Burns denounces easy money plan

WASHINGTON (Star-News) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns again has strongly denounced proposed legislation that would direct the central bank to make more money available and allocate credit — despite a significant softening of the proposal.

Testifying Wednesday night before the House Banking and Currency Committee, Burns said the impact of the bill could be to "undermine our market system and wreck the chances for economic recovery."

Pushes probe

CHICAGO (UPI) — Former New York Congressman Allard Lowenstein has repeated his demand for reopening the investigation into the assassination of Sen. Robert Kennedy in 1968.

"He told a news conference here that statements by California officials about the slaying do not match information provided him by other persons who were on the scene."

Viet fact finding trip shelved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford's suggested Indochina fact-finding mission for 20 members of Congress is being shelved at least temporarily, political sources said today.

They said the current conflict between the White House and Congress over Ford's economic-energy program gave the lawmakers no time for the trip to Saigon.

Madrid police scatter protesters

MADRID (UPI) — Police today fired warning shots into the air to scatter protesting students trying to halt traffic in some streets in the city center.

Witnesses reported several clashes between baiton-swinging police and students near the central Cibeles and Neptuno squares. The news agency Europa Press said about 20 persons were arrested.

Arrives home

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Dejean Replogie, 18, who lost a leg to wounds inflicted by an Arab grenade in December, came home Wednesday — bearing no grudge against anyone.

Tears streaming down her face, she thanked about 700 persons who greeted her at the airport for their concern. She was hospitalized in Jacksonville for a brief medical examination before going to her home.

Simon flays deficit spending trend

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon delivered a stern lecture to the nation's governors today about the evils of deficit spending and urged the states to spend less when the nation recovers from the recession.

In an address before the National Governor's Conference, Simon said governments have grown too big at every level and the deficits they have incurred are the chief cause of the nation's twin economic troubles — inflation and recession.

Reds pressure Cambodia river base

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Communist gunners increased their pressure today on the Nakh Luong naval base, the last government foothold on the Mekong River, and sank three government navy boats which tried to counterattack, military sources reported.

TWIN FALLS — Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, pleaded guilty in Washington Wednesday to two misdemeanor charges of violating the 1971 Federal Election Campaign Act by failing to file proper finance reports with the House clerk.

A criminal "information" filed by the Justice Department and the U.S. Attorney charged Hansen with failing to meet reporting requirements during his campaign for the nomination in the Idaho Republican primary last Aug. 6.

Judge George Hart, after accepting Hansen's guilty plea, announced that since the violations appeared to be intentional he would call for a presentence report on Hansen before deciding what punishment to impose.

Hansen could receive maximum penalties of up to one year in jail and a $1,000 fine for each of the two counts.

In Idaho, GOP leaders had varied reactions to Hansen's guilty pleas.

Robert Linsley Jr., Boise, state chairman of the Republican party, said Hansen should resign if he is sentenced to a jail term.

Oriette Sinclair, Twin Falls, Republican national committeewoman, said Hansen probably won't resign because "I doubt if the charges are that serious."

Rep. Ernest Hale, R-Burley, called for Hansen's immediate resignation.

A Democratic leader, Steve Carter, Twin Falls County chairman, said, "I feel that George Hansen betrayed the confidence of the people and he should resign, partially because he will be ineffective as a congressman with that shadow hanging over him."

Hansen issued a prepared statement Wednesday in which he denied there was anything intentional about what he called "deficiencies" in reporting campaign donations and expenses.

"I feel that I made an honest effort to comply with the law and that there were reasonable answers for the deficiencies noted," Hansen's statement said. He blamed the trouble on misunderstandings of bookkeeping, technicalities by his staff.

One count of the criminal information charged Hansen failed to file a campaign report due last June 10 and the other count charged he failed to file a report due 15 days before the primary, a date that fell on July 22. The latter count said absence of filing indicated he received no receipts between June 1 and July 15 when he actually received $2,150.

Iver Longestig, a Hansen spokesman in Washington, told the Times-News today that Hansen "does not intend to resign."

Also, "We have every reason to hope that no jail term will be imposed," he said.

On the judge's indication that Hansen's violations might have been "willful," Longestig said, "The agreed statement of facts and law filed by the government and agreed to by us makes it clear that the $2,150 was reported in a timely fashion although by the wrong entity."

"I feel this negates any intention on his part," he said.

The $2,150 was reported as received by the "George Hansen for Congress Committee" rather than by Hansen personally.

In his prepared statement, Hansen said the BOISE — The U.S. Justice Department has filed criminal charges alleging consumer credit fraud against two high-ranking Idaho Democratic Party officials.

Charges of obtaining consumer credit reports under false pretenses on Congressional candidate George V. Hansen were filed Wednesday afternoon against Mei Morgan, Pocatello jeweler and treasurer of the state Democratic central committee, and against Rose Marie Bowman, state committee woman for the Ada County central committee of the Democratic Party.

The charges, both misdemeanors, were filed by the U.S. Attorney in Boise.

According to U.S. Attorney Sidney E. Smith, both Morgan and Mrs. Bowman have been charged with two counts of fraudulently obtaining credit ratings of Congressman George Hansen for political purposes, a violation of the US Code as it relates to consumer credit protection.

Both Morgan and Mrs. Bowman will be served with summonses requiring them to appear for arraignment on the charges in court, Smith said. He said no date has yet been set for arraignment.

Under the law, the Democratic Party officials could receive up to a $1,000 fine and/or a prison sentence of one year on each count for which they might be convicted, Smith said.

According to Smith, the charges allege that on or about Aug. 9, 1974 Morgan and Mrs. Bowman "did willfully and unlawfully combine, conspire and agree together" to obtain credit ratings on George V. Hansen under "false pretenses" for political use.

Smith said that according to the charges Mrs. Bowman allegedly contacted Morgan by phone and asked him to obtain a credit rating report on then candidate George Hansen through Morgan's membership as a jeweler in the Credit Bureau of Pocatello, Inc.

Smith said the charges read, in part: "It was a further part of the conspiracy between Morgan and Bowman that the information in the consumer credit report would be used for political purposes in that it might reveal information on the campaign finances of George V. Hansen's primary election campaign."

Malpractice policies cut

By CRICKET BIRD
Times News Writer

TWIN FALLS — About 500 of Idaho's 850 practicing physicians will be without malpractice insurance this summer unless alternate coverage is arranged.

Argonaut-Northwest Insurance Co., which insures about 58 per cent of Idaho doctors, announced Feb. 14 it would cancel all coverage here as of June 1, according to Dr. R. George Wolff, president of the Idaho Medical Association.

But Wolff said he is "optimistic" that alternate coverage can be arranged through other insurance carriers. Wolff is a Caldwell general practitioner.

The IMA is negotiating with other companies now, Wolff said, but he declined to name the potential carriers. Relatively few companies deal in malpractice insurance, so the field is limited.

Wolff said Idaho physicians who are insured by Argonaut through the IMA have faced a 300 per cent increase in premium rates in the past six months.

Annual premiums which used to range between $50 and $2,500 depending on the risk class of the doctor, now reach from $2,000 to $7,000, according to Wolff. High risk physicians like surgeons face bigger premiums than low-risk doctors, for instance, general practitioners.

Coal plant views split at hearing

By GEORGE WILEY
Times News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Supporters and opponents of a proposed coal-fired power plant near Boise clashed at a hearing in Twin Falls Wednesday night.

About two dozen persons split about evenly in support of opposition to the proposed 1 million kilowatt, 500 million plant, named "Pioneer."

A second hearing will be held at 7 p.m. today at the Blue Lakes Inn.

About 150 people crowded into the meeting room Wednesday and another group waited in the hallway.

Most of those opposing the proposed plant urged the power company to seek an environmentally cleaner generating unit, but seldom questioned the need for increased generating capacity.

Supporters generally argued that more power was needed for continued agricultural and industrial growth in southern Idaho.

Much of the testimony in support was from west end desert-entire tract farmers, who said new power is needed to pump water to more desert land.

Idaho Power President James Bruce said rising demand for power coupled with decreasing hydro-electric capacity due to increased irrigation makes the plant necessary.

Bruce said the company has no legal choice but to meet the demands of its customers. He said state law requires it to generate enough power to meet demand.

He said the company would be glad to forestall construction of the plant if state or federal authorities say it is "unnecessary."

An Idaho Power consultant, Dr. J.L. York, environmental scientist for Stearns-Rogers Corp., which is both drafting an environmental impact study and designing the plant, spoke in support.

York outlined steps already taken to study the environmental impact of the plant. He said the studies will include evaluation of the effects of cooling water taken from the Snake River.

A Buhl farmer, Richard Morris, who as an engineer had worked in the development of both nuclear and conventional power plants, urged alternatives to Idaho Power's plans.

Morris said "the farmer is taking a bad rap" in bearing the brunt in cost for increased demand for electricity.

He said farm growth has been slower than non-farm growth, and said this trend should continue in the future as new people and firms move into the state.

He questioned Idaho Power projections for future demand, saying that if that rate of growth were to continue, the company would be building a new 500,000 kilowatt plant every six months by the year 2007 just to keep up.

"Obviously something has to slow down," he said.

He asked the PUC to encourage Idaho Power to develop alternate means of generation, possibly by changing the company's profit margin on various types of plants.

On several instances speaking in support of the plant, Salmon Tract farmer John K. Courtney, said new electrical supply is necessary for agriculture.

He said he would give first priority to falling-water generation and said "atomic power shows promise," but said a coal-fired plant probably is "the cheapest and most practical."

Courtney answered a question from the PUC by saying he would irrigate more land if the power to pump water were available, but added, "Yes, if there is water."

Twin Falls County Solid Waste Director Darrell Heider suggested that the plant be designed to burn the state's solid waste to generate power.

"If we're going to have the plants, they would be more acceptable if we use the solid wastes," he said.

Strenuous objection to the proposed plant was voiced by Twin Falls nurse, Marge Chuva.

"I am concerned about the experts," she said. While she didn't doubt their technical expertise, she said, she was "concerned about the credibility of the experts when I see where the experts have taken us in the past."

She also said she was concerned about the health effects of non-visible pollutants given off by the plant.

She noted that Idaho Power had said some of the chemicals given off by the plant would be good for the soil. "I object to being the filter through which the stuff gets into the soil," she said.

"I don't think we should plan every inch of land and every cubic inch of air in the state. Let's have a moratorium," she said.

College of Southern Idaho Mathematics Instructor Col Butler, who also farms, said the Legislature should grant the PUC funds for an independent study of the environmental impact of the plant. "A coal-fired plant is probably in the best interest of Idaho Power in the long run, but it is in the public interest," he asked.

Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce director James A. Sinclair, speaking for the chamber, said additional power is necessary to support growth of the area's economy. "We've been spoiled because power has been cheap and available. We want to make sure it remains."

Plunge kills TF man

TWIN FALLS — A truck fell over the edge of the Rock Creek Canyon northeast of Twin Falls Wednesday evening, killing the driver.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Paul Corder said Harry Hubbell, 45, Twin Falls, was feeding cattle on the Jim Sharp Ranch about a mile upstream from where Rock Creek flows into the Snake River when his four-wheel drive truck went over the canyon rim at about 3:55 p.m.

The truck fell about 300 feet. Tom Sharp, a rancher who is familiar with the area, climbed down in the wreck but it prevented him from bringing Mr. Hubbell's body back to the top of the canyon. The climb took four hours, according to Corder.

National Guard helicopters were dispatched today to help remove the body.

School leaders TF beet growers' meet told outlook optimistic

TF BEET GROWERS' MEET

TOLD OUTLOOK OPTIMISTIC

TWIN FALLS — More than 100 sugar beet growers attended special sugar beet school held Wednesday at the Holiday Inn.

The school held for the first time this year, was a cooperative effort of the University of Idaho Extension Service; the growers organizations and the sugar companies serving this area.

Organizer Blaine Linford, district extension supervisor, predicted a good year for beet growers.

"I think it will be an excellent year, barring any unforeseen calamity," Linford said.

Sugar beets "have the opportunity of being one of the more successful crops this year," he added, in an interview during the school.

Linford predicted the price of sugar would drop somewhat in the coming year but said "it will maintain a higher price than we've seen in the past. I don't see how it can drop."

A higher world demand for sugar will help keep the price up, Linford said.

Another school session will be held today in Burley for growers in the eastern Idaho area.

The school began with a discussion of seed programs, seed selection and seed trials, by Amalgamated Sugar officials and University of Idaho researchers.

Then company officials and US Agriculture Department researchers discussed fertilizers and irrigation and plant diseases.

Insects and insecticides as well as regulations from the Environmental Protection Agency were also discussed during the all-day meeting. The afternoon discussion centered around production costs, storage and harvesting and irrigation.

The school was intended "to enlighten the growers about research and practical recommendations about production," Linford said.

The school was "very successful," in Linford's opinion.

Newsman ordered to identify source

MOSCOW, Idaho (UPI) — Second District Court Judge Roy Moseman has ruled that Jay Shelledy, a Lewiston newspaper reporter, must reveal the name of a person described in a news story as an expert police source.

The judge reserved the right of the Lewiston Morning Tribune attorney to appeal the ruling to the Supreme Court if Shelledy refuses to identify the source.

The judge said the appeal could be made before the case continued.

The judge also indicated he probably would allow the case to be dismissed if the person is identified and it is shown there was no malice involved in publishing the article.

The ruling came after a three-hour court session Wednesday involving two hearings.

One of the hearings was to determine if the name of the individual should be made public at the request of the attorney for Michael Caldera, who has filed a $60,000 libel suit against the Tribune.

The second hearing was on a request for a summary judgment from the Tribune.

Clemens, representing the Tribune, told the court the libel case should be dismissed because Caldera is an agent of the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement and a public official. He also said there was no malice intended in the news story.

Caldera filed the suit after the Tribune printed a story in 1973 giving details of an incident at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, where Caldera wounded a man he was attempting to arrest in the Coeur d'Alene City Park in 1972.

He said interstate projects include: completion of 80N from Glenn Ferry to Hammett, 190 from Osburn to West Wallace, and 115 south of Malad; paving of I8W near Rockland Junction, and deck repairs on 180 bridges near Burley.

TF Council OK's gravel bid

TWIN FALLS — A bid from Twin Falls Construction Co. has been approved by the Twin Falls City Council for gravel for the 1975 street program.

The firm submitted a low bid of $45,500. City Manager Jean Milar said this is a little higher than last year but not out of line in view of other rising costs.

Two other bids were received including $47,000 from Beymer Paving and $74,500 from Hanner Paving. Included in the bid is the cost for fillings which could reduce the low bid to $40,100 if the city hauls all of the gravel.

The council approved recommendations from city treasurer James Barnhart for writing off $6,145.18 in unpaid water bills which the city has been unable to collect. The bills will be turned over to a collection agency and some return may be realized, Milar said.

TF Council OK's gravel bid

Mayor Winston Jones asked city attorney Charles Bumbach and city engineer George Michael to shoot for completion of the road program in the next 30 days.

Michael said only the zoning regulations are "holding up final completion but said he should be able to have these completed in a month or two months at the most.

Capt. Kenneth Johnson, city police officer, attended the council meeting to express appreciation for the council's plan for the employee retirement program and salary increases. He said many young men joining the police department and other city work forces now have some incentive to hold a career in city law enforcement.

Buhl unit hears AF Dam progress

By LORAYNE O. SMITH Times-News writer
BUHL — Buhl Kiwanians were told Wednesday that southern Idaho irrigation districts may be able to vote by late summer on financing the replacement of the American Falls Dam.
 Merle Leonard, Filer, director of American Falls Reservoir District No. 1, brought Buhl Kiwanians up to date Wednesday noon on progress toward replacement of the structure which was constructed from 1924 to 1927.
 He said cost of the project would be one-third less if "all the red tape" could be eliminated. But this inter-agency government involvement is inevitable, Leonard said, because the Bureau of Reclamation "calls the shots and we pay the bills."
 The proposed new dam, which has been under discussion for several years, has been delayed because of the complexities of multi-bureaucracy regulations, the speaker said.
 These include requirements by the Environmental Protection Agency and Fish and Wildlife agency for high enough oxygen content to safeguard fish in the reservoir and negotiations with the Internal Revenue Service over obtaining tax exemption on interest on bonds to finance the project.

 The reservoir district serves as the fiscal agent to represent spacheholders along this section of the Snake River who belong to numerous irrigation groups. There is also difference of opinion among some of these water groups in the Burlew area as to future development.
 Parks, fish life and access bridge are among the many governmental requirements which must be satisfied, Leonard said.
 Some waterusers do not think the Idaho Power Co. offer of $15.5 million to lease falling water rights for production of electricity is high enough.
 Another source of delay has been the requirement of bonding companies to have two elections, the first simply to agree to hold the second vote in which spacheholders would have to approve assessment of costs.
 Leonard, who also is a Twin Falls County commissioner, said the Idaho Legislature now is considering a bill to eliminate the first election.
 "If everything falls into place, it's possible we may be able to call for an election by late summer," he said.

Completed Big Wood study shows water quality good

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — A study of Big Wood River has been completed and generally shows water quality is good, a health district technician said here Wednesday.
 George Wagner of the environmental services, Department of Health and Welfare told South Central Health District board members the complete study of Big Wood River in Blaine County was completed last summer and is now being put in report form.
 It will be available soon, he said, and will show generally the river quality is good and the flow above minimum requirements throughout the year.
 He said a study is also being made on Silver Creek in that general area. This is one of the many services of the division, he said.
 In reporting on the regional environmental services program, he said the environmentalists cover public water supplies, water pollution, sanitation restrictions, water quality monitoring, construction grants, solid waste, air pollution and numerous miscellaneous matters.
 He told the board water pollution control through sewage treatment upgrading in industries and municipalities is making progress. He said Twin Falls has a secondary system well under construction. Treatment facilities in Castelford, Wendell, Kimberly and Paul are nearing completion and those in Albion and Jerome are in the planning stages. Declis is nearly ready for a call for bids.

 Wagner and Dr. Wayne Carte, district medical director, agreed the subdivision development outside of the reaches of water and sewer systems is a major problem. The drilling of wells and installation of septic tanks for these subdivisions pushes the water contamination problem to the limits, they said.
 Dr. Carte also reviewed a number of bills pending before the Idaho legislature and suggested board members write the governor expressing their views on a proposal for one rather than three areas of health services in the state. He said district directors favor three such areas.
 Walter Bowman, Lincoln County commissioner and board member, said his county is ready to seek advice and help with a solid waste problem there. The situation is less than desirable, he said, with collections of solid waste posing a disposal problem.
 Dr. Carte said he will set up a meeting with health district personnel and the Lincoln County commissioners during their March meeting.

Plant your own garden. See what it's like to be a farmer

First you make sure you've got the land, adequate water to it and the ability to till it. Then all you have to do is buy the seed, the fertilizer, the insecticides and the fungicides. Spend a part of each day watering, weeding, hoeing and overseeing growth. Then pray a lot for good weather. To understand the farmer's problem multiply these efforts by 1000.
 Now once your garden has a crop, all you have to do is harvest it. Idaho's farmers have to harvest, too. Then they must store it, transport it and market it. To city dwellers, that sounds simple, but it's not.
 To market agriculture commodities you have to have an iron will and the patience of Job. The price is changing all the time depending on supply and demand. If the supply of the crop you grew is high, then the price is lower. Or if the demand is low, then the price is low. And vice versa. And what about the expense you'd have in fertilizers and the rest?
 So you see it's not so easy to be a farmer. To "stick" all your money in the ground and hope that it pays off.
 But every year 27,600 farmers and ranchers do it, and thereby form the

Butz scheduled to speak in TF

TWIN FALLS — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz will speak in Twin Falls March 27 at the College of Southern Idaho.
 Butz was scheduled to visit Twin Falls last October but had to cancel his visit because of a call from President Ford regarding wheat sales to Soviet Union.
 Butz will give a public address in the evening followed by a question and answer session with a panel of Idaho newsmen, and a reception, according to Vernon Ravenscroft, chairman of the region 5 Republican Central Committee.
 Arrangements are being made by the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee, the office of Sen. James McClure, and the region 5 committee.

WASHINGTON (NEWS) — "Anyone" who believes that the American economy needs strong fiscal stimulus can only be reassured by the budget (for the fiscal year which begins in July) that President Ford has sent to Congress. This is so not only because of the large estimated deficit of $32 billion; but also because of the near-certainty that the deficit will turn out to be much larger than that. The reason is that the estimated expenditure total of $249.4 billion assumes congressional approval of a $17 billion package of unpopular reforms to reduce spending, nearly all of which is almost sure to be rejected. Consequently the spending total will be much larger than $249 billion. And Congress seems determined to block some of the higher taxes on oil as well.

The budget, and the accompanying Economic Report of the President, present an astonishingly grim picture of the outlook for the economy, at least as far as unemployment is concerned. Even though the two documents assume that the present steep slide will cease some time this year and will be succeeded by an upturn — helped in part by the stimulus from the budget — the "see little lessening of unemployment for some time to come.

LENS

The forecast is for an unemployment rate averaging 8.1 per cent of the labor force in 1975 (it was 7.1 per cent in December) and 7.9 per cent in the election year of 1976. Unemployment in the United States has not exceeded 4 per cent since the great depression of the 1930s.

These projections are based on a cautious judgment that the recovery late this year and in 1976 will not be very vigorous. In spite of the President's proposed $16 billion stimulus for the economy through tax reduction, this is to consist mainly of a $12 billion rebate of 1974 taxes on individual incomes, which is allowed for in the estimate of the budget deficit.

Congress is very likely to approve a tax reduction of this magnitude or a little more, though in somewhat different form. But it is unlikely to approve the President's proposals to reduce expenditure.

So the budget deficit for the fiscal year 1976, ending a year from next June, might now be close to $70 billion. Would this in fact make fiscal policy more stimulative and ensure a stronger recovery?

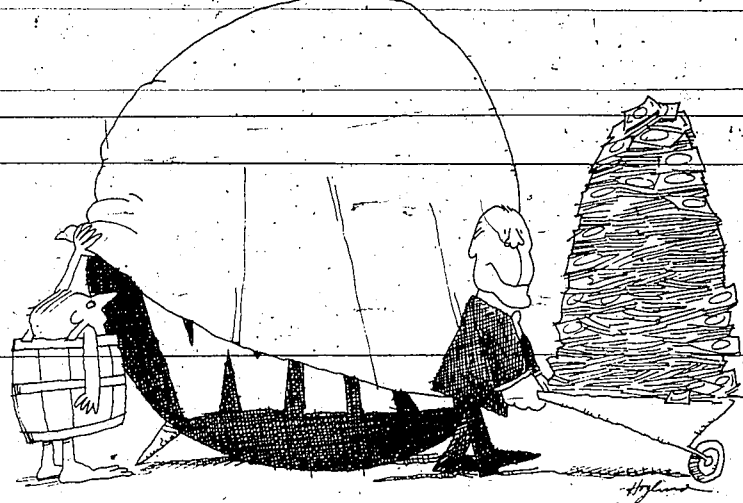

Given the existence of a deep recession, few economists share the fears of William Simon, the Secretary of the Treasury, that Treasury borrowing to cover even the officially projected deficits — a two-year total of $17 billion in the period from mid-1974 to mid-1976, nearly all of which lies ahead — will strain the capital markets.

But adding another $15-$20 billion may cause a few palpitations in the heart of even the stoutest Keynesian.

Ray Ash, the outgoing budget director, has disagreed openly with Simon's worries about the deficits projected at present, but he has added a warning: "The last $17 billion is much harder to borrow than the first $17 billion."

With business demand for credit likely to be higher than normal for a recession in part because prices continue to rise, mammoth Treasury borrowing might preempt credit from such sectors as housing and make it impossible for less creditworthy firms to sell debt securities. In that event the Treasury borrowing itself would tend to abort the recovery.

The Federal Reserve Board could solve the problem by a massive increase in the money supply, but many fear that that would all but guarantee a revival of inflation in 1976 and later.

Just what do we get for $350,000,000?

supply, but many fear that that would all but guarantee a revival of inflation in 1976 and later. In its accompanying report his Council of Economic Advisers was anything but bullish in its forecast for the economy later this year and in 1976, although it did suggest cautiously that there would be "a move on to the road of recovery in the second half of 1975."

This was based on analysis of all the main factors of demand; as always — business investment, housing, stocks, consumer purchases and government — but it was more than usually humble.

The humility was well taken, but for a reason the council could not mention: the total uncertainly about what Congress will do, particularly about the President's complex energy program, which is designed to secure a very large increase in prices of oil and natural gas.

The council admitted that this program would have a slight "drag" effect on real demand early in the year, and would add to the rate of inflation, but the Economic Report insisted that altogether the President's program is stimulative.

No doubt it would be. But seldom has an Economic Report been so academic, given the vast confusion in Congress. Fortunately, even if the President and Congress reach a total deadlock on energy, as seems quite possible, economic stimulus can proceed via tax reduction, though the magnitude can now be perceived only insofar as it was more likely to be larger than the President proposed than to be smaller, and spending by the federal government will surely exceed his requests.

Apart from its fiscal policy aspects, the President's budget, as always, provides an important insight into where the government stands and where it is going, and also into the President's own priorities and concerns. Several features stand out.

Partly because of inflation, but partly also because he wants a rise in pay terms for the Defense Department, Mr. Ford has asked Congress to approve an increase of some $10 billion in spending on defense. Even at the proposed figure of $22.8 billion, spending on defense would continue to decline as a proportion of the total budget and of the gross national product.

For the first time in memory a president has proposed essentially no new government program at all. He has put off national health insurance and reform of the public assistance system indefinitely because both would be costly.

Now the whole affair goes to the unpredictable Congress, which has large Democratic majorities in each chamber. But the term "Democrats" is misleading. It is not far from the truth to say that for every Democratic member, there is a different idea of what should be done. The only reasonable certainty in this situation is that the budget deficit will be substantially larger than the President's estimate — for better or worse.

Idaho choice: jail or betrayal

It now appears a respected Idaho newsmen may be jailed rather than betray a confidence.

Jay Sheldley of the Lewiston Morning Tribune is the latest in a line of well-known journalists across the nation who have faced the choice of punishment or revealing confidential sources quoted in "news" stories.

The outcome is usually the same. The reporter's professional ethics make it impossible for him to break the confidence, so he goes to jail or receives other punishment.

No reporter worth his salt will agree to reveal his sources. To do so undercuts his future credibility, the indispensable quality for a journalist.

When Idaho District Court Judge Roy Mosman ruled that the Lewiston reporter must reveal his source he was playing free and loose with the US constitutional guarantees of a free press.

Moreover, he is ignoring a long tradition of press freedom which reaches back into history to before the days when the "S" constitution was drafted.

A free society needs accurate information. One of the best ways to obtain that information is through the work of professional journalists.

If a republic takes away the journalist's tools, or worse, jails the journalist himself, it only cuts off the flow of information needed by any free people.

Neglect of fusion

Spokane Spokesman-Review

Energy research and development at last may be getting long deserved attention even if it may not be in the right direction. The proposed federal budget for fiscal year 1976 includes $21 billion for research and development indicating an increase of 15 per cent over last year.

But despite the need for research in new energy alternatives, the Defense Department is still commencing about half of the research and development budget. NASA is next in line and change part of its allocation is marked for the space shuttle.

Of all energy research, energy research is on the increase with a budget of $2.4 billion for the new Energy Research and Development Administration. That would make it the third highest spender of federal dollars.

What is surprising though is that although nuclear energy research and development would be increased 20 per cent from $28 million to $33 million, fusion research is only budgeted $120 million up from $85 million. Even so, solar and geothermal energy research would receive $12 million.

Of the amount reserved for fusion, $7.5 million would go to funding the Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor to be built at Princeton University over a three-year period of a cost of $215 million. This reactor would be the forerunner of a prototype for power generation.

If power generation through fusion can become possible, it would be an answer to energy problems now plaguing us. It would not only provide clean and safe energy but there is an ample supply of necessary resources for it and nuclear fusion would provide limitless energy.

Admittedly the time and when are big factors but they are the sort of questions solved only by research and development. That is why it is so surprising such a comparatively small amount is allocated for fusion research.

The future of nuclear energy is hanging in limbo just at the time when we need most to know how and in what direction to plan. From the standpoint of safety, cost and the supply of materials, it is beginning to look as though fast breeder fusion is the wrong direction. It seems especially risky then to neglect fusion research until long range energy plans.

Summary: Funds for energy research are increasing but it is unfortunate fusion research isn't receiving the attention it should.

Divorce started recession merry-go-round spinning

WASHINGTON — The recession hit so fast that nobody knows exactly how it happened. One day we were the land of milk and honey and the next day we were the land of sour cream and food stamps. This is one explanation. Hoferberger, the Chevy salesman in Tomsent, Va., a suburb of Washington, called up Littleton, of Littleton Menswear & Haberdashery, and said, "Good news. The '75 Impalas have just come in and I've put one aside for you and your wife."

Littleton said, "I can't, Hoferberger. My wife and I are getting a divorce."

Hoferberger said, "That's too bad. Then take the car for yourself. I'll give you $100 extra on a trade-in because of the divorce."

"I'm sorry," Littleton said, "but I can't afford a new car this year. After I settle with my wife, I'll be lucky to buy a bicycle."

Hoferberger hung up. His phone rang a few minutes later.

"This is Bedcheck the painter," the voice on the other end said. "When do you want us to start painting your house?"

"I changed my mind," said Hoferberger. "I'm not going to paint the house."

"But I ordered the paint," Bedcheck said. "Why did you change your mind?"

"Because Littleton is getting a divorce and he can't afford a new car."

ART BUCHWALD

That evening when Bedcheck came home his wife said, "The new color television set arrived from Gladstone's TV Shop."

"Because Littleton is getting a divorce," she demanded.

"Because Hoferberger isn't getting his house painted now that the Littletons are having a divorce."

The next day Mrs. Bedcheck dragged the TV set in its cart on back to Gladstone. "We don't want it."

Gladstone's face dropped. He immediately called his travel agent, Sandstrom. "You know that trip you had scheduled for me to the Virgin Islands?"

"Right, the tickets are all written up."

"Cancel it, I can't go. Bedcheck just sent back the color TV set because Hoferberger didn't sell a car to Littleton because they're going to get a divorce and she wants all his money."

Sandstrom tore up the airline tickets and went over to see his banker, Grisholm. "I can't pay back the loan this month because Gladstone isn't going to the Virgin Islands."

Grisholm was furious. When Rudemaker came in to borrow money for a new kitchen he needed for his restaurant, Grisholm turned him down cold. "How can I loan you money when Sandstrom hasn't repaid the money he borrowed?"

Rudemaker called up the contractor, Eagleton, and said he couldn't put in a new kitchen. Eagleton laid off eight men.

Meanwhile, General Motors announced it was giving a rebate on its '75 models. Hoferberger called up Littleton immediately. "Good news," he said, "even if you are getting a divorce, you can afford a new car."

"I'm not getting a divorce," Littleton said. "It was all a misunderstanding and we've made up."

"That's great," Hoferberger said. "Now you can buy the Impala."

"No way," said Littleton. "My business has been so lousy I don't know why I keep the doors open."

"I didn't know that," Hoferberger said.

"Do you realize I haven't seen Bedcheck, Gladstone, Sandstrom, Grisholm, Rudemaker or Eagleton for more than a month? How can I stay in business if they don't patronize my store?"

Nation's choice: Pay the bill or endure crime

NEW YORK — For all the improvement in law enforcement in recent years, serious crime continues its relentless increase.

Editors, lawmakers, and angry citizens are forever asking why. A recently released study of crime in Manhattan offers some sobering answers.

So far as crime is concerned, the whole of the New York metropolitan area remains a jungle. In 1974, the last year for which FBI figures are available, the area reported more than 1,700 murders, 3,400 rapes and nearly 75,000 robberies. Except for a handful of cities in the South, only Detroit posted a murder rate more appalling than New York's. Every five minutes, on the average, someone in New York is the victim of assault.

Who or what is to blame? The New York Police Department and the city's five district attorneys last week released the findings of a study of one critical aspect of the problem. The study concentrated on felony arrests. What resulted from these arrests? The short answer is, nothing much. Ninety per cent of the felony cases last year, the charges were reduced to misdemeanors, or dismissed.

Why did this happen? It happened because of "the system." Who is responsible for "the system"? Suppose, for once, we face that question squarely: We are. The immediate responsibility may lie upon overburdened courts and overworked prosecutors, but the ultimate responsibility lies upon all of us, as taxpayers, who refuse to provide sufficient funds to make a better system work.

And you, this has nothing to do with the supposed notion that "society is to blame" for crime. In the courts of New York, and of every other major city across the land, "the system" means the plea-bargaining system. It is the system by which a defendant charged with a felony, such as robbery, agrees to plead guilty to a misdemeanor, such as attempted grand larceny, in exchange for a reduced sentence or probation.

In a perfect system of justice, plea bargaining would have no place. Every defendant would go to trial; after the evidence had been heard, he would be found guilty or not guilty, and sentence would be imposed accordingly. If it appeared that the police were making flimsy arrests, or that prosecutors were presenting their cases poorly, or that judges were fixing wares to avoid punishment, these are faults could be singled out for public criticism.

We have nothing that approaches a perfect system of justice. As one consequence, no part of the judicial machinery can be held directly at fault. In 1960, New York's police made 30,000 felony arrests; last year, they made nearly 102,000. The machinery of justice simply is not geared for handling so great a volume of cases. There are not enough judges, not enough prosecutors, not enough juries.

In a typical case, this is what happens. Willie Poinsett, 38, is arrested for robbery and possession of a gun. These are felony charges, punishable by up to 32 years in prison. Poinsett has been arrested 21 times before. His lawyer offers a deal: Guilty to petit larceny, and two months in jail. Done! It is over in three minutes.

In another typical case, cited by the New York Times, 18-year-old Melvin Lewis is brought in on felony charges of attempted robbery and possession of a knife. He has a record of 19 arrests. To bring him to trial would be costly and time-consuming. How about a plea of guilty to attempted grand larceny? Done!

Lewis gets 10 months in jail, but is released on parole after three. He is immediately arrested anew for assault, and a week later for wounding a police officer and killing one Frank J. Walker, a widower with six children.

Nothing good can be said of "the system." It profoundly discourages the good police officer who may have risked his life in making a felony arrest. The system makes cynics of prosecutors and hypocrites of judges. Worst of all, it runs hardened criminals through a revolving court house door and back to play their violent trade again on the streets.

If your urban societies ever are to emerge from the jungle, we have to provide more judges, more prosecutors, more juries. Will we pay the bill? The bloody prospect is that we will endure the crime instead.

Prevent further embarrassment

Editor, Times-News:
I can see it all now, three teenagers at school in their locker room.

One says, "I dare you."
"I double dare you," says the second.
"OK!—but dare go first," states the third, and then the whole foolish thing has happened.

Stupid? You bet! Illegal? No doubt about it! Immoral? Certainly by our society's standards. Yes! Yes! Yes! And no one is saying that they should not be reprimanded and corrected.

But let us not forget that these are young people barely 17 or 18-years old and not hardened criminals. The years between infancy and high school are short, and, oh! so very much to learn.

I'm 28 years old and while I've not run down the streets of our fair city, "naked as a jaybird," in comparison to years and knowledge, I've done some pretty crazy things. Afterwards in retrospect, I think, "Where in the world did that revert from."

But my Lord has said that as long as I learn from my mistakes and try to improve that not only does he forgive me but he loves me. So what right do others have to hold malice toward me?

How it must pain these boys' parents to see their sons called every filthy, vile name the Times-News readers can delicately think of. For only they can fully understand their son's unworthy youth.

I do not know who the boys are. My own two teenage sons do, but the student body has taken an oath of concealment. I respect their integrity; they are among the few who have not taken leave of their senses.

I appeal to you, my fellow citizens, this is supposedly a christian nation. So let us show the qualities of compassion and mercy and let us not enter into scandalizing and name calling, but work harder in our own families and among our young people to prevent other youth people these embarrassments.

Repealer endorsed

Editor, Times-News:
Many girls both young and old have been corrupted by the national media, national league of women's rights, the NEA, national educational association, and several other worthy groups.

Lobbyists have injected a sort of political sedative to force state legislators into some kind of pity to bring the ERA, Equal Rights Amendment into law.

In this writer's very biased opinion, American citizens need no government imperious guidelines. The fact remains and the net results prove that man or woman is not One or uni-cellular, they are both diversified. If some questionable individuals get their way, and the Equal Rights Amendment becomes a legal reality, the American female will voluntarily give oneself into the power of another. With complete loss of distinct respect.

The ERA amendment should be repealed. In this respect this writer sincerely suggests that all concerned citizens flood the state legislators, Boise, Idaho, with your needed support to cancel this very perilous piece of legislation.

Addiction feared

Editor, Times-News:
There has never been a nation or a people who have fallen into obscurity or ruin because of righteousness.

Though most of us are aware of this fact we continually let down our guard and consequently become subject to the subtle traps Satan sets for us — hoping to prevent us from continuing to be a happy, progressive, prosperous people — with God as our guide.

As a very young girl I discovered the depressing, regressive effect idling away my time with a True Story magazine had on me. Also radio's soap operas.

Consequently I have never let myself become addicted to TV's pornographic portrayal of life via the daytime serial programs. I have yet to pay my first cent for having my spirit smothered by an R rated movie.

But, Ahai! I have been reading Abby's column despite my conviction that it is Satan's subtle that desensitizes us so gradually we are sometimes unaware of it, which is what I have been. Thanks to Mr. Lowell Maughn of Paul for his letter to the editor which made me realize I was unthinkingly taking one of the first steps to becoming addicted to pornography.

I really think you could sell as many papers without this column. I still like to think that people with sexual hangups are in the minority, and don't see why Abby and her sister Ann cater to their problems in their column. Maybe. Just haven't thought about it thoroughly.

Here's hoping they will for with their talent they could still entertain and help countless fans.

Conscience pinch?

Editor, Times-News:
Thursday evening we went down to our local grocery store around 5. My husband and I were in the store around 20 minutes.

After leaving the store, we discovered someone had hit our car and left. There was no note, just a good bang and then left.

Like everyone else, we work for a living. Our insurance is deductible. Now our rates go up as it was around $250 or $300 damage.

Call doctor first

Editor, Times-News:
Although we appreciate the interest of the young Eagle Scout whose intention in writing (Feb. 17) was to help those confronted with an accidental poisoning emergency, his information and advice were not entirely accurate.

There is no designated poison control center in Twin Falls. Such a service requires a 24-hour a day staff of trained workers and is usually maintained in conjunction with a university or major medical center.

However, this hospital and most Magic Valley physicians have established a working relationship with several poison control centers located elsewhere and, when necessary, call upon them for immediate and up-to-date information about specific poisons.

Any time an accidental poisoning occurs, the stricken person's family doctor should be called, first and immediately. If this is not possible, the poison victim should be quickly transported to the nearest emergency medical facility.

As with many other medical emergencies, the rapidity with which the patient receives medical attention may be the deciding factor in the outcome. JAMES E. ROSENBAUM, Administrator Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Twin Falls CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Sen. Howard Baker, who considers himself in a "trial heat" for the presidency, says he is convinced that a primary race against President Ford would not harm the Republican Party.

The Tennessee Republican, who has speaking engagements in eight states over the next two months, says he expects to make a final decision on entering the race by late summer or early fall. "This is not only a trial heat in terms of seeing the reaction of the country, but it is also an experiment in finding out what the reaction is here in Tennessee," and last but not least to see what my own reaction is," Baker told UPI in an interview.

Baker, who announced recently that he may seek the GOP nomination regardless of whether President Ford seeks office again, said he did not think a primary between himself and the President would be damaging to the party.

"I don't have the slightest doubt that President Ford and I could compete without rancor and anger and divisiveness," Baker said. "That was one of the factors I took into account when I decided to stop being coy and to acknowledge that I was thinking about the subject."

Baker, who vaulted to national prominence as vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, said he finally made his interest in the presidency public "because I was tired of hearing around the bush about it."

Baker, who will have another national forum as a member of the Senate select committee should have some contingency plans" despite the President's stated plans to seek the office again.

"I think that others ought to do the same thing," Baker said. "If they have any significant, any substantial interest in contending for the nomination, they ought to say so."

"This is a new age in politics. You don't assume necessarily that every President is going to run for re-election. You don't assume that if you frankly and publicly state that you are going to think about running in '76 even though there is a Republican in the White House that this is a declaration of war upon the President, because it isn't."

Baker, who will have another national forum as a member of the Senate select committee investigating the CIA, said he has not yet determined under what conditions he would run for the presidency.

"But I can't lurk in the shadows and just wait to lunge for an opportunity," he said. "Not only can you not do that as a matter of practical politics, but it sort of smacks of political cynicism and opportunism."

Under what conditions would he not run? "If I were convinced that the President can clearly be renominated, that his prospects for re-election were good, if I were in substantial agreement with his programs, that I thought the prospects for success were significantly improved, that the party would progress under his leadership — if I were content in those respects or any significant number of those I probably would have a lessened ambition to run," he said.

Baker said he sees Republicans and Democrats coming out of the presidential starting gate neck and neck in 1976, despite Watergate and the poor showing of GOP congressional candidates in last year's election.

Price tilt seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has decided to begin raising prices down for utilities, commercial airlines and home owners at the expense of the motoring public.

Regulations to be published in the Federal Register in the next 30 days will require utilities to boost prices on a schedule at an accelerated rate while holding down price increases on residential oil used for electric power generation. The fact, home heating oil and other petroleum products.

All the increases will come proportionally as the price of imported crude oil goes up. If Congress adopts Ford's full energy plan, an unlikely occurrence, the retail price of gasoline would increase 12 to 14 cents a gallon while heating oil would go up 6 to 7 cents. White House press secretary Ronessen said Wednesday.

"We are committing ourselves to gasoline tilt on prices," Ronessen said.

The move was seen as a modest step toward accommodating critics of Ford's energy program who have argued for rationing, higher gasoline excise taxes, allocations and other ways of discouraging energy waste by others.

Under rules proposed last month by the Federal Energy Administration, petroleum refiners would have been prohibited from disproportionately increasing the cost of heating oil and other products except gasoline — when raising prices on higher-costing imported crude oil.

Now, in a small but significant change of emphasis, Ford is telling refiners they must pass through most of these higher costs into gasoline prices.

The administration chose gasoline as a target not only because it may be the most wasteful energy factor but because demand for gas is thought to be highly "inelastic" — a change in price should significantly alter the amount purchased.

Force the price of gasoline up and motorists will cut down their driving and use less, Ford's economic advisers believe.

Solons confer

Nevada lawmakers reject ERA

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada has become the fourth state this year to reject the Equal Rights Amendment. The state senate voted 12-4 against the proposal Wednesday.

So far, 34 states have approved the ERA, which would prohibit discrimination based on sex. If four more of the other 16 states approve it by 1976, it would become the 27th amendment.

said Ford's goal of cutting petroleum imports by 1 million barrels a day could be met if each of the nation's drivers cut gasoline consumption by one gallon a week.

The demand for heating oil, on the other hand, is relatively "inelastic." If fuel oil costs 20 cents a gallon or twice that much — home owners will probably buy about the same amount, at least in the short run, because there is no real alternative to keeping warm.

WASHINGTON — Wielding his veto and applying pressure to make it stick, President Ford battled today to save a $3 per barrel oil tariff increase disapproved by both the Senate and House.

Ford hoped to switch votes in the Senate, which voted Wednesday to delay the higher import fees for 90 days by a margin of 69-28.

Although the anti-tariff forces got three more votes than the two-thirds required to override a veto, the outcome of a vote next week on sustaining Ford's veto was expected to be close.

Immediately after the Senate's approval of the House-passed bill, Ford issued a defiant statement.

"I intend to veto this legislation," the President said. "I believe the Congress will ultimately respond to the will of the American people and serve national rather than

THE SENATE approved and sent to the White House Wednesday legislation suspending for 90 days President Ford's tax on imported oil. Here, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., one of the sponsors of the bill, confers with Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., right, after the vote. (UPI)

Utah, Georgia and Oklahoma previously rejected the amendment this year.

Meridian sets vote

MERIDIAN, Idaho (UPI) — City officials plan an election March 11 on a proposed $2,325,000 revenue bond issue to provide the city's share of a $6,331,300 water and sewer project.

Other funds for the project include $2,247,750 from the environmental protection agency, $1,500,000 from the Economic Development Administration, and $449,550 from the State Department of Health and Welfare.

Two of the three women senators in Nevada opposed it, and other opponents were not swayed by Gov. Mike O'Callaghan's intervention. He asked for approval in his "state of the state" message to the legislature, heavily dominated by his Democratic party. Republican leaders also urged approval.

Sen. Helen Herr, D-Las Vegas, said she opposed the ERA even more now than she did two years ago when she joined in senate defeat of the measure.

She said she wanted equal rights as much as any woman, "but I think we in this legislature, the elected representatives of the people of Nevada, should seek out these discriminations and help solve our own problems."

"Women were not created equal, physically. Those who feel they have can now join all the armed forces, fire and police departments, and do whatever job they want."

Ford battles for tariff

higher tariff would drive up prices without any assurance that less oil would be consumed. Opponents said delay would only make the energy problem worse.

"The White House is putting on the greatest pressure ever," Jackson said.

Republicans who voted for the bill were: J. Glenn Beall (Md.), Edward W. Brooke, (Mass.), Clifford Case (N.J.), Mark Hatfield (Ore.), Jacob Javits (N.Y.), Charles Mathias (Md.), William Roth (Del.), Robert Schweiker (Pa.), Robert Stafford (Vt.), and Lowell Weicker (Conn.).

Democrats voting against the measure were Russell B. Long (La.) and Howard Cannon (Nev.).

Five senators were absent.

Oil sale questioned

of prices of some crude oil and of most refined petroleum products. How much those reductions might be, and what obligation the oil industry might have to make retroactive refunds, were unclear matters that were absorbing the attention of government lawyers.

Washington — In a 2 to 1 decision, the Temporary Emergency Court of Appeals held Wednesday that the government had acted illegally in letting some domestic crude oil sell at unrestricted market prices since January, 1974.

The ruling, if upheld on appeal, might lead to rollbacks

Fine boost hike beaten

By BILL LAZARUS

Times-News Capital Bureau
BOISE — An effort to increase fines for breaking the 55-mile-per-hour speed limit was thwarted Wednesday on a 12-22 Senate vote.

All but one Magic Valley senator, however, voted with those attempting to increase the $5 maximum fine for driving faster than 55 mph but below the previous speed limit on any particular highway.

Last week the House passed a bill making the 55 mph limit permanent and removing the $5 fine ceiling.

The Senate measure, sponsored by Sen. James Yost, R-Wendell, would also make permanent the 55 mph speed limit, but would retain the $5 fine ceiling.

Senators John Peavoy, R-Rupert; Robert Saxvik, D-Burley; Richard High, R-Twin Falls, and John Barker, R-High, voted to amend Yost's proposal. Yost opposed amendment.

Yost said the current law has worked effectively to conserve gasoline and save lives.

Sen. Robert Kinghorn, D-Hoacietto, siding with Yost, said no one in his district has been complaining about the present law. "I think it's entirely appropriate that we have a fine to fit the offense," he said.

"I don't think people are complaining much about the $5 fine but they are sneaking a lot," Saxvik responded. "As I recall we won World War II at the 35 mph speed limit," he said, maintaining that the 55 mph limit should be enforced.

"We have got a mucky move 55 mph speed limit here in Idaho," Peavoy said.

"The fine is so small it's just meaningless... I think it boils down to whether we really take this energy situation seriously," he said.

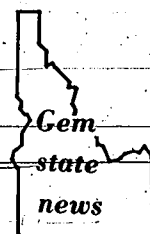

Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, replied, "I don't think this is a mucky move bill. He said the needs of a rural, large state like Idaho are different than the needs of more populated states in Utah, he said, the 55 mph law has "developed" into a harassment of the public by the police.

After the move to amend failed, Yost's bill passed by a wide majority. Peavoy, however, said he might move to reconsider the bill "in an action giving opponents another chance to amend it."

If the bill remains unamended, it will be sent on to the House for consideration.

Non-smokers get breath at meetings

BOISE (UPI) — Non-smokers got a breath of fresh air from the Senate State Affairs Committee Wednesday when it voted 6-4 to send to the floor a bill to ban smoking in public places.

Senate Minority Leader Cy Chase, D-St. Maries, lost his attempt to hold the bill in committee. Chase argued that he didn't smoke and "I don't mind others smoking."

"It has no place in this legislature," Chase said.

Sens. Phil Bait, R-Wilder, and Robert Kinghorn, D-Pocatello, however, said that it was the trend across the nation to ban smoking in public places.

Sponsor Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, called on the committee to face the facts that smoking was harmful.

Chase countered there were a lot of things harmful to health, "but it's hard to legislate against them."

House panel seeks to amend DST bill

BOISE (UPI) — Encouraged to appease both sides, the House State Affairs Committee decided Wednesday to try to amend a bill that would put Southern Idaho on Daylight-Saving time next Sunday.

Chairman J. Vard Chatburn, R-Albion, did not want even to bring the bill before his committee and those wanting to consider it had to muster a majority to do it.

Rep. Ralph Wheeler, R-American Falls, tried to move the Senate-approved measure to the floor without recommendation. Then Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Coeur d'Alene, tried unsuccessfully to postpone action on the bill indefinitely.

Finally, Rep. Jack Kennebeck, R-Boise, moved the bill to be put into committee of the whole for amendment.

"Compromise perhaps is the better part of valor," Kennebeck said. "The best thing to do is appease both sides."

When Chatburn first refused to bring up the measure in committee he said he might be willing to compromise with proponents of the DST move.

Unless action is taken, Southern Idaho will remain on standard time until the fourth Sunday in April. Chatburn's compromise would put Southern Idaho on DST the fourth Sunday in March.

Rep. John Heardon, R-Boise, said if Southern Idaho goes on daylight time this coming Sunday "this means school children in this area will be getting up and going to school in the dark."

"Winter weather is not over yet," he said. "Mothers don't want to put their children out on the street under those conditions."

Wheeler said retaining standard time in Southern Idaho until April will disrupt the movement of merchandise.

"That one hour's difference can make a whole day's difference," he said.

"I don't think most people appreciate the complications that result when we're out of step," he said.

Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, said there was interest in his community. The committee agreed to amend the bill to allow 50 per cent of liquor profits to go to county with a city of 35,000.

The committee was told that at present it would mean about $30,000 yearly going to the City of Boise for the arts center.

It was agreed to amend the bill so that it would apply to other cities other than Boise. As originally written the bill would apply to only cities over 70,000.

Lawsuit threatened over panel makeup

BOISE (UPI) — Chairman Dean Summers, R-Boise, of the Senate State Affairs Committee, served notice Wednesday to the committee's refusal to send to the floor a reapportionment party central committee would result in a lawsuit.

Summers said after a 5-5 vote to keep the bill in committee that "a district lawsuit would be filed within the next five days."

The bill would have taken the committee and a subcommittee of both parties from the House and the Senate committee and place them on the central committee of the legislative districts.

Summers said what the bill did was to take the two county committee persons away from the courthouse.

Senate Minority Leader Cy Chase, D-St. Maries, immediately moved that the bill be held in committee, concluding that it was throwing the "power into the large counties." He said "We need to keep all the local control we can."

But Sen. Arthur Murphy, D-Mullan, pointed out to Chase that all this was doing was following the supreme court decision on one-man-one-vote.

However, Chase said until told to take such action the legislature should refrain from action.

Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, agreed with Chase. He also said such a move would "weaken" the political system because people would lose interest.

Panel holds pay boost

BOISE (UPI) — Expressing concern the people were not ready to buy it, the Senate State Affairs Committee has held for further study a bill to boost legislative pay.

Wayne York, executive secretary of the Idaho Education Association, and Marj Slotten, president of the League of Women Voters, told the committee Wednesday their organizations, as well as labor favored the bill.

It would give legislators $6,000 a year—in legislative expenses. It would take effect in 1977 provided it was approved by the voters.

Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, said the people of the state feel that all legislators do when they come to the session is come here "and all we want to do is raise our own pay."

No blinds pulled

BOISE (UPI) — Senate State Affairs Committee members have decided to let a little sunshine in for another year and refused to consider amendments to Idaho's new sunshine law.

In asking committee consideration, Sen. Reed Budge, R-Soda Springs, referred to it as an "equality bill."

He said that it just made it possible that anyone who lobbies on his own behalf does not have to register, but he does it for pay or for an organization then he would have to comply with the law which was adopted by the electorate last November.

The sunshine law was voted in to provide for campaign disclosure and lobbyist registration.

Exemption approved

BOISE (UPI) — House lawmakers introduced today a bill to exempt production equipment of radio and television broadcasting stations from the sales and use tax.

This exemption would not apply to machinery, equipment, materials and supplies incidental to the production and broadcasting operation such as maintenance and janitorial equipment and supplies and hand tools with a unit price not in excess of $100.

It also would not apply to office equipment and supplies and supplies used in selling and distributing activities, in research or in invention.

Home care pay OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. Dorothy Reynolds, D-Caldwell, steered through the House 7-0 today legislation that would allow Caldwell Memorial Hospital to receive Medicare payments for home health care.

Mrs. Reynolds explained that the hospital recently was purchased by the Hospital Corp. of America and no longer is considered a non-profit agency. The bill goes now to the Senate. Her bill would add proprietary home health agencies to those medical care facilities that must be licensed and thus make it eligible for payments.

Home health care is extended by the hospital through facilities to persons no longer requiring hospitalization but who still need professional health care.

Auction due in week

BOISE (UPI) — Chairman of the Senate Legal Government and Taxation Committee wants to see the committee take final action on the governor's seven legislative planning bills a week from now.

Abby

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is a young married mother who has recently been hospitalized for a serious illness. She told me that her doctor has asked her for her father's medical history because her illness is the type that is usually inherited from the father.

Abby, I told her that her father died when she was a baby, but the truth is that I, so he can phone him when she was born. Her father is living in Philadelphia. He is married, doing well, and has a family of his own. I haven't seen him, or been in touch with him since he refused to marry me, because I wouldn't have an abortion. (He was in college at the time I dropped out.) I keep track of him through his cousin who is a good friend of mine, but she doesn't know what happened between us.

My conscience bothers me. Should I tell my daughter a doctor who her father is, so he can phone him when she needs information he needs? Or should I leave things as they are?
TROUBLED CONSCIENCE

Data needed on father

DEAR TROUBLED: Why don't you discreetly contact your daughter's father and ask HIM to get in touch with the doctor by phone or letter? That way he can answer the doctor's questions without disclosing his identity.

DEAR ABBY: Three of us girls share a apartment. Nancy (made-up name) is very much in love with a heel who is using her.

He has propositioned both of us behind Nancy's back. We had heard that he was fooling around every chance he got, but we didn't believe it until he got around to picking us. (Naturally we told him to get lost.)

Meanwhile, Nancy thinks this guy hung the moon. We hate to see her get hurt. Should we tell her the truth about her boyfriend? And if so, how?
NANCY'S ROOMIES

DEAR ROOMIES: If she's "in love" with this heel, she'll rationalize it some way. (She'll insist that he was only kidding when he propositioned you, or that you misunderstood him.) Let her catch him herself. She will.

DEAR ABBY: I spent my vacation with my widowed sister and her six-year-old son. The boy is a lovable youngster in almost every way, but several times I observed him torturing neighborhood dogs and cats, and even his own little terrier. It was obvious, Abby, that he was deriving great enjoyment from his cruelty.

I was tempted to mention this to my sister, but I was afraid she would punish the boy. (She's a very strict disciplinarian.) Now back home, I find myself worrying about the situation.

Should I now write to my sister and tell her?
WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Yes! It would be kindness to your sister and her son. Torturing helpless animals is usually a symptom of a serious emotional disturbance. Don't wait another moment. The boy needs professional help.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old married woman who likes to dance. I am not a very good dancer, and it is sheer torture for me to have to dance with a man other than my husband. He's not much of a dancer either, but he can dance if he has to.

Around the holidays we went to several parties and I was asked to dance. I didn't know how to turn down a man who asked me to dance because I was afraid I would hurt his feelings, so I just went ahead and danced. It was misery for me. Please, tell me how to get out of dancing.
HATES TO DANCE

DEAR HATES: Say, "Thank you, but do you mind if we eat this one out?"

Mini-Reviews

TWIN FALLS - Twin Falls Public Library officials have released mini-reviews for some of the new books recently received at the library.

"Cavett" by Dick Cavett. Conversational excursions as they take on the contours of Cavett's life, prove so cohesive, that what they add is a sort of autobiography of a deeply witty, funny man.

"The Upside" by Piers Paul Reed. Hilary Fletcher, son of a Yorkshire baron, years to be accepted into the upper class world of his childhood companions, Mark and Harriet Metherell. This is a gripping novel about evil and the power of passions that it generates.

"Bachelor's Anonymous" by Grenville Widnouse. They frankly borrow their methods from Alcoholics Anonymous. But what happens when one of their members sets off for London where there's no branch? Ephraim Trout was charged with the holy mission to save off disaster.

Doctor gives ways to detect pinworms

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I suspect that my young daughter has pinworms. I am not certain. How can I confirm this? If I can't, can I give her the medicine anyway? — Mrs. M.D.K.
No. Don't use medicine — any medicine — without good reason. Medication for pinworms can be a bit harsh, and you wouldn't want to subject your little girl to it unless it is necessary.

There are three ways to detect pinworms. You can do one of them yourself. The other two require a doctor's help. Inspect the anal area at night after your daughter has been sleeping a while. This is when the mature pinworm emerges to lay eggs. Use a flashlight, and you may see the tiny white thread-like worm around the anus.

Another method is to blot the anal area with the sticky side of transparent tape. This should be taken to the doctor for microscopic examination, which would show any eggs. A third method is to take a stool sample which also would reveal presence of eggs.

If your daughter has pinworms the chances are better than even that other members of the family, particularly the children, also have it, and you will be in for a period of medication and boiling of clothes before the problem is under control.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I've been told I have a sliding hiatal hernia. That word "sliding" has me stumped. What is it, and what is the danger? Is this condition operable? — Mrs. L. J.D.
 The diaphragm has a snug opening large enough to allow the gullet to pass through to its connection with the stomach. When this opening becomes enlarged a portion of the stomach may protrude up into the chest cavity — a hiatal hernia. The opening is called a hiatus, hence the name.

Your Good Health

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

A sliding hiatal hernia means that the bit of protruding stomach slips in and out of the opening, often depending upon whether the person is standing or lying down.

These hernias may cause distress at night but produce no symptoms during the day when we are up and about. The nighttime distress can be remedied by raising the head of the bed slightly to provide gravity.

The sliding hernia can be lived with, much as any hiatal hernia. The thing to watch for is persistent pain over long periods or any bleeding. The latter would be a symptom that the hernia has ulcerated.

Generally speaking, hiatal hernia can be treated conservatively and surgery is seldom required.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are "Zyloprim" and "Allopurinol," and what are these tablets used for? — A.C.

They are one and the same. Zyloprim is the trade name for the substance, allopurinol. It is one of several similar medicines used for control of gout. Gout is caused by over production of uric acid which accumulates in joints, causing arthritis-like pain.

Uric acid results from the metabolism of purine, a chemical found mainly in organ meats (liver, kidneys, sweetbreads, etc.). The medicine to which you refer blocks or interferes with the purine metabolism just before it breaks down into uric acid.

A Lavalier You CHEEK COLORS ARE UPDATED

By Mary Sue Miller

Cheek colors, like some women, have come a long way. Originally the products were known as rouge and were made of loose powder in carmine red shades.

Using the stuff was frowned upon by strait-laced ladies, so that the user hid her box and kept the matter a secret.

Later on, rouge came in powder cakes and next in pots of cream. Shades with greater subtlety developed as new forms were introduced. When gels came on the scene the name was changed to blusher. Even cakes and creams took the new name. Perhaps it was a good switch.

Rouge too often was applied in blatant circles with an effect far from a natural blush — the true intent.

Combining the properties of cream rouge and powder blusher, the latest version is "cheek color." Applications are made with a damp sponge, like some kinds of prestigious foundations. The advantages of damp sponge application are two-fold: It helps you control the amount of color and coverage you want; it sets the color for many hours.

The shades on the whole — country blush and English peach — sound natural as all outdoors. The ideal make-up looks as though it emerged from within, not from a box. As cosmetic scientists work toward that end, the day of a flawless finish comes closer.

Inflation—power high

STERLING-PARK, Va. (UPI) — Gerry and Lois Lees knew electric rates were going up, but when the latest power bill for their three-bedroom home arrived they couldn't believe it: Lees said he is basically a calm person, but when he saw the bill, he screamed, "Oh, my God!"

The bill was for $697.87 — more than his mortgage payment.

A power company spokesman told Lees it has been a mistake and said the company would rebill the meter.

Lees, still nervous, checked the meter himself and found it was running at an incredible rate. After throwing the breaker switch, he said, the meter ran slower.

Valley beauticians discuss problems

TWIN FALLS — Discussion at the February meeting of the Magle-Valley Hairdressers Association centered around problems with unlicensed beauticians and salons.

The meeting was held Tuesday evening at the Idaho Power Auditorium.

Names of several persons performing services without a license or in places other than licensed salons will be submitted to the Occupation License Bureau in Boise, members also noted persons receiving such services are subject to fines and penalties. In other business, Sherry Olson, a member of the National Association Insurance Company, T.I.P.S. General Agency, gave a short description of the policies available to members. Two members of the Idaho Hair Fashion Committee, E. B. Scholtes and Loren Nelson presented a slide show of the new trend in hair styles and fashions.

Short on sugar— why not corn syrup?

Being short on sugar is nothing new, but the nostalgia butts often forget this when they yearn for pies "from the good old days" and lament the current sugar situation.

The early American woman rarely used sugar for baking since the refining process was not the streamlined process it is today; however, her pies literally "went down in history" as delicious affairs.

The Pennsylvania Dutch and other ethnic American cooks still use sweeteners besides sugar, but combine other sweeteners with sugar when they are baking.

Sugar was found on the shelves of early American kitchens in the form of rock sugar crystals. Well-behaved children were rewarded with a piece of rock sugar instead of candy. If sugar was used in baking, the early American would break off a piece from the pyramid of rock sugar on the sideboard or buy a string of rock sugar crystals and melt them down for cooking.

The pioneer woman made dozens of pies without sugar during harvest season, and the pies, made with fruits, were a welcome treat after a day in the field.

After World War I sugar became scarce and very expensive, and during World War II, sugar was rationed. Pie production was interrupted in many areas. Patriotic Americans exercised their resourcefulness and sweetened with corn syrup, honey and maple syrup.

Since many Americans are searching for ways to sweeten without sugar, the following sugartests use recipes developed in the Koro corn syrup kitchens. Corn syrup is the sweetener and the recipes include the all-American favorite—apple pie.

NEVER-BOIL-OVER

- APPLE PIE (sugartest)
- 1 recipe pastry for 9-inch double-crust pie
  - 6 medium apples, corered, pared, sliced
  - 3 tablespoons margarine
  - 1 tablespoon corn starch
  - 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
  - 1/2 teaspoon salt
  - 3/4 cup light or dark corn syrup
- Divide pastry dough almost in half. Flatten larger portion slightly and roll out about 12 inches in diameter on lightly floured surface. Fit loosely into 9-inch pie plate. Arrange apples in pan.

Roll out top crust; cut circle from center large enough to insert end of funnel; cut slits for decoration and to allow steam to escape. Place pastry over apples; seal and flute edge.

Bake in 400 degree oven 30 minutes or until apples are tender and crust golden brown. About 15 minutes before pie has finished baking prepare cinnamon syrup.

In small saucepan melt margarine. Stir in corn starch, cinnamon and salt. Then stir in corn syrup. Stirring constantly, bring to boil and boil 5 minutes.

Remove pie from oven and immediately place funnel in hole in center of crust. Pour-baking hot cinnamon syrup into pie, about one-third at a time, tilting plate after each addition to allow syrup to spread evenly. Cool pie on rack. Makes one 9-inch pie.

DATE DELIGHT PIE

- 1 package (8 oz) dates, finely chopped
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/2 cup dark corn syrup
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 2 teaspoons vanilla
- 1/2 cup chopped nuts

All-American favorite

AMERICANS are once again exercising their resourcefulness in using sweeteners other than sugar. These all-American apple pies are sweetened with corn syrup.

- 1 package (8 oz) cream cheese, softened
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
- Whipped cream or whipped topping

In saucepan stir together dates, water and dark corn syrup. Stirring occasionally, bring to boil over medium heat and cook 8 to 10 minutes or until thickened.

Remove from heat. Stir in margarine, one teaspoon of the vanilla and nuts. Cool. Stir together cream cheese, light corn syrup, egg and remaining one teaspoon vanilla.

Pour into unbaked pastry shell. Gently spread date mixture on top. Bake in 375 degree oven 35 to 40 minutes or until edge of filling is set and crust lightly browned. Chill.

If desired, serve garnished with whipped cream or whipped topping. Makes one 9-inch pie.

- Pumpkin Pie
- 4 eggs
  - 1 cup dark corn syrup
  - 1 cup evaporated milk
  - 2 cups canned pumpkin
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1/2 teaspoon ginger
  - 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon

'Y' instructors, lifeguards needed

TWIN FALLS — Peter Blumenthal, newly appointed YM-YWCA director of aquatics, said today the "Y" needs instructors and lifeguards.

He said, "I'm looking forward to having a good program here. What we need are some good qualified staff people." He said volunteers and paid personnel both are needed. The new "Y" swimming pool opens March 24.

Blumenthal said a special year-to-swim program is planned during Easter vacation and the spring program will begin on April 1.

He said the minimum requirement for lifeguarding is successful completion of a Red Cross senior life saving course. He said those interested in becoming instructors must possess a current Red Cross water safety instructor authorization.

Applications and interviews will be taken at the "Y", 1751 Elizabeth Blvd., from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. More information is available by calling Blumenthal at the "Y".

Jerome aides seek bids

JEROME — The Jerome School Board has called for bids for construction of the water and sewer line for the new high school.

The trustees in a special meeting Tuesday night approved specifications drawn up by J-U-B Engineers for a 10-inch water line and an 8-inch sewer line to serve the new school. Bids will be opened at 8 p.m. March 10 in the superintendent's office. Specifications are available from J-U-B or at the superintendent's office.

The successful bidder will be required to complete the lines within 60 days. The lines will be extended from the new office of the Idaho Fish and Game Department on East Main along the right-of-way of State Highway 25 to the school site.

J-U-B Engineers also reported that actual on-site construction of the school should begin next week, if weather permits. Unfavorable weather conditions have delayed ground preparation work. Most of the materials for the new school have been ordered and are being stored, the engineering firm reported.

Following the meeting, Lyle Van Orman, board chairman, said the district is still accepting applications for superintendent to replace John B. Campbell who has resigned effective June 30 the final day of his contract with the district.

Van Orman said the district has received over 27 applications for the position. He said the board will have a special meeting after March 1 to conduct interviews of applicants.

Council hires two

BURLEY — Ray Navarres was hired as patrolman during the Burley City Council meeting Tuesday night.

The council also approved hiring Shirley Whetsline as a clerk in the police department.

The council deferred the rehiring of Jim Bowers, Bill Crystal, Frank Segovia, Jerry James and Terry Douglas for the police department.

The five have asked to be reinstated on the force.

The council also indicated it intends to finance the construction of a new power substation.

The proposed "best substation" will cost an estimated $250,000. Councilman Cloyd Taylor said normally the Bonneville Power Administration would build the facility, but hasn't budgeted for the project. If BPA builds the substation, it won't be completed for another 3 to 5 years.

The federally funded program provides stip to counties which are depressed, have high unemployment rates and high out-migration.

Local officials hope Lincoln County can achieve designation as the economic development area and that Blaine and Jerome counties can be included in the overall regional plan. One base area is needed before any other areas can apply for assistance and be included in the regional program. Lincoln County has an economic development study underway.

If you've become a watt watcher and are bent on turning off light switches here are a few things you'll enjoy knowing. About 90% of the rated wattage of the light bulb is returned in heat so in a room that is being occupied there is no real savings in tolerating poor lighting for the area must be heated anyway. However in areas where comfort heating is not essential it is economical to both reduce bulb sizes and shut them off when they are not being used. You may also save money by using higher voltage rated bulbs though they do not produce as much light they last enough longer to make them a better value. Outside lights can be equipped with clear bulbs of smaller wattages with virtually no sacrifice of perimeter or intensity of light. Fixtures installed for security purposes that must run all night can be changed to the mercury vapor type as they operate much more economically. We carry the largest stocks of light bulbs in the area and the widest selection of fixtures. COME IN! We're happy to help.

Mary Knox Jensen, Glens Ferry banker, will be named to the area livestock industry's highest honor, along with five men who have contributed to the industry.

The other 1975 honorees are Curtis T. Eaton, Twin Falls banker; Theodor and Thorleif Rangen, Buhl feed and trout producers; Oakley sheep rancher Eugene Pickett, and Earl H. Stansell, Twin Falls, farm credit executive.

The six 1975 honorees will be installed Tuesday at Burley. The annual banquet will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Ponderosa Inn.

Earl Stansell

Earl Stansell was born at Ashton, Idaho, where his father was engaged in production of certified seed potatoes. The Stansell family later moved to the Hansen area.

Stansell earned a master's degree in Upon completing his education, he served as an area 4-H extension agent for several years.

In 1942 Stansell went to work for the Southern Idaho Production Credit Association, advancing to manager of the association in 1954.

Under his direction the PCA extended more than two-thirds of a billion dollars in loans to Magic Valley farmers and ranchers.

The annual volume of loans has grown from $20 million to $96 million during his term. During Stansell has served as chairman of the Twelfth District Federal Intermediate Credit Bank advertising committee. He has been a member of the Twin Falls Rotary Club for 16 years and has been active in community affairs.

He has been Livestock Hall of Fame chairman for nine years.

The meeting was one in a series being conducted around the state to gather public opinion on priorities for water resources.

Storm hits valley, schools closed

TWIN FALLS — Two Magic Valley school systems are closed and two others have few students today because drifting snow has blocked roads.

All Blaine County and Shoshone schools are closed. Gooding and Jerome schools are open, but parents have been calling in to report bad road conditions in outlying areas, according to school officials.

Many country roads were impassable, including the road between Carey and Arco and Highway 66 between Highway 93 and Mountain Home.

Wayne Fagg, superintendent of Blaine County schools, said "We figured there would only be about one-third of the kids in school so we might as well close. There is supposed to be another storm coming and we would probably have had to take them home again as soon as we got that."

The Idaho Department of Transportation reported four roads closed in the area due to high winds, heavy drifting and poor visibility: Interstate 80 from Colter to the Utah line; U.S. 20-26 from Carey to Tom Cat Hill; State Highway 6 from Cat Creek to Fairfield, and State Highway 77 and 81 from Burley to Malta.

The department said that driving conditions were hazardous on most major roads in Idaho today. U.S. 93 was icy and had a broken snow floor from Twin Falls to the Nevada line.

Although Shoshone schools were closed today, Supt. Kenneth Crothers said as far as he knew the District 4 A-2 basketball tournament which began in Shoshone Wednesday will continue tonight as scheduled.

Sun Valley reported excellent skiing with temperatures ranging from 10 to 15 in Baldy. Sun Valley officials also said gusty winds accompanied by snow flurries are expected through tomorrow.

Earl E. Paige, district manager for Idaho Power in Halley, said that one feeder line was out at Bellevue for about 2 hours and 20 minutes during the night.

George Hansen pleads guilty

Robert Linville Jr., Boise, state chairman of the Republican Party, said Hansen should resign his House seat if he is sentenced to a jail term.

"That's the only way you can uphold the law," Linville said today.

However, he would not say whether Hansen should step down if his sentence does not include a jail term. "I am really not qualified to comment because I don't know all the facts and details," he said. "I just saw the headlines in the paper."

Medics lose insurance

But despite the increases which were "beyond all reason as we see it," Wolff said Idaho physicians were prepared to go along with the new premiums, "because of the 'very bad' malpractice situation nationwide and because of the agreement with the company."

The number of malpractice claims filed nationwide and the amount of jury awards have risen significantly in the past several years, forcing some companies out of the malpractice field and others to impose frequent rate increases.

The pull-out by Argonaut did not come as a complete surprise. The company apparently has faced significant losses recently, reportedly accompanied by an executive shake-up. And the Wall Street Journal reported the company was considering cancelling coverage for its New York physicians.

Wolff said legislation will be introduced soon in the state assembly to attempt to deal with the malpractice problem. The proposed bill would limit malpractice awards to $100,000 on a single claim and $300,000 on a single incident.

Wolff said the IMA would attempt to negotiate a closer relationship with a new company. The doctors have to include a clause which would require the company to provide coverage over a specified period of years.

"This would be preferable because we would be assured of coverage and not having the rug pulled out on us like we feel the Argonaut people did," Wolff said.

The cost of malpractice coverage, like all insurance, is reflected in the consumer's bills. The patients will be made aware of higher insurance rates for doctors because their bills will be higher, Wolff said.

Rising costs are regrettable, Wolff said, because doctors "would like to keep the costs of medical care down."

Analyst predicts Idaho unemployment to hit 9%

BOISE — Unemployment in Idaho is likely to peak at 9 per cent by late summer or early fall, an Idaho Department of Employment analyst predicted Wednesday.

This situation would mean 30,000 working Idahoans out of jobs and would be likely to last about a half a decade, said Beaman told newsmen at a press club luncheon.

Beaman "is the department's acting administrator of unemployment insurance. Until recently he served as chief of research and analysis for the department.

Unemployment in the state hit a peak of 7.2 per cent in January. The national rate at that time stood at 8.2 per cent.

Beaman said that historically Idaho's unemployment has followed the national lead by about four or five months. He predicted the national rate would probably peak at 9 per cent in spring.

He predicted that "quick relief from the unemployment rate would be unlikely. The 3 per cent figure would be at the bottom of a wide 'trough' rather than the peak of a sharp, downward peak, he said.

In an interview Beaman said the housing, mobile home and construction industries are going to continue to suffer the most economic troubles in Idaho. He said the farm economy probably will stay strong. But the food processing industry "may still have more problems."

Inventories of processed food have been increasing, some layoffs in the industry have occurred and processors have been giving extended vacations, he said. The problem, Beaman maintained, is that many people have stopped buying more expensive processed products in favor of raw foods.

Beaman said his predictions are not official department figures but are based on his long experience as an economic analyst.

He said the 9 per cent unemployment prediction would have to be adjusted to match the seasonal rate.

In another presentation, Dr. Richard Hart from the Boise State University Center for Business and Economic Research said that using state surplus funds for tax relief would be more beneficial to Idaho's economy than using the funds for road construction.

He said that tax relief would lead to more spending which would have a multiplier effect in stimulating Idaho's economy.

Hart agreed that tax relief would benefit the wealthy who pay more in taxes. He said, however, that much of this money would be used not just for buying consumer items, but for investment, which would spur the state's economy.

Jerome eyes application

JEROME — A resolution is being drawn up in Jerome to apply for Housing and Urban Development funds in an effort to expand the city water system.

The Jerome City council agreed Tuesday night to draw up a resolution authorizing application for a HUD grant under HUD's community development program. It is anticipated the resolution will be passed at the next regular council meeting.

Last year the council hired CH2M Engineers, Boise, to make a detailed study of Jerome's water system. The engineers have suggested three plans for expanding the present system, ranging in cost from $7,500 to $450,000.

According to City Council members, an additional source of water must be developed in Jerome because of increasing development on the east side of town and in order to supply the new high school with adequate water for fire protection and use.

William F. Johnson, project engineer for CH2M said that due to the sloping terrain of Jerome, the level was the highest east side of the city. The water would be pumped to a new system and the lower west would use the present system.

He explained plan 1, costing $7,500, would utilize existing wells on Tenth Avenue by installing booster pumps and a 300,000-gallon storage tank at the present site. Johnson said this would enable the city to use the big wells in the upper system but that a definite weakness would be the necessity of pumping the water a longer distance.

Under this system, the higher east side of Fillmore Street will be served by a new system and the lower west would use the present system.

Burley phone service disrupted

BURLEY — A severed cable at the construction site of new Cassia County law enforcement building disrupted service to about 150 Burley phone subscribers Wednesday.

Hai Luke, Mountain Bell service foreman, Burley, said the cable was cut between 2 and 3 p.m. and service was not restored until 9 p.m.

According to Luke, the phone cable had been properly exposed during excavation work, but a bank of the excavation collapsed. A piece of curbing hit the cable, severing the lines, he said.

Luke said the area of Burley south of 15th Street to 16th Street, and homes along Allion and Hansen Avenues, were most seriously affected.

Bannock Bemos criticize Andrus

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — The Bannock County Democratic Central Committee has criticized Idaho's Democratic governor and his two appointees to the Public Utilities Commission for the rising cost of natural gas.

The commission unanimously adopted a resolution Wednesday night requiring Gov. Cecil Andrus and the two commissioners, Robert Lenaghan and Carl Shurtliff, appear at the March meeting to answer questions about rising natural gas costs.

Pocatello firm OKs okay contract

POCATELLO, Idaho (UPI) — Pocatello firm may tentatively approve a new contract for just under 175 per cent increase in salaries and benefits.

The new contract is nearly identical to one rejected two weeks ago by the union. The differences are about one-half of what the union originally sought. One difference is in additional vacation time.

Bear Lake County hit by storm

MONTEPELIER, Idaho (UPI) — A blinding snowstorm dumped 10 inches of new snow on Bear Lake County today and forced closure of all five schools in the county.

Because of the blowing, drifting snow, the Highway Division of the Transportation Department advised motorists to stay off state Highway 36 between Montpelier and Preston.

No inquest planned

CALDWELL, (UPI) — Prosecutor James C. Morfill says he plans no inquest into the death of Arnie Burrell, 17, who hanged himself six months ago in the Canyon County Jail.

"There's no reason to hold one that's been called to my attention," Morfill said.

Burrell died Sunday evening at the Cascade Convalescent Center. A doctor said the cause of death included general deterioration of the brain, infections and malnutrition.

Bando loses arbitration, may be out as A's captain

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley Wednesday won his salary arbitration matter while Sal Bando who may now also lose his job as team captain.

Bando, who had been described by Finley as the worst defensive third baseman in the American League, had sought a salary of $125,000 for the coming season while Finley offered $100,000.

Arbitrator Jacob Seidenberg announced his decision by telephone from his home in Falls Church, Va., while Finley was involved in an arbitration hearing with Ted Kubiak and Ray Fosse. The owner and Bando confronted each other Tuesday in a 2 1/2-hour hearing before Seidenberg.

Seidenberg said that Bando had gambled his prestigious role as team captain when he decided to challenge Finley.

Asked about the captaincy, Finley said, "I don't want to go into that now."

After the hearing Bando, who switched hearing dates with Kubiak so he could keep an out-of-town speaking engagement, said, "I'm just happy it's over with. I was optimistic when I went in and I still am. Whatever happens, happens."

Beyond that, he declined comment.

The outspoken Finley, however, took the opportunity to point out Bando fell in 12 of 14 key categories, including hitting and slugging averages, hits, doubles, home runs, errors, putouts and fielding.

Also noted was that only one regular third baseman in the league made more errors than Bando. "That was Bill Melton of the White Sox coming off the disabled list with a back in-Jury," said Finley.

"These were some of the facts I presented in arguing against a raise for Bando. Now, it's up to the arbitrator to decide."

Meanwhile, Finley disclosed he will have an extra day to gear up for what is expected to be a tense arbitration session with slugger Reggie Jackson in Los Angeles Friday. John before the American Arbitration before the American Arbitration Association Thursday, turned around and signed a contract with the A's. Terms were not disclosed but a team spokesman said the pitcher took a cut in pay. It was learned that Jackson, the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1973, has cut his original $200,000 demand to the neighborhood of $165,000. Finley has upped his offer to $140,000.

Sobers sets record

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Ricky Sobers scored 15-pigtails and added a WCAC-record 15 assists Wednesday night as Nevada-Las Vegas rolled over Pepperdine 123-86.

The win gives the Rebels an 11-1 WCAC mark and a 19-4 overall record. Pepperdine is 5-6 and 14-8.

Sobers' 15 assists also enabled him to establish a WCAC season mark with 74 assists. The Rebels had seven men in double figures.

OWNER Charles Finley won his side of the salary arbitration case against third baseman, Sal Bando Wednesday, putting Bando's captaincy of the team in serious doubt. (UPI Telephoto)

Neumann declares bankruptcy despite $116,000 in salary

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Life has taken an unpleasant turn for Johnny Neumann, the local boy who struck it rich in professional basketball.

Although he earned $116,000 over the last two basketball seasons, his financial future is now in the hands of a federal bankruptcy referee here.

"We just spent too much too fast," the Indiana Pacers star told bankruptcy Judge David Dolen Tuesday.

"What your creditors are going to want to know is how you spent $100,000 and wound up with no assets other than $24,000 in furniture and $1,000 in wearing apparel," Dolen told the 24-year-old former Memphis high school and university of Mississippi basketball star.

"Well, most of my money went for cars," Neumann told the judge. "I always had an awful lot of cars." Neumann, who left Ole Miss at the end of his sophomore year to begin a pro basketball career, said he and his ex-wife, Carolyn, each drove expensive cars.

"We always had two or three," he said. Neumann said the couple owned a Ferrari, a Jaguar and a Thunderbird at one time.

"We changed furniture three or four times," he said. "We had cars. I gave my family money. Carolyn gave her family money, we had a $350-a-month house note."

Dolen asked whether Neumann ever considered saving money toward the day he could no longer play basketball.

"Yes, sir. I did," Neumann replied, "But when I first started making the money, Carolyn and I spent it as fast as we got it."

"I was young, and then we kept getting $20,000 or $30,000 in the hole and had to get advances and borrow," he said. "We never got out of the hole."

Neumann filed for bankruptcy Jan. 20, listing debts of $67,588.92, including a $10,000 federal income tax levy, and assets totaling $24,021 in household goods, $1,000 in clothes and $15,000 in ornaments.

Filer claims title

FILER — The Filer Wildcats dropped Buhl 50-44 in overtime Wednesday night to win the South Central Idaho Conference Jayvee tournament championship.

Buhl forced the game into an overtime in the final 13 seconds but the extra session Dennis Chandler, Rick Davis and Jerry Schaffer came up with points while Buhl managed only a free throw.

Chandler led Filer with 33 points while Chris Bell and Hulse had 13 each for the Indians.

Jerome is getting 12 points from Phelan, dropped Wood River 37-30 in the consolation finals. The Wolverines were led by Uhrig with 14.

Kansas City fires entire scout staff

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Kansas City Chiefs, fulfilling a promise to new head coach Paul Wiggin, wiped out their scouting department Wednesday, releasing head talent scout Tommy O'Boyle and four full-time scouts.

General Manager Jack Steadman said he will begin immediately to make an intensive search for a director of player personnel, who will have more authority than O'Boyle ever did under deceased coach Hank Stram.

The new man, said Steadman, "has got to be given the responsibility to produce and the authority to run his own department, which will include the hiring of his own staff."

O'Boyle, though he had the title of head talent scout, also was an assistant coach and had only "what authority" Stram gave him, which was little.

The four full-time scouts — Lloyd Wells, Doug Myers, Ed Buckley and Max Boydston — also answered directly to Stram.

Stram had run the scouting department for the Chiefs since 1967 when Dan Klotsnerman led the club.

Steadman also said the Chiefs would join a scouting combine, probably Breaux or Galaxy.

Concerning the most recent national football league draft, Steadman said, "I think we did an effective job through the first seven rounds. But from rounds eight through 17, you could see we were getting thin on information by the number of players taken in those rounds that we didn't even have rated."

Joining a scouting combine will be a first for the Chiefs. Something they have never done before. "All the successful teams, with the exception of Oakland, belong to a combine," Steadman said. "A combine will produce stronger information in the lower rounds and that's been a weakness in our program."

The upheaval in the Chiefs' scouting department is the second major change in the organization since the club's disastrous 9-9 season, the first being the Dec. 27 firing of Stram.

In addition to the full-timers released, the reorganization also means the dismissal of 10 to 12 part-time scouts.

Average bookie wants to go 'legit'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A special federal gambling study group was told today that the average bookie trying to dodge the cop on the corner is red hot to operate legally in what was termed "the biggest industry in the country."

Author Kelo Sturgeon, a former race track publicist who is conducting research on a new book on gambling, testified that his research shows that now illegal bookmakers "are almost 100 percent in favor of legalizing sports betting. Simply put, they would love to go legitimate."

"Sturgeon was one of the second-day witnesses testifying before a 15-member congressional commission which is studying the impact of legalized gambling on American life, particularly as far as law enforcement is concerned.

As expected, spokesmen for the major amateur athletic organizations declared their opposition to legalized gambling on team sports, lining up with the commissioners of the four big professional sports — Pete Rozelle (football), Bowie Kuhn (baseball), Walter Kennedy (basketball) and Clarence Campbell (hockey).

Rozelle and Kuhn appeared in person to denounce any moves to sanction gambling at the state or federal level as ruinous to their sports. Kennedy and Campbell were unable to make the Wednesday session but substituted statements opposing any government-sponsored gambling.

Robert C. James, commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference, told the commission as spokesman for the National Collegiate Athletic Conference that his organization is "adamantly opposed to any governmental action (federal or state) which in effect approves gambling on team sports."

James said the NCAA would like to see the federal government crack down tougher on any interstate activities "in pursuit of gambling on any team sporting event."

"The NCAA recommends and will support federal legislation which makes gambling on team sports of any kind illegal," he declared.

Ollan Cassell, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, was also of the witness list to take the same tack.

George E. Killian, executive director of the National Junior College Athletic Association, also testified against legalizing gambling.

Sturgeon told the panel that from his private interviews, he believes that bookies in the New York City area would be willing to pay taxes on their profits if gambling became legal, would work with federal and state officials in working out a "workable and realistic" betting and tax program and would cooperate with law enforcement agencies "in establishing and enforcing rules to govern the day-to-day operations of the gambling business."

Sturgeon said, "The average bookmaker is going to operate regardless of this commission. But he would rather operate your way — legally."

But he cautioned that based on his polling of bettors, the average person won't pay a special tax on a bet, preferring instead to wager secretly with an illegal bookmaker.

"And remember, remember, he said, "Each bookmaker is a small part of a gigantic subculture and business which in my opinion already is the biggest business in the country."

James further argued that government — sponsored gambling would create all-but insurmountable political problems for the NCAA. He also commented: "open and wide-spread wagering on contests is clearly inconsistent with fundamental concepts of amateurism in sports."

Hulman enters ABA

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Anton "Tony" Hulman, for years the key figure in the Indianapolis "500", Wednesday entered the world of professional basketball, becoming a director and investor in the Indiana Pacers.

"Tony Hulman wanted to be a part of the Pacer organization to bring a strong, healthy basketball franchise to Indianapolis," said Pacers president Tom Binford, who doubles as chief steward at Hulman's Indianapolis Motor Speedway, home of the annual 500-mile auto race.

Hulman, owner of the Speedway since the 1940s, becomes the 10th member of the American Basketball Association team's board of directors. Binford and his group of investors recently acquired the franchise, which had been in "financial difficulties with debts reported to be in the area of $1 million."

Binford described Hulman as a "regular investor" and said he would not be the dominant stockholder in the franchise.

"He will play the same role as anyone else," Binford said.

Binford described Hulman's investment as "average," compared with amounts other investors had put into the Pacers.

All eyes watch Miller-Nicklaus rematch in LA open

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — In case anyone hadn't noticed, Dave Stockton open defense of his Glen Campbell Los Angeles Open title today over the Riviera Country Club layout in one of the nation's severest golf tests.

But Stockton, a former University of Southern California star who scored three victories last year, will have to take a back seat to the second chapter of the Jack Nicklaus-Johnny Miller confrontation.

Stockton, 33, of Westlake Village, Calif., blunted the challenge of venerable Sam Snead and John Mahaffey on the final day here a year ago to win with an eight-under-par 276, just one stroke off Ben Hogan's course record at Riviera.

Hogan won the 1948 U.S. Open on this course, a par-71, 6,332-yard layout.

A year ago, Miller rewrote the record book by smashing Nicklaus' single season money record. The 27-year-old Northern California won eight tournaments — two for Nicklaus — and earned $153,021.

In the first six weeks of the 1975 pro golf calendar, Miller is three for five, wiggling at Tucson and Phoenix in Arizona and Palm Springs, Calif. Nicklaus is zero for two.

In their previous head-to-head meeting, Nicklaus and Miller tied for sixth place in the Bing Crosby Pro-Am at Pebble Beach, Calif., last month. They were nine shots behind the winner Gene Littler. "Jack has been on top so long people are beginning to look for someone to beat him," said Miller. "He's been up there, been the best so long, now people are starting to say, 'Maybe, right now, maybe Johnny Miller is better. Right now I might be."

Still a Yank

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy White, who didn't expect to play another game with the Yankees, has signed his 11th contract with New York, the club announced Wednesday.

White was unhappy with his role as a part-time left fielder and designated hitter last year and expressed a desire to be traded. However, the prohibition against another interleague trading period before the start of the new season could keep him in a Yankee uniform for another year.

"Jack has the potential to be better than me. He's stronger and has more experience. But the thing is—that, he's not playing up to his potential right now and I am. That's the difference."

"I like Jack. He has 350 horsepower and he's using only 150."

Snead, 62, and Arnold Palmer will be among the 144 players who are scheduled to tee off over the par-3330 course.

Snead, who scored the first of 84 career tour triumphs in 1936, hasn't won since the 1965 Greensboro Open. Despite his age, the grand old man of the circuit had two second-place finishes.

Nephew J.C. won the Andy Williams San Diego Open last weekend, his fourth career win and first since 1972.

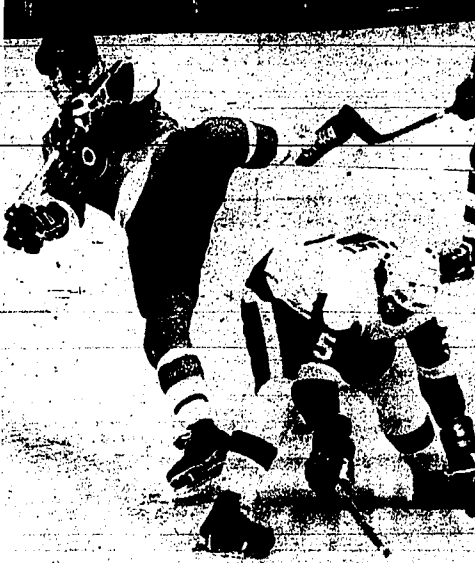

"Uncle Sam was great," said

J.C. after his San Diego win. "So were Palmer and Hogan. And they said the best of all was Nicklaus."

"But I think Miller is better than Jack ever was from tee to green."

At San Diego, Miller wound up in a sixth-place tie for $2,300, plus money compared to the $108,345 he carried in his first four starts of the year.

CSU coach admits berating official

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Colorado State basketball coach Jim Williams said Wednesday he verbally assaulted referee Rudy Marich after CSU's 72-71 win over Air Force Tuesday.

"You're damn right I called him a few names," Williams said. "In fact I called him every name I could think of. I told him exactly what I think of him. But he called me a few, too, so I guess we were about even in that respect."

Marich, of Greeley, Colo., said Williams struck him on the head in the hall outside the officials' dressing room and tried to provoke him into a fight.

The referee said he told Williams, "I respect you, Jim. I wouldn't do it. I couldn't hit an older man."

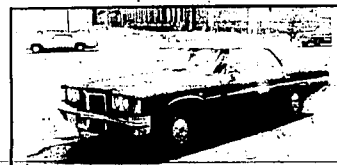

Williams said the fracas resulted from what he termed "inept" calls by Marich several times in the past, including Tuesday's game.

"It was primarily the timing of his calls," the coach said. "And Tuesday's game wasn't the first time. It's happened several times before, particularly in our game at Texas-El Paso last year and I have the game films to prove it."

Williams said he wasn't worried about Marich's threat to take the matter to CSU President Dr. A.R. Chamberlain.

"I haven't heard from Dr. Chamberlain and I don't expect to," Williams said. "My athletic director was at the game as well as several other school officials, and they all saw what went on."

Changing schools led McGurdy to NCAA scoring leadership

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Three years ago as a sophomore Bob McGurdy had a regular position on the University of Virginia basketball team — the bench. By season's end his confidence was nil. His dream of becoming a college basketball star had become a nightmare.

Then that spring the 6-7 forward pulled off the biggest rebound in his career, transferred to the University of Richmond and became a starter last year. This week he became the nation's leading scorer.

McGurdy grabbed the top spot after scoring 164 points in the four games going into Wednesday night's contest at East Carolina to push his average to 32.0, a little more than a point ahead of Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley and North Carolina State's David Thompson.

"If I'm on top at the end of the season fine, but if I'm not it's not the end of the world," he said. "At least I can say at one time I was No. 1."

"Three years ago I had no thoughts of accomplishing this," McGurdy said. "I wasn't playing as much as I thought I should as a sophomore at Virginia and my confidence was shattered. I was ready to resign myself to just being another ballplayer."

"My Dad said I shouldn't cheat myself on accomplishing what I thought I could," McGurdy said, so he transferred to Richmond. McGurdy had to sit out his first year at Richmond, but last season after he became eligible he took over as a member of the starting five. Playing second fiddle to Aran Stewart, McGurdy averaged 17.6 points a game.

This season, McGurdy was expected to share the scoring honors with teammate Eric Gray, but Gray flunked out of school at the end of the first semester — a devastating blow to the Spiders, who are struggling with a 9-13 record — but giving McGurdy the chance to score more points.

His average steadily climbed from just over 20 to his current nation's leading output of 32. He has hit on nearly 55 per cent of his shots from the field and 76 per cent from the foul line.

What's What

L. M. Boyd

That prescription drug most commonly used now nationwide is said to be the tranquilizer called valium. Approximately 14 per cent of the grownups take it, according to a medical statistician. There are those who claim it relieves insomnia and anxiety. And those who claim, too, that sooner or later it fouls up the nervous system in a savage manner.

WHAT, YOU CAN identify that condition called the post prandial dip? It's what prompts the Latins to take a siesta in the early afternoon. That after-lunch slump. Pretty common, isn't it? Yawn.

CLIENT ASKS if there was any time in the country's history when the average family was as small as now. No, never before. Today, it's 2.97 persons. That's down from 3.01 persons 2 year ago.

POOLS The Germans have come up with a way to keep the water in their outdoor swimming pools comfortable even in freezing weather. Not with heaters. They float thousands of little-plastic balls on the surface. They're so small, they don't get in the way of the swimmers at all. But they completely cover the water, insulating it to hold in its heat throughout the season. Nifty.

IT'S A MATTER of historical record that Dr. Sigmund Freud, the world's foremost authority in his day on, voluntarily put an end to his own indulgences in physical romance at about the age of 40.

SPORTS How do you account for the fact that the number of girls teamed up in high school sports has jumped by 175 per cent in the last couple of years?

ANOTHER significant difference between the boys and the girls is why they take chances. Refer to such activities as riding a motorcycle too fast or skiing down rough terrain or shooting dangerous rapids in a canoe. The boy does his thing to show off, prove he's not scared, or just for the fun of it. But the girl needs a practical reason, like money or romance. She may climb a cliff for a price, but rarely just because it's there. Or she may race a stick car, but not probably unless that's what most all impress the object of her affections. Our Love and War man reports these findings came from studies by the National Institute of Mental Health. Also learned in that research, he says, is the fact that when girls take chances for their reasons, they take bigger chances than do boys for their reasons.

Attacks against CIA defended by director

WASHINGTON (UPI)—CIA Director William Colby defended his agency against charges of massive domestic spying today, saying "mistakes were few and far between" and did not justify the heavy attacks by news reporters.

Colby said attacks against the CIA over the last two months "have placed American intelligence in danger."

He said "almost hysterical exuberance" surrounding news stories about CIA spying has "raised questions whether secret intelligence operations can be conducted by the United States."

The CIA director made the CIA's strongest defense yet in testimony prepared for the defense subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

Colby was particularly critical of the New York Times, which on Dec. 22 printed the first story of domestic spying. He said reporter Seymour M. Hersh "mixed and magnified two separate subjects"—legal activities and "those few activities" that may have been illegal.

"The sensational atmosphere surrounding intelligence, however, encourages oversimplification and disproportionate stress on a few mistakes rather than on the high quality of the CIA's basic work," Colby said.

There "has not been occasion when CIA may have exceeded its proper bounds. They were undertaken in the belief that they fell within the agency's charter to collect foreign intelligence to provide the intelligence sources and methods."

"The agency has held and adhered to the principle that its responsibilities lie in the field of foreign intelligence and not domestic intelligence, and any of the (mistakes) were believed to have been related to the intelligence in the field of foreign intelligence," he said.

"Any mistakes by the CIA have been few and far between, have been corrected, and in no way justify the outcry which has been raised against CIA."

Colby called for "sober and responsible legislation by Congress and said he hoped they would be conducted in secrecy so ongoing operations would not be jeopardized."

House organizes panel for probe

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The House has created a special committee dominated by Democrats to investigate all government intelligence agencies, including the CIA.

By a 266-120 vote Wednesday, the Democratic majority ignored pleas for bipartisanship by House minority leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., and appointed seven members of their own party and three Republicans.

Democrats said the formula merely reflects the party division of the House, but Republicans said heavy Democratic control limits the investigation to intelligence operations under the Nixon administration.

"We don't want a stacked deck," Rep. Barlier B. Conable, R-N.Y., said in arguing for a Republican amendment "seeking equal party representation."

Coflan, chairman of the Republican subcommittee, also said the scope of the investigation should include more than just the Nixon administration.

"We obviously feel that you ought to go back for example to the span more than just a Republican administration," said Conable, chairman of the GOP subcommittee.

As a matter of fact, Lyndon Johnson could be a case to study," he said. Conable said CIA Director William Colby had referred to Johnson as a "mistrustful" man in 1967 about foreign power funding domestic activities of black radicals.

Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., said the legislation establishing the committee "grants the most sweeping authority imaginable. No federal agency is beyond its scope."

But Rep. Parron Mitchell, D-Ill., said the committee's powers should be expanded to investigate spying by local police on citizens. He cited news reports that Baltimore police kept political files on black activists and politicians.

Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., head of an existing intelligence subcommittee, was named chairman of the committee, which is the third special committee in recent weeks to investigate the CIA.

The other Democrats are Robert Glavin of Connecticut, Morgan Murphy of Illinois, Don Edwards and Ronald Dellums of California, and Stanford of Ohio and Michael Harrington of Massachusetts. The Republicans are Robert McCarty of Illinois, David Trotter of Louisiana and Robert Kasten of Wisconsin.

Plan eyed to free beached oil barge

WHIDBEY ISLAND NAVAL AIR STATION, Wash. (UPI)—The Coast Guard officials said today a major salvage operation would be required to break loose a barge which heaved to with nearly one million gallons of oil.

A spokesman said it was too soon to know if the barge was leaking any of its cargo of No. 6 diesel oil, but that it was unlikely the barge would break up or break loose on its own.

"A special oil spill strike team will be sent from San Francisco," The Marine Oil Pickup Service, and an investigation team from the Port of Seattle will also be on the way.

A Coast Guard cutter stood by near the beaching, but other ships which had been en route were diverted because they could not approach the shallow area near the barge. Normal shipping traffic was advised to stay away from the area.

The problem started when the tugboat Relief, which was towing the barge loaded with 945,000 gallons of oil, began taking on water Tuesday night. A pump provided by a Coast Guard helicopter was not used, and the tug was not within 45 knots and the tug's crew of seven had been evacuated to the Navy hospital here.

The barge and tug, still secured to each other by a tow line, drifted and heaved together three miles south of here, where "security" guards from Whidbey kept watch.

A Coast Guard oil tanker said he did not know whether the oil would be pumped to a different barge. The barge had been en route from Tappan's Anchorage refinery to Tuxton, Seattle.

Military training programs disclosed

WASHINGTON—The Defense Department reported Wednesday that under contracts worth $72 million, government and private technicians are training military personnel in 24 foreign countries.

The bulk of the training programs are in Iran and Saudi Arabia, both of which turned to the Pentagon for technical assistance as they purchased large amounts of sophisticated American arms in recent years.

Iran has $14 million in contracts with the Pentagon to train military personnel in everything from logistics to flying and maintaining helicopters and supersonic fighter planes. Saudi Arabia has $62 million in contracts, including $77 million contract recently awarded to Vinnell Corporation of Alhambra, Calif., to train four battalions of the Saudi Arabian National Guard.

It was the disclosure of the Vinnell contract, which was originally announced by the Pentagon last month without any mention of Saudi Arabia, that prompted the Defense Department to make the first full public listing of its technical assistance and training contracts with foreign countries.

At the same time, the Defense Department sought to emphasize that the training programs, increasingly conducted by commercial firms under a contract between the foreign government and the Pentagon, were nothing new but part of a pattern set in the early 1950's with the establishment of the military assistance program.

High court reverses decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today reversed the 1969 conviction of a St. Louis man for raping his wife, ruling unanimously that the trial court improperly called the defendant mentally competent to stand trial even after attempted suicide.

The opinion said James E. Drope could be retried after a hearing and psychiatric examinations to determine if he is now mentally competent.

The ruling broke no new constitutional ground, but was unusual because the justices probed deeply into the facts of the trial, whereas they normally examine only questions of law.

Drope was convicted of joining with two other men in raping his wife. Evidence at trial and in pre-trial psychiatric examinations indicated he had some history of mental problems, but he was held competent to stand trial.

Drope's wife initially wanted to drop charges against her husband, but changed her mind only days before his trial when he allegedly threatened to kill her.

On the second day of his trial, Drope shot himself in the abdomen. The trial court ruled his absence was "voluntary" and trial was continued in his absence. He was sentenced to life, and both the Missouri Supreme Court and the state court of appeals upheld his conviction.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger ordered reversal on grounds the Missouri courts gave too little weight to the psychiatric reports, comments from Drope's wife and the suicide, all of which might indicate mental incompetency.

In addition, Burger said it is important for courts to view a defendant's behavior during trial when mental competency is in question, and Drope was hospitalized for most of his trial.

Fishy operation

LONDON (UPI) — A force of 70 detectives and uniformed police converged on London's historic Billingsgate fish market Tuesday to break what police called a $200,000 a year fish-thief racket.

More than 30 fish porters and truck drivers were arrested when police sealed all exits from the market and checked cargoes. Other detectives and police photographers with telephoto cameras carried out a surveillance of trading operations from the steeple of a church nearby.

Tattoo shop popular

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Despite the hard times, an out-of-the-way location and the pain they must endure, customers still flock to Mrs. Audrey Ford's tattoo parlor.

Mrs. Ford's business is sandwiched between a boot shop owned by her husband, James, and a defunct barber shop near the northside's famous stockyards.

"One woman, a beautiful woman, came up from Waco with her husband. She was wearing diamonds and a fur, the softspoken Mrs. Ford said.

"Well, she has 27 rose tattoos and she could put on a bikini and they wouldn't show."

About 20 years ago, her husband tattooed a fake mole on the back of a newborn boy's leg.

"The child was stolen from the mother" at birth by the tanner and she had no other way of identifying him, so when she got him back, she had him tattooed," Mrs. Ford said.

Guerrilla leader set free

CASALE MONTERRATO, Italy (UPI) — A dashing blonde armed with a sub-machine gun and accompanied by three men burst into the Casale Monterato jail Tuesday and freed a guerrilla leader. Renato Curcio in a darwin, commando-style operation, police said Wednesday.

Police said the attractive woman who led the five-minute daylight raid at Casale Monterato may have been Curcio's 30-year-old wife, Margherita.

It was the most spectacular of three jail breaks in as many Italian prisons in 24 hours. Six prisoners — one of them since recaptured — escaped from the Cuneo prison Monday and four from the Regio Emilia jail.

Curcio, a 34-year-old former sociology student, is considered the leader of the "Red Brigades," a self-styled extreme left-wing group that staged several political kidnappings and bombings in recent years.

Prison officials said a woman knocked at the jail door during visiting hours, saying she had a package to deliver to a prisoner. When a guard opened the door, she pointed a sub-machine gun at his stomach, ordering "No one wand or you're dead."

Three men followed her inside and cut the telephone wires.

The group then forced the guard to escort them to the courtyard where they held another five guards at gunpoint. "Renato, come here," the woman called.

"I'm coming, here I am," Curcio replied, emerging from a corridor.

The group left together, locking the guards inside. It was several minutes before a passerby found the keys they had thrown away and handed them to the guards through the cell window.

Police set up roadblocks in the area but found no trace of the group.

They said the fact Curcio apparently was aware of the plan indicated he had an accomplice inside the jail. He received no outside visits during the time he was there.

Curcio and the former Margherita Cagol were married in the Roman Catholic rite at the picturesque Alpine shrine of San Romedo in 1969, before their conversion to Marxism.

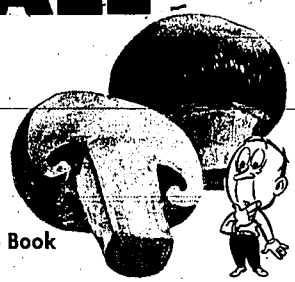

Police arrested Curcio five months ago on a tip from a former Catholic friar and guerrilla who infiltrated the Brigades.
