Liquid Idaho cow manure destined for Arab oil producing nations

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Liquid cow manure from Idaho soon will be shipped to two Arab countries. The Arabs must wait the manure a great deal, because they are paying about $35 a metric ton for delivery at Lake Charles, La.

That is about twice the going rate for Idaho No. 1 potatoes.

Under a newly arranged three-year contract, the liquid manure will be shipped to south Persian Gulf countries Bahrain and Dubai.

The Arab purchasers will pay $16.75 million per month for delivery of 30,000 metric tons of manure. Under the contract the sellers are guaranteed to a total of $600 million of their product, with potential contract expansion to $1.2 billion, the national project chief told the Times-News today.

The Idaho franchise said he could not yet estimate Idaho's share in the new manure market.

Green-Velvet Sales' Inc., headed by Gary Custer of Twin Falls, has been granted the Idaho franchise for "Nature's Own" deodorized liquid cow manure by partners RJB Sales Inc., Woodbury, Tenn., and Buttercup Sales, Sequim, Wash.

Custer, with the aid of five other Magic Valley dairy producers, will collect and deodorize the liquid manure before it is shipped in tanker trucks to Taos, N.M. From there it will be shipped on barges to the Louisiana port.

Two ounces of the patented liquid deodorizer are added to each gallon of manure in order to neutralize the acids, keep the manure in suspension and kill bacteria including those that produce a foul-smelling product, methane gas.

The Arab countries' full-scale producers will use empty oil tankers to ship the manure. The contracts completed recently after eight months of negotiation, were arranged by Mitch Roudazzo of World Wide Brokers, a Louisiana firm.

Richard Briggs, head of RJB Sales and the inventor of the deodorizer, said many other countries have expressed an interest in the purchase of the liquid cow manure, including Egypt, Israel, Korea and Brazil.

But Briggs said no other deals will be closed until the production capacity is tested.

The two desert countries reportedly concluded the deal with the purpose of using the manure as an organic fertilizer and soil builder, in an effort to become more self-sufficient in the production of food.

All the franchises were granted to dairy producers because dairy manure is more uniform and higher quality than cattle manure, according to Briggs. Dairy manure is the most organic and conditioner available, Briggs, a former dairyman, said.

Inflation signs soaring

Combined Wire Services

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices shared 2.1 per cent last month as both agricultural and industrial prices rose sharply, the Labor Department said today.

The increase over the past 12 months was 22.6 per cent, the highest rise in any 12-month period since 1974.

Last month's big price jump was a rebound from September, when wholesale prices leveled off temporarily, edging up only 0.1 per cent.

Aside from July and August of this year, when prices surged 4.7 and 3.9 per cent, respectively, the October rise was one of the biggest since World War II.

Although some analysts expect inflation to subside slightly by next spring, the big increase in wholesale prices in the last several months makes it practically inevitable that retail prices will continue rising rapidly for months to come.

The increase at the wholesale level over the last three months was at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 29.1 per cent, up from the 21.4 per cent rate in the preceding three months.

Agricultural prices soared 4.7 per cent in October, after dropping 1.9 per cent in September. There were especially big increases for grains, milk, oilseeds and most types of food, including meat, poultry and fish prices declined.

Industrial prices rose 1.1 per cent last month compared with 1.7 per cent in September. Most large, the last two increases were substantially smaller than the pattern through most of this year, when increases exceeded 2 per cent a month.

There are indications that prices of some key raw materials are softening because of the worldwide economic slump. This trend is one of the main reasons for expecting inflation to subside slightly by next spring.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said farm products and processed foods and feeds rose 4.7 per cent in October following a decline in September — an adjusted annual rate of 36.4 per cent.

Translated into an annual rate of increase, the latest figures mean that between November of 1973 and the October wholesale prices rose at an annual rate of 27.6 per cent. Previous to October, the 12-month increase rate was 22.6 per cent, the BLS said today.

The BLS, which compiles price data to determine the wholesale index, said indices for chemicals and machinery led the upward momentum in October.

The BLS said the index was at 70.0 in October, indicating that goods bought by wholesalers last month were 70 per cent higher than in the base year 1967.

Wholesale prices usually foretell future rises in consumer prices.

Despite the increases in the food area, the BLS said the index for farm products was 0.5 per cent lower in October than for October, 1973.

Hush money confirmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fredrick C. LaTuc, a major figure in the money-dispensing operation of the 1972 Nixon campaign, testified today he understood that payments to the Watergate burglars were designed to buy their silence.

LaTuc has become the first witness in the cover-up trial of two associates of former President Richard M. Nixon to testify that the nearly $500,000 passed to the buging conspirators was in effect hush money. Others have said it was for "humanitarian purposes" — family support and legal fees.

LaTuc, a former Nixon campaign aide who has pleaded guilty to conspiracy in the cover-up, testified how he relayed thousands of dollars in cash to meet the demands of the Watergate burglars. Once he said, he even wore gloves so his fingerprints would never be found on the $100 bills.

"From the beginning what was the purpose of the payments to these defendants as you understand them?" asked Assistant Special Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste.

"My understanding was that the payments were to fulfill commitments that had been made to the defendants," LaTuc replied.

Cardboard boxes hold Idaho nuclear wastes

By DAVID HORSMAN and DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News Writers

TWIN FALLS — Some highly radioactive materials currently are buried in pasteboard boxes at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL) near Arco. A spokesman for the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) said today the boxes are contaminated with a "relatively small amount" of the material is contaminated by highly radioactive elements, mainly plutonium, which has a half-life of 24,000 years, according to Dick Blackledge, public information officer for the AEC.

Using Blackledge's own estimate of 10-half-lives before all radioactivity is lost, the material contaminated by plutonium will remain radioactive for 240,000 years.

Some other radioactive materials buried in pasteboard boxes are contaminated with elements that have a "relatively short half-life" of between 1 and 10 years, Blackledge told the Times-News today.

He described the contaminated materials as "laboratory white rags, shoe covers, pieces of torn-out equipment, coveralls," and other items that have come in contact with radioactive elements.

Blackledge said the highly radioactive waste totaled 487,000 cubic feet. He could not estimate the quantity of less-radioactive material.

Except for the items contaminated by highly radioactive elements, all of the materials "are from our own operations here at the site," Blackledge said. The small amount of highly radioactive material was shipped to Idaho from another AEC site in Colorado and buried in the 1950's, he added.

Blackledge said there are a "couple of reasons" why the radioactive materials won't contaminate the Snake River Aquifer, the huge underground water reservoir underlying the storage site.

He said rainfall in the region is negligible, which would reduce the chances of moisture leaking through the ground and carrying radioactivity into the underground waterway.

Also, the radioactive isotopes are known to lock onto the soil particles "over a period of years and not move downward, he said."

The materials contaminated by the highly radioactive elements eventually will be "dig up and moved from over the aquifer," Blackledge said.

There are "no plans" to change the storage method for the other materials, he added.

"These kinds of waste are commonly just put into the ground this way," he said. He said the pasteboard boxes are meant to serve as a means of transporting the radioactive materials instead of as a protective barrier.

"As you can well appreciate, a pasteboard box is not intended to be any kind of barrier," Blackledge said.

He said the materials were buried under four or five feet of soil and would have to travel more than 600 feet to reach the water table.

Home loan tap flowing

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The flow of home loans in the Twin Falls area has picked up in the past few months, the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Twin Falls is making home mortgage loans.

The Twin Falls firm, one of the biggest sources of home loans in Magic Valley, has shut off home loans for the past six months during the peak of the money crunch.

The shutoff had corresponded with nationally high interest rates and local sluggishness in new home construction.

"First Federal had worked off certain commitments," according to president James Sinclair, and is "now able to delegate certain funds to new housing" at a rate of 9.5 per cent.

"When First Federal temporarily suspended home loans on May 1 this year, the loan rate was 8.5 per cent. The previous month the rate had been 8 per cent.

Sinclair said Wednesday First Federal "pre-announced about $4 million in loans in May."

He said the length of time to disperse those funds "Most of the pre-announced loans were housing loans," he said.

Though First Federal is back in the home loan business, the volume is going to be down from previous levels.

"Ordinarily we would loan a million a month. It would be half that at this time," Sinclair said.

In addition to the dispersal of loan funds, Sinclair said First Federal's re-entry into the home loan market was brought about by the increased federal savings on accounts up to $40,000 which will take effect on Nov. 27.

"We feel with this increased insurance on accounts to $40,000 that it will increase our savings deposits. We have expectations for more and bigger savings accounts," he said.

Rockefeller agrees to pledge no big money giveaways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nelson A. Rockefeller agreed today to pledge in writing that he would not give away large sums of money to government officials if he becomes vice president.

Rockefeller produced a draft written pledge to that effect at his confirmation hearings before the Senate Rules Committee, where he denied violating New York State law by giving away and lending $5.5 billion during his 15 years as governor.

In the pledge, he wrote only two exceptions — allowing him to give away "nominal amounts" as wedding, Christmas, and birthday gifts and allowing him to help friends "in the event of special hardship of a compelling human character."

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., objected to the second condition. He said any gift need that criteria. He suggested Rockefeller specify that such gifts would be made only in medical emergencies, Rockefeller agreed to the change.

Rockefeller agrees to pledge no big money giveaways

Rockefeller told the committee his gifts and loans to associates in New York state did not violate a statute he had signed into law barring receipt of a status over $25 of making gratuities to state officials for the performance of their duties.

The laws are violated only when it is the intent of the donor to reward or influence the recipient, Rockefeller said, and that was not the case.

But Rockefeller defended his generosity, including his decision to forgive $510,000 in loans to Dr. William Honan, a state transportation expert.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa., told Rockefeller: "You are accused of being generous — a trait which is rare in the District of Columbia."

Earlier, Senate GOP Whip Robert P. Griffin interrupted the hearings to charge that Democrats had been "divulging and footdragging" because they feared Rockefeller would be "too good a vice president."

CLASHING on the first day of hearings before the Senate Rules Committee were Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W. Va., (left), who said the role of Nelson Rockefeller (right) in the deplorable 1970 Goldberg biography was similar to the "dirty tricks" of the Nixon administration. Rockefeller said he disagreed with Byrd's characterization. (UPI)

Union President Arnold Miller said he expected approval by the bargaining council and the miners.

The agreement between negotiators for the miners and the soft coal mine operators was reached Wednesday night.

Nixon lawyers attack tapes hunt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorneys for Richard M. Nixon charged Thursday that a new White House agreement allowing Watergate prosecutors to search the tapes is a "flagrant intrusion" on the former president's rights.

The attorneys asked U.S. District Court to issue a temporary restraining order to block what they described as the "search and seizure" agreement reached last week between attorneys for President Ford and the special prosecutors' office.

Ford rebukes joint chiefs head

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford summoned Chairman George S. Brown of the Joint Chiefs of Staff to the White House today and rebuked him for saying publicly that Jews have too much influence in the United States.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen told reporters aboard Air Force One en route to Las Vegas, Nev., that Ford, who is fully "aware of the public reaction to this," met with Brown for 20 minutes before leaving on a trip to the West.

Greek leftists call for protests

ATHENS (UPI) — Extreme left-wing students today called demonstrations for Friday to mark the first anniversary of the abortive student rebellion against the military dictatorship and police expressed fears of trouble.

The student rally would come two days before Sunday's first free Greek elections in eight years. The elections could pave the way for a referendum on the future of exiled King Constantine in December.

Offshore drilling energy key

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Multiplying the rate of oil drilling in United States offshore lands "is the key stone to meeting the nation's energy needs in the late '70s and '80s," Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton told officials of the affected states today.

Morton and officials from federal energy and environmental agencies spent the morning describing in detail plans to triple offshore leasing.

Murphy defeated candidate but not beaten man

By RICHARD CHARNOCK
BOISE (UPI) — Jack M. Murphy is a defeated candidate for governor, but he indicated in an interview Wednesday he is not a beaten man.

"I might not, with the fatigue and details of the campaign you feel very disenchanted with the political arena," Murphy said.

"I've been in the office for 20 years," Murphy said. "I've made my share of mistakes. I've seen the good and bad of the office and the state."

"I'm not sure if there can be an orderly transition to Gov. Don Samuelson," he said. "I don't know if I would have been in the office for 20 years if I had not been elected."

Amtrak service 2 years off

BOISE (UPI) — Although there were indications passenger trains could start running here, Amtrak officials said they will not begin service until at least two years away, the Idaho Statesman reported.

In a story by reporter Tim Woodward, the Boise newspaper said delays in obtaining equipment could slow down the program considerably.

"If it is my interpretation that it could be two years before we get service," the paper quoted L.E. Johnson, marketing subcommittee chairman of the Idaho Advisory Committee on Amtrak.

"Amtrak officials say service will begin in 1976, but they are not sure when they will have equipment to run on the line," Johnson said.

"The fact Amtrak has commitments from the department of transportation for several other experimental routes and they are being deferred," Johnson said.

"They're in a bind for equipment," he said. "My judgment is that we might not have it longer terms."

"It's all subject to change and people are not sure when they will start when we don't have any control over what and Amtrak doesn't either," he said.

"We have expectations as to when equipment might be delivered, but they can only function as long as it arrives."

Rate revamp urged

BOISE (UPI) — A state consumer organization Wednesday asked the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to revamp the Idaho Power Co. rate structure to establish "fair and equitable" rates.

Bill "Sam" Veroni, K. Brassey, J. Dose, chairman of the Banking and Commerce Committee, and Al Fathergill of the Idaho Citizens Coalition, asked for the revamping in the supplemental of a 3.65 percent rate hike granted the company.

Fathergill told the commission his organization was asking for "major changes in the rate structure in effect for Idaho Power." In the interest of obtaining a pricing system that is "fair and equitable to Idaho citizens."

The commission's present rate system is "discriminatory."

The IPU Oct. 4 ordered the increase in rates for the power company. It will return an additional $6.5 million annually in revenue.

Hearings started Tuesday on the application of the increase, whether across the board as the company has proposed or according to a new rate structure to be determined by the commission.

Fathergill asked the commission to change directions and get in step with the reality of the current national energy situation by "taking the following action:

- Elimination of promotional block rates in the rate structure.
- A change in the rates of return among various customer classes to achieve cost-of-service equity among them.
- Additional and more extensive research in various aspects of "pricing, rate structure and rate increase" according to be conducted under the supervision of the commission.

Time at hand for new second party's emergence

WASHINGTON — A week after the election, conservatives still are picking their way through the smoking ruins... The fact is that we got chlobbered — but the chlobbering, as such, is not the most disturbing aspect of the vote...

to pass bills that would (1) provide for national health insurance, (2) multiply state rights to work laws, (3) vastly increase costs of public welfare, (4) make dangerous cuts in outlays for national defense, and (5) create a Consumer Protection Agency with sweeping powers of intervention in the work of other government agencies...

and the state of the economy, but these ex- planations overlook a deeper cause. The Republican party, as a national political party, consistently is failing to provide a constructive "conservative alternative" to the liberalism with which the Democratic party now is so well identified...

Portugal would be utter folly. Yet to defend the system is not to defend the present operation. Nowhere is it divinely decreed that the Republican party, as it now is organized, must forever be one of only two major in- struments of political action...

Tourist jurist

It appears Idaho Supreme Court Justice Henry McQuade has been careless with the taxpayers' money.

According to state legislative auditors, McQuade made at least seven automobile trips across the country during the March 1971 to January 1973 period. McQuade says he fears flying, so instead he went by car. Cars go slower than airplanes, so the trips took an average of 15 days to complete and a total of 165 days during that period.

Not only did the trips take up a good share of McQuade's working time, but they also cost the taxpayers a lot of money.

McQuade should answer some questions. Why didn't he fly on a commercial airline in- stead of driving?

According to the estimate of the legislative auditors, McQuade would have saved the state at least $1,000 had he flown. Although McQuade charged the state only the amount of air fare for car mileage, he did charge the state for meals and lodging along the way, an extra charge of $1,000.

But that is only a fraction of the real cost to the state. When McQuade was on the road he wasn't on the bench. While driving his only service to the state was that of a chauffeur. We presume McQuade was worth his $25,000-a-year salary as a judge. But we doubt the taxpayers should be paying him $69.48-a-day as a chauffeur.

Suppose McQuade spent an extra three days each year on his seven cross-country trips. That would total 42 wasted days on the road or about a month and a half. His salary alone during that time would have been $2,476.

McQuade has said a few interesting things in his defense. One was that he spent only a day and a half on each leg of his seven cross-country trips. That is quite a feat of endurance driving for most people. If true, it raises questions about what he is doing for the rest of the time during the 15-day trips.

He also said he took his car because he was afraid to fly. It is not completely consistent in his choices, however. The Times-News has learned that he took a number of airplane trips during the period in question in addition to his car trips.

These explanations make the Supreme Court Justice look somewhat foolish, and strain his credibility.

Ultimately, the most interesting question facing McQuade is how can he do a full year's work in the 10 1/2 months left after he discounts the time he spent as the state's highest paid chauffeur.

Arafat's hour

Christians Science Monitor
The moment for the Palestinians has come. For the first time they will present their case at the United Nations and seek backing for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Whether the debate degenerates into an emotional, futile war of words depends on PLO leader Yasser Arafat. He addresses a world forum and his words will be on record. He must clarify his intentions if this UN exercise is to be more than rhetoric.

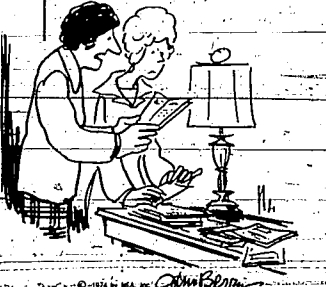

The big question is whether Arafat will take an unreservedly moderate position to make it possible for Israel to negotiate with the PLO, which it now refuses to do. It is understandable that the Israelis are unwilling to recognize an organization that seeks to replace Israel with a secular state. It is clear that the Israelis must confront the Palestinian question. It is equally clear that the PLO must be willing to accept the existence of the Jewish state.

Are there questions that the Palestinians must have a handout of their own. And even Washington recognizes that the PLO is fast gaining acceptance as the legitimate representative of Palestinian Arabs. Despite the dismay in Israel, the State Department has not drawn back from President Ford's recent statement that Israel itself will negotiate either with Jaffar or the PLO.

Mr. Arafat must know the domestic congressional pressures which confront Henry Kissinger as he seeks to deal with the Palestinian issue. If the PLO leader enunciates a policy of moderation, he can help calm the domestic trout and enable the Secretary to bring the Israelis to the negotiating table. Although he must warmly play to the extremists in his organization, he must realize that without a yielding in the PLO position the impasse cannot be broken.

Tensions now are running high both in Israel and among Jewish communities in the U.S. The current Israeli bombing raids into Lebanon and the violent behavior of anti-PLO groups in New York are not helpful. How Mr. Arafat and his delegation now handle themselves at the UN could determine the degree of these tensions — and the issue of peace or war in the Middle East.

On Arafat tide, Israel's choice may be war

(C) New York Times Service
PARIS — An enormous change for the worse in Arab strategic prospects occurred last week when Henry Kissinger's October and November shifts through the Middle East...

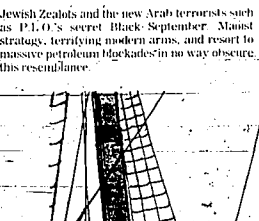

Arafat has taken over, Hussein has yielded his claims, and a brand new situation has developed. The world seems rushing down the road to a fifth Arab-Israeli war, more dangerous than its predecessors. It is unlikely that Kissinger will manage more than to erect a new facade of continuing detente on the highway to disaster...

The PLO now summons Arab lands "to prepare themselves militarily, and economically" for another conflict with Israel. Arafat forecasts war within six months. Beneficiaries vote on Rocky WASHINGTON (UPI) At least seven senators and 10 House members who will vote on Nelson A. Rockefeller's vice-presidential nomination have benefited from his political generosity.

Rockefeller revealed in a prepared statement before the Senate-Rules Committee today that he has contributed more than $1 million to other Republicans over the years, including chief members of Congress, governors, and even those who later became his political foes.

Rockefeller also revealed that more than $2 million of his own money and $13 million from members of his family went into his campaigns for governor of New York and president.

Rockefeller's two largest contributions were $274,000 to campaign his brother Winthrop for governor of Arkansas and $200,000 for George Romney's unsuccessful 1972 Republican presidential bid. Rockefeller also gave $62,000 to Richard M. Nixon's 1968 campaign.

The rest went in smaller amounts to senators, governors, and candidates for state and local offices, principally in Arkansas, New York, and Maine.

The leading Senate receiver was James H. Eastland, Miss., who got a total of $2,077,000 during his time in the House.

Other senators: Republican leader Hugh Scott, Pa., $4,000; Edward Brooke, Mass., $3,000; Charles Mathias, Md., $1,000; Milton Young, N.D., $1,000; Peter Dominick, Conn., $500; and Robert Dole, Kan., $250.

Of the 10 congressmen, one of those who got the most, Ogden Reid, said he would run against Rockefeller if he had sought reelection as governor this year. Reid received $2,000 before he became a Democrat in 1974.

Another New York congressman, Peter Poyser, received $10,000 in three races for office.

Rep. William S. Natcher (Mo.), a member of the House Judiciary Committee which votes on the Rockefeller nomination, received $1,000 in both 1973 and 1974, although he returned the 1974 contribution when Rockefeller was nominated.

Other Congressmen included: John Paul Hamerschmidt, of Arkansas, $6,000; Paul E. Taylor of Illinois, $1,000; Henry J. Heinz II of Pennsylvania, $2,000 and $1,000 apiece for Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts; John Dellenback of Oregon; and Jack Keenan of New York. Bob Wilson of California received $100.

Former New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay, who also turned Democrat and was a Rockefeller foe even earlier, received $5,000 from Rockefeller in three earlier congressional races.

Houston Flournoy, who lost the California governorship last week, received a total of $6,500 from Rockefeller. The bulk of it—$5,300—went for his 1974 campaign.

Rockefeller's list showed that he gave $100 to Spiro Agnew fund raising event before the former vice president resigned.

Brown apologizes

WASHINGTON (UPI) Under criticism from President Ford, the Pentagon and Congress, Chairman George S. Brown of the Joint Chiefs of Staff today publicly apologized for saying that Jews exert undue influence in the United States.

Brown, having acknowledged that his remark could be interpreted as anti-Semitic, said in a telegram to the Jewish War Veterans that his "poorly articulated statements" did not represent his true feelings.

Both Ford and Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger disavowed the statement and Rep. Samuel S. Stratton, D-N.Y., a senior member of the House Armed Services Committee, called on Brown to repudiate it.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., meanwhile asked Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate Armed Services Committee "to look into the whole episode" which occurred during a question and answer session with students at Duke University last Oct. 10.

Coastal oil hunt pushed

WASHINGTON, UPI — The Ford administration has told top officials of 14 states it wants to triple the offshore area of U.S. coasts used for oil and gas drilling. The proposal is a major step in the President Ford and Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton outlined the plan to governors, governors elect and lieutenant governors of 14 states at a 1 1/2 day White House meeting Wednesday.

Ford told them "we must adapt various conservation measures but it is clear that regardless of what conservation steps we take and what eventual long range energy policy we adopt, in the near term we must increase our efforts to production of oil and gas."

He believes that the Outer Continental Shelf of just gas possible — can provide the largest source of increased domestic energy during the years when we need it the most.

Morton announced a four-year leasing plan at a rate of one lease for every two months through 1977, including "frontier areas" in the Outer Continental Shelf.

The Outer Continental Shelf represents the best hope of significantly increasing domestic production of oil and gas," Morton said.

By tripling the acreage of 3 million leased acres a year, he said, the United States can reduce its reliance on high priced imported oil and protect itself against the possibility of another Arab oil embargo.

Both men assured governors no area would be leased if it threatened too much harm to the environment.

"I'm disturbed, without the impact will be on my state," said Gov. Brendan Byrne of New Jersey, a Democrat, after the meeting.

He said much more work to be learned about the risks of drilling offshore and the impact on the economies of states through the development of related industries.

But Gov. Edwin Edwards of Louisiana said offshore drilling is "absolutely essential" to national security and the economy because "we cannot depend on our neighbors for oil."

Offshore oil and production from Alaska could "make us almost self-sufficient," he contended.

Senate National Ocean Policy Study released Wednesday by Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., said offshore drilling could bring major changes to coastal areas' economies.

Strong guard on W. Va. buses

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — School officials felt confident that the heavy police guard escorting buses through textbook-divided Kanawha County would stop both the rash of ambushes.

Students struck for the second straight day Wednesday this time sending babies into a State Police patrol car as it followed a school bus loaded with children. There were no injuries.

Trouble flared Tuesday when school authorities returned to classrooms and found students feel an anti-Christian and anti-American. Snipers fired shots at this that the only the diversions that were not injured.

No arrests had been made in confidence that, peace would reign with troopers and sheriff's deputies patrolling backroads in "strategic areas."

"I think our bus drivers feel more confident," the sheriff said.

A diversion from the regular patrol route started in Deerford with the warrant accusing him of contributing to the delinquency of minors by interfering with school textbooks to the school's.

Meanwhile, Hill's faction fought air time on a radio station so he could plead for an alternate stand against the disputed books, saying "the sacred national anthem."

"I arrive in the hour you do not like what you see you can leave," he said "But here in something we don't believe in."

Arafat and Frangieh split UN for Havana meet

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Arab guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat departed New York today for Cuba, leaving behind a United Nations deeply divided over the future of Palestine and an Israeli refusal of its eventual destruction at the hands of the PLO.

Arafat, in a militant speech to the General Assembly, in which he was accompanied by a visiting chief of state, called for creation of a Palestine in which Jews, Arabs and Christians could live side by side. Israel said that meant destruction of that state.

With the so-called "Third Force" expressing a more and more pro Arab stance in the General Assembly, diplomatic sources said there was an increasing threat that Israel might even be expelled from the current U.N. session as was South Africa.

A more complete picture of Arab aims and possible delineation of a resolution they hoped to get from the Assembly's Palestinian debate was expected when Lebanese President Suleiman Frangieh, a Maronite Christian, addresses the assembly today.

Lebanese sources said Arafat had outlined what should be done for the Palestinians in the Middle East, and that Frangieh would augment his remarks by suggesting how it should be done.

As Arafat left, Italo Havana announced he was due there shortly at invitation of Premier Fidel Castro. Arab sources said he would travel to Moscow after a three-day Havana visit for talks with Kremlin leaders.

There was little doubt Arafat's speech had increased tensions in the Middle East, especially in the Israeli-occupied West Bank when an Arab summit conference at Rabat decided should "come" under administration of Arafat's "PLO" and Jordan's King Hussein.

Frangieh was mentioned by last month's Rabat meeting to speak for the combined Arab world. Although presentation of a formal resolution was expected to be delayed to Egyptian Ambassador Ahmed El-Sherif, the Lebanese president was expected to outline its general principles.

Arab sources said Frangieh was likely to suggest a resolution calling for U.S. recognition of the Palestinian right of self-determination, the right of the Palestinians to a national home, and for U.S. action to achieve acceptance of those two aims.

In the present mood of the UN assembly, in which the Third World countries of the nonaligned, Arab and African nations — with Communist bloc support — command a majority, such a resolution could be considered moderate, diplomatic observers agreed.

It is presented in that style, the observers believed, such a resolution was certain to command the two thirds vote required for assembly passage.

Arafat's speech brought about rejection from Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekouah in the assembly a few hours later — and in a speech boycotted by many of the Third World group. He accused the PLO of assassinating and said, Arafat's speech called for the end of Israel as a state.

Israel will not permit the establishment of PLO authority in any part of Palestine, Tekouah said. "The PLO will not be forced on the Palestinian Arabs. It will not be tolerated by the Jews of Israel."

Arafat, who arrived at the U.N. complex by helicopter from New York's Kennedy airport early Wednesday under the greatest security in history of the U.N.

Auto sales drop spurs shutdowns

DETROIT (UPI) — Plum falling car sales and declining profits have touched off another round of layoffs in the nation's reeling auto industry.

The industry's plight has been highlighted by William G. Milliken to call on consumers to start buying cars again.

But as Milliken issued the call Wednesday, the nation's four largest automakers reported a more than 20 percent drop in new car sales for the first 10 days of November.

General Motors Corp. also said it would close three small car assembly plants at Van Nuys, Calif.; Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; and Tarrytown, N.Y., for a week starting Monday, temporarily idling 7,755 blue collar workers and bringing to 26,450 the number of auto workers hit by production cutbacks.

American Motors Corp., the smallest of the nation's automakers, issued its report for the 1973 financial year and said profits fell $17 million, or 71 cents a share, from the previous year, despite record sales of $2 billion.

GM, Ford Motor Co. and AMC said they sold 132,425 cars during the Nov. 1-10 period, a drop of 23.4 percent from the 250,178 sold during the same period of 1973.

The 10 day sales rebound followed a one-day sales performance that showed sales down 27 percent, the poorest one-day start in a decade.

GM alone has 25,300 workers now idled temporarily or indefinitely and has cut back from two shifts to one at small car assembly lines in Van Nuys, Tarrytown, and Leeds, Mo.

Chrysler had 31,400 employees and Ford has another 11,375.

Fundamental preachers leading the 12-week protests begged dissidents to continue a school boycott but to avoid violence.

"It's our responsibility to watch out for our brother and the police," said the Rev. Avis Hill. "They have a job to do. They have to protect our rights."

Schools Superintendent Kenneth Henderson, target of a criminal complaint, sworn out by a protester, said he was "very

Lebanese foil plot

BEIRUT, 14-11 — Lebanese secret intelligence arrested seven men when plotting to take up the U.S. Embassy on Beirut, the newspaper Al Bayrak said today.

The newspaper said an Arab nation hired the same, which included five Lebanese, a Lebanese and a Briton, to destroy the embassy "floor by floor" in return for $75,000.

The group, which would have been set to go into action during the day when the bombing was full of people," Al Bayrak said.

A Lebanese government spokesman had no immediate comment on the report.

Japanese bombard embassy

CHICAGO Daily News — TOKYO — A handful of Japanese — self styled Marxist extremists staged a five bomb attack on the U.S. embassy today, just five days before the scheduled arrival of President Ford.

Despite massive security precautions by Japanese police, the attack caused doubts about Ford's personal safety during his two day visit.

The extremists staged a simultaneous fire bomb attack on the Soviet Embassy less than a kilometer away from the American Embassy.

Japanese police did not mention foreign ministry officials were left reeling by the apparent ease with which the young terrorists crushed their way through the defenses of the two embassies.

Two of the attackers hurled beer bottle Molotov cocktails at the American Embassy compound from the east side, shouting Okura Hotel across the street while six others staged a street level attack on the embassy gate.

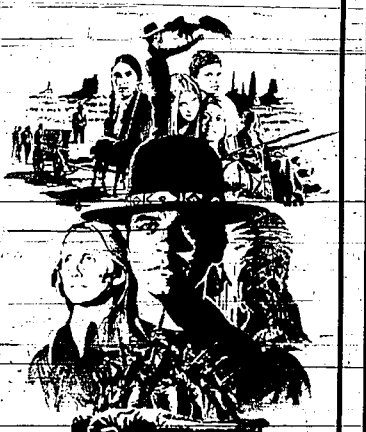

No Americans were injured. However, two of the Japanese police officers said.

The attack on the Soviet Embassy, staged by three red behind-the-scenes, injured no one but left a few wounded.

The attack on the Soviet Embassy apparently was a protest against Ford's meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev at Vladivostok after the USSR in Japan and South Korea.

In the angry world of Japanese far left extremists, "splinter groups" are both the "stronger" and the "weaker."

Police said six of the youths were arrested at the American Embassy, and three at the Soviet Embassy. The two on the Okura Hotel rooftop escaped.

School coal supply OK

BOISE (UPI) — Industry and public school officials expect Idaho to get through the coal miners strike without serious difficulties — if the work stoppage is short.
 Harold Farley, a member of the State Department of Education Committee on Energy, said a survey of public schools showed "most districts make out for their heating systems could continue with their regular schedules for three weeks without adverse effects."
 Rick Brown, administrator of the Office of Energy and a survey of Idaho stockpiles of coal, said the strike persisted for more than two weeks or a month.
 Farley said one school district — Snake River District — uses 300 tons of coal. That district, if that is not received, there could be one or two districts that could be in trouble within the first week of the strike.

He said Aberdeen is a second area that would be immediately hurt without a coal shipment. He said other schools on short supply are in the Pocatello area. Generally speaking, they're in fairly good shape," he said.
 Districts in danger of running out of fuel, he said, could resort to "burning up" rather than shutting down classes. He said within the past two years Idaho districts have converted 38 buildings from coal to other fuel sources and only one or two buildings per district remain dependent on coal.
 Other schools have stockpiled coal against a possible shortage.
 Brown said his office surveyed industries in Idaho on their coal supplies mainly because of the threat of a shortage of natural gas for interruptible customers during November.
 "We anticipate some curtailment of natural gas over and above what has been the natural pattern," Brown said.

Woman denied phone listing

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — The Public Utility Commission said Bell Telephone doesn't have to put Mrs. Zephaniah Sebastian Klinghoffer Mandell's name in the Philadelphia Telephone directory.
 The commission said Tuesday her request for a listing was rejected because it failed to meet phone company criteria. Bell will not print a name unless it is the same name used for general identification purposes.
 Bell said there was no proof of anything "real or legal" about the name Klinghoffer Mandell, which was submitted by Sarah F. Shore of Philadelphia.
 Mrs. Shore said she considered her name "religious."

Suspect appears in court

CASCADE (UPI) — Thomas Creech, 24, the accused murderer of two men whose bodies were found near here one week ago, waived a preliminary hearing Tuesday during an appearance in magistrate court.
 Creech, who is being represented by public defender Ward Howe, Cascade, is scheduled to enter a plea Dec. 4 in Valley County Fourth District Court. He is accused of two counts of first degree murder.
 Creech and a 17-year-old girl were arrested in Glens Ferry Nov. 1.
 The girl, who has also been charged with murder, is being held in Ada County Juvenile facilities pending a preliminary investigation. Creech is being held in the Ada County Jail between court appearances for security reasons.

looked the simplest way. You should have cashed your high cards in the side suits and wind up with a cross-ruff. A 6-2 heart break would hurt you but that is just about all. Let's check this cross-ruff out. South's trumps, three hearts, while discarding a club from dummy, takes the minor suit aces and gives away a club-trick he will have time tricks in and be sure of seven more on the cross-ruff. Suppose 3 trumps were opened. Then the 4-1 club break would doom South.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Our son, who has always been a very serious-minded and responsible boy, has just started college away from home. We opened a checking account for him and agreed to send him through college as long as his grades hold up. We get all his cancelled checks, and were shocked to learn that so far he has written checks totaling $250 to support a far-out religious group he became interested in since he started college. My husband has worked hard for his money. We support our own church, and don't feel that our money should be used in this manner. Our son has worked and earned some money, which is also in his checking account, and he claims that he is supporting this religious cult with HIS money, not ours.

A short board meeting is planned at the conclusion of the tryouts Dec. 8.

That's no lady

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Bill Arkhaty told police he was puzzled when the two female hitchhikers he picked up tried to rob him and then forced him from his car Tuesday.

Police solved the mystery when they told him: "That was no lady. That was Leroy Townsend," a man.

Arkhaty said he struggled with the two until he was struck in the face with a flashlight. A passing police cruiser spotted one, Leroy Townsend, 21, of McKeesport, who was wearing a miniskirt.

He is a sensitive boy, but easily persuaded, and we fear he has been taken in. We are not made of money, and want to know how to handle this situation.

UPSET MOTHER

DEAR UPSET: You agreed to subsidize your son's education—not his religious charities. Pay his tuition and other related college expenses and let him donate his hard-earned money (not yours) to whatever he wishes.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter has a son, 9, and a daughter, 7. In the past, when I've been asked to keep the children overnight at my apartment, I've had to bed them down together in a large double bed because that's the only sleeping accommodations I have for them.

I am now of the opinion that the time has come when they should not be sharing one bed. When I told my daughter this, and offered to go to her home to stay with the kiddies, where each child has a bed alone, she said, "Well, if that's the way your thinking, I'd rather not have a son-in-law come in." She gave me the impression that she thought I was an evil-minded old lady.

Abby, my training back in the "old days" is responsible for my thinking—and if I'm wrong, please tell me.

GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: If you're wrong, we both get Jesus and girls that age should be separated at bedtime, but no one should make a big deal of it.

DEAR ABBY: My mother-in-law and I have a running discussion regarding the "normals," of her calling my wife three or four times a day, and expecting my wife to call her a similar number of times a day—and every day.

To make matters worse, many of the calls wind up in arguments over petty things, which is bad for my wife's blood pressure.

When I tell my wife that I call my own mother only two or three times a week, she says, "You're being stingy." She claims I am "abnormal." Then she cites the case of a relative who calls his mother four times a day even though he is married and has two children. She considers that "normal" and I violently disagree.

Have you any helpful thoughts on this matter?

"ABNORMAL SON-IN-LAW"

DEAR AB: Quit going on about what's "normal" and what isn't, and stick to your own problem. If you feel that your wife's telephone conversations are too frequent and upsetting to her, then simply suggest that she limit them. The rest is up to her.

Ski-swap scheduled

TWIN FALLS — Beginner skiers looking for bargains and more advance skiers with equipment to dispose of will be participating in the ski-swap at the College of Southern Idaho.

The CSI Ski Club, sponsors of the event, will accept all used or new items to be offered for sale prior to sale time. The owner will set his own price and pay the club a percentage as a sales commission.

Persons wishing to buy equipment may inspect the offerings and make purchases Friday from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday from noon to 6 p.m. The equipment will be sold in the physical building by club members.

Robert Wright, adviser for the ski club, said the sale is held each year to give persons an opportunity to dispose of used equipment and to give persons needing used equipment at bargain prices an opportunity to outfit themselves and their children at a price they can easily afford.

Wright said the club expects to have skis, boots, parkas, pants and poles as well as many accessories for skiers of all ages and sizes. He said presently the club has a good assortment of outgrown children's equipment.

Persons wishing to enter merchandise for sale are asked to call 733-9554, extension 301, or 733-5726 prior to the sale time.

New York's skid row filled to overflowing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The down and outers are pouring into the flophouses and soup kitchens of Manhattan's skid row, and worried city officials wonder how they'll be able to feed and shelter everybody when winter comes.

"That's when the flood will hit," said Dr. Robert Litch, a psychiatrist with the Human Resources Administration and a frequent visitor to the dismal, fat-rat-infested streets along the Bowery.

"Right now, tentacles are overcrowded. The men who are still sleeping outdoors will have to be covered soon — but most of the beds are full."

Frank Wexler, the agency's assistant director for institutional services, says the newcomers are pushing a steam on the city's main dining room for derelicts, the Shelter Care Center for Men.

"It's the worst it's been since the early '60s," he said. "Eight now, we're feeding 1,300 men a day at the shelter — about 20 per cent more than at the same time last year. If we keep getting men at the same rate, we'll be in trouble."

Wexler blames the depressed economy for the crisis. "They're returning, an arm or all over the city," he said. "Most of them have just unlearned skills, and they just can't succeed out there — there's a catch."

Another problem is that a lot of men who usually migrate south when winter comes are staying put this year.

"Transportation costs are up, and word is coming around that there's just nothing for them in Florida any more," Reich said.

He also said most state mental institutions are now releasing "chronically dysfunctional" patients — those who have permanent disorders but are able to "get by" on the theory local communities should care for them.

"A lot of them gravitate to places like the Bowery," he said.

Struggling to make ends meet in the Bowery and its side streets, however, is nothing new for either the bourgeoisie or the huns.

"What is new are the hordes of young, aggressive drunks pouring into the area."

"Nearly all percent are now under 20," Wexler said. "A lot of the older ones are getting crowded out by the militant young ones."

Barford Peterson, director of the Fellowship Center, a counseling service, was mildly blunt. "The young ones are rubbing the old ones," he said. "People are getting killed. The old timers are spreading out to the farther boroughs."

The Salvation Army's John Edeen, who runs Booth House II, a residence hall for men, has noticed the change.

"It was quieter in the old days," he said. "Now, the old guys are scattering or dying off. The younger people and the mental patients have disrupted the change."

Two old derelicts standing in front of a honky-tonk bar on the corner of Houston Street and the Bowery, argued, for a while, to express their frustration at the change.

"It's always been the depression around here, but now new about that," said a black panther dink who calls himself John. "But, I don't know, I think I'm getting out. Things just can't be the same."

"It's the young ones," said his bearded friend, who gave by the name of Red and says he used to be a computer technician. "You gotta watch out for them. They're the real bums."

Man seeks wife in billboard ad

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Ephraim Malickson spent $300 to have a billboard painted in Northeast Philadelphia. He's advertising for a wife.

Malickson, an unemployed mechanical designer, says in his billboard: "I'm looking for a wife."

"I am Jewish, a mechanical designer, free farmer, private pilot and snow skier, 5'9" — 150 lbs., 52 years old, without children."

"The billboard in huge letters said a prospective wife 'should be Jewish, of average weight, enjoy living in a secluded, wooded setting, without children, but interested in having them.'"

Malickson lists his address and telephone number on the billboard, which was put up last Wednesday.

Mitchell linked to hush money

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — The jury at the Watergate cover-up trial heard lengthy, detailed and often reluctant testimony Wednesday linking former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell with the secret payments of thousands of dollars to the original seven Watergate break-in defendants.

Those payments, according to earlier testimony at the trial, were designed to keep the seven men from telling the truth about Watergate.

The testimony about Mitchell today came from Fred C. Luttwak, a former White House and Nixon re-election campaign official who is waiting to be sentenced for his own admitted role in the Watergate cover-up.

Luttwak described himself in his first new statement on the stand as a "close friend" of Mitchell and gave his testimony with obvious discomfort.

He hesitated on many questions. He replied that the "big reveal" of other questions. And at one point — when he was being pressed by the prosecution for perhaps the most damaging part of his testimony — he initially testified in such a way that Judge John J. Siragusa allowed the prosecution to cross-examine him, in effect turning him into a hostile witness.

Luttwak also gave testimony that, if believed by the jury, seriously damaged a second defendant, Robert C. Mardian, a former assistant attorney general. Much of his testimony about Mardian appeared to be new.

Luttwak implicated two other defendants as well, but to a much lesser degree — H. H. Holden, the former White House chief of staff, and Kenneth Wells Parkinson, a lawyer for the Nixon re-election committee.

The prosecution was to continue questioning Luttwak on direct examination this morning, with cross-examination thus not expected until midday.

In another development at the trial, Judge Siragusa appointed three doctors to examine former President Nixon to determine whether he will be able to testify at the trial.

Siragusa said the doctors would begin work "immediately" and report to him — either on an interim or final basis — by Nov. 29.

Luttwak testified that in the earlier testimony at the senate Watergate Committee hearings, touched from time to time on various events that occurred both months before the Watergate break-in, and months after — the part that appeared most damaging to Mitchell and Mardian as well — focused on the weeks immediately after the break-in.

Essentially, Luttwak, accused of having been the "henchman" of the prosecution, that various White House and campaign officials realized immediately after the break-in that a thorough investigation of the matter would uncover the link between the campaign and the break-in; that they conspired to obstruct the investigation through such means as devising a cover story and paying off the seven men who participated in the break-in.

Luttwak testified that in the week after the break-in, Mitchell, Mardian and two others "had discussions" about the "problem" that the money found in the burglars' possession could be traced to the campaign committee.

He testified that in another meeting with Mitchell, he reported to Mitchell that one of the Watergate burglars, Gordon Liddy, had told him and Mardian that "commitments" had been made to the seven men.

Then, under prodding from Richard DonVito, the assistant special prosecutor questioning him, Luttwak testified that a directive from Mitchell had led him to meet with Herbert W. Kalmbach, the former personal attorney of Nixon who testified Tuesday about an arrangement for cash payments to the original Watergate defendants.

Israelis, Arabs trade Lebanese border attacks

By United Press International
ISRAELI infantry and artillery attacked villages in southern Lebanon today, following a day of Arab unrest in the Israel-occupied West Bank of Jordan.

Arab youths jeered and stoned attacking West Bank Israeli soldiers Wednesday and shouted their support for Palestinian leaders.

Arabat's unprecedented speech at the United Nations General Assembly.

Intensified Israeli patrols guarded border areas.

The Tel Aviv military command said Israeli infantry threw up suspected guerrilla hideouts in the Lebanese village Zarnab.

The command said Israeli artillery shelled the Lebanese village of Nabatieh in retaliation for an Arab rocket attack in northern Israel.

The artillery and ground strikes came out from after a day of Arab unrest in the northern Israel. It was the first rocket attack against Israel since Nov. 2.

The Israeli command said three Nabatieh rockets hit Obyat Shehara and two others hit Sidon. No major damage was reported.

The Arab bombing came as Ararat, leader of the Atestman Liberation Organization, ended his speech at the United Nations by calling for an independent Palestinian state including Jews, Moslems and Christians.

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin (above, left), remarks a threat to Israel's existence and said "peace is not ahead."

Shopkeepers in the Israel-occupied town of Nablus, staged a general strike Wednesday in support of the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

Arab youths, chanting "Palestine is Arab" and "Arabat we are all with you" stayed away from school in Nablus and Halbut Wednesday and hurled stones and curses at patrolling troops.

Israeli troops charged the small groups of children and arrested 20 persons on disorderly conduct. Most were released because they were under 17 years of age.

Israeli soldiers' march through the streets of the town and broke up even the smallest gatherings.

The West Bank war of what had been known as Lebanon's "small groups of children" became part of Jordan in 1950. It has been occupied by Israel since the six day war in 1967.

British deficit increases

(C) New York Times Service
LONDON — The British trade deficit climbed above the $1 billion mark again in October and approached a record level, the government reported today, as the financial markets reacted nervously to the new economic measures announced in Wednesday's budget.

The pound weakened anew in the foreign exchange market, while prices on the London stock exchange fell sharply. The price of gold soared to a record $186 an ounce, reflecting its traditional role as a refuge for funds at times of economic turbulence.

The trade report, which appeared to confirm that the visible deficit for the year would reach $10 billion, raised new anxieties over the health of the economy. The nation's chronic deficit is one of its most serious problems.

Meanwhile, the British people began to recognize that a broad range of price increases was likely to result from the new economic program outlined in the budget package delivered to parliament. Fuel taxes and electricity rates are expected to rise shortly, and gasoline taxes will go up by the equivalent of 14 cents a gallon Monday.

British Chancellor of the Exchequer also announced that all subsidies for coal, natural gas, electricity and telephone services would eventually be charged at the market rate.

Higher prices for the products and services provided by government-owned enterprises.

Further measures, Healey said, would be announced in the next few weeks to conserve the nation's energy resources.

About 30,000 species of weevils exist throughout the world. More than 1,800 of these compete with crops and cause serious economic losses each year.

Aspin scores 'pool'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Les Aspin (D-Wis.) has charged that Air Force general operations training, which involves more than $100,000 in a practice bombing competition Aspin said Wednesday he has asked the Justice Department, the Internal Revenue Service and Air Force investigators to look into the practice at Barksdale Air Force Base, La.

He said the Air Force schedules, so-called "continuing training" bomb runs over the Strategic Air Command and that a pool totaling six six figures is formed with bets on the crews in the bombing competition.

Aspin said he has received complaints from men who have been pressured by their commanders to contribute to the pool and the event federal grand jury charges, which he said are being violated.

Aspin also said he has received reports that the morale of the crews engaged in the competition is very low because the men realize this "betting" pool runs over the generals with no practical value to speak of.

Morton supports gas tax hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rogers E. Morton, President Carter's energy chief, expressed strong interest Wednesday in a big increase in the federal gasoline tax as a way to discourage consumption, reduce oil imports and drive down world oil prices.

Morton left the impression, and other officials confirmed, that any such increase would have to be at least to cents a gallon.

HOWARD CALLAWAY eyes report

Morton, who is secretary of the interior and is regarded as one of Ford's closest political advisers, said that despite Ford's pre-election decision last month not to ask Congress to increase the tax, the matter was still alive.

"I don't feel the President is in a mandate to me as chairman of the Energy Research Council," he disclosed any of these things," Morton said during a discussion of energy conservation measures. The discussion took place in a press briefing given by the secretary at the Interior Department.

Later, Ron Nesson, the President's press secretary, said "there is no change in the President's position on it."

Morton asked if Ford had raised the tax, now 4 cents a gallon, said "he foreclosed it by the fact that it isn't a desirable thing in Congress."

Morton added that the President might yet accept it as part of a large fiscal and energy package to be shaped in congressional negotiations.

The secretary, a former Republican representative from Maryland, said that in light of the election results "the Democrats do have a real advantage."

"The old, bread and butter issues are there," he added. Watergate was a factor, he said, but "economic fear is what changes the complexion of the House and Senate."

He said Democrats would want "to put some of their own labels" on an energy and program—and that "the administration would be willing to negotiate."

Some White House staff officials and other presidential advisers have also said, but not for attribution, that the tax idea wasn't dead despite Ford's strong rejection of it on Oct. 8. Oct. 9 "business-observer" occasions, Murray, Treasury Secretary William E. Simon has long advocated a tax increase.

HEW backs exempt law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is supporting a move in Congress to exempt from an anti-sex discrimination law such traditionally all-male or all-female organizations as fraternities, the Scouts and the Camp Fire Girls.

Peter Holmes, head of HEW's office of Civil Rights, told reporters Wednesday that the department will support exemptions for the traditionally sex exclusive organizations. But he added, HEW has not taken a position on another congressional move that would exempt school and college "physical education classes from the law."

In June, HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger signed detailed regulations for implementing the title IX anti-sex discrimination law passed two years earlier by Congress. The HEW draft called for coed physical education classes in any school or college receiving federal funds.

Part of My Lai massacre data released

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A long suppressed investigation of the My Lai massacre shows that 20 officers and two enlisted men participated in covering up the killing of between 170 and 500 civilians in the Vietnamese village.

Portions of the investigation headed by Lt. Gen. William H. Peers were released Wednesday by the Army, more than 4 1/2 years after it was finished and secret on grounds "it might prejudice the courts-martial of soldiers accused in the massacre and cover-up."

Only 14 officers were publicly charged in the cover-up. Of those, only one, Lt. Gen. Oran K. Henderson, ever reached court-martial, and he was acquitted.

Former Lt. William L. Calley Jr., the only man convicted of the massacre itself, was originally accused of killing 10 Vietnamese and eventually convicted of murdering "beyond 22."

"The precise number of Vietnamese killed cannot be determined, but was at least 175 and may exceed 400," the report said.

"The massacre resulted primarily from the nature of the orders issued by persons in the chain of command within Task Force Barker," headed by Lt. Col. Frank A. Barker, the report concluded.

"The task force commanders' order and the associated intelligence estimate issued prior to the operation were established as they were—disseminated through each lower level of command and ultimately presented to the individual soldier and misleading picture of the area as an armed enemy camp largely devoid of civilian inhabitants."

Lt. Col. Barker, field commander of the My Lai operation, was killed in combat three months later, planned, ordered and actively directed the execution of an unlawful operation." The report said Maj. Charles C.

Calhoun, Capt. Eugene M. Kutou and Capt. Ernest L. Medina joined in the planning.

But the report also blamed higher officers up to and including a two-star general, Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster, for failing to "insure that the plan included provisions for the handling, screening and treatment of the noncombatant inhabitants" during March 16, 1968, sweep of My Lai.

Koster was never tried, the Army said, because there was insufficient evidence. But the Army—old, double—Koster, reprimand him and rescind an award he received in Vietnam.

"The report detailed 19 specific acts of omission by Koster contributing to the cover-up, including countermanning a subordinate's order to send soldiers back to My Lai to see how many civilians were killed."

Two chaplains were also implicated. The report said Capt. Carl E. Cresswell reported what he knew to Lt. Col. Francis B. Lewis but that he failed to report it as well through military channels.

Quake shakes Palmer

PALMER, Alaska (UPI) — A moderate earthquake shook the sparse Alaska peninsula 90 miles northwest of Kodiak Wednesday night.

A spokesman at Alaska's Palmer Observatory said the tremor registered 5.5 on the Richter scale and was centered near the King Salmon Air Force Base. No damage was reported.

"The quake wasn't sufficient size to generate a tidal wave in the Pacific, the observatory spokesman said.

Firemen's future uncertain

BELMONT, Calif. (UPI) — Two dozen firemen are living in fearful uncertainty over their future because they came in contact with a deadly pesticide in an unmarked tank.

Two of the men have already been forced to retire with serious lung ailments. Two more have been put on sick leave because they have brain damage that causes dizziness and fainting.

"At least 15 other firemen have had physical problems since that day more than a year ago when they went out on what seemed to be a routine call for help.

Walter Nunes, who had a mail shop, had found a small unmarked tank he thought would make a good fireplace. He began to pry off the top.

Nunes smelled tear gas that was in the tank to warn people of its deadly contents — methabromide, a powerful pestocidal agent. Nunes called the fire department.

"We tried to plug the leak," said Fire Chief Richard Weaver. "But we started losing men. They were dropping. The hospital didn't know how to treat them until we knew what was in the tank."

After the emergency was over, the firemen took off their gas masks and sweat bands. Only gradually over the months did they realize the greater danger they were in.

The men still feel the lingering effects of methabromide gas poisoning. They undergo monthly tests that have showed erratic brain waves, loss of memory and other symptoms.

Various remedies for high food prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) - An Agriculture Department economist recommends eating lean, beef and beans. A supermarket chain spokesman says consumers should price for better value.

If on-shell poultry were banned, she said, the average shopper would probably save only pennies per week. Clarence Adams, president of the National Association of Food Chains, said cutting poultry... will," he said.

The higher price level will affect additional production, but not immediately. It takes more than one year to bring in much additional production and considerably longer to provide additional processing facilities.

Food price critics puzzling

SACRAMENTO, Calif. - The price of their beer and they don't worry about the price of their new television set.

Scott also said consumer boycotts of farm products do not reduce prices and only cause problems for farmers.

Yetter said the best way shoppers can help food bills down is to concentrate on a small list of products in good supply including lean beef and beans.

Idaho harvest done

BOISE (UPI) - Harvests in Idaho were virtually completed by Nov. 1 with the exception of sugar beet fields, the Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said today.

In North Idaho, seeding of winter wheat and barley was delayed by extremely dry soil conditions and timely rains were needed to provide moisture for germination and early development of planted crops.

Yetter said the best way shoppers can help food bills down is to concentrate on a small list of products in good supply including lean beef and beans.

Audit presented to Valley School District trustees

VALLEY SCHOOLS—The year-end financial status of Valley School District is good, according to the district's fiscal year audit.

The Valley School board heard a report Monday night on the audit of the school district from Steve Saulte, CPA, who told the trustees that the district's expenditures ending June 30 were below the revenues received.

The general fund revenues as of June 30 were $683,222 with expenditures of $477,600, leaving a balance of $205,622.

The school plant facility fund showed a balance of $22,557 with total expenditures of $7,603. In the federal assistance program, total revenue was $35,245. Expenditures were $33,091.

In other business, the trustees agreed to have board meetings at 7 p.m. instead of 6 p.m. during the winter months.

Bill Mitchell, high school principal, and Birch Sorenson, grade school principal, reported to the board that parent teacher conferences conducted last Thursday and Friday were a success, with 90 per cent of the parents meeting with the teachers.

Trustees agreed to pay part of the cost of replacing a fence along the southeast boundary of the Hazelton Elementary School. Pat Pharris, area farmer, requested that the district pay for the fence replacement, since the fence runs along the school playground. He cautioned students crawling through the fence is part of the reason the fence is in poor repair.

Arlin Boddy, school superintendent, said he was told by an attorney the district would have a hard time proving in court the students were not partially responsible. "The attorney said if our kids tore it down, we're liable to pay for half of it," Boddy said.

Larry Anderson, trustee, said he thought the district should just pay "for our half and not for the whole fence." If he wants to sue us, let him," Anderson said.

Harold Grant, chairman, pointed out that part of the problem has been Pharris' cattle sticking their heads over the fence to eat the school's grass. The trustees agreed to have Boddy and Grant contact Pharris and try to come to an agreement over the fence. Grant's share of the cost and passivity Pharris' herd hands to do the work.

Sorenson reported on a principal's meeting he attended recently. He said part of the session dealt with the metric system. "We were told that the teacher's should begin with the metric system so students can begin getting acquainted with it," Sorenson said.

He said the changeover in the country is expected to be a gradual thing over the next 10 years.

"We are beginning to see the metric system showing up in more and more of our daily lives. I have talked to the district teachers about starting to use the metric more and a preliminary program will be started in the first grade," Sorenson said.

The resignation of Mrs. Beal Reed, second grade teacher, was accepted by the board.

Boddy said he has received three applications for the position, but is leaving the job open until he can find the right person. He noted that one substitute teacher will be used until the job is filled.

Boddy reported that the district is helping with the fire-fighting class conducted every Monday night in Eden.

Woman wins new court hearing

BOISE (UPI)—The Idaho Supreme Court has ordered a new court hearing in a suit brought by a woman acquitted of murdering her husband against her insurance company for failure to pay the life insurance dividend.

Doris Perrigo sued the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. for refusal to pay additional compensation under the violent and accidental death clause of a life insurance policy. It had issued on her late husband.

But the case never reached trial because the District Judge, Walt E. Prather of Kootenai County, granted the insurance company's motion for summary judgment.

The supreme court found the lower court's ruling to be in error and ordered the case to proceed to trial.

Brock upset about missing MVP award

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Lou Brock, denied the National League's Most Valuable Player award after the best season of his 13-year major-league career, was quoted Wednesday as saying "I'll start to think about next year, and they offer me the MVP. I wouldn't accept it."

Brock, who finished second to Los Angeles Dodger first baseman Steve Garvey in voting by the Baseball Writers Association of America's major-league record of 111 stolen bases this past season. His remarks were published by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"Brock" was in Chicago filming a documentary on his life. An agent described him as "very bitter" over the MVP award but said he was not available for further comment.

The St. Louis Cardinals left fielder, who remained even-tempered and composed throughout his pressure-packed race to break Maury Wills' 12-year-old record of 101 steals, "was bitter" about his exclusion from the top award and accused the sports writers of "bad judgment." Wills won the MVP award in 1962.

Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst said, "It's really hard to understand how they voted. I don't know what else anyone could ask Brock to do. He helped the rest of our team by keeping the other clubs shook up."

Cardinals Coach Vern Benson said, "I'd hate to think there would have been without Lou. He obviously kept us in the race."

"They (the voting writers) have been consistent," Brock said. "They have been showing consistently bad judgment for five years."

Brock was criticizing the voters for not choosing Willie Stargell or Billy Williams for the MVP award in recent years.

What especially irked Brock was the fact that six writers chose him as higher than fourth place even though Brock was rated at least even to get the award.

When Schoendienst learned that two writers voted for Brock for seventh and eighth place, he exclaimed: "oh, my God..."

The award is based on points, with players getting a higher number of points according to the ranking by the writers.

Brock later was quoted as saying, "I was not pleased with the result of the balloting, but my hat's soft to Steve Garvey."

Roosters hard to find, but there's seed there

By MILT WILLIAMS
Idaho Fish and Game Department
Northern Idaho pheasant hunters have just a few days through Sunday, November 17 to wind up their hunting season. The last season is that they are hunting out and will show up after the hunting ends. This is always the case, even in the really good pheasant years. Pheasant problems are the result of the very few pheasant survivors, even in the face of great odds.

It has been told and retold that roostered pheasants are the result of a genetic problem of increasing frequency each year. This is true in all pheasant states since the same set of circumstances prevails in each of them. In Idaho, the pheasant population has been reduced to a few hundred birds in the late 1960s. This is due to the fact that in the 1950s there were millions of them and they were the most favored game of American bird hunters.

waste patches began to disappear with the advent of modern agriculture. Great demands were placed on the American farmer and he has performed well. Still greater demands are to be expected in future years if the world's burgeoning populations are to be fed.

Idaho farmlands have changed over the past thirty years and that trend will certainly continue in the future. A very large portion of the state has also gone in the face of more scientific and efficient farm production practices. Full plowing, widespread irrigation ditches and various chemical weedicides have taken a considerable toll of our good pheasant habitat. But in the meantime, the pheasant continues to survive. The remarkable recovery of Idaho populations is down from past highs. However, huntable populations of pheasants will probably exist for a long time to come despite shortages of winter food and cover, disturbance and disruption of nests, and all the other hazards they must face. Pheasant hunters must realize, though, that they have already had the best, and future pheasant hunting likely will never be what it once was. Still the most important upland game-bird in Idaho, the pheasant receives a large amount of attention from game managers. A series of field checks are made each year. Starting in midwinter shortly after the hunting season has ended, this series of field information documents the ratio of cocks to hens following the hunting season, the comparative size of the spring breeding population, and the resulting brood production during late summer.

information is combined and converted into an index of the size of the population. The index may be compared from year to year and is the basis for recommendations concerning season length, bag limits, etc. The population index data is also quite useful in examining long term trends on the regional level.

Birmingham batters Shreveport 40-7 field goal and Capone returned his intercepted pass 29 yards for a touchdown, making the score 17-0. Capone set up another touchdown early in the second period, returning a Jim Nance fumble 19 yards to the Shreveport three. Jimmy Edwards scored from four yards out and ran the action point for a 25-0 margin.

A cross section of hunters is simplified at checking stations on the opening weekend of pheasant season. Harvest information is gathered, including a wing and a tail from each bird checked. By examining the legs, the young to old ratio can be established, and the wings can be "read" to determine within a week when the birds hatched. The week of the hatch, or the high point in the spring hatch can be pinpointed and added to the other data compiled during the year.

HONOLULU (UPI) — Randy Johnson threw for 183 yards and 11 touchdowns and the Hawaiians' stellar defense blanketed the Portland storm 23-9 Wednesday night to move the Hawaiians to the fourth playoff spot.

A chilled and occasionally unimpressive crowd of 12,232 watched the final regular game of the season which had been a double-overtime start-up in the Hawaiians' management of the storm expenses for the game. The Hawaiians had lost the first two games played against Portland.

Coaches honor Dunne, Harper and Peterson

Ray Harper of Bluff River and Ed Peterson of Jerome won the football awards and Jerome's Tim Dunne took cross country honors. Wednesday night when the Fourth District Coaches' Association conferred its fall sports honors.

Harper led a young Bluff River team to the Magic Valley conference championship and into the fourth-fifth district playoffs. Peterson's Jerome Tigers were 10-1 in the A-1 and A-2 division and won their playoff game.

Dunne's cross country team set a record that may be tied but never broken in winning the Class B state title. The Tigers took the first five individual places.

The awards were based on voting by members of the association and presented by President Gordon Hogan of Hilsen.

In other business, Dick Stickle, assistant secretary of the Idaho Interscholastic Activities Association, asked for area input concerning reorganization and possible reclassification of the state.

Stickle said inflation is catching up with the state group, noting a cash reserve has been steadily dwindling the past few years. He said this fact indicates the group must no longer put fund-raising events—historically state basketball tournaments, in areas for appreciation of geographical areas but in these areas where maximum revenue could be generated.

He urged the reorganization, as he had the approval of the large schools who want more say in governing their own activities and direction.

He added reclassification was less a problem than reorganization since the larger schools have indicated dropping association membership as a possibility toward correcting their situation.

Some of this could be alleviated by allowing school membership to be on a scale with enrollment. An example would be five votes for schools with high school students totaling 1,200 or more, four votes for those with 600 to 1,199; two votes from 200 to 599; and one vote from 1 to 199.

Association membership would multiply commensurately. At the present time, Stickle said, the total contribution by school based on the four basketball classifications would be A-1 $229 each, A-2 $206, A-3 $189 and A-4 $141.

He said this included level individual membership cards, percentage take-off on district tournaments and net profits on state competitions.

On reclassification, Stickle said lack of adjustments in classification during growth of a sport has resulted in the current hedgepodge. He stressed the need for uniform

ISU ends home year against Cal Poly

Two football teams met Saturday night in the Snake River Valley, the contest between ISU and Cal Poly. The Mustangs' 1974 home football schedule and starts at 7 p.m.

Idaho State has won three consecutive games to even the record at 3-3. The Mustangs would have offered long odds on a mid-October Cal Poly is 3-1, rebounding from a 1-3 start with a tie over Cal Poly Pomona and impressive wins over Nevada Reno 37-21 and Cal Northridge 45-14.

Speaking of home, the Big Orange team looked the odds in coming from behind twice in the fourth quarter to defeat Montana State 31-28. A tight, difficult passing game came to life with relief pitcher Tom Tesches connecting twice for TDs with Tom and won the game with a strike to Holman.

Cal Poly likewise has a 7-2 pass attack, although they threw the ball so seldom as the Bengals. The Johnson was injured in Cal Poly's opening loss to Boise and Rich Holman took over the Mustangs' quarterback. Although they passed well in the Mustangs' last three weeks, no Johnson got a start as Coach Joe Harper jinked his sver and went back to the power I that had his signal 17-23 the past two years. He's been quarterbacking Cal Poly ever since.

Tollback Gary Davis leads a balanced running attack with 466 yards and a 4.4 average. He's scored six times. Fullback Bob Truduen has 367 yards and a 3.9 average, while back-up fullback Rocky Chapman has 292 yards and a 4.7 average.

Johnson has completed 10-21 passes for 147 yards, and Robins is 35 for 75 for 567 yards. The duo has some classy targets in sprinter Walter Mead, who is also a dynamite return man, and tight end Dana Natzger, who ISU Coach Bob Griffin calls, "along with our Mike Hancock the best tight end I've seen since coming to Idaho State."

The Mustangs have light offensive and defensive lines—215-lb Ken Kilbom is the best offensive lineman, and 245-lb tackle Dennis Sherlock shines on defense. 195-lb linebacker Jeff Van Dyck is a four-year letterman.

Coaches honored

Montana not only lost the game but an injury claimed their starting quarterback in Rock Stevenson. He was replaced by junior Sam Troxel and it will be Troxel who will get the call for the Broncos on Saturday.

Commenting on the Cal Davis game, Bronco head coach Tony Knapp said "the game was intensely played by two skilled and spirited football clubs. There was a lot of good hitting and good execution on both offense and defense."

"I certainly haven't felt a decrease in my respect and admiration for the Cal Davis coaches and players. They did a great job," Knapp said.

"The University of Montana presents a much different

BSU shoots for Big Sky crown

BOISE, Idaho — With just one win needed to claim their second straight Big Sky football championship, the Boise State Broncos took their chances for Missoula, Montana and Saturday's game with the University of Montana Grizzlies.

Game time is set for 1:30 p.m. (MST) in Missoula.

The Broncos have a 4-9 league record and a win over the Grizzlies would give them the league title. Montana is currently 2-2-1 in the league and 3-1 in the Big Sky.

Boise State lost their season mark to 1-1 last Saturday against Cal Davis by a 41-20 score. Saturday night the Grizzlies lost to Idaho State 25-22 in the last seven seconds of the game.

picture and one I find worrisome. They are very big and strong with quickness in their skill positions. We play in Missoula on a grass field and this is bound to affect our timing and execution in our passing game. If the weather turns cold and snowy, it will compound the problem.

"The Grizzlies have nothing to lose and will probably play one of their better games. We have never won in Missoula," Knapp said.

The last time the Broncos made the trip to Missoula in 1972, they came out on the short end of a 42-21 score. The series record between the two schools stands at 2-1 in favor of the Broncos with BSU taking wins in 1971 (47-24) and 1973 (35-7).

Ironically, the big man against the Broncos in the Grizzlies win in Missoula in 1972 was Van Troxel who was a freshman at the time. He ran and passed the Montana squad. (Troxel was Troxel in the eyes of Ed Troxel, head coach of the Idaho Vandals. Should Van Troxel lead the Grizzlies past the Broncos on Saturday, the Idaho Vandals will still have a shot at the Big Sky title and they meet the Broncos in Boise on Nov. 23.

On the year, Troxel has seen very limited action—completed 14 of 25 passes for 174 yards and one score. He has carried the ball 27 times for 13 yards. Montana has been a rushing team, averaging 190.3 yards a game on the ground to 143.4 yds. the in the Broncos they will be facing the top passing total offense and scoring squad in the nation in Division I. BSU is not averaging 76.1 yards a game in total offense. 319.9 in passing and 42.4 points per game.

Boise State will be also facing a national leader in statistics. Montana free safety Greg Anderson, a sophomore, is tops in the country. Division II in kickoff returns with a 31.5 return average. He is number two in the nation in punt returns with a 20.2 average. He has scored two touchdowns on punt returns and two in kickoff returns. Anderson did not play against Idaho State last Saturday but will be ready to receiver who did not become rusty with disuse the past few weeks.

Coach Bob Griffin has really developed a 1-2 quarterback attack the past few weeks. Ed Sartori directed ISU to a 9-2 lead and had been the Sky Player of the Week only a week ago. However on a fourth and goal situation on the five fresh and convicted with Holman for the go-ahead TD. Then when I'M scored with 49 seconds left in the game to end 22-19. Comeback award of year goes to Texas' Ferguson

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tiresome Ferguson Jenkins, a Chicago Cub cast-off a year ago who almost singlehandedly brought the Texas Rangers back to respectability with 25 victories this past season, has been named the 1974 Major League Comeback Player of the Year by United Press International.

Jenkins, who called back from a 14 1/2 season with the Cubs in '73 to a 25 1/2 log with the Rangers in '74, pulled many votes from the 171 baseball counterparts across the country to easily outdistance southpaw Jim Kaat of the meanwhile White Sox who had four wins from one of the worst teams in baseball in '73. He pitched 250 1/3 innings, with 141 strikeouts, 104 hits, 104 runs, 104 errors, 104 walks, 104 home runs, 104 RBIs, 104 outs, 104 innings pitched, 104 pitches, 104 batters faced, 104 outs recorded, 104 innings pitched, 104 pitches, 104 batters faced, 104 outs recorded.

Jenkins' 25 victories tied him with Jim Hunter of the Oakland A's as the top winner in the major leagues this season. In addition, the Texas right-hander pitched 22 1/3 innings, struck out 25 batters and posted an earned run average of 2.01, ranking also among league leaders in total innings pitched, total outs recorded, total batters faced, total pitches, total innings pitched, total outs recorded, total batters faced, total pitches, total innings pitched, total outs recorded.

It was no secret that, despite career-high performance from many of the other Texas players under new manager Billy Martin, Jenkins was the key to the Rangers' dramatic comeback. He pitched 250 1/3 innings, with 141 strikeouts, 104 hits, 104 runs, 104 errors, 104 walks, 104 home runs, 104 RBIs, 104 outs, 104 innings pitched, 104 pitches, 104 batters faced, 104 outs recorded.

New York beats Japanese stars to lead series

HIROSHIMA, Japan (UPI) — Joe Torre led a three-run homer and Stephen Jerry Kawamura scattered five hits in going the distance Thursday to give the New York Mets a 10-0 victory over a combined Yonkers Giants and Hiroshima Toyo Carp team.

It was the Mets' 10th straight win and their record improved to 10-0 in the first three games of their 10-game goodwill tour.

A crowd of 22,000 at Hiroshima Citizens stadium saw hometown right-hander Yoshinori Sotokoba retire the Mets in order in the first three innings. Sotokoba led Wayne Garrett to fly, out opening the fourth inning, but Felix Millan singled and reached second on John Milner's single. Torre then homered, scoring Milner and Milner ahead of him.

For Torrey, who had been benched by the Mets from St. Louis a week before the Mets left New York for Tokyo, it was his third home run in Japan.

The Mets scored their fourth and last run in the sixth inning off Hiroshima right-hander Koji Ikegaya when Ed Kranepool doubled to score Milner, who had walked and gone to third on Torre's single.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

In a man's dreams, his enemies mostly are men, his friends mostly women. That's not the case in a girl's dreams usually, say the sleep researchers. Her enemies and friends therein are all mixed up, both male and female.

NOTEWORTHY REFERENCE: the Encyclopaedia Britannica. The 1820 edition, printed in Britain, had to say about American women: "At the age of 25, many of them can be taken for Europeans of 40. In South Carolina at the age of 30, a woman appears as old as the age of 50 in that exhausting climate, the hair becomes entirely white."

PARTY CLAUSE

The party clause is what it's called. Numerous French landlords write it into the contracts with their apartment tenants. It permits one party a month, no limit on noise, providing said tenant gives two days notice to neighboring renters, so they can either get out of town or join the stampede for a bad motion.

PLANNED

Posters recently queried 130,000 young mothers. A third of them said all of their children were planned. Another third said none of their children were planned. And the final third said some of their children were planned, some weren't.

"MY HUSBAND AND I and our children are extraordinarily healthy. I think it's because of something my mother taught me. I make sure our main meal always consists of three colors. What colors do not matter, so long as they are different. That way, she told me, what you serve will supply all your nutritional needs. It is the only diet plan we have ever followed, and we all weigh what we should—look fine—and feel great." So reports a Pennsylvania who signs herself Cabofur! Kitchen Mechanic.

ISLANDS

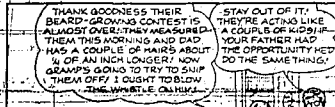

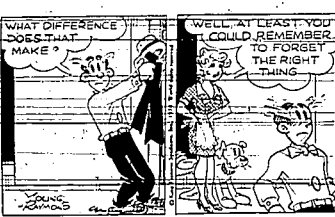

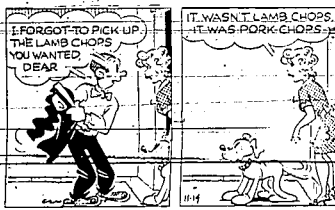

Q. "Where does Madagascar rank on that list of the world's largest islands?"
A. It's No. 4. Right behind Borneo, No. 3, New Guinea, No. 2, Greenland, No. 1.

"QUITE TRUE, just about twice as many men as women marry after age 40."

HOW CAN YOU call yourself a loyal Harvard alumni if you can't name the six U.S. presidents educated at your university? Oh, you didn't go to Harvard? All right, John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Theodore Roosevelt, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Rutherford B. Hayes and John F. Kennedy.

Kerr promises canning lid refund

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp. said Tuesday it will make refunds to consumers for home-canning lids that failed to seal, and will reimburse home canners for food losses.

"The refunds will be on lids sold between November 1973 and August 1974 in 10 states, including Idaho.

"We have now concluded that a relatively small, but unknown quantity of lids, which were not of the quality either we or our customer expects, were inadvertently shipped to a few states," said William A. Kerr, president.

"Consistent with our history of standing behind the products that bear our name, we are preparing a program for payment direct to consumers for Kerr lids that failed to seal and for food lost as a result of such failure.

"I personally regret the difficulties our customers suffered because of our sealing failure."

Kerr said a lid sealing compound changed in accordance with federal directives did not at first produce consistent results and was modified for 1974 shipments.

Teetotaler?

RENSSELAER, Ind. (UPI) — Alfred Hentschel, a teetotaler, swears he saw a kangaroo hopping along a Rensselaer street Tuesday. "Apparently he's the only one. I hope someone else sees it or everybody will think I'm a nut," said Hentschel, head carpenter at St. Joseph's College. "It was a kangaroo. I know it was."

All zoos in the Chicago area report their kangaroos are accounted for, and nobody else has filed a missing marsupial report either.

Colonists landing on the banks of the Plaquemine River at Portsmouth, N.H., in 1630 found the area thick with strawberries. They named the town "Strawberry Banke," but it was changed to Portsmouth 23 years later.
