, Egad!

At any rate the conversation with my friend from the north came before Church began clarifying his statement and clarifying his clarification.

When that started I figured I would get in a few licks of my own so I called him to get his opinion on Church's actions. He wasn't thrilled to hear me.

After needing him for a time about Church's faulty memory and the fact that the Idaho Statesman had almost nothing to say about it and the Lewiston Morning Tribune had only a little more to say, I let him do the talking.

He admitted that Church could be in trouble this year and thought that Bob Smith of Nampa rather than Don Winder of Boise and Caldwell could have the best chance of beating him. But he reminded me, remember that most papers in the state are pro-Church and they aren't going to be very sympathetic to Smith or anyone trying to knock off their boy Church.

We hung up, still friends. Three days later the Lewiston paper and the Boise paper wrote that there was a John Birch smear against Church and they tried to link Smith in with it.

It took me an interesting campaign. But I hope it revolves around issues instead of smears. Smith may believe in some of the same things the Birchers do but he is no Bircher. And Church is not pro-Communist as the Birchers believe.

I hope the Birchers got off Frank's back and the newspapers get off Smith's. Let the two candidates battle it out on issues. The waters shouldn't be muddied by Bircher harangues or a newspaper or two manipulating the news.

Meet eyes ocean rules

CARACAS (UPI) — History's largest international conference went into its fourth week today with lawmakers drafting a "draft" to a new constitution for the ocean.

The United States and 11 other countries, including France, Kuwait, Peru and Ireland, were among the scheduled speakers at today's session.

President Nixon's special ambassador, the Honorable John R. Stevenson, planned a morning address to the conference to give the Nixon ad-

Disclosures made on Chicago mayor

CHICAGO (UPI) — Mayor Richard J. Daley has kept secret for 17 years his ownership of a real estate and holding company with assets of about $200,000, the Chicago Sun-Times reported today in a copyrighted story.

The newspaper said Daley owns Elard Realty Co., which holds title to the mayor's summer home in Grand Beach, Mich., the building that houses the mayor's Democratic headquarters near Daley's home in Chicago, and other properties.

The mayor's interests in the firm, which the newspaper said, but it was a closely guarded secret and a "classic example of a substantial assets can successfully be concealed."

The Sun-Times said the records of Elard—a name apparently derived from Daley's and his wife Helen's first names—were obtained in a joint effort by the newspaper and WNCN-TV in Chicago and the Better Government Council Association—a watchdog group.

Gurney charged with bribery

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — A federal grand jury charged Sen. Edward Gurney, R-Fla., a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, with bribery and influence peddling Wednesday in the first indictment against a U.S. senator in 50 years.

Gurney, in a brief statement, proclaimed his "absolute innocence" but a Florida GOP leader said the indictment dealt a "blow" to the senator's reelection chances this fall.

Gurney, President Nixon's staunchest Republican backer on the Watergate Committee, was charged with conspiracy, bribery, receiving unlawful compensation and four counts of making false statements to a grand jury.

The indictment climaxed a 10-month investigation by the 11-member grand jury, that started out as a look for a "new treatment" to builders by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) and the Department of Housing and Urban Development and led to a $400,000 campaign "slush fund" collected for Gurney.

"I maintain my absolute innocence of any wrongdoing," said Gurney in his statement.

issued by his Washington office after the indictments were announced.

"I have an abiding faith in the American system of justice and I firmly believe that I will be proved innocent of any wrongdoing in this affair."

"I intend to fight this move just as hard as I can, and I will be vindicated."

Florida Republican Party Chairman L.E. Younger Thomas said after learning of the indictment, "I'm very sorry about his tragic turn of events and even though he is innocent until proven guilty, I'm sure the senator's re-election effort has been dealt a mortal blow."

In Washington, sources in the Justice Department said the last time a senator was indicted in office was Sen. Burton K. Wheeler of Montana in 1924, but the charges later were dismissed.

Gurney has maintained all along that the "grand jury" investigation is part of a political vendetta against him by his enemies seeking to oust him "from his seat, which he has held since November, 1968."

The maximum penalties for all of the various charges against Gurney total 24 years in prison and at least $50,000 in fines. The fine could be much larger if the fine for bribery is calculated at three times the amount of the bribe, as provided by law.

Gurney said in a televised news conference last Dec. 7 that he had "no advance knowledge of the fundraising efforts carried out on his behalf and said he ordered them, halted as soon as he found out about them."

'Study' trial scheduled

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — A multimillion dollar damage suit on behalf of participants in a 40-year government study of untreated syphilis comes to trial Dec. 16 and a 73-year-old man who took part said today he will be happy.

Carter Howard, who lives in Auburn, Ala., was one of 292 black Macon County men who were left untreated, even after penicillin became available, so doctors could study the effects of syphilis. He is one of 112 known survivors.

The U.S. Health Service never had the right to use humans as guinea pigs, he said.

"I don't think it was right," he said. "The government ought to know better to treat people that way and tell them what they got. I don't think they should never have done it."

Howard said health service officials came to his church in 1932 "wanting blood tests

"They never said what we had nor nothing. They'd just come out once a year and take us to the hospital," he said. "They did give us a certificate for $50 on a burial."

This went on every year until 1972, said Howard, "when they quit coming."

Howard said he and his wife suffer from "high blood and nervous spells" caused by syphilis. "Attorneys for other plaintiffs said many have heart disease and central nervous system damage."

Attorneys once said claims in the suit would go as high as $2 billion, but a federal judge has ruled that only those persons physically harmed by syphilis may file for damages.

Between 100-150 participants, their wives and any children who suffer from congenital syphilis are expected to seek damages. Attorneys are asking $2 million for each of the plaintiffs.

Hunger strike in 3rd day

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — U.S. and Canadian inmates at Lecumberri Prison refused to eat today in the third day of a hunger strike to protest "paltry" terms and conditions at Mexico City's "black palace."

The 300 male prisoners, accused of torturing some inmates with electric cattle prods, said the U.S. government exerted pressure on Mexico to keep them in jail.

A prisoner statement repeated by the government of the inmates predicted a "possible dangerous situation" at Lecumberri, nicknamed the "black palace" because of the old building's soot-dark bricks.

"We are protesting police torture and extortion, illegal arrest and detention without trial," the young woman quoted the prisoners as saying.

Mexican Attorney General Pedro Ojeda Paulada refused to comment on the strike, which began Tuesday in the complaints of the prisoners.

The prisoner's girl friend said most of the 77 American men are in Canadian custody, involved in the protest were in jail on drug charges.

She said the majority had been seized by customs officials at Mexico City's airport with packages of cocaine from South America. Cocaine smugglers often stop in Mexico on the way to the United States.

The prisoner statement asked for public support, to protest treatment by police and courts, and said several prisoners were tortured with electric shocks for raising to sign legal statements.

The statement said some

Wallace image eyed

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — The John Chamberlain-led, predominantly black National Democratic Party of Alabama, said today Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., is partly responsible for firing George C. Wallace's now moderate racial image.

Wallace won a landslide re-election victory for governor May 7, picking up surprising support from the state's black voters, including Tuskegee Mayor Johnny Ford and Pittman Mayor A.J. Cooper.

"Since that victory, Fayette Miss. Mayor Charles Evers has said he can support Wallace for vice president if Wallace runs in 1976."

Other Kennedy enemies, people, said Cashin. "Everybody knows Evers, Ford and Cooper are tied to the Kennedys."

Saxbe relates 'Henry' theory

WASHINGTON (UPI) — J. Edgar Hoover, the late FBI Director, may have suspected Henry Kissinger's name without his knowledge in order to initiate whetaps on persons in the White House regarded as enemies, says Attorney General William French Smith.

The theory was supported by two Republican senators following the attorney general's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee Wednesday.

"It would be entirely reasonable for Mr. Kissinger not to know he was being used in this manner," Saxbe told reporters after the two-hour closed meeting. "Hoover would have been acting on his own initiative."

If accepted by the committee, the theory would exonerate Kissinger of charges he ordered the wiretapping of government officials and newsmen to determine the source of security leaks.

"Kissinger's request the committee has begun hearings on whether he testified accurately," Saxbe said in a statement on his appointment as Secretary of State last fall.

He said then he did not request wiretaps by the White House "plumbers" and did not even know the unit existed.

At an emotional press conference during President Nixon's recent Middle East tour, Kissinger threatened to resign unless the committee cleared him of such allegations.

He said he could not successfully commit foreign policy if his personal integrity was impugned.

Saxbe said he had provided the committee all Justice Department files on the wiretapping—and on the plumbers that Saxbe said the bulk of the documents were based on "manipulative forgeries" written by Hoover.

Sens. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) and Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) agreed with Saxbe's theory.

"The way Mr. Hoover operated leads me to believe that, other than the President, no one could ever tell Hoover what to do if he felt something might be in the national interest," Percy said.

"An attorney general or secretary of state ever told Hoover what to do."

The fact that a statement on an FBI record said that so-and-so requested a wiretap did not necessarily prove where that request originated.

Theft halted

HERRIN, Ill. (UPI) — A pooch booted a theft attempt Wednesday in dog days heat.

Fireman Dave Bandera spotted the dog trotting out of the fire station with another fireman's boot and gave pursuit.

After a brief chase, the dog dropped the boot in the interest of a speedier escape.

US, Soviet atomic testing continues

By United Press International

The United States and the Soviet Union have set off underground nuclear blasts a week after pledging to limit atomic testing below the earth's surface.

The Swedish Seismological Institute in Stockholm registered an underground explosion Wednesday in the Semipalatinsk area of Soviet Kazakhstan.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission reported a nuclear blast of 20 to 200 kilotons Wednesday in the Nevada desert, setting chandeliers swaying 30 miles away.

and Chinese borders meet.

The Nevada blast was the 20th American underground explosion publicly announced since the 1968 SALT I agreement with the Soviets.

The Atomic Energy Commission would only say the explosion involved a 20 to 200 kiloton "weights related" device with the code name "Escobaton." It said no radiation leakage was detected.

The underground explosion was registered at 11:10 a.m. and had a 5.2 Richter magnitude, Markis Bath of the Swedish seismic institute said.

The blast took place near where the Soviet, Mongolian,

Campaign funds not reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic candidates did not report at least $80,000 in campaign assistance provided by organized labor in this state's July 8-10 congressional elections, a Republican-National Committee report charged today.

The draft GOP report found that dozens of AFL-CIO unions spent tens of thousands of dollars in so-called "in-kind" contributions in behalf of the four winning Democratic candidates.

It said failure of the candidates to report such "soft" contributions "is inasmuch from 'hard' cash contributions" mandated by the law.

The law defines contributions to be reported as including "the payment by any person other than a candidate or a national committee of compensation for the personal services of another person which are rendered to such candidate or committee without charge for any such purpose."

The report, a product of a secret month-long investigation, said the unions have not only the "largest minimum" that could be determined and that considerably more was spent by labor in "in-kind" assistance for the four races.

A draft copy of the report was made available to UPI by a highly placed Republican party official.

The investigation examined labor union support for these Democratic candidates who won House seats in special elections earlier this year.

John Murtha of Pennsylvania, Richard Vander Aarde and Robert Traylor of Michigan and James L. Buckley of Idaho.

According to the document, labor in kind assistance was provided in the form of computer time, voter registration and "get out the vote" drives.

US $ hits 5-month high

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The U.S. dollar hit a two-month high against the British pound, yen and Swiss franc today.

The price of gold fell 56 cents in Zurich.

Most dealers were quoted at 294 3/4 yen up from Wednesday's 292.50 and the highest rate since the currency reached 293 yen Feb. 12.

Dealers said rising oil import bills have supported the demand for scarce dollars in Tokyo during the past few weeks.

The dollar opened at $137 an ounce in Zurich, compared with Wednesday's final $129 and down 5 1/2 in 2 1/2 hours.

The price of gold, down from $190 in Zurich and $6.50 in London Wednesday, because speculators cashed in their profit from the metal's comeback from its low-month low last week, dealers said.

The dollar opened higher against most European currencies.

FTC charges firm on sales tactics

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission has charged Sears, Roebuck and Co. with using deceptive tactics to sell cast-iron, high-priced home appliances.

The FTC Wednesday said Sears advertised appliances at low prices to attract customers but sold them at attempted to sell higher priced merchandise.

Sears, in a hastily called news conference at its corporate headquarters, denies the allegation, promising to fight the FTC charge.

James W. Hutton, Sears' senior vice president, said the company's tactics are totally different from the tactics of bait-and-switch cases brought by the commission in the past.

"We can only conclude that the commission is seeking to test a new and previously unannounced theory of law," Hutton said.

The FTC also charged that the commission "said Sears' salesmen were instructed to they recognized a higher percentage for the more expensive models than for lower priced ones."

Hutton said salesmen were told to keep "a record of the most profitable items" and were not under a quota system.

Aide urges control on diseases which afflict half of humanity

(ET) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON (AP) — For just a fraction of what the United States spends on cancer research in a single year, a group of diseases that afflict almost half of humanity and cripple or kill millions annually could be brought under control if an 15-year, $1 billion international "public-health" effort begins.

These are parasitic diseases such as malarial fevers, which sicken millions and mangle lives, little known in developed countries and heavy "uncle" research in laboratories, identified in a survey of "emerging" diseases.

The World Health Organization hopes to bring about a "new paradigm" of interest, government, and planning, scientific and technical, in Geneva, Switzerland, said the research effort will be similar to that of the World Bank.

Kaplan, an American biologist, was interviewed at a Washington office during a visit to the World Bank. He says the "emerging" diseases are being studied because they are not under control so they are not the source they are now.

A 1974 report on "emerging" diseases, first started for economic reasons, "A form of typhoid, malarial, African sleeping sickness, and other cattle spinal fever, are being studied because of their potential for attack on the human version of this disease as a spillover from the cattle project. For a single year, Kaplan said, parasitic diseases were thought to be immune to attack through the vaccine and drug screens are less certain of this today. "If you get enough good brains, enough resources, the new biology can be brought to bear on the problem of parasitic diseases," Kaplan said.

The required resources, while substantial, are insignificant by standards of the efforts being brought to bear in the United States against cancer. President Nixon has requested, in his budget for the new fiscal year, 500 million for cancer research. By contrast, the "world bank" is spearheading a campaign that will cost $20 million over 20 years to wipe out "onchocerciasis, or river blindness," in several countries of the Volta River Basin region of America. The campaign, directed primarily against schistosomiasis and malaria, is expected to cost $100 million for 150 million over 10 to 15 years.

generally known as "tropical communicable diseases" that also include tuberculosis, leprosy and poliomyelitis. Polio, a viral disease, is pretty well controlled, at least manageable, in most of the world, Kaplan said, and effective methods for treating TB and leprosy are in hand.

One big problem in fighting these diseases — particularly TB — is that poorly nourished people do not respond to the normally very effective anti-tuberculosis vaccine. Malnutrition is rampant in the very countries where TB is the greatest problem.

"In all communicable diseases," Kaplan said, "malnutrition is the great complication. Children, particularly, die quicker. Measles, which would be a problem here, is a scourge in West Africa."

Leprosy, almost unknown in the United States, afflicts an estimated 20 million people, chiefly in the countries of the "black Africa" south of the Sahara, Kaplan said. A single drug, thioamides, is widely used and can arrest most forms of the disease, but it is a disorder that must be treated for long periods of time.

Teenage drinking prevalent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drinking among teenagers is so widespread that it outstrips marijuana use, the administration said.

A special 29-page report on alcohol and health, prepared by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, details alcohol abuse.

As the report was released, HHS Secretary Casper W. Weinberger told newsmen, "The proportion of American youth who drink has been increasing to the extent it now is almost universal, with 18 to 29 year olds having highest on an index of possible problem drinking habits."

The report said that the economic cost of alcohol abuse is estimated at $25 billion a year, plus that excessive alcohol use, especially when combined with tobacco, has been implicated in the development of cancer.

The section on drinking habits says that numerous studies reveal that a substantial proportion of teenagers drink, with beer the most preferred beverage and wine the second.

Preliminary estimates from this survey indicate that about 5 percent of the students are problem drinkers. A single can of soft drink can contain as much as 10 percent of the alcohol content of the students' potential problem drinking habits.

Tick bites increase in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Ticks are biting New Yorkers at an increasing rate this year and have caused an increase in cases of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, a survey of metropolitan area doctors shows.

So far this year doctors have diagnosed 35 cases of the disease, which is transmitted by the bites of two insects, the dog tick and the wood tick.

Deaf-mute girl called to testify

DEPTFORD, C.P.T. — Instead of spending her last school day in class Friday, a 10-year-old girl who is a deaf-mute will be called to testify against two men charged in the stabbing death of her mother.

The girl, Phyllis Irene Penny Spencer, was the only witness to the Jan. 11 slaying of her mother, Mrs. Penny Spencer, 31.

Attorneys in the murder trial at Elgin, Russell, 30, and James Lawson, 26, both of Deptfords, announced Tuesday the girl will be called to testify and said Friday was the most likely day.

Prosecutors in the murder trial said the girl testified on the scene of the slaying, testified Tuesday that Penny demonstrated stabbing motions in wordless efforts to comprehend what she had just seen.

Jury selection was completed Monday and prosecutor Avery Weiswasser told the jury, "We will have to ask your utmost patience in what could be a lengthy trial."

He was referring to the oral testimony of Penny's testimony.

Penny's teacher at McGraw Elementary School, which is in session until Friday, will serve as interpreter in the trial.

The teacher, Betty Carl, was in the courtroom January 29 as Penny took the stand in a preliminary hearing and using sign language described how her mother died.

Penny's sister, Bemie, 8, was at home when the slaying occurred — the only other person in the house besides the victim and slayers — but did not witness it. Penny communicated to police she heard "vibrations" of the violence and "crept" from her room to stand and watch the slaying.

Penny does not refer to the accused by their names but calls Lawson the man "with big hair" because he wears an afro, and Russell is the man "with flat hair" because he is balding.

The trial was recessed Tuesday afternoon until Thursday morning.

Weiswasser said prosecutors will seek to "prove Russell had threatened Mrs. Spencer over money and her changing affections toward him."

Appointed at BLM

CHARLES J. HAZZLER, left, was installed as district manager, Shoshone district, Bureau of Land Management by William L. Mathews, Idaho director. Hazzler has been employed by the BLM since 1957. He is a 1954 graduate of Colorado State University with a BS degree in animal husbandry. He is married to the former Connie Anderson, Rock Springs, Wyo. They have four children: Russ, 16; Charlie, 15; Steve, 12; and Valerie, 9.

17 suitors die in combat to win bride

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — Police reported Tuesday the death of 17 guests at a wedding in the northeast Nigeria where tribal rites call for suitors to engage in physical combat for the bride.

Police said they did not know how many suitors competed for the bride last weekend, but the practice of the Fulani tribe is that they first demonstrate their endurance by undergoing a whipping, followed with a contest of chess-movers.

The winner and the bride-to-be is among the survivors.

Man loses coin collection to thieves

MELBOURNE, Fla. (UPI) — David Quate had been collecting coins since 1917. Last week he decided it wasn't safe to keep them in his home.

Now he's not so sure.

Quate, 64, loaded his 50,000 worth of rare coins and another $7,000 in ordinary cash into a sack Monday, and headed for the bank to rent a safety deposit box.

He got as far as his parked truck.

"As I was walking to my truck, these two men with stockings on their faces came up to me and pointed a gun at me and said 'give it to me.'"

Quate reached up for the sack and that's when they shot at me. They shot at me point blank and later shot at me from the back of the truck.

Both shots missed, but one of the bandits slugged Quate with a length of pipe, grazed his bag of money and fled.

"They (the cops) weren't insured," he said.

A woman neighbor witnessed the robbery. "I didn't get a good look at them because I was more concerned with Mr. Quate."

Holland will get Arab oil

CAIRO (UPI) — The Arab oil-producing countries agreed unanimously today to end a nearly 10-month moratorium on petroleum shipments to the Netherlands.

The ban on Holland has been lifted, said Huzkallah, undersecretary of state at the United Arab Emirates Petroleum. Said in a brief statement, "Usually when a decision is made it becomes effective immediately."

The oil ministers made the decision in the 15-minute meeting in Cairo.

The Arab oil producers imposed the embargo on oil supplies to Holland and the United States during the 1973 Middle East War, hoping to pressure both nations into granting oil price policies.

Seven of the nine nations directly involved in the embargo lifted the embargo on the United States at a meeting in Vienna March 10.

At a meeting in Cairo June 1, the oil ministers "decided to maintain the embargo on the Netherlands at the insistence of Saudi Arabian oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani."

The Saudi Arabian raised no objections at today's session and the ministers adopted their unanimous decision without debate.

The Arabs imposed their embargo on countries which in their view followed a policy favorable to Israel during and after the October war.

The new spirit of cooperation between the European Community and Arab countries, which Holland is a member, and the Arabs was primarily responsible for today's decision, embassy sources said.

Man spends 25 days in snake pit

AMARILLO, Tex. (UPI) — Rick Rust had planned to spend 10 days in a six-room covered pit making friends with a madman, snake, and establishing a world endurance record for that sort of activity.

But the day he was to emerge, claim his title, kiss a beauty queen and so forth, the money donated by onlookers — the August issue of Playboy magazine arrived in the Texas Panhandle, detouring a California go-go girl's 25-day haul with a pack of reptiles.

Rust, 41, decided to maintain his underground household and sidestep the venomous critters for a few more days.

After 25 days, one hour and 40 minutes and one rat (snake bite) Rust climbed out of his pit. He said Tuesday the snakes became accustomed to his presence and did not bother them — which was almost all of the time.

Rust received the snake bite when he rolled over — into a rat — during his sleep. He was treated in the pit.

Gate donations for his adventure totaled more than $5,000.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 23-year-old girl who thinks she can hold a man by going to bed with him must have been written by my daughter. That's HER problem. I can't communicate with her. She resents my advice. The first time she goes out with a man she goes to bed with him. I know it's true because I hear her telling her girl friend about it. (Could she be oversexed?) She lives at home but goes for dates somewhere else and is dropped off at the window.

She is a beautiful girl but she's never had a steady boyfriend. Which is what she wants.

Daughter oversexed?

Once I suggested that she see a psychiatrist but she refused. Abby, you always recommend "therapy." Please tell me what a therapist could do for her and I'll get her to one. I'll have to drag her there.

HER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A therapist will try to help her to understand the reason for her behavior. (Psychiatrists are usually very insecure and have a low opinion of themselves.) A therapist will try to help her build her self-esteem so she can develop better and more lasting relationships.

Don't "drag" your daughter to a therapist. Psychotherapy, unlike castor oil, which will work no matter how you get it down a child's throat, is often forced on an uncooperative patient.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote that her father was 80, looked like 90, and he loved to dance. He also loved to show off, and he'd put on an exhibition every chance he got. She asked how she could stop her father from making a dog out of himself at the forthcoming wedding of her son.

You replied to her dance and thank letters you were shipping chicken soup to him at some rest home every day.

Abby, my father is 79, and he loves to dance, but his dancing days are over. He had a stroke two years ago and now he's partially paralyzed in one arm. Believe me, I've shipped enough chicken soup there to feed an army.

My father asks me to read "Dear Abby" to him every night, and when I read that letter about the dancing father, he smiled and said, "Please write to Dear Abby and tell her that Jake sends his love." So I'm writing to tell you that Jake sends his love. And so do I. JAKE'S DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Tell Jake that I send my love to him. (oo)

DEAR ABBY: How could you brush off that poor guy who signed himself "Double Eight" with all that Sunday school pap?

"Beauty is only skin deep," and "inner beauty counts more than outer beauty" are the usual clichés, but try to miss a hopelessly unattractive loved one, or a person's director with these facts:

I was born ugly—flapping ears, crooked teeth, and a humped, lip-sided nose, bad skin—name it, I had it. My loving parents were too poor to do anything about it, but when I got old enough to earn my own money, I put aside a little every pay day, and instead of buying a car, I went to the best plastic surgeon and dentist I could find.

Over a period of a few months, I had a new face—a new outlook, and a new chance for a normal life. I am now happily married to a lovely woman, have three fine children, a good job and encouraging prospects.

I hope this makes you content. No one should have to live with handicaps he can overcome. N.S. IN N.Y.

DEAR N: You are right. Unfortunately people are too often taken at "face value." Thanks for writing.

Problems: You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

MR. AND MRS. WALTER NELSON

Walter Nelsons set open house Sunday

The event will be at Sweetheart Manor, 220 South Ousley Highway, Buhl. All relatives and friends are invited to attend.

Hosts for the open house will be their daughters, and their husbands, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Mindeno-Weston-Boise and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard "Jeanne" Scott, "Alec" (Arlene) Mendota to welcome guests.

Walter and Ethel Nelson were married July 13, 1924, in Rupert. They have lived in Mindoka County for most of their lives. For the past 25 years they have spent summers at their ranch at Spring Creek in the Wood River Valley, just off Highway 2.

Friends from both communities will join to wish them a happy day. The couple requests no gifts.

Open house set for May Jones, Rupert

The event will be held from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the Rupert LDS Stake tabernacle with members of the Second Ward Relief Society as host. Mrs. Jones requests no gifts.

Born July 13, 1884, at Pocatello, Idaho, Mrs. Jones traveled as a young girl with her parents in a covered wagon to the Inman Mindoka Project and filed on a 30-acre homestead about a mile and a half west of Rupert in the summer of 1902. On Dec. 20 that same year, she was married to Charles A. Jones.

Mrs. Jones still resides on her homestead property during the summer months and spends the winter as a seasonal worker at the Mesa LDS Temple in Arizona.

She has been active in many charity organizations, has served as president of the Old South went up with dummy's king and proceeded to lead out three rounds of trumps. With both opponents obliged to all three leads South was able to knock-out the king of hearts and make his contract.

South was right proud of himself for his brilliant bidding and play. We don't want to take anything away from him. He had done right well but the way the cards lay he could have ruffed the third diamond drawn trump, discarded his losing club when the defenders cashed their last diamond and not given them the chance to get in a heart ruff.

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISES

By Oswald & James Jacoby

South's opening spade bid was made because his opponents were vulnerable and he had a part score of 40 points acquired the hand before. His ace heart bid was based on that same reason. He had bid because 40 points would give him game and it seemed silly to stop at a 40-point contract.

West led his king of diamonds and continued with the ace and a small one. South had to lose a club in any event so he decided to lose his heart there and discard a diamond to discard one.

East shifted to the deuce of hearts. West won with the ace and an immediate heart return would have allowed

YOUNG PEOPLE need to be warned that shoplifting is a crime. Even if the sentence is suspended, the offense is recorded on police blotters. A police record can keep the offender out of college. It can prevent him (or her) from getting a job. Regardless of how valuable the item is that is shoplifted (and most are of small value), the price tag is far too high for any person to pay. If you've ever thought about doing a little shoplifting, think again. Think how it must feel to get caught. Think how you'd answer the question that's on every job application, "Have you ever been arrested? If so, explain." Think how — to the people you know, and the people you love, and yes, even to yourself — you can never be the same person again. Think about it.

Any merchant or his agent who has reason to believe that merchandise has been removed or concealed by a person in violation of this act may detain such person for the purpose of notifying a peace officer. A person or the parents or legal guardian of a minor who knowingly removes merchandise without paying therefor, or conceals merchandise to avoid paying therefor, is civilly liable for its value and additional damages. US takes tough line with oil countries

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is taking a tougher line with oil-producing nations, telling them to let prices fall or face possible economic and political retaliation. That cautious view was put forward Tuesday by Treasury Undersecretary Jack Bennett, just two days before a U.S. "mission" leaves for the Middle East to open delicate negotiations with Arab leaders on the problems caused by oil inflation.

Bennett, who will be part of the American bargaining team, along with Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and the Nixon administration, will be in a House subcommittee.

"Any new cutbacks in oil production by any government at this time would clearly be regarded by the United States and several other oil-consuming countries, both more developed and less developed, as a counter-productive measure," Bennett said.

"There are those in the producing countries who are urging their governments to implement new short cutbacks in production in order to try to maintain today's high oil prices, or even to try to increase them again."

In an earlier draft of his testimony, Bennett said the United States would consider oil cutbacks as "an unfriendly act." The State Department considered that language too strong according to one source, and demanded that it be toned down to "counterproductive measure," which it was.

Even so, the matter has a new twist, Bennett's statement stands as a warning to leaders of the Arab block who have been reaping fortunes from their "rental" prices, and to push their luck too far.

"I am convinced that any such cutbacks would turn out to be economically harmful to the producers for two reasons," Bennett said. "First, it would force the United States and other consuming nations to intensify their efforts to develop other forms of energy and become less dependent on imported oil," he said.

Player, Morgan lead at British Open with 69's

LEITHAM, ST. ANNES, England—L. J. South and Gary Player and an unlikely British club pro, John Morgan, shot opening rounds of 69 on Wednesday to lead the British Open Golf Championship when all around them players were falling to pieces and the big American ball club was still having fun.

South and Morgan were the only two players in the morning who were under 100 in the afternoon. Top of 10th hole Morgan's 69, a 69-year-old pro, had to be helped out of the hole by a caddy who was obliged to play the big American ball club.

Baltimore hands Angels 9-1 loss

By United Press International

Bog Powell drove in four runs with a homer and single to back Ross Grubbs' six-hit pitching Wednesday night as the Baltimore Orioles demolished California 9-1 to extend the Angels' losing streak to a club record-11 straight.

The Orioles mounted a 13-hit attack for their eighth win in nine outings to take over sole possession of first place in the American League East. The Orioles pitched their sixth consecutive win and Fred Coggins and Tommy Davis each collected three hits to move Baltimore a half game ahead of Cleveland as first place.

The Angels, who lost 10-0 on Monday and 19-0 on Tuesday, were shut out for the first time since they were shut out by the Yankees in the seventh game of the fifth-place Twins won their fourth straight game as soon as high school pitcher started to pitch.

College All-Star contest cancelled

CHICAGO (UPI) — A strike by the National Football League Players Association forced cancellation Wednesday of the College All-Star game against the world champion Miami Dolphins.

The NFLPA pledged to donate half the money the July 26 classic would have raised for charity. A spokesman for NFL owners promptly charged the striking pro players with an "irresponsible attack on the traditions of football."

It marked the first time the midsummer game — traditionally the kickoff of the football season — will not be played since its inception 30 years ago in 1931.

"It is with extreme reluctance that the Chicago Tribune Charities Inc. announces the cancellation of the 31st annual College All-Star football game," Cooper Rollow, Tribune sports editor and president of Tribune Charities, told a news conference.

"Tribune Charities, which already has incurred considerable expense preparing for the game, cannot continue plans when the status of the game remains uncertain," Rollow said.

"We don't want to be the ones to lay the blame on anyone," he said. He said the charity would continue its neutral stance in the dispute.

Rollow said all the All Stars would be sent home at the charity's expense and would be paid a per diem for their expenses in addition to their hotel and meals.

Cancellation of the game, he said, represented a substantial loss of "many thousands of dollars" for the charity.

He said the NFLPA had offered to donate half of what the annual charity game raised last year — which would come to about $100,000 — and the strikers' offer had been relayed to the league, though the charity made no request that the league match the NFLPA offer.

NFLPA president Bill Curry said the association had made an "unqualified offer" to come up with the money, noting that "half the responsibility for the cancellation is on me" — he said the pro players could raise the money through barnburners and other such fundraising events.

"We know where the money is coming from. We will raise the money," Curry told newsmen.

All-Star Coach John McKay of Southern California, said it was regrettable that the game was cancelled, but that it was "one of those things that happen — and maybe should have happened."

"I don't think anybody's responsible," he said. "Certainly the players aren't to blame. The players were presented the situation — they were talked to by both sides, and they made their decisions."

Shortly after the cancellation was announced, Wellington Mara, president of the New York Giants and chairman of the management council, executive committee, charged the NFLPA with attacking the traditions of football.

Mara charged that the game was cancelled "not because it had an effect on the National Football League labor problems, because it had none — but solely because it happened to stand in the way of the union leadership's drive for power."

He charged the union had denied 50 All-Stars the experience of playing in the classic and denied Tribune Charities — the freedom to continue donations to worthy causes.

Connors to take 10 days of rest

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Jimmy Connors' immediate plans include a 10-day break from World Team Tennis after his Thursday appearance for the Baltimore Banners against the Pittsburgh Triangles and Ken Rosewall, the man he beat for his Wimbledon crown.

"I've got to catch up on my sleep," Connors said at a Wednesday news conference, explaining his planned vacation.

Connors' next scheduled competition aside from the WTT is the U.S. Open at Forest Hills, N.Y., beginning Aug. 28, but the 21-year-old court-wizard said he still had to decide about playing in the Eastern Open at Orange, N.J., or the U.S. pro championships at Boston Aug. 19.

Connors listed his objectives as winning Forest Hills and being ranked No. 1 in the country. Connors had been crowned with Stan Smith as No. 1 prior to Wimbledon.

Connors' manager, Bill Riordan, said the phone calls since Wimbledon have been "unbelievable" and that the Wimbledon crown would be worth at least "$1 million" to his client.

"Winning at Wimbledon makes the pressure big. It's to improve myself No. 1," Connors said. "Now I can play for my own enjoyment as well.

"If I should win at Forest Hills, maybe they should play an asterisk next to my name titled grand slam winner," added Connors, referring to the tennis "coup" denied him when he was banned from the French Open because he played with WTT.

Connors had previously won the Australian Open, the first leg of the grand slam, which also includes the French, Wimbledon and U.S. Open titles.

"I also believe World Team Tennis helped me a great deal," Connors said, noting that players like Bjorn Borg were "tired by the time they got to Wimbledon."

Schramm blasts Garvey, players

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Tex Schramm, president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, Wednesday said National Football League Players Association leader Ed Garvey was hiding the "biggest attempted money grab in the history of sports," behind freedom issues.

Schramm's remarks came during the fourth day of workouts by rookies at the Cowboys' training camp on the campus of California Lutheran College.

"Ed Garvey talks about the freedom issues," said Schramm.

"But the biggest single freedom issue — the elimination of the compensation (Petit Rosette) rule really represents the biggest attempted money grab in the history of sports."

"They want several hundred players annually to auction themselves off to the highest bidder among the 38 teams in the United States alone."

"The players understand this. The owners understand this. It's time someone told the fans how the union spells freedom — M-O-N-E-Y."

Schramm said he had been told Garvey had accused the Cowboys of asking rookie players to walk with their heads bowed so they wouldn't see the pickets which walk each day outside the college.

California Lutheran College earlier this week won a court order which prevents pickets from carrying their signs on the school's campus.

Wednesday was the day that the Cowboy veteran quarterbacks, centers and wide receivers were to have reported to Thousand Oaks, but none did.

"This is the only veteran to announce he will cross the picket lines has been offensive tackle Ralph Neely."

Most Cowboy players said

Neely's decision would not create any lasting ill feelings.

"A guy who goes in will get the same benefits as those who don't," said receiver Bob Hayes. "Somebody I feel that's an injustice to those who don't."

"But I do respect Ralph's feelings and the way he spoke up about the way he feels."

Cowboy quarterback Roger Staubach said he had been working out on his own in Dallas, with the team's receiving corps.

"We've had some great seasons," Staubach said. "I think coach Landry will be pleased with the quarterbacks and receivers when we get to camp."

Shula's sorry game off

MIAMI (UPI) — Coach Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins said Wednesday he "hated to see a fine traditional game called off" when informed that the College All-Star game at Chicago had been cancelled.

The world champion Dolphins had been scheduled to play the All-Stars in Chicago's Soldier Field July 26.

"A lot of our players had expressed a desire to play in the game," Shula said. "With them, it was not only a matter of money, but also of prestige."

"You're in the game because you are the National Football League veterans. The sacrifices of the Dolphin players as a result of the game being cancelled are much greater than any other players," he said.

Shula's 40 rookies and free agents and four non-regular veterans had two practices Wednesday and Shula was still planning on sending them through an intra-squad scrimmage Friday night at Fort Lauderdale's Lockhart Stadium.

Ex-con appointed Oregon's ombudsman

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon's new ombudsman, Marc (Ted) Winters, 39, is an ordinary man.

His job is to listen to people's troubles with their governmental, local or state agencies.

Winters was a hard case. He served 12 state milk bottles from neighbors' porches and who at 15 was a Lovers Lane-bandit sentenced to reform school for armed robbery.

Gov. Tom McCall just appointed him to the job the other day, and it has been a long road to his role in state government for the once skiving, defiant kid who came out of Depression-era poverty into a string of armed robbery, assault, kidnaping and escape convictions that finally led to a life sentence in March of 1963.

McCall pardoned Winters in December, 1973, six months after the governor named him assistant ombudsman and made him a member of his personal staff.

But the real turning point in his life, Winters says, came just after his life sentence conviction for armed robbery. Three years earlier, he had been paroled from the Walla-Walla State Prison in Washington. By then, long hours of solitary confinement had produced several short stories and a novel. Three of the stories were published and Winters hoped for a writing career.

"I felt I was going to make it. I had pretty much decided that I was going to press because it was a coward," I had come to that conclusion in 1957," he said.

But the writing career floundered. His new self-confidence withered and he sought escape from his problems in another armed robbery. Caught and convicted, he was sentenced to life in prison at the Oregon State Penitentiary.

That was the low point of his life, that sentence in September of 1961.

"I had never been religious," he said. "I had at previous times considered myself an atheist, but I was ready to commit suicide."

"I prayed. And I'm convinced that I heard Christ speak to me, saying, 'wait in here with me.'"

"That was the turning point. It just dissolved all the self-hatred and bitterness in me."

Winters went to the prison chapel. He decided Winters' best hope was to forget his mind of his own problems and start helping others. He put Winters to work composing fellow inmates' letters.

In June, 1967, Winters became one of the first others ever to go outside the prison walls on work release, a rehabilitation program then in its infancy.

The governor's office, in a gesture of support for the work release program, hired Winters as the governor's ombudsman. He had been in the block community program at the Walla-Walla Prison in Palouse, 1965. Winters was pardoned and sent to work for the State Economic Development Office. Two years later, Winters married, a sister at the time and a mother and father to her four children.

In his new position as ombudsman, Winters holds the highest state government position ever held by an ex-convict in Oregon.

"It's a great honor. I don't know where I came from," he said. "I just feel I have an obligation to be successful and to demonstrate what an ex-convict can do."

MARC (TED) WINTERS reads report

US citizens may get new trials in Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Recently found evidence has led to a new trial for three Americans not serving life sentences in a Turkish prison, their lawyer said Wednesday.

A recent search of the archives in which the defendants arrived at Turkey from Syria has revealed in pounds of hush-hush in another specially built compartment.

Fahri Erniyal, 70, a public prosecutor has returned the matter to the penal court for a re-examination of the case, he said. "It may lead to another trial."

Kathryn Ann Zen, 26, of Lancaster, Wis.; Jeanne Marie McDaniel, 29, of Coos Bay, Ore.; and Robert F. Hubbard, 41, of San Antonio, Texas, were arrested along with four others on Dec. 10, 1972.

Turkish security officials in Ankara said they discovered a total of 20 pounds of hush-hush in the group's three minibuses.

Hubbard and the two women originally were sentenced to death, but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment. The men also were acquitted and released. A recent general amnesty in Turkey cut the prison sentences for the women.

Turkish attorney Erniyal said he had filed a petition with the Turkish Parliament asking for special legislation granting full amnesty to Miss Zen and Mrs. McDaniel.

Hubbard, who pleaded guilty to the charges, was not included in the petition.

"Since Hubbard confessed guilt, it would be logical to ask clemency for him," said Erniyal.

It is an unusual conviction that the two girls are completely innocent," he added.

Turkish Parliament sources said it may take a long time before the Legislature is ready to take up the petition. Parliament goes into summer recess for three months on Saturday.

Wrinkle remover firm agrees to warn users

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A wrinkle remover company has agreed to stop advertising that its treatments are safe and effective, and will now warn customers that the Federal Trade Commission announced today.

The company, Etoaven Cos., of Lakewood, Colo., said the wrinkle remover removes the outer skin layer of persons who go to it for treatment, giving a temporary change in appearance, the FTI said.

But the acid can be poisonous and one patient allegedly died as a result of the treatment, the commission said.

The commission said it made the inclusion of "poisonous" or "dangerous" a condition under a consent order tentatively accepted by the commission, the company will have to develop a presentation and sales presentations and ad

"Warning: This is a medical procedure which may cause a chemical burn which peels skin away. It is extremely painful and may cause loss of hair and exposes a person to risks of poisoning, infection, permanent scarring, and other medical complications.

"It performed on the neck, the process may make it look worse. Many signs of aging are not improved by this process, and the benefit, if any, is mainly temporary. Only certain kinds of people can benefit from this procedure, and they should be diagnosed, selected, treated and continually cared for by a qualified doctor. # Changing US beef grades 'won't be easy'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Revising federal beef grades won't be easy because cattlemen, packers, retailers and consumers can't agree on what to do, an agriculture department spokesman says.

Pressure for changes in beef grading standards has been increasing in recent months. Much of the punch has been coming from cattlemen who say new standards could result in developing a wider market for beef which is tender and palatable but needs less grain feeding than the currently popular choice grade.

"But the meat industry is in great disagreement on what, if anything, should be done about grading," says John C. Pierce, head of the livestock division of the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Marketing Service. The AMS sets beef grading standards and operates the federal grading service which is used in a voluntary basis by most packers.

Under that service, beef which has first been inspected and passed for wholesomeness is then checked by a grader who assigns it a quality rating—prime, choice, good, standard, utility, inferior.

restaurant industry leaders say they want choice standards retained and even tightened in some cases.

Some meat packers have asked for changes making it easier to get a choice standard, mature cattle while at least one cattle breed organization wants to emphasize youth in regrading requirements for the choice grade.

"Consumers say they don't want so much fat but they can't be tricked by increasing size of yield grades," Pierce said.

One beef grader says that Ed Duell has 60 Marburg Idaho, will go to the highest tender one 192 Chuywa No. 3225 from the lot received July 17, 1974. The auctioneer reserves the right to regrade all bids. AUCTION JULY 19, 14, 15, 10, 18, 19, 21 and 22, 1974.

Sugar industry backed

A renewal of the Sugar Act was defeated in the House of Representatives July 2, 1974. The House Finance Committee has jurisdiction over any attempts to resurrect the measure.

In a letter to Sen. Russell Long, Finance Committee Chairman, the committee advised that "Few people are more aware of the importance of sugar industry products as a source of food for animal production. Several dried condensed milks are brought to choice grade by fat tips and harvest."

Keatin that what your whiskers are made of, a complex material composed of nitrogen and sulfur. Mellon Institute researchers devoted four years to the study of whiskers. And the shaving of same. They learned that the lightest hair on your cheek is almost invariably thicker than the heaviest hair on your scalp. And not infrequently that facial follicles in your armpits are thicker than scalp hair. They also learned that almost all whiskers, except those on the scalp, are stuck out straight. They lean on an angle. And they bend, not from the skin surface, but from the roots. Finally, they learned it's not the man with the heavy black beard who has the toughest time shaving - but rather the man with the gray beard. Gray whiskers tend to be as hard as fingernails.

PEDESTRIANS - It's a matter of record: more pedestrians get killed while crossing with the signal than against it. ONLY in the elementary school years is the female more likely than the male to tell lies. Or so contends a scholar who has made a study of this matter.

IT'S CLAIMED that people can work efficiently within a spread of only 35 degrees of temperature. That's from about 50 degrees F. to approximately 85 degrees F. Below 50, the muscles tend to stiffen up. Above 85, the breathing process gets sluggish. At this writing, it's evidently above 85.

"SNAKES" - O. "Do egg-laying snakes, like birds, lay an egg a day until they're through with it." A. No, the bulgy female snake dispatches the whole batch pretty quickly. Certainly in one day, if possible. But maybe in two days.

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market opened lower in moderate trading Thursday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which has dropped more than 20 points so far this week, was off 0.86 at 761.26 shortly after the opening. Excesses led advances, 37 in all, among the 24 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover amounted to more than 200,000 shares. Observers noted a rally attempt Wednesday in the early going failed and said this demonstrated investor concern over persistent inflation and rising interest rates.

Average prices plunged during the week. The Dow is at a 1-year low. Many analysts said they expect it to go much lower soon, although there

Male bureaucrats keeping ties knotted around perspiring necks

(C) Newhouse News Service
 WASHINGTON. (UPI)—Some men know how hot the weather, and no matter how much the government wants men to take off their neckties to save on energy consumption, air conditioning, the male bureaucrats of Washington are keeping their ties tightly knotted around their perspiring necks.

A bureaucrat, it is said, "loses his respect if he loses his tie."

Two months ago, the government decreed that federal buildings here be chilled to no less than 78 degrees this summer. Federal energy advisers, John C. Savill, advised men employees to take off their ties to keep cool.

Washington, where the male business is government, probably has more neckties per neck than any other hot weather American city. But hardly any have been removed.

Only the menfolk at Savill's own FEA have liberated themselves even slightly. Savill now wears open-necked, short-sleeved sports shirts in his office. An FEA spokesman, Hector Mimiga, proudly claimed that most FEA men are following this example.

Mimiga explained, in a telephone interview, it was too hot for a reporter to get across town to see him personally that 20 billion kilowatt hours of electricity could be saved if every thermostat in the country were set at 78 degrees rather than a more normal 72.

"That's 2 per cent of the nation's annual consumption," he pointed out.

"We hope that the rest of the government, as well as private industry, will follow our example."

Asked whether he was at that moment wearing a tie, Mimiga paused. "Well, yes, I am."

"It's a matter of custom," he explained sheepishly. "It's hard to break right away just because someone issues guidelines."

"Anyway, just knowing that you can take it off anytime is enough to make you feel cooler."

Even the labor department, governmental proxy for millions of open-collared, sweating Americans, has showed no decline in tie wearing.

Queries on neckwear at staffer agencies met with stunned incredulity.

"A worker at the state department said: 'Godness, everybody wears a tie. That's the normal dress code for a gentleman.'"

The White House refused even to discuss whether it was admitting tieless visitors to the President's oval office.

And the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment proceedings have been more heated than usual since Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr. complained that there was a draft on him and "we had to have the air conditioning turned off" in the hearing room, said a committee staff member.

Not only did male members of the House committee even wear neckties without a necktie—Rep. Robert Drinan (R-Mass.), a Catholic priest who, though tieless, wears a collar, more restraining than most.

Wallace hinting on issues

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Gov. George Wallace is beginning to give his supporters a hint about the issues he will run on in 1976 as he softens money for his presidential campaign.

Wallace raised $52,000 during his first year, giving him the only sustaining presidential campaign now in place.

He has raised the money from market literature in which he tells potential contributors he is for increased military spending, an end to busing of school children and a move to take the Democratic party leadership away from the McGovern liberals.

He says he is against a guaranteed income plan and increased federal spending.

The governor has not detailed his plans, but he has told reporters he intends to make tax reform one of the big issues in the next presidential campaign.

In the latest copy of "The Wallace Stand," a newsletter mailed to 50,000 followers this week, Wallace complained about the injustices of inflation caused by government spending, he said.

He charged the current crop of national leaders have ignored "the energy crisis and the inflationary spiral and the Washington mess and the nervous frustration from countless other causes a sort of churning in the pit of the stomach of our people."

Wallace, who has shrewdly read the public's mood in the past, has been bringing in thousands of dollars in small contributions.

Last year he paid off a $15,000 debt left over from the 1972 presidential campaign and aides said the organization took in about twice that much money.

Sewer sludge found near East coast

LONG BEACH, N.Y. (UPI)—A team of marine biologists, students, and divers Tuesday found evidence of raw and partially digested sewer sludge just 300 yards off Atlantic Beach, a popular summer resort.

"They saw millions of oysters that may wash ashore by 1977," Rod Vanderberg, a spokesman for the group, said. "Tuesday's find was not part of the main harbor study, which is still about 35 miles offshore."

The main body, he said, citing a recent study by Brooklyn College Professor William Lerrys, is creeping shoreward at a rate of a half-mile and a half each year, and at present rate, "the sludge will wash ashore within the next two years."

Currently being discharged at a rate of more than 14 metric tons a year by New York City, Nassau and Westchester counties and parts of New Jersey, the sludge has been dumped into a depression in the ocean floor for the last 30 years.
