KETCHUM — Blaine County Prosecutor Tomi Campion has asked the Idaho Attorney General's office for guidance concerning tangled allegations of embezzlement involving a Ketchum innkeeper.

James Doyle, owner of the Prospect Inn in Ketchum, has been accused by California businessman Lee Fletcher of embezzling funds that purportedly should go to Devils Bedstead Ranch Inc. under a condominium agreement.

Fletcher says he has become involved in the affair because the Bedstead ranch owes him $53,000.

Fletcher has been trying since Jan. 20 to get prosecutor Campion to file criminal charges against Doyle.

Fletcher said under contract Doyle was to give 75 per cent of all rental revenue from 30 condominiums at the Prospect to Devils Bedstead Ranch Inc. in 1975, with the remaining 25 per cent of the revenues was to go to Doyle.

Doyle allegedly was to act "as exclusive renting and managing agent of the condominium units, responsible for mailing contributions and collecting all deposits relating to the units."

The agreement allegedly took effect Dec. 20, 1974.

According to Fletcher and James Rapp, Bedstead president, Doyle delivered a $194 check to the Bedstead Dec. 23 and another for $5613 on Dec. 30 Fletcher alleged the checks bounced.

Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker who represents Doyle said Monday he had advised Doyle to hold payment on the checks and all further revenue generated from the lease of the condominiums.

Walker claimed the Bedstead owed Doyle for furniture owned by Doyle which the Bedstead continues to use.

Walker said a person using items owned by another should reasonably assume part or whole payment for those items under the law.

According to Fletcher a trust agreement which was to be established at a local bank by Doyle was never opened under the agreement.

Fletcher claims checks drawn on the general account of the Prospect show the Devils Bedstead Ranch funds were mixed with the private funds of Doyle.

"This provides strong proof that the monies rightfully belonging to the Devils Bedstead Ranch have been criminally converted to the private or corporate uses of Mr. Doyle," Fletcher's complaint said.

In addition, Fletcher wrote that as of Jan. 25, Doyle will have made rental collections totalling more than $14,000, none of which have been delivered.

Walker said the entire matter could be settled if the Bedstead were to enter into an agreement to pay for the furniture the ranch continues to use.

In a related action on Jan. 21, James Doyle Enterprises filed a petition in Federal Bankruptcy Court to force the Bedstead Ranch to be declared involuntarily bankrupt, Fletcher said.

The petition claims the Bedstead owes the Prospect $21,983 for the rental of furniture and $112,255 for the purchase of the furniture in condominium units at the Prospect.

Attorneys for the Bedstead will argue Wednesday in Boise for dismissal of the petition.

Rapp said Walker said the Prosecutor will argue against the dismissal.

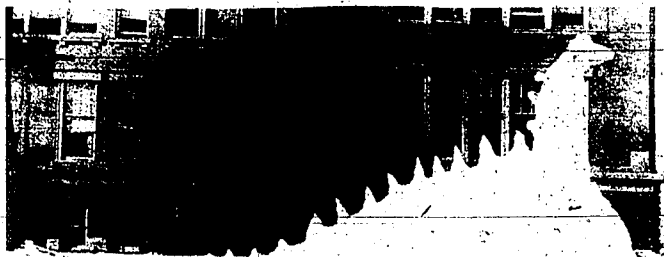

Neither corporation has any intention to gain by the bankruptcy, Walker said, but filed an agreement for the furniture "is signed in the Prospect will continue in its petition of bankruptcy."

Prosecutor Campion said he will wait until the attorney general advises before deciding on drafting a complaint against Doyle.

"This man Fletcher may be using criminal law procedure to collect a civil debt," Campion said. If so, he said, the action would be improper.

Campion said an extensive investigation would be required to deal with the embezzlement allegations.

Gordon Nielson, chief deputy to Attorney General Wayne Kidwell, said Campion must present documents to the attorney general's office before the state office could give advice.

'Dinosaur research'

Gem gold, silver deal probed

TWIN FALLS — Two Idahoans apparently lost $14,000 and $6,000 when a Nevada company they paid for gold and silver went bankrupt last week before delivery.

The FBI and a Washington state investigative unit are looking into the transactions, which took place in the Coeur d'Alene area, according to Ralph Smith, who heads a federal securities fraud task force in the Washington state division of professional licensing.

Smith said that the Western Pacific Gold and Silver Co. of Nevada went bankrupt last week after selling gold and silver and promising delivery in 90 days.

The two Idahoans, whose names were not disclosed, were among the company's apparent customers who complained to the Spokane county prosecutor. The prosecutor in turn asked the state office for investigators help.

Smith said investigators from his office will probably go to Coeur d'Alene Thursday to check the complaints.

"The question is one of jurisdiction," he said. His office must determine whether the local agents of the company are knowingly involved in any attempt to defraud con-

Bureaucrats aim at field mice with elephant gun

WASHINGTON — Now and then a textbook example comes along to teach us what is wrong with the federal bureaucracy.

Such an example is at hand in the proposed regulations of the Federal Trade Commission in the field of vocational schools and correspondence schools.

These schools constitute a fair-sized industry. By the FTC's estimate, some 3.3 million students are enrolled in an estimated 10,000 schools. Fees amount to $2.5 billion a year, of which $500 million is provided in direct grants through GI benefits and other federal programs. The federally insured student loan program, operated through the Office of Education, also is deeply committed.

In terms of total enrollment and total educational spending, the figures for vocational schools and home-study courses are not remarkably large, but they are large enough to indicate an area of legitimate governmental concern. The FTC has an entirely proper interest in seeking to deter fraud, deceptive practices, and unfair activities in this field.

That such abuses have occurred, no one denies. In the past several years, under existing authority, the FTC has cracked down on three hard-sell outfits in St. Petersburg, Milwaukee and Kansas City.

Last August, as a consequence of continuing complaints from disillusioned students, the FTC issued its proposed Rule 438. This is the textbook example of bureaucracy gone awry. For a field mouse of a problem, the FTC has leveled an elephant gun.

The details of this regulation—apparently begun with several assumptions—(that the vocational and home-study schools are all run by crooks and con artists, that no student in his right mind would enroll in any of them, and that the FTC alone is endowed with power to supervise otherwise unregulated industry.

None of these assumptions has merit. At least 40 states have regulatory enactments in the fields; the schools also are subject to such federal agencies as the Veterans Administration, the Office of Education, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, and even the FTC, itself in its rules governing door-to-door sales. The best of the schools are subject to an independent—and respected—accreditation service.

Granted that some fly-by-night outfits may be running a lucrative racket, there is abundant evidence that many schools are engaged in a useful and honest service. Millions of young people and shut-ins, men and women in remote areas, veterans who want to learn a trade, women who write poetry—countless Americans who wish to better themselves have benefited from these educational offerings.

As part of its elephant gun approach, the FTC would prohibit the schools from advertising; even general information about employment opportunities. One leading form would require the schools to disclose figures on the earnings of their former students—figures that could not be obtained without gross invasion of privacy.

Still another regulation would require that every prospective student be mailed a warning: "The enrollment contract that you signed is not effective or valid unless you first sign this statement. You are free to cancel your enrollment and receive a full refund of any moneys you have paid to the school by not signing—or mailing—this statement—within ten days." Maybe this would prevent a student from being swindled; more likely this would discourage a student from ever trying.

The FTC's role in government is to prevent and to punish fraud in significant areas of interstate commerce. The agency has a long and respectable history of service to ignorant and unwary consumers. But in such proposals as Rule 438, bureaucracy ceases to be the servant and becomes the tyrannical schoolmaster instead.

—Washington Star Syndicate

Disciplinary judgment

Supt. George Staudaier has overreacted in the recent streaking incident at the Twin Falls High School.

Staudaier, willing to throw the first stone directed that criminal charges be filed against the two student streakers.

One was 17 years old, and was treated through protective juvenile court channels. The second, unfortunately, was 18 years old, an adult, and was confined in adult court. He may carry his record for life.

Staudaier's view of streaking is curiously shrill. It entirely misses the spirit and tone of the latest slightly-wicked college fad to sweep the nation. If streaking is anything these days, it is outdated, already last year's event.

But in Staudaier's view, using his own words, "male streakers in public at the girls basketball game is nothing but a bare, naked man showing his penis being flaunted at women and girls and is an obscene and vulgar insult."

It is not a prank, Staudaier said, but "a serious violation of law and moral ethics."

That's laying it on pretty thickly. The tone of Staudaier's statement suggests there is much too large a generation gap between the superintendent and his students.

We doubt there are many adults today who have not done something similar on a dare during their adolescence. Even so, such juvenile antics are often distasteful to others and surely should not be encouraged.

Every scoutmaster who tries to keep his rambunctious troop in line knows this. So does every high school coach who takes his team to play in another town.

But unlike Staudaier, most scoutmasters and coaches and most superintendents for that matter don't try to stamp out the evil by bringing criminal charges against his boys.

They maintain discipline by using a stern word or other less drastic method. Their first recourse is not one moral horror which requires police intervention.

The genius of law in American society is that stern laws are always available but generally used only when necessary. Policemen quickly learn they don't go around "throwing the book" at every citizen they encounter. They learn to use minimum force and minimum charges to handle the situation. It's called discretion.

Ultra strict enforcement of every law simply won't work. For example, on a typical spring day there could be perhaps 200 high school student arrests for loitering. Every adolescent's encounter with a bully could lead to assault, battery and disorderly conduct charges.

The new school district policy also is in sharp contrast with its earlier performance, both in cases involving reported streaks at the high school and in more serious matters.

One worth mentioning was the willingness to let an accused arsonist continue driving school buses. The danger to student passengers from a potentially unstable driver—apparently was outweighed by other factors.

The school's actions have been erratic. It is time for a more consistent policy to be applied to the district's problems.

Joint efforts by Ford, Congress might work, too

Chicago Daily News

WASHINGTON — It is a feature of official Washington that in times of stress, the accent on displayed piety grows heavy. Prayer breakfasts proliferate, tales of a rewarded faith circulate, a few robes seek comfort in reverence, and officials deluged by mundane woes seek guidance where they can find it.

These rearing supplications take a more earthly form in the trenches of industrial America, where the word is passed, "Praise the Lord and pass that tax cut pronto!"

President Ford put it aptly the other morning when he held a prayer group: "We are joined in the profound realization that none of us can do it alone." The President's realization is apparently not so profound as to include House Speaker Carl Albert, Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield and other Democratic leaders in Congress.

It could be that Ford has decided that his companionable needs will not be satisfied by his obligations on the other side of the aisle now that he must demonstrate that he is the leader of all the people. For the time being, at least, he has chosen to go it alone, and the suspicion deepens that he has been advised it is good politics. Out of his experience in the House and an intuitive wisdom about the disorganized character of Congressional Democrats, he knows that he's dealing with a conglomeration of political cripples.

He understands that it would be a miracle, even for church-going Democrats, to produce a neatly packaged program of energy and tax

"We are not going to fiddle while energy burns."

Now the President will get a quick tax cut out of the Congress, not in the form he proposed but one with "a reasonable similarity," as he has put it. If a consensus ever existed in this town, the need for a tax cut to stimulate the economy is it.

But the scheme to raise $30 billion in energy fees, and then to play it back into the economy so as to inflate, so fragile in many of its parts, so potentially inflationary, and so controversial that to expect it to be passed intact is to engage in reveries.

Moreover, the Ford plan fails to deal with the gargantuan appetite of the internal combustion engine for gasoline or with the profligate wastes of energy by the nation's industrial machine. In these respects, it seems to have been put together by rubber-bands and library paste.

The President has been advised to stand firm on his program, or at least not to show any signs of retreat before the battle is joined. He has signaled that any premature hint of compromise would make him appear wobbly-wobbly, indecisive, uncertain, a paper tiger. A stern posture now, it is reasoned, will amply compensate for the early impression he created of an eminently nice guy thrown into a job way over his head, capable of pleasing but not of leading.

The merits of his program thus get lost in a confusion of bickering over an aggressive program, a spectacle of foolish resolve. In the end, the President will be required to give-and-take rather than go-it-alone. Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns has suggested that it might be a good idea if the President summoned the leaders of Congress to a Camp David meeting to hammer out an agreed program.

It might end this who's-who's first dud of walls. Otherwise, the nation may need more Divine guidance than human prayer can generate.

Jackson broadens base with appeals to liberals

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Both the success and limited nature of Sen. Henry M. Jackson's leftward thrust are illustrated by a private breakfast in Jackson's penthouse suite in Los Angeles's Century Plaza Hotel last Tuesday.

His guest was Ed Sanders, a rich and liberal Beverly Hills lawyer who was an early organizer for Sen. George McGovern's 1972 presidential campaign. Sanders privately committed himself to Richard Kline, Jackson's fund-raiser, several weeks ago. Now, over morning coffee, Sanders formalized his journey across the Democratic party spectrum to endorse Jackson.

But the significance of Sanders' conversion is mitigated by the fact that he is really less a liberal activist and Democratic politician than he is a Jewish community leader and Zionist. Since the October, 1973, war, such Jewish liberals have given Scoop Jackson's advocacy of Israel a higher priority than George McGovern's liberalism.

That preference lends Jackson's 1976 campaign a wholly different flavor from 1972, when scattered party regulars and labor unionnaires comprised a woefully narrow base. Now he has the financing and dedicated followers which make a serious candidacy. Nevertheless, his waning of the left is widely supposed among liberals who do not list Israel as top priority.

Jackson's new base was visible Tuesday night at the Arizona Biltmore in Phoenix at a $250-a-plate dinner (netting over $70,000). A paying guest was State Senate President Robert Stump, a moderate who also among the lonely Jacksonites here in 1972. Stump recognized few of his fellow diners—mostly well-heeled Jewish businessmen new to politics.

Jackson's Los Angeles fund-raiser two nights earlier at the Century Plaza was natch the same on a larger scale (netting $275,000).

To make his new liberals feel more comfortable, Jackson has softened his old rhetoric. He says nothing in defense of the embattled defense budget of CIA. His 1972 denunciations of the radical left have been shelved. Most striking is his about-face on Vietnam, writing off South Vietnamese independence as a virtually lost cause in his Los Angeles speech.

This has pleased Morris Dees, the Montgomery, Ala., liberal who ran McGovern's defense budget in 1972. Personally reassured by Jackson about defense and Vietnam, Dees thinks enough of him to have flown to Los Angeles last Sunday for consultation about direct mail.

But such personal attention cannot remove this reality: Jackson still believes in strong national defense, including U.S. troops in Europe and indigenous nuclear deterrence.

Not are all rich Jewish liberals enchanted by Jackson's hard line on Jewish emigration from Russia. His operatives in Los Angeles have been pressing unsuccessfully for support from Paul Ziffren, the old tiger of California liberalism. It is no secret that Ziffren admires Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and fears Jackson would endanger détente.

But the Ziffrens are outnumbered in the Jewish community, where pro-Jackson sentiment was not diminished by Soviet agitation of the trade treaty.

Las Vegas publisher Hank Greenspan, a devout Jacksonite who attended both the Los Angeles and Phoenix dinners, articulated when a television newsman said Jackson backers beating the deadline against contributions over $1,000 reminded him of the Watergate scandals. While Nixon fatcats sought financial advantage, says Greenspan, Jackson's see him as the only politician forthrightly committed to the survival of the republicanism. This alone insures Jackson an indispensable base for 1976 even if he fails to disarm the left.

Ziegler worth his fee. "Don't Forget We're All in This Together!"

WASHINGTON — First of all I have to admit that I have a conflict of interest writing about Ron Ziegler's lecture problems.

Through no fault of mine we are booked by the same lecture bureau. Though I profit no way by the fee Ziegler is asking.

That much said, I believe Boston University made a serious mistake in disinviting Ziegler to speak on Feb. 26. Prodded by an outraged faculty the students decided that Ziegler should not be paid for talking to them about the Nixon administration.

The next day I walked by Georgetown University and a student showed me a petition he was circulating to keep John Dean from speaking there.

The two incidents took me back to the '40s and '50s when colleges and universities tried to keep liberal and left-wing speakers off campus. The political climate was different, but the thinking was the same. Anyone the university didn't agree with was a dangerous person who could poison the minds of naive students.

It would be nice to believe that the faculty and students' objection to having Ziegler on campus was strictly monetary. But most of the statements I read indicated that they objected to being lied to by a member of the Nixon administration. This came as a surprise to me because if credibility was the criterion for college speakers, no one in Washington would get a booking.

Besides going out on a limb concerning free speech, I also think Boston University made another mistake in canceling Ziegler. I believe he might have turned out to be one of the most interesting speakers of the year.

Those of us who have attended his press conferences can attest to the fact that Ziegler, even when he doesn't intend to, can be funny.

We have spent many hours roaring with laughter at Ziegler's responses to our questions, and there wasn't a member of the press in Washington who didn't look forward, every morning and afternoon, to what Nixon's press secretary would have to say.

Ziegler's disdign answers to questions on Watergate were the greatest comedy relief this town has ever seen. His inventive language ("misspoke," "inoperative") amused us no end, and this country may never see another press secretary like him again.

For $1,000 Boston was getting a bargain. Not only would it be able to hear someone defied President Nixon but Ziegler was going to open his lecture to questions I assure them the question period would have been better than a Muhammad Ali-George Foreman fight.

ART BUCHWALD

So you blew it, Boston! You not only struck a blow against free speech but you cheated yourself out of a great evening in the theater.

The sad part of it is that the students let the faculty influence their decision on whom they would or would not hear on their campus. It would have never happened a few years ago.

I hope that other colleges and universities don't follow the Boston U precedent. There is a dearth of humorous speakers on the lecture circuit, and I assure you Ziegler is worth every dollar you can pay him.

Just ask him why Watergate was nothing more than a third-rate burglary, and sit back and relax in your seat and you will have one of the best times of your life.

Conditions create bitterness in jail

Editor, Times-News:
This letter is about our Twin Falls jail facilities.
On Jan. 22, 1975, I received a ticket for not inspecting a vehicle properly.
Since it happened three months before, and I couldn't remember anything about it, and Adrian Smith said he could "hang" me, I pleaded guilty to the charge and decided to sit it out in jail.
That place is bad. For one thing, there is hardly any ventilation or heat at all. The only toilet is a big pipe coming out of the floor. They have showers, but they won't give you any towels or washcloths.
They wouldn't let me use the phone to call and tell anyone where I was at. I didn't receive any rough treatment, but I heard about it from other inmates. On medical needs they gave us aspirin and cold tablets.

The only furnishings in your cell is a picnic table, two benches and your bed. We took the mattresses off the beds and put them on the benches to make them softer. But the deputies took them out of the cell.
The food is another matter. All you have to do is compare it to a plate of "doggy dump."
I realize jail isn't supposed to be a picnic, but all the Twin Falls County jail does is make the people in there, no matter what the crime, very bitter.

Rec'd there and know

Washington's idea still right today

Editor, Times-News:
Two stories of a need for help by our own citizens, one 10 days old and the other a youth in our own area, contrast greatly with the President's request for $3 million for further defense of Saigon.
Countless "millions" and irreparable lives have been lost in an apparently losing battle with the Communists in South Vietnam. How long do we have to do this in the face of our enemy who supplies opposing forces there?
Lisa, an 18-day-old infant, was born with a faulty heart and the "installation" of a pacemaker in such a young child was a last resort to save her life.
To date she is doing well and the doctors are very optimistic -- and the cost to her unemployed family is $20,000.
Larry Ek is receiving help now after local citizens contributed the necessary funds for the check-up necessary to determine if he could be helped; if he and we hope it will, the additional cost would be in the neighborhood of $10,000.

These are just two samples of what just a small percentage of foreign aid can do here. We do not for our own citizens. We do not know how much talent and ability was destroyed in the lives lost in all our wars -- we do not know the financial burden it is and has been imposing on our citizens.
We erred in failing to heed the advice given by our first president -- George Washington -- when he said, in his Farewell Address: Avoid all foreign-entangling alliances."

Meaning of ERA varies

Editor, Times-News:
A recent Times-News editorial stated that the Equal Rights Amendment is "short, simple, and straightforward." If the ERA is so simple and straightforward, why does it mean so many things to so many people?
To the Times-News it merely means "that those presumable inalienable rights" (Bill of Rights) can't be taken away because of a person's sex. The lobbyists implied that lobbyists having a different viewpoint are among the "poorest-informed" in the state's history.
To Congresswoman Bella Abzug, the ERA will put an end to all the silly laws restricting abortion.
The National Organization of Women (NOW) the ERA will be a main tool to accomplish their goals, including equal rights to be drafted for combat duty.

The Communist Party has called for "mass action for final ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment." I have never known the Communists to rally behind something that didn't advance their cause. Certainly the Communists view the ERA differently than does the Times-News. I have always found the Communist Party to be amoral and deceptive, but never poorly informed.
Dr. James McTellan, an expert on the ERA warned: "The extent to which the reserved powers of the states are transferred under the amendment to the national government is truly alarming."
Matters involving family law, divorce, child custody, alimony, dowry rights, inheritance, survivor's benefits, insurance rates, welfare, and protective labor legislation would all be placed under federal jurisdiction."

There are those who say that not drafting women for combat duty violates the proposed law: "Equality of rights... shall not be denied... on account of sex." There are those who say that laws protecting wives and mothers deny equality of rights on account of sex. Does not the "simple" wording of the ERA, signed by these people. The wording of the ERA may be simple, but live out of nine Supreme Court justices could have power to interpret those words in such a way as to destroy much that is virtuous in our land.

Arthritis raises questions

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Enclosed is 35 cents in stamps and addressed envelope I am mailing to you in care of this newspaper for your booklet on arthritis.
There are several questions that puzzle me.
Is arthritis a direct offshoot of arthritis? Does it always travel from one arm to the other by way of the collar bone or bones across the back of the neck?
I had it first in the right arm, then in the back of my neck and now the left arm became sore as the pain subsided in the right. -- Mrs. N.R.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please tell me what causes so much calcium in my body. First I had to get cortisone shots in my one shoulder. Now it's in the other. Do I have too much calcium in my body? -- J.K.
First of all, tendonitis has no direct relationship to arthritis. Tendonitis is a fairly common occurrence, especially in the shoulder or elbow or heel.
In tendonitis the elbow is an example of it; the joint has been injured or irritated in some way, and body calcium is called up, so to speak, to the area where it is deposited as part of the healing process.

But the deposit causes it painful symptoms unless it gets too large and begins interfering with the lungs, the tiny fluid-filled sacs which lie at joints to take the friction out of the movement.
Granted, the pain can resemble that of arthritis and, in fact, can be confused with it, but x-rays will reveal these calcium deposits, if they are there, whether there is pain or not. In fact, from Mrs. N.R.'s description, it is entirely possible that it is arthritis she's dealing with, and not tendonitis. At any rate, there is no "traveling" involved in tendonitis. Although the pain tends to subside in time, generally, it is necessary to flush the calcium deposits out. As to J.K.'s question, which might already be answered: Calcium deposits in a tendon or bursa is not a matter of excess levels of body calcium; generally, but part of the healing process.
Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you please discuss "Joak-itch" in your column? What causes it? What does it look like? It is. If you want the fancy name for it, it's "tinea cruris," although "Joak-itch" is more descriptive because of the location where it occurs, in the groin.

It's brought on by fungus type of germ which causes red, scaly skin and, in more serious cases, tiny blisters.
A similar skin rash can also be caused by irritation from some of the synthetic materials used in the athletic supporter itself. Here, the material can set up an allergic type of reaction and develop much the same symptoms as tinea cruris.
In tinea cruris, the best preventive is to make the skin environment unfriendly to the germ through frequent bathing and complete drying of the area. After drying, an antifungal medication should be applied.
Joak-itch is more prevalent among obese people, especially in hot months among those engaged in strenuous activity.
The only way to tell for sure that the problem is tinea cruris is by a sample scraping of the fungus and examination in a laboratory.

N-power opinions varied

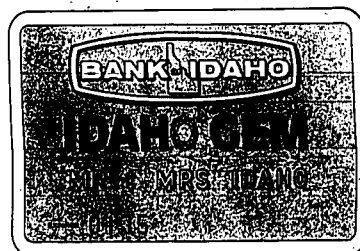

Chicago Daily News
WASHINGTON, Feb. 4 (AP) — American scientists are by no means of one mind on the desirability of developing nuclear power to help solve the energy crisis.
In fact, they are divided into three schools of thought — opponents, proponents and "nuclear moderates."
This was disclosed by the latest newsletter of the Federation of American Scientists, which was given over entirely to the "N-power" issue.
The organization is attempting to stir a new discussion among scientists on the subject and has asked them to respond to this newsletter with comments and suggestions which will be printed in the March newsletter.

Here are the three positions, as spelled out by the FAS:
Opponents: They believe that America ought not produce electric power with nuclear reactors. They argue that nuclear (fission) reactors are unnecessary because of our huge reserves of coal and the future potential of solar power.
They contend that nuclear reactors are unreliable and unsafe and point to "The small but important possibility of catastrophic failure of a reactor." The nuclear reactors can also be undesirable ecologically, they say, because of the problem of disposing of radioactive wastes for thousands of years.

Finally, they believe that reactors can be "dangers to society" because of such problems as sabotage, theft of fissionable material, and encouragement of world-wide proliferation.
Proponents: They believe that nuclear power is "the power of the future." They say it is necessary because all nations do not have coal and we should not rely upon the assumption that they will be found to produce electricity from solar power.
As for proliferation, the world will not be dissuaded from developing nuclear reactors as many countries are already doing, just because our nation does not build them, they say.
Deaths due to producing electricity by coal are likely to be 100 times as many due to

Still no clues on Patty Hearst

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The father of fugitive heiress Patricia Hearst said on the eve of the first anniversary of her kidnapping that he believes she would escape imprisonment if she saved herself.

Randolph Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, said the family and the FBI had no new information on her whereabouts. He believed to be California since the last tape recording from their daughter eight months ago.

House block expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz conceded today that the House will probably vote to block the administration's March 1 increase in the cost of food stamps.

"I guess this must have been the wrong time to recommend any reductions in feeding programs," Butz said. Butz said he was "shocked" at the size of the overall budget deficit — $2 billion — that will be contained in the recommendations being sent to Congress today by President Ford. He said the decision to propose the deficit must have been "pointed to" by Ford.

The House Agriculture Committee voted 31-2 Thursday to overturn the administration's recommendation to hike food stamp costs. The measure will come up for a vote of the full House this week and the Senate Agriculture Committee is expected to approve a similar bill.

The bill forbids increasing food stamp prices above Jan. 1 levels through all of 1975. The administration has proposed that all persons receiving food stamps must pay 30 per cent of their adjusted gross income for their stamps as opposed to the current 23 per cent.

In an interview on CBS Morning News, Butz said that it now appears that the House will "vote like the committee did to override the recommendation."

Butz voiced strong support for the administration's proposal, saying that "you've got to recognize that if we want to get some fiscal sanity in this budget we've got to start cutting back some place."

"If the Congress does not go along with this, it means a still larger deficit in the budget. We simply have to ask ourselves at what point do you want to blow the whistle on this horrendous deficit in the budget."

Butz said the federal contribution to his department's feeding programs has increased 40 per cent over the past two years, as opposed to food cost increases of 45 per cent.

Asked if he believed she made mistakes in her months of effort to free her from her SLA captors, Hearst said, "As you look back, obviously what you did, didn't work. I don't know if anything would have worked."

Asked if he believed she would change her mind and give up, Hearst said: "It makes more sense, no matter what she wanted to do politically or otherwise. Of course, that's just my opinion. What her opinion is, and the people she is with, I don't know."

Hearst assumes his daughter is still in California, one source said, living with "sympathetic" people.

Hearst said the family would move soon from their nearby Hillsborough mansion to an apartment in San Francisco.

Food aid hike asked by Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford wants a $22 million increase in food for peace shipments designed to help ease hunger abroad.

The long-expected increase in food aid was confirmed with the release of the new budget figures. They showed the sharp increase in planned food aid spending for the current 1975 fiscal year, as well as new budget figures for fiscal 1976 beginning July 1.

As originally written, the 1975 fiscal year budget had provided $81 million to finance food for peace aid to "political" recipients like South Vietnam and nations classified as hungry, including India and Bangladesh.

Part of the dollar increase offsets hikes in commodity prices which occurred since the original fiscal 1975 budget was planned more than a year ago. But officials said there were also increases in the planned volume of commodity shipments, especially for wheat.

U.S. wheat prices have declined from $4.87 a bushel at the farm level last November to $4.11 in mid-January, which means each aid dollar now can buy more than appeared likely a few months ago.

Administration officials privately had been pressing for the aid increase to counter criticism which arose when the White House refused at Home in November to increase the commodity supply outlook at the time was cloudy — to announce a boost during the world food conference.

Action on the new budget figures has been delayed by negotiations over division of aid between recipients on a U.S. "hunger list" and those who get food on the basis of national security considerations.

For fiscal 1976, the budget outlined a plan for fewer dollars but more food. Officials said $1.314 billion would be spent to finance the fiscal 1976 program compared with the $1.602 billion for the current year. But the volume of most commodities shipped will rise because per-bushel and per-pound prices are expected to decline if 1975 crop production increases in line with current hopes.

If the weather is poor and 1975 harvests are disappointing, the outlook for fiscal 1976 presumably could change.

China policy row developing in US

CHICAGO Daily News — HONG KONG — China watchers Monday saw a first-class China policy row developing in America.

Speculation over what will happen when chairman Mao Tse-Tung quits the scene is "largely an exercise in irrelevance," the Montana Democrat said.

"It ignores the depth and the reality of the revolutionary changes which have taken place in China during the last quarter century," he added.

Mansfield, who made a 21-day trip to China in December, was conspicuously courted by the Chinese in contrast to the treatment given Kissinger, who was in Peking a few weeks before.

Profits plunge for GM

By United Press International
The auto and construction industries suffered severe slumps in 1974 but should snap out of their depressed economic state this year, according to private and government reports.

General Motors and American Motors, the largest and smallest U.S. automakers, both reported rough economic doing last year. GM said that, although the dollar volume of car sales was down only 12 percent in 1974, profits plunged 50 percent. GM's directors took the rare step of cutting the company's quarterly dividend from 45 cents to 65 cents a share and canceling the usually generous bonus program for top executives.

With sales of $4.5 billion in 1974, GM slipped to second behind Exxon Corp. as the world's largest industrial corporation. GM profits in 1974, hit by an energy crisis at the start and the recession at the end, fell to $50 million, compared with the record $2.4 billion in 1973.

GM chairman Thomas Murphy said, however, that 1975 would be a "turnaround year" with sales increasing later in the year.

Murphy said that GM's sales in the last three months of 1974 were up 10 percent from the same period in 1973.

The Commerce Department said spending for construction of $134.4 billion last year was off 1 percent from 1973, only the second yearly decline on record.

The only other time construction spending fell was during the recession of 1960 when it dropped 12 percent.

Unemployment in the building industry has been as high as 30 percent four times the national rate.

In Atlanta, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development James H. Cason said housing starts last year totaled 1.7 million after three consecutive years of more than 2 million housing starts.

But he said "things look somewhat better" for the future because interest rates are declining and more mortgage money is available for housing.

The reports of the depressed state of the auto and construction industries came as President Ford predicted an eight percent unemployment rate for this year and next.

Pay hike sought

BOISE, U.P. — Republicans yanked back into the Senate State Affairs Committee Monday resolutions calling for across the board pay hikes for state employees.

The GOP used its majority to pull back 21-14 on a party-line vote a resolution sought by the Democrats to give state employees a 7.5 percent pay increase. Then it was proposed on a five percent pay boost was snuffed back for further study by unanimous vote.

Senate Majority Leader Phil Batt, R-Idaho, asked for return of the two resolutions to committee, saying it had been impossible to make a sound judgment in the Republican caucus on how big the raises should be.

ROBERT Groden, right, a New York photographer and optical specialist, displays a film version of the John F. Kennedy assassination which he said Monday proves that Lee Harvey Oswald "had nothing to do with the assassination." Looking over the film at the news conference are Dick Gregory, left, political activist, and Ralph Schoonman, center, an assistant professor in philosophy. (UPI)

Film 'evidence' proves Oswald wasn't assassin.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Robert Groden says more than one person was involved in the assassination of President John Kennedy, that Lee Harvey Oswald had nothing to do with it and that he has the film to prove it.

Groden is a New York photographer and optical specialist. He showed the film Monday at a news conference called by political activist Dick Gregory, who said last week he had evidence implicating the Central Intelligence Agency in the Kennedy assassination.

Groden said the film was partially to back up those allegations.

Groden said the film was a blow-up version of the Abraham Zapruder film, the only one of the actual shooting, and that it showed "as many as four, possibly five" persons were shooting at the president, and proves Oswald "had nothing to do with the assassination."

He said the film was the property of Time Inc. but refused to say how the film was obtained.

This was the same film the Warren Commission studied before concluding Oswald acted alone in the killing of Kennedy.

Kennedy was killed in an automobile in Dallas, Texas, on Nov. 22, 1963. Oswald was arrested for the assassination and was hanged in the Dallas police headquarters by a noose, Jack Ruby.

The film, enlarged and shown in slow motion, showed Kennedy being hit in the head. Groden said the film shows the bullet hitting Kennedy's back and to his left, indicating he was shot from the front and not from the back as was originally thought.

The film also shows two men Groden said were shooting at Kennedy. One was behind a pedestal on a grassy knoll in front of the motorcade. The other is also in front of the motorcade, under a low tree, and his head is visible in the film.

Groden said he is carrying a rifle but it is hard to distinguish the rifle from the tree branches. Both are blurred in the film.

Three can accept a significant price reduction in return for stability over a longer period. He said, for they can run the risk of a dramatic break in prices when the program of alternative sources begins to pay off.

Special to the American plan, he said, is the fact that new sources of energy will cost more than imported oil did before. About 10 producers multiplied the price last year.

Kissinger said that the floor price plan, might also serve as an inducement to oil producers to agree on a long-term, low-cost arrangement with consumers.

The oil producers would be confronted with a choice to Church selection scored

(C) Chicago Sun-Times
WASHINGTON — Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller, expressing fear that former presidents Richard M. Nixon and Lyndon B. Johnson will be "destroyed" is complaining bitterly about the selection of Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho) to head the Senate investigation of the CIA, the FBI and the other intelligence agencies.

Former CIA director Rockefeller's private lament to friends and associates indicates there is little chance of co-operation between the White House and Senate inquiries into whether the CIA violated the law by spying inside the United States.

It also suggests that Rockefeller may consider it part of his job as chairman of the presidential commission on the CIA to protect the reputation of present and former high-ranking officials.

Rockefeller's complaint about Church, a liberal who was named last week as chairman of the new Senate Intelligence Committee, reflects a widespread national security establishment about how many lawmakers will be exposed by the Senate investigation into the CIA, the FBI and the other intelligence agencies.

Former CIA director Rockefeller's private lament to friends and associates indicates there is little chance of co-operation between the White House and Senate inquiries into whether the CIA violated the law by spying inside the United States.

It also suggests that Rockefeller may consider it part of his job as chairman of the presidential commission on the CIA to protect the reputation of present and former high-ranking officials.

CIA official, who implied that the finger of guilt would be pointed, at least, toward Nixon and Johnson.

The Washington Post reported last weekend that Brudie hosted a recent party for Helms—at which several present and former high-ranking officials vied with each other to praise and defend the former CIA chief.

The Post story, written by William Greider, said the guests included Sen. of State Henry A. Kissinger, former defense sec. Robert S. McNamara, Sen. Stuart Symington (D-Mo.), former ambassador and assistant Sec. of state Averell Harriman and Israeli Ambassador Simcha Dinitz.

Symington, who is a member of the Senate subcommittee which is supposed to oversee the CIA, was quoted as saying Helms did a "splendid job" as CIA director from 1966 to 1973.

Demos rap Ford's jobless forecast

(C) New York Times Service

Gooding budget shows 30% hike

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding City Councilmen Monday night approved the 1974 budget which shows both spending and tax increasing about 30 percent.

The new budget totals $562,064, compared to $424,243 for 1973. Expected tax revenue including general, recreation and library levies, is estimated at $96,000 for the new budget, compared to $69,570 budgeted for 1973.

Mayor Leo Rice said no one appeared at Monday night which had been designated as the "public hearing" for the budget, so councilmen waived the second and third readings and gave the budget official approval.

The general fund sub-total in the new budget is $107,292, up from $73,911 last year. This includes $24,982 for the clerk's office operation, compared to $21,911 last year; $1,100 for flood control, decreased from $2,000; $62,000 for police department, compared to $52,000 last year; and $19,200 for the fire department, compared to $15,000.

Other expenditures in the new budget, compared to 1973 are: street department, $128,000 and $77,322; airport, $9,520 and $6,200; recreation, $51,170 and $40,500; library, $11,500 and $9,900; sanitation, $48,300 and $24,000; irrigation, $61,500 and $41,000; waterworks, $78,750 and $58,000; sewer system, $66,200 and $50,000.

The new budget includes $47,710 in revenue sharing financial assistance, including $1,100 appropriated in 1974 to be used during the current year. Last year's budget included $42,000 in revenue funds.

Total revenue for the city of Gooding for the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1974 was $174,716, according to the budget.

Closure request denied

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — City council members turned down a request for closure of Geni Avenue Monday night after several protests were received from area property owners.

The request had been presented by C.K. Brown two weeks ago and action delayed until other businesses and industries in the street could be contacted for views. Several objected Monday night, saying closure of the street or even reducing the width would make it difficult for companies using large trucks to traffic to and from area property owners.

A public hearing on a request for a zone change to allow Albert Hills to locate a mobile home on his property on the Airport Road south of South Park is set for Monday night in an ordinance to amend the zoning.

Hills had asked a change from commercial-general to industrial to allow the mobile home. Other industrial property is located in the same area. There were no protests made in the public hearing.

The council approved a request from Ullman Construction Co. for use of Street and alley areas for parking of equipment during their remodeling of the Twin Falls Elks building. Work has begun and is expected to be completed by Aug. 8, the council was informed.

Council members approved a proposal from City Manager Jean Miller for an additional humane officer to work with the city police department to cover dog catching duties in the evening hours. The officer and some of the part-time help the city has already hired under a federal aid program could be assigned to the duties at no additional cost to the city.

He said hours would be staggered to cover early morning and late evening and humane officers would keep records of citations and impounded animals for a report to the City Council.

He said the Humane Society, which operates the dog pound for the city, has agreed to allow its present contract to allow no dogs to leave the pound without proper licenses and payment of all fees.

The council also requested the names of persons cited to court over dog ordinance violations be made public.

Benefits high

SALMON — Numerically, the number of persons applying for unemployment insurance benefits is higher than it has ever been in the history of the local employment office.

Warren Smith, manager of the Salmon office of the Idaho Department of Employment, said that currently there is a total of 302 persons claiming benefits under one of three programs. Smith added that an estimate would indicate the jobless rate is about 12 percent of the total work force.

Drillers hit 280 degree water reservoir

BURLEY — A reservoir of 280 degree water was found Sunday by geothermal drillers seeking hot water under the Raft River Valley.

John Griffith, Project Manager for the Energy Resource and Development Administration, Idaho Falls, called the development "very exciting and significant."

Governor Cecil Andrus, said "this discovery puts the Idaho project ahead of the efforts of other parts of the nation."

Griffith said the reservoir, found at about 4600 feet, met the projects expectations of finding water at about 200 degrees. Currently, the well is flowing at about 1000 gallons per minute, also as expected.

The well casing will be set in concrete to about 4000 feet, Griffith said. Then drilling will be completed to about 5000 feet.

Griffith said both the temperature and the flow rate might increase, as the well goes deeper.

Griffith said the drilling of the well was one of the first steps towards a demonstration project that would demonstrate the feasibility of using Idaho's geothermal resources for the production of electrical energy.

However, Griffith pointed out, while electrical production is a goal, such a demonstration project is not yet scheduled nor is it funded.

First, ERDA wanted to "find the reservoir, and then a decision will be made whether a power plant would be the next reasonable step," he said.

Griffith said a demonstration power plant of about 10 megawatts, would require from 5 to 10 wells, each producing hot water from 280 to 300 degrees Fahrenheit, and producing a combined flow of from 5,000 to 10,000 gallons per minute.

Griffith said the current project is jointly sponsored by ERDA, the state of Idaho and the Raft River Electric Co-op. The drilling project is budgeted to cost $700,000 with the state putting up $200,000 of that, he said.

Gov. Andrus also noted that the U.S. Geological Survey did the surface exploration and was instrumental in selection of the site.

Gov. Andrus said the state's participation was made possible through a grant from the Pacific Northwest Regional Commission. Andrus is Chairman of that commission.

Andrus said, "It has been our hope that the well would be successful so that we could realize our ambition of seeing the construction of a pilot electric generating plant in Idaho to test the technology of conversion of the heat energy from low-temperature geothermal waters."

SV visitor, Jerome Levy, St. Lewis, digs his car out of 2-day snow fall

MV reports more snow

TWIN FALLS — Snow fall amounts in the local area Monday night ranged from a trace at Buhl and the College of Southern Idaho to about an inch at Kimberly and Jerome.

James Terry, U.S. Weather Service meteorologist, said winds at the weather service were light to moderate, ranging from 8 to 10 miles an hour.

Terry said more snow is on the way to the Magic Valley. It was snowing in Boise at 10 a.m. today. He said there is no traveler's advisory in effect now but one may be issued for southern Idaho later today.

Below normal temperatures can be expected for the next several days, Terry said.

Terry said a traveler's advisory is in effect for Utah through this afternoon and tonight. Snow is heavy across most of Utah but is expected to diminish by Wednesday morning, he said.

Snow depth mounts in SV

SUN VALLEY — With four inches of new snow Monday and Monday night the snow depth has reached 72 inches on the top of Baldy.

Measurements are made each day by the U.S. Forest Service.

Monday was the fourth day of a storm that has dumped a total of over three feet on the ski slopes here and it was still snowing in Sun Valley this morning.

More snow buries were expected throughout the day with gusty winds on the mountain.

The forest service closed the bounds to skiing Monday due to the unstable condition of the new snow and the danger of avalanches. They are expected to be open today if the snow becomes stabilized.

The temperature was 12 degrees on top of the mountain at 8:30 a.m. today and was expected to reach 19 degrees during the day, according to the forest service.

Snake R. water supplies limited, workshop told

By DAVID BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

BURLEY — About 50 persons were told at a meeting Monday water supplies for future development of the Snake River Basin are limited.

The staff of the Idaho Department of Water Resources conducted the workshop meeting, the main in a series being conducted throughout the state. Those attending were told the water can be used for maximum economic development or absolute environmental quality.

Warren Reynolds, Boise, said the meetings are to provide a forum for comments and opinions about the future of Idaho's water resources. The information gathered at the workshops will be included in a state water resource plan being compiled, he said.

By January 1977, the state will prepare a final state water plan. The plan in turn will form part of the submitted to Congress, according to Reynolds.

The regional plan will inventory water resources and projected needs. Reynolds said. The plan will be submitted at the end of a 10-year moratorium on federal planning for diversion of water from the northwest-to-the southwest, he said.

Both Higginson, director of the Water Resource Department, said there is "no question" but what other states have designs on water from the northwest. Water is needed for oil-shale development and coal gasification, he noted.

While the staff suggested environmental quality and economic development were two extremes of development, Reynolds pointed out sometimes the goals of both types are the same. In the end, some compromise will probably be worked out, he said.

Both "ideals" were touched upon during the workshop, with economic development receiving most of the attention by the staff.

According to the staff, environmental quality is directed at maintenance and improvement of the environment through preservation, restoration, enhancement and pollution control. Economic development, on the other hand the staff said, would be directed toward increasing income and employment. It includes consideration of 12 recognized aspects of water, resource management and development. These are irrigation, flood damage reduction, water quality, aquifers, fish farming, Indian affairs, urban lands, municipal and industrial water, recreation, land measures, fish and wildlife, navigation and electric power.

Reynolds said at previous meetings the big issues raised were "energy over growth" and "Aired Heathers." He said he was "disgusted" with the department's conclusion that only a small amount of power remains to be developed from the Snake River.

Reichers said in the 1950s the Bureau of Reclamation and only five per cent of the hydroelectric potential from the Snake had been realized.

Reichers said, "It's foolish to use oil which will pollute the air and waste coal if hydro power is still available."

But, the department staff responded, their studies indicate that in dry years there would be insufficient water in the Snake to provide the hydroelectric generation to meet the state's needs for power.

Later, the staff said the state water plan would provide sufficient water for thermal plant in Nevada and is consistent with the Water Resource Board's objective of providing water for thermal generation sufficient to meet the average demand for energy within the state, the staff said.

2 men indicted by grand jury

BURLEY — Virgil Paul Womack, 21, Burley, and Jack Walton Taylor, 50, Olaton, have been indicted by a federal grand jury on kidnaping charges.

The charges stem from the Jan. 8 disappearance of Merrill Abraham, 53, Ontario, Ore., whose body was found last month in Nevada.

The federal indictment said Womack and Taylor conspired in Boise to kidnap Abraham and carried out the plan the following day. The men took Abraham from Idaho to Nevada on Jan. 8, the indictment said, where Taylor shot and killed himself. Womack assisted Taylor in covering the body with snow.

Abraham was on his way to Caldwell to meet his brother who is a member of the Idaho Legislature when he disappeared.

Womack and Taylor were originally arrested in Arizona on charges involving the use of an auto and credit cards belonging to Abraham. They were charged with the kidnaping of Abraham. Idaho County Dist. Mag. Robert Stanley indicted the two men in Wells Justice Court next week.

House committee to get 2 proposals to change local taxation

If local tax districts to apply the mill levy against property or income without reducing the number of mills levied, the net effect over the state would be to raise about $80 million more on the local level.

"That isn't the worst thing in the world," Hollifield, who describes himself as a conservative, says.

"If this were to happen the state budget could be reduced about $80 million," he says, suggesting that schools, for example, could be funded with more local money.

Or, the state might maintain its budget and everybody end up being taxed more, Hollifield admits.

But, under the proposal, cities, counties and school districts would be able to reduce the mill levies, keeping the total amount of taxes the same, but shifting some of the burden off the shoulders of the property holders.

Since farmers generally own a good deal of property, this proposal would tend to favor them to the disadvantage of the city dwellers who often would have more income than property.

According to Hollifield, this proposal also would be advantageous to the elderly who have much of their assets in property.

Antone remembers that six years ago a proposal similar to Hollifield's was made by the Farm Bureau. The measure did not pass because of doubts about the constitutional question.

If either of the proposals is to be tried, Antone says, the legislature will have to approve them first and then let the courts decide.

The second proposal, backed by the Association of Idaho Cities, would allow cities to adopt any type of tax by a 50 per cent majority vote of the citizens.

This bill has been printed and directed for a few days to the inactive Ways and Means Committee to sit until. Hollifield's proposal can be considered along with it.

According to Antone, the proposals would be beneficial particularly to resort areas such as the Sun Valley, Aslucham where tourists, but not as properly, are a strain on city services. In this case a hotel tax could be levied, making the tourists more directly responsible for paying for the local services.

"I think that 90 per cent of the cities wouldn't even use it if a nonproperty tax," Antone says, adding that city councils would have to think twice before calling for a tax vote.

And any tax proposal might have far reaching implications. A sales tax in Burley might cause many people to shop in Rupert if that town did not have such a tax.

Stivers backs measure raising interest lids

BOISE (UPI) — A life insurance executive urged the House Business Committee Monday to treat money like a loaf of bread and let competition and not laws establish its cost.

Following speakers for banks, savings and loan associations and homebuilders, Rep. T. W. Stivers, R-Twin Falls, asked support for a bill to lift the interest ceiling on loans.

Present statutory limits serve as a "freeze on money" at times when the cost of money in the national markets is high, he said.

"I maintain money is no different than a loaf of bread," Stivers, an insurance executive in private life, said. "In a competitive market it will establish its own level."

Committee members voted to send the bill to the floor for amendment — to reduce to four percent from six per cent a proposed penalty for overdue installment loans not covered by the uniform consumer credit code.

This penalty now is at four per cent and Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, said he felt its increase by one-third would hurt the Bill's chances on the floor.

Thomas Bourke, chairman of the Legislative Committee for the Idaho Bankers Association, was the principal witness in behalf of the measure.

Although interest rates have dropped somewhat, he said, he believes the cost of money on the national market will go up again and that this bill will be needed to "keep money" from flowing out of Idaho.

He said when they were high last July and August homebuilders had difficulty obtaining adequate financing. He said artificially pegged interest ceilings eventually could hurt commerce and industry in Idaho.

Appeal dismissed

BOISE (UPI) — An appeal in a civil suit filed to prevent Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, from serving in the Idaho legislature, was dismissed Monday by the Idaho Supreme Court.

The appeal was dismissed on a motion from Miss McDermott and in the absence of a brief being filed by the Pocatello group that was trying to keep her from representing Legislative District 34.

The suit was filed in Ada County in December, 1972, seeking among other things an injunction to prevent Miss McDermott from serving in the legislature.

Panel asks fund bid review power

BOISE (UPI) — Despite constitutional questions raised and objections that such action was "idle," the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee voted Monday to print a committee resolution to allow it to review state agency applications for federal funds.

The vote was 9-7.

Rep. E. V. McLean, R-Ketchum, said allowing the committee to review applications without having authority to act on the application was nothing more than a game of "ring around the rosy." He said it was just an act of "futility."

"It were not going to have authority but only to comment," McLean said, "we just as well forget it."

However, Rep. Larry Jackson, R-Boise, chairman of the subcommittee which drafted the resolution, said that without the resolution the committee would be assuming a responsibility not given by the legislature.

Rep. Beverly Hoshline, D-Pocatello, said she feared a constitutional conflict with the executive branch.

"I'm afraid we are doing something we can't do," she said.

Sen. Richard Ho, R-Twin Falls, committee co-chairman, said he felt that the constitutional question should be resolved.

Rep. Art Mandy, D-Coeur D'Alene, said the resolution would give the committee audit as well as post-audit functions.

Personnel study pushed

BOISE (UPI) — Senate Majority Leader Phil Batt, R-Wilder, said Monday he had lost some of his enthusiasm for a study of the personnel system in Idaho but felt the state should derive enough benefit that "we probably should go along with it."

With that, the Senate State Affairs Committee agreed to print a bill authorizing the study, which will deal primarily with salaries, and another measure that will appropriate $50,000 to conduct it.

The study would be made by an out-of-state consulting firm. Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, said he felt the recommendations that the study would make would be useful in the future. He added that he thought it would be "money well spent."

Batt said if the consulting firm could "make sense out of his halfway, we will be better off than we are now."

The committee also sent to print a substitute bill to allow curtailment of electrical or gas service by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission during emergencies.

Under questioning by Senate President Pro-tem James Ellsworth, R-Leadsre, about power being diverted from Idaho to other areas in emergency, Commissioner Robert Leneghan said the "power we need will stay in Idaho."

Calling it a "pretty serious matter," Yarbrough asked Leneghan to research the matter further to keep the "power from going out of state."

In another action, the committee voted to print a bill which Chairman H. Dean Summers, R-Boise, sponsor, said would "more fairly distribute the endowment fund" among the state's schools of higher education.

The bill provides for distribution of various school funds.

The committee also agreed to print a presidential primary bill submitted by the Idaho Young Republicans and a measure to "allow" the State Board of Examiners to set the mileage allowance for legislators.

Demo pay proposal sent to committee

BOISE (UPI) — The Republican majority dominated in the Idaho Senate Monday, successfully returning to the State Affairs Committee two resolutions dealing with state employee salaries.

Senate Majority Leader Phil Batt, R-Wilder, asked that both resolutions be placed back into committee "to see if there had been conflicting" money testimony.

Senate Majority Leader Cy Chase, D-Salt, said the majority move means "they want to get it behind committee doors and not give the state employees the raise they are entitled to."

Chase said the 7.5 per cent boost was realistic and a "modest attempt to bring the salaries in line with those paid by private industry."

Term length boost asked

BOISE (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee called Monday for introduction of legislation to increase the minimum time convicts must serve for committing violent crimes.

It would raise to 15 years from 10 the number served before a person sentenced to life could be eligible for parole.

It would add kidnapping to those violent crimes for which a person must serve at least a third of his sentence before becoming eligible for parole.

This measure would also raise to 15 years or one third of the sentence, whichever is least, from 5 years or one third the time served before the board accepts a parole application or interviews convicts convicted of a crime of violence or sentenced to life.

In addition, the proposal would require a convict to serve 15 years or one third of his sentence, whichever is less, before the sentence can be commuted for anyone serving time for any degree of homicide, rape, incest, crime against nature, committing a kidnapping on a child, robbery, kidnapping, burglary, assault or an attempt to commit any of those crimes.

Fund lack cited

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho superintendent of public instruction says the Legislature should explain to the U.S. commissioner of education if he doesn't like the way the State Education Department's special education program is being run.

Addressing the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee, Superintendent Roy Truay said no money has been given his department for a special education director and those in charge are federally funded.

In other action, Sens. Dick Smith, R-Rexburg; Robert Saxvik, D-Barley; Orval Snow, D-Moscow; and Reed Hodge, R-Soot Springs were appointed to a subcommittee to study the feasibility of absorbing the seven district health departments into the Department of Health and Welfare.

Another subcommittee was asked to investigate present and proposed welfare payments to dependent children, children.

Exemption?

BOISE (UPI) — The chairman of the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee said today he is drafting one more tax relief measure — a bill to exempt funerals from the sales tax.

Sen. Lyle Cobbs, R-Boise, said he would have the proposal ready for consideration this Wednesday.

Panel holds relief plan

BOISE (UPI) — In honoring a request of the sponsor, the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee agreed today to hold up a bill designed to hold up a bill designed to provide tax relief.

The bill by Sen. Jack Tacke, D-Cottonwood, provides Tacke's property tax exemption to the extent of $10,000 of the market value. He requested that it be held until 1976 so more study could go into the subject.

The committee agreed with Tacke that the bill had "substance and merit" and that careful consideration should be given the measure at the next session.

Meantime, money taxwriters, on a 97 party-line vote, introduced a bill for a 10 per cent rebate on 1974 state income taxes. It would return about $9 million to taxpayers.

House sets income, surplus estimates

BOISE (UPI) — The house officially estimated Monday that this year's general fund surplus will hit nearly $2.2 million and next year's general fund income will be $221.5 million.

In approving a resolution setting the official estimate for the surplus on the house did so without a dissenting vote. In adopting one that projects next year's income it voted 68-1 with Rep. William Onweiler, R-Boise, casting the only dissenting vote.

Rep. Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the projection committee, said the committee approached its task cautiously because of the "unstable times."

Reps. Perry Schwiser, D-Pocatello, and Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, cautioned these may not be the final figures — that further review will be necessary as more accurate information comes in.

Rep. E. V. McLean, R-Ketchum, criticized the legislation for creating surplus the past three years and said if

Vote asked

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Dan Emery, D-Boise, introduced a bill today calling for election rather than appointment of Idaho's Public Utilities Commissioners.

Emery said the PUC has more control over the average citizen than any group other than the legislature.

He said the PUC is responsible for setting the prices for lights, heat, shipping and virtually has control over the average man's grocery bill.

"They have a monopoly," he said. "I think a monopoly should be controlled by the election of the people and not by appointment."

Project OK

BOISE (UPI) — The House approved 67-0 and sent to the Senate Monday a bill appropriating $150,000 for completion of phases two and three of the mechanical-technical building at Eastern Idaho Vocational-Technical School.

Rep. William Roberts, R-Boise, said the money could come from funds accruing to the permanent building fund for this year.

Sentenced

MOSCOW (UPI) — A court at Kiev in the Ukraine has sentenced Baptist leader Georg Vins to five years in jail and five more in exile within the country, according to human rights campaigner Andrei D. Sakharov.

Sakharov told Western news agencies Sunday the court convicted Vins of illegal religious activities and sentenced him on Friday.

State boosts trout output

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Department of Fish and Game says its trout production at its hatcheries is returning to the 1972 levels.

The department said the main reason for this is that the price of fish food has gone down nearly $4 from last year.

In 1972 the department's hatcheries produced 1 million pounds of trout for shipping throughout the state. Last year, there was a 40 per cent cut back in catchable trout releases because of increase in fish food costs.

Combined with the added revenues expected from new hunting and fishing license rates, the price drop will allow a return to full hatchery production, the department said.

'Rozelle rule' debated in court test

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — The National Football League Players Association Monday called the Rozelle rule "very restrictive" and the NFL labeled it "a compromise mechanism to preserve team balance" at the opening of an anti-trust trial in federal court.

The controversial Rozelle rule, or option compensation provision, empowers NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle to set compensation before a player who plays out his option can be signed as a free agent by another team.

The court action was initiated by the players' association and John Mackey, former Baltimore star and past association president, 2½ years ago. They contend the rule infringed on Mackey's rights by illegally restricting his ability to offer his services as a player.

In his opening statement, players association attorney Edward Gleason said NFL procedures such as the Rozelle rule, the draft, the standard player contract and the option clause all are "very restrictive."

"All limit the mobility of a player," Gleason said. "We say the Rozelle rule is very restrictive since there is no deal unless teams can reach agreement on compensation."

Gleason said there would actually be two trials—one on the Rozelle rule itself, the other for "10 separately named plaintiffs affected by the rule."

The separate "mini-trials" would involve former NFL players, including former Chicago Bear Dick Gordon, who played out their options before May 1, 1972.

In the opening statement for the NFL, attorney James McKay said the case ought to be settled at the collective bargaining table, not in court.

"At the end of this trial," McKay said, "we'll ask for an order sending this case to where it belongs—either the National Labor Relations Board or the collective bargaining table."

McKay said the Rozelle rule was originally adopted because NFL teams "believed it established players left for another team without compensation, the original team would be adversely affected."

He said the provision was "not established to stop players from making more money or moving to a desired area, but that it is a compromise mechanism to preserve team balance in the National Football League."

McKay said the NFL has "nourished" because of equal compensation laws. If they weren't present, it would be detrimental to all.

McKay, the first witness called to the stand, called the Rozelle rule "very restrictive in that it hinders an athlete's movement."

The former all-pro tight end testified he was "retired by the Colts in September, 1972, although I heard reports on the car radio on the way home from a meeting with management that I had retired."

Mackey said Colts General Manager Joe Thomas met with him, and later placed him on waivers. When no team claimed him, he said he was contacted by the San Diego Chargers, who signed him for the 1972 season.

Upon cross-examination, Mackey said he felt he "had been benched unjustifiably by the Colts" in the 1972 preseason when Tom Mitchell became the regular tight end.

EARL AVERILL

BUCKY HARRIS
... pennant veteran

3 baseball greats enshrined

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three baseball veterans of the past — one man who all but ended Dizzy Dean's pitching career, another who helped bring the Brooklyn Dodgers their first pennant in more than 20 years, and a third who has always been known as the "Boy Wonder" — gained baseball's Hall of Fame on Monday.

Earl Averill, who bounced a grounder off Dean's toe in the 1937 All-Star game and Billy Herman, who came from the Chicago Cubs to Brooklyn in 1941 and promptly helped drive the Dodgers to their first pennant since 1920, were elected in the player category from a special veteran's committee, while Bucky Harris gained enshrinement at Cooperstown, N.Y. in the umpire-manager-executive branch of the Hall.

The oldtimers' committee of 10 went for Averill, 71, who starred for the Cleveland Indians for a decade after being purchased for the then astronomical sum of $50,000 from the minor league San Francisco Seals in 1929.

In the all star game of 1937, Averill shot a grounder back to the mound and broke Dean's toe. The injury so affected Dizzy that he was never the same pitcher again. Compensating for the continuing effects of the injury, Dizzy altered his pitching motion and with that, his winning touch was gone.

Averill, an outfielder, posted a lifetime batting average of .318 and a fielding average of .972.

Herman, 65, snubbed in regular Hall of Fame voting when he was eligible for direct election, nevertheless got at least the minimum of eight votes from the panel to gain his niche in the Hall.

Herman made his National League debut with the Chicago Cubs in 1931, and was the heart of the Cub infield in an era which saw the Cubs win the NL flag in 1932, '35 and '38.

Traded to Brooklyn in May 1941, the sure-gloved second baseman pushed the Dodgers to the pennant, but they lost the series to the New York Yankees.

His career was interrupted by World War II in 1944-45. As a playing-manager for Pittsburgh in 1947, Herman commanded two of baseball's top home run hitters in Hank Greenberg and Ralph Kiner.

Herman's lifetime batting average was .304, his fielding average .968.

Harris, who came up to Washington from Buffalo of the International League at the end of the 1919 series, was just short of his 30th birthday when he was named manager of the Senators in 1924. A brilliant second baseman, he also built an enviable reputation as a manager, taking the Senators to a World Series crown in 1924, to the American League pennant in 1925, and another World Series victory with the New York Yankees in 1947.

Waite Hoyt, a member of the veterans committee, recalled Herman and Harris with relish.

"Bilgy hit me well," Hoyt recalled. "Well, but not hard. He had great anticipation, and was excellent at advancing the runner. A fine hit and run man. He and Billy Jurges were a fine combination around second with Chicago. Billy was very aggressive, but very nice."

"As for Bucky, well, I was his roommate in the minors, before Bucky moved off to Buffalo and then to the Senators. When he went to the (Detroit) Tigers, in 1929, he made a trade in order to get me. I didn't do very well for him there, though," Hoyt admitted. "I was embarrassed about it."

Hoyt was eager to talk of Harris the player, too.

"One heckuva second baseman. I wonder what some of the base stealers of today would do if they had to go into second when Bucky was there," Hoyt smiled. "Harris would win all over them as they slid in."

Not that Harris was mean. "No, no, no," insisted Hoyt. "Bucky was no tough guy. He was very considerate. He tried to manage by a player's own disposition and personality. He had basic rules, of course, but he tried to work things out with logic with each player."

Hoyt was

Purdue routs Iowa

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Purdue placed five players in double figures and routed Iowa Monday night, 107-72, in Big Ten basketball.

Jordan, Purdue twice went on scoring binges to take a 51-22 halftime lead.

During one seven-minute spar, Purdue outscored Iowa 24-10 with center John Garrett getting 10 points. After Iowa closed to within seven points at 37-3, Purdue outscored the Hawkeyes, 14-2.

Indiana holds lead in poll

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was considerable shifting of position in the United Press International Board of Coaches' college basketball ratings, but undefeated Indiana remained the one constant, retaining its unanimous status as the nation's No. 1 team.

The Hoosiers, who are 20-0 this season and whose 23-game winning streak is the longest in college basketball, survived their closest contest of the season Saturday with a six-point victory at Ohio State.

Meanwhile, UCLA defeated Pacific-8 Conference arch-rival Southern California by five points to jump from fourth to second in the ratings, edging past No. 3 Louisville for the second spot, although the Cardinals won both their games last week.

Maryland climbed from eighth to fourth on the strength of its second-victory of the season over North Carolina State, dropping the wolfpack from second to sixth in the ratings.

Kentucky won twice last week to climb from seventh to fifth, while Alabama dropped a spot to seventh despite a pair of victories.

Southern California fell from fifth to eighth after its loss to UCLA and Arizona State remained ninth after defeating arch-rival and 13th-ranked Arizona.

Oregon moved up two notches to 10th with three victories last week.

North Carolina again headed the second 10 as the 11th-ranked team, with Marquette climbing to 12th.

Following No. 13 Arizona were fifth-ranked Oregon State, the fourth Pac-8 team in the top 20, and No. 15 Clemson, the fourth Atlantic Coast Conference squad in the ratings.

Tied for 16th were Nevada-Las Vegas and Notre Dame, while LaSalle, Creighton and Tennessee were in a three-way deadlock for 18th.

UCLA faces loop contests in Oregon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A year ago, UCLA's Bruins went north and suffered back-to-back losses to Oregon State and to Oregon (56-51).

The Oregon State defeat ended UCLA's Pac-8 record winning streak at 50 games.

UCLA is at Corvallis, Ore., and Eugene, Ore., again this weekend and the Bruins' Friday night meeting with Oregon State will be for undisputed possession of first place in the Pac-8 races.

The Bruins are at Oregon Saturday night.

"I don't think what happened last year in Oregon will have any bearing on this year," UCLA's John Wooden told the Southern California Basketball Writers Monday.

"This is an entirely different team. Our players are realistic enough to know that anything can happen in our conference this year. Any team can beat any other team. I've said that all along."

The conference is so close

Generations ago in Great Britain's Cheshire, cheese was molded into the shape of a cat. Usually the face of said cheese cut showed an exaggerated grin. When they said so-and-so grins like a Cheshire cat, that's what the early linguists referred to. Cheese.

Q. "The English, the French and the Spanish all tried to occupy early North America. To what do you attribute the fact that the English were the most successful?"

A. They brought women.

Q. "Is it ever proper for a Navy man to salute with his left hand?"

A. If his right arm is in a sling, it is. Or if he's doing something with his right hand that he can't stop doing at the moment.

BROADCASTERS

It takes just one extraordinary ad lib performance sometimes to boost a newscaster into national prominence. Walter Cronkite certainly was well known before election night in 1952. But when hour after hour that evening he ad libbed so remarkably from the anchor chair, his position as the nation's top man on camera was made. Dan Rather jumped to some sort of national fame literally overnight years ago after he stood in his shirt-sleeves atop a Galveston tower to ad lib for many hours in the wreckage of a terrible hurricane. But go back further. Gabriel Heatter in 1936 went on radio to broadcast the electrocution of Bruno Hauptmann, the kidnapper of the Lindbergh baby. But the electricity failed. The chair in New Jersey's Death House wouldn't work. For 53 minutes until the thing was fixed, Heatter ad libbed about the crime, the trial, the legal maneuvers and the tension in that prison. It was such a tremendous performance that Hauptmann was not the only person to get an electrifying experience that day. Heatter for the rest of his life was a household name.

Farm leaders ask stability, hunger aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The president of the National Farmers Union Monday urged Congress to adopt a food price stability program to protect consumers based on higher price floors for farmers.

Tony D. DeChant, the NFU leader, outlined his plan in testimony prepared for delivery before the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The committee hearings, designed to produce what Chairman Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., calls an "agriculture and anti-inflation act of 1975," will run through the week of Feb. 17.

DeChant said the NFU proposal is based on setting price support loans for major crops at 90 per cent of the traditional "fair carrying power" parity price standard. If prices rise beyond 100 per cent of parity, he said stocks held in farmer or government hands could be fed back into the market to moderate food costs.

The net effect of our plan would be to keep farmers out of the economic collar and consumers out of the economic alley. We believe it can be the beginning of a truly effective and workable national food policy," DeChant said.

DeChant said the plan could cure the "boom and bust" cycles in which wheat rang from a low of $1.32 a bushel, or 45.6 per cent of parity in mid-1972, to $5.25 a bushel or 147.9 per cent of parity in early 1974. The January average was $4.11, or 93 per cent of parity.

William J. Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, took a different tack in his testimony by urging increasing reliance on the free market in most cases. Kuhfuss said Congress should consider legislation authorizing the U.S. to contribute to an international fund which would buy foods for distribution to hungry countries.

Domestically, Kuhfuss said, Congress should overhaul the grain price support system to make sure the government cannot build up stocks which could be used to depress market prices. He said this could be done by requiring farmers to repay grain price support loans in cash.

The Farm Bureau leader also urged an increase for 1975 in the support target price for cotton and the minimum legal support price for milk, a sharp departure from past farm bureau policy on those commodities.

Kuhfuss also said he supported the administration's recent effort to raise the cost of food stamps for the needy. He said his group opposes allowing strikers to use food stamps and wants the government to stop spending money to inform needy people about the food stamp program.

Sen. Talmadge said the agriculture committee would consider revising food stamp regulations and increases in farm commodity prices to keep growers whose costs have risen drastically from going broke this year.

Buhl farmer winner

Buhl - Melvin E. Jagels, Buhl, is the 1974 Funk's Jags Project 200 winner for Idaho. Officials of the Illinois based seed firm said Jagels' field of 19 acres yielded 170.2 bushels of corn per acre, machine harvested. The corn was planted May 8 and harvested Oct. 26. Plant population was 35,000 per acre.

The corn was planted in 20-inch rows at the rate of 28,000 kernels per acre. A combination herbicide was used and fertilizer included 120 pounds of nitrogen, and 40 pounds of potash.

Gem-sheep population declines

BOISE (UPI) — The number of sheep and lambs on Idaho farms and ranches declined during 1974, according to a recent report of the Idaho Crop and Livestock Service.

The decline in sheep numbers continues the trend of recent years. The current inventory as of Jan. 1, 1975 of 595,000 head, is down 13 per cent from one year ago.

The total sheep stock was 560,000 head or a decline of 10 per cent from the previous year. "And sheep on feed dropped to 35,000 head.

There was a 9 per cent decline in ewes one year and older and a 25 percent decline in number of ewe lambs on Idaho farms and ranches.

Idaho court approves pen terms

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Supreme Court today upheld the sentencing of three concurrent life terms in prison for a man who pleaded guilty to one count of rape and two of robbery.

Harold D. Whitman appealed the sentence, contending that the trial court erred in failing to require a complete psychological report and positive plan of rehabilitation prior to sentencing.

The high court opinion held that the trial court acted properly in sentencing Whitman under the standards then applicable.

In recent years, winter sports and vacations have become extremely popular, and camping is no problem in recreational vehicles with self-contained water, electricity and heat. Winter is a great time, too, for travel to warmer climates. Some recreational vehicles serve a dual purpose as a "second" car. Isn't it time you investigated the benefits of owning a recreational vehicle?

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a construction worker. George rarely meets a man on his job with whom he cares to socialize, so I was quite surprised when he told me he had become friendly with a co-worker who wanted us to come to his home for dinner on Saturday night.

I told George that I thought a dinner invitation ought to come from the man's wife, so he mentioned it to the man, and his wife called me and made it official for 7 o'clock. George and I arrived promptly. They live in a lovely new home, nicely furnished. She served a cocktail, then ushered us into the dining room where the table was beautifully set for TWO!

Hosts absent from dinner

I couldn't believe my eyes, so I asked: "Aren't you people eating, too?" She said: "Oh, no, we always eat at 6 and are in bed by 10."

She served my husband and me while her husband sat in the other room. I've never felt so uncomfortable in all my life.

After dinner, we all had an after-dinner drink and talked. I kept my eye on my watch, remembering their 10 o'clock curfew.

At 9:30 we said our goodbyes, thanking them for the lovely evening.

My question: Should I return the dinner invitation, and, knowing they eat at 6, should I specify that time? And if so, should I serve them separately and have a late lunch ourselves? Or should we all eat together? DUMB ME

DEAR DUMB: Reciprocate with a 6 o'clock dinner. Eat together, and be sure you don't forget their 10 o'clock curfew. After you reciprocate, you should know whether you and your husband have enough in common with this couple to want to see them again.

DEAR ABBY: Can anyone possibly have too many friends? We are both near 80, and have a big house because we raised a big family. We dearly love to have our children and grandchildren come back to visit, and we'd be lonesome if they didn't, but our relatives bring their friends, and our friends bring their relatives and I'm lucky if I get a chance to change the sheets before another crowd appears.

Valley Briefs

TWIN FALLS — Patricia Bertie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bertie, Twin Falls, has been named to the honor roll at Judson Arizona's College Preparatory School. Miss Bertie writes a column for the Judson newspaper and is active in tennis and swimming team events. She is a sophomore at the school.

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Optimist Club will hold a Valentine party, Feb. 14 for wives, girlfriends and members. The final morning meeting was held last week and on Feb. 5, the group will meet at Smith's Pancake House for a noon meeting.

We have a good garden but I have to give away the surplus because all this company never gives me a chance to eat.

We do love them, Abby, but I am dreadfully tired from all that marketing, housekeeping and cooking. Is there a tactful way to slow down their visits without stopping them completely?

TWINS — The Twin Falls YWCA will be offering a seven-week course cake decorating beginning Wednesday from 7 to 10 at the YWCA.

Myrlecheur, instructor, said that by completion of the 21-hour course individuals will be able to produce a variety of "professionally" decorated models.

Ms. Michener is a speech therapist for the Twin Falls school district. She has taught this class at the University of Utah and in her own home.

The cost of the course is $12 for members and $17 for non-members. The equipment for the class can be purchased from the instructor for $8. This may be kept and provides the tools necessary for further use.

Call the YWCA, 733-4394, to register. The class will be limited to 15 participants.

South didn't like this play and decided to give the opponents a chance to go wrong. He drew trumps with two leads and threw West in with his last diamond.

West had to decide between a club and a heart lead. Had he guessed the club South might well have gone down two, but as happens so often, West guessed wrong and led the four of hearts.

This look care of all South's problems in hearts and clubs and he made his rather doubtful contract.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Things started out badly for South. East's king of diamonds held the first trick and he returned the eight. South could play either the jack or nine of hearts and a possible club.

He could handle that club loser by leading a heart toward his hand and finessing the 10 spade. If East held the jack, South's contract would come home; if East didn't, South would be only one down because while he would lose two hearts he would be able to get rid of his losing club later.

Windburn protection

Winter sunburns can be just as painful as summer ones and a windy day can add to the misery by intensifying the harmful effects of ultraviolet radiation, the results of recent research indicate.

A weekend skin enthusiast may find that after a few hours on the slopes, he may go home with a nasty burn on his face and, if his hair is thinning and he's not wearing a cap, on his scalp as well.

Both men and women should apply an emollient sun-screening cream or lotion before leaving for the slopes to guard against excessive loss of natural oils from sun and wind.
