It's Thanksgiving Day

FAMILY DINNERS are a Thanksgiving Day tradition for American families, and among those following that tradition today are Charles Claiborn and Emily Claiborn, Twin Falls. In many homes throughout the Magic Valley today, friends and families gathered for dinners and other activities to mark the holiday.

Reduced S. Hills tree cut may end tradition

TWIN FALLS — A local holiday tradition, cutting your own Christmas tree, may be ending. The Christmas tree quota for the South Hills has been cut in half again this year. Families will be allowed to cut only 150 trees this year, compared to 300 last year and 600 the year before. Next year, the cutting might be completely eliminated, according to the U.S. Forest Service, which issues permits for the logging.

miles from the snowmobile area parking lot to do their cutting, according to Munson. The truck will require a snowmobile, skis or snowshoes. Munson said the beetle epidemic is "really wiping us out up there. Eventually we'll just have the young trees because they can pitch out" the beetle infestation, he added. A "big logging operation" would be required to stop the beetle epidemic, he said, adding that logging firms in this area aren't large enough to do the job. Stopping the infestation with chemical sprays or treatment is "impossible because there just aren't enough dollars available," Munson said. The young trees are being protected to insure that the South Hills remain forest-covered. "By cutting the Christmas trees out, we're defeating that purpose," Munson said. The beetles of the Diamondfield Jack area are threatened by the Christmas cutters, according to Munson. People have "gone into the campgrounds and summer home areas and organization sites and taken the young trees," he said.

CSI trustee vote draws 7 seeking 2 open seats

TWIN FALLS — Seven men will vie for two seats on the College of Southern Idaho board of trustees in the Dec. 17 election. The candidate are LeRoy Craig, incumbent, and Allan Pierson, both Jeromes; David Woodhead and Leon Wright, both Twin Falls; Charles Lehman and George Anthony, both Buhl; and Benny Black, Castleford. Black and Anthony did not personally file their nominating petitions and have been given until Dec. 4 to take their names off the ballot if they wish. Wednesday was the deadline for filing of nominating petitions.

John Hepworth, Buhl, incumbent trustee chairman, will not seek re-election. He told the Times-News today that he decided not to run for "personal reasons — I want to spend more time with my family." "I've enjoyed it tremendously and my association with other board members and the administration has been both pleasurable and rewarding," Hepworth added. Both trustee seats to be decided carry a six-year term and will be taken by the two highest vote-getters in the at-large election. Polls will be open from noon until 8 p.m. on Dec. 17 in Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

US help on AF project possible

BURLEY — A spokesman for Upper Valley American Falls Reservoir specializers said Wednesday there is a good chance the dam can be rebuilt with federal help. William Holden, an Idaho Falls attorney who led the negotiating team that represented specializers in the latest round of talks with Idaho Power, says Congress recently approved the reconstruction of a reclamation project dam in South Dakota. According to Holden, action on the Belle Fourche Dam project in South Dakota took only a year. Like the American Falls Dam, the Belle Fourche had originally been built by the federal government and was in a deteriorating state. Holden says the US Senate held a hearing on the Belle Fourche project in June, 1974, and Congress authorized the reconstruction project last month. Holden quoted testimony from the Senate hearing which he said is relevant to the American Falls project. Bureau of Reclamation Commissioner Gilbert G. Starnitz testified "because the dam is owned by the federal government, there is a federal responsibility to see that corrective action is taken to make it safe." (Continued on p. 17)

Toasts wind up visit

PEKING (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Chinese leaders toasted their four days of talks over a Thanksgiving Day dinner Thursday while a green uniformed Chinese army band played "Turkey in the Straw" and other festive music. Although much of the talks remained secret, American officials said Peking is not pushing hard against the continuing U.S. recognition of Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist China. Newsman asked a U.S. official if America's two-China policy — recognizing Chiang's Taiwan regime and also dealing with Peking's Communist regime — had surfaced in Kissinger's talks with Premier Chou En-lai.

Burley district stalls dam plans

By DAVID BOCKMAN Times-News writer
HITORY — The Burley Irrigation District, considered a crucial "swing district," has rejected Idaho Power Co. terms for reconstruction of the crumbling American Falls Dam. The action by the Burley district which controls about one-tenth of the American Falls Reservoir water rights, has placed the future of the dam project in doubt. American Falls Reservoir District spokesmen have said repeatedly that specializers representing at least 80 percent of the reservoir's storage which have to support the plan before work could begin. At present, 24 districts, representing about 22 percent of the storage, have rejected the Idaho Power proposal. Another eighth large specializers have supported the project. They represent about 75-78 percent of the storage rights.

Both the space represented by districts for and against the project, and the number of districts willing to participate will probably be taken into account, according to the bureau spokesman. Last week Vissia had informed specializers that timing was important. He said if the contracts, bond election and bids were not on schedule, reconstruction of the dam could be delayed for another year. Opposition to current proposals has centered around escalating costs of the dam which have increased the irrigators' share from and below $2 million to over $20 million. The cost of replacing the dam itself, originally estimated at $36.6 million in July of 1973, has climbed to $40.4 million. Idaho Power has offered to pay $19.5 million for falling water rights at the new dam. In the view of districts opposing the current schedule for reconstructing the dam, Idaho Power should contribute more toward inflationary costs, the full cost of meeting water quality standards and the difference between non-taxed and taxed bonds, should the Internal Revenue Service fail to grant non-taxed status. Idaho Power has now offered to pay one-half the bill to meet a lower water quality standard, estimated to cost $170,000 per year, but refuses to commit anything if a higher standard, estimated to cost $45,000 yearly, is required by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. Most of the opposition to the proposal has come from districts in the Upper Snake River Valley. Outside of Magic Valley, only the Aberdeen-Springfield Canal Co. supports the latest proposal. In the Magic Valley, only the Burley district has said no, while American Falls Districts 1 and 2, A and B, Mimboka, Northside, Milner, Low Lift, and the Hillsdale Irrigation districts have endorsed the project.

The next step is up to the regional director of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, Rod Vissia, Boise. Last week Vissia asked the specializers to notify him by Friday whether or not they wish to proceed with the project. According to the agency's timetable, contracts between participating specializers and the bureau were to be drawn up in December for approval by the secretary of the interior in January, 1975. Now the agency must decide whether or not the eight specializing districts favoring the proposed project are finally able to follow through without the support of the other 24 districts. Vissia was not available for comment today on the latest development. However, a spokesman for the agency said the bureau has not yet established a criteria for Boise weather station officials said the cold front which passed through Idaho dumped three inches of snow in Pocatello and light snow fell from the Magic Valley eastward to the upper Snake River Valley area. Light snow is forecast for most of the day in the southeastern part of the state.

New power rates hit farms harder

BOISE (UPI) — Residential power rates will be increased but not by as much as Idaho Power Co. wanted, according to an Idaho Public Utilities Commission ruling. The power company had requested an across-the-board charge of 11.9 to 15.3 per cent rate increase ordered by the commission in October. In a 2-1 decision Wednesday, the commission ordered the company to submit revised rates and schedules that will provide no increase in the first 400 kilowatt hours of monthly use for residential service with a 10.2 per cent increase on all rate steps above equal distribution of cost based on service but that irrigators do not get service in the winter. The commission noted that FMC's rate was increased 6.5 per cent Jan. 1, 1974, and should not be increased the same percentage as other rate schedules, but should only be increased the difference between 6.5 per cent and 10.2 per cent or 3.8 per cent. Wednesday's order was signed by commissioners Robert Lengenhen and Al Karl Shurtliff. Dissenting was commissioner Ralph Wickberg. Wickberg said a major change in rate schedules between classes of customers should be deferred until the first unit of the Jim Bridger coal-fired thermal plant is completed. "Electric rates to irrigators, FMC, processing plants, schools, hospitals, commercial and residential users should be developed in a full evidentiary proceeding which would consider the economic impact on all classes of users," he said. In their order, Lengenhen and Shurtliff said:

THANKSGIVING

Americans thankful for past

Reason for thanksgiving

Today is Thanksgiving Day, 1974. Magic Valley residents joined with the rest of the United States in observing it... Some in traditional fashion, others in their own ways. Which brings up the question — just what do we have to be thankful for this year? To look around the whole world is in a mess yet.

SCRABBLE, Va. — I write on a bitter afternoon here in the Blue Ridge Mountains. The frozen hills are huddled in dark shadows; the breadstreaks, shivering in the cold. All day we have had quick flurries of snow; and when I opened the door of my office to let the two colliers come in, the keen air smelt of snow on my way.

This is the day that is specially set aside for Americans to give thanks. It's a day when a sardonic question will arise this year: Which blessings? Thanks for what? One hundred thousand miners are on strike; not much cheer in their homes. Other thousands of auto workers are idle. It is a paralyzing time to be out of a job.

How long has it been since you read any good news? Too long, it will be said, too long. I shuffle the day's papers on my desk. The market is down and homebuilding is down and automobile dealers are close to panic. Crime is up; divorce is up; the government's deficit grows with every passing day; and all the economists see no relief for months to come. Over the past year or so, one reflects, we have seen the highest inflation in our land scarred by corruption and stained by lies. We have seen reputations toppled and confidence destroyed.

'One nation under God'

- Thanksgiving is more than a day in November
That students of history are taught to remember
More than a date...
With turkey and dressing piled high on our plate
For while we still offer the traditional prayer,
We pray out of habit...
Without being aware
That the Pilgrims thanked God just for being here
For the strength that He gave them to endure and survive
Hunger and hardship
That's unknown in the present
Where progress and plenty have made our lives pleasant
And living today
In this great and rich nation
That depends not on God but on mechanization
We tend to forget
That man's progress comes Under God's name...
But we feel we're so strong
We no longer need faith,
And it now has become
Nothing more than a wraith
Of the faith that once founded
This magnificent nation
In the name of the Maker...
Oh, teach us, dear God
We are all pilgrims still,
Subject alone
To Your guidance and will...
And show us the way to purposes of being So we may have reason for daily thanksgiving
And make us once more a God-fearing nation
And not just a puppet of centralized automation.

Demoralization greatest US danger

(C) New York Times Service
WASHINGTON — The latest Thanksgiving Day bulletin from the economic front is that over 200,000 auto workers will be out of jobs next month and that the unemployment total in the nation will be over 11 million or 7 percent of the work force next year. The Capital is being battered by statistics. More than a quarter of the auto industry's 700,000 workers will be on temporary or indefinite layoffs in December. Chrysler corporation will almost be shut down until Christmas. Big strikes beginning tonight to the layoffs and the mayor of New York cuts 1,510 employees and announces "the toughest austerity program" since the economic depression of the 1930's.

to take second place in the news reports to the economic and unemployment figures from Detroit. The Congress is just as remote from the central questions of the nation. It is preoccupied with Nelson Rockefeller's money and other secondary considerations. The nation is in trouble now and is looking for a lead but isn't getting it. It is just as strong as it ever was, despite the stock market... probably stronger — but it is nervous. It is nervous and depressed because it has been living an illusion and is now grasping its losses because it inflated its gains and dreams. From Vietnam to Watergate the nation has been on a binge and is now suffering the consequences. Its money is inflated because its expectations were inflated and whatever the politicians say in Washington it is likely to go back to the wasteful alliance of the 1960's.

The last 10 years have been a period of profound political and spiritual bouldering in America. During this time our political leaders have led us to believe that it was our destiny to get more prosperous and more peace, more affluence, more cars and more things... but it has had anything to be thankful for now. It is that old brutal fact: we are now destroying these illusions. Demoralization is the greatest danger to the United States. It is the demoralization that has shaken the hopes of so many... Walter Lippmann asked during the other great economic crisis of the 1930's. "It is the demoralization which is the danger to the people that must in each other which is the first condition of intelligent leadership. That is the root of the matter. The particular projects which we debate so angrily are not so important. The fate of the nation does not hang upon any of them but upon the power of the people to remain united for purposes which they respect upon their capacity to have faith in themselves and in their objectives which depends. It is not the fact of the crisis which we have to fear. They can be endured and dealt with — it is demoralization alone that is dangerous."

Rumsfeld's Peking trip dismays energy aides

WASHINGTON — As the Monday dawned gray and rainy this week, high-level government energy officials had one consolation to ease their worries: Donald Rumsfeld, White House chief of staff, would be back from the Orient to help make President Ford come to grips with the energy crisis. They were wrong. Ford returned from Vladivostok, but his chief-of-staff returned. Without announcement, Rumsfeld accompanied Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to Peking. With the White House policy-making machinery jammed up in a time of national crisis, the man supposed to put it in order would return until Saturday. "It's enough to make you go fishing for the next couple of months," one disconsolate official told us. Rumsfeld in China adds mightily to year-end distress high in the government. The astonishing fact is that Ford has not yet received a full-scale briefing on the energy crisis, perhaps explaining the lack of a domestic energy policy at this late date and Ford's stubborn opposition to a gasoline tax. The realistic, tough-minded Rumsfeld had been counted on to remedy precisely such situations, but he, too, is proving a disappointment. Nowhere has the Ford administration been more inept than in failing to shape an energy policy based on both increased production and diminished consumption. To accomplish the latter, there is rare unanimity among policy-makers, favoring a 60-cent gasoline tax. "We all agree," contended one top official, "except one man: the President." Although Ford's reiterated disagreement has always seemed political in nature, critics believe the underlying reason stems from his failure to understand the need for draconian measures to prevent the collapse of the West. He officials were even more upset that Ford took Rumsfeld with him. With Rumsfeld at the President's side without notice, the chief of staff's return to Washington went too insecure to allocate sufficient time for Frank Zarb, the new federal energy administrator, to give Ford that full briefing this week. Moreover, Thanksgiving, Christmas and Ford's annual skiing vacation in Vail, Colo., are coming up. Accordingly, energy officials eagerly awaited the simultaneous return of the President and Rumsfeld on Monday. But in Vladivostok, a White House aide told us, Kissinger asked Rumsfeld to accompany him to China. Ford readily agreed it would be a good idea. Consequently, stunned officials here were asking Monday: What in the world is Rumsfeld doing in China? Fairly or not, his presence there, buttressed by Kissinger's "administrative" circles that Rumsfeld, a man of intelligence and competence, may be too ambitious for the job of presidential chief of staff. These critics also view him as a Kissinger ally against Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger and, consequently, an aspirant for Schlesinger's job. Whether or not Rumsfeld thirsts for the Pentagon, there is a rising demand in the administration and among Congressional Republicans that he and the President get away to business — by staying home, for openers. Some high officials feel Ford should forego his annual skiing vacation to connote a sense of urgency to the nation. Even if he insists on going to Vail, there seems no excuse for Ford to avoid a prolonged energy session with Zarb. The only possible time on his schedule for this vital enterprise is Friday, although an appointment is not pinned down at this writing. This is short, if a long-delayed drafting of a domestic energy program is to be presented to Congress in late January. Officials desperately want the President to face the substance of the energy crisis. Since the other options of import restrictions and a crude oil tax would mean higher fuel bills for the hard-pressed Northern states, energy officials still think Ford — even he truly understands the situation — should reverse himself and embrace the oft-rejected gasoline tax. Press Secretary Ron Nessan talks about how much Ford enjoys being President; but energy-wise officials want him to make the job less enjoyable by staying in the White Office and belatedly making tough energy decisions after nearly four months in office. In short, they want Jerry Ford to confront reality. But such hopes are stunted by the fact the presumed ally was on an untold journey himself in the Portland City.

JAMES RESTON
This is the main thing before Ford now that he is back from the Soviet Union. His first priority is at home and not abroad. He has a really serious crisis in the Middle East which is being run down into a fifth Arab-Israeli war. And he has fundamental problems with the Soviet Union on the control of strategic arms. But he is not likely to be able to deal with these matters unless he has stability at home and unity among the Atlantic Nations and Japan. There is no problem in the world that can be solved unless the economic, political and simply has not received the full briefing, and no wonder. Once the time-consuming economic summit was finished, two months ago, the President jumped into his fruitless political horse-racing. WASHINGTON—Despite the grip economy on many members of congress, there is no way Nelson A. Rockefeller can violate the conflict of interest laws if he becomes vice president because the justice department can find a single federal conflict of interest law that applies to a president or vice president.

That opinion, signed by the Justice Department's number two man, Deputy Atty. Gen. Laurence H. Silberman, probably renders meaningless a key provision of the blind trust agreement Rockefeller unilaterally volunteered to set up this week to talk himself out from his own financial interest while in office.

One provision of the trust agreement states that the trustee in charge of Rockefeller's securities—the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co.—can buy or sell stocks for Rockefeller without his knowledge, but that the trustee "may take no action which 'NAR' himself could not directly take because of rules of conflict of interest or any other reason."

(Rockefeller is referred to as "NAR" nine times in the summary of the proposed trust which Rockefeller submitted to the house judiciary committee.)

But the Justice Department, acting at the request of the Senate-Rules Committee, which unanimously approved Rockefeller's nomination, searched the federal statutes without finding any conflict of interest law which would apply to Rockefeller if he is confirmed.

A seven-page letter from the Justice Department explaining why presidents and vice presidents are not subject to conflict of interest laws will be included in the report which the Senate Rules Committee will send to the full Senate along with its recommendation that Rockefeller be confirmed.

Rules Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon has asked Atty. Gen. William French Wilentz in mid-September for an analysis of federal conflict of interest laws and any other statutes which might apply to Rockefeller if he were confirmed.

In addition, Cannon asked if it would be lawful for Rockefeller, while serving as vice president, to act as director or stockholder of, or to hold any other beneficial interest in, any company having contracts with any agency of the U.S.

In response, Silberman, acting attorney general in Rockefeller's absence, said the 25th Amendment under which Rockefeller was nominated, "is silent as to conflict of interest; the subject does not appear to have been of any concern to the congress when it proposed the amendment."

Silberman also cited Sec. 203 of the U.S. Criminal Code, which prohibits an officer or employee of the executive branch from participating personally and substantially in any particular matter in which to his knowledge he, his spouse, minor child, partner or organization in which he is serving as an officer, director or trustee has a personal interest.

"Section 203 does not expressly apply to the vice president," Silberman said. "Some of its language and its legislative history indicate the contrary."

Noting that the president and vice president "were intended to be treated alike," Silberman suggested it would be unconstitutional to apply Sec. 203 to the President because it would "disable him from performing some of the functions prescribed by the constitution or . . . establish a qualification for his serving as president (elimination of financial conflicts) only constitutionally prescribed function is that of presiding over the Senate . . . it might be asserted that the vice president is not an officer of the executive branch for purposes of Section 103."

Answering Cannon's specific question concerning the permissibility of a vice president's connection with government contractors, Silberman said:

"The only possibly relevant statute of which we are aware is Sec. 431 of the Federal Criminal Laws which prohibits members of Congress from directly or indirectly benefiting from any contract with the federal government."

Wallet recovered

DENVER (UPI)—Western Airlines employee Philip Gish lost his wallet July 5 while working in the belly cargo compartment of a Boeing 720B at Stapleton International Airport. He searched the compartment thoroughly but then gave up.

Thursday, he got it back in the mail from Karachi, Pakistan, with all the papers and money it held when he lost it.
It had been found by an employee of Pakistan International Airlines, which bought the plane from Western.

Ford orders advisory

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Ford today ordered top federal officials to provide an evaluation of the impact of legislation proposed by the executive branch.

Under Ford's order, officials will have to provide statements containing an evaluation of the impact of the legislation on consumers, businesses, markets and all government; the effect on competition; and the effect on supplies of important products or services.

Impact statements already required for key legislative plans and regulations advanced by the government.

Ford acted through an executive order, fulfilling a promise he made Oct. 8 in spelling out a 3-point anti-inflation program to Congress.

At that time, he likened it to the environmental

Big flapjack flip flops in midair

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—The Great Pancake Flip-flopped: Due to "some unexplained difficulty," the six-foot flapjack broke apart in mid-air, but its sponsors have not lost their optimism.

"I guess you could say we cooked the world's largest short stack," said George Chaffee, who organized the effort. "We'll take any kind of record we can get."

"It was a qualified success. We cooked the pancake all the way through on a six-foot griddle and the flip was a success, but it was difficult to lift and the batter stuck to the cooking surface."

"So when we pulled the lid or spatula off, the batter stuck to it. Then we had what amounted to two of the world's largest pancakes."

The recipe for the giant flapjack, which Chaffee figures weighed about 220 pounds along with the specially designed griddle, was simple: Combine three cases of pancake mix, 72 eggs and six gallons of milk in two industrial size plastic buckets and stir. Cook over an infrared burner at 700 degrees.

It took four men to flip the pancake, two holding into handle on the side of the griddle and two more pulling ropes.

Chaffee said the details of the feat would be sent to the New York publishers of the Guinness World Book of Records, which currently does not list a "largest pancake."

"For the gargantuan flapjack, we used a very special use for the remainder."

"We ate a lot of it, though it wasn't the main dish," Chaffee said. "There still were rows of people waiting to use the flapjack."

YOUR GOOD HEALTH Livers dangerous only to possessor

BY GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is there a physical condition in some men known as "a white liver"? All my life I have heard that men with "white livers" cause the death of their wives, and have buried three or four wives.

Is "white liver" a scientifically true condition? If so, how can one detect it—E.H.I. The term is sometimes used to describe a liver that is infiltrated with a lot of fat. Fat liver is a much more accurate term.

It is a condition found in excessively obese individuals, or in those whose livers have been damaged by poisons.

chronic infection, diabetes or metabolism disorders.
The stories you have heard are sheer nonsense; a person with a diseased liver is in no way a danger to his own life but he is not dangerous to others.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am 16, a virgin, and have been told that you cannot become pregnant the first time you have intercourse. Please print a reply.—P.Y.

That is not true. It is just an argument to try to persuade trusting virgins. You can become pregnant the first time, if it happens during your fertile period.

Auto worker layoffs mount

DETROIT (UPI) — For the 350,000 auto industry workers celebrating their four-day Thanksgiving weekend, today marked the start of new massive layoffs that will see nearly 25,000 idled by Christmas.

The Ford Motor Co. and General Motors Corp. Wednesday added another 9,550 workers to the layoff lists that have grown sharply in the past two weeks because of slumping sales that are the worst in 14 years. Industry executives now compare the slump to the 1934 recession.

Ford said it will idle 7,500 workers at 35 plants, including 19 in Michigan, to bring short- and long-term unemployment at the No. 2 automaker to 56,750 workers. The reduction includes 3,000 white collar workers cut 1600 payrolls at the end of the month.

While GM would not confirm it, the United Auto Workers said it has been advised 1,000 workers will be idled indefinitely Jan. 13 when the second shift is eliminated at the Fremont, Calif., assembly plant. The facility holds mid-sized cars.

During December, GM will have 30,000 workers on temporary layoffs and 40,000 on indefinite layoffs. Ford will idle 30,000 temporarily and 20,125 indefinitely, including 3,000 white collar workers. American Motors will idle 8,000 workers for one week; Chrysler Corp. will have 52,000 white and blue collar workers on temporary layoffs and 27,800 idled indefinitely.

The Chrysler cutbacks are the sharpest since five of its six U.S. assembly plants closed from the end of Wednesday's shifts until Jan. 6. The No. 3 automaker had a backlog of unsold cars in mid-November that could last 120 days at current sales rates.

Arraigned

LINDA TAYLOR, 47, leaves the Cook County court Wednesday following her arraignment on a 31-count indictment involving her alleged receipt of illegal welfare benefits, medical assistance, food stamps, Social Security and Veterans benefits. Evidence uncovered by authorities indicate Mrs. Taylor masterminded a scheme in which she used 60 different names, 30 addresses and 15 phone numbers. (UPI)

Interim standard freeze studied

New York Times Service — WASHINGTON — Russell E. Train, administrator of the Environmental protection agency, said Wednesday that the auto manufacturers must make a convincing case for their requested five-year freeze on the present interim emission standards before he asked Congress to extend the date for meeting the final standards.

On the issue of auto emissions, Train said he had reached agreement with the White House on the contentious issue of how colored electric power plants should control emissions of pollutants, sulphur oxides, whether by tall stacks that simply disperse the gas or by chemical "scrubbers" that convert the gas into disposable solid by-products.

Since then, Train told reporters, the companies have told him and Brinegar that, in order to produce cars with a 40 per cent improvement in gas mileage, they would need a five-year freeze on the interim emission standards in effect on 1975 model cars for carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons.

That was to be reached in 1977 models under the Clean Air Act of 1970. Those standards were 3.4 grams per mile for carbon monoxide and 0.41 gram per mile for hydrocarbons.

Sihanouk loses recognition bid

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The General Assembly, rejected by two votes today an attempt to recognize the Peking-based government of exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk as the sole legal ruler of Cambodia.

In a 56-54 decision with 24 abstentions, the assembly beat back a proposal to oust representatives of President Lon Nol's U.S.-backed government from the United Nations.

The decision left Lon Nol's delegation with a seat in the United Nations for another year. A similar ouster proposal last year also failed by two votes.

Lon Nol seized power in March, 1970, while Sihanouk was in Europe. American forces entered Cambodia the next month in what was announced as an attempt to clean out Communist sanctuaries, a move Sihanouk had opposed.

The vote came after a nine-hour meeting in which the Sihanouk government, led by China and Algeria, lost an initial vote on procedure and then tried unsuccessfully to postpone adoption of the resolution.

"The decision is a shame to the United Nations," Chinese Ambassador Huang Hua commented after the vote. "It is a new scheme masterminded by the United States."

The assembly adopted a resolution saying Sihanouk's government "exercises authority over a segment of Cambodia," but Lon Nol "still has control over a preponderant number of the Cambodian people."

The assembly urged "all the powers which have been influencing the two parties to the conflict to use their good offices for conciliation between these two parties with a view to restoring peace in Cambodia."

Most of Cambodia's neighbors in southeast Asia supported Lon Nol, insisting that the United Nations should not interfere in Cambodia's affairs.

The two Cambodian factions must be encouraged and assisted in a dialogue for peace, Philippine Foreign Secretary Carlos P. Romulo said.

Police in Saigon isolate violence

SAIGON (UPI) — Armed riot police fought with thousands of anti-government demonstrators in Saigon today, but a massive police curtain shut off the downtown area and isolated the violence.

The largest demonstrations and the most serious violence centered on two suburban churches in the middle of the capital's "Roman" Catholic ghetto near the Tan Son Nhut field.

Sporadic violent clashes at barbed wire barricades surrounding the churches took place throughout the morning and mid-afternoon.

Police and protesters tossed rocks at each other, and riot police fired tiny pieces of barbed wire from slingshots into crowds of demonstrators.

Police kept the 3,000 who did try to march bottled up in the church yards and nearby streets.

Police riot police and troops blocked off the blocks downtown and another 100 blocks in the suburbs with barbed wire barricades. They shut down the normally busy Central Market for only the second time since the 1968 offensive fighting in Saigon.

Police beat and kicked a congressman, breaking his leg. Five policemen were reportedly seriously injured. Scores of other persons on both sides were hurt.

UPI photographer Tim Thanh Van was hit by rocks thrown by uniformed police as he attempted to take pictures of confrontations at the Roman Catholic Tan Son Chau church in suburban Saigon. He was not seriously injured.

About 300 congressmen, newsmen and lawyers marched to the United Nations Assembly building in downtown Saigon without incident.

Andrus certifies voter approval

BOISE (UPI) — The Sunshine Initiative is now official law in Idaho, following Gov. Cecil D. Andrus' signing of a proclamation certifying voter approval.

Andrus said Wednesday he expected that there would be someone who would attempt to have it amended — in the legislature.

"I can't speculate what they (the legislature) will do with it," the governor said.

The initiative was approved at the Nov. 5 general election by a vote of 178,705 to 51,797.

Andrus said he was pleased to sign this very important initiative.

Secretary of State V. Pete Conarus said he had noted the Attorney General's office for guidance on what should be done about lobbyists. He said he had asked whether they should be registered now and then again the first of January.

AEC statement draws criticism

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (UPI) — The Western Interstate Nuclear Board Wednesday issued a statement critical of the Atomic Energy Commission's draft environmental statement for the management of high-level radioactive waste.

"The report is not sufficiently comprehensive in technical information and environmental impacts to be considered a true environmental statement," according to the WINN. The AEC radioactive program called for a retrievable surface storage facility to be built during the next several years, while research continues on various methods of permanent burial.

One of the methods involves disposal in underground bedded salt deposits. A site near Carlsbad, N.M., was being tested as a possible pilot facility for such permanent disposal.

Civil Air Patrol Week scheduled

TWIN FALLS — Civil Air Patrol Week will be observed Friday to Dec. 8, according to Earl Newham, public relations officer.

Membership is open to men and women, boys and girls, Newham said. He said ministers are being asked to mention the Civil Air Patrol and pay tribute to the volunteer members during services Sunday. Many ministers belong to the CAP and serve as chaplains, he said.

MV library system budget okayed

TWIN FALLS — A proposed budget of $54,859 for the Magic Valley Regional Library System has been approved with no opposition.

The public hearing to consider the budget was unattended by members of the public.

The regional library system, a relatively new creation, includes 16 member libraries in 17 Injilece. A board of regional operations.

The proposed budget is up from last year's budget, which was about $30,000. Impounded federal funds from this year account for $11,000 of the increase and about $10,000 is additional state funding, according to Arfan Cull, Twin Falls library chief.

The regional system, which includes every public library in the Magic Valley except the one in Rupert, was set up "to provide improved library services" according to the authorizing legislation.

The long-range intent of the regional program is to pool library resources and to expand the facilities available to libraries which are members of the association, Cull said.

Some of the objectives of the first year plan include financing a library system commissioners with an eye toward obtaining increased federal funds and working for public support of the regional system.

Another library district is seen for Twin Falls County residents not served by present districts, and a system of county library use in Twin Falls County is also contemplated in the plan. Under this system, a Bull Branch user could also borrow books directly from the Twin Falls library.

The regional system would also work to gain support for improvement and expansion of existing facilities and the construction of new facilities.

The system as a whole could help local library boards in attempts to increase their budgets and support legislative efforts to increase state support to libraries and library systems, according to Cull.

Under another proposal, member libraries would contribute to a central book budget. The "headquarters" library, Twin Falls in this district, would purchase the new books following members' suggestions and the libraries would be able to "ship" for books once a month or a loan basis, thus increasing the diversity and size of their collection.

Salmon man wears many hats

BY BOB JOHNSON
Times-News Writer

SALMON — Mike Loening is riding high these days. Sometimes he's on a horse and other times at the controls of an airplane.

He flew into Salmon for an overnight stay from Boise where he operates an aircraft sales organization known as Loening Air Inc.

"I didn't even know it was here," said J.C. Trevu, the county attorney.

Public toleration of pornography is, of course, fair from universal community groups in Philadelphia, Boston and Denver, have fought hard to keep X-rated theaters from opening. But public outrage over obscenity is definitely muted.

"The era for us is diminishing just isn't there any more," said Capt. Jerry Kennedy, head of the Denver police vice bureau. "And we feel that pursuing obscenity cases now would be a waste of taxpayers' money."

Many prosecutors agree. Bud Pines, the Los Angeles city attorney, thinks it is futile to prosecute victimless crimes in which he includes pornography.

"Such prosecutions have proven to be a waste of money," he said. "The district attorney's office abandoned its efforts to prosecute 'Deep Throat' after it spent half a million dollars trying to win a conviction."

Because of conflicting appellate court rulings, he added, "I consider this whole area a dead quadrant. During the last year and a half there has been considerable question about where we are and where we're going in this area."

The Supreme Court guidelines, issued in a 5-to-4 decision on June 21, 1973, now appear to have been more confusing than clarifying.

for the air."

The elder Loening, now 86, resides in Key Biscayne, Fla.

Young Loening was handling the controls on a J-3 Cub off floats on Lake Wirth in Palm Beach, Fla., by the time he was 12.

But the call of the west was too strong. He spent two summers during school working on ranches in Wyoming and Colorado.

He returned to fly in Florida, got a commercial pilot's license, attended college, served in the Army during the Korean War on the German-Russian border and, after more college in Colorado, "I packed up one day, bought a 1937 Stinson and headed further west."

His destination was a ranch in Montana but bad weather brought him down in Salmon. Loening had married in the meantime and he and his wife bought Twin Peaks Ranch south of Salmon.

"We ran it for a few years as a cow-calf operation then turned it into a dude ranch and went into the guiding and guide business."

Loening also established Salmon Air Taxi. He also purchased Triple Creek Ranch, a 104-acre homestead 60 miles southwest of Salmon adjacent to the Idaho Primitive Area.

Loening left Salmon 10 years ago and moved to Boise.

Today he devotes his time to his air service in Boise, his outfitting and guide business and other interests.

He's been a director for many years and vice president the past three years of National Pilot's Association, an organization of some 25,000 pilots around the country, and is in line for the presidency.

"Our purpose is to foster and encourage aviation and flight legislation detrimental to general aviation."

Close to Loening's heart is air racing. Right now he's flying in the middle class in a Formula 1, midjet racer, weighing about 500 pounds and driven by a "chopped up" 100 horsepower engine.

Loening has flown TBMs, B-26s, T17s and B-17s. "More or less picking it up as I went along."

Loening said he would like to get into politics, also, either on the state or national level.

"But, I'm satisfied with what I'm doing. Ultimately my aim is to return to Salmon."

Pornography flourishes despite court decision

(c) New York Times Service

DENVER — Pornography is flourishing nationwide, in defiance of the United States Supreme Court, unable to define nationally what is obscene, told local communities to decide obscenity questions for themselves.

The chief problem is that local communities, including their judges, cannot decide what "What" some legal experts thought would become a national war on dirty books and movies as a result of the court ruling has turned out to be a half-hearted skirmish.

In most places residents appear to be apathetic. Police say they have more important crimes to fight. Many local prosecutors contend that they have neither the time nor the money to spend cracking down on small dealers.

Some say the pornography business is threatened by overexposure. Many law enforcement officials interviewed around the country in recent weeks agreed with Dan Tooley, Denver's district attorney, who said, "It's oversaturated the market and its consumers are simply getting tired of it."

The market, with two dozen theaters and bookstores open in Denver, appears to have peaked, Tooley said. And other pornographic book dealers and the after operators have reported sales slumps in recent months in various cities. Others said business was just fine.

But the notion that growing public disinterest will ultimately kill pornography is not what the thinking indexes what passes as a lack of interest may instead be a combination of public tolerance and official confusion. Police officers in several cities said that while the market may be saturated downtown, pornography businessmen continue to expand into residential neighborhoods, suburbs and small towns.

In Clarinda, Iowa, a town one might expect television's Apple Family Circle live in. It is Miss Jones, a sex movie, was shown for a few days this fall across the street from the county fairgrounds. Residents appeared to be tolerant.

"I didn't even know it was here," said J.C. Trevu, the county attorney.

Public toleration of pornography is, of course, fair from universal community groups in Philadelphia, Boston and Denver, have fought hard to keep X-rated theaters from opening. But public outrage over obscenity is definitely muted.

"The era for us is diminishing just isn't there any more," said Capt. Jerry Kennedy, head of the Denver police vice bureau. "And we feel that pursuing obscenity cases now would be a waste of taxpayers' money."

Many prosecutors agree. Bud Pines, the Los Angeles city attorney, thinks it is futile to prosecute victimless crimes in which he includes pornography.

"Such prosecutions have proven to be a waste of money," he said. "The district attorney's office abandoned its efforts to prosecute 'Deep Throat' after it spent half a million dollars trying to win a conviction."

Because of conflicting appellate court rulings, he added, "I consider this whole area a dead quadrant. During the last year and a half there has been considerable question about where we are and where we're going in this area."

The Supreme Court guidelines, issued in a 5-to-4 decision on June 21, 1973, now appear to have been more confusing than clarifying.

Mickey Mouse runs for county judge

NEW BRUNSWICK, Tex. (UPI) — Mickey Mouse ran for county judge and lost in a squeaker.

Comal County election officials want a Texas court to stop a recount on the race to determine how many votes were cast for the rodent.

"They said Mickey Mouse is an idiot, lunatic and minor and very possibly an unparoled felon and is, therefore, according to the laws of the State of Texas, ineligible to hold office," the five county election officials said.

Application for a temporary injunction was filed in 207th District Court to stop a recount in Precinct 18, where Jerry Shields, editor of the Canyon Lake Guardian, urged his readers to cast votes for the Walt Disney character.

The only certified candidate in the Nov. 19 county judge race was incumbent Max Womack. Votes for the write-in candidate were not counted in Precinct 18, but 24 votes were cast for Mouse in two other precincts, leading Shields to believe the rodent picked up substantial numbers in the Police gather London blast evidence

London double bombing injures 9 spectators

LONDON (UPI) — Bombers using an old Irish Republican Army tactic struck in the heart of London's most fashionable center Wednesday night on the eve of a government drive to outlaw the IRA.

The extremists lured police and civilians to a residential street near King's Road, birthplace of the mini-skirt, with an initial explosion in a metal mailbox.

A follow-up bomb, hidden behind an iron grill near the mailbox, went off 21 minutes later on Chelsea's Fite Street, injuring nine policemen and four civilians.

The victims were part of a crowd examining the first blast's damages—a wrecked car, smashed windows and scattered letters. Nobody was injured in the initial explosion.

Police officers said it was the first use of the "one-two" booby-trap technique in the IRA's two-year bomb wave in Britain. The Viet Cong perfected the technique in Indochina before the IRA began using it in Ulster.

Buildings damaged in the district, famed for setting worldwide fashion trends, included the former home of Oscar Wilde, the Irish-born poet and playwright who made Tite Street his home in the last century.

About one mile from Parliament, the area is a favorite residential quarter for politicians and other prominent Britons. The National Army Museum is close by.

The blasts, the second series in the capital in three days, came as legislators prepared to debate the government's demand for a tough anti-IRA law by Friday.

The "Prevention of Terrorism" bill would outlaw the IRA in an attempt to curb a bomb campaign that has left 31 dead and 800 injured in England in the past two years.

The British government decided to move against the IRA after two pub bombings killed 19 persons and wounded 202 last week in Birmingham.

Rockefeller money due close study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee next week will provide the public its closest look ever at the Rockefeller family's vast financial empire.

As the final step in the investigation of Nelson A. Rockefeller to be vice president, the family's senior financial adviser is to be called to testify about the fortune he manages.

J. Richardson Dilworth, nephew of the late mayor of Philadelphia, will give "facts and figures" when he testifies Tuesday, Judiciary Chairman Peter W. Rodino said Wednesday.

But the chairman said the testimony will not delve into the individual activities of the Rockefeller brothers, but only the family as a whole.

Dilworth's testimony results from pressure by critics who have said Rockefeller could not serve in the vice presidency without constant conflict of interests with family financial holdings.

If that hurdle is cleared, Rodino said, the committee will vote on Rockefeller next week, clearing the way for House action the week of Dec. 16.

In testimony Friday, Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., urged rejection of the nomination and asked that Congress wait until the new 94th Congress convenes in January before voting on it.

"Private Rockefeller power in combination with great public power would be simply too much for a democracy to risk," she said.

But another liberal New York Democrat, Rep. Shirley Chisholm, said the nomination should be confirmed. "Rockefeller is a courageous public servant," she said, and Congress should not "establish a standard for this nominee to which we ourselves would not be subjected."

Mitchell denies 'stonewalling' charges

(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The chief prosecutor at the Watergate cover-up trial today denied a bitter cross-examination of John N. Mitchell Wednesday by charging the former attorney general with "stonewalling" and hiding the truth.

Mitchell heatedly denied the charges, as he had denied many others earlier in the day.

When he left the witness stand after some additional cross-examination by lawyers for some of his co-defendants, his own attorneys and some of the other defense attorneys looked crestfallen.

The chief prosecutor, James F. Neal, looked exactly the opposite, happy and confident. Some of the assistant special prosecutors, grinning at one another, appeared even more cheerful.

Neal, in a cross-examination that began about 10 a.m. and continued after a lunchtime recess, at 4 p.m., had brought out various discrepancies between testimony Mitchell gave at the trial and testimony that he had given elsewhere.

In answer to many of Neal's questions, Mitchell had simply replied that he could not recall "or that he had no recollection."

In answer to other questions Mitchell got into sparring matches with the prosecutor.

Mitchell based some of his defense on scientific differences with Neal. He contended, for instance, that one set of allegedly perjurious testimony he had given had been "literally true."

He defended himself against a second jury count by pointing out that the allegedly perjurious testimony had been given in response to prosecution questions containing the word "confess." As he defined the word "confess," he said, his response to the prosecution questions had not been perjurious at all.

At another point Mitchell said he wanted to give the jury an explanation for an earlier answer because "I have an urge, Mr. Neal, to get to the truth."

Neal picked up that phrase and, quoting it back to Mitchell, elicited from the former attorney general the concession that he had not told the grand jury everything he had known about the facts behind the Watergate case.

Neal also elicited Mitchell's explanation for, as Mitchell put it, not "volunteering" information. The "obvious reasons," Mitchell said, was that the information might have damaged Richard M. Nixon's 1972 re-election bid.

During the course of the cross-examination Mitchell contended that various of the prosecution's witnesses had given false testimony against him, including John W. Dean 3d, former counsel to Nixon; Jeb Stuart Magruder, Mitchell's former deputy director at the 1972 Nixon re-election campaign; and Fred G. Larue, a former campaign official who had described himself as a close friend of Mitchell.

Mitchell heatedly denied allegations made by these witnesses. Among other things — directly contradicting testimony at the trial — he said that he did not have the "slightest idea" why hundreds of thousands of dollars in cash had been paid to the seven men who participated in the Watergate break-in on June 17, 1972.

There had been testimony that Mitchell had been in on the initial decision to make the payments and that he had authorized various funding for the payments later.

Mine union aides explain contract

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Officials of the United Mine Workers Union were meeting with members in the mine's coalfields today to explain terms of "the fattest labor settlement in this decade"—a three-year contract proposal expected to end the coal strike by next week.

Joe Duffie, secretary-treasurer of UMW District 17, Charleston, W. Va., the union's second largest, said copies of the new proposed contract would be distributed today and he said the miners would vote on the proposal Monday.

If the schedule were followed and the contract ratified, the miners could be back on the job by late next week.

"We hope to have a copy to each individual active man by late morning," Duffie said. "We hope to have them voting on Monday."

The UMW leadership was confident the new contract, which union president Arnold Miller described as the best in a decade, could be approved by the 120,000 striking coal miners to wind up the 16-day strike. UMW district officers appeared confident the miners would ratify the agreement.

There was little expressed dissatisfaction, as occurred last week when an original tentative agreement was reached. But about 100 miners met in Mullens, W. Va., Wednesday and urged rejection of the proposal, calling it "an insult to our intelligence."

Criticism grows over arms accord

(c) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The first significant criticism of President Ford's tentative arms control agreement with the Soviet Union has begun to develop here.

Several administration officials predicted Wednesday, the accord reached in Vladivostok may provoke a sharp political fight on Capitol Hill.

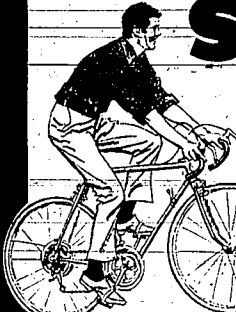

The accord, which puts a ceiling of 2,400 each on the Soviet and American nuclear arsenals of long-range bombers and missiles, has produced skepticism and outright opposition from what appears to be a loose coalition of critics. These include long-time arms-control advocates who believe the agreement does nothing to slow military expenditures and those who are dubious of any arms accord with the Russians.

The administration has still not made public all the details of the Vladivostok accord and does not plan to do so until Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger returns from Peking this weekend and begins bringing Congressional committees next week.

Moreover, the Soviet Union and the United States have not yet exchanged written memorandums on their understandings of the accord worked out in Vladivostok. This will be done on Sunday, an administration official said.

The principal focus of concern by the critics was the part of the agreement allowing each side to place multiple warheads, the so-called MIRV's or more than 1,200 of the missiles that each can possess with the 2,400 total.

Lottery exemption OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee, acting on a request by Attorney General William French Smith, Wednesday approved legislation to exempt state lotteries from the federal gambling ban.

Sasbe called officials from 12 states in Washington Sept. 6 to tell them their current lottery systems violate federal laws prohibiting transportation of lottery information across state lines.

He said that unless Congress acted, he would prepare a civil suit against the states and would file a legal process which normally takes about 90 days to prepare.

Sasbe emphasized at the time that his action would be taken against winners of state-run lotteries — regardless of the outcome — of the federal civil suit.

The new bill would amend the federal gambling statute to allow publication and broad casting of advertising, lists of prizes and winners, and other information about state lotteries.

The measure also would permit mailing across state boundaries newspapers which carry advertisements and other information about operation of the lotteries.

Other provisions of the bill would permit the transportation or mailing of tickets and other materials used in state lotteries.

The legislation, however, would not affect church-run lotteries or non-profit lotteries run by other private organizations.

The bill, at present, would affect 12 states: Connecticut, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Illinois, Maine, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Rhode Island.

Many crimes not reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A government study concluded Wednesday only one-third of the rapes, robberies, aggravated assaults and burglaries that actually occur are reported, mainly because the victims believe nothing can be done.

The Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, a Justice Department agency, said during the first six months of 1973, a survey showed about 15.6 million victims reported the crimes to police. In addition, only 2.9 million of the police crime reports were relayed to the FBI for use in FBI crime statistics.

"The FBI uses police reports to draft its crime statistics, and the FBI statistics have long been relied on as the standard measure of crime level in this country."

The survey was conducted by the LEAA through actual interviews with 125,000 citizens and 15,000 business establishments, many projected to the public as a whole.

A major reason for the gap between the numbers of crimes found in the survey and those which show up in FBI reports was that victims do not bother to report crimes to police, said LEAA Administrator Richard Velde.

"By far the most significant reason was that the individual does not want to be bothered — he feels it is not worth the effort," Velde said.

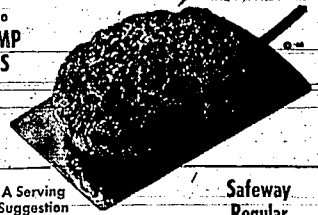

"Another reason was that many law enforcement jurisdictions failed to make voluntary crime reports to the FBI," Velde said.

Professor studies acne problem

MUNCIE, Ind. (UPI) — Hamburgers, french fries and soft drinks may be a major factor in the serious acne outbreak among residents of Indiana's Muncie-Anderson area, according to a Ball State University professor.

Dr. Richard Bogg, a medical sociology professor, has been studying acne vulgaris for two years. He already has studied the complexion of youth in Ireland for comparison with those in the Muncie-Anderson area.

"The people I studied in some of the rural areas of Ireland had little acne and virtually no visible scar tissue," Bogg said. "People in the Muncie-Anderson area have more serious acne than any place I have ever visited."

One of his initial findings is that Irish youngsters don't snack like Americans or "throw to hamburger" stands. Bogg took 120 color portraits of Irish youth in parks last summer as part of his study and is comparing them to similar shots taken in parks in Muncie and Anderson.

"What is surprising about Irish youth is the uniform high quality of complexion in Ireland — not just the absence of acne lesions," Bogg said. "The coloration is fantastic. Those young people are almost all very obedient. It suggests that a very healthful lifestyle contributes to one's general appearance and also is the first defense against acne."

"Unfortunately, it is difficult to pinpoint factors that may be contributing to acne in this region of Indiana. I can say that the Irish are a fasting people whose food habits are not affected by the plattitude of affluence. They don't snack. They definitely do not eat as many items that have been deep-fat fried."

"Bogg bemoaned his belief that American young people would rather keep the acne than improve their eating habits."

But he feels dietary habits are just one factor. He lists social stress, lack of exercise and climate or weather as contributing to the acne problem.

Nude sunbathers cause concern

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two naked sunbathers were arrested on Venice Beach Tuesday by police who announced a get-tough policy to enforce the city's new antinudity ordinance. Officers gave another 20 naked bathers warnings to put their clothes on, as police have been doing since the law was passed three months ago to cope with increasing nudity on city beaches.

But they said those would be the last warnings, and henceforth nudists will be arrested on sight.

The temperature rose to 83 in Los Angeles Tuesday.

Bill introduced

HEALTH Minister Marc Lalonde introduced a bill to the Senate which would transfer the cannabis from the Narcotics Control Act to the Food and Drugs Act. At a press conference in Ottawa, Lalonde explains the difference this will mean in criminal law in the Canadian courts. (UPI)

Criminal intent evidence lacking

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI) — Jefferson County officials say no charges will be filed against the parents of a Mongoloid infant whose parents refused to permit a needed operation. The 14-day-old infant died shortly after the county took over custody of the child and ordered the surgery to correct a bowel obstruction.

District Attorney Nolan Brown said there was "no evidence of criminal intent" on the part of the parents.

The baby girl was born Nov. 14 at a suburban hospital and died at a severe heart disorder and Down's Syndrome mongolism in addition to the bowel obstruction.

The unidentified parents told authorities they refused permission for the operation because they were told by their doctor the child probably was not strong enough to survive the operation.

Their attorney, Paul Cooper, said his clients also felt the bowel surgery would only serve to prolong a life of pain for the child. Doctors said she would almost certainly die before heart surgery could be attempted.

CHICAGO (UPI) - For nearly five weeks, 13-year-old Charles Horace kept a terrifying secret.

Police had attributed the deaths of the boy's three sisters and his brother to a fire that gutted their home. But Charles knew they were wrong.

Finally, the frightened boy told investigators that three intruders had burst into the home, raped and murdered his sisters, clubbed his brother unconscious, left him to die, and covered the slayings by arson.

Investigators Tuesday revised the cause of the four deaths from fire to murder, boosting the number of murders in Chicago to a record 60 for the year with more than a month to go.

Charles went to a confessor's inquest into his sisters' and brother's deaths Monday. Bolstered by his mother, his minister and 35 members of the congregation of the Christ Miracole Healing Center Church, he told his story.

He testified that three young men broke into his home on the night of Oct. 27, while his mother was visiting relatives.

He said they raped his sisters, Caroline, 17, Beatrice, 14, and Cathy, 11. He said the intruders killed one girl by stabbing her in the neck and strangled the others.

Charles said he and a 19-year-old foster brother, who had hidden in a bedroom, managed to escape.

He said their 7-year-old brother, Maurice, was beaten unconscious and fatally injured when the intruders poured gasoline upstairs and down stairs and set the house afire.

Police reopened their investigation and, on the basis of the boy's story, arrested Lloyd Lindsey, 17, and Eugene Ford, 23, both of Chicago. The two were charged with murder, rape and arson.

Student mothers giraffe

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — For the past two months, zoology student Dinah Wilson has been surrogate mother to a spindly baby giraffe named Tasha at the Sacramento Zoo.

Miss Wilson, 18, feeds Tasha 18 ounces of cows' milk from a giant baby bottle every three hours, around the clock, every day of the week, not even for the night.

Student at Sacramento City College, she got started in the giraffe business when Tasha was born. Zoo officials recalled that the mother giraffe never naturally had "rejected" Tasha's older brother at birth, and they were taking no chances with Tasha.

So they took Tasha away from her mother but were careful with the problem of raising the weak, infant themselves. Then, Miss Wilson showed up.

"I love animals," she explained. "I want to become a zoologist and work for a zoo. Jobs are hard to get and I feel this might help open a door for me."

Sandwiched between giraffe feedings, Miss Wilson attends to the class at Sacramento City College. Afterwards, she returns to the zoo for the 11 p.m. feeding, goes home, returns for the 4 a.m. feeding, goes home again, then comes back for the 8 a.m. feeding.

Tasha, who now stands at slightly over five feet tall, is worth $15,000, zoo officials estimate. She will be sold to another zoo when she is weaned at approximately four months.

Besides feeding and caring for Tasha, Miss Wilson also takes her for daily exercise walks around the zoo where Tasha nibbles on tree leaves. Apt. Miss Wilson has trained the lanky little beast to walk on a leash.

"Giraffes have been known to survive with surrogate mothers in captivity, but we have never known of any cases where a giraffe has been halter broken," she noted.

To make sure the bottle milk enters directly down Tasha's three-foot-long throat, her five-foot two-inch guardian just stands on haunches to help administer the feeding.

So far, the two-month-old giraffe, which weighed 115 pounds at birth, has gained 33 pounds. "She's just beginning to eat solid food," hay that is," says Miss Wilson.

"So far, Tasha doesn't seem to miss her real mother at all."

WINNER HONORED
Rodeo awards presented
LEADORE. The Leadore Rodeo Club has finished a successful series of eight team roping which were held on the third Sunday of each month from April through November.

Entry fees were $12 per pair for a three-steer average each entry, progressive. By progressive, a contestant had to catch his two steers in order to receive the third steer.

Most of the Sundays saw 80 or more teams competing for the title which was awarded the winning cowboy, based on the amount of money he won. The maximum number in the competition at any one roping was 80 teams.

Presentations were made after competition was finished, Sunday evening.

George Williams, formerly of Leadore and now of Rupert, was the over-all money winner with $4,042.71—and was presented with the saddle valued at about $500.

Ted O'Neil of May received the second place award of a silver buckle trimmed in gold valued at $150. The third place award was a gift certificate for a $75 pair of cowboy boots and was won by Pete Sacks of Hamilton—Molt. Two awards were furnished by the Leadore Rodeo Club.

Man dreams of holiday high
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Donald Nummerdor was dreaming of a high Christmas, but will instead spend the holidays in jail.

When police found the 23-year-old Nummerdor raising five four-foot marijuana plants in his driveway, he explained he was going to select the tallest one and decorate it as a Christmas tree.

When the judge heard the story, he didn't buy it and sentenced Nummerdor to three months in jail for possession of marijuana.

Nummerdor was arrested Nov. 7 by detective J.R. Spicer, who said he found five marijuana plants between four and five feet tall sitting in large pots in Nummerdor's driveway, clearly visible from the street.

"They were some of the best marijuana plants I've seen, all budding out and everything," Spicer said.

Judy Baboon's roving curtailed by council TIVERTON, R.I. (UPI) — Judy the Baboon can no longer roam the streets, at least not legally.

The town council passed what appears to be the first anti-baboon legislation in the state after a neighbor complained that Mildred Manchester's pet had petrified her 7-year-old daughter and tried to open the front door to her home.

The town council added the words "any other animal" to an ordinance already governing the roaming of farm animals.

Mother sends family to 'heaven'

GREENFIELD, Wis. (UPI) — "Mommy shot everyone. The terrified 9-year-old girl said, because she thought everyone in heaven with Dad for Thanksgiving."

Mrs. Mildred Jansen, 41, dependent over the recent death of her husband, killed her son David, 5, and her mother, Mrs. Helen Bronchala, 70, with a revolver Sunday before turning the gun on herself.

She also shot her daughter, Mary, three times but she lived until help came Tuesday—despite the wounds and despite her own confusion as to whether she should live or die as her mother wanted—die and go to heaven.

"She knew her mother wanted everyone to be in heaven with dad for Thanksgiving," said Sister Mary Daniels, Mary's teacher at St. Alphonsus Catholic School.

Sister Daniels said Mary lay for two days, debating whether to live or die, until a telephone rang Tuesday and she answered it by saying, "Mommy shot everyone."

Mary was shot in the upper chest and abdomen. She was listed in "serious but stable condition" Wednesday by officials at St. Luke's Hospital.

Terrified, in shock and weak from loss of blood, she came to investigate the noise.

They called the shootings murder and suicide. A .32 caliber French-made revolver was found on Mrs. Jansen's abdomen. Relatives said they had never seen the gun and didn't know where it came from.

Police said they found four suicide notes. One of them said:

India grain deal pending

By BERNARD BRENNER
UPI Farm Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI) — A pending deal to ship U.S. grain to India under the Food for Peace program probably will be completed on a staggered basis so that half or more of the aid supplies can come from 1975 crops, government officials indicate.

Agriculture Department sources say they have no knowledge of any formal commitment to begin earlier reports from India that an aid deal involving about one million tons of wheat was in the making to help ward off starvation in the Asian nation.

Other government sources said, however, that while no formal agreement has yet been reached, U.S. officials have been discussing a plan under which India would be promised up to one million tons of wheat but with only 300,000 to 500,000 tons scheduled for delivery during the current 1974-75 marketing year.

The rest of the grain, the sources said, would be shipped out of what officials hoped would be a record 1975 U.S. wheat crop after the 1975-76 marketing year begins next July.

In contrast, Indian wheat purchases from the United States in the three years ending June 30, 1974, had averaged only 454,000 tons a year.

Indian grain import needs shot up this year because a poor monsoon season and a shortage of fertilizers reduced grain production there. Any new food for peace agreement with India would be the first such deal since shipments ended in the early 1970s after the Indian-Pakistan war.

Even before that, however, rising Indian grain production in the "green revolution" of the late 1960s and Indian reluctance to be regarded as an aid recipient had sharply reduced the food aid shipments that once hit nearly 10 million tons in a food crisis year in the mid-60's.

Sales under the food for peace program are made with terms allowing the purchaser nation to repay U.S. credits over 20 to 40 year periods with interest rates of not more than 3 percent.

Cloudy holiday for Magic Valley

Twin Falls, northside, Burley-Report area:
Partly cloudy today. Fair tonight and Friday, except for areas of night and morning fog. Highs both days in the mid 30's. Lows tonight 15 to 25. Probability of precipitation is 10 per cent through Friday. Outlook for Saturday: partly cloudy and not so cold.
Camas prairie, Halley, lower Wood River, Valley: Considerable cloudiness today with periods of light snow mainly this morning. Partly cloudy Friday, becoming fair Friday. Highs both days near 30. Lows tonight 10 to 20 above. "Probability of precipitation about 10 per cent through Friday. Outlook for Saturday: partly cloudy and not so cold."

Synopsis: A cold front passed through Idaho, Wednesday bringing beyond of light snow, especially in southeastern portions of the state. The front has moved west of Idaho this morning, but an upper level low pressure system following the front is now located over northern Utah, producing periods of light snow from the Magic Valley eastward to the upper Snake River valley area. Snow amounts in the valleys are generally under one inch. However, Pocatello has three inches on the ground this morning. Light snow is expected to continue most of the day in southeastern sections of the state. Elsewhere considerable cloudiness with skies becoming partly cloudy by afternoon. Tonight and Friday morning will be generally fair, with the state except for areas of valley

Another storm is approaching the coast off Washington and will bring increasing cloudiness to northern Idaho by Friday afternoon with a chance of a few snow showers in the extreme northern sections of the state. Extended outlook—Saturday through Monday calls for mostly dry, but increasing chances of showers towards the end of the period.

Home spending lid set

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House Judiciary Committee Wednesday approved legislation to limit the amount of money the government can spend on private presidential activities.

The measure, approved by voice vote, would limit the Secret Service's permanent expenditures for protective facilities and facilities in any one privately owned home of a president.

Ford proposals nibble at budget totals

WASHINGTON—Poor people will pay more for food stamps, and the government will phase out health welfare checks. Health research grants will be trimmed, wealthy states will pay a "bigger" share of Medicaid costs, and many school districts will lose "impact" aid.

revenues. Estimated receipts from government sale of oil and "stockpile" commodities seem unrealistically high. Together, these obstacles to Ford's plans mean that the deficit almost certainly will exceed his projection of $9.2 billion and could approach $20 billion in fiscal 1975, the year ending June 30. The deficit for fiscal 1976 is headed for double or higher, instead of the balanced budget Ford had sought.

Mostly because of Congressional cuts that the administration opposed, Ford estimated defense spending at $83.2 billion, $2.6 billion lower than the estimate in June and $4.8 billion above last year. "Further cuts in defense spending would be exceedingly unwise," he said.

But Ash emphasized that the president's took account of reductions and increases already voted by congress or resulting from other factors. The Pentagon has been cut $2.2 billion, so Ford proposed only small additional reductions. Social programs have been increased, and Ford proposed to limit the rise.

Combing revisions to date and Ford's recommendations, the biggest reductions from the $284.4 billion budget of last June would be $2.6 billion for the defense department; $2.5 billion for I.R.E.W.; $1.2 billion for the Environmental Protection Agency; and $700 million for the Agriculture Department.

The biggest combined increases since June would be $1.7 billion for the Labor Department (mostly for aid to the unemployed); $1.5 billion for interest on the debt; and $300 million for the Veterans Administration.

He said his men had put out "some most delicious poison," but the mouse scorned it. Police said Monday night they had caught the mouse and killed it.

Analysis

Ford's proposals for aid to unemployed workers, Congressional spending-increases, declining revenues, rising interest on the federal debt and other factors have boosted prospective spending to $306.8 billion and the deficit to $13.8 billion.

The recommended spending cuts totaling $4.6 billion would reduce outlays to $292.2 billion, and the deficit to $9.2 billion. That still would be a big increase from fiscal 1974 expenditures of $284.4 billion and the deficit of $3.5 billion.

Participating objections that cuts in social programs too much and defense too little, the President said benefit payments to individuals still are projected at $11.4 billion, up $1 billion from the earlier estimate and $1.4 billion from fiscal 1974.

Congress has set a ceiling on how much the Army may pay out in salaries for the fiscal year that began July 1. Officials say they are in danger of overspending. To avoid that, the Army will have to shrink over the next few months before buildings are again in the spring, the official said.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The all-volunteer Army has too many volunteers and is telling its recruiters to take it easy next month.

Only a year ago there were predictions that without the draft the Army could never reach its authorized strength. But since August recruiters signed up 410,000 more volunteers than planned. The original December goal of 14,100 was cut to 8,100.

Underground firing slated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union is preparing to deploy its first multiple-warhead nuclear missiles in remodeled underground firing sites within a few months, the Pentagon said Wednesday.

The family of four new missiles represents a major leap in the arms race for the Soviets, who currently can launch only single-warhead missiles equipped to hit one of the more potent multiple-warhead types now deployed by the United States.

One of the four new Soviet intercontinental missiles, the SS11, is capable of carrying eight warheads which could be aimed at eight separate targets, the Pentagon said. The four have been tested over the past two years.

"It is anticipated that there will be a very large scale deployment of new missiles to replace old missiles at the end of this year or more likely early next year," said Pentagon spokesman William Beecher at a news conference.

He said the Soviets apparently are not violating the 1972 Strategic Arms Limitation Agreement with current reconstruction of existing concrete silos for the new missiles.

The news came less than 24 hours after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, a Utah Republican, said President Ford's new Vladivostok arms accord as allowing the Russians to deploy many missiles with multiple-warhead capability. Jackson also said the agreement would lead to a strategic buildup by the two countries.

The Russians currently have more missiles than the United States, but the American arsenal is more modern.

Over the past two years the Russians have periodically tested four new intercontinental missiles designated SS16 through SS19. The SS stands for surface-to-surface missiles, which are housed in the concrete firing "silos" underground.

The SS11 is the largest of the four. It is capable of carrying eight warheads which can be aimed at separate targets. These are called MIRV, for multiple independently targetable reentry vehicles. U.S. Poseidon missiles on submarines can carry up to 14 warheads.

But the SS11 has a throw weight or payload of 15,000 pounds compared to only 1,200 pounds for the American Minuteman and Poseidon missiles.

The Soviets now have almost 1,600 silos for their older, RB-35s, carrying five or six SS1s, first deployed in 1961, to the SS11 in 1960. The new deployment would be the first in six years.

Beecher said the Soviets have already started some reconstruction work on their existing silos.

Charles Jenson and 1949 Dodge

Man hates to sell auto

SALMON Charles J. Jenson says he is selling his car and giving up the "my age — I'll be 70 next June 19."

Jenson, who came to Salmon a month ago to live after his wife died in California in May, said he has had only one accident in his life.

"A woman ran into my front fender while I was in Jamestown, N.D. this summer," Jenson drives a 1949 Dodge sedan. He bought it from a cousin in 1962.

"It's probably got a 100,000 miles on it, but it's still in very good running condition. It has a new motor. I ruined the old one coming over last Fall. Pass on my way to Salmon a year ago last spring."

Jenson said he hates to get rid of the car.

"It hurts very much to part with it but my children don't like the idea of me keeping an antique any more."

"They are worried I'll get involved in an accident sooner or later. I feel I'm capable of driving far safer, have good eyesight and hearing. But I figure this way. At my age I might be involved in an accident maybe sooner than a younger person."

"So, by not driving anymore there is a possible chance I might save my life and also someone else's."

Jenson recalled that he had been through Salmon many years ago the first time.

"I remember there was a sign hanging on either end of the train depot with big salmon fish. The railroad went out in the 1930s."

"He was born June 19, 1907, in Livermore, Minn., and was married Aug. 29, 1924, in Jamestown."

"I've been a jack-of-all-trades and master of none. My wife and I worked in state hospitals in North Dakota and Montana."

He has five sons and two daughters, along with 23 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren.

"This week I've put an advertisement in the local paper to sell his car and said from now on he will walk.

Unwed mother resigns

LONDON (UPI) — Helen Morgan of Wales, the first unmarried mother to win the title of Miss Great Britain today, she was resigning the honor because she did not want to furnish her first child in a forthcoming divorce suit.

Organizers of the beauty contest offered the title to Miss South Africa who said she would consider it.

"Miss Morgan phoned me a few minutes ago and said all she wanted to do was go to bed and get some sleep," said contest chief Julia Morley.

"Obviously her decision is irrevocable."

The Welsh brunette had said Tuesday she was bowing out because she feared she would be named the other woman in a pending divorce suit.

Mrs. Morley immediately telephoned 19-year-old Annette Kral, the runner-up in the televised contest Friday.

"I liked the chance before, especially the summers. Even though I know very few people, I like to play cribbage and chess."

Arizona Western seeded first for CSI tournament

Arizona Western, figured to be one of the best junior college teams in the nation, rates as the favorite Friday and Saturday night in the College of Southern Idaho holiday weekend tournament.

Arizona Western, coached by Bob Bantfield, whose total coaching experience to this point has come at CSI, brings a team reputedly starting four major college prospects.

The hope, of course, is that CSI, with a 1-0 record, will go into the Arizona Western in the finals Saturday night. Before then, the two junior colleges will have to get past some Jayvee teams.

Arizona Western will meet Idaho State Jayvees at 7 p.m. Friday in the CSI gymnasium while the host Golden Eagles go against an unknown quantity at 9 p.m. in Montana State's Jayvees. It will be the loser at 7 p.m. and winner-winner at 9 p.m. Saturday night.

Arizona Western will be the tallest team in the tournament and boasts an excellent guard in Al Greer, who was nearly everyone's all-America prep pick last spring.

Meanwhile, Coach Boyd Grant reports his Eagles in good physical condition for the two games ahead.

He again will be putting his hope for success in defense and depth, something that resulted in a record-breaking 122-point effort against Walla Walla last Saturday.

Still the coach says this wasn't nearly the best game he expects of his charges. "We can play smarter, ball," he says. "We scored a lot of points because we hustled well, on defense and then, of course, picked up a lot more when they (Walla Walla) went in the full court press. But this team can play with its head a lot better."

Wood River opens at Minico, Burley

Wood River's Wolverines, runner-up in the state A-2 tournament last year, make the most ambitious opening in the schools' history this weekend to feature an abnormally schedule of nine games.

Coach Fred Trenkle's Wolverines will be at Minico Friday and then cross the river to test Burley Saturday. He comes armed with a junior-dominated team that performed well as sophomores and provides the total amount of height on the team. Wood River boasts only four seniors.

Pages (backer), 6-6 senior, five two inches in height from last year is Ron Pempel at 6-6 while Paul Duncan, who sat out last year with a knee injury, brings 6-5 height to the team.

On Saturday night, Coach Ivan Davis welcomes the Wolverines with seven seniors headed by two-time letterman Terry Vaughn, 5-9 guard, and 6-3 jumping jacks leadfully up from the Jayvee club. Coach Bruce Draper, 6-4 senior, cracked the starting lineup last season. Tallest man on the squad is 6-5 junior Paul Jones up from the Jayvee club. Coach Davis also lists three sophomores on his varsity roster.

In other action, the Shoshone Indians will travel to Deeth where the Hornets will be inaugurating their new gymnasium.

Glenn Perry jumps two classification over its head for the opener but its that traditional thing with Mountain Home. This one comes in the Mountain Home gymnasium.

Two Mountain Home conference teams will leave the area Saturday night to play in Dubois Friday and Saturday to participate in the Clark County Invitational while Carey goes to southeastern Idaho to meet North Gem at Bancroft Friday and then tests Rockland Saturday on the way home.

Shoshone returns home Saturday night to host the Crawford Wolves while Richfield will make a long haul to Ririe for a one-game stay.

The Twin Falls' Jerome game originally scheduled for Friday night has been moved back to Tuesday.

Youth must carry Wood River

JIMMEY — There's better height and scoring potential this year's Wood River basketball team but Coach Fred Trenkle believes defense will have to carry the Wolverines again this season.

The reasons for this claim are obvious. All the height is young — and not really that tall — and only four of the men on the club are seniors.

Still, with Juniors Randy Linderman, 6-4, Pat House, 6-2 and Robin Tracy, 6-11, Coach Trenkle will at least have someone he has looked up to once in a while during time-out huddles.

The Wolverines posted a 19-7 record last year and took second in the state A-2 tournament. Both marks were much better than anticipated when the season began.

Back from that club are 5-9 guard, Tim Martin; 5-11 guard Scott Uhrig; 5-11 forward Steve Wheeler, and 5-8 guard Ralph Shirts. Although lettered for one year and are the total representation of the senior class.

Juniors counted on are Tim Young, 5-8 guard; Craig Falcon, 5-9 guard; Kevin Taylor, 5-9 guard; Kevin McBride, 5-11 guard; Andy Moore, 6-0 center; Robin Tracy, 6-11, forward; Pat House, 6-2 forward, and Randy Linderman 6-4 center.

Coach Trenkle believes coaching last year's record will be difficult because the Wolverines will have Friday games again at schools. In fact, they open against Minico and Burley this weekend.

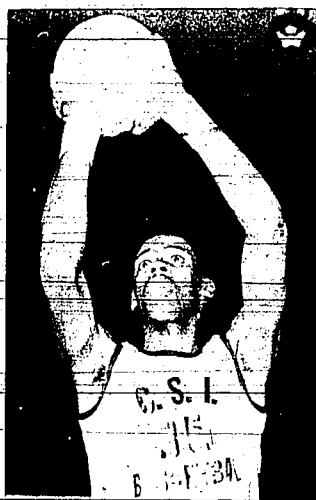

He also anticipates a tough fight in the Southcentral Idaho conference, citing improved quickness and speed height at both ends and the possibility of two tall, reputedly solid players to Gooding. But he's not overlooking the other teams either.

Following this week's openers, the Wood River schedule includes Dec. 6, Wood River at Glenns Ferry; Dec. 13, Piler at Wood River; Dec. 14, Wood River at Wendell; Dec. 17, Shoshone at Wood River; and Dec. 20, Elko at Wood River.

Jan. 3, Jerome at Wood River; Jan. 4, Burley at Wood River; Jan. 11, Gooding at Wood River; Jan. 17, Wendell at Wood River; Jan. 18, Wood River at Buhl; Jan. 21, Wood River at Piler; Jan. 24, Wood River at Shoshone; and Jan. 31, Wood River at Jerome.

Feb. 7, Wood River at Gooding; Feb. 8, Glenns Ferry at Wood River; and Feb. 14, Buhl at Wood River.

Coach Trenkle is seeking two more games that would like to talk to any school whose games and open dates available.

Eagle standouts

FRESHMEN STARS for College of Southern Idaho, guard Andre Wakefield of Chicago and Ken Davis of Detroit, will lead the Golden Eagles into a four-game weekend tournament in the CSI gymnasium Friday and Saturday. CSI meets Montana State Jayvees at 9 p.m. after top-seeded Arizona Western meets ISU Jayvees at 7 p.m. Friday.

THORN CREEK RESERVOIR, located in the foothills north of Gooding, already has a spot of ice moving across it. The ice brings death, through lack of oxygen, for trout and has prompted the Idaho Fish and Game Department to install an air pumping station that will run through the winter and sustain fish life.

DIESEL FUEL TANK is unloaded by personnel from the Idaho Fish and Game Department. The 1,500-gallon tank will keep an engine and compressor running for about three months, hopefully long enough to stop winter kill of fish in Thorn Creek reservoir.

Ice already moving in GOODING — Artificial respiration for trout in Thorn Creek reservoir will be provided this winter — and winters to come — by the Idaho Fish and Game Department. In an effort to stop the annual winter die-off of fish in the impoundment, the department has established an air-pumping station which is designed to keep oxygen in the water.

Although it is expensive, Regional Biologist Bob Bell believes that the overall cost of planting fingerlings and other management tools may amount to more in the long run.

The pumping station is diesel-operated, a 1,500-gallon diesel fuel tank keeping the compressor running roughly for three months. The air is put into the water through long weighted lines, appropriately perforated.

"The compressor system should provide enough for a line roughly one-quarter mile long. The bubbling action of the air surfacing also is expected to keep a small portion of the impoundment open. The resulting wave action, combined with the pumping station, should provide enough oxygen to carry the fish into next spring.

There has been the problem on Thorn Creek reservoir. Located in the ridge separating the Snake River plain from the high prairies — roughly 20 miles north of Gooding — the reservoir freezes in early and the ice stays late.

Through oxidation of vegetation and fish use, the ice has sealed the water from air and any chance for oxygen exchange. Partial winter kills have been experienced for many years but last year there was a complete die-off.

Bell suggested the pumping station as an alternative to the annual catchable-size plantings.

"The station is expensive, but the cost of raising trout to catchable size is going up rapidly," he said. "We feel that the cost difference between planting fingerlings and catchables is enough to justify the pumping expense."

And there is another intangible. How much — is a quality fishery worth, even if it is an impoundment of modest size?

"Thorn Creek raises excellent fish. The growth rate is fast and the quality of the fish and meat is good. I would compare it to Magic," Bell continued.

"We planted catchables that average three to a pound last spring and right now Idaho men are taking out fish a little over a pound. By stopping the winter die-off, we anticipate the reservoir will be producing fish in the three-to-five-pound class before long and continue to do it. It costs a lot of money to raise a trout to five pounds in a hatchery — and that doesn't consider the pleasure of catching trophy fish gives the public."

Vandalism is a real threat because Thorn Creek is isolated. Perhaps its best protection is — that — isolation — once the snow comes, the only access is by foot or snow machine. Should vandalism crop up, the department will have to re-ess the pumping program.

The air station also will bring about another change, Bell said he would recommend a short season, doing away with the possibility of ice fishing, because of safety.

"We feel that the air line will keep a trough of open water about eight feet wide and, of course, the length of the line. If this won't mean there might not be some sort or rotten spots in ice away from the line... I don't think the possibility of someone falling through a thin spot justifies keeping the reservoir open year-round," he pointed out.

Maintenance will also be a problem for the department. "We'll fill that 1,500-gallon tank as late in the year as we dare wait. We figure it should run the engine and compressor for three months. Starting late in November, that should get us through to about the first of March and we should be okay by then," Bell said.

He added the department will reportedly check the operation by snow machine throughout the period.

Bell also praised the cooperation of the Thorn Creek Cattle Association, which owns the dam and land surrounding the reservoir. "They've really been great. They want to keep it open to the public. We've closed the east side to fishermen to let the cattle come in for water without being spooked, but the public has free access to the rest of it."

"When we asked for permission to try this pump station, they gave it right away," he concluded.

Kuhn pins stiff penalty on Yankee owner

NEW YORK (UPI) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, often criticized for his own inaction, brought down an iron fist on George M. Steinbrenner III Wednesday when he declared the New York Yankee general partner "ineligible and incompetent" to take any part in his club's affairs for the next two years.

businessman to the role of a spectator. Although Steinbrenner will be allowed to retain his stock in the Yankees if he so wishes, he is prohibited from taking any part in the management or affairs of the American League club.

Steinbrenner, who was convicted Aug. 23 of this year after pleading guilty to federal charges involving illegal campaign contributions, reacted immediately to Kuhn's decision by indicating he would go to court.

explaining the background of the Steinbrenner case and its consequences, stated that such harsh action was required so that the public would retain confidence in the integrity of baseball.

decision," Kuhn summed up. "Mr. Steinbrenner is hereby declared ineligible and incompetent, for the specified period, to manage or advise in the management of the affairs of the New York Yankees. He is prohibited, for the specified period, from engaging in any association whatsoever with any major league club or its officers or directors."

"Naturally we are shocked beyond belief by Mr. Kuhn's decision," said Steinbrenner, who has been associated with the Yankees since January of 1972. "It is certainly a wonderful Thanksgiving present. I will be meeting with my attorney, Edward Bennett Williams, in the next few days and will announce our plans and our intent to appeal early next week. We haven't yet had time to carefully study the full decision but we understand that Mr. Kuhn has found that I am 'ineligible and incompetent.' It's impossible to understand how the commissioner of baseball could call me incompetent."

authorities who were investigating the contributions. In regard to this, Kuhn said, "Attempting to influence employees to behave dishonestly is the kind of misconduct which, if ignored by baseball, would undermine the public's confidence in our game. Ignoring this conduct could easily lead to suspicion that such conduct may occur within the game itself, and affect play on the field."

Dallas faces one-time member of dream backfield

DALLAS (UPI) — The Dallas Cowboys will be in the rather peculiar position Thanksgiving Day of watching part of their "dream" backfield playing for the other team.

It would be the running at "lack to end all." It would be hand off and watch them go. But it never happened.

Csonka tries acupuncture as last resort to heal ankle

MIAMI (UPI) — "I had to do something," said burly Larry Csonka — so the Miami Dolphins' star fullback began taking acupuncture treatment for the torn left ankle which has kept him limping the past four weeks.

"Believe me, I'm trying this as a last resort," Csonka told newsmen. "I've never had acupuncture before, but I had to do something."

acupuncture, he said. "The ankle just wasn't coming around," said Shufu. "There wasn't any structural damage or anything, but when he asked me if he could go ahead, I said yes."

Thomas was soon released from the team because of his moody manner and comments he had made about team officials, Schramm and coach Tom Landry's specialty.

Dolphin Coach Don Shula said Csonka reported feeling "pretty good" as the Dolphins opened practice for their game against the Cincinnati Bengals next Monday night.

"This from the man voted for his ability to shove off pain as well as he carries a would-be tackler on his back for extra yards. He can't remember the exact number of times his nose has been broken.

Kings drub Lakers

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Nate Archibald and Sam Lacey sparked a 31-13 rout in the last 8 1/2 minutes of the second quarter Wednesday night to lead the Kansas City-Omaha Kings to a 107-89 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers in the National Basketball Association game.

The win was the fourth straight for the Kings, who raised their record to 12-9 and lifted their lead to a full game over idle Detroit in the Midwest Division.

McMillan, Holton unanimous selections to all-Big Sky team

BOISE (UPI) — There was never any doubt about Boise State University quarterback Jim McMillan and his favorite receiver, flanker Mike Holton, being named to the 1974 All-Big Sky Conference Football team. The only question left was who the other players would be.

McMillan, a first team member in 1973, was one of four unanimous picks, along with Holton, Boise State defensive back Rolfe Woolsey and Idaho State offensive guard John Roman.

The senior quarterback at Boise State leaves the school with a whole hog full of records. He is the NCAA Division II passing and total offense leader this year, and holds practically every Big Sky and school record in passing and total offense.

In his two years as the starting quarterback, the Broncos went 6-0 in the Big Sky for back-to-back titles, plus gained two invitations to the NCAA Division II playoffs. They meet Central Michigan in the quarterfinals Nov. 30.

Holton, with Montana safety Greg Anderson the only sophomore on the first unit, was usually in the receiving end of McMillan's aerials. The 57, 185-pounder led the conference with 1,499 yards in catches.

McMillan was so far ahead of every other quarterback with 3,900 yards passing and 3,101 yards in total offense — no other signal caller got a first place vote or more than three for the second team.

Montana State runningback Steve Kraeher, the conference's leading rusher with 1,034 yards, and fullback J.C. Chadhand of Idaho joined McMillan in the backfield.

The other receivers were Idaho State's Tom Hofmann — his third time on the first squad — and Idaho tight end Steve Duncanson. The only other repeater on the offense was Montana State tackle Alan Ward.

Montana State, runner-up to Boise in the league standings, and the champion Broncos both placed six men on the 22-man first team.

Other players on offense were guard Jim Boyle and center Joe Johnson, both of Montana State, and Weber State tackle Luther Parker.

Joining unanimous pick Woolsey as sophomore Anderson on the defense are repeaters Wayne Hammond at tackle and Steve Dobbs at defensive back, both from MSU.

Montana linebacker Ron Rosenberg was another repeater of sorts, having been picked to the 1972 team, but missing last year.

Other players picked to the defense were linemen Matt Kendon and Ray Navoral of Idaho State, and Saia Misa Jr. of Boise State, linebackers Ron Davis and Loren Schmidt of Boise State, and back Sly Hardy of Montana.

McMillan, who put just about everything, also was named Most Valuable Player of the offense, and Rosenberg's comeback earned him the defense MVP honor.

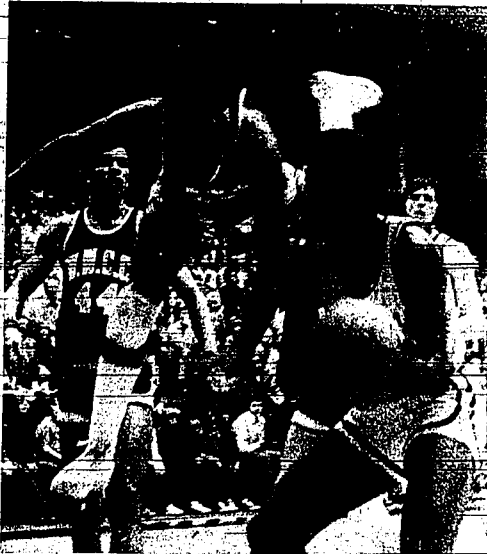

Specialty team members on the number one squad were place kicker Pat Bolton of Montana State and punter Steve Belier of Idaho State. This was the first year the conference picked kickers.

Boise State and Montana State also dominated the second team, both getting six spots again.

Defense holds Shoshone hopes in cage opens this weekend

SHOSHONE — Defense is expected as the probable strength while football injuries fight now are the weakness for the Shoshone Indians who open their basketball season with two games this weekend.

Couch Jack Williams' Indians will travel to Declo Friday night and return home Saturday to entertain the Castleford Wolves.

Couch Williams right now has only seven fully healthy players — but things are improving there as the football season falls further behind on the calendar.

"We're counting on (Rob) Haddock and Leo Williams to be our leaders," Couch Williams says. "Haddock was the leading scorer last year and Williams, at 6-11, is one of the toughest defensive men in the conference."

"We have good height this year but need a constant scorer from the forward and center position," he continued. "We are going to count on our defense for winning ball games this year. Right now, coming off the football playoffs with New Plymouth, we have seven healthy ball players to open the season. But once we get over the injuries, we will be in contention for the Little League championship. It will be a tough league this year."

Returning lettermen are Mike Heath, 59 guard; Steve Koly, 6-1 forward; Haddock, 5-9 guard; Paul Peveman, 6-2 center; Williams, 5-11 guard; Mark Anderson, 6-0 forward; Don Setser, 6-0 forward; and Rob Parkhurst, 6-0 center.

Underclassmen counted on for help are Dale Sorenson, 6-0 center; Randy Laverty, 5-9 guard; Alan Garrett, 5-10 guard; Bryan Kinghorn, 5-10 guard; Brian Ross, 6-0 forward; and Jim Hardy, 6-1 center.

The Shoshone schedule includes Nov. 29, Shoshone at Declo; Nov. 30, Castleford at Shoshone; Dec. 6, Shoshone at Hagerman; Dec. 7, Filer at Shoshone; Dec. 10, Shoshone at Castleford; Dec. 13, Hagerman at Shoshone; Dec. 17, Shoshone at Wood River; and Dec. 19, Shoshone at Gooding.

Jan. 3, Shoshone at Kimberly; Jan. 4, Declo at Shoshone; Jan. 11, Wendell at Shoshone; Jan. 17, Shoshone at Filer; Jan. 18, Valley at Shoshone; Jan. 24, Wood River at Shoshone; Jan. 25, Glenns Ferry at Shoshone; and Jan. 31, Kimberly at Shoshone.

Feb. 7, Shoshone at Wendell; Feb. 8, Gooding at Shoshone; Feb. 13, Shoshone at Valley; and Feb. 15, Shoshone at Glenns Ferry.

Polygraph idea debated

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and Emory Bellard of Texas A&M, whose teams meet Friday to help decide who will be Southwest Conference champion, differed publicly Wednesday about submitting to lie detector tests concerning recruiting.

Bellard, once Royal's assistant, said he opposed taking such tests.

"I frankly would not be in favor of something of this nature because I think it's a contradiction of normal procedure and behavior," he said.

Veteran eager for new season

SEATTLE (UPI) — For a guy beginning his 30th season as a basketball coach, Mary Harshman, head man of the Washington Huskies, is all psyched up for the coming campaign.

"I have no trouble at all," says Harshman. "I'm more excited about the team than anybody."

Since taking the Husky helm three years ago, Harshman has a record of 154 victories against 77 losses and a .667 winning rate.

While UCLA has dominated the Pacific-8 Conference in recent years, Harshman, as other coaches, thinks this time around everybody has a shot at the crown.

"I've heard through the grapevine," says Harshman, "that John Wooden thinks UCLA's going to have its most exciting team ever. They don't have one dominant player like they've had the past years, so they're going to have to scrap."

Washington's basic attack will be the high-post offense, but Harshman says the Huskies will be able to operate "at least two and possibly three offenses."

Larry Pounds, a 67-senior from Pasadena, Calif., figures to be Harshman's plans this season. Pounds averaged 16.7 points per game in Pac-8 play last season and hauled in 9.3 rebounds per game.

"Larry's the heart of our ball club," toughnesswise," says Harshman.

Larry Hansen and James Edwards, 6-10 $\frac{1}{2}$ and 6-11, respectively, will handle the post. Hansen is a junior and Edwards a sophomore and both won letters last year.

Clarence Ramsey and Chester Dorsey appear to be the standouts in the back court. Ramsey has good outside range and averaged 15.7 in conference play last year.

Birmingham rallies past Hawaii 22-19

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Quarterback Matthew Reed came off the bench to spark the Birmingham Americans to a comeback 22-19 World Football League semifinal playoff victory Wednesday night over Hawaii.

Powell for the action, point and pulled Birmingham ahead 14-11.

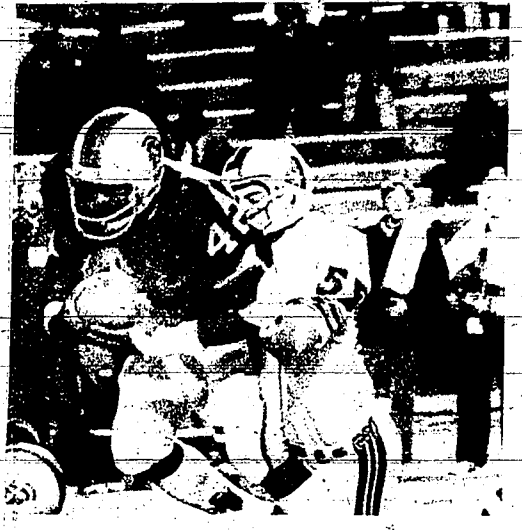

Reed stretched the lead to 22-11 when he scored on a 34-yard run after engineering a 94-yard scoring drive.

The victory before an estimated crowd of 16,000 put Birmingham in the WFL's World Bowl Dec. 5 against the winner of Friday's Memphis Orlando semifinal game.

The win also kept alive the Americans' unbroken string of victories on their home field.

Hawaii drove 57 yards in seven plays to take an 11-7 lead early in the second period when quarterback Randy Johnson scored from the one-yard line.

Johnson passed 173 yards to Vin Clements and closed the gap to three points at 22-19 with 4:37 left in the game.

Barnes rejoins team

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — Marvin Barnes, the star rookie center for the fledgling St. Louis Spirits, says he plans to rejoin the team Friday night after his weekend last week court case was dismissed.

Barnes left the Spirits a week ago Wednesday night, reportedly unhappy with his $2.1 million contract. He did not join the team for the beginning of their three-game road trip Wednesday night in San Diego, but said he plans to be on hand Friday night when the Spirits play the Utah Stars in Salt Lake City.

Reached at his St. Louis County apartment, Barnes told UPI Wednesday night he would notify team officials Thursday of his decision to get back with the team.

"Basketball is my game," the 6-foot-9-center from Providence College said. "I love it. I can't afford to get out of shape."

Team officials had said that Barnes could not join the team again until he had made up his mind that he was satisfied with his current contract. When asked if his decision to begin playing again meant that he would not try for any further contract changes, Barnes replied: "I talked to my lawyer (Irwin Wolner), and we and he decided it was time for me to go back."

Barnes met with Spirits officials Tuesday and they told him the decision was his whether or not to resume playing for the first-year ABA team.

Barnes was suspended last Thursday night, 24 hours after walking out on his team before a game in New York.

Four starters back for Glens Ferry

GLENN'S FERRY — With only one starter gone from last year's team, the Glens Ferry Pilots hope to improve on last season's 14-9 record.

They open with arranged one, however, traveling to Mountain Home Friday night to test the A-1 Tigers in a traditional rivalry duel.

Coach Gordon Brown lost Mike Freeman off last year's lineup, meaning most of the height and scoring punch is still there.

The top scorers last year were Steve Shrum, now a 6-0 senior forward, and Jay Black, 6-3 scorer-rebounder. Those two have been representing the Pilots well for the past two seasons.

Adding more rebounding strength is senior Chris Johnson and 5-10 guard Mark Shelly is back for another year. The only other senior on the club is Louie Egusquiza, who saw considerable action last season.

Juniors trying for their first letters are Bryon McLean, 5-10 guard; Mark Anderson, 6-1 forward; Charli's Farris, 6-1 forward and Steve McAnulty, 6-6 guard.

Kevan King, a 5-7 guard, is the only sophomore now listed on the varsity.

Following their opener at Mountain Home, the Pilots' schedule includes Dec. 6, Wood River at Glens Ferry; Dec. 7, Glens Ferry at Castletford; Dec. 13, Gooding at Glens Ferry; Dec. 14, Glens Ferry at Filer; Dec. 20, Glens Ferry at Wendell; Dec. 21, Glens Ferry at Kimberly; and Dec. 28, Glens Ferry at New Plymouth.

Jan. 11, Glens Ferry at Valley; Jan. 14, Kimberly at Glens Ferry; Jan. 17, Glens Ferry at Gooding; Jan. 21, Filer at Glens Ferry; Jan. 25, Glens Ferry at Shoshone; and Jan. 28, Buhl at Glens Ferry.

Feb. 1, Wendell at Glens Ferry; Feb. 7, McElley at Glens Ferry; Feb. 14, Glens Ferry at Wood River; Feb. 14, Mountain Home at Glens Ferry; and Feb. 15, Shoshone at Glens Ferry.

Navy won't pick quarterback until eve of Army showdown

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — A decision is being delayed as to who will be the Navy quarterback for the heated interservice rivalry Saturday against Army, and Navy Coach George Welsh says who plays won't make any difference.

Welsh has the pick of Junior Phil Poirier, the starter in the first nine games, or freshman Mike Hoban, who started in last week's 22-0 loss to Georgia Tech.

This choice won't be made until the night before the nationally televised classic at Philadelphia's Veterans' Stadium, Welsh said.

"We've got a certain offense we're going to run," he said. "The quarterback is not going to make that much difference. We're capable of winning with either one."

Welsh said both teams, sharing 31 seasons records, will be psyched for the game. "I'm sure they'll (Army) be more emotional against us and they'll hit us and they'll hit us very precise and they'll hit, they'll hit for 60 minutes. They won't give up," he predicted. "And I expect that we're not going to be able to just take the football and go up and down the field."

Welsh's formula for victory is "a good game out of (Cleveland) Cooper ... and a good day out of our quarterback."

Cooper is Navy's top runner, a senior who holds the academy's career rushing mark with 2,597 yards in 561 carries.

This season he has carried only 148 times for 333 yards, but Welsh said "this was because we haven't given him much running room this fall and we haven't given him the ball as much."

As a sophomore Cooper set the Midties' single season rushing record, amassing 1,041 yards. The previous record was set by Heisman Trophy winner Joe Bettino in 1966 with 834 yards. Cooper also surpassed Bettino's mark last year with 880 yards.

Welsh said Navy may have "better speed in some areas" than the Cadets. "I think we have bigger people in some areas than they have and we'll match up better physically with Army than we did against some of the other teams we've had to play."

Army has been weak in "defending the deep pass" but Welsh said Navy has not been able to execute that type of play all season, adding "I don't know if we're capable of throwing the ball that much and that well."

He predicted Army defense will blitz more than they have in past games this season because "we've had trouble with the blitz."

Edwards to leave San Diego

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Suspended San Diego Chargers fullback Ed Edwards, the team's most valuable player in 1972, says he has played his last down for the Chargers.

"I've got to go somewhere else," he said. "I couldn't play in San Diego any more."

Edwards was suspended by Coach Tom Broderick Monday for failing to appear at a team meeting prior to the Green Bay Packers game.

Edwards admitted Tuesday that he did not attend Tuesday's meeting, but left National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle would lift the suspension.

Edwards blamed offensive backfield coach Ernest Durden for the situation.

"I was about 30 to 35 minutes before game time," Edwards said, "and we were sitting in a locker room about 20 feet by 300 feet. That coach (Durden) walked near me and he never said a word to me."

Arson rises in US

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Arson, a crime which gets worse as the economy gets worse, is increasing at 12 per cent a year and has more than tripled in the last 10 years. Some experts call it a "near perfect crime."

In 1973 alone, 94,000 cases of arson were recorded across the United States with property damage totaling at least $2.2 billion and resulting in an undetermined number of deaths or personal injuries.

Executives in Hartford, known as "Insurance City" because it is home for many of the industry giants, are hesitant to talk publicly about the subject because, in the words of one:

"Arson is a near perfect crime and it won't help matters to advertise it."

Arson seems to increase as the strength of the economy decreases, with the Depression-era 1930's marking one of its worst periods.

The conviction rate for arson, a felony that carries the death penalty in some states, is about 1 per cent, according to a 1971 study by the Stanford Research Institute.

"Arson for profit is worst in America's inner cities, the insurance experts said, although it is on the rise in suburban and rural areas."

"They mostly blamed city real estate investments have soured or equity owners under federally insured programs who are unable to keep up with mortgage payments, and the holders of defaulted property which is unsalable."

"The overall arson rate is up 265 per cent over the 1963 rate, according to John Ottosen of the National Fire Protection Association headquartered in Boston."

He said some experts estimate half or more of the $600 million of "suburban slushes" in 1972, which did a total $1 billion damage, actually may have been arson.

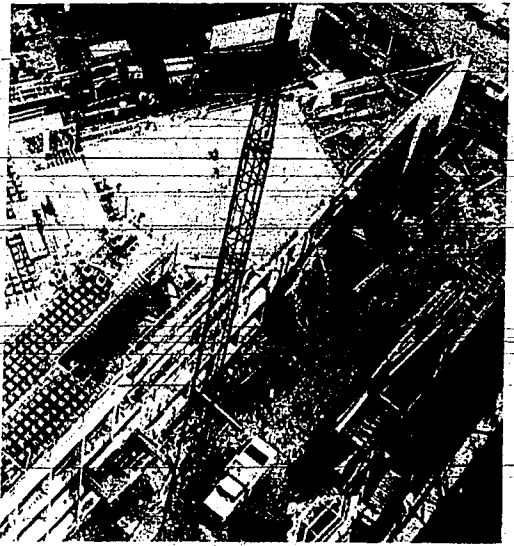

IRS slates seminars

BOISE (UPI)—The Internal Revenue Service will conduct five tax practitioner seminars around Idaho during December.

District Director Howard Martin announced today.

Discussion will focus on clarification of new tax laws and the review of problem areas, Martin said.

The seminars will be held, Dec. 3-4 at Coeur d'Alene, Dec. 4-5 at Lewiston, Dec. 10-11 at Twin Falls, Dec. 11-12 at Blackfoot and Dec. 16-17 at Boise.

Landlocked liner?

LIKE THE PROW of a ship, this new chemical engineering building at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., is being built with a point. The triangular, 5-story, $14.7 million facility will strengthen the Institute's programs in chemical engineering and related fields. (UPI)

Thanksgiving claims made

PLAMOUTH, Mass. (UPI)—Although Thanksgiving is traditionally thought of as a custom begun by the Pilgrims, there have been many other claims to the "First Thanksgiving."

Dr. Richard W. Hale Jr., architect for Massachusetts, says they date back to possible observances by Christopher Columbus' son Ericson and even St. Brendan.

He said the other claims include:

- The Berkeley Plantation in Virginia, which voted to have a Thanksgiving celebration in 1619.
- The Northern Virginia Company, which staged a religious service of Thanksgiving in Eppaham, Maine, in 1607 and shortly thereafter built a ship and sailed home to England.
- Francis Drake, who paused on his round-the-world voyage for a religious service in Southern California in 1579.
- An English expedition which held a religious service in Baffin Land in 1575, which is still included in the list of holy days in the Canadian Prayer Book.
- Jacques Cartier, who celebrated a "dry mass" at the Isle au Coeurdes in the St. Lawrence River in 1534.

Fall nets roofer $5.1 million

POMONA, Calif. (UPI)—A 60-year-old roofer who was injured in a fall in 1971, has been awarded a $5,126,000 judgment against Mutual of Omaha which had refused to pay him $200 a month for life under terms of his disability insurance policy.

Attorney William Sheriff, who represented roofer Michael Egan, said the punitive damages set by the jury were the largest ever awarded in such a case in U.S. legal history.

Egan injured his back in the fall, underwent surgery, but became totally disabled and has been unable to work.

Under terms of Egan's policy Egan was to be paid $200 a month for life if disabled by accident, but only $300 a month for three months if disabled by sickness.

Sharnoff said the insurance company treated Egan's case as a sicked and ended his monthly payments after three months.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR READERS: It's Thanksgiving, and I am mindful of my many blessings. Among them is the privilege of writing this column. The responsibilities are awesome, but the rewards are great.

May I share a few of the choice "rewards" of 1974 with you?

Dear Abby: Our problem son left home two years ago, giving us no clue as to where he was headed.

Then out of the blue we got a phone call from a volunteer from "Operations Peace of Mind" in Houston, Texas. (We live in Maryland.)

She said our son had dialed the toll free number he got from the DEAR ABBY column, and he wanted someone to call us to say that he was doing fine.

When we got that message, we told the volunteer that if our son called again to tell him that we would gladly accept a collect call from him.

The next morning our son called! He told us that he had been living in a religious commune in Santa Barbara. It's Christian with Jewish overtones.

And now—
good news

The end of this wonderful story is that our son came home to spend Thanksgiving with us.

Will you please publish that toll free number again, so other runaways can establish communications with their families? Our son said he posted that number near phones in all the places where runaways hang out.

Thank you for returning our son to us. Abby—We love you!
ETERNALLY GRATEFUL!

DEAR GRATEFUL: With pleasure. Runaways, call this toll free number: 1-800-231-6346.

An operator will telephone your parents anywhere in the United States and convey a message from you. There will be no lecturing or counseling. Your call will not be traced, and the only question asked of you will be, "Do you need anything?" If you do, you will be told where you can obtain it, free. I repeat, no one will attempt to contact you or bring you home regardless of your age.

Runaways, please forget the past and send that message to your parents now. They will sleep better tonight and so will you. God bless.

To date "Operations Peace of Mind" has been responsible for reuniting 2,054 runaways with their families. Beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago, my mentally ill mother had been temporarily released in my care from the state mental institution. I doubted my ability to cope with her, and wrote to you in desperation.

You wrote me a beautiful letter which I came across again yesterday. I want to thank you for encouraging me to give my elderly, sick mother six months of freedom, church visits and home life after 35 years of confinement in a mental institution.

For the benefit of those who must care for their aging parents and feel it burdensome, I list the curious feelings you said I would feel after my mother passed away:

—Being a semi-invalid myself then and now, your reminding me of Him who cares gave me the extra strength and patience I needed to cope with my mother's quarrelsome and sometimes irrational behavior.

You were right, Abby. Love found a way. May the Lord ever bless you.
GRATEFUL IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ABBY: Thank for being an understanding friend when I was unable to turn to any of my friends here at home.

I am the 45-year-old widow who believed herself to be pregnant. I wrote that "I was putting my son through medical school, and asked you for abortion information. No one could have been more desperate than I."

Thanks for telling me about Planned Parenthood. I had no idea they would help in an emergency of that kind. I really believed you when you wrote, "Please let me hear from you again—sooner."

It is a great comfort to know that there is someone like you out there who cares enough to want to help others. Bless you.
PROBLEM SOLVED

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hints

Creative "breakfast" special Place chilled refrigerated cinnamon rolls in a triangular Christmas-tree shape on a baking sheet. Bake as directed. Drizzle with confectioners' sugar glaze. Sprinkle with chopped, candied cherries.

For crisper cut-out cookies lightly dust board and rolling pin with a mixture of half flour and confectioners' sugar before rolling out cookie dough.

To save clean-up time and work, cut pieces of foil to fit your baking sheets. Then bake cookies on the foil. While the first batch is baking, place a second batch on foil. When the first cookies are done, slip off both foil and cookies. Repeat until all your cookies are done. You can reuse the foil for another cookie bake.

For uniform drop cookies, press dough into measuring spoons. Use a small, rubber scraper to drop them on cookie sheets.

Days of curlers, creams gone

NEW YORK (UPI) — That stereotyped vision of the little woman retiring at night smeared with cold cream and laden with curlers has disappeared like vanishing cream.

A skin care and makeup artist who travels the United States and almost talks to women individually, and holding clinics, says that technical advances in beauty products have caused the changes.

The modern woman uses the speedy method of hot curlers or the warm blow-dry comb instead of the sleeping-in curlers routine, with overnight treatment creams no longer are the jowly, greasy concoctions that inspired cartoonists and smeared the pillow.

Night creams still lubricate but they are absorbed quickly. The beauty-care is better opinion comes from Aye Vaknine, hair in Moscow and in the field since he opened two beauty salons in Paris in 1969.

In 1971, he joined Charles of the Ritz as beauty director because he decided it was more pleasure "to create faces than hair styles."

Vaknine believes in keeping skin care simple — cleansing, toning to tighten pores and smooth the skin, moisturizers to protect against dryness and provide a smooth base for makeup, and the night treatment to moisturize and firm.

"Neglect these steps, which use only a few minutes each day, and the skin's natural and environmental enemies take their toll," said the handsome cosmetologist. "Women ask me how long before they see results. I tell them maybe it took 20 years to create these unwanted lines. It may take a year to get rid of them. Constant care is the secret."

To Vaknine, soap and water are a time combination but he concedes that a lot of women feel their skin is clean only if they scrub it.

"If you must use water," said Vaknine, "use a deep cleanser first. And you can get water soluble cleansers. I think the soap and water thing is part of our puritanical heritage."

"Young people will scrub and scrub because of oily skin and acne. I tell them soap removes only the surface and will just let the pores get larger and blackheads form."

"You'll see the older woman using less water. I tell my ladies to be gentle with the skin. How some cleansers, fruit acids, scrubbing, pulling, working against muscles."

"You have only one face. And one neck. Give the neck the same treatment you give the face."

Vaknine said skins today have a tougher time staying young than they did, for instance, "when my grandmother used lemon juice twice a week to get excess oil."

Master Mason, 18, makes high priest

He was exalted Feb. 19, 1972, in Royal Arch Masons and was elected high priest of King Solomon Chapter No. 16 on Nov. 4, 1974. He served as grand organizer in 1973 for the grand chapter of Royal Arch Masons of Idaho.

He was initiated, May 5, 1973, at Twin Falls, Com-mandery No. 10 and served as prelate for 1974. Presently he is sword bearer. He received the council degrees Nov. 10, 1973, in Twin Falls Council No. 7 and is serving as steward. He is also associate patron of Victory Chapter No. 60, Order of the Eastern Star, Glenns Ferry. His mother, Aileen Lawson, is associate matron.

He was installed, January, 1974, as 70th Degree, No. 90, Glenns Ferry in December, 1972, one year later he was installed junior warden. On Dec. 14, he will be installed worshipful master of the lodge.

Book Review

BY ARLAN CALL
Twin Falls Public Library

Disquieting. That is the one word most descriptive of Joseph Heller's new book, "Something Happened."

You'll recall that Heller's first, and "last," book was "Catch-22," published in 1962. "Catch-22" was social comedy of the lightest kind. "Something Happened" is humorous at times, but is at best (read worst) black humor.

Disquieting. Yes, but so are Dostoevski and Kafka. Take the writings of those two past literary greats, this recent work by Heller is utterly compelling psychological fare.

Ben Slocum, the anti-hero of "Something Happened," seems at first glance to be a reasonable first-come of any American, middle-class, corporate louse. He is accepted and valued as a productive worker in his highly paternalistic company, and is a reliable, successful father/husband.

But, internally, he also bitterly despises his teenage daughter, disrespects his meek wife, and regrets the existence of a mentally-impaired son. Slocum truly loves only a second son who has aspirational and fears much like those of the father.

Slocum, himself, harbors a self-compelling fear of some impending catastrophe. That fear is foretold and realized when he "accidentally" kills the handicapped child. Indeed, "Something Happened."

Other reviewers believe this to be perhaps the most important American novel of this decade. They may be right. If we do accept the story line as socially realistic, it is certainly one of the most disquieting books of any decade.

Dinner set

SHOSHONE — A Christmas potluck dinner will be served by members of Lincoln Chapter No. 42, Order of Eastern Star, at 6:30 p.m. Dec. 17 at the Masonic Temple.

Members of the chapter, their husbands and girls who belong to Job's Daughters will be guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pendleton, and Mrs. Carl Scheppeny will be in charge of the dinner.

JOHN LAWSON

KING HILL — John Edward Lawson, King Hill, Idaho's youngest master Mason, will be installed high priest of King Solomon Chapter No. 16, Royal Arch Masons, in an open ceremony 5 p.m. Dec. 11.

The ceremony will be conducted at the Gooding Masonic Lodge, Sixth and California Streets. Refreshments will be served at 6:30 p.m.

Lawson was born in Twin Falls Jan. 7, 1954. He was graduated from Glenns Ferry High School in May, 1972, and studied music for one and one-half years at the College of Southern Idaho. He is a third generation Mason.

He became active in the Mountain Home DeMolay Chapter at the age of 16. He is a past master, counselor, and past state junior deacon.

He was the first 18-year-old master Mason in Idaho, being initiated Nov. 10, 1972; passed Nov. 21, 1972; and raised Nov. 30, 1972. He was presented his worshipful master certificate and presidency at Grand Lodge in September, 1973, in Boise.

Mini Reviews

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received by the library.

"The Conspiracy of God" by John C. Haughey. There is a conspiracy of silence among Christians about the personality of the Holy Spirit. What the spirit is like, who the spirit is, the characteristics of the person-of-the-spirit—these questions are examined by Father Haughey.

"They've Shot the President's Daughter" by Edward Stewart. Don't start reading this book late at night. It is a chilling tale of megapollitics at the highest levels of government.

"Death by Chalice" by Daniel C. Maguire. How far are we obliged to go in preserving life when it is no longer desired? Are there circumstances when aiding death is more moral than striving against it?

"Trader Vic's Book of Mexican Cooking" by Victor J. Bergeron. Flavoring his book with wit and anecdotes, as well as with some sparkling ideas for entertaining in the Mexican style, Trader Vic has called upon his triumphs to present a provocative Mexican cookbook adapted for American tastes.

"The Other Room" by Borden Deal. Here, a natural-born storyteller captures a myth and meaning of a family who have lost their land in the Depression and reveals the unique and universal world of a young man struggling to reconcile the conflicts that block and baffle the Pilgrim's Progress of his life.

Film set at Valley

EDEN — As part of a program to combat drug abuse, the Aid Association for Lanketters will present "Art Linkletter Talks to Parents" Dec. 3 at the Valley High School gymnasium, at 7:30 p.m.

The hour-long film features Art Linkletter, who says drug abuse "has become epidemic and we are likely to lose the young people who will carry this country in the years to come if we do not join to do something about it." Everyone is invited to attend.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN E. GIESLER

Couple exchanges nuptial promises

TWIN FALLS — Dora Hidenour and John E. Giesler were married Nov. 16 in a double ring ceremony at the Twin Falls United Methodist Church.

Rev. Raymond Thompson performed the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Riddick; Wallace, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Giesler, Twin Falls. The bride wore a floor-length gown of white organza with a collar of venise lace bordering the scoop neckline. The empire waist and the fitted long sleeves were bordered with matching lace edged the hemline of the A-line skirt and the chapel length train.

Her lace edged fingertip veil of illusion was held by a cap of venise lace.

Mrs. Mike Grove was matron of honor; Cheryl Giesler, Twin Falls, was bridesmaid; Jessica Williams, 4-piece of the bride, was flower girl.

Dave Livingston was best man; Marvin Williams, brother of the bride, was groomsmen. Ushers were Steve Beem and Dave Anderson; Lance Semenza, cousin of the bride, was ringbearer.

The couple was honored at a reception, following the ceremony in the church fellowship hall.

The three tiered wedding cake was decorated with yellow and white daisies. It was topped with doves backed with a heart.

A second reception was given that evening at the DAV Hall.

Bea Palmer, aunt of the bride, served cake; Joan Hidenour, cousin of the bride, served punch; Maxine Hill, poured coffee.

Terri Flint was in charge of the guest book; Kathie Semenza, cousin of the bride, cared for gifts; Karen Hidenour, cousin of the bride, passed out rice packets.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts for a rehearsal dinner at their home.

The couple resides in Twin Falls. The bride is employed at Van's Department Store and the bridegroom is employed by Rogers Brothers.

'Hunter's Duck' prepared at cooking school

TWIN FALLS — Persons attending the Intermediate Gas Co.-Times-News cooking school last week were shown how to prepare "Hunter's Duck."

Printed copies of the recipe were not prepared for distribution at the school and since it is not included in the free Wild Game Cookbook those attending received the Times-News is printing the instructions for care of the birds, and preparation of the recipe below.

Select a well fleshed and fattened bird from the following species, mallard, pintail, greenwing teal or sometimes hoodwall or red-tail finnecks, redhead or canvasback. Avoid ducks such as goldeneyes, buffhead or scaup and scooters.

Shut ducks do not need to be drawn. They may be hung a few days in cool weather. Drawn ducks may be hung several days—longer—at the same cool temperature. The storage area should be an old second hand refrigerator.

Rough-pick the birds to down pintails. Using sharp tin snips, detach neck and head, both wings and one leg. Save the remaining leg for use as a handle while dipping duck and remove it later.

Melt three pounds of wax over warm water in a 14-pound bucket. Three pounds will clean 12 ducks easily and may be used for up to 75 birds if they are picked cleanly.

Dip the duck several times quickly through the melted wax and drop quickly into a large pan of cold water to set the wax. Coat with one-half to one-fourth inch of wax. Duck may be re-dipped if wax is not thick enough.

Break the wax cover after it has thoroughly cooled in water. Pull the wax off the ducks and drop back into bucket for reuse.

Complete drawing and cleaning done in packages in airtight containers such as heavy plastic bags if freezer storage is planned.

HUNTER'S DUCK
Preheat oven to 300 degrees.

Ingredients listed are for one medium duck per serving.
Combine the following in a small bowl:
1 tablespoon salt per bird
1 teaspoon ground pepper
1 teaspoon dried parsley
1 teaspoon ground mustard
Dash of thyme
Dash of marjoram

STUFFING:
1/2 cup onion, diced medium
1/2 cup celery, diced medium
1/2 cup green pepper, diced medium
Cooking oil, any type Oil, birds, using hands and thoroughly season the ducks inside and out. Stuff birds firmly with vegetables. Place in well-greased pan, breast up and not touching. Do not cover. It is not necessary to use a rack. Place in the center of preheated oven.

Roast 45 minutes for medium well, 35 minutes for rare and 55 minutes for well done, if the ducks are a medium size.

Waitresses carry sugar holsters

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (UPI) — Coffee costs a quarter a cup at the Red Rooster Restaurant. Sugar is three cents extra.

Ed Germanovich, owner of the Red Rooster Coffee Shop, has taken sugar off the fables and put the packets in orange golf ball bags, called sugar holsters. The waitresses wear the bags strapped to their waists, so the sugar is right there when the customer requests it.

Germanovich figures he used to use about 20 cases of sugar packets per month. That's about 40,000 packages of sugar or $400 worth of the sweetener.

But now that the waitresses are carrying the sugar packets in their little orange bags, he figures he'll cut the use of sugar by 20 per cent or 10,000 packets.

Germanovich has been forced to pay $17 per box which contains 2,000 packages. A year ago he paid only $1.25 per box. That's when he kept the sugar on the tables and allowed coffee and tea drinkers to use it freely.

But after what he saw last week, he decided it was time to do something.

"Four girls came in and ordered Pepsi's last week and one dumped the whole container of sugar in her purse," he said. "If that wasn't enough, it happened a second time, and Germanovich said, that's it."

He said his waitresses don't mind toting the bags of sugar on their hips. "Some restaurants make the girls go to a central station to pick up sugar requests," he said.

Book Review

By LIZ CARDINALE
Twin Falls Public Library
 Semur citizens unite! At last, there is a spokeswoman for the town of Semur. Her book, "Marching Without Banners," shows Mrs. Kompf-Campbell as an outspoken lady lawyer in her own right, full of pithy opinions and vibrant prejudices who never hesitates to express herself on any given subject no matter how controversial.

She is an extremely funny, often exasperating, old lady whose candor is refreshing in this day of flabby, carefully worded, totally safe public statements.

Mrs. Campbell, a former deputy district attorney for Los Angeles and a medical law teacher of some 20 years standing, is in a position to back up her opinions with years of experience, and a great deal of common sense.

You may not agree with her, but you must respect her right to express herself and get more than an occasional chuckle from her uniquely individual style.

A sample of Mrs. Campbell's individuality at thought follows:

On the federal government: "I like to praise the government whenever possible although, of late, they have..."

Valley Briefs
TWIN FALLS—The Olympic clubs of Magic Valley are having their family Christmas party at 7 p.m. Dec. 6 in the Elmore Hall. The dinner will be festive and entertainment will follow. Santa Claus will make an appearance.

BERLEY—David Hewlett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Hewlett, Hurley, former Twin Falls resident, has been named outstanding runner of the year for Utah. A senior at Utah State University, Logan, he was awarded the L. A. Stoddard Scholarship award in range management. Selection was based on scholarship, application and interest in range management.

TWIN FALLS—Bonnie Sue Hine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edward W. Hine, Nampa, and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hine, Twin Falls, has been selected to appear in the 1974-75 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." She is a member of the Twin Falls High School and is enrolled in the school of religion at Bob Jones University, Greenville, S. C., where she is a senior.

made almost no effort to please me."
 On stupidity: "Stupid men are not improved by advancement; authority only gives them more scope for their stupidity."
 On children: "Children, most of the time, are a nuisance; the mystery is that people keep on having them."
 On religion: "Religion should be like clear water that washes away the bitterness from life but it should not wash away the pleasure as well."

As you can see from the above quotes, Mrs. Campbell is wise, witty and altogether charming. Her latest book, "Marching Without Banners," is a treasury of wit, wit and wonder.

You don't have to be a semur citizen to appreciate Mrs. Campbell; people of all ages can profit from her lively common sense and biting humor.

Winifred Jess, buyer at Lord & Taylor, is as amazed as anyone else. The store ran a small ad for the Seaudale garter belt (a minimal affair of lace and ribbon-trimmed elastic) and sold 600 at $5 in six weeks, she said. "The ad brought a lot of phone orders from men who wanted it for their girls," she said.

Dissatisfied customer?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A man walked into a San Francisco restaurant, ate a special breakfast of eggs and coffee, paid the $17. bill and left a quarter tip. Then he robbed the place.

The robber took $1,700 and said: "Don't force me to kill you before the holidays." He then fled.

A Lovelier You

GIVE THANKS FOR GOOD TALK

By Mary Sue Miller

It is thought that conversation reveals three kinds of people: Those who talk about ideas, those who talk about "things," and those who talk about people.

The woman who belongs to the first group is well known in every wayward being a good conversationalist. You enjoy her company whether her subjects are close-to-home-or-of-international import — new theories on child education, let's say, or the trends for keeping world peace. If she is articulate and has a light approach, she'll hold your willing attention.

People who talk about things — worldly possessions — become bores after a short time. Who cares how much Mr. X paid for his greenhouse, or Mrs. X for her new ring? When the things belong to the speaker, such talk becomes embarrassing.

But the woman who only tells tales about other women had better watch out. There is a very thin wall between discussing people and gossiping. The words "I heard" indicate an overactivity of the ears and an underactivity of the mind.

The accomplished conversationalist is never shallow. Her interests are genuine and wide. She never talks a subject to death. Too, she is aware of the other side of the conversational coin, and lends her ear ungrudgingly.

Let's give thanks for good talk. And let's talk good talk.

Cancer drug holds hope

Snowy fries

SNOWSTORM was the undoing of this tractor-trailer loaded with french fry potatoes enroute to a southern market. The trailer broke into pieces and straddled a Lewiston, Maine turnpike. The driver suffered only cuts and bruises. (UPI)

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dramatic improvement was reported today in the experimental use of an anticancer drug for treating advanced cases of prostate cancer in elderly men given only a few weeks to live.

Although the drug did not eliminate all signs of the disease, Dr. Gerald P. Murphy, director of the Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., reported, significant tumor shrinkage in 52 per cent of 106 patients studied for up to 24 weeks.

None of the successful cases has yet had a relapse although the cancer had spread too much for a cure to be considered possible.

"These are patients who are on the skirts," Murphy said at a news conference before reporting to the second day of a national cancer conference.

"They've had everything. Their life expectancy is but a matter of a few weeks. So the fact that you get stability and remission and relief is most surprising. The surprising thing is they're still alive." The drug used is called cyclophosphamide, an agent long used to fight other forms of cancer.

Surgery and radiation are now the primary forms of treating cancer of the prostate gland. A disease expected to strike 56,000 elderly men this year. Two thirds of the patients eventually die of the disease.

The prostate treatment was one of a number of improvements in cancer treatment being reported at the meeting, a conference for physicians sponsored jointly by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute.

"All through the meeting there will be evidence of increased survival," said Dr. Sidney L. Arje, vice president of the cancer society.

Dr. Guy R. Newell, deputy director of the cancer institute, said goals of the three-day conference are to get the latest information out to doctors treating cancer and to generate enthusiasm in fighting the nation's No. 2 killer.

"There is a great need to instill optimism, not only in the patient but in the physician as well."

In another report, Dr. Eleanor D. Montague, professor of radiotherapy at the University of Texas at Houston, said limited breast surgery followed by radiation treatment may offer an alternative to radical mastectomies when the entire breast as well as underlying muscles and axillary lymph nodes are removed to fight breast cancer.

Delaware man talks to Jerome Baptists

JEROME — Dr. A. V. Henderson, pastor of the First Baptist Church, New Castle, Del., will be the featured speaker at the Bible Baptist Church, 136 East Second Ave., Jerome, during the Northwest Baptist Bible Fellowship meeting today through Friday.

Dr. Henderson, who has been the president of the Baptist Bible Fellowship International for the past two years, will be speaking in the morning and evening sessions.

The opening service is scheduled for this evening at 8 p.m. The remaining sessions will be for the benefit of 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. on Thursday and Friday.

Noon and evening meals will be served at the Church Fellowship Hall. A special youth program will be held following the Thursday evening service.

Out-of-state guests are expected from Oregon, Washington and Montana.

N-blast gas test set

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Production testing of natural gas formed in the third chamber of an underground cavern blasted out by three nuclear explosions will begin early next month, according to Project Rio Blanco officials.

H. H. Aronson, a spokesman for CER Geonuclear Corp., said the testing would begin the first week in December and would involve flaring (burning) of as much as 6 million cubic feet daily. The test was scheduled to last from five days to two weeks.

The test will measure the quality and quantity of natural gas produced in the last of three underground chambers formed by the simultaneous detonation May 17, 1973, of three nuclear devices more than a mile beneath the surface.

Production testing on the first re-entry well into the two upper chambers was completed early this year.

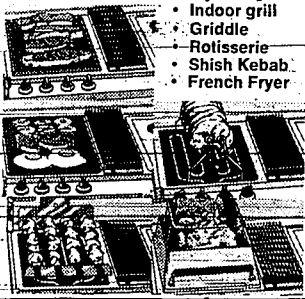

Previous chemical analysis of tracer gases placed with the explosives indicated the three chambers were not interconnected.

Nixon set stage for US-USSR negotiations

Oil discovered near Brazil coast

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Discovery of oil off the coast of the state of Rio de Janeiro was announced Tuesday by the state-owned oil enterprise, Petrobras.

Petrobras technicians said they lacked sufficient data to evaluate exactly the production capacity of the new well, but said: "According to our initial information the well should produce at least 5,000 barrels per day."

Technicians said the well was found in an area of calcareous rock, the same type found in the oil deposits recently discovered in Mexico.

Petrobras said it would expand its exploration of the area to determine the exact dimensions of the oil deposit.

By OSWALD JOHNSTON

Washington Star-News

"I think they were dazzled. I think they were amazed. I don't think they expected an agreement of this kind. The President will be returning home in triumph" — press secretary Ronald Nessén.

"I think the President should be modest." — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

VLADIVOSTOK — After nearly a week of "agreeable symbolism" in Japan and Korea, President Gerald R. Ford came up against the realities of presidential diplomatic bargaining in the Soviet Union.

Through a combination of circumstances, the experience turned out to be entirely agreeable.

By all appearances, the agreement reached with the Russians on how to negotiate an eventual arms limitation pact was the "conceptual breakthrough" on strategic arms control that eluded former President Richard M. Nixon for more than a year.

But by all early accounts of the negotiations, an earlier participant in the long drawn-out SALT talks was largely responsible — Nixon.

The point of the two-day mini-summit was for Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev and his colleagues to meet the new U.S. President who had inherited Nixon's delicate policies.

The Russians' primary concern was the uncertainty of an unprecedented changeover in U.S. leadership after months of turmoil: Would the policies survive? Could agreements reached with one regime in Washington carry over to another?

All available accounts of Nixon's last summit in Moscow last June — his last major foreign policy initiative and one of his least successful — emphasize that Watergate was a major factor in the failure to make progress in SALT — and the area of U.S. Soviet relations in which both sides desperately wanted to reach a deal.

"Ford did in three months what Nixon couldn't do in three years," Nessén concluded somewhat gloatingly on the outcome of the train journey from Vladivostok to the military airfield.

It was only in cruder form, a restatement of what the Russians informally, and Kissinger himself semiofficially, had been saying for days.

Back in June, when SALT negotiations at Nixon's last summit were foundering, Soviet officials were decrying the Watergate turmoil as "the real American purge."

Then Kissinger spoke with quiet dismay of the vacuum in authority in Washington and how it affected the conduct of foreign affairs.

This time, it was different. The Russians, who had seen in Nixon a new era of pragmatism in U.S. Soviet relations, began to tell the same journalists to whom they had denounced Watergate in June that Nixon, in their view, never could be trusted.

The resolution of the Nixon presidency finally produced the setting of political stability the Soviets wanted before committing themselves to an agreement on strategic weapons.

Kissinger, carefully describing the Ford meeting as taking place in a "different atmosphere" from the one that characterized the July summit, has been at pains to stress the good personal relations between Brezhnev and the new President.

"Ford and Brezhnev reportedly got along well with each other, with the Soviet leader 'bearing with the president,'" one U.S. official said.

Ultimately, it is a willingness to dismantle weapons that always had been relied on before as vital to the national security.

Once the arcane, technological dialect of Sunday's agreement is stripped away, the new Soviet-American accord on negotiating guidelines of SALT amounts to nothing less than a mutual willingness to stop trying to outdo each other.

But it almost certainly could not have been achieved if Ford were not the new president of the United States or if Nixon were still the old one.

Analysis

The two "hit it off famously," he said. "They are two tough guys who are fundamentally politicians. They talked real tough. But in the end they drank their vodka and really meant it."

Ford said, the talks with the Russians represented "the beginning of what I hope will be a productive personal relationship" with Brezhnev.

When Ford and Brezhnev parted, the Soviet leader said, "God bless and God bless you."

But if the absence of Nixon as president was the key background factor in the Vladivostok breakthrough, the Nixon program factor was the renewed willingness of the Russians to face up to the real point of arms limitations.

Jazz band faces panhandling charge

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — French Quarter merchants complained about the "French Market Jazz Band" street performances so police arrested the whole troupe, including its star trumpeter, the New Orleans corrier.

Dr. Frank Minyard, who plays with the 10-man band in his spare time, was working with the group Saturday, drawing a crowd of 500 people on Royal Street.

But merchants claimed the crowd clogging the street was reducing their business and complained. Police arrested the band.

In municipal court Monday, the group was arraigned on charges of begging and disorderly conduct.

Band leader "T-Bone Scotty" Hill said the band doesn't solicit money, although it will, "in the American democratic tradition," accept contributions from appreciative listeners.

City Attorney Phillip Brooks said he would look into the case before deciding whether to prosecute.

"There's a legitimate purpose in the band being there, but like everything else, it has to be regulated," he said. "Personally, I can't see where it hurts."

After the arraignment, the band assembled in front of the nearby house of detention and struck up a rousing "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans" for the benefit of the prisoners inside.

Library service set

BOISE — The only Congressional Information Service Library available to the public in Idaho is now open at Boise State University.

Ruth McBirney, head librarian said the addition can be highly valuable to the public as it contains all written reports of congress since 1970, including previously unpublished committee reports, hearings and other special documents.

There are some 3 million pages on microfilm, she said, and current documents are being added on a subscription basis.

The information is available on the fourth floor of the Boise State library and is open to any interested persons.

Middle class revolt shapes up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., says a "middle class revolt could be brewing" because of skyrocketing prices such as the ones Americans must pay for sugar.

"I believe that the pattern we see in the sugar industry is a pattern of corporate arrogance and insensitivity that strike at the heart of our free enterprise system," Domenici said Monday in a speech before the Council on Wage and Price Stability.

He said the American consumer, asked to sacrifice in these critical economic times, is "caught in the middle of the wage-price squeeze caused by outrageous business and labor demands."

He said the present American mood "verges on the desperate. A middle class revolt could be brewing. And this revolt will take the form of an electoral mandate for greater and greater government control of all business in this nation."

"Wage and price controls will be just the beginning if labor and business do not temper their demands," Domenici told the council.

"American consumers will not continue to stand still for unjustified, outrageous sugar prices," he said. Domenici said facts uncovered in his own investigation of sugar prices "create a strong presumption of administrative price-fixing and conspiracy."

He said there were "serious questions in the minds of all Americans about the lack of competitiveness in the sugar industry."

Domenici asked the council to publicize those companies and unions that ask for excessive prices and wages and to publicly praise those that "show moderation."

Modern Indian tribes share holiday feasting

By United Press International
The Shoshone and Arapaho Indian tribes have a little joke about Thanksgiving. They say it's the one thing they actually gave the white man.

For some tribes, it was a gift they had a share in. For most, it was just a gift.
Rev. Jerome Zumach of the St. Stevens Mission in Riverton, Wyo., said the local Indians put on a dance Thursday night and have one of the leaders speak to the people, "kind of reminding them to thank the Great Spirit for all the blessings they've received for the past year."

An Arapaho mother of four, Barbara Manderson, said her family will feast on turkey, spotted pop (raisin and rice pudding), powder meat (dried elk or antelope), grease bread and pumpkin pie.

"There's not really much for them to celebrate," Wyoming Indian historian Virginia Trenchum said. "They do it because we celebrate it." A consultant at Dry Creek Lodge on the reservation, Al Cook, said there is only one real distinction between Thanksgiving at Wind River and in the white community: "most people here are too poor to afford turkey," he said. On the Onondaga Reservation near Syracuse, N.Y., and among the Miccosukees in Dade and Broward counties in Florida, Thanksgiving is better known as "Thanksgiving" — already came and went. Chief Irving Fowles of the Onondaga reservation said, "We already had ours. We go by the moon. We had our Thanksgiving before the pilgrims came."

He said reservation peoples feast on Indian foods to "celebrate." "We don't have any," said, "You people killed them all off."

Even though the Miccosukees hold their Thanksgiving in June — with what they call the Green Corn Dance — they give a polite nod to the white man's celebration.
Buffalo Tiger, chairman of the 500-member tribe, said people probably will pass this Thursday on "barbequed fish, some type of meat and bread. We do take part in it and enjoy the day," he said. "But as far as it having any particular meaning to Indians, don't believe it," he said.

A spokesman from a neighboring Seminole tribe said his people have "no feelings one way or the other about Thanksgiving."
Saturday is just private planes of the Flying Club of Linton Industries in Van Nuys, Calif., made their annual trek to the isolated Havasupai Indians in the Grand Canyon.

A total of 4,500 pounds of food was flown to the canyon landing field, trucked to the canyon's south rim and then loaded it on to mules for the eight-mile trip to the "bottom" along a narrow, switchback trail.

Award due

U. S. SUPREME Court Justice William O. Douglas will receive the 1975 Jules Cohen Memorial Award at a dinner Monday, given by the Jewish Community Relations Council of Philadelphia, Pa. Family displays diplomacy

PEKING (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger's wife and children displayed Tuesday the secretary of state's diplomacy when the force feeding of the ducks began.

Nancy Kissinger and the children, Elizabeth and David, had been driven in red flag limousines to the China-Alabama people's commune for an afternoon outing.
The sight of fine feathered ducks waddling about ponds tickled them, David pulled out a pocket camera and began clicking. Nancy Kissinger, hugging herself in the cold in her fur coat, smiled. Elizabeth smiled.

A communal official beckoned them into a brick building nearby. Here incinerators warmed up eggs for hatching more of the birds needed to supply China with its great table delicacy. Still smiles.

Then across the grassless yard to another building.

Bathing bar studied

TRURO, Mass. (UPI) — Lawrence Hadley, Cape Cod seashore superintendent, said Sunday he will consider very carefully a recommendation that naked bathing be banned on Truro's nude beach.
The Advisory Commission to the Cape Cod National

Seashore has asked that Hadley prohibit skinny dipping on the isolated three-mile stretch where it has been a tradition for nearly 60 years.

The recommendation came after a record number of nude bathers appeared there this summer.

Chrysler calls back new trucks

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. Tuesday began a recall of 6,181 of its 1974 and 1975 model Dodge trucks to repair a possible defect that could lead to loss of power steering.
A Chrysler spokesman said there have been no reports of accidents as a result of the defect in the medium duty trucks with 360 or 413-cu-in. engines.

The vehicles, he said, may have improperly installed power steering hoses which could rub against the frame or front engine support bracket, leading to a possible loss of power steering fluid.
Of the 6,181 vehicles, Chrysler said, only 5 per cent may have damage severe enough to cause loss of steering.

Dehydrated food business booms

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Fear of uncontrolled inflation, an economic depression and food shortages has resulted in a boom in the dehydrated food business in Palm Beach County, several store owners report.

Three stores in the county, two of them new, are doing a thriving business in such items as dehydrated prunes, beef chunks and sour cream.
Some buyers are contracting for as much as a year's supply of the dehydrated and freeze dried food items, sellers said Friday.

Many of the buyers take elaborate precautions to keep their identities secret, fearing that if their names were known, their food boards would be raided by the hunger rioters during what the buyers believe is a coming period of severe social unrest in the U.S.

One of the stores is a subsidiary of one of the John Birch Society's American Opinion book stores. The other two opened just recently.

Former Deputy Sheriff Jim McCarthy, who opened the "treasures of the three stores" nights ago in partnership with unemployed construction worker Ward Culver, said, "You must realize that these people are buying for an economic disaster. They certainly don't want their neighbors to know there's $1,000 worth of dehydrated food in their garage."

Culver predicted that "about February or March it's going to be so bad I won't want to be in business. That's when people will start sticking guns in my face demanding food I probably won't even have."

At the Ready Reserve Store, operated by Sunshine Simmons, buyers may scan a book on "How to Prepare for the Coming Catastrophe," while waiting for their orders to be filled.
Single orders for as much as $500 worth of the dehydrated food are not uncommon.

"One unemployed man is buying eight installments of $50 a week to buy $400 worth of the dehydrated food."
One woman paid for her

$1,150 order with $1 bills to protect her identity from what she fears will be neighbors made unscrupulous by hunger in the months and years ahead.

Another couple poked up their order in a rented car so they could not be traced through their license tag.

Some buyers say they plan to use the food as a route to rural refuges, they have prepared against the coming crisis.

Chile had a civil war in 1971 in which President Salvador Allende committed suicide. Balmaceda shot himself in the Argentine embassy where he had sought refuge.

Gigantic but ground-bound 'Spruce Goose' dwarfs men in boat
'Goose' focal point of peace flight

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Alfred Bennett at 70, wants to take the "Spruce Goose" out for another run, this time a test run for peace, out war.

Bennett, of nearby Beaver, owner of Bennett Aircraft Co., an airplane brokerage firm, said he is determined to fly the world's largest seaplane, built during World War II by Howard Hughes, to cities across the nation as an attention grabber for his campaign to promote world peace.

"When Ping Pong was the trivium to break the barriers with Red China, what do you think Howard Hughes' airplane would do?" Bennett asked.

"This airplane has more attention value than Marilyn Monroe. It would be like unearthing an Egyptian pharaoh."

Bennett is confident an airplane with a wingspan of 320 feet — 20 feet longer than a football field and 90 feet longer than the span of a commercial jet — would have no trouble catching the public eye.

"I could land a Piper Cub on that wing," Bennett said.

The plane, which has been locked in an atmospherically controlled hangar at Long Beach, Calif., for nearly 20 years, was designed and built by Howard Hughes on commission from the government.

Industrialist Henry Kaiser collaborated with Hughes initially, but dropped out because "the two of them could never go in the same direction for very long," Bennett said.

The plane, officially named the "H1K1" for its developers, was dubbed the "Spruce Goose" because it was made almost entirely of wood.

It was taken on its first and only flight on Nov. 2, 1947, by Hughes himself. It was flown 1,000 yards at an altitude of 70 feet.

But the war soon ended and the "Spruce Goose" became as obsolete as a knight's suit of armor.

Hughes leased the plane from the government, but last year, lease expired and the General Services Administration took custody of the H1K1.

"The plane belongs to you and me — the taxpayers," Bennett said. "The stupid government — bureaucracy keeps barriers around it."

"The GSA says it wants the plane used in a way that it would do the most good for the most people and I am the only one who wants to fly it."

And he wants to fly the plane to "bring the spirit of goodwill

New York banker still optimist

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Richard K. Leblond II, vice chairman of the Chemical Bank of New York, predicted today that the Western World is not heading for a 1930's-style depression.

"I have a more optimistic viewpoint," Leblond told a luncheon here at the end of a European tour. "There are already some encouraging signs of improvement... We are not headed for a worldwide depression similar to that of the '30's."

Leblond said he believed the U.S. economy will turn upward in the last half of 1975; the inflation rate will decline to 7.5 per cent.

You know what "anters" are. Words which contain "ant"? For examples: "A quick ant is inst-ant." And "faraway ant is dist-ant." But do you know what "doubled anters" are? Sentie's-Addle-Walker offers some of same: 1. "An expect-ant is pregn-ant." 2. "A contest-ant is an entr-ant." 3. "A vari-ant is a devi-ant." 4. "An irrit-ant is a stimu-ant." 5. "An exhilar-ant is an exhuber-ant." 6. "A const-ant is an adam-ant." 7. "A reluct-ant is a resist-ant." 8. "A miscre-ant is an err-ant." 9. "A fluctu-ant is an undul-ant." That's nine. What's the tenth?

PANIC

Just 24 years ago, there was a terrible explosion in Perth Amboy, N.J., which stirred considerable panic. Wasn't until a milkman with a visor on his cap stepped forth to issue directions that the nervous crowd seemed to calm down. Scholars who looked into that disaster decided nothing so arouses confidence in an emergency as the appearance on the scene of somebody in a uniform. It is the contention of some of these experts that all schoolteachers should be so attired.

American auto industry facing buyer strike

BY DAN JEDLIKA
(C) Chicago Star-Times

Some perspective is needed here. The shrill band of self-styled auto industry prophets, always ready to bury Detroit when the industry experiences a sales decline, are brandishing their shovels again. What's brought them from the woodwork this time around isn't a gas crunch which didn't kill everything but small cars, and they predicted. It's sagging auto sales and layoffs of auto workers. Once again, faithfully utilizing their ongoing, superficial knowledge of the complex auto industry, these prophets are sinking their sharp teeth into Detroit, spurred by routine media coverage of declining car sales and auto plant shutdowns.

There is no denying that the auto industry has serious problems, as do other industries caught in the vise of inflation and consumer uncertainty. But the death of the automobile isn't at hand. General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors will continue to live with us. The only problem this time is that nobody can predict exactly when the auto sales picture will brighten. It isn't as simple now as turning on a gasoline spigot. In this situation, hard facts are needed — not a mass, collective wringing of hands. The auto industry is facing a buyer's strike. It can't last forever. People eventually will realize that they can stroll into their local auto dealership and walk off with one big happy when they buy a new car, despite the higher prices for 1975 models.

Analysis

Most auto dealers are pining to unload new automobiles. It's a buyer's market. For the seven out of 10 cars buyers who trade in a used car, the pickings are especially good. John B. Naughton, vice president of Ford Motor Co. sales group, notes that the strong demand for late model used cars enables a person buying a new, push Ford Gran Torino two-door hardtop to pay $62 a month for the car, against $61 a month last year. These figures come from a recent Ford survey in the Detroit area using actual retail prices, actual interest rates and finance charges, comparable two-year-old trade-ins and purchase contracts of comparable terms. Ford says the survey's results are representative of the entire U.S. market. However, barraged by continuing, well-publicized new car price hikes, consumers are wary. The hikes have come hard and fast, leaving them shaken. Yet, as Naughton points out, "Twenty years ago, the median family income was $4,200, and the price of a base Ford car was $1,700. That meant the average worker had to spend 54 months of income to buy a new Ford. Today, the worker can buy a new Ford LTD with only 4.4 months of income. Furthermore, the price of the new car includes $300 worth of standard equipment that wasn't available in 1954. "The cost of recommended scheduled maintenance for the first 50,000 miles is $29. That's a reduction of $29 from the 1972 models. The new car customer today is getting his money's worth, and that leads me to believe that our business is going to improve." Any Detroit auto executive could say the same things. People just aren't listening. One obstacle to higher new car sales is the reluctance of motorists to part with their older cars. This situation may soon begin evaporating. The repair bills necessary to keep older cars running are stiff. When a motorist is told that it'll take $500 and up to keep his car running for another year, he is likely to shuck his resistance to a new one. This situation won't last forever if the government has anything to say about it. Lee Jaecocca, Ford's president, recently pointed out that by 1978 the small Ford Pinto will no longer be a Pinto because between 1975 and 1978 new government standards on the heels of already proposed standards will increase the Pinto's cost by $847, add 355 pounds to the car's weight and reduce fuel economy by 3 to 4 miles per gallon. "What started in 1971 as a $2,000, 2,000-pound economy car will be a $5,000, 3,000-pound car with much lower fuel economy," Jaecocca said. If this happens, the auto industry could be mired in a nearly lethal sales slump. Today's arguments for buying new cars would be empty rhetoric.

Imported cars selling well as Detroit sags

BY ROBERT A. WRIGHT
(C) New York Times Service

LOS ANGELES — With a regained price advantage, imported cars are selling well, in comparison with the sagging fortunes of Detroit's products. No auto company is having a banner year because of the hesitancy of American consumers faced with continuing inflation and the prospect of a deepening recession. Yet, foreign makes seem to have made market inroads. "Retail sales of imported cars in October rose 6.33 per cent above the 1973 level, while American models fell 26.72 per cent below the year-earlier figures. The bulge in foreign car sales could prove to be temporary, however, since most importers have been selling 1974 models — at 1974 prices — while Detroit manufacturers are well into the 1975 model year. Importers traditionally bring their new lines to market several months later than American products. But executives of the import companies generally believe that, if anybody does well in the auto business in the year ahead, they will be the advantage because of both price and the economy of operation of their cars. Talk in Washington of a gasoline tax increase to reduce consumption looks well for imports, these executives say. "Even with a raise in prices for 1975 models, the Japanese-built Toyota will have an advantage," says Norman D. Lean, vice president and general operations manager of Toyota Motor Sales, U.S.A., Inc. "We'll still definitely be the lowest-price car in the market," Lean said in an interview. The 1975 Corolla 1600 will have a sticker price of $2,711. The closest thing to us is the $2,799 — the Chevrolet Vega and the American Motors Gremlin.

Lean said he did not expect anybody in the business to have a particularly good year, but added, "I've never seen such a price-sensitive market." West Germany's Volkswagen, still the largest foreign importer in the American auto market, is running closer to the Detroit sales pattern than most foreign makes. Its first 1975 models are not due in dealer showrooms until January, but sales were off 5.4 per cent in October from a year earlier. For the first 10 months of the year, sales were off 27.2 per cent from a year earlier. Still, J. Stuart Perkins, president of Volkswagen of America, Inc., is confident that when the market rebounds, his company will have the kind of economy goods Americans will want to buy. "Ultimately, we should have a better showing," he says, "with our having six out of the first 10 cars in the Environmental Protection Agency mileage test."

Prices may have had something to do with it, concedes Robert O. Link, vice president for sales of Nissan Motor Corporation of America, the United States unit of the Japanese builder of Datsuns. "But I do feel that it's hard to know why," Link said. But Link added, "If anybody has a good year in 1975, I would have to believe it would be us. This energy thing is not going to go away, and since we won the EPA economy derby — four out of the top 10 — I have to think we'll have a pretty good year." Sales of the Swedish-made Volvo were down from October and for the year to date, but Bjorn Ahlstrom, president of Volvo of America Corporation, pointed to a supply problem. "We had excellent sales from mid-July through early October," he said, "because it was the first time we had a supply of cars. We were virtually out of cars in the first six months of the year." The October decline, Ahlstrom said, amounted to a 4 per cent from the 1973 month, but was the second best October for the company since it entered the United States market.

Sales spark

WITH SALES slumping, an auto dealer in Richardson, Tex., selling Japanese made cars hired three women for the sales force — Carol Oppel, Linda Massey and Patty Cooper (from left) — and dressed them in kilimoes. The firm is now tops in its area and Patty Cooper says there are advantages to being a woman in auto sales. (UPI)

At 86, he's flyin' high

MUSKOGON, Mich. (UPI) — As long as C.R. "Sinnie" Sinclear can breathe and remain upright, he will keep flying. "He has been doing both for a long time and wants to continue in both departments," Sinclear, "Michigan's grand old man of aviation," was 86 years old April 8, and has been a pilot for 59 years. He is the state's oldest active pilot and Michigan's only member of America's Aviation Hall of Fame at Hammondsport, N.Y. During his 59 years' and 15,000 hours logged as a pilot, he flew the mail, early airliners, barnstormed, piloted with flying circuses and in air races and was an instructor. He was a flying instructor with the U.S. Army Signal Corps in World War I and has helped train thousands of pilots. He flew a rickety biplane on his first solo flight 59 years ago and this month celebrated the anniversary by flying out a new Piper Cherokee at the Muskogon County airport. "He came to Muskogon in 1936 and has owned and operated the Sinclear Flying Service since. Sinclear incurred a back injury in a fall some time ago, but declares: "I'm not going to retire as long as I can climb into an airplane. As long as I can pass my physical and fly, I'll keep on instructing." When Sinclear was a mail pilot he flew the mail with Charles A. Lindbergh on the old Minneapolis to Fargo route, before Lindbergh became famous with his flight to Paris. His first solo flight was in a Prairie-Keller plane. Nov. 18, 1915, at Chicago's Ashburn Field, Ashburn Field has disappeared. "It's all houses now," "Sinnie" said.

The veteran flyer had several brushes with death. Once a fire developed in his plane and only a 3,000 foot nosedive that quenched the flames saved him. Another time a crankshaft broke and the engine flew apart. A forced landing spared him on that occasion. He is short and stocky with white hair and wears glasses, but always has a grin. He only has one regret. "If I were a half century younger, I'd be an astronaut."

Butte future stirs clashes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Anaconda Mining Co. has ended its silence on why it is closing underground mining in Butte, Mont., with a promise that the future will be better.

But Democratic Gov. Thomas I. Judge said a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-Miss., that Anaconda decided to "destroy" the mining city.

Anaconda President John H. Place, of New York, said in testimony before the Senate subcommittee Monday, said the chief reason for ending underground mining at a cost of more than $200 million was to protect the company's profits elsewhere.

Place also said it was in "the best interests" of the nation to save low-grade copper ore deposits in what has been called the "richest hill on earth."

"I also believe — with strong conviction — that the people of Butte will agree that it is worth the trade-off for a short-term hardship for the potential of a much greater benefit from eventual underground mining operations," the New York executive said.

Place, a former Chase Manhattan Bank official who has headed Anaconda for three years, said "underground production costs had far outstripped the market price of copper." He said it would be unfair to stockholders to use profits from other operations to keep mining going in Butte.

Place said, however, that the company was working on developing bank mining operations to take copper out of Butte for another 50 to 70 years. The amount still there, he said, was probably more than 11 billion pounds — nearly as much as has been mined from beneath the city over the last century.

Company officials were accused by Judge and Democratic congressman-elect Max Baucus of refusing to explain their decision to abandon underground mining.

Judge said appeals for information "have not been met" and asked why other out-of-state copper companies had been told of the action before state officials were.

"The relationship of the Anaconda Company to other mining companies in the West, regarding the closure in Butte, suggests a corporate attempt to destroy the city of Butte, Mont.," the governor said. "This idea may seem farfetched in Washington, D.C., but it's close to reality in Butte."

He said Anaconda had "not demonstrated good faith" in its dealings with the people of Butte and the state.

"The Anaconda Company in the past 100 years has produced more millionaires in Los Angeles, New York and Seattle by exploiting a natural resource with most of the profit leaving Montana," he said.

Baucus, invited by Metcalf to sit with the Senate panel, said he too had tried unsuccessfully to get an explanation from company officials of why the closure was necessary.

"Like a number of others, I have met only with tight lips," Baucus told the Anaconda officials who sat unsmiling behind a long table before the committee.

Baucus, who defeated

Republican Rep. Nick Stupp in the Nov. 5 election, said Congress "should" take the responsibility for seeing to it that "corporate action should take the responsibility for seeing to it that corporate action as sweeping and potentially devastating as this be in accord with the public interest."

Place denied that the decision had been "dropped" with shocking suddenness upon an unwary community and said Butte had "been doomed many times before by an assortment of experts" but had always survived.

"I am sure, however, that once again Butte will be equal to the challenge," Place concluded.

The former banker said Anaconda had laid off 106 employees on Nov. 15 and that up to 540 more may be laid off over the next four months. Some workers, he said, may be given other jobs and other companies at 150 were recruiting miners.

Book eyed

Schools battling no-smoking law

MILFORD, Mich. (UPI) — Teachers and officials in the Huron Valley school district say they will refuse to enforce a state law which makes it illegal for students under 18 to smoke.

"They defied a prosecutor to challenge their stand in court. They said they want to teach the students and not harass them with the law which the teachers claim makes their 'perform police functions,'" Brooks Patterson, that-minors were smoking while attending a public meeting.

A school board followed the complaint by adopting a strict antismoking policy which includes patrols by teachers of outside smoking areas and an antismoking education program with tough penalties for violators.

"But all this has not effected any significant changes," said the letter, which was made public this week.

Land use for crops, pasture, and forests totals 1,811 million acres — 80 per cent of the total U.S. land area of 2,264 million acres.

Montana assails mine, plant plan

HELENA, Mont. (UPI) — The state department of natural resources and conservation has released a draft environmental impact statement that proved to be a quietly devastating attack upon the plans of five northeastern utilities to build two 700 megawatt generators at Colstrip, Mont., and stretch twin 500 kilowatt transmission lines across Montana.

The environmental impact statement, released Monday, said the coal-fired generators would increase air pollution significantly — especially during the early morning hours when ground-based inversion layers prevail — and destroy 12,000 acres of wildlife habitat during the 37-year life of the plants, damage the Yellowstone River and "impair the viability of ranching."

In terms of customer cost, the five-volume study said it would be cheaper to ship coal by railroads than electricity on the transmission lines. In addition, the use of railroads would produce more jobs.

"The estimate of 236 in-state, long-term (railroad) jobs compares very favorably with the prediction of 95 preservation station jobs created by the operation of one three and four," the statement said.

Montana Power Co. and Puget Sound Power and Light are jointly building two 330 megawatt generators at Colstrip, in the southeastern part of the state. The two 700 megawatt generators would be built by the same utilities along with Portland General Electric, the Washington Water Power Co. and Pacific Power & Light.

The impact statement said that besides the release of more than 7,000 pounds of sulfur dioxide per hour, potentially toxic trace elements could be released.

The study also talked about the possibility of "acid rains" and sulfuric acid rainfalls into streams and lakes because of the sulfur dioxide emissions.

The utility plans call for cooling the power plants with water piped from the Yellowstone River, some 30 miles away, at the rate of about 50 cubic feet per second. The statement said that such an action would change the "natural physical and chemical features of the river."

"It seems evident that coal development will severely threaten the viability of the ranching culture, whatever mining and related energy development activities occur," the study added.

The draft statement will be subject to public scrutiny and comment for 45 days. The department will also conduct a series of public meetings throughout the state on the statement.
