

today in brief

Miami garage falls, dozen trapped

MIAMI (UPI) — A three-story parking garage in downtown Miami collapsed today, trapping as many as a dozen people under rubble and cars.

"There were 15 or 20 people inside and so far we've gotten six or eight out," said a fire department spokesman. "It's a bad scene, apparently. We haven't got any injury reports yet but it can't be good. There's concrete and automobiles on top of some of those people."

25th favored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said Sunday President Nixon should turn over the powers of his office to Vice President Gerald Ford under the 25th Amendment rather than resign from office.

Proxmire said he believes Nixon should step aside until the impeachment issue is resolved. He also linked the impeachment issue with moves necessary to regain economic health in the U.S.

Rhodes delays impeach statement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona has postponed a news conference planned for today at which he was expected to announce his position on impeachment.

His press secretary, Jay Smith, said Rhodes was ill Sunday with a high fever and would hold the news conference later in the week.

Rhodes was expected to announce that he could not lead a Republican defense against impeachment. He had earlier urged President Nixon to consider the possibility of resigning for the good of the country.

Illinois evacuees return to homes

PEOTON, Ill. (UPI) — About 500 persons were evacuated from their homes Sunday and early today when a freight train derailment cracked open a tank car carrying a potentially deadly chemical.

After a 10-hour wait in churches or the homes of friends, they were told by authorities it was safe to return.

Jury convicts

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI) — William A. H. Williams was found guilty Sunday night by a federal grand jury of extorting $700,000 from the Atlanta Constitution for the release of kidnapped editor Reg. Murphy.

U.S. District Court Judge William G. Quinceley set sentencing for Aug. 21 at the maximum penalty on the three charges in which he was tried. Williams could receive a 30-year sentence. Williams plans an appeal.

Fascist group claims it set bomb

SAN BENEDETTO VAL DI SAMBRO, Italy (UPI) — A Fascist right-wing organization calling itself "Black Order" claimed responsibility today for bombing the Rome-Munich Italian express Sunday, killing 12 persons and injuring 48 others.

"A statement claiming responsibility for planting a time bomb aboard the train was found in a telephone booth in Bologna. It was signed 'Ordine Nero' — Black Order."

Turks, Greeks try to break deadlock

By United Press International

Turkish and Greek army negotiators scouted frontline positions on Cyprus from a helicopter today trying to break a deadlock over cease-fire lines. Each side charged the other with treaty violations and atrocities.

United Nations officers overseeing the talks between military representatives of Turkey, Greece and Britain gave no report of progress after the fourth straight day of negotiations.

Greece ordered a high alert in response to reported Turkish troop movements along their joint border.

Resignation pressure grows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Assistant Senate Republican Leader Robert P. Griffin said today President Nixon should resign "in the national interest and in his own interest."

Griffin told reporters that such a step by the President represented "an awesome decision — but I believe he will see it that way too."

Emerging from a closed session of the Senate Rules Committee considering rules to govern Nixon's possible impeachment trial, Griffin said in a quavering voice as he read from notes scribbled on a slip of paper:

"I think we have arrived at a point where both the national interest and his own interest is best served by resigning. It's not just his enemies who feel that way but many of his best friends — and I include myself in that group — believe that this would be the most appropriate course for him to take."

Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott declared comment on Griffin's statement — and said he would — make his own impeachment position known "at the appropriate time."

"I have come to no conclusion that I would care to share at this time," said Scott. "It's been a hard two years. Whatever I do in going to do it, it's not a ten face myself in the mirror — I can face my friends."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said either resignation by the President or a temporary stepping aside under the 25th Amendment is "a matter which the President himself will have to determine. It's not for me to say."

During the weekend, Griffin sent the President a letter saying that if necessary the Senate would subpoena tapes of 14 presidential conversations, which the Supreme Court ordered Nixon to turn over to Judge John J. Sirica.

Griffin's letter said defiance of such a subpoena would likely be considered by the Senate as an impeachable offense.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., said today that if there is an impeachment trial in the Senate, he will ask that the tapes be subpoenaed.

Part of them already are in Sirica's hands. He is reviewing them for relevancy in the Watergate cover-up trial beginning next month.

The Washington Post, in an article by Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, said today that several White House sources told them those tapes contained statements potentially damaging to Nixon.

The story said Nixon may be devising a new anti-impeachment strategy in light of the tapes, including the possibility of admitting some degree of guilt in the Watergate cover-up.

Ford said in answer to questions in New Orleans that he thought if he was still in the House, he would vote to censure Nixon.

Police cop top trophy in 8-team Gem contest

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It was supposed to be a joke when a team of Twin Falls policemen boasted they would show the firemen how to wield a fire hose.

But not too many firemen were still laughing Sunday when the police team, calling itself the "Pig Squirts," defeated seven teams of firemen from throughout Idaho in the beer barrel hose contest.

Despite a poorer showing Saturday in hose juggling, the Twin Falls policemen managed to win the state's traveling squirting trophy and the last laugh.

The Twin Falls police, who began practicing with firemen several weeks ago just to give them someone to work out against, competed Saturday and Sunday with seven fire departments from Idaho cities in the statewide contest.

In the barrel event teams use a fire hose to force a barrel along a cable to a point behind the opposing team.

These events serve as part of the fire department training and help make firemen proficient in handling hoses.

City Manager Jean Miller, who helped present trophies, said he had promised the winning Twin Falls team a trip to Couer d'Alene in August to compete in a contest there.

"It looks like Twin Falls will be represented by police in the firemen's contest," Miller said Sunday.

Fire Chief Hobby Bopp announced at the close of the contests the four policemen would be made volunteer firemen as of that moment.

Also as part of the fun, the Twin Falls fire department had four small special trophies made to present the police officers. Each received a shiny gold pig. These were to be presented to the police officers for their "efforts."

Team members included Ray Painter, Bob Magel, Pat Berningham and the captain, Gaty White.

The more experienced Twin Falls first fireman team was eliminated about halfway through the Sunday contest. Second place went to Hayden Lake after a hard fought battle with policemen, and third place went to the Twin Falls second team.

In the women's event, which was almost as rugged as the male competition, Filer placed first. Twin Falls second and Jerome third.

Twin Falls firemen had to leave to quell a weed fire and the contest was delayed briefly.

Crash kills man

DIETRICH — A 67-year-old Dietrich man, George W. Calsing, was killed in a one car accident Sunday evening on a two-mile east of Shoshone.

Sheriff B. J. Anderson, who investigated, said Calsing was traveling east on State Highway 24 when he failed to negotiate a sharp curve in the road. His car ran off the road into the ditch and overturned. He was not thrown from the vehicle, but died instantly from head injuries, Anderson said.

The car was demolished.

Shoshone man dies

SHOSHONE — Elmer L. Terry, 68, Shoshone, former chairman of the Shoshone school board, died today at a Boise hospital.

Mr. Terry was active in community affairs in Shoshone and Lincoln County. He was employed as a rural mail carrier.

Mr. Terry suffered a stroke at his home late Saturday and was taken to a Boise hospital.

Fugitives evade officers

SANDPOINT (UPI) — Three jailbreak fugitives claiming to be Symbionese Liberation Army soldiers are apparently in no hurry to leave the area despite threats to kill "at least" five Los Angeles policemen, a Bonner County deputy said today.

Deputy Andy Anderson said it is firmly believed the three are still in the area and in no hurry to leave even though there has been no positive sighting of them since July 31.

It was on that day that the three, aided by a fourth still unidentified man, robbed a California man and his son of $210 and their late model pickup.

He said he believes the men are staying in the area because of its rugged terrain that hampers any effective search effort.

But Anderson also said he believes the three may want to cause further harm in the area. He said the three, who at one time were all in the Bonner County jail just prior to the July 22 breakout, came across to him as being "against the whole world."

Kimberly girl dies in wreck

TWIN FALLS — A 10-year-old Kimberly girl was killed Sunday afternoon in a single car rollover over four miles east of Twin Falls.

State Patrolman Frank Mogensson said Kimberly Stee Braswell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reeves, Kimberly, was killed when thrown from the small car she was driving.

Mogensson said she and two passengers, Brenda Singleton, 13, and Hattie Young, 15, both Kimberly, were traveling toward Twin Falls on Falls Avenue East when the accident occurred.

Both passengers were released from Magie Valley Memorial Hospital after treatment.

Mogensson said the girls had just left Kimberly and the Singleton and Young girls said they were snacking when the driver figuratively smashed a handful of potato chips. Her attention was diverted briefly from the highway.

He said the vehicle left the road on the right side. The driver then pulled it back, apparently over correcting and losing control. The vehicle left the road on the south side, rolled over several times and came to rest in a bean field.

Mogensson said the car was demolished. The two passengers stayed in the car while the driver was thrown out and killed instantly.

The accident was reported at 5:45 p.m. Deputy Sheriff Kenneth Shaw assisted Mogensson with the accident. He was enroute to another traffic accident which occurred at the same time a few miles to the east. There were no injuries in the second accident.

Mr. T-N says

Hmm, maybe TF's police have a new weapon to use against crime now.

Nixon back in capital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon returned to the White House today following a weekend at Camp David engaged in anti-impeachment strategy talks with his top aides. Watergate defense lawyers and two speech writers.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, would not discuss the nature of the Sunday meeting but said Nixon would not resign or temporarily turn over his duties to Vice President Gerald R. Ford under the 25th amendment.

Despite the presence of speech writers at the Camp David meeting, Warren discounted speculation that Nixon may be preparing a major television address this week.

There will not be a speech this week, and nothing is planned in the way of a formal presidential statement," Warren said.

Warren also would not comment on a Washington Post story that the tapes — the Supreme Court ordered turned over to US District Judge John J. Sirica, contained some material potentially damaging to Nixon.

Meningitis toll over 500 mark

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Health authorities said today an epidemic of infectious meningitis, which is believed to have killed 500 people across Brazil, abated over the weekend.

A spokesman for the Sao Paulo State Health Department said no new deaths were recorded Sunday in Sao Paulo, a metropolis of more than five million people, in south central Brazil having the highest toll in the disease.

The health department said that only 124 new meningitis patients were admitted to hospitals Sunday, a considerable decrease from previous days.

Valley seats contested

TWIN FALLS — Legislative battles in eastern and western Twin Falls county and on the Northside are the highlight of local election contests in Tuesday's primary.

Most attention has been drawn to the Republican primary battle in District 25, for the eastern half of Twin Falls City and county.

There are one-term incumbent Ralph Olmstead and newly-appointed incumbent Joe McCollum are facing strong challenges from newcomers E. J. Morgan and T. J. Stevens.

(County races, see p. 11)

Olmstead is a farmer and cattle feeder. McCollum is district manager of SMC, Inc. Stevens is president of three title firms.

District 24 — western Twin Falls city and county) — On the Republican ticket for state representative, incumbent William Roberts is challenged by Roy E. Brackett, Betty Hoppe and Lawrence Knigge. Roberts is a farm equipment dealer. Brackett is a farmer. Knigge formerly was an employee of the Idaho Department of Employment; Knigge is a farmer and rancher.

District 23 (Gooding, Jerome and Lincoln counties) — On the Republican ticket for state representative, Clair Ricketts, of Gordon Hillfield and John Brooks are the candidates. On the Democratic ticket for state representative, Richard Strickland, William Kersy Jr. and Anna Robison are the hopefuls.

District 22 (Camas and Elmore counties) — On the Republican ticket for state representative, Charles Lee Barron, Dan Kelly and Virgil KPMUS are candidates. On the Republican ticket for state senator, incumbent, Wilson Steen and Charles Lee Barron are the contenders.

The only contest in the Fifth Judicial District pits Gooding and Douglas Kramer, Twin Falls, in a race for the seat being vacated by Judge Charles Scoggin, who is retiring.

The winner will be decided in the primary election unless no candidate receives a majority of the vote in that case, the two receiving the most votes will face off in the general election.

Vote! Primary polls open at 8 a.m. Tuesday

S. Viet Rangers retake DaNang posts from Reds

SAGON (UPI) — Communist-ruled South Vietnamese forces today recaptured two of the 31 outposts lost in bloody week-long fighting with the Communists on the approaches to Da Nang.

The outposts and two battalions of Rangers of about 100 men took the posts three miles southeast of the district capital of Da Nang.

Threatened by Communist forces for 21 days, and succeeded in retaking them.

The officers said the Rangers killed 200 Communist soldiers and their own men in the fighting to recapture the two outposts which had been taken over by Communist government troops.

Communist forces overran the 11 small Ranger posts during the weekend, all around the district capital, 20 miles southwest of Da Nang, and still held it.

The officers said two other government battalions of Rangers, backed by tanks, were able to move through Communist lines to retake the outposts. The Communist troops at Da Nang, the Red forces, made no contact with the Communists.

Backed by heavy airstrikes and artillery, government troops Monday also recaptured a hilltop post defending four clusters of reengineered hamlets at My Lai Village, outside of Quang Binh, 120 miles north of Saigon. The officers said. The post had been abandoned by about 20 men and lost to Communist forces last Saturday.

Communist gunners lobbed about 200 rounds of mortar and rockets into government troops, causing the high casualties.

Guinea independence nears

LISBON (UPI) — Portugal is expected to grant independence to Guinea this week more than five centuries after Lisbon's Duke "circled" man's first set foot on the African territory.

Western diplomats' sources said Portugal would also take initial steps to give up Angola and Mozambique in two other major African territories — in a dramatic drive to more than a dozen years of guerrilla warfare.

UN Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, who made an historic visit to Portugal over the weekend, said the Lisbon government is ready to grant independence to Guinea and let the colony join the world body.

"The only way to saving Guinea's independence," a reliable Western diplomat source said, "Portugal will probably make the announcement this week."

Waldheim, in comments before flying to Vienna, said Sunday Portugal is ready to recognize the independence of Guinea and negotiate the "immediate transfer of the sovereignty."

He said Portugal would take "immediate steps" to enter into talks with the Mozambique Liberation Front, and "make early contacts" with the three guerrilla groups fighting in Angola's independence.

He said sources said Portuguese Guinea, called the Republic of Guinea Bissau by the guerrillas, has applied for membership in the world body and would be admitted by the end of September.

HOPKINS
REPUBLICAN ATTORNEY GENERAL FOR IDAHO

A NEW NAME, A NEW FACE, AND PROVEN PROFESSIONAL TALENT WILL ADD A BRIGHT NEW DIMENSION TO THE LEGAL DEPARTMENT OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

Tim Hopkins is a remarkable young man of demonstrated ability as a lawyer and a practical dedication to the public interest. He is a practicing attorney in Idaho Falls. He has taken an active part in politics as a worker, campaign manager and as a precinct committeeman. His candidacy for Attorney General is his first bid for elective office.

"This is no time for anyone, particularly young people, to be indifferent about what's going on in our state and our country. We can't afford to be disinterested. We must get involved to restore confidence and common sense to government. That's why I'm offering my best energies, the professional training and the experience I've been fortunate enough to receive to the people of Idaho. If they accept my offer, I'll do my very best to warrant their support."

Signal funds okayed

SHOSHONE Mayor Ellwood H. Werry announced today that federal funds to aid Shoshone in safety device construction at railroad crossings have been approved. The funds were applied for last spring when Werry received notification such funds were available. The federal money is allocated to the Idaho Highway Department, and each city with a safety problem concerning the railroad must make application to that department.

Mayor Werry said Shoshone's request is number one on the priority list.

"This will be a big project," Mayor Werry said, including bars and lights at the Highway 91 crossing, Apple Street and Grape Street crossings.

The federal funds administered by the state highway department will cover 90 per cent of the crossing devices at Apple Street, while Union Pacific Railroad Co. will pay the remaining ten percent.

The railroad plans to pay the total cost of the safety devices at the Grape Street crossing on the west edge of the city. The Union Pacific and highway department will jointly pay for the Highway 91 crossing.

Cost to the city will be minimal—the mayor points out—because a preliminary construction plan is being prepared by the city treasurer being one of those expenses to the city, however.

At the Aug. 6 City Council meeting an agreement with the highway department to begin work on the preliminary plan will be acted upon.

The mayor made the prediction as to exact starting date for the project, but he says it will be before the year begins. The first stage of work would be remodeling the tracks with three sets of tracks to be removed in the overall plan.

The crossings in Shoshone have been a hazard for years and local sentiment has increased for action since several fatal accidents occurred in Shoshone the past year or two.

'Light turnout' seen for vote

BOISE (UPI) — After a lusty campaign that featured general election opponents, Idahoans pick candidates for congressional, state and legislative offices Tuesday.

Veteran forecasters are predicting a "light turnout" of about 733,000 — the same as in 1970 — even though the population has increased considerably since that time.

They attribute it to a lack of interest generated in part by the fact neither party has a contest for the gubernatorial nomination this time — for the first time in more than 20 years.

Last-minute campaigning, of course, could heighten interest in the election. In some areas, local races or local candidates in major races promise a hefty turnout at the polls.

Voting booths in the state's 15 precincts will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

TWIN FALLS Incumbent William Chaney and challenger George Henthum are seeking the district 22 Republican ballot.

Chaney said there is a need to plan for increasing growth in Twin Falls County.

"As the county grows, the school district should be looked at quite carefully," Chaney said. He cited the newly approved zoning plan as a step in the direction of "controlling development in an orderly manner."

Another major problem the county faces is the disposal of solid waste matter, Chaney said. The county should look for ways to fund the "user" pyramid.

Chaney commented, "The facilities are a matter of being able to fund an ever-increasing solid waste burden on the real property owners."

Chaney said he looked for a funding mechanism so the mill levy supporting the facility could be reduced.

Chaney also mentioned the airport as "a vital part of our whole community."

"I feel that our airport is sufficient for the needs of the population in the valley," Chaney said. With added improvements, he said, he sees an opportunity to build a regional airport somewhere. Expansion of the present airport is "the best way to spend the taxpayer's dollar," he added.

Henthum today said he is seeking the district 22 seat because "I just think we need to replace Chaney."

Henthum would not discuss his reasons, saying only, "I thought every time at Twin Falls was running the way it was supposed to, I wouldn't be running."

Henthum talked about all the people in Twin Falls County and "I believe that's enough," Henthum said.

Wacky weather around world bodes ill for millions

(c) Newhouse News Service

Even casual observers have noticed the weather has been more wacky than usual in recent years.

Sandstorms are getting wetter. Some are becoming drier and it's colder almost everywhere.

The United States, the Philippines and Italy have suffered their worst floods in a century at the same time that Africa, India and China have starved in droughts.

Drifting ice has impeded the approach of ships to ice-fan's ports for the first time in this century, and fishing fleets have been unable to range as far north as they are accustomed in England. The growing season has shortened by two weeks since 1950.

An increasing body of scientific opinion believes global weather is changing. For the world's teeming population, the implications can only be described as disastrous.

There is important climatic change going on right now," says Reid Bryson, director of the Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Wisconsin, and it's not merely something of academic interest.

"It is something that, if it continues, will affect the whole human population of the earth — like many millions of people starving. The effects are already showing up in rather drastic ways."

Viewed from the perspective of thousands of years, the first half of this century was an extraordinary brief interlude of exceptionally warm and benign weather.

The warming trend peaked in about 1945, and temperatures have been dropping since. The total drop has been about 2.7 degrees Fahrenheit — hardly enough to change images of the glaciers that crept over North America 10,000 years ago.

But a crucially important effect of this global cooling trend, according to climatologists, is to be found far above the Earth. In the complex circuitry of winds which sweep around the planet and determine rainfall patterns over much of the Earth.

Says Bryson: "It is critical how big the cap of westerlies winds which sweep from west to east around the North Pole is."

"When the world gets colder, this cap gets much bigger, and this can be seen from the fact that the jet stream, the high-altitude, high-velocity wind belt south of the westerlies, has been shifted a couple of degrees farther south."

As the westerlies change, two things happened, according to Bryson and others.

"First," says Dr. Edward M. Brooks, a long-range weather forecaster, "the polar westerlies replaced the trade winds blowing from the east, and replacing them with unsteady winds."

There is, says Brooks, lies the explanation for the unusual weather in the temperate zones, including the United States, in recent years.

Secondly, and most disastrously, the westerlies have pushed high-pressure zones in front of them to the South, blocking monsoons out of regions where they are vital to the survival of millions of people and causing these life-giving rains to be dumped into oceans or onto land areas that already have plenty of rain.

Unflooded thousands have died in Africa as the Sahara Desert has grown southward at a rate of several miles per year into what used to be grassland. A broad, dry weather belt, has developed across Africa, the Middle East and North China, bringing famine.

Where Brooks and Bryson and other scientists part company is over what is causing the global cooling trend.

Brooks specializes in the study of sun spots, predictors of weather patterns, and notes that sun spot activity during the first half of this century was unusually high. Just as measles indicate a fever, sun spots indicate a "hot" sun. Brooks says, and the level of sun spot activity has declined in the last couple of decades.

Others, including Bryson, emphasize the effect of atmospheric dust and ash in blocking the sun's rays.

According to this view, volcanic activity was low in the first half of the century, leaving the Earth's atmosphere relatively free of dust and ash, allowing the Sun's warmth to penetrate to the earth.

"Since then, a combination of volcanic and industrial sources have spewed greater and greater amounts of dust and ash into the atmosphere, forming a shield which has prevented the earth from receiving the full benefit of the sun's rays."

Though differing as to cause, Brooks and Bryson agree as to effect: global temperatures will continue to fall.

"When you look at the past you find that cooling trends like this have never lasted less than 40 years. This means that this trend should go to 1985 at least," Brooks says.

Neither scientist claims absolute authority but an impressive body of scientific opinion holds that, at the least, the world is headed into a period of less favorable weather.

Mankind has, of course, managed to survive previous periods of relatively cool weather, including the "little ice age" from 1400 to 1900.

But the population explosion, many experts think, raises the possibility of massive, almost unimaginable human tragedy.

Severe droughts were common in India 70 years ago. But there are two and a half times as many people there now. What are we going to do with all these people in the United States?"

Bryson says:

"Scientists point with alarm to the dwindling world food reserves in recent years. In 1947, there were world food reserves on the order of about 100 days; now it's down to about three weeks," Bryson says.

Highly concentrated population is still going up about 2 1/2 percent in recent years. In 1947, there were four years left with the dwindling of the past reserves, people have actually been producing less than they have been eating.

WASHINGTON — Although the House Judiciary Committee has performed a commendable public service, there are some disturbing implications in its delays and its failure to act.

It is not merely encouraging the stalling bipartisan majority recommended the first two articles of impeachment to the House of Representatives, it is astonishing that the third was approved so narrowly. Nixon has violated the Constitution in refusing to obey the judiciary committee's subpoenas in this impeachment

Analysis

Inquiry. Instead of squeezing through by a vote of 21 to 17, this article should have been approved unanimously.

The Constitution reserves the impeachment power solely to the House. Without that power to produce, any and all evidence of impeachment power is meaningless.

It was readily apparent why the article on the secret Cambodian bombing failed. In pure constitutional terms, there could hardly be a more clear-cut offense than Nixon's bombing of a neutral country and his lying to the people and the Congress about it.

But the House had failed to assist Nixon and his predecessors through the whole Vietnam war.

The tax fund and emoluments of office article was also defeated for a reason having little to do with the facts of the Constitution. Rep. Joe Brooks, proxy, as a subcommittee chairman of the government operations committee, conducted a thorough inquiry into the misuse of federal funds to financially and improve Nixon's estate at San Clemente and Key Biscayne. The Internal Revenue Service in its report of Nixon's taxes estimated this diversion of public funds to his private benefit conservatively at $67,000. Brooks' findings suggest the figure was worse: $1 million.

Using other figures Brooks could show a violation of the constitutional language forbidding a President from receiving any other emoluments. It could conceivably be argued that this chisel is too petty to be the subject of an impeachment. But the opponents of this article did not make that argument.

Subcommittee Chairman Edwin Musicki, D-Iowa, outlined a case of tax fraud on the part of Nixon based on the taking of a deed to justify a wholly illegal deduction of $76,000 for his papers. He reminded his colleagues that the head of the tax fraud division of the Justice Department had testified that on these known facts, any other taxpayer would have had his case submitted to a grand jury for criminal prosecution.

Unable to refute these facts, Nixon's defenders misstated them. The committee ought not to cite Nixon, they argued, because the joint committee on Internal Revenue taxation and the IRS had both refused to cite him for fraud. But, in fact, the IRS had referred the fraud issue to the special prosecutor, and the joint committee had referred it to the judiciary committee.

Tax fraud and diversion of public funds are on the same level of seriousness as bribery, the financial crime specifically mentioned in the Constitution as a ground for impeachment. Why then did a majority of members run away from the facts?

The proposed article gave them something to vote against. Those conservatives who had offended Pro-Nixon constituents by supporting the first two articles and those liberals eager to show that they are open-minded could use a "no" vote to prove they are not pursuing an implacable vendetta against Nixon.

Reasonableness and open-mindedness, or using the imagination to invent some worthy reasons for public non-response, are worthy values. But in mind that injecting the tax fraud and emoluments article, most members were trying to conciliate people who still believe in Nixon.

They regarded this conciliatory effort as more important than responding to the facts of the matter or the plain words of the Constitution.

Power in prosecutors' hands persecutes

The New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — If we believe in the jury system, we must believe that a rich, white Southern Republican like John Connally will get a fair trial. If we believe in the jury system, we must believe that a poor, black and Jewish woman like Bernice Hanft will get a fair trial.

If we believe in the jury system, we must believe it is possible to find jurors who can rise above all considerations of prejudice, especially political prejudice, no matter where a trial is held.

And yet there is something in law that recognizes the human frailty of jurors. To protect the accused as well as the jury system, a judge is given the discretion to grant a change of venue — a move of a trial to another place — if a jury prejudiced by publicity is more likely to be found.

We can no longer avoid the fact that bill Watergate trials which have been held in the District of Columbia have resulted, in convictions, in a trial held in Watergate trial held outside the district resulted in acquittal.

Washington, D.C. is by far the most political town in America. It is a town whose industry is government, where communications media is especially attuned to the news of politics and where politics is discussed in terms of interest more than any other city in America.

Although the Watergate trials are criminal trials, not political trials, nobody can seriously hold that there are no political overtones to these trials. The trials are not overtones; they are political prejudice to make itself felt.

But District of Columbia judges consider a change of venue to be a challenge to the Anchorage District Justice, as if switching a trial to another place is tantamount to accusing that judge of holding a "sterile" courtroom.

Certainly they are not. It would be an appeal by shunning the home holiday tactics of the judge in Dr. Sam Sheppard trial. But what harm would it do to shift a Watergate trial to another place? It is not the place that has shown itself to be the home of prejudice, Watergate convictions. There is public benefit in the appearance as well as the fact of fairness: let other cities share the burden of retribution.

In that regard, the new Justice Committee and the conviction here last week of California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, is evidence of the willingness of prosecutors to seek indictments peculiar to the reign of terror.

When the work of the special prosecutor office is investigated — as surely it will be, when journalists tire of this new form of press release and Commission see daylight in the exposure of the excess of zeal — questions like this will be raised:

"Sounds Like the Overture, Jerry!"

Capitol guerrillas gunning for Simon community generally.

In response to the President's request, Simon on July 6 — five days before his overseas mission — wrote a memorandum to recommend that coordinator Kenneth Rich point out possible budget cuts.

While Simon was flying to Saudi Arabia, a version of his program was leaked. In publisher form, he was painted as a barefaced band salesman from Wall Street pushing $20 billion.

Simon returned last week from a two-week overseas mission and that the White House was seemingly oblivious to such warfare. He has made clear his disappointment that President Nixon's top assistants did not immediately repudiate distorted leaks of his budget-cutting efforts.

Tough treatment for the best of his Cabinet members has been habitual during Nixon's presidency. But what was vicious in past years can be disastrous in today's atmosphere where rumormongers in Washington since Wall Street and Main Street.

Animosities toward Simon which has grown steadily among Nixon staffers is the underpinning to the power struggle between Simon and Office of Management and Budget Director Charles Colson.

summoned immediately so that Simon could confront Ash on the leak.

The guerrilla fighting obscures what Simon actually proposed in his memo for funds: if uncontrolled spending, social security, health care, housing, etc.) is untouchable and defense is not to be reduced significantly, the rest of the budget would have to be cut an unthinkable 40 percent.

Simon proposed a six-month postponement of increases (saving $1.5 billion). Nor is the memorandum all-inclusive. Besides what is listed there, Simon also talks about postponing construction projects, 1600 stamps and the highway program. In addition to all this, he is intent on economies in the Pentagon of $7 billion to $1 billion.

All of the above recommendations are illustrative, Simon concludes his memo. But with signing the Budget Control bill, the President seems more interested in appeasing his jurors in the Senate than making moves against inflation.

Indeed, White House failure to denounce Simon was almost surely caused by the New York Times — the Kennedy brothers — in the same position as Peter Peterson, the highly regarded secretary of commerce, was at the end of Nixon's first term.

But with signing the Budget Control bill, the President seems more interested in appeasing his jurors in the Senate than making moves against inflation.

EVANS AND NOVAK

Immediate budget reduction, Nixon, furthermore, was suggested as lifting against the Simon plan. The White House greeted the published report with silence.

The White House was surprised at Simon's outrage when he returned, confronting presidential aides Alexander Haig and Kenneth Clawson for their failure to keep the budget. That anger is shared by Dr. Burns and Chairman Mills. Burns would like to see the Quadriga, the government's top economic policymaking body.

'No panic,' says Rush; Simon seeks restraint

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment of up to 6 per cent this year is the price of inflation and the administration's previous attempt at wage-price controls, according to Kenneth Rush, the President's economic coordinator.

But both Rush and Treasury Secretary William F. Simon predicted Sunday that unemployment would not exceed 6 per cent this year and both said the rate of inflation would be down to 7.5 per cent by the end of the year.

Rush and Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., agreed that there is no reason for an economic panic, despite a report in Sunday's Washington Post quoting Chase Manhattan Bank president David Rockefeller as saying, "One shouldn't discount the possibility of a panic" because of current economic uncertainties.

Proxmire was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers," Rush on CBS' "Face the Nation," and Simon on NBC's "Meet the Press."

"I see no possibility of a panic or a crash," said Rush. He said banks are "too greedy" and must slow down their competition for the short supply of money.

Proxmire said today's economic problems are the fault of the administration and Congress for having failed to find a way to slow inflation without causing more unemployment.

But, he said, "There are lots of things that are right" with the economy and "I don't think they (the public) should panic."

Proxmire also said Nixon, because of his preoccupation with impeachment, should temporarily hand over his powers to Vice President Gerald R. Ford under terms of the 25th Amendment, as an "absolutely essential" move toward getting the economy back in good shape.

Simon said fiscal restraint is the key to dealing with the economy. "Unemployment inching up does not mean we have a recession," Simon said. "And we can deal with unemployment in welfare and unemployment in good shape. I do think we should continue to stick to the fiscal restraint which is now in place and which is just now beginning to bite."

Rush said the administration would not re-impose wage and price controls as a way of keeping unemployment down at the same time as lowering the inflation rate.

"We tried this 'no unemployment and no inflation' idea in August, 1971, and we're paying a heavy price for that today," Rush said.

White House counts on backing of 36 Senators

(C) New York Times Service
NEW YORK (UPI) — Newsweek Magazine said today that it had obtained a list of 36 Senators the White House is counting on to support President Nixon if he is impeached and brought to trial in the Senate.

According to the magazine's Aug. 12 issue, some of the 36 Senators on the White House list may be "shaky" in their support of Nixon, who would need at least 34 votes to avoid conviction.

One of those on the list, Robert P. Griffin, a Michigan Republican who serves as deputy minority leader, warned Nixon Saturday he would regard it as "an impeachable offense and vote accordingly." If Nixon should defy a Senate subpoena for White House tapes as evidence in a Senate trial.

The list, which included the name of Harry E. Byrd Jr. of Virginia, the Senate's lone independent, cited seven Southern Senators on the list as Democrats in the Senate and 29 of its 45 Republicans.

The 36 senators on the White House list are:

Democrats: James B. Allen, Ala.; Harry E. Byrd Jr., Va.; James O. Eastland, Miss.;

Bennett Johnston Jr., La.; John L. McClellan, Ark.; Sam Nunn, Ga.; John Stennis, Miss.; Herman E. Tamm, Ga.

Republicans: Howard Baker, Tenn.; Dewey F. Bartlett, Okla.; J. Glenn Beall Jr., Md.; Henry J. Bellmon, Okla.; Wallace F. Bennett, Utah; Bill Brock, Tenn.; Marlowe W. Cook, Ky.; Morris Cotton, N. C.; Carl T. Curtis, Neb.; Bob Dole, Kan.; Pete V. Domenici, N. M.; Peter H. Dinklage, Colo.; Paul J. Fannin, Ark.; Hiram E. Fong, Hawaii; Barry Goldwater, Ariz.; Robert P. Griffin, Mich.; Edward J. Scott, Va.; Ted Stevens, Alaska; Robert Telford, Ohio; Steven Thayer, N. C.

C. John G. Tower, Tex.

In addition, Newsweek said the White House considers 37th Senator, George D. Aiken, R-Vt., as "persuadable."

Heavy loss facing Nixon if convicted

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Nixon would suffer grievous financial losses if impeached by the House of Representatives and convicted by the Senate — losses that he could avoid by resigning.

Having looked into the situation, several of his longtime financial backers, including Donald M. Kendall, chairman of PepsiCo, Inc., are reported by White House aides to have sent word to Nixon that he should weigh his financial future carefully before reaching a final decision.

If convicted, Nixon would automatically be removed from office and that would cost him the lifetime pension provided by the Congress in a measure passed in 1958 and amended repeatedly since. The pension equals the salary of a senator member — currently $20,000 a year, but likely to increase with inflation in the future.

In providing the pension, Congress stipulated that it should not be paid to a President whose term was ended by removal pursuant to Section Four of Article II of the Constitution — the impeachment provision.

The same law provided additional emoluments for former Presidents, as part of a plan to guarantee that no one who had served as chief executive would be forced to live in or near poverty. Among these were free office space — $6,000 a year for staff salaries and office allowances, and a $20,000-a-year lifetime pension for presidential widows.

Naval cost overrun hit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon critic Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., challenged the Navy twice this weekend, taking the military establishment to task for underestimating the strength of the Navy and the cost of shipbuilding programs.

Contrary to the contention of retiring Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Elmo H. Zumwalt, Aspin said Sunday the Navy is far ahead of the Russians in ship tonnage, is expanding and has not lost control of the seas.

Aspin said an independent study shows that the Navy now has 3.6 million tons of major combat and support ships compared to 2.6 million tons for the Soviet navy.

He said current and projected shipbuilding programs indicate that the United States will add 1.1 million tons to its fleet and the Soviet Union 468,000 tons by the early 1980s.

Aspin said the study was prepared by the Center for Defense Information, a nonprofit privately financed research organization headed by a retired Navy officer, Rear Adm. Gene Lorence.

In numbers of ships, Aspin said, the study showed the Soviet Union is ahead, but that, he said, was the result of "a conscious decision" by the U.S. Navy to go for bigger ships.

Saturday, Aspin charged that Litton Industries was an extra $70 million to finish two major shipbuilding programs for the Navy that are already far behind schedule.

Both Litton and the Navy confirmed basic details of Aspin's charge but said he distorted the circumstances and made the problem seem worse than it is.

Aspin said an internal Navy investigation indicates Litton will finish the last of five big helicopter carriers (LHA) 41 months behind schedule, a year later than previous estimates. Litton is seeking an extra $400 million on that contract, he said.

The Navy said there was "no investigation" but merely an analysis of the validity of an additional delay of 12 months.

The Navy said the analysis confirms the delay will take place.

Aspin said Navy officials also have confirmed that the last of 30 DD-961 destroyers is 11 months behind schedule and Litton is seeking an extra $20 million on the whole contract.

Litton said the delays were Navy's fault because it ordered changes in the ships' design work.

Aspin said the delays were due to "an inadequate and inefficient labor force" at Litton's shipyard in Pascagoula, Miss.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A brief and to the point televised speech by President Nixon accepting full blame for government corruption might avoid impeachment, a Republican congressman says.

Rep. Howard W. Tolson of

New York said Saturday that Nixon should follow the example of Southern states' former White House counsel and chief accuser, John W. Dean, when he was sentenced Friday for his role in the Watergate coverup.

Shooting victim

FATHER Joseph O'Brien, 46, chaplain of the Walls Unit of Texas State Prison in Huntsville, Tex., attempts a weak smile from his hospital bed Sunday. He was shot by Rebel prison inmate Ignacio Cevalas as he and two others, including Fred Gomez Carrasco, attempted to break out of the prison's education building. (UPI)

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Prison officials Sunday said they never intended to let Fred Gomez Carrasco and two fellow inmates get out of the Texas State Penitentiary alive. "We could never in good conscience turn this kind of a menace loose on the community of Texas," said the state corrections director, W.J. Estelle.

"No hostage taken through any act of any prison can be considered anything but dead," Estelle said. Carrasco and one of his confederates died in a volley of gunfire Saturday night after they emerged from their library forged armor in a day-long "Trojan Horse" made of strapped-together blackboards from library books.

Two hostages were also killed and a third was wounded. Handcuffed to the walls, inside the makeshift shield were Julia Standley, 43, a librarian, Elizabeth Beseda, 47, a teacher, the Rev. Joseph O'Brien, the prison's Catholic chaplain, and Novella Ballard, 46, an assistant principal.

The other eight hostages formed a human shield around the blackboard. They were down the ramp leading to the prison courtyard. 43 state and federal officers unleashed streams of water from highpowered hoses, that knocked down the human shield.

The officers yelled at Carrasco as he was unloading a bandolero of bullets strapped across his chest, to give up. The seven were on their way to an armored car 50 feet away, which Carrasco had hoped to make his escape.

At 10:34 p.m., 35 to 40 shots were fired. Carrasco was the shield, and apparently in response to the officers' cry to surrender. Estelle said in a statement. He did not say whether any officers died in the shooting.

Some of the shots severed the fire hoses, but not before Carrasco lost control of the blackboards and let them slide down the ramp, leaving him, his accomplices and the hostages completely exposed.

For 10 minutes it was quiet. Then more shots rang out. Mrs. Standley and Mrs. Beseda fell fatally wounded, and three other hostages — the Rev. O'Brien and two convicts — were wounded.

Then Carrasco fell dead, a jagged wound in his neck and bullet wounds in his head. Rudolf Dominguez, 27, slumped, mortally wounded, four feet away from the dead body of his hero.

J.W. Beeler, the local justice of the peace who was charged with making a preliminary report, called it suicide.

I thought possibly after the first volley of shots he had an opportunity during that period of six to eight or nine minutes that he could have surrendered and released his hostages," he said.

"He had enough officers there that he couldn't have been mistreated or injured as a result of it, and yet he chose to go ahead and fall into this volley of fire."

Beeler, who witnessed the shooting, said Mrs. Standley was shot four times in the back at "point blank range." Mrs. Beseda was shot in the chest. No reporters were allowed inside the prison walls until more than an hour after the shooting was over. Gov. Ralph Brice ordered a full investigation.

Ann Fleming, one of the hostages, told her husband the first shots were fired by the convicts. But Herman Fleming said his wife was not a perfect witness.

"We talked about it this afternoon and she is convinced the shots began inside the shield," Fleming said Sunday.

I strike averted, IBEW out

United Press International — Just two hours before a nationwide strike deadline, negotiators for American Telephone and Telegraph Co. (ATT) and 725,000 Bell Telephone system employees reached tentative agreement on a new three-year, $1 billion contract Sunday night.

But contract talks in a neighboring room were less amiable, and 80,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Electric Workers struck Western Electric Co. at the start of today's work shifts. Western Electric manufactures telephone equipment for ATT.

Pickets were posted by 17 union locals across the country, including about half a dozen totaling some 20,000 members in Illinois. "We're on strike all the way from Vancouver, Wash., to Kearney, N.J.," said Paul Menger, who negotiated in Washington, D.C., for the manufacturing branch of IBEW. It was the first nationwide strike in the company's history.

Another 70,000 IBEW members were included in the ATT tentative agreement, which was hammered out in a last-minute closed-door bargaining session headed by Federal Mediation Director W.J. Usery.

The accord was announced only two hours before the scheduled strike by the 515,000 member Communications Workers of America employees in Richmond, Va., Pleasanton, Calif., Jackson, Mich., and Dayton an Springfield, Ohio, already had walked off the job when agreement was reached, but they quickly returned to work.

The pact would for the first time cover all ATT employees. Michigan, some 12,000 United Steel Workers kept picket lines manned against six iron-range mining and processing firms while negotiations continued. Port officials along western Lake Superior said the five-day-old strike had begun to affect tonnage shipments.

Including about two dozen unaffiliated unions. Watts said the package would mean an increase in wages and fringe benefits of 35.42 per cent over the next three years. While the agreement dimmed prospects of a national strike, local strikes could develop across the country if local units of the various unions fail to come to terms with the subsidiary companies.

In northern Minnesota and Wisconsin, some 12,000 United Steel Workers kept picket lines manned against six iron-range mining and processing firms while negotiations continued. Port officials along western Lake Superior said the five-day-old strike had begun to affect tonnage shipments.

United Mine Workers pickets were to be withdrawn for the first time in two weeks today at the Highsplit Mine near Harland, Ky., to protect "the Highsplit men."

No rain in sight for drought areas

By United Press International — The scorching sun blistered the drought-parched midlands today, and weather forecasters said there was no relief in sight.

While weekend thunderstorms ringed the drought area, the rains avoided the drought's domain. The storms that did wander into the heat-parched area produced little more than sprinkles where torrents are needed to nourish withering crops.

Thus far, the drought has cost farmers and ranchers more than $8 billion. Nebraska's loss was estimated at $2.2 billion. Kansas reports losses of about $2 billion. Texas about $2 billion. Illinois about $1.6 billion and Ohio about $100 million.

A National Weather Service spokesman in Chicago said that only "very light" rains are forecast for the drought area for the rest of the month.

Farmers in drought-ringed Lucas County, Ohio, are considering asking the county commissioners to hire a rainmaker.

Lawrence Hagen, a Pueblo, Colo., cattleman with 20 years ranching experience, said he has never seen a drier summer. He says he's too depressed by the weather to even curse his fortunes.

"You can't curse the rain," he said dejectedly. "It doesn't do any good."

Congress action eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress will try to finish several pieces of major legislation this week in an effort to clear the decks for the impeachment debate expected to begin later this month.

Major legislation awaiting action includes national health insurance, campaign reform, consumer protection, federal laws controlling strip mining and several other appropriations bills.

The House Ways and Means Committee Monday will begin writing legislation on national health care insurance, but whatever type of bill the committee finally approves will probably not reach the House before it becomes embroiled in the historic impeachment proceeding.

At least four different health bills have been proposed so far, but only one — the Nixon administration's plan — would place the responsibility for providing major health coverage in the hands of private insurance companies.

The Nixon bill would require employers to offer optional minimum health insurance to employees, would give poor persons subsidies to pay for their own protection and aid families when their medical expenses exceeded $1,500 a year.

Ford will attend IF event

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) Vice President Gerald Ford will participate in ceremonies marking the beginning of the international science-experience center during his visit to Idaho Falls on Aug. 12.

Rep. Orval Hansen, R-Idaho, said the proposed center has grown from the original conception as a nuclear museum to an institution that will contain the greatest knowledge and understanding of science and technology and to interrelationship of energy, the environment and man.

"Vice president Ford's visit to the site gives recognition to the support that the federal government is giving to this enterprise . . ." Hansen said.

To the people of Idaho, Thank You

Today, I want to express to the people in Idaho my profound gratitude for your confidence and trust and for the opportunities you have given me to serve our state.

During this campaign and in four previous years as U.S. Representative I have traveled throughout the Second District of Idaho, visiting every county and town. My family and I have met with you, and together we have discussed the challenges of the future. We are all aware of the problems: inflation, high taxes, wasteful spending, increasing controls from the federal government and interference in our lives, and the overwhelming crisis in confidence in our leadership. And I think we are equally aware of the opportunities we have to reach out and find solutions to these problems.

As I have met with you and talked and listened and learned of your concerns, I have been humbled and challenged by the very scope of the work ahead. But, I firmly believe that together you and I can make a difference. Together we can work to restore the confidence of the people in our government.

You have given me your trust on many occasions. I give you my promise that I will continue to honor that trust.

Thank you.

Expo half over, attendance slumps

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Expo '74 reached the halfway mark in its six-month run Saturday amid business disputes that threaten lengthy court battles, and slumping attendance.

But on the bright side is what Expo officials said a "robust" amusement area, and an upcoming visit by Vice President Gerald Ford will brighten the situation.

The World's Fair on the environment opened its gates to the public 92 days ago in a gala ceremony featuring President Nixon and a host of foreign dignitaries.

But after three months and nearly 3.9 million visitors, disputes between the Expo Corp., its prime ticket agent and major concessionaires threaten to haunt Expo officials well past the Nov. 3 closing date.

The first dispute surfaced just over a month ago with the fair's four major concessionaires over alleged "skimming" of concession profits.

Expo General Manager Peter Sparrow said at one time it was believed the Expo Corp. had lost at least $15,000 in revenue due to skimming.

And, more recently, fair officials confirmed this week that Director of Admissions Joe Schönikke had been fired. The practice of selling guest admission tickets outside the Spokane area has also been halted.

Negotiations are under way between lawyers in both disputes, and lengthy court battles are anticipated.

Expo officials are confident the fair will meet the total 5 million attendance projection despite an attendance slump attributed to a recent heat wave, incorrect information that hotel and motel rooms are not available, and the anticipated "flattening" of the attendance curve.

The anticipated Aug. 15 visit of Vice President Gerald Ford is expected to generate above-normal attendance.

There is one thing, though, that Expo officials admit they can do little about — the recent disappearance of the popular Spokane Falls and River rapids that used to cascade through the fair site.

The end of the mountain snowpack melt resulted in the rapid decline of the Spokane River flow a few weeks ago, and the once thunderous river was reduced to a mere trickle.

Expo officials believe they have an answer, though, to the question asked from out-of-towners as to the disappearance of the falls.

Signs will soon be posted on bridges explaining that the river is being used to produce a "releas" form of energy.

Japan to get fast trains

TOKYO (UPI) — Service between Tokyo and Fukuoka in southern Japan by the high speed "Hikari" light ray trains will begin Monday, officials of Japan National Railways said Tuesday.

The trains, which cruise at up to 150 miles an hour, will make the 575-mile trip between Tokyo and Fukuoka in six hours and 30 minutes, with only six stops.

The railroad said 46 trains will make the trip to Fukuoka daily, with an equal number speeding northward to Tokyo.

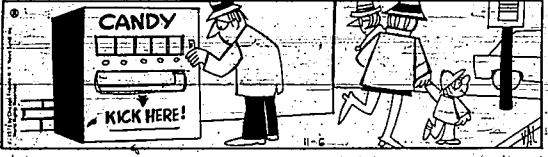

"Hikari" trains will be supplemented by slower trains that make more stops, enabling JNR to serve 700,000 passengers a day on the Tokyo-Fukuoka route.

The high speed train service was launched in 1959 with so-called bullet trains, linking Tokyo and Osaka, Japan's second largest city, 300 miles to the southwest.

Biggest US farms reap most benefits

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The biggest beneficiaries of last year's farm income boom were the nation's biggest farms, a new Agriculture Department analysis indicates.

The report accompanied disclosure that 1973 net farm income, which soared under the impact of skyrocketing demand for food supplies after a poor 1972 world harvest, rose 14 per cent to a record $2.1 billion.

According to the report, $11.2 billion or nearly 35 per cent of the net farm income went to just 3.8 per cent of the nation's farms — the estimated 109,000 farms which reported gross sales of $100,000 or more.

On a production basis, the giant farms grossing over $100,000 averaged $102,800 apiece in net farm income. This was 91.4 per cent more than the $52,815 they averaged in 1972.

Increases for smaller farms were dramatically less.

For farms with sales between $40,000 and $100,000, 1973 net income averaged $24,860 — an increase of 31.2 per cent from the previous year. Farms in the $20,000 to $40,000 sales class averaged $13,355 in net income, up 17.3 per cent from 1972.

For farms with sales between $2,500 and $20,000, last year's income figures registered gains of between 16.7 and 17.7 per cent from 1972, and small farms with sales under $2,500 reported only a 10 per cent gain in net farm income.

The agriculture report showed that when net farm income is added to produce total farm family income estimates, operators of the $100,000-plus farms reported an 82.9 per cent income gain in 1973.

Operators in all other size classes except the smallest — under $2,500 — farms, reported gains ranging from 14 to 27 per cent. In the under $2,500 class, however, where most family income comes from nonfarm work, total income rose 31 per cent to $15,912 per family last year.

According to the report, 1973 farm income was shared by 2,844,000 farms with sales under $20,000 — but this was nearly offset by an increase of 314,000 in the number of $20,000-and-up farms.

The report showed that for the first time, more than half the nation's net farm income went to the farms in the two largest size classes — $10,000-$100,000 and $100,000-plus.

In 1972, these classes accounted for 10.1 per cent of all farms and net 44.6 per cent of net farm income. In 1973 they accounted for 15.7 per cent of the farms and collected 60.3 per cent of the income.

Rabbits attract

A MOTHER RABBIT with her babies drew much attention last year in the poultry department of the Twin Falls Fair. The rabbits were 4-11 CUB members, Two Dots Bids, Susan Weir and Lynette Ekert, paused during the 1973 fair to pet several of the white rabbits.

Church protests levy hike

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said Sweden's decision to increase import levies on Idaho potatoes by 50 per cent has prompted his protest.

"I very much oppose this action and join the Idaho potato industry in urging the government of Sweden to rescind this levy increase," Church said in a letter to Swedish Ambassador Wachtmeister.

Church said "the increased levy is totally unnecessary in light of world market prices for potatoes."

Swedish government, Church said "The increased levy is totally unnecessary in light of world market prices for potatoes."

Utah income record

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—Utah farmers and ranchers received a record cash income for their crops and livestock in 1973.

The Utah Department of Agriculture Development reported an income of $32.4 million for the state's farmers.

That is $27.4 million more than the previous record of $24.2 million they received in 1972.

Some 70 per cent of the income came from livestock and livestock products. Crops brought in $29.4 million.

New England responds

HAMDEN, Conn. (UPI)—New England has been the most responsive region in the country to the United Farm Workers call for a boycott of lettuce and grapes, according to UPW leader Cesar Chavez.

Chavez told newsmen that he estimates about 60 per cent of the food retail stores in New England are observing the boycott in the UPW dispute with growers and the Teamsters Union.

Fertilizer supply continuing tight

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (CNN)—Tight supplies of nitrogen and phosphate fertilizers will persist through at least 1976, leading industry officials forecast here today.

Upward price pressure also is expected to continue. Speaking at the TVA fertilizer conference, John F. Anderson, vice president of Farmland Industries, a national western regional cooperative, said that he expects production of nitrogen fertilizer, the plant food used in largest quantity, to increase modestly during the next two years.

But Anderson also expects farmers to want to buy more if they continue to receive good prices for their crops. Consequently, he sees nitrogen in tight supply through 1976.

After this, however, supplies should catch up with demand. Anderson said, his planned ammonia plants begin to come on stream. The expansion could increase nitrogen fertilizer capacity 50 per cent by the late '70s.

A somewhat less optimistic projection was presented by Edwin A. Wheeler, president of the Fertilizer Institute who stressed that prospects for a long-term nitrogen fertilizer shortage are more disturbing than the near-term supply problems.

Said Wheeler: "Unless something very dramatic occurs, we will be in an ammonia shortage until at least the latter part of the 70's and could easily run short into the '80s."

West Idaho crops cut supplies

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI)—An unusually large wheat crop in Fremont Valley is causing a shortage of rail cars, Union Pacific Railroad spokesmen say, the company has been able to provide only about half the cars ordered in the first week of the harvest.

The railroad was short 21 grain cars Wednesday, and has had orders for 56 more cars, but none are available. "It seems like everybody has been growing wheat this year because prices are up," Dean Lang said. "Naturally it's causing some problems."

The shortage of cars and a lack of storage space already has forced one Caldwell wheat buyer to store wheat outside in a parking lot.

"When everybody begins to get wheat in, you just have to fight like crazy to get the cars you need," said Russell Fowles, manager for Kellogg. He said his firm could use four cars per day but has been getting only two.

Union Pacific assistant superintendent Fred Ladd blamed the shortage on the high demand for grain hopper cars throughout the Northwest and Midwest.

Wherever you look right now there's a harvest," Ladd said. "Shippers in this area aren't discriminating against cars. Cars are allotted equally all over the country."

50 acres burn

BOISE (UPI) — A 50-acre blaze on the Boise Front over the weekend cost $7,500 and took three hours to extinguish, Boise District Bureau of Land Management figures show.

Ada County Sheriff's Detective Mike Roberts said Evans was struck after he and an unidentified man got into an argument. The assailant remained unidentified Saturday night, and a Sheriff's Office spokesman said they had no suspect in the case.

Injuries fatal

MERIDIAN, Idaho (UPI) — Robert Leon Evans, 42, Nampa, died over the weekend from injuries sustained when he was hit over the head with a pool cue in a bar.

Ada County Sheriff's Detective Mike Roberts said Evans was struck after he and an unidentified man got into an argument. The assailant remained unidentified Saturday night, and a Sheriff's Office spokesman said they had no suspect in the case.

Study proposed

MALAD, Idaho (UPI) — Federal agencies will be asked to make a feasibility study of a proposed sprinkler irrigation system, by a group composed of four irrigation companies and the city of Malad.

The proposed system would incorporate water owned by the four companies — Samarra Irrigation, Malad Valley Irrigation, Deep Creek Irrigation and St. John Irrigation — into pressurized pipelines that would supply the irrigation to the shareholders in the city and Oreida County.

A spokesman for the group said irrigated acres could be doubled without any increased water supply, yields would be better than under flood systems and problems from waterlogged soils would be eliminated.

Bid opening slated

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Bids on a contract for installing electrical power lines at the National Reactor-Testing Station will be opened Aug. 15, the Atomic Energy Commission's Idaho Operations Office said.

An AEC spokesman said estimated cost range for the work is less than $50,000.

Programs set at Ricks

REXBURG (UPI) — Syndicated Columnist Ann Landers, the King Family Concert, the Fifth Dimension and the Lettermen will appear at Ricks College, Rexburg, as part of the institution's 1974-75 entertainment series program.

The Utah Symphony Orchestra is expected to perform during the school year and the Hawaiian Dance Group Polynesia will also visit the campus.

Investigations set

BOISE (UPI) — Gene Hawker, chief investigator for the Idaho Horse Racing Commission, said the plans to conduct background investigations of all officials connected with horse racing in Idaho.

The investigations will be conducted to see if any "organized crime influence" exists in the growing sport, although Hawker emphasizes he has no reason to believe any crime influence is present.

Police probe robberies

BOISE (UPI) — Boise police were busy Sunday looking for suspects in the armed robberies of two Boise convenience stores.

A 7-11 store on the corner of 8th and Brumback streets in Boise was robbed Saturday night by a thief with a shotgun. He was described as about five-foot-six inches tall, about 25 years old, with a stocky build. The thief was wearing a stocking over his face.

Arson eyed in Jerome fires

JEROME — Investigation was continuing in Jerome County today in 37 separate range fires which county officers say appear to be the work of arsonists.

Officers pointed to the number of fires all started Saturday and their separate locations as indication of arson. The fires destroyed scattered spots of grasslands and sagebrush and endangered a grain field in an area stretching over miles.

Fire crews from the Jerome Rural Fire Department, battled the blazes for more than three hours and Saturday evening to extinguish spot fires which had rekindled in the burned areas.

The Jerome Police Department was notified about 3:45 Saturday that a fire was burning at the 32-24 junction.

Don Ripert, rural fire chief, called sheriff's deputies to investigate soon after he arrived at the scene.

New arrests in Burley

BURLEY — One of the men sought on interstate warrants from a drug raid July 29 was arrested in a second raid Saturday night by Cassia County officers.

Douglas Criddle, 34, Ogden, Utah, was arrested on a warrant issued after officers seized several pounds of marijuana, paraphernalia for the packaging of the drug and illegal weapons, including a homemade bomb in the first raid. He was arrested in a raid Saturday night in a house in southwest Burley about 11:30 p.m. with city and county law enforcement officers cooperating.

Criddle was charged with possession of a controlled substance (marijuana) with intent to manufacture or deliver, a felony.

Officers also arrested a juvenile married couple who were renting the house where the raid took place. The couple was charged with harboring a fugitive and possession of a controlled substance with intent to deliver, both felonies.

Criddle is being held in the Burley City Jail on $10,000 bond. The juvenile couple is also being held in the jail, but officials did not release a bond figure for them.

Officers said they found about three pounds of marijuana in pound packages and other smaller packages of the drug. They said the seized drug had a market value of $400 to $500. They said no weapons of any kind were found in the second raid.

Magie Valley

Sail critical

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — A Spirit Lake, Idaho, youth injured in a truck accident more than a week ago that resulted in the removal of part of his left leg, remained in critical but slightly improved condition today.

Rick Johnson, 16, also suffered head injuries in the July 27 accident in Lewistown, Mont., which claimed the life of Dawn Willmore, 16, Roy, Mont.

A Deaconess Hospital spokesman said Johnson has received some treatment, but will likely face more surgery involving removal of more of his left leg.

Johnson was the driver of the car which crashed into a small ravine near Lewistown. The Willmore girl was a passenger. Two other passengers escaped injury.

Contested races few

TWIN FALLS — There is only a handful of county-level primary elections scheduled in Magie Valley. Contested races for Tuesday's primary election are:

Twin Falls County — district 2 county commissioner, Republican ticket, William Chaney and George Bonham, prosecuting attorney, Republican ticket, Robert Galley and William Hollifield.

Lincoln County — district 3 county commissioner, Republican ticket, Walter Bowman and John McKenzie.

Jerome County — county assessor, Republican ticket, J. Howard Jenson and Ed Messenger.

Comas County — district 3 county commissioner, Republican ticket, Marvin Francis and Norman Tate.

Poll reveals opposition

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls radio poll showed strong sentiment among voters against a proposed coal-fired power plant in southern Idaho.

The poll was conducted by KBCP radio, Twin Falls.

Out of those phoning in on the matter, 297 of about two-thirds opposed the plant and 145 favored it, according to Dave Capper, station manager.

Capper expects that the poll will be repeated in the future, but he said he would like to see more information before making up their minds. More programs on the proposal can be expected in the future, he said.

KEEP has sent a letter to Idaho Power chairman Albert Carlsen telling the results of the poll and offering radio time for the company to present its position on the plant.

Individuals opposing the project also will be offered radio time, Capper said.

Lincoln parade winners listed

SHOSHONE — Winners in the parade at the Lincoln County Fair have been announced. The event was handled by the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce.

Taking prizes for floats were Genevieve and Sorensen children. In what was known as "Gone With the Wind" while Chenelle Hubbs and Buddy Stradley took prizes for their Cinderella float and Curtis Sande, Ardis Osborn and Sue Galtmore won for their covered wagon.

Winners in the vehicles and pets were Tim and Bernice Joe Shaw, Jared McKenzie, Amy, Nathan and Amy Knowles; Kirk and Kim Duffin, Curtis Sandy and Christopher Wright.

Winners in the groups division were Tina, Beth and Nate Parks, Sandra Klidner, Pam, Jerri Ann and Mike Wallace, Gena and Tana Kelley, Sherry Hubbs and Jim Stradley, Jeff and Kristen Sage.

Novelty winners were Allison and Myrna Adams, Kirsten and Steven Rose, while those winning in characters were Clinton and Charles Sandy, Pam Flores, Rusty Eberhardt, Jeremy Kristal and Garry Fisher.

Comics winners were Camille Kingsford, Tommy Stradley, Brian Kingsford, Gailie Kristal and Shawn Hubbs.

TF candidate no big spender

TWIN FALLS — John Walker, Twin Falls candidate for the Democratic nomination as state representative from District 23 said today he favors reduced government spending.

Walker was quoted in a story Sunday as calling for tax relief for the working middle and expanded government spending. Walker said today he stated he did not favor expanded government spending in view of efforts to bring relief to taxpayers.

JEROME — A three-way race has developed on Democratic and Republican tickets for district 23 state representative posts.

The six candidates are seeking the post: incumbent Ray Johnson (Republican), who is a candidate for lieutenant governor and Rep. Tom Greenaway (who is not seeking re-election).

Running on the Democratic ticket are William (Bill) Kersey Jr., Jerome; Richard B. Strickland, Gooding; and Anna Louise Robinson, Eden.

Seeking the Republican nomination are Clair K. Ricketts and Gordon Hollifield, both Jerome; and John H. Brooks, Gooding.

Kersey, a 21-year Navy veteran, was born in Jerome. He attended Idaho State College, majoring in pharmacy and holds a bacteriology degree from College of Southern Idaho.

He said he is interested in proper land use. "I also want to see a little better promotion for the horse racing industry. I would like the Kinderhook problem resolved so that it would be a part of the public schools system," Kersey said.

Strickland, a farmer and a partner in Strickland Painter Real Estate said that if elected one of his first acts would be to introduce a bill for consumer protection. He also pledged to continue to fight for completion of the American Falls Dam and for the return of government to the local level.

Strickland spent three years with the USAR in the Pacific during World War II and has served on the Gooding school board for 12 years.

Mrs. Robinson has pledged a careful evaluation of the tax measures and expenditures. She explained that she understands budgets and fiscal matters as she has a degree in mathematics and has done graduate work in math.

Mrs. Robinson came to Idaho in 1949, when her husband was an entrepreneur on the second Hill drawing. They live and farm this homestead. She has taught school 26 years in different schools in the valley.

Ricketts has been active in politics and the Republican party for 22 years. He is chairman of the Jerome County Republican Central Committee, a position he has stated he will resign if chosen in the primary election.

"Ricketts was born and raised on a farm which he now operates in partnership with his brother, and has 15 years as a part time fieldman for the Jerome County assessor."

"My reason for running for this office is that I am not satisfied with the way things are going and I believe the best way to change things is to get involved," Ricketts said.

Hollifield has been a resident of Jerome county for the past 31 years and farms southeast of Jerome. He has served on the Jerome school board and is presently serving on the State Farm Bureau Board of directors. Hollifield has stated he would resign the position if elected. He has already resigned as precinct committeeman with the Republican party.

Hollifield, who is concerned about Idaho's water said that Idaho can't develop its water without a mass of Federal Agencies telling us what to do. Federal planners and programs are responsible for the plan to divert Idaho's water to the southwest, using our law money to do it.

Brooks has been an active member of county and district Republican activities during the past four years.

4 TF men seek District 25 seat on GOP ballot

TWIN FALLS — Four Twin Falls men are seeking a district 25 House of Representatives seat on the Republican ballot.

The candidates are incumbents Ralph Olmstead and Joe McCollum and challengers E. J. Morgan and T. W. Stivers.

Olmstead said the primary issue in the next legislative session probably will be "inflationary spiral."

"Excessive government spending" is a major contributor to inflation, he said. Citing a 50-per-cent increase in the number of state employees during the past four years, Olmstead said, "We have to curb the growth of state government and do some cutting back."

On education, Olmstead said vocational education opportunities have been "shortly changed in the past. We have jobs begging for people. We need the skills offered by vocational education."

He also said he would support new dams on the Snake River that are well-planned and that would increase the agricultural economy.

"Idaho can be proud that we don't need it. The current proposal does not cover the subject enough to be effective, when and if the time should come that we need it," he said.

McCollum said one of his "goals" for the next session of the legislature will be "investigating the possibility of orienting management."

"The state could save money and do a more efficient job" by budgeting funds every two years, he said. McCollum said he would also consider biennial sessions of the legislature.

"Land-use planning" is something we need and will have to come to grips with, he said. He endorsed it should "drop the power" to the local level.

On education, McCollum said the state should provide money that might be used for kindergartens, but school districts should have the "option" to spend it on other programs.

McCollum said the legislature must continue to do a more effective job of allocating funds.

State Affairs Committees would enable him to give constituents "the representation they deserve."

Stivers emphasized the issue of taxes. "I, of course, am concerned that something be done to relieve some of the tax burden," he said.

"I think you get right down to it, the real job" is to save money and do a more efficient job in government, spending to make available government funds go farther. He said his experience as county clerk from 1951 to 1961 convinced him that "any government agency can reduce expenditures that savings and cost back to the taxpayer."

The most "effective way" of decreasing government spending, he said, was to "be sure that the tax money that is levied is spent toward the purposes for which it was first authorized instead of being spent to create more government agencies."

On the land-use issue, Stivers said he favors a state land-use plan "that will allow for orderly development of Idaho consistent with the rights of all property owners."

"I am opposed to federal land-use legislation," Stivers said. "I am not sure that the members of our Congress can sit in Washington and decide what's best for Twin Falls County."

Stivers also said he favors the landowner's right to determine what usage may be made of his land, under the direction of local planning and zoning councils.

The candidate said he favors "limited" development of the Snake River Canyon rim. Such development, he said, could "enhance" the beauty of the canyon rim. He said he favored retaining public lands presently reserved.

Stivers also called for the retention of unity in Idaho's educational system, which he said is at present "very good."

Morgan was not available for comment today. He gave the following answers to questions posed by the Idaho League of Women Voters in their election information pamphlet.

Asked to name the most pressing governmental problem in Idaho, Morgan said, "The threat of taking our excess water for out-state use. One avenue to avert this threat would be to develop all agriculture and other public resources to the extent we can support them."

Asked if he supports or opposes collective bargaining for public employees, Morgan said, "Collective bargaining... should be done between local representatives of employees of each interested party with a third party to see that equality is given to each group."

Large national union methods would tend to disrupt necessary public services."

Today could be pivotal for length of players' strike

NEW YORK (UPI) —

Negotiations don't resume until Tuesday but Monday could be a pivotal day in determining how much longer the NFL players' strike will last.

The owners, who suffered a financial blow over the weekend when the fans stayed home in droves during the first full weekend of exhibition games, will be watching carefully how many veterans are going to come into camp.

According to the owners' figures, 311 players, including 10 starters, had crossed the picket lines before the weekend.

But many of the veterans seem to be getting restless, although the regular season is still six weeks away — and the owners are hoping the trickle of returning veterans will turn into a flood on Monday.

In Washington, the executive committee of the Players Association, with representatives from most of the teams, convened for a Saturday meeting. No major strategic decisions were expected, but Ed Garvey, executive director of the association, was expected to brief the group on the strike situation and the outlook for negotiations.

Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach, a player who doesn't have to worry about losing his job, crossed the line Sunday.

The number of veterans who follow in his footsteps on Monday may determine the tone of the bargaining on Tuesday.

If there is a major defection, the owners could decide—the players are not the point of collapse and continue their hard line position.

But if the players remain fairly solid on the picket lines, the owners would be inclined to make concessions.

The Cowboys released a statement from Staubach after he crossed the picket lines.

"This has been a very tough decision but after weighing at length all aspects of the strike—such as teammates, player demands, fan reaction, player and owner hogtieding strategy, crossing the picket line, etc.—I have decided to report to training camp Sunday.

"This is an individual decision on my part, with no intent to influence others. Therefore, I have no further comment."

Staubach, in his sixth year with the Cowboys, led the NFL in passing statistics last season. Craig Morton, the Cowboys' No. 2 quarterback, had already reported but since he's jumping to the NFL, Staubach seemed assured of his No. 1 position.

Another Cowboy veteran, Cornell Green, reported to the Dallas camp Saturday.

The players on several teams held meetings Sunday to discuss their feelings on continuing the strike.

The owners and the players will resume their talks in Washington Tuesday with Federal Mediator W.J. Usery Jr.

The players were encouraged by the slight turnouts at the seven exhibition games on Saturday. At Campagna III, where in Bear veterans—six Cardinal veterans and four St. Louis wives picketed the St. Louis-Chicago game, only 12,877 fans showed up at the 71,000-seat stadium.

"We feel the low attendance at the game demonstrates our point," Mike Percival, the Bears' player rep said. Jim Hart, the Cardinal QB, said, "Even if we didn't show up today, our point would have been made."

The biggest crowd of the night was in New Orleans, where 45,239 fans watched the Saints lose to Pittsburgh—but it was still the smallest crowd ever to see a Saints' game at home.

Only 12,841 rattled around in the Astro dome to see the Houston Oilers beat the New York Giants although 41,940, the second biggest crowd, showed up in Oakland.

Besides picketing in Chicago, the players also picketed in Oakland, Denver and San Diego.

Drag racing car kills spectators

EAST ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) —

A drag racing car traveling 120 miles per hour hurtled into the bleachers at St. Louis International Raceway Sunday, killing two spectators and injuring at least 19 others, two critically.

The driver, 30-year-old professional drag racer Bill Bagshaw of Long Beach, Calif., was hospitalized in critical condition with a broken collar bone.

Two spectators were pronounced dead on arrival at St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis. They were identified as Kent Myers, 16, Wood River, Ill., and Lana Reed, about 19, Festus, Mo.

Nine other persons were taken to St. Mary's, including Bagshaw and Michale Tautkus, 24, Quincy, Ill., who also was in critical condition. Ten persons were taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Granite City.

Bagshaw's Dodge Dart apparently blew its engine about 300 feet from the starting line of the quarter-mile drag strip, oil spewed onto the track and the car spun into the grandstands.

"The spectators had a chance to scramble out of the way before the car crashed into a steel guard rail and five rows of grandstands," Illinois' state Police said.

However, some spectators were trapped under the wreckage and it took several minutes to free some of them. State Police Sgt. Heald said.

"The hardest thing we had to do was to get all the spectators away from the people who were injured," said track manager Jim Conley.

"People were getting mishandled by a swarm of well-wishers trying to rescue dead but who were only unin-in the way," Conley said. "The panic ceased once I got there and asked everyone to make room for those who knew what they were doing."

Rich & Rare moments with CANADIAN R&R

Sandra Haynie is easy victor

HORSHAM, Pa. (UPI) —

Ladies U. S. Open Champion Sandra Haynie, fired a final round 73 Sunday to finish five strokes ahead of the field in capturing the 54-hole fifth annual George Washington Ladies Golf Classic at Hidden Springs Country Club.

The 31-year-old Texan finished six under par for the tournament with rounds of 71-69-73 for a total of 213. The $5,700 purse boosted her earnings so far this year to $56,710. She previously won the LPGA championship and the Las Vegas tournament.

Finishing in a tie for second place at 218 were Kathy Ahern, Kathy Whitworth and Jo Ann Carner.

With the ball partially submerged in mud and water, Sandra took off her shoes, put on a jacket and, standing on rocks, lifted a great sand wedge shot 50 yards to the green. She sank a ten-foot putt on the next shot for a birdie.

Eagles have court injunction for vets

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —

The Philadelphia Eagles obtained a court injunction against striking veterans Sunday after a player allegedly threatened to interfere with the club's opening exhibition game with the Atlanta Falcons.

The injunction ordered the striking members of the National Football League Players Association to conduct peaceful picket lines outside Veterans Stadium and not to harass fans, stadium employees or players.

Leo Carlin, Eagles business manager, said the team asked for the injunction after running back Ron "Po" James greeted fans outside the stadium with the comment, "Hey Leo, we're going to stop your game." James denied making the statement.

Carlin also said he personally saw four or five Eagles fans persuade potential ticket buyers to turn away.

"These guys were sneaking around. They were intimidating people..." Striking Eagles players joined by fellow veterans from the New York Giants, Washington Redskins, Detroit Lions, St. Louis Cardinals and New England Patriots, succeeded in turning away from the stadium entrance two public transportation authority buses carrying the Falcon team members.

The bus drivers, members of the Transport Workers Union, refused to cross the picket lines and dropped the players off across the street from the stadium. The Falcon players were forced to walk a gauntlet of strikers who shouted "scab, scab!" but did not attempt to prevent the players from entering the stadium.

The strikers said there were 20 players, wives and children on the picket line which formed as early as 2 a.m. Saturday.

Eagles owner Leonard H. Rose said the players came out early to try to prevent the conversion of the stadium to a football field after Friday night's Philadelphia Phillies baseball game.

Rose said the conversion began immediately after the baseball game and the stadium workers were already inside when the picket lines formed.

Before the game, the pickets distributed leaflets to fans explaining their strike issue and urged them not to attend games played by strike breakers.

Paris-Culligan wins district slowpitch

PARIS, Culligan, turned a dropped fly ball into the winning run in the ninth inning Sunday to down Ford Transfer-Workman Ford 10-9 and claim the district slowpitch softball championship.

Paris-Culligan hit a four-run lead in the sixth inning and then appeared on the ropes when Ford rallied for two runs in the second over time.

The rally by Paris-Culligan nipped Ford's bid to come back through the losers bracket and force the tournament at least into an extra session. Earlier Ford dropped Milwaukee's of Ketchum to fourth place and then ousted Blitz.

All four of those mentioned teams will represent this district in the state tournament opening Friday at Harman Park.

Paris-Culligan appeared moving easily to victory, particularly in the bottom of the third when Larry Espil cracked a three-run homer. Ford came back slightly in the fifth when Rick Springs singled in two of three runs.

Dale Crist pushed the lead to four in the fifth when he tripled and scored on throwing error.

All on the same play. Then in the seventh John George drove in two runs with a hit and Ken Blake tied it with a sacrifice fly.

A double play—extricated Paris-Culligan from a serious Ford threat in the eighth. Then in the ninth center and Darrell Groves tied off with consecutive triples and Mike Gavita's sacrifice fly plated Groves.

Pinch hitting George Arrossa got Paris-Culligan going with a single hit with two outs. Paris-Culligan had runners at first and second. Then Larry Lewis lined a single to right to plate Arrossa and send Culligan around to third. A throwing error let him tie it.

Then Espil hit a towering fly to leftfield and it appeared when the ball was dropped.

Regalado rallies to nip Weiskopf for golf victory

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — Vic Regalado, two-time Mexican Master winner and 1973 Mexican Open winner, came from four strokes back Sunday with four birdies on the final eight holes to edge Tom Weiskopf by one stroke and win the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Open.

Regalado won his first American tournament by dropping a 10-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole after Weiskopf had already birdied the hole from two feet to force an apparent playoff.

Regalado finished with his second straight 69 for a four-round total of 284 under par. Weiskopf, who had a one-over 72, finished one stroke back while Dave Hill, right under par through three rounds, and the tournament leader after 54 holes, slipped to a 75 to finish two strokes off the pace at 286.

Bill Wiechers finished in fourth place for the second straight year, shooting 70 for 282. Lee Elder, Dale Donaldson, and charging Bobby Nichols, the willa final round 69, were one stroke under par at 281.

Weiskopf starting the day two strokes back of Hill, double-bogeyed the second hole and bogeyed the 10th and 11th. But he birdied the 17th and 18th to tighten the race.

Regalado, 36, a native of Tijuana, Mexico, quadrupled his 1973 tour earnings of $9,512 by taking the $40,000 prize. In addition he won $3,000 last year in seven tournaments in Mexico.

Regalado had bogeyes on the second and fourth holes for a front nine of six to trail on two strokes back of Hill. Hill bogeyed his first two holes before getting his only birdie on the fourth. But he bogeyed the 10th and 11th to drop to four under par for the tournament and could muster no more than seven straight pars the rest of the way.

The only other golfer to equal par 283 was Jerry Heard, a first round co-leader. Heard finished with 72s the final two days for a 284 total.

Low round of the day was a 68 by Bruce Crampton, golf's fifth leading career money winner. The 38-year-old Australian, who has nearly $12 million in earnings, finished at 286, two strokes over par.

"I was really nervous and really lucky," said the 36-year-old Regalado. "I had a weak stomach. When I saw I was tied for the lead coming into the 16th green, my legs started to shake.

"I said, well, I've got to do my best.

"He sturdied himself enough to curl in a 20-foot birdie from the lower level to the upper part of the green.

The happy Regalado said he will change his travel plans now that he has won in Pleasant Valley. He plans to go home, now, because he has an invitation, I'll go to Winston Salem to play in the PGA next week.

Winning a major tournament presents an automatic invitation to the PGA.

Total attendance for the tournament was 238,245 over four days, bringing attendance at eight Pleasant Valley Country Club tournaments to more than one million persons.

Jorge Orta leads White Sox over Rangers to highlight Sunday's American league

By United Press International

Jorge Orta drew in five runs with four hits to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 13-10 triumph over the Texas Rangers and a doubleheader sweep Sunday after Bart Johnson pitched a nine-incher in the 6-3 opening game victory.

Orta, who collected a single, a pair of doubles and a homer in the second center, also had the key hit in the seventh inning of the opener to help the Sox break a 3-1 tie.

Texas reliever Steve Foutcutt had, the dubious honor of losing both games. In the nightcap, he gave up a two-run homer to Bill Melton in the bottom of the sixth inning which climaxed a four-run rally that gave the Sox an 11-3 advantage. For Melton, it was his 11th homer on the season.

and made him the all-time White Sox home run leader with 136, breaking the record held by Minute Misse.

Texas starter Steve Margraf gave up seven runs and 12 hits before being lifted in the bottom of the sixth inning.

Texas slugger Jeff Burroughs drew in four runs with a pair of homers, his 20th and 21st of the year, and a single. The 22-year-old right fielder batted in 10 runs in the series to give him 30 for the season, tops for the major leagues.

In the opener, Johnson won his fourth straight game since being recalled from the White Sox Iowa farm club July 7.

The Sox broke a 3-1 tie after two were out in the bottom of the seventh. Bill Sharp singled and tried to third on Orta's lead-off single. Dick Allen grounded to Tony Barrali, who fumbled the ball allowing Sharp to score. Melton also grounded to Barrali and once again the Ranger shortstop fumbled the ball, allowing Orta to score. Ellen earlier had hit his 20th homer of the season.

In other games, Boston downed New York 7-3 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader, before rain washed out the second contest. Oakland split a twin bill with Minnesota, capturing the first 10 before losing 2-1; Baltimore and Detroit split, a doubleheader; the Tigers mauling the Orioles 6-1 in the opener in the third evening doubleheader; Cleveland and Milwaukee divided a pair, the Indians edging the Brewers 4-3 in the first game, and the Brewers edging the Indians 6-4 in the second; and Kansas City dumped California twice, 10-4 and 3-0.

Luis Tiant scattered 10 hits and three homers and Bernie Carbo, each, knocked in two runs to lead the Red Sox to a win over the Yankees. Tiant won his 17th game, the highest total by the majors.

Bill Butler limited Oakland to six hits in a dominating victory and giving Minnesota a split of their "doubleheader." The Sox won the first game before 34,145 fans, the largest crowd of the season at Metropolitan Stadium.

Jim Hillis two out single in the sixth inning scored Eric Soderholm from second base and provided Butler with his winning margin.

Oakland broke open the first game by scoring six runs before anyone was out in the seventh inning. John Montague and Tommie Washington and Thando, a two-run triple by Reggie Jackson and a two-run homer by Joe Judge, his 11th, highlighted the Oakland explosion.

Brooks Robinson, playing for the first time in a week, drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single in the second game to lead the Orioles to a victory after Joe Coleman's two-batter paced the Detroit Tigers to a win in the opener.

Dick Sharon's first homer this year, a two-run blow at the third inning of the opener helped trim Oriole starter and ace Mike Cuellar two 3-1.

At Kalamazoo, Ted Williams' 14th place on the all-time list with his only hit of the doubleheader, a single leading off the fifth inning of the first game and is now only 45 away from the 3,000th hit of his career.

Ken Berry drove in three runs with two hits and Tony Money added a two-run homer as the Brewers shelved Gaylord Perry to beat the Indians in the second game. Cleveland won the first game, two 3-1, Johnstone's seventh hitting single.

It was the 10th straight loss for Perry, who has lost seven since July 4. Perry, who has now tried six times for his 15th victory, is now 156 after posting a 15-1 mark when he won 13 straight.

In the first game, Dick Bosman and Tom Huskey combined to scatter nine hits. Bosman worked the first 6 2/3 innings and gave up two runs for his fifth win without a defeat. Huskey gained his tenth save.

Frank Healy, who drove in the breaking run in the first game, drilled a two-run single in the sixth inning of the second game, hitting the Royals to victory and a sweep of their doubleheader with the Angels.

Steve Busby recorded his 11th victory, with relief help from Steve Mingers, in the opener when the Royals fatted around in the sixth and seventh innings.

At Pittsburgh, 7-1, pitched 6 1/3 innings for the victory and Joe Horner and Doug Birt finished with two hits apiece.

Down 4-0 entering the sixth inning of the opener, the Royals scored three runs on engineering singles by Ken Boyce and Fran Healy and an RBI double by Fred Park.

San Diego splits pair with Reds in NL action

By United Press International

Fred Kendall's sacrifice fly in the 14th inning drove in Nate Colbert with the only run of the game as the San Diego Padres rugged Cincinnati 1-0 in the nightcap Sunday after the Reds won the opener 7-2 to hand Steve Boney his 13th win of the day.

Dave Freisleben blanked the Reds on eight hits in 11 innings in a magnificent performance before rookie Rusty Goshardt came on to pitch the 14th and got the win. Clay Kirby went nine innings. Clay Carroll went two more before Byron came on in the 14th to take the loss.

The loss dropped the Reds 6 games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers, pace-setters in the National League West.

In the first game, Boney picked up the win, his first since the start of the year, in relief of starter Fred Norman who departed with one out in the fifth and the Reds trailing, 2-1.

Cincinnati collected six doubles in the contest, three of them in the sixth inning. One of them came off pitcher Joe Perez, that fell behind, first baseman Nate Colbert and broke a 2-2 tie. It drove in Joe Morgan who had the score with a run-scoring double earlier in the inning.

In other games, Chicago won 4-3 before bowling 7-1 to Pittsburgh. Los Angeles ripped Houston 9-1. Philadelphia won 6-1 before St. Louis rebounded to take an 11-0 win in the finale and Atlanta split a twin bill with San Francisco, winning 3-2 before losing 5-2. New York 2-

Montreal was rained out.

Bruce Kison hurled a five-incher before a blister on his pitching hand forced his removal in the eighth inning and Dave Parker blasted a three-run homer to spark the Pirates to a nightcap win over the Astros.

Andy Thornton's two-run homer in the fifth inning lifted the Cubs to a win in the opener.

Davey Lopes stole a career-high 22 bases and Jim Wynn singled in Bill Russell in the fifth inning to give the Dodgers their seventh straight victory, a win over the Astros that added "singlet" (over) scored twice and stole three bases as the Cardinals won the nightcap after Mike Schmidt's two homers gave the Phils a win in the opener.

Brook also stole a base in the first game giving him a total of four for the day and 72 for the season. While Brock put on the show in the nightcap, it was Schmidt in the opener. Schmidt first home run came with two out in the first inning and was his 24th this season, tying him for the league lead with Jimmy Wynn of Los Angeles. Schmidt took the lead in the seventh when his homer scored Dave Cash, who had singled.

Leifhardt Mike Caldwell and Ellis Sosa combined on a four-incher to give the Giants a victory in the second game and a split of a doubleheader with the Atlanta Braves.

The Braves were the opener on a two-run ninth-inning homer by Dusty Baker

Marty Riessen cops Western net event

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Top-seeded Marty Riessen won two breath-taking victories over the slow starting Bob Lutz Sunday afternoon to win the $30,000 Western Tennis Championships.

Riessen, the nation's seventh ranked player, outlasted the second-ranked Lutz, eight points to six, in the first tiebreaker and then won seven points to five in the decisive second set tiebreaker.

Riessen, a former basketball star at Northwestern University, received $8,000 for this victory. Lutz, the No. 10 ranked player in American tennis, also won his second-place finish.

It was the first Western Championship for Riessen in six years of trying. Back in the 1960s he made the final of the tournament five straight years, only to come out second best every time.

Lutz was forced to play through the tournament with heavy bandages on both knees. He underwent an operation on his right knee a year ago and is scheduled for surgery on the left knee this winter.

"Lutz is usually a slow starter, but his knees caused him to get off to an even worse start today," said Riessen, who grabbed a 3-0 game advantage in the first set and led 5-2 before Lutz started to unwind.

Lutz of San Luis Obispo, Calif., rallied for a tie at the 20th tie point, but in the tiebreaker before Riessen staged a rally of his own to win eight points to five.

Lutz took a 5-4 game lead in the second set and threw a set point before Riessen rallied to send it into another tiebreaker. Riessen jumped to a three-point lead and won, seven points to five.

"During the last two and one-half months I've been playing the best tennis of my career," said Riessen, who has been one of America's top 10 players for the last decade.

"I've played Lutz many, many times, and for some strange reason, I've always been able to beat him about nine out of 10 times," said the mustached Riessen. "There is a weird triangle here among myself, Lutz and Tom Gorman."

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, AUGUST 6, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There is much confusion present in today's aspects and this applies to self-deception by thinking what you want instead of studying the true facts of the situation. Be wary of accepting inaccurate information.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you schedule your activities well, you can easily combine business and pleasure. An adviser can give fine suggestions here.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Although you don't want to handle routines now, it's important you do so before you look into new outlets. Think constructively.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) Take care that kin does not prevent you from keeping promises with an associate. Being concerned with prestige is wise now.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend to routine tasks and avoid a possible argument with co-workers. Know what is expected of you. Don't complain.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) Engage in new interests that will help you expand. Don't waste time, and money on the frivolous. Use extreme care in motion.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study, new interests that could bring success and happiness. Avoid a family tie who has a knack of making you want to argue.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Keep appointments with persons who have information you need. Don't fret about conditions you can do little about. Be cheerful.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listening to what good friends have to suggest is wise at this time. Avoid an argument over money. Show your true self.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take care not to find fault with a higher up or you could get yourself in trouble. Attend the social tonight and have fun.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find the right way to add to present abundance. You can expand easily now. Do nothing that could hurt your good reputation.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't argue with persons who owe you money, but see to it that you do what is right. Do some entertaining in the evening.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Remain neutral if an argument develops which you are not involved. Get busy at own affairs and work with a vengeance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will want to be interested in everything, including private affairs of others, to teach early to mind own business exclusively and to keep out of other's anything of a troublesome nature is fine, so direct education along such lines. Give good spiritual training early in life.

The stars compel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Young men and coeds at City College in Baltimore have undertaken extensive studies in kissing. What, you say that's not news? Let it be understood they've been kissing glass slides in this particular research, not one another. And they've learned that 95 percent of their kisses are harmless although some of the soul variety transmit hundreds of bacteria colonies.

DIVING SUIT

A German-born genius named Augustus Seibe, lived in England at the time. In 1837, essential nature of that rubber rigging hasn't changed any too much since then, incidentally.

WHAT SPORT attracts the most intelligent athletes? That was the query put to numerous sports editors. Was reported that football received the largest number of votes in this poll. Client asks which sport attracts the least intelligent athletes. Boxing, according to those editors.

CONSIDER unmarried men and women aged 35 to 54. The men number maybe 2 million, the women about 1.5 million. So why do the unattached ladies-in-said-age bracket complain there are too few men?

UNDERWATER?

That there are "mountains higher than Everest" under the oceans is widely known. But were you aware there are also barren deserts underwater where no plant-life grows?

REPEATEDLY it has been reported that men and women are getting taller with each generation. Should be noted, too, that every generation of infants on the average is slightly heavier at birth. The typical newborn baby now weighs approximately four ounces more than did some 35 years ago.

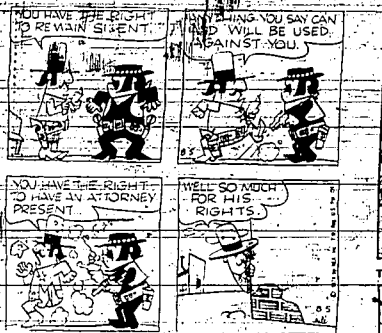

A SHORT MAN should never wear a long overcoat. It should be cut high. To lengthen the look of the legs. And narrow in the shoulders. To add another stretching effect. And raglan sleeved. To screen off some of the midsection. That is the contention of a clothing expert.

MAJOR HOOPLE

NEW YORK (UPI)—Prices edged lower in continued dull trading on the New York Stock Exchange early Monday.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, measuring blue chip movement, and slipped 5.47 to 752.11 shortly before noon EDT. Declines held a narrow lead over advances, 338 to 436, among the 1,436 issues traded, with the list generally showing only fractional changes.

Noon volume came to approximately 4,000,000 shares, compared with 4,100,000 in the first two hours Friday.

The continued lack of interest reflected investor uncertainty over the prospect of impeachment and preoccupation with soaring interest rates. First National Bank of Chicago announced it would hold its prime rate at the prevailing record level of 12 per cent, but the Treasury Monday offered up to $4 billion in new notes at 9 per cent, the highest rate since the Civil War period.

Among the blue chips, American Telephone & Telegraph Co. added 1/8. The company announced it had reached a tentative agreement on a new contract last night with the Communications Workers of America.

Stocks were softer, with most off fractionally. A news report said several steel mills expect a decline in shipments in the third quarter, followed by a strong fourth quarter that should bring steel production close to 1973's 111.4-million ton mark.

Motor and autos showed small losses. Among the mixed lots, Natoms gained 1/8, while Schlumberger gave up 1/8.

Gold issues came under some selling pressure. ASA Ltd. and Campbell Red Lake declined fractionally. Dome Mines and Homestake Mining fell more than a point.

Language slows gold bill

WASHINGTON (CNS)—A mandatory date for legalized ownership of gold by U.S. citizens almost slipped out of the Senate Friday as the problem remains unresolved.

Both the Senate and House passed legislation earlier this session mandating gold legalization this year. In late July, the necessity for a Senate-House conference to iron out differences in their respective versions was avoided—when the Senate passed the House bill without changes. The House version sets Dec. 31 as the legalization date.

That seemed to mean the bill was ready for a presidential signature, legalization in sight, but then proponents noticed that somewhere in the legislative transit from the Senate to the House floor, a crucial word had been dropped from the bill. That word was "law."

Pro-gold strategists successfully moved to correct the language in the Senate with Sen. James McClure (R-Idaho) getting a measure to that effect passed by voice vote.

News Of Servicemen

TF man honored

JOHN F. LEINEN, Twin Falls, right, is congratulated by Elks Club national grand exalted ruler Gerald Stohm, Stohm, Fresno, Calif., appointed Leinen, district deputy grand exalted ruler for the central district of Idaho. Leinen is a member of the Twin Falls Elks Lodge. The appointment was made at Miami Beach, Fla.

BURLEY — Marine 2nd Lt. Kelly Henderson, husband of the former Elaine Storch, Burley, has participated in "Express Charger," a training exercise near the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N. C.

He took part in maneuvers designed to test the coordination and operational readiness of Marine Corps air and ground support units.

Marines from Atlantic and Pacific commands, including reservists, participated in the exercise.

Henderson serves with the Second Marine Aircraft Wing at Cherry Point.

BURLEY — Army Pvt. P.C. Phillip C. Hessler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Hessler, Arleta, Calif., completed eight weeks of basic training at the US Army Training Center, Infantry Ft. Ord, Calif.

He received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons map reading, combat tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and army history and traditions.

Pvt. Hessler's wife, Carolyn, lives at Burley.

TWIN FALLS — Pvt. Curtis L. Doty, 17, son of Mrs. Roy A. May, Twin Falls, completed eight weeks of basic training at the US Army Training Center, Infantry Ft. Ord, Calif.

He received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons map readings, combat tactics, military courtesy, military justice—first aid—and army history and traditions.

Pvt. Doty's father, Wesley L. Doty, lives at Burley.

The smallest species of catfish are the stone cat and madtoms, usually only three to five inches long.

Lynwood Chapel conducts school

TWIN FALLS — The Lynwood Chapel, Twin Falls, is conducting a Bible school through Friday from 7 to 8:45 p.m.

The school, for ages 2 through those going into seventh grade, will offer singing, lessons, handcraft, missionary stories and memory verses.

The school will put on a vacation Bible study program Sunday at 7:30 p.m. The program will feature a presentation by children of things learned during the week, and a film "Whiter Than Snow." All children and parents are invited to this presentation.
