Lynn outlines housing problems

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Housing Secretary James T. Lynn spelled out to President Ford today the problems facing the nation's hard hit housing industry — an industry he said is suffering "from all the things that inflation produces."

Lynn was one of several top economic advisers who met with Ford to discuss what to do about the nation's economy.

Action asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Dan Rostenkowski, chief counsel of the Senate Watergate Committee, said Monday he believes former President Richard Nixon should be prosecuted for obstruction of justice in the Watergate cover-up.

Dash said the fact the former president resigned from office is not enough. He made his comments in speaking before the National Press Club.

Ford accepts Romanian visit bid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today accepted an invitation from Romanian President Nicolae Ceausescu to visit the Communist country.

"I would like to accept the invitation," Ford told Ceausescu's emissary Vasile Pungan, who delivered the invitation. "It is a question of when we can make initial arrangements."

"We accept with pleasure," Ford added.

Hodgsons file death claim

BOISE (UPI) — Parents of a Peacetto boy who died on a survival training course in the desert near Topper in June have filed a $300,000 claim against the state.

Charles Hodgson Jr. and his wife, Sandra, said the claim sustained $150,000 damages through the loss of their son Jeffrey, 11, in addition to $150,000 special damages.

Jail opposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William B. Saxke said he will recommend against a prison term for draft evaders when a justice department panel issues its final report to President Ford next week.

Saxke said "the extreme requirement would be to demand two years of substantial service in hospitals or some public works as conscientious objectors have done to fulfill their military obligation."

K.E. Otto, 60 dies suddenly

TWIN FALLS — Kelly E. Otto, 60, Twin Falls, owner of Otto News Agency, died suddenly Monday evening at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Otto established the news agency in 1945 when he came to Twin Falls from Salt Lake City, where he was a district manager for Curtis Publishing Co. He operated the magazine distribution business until his death.

Funeral arrangements will be announced through Reynolds Funeral Chapel.

Greeks organize guerrilla units

By United Press International
Greek Cypriots have begun organizing a guerrilla army on Cyprus to fight the Turkish invasion force, political sources in the capital city of Nicosia said today.

The sources said Greeks have begun recruiting for a "Cyprus Liberation Army" among refugees along the southern coast of Cyprus and in the island's western mountains.

Cyprus President Glafcos Clerides meanwhile, appeared to be taking a more flexible stand on a peace settlement.

Construction worker injured

IDaho FALLS (UPI) — An Idaho Falls construction worker was burned on the hands, arms and chest when a gas pipe broke and exploded during the installation of a water pipe line Monday.

David Heath, 24, was treated for the burns at an Idaho Falls hospital and released.

Officials said the fire on the gas line burned until the gas company could shut off the fuel about 30 minutes later.

The construction work was part of an addition to the Sunset Sporting Goods Center at Idaho Falls. The buildings were not damaged by the fire.

Press meet set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford plans to hold his first news conference on Wednesday.

Officials said the news conference will be held at noon MDT in the East Room of the White House and broadcast live on radio and television.

Ford held 55 news conferences during his 10 months as vice president. His predecessor, Richard M. Nixon, held only one news conference in 1974 on March 6.

TWIN FALLS — A key study committee has recommended that rangeland along a 15-mile stretch of the Snake River Canyon north of Twin Falls should be retained for agricultural uses.

At the same time the study report asked steps be taken to purchase all undeveloped public and private lands along a section of the canyon from north of Twin Falls for future public recreational use.

The study involved a number of federal agencies at the request of a Twin Falls County advisory committee set up to consider the future of the canyon.

The report, which dealt with a 15-mile long, 1 1/2-mile wide section of the canyon, said "it is our opinion that agriculture usage is the highest and best use of the Prime Agriculture Land and policies should be adopted by public officials and the public to protect this land from urban usage."

The area designated for recreational use along the canyon floor stretches from one mile east of the Perrine bridge to a point one mile west of the mouth of Rock Creek.

The recommendation was part of a report by a Snake River Canyon Rim Study Committee presented during a meeting of the Canyon Advisory Committee. The study began last January and has just been completed. It was made public for the first time Monday night.

The study deals with all lands between the Hansen bridge and the point west of Twin Falls where Rock Creek empties into the Snake River. The study of the area was made by the soil conservation districts in Twin Falls County with the cooperation of the Agricultural Research Service, Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service, Bureau of Land Management and the Soil Conservation Service.

It deals with existing land use types of soil, roads, utilities, drainage and land ownership.

A large amount of the land is already publicly owned, the report indicated.

In addition to steps to protect the land for future public use through public agency acquisition, the report also recommended a tax program to discourage private individuals from purchasing the land for speculation. Such taxes would be high enough to assure the highest possible use of the lands. The committee suggested tax assessments based on the highest and best legal use such as commercial or home use.

Committee members asked county officials to request the Idaho Legislature to change the present 3-acre designation for agricultural land designation to 4 acres. Pointing out the present state law stipulates agriculture land is presently defined as 1/2 acre or more, the committee said a 5-acre tract is too small for agricultural purposes.

The study and recommendations will be presented Wednesday night in Jerome County.

The study report will also be given the South Idaho Resources Planning Association. Roy Jesser, Snake River Soil Conservation District chairman, introduced speakers Monday night. Gary Muckle, soil specialist, SRCS, presented the aerial maps and photographs showing soil areas.

Snake rim acquisition proposed

CANYON rim lands" and those in the canyon along Snake River should be acquired and held for future public recreation use, say members of a special canyon study committee. A study of a 12-mile stretch of the canyon was presented the Canyon Rim Advisory Committee Monday night. Areas such as those at left could be acquired for public access.

Ford picks dates for economic meet

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — President Ford's summit conference on inflation will be Sept. 27 and 28, preceded by a series of preliminary meetings between the administration and leaders of individual sectors of the nation's economy.

The White House press secretary, J. R. Terlorst, announced today that the President had set five goals for the summit meeting, but added that "it would not be realistic to expect President Ford to achieve a miracle."

At a meeting with his cabinet Monday, Ford said that the summit meeting, which he intends to preside over personally, must consider "new and realistic" policies to cope with inflation.

Terlorst said at a news briefing that the following are the goals of the conference set forth by the President:

- 1. To clarify the nation's present economic condition.
- 2. To identify the causes of inflation.
- 3. To develop a consensus on basic policies to deal with inflation.

Terlorst said the President also intends to consider new and realistic approaches to the inflation problem.

5. To define hardship areas, requiring immediate action.

Terlorst and other White House officials did not mention any specific areas that might require immediate action. However, Ford has already received recommendations for dealing with specific problems, including the decline in the construction industry, hardships faced by citizens living on fixed incomes and the rising unemployment rate.

Ford will get as chairman of two of the preliminary meetings as well as spending as much time as possible presiding over the Sept. 27-28 summit, Terlorst said. All meetings will be open to news coverage, including live television.

Ford, Terlorst said, wants to involve "every one in the country — every part of America" in an effort to come to grips with inflation.

The first preliminary meeting would be Sept. 15 in Washington and would include economists representing a wide spectrum of opinion.

TV clash brings threat to call off Evel jump

BOISE (UPI) — Promoters of the Evel Knievel's jump over the Snake River Canyon today threatened to cancel the Sept. 8 leap if CBS was granted exclusive rights for live coverage of the event from state lands on the canyon rim.

CBS offered the State Land Board $50,000 for use of state-owned land on the North Rim of the canyon where Knievel is scheduled to land.

Land board members took no action on the request but voted unanimously to reopen bidding for use of the land. They will have a public session at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

Don Branker, representing Top Rank Productions, warned that if the board allowed CBS the right to cover the event from the north rim that the event would be called off.

But Kevin O'Malley of CBS, who made the offer to the board, said he doubted it.

He said if Knievel were here and said he would call off the jump "it would be somewhat different than what you heard here this morning."

O'Malley told the board that CBS would do whatever the state desired to provide necessary security for the area.

Branker countered that it would be impossible for CBS to secure this "treacherous area" in less than two weeks. He said there was no way that people unfamiliar with the area could be brought in and "safely" secure the area.

"We're talking about people's lives," Branker said, referring to the fact that if the area "was not secured spectators could get hurt and possibly be harmed."

Members of the Idaho Press Club asked the board to allow them in the north rim area to cover the jump as a news event.

Press club member Dan Sneed of KTVB television, Boise, contended that the land belonged to the people and it would be wrong to exclude members of the Idaho media.

To exclude certain members of the media certainly is not good relations between the state, the press and the public," Sneed said.

He also argued that it was not an enclosed arena but was "over a natural resource" of the state of Idaho. You can't lease the sky over it if where he will land."

Knievel's attorney, James May of Twin Falls, and Branker said, however, that considerable amounts of money had been spent by promoters of the sky jump and that they should be entitled to the "right of privacy."

May said opening the north side could result in possible lawsuits.

"We're entitled to our privacy," said Branker. O'Malley said if CBS was granted the rights in live coverage there would be "no undue publicity" because the network didn't want to damage Top Rank, which secured the closed television rights.

Filer-man hurt

TWIN FALLS — Paul Rokestad, 31, Filer, is listed in fair condition today in the intensive care unit of Magic Valley Memorial Hospital where he is being treated for chest wounds.

Hospital officials said he suffered three severe knife wounds in the chest. He also suffered face lacerations.

Capt. Tim Qualls, Twin Falls' chief of detectives, said Rokestad was taken to the hospital from the Pioneer Bar about 9:30 p.m. Monday after an altercation.

Qualls said officers have been unable to obtain identity of the assailant and the victim said he did not know the identity of the man.

Qualls said it was difficult to question Rokestad, however, because of his condition.

Grandpa leads Soviet flight

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union announced today it has orbited a two-man team of rookie cosmonauts, one of them the first grandfather in space. In a wrap-up for next summer's Soviet-American joint space flight.

Western space experts said they expected the spacecraft, designated Soyuz 15, would dock later this week with the Salyut 3 space station that has been in orbit for two months.

They said Salyut 3, visited last month for 14 days by the two-man Soyuz 14 crew, has enough food and supplies for the new team to remain on board seven to 10 days.

He predicted the Soyuz would dock with the Salyut by Thursday.

Lt. Col. Gennady Sarafanov, the commander, and Col. Lev Demin, 48, the flight engineer, took off Monday night aboard Soyuz 15 on their first space mission, the Tass news agency said.

Mr. T-N says

Men of Lindbergh's stature are unique in their places in history.

Famed flier Lindbergh dies at 72 of cancer

HONOLULU, Hawaii (UPI) — Charles A. Lindbergh, who became the idol of millions when he made the first solo flight across the Atlantic 47 years ago, died Monday and was buried in a tiny churchyard on the island of Maui far from the crowds he avoided most of his life.

Lindbergh, 72, died at 7:45 a.m. in an isolated beach cottage overlooking the Pacific Ocean where he had chosen to spend his final days.

His doctor, Dr. Milton Howell, said he died of a malignant tumor of the lymphatic system.

At his bedside were his wife, Anne, and a son, Land.

"Although the 'Lone Eagle' was an idol to the generation that cheered his daring 25-hour and 29-minute flight from New York to Paris in the 'Spirit of St. Louis' in 1927, he shunned publicity and public appearances after the kidnapping of his son in 1932.

He was buried in work clothes in a simple coffin-hand made by the Hawaiian cowboys who were his neighbors in the village of Kipahulu on the slopes of the Haleakala volcano that in recent years had become his home.

Reds ambush Saigon force

Saigon (UPI) — Communist troops ambushed tank-backed government forces trying to secure a main road between Saigon and a provincial capital about 35 miles northwest of the capital, military sources said today.

Officers said 12 Communist soldiers and seven government men were killed in the pitched battle Monday and a government armored car was destroyed by a Communist rocket grenade.

Military sources said the Communists started the ambush near Highway 22, the main route between Saigon and the provincial capital of Tay Ninh.

The South Vietnamese were attempting to secure the roadside in a sweep about 20 miles from the strategic highway when the Communists hit.

Just 22 miles north of Saigon, a new outbreak of fighting was reported around the established Tan Uyen district capital.

At Bien Hoa Airbase, a military helicopter crashed seconds after takeoff. Four crewmen were wounded. The crash touched off rockets in the gunship and eight other helicopters parked nearby were hit, military sources said.

Communist gunners fired three rockets into the airbase area early today, the 11th shelling of Bien Hoa in 10 days. Spokesmen said there were no casualties or damage in today's shelling.

In Phnom Penh a cargo plane, operated by two American crewmen and carrying 40 passengers crashed Monday after takeoff from Kompong Som airport, military sources said. The fate of those aboard was not known.

The sources said the C-46 cargo plane slammed into a bay south of Kompong Som airport, 134 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, moments after taking off in overcast skies.

A passing ship witnessed the crash, the sources said, and its seamen pulled all 10 passengers and the American pilot and copilot from the bay.

Budget plan eyed

BOISE (UPI) — A new budget system under study by Idaho officials would have individual state agencies paying for their office space and janitorial services.

The plan behind the plan, D.F. Chilberg, the director of administrative services, believes the interaccount billing system could save the general fund $500,000 a year.

He says it could keep agencies from using more space than they need.

"We're proposing to fund the building services program from interaccount billing," said Chilberg.

Each agency would pay its share of the costs for administering state government, based on the square footage floor space used by the agency.

In that way, he said, the state could "properly account for programs and where the state money is going."

Agencies would be billed for rent on their office space, building grounds fees, parking spaces, janitorial services, insurance and purchasing services provided by Chilberg's department.

While the plan would greatly reduce the annual fee budgeted for administration, it would increase the requests for each agency in a direct ratio to size.

The savings, he said, would come from the general fund and would be conserved by having federally funded programs and dedicated fund programs paying their share of the overall costs.

In providing the administrative services to federal programs, he said, "it's in effect a subsidy for those programs" with the state footing the bill.

"They should pay their fair share of the cost of those services," he said.

In some cases, Chilberg said, the system proposed to go into effect for the 1976 budget would enable state agencies to get additional funds from the federal government.

Chilberg pointed to the Law Enforcement Planning Commission as an example of how the new system would work.

He said the LEPC has a $2 million budget from the federal government and receives approximately $100,000 as a state contribution.

Hal Turner, the director of the Division of Budget, Policy Planning and Coordination, said he is not sure yet what impact the interaccount procedure would have on the budget process and on the agencies.

His staff is studying the plan and trying to predict its possible impact.

Turner said in the meantime he is encouraging agency directors to turn in their budgets for 1976 even if they do not have the interaccount billing figure included. The budget estimates were due Aug. 15, although Turner said some agencies were granted extensions.

When asked how the individual agencies are receiving the plan, Chilberg said, "No agency likes it."

"Every agency is jealous of its own funds. They don't have the overall picture to deal with but we do, but I'm confident that every agency will be able to work with whatever decision is arrived at. They've always been very cooperative."

Woman accomplice causes distraction

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "I guess she provided the distraction and he got the money," a police spokesman said of the man-woman robbery team that stole $2,000 from an Office of Empire Savings and Loan Monday.

The braless woman bandit wore a knit white top so sheer that police first reported the bank had been robbed by a barebreasted woman. Her partner mannequined a letter with what appeared to be a police hidden in a handkerchief.

Police said the male thief could not describe the woman bandit's face.

Hagerman shows slated

HAGERMAN This season's final performances of the Antique Festival Theatre are scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday in Hagerman.

The outdoor show to be held in the Hagerman High School football field will feature two events, "Mistress of the Inn" Tuesday night and "Honky Tonk Angels" on Wednesday night. Both performances begin at 8:30 p.m. Special student rates, family rates and free admission to all senior citizens are available.

TF meet to air traffic matters

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Traffic and Safety Commission will meet Thursday noon to discuss several traffic matters, including a study of bicycle trails within the city.

City Manager Jean Millar said the committee will also reorganize Thursday as this is the first meeting since general new appointments to the group.

He said a study has been completed by the city engineering department as to bicycle traffic within the city. Need for bicycle trails and travel facilities will be discussed along with the importance of education of bicycle operators.

The city manager said the study deals with several classifications of bicycle traffic. These include bicycles used by school children as transportation to schools, bicycles used by children to reach city parks and recreation facilities and adults bicycling to work or to downtown areas for other purposes.

The final classification, he said, deals with bicycle travel for recreational purposes by all age groups.

Other items on the agenda will include closure of the mail to all parking and vehicle traffic and the request of citizens to work on a stop sign at Eighth Avenue North.

Data disclosure ordered

BOISE (UPI) — Federal Judge Fred M. Taylor ordered the Secretary of Agriculture today to disclose the "findings of fact" on which the regional forester, Idaho wilderness recommendations were made.

But the judge, while granting in part the request of Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, declined to order the secretary also to disclose the recommendations of Regional Forester Vern Hamre, Ogden, Utah.

"I'm not sure I can see anything wrong with disclosing the recommendations," Taylor added, "but I don't think case law calls for it."

Idaho Attorney General W. Anthony Park said after the show cause hearing that "we got half a loaf." But he said even that, he considers a victory.

"We'll have the findings of fact of the regional forester, and they'll pretty well tell us what the recommendations have been," Park said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan Dennis argued against even giving the findings of fact to the governor on grounds they were part of the decision making process and therefore included under the fifth exemption to the federal Freedom of Information Act.

He said these recommendations constituted intra-agency memoranda specifically excluded from the FOIA.

Dennis contended that they were a final decision of the regional forester and therefore should be available to the governor.

Delegates close meet on sea law

CARACAS (UPI) — Delegates to the stalemated third United Nations sea law conference started to leave Venezuela today after the selection of Geneva for a follow-up meeting next spring to draft a new treaty.

The remaining delegates at the 14-nation conference lined up details pending the official closing Thursday of the 10-day conference.

The 1,500 delegates will reconvene the conference March 17-May 3 in Geneva and possibly return to Venezuela for a three-week meeting in July. They will sign a "Carcas Convention" on the law of the sea if a treaty has been drafted by then. But an agreement was in sight today.

The conference is ending with the rich and the poor nations split on four major issues: territorial seas, minerals under the sea, bed, pollution control and straits passage.

On a rainy night in Pinebluff, Arkansas, Harry discovered why he banks with B&T.

Three A.M. in a strange town halfway across the country and Harry runs into trouble. Not just a minor irritation, you understand, but a car breakdown that'll keep him, his wife and a year full of kids tied up waiting for parts or they could be late to a family reunion. So Harry called for help.

And he delivered. Through one of our correspondent banks we arranged an auto loan on the spot and got Harry off the spot.

You see, the Bank & Trust is a friendly hometown bank with some powerful connections. Through our network of correspondent banks around the country we can provide you with financial services when you need them, where you need them.

Glider accident fatal

ARCO, Idaho (UPI) — The second hang-glider accident on Big Southern Belle in as many weeks has claimed the life of a second California man.

Butte County Sheriff Richard Lord said the victim of an accident on the hill 20 miles southeast of Arco Monday was identified as Lloyd Marshall Short, 60, of Pasadena, Calif.

The sheriff said Short had made an earlier flight in the morning with an experimental glider that had a high aspect ratio incorporating a slotted frame with a short keel.

The cylindrical cowl, cambered side and quick assembly procedure.

The sheriff said Short apparently did not properly check his craft before taking off. One of the two essential pins used to lock the frame into place was found in the pocket and the remaining pin was found to be defective.

It worked out in mid-air and allowed the pilot suspension system to come loose.

David E. Auel, another hang glider pilot who was in the area at the time of the accident, said the frame collapsed over Short in mid-air.

Much said he saw Short leave the jump point and descend the Butte where normally the air current would have picked him up. Short glided straight and Auel watched him spiral to the ground from an estimated 1,000 feet.

Short is survived by his widow and two children. An Arco funeral home is arranging to transport the body back to California.

Funds earmarked for pool

WENDLETT — A full-day activities netted "good money" for the Wendlett swimming pool fund in the Fun Day Saturday.

Although exact proceeds have not been determined, sponsors of the event were pleased with the results.

Among winners in many event categories, perhaps the most striking was the domination of the tennis tournament by the Ernest Heigl family. Not only did Ernest Heigl win the men's singles and his wife, Carla, capture the women's singles title, but they teamed with their sons, Todd and Rod, to take both first and second place in the parent and child doubles. Carla and Rod Heigl took first while Ernest and Rod Heigl teamed for second.

Carla Heigl also teamed with Mary Waldorf to capture first place in women's doubles. Larry Kober and Fred Blackburn took first in men's doubles at the tennis tournament. Heber and Mary Hoag placed first in the mixed doubles event.

In other wrestling contests, Red Adams took first in the heavyweight division, while Jim Anderson proved the strongest middleweight and Brad Archibald beat the best of light weight contenders.

Not content with winning the arm wrestling event, Adams also topped all adult competition in the watermelon seed spitting contest. Rolfe Marlow, who had taken second in light weight arm wrestling, took third place in adult seed spitting behind Dean Hunsaker.

The teenager division of the seed spitting was won by Mark Higginbotham, while Billy Bum popped the farthest seed at the heavy end under contenders.

Among more than a dozen winners in the dapper derby, for his 18-month old, and under, James Day won the prize for biggest eyes, while J. D. Roberts had the longest eyelashes. Davy John Scott Cutler had the curliest hair, Mickey Chapman the longest hair, and little Chad Swainston the least hair.

Minidoka seeks extradition of 2

RUPERT — The Minidoka County sheriff's office is seeking extradition of two suspects on separate charges.

Thomas A. Norton, 40, Boise, is being sought on a bigamy charge, stemming from a complaint by his first wife, Boise. He was allegedly illegally married to a Rupert woman.

Sheriff's deputy Ray Jarvis said the man had been picked up in Beaumont, Tex., and is awaiting extradition there. Bigamy is a felony under Idaho law.

The sheriff's office is also seeking to extradite Michael Edwin Kelley, early 20's. Kelley has been charged with the theft of over $10,000 worth of herbicide from the Helena Chemical Company, Paul.

Minidoka County Sheriff's deputy Robert Nevares said the theft took place on or about July 15.

Kelley, allegedly stole over 2,000 pounds of herbicide. The chemical had been shipped to Paul by truck. The shipment was awaiting unloading overnight at the chemical plant in Paul when it was stolen.

Kelley is being held by the Riverside, Calif. sheriff's office. Nevares said Kelley has charges pending in California also. Kelley will be extradited following disposition of the California charges.

US needs strong brake

WASHINGTON (UPI)—When President Ford's budget deficit would have "getting the country reeled up and moving," he couldn't have been talking about the economy. Most experts agree that what the United States needs most is a strong foot on the brakes.

The results of a free-spending binge that began in the mid-1960s, were apparent when Ford moved into the Oval Office—rampant inflation, rising unemployment, record interest rates, a sluggish stock market and warning signs of a recession or worse.

The President's top economic strategists believe it will take two to three years of painful retrenchment with penny-pinching, fiscal and monetary "restraints" to overcome the momentum of inflation. During that time, the economy would be running far below its top speed, and unemployment would be uncomfortably high.

But his advisers say that is the price the country must pay to get its economic house in order. And barring major, largely unworkable, legislative proposals, they are starting to surface in speculation about his budget-cutting intentions.

With state and local governments showing healthy budget surpluses, for example, per capita—the federal government could reduce its aid grants to localities. There has been talk of legislative cutbacks in some spending programs requiring laws which account for the ever-escalating "uncontrollable" expenditures in federal budgets.

Another issue is whether Ford will swing his weight behind "controls" of wage-price "controls," even though he has already rejected mandatory controls of the type former President Nixon tried in 1972 and eventually abandoned under fire from business and labor.

Against the advice of Alan Greenspan, approved Monday as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, Ford got Congress to revive the Cost of Living Council as an instrument for spotlighting excessive wages and prices.

Greenspan, who is considered likely to exert strong influence on Ford, believes even such a cursory monitoring by a relatively powerless council would inhibit the free operation of the marketplace. At the least, Ford is expected to continue the "jawboning" pressure for restraint that he used in criticizing General Motors' plans to increase retail prices by 10 per cent.

On the sticky matter of high interest rates, Ford as vice president urged Burns not to go too far in restricting the money supply. But Burns, a hard-liner among the President's advisers, has steadily defended the Federal Reserve's tight money policies as a prime anti-inflation tool.

There is a question whether

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Diabetes versions similar

By GEORGE C. THOMPSON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thompson: What can you tell about "chemical diabetes"? I never heard of it until lately. How is it different from sugar diabetes?—C.S.

Yes, I touched on this before, but maybe on these occasions the item got left out of the column in your paper.

Fundamentally, "chemical diabetes" is pretty much the same as diabetes mellitus or "sugar diabetes," except in degree. Tests show that the blood sugar level is abnormally high and that what "sugar diabetes" is.

There's this difference: The classical symptoms of diabetes, such as thirst, urinary frequency and weight loss, are not present. Or at any rate haven't appeared yet.

It most likely will be found in overweight people or during pregnancy in some women.

It may be that some other eye condition (cataract, glaucoma, even need for new glasses) is causing his trouble. His regular physician or an eye specialist can readily decide what problem is involved and tell him which way to proceed.

Europe's problems awaiting leaders' return

(C) New York Times Service
PARIS — On the 30th anniversary of the liberation of Paris, Europe has many problems, but it is alive and vibrant.
It is liberated in the West, divided in the middle, and occupied by the Russians in the East. But it is not alone and is not afraid.
Paris, on the 30th anniversary weekend, was incredibly beautiful, flooded with sunshine and tourists. There were wild strawberries and raspberries as big as radishes in the restaurants for anybody who could afford them — at $3 or $4 a helping — and trade was good.
All the shops were advertising sales, which means that goods were selling at no more than double their worth, but for the anniversary, at least, nobody seemed to mind.
The old continent still has more problems than it has resources. In short, it's a little broke, but is off on holiday now and will think about all those unpleasant things later.
The painters have taken over the chancellor's official quarters in Bonn, and the decorators are shining up the president's place here in Paris. Chancellor Helmut Schmidt is on a lake in North Germany. President Valéry Giscard d'Estaing is shuttling back and forth between Paris and the southern beaches, and Prime Minister Harold Wilson of Britain is in the Scilly Isles.
Still, Europe remains, particularly on this anniversary, a symbol of the endurance of the human race. There is a certain stubborn wisdom to this leisurely summer pace. Officials in this part of the world have seen through too many disasters to think they can solve complicated problems in a hurry. They assume the problems will be here when they get back from vacation.
For the first six months of this year, the rate of inflation in the major countries of Europe was 27 per cent in West Germany, 12.4 in France, 14.4 in the United States, 10.2 in Canada, and 24.2 in Japan. It is now running at the rate of 20 per cent in Britain, which is now talking not only about a general strike but now to keep it from being handled by illegal means.
From West to East along the Mediterranean, a sinking deflator and more trouble to come in Portugal; a sinking deflator and transition to monarchy in Spain; bankruptcy in Italy; and a virtual state of war between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus, on the southern flank of the NATO alliance.
Beyond that, other tangles to come. For the old generation of leaders is passing, and, after Tito, it is not clear what will happen in the volatile Balkans.
Perhaps the greatest tragedy of these 30 years lies in the fact that Europe, more than a generation after the last war, is not really liberated, but amputated, with the Eastern half still dominated by the Red Army, and Germany still in two.
Europe has adapted to this but not accepted it. In the West, it was made a start toward economic unification, but the dreams of unity at the end of the war have eluded it.
On this, 30th anniversary, it seems enough to hope that things are much better than they were. They will talk about the inflation and other unpleasant subjects when they come back from the sea.

Hansen should know better

Congressional candidate George Hansen may be in more trouble than he thinks.

Hansen admits his campaign workers have accepted a number of contributions from corporations which he describes as family corporations.

The U.S. Code strictly prohibits any federal candidate from accepting contributions from any corporation, whether or not a family business is involved. In the unlikely event the U.S. Justice Department decides to prosecute under the long-established law, Hansen could face serious penalties.

The candidate has said 21 corporate checks ranging from $10 to $200 were accepted mistakenly by his campaign workers who had no criminal intent.

Unfortunately for Hansen, the law makes no provision for such mistakes. Even a mistaken receipt of such a donation would bring penalties of up to a year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

In more serious cases, where the violation is "willful," the corporate officers consenting to the donation and "any person who accepts or receives" the contributions shall be fined up to $10,000 and/or suffer imprisonment of up to two years.

Hansen argues two points in his defense.

First he says that the law is unduly restrictive to family corporations. Such a corporation, perhaps a family farm, would be prohibited from donating to a political campaign. His argument has merit.

But, it does not change the law that stands on the books. Perhaps that law will be changed, but until it stands as the law and should be obeyed.

Additionally, Hansen notes there is disagreement on what the law means. He cites a 1961 California district court case which he says holds to support such corporate contributions.

He says the case provides that corporate contributions are acceptable if the corporate stockholders consent to the donation.

Under that ruling, Hansen says, the corporate contributions he received would be legal because all members of the family corporations involved had consented to the donations.

The import of the district court case is not finding here, however, because Idaho is not under its jurisdiction and because it has not been appealed to higher courts.

So we have a situation in which the law appears to say one thing and a lower court decision appears to say another thing.

Under the circumstances it would seem reasonable to expect a seasoned campaigner such as George Hansen to comply with the letter of the law and to bring his enthusiastic troops into line.

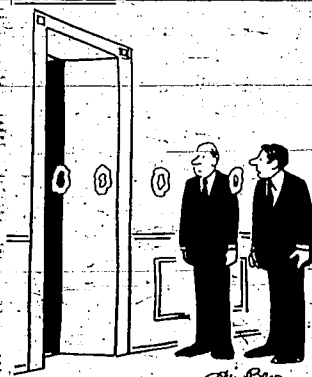

From the information made public in the Hansen case it would appear to be a matter of sloppiness and perhaps inadvertent illegality rather than a deliberate attempt to violate the campaign laws.

Nevertheless there is no place for such questionable conduct in the public arena. Hansen knows better.

Thought for today

"A thought for the day," German novelist Thomas Mann said, "Time costs time clarifies. No word can be maintained unaltered through the course of hours."

Berry's World

You've been around the President for a long time — what does that mean?

SPEAKING OF AMNESTY, I'D ALSO LIKE A CHANCE TO EARN MY WAY BACK INTO SOCIETY

Black despair over future seizes Arab capitals

WASHINGTON — Private word from a top American diplomat to a Western ambassador last week that Israel "has shut the door" to further withdrawal from the Syrian Golan Heights through this instant rejoinder: "It so, that means war."

The exchange is symbolic of the descent from snarling optimism that marked Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's brilliant shuttle diplomacy following the Arab-Israeli war of last October.

Indeed, a mood approaching black despair has now taken hold in all Arab capitals since Kissinger's last Middle East success — pinning down the partial Israeli withdrawal from Syria's Golan Heights on May 31. Since then, the abrupt change of presidents in Washington, coupled with US impotence regarding the Turkish-Greek war on Cyprus, has led Israel into new diplomatic intransigence.

Although it is far too early to prove them right, the Arabs fear that President Ford, long a champion of Israel as a Republican Congressional leader, will be less hardnosed with the Israelis than was Richard Nixon.

Because of his extreme political weakness at home, a desperate president Nixon this year needed diplomatic successes in the Middle East and so leaned hard against Israel. Ford is under no such pressure. Moreover, with the 1974

Congressional elections only two months away, the President might be understandably reluctant to use two-faced pressure.

This at least partially explains Prime Minister Izhak Rabin's new hard line in Jerusalem. Rabin's government has now systematically closed off every bargaining opportunity with the Arabs save one: a second-stage Israeli withdrawal from the Egyptian Sinai peninsula.

But that single opportunity has been tightly closed by the Arabs themselves.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is under overwhelming pressure from other Arab capitals not to make any new withdrawal agreement with Israel on grounds that the Palestinian issue must be dealt with first.

Arab pressure would threaten Sadat with political overflow if he went ahead, as he would prefer with a new Israeli withdrawal agreement.

Thus Israel's desire to negotiate with Egypt is meaningless.

This stalemate, which many experts believe will lead to a far more dangerous war — bloodier, longer and more apt to involve the superpowers — than last October's, has continued despite the parade of Israeli and Arab leaders to Washington the past few weeks.

Indeed, the Ford administration has not yet finally decided where Israel should next be persuaded to move: the West Bank, the Golan Heights or a combination of both.

To prepare for another war, Israel is negotiating with reluctant Pentagon officials for a vast increase in its arsenal: $1 billion in pressure for territorial concessions and that the US would be prepared to pay.

Yet, threatened disintegration of the southern arm of NATO in Greece and Turkey gives new substance to Israel's demands.

Only personal intervention by President Ford, convincing Israel that he will not relax US pressure for territorial concessions and that he stands as firmly behind his secretary of state as Nixon did, can now arrest the alarming decline in once bright hopes for a settlement.

Buildup first obstacle

(c) New York Times Service
I went to Washington to see them change presidents.

Men in business suits did the job on television. All of them said the old president was serene, and finally he came on television in a business suit and said he had to leave because his party wasn't with him any more, and afterwards he left for California.

The new man turned out to be a Congressman I had known briefly in Chicago in 1960.

Anyhow, here he was becoming president. He was in his business suit on television, and the grin was still the same.

What I wanted to see was the buildup he was going to get. Every new president gets a physical buildup when he first takes over.

No matter how vain, mediocre or lousy a new president may be, and no matter how thoroughly detestable everybody may know him to be, he gets the opening buildup.

In any case, the buildup was going furiously in Washington when I arrived, and he hadn't even taken the oath of office yet. I was immediately given to understand that he was the one man in America capable of limiting the country.

The "sweet mixture" was said to surpass all comprehension. His fitness was Lincolnian, his depth of honor, equal to Cat's, his simplicity, a reminder of the early saints; his respect for law, Hammurabic. He commanded the affection of all the Congress, Republican and Democrat alike, and would bring to birth a new era in which all three branches of government would once again move in perfect harmony.

It was hard to feel sorry for the poor guy. The way the buildup was going even before he had spent a night in the White House, there seemed no way he could save himself from being a colossal disappointment before the next Fourth of July.

But there was no stopping the buildup. His brief remarks after taking the presidential oath were instantly acclaimed as indicative of a statesmanship worthy of the Great Pyth.

An idol was being created out of puff. Greatness was being constructed on a foundation of journalistic reflex. The presidency, which had been a ruin one day, was being rebuilt overnight with hot air.

It was always predictable. The question was whether Ford could rise above it. In Chicago in 1960, he seemed capable of holding onto his humanity even if he had gotten that vice presidential nomination, but of course that may have been because he had no hope of it.

The buildup, now that he is president, will make it hard for him not to yield to the temptation to start playing the Great Caesar. He is supposed now to become.

In Washington in those first days, no matter what the buildup suggested, he was still nothing more than the quintessential mundane American hero — the nice guy. A nice guy who had finished first. Traveling from there to greatness is a long journey, and the first obstacle to be overcome is the buildup's gift of instant glory.

Rockefeller may reshape executive leadership

(C) Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON — Interior Secretary Rogers C. Morton, a huge man with a sense of humor to match, will bet you an apple to a doughnut it's the way transplanted Kentuckians talk that Nelson A. Rockefeller doesn't hide his money under a mattress.

If he will, it's fair to say, he'd probably be sleeping close to the ceiling.

Morton is reasonably sure that the former New York governor's financial affairs will be found to be in "apple-pie order" when Congressional committees probe into his qualifications to serve Gerald Ford as vice president. Their interest in his net worth is part Watergate legacy, part peasant curiosity. To ask Rockefeller to account for every penny he has is like asking Carter how many little liver pills he has distributed in his time. Suffice it to say, Rocky has a handle on, presumably, has learned to live with it harmlessly.

Money, as the saying sometimes goes, is the least of Rockefeller's problems as vice president. What may trouble him most are idle hands, make-work jobs, harmless boondoggles.

He could suffer from a severe case of underemployment, despite the earnest intentions of a President who shows no signs of megalomania and seems interested in aligning himself with strong national talent as a veep of Rockefeller's creative energies could serve as a sort of overlord of the domestic council and be on top for a variety of overseas assignments, which assumes that Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is prepared to divvy up his own vast domain.

Considering Rockefeller's formidable credentials, Ford has to realize that in choosing his "teammate" he was posing an enormous challenge for himself, his staff and his cabinet.

For, as a practical matter, vice presidents tend to get lost after the first flush of enthusiasm and an earnest indication of his intentions and a tribute to his interior calm, if not by his realistic self-analysis of strengths and weaknesses within himself.

If he makes it work, to his own and Rockefeller's satisfaction, he will have changed the shape of executive leadership and reversed a existence of relative idleness. The goodless Texan was dispatched to far places on postwar tours, and spent much of his time "pressing the flesh" of startled Asians and inviting camel drivers to visit the United States for a spell.

Much the same happened to LBJ's No. 2, Hubert Humphrey, and also to Richard Nixon in his years as President Eisenhower's vice president. He was painfully familiar with the ignominious chores assigned him.

Ford obviously intends to harness Rockefeller's experience and his nomination is a promise of it. It could be that the system does it, or that his bureaucracy cannot sustain two powerful figures at the top.

For parallels, one recalls Lyndon B. Johnson, who gave up his senate leadership to become John F. Kennedy's vice president, on the assumption that his versatile gifts would be fully employed. LBJ was reduced early to a glorified

DEAR ABBY: We're just about to lose our minds over this problem and I'm hoping you can at least tell us where to go to get some help.

Our 14-year-old daughter has always been very developed for her age, but she's slightly retarded mentally. We just found out that she is pregnant. The boy responsible for it is only 15. (He doesn't even shave yet.) The kids say they went all the way only once, but that is awfully hard for us to believe.

Anyway, the boy's father has been very nice about it. (He's divorced and has custody of the boy.) He has agreed to do anything we want, but we don't know what we want yet.

We really don't want to punish the boy because he's not a bad kid. He's never been in any trouble before, and sending him to a penal institution wouldn't help our daughter any.

A forced marriage, if it's possible for kids of their ages, doesn't seem right either.

Troubled parents

We've considered an abortion, also letting her carry the child to term and adopting it out, or even keeping it ourselves to raise. We are so confused. Everyone we talk to has a different solution.

Can you help us decide what is right for all concerned? TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Consider all the options and discuss them with a priest or a priestess, Family Service, or a counselor from your local Planned Parenthood Association can help you. You are wise to ask for guidance. God bless you, and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: This problem has been bothering me for a long time, and I hope you can help me.

My son, who is a priest and clinical psychologist, sends mimeographed letters to all his relatives and friends every year at Christmastime. It's the only time he writes.

His brothers and sisters have told me that they do not like this idea. They say they realize that he is very busy, but in those Christmas letters all he does is brag about what he has accomplished and the "honors" he has received.

Should I pass their criticism on to my son in the hope that he won't send them this type of letter in the future? I have already told him that I do not like receiving an impersonal mimeographed letter. —HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: You've told your son how you feel. Let the others who share your feelings tell him themselves.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old woman who might have a problem.

You see, about six weeks ago there was a 14-year-old boy living in my neighborhood who had a pretty wild crush on me. His folks were fairly laid off, he didn't seem to have any friends and he seemed so blue and downhearted, one day I invited him in for milk and freshly-baked cookies. He was painfully shy at first, but by the end of the visit he was talking up a storm, and when he left, he looked happier than I've ever seen him.

Two days later I received a letter from him. It said all the usual stuff a 14-year-old might say in a "love" letter. I received one nearly every day after that. Also, he would walk by my house fairly often.

A few weeks ago, his family suddenly moved out of town for some unknown reason and his letters stopped coming.

Now, finally, we come to my problem. I miss him awfully. It's awfully lonely without him popping up from out of nowhere. Is it abnormal for me to feel this way? I mean does it seem right for me to be affected this way by a teen-age boy? LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME: If you actually are entertaining romantic ideas about this lad, yes, it is a bit unusual. But apparently he filled a need in your life, so don't feel guilty about an honest emotion. It's not all that "abnormal."

Let's see what we can do about establishing a basis for choice of which suit to bid when you hold two four-card suits. When they are clubs and spades the rule is easy. Even the most obtuse four-card-suit bidder opens in clubs. North hand with one club.
After that club opening, the bidding moves gently to a final contract of two diamonds and South has no trouble making the contract with an overtrick.
Suppose North opens one spade. There is a real theory in back of this spade opening. North wants to be sure that if anyone does play spades he will be the declarer.

Unique garden

A GARDEN with a different twist has a unique setting in the backyard of the Jim Glandon residence. The cactus and rock garden is a combination of garage sales, desert trips and original and borrowed ideas, explained Mrs. Glandon. The garden has taken a year to put together and is a "hobby" of the Glandons.

Mini-Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.
"The Great Explosion" by Nat Freedland. A lively, comprehensive account of the background and contemporary manifestations of all branches of occult lore and paranormal behavior and experimentation.
"The Lion Triumphant" by Phillip Carr. A spellbinding Gothic novel full of the excitement and color of England in the reign of Elizabeth I.
"The Boy Who Invented Bubble Gum" by Paul Gallio. The story involves international intrigue, a nationwide search for a nine-year old boy and a psychopath who holds the lives of a husband of people in his grenade-filled hand.

"Hang In There" by Dale Armstrong. The author tells of his experiences after being stricken with a mysterious disease.
"The Seduction of the Spirit" by Harvey Cox. The need to find meaning in the complex aspects of contemporary life and to discover the roots of religious feeling is the tone of this book.

Revengeful spree ends in Texas

Captured
RICHARD WILLIAMS, Snyder, Tex., is rushed from the area after he was captured by police officers near Stephenville late Monday when he and two other escaped convicts tried to break out of a police cordon. (UPI)

STEPHENVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Police officers aided by the loud barking of frightened dogs cornered three desperate convicts in the spotlighted side yard of a rural home Monday night, killing one. The other two meekly surrendered, ending a three-site spree of revenge, murder and rape.

The Colorado prison escapees, virtually surrounded in the dry, rolling mesquite hills by 300 law officers, bolted from behind an unoccupied farm home north of Stephenville, Texas, near a rural road, a stakeout of four police officers heard the baying of two dogs.

"When the dogs started barking we jumped out of the patrol car," patrolman Larry Trail said. "We hit them with the spotlight and commanded them to halt."

"They did not halt. We opened fire," Richard Magnum, 22, Denver, stumbled dead on the muddy yard, shot in the head. Jerry Ulmer, 22, Garland, Tex., sprained an ankle and Richard Williams, 29, Snyder, Texas, was unhurt. They had ducked behind a short hedge but dropped their rifles and walked toward the patrol car with their hands up.

The officers fired 15 shots in the space of five seconds, ending the four-day, three-site revengeful spree. The men were charged with killing a 54-year-old rancher and a farmer's wife whose trial testimony helped send them to prison.

Two women were abducted and raped and five persons were shot at random. The convicts' left crude "dummies" fashioned from sheets in their cells at the Stephenville Prison, near a city Thursday night, hid in a yard and slipped over the wall. A prison official fired two guards for negligence.

The men stole a car and raced to Livingston, N.M., abducting two 23-year-old women before being released at Robin, Tex. There, police said, the convicts shot and killed T. Baker, 64, a rancher who was on a "death list" for helping send them to prison. Sunday morning rancher Ray Ott was wounded and his wife killed by a shotgun blast at their Gordon, Tex., home. Both were on the "death list."

Hundreds of law officers rushed to the quiet rural area and slowly cut off all exits of retreat Sunday night. Law officers on horseback and in jeeps and using helicopters tightened the perimeter. Farm families locked their homes or hurried in safety to Stephenville.

U.S. marshals appeared the fugitives had slipped away until a pile of muddy clothes was found in an abandoned farmhouse Monday. A pack of bloodhounds swept over the area but the men were not sighted — until they stumbled, past the two dogs north of Stephenville at 11:05 p.m. Monday.

"We began hollering at the same time. There they are, there they are," Trail said. "If we contact the gentlemen that owns those dogs, we'll buy him a steak dinner."

"None of the moved to awfully fast across the yard. If I had been running for two days, I probably wouldn't have either."

Trail said he didn't know if the convicts fired back. "You can't really say. One had a rifle with a scope. When we ceased fire, there was no other firing whatsoever. They came out of the bushes with their hands up in the air."

Scores of officers rushed to the farmhouse in a light mist. They covered Magnum's body with yellow rain slickers and untied his hands and ankles. The convicts hid by their bodies, three feet from a short barbed wire fence.

Ulmer and Williams, both involved in area burglaries, were rushed to the city jail.

Evidence enough to indict

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sam Dash, counsel for the Senate Watergate committee, says there is enough evidence to indict former President Nixon for the bugging cover-up and he believes Nixon should be prosecuted just like anyone else.

In fact, Dash said Monday, perhaps Nixon should be prosecuted precisely because he was president — and thus violated a "greater trust" than any of his one-time aides who now stand accused or convicted of major crimes.

Answering questions following a speech at the National Press Club, he said Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski has "a responsibility to take Nixon to court in the Watergate grand jury concludes there is probable cause to believe he committed criminal acts."

"If the evidence — and I believe it does — demonstrates that the former president was involved in the obstruction of justice conspiracy, then he should be treated by the grand jury and the special prosecutor as everybody else is treated and should be prosecuted," Dash said.

It was the first time that Dash, who was chief counsel in the summer of 1973 when many details of the scandal unfolded on national television, had spoken out publicly.

Jaworski is weighing whether to press charges now that Nixon is a private citizen. A grand jury voted 19-0 last March to name him an unindicted co-conspirator. In the cover-up when prosecutors admitted the scandal, he indicted white President.

Spokesmen for Jaworski say the decision will not be made for some time. There is "sentiment in Capitol Hill and elsewhere that Nixon has been punished enough by being forced to resign and should not be prosecuted."

Dash said his initial reaction was "to let him on his way" but now thinks equal application of the law demands that Nixon be brought to justice. He stressed that the "legal responsibility" for the scandal rests with the grand jury but eventually Jaworski must approve any indictment the grand jury returns.

Nixon seeks US pulse

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Former President Richard Nixon, indicating he is being pressed by the Senate Watergate prosecutors — asked one of his congressional supporters by telephone Monday, "Do you think the people want to pick the president?"

Rep. Dan Kuykendall, R-Tenn., who once displayed a nose in the House chamber and warned his colleagues not to become a lynch mob, said he did not answer the former President's question directly.

"I kind of switched it back to Congress and said I don't think the people want to do that at all," he said.

The four-term congressman, vacationing with his family in Cherokee, Tex., said in a telephone interview that Nixon did not indicate he had received any official word from special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski regarding a possible prosecution.

"There is no question in my mind but that he just wanted my opinion of the pulse of the people," he said.

In Washington, a spokesman for Jaworski declined comment on the Nixon-Kuykendall exchange.

"This is not the kind of thing to comment on," he said. Kuykendall, who said he cried when informed of Nixon's impending resignation — said Nixon started the conversation by saying: "I just wanted to call you and tell you I appreciated the support of the grand jury who stood up when the going was tough."

"There was a little bit of light conversation," he said. "And then I said flatly, Mr. Nixon, the important thing right now is how are you?"

"He said, 'We've got problems with that today. Uh...uh...uh...'"

"Jaworski?" I said. He said, "Yes."

Kuykendall, who called for Nixon to either resign or be impeached after the damaging Selassie losses all.

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — Emperor Haile Selassie, until six months ago the all-powerful ruler of Ethiopia, has been ordered stripped of most of his palace and wealth and told to leave the capital, diplomats said today.

They said the Armed Forces Committee that began taking over the country in the wake of an armed forces revolt in February has ordered Selassie, 82, confined to within three miles of the capital.

The diplomats said the order represented virtual house arrest and said the "Conquering Lion of Judah" was under close surveillance by his body guards.

With most of his associates, aides and confidants under military arrest, Selassie's most frequent companion is Abuna Tewoflos, Patriarch of the Ethiopian Orthodox church.

for that," and hung up." Kuykendall said the call left him shaken.

"His (Nixon's) tone was one of sadness," he said. "After I hung-up, I told Jackie 'Miss White'."

"You know, that 'lonely sounding man just a few weeks ago' was the most powerful man in the world..."

"That's when I said, 'Mr. Nixon, I'm of the opinion that before many years have passed, this country will have use for your expertise and experience.'"

"Then he said, 'Thank you...'"

Warden fires 2 prison guards

CANON CITY, Colo. (UPI) — The warden of the Colorado State Prison Monday fired two guards accused of negligence in the escape of three convicts who fled to Texas and are charged with two murders.

Warden Alex Wilson said guards Tommy J. Jennings and Mark Van Tatten were dismissed for negligence in their duties. They knew procedure and could have taken further measures if they had any doubts.

The convicts' fashioned dummies from sheets and left them in their cells last Thursday night. They hid in a recreation yard and slipped over the wall, Wilson said.

He said the two guards are instructed to actually see the convicts in their cells during routine rounds.

The two men overlooked the three convicts, Dalton Williams, 29, Snyder, Tex., Jerry Ulmer, 22, of Garland, Tex., and Richard Magnum, 22, of Denver.

Police officers at Stephenville, Texas, killed Magnum and captured his two companions Monday night. Wilson said the three convicts slipped over the prison wall and were spotted by watch tower guards. He said they were subject to possible disciplinary action.

"It's an extensive investigation and it will continue until we are completely satisfied," Wilson said.

Ford recall voluntary

DETROIT (UPI) — Motorists who take advantage of the Ford Motor Co.'s offer to repair a defect in the emission control systems of 222,000 cars may find it hurts their fuel economy.

Ford Monday said it was voluntarily recalling the 1973 and early 1974 models to replace a valve that switches the exhaust gas recirculation system on and off. When it's on, exhaust gases are pumped back into the engine, dropping fuel economy by as much as 3 per cent.

In less than two months since letters have gone out to owners, Chrysler, which also recalled cars due to the defect, reports 22 per cent have brought the vehicles back to dealers.

Hickel in race for former post

By United Press International
Former Alaska Gov. Walter J. Hickel (I) — fired by former President Richard Nixon after he criticized administration policies, tries today to regain the governorship in a GOP nomination which includes his successor, Keith Miller.

Also on the gubernatorial primary ballot is Jay Miller, mayor of Bristol Bay Borough. The winner will face Gov. William A. Egan, a Democrat, whom Hickel defeated in 1969 and is expected to easily win re-election.

In the other state holding a primary today, Gov. David Hall, a 48-year-old Democrat, seeks to become Oklahoma's first 16-term governor. He has been under local and federal investigation for three years in connection with alleged kickbacks on state building projects, but never charged.

The White House said that President Ford has "no immediate plans" to visit China.

Communist Chinese diplomats at the United Nations and in Washington have indicated informally that they are disappointed that U.S.-Chinese relations have not developed faster, and that the Taiwan problem remains unresolved.

Kissinger plans visit to Peking

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger hopes to visit Peking at the end of the year or early in 1975 following the visit of a congressional delegation, State Department officials said today.

The secretary of state, who has been deeply engaged in the Cyprus crisis and the formulation of new peace moves in the Middle East, has been forced to divert his attentions from U.S.-Chinese relations in recent months and delay his earlier hopes for a visit to Peking this fall.

When he goes, Kissinger will be attempting to further improve relations with Peking. At this time, there is no indication that President Ford's administration is contemplating any dramatic new move in U.S. relations with China.

No panic basis: Butz

(c) Washington Star News
WASHINGTON—Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz said Monday there is "no basis for panic" over shortages in the nation's or the world's food supply.
Butz announced that he will continue to urge farmers to "get full season ahead" with their crop planting next year, saying that there will be no government payments for cropland that is not planted in major crops.
Butz took issue with a report released last week at a world population conference in Bucharest, Rumania, which estimated that the world has only 27-day food supply.
"There is more like a 100 day food reserve if you want to get technical about it," Butz said, asserting that the 27 day estimate ignores the world's food stockpiles and substantial flows of grain held by importing nations.
Butz said he will continue to oppose any attempt to impose export controls on U.S. commodities.
He acknowledged that an earlier estimate by his department that food prices would not increase during the third quarter of this year was wrong. A new, revised estimate, he said, projects a food-price increase of 3 per cent during the third quarter and a further increase in the fourth quarter.

Agriculture experts expect food prices to increase about 15 per cent this year, compared with 16 per cent in 1973.
Butz blamed three-quarters of food price increases on what he termed the "farm-retail spread" — the difference between the prices farmers receive and the supermarket price of a product.
The drought in the corn-producing areas of the Midwest is expected to cause a drop in supplies of pork and poultry, which are largely owned feeders.
Butz and a panel of agricultural experts asserted that an increase in the amount of beef coming to market this fall and in the early part of next year will tend to drive down the price of cheaper grades of beef and also help to hold down the price of poultry and pork products.
Butz and the panel said that beef production could be made more efficient through measures the department is now considering, including changing the beef grading system to emphasize the fatty beef, which is a product of costly corn feeding.

Ford cuts Pinto production

(C) New York Times Service
DETROIT—Ford Motor Co. with a three-month supply of unsold Pintos is cutting back production of the subcompact car but says it is still confident that the small-car segment of the market will account for about half of this year's sales.
The No. 2 auto firm said Monday it will close the assembly line at its plant in San Jose, Calif., for 10 days beginning Sept. 16 as a move that will cut through 2,000 workers. When the plant resumes Sept. 26, the car production line speed will be cut from 54 to 40 units an hour.

a spokesman said, and 700 of the workers will be on indefinite layoff.
The plant builds the subcompact Pinto and the Mustang II, a car of subcompact proportions but marketed as a sports model.
The spokesman said the cutback will not affect Mustang II production all the reduction will be in Pinto production.
Technically, the shutdown is being called a model change, using a model Sep. 16 and 1975 output starting Sept. 30. But Ford officials admit the cutback is being made because demand for the Pinto is less than what the plant's sales is not as great as it was.

Sawtooth Valley landowners rip US regulations

By BART QUESNELL
Times-Herald Staff Writer

STANLEY — Sawtooth Valley landowners Monday ripped into U.S. Forest Service regulations which eliminate part of Obsidian and the Pett Lake subdivision in the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

The grievance session, called by state attorney general candidate Wayne Kidwell and U.S. Senate hopeful Bob Smith. Both are Republicans.

After the meeting, Kidwell recommended that the Obsidian Landowners Association file a "declaratory review" brief with a federal judge in Boise.

Kidwell said he would volunteer services and secure a lawyer for the group if it wished to fight the federal regulations. He said he could not personally represent the Obsidian group and receive money because of conflict of interest claims during this election.

A clause in the SNRA legislation states that landowners within the SNRA may appeal to U.S. District Court within six months from the time the regulations take effect. The brief will have to be filed before Oct. 29.

The Obsidian Landowners Association has agreed to file the brief before the deadline.

The group retains a Boise attorney but hosts a not at the meeting Monday.

Kidwell said, if elected, he would request a complete review of the constitutionality of the SNRA. He said landowners now can contest the regulations only under pending legislation.

Smith said he would try to Washington today and would try to talk with Forest Service officials. Smith said he was totally opposed to federal intervention on private land.

"Individual owners do the best planning of all," Smith said "followed by local cities. It's very seldom a planner is smarter than the ordinary man."

Smith said planning by federal or state agencies is "imposing on a man's personal taste."

Nick Nichols, an Obsidian motel owner on the west side of U.S. 93, said the Forest Service has offered only one thing that he feels is worth his worth. Nichols said he turned off the power and asked if a land trade could be arranged somewhere else in the SNRA.

Area residents objected Monday to elimination of Pett Lake Subdivision

Canyon study requests public rim ownership

Minidoka rejects bid

RUPERT — Minidoka County commissioners rejected a bid for a garage at the county landfill Monday.

The commissioners met in a special bid opening meeting Monday afternoon. The board received only one bid for the garage from Valley and West, Rupert. They rejected the bid because it was almost twice as high as the budgeted amount. Valley and West bid $7,680 for the building; about $1500 was budgeted. The bid was for a larger building than specified.

The commissioners may not have the building constructed until the spring of 1975 when a new budget will be in effect.

Commissioners appointed Hazel Peterson, Rupert, to the Minidoka Memorial Hospital board to replace Marvin Lonsie, Paul, who resigned because of moving. Lonsie's term would have run to June of 1975.

Dave Armstrong, chairman of the advisory committee, expressed his appreciation to the study group. He said the advisory committee will meet in two weeks to compile material and begin preparing recommendations to the county commissioners.

In other recommendations, the study group Monday night asked no septic tanks on the canyon floor or within one-half mile of the canyon rim; asked all development from the Perrine Bridge, west to Rock Creek and east to Hansen, be hooked to the Twin Falls city sewer system; called for a central sewer system to be installed east of the Perrine Bridge to the Hansen Bridge; requested developers be required to present a complete plan including roads and utilities to the planning and zoning committee prior to development; asked a performance bond of all developers; asked the developer pay for all road and utility costs; urged the county provide trunk

Couple faces murder charges

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — A Minnesota couple was charged before Magistrate William Black today on murder charges in the death of Susan Rachel Gandsbery, 23 months.

George Terry Jepson, 36, of Minneapolis, an unemployed cook, and Debra Gandsbery of Minneapolis were charged with first degree murder in the child's death on Friday.

Susan was taken to Idaho Falls Community Hospital Friday and declared dead on arrival. An autopsy revealed she died of peritonitis due to a blow to her stomach.

No statement filed

BOISE — American Party candidate for Senate Jean Stoddard has filed no campaign finance statement with the Idaho Secretary of State, according to state records.

"I didn't realize that it was required," Mrs. Stoddard said Monday morning. She said she had sent in such a statement to Washington D.C., but it was sent back since it was not filled out correctly.

"I have received very little in the way of contributions. I've spent nearly all my own money except for two or three campaign contributions," she said.

Mrs. Stoddard said she never had been told she had to file on the state as well as the federal level. "They expect us to have mental telepathy, I guess."

Under federal law a candidate must file a statement specifying the source of campaign funds periodically.

50 tons of debris collected

LEWISTON, Idaho (UPI) — More than 50 tons of old tires and trash from a 30-mile stretch of the Salmon River was collected by a volunteer group last week.

The volunteers are members of summer outdoor programs at Idaho State University, Pocatello; Adams State University, Alamosa, Colo.; the University of Oregon, Eugene, and Evergreen State University, Olympia, Wash.

The students removed the debris from beaches and rocks along the river, then floated it downstream on inner tubes. A mountain of the trash was heaped onto a sandbar 50 miles south of Lewiston where national landowners Sunday loaded it into trucks for removal to a sanitary landfill site near Evidson.

Burn in final mop-up stage

TWIN FALLS — Sawtooth National Forest officials say today the Deadline Ridge fire which has burned since Aug. 17 is now in the final mop-up stages.

The 3,300-acre fire has been turned over to the Twin Falls Ranger District by fire boss Robert Hoag for the final mop-up. The crews which numbered 750 men at one time will be reduced to 100 men by tonight.

One 25-man Payette National Forest crew was released Monday night. Other crews have been

1st grade count down

TWIN FALLS — School enrollment is running about the same as last year in Twin Falls, except in the first grade where registration is down.

School Supt. George Staudacher reported today first grade enrollment is 492 students, compared with 504 at a comparable time last year.

With 24 first grade teachers, this makes the average class size about 19 students.

The decline in first grade registration is "something we've seen coming," Staudacher said, "perhaps a reflection of a lessening population boom."

They told me," Nichols said. "They thought my land and told me I would have to find my own land and buy it."

Nichols said he thought the Forest Service was supposed to assist in finding available land in the SNRA.

John Mayer, an Obsidian restaurant owner, said SNRA tactics reminded him of Hitler's Germany 25 years ago, when personal rights to own property were eliminated.

He accused the Forest Service of military justice and asked what he wrote the regulation. He said that was a very important question which has not yet been answered.

Mayer said Forest Service regulations state denial of land exchange is the appropriate Superintendent of the SNRA, Gray Reynolds, according to Mayer, told residents they would have to take Forest Service offers.

Stanley Mayor Jack Kirsch also criticized Forest Service planning tactics. Although Stanley will not be eliminated — it is one of the SNRA's designated communities — Kirsch said Stanley landowners contacted recently by planners "weren't told the same story" by the Forest Service as were told.

Kirsch said all the planners did was show where annexation or displacement should occur. Stanley residents understood the planners would plot out roadways and plan where businesses could locate.

Jim Moore, who lives two miles north of Obsidian, said the Forest Service gave him no reason why he had to leave.

According to United Press International, Mayer also criticized Sen. Frank Church's election, for his role in the SNRA legislation.

"He sponsored the bill that created this mess but his land at Robinson Bar created 16 miles away is partly mandered out at the picture. The real issue here is the government's arbitrary removal of land without any respect to the individual and property rights," he said.

"This type of action, taking of land for scenic value only, can set a precedent that will be disastrous for this country," Mayer said.

He added that the purchasers of the Robinson Bar property now hold land that is very valuable because of its location in the SNRA but that the land should have been included within the SNRA rather than have the boundary circumvented by property that formerly belonged to Mrs. Church.

Garon Valentine, president of the Obsidian Landowners Association, said the main grievance is against the lawsuit and the Forest Service.

He said the regulations imposed by the Forest Service exceed the intent of the law.

"There's no regard for human or property or life," he said. "We don't want our homes and land destroyed by the federal government. This is tearing things and a Custer County issue."

Mel Fry, who owns a summer home in Obsidian, said the use of condemnation proceedings to force the owners off their land is unconstitutional under a Custer County issue.

Jim Moore, who lives two miles north of Obsidian, said his land is being taken because "I live on the west side of the highway. Isn't that incredible? Meanwhile, people on the east side of the highway are allowed to remain on their land."

Burley mishap injures two

BURLEY — Two Oakley girls were treated and released at Cassia Memorial Hospital following a two-car accident on Highway 27 Monday afternoon.

The accident occurred about 7:45 p.m. six miles south of Burley at the intersection of Highway 27 and 50 West.

Lyn Butler, 20, and Terrell Washburn, 15, were injured in the accident.

Miss Butler was driving toward Oakley from Burley with Miss Washburn as a passenger. Police said a second vehicle driven by R. Tom Church, 71, Burley, allegedly failed to stop at the intersection as it was traveling south on 50 West and drove into the path of the vehicle driven by Miss Butler. Church was seriously injured.

Both cars were demolished. Church was cited for failure to stop at a stop sign. Miss Butler was cited for no driver's license.

Memorial stamp urged

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. James A. McClure today urged issuance of a postage stamp honoring the memory of the 91 miners who died in the Sunshine mine disaster at Kellogg, Idaho, on May 2, 1972.

In a letter to Postmaster General E. T. Klassen, McClure suggested using a picture of the memorial statue which stands on Interstate 90 at the Big Creek turnoff on the face of the stamp.

He also entered two sheep in the FFA fitting and showing competition. Madonna Sureschein, Paul, right, shows her grand champion fat steer. On her left is Deanne Scott, Hazelton, with the reserve champion fat steer. Doug Scott, Hazelton, placed third with a Charollais-Angus cross steer. Both the grand champion and reserve champion were Herefords. The fair continues through Thursday with judging events and displays of produce and livestock and home economics exhibits.

Maryland tries to persuade star from turning to pros

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — University of Maryland officials took some basketball star Moses Malone in a long visit Monday in a final attempt to persuade him to play here this year rather than accept a major contract with the Utah Stars of the ABA.

"I think that Moses now understands the facts and the terms of the contract offered him by the Utah Stars," Maryland coach Lefty Driesell said after Malone met with Washington attorney Donald Dell. "The decision is now up to Moses, and I think he will make it in the next day or two."

Malone, interviewed earlier in the day at his Petersburg, Va., home before traveling here to visit the campus, said the chances were "50-50" that he would accept the offer to turn pro and pass up a college career.

Malone said "it's my decision" and "nobody else is going to live this." The Utah Stars are leaning one way and Maryland is leaning the other way. "I just haven't made up my mind yet," Malone said.

Utah General Manager Arnie Ferrin said Monday he had made an offer "well in excess of $1 million" to Malone, a high school sensation who was set to begin classes Wednesday at Maryland.

Malone's drafted Malone in last winter's college draft but had not actively pursued signing him until last week.

Negotiations are resuming on strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Negotiations between striking National Football League players and management representatives resumed Monday after an eight-day recess "with both groups meeting separately with federal mediators."

There were no indications as to the meetings began from either side whether a settlement was near.

"We don't know whether management will make a counterproposal to our offer of Aug. 19, or what," Ed Garvey, executive director of the Players' Association, said. "They've had a week to study it."

The players made what they described as a final proposal on Aug. 19 and the owners

Defending champ is eliminated

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Pennsylvania ironworker who hoped only to "make a fool out of myself," rallied from a two-hole deficit Monday to eliminate defending champion Craig Stadler in the first round of the U.S. Amateur Golf Championship.

Las, 23, playing in his first national tournament, won the 18th, 19th and 20th holes from the faltering Stadler and then halved the final three pars to clinch the stunning victory.

Borg wins U.S. pro tourney

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Eighteen-year-old Swedish teenager Bjorn Borg started slowly but built up a head of steam that carried him past Holland's Tom Okker in straight sets Monday night to capture the $100,000 U.S. Professional Tennis Championships, 7-6, 6-1, 6-1.

The fourth-seeded high school dropout from Stockholm treated the second-seeded Okker 2-5 in the first set, but he won three games to tie it, then won the set in a 7-3 tie-breaker.

Borg simply blew Okker off the Longwood Cricket Club clay courts in the second and third sets to capture $16,000 first prize money.

Chris Evert gains 10th straight win

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Christopher "Big Bird" Evert won her 10th straight tournament Monday by steamrolling past non-petite Julie Nagelsen, 6-4, 6-3, in the win of the $30,000 Virginia Slims of Newport tennis championship.

Miss Evert, the 19-year-old sensation from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; now has won 52 consecutive matches. But she had some trouble with the 17-year-old Miss Nagelsen of St. Petersburg, Fla., who was playing in her first professional tournament.

The fourth-seeded British doubles team of Sue Mappin and Lesley Charles defeated the second-seeded duo of Julie Heldman and Heidi Graf of France, 6-2, 7-5.

Hooker traded to New Orleans

IRAM, Ohio (UPI) — Veteran wide receiver Fair Hooker of the Cleveland Browns was traded Monday to the New Orleans Saints in exchange for Allen "Shille" Dunbar, a second-year wide receiver.

Hooker, 27, who has signed to play next season for the Jacksonville Sharks in the World Football League, was the Browns' fifth round draft choice in 1969. He played four seasons with the Redskins from Arizona State in 1969 and then took over as starting wide receiver on the left side when Warren Staley was traded to the Miami Dolphins the following winter for a draft choice. That choice turned out to be the Browns' starting quarterback, Mike Phipps of Purdue.

Horoscope

Carroll-Righter

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 28, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is fine for making long-range plans and for being able to engineer others into doing what can be of greatest service to you. Later some upsets arise which could cause a change in plans at the time.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You can get many jobs done today in a conscientious and efficient way, but don't permit strange action on the part of an associate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A new idea you have can be exactly what is needed to put new life into your operations and have more success. Take it easy tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be sure to carry through with promises you have made. Although you are being pressured show more you are still loyal and devoted.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) During the morning you can come to a fine agreement with associates. Steer clear of an outsider who tries to mix in. Be alert.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle routines early in the day. Later make sure you do not get into a financial bind. Much care in motion is necessary at the time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) The morning can be pleasant but later some confusing conditions could arise, so be alert. Don't be sarcastic with others. Be calm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Do whatever family desires early in the day. You may think distance pastures are greener, but not for you. Keep temper in control.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) You can now easily obtain the information you need. Assist a friend in need. Don't be late in keeping an appointment. Be wise.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Getting money matters under control is fine, but don't go off on a spree later and spoil it all. Avoid one who is a spendthrift.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can go after your finest aims now in a positive fashion and gain them. Avoid one who wants to waste your time. Be loyal.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make plans for the future early in the day and take the initial steps necessary to make them a success. Avoid an irate associate.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Morning is the best time to talk with an associate since other things may come up later to prevent you from doing so. Relax tonight.

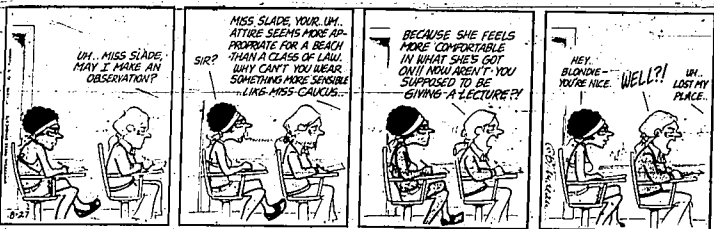

-IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY...- he or she should be given a fine education since the mind is very receptive and when the problems arise upon maturity, your progeny will know how to handle them. Try to understand the needs of allies early. Religious training will help prevent this becoming a materialistic kind of existence.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

Was that sage named Schopenhauer who insisted the most masculine men prefer to team up in matrimony with the most feminine women. And small delicate fellows go for the big strong girls, he averred. Our Love and War man says Mr. Schopenhauer's theory in this matter has been fairly well disproved. As has his interesting notion that people with long noses look for mates with short noses. Mr. Schopenhauer did nothing much personally to advance his ideas about affection between the sexes. At age 26, he promised himself he'd never see his mother again, and kept that promise. In his 30s, he threw a Berlin seamstress down a set of stairs, maiming her sufficiently to cause the court to rule against him in her behalf. And for the remainder of his bachelor life, he wrote numerous nasty-remarks about the ladies in general.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS
Q. "I know Elizabeth Taylor has been the highest paid actress in the movies, but who's the second highest paid?"
A. Audrey Hepburn, last I heard.

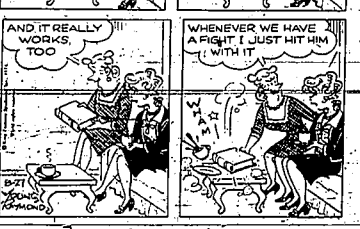

Q. "WHAT proportion of the population of Liberia is descended from slaves freed in America?"
A. About one out of every 10. Nine out of every 10 are descended from tribesmen who showed up in that area in the 1400s.

Q. "WASN'T In God We Trust on the very first U. S. coin ever issued?"
A. No, the motto on that coin, a penny, minted in 1787, was "Mind Your Own Business."

SCOTCH BREAK
Believe I told you that the employees in Crawford's distillery in Scotland take a Scotch break twice daily. Failed to mention, however, how much Scotch whisky each employee is permitted to drink per break. A gill, which is approximately four fluid ounces. Crawford's executives say they've never had a labor dispute.

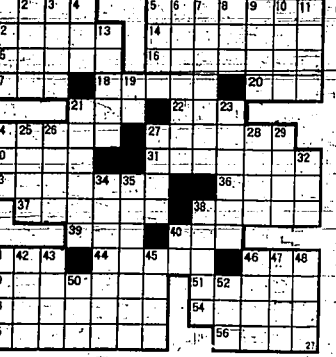

IT'S NO NEWS that January and February are the worst months for catching cold. But the winter weather isn't to blame, at least not directly. They're the worst months in Southern California and Florida, too. Some medical scholars credit the gathering together of the Christmas crowds as the chief cause for the spread of the viruses. Males invariably shows a general buildup of nasal sinuffles even though the weather often stays bitter then.

'Spirit,' Lindbergh similar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "Spirit of St. Louis" was just like its pilot, Charles A. Lindbergh — spare and efficient. The high-wing monoplane was built by the Ryan Aircraft Co. in San Diego, at a cost of $75,000. The engine and the instruments were extra.

Only one of its kind was ever built and Lindbergh was the only man who ever flew it. With the wing span of 36 feet, and a length of 27 feet, the plane flew at top speed of 130 miles per hour and could carry 450 gallons of gasoline. In accordance with Lindbergh's instructions, the cockpit was blind. Lindbergh had a straight forward vision and no windshield when he took off from Roosevelt Field, Long Island, N.Y. He was able to see through two small side windows. Lindbergh wanted the main gas tank to be in front of him and not behind so that if he crashed he would not be sandwiched between the tank and the engine. The plane was equipped with a compass but no radio. To reduce friction, every edge was smoothly rounded.

Ford offers condolences, tributes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Charles A. Lindbergh "will be remembered as a true American and a great pioneer of the air age."

In a statement issued Monday, the President said he and Mrs. Ford extend "our sincere condolences to the Lindbergh family." "From the moment that the Spirit of St. Louis landed in Paris on May 21, 1927, Charles A. Lindbergh had earned a place in history," Ford said. "For a generation of Americans, and for millions of other people around the world, the 'Lone Eagle' represented all that was best in our country — honesty, courage and the will to greatness," he said.

"Last year Mr. Lindbergh expressed a wish to be buried in the Kipahulu church, and he selected a spot," Ford said. "The cottage where Lindbergh died was about 10 miles from his home. It was taken there because his house, down a dirt road, was too remote for the medical attention he required."

Tourists gaze at Lindy's plane 'Lone Eagle' on final flight; cancer victim

Lindbergh had undergone treatment for cancer of the throat at the Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center in New York, but at his request was flown on a stretcher to spend his last days on Maui. Howell said Lindbergh had planned the details of his funeral and burial himself.

Howell said Lindbergh would like for his actions in coming to Maui and having a simple funeral to be "in itself a constructive act." In Washington, President Ford said he would be remembered as "one of America's greatest heroes and a great pioneer of the air age that changed the world."

"For a generation of Americans and for millions of other people around the world, the 'Lone Eagle' represented all that was best in our country — honesty, courage and the will to greatness," he said. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey proposed that a national air and space museum now being built in the nation's capital be named in his honor.

Only 15 persons, close family and relatives, were present for the simple funeral services held at a century-old missionary church nine hours after Lindbergh's death.

The Rev. John Pucher, announced from a neighboring church, read from the Apostle Paul at the grave and said a prayer. Then the Hawaiian burial hymn was sung. Citizens in Hawaii of which Kipahulu is a part, lowered their flags to half mast in honor of the aviator who came here eight days before he died in peacocks.

Lindbergh was laid to rest in a six-foot deep grave lined with lava rock and black beach pebbles in which his son, Lind, placed a huge flower lei for his mother and a hibiscus flower for himself.

As the grave was being filled with dirt, the attendees dressed in aloha shirts and flowery dresses at Lindbergh's request, tossed in orchid leis and coconut leaves. The churchyard is on a hill overlooking the Pacific surrounded by overhanging native trees.

Lindbergh's flight, in a tiny monoplane through rain and storms, was an epic adventure that was followed minute by minute by the world, waiting for some word on his fate. In his book, "The Spirit of St. Louis," Lindbergh told of his feeling when he spotted land. "Is that a cliff on the northeastern horizon, or a strip of low fog, or can it possibly be land? I cannot tell. I wait and during to believe my eyes, keeping hope in check to avoid another disappointment. The temptation is too great ... I can't hold my course any longer. The Spirit of St. Louis banks over the nearest point of land."

When Lindbergh landed at Le Bourget airport, emergency letters of introduction to people in Europe, he was met by a tumultuous welcome of hundreds of thousands of Frenchmen. He was congratulated by kings, queens and presidents. The attention that was focused on his flight, was not matched until astronauts landed on the moon a generation or so later.

The substitution of "Lucky Lindy" turned to an outpouring of sympathy in 1932 when the Lindberghs' first son, Charles Jr., was kidnaped from his crib. Seventy-two days later the "infant-hold baby" was found dead in a clump of bushes "not far from the Lindberghs' New Jersey home," Bruno Hauptmann, a carpenter, was convicted of the kidnaping and condemned to

MICHELIN XWW

The Michelin designed, exclusively for American cars, its unique radial design assures a smooth ride, precise steering and improved traction as compared to conventional tires. There is puncture protection because it's steel belted. And improved gas mileage because it's a radial.
