Redfish Lake area fire quelled
STANLEY — Fire crews quickly controlled 2 spot fire near Redfish Lake Saturday afternoon.
According to Sawtooth National Forest dispatchers in Twin Falls, the fire burned less than a quarter acre before fire crews quickly stamped it into the mud.
Exact location of the "bare" was unknown in Twin Falls, although the fact that it was in a "no drop" zone for retardants placed it near campgrounds. Cause of the fire was not known.

From combined wire services
WASHINGTON — President Ford signed into law Saturday a bill establishing a special agency to monitor wages and prices.
In informal remarks at a signing ceremony in the White House cabinet room, Ford delivered a warning and a promise.
The warning was that the agency, to be called the council on wage and price stability, must not be expected to provide "an instant answer or an immediate panacea" to the inflation besetting the nation.

Deadline mop-up pressed
TWIN FALLS — Mopping up the Deadline Ridge fire continued today, almost 48 hours after the blaze was controlled.
Fire fighters controlled the blaze Friday evening after it burned over 3,300 acres in the South Hills. The fire broke out on the evening of Aug. 17. Damage has been estimated at $25,000.
U.S. Forest Service officials said about 250 men were expected to remain on the fire lines today, along with additional supporting equipment. Barring complications resulting from additional outbreaks within the fire perimeter, 15 crews totaling 215 men were scheduled for release Saturday and this morning.

Soviet offer receives nod
By United Press International
Greece and the Greek Cypriot president spurned a British proposal Saturday for the revival of the defunct Geneva Cyprus-peace conference and at the same time tentatively accepted a Soviet plan for expanded peace talks with participation by the Communist powers.
The United States has not yet officially reacted to the Soviet proposal, but diplomatic sources in London predicted Washington would turn it down.
Turkey has not officially accepted or rejected the Soviet plan either. An Ankara foreign ministry source reacted coolly to the plan, saying, "Turkey is willing to negotiate with the interested parties only."
Turkey warned the Cypriot government its troops now controlling one-third of the island in the Mediterranean would retaliate against Greek Cypriots if they continued guerrilla warfare.
The Turkish warning in Ankara came in reaction to a statement by Greek Cypriot President Glafcos Clerides, who said in Athens that if a peace settlement is not reached:

Action seen
SALINA, Kan. (UPI) — Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said Saturday he expects President Ford and the Congress to take strong action soon to curb inflation and spark the economy.
Speaking at a news conference prior to a Republican fund raising dinner, Baker praised Ford for his scheduled economic summit, which "is so unique that the country has not yet realized its importance."
He predicted that Ford will announce his economic policy within a month.
Baker, the ranking Republican on the Senate Watergate Committee, said he has declared a moratorium on commenting on the possible prosecution of former President Nixon.

The promise was that the creation of the council was not to be regarded as a step preliminary to establishing another system of mandatory price and wage controls.
The function of the council, Ford said, was simply to give "guidance in very broad terms to management" and labor so they don't take advantage of a free economy in this critical situation.
Ford had already taken a position against mandatory price and wage controls, and in reiterating it today, he said that "we have learned from experience that in today's economy, controls lead to disruptions and new troubles."
This was evidently a reference to the Cost of Living Council created by former president Richard M. Nixon in 1971 which did have power to impose controls.
Ford's prescription for combating inflation — at least for the immediate future — will thus be "taxing" — that is, an effort to persuade industry and labor to hold the line.
But while rejecting coercive measures, the President said that "this battle has to be won and will be won."

Deadline mop-up pressed

TWIN FALLS — Mopping up the Deadline Ridge fire continued today, almost 48 hours after the blaze was controlled.
Fire fighters controlled the blaze Friday evening after it burned over 3,300 acres in the South Hills. The fire broke out on the evening of Aug. 17. Damage has been estimated at $25,000.
U.S. Forest Service officials said about 250 men were expected to remain on the fire lines today, along with additional supporting equipment. Barring complications resulting from additional outbreaks within the fire perimeter, 15 crews totaling 215 men were scheduled for release Saturday and this morning.
Combating the blaze moved into the mop-up stage after a secure fire line was completed around the perimeter of the fire Friday evening. On Saturday, ground crews worked in temperatures above 80 degrees, supported by four helicopters, three tractors, eight pump trucks and two tank trucks, plus Idaho National Guard vehicles.
Manned roadblocks remained on all access roads into the South Hills today, as the fire area remained closed to the public. Officials said they will remain closed until further notice.
Officials said the fire burned in an unusual pattern, skipping many areas while burning at peak force in the first two days. As a result, many small fires are continuing to break out within the perimeter. Adding to the difficulties with the fire area are patches of timber which have been scorched by the intense heat. Other areas burned around them.

Sending 'em to the line
TWIN FALLS — About 40 women have been involved in fighting the Deadline Ridge fire this past week.
Of those, a dozen have been assigned duty on the fire lines.
U.S. Forest Service officials said the other women also performed jobs including transportation, dispatching, communication work, and finance assignments both at the fire camp in the South Hills and Sawtooth National Forest offices in Twin Falls.
Among the fire crews on the lines fighting the blaze, the Sawtooth National Forest crew from Stanley had eight women; there were two on the Fayette National Forest crew, and one each on a crew from Logan, Utah, and from the Bridger-Teton forest service.
Performing fire camp assignments were six in communications, three in transportation and eight in finance. Another six to eight women were involved in transportation, dispatch and other duties in Twin Falls.
At least one of the women fighting the fire may be in for similar experiences in the future.
She is Sue Morgan, a graduate student at Utah State University, Logan. Miss Morgan, a Denver native, wants to be a district ranger with the forest service.
She is a member of a fire fighting crew made up of students at Utah State.
Another young woman whose summer work with the forest service found her assigned to an "up front" job fighting the South Hills fire is Michelle Price, 18, Twin Falls.
She was a member of a construction and maintenance crew based at Stanley normally assigned to work on campground and maintenance jobs. The University of Idaho, sophomore was sent with others of that crew to help fight the fire and ended up as a dispatcher at the fire camp.

To the end he promised to hold the line on government spending to under $300 billion in fiscal 1975, ending next June 30. And he said that other remedies would "undoubtedly be forthcoming from the economic summit meeting he has called for late September."
Ford had asked Congress to create the cost-of-living monitoring council in his address to a joint session — his first after becoming President — on Aug. 21. Congress acted within two weeks.

White House 'bugs' found

(C) Washington Star-News
WASHINGTON — Shortly after President Ford moved into the White House Oval Office, members of his staff discovered at least a half dozen hidden microphones, the residue of the taping system that in a sense destroyed Richard Nixon.
The wires to the microphones has been cut to make them inoperative, but they remained in place, ready to be reconnected at any time.
The Secret Service said Saturday that in response to orders from Ford's staff, the microphones were removed last Tuesday night from both the Oval Office and the hallway office that former president Nixon used in the Executive Office Building.
An informed source said one of the first things on the agenda of Ford's staff was to make sure that all remnants of the Nixon recording system were eliminated.
The first thing the transition team did was to make sure there were no bugs in the White House, the source said.
In the Ford White House, taping is something of a dirty four-letter word. Even the open use of tape recorders is discouraged because it might remind someone of the past.
The tapes have been passed to other departments of the administration that recording devices should be used sparingly, if at all.
"I have not seen a formal directive," one administration official said, "but it does not take a genius to figure out the President's attitude."

Henry stalls on refugees

By United Press International
SRI LANKA, Ceylon (UPI) — Sri Lankan Foreign Minister and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger wound up three days of talks Saturday with no significant headway in solving the long-standing problem of the 250,000 refugees which Arab leaders say is the key to unlocking a lasting Middle East peace.
The Washington meetings ended without publication of a joint communique similar to those issued after Kissinger's other meetings this month with Arab and Israeli officials announcing the negotiations, found some common ground in settling Middle East problems.
— In other Middle East developments: — — Israeli military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said the 24-hour mobilization of Israeli reservists to the Golan Heights for war will occur shortly. One military source said less than half the reserves will be called up.
— The Egyptian cabinet met in Alexandria and First Deputy Premier Abdel-Aziz Higazi later announced the cabinet's decision, saying: "Arab solidarity is stronger now than all the attempts which are being made to stage a breakthrough in Arab ranks."

Experts differ on impact of Idaho Power plant

By BILL LAZARUS, Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Pollution experts disagree on the likely impact of the Idaho Power Co. coal-fired power plant proposed for southern Idaho.
Two experts, associated with the John Muir Institute and the University of Montana, say the plant would degrade Idaho's environment. They cite reduced visibility, foul odors, acid rains and damage to plants as the most likely problems.
Researchers for Stearns-Rogers, Inc., a Denver-based engineering firm retained by Idaho Power to make an environmental impact study for the proposed plant, say no significant pollution problems would arise.

Federal experts take a neutral position, maintaining the impact of the plant cannot be known until detailed studies are completed.
The proposed plant would be operating at one million kilowatts capacity by 1981 and would double its power capacity within the decade, according to ancillary plans. It has completed generating facility purchases as much as was its sister Jim Bridger plant in Wyoming. Idaho's total output of two noxious pollutants would more than double.
An environmental impact study on Bridger shows it will release up to 137,356 tons of sulfur dioxide and 60,322 tons of nitrogen oxides per year. That is more than eleven times the sulfur dioxide emitted by the 17-1/2 Simplot phosphate fertilizer plant in Pocatello and as much nitrogen oxide as would be generated by 144,000 cars, federal and state figures show.
The significance of these figures, however, is debated.
The environmentalists who quote total tons are "misleading the public," says R. M. Christiansen, manager of Stearns-Rogers' environmental science division.
Dr. Christiansen claimed the dispersion of the pollutants in the atmosphere is the important factor. With a 600-foot high stack and gas temperatures as high as 250 degrees Fahrenheit, the plume of pollutants emitted from the stack normally would be expected to rise another 300 feet, depending on winds, he said.

During inversions or stable weather conditions, which tend to trap pollutants, the plume would stay "practically much in a ribbon" at the 900 to 1,000 foot level and would not cause any significant ground levels of pollution, he said.
An inversion development is a thinning layer of cool air is trapped by a layer of warmer air above it. In fall and early winter throughout southern Idaho this condition usually develops each evening and breaks up by late morning. Where air flows in from the north during winter however, inversions can last several days.

Fire heroes honored

KETCHUM.— Two state awards have been presented to private firefighters who battled blazes inside the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

Sherrill Wilard and employees were awarded the "Keep Idaho Green Award" for containing a quarter-acre fire above the townsite of Sawtooth City. The fire was a threat to nearby summer homes and the town.

The fire prevention office of the SNRA presented the same award to Mr. and Mrs. Bob Pruitt of Shoshone for containing a fire in North Fork Canyon which would have trapped about 100 campers.

TWIN FALLS.— The summer vacation, which seemed to begin just yesterday, is over for Twin Falls students.

Monday is the first day of school for the more than 6,000 students.

Some will be glad and some will be sad to see summer end and classes begin.

But on the other side, Supt. of Schools George Staudaher said, "I know there are lots of mothers that are anxious for school to start."

Staudaher said he expects about the same enrollment as last year, 6,200 students in grades 1-12.

New teachers account for 51 of the 301 faculty members of the eight Twin Falls public elementary, junior high and high schools. On Friday, Staudaher reported one faculty vacancy—the position of counselor at the high school.

The number of new teachers, larger than normal, is the result of additional classes at Robert Stuart with the longer day, and more teachers taking retirement last spring than expected, Staudaher said.

Even so, the turnover is considerably smaller than it was four to five years ago, he said.

Over the summer months, two schools received new principals. Clarence Parker will head Morningside School, and Dennis Soutis will take over at Bicket School.

Former Morningside principal Dennis Messenger has been appointed to serve as district-wide curriculum director.

Two changes going into effect for the first time this fall are the new open registration system at the high school and the longer, seven-period day at Robert Stuart Junior High established to match the continuing seven-period program at O'Leary Junior High School.

Construction continues to progress at four schools, Morningside, Harrison, Lincoln and Robert Stuart. The building program is going well, Staudaher said.

Curriculum this year are in the areas of mathematics and English, Staudaher said.

Several classes in applied mathematics will be offered for the first time. The instruction will center on practical, everyday application of math principles, for instance students will learn to understand and use a check book or how to compute board feet for wood construction.

In English instruction, the direction will be toward old standards. More emphasis will be placed on grammar, composition, speech and creative writing, with less importance placed on literature, Staudaher said.

Staudaher said the change, which was studied this summer by new English department head Joanne Alban, is being made because of a "feeling I've had for quite a while" that the haste English program needs to be stronger.

Something else that's new but probably not unexpected, this fall, is a higher school lunch price. All lunches will be 45 cents. Last spring, lunches were 35 cents for elementary students and 40 cents at the high school.

Studies show the elementary school children eat as much as the children in junior high and high school, Staudaher said.

Between 4,400 and 4,800 lunches were served daily, year, with about 1,000 free lunches, Staudaher said he expects about the same number of lunches to be served this year.

One thing might be a little different this year, Staudaher reported there are signs that the messy look, is on its way out. "The boys' hair is getting shorter," he said, and "the girls' dresses are getting nicer."

Roads bids opened

TWIN FALLS.— Two firms submitted bids Friday for reconstruction and surfacing of the roadway in the main county sanitary landfill.

County Commission Chairman William Chenevix said, Beymer Paving Co. submitted a bid of $2,460 and Gordon Paving Co. a bid of $2,564. Both are Twin Falls firms.

Bids were taken under advisement until Wednesday at 10:30 a.m., Chenevix said.

Involved in the work is about three-quarters of a mile of main roadway, which will be reinforced to meet standards required by the heavy truck hauling trucks. It will also be surfaced to cut the dust problem and provide all-weather service.

'Kids' hold final meet

TWIN FALLS.— The Curry Kids 4-H Club held the final meeting of the season Friday night at the home of Brett Hancey.

Talks were given by Colette Allen, what to wear in the showing of the fair; Dean Hall, how to set a table properly; Hancey, liver flukes in sheep Cliff Hall, how to take an animal's temperature, and Marlene Allen, rules for tractor safety.

A demonstration was given by Hancey on how to groom a chicken.

Tickets were passed out for the toy contest at the district fair.

Refreshments were served by Hancey.

Man injured

TWIN FALLS.— A Twin Falls man was injured in a car accident here Friday at about 5:15 p.m.

Daniel Tanner, 19, was taken to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital with cuts and bruises after colliding with an auto driven by Kathy Cooper, 25, Hansen. The accident took place at the intersection of Shoshone Street and Fourth Avenue South.

Tanner was treated and released from the hospital.

TF woman hurt

TWIN FALLS.— A Twin Falls woman was injured in a one-car accident on the Shoshone Falls grade Friday evening.

Jennifer Buel, 19, suffered a broken ankle when her car, driven by Robert Allen Frank, struck the road bank at about 8:15 p.m. She was reported in satisfactory condition at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Saturday afternoon.

Frank, 19, also of Twin Falls, was turning from the Dierkes Lake Road toward the falls when the vehicle went out of control and hit the bank.

Frank was charged with driving while under the influence of intoxicants, and was in police custody Saturday afternoon. Bond has been set at $250.

Burglary probed

TWIN FALLS.— Twin Falls police are investigating a car burglary reported by Mrs. Esco Van Houten, Twin Falls.

Burglars entered the Van Houten auto, parked in front of her home, while they were vacationing from July 25 to Aug. 23. The spare tire and rim, valued at about $80, were reported missing.

TF classrooms to reopen Monday

Staudaher said he expects about the same enrollment as last year, 6,200 students in grades 1-12.

It remains for exiles to swallow their pride

WASHINGTON - Within a couple of hours after President Ford completed his remarkable amnesty statement in Chicago TV newsmen had lined up a few young exiles in Toronto.

The exiles proceeded to spit in the President's eye. Ford's statement was remarkable for several reasons. Both in tone and in substance, his gesture of conciliation represented a sharp break from the Nixon administration's position of "never."

Demonstrating a rare political courage, he made his statement before an audience - the Veterans of Foreign Wars - that practically would disapprove. Coupled with his nomination the next day of Nelson Rockefeller for the vice presidency, the amnesty statement indicated a deliberate re-fashioning of Ford's over-conservative image. He is moving to the middle of the road.

The two actions, taken together, will produce a considerable thimble on the right. Many conservatives of myself among them have no use for the equivocal attitude displayed by draft-dodgers and deserters. Many of us wanted Barry Goldwater, and many of us still regard Rockefeller as a patsy who floats over the political net like a soft second serve.

Ford's statement of amnesty was far removed from the unconditional amnesty demanded by spokesmen for the exiles. Their position seems to go something like this:

"We draft-dodgers and deserters are morally pure. All those who sanctioned the war in Vietnam are morally rotten. We were right. All others were wrong. Unless we are given an apology, back pay, other rewards, and the hero's reception to which we are plainly entitled, we will not condescend to return to a corrupt and degraded country that does not deserve our purity and light."

This was the general attitude displayed by the spokesmen interviewed in Canada on Tuesday. The general reaction of many observers here at home will be to suggest that exiles stay in Toronto. More particularly, this is likely to be the reaction of many husbands, sons, and brothers who suffered wounds in Vietnam.

The President made two points that ought to be kept in mind as public discussion continues. The first is that "there are differences" among the exiles. The second is that those who wish to come home should have a second chance to contribute their fair share to the rebuilding of peace among ourselves and with all nations. In brief, they must "earn" their re-entry.

This makes sense. Deserters fall into different degrees of culpability. Those who fled to avoid the draft may have fled for reasons ranging from heartfelt conviction to cowardice. Not all the exiles may be as contemptuous of compensatory public service as their TV spokesmen seemed to be.

In tipping the scales of justice to the side of leniency, Ford has extended a hand. He has rejected the concept of "revenge." Most Americans, I believe, will buy that firm but compassionate position. They may be willing to swallow their prejudice. It remains for the exiles to swallow their pride.

Smokey Bear was right again

That big cloud of smoke hanging over the South Hills leads to one conclusion. Smokey Bear is right.

Being cautious with fire in any forest area is the best rule. That is being driven home again here in southern Idaho as the Deadline Ridge fire - burning for nine days now - continues to char timber in a popular recreation area of the South Hills. The source of the fire was attributed to an unattended campfire.

The Deadline Ridge fire is the largest in several seasons on the Sawtooth-National Forest. Probably good fortune kept several other smaller fires from getting out of hand earlier this summer. As usual, some lightning-ignited blazes were quenched by rain. Several spreading campfires were caught and put out before they became major blazes.

But the Deadline Ridge fire got away and after burning for a week had blackened 2,000 acres. It had caused an estimated $236,000 damage, including $155,000 in timber destroyed, watershed damages of $31,000, and $50,000 to other resources.

At this point, the cost in dollars of the attempts to suppress the fire hasn't been fully computed. It is certain to run to several hundred thousands of dollars, possibly surpassing $1 million.

The cost to the US Forest Service of controlling this fire and others comes from a special fund. Use of that money will not affect other funds of that agency. But a comparable amount of money or time applied to conservation or improvement works would enhance considerably - the recreational or grazing benefits from forest lands.

Fortunately, the injury toll from the Deadline Ridge fire has not been heavy so far and no summer homes or other recreational facilities were lost to it. But there are other costs - and adverse effects - which will be noticeable over the long period of years the burn will require to heal.

There will probably also be some benefits, as well, notably by thinning out some of the crowded or dead trees, and some of the over-mature trees which provided much of the fuel for the fire when it was running out of control early this past week.

Almost immediately noticeable will be the effect on the numbers and location of game animals in the vicinity of the burn. That's because the Idaho deer hunting season is only a short time off.

For the next two months, recreational pursuits, hiking, camping and hunting will take many Magic Valley residents and visitors into the forests of southern Idaho. These areas are too valuable both for their scenery and the recreational opportunities they offer - to be damaged by fire resulting from carelessness or inattention.

So the Deadline Ridge fire, by serving as an example of what can happen, should re-emphasize that in the late summer and early autumn extreme caution is required with every open fire built in areas where timber and grass are thoroughly dried.

Smokey Bear was right - being cautious with campfires is still the best practice.

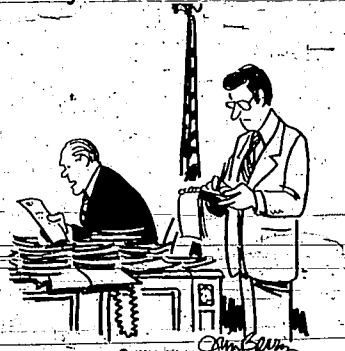

Moderate Maddox

Portland Oregonian
An indication of changing social attitudes comes from Georgia, where gubernatorial candidate Lester Maddox - who gained fame waving an ax behind to keep blacks out of his restaurant - repudiated the endorsement of the Ku Klux Klan.

Maddox, one of the symbols of resistance to segregation for a decade ago, even went so far as to claim the endorsement was a dirty trick by a newspaper. He went on to place 1974 in a field of 12 in the Democratic primary, but faces a runoff in his effort to return to the governor's ship.

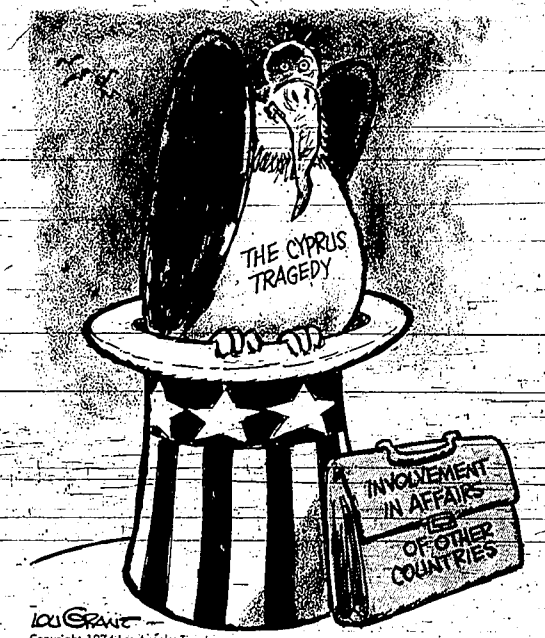

Combined with the news from George Wallace, Maddox seems to be showing that even those whose political careers were originally based largely on racism find it no longer politically useful, even to a racist.

Calming Aegean storms may require deft touch

(C) New York Times Service

ANKARA - Turkish Premier Ecevit, hoping to calm the stormy political waters of the Aegean, assured one group that he is eager to hold a bilateral summit with his Greek opposite number, Constantine Karamanlis - in order to pave the way to renewed friendship.

Although I had already had a lengthy conversation with Ecevit some days ago, he invited me for a second talk - in the Greek-Turkish military confrontation subsided and stated categorically: "We don't want to expedite our military success or go beyond the explicit lines of our military objectives." He also said his invitation to Karamanlis remained "open." It was up to Karamanlis to decide it and when to do it.

In our earlier talk, Ecevit had said he sent messages to Athens suggesting a meeting "somewhere at sea, away from either Greek or Turkish waters, near Malta for example. We would alternate visiting each other's ships and could discuss matters in a larger context. Karamanlis sent back word that he was waiting for conditions to ripen."

C.L. SULZBERGER

Ecevit thinks that once Cyprus cases it may prove possible to compose other bilateral problems involving the Aegean continental shelf. A recent air space, the demilitarization of Greek islands of the coast or mainland Turkey and border matters concerning both countries, possibly including defense, now that Greece has withdrawn its forces from NATO command.

Some older people like President Paul Koruturk, recalled the early '60s of the "Kemalist revolution when young officers regretted that neither Salimiki, Attaturk's birthplace, nor the offshore islands had been returned to Turkey in 1923 after the Greek war. The islands were seen as a collar around Turkey's neck, choking it off from the open seas."

Nevertheless, Ecevit stresses that Turkey's interests in the islands and simply wants them demilitarized - unless this is under NATO. If NATO decides they are useful to allied defense, Turkey would like to participate in their protection - "without infringing on Greek sovereignty."

The prospect of negotiations on these subjects lends itself to the chance of another crisis unless Ankara approaches talks for more gently and diplomatically.

Hasan Isik, defense minister, complains that Turkey never tried to profit from NATO by fortifying itself against Greece, whereas Greece had fortified the Dodecanese, "and other" islands.

High officials admit Turkey spent 10 years studying how to "solve" the Cyprus problem, explicated last month by the now departed Athens Junta. There are many hints that the Cypriot surgery is seen by Ankara as a prelude to straightening out several other questions - 1. Cyprus must - even if Greece does not.

Trouble in these waters has not yet ended. It is therefore imperative for Washington to urge calm wisdom on Athens - where its current influence is minimal - and caution and forbearance of the Turks before an eventual summit.

The Cyprus crisis imply demonstrates how much the Aegean can endanger a nervous world.

Lightning could still strike Rocky despite age

(C) Chicago Daily News

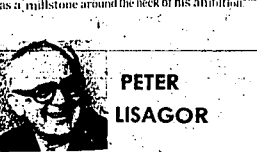

WASHINGTON - It wasn't what Nelson A. Rockefeller had in mind. "But at 66, a man scuttles down his ambitious narrows his sights, settles for less. The former New York governor wanted to spend out, but he couldn't accommodate himself to the conservative pull of the Republican party. He jostled with it and by the time he made his peace with it, time and events had overtaken him."

In the days when he was still looking for running room, Rockefeller used to respond to questions about whether he would accept the vice presidency by saying, "I'm not standing equipment."

Many in New York politics thought this was standard fare. That in fact Rockefeller would have accepted a nod from President Nixon in 1972 to take the second spot, with a weather eye on 1974. It was not to be. Incumbent Spiro Agnew had become the darling of his party's right wing, and Nixon would have "ripped the train" of the Goldwaterites if he had tried to jettison his running mate in 1972.

So the fate that embraced Gerald R. Ford abandoned Nelson Rockefeller. And when President Ford offered Rocky the No. 2 spot, he "accepted" and according to friends, he would have been crushed if he had said no. Age and circumstance have altered Rockefeller's vision of his future, dampened down his aspirations, and emptied his cup. Tuesday, in a position of relaxed desire to be helpful to his fourth term, Rockefeller had scrambled toward the center of GOP politics, with a tough law-and-order stance on drug abuse, the stern use of state troopers to put down the Attica prison riot, a more rigid and less compassionate approach toward welfare. He after several determined to replace the liberal label that served as a millstone around the neck of his ambition.

PETER LISAGOR

For the most part, GOP conservatives in the House and Senate have applauded Rockefeller's nomination, praising his "credentials" as an administrator and a man of probity and acknowledged stature. Politics of every hue also have been impressed by the fact that Rockefeller as vice president does not foreclose competition for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination, provided that the unforeseeable does not intrude. Ford will run for re-election in 1976, and even if Rocky should be his running mate, he will be 72 by 1980 and thus ruled out of track as a candidate. Of more immediate concern, as Rockefeller supporters see it, is what use the President makes of his new man's talents.

Rockefeller's forte is his ability to attract able people, his admirers point out, and those competent - figures - who gave the Nixon administration a wife berth may now be willing to come aboard.

No one questions Rockefeller's experience, and some Ford advisers believe that as vice President, he will be useful on matters of national defense, urban rehabilitation, and government reform, not to mention inspiring a new confidence in the business community. He also has a cabinet slot that will serve the resident well, being especially acceptable in Latin America, an area that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger finds singularly unexciting.

What troubles some Rockefeller associates is whether he can take orders. He has been his own man in New York for 15 years, and the trust of his many employees has been a by-product of the memory of his days as an undersecretary at HEW and White House adviser under President Eisenhower.

The vice presidency has been upgraded by the fact that, four of the last five occupants have made it to the top. Despite his age, Rockefeller is not fighting proof, politically. And that thought may sustain him.

Amnesty remains divisive issue

By PAUL MONTGOMERY
(C) New York Times Service

NEW YORK Twenty months after American troops stopped fighting in Vietnam, the issue of what to do about the tens of thousands of young men who avoided military service remains a bitterly divisive one.

In congressional hearings, presidential news conferences and other public forums the issues involved in granting amnesty to deserters and draft evaders, or punishing them, have kept alive the domestic antagonisms aroused by the war itself.

One vexing question in the amnesty issue is how many men would be affected. If it was granted, in his speech in Chicago this past Monday, President Ford cited "some 50,000 of our countrymen convicted, charged, under investigation or still sought for violations of the Selective Service Act or the Uniform Code of Military Justice."

That figure would include 28,661 listed by the Defense Department as deserters from the armed forces from July 1, 1966, to Dec. 31, 1973, and still "at large."

It would also include 4,500 men listed by the Justice Department as fugitives from indictments for violation of the draft laws. Presumably, the balance of the 50,000 would include 9,167 persons convicted of violations during the war, and others whose cases are still pending.

The total, however, is drawn from a much larger number of cases. The Defense Department, for example, says that from July 1, 1966, to Dec. 31, 1973, there were 503,926 "incidents of desertion"—defined as absence without leave for 30 days or more. The department says that aside from 28,661 deserters still at large, all the other cases have been resolved.

In the case of draft-law violations, the selective service system reported that from 1963 through 1972 there were 191,040 cases of men failing to respond to directives from draft boards. However, 80 per cent of the group did respond when given second or third notices. The Justice Department prosecuted 9,118 violators, and indictments were dismissed against 10,163 others; 4,500 were indicted and fled.

The defense Department says that 2,099 of its 28,661 "at large" cases are known to be outside the United States, primarily in Canada and Sweden. The Justice Department estimates that of its 4,500 fugitives, 2,400 are out of the country.

Proponents of amnesty give much higher figures for the numbers of men in exile or hiding because of desertion or draft law violations, and it seems clear that, during the Vietnam war, officials tended to minimize the numbers in an effort to show that the war was not unpopular. Estimates of fugitives by pro-amnesty groups have run as high as 100,000. Some say that there are as many as 50,000 deserters and war resisters in Canada alone.

The maximum penalty under the uniform code of military justice for desertion with "intent to avoid hazardous duty or to shirk important service" is five years of hard labor, or the total forfeiture of pay and a dishonorable discharge. With mitigating circumstances, such as family or financial problems, a dishonorable discharge may be the only penalty.

For violations of the Selective Service Act, the maximum penalty is five years in prison. However, probation—usually with a requirement for alternate service such as hospital or forestry work—is often given. The average prison penalty for most of the cases that year was 22.1 months; only 16 defendants received the maximum penalty.

General amnesty from prosecution can be granted by the president, an option first exercised by George Washington in 1783 for participants in the Whiskey Rebellion. After World War II, President Truman set up a special board to look into the cases of 15,945 men in federal custody on charges of draft evasion, desertion and the like. The hearings resulted in 3,041 pardons.

An 1895 Supreme Court Decision, Brown v. Walker, gave the President power to pardon "for past offenses against the United States except in cases of impeachment." The court said that Congress was not prohibited from passing "acts of general amnesty."

Proponents of amnesty have generally suggested three types—unconditional for everyone; general pardons conditional on some sort of penalty such as alternative public service; and creation of a hearing board to examine each case on its merits.

Unconditional amnesty has been supported by a number of groups, including the American Civil Liberties Union, the Central Conference of American Rabbis and the Roman Catholic Conference of Major Superiors. Others, such as the Catholic Bishops' Conference, have recommended conditional amnesty.

Arguments for amnesty are generally that war resisters were only guilty of premature morality in opposing a war that the country later rejected as immoral. Some draft resisters have said they could not accept conditional amnesty because it seems clear that, during the Vietnam war, officials tended to minimize the numbers in an effort to show that the war was not unpopular.

Opponents say that to pardon offenders would dishonor those who fought in the war, and were wounded or killed in obeying the law.

"We should remember the 1.8 billion men who served," the general counsel to the selective service system said earlier this year. "Those who served and sacrificed as an obligation to their country may become the officers and sergeants should amnesty be granted to the less than one per cent who failed to meet their duty."

U.S. Gen. Leo E. Bende, speaking for the Pentagon, also said that amnesty would have a "detrimental impact" on armed forces morale and on the nation's recruitment and indication for its future war.

Last March a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee held three days of hearing on 10 measures introduced by representatives for or against amnesty.

It was clear that a majority of the subcommittee, headed by Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., favored some form of amnesty. Kastenmeier said recently that he expected the subcommittee to recommend some form of amnesty bill early in the next session of Congress.

GERRY CONDON, managing editor of Americans Exiled in Canada, has received many telephone calls asking about his reactions following President Ford's amnesty commutes this past Monday. Most groups of anti-war resisters abroad are opposed to conditional amnesty. (UPI)

BADGES STATING their views on any sort of amnesty to draft resisters and Vietnam war opponents who fled the United States were being worn in Chicago this past week by members of Veterans of Foreign Wars. Following President Ford's speech, the VFW reiterated its stand against any amnesty. (UPI)

Conditions draw fire

Rocky appears in tune with Ford on key issues

(C) New York Times Service

Nelson Rockefeller should have little trouble making the transition from New York to Washington and, judging by his recent record, should be in tune with President Ford on such key issues facing the nation today.

Since he resigned as the nation's senior governor last December, the 66-year-old Rockefeller has devoted virtually full time to his role as architect, prime mover, financier and chairman of the Commission on Critical Choices for Americans, which has provided him with a vehicle for deep, unimpassioned thought on national but also world problems.

He has also used the commission as a channel to national leaders, including then-Vice President Ford, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the majority and minority leaders of the Senate and House after office members.

Some Rockefeller associates contend that the commission work actually represents a return to Rockefeller's first love, international affairs. In that context, his 15 years as governor of New York was viewed as a very long rest stop on the way to national office.

In fact, a strong case can be made that he is considerably more conversant with international affairs than Ford and could become a rival to Kissinger as leading Rockefeller associate, as the foreign affairs expert in the Ford administration.

Rockefeller's complete preoccupation with affairs national and international has also been evident in his recent speeches, in interviews and his hands-off attitude toward New York state politics and government that he dominated for 15 years.

The same speeches and interviews also provided ample clues to his thinking on various issues and evidence that he, with his reputation as the liberal Republican maverick, and Ford, with his image of a die-hard American conservatism, have much in common.

Rockefeller, a longtime hawk on communism, has, for example, repeatedly exhibited skepticism about détente with the Soviet Union.

His enthusiasm to encourage détente and I'm for it—I have a feeling that some of the longer range security problems are being ignored," he said in an interview earlier this year.

Rockefeller often cites the plans of Occidental Oil and the Aluminum Company of America to build a huge oil refinery and aluminum plant, respectively, in the Soviet Union. He notes that the aluminum plant would consume half the world's supply of bauxite and that the oil refinery, which would process oil from American consumption, could give the Russians another lever in their dealings with this country.

The former governor has also expressed concern over the Swift family, President Ford's son-in-law, that's basic to everything," he says.

Yet, he has insisted that he has "an open mind" on détente and merely raises these issues "to demonstrate the complexities of détente and other subjects that are being studied by the critical choices commission."

If Rockefeller has been a consistent internationalist in foreign affairs and consistently wary of the Soviet Union, his domestic record—primarily as politician—has been far from consistent.

The Nelson Rockefeller of the 1960's assailed any attempts to undo social welfare and civil rights programs; but in the 1970's he proposed residence requirements for New Yorkers on welfare and prison sentences for drug addicts.

Politically, the Nelson Rockefeller of the 1960's, who frequently and often bitterly opposed Barry Goldwater and Richard Nixon was in 1970's in praise Goldwater as a "great man" and declined to attack Nixon even in the final hours of his presidency when many were re-entire.

Nationally, he worked closely with the Democratic "old pros"—President Johnson and Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee and the top tax man on a Rockefeller pet project, federal revenue sharing with the states.

Rockefeller mounted a national campaign for revenue sharing because he contended that states could no longer cope with inflation and health care that increased state spending at a rate of 15 per cent a year while revenues increased at only half that rate.

It was this arithmetic, rather than any ideological change, that he said impelled him to crack down on welfare and education spending in New York. This was done through the appointment of state inspectors general who scrutinized the once sacrosanct welfare and education spending at the local level.

He contended that without such hard-nosed economies, the state would have no enough money to support social welfare programs.

Critics contended that Rockefeller's turn to the right was motivated by a desire to join the national Republican mainstream and to advance the presidential ambitions that had been so often thwarted by his image as an Eastern liberal maverick.

In any event, pragmatism, whether economic or political, proved him. He is, in the view of many politicians, the complete pragmatist rather than a liberal or conservative ideologue.

Rockefeller describes himself as "a centrist with a progressive point of view."

The 42 members of the critical choices commission reflect that centrist point of view. Almost all are politicians, academicians and business men who are not likely to espouse any radical new courses.

All of which would seem to make him a President Ford kind of person, politically and philosophically.

Sawtooth landholders' problems discussed

Editor, Times-News:

The following letter was sent to Sen. Frank Church:

Now that the primary elections are behind us, I can't help that wonder if Sen. Frank Church, oft-times called "our champion," won't be haunted by his public inquiries. I would like to ask "champion of what?" Could he be champion for selling the people of Idaho out the river?

I was born, raised, have paid my taxes and used my right to vote in the state of Idaho for the entire life, 46 years, and I for one am certainly not in his corner and needless to say that many native Idahoans feel the same way.

Sen. Church was very instrumental in the Father of introducing the Sawtooth National Recreation Area into Idaho. When this issue was first raised it is true that public hearings were held. The people were justly spoken to and promises made but now that the final results have been attained they are as foreign to the original concept as anything could be. I will cite only one portion of the SNRA regulation that is not as originally introduced.

Landholders were told they could remain on their land if the SNRA proposal was made into law. Many people believed them and for this reason did not oppose them. Now that it is law we find that this is one of the many things that just isn't true.

It seems that most of the efforts of logging out landowners is in the Sawtooth Valley from Stanley to Sawtooth City. (Smiley Creek). Due to much concern of the west side of Highway 93 would have to go. This is certainly cut the opposition in half as the east side of the world make no more waves. After we on the west side are gone, how long will it be before they start to work on the east side?

Many articles have been published by the SNRA stating that the landholders have three choices. 1. They can be bought out. 2. They can have a land exchange. 3. They can stay on their land until 1981. This is simply not true. We do not have three choices. At least not all of us. We are not equal.

1. To be bought out the price of your land would be established by the SNRA land appraisers. No private land for sale in the Sawtooth Valley sells for under $10,000 a lot now that private land is scarce. I am wondering if the president in Swiss Villa, Obsidian, has not already been established who his name sold his lot for $900. How can we replace what we have for this?

2. Land exchange. We have been told by the SNRA this will depend on many things. Only developed land will be considered for exchanges and they will decide what is considered developed. In our case we have water, power, good soil, just a few miles from home and yet in talking with Robert Hinger, negotiator for the SNRA, he would not tell us if this was considered, in their opinion, as developed land.

3. To live 15 years on the land and then to be bought out in a private auction. Here again this is not for all, only some will qualify, certainly not mobile homes or a bare lot, most probably the expensive cabin owners. So every time you read that these three choices are available to the property owners, don't you believe it. We are not created equal as the saying goes, at least not in the eyes of the SNRA.

Senator Church made a public announcement at the onset that he and Bettine had sold their property to the Forest and Range and a lovely large summer-winter resort home and lies within the boundaries of the SNRA. I am wondering to whom he sold? Relatives? I would like him to publicly announce the buyers and if they are related to him or his campaign and how they are related.

Ironically it came to light during the primaries that the senator's wife exercised an option to buy back a one acre tract from the ranch, which was transferred to the Forest and Range and Church. This of course contradicted Senator Church's previous public statement that he had sold his interest in the Robinson Bar Ranch in its entirety.

Now ask you, "is it fair that the senator's legislation is good for everyone except the Frank Church family and friends?" If our "champion" has done this to his fellow Idahoans so that the nation can travel down the alley with no objections to the view, again I ask "champion" of what?

To the thousands of us who have enjoyed this valley for years now see the impact of the type of people its publicly brought to Idaho. Stanley is full of your people in its at the post office to collect their food stamps and for people like this I have to leave my land that I have sacrificed to buy so that they may have an unobstructed view.

Book destruction deplored

Editor, Times-News:

I have never thought very highly of book burners.

I would very much like to know who ordered the destruction of Appendix IX of the Special Committee on Un-American Activities Report.

I am informed by a reputable Washington, D. C. source that all copies of this book have been taken from the Congressional Library and destroyed, and also that all copies in government offices have been ordered destroyed.

Why? Is it because this is the book that showed that Sen. Frank Church's administrative assistant was a writer for the Daily Worker?

Is it because this book showed that Mrs. Barnes was a member of the executive committee of the National Citizens' Political Action Committee, cited as a Communist front, and women's director of the same outfit?

For years I have labored under the idea that the Congressional Library was a repository for all books printed in the US and that they would be preserved there for the use of our congressmen, senators and scholars.

Alive, thankful

REUNITED and ecstatically happy are Edward Patterson, 45, and his wife, Patterson was kidnaped Thursday morning and released after being held for 38 hours. A ransom of $250,000 was demanded but not picked up. (UPI)

FBI, cops hunt man's abductors

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The FBI and city police Saturday sought two men who kidnaped a wealthy business executive, held him "hogtied like an animal," they released him unharmed without receiving the $250,000 ransom they had demanded.

The FBI said they were looking for the abductors of Edward H. Patterson Jr., 45, outside his office here Thursday night. They released him Friday night in Suburban Springs field Township, MontGomery County.

"I have no ink of who they are and I am sure they'll be in better shape than we are in to eliminate some things and we're starting to look at specific areas."

Patterson, vice president and general manager of a scientific equipment company, returned to his home in Hightstown, N.J., Friday night and told news men he was "hogtied like an animal" and "undoubtedly during the 38 hours he was held by his kidnapers."

Patterson said the abductors told him, "We'll be back for you," before releasing him on an outdoor telephone booth on a rural road, from which he

Health loan programs with year's extension

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford signed into law Saturday a measure extending for another year the authorization for the national Health Service Corps scholarship program and the Health Professions and Nursing Student Loan Programs.

The authorization for the loan programs totaled $153 million, compared to $175 million in last year's budget, and the authorization for the health corps program was expanded from $5 million for 1974 to $10 million for 1975.

Ford also signed a bill extending for two years the District of Columbia Medical and Dental Service Corps.

The project will begin April 1. It is expected to employ 4,000 workers.

Dam builders

MONTREAL (UPI) — A joint Argentine-Emmanan construction committee has announced that the first turbines of a dam it is building on the Cragua River, will be in operation within five years.

The project will begin April 1. It is expected to employ 4,000 workers.

Escapeses kill in revenge

ROYAN, TEXAS (UPI) — Three escaped convicts, apparently killed on a revenge murder spree, killed an elderly farmer Saturday, whose testimony helped send them to prison. Police learned three others also were marked for death.

The farmer, T. L. Baker, had testified before a grand jury in the conviction of the three men, Dalton Williams, 29, of Snyder, Tex., and three others he told were responsible for sending him to prison.

"He's got four subjects," Baker, the McQueen brothers, Donald and Curtis, and Mrs. O. Campbell, Hardin said. "He feels like they caused him to go to prison."

Population forum split at midpoint

BUCHARAEST (UPI) — The 19th annual world population conference Saturday passed its halfway stage with the forum dividing broadly into two camps on a plan of action.

A working group trying to find consensus of the plan has broken down roughly into two groups: the developed world and the more loosely grouped nations of the developing and Communist bloc.

Delegates said interest had now moved away from the plenary sessions to the working group which was running into danger of "giving up" as document sessions would be all things to all men.

The delegates said the main division was between developed countries wanting to stress the urgency of curbs on

Raft River, Camas areas on Idaho thermal list

BOISE (UPI) — The state department of water resources has identified seven potential geothermal areas in Idaho and will conduct a formal hearing in Boise Sept. 13 to adopt them.

At its last session, the legislature authorized the agency to adopt, identify and designate geothermal areas for the state.

Director Keith Higginson told a legislative-internal committee today the department has designated those areas as the Welser, Raft River, Northern Owyhee County, Preston, Island Park, Camas Prairie and Mount Bennett Hills Geothermal Areas.

Higginson outlined for the committee present and planned geothermal research by federal and state agencies in Idaho. He said federal funding for geothermal research in the United States will take an enormous jump during fiscal 1975 — climbing to $15.4 million from $11.2 million.

"With this tremendous increase in available funding we anticipated that there would be a marked increase in the interest of researchers throughout the nation and Idaho to obtain funding for their proposals," he said.

"Our intention was to be certain that Idaho receives as much of these funds as possible to fully evaluate the enormous geothermal potential Idaho enjoys," Higginson said.

He said very preliminary heat flow data indicate that 50 power plants generating 1,000 megawatts could be operated for 100 years and use only one per cent of the total heat energy in southern Idaho.

"This is not to say such plants could be built," he said, "but is an indication of the tremendous energy available."

Andrus names Nock successor on PUC

SODA SPRINGS, Idaho (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus Saturday accepted "with reluctance" the resignation of Harry Nock from the Public Utilities Commission.

Andrus immediately named

Attorney Karl Shurtliff, 34, Boise, to the vacancy.

Nock, who has been ill, sent in his letter while the governor was in eastern Idaho, campaigning for reelection.

"Harry Nock has served with distinction the people of Idaho as a PUC commissioner," Andrus said.

"It is with regret and appreciation that I accept his resignation, but I recognize he made his decision with the best interests of the people of Idaho in mind, and this is the hallmark of a truly good public servant," Andrus said.

He said Shurtliff will continue in the (PUC) Democratic tradition of representing "the people's interests, not the special interests, as a member of the PUC."

Shurtliff, a native of Idaho Falls, who was reared in McAnay, has a bachelor's degree in government from Idaho State University and a law degree from the University of Idaho. He served one term in the State House of Representatives, representing Jefferson County as a Democrat. He also taught school for a year before entering law school.

For the past six years he has been a senior trial attorney with the U.S. Department of Justice.

Andrus said with the increasingly complex duties of the PUC "a commissioner with legal training will be a definite asset."

Shurtliff is married and has one daughter.

Firm sues Canyon

GALDWELL (UPI) — Caldwell Oil Company filed suit Friday against Canyon County for taxes it says were illegally claimed because the county had a surplus of $100,000 and its assessments were too high.

The penalties involved, including penalties the A-9700 Co. had to pay and interest it seeks to more than $1,200.

The suit filed in third district court spilled out the claims for the 1973 years and then asked the court to include 1974 in its judgment.

The company said the budget and assessments were set again without taking all surplus and revenue sources into account.

It named Canyon County commissioners, assessor and treasurer as individual defendants.

Oil pact ban sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, has announced the preparation of legislation to keep multinational oil companies from unilateral agreements with oil producing countries.

Church, chairman of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on multinational corporations, said the bill would provide the national with authority to prevent oil companies from the agreements proposed by producer countries.

He said the bill would require public disclosure and approval of all long-term supply contracts between multinational U.S. oil companies and oil producing governments.

McClure blames candor lack for Nixon's fall

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, blames a lack of candor and credibility for the fall of the Nixon administration but does not think the former president should have been impeached.

"It was a total loss of credibility that caused Nixon's downfall," said McClure Friday to a Boise civic group.

He said Nixon's "total lack of candor with the American people probably caused the lack-of-confidence—in his administration."

McClure said he feels that Nixon's concentration on foreign affairs, while beneficial, was detrimental to the domestic economy.

But he had praise for President Ford's stand on bringing the budget into balance.

"You can't balance—balance by spending what you like on luxury items, and then waiting for the defense budget and foreign aid to cut in order to balance the budget," he said.

It is a big time of his disappointment over the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president by saying, "Ford asked us all to send in a letter with our top three choices for vice president."

"To show how I feel about Gov. Rockefeller, he was not my first choice. Nor was he my second choice. And neither was he my third choice."

While disappointed over the nomination, McClure said he does not think Rockefeller should have to divest himself of his personal holdings as some Congressmen have suggested.

"I don't think he should have to do that," McClure said.

Board sets meet

BOISE (UPI) — The State Board of Education will meet Sept. 5-6 in the Idaho Statehouse to discuss legislative and school accountability.

J.P. Munson, board president, said members also will hold budget sessions the day before the regular meeting for higher education institutions, junior colleges and vocational education.

These indirect sources by the EPA is "based on the faulty premise that real estate causes pollution."

"Only one month after the House of Representatives rejected the concept of federal land-use planning, EPA has issued their own set of land use regulations in direct defiance of congressional intent," he said.

Expo leaders deny bankruptcy charge

SPokane, Wash. (UPI) — Expo '74 officials went on the offensive with a few figures they believe prove that the World's Fair is not on the verge of bankruptcy, but doing well financially.

Assistant General Manager Chuck Alby and Vice President John Musgrave told reporters Friday "Expo has been an unqualified success. We are paying our bills and meeting our payroll."

The two were responding to charges made earlier this week by former Expo Independent ticket contractor Joe Scholnick, who said the fair would end up at least $1 million in the red and near bankruptcy.

Scholnick and Expo filed opposing complaints in Superior Court Tuesday charging each other with breach-of-contract. Expo had terminated its association with

Gem Demo accepts challenge

Scholnick late last month over the dispute involving discount ticket sales in the Spokane area.

Alby said the fundamental indicator of bankruptcy is the comparison of current assets against current liabilities, and cash on hand.

He said as of July 31, the Expo Corp. had assets of $1,643,426, as opposed to liabilities of $847,426. He said cash on hand totalled $805,476.

Alby did acknowledge that Expo was not managed by any means. The key to success would be attendance—the last two months of the fair, he said, figures indicate that paid attendance exceeding season passes must average at least 14,200 per day in order for the fair to break even.

The total attendance as of Thursday for the fair was 2,374,039.

Police hunt escapees

BOISE (UPI) — Police today are continuing their search for four inmates of the Idaho State Prison who escaped in a stolen pickup truck.

Three of the convicts, including Paul Glen Hattion, who was serving a life sentence for murder, were last seen at 3:30 p.m. Friday at the new prison site south of Boise.

Prison officials found that Hattion, 30, was missing at the same time they discovered the absence of Harry Edward Griffith, 25, who was serving five years for first degree burglary, and Albert Andrew Sorenson, 35, who was serving time for illegal possession of narcotics.

It later was discovered that Rick Louis White, 24, also had escaped. He was serving time

Military orders watched as Nixon era faded out

(C) New York Times Service — WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James M. Schlesinger and the Joint Chiefs of Staff kept unusually close control over lines of command during the last days of the Nixon administration to ensure that no unauthorized orders were given to military units by the White House.

A senior Pentagon official said Saturday the decision to monitor closely all orders from any source was taken by Schlesinger, in consultation with Air Force Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to prevent any of a series of hypothetical situations developing.

The official said that Schlesinger began to worry about the situation when it became clear to him in late July and early August that impeachment or resignation of Nixon seemed "inevitable."

There were two major areas of concern — Schlesinger's mind, the official said. The first was that in some "improbable" situation, Nixon or one of his aides might contact some military units directly without going through the usual Pentagon chain of command, and order some action be taken to block the "constitutional process."

The second was that a genuine national emergency might develop in which American military units might have to be placed on alert or go into action, and Schlesinger and General Brown wanted to ensure that they would couch publicly for the actions.

The Pentagon official stressed today that the concern of Schlesinger was hypothetical and did not involve from any actual event. At no time, the officials said, was there any sign that the White House or any military commander was contemplating "any action outside the chain of command."

Schlesinger reportedly became concerned that if there was an impeachment debate and then a Senate trial, which seemed likely after the House Judiciary Committee voted articles of impeachment, the country could "have difficult times."

There was "a hypothetical concern not only that somebody at the White House might order some unit to act against Congress, but that some official might seek to have some unit sent to the President."

Moreover, Schlesinger, in his conversations with Secretary of State Kissinger, was also concerned about a national crisis arising while the President's future hung in the balance, the Pentagon official said.

Schlesinger decided that he would not leave Washington during the White House crisis, to ensure that he would be able to be at the center of Pentagon command.

NFU head DeChant raps milk support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government is breaking the law by maintaining milk price supports at a level below the floor set by Congress, a farm leader claimed Saturday.

Tony Dechant, President of the National Farmers Union, said in a letter to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz that the Agriculture Department's $5.28 per hundredweight support price for milk manufacturing grade milk amounted to only 75 percent of the "fair earning power" of the milk price last month.

The legal minimum for this year, Dechant pointed out, is 80 percent of parity.

Dechant said the law requires that the Agriculture Department to set milk supports at whatever rate between 80 and 90 percent of parity is needed to assure adequate production for consumers and allow dairy farmers enough income to keep up productive capacity.

Agriculture officials could not be reached immediately for comment on Dechant's protest. They have noted many times in the past, however, that they interpret the law to mean the dollars and cents support rate must equal the legal floor at the time it is announced each April — a requirement which officials say was met as usual this year.

The parity price used as a standard for setting supports is geared to farm costs, and goes up during periods of inflation.

Lane, Kunstler out

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — Attorneys William Kunstler and Mark Lane, jailed Friday night as the result of a melee during the 7-11 assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy, were released from Ramsey County Jail Saturday.

Kunstler and Lane are part of the defense team in the trial of American Indian Movement leaders Russell Means and Dennis Banks on felony charges in connection with the 7-day takeover of Wounded Knee, S.D., last year.

In a statement written in his cell Friday night, Lane described the episode as a "police riot," and said he was struck in the eye by a marshal when he was taken from the courtroom.

U.S. District Court Judge Fred Niechajew said he would have a statement on the situation Monday.

Kunstler was questioning former AIM member Louis Moves Camp, 22, Friday when laughter erupted in part of the courtroom.

Niechajew immediately ordered removal of spectators in a row of the room.

There was "a hypothetical concern not only that somebody at the White House might order some unit to act against Congress, but that some official might seek to have some unit sent to the President."

Moreover, Schlesinger, in his conversations with Secretary of State Kissinger, was also concerned about a national crisis arising while the President's future hung in the balance, the Pentagon official said.

Schlesinger decided that he would not leave Washington during the White House crisis, to ensure that he would be able to be at the center of Pentagon command.

Accused

TEAMSTERS President Frank Fitzsimmons was accused Friday of illegally using $25,000 in union funds to aid Rabbi Baruch Korf's campaign to keep former president Richard Nixon in office. The charges were made in a letter by Arthur Fox, head of the Professional Drivers Council for Safety and Health. (UPI)

Maine seclusion for Rocky

SEAL HARBOR, Maine (UPI) — Nelson Rockefeller went into seclusion at his coastal retreat Saturday to play tennis, sail, and work on his confirmation as vice president.

Rockefeller's press secretary Hugh Morrow said there would be no news out of the Rockefeller compound until after Labor Day. He said the former governor's only public activity was a possible one-day trip to Washington in the middle of next week, but those plans are tentative.

Two aides who had met with Rockefeller Friday on his confirmation — Dr. William J. Boyer, head of the New York New Jersey Port Authority and Robert Douglass, an attorney, returned to New York City.

They will work with Rockefeller's accountants and other lawyers preparing financial records for the two Congressional committees handling confirmation.

Rockefeller aides said earlier they expected the first of his financial records to be turned over to the House Judiciary and Senate Rules Committees sometime next week. Douglass will handle the liaison between Rockefeller and the two committees.

A heavy fog shrouded the Maine coast Saturday, preventing Rockefeller and his wife, Mary, from sailing one of their favorite relaxations.

Rockefeller had told reporters Friday that during the vacation he would also be playing tennis with ten-year-old Nelson Jr. at the Harbor Club.

Experts disagree on coal fired power plant effect on Gem air

According to Christiansen, the pollutants would normally level off near the inversion ceiling — commonly between 900 and 1200 feet above ground. Only when the inversion broke up would the turbulence cause pollutants to fall to the ground, usually lasting only 15 to 20 minutes.

A statement from Stearns Rogers says, "Even under inversion conditions, the invisible plume levels off at a high elevation and mixes with the winds aloft. Ground-level concentrations are not detectable during short-term inversions."

Mike Williams, research coordinator for the John Muir Institute, took issue with Stearns Rogers' predictions. "Ground levels of pollution," he said, would be measurable and at times significant in terms of damage to human health and crops. He agreed that, during daily inversions, the plume of pollutants probably would stay in a ribbon at a high altitude.

But, as the inversion breaks up, the turbulence commonly would bring the wastes to the ground for two or three hours, Williams said.

"This happens during periods of 'limited mixing,'" he said. "The inversion breaks from the ground up. When the inversion ceiling is higher than the pollution plume, the wastes will be mixed in the surrounding air as the inversion breaks at lower altitudes. But when the inversion ceiling will not be able to go into the upper atmosphere due to the ceiling above."

At these times, Williams says, sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxides — which he said are toxic substances — can reach harmful levels.

Christiansen counters that this "limited mixing" situation would occur three times a year from the stack would level off near the ceiling of the inversion. The full inversion would be broken about the time the plume reaches the inversion and the pollutants would quickly be dispersed, preventing buildup of significant levels.

According to Art Hoesick, meteorologist in charge of the U.S. weather station at Boise, inversion ceilings throughout southern Idaho commonly range between 300 and 2,000 feet. Hoesick could not specify how frequently the ceiling is at the upper level. But at 2,000 feet, the ceiling would be about 1,000 feet higher than the plume altitude, allowing for the "limited mixing," Williams warned. However, at the lower ceiling levels, the plume would rise above the inversion and be dispersed in the higher altitudes.

Williams doubted that the plume would be invisible. Much of the nitrogen oxide would convert to brownish nitrogen dioxide, creating an eyesore, he said.

What would happen during an inversion lasting several days is unknown, according to Williams. He said some experts believe the pollutants will mix evenly in the stable weather conditions, creating significant pollution levels.

Christiansen said air studies for the proposed plant, now being made by Stearns Rogers, will examine the likely pollution effects during longer-term inversions.

Regarding the combined effects of both sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxides, Christiansen said Williams is "quoting one side of the community." He said scientists disagree on whether the combined impact of both gases is greater than each added separately.

With improved boiler design, Stearns Rogers has engineered plants which give off an "invisible plume," Christian said. As proof he cited the San Juan plant in New Mexico. A much larger plant, such as the one Idaho Power is proposing, would operate the same way, he claimed.

According to Stearns Rogers, the problem of acid rains would not occur in southern Idaho.

"Acid rains are infrequent regional phenomena," normally downwind of large industrial areas with high pollution levels, such as the Ruhr Valley in Germany and northeastern industrial centers of the United States. "A release from the immediate area of the plant," a single power plant, situated away from other heavy sources of pollutants, has not been associated with significant changes in the rainwater, which is normally slightly acidic," the release added.

Acid rains are also associated with humid areas. Even at high levels of pollution, corrosion does not become a serious problem at relative humidities below 60 percent. Southern Idaho's climate is arid and acid rains therefore will not occur," it stated.

Weather bureau information shows that humidity levels at Boise range above 60 percent in the evening and late morning.

"That's nonsense," said Clarence Gordon, plant pathologist and director of environmental studies at the University of Montana, in response to the Stearns Rogers statement.

With only 12 inches of rain a year, acid rains have stunted the growth of pine trees in Montana's east Helena Valley, he said. Pines are particularly sensitive to such rains, but so are other crops such as bush beans. Gordon said Weather data shows that Boise has an average of about 11.5 inches of rain a year.

"The rain will be acidic. It will affect bush beans," Gordon predicted, if the plant goes on.

"If storm fronts take air polluted by sulfur dioxide over the mountains to the north, Williams predicted damage to sensitive pine trees.

According to Maurice Paulsen, general manager and meteorologist at the Kimberly Weather Station, storm fronts during the winter often would move north between the Snake and Salmon Rivers. "If rain clouds form at the 5,000 to 6,000 foot level, he says, but pollutants below, would likely be swept up to that height during the turbulence.

But Paulsen expressed a "layman's doubt" that the acid rains would really create much of a problem. He said he has travelled through beautifully forested areas in the East, which were near plants producing high quantities of sulfur dioxide and has seen no damage.

Montana pathologist Gordon said, however, coal slides have caused extensive harm to trees. He cited the case of a 11 million kilowatt plant near Kuyger Creek, West Va., which killed 1.2 million seedling trees in two days because of unusual weather conditions which brought the plume emitted from the 1,000-foot stack to the ground.

"So one," Gordon said, "can predict that weather at some point will not bring emissions from a plant in southern Idaho down to the ground in the same manner. He said the Kuyger Creek power plant burned coal with a sulfur content more than triple the average sulfur content of the coal which would be used by the proposed Southern Idaho plant, but he also said the Kuyger plant is only about half the size of the plant proposed.

Christiansen said the concentration of sulfur dioxide is "all important" determining the impact of the pollutants. Even though the impact might be thousands of tons each year, the low sulfur coal would prevent the concentration from being high enough to cause serious damage to vegetation, he maintained.

Smelting operations, such as located in Helena, may produce an acid rain problem, he said, since they put out a much higher concentration of the gas.

Even when the pollutants are well dispersed in the atmosphere, Gordon said, the overall situation must be kept in perspective. He said a recent U.S. Department of Interior study shows generating plants producing 32 million kilowatts of power are being planned for the east and west slopes of the Rockies and the Fort Union Basin. That may coal-fired plants, will make the East Coast seem clean in comparison," he said.

"Each case has to be treated individually," Dean Wilson, regional meteorologist for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said. He maintained the specifics of plant construction, the conditions at the plant site need be studied in detail before the pollution impact can be known.

But Paulsen expressed a "layman's doubt" that the acid rains would really create much of a problem. He said he has travelled through beautifully forested areas in the East, which were near plants producing high quantities of sulfur dioxide and has seen no damage.

Ford aides OK scrutiny of papers

(By New York Times Service)
WASHINGTON — President Ford's legal counsel agreed Friday to permit a former President Richard M. Nixon to examine papers that they left behind them at the White House.

Within hours after the decision was announced, H.R. Halderman, who was Nixon's former chief of staff, entered a guarded room in the Executive Office Building, next door to the White House, to look through his files.

Halderman, along with five other Nixon associates and aides, are scheduled to go on trial Sept. 26, on charges of participating in a cover-up of the Watergate affair.

The decision to permit access to the files came after attorneys for John D. Ehrlichman, another of the Watergate defendants, protested earlier this week that he did not have the same access to his papers as he formerly had.

Prize catch

SMOKEY Cunningham is shown at left waiting patiently for that big one he knows he's going to catch. At right he displays his prize catch, a 23-pound salmon. Cunningham was one of a group of 11 from Twin Falls on a two-day fishing trip at Ilwaco, Wash. this past week. The group brought home 66 fish, with Cunningham taking top honors for landing the biggest one. In the background are Jerome Fiscus, left, and Harold Harmon, right, Ore., former Twin Falls resident.

Fishing trip rated big success by TF group

By NORMA HERZINGER Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — How does the fresh salmon steak sound for dinner tonight? Well, several Twin Falls families will be savoring it, speeded with tall stories on how they landed that big one.
The group from Twin Falls went to Ilwaco, Wash., this past week and brought home a salmon averaging about 15 pounds apiece. And that's no fish tale.
Ilwaco seems to be a haven for Magic Valley fishermen as several groups chuked up victories there this past week. I was invited along with a group of 11, all expert fishermen except me. This was my first time to even hold a fishing pole. But I want to tell you — after I landed my first salmon I could tell as big a story as the next one.

In the group were Dean Vickers, Howard Jewell, Art Cannon, Harold Cooke, Leonard Ross, Smokey Cunningham and Vic Graybeal, all Twin Falls; Jerome Fiscus, Jerome, Anna Belle Sharp, Filer, and Harold Harmon, Rainier, Ore., former

Twin Falls resident. I understand this was not only a very successful fishing trip, but unusual because the first day we filled our limit of 13 each and were on our way back to shore at 10 a.m. The second day we caught our limit and were headed back by 9:15 a.m.
Cunningham took top honors for landing the largest fish, 23 pounds. Cooke was second with an 18-pounder.
I was a little skeptical that first day out not knowing exactly what to expect or what I would do if I did catch one.

And tell me, who wouldn't be skeptical at 5 o'clock in the morning? But my skepticism quickly vanished after I heard someone yell — "Fish on, Fish on!"
The bait, boy and deck hand excitedly acknowledged the cry and that was enough to generate excitement in everyone. Soon you could hear the ambience all around the boat. But the most excitement came when it was my turn to yell "Fish on." As a matter of fact, I was so excited I almost forgot to start reeling it in. I did get it in, however, and when the deck hand netted it and brought it on board I was the proudest person alive.

The real work came when the men started packing the fish in ice to bring them home. Not anticipating all the good luck, containers became a little scarce and we even had to use our beverage cooler.
A work crew met at Cannon's home Thursday and like real pros cut and packed the meat for freezing — all the time making plans for another next year.
And, speaking of a trip next year — they are going to have a devil of a time getting away without me.

Catch limit

PROUD fishermen Dean Vickers, Anna Belle Sharp and Art Cannon, from left, brag a bit as they display part of their salmon catch. They came home with their limit for the two-day fishing trip, six salmon each.

A day's catch

Catholic rites unite couple

GOODING — John M. Giese and Ward C. Toone were married in a 7 p.m. ceremony Aug. 23 at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church.

Father James Shinnick performed the double-ring ceremony before a background of baskets of white gladiolus and yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Giese, Gooding, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Clifford S. Toone, Gooding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of silk organza over peau de soie in a modified empire style. The dress featured a full cathedral train and imported, Swiss halpizelle trim.

Her long veil was of madonna illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of peonies, roses, baby's breath and greenery. She also carried a handkerchief of her grandmother's.

Joyce Giese, sister of the bride, Gooding, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Nancy (Ed) Littenecker, Moscow, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Steve Chris (Steve) Barge, Spokane, Wash.; Marie LeClair, Twin Falls, cousin of the bride; Donna Sipe, Wallace; and Leanne Hazen, Gooding.

Marke Toone, Gooding, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Stan Smith, Evans, Wash.; James Becker, Gooding; Jim and Jerry Giese, Boise; and John Giese, Gooding, all brothers of the bride.

Nick Becker, Gooding, and Mike LeClair, Twin Falls, cousin of the bride, were altar boys. Lay readers were Lloyd LeClair and Frank Giese, both Twin Falls, relatives of the bride.

The couple will reside at a reception following the ceremony at the Gooding Country Club.

The bride's table was covered with white lace over blue and yellow. It was centered with a fountain holding a spire wedding cake decorated and topped with daisies.

Book Review

By LIZ CARDINALE
Twin Falls Public Library

TWIN FALLS — Bruce Catton, one of America's foremost authorities on the Civil War, has produced another informative and entertaining book in collaboration with his son, William, a Professor of History at Princeton University.

Catton's books are remarkable for their richness of detail, combined with an easy readability which have made them popular not only with the dedicated history student but also the general public. This new offering by Catton is no exception.

"Two Roads to Sumter" deals with the personal histories of Abraham Lincoln and Jefferson Davis. From their beginnings—less than 40 miles apart—to political prominence as the heads of warring forces, it traces the growth and development of each man and the events which helped form their individual beliefs.

In early years both men represented the "moderate" view politically, but as times grew more violent, they split dramatically to form the two rivals referred to in the titles. In the end they were the war leaders of their times, so far had their paths diverged.

As committed to "states rights" as Jefferson Davis was, Lincoln was even more dedicated to the preservation of the Union at all costs. Intertwined in their personal histories is the story of the turbulent decades of the 1840's and 50's one of the most emotional eras in United States History.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Talk about a situation which is incredibly unbelievable—but true—the one in my own family takes the prize.

I have a 36-year-old sister who is unmarried and pregnant. She is attractive and self-supporting, and believe it or not, she is a practicing physician!

The problem is, she refuses to marry the baby's father. She says she knows who he is but she doesn't want to get married. She could have had an abortion with no trouble at all, but she didn't want one. Have you ever heard of anything so crazy in all your life?

No friend or relative can convince her that she is wrong. We were all of her, and now she is about to disgrace the whole family.

She respects your advice, Abby. Can you help us convince this foolish, bull-headed woman that she should get married?

DEAR SIS: Knowing nothing of the "baby's father," or your sister's reasons for refusing to marry him, I can't join your team. It's her life and her decision, and as a young woman it's her prerogative to decide what is best for HER.

A person can disgrace only him- or herself. You are not your sister's keeper.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can help me with a problem in my personal life. I have so many friends that I can't ask anyone else.

I have known this young lady for about two years. Well, in the last month I have taken her out a few times, but only on a friendly basis. Now she tells me that she is in love with me.

The problem: Very recently, she introduced me to one of her friends who is also her neighbor. As soon as I met this friend, something sparked between us. I would like to ask her out. Even if she turned me down, it might cause hard feelings between her and her friend, and I would be out in the cold.

I want to avoid this. Don't tell me to forget the girl because girls like her are few and far between.

DEAR THREE: You are a free agent. You've made no commitment to your old friend, and she has no claim on you. You should ask the "law and far between girl" for a date. If she "spurns" was indeed a two-way ignition, she'll accept. You have no way to gain to lose.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow (nearly 60) who has been alone for two years. Before George died he asked me to promise him that, if anything happened to him, I would not marry a certain bachelor friend of ours. I was shocked at his request, but didn't know what to do. I said "Of course, George, I promise," never dreaming anything would happen.

I have been going with this bachelor friend for nearly a year, as we were good friends. He says he loves me and wants to marry me. I want to marry him, too, but I am haunted by that promise I made George. Please advise me.

DEAR HAUNTED: It is my feeling that since most deathbed promises are charged with emotion, they shouldn't be regarded as binding. But the decision is yours, and if you let that "promise" continue to haunt you, face it, you'll find no happiness with this man.

The duplicate game was played in the Professor's home as usual. One of his many top came when he made four notrump on the hand shown here, while everyone else had gone down one or two tricks.

"How did you do?" asked the student. "I got a good score for down one, because I grabbed the heart lead and wound up losing just four hearts and a club. Other declarers ducked the first heart, whereupon West invariably shifted to the queen of spades. Those four aces wound up losing four spades, one heart, and that king of clubs.

See if you can figure out what the Professor did. We'll give you a hint. His top score was not due to some stupidity on the part of the defense.

He received the same king of hearts lead that was made at all other tables. Then he proceeded to duck, just as

Now go back to West. What would you do? You are looking at all the cards now, but you weren't then. Filer miss, Popplewell say vows

TWIN FALLS—The Twin Falls First United Methodist Church was the setting for the marriage of Lynn Ramseyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duane Ramseyer, Filer, and Ted Popplewell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Popplewell, Bull.

The Aug. 10 double-ring ceremony was performed at 8 p.m. by Rev. Don Crogo, pastor of the Filer United Methodist Church.

Baskets of pink gladioli, white chrysanthemums, pink daisy pom-poms and baby's breath flanked the altar. A three-tiered candelabra with a cascade of ribbons and two brass, round candelabra with white candles formed the background setting.

The pews were marked with bouquets of gladioli and pink bows. The front and last pews had large candle tapers.

The bride, given away by her father, wore a ivory organza with a pinhole attached tulle train. Her dress was trimmed in venise lace and ruffles. The three-layered knee-length veil was also trimmed in venise lace.

The bride's distinguished bouquet was comprised of white daisy poms, pink Elie roses, and baby's breath.

Phyllis Ramseyer, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Kathy Storey, Spokane, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Genny Popplewell, Kris Annis, Filer; Carolyn Lawrence, Moscow, and Deb Poston, Pullach, were the candlelighters.

Her multi-tailed tulle was secured by a headpiece of satin with fabric flowers. Her gown and veil were designed and made by Mrs. Mark Simmons, stepmother of the bride.

She wore a pearl necklace and earrings, matching to her hairdressing. Mrs. Naomi Meyers, — she carried a cascading bouquet of pink baby roses and carnations. The bride chose the couple's first names for her color scheme.

Hansen tells 'check' story

By BILL LAZARUS - Times-News writer

POCATELLO — The word "corporation" was printed on 21 checks accepted by workers in George Hansen's primary campaign for Congress, Hansen said Friday.

"That was the group that happened to jump out and stare us right in the face," he said. The checks were discovered when, together with federal auditors, Hansen reviewed copies of all checks received during the campaign.

But, despite a federal law strictly restricting corporate contributions to campaigns, Hansen said most of the 21 contributions probably were legal. All the checks, totaling $1,023, for an average of $49 each, were from small family or individually owned businesses or farms, he said, adding that although labeled as corporate, many of the checks were personal. The largest was for $200, and the smallest for $10, he said.

Hansen would not make copies of the checks public. "For my benefit it might be good if I just threw them on the table for you," he said, "but I don't want to do anything that might endanger any of my friends... if they did anything wrong, I think it was in innocence."

The House Administration Committee Thursday turned the case over to the U.S. attorney general, citing "apparent violations" of several election laws. The attorney general must now decide whether to bring charges against Hansen.

Hansen said about 3,000 similar cases occurred in 1972 and "apparently the Justice Department has not decided to prosecute any of them."

In any case, the candidate said, he is innocent of any wrongdoing. "I have not knowingly accepted corporate funds and in fact have made strong provisions to prevent such happenings," he said.

Tots, mothers line up for Wendell diaper derby

Fun Day sparks smiles, boosts fund in Wendell

By LORAYNE SMITH - Times-News writer

WENDELL — Wendell residents gave their swimming pool fund a healthy boost Saturday and had a good time in the process.

The positive values of a small town were obvious during the Fun Day, with a relaxed atmosphere, perfect weather and even adequate parking space contributing to the festivities. Residents turned out for a colorful parade, barbecue and a host of other fund-raising events.

The city park provided a shady and serene setting for the barbecue and row of booths formed with tables to enclose bingo, dart throws, fishing pool and shooting gallery, all designed to earn money for the pool fund efforts.

One of the most popular events was the diaper derby. With 26 babies up to 18 months of age entered in the 14 different categories. Everyone

Andrus seeks embargo on meat, dairy imports

TWIN FALLS — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus called for a national embargo on imported meat and dairy goods at a Democratic dinner given here in honor Saturday night.

Referring to the "state of the state" to about 199 Democrats attending the event, Andrus said Idaho faces two basic economic problems: "the declining cattle and dairy industries. Not state, but federal action restricting imports is needed to help remedy the situation, he said.

But despite the difficulties in these areas, "the suns shining brightly in Idaho" in comparison to other states, he said.

"For the first time, total cash receipts for farm products marketed by the state surpassed $1 billion, in 1973, reaching $1.1 billion, he said. In March 1974, he said, Idaho led the nation in the greatest gain in personal income and at the end of 1973 it ranked third in this area.

During the past three and one-half years, Idaho has managed to reduce its welfare rolls while still giving help to those in need.

The governor maintained "there are fewer people on the welfare rolls per capita than in any other state in the Union," he said.

As of the end of June, the state had no debt. Through a cash surplus it has been able to grant a reduction in property taxes. "Only one other state has come close to making that statement," Andrus said at the same time. Andrus asserted, support for public education has risen 32 percent.

Even so, the governor called for increased support for public education and specifically mentioned the need to establish public kindergartens. He said Idaho is one of only four states which still do not give public support for kindergartens.

With the state in unusually good shape economically, Andrus said the nature of the coming campaign will have to be developed by the Republicans. "I don't know what the issues are going to be. They're going to be up to the opposition," he said.

Andrus praised both the state and local states of Democratic candidates. "We've got a great ticket from top to bottom," he said.

Introducing Andrus, Twin Falls Democratic Party Chairman Stephen Carter cited a recent Time Magazine article referring to the governor as one of America's 200 most likely future leaders. He said that "in actuality Andrus is one of the county's current top 10 leaders."

Twin Falls County Commissioner William Wiseman introduced state and local Democratic candidates attending the social event at the Holiday Inn.

Awards fete closes fair

JEROME — The annual 4-H awards assembly here Friday night marked the closing of four days of activities in the Jerome County Fair and Rodeo.

Members of 4-H clubs from Eden, Hazelton and Jernegan, were awarded trophies, jett huckles and halters for having submitted top projects in various 4-H categories at the fair.

Debbie Shewmaker, Jerome, who received a rosette for champion steer and reserve champion heifer during the fitting and showing exhibition Thursday, was presented trophies Friday night for third fitting and showing in top quality dairy. Her best breeding animal overall quality and the Kraft Foods award for dairy first year.

The top judge award went to Howard Cox, with 4 in Holfield placing second. The round robin grand champion fitting, and showing was presented to Nancy Priest, who also received trophies for third year fitting and showing dairy and top quality dairy.

A special presentation was given to Bill Priest, Jerome County Extension Agent, who retired this year. Priest received a plaque from Karla Hollifield and Theresa McLean on behalf of all the 4-H clubs.

Priest was given a standing ovation during the ceremony. In the home economic and miscellaneous awards, Nancy Last was among the top award winners, taking home the top for top senior division project, second year junior leadership, top senior clothing project, and second runner up in the top senior judging division.

The best home economics project went to the Gen. Generation 4-H Club, Jerome. Top junior division project was awarded to Michael Sirecek. Top senior division project went to Karla Hollifield.

"We want to be consulted more than we have," he said. "If the state puts a road up the valley it should fit into the comprehensive plan."

He said cooperation and communication are needed before any projects are undertaken, which was not the case with the forest service project.

Bogus money found in Cassia

BURLEY — Over $2,000 in counterfeit bills were passed in Burley Thursday, according to the Burley Police Department.

Det. Capt. Pete Rodriguez said the bills were passed to downtown merchants and in the Skaggs-Albertson shopping complex in a one-hour period Thursday.

Burley police were alerted by one of the merchants.

Rodriguez said the bills were in $20 and $100 denominations. He said all the bills had the same serial number, "E88888888," and the bills were authentic looking, Rodriguez said. However, the $100 bills are yellow looking and have a poor texture.

Rodriguez said the counterfeit bills were printed on paper thicker than genuine treasury department material and are not as crisp. The red and blue fibers which appear in real bills are missing and the federal reserve stamp is not clear on the phony bills.

Rodriguez said police suspect that some of the bills were passed earlier in Rupert.

Blaine plan draws ire, praise

By BART QUENSELL - Times-News writer

HAILEY — The second public hearing on the Blaine County comprehensive plan drew criticism and praise here Thursday night.

John Swank, Ketchum property owner, said "I'm opposed to any government control over private land."

Edward Scott, who owns property adjoining Swank, said "It's become somewhat of a myth that you can do what you want to do on your own property."

"The right to do what you want to do simply doesn't make sense anymore," Scott said. "I don't like being told what to do, but if it's a good goal and is for the betterment of all the people I think it is better to accept it than to buck it."

Hawley Dawson, who has filed suit against the planning and zoning commission and the county commissioners, said the plan will "cause undue hardship" because it does not provide a zoning change for property north of Hailey.

The commission has voted against allowing Dawson to locate a General Motors plant north of Hailey.

Basic proposals of the new plan include preservation of prime agricultural areas, establishing a design population about 20,000 permanent residents, by 1990, restricting commercial development to cities and development of a comprehensive road plan for the county.

In addition, the plan proposes a technical review board to determine whether subdivisions meet standards in the plan.

The board of experts would meet two weeks each year to review new subdivision proposals.

John Chapman, chairman of the Ada-County Planning and Zoning Commission, said a comprehensive plan "would stand up in court if it was a reasonable, prudent plan."

He said the plan was legally enforceable after it went through the legal steps of public hearings and confirmation by the county commissioners.

Swank said the plan was moving toward an unchangeable policy and plan.

Chairman Nick Purdy denied that, saying the plan would be changed as soon as it is adopted.

Forgers few in Idaho

BOISE — Only 19 of the 5,465 persons arrested during fiscal 1974 for bond and check forgery in the United States were apprehended in Idaho.

Statistics released by the United States Secret Service show that the Boise-resident agency, under the Salt Lake City field office, investigated and closed 59 forged check and bond cases resulting in 30 arrests in Idaho.

No major counterfeiters were operating in the state during the past fiscal year, according to the Secret Service report.

During the year, the Secret Service received 1,164 forged checks and 13,164 forged bonds from around the nation for investigation — a 9 per cent increase in checks and 5 per cent decrease in bonds.

At the end of the fiscal year about 600,000 stolen bonds, representing a face value of some $42 million, were recorded with the National Crime Information Center.

Arrests of 5,465 persons were made for bond and check forgery. Many of those arrested for bond forgery had connections with known organized crime figures, the report said.

Nationwide, according to the report, the counterfeit note passer was 20 per cent less successful during the past fiscal year.

In the last fiscal year, counterfeiters produced $21.4 million compared to $25.3 million the previous year.

Public losses were $2.1 billion as the Secret Service seized $19 million in counterfeit currency. The report said 56 counterfeit plant operations were successfully suppressed by the service during the fiscal year.

Ruth Brown, past president, said the gift comes from the club's real estate committee. Funds accumulated a number of years ago toward purchase of a building provide about $750 interest each year which the club uses to help worthy community programs and endeavors.

Mrs. Brown said the remainder of the gift this year went to the Y.M.C.A. swimming pool fund.

Salmon girls involved in bomb threat

SALMON — Two Salmon 12-year-old girls got caught up in the drama of a bombing and bomb threat at Los Angeles International Airport last week.

Susan Neyman and Karen Artmann had been visiting in nearby Buena Park and were arriving at the airport to fly home when they found that a bomb had gone off in the Pan American terminal.

Officers were patrolling everywhere and we could see people milling around the damaged front of the building," they recalled.

"The police directed us to the Western Air Lines terminal and just as we were about to board an alarm went off inside the building and we were told to back away from the plane."

only a call from Los Angeles letting him know the girls were safe and would be arriving a day later.

Both youngsters had been visiting with Miss Neyman's brother in Buena Park.

Harold Neyman, who is city clerk, commented afterwards that the parents appeared to be more shaken by the experience than the two girls.

"We didn't know what was going on. They got us out of the area through an underground tunnel. No one was pushing, everyone was orderly as they left."

Miss Neyman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Neyman, and Miss Artmann, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Len Artmann, left the terminal and stayed over another night, catching a plane Aug. 7 for Idaho Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Neyman had driven to Los Angeles Aug. 6 and heard of the bombing on their car radio on their way down.

"I kept thinking all the way down that with so many people we couldn't be that unlucky to have Susan and Karen involved," Neyman said.

Neyman said he had another sinking feeling when he was paged at the airport but it was

Circus coming to TF Aug. 28

TWIN FALLS — An old-time circus is coming to Twin Falls for two shows under the big top Wednesday.

The Big John Strong 1869 Circus features international acts in its show, which will be presented at 6 and 8 p.m. at the Blue Lakes Shopping Center.

The circus is sponsored by the Twin Falls TORCH — Teens for Retarded children — chapter. Proceeds will be used year-round for camping programs and the Special Olympics.

The circus, out of California, is an "actual recreation of a circus that traveled the Midwest over 100 years ago."

Headlining the show is the Wendany family from Hannover, West Germany, a famous circus family which has been entertaining audiences around the world for generations.

The Canestrelli Troupe, a family of eight from Milan, Italy, provides three center-ring acts. Parents, Pietro and Joyce Canestrelli, perform a high wire act and the Canestrelli kids do tumbling and wire acts.

Also featured in the show are a juggling act, circus ponies, trained animals and "Italy Neema" the elephant.

And of course, there are the clowns — Live Wire, Meatball and Eddy Spaghetti.

In a special side show, "Flamo" demonstrates the dying art of fire eating. One of the last of the great fire eaters, Flamo shoots a streak of fire from his mouth over 30 feet long.

Tickets are available at the door.

Multi-media show slated

TWIN FALLS — A multi-media show combining art with music will be presented Sept. 13 at 8 p.m. in the Fine Arts Auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho.

"Synesthesia," will be presented by California photographic artists Anne and Chuck Roberts, who combine music, photographic images and poetry to create a total artistic environment.

The Roberts use their original photographs to interpret music visually in a continually changing pattern of projections, creating a living painting in time.

They use a four-projector fading unit, called a Chromachord, designed by Chuck to model music and "thematically harmonious poetry" in "four dimensions of sight and sound into a synergistic art creation."

"Take a look at nature," the Roberts say. "Allow your senses to incorporate the lines, forms, patterns and colors. Let the rhythm of zodiac move inside you, as you feel you're part of a living universe. Now bring the wonder of complementary and visual perception into the realm of intuitive understanding."

KATHY SMITH
...only Idahoan

Buhl woman in elite group

BUHL — A 19-year-old Buhl woman is the only Idaho member of the elite Women's Army Corps Band.

Kathy Smith, daughter of Major and Mrs. Ormand T. Smith, has been a band member for almost a year. The 40-member band is the only women's band in the Army.

Kathy, who plays baritone, said it was tough to gain admittance to the band. "I auditioned three or four times, and finally they said they'd let me in if I worked really hard," she explained.

"I worked really hard," the Auburn-haired Buhl High School graduate added.

After joining the Women's Army Corps about a year ago, Kathy has traveled with the band to Delaware, Memphis, and other places across the country. From the band's home base at Fort McClellan, Ala., her job in the army is to travel with the band and perform concerts, play at WAC graduations and practice, practice, practice.

The Women's Army Corps is "quite an experience," says Kathy. "It's really great. I'm doing what I want and getting paid for it."

With two more years to go as a WAC, Kathy isn't sure what she wants to do next, but she doesn't rule out reenlistment. "I'll be something to do with music," though, she's sure of that.

Any high school graduate between 18 and 24 years old can pass physical and mental tests — all right for the Women's Army Corps. For more information, call Jim Hughes at 733-2671.

House panel publishes conclusions on Nixon impeachment articles

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The text of the conclusions for each of the three articles of impeachment as contained in the House Judiciary Committee's final report accepted Thursday.

Article One: After the Committee on the Judiciary had decided whether or not it should recommend Article One to the House of Representatives, 27 of the 34 members of the committee found that the evidence before it could only lead to one conclusion that Richard M. Nixon, using the powers of his high office, engaged personally and through his subordinates and agents in a course of conduct or plan designed to delay, impede and obstruct the investigation of the unlawful entry on June 17, 1972, into the Democratic National Committee headquarters in Washington, D.C., and to conceal the evidence and suppress other factual covert activities.

This finding is the only one that can explain the President's involvement in a pattern of wasteful activity that occurred after the break-in at which cannot otherwise be rationally explained.

The President's decision on June 23, 1972, not to meet with his attorneys, his chief of staff, his counsel, his campaign director, and his assistant, John Ehrlichman, when he had put in charge of the investigation, was the subject of their meeting was:

1. Watergate matter.
2. The essence of that portion of the recording of the President's conversation with his aides on June 20, 1972, which dealt with Watergate.
3. When the President stated that the tapes had been under his review and personal supervision on June 17, 1972, the President's public denial on June 22, 1972, of the involvement of members of the Committee for the Re-election of the President and the White House staff in the Watergate burglary, or spirit of having discussed Watergate, on or before June 22, 1972, with Haldeman, Colson, and Mitchell, all persons aware of that involvement.
4. The President's directive to Haldeman on June 23, 1972, of CIA request the FBI to curtail its Watergate investigation.
5. The President's refusal on July 6, 1972, to inquire and inform himself what Patrick Gray, acting director of the FBI, had reported by his agents that some of the President's aides were "trying to mortally wound him."
6. The President's discussion with Ehrlichman on July 11, 1972, of clemency for the Watergate burglars, more than two months before the return of any indictments.
7. The President's public statement on Aug. 20, 1972, a statement later shown to be untrue, that an investigator by John Dean indicates that none of the White House staff are presently employed.

involved in this very bizarre incident.
8. The President's statement to Dean on Sept. 15, 1972, the day that the Watergate indictments were returned without naming high CRP and White House officials, that Dean had handled his work skillfully, "putting your fingers in the dike every time that leaks have sprung here and spring there, and that I just try to patch it up as well as you can and hope for the best."
9. The President's discussion with Colson in January, 1973, of clemency for Haldeman, Mitchell and Magruder.
10. The President's discussion with Dean on Feb. 28, 1973, of Kalmbach's upcoming testimony before the Senate Select Committee, in which he had stated that it would be hard for Kalmbach purpose of the payments to the Watergate defendants.

16. The President's refusal to give Haldeman on April 25 and 26, 1973, access to tape recordings of presidential conversations after Assistant Attorney General Petersen had repeatedly warned the President that Haldeman was a suspect in the Watergate investigation.
17. The President's March 21st statement to Dean that he had "handled it just right" and "contained it," and the deletion of the above comments from the edited White House transcripts.
18. The President's instruction to Dean on March 21, 1973, to state falsely that payments to the Watergate defendants had been made through a Cuban committee.
19. The President's refusal to turn over articles of the Department of Justice that on March 21, 1973, Dean had confessed to obstruction of justice and said that Haldeman, Ehrlichman, and Mitchell were also involved in that crime.

20. The President's approval on March 22, 1973, of a shift in his position on executive pardons to "cover-up plan" and the "discrepancy" in that phrase, in the edited White House transcript.
21. The President's instruction to press secretary Ronald Ziegler on March 26, 1973, to state publicly that the President had "absolute and total confidence" in Dean.
22. The President's action in April, 1973, in conveying to Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Colson, and Kalmbach the information furnished to the President by Assistant Attorney General Henry F. Petersen after the President had assured Petersen that he would not do so.
23. The President's discussions, in April, 1973, of the manner in which witnesses should state false and misleading statements.
24. The President's directions, in April, 1973, with respect to offering assurances of clemency to Mitchell, Magruder and Dean.

The attempts by Ehrlichman and Dean to interfere with the FBI investigation.
4. The perjury of Magruder, Porter, Mitchell, Krogh, Strachan, Haldeman and Ehrlichman.
Finally there was before the committee a record of public statements by the President between June 22, 1972, and June 9, 1974, deliberately excluded to deceive the public, the Department of Justice, the Congress and the American people.
President Nixon's course of conduct following the Watergate break-in, as described in Article One, caused action not only by his subordinates, but by the agencies of the United States Government, including the Department of Justice, the FBI, and the CIA. It required perjury, destruction of evidence, obstruction of justice, all crimes that, in addition, required deliberate, contrived and continuing deception of the American people.
President Nixon's actions resulted in manifest injury to the public interest and great prejudice to the cause of law and justice, and was subversive of constitutional government. His actions were contrary to his trust as President and unmindful of the solemn duties of his high office. It was this serious violation of Richard M. Nixon's constitutional obligations as President, and not the fact that violations of federal criminal statutes occurred, that lies at the heart of Article One.
The committee finds, based upon clear and convincing evidence—that this conduct, detailed in the foregoing pages of this report, constitutes "high crimes and misdemeanors" as that term is used in Article II, Section 4 of the Constitution. Therefore, the committee recommends that the House of Representatives exercise its constitutional power to impeach Richard M. Nixon.

On Aug. 3, 1974, nine days after the committee had voted on "Article One" President Nixon released to the public and submitted to the Committee on the Judiciary three additional edited White House transcripts of presidential conversations that took place on June 23, 1972, six days following the DNC break-in. Judge Sirhan had, that day released to the special prosecutor transcripts of those conversations pursuant to the mandate of the United States Supreme Court. The committee had subpoenaed the tape recordings of those conversations but the President had refused to honor the subpoena.

These transcripts concisely confirm the finding that the committee had already made, on the basis of clear and convincing evidence, that from shortly after the

21. The President's appointment in March, 1973, of Job Stuart Magruder to a high government position when Magruder had previously been convicted before the Watergate grand jury in order to conceal CRP involvement.

12. The President's instruction in response to Haldeman's report of March 13, 1973, to Haldeman, Mitchell, and Magruder, known as "Liddy's operation at CRP," that Sloan has a compulsion to "cleanse his soul by confessing," that Sloan and Kalmbach were trying to get "things settled," and that Strachan had lied about his prior knowledge of Watergate or personal loyalty, and the President's reply to Dean that Strachan was the problem "in Bob's case."

13. The President's discussion on March 13, 1973, of plan to limit Haldeman, Mitchell and Magruder's Watergate investigations by making Colson's White House consultant without doing any consulting "in order to bring him under the doctrine of executive privilege."
14. The omission of the discussion related to Watergate from the edited White House transcript, submitted to the Committee on the Judiciary of the President's March 13, 1973, conversation with Dean, especially in light of the fact that the President had instructed the conversation on June 4, 1973.

25. The President's lack of approval to the Committee on the Judiciary of the public statements to Assistant Attorney General Henry F. Petersen between April 15 and April 27, 1973, when Petersen reported directly to an investigator about the Watergate investigation.
26. The President's instruction to Ehrlichman on April 17, 1973, to give Haldeman, Mitchell, and Kalmbach's knowledge of the in addition to this evidence there was before the committee the following evidence:

1. Beginning immediately after June 17, 1972, the involvement of each of the President's top aides, and political associates, in the Watergate cover-up.
2. The clandestine payment by Kalmbach and Liddy of more than $400,000 to the Watergate defendants.

House panel publishes conclusions on 3 Nixon impeachment articles

Richard M. Nixon, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, made it his plan to and did direct his subordinates to engage in a course of conduct designed to delay, impede and obstruct investigation of the unlawful entry of the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee to cover up conceal and protect those responsible; and to conceal the existence and scope of other unlawful covert activities.

fundamental principle of the rule of law in our system of government. This abuse of the powers of the President was carried out by Richard M. Nixon.

impunity. All the officers of the government, from the highest to the lowest, are creatures of the law, and are bound to obey it.

Our Constitution provides for a responsible chief executive, accountable for his acts. The framers hoped, in the words of Ebenezer Gerry, that "the maximum should be adopted here that the chief magistrate could do no wrong." They provided for a single executive because, as Alexander Hamilton wrote, "the executive power is more easily confined when it is one" and "there should be a single object for the watchfulness of the people."

interfering in the performance of the highest public office in the land in an air of secrecy and concealment. The abuse of a President's powers poses a serious threat to the lawful and proper functioning of the government, and the people's confidence in it. For just such presidential misconduct the impeachment power was included in the Constitution. The impeachment provision, wrote Justice Joseph Story in 1820, "holds out a deep and immediate responsibility, as a check upon arbitrary power, and compels the chief magistrate, as well as the majesty of the law." And Chancellor James Kent wrote in 1826:

are accountable to the law and the Constitution, we would have failed in our responsibility as representatives of the people, elected under the Constitution. If we had not been prepared to apply the principle of presidential accountability embodied in the impeachment clause of the Constitution, but had instead condoned the conduct of Richard M. Nixon, then another President, perhaps with a different political philosophy, might have used this illegitimate power for further encroachments on the rights of citizens and further usurpations of the power of other branches of our government. By adopting this article the Committee seeks to prevent the recurrence of such abuse of Presidential power.

put to trial in the Senate. In recommending Article 2 to the House, the Committee finds clear and convincing evidence that Richard M. Nixon has not faithfully executed the executive trust, but has repeatedly used his authority as President to violate the Constitution and the law of the land. In so doing, he violated the obligation that every citizen has to live under the law, but he did more, for it is the duty of the President not merely to live by the law but to see the law faithfully applied. Richard M. Nixon repeatedly and willfully failed to perform that duty. He has failed to perform it by authorizing and directing actions that violated the rights of citizens and that interfered with the functioning of executive agencies. And, he failed to perform it by condoning and ratifying, rather than acting to stop, actions by his subordinates.

Article 2: In recommending Article 2 to the House, the Committee finds clear and convincing evidence that Richard M. Nixon, contrary to his trust as President and unfaithful of the solemn duties of his high office, has repeatedly used his powers as President to violate the Constitution and the law of the land.

In so doing, he has failed in the obligation that every citizen has to live under the law. But he has done more, for it is the duty of the President not merely to live by the law but to see that law faithfully applied. Richard M. Nixon repeatedly and willfully failed to perform that duty. He has failed to perform it by authorizing and directing actions that violated or disregarded the rights of citizens and that corrupted and attempted to corrupt the lawful functioning of executive agencies. He has failed to perform it by condoning and ratifying, rather than acting to stop, actions by his subordinates that interfered with lawful investigations and impeded the enforcement of the laws. Article II, section 3 of the Constitution requires that the President "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed." Justice Felix Frankfurter described this provision as "the embracing function of the President."

Nixon, acting personally and through his subordinates for his own advantage, not for any legitimate governmental purpose and without due consideration for the national good.

"It is the only supreme power in our system of government, and every man who by accepting office participates in its functions is only the more strongly bound to submit to that supremacy, and to observe the limitations upon the exercise of its authority when it gives."

The president, said James Wilson, one of the principal authors of the Constitution, "is the dignified, but accountable magistrate of a free and great people." Wilson said, "The executive power is better to be trusted when it has no screen."

neither the sense of duty, the force of public opinion, nor the transitory nature of the seat are sufficient to secure a faithful exercise of the executive trust, but the President will use the authority of his station to violate the Constitution or the law of the land, the House of Representatives can arrest him in his career, by resorting to the power of impeachment."

The Committee has concluded that, to perform its constitutional duty, it must approve this article of impeachment as a recommendation to the House. It was unwilling to carry out the principle that all those who govern, including ourselves, are accountable to the law and the Constitution, we would have failed in our responsibility as representatives of the people, elected under the Constitution. If we had not been prepared to apply the principle of presidential accountability embodied in the impeachment clause of the Constitution, but had instead condoned the conduct of Richard M. Nixon, then another President, perhaps with a different political philosophy, might have used this illegitimate power for further encroachments on the rights of citizens and further usurpations of the power of other branches of our government. By adopting this article the Committee seeks to prevent the recurrence of such abuse of Presidential power.

The Committee finds that, in the performance of his duties as President, Richard M. Nixon, on many occasions has acted to the detriment of justice, right, and the public good, in violation of his constitutional duty to see to the faithful execution of the laws. This conduct has demonstrated a contempt for the rule of law; it has posed a threat to our democratic Republic. The Committee finds that this conduct constitutes "high crimes and misdemeanors" within the meaning of the Constitution, that it warrants his impeachment by the House, and that it requires that he be disregarded the rights of citizens and that corrupted and attempted to corrupt the lawful functioning of executive agencies. He has failed to perform it by condoning and ratifying, rather than acting to stop, actions by his subordinates that interfered with lawful investigations and impeded the enforcement of the laws. Article II, section 3 of the Constitution requires that the President "shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed." Justice Felix Frankfurter described this provision as "the embracing function of the President."

The rule of law needs no defense by the committee. Revere for the laws, said Abraham Lincoln, "should become the political religion of the nation." Said Theodore Roosevelt, "No man is above the law and no man is below it; but if we seek any man's permission when we require him to obey it."

Our nation owes its strength, its stability, and its endurance to this principle. In asserting the supremacy of the rule of law among the principles of our government, the committee is enunciating a new standard of presidential conduct. The possibility that Presidents have violated this standard in the past does not diminish its current, and future, applicability. Repeated abuse of power by one who holds the highest public office requires prompt and decisive remedial action, or it is in the nature of a crime of power that if they go unchecked, they will become overbearing, depriving the people of the strength of will or the wherewithal to we have a responsibility in the position of President, we cannot roll upon any other person the weight of his criminality." As both Wilson and Hamilton pointed out, the President should not be able to hide behind his counselors; he must ultimately be accountable for their acts on his behalf. James Todd of North Carolina, a leading proponent of the proposed Constitution and later a Supreme Court Justice, said that the President "is of a very different nature from a monarch. He is to be personally responsible for any abuse of the great trust reposed in him."

The Committee has concluded that, to perform its constitutional duty, it must approve this article of impeachment as a recommendation to the House. It was unwilling to carry out the principle that all those who govern, including ourselves, are accountable to the law and the Constitution, we would have failed in our responsibility as representatives of the people, elected under the Constitution. It is a basic principle of our government that "we submit ourselves to the same rules that we require others to obey it."

SCOUT EXECUTIVE Daryl Glead and Elvis Cain, president of the Snake River Area Council, display $20,000 check received Friday from the Kresge Foundation. The funds will be used for a new multi-use building at Camp Bradley, including dining and kitchen facilities and a caretaker's facilities.

Scout council receives check for camp facility

TWIN FALLS — A $20,000 grant has been given the Snake River Area Council, Boy Scouts of America by the Kresge Foundation, Troy, Mich. This grant is for a new dining hall program building for Camp Bradley, the council's summer camp at Cape Horn near Stanley, Elvis Cain, president of the council, said. "We are honored to be the beneficiary of this grant from the Kresge Foundation. It is outstanding evidence of the concern for youth and faith in the future of this country by this great foundation."

The Kresge Foundation, one of the largest in the United States in size of assets and appropriations, was created through the gifts of the late Sebastian S. Kresge, Kresge, founder of the S. S. Kresge Co., filed on a grand scale. At his death, his personal estate, amounting to one-tenth of the book value of stock he had given to the foundation during his lifetime. The S. S. Kresge Co. and K-mart Store and Kresge Foundation are not related in any way except that both had the same founder.

Cain reported that final working plans for the building have been completed by Twin Falls architect Harold Gerber, with site work underway at this time. Plans for the building call for a seating capacity of 200 people, kitchen facilities, and caretaker's apartment. Part of the building will be heated so as to make it available for use year-round by scouting groups. With the advent of snow machines the heated building gives the council a new dimension in winter camping making Camp Bradley a 12 month facility instead of just a summer camp, he said.

Cain announced that a special committee has been working for over two years in preparing plans for the new dining hall and securing food and donations for its construction. Chairman of the committee is Dr. Fred Heistand, Sun Valley. The committee includes Coby Parrish, Ross Bevan, Ed Fournier, Harold Gerber and E. J. Morgan, Twin Falls.

Spacecraft given boost by thruster

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — NASA scientists gave the unmanned Pioneer 11 spacecraft a boost in its spin rate Friday to improve its performance when it flies by the planet Jupiter Dec. 3.

A thruster used for the first time since the craft's launch in April, 1973, was touched off several times over an eight-hour period to decrease the line Pioneer takes to turn with its instruments in a full circle from 12.32 seconds to 11.865 seconds.

The slightly faster speed will permit a better measurement of the planet's destructive radiation belt, said NASA officials at the Ames Research Center, which is controlling the Jovian flight.

Of the 97,000 to 125,000 forest fires in the United States each year, only about 10,000 result from lightning strikes.

New murder indictment against ex-aide seen

PETERSBURG, Va. (UPI) — A second murder indictment against a former nurse's aide may be sought and as many as 10 more bodies, exhumed in an investigation of suspicious deaths in a hospital coronary care unit, authorities indicated Saturday.

Peter H. J. Thompson, Wyatt's attorney, said autopsies have already shown that five patients in the Petersburg General Hospital coronary unit died from overdoses of lidocaine, a drug that should be used under carefully controlled conditions in emergency treatment of some serious heart ailments.

Thomas Hargrave worked the 11 p.m.-7 a.m. shift at the hospital. Officials said both Miss Thomas and Wyatt died during those hours.

At least 10 other coronary unit patients died between June 13 and June 30, which hospital officials said was nearly double the normal death rate for a full month.

Lidocaine is kept on a cart in the coronary unit, along with other drugs for emergency use. But Wyatt, referring to the deaths of Wray and Miss Thomas, said, "The information I had was that it was not prescribed. My understanding is that the only way to get it in is the injection."

President acknowledged that he is obligated to supply the relevant evidence necessary for Congress to exercise its Constitutional responsibility in an impeachment proceeding. If this were to occur, the impeachment power would be drained of its vitality. Article I, therefore, seeks to preserve the integrity of the impeachment process itself and the ability of Congress to act as the ultimate safeguard against improper presidential conduct.

Wyatt said lidocaine was found in the bodies of Josephine Thomas, 72, who died June 30, and Thomas W. Wray, 85, who died June 29. He has said he will exhumate as many more bodies as necessary for his investigation.

Wyatt ordered Wray's body exhumed Aug. 15, the day after Lee Roy Hargrave Jr., 21, was charged with murdering Miss

Miller fires 65 to take two-stroke tourney lead

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Johnny Miller, playing a nearly perfect round, shot a seven under par 65 Saturday and grabbed a two-stroke lead after the third round of the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic.

Miller, the leading money winner on the PGA tour, missed just one fairway and hit every green in regulation as he moved into position to win his sixth tournament of the year.

With previous rounds of 69 and 68, the 1973 U.S. Open champion had a 54-hole total of 222. Under par on the short Westchester Country Club course.

Dale Douglass and Don Bie. "I'm looking forward to tomorrow," said Miller, who capped a brilliant four-month surge in April by winning the Tournament of Champions and has been on a self-imposed exile from the four most of the summer, playing only the U.S. and British Opens and PGA championship over the last 10 weeks.

"Some people are saying I'm in a slump but the only thing is that I haven't been playing," said Miller, who could add $30,000 to his earnings of $205,367 with a victory here.

Miller's round included seven birdies, but none of them were on putts longer than 15 feet.

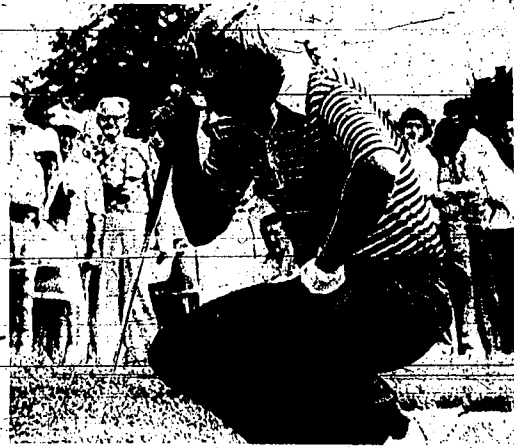

"I didn't hit any fantastic shots, but it was just 10 holes of good shots," Miller said.

There was a two-way tie at 100-under-par 206 between Larry Ziegler, whose 72 included two double bogeys, and Nicklaus had six birdies and two bogeys in his 61.

penalized two strokes for an improper drop on the 12th hole, and non-winning four veteran Jerry McCre, who had a 70 Saturday.

Ken Sill, Australian David Graham and Miller Barber all were at 207.

Weskopf, who won the British and Canadian Opens and three other tournaments last summer when he had a spurt like Miller had this spring, had an unspectacular round in which he made four birdies and no bogeys.

Houston's Roberts stops Phillies 1-0 on one hit

HOUSTON (UPI)—Dave Roberts allowed only one hit—a sixth inning single by Bob Boone—and Roger Metzger's infield single in the eighth inning produced the only run Saturday night as the Houston Astros seized their second straight 4-1 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies.

Roberts faced only 20 batters to record his ninth win against 10 defeats in outdugging Steve Carlton.

Harry Milbourne playing for injured second baseman Tommy Helms, led off of the Houston eighth with a single and after Carlton struck out the next two batters, Milbourne stole second. Metzger then poked on a 2-1 pitch and bunched it into centerfield, just out of the reach of second baseman Dave Coleman.

"The Phillies only threat came in the sixth after Boone led off with a single and reached second on a sacrifice bunt by Carlton. But Helms got the next two batters out in fielding plays by third baseman Doug Rader and shortstop Metzger.

Carlton, 34, gave up only 14 hits before the eighth and was relieved for a pinch-hitter in the ninth inning.

"The game took only one hour and 28 minutes and was the shortest game ever played at the Astrohome.

COMING UP ON MARK. Courageous holds the lead on hot-pursing Intrepid during their series of races to select a defender for the America's Cup next month. Race was later abandoned when the fog rolled in. (UPI telephoto).

Fog cuts yacht trials short

NEW YORK (UPI)—Fog forced abandonment of both the foreign and domestic trials in America's cup yacht racing Saturday after both races had been started in good weather.

Southern Cross of Australia and France ran into heavy fog just after the first mark, with the Aussie boat leading by 1:14 after approximately 4.5 miles of sailing. Courageous and Intrepid of the U.S. were able to sail three legs of the six-leg race, with Courageous leading by 20 seconds at the halfway mark, when they too ran into a fog bank.

An official of the Royal Thames race committee, which is in charge of the Australian French race, said visibility was less than 100 yards and "we couldn't even tell if France had made it around the second mark."

Abandonment of Saturday's racing left standings at 2-0 for Southern Cross in their best of seven series and they were expected to race again Sunday weather permitting.

In the American race-off, Courageous leads 3-1 in their series, which could continue until Sept. 1.

The final series between the American challenger and the winner of the Southern Cross-France duel starts Sept. 10.

The Australians disagreed with the French contention that France was leading when the race was stopped, but admitted they were at least even.

"We were about even at the second mark, with France about 200 yards to port of us," said Aussie navigator Ron Packer.

"We would disagree with the report that we did not pass the second mark," said Elan Bond, head of the Australian syndicate.

VACUUM FREQUENTLY—How frequently will depend upon the traffic in the room, the cleanliness of the air where you live. Generally, a carpet should be thoroughly vacuumed at least once a week, using a long-stroke stroke to remove lint, dirt, loose soil. Vacuum heavy traffic areas daily.

Cautions: Do NOT use a vacuum cleaner brush having a serrated toothed metal comb on loop pile carpets. This type of comb is suitable only on cut pile carpet.

Good soil resistance—even in light colors—is characteristic of carpets made with Nylon, Polyester or Polypropylene fibers.

2. REMOVE SPOTS IMMEDIATELY—Go into action as soon as something is spilled. In many cases, cold water and a sponging will remove stains. If a spot or spill dries, it becomes "set" and is difficult to remove.

3. CLEAN BEFORE TOO SOILED—Regular use of a good vacuum cleaner will remove surface dirt and soil that lodges between tufts. Eventually, however, a more thorough cleaning will become necessary. The professional cleaner is best equipped to remove soil that home cleaning methods do not readily reach. This should be done at least once each year, depending on sulfate and traffic.

McKay likes stiffer penalty than no-TV suspension for recruitment violations

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Not even the past president of the American Football Coaches Association can escape the indignities of cheating. But John McKay, who has gotten the accusations face-to-face from some of his fellow coaches, feels safe.

"I read that rule book like a Bible in the girls' white-haired University of Southern California football coach said. 'Every night before I go to bed I read another chapter.'"

McKay took over for Alabama's Bear Bryant last year as the head of the association and was also a member of the rules committee.

Some of his rival coaches still find it hard to believe 51-year-old McKay has taken a recruit seven Trojan teams to the Rose Bowl—six in the last eight years—and won three national championships without violating any recruiting rules.

McKay has come to expect to win the championship. "We thought this was logical. We thought the educators would like it on the basis they keep saying, 'You shouldn't be cheating' and some guys say, 'I don't give a damn. I can win the national championship. That's my record. What do I care what everybody else says?'"

One of the first victims of the new policy could be Oklahoma, which made a bid for the national title last year while in the second-year of a three-year NCAA probation for recruiting infractions.

"They're not going to be national champions in the UPI poll," McKay declared, referring to the 1974 rankings. "Oklahoma didn't do any more than a lot of other schools who've been caught but there had to be some place to start."

The Soxners finished No. 2 in the 1973 UPI Coaches' poll behind Alabama. Another wire service poll conducted among sports writers will not be affected by the new policy in determining the national title.

"I really believe there might be a deterrent to coaches now in the fact they know this could happen to them," McKay said. "Who should you be able to recruit seven or eight football players illegally and then say, 'Well, okay, we did it wrong but

They believe how could you get Gary Jeter to come from Ohio to here," said McKay, who is also USC's

30-1 shot wins American derby

CHICAGO (UPI) — Determined King, a 30-1 outsider, made up five lengths in the final sixteenth of a mile Saturday to win the $12,000 American Derby for 3-year-olds at Arlington Park, upsetting favored Holding Pattern.

Determined King, ridden by Don Montoya with 112 pounds, never was a factor in the 1.1-mile chase on the turf until the long stretch run. Then Montoya turned him loose and he came out of nowhere to beat E. B. Wright's Orders by half a length for the $2,000 first prize.

Determined King was clocked at 1:47.45 for the distance, only 25-100ths slower than the track record. It was Determined King's second win in 13 starts this year.

Holding Pattern, assigned for weight of 125 pounds, gave away 13 pounds to the winner. Although he came out of the inside post position, he never was a factor in the race. Holding Pattern finished 12th in the 13-horse field.

Holding Pattern lost for the third time in as many starts on the turf course. In his last two starts, he had won both the Travers and the Monmouth Invitational, beating the Preakness and Belmont winner, Little Current, in each of them.

The top prize, hosted by Determined King's 3-year-old earnings of $110,240 for owner Herbert Allen, until Saturday he had failed to win a fine straight race, but had been in the money in three of his last four starts.

Determined King paid $62.00, $21.40 and $10.60 to his backers in the crowd of 27,150. Orders off at $2.00 paid $7 and $3.00. Sr. Diplomat, finishing third, returned $7.

Sr. Diplomat was one of two field horses and had $10,000 without a steward's license to hold the show position over the other field horse, A Good Turn.

ISU coach pleased

POCAHELLO (UPI) — Slender all-Big Sky Conference receiver Tom Holmann shot up to 195, a gain of 20 pounds with no drop in speed.

In time trials Grump said defensive back Jerry McIntyre posted the fastest time for 40 yards—4.5 seconds.

Several players had big weight drops paced by center Jim Giure's loss of 40 pounds.

Steelers top NY on 10 last-half points

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Roy Gerela kicked a 20-yard field goal in the third period and rookie Bruce Henley set up a 13-yard touchdown pass for quarterback Pittsburgh interception Saturday night, giving the Steelers a 17-7 victory over the New York Giants.

In a game in which every score resulted from turnovers, the Steelers improved their National Football League exhibition record to 4-0, again behind the guidance of substitute-quarterback Joe Gilliam, who completed 18 of 31 passes for 227 yards.

Gilliam threw a 15-yard touchdown pass to Ron Shanklin for the first Pittsburgh score in the first period. It was his seventh preseason touchdown pass.

Steve Davis dived 45 yards for the other Pittsburgh touchdown with 57 seconds remaining in the game after Henley intercepted a Tony Stewart pass and returned it 15 yards to the Giants' one yard line.

New York's only score came in the second period when rookie Bobby Brooks' quarterback Terry Bradshaw sidled with a bruised right forearm, the Steelers nonetheless evened the Giants' preseason record 2-2.

touchdown followed an interception by rookie Richard Conn late in the first period, while Gerela's field goal came after a fumble by rookie New York running back Doug Kotar.

The Giants' touchdown came on Hurafly's second series in exhibition play. Hurafly fumbled on his first appearance and again—was intercepted on the series following Brooks' touchdown.

With regular Steelers' quarterback Terry Bradshaw sidelined with a bruised right forearm, the Steelers nonetheless evened the Giants' preseason record 2-2.

93-yard kickoff return helps New Orleans down Dallas 16-7

By M. GENE HEARNS
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Doug Winstow took the second half opening kickoff and ran 93 yards to help the New Orleans Saints to a 16-7 exhibition game win over the Dallas Cowboys Saturday night.

Winstow, a 5-11, 181-pound wide receiver, leaped to the left sideline and appeared to be in for a big play. Dallas 40, but Winstow slowed and got around Howard and sailed into the end zone.

Dallas, which failed to pick up its first down in the second quarter, scored on a third-quarter drive that went 58 yards in eight plays, capped by a 13-yard scoring run by Robert Newhouse. In the drive, Les Strayhorn chipped in a 15-yard run and caught a 12-yard Craig Morton pass.

In the second quarter, Archie Manning threw a 30-yard touchdown pass to 65 rookie wide receiver, who was alone at the one, overlooked by the Dallas defense, when he caught the ball.

New Orleans also scored on a 33-yard field goal by Bill McClard with 48 seconds left in the first period.

Manning completed eight out of 12 for 63 yards net. For Dallas, Roger Staubach completed four of five for 31 yards in the first half and Morton completed nine of 15 for 37 yards in the second half.

The New Orleans-running game was led by Jess Phillips with 53 yards and Red McNeill with 25.

Dallas is now 2-2 in preseason and New Orleans is 1-3.

By TODD NEMANIC
NEW YORK (UPI) — It's a long way from Cordoba, Mexico, to Cleveland, Ohio, but Rico Carty made the trip last week and it brought few memories of his first ventures to the US from his home in the Dominican Republic.

The 18-year old kid who seemed to have been born with a bat in his hands and a hole in his glove had no idea where he was going or what would happen to him. Now, after a decade in the majors, it's happening all over again.

The National League batting champion only four years ago, Rico Carty has to prove himself all over again with the Cleveland Indians. No major league team even wanted him at the beginning of the season.

"Man, you know it's great to be back in the bigs," he laughed after playing his first major league game of the year last Saturday. "The way life is — so crazy, you know — you just gotta laugh."

Laughing's a little easier right now for Rico than it was at the end of last season. He comes to Cleveland with a .355 average and 72 RBIs for Cordoba in the Mexican League. Last season he played for three teams in the majors, finishing the last weeks of the season as permanent insurance for the Oakland A's. He was released without explanation during the winter.

"They didn't give me anything, I played hard for them at the finish and they didn't give me a Series share, a ring, a handshake — nothing at all."

So he wants to Mexico to play winter ball and ended up playing through the spring and most of the summer. He, as almost everyone outside Mexico seemed to forget him. This spring the Phillies showed some interest and then mysteriously, to Carty, the deal was called off.

"The owner, he didn't want me," Carty said. "He thought I was too old. They say I'm 35, but I'm really just 32. In fact, I was 31 until September. Lots of guys still play at an even 40. I figure I've got another five or six years left. No kidding, I feel healthy. Really good, you know."

Comebacks are nothing new to Rico Carty. Unusually strong despite spending the 1968 season in a hospital bed battling tuberculosis, he still carries a lifetime .306 batting average — among the highest in the majors.

Former batting champion tries to prove himself once again

He came back to hit .342 and .366 the next two years for the Atlanta Braves before missing another season due to a broken leg. Coming back from that injury, Carty still could not escape misfortune. It was late August when he was beaten by three white policemen in what the Major League called "an incident of blatant brutality." Carty's right eye was badly swollen and bloodshot and he sat out the last few weeks in Atlanta indignation.

Carty hit only .277 that year — his last season under .300 — and was promptly traded to Texas for Jim Panther, a pitcher who has since hung around with an ERA higher than the price of a lobster dinner.

Perhaps Carty's long feud with Henry Aaron could not hurt more to his departure from Atlanta than his batting average.

Carty still is reluctant to talk about Aaron, and this is especially evident in his discussion of black managers.

"It's not a matter of black or white," Carty said, his voice growing intense. "The Commissioner may be wrong in putting pressure on clubs to hire a black man. You don't want to put a man there because he's black. That would hurt more than help, because one of the most important things is that a manager is not thinking in terms of black and white when he's dealing with his players. He has to be a father, yeah, really — like a father to the team. The man who's put there because he's black, even though he's qualified, will have a tough time doing that."

Which blacker rate a shut-at-managing right now? His new teammate Larry Doby, 44, for example?

"There are men who would make good managers. Larry knows a lot of baseball. So do Natny Walls and Frank Robinson. I think Robinson will be the first. But I hope, he doesn't get it because he's been asking for six years now and they're rejecting reality or getting tired of hearing about it. I hope he gets the job because they have confidence in his knowledge of the game and the way he relates to the players.

Taiwan repeats as champion of Little League

WILLIAMSSPORT, Pa. (UPI) — Lin Wen-Hsiung hurled a two-hitter and hit two home runs Saturday to lead Kan Hsiung, Taiwan, to a 12-1 thrashing of Red Bluff, Calif., in the Little League World Series championship game.

It was the fourth straight year a team from Taiwan, China has won the title and the fifth time in the last six years.

Lin also hit two singles to lead Kan Hsiung's 12-hit attack against Red Bluff pitchers Chen, Cheng, Chung and Kan Sun-Teh also hammered home runs for the winners.

Lin blasted five homers in the three-game world series, equalling a record set in 1971 by Layed McClendon of Gary, Ind. In pitching two series, he gave up just three hits and struck out 23. In the little game, he struck out 14 and walked only one.

Red Bluff's only run came on a lead-off homer in the fifth inning by Greg Shiff.

Mark Keelke, a 250-pound full-blooded Indian, started and went three innings for the losers, giving up seven runs before being relieved by Don Howard.

Shiff's homer broke a string of 45 innings spanning two years in world series play in which Taiwanese pitchers have held the opposition scoreless.

The National Chinese team in the last six world series 187-1 and Taiwanese teams have now won 14 consecutive games.

U.S. amateur championship to be settled this week

RIDGEWOOD, N.J. (UPI) — With two of the top players already eliminated, an exciting, 200-surrender, begins a week-long grind of match play Monday for the U.S. Amateur golf championship.

Craig Stadler of the University of Southern California—the defending champion, and Curtis Strange of Wake Forest, the NCAA champion, are the top players in the field.

favorites here, last year's runner-up David Strawn, and the Pacific Coast Amateur champion, Mark Piest of USC.

Sports

From all angles

By Larry Hovey

It undoubtedly came as a surprise to Minico fans Friday when Gary Swan gave up the head basketball job.

"But there were other considerations. Skyview is close to Logan and I feel that I want to continue my education. This gives me an opportunity to do that. Then I think it is also something that my family wanted. I know my wife always has felt she'd like to live around a college town with the atmosphere and the chance to see some of the cultural activities that colleges bring in each year."

Another player from Belleville, Straine's Wake Forest teammate Jay Haas, faces Dan Bogdan of Richmond, Ky., in the second match of the day Monday at 7:30 a.m.

It is a relatively new building and those having seen it call the facilities first class all the way, including a big indoor pool.

"He's sitting around the house Wednesday afternoon when the call came in from Skyview. That school, as we understand, just had won a four battle in which it was allowed to release its previous coach.

Straine, a 19-year-old freshman who caught the final hole of the N.C.A.A. Championship, to beat Thorburn's Calgary and Phil Hancock by a single stroke, starts his bid here against Mark Royzman of Belleville.

The coaching staff at Utah State believes that Skyview is one of the four best jobs in the state Coach Swan regards.

"I know the situation at Skyview isn't a great deal different than Minico. Skyview is a consolidated school of the old North and South Cache schools and basically a large agriculturally-oriented place.

Golden, Colo. (UPI) — Joanne Carver, the LPGA leading money winner inquest of her fifth tournament title of the year, and Joyce Kazemierski, looking for the first win of her seven-year career, had identical 65-65 Saturday to move into a tie for the lead after the second round of the $35,000 LPGA National Jewish Hospital Open.

"I felt I was at an age where if I was going to make a change and maybe get a little closer perhaps to college or junior college coaching, I would have to do it now," he says.

"Under this new setup, I'll have to do a lot more coaching in the pre-season practices and December than I've ever done here. It's going to be different alright," he added.

Both have two round scores of three-under-par 141. The two both had par 72s on the opening day.

"I'm coaching that time comes when you have to decide whether you like a place so much that you are going to make it your home. You coach as long as you can, and then you go on as a teacher after you resign from coaching."

Meanwhile, the Minico board apparently didn't come to any decision about replacing Swan although the school year was only 72 hours away. It is probable, many believe, that Gerald Sprays, assistant coach last year, will take the Minico job on an interim basis at least for this season. However, the board has not made any decision as yet.

Another player from Belleville, Straine's Wake Forest teammate Jay Haas, faces Dan Bogdan of Richmond, Ky., in the second match of the day Monday at 7:30 a.m.

Sox' Johnson blanks Indians

CHICAGO (UPI) — Bart Johnson, walking one and hitting out seven innings, permitted just five singles in hurling the Chicago White Sox to a 3-0 whitewash of Cleveland on Saturday in a nationally-televised game.

Johnson, winning for the fifth time against two losses, was given a two-run cushion in the first inning when Perry gave up three of the six hits of his team. Perry, who also walked only one man, was beaten for the ninth time against 16 wins.

DETROIT (UPI) — Len Flanders singled home the Henderson and Tony Harrah, whose home run tied it to the ninth, but a home run insurance run in the 10th Saturday to give the Texas Rangers a 6-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

Royal hurler stymies Brewers

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Al Fitzmorris pitched a five-inning shutout, pitched and reeled off 21 batters to pace the Kansas City Royals to a 4-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers Saturday.

Jeff Burroughs singled to beat the tie and was hit to second by Tom Griewe. Randle singled up the middle for one run and wound up on third base when Aurelio Brington made an error. The first on Jim Ferguson's field. Single Harrah laid down a squeeze bunt to bring in the other run and beat it out for a single.

Murcer drives Yanks past Cal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Murcer socked a two-run double in the sixth inning Saturday, giving the New York Yankees a 2-1 victory over the California Angels.

Tom Breyer broke a 3-3 tie by doubling home Ben Odvle, who had singled in the sixth inning. The Kansas City Royals scored the only run it needed in the fifth and added three more in the ninth. Ed Rodriguez had retired 12 straight Royals when Hal McLean, hitting singles by opening the fifth with singles to put runners on first and second.

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Joanne Carver, the LPGA leading money winner inquest of her fifth tournament title of the year, and Joyce Kazemierski, looking for the first win of her seven-year career, had identical 65-65 Saturday to move into a tie for the lead after the second round of the $35,000 LPGA National Jewish Hospital Open.

Both have two round scores of three-under-par 141. The two both had par 72s on the opening day. Amateur Carl Fjellman, wife of host pro Bill Fjellman, had a 77 in the second round after her first round of 67 to balloon to 144 while Jo Ann Washam matched her opening day 67 with a 79. That included three double bogeys, to put her five strokes off the pace at 144.

Jan Ferraris, 72-71, were both first place in the 1970-71 season. Miss Garner, fresh from victory at last week's St. Paul Open and winner of $68,000 on the year, five times had put off less than five feet including the first, third, fourth and fifth holes—which would have given her birdies, but she missed them.

Harris passes Rams past Miami 31-13

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The plump passing of James Harris to Pat Curran set up two third-period touchdowns Saturday night to pave the way for a 31-13 Los Angeles Rams victory over the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins in an exhibition game witnessed by 71,823.

Harris, who took over for Rams' starter John Hadl in the third period, completed four passes to Curran for 103 yards after the halftime intermission to give the Rams a 24-0 advantage. Los Angeles added a fourth-period touchdown to hand Miami its worst preseason defeat since 1972 when Detroit beat the Dolphins, 31-21.

The Rams opened the scoring late in the first period when Hadl drove them 48 yards in 11 plays to position David Ray for a 32-yard field goal.

Fishing hints: by Swen Fishing with flies

For over 2,000 years people have been fishing with flies. For almost that long, those that fish with flies tend to make it a mysterious sport.

It is accepted that four factors are involved in successful fly fishing — tackle, streamcraft, and casting skill. But the fourth can spell success—a good fly of the proper pattern.

Fishing report: The fish are back at Magic The Idaho fish and game dept. planted 100,000 catchable-size fish in the lake. Many fine larger fish have been caught fly fishing at Myrtle point. Trolling has been slow for some, but those fly fishing early and late report some fine catches.

'Skins nip Browns in last 2 seconds

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Mike Mosley kicked a 43-yard field goal with two seconds to play Saturday night, giving the Washington Redskins a 20-17 victory over the Cleveland Browns.

With 10 seconds remaining in the third period, Larry Smith ran one yard for Washington's first touchdown with Mosley kicking a 47-yard field goal in the second quarter.

Babich's interception return to the Washington 30.

Lopes steals five bases for Dodgers

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Little Davey Lopes stole five bases to tie a National League record—set in 1904—and Don Sutton tossed 27 seven-inning for his fourth shutout Saturday night to lead the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Sutton struck out eight and walked one to improve his record to 12-9. The Dodger right-hander has now captured six of his last seven decisions.

Los Angeles stole a total of eight bases in the contest to establish a new club mark for a single game. The 5-foot-9 Lopes stole three bases, walked and got caught on an error to be in position to equal Dennis McGann's stolen base record set in 1904 with the New York Giants. Eddie Collins of the Philadelphia Athletics holds the major league record of six steals in one game.

As noted above, Billingsley croak is great. It is well stocked.

Little Wood rds, has been producing well. The fish are in the 10 to 14 inch size. None larger on the day checked.

Silver-croak, forgot it! Until they come up with a solution the property owners accept, you will have to leave this one alone. Mark on this later.

Know your son, take him fishing.

Hayes wants replay check on officials

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Ohio State University football coach Woody Hayes, starting his 24th season as the Bucks head coach, this week again called for the use of instant replay cameras to supplement officiating at college football games.

Hayes, speaking at a news media preview of the 1974 OSU football team, said college football is behind the times because it has failed to adopt the use of instant replay cameras as an officiating aid.

Hayes said that the only recourse a team can have. We (the coaches) must be put in a position where we can ask for an instant replay.

Bengal veterans will stay in camp

WILMINGTON, Ohio (UPI) — Cincinnati Bengals player representative Pat Matson said Saturday he felt all the Bengal players would stay in camp if the National Football League-Players Association calls for a continuation of the strike against the owners next Wednesday.

Neal Craig, one of the union's strongest supporters during the strike, said he is in camp to stay.

Two halls of fame bother promoters

ANGOLA, Ind. (UPI) — The U.S. Track and Field Hall of Fame here is in contention for star athletes for ceremonies at the Pokagon State Park near here Saturday.

Blaine welfare rolls below US average

KETCHUM — The director of the Idaho Health and Welfare Department (HAW) said Thursday, Blaine County has one-fifth the national average of people on welfare rolls.

Speaking before the Ketchum Sun Valley Chamber of Commerce, Dr. James Bax said the national average stands at 5.5 percent while Idaho has only 1 percent on welfare rolls and Blaine County less than 1 percent.

Bax was disappointed with the number of food stamp recipients (70) in the county he said. He said HAW is not satisfied with the food stamp program which is mandated by the federal government. States have no control over food stamps, he said.

Bax said he took over a year and a half ago, he promised to "vigorously pursue welfare fraud."

One full-time person will work in this area soon, to track down violators of the food stamp program as well as others of welfare. Bax also said the state is "tracking down and prosecuting fathers, who, skipping out, have refused to pay child support."

According to the state director, over $1 million will be recovered by the state this year from negligent fathers.

Bax said Idaho has been number one in reducing welfare case loads across the United States. "We are looked at as an example in many states," Bax said.

Bax praised programs in the health and welfare department which include complete mental health coverage grants across the state. Only Kentucky and Idaho have such coverage, he said. He also praised the Boise methadone program for drug addicts.

He listed the need for good shelter homes across the state for the mentally ill and elderly. Most shelter homes in the state do not meet minimum licensing standards, he said, which restrict them from receiving federal funding for improvements.

Most are working on conditional licenses, Bax said. "We need to build new shelters," he said, "we can't let the needy and mentally ill just sit around to vegetate."

Bax said Big Wood River through the Wood River Valley was classified A-2, the highest stream classification possible in the state for purity.

"The river is in excellent condition," he said, "well within the standards set by the state." He said all discharge from the Ketchum sewer plant will require a discharge permit guaranteeing the water purity level will not be lowered.

Water quality, Bax said, is Idaho's "most pressing issue." He criticized the recent state legislature "which turned thumbs down" on state regulation of water. Bax said more and more federal regulation of water through the Environmental Protection Agency was happening in Idaho.

"The EPA is using Idaho as a trial state to push us to see how far we will go," Bax said. "The legislature must soon use good sense in controlling this water or the water will soon not be in state control."

Retail food cost jump seen in late '74

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Retail food costs dipped slightly last month but probably will jump as much as 5 percent during the second half of the year, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Expectations of lower food prices this fall have been reversed because the severe mid-summer drought sharply reduced harvest prospects, the department said.

It published a Food Situation Summary, which predicted that because of the drought, retail food prices for the full year 1974 are now expected to average about 15 per cent above last year instead of the 12 per cent increase predicted earlier.

That would top the 14.5 per cent highest per-year jump in prices in 22 years.

Before the drought cut into harvest prospects, analysts had anticipated that prices would level off from July through September and fall slightly after that. Their new forecasts are for steady increases which will total 4 or 5 per cent during the last six months to reach the 15 per cent annual rate now expected.

Another department report, meanwhile, showed that the typical market basket of farm-produced foods dipped 0.3 per cent in July because food retailers and processors narrowed their margins 3 per cent to offset an increase in the cost of raw farm products.

The retail cost of the market basket fell in July to an annual rate of $1.75, down $5 from June. It remained 2.7 per cent over, may be the last consumers will see "for some time," the summary indicated.

Raw farm product prices have been rising since June, and the new forecasts are for an increase of about 3 per cent in July-September with an additional hike during the final three months.

Much of the third quarter increase will come in crop products such as vegetable oil, baked goods, drinks and sugar products, and rounded and compared to the U.S. average hike last year when restaurant yields did not rise as fast as grocery prices.

The analysts predicted that meats and other livestock foods would increase moderately before stabilizing in October, December.

Red meat prices may decline seasonally toward the end of the year, running counter to the general food uptrend, and could offset increases for other livestock foods like poultry and eggs, the report said.

It said retail choice grade beef prices rose 4.3 per cent in July, ending a decline which began in March.

Economists said the 1974 average increase of about 15 per cent now expected in food store prices, will be smaller than last year's advance of a little over 16 per cent.

However, estimates of all retail food prices, which also include restaurant meals and snacks, show a prospective gain of about 15 per cent.

CONGRATULATING agricultural engineer Claude H. Pair is Sprinkler-Irrigation Association president John H. Stevens, Eugene, Ore. Pair was honored Friday at ceremonies at the Snake River Conservation Research Center of the Agricultural-Research Service at Kimberly.

Award given Irrigator group cites Pair, research service

KIMBERLY—Agricultural engineer Claude H. Pair, and the Agricultural Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture were honored by the Sprinkler Irrigation Association Friday.

In special ceremonies at the Snake River Conservation Research Center at Kimberly, SIA president John H. Stevens of the Pierce Corporation, Eugene, Ore., awarded Pair the "Award of Recognition," the first presented in the association's 22-year history.

Pair was honored for his "distinguished and unselfish service as the editor-in-chief of the Sprinkler Irrigation textbook."

According to the SIA, the textbook is "recognized worldwide as the authoritative reference book on sprinkler irrigation" used by industry, governmental agencies and colleges and universities.

Officers and dignitaries of the Washington, D. C. based association attended the ceremonies, as well as the area director and deputy administrator of the ARS. Local representatives of soil

FTC probes supplements

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Federal Trade Commission said today it is conducting an investigation of the protein supplement industry following an action against one firm which allegedly failed to warn consumers the product could be dangerous to infants and elderly persons.

The agency said there are about 30 companies, mostly located in California, which market protein supplements.

The investigation, it added, will be aimed at determining whether "advertising" and "labeling of the products" contain misrepresentations or fail to make disclosures affecting the health and safety of others.

The commission disclosed the investigation concerned with the announcement that The Shallice Corp. of Emeryville, Calif., had signed an "intent" agreement to stop

Japan may cut stock feed buying

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Japan probably will voluntarily cut purchases of American livestock feed grains over the coming year by nearly 10 per cent, Agriculture Department officials predicted after conferring with Japanese government team.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Clayton Vestler told newsmen Thursday the Japanese plans would help keep total U.S. feed grain exports this fall to levels which will make farm export controls unnecessary despite the fact that drought has sharply reduced the prospective 1974 U.S. crop.

Vestler also reported, however, the agriculture department is preparing for adoption of a tightened export monitoring program. In addition to weekly reports now filed with the government by private export firms, a supplemental system calling for daily reports on major sales of several major crops will be put into effect soon, officials said.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Women are too fierce to be good combat soldiers. Or such is the quoted contention of the renowned Margaret Mead. The males of just about every species fight in a ritualistic manner. True, bear-fish, game-cocks and gray wolves fight to the death. But most males don't. Females, however, do. Battle is not just a trial of strength with them. Their ferocity in defense is well known, and on offense, they kill. Notion put forth here is that women combat troops might be more inclined than men to press for massacres.

THE HARD EARS

Call them tusks if you like, but they're really the eyeteeth of the walrus. ONE OUT OF EVERY 100 medical prescriptions is said to be for some sort of laxative. NINETY FIVE out of every 100 game animals in this country are some sort of deer... DO YOU REALIZE that every other household around here has an electric sewing machine?... ORIGINAL definition of the word "mammoth" was "underground dweller."

CLIENT ASKS the name of this country's first lady diplomat. That would be Ruth Bryan Owen, U. S. Minister to Denmark from 1933 to 1936. Those were the happiest years of her life, she said later. She quit to marry Borge Rohde, a captain in the Danish king's palace guards. A most romantic incident.

HAPPINESS

What brings happiness? A recent poll to answer that one came up with some debatable notions, I think. Money was named No. 1 by a wide margin. Good health came in No. 2 far behind. No. 3 was love. No. 4, wisdom. No. 5, family caring.

A BARBER, dentist and foot doctor all in one was that practitioner of the first century. This is to say the same specialist took care of hair, teeth and corns. And there's no record that said party washed hands between patients, might mention.

WHAT THE ANIMAL experts are trying to figure out now is why that beast known as the sloth can't be startled by a loud noise. Just about every other animal can be startled by anything - jumping - jumping - But not the sloth. Peculiar lack of reflex. Tap its knee with a rubber hammer and what do you get? Nothing.

VALLEY COMMENT: Nation on move?

QUESTION: Do you feel the country is on the move again now that President Ford has taken office? Do you feel a sense of relief now that the Watergate affair is behind us?

Walt Day, Twin Falls: "Yes, (although) I much prefer Nixon than anybody."

Phyllis Herr, Kimberly: "To a certain extent, I think people have calmed down because Watergate is behind us and I think that's the way it should be left. It's a little too early to see what he (Ford) is going to do, but I'm back of him. I think that's all we can do is hope for the best."

E. E. Megruc, Twin Falls: "I think we have a stable man in power now. Considering the conditions, I don't think they could have picked a better man. "I think we were stymied while that (Watergate) was going on. We couldn't take care of the natural business of the country. While Watergate was hanging fire."

Pat Wilson, Twin Falls: "Definitely. I feel that he (Ford) can't take charge and that people have great respect for him, especially in Congress. I feel that he is more for the people themselves. "I felt Nixon was guilty from the very first, so it's a big relief."

Donna Huether, Kimberly: "I hope so. It can't be any worse. I think he (Ford) is at least trying to do something."

Marlene Burns, Twin Falls: "I think it (the country) has got a good chance. I think he (Ford) is an impressive man. "I don't feel that it (Watergate) is over."

Gary Van Komen, Filer: "Lower did think I slowed down. Corporate earnings are at all time highs. The only trouble with inflation was cutting into some companies' profits."

"I think it's about time we got somebody in so the news media won't bicker over a minor break-in over another political party which should have been open. They shouldn't have had to break it. In my opinion. "The government is going to have to be willing to tax more for social services... to stop inflation... We have to balance the budget either by cutting spending or increasing taxes... I think Ford is going to try to do this."

Bonnie Brinkman, Murtaugh: "I hope so. He (Ford) seems to want to try, try harder than Nixon. "Yes, definitely."

Parsley best breath sweetener in garden

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
CHEW YOUR PARSLEY: Did you know that the best breath sweetener and refresher you can get is parsley?

When you're working out in the garden grab a few stalks of parsley and chew it. Other good mouth refreshers are basil, dill and various mints. A sprig or two of any of these will do the trick, and it won't cost you a penny.

Here's a recipe for parsley tea sent to us by a reader: Use green or dried parsley. "Sleep like you do green tea, two or three tablespoons to a cup. Drink a wine glass full every half hour, for dropsy. When my husband was 12 years old, he was given up to die and the parsley tea cured him. When I drink it with my meals, I drop in a chicken or beef broth (recipe)."

The answer lies in the amount of organic matter it contains.

A sandy soil dries out faster than a clay soil because there are more spaces between each particle.

You can tighten up a sandy soil by adding some form of organic material such as peat moss, compost, leaves, etc., and you also can "loosen" up a heavy clay soil by adding the same materials.

You can't change the amount of organic matter in the soil by the snap-of-a-finger. However, there's no reason why you can't tame the toughest clay soil so it's nice and mellow simply by adding organic wastes such as grass clippings, leaves, table scraps, wood shavings, sawdust and manures to name a few.

With today's emphasis, upon recycling waste, and considering the problems we have of getting rid of garbage, we feel that home gardeners should save all their potato peelings, coffee grounds, tea leaves, orange skins, etc., and compost them.

You don't need a big area to build a compost. A garbage can makes a good receptacle. Drill holes in the bottom and leave it in the garage. As the scraps become available, toss them into the can.

Add a layer of soil from the garden, plus a few earth worms to hasten break-down. With a cover on the can you'll notice no odors, no flies, no rodents.

Coffee grounds act as an odor destroyer, as do scraps of shredded paper. When the can is filled you can dig a shallow trench between rows of vegetables and bury it. ROOTING CLEMATIS: Home gardeners tell us they are having a tough time rooting their favorite clematis vine. If you have a home greenhouse or a coldframe, rooting the clematis is rather easy.

Take cuttings about four inches long and insert the end into a bench of sand, perlite or a mixture of sand and peat moss. Syringe the cuttings daily to prevent drying out. Placing a plastic sheet or glass jar over each cutting will help rooting.

Green Thumb

Another trick used by home gardeners is to place the tip end of a clematis vine in a pot of soil. Peg it down so the tip will be covered at all times. Within a few months the tip will root. After rooting has been effected, you can cut it from the parent plant.

Set the rooted cutting in the desired place and it will produce flowers of the same color as the parent. If you don't want to use a pot, some people simply bury the tip in the soil and after it has rooted, it's severed from the parent plant.

HOME MADE HORSEGRADISH: A reader wants to know how to make horsegradish. She wants to know what to add to the ground up roots. We use elder vinegar and it works for us. Does any reader have a good recipe for putting up home made horsegradish? Please write and tell us how you do it.

WHY SQUASH BLOSSOMS DROP: We're getting letters asking us why the blossom of summer squash drop off. Is it a disease or a lack of pollination?

Actually, blossoms which dry up are not cause for alarm. Squash and pumpkins produce five to ten male blossoms to one female, and only a small per cent of the female blossoms naturally develop into female fruits.

The males and excess or unneeded female blossoms dry up and fall, their romance shattered forever.

Nature produced more male blossoms purposely to make sure that there was enough pollen to fertilize the female blossoms. So there: blossoms which come out in profusion, then dry up and drop off are not cause for alarm. They won't produce any fruit anyway. So don't worry about it.

ATTRACTING CARDINALS: Some people have a hard time attracting the cardinal bird. One reader advises, putting out lots of sunflower seeds. Also he fastens orange peels in different spots around the home, using clothespins or wire. Cardinals see the bright orange and are attracted and come down for a visit. Finding the food plentiful, they'll be back to stay.

QUESTION BOX

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: R. F. of Twin Falls: "We just read an article stating that gardening can be dangerous because of too much sunshine - it's apt to cause cancer. Do you agree?"

To hear it, you'd think that sunlight is the worst thing in the world and that it is the most common cause of cancer. It is true that excess sun can be a possible cause of skin cancer, but I don't think people should live in a cave all their lives worrying about what sun is going to do to their skin.

Light skinned, blue-eyed people sunburn more readily than dark-skinned people. If you burn easily and are worried, do your gardening before 10 a.m. or after 3 p.m. when the sun's rays are less direct.

Suntan lotions contain a "sun blocker," which shields out just about all of the sun's rays, so if you're fair skinned, and don't want to get burned gardening, you can use a lotion.

Those of us who have darker skins have a pigment known as melanin and we can always tan quickly as well as withstand a lot of sunlight without any problem.

I don't think any of us can lead a full, healthy life if we skulk in the shade all day long. Sunshine does aid in good health and we shouldn't forget that it aids in the production of vitamin D. If you're sun sensitive it's only smart to use some caution in the garden, on the beach or on the golf course.

Some people who drink and smoke a pack of cigarettes a day strangely enough worry about getting cancer from too much sunshine. Sunshine is the energy plants use for making food to keep us alive. Plants need sunshine and a certain amount of it is good for people too.

S-E of Buhl: "Please tell me if city water is harmful to plants. The majority of people use water treated with chlorine or whatever it takes to pass inspection. Somehow plants don't seem to do well if I watered with it and we were wondering."

Plants treated with chlorinated water are not affected. Chlorine escapes as a gas anyway and couldn't possibly injure the plants. Some owners have well water which contains sulfur and they wonder if the sulfur has any effect. It doesn't.

In fact, the sulfur escapes from the water when you irrigate it. If you're in doubt as to whether treated water (lawn-house plants, draw off a bucket or two and let it stand a few minutes. The chlorine will escape into the air quickly.

Worming him once a month is a waste of your money and his stomach.

At his point I'd throw out the wormers, collect the dog and a fresh stool sample to little tab will do) and head for the doctor's office. Getting the diagnosis before the treatment seems to work best.

Question: We have a male neutered cat who is eight years old. He seems to be in general good health and has a good appetite. His one problem seems to be bad breath, also he seems to drool a lot.

Could you give any clues as to what might be the cause of this problem and a

Find out what's wrong with pet

By LINDA MERRY

D.V.M.
Question: I don't know what to do about my dog. He's three years old now and started getting poor about six months ago.

I thought he had worms so I've been giving him that once-a-month "wormer" right now. It hasn't done him any good, though and he's still got runny bowels. Can you tell me something better to use?

Answer: Yup - common sense. Anything that will kill a worm is a poison. A little of it kills worms, a lot of it kills dogs. Dogs may have flea parasites (and a few more roundworms, whipworms, tapeworms, and a d coecidiosis. If you're lucky I guess you may see two of them, the round and tapeworm. The others are minute to microscopic. So, how can anybody see

If a dog has worms? By looking for the eggs, old magma worm lays in the dog's stool. A small amount of feces is mixed with a special solution that "floats" the eggs up into a glass slide. The slide is then examined under a microscope and the eggs identified.

Each of these are as distinct and different as robin and hens eggs to a trained eye. Once we know who's come to dinner we can start making him unwellcome.

Each of the different parasites is best killed by a different drug. So, to kill all five worms you'd need four poisons, and an antibody to coecidia don't respond to poisons).

But who in his right mind would give a strong dose of four poisons at one time? Nobody and neither of these commercial wormers. They often do a halfway job on all the worms, and nothing to coecidia. The worst nightmare of all is dosing, dosing and dosing a dog that didn't have worms in the first place!

Not all dogs have worms. And in some parts of the country (the high dry West, for example) if a dog does have parasites and is wormed properly, he'll never have them again.

TIME WAS when a horse collar was no good unless on the neck of a work horse. Now they're worth cash in pioneer-era shops. Here Mike Aulich shows a heavily packed, straw filled one he found in Jackpot area brushlands.

Burn off fat foods with exercise

By ERMA BOMBECK

My doctor flipped the weight of the scale over another notch, looked at me with annoyance, said, "Man does not live by bread alone."

"You think I don't know that?" I said. "Any fool knows you have to make it into a sandwich, top it with homemade preserves, or cover it with a cheese sauce and make a casserole out of it."

"You are overweight, again," he said dryly.

The next afternoon I told myself: I found an Easter egg I had hidden from the kids in the freezer totaling 883 calories. I had to paint the house to work it off. That same night I had lobster in butter, which totaled 2,390 calories. Checking my list I discovered I would have to row across Lake Erie and back to balance the calories.

Then, a terrible pattern began to form. I was borrowing on my energy and putting f0Ts in the refrigerator. I owed two hours of carpentry for a bowl of cereal in cream, three miles of jogging for a French doughnut, and eight days of shoveling snow for a piece of birthday cake.

As I sit here writing this column I am in hock through 1975. As I told my doctor, the only way I can possibly catch up is to be an gunsman on a slave ship. He is making the necessary arrangements.

Bearing off

By Oswald & James Jacoby
(Sixth of a Series)

After all your men are in your inner table, you hear them rattling their dice. You roll a 6-4. For example, you can remove one man from the 6-point and one from the 4-point. If you roll a double, you take each number twice. Thus a 3-3 would allow you to take four men off the 3-point.

If you have a high number to play, but no man on that point, you must take a man off the highest point on which you have men. This, if all your men are on four, four, three, two and one points and you have a 6 to play, one man would come off the 4-point. However, note that you are not required to play your highest number first.

Times, move the diagram, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12. To play 6-1. As long as White legally captures his man, it does not matter in which order he takes his numbers. In this instance, should White use his 6 to bear off the man from his 6-point, he would be forced to play his 1 from either the 4 or 3-point and thereby leave a blot which Black might hit. This best strategy play is to use the 1 move from his 6-point to his 4-point. Now the 6 is used to bear that man off from the 4-point without exposing a blot.

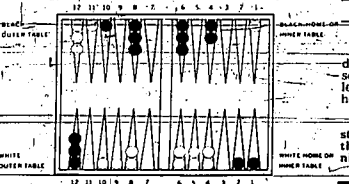

The blocking game

By Oswald & James Jacoby
(Sixth of a Series)

If backgammon were simply a game of rolling dice, you wouldn't need a board or men to move around. The fun in the game is making the moves which frustrate your opponent's chances while improving your own.

At the start of the game, White tries to prevent the two black men on the White 1-point from escaping. White does this by "making points" that will make Black's progress. The blocking game is achieved by developing a row of unhit or capped made points. Six such points in a row form a barrier which your opponent can't jump over. The technical term for such a barrier is a prime. Five points in a row would be a five-point block.

You start with your 6 and 2 point made. Making your 6-point the 7-point will give you three in a row. Adding the 5 and 3-point will make a five-point block. You want to make your 5 and 3-point if you can, since this will make it hard for your opponent to enter from the bar should you hit a blot. In addition, you can make your bar point, you will get an unobstructive five-blocker provided, of course, that the opposing back men have not already escaped. At the same time, you are attempting to get your two black men to safety.

White rolls 6-3. In the diagram, White has chances in playing his 6-3. He can hit a blot by moving 12 to 11-10. But it's far better for White to move 11-12 to 11-10 to 11-10 to 11-10, making the bar point and forming a five-point block. It may well be extremely difficult for Black to escape with his back men.

(NEXT: The Running Game)

At Wit's End

"Like how much?"

"Then a brilliant idea hit me. If I could do some vigorous exercise, I could eat all the fat foods I wanted and burn it off before it took root."

That night I had a piece of apple pie. Then I grabbed one of the kids' bicycles and pedaled for two hours. It was work, but it was worth it. I had paid for my folly.

The next night I had a potato chips. To make up for it, I did a little ironing that I had put back. (Actually, I only ironed for an hour and put the rest of it back again.)

"I have here a list of activities that tell you many calories you can burn in an hour. I want you to go over the list and try to do at least one or two activities a day."

"The list was depressing. An hour of housework burnt up 80 to 100 calories, ironing 50 to 60, and walking 10 to 20. I would have to amaze the King Kong to make a difference."

Ordination-by-magnum magnate receives attention

By REV. LESTER KINGSOLVING

National attention has been focused for some time upon California's illiterate, but ingenious ordination-by-magnum magnate, the Rev. Dr. Kirby Hensley, of Modesto.

Among other things, Dr. Hensley's founder of the Universal Life Church, has managed to ordain an estimated two million people — as well as a number of Siamese cats.

Not to be outdone in the realm of innovative liturgical adventure, three prelates of the Episcopal Church (all retired), recently staged an ordination service in North Philadelphia, which, in some respects upstaged even the Rev. Dr. Hensley's felicitous sacraments.

Bishops Daniel Corrigan, Robert DeWitt and Edward Welles, formerly of dioceses in Denver, Philadelphia and Kansas City, on July 29 carried out their announced-advance intent to delay an impressive segment of the very same church law which they once swore to uphold — and to disregard the earnest pleadings of their fellow bishops (unretired) — by engaging a service of ordination to the priesthood for 11 cager-eyed ladies.

The three bishops announced piously that their action in this regard was "obedience to the Lordship of Christ."

which terminology, under the circumstances, constitutes what might be called a holy mystery.

For it is indeed mysterious that Christ allegedly waited until all three of these particular-bishops were safely retired on guaranteed pensions, before issuing what they announced was "his command" to produce priestesses.

It is indeed remarkable, for example, that prior to his retirement just ten months ago, Bishop DeWitt, while in charge of the Diocese of Pennsylvania, declined the repeated requests of Deacon Suzanne Hitt, for ordination to the priesthood.

But things were very different then. For such an ordination would have caused trouble in DeWitt's own diocese — not to mention a national crisis for DeWitt's close friend John E. Hines, who recently retired as the ranking prelate, or Presiding Bishop, of the 3.2 million-member denomination. Such an ordination would have been a major problem and embarrassment for Hines.

But now Hines has been succeeded by a much less readily-embarrassible bishop, Zita Hines and DeWitt are busy trying to resurrect a defunct church magazine called "The Witness," which (dare we say it) will undoubtedly become known as "The Witness."

And what better way to attract national attention and publicity for a revived-but-liberal sheet than to drop the female ordination hand grenade in the new Presiding Bishop's lap? — even if this tears the denomination apart.

as it probably will unless Alvin takes a firm hand.

The ordination service at the enormous Church of the Advocate in the heart of Philadelphia's black community, was opened with a sermon by Layman Charles Willie, vice president of the denomination's House of Deputies, a professor and black militant abrasion-artist from Syracuse University. As the climax of what seemed like a 30 minute non-stop bellow, Dr. Willie cried:

"I stand ready to suffer the consequences of my action, for I know, like Dr. King, that unearned suffering is redemptive!"

The idea that Dr. Willie's Syracuse U. salary will "suffer" by as much as even one dime is almost as comic as his thinly-veiled comparison of Charles Willie and Martin Luther King, Jr. But even this chutzpah was exceeded by one of the Episcopal far left who were present, and ready with hisses and boos, when five clergy dared to offer unadvised protest when it was called for in the service.

For the Rev. David Gracie of Philadelphia, the Episcopal edition of Abble Hoffman — as one of this occasion's marshals — threatened to evict UPI photographer Michael Feldman from the church.

("Graceless Davie" has a ministry which runs the gamut from refusing to pay his income taxes to shrieking his negative comments with obscenities in public.)

Then, shortly after this encounter, the lady clergy were asked the question from the Original of the Book of Common Prayer: "Will you reverently obey your bishop ... an interesting question indeed, because at that very hour most of them were disobeying their bishops who had asked them not to participate in this travesty."

Regional medical programs can help save lives

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Regional medical programs in the Magic Valley are helping to save the lives of local residents.

Local doctors — years out of medical school — are kept abreast of the latest medical advances and afforded expert consultations through programs sponsored by the Intermountain Regional Medical Program and the Mountain States Regional Medical Program.

"We rely on these programs to keep us medically updated," said Dr. James H. Loomis, Jr., M.D., Rosenbaum, administrator of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital, said. "I'm sure we've saved lives by being involved in these programs."

The IMRMP has been serving the Magic Valley since about 1968 and the MSRMP since about 1970. Both provide programs of continuing education for the medical community and occasional projects dealing directly with the health of local citizens.

For example, the MSRMP set up an all-day cancer clinic a year ago. Local doctors and dentists examined area residents free of charge for oral cancer later. The supervision of program directors in the manner, skills and received from examinations and the doctors learned to detect the cancer and learned about up-to-date treatment methods.

The IMRMP gave Magic Valley Memorial Hospital a closed-circuit television monitor and provides monthly video tapes to help the hospital maintain an ongoing medical education program for the staff and local physicians.

The overall goals of the regional medical programs are to improve existing systems of health care delivery, improve the quality of care and to develop manpower resources, according to Phoebe Lindsey, senior staff associate of the MSRMP.

There are 53 regional medical programs in the country, Miss Lindsey said, but "I think our program is unique in that it does not have a medical school tied in."

"I suspect in larger areas the need is not so intense as here where we have limited resources," she said.

The closest medical school is located at the University of Utah in Salt Lake City. The IMRMP often uses facilities and personnel from the school in its programs.

The programs were threatened last year when President Nixon impounded the $100 million earmarked by Congress for the regional medical programs in this country. The programs banded together and sued the administration, winning the release of the funds. With an additional $20 million granted by Congress, the medical programs had a $120 million budget.

The MSRMP was granted only 50 percent of its requested share of the funds for the current year — down to $2.4 million from the requested $2.4 million — but dropped only three programs, all listed as low priority, and made a few "minor" budget changes, according to Jerome Selby, director of evaluations for MSRMP.

The regional medical programs as they are today may be discontinued if Congress passes the National Health Plan now before them, but Selby said, "as long as an impenetrating agency comes through there somewhere, there would still continue to be funding."

"Most of the regional medical program leaders in Washington are still fairly optimistic," he said.

"If the programs are cut or dropped, I think it will hurt the rural areas more than the metropolitan areas because they have some contact with medical schools," Rosenbaum said. "Medicine is changing so rapidly it is impossible for us to keep up on our own."

The regional medical programs ask hospitals to define the needs in their areas, then develop programs which may be accepted or rejected by the hospital.

"Sometimes the programs cost and sometimes they don't," Rosenbaum said.

"Most of the regional medical programs have been pretty tight fisted," he said.

Last spring, for example, at least 50 programs were submitted to the IMRMP board and only 11 were approved, he said.

"On our medical staff we had good participation — we'll have average," Rosenbaum said.

Through the IMRMP, doctors in the Twin Falls area can transmit ECGs via telephone to the University of Utah Medical Center. "I know from some of the diagnoses we've obtained on ECGs when we first started that we saved a couple of lives during the first few months," Rosenbaum said.

"They've been able to provide educational programs we could not provide ourselves," he said.

One such program is the cancer education project, sponsored in Magic Valley by both the IMRMP and the MSRMP.

Project directors from both programs come to the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital each month to read and discuss on a current basis a list of malignant tumors submitted for review by local doctors.

Dr. Birdsall Carle, pathologist and local coordinator of the project, said the project started out small about four years ago and is now "quite well attended" by local physicians.

"They've been able to provide educational programs we could not provide for ourselves."

The project provides both consultation and educational services. The group reviews particular cases monthly and discusses further treatment on the basis of the patients' personal circumstances. Doctors may be introduced to cases they have not dealt with before and can receive advice on current cases.

"We've all learned a great deal from it," he said. "The patients have really benefited."

Drugs will harm pregnant women

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — When an expectant mother takes drugs — even common aspirin — to relieve discomfort, she may be creating a painful future for her baby, says a Utah genetics counselor.

Pregnant women are taking an average of 4.5 different drugs — 80 percent not prescribed by a doctor — and unknowingly cause many of the 250,000 annual birth defects in the United States, according to Dr. Charles Scott.

The most common of these drugs — laxatives, anti-nausea pills, cold medicines and antibiotics, often taken for simple ailments — could harm the child permanently.

"A young girl using Tetracycline for her skin since high school gets married and becomes pregnant. She wants to look nice for her husband so she continues to take the drug, not realizing that it will cause discolored teeth and retarded bone growth in her newborn," said Scott.

To prevent such needless tragedy, the doctor advised, husband and wife should make careful, long-range plans for the birth of their offspring.

Unfortunately, most husbands give more attention to buying a used car than getting their wives pregnant," he said.

When they buy the car, the look at the tires and the engine and take it for a test drive and even have an expert mechanic take a look at it. But how much thought do they give to getting their wives pregnant?"

"They don't give a thought to their wife's physical condition — whether she's been overeating or taking drugs — whether she's anxious or emotional stress. All these factors bear on the health of the child."

Recent studies show a male child born to a woman who became pregnant while under emotional stress will have feminine characteristics, he said.

"It doesn't mean he'll be gay, but he just won't be as masculine as other men," said Scott, assistant professor of genetics at the University of Utah Biomedical Test Laboratories.

"We've conducted tests with rats in which one group got pregnant while under stress and the other under normal circumstances. The first group had male children with feminine characteristics, caused by the hormonal imbalance due to the stress. The same happens in humans."

Many severe "damage, however, results from consumption of drugs.

There are 400 pills, including vitamins, on the market which, if taken in excess or with other drugs, cause chromosome damage.

The severity of the damage — ranging from mutations causing a change in eye color to an extra chromosome causing Down's Syndrome — depends on the dose of the drug and at what point in the pregnancy it is taken.

"If taken after two weeks of pregnancy, one thing will happen, and if the drug is taken at six weeks, some completely different consequences may result," said Scott.

"It must cause the most severe effect is produced by drugs taken during the first trimester."

The doctor said even common drugs like aspirin can be dangerous.

"Aspirin can cause problems with blood by not letting it coagulate properly, and it can even cause chromosome damage," he said.

Alcohol, another threat to normal chromosomes, can have some remarkable effects on the baby, said Scott, recalling how one infant was delivered "drunk" from a mother who "had a few just before going into labor."

Scott warned women to be more careful than men about drinking and smoking too much and experimenting with "hard drugs."

"Men produce new sperm every 72 hours, but women are stuck with the same eggs all their lives. For men any damage to the sperm is temporary, but once a woman's egg is damaged, it stays damaged," he said.

Some defects can occur immediately after birth, Scott said. "If the mother takes drugs and breathes, leads the baby into the breast chest. And a safe dose for a 111-pound woman might be an overdose for a seven-pound infant," he said.

The advised couples planning to have a family to abstain from all drugs from several months before to a few months after the birth of their child.

"It's not easy to say. Many of us have the attitude that 'if one pill does for an ailment, two should be for twice.' And the television ads keep hammering at us how some wonder drug will relieve all our problems," said Scott.

But couples should realize the result can be a malfunction of the fetus. Mothers, especially, should never take any drugs without specific instructions from their doctors."

Another educational program was recently completed in Paul.

About 25 local medical personnel — mainly nurses — took a four-hour course in Spanish language and culture in a program that is "unique to Idaho," according to Miss Lindsey.

With the help of a text prepared by MSRMP and College of Southern Idaho instructor Gary Loomis along with two Mexican-American assistants, those enrolled learned basic phrases and some involved medical terminology in Spanish.

The course was aimed at providing a springboard to where they could continue on their own," Loomis said.

Shortly a neo-natal program sponsored by the MSRMP will be operating at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Under the program, nurses will be trained to operate and maintain the special infant care unit obtained by the hospital last year with the help of the Twin Falls Junior Club.

The equipment is designed to care for infants with serious respiratory problems and is "very complicated," according to Twin Falls pediatrician Dr. E.M. Wright, local coordinator of the project.

"It is largely a matter of technology and adequate nursing care to maintain all this," Dr. Wright said. "We doctors just write the orders and the nurses have to be there 24 hours a day."

Under the program, Dr. Wright hopes to send two nurses for two weeks of intensive training at the University of Utah Medical Center. They would return and carry on continuing education programs at the hospital here with the help of IMRMP personnel.

Airbase fuels section keeps winning awards

MOUNTAIN HOME AFB — Winning awards is getting to be a regular thing with the base-fuels branch at Mountain Home AFB.

The latest plaudit added to their long list of laurels was being named "Best in TAC," this marks the fifth time in the past nine years the fuels section have claimed this coveted honor.

Twice in the past six years they have gone on to be named "Best in Air Force." Should they claim that title again this year, the trophy will be retired here — a feat which has never been accomplished before.

The overall mission of the fuels department is to receive, store and issue high aviation fuel, MOGAS, liquid oxygen and demineralized water. This obviously is a complex and detailed job.

Fuels can be divided into four main sections. The first section is management. This is the section which handles the administration portion of the Fuels system. Three accountants are kept busy keeping close tabs on every gallon of fuel which comes up the base.

One of the responsibilities of the quality control section is to see that all fuel is thoroughly inspected and meets all requirements before it is issued to fueling trucks. The tests are conducted weekly on all fuel to check for sediment, water content and the proper amount of ice inhibitor. According to

M-Sgt. Robert L. Perdue, fuels superintendent, the primary objective of quality control is "to issue clean, dry fuel."

Quality Control isn't concerned entirely with fuel checks though, they also make people checks.

Once a month this section tours through the other three sections to see that the proper procedures are all being followed.

The third section is the Mobile Distribution Section. This section consists of the fuel trucks and the hydrants on the flightline. These hydrants make it possible to obtain fuel without sending a truck out to the flightline.

The final section is Fuels Storage. Their name pretty well explains their function. They handle all incoming fuel as well as liquid oxygen, and see that it is properly stored. Also under the auspices of Fuel Storage is the government service station.

When all four of these sections perform their duties exceptionally well, the results are an award winning Fuels Section.

The TAC competition began way back in February. At that time a TAC inspection team toured all TAC bases and came up with three they felt were the best.

Those three were Homestead AFB, Florida; Bergstrom AFB, Texas; and Mountain Home AFB, Idaho.

In May, another team was sent to all three bases for comprehensive inspections. The inspectors observed every phase of the fuels operation. They dove into all records of the past year, looking for something wrong.

Safety was a major portion of the inspection. If proper safety measures were not being followed the offending base was docked several points.

Even the personal appearance of the troops figured in the final tally.

When it was all added up, the Mountain Home AFB Fuels branch had scored 91 per cent. in assistance its two competitors.

Former Wing Commander, Brig. Gen. Howard W. Leaf, commented on the award by saying "I want to congratulate all members of the Fuels Branch for their truly outstanding effort in achieving the Best in TAC Fuels. The work and determination of everyone, from top to bottom, assured the success."

Also adding his praise was Col. Thomas Wilson, former deputy commander for Logistics. "The achievement of Best in TAC is a tribute to the day-to-day effort and dedicated performance of each and every one of our fuels personnel."

Captain Wylie Kolner, fuels officer, commented that his branch could not have won the award without outstanding support from CES, Transportation, and the Job Control section of AMS. What makes this fuels branch so outstanding?

How is it that they can continually win awards? Sergeant Perdue feels the primary factor is the closeless of the men.

Plastic knee joint inspected

GIL CHRISTLEY inspects plastic knee joint being made for an artificial leg for a Magic Valley resident.

Artificial limbs made for usability, not looks

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Usefulness, not looks, is the goal of every artificial limb that Jim Devaney makes. And he makes about 50 a year, for Magic Valley residents.

Jim is both an orthotist and a prosthelist. That means he can build both braces (orthotics) and artificial limbs (prosthetics).

The Magic Valley is a good place for someone with his talents. The large number of people involved in farm and heavy machinery work leads to an above average number of people involved in serious accidents that result in loss of limbs or injuries requiring braces, he said.

By Jim's estimation, it takes about one orthotist and one prosthelist to care for every 100,000 to 150,000 people. That's just about what Jim covers. Before his arrival over a year ago, the nearest prosthelist was in Boise.

Right now, he has an apprentice, the manager of Magic Valley Orthopedics, Gil Christley. Gil works for Jim.

In spite of the number of people Magic Valley Orthopedics serves, Gil said, "we're just scratching the surface."

The business has a catalog filled with pages of different kinds of braces, built for every conceivable figure and problem. Each brace and every limb must be custom built for the individual that will wear it.

Besides the measurements necessary for an efficient and comfortable fit, Gil must take into consideration where the client lives and what he does with his time. A sedentary individual would have different requirements than an active person; a person living in a dry or warm climate, would have different requirements than someone living in a cold or wet climate, Jim said.

The actual construction of an arm or leg, Jim said, takes about a week's time. All-in-all, though, he will spend from two weeks to a month completing the job, he averages about one limb a week, he said.

The people who come to Jim are old and young, men and women, happy and depressed.

The orthotist, he said, must be a metal worker, wood worker, therapist, doctor and psychologist.

Jim and Gil construct only artificial arms, legs and breasts. They stay away from noses, ears and fingers because of the additional special equipment needed for their construction and the lack of demand.

"All are built with utility in mind. We're after making the patient functional," Jim said, "not cosmetics."

Adjustments to the new limb comes hardest for those in the 20 to 35 age bracket — "the cosmetic age" — Jim said. "They tend not to realize they lost a limb and no one this side of heaven cared then," he said.

Jim and Gil explain the problems matter-of-factly. Though not hard-hearted, the men work with the problems constantly.

"You take their condition for granted," Jim said. "That's a normal state. You don't treat them any differently," Gil said.

Utility soon becomes uppermost in the minds of the clients. Most will request a cosmetic hand, then switch to a hook within a year or two because it is so much more useable, Jim said.

Jim makes both plastic and wooden limbs. Both have advantages, he said. The decision on materials depends upon the individual, his preferences and his activities.

The plastic limbs are molded to the correct size and shape while the wooden ones are drilled and curved from blocks of light weight wood. Joint construction varies with the joint. Springs are often used to aid in movement of the limbs.

Though artificial limbs will never be mass-produced, some are being roughed out on assembly lines throughout the country. Jim can send orders for a limb which is then constructed at a factory and sent to him for finishing touches.

As of yet, there is nothing that comes close to these fantastic appendages of TV's six-million dollar man.

At the best, all of these devices are extremely poor compared to the original," Jim said.

Poorer than the original they may be, but their construction takes time and their purchase takes money. Costs range from $700 to $1000 for an artificial leg to fit an above-the-knee amputation.

Jim regrets the fact that he doesn't work enough directly with the patients but spends more time on

"We're after making the patient functional," Jim said, "not cosmetics."

Gil is excited about his apprenticeship and the work he will be doing.

"It takes a good solid four or five years to become self-sufficient in either" articles or prosthetics, Jim said, "and 10 years for both." Jim's experience is approaching the 10 year mark.

The demand for services of this type is so high "you could work just about anywhere," Jim said.

Beginners beware!

JIM DEVANEY drills the socket of an artificial leg from a wooden block of basswood. The delegates at 5,000 revolutions per minute can take off with a beginner, according to Gil Christley, apprentice.

Orderly social change new target of onetime Pied Piper for young

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Ken Kesey, best-selling novelist and onetime "pied piper among the countercultural young—has his eyes on a new target for his followers — orderly social change.

It calls it "the politics of human affection."

This new politics already has held its first convention, called the Bend in the River Conference, in Bend, Ore. Delegates were Oregonians from the eastern scrub country to coastal fishing towns. More than 100 community-elected delegates participated. The idea was to exchange ideas on issues affecting the next quarter century in Oregon.

Teachers, longhairs, housewives, economists, poets, children, city councilmen, feminists, plumbers, even a professional clown, hammered out what Kesey called a "media referendum" of major ideas stemming from the conference into ballot form and published by a number of newspapers and aired by several broadcast stations. Kesey is writing for the public response to the ballot and he will pass the information on to legislators for implementation.

Kesey's unusual conference in Bend was financed by a $12,000 grant from the National Foundation for the Humanities and $5,000 from the CIA.

The mystery he sought to plumb in Bend was a complicated task, he said, because "human affection was the issue on the line. There's no civilization without human affection. Do we like each other more than we don't? That is the question and that is what we want to find out."

Kesey drew the support of Gov. Tom McCall, former US Senator Wayne Morse and others at his conference, where California and Montana observers said the meeting would be a model for similar conventions they hope to organize, in those states.

Denver social scientist Amy Roosevelt, a niece of the late president, chaired several council sessions in Bend.

"Errol the musical clown, a professional performer whose real name is Karen Russell, Portland, answered group tensions at Bend with her violin and gave painted girls — 'She's beautiful,'" Kesey said of her.

All was not honeycakes and love beads in Bend.

"The Women's Caucus stomped for a non-ballot statement from the convention favoring free abortion. Kesey's response was: 'I'm not against women. I'm defending the small. As a nation, we take the life of the small. We don't do to Russia and China what we did to Vietnam.' Any woman who feels she wants an abortion because she can't take care of the child — she can give me the child."

The full delegation argued. Kesey snapped. Key feminists tried to stave off a cloture straight ahead. "We are a model for other states," the majority vote declared. "We cannot split over any single issue." The free-abortion phrase was edited out.

"The ladies came over. Kesey recalled a few days later. "They said they didn't take it as a private battle between themselves and myself. Was human affection strong enough? Oh, yeah. Oh, yeah. That was our crisis — you can report that affection held."

Kesey said the idea for his conference came from a Montana pig farmer who told him: "Go give politics back to the people. 'Get all them issues and put 'em on the TV."

Special diet not needed

By GEORGE C. THOSTESSON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thostesson: After having had diverticulitis a few years ago but having been in perfect health since, is it necessary to stay on the following diet?

No nuts, grapes, raisins unless seedless; no uncooked fruit or vegetables, no corn because of the skin on the kernels, or skin of apricots, unless mashed; no tomatoes or cucumbers unless seeds are taken out first.

Is any cereal all right to eat if put in milk? — Mrs. S.E. Since you are in good health and have no symptoms related to the diverticulosis, I see no reason for you to avoid foods that contain bulk — which applies to most of your question.

In fact, in recent years a totally bland diet has been losing favor for diverticulosis and diverticulitis, and patients do better with more bulk in their diet instead of little bulk. Cereals should not bother you, and indeed some specialists in this problem have even had patients eat a certain amount of bran.

Your Good Health

Tomato and cucumber seeds are soft and I doubt if these will cause you any trouble; I would, however, avoid seeds such as those in blackberries, raisins or grapes. You might do well to be cautious about corn.

But keep this in mind: The final decision has to be made on the basis of results. If some food item begins giving you distress, avoid it!

Dear Dr. Thostesson: What are the causes or symptoms of glaucoma? Is it curable? Is it inherited? What is the treatment? If you have a booklet on it, I will send for it. — E.G.

The cause of glaucoma is not usually apparent — and unfortunately the symptoms in most cases are not recognized by the patient until the condition is advanced. It amounts to an increase in pressure inside the eyeball, and given time this pressure will destroy eyesight, so it is a dangerous condition.

It can be detected, however, quite readily by a simple medical test which measures pressure in the eye. If pressure is excessive, then the use of drops, and in some cases eye surgery, can reduce the pressure and prevent the damage.

Yes, I have a booklet which tells you what to do in case of either cataracts or glaucoma and I recommend that you read it. Send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed return envelope to me in care of Times-News for it.

Dear Dr. Thostesson: Would you write whether you think a lazy eye that wanders only when my granddaughter (10 years old) is tired or nervous should be operated on? She has tried glasses and exercises but they do not help. — E.T.S.

This is the kind of question I can't undertake to answer, first because I would want to know a good deal more about her condition before forming an opinion, and second (and more important) I think this should be answered by an ophthalmologist. Eye specialist, that is.

Dear Dr. Thostesson: Is it true that the greatest danger of pregnancy is right before one's period and right after it? Also is it true that the older a woman is, the less chance that she will have a child? — A.D.

First question: No, those are the times of least risk. Second question: fertility declines with age, but not usually noticeably until the late 40s as a rule.

Before he acted on the idea, Kesey himself had jangled through deep personal shifts.

In the 1960's, while sending roses with money from his books "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and "Sometimes a Great Notion," he led his acid-dropping "Merry Pranksters" across country in a wildly painted bus, he recalled.

That tack led to the Mexican jungles, where the best-selling author sought to escape arrest on state-side drug cases. That led to time spent in a California jail.

Just before the Bend meet got underway, Kesey, now a gentleman farmer, stood near Fayette, his country-born wife of nearly 20 years. The dairy spread at Pleasant Hill, Ore., held the noise raised by their four children — Shannon, 13, Zana, 13 (not twins); Jed, 11; and Sunshine, 8.

Hawaiian auto roundup created bumper fish crop

HONOLULU (UPI)—Peeking out of glove compartments and breeding under car seats are the contented tenants of one of Hawaii's most successful housing projects. Artificial reefs created from wrecked cars have increased marine population by more than 400 percent. Dumping cars into the Pacific Ocean two years ago during a cleanup project called the "great automobile roundup" has produced a bumper crop of fish.

Eddie Anderson, a dynamic insurance company executive who headed the project in the face of tough opposition from environmentalists, is a satisfied man today, citing an overwhelming increase in species of fish whose numbers were dwindling dangerously. Some of these fish are found only in the Hawaiian Archipelago, and were in danger of extinction, Anderson said. "Before we dropped in the cars, there were 103 pounds per acre of fish in the area of the reef off Waianae and 37 pounds per acre in the area of Maunaloa Bay," Anderson said. Divers found that with the artificial reefs—the Waianae fish count jumped to 2,631 pounds per acre and 1,583 pounds per acre at Maunaloa Bay.

"The number of species has more than doubled," Anderson said. He spearheaded a three-month roundup of abandoned vehicles after convincing Mayor Frank Fasi of Honolulu that the cars could create a breeding ground for fish.

The Gossip Column

Q: Is Senator John Tunney really going to marry actress Liz Ashley? — J. W., La Jolla, Calif.

A: Their romance is pretty hot and heavy, but we doubt a marriage is in the offing since the Senator will be playing down his divorced status when re-election time comes and Ms. Ashley, famous for her saucy lifestyle and dirty talk, is on the record that she is against marriage and doesn't know what marital fidelity means. As a help-mate, she'd be an even bigger handicap to the Senator's career than the outspoken Marjorie Davis has been for New York's Senator Jacob Jarvis.

Q: Your mentioning Cathy Martin's five servants got us to wondering whether movie stars have an easier time getting help than us civilians. — H. Y., Lexington, Ky.

A: Getting a cleaning woman in Hollywood is just as tough as anywhere else. Look what happened to Raquel Welch recently. An agency sent around a woman who marched up to Raquel's bedroom and pulled the blankets off the actress saying she wanted to see what Raquel looked like. Then she prowled around the bedroom throwing open closets and drawers to examine the star's wardrobe. The lady refused to leave and finally the police had to be called.

Q: I saw "The White Dawn" and have a bet with a pal that it's the first feature film ever made in the Arctic. Is it? — J. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

A: No. Robert Flaherty filmed his classic "Nanook of the North," there in 1922 and ten years later W. S. Van Dyke filmed "Eskimo." But "White Dawn" is the first R-rated film ever made there. (Stars Warren Oates and Timothy Dalton had to keep warm, some way.) "Ransohoff" fought for a G-rating, but refused to cut the bedroom scenes and ended up with an R.

QUICKIES: The pretty 25-year-old named Julie Garfield now training at the National Theatre in London is the daughter of the late Hollywood tough guy John Garfield, who died in 1952. Sunbeam Appliances tells us that the famous "Shot of Steam" Iron is their patented trademark (not someone else's) reported that they have indeed been selling plenty of them via their TV commercial. Paul Getty's chief swimmer's his kidnipppers cut off his car was that he wouldn't be able to wear sunglasses. Happily, however, he now finds that he still can.

JULIE GARFIELD

HELL HATH NO FURY ETC. — A staffer on the Today show has brought charges against the program for libeling her. Furthermore, she's trying to sell a rather tasteless kiss and tell story about herself and one of the stars in various major magazines. So far, no takers.

SEN. TUNNEY and LIZ
...hot romance

Q: Do the Panovs, who got out of Russia to Israel, speak English? Will they visit America? Are they now able to dance again? — J. T., Boston, Mass.

A: Former ballet stars Majlary and Galina Panov don't speak English. Even their Hebrew is limited to "Shalom." Mrs. Panov has a minimal knowledge of French. They are now taking ballet class again but it will require some time for them to regain their physical stamina. They do hope to dance sooner than expected with Israel's Hitler company which is modernist, not classical. The Panovs hope to visit Britain and America to thank their many supporters who pressed for their release from the Soviet Union.

THE CHIC SHEIKS: Noyudays the expression "Nouveau Rich" has been replaced with the saying "Arab Rich." Sheik Zaid bin Sultan al Nihyan, ruler of the Abu Dhabi emirate, looked over all the private jets in the world from Hugh Hefner to Queen Elizabeth II. He decided the Queen's British VC was the one for him; so he ordered two and optioned a third with bedrooms and drawing rooms installed for his 13 children. The cost: 3 million dollars but that doesn't bother the Sheik. His oil wells take in 2 million a day.

Q: Is Richard Burton really interested — in the young girl he took with him to Europe? — B. N., Albuquerque, N. M.

A: Richard is interested in many women who pass before his field of vision. But that doesn't necessarily spell romance. The 49-year-old actor says his holiday companion, 27-year-old Ellen Rosen (daughter of Burton's old friend, the late director Robert Rossen) is a "goodchild" and "I have tried to make it plain that I have known her since she was five years old." There is no evidence so far that Richard's interest in Ellen is anything more than fatherly. We'll see.

Q: So many Russians have defected from the Soviet Union. What about China? How many Chinese traveling abroad have asked for political asylum? — T. T., Hamilton, Ohio.

A: So far only 24-year-old Tsui Yen-ming, a Chinese student studying in London. The Chinese Embassy has been trying to get the British Foreign Office to return Tsui to no avail. There are some 133 other Chinese students living in London and all of them have been ordered to leave their hotels and live in the official hostel that the People's Republic of China runs in England.

CLIFFORD and EDITH
...separate ways

Q: Did the Clifford Irving divorce take? Will they be married? — E. T., Tenafly, N. J.

A: Edith said she intended to divorce Cliff, but when she got out of her Swiss jail, they appeared to have done it. Now York and talked of staying together. But now Edith is back on the Isle of Ibiza with their children and Cliff is still hanging around Manhattan. He is doing the Long Island smart set scene with a noble young blonde who frequently calls up people met in their travels to invite them to come to the Cheeser Hotel and join our love-in!

...heavy betting

Q: I'm confused. Is Liza Minnelli still married to Australian Peter Allen and just separated or what? — D. McG., N. Y., N. Y.

A: Liza and Peter were just separated but a couple of weeks ago he signed the divorce papers. Friends are betting that Liza is going to marry Jack Hilkey, Jr. any minute.

QUESTION YOU NEVER ASKED: What's new in the drug scene? The hottest story from Harlem and other betties is that the Black Liberation Army is kidnaping the big deaf drug king, holding them for ransom and stealing their heroins. They take the "smack" at gunpoint, wrap it in fresh packages with "BLA" and a clenched fist stamped on the package, then give it to smaller pushers to sell. In the drug world, the package to buy is the BLA one because the heroin is not cut. It is "dynamic H. very pure," says one insider.

...funds needed

Q: Is it true they are still searching for the plane in which Glenn Miller died? — F. R., Brown, Tex.

A: Yes. John Edwards, a sales manager, has been making solo flights to find the plane in which the husband died in World War II and thinks he has finally located the spot 125 miles off the coast of Kent, England. So far the search has cost Edwards $200,000 and he is asking Miller fans to help him raise the $77,000 to lift the wreck from 200 feet of water.

SAUCE FOR THE GANDER AINT SAUCE FOR THE GOOSE: Guess who is sore because her ex-husband has decided to take a new wife? None other than perennial beauty and actress Merle Oberon, who left her Mexican industrialist hubby Bruno Paglia for life with a young Dutch actor. But now Bruno, recovering from a stroke, has found an Italian lovely he wants to make Mrs. Paglia. Merle is said to be mad as hops.

Q: I thought David Niven's autobiography, "The Moon's a Balloon," was just great. Do you think he'll write another since that was a best seller? — S. S., Savannah, Ga.

A: We think he'll have to write another. Niven took a rather shabby advance from his publisher for second book and now they're pressing for delivery. Since the actor admits he spent the money there's nothing to do but write a sequel.

Q: Who is the man, who sounds like Henry Kissinger, doing commercials for automobiles in Washington? — H. E., Midland, Va.

A: He is Frank Sibley, a staff assistant to California's Democratic Congressman John Moss. Sibley also does senatorial imitations of Senator Edward M. Kennedy.

Q: You mentioned that Xaviera Hollander was doing a new book which reminded me that I heard they were going to make a movie of "The Happy Hooker." Who's the star? — L. L., Wood, Tex.

A: The star is supposed to be Ursula Andress but she won't sign until they show her a good script and tell her who the director is going to be. If the movie doesn't get off the ground by October the rights will revert to co-author Robin Moore, who sold their for $150,000.
