Bomb blast rips LA airline office

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An explosion today ripped through the Pan American World Airlines terminal building at Los Angeles International Airport.

Federal Aviation Administration authorities said at least two persons were killed and fifteen others were critically injured.

The blast occurred about 8:15 a.m. in the vicinity of the ticket office of the Pan Am building at 200 World Way. Firemen and police evacuated the building within 15 minutes and began full-scale emergency operations.

The air line said the bomb was placed in a suitcase operated locker near a stairwell in the check-in section of the terminal, which is some distance from the actual ramp area where passengers board planes.

Nixon's GOP support erodes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican support of President Nixon eroded seriously in Congress today following his admission he withheld evidence from the House Judiciary Committee.

Rep. Henry P. Smith (R-N.Y.), one of the 40 GOP Judiciary Committee members who voted against all articles of impeachment against Nixon, said most of those 10 had now changed their minds.

Rep. Charles W. Sandhuar (R-N.J.), who became a national figure through his insistence during nationally televised committee debate on "specificity" of charges against the President, today said new transcripts yielded Monday by Nixon carried the "hard proof" of criminally warranting impeachment. The transcripts, showing Nixon suggested the FBI limit its investigation to the days after the Watergate break-in and the President's admission he withheld that evidence from Congress, the courts, his own lawyer and the American people swelled the pro-impeachment forces in Congress.

—Smith said all the GOP Judiciary members now favored impeachment except for Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., whose position was unknown. Lott was reported to be en route to Washington from Mississippi.

—Sandhuar said he would vote for impeachment and sent a letter to the White House suggesting Nixon resign for the good of the country. He predicted a "practically unanimous" House vote to impeach.

—Rep. Robert McClory, Ill., second-ranking Republican on the Judiciary Committee, said he favored beginning House impeachment debate next week and limiting it to two days.

—Rep. Robert A. Taft, Ohio, a leader among southern Democrats who supported Nixon, called for his resignation. Slides said he was dropping his plan to introduce a motion to censure instead of impeaching Nixon, but said he would wait a few days before deciding his vote on impeachment.

Nixon admits halt orders early in Watergate probe

(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — President Nixon admitted Monday that six days after the Watergate burglary he ordered a halt to the investigation for political as well as national security reasons.

Nixon also admitted he kept the evidence from his lawyers and supporters on the House Judiciary Committee.

He made the admission in a statement accompanying the release of partial transcripts of three conversations of June 23, 1972, which he in "disrespectful" information.

James D. St. Clair, the President's chief lawyer, briefing Republican Senators on what he called "bad news," said Nixon would not resign because Nixon felt it would be setting a precedent for removing future Presidents from office.

Although Nixon's motives were not entirely clear, it was evident that in view of the fact that the information was to be made public later in any event, the choice to put the own interpretation on it, as he did when releasing the first White House transcripts on April 30.

Monday's three transcripts, of conversations with the former chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman, six days after the Watergate burglary, were among those he has turned over to Judge John Sirica under orders of the Supreme Court.

The President said he was making them public so they could be used by the House in its impeachment debate, tentatively scheduled to begin Aug. 19. He said Sirica was reviewing the first of some 64 conversations and other materials subpoenaed for the trial of some of the Watergate defendants, adding that it was unlikely that the review would be completed in time for the House debate.

"It appears at this stage, however, that a House vote of impeachment is, as a practical matter, virtually a foregone conclusion and that the issue will therefore not be tried in the Senate," he said.

"In order to ensure that no other significant relevant materials are withheld, I shall voluntarily furnish to the Senate everything from these tapes that Sirica rates should go to the special prosecutor."

Opposing views

REACTING to a call for President Nixon's resignation Monday, Sen. J. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., (above) said "I'll be in Nixon's shoes, I'd fight it to the last." George Meany, AFL-CIO president, said he wishes Nixon would "just go away."

Nixon repeats vow to fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon told his Cabinet today he does not intend to resign and believes "the Constitution is the overriding factor" in his determination to stay in office.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon told reporters after the almost two-hour meeting that "the President sincerely believes he has not committed an impeachable offense."

Despite action Monday admitting he withheld damaging evidence about his involvement in the Watergate cover-up, Simon said Nixon expressed to his Cabinet the "firm resolve not to have the tragedy of Watergate obscure the accomplishments of his administration."

biennial budgeting. "The state would save money and so a more efficient job" by budgeting funds every two years, he said.

Simon, president of three title companies, has emphasized the tax issue. "I am concerned that something be done to relieve some of the tax burden," he said. He called for increased efficiency in government spending to make available funds go further.

Morgan, president of PAM Inc., said the major problem facing government in Idaho is "the threat of taking an excessive amount out of state use. One way to avert this threat would be to develop all agriculture and other public resources to utilize our great water supply."

today in brief

Burns tells inflation brakes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns said today Americans must tolerate slower economic growth, high interest rates and "a higher rate of unemployment than any of us would like" if inflation is to be brought under control.

Burns told the House-Senate Economic Committee the underlying economy was strong, with demand for labor still high, industrial production recovering somewhat, and export markets continuing strong.

Henry wins new confidence vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has been given a fresh vote of confidence by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in connection with "wrangling of 17 government officials and newsmen in 1969-71, members said Tuesday.

Kissinger had threatened to resign unless the committee cleared him of allegations he had initiated wiretaps to plug security leaks. President Nixon subsequently said he ordered the taps.

Hughes named in court summons

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — A summons has been issued for Howard Hughes and three others indicted last week by a federal grand jury in Las Vegas.

Hughes, David Carney, Chester Davis and Robert Mahou face charges of stock manipulation in connection with the purchase of Air West in 1969. Mahou is former head of Hughes Nevada operations.

U.S. District Court Judge Bruce Thompson Friday ordered the four to appear in person at an Oct. 25 hearing. The summons were sent Monday.

Mr. T.N. says

Nebraskan discounts admission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Carl T. Curtis (R-Nebr.) said today President Nixon's admission that he withheld Watergate cover-up information should not be the controlling factor in determining the impeachment question.

Still firmly on Nixon's side, Curtis was one of only a few members of Congress to make a fresh, strong defense of the President in light of release late Monday of a statement and tape transcripts that Nixon conceded were damaging to his case.

Stock market soars higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Optimism that the Watergate affair may be bearing a "dramatic climax" shot the stock market upward today in heavy trading.

The market soared more than 25 points the first hour with the announcement that President Nixon was summoning his cabinet for an urgent session.

Crews repair tank car gas leak

BLUFORD, Ill. (UPI) — A railroad tanker carrying an extremely flammable gas apparently sprang a leak while stopped near this small rural southern Illinois town and forced the evacuation of several hundred persons early today.

Repair crews patched up the leak in the tanker, carrying butane within three hours after its discovery, and residents were allowed to return home. There were no injuries.

Polling proceeds

TWIN FALLS — A steady stream of voters cast ballots in today's primary election.

But despite interest generated by incumbent Rep. Orval Hansen's battle against challenger George Hansen, local officials predicted a tight turnout.

Twin Falls County Clerk Harold Lancaster said the early vote returns were "steady" and poll operation "very smooth."

"I notice quite a few people seem to be coming in rather steadily," he said. However, he said, absentee voting was lighter than usual.

Despite early water turnout, Lancaster predicted a light total vote. "I think people are just kind of sick of politics, really. I hope I'm wrong," he said.

people going out to vote." According to James Terry of the Kimberly Weather Service office, said the day would be mostly cloudy and cool, with a 20 per cent chance of showers in the evening. "Not too hot and not too much rain," he said.

Most interest centered on the Republican party primary contest between Orval and George Hansen. Most political observers predicted a close race.

Orval, a moderate, is seeking his fourth term in the House. George, a conservative, served in the House before twice running for the Senate.

In addition to the race for Congress, some interest has been generated in hotly-contested legislative races in a few districts, particularly in Twin Falls County.

President's defenders defecting

(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, President Nixon's strongest defender during the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment proceedings, and many other Republican defenders said Monday they would vote for impeachment.

Wiggins expressed a deep sense of disillusionment following the President's concession that he had been an early participant in efforts to conceal the facts of the Watergate burglary.

After a day of hurriedly called caucuses and intense whispering in the corridors of the Capitol, Rep. Thomas F. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, the House Democratic leader, predicted that no more than 75 of the 435 representatives would vote against impeachment.

O'Neill's assessment went unchallenged by those who had previously supported the President.

In months of closed Judiciary committee hearings and in the six days of televised debate, Wiggins argued forcefully that no single piece of evidence linked the President directly to a criminal offense.

But, in a statement outlining his position, Wiggins declared that "the facts then known to me have now changed."

There was no longer any doubt that the President had agreed to a "plan of action" to obstruct the Watergate investigation, Wiggins said.

"These facts standing alone are totally sufficient in my opinion to sustain at least one count against the President of conspiracy to obstruct justice."

Because of this, Wiggins said, he had reached the "optimal conclusion" that it was in the "national interest" for the President to resign.

Two other Republicans who had voted against impeachment in the Judiciary Committee — Reps. Wiley Mayne of Iowa and Joseph J. Martin of New Jersey — also said they would vote for impeachment on the charge of obstruction of justice.

Building progress

FIRE department headquarters are under construction east of the Twin Falls City Hall and officials say the progress is about on schedule in spite of some steel delivery and strike problems. The building will house the main fire station and is scheduled for completion early in 1975. City Council members began consideration Monday night for a new police complex in the same general area.

TF council vote favors fireman

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — City Council members voted four to one Monday night to accept the recommendations of a grievance committee for reinstatement of Donald Barnhill, city fireman.

The committee, composed of Lloyd Webb, H. W. Zimmerman and Carl Snow, heard arguments in the job grievance last week and presented its conclusions and recommendations to the council Monday night. The vote was against accepting the recommendations. All other council members approved them. Leon Smith and Henry Woodall were absent.

took city officials to task for failing to be specific in a reason for discharging the fireman. Barnhill was discharged from his job April 26. On May he filed a grievance complaint and on May 15, city manager Jim Milner confirmed the discharge and "rubbed the termination" final result effective until Sept. 1, the committee said.

In their report, the committee found the petition had been critical of the fire department's techniques, training, rules and regulations. The report stated Barnhill was reported to be "incompetent and inexperienced" and who discharges his duties with "every year we will have a rebuilding of the dam just from inflation alone, will be several million dollars more."

In District 24, taking in western Twin Falls City and County, in an open primary election, William Roberts, Bull, is challenged on the Republican ticket by Roy E. Brackett and Mrs. Betty Hoppe, both Twin Falls, and Lawrence Knigge, Filare, and Roberts, a farm equipment dealer, has served five terms in the Idaho House. He said one of his major concerns is replacement of the American Falls Dam, "which is the new dam, we're not going to have southern Idaho as we know it."

TF slated for film program

TWIN FALLS — The National Endowment for Humanities, has announced Twin Falls is one of 10 communities selected to participate in an experimental film program. The program is sponsored by the National Endowment for Humanities in cooperation with the New York City University. It was developed by the National Project Center for Film and Humanities. Designed for general adult public audiences, the program's goal is to bridge the ever-widening gap between the humanities and the realities of life in contemporary society. Mrs. Hoppe, a former Idaho Department of Employment worker, wants to help solve the problems of women and senior citizens. She also supports long-term planning at the local level with the state providing information and help when requested. Knigge, a farmer and rancher, said land-use planning is his major concern. Any planning, however, should "absolutely be done at the local level, he said, with the state assisting local officials."

Improvements of present programs in the state before starting new ones. Both the Republican and Democratic tickets carry names for state representative races in district 23. The north side district takes in Jerome, Gooding and part of Lincoln counties. All the candidates are newcomers seeking seats vacated by Vernon Ravenscroft, a candidate for lieutenant governor, and Earl Strickland, a former and Republican. The GOP contenders are Clair Hackett and Gordon Hoffield, both Jerome, and John Brooks, Gooding. Hackett, a farmer, is dissatisfied with "the way things are going." He said he believes the best way to change things is to get involved. Hoffield also is a farmer. He is concerned about Idaho's water, claiming the state can develop its water resources without federal agencies "letting us spend our money."

ballot are Anna Robinson, Edna, William Koray Jr., Jerome, and Richard Strickland, Gooding. Mrs. Robinson has pledged a career evaluation of tax measures and expenditures. Koray supports good land-use planning and "a little better protection for the horse racing industry." He also would like the kindergarten program revised so that it would be a part of the public school system. Strickland, a former and royal estate agent, said, if elected, he will introduce a consumer protection bill. He also pledged to support the American Falls replacement dam and more governmental power at the local level.

In district 22, taking in Filmore and Camas counties, Republicans, Charles Barran, Dan Kelly and Virgil Kraus are seeking state representative seats. Also in district 22, incumbent Wilson Stearn and challenger Lee Cline are bidding for the GOP nomination for state senator.

Polls open until 8 p.m.

BOISE (UPI) — Between 140,000 and 155,000 Idahoans vote today in a primary election where incumbent congressman from his own party. Polls, which opened at 8 a.m. in the state's 103 precincts, close at 8 p.m. Cloudy, cooler and probably dry weather was forecast for most areas. Despite hot local campaigning in some areas and some statewide campaigns, lack of a race for either party's gubernatorial nomination was expected to keep the turnout low. Rep. Oswald Hanson, Republican, was in the patient fight of his life against former Rep. George Hansen, trying to make a political comeback after two unsuccessful tries for the Senate. George Hansen, an insurance man in private life, faced primary competition once again pitted conservatives against moderates in an Idaho primary. Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, faced primary competition from publisher Leon Olson, who was expected to win. Republicans, however, had a solid race featuring both a public lawyer and former missionary against real estate broker Dan Winder, and former Air Force officer Charley Holstinger Smith. Green Party primary competition from publisher Leon Olson, who was expected to win. Presidential unraveling

President Richard M. Nixon has admitted he attempted to obstruct justice, a crime. In a remarkable statement released Monday, Nixon made two crucial concessions: First, he said he had ordered the FBI to curtail its Watergate investigation...

Second, he admitted he had learned in May of the discrepancy between the tape record of conversations dealing with the order to the FBI and the public statements he had made to the American people.

However, he said, he failed to correct the story or make the new evidence available. He didn't even tell his own chief defense attorney James D. St. Clair.

As a result, judgment on the case, did so with information that was incomplete and in some respects erroneous, Nixon said.

These are stunning admissions. They may have a greater psychological impact than the judiciary committee's vote for impeachment.

The President's admissions cut the ground from beneath his supporters. Those 10 Republicans who stood by him in the judiciary committee may be forced to move against Nixon. For example, the two most influential Nixon defenders on the committee, Reps. Charles Wiggins of California and Charles Sandman of New Jersey, said the statement was an admission of obstruction of justice.

During the next few days Nixon can expect an outpouring of the same intensity as the "firestorm" following the rehearsal of special prosecutor Archibald Cox's charges.

The predictable outcome is a near-unanimous vote for impeachment and a Senate vote to separate Nixon from the presidency.

We are surely watching the grim unraveling of the Nixon presidency.

First, the break-in; then, Haldeman and Ehrlichman removed the Cox firestorm, Agency's bribe taker, White House tape transcripts reveal the shabbiness of presidential conduct. The Supreme Court overrules claims of absolute presidential privilege. The committee vote to support impeachment. And now Nixon's historic admission of obstruction and withholding evidence.

Only a few more steps lie ahead: formal votes of impeachment and removal, or resignation. Hopefully the end will be swift and merciful for the sake of the nation.

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON The conventional view here is that this is the beginning of the end for President Nixon. But between various articles of impeachment in the House Judiciary Committee and voting conviction in the Senate...

changing moods, could be a critical factor. For example, the impeachment trial of President Andrew Johnson in the Senate lasted three months - from Feb. 25, 1868 until May 26, 1868, and this raises a key question. Does the authority of the present 93rd Congress expire at midnight Jan. 2, 1975, as Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington says it does? And if so, would an uncompleted trial in the Senate have to start all over again?

Senate leaders of course, are trying to speed up the process by drafting rules for the trial that would avoid this complication, but the timetable is not wholly in their hands. For example, if the House voted to impeach the President around the end of August, the President will ask for "time to prepare" his defense before the Senate. Majority leaders would have to start all over again.

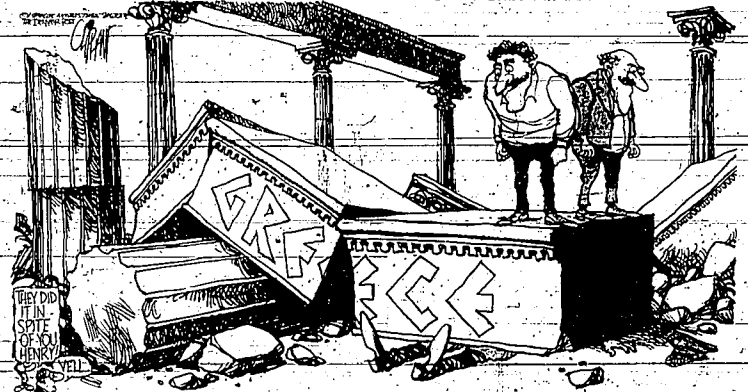

Mike Mansfield is thinking that two weeks would be sufficient. But if the President asks for "time to prepare" or "ever longer" it would be hard to deny him. Also, while the Senate can set rules that avoid filibustering it would be difficult to deny the President and his attorneys the opportunity to call as many defense witnesses as he likes. It is even possible that the trial could get into procedural arguments, in which case, the President could claim he was denied the process and re-try the argument to the courts. Presumably, common sense would prevail at some point in this process, but a long trial cannot be ruled out.

As a result of these potential difficulties, Washington is now full of proposals about how the nightmare might be avoided. One side argument for proposals is that he would retain his $50,000 a year life pension, plus his wife's $20,000 a year lifetime pension, plus almost $100,000 a year in expenses, even if impeached, but would only retain a far smaller pension as a former special officer of Congress and vice president if convicted by the Senate.

All this promises of comfort, but the president is still determined to fight the case out by every legal device at his disposal, as he has indicated he would do.

It is still possible, of course, that he will resign or take the 25th Amendment. But the likelihood is that he will fight it out to the end and take his chances.

He has always been a gambler and a fatalist who thinks something unforeseen may turn up, and since the unpredictable and the unlikely have often saved him in the past, it is still far too early to assume his conviction.

Today's question: Did the Emperor know or not?

WASHINGTON Chairman: The clerk will read the Articles of Impeachment. Clerk: Resolved that the Emperor violated his oath of office when he paraded down the street with no clothes on.

That he made false and misleading statements to the effect that he was wearing clothes at the time, and that he was party to a conspiracy and interfered in a lawful investigation as to whether in effect he did so in said city in the nude.

Chairman: Each member of this committee will have a chance for the purpose of debate. Only I recognize the member from Grazzuda. Chairman: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The question we have been asked to vote on today is: Did the Emperor know he had no clothes on and what did he do about it?

Let me review the evidence. The Emperor we can all agree spent taxpayers' money on clothes for himself.

Now from the Emperor's own parchments we know that on June 17 two clerks, claimed they could make such magnificent clothes that they would become invisible to anyone who was outside for the public's benefit.

We know the Emperor ordered a set of robes and gave cash in advance. The Emperor then sent one of his aides to inform that they indeed were working on his clothes. When the aide went to see them, he discovered they weren't wearing anything at all. The aide went back and lied to the Emperor. Then on March 21 the Emperor himself went to the weavers and saw there was no robe. Did he arrest the weavers? Did he report them to the justice minister?

No, Mr. Chairman. He praised them and he told the country they had woven him a magnificent set of robes that gave him more the beginning of a career, that continued until the day the Emperor walked down our streets in his birthday suit.

Chairman: Your time has expired. We will hear from the other side now. The courtier from Tearturina: Mr. Chairman, I can tell you that I have heard the same evidence, as my learned friend from Grazzuda. If you read the Emperor's parchments as I have done, you can only come to one conclusion. The Emperor was wearing clothes on the day in question.

Now if you follow the story, the Emperor did not take the word of his aide. He sent another who also reported the weavers had made magnificent robes for His Imperial Majesty. Let us remember that at this time the Emperor was busy with affairs of State. His closest advisers lied to him, but where is there anything to indicate the Emperor himself was part of the conspiracy?

Now, the only evidence that the Emperor wore no clothes came from a little boy who was sitting on his father's shoulders as the Emperor went by.

The boy said, "I quit" from his testimony. "But he has nothing on."

Now anybody can repeat anything they want into that statement. I defy anyone to show me where the boy said, "He has no clothes on."

And even if he did, are we going to believe the word of a little boy or are we going to believe the word of our Emperor? Mr. Chairman, at the Emperor says he had clothes on, it's good enough for me.

Chairman: The hearing is recessed until tomorrow at 10 a.m. (C) Los Angeles Times

History tapes' purpose

WASHINGTON A White House aide close to President Nixon has "explained" why Nixon made these notorious tapes in the first place and then rejected advice that they be destroyed.

First, according to the staff member, Nixon wanted to take a position to confront historians with the real truth of the Eisenhower era.

Second, the President sought to protect himself against misrepresentation. White House aides played him up as a man of integrity, with him never accused him of misuse of his office.

The source depicted Nixon as "a President with an almost fanatic determination to make certain he was accorded a proper place in the history books. Nixon didn't, and doesn't, trust most historians regarding their records."

Another source, high in the upstairs of the Committee to Re-elect the President, added another reason for Nixon's decision to tape conversations in his office. "It was a form of protection against those 'crazy' historians who are always writing something about John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman that do not in any way reflect the true nature of their relationship."

Another source, high in the upstairs of the Committee to Re-elect the President, added another reason for Nixon's decision to tape conversations in his office. "It was a form of protection against those 'crazy' historians who are always writing something about John Ehrlichman and H. R. Haldeman that do not in any way reflect the true nature of their relationship."

domestic adviser, Haldeman was White House chief of staff. When, then, did Nixon reject advice that he destroy the tapes when the Watergate scandal broke?

Because, said the White House aide, "The President was absolutely confident that the tapes would prove his innocence of any wrong doing. He's still confident that the American people, if not the Congress, will interpret his words on the tapes."

The aide said it was "perhaps unfortunate" that Nixon did not personally listen to all the tapes before they were released to the public. "He depended on members of his staff too much," said the aide.

At any rate, according to this source, Nixon originally believed he would have time to go over the tapes after he left the White House. "The President wanted to write the history of his administrations, and therefore, he wanted these tapes," as evidence, said this history was the truth.

The source said, "In the President's place, I'd have burned all those tapes," said the White House aide. "But I wouldn't have had Richard Nixon's confidence that it was okay to hang them all out. Even now, you'd never know he's talking with him. That he was in any trouble. I've never seen a man so secure in the belief that he is right."

Thought for today

A thought for the day: Thirty-first American President Herbert Hoover said, "A good many things go around in the dark between Santa Claus."

It must be tough these days being vice president

(C) New York Times Service
Let us try to imagine how hard it is being Vice President Ford these days. Here, to help in the exercise, is a summary of a meeting that might occur almost any day between the gentleman from Michigan and his old friend in the Oval Office.

When Ford entered the Oval Office, the President said he was so exhausted from working on the problems facing the nation that he didn't want to see anybody. Ford, in a moment of formality, he asked Ford had something important to talk about.

Ford replied he had been proclaiming the President's innocence in the Watergate affair and wondered if the President would tell him where the button was kept.

The President said what button? Ford said the President knew what button it was the button that nobody liked to think about, he said.

The President said Ford must be talking about the button that set off Ronald Zedler, producing the dreaded hemorrhagic holocaust. Since that particular button was highly classified, he said, he was not at liberty to disclose its whereabouts.

Ford apologized for intruding and said he planned to go to Ohio to predict that the President would not be impeached by the House, and he wondered if the President would let him take a peek at the Lincoln Room.

The President said the bed wasn't made if Ford wanted to see it later, he could limit a special tour.

Ford said that would be well. He added that he was planning a trip to Mississippi to predict that even if the President was impeached by the House he would never be convicted by the Senate and he asked Nixon if he, the President, would tell him a secret Nixon said what secret?

Ford said he would like to see the President get in touch with Henry Kissinger when there was a big international crisis.

The President said Ford could quit wondering because when he, the President, was in the news he never hears "going to take Henry Kissinger with him."

Ford said that was well. Ford added Mrs. Ford wanted him to save the President her best wishes and to ask whether the White House had its own laundry facilities, or if it did send everything out, what days pick ups and deliveries took place.

Nixon asked what Mrs. Ford wanted to know that for.

Ford said the President knew how women were added he would ask back when he had some fresh speech predictions.

Nixon said there was no time since he, Nixon, would be sitting in that very chair until noon on Jan. 20, 1977.

Ford said he would like to see the President get in touch with Henry Kissinger when there was a big international crisis. The President said Ford could quit wondering because when he, the President, was in the news he never hears "going to take Henry Kissinger with him."

Nixon admits cover-up, hiding major evidence

Nixon's characterization of the new material as possibly damaging to his case was viewed by some members of Congress as restrained.

One transcript of a conversation with Haldeman showed that after Nixon learned that John N. Mitchell, his campaign director, had approved the illegal hijacking of Democratic headquarters, he ordered that the Federal Bureau of Investigation be told, "Don't go any further into this case period."

This, and the fact that he did not tell his lawyers of the concealment, made two months after he had discovered it on the tapes, immediately brought new defections of Republicans in Congress, including that of his chief defender on the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, of California, who said he would now vote for impeachment.

There was a pause time today about the entire strange procedure at the White House, as if the President, who remained in seclusion, was only going through the procedures of defending his office, still on a principle against the removal of a President.

The statement was issued as part of his former staunchest supporter, Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, the deputy minority leader, had called for his resignation.

Yet the 300-word statement contained the usual justifications for his actions that have become familiar in the Watergate case during the year and a half. The break-in at the Democratic National headquarters in the Watergate complex took place June 17, 1972.

Nixon made public his first Watergate transcripts on April 30. In a national television address the night before he said, as he pointed out that "as far as what the President personally knew and did with regard to Watergate and the cover-up is concerned, these materials, together with those already made available, tell it all."

Those transcripts began with a conversation on Sept. 15, 1972.

Nixon said that in May, after being subpoenaed by Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, to produce additional tapes and material, besides those the Supreme Court ordered 12 days ago that be released, he made "a preliminary review" of some of the 64 taped conversations.

Among the conversations Nixon listened to were two of those of June 23 with Haldeman.

"I thought I was covering myself in these potential problems," Nixon said. "I did not inform my staff or my counsel of it, or those arguing my case, nor did I amend my submission to the judiciary committee in order to include and reflect it."

He said at the time he did not realize the extent of the "implications which these conversations might now appear to have."

As a result, he continued, "those arguing my case, as well as those passing judgment on the case, did so with information that was incomplete and in some respects erroneous. This was a serious act of commission for which I take full responsibility and which I deeply regret."

Even without that evidence, however, the House Judiciary Committee approved three articles of impeachment, one of them charging Nixon with participating in the Watergate cover-up.

Nixon pointed out that on May 22, 1973, shortly after the Watergate disclosures began to break, he issued a formal written statement saying that he had "intervened" in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's inquiry into the case because he was concerned it might expose covert activities of the Central Intelligence Agency and sensitive national security matters.

That statement, he said today, was based on his recollection at the time, some 11 months after the fact, plus "documentary materials and relevant public testimony."

But he added: "The June 23 tapes clearly show, however, that at the time I gave those instructions I also discussed the political aspects of the situation, and that I was aware of the advantages this course of action would have with respect to limiting possible public exposure of involvement by persons connected with the election committee." He referred to the Committee for the Re-Election of the President, which Mitchell headed.

Nixon said his review of the additional tapes had "not" shown any other major inconsistencies with what I have previously submitted." But he added that he was not certain there would not be others although "I have no reason to believe there will be."

"I recognize," Nixon said, "that this additional material I am now furnishing may further damage my case, especially because attention will be drawn separately to it rather than to the evidence in its entirety."

He urged that two points be borne in mind: first, that when the then director of the FBI, L. Patrick Gray said, expressed concern to him about improper attempts to limit the investigation,

"I told him to press ahead vigorously."

The second point, he said, was that he hoped all of the evidence would be looked at in its entirety and the events looked at in perspective.

"Whatever mistakes I made in the handling of Watergate," Nixon said, "the basic truth remains that when all the facts were brought to my attention, I insisted on a full investigation and prosecution of those guilty."

Then came the heart of his argument for remaining in office.

"I am firmly convinced," he said, "that the record—in its entirety, does not justify the extreme step of impeachment and removal of the President."

Henry working

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger once said when the political situation of a great power runs into difficulty and turmoil at home, its foreign policy inevitably will be affected.

President Nixon's latest revelations, in transcripts of three conversations of June 23, 1972, have promoted the chief executive to acknowledge that his impeachment is now "virtually a foregone conclusion" and a Senate trial is inevitable.

Yet, despite the possibility that the United States may lose its president through impeachment and Senate trial, the secretary of state continues to pursue the energetic foreign policy which at the present moment is aimed at promoting peace throughout the Middle East.

Ford won't offer further comments

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Acknowledging that the House would pass articles of impeachment and there would be a Senate trial for President Nixon, Vice President Gerald R. Ford Monday said he will make no further comments about it.

In a statement issued Monday, Ford said: "The public interest is no longer served by repetition of my previously expressed belief that, on the basis of all the evidence known to me and the American people, the President is not guilty of an impeachable offense under the Constitution, which specifies treason, bribery, high crimes and misdemeanors."

"Inasmuch as additional evidence is about to be forthcoming from the President—which he says may be damaging—I intend to respectfully decline to discuss impeachment matters in public or in response to questions until the matters are more fully available."

Ford said "the whole truth should be the object of the trial before the Senate."

He said he would be relieved of his "presiding duties" once such a trial begins and there are no prospects to guide me except my own common sense and my conscience.

"Both tell me to let my widely known views on the impeachment issue stand until I have reason to change them and to refuse further comment at this time."

Ford said he had promised Congress he would be a "calm communicator" and "ready conciliator" when he was appointed that role, he said.

"The President and the Congress are now in an adversary relationship."

"The business of government must go on and the genuine needs of the people must be served. I believe I can make a better contribution to this end by not imposing myself in an impeachment debate in which I have no constitutional role."

Wiggins key man among panel GOPs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — During a break in a House Judiciary Committee hearing on impeachment, one member said, "If Chuck Wiggins goes, he'll pull the rest of the Republicans with him."

Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, a conservative who has been a presidential election observer since 1951, has been for nearly eight years, "went" Monday.

Struggling to compare Wiggins called for Nixon's resignation.

"In making such a call," he said, "with great reluctance and deep personal sorrow, I am prepared to conclude that the magnificent career of public service of Richard Nixon must be terminated involuntarily, and that he withdraw his vote for impeachment of the President for obstruction of justice."

Wiggins, 46, well-tanned and broad shouldered with almost white blond hair, is regarded by most of the 31 members on the committee as its best jurist.

He assumed the leadership of the "41 statesmen" who opposed the proposed article of impeachment and already had been parrying out assignments for Nixon's defense on the House floor.

"I had been asked to brief other Nixon supporters to help them argue the case."

The turning point came Friday, when Nixon's chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig, and his Watergate attorney, James D. St. Clair, invited

Wiggins to the White House.

They showed him transcripts of the June 23, 1972, tapes and wanted to know what would be the effect on the committee and Congress.

Wiggins said Monday he read them "maybe four times."

"I explained to them the material had to be released," he said. Haig and St. Clair told him they already had been considering that, but it wasn't a final term to be released.

"I told them it was extremely damaging information to the President and they ought to be considering the possible resignation of the President," Wiggins said.

"I told them that I thought it was a bombshell. I told them it established a count of obstruction of justice," he said.

"This was a significant and important omission," Wiggins said he voted against impeachment and defended Nixon on the evidence he had and thought it was natural at the time. "I did what I thought was right and I thought was based on the facts before me and the committee."

He was not bitter toward Nixon, Wiggins said, but his demeanor was that of a man whose trust had been betrayed.

At the meeting at the White House, Wiggins said, "I came back home and kept my mouth shut and anguished over the matter" all weekend.

REP. CHARLES E. WIGGINS nearly went Monday

Excerpts from Nixon tapes, statements

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Excerpts from conversations and statements by President Nixon and his aides are being made public in an FBI probe of the June 17, 1972, Watergate break-in. The excerpts are chronological and are as follows:

June 23, 1972
Conversation was released by Nixon Monday and the July 6, 1972, conversation was revealed by Nixon May 22, 1974.

July 22, 1972
"The White House had no involvement in this particular involvement."

June 24, 1972
"The FBI, Haldeman, speaking to Nixon..."

June 25, 1972
"The investigation... you know the Democratic break-in thing, we're back in the problem area because the FBI is not under control, because acting FBI Director Patrick Gray doesn't exactly know how to control it and they have their investigation is now leading into some productive areas... Because they've been able to trace the money not through the bank sources... and it goes in some directions we don't want to go. The way to handle this is for us to have Deputy CIA Director Vernon Walters call Pat Gray and just say, 'Stay to hell out of this, this is all Pat Gray's here, we don't want you to go any further on it.'"

"Nixon to Haldeman..."

"When you get in, when you get in, intelligible to people... I look the problem is that this will open the whole, the whole Bay of Pigs thing, and the President just feels that an... don't, don't be to them to the extent to say there is no involvement, but just say this is a comedy of errors, without getting into it. The President believes that it is going to be the whole Bay of Pigs thing again. And, and because these people are plugging for (unintelligible) and that they should call the FBI in... (unintelligible) don't go any further into this case period."

O.K. just postpone (scratching noises) (unintelligible). Just say (unintelligible) very bad to have this fellow Hunt, all he knows to do, make sure that we involve you happen to know that if it gets out that this is all involved, the Cuba thing it would be a fiasco. It would make the CIA look bad, it's going to make Hunt look bad, and it is likely to know while Bay of Pigs thing which we think would be very unfortunate both for the CIA and for the country. At this time, the American foreign policy just tell him to lay off.

July 22, 1972
"Mr. Gray discussed with me the progress of the Watergate investigation, and I asked him whether he had talked with General Walters."

Mr. Gray said that he had and that General Walters had assured him that the CIA was not involved. In the discussion, Mr. Gray suggested that the matter of Watergate might lead higher. I told him to press ahead, with his investigation. (From Nixon speech May 22, 1974.)

April 23, 1974
"As the investigation went forward, I repeatedly asked those conducting the investigation whether there were any reasons to believe that members of my administration were in any way involved. I received repeated assurances that they were not. Until March of this year, I remained convinced that the charges were true and that the charges of involvement by members of the White House staff were false."

"I did send to me possible that, because of the involvement of former CIA personnel and because of some of their apparent association in the investigation could lead to the uncovering of covert CIA operations totally unrelated to the Watergate break-in. It was certainly not my intent, nor my wish, that the investigation of or related acts be impeded in any way."

After learning of the break-in I instructed my staff and campaign aides to cooperate fully with the investigation. As far as what I did with regard to Watergate and the cover-up is concerned, these materials together with those already made available will tell it all. I want there to be no question remaining about the fact that the President has nothing to hide in this matter."

If read with an open and a fair mind and read together with the record of the break-in before occurred, that I had no knowledge of the cover-up until I was informed of it by John Dean on March 21, 1973, and that the President's role with regard to Watergate is concerned the entire story is there.

Those arguing my case as well as those passing judgment on the case, did so with information that was incomplete and in some respects erroneous. This was a serious act of omission for which I take full responsibility and which I deeply regret.

Defenders quit Nixon

And three others — Reps. Charles W. Sandman Jr., New Jersey; Delbert L. Latta, Ohio; and Henry P. Smith 3d, New York — said that they were reassessing their position following today's disclosure.

David W. Dennis, Indiana, said that he would "probably feel the same way" as Wiggins but he wanted to read the new transcripts before making up his mind.

Latta, who antagonized many of his colleagues with his outspoken partisanship during the Judiciary Committee deliberations, said he had been stunned by the President's statement.

"We certainly weren't given the truth," Latta declared.

Before the White House issued the President's statement, the committee Republicans had met for more than a hour with Nixon's top principal lawyers, James D. St. Clair and J. Fred Buzhardt. Latta said St. Clair had apologized for having defended the President without access to critical tape recordings.

The House Republican Leader, John J. Rhodes, Arizona, did not come into his office today. His staff said that he was sick in bed with a sore throat and a fever. But he issued the following statement:

"The apparent attempt to use the CIA to cover up the depth of the Watergate conspiracy is shocking. The fact that the President's veracity is put in question by this disclosure is a tragedy.

Rhodes said he would hold a news conference Wednesday, and it was expected that he would announce then how he planned to vote on impeachment.

Two other members of the House Republican Leadership — John B. Anderson, Illinois, chairman of the House Republican Conference, and Barber B. Conable Jr., New York, chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee — were even more critical of Nixon.

7 die in Miami rooftop parking deck cave-in MIAMI (UPI) — Firemen searched the debris of a shattered federal office building today for more victims of a rooftop parking deck cave-in in which officials said seven persons died.

Four bodies were recovered, but rescuers could not recover the bodies of the other three victims for fear of causing another collapse.

"We found them but we can't get at them without endangering others," said Fire Department Lt. R.W. Fair.

Fifteen other persons were hurt in the accident Monday. All were employees of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration housed within the three-story building in downtown Miami.

Firemen speculated that the weight of the cars on the roof may have been too much for the six-inch slab concrete supporting them. Five cars and a van crashed through the roof, falling into a laboratory and processing room below.

The four recovered bodies were women workers in the FDEA offices, which were showered with concrete and shrapnel when the rooftop parking lot collapsed Monday morning.

The old building had been altered by the FDEA six years ago and actually had only two stories inside and a rooftop parking deck.

The building housed both the regional and district offices of the FDEA, covering most of the Southeast U. S. and the Caribbean area.

The women whose bodies were recovered were identified as Anna J. Pope, 52, of Fort Lauderdale, a cashier; Anna Y. Mounier, 25, of Miami; a clerk; Marsha Skeels, 50, of Miami; a clerical supervisor; and Mary Keehan, 24, a secretary.

Listed as dead but still inside the building were FDEA agent Charles Mann, 49, former Treasury agent who joined the FDEA three years ago; Nikolas Fragos, 29, an FDEA agent transferred from Detroit only a week ago; and Mary P. Sullivan, 56, of North Miami Plaza, a clerk.

Mann was crushed under an I-beam which firemen said couldn't be moved for fear another wall of the building would collapse.

Admitted to Jackson Memorial Hospital were FDEA deputy regional director David Costa, 40, and agent Charles Schumma, about 36, said secretaries Adrienne Byrd, 40, and Pat De Maria, 38. Ms. De Maria was in critical condition.

Nixon's statement

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The text of President Nixon's statement, issued Monday, releasing three transcripts to the public.

I have today instructed my attorneys to make available to the Judiciary Committee, the Committee, and I am making public the transcripts of three conversations with H.R. Halldeman on June 23, 1974. I have also turned over the tapes of these conversations to Judge (John J. Sirica, as part of the process of my compliance with the Supreme Court ruling.

On April 29, in announcing my decision to make public the original set of White House transcripts, I stated that as far as the President, personally knew and did with regard to Watergate and the cover-up is concerned, these materials — together with those already made available — would tell the whole story.

Shortly after that, in May, I made a preliminary review of some of the 64 taped conversations subpoenaed by the special prosecutor.

Among the conversations I listened to at that time were two of those of June 23.

Although I recognized that these presented potential problems, I did not inform my staff or my counsel of it, or of arguing my case, nor did I amend my submission to the Judiciary Committee in order to include and reflect it.

At the time, I did not realize the extent of the implications which these conversations might now appear to have.

Since the release of the transcripts, as well as those passing judgment on the case, I do so with information that was incomplete and in some respects erroneous.

This was a serious act of omission for which I take full responsibility and which I deeply regret.

Since the Supreme Court's decision 12 days ago, I have ordered my counsel to analyze the 64 tapes and have listened to a number of them myself.

The present has made it clear that portions of the tapes of these June 23 conversations are at variance with certain of my previous statements.

Therefore, I have ordered the transcripts made available immediately to the House Judiciary Committee so that they can be reflected in the committee's report — and included in the record for the Senate.

In a formal written statement on May 22 of last year, I said that short after the "Watergate" break-in, I became concerned about the possibility that the FBI investigation might lead to the exposure of the CIA, or of sensitive national security matters that the so-called plumbers used. At the White House had been working on because of the CIA and plumbers' connection of some of those involved.

I said that I therefore gave instructions that the FBI should be alerted to coordinate with the CIA, and to insure that the investigation not expose sensitive national security matters.

That statement was based on my recognition at the time — some 11 months later — plus documentary materials and relevant public testimony of those involved.

The June 23 tapes clearly show, however, that at the time I gave those instructions I also discussed the potential aspects of the situation and I was aware of the advantages this course of action would have with respect to limiting possible involvement by persons connected with the re-election committee.

My review of the additional tapes has, so far, shown no further major inconsistencies with what I have previously submitted.

While I have no way at this stage of being certain that there will be no others, I have no reason to believe that there will be.

In any case, the tapes in their entirety are now in the process of being furnished to Judge Sirica.

He has begun what may be a rather lengthy process of reviewing the tapes, passing on specific claims of executive privilege on portions of them, and forwarding to the special prosecutor those tapes or those portions that are relevant to his investigation.

It is highly unlikely that this review will be completed in time for the House debate.

It appears at this stage, however, that a House vote of impeachment is, as a practical matter, virtually a foregone conclusion, and the issue therefore will go to trial in the Senate.

In order to insure that no other significant, relevant materials are withheld, I shall voluntarily furnish to the Senate everything from the tapes that Judge Sirica rules should go to the Special Prosecutor.

I recognize that this additional material I am now furnishing may further damage my case, especially because attention will be

Kendall denies talks with Nixon

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Donald M. Kendall, chairman of PepsiCo Inc., denied Monday that he has contacted President Nixon about the firm's alleged resigning as opposed to risking impeachment — and possible removal from office.

A spokesman for Kendall, responding to a New York Times report that was attributed to White House aides, said:

"Mr. Kendall has had no conversation with the President concerning this matter, neither has he been removed from office."

Kendall was named in the Times story as one of several long-time financial advisers who were said to have sent word to the President that he should weigh his financial future carefully before reaching a decision because the firm's stock might be removed from office.

House okays veterans bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has unanimously passed and sent to the Senate a bill liberalizing the Veterans Administration guaranteed home loan program.

The measure, passed Monday 384-0, would cost an estimated $2.2 billion over five years. It would restore veterans' entitlement to guaranteed loans if prior GI loans have been repaid in full and would increase the present $12,500 maximum on a loan guarantee to $15,000.

Home loan guarantee would be extended for mobile home acquisitions, under the same maximums, and also qualify a mobile home loan guarantee if the home meets VA specifications.

New transcripts could affect trial

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The latest White House transcripts may have affected the upcoming trial of former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and former chief of staff H. R. Halldeman.

The June 23 conversations were not among the transcripts listed in the indictment of Mitchell and Halldeman last March 1, but they show that they knew about the facts of the Watergate break-in within six days of the break-in.

Mitchell, Halldeman and four other White House and re-election committee aides go on trial in U.S. District Court next month on charges of obstruction of justice and perjury in the Watergate cover-up.

As Nixon and Halldeman were talking about Watergate on the morning of June 23, 1974, the President's chief of staff, H. R. Halldeman, said Mitchell did Mitchell know about this?

"I think so," Halldeman replied. "I don't think he knew the details, but I think he knew the general nature of it."

Nixon also said that G. Gordon Liddy, finance counsel for the Committee to Re-elect the President, had contacted one of the aides and advised the aides that "there must be a little nuts."

"I mean he just isn't well screwed on is he? Is that the problem?" Nixon asked.

No, but he was under pressure, apparently, to get more information, and as he got more pressure, he pushed the people harder to move

Auto sales up slightly

DETROIT (UPI) — Priced by General Motors, the four major U.S. automakers posted a modest gain in July over the first seven months of the year, the first gain they've been able to report since last December.

It snapped a string of 22 consecutive 10-day reports in which sales failed to match the year's performance. For the entire month, July sales were off 17.8 per cent from last year's record, but still the closest the companies have come to matching previous year figures since last November.

GM sales in the final 10 days of July were up 14.1 per cent from a year ago, the first time the nation's No. 1 automaker has achieved that feat since the first 10 days of December. Its July sales were off 15.1 per cent, the smallest year-to-year decline in 1974.

Auto executives weren't halting their July 21-30 performance as the end of the sharp sales slump that began last September, costing more than 40,000 auto workers their jobs. But they did expect a "vast improvement" over the energy crisis-induced slump that saw figures during the winter drop 25 to 35 per cent from the record 1973 peak.

Consumer credit up

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — Consumer installment credit rose by $1.09 billion in June, a little less than the $1.22 billion the Federal Reserve Board reported today.

Summarizing the consumer credit picture in recent months, the reserve board made these points:

Both installment credit and total consumer credit rose less in June than in the first two months of the second quarter.

"Consumer credit growth in the second quarter was substantially larger than in the first quarter."

However, despite the pickup in the second quarter, credit growth remained well below the peaks reached in late 1972 and early 1973.

Bombs rip Brussels

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Four bombs apparently set by Spanish extremists exploded in Brussels today, three of them outside branches of the Spanish Bank of Brussels and the fourth in the "De Vrije" Spanish office.

The first three bombs went off before dawn and caused no injuries. The fourth, planted in a public place outside the Iberia office, exploded during the morning rush hour and injured five persons. Two of them, a secretary for the airline and the building superintendent, were hospitalized.

Cassia fair to start with jamboree

The Exchange Club's annual country and western jamboree will feature four top recording stars this year.

Barbara Mandrell, Tom T. Hall, Bobby Bare and Kenny Price will perform at the ninth annual jamboree Aug. 14, the first day of the Cassia County Fair and Rodeo.

Miss Mandrell has toured with the Johnny Cash show and starred on the Red Foley Show. She plays and sings everything from bluegrass to pop music.

Tom T. Hall has written over 100 songs, including "Harper Valley PTA" and "The Year That Clayton Deane Died." He has had at least one and sometimes several songs on the national country music charts of the past several years.

Tom T. Hall has appeared on several network television shows, including "The Johnny Cash Show," "The Ed Sullivan Show" and "The Tonight Show."

Bobby Bare has had numerous hit records in the past few years. He has "Detroit City," "500 Miles Away from Home," "Four Strong Winds" and the recent success "Daddy What?"

Kenny Price, country music's big man, will bring his happy tunes, which include "Walking on New Grass" and "My Goat for Today" to round out the bill.

Proceeds from the annual show go to continually support the Cassia County organizations such as the Mine-Casin Search and Rescue, the Future Farmers of America and the Cassia County Historical Society.

A Lovelier You

KEEP YOUR CHIN UP

A Lovely asks: Would a chin strap help my sagging chin? What kind? Everyone I know seems to have a different opinion on the subject.

The Answer: To improve the chin line, the skin and muscles in the area must be firmed and toned. This is accomplished through as-tringent, emollient, improved posture, and corrective facial exercises. Used as an auxiliary to the project, a chin strap acts as a well-trained aide.

The newest straps snug the chin and throat. One type behaves like a stretch wridle to refine fleshiness. Another design, referred to as a trim-a-chin mask, is treated with a heated contour lotion before donning.

Wear either type while reading or watching TV. It will remind you to keep your chin up, and doing so helps to firm the muscles. Or wear your prop while exercising. You work harder, because it provides resistance.

Exercises for a propped chin follow: Sit erect with head high. Open mouth and press chin against material beneath. Next, drop head back. Pull lower lip over upper lip. Then open mouth a fraction and repeat. Increase pull so leg is felt through throat to shoulder bones. Work at least ten minutes.

Be sure to use a contour lotion or emollient when exercising, whether or not it is supplied. It works to tone the skin.

BANISH CREPEY THROAT AND CHIN

To firm and uplift sagging throat muscles and flesh, use my four-way method. It works wonders through corrective exercise, posture, skin care and makeup. Procedures are detailed in the booklet, BANISH CREPEY THROAT & CHIN. For your copy, write Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Continuing with our kind-to-declarer week, we give South a nice 21-point two trump. North raises him to game after South looks at dummy he sees that he can count on one spade, two diamonds and four clubs for a total of seven tricks.

South sees that if he can get to dummy twice, he can produce a total of 10 tricks either in spades or hearts. He can get them in hearts if East holds the queen. That is a 50 per cent chance. Or he can get them in spades provided that East holds at least one of the two missing honors. That is a 75 per cent chance.

His next step is to try to find two entries to dummy. He sees they will be there in

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I've been struggling with this problem for a year and can't seem to come up with a solution. I am 27, reasonably attractive and divorced. When a girl is 21 and not yet married she can say no to a fellow and use the excuse that she is saving herself for marriage. But when she's 27 and divorced, what can she say that will be acceptable?

If I say "I don't believe in sex outside marriage." It sounds like I'm trying to rope myself another husband, which is not necessarily true.

How can I get around this? What I need is some clever saying that will get me off the hook without making me sound like a goody-goody.

STUMPED

DEAR ABBY: I've been struggling with this problem for a year and can't seem to come up with a solution. I am 27, reasonably attractive and divorced. When a girl is 21 and not yet married she can say no to a fellow and use the excuse that she is saving herself for marriage. But when she's 27 and divorced, what can she say that will be acceptable?

If I say "I don't believe in sex outside marriage." It sounds like I'm trying to rope myself another husband, which is not necessarily true.

How can I get around this? What I need is some clever saying that will get me off the hook without making me sound like a goody-goody.

STUMPED

DEAR ABBY: The days when girls went to college to catch a husband are a thing of the past. If girls don't get an education so they can support themselves they will end up on welfare.

The no-fault divorces are killing a scary loud and loud. Women are not to hook a man and live off him for the rest of their lives.

A relative of mine is now looking for work at the age of 67. For 15 years her ex-husband sent her $300 a month, and she spent every dime of it. Last month she was told there will be no more checks and now she is half out of her mind. She never does any kind of work in her life. She's hopelessly helpless.

She wants to come and live with me. I told her no. At age 45, I went back to school for two years to prepare myself for the job I now have. I like being independent, and I don't want to give up my privacy, which is what I would have to do if I let her come and live with me. Do you blame me?

ANONYMOUS

DEAR ANONYMOUS: I'd have to know more about the relationship between you and this relative. If she is someone who looked after you when you were helpless, it would make a difference.

DEAR ABBY: The girl I'm dating has been invited to her cousin's wedding. She received a formal invitation, and enclosed was a note which read: "I am sorry, but I must ask you please not to bring a guest as it will be too much. Thank you, and it was signed by the bride's mother."

My question is, is it customary for a girl who is dating someone special to be allowed to bring him? I had quite a long discussion with my girl friend. I told her that under the circumstances I didn't think she should attend the wedding unless she had no approval of her going without me as her escort.

I would like your opinion.

DEAR OBJECT: Objection overruled! You aren't officially engaged, to be sure, and should expect to be included. You appear to be unduly possessive of a girl who are only "dating." And you are out of order to insist that she not attend her cousin's wedding because you were not made welcome. Case dismissed.

CONFIDENTIAL TO M AND K: When an argument develops into a physical fight, the one who lands the first blow has lost the argument.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclosed stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Contested races scarce in Gem primary election

TWIN FALLS — Contested races for Magic Valley county officers are scarce in today's primary election.

In Twin Falls County, a county commissioner seat and the prosecuting attorney office are contested on the Republican ballot.

District 2 county commissioner incumbent William Chaney is opposed by George Benham. Both are Twin Falls residents. Chaney said "subdivision growth should be looked at quite carefully" in Twin Falls County. He said the new county zoning ordinance was a step in the direction of "controlling development in an orderly manner."

Chaney also said the county should investigate methods of funding solid waste disposal through user fees. Benham said he is seeking the district 2 seat because "I think we need to replace" Chaney. He refused comment on other issues. "I have talked to about all the people in Twin Falls County and I believe that's enough," he said.

In the prosecuting attorney race, incumbent Robert Galley is challenged by William Hollifield. Both are Twin Falls residents. Galley has said, "I believe in being fair but firm in enforcing the law." The protection of citizens' rights is his first concern, Galley said. He said he has cooperated fully with law enforcement officials and, as a result, has been criticized by those who feel laws should not be enforced. Hollifield said "a tough and effective prosecuting attorney is the most important element in the prevention of crime." As prosecutor, he would "provide complete and fair prosecution of each case in order to make crime unprofitable in Twin Falls County."

In Lincoln County, Walter Bowman and John McKenzie are seeking the Republican nomination for county commissioner in district 3.

In Camas County, Norman Tate and Marvin Francis, both Corvallis, are seeking the district 3 county commission seat on the GOP ticket.

In Jerome County, J. Howard Johnson and Ed Messenger are candidates for county assessor on the Republican ticket.

Parade starts fair

FIRST place winner in the organization division of the Gooding County Fair Parade was The North Side Senior Citizens. Its entry, with a man in a tub was one of many elaborately decorated floats in the adult parade. Two parades Monday opened the annual fair events in Gooding County. The chuckwagon, left, designed by the Bliss Grange, brought back memories for the fans watching the parade. Many Granges, civic and service organizations posted entries for the long and colorful parade.

Council approves camping rules

TWIN FALLS — City Council members approved a 27-item list of regulations Monday night to regulate temporary camping.

The action followed a request from the owner of a piece of vacant property in the west part of the old townsite to use his lot for camper, trailer or tent camping during the first part of September. City Manager Jean Milar said this is one of several persons who have inquired about the possibility of renting out temporary camping space during times that the only formal request.

He said more may be received and suggested the city adopt regulations covering sanitation, litter and other factors. As approved, the proposal covers the period of Sept. 1 through Dec. 31. Inspections by the fire, police, health, building and traffic divisions will be required. The regulations call for water supplies, sewage service, refuse control, electricity, signage, access roadways and walkways and registration.

Persons wishing to convert their vacant property to camping sites will be required to have less than 1,000 square feet of space per camper and not less than 15 feet between campers. All must be kept 25 feet from property lines. They will not be permitted to encroach on public right-of-way in connection with camping. Services, the regulations specify.

Restrictions announced
BURLEY — The bridge over the intake structure at Dallas Dam has a five-ton load limit restriction because of cracks appearing in concrete supports.
 Carlos Randolph, Elmendorf Project superintendent at Burley, said the bridge is used by the public for access to the city's main recreational area at the south side of the reservoir. The problem is related to the bridge only and that water sports and toilet facilities are not affected.
 Randolph said repairs will be made as soon as it is determined what corrective measures are needed.

Accident claims mother, daughter
PRICHARD, Idaho (UPI) — A mother and daughter died in a one-car rollover five miles east of Prichard in Northern Idaho Monday.

Idaho state troopers identified the victims as Mary Ann Harrington, 41; Silverton, and Benita Joy Harrington, 22; Missoula, Mont.

Troopers said the driver of the car was Keith Crawford, 25, Missoula. He was treated and released from the West Shoshone General Hospital.

Church protests refusal
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, is protesting a refusal by the secretary of agriculture to schedule public hearings on milk marketing orders.

The orders are being sought by dairymen who want consideration of whether the floor price in top quality milk should be increased.
 Church said Agriculture Secretary Earl Buttz Monday the emergency hearings are needed to prevent an unwarranted increase in class one prices and in prices paid to dairy farmers for milk.

Police seek Oregon boy

BURLEY — Burley police are investigating the disappearance of a four-year-old Oregon boy. Police detectives said this morning that Gordon Raymond O'Brien Jr., about four years old, has been missing since Friday, Aug. 2. The boy's mother, Dolores O'Brien, about 24, Baker, Ore., told police that she had traveled to Burley from Baker with three young men and another woman arriving about July 29.

Ms. O'Brien told police that she and one of the men, about 19, returned to Baker after the group had car trouble in Burley. They left the young O'Brien boy with the rest of the party at East Park. She returned to Burley Thursday. She said she had searched for the boy and the other members of the group Thursday and reported the disappearance to Burley Police Friday.

The others persons in the group were a woman and men in their late teens. Burley Police said the disappearance may be a kidnapping. They have notified FBI agents in 16 western states and are seeking information on the group.

Police detective James Higgins said no firm leads as to the whereabouts of the boy or the group have been found.

US powers said supreme

SUN VALLEY — The assistant secretary of agriculture said today counties technically could not regulate federal construction on "federal lands."

Robert Long, Department of Agriculture in a U.S. Forest Service briefing in Sun Valley today said the Sawtooth National Recreation Area, however, should begin looking to the future to enforcing building and control to state and local governments.

Associate chief of the forest service Rex Resler, Long and Vern Hamre, regional director of the forest service from Ogdenville, were here to view the SNRA in observance of the 50th anniversary of the wilderness area designations in the United States.

"Counties and the forest service should form a close working relationship." Counties eventually should assume building code regulation, and all construction should be under jurisdiction of local entities.

Questioned on county jurisdiction over federal construction on forest service land, Long said legally, there was no way counties could enforce construction on federal land.

SNRA. Sept. Gray Reynolds said last week counties have "absolutely no jurisdiction on federal land. Landowners here, however, are gathering together and the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Administration is requesting an alternate, general decision, according to a member of the planning and zoning administrative staff.

Eastern Kansas farmers facing heavy losses as drought grows

MCLOUTH, Kan. (UPI)—John Bower, sitting atop his creaky, rusted 1946 tractor and gazed at 80 acres of corn stalks scorched to a sickening orange-yellow from the worst drought in 20 years.

"This isn't as bad as the dust bowl days in the '30s," the craggy-faced farmer said, climbing down from the tractor.

"At least, it isn't yet. But if we don't get rain in the next 30 days, it will be as bad, if not worse."

The tall, soft-spoken farmer wore traditional blue-gray dungarees with a matching hat. His leathery skin was brown from 36 years of working his land. He walked grimly toward a scene that is now a common and disturbing sight in eastern Kansas.

Thousands of rows of corn stalks, scorched to death by extreme heat and dry winds, are gone only for livestock feed that will bring a few dollars per acre.

Bower's 200-acre farm, his home and livelihood since 1919, is tucked among the rolling, parched Kansas hills known for their rich soil and high moisture content.

As in most areas of the corn belt, only a few raindrops have pelted the light brown dust since July 3, the only day of significant rain since early June.

Bower admitted he and his neighbors were "spoiled" last year with a good crop and high prices. But—most of the financial gains enjoyed last year already have been wiped out by the drought.

"Farmers are always in debt to someone," Bower said, shuffling out of his field on a wooden leg caused by a tractor accident several years ago.

"For the first time last year, I was able to pay off all my notes at the bank. But this will put me right back where I was before."

Bower waved at other fields about 100 acres of soybeans and milo—his only hope left for a break-even year. Those crops develop late in the season, he said, and he planted them in a precaution.

In case of drought, rain in the next two weeks will save those crops.

Despite the drought that most state officials are now calling a disaster, Bower said he and his farming neighbors aren't ready to quit farming yet.

"Most of them have outside jobs," he said. "So they can keep going. But I'm 62 years old, and nobody wants someone my age. I'm too old to do much else than farming."

Bower holds a seat in the state House of Representatives, but the office's paltry salary and expense allowance hardly turn a profit, and he expects stiff opposition this election.

Through the winter, he said, expenses for food, chemicals, fertilizer and equipment will have to be paid.

"It'll be tight," added his frail, dark haired 63-year-old wife sitting passively in a living room chair. "But we've been through these things before. We can take one bad year, I guess."

Test results told

JEROME — Ben Russell, the unit tester, reported test results of 1,943 cows tested during the month of June from the Gooding, Joseph, Jerome Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

There were 13 brands that averaged over 1.25 pounds of butterfat per cow per day during June.

The herds in order of production number of cows, daily average pounds of milk and daily average pounds of fat are listed.

Gem seed in contest

HEMET, Calif. (UPI)—Idaho will be represented by a variety of corn seed in a Canyon County in the fourth annual National Corn Derby, a feature of the 1974 Farmers Fair of Riverside County, Calif.

Kernels submitted this year from among the 37 states participating, were planted at the Hemet Fairgrounds June 4.

The stalks will be measured Aug. 13, the first day of the fair, with a trophy topped by a golden ear of corn going to the governor of the winning state.

The national record was set in 1971, when a corn from Wyoming attained a height of 13 feet, 10 inches.

Farm

Lincoln sale held

SHOSHONE — The Lincoln County 4-H fat stock sale was held Sunday at the County Fair Grounds.

County Extension Agent Ivan Hopkins said the only way the sale could be successful was by help from the purchasers.

Shoshone Sale Yard handled the sale with Barrell Williams and Bob Waddups calling.

Lamb purchases were made by Shoshone Sale Yard, Glen Craft, Les Stiman, Jerry Nance, Ralph Bowen, Harrell "Timme" Insurance and Real Estate, Ab, Kelley, First Security Bank, Idaho State Bank of Hagerman, V.C. Ross, Burton Thorne, Chevron Service, Grosse Drug Store, Dr. G. Nelson, Corcoran Service, at Dietrich and Law's Sand and Gravel.

Steer purchases were made by Shoshone Sale Yard, H & A Land & Livestock, Jerry Wallace, Cliff Stutzman and Harrell Thorne.

Cheese output up

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said American Cheese and Creamery butter production increased during June, but ice cream production was on the decline.

Butter production was up 16 per cent from June 1973, the service reported and creamery butter production increased one per cent.

Total ice cream produced was 342,000 gallons, compared with 365,000 gallons produced in June 1973. The service reported.

Total milk production in the Gem State during June was 124 million pounds, down one million pounds from last year.

Congress battles speculation guard

(C) Washington Star News — As signs of drought provoke a surge of speculation in the nation's commodity exchanges, Congress is struggling to complete a bill that would put such speculation under tighter government controls.

Some members of the Senate Agriculture Committee hope to stiffen sections of a House "anti-speculation" bill scheduled for Wednesday.

The measure, which would be the first overhaul of futures trading since before World War II, is not regarded as "top priority" legislation by Congressional leaders, however, and it may be stranded in Congress as both houses narrow their vision down to one issue.

Meanwhile, commodity futures traders, a basic influence on the nation's food prices, continue to set new records. The Department of Agriculture's Commodity Exchange Authority (CEA), which is supposed to regulate future trading, has announced that "trading" in "excess" commodity future contracts set a new record last year, jumping from $268.2 billion to $342.6 billion.

Trading in futures contracts for all commodities—including contracts for silver, copper and foreign money, which are not regulated, may now be close to half a trillion dollars.

The nation's sagging stock markets.

This week, trading in wheat and corn futures began to take on the roller coaster pattern seen a year ago in the wake of the Russian wheat deal, the spreading drought, in the midwest has sent prices soaring in the last two weeks.

At the Chicago Board of Trade, the nation's largest grain trading market, activity was hectic, spurring up and down over the allowed 20-cent "physical" ranges as traders reacted to rumors of the drought or to news of scattered rainfall that fell over sections of dry areas.

Some traders' experts have long believed that "unfettered" trading in futures contracts promises to deliver or receive a quantity of a given commodity at a future date—causes higher food prices because "wildly fluctuating" prices "disrupt the normal activities of farmers and grain dealers who bring the crops to market."

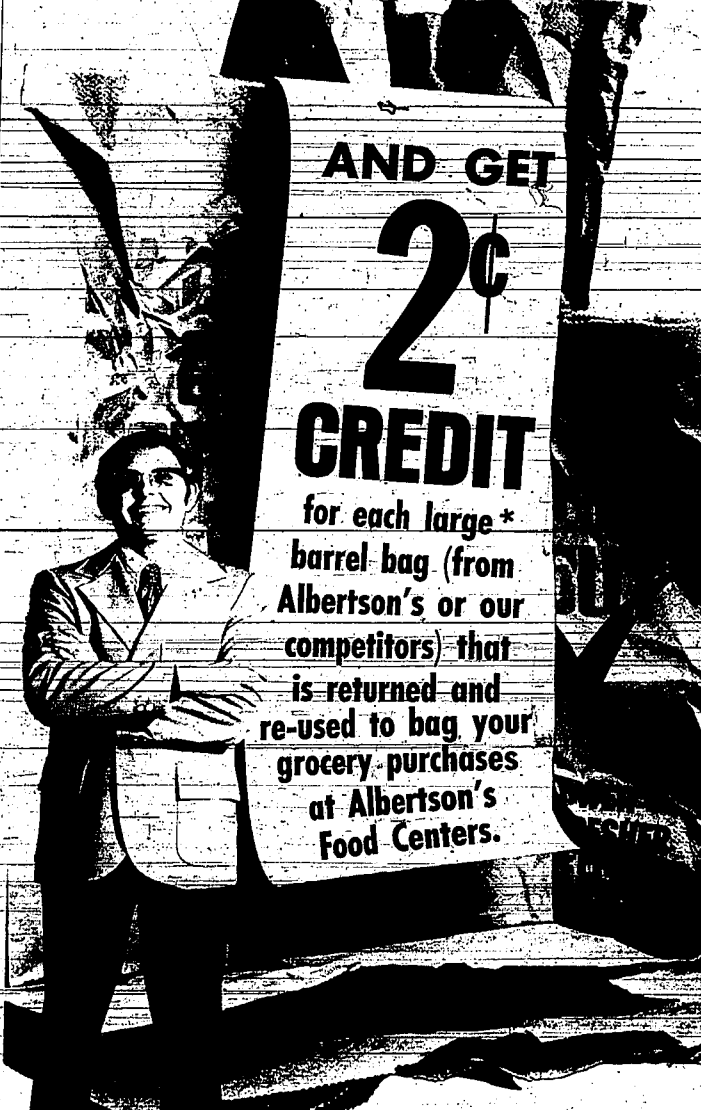

Traditionally, they have relied on futures trading as a kind of insurance or "hedge" against gyrating prices. But, in the aftermath of the Russian wheat deal, which sent all food prices upward, government contracts resigned to promote the hedging function, have apparently faltered.

Sources close to the Senate Agriculture Committee believe it is prepared to do just that by beefing up a bill already passed by the house, which would set up a "semi-independent" regulatory agency under the supervision of the secretary of agriculture and four part-time commissioners.

Some other committee members have said they will press for a fully independent agency with full-time commissioners, that would function somewhat like the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Oklahoma Sooners far superior to any team in Big Eight league

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Big Eight coaches and fans are unanimous in their praise for Oklahoma.

"I feel Oklahoma is the best football team I've ever seen. I'd rather have it the other way. There are more abilities with a great offense and an average defense than there are vice-versa."

"Our players and our coaches like it," he said. "It carries a lot of responsibility. It's a great feeling to see a player obviously 'the' players and recruit like."

Oklahoma's offense has produced an insurance tally as the offensive starters put a team that has led the Big Eight in scoring and scored 400 points. Included in the returns are:

Reliever ready for tough situations

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Al Hrabosky knows he's up to a major-league pitcher in tough situations.

"I'm not afraid to throw the ball. Sometimes my ball moves a lot, so they know they have to be careful to get out of the way."

"I really like to be brought in only in special situations," he said. "I've felt it's always helped me."

"I'm big on psychology and it makes me feel good to know other people are counting on me. I have a lot of confidence in myself and when others show confidence in me, I try to build on that."

"I start throwing and I look like I'm trying to intimidate the batter. I'm not going out there looking like a meek little country boy. If you step up there, you're better prepared because I'm throwing hard and, if one gets away, and suddenly they say, 'It's gonna hurt.'"

"I've got off in such a bad start this year, I had to change a lot of things," he explained. "Last year I was having a great year and at the end of the season I started growing a moustache and couldn't get anybody out."

Rookie guides Chiefs victory

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Rookie quarterback David Jaynes completed his first pass as a professional for a 46-yard touchdown Monday night, spearheading the Kansas City Chiefs to a 20-12 National Football League exhibition victory over the Detroit Lions.

The Lions broke through early in the second quarter when Elren Herrera kicked a 22-yard field goal after a 12-play drive and a scattering of strike-breaking veterans.

The smallest crowd, 25,321, in the three-year history of Arrowhead Stadium watched.

Jaynes, a consensus All-American last year at Kansas, fired his bomb on the Chiefs' first possession.

Herrera added a 28-yard field goal midway through the third quarter, cutting the Chiefs' lead to 17-4.

The Lions led by rookie quarterback Bruce Arthur from Toledo, skipped 75 yards for their only touchdown in the fourth quarter.

After the Lions narrowed the margin to 17-12 late in the game, George Jakawenko kicked a 34-yard field goal with 1:33 left to clinch the victory.

On their second possession, the Chiefs ramped 66 yards, but had to settle for a 22-yard field goal by Robert Currier.

The Chiefs hurried to their second touchdown near the end of the half after Scott Lewis recovered a fumble by quarterback Pat Kirsch on the Detroit 31. Crisley jumped outside on a fourth-down play and raced seven yards for the touchdown with 1:12 left in the half.

Some secretaries do get fired, that they do. But why? A research team examined the employment records of 76 corporations. Listed reasons for such dismissals, in descending order, were: Carelessness, bad temperament, laziness, absenteeism and dishonesty. Said researchers then checked out the notices by numerous employment interviewers on the application blanks of previously dismissed secretaries. What those girls most frequently claimed was that their bosses got fresh. Won't buy that, sorry.

CHEMISTRY

How two patriotic institutions: the Congress on the one hand and the Presidency on the other, should come to such odds was hard to savvy. But a chemistry student explained it to me last night: The Legislators are trying to invent a universal solvent while the White House boys are trying to figure out what to keep it in.

WHEN IN ENGLAND, if you get a joint invitation from a man and his wife, better send your answer just to the wife. Technically there, she's the family's social secretary, old chap. Lot of people hereabouts practice that particular bit of English etiquette. But of none of the manners authorities say you definitely ought not send your reply to the husband and wife jointly.
