Innocent pleas filed in credit case

BOISE (UPI) — A Pocatello man and a Boise woman pleaded innocent in U.S. district court today to federal misdemeanor charges of conspiracy to obtain the credit report on Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho.

District Judge J. Blaine Anderson tentatively set trial of Mel Morgan, Pocatello, and Rose Marie Bowman, Boise, for March 18. He said the court would entertain pre-trial motions until March 14.

Mansfield hits pressure for aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today he is "sick and tired" of seeing Cambodians "slaughtered" with American weapons and hopes Congress will not bow to pressure from President Ford for more military aid to that nation.

Plant occupants ask Navajo help

SHIPROCK, N.M. (UPI) — Indians occupying a reservation electronics plant in protest against health and hiring practices today asked the Navajo people to give them food and support for a "long stay."

The Navajos, armed with rifles, took over the plant Monday and were joined Tuesday night by Indians from California and Oregon, including American Indian Movement Chairman John Trudell.

Greeks jail more coup suspects

ATHENS (UPI) — Military authorities today arrested more officers suspected of participating in an aborted coup, sources close to the army said. Another report said the plot included assassinating Premier Constantine Karamanlis.

The sources said a total of 70 officers loyal to the military dictatorship which ruled Greece for seven years had been arrested so far. The government on Tuesday released the names of 37 officers arrested in connection with the coup.

Simon starts talks with Saudi aides

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Treasury Secretary William E. Simon began two days of talks with Saudi Arabian officials today which Treasury officials said would avoid the sensitive issues of high oil prices and the Arab boycott of firms doing business with Israel.

Simon conferred with Shaykh Muhammad Ali Aba Khalil, the Saudi minister of state for financial affairs and the national economy who was accompanied by a dozen other Saudi officials.

Ford increases pressure

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — President Ford predicted today it might take Congress until June to enact an anti-inflation income tax cut and promised to keep fighting for quicker action by the lawmakers.

Ford told a news conference neither the House nor the Senate is making fast enough progress.

"It could take until June," he said. "I intend to keep the pressure on."

He said his month-long public campaign against what he called the "dilatory tactics" of the lawmakers has brought "more response from Congress than (they have shown) in the past few years."

The news conference was held as part of Ford's trip to Florida to spread his economic-energy message. He attended a breakfast with Southern newspaper executives in the morning and planned to play golf in the afternoon.

Ford opened the news conference with a statement warning foreigners against religious or ethnic discrimination in international banking.

"Foreign businessmen and investors are welcome in the United States when they are willing to conform to the principles of our society," he said. "However, any allegations of discrimination will be fully investigated and appropriate action taken under the laws of the United States."

Ford did not specify the target of his warning, however, it was obviously aimed at any Arab investors and businessmen who would boycott U.S. companies doing business with Israel.

"I hope Congress passes the tax cut before June," Ford said. "I submitted my economic plan on Jan. 15. The House of Representatives has not yet acted. Hearings start in the Senate Finance Committee next week."

Ford said the Democrats who control Congress are producing various economic plans.

"I wish there were a single plan proposed by the majority party of Congress... then we can sit down and negotiate." Asked about his request for $220 million emergency aid to Cambodia to save the anti-Communist regime from collapse, Ford said the Cambodian situation is "very critical."

Shots wound 2 TF women

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls women are hospitalized in critical condition today with gunshot wounds, cuts and bruises after an attack at 4:30 a.m. in their home. The attack led police to order a radio news blackout early today.

Police identified the victims as Crystal Gietzen, 18, and her mother, Edith Gietzen, 55, who reside at 321 Second Ave. W.

Detective Capt. Tim Qualls was heading the department's investigation. At noon today, Police Chief Frank Barnett told the press one man had been arrested in the case and another found dead of an apparent suicide.

He said search warrants and warrants of arrest named David Dean Moorehead, 20, and Stephen Rayburn, 22, both Twin Falls. When officers went to arrest Rayburn, they found him dead in bed at his home. Moorehead was arrested at the police station at about 11:40 a.m.

The younger woman is being treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for "multiple gunshot wounds," cuts and bruises, hospital officials said. Her mother, who was in surgery until about 10 a.m. today, suffered a skull fracture and facial lacerations and a broken hand.

The two women were taken to the hospital by ambulance shortly after 4 a.m.

A report of the incident aired early today by KEEP radio brought strong objection by the police department. Capt. Qualls said he planned to ask the county prosecutor if action can be taken against the station for broadcasting unauthorized information.

Prosecutor William Hollifield was not available for comment. After the shooting at the attack was aired on KEEP police reportedly ordered the station to halt further reports until police received information later in the day.

According to KEEP news director Kelly Klaas, Qualls issued him an "order" to cease broadcasts on the matter.

According to Klaas, "I put on the 7:15 news about the stabbing and the beating and the apparent shooting at a residence in Twin Falls. I mentioned no names. I mentioned no specific address."

"The young woman is being treated at Magic Valley Memorial Hospital for 'multiple gunshot wounds,' cuts and bruises, hospital officials said. Her mother, who was in surgery until about 10 a.m. today, suffered a skull fracture and facial lacerations and a broken hand."

"I don't need authorization. I just need the true facts," Klaas said. "I can just see these reporters in Washington running around asking for authorization to put Watergate stories on."

Qualls was not available for comment on Klaas' statement. However, Twin Falls Police Chief Frank Barnett said today he believes the police have the right to prior censorship of the news, when police believe the news is obtained illegally.

Barnett said he was certain that KEEP had obtained the report by monitoring the police radio, and not from talking to the coroner or other sources or witnesses.

"It is against federal regulations to intercept a broadcast meant for someone else and use it for your own purposes," Barnett said.

Barnett said, however, that even if the radio station were issued such an order, the station would not have to obey it.

"A citizen doesn't have to obey a police order in this case," he said.

Barnett also said an order to prohibit a news broadcast does not have to be approved by the courts if the broadcast "did or was likely to interfere with the prosecution of the case."

The KEEP broadcast, Barnett said, "very very likely interfered."

"We plan to give out the entire story to every one if we can make an arrest but broadcasting or printing details of the incident could hamper our court case and could also prevent us from arresting those responsible for the crime," Barnett said.

Mary Goe, hospital information officer, said the hospital was asked to withhold information as the number and exact location of the gunshot wounds "to protect the court case." She said the request was made by Capt. Qualls and said, "I can understand their concern. We do not want to hamper their case."

Energy saver?

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — A bank robber stuffed $1,012 in a paper bag and made his getaway on a bicycle, police said Tuesday.

Officers said the bandit walked in line at a Bank of America branch on Broadway and stole a note burn, handed teller Maxine Skeen a note demanding money.

He stuffed the money in the bag and fled to the bank parking lot where he jumped on his bike and rode off.

Scoop concedes veto support

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said today President Ford "may well be right" in predicting that he has a sufficient number of votes to sustain a veto of a bill blocking the first step in his new energy plan.

Jackson said administration arm-wielding efforts possibly have caused enough congressmen to change their minds on a bill that would have stopped Ford from placing a tariff on imported oil. The President has said he will veto that bill because he considers the increased oil fees to be the cornerstone of his energy and economic package.

Panel yields ERA repeal resolution

By BILL LAZARUS

Times-News capitol bureau BOISE — Opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment bucked the committee Tuesday and scored a major victory in the House Tuesday.

On a 37-33 vote they forced a resolution to repeal Idaho's ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment out of the House State Affairs Committee.

The measure now stands a good chance of passage in the House where only a simple majority vote is needed for approval. But, according to Senate President Pro Tempore James Ellsworth, R-Leadville, Senate rules clearly provide that a two-thirds majority is necessary for repealing an amendment.

Unless ERA opponents can find some way to avert that rule, Senate approval looks unlikely. Most observers agree a simple majority vote against the ERA could easily be mustered but not a two-thirds majority in either the Senate or the House. Rep. J. Vard Chabourn, R-Albion, proved to be the key man in forcing the resolution out of committee.

Chabourn's State Affairs Committee voted last Wednesday to hold the resolution to repeal the ERA indefinitely, effectively killing the measure in committee.

In accord with House tradition, Chabourn, 1997 other committee chairmen and Republican leadership successfully opposed forcing the resolution out of committee last Friday.

But Chabourn, torn by his opposition to the ERA and his loyalty as a committee chairman, wavered.

First, he resigned leadership and other chairmen from having to vote with him in blocking the effort. He pulled the resolution out of committee.

Senate CIA probers mull use of immunity grants

(C) New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Senate select committee on intelligence favors the use of carefully selected grants of immunity from criminal prosecution to encourage candid testimony from government agents in the panel's investigation, a survey of the membership has disclosed.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of the committee, said, "It is within our power to grant immunity in appropriate cases, and where it is necessary to obtain essential information I'd be in favor of it." He said, however, that the granting of immunity would be up to a vote by his 16-member committee.

A check of the committee by the New York

Times found that a majority of the members favored some form of immunity system and no senator opposed the idea. Several declined comment.

Within the deferal intelligence community, immunity was regarded as one of the most vital tests of whether the senate inquiry would be able to document illegal intelligence activities and methods. Several former operatives for the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Central Intelligence Agency said immunity might be the only way to get candid testimony from men who had been involved in what might be construed as illegal operations while under federal orders.

British mart vote called

LONDON (UPI) — Britain said today it will ask the nation's 40 million voters to decide this summer whether they want the country to remain in the European Common Market. It will be the first referendum in the nation's history. Edward Short, leader of the House of Commons and the man responsible for organizing the referendum, told a news conference. "We hope to hold the referendum at the end of June if the present negotiations on Britain's membership terms are completed in time." The government issued a white paper announcing the referendum. It said the ballot will provide for a "yes" or "no" vote, and Short said a simple majority will decide. "We feel the result will be best understood by the country as a whole if the decision is taken by a simple majority of the voters cast, but we hope, of course, there will be a big turnout," Short said. Short said the Labor government will give its own recommendation whether the country should stay in the nine-nation market or get out, when the renegotiation is completed.

City falls to rebels

Red rebels cinch ring around Cambodia capital

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Pro-Communist rebels pressed closer to Phnom Penh today with a series of attacks that overran a key government position on the Mekong River and captured the former royal capital of Oudong only 18 miles away.

Artillery and mortar shells hit the refugee-packed city and airport again today on the eve of an American airlift of food and Chinese merchants closed their shops for fear food riots would spread to Phnom Penh.

Thursday is the fifth anniversary of the Lon Nol government whose ouster of Prince Norodom Sihanouk touched off five years of bloody warfare that turned the once prosperous kingdom into a scene of devastation.

U.S. officials in Washington predicted the country would fall to the Communists within a "few weeks," without additional military aid of $22 million.

Sources here said the Mekong River port of Peam Reang Lew fell into Communist hands in a battle in which the Communists drove off government planes and a fleet of government river gunboats, sinking one. Fate of the defenders was unknown.

Pro-Communist rebels captured the devastated former Cambodian royal capital of Oudong, 18 miles northwest of Phnom Penh Tuesday after a six day battle. Phnom Penh remains under a total blockade. (UPI) munists have captured Peam Reang, 36 miles southeast of Phnom Penh and it means the rebels effectively control all of the Mekong River. Its fall also probably dooms the besieged naval base at Neak Luong, six miles to the north, military sources said.

The sources also said government plans to sweep Communist mines in the Mekong River may be abandoned. Communist troops have severed the waterway after sinking two barges and one tug Feb. 5 and forced the rest of a convoy back into South Vietnamese waters.

The U.S. airlift will begin Thursday by commercial jets which will carry to Phnom Penh 583 tons of rice per day. The jets are under a 30-day contract with the U.S. government to ferry American rice to feed Phnom Penh's 2 million residents.

The rebel troops Tuesday overran the former imperial city of Oudong, 18 miles northwest of Phnom Penh, posing an immediate threat to Sihanoukville, Cambodia's provincial capital, about five miles to the north, along Highway 5, the sources said.

The provincial capital, like Oudong, had been captured by Communist troops then regained by troops of president Lon Nol last year, after heavy bombings.

that the justices go along with Bork's arguments. Bork told the justices that "the urgent efforts of the president to improve the energy program" require a quick decision.

Florida, which was never under a colonial grant since it was purchased outright from Spain, filed a separate action. It asked for jurisdiction only 30 miles off its east coast, contending this was what Congress approved when the state was readmitted to the Union in 1868.

The rulings, expected by June, will finally dispose of the major issues surrounding offshore resources. But follow up work could take additional years.

Normally after deciding how far a state can control the seas, the court must also decide the specific boundaries. These decisions involve complex geographic and historical evidence concerning coastlines.

A special master named by the court has recommended that the justices go along with Bork's arguments.

Solicitor General Robert H. Bork called the central arguments "essentially irrelevant."

He said the Supreme Court ruled in 1947 that the United States has control of all resources beyond the low tide mark. Only the generosity of Congress in 1953 gave the states jurisdiction up to three miles offshore, Bork said.

CIA panel eyes immunity grants

(Continued from p. 1.) "It is now conducted an illegal operation in 1967, a big job (burglary), for instance," a former senior federal intelligence officer said, "and he was acting under orders from his superiors in good faith, you can't come along and change the rules on him and expect him to tell you about it."

This intelligence source said he had talked to several former federal agents "who were scared of their own liability." Earlier this month the Chicago Tribune published what it said was an internal CIA memorandum signed by David H. Block, deputy director of the agency's clandestine services, in which he told employees that the legality of agency operations was under scrutiny and that they had a right to remain silent or retain private legal counsel if they faced criminal prosecutions.

The CIA declined comment on the article. Several former CIA officers construed the memo as a veiled warning to keep quiet, they said in interviews. The newly created Senate committee is making an investigation of the entire range of federal intelligence operations, its costs and efficiency as well as specialized inquiries into whether federal agencies have violated the law in domestic counter-intelligence operations.

Church is expected to meet today with William E. Colby, the director of Central Intelligence, to request that he waive the portions of CIA "contracts" with employees that pledge them to silence. Colby's waiver, according to Senate sources, would be enough to free present and former agents to testify.

The meeting is also expected to involve other procedural matters, storage of top-secret documents for instance — but no substantive questions, according to a committee source. The survey of the committee membership "used general agreement that the immunity grant must be issued with great caution. But several senators expressed concern that it should not be used to protect present and former government officials from charges of having lied to Congress."

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said he would recommend that immunity not be granted to federal officials who had been "on a policy-making level." He said he felt that immunity should be granted only to men who had "carried out the orders" and only in cases where testimony was vital.

The vitality of the testimony was the caveat of several Senators. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., said he would limit an immunity grant to situations where the testimony of the witness was so vital that the work of the committee could not be completed without it. Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., saw the immunity power as only one of several tools the committee could use to get to the truth of possible illegal domestic activities. He said the panel must be prepared to protect the names and identities of some sources of information from being made public and must be able to offer witnesses some security from retaliation.

Fire hits Ford's hotel

HOLLYWOOD — Fla. — (UPI) — A small fire broke out early today in a sauna at the Diplomat Hotel where President Ford is staying, but Hollywood police and a hotel spokesman said there was no evacuation.

The fire broke out on the top floor of the main hotel building next to the ocean. President Ford was sleeping in a new tower portion of the hotel some 200 yards away.

Eastern states' claims to oil date 200 years

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The claim by 13 East Coast states to the oil underneath the Atlantic Ocean just off their shores involves legal issues dating back to before the American Revolution.

But the stakes are as modern as the automobile — fuel. The winning side will grant leases to oil companies for exploring the coastal seas for oil. The leases are potentially worth billions of dollars.

The high court listened to oral arguments in two separate cases Monday and Tuesday. Its decision will involve roughly 200,000 square miles of sea bed stretching 100 miles offshore from Maine through Georgia and 30 miles off Florida's east coast.

All the East Coast states except Florida and Connecticut claim their royal charters grant as early as 1606 the right to sea bed ownership. These rights were not surrendered when the states ratified the Constitution, they argued.

Solicitor General Robert H. Bork called the central arguments "essentially irrelevant."

He said the Supreme Court ruled in 1947 that the United States has control of all resources beyond the low tide mark. Only the generosity of Congress in 1953 gave the states jurisdiction up to three miles offshore, Bork said.

BELFAST (UPI) — Protestant extremists and the Irish Republican Army announced plans today for the formation of their own police forces to keep order in Protestant and Roman Catholic neighborhoods.

Lodge sets March fete

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Royal Neighbor Lodge plan an anniversary dinner March 10. Plans for the potluck dinner to observe the anniversary were made Monday night during the regular February meeting held in the IOOF Hall. Julia Samples, Eva Metzler and Fred Evans served as entertainers. Lillian Arvan provided refreshments with members present assisting with the serving. Polio victims and candles decorated the tables. Mildred Shobe received the white elephant gift.

Annual swine sale, show under way today in TF

TWIN FALLS — The annual swine show and sale got underway today with judging of live swine scheduled at 10 a.m. at the Independent Meat Co.

The show and sale are sponsored by the Southern Idaho Swine Breeders Association and all entries were to be in by 9 a.m. this morning, according to Justin Mills, association president and show chairman. A noon luncheon will be followed by an afternoon program.

Trophies for first and second place of foot champions, and for grand champion and reserve champion carcass over all will be awarded at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at a banquet at the Independent Meat Co.

The judging system has changed in keeping with recognizing the swine industry as an entire industry including breeders, producers and packers, Mills said.

Friday will see Future Farmers of America judging at 9 a.m. at the Field Fairgrounds, followed at 10 a.m. by 4-H Club judging, all in the sale barn. Trophies will be awarded at noon so young swine growers can return to afternoon school classes.

The sale is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. with Cecil Patterson, Jerome, auctioneer. Approximately 25 head of bred girls will go through the ring, with breeds including Duro, Hampshire, Yorkshire and Spotted Poland China.

The Loyal Neighbors Club of Berger will serve lunch on the grounds the day of the sale.

It was a $20 misunderstanding

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (UPI) — Call it a $20 misunderstanding, but the bystander, who was cast in a bad light for refusing to help a teen-age girl crying "rape" have been vindicated.

Police reported last week a 15-year-old girl walking home from a private school was raped by a man who forced her into an empty apartment.

The girl twice escaped the rapist, fleeing nude to the balcony where she screamed down a crowd, the story went. The rapist allegedly told the bystanders it was only a "family quarrel." None of them interferred when he hauled her back inside to continue the rape.

The district attorney's office told it differently Tuesday.

The girl was a prostitute, investigators said. She was screaming because she hadn't been paid.

Charges against the suspect were dropped.

Church hints Arab pressure attempted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, today suggested that Arab countries are trying to "impose a pattern of anti-Semitism on our business life" by organizing a boycott of American and foreign firms that have business relationships with Israel.

At a meeting of the subcommittee on multinational corporations, Church released a list of American companies which have been blacklisted by the Arabs, including Ford Motor Co., Xerox, Coca Cola and RCA.

Church said he believed it was the first time that the entire lengthy boycott list has been made public at one time and he urged full publicity in order to get the effects of the boycott "out into the open."

Church said he believed it was the first time that the entire lengthy boycott list has been made public at one time and he urged full publicity in order to get the effects of the boycott "out into the open."

On Tuesday, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith alleged at a New York news conference that some American corporations were "bowing to Arab pressures to sever ties with Israel."

ADL chairman Seymour Graubard said an investigation disclosed "widespread willingness in American industry to be secret partners in an Arab plot to cut Israel off from its principal ally, the United States."

In an opening statement today, Church noted that the Arab countries were spending billions of dollars a year on western products and forcing companies with Israeli connections out of the bidding for lucrative markets and contracts.

Burley aide demands retraction

BURLEY — The Burley City attorney has demanded KMYT Television retract part of a news story. But the manager of KMYT said Tuesday he does not know if the station will retract a statement made in a Feb. 12 news broadcast that arrest warrants would be served on the mayor of Burley and some city councilmen.

Burley City Atty. William Parsons on Feb. 21 demanded that the station make a public retraction of a news broadcast alleging that "confidential sources" had indicated "a number of warrants are in the process of being served against the Burley mayor, Chuck Shaddock, and some city councilmen for alleged misuse of city money."

KMYT had been the first news outlet to report the attempt to arrest the city officials. However, although the arrest warrants were sought, they were never issued as KMYT's report suggested.

Station manager Harold Hirte said Tuesday he did not know if the station would make a public retraction of the broadcast. "We're still investigating it," Hirte said. "State statutes say they have three weeks in which to retract. We will study whether a retraction will be made in the next three weeks."

Hirte said he thought the broadcast statement was quoted in Parsons' demand for retraction was "accurate."

The broadcast by KMYT apparently stemmed from rumors that warrants were being drawn up against Shaddock and city council members. In the turmoil surrounding the firing of former Chief of Police Gary Booth, who was fired by the Burley City Council on Feb. 10.

According to previous accounts in the Boise Idaho Statesman, Chief Booth was to meet with city council members at 9:30 on the morning of the 10th to receive his termination notice.

Instead, Booth allegedly foresook the meeting with the council and instead met with Cassia County Pros. Atty. Alfred Barrus, a first-term prosecutor and convinced him that certain city records indicated the mayor and city councilmen had violated state statutes when, more than a year earlier, they voted to convert city expense accounts into salary payments for the mayor and certain department heads.

Barrus told the Statesman an alleged violation was that the mayor and the council did not follow the state statute regarding pay increases to the mayor and to appointed department heads.

Acting on his apparent belief that the law had been violated, Barrus on the morning of Feb. 10 then presented affidavits to Magistrate Judge George Granata Jr., seeking warrants against the mayor and other city officials.

However, Judge Granata refused to issue the warrants.

On Feb. 11, Judge Granata told the Times-News, "I did not issue the warrants because I was not satisfied that an offense was committed. I did not feel the information in the affidavits brought before me established grounds to believe that those defendants had committed the alleged offenses."

Parsons said Tuesday, "I don't know what Booth did ... There were no warrants ever issued or in the process of being served."

Parsons said in his letter to KMYT on Feb. 21, "We recognize the right of freedom of the press ... however, the constitutional right does not give to you the right to make such false statements that the warrants were in the process of being served."

Parsons gave KMYT until today to make a public retraction. "Failure to do so," he wrote, "will result in further legal action."

Asked Tuesday what further legal action might be taken, Parsons said, "I'm not telling them what our game plan is ... We don't make idle threats."

Andrus vetoes tax cut bill

Idaho taxpayers paid much more money into the state treasury during the 1974-75 fiscal year than was expected. The large amount of leftover money has sparked heated debate on what to do with the money.

Simply put, the debate is about whether to give the money back to the taxpayers in some form, or to spend it, instead.

Gov. Andrus wants to spend it for highways. After spending enough for highways, he says, the state can go ahead with tax relief.

But there is no mistaking the Governor's priorities. Highways first, tax relief second.

To make his point, he vetoed a bill which would have rebated an extra $5 for each member of a taxpayer's family. The money would have to be mailed back because it is for taxes already paid on last year's income.

The governor's reasoning was clear: It is not certain that there will be enough surplus money to pay for both highways and tax relief. So tax relief will have to wait.

We suspect the Governor's priorities are backward.

If given that same choice, we would let the extra highways wait and Idaho's taxpayers would be refunded their overpayment.

Sports and betting

Christian Science Monitor

The Commissioners of the major professional sports leagues strongly oppose the legalization of gambling on their games.

They are vigorously voicing this opposition in Washington before the Commission on the Review of the National Policy Toward Gambling. The commission is composed of members of Congress plus public appointees of the President, and is charged with recommending a national policy on the subject by October, 1976.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn cited the public's interest in supporting his stand: "Over and above our determination to protect the best interests of baseball, we feel it is not in the public interest to exploit the weaknesses and encourage the vices of our citizens to finance government."

But a case can also be made for opposing legalized gambling in terms of the leagues' own interest. This newspaper has not been an unmitigated fan of professional sports, and has questioned the leagues' policies of super-salaries, violence, and so forth.

However, the leagues are on solid ground in arguing that they have a right to say no to an intrusion into their affairs by public, legalized betting.

National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle said, "Professional football, like other team sports, is grounded on the absolute integrity of its games and its participants. Gambling on sports inevitably raises the question of whether games are being thrown, and the public perception of honesty in sports is essential to the vitality of sports."

Apart from all the other arguments against legalized gambling (that it does not deter criminal gambling, that it is a poor raiser of revenue, etc.) the right of leagues to protect the image and fact of their integrity has great weight.

Gubernatorial faith in federal cures limited

WASHINGTON — The nation's governors came to town this past week grumbling about the federal government's cavalier disregard for them at budget time and resentful of the tendency of Washington political reporters to look upon them as obscure province chieftains. A giant truck or trooper's patrol car mounted on tar and cement would make a neat heraldic symbol for many governors, to whom highway construction would appear to represent the ultimate in statehouse achievement. Of course, not all of them feel the same joyous exultation in ribbons of concrete and blacktop that snake through their territory. But the times being what they are, most recognize that road-building and resurfacing add up to quick jobs if only the President would release the long-impounded billions and Congress would remove the requirement that states must ante up matching funds to be eligible for the federal largesse.

The governors' frankly admit they came to these midwinter meetings with hat in hand, and see nothing to be ashamed of in it inasmuch as the money they seek comes from the folks that govern. But it frustrates them to realize that when the federal budget-makers get right down to the diving-up stage, the governors are ignored.

In the midst of recession and rising joblessness, they disagree with President Ford's description of the federal budget as "compassionate"; it is, in their eyes, the work of a kindhearted man interested in statistics than in human need, as Maine's Independent James Longley put it. Curiously enough, Longley is a hero of sorts to Treasury Secretary William Simon and others in the administration for his advocacy of rugged individualism, fiscal restraint, and other conservative virtues. In fact, Washington's Republican Gov. Daniel Evans says Longley, who beat both the Republican and Democratic candidates in Maine last November, represents "the biggest party in the country right now."

The gubernatorial faith in federal cures for the economy, from either the President or the Democratic-controlled Congress, is conspicuously limited. A few weeks ago, New Jersey's Brendan T. Byrne, a Democrat, was quoted as saying, "We are living with a national emergency that is hard to believe and almost impossible to trust." Drawing amens from a number of his statehouse conferees. Apart from their collective unhappiness about the recession, the governors can get irritated about the fact that few, if any, among them is viewed as presidential material. Not since New York's Franklin D. Roosevelt has a governor made it to the White House. Illinois' Adlai Stevenson was the last governor to be nominated by his party.

They blame their plight on distorted news coverage and their lack of access to national television. National political news is made in the capital pressure cooker, and senators who are constantly sought for their reaction to events gain an identity a governor can attain only in his home state and perhaps in adjacent states. Nobody much calls a governor for his response to an invasion of Cyprus; if presidential vetoes are bypassed or other major developments — a study made of TV news in October, 1973, illustrates the point.

That was the month of the Arab-Israeli war, a U.S. military alert, the Arab oil embargo, the resignation of Vice President Spiro Agnew, the Saturday night massacre, in which special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox was fired and Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson quit. Three governors made the big nightly TV news shows during that period. Massachusetts' Francis Sargent as a result of a disastrous fire that swept Chelsea, Mass., Ohio's John Gilligan because unidentified flying objects were reported in his state, and West Virginia's Arch Moore because the energy crunch made his coal-rich state newsworthy. New York's Nelson Rockefeller and California's Ronald Reagan, nationally ambulatory types, were tapped on eighth or nine shows. By contrast, some 45 senators and representatives were interviewed.

The governors naturally believe that man-for-man (with a slight adjustment in the case of Connecticut's Ella Grasso) they are as savvy, sound and capable of higher executive challenges as members of Congress. And their contacts here in the last few days with candidates, voters and potential, have done nothing to shake that belief. But they are trapped in a thankless management job which, at best, can be a springboard to the senate and, at worst, a ticket to oblivion.

Unless they can find ways to ride an issue on the coattails cables, as only one man has managed, Alabama's George C. Wallace.

Ineffective responses harming US

GENEVA — Henry Kissinger, pausing in Geneva, has every reason to feel beleaguered.

It is too easy to say that he is beleaguered because he lives in an international order of which he has served over seven years as the principal system architect. That explanation is inadequate. He sees a nearly universal deterioration in the state of affairs, which is the result not so much of irresistible pressure from our enemies, as miscalculated responses by our friends. People like Majority Leader Mansfield still fall, officially, in that category.

Take Turkey. Congress voted to cut off arms sales to Turkey. The Greeks, desiring that this should happen, stalled on purpose over Cyprus, sufficiently to prevent that progress in the absence of which the arms boycott was mandated. The Turkish response was: two people (us Americans) need your aid and other secret installations far more than we Turks need them — hell, we don't even know how to operate them. So if you want to play that kind of game, go ahead. And Turkey veers off toward a kind of Iranian hostility.

Meanwhile Greece is not able to control Macedonia. It has revived up sentiment in Cyprus for an irredentist war which Caramanalis, a long-time friend of the United States, dare not be less than helpful with. The result: two increasingly impotent powers, the two most important in our Eastern alliance, headed toward immobility.

On the other end of the continent, the Communists are moving in Portugal under the direct supervision of Moscow without the least objection by anybody. Whereas the United States is thought venal if we attempt to "interfere" in any way in the direction of helping social democrats in a beleaguered country, the United States is respected for moving to help the totalitarian in any beleaguered country. The interesting question is whether the Communists will simply take over Portugal, or whether they will stay more or less in the background and permit the army to give the orders, something like the Peruvian situation a stage or two advanced.

WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

This poses exquisitely subtle problems for the United States. If Portugal became forthrightly Communist, say like Bulgaria, we could if not intercede directly, at least suspend Portugal's participation in NATO. If the Communists play it smart, Portugal would continue to be a NATO ally in good standing, and would sit there and share all the military secrets and plans exchanged among NATO units. This would considerably relieve the responsibilities of KGB in Portugal and in other NATO countries.

Meanwhile, we have suspended military aid to Chile, because we disapprove of Chile's internal policies. But since every reporter working for the New York Times and the Washington Post is roaming the back streets of Chile with flashlights looking for one suspicious $100 bill, we cannot even help the moderates in Chile working to liberalize the current regime. The result is that Chile will have to hard its previous reserves, wadded under Allende and his prodigal rush toward socialism, to buy — Russian, or Chinese arms. It is axiomatic that one tends to lean toward the foreign policy of the country whose arms one purchases.

In Indonesia the simple facts bear retelling. Congress promised $1.4 billion in aid. But Senator Mansfield got around to appropriating only $700 million, the idea being to deliver $300 million of the remaining $700 million now and the rest later. By now, America has lurched into an isolationist seclusivity which would make it extremely difficult for any president or any secretary of state to commit himself to the delivery of one ping-pong table per month for 14 months.

Whereas last June Graham Martin, our able ambassador to Saigon, saw the smoke clearing at last; and, in Cambodia, the Red Chinese were at least ready to negotiate the year before; suddenly we had to stop the bombing, and now the situation in South Vietnam is bad, the Cambodian situation is worse. The Red Chinese feel nothing but contempt for a superpower which cannot keep its word in respect of a commitment so relatively trivial.

We should bear in mind that the Red Chinese interest in the United States is as a superpower capable of offsetting the influence of another superpower — the Soviet Union.

African disintegration threatens

NEW YORK TIMES SERVICE KHARTOUM — Contemporary Africa's three most tragic conflicts have all been fought in that broad geographic band where an Islamic, Arabized northern population shares common statehood with more southerly races of different religion and culture.

This has been true for Nigeria, the continent's most populous country, the Sudan's largest, and now of Ethiopia, its oldest independent nation.

The Nigerian civil war didn't involve the north's powerful Moslem Hausa tribes but was aimed at squashing an insurrection in Biafra. Nevertheless, should a disintegrating process develop, the north's political entitles of Nigeria, a Hausa secessionist movement might develop.

Sudan's struggle lasted 17 years and saw a black, Christian and pagan minority fighting a brown, Moslem majority. It was only settled by the wisdom of Gen. Gaafar Al-Nimeri, who made peace his main goal after becoming chief of state. Lengthy secret negotiations, concluded with a compromise accord at Addis Ababa, fostered by Emperor Haile Selassie, ending bloodshed and granting autonomy to the south.

Now it is the turn of Ethiopia, the nation that mediated the Sudanese conflict and which serves as host to the Organization of African Unity. Ethiopia finds itself teetering over the brink of the use of an internal political revolution that ousted the emperor, slaughtered many of his leading adherents and instituted a regime resembling frozen chaos, the Islamic, Arabized population of Eritrea has risen in arms. The continent's entire northeastern area is threatened.

Turning the diplomatic tables, Al-Nimeri has offered to mediate as a negotiating center for Eritreans and Ethiopians, suggesting a prompt cease-fire and unconditional talks. But all the hands (among which Sudan generally numbers itself) have spoken out in favor of Eritrean independence. Meanwhile, Addis Ababa says it won't stop fighting until the Arabs cease sending arms to the Eritrean Liberation Front and it will only negotiate on the basis that Eritrea cannot secede.

The civil war prevails and military operations are spreading. Those Sudanese officials with the most profound understanding of their eastern neighbor think the present cumbersome committee government is unable to make decisive policy commitments.

C. L. SULZBERGER

The regular army is being unsteadily paid and uncertainly supplied — precisely the type of situation that prompted the original revolution. Moreover, Somalia — further east — unabashedly covets the huge Ogaden province and if the present Eritrean struggle continues long the Somalis may well move military against Eritrea.

Should that occur, a terrible storm could engulf much of Africa. Some Sudanese, who had been feeling hopeful because of their own new-found stability, already reckon that neighboring Kenya to the south faces disruption and possible disintegration when President Kenyatta dies. Moreover, were Somalia to move against Ethiopia it might also attack Kenya where it also has territorial claims. Then the whole fragile structure, so carefully put together by the OAU largely at the instigation of the unfortunate Haile Selassie, now under house arrest) would teeter. Uganda is a mess. The two little twins, Rwanda and Burundi, are torn by murderous tribal dissensions. Zaire (the former Congo) has already known its share of fratricide and has years to go before it has been a bit unsteady by rivalries tearing apart nearby Angol as it edges toward freedom.

Haile Selassie's idea — accepted by all African governments even if they didn't like his old-fashioned imperial authoritarianism — was that Africa had to retain its present frontiers for, years to come. He acknowledged they were bad, imposed by European colonialists, and until severed ethnological or economic links, but until stability and progress could be achieved it was too risky to attempt premature change.

This became — and still in theory remains — a cardinal precept of the new Africa. But the principle represented was never wholeheartedly echoed by the northern fringe of Arab states. These favor prompt independence for all Arab-orientated peoples including, as they see it, the Eritreans.

The paramount issue everyone keeps hoping can be avoided now again menace this growing continent. Africa's share of fratricide and the wealth and benevolence of the Arab oil states in order to accelerate its logging economic and social development. But it also depends on freezing for at least another generation the existing patchwork system of boundaries. Otherwise the entire fabric may be torn to tatters.

Thus there is an inherent conflict which certainly produces schizophrenia along the border lands that include both Arab and non-Arab populations. And nowhere is that schizophrenia more marked than in the anxious Sudan.

Reaction reflects usual attitudes that they're serious about saving dough for all the taxpayers, not just a chosen few. Opposition to the cut unfortunately reflects Congress' general attitude. A member will vote to economize, but only if economizing has no effect on his constituents.

What too many of our national legislators like to do most is wave the flag. Members of the committee grasp this patriotic opportunity by giving Schlesinger a spontaneous burst of applause when he warned that further cuts in the Pentagon's awesome $92.8 billion budget could reduce the U.S. to a second-rate military power.

Schlesinger's point was that defense "is a shrinking burden on American society," compared with the 1950's and 1960's. What he meant was that the military budget now represents a smaller bite of the Gross National Product. GNP.

That's true, my friends — but so what? So what when plain citizens, many of them in the supposedly comfortable middle-income bracket, are scratching to make ends meet? The guy trying to get up college tuition for his kids is not conformed by the pronouncement that less of the GNP is going to support the military. To him, that statistic is wholly academic, producing no salutary effect on his own household budget.

I do not buy Schlesinger's attempt to scare me out of my skin when he says: "Now, it may be the decision of the American people and the Congress that we no longer want to be a military power second to none... but if that is the decision, then we are heading in the right direction."

What the warning that brought applause from his audience. Phooey to such a childish reaction. Assorted Pentagon chiefs have been telling us that same thing for more than two decades, and we're still a childish reaction. Assorted Pentagon chiefs have been telling us the same thing for more than two decades, and we're still militarily second to none in the Soviet Union. Maybe we need some new weapons to keep the lead, but each new weapons program should stand on its own feet, not be trumpeted as the savior of our foreign policy.

Schlesinger apparently was looking for a pat on the back when he reminded the committee that military manpower levels are down by 600,000 men.

No hand of mine will deliver that pat. If our military forces have shrunk that drastically and the cost of supporting the Defense Department is still the highest in peacetime, somebody over there has been doing something wrong.

Indochina warnings remind of 'Who lost China?' furore

By JOHN MILNE
WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Who lost Indochina?" Indochina isn't "lost" yet, but President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger are saying that without more U.S. aid, Cambodia will be overrun very soon and South Vietnam will collapse shortly afterwards.

The question recalls a bitter period in recent history, one which profoundly affected U.S. foreign policy. Kissinger's Tuesday news conference raises the possibility such a question may be asked again.

Analysis

"Who lost China?" was hurled again and again at the State Department during the 1950s by the likes of Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis. It often carried accusations of treason, of being gullible to the Communists.

Washington and Peking drew apart. Talk of recognizing and admitting China to the United Nations, was criticized. Conservatives and liberals found their political existence dependent on belligerence. April, 1950 — "The loss of South Vietnam would set in motion a crumbling process in Southeast Asia."

One of irony of the next administration was that Richard Nixon, particularly belligerent about who lost China, would open up a dialogue with Peking and his foreign policy expert, Kissinger, would get U.S. troops out of Vietnam.

Tuesday, Feb. 25, 1975 — Phnom Penh, Cambodia's capital, is surrounded. In South Vietnam, communist troops are moving on Saigon. The secretary of state is asking for additional help, admitting the embattled governments cannot stand without the United States.

"I know it is fashionable to sneer at the 'domino theory,'" Kissinger said. "And we've been torn apart by the Vietnam War long enough. But I do not believe we can escape this problem by assuming the responsibility of condemning those who have dealt with us to a certain destruction." Kissinger says if this commitment is broken, the United States will be considered unreliable. He talked of Congress, so far unwilling to add to $150 billion already spent, afraid of adding to the lives already lost.

"It is my belief that those who are responsible for national policy are accountable not only for the moment but for how it will look several years from now," he said.

In effect, he said "who lost Indochina" should be asked of a "recall" Congress, not the State Department. Last week, 82 members of Congress wrote Ford that "another prolonged disagreement over events in Vietnam and our policy there may lead to acrimonious accusations over who 'lost' Indochina, reminiscent of the China debate over two decades ago."

"We must at all costs avoid a repetition of such a struggle, which will set the Congress against the Executive."

Medics seeking 'escape hatches'

BOISE (UPI) — Practicing physicians told the House State Affairs Committee today that impending loss of their malpractice insurance has created a "crisis" that has many looking for "escape hatches."

A bill to establish Idaho as the basis for the "standard of practice" also might help, he said, pointing out there are some doctors across the nation who "have testimony, will travel."

Argonaut Insurance Co. a major malpractice insurer in Idaho, has notified those it insures that it is dropping their malpractice insurance as of June 1.

"There truly is a crisis and there truly is going to be a loss of competent medical help in Idaho if action is not taken," Dr. Don Griffith, Boise, told the committee.

Dr. Robert Montgomery, Boise, agreed. He said many doctors are sending out with their latest billings to patients a warning that if they don't have some protection from malpractice suits on June 1 they no longer will function as physicians.

He added that it seems a paradox in this country that at a time when the medical profession is at its highest level, of competency and quality it is confronted with the highest malpractice premiums it ever has had.

"If I'm left without malpractice insurance, I couldn't practice," Dr. Montgomery told the committee. Dr. Griffith said limiting recovery to actual rather than punitive and actual damages might help. He said there should not be punitive damages unless there is willful negligence.

Gem court rejects appeal in TF case

BOISE (UPI) — An appeal from a man convicted of grand larceny arguing that testimony from his former wife should not have been allowed was rejected Tuesday by the Idaho Supreme Court.

The court rejected the argument holding that a proper objection to the testimony at trial had not been made.

Charles Clett, was found guilty of the crime in a trial jury in Twin Falls County before Judge James M. Cunningham.

He also argued that his former wife should not have been allowed to testify about certain acts done by Clett. He said introduction of testimony about those acts was precluded by an evidentiary privilege because they were confidential marital communications protected by an evidentiary privilege.

Strike talks stall

CHEYENNE (UPI) — Negotiations between Husky Oil Co. and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union have ended with no progress toward settling a seven-week strike against the company's refineries in Wyoming and Utah.

Dean Stevens, Husky Oil refinery manager, said the two groups did not meet together Tuesday. He said a federal negotiator met separately with each group and relayed messages between the two. Stevens, who participated in negotiations, also said Husky would not meet demands to match an agreement reached by the union with Gulf Oil and other major petroleum companies.

Larry Schleck, a union negotiator, said a wage resister clause would "kill the major stumbling block." The clause would automatically reopen salary talks in 1976 if the Consumer Price Index increased more than 5 percent.

Schleck said the company would not accept the clause which would allow the union to strike after 60 days if negotiations failed.

Parents win $87,000 in Yellowstone death

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A federal court judge, ruling against the government, Monday awarded more than $87,000 to the family of a 24-year-old man mauled to death by a grizzly bear at Yellowstone National Park in 1972.

The suit was brought on behalf of the parents and younger sister of Harry Eugene Walker, of Anniston, Ala. They had sought $500,000 in a wrongful death suit.

U.S. District Court Judge Andrew Hank ruled the federal government, which manages the park, willfully and intentionally failed to post signs in camp grounds and developed areas to warn persons of the danger from bears.

Deanis Martin, district administrator for the Walker estate, had charged the Forest Service failed to take precautions in warning Walker about the bears.

He said grizzlies in the park feed on garbage dumps in undeveloped areas.

Possible witchcraft victim washes ashore

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — The naked body of a girl found washed ashore on the resort coast of the state of Victoria Monday may have been the victim of a witchcraft sacrificial killing, homicide detectives said today.

Although results of an autopsy were not completed, police said it was unlikely she drowned.

Police said the girl's left arm had been cut off and that in the fork of a tree, 15 miles from where the body was discovered, a schoolteacher found a 14-inch clay figure of a nude woman with the left arm missing.

Police said it could have been the spot where the girl entered the water.

"It seems macabre, the statuette and woman both have left arms missing, and it's possible this has been a witchcraft sacrificial killing," a detective said.

Man kisses cobras for a living

GALVESTON, Tex. (UPI) — Ken Jones isn't the biggest alligator wrestler or the bravest snake handler in the world — but the reptiles in his outdoor show don't know that.

"I have to constantly psyche myself out. I totally concentrate on what I do," the slim, 47-year-old grandfather said in an interview. "It's not weight; it's knowledge."

Each day Jones goes before an audience at the Sea-Arram Marineworld and pits himself against alligators weighing up to 400 pounds and stretching 12 feet in length — and some of the world's most poisonous snakes.

"They are reptiles. They react to a situation," he said. "They are not intelligent. That's why you can't train them."

Jones, a native of Ponce de Leon, Fla., has been handling reptiles since he was 7 and living in the bayou country around New Orleans. He learned his unusual profession from an uncle who did the same thing for 50 years.

He stands 5 feet 9 inches and weighs 125 pounds. He believes a knowledge of the reptiles saves him from serious injury, even though he's been bitten 33 times by poisonous snakes and has quit counting the alligator bites.

"Why does he count the snake bites?"

"It's something you don't forget. You never get used to the pain," he said. "It's like a bad burn. There's no pain pill or shot that can take it away."

Jones works with the western diamondback rattlesnake, constrictor cobra, and a six-foot South American imperial box constrictor.

After wrestling the alligators and allowing rattlesnakes to crawl over him, Jones closes each show with the "kiss of death" — kissing an angered cobra on top of his raised hood.

"I base my show on how to instinctively react to a situation," he said. "I believe in what I see. Even though my work is dangerous, I do it because I enjoy it and that's very important."

"I hope to do this until I'm 80."

ERA foes buck system, score major victory

Wednesday, February 26, 1975 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho 7

 Even so, the attempt to bring the resolution to the House floor failed on a test vote. On the actual vote, then, Chalmers himself switched and pulled over the votes of Rep. Steve Annone, R-Rupert, and Speaker of the House Allen Larsen, R-Blackfoot.
 Except for Rep. William Roberts, R-Buhl, all Magic Valley representatives voted to force the ERA repeal resolution out of committee.

 The measure should be on the agenda for a vote in the House Thursday, though consideration could come later.
 Meanwhile, Larsen has referred another resolution to repeal ERA to Chalmers's State Affairs Committee. This "joint resolution" is the same except that it would take a two-thirds majority to pass.

The committee has a lot of work ahead of it. We have a full agenda for every day. It will take its natural course I guess," Chalmers said in regards to the resolution. He predicted it probably would take several days before state affairs votes on the resolution.
 ERA opponents do not want both resolutions before the House at the same time. This, they believe, would give wavering colleagues a chance to vote down the simple majority resolution and support the two-thirds majority resolution which they know cannot pass.
 But, according to House Majority Leader Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, a measure so important as a constitutional amendment should not be determined by a simple majority.
 McDermott termed the ERA battle "a royal waste of time and money," especially since it's unlikely that Congress would recognize a state's rescission of its former ratification of ERA.

"If the measure is passed this year with a simple majority, she said the groundwork will be laid for another battle to re-ratify ERA with a simple majority resolution next year.
 Rep. Butch Otter, R-Nampa, maintained the Senate should be able to rescind the ERA ratification with a simple majority. He recognized the Senate rule calling for a two-thirds majority in taking such action, but said the chamber already has set precedent in breaking this rule.
 As an example, Otter said the Senate repealed Idaho's criminal code on a 19-17 vote in 1972.
 But Senate Pro Tem Ellisworth said that Senate rules clearly call for a two-thirds majority in rescinding a measure passed by that body. He says in 1972 the Senate did not repeal the criminal code, but simply passed a new code.
 To suspend the rules, Ellisworth said, would take a two-thirds majority vote.

How they voted

BOISE (UPI) — Here is the roll call vote by which the House refused 55-37 to excuse the state affairs committee from reporting the equal rights rescinder to the floor for action.
To Excuse
 Andersen, Blodgett, Branson, Braun, Bunting, Clemm, Danielson, Davidson, Dobler, Fils-Filzwager, Gurnsey, Harlow, Hedford, Hovick, Infelt, Jackson, Kennevik, Koch, Kraus, Maynard, McCann, McDermott, Onweiler, Reid, Reynolds, Rice, Roberts, Snyder, Swisher, Twillegar, Wagner, Wheeler.
Not to Excuse
 (forcing resolution to floor)
 Abbot, Alfons, Brackett, Brooks, Chalmers, Clements, Condie, Dean, Emery, Gines, Hale, Hammond, Hollifield, Infanger, Ingram, Johnson (29), Johnson (30), Kearnes, Lewis, Little, Molan, Merrill, Miller, Miner, Mungler, Neider, Olmstead, Otter, Reardon, Scoresby, Sessions, Stivers, Tibbitts, Wesche, Westerberg, Winchester, Larsen.

House panel OK's road proposal

BOISE (UPI) — The House Transportation Committee voted Tuesday night to introduce a $4.2 appropriation for continuation of the highway improvement program in Idaho.

This measure is similar to another which is struck in the House ways and means committee.
 Members also voted to prepare legislation basing auto registration fees on the size of a vehicle's engine. This would raise an additional $4.4 million for the transportation department and provide $2.5 million to cities, counties and highway districts.

Wins primary
MAYOR Richard J. Daley, the 70-year-old power broker who has run Chicago for 20 years, overwhipped three challengers Tuesday in winning a Democratic mayoral primary which is tantamount to four more years in city hall. It will be Daley's sixth term. (UPI)

US fuel proposal drawn up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee is working on a national energy battle plan which could boost gasoline prices as much as 50 cents a gallon by 1980 and eventually curtail oil and natural gas prices.

Congressional Democrats also announced Tuesday they have reached tentative agreement on an overall energy program, but would give no details immediately.

Ways and Means Chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., a strong opponent of President Ford's increased tariffs on imported oil, said he had eight tasks for work at and expects to wrap up the committee's bill by April 18.

The Senate Interior Committee, meanwhile, approved a bill Tuesday that would block Ford from raising oil prices without a go-ahead from Congress. Both House and Senate Democrats are wary of any quick moves on energy.

Ullman said the tentative Ways and Means plan would deregulate gas and oil prices within 10 years, and possibly in five years if combined with a windfall profits tax placed on all gas companies to deter unwarranted price hikes.

The plan would also call for a 20 cents-a-gallon increase in domestic gasoline taxes each year over the next four or five years, coupled with a coupon system that would allow each vehicle a basic amount of weekly gasoline, he said.

"For example, if the figure was set at 10 gallons a week, the consumer purchased in excess of that amount would be taxed at the higher figure. The first 10 gallons could be bought at the current price.

Ullman also said the plan will probably include a cap on oil imports that would be put in place as the economy comes back."

Rabbi still backs Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Let them put me behind bars," former President Nixon told his friends on the eve of his resignation, according to Rabbi Baruch Korff.

Korff, one of Nixon's closest associates in the last days of his presidency and still a staunch defender of the former president, told UPI Tuesday that Nixon felt like a martyr last August.

He also said Nixon told him recently: "I still don't know the full story of Watergate and the coverup." Korff said each of Nixon's aides told him a different story, all "self-serving."

"The tragedy of Richard Nixon is that he is still backfired," said Korff. "If he had been one of the Irish Mafia this would not have come to pass. He was toppled from within more than without, from the time he came into office."

Korff said he is negotiating with a television network to pay $250,000 into the Nixon Justice Fund. He is organizing for a half-hour interview with Nixon on his post-presidential life. He declined to identify the network.

Korff, who has seen Nixon on several occasions since the resignation, quoted the former president as saying, "Of course I was wrong."

Cambodia aid sought

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger are urging Congress in an uncertain time to assume a moral responsibility to save the Cambodian government from communist insurgents. Congress does not seem to be listening.

Together, they pleaded Tuesday for $20 million in emergency aid for Cambodia. Without the money, Ford told Speaker Carl Albert, the Cambodian government will surrender "within weeks" to the guerrilla Khmer Rouge.

The argument was couched in terms that harked back to the Truman administration and the "loss of China," the Eisenhower administration and the theory that weakness in fighting Communists in one part of the world will have repercussions elsewhere — like a falling row of dominoes.

They are saying in effect that any "loss" in Cambodia will be Congress' fault unless it acts.

Congress appears unmoved. Most opinions have opposed this aid and $500 million which the President requested for South Vietnam. Ford's letter to the House floor and the strong statements in Kissinger's Tuesday news conference drew the reaction.

Restricted by a $777-million spending limit for Cambodia, the administration is beginning to do what it can: On Thursday Saigon time, planes will begin airlifting about 1,000 tons of rice, ammunition and fuel each day to Phnom Penh, now cut off by the insurgents. The $4.6 million bill will come out of economic aid for Cambodia.

Assistant Secretary of State Phillip Habib said Tuesday Cambodia will run out of ammunition within a month and out of food by June.

Ford wrote that, "If additional military assistance is withheld or delayed, the government forces will be forced, within weeks, to surrender to the insurgents."

"Are we to deliberately abandon a small country in the midst of its life and death struggle? Is the United States, which so far has consistently stood by its friends through the most difficult of times now to condemn, in effect, a small Asian nation totally dependent on us?"

Kissinger said of South Vietnam that no one ever suggested the Thieu government could exist without U.S. help.

"If the collapse of Southeast Asia is caused by an American decision to withhold aid under conditions in which such a decision can have only one outcome, the conclusion will be inescapable, that it was the United States which has the responsibility."

HENRY KISSINGER gives opinion

Bus rate cut asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Department of Transportation today proposed half-fare bus and subway rides for elderly and "handicapped" passengers on many of the nation's public transit systems.

Proposals to make public transportation more accessible and safer for a potential of more than 14 million such passengers were published in the Federal Register, the government's official record of business.

They include easier-to-reach fare boxes, a sharply reduced level in the first step onto a bus, special accommodations for wheelchair users and easier to read destination and route signs.

Some of the equipment that would be required is not available commercially, said Frank Herringer.

'Options' cut price

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit's automakers are lifting the curtain on a new act to follow their successful cash rebates performance. It features "stripped" models and lower prices.

American Motors Tuesday announced cuts of $16 to $198 on 11 General Motors Corp. Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. are expected to lower selected prices by the time cash rebates of $200 to $500 end Friday.

The decision to lower prices, mainly through removal of some equipment which is now standard, is an admission by Detroit that too many options have been put on cars, making prices higher than buyers are willing to pay.

Rather than actually cutting prices, which the auto companies say they cannot afford, they are removing equipment and leaving it up to customers to decide if items such as tachometers, cigar lighters and steel-belted radial tires are really needed. Like GM, AMC said it would delete some standard equipment, mainly steel-belted radial tires, to bring base prices down. But unlike GM, AMC is actually reducing prices of some option packages.

The biggest cut of $198 on the Gremlin "X" model was accomplished by making some of the equipment in the package optional. It will drop the base price of the Gremlin "X" from $3,197 to $2,999.

The success of the rebates was spelled out again in sales reports from the four companies that showed the industry in the Feb. 11-20 period missed matching last year's level by only 210 cars.

It was the closest automakers have come to matching year-ago level since the 1976 models were introduced last fall. The sharply higher sales pace was highlighted by GM posting a 16 per cent gain over last year, the best year-to-year performance for the plant automaker in 17 months, including the period prior to the Arab embargo.

US AF seeks permission to destroy Agent Orange

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Agent Orange is a defoliant so deadly it was banned in Vietnam. Now the Air Force wants government permission to destroy 2.3 million gallons of it at sea.

There would be no adverse effect on the environment, the Air Force said in its application to the Environmental Protection Agency. The Air Force said it wants to burn the herbicide at 1,400 degrees centigrade aboard the Vulcanus, a special incinerator ship, in the Pacific 850 miles west of Hawaii. Some 40,700 drums of Agent Orange were in storage on Johnston Island in the Pacific and at Gullport, Miss.

If the EPA refuses to grant permission, the Air Force said, it would build an incinerator on Johnston Island to dispose of the defoliant. Agent Orange was used for 10 years in Vietnam before it was banned. The Defense Department ended its use in 1971 after more than 11 million acres of Vietnamese land were sprayed with 33 million gallons.

Ecology groups previously said it contained an ingredient capable of producing a birth defect on laboratory animals. This is TCDD or dioxin, and the environmental organizations said it must be kept out of the atmosphere. Dr. Arthur Galston, a Yale University plant physiologist, said it might be safer to treat Agent Orange chemically before burning it.

A National Academy of Science report last year said the lethal dose for human beings was unknown as was the effect, if any, on unborn babies. But the study said dioxin was birth-deferring in mice.

The Air Force said the incineration would be 99.9 per cent efficient. The burning, officials said, would occur on two voyages in an area 850 miles west of Hawaii and 1,000 — one of the Pacific's most isolated atolls.

Matthew Meselson, a Harvard University biochemist, said he considered the Air Force plan reasonable "but only if samples are taken." He said the job must be closely monitored to make sure the Air Force follows safe procedures.

Ken Kamlet, a law/ethicologist for the National Wildlife Federation, said, "We have said the Air Force — to meet legal requirements — must be able to demonstrate that there is no detectable Orange in exhaust gases leaving the ship."

12-year-old reports bedwetting problem

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm 12 years old and I have a bedwetting problem. My parents get me up a half hour after I go to bed and I'm still soaked. Our doctor said I have to learn bladder control. I try, but I get a stomach ache when I hold it. — Miss T.E.

Yours is a serious problem for a young lady of 12 years. But some effort and understanding on your and your parents' part can help conquer it.

I'll just give you some general thoughts in the hope you will find your answer among them. If it is a recent condition — one of only a couple of years — it could be caused by emotional problems, maybe at school or at home. I hope you are not scolded at home for your wetting accidents.

If you rule out such factors, you can then look for physical causes, such as urinary tract infection. These infections can be treated by your doctor. Or you may have an abnormally small bladder capacity, and even this can be helped. The capacity can be increased by holding your urine during the day as long as you can, even to the point where it does cause a bit of a stomach ache. I am not saying it's easy. It requires patience.

Your Good Health

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Another thing, during the day measure the amount of urine you pass each time. Stop and start the stream. This will improve the tone of the sphincter muscles involved. Try to increase the intervals gradually to three or four hours, and go for a volume of about 10 ounces at a time.

You must also consider the possibility that a food allergy could be responsible for your problem. Common offenders are milk, eggs, fruits (citrus), tomato, corn, wheat products, pork, chicken, chocolate, onions. All are proven offenders in such allergies.

You may eat beef, rice, beets, spinach, sweet potatoes, apricots, and peaches. Avoid wheat and milk particularly. Eat pure rye or rice bread, but be sure there is no wheat flour mixed in, which is often the case.

If you show improvement with these restrictions, you can then start to narrow the field down by adding one of the restricted foods to your diet every third day. If you have no trouble, that food can be eaten. If you have a wetting problem still, then omit it entirely.

Other young people have conquered enuresis (the medical term for bedwetting). From your letter, which I did not print in full, you seem to be the type of girl who can do it, too.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would a woman who experiences frequent depression be advised not to take oral contraceptives? — S. H.

Depression can be a side effect from the pill, and women who have had a history of depression, especially during menstrual periods, should probably avoid it.

For such women, vitamin B-6 preparations could be used to help counteract the depressive effect, however.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it true that an egg with a double yolk is no good? Someone told my husband you can get cancer from them? — Mrs. A.R.

I hope you haven't been throwing too many of those eggs away. They are not in the least harmful, just one of nature's bonuses, a deviation in the egg formation.

The same is true, incidentally, of eggs that have blood streaks in the yolks. Also, brown-colored eggs, laid by red hens, are quite harmless, although outside of certain areas of the eastern part of the country they do not sell well.

Valley couple weds in Kimberly rites

HANSEN — Melynda Mae Dry and Stewart Ross Waldemar were married in a 7 p.m. ceremony Feb. 11 at the Kimberly United Methodist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Dry, Hansen, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Lutfelia Andregg, Kimberly, and Boyd A. Waldemar, Burley.

Rev. Darwin Second performed the ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length empire style gown of white brocade satin featuring trumpet sleeves and a high neckline trimmed with sequins.

Her fingertip veil was of bridal illusion and chantilly type lace. She carried a trailing bouquet of blue and white chrysanthemums tied with blue ribbons. Her gown was borrowed from relatives in Wichita, Kan.

Mrs. Terry Carpenter was matron of honor.

Charles N. Waldemar, serving with the U.S. Coast Guard, was best man. Ken Carpenter and Mike Paris were ushers.

The couple was honored at a reception downstairs at the church following the wedding.

Bonnie Pinkston was in charge of the guest book. Mrs. Marsha Dry, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Robin Dry, sister-in-law of the bride, cared for gifts. Brad McEllitt, cousin of the bride, received gifts at the door.

The bride's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth accented with small blue bows. The three tiered cake was flanked by light blue candles in clear glass holders. The cake was decorated with blue roses in two shades and loop designs between the layers. It was topped with a miniature bridal couple. A lace ruffie surrounded the cake. Blue punch was served.

Mrs. Larry McEllitt, aunt of the bride, cut the cake. Mrs. Iva Davis and Shelly McEllitt, cousin of the bride, served punch.

Following a honeymoon trip to Salt Lake City and Nevada, the couple resides at 208 Ash, Kimberly. Both attended Kimberly schools. The bridegroom is employed by Pacific Iron and Steel, Twin Falls.

George points out quite properly that the ace of hearts represents a sure entry to the West hand; the queen of spades does not. Hence, the best opening lead is the four of spades, not the four of hearts.

This time it works. No writer ever sets up a hand to disprove his theory. Far more important is the fact that it will work far more often that it won't.

Here is another hand we have borrowed from George Coffin.

There is nothing difficult about the hand. South has a normal, notrump opening bid and North a book raise to three.

Five West the king of diamonds and South will have to struggle to score his game. In fact, he won't be able to bring it in; if West opens a spade and the defense does not falter. However, he will have no trouble if West opens a heart.

Dilettante show, champagne dinner tickets now available

TWIN FALLS — Tickets for the first night performance and champagne dinner which opens the 1975 Dilettante theater production are now available.

Bob Latham, chairman of the annual event, said reservations may be made by contacting him at home or at the Bob Reese Motor Co., 733-5778.

The dinner and champagne party will begin at 6:30 p.m. March 13 at the Turf Club. Those attending will then be taken by bus to the Fine Arts Auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho for the opening show at 8:15 p.m. This year's Dilettante production is a musical comedy, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Latham said about 250 persons attended the first night event last year and about the same number will probably participate this year. A center seating section is reserved for the party for the first night's performance. Other seats are available to the public.

Bus returns the first nighters to the Turf Club at the close of the show. Tickets for the champagne party, dinner and show are $25 per couple and must be purchased in advance from Latham.

Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please don't think I'm crazy, but I'm in love with my son-in-law, Lenny is 22, and he's in love with me. (I'm 37.)

It all started when I went to stay at my daughter's house while she was at the hospital having a baby. (She has one child, a year old.)

I don't know how it happened, Abby, but all at once Lenny hugged me, and before I knew it, I was in his arms and we were kissing like a couple of teenagers. I've never been so thrilled in all my life. We went the limit, and now I don't think I can live without him. Lenny says he feels the same way about me. He says the difference in our ages doesn't mean a thing to him. Me either. In fact this 22-year old kid is more of a man than my husband, who is 42.

I would be willing to go anywhere in the world with Lenny, but I don't want to hurt my daughter. Also I have a husband and five other kids at home. Please give me some advice, but don't tell me to give up Lenny. I'm too far gone now.

SEEING STARS

Cool it, mom

DEAR SEEING: You had better quit star-gazing and get back to earth. Your daughter and her children need Lenny. And you have a husband and five children who need you. It may have been a thrilling, new, physical experience, but it's not the kind of stuff of which lasting marriages are made. Cool it, Mom.

DEAR ABBY: Perhaps you can settle a bitter dispute in our family. For the past 14 years, my brother has been running for a local county office on the Republican ticket. A few years ago, my sister's husband got interested in politics, too. Meanwhile, every two years my brother kept filing for this office, thinking that eventually he would win. (He didn't.)

Last April, my brother-in-law decided to run on the Democratic ticket for the same office my brother had been running for for so many years. Well, my brother-in-law won! I said it was unethical for my brother-in-law to have opposed my brother for that office. I was challenged to prove that it was unethical, and I could only say that it is an unwritten law.

I need your help in settling this dispute, Abby.

MISS IN BETWEEN

DEAR MISS: Unwritten laws aren't worth the paper they aren't written on; furthermore, even though it undoubtedly strained family relations, there is nothing "unethical" about it.

DEAR ABBY: I was married to a man for 13 years, and we had three children. After we were divorced I tried to keep in touch with my ex-husband's parents because I wanted my children to know their paternal grandparents even though I had to initiate all the meetings. (I used to take the kids on the bus. My in-laws had a car and it would have been easier for them to come to me, but I didn't let that stop me.) Well, I finally met a very nice man who married me and

Couple says vows

GLENN'S FERRY — Susy Reed and James McLean were married in a 5:15 p.m. ceremony Feb. 8 at the home of the bride's parents.

The single-ring ceremony was performed by Judge Robert Schmidt, Mountain Home.

The bride wore a street-length gown of white eyelid over a blue.

Mrs. Wayne Owen was matron of honor. Wayne Owen was best man.

The couple was honored at a reception following the ceremony at the bride's parents' home.

The two tiered wedding cake, decorated with blue and white flowers, was placed on the bride's table. The table was covered with a white linen cloth. The cake was topped with a miniature bridal couple. Mrs. Owen assisted with cutting the cake and serving coffee.

The bride is a 1972 graduate of Glenn's Ferry High School. She is employed at the Glenn's Ferry Merc.

The bridegroom was graduated from Glenn's Ferry High School in 1967. He served in the US Army for three years and is employed at the Dwayne Skingsburg ranch on the Sailor Creek Farm project. The couple lives in Glenn's Ferry.

Thermal, nuclear power answer to future needs

MALTA — Development of geothermal and nuclear power will be work and cooperation from many sources, Robert D. Padridge, Washington, D.C., said.

The official, who serves as general manager of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association in Washington, addressed the 33rd annual meeting of the Raft River Rural Electric Cooperative Saturday night.

He said the fuel and energy supply cannot meet the nation's need today.

"We are at the mercy of the energy companies of the country. The cost in cost of gasoline will mean hardships to the American farmer and others," he said.

Padridge said the development of geothermal power and nuclear power could be the future answer, but it will require cooperative efforts from the state and national level.

Dr. Jay Kuzne of Aerojet Nuclear Co., project manager in the Raft River area, reported on the status of the program.

"Now that a geothermal resource has been identified by drillers on the Raft River geothermal project, engineers and project officials are wondering what to do with the resource," he said.

He said the geothermal water was discovered at 450 feet below the surface.

Pressure and temperature built up until 280 degrees Fahrenheit temperature was reached at the bottom of the hole. Water at a temperature of 205 degrees gushed out at the top of the hole, immediately flashing to steam in the high altitude, he said.

"Other project officials and I met with drillers and engineers at the site to consider different alternatives for finishing the project.

"The home had to be cooled before drilling can continue. Cold water from Raft River and a nearby small well was poured into the hole to cool temperatures and relieve pressure," he said.

He told the group pressure was measured at 55 lb. per square inch at the peak. Hot water was flowing at a rate of about 1,000 gallons per minute.

The speaker said hot water was retained in a holding pond next to the drilling rig before the hole was capped.

Lowell Miller, another Aerojet representative, presented slides showing the operation of the drilling rig and the flow of hot water.

An audit report for the Raft River Electric was given by John Stearns and Edwin C. Schlender, manager, gave his annual report. Awards were given David Hutchinson, Otis Edwards, Gene Baxter, Boyd Booth, Mrs. Behlendorf, Mrs. Wayne Whitaker and S.N. Smith, for their long years of service to the company.

patients returning from State Hospital, South, Blackfoot, on a one-to-one basis.

Anyone interested in scheduling a program may call Wayne Whitaker and S.N. Smith, for their long years of service to the company.

Jackie Rohweder was welcomed as vice president of the association. Lotus Schmuicker reported the regional mental health advisory board is seeking matching federal funds to provide physical facilities for the mental health center which opened here last September.

Plans also were discussed for the annual membership banquet planned for April.

Health association sponsors speakers

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Mental Health Association plans to initiate a speakers bureau.

Rev. Robert Van Nest, president, said plans were made at a board meeting Monday night at the home of Lorayne Smith to provide speakers for organizations and clubs wanting information about any aspect of mental health.

Since May is nationwide Mental Health Month directors said this will be a good time for groups interested to plan programs. The Mental Health Association sponsors the Holtbe and the Community Friends, a project where volunteers serve as friends to

Party aides named

TWIN FALLS — Several state appointments were announced today by John McAdams, Eagle, chairman of the American Party of Idaho.

The appointments were made during a meeting in Boise Saturday, according to state secretary Alice Jackson, Kimberly.

McAdams named Tom Annett, Filer, as organizational coordinator; John Thiebert, Twin Falls, nomination committee; Al Coonrich, Twin Falls, as chairman of the resolutions and platform committee.

Members attending elected

Mrs. Margaret Mockwitz, Boise, as treasurer for the state group.

Thiebert, Annett and Mrs. Mockwitz were named representatives to the regional American Party meeting of eight Rocky Mountain states to be held March 1 in Salt Lake City.

Mr. and Mrs. Al Westfield, Boise, attended the meeting to speak on statewide educational problems.

The next meeting of the Idaho central committee is scheduled March 22 at 1 p.m. in the Blue Lakes Inn, Twin Falls.

Stalled by snow

A STATE of emergency was declared Tuesday in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, after the city was hit by more than 14 inches of snow Monday. The snow brought the second largest city in Iowa to a standstill. Here two young men lend assistance to a motorist. (UPI)

Postal jobs available

TWIN FALLS — Applications are now available at the Twin Falls Post Office for examination for clerk and carrier positions at the local post office.

Postmaster Lloyd Libert said closing date for the applications is March 6 and all applications must be submitted before March 7 to be eligible for the exam.

Libert said full-time employees start at $9,816 per year and this increases to $12,303. Part-time flexible schedule employees begin at $5.25 and increase to $6.54 per hour.

Applicants will be notified of the date of written examinations, Libert said. As a result of the examination, the office will establish a register of eligibles from which future clerk and carrier vacancies will be filled.

Clerks work indoors and must handle mail sacks weighing up to 70 lbs. They also sort mail and distribute it by using a complicated method which must be memorized.

Carriers must collect and deliver mail. Some walk and others drive but both must be out in all types of weather. Those making town deliveries carry packs weighing up to 35 pounds and frequently load and unload 70 lb. mail sacks.

The positions will be filled by qualified applicants without regard to sex, race, religion, color, national origin, political affiliation or other non-merit factors, Libert said.

GOP aide says Demos lack understanding

TWIN FALLS — Laird Noh, Kimberly, chairman of the Twin Falls County Republican Central Committee, today charged his Democratic counterpart with a lack of understanding of state government.

Noh said Steve Carter, county Democratic chairman, was out of line in accusing the "Republican dominated legislature" with playing petty political games in attempting to prevent Lt. Gov. John Evans from being chairman of the Land Selection Committee.

"This is a major standing committee of the Idaho Legislature. As such, the majority party chooses the chairman, just as is the case of every other legislative standing committee," Jack Murphy who served as previous chairman when he was Idaho lieutenant governor, was chosen by the Republican majority because of his successful experience in negotiating on behalf of the state with the federal government over payment of large fire fighting costs. Murphy's experience in this technical field coupled with the fact he is a lawyer caused the selection," Noh said.

He said he was not chosen because he was lieutenant governor. Evans, Noh said, is neither a lawyer nor has he had appropriate experience to serve as chairman.

"The Republican legislature should no more install a Democrat as chairman of a major legislative party than Gov. Cecil Andrus should choose Speaker of the House Allan Larsen to serve as head of the Department of Administrative Services," the GOP chairman said.

Why Do You Speak Poor English?

A well-known publisher reports there are simple techniques in using everyday English, which can pay you real dividends in social and business advancement by helping you to express your ideas in a more interesting and convincing manner.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how important it is to know how to use effective English. Whether in business, social functions or even in casual conversation with strangers, there are ways you can use the English language to make a good impression each time you speak or write.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday English, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a 2-page booklet, "How You Can Gain a Command of Good English," which will be sent free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Simply send your name, address and zip to English Division, Career Institute, Dept. 525-17, Sherman Turnpike, Danbury, Conn. 06816.

Bicentennial discussed

SHOSHONE — Dr. J. M. Neil, executive director of the Idaho Bicentennial Commission, met with interested persons in Shoshone this week to discuss bicentennial activity.

Dr. Neil stopped in Shoshone by invitation, Mayor E. R. Werry said. He said it is not his objective to tell any area what to do by way of observing the bicentennial, but rather, he serves in a capacity of "explaining what the bicentennial is all about and what some other areas are doing."

Anything that might improve an area might be adopted as a project or projects may be taken up along a more historical nature.

There was no decision reached at the meeting as to whether or not Shoshone would do anything. Mayor Werry said he did not feel it was a project for the City Council, but was rather a service organization project, but that he does encourage local people to promote a worthwhile project.

Bond plan defeated at Eden

EDEN — Eden voters Tuesday overwhelmingly rejected a $152,000 bond issue that would have financed improvements to the city's water system.

The vote was 100 against and 36 for the bond issue. A simple majority was needed for passage.

However, Mayor James LuIow today said city water users are still going to pay for "the improvements in spite of the defeated bond issue. Water fees now will be boosted to bring in "approximately the same amount as if the bond had passed," he said.

"The only thing is, they will be paying over at least a 29-year period, whereas if the bond had passed it would have been done this year," he added.

"I'm sure that this jelly council won't try another election," LuIow said.

About $8,000 of the bond issue would have been used to pay off a new water storage and pumping system in the city. The rest would have been spent to update the water lines, provide some new water hookups to houses and install additional fire hydrants.

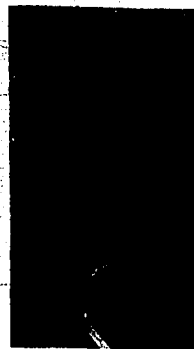

"Some of the water lines are so small that you just can't get the water through," LuIow said today.

ABOUT 450 people gathered Tuesday night in Burley to honor the Magic Valley men and women at the 16th Annual Livestock Hall of Fame Banquet. The only rancher inducted, elderly Eugene Pickett of Oakley, was too ill to attend and was represented by his son, Floyd. Other inductees were Curtis Eaton, Twin Falls banker, Mrs. Mary Knox Jensen, Glenn Ferry banker, Theodor and Thorleif Rangen, a father and son team from Buhl who are feed and trout producers, and Earl Stansell, Twin Falls banker.

Blaine trial slated

By BART QUESNELL
Times-News writer

— HALEY — A trial to decide private individual rights along Big Wood River is scheduled for March 12 at the Blaine County courthouse in Haley.

Three separate complaints have been consolidated against a Kelchum man for alleged diversion of water.

The Idaho attorney general filed suit over a year ago against Owen Simpson, Kelchum, contending Simpson trespassed on state land.

In June of 1974, Thomas Camplin, Kelchum, located just downstream from the alleged diversion, filed suit against Simpson for causing flood water to be diverted onto Camplin's property.

The Idaho Department of Water Resources followed with a suit against Simpson contending he was in violation of the Stream Channel Protection Act.

Nathan Higer, attorney for the Department of Water Resources, said Wednesday the department's suit contends Simpson completely blocked a channel of the Big Wood River, downstream from the Warm Springs Bridge, which is a violation of the 1971 Idaho Stream Channel Protection Act.

The department is seeking removal of the blockage, he said.

Camplin contends the blockage of the one channel in Big Wood River narrowed the main channel which increased the velocity of flood waters against his property. Camplin is seeking removal of the fill and $140,000 in compensatory and punitive damages.

The attorney general's suit contends Big Wood River is a navigable river belonging to the people of the state of Idaho. The suit contends the former river bed, now covered with fill, belongs to the state of Idaho and that Simpson is trespassing.

Terry Coffin, assistant in the attorney general's office, said a like case of riverbed trespass has never arisen in the state's courts.

Simpson, who owns land just west of Big Wood River, has filed a counter suit against Camplin, local Flood Control District No. 9, the city of Kelchum and several persons situated on Big Wood River south of the Warm Springs Bridge. Simpson contends "the cross-defendants have unlawfully and without right artificially filled or otherwise obstructed at various points and various times, the bed of Big Wood River."

According to the suit, those acts by the cross-defendants have caused the channel of Big Wood River to be diverted upon Simpson's property.

Simpson's counter-suit does not mention the diversion or who was responsible for the diversion. Simpson's attorney James Kennedy, Twin Falls, said he could not answer questions pertaining to the suit because of the pending trial date in March.

Simpson seeks $50,000 in damages, and an injunction against the cross-defendants to cease filling the channel of the Big Wood River.

FLOYD PICKETT, son of Livestock Hall of Fame honoree Eugene Pickett of Oakley, appears lost in thought as his father's accomplishments were listed a few moments before the younger Pickett accepted the stockmen's honor for his siling father.

Tot bill draws varied opinions

BOISE (UPI) — An Eastern Idaho Legislator charged today in an attempt to amend the house-passed $3.3 million public kindergarten bill was merely an effort to destroy it.

Rep. C. L. Tridick, Otter, R-Caldwell, told the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee he did not want to kill the bill. He said he only wanted to amend it to allow all school districts to receive their share of money even if they didn't have a kindergarten program.

Sen. Stan Kress, D-Firth, said the "only design of this amendment is to destroy the bill completely."

Kress said he would have to oppose the amendment because he felt it would "pit one program against another program and thus destroy them both."

He asked that committee chairman John Barker, R-Buhl, to set a time either Thursday or Friday so that the bill could be acted upon.

"I'm just as eager as you are to act," said Barker, adding he hoped it would be possible for the committee to act upon the bill Thursday morning.

Otter said he had attempted to have the kindergarten bill amended in the house because it discriminated against those districts which would not have the facilities to have kindergartens.

"They shouldn't be denied a rebate for enrichment programs," he said.

Otter said this may raise a constitutional question, which prompted Sen. Larry Craig, R-Midvale, to counter that "it was not the responsibility of the legislature to interpret the constitution."

Craig did agree that the amendment would enhance educational opportunities. He said he could not understand the Department of Education's "rigidity to this amendment."

Sen. Leon Swenson, R-Nampa, said he was not opposed to kindergartens per se, but he said there were voids in other areas of education that should be filled first.

Agency opposes vote proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department said today it opposes a proposed constitutional amendment to require a special presidential election when an appointed vice president becomes chief executive.

Assistant Attorney General Antonin Scalia told the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Constitutional Amendments the proposal, if adopted, would "create a transition period in which the executive branch and the government are enfeebled."

Scalia said that under the amendment proposed by Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., the country could not hold a "normal" election to select a new president and it would reduce the vice president, who would accede to the presidency, to a "caretaker."

"In short," Scalia said, "unless the government is to be left in the hands of a powerless caretaker for an intolerably long period, it does not seem to me that the process which the proposed amendment establishes would produce 'the people's choice' in anything like the normal sense."

Pastore proposed that if a presidential vacancy occurs a special election would be called by Congress, and the vice president would hold the office of president until the election had chosen a successor.

The subcommittee is holding hearings on the 25th Amendment — under which both President Ford and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller achieved their jobs without popular election — to consider how it should work in future cases.

"The time might come when this could happen again," Pastore said Tuesday, "when this country will be subjected to having two individuals who have not been elected by the people."

"I think even Gerald Ford would feel a lot more comfortable if he were elected by the people."

Scalia said the existing 25th Amendment, approved by Congress in 1965 and ratified by two-thirds of the states in 1967, works when called to its supreme test.

He said Pastore's proposal could "permit a Republican administration to be replaced by a Democratic one, or viceversa, within a year after its election."

New Filer vo-ag building toured during open house

By MARJORIE LIERMAN
Times-News Writer

FILER — Filer's high school vocational-agriculture teacher thinks young people are finding futures in agriculture more attractive than in past years.

"I think many young people are returning to farming," Gordon Bennett, high school vo-ag teacher, said. He believes vocations concerned with agriculture hold a good future as with an ever-growing world population and with the need for food the American farmer will be the one to whom the entire world will look.

Bennett has a class of 59 students taking vo-ag this year, 3 of whom are girls. About 95 per cent of the students live on farms and most are planning to make agriculture their careers.

Agriculture and vocational shop work go hand in hand, Bennett believes, as a farmer can save many hours of labor and much expense if he is able to overhaul and repair his own farm machinery.

Bennett was in charge of the open house for the new vo-ag building Tuesday evening. The 40x120-foot building was completed last December at a total cost of $85,815 with the money being paid by plant facilities.

The large, well-lighted building has a 40 x 80-foot shop, as well as a classroom, office, storage space and rest rooms. Work on the cinder block building south of the high school was begun in the fall of 1973.

The shop contains a wood-working area, gas forge, welding center and equipment for overhauling motors. The class is now working on overhauling four-cylinder lawn mower motors.

Some of the finishing work in the building was done by the students themselves. They put up the wood paneling in the office, made benches and lockers and other equipment.

Bennett said the time spent in classroom and shop is about evenly divided. The three girl students are proving as adept as the boys at overhauling motors and other shop work, he said.

One wall of the classroom is filled with shelves to hold agriculture judging trophies which the students have won. A number of these were brought from a livestock exposition some of them attended last fall.

MR. and Mrs. Marvin Arnes are shown some of the welding equipment at the Filer High School vo-ag building during its open house Tuesday evening by Gordon Bennett, vo-ag instructor. Ray Campbell, student, is shown at right.

MV project may benefit from matching US funds

TWIN FALLS — Several sewage treatment projects in the Magic Valley may benefit from new allocations of federal matching funds announced Tuesday.

The US Environmental Protection Agency released another $10.5 million to Idaho for sewage treatment plant construction. That sum will be combined with $7.7 million that was allocated in January for a total of $18.2 million in federal money.

Projects in Rupert, Albion, Hazelton, Jerome, Burley-Heyburn and Hagerman will be reevaluated as a result of the new allocation and might get more funds in fiscal 1976.

The additional funding depends on whether the individual projects are "ready to construct," according to Doris Schneider, information officer for the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare.

If they can use the money immediately, they will probably receive it, she said. But if they are in preliminary stages or aren't in a position to move ahead, they probably will be passed by.

The state has set up a project priority list that will be used in allocating the additional funds.

Among the top 30 on the list are the following Magic Valley projects (their priority ratings, estimated total cost of the project and funds allocated thus far are given in that order): Rupert, 3, $2.15 million, $1.625 million; Albion, 4, $300,000, $270,000; Hazelton, 5, $150,000, $112,500; Jerome, 11, $3 million, $187,500; Burley-Heyburn, 16, $500,000, $22,500, and Hagerman, 28, $542,000, $30,750.

The release of federal funds Tuesday resulted from a US Supreme Court decision last week which freed impounded money.

The federal allocations finance 75 per cent of eligible costs for planning, designing and construction of interceptor and treatment plants, with the state providing another 15 per cent and the local government paying the final 10 per cent.

Schneider said state funds are available to match the entire $18.2 million federal allocation.

Shoshone aides oppose city sales tax proposal

SHOSHONE — Members of the Shoshone Chamber of Commerce went on record in opposition to any new state legislation that would give cities within the state the power to levy city sales taxes.

The chamber secretary was instructed at the Tuesday noon meeting to write to legislators stating the local chamber's opposition to such action, as proposed by HB80.

The chamber also discussed the desirability of the present sales tax being removed from all groceries. They did not take formal action on this matter, however.

In other business at the meeting, chamber committee members to the bicentennial, Floyd Silva and D.H. Hansen, reported along with Mayor E.R. Werry.

Hansen said each community is encouraged to do whatever they would like to do to observe this event in 1976. Mayor Werry said he did not feel the meeting with Dr. J.M. Nell, executive director of the Idaho Bicentennial, last week had proven successful, due to lack of constructive activity, on the part of local people.

Suggestions regarding what might be done in Shoshone ranged from more display of the American flag, to display of oldtime pictures, celebrations and improvement projects for the community.

Mrs. Hilida Mull was appointed the new chamber representative to North Side Communities Inc., with Harrell Thorne asked to continue as the other delegate. A letter from Sen. Frank Church regarding control of the Panama Canal Zone was read, in which the senator stated he would support any measure that would be of best interest to the United States.

Fertilizer supplies short

MONMOUTH, Ill. (UPI) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz has warned that farmers will face a fertilizer shortage this spring.

Butz blamed the fertilizer problem on Congress for taxing natural gas at the wellhead, and said Monday he hopes the tax will be removed next year so supplies will increase.

"We're going to have more fertilizer this spring than we had last year, but there won't be enough to go around, especially nitrogen," Butz told reporters at a news conference before addressing a Lincoln Day dinner here.

"The thing that makes us short of nitrogen is a shortage of natural gas," Butz also repeated his support of President Ford's proposed fuel rebate program for farmers.

"The president wisely recognized farmers simply have to have fuel and they can't pass the increased costs on," he said. "He's proposed a rebate system for non-highway use of fuel that I think will start about 10 cents a gallon and will take care of all family farmers in this state. It should enable them to get their fuel at no added net costs."

Butz also said the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare should take over responsibility for the food stamp program.

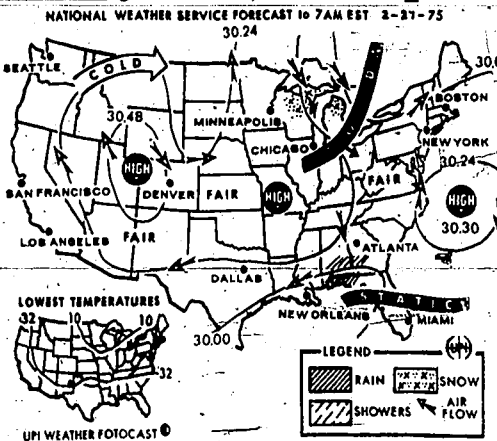

"Our welfare program is a shambles. There's a lot of chiseling in it," he said. "There are a lot of people on food stamps who don't belong there. We have students on, food stamps whose parents are well fixed back home. I think it's time we attacked this thing head on, stop the chiseling — make sure the savings go to genuinely poor people."

Coastal clouds may reach Idaho

Twin Falls, northside, Burley-Tupet areas.
Areas of fog and low clouds becoming fair this afternoon. Increasing clouds tonight and Thursday with a slight chance of a few snow showers. The high both days 25 to 40. The overnight lows in the mid 20s. The outlook for Friday, cloudy.

Hayley, Camas Prairie, lower Wood River Valley.
Partly sunny and warmer today. Increasing clouds tonight and Thursday with a slight chance of snow showers. Overnight lows 10 to 15. The high Thursday in the 30s. The outlook for Friday, cloudy and warmer.

Synopsis:
A ridge of high pressure located over the northwest this morning shows signs of weakening. Late weather satellite pictures and weather radar indicate the incoming Pacific storm system located along the Washington-Oregon coast this morning to be more potent than previously indicated. This will erode the ridge slightly over Idaho, allowing some clouds and a little precipitation to penetrate the southern sections of the state, especially over the mountains, Thursday and Friday.

State aides urge US farm price floor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic heads of state agriculture departments urged Monday that Congress put a floor under farm prices that would at least equal farmers' production costs.

The group of about 30 state officials, headed by Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White, called for the increase in so-called "target prices" in meetings with chairmen of both the House and Senate agriculture committees.

The state officials also met with two Democratic vice-presidential candidates, Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas.

White, speaking for the group at a news conference, said "realistic" target prices were needed to head off planned cutbacks in production by farmers.

"Adequate production of food and fiber for consumers worldwide depends upon the American farmer's being able to realize price assurance at least equal to his total production costs," White said.

Under 1973 farm legislation, farmers of key commodities would be eligible for government payments if prices drop with an increase reflecting higher production costs if land rent is not included.

White and other state farm officials said that failure to include land rental would be "irresponsible" and discourage young people from entering farming.

Asked whether the group had talked to Butz about farm problems, White said, "Well, nobody talks to Secretary Butz — they just listen."

White said the group had not discussed the possibility of Butz resigning but felt that he had been "an unfortunate experience for America." "I think (Butz) probably is leaving," White said, "but that's a decision for the President to make."

Farmers' income declines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Farmers' dropped slightly behind nonfarm residents in average income in 1974, after a brief stand atop the economic ladder the previous year, an agriculture department report said today.

Economists said per capita after-tax income of the nation's farm residents last year — a total which includes earnings from non-farm sources as well as from agriculture — dropped to $4,577. The figure had reached a record $4,820 in 1973 when net farm income was at an all-time high.

Per capita income of non-farm citizens, meanwhile, rose from $4,270 in 1973 to $4,625 last year.

As result of the changes, economists said per capita farm income dropped from 112.9 per cent of the nonfarm average in 1973 to 99 per cent last year.

Agriculture Department statistics showed 1974 was the only year for which statistics are available in which per capita income of farm people had topped earnings of non-farm people.

MODESTO, Calif. (UPI) — Protesting farm workers say they'll march through the heart of California's rich agriculture country toward the nation's largest winery is "going swell."

About 250 persons were marching through the Central Valley Monday, the United Farm Workers Union said, and a group of clergy was coming from St. Louis to join the marchers Tuesday.

The target of the farm workers union marchers is the giant E.J. Gallo winery. Both the farm workers and the Teamsters Union want to represent grape workers at the winery.

Camas County, Carey meet in A-4 semi-finals tonight

GOODING — Defending state champion Camas County and aspiring Carey collide Wednesday night in what should be the pivotal game of the fourth district A-4 basketball tournament.

The winner will advance to Friday night's in the knowledge that someone will have to defeat them twice to take the district championship and the lone berth in the state tournament next week in Lewiston.

Prior to that battle of undefeated teams, Dietrich and Richfield will meet at 7 p.m. with the loser ending its season. The winner will play the loser of the Camas-Carey game Thursday night and that survivor will go against the undefeated team Friday.

The undefeated team already have played three times this season. Carey won its home floor 67-52 but had a harder time in two games at Fairfield, winning the first 79-75 and the second 73-71 in overtime.

It is basically height against quickness and outside shooting. Carey is considerably taller than the Musers, meaning Camas County will have to work extra hard inside.

It probably also means that Camas County will chase the ball over the floor.

Because of its height, Carey rather likes to stay in a com-pet defense, figuring its difficult to lose to outside shooting. But the Musers have come up with three men who have scored well above 20 points in a game — almost all from the outside.

Guard Ben Stroud hit 30 or better five times during the season and Larry Lee and Novis have been in the middle 20s.

Neither Dietrich nor Richfield has really hit its full stride in the tournament. Richfield came closest in battling Camas County to within four points.

The point totals of the two teams haven't been that bad — just the way they've been arrived at. Dietrich has had a four and six-point quarter. Richfield has had a pair of six-pointers.

The winner of this tournament will meet the sixth district champion in the second game in the state meet's opening afternoon session.

Clemson disclaims new rumor

CLEMSON, S.C. (UPI) — The Clemson basketball team left for College Park, Md., and a crucial meeting with Maryland Tuesday as another report surfaced about alleged recruiting violations.

Clemson President Robert C. Edwards said in a statement that the reports in a copyrighted story by Washington Post sportswriter Mark Asher are the latest in a continuation of "vicious-type rumors."

Asher said he had been told by sources that an NCAA investigation revealed that "at least seven tickets were given to two former Clemson players" for their personal use in violation of NCAA rules.

Edwards said new allegations always emerge on the eve of an important Atlantic Coast conference game involving Clemson. The Tigers play Maryland Wednesday night in a game in which at least a share of the ACC regular season championship will be at stake.

"For many months the basketball program at Clemson University has been the target of the most vicious type rumors and allegations," Edwards said.

"Clemson University has been cognizant of these malicious rumors and has cooperated fully with the NCAA and its investigators," Edwards said. "We requested the NCAA to complete an investigation and two of its investigators, Doug Dunlop and Dave Best, were on campus during January."

"They had access to all information they wanted and interviewed everyone with whom they wanted to talk," he said.

Las Vegas says boosters great

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — Bill Ireland, director of athletics for the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, said Tuesday there was never pressure brought by the Boosters' Club to reinstate a star running back on the Rebel football team.

Ireland appeared before the state Senate Finance Committee to answer questions about the $50,000 a year financing of the nationally-ranked Rebel football and basketball teams by the Boosters, allegations of pressures on coaches and the shortage of tickets to the general public.

Sen. Floyd Lamb, chairman of the committee, had complained initially about booster pressure on football coach Ron Meyers to reinstate All-America candidate Mike Thomas. Ireland said the Boosters did not exert any pressure.

"The pressure from the Boosters was to back coach Meyers all the way—whatever his decision," Ireland said.

He said All-America basketball candidate Tobey Houston was dropped from the team several years ago because of grades and the Boosters did not complain.

Ireland told the committee he has rejected scholarship donations in some "sensitive areas."

"We do take a look. We are concerned. We have turned some down," he said.

Lamb initially had questioned the source of some of the contributions and cautioned against accepting donations from bookies.

At the first meeting, Lamb complained the "tail was wagging the dog" because of the big contributions from private individuals. He said he would like to see the state finance the program.

He said he supports the Rebels but "we don't want anything bad to happen."

Sen. Mahlon Brown had complained that some longtime supporters of the university were unable to get tickets to basketball games because most of them were going to the big doors.

However, Ireland said only one game was sold out in 1973 and none this year in basketball. He explained that one-third of the tickets go to students and faculty, some 1,600 to the Boosters and 2,000 are left for the general public.

Ireland said a Booster who gives $75 will get two season tickets and the cost of these comes out of the donation.

When it ends up, Ireland said, the Booster will be able to claim a tax deduction of only $100.

Baltimore sends Powell to Indians in 4-player swap

MIAMI (UPI) — Inog Powell, the American League's most valuable player in 1970 and the second all-time leading home run hitter in Baltimore history, was traded to the Cleveland Indians Tuesday in a four-player swap that brought catcher Dave Duncan to the Orioles.

Don Hood, a promising left-handed pitcher, also went to the Indians as part of the trade. The Orioles received minor league outfielder Alvin McGrew, who will report to their Rochester farm club in the International League.

The trade reunites Powell with former teammate Frank Robinson, now the manager of the Indians. The two sluggers are teammates for six seasons at Baltimore and averaged 56 homers per year between them.

"I like the deal," said Robinson. "Hood will be given a chance to start and I think he could also be valuable in the bullpen. The trade also gives us a set lineup. With Powell at first base and John Ellis behind the plate, we have solidified our positions."

Powell hit 393 home runs in his 13 years with the Orioles and ranks second to Brooks Robinson in six different club offensive categories. His best season was the Orioles' world championship year of 1970 when he hit 35 homers and drove in 114 runs to win league MVP honors. He has played in four different World Series.

York Yankees for the AL East Division title.

Duncan, 29, is only a .226 lifetime hitter, but the Orioles were interested in his home run power and his defensive ability. The former Oakland A's catcher, who was instrumental in the A's seventh game victory over Cincinnati in 1973, has hit 67 home runs in the last four years. Last year he hit 16 with 46 RBIs, but registered only .200 batting average.

Hood, a 25-year-old left-handed pitcher, who was openly sought by Frank Robinson, spent the last year and a half with the Orioles but has only a 4-3 lifetime record. Hood, the Orioles' top draft choice in 1969, was 1-1 with one save in 20 games in 1974.

Wepner conducts public workout

KEHONKSON, N.Y. (UPI) — Chuck Wepner, prepping for his heavyweight title match with champion Muhammad Ali at Cleveland on March 24, celebrated his 25th birthday Tuesday by sparring six rounds before a contingent of local area newsmen.

Before engaging in his brisk workout, Wepner asked everyone present to bow their heads in a moment of silence in memory of Elijah Muhammad, father of Ali's manager, who died Tuesday. Los Angeles promoter George Parousos, who also died Tuesday; and former heavyweight champion James J. Braddock, who died last year.

Wepner then boxed two rounds apiece with sparnates Charlie Wright, Bob Rooney and Conrad Tooker to bring his total sparring rounds to 78.

Wepner told the crowd that he was excited about all the support he was getting from fans and former fighters.

He said he had received a special offer earlier in the day from Tony Galento, a former heavyweight who once came close to dethroning Joe Louis for the championship. "He volunteered to come to my camp and instruct me how to fight and beat Ali," said Wepner.

Galento, a tough in tumbler fighter similar to Wepner, came within seconds of beating Louis in a 1939 title bout. Louis was down in the second round but arose to knock out Galento in the fourth.

Irish rip Fordham

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — Adrian Dantley, who was ejected from the game with 18:13 left in the second-half, scored 23 points Tuesday night to lead Notre Dame to a lopsided 98-61 victory over Fordham.

Dantley, a six-foot-5 sophomore, and Fordham's Darryl Brown, a 6-foot-7 senior, were whistled for double flagrant fouls in a collision under the Notre Dame basket with the Irish leading 59-27. A flagrant foul is accompanied by immediate ejection from the game.

However, the Irish were never threatened the rest of the way without their leading scorer, and easily won their 17th game in 25 outings. They extended their advantage to 41 points before Coach Digger Phelps, facing the school he coached before taking the Notre Dame job three years ago, cleared his bench.

Fordham never led, and the Irish surged quickly into a 16-6 lead in the early going. Fordham drew back within 16-12, but the Irish quickly pulled away again behind Dantley's inside shooting.

N.C. drops N.C. State

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — Thirteenth-ranked North Carolina, paced by Phil Ford and Mitch Kupchak, held off a late comeback by sixth-ranked North Carolina Tuesday night for a 76-71 Atlantic Coast Conference victory.

North Carolina State's Tim Stoddard missed a field goal in the final seconds to leave the Wolfpack two points short of an overtime.

Ford had 22 points—19 in the first half—to lead the Tar Heels while Kupchak had 18. Walter Dier was added 12 for North Carolina, which stands 7-4 in the ACC and 17-7 overall.

Louisville cops title

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The fourth-ranked Louisville Cardinals scored their last six points at the free throw line in a 75-69 victory over West Texas State Tuesday night and clinched a tie for the Missouri Valley Conference championship and a berth in the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Louisville, 21-2 this season overall and 11-2 in league play, defeated West Texas State 75-69 in a game that was followed by Dallas Smith with 18 for the Buffaloes, 61-16 for the year and 3-10 in the conference.

Junior 6-8 center Reggie Barney led all scorers with 20 points and was followed by Dallas Smith with 18 for the Buffaloes, 61-16 for the year and 3-10 in the conference.

Providence rips Villanova

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Providence Bill East scored 22 points and Joe Hasselt and Mark McAndrew 16 each Tuesday night as Providence pulled away in the second half for an 84-67 victory over Villanova at the Palestra.

Providence led only 38-35 at halftime but quickly turned the game into a rout when Hasselt began to find the range.

Bullets trim Braves

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Mike Riordan and Elvin Hayes led a 40-point third quarter and The National Basketball Association's winningest team, the Washington Bullets, pushed to a 114-91 victory over the Buffalo Braves Tuesday night.

Riordan scored 14 of his 20 points and Hayes got 11 of his team-high 31 as the Bullets streaked from a 49-46 halftime lead to a 27-point command, 89-62, after three quarters. Phil Chenier added 21 points, Kevin Porter 11 and Mick Weatherston 10 in Washington collected its third straight win and seventh in eight games.

The Bullets top the Central Division with a 45-17 record.

Sonics defeat Knicks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spencer Haywood poured in 37 points but it took a free-throw barrage by Seattle in the final minutes to overcome a nine-point New York fourth quarter advantage as the SuperSonics defeated the Knicks for the first time in 14 games, 102-101, Tuesday night.

Fred Brown scored the winning points with a pair of free throws after being fouled on a rebound by New York's Cliff Glassell with five seconds left. Brown gave Seattle a 109-99 lead. Calvin Skinner hit a free throw to give Seattle 109-99 lead with 48 seconds remaining. Just after Tom Burleson and Chick Watts hit two free throws apiece.

Haywood hit five of his 11 first half points in the final 10 minutes to give Seattle a 51-46 lead at intermission.

New York, which held a 36-25 lead after the first period on eight points and five rebounds by Mel Davis, became sloppy midway in the second quarter, losing the ball several times on steals and committing unnecessary fouls.

Rupp seeks end to recruiting problem

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — Former Kentucky basketball coach Adolph Rupp suggested Tuesday night that abolition of athletic scholarships might end recruiting abuses on the nation's college campuses.

"Something is wrong with the way we are running our high schools and recruiting program," Rupp said in an address to players, coaches and athletic directors of the 15-school West Virginia Conference at a dinner on the eve of the conference's basketball tournament.

Rupp said he understood recruiting irregularities were worse in football than in basketball.

"I do say this," Rupp said. "They got to do something. That's what the NCAA is having meetings about all the time."

"I wish they would get away from giving scholarships to anybody. Maybe that's the answer. Kids will still go to college and get a lot of good out of it."

TVCC spoils CSI's season finale with 82-75 upset

ONTARIO — The Treasure Valley Chukars, hitting extremely well from well outside, stunned the College of Southern Idaho Golden Eagles 82-75 and ruined the season finale for the eighth-ranked Eagles.

CSI went to Ontario seeking its fourth victory of the season over TVCC which also would have given the Eagles the best percentage record in the school's history. But the distinctions all went to Treasure Valley which won 20 games for the first time in any of its seasons and also posted the first victory in history over CSI.

CSI which had won a couple by 50 points and other by 17 over the Chukars, led only twice in the early going. It's last time was at 8-6 and TVCC then moved ahead on two howlers by Jones.

TVCC pushed into six 9-point leads over the next few minutes and then streaked out to 37-26. But in the closing three minutes, Gary Yoder hit five points and Ken Davis added a field goal to pull CSI to within 39-33 at intermission.

Hopes of that flurry carrying into the second half evaporated rapidly as Chris Binder took over in the bombing department, hitting three straight with about four minutes gone and sending TVCC up by 51-37.

That was the high point as CSI kept battling back to within seven or eight but TVCC always had a reply flurry in store.

Probably the signal for the end came with 3:27 left after Davis and Yoder had cut the deficit to 70-52. Thomas and Woodman hit three free throws and CSI wasn't really in contention again until Oscar Sprull reduce TVCC's lead to 78-71 with 58 seconds remaining.

CSI was fouling a lot trying to get the ball bogs but Thomas and Jensen hit four free throws each to foil that play.

Coach Gayle Fillmore, a Valley product, said the victory should put his Chukars into good mental condition for a showdown Friday night at Idaho. Ricks still has North Idaho and TVCC left to play in the "regional berth" standings. North Idaho, which nipped Ricks by three in Coeur d'Alene, will be at Rexburg Thursday night.

Should North Idaho repeat its upset, TVCC could win the regional berth outright with a Friday decision. But if Ricks would win, the Chukars would have to win Friday to throw the matter of the second Idaho berth in regional into a playoff.

76ers sign San Diego's Jones

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia 76ers of the NBA Tuesday announced the signing of 6-11 center Caldwell Jones, who is in the last two years of a contract with the San Diego Conquistadors of the ABA.

Pat Williams, general manager of the 76ers, said Jones, 27, would join the 76ers in 1977 after his ABA contract expires.

Williams refused to disclose details of the contract, but said it was a "multi-year" pact covering "more than three but less than seven years."

Jones, a graduate of Albany (Ga.) State, was the NBA club's second round draft choice in 1973. He signed with the Conquistadors after attending Philadelphia's training camp but failing to reach agreement with then general manager Don DeJardin.

He is averaging 18.9 points and 14.2 rebounds per game for the last-place Conquistadors this season.

"We scouted Caldwell in Kings outfit several games this season," Williams said, "and we liked him. We think he's better than any of the centers we could get in this year's college draft."

Jones' business manager and representative, Tom Meahan, said he had had contract talks with San Diego general manager Alex Groza, but had failed to reach an agreement. He said Jones had one year remaining on his ABA contract.

Williams said he did not expect Jones to be freed from his contract, but added that "it is conceivable" that the financially-troubled Conquistadors could contact him about purchasing Jones' contract.

"We are proceeding on the basis that Caldwell will be with us in two years," Williams said.

"I'll still play as hard as I always have," Jones said when asked how his signing will affect his performance for the Q's. "It doesn't change anything."

Jones averaged 15 points and 13.9 rebounds a game for San Diego last season. At Albany State he averaged 18.9 points and 23.6 rebounds per game.

Williams said the 76ers had ended their search for a dominating center with the signing of Jones, whom he called "the best shot-blocking center in basketball."

BUCKS 93-90

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Nate Archibald, scoring 14 of his 37 points in the final quarter, sank four free throws in the final 37 seconds Tuesday night and led the ailing Kansas City-Omaha Kings to a 93-90 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks.

The victory was the Kings' 12th in their last 13 games and 15th in their last 20. The Bucks' loss was their third straight and eighth in their last 12 outings.

Milwaukee, with Bob Dantridge scoring 15 of his 21 points in the third quarter, roared from a seven-point halftime deficit to a 72-67 lead entering the final quarter.

Q: "What can I do about my dog's bad breath?"

A: He probably has it for the same reasons people have it: tart, decaying food particles and infected gums. Give him crunchy food that requires plenty of vigorous chewing like Blue Mountain Instant Mix.

The victory was the Kings' 12th in their last 13 games and 15th in their last 20. The Bucks' loss was their third straight and eighth in their last 12 outings.

Milwaukee, with Bob Dantridge scoring 15 of his 21 points in the third quarter, roared from a seven-point halftime deficit to a 72-67 lead entering the final quarter.

Horoscope

Carroll Righter

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1975

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A most cooperative attitude is needed to secure benefits now for most persons are working all kinds of oblique angles to get others to do their will. Only those who are willing to understand their companions and honestly try to unite forces win out today.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Make sure you cooperate with a partner smoothly for more mutual success in the future. Avoid trouble with one whose thinking is opposite from yours.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20): Study well what a co worker wants you to do, about which you have doubts. Assist others. Maintain your own principles.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): After a good day's work, unwind, with recreational activities. See to it that your attachment goes along with your good ideas.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): Convince a close tie of your loyalty if you want to get along better. Entertain in p.m. at home. A wide-a-ribbler.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23): Plan how to cooperate with one who can assist you with an important responsibility. A different budget can be very helpful.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22): You are adept at business affairs now and can gain the approval of a business mogul who can include you in his enterprise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You will get more pleasure from personal activities if you invite friends to go along. Take treatments that make you feel dynamic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You can now get data needed to clarify the picture effectively. Prove devotion to mate in some way. Be alert.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Good day to come to a better understanding with friends and allies at the recreations that are most appealing to all of you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Delve into vocational and civic matters that will add to prestige and profit. Gain advice of bigwig about eliminating tensions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You have ideas first for advancement in your field of endeavor, but find them first with an expert and a bigwig.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Use intuition and expert's advice about a big project. Do something constructive about mate's complaints in a friendly fashion.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... ...he or she will like to be outdoors and will be very popular, but you will have to teach early just how to do so without getting hurt in the effort. Then the life becomes a very successful one as well as a happy one. There is much ability at neatness and perfect finish here, which should be encouraged. The right education will make for the fine artist, artisan, sports star good.

The Stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

What's What

L. M. Boyd

A literary minded client says he has come up with what he seriously believes to be the first of all the shaggy dog stories. Considerably edited, it goes: In the days of the knights, a midget told his king that he, too, wanted to be a knight. Too small, said the king. But the determined midget went about the kingdom, catching highwaymen and rescuing maidens, until the news got back to the king. All right, said the king, I dub thee knight. Special miniature armor was hammered out for him. A galley knife was honed into a sword. But no horse little enough was found. So the king substituted a large shaggy dog. And the midget went forth again to do good. A terrible rainstorm came up. He rode to a nearby inn. But the innkeeper said there was no more room. The midget pointed out how little space he'd take up. The innkeeper looked him over, and his mount, too, both soaked to the skin, and finally said, "Come on in. We'll find a spot for you. I couldn't send a knight off on a dog like this."

TRICKY MATH

What's your age? Don't tell me. Just multiply it by 3. Add 1. Multiply that by 3. Add your age again. Knock off the last digit. What do you get? Your age. But then you know that.

YOUNG FELLOW, if you're 19, the statistical odds are you've already met the girl you're going to marry, even though the probabilities indicate you've not yet proposed. Bear in mind, our Love and War man points out this does not mean you're now certain which of your feminine acquaintances you'll eventually marry. It's also a statistical fact that most of the married were not the first choices of their matrimonial mates.

POLLSTERS say no professional is more likely to switch political parties from election to election than is the farmer.

FERNANDO, if you can't identify that South American country once known as the Republic of the Sacred Heart, your old history teacher would be ashamed of you. Say Ecuador.

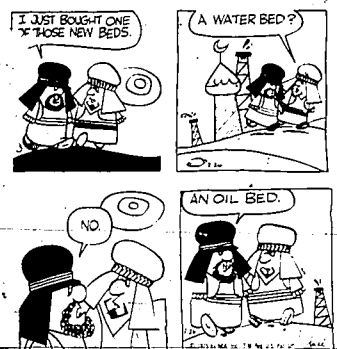

AMAZING the oddball things that have exploded quite violently. Freshly mined diamonds have done so. So have elephant tusks when refrigerated. And touched off with sparks, the dust of dried milk has blown up warehouses.

Court to decide 'Kat's' future

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — It's plain old pet food for a fluffy brown and white cat named "Kat" until a court decides whether she is entitled to an $8,000 diet of cracked crab, shrimp and chopped liver.

Her friend and keeper, Robert Weiss, died in November. His handwritten will left the money to "Kat" for her gourmet treats.

Deputy County Counsel Brian Carr, who insists he likes pets, now says "Kat" might not be legally qualified to inherit the estate directly because Weiss also was survived by relatives in the Midwest.

Mountainville "Kat" is sharing meals with a dog and another cat at the home of a friend of Weiss until the law decides the cat's future diets.

Ford mum about arrest

DETROIT (UPI) — Henry Ford II, chairman of the auto company that bears his family name, had nothing to say Tuesday about his weekend arrest in California on charges of being drunk while driving with a beautiful Detroit model.

He sat at the head table Monday at the weekly Economic Club of Detroit luncheon meeting, but declined to discuss the incident. He maintained his silence Tuesday, and the Ford company declined comment beyond a Monday statement issued through a spokesman that said only: "It can be confirmed that Mr. Ford received a traffic ticket in California Saturday evening."

With him at the time of the incident, police said, was Mrs. Kathleen Durosa, a 35-year old model and interior decorator.

She was not available for comment. Telephone calls to her home were answered by a tape recording that asked callers to leave a message.

Police in Santa Barbara, Calif., said they arrested the 57-year old auto executive when a patrolman spotted his car "weaving" in one of the town's main streets.

Ford was given a blood test to determine his sobriety, police said, then was held for nearly four hours in jail before posting a $375 cash bond.

Mrs. Durosa, police said, was detained but later released without charge.

Ford was charged with driving under the influence of an alcoholic beverage and a tentative trial date of March 7 was set in municipal court. The charge carries a maximum fine of $375.

A company spokesman said he did not know why Ford was in California.

Mrs. Durosa, a native of Grand Rapids, was identified by friends as a model who worked in films introducing new cars. She was widowed at age 19, friends said, and lives in the wealthy suburb of Grosse Pointe with two teen-aged daughters.

BPA alters IF offices

IDAHOO FALLS (UPI) — The Bureau of Reclamation altered its Idaho Falls office with the designation of a district office under the Walla Walla area.

Don Hodel, power company administrator, said the office has been a bureau office since the agency took over the power marketing function of the Bureau of Reclamation in Southern Idaho in 1963.

Hodel said the Department of Interior approved the change in status for the Idaho Falls office.
