ATT cancels improvement plans

NEW YORK (UPI) — AT&T today cancelled plans to borrow $600 million for construction and service improvement because of uncertainty over the future of the company following the antitrust suit brought by the Ford administration.

The bond and debt program was placed on the open market last week. It was the largest private corporation debt program ever offered to the public.

Set to quit?

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka is reported about ready to resign because of charges he used his political position to increase his personal fortune, aides said today.

According to a source in the Liberal-Democratic Party, Tanaka is "physically and mentally tired" from the pressures of his job.

IRA bombing suspects arrested

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — Police announced today the arrests of five men suspected of planting the Irish Republican Army bombs that killed 19 persons and wounded 104 others in five downtown pubs Thursday night in the deadliest bombing attack of five years of strife in Northern Ireland.

Police said the five suspects were seized at Heuston as they attempted to board a ferry boat bound for Belfast. They were brought to Birmingham for questioning.

Four other persons were detained for questioning but were not believed serious suspects in the planting of bombs that demolished two downtown pubs, 50 yards apart, within a span of two minutes.

Citibank pares prime rate again

NEW YORK (UPI) — First National City Bank today lowered its prime rate one quarter percentage point to 10 per cent, the lowest business loan interest since April.

A number of other banks across the nation followed suit, trimming their rates to either 10 1/2 or 10 3/4 per cent. In recent weeks, Citibank's rate has consistently been one quarter percentage point lower than other major banks.

Optimistic

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Arch N. Booth, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday the U.S. will recover from inflation within a year if the new Congress can keep from overspending.

"The worst thing we have to fear is that the new Congress will get off to a fast start, busting the budget, printing the pump, re-inflating the economy at too great an extent and too fast," he told a news conference.

Ted, Ethel pay tribute to JFK

ARLINGTON, Va. (UPI) — The brother and sister-in-law of former President John F. Kennedy laid bouquets of flowers on his grave today, commemorating the 11th anniversary of his assassination in Dallas.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Ethel Kennedy paid their respects quietly for about five minutes in a chapel at Arlington National Cemetery where an eternal flame burns at the Kennedy gravesite.

Cites gains

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Rep. Bella Abzug, D-N.Y., says the results of this year's election show a woman's place is in politics.

However, she said, women are a long way from exerting any kind of control in Congress. She said Congress is "new, younger and more coed" but women won't be taking over there.

FEA eases heating oil allocation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Energy Administration announced today it will relax allocation of heating oil for homes and businesses but warned Americans to keep thermostats turned down "for a hard winter."

More aid to Korea pledged

SEOUL (UPI) — President Ford, welcomed to Seoul in a hail of colored confetti, today pledged the United States will reduce neither its troops in South Korea nor Congress willing — its military aid to maintain that country's independence.

An estimated 2 million South Koreans turned out for Ford's arrival. His 12-mile drive into Seoul from the airport was a "triumphal entry" throughout the city, Ford called it "tremendous."

In a two-hour private discussion with South Korean President Park Chung Hee, Ford expressed concern about Park's "policy" of repression of dissidents. An aide later said Ford was satisfied with Park's response but refused to elaborate.

Ford promised on a joint communiqué after the talks to provide "prompt and effective assistance" to repel any armed attack against the Republic of South Korea in accordance with the mutual defense treaty of 1954.

Ford assured Park there would be no reduction in the 38,000-man garrison of U.S. troops now stationed in South Korea. He also pledged American aid in developing South Korean defense industries and if Congress provides the money, a $60 million to $80 million program to modernize South Korea's armaments.

The communiqué said Park had accepted an invitation to visit the United States, although no date was set. The South Korean president, who came to power in a 1961 coup, has been in the United States on four previous occasions.

Ford flew to Seoul from Japan and was scheduled to depart for snow-covered Vladivostok Saturday (this evening U.S. time) for his first summit meeting with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev.

Ford's meeting with Park at Blue House, the South Korean presidential mansion named because of its blue roof, followed an arrival ceremony at King International Airport in which the President said: "I am here to reaffirm our friendship and to give it new meaning and life."

The busy, colorful welcome to South Korea was the warmest yet in Ford's first major trip abroad. Despite earlier objections that his visit appeared to support Park's regime, no protest demonstrations were reported.

Instead there were brass bands, flags, flowers, confetti and arches bearing Ford's portrait. Many of those lining the roads up to 15 persons deep were school children let out of class just for the occasion.

SALUTES of two types featured President Gerald Ford's one-day visit to Korea. Ford and President Park Chung Hee (above) rendered a solemn salute to their nations' national anthems, during Seoul ceremonies, while American troops at Camp Casey (below) gave Ford a jubilant welcome on his visit there. TF offers sewer sludge for use as fertilizer

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With the short supply and high price of fertilizer, Twin Falls city sewage sludge may have a growing use as a soil builder.

The product, which is biologically treated locally at the Twin Falls sewage treatment plant, is available for the asking, wet or dry, according to plant Superintendent Palmer.

Although China, Japan and several European countries have used human waste by-products as a fertilizer for centuries, the practice is uncommon in Idaho. It has been used in other areas of the country, however.

Sewage treatment plants in Connecticut, California and other states have been producing a dried sludge product for years.

With the recent discovery that two Arab countries had agreed to buy U.S. cow manure at 10¢ a pound, prices fell. Palmer thought the market for the sludge might be growing here.

A fertilizer dealer said he expected to see the sludge used more with the rising prices of commercial fertilizer. And he said it could be used economically and effectively if the cost for obtaining and transporting the sludge was reasonable.

The sludge has been used in the past on city parks and the golf course, but the Environmental Protection Agency asked the city to stop using the soil builder in the parks.

Children, the EPA reasoning went, are the major park users, and they are more apt to play in the dirt, and neglect to wash their hands later.

On the other hand, adults use the golf course, by and large. EPA officials reasoned that they "do have personal habits" and would wash their hands before eating.

The EPA warns that any sludge used on lawns or crops which might expose people to a health danger should in effect be pasteurized — heated to 135 degrees Fahrenheit for one hour.

When the new secondary sewage treatment plant is completed next year, the sludge will be heat-treated and will meet EPA standards, according to city Manager Jean Miller. Sludge is still dried now, and doesn't meet the standards.

Rocky wins OK of panel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee today unanimously approved the nomination of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president and declined to require him to place his vast financial holdings in a blind trust.

The committee voted 20 to 0 to send the nomination to the full Senate. The House Judiciary Committee meanwhile conducted its second day of hearings on the former New York governor.

Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., said the Rules Committee's formal report on Rockefeller will be issued Dec. 3 after Congress' Thanksgiving holiday recess.

Cannon predicted the nomination ultimately will be approved in both chambers, despite a furor over Rockefeller's enormous loans and gifts to political friends, and a congressional look which his brother initiated.

The Senate committee unanimously rejected suggestions that it formally require Rockefeller to put his holdings in a blind trust or pledge never again to give money to associates.

Rockefeller, however, has said he will abide voluntarily by both suggestions.

Cannon said the committee did not feel it would be "meaningful" to require Rockefeller to establish the blind trusts.

"With the tremendous wealth of the Rockefeller family," he said, "it would be very difficult to insulate their entire holdings."

"We have in this case a full disclosure. Everyone knows where his holdings are and will be able to recognize it there is any conflict of interest."

Only one Rules Committee member, Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., said he voted for the nomination with "reservations." Citing what he described as "sharp differences" with Rockefeller's liberal views, Allen said he would decide later whether to vote for the nomination on the floor.

Burley man rivals stuntman's antics

By DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

RIPEPT — Kyle Adams rivaled the daredevil stunts of Evel Knievel in a spectacular "flying car" accident Thursday south of Rupert.

Adams, 22, Burley, is listed in fair condition today at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital with a fractured jaw, lacerations and a neck injury.

"He was injured when the car he was driving at an 'excessive rate of speed' according to Minidoka County Deputy Sheriff Dave Constant, approached Highway 21 from a county road and went into a depression dividing the four-lane highway, becoming airborne on the way out. The car, with Adams inside, flew 78 feet through the air, passing over a pickup driven by Thomas Bramton, Burley.

The southbound Bramton truck wasn't touched by the Adams' car, although flying rock broke the windshield. According to Constant, Bramton was uninjured but shaken by the experience.

"I saw those headlights coming and I knew there was nothing I could do. He hit the ground going super fast and just flew over the top of my truck," Bramton told the Times-News today.

Constant said the Adams vehicle traveled about 20 feet but apparently didn't burn. He said the accident is still being investigated.

Adams was admitted to Minidoka Memorial Hospital and then transferred to Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Thursday night.

Hijackers hold 43

TUNIS (UPI) — A band of four Arab terrorists hijacked a British VC10 airliner to Tunis today and threatened to kill their 43 hostages one by one unless Egypt and other governments released jailed Palestinian guerrillas, including the eight who killed two American and a Belgian diplomat in Beirut.

The British airline said the hostages included 27 American, British, Belgian and other European passengers, eight crewmen and eight Arab workmen aboard the plane when it was hijacked this morning from the Persian Gulf state of Dubai on a flight from London to Singapore.

The number of Americans was not immediately known. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat began immediate consultations with Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy and other key members of his cabinet and Tunisian Foreign Minister Habib Chatti broke off a visit to Paris and flew back to Tunis to help negotiate.

The guerrillas issued one ultimatum after another with various threats to blow up the plane and shoot the hostages.

Ski season arrives

BURLEY — The ski season has begun. Pomerelle ski resort opened today for the season and will have two major runs open for the weekend.

The area reports 18 inches at the top of the mountain and 8 inches at the lodge. This makes lower runs limited to poor conditions by national snow reporting guide standards.

Area officials say more snow is forecast and good skiing for the Thanksgiving holiday is anticipated.

The chairlift only will be operating and Instructor and Milk runs will be open. Both have been packed after each snowfall.

An instructor's clinic for the Pomerelle ski school will be held Sunday with Robin Locke, Park City, Utah, a member of the Intermountain Ski Instructors Association examining board, in charge.

MV building employment up despite $$ squeeze

By MARILYN BELLIOTT
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Employment in the building construction trades has steadily risen in the Magic Valley since 1972 despite a building slump brought on by tight money.

Preliminary estimates by the Department of Employment indicate that 1,100 area residents were employed in trades related to building construction this September while 845 were employed during the similar period in 1973 and only 800 in 1972.

Though some building contractors in Twin Falls express concern about the effects of a continued tight money situation, none of those contacted by the Times-News were cutting back employees or planning cutbacks in contracts.

"This area has been expanding so fast in recent years we've been doing normal construction," according to Jim Voegelé, area labor market analyst with the Department of Employment, but now "we've slowed down."

"Things have been sluggish since the beginning of the summer," Voegelé said. "Employment has leveled off."

Planning council to merge groups

TWIN FALLS — Citizen planners from the west end of Twin Falls County will be asked to come to Twin Falls for future weekly meetings in connection with public development of a county land-use plan.

The Twin Falls City-County Joint Planning Council decided Wednesday to merge the west end and Twin Falls groups after planning director David Ritchey announced that west end attendance has been minimal.

Ritchey said the west-end group "appears to be meeting to five persons." The group had been meeting every Tuesday night in Ruhl.

"The small number of persons attending does not affect the quality of work produced but does affect the character of the meetings with seeming discrepancies for speakers and some reduction in variety of viewpoints," Ritchey told the planning council.

"Lack of publicity has perhaps contributed to the present state of citizen participation there, but the joining of the west-end group to a larger group such as the Twin Falls group... would intersect some variety in the program for those west enders that attend regularly," Ritchey added.

In approving the merger, the planning council effectively gave a vote of confidence to Ritchey and his citizen planning program.

The council earlier had warned that the citizen-participation program might be eliminated if progress was not shown by Dec. 1. Since the council will not meet in regular session again until after Dec. 1, members Wednesday gave fact approval to continuing the program.

Ritchey also indicated Wednesday that the east-end group, which meets in Kimberly, might be in trouble. The group "fluctuates enough in attendance that it is difficult to determine whether or not there is a serious problem," he said.

Attendance has ranged from 12 to 2 persons, he added.

Meri Leonard, the planning council chairman, hinted that he also would support merger of the east-end group.

But Ritchey said the Kimberly group "still has some promise. I'd rather not cut it out so soon."

The Twin Falls meetings have had "excellent" attendance, according to Ritchey. The room he has reserved on campus at the College of Southern Idaho holds 30 to 35 persons and we have had a capacity or near capacity group there."

Ritchey also announced Wednesday that he intends to have a draft of the comprehensive land-use plan and final land-use maps "ready for display" at the 1975 Twin Falls County Fair in September. "Public hearings for adoption can begin immediately after the week of the fair," he said.

No citizen planning meetings will be held next week because of the Thanksgiving holiday.

Meetings will resume the following week, Monday in Twin Falls in room 111 of CSI's Voc-Tech building and Thursday in Kimberly City Hall. Both sessions will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Panel defers judgment

POCAHELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Congressman-elect George Hansen says he appreciates the action of the House Committee on Administration in deferring its decision on a challenge to seating him in Congress.

(Related story, p. 24)

The committee Thursday voted to defer any judgment on the Hansen case pending the receipt of information from the Justice Department.

"I think that's the proper course of action," Hansen said in a telephone interview. "That's what I've always advocated. I'm very happy to see the matter pulled out of the political framework and put into a situation where the facts will make the determination."

Hansen said he had just returned from a visit to Washington, D.C., where he met with the Justice Department investigators.

"I feel we have satisfied all their questions and I really feel the matter will be cleared up and I will be seated," he said.

He said during the trip he touched bases with the proper authorities on the matter "and apparently we made out quite effectively enough that the matter is being handled as we have contended all along that it should be."

"Under the circumstances, I appreciate the committee's action," he said.

Hearing set on schedules

TWIN FALLS — A hearing on proposed passenger train schedules in Southern Idaho will be conducted here Dec. 11.

The Idaho Amtrak Committee today announced a series of hearings to obtain public opinion concerning the scheduling of Amtrak service, which will be set up sometime next year.

Other hearings Dec. 11 will be conducted at Shoshone and Burley.

Dwight Jensen, Boise, committee chairman, said the other hearings will be at Payette and Caldwell Dec. 6; in Boise Dec. 7; Mountain Home Dec. 9; Dec. 10 in Idaho Falls and Dec. 14 in Pocatello and Soda Springs.

Information from the hearings will be sent to the U.S. secretary of transportation, who will determine the route and schedule for trains serving southern Idaho. That new line will link Salt Lake City and Portland, connecting with other Amtrak routes at those points.

Visitor number down

STANLEY, UPI — Visitor information officers for the Sawtooth National Recreation area said the use of the recreation area this past summer was down about five percent.

Visitation at Galena Summit overlook was down eight percent compared to 1972, said Bruce Rowland and Chuck Ebersole, information officers.

They said in 1972 visitors from California made up 70 percent of the area visitors while this year 70 percent of the tourists were from Idaho.

"People are just staying closer to home," said Ebersole.

He said gas costs and the general economy contributed to the decline.

Rowland said use of undeveloped campgrounds was up this summer.

Use in the Sawtooth Valley, Wood River area and Stanley Basin was down but the wilderness area came under heavier use, especially from backpackers.

While additional hydro sites are suitable, it appears that for political reasons they are not available. Due to increasing power demands the company has had to turn now to enhanced steam generating units.

"Our members recognize that the most feasible way to meet these needs lies in the construction and operation of a nearby coal-fired facility. We share public concern for the environment, however, we have complete faith in Idaho Power Company's plans to meet air and water quality standards, minimizing any potential impact with equipment similar to that installed at the company's Jim Bridger Plant in Wyoming which we understand is now operating with an essentially clear stack, thanks to an electrostatic precipitator."

20th year observed

TWIN FALLS — Members of Bethel No. 44, Order of Job's Daughters, celebrated the Bethel's 20th birthday anniversary during a meeting Wednesday.

Both officers were elected. The new officers include Nancy Graybill, honored queen; Debbie Wiedenheft, senior princess; Gaylelyn Griffin, junior princess; Audrey Fuller, guide; Cindy Barlogi, marshal.

Honored queen Suzanne Guthrie conducted the meeting during which past honored queens, majority members, past marshals, past associate guardians and past council members attending were honored.

Members are planning a craft and candy sale Dec. 7. Members also plan to visit the Jerome Bethel and to attend the coronation ball in Jerome Nov. 30.

The meeting was followed by a supper.

Barbara DePew was named "Jobie Booster." Miss Wiedenheft was "Jobie of the Meeting." Suzanne Guthrie was "Robin Jobie."

Members are planning a program of hand-painted napkins and picture framing at the meeting. Paintings made by club members were displayed.

Yearbooks will be judged on Dec. 17 at a noon luncheon beginning at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Craig-Gifts will be exchanged.

Land-Use Congress supports plant

PAYETTE, Idaho (UPI) — The Greater Snake River Land-Use Congress announced today that its board of directors is supporting the need for the construction of a steam electric generating plant in Southern Idaho.

Jim Bivens, president of the Congress, said the board issued the following statement in a message to the Idaho Power Co. and the Idaho Public Utilities Commission:

"We support the Idaho Power Company in its stated premise that a coal-fired plant using the nation's most abundant fuel in an environmentally acceptable manner, will assist the nation in achieving the purpose of the project, and will assure Southern Idaho and Eastern Oregon of electrical energy sufficiency.

"While additional hydro sites are suitable, it appears that for political reasons they are not available. Due to increasing power demands the company has had to turn now to enhanced steam generating units.

"Our members recognize that the most feasible way to meet these needs lies in the construction and operation of a nearby coal-fired facility. We share public concern for the environment, however, we have complete faith in Idaho Power Company's plans to meet air and water quality standards, minimizing any potential impact with equipment similar to that installed at the company's Jim Bridger Plant in Wyoming which we understand is now operating with an essentially clear stack, thanks to an electrostatic precipitator."

Art club elects

TWIN FALLS — The Mary Davis Art Club elected new officers at a meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Elgin Wilson.

Elected president for 1974 was Mrs. Delbert Craig. Other new officers include Mrs. Marion Wall, vice president; Mrs. Wilson, secretary; treasurer; and Mrs. Eldred Taylor, scrapbook.

Clara Walton presented a program of hand-painted napkins and picture framing at the meeting. Paintings made by club members were displayed.

Yearbooks will be judged on Dec. 17 at a noon luncheon beginning at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Craig-Gifts will be exchanged.

What makes Jerry run? Lame duck has no power

New York Times Service

There's a story behind President Ford's announcement that he will definitely seek election to the presidency in 1976.

The announcement went against his original decision to retire from the House of Representatives in 1977, and it went beyond the statement he made after he got into the White House that he would "probably" run again for switched for various reasons.

After the illness of his wife, rumors circulated in Washington that he would may keep the promise to her, have several years more to get out of politics for good at the end of his present term. But there was no factual basis for these rumors, and Washington lives on gossip and speculation, and politicians act on their hunches.

After the mid-term elections, when Ford campaigned so strenuously and his party lost so heavily, his popularity dropped and speculation about his retirement increased.

At this point, the retiring governor of California, Ronald Reagan, seemed to be expanding his speaking engagements to Republican rallies all over the country, and talking vaguely about being available in '76. There were more rumors of a Reagan-Wallace arrangement to run on an independent conservative ticket if they could not get the nominations of their respective parties.

Donald Rumsfeld, the President's chief of staff, and several of Ford's other close friends on Capitol Hill, accordingly urged him to remove all doubt about seeking election. Otherwise, they argued, with a weak Republican minority in both houses, his authority would be weakened, his legislative program would be in serious jeopardy, and he might even lose control over his own party.

It is also understood that Secretary of State Kissinger made the point to the President that his ability to negotiate effectively with foreign governments would be seriously and increasingly hampered if he seemed to be a lame-duck president.

Accordingly, President Ford went west to the Sigma Delta Chi meeting prepared to announce, if he was asked, that he would definitely seek election, but nobody asked the question. The next day, he had his press secretary make the firm announcement.

This has temporarily strengthened his position, but he is not assured of the nomination in normal circumstances. It is difficult, almost unthinkable, for a party to refuse the nomination to its president if he wants it. To do so amounts to a repudiation of the party's leader. But Ford is not a "normal" president. He was not chosen by his party or elected by the people. In fact, he has never been elected seriously by his party in any nominating convention, despite his long service as Republican leader in the House. Under the circumstances, it is easier for other Republican leaders to challenge him and the party is not under the same obligation to nominate him.

His chances of nomination, therefore, are likely to rest on his record in dealing with the economy and foreign policy in the next 20 months.

For this reason, he was undoubtedly wise to announce his intention to run, for as a lame-duck president, his capacity to deal with both domestic and foreign policy would have been gravely weakened.

Nerve fails, income falls

There was one especially dreary statistic luried among the other dreary economic figures issued Thursday by the Labor Department.

The Labor Department said the purchasing power of American workers had fallen 4.9 per cent during the last year.

The reason for the income decline of nearly five per cent was clear. Inflation, running at 12.2 per cent, had overvexed income.

To make matters worse—the Frank of the economic slump tends to hit the poor hardest. For example, non-meat food items which make up a larger percentage of poor families' spending than for wealthier families, are rising even faster than other prices.

President Ford has asked the American people to "bite the bullet," by accepting tax increases and other austerity measures.

Ford's tax is now dead, as are most of his proposals to head the ailing economy.

With what now amounts to a hands-off policy by the dispirited Federal Government, it is apparent the mechanism of inflation will be allowed to run its course.

That means Americans will bite the bullet by seeing their real incomes fall.

That is the price we all will pay for failure of nerve in the White House and Congress.

Ma Bell suit

Wall Street Journal

While the Justice Department can't promise any consumer benefits that might result from its suit to break up AT&T, it is sure of one thing: This is the largest antitrust action ever filed.

So much for the neutrality of modern-day litigations. As long as they can tackle the biggest of all "big businesses," what is the difference whether the massive expenditure of federal money will do anything to end anyone's phone talk?

We level this criticism from a position generally favorable to federal efforts to promote business competition, greater economic efficiency, and more services and lower prices for consumers. But we see little reason for the antitrust division to be itself off with a massive project that probably will do exactly the opposite of all its antitrust goals and objectives.

AT&T is indeed a monopoly. But it is a heavily regulated monopoly, pretty much as Congress intended it to be when it wrote the Communications Act of 1934. Nobody could figure out then how a bunch of telephone companies could compete for the same customers without waste and chaos. It is even more doubtful that anyone could figure that out today, given the sophisticated, sophisticated, sophisticated facilities that have been spun across the land.

There is also little reason to see why anyone should try to figure it out. The combination of regulation and astute management at AT&T has given the nation a telecommunication system with no parallel in the world for scope and technological efficiency.

In the new view, however, the suit against AT&T should be attacked up, primarily by divesting the company's equipment manufacturing arm, Western Electric, and splitting it in two, by separating the Long Lines Department from Bell operating companies, and possibly by divesting the research arm, Bell Laboratories.

If this were done, the telephone business would still be a monopoly. Indeed, it is one of the classic examples of a "natural monopoly," for it would be prohibitively expensive for two competing companies to run telephone lines into every home. The classic answer rather than such monopolies should not be broken up, but should be regulated. Nothing in the Justice Department's suit would change these facts of economic life; the consumer's protection against price gouging would still be unimpaired by an antitrust suit.

What the Justice Department suit attacks is not monopoly, but vertical integration. Western Electric now works directly with AT&T headquarters and operating companies in planning, financing and developing communications systems. Presumably the theory at the Justice Department suit is that the natural efficiencies of such close coordination would be interrupted by the benefits of having two Western Electric, JLT-A, JLT-B and so on, making no telephone equipment contracts. Perhaps so, but we have our doubts.

The doubts tend to be borne out by a study Touche Ross & Co., the accounting firm, completed for the Federal Communications Commission earlier this year. We understand that the study was something of a disappointment to federal regulators and transmitters.

The conclusions were that the general effects of the interrelationship of Bell Systems companies are a reduction of cost and investment. Western Electric, as the manufacturing and supply arm of the Bell System, is, on an overall basis, efficient. That is, Western manufacturers' quality, telephone manufacturing products at low cost and delivers these products to Bell Systems companies on a timely basis at reasonable prices.

Fast-track decisions and consent decrees have considerably opened up the U.S. telephone equipment market to foreign and domestic competitors. Bell customers are free to buy automatic answering equipment, telephone sets and a variety of other equipment from non-Bell System suppliers and to use the system, as long as the equipment meets system specifications.

Out of all this we arrive at one question: Where is the problem that justifies risking possible damage to the efficiency of a vital part of the U.S. infrastructure, damage to the investments of innumerable individuals and pension funds and beneficiaries, possible damage to an important research and development enterprise? If there is a problem that justifies all this, we can't find it. Maybe it is because we prefer to deal in economics, rather than politics, in such matters.

'Civil wrongs' emerge

WASHINGTON—Some good things and some bad things are happening these days in the field of race relations.

This month's elections offered heartening evidence of the good. A new little book by George Roche provides maddening evidence of the bad.

The good news has to do with the election of blacks to public office. Year by year, the old walls of prejudice are tumbling down. The Voting Rights Acts of 1965 and 1970 gave the walls a push, but social and political forces would have toppled them anyway. Blacks are registering and voting today in about the same percentages as whites; and black candidates are winning.

The 94th Congress will see 47 blacks in the House of Representatives, among them Harold Ford of Memphis, now a minister, marked a great day in the Ford household: one son in Congress, one in the Tennessee Senate, one in the Tennessee House. Blacks won 41 seats in the Alabama House, 29 in the Georgia House, 13 in the lower chamber of South Carolina and 10 in the state senate. Twenty-two percent of the races in which they ran in the South. Blacks will serve as lieutenant governors in Colorado and California. From coast to coast, they are on their merits, in free and fair elections. As time goes on under the same rules that apply to everyone else, they will continue to win on their merits.

To the latter-day Jacobins in charge of "civil rights," such evolutionary change is not enough. These misguided crusaders are attempting to impose upon higher education what is known as "affirmative action." A bona fide, objectively "neutral" program could not be contrived.

Dr. Roche, president of Hillsdale College in Michigan, exposes the evil in "The Affirmative Act," just published by the Open Court publishing company of LaSalle, Ill. In the field of education, a field marked more by timidity than by boldness, Dr. Roche speaks with rare candor and authority.

This is not true of his colleagues. Most of our institutions have become dependent upon federal aid of one kind or another, and these institutions are discovering federal aid means federal control. The control is taking the form of demands from Washington that the colleges meet certain "goals" in the hiring and promotion of women and minority faculty members.

An egalitarian dream has become an educational nightmare. Civil rights officials insist that a "goal" is not a "quota" but that, in the kindest possible word, is a lie. When the euphemisms are stripped away, demands for "affirmative action" mean that college administrators must hire women, blacks, Spanish-Americans, or Orientals regardless of their qualifications.

JAMES KILPATRICK

Dr. Roche quotes from ads placed by leading institutions in professional journals: "We desire to appoint a black or Chicano, preferably female."

"Our doctoral requirements for faculty will be waived for candidates who qualify under the affirmative action criteria." A faculty candidate, writing for a job, gets a blunt letter in reply: "It will be possible for me to contact you for a position only in the event you are black."

As Dr. Roche points out, this degrading scheme is especially cruel to those women and blacks who are in fact qualified for faculty positions. It always will be wondered if they made it on merit. The reverse discrimination underestimates embittered white male candidates. The scheme paralyzes college administrators who see their integrity prostituted for federal dollars.

And all this is being done, mind you, in the holy name of "civil rights." A better description, as Dr. Roche makes clear, is civil wrongs.

Arafat's style spells danger to entire world

The style of Arafat is now transcribed, and it spells danger: to Israel, of course, but elsewhere also.

We learn that he had been most strenuously coached by those—for instance, French diplomats—who cared greatly that he should leave a well-earned impression with the United Nations and the American public. It was even urged upon him that he should get out of the hall, and perhaps even wear a tie. On this one he went half-way, shaving, but leaving off the tie. What distinguished him, almost immediately, was his determination to play an imperial role, imperiously.

It took him an age to get down to the problems of the Palestinian refugees.

The camera flashed on the seats of the Israeli delegation. They were empty, except for two hours later, most of the seats in the General Assembly, were empty when Ambassador Tokoh rose to denounce Arafat, the PLO, and all their works—but it was Arafat's day. He had carefully touched on the liveliest prejudices of the United Nations General Assembly: the fight for liberation in Calcutta, capitalist exploitation, imperialism, colonialism, the debts owed by the large nations to the exploited nations.

His intention was to establish that there was no parallel about an interested only in the narrow question of his constituency. Here was a voice of a people declaring their solidarity with that overwhelming majority of the United Nations that, flouting tradition, had invited as a de facto representative of a non-existing state, a spokesman pledged not only to having his way through the use of terror; he pledged himself to a solution in the Middle East which requires the lowering of Israel's flag.

He did not use these words, preferring the standard euphemism about a state where "Jews, Muslims, and Christians live together in justice, equality, and fraternity."

Now this is probably a fair game position. If Arafat had taken the occasion to inform the United Nations that he was prepared to recognize the sovereignty of Israel over an expanse of territory, however reduced, he'd have had to leave the chamber protected from Arab terrorists who would have been out for his treacherous blood. If the Palestinian Liberation Organization finally yields on the matter of a sovereign Israeli state, it will have to come as the evolution of extensive negotiations, probably interrupted by mini-wars.

Other speakers in the hall—all words—made worse all that he said. The decision to recognize Arafat frustrates a fresh, untransigent into the negotiations. Arafat is lined by a people made irreversibly bitter by their twenty years of persecution and confinement. In a few months ago, even a few weeks ago, the moderate Arafat states were in apparent control. Now the Sadeh who spoke reasonably with Kissinger is made out to look like a quishing King Hussein is presented with the requirement of yielding his claim on the west bank to Arafat, and weakening his own already deteriorated position. And Syria, one entrained for the gains, taking a renewed resolution to holy war.

What looms as the proximate problem? It is Arafat's announced intention of exercising sovereignty over the west bank. Combined with Israel's external pledge not to permit it to happen. Whether victory the clash comes there can be negotiations depends, substantially, on the United States, without whose advance commitment to sustain it, Israel could not launch another war. And the United States, world power, cannot afford to be in such a position.

The prospects are grim, and the swingeing performance of Arafat, made possible by the unimpacted irresponsibility of the United Nations, brings us closer to war.

Perpetual motion won't substitute for diplomacy

(C) New York Times Service

PARIS—The thought that perpetual motion might prove a valid substitute for diplomacy was introduced to the world by John Foster Dulles.

Two of Dulles' aides had served as secretary of state but he was also fascinated by the possibilities of becoming a presidential agent such as Wilson's Col. Edward House or Roosevelt's Harry Hopkins.

One asked Dulles before the 1952 elections if he expected to be secretary and he said he hadn't "made up my mind" — it might be more fun to have a job like Hopkins. He solved the dilemma by taking both assignments.

Aided by the development of air travel, he whizzed around the earth carrying what he carried to be the State Department in his briefcase. The story went that Eisenhower called him in and said, "Guster, don't just do something, stand there."

Well, how as Secretary Kissinger looks back at the earth carrying what he carries to Japan, Korea and Russia, and, incidentally, resumes, his own record-shattering travels, perhaps, it is a suitable moment to discuss what Kissinger himself called "ambulatory diplomacy" in his book, "The Kissinger Choice," published in 1961.

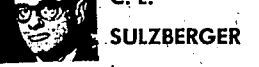

It is necessary to launch Ford as a Kissinger-guided missile in order to display him to Tanka, Brezhnev and, next month, Giscard d'Estaing? Is this useful for the American image abroad or Ford's image at home? Has whirling dervishism become essential to international relations?

When Kissinger first got into circumnavigation he was only a presidential agent. Nixon was trying to get some policy and there was even a secretary of state named Bill Rogers.

"Dear Henry," as the French call him, became an active voyager during the secret Vietnam and China negotiations. He subsequently became secretary of state. He made policy, supervised its application, and checked personally on its overseas effect.

Brilliant as he is, this is too big a role. Although his expulsiory travels have so far helped ally the

Thought for today

A thought for the day: American writer Carl Sandburg said, "Time is a handle you turn on a finger's touch."

What's state business, what's Democratic politics?

By RICHARD CIARROCK

BOISE (UPI) — Gov. Cecil D. Andrus may have a point about saving time and money by flying on an Air National Guard plane to a meeting in South Carolina — if the taxpayers must pay for the trip.

Considering the inconvenience involved in commercial air travel arriving at an airport in Savannah, Ga., at 1:57 a.m., the difference in fuel versus ticket costs is negligible.

It took Andrus' plane seven hours to get to Savannah and, because of headwinds, eight hours flight time to get back to Boise. Fifteen hours fuel costs for the two-engine Convair run an estimated $90.

United Airlines has a flight leaving Boise at 1:30 p.m. which connects with a Delta airlines flight at Chicago which, after making three stops, reaches Savannah at 1:57 a.m. That's 10 hours when the time change is considered.

Coach fare for the flight is $69.48 for a round trip. First class passage is not available.

for the through flight so the broken fare charge at first class is $55.48.

Andrus defended his decision to use the Air Guard plane on grounds he could confer with the adjutant general, Maj. Gen. George B. Bennett, on the trip and also could do other work at a table on board.

He added the crew was on a training mission, too, and that the hours spent in the air would be split when he returned. Suggested they "fill at the nation." He said the nation now has 30 Democratic governors and with that many governors present Idaho needed representation.

That may be but this still was a "Democratic" governors' conference, Andrus compared it with the Western Governors' Conference to be held in Idaho next fall. He said if Washington's Dan Evans isn't present only Democrats will be there.

True, but Republicans are invited to attend the meeting. The one at Hilton Head Island, S.C. — to which Andrus was driven by car after flying to Savannah — was strictly Democratic.

Democrats. Possibly, the party business conducted there was light. But party business was on the agenda.

Andrus, in an interview, compared this with the Republican Governors' Conference conducted at Sun Valley by outgoing Gov. Don Samuelson in December, 1970.

He noted the state police personnel and equipment and the National Guard were involved.

"That is true but since I'm providing transportation and security for the visiting heads of state, the taxpayers' share of the load ceased. Money was raised from private sources — in money puts the figure at about $20,000 — to pay for hosting the event.

At that meeting, incidentally, politics was very much in the limelight and by that I mean GOP politics. The Republicans had just taken a licking in some statehouse battles and were very much concerned about making a comeback. Idaho's Samuelson, in fact, was one who told that year — to Andrus.

So, while Andrus may have a point about using a Guard plane to travel on state business there still is some question about what is state business and what is politics.

When you capture 71 per cent of the vote, perhaps you can call it what you want.

Albert not afraid of top post

Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., is "not afraid" to be president, his aides say.

"He does not want to be president," they say. "He would rather be speaker of the House. But he recognizes it as a responsibility of his office that he has become next in line. He is not scared of it. He feels that he is qualified, to be president."

Albert, 66, sometimes called the "little giant" of the House because he is only 5 feet 4 inches tall, was "uplight" last year during the 60 days after Spiro Agnew resigned and before Gerald Ford was confirmed as president, according to his aides.

"This gave rise mistakenly to the idea that he was afraid to be president," they said. "He was not afraid but he was uptight because he was involved in both the confirmation and the impeachment. He did not want to give the impression that he was trying to steal the presidency."

Albert also felt at that time, the aides said, that it would be terribly divisive for the country if a Democrat were to take over the presidency after the Nixon landslide.

"This year, the speaker is in a much easier frame of mind because he knows that President Ford is in good health," the aides said. "All he is thinking about now is the confirmation of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president."

Albert's life has changed again, as it did last year, now that he has become next in line for the presidency.

The Secret Service moved in on him this time on the night of Aug. 3 as he was sitting alone in his private Capitol office. He 205, listening to President Nixon announce to a nationwide television audience that he would resign on the morrow.

Irvin Nickens. But the House is now ruled by a follow-up ear full of Secret Service agents.

In an effort to help prepare him for the presidency, he should have to assume it, the Ford administration is keeping Albert abreast of foreign policy developments. An intelligence officer visits his office every day and gives him the CIA foreign policy briefing.

Albert probably is one of the hardest working members of Congress. He arrives on Capitol Hill at 7:30 a.m. and does not get back home for dinner with his wife, Mary, until 7:30 or 8 p.m.

The "workaholic" admits since both of their children are gone. Their son, David, is a sophomore at Harvard their daughter, Mary Frances, has her own apartment and teaches at the National Cathedral School.

Albert works seven days a week and is "very tired" now, according to his aides, because he has not taken a single day of vacation since Aug. 9 when he was catapulted into the No. 2 position for the nation's highest job.

His aides say he would take a vacation if the Secret Service agents did not have to go along. "But he does not think that the government should spend money protecting him while he is enjoying himself."

Analysis

Ever since then, there have been secret service agents stationed in the semi-private corridor leading to the private office. Intermingled with them are plain clothes men from the Capitol Hill police force.

Their function is to identify Congressional visitors. Albert staff people and others with appointments so they will be embarrassed by having to stop and identify themselves.

Secret Service agents stand guard outside the door of his apartment — in suburban Arlington, Va. They operate out of a command post they have set up in the apartment building.

Albert uses the same limousine he has always had as speaker and the same driver.

Appreciation told

Editor, Times-News:

As the family of Billy Bault, who was injured on the 14th of November in the Salmon Falls Creek Canyon, we wish to express our heartfelt thanks to all our friends and neighbors for their kind words and deeds in our time of crisis.

It was surely a miracle that our beloved son Ricky is alive and heading for a speedy recovery. Our special thanks go to the Bull Search and Rescue Unit for its prompt response and very efficient work in rescuing him.

May the good Lord and bless and keep all of you like he has the Bault family.

Speech clinic could help young man

By GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a young man, 23, rooming here. His parents are dead and his work pays only $60 a week out of which he must pay room and eat out.

He stammers terribly and has a "bad cleft" palate. He doesn't have enough money to pay surgeons' bills.

My grandfather who would be 120 years old now had a cleft palate and was an orphan. When she was 16, a doctor or doctors operated on her free of charge and she had a normal speech.

But it seems to me there should be some way for him to get help. It's sure a handicap to him. If they could do surgery that long ago they surely could now. We would appreciate some kind of help or how to go about it to get help. — Mrs. A.J.S.

It's obvious that this young man needs surgical help — and it seems to me that somebody should have started helping him a long time ago.

Yes, he could repair cleft palates a century ago. They could do it better, more, and usually do it years earlier in life. And correcting such a defect can have a great deal to do with his success in business and in life. Whether the cleft palate can be repaired at his age remains to be determined. A speech clinic could help his stammering.

Since this column appears in many states, I cannot offer any suggestion for getting help that will fit all localities, but in your state (among others) there are funds provided for crippled or afflicted adults. When they need medical or surgical care so they can perform the more effective members of society, arrangements can be made for them to pay what they are able, or to pay later when they are better able.

Your town is not very large; you may not have the community services and workers locally to steer this young man to the proper source of help. But you can find such help in the larger communities around you. A social services department in a hospital probably can give you (or him) some guidance. Check with your state representative as to what state aid is available. See whether the county welfare office can't do some useful screening.

You may well find a surgeon somewhere in your area who is willing to make arrangements within the young man's means for his future means but that is only part of the problem. The surgeon can't shoulder the responsibility of the hospital bill.

In passing, I have to wonder what kind of job your young man has. Is it a part-time job? Or how come he gets less than the legal minimum wage?

Yes, he needs some help.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I heard about some medicine on a Hollywood game show which makes hair grow faster.

I would like to know the name of the drug and any other information you can give. And where can the drug be obtained and how much does it cost? — M.F.

I'll tell you a secret, young friend. All sorts of nonsense and no-use creeps into some of these "game" shows, and it does no harm. I guess, as long as nobody takes it seriously.

But if you are really trying to track down whatever the TV person had in mind if anything — why not write and ask him?

Rocky plans trusts for financial investments

—NELSON A. ROCKEFELLER
plans investments into trusts?

(c) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller, on his first day of questioning by the House Judiciary Committee, said he had decided to place all the securities he owns in a trust and to have his trusts treated in the same manner.
Rockefeller made this declaration toward the start of the afternoon session of the hearings, after a morning of trial, and to have his trusts treated in the same manner.
Rockefeller made this declaration toward the start of the afternoon session of the hearings, after a morning of trial, and to have his trusts treated in the same manner.

...a suggestion from Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., that the committee might want to ask questions not only about his wealth, but about that of his three brothers and sister.
"My brothers and sister have been very tolerant about my political activities," he said. "I can't say all of them approve." His politicking, he said, was "a source of pride, particularly to the next generation."
"I would like to minimize the disruption of the family's lives. I would like to avoid involving them in what they think is my thing."
"It is not very enthusiastic."
"We must attempt to measure the network of Rockefeller family wealth," he said, "and place it into the perspective of both the American economy and the American political system."
Rockefeller, who followed Rodin's 10-minute statement with about 20 minutes' worth of excerpts from a lengthy statement he submitted to the committee, reacted strongly to

...dividuals is very small.
He contrasted his family's wealth favorably with that of the Arab oil exporting nations, saying "the Arabs are accumulating capital at the rate of $20 billion a week."
This, he said, "tends to the point of absurdity."
The Rockefeller holdings, "The Arabs in a week accumulate more money than my family has after three generations of work."
Another question—raised initially by Rodin and picked up by other committee members—involved the condemnation of the prison sentence of J. Edgar Morhouse in 1958 on the grounds of serious health problems. Morhouse, who was convicted of bribery, was convicted of bribery in 1966, had been New York State Republican chairman in the late 1950's, when Rockefeller was seeking the party's gubernatorial nomination.
Rockefeller said he had no knowledge that, as has been rumored, the initial attacks concerning Morhouse's conviction were either returned to the physicians or rewritten by a staff member to strengthen ...the argument that his life would be endangered by a prison term. Morhouse was found to be suffering from Parkinson's disease, and had recently undergone a colostomy for cancer of the bowel.

Both Rockefeller and his brother, Laurence Rockefeller, have given Morhouse substantial financial help.
Another subject that seemed likely to be a principal preoccupation of some committee members—and which was not central to the senate committee's interest—was the uprising in the state prison

...in Attica, N.Y., in the fall of 1971, in which 20 inmates and hostages were killed.
This issue was raised by Rep. John Cuyers, Jr., D-Mich., who picked up an earlier reference by Rockefeller to the 1950 campaign biography of Arthur J. Goldberg as the great ruler of his 34 years of public life. "I'd like to put that in the context of the massacre at Attica," Cuyers said.
Cuyers also asked about a $15,000 contribution in late 1971 to the Attica Employees Memorial Fund which he said was not included in any of the detailed lists of gifts submitted

Congress sinks vetoes, passes transit measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's veto of a transit bill was defeated but also forced House leadership to consider whether measures he had vetoed.
By a surprisingly large margin, 328-102, the House approved and sent to the White House Thursday an $11.4-billion six-year program to help states finance transit systems.
In a telegram from Capitol Hill, the president said he vetoed the bill because it would "authorize the construction of a transit system in the District of Columbia."
But the Senate dealt Ford two blows, overriding his veto on an expansion of the Federal Aid in Transportation Act, 78-101, and a vocational rehabilitation bill, 78-101.
Ford has now vetoed 12 bills, and three of the vetoes have been overridden.

Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said there was "no chance" of Senate action before Thanksgiving.
The Senate and House approved similar, although not identical, bills designed to regulate the way government gets information on individuals and how it is used. The House bill passed 355-1 and the Senate bill 84-14.
But another major measure, which congressional leaders hoped could be passed before the end of the year, ran into more trouble.
Congress passed a bill to provide for the construction of a new day-care center for the blind in Washington, D.C., but the Senate did not act on it.

US citizen access to data improves

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate action Thursday to override President Ford's veto of a "Sunshine" amendments to the Freedom of Information Act is expected to substantially strengthen citizen access to governmental documents.
Among the key changes made by the amendments is to allow the release of information that has been withheld from the public.
The amendments also provide for the release of information that has been withheld from the public.

...A provision to allow a federal judge to review classified foreign policy and national defense documents to determine whether they should be made public.
The establishment of strict time limits for an agency to respond to information requests for information, in most cases within 30 days.
And a provision to assess the legal costs of a successful citizen complaint against the government agency that has withheld information, in the first place. If a citizen's information request has his own court costs, even if successful.

Gem-state vote split

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Important senators voted 21 Thursday to override President Ford's veto of the Freedom of Information Act amendments designed to make access to public documents easier.
The Senate voted 65 to 27 to override — more than the 21 margin necessary.
Democrat in Sens. Frank Moss of Utah and Frank Church of Idaho voted to override, while Republican James McClure of Idaho voted to sustain the veto. Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, did not vote.

Particle test goal

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Scientists called matter with antimatter at 17 billion electron volts Thursday to find the second member of what could be a new family of subatomic particles.
A group of 11 physicists from two California laboratories participated in the experiments leading to the second discovery within two weeks of a particle with the unusual combination of large mass and long nuclear life.
One experimenter, Prof. Sidney Drell, a theoretical physicist at the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center, said the new particle could be the elusive "proton," a fundamental particle believed to exist but never found.

Missing memo details out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — E. Howard Hunt laid it out bluntly in a memo written just a week after Richard Nixon's landslide re-election in 1972: The Watergate burglars had kept quiet and now they wanted promised cash and pardons in return.

That long-missing memo, described as a "bombshell" by the prosecution when it surfaced under mysterious circumstances early this month, was laid before the jury Thursday at the conspiracy trial of five former Nixon aides accused of covering up the scandal.

One of the nastier moments of the bigging, Hunt listened impassively from the witness stand.

He was to be back for final cross-examination today and, after three wrap-up witnesses, the prosecution was expected to rest its case shortly after noon as the trial ends its eighth week.

Normally inscrutable, a number of jurors looked stunned as Assistant Special Prosecutor Richard Ben Venise slowly read aloud the three-page Hunt memo, accusing the Nixon administration of renegeing on its word.

"The defendants have followed all instructions meticulously, keeping their part of the bargain by maintaining silence," Hunt wrote on Nov. 4, 1972.

"Having recovered from postelection euphoria, the administration should now attach high priority to keeping its commitments and taking affirmative action in behalf of the defendants.

"Though warning there might be trouble ahead if the demands weren't met, the memo ended: 'The foregoing should not be misinterpreted as a threat. It is among other things a reminder that loyalty has always been a two-way street.'

The demands of Hunt and the others — and the efforts that had been made to meet them — obviously were a major worry to Nixon the following spring as the cover-up began collapsing and the White House scrambled to stave off disaster.

SEN. EDWARD M. KENNEDY QUITS DEMOCRATIC PARTY

Shutdown effects spreading

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the nationwide coal strike now certain to run into December, more layoffs are expected by railroads, steelmakers and other coal-related industries.

Government officials predict more than 300,000 workers will be out of jobs by early next month as a direct result of the mine shutdown — not counting the 120,000 striking miners.

United Mine Workers President Arnold Miller went into the West Virginia coalfields Thursday to lobby for the proposed three year contract. He called it an excellent offer, saying it was one the miners "should have had 20 years ago."

Miller also said the union's bargaining council would meet in Washington to decide when to go back into negotiations with the International Coal Operators Association.

The council completed its review of the tentative pact Wednesday and told UMW negotiators to ask for some new improvements before the contract was sent to the rank and file for ratification.

The strike began Nov. 12, causing immediate layoffs on coal-hauling railroads, and partial shutdowns in steel and coke plants.

Mondale withdraws from '76 chase

(The New York Times Service) WASHINGTON — Sen. Walter F. Mondale, at 39, announced Thursday he is withdrawing from the Democratic presidential nomination in 1976.

A year of exploratory travel, speeches and fund-raising had taught him, the 36-year-old liberal explained, "I do not have the overwhelming desire to be president which is essential for the kind of campaign that is required."

Following Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's decision two months ago not to seek the presidency, Mondale's surprise announcement seemed to widen the void in the left wing of the Democratic party, where competition was intense in the last two presidential campaigns.

But Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona was expected to become the first of several Democrats to enter the liberal vacuum with a formal declaration of his candidacy in New Hampshire this weekend.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, meanwhile, hired Robert J. Debe, the respected head lieutenant of Democratic party headquarters here, as the political director of a campaign that will become official after two years of careful preparation, in January.

Gov. Jimmy Carter in Georgia also understood to be drawing up plans for a presidential candidacy to be announced sometime before he leaves office in January.

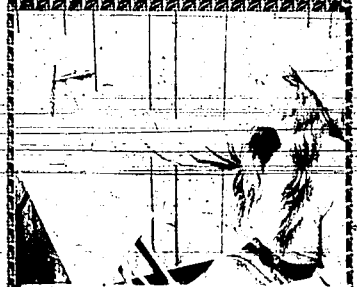

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama confirmed earlier this month that he is considering running for president again.

And Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. of Texas, who has spent most of this year in an open search for presidential support around the country, is thought likely to join the unusually early and public competition for the Democratic nomination.

But most Democrats, including the informal candidate, would agree with Louis Harris, the pollster, that the Democratic race is "in a state of total disarray."

Label irks prosecutors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presiding Judge John J. Sipes said Thursday he is being called a "paranoid judge" but the Watergate prosecutors objected to being called "liberal Democrats."

Thursday was one of the heaviest days of the Watergate conspiracy trial from the standpoint of evidence introduced. But it was one of the lightest from the standpoint of levity.

"With the jury of nine women and three men out of the courtroom, the prosecution and defense lawyers were discussing whether a reference to a paranoid judge and three self-admitted liberal Democrat prosecutors ought to be excised from a memo written by original defendant E. Howard Hunt Jr.

It has been called worse," Sipes said, adding he had no objection.

Defense lawyer John J. Wilson retorted that the reference to the Democratic prosecutors was correct "because that's what they are."

"Were," assistant Watergate prosecutor Richard Ben-Venise corrected.

"In a moderate Democrat," said chief trial prosecutor James F. Nease.

"I resent that because I'm a Democrat," said William S. Frates, attorney for defendant John D. Edley III, a former aide and previously for President Richard M. Nixon's friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Actually, Hunt's reference was to the original three Watergate prosecutors: Assistant U.S. Attorneys Earl G. Silbert, Seymour Gluzer and Donald Campbell.

Methodist convocation purpose 'world peace'

BOISE—A convocation on peace sponsored by the United Methodist Church, will be held Saturday afternoon here from 2 to 4 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church, 200 N. Main St.

Whoever is superintendent of the church's eastern district of the Oregon-Idaho conference, announced today.

Rev. Whitehead said the convocation is in response to action taken by the church's general conference in Atlanta, Ga., in April, 1972. He said the general conference asked that the subject of "peace and the development of people" be considered in local and area meetings.

The Oregon-Idaho conference, at its session in Boise last June set area observances for Nov. 22 in Caldwell and Nov. 23 in Salmon, Ore.

"The purpose is to determine what we, as individuals, can do in the furthering of world peace," Rev. Whitehead said. "Through workshop sessions and the use of special speakers we hope to come up with some definite decisions."

Guest speaker at the Caldwell session will be Dr. Charles

Wells of Princeton, N.J., editor and publisher of "Between the Lines," a twice-monthly publication presenting unclouded, non-partisan news reviews.

Also speaking will be Methodist Bishop Jack Troutman of Portland, Dr. George Wolff, political science professor emeritus at the College of Idaho, Caldwell, and Dr. Donald Billings, professor emeritus at Boise State University.

Others serving as resource persons for the workshop sessions include Ms. Dorothy Patch of Salem, chairman of christian social relations for United Methodist Women of the Oregon-Idaho conference, and Erwin Schuechter of the College of Idaho, a delegate from the Oregon-Idaho conference to the United Methodist general conference.

The sessions will be held on the College of Idaho campus beginning at 2 p.m. when Bishop Wolff will give the kickoff address. Workshop sessions will follow during the afternoon with Dr. Wells speaking at 7 p.m.

Attention to his address will be expressed by Dr. Walter D. Billings and Bishop Wolff.

Rev. Whitehead said anyone interested is welcome to attend. Reservations should be made by Dr. Wells' address.

Great Things Are Happening At FIRST ASSEMBLY OF GOD, BUHL, IDAHO

A Thief in the Night

A mighty motion picture about Bible prophecy. It shows what can happen when Jesus Christ returns. This exciting story centers around Patty, an average girl caught up in living for the present, with little concern about the future. What happens when this thinking finally catches up with her provides an action packed, unforgettable drama.

The last moving picture in Idaho's young man confronted by a deadly Asian cobra, a young girl's daring escape from jail, and a take-over by "The Imperium" that regards all who are not properly identified as enemies of the system.

Filmed on location in Iowa, this picture portrays with devastating reality the Biblical prediction, "There will be no place to hide." One does not merely view this film, he experiences it. Every thinking person will seriously consider its impact.

$2.2 million of heist recovered

CHICAGO (UPI) — Some $2.2 million of the $3.2 million taken in the largest cash heist in U.S. history was recovered Thursday night.

The money was found in a seven-foot-deep concrete hole in the basement of a home owned by a suspect's "grand" mother.

About 250 pounds of $10- and $20 bills from the Armored Express Vault burglary was carted away by agents of the FBI, the Illinois Bureau of Investigation, Chicago, police and Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

U.S. Attorney James H. Thompson said the recovery of the loot was one of the largest in the United States.

The cash, stuffed into five Army duffel bags, was found in a seven-foot-deep, three-foot-wide hole under five inches of chicken-wire-reinforced concrete in the basement of a one-family home owned by Dorothy Marrera.

She is the grandmother of Ralph Marrera, an Armored Express security guard accused of being the inside man in the Oct. 20 heist.

Thompson says Mrs. Marrera was not suspected of complicity in the crime.

A cardboard box hid the fresh concrete, Thompson said.

Previously, British Authorities on Grand Cayman Island in the British West Indies found about $200,000 when two suspects, Pasquale Charles Marzano and Luigi DeFonzo — the alleged mastermind of the heist — were arrested on the island Oct. 30.

The pair flew to the islands, reportedly carrying cash-laden suitcases, a few days after the burglary.

The FBI believes about $1.5 million of the loot is stored in the island's Swiss-style secret bank accounts, but a Grand Cayman judge ruled American authorities could not look into live bank accounts allegedly holding the money.

Only about $10,000 has been recovered from the island's banks.

The three other suspects in the heist are Marzano's cousin, William Anthony Marzano, Peter Gushki, a self-styled master criminal and James Mamatis.

The six are charged with burglarizing the vault, and replacing the stolen 800 pounds of cash with plastic bags containing gasoline and equipped with time fuses. The first bomb went off but fizzled from lack of oxygen.

Authorities said that had the firebombs done their job, the theft may well have been written off as a fire loss.

slumping sales, since their base pay is increased even though they aren't working.

Workers at Ford, General Motors and American Motors will have their pay increased 15 cents an hour, which will show up in their weekly paycheck.

At Chrysler, employees will begin accumulating the 15 cents an hour on Dec. 2 and could collect a maximum of $44.20 in March.

For the last three-month increase in cost of living, eligible Chrysler workers can receive a maximum check of $25.27 in mid-December.

Salaries workers, although they are not covered by the union contracts, will receive the same $44.20 payment next March.

Under cost of living clauses, wages are adjusted quarterly on the basis of 1 cent an hour for each change of 0.3 in the combined cost of 13-1/2 indexes in the United States and Canada.

MADRID — A court official in the northern city of Burgos has sentenced three Basque separatists to long prison terms for terrorism, it was announced here Thursday.

The verdict came in a trial of 11 Basque separatists on Tuesday. The court found Jose Maria Yzeta Echenique guilty of plots of terrorism involving two armed robberies, the destruction of a monument to the Spanish civil war dead, and arson and sentenced him to 20 years imprisonment.

Another defendant, Lorenzo Eugenia Lizaso, was found guilty of two terrorism charges and was sentenced to 53 years in jail.

The third defendant, Miguel Lacortan Mutilua, was also convicted on five charges of terrorism and given a 32-year sentence. All three were found to be members of the outlawed Basque separatist organization E.T.A., the initials for Euzko Ta Askatasuna.

Ford sets price drop

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. has provided the sagging auto industry with a psychological shot in the arm and in the process hopes to reduce its 100-day supply of unsold Pintos with a $150 price cut on the subcompact two-door model.

The price drop, which became effective today, was the first cut in prices by the industry, which increased sales on 1975 models by an average of about $400 a car.

Since then, sales have slumped to their worst point in a decade and up to 150,000 auto workers are idled.

Auto workers get pay hike

DETROIT (UPI) — A record cost-of-living figures from the labor department triggered an inflation-fighting $4 million-a-week pay raise that will be split among the nation's 663,000 auto workers.

The average hourly rate of the collar workers fortunate enough to be working will rise to $6.22, a record like the 15 cent an hour wage increase they'll receive beginning Dec. 2.

It was the highest cost quarterly boost since cost-of-living protection began in 1946.

The figures released Thursday showed auto workers have received cost of living increases totaling 66 cents an hour, including five cents carried over from old contracts, since the present labor pacts with the United Auto Workers were signed last year.

The cost of living increase also means higher supplemental unemployment benefits for the nearly 100,000 workers already idled because of slumping sales, since their base pay is increased even though they aren't working.

Workers at Ford, General Motors and American Motors will have their pay increased 15 cents an hour, which will show up in their weekly paycheck.

Pentagon eyes major cutback

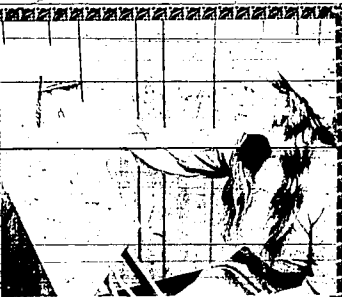

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Pentagon announced today it will eliminate 11,500 military jobs, 11,600 civilian jobs in a major cutback at Army, Air Force and Defense Supply bases around the nation.

While services at many bases will be only trimmed, large facilities will be closed entirely, Frankford said in Philadelphia, Pa., and Ellington Air Force Base in Houston, Tex.

The base actions have been under consideration for many months but such job eliminations, estimated to reach 70,000 nationwide, were still unclear a year ago, Capitol Hill from Congressional base districts are hit.

The Pentagon said the cutbacks would save $1.5 billion a year after they are completed in 1977 and are part of the continuing defense effort to divert resources from support and overhead activities to combat capability.

Defense action announced today does not affect the 2,000 U.S. bases in 43 foreign countries, the Pentagon said. It was working on another package of overseas base cutbacks.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I would like to nominate my ex-husband for "Heel of the Year." I divorced him 15 years ago, so he should marry another woman. At the time we had a 2-year-old son and a three-year-old daughter.

After the first year he forgot all about child support. I had a good job, so I never hounded him.

Last year, our son enlisted in the Air Force. Five months later he was killed in a training accident.

Abby, that boy saw his father maybe a dozen times in the last 15 years. His father never remembered his son on his birthday or Christmas either.

Guess who showed up at our son's funeral? His father! Now for the unbelievable part: my ex-husband told me at the funeral that he was "entitled" to half our son's G.I. insurance. (The insurance was made out to me.) I told him where to go, and he said he plans to sue me. And he probably will.

Have you ever heard anything to equal that? SHOCKED IN CHICAGO

SHOCKED IN CHICAGO

Real heel

DEAR SHOCKED: No. But if any of my readers have, they'll probably let me know. Does anyone else care to nominate a candidate for "Heel of the Year?"

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife are secretly married. My husband and I stood up for them. Brother is 37 and Ellen (made up name) is 27.

Brother and Ellen do not live together. She lives with her parents and he has his own apartment.

Brother has not yet told her parents that she is married, and she has given my brother orders not to give away the secret. I think she's ashamed of him, which really upsets me because he is a super guy.

They finally told my parents. Abby, they've been married 10 years. Last week my parents had a little anniversary celebration party for them. Her folks weren't invited because they still haven't been told about the marriage. It was all so one-sided and weird.

My "cousin" understand why Ellen won't tell her folks. Her mother and her brother have been married before. No racial or religious conflict and the brother doesn't have two heads. In fact, he is very handsome. What do you make of this? "B" IN SAN MATEO

DEAR "B": I don't know Ellen's reason for keeping her marriage a secret, but whatever it is, it's not your problem. It's hers and your brother's.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because although I am on good terms with my doctor and have known him for years I am ashamed to ask him this question.

Ten years ago my husband died. Last year I fell in love again, and the gentlemen is five years younger than I am. I am 68.

For the last 30 years I have had no menstruation, having had my menopause completed at age 53. Can you please tell me if there is any possibility of my becoming pregnant now? I am in good health and do not take any other than my age. I'm told I look about 60. Do not use my name or location.

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: No danger.

DEAR ABBY: What can you do for a guy whose new wife suddenly gets hung up on country and western music to the point where she won't listen to any other kind? She hates it. Every radio in the house is tuned to those country singers. I am being going down to the corner tavern to hear some decent music on the jukebox. LASSOED

DEAR LASSOED: Get yourself a pair of pick-toed boots, a yoked shirt, a roll-brim hat, and do-it-and away you go!

Anyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY, Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Sims' superstition succeeds acc. He had to attack diamonds. If East got in with the king, East would read the ace as a falcater from ace-king. He would not know if the king were a forced play; a falcater from king-queen or a normal play from ace-king. In any event Hal saw that his contract was safe unless East got in with the king of diamonds, shifted to a spade honor and found West with Hal's lucky ace of spades.

So at trick two Hal led the jack of diamonds; West right up with dummy's ace; picked East's singleton king and came home with the bacon.

The late P. Hal Sims was asked if he had a superstition. He said he had a superstition—feeling about some particular card. He thought a particular card was the ace of spades is lucky to me.

Today's hand illustrates another of Hal's superstitions. He believed that if you did not wear a certain opponent to get the lead, you should play him for holding a singleton king and refuse to finesse against his partner.

Playing at three notrump, Hal carefully won the heart lead with the king—the

BPW sets panel on rape

MISS ANDERSON plans rites

December date set

TWIN FALLS—The Magic Valley Business and Professional Women will hold a panel discussion Monday on "Prevention of Rape."

According to president-elect Beverly Whitehead, the discussion will be the first in a series of meetings to be held on prevention of rape by the Magic Valley BPW. The panel discussion will follow a most dinner at 7 p.m. in the Board Room of the Robergson Hotel.

The panelists, Mrs. Whitehead said, will give short presentations and then answer questions from the audience. Subtopics concerning rape and the prevention of rape.

Stockmen report beef prices off

DENVER (UPI) — The American National Cattlemen's Association (ANCA), in its monthly survey of 50 markets, said beef prices were down an average of five cents per pound.

But ANCA President Gordon Van Vleck said the trend of falling beef prices would be reversed unless ranchers put up more money for their cattle to pay for high costs of feed.

"If feed and other costs remain high, eventually supplies will cut back and prices will rise," Van Vleck said.

"At present, beef and other meats continue to be an exception in the inflationary trends in prices of other goods and other consumer goods," he said.

"The ANCA survey of prices through Nov. 14 said that the average price of five representative cuts of beef sold in supermarkets was $1.31 per pound, compared with $1.23 in October and $1.61 last November.

The ground beef average was down one cent to 11 cents per pound, round steak dropped four cents, sirloin steak was one cent lower, T-bone steak was down seven cents and chuck roast eased off one cent to 17 cents per pound.

The ANCA said the largest drops reported occurred in Chicago, Cleveland, Houston and Washington, D.C. "The cities with the highest average prices — all more than $1.00 per pound for the five cuts — were Atlanta, Baltimore, Detroit, New York, Omaha and Portland."

Van Vleck said the survey never is billed as scientific but is merely a timely report of what consumers are paying for five beef cuts on the second Thursday of each month in 19 cities.

Gem wheat growers elect Ashton man

BOISE (UPI) — An Ashton grain farmer, Max H. Parkinson, was elected president of the Idaho Wheat Growers Association Wednesday.

Parkinson succeeds George Brannimer of Lemore as president of the wheat growers.

Bob Stardi, Naperce was elected vice-president and Robert Geddes, Bend, is secretary. Don Howe, Bonners Ferry, was retained as director for the National Association of Wheat Growers while Bud Dunham, Nezperce, and Myron Sorenson, Madras, were named representatives to Western Wheat Associates.

"The association adopted a resolution asking the college legislature to fund the College of Agriculture at the level requested for 1975-76."

Card Meadows, American Falls area wheat grower and former state senator, was presented a distinguished service award by Charles Gabley, Lewiston, a member of the Idaho Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Meadows retired last summer from the Idaho Wheat Commission after 10 years service on that body.

Record payment out

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah-Idaho Sugar Co. has made the largest single payment to sugarbeet farmers in its 83-year history — 30 per cent smaller than last year.

The company mailed checks totaling $47.2 million to sugarbeet growers in Utah, Idaho, Washington and Oregon Wednesday — almost equalling the total payment for the 1973 crop according to U.S. President Ronald M. Reagan.

Utah farmers received $7.4 million, while the payment totaled $9.9 million in Idaho and $29.9 in the northwest states. The checks are for beets delivered up to Nov. 6.

Canon said additional payments will be made as the harvest continues and he predicted the total for the season could reach $70 million.

"The final payment for the 1973 crop totaled $23.6 million.

"Fewer acres of sugarbeets were planted last spring because the price of sugar at that time did not provide returns that were competitive with other farm crops," Cannon said.

But, he said, rising sugar prices have changed the picture dramatically. "With the incentive of higher prices, it now appears that sugarbeet acreage should return to normal next year."

'Goons' hit

KEENE, N.H. (UPI) — Farm union leader Cesar Chavez, assailing striking farm workers in the San Luis Valley area of Arizona as fanatics, a delinquent, campaign of lawlessness by "sheriff's deputies and goons" employed by Sunlight team growers.

Chavez, head of the United Farm Workers of America, Wednesday called for a Congressional investigation of the alleged attacks. He also urged Sunlight to "call off their hired guns on the strike scene."

Nyssa area beets dug

NYSSA, Ore. (UPI) — The sugar beet harvest in the Nyssa District of Madamated Sugar Co. was completed Wednesday, well ahead of the 1974 harvest which did not wind up until Feb. 8, 1974, with some beets left in the ground.

Gilbert Wells, manager of the Nyssa location, said a lack of frost cut the sugar content of the beets this year. There were 19,100 acres of beets harvested, down from 20,000 acres which Wells termed the average of a normal year such as last year.

Vines flown

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — A cargo of 70,000 non-dormant grape vines will be flown to Brazil Friday to help start a vine industry in the South American nation.

The vines, packed in 2,600 sealed cartons, cannot survive without moisture more than 72 hours, making the shipment a race against time.

Family gets together

THE Houge family — Royce and Millie and sons Jeff and Bob — St. Edward's Catholic Church, work on their Thanksgiving project for the family program from the Paulist Press.

Family projects planned

TWIN FALLS — Fifteen families from St. Edward's Catholic Church are involved in the family program from the Paulist Press.

This program was started again this fall under the direction of Sister Jo Hill.

The families meet one Sunday a month for nine months from 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. at St. Edward's Parish Hall for the first part of the program.

Meeting families break into grade level groups — 3 and 4-year-olds, primary, intermediate and junior high.

Senior high and adults meet together.

One theme is used for all groups and after the separate study, each family is reunited to discuss what each individual member gained from the first group. Then each family works together on a project that the family can present as their contribution to the liturgy.

A family Mass following the theme for the month takes place after the workshop. The afternoon ends with a potluck dinner.

Bible cynics subject of Adventist lessons

TWIN FALLS — Bible cynics are failures in their "paganism," declares Doug Schmedel, Sabbath school superintendent at the Twin Falls Seventh-Day Adventist church.

Commenting on a series of lessons under study at the church this month, Schmedel stated that, "through the centuries cynics have attempted to destroy the effectiveness of the Bible, but they fail utterly when they look at what the Bible does to lives."

"People who read and study the Bible are the best proof that it is the Word of God."

"Probably the harmful attitude toward the Bible," the superintendent said, "is the feeling that one can accept some portions of God's word and reject others."

The Adventist Church teaches that the Bible is true with a single theme redemption or salvation through God's love and Jesus the Christ.

Schmedel expressed concern for many young people today "who have set aside the word of God and adopted mystical religions simply because they are 'in'."

Instead of searching the scripture for themselves, they condemn it as empty because it has done nothing for their parents.

"What they forget is that their parents also set aside the Bible, letting others tell them what it had to say rather than studying real Christian faith for themselves."

"Parents will have a lot to answer for when God asks them where their children are in the final judgment."

The superintendent stated that the Bible describes 1975

Presbyterians plan annual Christmas bazaar

KETCHUM — The second annual Christmas bazaar by the Ketchum-Sun Valley Presbyterian Church will be Dec. 5th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Our Lady of the Snow Catholic Church, Ketchum.

Mrs. Ed Mount and Mrs. Neal Brutsche, co-chairwomen.

A fun day is planned for all with booths set up with a variety of stuffed toys, white elephants, homemade pastries: candy, jelly and jams and other foods.

Aluminum pegs, dried flowers and arrangements, potted plants and herbs, homemade quilts and pillow covers, placemats and numerous other articles, Christmas ornaments, wreaths and stockings, and lots of surprise items will be offered.

Mrs. Kay Waidman, chairman of luncheon foods, invites all to come for lunch or an afternoon snack. Sandwiches, cookies, cake, candy and coffee will be available.

Other committee chairwomen for the occasion are as follows: Mrs. Jim Glenn, toys; Mrs. Tom Lautzenhiser, food items; Mrs. Loren Adams, white elephants; Ms. Elsie Lester, dried flower arrangements; Ms. Mollie Hecht, posters; Paula Mullins, youth posters and there; Ms. Nancy Curtis, decorations; Mrs. Bob Mullins, gift table; Mrs. Newell Wood, publicity and Mrs. Glenn Brown, gift drawing.

A handmade quilt made by the ladies of the church will be a highlight drawing of the day.

Proceeds from the bazaar will be used to help build the new Presbyterian Church which is now under construction on an acre of ground donated by the Bigwood Corp. next to the Warren Springs Bridge. Completion date is set for Christmas, 1974.

Mormon temple dedicated

WASHINGTON, APD — More than three quarters of a million people toured the first modern Mormon temple built in the West Coast before the building was closed to the public, according to a church spokesman.

Beginning Tuesday with an address and dedicatory prayer by President Spencer W. Kimball of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, the $14 million dollar structure was dedicated exclusively for Mormon sacred ceremonies. Thereafter, only church members will be permitted to enter the temple.

Church spokesmen said 750,000 visitors toured the building during the six-week period it was open to the public. It is the 10th temple built by the Mormons and the first one constructed west of the Mississippi River in more than 100 years.

Officials of the 3.3 million member denomination estimated that 4,000 church members attended each of the 10 dedication services over a four day period.

Mormons believe that only in such temples and only by the authority of the church's priesthood can marriages be performed that will endure beyond death and throughout eternity. A church spokesman said today that the marriages already were scheduled for the first week after dedication of the new temple.

2 men arrested

TWIN FALLS — Two men were arrested Thursday by Twin Falls County sheriff's officers and charged with first degree burglary.

Hold under $1,000 bond pending court appearances later today were Charles E. Lopez, 33, and Danny Morton Collier, 25, both Twin Falls. Officers said they are charged with burglarizing a rural home several weeks ago.

Three Eiler juveniles and one 36-year-old have been named in warrants issued by the sheriff's office in connection with bicycle thefts from Twin Falls, Eiler and Hild, and the burglary of the Filer Elementary School. They are expected to be arrested later today.

Retrial to be scheduled

POCATELLO (UPD) — After eight hours of deliberation, the jury in the assault trial of C. T. Thomas failed to reach a decision and returned without a verdict at midnight Wednesday.

Hannock County Prosecutor Garth Patcock said a retrial for Thomas, 43, of Pocatello, will be scheduled.

Thomas is charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder stemming from the shooting Jan. 23, 1973, in the Jim Dandy Cafe in Pocatello. A 34-year-old Montana woman died a week later from gunshot wounds because of the shooting.

Accident claims Shelley man

GEORGETOWN, Idaho (UPI) — A 19-year-old Shelley man was killed when an irrigation canal wall collapsed near Georgetown, the victim was identified as Boyd S. Herlson.

Herlson and Richard Petersen, also Shelley, were working at a depth of about 12 feet when the sides of the canal collapsed and buried them.

Petersen was rescued, although he was hospitalized for shock. His condition was reported as good.

Church urges job application

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho students are urged by Sen. Frank Church to apply soon if they want jobs next summer with the federal government.

Church said "summer jobs with the federal government are filled by competitive examination." He said students who apply by Dec. 31 will be tested in January and those who submit their applications by Jan. 15 will be tested in February.

Church emphasized that no application for summer employment will be accepted if postmarked after Jan. 17.

Driving hazard

BOISE (UPI) — An old Ada County landfill has caught fire, and is emitting foul smelling smoke and causing a hazard to anyone driving across the area.

Ada County commissioners have agreed to uncover the burning garbage at the dump between Hillsdale and Gowen Road East of the airport.

Cornerer position studied

NANPA, Idaho (UPI) — The corner-elector for Canyon County said during his election he was not qualified for the job, now, he wants the position of cornerer abolished.

Dr. Thomas M. Dondelinger, a Nanpa pathologist, said the position of cornerer is "an ancient institution, that's been outdated because of progress in medical-legal techniques. An untrained cornerer simply can't do the job."

He said law enforcement and sometimes even litigants in civil cases suffer when untrained or untrained deaths are investigated.

As an alternative to cornerers in Idaho, Dondelinger said the Society of Idaho Pathologists and the Idaho Medical Association would like to see a state medical examiner's office established headed by a forensic pathologist, an expert trained in legal as well as medical investigations.

Mayor favors annexation

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Pocatello Mayor Bill Huskelly says he favors proposed annexation of an industrial area west of the city for the municipal water plant.

He said "if we are going to be the nucleus of our industry, it's going to have to have control of the industrial area."

The industrial area includes a cement plant, the EMC plant, Simplot's phosphate processing installation, the old airport and the new municipal airport.

Group opposes storage plan

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Water Users Association is opposing the use of South-Eastern Idaho for the burial of nuclear wastes from other parts of the nation.

"If the Snake River Plains aquifer becomes contaminated, we may as well abandon the industrial and agricultural capabilities of the state," said Sheri L. Chapman, executive director of the association.

In a letter to Rep. (D) Bruce R. Bennett, the association asked his support against storage of nuclear waste in the Idaho Nuclear Engineering Laboratory West of Idaho Falls.

GOP official raps Andrus

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls Republican official has charged that Gov. Cecil D. Andrus failed to represent Idaho's interest at a recent Democratic Governors conference by helping to draft a proposal for wage-price controls.

The resolution, drafted at the conference in Hilton Head, S.C., also called for the removal of Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

Laird Noh, Republican Central Committee chairman, said according to a wire service report Andrus was one of three governors to draft the proposal.

"The nation's cattle industry has not forgotten the role which price controls played in disrupting livestock markets which led to the disastrous price market prices and over production which is forcing many cattle producers out of business."

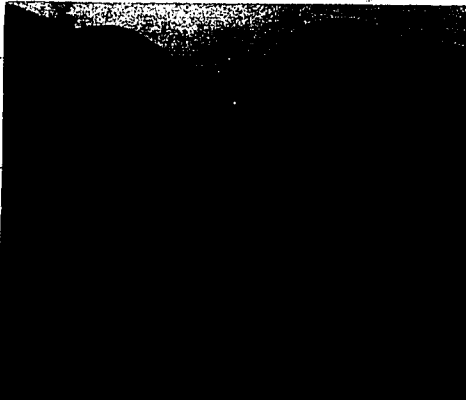

"The history of price controls for both the nation and agriculture is clearly disastrous. Controls are proposed as a palliative expediency and not as a sensible economic policy," Noh commented in a news release.

Noh voiced support for Butz, saying Butz "is one of the few men in government in recent history with sufficient backbone to stand up and support the farmers' needs for free markets and reasonable prices." Butz is supposed to visit Boise where local government should play a bigger role in agriculture.

According to Noh, Andrus has "consistently produced a poor record for agriculture and was about the only western governor who did not bother to submit a statement in behalf of agriculture before a Senate agricultural hearing held last summer in Salt Lake City."

TWIN FALLS FIREFIGHTERS work to extinguish smoldering blaze at Keystone Seed Co. Thursday. The fire, which resulted in heavy smoke forcing firemen to don breathing masks, destroyed 48,000 paper bags, with damage estimated at $10,000. Received Tuesday, the bags had been on order for 11 months. Firemen are investigating the cause of the blaze.

TF receives top honors

GOODING — Twin Falls took top honors in the Future Farmers of America parliamentary procedure contest here Thursday night.

Of eight teams participating, Twin Falls placed first and in riding of team chairman, Victor Watkins, Twin Falls team also received the top rating. The Twin Falls team placed second in the greenhand contest.

The results are Twin Falls, first; Hagerman, second; Blaine, third; Castleford, fourth; Jerome, fifth; Gooding, sixth; Shoshone, seventh; and Filer, eighth.

The team chairmen receiving the top five places in the ratings received small trophies for their efforts. The chairmen placed as follows: Victor Watkins, Twin Falls, first; John Moody, Gooding, second; Mark Bright, Jerome, third; Darrell Wetstein, Blaine, fourth; Bonnie Langh, Shoshone, fifth; Kevin Kramer, Castleford, sixth; Ross White, Hagerman, seventh; and Donah Hatter, Filer, eighth.

The parliamentary procedure contest is designed to test the knowledge of the teams' members on the proper use of parliamentary order, running a meeting, discussion, debate and proposing and passing legislation, according to Gayle Sore, instructor at Shoshone High School.

A greenhand contest was also conducted and team ratings were as follows: Gooding, first place, Twin Falls, second; Wendell, third; Hild, fourth; Jerome, fifth; Castleford, sixth; Shoshone, seventh; Hagerman, eighth; Kimberly, ninth; Carey, tenth; Filer, eleventh; and Camas, twelfth.

The top ten individuals in the greenhand contest were John Holloway, Twin Falls, first; Susan Paulin, Jerome, second; Cody Knight, Gooding, third; Brett Hauey, Twin Falls, fourth; Wayne Hubler, Wendell, fifth; Marty Short, Gooding, sixth; Ann Lape, Gooding, seventh; Jim Benson, Jerome, eighth; Ronald May, Wendell, ninth; and Kelly Bartlett, Hild, and Roy Henkle, Wendell, tied for tenth.

Small trophies were given to the top five individuals in the greenhand contest.

Serr said "greenhands" is the name given to first-year FFA students and the contest was intended to test their knowledge of the history and function of the organization and their understanding of parliamentary procedure.

More development sought in Blaine

By BART QUENNEILL
Times-News writer

HARLEY — One more Blaine County rancher between Hildley and Bellevue has expressed interest in developing his land.

A Boise attorney, Don Kinckreim, representing Steve E. Eiler, told county planning and zoning commission members Thursday his client wished a medium density zoning on his land near the Wood River.

Eiler owns a ranch immediately south of Friedman airport runway. Kinckreim said his client would like to see his higher level land, which can be seen from U.S. Highway 93, zoned low density residential.

However on Eiler's lower benchland, now used for pasture near the river, he wants to place clusters of homes with three or four units together, Kinckreim said.

Kinckreim said Eiler would hold the upper land open but plan eventually to make it into a residential subdivision. In addition, Kinckreim said his client would prefer a commercial or industrial zone around the south end of Friedman Airport.

The meeting was one of many to get input from ranchers and landowners before the Blaine County comprehensive plan and map is approved.

County planner David Vhay explained to the small group how the county would have to be down-zoned to meet a projected population

The other alternative would be to allow the present zoning, but develop only 20 per cent of the property. Vhay explained the 20,000 figure was not a limit but a design figure to shoot at during the planning stages.

Kinckreim immediately jumped on Woodside developer Cultivar Properties, Inc., snatching up a huge share of the available land, which doesn't seem fair to me.

Wally Young, Broadford landowner, told the group his ranch which would primarily be zoned in the future as low density residential. He said the land was a good for agriculture and is being used for pasture now. His land is north of the Star Bridge.

Vhay outlined the intent of the plan to save as much existing agricultural land as possible. He said the plan anticipated a mixture of low residential use and agricultural transition land in the Broadford area.

He said a technical review board would decide which areas in the Broadford area would be safe to build on.

The next meeting will be at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the county office for residents from Bellevue to Magic Reservoir, including the Pocatello area. That meeting will include the huge 2,000-acre proposed residential development by Bart Halliday near the Bellevue triangle.

Next Wednesday, landowners from Carey and the lower county will meet at 1 p.m. at the county office.

Sewage sludge use eyed

The EPA says the unpasturized sludge is a potential disease carrier. It could carry harmful organisms or worms. So their regulations read that the sludge when used as fertilizer "shall be..."

But an EPA official said he "didn't think" an individual who chose to use the sludge on his own lawn or vegetable garden could be pressed to use only pasteurized sewage material.

Of course, if he created another nuisance factor because of an adjacent landowner's ground, the EPA could get him for that.

Fullmer insists the product is a superior fertilizer. Sludge has more nitrogen than cow manure, Fullmer said. It has been used on the lawn and gardens of this area's own plant nurseries.

The nutrient content in sludge varies, depending on how it is treated. One analysis of dairy digested sewage shows 2.2 per cent nitrogen, 2 per cent phosphoric acid, 1 per cent potash and about 10 per cent organic matter.

But the EPA official said that sludge which had been treated by incinerating active microorganisms showed about 5 per cent nitrogen, between 2 and 5 per cent phosphoric acid, and up to 2 per cent potash.

Sludge not used on the soil course is trucked to other public lands, or used in land-fill projects, Milar said.

Despite tight $ crunch, builder employment up

Because FFA is requesting cutbacks in square footage and an extra in houses it mortgages.

"The price of the home doesn't justify the price you have to have out of a home to make any profit," Graybill said.

The cost to the builder for a 1,000-square-foot home is about the same as for a 1,200-square-foot home, he said, even though the buyer pays less for the smaller home.

To build homes for FFA's specifications and assure buyers for their product, "small" have to operate on less margin of profit," Graybill said.

"If this keeps up, why is it able to hurt us real bad," he said. "We've got our fingers crossed the prime interest rate will go down. If it continues it will have a bad effect on the home building industry."

Ed Butts, owner of Design Marketing in Twin Falls said, on the other hand, that his business was up 25 percent more than last year.

"We're having the best year we've ever had," Butts said. "Design Marketing this year built 14 condominium units and 5 single residences, he said, and plans to expand the condominiums to 32 units.

"Nobody is having trouble getting loans if you're willing to pay the rate loans that are available," Butts said.

Loan rates as low as 8 1/2 per cent are available with special government programs through some local banks, he said.

"The only thing that has hurt Twin Falls has been the reluctance to pay the higher interest rates," Butts said.

Butts said the number of new structures in Twin Falls this year "will at least equal or increase of last year." The demand "is very good" in Twin Falls though "inflation has caused a lot of people not to build who might have, so we don't have the increase we should have had."

Butts is optimistic about the construction trade in Twin Falls.

"Twin Falls is one of the best places in the nation to do business right now. Most businesses are off except in areas where you have a good farm-based economy," he said.

Dale Patterson, manager of Boise Cascade in Twin Falls, said that though Boise Cascade was limited mainly to FFA-financed housing, "we're just as busy as we were at the first of the year."

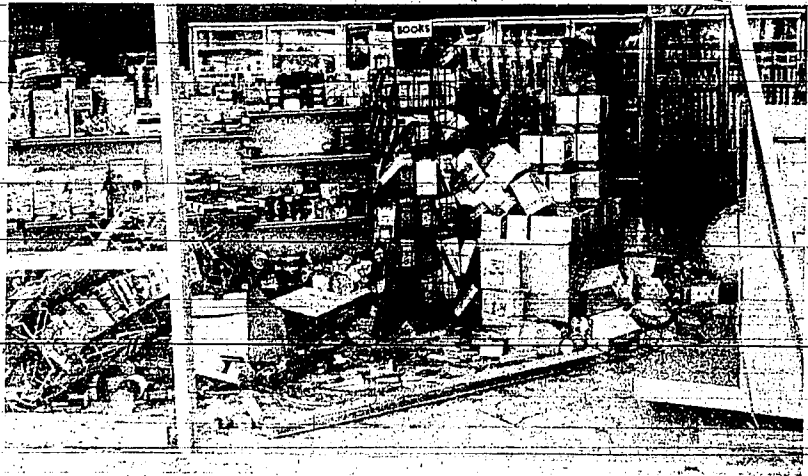

Patterson's dealership was authorized at the beginning of the year, and the cost of the homes has already increased 10 per cent.

With several increases coming in the cost of building materials, Patterson said, "I wouldn't be surprised to see another price increase at the beginning of the year."

Steve Howe, Cascade's manager in Twin Falls, said, "I don't know where we're going to cut back at this point."

Though the cutbacks haven't affected the quality of the homes, he said, "I see in those situations that homes probably won't increase in value quite as fast."

Though tight money is limiting the types of homes Boise Cascade can produce, "the market is here," Patterson said. "As far as we're concerned I don't think we're going to be hurt too much in general."

Car brakes fail

DAMAGE estimated at $1,500 resulted to the 7-11 Store at Filer Avenue and Washington Street North Thursday morning when a vehicle driven by Nancy Grubbs, 18, drove through the store building. Miss Grubbs told officers the brakes on her car failed. She and a passenger, Kathy Hughes, escaped injury.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1974.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A wonderful day, evening to organize a campaign which will enable you to bring about successful outcomes to your projects. Think in terms of long-range, not just temporary, success.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get suggestions for your assignment from the most powerful persons you know. Evening is ideal for fun with romantic tie.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Discuss future with good friends and have a good time as well. Accept some invitation for evening, or entertainment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Contact the powerful persons you know and get them to give you the support you need of whatever kind. Get into civic matters.

MOON CHILDREN (Jun. 10 to July 21) Study new ideas, conditions to know what is best to do, then fill speed ahead. Meet new associates of different experience.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to better terms with both debtors and creditors and then study into more up-to-date methods to become more efficient.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Making appointments with all who can help you to greater success in the future is wise now. Take everything in your stride.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23) Find the right articles to add to your home that will make it colorful, charming. Add to personal wardrobe, also, within budget.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Good day for enjoying yourself at whatever outlets most appeal to you. Reach a better accord with mate for greater harmony.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to please kin more, understand their desires. Extend invitations to bigwigs and entertain them on a royal basis.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Travel wherever you will be able to get the data vital to your wellbeing in the future, in business or personal.

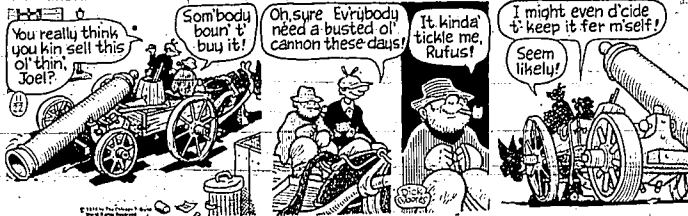

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Study ways to improve your financial position. Have repairs made to property. Stick to practical approach and all is fine.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Exchange ideas, favors with all you contact today, for satisfying time. Any amusement outlets will meet with real success.

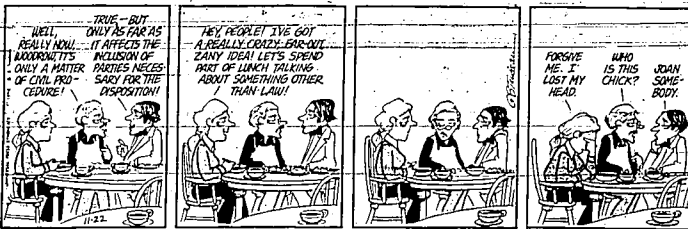

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be a born engineer and will do well in anything attempted in life because of the ability to plan well first, then carry through in steadfast fashion to the minutest detail. There is a desire to help humanity at large, so want education for some connection with the government. Much success in this chart and happiness in marriage.

Those matrimonial experts who study the statistics contend divorce is most likely to occur, if ever, in the second year of marriage.

DO YOU BUY the claim that your facial characteristics indicate something about your personality? Neither do I. Still, one who purports to know "contends gracefully-curved eyelashes almost invariably are a sign of a calm and relaxed person."

A PHYSICAL CULTURE expert contends your best sleep comes when you lie without a pillow flat on your back with your feet apart and your hands palms up at your sides. Maybe so, don't know. However, it's common knowledge that it's also the position in which you're most likely to snore. Did I tell you the best cure for snoring? Sew an empty thread spool in the middle of the back of your pajamas.

Q. "Has any of our presidents ever used a pseudonym while in office?"

A. Not exactly. Dwight David Eisenhower was born David Dwight Eisenhower. Hiram Ulysses Grant changed his moniker to Ulysses Simpson Grant. And Stephen Grover Cleveland, Thomas Woodrow Wilson and John Calvin Coolidge dropped their first names. That's about it.

ASTEROGNOSIS, that's the name of one peculiar human abnormality. It's rare. The patient afflicted with same can't recognize the shape of anything just by touch alone. For instance, a pencil feels no different than a pineapple.

YAWNS

Once wrote that science still doesn't know why yawns are contagious. And wrote further that the eyes of a person who yawns usually start to sparkle immediately thereafter. And wrote finally that just about anybody who read the foregoing facts would yawn within the next minute or so. Numerous kindly customers later told me it was true, that they yawned on cue as suggested. That was good. But several said it was nothing new, they always yawned when they read this piece. That was bad.

DID YOU KNOW that mother ducks talk to their ducklings even before said offspring are hatched? And those ducklings talk back, evidently. So recent studies seem to prove. Even though put into an incubator a few hours before hatching, those ducklings later seem to recognize their mama by the noises she makes.

Scalpers reap harvest in OSU-Michigan tilt tickets

By United Press International

The definition of a "big game" can't always be determined by what transpires on the field.

In some cases, the selling can be "bigger" than the reality of combat.

Such a scene will take place at Columbus, Ohio, Saturday when "Ohio State" hosts Michigan in what may be the Game of the Year—both on the field and off. It is being preceded by such a frantic scramble for tickets that one hopeful Ohio State fan is reported to have placed a $10,000 order for a pair of seats and another "coed" actually sold three tickets for $500.

At whatever price they pay, there will be a noisy, holiday-high crowd of 60,000 fans in attendance, plus untold millions of freeholders who will watch on television. In addition to a highly-prized victory, at stake for Michigan and Ohio State will be the Big Ten Conference championship and a Rose Bowl berth.

It will be difficult for the combatants to live-up-to the pre-game hysteria in terms of excitement, but if two teams are capable of putting on such a show, it is Ohio State and Michigan. Both clubs are loaded with talent, the intensity is there and the emotion is at a fever-high pitch.

The Wolverines... still steaming over last year's decision by the Big 10 to bypass them in favor of Ohio State as the conference representative to the Rose Bowl, carry a 10-0 record into this season and the No. 2 position in the national rankings.

The Buckeyes are ranked third with a 9-1 record, the loss coming in a highly contraversial 19-13 decision to Michigan State two weeks ago. Ohio State, with the home field advantage, has been listed as an eight-point favorite, but the two rival coaches discount the spread.

"There's no such thing as an underdog in this game," said Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, and Woody Hayes of Ohio State responded, "Yes, and I both know that it's going to be a tossup out there."

Top-ranked Alabama is idle this week in preparation for next Friday's doughnut bowl with sixth-ranked Auburn, but several other "traditional rivalries and bowl berths will be decided on the first-big weekend of the 1974 college football season.

At Los Angeles, seventh-ranked Southern California is a 15-point favorite over UCLA, tied for No. 17 in the ratings, with the Pacific Eight crown and the lost role in the Rose Bowl at stake. This game also will be televised nationally.

The Big Eight Conference title will be decided at Lincoln, Neb., with fifth-ranked Nebraska hosting unranked Oklahoma. The Sooners, who are unranked and unable to go to a post-season bowl because of their probationary status, are favored by 14 points.

Elsewhere, unranked Yale is a 5 1/2-point favorite at Harvard in a battle for the Ivy League crown, Tennessee is a 1 1/2 point pick at home over Kentucky in their Liberty Bowl duel, Purdue is a 1 1/2 points at home over Indiana, Illinois is a 1 1/2 points at home over Northwestern, Mississippi State is 7 1/2 at home over Mississippi, Oregon State is 11 at home over Oregon, Washington is picked by 1 1/2 points at Washington State, and California is 3 1/2 at home over Stanford.

'Angel' appears in Florida

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI)—A Coena Beach banking investor showed up at the Florida Blazers Philadelphia Bell football game with a check for $1.5 million Thursday and said he was helping the Florida team out of its financial troubles because "the kid-like football."

Robert D. Prentice of Coena Beach Mortgage Co. said he was representing a group of investors ready to pump $1 million into the Blazers franchise.

Prentice said the other investors were Robert A. Hook, one of his business partners, and Mrs. Nancy Taylor of Coena Beach and her two sons, Law, a student at Maryville College in Tennessee, and Coleman, a student at Breckard Community College.

Prentice denied reports that Arab oil money was being used to bail out the Blazers.

"I wouldn't know anything about that," he said. "The same one who wrote that must write fairy tales."

Asked why he and his group was willing to spend so much money to pay off the team's debts and 12 weeks in back pay—totaling about $1.5 million—Prentice said "my kids like football."

Post-recruiting polygraph tests eyed for coaches

DALLAS (UPI)—Oklahoma Sooners football coach Barry Switzer and Texas Longhorn coach Darrell Royal, longtime opponents on the football field, have challenged each other to a "lie detector" test.

Times Herald said Thursday, Switzer, 57, said he was an advocate of coaches and assistant coaches submitting to polygraph tests at the end of each recruiting season to settle whether NCAA violations had taken place, and that he would do so.

As reported in a column by Times Herald executive sports editor Blackie Sherrod, Royal said Thursday he and Switzer should answer such questions about "the past" recruiting season.

"The lie detector test would eliminate a lot of rumors plugging into the open any possible rules-breaking in recruiting," Sherrod quoted Royal as saying. "Just to eliminate rumors would be a great boost to college football."

"To speed up Coach Swit-zer's proposal and get it into action, I recommend that the coaches of Oklahoma and Texas submit to a lie detector test based on the recruiting season just passed.

Coach Switzer and I could submit five questions each, which would compile a test of 10 questions to be given to each member of the staffs who is involved in recruiting. It would be okay with me for the test to be given in Oklahoma City by an operator mutually agreed upon.

"If Oklahoma and Texas take this aggressive step now we could put Coach Switzer's proposal into action in maybe a full year quicker. Hopefully, entire conferences would follow suit after this next recruiting season."

"But if all we do is talk about it, now, it'll be a year or two before it would come about. Somebody's got to start it and I'd like to see Oklahoma and Texas take the lead. Any school that sees fit can join us."

Oklahoma is serving a two year probation for a recruiting violation committed by coaches who are no longer at the school.

"Switzer's initial suggestion was to ask a coach, 'In your knowledge, have you, your assistants or any of your alumni ever offered any illegal inducement to a prospect?'"

Royal said he would include the top schoolboys and perhaps some alumni in those to be given the polygraph.

Switzer, in a prepared statement, did not comment on Royal's attempt to get a polygraph on last season's recruiting efforts. But he did say he wanted the test to involve schools other than just Texas and Oklahoma.

"Darrell Royal and I discussed the possibility of a proposal to the NCAA for polygraphic examinations. Since my submission to a polygraphic examination last year, I have made a proposal to the Big Eight Conference, as Darrell has told me he had made to the Southwest Conference about the possibility of polygraphic examinations as a deterrent to illegal recruiting," he said.

Switzer said he also spoke with an NCAA council member and wrote the NCAA, with the suggestion also said he had been told that the test would have to be voluntary and therefore would not be effective since only a few would volunteer.

"This then serves no purpose because it should be administered on a broad scope of the NCAA schools—not just a few," Switzer said.

The NCAA council member suggested that the Big Eight and Southwest Conferences get together so I suggest that "commissioners" Chuck Nemas of the Big Eight and Cliff Spoeple of the Southwest Conference get together to see if both conferences can be leaders in the possibility of this proposal. This is not just for two, individual schools like Oklahoma and Texas."

Pass play broken up

ORLANDO, Fla.—UPI—A tenuous Florida Blazers defense rang the Philadelphia Bell 18-3 in a World Football League playoff game Thursday night while a rich herd jumped the Blazers' cash registers to the tune of $1.5 million.

Playing without pay for 12 weeks, the Blazers made a step closer to the World Bowl with quarterback Bob Davis

Blazers belt Bell in WFL playoffs

A total of 9,712 paying customers watched the nationally televised game in a chilly Tangerine bowl.

The Blazers, champs of the league's East Division with a 14-6 record, got on the scoreboard early when safety Grey Latta with a 54-yard touchdown pass in the third quarter, and in the final period, Dave Strick kicked a 24-yard field goal.

Carson in the third period moved his team to Florida's one-yard line, but wound up back at the 42 on penalties and a couple of sacks.

The Bell's Jerry Warren missed one field goal attempt from 27 yards in the first quarter but found the mark on a 37-yarder in the second period for his team's only

Braves win

TOLEDO (UPI)—Bob McVoor scored 28 points and pulled down 15 rebounds, and Jack Marin and Randy Smith each connected for 16 points to help the Buffalo Braves to a 99-95 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Thursday night.

The victory was the Braves 10th in a row and kept them on top of the Atlantic Division while the loss kept the 76ers mired in the division basement.

Steve Mix led the 76ers with 26 points, 17 of them in the final quarter, while Doug Collins scored 17.

Cavs and Carr drop Warriors

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI)—Austin Carr held only four points in the first half, but in the end of 44 from the field in overtime in 22 second half points Thursday night to spare the Cleveland Cavaliers to a 106-74 NBA victory over the Golden State Warriors.

The Cavs, who left from the opening, 10-11, watched the Warriors cut the lead to 33-27 with 4:24 left in the third quarter but Carr and Bobby Smith combined for 10 straight points in the next two minutes as the Cavs breezed to their eighth victory of the season.

Buhl pins hopes on increased quickness

BHM—A tougher schedule may offset an increase in speed for the Buhl Indians this year, Coach Jerry Koester, entering his second year at the Indian helm, believes any possible can be very representative by year's end.

Coach Koester lost four men off last year's line 19-5 claim that peeked up some badly needed height help with the transfer of 6-5 John Donkersloot from Jerome.

Looking at the year Koester said, "I don't think we can approximate that 19-5 record. We feel the schedule is a little tougher in that we'll be playing three A-1 schools. Potentially by the end of the season we could be better than last year."

"That's because I think we have a few more skills, mostly better quickness, that will make us more flexible," he continued.

Because of the quickness dearth, the Indians conceded a 19-5 record to Jerome, and concentrated on defending the opponent's basket. "We will contest defensively on more of the floor this season," Coach Koester promised.

He lists guard depth as one of the team's strengths.

Buhl will open with eight lettermen and five men off last year's mainly untested Jayvee Tallist is Donkersloot, who started for two seasons at Jerome, and all 6-5 should be the center of the rebounding in the front. Forward is sophomore, Carl Schmuckpepper who cracked the first five last season. He is 6-3. Also, 6-3 is Dell Adams who had some starting assignments last year and will swing between forward and center.

Another starter back, at Jerome, is Tom Carson, 6-10, and Pat Hamilton who did a lot of rebounding despite his modest rebounding height.

The other lettermen are Tom Carson, 5-7 guard; Jerry Hills, 5-11 guard who also started at times; Rick Kester, 6-0 guard; and Greg Thompson, 6-2 forward. All but Schmuckpepper are seniors.

Gaining for their first letters are Tom Carson, 6-10 forward; Brad Helwig, 5-11 guard; Steve Hill, 5-10 guard; Craig Kester, 6-2 forward; Nathan Perkins, 6-0 center and Chuck Stoddard, 6-2 forward.

Buhl has also 7-3 Mike for one game, A-1 Booneville on a home-and-home basis and A-2 Kuna this season.

The Indians also will join with Burley in a prep-college, doubleheader at College of Southern Idaho Jan. 22.

The Buhl schedule includes: Dec. 3, Buhl at Calliver; Dec. 5, Buhl at Almen; Dec. 11, Valluette at Buhl; Dec. 14, Kuna at Buhl; Dec. 20, Buhl at American Falls; Dec. 21, Elko at Buhl; and Dec. 28, Buhl at American Falls.

Jan. 4, Buhl at Filer; Jan. 10, Buhl at Gooding; Jan. 14, Jerome at Buhl; Jan. 18, Wood River at Buhl; Jan. 22, Buhl vs. Burley at CSL (7 p.m.); Jan. 25, Gooding at Buhl; Jan. 27, Bonneville; Feb. 8, Buhl at Burley; Feb. 11, Buhl at Jerome; and Feb. 14, Buhl at Wood River.

Once-a-year editor of grid humor paper tired of threats

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—Ben Anslow, publisher of the annual pro-Michigan satirical tabloid on the Wolverine-Ohio State football game, says he's had enough of the threatening letters and obscene phone calls.

"It's gotten to be quite a hassle and pretty hairy," said Anslow from his home in Bucyrus. "I guess some people take their football rather seriously."

Anslow, who runs an ad agency in Bucyrus, about 75 miles north of here in the heart of Buckeye country, started publishing the paper in 1963. The year after Ohio State had beaten the Wolverines 50-14. He called that edition the "Humiliation Bowl News."

"If 1969 Ohio State was supposed to be the greatest team of the century and winning up at Ann Arbor was just supposed to be a formality," Anslow said in explaining why he started his yearly labor of love. "I just thought somebody ought to do something."

The Wolverines beat the Buckeyes 24-12, costing them their second consecutive national title.

The next year, Anslow, a 1948 Michigan grad, decided to try it again and that's about the time the threats started.

"There were 20 guys who actually sued me," he said, "17 of them were friends of mine, but the other three were really serious and started making a lot of noise."

Since then there have been the threatening letters and obscene calls every fall.

This year, before the paper was even printed, Anslow received a postal card which said: "You've had fair warning. You've broken enough hearts around here. You're sorry if you do this sort of thing again."

In this year's issue, which he called the "Humiliation Bowl News," Anslow announced it would be his last.

"It's not really the threatening calls," he said. "But it's not too much fun to run into people you have made unhappy," pointing out "we're only talking about a very small percentage of people."

Anslow, who had 3,000 copies of the paper printed this year, said most of the expense involved in publishing it is in the time involved and the mailing fees.

"To take time out to do such a thing, really doesn't make much sense," said Anslow, who, with some help from his wife, does all the work himself. "I suppose the one big thing, which makes it worthwhile is that it's been Michigan and Ohio State which has defeated the Big Ten for last six years."

This year's issue, which Anslow says he is "pretty sure" will be the last, has a four-inch banner stating: "Blue haters' Buckeye Dream" (1913)—his prediction for the game.

The issue also includes two pictures of President Gerald Ford—during his football-playing days at the University of Michigan, Anslow said he found the pictures in a 1932 Michigan-Northwestern game program and enlarged them.

NFL uncertainty epitomized in Cowboys-Houston battle Sunday

By United Press International
From the Mart, when a players' strike upset the rhythm of preparation, there was a 10 to 20 percent probability about the National Football League season. And perhaps no game typifies the degree of uncertainty as Sunday's Texas showdown between the Dallas Cowboys and Houston Oilers.

managed only one victory a season.
Yet, when the two clubs meet at Dallas, it is the Cowboys who are on the brink of extinction while the rising Oilers curiously find themselves with an outside shot of attaining a playoff berth.

"This has to be an unusual year," Cowboy Coach Tom Landry said in assessing the situation. "It is hard to measure because of all the disruptions."
"I don't see too many teams playing good football this year. Oakland is the only really good team I've seen. The teams that play off to the left are beginning to fade. Miami may be coming back now."

that you don't have a chance, then you can play that way too."
Dallas, which had to go into overtime to beat the Oilers, 19-13, in a pre-season game, is favored by four points.
The Oakland Raiders, the only team to have clinched a playoff berth this far, carry a nine game winning streak into Sunday's game against the Denver Broncos. With Coach John Madden promising, his team won't let up over the final month, the Raiders are favored by eight points at home.
Both Minnesota and Los Angeles, each with a 7-3 record, will have a chance to secure divisional crowns this week and the playoff berth that goes with it. They are playing each other on the West Coast, and the winner can clinch if the runner-up in its division loses.

The Vikings hold a two-game lead in the NFC Central Division over both Detroit and Green Bay while the Rams are third in front of New Orleans in the NFC West. The lions are favored by 10 points at home over the Chicago Bears, the Packers are picked to 7 1/2 points at home over the San Diego Chargers and the Saints are seven-point underdogs at home to the Pittsburgh Steelers in Monday night's nationally televised game.

Hawaii stuns Sun 32-14 in WFL playoff

ANAHAIM (UPI) — Randy Johnson passed for two touchdowns and Al Davis scored two touchdowns as the Hawaii Islanders defeated the Oakland Raiders 32-14 in the Western Division championship game of the World Football League playoffs.

The Hawaiians, who were only 9-11 during the regular season, qualified to play at Birmingham next Wednesday night in the World Bowl semifinals.
Johnson, an NFL veteran who was released by the New York Giants in September, passed five yards to John Kelsey for a second quarter touchdown and eight yards to John Eisenberger for a score in the final period.

Davis scored the Hawaiians' first touchdown on a three-yard run in the opening period and went from two yards out for a TD in the third period. Davis' second touchdown and a subsequent action point put the Hawaiians in front 23-14 after the Sun fought back from a 17-0 deficit to close the first half.

The Sun had to play without running back Kermil Johnson and offensive tackle Booker Brown, the team's second and third draft choices. The pair mysteriously failed to show up for the game, and a Sun spokesman said they had been temporarily suspended until the details of their absence could be determined.
They signed as a package deal with the Sun along with running back James McMaster, who missed the game because of injuries. Johnson and McMaster were starts at UCLA last season while Brown was a top lineman for the University of Southern California.

After Eisenberger caught Johnson's second TD pass, a fight broke out between the Hawaiians' receiver and Sun defensive back Jim Bowman. The fight led to a first free for all among Hawaiian and Sun players. Bowman was kicked out of the game.
There are tight races for first place in the Eastern Division at both the AFC and NFC. In the AFC, Miami leads the Buffalo Bills by one game and the fading New England Patriots by two. Miami is a nine-point choice at the New York Jets. Buffalo is favored by 4 1/2 points at Cleveland and New England is a 2 1/2-point pick at Baltimore.
The St. Louis Cardinals, trying to protect a one-game lead over Washington in the NFC East, are favored by seven points on the road against the New York Giants, while the Redskins are picked by 10 at home over the Philadelphia Eagles.
The Cincinnati Bengals, in contention with Houston for the wild card playoff berth in the AFC, are favored by 7 1/2 points at home over the Kansas City Chiefs and the San Francisco Forty-Niners are picked by nine points at home over the Atlanta Falcons.

U.S. stands fifth

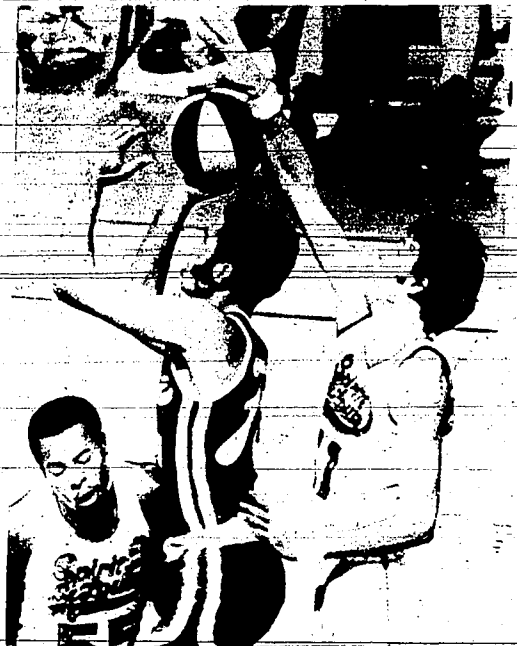

CARACAS (UPI) — South Africa, England and Japan shot their way into a three-way tie for first place in the opening round of the 22nd World Cup Golf Championship Thursday with scores of 137.
Three strokes behind the leaders were the teams from Scotland and Venezuela with 140. Puerto Rico and Holland occupied the third and fourth places with 141 and 142, while the U.S. team of Hale Irwin and Lay Trevino shared fifth place with Ireland and Taiwan at 143.

South Africa's Bobby Coles took the day's individual scoring honors with a fair and fur par 66 on the 7,000-yard Laguna Country Club course.

Barnes' contract with Spirits approved by attorney, mother

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The parents of Marvin Barnes have met with Boston attorney Boh Woolf in an effort to study Barnes' contract with the Spirits of St. Louis of the American Basketball Association.
Barnes left the team Wednesday night, and as of Thursday afternoon, neither Woolf or Mrs. Lela Barnes has heard from him. He was suspended Thursday by the club.
"This is crazy," said Woolf in Boston. "No one knows where he is. He won't even talk to his mother. We've all gone for the contract, but now the only thing we have to do is figure out how the hell we can get to Marvin."
"His contract is as good as the team says it was," said Mrs. Barnes after the meeting. "My husband and I, Jimmy Adams (Barnes' high school coach) Woolf and a friend of mine went over it in detail, and we found nothing wrong with it."

Both Woolf and Mrs. Barnes feel Marvin is being taken by a Los Angeles agent, who tried to convince Barnes that his contract with the Spirits was neither binding nor lucrative.
"Evidently, this guy is trying to tell Marvin that his contract is no good," said Woolf of agent Marshall Boyer's efforts to persuade Barnes against the contract. "That's a false accusation. The whole thing is absurd, and it's a reflection of the dishonesty that's running rampant in sports today. This type of thing doesn't belong in sports."
Mrs. Barnes took the same stand as Woolf, adding "I'm leading Marvin down the wrong path."

"We got a copy of it and Mr. Adams studies the contract all the way home to Providence," she said. "We went over it step by step, and it's all there. He has a no cut contract, guaranteed. I saw it with my own eyes, in black and white."
Both Woolf and Mrs. Barnes also hadly denied the statement that Marvin was in any financial trouble.
"That story came from a column in a St. Louis newspaper," said Woolf, "and someone gave it to him. Marvin doesn't owe anyone anything."
As for Barnes' whereabouts, Mrs. Barnes said she hasn't heard from him, but expects to within a day.
"I've been in Boston all day going over this contract, so I haven't been here to take a call. I haven't heard from him yet, but he'll call sooner or later."

Sports

From all angles

By Larry Hovey

So you want to bet on the Boise State-Idaho game Saturday.
In the past few days we've heard some wild things that you can count on. We heard of one BSU fan giving 21 points and three to me odds to a less optimistic Vandal fan.
On the other hand, we've heard of one BSU hacker getting 10 points.
It's all crazy.
For the most part, the word around is that Idaho is about a 20-point underdog. That's where most of the bets seem to wind up.
But as one BSU man said Thursday, "I'd wait until the Idaho alums get things going real well down at the alumni get-together Friday night. You could probably get it even around 11 p.m."
Those putting heavy emphasis and giving big points to get Boise State should best be aware of the simple fact that Idaho means little or nothing to the BSU coaching staff. Oh, they'd love to win it, but next week Boise State goes into the division II playoffs.
For that reason, if BSU can jump off to a couple-touchdown lead, one can expect the nation's leading division II passer total offense leader Jim McMillan to go to the sidelines. In addition, fullback John Smith is very doubtful and safety Pat King won't play against the Vandals.
McMillan probably would reappear if Idaho cut the deficit to a touchdown. But at the Broncos stacked 14 up, the coaching staff undoubtedly would let the clock run out right there.
Under those circumstances, the 20-point popularity wouldn't be such a good bet.
"Although there's no way you'll get to see that Boise State-Central Michigan playoff opener here, it appears you can catch the highlights Sunday morning on the tube.
BSU officials were told Thursday by a TV network that their game at Mount Pleasant would be the representative of division II playoffs although there are four games going. This BSU was told we can catch the program originates in Chicago and there's no problem getting the film there from Michigan.
Live coverage of the playoffs, if Boise State survives Central Michigan, will begin the next week.

There are recurring rumors that Utah State is looking at the Big Sky Conference again. But don't hold your breath.
Trouble with the Utags coming in is that alumni and newspaper pressure won't allow it at this time. It is a case similar to the conditioning that Idaho alums endured when the Vandals started the scholarship cutback.
And there's a little ray of hope that the Vandals apparently are about to give up their "major" college status. Next year they'll have only three major colleges on their schedule, picking up Northern Arizona and nationally second-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas.
Utah State seems attuned to a similar program, although it's not ready to talk about it. The Utags have signed to play four football games with Boise State in 1975-77 and 1982-83. More are expected to come since football schedules are made up six to eight years in advance.
In addition, Utah State and Boise State will have a home-and-home basketball series for the foreseeable future.
Utah State, which currently is operating with 90 football scholarships, already is playing Weber annually and the report is Montana is coming back on their schedule. Idaho reportedly will drop off the Utah grad slate since neither team can generate any money in the other's view of it. BSU is expected to announce a couple of football games with Utah State.
But in this age of spiraling costs, the move is economically feasible. Both BSU and BSU are "natural" draws due to geographical proximity. In a couple of years, the rivalry will be avidly accepted by both sides.
Another point that Utah State must be considering is that the Big Sky Conference basketball champion automatically goes into the NCAA tournament. Currently the independent Utags must fight for an at-large berth.
The biggest hindrance now is the already said rivalry. High State has with BYU and University of Utah. And it hasn't been doing badly in those. So the wait is still on.

NEW YORK (UPI) — A decline in interest rates and bargain hunting in glimmers helped push prices higher in active trading Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which had lost 64 points in the session the day before, ended at 615.46 shortly before noon.

Earlier in the session the blue chip indicator had moved up around 10 points. Advances led declines, 832 to 273, among the 1,527 issues crossing the tape.

The two-hour volume amounted to around 6,500,000 shares, compared with 6,300,000 turned over during the same period Thursday.

AT&T, which lost 4 1/4 points in reaction to the Justice Department's sweeping antitrust suit, was the second most active stock, with a delayed opening, up 1/2 on 140,700 shares.

AT&T withdrew a $60 million bid offering in wake of the suit and because of unsettled market conditions.

Analysts said some selected buying had been anticipated after the market's recent slide. Investors were encouraged in the day when trend-setting First National City Bank of New York lowered the prime lending rate it charges key corporate customers to 10 percent from 10 1/2 percent.

Commodity markets were lowering their prime rates. Although government reports showed consumer prices continued to rise and durable goods orders declined for the second month, some economists said there appeared to be an easing in the inflation rate.

Much of this was brought on by the recession observers said.

The nationwide coal strike was in its second week continued, further disrupting the already faltering economy.

The United Mine Workers' bargaining committee reached a preliminary agreement for ratification, has asked for renegotiations. The request worried Wall Street because it will mean a longer strike.

Coal and related stocks were among the early gainers. Pittston picked up 1 Chesley System and Union Pacific climbed a point each. Union Pacific has coal interests.

Lantern Steel led 1 1/2. The steel industry has been forced to suspend some operations because of the strike.

Among the glimmers leading the early advance: IBM rose 2 1/2 and Burroughs, T.I. Instruments, Digital Equipment, Xerox, Merck, ARA Services (text dividend) and International Flavors and Fragrances a point a piece each.

Courtesy Sinclair & Co. CHICAGO — Grain and cattle futures skidded Thursday.

Commodity News Service also reported the New York Sugar market collapsed after a protracted period of strong gains.

Heading pressure produced a limit drop in corn futures, overcoming early export buying in the pit. Taiwan dropped a buying tender, awaiting better prices.

Chicago cash basis was up 5 cents for lower offerings with both hoppers and hoppers at 15 cents under December Gold basis, 1 1/2 cents higher at 4 1/2 cents over December.

Wheat futures drew support from potential export lookouts but the market future was affected by weakness in corn and soybeans. Commission house liquidation and spots at 11 1/2 cents.

Losses in the hark months ranged from 60 cents in most active February to 45 cents in less traded June. Live and dressed markets gave little upward support.

Feeder cattle futures, let in export matters, fell closed 15 cents lower in the sparsely traded March option. Despite lighter tender receipts, easier demand in cash markets and uncertainty in lat cattle, the feeder market has been clouded. November expired Wednesday at 29 1/2 cents.

The world sugar market collapsed as all contracts except the near January due the daily 2 cent limit. January dropped 1.8 cents, closing at 61 1/2 cents—Volume—loaded 2,282 trades with 900 uninitiated orders.

May Idaho spuds drop

CHICAGO — On an estimated trade of three contracts, May Idaho russet tubers fell 25 cents Thursday.

Commodity News Service reported the two front contracts finished unmanipulated. Traders said weaker cash indications sparked some new selling.

Maine potato futures performed in negative fashion, with spring months losing 2 to 3 cents at the end of the session. November gained 6 cents.

Overall trades totaled 1,945 contracts, with May making the heaviest losses in the largest volume. Inflationary pressure continued to weigh on the market.

Cash markets on the east coast were generally steady with Maine 2.40-2.70 unchanged.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Hand and Bartram Thursday quoted silver at 54 1/2 per ton, unchanged.

Former fatty has new hobby

GREENVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — Dan Younce used to eat one meal a day — lasting from 8 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Younce, 27, weighed nearly 350 pounds in 1971. He now weighs 165 pounds and says his newest hobby is "getting into the bath tub."

Younce, who is 5-feet-7, said he used to eat anything he could get his hands on. His favorite was pizza.

After doctors and members of his family kept urging him to lose weight he joined Weight Watchers and "now holds the points losing record in the local area."

"Losing weight is something you have to want to do and you have to keep working at it," said Younce. "It is not something that can be done overnight."

He credited his wife with helping him through the three-year ordeal.

"She cooked me special meals and encouraged me down the road to where I am now," he said.

He said he now achieves great satisfaction from sitting on the floor and playing with his daughter and being able to buy swimming trunks. Previously every item of clothing he wore had to be specially ordered.

Hansen seating deferred

—WASHINGTON (UPI)— The House Administration Committee took no action today on potential challenges of the seating of two members of the 93rd House victories — including Idaho's George Hansen.

By a 20-0 vote, the committee deferred any action and judgment in the case of Congressman Hansen, an Idaho Republican who defeated incumbent Rep. Orval Hansen of Idaho in the primary.

Hansen has been subject to allegations of illegal campaign contributions.

Committee Chairman Rep. Wayne Hayes, D-Ohio, said any decision on a possible challenge of Hansen's seating was deferred pending the receipt of information from the Justice Department, which is currently questioning the charges.

He said Justice Department lawyers have told us we will get that information within a week.

In the case of Rep. William Wampler, R-Va., who has been accused of biased voting on certain irregularities, the committee chairman asked that the Virginia courts "proceed to the evidence," he said.

He explained this will allow the courts to rule on the ballots cast at Wampler's election, but that it is not the committee's job to question the validity of the election.

Hayes said the seating of a congressman from Wampler's district will depend on "what the state potential election challenge is." The House members newly elected in November will be seated on Jan. 7, 1975, unless their election is challenged by the House Administration Committee.

SA food collection drive begins Nov. 29

BOISE — The Salvation Army and Kentucky Fried Chicken stores in Idaho will join in a holiday food collection drive beginning Nov. 29.

Commissioner William H. Chamberlain, Salvation Army national commander, said the national program will be conducted simultaneously with the food-raising "National Kettle Campaign" originated by The Salvation Army in 1921.

Idaho's Kentucky Fried Chicken stores will have a special Christmas "Help Us Feed The Needy" and a window poster to encourage participation beginning next Friday.

"We urge everyone to raid his pantry for special holiday food goods," Chamberlain said. "What may be spare food to some will be precious food to many other Americans this season."

The food will be distributed in time for Christmas by the Salvation Army to deserving families in the same communities where the donations are made.
