Ketchum bridge crash injures 4

KETCHUM — Four persons were treated at Moritz Community Hospital, Sun Valley Saturday afternoon following a head-on collision on the Wood River bridge two miles south of Ketchum on U.S. 93.

Idaho State Patrolman Glen Schwartz said the injured included Kathy T. Miller, 25, Ketchum, most seriously injured; her passenger John Light, 29, Ketchum, was treated and released; Vida Towner, 58, Sun Valley, and her passenger, Helen Cassell, 77, Sun Valley. The accident was still under investigation late Saturday.

Miss Miller suffered internal injuries and the two other women had undetermined injuries but were not listed in serious condition at the hospital.

Favors censure

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford said Saturday he would vote to censure, not impeach, President Nixon if he were still in the White House.

Speaking here and in Mississippi, Ford said he believes Nixon innocent of Watergate charges but that his House support "has eroded" and "the odds are that he may be impeached."

Nixon, family fly to Camp David

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — After nearly six days of reviewing White House tape recordings he must turn over to the courts, President Nixon late Saturday gathered his family together and helicoptered to the Camp David presidential retreat near here.

White House aides would provide only sketchy information about the unscheduled trip but said the party included Nixon and his wife Pat, daughters Tia, Mary and Julie, Eisenhower and their husbands, and Nixon's best friend, Florida banker Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Jerome officers probing fires

JEROME — Arson is suspected in 37 fires along State Highway 25 Saturday which burned scattered grassland and sagebrush and endangered a grain field before being controlled. Sheriff's officers were continuing their investigation late Saturday. Fires from the Jerome Rural Fire Department fought the blaze for more than three hours in the afternoon, but put out most fires in the evening.

The fires were along a two-mile segment of Highway 25 west from the U.S. 93 junction.

Controls asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Breaking with his own party's economic policy, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Saturday the government should reimpose wage and price controls to help stem inflation.

The Montana senator also said the nation is now "in a recession" and the slight rise in nationwide unemployment during the month of July was "only the precursor of other rises in that area."

Walkout halts Bridger plant work

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo. (UPI) — Construction has been halted on the huge Jim Bridger power plant due to a walkout by more than 2,000 laborers.

Union spokesmen said the dispute involves subsistence pay promised by contractors. An official said workers were promised $11 daily subsistence pay but have been getting only $7.

The walkout occurred Friday after workmen picked up their paychecks. Picket lines will probably be put up Monday, according to a union spokesman.

The project is being built by Idaho Power Co. and Pacific Power & Light Co.

Hay baler mishap hurts Blissman

BLISS — Herb Patterson Sr., Bliss, sustained a severe wrist injury Saturday in a hay baler accident on a ranch near Bliss.

A relative said Patterson's wrist was broken and several tendons severed. Patterson was admitted to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital and listed in "fair condition" Saturday evening.

Criticism rising

Little TF effect from pesticide ban

By MARILYN ELLIOTT Times News writer

TWIN FALLS — An Environmental Protection Agency called halt on production of two widely used pesticides should have little effect on Twin Falls area operations.

The EPA ordered a "halt" Friday to the production of Aldrin and Dieldrin because it said they pose an imminent hazard of cancer and other illnesses.

The EPA said there is strong evidence the chemicals are in the food supply and have found their way into the body fat of most Americans.

Dr. Carl Blckenstaff, U.S. Department of Agriculture entomologist, said Friday "it won't affect anything in this area other than possibly some termite control."

David Ward, manager of Gem Spraying Service, Twin Falls, said Saturday that though he had used Dieldrin, "there's other pesticides available that will step right in and take the place of it. It won't affect me any at all."

"My prediction is coming true," Ward said, "I predicted that when they got rid of DDT, Aldrin and Dieldrin would be the next to go." Ward said those pesticides were composed of chlorinated hydrocarbons which have a longer residual effect than pesticides made from organic phosphates.

Though the phosphates are more toxic when applied, he said, their effect is short term while the hydrocarbons like, much longer to break down in their environment.

"If they go pulling all these chlorinated hydrocarbons off the market it's going to hurt insect control," he said, because the other pesticides will have to be used more often, increasing the cost of production.

Blckenstaff said both Aldrin and Dieldrin "have been essentially phased out" for use in controlling insects on crops. "Those two materials — as long as ten years ago — were being restricted. They've been going out for years. More and more restrictions have been placed on them."

The order suspending manufacture of the pesticides is effective in four days, unless the sole manufacturer — Shell Chemical Co. — or one of the sellers requests a hearing. That hearing must then be held as quickly as possible and may not last for more than 15 days.

Report ties 'Gate, secret payment

(c) New York Times Service.

WASHINGTON — A still-secret report of the Senate Watergate Committee staff sets forth a theory that the Watergate break-in and the intelligence-gathering plot that inspired it were the end result of a White House effort to suppress public knowledge of a $100,000 payment from Howard Hughes to Charles G. Hughes, President Nixon's political business associate.

The 42-page document, the only part of the committee's final report not yet released, is based on an analysis by Senate staff lawyers of published and unpublished evidence gathered during the panel's 18-month investigation.

Watergate investigators have never developed a credible motive for the creation of the Nixon campaign's "Gemstone" hugging and burglary unit, and the Senate report makes clear that it does just attempt to set forth definitive conclusions about the fate of those involved in establishing or carrying out the illegal operations.

Various theories have been advanced for the Watergate break-in, including the "blackmail" of Democratic Party officials, which was suggested by the prosecutors at the first Watergate trial.

Others, including White House officials, have attempted to tie the burglary to the Central Intelligence Agency's backgrounds of the participants, who themselves have said they were told to look for evidence of illegal contributions to Democratic candidates from Communist governments.

Investigators now consider all of these possibilities to be equally improbable. But the evidence assembled in the report presents a strong circumstantial case that the Watergate break-in was the bungled Watergate burglary involved high-level White House figures.

Disclosure of the Hughes-Rebozo transaction would damage the President's chances for reelection in 1972.

He came to Buhl in 1919 and purchased the T. P. Constant "lithing" store. Mr. Tomlinson served on the Buhl school Board for six years and in addition to being mayor he was a past president of the Buhl Kiwanis Club and active in other civic groups. (Obituary, p. 2)

Light turnout foreseen in Gem primary Tuesday

BOISE (UPI) — For the first time in more than two decades Idahoans Tuesday will vote in a primary election that features a statewide ballot without a contest for governor.

Barring a write-in, the voters will have only one choice for the nomination when they cast their partisan ballots in the state's 1005 precincts. Cecil D. Andrus, the incumbent, is the only name on the Democratic ballot — Jack Murphy, now lieutenant governor, is the only printed choice on the Republican ballot.

Between 140,000 and 150,000 voters are expected to cast ballots during the 12 hours the polls are open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

State Auditor Joe R. Williams expects a lull from comparable years past. In 1970, the last gubernatorial year, 143,127 voters went to the polls. Taking into consideration a percentage drop plus a population increase he expects the same number this year.

"Actually with not too much interest in the governorship in the primary, with no opposition on either ticket — I look to see a little lull," Williams said. (Continued on p. 8)

Ordeal ends in battle

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Renegade convict, Fred Gomez Carrasco was killed Saturday night in a shootout while trying to escape from the Texas State Prison where he had 18 hostages for 10 days. One accomplice and two hostages also died.

Texas Department of Corrections chief W. J. Estelle Jr. said inmate Rudolph Dominguez, who assisted Carrasco during the ordeal, had been killed along with hostages Julia Stanley, 43, a Huntsville librarian, and Elizabeth Beseda, 47, a Huntsville teacher.

Estelle said three other hostages were wounded during the gunbattle which took place as Carrasco left his prison library fortress behind a human shield.

Those wounded were inmate hostage Martin Quiroz, 27, of Houston, the Rev. Joseph O'Brien, a Catholic chaplain, and inmate hostage Filomena Vera, 23, of Bexar County.

Estelle said Mrs. Stanley and Mrs. Beseda were acting as human shields and "every hostage was handcuffed to the inmate gunman."

Estelle said convict Ignacio Cuevas shot the Rev. O'Brien, Cuevas, unharmed, was placed in solitary confinement immediately.

Estelle said a blackboard with hooks taped to the outside served as a shield for the desperado as they walked from the prison.

Texas Ranger Peter Rogers led the assault team which met the hostages and convict gunman as they descended a ramp. Estelle said.

Authorities used high pressure fire hoses, mounted on the west wall to drive the hostages away from their captors and to knock down the shield.

Estelle said prison officials had agreed at 5 p.m. EDT to allow the convicts to leave the library building — surrounded by eight hostages on the outside of the shield and four hostages inside.

An armored truck was parked in the courtyard near the library building at 8:30 p.m. EDT. Forty-five minutes later one of the inmate hostages was ordered to start the vehicle and inspect it.

At 10:15 p.m. EDT, the gunmen — shielded by their hostages — left the library and were intercepted halfway down a ramp by heavily armed law officers wearing body armor.

Bursts of automatic gunfire rang out for about 25 seconds, and then the prison was silent.

21 Agent Robert Wyatt fired blasts of water from high pressure hoses to drive the hostages on the outside away from the blackboard shield.

"Most of the fire was coming from within the shield," said Wyatt.

Estelle said the officers' strategy was successful and the eight hostages on the outside were rescued.

Beer taps flow slowly

By GEORGE WILEY Times News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two major brands of beer have been short supply here recently and a third major brand has experienced some shortages.

Local distributors for Budweiser and Coors said that supply is falling behind demand consistently. The distributor for Olympia also reported shortages in some package sizes.

Sam Jordan, owner-manager of Southern Idaho Distributing Co., which distributes Budweiser and Michigan, estimated that he could double Budweiser sales in Twin Falls and Sun Valley if he could get the supplies.

Tommy Walker, manager of Western Beverage Corp., which distributes Coors, said beer shortages struck about two weeks earlier this year than last.

In shades of the gasoline shortage, both Jordan and Walker said their firms were on allocation programs by the breweries. Jordan reported an allocation for Budweiser of 150 per cent of last year, which is passed on in like form to the customer.

Walker said the Coors allocation was about 112 per cent of last year. Unlike Budweiser, Coors has been an allocation program for the entire year. Walker said, although he said shortages this year were more severe than before.

Both distributors reported that delivery trucks are now running only three days per week, compared to the normal five-day delivery schedule.

With Coors controlling slightly more than half of the local market and Budweiser taking a second sizable share, only Olympia, the third most popular brand, has reported additional shortages, and that only in some packages.

Matt Smith, manager of Twin Falls Beverage Inc., which distributes Olympia, reported a shortage of 100 cases, seven ounce bottles and quarts.

"We've had a shortage of beer," Smith said, "but it's nothing drastic." (Continued on p. 8)

Orval disputes claim over funds

TWIN FALLS—Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, said Saturday a Twin Falls political dinner had been sponsored by his own campaign committee to raise funds for his primary and general election campaign. Hansen disputed statements by his Republican primary election opponent, George Hansen, who said Orval's use of funds raised at the Nov. 16 dinner had been a breach of Idaho precedent. George Hansen had said the funds should be used for the general election campaign only. Orval Hansen said in a statement that "this dinner was planned and organized by my own campaign committee and personal supporters who did all of the work, sold all of the tickets and paid all of the expenses. The purpose of the dinner was clearly stated: to raise funds for my own re-election campaign." "And as former Sen. Len Jordan, who was co-chairman with Mary Brooks, said the re-election campaign includes the primary."

Orval Hansen also said "Second, as is traditional, the Republican Party organization took an official part in the dinner arrangements." He said the dinner speaker, Sen. Howard Baker, "came at my personal invitation to lend his support to my bid for re-election."

It's George vs Orval In Idaho's 2nd District

One of the most important GOP primaries of the year is taking shape in Idaho's 2nd district, where conservative former Rep. George Hansen is challenging Rep. Orval Hansen (no relation) in the August 6 primary.

One look at Orval Hansen's voting record reveals why this race is so important to conservatives across the country. He has voted for food stamps to strikers for food stamps to loans to the Soviet Union and for lobbying for government-paid poverty lawyers. He has voted against the school prayer amendment, against expansion of the Alaskan pipeline against private ownership of gold, and against bombing of Cambodia.

With such a record George Hansen does not lack for issues in the conservative-leaning 2nd district. But there is more.

Orval Hansen voted for the Occupational Safety and Health Act, a liberal scheme which, George Hansen supporters say rivals gun control as an issue among voters in the eastern Idaho district.

"The mentality that passed OSHA is typical of many new federal laws that have forced some businessmen to close their doors and posed severe economic pressures on others," declares George Hansen. "OSHA inspectors can indict and convict a farmer or small businessman on the spot. It is un-American and unconstitutional and should be abolished."

Idaho Republicans agree and recently delivered an indirect rebuke of Orval and a boost to George when at state convention they voted overwhelmingly (243 to 90) to urge repeal of the act. (News that he is hard-pressed on his OSHA vote, Orval favors amendments to the act, but not repeal).

Orval's recent vote on the controversial land use bill likewise has put him "on the political defensive" and may become a thorn in his side, according to political columnist in the Idaho State Journal. He voted for considering the bill, a position defeated by House conservatives, thus killing the proposal.

But Capitol Hill observers note that Orval Hansen's liberal record in Washington is not confined to the vote he casts. In 1971 he collaborated behind the scenes with liberal Rep. Frank Thompson (D-N.J.) on an amendment which the Wall Street Journal said would "nullify a five-year effort by the Justice Dept. to stamp out questionable fundraising by labor unions—and, in fact, enhance labor's political clout."

Respected Rep. Sam Devine (R-Ohio) declared it "reasonable to presume that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Idaho would be considered an AFL-CIO amendment." Although that charge was denied by Orval Hansen and Thompson, the Journal later disclosed a slipup which indicated their measure was the product of Big Labor lobbyists.

On the day the amendment was considered, the two lawmakers inadvertently inserted identical canned speeches in the Congressional Record supporting the measure. Old hands in Washington figure that labor lobbyists who wrote the speech accidentally gave it both to Thompson and Hansen instead of just to one.

Yet sometimes Orval's votes have made a difference in the House. He voted against private ownership of gold—a measure pushed through the Senate by Idaho Republican James McClure. The measure failed in the House on a tie vote. Orval was the difference; a fact of which Orval is well aware.

George Hansen has long been a leading figure in Idaho GOP politics. In 1964 he was the only Republican outside the South to unseat a Democratic incumbent and he held the 2nd district seat until 1968 when he left the House to run unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate. Orval Hansen took his seat that year. Although he has gained the reputation as a local political maverick over the years, political observers are impressed with the unassuming, issue-oriented campaign George Hansen is running this year.

His campaign slogans are "Send George to Washington" and "Cut Down Big Government."

The issues which separate the two Hansen should be clear in the minds of voters by primary day. Supporters of George have handed out thousands of cards indexing the differences in their positions.

George Hansen is somewhat of a disadvantage, however, since his under-financed, though energetic campaign (Hansen for Congress, P.O. Box 671, Pocatello, Idaho 83201) has been equaled by a steady flow of taxpayer-financed mailings to the 2nd district by the incumbent Hansen.

A recent poll of GOP party workers in the district was encouraging to George Hansen supporters, even though it indicated that the race could be a close one. George received 55.5 percent to 40.5 for Orval.

The district is heavily Republican and the GOP nominee—even after a hard-fought primary—would seem at this point to be favored in November.

Common sense brought into school desegregation

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court took a surprising turn last week toward bringing a little common sense to the fanatic realms of school desegregation.
The court's 5-4 decision in the Detroit school case is wrongly described as a new landmark in constitutional law. No new constitutional principles were fashioned. The court did not turn its back upon the principles enunciated long ago in Brown v. Board of Education. Those principles stand.
What the court held in the Detroit case, and all that it held, is that remedies for unconstitutional school segregation must be applied within the school districts in which the constitutional violations occur. There is nothing remarkable in this. It is patently unfair to punish the children of suburban school districts by compelling them to be bused long distances merely to promote desegregation somewhere else.

The majority opinion, written by Chief Justice Burger, applies to its face only to "inter-district" proposals. The opinion also serves to squelch some of the dither theories of "racial balance" that were gaining ground in the lower courts. In Detroit, the district court had attempted to assure that the school "grade" or "classroom" would have a disproportionate number of black and white pupils. But the Constitution, said Burger, does not require any such proportions. The numbers game is no longer to be played.
It is high time, in my own view, that the court made this clear. In recent years a tendency has developed for courts to treat children solely in terms of their race. An awareness of race is thus bound to permeate the child's consciousness from kindergarten. The most pernicious practices of South African apartheid could not promote a more pervasive racism than U.S. district judges have pronounced through desegregation decrees.

Remarkably, even the four dissenters in the Detroit case seemed to agree that "racial balance" remedies have gone too far. Justice Byron White wrote a dissenting opinion in which Justices Douglas, Brennan and Marshall joined. White made the point that "racial balance" is the central educational function of the schools.
"Viewed in this light," he said, "remedies calling for school zoning, pairing, and pupil assignments become a whole and more suspect as they require that school children spend more and more time in buses going to and from school and that more and more educational dollars be diverted to transportation systems."

Another bizarre notion gaining ground in lower court decisions is the notion that "white flight" is somehow unconstitutional. The majority's opinion in the Detroit case may dispose of that nonsense. If white families choose to move from the inner city to the suburbs, their action may be uncharitable. It may be un-Christian. It may be morally reprehensible and educationally regrettable. But it is not unconstitutional.
In a bitter dissent, Justice Thurgood Marshall saw the majority opinion as "a giant step backwards." On the contrary, the opinion may prove to be a modest step forward. If an result of the Detroit decision is to move the nation away from court-ordered racism, perhaps we can begin to think in terms simply of schools and not in terms of racially balanced schools.
That was the meaning of the Brown case 20 years ago. It is good to have that meaning reaffirmed. (c) Washington Star Syndicate

Assembly ordinances should be reasonable

Jerome County Commissioner Milford Jones had a point when he said his county would strictly enforce its assembly ordinance, with regard to a planned Northside gathering at the time of Evel Knievel's canyon jump.

Jones said the Jerome commissioners would see to it that those ordinances are honored. "We're not going to waive," like Twin Falls did, "I think that degrades the ordinance."

The difference in view between the Jerome and Twin Falls commissioners raises several interesting and important questions.

First, can county commissioners of either county "waive" any part of their assembly ordinances?

In the case of Twin Falls County, the commissioners waived a number of provisions of their ordinance. They cut the required bond from $100,000 to $10,000, reduced the required number of doctors to less than one-third of the number required under the ordinance, and dropped requirements for bathing water and running water near the toilets.

There is no provision in the ordinance giving commissioners the power to waive any ordinance requirements. Instead, the ordinance says all its conditions must be met before a license can be issued.

County commissioners act in both legislative and executive capacities. While making an ordinance, they are legislating. While issuing licenses, they are acting as executives.

It is highly questionable whether the commissioners without express authorization written into the ordinance have the power to require less than full compliance prior to issuing a license.

Clearly the commissioners have the power to make changes in the ordinance itself, but not to ignore its provisions once the ordinance is in force.

The Twin Falls commissioners apparently were acting in good faith in an expressed desire to cooperate with Evel Knievel. However, their desire to cooperate may backfire against Knievel.

For instance, suppose a citizen brings suit to nullify the Knievel assembly grounds that the requirements for a license have not been met. A number of local lawyers have said confidentially that there is a good chance such a suit would be decided in favor of those hoping to stop the event.

However, this raises a second question about the Twin Falls and Jerome County ordinances, a question which could be expected to be argued should such a suit be tried.

Are the county ordinances really designed to protect the public safety and welfare, or are they designed to prevent large assemblies in the first place?

There is good reason to believe that the ordinances are overly restrictive. The timing of their approval at the time of the so-called rock festival in Slaughterhouse Gulch near Bellevue tends to support the notion that they were designed to prevent Woodstock-type rock festivals.

A few examples of over-restrictive provisions should make the point. In the Twin Falls ordinance, one doctor is required to be on duty around the clock for each 3,000 people attending. In the case of the 50,000 person crowd Knievel expects on the south side, it would require 17 doctors, a clearly excessive number. The Jerome ordinance is even more restrictive regarding medical care.

Again, consider the requirement that toilets be installed with running water at hand. How in the world would a group of 500 kids who hope to listen to music at Dierkes Lake, for example, be able to install two toilets with running water for an overnight event. Toilets, yes, running water, perhaps not.

The attorneys for Knievel took a common sense approach to these restrictive requirements. While acknowledging that their preparations would not meet the ordinance requirements, they argued the preparations are all that would be needed to reasonably provide for the public health and safety. Obviously, the commissioners agreed.

If in fact the provisions of the ordinance are not really required to protect the public, then the ordinance should be changed to reflect more realistic standards. At the very least, the ordinance should be amended to permit some discretion to the commissioners to help them deal with specific license applications.

But it would be far better for the commissioners to change the ordinance than to use a double standard by permitting waivers for popular events such as Evel's canyon jump while using the ordinance as a brick wall against less popular events.

People attending Evel's jump require no less stringent safety and health requirements than do kids listening to a loud band. And neither event should be prohibited by unreasonably strict requirements.

Viet war inquest brief

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — The House Judiciary Committee inquired into the war in Southeast Asia yesterday, subject: "inevitable" and like the war itself, futile.
Time has raked the issue of Vietnam of its passion and much of its anger. But the memory of it still causes pain. The doves, led by Rep. John Cuyler, D-Mich., knew they couldn't win an article on impeachment dealing with the secret bombing in Cambodia, Catharsis, not retribution, was their game. They lost 12 to 26 after a 90-minute debate.

In the desultory debate, they felt compelled to admit that Richard Nixon was not alone in usurpation of the power to declare war.
The late President Lyndon B. Johnson came in for a share of the condemnation.
"We might as well resign," President Johnson and impeach him for Vietnam and Laos," said Alabama's Walter Flowers, who voted for two articles of impeachment but thought the Cuyler's proposed article "a bad rap on President Johnson."
Rep. Robert Kastenberg, D-Wis., whose district includes the rapidly anti-war campus of the University of Wisconsin in Madison, acknowledged the "genius of concealment and deception did not originate with Mr. Nixon." Although the article would not succeed, Kastenberg said, he had to support it on constitutional grounds that the President misled and deceived.

Rep. John Schlegel, D-Iowa, opposing the article, noted that Kent State was in his district. He didn't have to explain what Kent State meant. The Ohio college occupies a grisly niche in the annals of the art, for there four students were mowed down by the Ohio National Guard during an anti-war demonstration.
In his characteristically judicious manner, Rep. James Mann, D-S.C., observed that the distrust between the President and the congress was a long time building. To further exacerbate that problem by recriminations" over past policy "is not the answer," he said. He pointedly refused to say where he was voting in Vietnam without a declaration of war.

Rep. William Cohen, R-Me., who voted for three articles of impeachment, said nobody contests the usurpation of presidential power and branded the bombing wrong. "But," he accused the congress of "soft and default," emphasizing that for 10 years, it had failed to act.

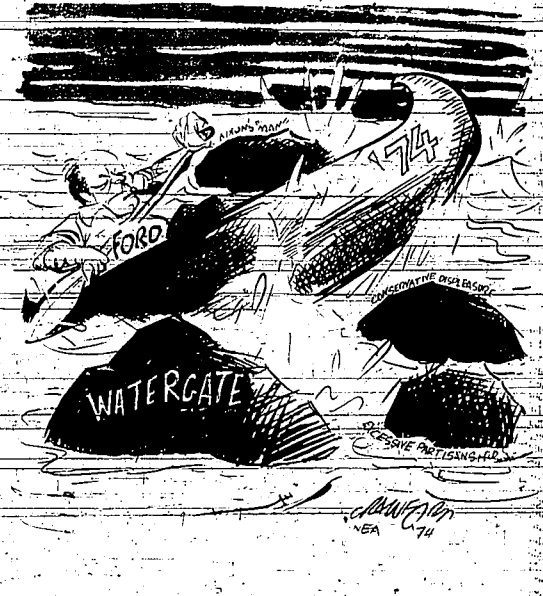

It remained for Charles Sandman, R-N.J., whose time's testament with striped wire infections, to come to LBJ's defense. Because of Vietnam, he said, history would be "unkind to a great man and a great president." Sandman recalled a day LBJ invited him to the White House with other freshman Congressmen, and told them how every general he had advocated accelerating the war.
"The one thing he wanted to do was end the war and he couldn't," Sandman said. President Nixon came along and ended it, and gave us the reward of his leading this effort.

Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., had some trouble organizing the time allotted in the debate, because some members couldn't decide if they wanted to talk. Everyone recognized that the proposals were spending out of a sense of obligation to constituents who still view the war as a tragic venture, and some aggressive war.
Not even Father Robert Drinan, the Massachusetts Jesuit, could make his supporter's article sound like much more than a postscript to graver charges against Nixon.

He sees a Ford in the future, offers 6 to 1 odds

WASHINGTON — It seems impossible not to be fascinated with the chances of Vice President Gerald Ford becoming the next President of the United States. He has everything going for him — "a star" as a White House aide close to Richard Nixon put it. The clever SOB can't lose unless something from the FBI finds him in a hotel room, with a topless dancer. He's doing everything the boss did only better, and he may only have to stand still to become President.

To put it in specifics, Ford is running around the country collecting 101's. Just 65 Nixon did between 1961 and '68. At this writing, he has traveled more than 100,000 miles making speeches for Republican candidates. The House members, President Nixon, and the Senate convicts him. Ford gets into the White House on a pass.
Consider the latest Gallup Poll, which found Ford the first choice among both Republicans and independents as the GOP presidential nominee in 1976. Ford got 27 per cent of the Republican vote, compared with only 10 per cent each for Sen. Barry Goldwater and California's Gov. Ronald Reagan. He got 20 per cent of the independent vote, with Reagan and Sen. James Nelson Rockefeller trailing only 10 per cent each.
Well, you say, that doesn't make him a shoo-in. Maybe not, but a review of Gallup surveys since 1938 shows that the candidate in the top position at the beginning of the Congressional election year usually gets his party's nomination two years later. More important is the political fact of his bid for the Republican presidential candidate can win without the support of voters outside the party. Ford's 20 per cent of the independent vote says he's got some solid non-Republican support.
Moreover, Ford's conduct during the past few months would seem to diminish opposition snafus that he's not brought in the Watergate mess he has been dumb like a fox. He has continued to proclaim Nixon's innocence of any wrongdoing, but he has consistently argued that Nixon had over to the investigations every shred of evidence the White House possesses. "This posture can be construed two ways. Either Ford is saying Nixon is innocent... but Or he is saying that if Nixon produces all the evidence his innocence will be proved. Every Presidential candidate should be that stupid, vote-wise — as they say on Madison Avenue. As of now, too, Garry Ford's Mister Clem. To the political nuts-and-locks men, that means he would be the perfect Republican candidate if Sen. Teddy Kennedy gets the Democratic nomination. These experts don't kid themselves. They know the issue in 1976 will be personal morality and there is no Chappaquiddick Ford's post.

Cyprus crisis produces benefits for NATO lands

(C) New York Times Service
HEADQUARTERS Allied Forces in Southern Europe. Although the Cyprus crisis is still not over, it is likely its impact will eventually be exceeded by the benefits produced for the NATO and United States position in the Mediterranean. An important development, progress as expected, the political dean suffered by the Soviet Union in Egypt, depriving its armed forces and fleet of some facilities in the east Mediterranean, may well be transcended by the improved strategic outlook for the West.
Democracy has been restored in Greece after a seven-year itch of military dictatorship. Democracy has been strengthened in Turkey by that country's success in the Cyprus showdown. And whatever comes in Cyprus itself, once peace is restored there, can only be welcomed by NATO.
Naples is a useful vantage point from which to judge this affair since it is here that ANSO (Turkey) for NATO's most important Mediterranean command is located. Of the five nations whose forces are commanded by ANSO (Turkey, Greece and Turkey) have just been at war.

The paramount gain for the West has been in Greece. The return of the civilian Cypriot administration, led by a strong man and experienced ministers, is an overwhelming plus. NATO should soon see itself restoring the Greeks to the status of full political partners.
Two other military factors are the necessary return to Turkey of Greek officers and men withdrawn from NATO's subordinate forces, and installations there and also reaffirmation of U.S. support for honoring of naval units near Athens. This arrangement was made when the Defense Department could no longer maintain more than 12 aircraft carriers for budgetary reasons. As a result it would have been impossible to honor the American commitment to NATO — two carriers available for any war — unless one was humpbacked, thus keeping it in the area at less cost. The project was carried out, but Congress objected because it disliked the Athens regime. Now there is hope that democratic government can succeed France in Spain and possible humpbacking accords may be made with that country.

As for Cyprus, once tranquility is established, the worst that could happen, in NATO terms, is that it would return to its pre-crisis policy of dual alignment.
All in all, as seen from Naples, the silver lining that must ultimately emerge from the Cyprus cloud will prove more significant than the cloud itself.

Clear cut issues offered in Tuesday primary

Editor, Times-News:
The recent letter to the Times-News by Charles Brumbach, campaign chairman for Orval Hansen, left the impression that Orval with his voting record has been a consistent supporter of private ownership of gold.
This article in HR-6912 of May 29, 1973, and HR-15465 of July 2, 1974, as proof that Orval's record had been misled by candidate George Hansen and his supporters.
According to Mr. Brumbach, Orval voted for HR-6912 on May 29, 1973, and for HR-15465 on July 2, 1974.
According to my copy of ACA Congressional Voting record, the May 29, 1973, vote HR-6912 to allow U.S. citizens private purchase, sale and ownership of gold was defeated by a tie record (103-103) of which Orval Hansen voted against instead of for as reported by Mr. Brumbach.
I hope that Congressman Orval Hansen's vote on July 2, 1974, HR-15465 to allow private ownership of gold was based on a change of heart, and not because it was tied in a 51-51 tie vote away" loan" to the International Development Agency, an affiliate of the World Bank.

The IDA makes development loans at no interest for fifty years and only a 2 1/2 per cent per year service charge with a repayment schedule as follows: No payment required for the first five years, one per cent per year for the next 10 years and three per cent per year for the final thirty years.
These aren't hard terms when compared to terms that Idahoans are paying which are, among the highest taxes and interest rates in the country.
It is also interesting to note that since 1960 when IDA was established, almost forty per cent of its funds have been given to India who have been continually critical of the United States and who have been able to afford to build an atomic bomb and at the same time cry poverty loans.
This congressional primary and general election will certainly give the voter a chance to voice his approval or disapproval of his elected representatives.

Citizens can decide whether or not they approve of their representatives concerning out-crochery vote on many key issues or whether they want it quelled first in Washington. They can indicate whether they are in favor of Orval Hansen's vote in favor of OSHA—or George Hansen's and Steve Symms position to repeal OSHA.
They can show whether they favor Orval's vote on HR-6912 against Steve Symms's bill to prohibit credit sales of wheat and feed grain to the Soviet Union and China or for George Hansen's position to not allow those sales on credit.
In voting, citizens can decide whether to favor Orval Hansen's vote to allow federal land use planning to come to the floor for consideration, to support George Hansen's position of trying to stop this type of dangerous federal legislation in committee.
These and many other clear cut issues are our choice in the primary August 6.

Story lauded

Editor, Times-News:
The article in Sunday's paper about the proposed coal-fired generating plant in southern Idaho is most alarming.
I hope it and your excellent editorial will arouse people sufficiently to at least insist on being given consideration before it is foisted off on us.
As you suggest, if people were sufficiently informed they might well prefer to pay more for clean power or to cut down on its use. At least it should be voted on.
Far what it is worth, I am writing to the power company and also to ORVAL HANSEN. Those things would be best fixed to the same.

Letters

Orval backed
Editor, Times-News:
This letter is to express my support for Congressman Orval Hansen.
I served in the Idaho State Senate with Orval and learned there to appreciate him for his quiet, straightforward approach to problems and for his unusual legislative ability.
In his service in Congress he has demonstrated exceptional performance and a willingness to work very hard for Idaho.
He is a leader in the effort to cut governmental spending. He earned the "Watchdog of the Treasury" award from the National Associate of Businessmen for his votes to reduce federal spending during the 91st and 92nd Congresses.
He has worked for openness in government, and was one of the authors of the Election Reform Act of 1972 which requires strict reports of campaign spending and fundraising.
Other indicators of Orval's effectiveness include passage of legislation to permit recreation of the American Falls Dam, authorization for the Salmon Falls Reclamation Project in Twin Falls and Cassia counties, and approval of the Sawtooth National Recreational Area.
Orval is intelligent, hard working and effective. But of all his strengths, I appreciate most that they have made them to be the kind of neighbors that they would have picked. In five years we have had two fires in the hay that has stacked around the house and both times Ralph came down on his backhoe and worked to move

Votes cited

Editor, Times-News:
Replying to Mr. Charles Brumbach's letter defending Orval Hansen's voting record I repeat, Orval Hansen did vote against the private ownership of gold.
And on two occasions, HR 6912 (1973) which was submitted by Crane, R.-Id., states: Amendment to allow private purchase, sale and ownership of gold by US citizens after Dec. 31, 1974, instead of a date to be determined by the President. Rejected because of a tie vote, 162-162, Orval Hansen voted NO!
The bill had already been passed by the Senate, largely through the efforts of James McClure of Idaho. It is interesting to note that conservative Congressman Steve Symms of Idaho's first congressional district voted in favor of the amendment. This was another example of Orval Hansen canceling the vote of Steve Symms.
Orval Hansen's second negative vote came the same day, on the amendment, HR 6912, (1973) submitted by Cross, R.-Id., which states: Amendment to strike a provision giving the President the authority to determine when to end the prohibition on private gold ownership. The amendment would have had the effect of allowing private ownership of gold on enactment of the bill.
Once again Symms voted yes, Orval Voted NO. The amendment was rejected.
The third time around Orval did vote yes on HR 6912 (1973). The portion we are concerned with reads: to provide for private ownership of gold in the United States and to authorize $2.25 billion for international development funding institutions (foreign aid).
It is other words the amendment which Orval voted for will cost American taxpayers an additional $2.25 billion in foreign aid for the right to own gold.
Orval had the opportunity to allow US citizens the right to own gold with no strings attached, but he voted no.
His vote giving gold stamps to strikers was so disastrous that not even the ultra-liberal senior senator voted with him. If you don't believe this: look at the record!
As I've said before, let's send George to Washington!

Record hit

Editor, Times-News:
I am grateful to Vern Havescroft for his decision to run for lieutenant governor. By leaving the legislature he takes with him one of the worst environmental voting records in the House of Representatives.
His negative votes will no longer be recorded when conservation is the issue, the vested interests who believe Idaho's environment is a salable commodity will not be quite so well represented.
As lieutenant governor, however, Mr. Havescroft would be in a position to influence legislation. His voting record as a legislator indicates that his influence will be heavily weighted in favor of the interests of those who would sell Idaho to the highest corporate bidder.
Mr. Havescroft's lack of concern for the preservation of Idaho's environment is on record. Concerned Idahoans should consider that record in voting for lieutenant governor.

Resident proud of neighborhood, occupants

Editor, Times-News:
We are neighbors in the farming community which was recently attacked so viciously by a past resident. This area is a very nice place in which to live and raise our children.
I am very proud to be a neighbor to the new representative to the House — Ralph Olmstead. Now don't think that this is a Republican statement, because I have been known for my Democratic views and opinions.
I am sure that the public should be aware of what a wonderful family the Olmsteads are, and that in time of trouble you could ask for help for neighbors than them and all the neighbors put in the Shamrock area.
We now have a wonderful set of neighbors who have built some very attractive horse corrals and a new gold seed building. They have been called for the building area. And we are glad to have the Ken Bakkers in our area.
They are not vicious or backbiting people, and we welcome them and their new business. And since their land borders the Olmsteads, I am sure that they have found them to be the kind of neighbors that they would have picked. In five years we have had two fires in the hay that has stacked around the house and both times Ralph came down on his backhoe and worked to move the hay away from the lambing quarters and the house.
And both times he worked till very late in the night moving the hay and straw. So I am very proud to be a neighbor to Ralph and Steve Olmstead and the Olmstead family.

(Editor's note: Mrs. Walker's letter refers to a July 25 article about the struggle between the promoter of a golf course and apartment complex and his neighbors, including the Olmsteads who opposed the plan and were successful in preventing its implementation.)

No doubt about which candidate to vote for

Editor, Times-News:
Many citizens are uncommitted and undecided at this stage of the primary election campaign. All candidates are telling us their virtues, but what rule can we voters use to determine their choice?
Personally I don't rely on the major newspapers or radio or TV "newsmakers." I have had to spend considerable time and money each year to obtain the roll-call votes and voting records of the candidates.
It seems to me that the major newspapers and other media should feel it their duty to supply this information to their readers on a day-to-day basis. It is certainly "news" when each vote of a legislator, senator or congressman affects each and every one of us in some way. At election time, the voter wouldn't have to rely on "campaign rhetoric" to sway their thinking.
I have no question about whom to vote for, I represent me when I see day after day the performances and voting records of Idaho's senators and representatives.
Time and time again, year after year, I see Sen. Frank Church and Rep. Orval Hansen voting just the opposite of Sen. James McClure and Rep. Steve Symms, thus canceling Idaho out.
The Americans for Constitutional Action rate the senators and representatives as to their voting records according to safeguarding the God-given rights of the individual and promoting sound economic growth by strengthening constitutional government: AGAINST "group morality," a "socialized economy" and centralization of government power.

Eden voter tells reasons

Editor, Times-News:
I'm writing to say that unlike many people who seem to be just against Orval Hansen for Congress, I'm in favor of George Hansen for Congress. Let me briefly state why.
I was invited to George's house on the night of the 1972 primary election when Jim McClure and George Hansen were battling it out for the Republican senatorial nomination.
The party was a quiet, intimate one with George spending most of the time playing with his kids or entertaining both family and friends with his pleasant sense of humor. No drinking or swearing or name calling — the voters were deciding and that was that.
George and Connie's wife disappeared for about 10 minutes when the Associated Press declared McClure the winner. When George reappeared I happened to encounter him alone in the hall for a moment. "Well, George, now that will we die?" I asked, not knowing what his reply would be.

George Hansen looked at me with very wise and tired eyes and said, "Larrey, we shouldn't do what we want to do, we should do what God wants us to do."
In that moment I knew what motivated George Hansen. There was no political overtone in his voice; this campaign was finished. It was just George Hansen as a man who feared God and wanted to do right by Him.
And that is why I am for George Hansen. Not because he is standing against Orval (although that's plenty of reason to be for him) but because politicians should be, in my mind, 1. Fighters for liberty; 2. Men who fear God; 3. know George Hansen is both.

Environmental issues may decide some races

By ROBIN D. MESSZOLY
Congressional Quarterly
WASHINGTON — Environmental issues, coupled by inflation and watergate, are not likely to be dominant in this year's political campaigns.
But they may play decisive roles in some contests — particularly where candidates focus on development of local energy resources.
For environmental lobbyists, this means concentrating on close races and providing the extra push — three or four percentage points — needed to justify a tie or elect an ally.
Outspung foes, is the goal of Environmental Action, Inc., a Washington-based lobby that rates members of the House and picks out 12 members — the "Dirty Dozen" — it wants "better."
"The Dirty Dozen" is a tally which we can throw the balance against the incumbent," said Peter Haranic, the group's coordinator. "The organization does not donate money directly to candidates, but provides information criticizing the Dirty Dozen to their opponents and local media."
The label must have some effect: since five of the 12 House members designated as members of the Dirty Dozen in 1972 did not return to Washington for the 93rd Congress.
"Environmental Action's 1973 list was reduced to 11 in May with the defeat of Frank Stubblefield of Kentucky" in the Democratic "primary" by Carroll, Hubbard and Holman, referred to as Stubblefield's "Dirty Dozen" label in late pre-primary television pitch.
The League of Conservation Voters, another Washington group that rates congressmen, raises and contributes campaign funds to selected candidates. So far it has endorsed 19 candidates and raised roughly as much money — $13,000 — by mid-1974 as it had by mid-1972.
"We started later this year, but we are mailing to more people," said William Zuck, the group's director. The league gave $70,000 to candidates two years ago.

more alluded to environmental concerns than his assistant — Republican rival Tom Strook, executive of a Casper oil leasing firm.
— TEXAS
Texas Republican Alan Steedman received environmentalists backing two years ago when he upset incumbent Rep. Earle Cabell, a Democratic Dirty Dozzier, with 56 per cent of the vote. A key rallying point in Steedman's campaign was his opposition to a $1.3-billion coal project to link Dallas with the Gulf of Mexico. This year Steedman faces Democrat Mike Croft, a labor lawyer and canal booster in a district redrawn to include more Democrats.
Steedman concedes that it may be "difficult" to get out across in some people who see their jobs threatened by environmental issues. I think you can maintain a high quality of life," he said, "without hindering an industrially economy."
Steedman, who received a league rating of 65 in 1973, sits on House Interior subcommittees that deal with environmental, mining, parks and water. Environmentalists say he is valuable for his role in bringing other committee Republicans around to more pro-ecology positions.
— CALIFORNIA
Another close race, shaping up in California's rugged, coastal 16th congressional district, pits incumbent Ben L. Talcott, a Republican, against the farming/ranching Jim to a 54 per cent position, incumbent Rep. Hilda Johnson, a Capicola engineer. Camacho was not endorsed by the league in 1972, but this year environmentalists helped him win a vigorously contested primary.
— CALIFORNIA
Camacho's support for environmental issues in Idaho, his local areas of the district, while stressing them on the coast. "Julian has been effective discussing the environment with Republicans disenchanted with Talcott," said his campaign manager, Robert Drake. Camacho also is receiving help from Environmental Action, which branded Talcott one of the Dirty Dozen. Talcott thinks the label is unfair. "I don't think I have as good credentials for conservation," restoration, protection, air pollution, beach/beachfront development," he told CO. He cites his work on the Monterey County board of supervisors setting up scenic highways, agricultural zoning and open space. In Congress, he contends, he has been active in creating wilderness areas and protecting the coast. But he voted in June to let a House land use bill widely viewed as pro-environment.
"Our people out there think he richly deserves" the Dirty Dozen label, said Brock Evans of the Sierra Club. But Neil Weinger, a Democrat, incumbent in Talcott's district, thought the incumbent's opposition to a proposed super-tanker port indicated a slight change in his attitude.

Vietnam: Will fighting continue to last bullet?

By NEA London Economist News Service
SAIGON (AP) — The non-existence of the Vietnam ceasefire has never been more apparent than in the flat, open scrubland 25 miles north of Saigon.
The battle that has been raging for about three weeks around the district town of Ben Cat has developed into the biggest confrontation between the South Vietnamese army and the regular battalions of the North Vietnamese army since the ceasefire came into force in January, 1973.
The destruction the fighting has wrought on this formerly placid area close to South Vietnam's capital is incalculable. Hundreds of soldiers from both sides have been killed or wounded. A village called An Dien has been flattened into a smoking ruin.
Fighting on this scale is also a heavy financial drain on both sides, but particularly so for the highly-mechanized South Vietnamese army. It costs $1 million a month and is the fourth largest army in the world, and which is having great difficulty in shedding its extraneous American military tactics.
In its effort to throw back the North Vietnamese troops infiltrating into the Ben Cat area, the army has mustered a considerable force of infantry and air-supported armor. South Vietnamese jets have been regularly flying over and night sending thousands of shells, costing at least $75,000 a piece, crashing into the communist lines.

"What will happen if the North Vietnamese manage to continue this level of fighting for six months or more? A planning officer in Saigon shrugged his shoulders helplessly.
This question mark hung over President Thieu's recent speech, the most forceful he has yet made since the fall of American aid.
The president complained American generosity to war-ravaged Europe after the Second World War, and in the 1950s to South Korea; with what he termed an abdication of responsibility towards South Vietnam.
The trouble, he said, stemmed from "domestic difficulties within the United States and from the powerful anti-Saigon lobby in Congress. But the United States, he went on, should accept its responsibilities and not make its help to South Vietnam contingent on the signing of this or that coalition agreement."

Money taint erasure law looms

(C) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — After two years of Watergate, Congress is on the edge of enacting a law to remove the taint of big money from national politics.
 But the proposed law's legislative route has been marked by roadblocks and high hurdles this far and everything must go like clockwork if campaign spending reform is to become law this year.
 Ironically, the bill has come under attack because of its 15-implication, an offshoot of the Watergate affair — itself an offshoot of the situation the bill is aimed at rectifying.
 Once Congress plunges into debate over whether to impeach the President of the United States for some of the abuses targeted by this bill, all other legislative business will be shelved, some of it permanently. House debate begins Aug. 19.
 The House rules committee which meets Monday, must clear the way. The full House must debate amendment and pass the bill. Differences between the House bill and an earlier Senate version must be worked out promptly.
 At the heart of the House bill is a public financing for presidential election. It appropriates a fund created by the 51 check-off on individual income taxes. $20 million would be available to each major party candidate. $2 million for "national" nominating conventions and for primaries, federal matching funds up to $5 million per candidate.
 The Senate bill also matches federal dollars and provides contributions for Senate and House races, an item left out of the House bill that certainly be-offered as an amendment on the floor next week.

 There is some question about whether the $1 check-off system will provide enough money to cover all federal elections. Only 54 per cent of the nation's taxpayers are marked — 81 of their taxes for politics the first year it was in effect, 1973.
 With better publicity and more noticeable placement of the check-off box on the tax form, that figure rose to 59 per cent this year. By July 1, 20.8 million had been collected of the $72 million goal for 1976.

Nixon 'underdog' in impeach fight

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Nixon was described by one of his spokesmen Friday as an "underdog" in the congressional impeachment drive.
 Gerald L. Warren, White House deputy press secretary, reading from notes apparently approved by the President, said Nixon faced an "uphill struggle" but that because it was political, the President had a chance to win.
 "This was an indication that Nixon is preparing to fight the impeachment effort on political grounds. Previously, this spokesman stressed the President's belief that the impeachment drive was a political move, not a moral one."
 Warren said, presumably referring to statements by Congressional leaders that an impeachment vote was expected. "We face an uphill struggle, but in a political struggle, you have a chance to win."
 While the White House was not ready to concede that Nixon faced defeat in the House, Warren said, "I am afraid to make odds, you'd have to put the President in the role of underdog."

 The new White House language was interpreted by some observers as an indication that Nixon was resigned to defeat in the House but would try to hold his losses there to a minimum and concentrate on winning in the Senate, where a two-thirds vote is required for conviction and removal from office. The House has for consideration three articles of impeachment recently voted by the House Judiciary Committee.

Fair trial Baker aim

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Republican Sen. Howard Baker said Saturday he will attempt to see that President Nixon is not "set up" if brought to trial in the Senate on Watergate charges.
 Baker, vice chairman of the now-defunct Watergate Committee, responded "probably" when asked whether he thought the chief executive would be tried.

He said that contrary to some news reports he had read, he believed only a few senators had already made up their minds on the guilt or innocence of the President.
 "We must continue to make sure that the country feels that the President is not set up," he said.

Cambodia-Saigon road link broken

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian capital's main highway link with Saigon was cut Saturday when insurgent forces occupied a portion of national Highway 1 southeast of Phnom Penh.
 Field reporters said the rebel action, 18 miles from Phnom Penh, isolated the river port town of Neak Leang from the capital.
 The highway linking Phnom Penh with Saigon was cut at Haing Dek, field reporters said. A government commander and heavy resistance and there was an immediate report of casualties.

Early Saturday insurgent forces cut off the rear flank of government drive moving south on national Highway 4 toward the Pheh Nil pass, 45 miles from Phnom Penh, field reporters said.
 The head of the government column, about three miles from the mountain pass, ran into heavy rebel resistance, field reports said, and the government side reported one killed and seven wounded.
 Rebel forces continued to shell a besieged government position at Kompong Sella, 60 miles southwest of here.

Raid nets Belfast IRA leaders

BELFAST (UPI) — Security forces seized 13 ranking officers of the Belfast Provisional Irish Republican Army Saturday, including a man believed to be the commander of the Belfast Brigade, army sources said.
 The men were among 29 persons arrested during raids on several IRA hideouts in Belfast.

"It looks as if much of the command structure in the Provisional IRA's three battalions in Belfast has been wiped out," a British army source said.

The raiders seized a number of documents believed to relate to IRA plans for increased bombing activity and turned them over to intelligence officers, the source said.

Memos altered, probers report

(C) Washington Star-News
 WASHINGTON — While the Watergate special prosecutors have been accused of finding evidence on suspicious gaps in White House tapes, they have also come across at least two instances where White House memos have been altered.

One memo that is known to be under investigation was written by former White House aide Alexander Butterfield to John Stuart Magruder, then concerned the possible political use of wiretap information obtained from former Federal Bureau of Investigation Director J. Edgar Hoover.

The contents of the second altered memo is not known, although sources close to the prosecutor's office say that it was turned up by an FBI investigation ordered last winter after officials learned of the original 1 1/2-minute gap in a White House tape.

"The second memo is believed to have been cut with a pair of scissors," according to the sources.

According to evidence released by the House Judiciary Committee, the episode involving the altered memo began when Hoover wrote President Nixon a letter informing him that "extremely sensitive sources" had yielded information that Clark Clifford, former secretary of defense under President Lyndon B. Johnson, was about to write a magazine article attacking Nixon's Vietnam policy.

The letter, containing information from the "extremely sensitive sources," an FBI euphemism during the Hoover era for wiretaps, eventually found its way to Magruder's desk. Butterfield told the Judiciary Committee that Magruder was working at the White House at the time.

Magruder, he said, wanted to know who the White House could respond to the forthcoming Clifford article, some details of which were learned from the wiretap that was reportedly placed on the phone of Morton Halperin.

Halperin was a former staff member of the National Security Council.

Butterfield said he then wrote Magruder a memo, dated Jan. 3, 1970, that said, among other things, that "all things get squared away on at least a preliminary scheme. We can build from there."

The way the Memo was initially written, Butterfield later testified, indicated that he had never seen the Hoover wiretap report, when he testified on that point before the staff of the special prosecutor, Butterfield was confronted with another version of the same memo in which the reference to Magruder's chief aide to Henry Kissinger, who was then head of the National Security Council, and now chief of staff at the White House had been deleted.

The memo had also been reworded slightly to indicate that Butterfield had seen the "top secret" Hoover letter and was himself interested in the case.

Butterfield said he decided the memo was a forgery because it contained several changes and because, although it was supposed to be four years old, "it looks as though it was typed an hour ago."

License required

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — State Fish and Game wardens said they could be acting in the regulations banning a falcon trainer from feeding the bird the family cat.

But acting on a humane society complaint, wardens charged Erik Olafson, 28, Alamo, for failing to get a license to own a red-tailed hawk and train it in falconry.

Castro envisions new ties with US

(C) New York Times Service
 WASHINGTON — Premier Fidel Castro of Cuba envisions a resumption of normal relations with the United States, and he has told two American interviewees the sequence he has in mind for entering such details as trade and tourism.

"He has obviously given the matter a great deal of thought," said Frank S. Mankiewicz, who, along with John Ganes, spent a total of 2 1/2 hours with Castro between July 17 and 20.

Nixon requests new economy monitor

(C) New York Times Service
 WASHINGTON — President Nixon asked Congress Friday to establish by law a new "trust of living task forces" to replace the defunct Cost of Living Council, but without mandatory wage and price control powers.

The new task force would monitor price, wage, supply and productivity developments in the economy but apparently would not seek to "jawk down" specific wage or price increases, as had been done at times in the past.

Gerald Warren, the White House press secretary, specifically declined to characterize the role of the new group as "jawboning," and the list of its proposed activities in a White House "fact sheet" accompanying the President's brief message contained no reference to interference with individual wage or price decisions.

By coincidence, as the President's message was being issued at the White House, the role of the Congressional Joint Economic Committee, comprised of members of both parties, expressed strong approval for a revival of the old Cost of Living Council in some form. Congress allowed the council to lapse June 30.

The Congressional step was expressed during the questioning of Secretary of the Treasury William F. Simon. Neither the members of Congress nor Simon appeared aware that the President had decided to move on this issue.

Loophole discovered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The General Accounting Office has uncovered a major loophole which inadvertently lets a foreign-aid law last year that could permit the Pentagon to give away billions of dollars in US weapons without congressional consent or supervision.

Members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee will seek this week to close the loophole as they begin working on the 1975 aid bill, but prospects are dim. It also cooperation seem doubtful.

The loophole is a provision of a 1974 act that permits the Pentagon to assign an arbitrary "official" value to weapons it declares are "excess" to U.S. defense needs, according to a pair of GAO reports made available to UPI Saturday.

Thank you Idaho

For the over ten thousand signatures you placed on petitions for Governor Andrus. Signatures from Democrats, Republicans, Independents. Signatures that show you have pride in what we've accomplished and faith in what we've planned for the future.

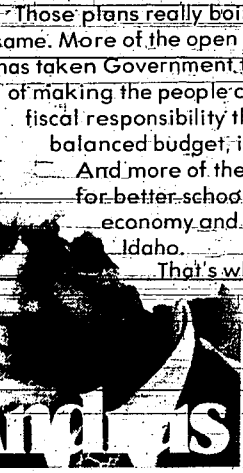

Those plans really boil down to more of the same. More of the open administration that has taken Government to the people, instead of making the people come to it. More of the fiscal responsibility that has given us a balanced budget, in fact, a modest surplus.

And more of the leadership that has fought for better schools, better roads, a healthier economy and an improved lifestyle for all Idaho.

That's what we promised we'd do four years ago. That's what we've done. And that's what we'll keep on doing for the next four years, with your help.

Andrus.

Now that we have a good Governor, let's keep him.

Without gubernatorial contests, light Idaho primary voter turnout seen

 Jerry Hill, chief deputy secretary of state and former elections officer, agreed. He said advance indications, based in part on absentee voting, indicate a light turnout.
 Local races in some areas and local candidates bidding for high office in others could change that pattern in some sections of the state.
 Canyon County, for instance, is expected to have a big turnout at the polls — for both reasons. Besides the local races there — all candidates for the GOP senatorial nomination have roots there.
 In Bonneville County not only is the turnout expected to be hefty but the Republican vote is expected to be especially heavy. As many as 3,000 Democrats may vote in the GOP primary partly to assist U.S. Rep. Orval Hansen, a far right Idaho Falls lawyer, under attack from former State Rep. George Hansen of Pocatello. In his bid for nomination to a fourth term.

 "Although nobody in the Democratic party is brave enough to take on Hansen and no one in the GOP wants to back Murphy, there are a host of deep candidates for lieutenant governor."
 Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft of Tufflo, Hope, Kading of Boise and P. K. Yarwood of Caldwell are after the Republican nomination, State Sen. John Evans of Malad, former Sen. Ray Hilday of Pocatello and former Sen. Neils Solberg seek the Democratic nod.
 Ravenscroft and Evans are rated the best to beat and Mrs. Kading and Hilday just could make close races out of both contests.

Incumbent Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, Williams and Secretary of State Pete Conarussa are up against the ballot. Williams is seeking a fifth term, Miss Moon a fourth and Conarussa a third.
 D.P. Englekang is retiring after four terms as superintendent of public instruction, and four Republicans and two Democrats seek party nominations for the job.
 Ezra Moore and Charlie Brown of Boise, Harmon Grosbeck of Idaho Falls and Donald S. Housley of Garden Valley are after the Republican nomination. Moore and Brown, both on leave from jobs with the State Department of Education, are the top contenders.
 Loy T. Truby of Boise and Sen. James Storchell of Sandpoint seek the Democratic nomination for chief state school officer. Truby, Englekang's administrative assistant, has mounted a well-organized campaign while Storchell has employed his whole family in a state-wide doorbell-ringing contest.

 Another statehouse incumbent, Attorney General W. Anthony Clark, lacks opposition in the Democratic ballot. But two Republicans think they have a chance to unseat him in November and are seeking the GOP nomination. They are Tim Hopkins of Idaho Falls and former Sen. Wayne Kilduff of Boise. This could be another horse race.
 Sen. Frank Church has a ballot opponent in Leon Orskov of Boise in his bid for the Democratic nomination to a fourth term. Church is expected to walk away to the nod.

Bob Smith of Nampa, the attorney who engineered the election two years ago of U.S. Rep. Steve Symms, is one of three seeking the GOP senatorial nomination. His opponents are Don Winters of Boise and Charles Bolstridge of Nampa. Smith has a decided edge.
 But two Democrats are vying to unseat Jim Kenneth Miller of Sandpoint and former state Sen. J. Ray Cox of Hayden Lake.

Allocations reducing flow of beer into TF

 Bob Dodson, manager of Dodson's Distributing, Inc., which markets Birly, Weinfeld, Hammis and Bihemian, said he has not experienced any shortages as yet and does not expect any.
 Jordan, who also distributes Lucky Lager in addition to Budweiser and Mitchell, said that he had not been put on allocation by Lucky Lager, as he had the other two brands; both Amheuser-Busch labels. He added that Lucky sales were up since the shortage of the other brands.
 Jordan said demand for Budweiser was running ahead of supply nationwide. He said the brewing firm is operating at full capacity in all plants and plans a new brewery in Fairfield, Calif. He estimated that his customers were out of Budweiser and Mitchell about 750 percent of the time.
 Jordan said his firm had not been hurt financially from "serious" shortages of beer, despite the having increased his sales by 20 percent in the last year prior to the beginning of allocation by Budweiser in May.
 Walker estimated that he was 720 to 25 percent short of meeting the demand for Coors. He said the brewery's home plant in Golden, Colo., the world's largest single brewery, had increased its capacity by 1.5 million barrels over last year.
 "We felt certain that this would be an adequate supply," Walker said, "but every year it just gets worse."
 Some of the distributors could pin down the reason for the increased beer consumption. Jordan said the popularity of Budweiser has been increasing rapidly. Walker said the increased demand was due to population increases and increased tourism in Idaho. Smith attributed part of the increase on campaigns against alcoholism — "beer is the drink of moderation," he said.

 Smith said total production at Olympia breweries was up about 20 percent this year. Nonetheless, he said, "we've been awfully close."
 "I had to unload a carload Sunday so far. Trucks would have enough to put on from Monday." This is the first year we've had this problem," Smith added.
 Smith said he hopes to get four carloads of Olympia during August, compared to three carloads last August.
 He also said Olympia will be brought in in extra supply to cover the Pocol Knicker canyon jump in early September. Both Jordan and Walker, however, said they would have no extra supplies for the thousands expected in Twin Falls for the daredevil stunt.
 A check of local taverns, established that customers had at times drunk up all available Budweiser and Coors, but no other operator reported similar shortages.
 Ben Hill, bartender at The Alley, said he had run short of the popular brands for a week, but had encountered no "problems" getting beer needed. He said sales were not hurt by shortages of Budweiser and Coors.
 Linda Vance, a partner in the Pioneer Club, said getting supplies of Coors and Budweiser isn't as easy as it used to be.

Pollution hit again

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Federal Judge Miles Lord Saturday rejected Reserve Mining Co.'s proposal for an on-land waste disposal site and recommended that the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals order the company to stop polluting Lake Superior.
 "The only real answer to the problem is a cessation of the discharge into the air and water," Lord said in a 37-page opinion.

Mountain Bell bracing for threatened walkout

TWIN FALLS — It may take a little longer to make operator-assisted phone calls beginning Monday if the threatened nationwide Bell Telephone walkout is not averted.

Informal talks continued between the company and over 37 unions, including the Communications Workers of America, AFL-CIO, Saturday. The strike deadline is set for 10:01 p.m. MDT Sunday.

Idaho rail service bid wins backer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Friday the chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee said he will support Church's proposal to restore rail passenger service to Idaho.

Church said Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., made the commitment during debate in the Senate on legislation to fund Amtrak, the nation's public rail passenger corporation, for fiscal 1975.

Church, in protest over the lack of Idaho rail passenger service, cast one of two votes against the Amtrak appropriation. He said he will start supporting funds for Amtrak when Idaho starts getting rail passenger service again.

The Idaho senator reported, Magnuson agreed that when legislation is considered in the Senate to extend Amtrak's operating authority, he will favorably consider Church's amendment to require Amtrak service to Idaho.

progress is a clearly defined term meaning a great deal and we don't have that," he said. A Bell official said "the fact that we're talking indicates that progress has not happened, I would hate to say either that there is or is not progress."

Federal mediators were informed of the status of the negotiations but they had not formally entered the talks. "We are going to stand by what we have in the contract rather than strike. We'd like to get it out. But the strike date is for real," a union spokesman said.

The unions want a pay increase in the area of 14 per cent, better pensions and an agency shop where state law permits. The company offered a 9.44 per cent raise the first year of a three year contract and 2.7 per cent increases in the next two years.

The CWA has about 200,000 members in the Bell System and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has about 75,000 members. The remaining union employees are scattered among about 45 smaller unions bargaining nationally as one unit.

"We are not anticipating any major problems," Mann said, though the company is "encouraging" people, who are making long distance calls to direct dial their own.

United Press International quoted a union spokesman as saying Saturday "there is still protesting" by both sides on the issues of wages, union security and pensions. "This means there is no motion as people dispute the matters, but

Forest ablaze

LIGHTNING-CAUSED 4,000-acre timber brush fire in the San Bernardino National Forest near Calabasas, Calif., was "bombed" with more than 100 retardant drops from airplanes and battled by 1,700 men as the first major outbreak of the fire season in Southern California. The fire, was 70 per cent contained Saturday.

Little TF effect from ban on pesticides

The agency said it was taking the action now because, despite a hearing on the matter which has dragged on for nearly a year, "She'll said it, intends to begin manufacturing more than 10 million pounds of the pesticides Sept. 4 for use during 1975."

EPA administrator Russell Train said, "I find that a situation exists in which the continued manufacture of Aldrin or Dieldrin will likely result in appreciable adverse effects on man and environment."

The EPA said its hearings produced evidence that Dieldrin causes a significant increase in cancerous tumors in rats at very low dosage. It said Food and Drug Administration samples show Dieldrin in 100 per cent of all dairy products sampled, 88 per cent of all garden fruits, 96 per cent of all meat, fish and poultry samples, and up to 42 per cent in grains and other food samples.

Hughes-Rebozo payment behind 'Gate break-in'?

When captured, the average burglar carries copying cameras as well as bugging equipment. They presumably intended to photograph, as they had during earlier entry into the Watergate, documents in the files of Lawrence P. O'Brien, the chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Before assuming that post-report, O'Brien had worked for its months as a highly paid public relations adviser to the Hughes organization. The implication is that the systematic copying was thought to possess documents relating to the $100,000 payment, which was made while he worked for Hughes.

The Senate report was not released with the Watergate committee's other findings because of reported objections by the chief minority counsel, Fred D. Thompson, that it might be considered a "leak" of information. Committee officials have said that they expect to make it public later, however.

The evidence that was published by the committee, however, indicated a "sworn" allegation that Rebozo had privately conspired with a person who had received from a Hughes employee in Donald and Edward Nixon, the President's brothers, Rose Mary Woods, his White House secretary, and others.

The committee's public evidence also raised the possibility that part of the cash was deposited in trust accounts at the Key Biscayne, Fla., bank and that to which Rebozo had access and that it was to finance more than $50,000 in investments to the President's Florida homes.

As the evidence assembled in the unpublished report points out, the first public mention of the $100,000 payment from the Hughes organization to Rebozo was made by Jack Anderson, the syndicated columnist, in August, 1971, about a year after the last of two $30,000 installments had been placed in Rebozo's hands.

That article, according to the report, gave rise to the initial concern that some of the less easily explained details of the murky Hughes-Rebozo transaction might surface to create political difficulties for the President the following year.

The concern apparently was justified. Less than a month later, Herman M. Greenstein, the publisher of the Las Vegas Sun, approached a White House official in Eastland, Miss., to ask if the reported campaign contribution from Hughes had been used to help finance the purchase of Nixon's San Clemente, Calif., estate.

Candidate advocates court speed

BURLEY — Speeding up the flow of cases through the courts is a major concern of Gleason Anderson, candidate for fifth district judge.

Presently, a magistrate judge, Anderson said Tuesday, "I feel very strongly that much can be done to relieve calendaring problems in the courts."

Anderson said the problem is a general one with lawyers. He said there could be a much more concerted effort by the entire bar to expedite the flow of cases through the courts.

Anderson said continuing attorneys are granted in cases for the convenience of attorneys, not the convenience of the courts or the attorney's clients. He said it is a "practical problem" and that attorneys themselves could do much to keep the courts clear.

Anderson is presently magistrate judge presiding in Burley, hearing cases in both Minidoka and Cassia counties. He came to Twin Falls in 1953 to found and manage the Yellowstone Co. insurance adjusters. He is a graduate of Washington University, Topka, Kans., with AB and LL.M. degrees.

He presided for three years as a member of a special court — Army court martial and its board — during the years in the U.S. Army. He passed the Idaho state bar in 1968 and practiced law in Burley and Twin Falls until his appointment as magistrate judge in January, 1971. He has attended National College of State Trial Judges, Reno, University of Nevada, Reno.

Anderson said "very few lawyers ever reach the conclusion that they have enough business," Anderson said. He thinks attorneys should accommodate the clients they have without taking on more than they can handle. He said most attorneys are more concerned with the civil side of courts than with the criminal side. They have a duty to both, he said.

Concerning juvenile court problems Anderson said the state cannot afford to handle juvenile problems as well as it should. He said that to add in the situation the communities need to provide more volunteer help to the courts to provide the "one on one counseling and constant supervision needed in some cases."

Candidates favor public employe bargaining

TWIN FALLS — Both Democratic candidates for the district 25 state representative seat favor collective bargaining for public employes.

Both candidates are also in the race for the party because "they have favored farmers, but nobody to represent the other labor worker."

Concerning the right of public employes to organize for collective bargaining, Graham said, "I believe in any way that's worth what you want, they should have it."

Graham's Democratic opponent, John T. Walker, was an industrialist for a number of years. He said he had no objection to public employes entering into collective bargaining.

"Public employes certainly need to be able to bargain for themselves or choose to be represented by a union or labor of their choice," he told the Twin Falls League of Women Voters.

"I feel our state and county and also city government have overlooked the need of our employes for many years."

Both candidates also favor land use legislation, although Walker is opposed to preservation of present conditions, while Graham called for development of state land use guidelines to direct local planning efforts.

"I would like to see developers and private home owners have a better understanding of what are our public domains," Walker said earlier. "I've seen our beaches, our river channels, our forest roads with no trespassing signs. They've should have these people improve on our rights. Let's let it be known what is proper boundary and retain access to public domains."

Graham said he opposed taking "good agricultural land" for residential development on our rights. "I'd like to see land use set up on a state level and then passed down to the local level where they would have to follow this guideline," Graham said.

Walker, in previous platform statements, had also called for expanded government spending instead of tax relief. "The working people need consideration on tax relief," he added, however.

Graham and Walker are neighbors, both being residents in the southern Twin Falls area.

Graham said the fact that he and Walker lived near one another played no part in their decisions to run for the legislature.

"When I got the petition and went over for him to sign it, he said he was going to run, too," Graham said.

Walker, 52, is a high school graduate. He has been a farmer, a shepherd and a cattle raiser. He is a heavy equipment operator for a Twin Falls paving firm.

Graham, 39, is also a high school graduate and has taken several courses at CSI. He is married and has five sons. He has lived in Twin Falls since 1961 and has been "fairly active" in the local Democratic Party.

Foster homes needed in TF

TWIN FALLS — Foster homes are "desperately" needed for teenage boys and girls by the Twin Falls youth services office of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

Irma Shropshire, director, said Friday that both long term and short term foster homes for teenagers with family, social or legal problems are needed by the agency.

"Every day we get calls of needs for youngsters between 12 and 18," she said. These are youngsters with "special needs" and the office "is in desperate straits right now" trying to find homes for them, she said.

"Even if someone could give short term care we really would appreciate it," Mrs. Shropshire said, "we need that too."

Some financial assistance is available for foster parents through HAW, she said.

"Anyone interested in providing a home for a needy teen-ager should call Mrs. Shropshire at the youth services office, 733-5341."

Zoo nurses rare animals

By United Press International

Zoo officials in Fort Payne, Ala., and Oklahoma City today nursed two rare baby animals — a white lion and an Algerian aardvark. Both were healthy and contentedly nursing at their parents' side.

The white lion was born two days ago to a lioness named Lisa. Park Director Billy Melroy said he had contacted other zoo directors and veterinarians and they knew of no other such birth.

"I've never seen a white lion born in captivity, and I've certainly never seen a white lion," said Birmingham Zoo Director Bob Thiel.

In Oklahoma City, Zoo Director Lawrence Curtis announced Tuesday the first birth in captivity of a rare African aardvark.

Only about 15 aardvarks, members of the bary family, are in captivity in the world. The aardvark is smaller than the beaver and when frightened, hissing and prets a strange smell.

Curtis said the baby male is in the zoo nursery under the care of Shirley Keller, nursery supervisor.

The Oklahoma City Zoo has the largest collection of aard-varks in captivity with our adult male and two females.

Zoos in San Diego, California, and Tampa, Fla., have recently other aardvarks in the United States.

The white lion born at the zoo in Fort Payne was the 21st male cub born at the zoo and Melroy said, "We raise them all on bottles."

In order to do that, zoo workers must obtain animal feeding from the mother lion in order to transfer natural immunity to the cub.

Patti Hays and Clarence Peterson confer

This business meeting's on horseback

Women forego dishes to ride

Patti Hays leaves home every Tuesday night to get her horse and heads for the Filer fairgrounds.

She pulls into the grounds amid the dust of dozens of other horse-trailers, shouting greetings to women who are folding their horses from trailers. Laughter and anxious whinies mingle in the warm evening air.

In the arena, riders and horses are warming up. A lone dog runs among the horses which carry women and clinging children, assorted youngsters and an occasional adult male. A whistle blows and the hangers-on drift apart as the women gather together.

The Filer Wranglerettes have assembled for another weekly practice this one particularly crucial because the group is competing in Elko the next weekend.

President Patti Hays, Twin Falls, conducts the business meeting from the grandstand. About 20 club members, astride their horses, gather below. Members range in age from 14 to 70, well, several years older. They gather—the teachers, students, secretaries, housewives, bookkeepers and mothers—in blue jeans and pig tails because they "like to ride and like the company of other people who like to ride."

Several women have been in the club since its beginning 15 years ago. Some are sisters or daughters of original or current members.

For the younger girls, the club presents "something to do" but for many of the others it's a night out, a chance to get together with friends and do something they all love to do—ride horses.

"Women get tired of being housewives," Mrs. Hays said. "This club gives them a chance to get out of the house."

The riding group is "a bunch of gals who enjoy riding together and enjoy horseflesh," charter member Margaret Vincent said. Many women and girls love horses she said, and "love of horses is a very healthy thing."

Doris Woodland, who has been "in and out" of the club for the past 15 years, said finding time for club activities is not difficult. "You just plan in advance and plan your schedule around it."

"You have to be very determined," Mrs. Vincent said. "Many times we leave our dishes undone."

The women include their husbands with weekend trips and bring them, along, to rodeos, parties and other performances as "kind of stable hands."

"Very few husbands seem to mind. I think they like the women having interests of their own," Mrs. Vincent said.

Clarence Peterson, who has chucked up 20 years of horse experience in the valley, has been drillmaster of the group for several years and put together the drill the women will take to Elko for competition this weekend.

He could hardly put a word in during the business meeting, but when he blows the whistle in the arena horses and riders come to attention.

Mrs. Paul Kalliesch, mother of a charter member and the current club princess, and wife of the group's announcer said membership has had its ups and downs. Membership hit a slump the last few years, but since riding horses has come back in style, it is rising again, she said.

No limit is placed on membership but one hard and fast rule is that all riders must attend the last two practices before any performance or they can not participate. Mrs. Hays said she was even prohibited from riding once.

The dedication of the members was marred only by a few loud moans Tuesday when Peterson told the women they would have to be at the fairgrounds with their horses at 4:30 a.m. Saturday to load them for the ride to Elko.

Open-door freedom not so appealing

By MIKE ROYKO

(c) Chicago Daily News
CHICAGO — Jerome Miller likes to preach about tearing down the walls and unlocking the doors.

He doesn't want children cooped up in institutions. He has contempt for those who run the traditional children's homes.

These ideas helped get Miller the top job in child care in the administration of Gov. Dan Walker.

And I have to admit that they are appealing thoughts.

How much more appealing to think of children running free through dusty fields—and sunlight. Maybe pulling kites. And in slow motion.

Or rapping with wise and savvy counselors, who help them get through the tough spots in living outside those hated walls and locked doors. You know the kind of counselors. They have them in TV shows. Sometimes they are young lawyers, or young cops, or young docs, or even social workers. Man, can they rap with troubled kids. Why, just one bit of rap-rap, and no more pills — the kid is off applying for a Rhodes scholar-ship.

Yes, Miller's ideas. If you can call them that, and the pictures they conjure are appealing.

Until you run across somebody like Danny Grossland, 15, a ward of the state who is in a hospital after a drug overdose almost killed him.

Danny was a victim of the no-doors, no-walls concept.

He was taken out of a good home for children and drifted through the chaos of Miller's agency, at a time when he needed psychiatric help.

Today I'll try to show what happened when he was given the open-door freedom that Miller is so fond of prescribing.

He had been moved into the Lawson YMCA by Miller's agency, the Department of Children and Family Services. The state paid for his room, meals, and gave him weekly spending money.

There is supposed to be a program at the Lawson Y for wards of the state, who live there. It is a tough, at least for children like Danny.

Under this program, Danny was supposed to get a counselor once a week. The rest of the time he was on his own.

So he went out and made some new friends. Oh, did he make friends.

Let's start with a young man named Ron. Danny met him around the corner from the Lawson Y, at a park that is a meeting place for homosexuals.

But, who is gay, is a male prostitute — a male prostitute.

He is also said to have escaped from a mental hospital, which he entered after killing somebody.

Of the kind of pot a 15-year-old ward of the state should be chinning around with, Ron has an apartment and Danny began living there.

Through Ron, Danny met Carl.

Carl is also a homosexual and reportedly likes to introduce young boys into drugs and pot — him as a social prostitute to carry the price of their drugs.

Through Carl and Ron's crowd, Danny also got to know Betty, a bisexual waitress, who is an addict, a dope dealer, and is credited with giving Danny his first direct injection of speed.

After a wild party in Carl's apartment, Danny went into convulsions. He was almost dead when he got to the hospital. Now it appears he will live, but the possibility is great he will suffer permanent brain damage. If that happens, he will probably have to be put into an institution.

For that matter, the hospital he's in is an institution. It is so big that he couldn't have been given the kind of institutional treatment he needed before he got the freedom to meet Ron and Carl and all the rest.

Miller might consider that the function of doors and walls isn't solely to keep somebody inside from getting out.

'Deep probe' shows green thumb reporters care

By PATRICIA MOORE
(c) Chicago Daily News

CHICAGO — Newspaper people are hard-bitten and cynical, right?

Not if they're plant lovers. The green thumbs among reporters, editors and copy readers are tender, caring human beings who talk to their plants, often giving them names just as they would with pets.

An exhaustive investigation uncovered this information. The first tip came from a reliable city-room source, who said he saw Chicago Daily News Labor Writer John Hahn tussling over his plant every morning when he came in and talking to it. Committed with this information, Hahn and others not only confirmed that it was true but delated their practice.

Hahn takes the position that a little bit of greenery in the city room, a mother-in-law's tongue (inexplicably named, Fred, has flourished under his tatty care.

"I took Fred in as a foster child," from Lois Wille, executive editor, who planned cigar-chomping Hahn. Lois Wille is a Pulitzer prize-winning reporter and an assistant city editor. Lois is a swell writer but she doesn't talk to her plants," Hahn added.

Merle Harpe, a special features editor, whose desk is directly behind Hahn's, confirmed his boast of successful care. "Fred was barely peeping over the pot when John got him," Ms. Harpe said, an avowed talker to plants. Ms. Harpe gives names to all her plants and keeps one, an English ivy named Bessie, on a ledge, one window away from Fred. And she intends to keep it that way. Hahn cheerfully admitted he had other ideas. "Let's face it, Fred has the best for Merle Jane. But Merle has kept the romance from budding, so to speak," Hahn grumbled.

Hahn contends the proof that plants respond to friendly conversation that Fred is doing much better than the plants at home. "My wife doesn't talk to them," Hahn explained. Furthermore, Fred has grown despite being housed in a too small, cheap plastic container resting on a dish from the company cafeteria.

Ms. Harpe said she rescued a neglected palm from her husband's office, named him Ralph and moved him to the kitchen table. "He gets lots of good dinner conversation and is thriving," Ms. Harpe reported.

The happy-talking news staffers bristled at the suggestion that giving names to plants and talking to them is strange.

"You give names to pets, don't you?" reasoned Food Writer Judy Heywood. "Plants are living things."

DEAR ABBY: Recently I met a guy who says he loves me. When I ask him why, he says it's because I have a pair of pro basketball season tickets and can pilot an airplane to take us to out-of-town games. He says it's also because I give fabulous backrubs.

DEAR UP: You sound easy to love. The relationship should last as long as you can get those pro basketball tickets, can fly him to out-of-town games, and provide him with backrubs.

UP IN THE AIR
I care for him very much, but am wondering if this relationship can last. Strange as this seems, it's true.

She's easy to love

DEAR ABBY: I have a 22-year-old sister who has been married a year and has a small baby. Her husband is a professional shoplifter. He says he's been in the business for 20 years. He rips off everything from a package of cigarettes to an $8,000 houseboat. He brags about it. She has a two-carat diamond and a houseful of furniture which he has obtained through shoplifting. It's unbelievable what this man can pick up.

I am worried about my sister. She lives in another state. When I saw her last I told her she was foolish to live with a man who might be sent to prison. She just laughed and said she is too smart to get caught, and besides all she could get is a $100 fine.

Is she mentally sick? I am 28, married to a good man and have a fine family, and I am worried. Is there anything I can do? BIG SISTER

DEAR SISTER: Tell your sister that she is mistaken if she thinks all he can get is a $100 fine for grand larceny. And if she just laughs when you try to set her straight, she could be mentally sick.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé is a divorced man. His ex calls him once a week without fail "to talk." They have no children, so I don't know what they have to talk about. (She is still unmarried.)

My fiancé says he doesn't mind her calling him because he appreciates knowing that she is okay. He is very good to me, but these calls from his "ex" every week irritate me. I would like your opinion.

DEAR "R": In my opinion, your fiancé appears to be a very kind and considerate man. He's not married yet. If his "ex" continues to call him, and he continues to "not mind" after he's married to you, write again, and I may have a different opinion.

Measures taken against ancient plague

(C) New York Times Service
SANTA FE, N. M. — The nation's first death from plague in five years, coupled with the increasing spread of the bacterial infection among animals, has led federal health officials to step up protective measures against the ancient disease, which is endemic throughout the Western United States.

The usual degree of plague activity among prairie dogs, rabbits, rodents, and other wild animals could lead to more human cases among residents and visitors to plague-infected areas this summer, epidemiologists said in interviews.

A 13-year-old Navajo girl died of plague meningitis June 28 in a Gallup hospital.

Though concerned, the epidemiologists said they did not fear a report of the latest death form of plague that decimated Europe in the Middle Ages, the epidemics that struck England in the 16th and 17th centuries, or that killed one million people in a year in India earlier this century. Nor did these experts in control of infectious disease expect new urban plague epidemics like those that hit Los Angeles 50 years ago.

But to minimize the threat of additional cases developing among Americans this year, health workers have issued insecticide to residents in areas where plague bacteria have been detected in recent weeks.

Drama, music, dance slated at Jerome

JEROME — Three days of drama, music and dance are scheduled for the Coach 'n Four-Arts Festival, Aug. 9, 11 and 12.

The festival is being held at the McClure Coach 'n Four Ranch four miles south of the bank corner in Jerome. The program will include "Operatic Arias and Ensembles," the Ballet Folk of Moscow and the Antique Festival Theatre.

Dress is casual and admission is free. Contributions to defray expenses will be accepted, however. The public is invited and parking will be provided.

The festival will begin Friday at 8:30 p.m. with "Operatic Arias and Ensembles" sung by a quartet of artists from the concert halls of Los Angeles and San Francisco. Performers will be Marie Gibson, soprano; Charlotte de Windt, mezzo-soprano; Alex Martin, tenor; and Harry Road, baritone. Anita Priest will do the accompaniment.

The singers and their accompanist have performed at concerts in Southern California in numerous times. They cover the entire field of singing from opera through oratorio to lieder and other concert works.

Sunday at 2 p.m. will be performance of "The Ballet Folk of Moscow" with Carl Petrich directing. The group of dancers conducted a workshop in Twin Falls last winter and performed at the Olympic Auditorium. They recently performed at Reno and are now participating in the ballet workshop at College of Southern Idaho.

By the way, the group does not usually perform in an open air theatre their appearance at the Jerome Arts Festival will be a first.

The Antique Festival Theatre will perform on Monday evening. Curtain time for the Antiquaire Theatre version of Goldoni's "Mistress of the Inn" will be 8:30 p.m.

The Antiquaire Festival Theatre recently received a write-up in a current issue of Sunset Magazine. The production at the Arts Festival will be the only Jerome appearance of the theatre for this season.

The operatic quartet is a group entirely new to Idaho. Mrs. Gibson was graduated in music from San Francisco State college and studied with Andres de Segura and Pietro Cimini in Los Angeles. Later, she studied with Elsa Varena in West Berlin. She made her concert debut with Alfred Wallenstein and the Los Angeles Philharmonic orchestra.

She is a leading soprano with the Los Angeles Opera Co. as well as with the Guild opera of Los Angeles and has been principal soloist for several years at the internationally famous Bach Festival at Carmel, Calif. She is senior lecturer in voice at Stanford University and heads the vocal program there.

Ms. DeWindt is a graduate of University of Michigan and the Philadelphia Academy of Vocal Arts. She has appeared with the Little Orchestra Society under the baton of Thomas Scherman and performed in musical comedy for several seasons with the famous Paper Mill Playhouse of New Jersey.

She is principal soloist and regular member of the Roger Wagner Master Chorus and was regular soloist for "The Bach 'Minor Mass'" in the Los Angeles Music Center.

HEW gets comment on unisex schools

(By Washington Star News)

WASHINGTON — Unisex schools aren't that what they have in common and comrades. Asks a state letter writer:

"A woman from Salem, Ore., writes: 'Can you picture the great forefathers of our country sitting in sewing and cooking classes?'

And, a kindergarten teacher, signed 'Mary Davis, 10 years old,' expressed the traditional antipathy of her age group to the opposite sex:

"Please do not push me and my girl friends into gym classes and other things with boys. We don't want to be with boys. Don't we have free choice in this country?"

In the more than six weeks since Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Caspar W. Weinberger issued proposed regulations banning sex discrimination in schools receiving federal funds, a steady flow of what officials refer to as "comment" has been logged at HED.

The reaction ranges widely, from biblical injunctions about the difference between the sexes, and denunciations of women's liberation to criticisms from women's organizations that HEW has not gone far enough in implementing a two-year-old sex discrimination law enacted by Congress.

Open for "comment" until Oct. 15, the regulations are not expected to become final until early next year, when the president passes in the HEW recommendations.

At this stage, the draft regulations tentatively set educational classes in postsecondary education, shop and home economics. Schools and colleges can maintain the traditional male varsity sports.

West would be holding one extra trump.
 South did give the hand the old college try. He cashed four trumps, went to dummy with a club and led a spade toward his king. Unfortunately for him, East had hung on to all his spades and was careful to play the 10. Thus South wound up losing two spade tricks.
 If East had made the apparently normal defense of shifting to a trump at trick two or three, South would have set up clubs—drawn trumps, stopping in dummy with the third lead, discarded one spade and one diamond on the last two clubs and wound up with game and rubber.

Plans set on timber offering

SALMON — The Salmon National Forest plans to sell 40.1 million board feet of timber during the fiscal year from July 1, 1974, to July 1, 1975.

Don Goodrich, in charge of timber management for the forest, said that because of the success of the recent Spring Creek helicopter sale, the forest service plans to offer two more helicopter sales during the coming year.

About 50 per cent of this year's sale program (Black-bird, Rabbitsfoot and Silverleaf sales) will be dependent upon the successful completion of environmental impact statements.

The forest sold 32.3 million board feet of timber during fiscal 1974.

"This compares favorably with a previously scheduled sale program of 31.8 million board feet."

During the same period, 33.8 million board feet of timber was harvested and milled. About 23 million board feet was milled in the Salmon and North Fork areas and 10.8 million board feet milled in Missouri and St. Anthony.

Earnings set record, M-K reports

BOISE (UPI) — Morrison-Knudsen Co., Inc., Boise, reported record second quarter and first half of 1974 earnings, and the highest backlog of contracts in its history.

The company reported earnings for the three months ending June 30 were $2.669 million or 98 cents per share, up 12 per cent from last year's record $2.382 million or 91 cents per share.

Revenue for the reporting period, the company said, was $155.70 million, up 54 per cent from $111.372 per share in the same quarter last year.

First-half earnings amounted to $4.717, or $1.54 per share, on revenue of $25.486 million, an increase of 13 per cent over last year's record earnings of $2.099 million or $1.42 per share, on revenue of $181.613 million.

W.H. McMurren, president, said Morrison-Knudsen's backlog has reached $102 billion since 1962. At year-end, the backlog was $532.56 million, he said.

Meet... P.K. "PAT" HARWOOD
Republican Candidate for Lieutenant Governor

P. K. "PAT" HARWOOD, Republican candidate for Lieutenant Governor in the 1974 primary, is running for a statewide elective office for the first time.

No newcomer to politics, he served two terms as a state legislator in 1963 and 1967 from District 20-B, Clark and Jefferson counties and was his political party's charter president of the Jefferson County Young Republicans in 1962. In the 10 hectic days of the primary and state legislature, he has been active in Republican functions both in eastern and western Idaho.

His political involvement is inherited. Pat's came by way of his grandfather and great-uncle. His uncle, Max Patric, who he was named after, served as Idaho Secretary of State at the turn of the century and also served as state GOP Central Committee chairman. His grandfather, Charles Harwood, was the first county commissioner of Jefferson County.

Born in Colorado 43 years ago, Pat moved to Rigby, Idaho with his mother in 1936 after his father's death, and attended Rigby schools. His mother now retired, for many years was principal of the Rigby elementary school which bears her name.

For the past seven years, Pat has been with the J. R. Simplot Company, Caldwell, as director of public affairs, and before that worked for the J. H. Boozer Oil Company in Idaho Falls.

Pat and his wife, Donna, live in Caldwell and have three children: Sherry, a student at Boise State University; Kirk, a 9th grader; and Brad, a 4th grader.

The hallmark of Pat's career has been his involvement in political, civic, and business activities. While living in Rigby, he was honored as "Man of the Year" in 1962 by the Rigby Chamber of Commerce, served as president of the Rigby Jaycees, chaired the local playground committee and served as president of the Rigby Lions Club.

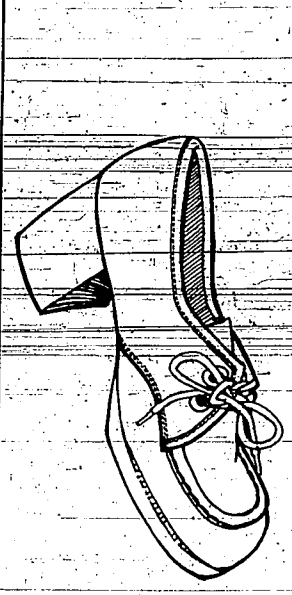

In Caldwell, he has been president of the Snake River United Pioneers chapter of the Canyon County Airport Committee, and a member of the Mayor's Handicapped Committee, Caldwell High School Advisory Committee, Athletic Round Table, and Revenue and Taxation Advisory Committee.

Presently, he serves as an Idaho representative on the Federation of Rocky Mountain States, and has served 3 years on the Idaho State Advisory Council for Vocational Education for the past two years as Chairman.

He also served as chairman of the Caldwell Chamber of Commerce Governmental Affairs Committee and was chairman of the successful Caldwell Junior High School Bond Committee. He was vice chairman of the Caldwell Memorial Hospital Foundation, and was a member of the Canyon County Emergency Care Advisory Council and the Idaho YMCA Youth Legislative Committee.

In August of 1973 he was honored by The Idaho Daily Statesman as a "Distinguished Citizen."

Small auto hazards cited

(C) Newhouse News Service, WASHINGTON. Some safety authorities warn that greater popularity of small cars, spurred by the energy crisis, could result in more serious injuries and fatalities. The increase in casualties might be as high as 25 percent, according to Donald P.

Mida, a researcher for the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA). He contends the toll could be kept at current levels if more motorists use seat belts.

Three non-government experts, including William Haddon Jr., former head of NHTSA, agree that small cars on the road present additional safety problems. They suggest, however, that sufficient crash protection can be afforded by enforcing rules that all cars be built without adding to their weight.

Jerome ambulance owner organizes rescue squad

JEROME — Efforts to organize a volunteer rescue squad are underway in Jerome.

Jerome ambulance owner Jerry Oster, manager of the Jerome Ambulance Service, told members of the Jerome County Comprehensive Planning Committee that he is trying to organize a volunteer rescue squad that could be used in any kind of emergency.

The squad would be comprised of members of the Jerome Police Department, rural and city fire departments and the sheriff's department, as well as other interested persons. These men would be trained in underwater rescue, excavation from the canyon, ground search and ambulance towing techniques, Oster said.

Oster said he plans to meet with the Jerome County commissioners in an effort to obtain some support in organizing the squad.

Within the next three weeks, members of the ambulance service are beginning to report on the canyon walls, Oster said. He noted that the men had received special instructions on the art of rappelling.

"We now need to practice what we have learned. We will be using a special Stokes basket and rescue an alleged victim from the canyon," Oster said.

Oster explained how the operation works and the number of improvements that have been made in the ambulance service for Jerome County.

"At the present time, we have eight trained emergency medical technicians that are qualified to assist an injured person at the scene of an accident. Two of the men are on 24 hour call at all times," Oster said.

He noted that since September, he has accepted over $1,200 worth of emergency equipment.

"This fall we will be participating in the statewide program of equipping ambulances with radios that will give us direct communication with hospital and the doctor," Oster said.

Bob Amureux, environmentalist for the South Central District Health Department, was also a guest speaker of the planning committee, which is presently evaluating public services and community facilities in Jerome County.

Amureux explained the operations of his department, noting that the environmental health section of the SCDD is directed at maintaining and improving the health aspects of the surroundings in which all individuals in our society live.

Amureux said his department makes regular sanitary inspection of public eating, drinking, food processing factories and dairies to see that rules, regulations and state laws being complied with to prevent disease transfer.

"We also inspect schools, make individual investigations of complaints regarding water supplies and pollution, investigate food poisoning episodes and inspect swimming pools, fountains and motels," he said.

He noted that this year there has been accelerated home building activities in all regions of the area and that 974 permits were issued during the last 12-month period for installation of septic disposal systems.

Because of the re-apportioning done recently by the courts you will be voting in Legislative District 22. I have served for two terms as State Representative from this district and am seeking re-election.

I have been a resident of Mountain Home for the past 28 years and have been a farm implement dealer for most of that time. I feel my dealings with rural and urban people while in business plus my experience in the State Legislature the past four years helps to qualify me to represent my district effectively and efficiently.

I will serve the newly acquired people in District 22 to the best of my ability and would be appreciative of your support in the forthcoming election.

Shoshone building remodeled

SHOSHONE — Work on remodeling the city building on West A Street began this week in preparation for improving the site and housing offices of the city fire and police departments.

City Councilman Frank Carothers, who is in charge of the work, said work this fall will prepare a place for two of the fire trucks. Eventually, the council hopes to purchase trucks for both fire and police departments; also in this building.

The city owns two fire trucks and the Wood River Fire District also owns two of its trucks in the Shoshone building near water tank. One of the city-owned trucks is at the water tank building location while one is located in the building presently used for the city hall on the south side of town.

Completion of the work in the former Dougherty building which the city purchased — there will be two trucks on the south side of town and two on the north side to provide service without such interference as a train on the track.

Carothers said the city expects to purchase a light weight fire truck, perhaps adding some remodeling and second-hand purchasing to do so. When the present remodeling project is done there will be space that can be used by the firemen to do some of the work.

Carothers said "there is a lot of talent in the fire crew and they are doing a fine job."

Player shoots for third major golf title

CELEBRATION: Can Gary Player make it three out of four?

We'll get the answer Aug. 11 after the final round of the 56th PGA Championship at the Bandon Dunes Golf Association Championship, the last of the big four classics which the little South African won in 1962 and 1972.

Johnny Miller, with five victories, has dominated the tour this year but Player, a 47-year-old Johannesburg rancher, has won two of the three big ones: The Masters in April and the British Open last month. He led or shared the lead for two rounds of the U.S. Open before blowing that one.

Had Player been able to keep the first two major titles in June, he would have joined the Tanglewood club with a chance of performing the Grand Slam in a single season, something which has defied all others through the years.

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus won the opening two legs in 1972: The Masters and U.S. Open, but lost the British to Lee Trevino and then saw Player take the PGA at Oakland Hills, Mich. The Open tumbled then but to wait until last year's PGA at Canterbury, Ohio, before he won his 14th major title to break a deadlock with the late Bobby Jones for the greatest number of major championships.

Although Nicklaus has won in excess of $29,000 this year, his season has been a failure in terms of personal achievement, his only tour victory coming in the winter at Hawaii. But Nicklaus, being Nicklaus, he'll not surrender.

his championship without a fight.

What if Player?

He has not been heard of since winning the British Open at wind-swept Royal Lytham last month. He headed home "to recharge the batteries," by delving into the administration of his ranch and to hit a few practice balls "in order to keep loose."

Mediculous preparation has been the key to Player's success this year; he also won the Danny Thomas Memphis during his brief tour appearance and he vowed before leaving Britain that he'd be looking for a hat-trick at the PGA.

"I might have won the U.S. Open," Player said without a trace of embarrassment after his victory at Lytham. "If ever a course was made for me, Winged Foot was. I absorbed the lead, but in the end I came down to preparation. I did not prepare as I should have."

Player eyed the Philadelphia club's success before the Open when it should have been at Winged Foot practice.

"I want to have you meet S. Open," Player said with a trace of embarrassment after his victory at Lytham. "If ever a course was made for me, Winged Foot was. I absorbed the lead, but in the end I came down to preparation. I did not prepare as I should have."

Napoles TKOs Lewis to keep ring title

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Aging champion Jose "Munitequilla" Napoles of Mexico retained his world-welterweight crown Saturday with a technical knockout over Hedgemon-Lewis in the ninth round of his scheduled 15-round bout in the Mexico City Sports Palace.

When the end came at 2:34 of the ninth round, the 31-year-old Napoles was ahead on points, 100-74 as scored by two judges and the referee.

Throughout most of the battle the only thing veteran making his 12th title defense took the initiative against the 29-year-old American much to the surprise of many ring forecassers.

With the start of the ninth round, Napoles—who had been a sloppily training clearly took command of the fight and began slamming punishing blows to the challenger from Los Angeles.

Lewis began to wobble and lose his balance and coordination and Napoles backed him into the ropes, with smacking lefts and rights.

As the American who just in a close decision at Los Anges in December of 1951 in his first bid to wrest the title from Napoles was obviously becoming almost defenseless, the referee stopped the fight, awarding a technical knockout to the champion.

Lewis inflicted a cut over Napoles' left brow but, thanks to the deft cornerwork of trainer Agneco Dundee, of Miami, Fla., it did not bleed. Dundee said after the TKO was announced that "Napoles won on more intelligence."

In the seventh round Lewis suddenly slipped, went to the canvas but immediately bounced up, surprised, but not hurt.

At that point, however, he had failed to display any of his expected advantage of speed and razzle-dazzle, and the "World" boxing Council president Ramon Velazquez, who watched from ringside, said "Lewis was very disappointing. He seemed to lack courage and Napoles' condition was surprisingly good."

The excited and very professional fans booed and shouted epithets at Lewis as he descended from the ring.

But Jack in his dressing room the stunned and still embittered Lewis told newsmen "I want another fight with Napoles as soon as possible. But there seemed little chance of a third bout.

Napoles, who first won the welterweight title from Curtis Cokes in 1950, lost it to Billy Backus in 1970, and then won it back from Backus in 1971.

"I'm ready to take on any other challenger any time," he said. He is a two-time champion Joe Frazier, who had predicted victory for Lewis was not ringside to cheer him. Afterwards he said:

"It was a good fight up to the time Hedgemon got caught in the ninth round. A puncher will always be a puncher and that's just what Napoles is. Hedgemon got caught with some shots he should have avoided. But we all go through the same process and once you get hit sometimes you can't shake it."

Napoles said Lewis "is a great boxer and was difficult as always to beat. The Mexican public had written me off before the fight, saying I was too old."

"They didn't know it but I started preparing a month before my public training."

Philadelphian club's success before the Open when it should have been at Winged Foot practice.

Confrontation at the plate

RUNNER Randy Vissia of Boise starts his slide away from the awaiting Idaho Falls catcher, Bruce Ross, during B Legion state action in Bull Friday. Idaho Falls dropped Boise 5-3 and Lewiston topped Bull 4-1.

Lewiston cops 'B' state title

MIKE BROENNING

Across two runs with a runner on base, Lewiston scored and then scored on an error in the top of the ninth to win the state 'B' title in the championship.

Idaho Falls ousted Lewiston in the eighth round of the state 'B' championship.

Idaho Falls was scheduled to play the ninth but the game was called off due to a single game in Lewiston.

Idaho Falls pitched these two with a hit and a walk, but the third, the pitcher threw straight into the field and he came in with the decisive run to wind up a perfect four-for-four night at the plate.

Earlier Ken Rhodes honored for Lewiston while Fair belted one for Idaho Falls.

The night was filled with errors, and particularly in the eighth, Idaho Falls committed seven errors, including a double play that had more than 17 runners stranded.

Friday night Lewiston's Greg Baugert fanned 10 and gave up only three hits, in dominating Bull 4-1. Earlier, Idaho Falls came from behind to beat the Boise Senators 5-3.

Baugert had himself in a little trouble throughout the game in allowing eight walks before a crowd of 45,339 spectators in the smallest in state history.

Steelers punture Saints 26-7

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Rookie quarterback Larry Coker punted the Saints' only score on a one-yard sweep in the second period.

New Orleans missed later scoring opportunities on short scoring attempts of 4 and 13 yards by free agent John Humphrey.

Third year man Joe Gilliam punted most of the way for Pittsburgh, completing 11 of 19 for 157 yards. Coker, who threw only 71 passes in his college career at Michigan, went all the way for New Orleans, hitting 16 of 25 for 65 yards.

Houston defeats Giants 16-7

HOUSTON (UPI) — Castrol NFL punter punter Billy Johnson and Willie Jackson, who brought Houston back from a 7-0 deficit.

A 20-yard field goal with 1:41 left in the game by Norvegian soccer-style kicker Phil Seaman led the victory.

New York rookie quarterback Carl Sumner threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Leonard Fautley in the right corner of the end zone midway through the second quarter for the Giants only score.

Later in the second period, however, Houston's 6-2, 216-pound Delaware Valley quarterback who joined the Oilers this fall after an in-successful punting tryout with the New York Jets, a year ago, went 10-0.

Lackluster through most of the first half, the Oilers scored, both touchdowns in the final 20 seconds before halftime and both scores came on drives starting in field territory.

With 1:55 left in the half, Jackson, a second-year man from Florida, returned a short punt 16 yards to the New York 32.

From there, Foote threw 23 yards to Johnson, 97-6 Jackson, and a 40-yard Davisto career, he hit the one from where he scored on third and goal.

umpire Jocko Conlan and Coach Papa Bell will step in the old Negro League's prior to 1947.

Ford was talking about the Hall of Fame, however. He was talking about the FBI Baseball Center Hall of Fame. Players named to the Hall of Fame must be super stars. It must also have a fan the good life. The ability to knock down a batter with a pop is just as important in being named to the Hall of Fame as the ability to pitch or hit. Hall of Famers include some of the greatest catchers in history. They had to be as much as anybody else. But they also knew when to laugh, to knock down a couple, and be ready for tomorrow's game.

Congress threatens state wildlife control

By JIM HUMBIRD of the Fish and Game Department

The authority of states to manage all resident game and fish within their borders... and to claim title to these renewable resources... is being challenged again by the federal government. This time it is in a bill just passed by the U. S. Senate. This is a fast-ditch amendment, it would have controlled all wildlife species within the borders of all federal lands.

To the basic generation of young American sportsmen, this came as a new and startling assumption of authority, having grown up with the long-range theory that all resident game belongs to the state where it is found. This issue has a long history of contention going back a half-century.

This latest bill challenges states' rights to manage fish and wildlife... and a provision requiring a federal stamp for fishing, hunting and trapping on all Bureau of Land Management, U. S. Forest Service and other federal lands. This provision was modified when a key amendment to strengthen the position of western states to manage wildlife was tacked onto the bill. It was passed without a dissenting vote and sent on to the House of Representatives. The amendment saved the day for the states... "The amendment saved the day for the states... it is only temporary" according to Idaho Senator James A. McClure. We must be keenly aware of any other efforts to destroy wildlife management as we know it and minor efforts to ultimately end hunting. We must keep our powder dry. It earned in a release from Washington, D. C. "The original bill would have been devastating to hunting and fishing rights enjoyed by western states."

The late Eric Swift, former director of the National Wildlife Federation, wrote that this challenge goes back to the depression years and Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace. In a series of regulations, he established seasons and bag limits on the national forests, issued permits for hunting, and charged for them under the one-time fangs and order (GSA).

Secretary Wallace's order threatening the rights of the several states to manage their resident game made the International Association of Fish, Game and Conservation Commissioners grow up overnight. Under the leadership of Scott Gordon, then director of the Pennsylvania Game Commission and president of the International, the states gave Secretary Wallace such a rough time that he beat a hasty, and not too dignified, retreat.

The present director of the National Wildlife Federation, Thomas L. Kimball, declares: "The federal government's claim for jurisdiction over resident game and fish prevails, then private landowners could conceivably claim a similar right. Such a doctrine could lead to complete chaos and confusion in the protection, management and restoration of America's fish and wildlife resources."

Both resident and migratory wildlife species are involved. Ultimately, the management of migratory species of wildlife which cross state and even international boundaries, come to the federal government under a series of treaties between the United States and foreign countries.

For example, a convention to protect the fur seal on the high seas was called in 1911 and a treaty was signed by the United States, Great Britain, Japan and Russia. Similar treaties have followed, some of them rather recently, to provide protection for whales, halibut, salmon and other deep sea life. An early U. S. Supreme Court case - Lacoste vs. Department of Conservation of the State of Louisiana, states: "The right of ownership, and in the exercise of police powers, a state may regulate the taking of wild animals within its borders, their subsequent use and the property rights that may be acquired in them."

One early attempt by the federal government to control wildlife within state boundaries was the passage of the Meeks-McLean Act of 1913. It declared: "All migratory game and insectivorous birds to be within the custody and protection of the government of the United States," forbidding their destruction or capture, contrary to regulations prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture. This act was declared unconstitutional by the U. S. Supreme Court as an invasion of the right of the states.

The Convention of 1916 between the United States and Great Britain provided for the protection in the US and Canada of migratory game birds, migratory insectivorous and migratory nongame birds. This treaty was carried out as in the case of oceanic fishing under the powers of the US Constitution. Legislation under this treaty was passed and signed in 1916 providing for the protection of all migratory birds covered by the Convention. A similar treaty with Mexico was not signed until 1925.

Another noteworthy case involved the killing of deer by the Forest Service on the Grand Canyon National Game Preserve, an overlay of the Klappan National Forest in northern Arizona. This case (Hunt vs. United States, 1927) preserved the integrity of the state in the general management of game, the issuance of hunting licenses and related matters. The issuer was the destruction of natural reproduction and forage plants as well as thousands of deer dying from insufficient forage. Deer were ordered killed by the Secretary of Agriculture, and Arizona officials threatened arrest and persecution to anyone killing, possessing or transporting deer. Three persons were arrested and the lower court found in favor of the federal government. On appeal, the US Supreme Court ruled that the US Forest Service could protect its own property from destructive overhunting by deer.

Ward powers Twin Falls to Legion title

Curtis Ward thundered out two banners worth their weight in gold on Friday night to propel Twin Falls past Minico 4-1 and into the district championship. Ward captured the first, and third innings in Twin Falls took the title in two straight after losing two decisions to Minuslan the season.

Twin Falls must get on the road almost immediately since the state playoffs open in Lewiston Tuesday and all teams are required to be there by Monday night.

"We got some decent pitching and the boys hit the ball better, particularly tonight," Coach Paul Epperson summed up the tournament.

Minico Coach John Astorquia took the loss philosophically.

"All but three of them will be back next year," he said. Coach Astorquia felt his club's chance to get back into the game died when two of his players wound up on first base.

But he couldn't blame anyone. "We had runners on first and second and our pitcher hit the hole between shortstop and third," he explained. "The summer in first base could see the ball was going through the hole and we were not aware of exactly what we always tell them make sure it goes through that hole and the runner for second came to third and then here comes the guy from first. That was the end of it," he said.

In the sixth when Bruce Bird lived on a fielder's choice and Roy Kirk followed with a base hit, Bob Jackson, just out of a cast due to a broken knee in the hand, belted a double to plate both runners.

Minico challenged to get back into the game in the ninth inning when Tom Christ lived on an error and scored on a Dietz single. A couple of walks loaded the bases before Miller finally shut the rally off.

From all angles

A new twist to the old game has been brought to our attention - and probably should be explained some to nephews in the game.

The word around here is some young boys of Pony League age, that's just a step older than Little League, are getting some high sounding praise through the mail.

So far there have been reports of three youngsters hereabouts getting All-American Pony League selection.

Now for the rub. For $15 you can reserve a copy of the 1974 All-American Pony League yearbook. Fill out the enclosed form and risk it back along with a check or money order.

This allows a format that has bargained in high school football and basketball the past five or six years.

Generally speaking the thing works like this. Someone gets hold of the list of coaches who have teams. Teams request a Yearbook and the coaches distribute it. They then send hundreds of nominating ballots to coaches, sports writers, casters, etc. Anyone who might have the time and knowledge to nominate one or two - or more -

By Larry Hovey

These individuals then get the congratulations, who have been selected. In addition with the return form to list your credentials and obituary type information, plus the $15 to reserve a copy of the book.

Now, the book indeed is printed and mailed out. It isn't a bad book, it's bang and all. But it will contain something like 10,000 individuals who have been named All-American.

Multiply that times $15, cut it in half for printing and mailing costs and tell me if someone isn't profiting on someone's ego a little.

We've heard it argued that one out of 10,000 in the entire nation isn't bad, considering the huge number of boys playing. But we always ask, what about the other 10,000 who didn't respond?

We're not knocking the thing, per se. If you want your name in a book that's up to you. But we can tell you that last fall we received notification that 27 "Major Valley" not-buffers were named to this "All-American" and 11 basketballers.

Since we've been concerned with the thing for several years, we had a little check-up. We mailed one book for No. 1 son, Eric Hovey, to All-American basketball.

In about 10 days, Eric received a letter stating "Congratulations, you have been nominated for All-American honors by Larry Hovey, Twin Falls."

When All-American honors come to boys and girls, they come free. But you can be your own judge.

Hill putts poorly but holds meet lead

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Dave Hill, putting "like an angel" on a 71-yard hole, even put a 27-foot putt on a two-stroke lead after 54 holes of the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

Tom Weiskopf, struggling off the tee, also managed a 71 while Jim Wiechers had the day's best round, a 67, as both finished at 207. Hill was at 205.

Victor Regalino, the two-time Mexican Masters and reigning Mexican PGA champion, shot a 69 to hold fourth position, four strokes back at 203.

Hill—who's along — with Weiskopf had a scenic recital, tying 64 Friday, and leading from inside 15 feet on nine different holes, but converted just one, from 12 feet on the second hole. His only other bird came on a 25-footer on the seventh hole.

"All I can do (Sunday) is just guide—the ball better," said Hill, winner of this year's Houston Open Masters, and hitting my iron real well. I've had a million chances from inside 15 feet and missed.

"I putted like an absolute dweeb," Hill said.

Weiskopf hit only six fairways off the tee but saved himself time and again with irons right on the pin and putts ranging from 10 to 30 feet for pars.

"I putted much better today, but my drives mostly went to the left," said Weiskopf, who could surpass 31 million in career earnings by taking the

Fishing hints: By Swen Using weight when fly fishing

On those occasions when weight is desirable while using a fly, here are a couple of tips.

Use small clamp on sinkers spaced from 6 to 8 inches apart. This will keep you from snagging the bottom as you may do with one larger sinker.

Adding weight into the body of the fly is one solution to those who use a weighted fly. The best method I have heard is to incorporate it while tying the fly.

Method: Use line lead wire (purchased at bait tackle shops in the spool, much like ladder spoils). Cut channils used to tie fly and line lead wire the same length. Using your fly tying vice clamp the ends together. Place the other end in a hand drill or variable drill on very slow speed. Turn the drill and the channils will wind around the lead wire.

This will make a leader fly and will stay tied, longer than adding the lead by itself to the shank of the hook. It will be easy to see when you are using it, as it will be a bud of garlic in half and rubbing on the exposed arms and ankles. It helps.

Fishing Reports: Those who took my suggestion last week: Bob and the other one in a hand drill or variable drill on very slow speed. Turn the drill and the channils will wind around the lead wire.

Boise State rates Big Sky nod

BOISE (UPI) — The Boise State University football team barely edged out Montana State in a preseason polling for the Big Sky Conference championship. It was announced Saturday.

The Broncos were chosen by Big Sky coaches attending a conference meeting here to repeat their league-leading performance of last season.

The University of Idaho was picked to finish third, followed by the University of Montana, Idaho State and Northern Arizona. Share the fifth spot with Weber State, which is an experienced offensive line.

A free-wheeling passing attack will be featured with an offense which Boise coach Tony Stup said will challenge the defense all over the field.

But Knapp expressed some concern over his offensive line, saying it is "the big question mark."

Montana State coach Samy Montana pointed out that coaches were wrong last year in their selection of the number one team and they could be wrong again.

Holland mentioned his defense as equal with eight of

Cleveland edges Milwaukee 7-6

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — George Hendrick hit two home runs and Charlie Spikes and Oscar Gamble also appeared but it was Frank Duffy's tie-breaking two-run single Saturday that enabled the Cleveland Indians to beat Milwaukee 7-6 and send the Brewers down to their fourth straight loss.

With the score tied 5-5 and two outs in the sixth, Cleveland's Duffy reached base on third baseman Don Money's second error of the season. Duffy's walk to John Lovestrom hooked the bases and brought on Eduardo Rodriguez in relief of Brewer starter Jim Colborn. Duffy drove in Rodriguez with a sharp single to left field in left field and scored.

Yankees romp past Boston

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pat Peterson looked a superb pitcher Saturday, leading the Yankees to a 10-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Almon's John Hoenes pitched the second inning off Boston starter and loser Roger Mulcahy. 2-1 Bill Stankovic, a walk to Lou Piniella, hit a home run and had the bases with one out. Almon cleared the bases with a line shot to the wall in right center.

Oriole power sinks Tigers

DETROIT (UPI) — Tommy Davis and Don Baylor each hit a two-run home run off Mickey Taylor in the third inning Saturday and the Baltimore Orioles coasted to a nationally televised 6-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The home runs were the seventh of the season for each and it must have been a lucky number because Earl Williams tagged Lolich for his seventh to start the fourth inning.

Cards drop Bears 10-7 in exhibition

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — Scott Anderson and Lou Leta got was the margin of victory for the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday in a 10-7 exhibition over the Chicago Bears before 12,000 fans at a national football game exhibition center in the University of Illinois stadium.

The game went on despite picketing outside the stadium by striking Bears players and six striking Cardinals players plus the wives of four of the Cardinals before the game. Shortly after play began, they left.

But the Bears' player representative, Mac Trevino, collected 17 hits, including an off-liner Jim Kaut. Kaut was tagged with his eighth loss against 12 wins.

Twixt takes Susquehanna

PHILADELPHIA — Mrs. John M. Franklin's favored Twixt raced to a three-quarter length victory in the sixth running of the Susquehanna Handicap of Liberty Bell Saturday.

The five-year-old daughter of Restless Native was ridden by Bill Pastore and raced the mile and a sixteenth in 1:41.52, earning $32,550 from a purse of $51,250. She paid $4.80-2.80 and $2.40 and carried high weight of 127 pounds.

Harold J. Sneider's Kristin was second in the field of six fillies and mares, three lengths behind Barbara Hunter's Dogtooth Violet. Kristin returned $140 and $220, while Dogtooth Violet was worth $240 to show.

Twixt, who was giving form five to 13 points to her rivals in this edition of the Susquehanna, gained revenge for a year ago, when she finished second to the Susan's Girl.

Angels slip past Royals

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Lee Skafon hammered a two-out, two-run double in the third inning and rookie Bruce Buckner scored two and drove in a run Saturday, hitting the California Angels 6-4 in a victory over the Kansas City Royals behind the seventh-inning pitch of Nolan Ryan.

Redskins fall to Patriots

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The stadium more than two thirds empty and with a pair of green tees flapping on the field way for the second half kicked the New England Patriots defeated the Washington Redskins 21-6 in a pre-season game that drew the attention of thousands of rookie Skip Lynch.

The first game on both teams exhibiting ineptness consisting almost entirely of "rookies" and three starters because of the players' strike, drew a gate of only 16,000 and paid customers, less than one-third of the original 53,774 stadium capacity. The official attendance count was probably even less.

It was the smallest crowd ever drawn by the Redskins since they began playing in Robert F. Kennedy stadium in 1961. Prior to the game, 5,300 fans turned in their tickets for refunds this week.

At least 35 Redskins veterans joined by striking players from Boston-Philadelphia and New York, picked the stadium as the meager crowd showed up.

U.S. women clinch Curtis Cup win

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mrs. Jane Booth, a 26-year-old Whittier, Calif.-school teacher, led the United States to its eighth consecutive Curtis Cup golf triumph Saturday, beating the British 1-5, and matching the largest margin of victory in the history of the matches.

Mrs. Booth's figures performed America's winning points as she teamed with veteran Ann Quast Sander, 36, for two four-hole bogeys and a dropped putt two English foes in singles matches.

Contributing to the victory was Mrs. Booth's steady golf plus that of Mrs. Sander, who played in two team and one singles victory, and Debbie Massey, who won both her singles matches Friday and Saturday.

District 24 Republican

Mrs. Sander, making her seventh appearance in a Curtis Cup match, teamed with Mrs. Booth to win a pair of team matches and then shut out par 308 Saturday on the tough San Francisco club course to turn back Mary Everard of Great Britain.

Cardinals edge Phillies, cop division lead

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Dyke McBride singled home Lou Brock in the ninth inning Saturday night to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-3 win over the Philadelphia Phillies and sole possession of first place in the National League East.

With the Cardinals trailing 3-2, Jerry Davidson walked to lead off the ninth inning. Pincatcher Luis Melendez sacrificed Davidson to second and Brock singled him home. Brock then stole second for his second theft of the game and his 50th of the year. He moved to third on Ted Stuyveser's groundout and scored on McBride's sacrifice.

Jim Lonborg, facing the Cardinals for the second time in a week after not pitching against them since 1967 World Series, allowed nine hits, including McBride's game-winning, Lonborg's season.

Cubs outlast Pirates 4-3

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Bill Madock collected four hits and drove in two runs Saturday to lead the Chicago Cubs to a 4-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

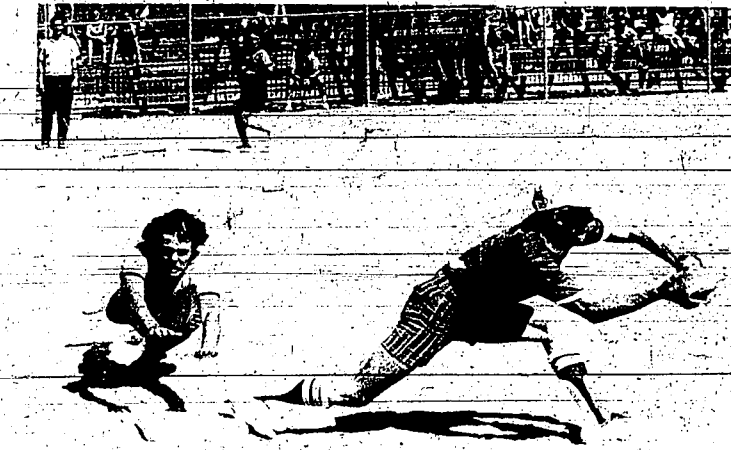

Cub starter Rick Henscher, who lasted seven innings, gained his 11th victory against eight losses while Jerry Reuss, 10-9, suffered the defeat.

Madock gave the Cubs a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning with two-run single following two walks and Jerry Morales' single. Henscher tripled and scored on Dave Parker's single for a Parade run in the same inning.

Dodgers win sixth straight

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Willie Crawford and Von Joshua slamin' first inning homers to knock in all of Los Angeles' runs and Andy Messersmith pitched merrily for his seventh straight win Saturday night as the Dodgers beat the Houston Astros 5-1.

The triumph was the sixth straight for the National League West leaders and improved their lead over the San Francisco Giants to six games. Messersmith, headlined a rotation on double and single by Cesar Cedeno through the eighth and led off with a home run. Von Joshua pitched in the eighth inning, and Messersmith had two out in the ninth.

In the toughest game of the tournament, Saturday afternoon, Mulvane's had to give up a home run to Kelly Kelly. The teams were seniors over six innings. Ford Transfer eliminated Depot Grill.

In the morning games, Gray, Really defeated Dick Wolf's 3-2. Mulvane's ousted Elk Horn. Ford Transfer and Depot Grill defeated Ace Hansen.

The battle for the fourth spot in state was hotly contested and Snake River was ahead most of the time over Ford Transfer. Mike Meloy made a leaping catch to keep Snake River one up in the fifth inning.

But in the sixth, Dean Krizan plated the winning tally with a single through the hole between third and shortstop. Ford won 4-1.

Mets blank Expos 3-0

MONTREAL (UPI) — Wayne Garrett clouted his ninth home run of the season. Clean Jones drove in two runs and Don Mullack threw two scoreless innings Saturday night as the New York Mets blanked the Montreal Expos 3-0.

Garrett's homer in the fourth inning gave the Mets a 2-0 lead. Bud Harrelson led off the game with a single and went to second on Felix Millan's sacrifice. A single by pitcher Steve Garza put the Mets on the first New York run.

Miss Torvall sets record

MISSOULA, MONT. (UPI) — American swimmer Jenny Torvall clipped 1.52 seconds off her own world's record in the 1500-meter freestyle Saturday with a winning time of 16:29.29 in the Los Angeles Invitational swim meet.

Defeating her American rival Shirley Babington for the second time in the meet, the 17-year-old Miss Torvall beat her own 1973 mark of 16:41.2. She had predicted she would break her record "by at least 10 seconds."

Giants power past Braves

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Home runs by Chris Speier and Dave Rader led the San Francisco Giants to a 3-1 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday afternoon.

Both home runs came off losing pitcher Buzz Capra, now 10-6 for the season. Speier's homer, his fourth of the season, broke a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning.

Barker goes Hawaiian

HONOLULU (UPI) — Tommy Barker, the 7-foot Junior College All-American from the College of Southern Idaho, will play for the University of Hawaii Rainbows this coming season.

It was believed that North Carolina State's NCAA champions had Barker signed.

But Barker was scheduled to arrive here this weekend to enroll at U.H. where he'll have two seasons of eligibility.

Basketball coach Bruce O'Neil said: "We never did pressure him, but I've told him all along that I'd save a scholarship for him right up until the day school starts."

O'Neil said: "This caps the longest recruiting battle over for me."

"We expect him to do great things for the university and the state," O'Neil said. "He's our first legitimate 7-footer."

Bengals drop Miami

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Horst Muhlmann kicked four field goals and Wayne Clark fired a 12-yard touchdown pass to route Richard Williams to pace the Cincinnati Bengals to a 19-13 victory over the Miami Dolphins in the pre-season opener for both teams here Saturday night.

There were no pickets on hand from the striking NFL Players Association and the game was played before 32,839 fans in 52,000-seat Riverfront Stadium.

Muhlmann booted field goals of 45, 30, and two from 23 yards to help offset two long scoring drives that Miami rookies Ken Polk and Nat Moore teamed upon.

Polk, a first-year quarterback from the nearby University of Dayton, opened on touchdown passes of 73 and 67 yards in Moore's spectacular performance.

Muhlmann's third field goal of the game, a 23-yarder, broke a 13-13 deadlock late in the third quarter and another 23-yarder with 8:52 left in the game provided the final margin.

Miami, with such stars as Larry Csonka, Paul Warfield and Bob Griese out on strike, hardly resembled the team that won the Super Bowl last season.

TF prosecutor race shapes up

TWIN FALLS — Incumbent Twin Falls County Prosec. Atty. Robert Galley is being challenged in Tuesday's primary by Twin Falls attorney William Holtfield. Voters will have to choose between Galley and Holtfield on the Republican ballot to determine who will run against attorney Leonard Ettinger, who is unopposed on the Democratic ticket in the November general election.

Galley was out of town late this week but in earlier statements he told the Times-News: "I believe in being fair but firm in enforcing the law." His first concern, he said, was the protection of the rights of law-abiding citizens of Twin Falls County.

"I have made the prosecuting attorney's office my career and have dedicated my efforts to good law enforcement. I have gained valuable knowledge by actual experience and by upgrading through attending various schools offered to prosecuting attorneys," he said.

He said he had cooperated fully with the law enforcement people and, as a result, has received some criticism by those who feel laws should not be enforced.

Galley, 45, is completing his second term as prosecuting attorney. He served as deputy prosecutor under three previous prosecutors.

Holtfield said Friday that a tough and effective prosecuting attorney is the most important element in the prevention of crime." As prosecutor, he said, he would "provide complete and fair prosecution of each case in order to make crime unprofitable in Twin Falls County."

Holtfield cited a need in the county for "a revision and improvement of the procedures in the prosecutor's office in order to handle effectively the increasing number of criminal cases."

"Twin Falls County residents should be educated about crime prevention," he said, and "direct, open and continuous communication" should exist between the prosecutor and other county officials.

Ettinger said Thursday that "one of the big problems that isn't being tackled now is rehabilitation of juveniles." He charged that there was no "workable active program of counseling" which could keep first time offenders from being jailed again.

"The prosecuting attorney should play a central role, along with probation officials, police, judges, parents and concerned citizens, in creating an effective juvenile program," he said.

"Galley and the prosecutor's office at this time isn't interested," he said. Galley "can't work with anybody."

"As far as Holtfield is concerned, he just hasn't said anything," Ettinger said. Obtaining convictions "doesn't necessarily benefit the person that is being charged with the crime or the community," he said.

Republican candidate scores big government

SUN VALLEY — Hope Kading, candidate for the Republican nomination for Idaho lieutenant governor, criticized federal involvement in education when addressing the State Conference of School Administrators here.

She said, "We might as well face the fact. Whether it is Idaho or any other state, educators cannot turn a wheel without the involvement of state and federal government."

Mrs. Kading told the education leaders of Idaho the role of the Education Commission of the States, of which she is national vice chairman is vital in transmitting dialogue between political leaders and educational leaders at all levels of government.

She said frequently the federal government fails to understand problems involved in implementing federal laws at the state level. The commission, she said, has played a key role in representing the problems of the states to the federal officials.

High mountain lakes now open for summer

TWIN FALLS — Most major high elevation lakes are now open as the snow line has moved up to between 8,700 and 9,000 feet elevation, the Sawtooth National Forest campgrounds report for this week.

Stock use over snow covered passes is still prohibited and there are a number of such passes in high mountain regions, officials say.

Persons planning to take pack or saddle horses into these areas, are asked to contact the Stanley Ranger Station or the Sawtooth Valley work center for information on trails open to horse travel.

Four GOP candidates vying for two house seats in District 24

TWIN FALLS Four Republican candidates, not opposed by even a single Democrat, are vying for the two Idaho House seats from legislative district 24.

The primary vote Tuesday will probably predict the final election outcome, although Democratic party officials can appoint candidates after the primary.

Competing for the seats to represent the western portion of Twin Falls County are incumbent William Roberts, Herb Noe, Frank Brackett and Mrs. Betty Hoppe, both Twin Falls, and Lawrence Knigge, Ellettsville.

The speaker of the House, William J. Lindberg, is referring this term, leaving one incumbent's position vacant.

Roberts, who commented the campaign has been quiet, said some of the main concerns of people he has talked with have been "getting our water resources developed and our land developed along with it."

He said he is concerned with the progress of the replacement of the American Falls Dam. In his past terms in the legislature, Roberts said he worked to pass legislation in preparation for the land issue. Replacement of the dam is vital to this area, Roberts said.

Without it, we're not going to have southern Idaho as we know it.

Another essential step in developing water resources is completion of the State Water Use Plan, Roberts said.

A principal step in keeping Idaho's water in Idaho is presenting clearly defined plans for the use of the water.

Roberts favors "looking up the water resources board with additional funds for the water development revolving fund so additional loans can be made for the development of small irrigation projects, and progress can be made toward complete use of water resources."

Land-use planning is another need the state faces, Roberts said, but he said "each local area can best decide for themselves" in the area of planning. "That's where land planning should be," Roberts said.

Another major concern is to "keep state agency spending within the limits of the revenue that comes into the state each year," Roberts said.

Roberts said he advocated imposing a "spending lid within the limits of what the present tax structure is bringing in."

Noe Brackett, running for office for the first time, mentioned the importance of moving toward replacement of the American Falls Dam. "He said he favored cutting the red tape and removing roadblocks in the way of replacement."

"Every year we wait, the cost of rebuilding the dam, just from inflation alone, will be several million dollars more," Brackett said.

Brackett, who classifies himself as "moderately conservative," said he advocated using "better business management than has been used in the past. I feel government should be run as a business."

Governmental spending should be held at a level where it doesn't exceed the present revenue level, Brackett said.

"Taxes are high enough," he added.

Brackett said he favored land-use planning but felt "the ultimate decision should be made by local people on a local basis." The state should offer ideas and services but not have the final say.

Welfare is another area where local control is needed, Brackett said. Those persons who do not work would probably "aren't getting enough when you consider inflation."

Brackett said "with local control and access to the welfare rules permitted to local officials, people who don't need welfare could be taken off the rolls, Brackett said, cutting down the numbers on welfare."

"Local people have a better idea of the needs of the people," Brackett said. "These decisions are made, they have something to hide and don't need to be ashamed of getting it," he said. But those who won't work should be given work to earn their welfare, he added.

Mrs. Betty Hoppe said "most of the people I've talked to in the campaign are women and they're concerned about women and jobs."

Groups of special interest to her, Mrs. Hoppe said, are women and senior citizens, and she plans to focus special effort of solving the problems these persons face.

"People are concerned about what's going to happen to our land," Mrs. Hoppe said. Land-use planning should be done at the local level, she emphasized, with the state providing information and help when needed and when asked for.

Some protection for special areas, such as forest, fossil areas, should come from the state level, Mrs. Hoppe said.

"There are some areas of protection that should have to come through the state," she said.

During her campaign, Mrs. Hoppe said she has encountered a great concern about water. "People are disappointed and saddened . . . they are disillusioned about it, and some are outraged, but almost all comment on it," she said.

Mrs. Hoppe said she felt the county was facing a period of "very painful transition, but out of it will come a more honest government."

Mrs. Hoppe emphasized that Twin Falls County has been represented for much of its history by men. "Half of these people in the county are women," she said. "It will be interesting to see if the women want to be represented as women by women."

Lawrence Knigge mentioned land-use planning as a major concern of people in this area. He commented that Twin Falls was making a commendable effort "where they are trying to involve all of the local citizens wherever possible."

Any planning should "absolutely" be done on the local level, Knigge said, with the state assisting local officials.

There is a need felt for the planning, he said. "The people around this area who have traveled out of state and seen unrestricted growth in other areas sort of think this might happen here . . . they want to take a long hard look at it."

Knigge said another major problem is "the rapidly escalating cost of everything to everyone." As "a combative measure, Knigge said he would encourage improvements of present programs in the state before starting new ones."

He mentioned the "elderly people on fixed incomes" are particularly concerned about this situation of constantly rising costs.

Knigge said people "feel Idaho's water should be used in Idaho." He said he would work to promote legislation that would permit the state to use the water.

"There is a lot of desert area that still needs irrigation water placed on it," Knigge said. "If we would use the water first, perhaps other states wouldn't have a chance to get it," he said.

new chief

Lemhi officer new Salmon chief

SALMON — Jed Wilson has resigned as Lemhi County deputy sheriff to take the position of chief of police for the city of Salmon.

Mayor Don Vial said the City Council is expected to make Wilson the new chief at its Monday night meeting at city hall.

Wilson said that last Monday was his last day at the sheriff's office.

As to his reasons for resigning, he said: "Salary may have been a factor but not a major one. Selling 'driver's licenses' doesn't offer much of a challenge."

Wilson is expected to take over as chief of police Aug. 15. He had been a deputy sheriff since March 9, 1970.

Meanwhile, Charles Kane is expected to be named as Lemhi County Commissioner from Lemhi, had met with Sheriff Baker concerning a job, at an unofficial meeting at the courthouse July 27.

Kane said that Sheriff Baker demanded a $40 a month raise in the form of a subsistence payment for both himself and his deputy.

"He told us at the meeting he was not going to hire another deputy at the mental wage being paid and when someone asked if he had a deadline for his request to be met said yes. He gave the commission until the next meeting Aug. 12 or he would resign," Kane said.

Some 30 persons attended the meeting.

Women charged in Irish death

BELEAST (UPI) — Police Friday charged 11 Protestant women, including two 18-year-old girls, and one man in connection with the torture slaying of a 31-year-old Protestant woman in Belfast.

Police accused four of the women and the man of killing Miss Anne O'Dilly to death with nail-studded clubs. The others were accused of intimidating her before she was killed.

Police sources said they believed Miss O'Dilly was killed because she refused to break off a love affair with a militant Protestant leader who was married.

Her battered body was found lying beside a Belfast road on Monday, but a coroner said she had been killed two days earlier.

The court appearance of the 12 came as violence among the majority Protestant and minority Roman Catholic communities and the security forces continued at a low ebb.

The last reported incident was a small bomb explosion outside a village pub in County Londonderry Thursday night, an army spokesman said. It caused no casualties and only very minor damage.

Strife involving Northern Ireland's two religious communities and the security forces has caused 651 deaths in the past five years.

Hopetuck asks voter turnout

TUTTLE — "One of the greatest continuing threats to our Representative form of government," according to Vern Ravenscroft, a Republican candidate for Lt. Governor, "is an election which draws only a small percentage of the voters."

A good turnout Tuesday, August 6th, will guarantee that "truly representative" candidates will be on the ballot in November, he said.

Nevada coyote pack grows bolder

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada sheepmen are reporting growing packs of coyotes attacking their flocks despite a stepped-up effort by air and ground to protect the lambs.

"It's the worst—it's ever been," complains Paul Inchausti of Austin who has been in business 20 years and now has about 1,000 head.

Raymond (Dutch) and Pete Jordan, brothers who have been in the sheep business since 1921, report there are more coyotes now than in the past. And they are traveling in packs instead of alone.

Others back the statements, that the coyotes are becoming a growing menace.

In some areas of Elko and White Pine counties, the problem is approaching emergency conditions, according to Joseph Miner, head of predator control for the US Bureau of Fish and Wildlife.

Sheepmen have in the past paid 20 cents a head to help keep down the population of coyotes. The problem became so bad that in 1973 the Nevada Legislature appropriated an extra $300,000 a year for killing coyotes.

But most sheepmen aren't satisfied with the results. Several years ago, President Nixon banned the use of poison to kill the coyote. Now federal and state officials use traps and airplanes.

Last year Miner reported more than 1,000 coyotes killed. But sheepmen complain the coyotes are multiplying faster than they are dying, with an average litter of seven to 10 pups.

Jesse Galochecha of Elko who has a flock of 7,000, says aerial killing from planes and helicopters "is helping some but not as much as we would like." He estimates his losses at 10-15 per cent and says my more could put his operation in the red.

The Jordan brothers, who have a 14,000 acre spread in Western Nevada, probably report the loss. Lack in keeping losses down. They have hired two extra men to keep watch on the flocks which are gathered in at night rather than being allowed to roam free seeking forage as in the past.

In previous years they lost some 20 per cent but have reduced that to about five per cent this year. But they say this method results in longer periods of time for the sheep to fatten for market.

They attribute the reduction in losses to the better men they hired, rather than the aerial hunting. The coyotes are able to hide in the bushes and rocks from the planes. And it is these coyotes who are "the bad ones," according to the Jordans.

"There is no animal smarter than a coyote," says "Dutch" Jordan, who figures it will be the last animal alive on earth because of its wit.

Even though 1,000 coyotes were killed last year, the Jordans say that doesn't solve the problem.

Gem unit reorganizes

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Agriculture, officially reorganized Thursday — one month later than the date decreed by the lawmakers for reorganization.

Under the new plan, the department has been molded into four divisions with administrative chief, a reduction from the ten that had existed prior to the reorganization effort.

Wilson Kellogg, director of the agriculture department, said the changeover has been an orderly one, with the key factor to the smooth change being the internal reorganization put into effect by the department itself, on July 1 of last year.

TF soil survey program proceeding, aide says

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County accelerated soil survey program is well under way, according to Gary Muekel, soil survey party leader for the Soil Conservation Service.

Two soil scientists, William Hertz and Robin Winkler, reported for work in Twin Falls County this week.

These men hired by the State Soil Conservation Commission are working in the Soil Conservation District office. They are being trained and supervised by Gary Muekel.

Twin Falls County is benefiting from Idaho's accelerated soil survey program. Six soil scientists and trainees have been hired since July 1.

Four more are being recruited. Initially, these state-hired soil scientists will be stationed at seven training locations.

The 1974 legislative appropriation of $14,700 to the Soil Conservation Commission to speed up soil surveys in the state. Efficiency through cooperation of state, federal and county agencies is the main goal, said Alvin Benson, chairman of the State Soil Conservation Commission in a report to the commission at its meeting in Helena, Wednesday.

Under this new program all private and state lands will be surveyed in about 12 years. Areas of highest priority like Twin Falls County will be completed in two to five years.

Benson added that completed soil surveys are helping landowners plan the best use and management of their soils. Farmers and ranchers, the traditional users of soil surveys, are now being joined by city and county planning officials in requesting soil surveys.

Soil maps are becoming important tools in planning residential and other developments. In those counties where soil surveys have been completed, assessors are using soils information to help them make more equitable evaluations of agricultural and forest lands.

Honors planned

KIMBERLY (UPI) — The Sprinkler Irrigation Association will honor Claude H. Fair and the U.S. Agricultural Research Service in ceremonies at Kimberly Aug. 23.

The association will present an award of recognition to Fair, who is planning to retire after more than 40 years of service to agriculture.

Fair has served as research engineer and agricultural engineer at the center since 1934. The association president, John Stevens of Eugene, Ore., said the award is the first of its kind in the association's history.

Analysis discussed

GARY CUSTER, Superintendent of the livestock feeds display at the Twin Falls County Fair, discusses grain analysis with several area farmers. This is the second year this display will be available to farmers in the area. Those interested may bring in baled hay and grains for analysis.

Stock feed sampling display draws interest

By MARJORIE LIERMAN, Times-News writer

FILER — Last year at the Twin Falls County Fair a livestock feed sampling and analysis display proved interesting and beneficial to area farmers.

Gary Custer, Twin Falls, was on hand to explain to farmers how the baled hay and grains had been judged for nutrient content. Several of the farmers had brought samples for analysis before fair time.

Farmers will be glad to hear that this livestock feeds display will be a prominent part again of this year's fair Sept. 4-7. Dale Stukenholz, Agriculture Consultant in Twin Falls, will serve as judge for the competition and questions in charge of the display.

Samples must be entered and presented for sampling at the produce building on the fairgrounds between 9 a.m. and noon, Aug. 31. Analysis of feeds will be done by the Agriculture Testing and Consultants Inc.

Visual judging of baled hay and high moisture grain will help to determine final placing. Judging will be held at 2 p.m. Sept. 4 in the produce building.

Grading on visual evaluation will be based on freedom of foreign matters, weeds, chaff and the like, leafage and green color of alfalfa, color of leaf to stem, and pleasing odor.

Prizes in three places will be awarded for baled alfalfa hay, high-moisture grain and alfalfa haylage.

The hay shall be one bale with the center slice of alfalfa cut to stem, and pleasing odor.

Prizes in three places will be awarded for baled alfalfa hay, high-moisture grain and alfalfa haylage.

Three special awards will be presented in the department — cash awards for first and second place high moisture grain and first and second place cash awards for baled hay.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Time was when any witness in a courtroom could be sued later for "meddling in litigation." Usually sued, of course, by the party against whom said witness testified. Such proceedings wouldn't hold, however, if the testimony were given under compulsion. That's how that legal writ called the subpoena came to be. It commanded the witness to appear in court under penalty. So protected that witness from subsequent lawsuit.

Q. "WHO'S boss in the gorilla family, the male or the female?"

A. An old male, always. Gorillas live in a tribe. Leader is a silverback, a gorilla whose back hair has whitened with age. The younger males, called blackbacks, stand guard.

THE HARD FACTS

Only one out of every five murder victims is killed by a stranger. . . MORE THAN a third of this world's inventions have been created in the United States. . . HEAVIEST elephant tusk to come along so far remains intact in the British Museum at 226 1/2 pounds. . . SURVEYS show more than 35 per cent of the farmer's wives in Iowa work in the fields. . . ALMOST but not quite one out of every three households has a family dog.

LEFT-HANDEDNESS shows up about twice as frequently among twins as among those born singly. So report the scholars. Thought I had that figured out until those scholars reported further that left-handedness occurs with about the same frequency in fraternal as in identical twins. Most mysterious.

ABE'S LETTERS

A study of the letters written by Abraham Lincoln in his own hand show almost no corrections, deletions or insertions. He was said to be the sort of poet who thought his lines through before he put them to paper. Some exceptions exist among his manuscripts - true enough! But scholars believe he could have talked the final drafts of almost all his speeches if he'd lived in the days of the dictation machine.

AM ACQUAINTED with a farmer's wife who for years tossed all her dirty clothes into an old milk can about twice a week, added some soap and hot water, and let her husband heave the container onto the back of his pickup truck. His daily rounds took him over some pretty rough roads, she said. By sundown, the clothes were clean.

Agriculture and Forest officials schedule Salmon River float trip

SALMON — Officials of the US Department of Agriculture and US Forest Service will visit the area from Sun Valley to Stanley then float the upper Middle Fork of the Salmon River from Digger Falls to Indian Creek.

The tour is scheduled Monday to Friday (Aug. 5-9) and will begin with the arrival at the Hallett Airport Monday afternoon of Robert Long, assistant secretary of agriculture who handles national forest administration. Accompanying him will be Rex Reeler, also of Washington, D.C., associate chief of the forest service.

Long and Reeler will fly in from Oregon where they are to visit the Three Sisters Wilderness Area at Sun River.

John McGuire, chief of the forest service, will join the group in Stanley and Reeler is to return to Washington.

Also with the group will be Vern Hamre, regional forester from Ogden.

The forest service at Ogden said the visit to the area is an outgrowth of the observance of the 50th anniversary of the wilderness system.

Asst. Sec. Long will visit the area to get a first-hand look at recreation and wilderness uses and resulting problems.

The forest service said that Long wants to see the area firsthand since the Sawtooths have unique features, including a wilderness area as part of the national recreational area, and has minerals and private lands development.

The inspection of the Middle Fork section will look at recreation, wilderness and non-community types of use.

Long recently visited the Idaho Primitive Area before the forest service recommendations as to its future classification under the Wilderness Act go to the President.

After arrival at Hallett Monday, Aug. 5, the group will look at some of the management problems involved in the Sun Valley area development. Long and Reeler are scheduled Tuesday morning on the total Sawtooth program at Sun Valley, then the group will visit the Sawtooth National Recreation Area headquarters north of Sun Valley. The remainder of Tuesday will be spent in Sawtooth Valley, looking at proposed developments, private lands, streams and riparian zones, along with salmon spawning areas.

In the afternoon the party will go down the Salmon River as far as Sunbeam to look at boating problems and the fishery.

Wednesday will be spent in an all-day hike into the Sawtooth Wilderness Area to Sawtooth Lake. Chief McGuire is to join the group that evening

Liberties eroded

TWIN FALLS — "The individual liberties of every American citizen are currently being eroded by unnecessary, irrelevant and downright destructive federal regulations," George J. Hansen said here Wednesday.

Hansen, a Republican candidate for the US House of Representatives from Idaho's Second District, said "We're currently facing a whole list of crises." He noted "There's the energy crisis, the interest crisis, the inflation crisis and the confidence crisis." "Some elected officials propose more government regulation to solve these problems," Hansen said. "I say we need less government intervention."

Flower department leaders named

By MARJORIE LIERMAN Times-News writer

FILER — One planning to enter community exhibits in the flower department of the Twin Falls County Fair Sept. 4-7 should notify the fair secretary — and the superintendent — one week prior to the fair.

Superintendents in this department are Mrs. George Kimmel, Filer, and Mrs. Ed Harpe, Filer. Anton Horn, Boise, will be judge for this department.

All entries, excepting artistic arrangements, must be shown by the exhibitor, and must remain in place until close of the fair. It is forbidden to use cut, dried or treated plant material and no artificial flowers or foliage will be permitted.

Containers will be furnished for the fair but exhibitors may use their own containers if desired. Those desiring to use picture boxes furnished by the fair should make reservations in advance.

First, second and third place premiums will be paid on several classes of asters, chrysanthemums, dahlias, gladioli, petunias, roses, tuberous begonias and miscellaneous which includes a large number of both perennials and biennials.

There are 20 classes of artistic arrangements which include: 1. Pledge of Allegiance, a red, white and blue arrangement; all red arrangement; arrangement depicting an Idaho scene; arrangement of flowers and arrangements.

Soviet attracts

MOSCOW (UPI) — Tourism to the Soviet Union jumped 26 per cent in 1973 over the previous year, according to Viktor Bolchevko, head of Intourist, the state travel service.

About 2.9 million persons from 150 countries came here last year, 1.6 million of them from Communist countries, he said. The number of American tourists increased 38 per cent — 91,254 in 1973, compared with 66,164 in 1972.

The United States ranked third among non-Communist nations in the number of visitors. Finland was first with 495,452 and West Germany second with 109,059.

fruit branches in low basket, also using fresh flowers and foliage.

Arrangement using weathered wood with flowers or fruited branches, designer's choice of Mother Nature's choice, arrangement using natural dried or treated plant material, and one depicting the hunting or vacation scene.

Classes in home plants include a colored or green foliage plant and a blooming house plant. This year a class for hanging baskets of foliage of blooming material has been added.

The six classes of picture boxes include boxes furnished by fair in both small and large sizes; those furnished by exhibitors in both large and small sizes; picture boxes designed by professional flower arranger; and one by advanced flower arranger.

Premiums will be given for commercial flower or plant exhibits, and for community and flower club exhibits for best quality of at least 12 kinds of flowers; best artistic exhibit and best quality of one kind of flowers with at least 12 varieties.

Grades may compete for artistic arrangement, best artistic exhibit and best quality exhibit.

Junior gardeners may compete for prizes in their special class for 16 years and under. Entries will close at 9 a.m. Sept. 4 and judging will be held that day.

The 33 classes in Junior flower gardeners include annuals, perennials, house plants, picture boxes, corsages and arrangements.

Bears beware

REGRADING (UPI) — There are not many places in Europe where the big game hunter can still indulge himself. But the Balkans still have more wild bears than they need and the Bosnian mountains of Yugoslavia have the biggest number of visitors at $1,500 per bear shot.

If a bear is outside your badge you can go after deer, chamois, wild boar, wolf, fox, badger, marten, otter, or about a dozen different types of game birds. One of the best areas also recommended for its scenery is the Prenj and Veloz mountains.

Gooding woman wins contest

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Carol Sagers' Gooding, won the contest to select a name for a city-wide prominent exhibit for the fair and Knievel jump.

Mrs. Sagers will receive a check for $100 for her entry "Twin Falls County Fair 'Rim-to-Rim' Days." Judges Dr. James L. Taylor, president of College of Southern Idaho, and Phillip A. Obenshain, president of Cline Inc. Advertising, Boise, reviewed over 1,000 entries from residents of Magic Valley.

Commenting on their selection, the judges said they were looking for a slogan, or name that pointed to the canyon jump, the uniqueness of the location and something that suggested "ruthless" or a "cornucopia" idea for the county fair.

The contest was sponsored by the retail council of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce.

SHADING...

WALT ANDERSEN      LARRY SLATTER

People get so excited over their new carpet that they call "shading" in our carpet jargon, you'd think they might stage an anti-carpet march down main street. Actually, their excitement is not justified. What they see, or think they see, is one shade of carpet becoming another.

Here's what happens. Sometimes color changes in certain spots are noticeable on plush carpets.

Differences in light reflecting from the shade against the natural pile direction produce the apparent color change. This change in color, however, is really just apparent. You can remedy the condition by vacuuming the same direction as the pile or in a random cause-by mechanical cleaning.

You are invited to come in and see our large selection of fine carpets.

He is a native of Idaho Falls and was graduated from the University of Idaho in 1967 with a master's degree. He joined the U.S. Forest Service in the regional office in Ogden, Utah, in timber management, then went to the Planning Corps, National Recreation Area.

He transferred to the Sawtooth National Recreation Area in 1972 as a fisheries biologist.

Martin succeeds Bob Carlin who transferred to the Dixie Forest at Treasdale, Utah.

Aide asks balanced budget

BOISE—Mrs. Ann Louise Robison, Democratic candidate for state representative of district 24, said today she is for a fiscally sound state government.

She said that she supports a balanced budget within the existing tax structure of Idaho. She said Idaho has a miting tax structure with the principle source of collections coming from income tax, sales tax and motor fuel tax.

She believes one should evaluate the efficiency of a budget before voting for the funds needed for operating that department.

Mrs. Robison said that there have been budgets known to have been approved. She said in one instance the head official not only estimated the funds of the passed budget but financed the overprinting with a transfer of trust funds which was illegal.

Mrs. Robison said that if she were elected she would like to serve on the Appropriations or Revenue committees.

Mrs. Robison pledged a careful evaluation of tax measures and expenditures. Mrs. Robison said she had studied and taught taxes and tax structure. She said that she understood budgets and fiscal matters as she had a degree in Mathematics along with graduate work in the subject.

Rainmaker Berry fires up

Rainmaker heads for dry Arizona

NORTH LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI)—Homer Berry, the Arkansas rainmaker, who claims he can air condition a city or order up a cloudburst, has folded up his umbrella.

He no longer rides around dusty cottonfields in his pickup truck stoking a 50-gallon drum of silver iodide to produce rain.

Despite a near drought in the Southwest and lack of a good rainy season in Arkansas in weeks, Berry said he has received only one call for his services.

"That was about a week ago when a couple big farmers drove below Pine Bluff called me," he said. "The next day they got a scattered shower so they didn't need me then."

Berry, 61, a retired Air Force major, plans to show his raincoat and move to Arizona.

He says he's been making it rain for 28 years but hasn't taken on a commercial rainmaking job in about two years. He said he's out of the rain business, except for a close friend or someone who "stuck by me in the early days."

"The only thing that could get me out again would be for someone who did me a favor or for someone who believed in me in the early days when I was just starting," he said. "I don't advertise any more."

Four years ago, Berry rolled his banged-up red pickup into Aspermont, Tex., where he had a $10,000 contract to bring five inches of rain. It fell three inches short.

The Texas Water Development Board later told Berry he could be billed for trying to modify weather without a permit.

"I hate to dub myself a weather control authority," he said during his West Texas attempt. "But I can't stop a storm and I can bring on a fall, I can bring snow in winter, summer. I can raise the temperature in the winter and lower it in the summer."

Berry said he's retiring because his eyes were damaged by "stirring that pot" for so many years. He also said the price of the silver-based chemical has increased so much it makes the operation too expensive for many farmers.

An air dynamics expert while in the Air Force, Berry said he took up rainmaking as a hobby after suffering a heart attack. He first started in 1946 and "really got going good" in 1947 and '48.

He once tried to contract with the city North Little Rock to "air-condition the city," but he said city officials told him they would lose $35,000 a month in water bills if people no longer needed to water their lawns and gardens.

His air conditioning plan, he explained, called for controlling showers so that it would rain about every 48 hours after business hours. "A little rain," he said, "can really keep a downtown area cool off."

Valley Comment: marriage

QUESTION: Does marriage need changing?

Stan Cron, Twin Falls — "I only know about my own. It's very satisfactory. We never have any disagreements or anything."

"Marriage is a confrontation of different individuals with different personalities. When that's the case you're always going to have some conflicts."

Mrs. Irma Haley, Casaleford — "Yes. We need to go back to a family-centered home. The family has more or less fallen apart — there isn't the closeness in the family that there has been in the past."

"I don't think that because we have a higher divorce rate now that necessarily we have less happy marriages. In the past women put up with an unhappy marriage because that was the only alternative."

Eugene G. Schoey, Twin Falls — "I don't think the institution is ever at fault. It's the individuals who are unprepared to enter into the marital relationship."

"It seems to me you've got to train the individuals to respect the rights and duties of the other person in the relationship. Without that no marriage will succeed. The fail marriage in itself doesn't answer that question."

Terry Schmidt, Twin Falls — "I don't think marriage needs change mainly because there aren't any set rules on it."

"Everybody has to work it out on an individual level. My marriage is very equal. My husband shares everything with me. We both own things and both do the housework. When I have children I feel that I will accept most of the home responsibility."

C. E. Sweet, Twin Falls

"You bet. I think marriage is too liberal the way the younger people are looking at it. I don't think half of them that get married go into it with the idea of staying married."

Tom Miller, Buhl — "No. I think it's okay just the way it is actually. In some cases couples living together before marriage might be good — to learn what you're all right for each other."

Bert Jackson, Hagerman

"I don't think marriage needs changing. I think that needs to get married. Marriage is fine. There's too many of them that don't get married."

Nancy Bixby, Halley — "It depends on whose it is. Mine doesn't, no."

"I'm very happily married for the second time. The first time I needed a change in husbands. The first time we were totally incompatible, we were heading in opposite directions."

"I think that everyone should have an open marriage. That means that they shouldn't be totally committed to each other."

President's Message:

As a direct result of the excellent support and cooperation from you very fine Magic Valley citizens, the College of Southern Idaho has again enjoyed another highly successful academic year and is looking forward to an equally successful coming year. A complete enumeration of last year's accomplishments would be impossible in this message. However, it would be remiss not to recapitulate a few of the highlights.

The new Vocational Education Building was completed and several career programs were moved onto our main campus. Also, after an extensive self-evaluation, the College received a five year extension of full accreditation from the Northwest Association of Secondary and Higher Schools. In addition, CSI served a record number of people through regular college classes, community service events, adult and evening classes, workshops, institutes, fine arts presentations, and athletic contests.

This next year the College is anticipating the commencement of construction on a new Vocational Building. The State Legislature appropriated 2.6 million dollars to build the approximately 40,000 square feet facility. Upon completion, scheduled for March, 1976, most all of the vocational programs will be housed on the main College Campus.

This year the College is anticipating another record number of people enrolled in classes or served through community services. Current projections are that the largest increase will be in adult and evening class enrollments.

On behalf of the College and the Board of Trustees, I want to take this opportunity to thank each and everyone of you who have had a role in the success of the College of Southern Idaho.

Respectively,

James J. Taylor

CSI: five years of growth

By MARILYN ELLIOTT

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley's nine-year-old junior college many years ago grew its first temporary quarters and is reaching for bigger enrollments and expanding educational opportunities.

"Our philosophy is rather simple," Dr. James Taylor, College of Southern Idaho president, said, "whatever we do, we want to do the very best we can."

Taylor has presided over the college since its beginning in 1965. That first fall at CSI, the 540 students enrolled attended classes at Twin Falls High School in late afternoons and evenings when the high school students had gone home. Today the students enrolled have a 240-acre campus complete with dormitories, classroom buildings, gym and a fine arts center.

The campus was "entirely master-planned," according to Dr. Taylor, providing students with an "extramural and intramural" campus. Local bonds, state funds and federal monies have all helped the growth of the college.

From the 540 students who enrolled during CSI's first fall semester, the college has grown to some 2,000 students. They come mostly from the Magic Valley though last year 22 of Idaho's 41 counties were represented, as well as 5 foreign countries and other states.

"We deny no student the right to come," Dr. Taylor said, "but the high number of applications received every year has forced the college to limit admissions. Every year we've been here for every one accepted we had to turn 120 away." Dr. Taylor said.

In addition to providing low cost, quality higher education for hundreds of Magic Valley students, CSI has become a center for cultural and athletic activities in the Magic Valley.

Concerts ranging from classical to rock and roll, plays and operettas, ballets and other performances which have been arranged either through the university or community organizations, pull large audiences from valley residents. Special interest and adult education classes attract many people.

"One of our roles is the community service aspect," which includes the entire eight Magic Valley counties. Dr. Taylor said. The college recorded 410,000 visitors last year. He said. Visitors include anyone using college facilities that is not attending regular classes.

"Foresee that (community service) will continue to grow," Dr. Taylor said, as more and more people become aware that the Magic Valley is not just eight separate counties but an economic unit.

Vocational education plays a bigger role now than it did when the college was first organized. While 75 per cent of the curriculum was made up of academic curricula has decreased to 65 per cent now, with vocational education making up about 35 per cent of the program.

"I feel very strongly that we have barely scratched the surface with vocational training," Dr. Taylor said. The world and the nation have a great need for vocational education programs, he said.

But he added that he was "not in anyway minimizing our feelings and standards on the academic program." He said that despite the benefits of many people, CSI is not solely a vocational education center.

"I envision in our society within the decade that every local school district will have one of its objectives the development of salable skills by graduation," Dr. Taylor said, "meaning the junior college will move to the next level too."

While a few years ago students on college campuses went through a "philosophical era," Dr. Taylor said, "the pendulum has swung to where most of our young people want a piece of the action. Students are more demanding for quality education and development of salable skills. There is a growing realization on the part of the student body to the world of work."

Not only do students who register for vocational training, but those in the academic courses want to get something out of it," he said.

"In an effort to help them "get something out of it," the college is constantly working to upgrade its educational program.

Dr. Taylor said he feels the college can "exceed its instruction." High standards are maintained in choosing instructors. He said, "I might not get some of the 2,000 applications who apply for the handful of positions open each year. The teacher-student ratio is purposely maintained at about 1:20."

Then, Dr. Taylor said, the college acquires the most advanced type of instruction equipment. The college now has a video tape studio, capabilities for broadcasting classes anywhere within the college complex, self-paced modules and many technological aids for instruction.

"The faculty is rapidly coming to the point where they can use them," Dr. Taylor said. And last year the study skills center served about 150 students a day.

"Because we are an open door college," Dr. Taylor said, "and accept students of varying levels of ability and diverse backgrounds, we use different kinds of modular approaches" according to the needs of the students. Individualized attention is available when needed.

"Administratively we place no more emphasis on athletics than any other areas," Dr. Taylor said but "a great deal of public support comes through athletics. The American public places a great deal of emphasis on athletics." CSI maintains track, basketball and baseball teams.

The CSI athletic program is supported from ticket sales and local scholarships. "We will continue to field athletic teams as long as we have the fans' support so we don't need to use tax dollars," Dr. Taylor said.

This attempt to comply with the Title 9 federal program, which requires equality in athletic programs, CSI will present a questionnaire to female students this fall asking for reactions to CSI's present athletic program. Any changes would be based on the results.

The academic program at CSI has not changed greatly since 1965. "We never change the academic program without doing an in-depth study," Taylor said. The college is "responding to changes of environment and technology that we see coming. We want to be flexible so we can meet these needs."

"I feel very strongly that this institution should remain a comprehensive community college governed by a local board of trustees and serving primarily the people of the Magic Valley with flexibility enough to do an outstanding job," Dr. Taylor said.

Individualized Courses — The College of Southern Idaho recognizes that all students do not necessarily perform best under identical circumstances or at the same rate. Further, work schedules, family demands, and other variables make it difficult to attend regularly scheduled classes. Therefore, a number of courses are arranged on an individualized basis. In these, a student may move as fast as he/she is capable of, but one is encouraged to complete the course within the semester format. Typically, the course will involve textbook readings, listening to tapes, workbook assignments, written papers, completion of examinations or other exercises. If you enroll in such a course, it is imperative that you contact the instructor immediately so that you may be oriented as to course requirements.

TBA

The letters TBA following a course indicate that the meeting times are to be arranged. The student is responsible for contacting the instructor immediately following the first day of classes.

Occupation:
Farmer; Cattle man, etc.
Additional training and experience adding to your qualifications:
Ralph Waldo Emerson said: Every artist was once an amateur. Horace Greeley said: Common sense is very uncommon. I think I have Common Sense.

1. What do you consider the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho? What solution do you propose?

The Supreme Court may soon say that a more equalized funding of our public school system must be achieved. This will probably have the effect that districts with higher than average assessed valuation per pupil may receive very little more funding while those schools with less than the state average assessed valuation per pupil would receive more state funding, small, remote, and necessary schools would be given special funding consideration through the State Board of Education.

2. Should the state constitution be amended to permit local governments more flexibility of operation?

I would want to see County Control in Land Use Legislation with real consideration given to agriculture as it now exists. I would see the State taking only a part to settle intercounty disputes and some interstate disputes along the state borders.

3. What would you like to see included in state land use legislation?

Yes, I believe that Counties and Cities probably need some flexibility, but perhaps under local option could enact some sort of small addition to the sales tax or to the income tax, but I would only consider this as a local option where the public had the opportunity to vote!

4. Do you support or oppose collective bargaining for public employees?

If the type of collective bargaining was similar to the present teacher negotiation law of "meet and Confer" with a no strike pledge, I could support this type of legislation for our public employees. The "Meet and Confer" type of bargaining to my mind has worked quite well for the teachers of our State.

Everybody's got peeve is taxes, not only in the area of how those funds are acquired but also in the distribution of those funds. Solution: Less property tax and more funding of schools at the state level, but make sure to retain local control. Repeat the sales tax, and replace it with increased income tax. I cannot deny that some people need help but I do deny that they should get it from taxes — Let me decide who I should help.

The more local control and independence the better! But I don't think we need that amendment. If you consolidate schools or county and city agencies, you lose local control.

Restrict flooding along streams, rivers and recreation sites in scenic areas. Try to acquire more land from BLM.

Occupation:
Assigned in Dec. 1973 from the Idaho Dept. of Employment (52, Return)
Presently I am campaigning for nomination for the office of State Rep.

1. What do you consider the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho? What solution do you propose?

I feel that Idaho has three very pressing problems. A: Inflation. I propose a dollar value received for every tax dollar spent. Government should be the one you would own your business. B: Idaho water resources. Development and preservation of Idaho water resources. C: career education (such as vocational) begin in the elementary schools.

2. Should the state constitution be amended to permit local governments more flexibility of operation?

I believe the local governments could begin more control by legislation instead of having to change the constitution.

3. What would you like to see included in state land use legislation?

On land use, I believe in ultimate determination at the local level.

4. Do you support or oppose collective bargaining for public employees?

Public employees should have the right to form voluntary associations to present their views, but not to disrupt essential services.

1. Land Use Planning, Should be developed and controlled at local levels, with the State providing expertise guidelines and assistance since very few localities in Idaho have funds to do their own planning. Landmarks, historical markings and special geographic areas should be protected by the State rather than Federal government.

2. I do not know how much "flexibility" they have now. Local governments must live with the Federal Laws and the State laws. They would need to know specifically what you mean. Experience shows that amendments solve problems only partially, and we already have too many amendments to our constitution.

3. The legislature should insist that local communities set up land use planning programs. Draw up their own plans and make their funding if needed. No "Statewide regulations," but I do feel the State should protect landmarks, fossil areas, etc.

4. I do not oppose collective bargaining for public employees but how effective is it? More than half the states grant their employees the right to organize, but public employees ARE NOT GIVEN THE RIGHT TO STRIKE IN ANY STATE! Many of their services are critical to the public, and taxes pay their wages.

1. What do you consider the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho? What solution do you propose?

2. Should the state constitution be amended to permit local governments more flexibility of operation?

3. What would you like to see included in state land use legislation?

4. Do you support or oppose collective bargaining for public employees?

1. More efficient and effective use of Idaho's natural resources; namely, land, water and people. Scientific, locally controlled and directed land use legislation in progress: prime agricultural and Utilize relative abundance of water in Idaho. Improve present state programs before starting new ones to cut down spiraling numbers of state employees.

2. In some areas yes. Generally local people are better able to make decisions regarding local problems, particularly in the areas of schools, land use, welfare and local city government.

3. Local citizen involvement and input, planning, hearings and control similar to what we are already attempting in Twin Falls County should be included in any state land use legislation. Planning may be encouraged and aided by the state but any decisions or controls should be made locally.

4. Bargaining by public employees represented by their own local elected representatives is worthwhile; however, collective bargaining by outside, non-informed, careless mediators should not be tolerated by either the public employee or employer. Decisions should be reached jointly by individuals that have something at stake rather than disinterested parties.

1. Positive movement by the state toward use of our water resources under the multiple use concept. We cannot keep fighting to hold off the possibility of inter-basin transfer without having a positive plan and program of using that water for agricultural expansion. In particular, along with power generation use and recreational benefit.

2. Local governments have plenty of flexibility of ordinances to meet local needs without being discriminatory. The changes they may need can be handled with statutory amendments.

3. Leave land use planning as a local matter. Our local areas know their individual conditions better. State participation should be only advisory.

4. Public employees can deal with their local units of government and their individual state agencies on matters of wages and working conditions better than we try to set up a blanket state provision for collective bargaining. I favor letting them handle their problems through local groups.

Additional training and experience adding to your qualifications: 16 years Legislative experience. 1. What do you consider the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho? What solution do you propose?

2. Should the state constitution be amended to permit local governments more flexibility of operation?

3. What would you like to see included in state land use legislation?

4. Do you support or oppose collective bargaining for public employees?

Our most pressing problem is maintaining essential state services in the face of runaway inflation. All governmental services are severely affected by the current inflation. As is the taxpayer who foots the bill. We must re-examine all programs in order to support those of the greatest priority and importance.

The State Constitution should be amended to provide for a referendum regarding the form of county government. To provide for consolidation of those small counties having small population and limited tax base. Many of Idaho's smaller counties, in complying with present requirements, are forced to function inefficiently.

Legislation for land use planning should place the basic responsibility on local government, thus permitting the maximum local input. Legislation should provide guidelines and state technical assistance. It should also define a state role in areas of critical concern and in multi-county problems which are beyond the scope of local government.

Government should not interfere with the basic right of individuals to organize for any legitimate purpose. In general terms, I believe that any public employee collective bargaining legislation should prohibit strikes, and as an alternative, provide for fact-finding and mediation to best serve the public interest.

For many sessions now the dilemma of revenue to support the various essential state agencies, including our state educational system, in a wise and prudent manner is by far the most important job that the legislature has to come to grips with in any session. A great deal more efficiency could be brought into this process by having biennial sessions for budget consideration.

Yes, it has been proven time again that the best government is the one closest to the people which means that local government can and will do a better job if given the opportunity to act.

Make it a broad outline for local areas, counties, and cities to follow, bringing the state only in on a cooperative role when necessary.

It is my hope that in Idaho a line of communication will exist whereby public employees, elected officials, and administrators would be able to "together" work out the most satisfactory arrangement for the employee, the taxpayer, the elected officials, and the administration. We must try to bring this type of arrangement into a workable system.

Age: 52
Education:
High School — Kimberly, Idaho
Occupation:
President of P. M. P., Inc., Contractor:
Specializing in public utility installations.
Additional and experience adding

I served in the Navy after high school as a radio technician. After the war I farmed for 15 years, then joined Dec. Pace as a partner in P. & E. Concrete Co. for 8 years. I have been in the contracting business for 3 years. I spent 5 years as a member of the Idaho Potato and Onion Comms. I have served a life time in Boy Scouts and church service. I feel these experiences qualify me to make wise judgments for the good of the people in District 25 in the State Legislature.

1. What do you consider the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho? What solution do you propose?

The threat of taking our excess water for out-of-state use. One avenue to avert this threat would be to develop all agriculture and other public resources to utilize our great water supply.

2. Should the state constitution be amended to permit local governments more flexibility of operation?

Yes. I believe the more government we keep close to home, the more efficient we can be in meeting the needs of our people.

3. What would you like to see included in state land use legislation?

I think land use legislation should be kept as close to the community it serves as possible. Land use formulas adopted on a state or national basis cannot be nearly as satisfactory for each community as it needs to be.

4. Do you support or oppose collective bargaining for public employees?

Collective bargaining for public employees should be done between local representatives of each interested party with a third party to see that equality is given to each group. Large national union methods would tend to disrupt necessary public services.

T. W. STIVERS — Republican
144 North Juniper — Twin Falls, Idaho
83401

Age: 55
Education:
Graduate of Twin Falls High School. I started working immediately after graduation from high school and have been working every day since. I have had a "red hot" and rewarding life without further education.
Occupation:

Pres., Titlefact-Inc., Sawtooth Title Co., Inc., Western Title Co. Vice Pres., Real Estate Securities Corporation; "practitioner" own, operate or manage residential, commercial and farm properties in these counties in Southern Idaho.

1. What do you consider the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho? What solution do you propose?

I believe that the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho is keeping the Federal Government from regulating our industries, businesses and farms. Federal water pollution controls, land use regulations, federal use regulations and marketing controls on crops and livestock affect the entire state. I would support legislation in those areas that protect the requirements of the people of the State of Idaho.

2. Should the state constitution be amended to permit local governments more flexibility of operation?

I have never felt that municipalities, counties or school districts needed the constitution amended in order to meet their requirements. These governmental units are able to find their programs and tax accordingly by statutory amendments. Constitutional amendments should only be considered when all other remedies fail.

3. What would you like to see included in state land use legislation?

State land use legislation should include provisions that will allow orderly development of Idaho, consistent with the rights of all property owners. Federal legislation that will prevent development can only operate to the detriment of the State. I believe sufficient protection can be written into legislation to provide adequate safeguards.

4. Do you support or oppose collective bargaining for public employees?

Collective bargaining can be accomplished now by public employees operating within their own group by their own representatives. I am opposed to union organization by public employees that permit strikes and negotiations by an organization or representative view outside the public employee work force. Strikes in any form that cause disruption of the services provided by public employees should be prohibited.

Idaho Feeders Assn.

The greatest problem facing state government is the economic one. The same problem compounded faces this nation. It involves inflation and the growth of government. The way to solve the problem is to elect citizens who recognize the problem and have the courage to do something about it. My record is evidence that I will work to keep spending and growth of government under control. Local government, being close to the people, should be most responsive to the needs of the people. I would support statute changes or constitutional changes that would give local government more flexibility of operation including local option elections to provide alternate methods of taxation for local government financing. The state land use legislation we now have is adequate. It places the authority at the local level.

I think each group of public employees should have an employee association which would provide a unified voice in discussion with employers on matters involving salary, working conditions, and fringe benefits. Traditionally, there is an attraction to public employment that competes favorably for employees among the work forces. The continuation of essential services should not be subject to disruption by strike.

I farmed for 13 years, was diversified in my farming, also had sheep and cattle. Trucked for 2 years hauling farm produce. I am a Veteran of World War II.

Expand spending. Instead of tax relief, which I feel we need. The working people need consideration on tax relief.

I don't think that the state government can manage to finance our county's needs. We need to have the flexibility to take care of our own, without the paper work and red tape and big government delays.

I would like to see developers and private home owners have a better understanding of what are public domains. I've seen our beaches, our river channels, our forest roads with no trespassing signs. I feel we should not let these people impose on our rights. Let us, let it be known what is proper boundary and retain access to public domains.

I support U. P. Public employees certainly need to be able to bargain for themselves or choose to be represented by a Union or Leader of their choice. I feel our state and counties and also city government have overlooked the need of our employees for many years.

Qualifications: Six terms, Idaho State Senate, serving as assistant minority leader, majority leader and president pro-tempore. Two terms as Lt. Governor, serving as president of the senate during the two terms.

1. What do you consider the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho? What solution do you propose?

We must continue to maintain Idaho's debt-free balanced budget while appropriating the available revenue on a priority basis. Idaho's quality of life must be protected while increased growth takes place. Locally oriented and locally controlled land use planning is a must.

Finding ways and means to maintain our steady economic growth and at the same time keeping in balance our environment. We must have the jobs, the tax base, the opportunities for our youth in the future and at the same time maintain that very fragile environmental balance we all enjoy.

2. Should the state constitution be amended to permit local governments more flexibility of operation? Explain.

Local governments have flexibility except for levying certain taxes. Most of their problems stem from refusal to face up to problems at hand. Any additional tax or powers should be approved by a vote of the people living in the taxing district.

Yes, there is no need talking about local control over our government and at the same time by constitutional limitation or statutory limitation, denying local governments the right to exercise the responsibilities that we expect of them.

3. What would you like to see included in state land use legislation?

I favor the legislation as presented to the last session of the Idaho legislature because it was written by the people of Idaho. Any changes should be made with this fact in mind in order to provide the necessary protection for Idaho and still have public acceptance.

Strict local controls. The State of Idaho should provide expertise, such as engineering, surveying, etc., when requested by local government. All laws existing in the future should be designed to permit local governments to have the exclusive jurisdictional control over all land use planning efforts since they know best what to do at their level of government.

Education: High School diploma. Graduate of Robert Powers School, New York, New York.

Qualification: National Vice Chairman Education Commission of the State. President, Idaho Park Foundation. Legislative Chairman-Coordinator, Idaho Congress of PTA. Member, Idaho Unified Education Council, six years. Member Citizens Committee on State Legislature, 1967-68. Member of Human Resources Council of Federation of Rocky Mountain States. Member, National Task Force Educationally Handicapped Children. Why do you seek this office?

It is almost impossible for citizens to get through the maze of state government. I propose to make the Lieutenant Governor's office an information clearinghouse where people may obtain a response to questions, complaints or requests for service. This office is a realistic place to create a liaison between government and the citizens of Idaho.

Education: B. S. degree Univ. of Idaho, 1943, Forestry.

Qualifications: Nine years extension forester, University of Idaho. Twenty-three years in private business. Eight years on school board. Twenty years in Idaho Legislature. Why do you seek this office?

As substitute Governor, the Lt. Governor should maintain responsible stability. As President of the Senate, he can influence the efficiency and the quality of our legislative process. As Chairman of the Land Grant Committee, he can influence policy, legal and field research which can influence state land management and provide millions of dollars of income to our schools and, therefore, savings to the taxpayer.

ATTORNEY GENERAL

4 YEAR TERM SALARY: $25,000

ONE TO BE NOMINATED FROM EACH PARTY

W. ANTHONY

TIM HOPKINS
Republican

P.O. Box 1125, Idaho Falls, Idaho, 83401. Age: 38. Occupation: Lawyer engaged in the private practice of law and a partner in an Idaho Falls law firm.

WAYNE KIDWELL

Box 345, Boise, Idaho, 83701. Age: 36. Occupation: Lawyer.

Education: Born Bluffton, Idaho. Fossilville and Boise public schools; A.A. degree from Boise Junior College; Bachelor's Degree in Political Science from Univ. of Idaho; J.D. from Univ. of Idaho College of Law.

Qualifications: 3 1/2 years as Idaho's Attorney General, Chairman, Idaho Law Enforcement Planning Commission, Chairman, Idaho Bicentennial Commission; Member, State Board of Land Commissioners; Member, Governor's Council on Criminal Justice; Member, National Association of Attorneys General (on Executive Committee and Consumer Protection Committee of Association); Member, Idaho State Bar Association.

Why do you seek this office?

I seek re-election in order to bring to full fruition certain important programs already under way, for example, the statewide consumer protection effort which I initiated. Also, I have opened seven regional offices to collect welfare overpayments and child support for welfare mothers. We recovered $669,000 in 1973.

Education: Idaho Falls public schools, graduated from Idaho Falls High School; 1954, Stanford Univ., A.B. degree; 1959, George Washington Univ., Law School, J.D. degree, with honors, 1963.

Qualifications: Eleven years experience in private law practice, including representation of both plaintiffs and defendants in civil and criminal litigations in State and Federal Courts. Member of Resolutions Committees of both State and National Waterways Association; Active in community service as an officer or director of P.T.A., Y.M.C.A., Interspersy Council, Community Chest and Church.

Why do you seek this office?

Because the Attorney General's office needs the full time attention and administration of the best professional available to act as chief legal officer for the State of Idaho, and I believe my qualifications best suit that need. As a new candidate, I support openness in politics and the Sunshine Initiative.

Education: B.A., Univ. of Idaho; J.D., Univ. of Idaho; U.S. Army Military Justice School; various law enforcement seminars and institutes on law enforcement problems and various refresher courses on legal procedures.

Qualifications: Legal Aid to Senator Jordan; Ada County Prosecuting Attorney; Idaho State Senate, Majority Leader; National District Attorney's Association; faculty member, Boise State Univ., Business Law Instructor; Instituted Law Enforcement Training Programs while Prosecutor; officer in charge, U.S. Army criminal investigation unit in Far East; former officer, Idaho Prosecuting Attorney's Association; former member, Idaho Peace Officers Association; 10 years as practicing lawyer.

Why do you seek this office?

Idaho's Attorney General's office needs new and positive direction. Narcotics enforcement has been lackadaisical and haphazard. The tenor of the office has been of a partisan political nature rather than professional. If people who are concerned and feel they have something to offer and are willing to get involved don't—then who will?

Qualifications: I do my own that the answer to our

be solved very satisfactorily by a return to constitutional law, since the problems themselves have been created by a disregard for it.

1. What do you consider the national priorities for the next Congress? Why?

Restoration of confidence in government; coming to grips with runaway inflation (fueled by soaring petroleum costs). Our government cannot exist without the faith of the American people. Economically, we are imperiled by the inflation which now grips us.

Stopping inflation by tax reform for the lower income "brackets and social security reform. The present Congress let inflation run rampant for twenty years and they should be replaced by members responsive to the needs of the people, not to the liquor industry and other "money changers" on Wall Street.

Restoring freedom to the people of America. Scarcely a single federal law has been passed in the last 40 years which has not been designed to set up more bureaus and commissions to control some part of the economy or the people. This vast network of illegal bureaus enforces its self-made rules and regulations by appointees and hirelings not elected by the people.

2. What would you like to see included in national land use legislation?

The tools to help local people make wise decisions about the future use of their land resources, rather than out-of-state land speculators who would "Loe-Angelizo" Idaho.

Provisions that would regionalize "land use regulation" to make it more responsive to local conditions. Standards for heavily populated areas are not the same as for sparsely populated regions like Idaho. Administration by local authorities is to be preferred over faraway federal bureaucratic control.

If elected I shall seek to obtain for Idaho the title to all of the public lands, natural resources and water lying within the borders of this state. It is illegal for the federal government to own these vast tracts of land.

3. What should be the role of Congress in protecting the environment and conserving resources while planning to meet the increased demands for energy?

Certainly, we need to develop alternative energy resources — such as geothermal and solar energy, both of which are environmentally clean. Congress has been moving to develop new energy resources, but the Nixon Administration has balked at supporting the long-range financing necessary to accomplish this goal.

Congress should play a cooperative role, together with state legislators. (Pollution regulations for the Hudson and Delaware Rivers and the Los Angeles area do not apply to the small Salmon River Sawmill). Lack of proper planning over the years by a non-responsive Congress has caused the present energy crisis.

in such affairs. Enough tax monies should be left in the local communities to take care of such problems. And, too, the environment should be decided by local people. Free enterprise will take care of the energy situation. If restrictions, regulations and controls are removed.

AUDITOR 4 YEAR TERM SALARY $21,500.

JOE R. WILLIAMS

Democrat

801 North 20th, Boise,
Idaho, 83702. Age: not given.
Occupation: State Auditor (Public Accountant, Real Estate Broker (inactive)).

Education: Attended grade school at Samaria, Idaho;
Boise High School; Univ. of Idaho; and at Pocatello, Idaho.
Aside from that, studied accounting with International Correspondence School and 20 years in the office.
Qualifications: Fifteen and one-half years as State Auditor; Six years as Deputy, including Director of Bureau of Public Accounts and auditing in every department of state government. Fifteen and one-half years experience as State Administrator of Social Security and member of the State Land Board. Twenty years business experience including banking and accounting.

Why do you seek this office?
We are in the process of implementing a modern accounting system. The total scheme will provide the most up-to-date accounting, personnel payroll, budgeting, and financial reporting capabilities in all the 50 states. The implementation began July 1, 1973. It will take about 3 1/2 years for completion.

been my most exciting and challenging opportunity as State

Honored by National Association of State Legislators; selected as an Outstanding Personality of the West and Midwest.

1. What do you consider the national priorities for the next Congress? Why?

A. Foreign relations. The position of the United States regarding food and fuel distribution with other countries of the world.

B. Decrease the size of the federal government bureaucracy and return the government to the state and local level. Grassroots taxpayers have no control of federal spending.

The preservation and protection of individual liberties. To stop inflation and reduce taxes by reducing government spending, stop foreign aid giveaways and work for a policy of trade, not aid. Reduce regulations which are strangling the small businessman.

Congress will be faced with some of the most crucial and complex decisions ever to face this nation. These include crippling inflation, a tax structure that keeps the people poor and still fails to deliver services they need, and review of all federal people programs to assure that the people who need help get it - on an efficient, fair, and economical basis.

2. What would you like to see included in national land-use legislation?

The administration of all lands within a state should be controlled by that state government.

I am committed to preservation of individual liberty and protection of states' rights and therefore, I am completely opposed to the concept of federal land-use planning.

The whole issue of land use planning, on a federal scale, is shaping up to become another national blackmail scheme - "you institute land-use planning on a basis that we, the federal government, approve, or you don't get any federal funds for this or that program."

3. What should be the role of Congress in protecting the environment and conserving resources while planning to meet the increased demands for energy?

I feel that Congress' only role should be to allocate monies to state and local governments in protecting the environment and resource planning. Congress should allow the states and local cities to formulate their own plans.

The problem can only be solved by major improvement in technology and will require large increases in our ability to produce energy. The creative breakthrough necessary to produce this new technology will only come if we are wise enough not to allow, by oppressive government controls, the creativity and initiative of those people in our society who have the abilities to invent and produce ideas necessary to solve these problems.

It has been demonstrated that government can work with the private sector on a cooperative basis when the problem is one that concerns both the businessman and the general public. A strong, responsible Congress should be able to lead the way in protection of the environment and natural resources without having to resort to governmental force to make private enterprise take steps of doubtful value.

Unopposed state offices are included on pages 2 and 3.

1. What do you consider the national priorities for the next Congress? Why?

Congress can no longer evade the responsibility of meeting the nation's financial crisis. Taxes are outrageously high and inflation caused by government deficit spending is robbing citizens of much of what is left. Pork barrel and wasteful spending must end — spending priorities and efficient operation must be established — we must move immediately to the concept of a balanced budget.

—Highest priority should be given to restoring the nation's economic and political health. We should curb inflation by increasing production and by using new budget committee to give Congress a tighter control on spending. Remove needless regulations and roadblocks to production. Strengthen laws to assure clean elections and open government.

2. What would you like to see included in national land use legislation?

I do not favor federal land use legislation. Any authority for land use planning should remain exclusively at the state and local levels of government.

Encourage and assist — without coercion or control — development by states and communities of long range plans for land use that protect private property rights and discourage the kind of uncontrolled, haphazard growth that will eliminate productive farm, range and timber lands and increase property taxes and the cost of government.

3. What should be the role of Congress in protecting the environment and conserving resources while planning to meet the increased demands for energy?

Congress should do all possible to make the United States self-sufficient in energy by providing the necessary climate for private and public interests to proceed with full dispatch and efficiency. This must be done with an eye toward long-term aspects and by means most feasibly compatible with maintaining or restoring the environment.

Expand research in technology that offers promise of clean and safe energy such as solar, geothermal and fusion. Provide incentives to reduce energy waste and increase domestic production. Speed up power, plant licensing and encourage long range planning for the siting of power plants, refineries and other energy facilities.

Occupation: Trained sociologist who has successfully worked in youth programs at Idaho State Univ. Education: High School diploma from Idaho Falls High School, 1963. B.A. degree in sociology from Idaho State University, 1971.

Qualifications: I have always been extremely interested in the working of our governmental system and ways to improve it. By working with disadvantaged individuals I have seen first hand the desperate need for intelligent and useful social legislation. As an interested American, I am highly qualified.

1. What do you consider the national priorities for the next Congress? Why?

Energy, water resources, inflationary controls and economic considerations; and foreign relations. The energy crisis is here now. Immediate steps are necessary as well as future planning is needed to provide new and useable sources. Likewise, water is related to this and it is important to Idaho. Foreign relations affects our economic conditions.

1. OSHA — complete investigation and modification.
2. Land Use — instigated and controlled on local level.
3. Taxation — equalization of tax structure.
4. Inflation — common sense ways of combating problems.
5. Social Reform — place priority on problems facing our own nation before venturing out into the world spreading pacification.

2. What would you like to see included in national land use legislation?

Flood plain legislation and urban development uses of arable agricultural land. In some heavily populated states arable farm lands are being consumed at an alarming rate, thus reducing a food and fiber production source. Conservation and replenishment of natural resources should always be considered.

—Any land-use legislation would have to have positive safeguards placing total jurisdiction of implementation in the hands of local communities. This is perhaps its most important aspect. Any community knows what is best for itself.

3. What should be the role of Congress in protecting the environment and conserving resources while planning to meet the increased demands for energy?

Congress should set policy and guidelines, as well as priorities and then provide funding for states to administer wherever possible. Cooperative research between private and governmental sources should be practiced in addition to increased conservation measures.

Any land that the U.S. Government has control over should be wisely assessed as to the expense (environmentally) versus the need and useability of the energy extracted from that source. If urgently needed then the Congress should take the necessary steps to procure that energy.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Riding the nostalgic bandwagon, NBC has scheduled for a fall presentation what it calls "a contemporary recreation" of New York's famed Cotton Club night spot of the 1920s and 1930s. The 90-minute special will include Ray Charles and his orchestra. It will never satisfy those who remember that famous home screen was a novelty. He is no longer a novelty, what with approaching his 20th consecutive year as master of ceremonies of the Miss America pageant.

 Funny Dick Van Dyke, who won't have a series going for him next season except for syndicated reruns of past series, will play a villain in "Negative Reaction," a new NBC "Columbo" episode in the new season.

 Additional players in the forthcoming CBS "Planet of the Apes" series are Ron Harper and James Naughton. They join Roddy McDowell, Booth Colman and Mark Leonard.
