Oil price boosts now ruled out

VIENNA (UPI) — Oil Ministers from the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries today ruled out immediate oil price increases and production cutbacks and reaffirmed their intent to continue to use the U.S. dollar in calculating the price of oil.

There had been rumors the OPEC might dump the plunging dollar in favor of more stable currencies such as the West German Deutschmark or the Swiss Franc but Iranian Interior Minister Dr. Jamshid Amouzegar of Iran indicated OPEC would not do it.

Hints closure

ANKARA (UPI) — Turkish Foreign Minister Melih Esenbel said Monday the cutoff of American military aid might cause Turkey to shut down U.S. bases in that nation. In addition, he said, Turkey would have to reduce its defenses on NATO's southeastern flank. The 25 American bases in Turkey are used primarily to monitor military movements in the neighboring Soviet Union.

Black Muslim leader dies at 77

CHICAGO (UPI) — Elijah Muhammad, spiritual leader of the Nation of Islam, better known as the Black Muslims, died today at Mercy Hospital after suffering congestive heart failure more than three weeks ago. He was 77.

Idaho Democrats face arraignment

BOISE (UPI) — Arraignment is scheduled tentatively for Wednesday for two Idaho Democrats charged with a misdemeanor of conspiring to obtain credit bureau reports on Rep. George Hanson today during his campaign for Congress. Mel Morgan, a member of the Pocatello City Council and treasurer of the Idaho Democratic Party, and Rose-Marie Bowman, Boise, were named codefendants in the charges filed last week by the U.S. district attorney.

Heads office

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Alice M. Rivlin, an economist at Brookings Institution here, was chosen by House Speaker Carl Albert Monday to head the Congressional Budget Office. Established in 1974, the office is intended to serve as the principal source of Congressional information on the budget and the impact of taxing and spending legislation.

Special presidential vote proposed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Warning that what occurred in 1974 could happen again, Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., today proposed a constitutional amendment requiring a special presidential election when an appointed vice president becomes chief executive.

Pastore said the 25th amendment, under which President Ford and Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller were elected by Congress, denied the people, for the first time, the opportunity to name their two highest political leaders.

Rips policy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ralph Nader said Monday proposal to lift some anti-trust restrictions from the oil industry could lead to "economic disaster" if they persist. Testifying before the Senate Government Operations Committee, Nader said the Ford administration's activities in the energy field show it doesn't believe in the competitive free enterprise system.

Philippine hijackers agree to talk

MANILA (UPI) — Two men armed with a grenade, a pistol and a rifle seized from an air marshal hijacked a Philippine airliner today but released all their hostages in batches in return for an airport meeting with Defense Secretary John Ponce Enrile to discuss their demands.

Mideast peace plan ready

By United Press International Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has drawn up a Middle East peace agreement that provides for Israel withdrawal from two strategic passes and valuable oil fields in the Sinai Desert, an Egyptian newspaper said today. Another Cairo newspaper said Kissinger will arrive in Egypt March 7 to hammer out agreement on the pact.

Burns predicts easier credit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns predicted today a faster expansion of the money supply in coming months — and resulting lower interest rates and increased credit availability.

Burns told the Senate Banking Committee an increase in available money already achieved through the Fed's operations has produced a dramatic decline in short term interest rates and prepared financial conditions for a recovery from the recession.

The money supply is the amount of currency in circulation and money in checking accounts. When it expands, interest rates generally decline and loans for business and home buyers are more obtainable.

"Forces have now been set in motion that will, I believe, soon result in a quicker pace of monetary and credit expansion," Burns said. "Actually, that process may already be underway."

"The Federal Reserve intends to encourage expansion in supplies of money and credit needed to mitigate recessionary forces and encourage early recovery in economic activity."

But Burns warned, "We have not thrown caution to the wind... the menace of inflation is by no means behind us."

Burns objected to a proposed Senate resolution that would direct the Fed to "take appropriate action in the first half of 1975 to increase the money supply at a rate substantially higher than in recent experience." He said such legislation would deny the Fed operational flexibility and raise questions whether the board's "traditional insulation from political pressure will continue, whether resistance to inflation may not further diminish and whether the dollar will remain a respected currency around the world."

The resolution is sponsored by Sens. William Proxmire, D-Wis., Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., and James L. Buckley, R-N.Y.

Not kidding around

BLESSED event in quintuplicate occurred at the John Robinson goat dairy in Rupert Saturday. Mrs. Robinson poses with the five kids born to Felicia, a top milk producing goat. The rare birth of quintuplets is good news for the owners as Felicia's kids are in demand and sell for about $250 each because of her milk records.

Andrus veto nets varied reactions

By BILL LAZARUS
Times-News Capital Bureau

BOISE — In a move to force reconsideration of his $18.2 million public works program, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus vetoed a $2.2 million tax relief measure Monday.

It was the governor's first veto of a major tax relief proposal. The proposal would have granted a 45 percent return on grocery sales tax to taxpayers. Key Republicans did not expect to be able to override Andrus' veto this morning. But their responses to the veto varied.

"It looks like the governor is going to get his way. He's riding the horse," Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert and chairman of the Revenue and Taxation Committee, said. He predicted Andrus would get the bulk of the surplus for public works.

Speaker of the House Allen Larsen, R-Blackfoot, said the legislature now should put out a property tax relief measure and consider early payment of the endowment fund debt. He predicted the legislature would approve a substantial part of Andrus' $10 million roads program but not approve the $8.2 million building public works program.

Rep. Ralph Olmstead, R-Twin Falls and chairman of the House Revenue Projection Committee, said that if January tax return data shows the surplus will be over $3 million more than previously predicted, his committee will open up its surplus revenue projections.

Earlier this month, using December data, Olmstead predicted the surplus would be $5 million to $10 million higher than projected. But today he said that the faltering potato market might cut into much of that.

If the committee does raise its surplus projections, more money will be available for public works and tax relief.

"In his veto message Andrus said the $2.2 million tax relief measure "is not timely."

Court gives suit powers to students

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court ruled 5 to 4 today that school-board members may be sued for damages by a student if they acted officially in violation of his constitutional rights or with malicious intent to injure him.

Justice Byron R. White, speaking for the majority, added the qualification that "a compensatory award will be appropriate only if the school board member has acted with such an impermissible motivation or with such disregard of the student's clearly established constitutional rights that his action cannot reasonably be characterized as being in good faith."

The decision came in a case from Mead, Ark., where two girls were suspended for spiking the punch at a school party in violation of school regulations.

This is the second time in recent weeks that the Court has accorded constitutional rights to students. It said previously that a student may not be suspended without a hearing of some sort, however informal.

In the Arkansas case, Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., a former member of both state and city school boards in Virginia and Richmond, wrote on behalf of the dissenters that school officials "will now act at the peril of some judge or jury subsequently finding that a good-faith belief as to the applicable law was mistaken and hence actionable."

"In view of today's decision," he said, "significantly enhancing the possibility of personal liability, one must wonder whether qualified persons will continue in the desired numbers to volunteer for service in public education."

The case was returned to the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for further consideration of whether the girls had a proper hearing before the school board, a matter the lower court did not take up in its earlier ruling in the case.

The girls, Peggy Strickland and Virginia Crain, admitted driving to Oklahoma, buying two bottles of malt liquor at a beer tavern, combining the contents with a soft drink and water and bringing it to the high school, where it was served at a party sponsored by the Future Homemakers of America.

On questioning by their home economics teacher, Mrs. Gladys Powell, they confessed and the school board eventually suspended them for the rest of the semester.

A school district regulation forbids use of intoxicating liquor at school functions on school premises.

The 8th Circuit Court of Appeals said, among other things, that no evidence established the alcoholic content of the liquor brought to the campus. But White cited the lower court for making an "improvident" judgment, since he said the regulation applies to any alcoholic beverage, not one of a specific alcoholic content.

Demos force depletion vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Democrats voted today to force a floor vote on a proposal to end one of the oil industry's biggest tax breaks, the oil depletion allowance.

The Democratic caucus, after two hours of debate, voted to instruct the House Rules Committee to allow a floor vote on a move to attach the depletion allowance repeal to a pending $2.3 billion tax cut measure.

That bill contains rebates of up to $200 of 1974 taxes.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which drafted the tax bill, voted earlier to ask the Rules Committee to bar any vote on oil depletion. The Ways and Means Committee feared the controversial issue would delay final passage by the tax cut bill.

Boise solons back panel, flay coal fired plants

BOISE (UPI) — Rep. William Onweller, R-Boise, urged the House State Affairs Committee today to prevent Idaho from becoming the "ash can of the Northwest" to supply electrical power to Oregon.

Onweller and Rep. Ron Twiligar, D-Boise, appeared before the committee at a continuation of its hearings on their bill to set up a Power Plant Siting Council under the Public Utilities Commission.

Chairman J. Vard Chaburn, R-Albion, said additional testimony will be heard Thursday. Besides Onweller and Twiligar two other witnesses spoke on the bill — both in opposition to it.

Onweller told the committee he did not think Idaho was in a crunch for additional power. He contended Idaho Power Co. has facilities to serve its service area for at least 10 years.

"That is why, he said, his proposal for a coal-fired power plant near Orchard in southwestern Idaho should receive close scrutiny — such as that proposed in his bill.

Cost of updated hydroelectric power is about seven mills per kilowatt, he said. Cost of nuclear power is about 7.5 mills per kilowatt, and cost of coal-fired electric power is 17 mills per kilowatt.

"After building this plant your electric bills will probably triple," Onweller said.

There is a lot of coal in Wyoming that needs to be used, he said, and there is a need for power in the Willamette Valley trough. He said if Idaho is being asked to burn that coal to provide that power he is opposed to it.

Rep. B.E. Lewis, R-St. Maries, said Onweller sounded like those who opposed the Alaska pipeline four years ago. He recalled they said the oil was not needed at that time.

"We ought to burn the coal in Wyoming or Montana or haul the coal to Oregon but Oregon won't allow it and Montana won't allow it," Onweller said.

"I don't think we ought to become the ash can of the Northwest to provide power in the Willamette Valley trough," he said.

Getting together

NOSE TO NOSE are Assistant Secretary of State Philip A. Habib (left) and Air Force Lt. Gen. H.H. Park, director of Defense Security Assistance Agency, during an appearance before a Senate foreign relations subcommittee Monday. Former Soviet premier, 79, dies in obscurity

MOSCOW (UPI) — Nikolai Bulganin, the country commissar ousted by early Nikita Khrushchev during their two-man Kremlin rule, died in obscurity at the age of 79. It was reported, today.
 The official Tass news agency said Bulganin, who charmed the world with his 19th century manners before his boisterous partner banished him, died Monday after "a serious protracted illness."
 Bulganin, an Old Bolshevik comrade of V.I. Lenin, Leon Brezhnev, and Josef Stalin, lived the last years of his life on a $390-a-month pension in a government-furnished dacha outside Moscow.
 Khrushchev overshadowed Bulganin from the moment the pair emerged as rulers of the Soviet Union in 1955, following the fall of Stalin's successor, Georgi Malenkov.
 The rustic Khrushchev was first secretary of the Communist party and the dapper Bulganin was Premier during their three years of tandem rule.
 The two leaders traveled together around the globe, attending a summit meeting with Western leaders in Geneva in July, 1955, and visiting India, Burma, Afghanistan, Egypt, France and England.
 But Khrushchev, who played the shoe-banging bulgoin in public, worked cunningly behind the scenes to shoulder the aristocratic-looking Bulganin aside and emerge as the strong man.
 Bulganin's death left former Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, "iron commissar" Lazar Kaganovich, economic wizard Anastas Mikoyan and Malenkov as the last of the well-known Old Bolsheviks.
 The beginning of the end for Bulganin came in 1957 when he joined Molotov, Malenkov and most other members of the ruling Politburo in a bid to oust Khrushchev.
 But the wily Communist chief called an unprecedented meeting of the party's central committee, which was packed with his men, and fired the plotters.
 He let Bulganin stay in power until 1959 before banishing the premier to the Caucasus as chairman of a local economic council. Bulganin lost even that post a year later and returned to Moscow as a pensioner.
 Bulganin was seen chatting with Khrushchev at a Kremlin New Year's party in 1964 but then dropped out of sight. Considered an "umperson," he had not been mentioned in the Soviet press in recent years.
 Tass reported Bulganin's death in a brief dispatch from Moscow marked "urgent." The report said simply:
 "Nikolai Bulganin, a former chairman of the Soviet Council of Ministers, died on Monday at the age of 79, following a serious protracted illness."
 Bulganin seemed more a loner than a Bolshevik, more an aristocrat than a commissar. But he was far from a dilettante.
 On his way to the top of the bureaucracy, he knocked on doors at midnight as a secret police agent and served with brilliance as administrator, engineer and political commissar in the army.
 Bulganin was born June 11, 1895, of middle class parents in the city of Nizhni Novgorod (now Gorki). He worked as a clerk in a factory and became a member of the Communist party in his home town on the eve of the revolution.
 He was an official of the Cheka, the first Soviet secret police organization, in his native region before being sent to Moscow for industrial management training.
 He impressed Stalin with his abilities, achieving national prominence in 1934 as a candidate member of the Central Committee of the Communist party.
 He rose through the hierarchy, proving himself as a military administrator during the defense of Moscow in World War II.
 He joined Khrushchev, Molotov, Lavrenty Beria and Malenkov as the most powerful men in the Soviet Union after Stalin's death in 1953.

Rocket victim

SMOKE BILLOWS from DC3 airliner after it was hit during a rocket attack today on Phnom Penh's Pochentong Airport. Thirteen rockets hit the field, where U.S. planes will land in a massive airlift of food and other supplies. Thirty-five planes a day are scheduled to land with supplies. (UPI)

US prepares to launch Cambodia supply flights

SAIGON (UPI) — The United States moved hundreds of truckloads of rice to Saigon airport today for the start of a massive airlift to the besieged Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh.
 Reports from Phnom Penh said 13 rockets slammed into Pochentong airport, where the U.S. planes will have to land, but U.S. officials said the attacks would not stop the 35 planes a day carrying food to the city of two million.
 The morning rocket attacks destroyed a DC3 commercial airliner and wounded four persons. Other rockets hit in the city and the suburbs.
 More than 40 rockets were counted.
 U.S. spokesmen said the airlift will begin Thursday and last 30 days, but it may go longer. Sources said 20,000 tons of rice were being stockpiled at Tan Son Nhut airbase for the airlift.
 First reports from the field today indicated heavy rebel assaults on outposts and perimeter defenses around Phnom Penh.
 Although some officers said they were not sure, one military source said it appeared to be the start of the long-awaited second phase of the Communist offensive.
 The first phase began last New Year's Eve, and has placed Cambodia in danger of falling to Communist control within weeks.
 Only the U.S. airlift of hundreds of tons of ammunition and fuel — and, beginning Thursday, food — has kept the refugee-swollen capital from falling.
 Military sources today said observation pilots spotted rocket launchers at Arye Khsat, a village a mile from downtown Phnom Penh, which would give rebel gunners a dominating position over the city.
 Embassy sources said the U.S. planes would carry enough rice to supply each of the Phnom Penh residents a halfpound of rice a day, a bare subsistence level.
 In Washington, the State Department said the Cambodian government of Prince Norodom Sihanouk will collapse within two months without emergency aid from the United States.
 Phillip Habib, assistant secretary of state for East Asian affairs, called on the Senate Monday to approve President Ford's request for $22 million in emergency aid to Cambodia.
 Habib, a former Vietnam peace negotiator, sketched Cambodia's situation in grim terms: "Military, the situation is more serious than it has ever been since fighting began in 1970," he said.

Hospital remodeling plans approved

By CRICKET BIRD
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — Members of the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital board Monday approved tentative plans for a $300,000 to $400,000 hospital remodeling program.

The plans call for remodeling of the second floor to add 20 patient beds, enclosure of a third-floor sun porch to accommodate offices and treatment rooms, and construction needed to bring the hospital into compliance with governmental safety regulations.

Architects Cline, Small, Haultz, Shaw and Associates, Boise, estimated that remodeling of the second floor, including the addition of three psychiatric detention rooms and enclosure of the sun porch, should cost between $220,000 and $250,000.

Remodeling of pantries on four patient floors would cost between $30-$35,000, architects said. The pantries do not meet health codes now and must be renovated, they said.

The correction of seven basic deficiencies in the health-safety codes would cost about $105-$110,000, and architect fees would add about $25-$30,000.

Architect Allen Quintieri explained the tentative plans to board members at a special meeting Monday night. Trustees gave the plans unanimous approval after a discussion with the hospital's nursing director, some staff physicians and the hospital attorney.

The plans will now be submitted to the state and local Comprehensive Health Planning Agencies, which must approve them before construction begins.

Hospital administrator James Rosenbaum told board members he expects no problems obtaining CHP approval, but has prepared documentation of the hospital's need to present their case.

Plans call for the west end of the second floor to be converted to patient rooms. The area was originally intended for patients, but over the years had been used for office space.

The inhalation therapy department, public relations office, in-service education and auxiliary room, now on the second floor, will all be moved to the newly enclosed, third-floor sun porch.

A four-bed ward on the east end of the third floor will be converted into three separate and specially constructed psychiatric rooms with barred windows and special entryways.

Seven changes will be made to bring the hospital up to code standards for safety.

Architects will install fire doors at all stairs; 2) replace interior view windows with wired glass, 3) provide smoke barrier doors and partitions in the corridors, 4) replace all hollow-core doors along the corridors with solid doors.

They will also 5) install fire doors at other locations, including the boiler room and storage rooms, 6) construct a separate sorting room in the laundry and 7) build a fire extinguisher system in the kitchen range hood.

As another part of the safety improvements, a fire-alarm system will link the hospital directly with the central fire station.

The changes are being made because federal and state laws require them and because the hospital faces the danger of losing its license unless these requirements are eventually met. The program will be funded through already budgeted revenues, including about $200,000 in county tax monies, about $200,000 in revenue sharing funds and from patient fees.

Sheriff wage increase opposed

TWIN FALLS — County commissioners here Monday urged the legislators from this area to oppose a proposed salary increase bill for sheriffs.

County Commissioner William Chancy said the bill would have given a sizable salary increase to all county sheriffs effective July 1, with budgets already having been approved based on the existing wage and with no means of paying the additional amounts. In Twin Falls County, for example, Commission Chairman Merit Leonard said the sheriff's salary would be increased from $10,700 to $17,000 per year. Small counties such as Lincoln and Camas would be increased to $12,000 per year for their sheriff's salaries.

Commissioners said there are no counties where budgets could now cover such increases and especially the smaller counties with low tax bases would have difficulty meeting the requirements of the law.

Other sheriff salaries, based on county assessed valuation and population, include Jerome, increasing to $13,000; Gooding, $12,500; Blaine, $12,500; and Cassia, $13,000.

Chancy said the county is also opposing bills which would affect county governments in ways the majority of commissioners feel would be detrimental. Among these, he said, would be a proposal for hiring county managers, answerable to executive boards.

Another would make certain county elected officials, including the sheriffs, run on a non-partisan ticket.

Chancy said among other things, he feels this would reduce interest in the election of the candidates and deteriorate the quality of the candidates.

Funding sought for playground

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County commissioners here Monday asked for $1,000 to fence a playground at the Twin Falls Labor Center south of town.

Curtis Eaton, member of the local farm labor organization, said the center has playground equipment in storage but needs fencing for a playground so it can be used and a protected play area afforded the young children.

Chairman of the county commission, Merit Leonard, said a request for revenue sharing funds came from the Migrant-Labor Council, last fall in which the council listed some $31,000 in needed recreational facilities and programs for the center.

He said it ranged from tennis courts to playground equipment to skiing. Leonard said the county did not act on the council's request because of the feeding migrant families would not be in the area long enough to use such equipment and because the county did not have an excess in revenue sharing money.

He said the request from the Farm Labor Association is much more reasonable and the county expects to assist to some extent with recreational improvements at the center. Leonard said a decision will be made later on the extent of assistance the county can give.

Lecture series starts Thursday

TWIN FALLS — Parents Without Partners will present the first of a series of lectures on "An Education for Remarriage" at 8 p.m. Thursday. The lecture will be given in the parlor of the First Christian Church. Dr. Fred McCabe, psychologist for the Department of Health and Welfare, will speak on the "Adjustment of a Child to the Parent's Second Marriage."

All members and interested people are invited to attend. Call 734-2487 or 733-9528 for more information.

Aide attends confab

TWIN FALLS — Ann Cover, Twin Falls County commissioner, is in Boise today to attend the governor's conference.

Purpose of the conference, she said, is to discuss Idaho priority programs and needs. Also attending are city, county and community leaders in the area.

City council members from Twin Falls and other communities are attending as is Dr. James Taylor, president of the College of Southern Idaho; City Manager Jean Miller, and City Councilman Paul Oslyn.

Burglars hit TF school

TWIN FALLS — Burglars broke into O'Leary Junior High School building and took only 35 cents in cash, police learned Monday.

City police said the building was entered and keys taken from one of the offices in order to open other offices. A number of pens were taken and some damage caused. School officials listed the total loss at $35.

At Roger Brothers Seed Co., a Bankers Dispatch deposit safe which was left outside was carried away by burglars. The safe was valued at $300 and contents included assorted papers and correspondence.

Officers said the safe, which weighed about 100 pounds, was kept at the outside entrance of the business and used to leave deposits to be picked up and taken to the bank by the firm of Bankers Dispatch.

Jarbidge unit intact

BUHL — A study by the US Forest Service has resulted in plans to leave the Jarbidge district of the Humboldt National Forest intact.

In 1973, a consolidation plan was approved including the Wells and Lamolle ranger districts of the Humboldt National Forest. Plans called for including a portion of the Jarbidge district in the new consolidated unit.

At the request of county commissioners in Elko, Nev., action was delayed until a study could be completed.

Forest Supervisor Vern L. Thompson said the study has now been completed and the Jarbidge area near the Idaho-Nevada border will not be changed. The other two districts, however, will be consolidated into the Ruby Mountains Ranger District.

Rules adopted

(C) New York Times Service
 CHICAGO — The American Bar Association adopted new rules Monday that will help more middle-class Americans obtain and pay for legal services, much as they can now get medical services, by paying regular fees ahead of time under plans similar to Blue Cross.

The ABA did not go nearly as far in changing its rules as some consumer groups had wished, however. It retained some restrictions that could keep the prepayment system from developing as rapidly and broadly as these groups would like.

The association acted under the threat of legal attacks on previously adopted ABA rules of ethics, which have restricted the ways in which lawyers could participate in prepaid legal services programs.

The association revised those previous rules Monday so that the right of lawyers to participate in the type of programs favored by consumer groups and labor unions will now equal the right of lawyers to participate in the often more expensive programs that have been favored by the organized bar.

"It's not a green light," telling lawyers to go ahead and work in such programs, Philip J. Murphy, staff director of the association's special committee on prepaid legal services, said of the rules adopted at the bar's annual midwinter business meeting. But he said, "It turns off the red light" and makes expansion of the prepaid development possible.

WASHINGTON — Carla Hills, 41, nominated by President Ford to be secretary of housing and urban development, says she would rather "forever" than foreclose on those unable to keep up their home mortgage payments.

But, she made clear, it would have to be on a "case-by-case" basis, determining first whether the potential home loser was operating on a not-for-profit basis, or a larger operator.

The mother of four children, aged 1 to 12, who now heads the Justice Department's Civil Division promised Sen. Adlai P. Stevenson (D-Ill.) that she will also give "high priority" to the issuance of regulations, already overdue, that would enable persons living in family huts — but FHA approved — housing to receive reimbursements.

Mrs. Hills, in 2 1/2 hours of answering questions, appeared to make a favorable impression on all but two of the 11 senators attending the Senate Banking and Housing confirmation hearing.

Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.) "welcomed" her with a stiff, critical statement, praising her intelligence and "attractiveness," but saying she had "no record, winning or losing" in housing and other urban problems.

Sen. Joseph Biden Jr. (D-Del.), was critical of her because, in his view, she could give no broad "philosophic" answers on housing policies.

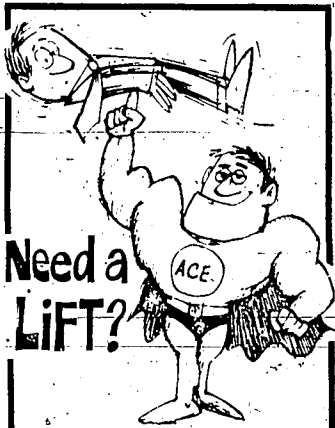

To Proxmire's criticism she pledged to promote housing programs to the best of her ability.

Also under the Wisconsin senator's prodding, she reluctantly acknowledged she favored, dispersal of low and moderate income housing outside the cities. She explained she was loathe to get into a policy discussion on the matter because of pending court cases in which the Justice Department is participating.

She lashed out at Biden, however, when he complained of what in his view was a refusal to be specific in her housing beliefs. He complained her to a nominee for secretary of state who declined to voice an opinion on NATO.

"I don't see any analogy to NATO at all," she retorted.

Panel approves university plan

(BOISE UPI) — Members of the House Education Committee agreed to introduce Monday legislation calling for a statewide university system under one administrative head.

But the committee balked at introducing a proposal to introduce legislation calling for a statewide university system under one administrative head.

The committee also asked a subcommittee to draft some amendments to a concurrent resolution calling for an investigation of policies and decisions of the state Board of Education after Trustee Janet Hay said it would merely "fan the fires of regionalism."

The committee also asked a subcommittee to draft some amendments to a concurrent resolution calling for an investigation of policies and decisions of the state Board of Education after Trustee Janet Hay said it would merely "fan the fires of regionalism."

Rep. Larry Jackson, Boise, asked the committee to consider the bill which would set up an administrative president under the board and "branches" of the university in various parts of the state similar to what is done in California.

Jackson said that in no way did he intend to indicate the board was doing a poor job but that the measure was directed at streamlining the higher education system in Idaho.

In a state with such a small population, Jackson said, the time has come to look for "vertical" rather than "horizontal" development.

Trustee John Swartley, Boise, disagreed with Jackson, saying he felt the proposal would lead to another layer of bureaucracy in higher education.

Mrs. Hay said that an elected board of education would "seriously disrupt governance of the colleges and universities in Idaho."

"It would fan the fires of regionalism," which the legislature over the years and the board have tried to dampen," she said.

"We feel we've come a long way," she added, saying this would be a setback.

Rep. Lyman G. Winchester, R-Kuna, who brought the bill to the committee, moved to introduce it but his motion died for a lack of a second and the bill was in committee.

Mrs. Hay and Swartley both defended recent board actions to the committee and other legislators when Rep. Patricia L. McDermott, D-Boise, asked the committee to report out her resolution for an investigation.

Miss McDermott was especially critical of the board's decision to phase out the architecture program at Idaho State University.

She said this and other decisions and policies need legislative review, preferably before the end of the current session.

"There's too much concern with the myrtle term accreditation and not enough with quality education," Miss McDermott said, adding that the board's decision was unfair to architectural students at ISU.

Conservative party advocates lack leader

WASHINGTON — Several hundred of the country's most devoted conservatives came to Washington a few days ago for a political action conference...
The conservatives' dilemma will be understood by every husband or wife who ever has thought seriously of separation or divorce.

Yes, precisely because they are conservatives, their political instincts are at war with anything so dramatic as divorce...
Let me state my own position clearly and without equivocation: I waffle.

gallantly, even though the cause he lost, for virtue, for principle, and for honor...
Most of the participants in the conference hungered for a call to political arms. Their grievances with the Republican party were palpably painful: Nixon, Watergate, Rockefeller, inflation, recession, deficit spending...

It was not to be. Reagan said everything they wanted to hear — except for the one thing they wanted most to hear.

Perhaps this was all that could have been done, or should have been done: Plainly, the hostile conservative presence was not lost on President Ford.

For the time being, that may be the sensible course, I am far from certain. It seems plausible that 122 years ago, Millard Fillmore was saying to his disgruntled friends: "Stay with the Whigs."

Advocates of a new Republican party leadership then. Advocates of a new conservative party have none today.

Washington Star Syndicate

Citizens, not victims

Once again, but 15 years too late to do any good, the public has learned of a secret experiment performed on humans.

The US government now admits it paid for a research project in which spinal taps were performed on newborn babies without the consent of their parents.

The parents weren't told, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, because the parents could not possibly understand the nature of the research and so probably would refuse to allow the spinal taps.

Earlier the government had admitted it had participated in an experiment in Tuskegee on blacks who had syphilis and were allowed to die slowly so that the experimenters could trace the course of the disease.

There are many cases in which medical experimentation is justified. Such research may be helpful in saving the lives of others.

But dangerous or lethal experiments cannot be kept a secret from its victims.

What is remarkable is that it was the federal government which supported such projects. Most people have encountered situations in which a bureaucrat treats a person as if he were a computer punch card instead of a human being.

The recent disclosures make us wonder what other governmental atrocities have been committed or are being committed today without thought for the victims.

Education, recession

Christian Science Monitor

In higher education as in other fields, bad times can be the best times to invest.

Such reasoning might be behind the increases in applications coming in to some universities at the same time the recession is deepening.

On balance, enrollment at America's colleges and universities still is weaker than campus administrations would like it to be. Cutbacks in federal and state support, lower returns on investment portfolios, higher fuel bills, and inflation generally, have made even slight dips in student enrollment perilous for campus balance sheets.

Enrollment has sagged in recent years, particularly at private colleges, as family incomes were weakened by inflation. At the same time, slumps in the supply of professionals in fields like teaching, law, and journalism have made many youths question whether earning a degree would be followed by finding a job.

Nonetheless, education remains one of the most remunerative long-term investments that individuals or society can make. It would be a loss had to make up in the future for America's educational institutions to be emptied to anything like the degree which recession is emptying out and other factories.

Material products not made now can be produced at a later time, when the economy is in an upswing. Not so with education.

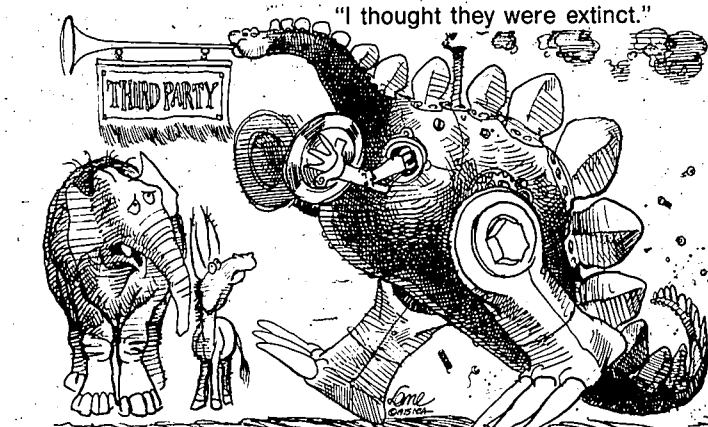

Faculties are not as easily laid off as factory workers. And we are all too familiar with the prospect of millions of individuals who lost out on college training during the "big freeze" of the depression.

Therefore, attempts to offset the recession's down drag on higher education are to be encouraged. Tuitions continue to rise. But colleges like the University of Chicago are offering reductions of up to 20 per cent on summer undergraduate tuitions to encourage enrollment. Other colleges are automatically boosting financial aid to students to offset needed tuition losses.

At the state level, one hopes that the budget parers for public college systems will adequately appraise the long-range value of higher education and not overreact to the current redink threat.

At the federal level, one must commend the closer look which the Ford administration is giving to the implications of its policies for noncommercial institutions — such as how to ease the impact of the oil-importing tariff.

Ultimately, however, the ability of American higher education to emerge from its current straits will depend on how high a priority individual citizens put on it. Thus it is encouraging to see applications for quality colleges increase at the same time that the general recession impulse is to cut back.

'Guarantee' may be most relevant compromise

NEW YORK — The one new thing in the Middle Eastern diplomatic tangle is that Secretary of State Kissinger is back home talking publicly, if vaguely, about an American "guarantee" of Israel's political independence within secure and internationally recognized boundaries.

It has been argued in this space for years that 130 million Arabs would never accept an independent, secure Israel state unless it was clear, both to the Arab states and the Soviet Union, that the United States, for its own and not Israeli reasons, regarded the security of Israel as a vital American interest and would not tolerate its destruction.

Until recently, however, neither the U.S. nor the Israeli government has shown much interest in an American guarantee of Israel's independence and boundaries, for a variety of reasons.

On the Israeli side, the argument was that an American "guarantee," even in treaty form, might limit Israel's freedom of action. Washington would obviously want to be consulted on what action should be taken in a military crisis if it was expected to defend Israel.

Also an American commitment to defend Israel from military attack would probably lead to a Soviet commitment to defend Syria, Egypt and the other Arab states from an Israeli attack, and turn every Arab-Israeli military crisis into a potential military confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

These are clearly serious arguments against a formal U.S. guarantee of Israel's independence and frontiers, but most of the risks exist anyway, and this is the dilemma. It is hard to imagine the Arab states reconciling themselves to the permanent existence of a secure Israel, or Israel persuading itself to withdraw to its 1967 borders, unless both the Arabs and the Israelis knew these borders would be defended by the United States.

As things now stand everything is imprecise because no nation has any assurance of anything. The Israelis are utterly dependent on money and arms from the United States. The Arabs are in the same position with the Soviet Union. They can make war, but not for long without supplies from Moscow.

The United States and the Soviet Union are equally suspicious of one another. Even Kissinger's strenuous efforts to find a way out of all these problems have become a major source of controversy. His style, tactics and prominence are now discussed more in Washington than his policies and objectives.

Now that he's back, he is trying to bring the question down from procedure to substance. He has travelled 16,000 miles to 11 countries in 10 days, reporting to the European allies, and finally to the President and the leaders of Congress.

Within a month, he will have to go back to the Middle East with the proposals of the U.S. government for a compromise settlement. Meanwhile, he is being told by the Russians and by the Israelis he should go to a Middle East conference in Geneva, even before he has an agreement about what should be settled there.

Kissinger is now saying that this is not sensible but probably inevitable.

But still he is searching for some way out of his troubles, and, in the process, he has ordered a study of an American guarantee of Israel's independence and security in return for an Israeli withdrawal to its 1967 borders.

In the next few weeks, before he has to go back to the Middle East, he will be trying to define what such an American "guarantee" to Israel would be, whether it would be acceptable to the Senate as a treaty, and what the reaction to such a guarantee would be in Moscow, the Arab world, and Europe.

In short, he is trying to find some way to break the diplomatic conflict between Israel and the Arabs, and to bring Washington and Moscow to a point of decision in the Middle East. And the idea of an American "guarantee" of Israel's security, seems now to be the most relevant, if difficult, compromise.

Cairo dreads new war with Israel

That would reflect a military fact of life. It would also pose a horrible dilemma for President Anwar Sadat: combat Arab world fury by staying out, or watch his army be destroyed by getting in.

Sadat has been engaged for months in signaling both Israel and his Arab brethren that cannot become engaged in a new war with Israel. That renunciation has antagonized some younger and middle-level army officers, who recall the glorious days of the first stage of the October war — before Israel received huge American replenishments and rolled across the canal at Suez City to see the road to Cairo open.

But Sadat's senior commanders and his war minister, Abdel Canal El-Gamassi, agree with Sadat that without Soviet replacements for the arms lost in 1973 the Egyptian army is simply incapable of offensive action. For them, discretion is by far the better part of valor.

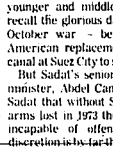

The more important proof of Sadat's no-war policy is the vast investment he is now making to rebuild his canal cities. Each dollar Sadat spends — in Port Taufik, reduced to rubble by Israel, in Suez City, partially destroyed in the 1973 war, in Ismailia, in Kantara West and in the wreckage of other canal towns — is a visible and costly hostage to Israel.

Beyond that, this largest, most important Arab state, lacking "neighbors" of wealth is impoverished, short of basic commodities and forced to pay extravagantly for fertilizer (up $175 a ton, or fourfold higher than a year ago). Supplies for rebuilding the canal cities never arrive on time, and won't open for business at least until summer. In Suez City, far example, Day after day, the population rises ominously, doubling the mouths to feed and jobs to find every 25 years.

Yet even though Sadat is trying hard, the Arab-Israeli struggle is still frozen in the out-moded dialogue of war and confrontation. It is constricted by pan-Arab politics here and by domestic politics in Israel from turning to the new page opened by Kissinger. The surface debate boils around the Milla and Gidda passes, which are symbols of a departed era, and ignores except by in direction the hopeful prospect that could lie ahead.

Thought for the day

Thomas Fuller, English clergyman, said, "If you have knowledge, let others light their candles at it."

Berry's World

"Thanks to the energy shortage, our waterbed is frozen solid!"

Monopoly by '75 economic conditions: Wow!

WASHINGTON — The family was playing Monopoly the other night.

In the middle of the game, to make it more exciting, I suggested we update the rules according to 1975 economic conditions.

No one was sure this was a good idea until I, as banker, offered to give each player an extra $200 to encourage them to spend more money on their properties.

They thought this was great. But then I said, "In order to pay for this I will have to charge you all double if you land on the electric company or the waterworks which I happen to own."

There were screams of protest from everyone. "What good is the $200 if we have to give it back to you for electricity and water?" My daughter wanted to know.

"That's true," said my wife, "if you own Park Place or Boardwalk. But I own Baltic and Mediterranean avenues. If I have to pay you double when I land on the electric company or the waterworks I'll be wiped out."

"You can always sell your property," I pointed out.

"Against whom?" he asked.

"Well, there are 1975 rules," I said. "And anyone who implicates someone else in a crime does not have to stay in jail."

"Okay," my son said. "Connie gave me a hundred dollars under the table so I would sell her North Carolina Avenue and she would have a monopoly on that property."

everyone could afford everything on the board. Now let's start playing.

My son landed on Go to Jail. He didn't have the $200 to get out so I suggested he turn state's evidence.

"Against whom?" he asked.

"Well, there are 1975 rules," I said. "And anyone who implicates someone else in a crime does not have to stay in jail."

"Okay," my son said. "Connie gave me a hundred dollars under the table so I would sell her North Carolina Avenue and she would have a monopoly on that property."

move her shoe taken to Indiana Avenue which I owned. It had a hotel on it. "With the surcharge of 50 per cent," I announced, "you owe me $1,275 rent."

"I don't have it," she said.

"Well, there are 1975 rules," I said. "And anyone who implicates someone else in a crime does not have to stay in jail."

"Okay," my son said. "Connie gave me a hundred dollars under the table so I would sell her North Carolina Avenue and she would have a monopoly on that property."

My wife, who had lost all her property and had $7 left, said in disgust, "It figures."

Andrus gains upper hand

He suggested that after funding highway construction, public building projects and supplemental appropriations the legislature should consider other forms of tax relief.

Last year, Andrus said, the legislature granted $6 million in property tax relief by reducing the mill levy for schools. Without similar relief, this tax would rise again, he said.

The governor predicted that not meeting the highway and building construction projects now would mean "inevitable tax increases in coming years" given the rapidly rising costs of construction.

The vetoed tax relief measure had passed the House on a 35-32 vote and the Senate on a 29-6 vote.

Andrus said the veto might delay the session four or five days, but added, "I don't see that big a problem because I think a lot of us were expecting it."

He predicted the legislature would grant $6 million to $7 million in property tax relief. But other possibilities for relief are still undetermined, he said.

"I was very disappointed. With the size of the surplus being what it is, it's my belief that the people are entitled to have tax relief," Olmstead said.

He said the legislature might use the surplus to prepay the $7 million endowment fund debt, and $6 million property tax relief.

"There is no room to take care of a large part of the highway need... but it just doesn't go as far as the governor would like it to go," he said.

Larsen said the veto surprised him.

He predicted the legislature would grant property tax relief, payment of endowment fund debts and money for improvement of highways as well as funds to match federal grant money.

But Larsen also expressed some reservations about predictions. "It's too fluid now. I can't tell," he said.

Senate panel's GOP majority pushes salary bill to floor

BOISE (UPI) — Despite a plea that revenue projects be recycled before acting on a Republican resolution for state employees salaries, the GOP majority on the Senate State Affairs Committee voted Monday to send the House-passed measure to the floor.

The vote was 6-1 to send it out for action after Republicans beat down a motion by Senate Minority Leader Cy Chase, D-St. Maries, that it be held until "we can take another look at the revenue."

Chase said state employees should receive a fair and equitable salary and if not he could support a public employees bargaining bill.

During the hour-long discussion, there appeared that at least one Republican may be having a change of heart.

Senate Assistant Majority Leader Dick Smith, R-Rexburg, asked what it would do to boost the pay raises from the 3.5 per cent contained in the resolution up to 5 per cent.

Sen. Dick High, R-Twin Falls, said the House Finance-Appropriations Committee, said it would mean spending about $1.2 million more.

Senate Majority Leader Phil Batt, R-Weiser, noted that this would still leave the legislature some $6 million short in setting the budgets for fiscal year 1976. High agreed.

At the opening of the discussion over salaries, William Roden of the Idaho State Employees Association told the committee that the 3.5 per cent wouldn't even allow the employees buy a "lunch and it's just that simple."

"They need more than the 57 cents a day pay increase you are giving," Roden said.

Chase said state employees in other states were trying to unionize and "you are asking for problems by holding down this figure."

High said the only reason the figures were being considered was that "we're this short of money and when you're short you have to go someplace else to get it."

Gov. Cecil D. Andrus has recommended a 7.5-per cent increase for the state employees.

Lyman fund bill alive

BOISE (UPI) — Accusing the State Board of Education of a "monumental blunder," the house killed 18-3 Monday and later revived for amendment a bill to appropriate another $56,400 for the Rufus Lyman case.

Lyman was the featured biography professor hired at Idaho State University who was fired by the board without a hearing and who was reinstatement and some $40,500 in back pay through the courts.

Cost of this case — including the back pay — the House was told more than $150,000.

This measure, which included the money for back pay, was for a supplemental appropriation to settle the balance of the costs in the case. Legal expenses to one firm alone, the House was told, totaled more than $60,000.

Rep. Angus Condie, R-Preston, said the board "was not a fair arbiter" in its judgment and that "we have the obligation to back them up in their action."

"This will be a vote of confidence in our state board of education," Condie said.

Case law queried

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho attorney general said Monday the legislature should not rely on prior case law in deciding the fate of legislation for local option taxation.

House Speaker Allan F. Larsen asked the attorney general if a legislative enactment which authorizes local option taxation in Idaho would be constitutionally valid.

In his reply Wayne Kidwell said a similar issue scrutinized by the Idaho supreme court in State vs. Nelson was resolved in the negative.

"The legality of local option taxation legislation is therefore suspect," the opinion said. "However, enactment of such legislation should not be deterred by reliance upon case law as State vs. Nelson appears to have been decided upon what is arguably an erroneous analysis."

Kidwell pointed out that the ultimate decision on "constitutional validity will remain with the state supreme court."

The analysis prepared by Christopher D. Troy of Kidwell's staff said the legislature under the Idaho Constitution is prohibited from imposing taxes for the purposes of local governments though it may invest in them certain powers of taxation through enabling legislation.

"The purpose of this constitutional limitation is to allow local communities to establish such taxes, otherwise authorized by the legislature, as they themselves determine through their governing officials," he said.

Bryce said the Nelson court decision invalidated a legislative enactment which authorized municipal corporations to raise revenue by levying and collecting certain license taxes.

Senate approves libel law move

BOISE (UPI) — Wanting more responsible reporting by the broadcast and news media, the Idaho Senate voted 19-14 Monday in favor of a bill to repeal the state's law dealing with recovery for libel or slander.

Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, said the bill was prompted because of a remark that was printed in a Magic Valley newspaper concerning a doctor in the area.

Barker said the remark was untrue and later was retracted but not before the doctor's reputation was probably injured. He said the doctor probably will have to leave the community where he practices.

Sen. James Risch, R-Boise, called it "one of the worse laws we have in Idaho." He said that the law promotes irresponsible reporting.

"All this bill does is ask that the truth be reported and that's what we want," Risch said.

But Sen. Robert Suvick, D-Barley, operator of a radio station, said, "this type of legislation tries more to put a damage on the free expression of the media."

Sen. Phil Batt, R-Weiser, said "to get the facts straight would be of benefit to the community."

Both Sens. Stan Kress, D-Fruit, and Richard Egbert, D-Tetonai, urged that the bill be held so it could be more thoroughly studied.

Sunday liquor sale bill changes due

BOISE (UPI) — By a vote of 10-6 the House State Affairs Committee sent to the committee of the whole for technical amendments today a bill which would permit Sunday liquor sales in Idaho.

At present, such sales can be made only at bona fide conventions to persons actually attending those meetings.

Rep. Gary Ingram, R-Coeur d'Alene, moved to consider the bill in committee. Chairman J. Ward Chaborn, R-Abion, had declined earlier to put the measure before his committee for consideration.

Ingram said that in the Coeur d'Alene Mining District of northern Idaho there are a lot of miners who come out of the mines on Sunday morning after working in 120-degree temperatures who would like to have a little snort. "He said the miners."

"It's wrong in the first instance to regulate the sale of liquor on Sunday," he said.

He added that Northern Idaho has a large resort industry and that a lot of fine eating places are not open on Sunday because they cannot sell liquor by the drink.

"It is time we came out of the dark ages in Idaho," Ingram said.

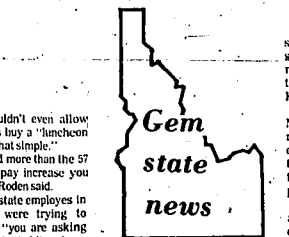

But Rep. John Reardon, R-Boise, said if people want to drink on Sunday they should buy a bottle at the state liquor store and take it home with them. He said he owns a resort but that he has not tried to get a liquor license for it.

"I still contend some things are more important than making a buck on Sunday," Reardon said.

Rep. B.E. Lewis, R-St. Maries, said Idaho's drinking laws are inconsistent — that they allow beer and wine sales on Sunday but not liquor.

"This inconsistency in our liquor laws is a disgrace," Lewis said.

Initiative rejected

BOISE (UPI) — A constitutional proposal to allow submission of initiative measures to the people every two years was rejected by the House 10-9 Monday.

Rep. Norma Dohler, D-Moreau, offered the amendment to the house — pointing out that is what the framers of the constitution intended when they set up the initiative provision.

At present, to win approval, initiative measure must obtain a majority of the aggregate vote cast for governor in the same general election.

When the constitution was adopted a former served only a two-year term. Now he serves a four-year term.

Mrs. Dohler's amendment would have allowed initiatives to be presented in "off-year" elections and approved by a simple majority vote.

Rep. Ralph Wheeler, R-American Falls, said the proposal would allow some groups to put a "gimmick type" label on the initiative and con the public into passing it.

Transfer OK

BOISE (UPI) — Ada County would have a new soil conservation center under the bill approved Monday by the Senate.

The bill was adopted 18-16 and now goes to the House. It allows use of liquor funds which previously went to the auditorium district to be used for the performing arts center.

Floor sponsor Sen. Edith Miller Klein, R-Boise, said the center would be a stimulus to the business activities of the area.

Probe funds OK'd

BOISE (UPI) — After a series of parliamentary maneuvers to delay or kill the bill the House approved 44-22 Monday a measure appropriating funds to investigate the need for acceptable electrical generating plants.

This measure would set aside $100,000 for such studies through the fiscal year ending June 30, 1977. Of the total $32, 100,000 would come from the Public Utilities Commission fund.

In addition the bill also makes a $50,000 supplemental appropriation to the PUC for the current fiscal year.

UP lays off 65 employees

POGATELLO (UPI) — The Union Pacific Railroad announced Monday it will lay off another 65 Pocatello employees Wednesday.

C. N. Backwell, director of public information for the railroad, said the layoff will bring to a total of 249 the workers the railroad has put off work in the past three months.

This is the third layoff in as many months. In December 17 men were laid off and in January 167 were laid off.

Most of the workers on the list for Wednesday work in the car repair department. Backwell said the layoffs are being caused by a general slowdown in the national economy.

National energy proposal drafted by House Demos

NEW YORK (UPI) — Democrats in the House have drafted a national energy plan calling for a 20-cent per gallon tax on gasoline and a cut to 1 million barrels a day of foreign oil imports by 1977, according to The New York Times.

The federal tax on gasoline is now 4 cents a gallon.

Majority leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said the plan also included a rebate paid to each household for necessary driving. O'Neill listed these key proposals in the Democrats' plan:

- The tax on gasoline would be increased by 8 cents a gallon this year and by 4 more cents in each of the next two years, for a total increase of 16 cents a gallon.
- There would be a quota on oil imports, and the quota would be reduced each year until 1977, when the nation would be importing 1 million barrels a day less than it is now.
- Oil importing nations would have to submit secret bids if they wanted to sell oil to the United States.
- There would be taxes paid or rebates given to new car buyers, presumably depending on whether the car used excessive amounts of gasoline.
- The plan has some similarities to President Ford's proposals.

Shareholder files suit

LOS ANGELES — A shareholder in the Phillips Petroleum Company filed a class-action suit in Federal District Court here Monday against the company, eight of its top officers and three of its former chairmen in connection with the company's illegal corporate contribution of $100,000 to the Nixon re-election campaign in 1972.

The suit seeks removal of at least two directors, including the current chairman and general counsel, court supervision of new proxy materials for the company's next annual meeting, and appointment of a special master, "to—direct—an investigation into the company's fraudulent and illegal activities."

Ford concerned by Congress delay

WASHINGTON — President Ford assailed Congress Monday for not moving faster in passing a tax cut to stimulate the economy.

In two briefings with reporters, Ford's press secretary, Ron Nessen, quoted the President as saying it was "unconscionable" and "tragic" that Congress had not approved a tax cut "to get the nation out of the recession."

Ford met for more than an hour Monday afternoon with his top economic and energy advisers to review, among other things, the $21.3 billion tax cut bill approved last week by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Although White House economic officials have said that the committee's tax cut measure was basically acceptable to the President, with some reservations, Nessen insisted that Ford and his advisers had not passed judgment on the bill.

Ford plans to fly to Hollywood, Fla., Tuesday for another round of meetings to try to win support for his economic and energy proposals, and the apparent White House strategy for the moment is to depict the heavy Democratic majorities in Congress as lagging in developing their own programs as alternatives to what the President proposed last month.

Food safety rules cause clash

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration and Ralph Nader's health researchers disagree over how safe the nation's food supply should be, especially regarding two widely used items — peanut products and evaporated milk.

Last December the FDA, saying it will never be able to remove certain contaminants, established tolerance levels for a suspected cancer-causing mold contaminant in peanut products, including peanut butter, and for lead in evaporated milk.

At that time the agency said it felt there was an adequate margin of safety and, in any case, it was technically impossible for industry to eliminate them.

But Monday Nader's Health Research Group told the FDA the levels it established pose a "grave threat to health" and amount to a go-ahead to industry to allow contaminants in food whereas in the past, without knowing the approved level, the food makers might have had the incentive to eliminate the problem completely.

An FDA spokesman said today the agency has not changed its position since last December, when commissioner Alexander Schmidt said the regulations not only allowed for consumer safety, but also prevented a possible outright ban on low-cost protein sources such as peanuts because the law was too rigid.

Sidney Wolfe, director of the group financed by Nader's Public Citizen Inc., said the proposed lead level in evaporated milk is "2½ times higher than current averages in the industry and could make many children ingest health threatening amounts of lead."

He said the lead, which enters the milk from the scaler used on the seams of the can, is an added problem because studies show that canned fruit juices intended for children also contain "massive amounts of lead." Combining the two sources, he said, could result in lead poisoning.

"The two specific tolerances we have examined put the FDA stamp of approval on two added substances—one a food additive and the other a natural contaminant—which are both health threatening and clearly avoidable, surely, an affront of what is to come," Wolfe said.

The Nader group said the peanut problem couldn't be corrected by the industry, although it admitted no tolerance level for the naturally occurring mold could force some lots of peanuts off the market.

Senate power struggle slows Penn Central aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate power struggle threatened today to block financial relief for the Penn Central, but emergency funds from the government will allow the bankrupt railroad to operate until the end of the week.

A $47 million authorization for grants and loans to Penn Central and the Erie Lackawanna has become the victim of efforts to change the Senate's anti-filibuster rule.

Senate reformers and their opponents blamed each other for the delay in passing the Penn Central bill. Neither side, however, yielded.

Penn Central, unable to meet its payroll, received swift help from the Department of Transportation.

On Monday the railroad received $2.5 million in grants and $5 million in advances for freight charges and other federal payments which would have been made in a few weeks.

Today, Penn Central will receive another $18 million through purchase of the its maintenance-of-way equipment. The money would come from funds already set aside to rehabilitate and maintain the railroad when a new government-planned agency begins operating bankrupt Northeast rail lines.

Penn Central trustees said they believe the money will help them to operate through the week.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., filed a petition under which the Senate will vote Wednesday whether to force a vote on the Penn Central bill. The Hartke motion, however, requires a two-thirds majority to carry.

Hartke told the Senate that if Penn Central is to cease operations, it would "threaten the foundation of our economy."

He said General Motors would close in two days, steel mills would shut down for a week and unemployment would rocket to 25 percent in 30 days.

Senate reformers, stymied last week by a legislative logjam, tried again to ease the anti-filibuster rule following the present two-thirds needed to cut off debate to three-fifths.

The reformers made some strides but were once again stymied.

In the process they voted two key precedents, that the Senate can change its rules at the start of a Congress by majority vote, and that debate on a budget change can be terminated by majority vote.

They were stopped short of their goal when Sen. James Allen, D-Ala., maneuvered to get the floor, refused to yield, and prevented a vote.

Petty leads cup race

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Victory in Sunday's Rich-Allen 500 pushed reigning Grand National champion Richard Petty into the Winston Cup point lead for the first time this season.

The five-time Winston Cup titleholder from Randleman, N.C., started on the pole with his Dodge and cruised to a convincing victory over Lenny Pond and Daytona 500 winner Benny Parsons.

After three Cup events, Petty has 467 points and $43,400 in winnings. Parsons is second in the Cup standings with 411 points, but the Ellettsville, N.C., Chevrolet driver tops the money list with $44,910.

Steady Cecil Gordon moved up to third place with 429 points, just ahead of Dave Marcis (425) and James Hylton (405).

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when a man is caught exposing himself in public, he is charged with indecent exposure, locked up, and they call him an "exhibitionist"? Then in his defense, they say that "exhibitionism" is an illness, characterized by an uncontrollable urge to expose oneself, and that the man who does it needs treatment, not punishment.

But when a woman exhibits her body in topless (and bottomless) bars, or dances practically naked on the stage, every man in the place gawks, gets his eyes full, and says: "Look, that sexy Abby. Isn't her exhibitionism" an illness, too? And shouldn't she be treated for a compulsion to expose herself in public?

ONE MAN'S VIEW

He's called 'exhibitionist'

DEAR VIEW: Not necessarily. "Exhibitionism" in the medical-legal sense applies only to males who display their genitals in public. (Such men are usually impotent and insecure in their masculinity and behave in this manner in order to compensate for it.) Women who work in topless bars and dance practically naked on the stage do so because they are proud of their bodies and enjoy the applause—and the money.

DEAR ABBY: When I come home after work, I don't expect an elaborate meal, but I do expect to eat. The other evening, my wife put two hot dogs and some potato chips on a plate. That was all. She called it "dinner." This has happened before and I told her that this was not my idea of a meal. Is it yours?

UNDERFERD IN CONN.

DEAR UNDERFERD: No. Tell her again. But next time, be more specific. Tell her what your idea of a meal is.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is most unusual. My in-laws love me too much! They are constantly telling me how much they prefer me to Kate, my husband's first wife.

My husband rarely mentions Kate, but from what little he has said about her, I know that she was very difficult to get along with. I suspect she had some serious emotional problems that she couldn't deal with. I am not defending her, but I don't like the way my in-laws preface every story with: "I know you don't like to hear about Kate, but..." and then go ahead and talk about her until I want to scream.

I've spoken to my husband about this and he says it's just their way of telling me how much they appreciate having me in the family.

Have you any ideas on how to solve this?

TOO MUCH LOVE

DEAR TOO MUCH: Yes. The next time someone says: "I know you don't like to hear about Kate..." jump in with: "You do! Then, please don't tell me about her, and by the way, do you like the rain but the rain isn't the rain?" Repeat this every time they mention Kate, and soon your problem will be solved.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please. A Lovelier You—SPRING REDUCING—HIPS

By Mary Sue Miller

A Lovely writes: As a result of dieting, my weight is nearly normal. Not so my hips measurement! Pads of flesh remain on the sides of the upper hips. I have not found a dress or girdle that helps the situation. Please advise.

The Answer: Losing excess pounds is seldom the end-all of figure control. Once firmly entrenched, flesh on the hips is resistive to a drop in weight. That is why this column continually stresses the need for a combination of spot reducing exercises and a diet regimen in figure improvement programs. The following routines cut down high-hip padding while you diet or thereafter:

1. Stand erect with feet together and hands clasped overhead. Bend to left as far as possible; keeping arms straight and fully stretched, quickly move them in small circles front to back. Continue for half-minute and repeat to right. Work for increased upward pull in the high-hip muscles.

2. Lie on the floor, back-down; extend arms to sides at shoulder level and raise legs straight up and together. By swinging legs in large circles across body in both directions, repeatedly roll weight across upper hips. One minute. Work for a solid, even roll.

Performing both exercises, try to increase speed of motion little by little. But remember, precision is more desirable than speed.

HIP REDUCING ROUTINES

You can diet until you become feather-light and still be hip-heavy. Attention to the hips is assured only by exercise. For a set of simple and effective ones, send for my book, HIP REDUCING ROUTINES. Write Mary Sue Miller in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in postage.

Couple exchanges promises

TWIN FALLS — Sherri Seamons and Ricki DeVog Long were married Feb. 7 at the home of the bride's mother in Orem, Utah.

John G. Lam, Jr., LDS Bishop, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mary Louise Seamons, Orem, Utah, and Olen Seamons, Twin Falls. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wesley R. Long, Orem, Utah.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown and veil. The dress, of white-slipper satin, was styled with long pointed sleeves fastened with tiny buttons and a sweetheart neckline. The dress had a fitted waistline with sculptured inserts and the long flared skirt fell to a chapel train.

Her lace-edged veil was held by a sweetheart crown with inserts of pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white chrysanthemums centered with a blue orchid and tied with white ribbons.

Debra Ann Seamons, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Brenda Conder, Orem, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Tonia and Pamela Long, both Orem, sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. The bride and groom were best man. Orem, was Andy Liddford. Orem, was best man. Orem, were Drew, Valene, Randy and Gary Long, all brothers of the bridegroom, and Jerry and Randy Seamons, brothers of the bride.

Brandon Conder, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer. The couple was honored at a dinner after the wedding at the home of the bride's mother.

The three-tiered cake was decorated with blue (lined) chrysanthemums and ribbon streamers attached to small flanking cakes with the names of the couple on them.

Tables were covered with white cloths. Blue chrysanthemums in brassy snifters were used as centerpieces. Assisting with the reception were Louise F. Seely, Jerry, mother of the bride, and grand and Randy Seamons, brothers of the bride.

The couple was also honored at an open house Feb. 8, given by the bridegroom's family at the Orem Sixth Ward Church. The rooms were decorated in blue and white.

Now take a look at the East hand. Your partner who has over called with one heart opens the king against five clubs. What card should you play?

The answer is that you should play the eight and ask partner to continue. He would continue in any event, but when you follow your eight spot play with the deuce he will lead a third heart. Dummy will have to ruff and you will score your king of trumps later.

Declining sales cause cutback

TWIN FALLS — Kellwood Co. reported a loss of $450,000 — which has led to cutbacks at its Twin Falls hosiery plant — for the quarter ending Jan. 31.

According to company chairman and president Fred W. Wenzel, the St. Louis, Mo., based company lost 13 cents a share on its declining sales of $77,585,000 for the three months ending Jan. 31.

For the same period last year, Kellwood earned $1,391,000 or 42 cents a share on sales of $85,000,000.

"Any immediate effect" of the loss is "already underway," company public relations man Paul G. Rafferty said Tuesday in St. Louis. "It's not going to cause a radical change in any of our operations," he said.

He said he had no information on individual plants but that the local factory had "already made any adjustments" to go along with the loss. Kellwood vice president Robert McKinley said Friday that an undisclosed number of employees would be temporarily laid off for a week for the second time this year for inventory reduction.

Rafferty said that the company was waiting to see what the economy would do to demand for Kellwood products. He said it was the first time the company had had a loss since it opened for business in 1961.

Wenzel blamed losses on "generally poor retail business," saying that "consumer resistance" had added to the loss, as did the fact that most of Kellwood's plants throughout the country are operating on "substantially reduced schedules." The reduced schedules, Wenzel said, helped the company "avoid building excess inventories."

Blaine aides condemn two Idaho amendments

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Blaine County commissioners Monday condemned two amendments before the state legislature now which they say will take away local county rights.

Commissioners Ivan Gustafson and Ray Sweet have written to house representative E. V. McLean expressing their disapproval of an amendment which would allow the legislature to set minimum sheriff and prosecuting attorney salaries.

Senate Bill 119 would provide for a minimum salary schedule for each county sheriff, based upon the population and authority of each county. The commissioners could voluntarily exceed the minimum salary under the amendment.

Blaine County Sheriff Orville Drexler is receiving about $11,000 per year, according to commissioner Gustafson. Under the new amendment, he would receive $12,500.

"This is taking the sheriff's salary out of local control," the commissioners wrote. "This would start a similar procedure for all elected county officials."

"It is impossible for a state legislature to know local conditions of all counties and the decision should remain in the hands of the locally elected county commissioners," commissioners wrote.

Drexler said he supported the amendment. He said the increased salary would insure more professional people in the sheriff's position.

A like move by the legislature to set prosecuting attorney salaries was blasted by the commissioners. The $7,500 a year part-time job has grown in Blaine County to huge proportions, according to Gustafson and Prosecutor Thomas Campton.

"I have no time for a private practice," Campton said. "Generally I spend 10 hours a day on criminal and county civil matters."

"None of this money comes out of the state's pocket," he said. "The structure is silly. First the county sets a budget and then they must go to the state legislature to ask them to let us do what we want to do."

Blaine County has set the new 1975 prosecutor's budget at $20,000.

The commissioners wrote representative McLean, "at present we have approximately 200 criminal cases and five major civil cases pending. The cause for this backlog is the past performance of a part-time prosecutor. It is impossible to do this job on a part-time basis."

"The magistrate judge is paid $20,000 for a much less time consuming position and it seems justified to ask the same salary for the prosecutor."

Parents seek active role

By DAVE BOCKMAN
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A group of Mexican-American parents is seeking more say about Cassia school policies affecting minority students.

About 10 members of the group known as the "Freedom of Speech Committee" ("El Comité Libertad de Expresión") met with the Cassia County school board Monday night.

The "Committee" asked that its ideas concerning the education of chicano students be given more attention.

A spokesman for the group, David Medina, Burley, said the committee was recently consulted by Supt. of Schools Harold Blauer about vocational education programs in the schools.

But, Medina said, Blauer did not contact the group until Thursday, while the vocational program was to be presented to the school board the following Monday night.

In an interview, Medina said the group believed it was not given adequate time to explore possible vocational programs of benefit to Mexican-American students.

Monday night, Blauer told the group he had consulted it only as a courtesy. There are Mexican-Americans on the vocational advisory committee, he said.

Previously, Medina has said the Freedom of Speech Committee is the "only legitimate representative of Mexican-American children in Cassia County."

The committee should be told in advance when applications for special educational programs are being considered, Medina said. Allowed the time, the committee can provide constructive "input" into program plans, he said.

Medina also asked that the committee be consulted before the school board appoints various special education committees. The committee could suggest names of Mexican-Americans representative of the community, Medina said.

Members of the committee also questioned if bilingual teachers would be hired in the future.

Board Chairman Paul Brown told the committee the schools will be actively recruiting bilingual teachers in the future. "Active recruiting will be part of the board's affirmative action program," he said.

Recently, the US Health, Education and Welfare Department charged that although the school system has a high number of minority students, it has few bilingual teachers.

Hansen students make move

By DAVID HORSMAN
Times-News writer

HANSEN — The big move into the new Hansen Elementary School was made Monday.

First graders, lugging grocery sacks jammed with books and papers, streamed out of the old school early Monday morning and completed the short trek to the new structure with only one snag. Little Stacy Vaux dropped her sack and had to wait for help from the "big kids" before entering the brand-new building.

The other five grades followed in quick succession and the tragi-comedy was finished by three in the afternoon. It was a "tremendous job," by students and teachers, according to Supt. Percy Christensen, who expected the move to take at least two days.

He applauded the high school freshmen class and the four senior boys who did most of the heavy work, transferring desks and furniture.

The new building, financed with a $380,000 bond issue approved by school patrons in 1973, is a sharp contrast to the old frame school.

All the classrooms open onto the central media center in a "pod" design, according to Christensen. Interior walls are at a minimum, with portable plywood partitions available if the classes need a little more privacy.

There's even a small assembly "nook," complete with a false fireplace and electric log "fire," where students can sit on carpeted tiers for slide shows and other educational get-togethers.

The district had to shave a multi-purpose room from the project and make do with existing furniture to stay within the funds available for the new school, Christensen said. Inflation ate up about $52,000 of the construction money before a bid on the project was accepted.

The old school will be renovated and turned over to the seventh and eighth grades for a junior high. The Head Start program, also will be housed in the old building.

TWIN FALLS — Average prices for the week of Feb. 19 have been posted by the Pacific Northwest Pea Growers and Dressers Association:

Chicago cash wheat basis was up as much as a dime but gave up most of the day's gains in a late afternoon selloff. Silver showed a turnover of 4,515 lots, but advanced only 1.5 to 1.6 cents, then profit taking and possible speculative selling pushed the market back to the day's lows.

Court overrules Finley

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Charles O. Finley, who had great success in baseball salary arbitration hearings the past few days, was overruled Monday in a court battle with his former concessionaire.

The 9th Circuit Court of Appeals reversed a lower court ruling that had awarded the owner of the three-time world champion Oakland A's $846,504 in damages from Twin City Sportservice Corp.

The appellate court, in handing down the decision, said Justice Tom C. Clark had incorrectly defined the "relevant market" two years ago in giving Finley $202,100 trebled to $606,300.

Sportservice, which held the concession franchise for the A's between 1954 and 1967 when they were still based in Kansas City,

...the trial court erred in treating Sportservice as a seller of concession services in major league baseball teams.

"Such services are sold to spectators who directly and immediately pay for them, not to the major league baseball teams."

"We must, therefore, remand this case to the district court to determine the scope of the relative franchise market."

The suit resulted from a franchise contract first signed in 1950 by Connie Mack, late owner of the Philadelphia A's, with a predecessor of Sportservice, Penn Sportservice Inc.

The agreement included a "follow the franchise" clause which kept it in effect when the club moved to Kansas City.

In 1967, when the A's were transferred to Oakland, another concessionaire, Volume Service Co., took over under an contract it had with Coliseum, Inc., the Oakland authorities.

Sportservice filed suit, claiming Finley was bound by the original agreement and the owner filed a countersuit charging violation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Justice Clark then found for Finley, but Monday's decision sends the case back to district court for further action.

Over the past 13 days, Finley won four of six salary arbitration hearings with his players and also signed with seven players who had sought third party contract settlements.

McAdoo closes on scoring title

NEW YORK (UPI) — Buffalo's Bob McAdoo is closing in on his second straight National Basketball Association scoring title as he heads into the final six weeks of the regular season with a two point per game lead over Golden State's Wilt Chamberlain.

McAdoo, the first NBA player to score 2,000 points this season, is averaging 34 points through the first 61 games while Barry is averaging 32 and Milwaukee's Kareem Abdul-Jabbar 30.1.

Barry is first in steals with 2.79 per game and seventh in assists. New York's Bill Bradley, with whom Barry traded punches last week, leads in free throw percentage with a .915 average while Barry is at .808. Dan Johnson of Boston retained the field goal percentage lead at .543.

Wes Unseld of Washington is the leading rebounder at 14.8 a game, while Abdul-Jabbar, Kansas City-Omaha's Sam Lacey and Los Angeles' Reggie Haurston are tied for third. Detroit's Dave Bing leads a slim lead in assists with 7.6 per game, just ahead of Washington's Kevin Porter (7.4). Abdul-Jabbar also leads in blocked shots at 3.23 per game.

Buffalo leads the league in offense with a 108.8 average, followed by Golden State, Boston, Atlanta and Washington. Chicago leads the league in defense by allowing opponents only 94.4 points per game, followed by Washington, Cleveland, Detroit and Milwaukee.

Stars edge Nets 117-113

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — The Utah Stars, behind the combined scoring of veteran guard Ron Boone and Frankie Moses Malone, pushed through eight straight points late in the fourth quarter to slip past the New York Nets 117-113 Monday night in ABA action.

Boone poured in 31 points and Malone had 31 and 19 rebounds as the Stars won their fourth straight game and five of six under new head coach Tom Nissalke. Randy Denton added a Utah career-high 20 points to the scoring.

UTEP player praised

DENVER (UPI) — Gary Brewster is a man after Don Haskins' heart.

During his 14-year term as head basketball coach at Texas El Paso, Haskins has gained a reputation as one of, if not the, best defensive coaches in the country. During that time, the Miners, who won the 1966 NCAA title, have allowed their opponents a combined average of 59.3 points per game.

Brewster, a 64 Junior center, has earned Haskins' praise as "the best defensive player I've had. He has to be the best in the nation."

But Brewster, who averages 12 shots a game, is also turning into a pretty fine offensive prospect. He is averaging 15.7 points a game this year with a team that averages only 64.7.

Last weekend was one of Brewster's best.

On Friday, he led the Miners to a 66-61 win over 13th-ranked Arizona as he hit six of 10 shots from the floor and two of three free throws and had eight rebounds while Arizona's Al Fleming, the nation's leading shooter last year, was held to just two field goals, neither of which came while Brewster was in the game.

He played 27 minutes on Saturday as he ran into foul trouble, but still hit seven of 12 field goal attempts, all seven of his free throws and got nine of UTEP's 23 rebounds while defending Jack Schrader, the WAC's leading shooter to just two of seven field goals as the Miners' best seventh-ranked Arizona State, 75-70.

Monday, Brewster won the Western Athletic Conference Player-of-the-Week award for the second time this year.

Gibson trains for finale

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Bob Gibson, who recently announced his retirement from baseball effective next fall, began his fifth and final season in good spirits Monday as the St. Louis Cardinals' battery men reported for spring training.

The scheduled 17 pitchers and three catchers reported at Busch Field in the rain, then in a covered cage and then entered the four-diamond complex. They were joined by third base regular Ken Hertz, who was not due until Saturday when the full squad is expected.

The 39-year-old Gibson, only National League pitcher ever to record more than 3,000 strikeouts, sat quietly through a pre-practice clubhouse meeting. Then, as veteran trainer Bob Bauman told the squad that this was his (Bauman's) 48th season in baseball, Gibson brought a laugh when he muttered half aloud, "we broke in together."

Next, Gibson took a five-minute tour on the mound in the covered batting cage, prompting left-handed veteran Claude Green to say with a yince that he never had seen anyone throw so hard his first time out.

"I always do that," explained Gibson, kiddingly. "Claude Green told me the second, less hard the third."

The $150,000 a year right-hander was careful with

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Eight members of the Baltimore Orioles, defending American League East Division champions, officially became holdouts Monday as the club opened spring training for pitchers and catchers.

Manager Earl Weaver had only five pitchers and one catcher from last year's club on hand for the opening workout. Pitchers Ross Grimsley, Bob Reynolds, Mike Torrez, Joyce Alexander, Wayne Garland and Don Hood plus catcher Earl Williams and Andy Etchebarren are the holdouts.

All but Williams are being represented in salary negotiations by attorney Jerry Kapstein, who had said that only Torrez and Etchebarren have major differences with general manager Frank Cushman.

limbering exercises in a nearby gymnasium. Gibson said he was weak through his sub-par 11-13 season a year ago. Then he loped through the rain around the vast ballpark.

"Did they make this place bigger over the winter?" asked Gibson, huffing on the bench after his workout.

Then, looking at a grinning manager, Red Schoendienst, Gibson said: "Hey, Red, I'm in favor of the designated runner this year."

Golfers honored

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Six golfers from the past, three Americans and three Englishmen, Monday were named to the World Golf Hall of Fame by Hall president Don Collie.

The six were Joyce Wethered, Tom Morris Jr., and J.H. Taylor from England, and Willie Anderson, Chick Evans and Glenn Collet Vare from the United States.

The choices were made by a special committee to pick players whose principal achievements came before 1950. A post-1950 committee has nominated players and outstanding contributors to the game and the names will be voted on by the membership of the Golf Writers Association of America.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You see clearly changes you need to make early in the day. Then you can quickly make such new arrangements and put them in effect with vim and efficiency. Don't procrastinate.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use some new system to improve a plan of action you have started. Listen to what a friend with views different from yours advises.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan early to have a good time with congenials at whatever is mutually most enjoyable. Reach bitter understanding with mate. Avoid cagey person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Gain the support of an outsider to help you meet the expectations of family now. Entertain at home to increase future happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Contact those who can give you needed data, then put it to good use to improve position in life. Avoid a liar.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Improve monetary affairs so you are not hard pressed by lack and can enjoy some forms of entertainment. Win associate's backing.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make needed changes now that will improve your operations in the future, and provide more time for leisure. Home is a net.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan early how to produce more in the business world. You may get a letter that seems annoying but really means more benefit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do something of a practical nature for persons whose loyalty has been great. Attend social affair. Become a happier person.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get involved and add to your great pride instead of being so standoffish and concerned with the petty things of life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A new method for handling important matters can lead to progress at this time. Some data you get can be helpful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle responsibilities and clear up any credit affairs via the auspices of a good friend. Use your wit in dealing with being so out of sync.

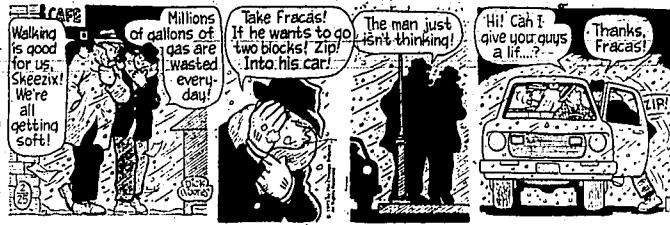

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ask direct questions of an associate and you get good results now, improve your vocational activities thusly. Be calm if anyone opposes you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have to learn early not to speak unless sure of facts. Otherwise this progeny could get into much trouble during his time-equity with a good education and give kind discipline early that will mold the life properly. There is brilliance here. Much success will be possible, particularly if the religious side of life is stressed early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

When an elderly couple chooses twin beds, it's usually the man who makes the decision. But when a young couple buys twin beds, it's almost invariably the woman who decides. Such is the contention of a bed salesman.

CLASSIFIED

Looks as though everybody has some favorite classified ad. Friend Robert John Allen says his is: "Personals: To the party who stole the unattended lawnmower from my front yard: I hope, when you arrive home, that your mother ran out from underneath the porch, barked at you, and bit you on the leg."

Q. "WHY" is a book of maps called an atlas?

A. Because practically all the early map books started out with frontispieces that pictured the mythical character Atlas holding the world on his back. It was slang, originally. Like Ma Bell. Or G.I. Or cop.

REDUNDANCY

Was none other than James M. Hotchkiss, Jr., who said, "To commit suicide in Philadelphia is an act of redundancy." Mr. Hotchkiss collects redundancies. Like: "Brief moment," "congregate argued," "enclosed within," "end result," "military bomber," "past history," "close proximity," "original source," "proceed ahead," "totally annihilate," "undergraduate student" and "stupid idiot."

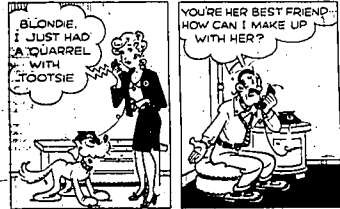

THREE OUT of four convicted rapists were themselves as children the victims of sexual abuse. Or so one study of the matter indicates.

A WASHINGTON policeman left his patrol car in the police department garage with this note under the windshield wiper: "The siren ain't workin'. It'll sit but it won't beep."

AMONG the Russian literature of several hundred years ago, is one "How to" book which details the most effective manner in which it was thought a man should beat his wife.
