Ford plans unity bid tonight

Woman VP not ruled out
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has not ruled out a woman in his search for a vice president. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., has been criticized for his remark that a woman would be acceptable "if she gets home in time to cook dinner."
The woman most often mentioned for the No. 2 spot is White House counselor Anne L. Armstrong, who also was similarly mentioned when former President Nixon was deciding on a vice president after Spiro T. Agnew resigned.

Demos select
BAKER, Ore. (N.Y. Times) — State Sen. Betty Goldberg, 51, has been nominated by the Oregon Democratic central committee to run against Republican incumbent Robert W. Puckwood in the U.S. Senate race this fall.
She replaces former Sen. Wayne Morse, nominated in the May primary, but who died of kidney failure on July 22. She has served five terms in the Oregon legislature and ran second in the May Democratic gubernatorial primary.

Malek quitting OMB post
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Frederick Malek is resigning as deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, it was learned today.
Malek is one of the first top level Nixon administration officials to depart following the swearing in of President Ford. However, he had made known his plans to resign several months ago.

Mr. T-N says
The early riser who looks skyward these mornings has an inspiring view of moon and stars.

African airliner crash kills 48
OUAGADOUGOU, Upper Volta (UPI) — A Soviet-built Ilushin 18 passenger plane, with 49 persons aboard, crashed Sunday night when the pilot ran out of fuel and tried to land on a highway.
Air officials said 46 persons were killed and 14 injured. The officials said the Air Mail turbo-prop plane crashed on the Ouagadougou-Niamey road, 25 miles from the airport.

Exiled Russian dancers protest
LONDON (UPI) — Exiled Russian ballet dancers Valery and Galina Panoz today joined a demonstration outside the Soviet Embassy calling for the release of physicist Victor Polak from Russia.
Polak, 41, is due to stand trial this week for what demonstrators called "a farcical trumped-up, dangerous driving violation."

Rocky mum
CHICAGO (Chicago Daily News) — Murray A. Rockefeller, considered a strong possibility for vice president, has refused to say whether he would accept the position if it is offered to him.
"That's an iffy question," he said. "Therefore, I do not want to comment on it." Rockefeller said he hasn't submitted any names to President Ford and has no favorites for the post.

FTC Judge drops merger complaint
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Trade Commission judge today dismissed a merger complaint involving Warner, Lambert Co. and Parke, Davis Co., two of the nation's biggest drug manufacturers.
Administrative Law Judge Andrew C. Goodhope ruled that the 1970 merger did not create a monopoly in the pharmaceutical industry and that, if anything, competition has remained severe in that field.

Reds overwhelm Viet outpost
SAIGON (UPI) — An outpost in the Central Highlands manned by about 37 South Vietnamese Rangers was overrun by Communist forces after being hit by 200 rounds of mortar and artillery fire, military officers said Monday.
The officers said outpost Chu Ho lost radio contact with Plei Me camp, about two miles to the northeast, early Sunday.
At the same time Plei Me, a former U.S. Green Beret camp 203 miles north of Saigon, was hit by 500 shells from heavy artillery, followed by a ground assault by Communist forces.
It was the sixth assault on Plei Me in four days.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford does before a joint session of Congress tonight with a nationally televised appeal for unity and a renewed spirit of cooperation between legislators and the White House.
There were abundant indications Ford would receive a warm welcome in his first appearance as President in the chambers where he served for 25 years as a Michigan congressman. His speech was scheduled to start at 7 p.m. EDT.
Ford got an early start on his long day, beating most of his staff to the White House of 7:30 a.m.

He scheduled morning meetings with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to discuss the Cyprus situation and with other aides to work on shaping his new administration.
Another task facing Ford was coordinating his growing list of proposed vice presidential candidates, Congressional and political leaders who met with him for 30 minutes Sunday and had a list of about 15 possibilities and asked for more suggestions.
Administration officials said Ford's speech to Congress, which was expected to run about 50 minutes, would present a general overview of what he considers to be urgent domestic and foreign problems. Ford spent much of the weekend working on it.

Members of Congress, meanwhile, anticipated having much better relations with Ford than they did with the Nixon administration.
"We do have a better climate, no question about it, and we'll have more cooperation between President Ford and the Congress," Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said today.

"I think that the honeymoon will last up to and through the election, because we want to cooperate and work in partnership with President Ford and the administration," he said.
Appearing on NBC-TV's "Today Show," Mansfield said fighting inflation should be Ford's top priority. "Whatever he thinks is necessary to decrease inflation from the present rate of 12 per cent, we would give consideration to," Mansfield said. "And we would eagerly await any initiative he would show."
Ford emerged from his suburban Alexandria, Va. home early today after fixing his own breakfast and taking a dip in his backyard swimming pool. He waved to a small crowd of bystanders and press.
When asked what he would do without a swimming pool at the White House, he grinned and said: "I'm going to miss it."

WHEN HE MOVES into the White House, President Gerald Ford will miss most his 40-foot backyard swimming pool. At his residence in Alexandria, Va., Ford swims twice daily for physical conditioning and "does a lot of thinking in the pool." Asked what he thinks about, Ford replied, "Mermaids." (UPI)

The letter was from the US Postal Service.

Tighter rein on Kissinger power?

(C) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — Despite broad smiles for the camera and mutual expressions of respect, there are strong indications Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's power will decline under President Ford.
The reason is that during the Nixon administration, Kissinger, made an enemy of former defense secretary Melvin R. Laird, who is Ford's closest political adviser.
Longtime Laird associates report he retains a deep suspicion of the secretary of state, as a result of their bitter bureaucratic clashes and a feeling that Kissinger, in his original role as former president Richard M. Nixon's national security adviser, maneuvered to exclude Laird from major policy decisions.
The implication is that Laird will urge Ford to keep a tighter rein on Kissinger and not permit him the virtually total freedom he had under Nixon.
There have also been hints that Ford, because of Laird's long and close association with the military, may incline more toward Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger in his subdued contest for power with Kissinger.
Just before the cabinet meeting Saturday, the President was overheard to agree with Schlesinger that the Pentagon has drawn an undue share of the blame for US problems in the world. Ford noted, to his own and Schlesinger's obvious satisfaction, that a recent poll showed the military had regained its place as the most respected institution in the nation.

Kissinger, on the other hand, appeared taken aback when Ford described him as a "horse trader" in a discussion of efforts to get Congress to restore cuts in the defense budget.
Ford indicated several months ago he would retain Kissinger but might dismiss Schlesinger if he became President, largely because of Kissinger's misgiving over the defense secretary's ability to deal with Congress.
Now, however, presidential aides say Ford is determined to keep Schlesinger, largely because Laird has changed his mind. In any event, Laird — a leading candidate for the vice presidency — may prove to be the ultimate arbiter of both defense and foreign policy in the new administration.

Laird's conflict with Kissinger developed out of both policy and personal differences. Although Kissinger gained the reputation of being more of a dove and Laird more of a hawk on Vietnam, Laird's associates say the opposite was true. They say Laird consistently pushed for a faster troop withdrawal and opposed expansion of the war, particularly the escalated bombing of North Vietnam.
They note that Laird's military aide, retired Gen. Robert Purdy, was a strong advocate of just withdrawal and that apparently as a result, his phone was tapped with Kissinger's acquiescence.
Laird reportedly took particular exception to a decision under which he was bypassed in the chair of command in 1970 and bombing orders were sent directly to the joint chiefs of staff by Nixon and Kissinger.
Kissinger, on the other hand, evidently had his own suspicions of Laird. In a semi-authorized book, "The Retreat of American Power," by Henry Brandon, Washington correspondent of the Sunday Times of London, Kissinger is described as having complained constantly that Laird was leaking information to undermine his policies. He reported that he was so far as to blame Laird for leaking the Pentagon papers.

Crash kills Rupert man

ROGERSON — Darold Gene Johnson, 44, Rupert, was killed instantly Sunday afternoon in a single-vehicle accident just south of here.
Idaho State Police Officer William Walker reported the man was alone in his pickup truck when it left U.S. Highway 93, two miles south of Rogerson and rolled over. The driver was thrown out as the vehicle rolled, and died at the scene of a neck injury, County Coroner Clyde Edwards said.
Walker reported the vehicle left the pavement on the right side of the road and rolled over once, coming to rest on its wheels at the right of the highway.
The accident occurred at 3:40 p.m. The body of the victim, was taken to Twin Falls-Mortuary pending funeral arrangements.

Jerome man draws 90 years

JEROME — A Jerome man has been sentenced to 90 years in prison for the shotgun slaying of three persons.
Charles Eldon Heughins, 47, Jerome, pleaded guilty to three counts of second-degree murder in the shotgun shooting of his ex-wife, Clara Irene Heughins, 40, his father-in-law, Cecil W. Moore, 76, and his ex-sister-in-law, Joy Lauraine Nelson, 50, all Jerome.
Heughins was in stand trial on three counts of first-degree murder Tuesday, for which he had entered a plea of not guilty on each count of first-degree murder Tuesday, for which he had entered a plea of not guilty on each count.
Thursday, however, Heughins changed his plea of not guilty to guilty of three counts of second-degree murder.
Fifth District Judge James Cunningham sentenced Heughins to 30 years on each count with each sentence to run consecutively. Heughins was taken to the Idaho State Penitentiary in Boise Friday morning.
Had Heughins been found guilty of first degree murder, he would have been the first case to test Idaho's reenacted death penalty.
Heughins was arrested after he forced his way into the Moore home in Jerome shortly after released from the Idaho State Prison Sept. 1, 1973.

Man hangs self
RUPERT — A convicted burglar from Rupert hanged himself Sunday in a segregation cell at Washington State Prison, Walla Walla, Wash.
Larry R. Trullio, 23, was moved from minimum security early Sunday and placed in maximum security because he was believed to be under the influence of a drug. He was placed in segregation when he resisted the move. He was committed to the prison in January on a second degree burglary charge from Yakima. He had set off a disturbance at the Idaho State Prison-Boise in the spring of 1973 when he objected to being returned to maximum security after treatment of a self-inflicted wound. During the disturbance, inmates set fire to the non-mission dining room and chapel. He was released from the Idaho State Prison Sept. 1, 1973.

Non-profit agency buys land for resale to US

By BART QUENSELL
Times-News Writer
KETCHUM — A non-profit agency is buying private land in the Sawtooth National Recreational Area to sell back to the Forest Service.
Field representative Thomas Macy said the Trust for Public Land (TPL) has been working in the Obsidian-Peltite Lake area and throughout Stanley-Basaltic March.
The TPL is an offshoot of the Nature Conservancy, a national organization involved in land preservation. Macy said the goal of the TPL is to establish a flexible organization involved in the purchase of private land to be sold back to the government.
Macy said land in the SNRA already has been bought and negotiations are proceeding on several other plots. In many cases, Macy said, land owners had been willing to work with the TPL because the Forest Service because of financial arrangements the TPL can offer.

The Forest Service cannot arrange land payments and in many cases cannot pay for a year or more to owners who request to sell.
The TPL, according to Macy, can own both the land. He said the TPL could make payments in installments to the seller a tax break.
However, TPL will buy the land for less than the appropriate value, Macy said.
Owners take advantage of the TPL offer at the lower price because they have in the through fewer time-consuming procedures and because the TPL is a non-profit organization.
Macy and SNRA Superintendent Gray Reynolds agreed the TPL can negotiate land transactions in many cases where an impasse between the Forest Service and a land owner has occurred.
The TPL is attempting to set up a viable organization, Macy said, completely sustained by its own funds. It has a $10 million line of credit with the Bank of America and several grants to help accomplish that goal.

No delays for TF schools

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls School Supt. George Staudacher said Saturday the school year would begin as scheduled on Aug. 26, whether or not Evel Knievel jumps the Snake River Canyon.
"I'm flooded with telephone calls about us delaying school because of this guy," Staudacher said.
He said school would follow its normal calendar, with a holiday on Labor Day, Sept. 2, and the usual day off on the Thursday of fall week, Sept. 5.
Knievel's jumps scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 8, and the fair is scheduled to run from Tuesday-Saturday, Sept. 3-7.
Staudacher said there will be "absolutely not" be excused absences for any events surrounding the Evel Knievel jump.
"As far as we're concerned, school will start and run as normal," he said.

Better medical treatment demanded

LISBON (UPI)—A group of 600 jailed former secret policemen seized a block of the Lisbon penitentiary today but refused to return to their cells after nine of them had been freed.

Carlos Galvao de Melo, a member of Portugal's military junta, Navy Commander Colocico Silva said.

The former secret police agents demanded better medical treatment and financial support for their families.

Silva, head of the castle-like penitentiary, told newsmen, "the situation is back to normal, the extra troops are leaving now and the prisoners are going back to their cells."

Silva gave no details of the conversations between de Melo and the prisoners delegation but said there "will be a statement later."

He said the next prisoners to be freed were those who had been standing by in case of trouble, were leaving.

The prisoners were once members of a special political force of the right-wing regime of Premier Marcelino Caetano, which was overthrown in a military coup April 25.

The prisoners became unsettled when one of their colleagues died of a heart attack," Silva said.

The prisoners had no arms or hostages but had locked out their guards.

Israel calls reservists

By United Press International

Israel made preparations today for its first nationwide callup of military reservists since last October's war, testing the nation's readiness for a new Middle East conflict.

In the Arab world, Beirut newspapers denounced the impending maneuver as a "coverup for Israel's aggressive designs" and accused the Jewish state of massing troops on its borders with Syria, Lebanon and Egypt.

The Beirut newspaper Al Nahar said today the Soviet ambassador to Lebanon, has told Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat that Israel may be planning to attack its Arab neighbors in order to freeze moves toward a Middle East settlement.

Israel announced the one-day mobilization in a communique after Sunday's weekly cabinet meeting in Jerusalem, but did not set a date. Military sources said the callup could come soon, perhaps in the next few days.

The decision for a national mobilization follows weeks of warnings by Israeli generals that the Arabs may launch another war within the next year.

The cabinet communique said advance notice of the 24-hour exercise will be given to foreign embassies and United Nations headquarters in the region.

At the Israeli meeting, Foreign Minister Yigal Allon briefed the cabinet on his talks in Washington last week about the next possible moves in peace negotiations.

The Israeli national radio said the United States had proposed a five-year plan for a partial settlement between Israel and Jordan.

Israeli newspapers said Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger told Israel Jordan is prepared to start negotiations.

The English language Jerusalem Post said Kissinger's recent talks in Washington with Jordanian Premier Zeid Rifaat laid the ground work for the future negotiations. King Hussein of Jordan is currently in the U.S. capital.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Ha'aretz said Kissinger may visit Israel by the end of this month after a series of talks with Arab leaders.

Egyptian-Foreign-Minister-Isma'il-Fahmi headed for Washington today for a one-week stay.

Moscow news silent

MOSCOW (UPI)—Moscow newspapers so far have kept silent on the events that led to former President Richard M. Nixon's resignation, but not so the Leningrad press.

The Friday edition of Vechniye Izvestiya, which reached Moscow today, gave readers the most detailed account of the immediate events leading up to resignation, that has appeared in the Soviet press.

The newspaper, one Nixon admitted that some of the information he previously supplied the House Judiciary Committee in the Washington case was incomplete or erroneous.

Scholarship presented

TWIN FALLS—Jerris Lynn Stonemetz, Twin Falls, was presented a $100 scholarship by the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Friday night.

Miss Stonemetz, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stonemetz, is a 1974 Twin Falls High School graduate, and has enrolled in the nursing program at the College of Southern Idaho.

The Ridgeway Memorial Scholarship is presented annually by the Twin Falls IOOF Lodge to a student enrolling at the college.

Nixon's final crisis bubbled, exploded...

WASHINGTON (UPI)—In the end, Richard M. Nixon faced a crisis he could not overcome. It bubbled and exploded around his Oval Office for more than two years. At times it seemed like the storm was abating, but it would not go away.

Then, during five days in August, came the final firestorm. Thursday night it ended. Nixon resigned.

In his resignation's wake, four of his former cabinet members—John S. Mitchell, Richard G. Kleindienst, Maurice F. Stans and John B. Connally had been indicted or pleaded guilty.

Criminal proceedings have been taken against a total of 50 persons, including the White House aides who worked closest to Nixon and for five and a half years helped shape the administration's policy.

Watergate's biggest victim was Richard Nixon himself, the first American President to be forced from office. The alternative to becoming the first President impeached, convicted and removed by Congress.

Resignation did not end his troubles. Nixon still faces possible criminal prosecution in the Watergate cover-up, and unpaid bills that will wipe out half of his $1 million personal fortune.

“I wish you had been in the deep-sea valley, can you know how it is to be on the highest mountain.” Nixon tearfully told his staff Friday minutes before leaving the White House for the last time as President.

Nixon's troubles began innocently enough, a full two years before the Watergate scandal exploded publicly.

The date was June 5, 1970. Present, among others, were FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and CIA Director Richard Helms. As a result of the meeting, Nixon on July 23 approved an expanded domestic intelligence operation to include activities such as breaking and entering.

White House aides worried about Nixon's reaction. In a memo dated March 24, 1971, speechwriter Patrick Buchanan said Sen. Edmund S. Muskie was the man likely to unite the Democrats and they are united that it had news for us.

On top of that, The New York Times, on June 13, 1971, began publishing the 47-volume Pentagon Papers, the secret study of the Vietnam War obtained through former Pentagon consultant Daniel Ellsberg.

Ellsberg and still lacking an official domestic intelligence operation, the President eight days later approved establishment of a special White House investigations unit to stop security leaks and investigate sensitive matters.

He named John D. Ehrlichman, his domestic affairs adviser, his supervisor and put Pat Buchanan, Ellsberg's man's assistant, in charge. Added to the unit were David Young, E. Howard Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy. They were to become popularly known as the “plumbers” because of their mission to stop news leaks.

That Labor Day weekend they burglarized the Watergate office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Things also were moving on the political front. At a Sept. 27 meeting in the office of Attorney General John N. Mitchell, Liddy presented a $1 million political intelligence plan—calling for kidnapping radical demonstrators, using call girls to get Democrats to disclose their plans, roughing up demonstrators and conducting electronic surveillance. Mitchell allegedly said the plan was to “cut and immerge,” and told Liddy to “draft affidavits.”

The greatest upheaval to consider, a sealed-down $500,000 plan primarily involving Jeb Magruder, deputy director of the Committee for Re-election of the President (CRP). He testified later that Mitchell approved the plan March 30 at Key Biscayne. Mitchell denied it.

Meantime, Buchanan wrote the greatest political scandal in America's history. Four years ago, when it all began, a President narrowly elected in 1968 and aware that he had never been a charismatic leader was looking to find the power needed to implement his programs.

George S. McGovern should be relatively easy to defeat and GOP attacks on him should be held in abeyance until we are reasonably sure McGovern has the nomination.

The espionage went on, however. On May 30, the “plumbers” broke into Democratic headquarters at the Watergate complex and placed a wiretap on the phones of Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien and another party official. They went back June 17, but this time they were caught.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler called it a “third-rate burglary attempt.” Nixon took his first public stance on Watergate June 22 when he said the White House has “no involvement whatever.”

But events were racing ahead. Liddy was fired as CRP finance counsel for refusing to talk to the FBI and Mitchell quit as Nixon's campaign manager after his wife issued a public ultimatum that he get out of the “dirty” business of politics.

A week later, Hugh Sloan quit as CRP treasurer. Later, he said there had been an “impression” that he had committed perjury or take the Fifth Amendment before the Watergate grand jury.

Nevertheless, Nixon told an Aug. 29 news conference an investigation was being conducted. Caused John W. Dean III to resign as Nixon's White House staff, in one in this administration, presently employed, was involved in the very Watergate incident.

Trouble continued to mount. On Sept. 15, the “Watergate Five”—plus Hunt and Liddy—were indicted. Dean testified later that Nixon congratulated him and he replied that all he had done was “contain the case and assist in keeping it out of the White House.”

Perhaps worst of all reporters Carl Bernstein and Bob Woodward wrote in the Washington Post, Oct. 10, that FBI agents have established the greatest upheaval to consider, a sealed-down $500,000 plan primarily involving Jeb Magruder, deputy director of the Committee for Re-election of the President (CRP). He testified later that Mitchell approved the plan March 30 at Key Biscayne. Mitchell denied it.

Meantime, Buchanan wrote the greatest political scandal in America's history. Four years ago, when it all began, a President narrowly elected in 1968 and aware that he had never been a charismatic leader was looking to find the power needed to implement his programs.

manager, Clark MacGregor, acknowledged that CRP of funds-but denied using it to sabotage Democrats. Ziegler dubbed the reports “shabby journalism, a blatant effort of character assassination.”

On Nov. 7, Nixon swamped McGovern but the result: White House jubilation was short-lived. On Jan. 8, 1973, the “Watergate Seven” went on trial before Chief U.S. District Judge John Sirica.

Hunt promptly pleaded guilty, asserting that “nothing I may have done, I did for what I believed was the best interest of the country.” A few days later, Barker, Sturgis, Gonzalez and Martinez also pleaded guilty. Liddy and James McGord were tried and convicted.

But Sirica wasn't satisfied the whole story had come out, and suggested that the grand jury call “several persons.” Pressure also was mounting in Congress. The Senate on Feb. 7 voted 70-0 to set up a seven-member Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities and authorized an investigation.

Nixon and Dean met March 21 to consider White House strategy and Dean later testified he warned Nixon there was a “cancer growing on the presidency” and that he was not sure Watergate could be contained indefinitely and Nixon replied that he would have to fight back.

Dean rejected Nixon's $1 million payment to insure the silence of the Watergate defendants would “be no money.” He said Nixon did not reject “hush money” payments to Hunt. Later it was revealed that CRP agents paid Hunt $75,000 that day.

On March 24, Sirica revealed a letter from McGord charging that perjury was committed at the January trial, that defendants were pressured to plead guilty and that higher-ups had known. The judge postponed sentencing McGord until June 15 and gave the Miamians stiff, provisional sentences to encourage all five to take a plea bargain in 20 years.

The tide continued to run against the administration. Magruder resigned as assistant committee member of the White House and the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Other stories followed. Finally Nixon's campaign Watergate, particularly his giving FBI reports to Dean. Sen. Barry M. Goldwater urged Nixon to “speak up now,” saying Watergate was beginning to smell like “Toupat Dome.” Nixon spoke of “major developments” in the case, and Ziegler announced that all previous statements on Watergate were “improper.”

Then, on April 27, U.S. District Court Judge W. Mark Byrne Jr. disclosed in Los Angeles the hitherto secret information that Liddy and Hunt had bargained the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Days later, Ehrlichman, Haldean and Kleindienst resigned and Nixon fired Dean. He named Defense Secretary Elliot Richardson to replace Kleindienst. In a television appearance, Nixon accepted responsibility for Watergate, but said he never knew about it or tried to cover it up.

The scandal continued. In explaining his decision to resign on Aug. 22 news conference at the White House, the President said Watergate “never would have happened” had it been running the campaign rather than trying to run the country. He urged the nation to move “from Watergate to the business of the people.”

But the scandal had a momentum of its own. On Aug. 23, Nixon learned that the Watergate cover-up

In debt, Nixon has one opportunity

Bill merits top title

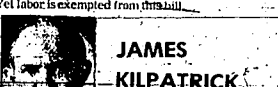

WASHINGTON—The Senate continues debate on a measure that merits a splendid, superlative title. It is the Worst Bill of the Ninety-Third Congress.

Admittedly, that title is a considerable sweep; but the bill to create a Consumer Protection Agency is not merely a bad bill. It is a monstrous bill, in the holy name of consumerism, one of the more fashionable religions of the day. The Congress is about to create a bureaucratic nightmare.

The sponsors and defenders of this bill make it sound so simple. Out of whole cloth, they have fashioned a speechless dummy named “the consumer.” This poor creature, it is said, has no one to defend his interests. Business and industry have highly paid lobbyist whose insidious talent is to manipulate the agencies set up for their own regulation. The consumer, by contrast is an abandoned babe in a forest of wolves. The bill would create a new agency with authority to fight back on his behalf.

The theory rests on a false premise, that there is such a thing as the consumer. Under the definition contained in section 4 of this bill, every human being who uses or purchases any goods or services whatever is a consumer. But it is plain that no advocate possibly could serve all consumers alike.

Let us examine, if you please, the “best interests of this hypothetical ‘consumer’” in such areas as milk, lumber, textile products and shoes. Presumably, consumers have an interest in cheap milk, but the farmer has an interest in a reasonable job, and such new agencies as the Consumer Products Safety Commission are coming on strong. A case for further bureaucracy cannot be made.

JAMES KILPATRICK

Under this legislation, the best agency would have some $20 million to spend on advocacy. Far from putting the consumer on an equal platform with business spokesmen, the King of the Lobbyists, the latest cut in town.

Our present system of consumer protection may not be perfect, but such old-line agencies as the courts, the Food and Drug Administration, and the Federal Trade Commission do a reasonable job, and such new agencies as the Consumer Products Safety Commission are coming on strong. A case for further bureaucracy cannot be made.

Biscayne Bank & Trust Co. headed by his longtime friend, C. G. Robert Johnson. Much of those savings may have been used by Nixon's troubled mount this year.

The president and his wife were forced to pay $224.29 in back taxes in April after the Internal Revenue Service ruled against the controversial deductions taken for a belated gift of his vice presidential papers.

In July, Nixon was unable to meet the targets and final payment due on his portion of the San Clemente property. He paid $94,776, including interest, and six months delay in paying the last half of his original purchase price.

Nixon also had to take care of his regular annual tax payment in April. Since he could not use the leftover part of his now-discredited deduction for the papers, his taxes may have run as high as half of his $200,000 presidential salary.

These three major payments probably chewed up most of his cash savings, although the White House had not released any new breakdown of Nixon's finances.

Looking ahead of time are two major tax and unsettled possibility of another tax penalty.

Nixon has yet to shell out the $148,081 the IRS listed as unpaid taxes for 1968. The White House has said Nixon will pay it, even though the IRS said he is not legally required to do so because the statute of limitations has run out.

President Nixon, who became a millionaire in the White House, may leave off with his fortune eroded, a man in debt with a dubious financial future.

Back taxes and San Clemente mortgage payments already have exhausted most of his savings and Nixon still owes another third of a million dollars on his taxes until the home.

Disturbance proceedings now pending in California could banish him from the practice of law, his main source of income in his years as a real estate agent who bought with borrowed money-time names at Key Biscayne and San Clemente. Selling one of those homes, probably the one at Key Biscayne, may be a necessary strategy at an inopportune moment after leaving office.

29 Sirica ruled that the tapes would have to be produced for him to examine privately and decide whether to submit them to the grand jury.

The White House immediately challenged Sirica's ruling, but the U.S. Court of Appeals voted 4 to 2 that the tapes must go to the grand jury.

On Oct. 19, Nixon announced a "compromise" with Senate investigators under which Sen. John Stennis would listen to the tapes and provide a summary to the grand jury.

Cox refused in what has become known as the "Saturday Night Massacre." Richardson quit, denying Nixon's statement he had approved the compromise. His deputy, Fred Stephens, refused to dismiss Cox and was fired. Nixon named Robert Bork acting attorney general.

Bork fired Cox.

The result was a "firstborn" of demands on Congress to impeach Nixon. He abruptly agreed to surrender the tapes and promised to name a new special prosecutor. But he said all presidential documents would be kept secret.

The drama continued to build. On Oct. 30, the House Judiciary Committee began consideration of possible impeachment.

Chairman Peter Rodino, a subpoena power.

Nixon named the new prosecutor two days later — Leon Jaworski, a House lawyer and former president of the American Bar Association.

The President went on television Nov. 7, to acknowledge that "great numbers of Americans" questioned his integrity, but vowed not to walk away "from the job I was elected to do."

Meanwhile, events were moving toward a climax on an issue that probably wounded Nixon with the public more than any other single thing — his income taxes. Seeking to mute charges he had profited illegally from his office, Nixon on Dec. 4 made public a detailed financial accounting dating back to his election.

It showed his net worth had tripled — making him a multimillionaire, and that he had paid a smaller amount of his income in federal taxes — 7 per cent — than would a family of four with an annual income of $30,000.

He also named a congressional committee to decide whether he owed more taxes and promised to abide by its findings.

Stennis, who had been under criticism that it had let Nixon off easy, the Internal Revenue Service said it was making its own re-examination.

The matter came to a head April 27. The White House announced the IRS had determined Nixon owed $432,707.13 in back taxes, plus interest, and that he would pay up, even though he would have to front a loan to do it.

In congress, Rodino announced that John M. Doar, 52, a former justice Department official with a Republican background, would head the House impeachment study.

Albert E. Jenner, 66, noted Chicago trial attorney, was hired as chief minority counsel.

In one of its first steps, the committee asked the White House for materials already given Special Prosecutor Jaworski. The White House responded with hints that Nixon would consider giving up the tapes only after the committee defined an impeachable offense.

The committee was not important until March 18 when Sirica ruled that the committee could have the grand jury's secret Watergate report and any other material dealing with Nixon's possible involvement. He was upheld by the court of appeals.

But the committee asked for 42 additional tapes. After more back and forth, the White House promised only to deliver by April 22 evidence that "will enable the committee to complete its inquiry promptly." The committee reacted by voting 38 to 3 to subpoena the tapes with an April 25 deadline.

Nixon, working with a fifthly extension, came up with the tapes on television April 29 to say he would give the committee and make public 1,254 pages of edited Watergate transcripts and let Rodino and Hutchinson verify them from the tapes. Rodino said only the tapes would suffice.

The edited transcripts were delivered the next day but on the same day the President said that he had "failed to comply with the committee's subpoena."

Nixon aides said in advance the answer was not to give a pretty picture of the Nixon White House, even though most of the considerable profanity was deleted. The public seemed to agree. The phrase "explicitly deleted" became a part of the lexicon along with "inoperative" and other Watergate terms.

More important, the transcripts were not a newspaper — called an impression that the Oval Room of the White House had been "perverted into a plotters' hangout," and the character of the man of a "Mansaloon." Another, said, the President and his aides, seemed more interested in manipulating justice than in justice itself.

BAL Nixon, "hanging loose," in a favorite phrase, insisted the transcripts showed he had given the correct version of Watergate and the ensuing coverage and that Dean had lied. The White House also resisted new attempts by Jaworski and the "impeachment committee" to subpoena materials from his office.

Frustrated Jaworski wrote the Senate Judiciary Committee charging that Nixon was trying to sabotage his investigation.

He said he had the possibility of another "Saturday Night Massacre." But it did not materialize and the Senate Judiciary Committee gave Jaworski a vote of confidence.

Finally, on May 22, Nixon himself, wrote Chairman Rodino that he would give the committee no more Watergate transcripts.

He said a portion of an April 4, 1972, conversation about ITT.

Nixon said that agreeing to "the constantly escalating requests" would constitute such a "massive invasion into the confidentiality of presidential conversations that the situation of the presidency would be totally compromised."

On May 30, the committee issued a subpoena for 45 more tapes and documents, and warned that if the President refused to comply, his integrity might become an impeachable offense.

With the President preparing to fly to Moscow in June, some congressional questioners wondered whether the trip was wise in view of his troubles at home.

The White House scoffed at any such idea and the President's subsequent triumphant Middle East tour seemed to bear them out.

Nixon's lawyer told a federal district court May 30, that Nixon would withhold evidence he considers vital to national security "even if" meant dismissal of criminal charges against Haldeman and Ehrlichman stemming from the Ellsberg break-in.

He also backed former Commerce Secretary Maurice

Stans in his refusal to turn over data of appeal.

The summer that would bring the end of the Nixon administration began on June 15, when the White House did Watergate prosecutors confirmed that Nixon had been named an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up.

In another historic first on July 8, the Supreme Court heard oral arguments on the 61 tapes that Nixon had refused to yield to prosecutors. Philip A. Lacovara, counsel to the special prosecutor, said Nixon was not entitled to executive privilege because a case came in that Nixon was part of a criminal conspiracy. St. Clair said any court action would intrude on the congressional impeachment process.

From July 2-17, the Judiciary Committee heard testimony from nine witnesses, including Butterfield, Mitchell, Dean, Colson, and Kalmbach.

On July 9, midway through its interrogation of witnesses, the committee released the transcripts of eight recorded presidential conversations, with significant differences from the edited White House transcripts released April 30.

Most of the differences were damning to Nixon.

Another serious blow came July 12 when Ehrlichman,

Liddy, Barker and Martinez were convicted of conspiracy in the Ellsberg break-in. Ehrlichman became the highest White House aide ever convicted of a crime.

On the same day the Senate Watergate committee said in its final report Watergate was "one of America's most tragic happenings" and recommended a permanent "public attorney" patterned after the special prosecutor.

But still it seemed that Nixon could survive. Impeachment by the House seemed a possibility, but it appeared unlikely the Senate could muster the two-thirds voted needed to convict him, and remove him from office.

Then came two weeks of impossible shelling that the Nixon administration could not withstand on balance.

The crucial turnabout came on July 24 when in a historic ruling the Supreme Court said unanimously that Nixon must turn over tapes to Sirica for possible use in the cover-up trial on grounds executive privilege does not apply.

St. Clair announced Nixon would comply.

On the same day the Judiciary Committee, in long struggle nearing an end, began its nationally televised hearings. Although Nixon had Nixon's defiance of the committee's subpoena for 147 tapes.

Democrats wanted to ram through other articles, but the Republican defectors had had enough. Articles calling for impeachment for the secret bombing of Cambodia and for income tax fraud failed to pass.

Almost lost in the news on August 2 was the sentencing of John W. Dean III, Nixon's chief adviser, to one to four years in prison for his role in the cover-up.

The final scene which would take three days to enact began Aug. 5. Nixon released a brief transcript of a conversation he had with Haldeman June 23, 1972, just six days after the Watergate burglary.

Among the bombshells of Watergate it was of atomic proportion.

The transcript showed Nixon approving the earliest stages of the Watergate cover-up. He ordered Haldeman to use the CIA to block the early stages of the FBI investigation into the burglary — by claiming it was related to secret national security operations. It made it clear Nixon had, when he had said he had not learned the details of the cover-up until the following March 21.

For Republicans it was the "smoking gun" they said had been missing in the Judiciary Committee evidence. Rep. Charles E. Wiggins, R-Calif., who had been Nixon's staunch defender throughout the committee debate said he would now vote for impeachment. One by one the 19 senators on the committee who had supported Nixon called for impeachment.

Throughout Congress the storm raged. Nixon's support in the Senate vanished. House Republican leader John Rhodes called for impeachment.

There was no way Nixon could survive.

The crucial turnabout came on July 24 when in an historic ruling the Supreme court said unanimously that Nixon must turn over tapes to Sirica.

Colson, Nixon's former special counsel, unexpectedly pleaded guilty to obstructing justice by trying to "defame" and "destroy" the credibility of Ellsberg in the Pentagon Papers case. He was sentenced to one to three years in jail.

Colson also agreed to cooperate with the committee in exchange for dropping his indictment on charges connected with the Watergate cover-up.

The experts who investigated the famous 1 1/2 minute gap in one of the Watergate tapes issued their final report June 4, saying the gap was caused by at least five separate sessions of editing recordings, but they didn't know who did it.

The Los Angeles Times reported June 6 that the Watergate grand jury indicted Nixon on 6 in February to name Nixon an unindicted coconspirator in the cover-up. His lawyer, James D. St. Clair, confirmed the report but insisted Nixon was saying they just didn't have the evidence and they are wrong.

The day he left for the Middle East, Nixon again rejected the Judiciary subpoena for tapes, saying there would be no end to such demands, "unless a line is drawn somewhere, since it is clear the committee will not draw such a line. I have done so."

Rodino responded by pledging to complete the inquiry with or without the subpoenaed material.

Watergate fueled Nixon's rage. For days there had been reports, fed by alleged Judiciary Committee leaks, that it had been Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger who initiated national "security" wiretaps in 1967-71 on some officials and reporters.

At Salzburg, Austria, Kissinger stunned a hastily called news conference by announcing his honor had been impugned and adding, "If it is not cleared up, I will resign."

Reaction was immediate.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted unanimously to review the case and was later to clear Kissinger.

In District Court, it appeared the on-again, off-again trial of John Ehrlichman in the Ellsberg break-in case was

Ford works on address

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — For his first time as president of the United States, Gerald R. Ford went to church Sunday, then spent the rest of his Sabbath discussing a new vice president and working on the speech he is to make tonight to Congress.

By the end of his third day in office, moreover, he had also signed his first two bills into law — an authorization of new safety standards for Coast Guard ships and a provision for penalties for violations of an agricultural commodity act.

Ford's aides said that he would make an appeal for national unity in his 7 p.m. (MDT) speech, which will be televised. They said he would also emphasize the stability of the government, promise White House cooperation with Congress and make a plea for mutual cooperation from the legislators.

The speech is also expected to deal with the economy and the new administration's perspective on inflation and the energy crisis. "His advisers believe Ford will approach will differ little from former president Richard M. Nixon's reliance on reductions in government spending and his continuing high rates of interest."

Meanwhile a participant in one meeting with the new president said Ford had indicated to dine with groups of candidates to replace him. Conable said the president vice president and that it in-asked for the private club of the names that discussions rather than group had already figured in meetings where some of his advisers might be influenced by.

But the impression left with each other's presence.

Some of those who spoke to him was that he was still looking for suggestions, not only about who should get the job but also what type of person he needed for the post.

Afterwards, Rep. Barber Conable, R-Ich., disclosed that Ford had compiled a list of approximately 15 candidates for the vice presidential nomination and that it included most of the names that have already figured prominently in speculation about his choice.

Among others on the President's list, he said, were Elliot Richardson, the former attorney general; Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass.; and Melvin Laird.

The transition to the new administration seemed to be moving smoothly as Ford and his staff began adjusting to their new responsibilities and surroundings. While his aides' unfamiliarity with long established rituals at the White House had produced some moments of awkwardness Friday and Saturday, they appeared much more at ease Sunday with their new staff and the long parade of visitors.

There were other contrasts, including the new President's indifference to private meetings with the "Congressional leaders," Nixon seldom met alone with senators or other representatives, preferring to meet with groups of them at breakfast or lunch.

Conable said the President vice president and that it in-asked for the private club of the names that discussions rather than group had already figured in meetings where some of his advisers might be influenced by.

Looking ahead

ASSISTANT Senate GOP Leader Robert Griffin, R-Mich. (left), said in a television interview Sunday President Ford should seek a full term in 1976 despite his wife's desire that her husband retire from office then. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., Senate Republican leader, (right), predicted Ford will lead the party's 1976 ticket, whether he likes it or not, and his vice presidential choice will be his running mate. (UPI)

Spending reform passage certain

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — Campaign spending reform, a major piece of legislation born at the Watergate scandals, is assured of passage now that Congress is no longer threatened with an impeachment logjam.

That is the word from both sides of Capitol Hill. There will have to be a Senate-House conference, since the two bodies have passed differing bills. But there will be ample time for congress to act on the compromise that comes out of the conference.

The bill will provide public funding for presidential elections, limit campaign contributions and spending. The unexpected bonus, a extra time on its hands, however, does not mean that Congress can be counted on for specifying legislative goals.

Both sides of Congress have, as a practical matter, been spending their time on getting the various money bills out of the way. The goal was to get the decks cleared of these as far as possible so that the balance of the session could be devoted to the impeachment debate.

Congress is farther along with appropriation bills than it usually is, at this time. Only two out of the nine regular bills for instance, are still awaiting action in the House.

Three important pieces of legislation, however, are going nowhere. They are the trade bill, tax reform and national health insurance.

A trade bill, giving the President broad authority to lower or raise tariffs and to establish quotas, has passed the House. It has not yet reached the Senate, however, because of an amendment by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. The bill was particularly in-cluded to spur trade with the Soviet Union and one of its features was granting the Soviets trade concessions similar to those granted many other nations under the "most favored nation" policy.

More seclusion for ex-president

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon, after spending a quiet weekend with his family and friends, was expected to remain secluded at his ocean-side villa today.

A private citizen for four days now Nixon has ventured outside of his guarded compound only once — when he went to the Camp Pendleton Marine base at Oceanside for a swim and a walk along the beach.

During the weekend, Nixon conferred several times with his closest friends and financial confidants, Bebe Rebozo and Robert Altman.

Nixon was accompanied by Rebozo, an unidentified passenger, two cars of Secret service agents and some 10 cars of following newsmen when he went to Camp Pendleton.

Mrs. Pat Nixon, daughter Tricia Cox and her husband Ed, were already waiting for the former President at the beach and returned with him when the motorcade left to return to the villa, La Casa Pacifica.

An aide who asked not to be identified, said, "His spirits are good, he is not depressed. The decision he announced the other night is a decision he is very comfortable with, and he is satisfied that in the national interest, it was the right step for him to take."

Rebozo, a Florida banker and Alhambra, a wealthy industrialist, conferred with Nixon Saturday and Sunday. They are among Nixon's closest friends.

"We're here as friends to do what we can — that's all," said Altman. "Anything more than we said now would not be appropriate."

They did not indicate how long they intended to stay. Both men are partners in J & C Investment Co., formed to buy most of Nixon's estate here. In 1970 the company bought 23 of the estate's 29 acres from Nixon for $125 million, leaving Nixon the owner of the main house and other buildings.

Nixon and Altman are all responsible for the estate's mortgage. They were unable to meet a $26,000 "balloon payment" on the mortgage when it fell due last month and have secured an extension until January.

Nixon also was said to be participating potential legal action against him in connection with alleged misconduct during his presidency.

The former President last month was named as an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up, and as a private citizen, special prosecutor Leon Jaworski is free to take steps against Nixon, possibly on grounds of obstruction of justice. An aide said Nixon was discussing such matters with associates and might retain a new lawyer to replace James D. St. Clair, the Boston trial attorney who headed Nixon's White House legal defense team.

There will be little information about Nixon's activities in the coming days, an aide said.

Prof. Robert Koch announced in Berlin his discovery of the pathogenic germs of tuberculosis on March 24, 1882.

Let Nixon alone, citizen poll says

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most Americans do not want former President Richard Nixon to be investigated for possible criminal charges, according to a Gallup poll conducted for Newsweek magazine.

The poll, released during the weekend, indicated 56 per cent of the public would rather Nixon not be investigated, compared to 37 per cent who said he should be. An overwhelming majority — 79 per cent — said Nixon did the right thing in resigning the presidency.

The survey also indicated that among the suggested vice presidential candidates, Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater and former New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller emerged as the favorites.

The preferences were Goldwater, 22 per cent, Rockefeller 18 per cent, California Gov. Ronald Reagan 12 per cent, Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker, vice chairman of the Senate

Watergate Committee, 11 per cent, former Attorney General Elliot Richardson 11 per cent, and Republican National Chairman George Bush 1 per cent.

Newsweek said the telephone survey of 550 American voters was conducted Thursday night, and Friday after Nixon's resignation speech.

Asked whether his political enemies unfairly exaggerated Nixon's actions to force him out, 56 per cent replied no and 33 per cent said yes.

First Lady plans White House move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Betty Ford, the first lady, today starts the planning for the biggest move of the Ford family's life — into the White House.

She will be the wife of an outgoing president, she will be the incoming First Lady around the White House and its quarters. But with the sudden resignation of former President Nixon, Mrs. Ford will be guided through the third-floor family suite by Chief Usher Roy Scutten.

The Fords were expected to remain in their colorful brick and white frame home in suburban Alexandria, Va., until the end of this week, and when they move out they will find the Fords have lived in the house built to their specifications in 1955 in the quiet middle class neighborhood of Seminary Hill, and they promised their four children that they would not sell it.

Mrs. Ford not only must furnish the suite, but she will also face the problem of selecting her official staff. "The President intends to let Mrs. Ford decide who her people will be," said White House press secretary Jerry Terhorst.

Mrs. Ford said she had not made any decision as yet, but she is expected to announce some of her appointments by the end of the week. Mrs. James Howe, wife of a professor of foreign languages at New Jersey State College, has been serving as her personal secretary and handling her press correspondence.

Susan Ford, 17, a student at a private girls' school in the Maryland suburbs, will be the only child living at the White House with the Fords. Their three sons will be attending school or working this fall in other parts of the country.

Transferred to a map of the United States the 7,500-mile Great Wall of China would reach south and westward from Washington, D.C., past Chattanooga and Memphis, Tenn., and Shreveport, La., and all the way across Texas into New Mexico.

Dear Abby

Can transvestite be "all man?"

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the man who likes to wear ladies' lingerie, and claims to be "all man." My husband was one of those. He, too, served with the Marines during which time he was sexually involved with an ex-Green Beret. I finally had a private detective get pictures of the two of them together, which was all the evidence I needed. His boyfriend was the father of four, and I was pregnant with my fifth at the time. We are divorced now and nobody can understand why I left a handsome, 6-foot, 210-pound, masculine-looking man who was "good" to me and the kids, and who had a pleasant, easy-going personality. Abby, please inform other women that men who like to wear women's lingerie are not "all men" like they say. I don't care if they're ex-marines, ex-police-men or olympic champions. Don't use my name. My children don't know about their father. Sign me... BEIN THERE

DEAR BEEN: Men who get their kicks from dressing in women's attire are transvestites. Some are bi-sexual, some are homosexual, and some, strangely enough, are strictly heterosexual. And unless a woman can go along with it (which takes a very understanding woman), these men are not for marrying.

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me what state I can marry my former daughter-in-law? She was divorced from my son two years ago.

I have been looking after her ever since her divorce, and we are very fond of each other. I don't want to see her, I only want to marry her so she will be the sole owner of my estate.

Answer soon as I have heart trouble.

HORROWED TIME

DEAR BORROWED: Since there is no blood relationship between you and your former daughter-in-law, you may get married in any state.

DEAR ABBY: Tell the small-town bartender who doesn't like to lie over the phone to handle those calls as his big-city cousins do. The tactful bartender will page the individual, and if no one answers the page, that is what he reports to the caller.

Some people meet in bars for business reasons, and don't want to be bothered by phone calls; others simply want a few relaxing moments away from their daily routines. Well-managed bars sell a lot more than drinks, which is the reason patrons will pay six times more for a drink at a bar than they would for the same thing at home.

PATRON

CONFIDENTIAL TO ROBERTA: Don't envy anyone. Few things are as good on the inside as they appear to be on the outside.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Write to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for all Occasions."

'Farmacy' customers pick cures

PECULIAR, Mo. (UPI)—There's a place 30 miles south of Kansas City where customers pick their own cures for sneezing, the itch or other pet ailments. Vic Halstead's business is a "Farmacy"—13 acres of organically grown fruits and vegetables produced almost exclusively for persons sensitive to chemicals found on normal supermarket produce. Almost 14 years ago the 67-year-old farmer accidentally inhaled an unhealthy dose of herbicide. The two-month convalescence convinced him to "go back and farm like we used to when I was growing up."

He uses no chemicals or man-made fertilizer on his crops. He lets weeds and hot peppers grow among the plants to deter insect infestation.

"I work with nature, not against her," he said. "I look at my work like I'm a doctor. A doctor has something live to work with. I have a viable seed. I want to bring it to life naturally. If you get God on your side, who can be against you?"

Several years ago Dr. William Cox, a Kansas City allergist, prescribed Halstead's produce for some of his patients. "The customers go among the growing things and take what they wish. Some of the people are too damn lazy to pick," he said. "It's hard work. It'll sweat the meanness out of you."

"But you don't know what it's like seeing tears running down the face of a mother who is so glad that someone cares enough about her child to have proper food to sell them," he said.

Oswald: "The point Morehead makes is that North blamed South for the debacle, because he claimed that South had reversed and shown a very good hand." Jim: "Morehead disagrees completely with North, as we do. South's two-spade call was the cheapest rebid he could make. Since it was a bid of a new suit in a forcing sequence, North could not pass. But South had made it possible for North to sign off at three diamonds or three hearts." Oswald: "North had too good a hand to sign off. He could have cue bid to three clubs and then bid four spades to invite a slam, but he had no excuse for bidding the slam on his own."

Range fires reported

SHOSHONE — Four small range fires were reported over the weekend in the Shoshone district, Bureau of Land Management. According to Mike Green, public information officer for the BLM in Shoshone, all four were along the railroad track running about seven miles west of Shoshone. They burned only about 10 acres, five on private and five on federal lands.

SV program scheduled

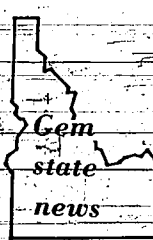

SUN VALLEY — Classical guitarist Christopher Parkening will appear Wednesday and Thursday in Sun Valley. He will offer a master class from 10 a.m. to noon and 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Linnell Room in the Sun Valley Inn. Thursday he will present a concert beginning at 9 p.m. in the Linnell Room. Andres Segovia, the world's premier classical guitarist, has hailed Parkening as "one of the more brilliant guitarists in the world." Tickets are available at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities which is sponsoring Parkening.

Accident claims Coeur d'Alene man

COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — A 27-year-old Coeur d'Alene man died over the weekend in a one-car roll over on Highway 95. Idaho State police reported. Police said Kenneth Phingning died at the scene of the accident in Kootenai County.

Nursing program outlined

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho nurses and those of two other western states will have a chance to upgrade their skills under a new half-million-dollar program conducted by the Western Interstate Commission on Higher Education. The Division of Nursing of the National Institute of Health awarded $500,000 grant of $675,471 to WICHE to carry forth a program of continuing education in Idaho, Montana and Wyoming. A spokesman said the primary purpose is to improve the capabilities of nurses to deliver care to patients living in rural areas. Coordinator for Idaho will be Helen Beekley, chairman of the nursing department at Idaho State University.

2 lose lives in accident

CALDWELL (UPI) — Vivie Giles, 74, Caldwell, died over the weekend as a result of injuries she received in an automobile accident which claimed the life of her husband Charles, 73, Aug. 2. Idaho State Police report the Giles car was hit head-on by a vehicle driven by Cecile Ogawa, 30, Caldwell, when the Giles car either failed to stop or failed to yield once it had stopped at a stop sign. Miss Ogawa wasn't injured in the accident, police said. Mrs. Giles died Saturday at Caldwell Memorial Hospital.

Council hospital opens

COUNCIL, Idaho (UPI) — Council's 20-bed hospital, closed since January, is once again open for business. The two new doctors, Alonzo H. Jones, 36, and Samuel A. Monger, 32, pointed to their desires and those of their families to live in a smaller community as a primary reason for their satisfaction with Council. "Boise Cascade up there and all of Council turned on their charm and personality and we filled the situation, but it took a long time." Monger and Jones are now serving not only Council proper but several rural communities (including about 300 residents) in new meadows, Cambridge, Midvale, Indian Valley, and Rigdon.

Workers share in back wages

BOISE (UPI) — More than 313 workers in Idaho shared $75,749 in back wages during fiscal 1974 as the result of the US Labor Department's enforcement of federal wage and hour laws. It was reported today. Regional Director James T. Hughes said in Seattle that many of these workers also received simultaneous wage increases to bring their pay up to levels required by the federal minimum wage, overtime and equal pay provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Contract awarded

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Coeur d'Alene Development Enterprises of Plummer, Idaho, has received a $11,482 contract for paying of 9.5 miles of the Plummer-Lovel and Lovell Valley roads on Idaho's Coeur d'Alene Indian reservation. A spokesman for the Bureau of Indian Affairs said this construction work will provide a high quality road connecting the reservation area with state highways leading to the state of Washington and to the southern part of Idaho.

Grant awarded

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Idaho State Board of Education has been awarded a $34,000 state student incentive grant to expand its program of financial assistance for post-secondary students. The award amounts are based on student enrollments in higher education institutions.

Bargaining ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Hunt Brothers Construction Inc., Coeur d'Alene, has been ordered by a National Labor Relations Board representative to bargain with the International Union of Operating Engineers. Administrative law Judge Russell L. Stevens issued the order based on a complaint filed by the union.

Ketchum saloon owner denies charges

By BART QUENELL
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — The owner of the controversial Crazy Horse Saloon in Ketchum denies there has been copulation on the saloon stage. However, he says, there has been nude and obscene dancing on the stage. The saloon has been the center of controversy following reports of sexual acts performed on the stage, prompting public outcry but no action by the City Council. Saloon owner Chris DuPont told the Times-News he had observed couples doing obscene dances there, but said "I don't think it was my fault." "There was no copulation that I saw. There were couples dancing nude on stage, some with heavy body paint," he said. A group of 17 nearby residents presented a nuisance petition to the Ketchum City Council last week seeking abatement of the saloon. The petition sought the closure of the grounds loud music coming from the saloon was creating a public nuisance.

The council has taken no action on the closure requests. DuPont said the residents had a legitimate point concerning the noise. However he said an image had come attached to the Crazy Horse "probably because of some T-shirts contest." In March this year DuPont said he closed the bar voluntarily. Several complaints had been registered with Ketchum police concerning lewd and obscene acts inside the bar resulting from a T-shirt contest. According to DuPont, "The thing did get carried away. I was inside and tried to stop it." He said he ordered the music shut off and tried to stop the T-shirt contest that was getting out of hand. "I am just trying to set the record straight." "The DuPont said, "The T-shirt thing is water over the dam—and from here on, people are muckraking." "As far as drugs go there has never been one juvenile arrested out of here," DuPont said. He said talk of hard drug pushing inside the building was unwarranted.

"I saw one kid in here smoking a joint once in the corner," DuPont said, "but I sent the bouncer over immediately and he threw the kid out." He said he would not tolerate any drugs inside the building. Referring to a letter sent to Gov. Andrus from Billy Thompson, a local reporter, DuPont said the letter was blown up out of context. He said newspapers should have run the article as a letter to the editor rather than a news story. He said allegations in the letter concerning people outside his saloon "is not my responsibility. I am responsible for what goes on in here but I can't tell people what to do when they walk out." "I wish they would go back toward town instead of down the Streets," he said, "but I don't think it's my responsibility." DuPont said he would not push for stiffer against the press or people for many unfounded allegations. "I just want to leave it alone," DuPont said.

"and run my business like anybody else in town." He said he could feel for people subjected to noise when they are trying to sleep. He said his Wednesday night teen dance had been started nearly because of complaints but also because teenagers have very little recreation opportunities and he wished to help in that direction. Teens up to 19 only may dance until 11 p.m. Wednesdays. He said he was experimenting with slide shows, movies and teen dances looking for something that would sustain the business. "This building is too small for rock and roll bands," DuPont said. "I've been thinking of bringing in small trapeze or good guitarists." However, he said two bands—his biggest attraction—would be playing until Labor Day. He said he would have no big rock-and-roll bands after that. He said he was considering starting a petition of his own to keep the Crazy Horse open. However no move has been initiated. The expense of moving DuPont said, was too high in Ketchum. "Sure I've thought a lot about it but I haven't been able to find any place and prices in Ketchum are too high to make the move feasible." He said all beer and wine licenses were due to be approved in January and would have to go through the City Council. He said that because of one area of pressure, opponents might push although not likely. "Insulation on the ceiling and stage, sound proofing additions and a double door are some of the devices DuPont hopes will ease neighbors' complaints." "I'm sick and tired of the reputation I have assumed," DuPont said. "It's like a sore that won't heal."

Jerome fair set Aug. 20-22

TIM OYLER, top picture, will be the clown for the Jerome County rodeo this year. Oyer, when dodging bulls and jumping over barrels is the athletic director of the Jerome High School. Pictured at right is a sample of the top RCA stock from Stephens Brothers' rodeo producers. Their stock has been selected for use in the national finals competition for several years. The Jerome County Fair and Rodeo is set for Aug. 20, 21 and 22.

Jerome fair, rodeo plans completed

JEROME — All plans for the Jerome County Fairgrounds will be filled to capacity with exhibits, concessions and action Aug. 20, 21 and 22. The board members said Friday. "The year's fair and rodeo will feature a Jerome County Fair queen contest, a new rodeo producer with stock and specialty acts not shown here before. John Van Orman and Thelma Prescott, fair board members, said the board selected Stephens Brothers rodeo producers this year with more than $100,000 worth of top RCA stock. The brothers, native Idahoans, are Bill, Fred, Bob and Jake Stephens of Middleton, who have been traveling the rodeo trail for a number of years, making his shows in Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Oregon, Washington and Idaho. Their stock has also been selected for use in the national finals competition for several years. "The producers have about 175 head-of-horses, 75 bulls and numerous dogging stags and roping calves. Clown for the show this year is Tim Oyer, well-known national performer, who also happens to be the athletic director of the Jerome High School when not dodging bulls and jumping over barrels. He has 14 years of bullfighting and clowning experience. "He will also be working shows in Canada this year with the Canadian rodeo Cowboys Association. Oyer is a former high school and college national rodeo competitor and champion before he turned clown. His wife, Ann Marie, is a rodeo cowgirl and travels with him to the various shows. On the fairgrounds during the three days and nights will be the Roy Cammack Show featuring 25 rides and 30 concessions. Cammack said a number of new events and acts have been added to the show this year. Circus animals will perform twice daily on the midway. This show will feature the Fishers with their Himalayan bears, a Bengal tiger, and a black-maned male lion. "David," a 17-month-old champion will also star in the show with some of his own stunts. "The authentic and popular merry-go-round with three abreast prancing horses and a paper roll-playing hand organ will again provide entertainment for children of all ages. "There are three new rides this year which Cammack says are especially for the adventurous teens and adults. Included are the Hurricane and Hurricane 2. "The Kiddieland this year includes miniature cars, a moonwalk, helicopters and other oversized "toys" for the children. "Van Orman said the rodeo and midway provide many hours of entertainment for fairgoers but probably the pride of the annual event will be in the produce and outstanding animals exhibited. The 4-H and FFA divisions of the fair will be bigger than ever this year. In addition will be the open competition in such divisions as producer, livestock and the art department. "An open dairy event for adult or junior exhibitors will be featured this year on Friday. The merchants building will be filled with commercial displays showing new trends in merchandising. The Junior Page of Jerome will perform each afternoon and will present a horse show with competition in performance and halter classes. "Another highlight will be the crowning of the 1974 fair queen from among five young horse women who will be appearing at the fairgrounds and during the rodeo throughout the three days and nights. The winner will be crowned Saturday night by reigning queen, Bessie Peters. Contestants include Peggy Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Peters, sponsored by the Rotary Club; Sheri Muir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Muir, sponsored by the chamber of commerce; Doree Fender, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fender, sponsored by the Jerome Farm Bureau; Phyllis Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barnes, Jerome Sheriff's posse candidate; and Cindy Scheer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Scheer, Jerome Elks Lodge candidate. The rodeo will be sponsored by the Jerome rodeo association. "Members of the fair-also include Todd Peterson, chairman; Ron Metcalf, Danny Forsythe, Ralph Scott and Leroy Weigle. Mrs. Percy and Van Orman are in charge of the queen contest.

TPL agency buys land

"People should not construe that the TPL is acting as an agent for the Forest Service, according to Reynolds. "They have their own private organization." Reynolds said the Forest Service is happy the TPL is in the area. Reynolds said the TPL was aware of the situation with regard to private land in the SNRA and approved by the Forest Service. Macy said the trust has no stockholders and that there are no personal gains from land transactions. "We are completely non-profit and a charitable organization," Macy said. "The Forest Service knows we can have a beneficial influence here, but we're on our own," Macy said. Macy said the original intent of the TPL was to buy and manage such parks in places where government protected land to the government. The organization has acquired three huge city parks and over 1500 acres of NRA land across the United States. "According to Macy the TPL is not an organization involved in preservation. It is the goal of the organization was to return over to the people land usable for recreation. The SNRA was chosen, he said, because it is a recreation-oriented area that will be used by rural and city residents alike. "We are not dealing with issues," Macy said. "We are making land deals using real world methods of obtaining it."

Construction under way

TWIN FALLS — Construction began today on new traffic control tower at Justin Field. Federal and local officials participated in ground-breaking ceremonies at the airport south of Twin Falls this morning. The 85-foot high structure is scheduled to be turned over to the Federal Aviation Administration in November and commissioned for operation in February of 1975. The tower and traffic control equipment will cost about $400,000 in federal funds. It will operate 16 hours a day with a staff of six controllers and a tower chief. Selections for the positions will be made shortly before the tower is completed. The tower will be constructed of seven pre-fabricated modules, each 16 feet high, and an 18-foot high tower cap. The hexagonal-shaped cap will provide controllers with about 240 square feet of working space. Operating consoles, weather equipment, altimeter setting indicators and test equipment will be installed in the tower. Transmitters and receivers will be installed for the FAA by the contractor, AVCO Corp., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Relocated

LEWISTON (UPI) — About 29 miles of matline railroad track, relocated to higher ground along the Snake River canyon northwest of here went into service today, the Union Pacific Railroad said. The relocation, the first major track change the area since the Union Pacific came to Lewiston in 1869, was made in advance of the raising of the river level to come with completion of the Little Goose Dam 36 miles downstream of here. The track was raised in elevation anywhere from 50 to 300 feet.

Idaho among top states in government employes

BOISE — Idaho ranks high nationally in number of state and local government employes per 10,000 inhabitants, according to the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho. A recent newsletter of the organization discusses employment figures from an October 1973 Department of Commerce publication. According to the report, Idaho ranks first in the nation in the "health" category in number of non-federal government employes per 10,000 population. The state ranks fourth in "natural resources" fifth in "employment security," fifth in "general control," and seventh in "financial aid and administration." The newsletter says that Idaho overall ranks 19th for total number of state and local government employes per 10,000 inhabitants. Eight of the 18 states having more per capita government employes are in the Western group. Idaho allegedly is sixth from the top in number of state and local education employes. The taxpayers newsletter says that the Bureau of Census report ranks Idaho 41st from the top for average earnings of full time state and local government employes, compared to 34th from the top in per capita personal income as reported by the Department of Commerce.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Consider engaged couples: If both the man and woman were previously married, their courtship can be expected to last less than half as long as the courtship of never-married romantics. This, too, tends to confirm our Love and War man's report that it's the divorced citizen who most eagerly seeks matrimony.

THE IRISH SETTER now ranks No. 3 on that list of the nation's most popular dogs. IF YOU COLLECT match book covers, a philhellinist is what you are. OF COURSE, a flipped penny is more likely to come up heads than tails. SEVEN out of every 10 men who desert their families do so in the first 10 years of marriage. THAT BIG TOWN with the highest murder rate now is Atlanta, Ga.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS

Q: Why does that lady salad maker on the TV commercial say never cut lettuce, always tear it?

A: Am told the cut edges tend to "rust," but the torn edges don't.

Q: "WHAT'S a Bangor tiger?"

A: That's what the Maine woodsmen used to call any lumberjack who was particularly tricky in a logging contest.

Q: "LOUIE, my boy, setle a little difgulty here. Among single people over age 45, which make the more money on the average, the men or the women?"

A: The women.

IMPEACHMENT

Impeachment speeches aren't as long as once upon a time, fortunately. But—essential—character—hasn't changed any too much. Take that eight-hour talk by Great Britain's mighty orator Edmund Burke. In the trial before the House of Commons of Warren Hastings, Governor-General of India, Burke really poured it on. But when he asked the renowned Dr. Samuel Parr to comment on his effort, Parr described the address as "oppressed by metaphor." This comes to mind when legislators in Washington, D.C., posture about the Saturday night massacre, the smoking pistol and the arrow to the heart. Bear in mind, it was right after Burke's fancy phrases that Commons acquitted Hastings overwhelmingly.

SOMETHING fierce, these most recent murder statistics. A youngster born this year is more likely to be killed eventually than was an American soldier in World War II.

Cooler days in store in MV

Twin Falls, Northside, Area, Burley-Rupert: A cooling trend with widely scattered evening thunderstorms, becoming partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. Windy afternoons. Lows tonight in the 40's. The high Tuesday, mid 70's to low 80's. Outlook for Wednesday, mostly clear and milder.

Halley, Camas Prairie, Lower Wood River Valley: Cooling trend. Widely scattered evening thunderstorms, becoming partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. Windy afternoons. Lows tonight near 40. Highs Tuesday, upper 40's to low 70's. Outlook for Wednesday, mostly clear and milder.

Synopsis: An upper low pressure system is moving southeast out of British-Columbia into the northwestern United States. At mid-morning, rain showers and thunderstorms were occurring over eastern Washington and the Idaho panhandle. As the upper low moves east and south, increasing cloudiness along with thunderstorms will occur over the mountains of southwest and east Idaho tonight and Wednesday. The bulk of the shower activity will be over the eastern sections of the state. Most areas of southern Idaho will experience cooler temperatures Tuesday in the 70's.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI) - Stock prices fell today through the morning Monday on the New York Stock Exchange. Turnover was dull.

The Dow Jones industrial average, adding to its earlier decline, gave up more than 5 points to 772.29 shortly before noon. Declining issues had a lead of about 100 issues over advances, 566 to 435. Turnover was little more than a million shares against 4,900,000 shares traded during the first two hours Friday.

Analysts said the market was awaiting President Ford's speech to congress in the evening, a speech which was expected to touch on the economy. They said there was little news to motivate the market.

Mrs. Rosemarie Pavlok, technical analyst for Harcus, Upham and Co., noted some "psychological relief" on Wall Street, now part of the Watergate problem has been resolved with the resignation of President Nixon. But she said "the same basic problems remain and high interest rates." She suggested the Dow could slip to the 700 level before it rebounds.

A market feature was Procter & Gamble, off 2 points on moderate turnover. "The Wall Street Journal quoted an analyst as saying that consumer demand for the firm's prices for shortening could be affected by the high price for the product although demand for most of the firm's other products is still strong.

Gold States Utilities slipped a small fraction. The company reported its net profit for the year was slightly under that of the previous year.

Polard, down 1/2, topped the active list. Chrysler was off 1/4. General Motors began its previously announced cash tender offer for Maroon shares. Mobil rose 1/4.

Niagara Falls 'walk' eyed

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) - Phillip Pett, the diminutive Frenchman who walked a highway a quarter-mile high between the towers of the World Trade Center in New York City Wednesday, says he now wants to walk across Niagara Falls.

Pett said he would visit the falls today to decide whether a permit would be needed to talk to officials from the United States and Canada about the stunt.

"I would like to walk, not only over the falls," the 24-year-old, 5-4, Pett said. "It's been one of my dreams for many years."

Pett started making rush hour crawls last week with an impromptu demonstration on a wire rigged across the top of the World Trade Center, the world's second highest building.

He was arrested for trespassing but a judge sentenced him to put on a performance for children in Central Park as a punishment. The famous 19th century French acrobat is heading toward a highway across the Niagara River just down river from the falls on June 30, 1975.

Bandits hit Greyhound bus

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Three men screaming racial epithets held up a San Francisco-bound Greyhound bus Sunday and robbed the driver and his passengers of their money and valuables.

One bandit who walked up and down the aisle forced the passengers to hand over $1,200 in cash, $1,200 in travelers checks and an estimated $600 worth of jewelry, Ventura County sheriff's deputies said.

One of the passengers, a visitor from Stockholm, said the robbers kept screaming "I hate you, I hate you, you white sonabitches. Give me your money."

Deputies said another robber slugged Glenn B. Coons, 56, on the head with the barrel of a sawed-off rifle.

The bus was about 15 minutes out of North Hollywood and was passing Thousand Oaks when the three men rose, brandishing handguns and a sawed-off rifle.

One held a gun on the driver, Norman Smith of Salinas, Calif., while a second stood guard at the rear.

The third man grabbed a hat from the luggage rack and began walking along the aisle, demanding that the passengers put their money and jewelry in it.

As the bus reached an off-ramp near Camarillo, the trio ordered Smith to stop the bus and fled in a waiting car driven by a fourth man, deputies said.

They were last seen in a dark-green 1964 Pontiac which was believed heading for Los Angeles.

Mats Gape, 24, a student at the University of Stockholm, said, "I was an airplane. I couldn't believe it. I was frightened. The blacks were so full of hate and so nervous, it made me frightened."

GOV. DUNN gives opinion

Governors' posts eyed by GOP

CHICAGO (UPI) — With Richard Nixon out of the White House, the nation's Republican governors are hoping to put more Republicans in governors' mansions across the nation.

"We're determined to make this year a start toward erasing that Democratic advantage and increasing the number of Republican governors," Tennessee Gov. Winfield Dunn, chairman of the Republican Governors' Association, told a news conference Sunday.

In 1967, Dunn noted, there were 32 GOP governors and 18 Democratic governors. Now, he says, the figure is identical, but the Democrats occupy the 32 governors' mansions.

With Nixon out of the way, the GOP governors are hoping that Watergate will take a back seat in the upcoming campaigns and that the Republicans will be able to turn the tables.

Sixteen GOP governors or gubernatorial nominees were on hand Sunday for the strategization.

Dunn told newsmen that he felt Watergate would remain an issue in the upcoming elections, but said he was glad Nixon resigned.

"I hope his action cleared the air so that the governors' races can be carried out on current issues, such as inflation, employment and educational opportunities, for instance," he said.

Dunn said campaign contributions to the GOP coffers were small at this point, but indicate there will be plenty financial backing for the party's campaigns.

Dunn, Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond and North Carolina Gov. James E. Holshouser Jr., told newsmen they would throw on any efforts by President Ford to solicit a Democratic vice president.

Sirica listens to tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica spent the weekend in a locked and windowless jury room listening to the Watergate tapes former President Nixon yielded under Supreme Court order.

The judge spent Saturday and Sunday listening to the tapes with only his law clerk present, the aide said.

"Of the 64 tapes, Jaworski subpoenaed, Nixon surrenders 53 after the Supreme Court ordered him to. The other nine, the White House said, could not be found."

Defense attorneys in the cover-up case, in which six

Nixon defense lawyer James D. St. Clair said in May that the tapes "absolutely" belonged to the government.

former key Nixon aides are charged with conspiracy, were expected to ask for a trial delay today or Tuesday.

Though the tapes were always described as "Nixon's tapes" and he said publicly they were under his "sole personal control," it appears they were not legally his.
