US, Japan pledge cooperation

Panel OK for Rocky seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Senate Rules Committee said today the panel will recommend Friday that Nelson A. Rockefeller be confirmed as vice president.

Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., told reporters after a brief meeting of the committee that the panel's vote on Friday will be favorable.

But Cannon said a full Senate vote will come after Thanksgiving "to give members a chance to read our report." Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said Tuesday he hoped the vote could come before the Thanksgiving recess.

Puzzled

CHANTILLY, Va. (UPI) — Napoleon Lechoo Jr., 16, son of the Filipino gunman who held his country's ambassador hostage for three hours Monday, arrived here today.

"I don't know what's the reason he did it for me — it's not right," the youth said when he arrived in San Francisco. His trip to the U.S. was swiftly arranged after the envoy was released. The elder Lechoo has been committed to a hospital for psychiatric examination.

Hussein assassination ordered?

BEIRUT (Chicago Daily News) — PLO leader Yasser Arafat, who is to meet with Jordan's King Hussein later this month, has reportedly ordered the king's assassination. And, according to the number two man in Arafat, the main guerrilla group of the PLO, two attempts were made to kill Hussein during last month's Arab summit conference in Rabat, Morocco.

Korean tunnel blast wounds 5 GI's

SEOUL (UPI) — An explosion rocked a mysterious Communist-constructed underground tunnel beneath the Demilitarized Zone dividing North and South Korea today, killing a South Korean Army officer and wounding six soldiers, five of them Americans.

Another American soldier was reported missing in the blast.

It was the most serious incident involving U.S. troops in four years of an uneasy truce along the DMZ between the two Koreas.

Pact mulled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Harry Patrick, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers Union, said Tuesday he hopes a "pre-union" bargaining council will accept the new contract proposed to end the current coal strike.

But Patrick said he thinks "chances it will be accepted by the council as it now stands are about 50-50." Several possible snags which could extend the strike — have — cropped up. (Related story, p. 8.)

Antitrust fine boost approved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An oversight of the Watergate scandals, Congress has approved a bill to increase antitrust fines to $1 million and prohibit "obnoxious contacts" between antitrust defendants and government officials.

The Senate, which passed its version last week, is expected to accept minor changes made by the House, which passed the measure by voice vote Tuesday. President Ford is expected to sign the bill.

Mansfield offers controls measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield today introduced legislation that would give President Ford authority to stop controls on every major segment of the economy.

Declaring the nation's economic picture was "unstable" every day, Mansfield said the measure would give Ford discretionary authority identical to powers given to former President Richard M. Nixon.

But that would give price control authority expired last April and Congress failed in an attempt to extend it for another year.

Brezhnev plans Syrian visit

Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev will visit Syria following his summit meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Cairo in mid-January, the official Soviet Press news agency said today.

Arab sources in Moscow said visits to other Arab capitals may be made later.

The Tass announcement coincided with reports by western defense sources in London that the Soviet Union's latest shipments of advanced weapons to Syria have included about 50 medium-range ground-to-ground missiles capable of hitting Israel's major cities.

TOKYO — The working phase of President Ford's Japanese visit ended today with Japan and the United States pledging mutual cooperation in food, energy and trade but breaking no new ground in any of those fields.

The results were contained in a formal communique which had been largely drafted days before.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger elaborated on the results at a news conference, that yielded little new information. Finally the results were summed up in a formal address by Ford that defined the U.S. as a "trustworthy ally" and a "reliable trading partner."

The predictable nature of these statements has also been reflected in the more visible ceremonial portion of the visit.

The trip, the first ever to Japan by a U.S. president, had been stressed on both sides of the Pacific as an important symbolic act, and there has been every evidence that leaders and officials, from heads of government on down, thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

But in Tokyo itself, the Ford visit has been greeted with a curious and unexpected apathy.

The feared demonstrations by leftists protesting the U.S.-Japan Mutual Security Treaty and the nuclear workbooks carried by the U.S. Pacific Fleet failed to materialize, and squads of police were standing about on Tokyo street corners looking like so many displaced doormats.

As expressed in the communique, which most U.S. officials had a carefully worked agenda of how U.S. officials had in advance sketched out the mutual interests of the two nations, the main results were these:

— Japan went firmly on record, accepting the principle of eventual cooperation among oil-consuming nations, with a view toward achieving "stable supplies" of energy at reasonable prices.

— Japan likewise accepted in principle U.S. efforts to link the worldwide energy and food shortages and agreed to work with the United States on long-range food development programs.

Atom waste burial site floods twice

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The nuclear waste burial ground at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL) near Arco has been flooded at least twice since 1962, an Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) official confirmed Tuesday.

The AEC spokesman also told the Times-News that the AEC does not have complete records of what nuclear wastes are buried where at the Arco facility.

The "localized flooding" was caused by snowmelt, according to Dr. Wayne Bills, assistant manager for production and technical services at the AEC's Idaho operations office.

Another AEC spokesman, public information officer Dick Blackledge, had previously told the Times-News that the danger of contaminating the Snake River aquifer with buried radioactive wastes is negligible, partly because "there just isn't enough water there."

He said annual precipitation is "not sufficient" to drain through the soil and carry wastes into the giant underground waterway.

But Bills stressed Tuesday that the flooding problem was eliminated in 1962 when "action was taken to build a dike and drainage system around the complete burial ground which does not allow water from outside the burial ground to flow into the area."

He also said "surface drainage" was set up inside the burial area to eliminate internal flooding. "Flood waters at the burial site now are managed," he said.

Blackledge said he did not know why the precautions against flooding had not been taken immediately after the first flooding incident in 1962 instead of waiting until after the second flood occurred in 1969.

"It would seem to me you could just point out the fact that it doesn't look good. I don't know that there are any reasons. It is obviously something that doesn't happen that often. It's a good point," Blackledge said.

The Times-News was alerted to the past floods by Carl Hoevar, a nuclear reactor safety expert who resigned his post at the Arco site this year. He moved to Cambridge, Mass., to join the Union of Concerned Scientists, a private organization which acts as a watchdog over nuclear programs.

In a telephone interview, Hoevar said he was "frightened" by several photographs that had been taken at the Idaho burial site. One of the pictures showed nuclear waste containers floating in flood waters, he said.

Blackledge said that waste containers had been "displaced" by flood waters in the past.

"The containers weren't covered at that time and as a result of their buoyancy some of them were displaced," he said. The floating containers included barrels and "plywood boxes."

Floods occurred "two times to my knowledge in 1962 and 1969," Bills said.

"It was runoff from the snow as it melted in warm rain," he added. He said the burial site sometimes has "a foot or two of snow on the ground."

"Normally, the desert is porous enough to absorb the water," he said, but when the floods occurred "you had a frost line underneath the snow which froze the top few inches of soil," and hindered normal drainage.

He said the floods probably affected the entire burial site "in low places."

"The flooding generally depends on what happens to be open at that time with respect to operations," he added. "Generally, there was enough water that it filled the burial pits that were open."

"It happened that there were low spots and water flowed into the fairly large surrounding area-oh there," Bills said.

Jumbo jet crashes

COPILOT of the Lufthansa jumbo jet which crashed at Nairobi, Kenya, today, is led to an ambulance by rescue workers. A 50th anniversary from the burning wreckage rises in the background. At least 61 persons died in the crash. (UPI)

First 747 crash kills 61 in Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A Lufthansa Boeing 747 airliner with 157 persons aboard failed to clear a 30-foot windward ridge and dropped tailfirst into a muddy field. Lufthansa said 61 persons were killed and that there were 96 survivors, many of them unharmed.

"We have just received word that of the 157 persons on board, 96 survived, including a crew member," an airline spokesman said in Frankfurt. "Fifty-five bodies were found and six are still missing."

Police said there were 14 or 15 Americans aboard the flight and all but two, an unidentified British and a Canadian, died. The other 11 survivors. Other passengers were mostly West German businessmen and tourists.

Twelve of the Americans were reported to be in a touring group from the Los Angeles area. An English woman tourist said the Americans were in the center of the big plane and that she thought three of them were killed.

This was the first crash of one of the giant Boeing 747 jets since they went into service five years ago. The 747, capable of carrying 350 passengers, is considered by pilots to be the safest passenger plane in the world.

Cause of the crash was not known.

"There is no suspicion of sabotage," a Lufthansa spokesman said. "At the moment, we only have questions."

Witnesses and survivors said the plane, Lufthansa flight 340 from Frankfurt, bound for Johannesburg with 138 passengers and 16 crew members, lost power just after takeoff and plunged into a muddy field a mile from the end of the runway. Witnesses and one of the survivors said the pilot appeared to be trying to make an emergency landing.

The 747 hit tail first, plowing a 200-yard swath through the mud and grass, breaking into pieces and exploding into flames moments after the survivors scrambled through holes in the 230-foot fuselage and ran to safety.

Witnesses said the tail of the giant dropped and the entire plane descended quickly from about 500 feet scattering wreckage over a wide area. No one on the ground was hurt.

Nairobi hospital said 21 of the survivors had been admitted there, many of them requiring emergency surgery. One was reported in critical condition.

The manager of the Nairobi Hilton hotel, Tom Lissner, said 71 others, mostly German survivors, had been billeted there — "a little grubby but in pretty good condition." "They look like they've come in from a hectic safari."

One survivor, Lynn Moorehouse of London, said she had her fellow passengers "in the mid-section of the plane made up most of the survivors, since the tail section all but disintegrated and the front of the craft was heavily damaged."

"We were very lucky," she said. "We were out of the plane for about 36 seconds when the whole plane exploded." She and her husband had unstrapped their two sons and ran from the plane.

AF Dam decision may come next week

By DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News Writer

BUREAU — The US Bureau of Reclamation is moving to reach a decision on replacement of American Falls Dam by next week.

The bureau has asked the directors of each of the spacheholder districts within the American Falls Reservoir to vote informally on whether they wish to continue the reconstruction project.

According to Stephen Wade, Boise, public affairs officer for the bureau, the vote would be considered informal. Each district was asked to reach a decision by the end of next week, he said. If enough support is shown by the spacheholder districts, the bureau plans to move to sign contracts with the spacheholder districts in December and hold formal bond elections in February.

The proposal to rebuild the deteriorating dam has run into trouble because of soaring costs.

The original plan called for a contribution of $19 million by Idaho Power Co. in exchange for rights to use falling water for power generation. Since the original plan was unveiled, estimated dam replacement costs have nearly doubled, rising from $30.5 million to $40.3 million. This would make the spacheholder districts' share rise from about $1 million to about $2 million.

Schedule riders in the reservoir district had attempted to obtain a larger ante from Idaho Power to compensate for the effect of inflation.

So far Idaho Power has refused to raise its offer beyond $19.5 million, saying a higher sum was economically unjustifiable.

The Bureau of Reclamation's Wade said he could not say what percentage of the reservoir districts must informally vote to continue the project before the bureau proceeds with construction.

Earlier American Falls Reservoir District president John Barker, Buhl, had said that districts representing at least 80 per cent of the reservoir's storage would have to approve the project before it could be undertaken.

Money pinch spurs sprawl

By MARILYN ELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

Tight money does not mean that subdivisions in the Twin Falls area are being curtailed. In fact, suburban developments and small nearby communities like Kimberly and Hansen.

The Farmers Home Administration (FHA) one of the largest sources of mortgage loans for low and middle-income families, makes loans available only outside cities of 10,000 or more population.

This helps produce urban sprawl, where subdivisions are deliberately built outside the city's strictly fertile farmland.

Less stringent county building regulations are also drawing builders from the strictly regulated city lots to suburban lots where they can often forego a curb and gutter, reducing by about $1,000 the cost of the home.

FHA loans may be up 25 per cent this year over last, according to Russell Gilmer, county administrator for FHA. Last year the agency made 150 loans on individual houses.

"At the present rate we will probably exceed 200 loans on individual houses," he said.

In addition to the mortgages on individual homes — all required to be built outside Twin Falls city limits — FHA has over 100 rental units under development in the county, Gilmer said.

Another major home loaning firm in the county, First Federal Savings and Loan, provides mortgages for subdivisions. Generally, in new subdivisions outside the city limits, according to president James Sinclair.

Sinclair estimates that First Federal provides "about 50 per cent of the home construction loans in the county."

Gilmer, on the other hand, estimated that Farmers Home Administration provided about 80 per cent of the home construction loans in the county.

No figures are available to determine accurately the division of home loaning in the county, but First Federal and FHA have carried the bulk of the mortgages for several years.

One mortgage construction outside the city limits in Twin Falls, the other 700 or so, are of its mortgages go to people building outside the city of Twin Falls.

Most of these homes are being built in high density areas — either in suburban developments around Twin Falls or in small communities.

Bob Willis, owner of Willis Construction in Twin Falls, has "never been an avid builder of the outlying areas" but is currently developing a 12-40-unit subdivision southwest of Twin Falls, not because it costs any less, he said, but because "it qualifies for FHA."

If tight money continues over the next few years, Twin Falls could become a commuter city — employing increasing numbers of people who live outside its governmental boundaries.

Demo governors back controls

HILTON HEAD, S.C. Democratic governors have put themselves on record behind federal controls on excess profits and profits, but maneuvering by a small group of dissenters diluted their position.

The governors closed a three-day conference to approve a resolution calling for controls but including an 11th-hour qualifying provision that they should be applied only if the inflation rate does not show a substantial decrease in the first two quarters of 1975.

The measure, in its original form, at least reflected a desire by most of the governors to prod Congressional Democrats to use their expanded majority in both houses to act promptly on the economic problems preoccupying the nation.

As it turned out, however, the resolution reflected little of that sense of urgency because it recommended, in effect, that the controls be used no earlier than some time next summer after the figures are in on the inflation rate.

However, the resolution did make the Democratic governors endorse the first-party group of some influence to take such a position.

Congressional Democrats are frustrated on the control issue.

The resolution on the economy included a wide variety of proposals by the state executives. Among other things, they recommended more tax returns, including taxation of excess profits of oil companies, a new national food policy and the replacement of agriculture secretary Earl Butz and a wide range of energy-saving measures.

But the critical recommendation was that for control in both public and private conversations for the last three days the governors had been saying that they feared Democratic leaders would not act on the urgency of noting on certain questions, forcefully and rapidly. If Congressional Democrats fail to do so, the governors believe, the voters will react against the party in 1976 and wipe away all the gains of the New Selection.

But the resolution on controls finally approved failed to convey that sense of urgency.

Building funds 'tight'

Open agricultural land may be clipped away as people with FHA loans purchase one-acre plots throughout the valley, despite a county zoning ordinance designed to prevent this.

The Twin Falls County zoning ordinance prohibits the sale of land in areas zoned agricultural in less than five-acre parcels.

Farmer's Home Administration loans are usually built to "minimum standards" (except building costs down to an affordable level), Glibler said.

"Most of the homes financed by FHA cost between $22,000 and $25,000 this year," Glibler said, while the average home financed by the agency three years ago cost $18,000.

"Skyrocketing building costs have forced FHA to 'cut down size and content' in the homes it finances to help trim costs," he said.

"Home" size has generally decreased from 1,200 square feet to 1,000 square feet in FHA homes and basements and garages have been eliminated from most homes.

"The effort is to keep basic construction 'down' and eliminate extras," Glibler said.

FHA is "encouraging people to build in subdivisions within existing lots" to help curb sprawl down and the cost down," Glibler said.

FHA has restricted building to units of less than an acre, unless the home builder already owns a larger tract of land. Generally homes are built on the "minimum adequate site" allowed by the city or county where the home is being built — about 9,000 to 10,000 square feet.

"Our standards are minimum," Glibler said. "Most builders wouldn't lower their standards to ours."

The majority of the homes financed by FHA are being built near Hansen and Kimberly, he said, with a few being built in Buhl and the fringes of Twin Falls.

For the individual who makes less than $12,000 adjusted income annually, FHA loans are very attractive. The rate is 9 1/2 per cent, or about $307 monthly payment including principal and interest on a $25,000 home.

An interest subsidy, which could cut the rate as low as one per cent, is available for those with an adjusted income of less than $2,000.

This could bring the monthly payment on that $25,000 home down to $74 per month, and, in addition, allow the home builder to deduct the full $207 subsidized payment from his income tax at the close of the year.

Army was lucky. He "fell into" a rare opportunity.

Many of Twin Falls' new residents have a much more difficult time. Often they must rent, turn to mobile homes or abandon plans to move.

may, during his ownership, sell one-acre plot of his land and the rest must be sold in parcels of at least five acres.

This was difficult to give a larger acre opportunity to retire on a small parcel of his land.

However, anyone who buys a five-acre parcel of land may, for example, keep one acre for himself and sell four. The owner of the four may then keep one and sell three. The owner of the three may keep one and sell two and suddenly five acres have been built on five acres of agricultural land.

In good times the loophole might be ignored, in tight money times with an increasing demand for housing, every opportunity is taken.

Defeated candidate demands recount

SHOSHONE — Defeated Lincoln County Commission candidate Victor J. Bozzuto, who lost to opponent Walter Bowman by just seven votes, has demanded a recount.

Bozzuto announced Tuesday that he had filed for the recount with the Idaho Attorney General's office. He asked for the recount, he said, at the suggestion of supporters who were themselves unsure of the election results.

Bozzuto said he felt an obligation to his supporters to satisfy them more fully of the election outcome.

Bozzuto was defeated for the Third District Commission spot by 669 to 652. He had until Nov. 25 to file for a recount.

Awards given at 4-H banquet

BY MARJORIE LITTMAN
Times-News writer

FILER — Dave Chadwick received a 20-year pin and Carolyn Jessor was presented a silver watch for outstanding 4-H club member Monday evening in the Filer Grange Hall.

Chadwick has been a leader of the Happy Hollister 4-H Club for ten years and received his award from Lynn Merzok, 4-H club county agent during the leader's appreciation banquet which is hosted each year by members of the 4-H Builders Club.

A watch was presented to Miss Jessor for outstanding 4-H Club member from Jerry Martin of the First Security Bank, Twin Falls.

Mrs. Roy Jessor received her 15-year pin, and five-year pins were awarded Mrs. G. D. Eisenhauer, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Moon, Mrs. Boyd Hulse and Bill Brademan.

Lillian Howard gave the table invocation for the meal which was served by the Filer Grange members. Table decorations featured autumn leaf centers.

Scott Fehrenbacher, president of the 4-H Builders Club, welcomed club members and guests and introduced Mrs. Frank Southwick and Merrick, club counselors.

Members of the College of Southern Idaho (Reader's Digest) presented a musical play "The Death of Every Mom" and Miss Jessor and Miss Howard gave musical selections. An old-fashioned beauty pageant was presented by the Builders Club.

Members of the banquet committee included: Claire Hesselhut, menu planner; Janet Burkhardt, program; Sal Southwick, decorations; Cynthia Mueller, invitations; and Mrs. Daw, cleanup.

Money crunch causes crisis

TWIN FALLS — A government employe with an annual income of over $15,000, a wife and two children came to Twin Falls in September looking for a home.

He couldn't get a loan. Anywhere.

The tight money crunch has made banks and loaning institutions cautious about home mortgage applications. And to qualify for a low-income subsidy on his home loan, the government employe would have had to make an adjusted income of only $7,500.

His story is repeated over and over in Twin Falls.

The government employe, whom we'll call Richard Army, was transferred to Twin Falls from another southern Idaho city in September.

"It was impossible for me to find financing for a home in Twin Falls," Army said.

"Irregardless of where the house was, there was no financing."

The predicament was not unexpected. The same thing had happened to him when he first arrived at the city he had just left.

After weeks of looking, Army "fell into" a $30,000 home with guaranteed financing.

"There was only one of those houses in existence and I fell into it at the right time," he said.

The home was under construction by a local contractor who had a local savings and loan institution for the financing of the buyer.

Army was lucky. He "fell into" a rare opportunity.

Many of Twin Falls' new residents have a much more difficult time. Often they must rent, turn to mobile homes or abandon plans to move.

Youth workers honored by OES

TWIN FALLS — Youth workers were honored at a meeting of Magr Chapter No. 82, Order of the Eastern Star, Monday evening.

Honored were Marjann Langdon, Janice Beal, Barbara Hall, Estee Harlow and Tamara Hill. Carolyn Pence, worth marion, congratulated them for helping today's youth.

Standing committee reports were given by Edna Smith, sick and visiting; Emily Ballard, condolence; Thelma Brown, people's marathon; and cancer research; and Nellie Black, banquets.

Ms. Beal reported on the women's cancer detection clinic conducted in Boise for Idaho residents. Members are asked to call Sharr Schenkel 733-5460 for appointments for the free clinic.

Lillian Moran reported on the official visit of Geraldine Kiefer, south grand matron, to her own chapter in Nez Perce.

All members of commerce on the north side are urged to send their delegates to this meeting.

Officers for next year will also be elected, according to James Muttley, Gooding, president.

Grassroots work cited for win

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — The first woman elected to the Idaho Legislature from Nov. 5 election for the District Canyon County credits her success to grassroots work.

Dorothy Reynolds led the field of four candidates in Nov. 5 election for the District 11 representative's seat and ended up with a 3,599 vote margin.

Mrs. Reynolds said she campaigned in the late afternoon — because she was teaching full time and could not begin her door-to-door visits until after the last bell at Jefferson Junior High School, where she teaches science.

Instead of campaigning on a platform of liberalist questions, Mrs. Reynolds asked questions of the residents of her district to find out what problems faced the voters.

She said she was especially encouraged to meet men who would tell her "we need more women in the legislature."

In visits with senior citizens, she said they told her they have very different problems concerning the cost of living. They would like to extend the meal-on-wheels program to reach more people, because more than anything, older people want to stay in their own homes.

"More day visiting and that one good meal a day could help many of them do this, and then they wouldn't need a nursing home," she said.

Since many more women are in the working force these days, Mrs. Reynolds found the late afternoon and early evening was the best time to find people at home. Women expressed their concerns about inflation, school problems, and particularly vocational education.

Mrs. Reynolds said that the government doesn't listen to them, she said.

"People so often don't know if their problem should be put to a state agency or a federal one. They often expressed the frustration they didn't know where to go," she said.

The hardest thing about campaigning, she said, was raising money.

She reported that her campaign cost approximately $1,700 and that a major portion of that came from PACE — the Political Action Committee for Education, a committee of the Idaho Education Association.

Most of the contributor came in small donations.

She said she could not have made it without the strong support of her family and dedicated efforts by campaign workers.

"You cannot do this sort of thing alone," she said. "A candidate, any candidate, needs a lot of help."

Long delay in confirmation has advantages wealth for the national role that has always eluded him in the past. He resented the leaks and what he regarded as the occasional invasions of his privacy...

(C) New York Times Service WASHINGTON — It's going to be a while before Nelson Rockefeller is confirmed by the Congress as vice president of the United States...

After all the evidence is in, the main question will still be whether he can do the job, and if Rockefeller is rejected, who will be nominated in his place?

once again under the 25th Amendment with Roosevelt or somebody else would postpone the organization of the Ford administration for another three or four months...

Ride trains or lose them

Union Pacific president John Kenefick, while no avid fan of the passenger train, said something about it in Boise the other day that deserves attention...

Kenefick said high operating costs make it almost impossible to make profit on passenger trains, particularly those serving sparsely populated sections of the United States.

It seems to us Kenefick is warning that while Idaho has been pledged Amtrak service the economics of operating that service are going to require that Idahoans are going to have to ride those trains or ultimately lose them.

Perhaps the worst disadvantage that the promoters of Amtrak for southern Idaho face is that there will be a long lapse...

"Hopefully, that interval will be used by the Idaho Advisory Committee on Amtrak to plant the idea in the minds of Idahoans that using rail transportation is one way of conserving motor fuel...

Discouraging marijuana

(Christian Science Monitor) It is hard to hear the White House chief adviser on drugs recognize the need for "unfettered efforts" to discourage marijuana use.

As the contradictory scientific opinions on the effects of marijuana proliferate, it is no time to stop seeking an effective system of legal restraints.

Marijuana smoking cannot be dismissed as a "victimless crime." Its effects on the individual can harm society and the family by undermining his full and vigorous participation in their concerns.

In this light it would be unfortunate if marijuana use were to become more acceptable because President and Mrs. Ford have been reported to have used marijuana.

Clearly society's attitude on marijuana laws should not be vengeance against the user. It should be to help the potential user return to a normal life without entangling them in so often the case now — obviously debilitating lawsuits.

The challenge to Congress is to devise a realistic national policy that can be enforced with a minimum of diversion of police effort from major crimes...

They want to establish the idea that the vice presidency is not a nothing job, and that nominees for that office must be scrutinized and documented before being nominated under the 25th Amendment...

It may also be that the Senators, who of course are all Idaho residents, and feeling uneasy, are trying to prove that it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of heaven.

In his long and useful career in the public service, something has always held Rockefeller back. It was not merely the public feeling that his wealth gave him an unfair advantage over his political opponents...

Here's why Chrysler plans worker layoff

More auto layoffs set; strikes spread in bus, delivery unions

By United Press International
 Chrysler International Inc. drivers and union members are on strike today and more layoffs were announced in the auto industry.

Senate Democratic Leader Frank Lautenberg predicted another great depression unless the government forces a merger of operations, and for the first time without qualification, President Ford today said America faces recession.

The stock market reacted to the economic developments by dipping an average 37 cents a share Tuesday. The Dow Jones index of 11 industrial stocks plunged nearly 11 points, closing just below 614.

The news was not all bad, however. An administration official said sugar prices would drop next year. The House Ways and Means Committee voted a tax break for families earning $15,000 or less, the dollar regained some strength in European money markets, and a tentative settlement was reached between striking delivery men and the United Parcel Service in the New York City area.

The latest move brings to about 150,000 the number of auto workers laid off by Chrysler, Ford and General Motors, almost half of the total industry labor force.

Striking coal miners have put off a ratification vote on a tentative settlement, and there appears little chance work in the mines could resume before December in a strike that has caused thousands of layoffs in the steel industry.

About 10,000 Greyhound bus drivers went on strike Monday, shutting down the nation's biggest bus company, and more than 12,000 shipbuilders struck the locally shipped steel industry.

Arthur Caligann, the head of the Agriculture Department's sugar division, said Tuesday retail prices will begin dropping next year and may fall 20 cents a pound.

Arthur Caligann, the head of the Agriculture Department's sugar division, said Tuesday retail prices will begin dropping next year and may fall 20 cents a pound.

What I fear is that without such cooperation we will find ourselves locked in a vicious cycle every bit as serious as that produced in the decade commencing in 1971.

Oil land seizure possible

Dispatch of the Times, London
 STOCKHOLM — The possibility of great-power military intervention over oil in the Middle East cannot be lightly dismissed, the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute said today.

The independent institute, in a study titled "Oil and Security," acknowledged that many factors militated against military intervention in the Middle East by a power such as the United States.

But the situation could change, according to the study, either in the form of general war, or if the oil-producing countries fail to adjust their production to levels that leave basic economic and military needs unfilled.

The institute, which is financed by the Swedish Parliament, said the leaders of some Arab countries had recognized the possibility of American military intervention during the oil crisis.

"Since on numerous occasions the Arab states have threatened their oil installations it threats of military intervention were carried out."

Miners take up contract terms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chances of ending the coal strike by the end of this month diminished Tuesday night as the union put off until today ratification work on a coal contract hammered out a week

24-member bargaining council of the United Mine Workers of America was called left Tuesday because council members were late returning from Alabama, where they attended the funeral of a colleague shot in a hotel robbery here Friday.

The delays stalled a ratification procedure already in trouble, according to union sources.

The bargaining council was given only a 50-50 chance of clearing the tentative agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association for rank and file balloting, according to Harry Patrick, secretary-treasurer of the union and a member of its bargaining team.

He said there was politicking inside the union and there was a chance the negotiators would be asked to return to the bargaining table to seek modifications.

He said the focus of the grinding was vacations. The contract provided for a week in the summer and a week at Christmas. Many miners want them together.

Arnold Miller, president of the UMW, scheduled a news conference in Charleston, W.Va., on Thursday.

Union spokesmen said that even if the bargaining council approves the pact for rank-and-file consideration, it would take about 10 days to complete the voting process, which would probably push the strike into December.

Patrick said as far as he was concerned, the bargaining council should sign the agreement on ratification.

"The officers feel that they have negotiated the very best other possible," he said.

Locating all GI's missing unlikely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even if the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were trying their hardest to find the remains of U.S. soldiers missing in combat, not all could ever be found, says a Pentagon official.

Deputy Defense Secretary Denis J. Shields testified before a House Armed Services subcommittee Tuesday that even in peacetime, it is "temporarily" people disappear without a trace.

The January 1973 cease fire requires North Vietnam and the Viet Cong to help find the missing, but Shields said the remains and explain as fully as possible the circumstances of death that they have never allowed the United States to search in Communist-held areas, nor have they returned the remains of those dead they acknowledge holding.

"There are 526 men still listed as missing, 127 declared dead since a cease-fire and 1,019 declared dead during the war although their bodies had not been found, Shields said. They represent only 4 per cent of U.S. losses during the war.

By comparison, the remains of 25,200 missing Americans from World War II still have not been found, he said, and in both World War II and Korea the missing represented 22 per cent of U.S. losses.

Nixon tried, but failed to 'sacrifice' Mitchell

Reagan tells future plans

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Ronald Reagan, who will be the ex-governor of California in less than six weeks, says he plans to devote his time to speaking and writing on behalf of his two longstanding political themes: free enterprise and less government.

"I'm trying to set myself up on the road to trail for free enterprise," Reagan told a news conference Tuesday.

Reagan, as usual, gave no firm answer to questions about possible presidential plans for 1976, either as a Republican or a third-party candidate.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon, realizing Watergate was about to crash down around his ears, tried but apparently failed to pressure John N. Mitchell into taking full blame for the scandal in April of 1973.

He told his aides privately it was a "goddamn awful" thing for him to do. But it was clear in White House tapes played at the cover trial of Mitchell and four other former Nixon aides Tuesday that the President was looking for a series to place on investigators who were closing in on the White House.

"He's not gonna make it anyway," Nixon said of Mitchell's chances of avoiding eventual indictment. "I think this is the worst we've done due to the obscenity to the President at the time of the crime."

The crime was the bungling of Democratic party headquarters for the time was June of 1972, when Mitchell was Nixon's campaign manager and four years as his attorney general.

On April 14, 1973, Nixon ordered John D. Ehrlichman to "go to" Mitchell, with a message that he should confess all and say he was sorry. "I play that obviously faked since Mitchell never stepped forward to take the blame."

Tapes containing Ehrlichman's report to Nixon on the mission were to be played for the jury today.

"I don't think that Marlowe or LaRue or Mitchell, or Maguire or anybody, want to hurt the President in this thing," Nixon said of the campaign high command on April 14 last year. "Yeah, that has got to be the attitude of everybody because it isn't the man, it's the goddamn office."

"Sure, sure," agreed H.R.

Haldeman, who thrashed out the deteriorating situation with Nixon and Ehrlichman for nearly three hours that Saturday morning and who, with Ehrlichman, is also incarcerated.

Little more than two weeks before, on March 27, Nixon had second almost lastly of another meeting with Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

"We know that everybody in this thing did it, whatever they did, with the best of intentions," Nixon said. "That's the sad thing about it. The point is what's done is done. We do the very best we can, and cut out as well. Cold cash and promises of clemency had kept him quiet this far, but Nixon still clearly was worried.

He asked if Hunt, soon to go before the Watergate grand jury under an immunity grant, would testify about clemency, about his other White House activities, and more importantly about the money.

"Hunt testifies," so, so basically then Hunt will testify that it was so-called hush money, right?" Nixon asked nervously.

"I think so," Ehrlichman replied.

Bittman shows Hunt memo

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington lawyer William O. Bittman, who concealed a crucial piece of Watergate evidence for two years, says he gave the document to government prosecutors in defense of his own integrity.

The document is a memo written by former Bittman client E. Howard Hunt in November, 1972. It links the Nixon White House to offers of immediate money and clemency to Hunt and the other Watergate burglars in exchange for their silence.

Bittman testified Tuesday at a hearing before Watergate trial Judge John J. Sirica held to determine whether a copy of the memo will be allowed as evidence in the cover-up trial. Bittman said he gave the memo to the prosecutor because Hunt's testimony questioned his integrity.

When Hunt testified early in the trial, the prosecution said it had searched for the memo and couldn't find it. But Bittman personally turned a copy over to the prosecutors two weeks ago.

The memo, which Hunt said was intended for high officials in the Nixon re-election campaign, outlines various "commitments" made in the Watergate defendants including money and pardons.

Bittman testified he got the memo from Hunt or Hunt's late wife, Dorothy, in mid-November, 1972, and put it in his files for safe keeping without reading it. He said the first time he saw the contents of the memo was in late April or early May 1973.

The lawyer said he failed to tell prosecutors about it because he considered it a privileged communication between lawyer and client.

When Hunt testified that he had written the memo and given it to Bittman, Bittman said he felt his former client had made "a charge of improper conduct."

The lawyers' canons of ethics, Bittman said, allow an attorney to defend himself against such a charge.

Panel OK's tax relief, oil loophole end

New York Times Service
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee voted Tuesday to give tax cuts for next year to nearly 10 million individuals and couples, about half of them with incomes under $2,000 and most of the rest with incomes between $2,000 and $10,000.
 The committee also voted to bring a complete end to the controversial 22 percent oil depletion allowance by 1975 and to terminate it for large companies next year.
 Technically, the committee could take another look at some of the actions it took Tuesday, but Thursday, after it will have the formal draft of the legislation before it.
 The bill will not take effect until the beginning of the depletion allowance. Librarians on the committee, who won a dramatic 12 to 13 vote on ending the depletion allowance for big business next year, demanded an immediate reconsideration and got it. That meant, under the House rules, there could be no further reconsideration, which is what the liberals, fearful of strong opposition, had attempted by the end of the industry, failed.
 The day's actions in the committee thus appeared to have included the strategy, launched by conservatives Monday, who hoped enact a new phase-out of the depletion allowance this year to forestall harsher action against the oil industry by the new, more liberal, Congress that will take office next year.

 The tax relief for low-income individuals will come in the form of an increase in what is known as the low-income allowance, or sometimes as the minimum standard deduction. This is set at $1,000 now, for either single individuals or married couples, and would be increased to $1,200 for single persons and $1,500 for married couples.
 Tax relief mainly for middle-income individuals would come about in the form of an increase in the standard deduction from the present 15 per cent of income to $2,000, whichever is lower, to 10 per cent of $2,000. This provision would cut some low-income persons and a few in the upper brackets, but would center on middle-income persons.
 The average tax reduction for the 10 million taxpayers with incomes below $7,000 who would be aided by the legislation would be $55 a year.
 For the 15.9 million taxpayers with incomes between $7,000 and $15,000 who would be helped, the average tax cut would be $55 a year.

 For the 3.1 million taxpayers with incomes in the $15,000 to $30,000 bracket, who would be helped, the average tax cut would be $28 a year.
 Relatively few taxpayers in the upper-middle and upper income brackets would receive any tax reduction under the bill because most of them do not use the standard deduction and they have increased deductions that already exceed the new maximum in the bill.
 The committee approved a number of other tax law changes in what it is calling its "staggered-down" tax bill that it hopes to get through the current lame-duck session of Congress.
 A major item of legislation that the committee decided to report to the House as a separate bill was a measure that would exempt from all federal income tax the first $1,000 of interest on savings earned by a married couple or the first $500 earned by an individual.

... blasts big oil

Oil scored for oyster

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Outgoing Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill says some oilmen lobbied hard for his ouster.
 He said Tuesday that he does not know whether that had anything to do with his resignation from the FEA. He disclosed direct evidence of any "undue influence" by the oil lobby on the energy agency.
 Sawhill did tell a Joint Economic Committee hearing that the power of the oil lobby surprised him when he came to Washington.
 "Do you believe the oil industry exerts undue influence in government?" Sen. Warren of Michigan, D-Mich., asked Sawhill.
 "It certainly does exercise a lot more influence than I realized when I came down here. Whether that constitutes undue influence or not I cannot say," Sawhill replied.

Zarb new FEA choice

WASHINGTON (UPI) — government sources. He would succeed John C. Sawhill, who was fired from the post last month. Ford's first choice as a replacement was Andrew E. Galsano.

Pot laws will stand

DIRECTOR of the Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention, Dr. Robert DuPont, told a Senate committee Tuesday the Ford administration is not ready to support a move to soften laws against marijuana possession and use. (UPI)

No major advance seen before Congress quits

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The "time check" Congress is moving ahead, but Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield indicated strongly Tuesday it will not break any new ground before final adjournment.
 Mansfield told the Senate

Democratic Policy Committee that Congress will clean up the appropriations bills, act on the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president, tackle a trade bill, deal with bills already in conference, and possibly "new additional legislative items."

Following completion of the items which I have mentioned, I believe the essential and urgent work of the 93rd Congress will have been finished and the way paved for the beginning of the 94th Congress.

Senate was expected to approve a trade bill with pledge to Sen. Harry F. Byrd, R-Va., not to let it reach the Senate before Secretary of State Henry Kissinger testifies on its impact Dec. 3.

And the Senate Rules committee began deliberations on the Rockefeller nomination, with no vote scheduled for Thursday or Friday. The House Judiciary Committee began its Rockefeller hearings Thursday.

In action Tuesday, the Senate approved 617 a six-year $1.1 billion interest payment bill which faces problems in the House over a jurisdictional battle between the Public Works and Banking Committees.

The House voted 296-137 for legislation setting the nation's first federal standards for the safety of household drinking water, 3.5 to 10 mg per liter, to take effect until Aug. 31, 1975, authority for the government to allocate additional funds and to increase anti-trust penalties.

PLO recognition hinted

Chicago Sun-Times
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department's policy on the Middle East has indicated the United States is moving toward official recognition of the Palestine Liberation Organization.
 Joseph J. Sisco, an undersecretary of state for political affairs, said "We regard the PLO as the overall umbrella organization of the Palestinians. We also believe that in order to achieve any kind of durable peace, the legitimate interests of the Palestinians have to be taken into account."
 Sisco made the remarks, certain to annoy the Israelis, in a program to be broadcast overseas in the United States. He said the PLO is "a broad-based, democratic, popularly elected organization."

 The program was taped Monday before the latest Palestinian terrorist attack on an Israeli village. Even after the raid, however, the Pentagon took the "moral" action of publicly contradicting an official Israeli statement on the military threat.
 Last week Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said 20 shiploads of Soviet weapons were being offloaded in Syria. But Pentagon spokesman William Beecher said "only a very small number" of the ships, which he described as normal Soviet shipments at Syrian ports. Sisco also said that "Soviet assistance, as he had previously in private meetings with Israeli officials, that there has been no change in U.S. policy. But he then went on to talk about the PLO in the most positive terms."

 He said PLO chief Yasser Arafat's appearance at the United Nations last week indicated the PLO is "a broad-based, democratic, popularly elected organization."
 He also implied that the United States would welcome the PLO as a participant in the Middle East peace negotiations but adding to Israeli officials that "it has been pretty well precluded in the short run."
 The implication seems to be that he believed Israel could eventually be persuaded to deal with the PLO despite its firm declaration, by the contrary.
 Sisco also took issue with Israel's contention that King Hussein of Jordan might be "hiding" the picture "the picture as spokesman for the Palestinians.

Biopsy result benign

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Antoinette Hatfield, wife of Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., underwent a biopsy for suspected breast cancer Tuesday. Hatfield's office said the results were benign.
 The biopsy was performed at the University of Oregon

Medical School Hospital. Mrs. Hatfield, mother of four children, had been in an outpatient at the hospital.
 She entered the hospital Monday for the tests, which doctors said were routine in cases of suspected cancer.

Ford attended St. Mary's College

MORAGA, Calif. (UPI) — St. Mary's College has discovered that President Ford once attended this San Francisco Bay Area campus in his collegiate career.

The weekly "Red" newspaper "The Ensign," only mentioned him once — as one of the officers being transferred to other duty in April, 1945.

According to Monday's disclosure, Ford came to the school in December, 1944, after serving on the USS Monterey in the Gilbert and Marshall Islands.

He was assigned to the St. Mary's pre-flight school operated on the campus from 1942 to 1946. Ford was one of 18,000 aviation cadets.

During World War II, Ford, then a 39-year-old Navy lieutenant, was assigned to the St. Mary's pre-flight school operated on the campus from 1942 to 1946. Ford was one of 18,000 aviation cadets.

'75 insurance passage looks like sure bet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — No matter what else Congress does next year, passage of some sort of comprehensive national health insurance looks like a sure bet.

Credit for a breakthrough this year must be shared by the American Medical Association and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, health care industry and other major forces in organized labor, joined initially by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., favoring to improve health services administration, and financial officers by the federal government through tax increases.

The private health insurance industry, which would be decimated by labor's approach, favors more modest measures.

"There is widespread agreement that national health insurance should be enacted," said Dean Jeters of Nationwide Insurance and Chairman of the Health Insurance Association of America. "The difficult Congress and the nation face is to write such a program without adding to the nation's No. 1 problem — inflation."

Reflecting the inevitable, Blue Cross had advanced from 1970 to late 1975 — its timetable for enactment of national health insurance, and its president, Walter McNulty, says passage could come early next spring.

The House Ways and Means Committee left the issue for the 94th Congress to decide because, after prolonged debate, it could not decide whether to pay for national health insurance by imposing new payroll taxes on workers and their employers, or by dipping into federal tax revenues.

Whether employers should be required to provide insurance for 170 million workers and their families who would be required to accept coverage, or whether it should be optional for either or both groups.

There might be an attempt in what's left of the 93rd Congress to attach to a Senate bill some form of national health insurance for the poor and families — faced with — major medical bills, but probably won't go far.

The AMA, which lost at least 54 congressional supporters for its voluntary "Medicare" plan through election defeats and retirements, is considering a new strategy for the 94th Congress.

Dr. Russell B. Roth, the ama's immediate past president, now says it would be "foolish" not to consider mandatory coverage. The AMA board of trustees has endorsed a proposal to require employers to offer private health insurance to their workers.

This would be a sharp departure from the AMA's previous position. In 1967, Medlerdell, a voluntary plan providing income tax credits for the poor to help them buy health insurance.

Supreme Court hands down opinion

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Tuesday handed down its first opinion of the 1974 term, in three minor cases dealing with business matters and federal-state jurisdiction in a criminal appeal.

The first case, William H. Rehnquist, was the only member to dissent from any of the actions.

The criminal issue arose from the conviction of Frank Xavier Francisco in the Circuit Court of Fairfax County, Va., a suburb of Washington, on charges of possessing heroin with intent to distribute it. The trial judge told the jury that intent could be based solely on the amount of the drug in Francisco's possession.

He drew an eight-year sentence — and — the Virginia Supreme Court affirmed the conviction.

The state's highest court found the heroin law unconstitutional on the ground that its language did not alert "a person of ordinary intelligence" as to whether he was guilty of mere possession — a misdemeanor — or the felony of possession with intent to distribute.

Meantime, Francisco had gone into U.S. District Court in Alexandria, Va., with claims that included the one ad-

'Tom' snatches purse

LONDON (UPI) — A London Tom tried to talk a Miss World contestant into stripping and parading for him and then stole her purse when she refused, organizers of the beauty contest, said today.

Jane Moller, the 20-year-old Miss Denmark, discovered the man peering into her first floor hotel room from the balcony when she walked to the window last Saturday night in her bra and panties to get a breath of fresh air.

The spokesman said the man told the girl he was a security officer — trying to catch a thief — and asked her to come to the balcony to retrieve the proper information.

The girl, disbelieving his story, threw on a robe and ran from the room.

When she returned with a real security officer, the man was gone — along with her purse, which contained $36, her passport and other personal effects.

Santa letters increase

HELSINKI (UPI)—The world's children are writing to Santa Claus in record numbers this year. Many show the Christmas spirit by asking him to give gifts to others.

Heikki Lehtinen, Santa Claus in Mechanicalburg, Pa., wrote Santa asking for a toy, but said, "I mostly would like God to make grandpa well again."

Alexander Gratchev of Scarborough, Ont., sent a Canadian dollar and said, "Here is some money for presents for little children who have no money on earth."
Many of the world's post offices have traditionally sent children's Christmas mail to Helsinki because local legend says Santa lives on Korvatunturi Mountain in Lapland, high above the Arctic Circle on the Finnish-Soviet border.

Earlier this year, the Finnish post office halted handling of the letters, citing lack of manpower, but the Tourist Board put pressure on government officials and the post office changed its mind.

Authorities believe a record number of letters will be sent to Santa this year. Last year, more than 1,000 children wrote to him from overseas.

Every child who writes receives a handwritten answer on a multi-colored page with drawings of Santa, his helpers and the reindeer.

The letter reads:
"I was so pleased to get your letter—and to hear that you remember me. In the pictures, you can see how my helpers are busy getting ready the presents for good girls and boys all over the world."
"Soon I shall set off on my travels and bring gifts to my friends in many lands—and to you too. With best wishes for a happy and peaceful Christmas, Santa Claus."

The letters to Santa come from North and South America, most European countries, Australia, India, Japan, the Persian Gulf and South Africa.

Michigan deer roundup begins

DETROIT (UPI)—The great Detroit Metropolitan Airport deer roundup starts today with hunters hoping to lure their quarry with apples and alfalfa.

If that does not work, hunters will use bullets.
The herd of 40 to 60 whitetail deer has taken up residence in a wood area south of the main passenger terminals, frequently appearing along runways and airfields consider them an airport hazard. So far, there have been no reports of accidents involving the animals.

When the Wayne County Road Commission, which operates the airport, said last week it would shoot the deer and donate the meat to charity, there was a furor.

That shoot-to-kill order was dropped Friday, which was also the first day of Michigan's deer hunting season.

Instead, the commission said Detroit Zoo experts would trap the deer for transportation and release in the wilds of the far north of the state.
But it said any deer roaming the runways of the airport, which handles about 1 million passengers a year, would automatically become the target of armed hunters assigned to protect planes and passengers.

"We've got a job to do and a lot of people to please," said James M. Davey, the commission's managing director.

Dr. Robert Wilson, Detroit Zoo director, outlined a plan to trap the deer. It involves placing apples and alfalfa around wire corrals to attract the deer, then putting snares that inside the corral to trap them.

Wilson said he did not know how long the operation would take. Other experts said it could take from three days to three weeks.

The commission warned that if the hunt goes on too long, it will revert to its original plan to shoot the animals.

Beauties too skinny

LONDON (UPI)—Her Ford, 31 member of Parliament, took one look at the leggy entrants to the Miss World contest and delivered his verdict: too skinny.
"I prefer something a little better built," Ford said. "They need a good meal of roast beef and Yorkshire pudding."

The girls were quick to reply to Ford; one of four legislators chosen to escort the beauties during a visit to Parliament Monday. The contest is this week.
"We are all good healthy girls," said Terry Ann Browning, Miss USA.

'Tomorrow' here: weekly staff gone

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News Writer

KETCHUM — An upheaval at Ketchum Tomorrow has left the Ketchum-based weekly newspaper without its editor and staff.

The editor and board president, Steve Lathrop, was fired, according to part-owner Tom Ducher. Following the firing, the entire six-man staff resigned, Ducher said.

Sally Donart, a former editor of Ketchum Tomorrow, has stepped in as acting editor. Ducher said that immediately after the dissolution of the staff, Ketchum Tomorrow people had talked together and will publish their own paper next Wednesday.

The weekly will run about 30 pages this week, according to Dick Meyer, another stockholder. Meanwhile a search for an editor is continuing, Ducher said, and the position will soon be filled.

The internal strife between board members and the staff of Ketchum Tomorrow led to Lathrop's firing, Ducher said. Ducher said there exists no ill-feeling, often hate, and no feedback between the two groups.

Martha Potvin, former saleswoman for Ketchum Tomorrow, who resigned after the decision, said the former employees have talked

Accident claims Salmon man

SALMON, Idaho (UPI) — Hugh Nelson, 66, of Salmon, has died in a local hospital from injuries received in a car accident Nov. 13 about 11 miles south of the Montana-Idaho border on U.S. 94.

Nelson was fatally injured when the car he was driving slid on black ice after raining a curve and rolled over a 12-foot embankment.

A passenger in the car received less serious injuries and was treated and released at the Salmon hospital.

Police seek 2 young men

BOISE (UPI) — Police are looking for two men in their early 20s who stole $17 from a Boise man Tuesday after a roommate, thinking they were friends, let them into his trailer.

John B. Johnson said he was threatened by the pair after a roommate, thinking they were friends of Johnson, let them into the trailer. He said they produced a knife and demanded his money.

Criminal means ruled out

CALDWELL, Idaho (UPI) — A coroner's jury says Gary J. Bacon, 23, Nampa, did not die from criminal means.

Bacon died Oct. 29 in a Boise hospital from multiple head injuries.

During four hours of testimony, the coroner's jury Tuesday heard details about an altercation in which Bacon was involved in a Caldwell tavern on Oct. 29. Bacon was treated at Caldwell Memorial Hospital for a cut over the left eye and a small bruise near the right ear.

Outlook 'gloomy'

BOISE (UPI) — A gloomy outlook for the future of clean air was left with delegates to the air pollution action conference.

Boise banker Robert Montgomery told a final meeting of the group Tuesday that progress made over the last seven years in pollution control is rapidly giving to a standstill and in many cases is beginning to slip backwards.

The former chairman of the Idaho Air Pollution Control Commission said "pollution problems will fly away and they are going to become daily nuisances and more serious."

"Finally," he added, "the problems will have to be solved on an emergency basis. This means they will not be solved properly and it will be tremendously more expensive."

Added air service

BOISE (UPI) — Two commuter airlines plan to begin service to Boise next month and a major airline is considering stopovers in Idaho's capital city.

Cascade Airways will fly between Spokane, Pullman, Moscow, Walla Walla, Wash., and Boise, three times daily beginning Dec. 1.

Executive Airlines, Inc., plans twice daily flights from Washington's Tri-Cities to Pullman and Boise on weekdays starting Dec. 1.

Both Cascade and Executive plan to use eight-passenger aircraft.

Idahoan invited

BOISE (UPI) — At the request of one of the winners, Jack Peterson, a Boise economist and sociologist, will attend the Nobel Prize presentations in Stockholm, Sweden next month.

Peterson will be the guest of Gunnar Myrdal, winner of the Nobel Prize for economics. He received a formal telegram Tuesday from the Nobel Foundation requesting his presence at the Dec. 10 ceremonies.

An invitation to attend the ceremonies must come at the request of one of the winners. The Idaho Historical Society said Peterson is the first Idahoan known to have been invited to the event.

He is a friend and colleague of Myrdal's.

Archery hunt to open

BOISE (UPI) — A part of big game hunt '77 will be open to archery hunting of deer and elk Nov. 14-15.

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission said Tuesday the part of Unit 29 that is in Ada County will not be open for this hunt.

Department officials said hunters should check a big game map before participation in the hunt. The Boise Front, they said, will be closed to the hunt.

Pocatello man sentenced

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Thomas H. Mansfield, 45, Pocatello, has been sentenced to 30 years in the Idaho Penitentiary on three counts of statutory rape.

District Judge George Hargrave sentenced Mansfield Tuesday to three consecutive 10-year terms on incidents involving three juveniles.

Rules revision set

BOISE (UPI) — For the first time, all civil rules of the trial courts will be integrated under a set of rules under a revision approved by the Idaho Supreme Court.

Justice Robert E. Bakes, chairman of the Idaho Supreme Court Rules Committee, said Tuesday the effect of the new rule will be to simplify proceedings and procedures in getting cases to trial and speed up civil litigation overall.

"The procedure in the trial courts will be greatly clarified and simplified as a result of this rules revision," Bakes said.

Minico HS sets musical

RUPERT — Since 1946 the Minico High School Music Department students have produced and presented a musical to the public.

This year's musical, the prize-winning comedy "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" will be offered to the public Thursday and Friday evenings.

The play, written by Abe Burrows and Frank Loesser was presented to the Minico Junior High during matinee performances Tuesday and today, according to Alan Hale, faculty director of the play.

Hale said the public performances will be held in the Minico auditorium. Tickets may be purchased from the school office, or at the door. Thursday and Friday's performances begin at 8 p.m.

Bus strike not adding plane riders

By GEORGE WILEY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The Greyhound bus strike has brought little if any increase in airline passenger traffic into and out of Twin Falls, according to airline officials.

At the same time, bus station operators said Trailways has provided adequate service along those routes which it serves, with no stranded passengers or freight.

Twin Falls lone Greyhound bus driver, meantime, is relaxing at home and said he does not expect the strike to be lengthy.

Paul Shoff, Twin Falls manager for Hughes Airways, said that carrier has not experienced a noticeable increase in passengers since the bus strike began Monday.

Shoff said the evening flight to Boise has had a little extra traffic, and he said an extra flight to Portland and Seattle started in November is "doing quite well" but he said it was hard to gauge how much of the traffic may be collected with the bus strike.

"We might know better next week on the holiday," he added.

Leroy Jawick, director of passenger sales for Airtel Airlines, which schedules twice-a-day round-trip flights to Salt Lake City, said that there has been no increase in passenger traffic.

"If there would be an increase, I'd sure know about it," Jawick said. "But right now it's just holding its own. This weekend might be different."

Neither of the air carriers has direct service out of Twin Falls to Pocatello, Idaho Falls and the Montana area, one of two routes not served by Trailways and closed out since the Greyhound strike.

The second area not served by Trailways is Spokane, Seattle and northern Pacific points, which can be reached via Airwest through Boise. Airwest also flies to Idaho Falls and Pocatello out of Boise, but not out of Twin Falls. The carrier's Montana flights are out of Salt Lake City.

Walter Steele, manager of the Twin Falls Depot, said there has been no problem with either freight or passengers over the Trailways lines out of Twin Falls, but he estimated that the holiday period coming up will be "chaos."

Steele advised Christmas shoppers intending to ship gifts by bus to get their packages out early.

"So far, we've never had to hold our current freight past one schedule," Steele said.

Greyhound bus driver Delmer Langston, the lone company driver to reside in Twin Falls, said today he is "not sure" of what the situation will be to see what happens.

Langston, who drives a round-trip to Boise every working day, said, however, that he does not expect the strike to last long.

"I can't see the union or the company either making anything like this out," Langston said. "The bus is just kind of neither one or the other. I'm going to hold this off very long. I have no right to have it on except just my own feeling."

Idaho Power defends plans to build plant

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Power Co. officials defended plans to build a coal-fired power plant in southern Idaho at meetings here and in Burley Tuesday.

Company board chairman, Albert Carlisle said Burley Rotarians "the power plant we will build will not result in acid rains or darkened skies."

He said the company's ordering turbine generators before obtaining permission from the Idaho Public Utilities Commission was illegal.

Earl Haroldson, division manager for Idaho Power, said America is entering a coal age whether we like it or not. He cited rising energy demands and the impracticality of using other fuels in his state before about 25 people at the Magic Valley Consumers Co-op meeting. But the mood was tense and a few short, angry exchanges occurred following Haroldson's presentation.

"The plain facts of the matter are we are going to construct a predominantly sulfur-bearing plant regardless of whether anyone likes the idea or not, simply because we have no other way to go," Carlisle said.

"At this time, a coal plant is most feasible for Idaho, he said the Rotarians.

He said that such a plant will create no severe pollution problems. Even though one, 500,000 kilowatt coal-fired plant unit might release two tons of sulfur compounds into the air each hour "we confidently expect that sulfur dioxide measurements at ground level... will be less than the natural background level of sulfur in many areas of the United States."

Carlisle said the emissions would be dissipated in five million pounds of air overhead and then into trillions of tons of air over hundreds of square miles.

Carlisle did not say how much nitrogen oxide would be released by the proposed power plant. He said, however, "I think we better put that subject in its proper perspective."

"Only nitrogen oxide and nitrogen dioxide are emitted by sulfur-bearing pollutants, on the order of 50 million tons annually."

While that "sounds like a lot," he said, there are 500 million tons of nitrogen dioxide, 5.9 billion tons of ammonia and 1 billion tons of nitrous oxide (N₂O) in "natural emissions."

Carlisle also said the proposed Pioneer plant is designed to remove over 99 per cent of all particulate matter from the flue gases.

"I can assure you the power plant we will build will not result in acid rains or darkened skies," he stated.

Carlisle said Idaho Power's ordering turbine generators without obtaining IPUC permission first was illegal. He said the generators will be needed by the company somewhere in any case. The action was taken on the basis of management judgment. "I'll take the consequences," he said.

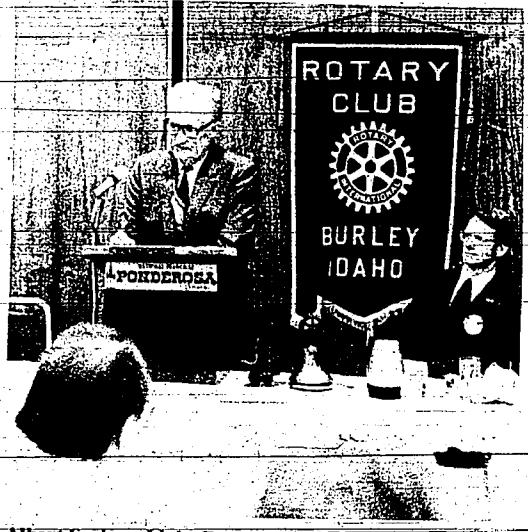

A volatile exchange occurred in discussion on the same issue at the consumers co-op meeting in Twin Falls. One questioner charged that Idaho Power is acting as if it has the IPUC in its pocket and maintained Haroldson was saying "contradictory things."

"All you're doing is badgering me—All you came here for is to heckle," Haroldson responded. Other exchanges added to the tension.

In his talk, Haroldson said that America is in an energy crisis. Even though coal makes up 85 per cent of our energy requirements, the nation is using it for 17 per cent of its energy supply, he said.

"Enough coal exists in this country to supply its energy needs for 1,300 years," he said. "Whether we like it or not we're going to be forced into a coal economy."

During these days of high, 10 per cent interest "we don't spend a crumb of time more than we

Albert Carlisle, Idaho Power chief, defends plans to build plant.

Idaho power defends plans to build plant

Haroldson said he predicted brownouts and blackouts if Idaho Power cannot have in operation its proposed plant by 1981.

One 500,000 kilowatt unit of the plant, he said, produces enough electricity to light 1,000 houses. If that many houses were to burn coal, 75 times as much sulfur dioxide would be put into the air, Haroldson maintained.

He said much sulphur is low in sulfur and the plant deposits could be beneficial.

In any case, he said, the plant will meet all state and federal environmental standards. On a clear day, the gases coming from the stack can hardly be seen, he said. Haroldson added that visitors to Bridger have said Arrington Sugar at Twin Falls pollutes the air more.

He said energy use in Idaho is growing at a rate twice as fast as the national average, and that the summer peak load is growing faster than the winter load. Even if Bridger had been operating this summer, he said, Idaho Power would have had to import electricity.

Floods soak N graveyard

In addition to the drainage system, the flood problem was also decreased in 1970 when "we went to surface storage with pads — so there is really no depression for water to flow into," Bills added.

"He confirmed, however, that probably three times as much water is stored below the ground as on the surface. The majority of transuranics (rare elements that are heavier than uranium) is still in the soil," he said.

Bills backed up Blackledge in claiming that "most of the plutonium waste is probably in a very insoluble form, therefore the actual presence of water doesn't indicate that it will go into solution." Plutonium is a cancer-causing element with a half-life of 44,000 years. Between 250,000 and 500,000 years are required for plutonium to lose all its radioactivity.

Blackledge had said that plutonium is most dangerous when it is mixed with air and can cause lung cancer when inhaled.

But Bills also confirmed that plutonium, if it comes in water, "is not so soluble and if one were to drink quantities of it in water it would migrate to the bone area where there would be a potential for causing leukemia." Leukemia is often called bone cancer.

But if insoluble forms of plutonium were contained in water, they "would probably go shooting upwards with no damage," Bills said.

Asked if any soluble plutonium wastes are buried at the Aro site, Bills said, "I can't give you any absolute assurance that there isn't some small amount of soluble plutonium out there."

"We aren't all that complete in our early records," he said.

"I don't know of any but I wouldn't exclude it," he said.

Bills also said there are "trace materials" that contain cesium and strontium buried at the site. He said cesium is "most soluble" but has a tendency to "hold up" in the soil.

"I have heard that, in a seepage pond outside the burial ground at one of the reactor sites, cesium has not migrated to a detection device" which is located 150 feet beneath the pond, Bills said. The pond has been monitored for over 20 years, he said. The aquifer is at about 450 feet beneath the surface at that point, he added.

Area class thinks 'big'

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News Writer

KIMBERLY — The billing voices of Kimberly High School students may soon be broadcast clear across town — and to Twin Falls and Hansen and Murtaugh.

The school's eight-student electronics class is on the threshold of building its own FM radio station.

"It may be a tiny operation — only 10 watts of power — but it could pack a lot of punch in its 15-mile broadcast radius."

Don Bird, a senior in the electronics class taught by Gene Epler, said Tuesday "we're in the process of applying to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) for a construction permit."

"We plan to send the application in about two weeks," he said. "And we're shooting for a target date of mid-January or the first of February" for going on the air.

The station will cost about $1,200, according to Bird, with most of the money spent on a 10-watt transmitter, a 90-foot antenna and a "modulation monitor."

The FCC application will cost nothing, he said, because the school is requesting a non-commercial broadcast license.

The students hope to raise the money by selling FM converter kits for car radios and collecting donations from local businesses.

"In a week's time, we've collected $170 — all from donations," Bird said. "We haven't really pushed the converters yet." The $25 kits are available at the high school, he added.

But will the students put on the air?

"Music, news, editorials, short subjects concerning the Magic Valley — and eventually some talk shows," Bird said Tuesday.

"We'll lean toward a modern format in music since students will be the overall controllers of the station — it will probably be rock," he explained.

But "we're also going to get the comments of the city, to see what they would like to hear, and after we're on the air for a certain amount of time, we'll take a poll to see if we need to change the format."

Broadcast hours for the station will probably be 5:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, he said.

"I hope we can extend it to 10 p.m. later."

The students won't be able to sell advertising under the non-commercial license, according to Bird. "However those businesses that donate money can have their names broadcast once every hour."

The eight students currently enrolled in the electronics class will operate the station initially, he said.

Leviston High is the only high school in the state with a similar station, according to Bird. The students currently operate a one-tenth watt AM station that "covers primarily the school grounds — it said. They chose to expand to FM because they felt it is "less expensive and the license easier to get."

Awards dinner slated

BURLEY — The Idaho Quarter Horse Breeders' Association will hold its annual business meeting and awards dinner Nov. 23 at the Ponderosa Inn here.

Awards will be presented to the top point winners in the 19 horse shows held by the club this year. A total of 28 adult awards and 28 youth awards will be presented, including two saddles as prizes.

The convention, expected to attract between 100 and 200 members from all areas of Idaho, will open with a show clinic for show personnel at 10 a.m.

At noon, a no-host luncheon is scheduled. From 1:30 p.m., committee reports and business discussions are planned, and election of officers is set for 3:30 p.m.

A social hour will begin at 6 p.m. with the awards banquet set for 7:30 p.m. Bon Russell of Logan, Utah, president of the International Quarter Horse Association, will be the featured speaker. An evening of entertainment will wind up the convention.

Awards displayed

WINNERS will claim their top awards at the Idaho Quarter Horse Breeders' Association Annual Convention to be held in Burley Saturday. Michelle Hopan, Burley, holds the belt buckle and John Conrad, Murtaugh, association president, holds the halter. They will go to the "all-around youth" in two age classes.

Export needs keep Soviets in grain markets

(C) New York Times Service

NEW YORK—Early last month with memories of the huge Soviet grain deal of 1972 still fresh in Americans' minds, the Russians moved quickly into the U.S. market to order wheat and corn worth half a billion dollars.

In an unusual move, President Ford abruptly held up the purchase and introduced a system of export controls. He was evidently keenly aware of the adverse political impact of the 1973 sales which resulted in a higher price for the American consumer.

However, a smaller sale to the Russians amounting to $250 million was authorized.

The continuing Soviet purchases of grain abroad have been explained in the past by the fact that the Russians are both importers and exporters of grain that they need in massive amounts of annual feed for a livestock expansion program and that their farm output, because of climate and technology, has been subject to considerable fluctuations from year to year.

What was puzzling about the late of this order was that it followed the record Soviet grain harvest of 1973 and a crop this year that has been officially described by the Russians as the second highest in their history.

Moreover, the Soviet Union is a nation with one of the greatest economic potentials, reportedly found it necessary to buy food from the United States at a time when the world is intent on alleviating the threat of starvation in third world countries that have become famine-stricken.

American specialists on Soviet agriculture and policy and grain trade practices have sought to analyze the reasons why the Soviet Union has been buying increasing amounts of grain abroad in recent years, particularly from the United States, Canada and West Africa.

In the absence of an official explanation of current grain policies, the analysts account for large Russian imports in years of bumper crops in the following terms:

The Soviet Union has standing grain export commitments of at least five million metric tonnes a year, mostly to third shippers, to its allies such as Cuba. It often finds it economical to purchase wheat in Canada or in the United States for direct delivery to Cuba instead of shipping the wheat all the way from the Soviet Union. A metric ton equals 2,204 pounds.

In response to increasing demand for a more plentiful life, the Kremlin has embarked on an ambitious livestock expansion program in an attempt to move meat from the strictly grain and potatoes diet of Russians. Soviet agriculture has traditionally stressed food grains and potatoes and the more hard-pressed to provide enough feed for livestock.

These developments are taking place against the background of an intricate Soviet farm system of low productivity. It is highly dependent on vagaries of the weather and has not been able to provide a relatively stable output from year to year.

The poor performance of Soviet agriculture, when compared to Western farming systems, also reflects the low productivity given to agriculture under the Communist system while most investment went into heavy industry and defense. Only in the last decade or so has the Kremlin allocated more money to farming to raise its productivity.

There is a mixed deal of controversy as to whether the huge labor-intensive operations of the Soviet Union's 40,000 collective and state farms are inherently more or less economical than the highly mechanized 2.6 million farms of the United States, most of them family-owned and worked by owner-operators.

Some Western scholars have attributed at least part of the low productivity of Soviet farming to a lack of incentive among farm workers and excessive central planning that often fails to take account of changes in local conditions. However, other factors also enter into any comparison between the Soviet Union and the United States.

In many respects the two countries are similar in their agricultural settings—with large areas available relative to population, but the Soviet Union is less favorably situated geographically, lying farther from the north and receiving generally less precipitation than the United States.

The Kremlin's decision, taken in the late 1960's, to expand meat production appears to have pointed up some of the weaknesses of the Soviet farm system.

Historically the Soviet Union has stressed the production of food grains such as wheat and rice. It appears to have difficulties in reorienting its crop structure in the direction of greater emphasis on livestock feed.

The Russians harvest about twice as much wheat as the United States and produce annually far more wheat than they need for human consumption and for export in late October, one third of the wheat crop has been fed to livestock. In some years, the grain has been used as fodder for despite official criticism of such a wasteful practice.

Corn and soybeans, which are the basis of the U.S. livestock industry, do not do well in the Soviet climate. The Russians harvest only about 3 per cent as much corn as the Americans, and the dramatic rise of soybean output in the United States over the last 15 years has no counterpart in the Soviet Union.

The Russians keep their grain-stock figures secret, but the massive purchases at 1973 and last year have suggested to analysts that the stocks might have been drawn down to critical levels, perhaps because of the added feed requirements of the new livestock program.

Under normal conditions, a large portion of Soviet grain purchases abroad are actually intended for third countries, that have regular grain-supply commitments from the Soviet Union. They are mainly Britain and Czechoslovakia in eastern Europe as well as Cuba and North Korea.

Published figures suggest that Canadian wheat purchased by the Soviet Union has been shipped regularly to Cuba as well as to some East European countries and the Soviet Union itself. Similarly, some wheat bought by the Russians from Australia has moved to North Korea and possibly, in the form of Soviet aid, to North Vietnam.

The Soviet Union evidently also finds it far less expensive to supply its far eastern regions by livestock shipments across the Pacific Ocean from Canada instead of hauling them directly produced wheat by rail across Siberia.

In its effort to raise the living standard of its own people, the Soviet Union now finds itself in direct competition for the world's food grain supplies with hundreds of millions of people in the third world near starvation.

Ironically the Kremlin has embarked on its meat-expansion program at a time when pressure is being put on the Western industrial countries to reduce their grain consumption as a way of enhancing the real supply available for the countries whose millions are still fighting about their daily portion of grain. It alone meet

Soils 'hooked'

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (UPI) — Current chemical fertilizers that make soil dependent like "a person hooked on drugs" can be replaced by a fertilizer additive based upon a bacteria solution, a Utah scientist told several thousand scientists here.

Dr. John Gherken, an Ephraim, Utah, agronomist, said Monday that the additive, marketed as Nitron-X, was the product of 10 years of research.

Analysis

These developments are taking place against the background of an intricate Soviet farm system of low productivity. It is highly dependent on vagaries of the weather and has not been able to provide a relatively stable output from year to year.

Fertilizer shipped

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Just a little over two weeks after a critical Northwest fertilizer shortage, 5,000 tons of fertilizer was being loaded aboard a ship here today for shipment to Indonesia.

The fertilizer is about 51.5 million worth of urea, which is high in protein. It was being loaded aboard the Anton Cherkov, a Russian flag freighter.

On Nov. 1 when President Ford visited Portland, he was given the Jones Act to permit foreign flag vessels to haul fertilizer here from Kodiak, Alaska. The action followed the sinking of a U.S. fertilizer carrying barge in Alaskan waters.

A Port of Portland spokesman said the turn of events was the result of normal commercial transactions and there is no sign on sale of U.S. fertilizer abroad.

The barge which sank in Alaskan waters had the safe meats of 14,000 another fertilizer ship, only down from 15,000, to Portland from Vancouver flag vessels to haul

Anthrax testing not successful

BOISE, UPI — Laboratory tests of a horse that was believed to have died from anthrax failed to turn up any trace of the disease, the State Department of Agriculture said today.

Three specimens from the dead horse were taken last month after the animal died in Boise National Forest east of Garden Valley and the owner requested that he had an anthrax test.

The horse, a saddle gelding, suspected of carrying anthrax spores.

Dr. A. O. Schneider, horse chief of the State Bureau of Animal Health, said anthrax symptoms in horses are similar to those associated with acute edema but the color is far more common.

In both cases, the horse sweats profusely and suggests severe abdominal pain, Schneider said.

Field work done

GLENN S. FERRY — Herbert Edwards, Elmore County agent, reports that other than some planting of winter wheat the field work for farmers is about completed.

He reports that the overall yield will be down somewhat. The potato crop is about the same as last year, but the sugar beet yield is down as well as the acreage planted. Corn is down some, but beans are about the same.

Edwards said sugar beets require a good deal more labor than some of the other crops and since labor is a premium for the farmer he has switched to crops requiring less hand labor.

"Sugar beets and potatoes are high income crops so the local economy should not be affected very much," he said. There were 6,000 acres of beets planted in Elmore County this year, only about half of the acreage last year, according to Edwards.

Computer helping turkey producers

SOMONA, Cal. (UPI) — If your turkey tastes extra good this Thanksgiving it might be because it was computer bred.

Scientists are using a computer at the Nicholas Turkey Breeding Farms to help determine which strains of turkeys are best for producing disease-resistant birds.

Over the years, they have developed a good genetic line of birds and a second line that is a "prolific egg layer," said Robert B. Hitchcock, vice president of the farm, which he called the world's largest producer of turkey breeding stock.

"We sell eggs from both lines to breeders, who mate the

Rice bill vote eyed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., says he and other backers of a bill to eliminate federal rice planting controls have to persuade the House Rules Committee to release the measure for a floor vote this year.

Alexander said renewed public interest in hunger abroad may help pry the stalled bill loose.

"There's the reason why we can't pass it this year. Our heads of the world food conference, it would seem to me to be a dereliction of duty for this Democratic controlled Congress not to respond to this human need," Alexander said.

The bill, strongly backed by Agriculture Secretary Earl Buttz and President Ford, would eliminate the current average control system for the crop.

Steelhead catch bears out dire prediction

SALMON—The Salmon River's 26-day steelhead season this fall bore out the belief that the fish would never reach Idaho.

The Idaho Fish and Game Department at its North Fork check station counted 360 anglers with steelhead. They had spent 4,329 hours fishing, or 66 hours for each fish caught.

Figures for the same period of time in 1973 show 360 anglers spending 3,041 hours to catch 104 steelhead or 2.9 hours per fish.

In 1972, 576 anglers spent 4,577 hours to catch 167 fish or 28.0 hours per fish and in 1971, 437 anglers spent 3,088 hours to catch 316 fish or 9.8 hours per fish.

The steelhead season opened Oct. 1 in the Salmon area and closed Oct. 27.

With Idaho's steelhead in trouble, the Idaho Fish and Game Department first closed the Snake River and lower Salmon. Then all waters were closed to fishing.

Stacy Gebhardt, fish and game department fisheries management supervisor, says there may be several reasons for the decline but it is difficult to determine why such a large loss of fish occurred between the lower Columbia River dams.

It may be related to high water conditions last spring, causing an increase in nitrogen poisoning, he said.

"We can figure on losing between 10 and 12 percent of the run at each dam and the steelhead must make their way over seven dams before entering Idaho," he noted.

"The commercial gillnetters and Indian fishery took their toll as well."

Joseph Greenley, Idaho Fish and Game Department director, indicated wild spawners and hatchery stocks will be lowly that needed to keep a healthy run of steelhead in Idaho and as a result, the Idaho fishing closure was ordered.

Greenley said a big part of the problem has been the lack of a voice in the Columbia River Compact with Oregon and Washington. Idaho produces 35 percent of the steelhead in the Columbia River but Idaho fishermen only harvest about 12 percent because the gillnetters and commercial interest take such a large share.

Greenley has asked that measures be taken to reduce nitrogen gas problems at the dams be accelerated and funded properly. He indicated it may take national legislation to correct the present Columbia River Compact inequity in setting seasons to benefit the commercial fishery.

He said the present law even may be unconstitutional. Finally, he suggests the Department of Interior thoroughly monitor the Indian catch since it is impossible to manage the resource properly without this information. Heretofore, reliable catch estimates from the Indian gillnet fishery have not been available.

"Other significant areas should be investigated such as determining the ocean catches of our fish by both foreign and domestic fleets; correction of fish counting procedures at Bonneville Dam, which have recently been found subject to great error, which may contribute to overfishing in the gillnet fishery; and the effect of hatchery operations upon fish migration," Greenley suggested.

"Peaking will increase as turbines are added to existing dams and the impacts of this are generally known."

David W. Ortman, anadromous fishery supervisor for the department, says that salmon and steelhead anglers in Idaho are finding their sport increasingly dependent upon hatchery-reared fish.

At least 30 percent of the statewide catch of salmon in 1973 were hatchery-reared fish, with recent catches of steelhead on the Salmon River consisting of about 50 percent hatchery-reared fish.

"The official said that further hatchery production of salmon and steelhead could help to assist the assistance that could result."

"Plans are being negotiated with Idaho Power Co. to compensate for additional mid-Snake River steelhead and chinook salmon which were lost to the Bonneville Dam-Hells Canyon Dam complex.

"Compensation is being sought from the Corps of Engineers for salmon and steelhead lost due to the lower Snake River dams.

"These plans deal with large numbers of fish for the Salmon and Clearwater drainages and, if they become a reality, could completely change the anadromous fishery system in Idaho. Depressed runs, such as the South Fork of the Salmon, River chinook run, could well use the assistance that could result."

"While we are enjoying some success with hatchery production of salmon and steelhead, wild stocks are dwindling. Some purely wild strains of salmon and steelhead should be maintained to perpetuate the inherited characteristics found only in wild stocks."

"Wild rivers, such as the Middle Fork of the Salmon, would seem less wild if natural fish runs were replaced by a hatchery operation. Also, more discriminating anglers prefer natural fish."

"We expect to perpetuate wild fish runs as long as it remains feasible to do so. Protection of wild stocks in the fishery may be difficult since the timing of the runs is the same as for hatchery fish and because we wish to provide a more liberal catch or hatchery-reared fish."

Boise's air game poses tough test for Vandals

MOSCOW—The Idaho capital city Boise will be the scene on Saturday afternoon when the University of Idaho battles NCAA playoff-bound Boise State University for the 1974 state collegiate championship.

A standing-room crowd of nearly 15,000 is expected for the 1:30 p.m. MST contest, which has been sold out for over a month. Johnson Stadium seats 14,500.

Boise State won the 1974 Big Sky Conference championship last weekend with a 54-42 rout over Montana. They've won two straight titles and 11 straight conference titles. Their last loss was a 22-21 nod to Idaho in the first game played between the two schools on Boise soil. That game ended the 1972 campaign.

Idaho, now 2-7, will end the season with Saturday's action but Boise State will get ready for a Big Sky encounter against Central Michigan, 9:14 at Mount Pleasant, Mich., in the first round of the Midwest Regional. Boise, an at-large representative, will be playing in their second straight Division II post-season action.

A win this weekend would give the Vandals a third triumph and an overall 4-4-1 Big Sky mark, placing them second in the final conference standings. If they lose they'll finish third behind Boise (6-0) and Montana State (4-2).

The regular season finale pits two "close, off-the-field friends": Tony Knapp of Boise against Idaho's Ed Troxel. Knapp is a 1974 graduate of UI. Troxel is a legend in the state's capital city after guiding Borah High to eight state titles in nine years. This will be the first matchup between the two highly respected mentors.

Knapp's squad is currently riding an 11-game conference streak and has won 17 and lost but four games in the past two years. The Broncos' only loss this fall was 36-6 at the hands of top ranked small college power Nevada-Las Vegas. BSU was 10-0 in 1973 going to the semi-final of the national championship before losing in the final 14 seconds to eventual champ Louisiana Tech, 38-34.

"Our pride will be at stake on Saturday," says the likable Troxel, who is in his first year as Idaho boss. "Boise has a great team and will take a top effort by our young men if we are to pull an upset. We'll try to do our best."

Boise State is the Division II leader in several statistical categories including:

- 43.8 points a game
- 510.3 total offense per game
- 235.2 yards passing per contest

The offensive leader for the Broncos is senior Jim McMillan from Caldwell. The 6-0 signal caller is a top candidate for Little All-American honors.

He's tossed 29 touchdown passes in nine games on 162 of 271 attempts for 2,573 yards.

The gifted quarterback leads the country in passing, total offense, and number of TD passes thrown. He's averaging 18 completions a game.

Against Montana, McMillan heaved 57 TD aerials to equal a Big Sky standard. His accomplishments in Missouri helped him better several career marks; including one set by former Vandal Steve Olson in late sixties. He now has 2,753 total yards and 29 touchdowns for 2,721 by Olson.

He only needs 18 yards against Idaho to top another Olson mark — 2,591 passing (1961).

Idaho will try and counter Boise State's power of aerial punch with a running game headed by fullback J.C. Chadhead and running back Mark Fredback. The Vandals are averaging 237.8 yards rushing per contest.

Nancy Zebbarh was named most improved golfer for dropping her handicap by one season from 42 to 28.

Cameron has best series

Mike Cameron posted the highest series in the season for a junior bowler at the Bowldrome last week, reports Eddie Chappell.

The 15-year-old has been bowling for four years in the average, has games of 265, 233 and 154 for a 69 series. His previous high game and series were 164 and 436, respectively.

Monroe wears title

Bob Monroe, Twin Falls veterinarian, won the all-around cowboy title in the Golden Spike Rodeo and Livestock Show in Ogden, Utah.

Monroe, also placed first in the steer wrestling with a time of 4:3 seconds. His winnings for this event were $700. He was presented a silver belt buckle with 118 all-around cowboy title.

Dean Oliver, Boise, won first place in the calf roping with a posted time of 12.35 seconds.

The Golden Spike is the first rodeo of the 1974 season and is sanctioned by the Rodeo Cowboys Association.

Jackpot reorganizes

Officers will be elected at the annual meeting of the Jackpot Golf Association Jan. 15, 1975, at the residence of Dale Feltman, president.

Means of raising money for trophies and other expenses will be considered.

Feltman announces that Sven and Bonnie Bremer are winners of the men's and women's divisions, respectively, in the association's annual match play championship tournament.

Rumors were Roy Garner and Sharon Feltman.

Besides Feltman, present officers are Noel Yeary, Linda Yeary, and Jim Wistinger. Vice president is Sharon Feltman, secretary-treasurer.

Permit system studied

Idaho's two-year-old computerized controlled hunt permit selection system has attracted attention from several other states, the Fish and Game Department said today.

"Within the past two months, representatives from Colorado and Illinois have come to Boise seeking complete details of our controlled hunt permit selection program for possible adoption by their states," Department Director Joseph C. Greenley said.

Other states have expressed interest via telephone calls, letters and at interstate conferences, he added.

"The innovative program was developed by our own data processing section," Greenley said and has proven to be far more efficient than the old hand-drawing from a wire basket system. Computer programs are available right away and most applications to successful applicants are in the mail within 24 hours following selection.

"Greenley pointed out that one big plus with the new permit system is that second drawings are no longer necessary. Under the old method if there were not sufficient applications for the available permits, a second drawing held at a later date to use up the permits. The new system has a built-in second choice provision available to applicants, and when necessary, a second drawing is issued as second choices.

Washington, Owens unsure of future

SEATTLE (UPI)—The University of Washington football coach Jim Owens said again Tuesday neither he nor the school has made a decision concerning a renewal of his contract.

Commenting on published reports that he is expected to resign, perhaps even before the season's final game against Washington State University on Saturday, Owens said: "No decision has been made by me personally or by the university, pending my future. I think that properly comes at the end of the season."

The business at hand is to beat Washington State.

The coach told the weekly Puget Sound sportswriters and sportscasters' luncheon that rumors about his future had made it "difficult for me as a coach and for the players."

Rumors have been circulating here that Owens will quit coaching and go into private business and that Joe Kearney, director of sports programs at Washington, may become athletic director at Indiana.

Dr. John Hogness, the university's president, confirmed that Indiana officials asked for a recommendation of Kearney about two weeks ago.

"Of course, reluctantly, we had to tell them what a great guy we think Joe is," Hogness said.

The university president said he was sure the football coaching question would be resolved soon. He said he wasn't "really involved" in bringing about a resolution.

"I've just been waiting for a recommendation," Hogness said.

Owens' current three-year contract with the university expires Dec. 31. The opportunity for a winning 1974 season vanished when the Huskies lost 42-11 at Southern California last week. A victory over Washington State would give the Huskies a 5-6 season.

Going into Saturday's game at WSU, Owens' record over 10 years as head coach of the Huskies is 98-82-6, including 1961 and 1962 in 1960 and 1961 and a loss in the 1964 Rose Bowl.

Two Steeler backs undergo operations

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Pittsburgh Steeler running backs Ernie Fuqua and Preston Pearson underwent minor surgery Tuesday and will remain hospitalized for at least a week, a club spokesman said.

Doctors reset Fuqua's dislocated right wrist and performed minor corrective surgery for a contused hamstring muscle in Pearson's leg.

Defensive tackle Eric Holmes joined his teammates at Divine Providence Hospital Tuesday for treatment of a viral infection. It was not known how long he would remain hospitalized, the spokesman said.

Texas' Burroughs named AL's most valuable player

NEW YORK (AP) — Jeff Burroughs of the Texas Rangers, a protégé of Ted Williams who started the 1974 season hitting to avoid the sophomore jinx, was voted the American League's most valuable player today by a decisive margin over a trio of the world champion Oakland A's.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jeff Burroughs played parts of seasons with Washington and Texas in 1970, 1971 and 1972 before hitting .272 with 20 homers and 65 RBI for the Rangers in 1973. Burroughs received 102 first-place votes, five for second, three for third, one for sixth and one, for ninth. He only played in 10 of 21 ball-lots had 77 first-place votes, and Bando 25, one writer voting for a tie. Jenkins had three and Jackson, the 1973 winner, and the A's 25-game winner, Jim Hunter, one each.

Smith wins TF grid award

Bryan Smith, a safety who led the Bruins in fumble recoveries, interceptions and smash tackling, was named winner of the Paul Ostry award in a highlight of Twin Falls annual sports awards banquet Tuesday night.

The award, named for its initiator when he was head coach of the high school in 1959, goes to "the hardest working player with the greatest desire to win." The presentation was made by Head Coach Dennis Alquist.

Coach Doug Hux said Smith was playing out of position, won the defensive lineman while junior Mike Alquist, the SIC's third leading rusher with 113.5 yards, broke a stranglehold by seniors on the awards by being named the top offensive back.

European pro cage loop picks 166 Americans in first draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — The European Professional Basketball League, a concept many thought would dissolve in the planning stages, became official Tuesday with the drafting of 166 former U.S. professional and college stars to compete in an eight-team league beginning next Jan. 17.

Gene Moore, a 6-foot-9 center who played in both pro leagues and starred at St. Louis University, was the first player chosen in the draft, while Shaler Holman, an ex-Cah State star who at one time was the No. 1 pick of the NIFBS Philadelphia 76ers, was the second one picked. Moore was drafted by Barcelona and Holman went to Switzerland.

The league, which will consist of a 42-game regular season for each team and include a double elimination championship tournament for all eight clubs, will be made up entirely of U.S. players and include teams from Barcelona, Madrid, London, Belgium, Tel Aviv, Munich, Grenoble, Lyon and Paris.

The league's chief administrator, Dick Davis, made it clear, however, that the EPL would in no way try and recruit players from either of the two established pro basketball leagues — the National Basketball Association or the American Basketball Association. "None of the players drafted Tuesday were currently on the roster of an NBA or ABA team."

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The Milwaukee Bucks broke their longest losing streak in history Tuesday night, edging the hot hands of several players to a 122-106 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

Misinterpretation of NFL roster limit starts row

NEW YORK (UPI)—The interpretation of a two-paragraph letter sent by John Thompson, president of the National Football League Management Council, to Edward Garvey, executive director of the NFL-Players Association, resulted in another dispute Tuesday in the longstanding feud between the two groups.

Garvey attended a practice of the New York Jets early in the day and then told the players that Thompson had advised him in a note that NFL owners planned to reduce team rosters next season from 47 to 36. If such a move went into effect, a total of 20 players would lose their jobs.

"I got a letter from John Thompson dated Oct. 22 advising me that the squad limit would return to 36," Garvey said after a 90-minute meeting with Jet players. "All player reps have been told and it will appear in our newsletter this week."

However, a spokesman for the Management Council countered that Garvey had placed a false interpretation on the letter and that, in fact, the situation remains basically the same as it has been for the last decade.

"The constitution and by-laws of the NFL have provided every year for a 36-man player limit," said Terry Bleasde, the director of information for the Management Council. "The letter Garvey refers to is one in which John Thompson reminded him that the increase in roster adopted for the 1974 season arose from a special situation brought about by the NFL players strike and is not to be considered a change in the basic active player limit per club of 36 or less."

Each spring, the owners meet to set a roster figure for the coming season. It had been set at 40 with seven on the "move" list until the current season, when NFL owners permitted 47 players on the active list because of the disruptions caused by the strike.

In the note, Bleasde said, Thompson merely was advising Garvey that the current 47-man roster should not be considered a precedent.

Garvey, in his talk to the Jets, said, "I don't believe it can go to 36. They kept it at 47 this season for a lot of reasons—the World Football League, cooling off and expansion. But putting the load of 47 players on 36 constitutes a major problem."

Garvey later told newsmen, in 1970 the owners agreed to keep the squad at 40 players but said they had a substantial group that wanted less. (Cleveland owner Art Modell argued vigorously against the union telling him how many players he could or could not keep.)

Modell, when informed in Cleveland of Garvey's announcement of the roster reduction, said, "This is typical of Ed Garvey. He has everything right but the facts."

A spokesman for the Pittsburgh Steelers said that such a move would be "a legislative matter which would require the approval of 29 of the 36 teams as an amendment to the constitution.

"Certainly, it would be difficult to play with that number, especially with the intensity with which the game is played today."

Michigan expected underdog role

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI)—It comes as no surprise to Bob Schonbecker that his No. 2 ranked Michigan football team is an underdog to third-ranked Oklahoma State.

"You just determine that," Schonbecker said, overlooking the fact that point spreads are set by oddsmakers.

"You're expected to win by 50 points over-week," he said. "You can't go out and do that week after week after week.

"Some of those teams we played had their best game of the season against us," he said. "Look at the numbers of undefeated teams left there aren't too many. That ought to tell you something."

The Buckeyes are an eight-point favorite to continue the season in Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day.

Should the two tie, Michigan will go since Ohio State has gone two years running. An outright win or tie in the game itself also will send the Wolverines.

The two are even, 2-2, in the five games played since Schonbecker assumed the Michigan coaching job, and six of the last seven games have determined the Big Ten title and Rose Bowl team. Last year's 10-0 tie produced a vote that Ohio State won.

"It just goes back over the last five games," Schonbecker said, "we've played only one game where they've outplayed us. That was in 1970 when they beat us 29-9. All the others have been close games."

"The kicking game will be important," he said, "and so will mistakes. Kicking and turnovers—they're vitally important in a big game."

Quarterback Donnis Franklin, who re-injured his left ankle last Saturday, and middle linebacker Steve Striko, who hurt his knee, both took a full part in Wednesday's workout.

Franklin is essential to his experience, passing, play calling, and ability to run the offense when healthy.

Michigan State exposed two weaknesses of Ohio State's it has had time to correct—a vulnerability to the long pass and occasional trouble with the option.

Toronto seeks club

TORONTO (UPI)—One of Canada's largest banks, the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, emerged Tuesday as a member of a group of influential bankers seeking to bring a major league baseball franchise to Toronto.

The group, known as the Canadian Baseball Co., plans to file a formal application for a franchise with the National and American leagues this week.

Representatives then will push their case during the winter baseball meetings in New Orleans early next month.

Formation of the group was announced Tuesday as work began on a $15-million expansion plan for a stadium at the Canadian National Exhibition, the city's main sports complex.

Sooners, Buckeyes dominate statistics

NEW YORK (UPI)—Trying to rate the virtues of Oklahoma vs. Ohio State simply on the statistical record can prove as difficult as splitting hairs.

The 9-0 Sooners, for example, lead the nation in three offensive team categories—scoring, total offense—and scoring. But the Buckeyes, who are 8-1, are second in each of these categories while trailing on top in three efficiency categories.

According to statistics released Tuesday by the National Collegiate Sports Services, Oklahoma continues to rank No. 1 in total offense with 519.9 yards per game, rushing offense with 447.7 yards and scoring with 40.8 points. In each case, Ohio State is second.

When it comes to efficiency, though, the Buckeyes have averaged 6.5 yards per total offensive play to

USC coach questions oddsmakers

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—University of Southern California Coach John McKay disagrees with oddsmakers who have made the Trojans two touchdown favorites in their showdown with UCLA for the Rose Bowl bid.

"On comparison of the teams, we've both played McKay said Tuesday, the 15-point odds for the game are out of line.

"What impresses me is UCLA's 56-14 victory over Michigan State. The Spartans not only beat Ohio State but they played Notre Dame and Michigan—two close games."

"Truthfully, we haven't played anyone as strong as Michigan State."

USC meets UCLA Saturday and the winner figures to be the Pacific-8 representative at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day.

The Trojans are 5-0 in the Pac-8 and 2-1 overall. UCLA has a mark of 4-1-1 and 6-2-2.

"We couldn't have assumed we'd be unbeaten," McKay said. "But, certainly, shouldn't have been tied by California or lost to Arkansas. But we got what we deserved in those games. We didn't play well enough to win. There were rather factors of course."

"Before Arkansas it was the injuries to our offensive line. But the debacle with Cal was terrible. Cal isn't that good of a team."

Tigers anticipate big lineup change

DETROIT (UPI)—The Detroit Tigers are not through making changes as they attempt to avoid another last-place finish in the American League East.

"We're going to make some more changes," General Manager Jim Campbell said Tuesday after discussing his acquisition of first baseman Steve Carlton from the San Diego Padres.

"I'd better say that we would like to make some more changes," said Campbell, who will never be confused with the name of the team's pitching coach.

"We would like to get a good, front-line pitcher," he said, emphasizing the youth aspect.

But it appears Bill Freehan, weak arm and all, will be one of only three players in the lineup next spring who opened the 1974 season in which the Tigers wound up on the bottom of the standings for the second time in their history.

Catching was one of the departments Detroit labored for improvement when it became embroiled early last season in the only runner Freehan would have no problem throwing out were

U.S. skiers ready

NEW YORK (UPI)—A young team, which head coach Hank Thayer says is the best prepared ever to leave American shores, departs for Europe Nov. 22 to represent the United States in the four-month long World Cup competition which begins at Val d'Isere, France, Dec. 4.

"This is one of the best prepared teams ever," Thayer said. "We can't predict success, but we can predict improved performances."

The team includes seven men, six women and four coaches in addition to Thayer, who said, "Because the December portion of the 1974 World Cup circuit is predominantly giant slalom and downhill, the team was chosen primarily with these disciplines in mind."

"The racers have had excellent training during the off-season. The U.S. is quite competitive. The men will be starting from the lower seeded numbers so the emphasis will be on improving their FIS points and standing as they can get into the higher seeded group."

"The women's squad is headed by Cindy Nelson, 19, of Lyndon, Minn., who became the first U.S. skier to win a World Cup downhill when she defeated Austria's Annmarie Moser-Proell during the 1974 season.

Market Review

NEW YORK (UPI)

The stock market, battered during the past two sessions by recessionary fears, opened lower Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which has lost 41.35 in the past three sessions, was off 0.60 at 613.95 shortly after the opening. It reached an all-time low of 612.03 during the session.

There were reports early in the day that the United Steel Workers bargaining council might reject a tentative new agreement and protest on Wednesday. The outcome could strike momentum in second week. The council must approve the new pact before the rank and file vote on it.

Chrisler late Tuesday announced it would close all but one of its assembly plants from Thanksgiving through Jan. 1 because of lagging sales. Speculation over the announcement had played a major part in the market's slide this week.

The ripple effects of the coal strike and auto industry layoffs are being felt in other sectors and seriously damaging the nation's already faltering economy.

Sugar price drop forecast

ATLANTIC CITY (UPI) — The retail price of sugar will probably drop some 6 or 7 cents a pound by mid-1975, the head of the Department of Agriculture's Sugar Division said Tuesday.

Arthur H. Calagoin, appearing at the annual convention of the National Sugar Producers Association, said the price reduction would result from decreased domestic demand and an increase in production.

Steel prices probed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission is investigating the major steel companies to determine if industry pricing practices violate antitrust laws.

FTC Chairman Lewis A. Engman disclosed the investigation Monday after Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged the agency wasked track of its time on minor cases.

Election results could affect ERA OK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One result of the nationwide general elections earlier this month may be ratification next year of the Equal Rights Amendment, says the League of Women Voters.

In the state, legislators elected Nov. 5, supporters of ERA appear to have a majority in at least six states that previously rejected the amendment, according to a computerized survey done by the League.

The amendment, which would eliminate sex discrimination by statute already has been ratified by 31 state legislatures. Five more states must ratify it before it can become the 27th Amendment to the Constitution.

League analysts said three of those states, North Dakota, Illinois and Missouri, are nearly certain to ratify the ERA next year.

In the three others, Oklahoma, North Carolina and Nevada, the analysts said ERA still must overcome some opposition among the legislative leaders, or what they described as an "unpredictable kind of conservatism."

In South Carolina, the League survey showed ERA proponents won a majority in the House, but the Senate was not polled because its members were not up for reelection.

Therefore, the analysts classified South Carolina as a "question mark" state where the chance of ratification may be good.

The survey also gave Florida, Arizona and Indiana a limited chance for ratifying ERA this year.

League analysts figure that at least five of the 10 states cited in the survey will ratify ERA by June.

"My position has changed from hopeful in 1975 to very optimistic," said Mary Brooks, a league expert on the issue.

"None of it will happen in January. We'll start looking for votes in February and March. By the end of June, there's no question about it."

The survey was based on questionnaires, which all statehouse candidates were asked to fill out.

Cooking school Thursday in TF

TWIN FALLS — Area cooks will have a chance to learn some interesting new ways to cook the wild game their hunters bring home during a special school Thursday.

The Intermountain Gas Co. — Times-News sponsored wild game cooking school will be given in two sessions, one at 2 p.m. and one at 7:30 p.m., at the Holiday Inn.

Intermountain Gas Co. home economist, Fran Hepper, has lined up cookery artists including Peter Schott, Mrs. James Lykins and Ann and Jack Jansen. There will be door prizes, refreshments and a free cookbook. The school is free and open to the public.

ERA status shown by league survey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here is how the Equal Rights Amendment will stand in 1975 in 10 key states cited in the League of Women Voters survey, which indicates ratification by June of next year. Five states are needed. Favored by leadership and majority in the House — Favored by Democratic majority; a majority of the members in both chambers support it, and it has nearly the three-fifths tally previously required by the Republican majority. North Dakota & Favored by the leadership, has a majority in both chambers and supported by the governor. Missouri — Favored by the leadership and the governor, a key ERA committee chairman was defeated by a pro-ERA vote. Oklahoma — Favored by the House speaker, the Senate passed the bill in the previous year term and the governor, and has a majority in both chambers. North Carolina — Democratic victories put ERA in a "good position." The sole woman senator who opposed ERA was defeated. Nevada — Favored by the governor, favored by a majority of the members in the House and probably the Senate, but opposed by Senate LEADER. SOUTH CAROLINA — Favored by the leadership, has a majority in the House, opposed by the governor and the Senate was not polled. Florida — Favored by a majority in the House, has a 50

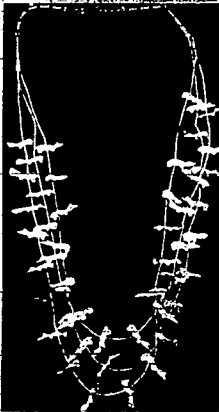

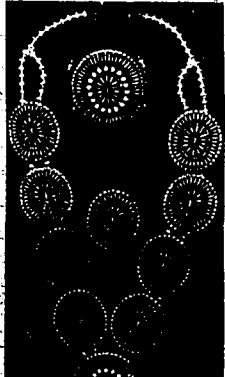

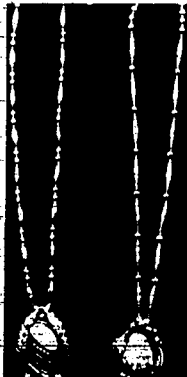

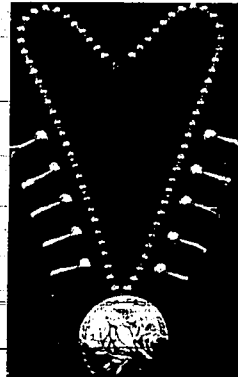

50 chance in the Senate with Senate leadership opposed. Indiana — Favored by the leadership and a majority in the House, but not enough votes in the Senate. Arizona — Favored by the governor, who defeated an anti-ERA candidate, has a majority in the Senate, but not enough votes or leadership support in the House.

When planning to have several holiday parties over a short period, such as a weekend, don't forget to explain this to your florist, suggests the Society of American Florists. He can give you tips on how to keep your floral arrangements looking bright and fresh for days, including watering techniques and storage temperatures for various types of flowers.

During the winter heating season, remember to keep house plants away from drafts, heat registers and heat radiated by fireplaces, reminds the Society of American Florists. Most blooming plants will do best in a cool room (about 70 degrees) with bright light, while foliage plants can usually take a somewhat higher room temperature.

Miniskirt back

NEW YORK (UPI) — The miniskirt is back, according to one designer.

Noting that the stock market goes up with headlines, Halston said "The knowes, this change may make the stock market reverse itself and go sky high."

"American women are known for their beautiful legs and men have missed them very much," said Halston, who goes by the one name.

"It's time to bring a smile back to fashion, to counteract an oppressive mood, that comes from being too serious, too proper, too overpowering."

A Lovelier You

FASCINATION IN HAZEL EYES

By Mary Sue Miller

A Lovelier writes: My eyes are hazel and very pale. They take on a little more color when I wear bright clothing. Is there a shade of shadow that would give my eye coloring more character?

The Answer: Hazel eyes have a unique and fascinating quality. And that is the ability to change color, like chameleons, with a change of surroundings. A clever choice of eye shadow does aid the cause.

Actually, a lovely with hazel eyes needs a wardrobe of eye shadow shades, keyed to the colors in her wardrobe. That way, she can match or complement her clothing, and the hue of her iris gains strength. To get down to cases:

It's obvious, or should be, that a film of green or blue shadow turns the trick when you wear green or blue. This goes for other matchable shades, like gray, beige or brown.

But what works with red, pink, yellow or black? It depends on whether you want your eyes to resemble pools of sable or chinchilla. For the first effect, apply taupe shadow; for the second, use French gray.

Mascara helps to intensify effects. Charcoal — or black — is a smart choice. Try the scheme and be thankful! Many girls would give anything to be able to change the color of their eyes.

THE EYES OF YOUTH

You are not lost to youthful beauty because of dark circles, puffiness, or wrinkles around the eyes. These problems can be brought under control by proper skin care, cosmetic applications and facial exercises. Methods are detailed in my leaflet, THE EYES OF YOUTH. To obtain your copy, write: Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing 15 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

TWIN FALLS — Live Indian music will be featured at "An Evening in India" to be presented Sunday by the Associated Students of the College of Southern Idaho.

The show is at 8 p.m. in room 104 of the Fine Arts building.

Featured is Master Harvey, who will play the sarod, an Indian stringed instrument. Films of India will be shown and the audience will have an opportunity to ask questions.

The concert is being presented as an effort to present facets of other cultures and societies; programs board members said.

Harvey is an American, has studied extensively in India. He has adopted a unique style of sarod playing, originating from his widely diversified musical background.

Harvey has studied electric guitar, piano, drums, trombone, violin and other instruments and played jazz, rock, classical and western styles of music.

The sarod, which is an Indian folk instrument, first gained its present form in the 18th Century court of Sultan Alauddin Khilji. The body of the sarod is wood and the head is goat skin. The instrument has 23 strings.

It's been one of those years

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Raquel Jo "Kelly" Stubbs is a willowy 17-year-old blonde who could be a candidate for teenage hard luck queen. But with her luck, she'd never win.

Two years ago she won a dance contest, with the right to represent San Diego at the next competition. She hurt a knee and had to drop out.

Last March, she was leading a state girl's gymnastic competition when she suffered a cartilage injury.

Last week she was a popular candidate for homecoming queen of Mt. Miguel High School.

She lost by two votes.

"Oh well," she was still Miss Teen-Age San Diego, an honor she won Oct. 21.

It turns out that winners of the Miss Teen-Age title must be less than 18 years old until the end of the year midnight, Dec. 31.

Kelly was born 20 hours and 20 minutes too soon to make the deadline, so the title goes to the runner-up.

"It's just been one of those years," said the by-now-hardened Kelly. "I was surprised I won in the first place."

Forgets misfortune

RAQUEL Jo "Kelly" Stubbs, who lost her Miss Teen-Age San Diego title because she was 20 hours and 20 minutes too old, forgets her misfortune and stays on as a YMCA gymnastics instructor. Her pupil is Jill Hollis. 7, San Diego (UPI)

Jaycee Park demolition planned by TF council

TWIN FALLS — City Council members Monday night approved hiring several additional Jaycee Baseball Field and eventually re-building it.

The action followed a discussion of additional employees under the federal CETA program in which the federal government helps pay the cost of the employees to increase employment. In June, if the workers are satisfactory, the city will assume full cost of salaries.

Three workers will be added to the fire department as trainees to replace those needed to man equipment at the city county airport. Six others will work in the street and parks departments. These positions, not adopted Monday night, will demolish the old Jaycee baseball field and construct a new one at Jaycee Baseball Park.

Ernie Lincoln, who introduced the motion, said the demolition should be followed by replacement of fencing with chain-link type material and the use of bleachers instead of a stand.

"I think we should preserve the facility for our youth school and college players. But I don't think we need the old stands which are obviously a fire hazard and are falling apart," Lincoln said.

Commissioners James Smith and Henry Westfall voted against the motion because of the portion calling for demolition of the ballpark. Others supported it. Paul Ostin, who has previously objected to anything other than renovation and preservation of the facility, was absent.

Plans for modifying the parking meter system in Twin Falls were discussed but no action taken. Ann Cower, chairman of transportation and traffic matters, said there have been no changes in the cost of parking on the original meters since they were installed in June, 1970.

She suggested the two cents per hour in the downtown Main Avenue area be increased to 10 cents for 30 minutes to give a better parking turnover in this area. Longer periods of time are available in the off-street parking lots, she said.

Blaine County seeks state view on dog tags

By BART QUENNELL
Times-News writer

HAILLEY — Blaine County has requested an Idaho attorney general's opinion on a county-wide dog licensing ordinance.

Deputy Pres. Atty. John Croner said the opinion request resulted from a letter to the county commissioners from Mountain Meadows Mobile Home Park vice president Gordon Glasmann.

"Glasmann had written to the commissioners to inform them of the terrible dog problem in the mobile home park."

"The situation has become so acute that some of our tenants are now shooting the animals," Glasmann wrote. "One small dog was shot and killed last evening."

Glasmann went on to say the situation would get worse putting children and adults in jeopardy of stray bites.

"I believe it is absolutely essential that the county adopt a dog licensing ordinance and employ at least two animal control officers, one for the San Valles, Kelchum area and one to cover the balance of the county, and take positive steps to clear up this problem."

In response to the commissioners' inquiry into a county-wide licensing procedure Croner replied under state statute the county has the right to require all dogs to be licensed and tagged.

The statute is clear, Croner said, the county has the right. However, the statute is not clear whether the county is bound to lay out a licensing procedure, Croner said.

According to the statute "The board of county commissioners of any county at any meeting in any year shall make an order requiring all owners of dogs in any unincorporated village, town or areas to be designated by the board as requiring dog control and to post outside the corporate limits of municipalities which have enacted and are enforcing a ordinance."

The statute does not specify time limits, Croner said, as it is written.

"I've drafted a request to the attorney general's office whether the provisions of Section 25-2201, Idaho Code, make it mandatory that a county have a county-wide dog license ordinance," Croner said.

Croner stated in his response letter to the county commissioners that "in passing upon the particular problem which has given rise to this response, it should be understood that trailer parks and other landlord tenements are the prime problem areas at present."

"There is virtually nothing to prevent a landlord from disallowing tenants to possess dogs as a condition of the lease," he said.

Croner also listed state code relating to regulation to protect individuals killed by dogs.

Bawdy house offers discount coupons

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — A prostitution ring based near the state capitol and featuring "discount coupons" has been broken, police said Monday.

Books with "easily 400 names," including "well-known people," were found in the suspected bawdy house, investigators said.

Three women were booked over the weekend on charges relating to prostitution following surveillance at an apartment house six blocks from the Capitol, police said.

Coupons allowing regular customers $5 and $10 discounts were also found in the building, police said.

Father suspected in destruction of home

PLEASANT HILL, Calif. (UPI) — A 57-year-old father of two has been jailed on suspicion of torching his suburban home following a week-end quarrel with his wife.

Police detective Terry Simpson said Sunday Geisler was arrested in a church and booked for investigation of arson after his 57-year-old bedroom home burned to the ground.

Simpson said Geisler allegedly threatened to burn the home of his wife Dawn, left him. She took their two small children and left shortly afterwards, the detective said.

The fire, which investigators said was started with flammable liquid, destroyed the home.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1974

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid anything that could affect your health or relations with important persons until mid-afternoon, but after that some unusual and unexpected condition can arise that gives you the chance to enjoy yourself or engage in constructive projects.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Avoid that pal who is overly generous to you in the town, with those who are more congenial. Plan business expansion later.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Contact a hinged who can give you added backing and then get right down to the business of the day. Be accurate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Prepare carefully for that new project that has you so enthusiastic, or you could ruin your chances of success with it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You feel confused about duties in a.m., but if you start on the most important, by afternoon you're ahead. Relieve tensions.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): A partner is acting somewhat strangely, but keep silent and by afternoon you know how to handle the situation. Take care of civic matter.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): More courtesy directed toward co-workers brings fine results now and you'd do well to cement better relations with others, also.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Get into the creative work that appeals to you in a.m., then later enjoy pleasurable activities. Be cheerful with mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Be more thoughtful of kin today and respect their wishes more than you have in the past. Study basic situation early.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Try to get closer to regular allies and have better results in the future. Be more interested in their personal lives.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't invest money in a.m., but later get advice from experts about this. Avoid a commitment that ties you down for a long time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Put personal aims on a more firm basis, then show appreciation to persons who have been helpful to you. Social matters favored in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Plan to be of greater service to others. Don't discuss your views with those who could profit from them instead of you.

What's What

King Louis XV of France one afternoon came down with a slight fever. His physician La Peyronie sent him to bed with a cold damp towel for his forehead. Next morning the King woke up somewhat healthier. So grateful to his doctor was he that he presented La Peyronie with an estate which took in five villages and 207 farms. Rentals garnered from all the property added the equivalent of $31,000 a year to that medico's annual income, a sizeable sum in those days. Now there, sir, is some general practice.

Q. "HOW MANY" synonyms are there for the word "drunk"?
A. Our Language man counted 385 before he gave up. Please note, however, he rang in such oldies as buncy, nintipsical, therrymerry and stiff as a ringbolt.

THE HARD FACTS
If you don't get bald, sir, you probably can expect to grow about 15 pounds of hair before age 70. . . AVERAGE CAB DRIVER in New York City is said to talk to 18,000 different people every year. . . LENGTH of the average marriage that ends in divorce is six years. . . DID I TELL you an elephant keeps customarily clean up that animal's hide with a blow torch? . . . COSMETIC EXPERTS contend false eyelashes make some women's eyes look smaller.

RATS
If a mama rat is permitted to lick her offspring clean as soon as they're born, she'll bring them up with much care and affection. But if they're immediately taken away from her, washed, then returned, she'll promptly eat them. Let's dwell on this topic, but later.

Hansen checks bus bids

HANSEN - Bids for a school bus were opened Monday night at a meeting of the Hansen School Board, but no decision was reached.

According to Supl. Percy Christensen, the bids were in the $10,000 range with about $500 difference between the two bids. Christensen said no decision was made on the bids, however, since there was some confusion on the part of the school board as to whether or not both bids met specifications.

Christensen said the bids will be checked out and a special school board meeting called at a later date to make the decision.

In other business Monday the school board:

- Discussed purchase of furniture, blackboards and other equipment for the new Hansen Elementary School which is expected to open in January.
- Christensen said the board agreed to purchase six portable blackboards for the new school.

appointed a committee to come up with a plan for completing landscaping and playgrounds at the new grade school.

discussed alternatives suggested by the senior class at Hansen High School for the establishment of a graduation date and decided that all senior plans were workable and would be left to the choice of the students.

sent for a project from the National School Parent Association on updating school board policies. Christensen called the updating of policy facing the Hansen School Board a large job.

discussed construction of a sprinkler system for the new grade school and decided to put in a sprinkler system but to first investigate costs of various sprinkler pipe systems.

formalized the emergency closure of The Hansen schools on Oct. 11 and Nov. 11 when repair work underway for the Hansen water system left the schools without water.

Rainmaker sued for success

CABO, Mich.—(UPI)—The rainmaker was so successful, farmer Michael Reinhold said, that five inches of rain and hail came crashing down on a clear day.

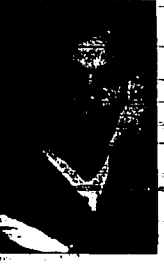

The storm, Reinhold said, ruined his corn, bean and lettuce crops and cost him $37,500.

And that is why Reinhold said he is suing Dr. Irving P. Kriek of Palm Springs, Calif., a professional rainmaker who once served as chief of the U.S. Army Air Force's weather forecasting office.

"We're saying you shouldn't mess around with the environment unless you know what consequences are being messing around can cause," said Reinhold, a 30-year-old farmer who owns 800 acres of farmland in this rich area north of Detroit.

The case is currently under way in Tascala County circuit court.

On July 11, 1972, the day of the storm, Reinhold said, Kriek was employed by a group of farmers 100 miles away at Holland, who were reported to have paid $50,000.

New cars pile up

THREE-tiered railroad cars laden with new automobiles line the tracks in St. Louis. The nation's auto firms all report sharp slumps in sales of 1975 models and a corresponding build-up of inventories leading to plant shutdowns and layoffs.

LID bond bids lacking

TWIN FALLS - Plans to open bids for the sale of $400,000 in local improvement district bonds during a public hearing Monday night were canceled because no bids were received.

City Manager Jean Blair said the bonds were for local improvement District 22, a street, curb and sidewalk improvement program. He said he will contact William Langley, who handled the bond preparations for the district and it may be possible for the city to negotiate for the bond sale.

In other action the council approved legislation parking from six to two hour periods on the off-street parking lot on Second Avenue East, the former Bill Workman property.

The other parking matters were discussed. The council voted to defer paying of a parking lot at the Maple Valley Food Co.'s new location on Second Avenue South near the bus depot. The department will be with other permits pending.

The council also approved a request from Mountain Bell Co. for parking variance in connection with plans for adding a third floor to the equipment building.
